The rooms in the Bickel school are not as large as those in the Lincoln school. However, the enrollment holds up very well.

TWENTIETH CENTURY CLUB

Last Meeting a Delightful Innovation.

Christmas for the Twentieth Century club members began Tuesday the 14th, their last meeting until after the holidays, and at that early date the genuine Christmas spirit prevailed.

The program, which, as the numbers indicate, was excellent, opened with a musical number in which Douglas and Ella Ripley, other numbers were a reading by Miss Lotts, two vocal solos by Prof. Davis and a reading and solo by little Miss Vogie.

STATE TEACHERS' ASSOCIATION

Superintendent Blue and Principal Downman to Attend Meeting at Boise.

The Idaho State Teachers' association will meet in annual session in Boise, December 28-29. The meeting will be attended by Superintendent H. C. Blue and Principal C. H. Downman.

Superintendent Blue's subject will be the "Improvement of School Administration in the Smaller Cities."

Mr. Blue will remain over in Boise after the association has adjourned to attend the annual meeting of the county and state superintendents.

TEACHERS RESIGN

Three Twin Falls Teachers Tender Resignation to School Board.

Three teachers in the Twin Falls city schools have tendered their resignation to the board of education for the following reasons:

Miss Grace S. Butolph, teacher of German in the high school tendered her resignation about the middle of the week on account of the death of her father in Vermont.

Miss Margaret Williams, second grade at the Bickel schools has resigned to take effect January 14. Miss Williams will also be married this winter.

Miss Elizabeth Fretzke, teacher of the fourth grade in the Lincoln has tendered her resignation shortly after Christmas and will leave for her home in Colorado, Friday. The board has not yet filled the vacancies.

MRS. LYMAN DEAD

PEOPLE OF NEIGHBORHOOD EXPRESS INDIGNATION

Examination as to the Cause of Death Will be Made by the County Authorities.

A most distressing situation was called to the attention of the probate court Tuesday afternoon, when it was reported that a thirteen-year-old child lay dying of pneumonia with no medical attention what so ever.

The parents have called to physician and a medical attention or care had been given the child, they belonging to the "Followers of Christ," but called in a preacher of the same cult from Twin Falls.

IDAHO'S FIRST AUTO SHOW

Big Event to Be Held in Twin Falls, January 17 to 22.

SHOW WILL BE UNDER MANAGEMENT OF BOYD H. FULLER

Local Dealers as Well as Outside Dealers Will Participate. An Orchestra Will Furnish Music.

Idaho's first automobile show which will be held in Twin Falls from January 17 to 22, bids fair to be one of the biggest events ever held in this city of big affairs.

The management of the show informed the Times reporter that, in addition to the local dealers who will exhibit, a number of outside dealers have signed up for space.

The people in this section have become accustomed to getting the best in everything, and they are becoming very well versed in automobile lore.

Of course each exhibitor at the automobile show will have plenty of good reasons why his particular car is better than any other, and no doubt each will have plenty of proof for backing up his arguments.

BRITISH QUIT PENINSULA

Seddul Bahr Only One Now Remaining in Hands of Allied Troops.

London -- The announcement of the British withdrawal from Gallipoli overshadowed all other war news Monday night. For the British public the abrupt war office statement marks the end of one of the great chapters of the war's history.

The shock of the news was hardly broken by the fact that rumors had been current in the street for some days, and the withdrawal of the forces had been a matter of widespread pro and con discussion ever since Lord Kitchener's famous speech in parliament in which he declared that withdrawal had been recommended by a high military authority.

The feeling of the man in the street was generally one of relief mixed with regret. A popular company paper sums up the British public's attitude as follows:

Thus ended the enterprise on which the high command was split, and which, if it had succeeded, would probably have turned the tide of the war.

The policy underlying the Dardanelles expedition may yet be brought to a successful issue in some other quarter of the near east, but the prospect of forcing a way to Constantinople through the famous straits is apparently relinquished.

British troops continue to occupy the tip of the peninsula at Seddul Bahr, commanding the entrance to the straits, where many British have declared a new Gibraltar will some day arise.

A fair degree of quiet has continued on the war fronts during the last 24 hours and none of the often reported news of big successes in France, Russia and in the Balkans have yet actually materialized.

NEW BUSINESS BLOCK

W. G. Reed to Erect Two-Story Block on Main Avenue South.

Last week W. G. Reed, the contractor, closed a deal whereby he became the owner of two lots on Main Avenue south, opposite the Idaho Department store. The lots were purchased from the W. S. McCormick corporation of Salt Lake City.

It is the intention of Mr. Reed to remove the three frame buildings on the lots to make room for a two-story brick structure, 50 by 125 with basement the full length of the building.

If nothing prevents Mr. Reed will commence excavating about the first of February. The first floor will be used for two store rooms, while the second floor will be used as an apartment house.

MR. TRUESDALE DEAD

Another Eden Man Passes Away With Pneumonia.

Harry E. Truesdale, aged 54, died at his home near Eden, Friday December 17, after an illness of two weeks. He was a member of the Grange and is survived by his widow and six children.

Mr. Truesdale was a native of Ohio. Some four years ago he came to Twin Falls with his family from Colorado. His father, a veteran of the civil war, died soon after the family moved to the Twin Falls tract.

BORAH ENTHUSES THE REPUBLICANS

Given Great Ovation at Political Banquet in Washington.

ASSAULT FOREIGN POLICY OF THE ADMINISTRATION

Democratic Inequality, He Said, Had Made the United States Head Hunt Nation.

It was Senator Borah of Idaho, who carried the Republicans to their defeat at the hands of the National Republican league and the League of Republican State clubs in Washington on the night of Monday, December 14, says the Washington Star. His declaration that "I would rather see my party defeated than to see it compromise with questions of national honor."

Senator Borah appears to the nations abroad incited with the desire for gain. We cannot afford to play the merchant with the miseries of the human race.

When Senator Borah rose to speak he was greeted with prolonged applause. At the outset he made a note of warning to the Republicans, declaring that while it was easy enough to win battles in banquet halls, they were not so easily won in the open.

"Things are not so serene outside," he said, "and the enemy is strongly entrenched. The enemy do not want only to win, but to win with the program based on principles. Let personal politics be laid aside and let us have a campaign on broad principles. Let us have a political creed common-sense and our hopes."

Turning to the foreign policy of the administration which he bitterly criticized, Senator Borah said: "We must place our nation in a proper light again with other nations. Today the United States is the most hated nation in the world. We are held in contempt, according to reports, in the country which helped us to gain our freedom. Our professed neutrality has been a failure. We have a desire for gain, in the opinion of Europe. Already we are beginning to reap the effects of this bitterness abroad."

"Our vessels are sunk or seized, our people are murdered, and what have we gained? Not even the respect of the nations to which we yield. The Republicans should put in their platform a plank which says we are prepared to protect American citizens at home and abroad."

FORD'S MISSION OPPOSED

All Attempts to Stir up People at Christiania Prove Complete Failure.

London -- The Norwegian peace party declines to have anything to do with the Ford peace expedition, a London morning paper says. The party, which is headed by the late Mr. Ika Schwimmer is connected with the movement. Some of the dispatches received at the peace party headquarters demand has been made for her expulsion from the country. It is impossible to give the movement a neutral appearance while a Hungarian woman is an active member directing operations.

The Christiania correspondent of the Times says that the main impression made on the Norwegian public is that Ford is an idealist dreamer, a sort of Tolstoi whose honesty and unselfishness are beyond question, while some of the followers certainly fail to give that attractive impression.

A dispatch to the Mail from Christiania states that the manager of the mission announced Tuesday that the Ford party would start for Stockholm on Thursday. It also became known according to the dispatch that Mme. Schwimmer had sent out invitations to a hundred prominent business men, bankers and others of Christiania to attend receptions and other functions at the Grand Hotel.

"This attempt to stir up a semblance of interest in the mission met with no success," the dispatch adds. "The only thing the peace party want is to see that the people will spend twenty million dollars to end the war, but Ford remains in hiding. Another reception will be given in the city but neither Ford nor Mme. Schwimmer attended. Fifteen members of Ford's traveling office staff are to be sent back to the United States Wednesday.

"The latest scheme to end the war is said to be that Mr. Ford is to appear in the United States in the beliefigent countries--by offering them orders, kindly to induce them to cease turning out equipment for armies."

A repetition of your war aid, in the course of your quest for a cook, may be good policy.

Talks With the Business Man

By NELS DARLING

Here is my last talk of this series, and here are some points that I want you to get well fixed in your mind.

First--Advertising pays. It is taking the business from the small country merchant to the big city store every day. The country merchant must learn how to talk in print.

Second--Any dealer can learn how to write good trade-pulling, business-building advertising.

Third--Occasional, spasmodic advertising is better than none, but it does not get the results that the regular, stick-to-it type does.

Fourth--Good advertising will increase your business. Increased business with little or no increased expense will enable you to sell some things cheaper and meet outside competition on merchandise that has been found for bait.

Fifth--Much money is wasted in misdirected advertising. The newspaper is the best medium for the man in the retail business.

Sixth--Pay attention to your advertising as you do to buying goods, extending credits and looking after all the details of your business.

Seventh--People will read your advertisements, heed your advertisements, if they are worth while. Make them in keeping with the spirit of the times--honest goods at honest prices, sold in an honest store where service and courtesy are watch words.

PARTISANSHIP CRECIPIES PROSPERITY

This is a good time for the country to take up such questions as preparedness from the non-partisan standpoint, as President Wilson recommends.

Partisanship has cursed the country long enough. It should not be permitted to meddle with the settlement of economical questions affecting national prosperity.

For years the business of the country was in need of banking reform. Both political parties promised it, but when a banking bill was offered in a Republican Congress, it was strangled by the other side, and when a Democratic bill was offered, Republicans opposed it.

The Wilson Banking bill was modeled in part after the Airlich Bill which Democratic Congressmen had killed. Bankers in both political parties urged that the Wilson Bill was unworkable and should be perfected.

It was, and then it received support from both parties. President Wilson signed it and it is a law. Why could not this great reform have been taken out of the realm of partisanship?

Now it is proposed to make the shipping bill a partisan question. Why not consult the shippers and business men and let experts assist in perfecting the measure?

Why should we not have a non-partisan tariff framed on the recommendations of chambers of commerce and representatives of the industrial interests embracing both employers and employees?

The success of the new Federal Reserve Board is largely due to the determination of its members to act without partisan considerations. Can we not have a tariff, also, that will be based on patriotism and not on partisanship?

Why forever crucify prosperity on the cross of politics and subordinate the public welfare to the demands of job-hunters? — Leslie's Weekly.

POINTS OF FRICTION WITH JAPAN

Two points of possible friction between Japan and America are discerned by a visitor to our shores who is in a position to know what he is talking about. The man who made Japan modern, as Baron Shibusawa is described by the New York Sun, and who is colloquially known as the "Morgan of Japan," is now here trying to foster a surer friendship between his country and the United States.

"There are very few countries which Heaven seems to have ordained to be friends like America," he tells a Japanese writer for the New York World, "because one is so largely dependent on the other." To be sure, Japan is much the more dependent, he admits. The United States is Japan's best customer for its chief article of export, which is silk and the United States is at the same time Japan's supply-store for the raw material of its second important export, which is cotton-goods for China.

Now, just because "there seems to be a little friction somewhere," the Baron goes on to say, "we are going to talk about fight." But as we are not living in "a paradise of perfection," friction is apt to occur and while "the troubles our people have out in California may seem rather irritating to either party," in my judgment all that is needed there is mutual concession and a measure of patience on the part of both. As for his countrymen, the Baron is reported in the press as saying at one of the numerous entertainments given in his honor while in New York, that they are "willing and ready" to meet Americans halfway. He says:

"There prevails a certain misconception which confuses the question of the treatment of the Japanese in California with the question of Japanese immigration. The two questions are distinct. That relating to immigration is settled by a gentlemen's agreement between Japan and the United States, and as you all know, Japan has adhered to that agreement. No fresh immigration to America has been allowed. That restriction of immigration was not pleasant to the Japanese people, but as the Government has pledged the honor of the country, the people are now willing to abide by the terms of the agreement, and therefore, there is no complaint as to the restriction or prohibition of Japanese immigration into America. That question is out of consideration as long as the agreement is in force.

"The only question before us now is that of the treatment of Japanese already legally residing in California. We object to the discriminatory treatment resulting from the land legislation in California. The question of this treatment is the only one presenting any difficulty, and it is a question well worth the calm and wise consideration of both nations concerned."

Baron Shibusawa is further reported as saying that another question to arise at the end of the war concerns the rivalry of America and Japan in trading with China. He wonders whether the commercial competition is to be hostile or friendly, and adds: "Hostile rivalry will be fatal, and there is no reason why it should come. The two nations of Japan and the United States are so situated that we should be able to work together for each other's benefit. Japan is near China, and we understand the Chinese better than you—or think we do. We have trained many skilled mechanics and foremen who are valuable in China. You can not be sure that mechanics and foremen from America would get along with Chinese workmen, and besides it would be expensive to put them in China, whereas ours can go there at little expense."

"America, on the other hand, has capital, experience, and energy, which with our two advantages, should make our two countries able to co-operate successfully against the competition of the world. I see profitable fields for both nations in China. I see an opportunity to bring two types of civilization so close together that nothing will be able to disturb their relations."

Viscount Chinda, the Japanese Ambassador, is reported as saying that "the attitude of the United States toward Japan, compared to what it was several years ago, is considerably gratifying, but there is no denying that there is much to be improved." Moreover, in the Ambassador's view there are "many small things outside the California situation likely to create other than friendly feeling," and he is quoted as adding:

"How little is known here in America of Japan! If America had half as much knowledge of Japan as Japan has of America I am sure there would be an entirely different attitude. It is because of lack of information that yellow stories are circulated in this country, and it is these that are also responsible for an anti-Japanese sentiment in certain sections of this country."

The Baron was advised by the Japanese-American Commercial Weekly when he landed to talk with Americans who distrust Japan because the Japanese in this country can not be content with "mere exchange of honored epithets" and in the Chicago Tribune's opinion this is "the soundest sense that has been written about the relations between Japan and the United States." The advice is as pertinent to Americans as to the Baron, furthermore, and "unless he is the Henry Ford of Japan he will listen to it."

If the optimists believe the Japanese are inclined to incline to believe them devil, but of course they are neither. Only two theories seem to be held in this country about Japan—one, that it was a case of love at first sight, and that we are unchristian not to return their love; the other, that our only safety lies in the immediate mobilization of a large army along the Pacific coast. We read then:

"We fear Japan only because we do not know what Japan intends. Their Government could pick a quarrel with us at any moment, over the land legislation. It is still an open sore, or one which will open again easily. It may bring war, it might easily develop into a justifiable excuse. The best preparation we can make against Japan is to be intelligent about her. We do not understand her now. We will never understand her by telling her how much we love her."

Professor Tatebe, of the Tokyo Imperial University, is quoted as saying that under the American standard of living more than 2,000,000,000 persons can exist on the earth, but according to the Japanese standard more than 22,000,000,000. The question then, is not racial but economic, and the Chicago paper concludes that "the gulf between the peoples is not one between yellow and white, but between the way we and they can live with self-respect."—Literary Digest.

TALKS ON THRIFT

No. 18.—OVERHEARD AT THE WOMAN'S CLUB

"Nothing is cheap which is superfluous, for what one does not need is dear at a penny."—William Penn.

A middle aged woman was talking to a group of fellow members of her club: "I am much interested in watching how two young married couples are working out their household money problems on similar principles but under different conditions—one family on a farm, the other in the city" she said.

"These young friends of mine decided at the very beginning of their married life that matrimony was to be a partnership in which husband and wife would share and share alike; in both sacrifices and rewards. By doing her own household work with her own hands and by making a home each of these wives feels that she earns as much as her husband. It is true that their work does not bring in as much actual cash as does that of their husbands, but they are able to save more and that amounts to the same thing. Both couples have growing savings accounts in the bank."

"The fact that this half-and-half allowance plan with mutual agreement on special expenditures works out so well both in city and country, convinces me that it is the only sensible way for people to conduct the finances of the home."

"Yes, I believe that, too," said another lady present, "and my husband agrees with me, as it is the plan upon which we have been working for a number of years. By the way, my husband has very decided views on the subject of saving. You should have heard the fatherly advice he gave our prospective son-in-law last evening. It was something like this: "When you are thinking of indulging in some expensive luxury, consider your age. Money spent at sixty by a man of some means is not like money spent at twenty-five by a man of no means."

"The price of luxuries is much higher in early life than later. If you want some comforts and a few luxuries in old age. Get the foundation of your capital laid early, starting with a savings account so that it will have time to build itself from small beginnings into a substantial amount."

"You know George Smith was recently left $2,500. He was planning to spend it all in having a good time. But somebody showed him that compound interest would double his money in a few years. Then he decided not to spend it, but to put it out at interest."

"I was talking to him today and he figures that before he is really an old man he can have over $20,000 instead of just $2,500 entirely from the earnings of that sum besides whatever he is able to add to it from his own earnings and savings."

"Well, after the lecture I heard George say to Jessie, 'I'm going to get busy with a savings account tomorrow, so I guess the lecture was worth while.'"

WINTERING POULTRY

Special Care Should be Given Fowls During Cold Weather.

To obtain good results from a flock of poultry during the winter all houses and coops should be put in good condition, only healthy fowls placed in the buildings, and good care given the poultry. The houses should be thoroughly cleaned, disinfected, and made tight for winter. If the house has a dirt floor, it is well to remove 3 or 4 inches from the top and substitute fresh gravel and sand. If the floor is cement or wood, remove all litter and dirt and put in 4 or 5 inches of fresh straw. The house should be tight on three sides and that there is no chance for a draft to strike the hens. If hens roost or are placed in a draft during the fall and winter, colds are sure to develop, which may result in roup and other troubles. The south side or front of the poultry house may be left comparatively open, but should be under control, so that the openings may be closed gradually as the weather becomes colder. If the house is not considerably cold air provided it is dry, and ventilation will keep the air thoroughly dry in the house.

The pullets should be brought in off the range and put in winter quarters, but before they are mixed with the older fowls be sure that the hens are healthy. If the older fowls are footed in some way so as to distinguish between the pullets and the hens. In this way the older stock may be culled out, whenever it appears desirable, and the young hens kept for further laying. Cull the chickens which are brought into the laying house carefully, and fatten the poultry house may be left comparatively open, but should be under control, so that the openings may be closed gradually as the weather becomes colder. If the house is not considerably cold air provided it is dry, and ventilation will keep the air thoroughly dry in the house.

Feed the grain in a deep litter on the floor and make the hens exercise in the coops. The mash may be fed either wet or dry, and should be so regulated that the fowls will get about equal parts of mash and of the scratch grains. It is necessary to give the fowls plenty to eat to get good results, but the birds should always be eager for each feed. In cold weather feed about one-third of the scratch grains in the morning and two-thirds at night. In this way the hens are forced to exercise more than if they receive all the grain they desire at the morning feed. Scratch grains, mash or ground grains, animal protein, green feed, grit and shell should be supplied in the winter. A good scratch mixture may be made of equal parts, by weight, of cracked corn, wheat and oats; and a mash may be made of two parts corn meal and one part each of wheat bran, wheat middlings and beef scrap. Green feed, such as cabbages, mangels, turnip beets, cut alfalfa or sprouted oats, should be supplied to replace the best feed which the fowls have been securing in the fields; and beef scrap, skim milk, cut green bone, or some similar food is needed to replace the bugs which the fowls have been getting on the range. Beef scrap or cut of this nature is very essential in securing a good supply of eggs during the winter months.

put as much potassium permanganate as will remain on the surface of a dime into a gallon of water and keep this mixture in their drinking water for several days, or until the symptoms of the colds have disappeared. Remove any sick birds from the flock as soon as they are noted and treat them in coops by themselves or kill and bury them if they are not worth treating. Examine the pullets and hens for lice, and dust thoroughly with a good insect powder or apply a mixture of 2 parts of vaseline and 1 part of m-cupral or blue ointment, about the size of a pea, 1 inch below the vent of the bird, rubbing the mixture lightly on the skin. An application of this ointment two or three times a year will keep the fowls free from lice. Where insect powder is used, it should be applied three or four times a year or oftener if the fowls become infested. Provide a small box in the house partly filled with dry road dust or fine dirt in which the hens may dust, thus helping to keep themselves free from lice.

DOGS CARRY DISEASE

Neglected Animals May Become Carriers of Infection to Farm Animals.

The dog in the country is a useful and pleasant adjunct to the farm if he is properly controlled and cared for, but when neglected may readily become a carrier of disease to stock in addition to gaining opportunity to kill sheep and destroy gardens and other property. Dog ordinances as a general rule have been intended chiefly to curb the dog's power of doing harm by attacking, biting, killing or running sheep or stock. The part that he plays as a carrier of disease to animals only recently has been recognized, according to the zoologists of the department, who believe that when this is better understood, more rational laws and laws which lessen this danger will gain the support of the community.

Of the diseases carried to stock by dogs, the most common is rabies. Probably of the greatest interest, at this time, is the dog as a carrier of a mechanical carrier of infection. The dog which runs across an infected farm easily may carry in the dirt on his feet the virus of this most contagious of animal diseases to other farms and thus spread the disease to neighboring herds. In infected localities it is absolutely essential, therefore to keep all dogs chained and never to allow them off the farm except on leash.

There are, however, many other maladies in the spread of which the dog takes an active part. In Bulletin 39 of the department, "The Dog as a Carrier of Parasites and Diseases," it is pointed out that rabies, hydrophobia, ring worms, and tenesic worms are often conveyed to human beings in this way. It occasionally happens also that the dog helps fleas and ticks in transmitting tubercle bacilli and the deadly spotted fever.

Hydatid disease is caused by the presence in the liver, kidneys, brain, lungs and other organs of a bladder worm or larval tapeworm. Bladder worms are often as large as an orange and may be larger. A dog which is allowed to feed on carrion or the raw viscera of slaughtered animals may eat all or part of a bladder worm containing numerous tapeworm heads. These tapeworm heads develop into small segmented tapeworms in the intestine of the dog. The tapeworms in turn develop eggs which are passed out in the excrement of the dog. They are spread broadcast on grass and drinking water where animals eat very well eat them and thus become infected. The dog is particularly liable to this disease because of its snarling habits. The eggs may get into human food, and persons who allow dogs to lick their hands and face also run the risk of eating the eggs of the tapeworm in their systems.

Prevention on the farm consists in so restraining the dog that he can not get at carrion or sheep. Viscera should be boiled before being fed to dogs and should never be thrown out in the fields. If not cooked and fed, viscera and carcasses should be buried or buried with lime or so disposed of as not to be accessible to dogs. Proper feeding of the dog is essential, and the owner who does not feed a dog properly has no right to keep one.

The parasite which causes gid in sheep somewhat resembles the hydatid worm. A dog allowed to eat the brain of a gidly sheep may swallow this parasite and later distribute the eggs of the resulting tapeworm over the pasture. Sheep which graze swallow the eggs with the grass which they eat. In the case of sheep dogs it is important to administer vermicifuges often enough to keep them free of these worms. In the case of sheep, needless, the bladder worm in the meat, typical of this disease, is swallowed by the dog and again the tapeworm eggs are passed by the dog in grass or water, and there are eaten by sheep.

Of the external parasites which dogs may carry to animals, fleas and the various kinds of ticks are both troublesome and dangerous. The remedy is clear. The owner must keep his dog clean not merely for the comfort and happiness of the dog, but to prevent it from becoming a carrier of disagreeable and dangerous vermin.

These reasonable measures, important to the stock on the farm, have a direct connection with the health of the family. Where ringworm or other skin diseases break out among the children, or the worm parasites develop, it is well to determine whether a dirty or unclean dog may not be carrying the infection on his skin or hair or by conveying disease from carrion directly to the food and persons of his family. Even if no one is infected with disease, the folly of allowing a dog to remain dirty and have the freedom of a home where personal cleanliness and hygiene are respected is apparent.

FIGHT AGAINST RABIES

Forest Service to Try to Prevent the Spread of Disease by Coyotes.

The Department of Agriculture is taking action, through the Biological Survey and the Forest Service, to control a serious and widespread infection of wild and domestic animals that is in danger of becoming widespread in the far West. The fact that the extensive dissemination of the disease is taking place through the agency of coyotes makes the situation a difficult one to meet.

Outbreaks of rabies among coyotes have been noted from time to time for several years in parts of Washington, Oregon, and northern Idaho, and the Forest Service has endeavored to aid in bringing the disease under control by employing hunters to make war on coyotes in the national forests of those and bordering States; however, the coyotes breed in the foothills and around the outskirts of the forests, a more comprehensive campaign is being undertaken.

The eradication of coyotes in sparsely settled or ranch country is said to be an exceedingly difficult task. In some sections, however, are always a source of considerable losses to the livestock industry of the West, congress last year provided a special appropriation of $125,000 to be spent by the Biological Survey for the eradication of predatory animals both in the national forests and on the public domain, and from this fund a special allotment has now been made to provide for fighting the rabies.

The disease first appeared in parts of eastern Oregon and Washington and northern Idaho, a region surrounded by natural barriers which tended to confine the outbreak. Domestic animals and human beings were bitten and a good deal of harm was manifested by residents of the infected districts, many of whom feared for the safety of their children and their families. The disease is now reported as having extended into northern Nevada and northern California, when it may easily be carried to other sections.

The Forest Service, the Biological Survey and the State Board of Health are working together to meet the situation. In Idaho, Nevada, and Oregon counties have been put under quarantine by the State Board, which has appointed forest rangers inspectors. Under the plan, a special fund has been provided by the Biological Survey, for the employment of additional men and the purchase of traps and other equipment which will be used in the campaign, which will be led by the Biological Survey officials and the forest rangers.

THEATRICAL NEWS

SKOVGAARD FINE

New York Metropolitan Company is greatly enjoyed.

Although the audience at the Lavering theatre was not as large as usually great a performance there, it was most certainly an appreciative one. Skovgaard, the great Danish violinist, was greeted with prolonged applause. As he interpreted the work of the masters he made his listeners feel and see tone pictures of marvelous and exquisite beauty. The vocalists, Florence Hawkins, Clara Freuler, Molly Beyerly Wilson and Francis W. Cowler, each had a wonderful range of voice and sang arias, operatic duets and folk songs with sympathy and understanding and a clear and perfect enunciation that is ever a pleasure. Miss Alice McClung, the pianist, was not only an accompanist but a brilliant soloist as well.

HOLIDAY PROGRAM AT ORPHEUM

Excellent Show all, Will Want to See For Last of the Week.

The management of the Orpheum theatre has made an extra effort to secure one of the best holiday programs for the last three nights of the week with a Saturday matinee. There is a double bill in vaudeville, which is a bumper. The Aloha trio present an excellent musical and singing act. Jacques and Gregory have an act of comedy, singing and dancing which is very pleasing.

The photo plays for Thursday and Friday are up to the usual Orpheum standard and are pleasing to the public. For Saturday evening and afternoon matinee, Mr. Anderson will present a special feature, "Infatuation," a Mutual masterpiece in four acts. Margarita Fischer the sprightly black-haired star of the screen, plays the leading role. "Infatuation" is a play taken from Lloyd Osborne's wonderful novel of love and romance.

GABY DESLVS

Star of Two Continents at the Lavering Monday, December 27.

Gaby Deslys, who has been in the public eye for some time through her sensational triumphs on the European and New York stages, makes her first and exclusive appearance on the screen at the Lavering theatre in a novel comedy-drama of the theatre, "Her Triumph," a four part novelty film produced in Paris by the Famous Players Film Company and released on the Paramount Program.

Through the medium of this unusual photoplay, the celebrated Gaby's famed beauty and charm are transferred to the screen, and can be appreciated to even better advantage than from across the footlights, because of the more realistic powers of the film, and the widened scope it gives her art.

The story is developed as to present Miss Deslys' varied talents with all the assisting value that a superbly chosen cast including her famous dancing partner, Harry Pilcer, simultaneous settings and absorbing situations can provide.

"Her Triumph" is an original conception that presents the illustrious Gaby in a varied environment, and in circumstances that alternate between comedy and serious drama. It is a new Gaby that is seen on the screen, a Gaby not only effective in the lighter moments of her portrayal, but a Gaby also of dramatic power and decided histrionic ability. The Dance Deslys again, which is introduced in the production, indicates an amazing mastery of the most difficult form of terpsichorean art, and completes the versatility of one of the most interesting stars that has ever been seen on the screen.

"THE BACHELOR'S ROMANCE"

John Emerson in Bachelor's Romance at Lavering, Dec. 29, 30.

John Emerson, who recently made his first appearance on the screen in a film version of his former theatrical success, "The Consul," through which he became immediately popular with the motion-picture public throughout the world, returns to the screen in a four-part film adaptation of Martha Morton's charming play, "The Bachelor's Romance," a Famous Players Film Company production appearing on the Paramount Program at the Lavering.

Mr. Emerson takes the part of the absent-minded and soft-hearted bachelor who buries himself in his books and studies forgetting the world and by the world forgot, until he is violently awakened one day to discover he has irrevocably lost his heart to his pretty ward, Sylvia, whom until then he had only thought of as a mere child. But Sylvia is a woman, with a woman's love and she proceeds to drag David from the shell within which he has hidden himself. His friends are amazed at the change that comes over him. His books and correspondence neglected, he proceeds to make the acquaintance of the tango and the lobster in Newburg. He even takes a mild interest in Sylvia's shopping trips in which he accompanies her, and decides that, after all women are a delightful variety of the species. This conclusion is further proven in the development of "The Bachelor's Romance."

The role of Sylvia, the ward, is sympathetically portrayed by Lorraine Hurling.

meeting. Light refreshments were served by the hostess.

Mrs. A. W. Husted was hostess to the members of the Monday card club this week. Mrs. J. E. White and Mrs. Pat Murphy substituted. The hostess prize this week was a cut glass bowl.

Mrs. Henry Olson entertained a few friends with an informal sewing party last Saturday afternoon. The room decorations were in red and white. After the sewing a three-course luncheon was served.

Two of the most prominent events of the Christmas season will be the Christmas eve dance given by the members of the young men's club and the formal club dance given the last of next week by the club and several friends.

Many informal gatherings will take place within the next week for the college boys and girls who are home to spend the holidays. Among those who already have home are Miss Beatrice Ostrander, Miss Margaret Wilson, Miss Leoline Williams and Burt Wall.

In honor of her sister, Mrs. Woods, of Kemmerer, Wyoming, Mrs. Frank Bronaugh entertained a few intimate friends at cards last Thursday afternoon. The room decorations were in red and white. The dainty card cards were suggestive of the Christmas season. Mrs. Woods received a hand painted card and sugar set as first prize and Mrs. Woods received a cut glass olive dish as guest prize. A delicious three-course luncheon was served at the card tables after the game.

On last Thursday afternoon Mrs. Howard entertained the members of the Adeline and Kensington club with a special meeting. The members invited their husbands for the meeting and a most enjoyable time was had. The afternoon was devoted to games and conversation. At five o'clock a very delectable supper was served.

The next meeting will be held the third Thursday in January at the home of Mrs. Irwin. She will entertain with a dinner for the ladies and their husbands.

Last Friday night the seniors of Miss Sharp's division at the high school, entertained the other seniors in high school. The girls wore big hats and the boys wore overalls. During the first part of the evening the guests were divided into groups and each group put on a skit, then there were a Santa Claus who hand out gifts to each one. Each senior received a miniature diploma tied with red ribbon. Later a program was given. Punch and waters were served throughout the evening.

Mrs. Starr on Main east entertained the ladies of the Adeline club last Thursday afternoon. The program was devoted to Christmas games of various sorts. In one interesting game mysterious looking bundles were placed on each chair each containing the hostess announced, something to be used for the Christmas dinner table. Conundrums were attached and the guests were asked to tell what the package contained and guess the conundrum. This caused a great deal of merriment. After the games, a two-course luncheon in which the Christmas color scheme was carried out, was served. Besides the members Mrs. Vogel and Mrs. L. F. Jones were present. Christmas decorations were used in the room. Mrs. Lind read a paper on 'The Supreme Court of the United States' early in the afternoon. Fifteen were present.

Two very delightful parties were the Christmas Kensingtons given last Wednesday and Friday afternoons by Mrs. P. W. McElwaine and Mrs. George E. Harlan at the home of the latter. On Wednesday the guests dressed three dolls which were given to the aged and infirm and on Friday a package which was filled with candy for the poor kiddies on Christmas day. During the afternoon Wednesday, Miss Neeta Thomas furnished music and on Friday the Altono sisters entertained the guests. Luncheon was served at quarter tables. Each guest received as a favor Wednesday a Christmas toy and on Friday a beautiful velvet Poinsettia. The home was beautifully decorated in strands of red and white holly leaves and holly berries. Christmas balls, Madamae Ormsby, Ware and Breckenridge assisted on Wednesday and Madamae Ormsby Ware and Lind on Friday. About fifty guests were entertained each day.

CHURCHES CELEBRATE

Many Excellent Programs Will be Rendered on Christmas Eve.

After a year of unusual prosperity and happiness, the people of Twin Falls have come to be filled with the 'Christmas Spirit.' Out in the Imperial Valley of California a fleet of 18 Dodge Brothers motor cars are used as stages. They are known as the 'Pickwick Stages,' because of their starting at the Pickwick Theatre, San Diego. Their route lies across a portion of the California Desert and each car averages about 1,000 miles per week. Various makes of motor cars were tried out by the Pickwick Stage Company, which operates the line. About six months ago the first Dodge Brothers car was purchased and subjected to many tests on the route. The success was so striking that several more were bought and this number has been added to, until there are now 18 in use, and more are to be bought within a short time. According to Mr. Hayes, one of the proprietors of the company, the work-up on these motor cars has been remarkably light and within a year he expects to operate Dodge Brothers cars only.

$10,000 For 1,000 Words or Less

For an Idea For a Sequel to

"THE DIAMOND FROM THE SKY"

The American Film Manufacturing Company's Picturized Romantic Novel in Chapters.

This contest is open to any man, woman or child who is not connected directly or indirectly with the Film Company or the newspapers publishing the continued story. No literary ability is necessary to qualify as a contestant.

You are advised to see the continued photo play in the theaters where it will be shown -- read the story as it runs every week, and then send in your suggestion. Contestants must confine their contributions to the sequel to 1,000 words or less. It is the race that is wanted.

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.

A feud has existed between Colonel Arthur Stanley and his cousin, Judge Luther Stanley, ever since the death of the diamond from the sky, found in a fallen meteor 15 years ago. Also, the succession to the Stanley fortune in England may come to an American. When a husband is born to the colonel and the mother dies the widow leaves a $750,000 trust fund. Three years later the young mother, having had no part in this bargain, steals the child, Esther, and he, in secret, and leaves her son under the name of Blair. The spy who obtained possession of the diamond from the sky and its location with the Stanley secret. Years later "Hazel," a young queen, returns to Virginia with her father. The late Colonel Stanley's friend, adopts Esther. Arthur Stanley's son of Hazel, falls in love with Esther and so does his cousin, Blair Stanley. Rightful heir of Stanley. In stealing the diamond Blair causes the death of the doctor and later to put the blame on Arthur, who takes the gem.

Arthur Stanley eludes his pursuers and hides Hazel, who reveals his identity and upbraids him for his wild life. Seeking money, he passes the diamond in Richmond. At a ball, at which aristocrats, Vivian Marston, wears the borrowed gem, Luke Lovell, Hazel's spy, steals the diamond. Arthur leaves the hotel and goes to the west. Quabba, organ grinder, befriends Esther.

Tom Hattie, a friend of Richmond, who is loved by Hazel, produces finger prints convicting Blair. Hazel proposes marriage to the girl, but the girl, Hazel and Esther being received in Fairfax society. Blair strikes down Hazel and steals the diamond. Marmaduke Smythe, lawyer, arrives to announce Arthur is heir to the deceased Earl of Stanley. Learning Arthur is a fugitive he seeks Blair instead. To win Vivian, Blair steals the diamond, but is arrested and leaving for the west. His train is robbed, Vivian losing the diamond, which falls from the sky in the desert. The $100,000 note is found by Arthur. Luke Lovell, driven from the country learning Hazel's secret, leaves to seek Blair. Hazel's former treatment and Esther to Richmond society. She Bloom, gambler, knows Blair's guilt and covets the diamond.

The diamond is later picked up by an Indian woman, Dr. Lee, Arthur fears, dies of heart disease, becoming very rich. Hazel Stanley had sold at auction, through Blake, and also provides for Hazel and Esther. Luke Lovell takes the diamond from the house, but loses it in a fight. Vivian, desiring all to ensure Arthur, sends for Blair.

Vivian is saved from drowning by Powell, who is infuriated by her. Smythe finds the diamond and gives it to Esther to deliver to Arthur. Blair and Luke go to Arthur's yacht and find Esther there. Esther and Luke escape while Blake and Luke battle. Blair's incite incantation has jailed Vivian in Los Angeles. Durand, "king of diamonds," a crook known to Vivian, goes to a saloon to try to discover the diamond. There he meets Luke Lovell. Esther and Arthur appear on the scene. The diamond is lost in a melee. Esther saves Arthur, who is injured, and the note in Los Angeles is in the physician-crook, Durand. Esther follows and is refused admittance to see him. In the meantime the diamond is found in two wall posters, one of whom murders the other for it. Arthur is "disposed" by Durand. De Vaux and Vivian, although Blair who has taken charge of Arthur's business affairs, protests.

The diamond goes to dice play from the bill poster to Stanley, circus owner, who is killed, and the diamond is put up at auction as part of his estate. Blair and Vivian fabricate a telegram from Blake to Arthur, making Arthur believe he suffers from hallucination in thinking he saw Esther. Luke is "strangled" to prison by Blair. At the auction in Honor Graydon, an aged admirer of Vivian, who has promised to buy the diamond for her. He is snubbed by Arthur. The latter gives a costume ball at which Esther appears. Vivian insists that he choose between them. Esther smashes the situation from him and hurks it through the window.

CHAPTER XLIX.

Plot and Counterplot.

THE miracle of dawn crumpled all the east. The last soldier's revelers were departing from the fete of the mad millionaire. Only the butler, as major domo, had speeded the parting guests, but the guests had revelled and gorged and swilled and cared nothing at heart for host or mansion that had entertained them with a Belsbazzarian feast. And it was a Belsbazzarian feast, and the handwriting of destruction was on the wall. In the small recreation room upstairs the unhappy wretch once called the golden man sobbed on his arms like the drug weakening he was. Vivian her hair in disorder and eyes like in her anger and grief, shook Arthur by the shoulder and cried, "Where is the diamond?" Blair, noting the open window, left Durand and Vivian by Arthur and crossed over to it.

There, down below, was Angelo, the Italian gardener, up at dawn to his work, plucking the diamond from the sky from the rosebush, just where it had been, east through the window by the indignant Esther when Arthur had proffered it to her. "Hi, there, you," called Blair. "Don't take that! I am coming down for it." The gardener, who, like the rest of the servants, bore a sullen dislike to the willow friends who surrounded their master, growled an unintelligible reply.

Esther, who sensed that the diamond had been found, sprang from the room and made for the stairway, with Blair beside him. They ran from the front of the house and to the back. But the gardener plucked up a heavy stake lying by the rosebush and stood them off.

"I take to the boss," he said. Nor would he be shaken from his resolve.

Vivian Shook Arthur by the Shoulder.

And Durand and Blair, cursing his stubbornness, escorted him back into the house and to Arthur.

Vivian, realizing the diamond was recovered, had caused her vicious demands and was again resorting to wiles and enjoyment.

But Arthur, shaken by shame and wholly unmoved that they had deceived him as regards Esther's presence in the city, his shame augmented by the realization that Esther knew now how he had fallen in his dogged attention, took the diamond and staggered from the room, with a few muttered thanks to the gardener.

Reaching his suit, he locked the diamond in an ornate cabinet by the great rear window of his bedroom and then, pacing up and down, fought the devil of dog desire for Esther's sake and lost again.

The English lawyer Smythe, a kinsman in armor in all souls, escorted the shaken Esther to her hotel, having picked up in an ornate cabinet by the great rear window of the Powell mansion and taken him with them in the taxicab. The next day she consulted him about her affairs.

"I will see you safely back to Richmond," said Smythe gently. "Your mother, you say, has recovered, and you wish to return to her. I am going back to England resolved to let the American boys or boys to the Stanley inheritance claim the title when he or they may choose."

"But what shall I do about Luke Lovell?" asked Esther. "All his life."

except for the brief revolt he now begs forgiveness for, he served my mother faithfully."

"I would suggest," said Smythe, "that our friend Quabba here stay behind us and see what he can do. He may secure Lovell's release by appealing to Arthur Stanley, or, as he calls himself now, John Powell."

"I have no faith in Arthur now," said Esther wearily. "He has fallen into evil ways through evil associa-

GOVERNMENT CROP REPORT

Washington, D. C., Dec. 17.—A summary of estimates of crop production and prices for the State of Idaho and for the United States, compiled by the Bureau of Crop Estimates and transmitted through the Weather Bureau, U. S. Department of Agriculture, is as follows:

Crop production in the state this year aggregates in quantity about 9 per cent. more than last year. Prices on December 1st average 2 per cent. lower than a year ago, making a total value of crop production, on this basis about 7 per cent. more than last year. The estimates are based on those crop whose values in the last crop census represented 84 per cent of the value of all crops. For the United States production this year aggregates in quantity about 9 per cent. more than last year. Prices December 1st average 1 per cent. lower than a year ago, making a total value of crop production on this basis about 8 per cent. more than last year. These estimates are based upon crops whose value in the last complete crop census represented 85 per cent of the value of all crops grown, and may be regarded as representative of all crops.

FOR COMMERCIAL PREPAREDNESS

Idaho Senator Aches in the Forefront in Washington.

Boise, Dec. 16.—Senator Borah has mapped out a big program for his Corn, but in a commercial way, and including protection to American labor when the great European war is ended. He will also urge a $50,000,000 loan to the reclamation fund in order to complete a number of projects and to finance a few new ones. These are two of the larger matters that he has in mind of a legislative nature. Politically the senator is giving his attention toward harmonizing the progressives and the regulars in order that the Republican party may present a united front in the next campaign. In fact, the senator's entire vacation during the recess of congress, or at least the time when he was presumed to have a vacation, was devoted to that end and he has made a nation-wide influence felt.

CHILD NEARLY FROZEN

Little Girl Found in Snow Blift on Her Way to School.

At about 8:30 o'clock this morning attracted by the sound of crying, Halley Arrow, 10 years old, found his home in the northern part of Halley up the road toward the benches where he found Ada Marrs, aged 13, lying half frozen in the snow.

The child was on her way to school when overcome by the bitter cold of the morning, she fell in a drift of snow. Her brother, who was with her, ran toward town and met Jack Koonce with his sleigh.

RULES BY COMMISSION TO STAMP OUT RABIES

Forms for Reports and Accidents by Railroad and Public Utilities. United States Public Health Surgeon is Named Executive Officer.

The public utilities commission has compiled a set of rules and regulations which will require common carriers and public utilities in Idaho to follow in the future in the reporting of accidents. The rules simplify the reports to be made in many cases, requiring the more serious accidents to be reported immediately to the commission by telegraph and the filing of monthly reports covering the entire accident record.

The commission's order laying down the rules and regulations follows: Whereas, The public utilities commission of the state of Idaho on the 29th day of July, 1914, issued its general order prescribing rules and regulations governing reports of accidents in railroads and street railroads occurring within the state of Idaho, and Whereas, The commission finds it necessary to prescribe new rules and regulations governing such accidents:

It is therefore ordered, That the general order be and the rules heretofore issued be and the same be amended as follows: It is further ordered, That the rules of the interstate commerce commission governing monthly reports of accidents in railroads and street railroads shall apply to the same as they apply to the interstate commerce commission, and that the same be hereby adopted as uniform rules governing monthly reports to this commission of railway accidents occurring within the state of Idaho. It is further ordered, That every railroad corporation and street railroad corporation shall file with this commission a monthly report, under oath, of all collisions, derailments or other accidents or property damage, resulting in injury to persons, property or equipment in accordance with the rules heretofore adopted governing such reports. The reports shall be made upon forms identical in arrangement of matter, in size and in quality and weight of paper with those prescribed by the interstate commerce commission, and shall be filed within 30 days after the end of each and every month.

It is further ordered, That every railroad corporation and street railroad corporation shall furnish the commission with immediate notice by telegraph directed to St. Boise, Idaho, of the following classes of accidents occurring within the state of Idaho, to-wit:

- (1) All collisions as defined in paragraph 2 of the rules heretofore adopted.
(2) All derailments as defined in paragraph 27 of the rules resulting in loss of life, serious injury to persons, or property to the amount of $500.
(3) All explosions of locomotive boilers (paragraph 34 of rules).
(4) All bridge failures (paragraph 35 of rules).

It is further ordered, That every railroad corporation and street railroad corporation shall furnish the commission with immediate notice by telegraph directed to St. Boise, Idaho, of the following classes of accidents occurring within the state of Idaho, to-wit:

WEISER OIL AND GAS

Certificate Secured From Public Utilities Commission.

Weiser, Dec. 20.—There is much interest here in the organization of the Weiser oil and gas company, composed of 20 of the prominent citizens of town and nearby country, whose purpose it is to commence drilling operations for the purpose of securing gas and oil. The company proposes, in the event of striking gas in sufficient quantities, to furnish Weiser with gas for heating and cooking purposes. For this purpose the company has secured from the public utilities commission a certificate of convenience. It is seeking a franchise from the Weiser city council for the purpose of securing a well for gas.

MONSTER'S TUSK FOUND

Hunters Find Only Portion of Original but it Weighs 250 Pounds.

Ermett, Ida.—The Gill brothers hunters and trappers, are still prosecuting their search in the hills and gullies in the hope of finding more of the remains whose monster tusk they dug up not long ago. The tusk, although broken off an end and (they much of the original is gone cannot even be weighed) still weighs 250 pounds.

The hunters will be disappointed if they do not find enough of the bones to indicate something of the structure and size of the creature able to support such a tusk.

Bits of bones of a size to indicate an original perhaps a foot in diameter, have been found in the same locality, and they may have belonged to the monster of the mammoth tusk, but unfortunately the parts recovered are not sufficient to tell anything as to their dimensions except their diameter.

Whatever the animal's history, he must have existed within this zone of the earth with wandering around as a portion of the tropics, for animals could not grow so big even on the best of Idaho soil without constant heat all through the period of their development.

The tusk was found out on the Little Butte, well down from the top, where the fall and early winter rains had washed out a gully, partly uncovering it.

Aggressive use of the classified columns will rent good properties in or out of Idaho, and practically cut out losses from vacancies.
