TRIAL OF NEW HAVEN CASE

Government Introduces Evidence to Show Intent to Monopolize.

New York—An alleged act of intent to monopolize, committed within the three-year period of the State of New York.

The alleged offense consisted of the approval by the board of directors in 1912 of a proposition to acquire "open control" of the Merchants & Miners Transportation company and to establish a freight line from Boston to Galveston.

While it was shown that the proposition was never carried into effect, because of the passage of legislation by congress forbidding railroads to own steamship lines passing through the Panama canal.

CRASHES INTO AUTO

Three Lives Snuffed Out in a Moment and Two Fatally Injured Friday Afternoon.

Occupants of Automobile Hurrying Homeward Out of City, Fail to Hear Approaching Freight Train at Crossing.

Three people hurried into eternity in a moment when their automobile was fatally crushed and injured in the terrible toll taken Friday afternoon of last week by a Short Line freight train just inside the limits of this city.

The coroner's jury which convened Saturday afternoon in charge of Coroner T. J. Crosby, went into the cause of the accident with a view of fixing the blame. The train crew was put on the stand and in the main varied but little in their testimony.

The verdict of the jury of unavailing accident is given below: We, the jury in the above entitled inquest, being duly empaneled and sworn according to law, find the name of the deceased, Mrs. Lawrence Hansen, Mrs. John Iverson and M. A. Patterson, of the age of 67, 47, 34, a native of Denmark, Denmark and Utah, that they came to their death on the 12th day of November, 1915, in Twin Falls, Twin Falls county, State of Idaho.

Coming down grade at a speed of seven or eight miles per hour with thirty loaded rats, the crash must have been terrific and the stopping of the heavy train was a problem.

A football game was in progress at the ball park and from some of the occupants of the grand stand the first news of the accident was brought into the city by the announcer. The engine was stopped about a hundred feet east of the next crossing and it was here that an appalling accident occurred. In the rear of the engine was a crushed auto, one woman was found, Mrs. Henry Larsen, who at the time of going to press is believed to be recovering. In the front of the engine was the body of a man, who was instantly killed when the crash came. Here too, was found the body of M. A. Patterson, whose skull was crushed, but whose death must have been instantaneous. In the wreck and just in front of the pilot was found the driver of the car, Mr. Larsen, which was crushed by the counter.

The accident which brought so much sorrow to three homes in this county struck a heavy blow at one of the best pioneer citizens, Judge Hansen, who he, lost both wife and daughter. Judge Hansen, broken and sorrowing, over the death of his loved ones, is gradually getting better, but taking care of his wife makes the future to him very dark.

The remains of Mrs. Hansen were taken to Hansen Sunday for burial. Mrs. Iverson will be interred at Cottonwood, while those of Mr. Patterson will be shipped to Utah. Mr. Larsen will probably be buried in the Rock Creek cemetery.

The victims of one of the worst accidents in the history of this county are well known and highly respected citizens and among the pioneer families of Twin Falls. The accident occurred and had been through out of the wreck by the shock of the crash and body were also fatally crushed.

BOOKER T. WASHINGTON DEAD

Noted Educator Dies After His Return From New York.

Tuskegee, Ala.—Booker T. Washington, foremost teacher and leader of the negro race, died early Sunday at his home here, near the Tuskegee institute, of which he was founder and president. Hardening of the arteries following a serious bronchitis caused death four hours after Dr. Washington arrived from New York, although he had been falling in health for several months, the negro leader's condition became serious only last week while he was in the east. He then realized the end was near, but was determined to make the last long trip south. He had said often: "I was born in the south, I have lived all my life in the south and expect to die and be buried in the south."

Accompanied by his wife, his secretary and a physician, Dr. Washington left New York for Tuskegee at 4 o'clock Friday morning. He reached home Saturday at midnight and died at 4:40 o'clock Sunday morning. His last public appearance was at the annual conference of Congregational churches in New York where he delivered a lecture October 25th.

A widow, three children and four grandchildren survive. The funeral will be held at Tuskegee institute Wednesday morning.

JURY FAILED TO AGREE

Second Trial of Lewis and Johnson Resulted in Hung Jury.

The second trial of Lewis and Johnson, who are charged by the Gridley Elliot Frazier with stealing a number of horses, came to an end Saturday. The jury after being out for some time failed to reach an agreement. As soon as the jury was discharged, the jury was discharged and a special panel called.

As the times goes to press the case is being held over for the next term of court. On Monday afternoon the county attorney asked permission from the court to endorse several new witnesses.

As soon as the defense was granted by the court. The attorneys for the defense then asked that the case be continued until the next term of court. KUHN RAILROAD GIVEN RECEIVER

Federal Court Grants Petition of Stockholders.

D. C. MACWATTERS IS APPOINTED RECEIVER BY COURT

Idaho Southern and Milner-North Side Built at Great Expense, are Unprofitable.

Haley, Nov. 13.—Two Idaho independent rail systems passed into the hands of a receiver today when Judge Bothwell of the Fourth Judicial district appointed D. C. MacWatters receiver of the Milner & North Side railway which runs from Milner to Oakley. The receivership appointment was made upon application of E. S. Jackson, the general creditor and superintendent of both lines.

The Idaho Southern railroad, which runs from Gooding to Jerome, was built eight years ago and comprises 23 miles of standard gauge track. The line from Milner to Oakley was built six years ago and is 22 miles in length. Both lines were built by the Kuhn in their Twin Falls North Side development work and for a time it was believed both roads would develop into paying lines, but the branching out of the Oregon Short Line serving a good part of the same territory, caused a falling off in business and for several years neither line has paid operating expenses and for the past two years the deficit has been heavy.

D. C. MacWatters, who has been general manager of both lines and is familiar with the operation of the roads, will be in control as receiver as long as the roads continue to operate.

RECOVERS LOST WATCH

Local Engineer Recovers Time Piece From Wood River.

Civil Engineer Miller Burkett of Twin Falls, while on a visit to Haley last August, went on a fishing trip up Wood River, near Ketchikan, in company with W. M. Acuff and Civil Engineer Floyd D. Angel. While wading the river, Mr. Burkett lost a good Elgin watch, it having slipped from his pocket and dropped into the water.

About a week after the watch was lost Mr. Acuff and John Voorhees of Rupert, were fishing at the place Mr. Burkett thought he had lost his time-piece.

While wading along the river Mr. Voorhees found the watch lying in the water. When they started home he told Mr. Acuff that he had found a watch and upon being informed that Mr. Burkett had lost the same, the latter returned to its owner.

It was a somewhat lucky find, and under the circumstances Mr. Burkett was fortunate.—Haley News-Times.

If I spend my Dollars out of Twin Falls and you spend your Dollars out of Twin Falls, and all the People spend their Dollars out of Twin Falls, WHAT IN THE THUNDER WILL BECOME OF TWIN FALLS?

THINK ABOUT IT

Twin Falls Commercial Club

The medical and dental inspection of pupils in the public schools, it carried on so as to give monopoly to any doctor or dentist should be a wise move and one that should meet with the approval of all parents. The matter of picking the inspectors each time should be the object of a great deal of care on the board so that it will not cause trouble.

NEED FOR RESTRICTIONS

The reports of activities of Austrian and German spies in this country may or may not be true. But it is certain that this government has been too lax in enforcing every jot and tittle of international law. American freedom of action is for Americans not for foreign representatives, who are supposed to be honorable enough to uphold the honor of the nations they represent. To take advantage of the hospitality of a friendly or neutral nation is one of the most despicable acts possible between civilized countries and one that should be punished by quick retribution.

THE PROPER MOVE

The coming of the members of the State Land Board to the Salmon tract next Saturday indicates that the proper view of the state's responsibility is at last being taken by the representatives. The Times trusts that the settlers will meet the land board and give them the full truth on the situation, with care that nothing of exaggeration creeps in. The truth will be bad enough of the conditions which confront many of the people who have staked their all upon the assertion of the state that Salmon River tract had a sufficient water right.

The meeting Saturday, if the facts are brought out, will convince the land board of the necessity of doing something immediately to alleviate the suffering which is bound to come to many out on the Salmon before another crop can be harvested. It is up to the state to do its part toward making amends for one of the ghastliest irritations mistakes ever made by the state engineers in the past.

That the board is coming here is wise instead of asking a large body of settlers to make the expensive trip to the state capital. The Times believes that better days are ahead for settlers on the Salmon as the result of the investigation which is being made.

VICTORY GLIMPSED BY GERMANY

The last act has begun, and when the curtain falls it will find the Teutonic Powers wearing the laurels of victory. Such, at least, is the unanimous view of the Germanic armies in Serbia. So swift will be the advance upon Constantinople, we are informed that the Allies will have no time to organize an effective opposition and before troops can be brought from France and England we are assured that the old Europe between Antwerp and the Golden Horn will be in possession of Germany and her allies. The Berlin Lokal Anzeiger thinks that those who cannot see "then" will be the angels of victory descending upon the German hosts must be blind indeed.

"The neutral people would have to be sightless if they did not see over whose standards the goddess of victory is moving. Nations who, after a fight of fifteen months against a world in arms, are able with such great certainty to lead, at a moment's notice, a new army to victory can not be defeated. It is the truth that our own victories disclose with absolute clearness even to the most incredulous. The semi-official Berlin Lokal Anzeiger announces 'proudly but without arrogance' that Germany is performing miracles—miracles that make her triumph a certainty. 'With amangement will the neutrals

TALKS ON THRIFT

No. 12—FOUR BOYS' CHANCE IN THE WORLD

The dazzling attractions of a luxury-loving age constitute the greatest peril to American education. President of Brown University. It's a fine Sunday afternoon. Proud and happy Father is giving Baby Boy an airing and getting a lot of good from the exercise himself. The youngster's asleep now, so we'll just join Daddy and have a quiet talk with him about his son's future.

"What are you going to do to give that boy of yours a start in life?" we ask. "Why we're going to feed him, clothe him and try to keep him well," says the fond parent. "We'll send him to public school and Sunday-school. He will have good books to read, good playthings and good playmates."

"That's fine," we reply, "but how is he going to learn thrift and the value of money?"

"Well, my theory is," replies the young father, "that if my child is given these things I have mentioned he will be pretty well able to take care of himself when the time comes. Of course, I'm carrying some life insurance for the benefit of my family."

"That's all right," we reply, "but do you realize that learning the value of money by beginning to earn it and save it in his boyhood will do more to insure your boy's success than almost any other one thing? It will create in him a habit which will be of lifelong benefit. And if you open a savings bank account in his name and keep it up faithfully, eventually, with his assistance, you can accumulate a really worth-while fund from money you otherwise might waste."

"By George, there's a good deal of truth in that. I never looked at it like that before," says the young father, "just as the baby wakes up and begins to say 'Dad, Dad.'"

"I'll start that savings account tomorrow," is his parting remark as we take leave of him.

Now just a word to parents of older boys. Your boy in breezy every day laying the foundation for his career. His daily practices are becoming his fixed habits. If an "easy spender" now he will have much to undo before he finds himself.

A savings account at the bank, will help your boy to gain poise as well as capital. Its effect upon his life will depend upon the attention he gives to it. Will you help and encourage him in this direction?

ELECTRICITY WEEK AT BOISE

Will Hold Stage Center From November 29 to December 4.

The week beginning November 29 and ending December 4, will be a busy one for the local electrical merchants," said F. K. Kleenan, local sales manager for Electric Investment company. "The purpose of the unusual activity is to accelerate the swing back of 'prosperity' pendulum throughout the nation."

"Back of the movement are men representing investments in the electrical industry of more than three billion dollars. The appeal of the campaign is many ways it has created comfort-factors, that have carried the world out of the darkness of frugery into the light of convenience."

"It has more than any other age, enhanced the comfort, health and happiness of mankind. The same current carried by wires in the wires serves us with heat, light or power. It carries our burdens, it transports us from place to place. It lights our homes, stores and streets and busily protects us from the terrors that thrive in darkness."

"Domestic uses. 'Electricity does our sewing, cooking, washing and ironing. It cleans the home, and keeps it free from dirt and germs. It supplies warmth in winter and cool comfort in summer. It links together the peoples of the world by the wireless, the cable, the telegraph and the telephone, making one hour of us all.'

"Electricity enters into the manufacture of practically all our necessities, making them cheaper and better. It can be used in many other ways. 'Electricity finds no duty too heavy nor any task too delicate. With wonderful adaptability, always under control, it is powerful enough to drive ponderous machinery, gentle enough to operate an electric fan, or to warm the baby's bottle. It is always at hand. It obeys instantly—never sleeps—never tires—never refuses."

Never Failing Servant. "A touch of a switch or a touch of a button, is all the effort required of this willing servant to do your work. Just imagine what would happen if the electricity were suddenly eliminated," said Mr. Kleenan. "The wheels of commerce would be halted. We would be in darkness. Without telegraph, cable or wireless, we would be cut off from the outside world. Without the telephone we would again be deaf and dumb to all absent ones. Prosperity and plenty would suddenly be checked. Therefore, 'Electrical Prosperity Week' is dedicated in acknowledgement of the services electricity is rendering."

California Expositions—Sunday night, and they expect to be gone several weeks. They will return by way of Oregon and visit friends and relatives at Portland and at Tillamook.

Mrs. Pearl Meredith and her sister-in-law, Miss Belle Meredith, of Des Moines, Iowa, who formerly lived in Buhl, came Saturday evening to visit several days on their way to California. They are guests at Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Muehler's home here.

Dad Skiller, of Boise, brought several wagons and teams to Buhl from Boise last week to use them in feeding severe hard frosts at Pocatello. He is wintering on this end of the tract. He has fifteen or twenty wagons and as many teams, which he will use to feed his sheep this winter.

It will be of interest to the friends of Ernest and Lloyd Byrne to know that they are playing on the Idaho Traction foot ball team at Pocatello this year. They have a good team and Ernest Byrne, who played quarterback on the Buhl team last year, is playing in the position regularly. Lloyd accompanied the team on their trip to Boise as a substitute.

Lucian Shilds, who has been working with Capt. Hazzard during the fall and summer, has been transferred to Burley. They will probably work until cold weather drives them home.

N. R. Davis arrived home from Salt Lake Friday where he has been quite seriously ill for the past six weeks, and where he submitted to an operation. He is getting along quite well at this time, and was accompanied home by his son who was with him at Salt Lake. While Mr. Davis was sick at Salt Lake hospital, Mrs. Davis was sick at their ranch south of town, with typhoid fever. She is about well at this time.

Mrs. P. E. Bartlett was called to Santa Barbara, Cal., last week by the illness of her daughter, Mrs. Thomas Mason. Mrs. Bartlett has received a telegram from Mrs. Bartlett since, stating that Mrs. Mason was getting better. Mrs. Mason lived at Buhl formerly, and many friends here who are interested to know how she is getting along.

Harry Webber, who is manager of the Cascade Lumber company, visited Buhl Sunday.

T. A. Weatherly and family, non-law of E. W. King, who lives four miles northeast of Buhl, are moving here from Julietta, Idaho. Mr. Weatherly has rented E. W. King's ranch and he is expecting to arrive here in an emigrant car this week.

Charles Busman, who has a band of sheep on the range between Rogerson and Oakley was in Buhl this week building lambing sheds on his ranch north of Buhl, where he expects to bring his sheep later to winter them. Mrs. W. F. Paris was a Twin Falls caller Saturday.

A. W. Ostrom went to Twin Falls Saturday on business at the November term court.

A. E. Kilas returned the latter part of last week from the east where he accompanied a shipment of four car loads of hogs, and he reports having received good prices.

Ed Wimmer and family moved last week into town, in the Mrs. Greaves property on the street below the I. P. Constant residence.

Lester J. Parker is building a modern bungalow on the lot between the Chas. Schoeller and the J. H. Corwell residences.

Hogs.

A new record made in the skin division. Seventy-eight hundred head were unloaded for today's trade. Hogs are showing some weakness although the drop in price was not as heavy as expected. Top hogs brought $6.40 a dime under last week's close.

Sheep.

Monday seems to be fast losing its popularity as a sheep market day. Only 411 head were offered. One load of choice wethers were sold at 6.00 and are excellent for good lambs and yearlings. Good lambs will bring $7.15 to $7.25; ewes $5.00 to $5.50; yearlings $6.00 to $6.25; wethers $5.50 to $6.00.

MYSTERY IN GARDEN HOSE

Idaho Falls Comes to the Front With a New One.

A hose in the ground is a queer thing to cause a mystery and yet this has excited no small amount of comment in this city for the last two days. Harry MacKnight, who lives at 460 Water avenue, went to take a rubber hose Sunday to put it in the shed for the winter. The hose had been coiled up for the past two weeks and had not been touched. When he picked it up he found that one end of it was stuck into the hard earth. He pulled on the hose to get it out of the ground, but had no success and finally got a shovel to dig it out. He dug down about four feet and the hose was still in the ground. When the hose was measured it was found that eight or ten feet was missing and evidently in the ground. The ground around the hose where it lay coiled up was solid and the hole where it entered the ground is only as large as the hose and the ground on every side is solid. There was only a very small quantity of loose earth on the top of the ground which looked like a small ant hill. Many people have seen the strange phenomenon but no person has yet been able to explain it. Several persons have volunteered to dig the hose out and this afternoon an attempt will be made to find out what is pulling it into the ground. All attempts to pull the hose have failed and a queer fact is that it is still going into the ground at a rate of about two inches every twenty-four hours. The course of the hose was straight down for about two feet and then veered off at a slight angle. The mystery is hard to explain from the fact that it is evident that no hole has been dug for the hose and the great puzzle which it has attained.—Idaho Falls Times.

KENWORTHY PLAYERS GOOD

Capable Organization Pleases Patrons at Lavinger.

The Kenworthy Players, carrying their own special scenery and headed by charming little Helen Duffy, gave general satisfaction at the Lavinger last Friday and Saturday. They presented the three act farce "His Temporary Wife," which abounded with witty lines and amusing situations. The gowns worn by Helen Duffy brought forth many exclamations from the feminine portion of the audience. Splendid pictures were offered also, making about the biggest 25 cent show ever offered in Twin Falls. The company will return this coming Friday and Saturday, presenting in addition to the regular picture program, the successful comedy-drama "The Trep," a play of city life with many laughable comedy bits and some intense dramatic situations.

"Aristocracy" Thursday. The next "worth while" photoplay attraction at the Lavinger is the great Paramount production, "Aristocracy," featuring Miss Tyrone Power. It is one of the most elaborately staged productions ever offered on the Paramount program and will satisfy all lovers of good pictures. This film ran for four consecutive months at Orchestra hall in Chicago and established other unprecedented records in other cities. It will be shown in Twin Falls but one night only, Thursday, November 18th.

"THE FAMILY STAIN"

At the Isis Theatre Thursday and Friday of This Week.

No more strange or thrilling story was ever written than "The Family Stain," adapted from "The Widow Leverage" and produced by William Fox. It is a mystery story of far more than usual interest. In this story Emilie Garbarin gives greater play to his fantastic mind than in any other story he has ever written. The leading role of the production is in the hands of Frederick Perry, who was recently seen in Salt Lake in "On Trial." Mr. Perry gives to the screen production all the dramatic intensity of which he is capable, and the resultant photo-drama is an exceptional offer. "The Family Stain" will be the feature attraction of the week at the Isis.

The Fox Features are being played in all the leading theatres throughout the country and many of them are playing return dates.

WORLD'S PET STOCK

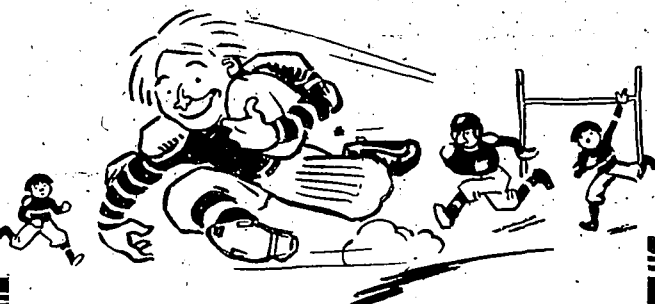

At Panama-Pacific International Exposition, December 2 and 3rd.

San Francisco, Nov. 15.—With such noted men as Governor Hiram Johnson, Luther Burbank, Dr. David Starr Jordan, Senator James D. Phelan and President Benjamin Ide Wheeler of the University of California, endorsing the program, the Children's Pet Exhibition which will be held under the auspices of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition, December 2 and 3, promises to be one of the greatest individual successes of the entire Exposition year.

The exhibition will not be a fancier's show in any sense of the word. It is by the children, of the children and for the children of the entire nation. No entry fees will be charged, no advertising prizes accepted nor will commercial exploitation of any kind be permitted. Feed, coops, benches and care will be provided. All pets will be judged from the standpoint of their utility and desirability as pets for children. Exposition prize ribbons will be awarded in all classes, and special prizes will be awarded as donated.

Any child in the United States may enter pets in the exhibition. It is expected that nearly every school in California will have at least one entry. The superintendents, teachers and others are invited to assist in making the exhibition the greatest from an educational standpoint ever held. Entry blanks will be sent on application to J. C. O'Leary, Chief of the Live Stock Department, or to Dr. Frederick W. D'Evelyn, 314 Phelan building, San Francisco.

The age limit for exhibitors is sixteen years, and all entries must be made on Children's Pets Exhibition Blanks. The entries will close, Monday, November 22, at 5 p. m. In connection with the exhibition, a Children's Pets Exhibition Congress will be held in Recital Hall on the evening grounds at the afternoon of December 1, beginning at 2 p. m. All interested in children's pets are invited and invitations have been extended to the governor, to the mayors of different cities, to chambers of commerce and boards of supervisors.

Mr. Hyde says that the Twin Falls country is one of the greatest agricultural regions of the west. This year a great many thousands of tons of hay was raised in that section, and there is practically none for sale there at the present time. While in the Twin Falls section he bought considerable clover straw hay, which sells for $5 a ton, and this fodder will be used to feed many horses from Metropolis during the winter. -Wells (Nev.) SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.

A feud has existed between Colonel Arthur Stanley and his cousin, Judge Lamar Stanley, ever since the diamond from the sky, found in a mine by an American, was stolen by the Stanley carleton in England many years ago. When the diamond was taken to the colony and the mother died, the colony was a gypsy boy and substitutes him. Three years later the gypsy mother, having had no part in this business, steals the girl, being reared in secret, and leaves her an orphan. The gypsy boy has obtained possession of the diamond from the sky, and a document with the Stanley secret. When the gypsy boy, a beautiful young girl, Haggar, now gypsy queen, returns to Virginia with her, Dr. Lee, the late Colonel Stanley's friend, adopts Esther. Arthur Stanley, son of Haggar, falls in love with Esther, and so does his cousin and cousin, the Stanley, rightful heir of Stanley. In stealing the diamond Blair causes the death of the doctor, who later is put the blame on Arthur, who takes the gem. Arthur Stanley eludes his pursuers and joins Haggar, who is a friend of his. Haggar steals the diamond from the sky, and to avoid detection drops it into a mine box. Arthur Stanley, Richmond and goes to the west. The diamond passes into a mail bag, picked up by Quabba, a crook, who steals the money, steals the diamond. Haggar takes Esther to Stanley hill.

Tom Blake, who is a friend of Haggar, is hired by Haggar, produces finger prints connecting Blair. Haggar proposes a plan to Mrs. Stanley, the wife of Haggar, and Esther being received in Fairfax society. Blair strikes down Haggar and steals the diamond. Blair is with Esther among the gypsies. Mamma, Duke Smythe, Arthur, arrives to announce Arthur is heir to the estate. Blair Stanley, leaving Arthur a fugitive he seeks Blair instead. To win Vivian, Blair steals the diamond, and leaves her. Their train is robbed, Vivian loses the diamond, which a main train robber, Duke Smythe, steals. The $100,000 is found by Arthur, who is known as John Powell, sleep herder. Vivian deserts Blair, telling him he must regain the diamond for her. Luke Lovell, driven from the camp after leaving Haggar's secret, leaves to seek Blair in Richmond society, protégé of Mrs. Stanley, who suspects his name, and of Mrs. Randolph. Abe Bloom, gambler, who knows Blair's skill, covets the diamond and calls it the price of his recovery. Blair Stanley, assisted by his mother, pays unwelcome court to Esther. Mrs. Stanley asserting Vivian's rights before. The diamond is picked up by an Indian woman. Dr. Lee, Arthur leaves, died of heart disease. Inventing very rich he buys Stanley hill, sold at auction, through Blake, and also provides for Haggar and her money left secretly to Esther's room. Luke Lovell buys the diamond from the square, but loses it in a fight on Santa Barbara bay. The gypsies, Vivian, desiring all to emigrate Arthur, sends for Blair.

Esther and Quabba, also Blair, go to the California ultra to seek Arthur. Smythe is sent west by Blake. Lovell repairs the coach in which Esther and Smythe ride. Quabba catches a man with the diamond; but a policeman, Huff, stops. The coach rolls down the mountainside, but Esther and the lawyer escape unhurt. Menwille Quabba returns, and Esther elude Luke and Blair. Vivian Murston is rescued from drowning by John Powell, who falls in love with her. Smythe finds the diamond.

Blair and Luke intercept a backboard carrying Esther and Quabba seeking Powell. The driver is shot. Esther and Quabba escape and are joined by Mammawhite. Smythe, who gives Esther the diamond to deliver to Arthur. Blair and Luke go to the yacht in Arthur's absence and find Esther with the diamond. To escape them they jump overboard.

Esther and Quabba escape while Blair and Luke leave. Powell leaves Los Angeles and Esther Santa Barbara, each headed for the mines. Blair meanwhile has joined Vivian in Los Angeles. Du-rand, "king of diamonds," a crook known to Vivian, goes to a saloon near the mines in hope that he can learn the whereabouts of the diamond. There he meets Luke Lovell. Esther, unknowing the place's character, enters the saloon, seeing her, demanding a dance, and in doing so discloses the diamond. Arthur appears on the scene. Esther and he contract it for a moment. The diamond is lost in a mine. The roof caves in. Under it is Arthur.

CHAPTER XXXVII.

Fire, Fury and Confusion.

WHERE was the diamond from the sky? It was not in the grasp of Frank Du-rand, great while king of diamonds; it was not clasped in the fingers talons of Kansas Em, the dance hall fury; it was not in Esther's hands, as Quabba, the ever watchful poor Italian, drew her from the mine. The mine, where the roof had fallen on the struggling mob in Pete's Palace. It was in the first outbreak of Kansas Em's frenzied indignation when, after she had read aloud the prayer in the old locket—a mother's prayer come so strangely to the light after all these years—that the diamond, with its chain, had been knocked from the dance hall anarchist's hand after her first screaming outbreak in protesting the shrieking Esther, so strangely thrust into this sin stained, sordid saturnalia when she sought her love. Others had gathered there, moved by the spirit of greed, moved by the desire for the diamond from the sky. Here was a higher, brighter motive.

Arthur, gasping and awed by sight of Esther, the center of a struggle for the diamond from the sky, had fought to her side and had embraced her. Then like a mighty wave, the mass of stark and wild heaving humanity had broken upon them and torn them apart. Then it was that Arthur raged like a demon and struck out on all sides and knew no more in his madness, even when the wild gale and the roof fell upon his unswerving body.

Edged to the outskirts of the combat, Quabba had plucked Esther from the storm of blows and had led her, dazed, to safety.

When the riot had broken loose Smythe had struck out smartly, hitting every skull in sight. But when the surge of the crowd had borne against the side wall and men and women lunged like beasts to rend and tear each other the lawyer, taking advantage of being near the doorway, had darted out into the night, which seemed to promise safety.

In the excitement and the struggle he had not noted the diamond had been hurried through the air when Luke Lovell, swooping for it like the rest, had struck the arm of Kansas Em, loosening her grasp upon the chain of the locket as she held it high above the through. Over the heads of the crowd it had flashed and fallen upon the deer horn, and so the lawyer had borne it from the scene of struggle unnoticed by any one in the struggling medley, not even by himself.

Scarcely knowing what he did, the note flashed lawyer darted into the next haven of safety he encountered. It was a barrel that Pete's bartender had converted into a kennel for a stray puppy which had been given to him that day.

Others plucked at the ruler with force and bleeding hands, and others guff fought desperately at one another's throats.

Such a group as still fought, despite the death and disaster all around them, was Frank Du-rand, who had come to these wild regions for the diamond, to see it and to lose it, and the bestial Peter Huff, the dance hall man. The two fought manly, still with Luke Lovell. The quick eye of Du-rand had seen the slow Luke almost at once. To gain the diamond, Du-rand had not seen where the diamond had fallen, but instinctively he had torn through the little knot that fought around him and had struck Luke a mighty blow between the eyes with all his strength and skill. For Du-rand had been a boxer in his earlier career. But Luke had shaken himself as a dog might do and had closed in quickly on Du-rand.

Luke was nearly a match for the two, but finally they beat him to his knees and searched him near the barrel where the hiding lawyer lay. Then, with curses of disappointment, Du-rand and Huff rushed back to the dance hall just as the roof fell, and Luke, starting to his feet, made off in the darkness, firm now in the belief that the devil himself dwelt in the diamond from the sky, even though a mother's prayer had been all these years hidden behind it.

The lawyer, peering cautiously from his hiding place, hears a click and clatter against the side of the barrel into which he has crept to hide. In the darkness, and on his hands and knees, he clutches the deer head knocker, feels it to ascertain if it has been injured, and his trembling hand closes upon the diamond.

The roof has crumbled, matted and plumed down a score of men and women, who but a moment before numerously sought one another's lives.

"A gypsy woman bereft of reason in favor of Richmond."

Some, we rushed to death's stillness beneath the wreckage. Of these there is one stalwart young man in auto costume. His face, blanched in death or unconsciousness, is canoe-like. It is Arthur Stanley. A great timber is across his chest, and he is crushed and dazed out into the night.

"Are you hurt, dearie?" asks Kansas Em, turning to Esther from the sickening sight of the wreckage and the hideous cries which still rise loudly behind them.

Esther is sick and faint. "I am not hurt," she said tremulously. "Who is Arthur? Has he escaped? Is he killed?"

"Was he your friend?" asked Kansas Em. "Why, that's the boss, Mr. John Powell, the millionaire, who has just bought the mine, around here. He had just arrived when this broke loose. Is he your friend?"

Esther could have said that the young man known as John Powell was her only friend in all the world, save the poor Italian, Quabba, and a gypsy woman bereft of reason in favor of Richmond. But Esther said no word, but sped to the ruins and fought her way through several groups of men and women, who, coming to their senses, were beginning the work of rescue in the face of the flames, that were now burning out in several places in the wreckage.

The cracking fire shed its light among the ruins and down in such a terrified as where Esther turned herself in search of Arthur. Those who were pinned in the wreckage and were conscious of the awful peril of fire screamed and begged for aid and succor.

There was no cry from the pinched man whom Esther sought and whom she found. As one dead he lay, half covered by the wreckage, but with face unscarred and undamaged. Already the red edges of fire were creeping near to him. Esther grasped at his shoulder, but the task was beyond her strength and upon the wreckage and their friend, the outcast Kansas Em, joined their efforts with hers. Together they dragged the unconscious man from the burning ruins of the dance hall. Men were arriving with stretchers from the mine, and upon one of these Arthur was placed, and then Esther, her strength and resolution, leaving her, feels a deadly numbness come swiftly over her.

CHAPTER XXXVIII. To Be Near Her Love. AMMOTH is a lawless community, and Peter Huff, the den keeper, is one of its most lawless arbiters. But he has the gambler's temperament. The destruction of his gambling hall is the adverse turn of a card to him. The diamond from the sky, since Du-rand has told him of it, now fills the mind of Peter Huff.

"Easy come and easy go. In a gamble for fortune, in a play for stake worth half a million, I lost a dump worth five thousand. The odds were worth it even to lose!" says Mr. Huff. Then he turns to the late insurgent instigator of his den and says grandly: "Well, Em, you pulled a fine bone for your boss when you started this scrap over your young lady friend there."

Here Pete looked keenly into the white face of the fainting Esther. Pete was not altogether lost to the higher humilities. "Why, she's only a kid," he said, "and she's all in. Take her to your place and I'll her up. We've sent for the doctor. We'll need the corner, too—and the undertaker," he added.

"I am a doctor," said Du-rand, who had been stooping over Arthur and thrusting aside several of the rough group who had gathered around the stretcher. "There are other people to help besides this one," remarked Du-rand to these. "Hurry; I'll take care of Mr. Powell."

"You think he'll live?" asked Huff. "Are you really a doctor?"

"It is badly injured internally," replied Du-rand, "several ribs are broken and one of his arms. It should be taken to a hospital, as I think an operation is necessary. Yes, I am a doctor. I have a Heidelberg degree to prove it, but you must excuse me if I haven't it with me to clear up your doubts."

"Oh, don't be sore at me," retorted Mr. Huff. "I don't care whether you're a fussy doctor, a human doctor or no doctor. But as Mr. Powell's death may mean the stopping of these works you use your own judgment as to whether we will try to take care of him here or get him to Los Angeles. You had better attend to him, and I'll stick around here and search everybody, living or dead, and dig in those ruins when they're over enough for that stone you say is embedded the diamond from the sky. Don't worry about me, I'll be on the square."

"Of course you'll be on the square," replied Du-rand testily. "How could you suppose of it without getting into the penitentiary unless you handed it over to me if you find it? Don't worry about being square with me. Worry about me being square with you."

And thus, having thoroughly submitted Peter Huff, Du-rand turned to minister to the unconscious Arthur again.

It was no idle boast of Du-rand's that he was a physician and the possessor of a Heidelberg degree. His skill had been marked in his profession, and had he chosen to devote himself to it Du-rand would have been famous both as a physician and a surgeon. Mixed in several scandals, he had been forced to fly from New York, Paris and Vienna. But of recent years he has wholly abandoned the dealing in illicit drugs for the more exciting and desperate profession of international game crook, sensational success in this line having secured for him the pseudonym of "the king of diamonds."

Arthur was badly injured, how badly Du-rand had surmised at his first superficial examination. But Du-rand had also surmised that his patient's youth and strong constitution would enable him to stand a hurried journey to Los Angeles ere the reaction from shock set in. Then, too, a daring scheme was already formulating in Du-rand Ministered to the Unconscious Arthur.

Du-rand's mind. Arthur, crushed and helpless—John Powell, the millionaire as Du-rand knew him—was wholly at his mercy. Surely when John Powell recovered strength and consciousness common gratitude would impel him to retain the services of the physician who had saved his life by hastening with his shattered form from the wilderness to the care and convenience of the city.

Besides this, Durand remembered Vivian speaking of Blair Stanley and the strange regard and fondness the now injured man had always held for his cousin, for Vivian had informed Durand and her other former associates, De Vaux, that Arthur and Blair were cousins, though she had deemed it best to keep the secret of Arthur being other than John Powell, as he was known in the west.

Exactly but skilfully, improvising an ambulance by the aid of the stretcher and John Powell's high powered roadster and taking with him a mechanic to aid him in running and caring for the great car, Durand departed from Mammoth and he still unconscious patient-laden in blankets.

When Esther had recovered herself the improvised automobile ambulance was gone. Esther knew nothing of Durand save what Peter Huff could tell her in answer to her frantic inquiries. "He's a doctor, kid. That's all I know," Mr. Huff had replied. "He's a big doctor, too, and an old friend of your friend, Mr. Powell. At least, he's a friend of friends of his. You ought to be thankful. Doc Durand told me Mr. Powell wouldn't have a chance for his life unless he was taken to a hospital at once and operated on."

There were tears in Kansas Em's worldly wise eyes at Esther's sorrow and distress. "If you're not satisfied you go follow them," Em whispered. "Have you any more to be told? No? Well, that's all. 'Yes, thank you,' murmured Esther. 'I will have Quamba here get our horses from the stable, and we will ride to the station and take the first train to Los Angeles.'"

"You will find sometimes of me, won't you?" asked Kansas Em busily. "Here is the prayer for the locked. Did you know that it was in it?" "No," said Esther. "I don't think any one knew it. There seemed to be a concealed secret spring that was touched."

A secret spring was touched in the stult breast of Kansas Em. "Your mother put it there when you were a baby," she murmured. "I knew it. I felt it. There was a faint perfume like lavender about it. A mother's prayer." She sobbed as she took the paper from her bosom, where she had thrust it when the fight had begun in the dance hall.

"Even a sinner like I am is made the better by it," continued Em. "And will you pray for me?" "Always," said Esther brokenly as she took the crumpled paper, with its faint, vague, old time perfume. Then Esther put her arms around the outgoing of the train and kissed her in token of pity and gratitude.

But the diamond from the sky? Of all the world Marmaduke Smythe is unmoved by its powers for good or ill. Whether it be helpful to those who have no claim or right to it or whether it be truly a charm against harm for Stanley's of the blood means and matters nothing to Marmaduke Smythe. He feels it his duty to surrender it to the Stanley heir, but meanwhile it is a responsibility he does not deem involves upon him. He will be rid of it.

He halts by a signpost that reads, "Twenty Miles to Mammoth." He mops his brow and thinks, and, truly, it's a long, long, twenty miles that he has come, bearing with him by his shawl strap handle the deer head that he brought at the auction at Stanley hall. Personally the deer head is far more to Marmaduke Smythe than the diamond from the sky.

cries of appreciation and delight, she seizes it and hangs it around her doll's neck. Immediately her little sister Polly demands it, nay, even grasps it. A snap, a scream, and Toodles jerks away the rocks and walks indignantly away, with both her doll and her treasure trove, while little Polly patters down the road to run home and tell mamma.

At the ruins of his dance hall Peter Huff watches the diggers with a keen glance that never wavers. The dead that are brought from the charred debris are nothing to Peter Huff. He has them searched, as he had the living and the wounded, resuscitated in his frantic endeavors to find the diamond.

A little, old, squat built workman arouses the suspicion of Peter Huff, for the little old workman has furtively picked up and secreted some shining object. Forced to disgorge, the workman shows a dull, warm silver dollar. With a bitter curse of disappointment and anger, Pete smashes the little old digger in the face and knocks him sprawling. The old fellow picks himself up. "You think I had the diamond? That was 'out last night, eh?" he asked. "Well, I'll tell you, since you've been so handy with your fists. One of the boys says he's seen that stranger with the side whiskers running out in that direction with the diamond when the fight broke loose."

There is such an air of sincerity about the fellow's words that Peter Huff feels a gambler's "hunch." He rushes from the work at the promptings of the hunch and commandeers the cheap, old automobile of a friend and with his friends goes in pursuit of the fugitive stranger with the side whiskers. So remarkable a figure as Smythe, not to mention the impediment in the deer's head, has left a blazed trail. Twenty-one miles from Mammoth Smythe is overtaken and held up at the pistol's point. The diamond is not on his person, but Pete and his pal find the memorandum of its hiding place.

Back to the oak tree they bear the protesting Smythe, but the diamond is gone again. Pete and his pal part from the lawyer with curses and return to Mammoth. They pass Toodles, aged four, crying from a bee sting. Then Toodles runs, crying, home to mother, as little Polly did before her. The diamond has been cast aside and forgotten by Toodles, who had been expostured with it as she crossed the bee yard, ill-treating too near a swarming hive, also had been stung. The diamond, dropped by the scampering child in pain, lies on the alighting board of the bee while the workers of the hive push out the bunch and sting them to death against the bauble at the door way.

In Los Angeles the newspapers spread stories of the dramatic first homecoming to his great nation, shattered, insensible, more dead than alive, of John Powell, the young oil and mining magnate. The papers speak feelingly of the skill and untiring attention of the celebrated physician, Dr. Durand, and of the care and attention of friends and relatives of the injured man, including a favorite cousin, Blair Stanley of Virginia, who has recently arrived and will take complete charge of Mr. Powell's affairs, say the newspapers.

The papers also mention briefly that a pretty and agitated young woman called to inquire as to Mr. Powell's Smythe, is overtaken and held up. condition, but refused to give her name to the servant, who informed her that no one could be admitted to Mr. Powell's bedside except Dr. Durand and the nurse in charge, Miss Marston. So Arthur Stanley lies helpless at the hands of a hated wife, Esther of the loving heart is barred out at its door, and the diamond from the sky is buzzed about by bees who perhaps whisper of it to their sovereign, for it is, indeed, a jewel for a queen.

Most chronic diseases can be prevented if only taken in time. Don't wait until you notice the symptoms; that is usually too late. Long before you suspect that there is anything wrong, a careful medical examination will discover the beginning of the disorder. Therefore if you value your health, consult your family physician once a year, submit yourself to a thorough examination, and carefully follow the advice he gives you.
