WRONG SENTIMENT

Some of the papers of the state have been inclined to become the report of the special Carey Act investigating committee. For the most part the papers taking such a position spend most of their time telling how much damage such agitation is doing to increasing capital. Few if any have anything to say of the individual and collective damage done to settlers through mismanagement and fraudulent advertising on the part of the capitalists who have made failures of certain projects. It would look just, at least, for the newspapers to weigh both sides of a proposition.

The settler usually is a man unwise to financial operations and with a small amount of funds. When he enters into the agreement with any promoter, it is with the full intent to fulfill his part of the agreement. His small amount of capital practically ties him to the land and to the faithful performance of the contract. His efforts rightly directed build up wealth not only for himself but for the county and state within which he resides. His success and prosperity are the drawing cards upon which the promoter must depend altogether. His failure on the other hand has more to do with giving the project a black eye than the croakings or the pessimism of the capitalist.

The capitalist rarely resides within the state into which his investment is made. His attitude toward that state is that of an outsider, who will use his pound of flesh and who will by every legal method, dodge payment of proper and just taxes, and who is opposed to improvements that cut down any portion of his pecuniary expectation.

Between the two which man should be protected? Is there a real question as to the duty of the state and the newspapers and citizens within that state? Surely there is only one answer for the man who is not biased. The actual settler must be protected at all hazards provided his claims are just. The foolish cry for protection of the promoter and capitalist should be unheard, except as to his rights in equity. Idaho has too long protected capital at the expense of her own citizens. It is time to make a decided stand for what is right. The state land board cannot much longer ignore such right unless it desires the irrigation matter to become a political issue.

HUGHES BALKS AT "CONSCRIPTION"

The downright refusal of Justice Hughes to be "conscripted" into the Presidential nomination of 1916 by the Republicans of Nebraska wins for him the praise of those editorial observers who dread to see the trail of party-politics in the chamber of the United States Supreme Court. At the same time we read in some press dispatches from the capital that Justice Hughes has not eliminated himself from the list of candidates by insisting that his name be kept off the primary ballot in Nebraska, but that on the contrary, sentiment in his favor is only growing stronger. As a Washington correspondent of the New York Herald (Ind.) and others long ago had the Republican convention they saw a deadlock, due to the votes for favorite sons of various sections. To smash it the leaders will get together and select a man on whom all can unite and who will "sweep the convention off its feet." This man is Justice Hughes. It is being said in Washington, according to the Herald correspondent, not will the fact that he is "not a candidate," make any difference. Incidentally this informant states that the Democrats are more worried over the growth of the Hughes sentiment than they are willing to admit.

On the other hand, a Washington correspondent of the New York World (Ind.) tells us that politicians are disposed to consider Justice Hughes' declaration as absolute. His intimates in Washington say that it is made without mental reservation and that what he most desires is to continue his service on the Supreme Court bench. Moreover, if a Republican President should be elected in 1916, the World correspondent adds, and "opportunistly presented itself," Justice Hughes undoubtedly would be made Chief Justice of the United States, "the dream of every great lawyer." Editorially the World considers that the attempt to put the Justice's name on the Presidential primary ballot in Nebraska was a "smoking-out" process on the part of some of the managers of certain "ext favorite" news. The latter all knew that if Justice Hughes were even a receptive candidate their chances were considerably less than nothing so that if the worst were to come it were better it came at once.

The Justice's letter to the Secretary of State of Nebraska is "cut, clear and emphatic." The World observes, and cites from it the following: "I hereby notify you that I decline the nomination made by this petition or similar petitions, and request that my name shall not be placed upon the ballots of such primary election." This ought to end the "Nebraska nonsense and all similar nonsense." In the "New York Journal," for it Justice Hughes was a candidate or had the remotest intention of being one he would have retired from the United States Supreme Court and made his plans accordingly. The time to draft him was when he was hesitatingly announced his candidacy in 1908; and if the Republican leaders had had sense and courage enough to override Roosevelt's impudent decision, Mr. Hughes would probably be President of the United States today. The convention of that year ignored the claims of the great governor of New York and nominated Mr. Taft, whom the then president picked as his successor. On the one ballot that was taken, Justice Hughes received 67 votes, of which the New York delegation, numbering 78 in all, gave him 55. The other two, The World is sorry to report, in view of the zeal now shown in his behalf in Nebraska, came from Virginia. Even if the convention of 1916 should decide on Justice Hughes as a "dark horse," the opinion of some papers of his own party is that he would not accept the nomination. Yet if there should be a prolonged deadlock and Justice Hughes were named at the psychological moment the Milwaukee Sentinel (Dem.) hesitates to predict what might happen, although it believes his reluctance is "perfectly genuine and unfeigned." The Pueblo Star-Journal (Dem.) thinks it "highly probable" that he will be a "compromise candidate," but the Indianapolis Star (Ind. Rep.) says that "candidate-hunters must look elsewhere."

The determination of Justice Hughes "not to be tattooed in his sleep" with the Presidential nomination is easily understood by the Lowell Courier-Citizen (Ind.) as it points to his present post of honor and congenial work contrasted with the necessities of politics "even for so high a price as a term in the White House." But the New York Sun (Ind.) considers the Nebraska incident very impulsive to thoughtful men of all parties. The question it suggests is "whether a member of the august court that interprets the constitution should ever entertain a thought of entering the presidency." This momentous problem has been discussed by Chief Justice White and Justice Hughes, according to a story that has come to The Sun "with the air of authenticity"; and the story's fortuitous is that the Chief Justice "unobtrusively" and in the solemnest manner expressed the opinion that one who has accepted a seat on the Supreme Court bench closed the door behind on political ambition. Moreover, the Chief Justice held that it was such a man's duty to refuse any proposal to serve in the Presidency, and that no patriotic citizen would ever urge him "to cast off the judicial ermine in order to enter the political arena." This journal then adds:

"Chief Justice White maintained that the Supreme Court, with its obligation to interpret the constitution, might find itself standing some day between some and authoritative government and anarchy. No trust could be more solemn and responsible. The Supreme Court must ever remain the bulwark of the people's liberties, and it could not preserve that indispensable function, if the Justices exposed themselves to the suspicion of coveting the Presidency."

If Justice Hughes would permit his name to be used for the nomination, remarks the Cleveland Plain Dealer (Ind. Dem.), he would soon have a following that would give other applicants cause for worry, but he has his own opinion about the propriety of misting the Supreme Court in partisan politics, "when opinion coincides with that of most of us." Again, the Hartford Courant (Rep.) speaks of "the peril of indicating that our Supreme Court, the most exalted place in modern government, may be made a training-school for Presidents." In complete dissent with the foregoing opinion is the New York Globe (Ind.), which reminds us of the fact that "Chief Justice Chase sought to become the Presidential candidate of his political party. Associate Justice David Davis, while a member of the Supreme Court, accepted in 1872 the Presidential candidacy of a minor political organization, although subsequently withdrawing his name. In 1876 while a member of the Supreme Court, Judge Davis accepted a political office and became Senator from Illinois. In 1856, Associate Justice McLean, who dissented in the Dred Scott case, received 156 votes in the first Republican national convention."—Literary Digest.

TALKS ON THRIFT

No. 15.—FINANCIAL PREPARATION

"The United States will have to go through a long course of discipline before thrift is established as a national virtue to the same extent as it is in Great Britain."—The Toronto Mail and Empire.

The movement to improve our military preparedness is receiving national attention at this time. It is a matter of the utmost importance.

Another and somewhat similar problem which confronts the nation and its individual citizens today is the proper conservation of national and personal resources. It is admitted on every side by those who are in a position to know that just now is emphatically a time for everybody to save as much as he can for the best interests of all concerned.

Various plans have been inaugurated to encourage saving. It is not only banks that are back of these efforts. In various ways a great many employers are encouraging thrift on the part of their employees, and there is an increasing number of voluntary "thrift clubs" and investment associations. One of the latest of these to come to our attention is worthy of notice for the sake of others who may be interested.

This saving and investing organization is called the "Moody's Magazine Savings Club." Mr. A. W. Ferrin, President of the Moody's Magazine and Book company, New York, says: "There have been a large number of these clubs, formed and several of them have completed the first ten months, have allotted the bonds and have started in on a second series."

The Certificate of Membership reads as follows: This certifies that _____ is a member of the MOODY'S MAGAZINE SAVINGS CLUB, No. _____ of _____ and that he has paid to the Treasurer of the Club the sum of _____ dollars, the first of _____ monthly payments for the purchase of one ONE HUNDRED DOLLAR BOND. (Name of bond to be written in when purchased.) Said bond to be selected by him to be purchased for him and held by the Treasurer of the Club in accordance with the conditions and regulations adopted therefor, a full understanding of which he hereby acknowledges.

Signed _____ Member _____ Treasurer. The club it will be seen that the idea of the club is to help its members prepare for the future by building a bulwark of savings and storing up financial ammunition in the shape of good bonds.

This is an excellent idea, but if anyone who reads this article is so situated that he cannot join such a club he can still carry out the principle on his own account. Let him save in a savings account and at the proper time withdraw some of his savings to put into a good bond, mortgage or other investment recommended by his bankers.

This has been the simple but successful plan of thousands who have solved the problem of financial preparedness.

STRICT SANITARY LAW

Pupils From Home Having Contagious Disease Barred From School.

The following communication was sent to the county superintendent to be distributed to the clerks of school boards.

Boise, Nov. 15, 1915.
Clerks of School Boards.

Dear Sir:

Section 604 of the School Laws provides as follows:
Exclusion of Pupils From Infected Households.

Section 604.—The school trustees of the various school districts in the state shall not allow any pupil to attend the public schools while any member of the household to which such pupil belongs is sick of such illness as diphtheria, scarlet fever or other contagious or infectious disease, dangerous to public health, or during the period of two weeks after the death, recovery or removal of such sick person; and any pupil coming from such household shall be required to present to the teacher of the school the pupil desires to attend, a certificate from the attending physician of the facts necessary to entitle him to admission in accordance with the above regulations.

Section 606 provides as follows:
Sec. 606.—Any school trustee or other person violating any of the provisions of this article shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor.

We find that many of the schools of the state are permitting children to return to school before the required two weeks have elapsed after recovery from a contagious disease. This contagious disease coming under this section are:

Infantile paralysis, cerebro-spinal meningitis, diphtheria, typhoid fever, smallpox, measles, scarlet fever, membranous croup, measles, whooping cough, chickenpox.

Where health officers and physicians give permission to school certificates before the required two weeks have elapsed the school superintendents should not accept these certificates.

We request that you strictly enforce this law.

Very truly yours,
BERNICE MCCOY,
Supt. Public Instruction.

BATTLE NOW ON FOR CONTROL OF WESTERN PACIFIC

The Salt Lake Herald-Republican says it is expected in Salt Lake railroad circles that President-elect H. C. Judge of the Denver & Rio Grande will shortly issue orders segregating the traffic departments of the Missouri Pacific, the Denver & Rio Grande and the Western Pacific.

The battle between the Gould interests in the Denver & Rio Grande and the Standard Oil and Kuhn-Loeb banking interests in the Missouri Pacific was brought about in part by the Missouri Pacific fight on the Santa Fe, the Rock Island and the Burlington at Denver.

For eighteen months Missouri Pacific and Denver & Rio Grande agents have been working for long-haul shipments through Pueblo over the Denver & Rio Grande and the Missouri Pacific.

The first tariff to be filed with this routing was the wool schedule of April, 1914. The result was that the Santa Fe, Rock Island and Burlington roads were cut out of Utah territory, and instead of the Denver gateway, being open it was secured to the route which furnished the Denver & Rio Grande with its westbound traffic.

As a result the three roads affected are said to have entered into a com-ination to turn all traffic possible to the Union Pacific at Denver, instead of to the Denver & Rio Grande.

What is believed in railroad circles to be the first move by the Standard Oil and Kuhn-Loeb interests in the Missouri Pacific to retaliate against George J. Gould for the ousting of H. F. Bush, former president of the Denver & Rio Grande is shown by the increase in the price of Western Pacific bonds.

In three days the quotation on Western Pacific bonds jumped from $28 to $44. Railroad men who assert they have inside information say that the Kuhn-Loeb interests in the Missouri Pacific are buying all the Western Pacific bonds because of the suit which is pending in New York to compel the Denver & Rio Grande to pay the $3,550,000 interest which is guaranteed on the $65,000,000 bond issue of the Western Pacific.

REPORT ON CAREY ACT

project, the commission finds that approximately 35,505 acres have been sold. It recommends that the area of the project be reduced to 26,730 acres, which is all that can be safely irrigated in normal years. In the opinion of the commission, it also recommends concentration of settlement. The commission finds that the duty of water on this project has been too high. It expresses sympathy for the settlers and regrets that the company did not make a more accurate investigation of its water supply. The works were well constructed, in the estimation of the commission, and are practically complete.

North Side Problem.

With respect to the Twin Falls North Side project the commission reports "an alarming shortage of water, principally due to leaks in the reservoirs and canals and insufficient capacity of the main canal. Good crops were found in isolated instances where the farmers received more than the allotted percentage of water, or abandoned part of their farms and applied all their water on the remaining ground."

West Enlarge Works.

In the opinion of the commission the main canal will have to be enlarged or a separate canal constructed for the first segregation. Should it be found that sufficient water can not be obtained for the entire project, the commission recommends the cutting off of the Clover creek or third segregation, and the high line and low line pumping plants on the second segregation. It is recommended that the company be not allowed to sell storage water from reservoirs until it is fully determined that there is sufficient water for the project.

Hold Back Patents.

A better understanding between the settlers and the company with respect to water distribution is recommended with the state land board as intermediary. Patents should be withheld by the state until the system is completed or its completion secured by an "adequate" bond. The commission urges that the company's bonds be not accepted, their value being based entirely upon the ultimate success of failure of the project. If patents are issued, the commission believes the company will suitably call for notes and mortgages from the settlers which might be disposed of to innocent purchasers and the settlers forced to the alternative of paying the same and completing the project themselves, or abandoning their homes.

The commission sees great possibilities for this project if properly completed. The soil and climatic conditions are unsurpassed in the state and the commission trusts that all possible efforts be made to remove as quickly as possible the uncertainty now existing on the tract.

The West End Twin Falls Irrigation company's project is by the worst means of the lot, according to the commission. This company planned to irrigate 35,016 acres across the Salmon river, to the south and west of the Twin Falls South Side tract, 29,987 acres of which were filed upon by entrymen.

"Of this acreage," says the commission, "water rights were sold for 7556 acres at a cash consideration of $25 per acre, a total consideration of $189,400. These water rights are sold prior to the time that the West End company entered into its contract with the state, and were sold without knowledge of the state. No specific responsibility can attach to the state for the failure of the company to perform its contractual obligations to these entrymen."

"Later a contract was entered into between the company and the state, and water rights to 13,331 acres of Carey act lands were sold at a consideration of $40 per acre. Of this amount $3.50 per acre was paid at the time of entry and brought the company a cash return of $46,658.50."

The company executed to the state a surety bond in the sum of $45,000 furnished by the Title Guarantee & Surety company, of Scranton, Pa., the condition of the bond being that upon the failure of the company to complete the terms of its contract with the state, that amount of the bond should be forfeited. This bond is now on file with the state land board.

The company commenced construction work in 1909, but pursued it in such a dilatory manner that nothing of permanent value was accomplished. During the last four years nothing has been done and the project has apparently been abandoned.

"It seems clear, however," says the report, "that the construction company came out in good shape. The records of the state engineer's office show that about $120,000 was spent on the entire project, while $238,858.50 was realized from the sale of water rights, a net difference for the company of $118,858.50."

The commission urgently recommends that the state land board declare the company's bond forfeited and terminate relations with the company. The proceeds from the bond should be distributed pro rata among the entrymen. The commission further suggests that the entrymen who purchased water rights prior to the execution of the contract with the state should get together and institute action against the officials of the company for recovery of their payments.

The supplemental report on the Salmon river project suggests the creation of an arbitration board to consist of one man selected by the bondholders, one by the entrymen, the state engineer to be the third. The commission quotes from Judge Dietrich's decision in the case of Caldwell et al against the Salmon company and suggests a reduction in area to 26,000 acres, with a water duty of .275 acre feet per acre. An alternative proposal, a reduction to 29,000 acres is suggested with a corresponding reduction of water supply to 1.57 feet per acre. Neither the entrymen nor the bondholders can hope to gain anything by costly litigation, but might find a solution in arbitration.

NANCE O'NEAL AT ISIS

Emotional Actress in Great Play for Thursday and Friday Evenings.

Nance O'Neal of vital personality and compelling magnetism, is a notable recruit to the motion picture stage, and like dozens of other great and well-known dramatic stars has chosen to enter the photodramatic field under the banner of William Fox.

The new vehicle in which Miss O'Neal is seen under the William Fox management and which is more powerful and thrillingly dramatic than even other successes, Kreutzer Sonata, Princess Romanoff, etc., is produced by Frank Powell and has been named "A Woman's Foot." In discussing her art recently Miss O'Neal said: "I believe it is possible to make people feel and suffer with you on the screen just as it is possible upon the speaking stage. This wonderful new art—for it is new—appeals to me with singular power. It appeals for this reason: that dramatic artists now have a medium of expression different and far broader than the so-called legitimate stage. So intensely do I live every moment that I work for the screen that it became a saying in the William Fox studios that 'Nance O'Neal has lost her voice playing for the pictures.' Seriously speaking, though," continued Miss O'Neal, "I think that I may lay claim to being the first actress to discover that sincerity is the most important thing upon the screen just as it is in real life and upon the stage. The screen however is not a barren island of reality and what I may term, for want of a better word, 'faking,' than is the speaking stage."

ANOTHER ON HANK

A Hair-Breadth Escape of Rural Mail Carrier.

A rural mail carrier, while covering his route in a Ford, struck a bump in the road so that he was thrown out of the car and into a neighboring field. After he had picked himself up and found that he was unhurt, he went to look for the car, but the Ford was nowhere in sight. A farmer came along and joined in the search, and after a while he pointed significantly to a rabbit hole at the side of the road. "Oh, yes!" said the mail carrier, "that's where it is." So the farmer went home and returned in a few minutes carrying a sack of hay. He sent the Ford into the hole and in a few moments the Ford came running out and ran down the road squealing—Exchange.

Desert Island Scenes of "Young Romance" Taken on Catalina Island

Some of the most exciting episodes in Jesse L. Lasky's production of "Young Romance," the film version of Wm. C. DeMille's novel play which is to be the production at the Lavering Theatre on Wednesday, December 8th and 9th, were taken at the Catalina Island off the coast of California. One of the main incidents of the story concerns the adventure of the shop-girl heroine who is masquerading as an actress, supposed to have just inherited the sum of five hundred thousand dollars. A bogus Count, directly short of cash, kidnaps her in a motor boat and takes her to a barren island where he compels her to sign a check for $10,000. The poor little-head-of-the notions department is too frightened to appreciate the humor of the situation, especially when she is left alone on the island and is only rescued by the bravery of the hero, under conditions she never anticipated. Edith Tulliferro and the entire company were especially when she is left alone on the island and is only rescued by the bravery of the hero, under conditions she never anticipated.

OUR PUBLIC FORUM

E. P. Ripley On Relation of Railroads and People

The industrial leaders of this nation are talking to the public face to face through the columns of this paper. The time was when if a corporation had anything to say to the people they sent a hired hand, whispered it through a lawyer or employed a lobbyist to explain it to the legislature, but the men who know and the men who see are now talking over the fence to the men who know.

When the leading business men of this nation get "back to the job" with their problems, strife and dissension will disappear, for when men look into each other's faces and smile there is a better day coming.

Mr. E. P. Ripley, president of the Santa Fe Railroad, when asked to give his views in reference to relations existing between the railroad and the public said in part:

"Frequently we hear statements to the effect that these relations are improving, that the era of railroad building has passed and that public sentiment now favors treating the railroads fairly. As yet this change in public sentiment, if any such there be, is not effective in results.

"It is true that in the legislatures of the southwestern states during the past winter there were fewer unreasonable and unreasoning laws passed than usual, but a consideration of the hostile bills introduced shows that there is still reason for much distrust even though they were defeated by more or less of a majority.

"Moreover, the idea that the railroads have been harshly treated does not seem to prevail in the offices of the State Railroad Commissions, which seem to cherish a notion that their business is not to act as an arbitrator between the railroads and the people, but which proceed on the theory that the railroads are able to take care of themselves and that their duty is to act as attorneys for the people even though in so doing they deny justice to the railroads. It requires no argument to demonstrate that the railroads are entitled to justice equally with other citizens and taxpayers. That they have not received it and are not receiving it is perfectly susceptible of proof. That they have practically no recourse in the courts has also been determined.

"The situation therefore is that the people, through their representatives, must elect whether the services of the railroads shall be adequately compensated or not; and it requires no fortune teller or soothsayer to predict that in the long run the service will take the class that is paid for and no better. The natural competition between the railroad and the natural dealer or performer first-class service has heretofore resulted in giving the public more than it was willing to pay for. Continuation of this will be impossible and no laws, however drastic, can long accomplish the impossible."

BONDHOLDERS AIR VIEWS

George L. Edwards Appears Before Land Board Tuesday.

At a meeting of the state land board Tuesday afternoon a report was submitted by George L. Edwards of St. Louis, who represents the bondholders of the Snake River Irrigation project. Mr. Edwards was down on the tract for the past week conferring with the settlers regarding an anticipated adjustment of the difficulties arising from the project and his report to the land board was made in order that the bondholders, the state and the settlers might cooperate in the adjustment in order to bring about a termination of the plight the settlers are in.

Bondholders Innocent.
"The bondholders are entirely innocent in the matter," said Mr. Edwards Tuesday evening. "We have suffered loss as well as the settlers as the result of misrepresentations made at the time of the opening of the project. We are willing to do all in our power to bring about a satisfactory adjustment of the difficulties, and it is probably right to say that the loss should be divided between the settlers and the bondholders. What this loss is no one can determine at present, for the reason that there are many things to consider."

Mr. Edwards' report to the state land board was exhaustive and in it were embodied the results of his investigations and inquiries among the settlers.

Concentration Prohibited.
Attorney General Peterson said on Tuesday that the proposition of buying out those settlers who were on the extreme outlying portions of the project had come up for consideration, and that nothing definite had been agreed to as yet. This, he said, seemed to be the only manner in which the settlers could be concentrated in order that the present supply of water could be made to properly irrigate the lands.

There are some things like 70,000 acres of land and the present supply of water being more than sufficient to irrigate one-half of the acreage.

There are so many ramifications to the question of bringing about a satisfactory adjustment that it must necessarily take a little time for the board to consider just what are the best. We, of course, remember that the settlers have a voice in the matter, and we are willing to do all possible to bring about the adjustment.

Mr. Edwards will return to the subject shortly in order to hold further conferences with the settlers regarding the settlement of their difficulties. - Statesman.

THE BOY SCOUTS

The boys have organized a corps in Twin Falls, one in First Aid, one in Electrical Engineering, one in Mechanical Drawing, and are planning the organization of a band. They are building a camp house near the Twin Falls in the Snake river canyon. They have granted and embarked a splendid skating rink on Snake Island and have a committee for its control, proposing to be generous to other organizations in its use. They will uniform the entire troop and are looking to carry out the "Every one good turn," especially to the poor and sick in our midst. They seek to combine pleasure with many pursuits and invite all fellows of the ambitions to join them. Meeting each Friday evening in the First Presbyterian church basement. Assistant Scoutmasters, Leoney and Macvicker are doing the work for the boys.

CLAIM CONSPIRACY OF PACKERS

Opportunity for the Government to Do Some Real Honest Investigating.

That the Idaho price of good fat hogs will be down to $4.00 and possibly $3.75, within the next thirty days is the prediction of Harry Pike, of the lowest hog price in the West. Pike, who buys more southern Idaho hogs than any other firm. The price this week is $4.75 says the Gooding Ledger. "The hog market has not reached the bottom yet," said Mr. Pike. "The Chicago price may be put down to $6.00 or $5.75, which means $3.75 or $4.00 here. This is not due to any decrease in production. It is never has been heavier production of hogs. It is not due to any falling off in the demand for packing house products. The export trade never was better, or so good. There has been no proportionate reduction in the price of meat products. The law of supply and demand has absolutely nothing to do with the price of hogs."

Along the same line is the opinion of a prominent hog grower of this county, who is well versed in the western markets, and gained some information concerning present conditions. Based upon this information and his own investigation, he reached the conclusion that the present low price of hogs is due chiefly, if not entirely, to a cold-blooded conspiracy between the big packing houses.

"There is no price competition of any consequence between the buyers for the different packers," he said. "They all buy from the same source, and they all make identical instructions as to prices each day, and it is no secret that these instructions come from a common source. Everything indicates that the packers start in to make a big lot of money on this year's market, and they are going to make it, if of course they will make it to the farmers. Who is going to stop them?"

"The government officials who are so eager to investigate everything under the sun, would do well to investigate the present low price of hogs. If they ever look into the stock buying methods of the packers they will uncover a rotten mess. The government is investigating the selling methods of the packers but their buying methods never have been investigated. This would be an investigation worth making."

WATERFALL CASTS SHADOW

Curious Effect of Moon on the Highest of American Waterfalls.

"Did you ever see a waterfall cast a shadow?" asked Stephen T. Mather, of the group around the club table. Mr. Mather, who is assistant to Secretary Lane, in charge of the new development work which the Department of the Interior is doing in the national parks, had just returned from a strenuous summer among the mountains.

"Well, Yosemite Falls cast my shadow one night last August. I was a half mile or more away, gazing, beauty-bound, at the effect of the full moon upon these giant falls, which are, by the way, as high as sixteen Niagaras piled on top of each other.

"The moon was behind me, of course. The double falls, shining like silver, lit brilliantly by reflected light the dense shadow of the trees which hid me from the moon. Turning, I saw my shadow outlined vividly upon the grass."

AUTOMOBILE TRADING

Look Out for the Dealer Who Takes In Used Cars at Fleeting Prices.

The marvellously rapid evolution of the automobile industry has brought about a condition that has its dangers to every buyer and ought to be generally recognized.

The average man today who comes into the market for a new car has an old one to dispose of. When the trade was young every sale was a sale by itself, with no strings to it, but nowdays the percentage of transactions in which the dealer must handle a used car to sell a new one is nearly 100. In fact, some dealers last year sold more used cars than new ones, being compelled in numerous cases to dispose of more than one used car to negotiate a new car sale.

This condition has paved the way for some pretty desperate work by dealers in cars that are difficult to sell in fair competition, and has cost buyers in general many a hard-earned penny because of their propensity to "fall for" specious inducements.

The dealer who cannot sell a new car by any other means always tries to attract the buyer by offering a high price for his used car, and the buyer who doesn't stop to think is very likely to take the bait, ignoring utterly the fact that used car values the country over are difficult to establish, and are according to condition or according to locality (some cars have slightly better markets at one place than at another), but the actual difference between what one dealer in a given center can get for a used car and what another in the same center can get for the same car is scarcely appreciable. Therefore, the dealer who takes it in at a fancy price is bound to lose money on it and thus give up some of his profit on the sale of the new car.

But do you think he does give up his profit on any part of it? Not if he knows it. It is as plain as two plus two equals four that you can't give away profits and stay in business. If you cut prices you've got to get your loss back somehow or shut up shop. In some cases that have recently been much in the public eye the latter necessity has been forced on prominent concerns that have permitted this practice, but have failed to make good their foretold profits. These, however, that allow it and keep on going have to provide for it, and do so systematically by giving the buyer less for his money. The buyer often walks right into the trap and flatters himself on his ability as a trader when he buys in cars worth $2,000 for $1,500, while the dealer who sells him a new car priced at $2,000 and worth about $700, humbly takes his profit on the car, transaction and winks the other eye. The man who pays $2,000 for this same car with no used car to trade in is a still heavier loser.

The moral of all this is: When you set out to buy a new car find out what your old car is worth, and steer clear of the dealer who offers you a bait as much against you. Depend on it, the car he has to sell is not worth what he asks for it, or if it is the momentary color promise him to get out prices and is probably helping him out) will soon be out of business, leaving you with a car on your hands that has no backing, and can therefore hardly be given away when you get through with it.

The advice should be timely with the buying season just at hand.

MESA VERDE DISCOVERIES

Enos Mills, Rocky Mountain Naturalist, Describes Results of Excavations.

Estes Park, Colo., Nov. 2.—The exploring excavations in the Mesa Verde National Park which the Department of the Interior is conducting under the direction of Dr. James W. Fawkes, of the Smithsonian Institution, are successful to a degree scarcely anticipated when the work was begun.

Thurgood Enos Mills, author and naturalist, when interviewed at his home under the shadow of Longa Peak, has recently returned from an expedition of the work so far accomplished by the busy scientists.

"The new excavation," continued Mr. Mills, "is the canyon of the famous Cliff Palace. This palace, as the remarkable prehistoric site is foolishly called, stands beneath the rim of the east side of the canyon while the astonishing structure first unearthed stands upon the rim of the west side.

"Of Cut and Polished Stone.

"For many years visitors to the Mesa Verde National Park have noticed a huge mound opposite the Cliff Palace with trees growing upon it. It has aroused a great deal of curiosity, and many have been the speculations concerning its meaning, especially when stones were discovered emerging from it that evidently had been cut by tools in the hands of man. It is this mound which the Department of the Interior determined to explore and under which Dr. Fawkes has just found the most remarkable prehistoric structure north of the Aztec architecture in Mexico.

"This splendid structure is a cut and polished stone. The building has the form of a capital D. The straight elevation is 123 feet long and the curved part 245 feet. The outer walls are double and between them are series of narrow rooms. As the outer walls are unbroken, the entrance to this building must have been either subterranean or by means of ladders through the top.

Dr. Fawkes' Theory.

"Dr. Fawkes believes the ruin was an uncompleted fortress abandoned when the cliff dwellers disappeared from the Rocky Mountain region. He does not think the cliff dwellers were exterminated, however, but believed that about the time they abandoned

Orchard Information

TAKES NERVE TO THIN FRUIT

Practice Has Become Quite Popular With Some Orchardists—Expense of Time is Small Item.

(By W. H. MURPHY.)

One of the most noted peach growers in this country tells how his neighbors wondered when they saw him picking off the major portion of his first peach crop.

They shook their heads and wondered at the absurd proceeding of the man who had peculiar views about peach growing. But that season when his peaches proved a bumper crop they changed their minds. Since that time the thinning of peaches has been popular with the more progressive neighbors.

The thinning of peaches or any fruit must be conducted with judgment. It is not by any means advisable to thin every tree regardless of how much fruit it carries. Some trees set so little fruit that all can be ripened without overtaxing the tree or without producing undersized fruit.

Some charge up the cost of thinning as an extra expense on the orchard. But anyone who has gathered fruit knows that fruit gathering is a slow task, especially with fruit that has to be handled as carefully as does the peach.

The picking of the small green peaches at thinning time removes the necessity of picking off many of these same peaches later on.

When they are thinned they are simply pinched off and allowed to fall on the ground, while later if allowed to ripen they must be put carefully in baskets.

The expense of time in pinching off a small fruit is only a fraction of that required in gathering the same peach when it is ripe enough to market.

Of course, there is an offset in the fact that some of the young peaches would be switched off by the wind later, but in the main it may be stated that no more labor is required to thin peaches and gather the remainder when ripe than to gather the harvest that results without thinning.

PRUNING FOR PEAR BLIGHT

Cut Out and Burn Every Particle of Diseased Wood—Do the Work While Trees Are Dormant.

To control pear blight cut out and burn every particle of blighted wood while the trees are dormant. Do the work thoroughly. A few branches overlooked may cause all the trouble again next year. The work may be done any time during winter or spring up to the time growth begins, but the best time is in fall while the foliage is still on the trees and the contrast strongest between blighted and healthy branches.

Make a weekly inspection of each

PICKED UP IN THE ORCHARD

If Trees Are Not Protected Against Mice Much Damage Will Result—Sort and Pack Apples.

As we look out over the orchard these days everything seems to be quiet and peaceful on the surface; but if there is deep snow on the ground thousands of mice are probably busy making their tunnels to breakfast off their tender bark. If you have not protected the trees by putting paper or wire screens about them your reflections will not be altogether pleasant.

If you have apples to sell and they have not yet been properly sorted and packed, now is a good time to do this work. Sort according to size and color and pack in small boxes with paper between the layers, particularly if you have private customers, as most people like them better that way than when packed loosely in barrels.

Be particular to select good apples of the same size for the top layer, but be just as particular to see that those in the middle and the bottom of the box are equally good.

Second quality apples should be packed in the same way, in boxes by themselves, and the culls can either be made into cider or worked up for family use or sold in the market for just what they are. If the second grade apples and the culls are packed in along with the best you will get nothing more than the prices for culls, as buyers always have their offerings on the poorest quality of fruit.

If the fruit is stored in the cellar, it must be well ventilated and perfectly dry, although we have found that apples stored on a cement floor become dry and are apt to shrivel. We believe that there is nothing better than an earthen floor for storing apples or fruits of all kinds, providing the drainage is perfect.

If the cellar becomes damp at sudden thaws the fruit should be looked over carefully and all imperfect specimens sorted out and the fruit elevated two or three feet above the floor.

If you are going to plant a new orchard next spring make your selections now and give your order to the nursery along in February so that it may be delivered to you when wanted. By getting in your order early you are more likely to get good trees and shipments will be made to reach you at planting time.

 "JOHNSON SERVICE"

THE NATION'S PROBLEM

and its numerous children, sporadic trails of slot machines and gambling services, would have ever preyed on unsuspecting gullible men and women, and wrecked the lives of the youth? Who believes that the liquor Traffic would have grown defiant of God and man, feasting upon the blood of innocence and the vitals of our national life? Who believes that the home, the bulwark of our civilization, would have suffered the awful inroads of infidelity and other forms of domestic infelicity, resulting in divorce that would shame a pagan race, differentiated from the disgrace of Mormon Polygamy only that the one is driving abroad and the other tandem?

Who believes that the education of the youth in schools, founded by men with an eye to the hands and fostered by the same powers, would today have outlived the reading of the blessed book, through the demands of infidelity and asceticism, and have permitted the young to read and comment upon the story of McBeth or Silas Marner, but have outlawed the same procedure in the infinitely more beautiful story of the pure Ruth? Who believes that we could have permitted the commercializing of our amusements, and of the prime sources of right development of our youth, making the dancing pavilion, the theatre, the pool and billiard hall and bowling alleys the rendezvous of those with too much leisure and too little heart and brains; and our moving picture shows the portrayal of murder, suicide and suggestions of vice in its form, uncontrolled by any responsible authority, except those in league with the business? Who believes that if God's law had been recognized from the first, the ORGANIZED COMMERCIAL DEPOTISM WOULD HAVE CRUSHED THE POOR, while millionaires, and plutocrats, increased in insolence and power, driving the masses to despair or to the extremes of a system which would threaten the power of individual initiative? Is it a long call back to the fundamental righteousness in our social, domestic, economic and political life. But God is calling us back by all that we have suffered, and by all that the nations of the world are now suffering. Thank God, we still have a few who are "wise to understand their times, to know what Israel ought to do." Such as these are now assembled in the eastern city.

You Do Not Give Your Baby a Razor.
 It would destroy itself. Our Father has kept back from us the razor for millions. Human ingenuity and invention, has taken from us the powers of earth and air and sea. Less than three generations ago we had no electric telegraph, no railroads, no photography, no printing press, no sewing machine, no other or chloroform for deadening pain. A little over a generation ago we had no typewriter, no telephone, no bicycle, no automobile. Half a generation ago we had no aeroplane, no submarine, no wireless messages. What do the times portend? Who are wise to understand them? With these razors of possible self destruction in our grasp, shall we learn their proper use, or shall we destroy each other from selfishness and hate?
The Challenge is Today to the Church of the Living God.
 We must find out the causes of human discord at once, and earnestly seek to destroy them and place the welfare of all the world upon a more secure and lasting foundation, or surrender her preminence to some power from the East, and accept of her lowest spiritual teachings, she must cease to be content to live on naturalistic levels, raising but feeble protests to those forces that shatter humanity, despoil youth, degrade manhood and defy God. In this the church in America must lead, America, because of her geographical position, extent of territory, her ideals of law and freedom, and the blood of all nations flowing in her veins, is solemnly called to this task as no other nation. With the blood of all nations in our veins, we ought to be free forever from the Jewesses and hatred of race that ravishes Europe and a part of Asia; and in spite of our gross fraternalism, we still have a love for humanity forgotten by them.

The Problem for Solution.
 Is more difficult than any of Euclid's, requiring the wisdom of Jehovah for its solution. It involves the correct training of our youth, that virtue and respect for law and righteousness may be established and the frightful increase of juvenile delinquency checked; the training of the whole nature, body, mind and soul. It involves the enthronement of parenthood to the place of authority and responsibility. When a old Greek philosopher saw a youth engaged in wrong, he went forth and punished his parents. It ought to be so now. It involves the correction of sources of amusement for the youth, which can never be done while these are commercialized and while the proprietors find it profitable to pander to the rabble that shouts loudest for answer to depravity. It involves such knowledge of the relation of the sexes, as shall enable men and women to see that the who offends in this respect of his nature most nearly assaunts the God of his being and entails upon his race a coupe blacker by far than that of Cain. It involves the correction of opinions in the realm of trade, so that no one will think of engaging in any business that does not minister to human need and contribute to human progress. It involves the establishment of relations between men in society and business so that each shall recognize:

 "That all men shall brothers be,
 And form one family the wide world over."

But the Problem is International.
 The church of Christ is the first great national society. We must not imagine that the well being of our country will arise out of the ruin of one half of mankind. This is the curse that has brought about the present conditions. We are nearer to commercial and even to social relations today to any of the warring nations than Massachusetts was in 1781. Steam since then has annihilated nine-tenths of the distance and electricity has abolished the other tenth. Instead of cultivating this increasing neighborliness we are now living in the olden time. The kings and diplomats, unwise to understand their times, have encouraged racial hates and feuds for reasons of tyranny and greed, and, when the time was ripe, have let slip the dogs of war, and summoned their helpless subjects and even to bear the brunt of matters in which they have had no part. Men, wise to understand, have been scouted as they forewent the impending doom. The missionaries who have truly sought a new internationalism with sacrifices untold, have opened unknown lands to Christian commerce and with it to exploitation, have tolled on by suffrage only; the money, energy and brains which should have been poured into communities and nations, have been squandered in militarism. He who is wise to understand his times, should have seen that we can get now do without each other, and the war has emphasized the oneness of human needs as nothing else can do. The problem involves the relation of all nations into the relation of neighbors, the banishment of hate and suspicion, which is implicit in all talk of "freedom." Do I then teach that war is never right?

War is Righteous When for Truth Men Ought to Die.
 To deny this is to cast reproach upon the name of Washington and Lincoln. We have not reached that stage yet, but we are in the process with the ministry of force unless we are ready to give up ideals which are far more precious than any mere life. He who seeks the door on the possibility of force, who rejects physical conflict in toto, opens another door for the lusts of oppression and greed. It is immoral to resist the buccannery of international oppression and robbery. It is immoral to resist any plunderings of evil men. Such a brand of Christianity is out of touch with human need, even if suited to the prospective millennium. But the diabolical notion that war is of itself a necessary evil, should be suppressed even at the cost of war.
This Must Pass and That Soon if the Race is to Endure.
 Feudalism, medieval kingship and slavery have gone. So, too, must this curse of barricaded nations, clinging only for themselves and filled with wrath toward other nations, pass away. He who truly believes the Bible and in God's fatherhood, can not deny this as the goal toward which even in this awful war, we are hurrying. But in the language of Nicomachus "How can these things be?" The Master would answer, the nations must have a new birth of freedom. "Men do not inherit the kingdom of heaven nor figs of thistles." He tells us the secret.
"Make the Tree Good and his Fruit is Good."

His spirit is in the world and in human "Preparation" but it is vitalized enough. We are spending half a billion each year for the education of the youth in the sciences, arts and industries, and are spending half a billion to teach them UNSELFISHNESS, which is the true spirit that shall save the world and society. This is the spirit of Jesus Christ, the spirit of the gospel of His grace. The tendency of the past has been toward diversity; that of the future must be toward unity, assured that the most sublime unity is not in likeness but in diversity. In the right hand and the left, the relation of husband and wife there is the complementary diversity which makes for the greatest unity. So God meant every true man to be to his fellow man every nation, with its particular people and resources to every other nation. But only the Gospel, truly applied by men wise to understand this time of times, can make this possible. God is and will be still far from perfect, for I know of nothing perfect among men except it be a perfect fool. But THE TASK OF THE CHURCH OF GOD LEONIS LAIRGE BEFORE US. To secure, through the inculcation of the spirit of unselfishness and love, the spirit of unselfishness in the world and ultimately the goal of the ages. "The oneness with Him for which Jesus prayed and still prays, and for all the world, although this unselfishness and oneness, the harmony we so much need. Tension tells us that "This fine old world of ours, but a child in its age." I can imagine no greater work than the work to which I am summoned, that of bringing the world and all its moral creatures into perfect harmony to the perfect will of a perfect God. Toward this goal, all "Men" who are wise to understand their times to know what Israel ought to do," constantly strive.

"We men of earth have here the stuff of Paradise—we have enough. We need no other thing to build, the stars in the sky are the finished." Harmony out of discord is Heaven's purpose at last. The work of the past has been to fashion the different instruments for a world orchestra and history has been filled with the discord of their making. The greatest discord is just now in their tuning up, but the work of the future must go on till all are attuned to heaven's note, for "He shall not fall nor be discouraged till he have set judgment in the earth; and the Isles shall wait for his law."
