

DAVIS CENSURES MANY IN SPEECH

Questionable Actions of Politicians Scored

MEN USE JOBS AS PRIVATE STAPES HE AVERS.

Candidate Promises to Cut Out What He Calls Top Root of Corruption, He Elected.

Scoring officials who use their positions to further their personal ends, candidates who violate laws of the state in order to get nominated and elected, or who make false statements or promises, and newsmen who sell their editorial or news columns to the highest bidder among those seeking office, Captain E. C. Davis outlined his position relative to what he called the most important questions before the people in an address at the Masonic hall Friday night.

Captain Davis told the crowd, which owing to the bad weather was small, that in his opinion the spending of money directly or indirectly by candidates in violation of law either personally or through friends, whom they expected to repay later, is the very top root of the corrupt politics in Idaho. Many candidates, he said, had spent many times the amount which the law permits and had perjured themselves in their sworn official statements of campaign expenditures. Others had quibbled by making tours over the state before announcing their candidacy and then put into their statements only the amounts expended after they had formally announced, although the supreme court had held that expenses should be counted from the time that an aspirant decided to run. Men who do not play fair with the public in these things cannot be expected to play fair in others, Captain Davis said. Relative to improperly or unseemly conduct in office, the speaker said that he would illustrate by example of certain Republican members of the land board and by acts of the Democratic member. Speaking first of Republican members he held in small tracts for intensive farming. After his election, when he had already made a profit on the lands, he tried to have the state release him and transfer its lien on the small holders, thus putting the state to the trouble and expense of collecting from a number of small holders. This same man had failed to pay the interest on the loan and now owes the state some $400 back interest which he should have been compelled to pay. A certain young man on the state land board, subsequently elected to his position as a state officer, was arrested and tried for embezzlement. The jury did not agree and he may have been indicted on a charge of perjury. The jurors who sat on the case had applied for a loan on lands from the state and, on the report of the state auditor that the lands were, practically worthless, had been refused. After the trial he again applied, with the result that the state auditor was withdrawn from the case and that particular land and the young man who had been on trial took his place and made a favorable report on the land. Captain Davis said that he would not say that there was anything corrupt in the transaction, but

RESPECT FOR FLAG ASKED BY SCOUTS

Boys Organization Takes Action—Is Enthusiastic Over Prospect of Sugar Beets.

That greater care should be shown to the American flag displayed on public buildings in Twin Falls is the opinion of the Boy Scouts, who at their meeting Friday night, instructed Secretary Elmer Wyland to visit officials having charge of the care of the flag and to ask them to be more careful. The Scouts will also visit the newspapers so that the greatest publicity might be given to the matter of showing respect for the emblem of liberty. The strict construction of the rule relative to the care of the flag demands its raising at sunrise and taking down at sunset, but the Scouts feel that this is not being done.

The boys are enthusiastic over the plan which they have adopted of renting 10 acres of land and planting sugar beets to defray expenses for a camping trip next fall. E. L. MacVicar is looking after the renting of the land. The Scouts will also be coming, coming evangelizing, meeting conducted here by Dr. French Oliver.

LOOTED PURSE IS RETURNED PENNILESS

All Contents Except Money Found by J. P. Mortimer 500 Miles From Place It Was Lost.

The pocket book stolen from M. J. Macauley when snow-bound on his return journey from the east recently, was returned by mail Sunday by a man named J. P. Mortimer, who picked it up on the railroad track at a point 500 miles from the place where it disappeared. Except the $50 in cash, all its contents, including a check for $100 and a number of postage stamps, were unharmed. The book had evidently been in the snow some time as it was discolored considerably by exposure.

VICTIM OF GASOLINE EXPLOSION IN SERIOUS CONDITION

Word has just been received that C. H. Healey, the Three Creek merchant who was severely burned by a gasoline explosion at his store on the evening of January 22, is not progressing as well as it was at one time hoped. Mr. Healey was moving a gasoline lamp from his store to his residence when it exploded, burning him quite badly. Medical aid was received from Rogers promptly and for a time his progress was rapid.

RELIEF FUND LARGELY

The people of Twin Falls contributed liberally Saturday to the fund for the relief of Jews in Poland who are suffering from the ravages of war. A total of $150 being collected by the committee consisting of E. L. MacVicar and S. Straus. The fund was sent to Leo Falk of Boise, to be forwarded.

CAPITOL AT WASHINGTON AFTER SNOWSTORM

This is how the capitol building at Washington looked the other day after a heavy fall of snow.

POSTOFFICE DESIGN IS TO BE CHANGED

Ornamental Columns to Grace Front of Building

PROTEST OF PEOPLE HAS EFFECT OF CHANGING PLAN.

Congressman Smith Informed That Change to Simplicity Was Result of Retrenchment Policy.

In a letter of January 25 and addressed to Secretary James McMillan of the Twin Falls commercial club, Congressman A. T. Smith announced that engineers have been given the unsatisfactory design for the post-office in this city will be so modified as to contain stone columns for ornamentation, and that department officials say that the change toward simplicity was originally made in "conformity with the new policy of the department in cutting out all ornamentation, and spending the money for money that was necessary from a practical standpoint." The letter follows: Mr. James McMillan, Twin Falls, Idaho: My dear Mr. McMillan: Making further reference to your recent letter regarding the federal building in New York, the supervising architect and the chief draftsman, with reference to the plan of the federal building at Twin Falls, and was advised that it was necessary to prepare new plans for the building we would lose our turn and the construction of the building would be greatly delayed. As you are aware it is the determination of the present secretary of the treasury to use his discretion in reducing the cost of the building to the amount authorized by congress, contending that there is nothing made in the building, the expenditure of the entire appropriation. I convinced them that nothing less than an $85,000 building would meet the expectations of the people. The necessity of the postoffice service at Twin Falls, and have the absolute promise of the assistant secretary and the supervising architect that the outside of the building will be elaborated upon by the erection of stone columns, either round or square, in front of the building so as to give it a more pretentious appearance. They all had to admit that the building was more plain than any federal building that had been constructed, but insisted that the plan of the building was in conformity with new policy of the department in cutting out all ornamentation and spending only the amount of money that was absolutely necessary from a practical standpoint. While I feel confident that the department will be more liberal in allowing the people of a community, where a federal building is to be erected, to have some of the outside of the building decorated, I cheerfully acquiesce in the consensus of opinion of the people of Twin Falls, as expressed in your letter, that the building will be plain and unadorned. The construction of the building under the plans now in preparation, on the outside of the building will be plain and unadorned. Instead of a plain square front as proposed in the original plans. It is expected that the plans will be turned over to the specification division in the near future and that there will be no unnecessary delay in the advertising for bids and construction, when the building is reached in its turn.

As I wired you the other day the bill for the building has been appropriated for the commencement of the building, and an additional provision will probably be inserted in the sundry civil appropriation bill which will be enacted between now and the first of July.

It may be that the assistant secretary of the treasury and the supervising architect were very much surprised to know that we had such a building in this city. I am glad that you had sent me the photographs to show them.

Sincerely yours,
(Signed) ADDISON T. SMITH.

SANBATH COUNTING DOESN'T GO

ABLION—Casals county every one paying 50 cents a week for Minnesota spuds, and cannot get many of them at that price, is the story which H. Hanning of this city brought back from a visit of a month there. The dealers there are applying to Minnesota for more spuds, he says, and are being informed that the supply is about exhausted. Things are otherwise in good shape in the states visited according to Mr. Hanning.

BOND ELECTION ON WEDNESDAY

Those Who Have Not Registered May Vote by Filing Affidavit on Election Day.

The bond election will be held Wednesday of this week and every voter is expected to be on hand to cast a ballot. A supreme effort has been made to register all of them, but in the event that the registrars have missed any qualified voters, they can vote by making affidavit of their qualifications on the day of election.

LAND BOARD AND SOLONS ROASTED

Former Tract Resident Seems to Agree With Light Remarks Made About Idaho Law Makers.

Declaring that the statement that the state of Idaho can do nothing to relieve the situation for the people of the Salmon river tract is "so weak that it looks like a joke," that "state contract has not been fulfilled, and that while he hates to think that the state legislature and the land board are a bunch of weaklings," that is "about the only conclusion" possible to arrive at, owing to their "lack of national loyalty or backbone," Earl O. Wolfe, of Kansas City, a former resident of the Salmon river tract expresses the hope that "the state will not get and redeem itself" in a letter addressed to Governor Alexander, dated January 22.

Mr. Wolfe says that he invested practically everything he had on the Salmon tract where he cleared and improved 80 acres of land. He says he is now in the service department of the Uncle Sam company, of Kansas, having interests in Oklahoma, and that the strict manner in which Oklahoma officials compel the big corporations to comply with the law, and the splendid financial condition of the state teaches him that it would be well for Idaho, to compel compliance with the law.

In his letter, a copy of which he sent to J. A. Waters of this city, Mr. Wolfe rather audaciously, "I only recently heard very light remarks made of Idaho legislation by a man of much prestige."

COMMITTEE MEETS AND ELECTS OFFICERS

Merchants Association Selects Officers and Endorses Pay-Up Week—Meet Again February 8.

The Merchants association met last week and organized by the election of D. W. Meibohrs, president and M. E. Barber, secretary. The organization endorsed the "Pay-Up Week" plan and instructed Secretary James McMillan, of the Commercial club to buy supplies necessary. They will meet again February 8 for making further plans along the period of cashing up.

HERBERT & RAMBO OPEN.

Being prepared to open sooner than anticipated, Herbert & Rambo threw their doors open to the public Monday, two days earlier than they anticipated. They have been enjoying a fine business in this new stand in the Dr. T. O. Boyd building during the past two days. They will have a formal opening later. The Hat Shop moved into their old stand.

STRAUS & GLAUBER MOVE.

Straus & Glauber have moved two doors south 68 Main street, into the more commodious quarters furnished by the fine new McCormick building. This will give them an opportunity to more satisfactorily display their fine stock of goods.

COMMENT ON NEW PARISH HOUSE

Proposed Building For Community Purposes Attracts Widespread Attention.

The work at Twin Falls is doing well under the earnest leadership of the Rev. L. B. Franck. It has been impossible to meet the needs of the growing community without some community center for social life and the congregation is going to erect a parish house, and have raised $3,500 in cash. Twin Falls is a town of about eight thousand people, and is situated in a great irrigated region in recent years transformed from desert into a wonderful farming country.

The foregoing is copied from "The Churchman," of New York City, a paper of wide circulation and a recognized organ of the Episcopal church in this country. The sum of money subscribed by the generous people of Twin Falls is understated by two or three hundred dollars. However, its position is positively assured, and bids for the construction will be invited in the very near future. Few of the many churches which are to be added to our city during the present and very important year in growth and advancement are going to be of more general interest and service to the community as a social center, as well as a church, such being the fact, it must be able to again furnish some details in regard to dimensions and conveniences.

The main building is forty feet front on Second street, at corner of Third Ave. North, by ninety feet deep. The front entrance gives on a vestibule, eight feet six by twelve feet eight. To right and left are rooms, each twelve feet eight by fifteen feet, which will eventually be class or cloak rooms; but at present the left one will be fitted up as a kitchen. Both of these rooms, as well as the vestibule, open into the auditorium, a high-ceiled, well-lighted room, forty by sixty feet in the clear, which will be floored with hard maple and fronted by a large, well-equipped stage, with a sixty-foot lighted room in the rear of the present Episcopal church building, and will be connected with what is now a vestry room by a sort of arcade, which will also furnish a study, class-room or ante-room fifteen by eighteen feet with openings to the vestry room on the one side and to the auditorium and the cloak room on the other, with an outside entrance toward the rectory.

A well lighted basement, two and one-half feet above ground and eight feet high in the clear, will be under the entire building. While only used for the heating plant and storage at the first, this space offers great possibilities for the future, either in the way of a gymnasium, or for completely equipped dining room, pantry and kitchen, where everything would be ready for use at a moment's notice and without moving seats after any sort of a meeting or entertainment in the audience room above.

SUCCESS ATTENDS HIGH SCHOOL ENTERTAINMENT

Twin Falls Defeats Filer by Large Score in Interesting Game of Basketball.

The entertainment given by the high school last Friday night was a great success. During the first part of the evening, the club played an over-the-top, entitled "The Windmills of Holland."

This play was directed by Miss Bryant, leader of the club, and Mr. C. D. Thomas, band director, and showed the result of many weeks of training and rehearsal.

The leading role was played by Earl Vance, assisted by Emory Bonnot, Marie Roberts and Juanita Dean.

The cast and program follows: Windmills of Holland.

Cast:
Myneer Hertogenbosch, Rich Holland farmer, Earl Vance.
Vrouw Hertogenbosch, his wife, Wilhelmina.
Hilda (Their daughter).
Laurel Weaver.
Bob Yankee, American salesman.
Hans, student of music.

LOSES MEMORY IN BATTLE, WOODS FIANCEE ANEW

Canadian, Mind Made Blank by Shell Concussion, Does Not Know Parents.

IS STRANGER THAN FICTION

Thomas Trusler, Sent Back to Front
From Hospital, Fails to Recall His Name and is Reported Missing
Forgetful Sweetheart and Falls in Love With Her
"All Over Again."

New York.—Pete has played many strange pranks with the men fighting in Europe, but none perhaps is more curious than that in which Thomas F. Trusler figures. Mr. Trusler, who is stopping at a hotel, was a gunner in the Third brigade, Canadian field artillery.

The concussion from a shell which struck the ground near him last winter caused him to lose all recollection of the past. Consequently, his fiancée in Montreal mourned him for dead, and even after he learned his identity through a scar on his right foot he did not remember her or his parents.

However, as he explained recently, he took his parents' word that they were his father and mother, and, although he does not recall his first proposal, he said he has fallen in love all over again with the woman he was to have married and soon he hopes to make her his bride.

Although Sir Frederick Treves, King George's surgeon, is said to have attempted to restore his memory by means of hypnosis, Trusler, who is twenty-one years old, recalls nothing of his past prior to the day his mind became blank from the concussion, and when he returned to Canada in the early autumn because of his wound it was necessary for him to relearn the way about his native city of Montreal and to be introduced to lifelong boyhood friends and schoolmates.

Under Fire at Ypres.

The young gunner went with the first Canadian contingent which reached France a year ago. At that time the German general staff was perfecting its schemes to break through to Calais by way of Ypres. Mr. Trusler first came under fire near Ypres, in the trenches, just west of Ypres. His division was acting as a reserve force.

"I have been told by men who served with me on my gun that we all saw a huge German airplane fly over us," Mr. Trusler said. "Soon thereafter there came a rain of high explosive shells from a big German gun. Several of our boys were killed, and the fact that I was not was a miracle. One shell fell within ten or twenty feet of me. I was told, but did not explode. The concussion, however, was terrific, and it dazed and stupefied me.

"I remember awakening in a base hospital with the medical staff about me. I felt myself all over and could find nothing amiss, so I sat up in my cot. Then I got out of it and stood up and asked why I was there. A physician told me what had happened to me and sent me back to my brigade, which he located by the insignia on my uniform. When I got back I didn't seem to recollect anything or anybody.

"Some of the men of my gun company saw me and took me back to my quarters. It was necessary for me to make friends with companions again. They called me 'Howie'—a nickname—and soon I became known as 'Howie Trusler.' That fact made it difficult for my parents to locate me, because when I was asked my name I spelled it 'Treasler,' because I didn't want anybody to know that I couldn't recall where I came from or who I was.

"Consequently T. F. Trusler went on the rolls of the missing. Consequently also, I failed to get mail from my fiancée and my parents. It was not until last summer when I was routed in the line back to my brigade, that I learned that I was missing. I went to England that I made any attempt to find out who I was. I confided my story to an Englishman of high rank who was interested in the hospital. She made inquiries among the officers of my brigade who remembered 'Trusler' who came out with the contingent.

"My parents were communicated with and my mother remembered an old scar on my foot. Sure enough the scar was there. Even when I returned to Montreal I didn't recognize my mother and don't yet. I learned I was engaged to be married before I left for the front and on my return home my fiancée was at the station with my mother and father. I didn't recognize any of them, but they took me home."

Here Mr. Trusler admitted that he had fallen in love "all over again" and with the same girl.

Although the gunner cannot remember what happened before January of last year, he has a vivid recollection of what has happened since, and his description of the battle of Ypres in April and of the effect of the poison gases used by the Germans is most vivid.

"About five o'clock of the evening of April 23," he said, "we were getting quite bored, for we were in the reserve force along the Poperinghe road, three miles west of Ypres. The dull monotony was rudely broken by the sudden appearance of swarms of French or German troops. Singularly, the Zouaves, rushing in from the front trenches, clutching at their throats, holding their sides, rolling on the ground, gasping for breath, eyes blood-shot and staring, many of them bleeding from the mouth and nose, were unable to explain the cause of their peculiar actions.

Asphyxiating Gas Cloud.

"Along with them came scores of refugees, men, women and children, bearing with them all they could take from their burning and wrecked homes. At that time we had never heard of asphyxiating gas and were at a loss to make out what it all meant. The order to stand to your arms was quickly passed along to the reserves. The Montreal Highlanders were the first to get on the move. It takes longer to get artillery wagons on the move, and while we were working at feverish haste the Highlanders went by, each man singing and smiling, although they must have known that many of them would never return.

"At seven o'clock the artillery forces were all ready, and waiting for the order to open fire. I shall never forget the scene at the moment. From the city of Ypres there arose high in the heavens huge jets of flames, while overhead shells burst by the hundreds, and in our ears was the din of falling bombs and all sorts of indescribable noises.

"When the order came to move forward we urged our horses with a cheer and a song. It was necessary for us to make a detour south of Ypres in order to get to the main road leading to our damaged front. It also was necessary to cross the Yser canal, about half a mile south of the town, on a pontoon bridge. The first gun got over safely, when along came a German shell and destroyed it.

"Under a deadly fire, for the Germans had the range, we waited while the engineers worked to construct another bridge. Two long thick poles were placed across the narrow canal and crossways on them timbers and logs were piled. The second gun went across precariously, but the third was upset by a rolling log, the cannon carriage falling on one side of the narrow bridge and the horse on the other. While the cannon and horses seemed to be seasawing this way and that across the bridge a shell put an end to all the trouble.

Into Hurricane of Fire.

"Then a third bridge was constructed, and my gun went across. By this time the glare from the burned town was dying down, and I was wondering just what was ahead of us when an aeroplane high above dropped a star shell. This was followed by a perfect hurricane of shells, and the last gun to attempt the crossing went into the water. Emerging from a wood, we ran into a murderous snuff from German infantry and machine guns. My gun and others of our battery were hurled into this open fire-sweep field, swung around and in less than two minutes opened fire on the Germans.

"Each of our shells contained 300 bullets, and an average of 250 yards one can readily imagine how the Germans fell. Finally we halted them, but the German infantry remained hidden behind a deep fringe of trees with their own dead piled up against them. Our guns could not do any work because of the trees. Therefore we were ordered to use high explosive shells.

"I shall never forget how those shells were brought to us. The horses on the ammunition supply wagon became crazed and ran away. They dashed within a few yards of the German lines, and one brave rider—no one ever knew who he was—shot the first two horses dead. The wagon rolled over them and him. Then there was an explosion, for the wagon, hit by a shell, was blown to bits. The explosion wrought havoc among the Germans and our infantry, quickly following up the advantage, drove the Teutons out of the woods.

"Meantime our line was badly pressed near St. Julien, and after the arrival of fresh British and Canadian troops was ordered there. We went right into the town. But on and on came the German infantry, and the retreat was sound.

Spying is Dangerous.

"The Germans are very clever at it, and one method of sending news between the lines is by trained dogs. One night one of our sentries saw a dog on the advance guard of the animal, thinking the dog would make an excellent mascot for the battery. The dog came back and wagged his tail and the sentry took him to his quarters.

"The following morning one of the men remarked on the thickness of the plain leather collar worn by the dog. An examination revealed that the collar was hollow, and in it we found a message to deliver. Instantly an officer was summoned, the dog was put on a long wire leash and driven out of camp. He went direct to a barber shop, where the men were in the habit of loitering and talking when off duty. The barber, whom we thought to be a Belgian, was a German spy and afterward was put to death."

TALKS ON THRIFT

HOLD FAST TO WHAT YOU HAVE

If there is anything more pathetic than the man who never had a home, or friends or money, it is the man who had a home and did not appreciate it. The world is full of derelicts and every town has its "has-beens," who once were "haves" and could not keep them. It is a sad commentary on human life that men must work and sacrifice and save, practice thrift for years; accumulate a competence and for one reason or another lose it all, and begin over again worse by far except for the experience.

Men who were once citizens of affluence will be found in the bread line, sleeping in the parks at night, living on relatives in the poorest, selling sheetings on Broadway, when by better management they might have been in comfortable circumstances.

There are two principal reasons why men lose what they have acquired. First, by being an easy mark, lending to friends and relatives and unable to say "no" to a request for help, an alluring proposition. Second, the desire to make money fast—not by gambling, but by trying to get a large income from a small principal. The stories of men who have acquired considerable money, and in the desire to make it grow, had lost it all, would fill a book and no one can be more opportune than this: Hold fast to what you have.

Will, if persistently followed, save those who heed them many a pang of regret.

First: Do not lend your friends. Friendship loans are bad; it is a delicate matter to ask for your money.

Second: Never endorse a note for anybody. More losses and business disasters have come about through lending one's name to a promissory note than perhaps any single cause. If you want to help a friend, lend him the money to spare better make a gift outright and forget it than try to deceive yourself that it is a loan. If you can't keep your friends without lending them money better lose them; friends are easier made than money.

Third: Put your money in a safe bank and leave it there. Experience has proven that the average man can do no better than bank his money, for in making private investments risk attends and loss often follows. There are thousands of good banks, and one is no doubt in your town, and bank become a habit, and a safe investment.

Fourth: If you accumulate enough to warrant private investment be satisfied with five per cent, and never aim to get more than that. Danger lies beyond six per cent.

Fifth: Experience has again proven the country over that first mortgages on improved property will not over 50 per cent of a fair market value in the most satisfactory form of investment and yields the highest returns comparable to any other investment. Banks make a specialty of mortgage loans, and you can follow their lead with safety.

Sixth: Before making any investment, ask your banker if it is legal for him and if he would make it; and if not legal question it carefully, and if he turns it down refuse it. Seventh: Never buy land you have not seen. Millions have been lost in buying lots on the installment plan, and you have lost them. They come out of bitter experience and why should you pay the same price for knowledge others have paid for? Buy land you can see, and keep it when once it is yours.

An Opportunity for Advertisers.

A RELIABLE newspaper is always the best and cheapest advertising medium known to business. It publishes all the news that is "worth while," is read regularly by several thousand people; and its advertising reaches the greatest number of readers with the least expense possible. Results are therefore certain if the article or proposition advertised is meritorious; and a reliable newspaper will endeavor to discourage the use of its columns for the circulation of anything that it can not recommend to its readers.

TIMES ADVERTISING is especially productive because it has the right sort of a circulation. It is read regularly TWICE-A-WEEK by people who are interested in their own community; because all local activities, the things of greatest interest to the people of Twin Falls county, are entertainingly and authoritatively reported in THE TIMES; the happenings in all sections of the state are given its readers; and events of world-wide interest are to be found in its columns.

The people want and read a COMPLETE NEWSPAPER, and they find it in THE TIMES. They want their news while it is news so The Times is published TWICE-A-WEEK.

THESE ADVANTAGES are at your service—TIMES ADVERTISING secures them for you.

SPEEDING CONGRESS UP. WASHINGTON.—President Wilson Monday began efforts to speed up the legislative machinery of congress to clear the way for the preparedness program. Before beginning his speaking tour late this week to boost public sentiment on the issue, he will impress on congress the desirability of disposing of appropriation bills and other pending legislation so there may be as little delay as possible in reaching the army and navy bills.

The president discussed the appropriation bill Monday with Representative Flood, Stephens, Leary and Page, chairman respectively of the house foreign affairs, Indian and agriculture committees and the District of Columbia subcommittee of the appropriations committee. He told them he hoped congress could finish its work and adjourn before the national political conventions. They assured him of their assistance, but some of them doubted whether the session could be closed that soon.

"PRINCESS PAT'S" LAST STAND MADE IN ROLLING WAVES OF POISON GAS

King of Famous Regiment in Fume-Filled Trenches at Ypres, Told By Corporal William B. Kysh, One of the Survivors of the 1,126 Veteran Fighters Who Joined the Organization in Canada—How "Slim" Perry Died.

Ypres.—This is the story of the battle of the trench, the end of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry—"The finest fighting force the world has seen." It begins on a bright, sunny day a year ago last September, in the town of Ypres, Belgium, where the regiment, with every man wearing previous service stripes, swung aboard a transport loaded with a load of sound and riotous laughter.

In a crescent shaped trench at Ypres, on the eighth day of last May, amid a green vapor of strangling poison and gray smoke of German infantry, with bayonets fixed, withering over the broken and bent ramparts. There the men of "Pat's Own" wrote their names into history and disbanded at the command of the greatest of all commanders—Death.

On the 11th of October when they stood proudly in review before King George and Lord Kitchener at Salisbury Plains as they strode down the lines of the 53rd division. There's still a regiment of "Princess Patricia's Own" in the trenches on the west front. But the place of the sturdy men garnered from the maris of the world are fresh young men, just from the scholastic halls of McGill university, in Canada. They're upholding the traditions—so nobly made—the men who went out before them.

Yesterday Corporal William B. Kysh of "Princess Patricia's Own"—that regiment which went to the front a little more than a year ago—told the story of the beginning of the war. He told of the fierce struggle between quick flashes of cigarette smoke, while a shell, scaly and maimed from shrapnel, stroked his yellow face.

A Regiment of Veterans. "I'm sorry I can't tell you more of this," he apologized. "I never was much of a speller at best—and now I'm rotten. Nervous gone, y' know—can't eat, can't sleep."

But Corporal Kysh was a seasoned soldier, as we all know. His condition was the result of the war. He told us he took the king's shilling in Quebec and donned the British uniform. He was Sergt. William Kysh of the Twenty-ninth United States volunteers in the Spanish-American war.

Corporal Kysh, the Argyle and Shetland Highlanders at Ashanti. He told us he has been a pursuer on board passenger steamships running the Europe and the far East. He was born in England, but he is a naturalized American, as were so many of the men who died at Ypres or before Ypres was reached.

"Princess Patricia's Own" left Quebec on September 17, 1914. After three weeks at Salisbury Plains the regiment was recalled to the English front up part of the Twenty-seventh division, composed otherwise of British regulars.

Back from service in India. The transfer followed the review by the king and Lord Kitchener. The British sold cavalry, they say, as he passed down the line and saw the service ribbons across the coats of "Pat's Own," said, softly: "Now I know where all my old fights are."

Into the Trenches at Once. The first week in December saw the regiment off to the front. There was a march from Winchester to Southampton, and there the troops embarked on board the Cardiganian for Harve. There was reached in the darkness, and after one night's stop the regiment marched to Bleringhem, behind the firing line. All day long they dug wave trenches. And then that night the word came to relieve Dikelbusch.

All of these points are within a radius of twenty-five miles from Ypres—where the fiercest fighting on the western front was progressing. Twenty miles the regiment marched, arriving at Dikelbusch at night, foot-sore and weary. This was on December 13, and hardly had they ceased when the command came to occupy the trenches. The French who had been holding them needed relief.

So into the trenches the men crept, crawling along flat on their bellies, when the star shells from the German lines made the heavens red; rising and snoring when welcome darkness came down again. For 72 hours they crouched in the trenches of Dikelbusch under a rain of shells and shrapnel fire, with only emergency rations to sustain them. This was their baptism of fire.

"Back into Hell at Hell 60." "Well, we left of the trenches after 72 hours and marched to West-eter, where we rested for 48 hours; then back into hell again. For this time that was where we went into trench C 10 on Hell 60.

After 48 hours back we crept to West-eter and stayed our Christ-ones there. We left some dead and some wounded behind. I guess it was 71 killed. Snipers and hand grenades got the others. So we went back and forth, thinking the ranks a little each time, until February 28. Then we made our first charge.

"Our artillery shelled the Germans for two days while we lay in the trenches waiting for the word. They burst or shelled back and shrapnel from a while one of our fellows went off with an arm off or a head smashed in."

"At four o'clock in the morning the word came to charge. We scrambled over the trench and ran toward the Germans, 60 yards away. They swept us with machine guns and bored us with hand grenades. Dig 'Jack Johnson' screaming from behind the lines at us, and over our heads went back our own artillery's answer. The Germans came up over the trenches to meet us, and we used the bayonet. We slipped and fell; rose and fell again, stabbing and cutting; there was no chance to shoot.

"Cold Steel Routs Germans. "Then the Germans gave way. They can't eat cold steel. They were piled up in the trenches, dead and dying, so thick that it was untenable, and after a while we had to abandon the trench. We went on, and go back to our own trench.

loke, just as I saw the Germans, dropping over the sand bags. The fellows who could stand knifed 'em with bayonets or bit and fought them. I saw four of my pals—eight fellows—they were—lying almost over each other, all of them with gas in them.

"Oh, Christ, Kysh!" one 'em called, 'get me a drink. Get me—' and a German drove a bayonet clear through his throat and lungs before he could finish it. And then the same German knifed the other three boys.

"That was the end of 'Princess Patricia's Own.' Long before the Germans came the last time there weren't sixteen men of the sixteen platoons of the regiment who could defend themselves. I fired 70 rounds myself from my Lee-Enfield, and he was so hot I couldn't hold her. I crept back and somebody put me on a Mallett, and got me to Dikelbusch. I spent six months in a hospital at Beechburg Park and then came over to Quebec, where I got my discharge.

And Corporal Kysh, still moving the hand that was raked with shrapnel over his yellow face, lighted another cigarette.

"There's lots I could tell you," he said. "I'm not much good at talking, then my nerves are rotten. I tried to go to work today, but I had to let it off. I just went down to the French line and told 'em I'd have to lay off a bit until I could get eased up some."

How "Slim" Perry Died. And then he told the story of how "Slim" Perry died. "Slim" was the younger son of a well-known English family, who had lived several years in New York. At the start of the war he hurried up to Quebec and enlisted.

"He was a sidekick of mine. Finest fellow I ever knew. Always on the edge whenever the kelly beat called. He could pick up a chicken or fresh meat any old day. We were side by side at Ypres, and he just turned to me and grinned after the first attack of Germans had fallen. 'I got to see 'em run, Kysh,' he said, and peeked over. A bit of shell got him right across the head and took it off to the mouth. He fell against me and I laid him down. When I got out of the hospital I went down to see his mother and sister. His mother hadn't heard from him for a long time and asked me where he was. 'Well, I had to tell her. Rotten, eh?'

"Oh, they were a fine bunch of soldiers and gentlemen," from old 'Mickey' Walsh, who'd seen service in Egypt in '02, to Perry. 'Mickey' was waiting in a little scoured-out hole at the bottom of a trench, and he looked up at me.

"Corporal," he says, 'we thought we'd seen war. What muckers we were! When I got out of this I'm going to lead a quiet life'—and he got up and got a bullet through the eye—took the eye clean out."

Corporal Kysh is still wearing his service shoes; big, broad browns of oiled leather.

"Pretty fine kicks," he observed, and lighted another cigarette. "Well, I guess I'll eat some more eggs; can't have any solids, but how I'd like a steak, eh?"

POCATELLO MAY GET FORD

POCATELLO.—From present indications Pocatello is to become the location of a big assembling plant of the Ford Motor Car company for this section of the northwest territory, says the Pocatello Tribune. C. E. Gordon, territorial representative for the Ford people, has been in the city for several days, looking over the situation, securing data regarding the land, facilities, shipping rates and the like, and has conversed thoroughly with business men regarding the project, and is convinced that Pocatello is the ideal location for general distribution for the territory that is now covered by either Portland or Denver, and has points of superiority over Salt Lake, which is making a bid for the assembling plant.

Mr. Gordon, it is understood, has turned in the recommendation to his eastern connections, with the recom-mondation that Pocatello be selected for the establishment.

FATAL GUN ACCIDENT

IDAHO FALLS.—George G. Twitcheell, 23 years of age, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Twitcheell, of Presto, Blaine county, was shot, to death at Roberts yesterday by the accidental discharge of a rifle which he had been examining.

Monday, Twitcheell, with a companion, was in the barnyard when he noticed a rifle hanging by the trigger guard from a wagon, he taking it down and examining it and hanging it back on the nail, intending to hang the gun by the trigger guard, but hanging it by the trigger. The weight of the gun on the trigger discharged the cartridge. The heavy bullet struck the young man at the top of the left shoulder, ranging downward through the body, tearing its way through the lungs, inflicting a mortal wound.

THEATRICAL NEWS

LORCH COMPANY DELIGHTS CAPACITY HOUSE

DIFFERING in a marked degree from the general run of stock companies that take to the road, the Theodore Lorch company which opened at the Lavington theatre for a week's run last night, excited even the promises of its press agent. Perhaps the latter gentleman, being a native of Twin Falls, exercised more caution than press agents generally do, or else he just wanted to give theatre goers of his home town a little surprise.

Without going into the special merits of the individual members of the cast of "Help Wanted," Monday evening's offering, the most striking thing about the company is the fact that it consists of all talented actors; at least this much may be said of those appearing in the first performance. The ordinary stock company that goes on the road usually consists of a "leading" man, or "woman," as the case may be, supported by a collection of would-be actors that reflect the brilliancy of the "lead" by contrast. There was nothing of this in the Lorch company, and even if it must be said in the interest of truth that Mr. Lorch himself was not the center of all interest and admiration, it is very much to his credit that he associated with himself a cast that lifts the play out of the general run of "barnturners" and puts it on the level of the best road productions that occasionally tour this section. That the large audience that witnessed the opening production appreciated the entire company was evident from the frequent and generous applause given to every member of the cast.

Katherine Shepard, first as Catherine Wiggins and later as Mrs. Scott, proved particularly popular with the audience, while Cecil Fay, as Gertrude Myers, the principal character in the story, Marie Earl in character parts, and Gladys Bush, as the Scott's daughter, and who had only a minor part, won instant favor. In the male roles the honors were quite evenly divided. Mr. Lorch, of course, heading the list; Mr. Boone, as Crane, the bookkeeper, Claude Gagnon, as Jack Scott, and Geo. Kollback, an attorney, all making the very best of their respective parts.

The lines of the play were, in themselves, unusually entertaining, and with the elegant stage settings and the presentation by so capable a company, the result was an evening of fun for all who attended. There is nothing cheap or tawdry about this company, and if they are able to live up to their first night's record, Twin Falls theatre goers have a pleasant week of clean entertainment ahead of them.

SISSON WILL SPEAK TO SCHOOL TRUSTEES

State Commissioner of Education at gathering at Buhl on February 8 and 9.

The office of the county superintendent, under the management of Miss Noel, is making special efforts to interest all in the forthcoming meeting of the school trustees at Buhl which will be held on Tuesday and Wednesday, February 8 and 9. Those attending will also have a chance to get in touch with the agricultural extension school directors. In a letter written to W. Faris last week Dr. E. O. Sisson promised to attend and lecture on the general subject of education. His letter follows:

Boise, Idaho, Jan. 23, 1916.
Mr. J. W. Faris,
Buhl, Idaho.

I have received your letter of the 20th, and program of the annual meeting of the school trustees. I am delighted to know that the trustees' meeting is to be held at this time and that I shall be able to be present. I have already attended this school year the trustees' conventions in fourteen different counties; I expect to be present at five in the extreme north in March. We find that these meetings with the trustees are among the most profitable experiences we can have, so far as the state office is concerned, because in them we get in the closest touch with actual conditions through out the state.

I shall be glad to speak in the evening as arranged. I notice the topic is "Rural Schools" but I assume that it will be alright for me to treat the subject in a rather general way—not excluding the interests of our larger communities.

I shall plan to come on the noon train Tuesday. I should like an opportunity some time during the meeting of addressing the trustees briefly on some matters of common interest to them and to the state office.

Cordially yours,
EDWARD O. SISSON,
Commissioner of Education.

If you can't call and give us your listings, mail them to us. C. E. Evans and Co., 223 So. Shoshone St.—Adv.

and made a number of sensational throws. MacCracken and Rowberry did good work in defeating the best of the strong on interlocking passes. Bristol, the human telegraph pole, had things his own way at center, and made several baskets.

The showing made last Friday indicates that we have a strong team to represent us, and a number of good shots to back them up. Dwight, who was called on to take Lecher's place during the last few minutes, showed good form, and is a promising young player.

The game was interrupted frequently by the umpire, who could not pass up an opportunity to show that he knew the rules. Mr. Bracken officiated as referee and gave both teams a very square deal. The final score stood 61 to 28.

BIG HORSE SALE

65—HORSES—65

At C. A. McManis' Sale Barn

Twin Falls, Idaho.

Thursday, February 10, 1916

Sale Starts at One O'clock.

40 head mares from 2 to 6 years old, weighing from 1300 to 1600 pounds.

10 geldings from 3 to 6 years old, weighing from 1250 to 1700 pounds.

8 mules from 2 to 6 years old, weighing from 1000 to 1200 pounds.

This is the best lot of horses ever offered for sale in Twin Falls.

Every one a good one. These are the choice ones selected from 400 horses that I have bought since October 1st, 1915.

Any time I could buy a good 2 or 4 year old mare or gelding I put them away for the farmers trading this spring. As there has been 4000 shipped out of this country in 1915, good farm stock will be hard to buy this spring. Now you have a chance to buy 65 head of good young stock ready for work the day you buy them at your own price. Come and see them whether you buy or not.

Terms: Oct. 1 at 10 per cent interest; 5 off for cash.
