R. R. COMMITTEE CHOSEN AT MEETING

Thorough Investigation of Proposed Line

QUESTION OF ULTIMATE OWNERSHIP PROVES MOOTED ISSUE.

Large Gathering at Club Rooms and Expressions All in Favor of Road.

An enthusiastic joint meeting of Twin Falls and Castleford at the rooms of the Twin Falls Commercial club Tuesday night resulted in the appointment of J. A. Crom from this city and J. H. Seaver from Castleford to fill two committees of three, for the purpose of cooperating in the drafting of tentative plans for the proposed Castleford railroad, and if necessary for the sending of a delegation representing the communities interested to Salt Lake City to take the question of construction and ownership up with the officials of the Oregon Short Line. The committee will have power to make recommendations with reference to the raising of funds necessary to carry out temporary plans and to do local preliminary investigations.

Yesterday morning Messrs. Seaver and Crom met and selected the rest of the committee. Mr. Seaver selected Carl Miller and H. J. Felling and Mr. Crom, Arthur J. J. Maxwell and Thomas Warner. The committee organized by the election of Mr. Seaver as chairman. It was decided to invite the Short Line officials to come here and talk over the situation and look over the country. Mr. Crom leaves for Chicago in a few days to be gone about a month. Mr. Seaver was called to order by C. L. DeLong, vice president of the club. J. A. Crom was called upon to explain the purpose of the gathering and told of the obstacles which he had met in attempting to secure $100,000 in subscriptions. He said that in a general way he had been successful, but that one of the obstacles which he had met in attempting to secure $100,000 in subscriptions, was the fact that the other fellow who wanted money raised as a donation to the Oregon Short Line to indicate that road to build, own and operate and to build the road. The other wanted the organization of an independent company. Personally he favored the independent company plan. He replied to a number of objections which he had heard raised, such as "The road could be built if we would all pull together. What the other fellow wanted was a road, so I will not." "Oh, its easy for you to take stock but I cannot." "A similar attempt made before failed, therefore this one will fail." Mr. Crom appealed to all to let their emotions carry them forward to success in this undertaking. All wanted the road and what proper co-operation all could build it.

J. H. Seaver, representing Castleford, made a brief pointed talk explaining the position of his community. In substance he said: "We all want the road, but before we subscribe we want to know definitely what we are subscribing to. Up to the present no definite plan has been worked out. We do not want to be in the position of farmers who have subscribed for the building of a road, paid in their money and at the end had only part of the road to show for it. We would like to have the Short Line build, own and operate the road, because we know nothing about railroad construction. We do not know what the obstacles might be thrown in our way by the Short Line should we build the road as an independent company. We do not even have direct, positive assurance that the Short Line is willing to have us build this road, the such evidence as we have points that way. The Short Line should build this road, it might stick us on freight and passenger rates to a certain extent, but even at that the road so built and operated would be a great boon to the community and we would subscribe liberally toward its construction." He suggested the appointment of a committee to represent the communities interested to take the matter up with the Short Line and find out what that company would do. This suggestion was later acted upon as noted above.

Mr. Miller of Castleford, briefly summarized the views expressed by Mr. Seaver. President DeLong, Mr. J. Seaver and others spoke along the same general line, especially favoring the appointment of the committee to draft a definite proposition. Mr. Crom suggested that the committee would have to spend some money and should not be compelled to do so at the expense of the interest of the community. Willett Hance made a strong talk along this line, urging the taking up of a collection. The committee, after a few minutes, determined the probable cost of investigation and report back to the meeting as a whole, with an estimate of the probable cost of the initial work of investigation.

FOOD FOR THE DEFENDERS OF VERDUN

While "goulash" is not a very popular food with the French, considering its kinship to the central powers, the name "goulash kitchen" has often been conferred on the field kitchens where the food for the soldiers is prepared. The photograph shows the great number of these movable field kitchens where the food for the soldiers guarding Verdun is prepared.

SALMON RIVER WATER CAUSE OF FIST FIGHT

Robert Rayl Arrested on Charge of Beating Up Neighbor Over Location of Ditch.

As a result of a mixup on the Salmon tract over water, indicating that unusual conditions prevail there, Frank Caudle is suffering from numerous contusions and lacerations on his head and feelings and Robert Rayl is cited to appear before Judge A. W. Ostrom Monday morning on a charge of assault and battery. Friends of Caudle tell the story this way, though the evidence may disclose other phases and details. The monuments of the original survey have disappeared from a large strip on the Salmon tract in the neighborhood where the trouble took place and some time ago a number of them got together, hired a surveyor, on account of pending litigation, to determine the location of the private survey. Caudle, who had improved his place according to what is believed to be the original survey, refused to be a party to this agreement, and when the survey indicated the line to run through his field cutting off a considerable part, he declined to accept it. In the meantime Rayl had taken up a claim, on which, however, the company refused to run the line, and he repeatedly asked relief from the land board for which this year, though without finally deciding the case, gave him a temporary order. In getting water to his land Rayl found it convenient to run a ditch through the field which the private survey indicated as no longer belonging to Caudle but which Caudle asserted was his according to the original survey. Caudle went out last Thursday to stop him and a dispute ensued, the result of which will be more fully described in court Monday.

LODGE INSTITUTED —REBEKAH LODGE AT FILER

Twin Falls Staff Put on Work—State Officers of the Order Were Present.

A Rebekah lodge was instituted last night at Filer, the work being put on by the order in this city. A large number of Odd Fellows and Rebekahs were in attendance from Twin Falls. President Johnson of Couer d'Alene and Grand Lodge Crossen of Idaho, both grand lodge officers were in this city yesterday and went to Filer with the local lodge. The usual entertainment connected with such work was delightfully furnished by the Filer members.

COMMISSIONERS CAUGHT IN BLINDING STORM

Heavy Snow Meeting Hesperon Prevents Meeting to Adjust Road to Bull Hollow.

Commissioners Carlson and Moore went to Hesperon yesterday with a view of meeting the number of settlers a few miles beyond the town, for the adjustment of a road line to Bull Hollow. When four miles from Hesperon they ran into a blinding snow storm, which so impeded their progress that they arrived late at the place of meeting, and found that the settlers had given up the hope of meeting them and had gone home.

EXCURSION PLANNED TO JARBIDGE SOON

W. T. Woods Says Crowd Will Go Out Shortly

INDICATIONS CONFIRM ALL SAID IN BULLETIN STORY.

Dr. Albee of The Twin Falls Board Brings Back Some Samples From Camp.

"Your story of the Jarbridge camp taken from the San Francisco Bulletin, and the interview with James McMillan, are borne out by the investigations of all who visited that camp with Commissioners Albee, Carlson and Moore from this county, and others who are interested in the proposed new road," said W. T. Woods yesterday. "Personally, I could not add anything to it. Things look very promising there, in fact look just as good as the Bulletin article indicates. In couple of weeks we expect to organize a party of from 20 to 25 and visit the camp from here at which time there will be an opportunity to write another story, going into details further than is now possible."

Dr. Albee brought back some samples of ore from the camp which are said by experts to contain considerable gold. All the members of the party tell the same enthusiastic story.

Two baseball games in succession within three days, is going some, and that is what the fans of this city and vicinity will have a chance to see during the coming week. Sunday Rupert, which has a team that is still undefeated, will play Twin Falls, which is also still undefeated, on the home grounds and the battle will be one of titans. On Decoration day, the Kimberly team, which is practicing for to recover the ground lost last Sunday, will be in hand with both. Christian will pitch for Twin Falls. This is the first time that the Oakland Twirler has gone into the box, and unless he is rusty around the points, he will make the Kimberly batters smash the surrounding ozone.

CONTACT PROSPECTS BETTER THAN EVER

John M. Beck of Kimberly Tells of Installation of Machinery at Camp.

A compressor and holding machine has been received at the De Lano property in contact and will be installed and ready for operation within a couple of weeks, according to John M. Beck, of Kimberly, who with George O. Bremer, H. W. Mund and W. M. Arnold returned Tuesday from a trip to that noted copper camp. There are now 30 men employed on the De Lano property and this number will be increased as soon as the new machinery is started. A great deal of hand work is being done on other properties. Mr. Beck says that the camp is more promising than at any previous time in its history. Blain Hanks, who came in yesterday from Contact on business, took a conservative though hopeful view of the situation. He said a little ore was being taken out and shipped continually and that this would continue while copper prices remained high. However, the development of the camp was retarded by lack of transportation, grow rapidly. A crew had been burning the debris and willows along the line of the old Oregon Short Line right of way, but whether this amounted to anything more than an effort to keep it clear he did not know.

Mr. Salladay accepted the place on the directorate made vacant by the elevation of Mr. Felling to the presidency. The board of directors voted to donate the net proceeds of the chautauqua this year to the ladies' rest room.

The board elected 75 new members who had applied during the campaign last week. A smoker will be given next Thursday night at which the referendum on the subject of investigation into the threatened strike will be discussed.

COMPANY PREPARES TO DEVELOP LOVETT

Twin Falls Man President of Company—Law is on Proposed Raft River Line.

The Raft River Investment company organized for the development of the townsite of Lovett in this state on the Raft river country, is practically assured, the story of its proposed building there was told in THE TIMES some months ago.

These with L. R. Adams of Rupert and A. Lafount of Salt Lake City constitute the board of directors.

THE COMMERCIAL CLUB SECU. Official announcement was made yesterday of the formal naming of the switch to the sugar factory which hereafter will be designated as the Lovett Sugar Switch. Some time ago Superintendent Stephenson of the company wrote to Mr. McMillan from Ogden saying that in view of his active interest and assistance in securing the cooperation of the community for the building of the factory, the company would like to have him name the switch.

Mr. McMillan consented and the order was issued.

CANDIDATE CROP NOW COMING UP

Good Stand Promised In The Local Field This Fall

LATE SPRING HAS NOT KEPT BACK POLITICAL ASPIRATIONS.

Lively Contest Promised And Many Came In Early to Keep Ahead of The Rush.

The local political situation is beginning to show signs of recurring life now that the state conventions are over, and notwithstanding the lateness of the spring the candidate crop is promising. Both parties agree that the coming campaign will be one of the most fiercely contested battles ever took place in Idaho, and are making preparations accordingly. To complicate matters in this county, Buhl wants a new county, and says that she is going to get it. There has been quite a bit of talk about a combination between the west-end city and certain Republican politicians in Twin Falls, but there is no tangible evidence of the existence of any such contract or understanding and the few west-end men who seem to accept such a coalition as an established fact, are in the minority in their own community, where county division has been made before and where the average voter, as a result of experience, wants to be shown the goods; at least wants more to go on than an idle street rumor. At the same time the Buhl situation is making everyone in politics more or less uncomfortable.

It is not known whether O. G. Luck of Kimberly, will wish to succeed himself as senator or not. His legislative course was generally satisfactory except for his opposition to such county division movement in the west-end. All give him credit for honesty in the issue, as he frankly declared himself opposed to such division when a candidate. This is one place which Buhl would like to have a friendly friction with W. H. Harvey, who lives there, and who is an enterprising city, say that he is just the man for the place. On the other hand Ben Williamson, who has plenty of friends among the young men, whose Republicanism has never been doubted, is being pushed forward by the Buhl faction. In the past he supported Taft in 1912, but his principles as a backer of J. A. Sloan, who was in the Teddy procession. There is some talk of making him a candidate for the lower house, with Harvey as a candidate for the upper J. A. Waters of Twin Falls, who was on the Irrigation commission, and who has been in a war problem, is understood to be in a receptive mood, should the elephant come a wailing and the animal is all.

CROCKETT STILL IN A STATE OF COMA

Life of Man Hurt in Accident Hinges In Balance—Others Are on Road to Recovery.

Mel Crockett, who was dangerously hurt in the auto accident on the Kimberly road Sunday afternoon, is still unconscious at the Twin Falls hospital with his life hanging in the balance. He was reported slightly improved at the time of going to press today. This morning Dr. T. O. Boyd said that his condition was practically unchanged, and that he was ever since the accident. Roy Mercer, who was badly hurt at the end and is out of danger. John Walton, the Hansen man who was injured, is still in the hospital, having been injured more than it was at first supposed. He walked to the depot and rode home, but later discovered that he had suffered serious internal injuries. Heber Snow and Robert Blair, who were more or less hurt, are around the streets. The car was owned by a man named Gulick, who was driving.

Sunday morning, the Jerome stage broke an axle on the road near the Waters place and skidded for some distance, but nobody was injured.

FRENCH TAKE IMPORTANT FORT

Germans Driven Out of Douaumont at Point of Bayonets

HAS BEEN IN GERMAN HANDS FOR NEARLY THREE MONTHS

Gains Made Inch By Inch on Desperate Bayonet Fighting. Liquid Gas Used.

Paris—Recapture by the French after three months of the greater part of Fort Douaumont, which was taken by the Germans at the outset of the Verdun drive, is received with great elation by the press and public, the more so on account of the effect it is expected to have on neutral opinion.

Gen. Nivelle, the French commander at Verdun, took advantage of the fact that the Germans recently have been concentrating their attention on Dead Man's Hill, on the other side of the river and assembled a large amount of artillery for the attack on the Douaumont sector.

The German resistance at some points was stubborn. On the Froide-Terre road and at Douaumont, the French had to force back the German infantry inch by inch at the point of the bayonet.

As soon as they recovered from their surprise the Germans launched a number of fierce counter attacks, but all failed and by 10 p. m. preparations had been completed for the serious efforts the Germans are expected to make to recapture the lost positions.

The French success is considered by military critics here to have shaken the whole German line at Verdun. Douaumont fort was the most important point captured by the French and French gain there is regarded as having nullified the most significant achievement of the Germans in the great battle of three months.

West of the Meuse Hill 295, the western summit of Dead Man Hill has become a no man's land, like Hartmann's Wellerkopf. Once before the French abandoned it temporarily to avoid useless and costly recapturing it when the opportunity came.

Fighting continues with extreme violence on both banks of the Meuse along the Verdun front. Two German counter attacks on French positions on Hill 304 failed completely. The French made further gains within Fort Douaumont. The Germans now hold only a small angle on the northern corner of the fort.

The battle around Hill 304 was especially severe. In attacking French positions on the west side of the hill the Germans used liquid gas, the official statement says, and penetrated one of the French trenches, but were dislodged at once. On the east side of the hill the Germans attacked after intense artillery preparation but were not permitted to reach the French lines.

The principal fighting east of the Meuse was in the sector between Thiaumont and Douaumont. The Germans attacked in mass formation and are said to have suffered enormous losses. They succeeded in recapturing one of the trenches north of Thiaumont, a fact which had been captured by the French.

DEPUTY REPORTS THAT RABIES STILL EXISTS

Coyotes, Sheep, Dogs and Horses Were Among Animals Killed That Were Affected With Disease.

Tom Urlio, who is employed by the county to assist in the extermination of coyotes and is working in the hills south of Rogerson, reports that there are still a number of rabid animals in that section. A short time ago a farmer by the name of John Smith, whose ranch is south of Rogerson, was attacked by a rabid coyote. The mad animal attempted to fight the man but was killed with a twenty-two rifle. Two youngsters in the Big Creek district were attacked by a coyote, but escaped to the school house. The coyote was later heard from at the ranch of Hugh Reed, where it attacked a dog.

A horse was killed on Mr. Healey's place near the Salmon river after having shown symptoms of rabies. The horse was tied in the stable and attracted attention by gnawing at the manger in a frenzied way. It broke loose and attacked two small kids in the barn yard, who escaped to the barn. The men on the place shot the animal and it was the last of the most ferocious they had ever seen.

Some sheep belonging to a man by the name of Miller were attacked by a coyote and several thereof were bitten before the coyote's attention was diverted by one of the dogs guarding the sheep. The dog has been bitten also and was tied up to await developments.

Mr. Urlio reports that he has found two sheep in the hills which were attacked by the disease. One of the men, Hungerford, who was assisting him, have cleaned out several dens of coyotes that were apparently affected.

Goodbye coffee grinder

THE right way to protect good coffee—in vacuum sealed tins—has made grinding at home or at the grocer's unsatisfactory.

Right after Schilling's Best is roasted, it is carefully ground into even bits, the objectionable chaff taken-out, and the coffee hurriedly packed in vacuum-sealed tins.

Neither you nor the grocer can grind as uniformly as we do. And uniform grinding is one of the important reasons for the smooth, rich strength of Schilling's Best. A pound goes further.

CARRANZA SENDS 30,000 TO BORDER

Mexican Government Already Moving Troops

AUTOS PROVE EFFICIENCY WHEN USED TO CAPTURE OFFICERS.

Col. Tufts Cardenas and Two Lieutenants Killed by American Officers When He Attempts Escape.

Washington, May 23.—The Carranza government has ordered 30,000 troops into the region south of the border to exterminate bandits, according to information received today at the state department. The new troop movements are already in progress through Chihuahua, the department's advice state.

Officials here were inclined today to anticipate a further delay by Gen. Carranza in dispatching his new force regarding the border situation. Official announcement that Col. Sibbey's expedition had returned was expected to lead to alterations in the communication as demonstrating the purpose of the United States government to be only the pulling of the border region.

Mustering of the Arizona and New Mexico guardsmen is being delayed, Gen. Funston reports, until the skeleton companies can be recruited to the required standard.

Seely, Baker has not decided what action shall be taken regarding the 115 Texas guardsmen who declined to enroll in the federal service. Judge Advocate General Crowder has submitted an opinion to Gen. Scott, chief of staff, outlining the war department's authority to court-martial the recalcitrants. His only recommendation, however, was that if the court martial were ordered a majority of the members of each court be militia officers, not regulars.

Automobiles were put to a new military use in the Villa campaign on May 14 when the bandit leader, Col. Jufo Cardenas was killed with two of his lieutenants.

Three touring cars from Gen. J. J. Pershing's camp started about midday for Rancho San Miguel de Rubio, a short run across the mountains, the residence of the Cardenas family and the scene of a hot shooting operation, at American troops. Cardenas' family, all women and children, and remained unmolested, notwithstanding positive information to the American staff that the bandit frequently used his ranch for a rendezvous.

Until this Sunday's automobile raid, it has been customary to employ cavalry on night rides after bandits on horse back. The raid would surround the ranch just before going on these searches.

The automobiles, with an order to burn down the Cardenas property, made a fast run over mountain foot-hills to the ranch. Lieut. George S. Patton, Jr., of San Francisco, a member of the cavalry, accompanied the raiding party. Within a mile of the ranch the car topped a hill from which for the first time they were visible to the occupants of the ranch and from which the automobiles made a dash toward their objective, which would have been impossible for cavalry. Running near 60 miles an hour they were within less than 200 yards of the buildings before their presence was discovered.

A Mexican who worked in the yard gave the warning, but it was too late. By the time Cardenas and his two men could get on their horses and rush for the ranch gate, the Americans had surrounded the place.

Cardenas was the first man to emerge from shelter. He and Lieut. Patton engaged in a hand-to-hand fight, which a shot from Patton's weapon broke the bandit's arm and drove him back into the ranch house, later to be finished by the American soldiers when he tried to escape.

BUY BOUNTY CLAIMS AT THEIR OWN RISK

Hope of Compensation Rests in Appropriation by Next Session of Legislature.

BOISE, Ida.—Those who purchase claims against the predatory animal fund of this state, now exhausted, do so at their own risk. The only hope of compensation they have is that the next legislature will reimburse them for their expenditure. A warning to this effect has been authorized by the state livestock sanitary board. The warning is signed by State Veterinarian H. B. Hinkle and is sufficient to give notice to those interested that they take claims at their own risk.

The predatory animal fund became exhausted some time ago due to heavy drain made upon it by slayers of predatory animals who have been very active. Since then the state veterinarian has been receiving the claims and placing them on file. Many have come in and it is now very apparent that the only way the hunters can be compensated is by a legislative appropriation.

The state livestock sanitary board is in session for two days this week but aside from auditing bills do little else. The rules and hog choler situation were discussed informally but no action was taken. The board realizes that hog cholera is under much better control than it was a year ago and that there is less of the disease. With regard to rabies, members of the board feel that everything possible was being done to exterminate the coyote and stamp out the disease.

The following is the warning the board authorized sent to the people of Mack Sennel, one of the 3 greatest film directors in the world. He owns and supervises the famous Triangle-Keystone film factory. He has the magic power of knowing how to make millions of people laugh.

DANDELION ROOTS HAVE MARKET VALUE

Possibility That They Might Make Good Profit Discussed by Druggists.

That there is a market for dandelion roots is the substance of a story going the rounds of the press, in which it is declared that the demand for these roots for medicinal purposes is so great that they bring from four to six cents a pound. Dandelion is used in making up of liver medicines, and has become scarce and valuable since the breaking out of the European war.

Since 100,000 pounds or more are imported annually into the United States it seems that many a young boy or girl ought to make fairly good money by collecting and preparing dandelion roots for the drug trade. The root is used medicinally in diseases of the liver and system.

Hugging up the root for control and also for securing the maximum amount of material for sale is best accomplished by the use of a small or stout bladed knife. The plant grows so low that the frequent cutting of the lawn with the mower does not seem to have a good effect as with taller weeds. The plants must be destroyed before the crown of the root in order to kill them and of course it is necessary to go much deeper in order to get most of the root, which is thick, tapering, and sometimes fully twenty inches in length.

Another method of control is spraying with iron sulphate. The spraying must be done on bright days and at frequent intervals to be effective. It has been found that the dandelion and according to experiments in Dakota and Rhode Island it has been known to remove the pest entirely from the lawn.

Except that it is a nuisance in lawns the dandelion is not a bad weed, since its leaves are eaten by most stock and form the basis of many a menu of greens for the home table. The leaves are also frequently eaten in salads early in the spring, both in Europe and in this country.

Whether a market could be found for these roots if gathered in Twin

MOTORCYCLE RUN TO ICE CAVES SUNDAY

Plan to Form Club and Make Trips During the Coming Summer.

A motorcycle run to the ice caves for the purpose of forming a motorcycle club, will be held next Sunday, leaving the Gloydale Brothers shop at 7:30 o'clock. A general invitation has been extended to all riders in the county, by the promoters of the plan, who hope to make it the event of the season in motorcycle circles. It is planned to take weekly trips during the summer months to the various points of interest around the city. It is expected to work out the details of organization when the riders gather at the caves Sunday.

SAGEBRUSH ROAD IS LATEST IDEA

PATTERSON, Wash.—George N. MacCulloch, of Coolidge, road supervisor, has invented a machine to shred sagebrush for purposes of road building. The machine cuts the sagebrush and spreads it over the road surface. The result is a smooth road built at small cost.

The machine consists of knives on a large wheel which revolves against a railroad iron just near enough that the knives do not touch. A hopper is placed on top and the sagebrush is forced by the knives against the railroad iron and cut into small shreds which is hauled to put on the road. Several highways on the Columbia river have been surfaced with this material recently.

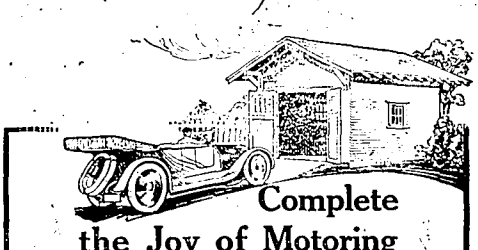

Mr. MacCulloch has applied for a patent.

PRESENT-COUNTY HOSPITAL DISGRACE TO COMMUNITY

GIVE US THE NEW ONE!

Apologies to the proposed County Hospital, and "let us forget," some pains have been taken to obtain and place before the citizens of Twin Falls County, certain salient facts very pertinent to the situation. It is understood that the County Commissioners have practically decided that such an improvement shall be made; so that the excuse for this paper—if it needs any, other than the fact of its reference to a matter of general public interest—lies in a desire to awaken favorable sentiment and to hasten the day of fruition.

In the first place, let us take a glance at the territory and the people involved—at Twin Falls County and the inhabitants thereof. The exact area of the large county is unimportant. Suffice it to say that it contains about 370,000 acres of land susceptible to irrigation and prodigiously productive when irrigated; and that something like two hundred thousand acres are now "under water" and giving returns to the agriculturist absolutely unheard of, even in the rich states of the middle west. We will hardly need to recapitulate here the authenticated figures regarding last year's crops. It has been published to the world how seed crops brought cash returns of from one hundred dollars per acre for alfalfa and silage to three hundred and fifty-seven dollars per acre for white clover—not on a single acre, but from tracts of from five to eighty acres; and not in a single instance, but in hundreds of them! Also, regarding the marvelous profits from grain, from beans, from beets, from fruits and vegetables, from the dairy, from hogs, from sheep especially, and from hay, worth locally at this writing twenty dollars per ton, in spite of the enormous quantity grown!

Of course the land thus changed in a decade from a desert to a garden of Eden has become valuable. The County Assessor advises that the average—average, mind you—valuation for the purpose of taxation is $50.45 per acre; and that the total valuation of the County for same purpose is, approximately and in round numbers, twenty millions of dollars. Within the confines of this favored section there is now a population of over twenty thousand souls, high, upon the average, in intelligence and refinement, as is abundantly evidenced by the costly and magnificent provision for schools, both as to buildings, personnel and courses of study, by the fine and well attended churches and by the general high and law-abiding tone and temper constantly manifest.

In a community of the kind and character indicated, adequate and ample provision for the indigent and unfortunate who are, upon public authority, "always with us," would naturally be expected. But when inquiry is made in Twin Falls County regarding that particular feature of modern civilization, the equiver feels like saying, "One thing thou lackest!" And the default is, at present, so absolute as to be shameful.

Inquiry at the Auditor's office, where ephemeral expenditures are recorded, developed the fact that, during the year 1915 something over seven thousand dollars were thus expended. Mr. Stewart, the bookkeeper, who kindly put, in a half day's investigation, reported the names of over fifty persons who received aid of course in their own homes from the County during last year; and as many of these were heads of families, the total number would be at least twice as great. It is also certain that many of these needed medical attendance and hospital service—a fact further evidenced by the payment of $705.61 to a doctor, or doctors, and $747.60 "hospital charges."

Following up the inquiry as to what was done for those who needed everything—shelter, clothing, food and care, it developed that the county was maintaining an alleged "poor house," although in the same breath we were advised that the plant had been condemned as unsanitary by the State Health Officer, and that temporary occupancy was only permitted as an emergency expedient! "Seeing is believing," and if every citizen of

Twin Falls County could see that place, it's a cinch the Commissioners could not provide a better one too fast or too soon!

The Twin Falls County Poor House (and its a sure-enough poor house) is located on the alley facing Second Street S., between Second and Third Avenues S.—a region of warehouses, garages and livery stables. It was originally built for a livery stable, but later changed into a cheap hotel to serve the purpose of pioneer days. In front the view across the street takes in the rear of a machine shop (where a trip hammer soothes the nerves of the sick and nervous) to the left, and of a garage to the right—the space being strewn with wrecked vehicles and machinery, rubbish and rags. A back alley, with all that implies, runs close on the right, piles of fence posts impinge on the road to the left and left-overs are coal steds and more rubbish; and if a bludge of grass ever grew anywhere, it has long since been buried and forgotten!

Within is absolute squalor—and that is no reflection upon the management, since no care nor labor could redeem such rooms and furnishings! There are a dozen small sleeping rooms very meagerly and poorly furnished, an alleged bath room and toilet, a hall, which appears to be the common sitting room, a dining room and kitchen. The large dining room—in fact all the other part of the house—is unplastered; and as the dining room is, and has been, without a stove, food froze on the tables during the winter. The grade of the street has been raised, leaving the lot so low that in case of rain or melting snow the cellar filled and hip boots were required to reach the coal shed. The roof leaks numerously, and every windy day scatters soot from the chimneys everywhere. The rough and uneven floors, the doorways, the rattling windows—but why multiply words? The whole thing is, unfortunately, just about as bad as it can be, and is in every way derogatory to Twin Falls County and a libel upon her citizenship!

Five old men, either crippled or feeble, were the sole occupants, and they were not "complaining"—which might give ground for the assumption that one can get accustomed to anything. The apparent spokesman, one Patterson, said he had been there two years, had been well fed and well cared for. And Mr. Patterson, by the way, offered a note of unusual human interest. Left in the snow by four men, during a winter night in the far north, eleven years ago, he has since been minus both hands to the wrists, one leg to the knee and the other foot to the instep. He walks fast and firmly upon crutches with leather pockets into which he thrusts his handless arms, feeds himself by means of composite contrivances of his own, and is hale, cheerful and measurably contented.

But this is no fit place for a civilized people to keep Mr. Patterson, or any other unfortunate (it does not seem that women are sent there at all); and we hold the prospect for better things as something that could not possibly have greater or more imminent necessity to urge its immediate achievement.

ODD FELLOWS AND REBEKAHS ASKED TO MEET AT HALL TUESDAY MORNING.

A request has been officially made for the gathering of all members in the district at the hall Tuesday morning, May 30, at 10 o'clock for preparation to participate in the Memorial Day parade for the honoring of the nation's dead and the brave deeds of the men who fought in the war.

"A natural unposed portrait of a child in one of the most charming things in the world."—From The Woman's Home Companion, April, 1916.

For a long time this has been our opinion and our ideal and we are glad to have our judgment sustained by so eminent an authority. We believe that a natural unposed portrait is most easily secured in a home-like studio. We have put money, time, thought, patience and love into the things we have arranged to please the little people who come to us to be photographed, for we want them to feel at ease and at home as the basis of the good negatives we hope to make of them.

We were repaid for all our planning the other day when a little girl went into the posing-room for the first time. She walked all about and looked at many things. Then she sat down in a little white arm-chair and very earnestly said, "Say, what makes this house so pretty?" We are grateful to the little lady for her sincere compliment.

WOOD BRIGGS, TELLS STORIES

Kentuckian Gives Entertaining Program at Chautauqua.

There has been a good deal of discussion among the Chautauqua folks as to whether Wood Briggs is an entertaining lecturer or a lecturing entertainer. And Mr. Briggs is in doubt a little about it himself.

Mr. Briggs is a Kentuckian, and he says that every Kentuckian is an orator. He tells his stories in the delightful Kentucky way. He has a thorough knowledge of his own history and of the history of his own people.

Briggs is coming to Chautauqua full of pluck and good fun to make a part of one of the biggest Chautauqua programs that have ever been brought to the west.

SYNOPSIS.CHAPTER I—Sheridan's attempt to make a business man of his son Bibbs by starting him in the machine shop ends in Bibbs going to a sanitarium, a nervous wreck.CHAPTER II—On his return Bibbs is met at the station by his sister Edith.CHAPTER III—He finds himself an inconsiderable and somewhat spread figure the "New House" of the Sheridans. He sees Mary Vertrees, looking at him from a summer house next door.CHAPTER IV—The Vertreeses, old town wealthy, and Sheridan spreads his net. Mary puts into words her bureaucratic, unbroken view that she marry one of the Sheridan boys.CHAPTER V—At the Sheridan housewarming banquet Sheridan spreads his
net. Mary frankly encourages Jim Sheridan's attention, and Bibbs feels he is to be sent back to the machine shop.CHAPTER VI—Mary tells her mother about the banquet and shows her mother by talking of Jim as a matrimonial possibility.CHAPTER VII—Jim tells Mary Bibbs is not a lunatic. "Just queer," he proposes to Mary, who half accepts him.CHAPTER VIII—Sheridan tells Bibbs he must go back to the machine shop as soon as he is strong enough, in spite of Bibbs' plea to be allowed to write.CHAPTER IX—Edith and Bibbs, Roscoe Sheridan's wife, quarrel over Bibbs' leave-taking. Mary goes to Mary for help to keep Lambert from marrying Edith, and Mary leaves her in the room alone.CHAPTER X—Bibbs has to break to his father the news of Jim's sudden death.CHAPTER XI—All the rest of the family helpless in their grief, Bibbs becomes temporary master of the house. At the funeral he meets Mary and rides home with her.CHAPTER XII—Mrs. Sheridan pleads with Bibbs to return to the machine shop for his father's sake, and he consents.CHAPTER XIII—Bibbs purposely interrupts a conversation between Edith and Lambert, and tells Edith that he overheard Lambert making love to Roscoe's wife.CHAPTER XIV—Mutual love of music arouses an intimate friendship between Bibbs and Mary.CHAPTER XV.That "mystery about platinos" which troubled Bibbs had been a mystery to Mary Vertrees, and it was being explained to him at about the time Bibbs submitted the reference to it in his notes. Mary had gone upstairs upon Bibbs' departure at ten o'clock, and Mr. and Mrs. Vertrees sat until after midnight in the library talking."She needn't to have doubt that about her platinos," ventured Mr. Vertrees. "We could have managed somehow without it.

moved—until after tomorrow, that is,
but I decided to mention it. You see, she didn't even tell me about it until this morning. She has another idea, too. I'm afraid. It's—It's—""Well," he urged, as she found it difficult to go on.
"Her other idea is—that is, it was —I think it can be avoided, of course—it was about her fur.""No," he exclaimed, quickly. "I won't have it. You must not do that.
I'd rather not talk to her about it, but you mustn't let her.""I'll try not," his wife promised.
"She seems to be troubled about the—""She Needn't to Have Done That course the platinos will take care of some things like those for a while and—""I don't like it. I gave her the platinos

"Oh, it's horrible! I can't—"

He threw himself back into his chair again, sweeping his hands across his face, then letting them fall limply at his sides.Mrs. Vertrees was tremulous. "You mustn't give way so," she said, inspired for once almost to direct discourse.
"What you might think of doing, it wouldn't be an accident, would it?""It would be on our. But if we should—should consider it, that wouldn't be on our own account. It isn't because we think of ourselves.""Oh, God, no!" he groaned. "Not for us! We can go to the poorhouse, but Mary can't be a stenographer!"Sighing, Mrs. Vertrees resumed her obligations. "Of course," she murmured, "it all seems very premature, speculating about such things, but I had a queer sort of feeling that she seemed quite interested in this—"She had almost said "in this one," but checked herself. "In this young man.
It's natural, of course; she is always so strong and well, and he is—he seems to be, that is—rather appealing to the
—the sympathies.""Yes," he agreed, bitterly. "Precisely.
The sympathies!""Perhaps," she faltered—"perhaps you might feel easier if I could have a little talk with someone?""I had thought of—not going about it too brusquely, of course, but perhaps just waiting for his name to be mentioned, if I happened to be talking with somebody that knew the family—and then I might find a chance to say that I was sorry to hear he'd been ill so much, and—Something of that kind perhaps?""You don't know anybody that knows the family?""Yes. That—well, in a way, of course, one of the family. That is, Mrs.
Roscoe Sheridan is not a—That is, she's rather a pleasant-faced little woman,
I think, and of course rather ordinary.
I think she is interested about—that is,
of course, she'd be anxious to be more intimate with Mary, naturally. She's always looking over here from her house; she was looking out of the window this afternoon when Mary went out, I noticed—though I don't think Mary saw her. I'm sure she wouldn't think it out of place to be friends about matters. She called the other day, and Mary must rather like her—she said that evening that the call had done her good. Don't you think it might be wise?""I don't know. I feel that the whole matter is impossible.""Yes, so," she returned, promptly. "It isn't really a thing we should be considering seriously, of course.
Still—"

"I should say not! But possibly—"

Thus they skirted up and down the field, but before they turned the lights out and went upstairs it was thoroughly understood between them that Mrs. Vertrees should seek the earliest opportunity to obtain definite information from Bibbs Sheridan concerning the mental and physical status of Bibbs. And if he were subject to attacks of lunacy, the unhappy pair decided to prevent the sacrifice they supposed their daughter intended to make of herself. Altogether, if there were suffering ghosts in the old house that night, eavesdropping upon the woeful comedy, they must have died anew of laughter!

have found that they had too valuable land for fruit growing. Diversified ity was at hand. As soon as the pressure became normal drilling was resumed and a few feet farther down the adequate supply for manufacturing flow was tapped. All at oncethe drillers heard a rushing, roaring noise, and a moment later the rush of gas came throwing water, sand and gravel 75 feet or more in the air. This flow was not only much larger than the previous one but the pressure was much greater, so that it has been nec-

---The Most Sensational Drama Ever Produced---

Public Forum

Kaukauna, Wis., May 9, 1916.
The Twin Falls Times,
Twin Falls, Idaho.

Gentlemen: On the editorial page of your issue of April 27th, I find an article headed, "A Crime," which I have perused with much interest, due to the fact that I own 100 acres of land in the Salmon tract and have kept more or less in touch with conditions there thru reading the Hollister Herald and later your good paper.

I feel that you deserve great praise for displaying the courage that you do and have been doing in your battle for the entrymen and for fair play, and while the opinion and views of a non-resident of your action may not have much bearing upon the situation, still, I cannot refrain from at least expressing myself and thanking you for your sincere efforts. While I have been moved to the point of writing you a letter on this subject, I am going to take the liberty of giving you an expression of my experience in connection with my Salmon tract purchase.

People from this section were attracted to the irrigated lands through great inducements and promises held out in liberally distributed literature, and many of them not understanding fully the Carey act law assumed that the Carey law was a law in which the federal and state governments safeguarded the public and saw to it that the promises made by the promoters were kept within safe bounds, and that the federal government and the state of Idaho would not palliate anything that would entice people onto the lands and then leave them there to shift for themselves and starve if the promoters saw fit to deprive them of what they contracted to deliver to them.

In July of 1911, I went to Idaho with my entire family for the purpose of proving up on my land, and lived on it during the month of August. My object in taking my family was with well-defined thought and feeling that if conditions proved satisfactory in Idaho we thought very seriously of leaving Wisconsin and locating permanently in your vicinity. We felt that this thirty-day residence on the land would afford us a splendid opportunity to determine our future course.

The next thought was, if for any reason the family did not feel favorable to locating in Idaho, after proving up on the land and getting title, we expected fully to be able to get Wisconsin settlers, of a kind that would make a success on the land, to move to Idaho and work the land, as we hoped, with success and profit. But while we were in Idaho we were made aware of the appalling conditions, due to the non-fulfillment of contracts on the part of the promoters, and we left Idaho very much discouraged as far as the irrigated land proposition in general, but with a growing impression of its delightful climate. While we were in Idaho, and in fact since returning home, I always felt extremely confident that the Idaho state authorities would realize their duty toward the entrymen and see to it that justice was done them.

After the promoters had exploited the project, as it occurred to me in 1911, in the manner that they did, I did not for a minute consider that they would ever show a disposition to give the entrymen what they were entitled to, unless forced to do so by state authorities and the courts, and when Judge Dietrich's decision was rendered I felt that this was merely one step in the battle. Later, when the good governor of your grand state, with considerable bluster took a whiff through the tract I expected that his cheering words to the entrymen and settlers were sincere and that he would exert himself to the utmost in their behalf, but subsequent events rather remind me of the great dust clouds that one sees in your country frequently during the summer, and the governor's trip seems to have done about as much good as those clouds have done to one's eyes.

I do not wish to do the governor or any public official an injustice, but when one sees so much inactivity and so much bluster and effort for political gain, as we too often see on the part of officials, one naturally looks with suspicion upon such affairs unless evidence of good faith is forthcoming.

It now looks very much to me as though the promoters are going to considerable expense in litigating matter in the hope of tying out the entrymen, whereas if they were disposed to do the fair thing and live up to the provisions of their contracts, the money they are spending for litigation they could put to valuable use in co-operating with the settlers and demonstrating to them that they were disposed to establish matters so that the tract would be reduced in acreage consistent with the water available for irrigation and in accordance with the contracts.

It seems to me that the state authorities might at least make an effort to pass some legislation that would put through which every entrymen would be compelled, and without chance to escape, to contribute funds towards fighting the opposition in the courts. Many people who do not live on their lands do not contribute towards such a fund because of the fact that others who should contribute equitably do not do so and it is unreasonable for the entrymen to expect the residents of the tract to alone carry on the legal battle.

Before closing permit me also to state experiences I had while the promoters were undertaking to sell the irrigation bonds. Shortly before my trip to Idaho in 1911, I was repeatedly urged by the bond house representative to take advantage of a free excursion to Idaho for the purpose of inspecting the irrigation properties, and the expense and extravagance in connection with the flotation of the irrigation bonds had anything that I ever saw in connection with the selling of securities. All of which made me feel that there was a waste of money, reckless extravagance and financing of a high order. And really, the settler who bought the property in the last analysis had to pay and furnish the money for all of this enormous expense.

When such matters come to the attention of the public the next question that naturally arises is, how far and to what extent did the promoters really report? I should like very much to see the state authorities make a thorough investigation of the entire transaction by undertaking to disclose where and how the proceeds for the bond sales and for the land was disposed of, and I feel that for the benefit and protection of all concerned a thorough investigation should be made on the part of somebody in authority to learn whether there had been any slush money, dole money or slush money in the transactions at the expense of the entrymen.

It is not my intention to cast any reflections, but this is a matter of great public interest and the parties concerned should not hesitate in the least about producing the necessary figures, because publicity is what the public has a right to expect, and publicity is what the public is entitled to.

Yours very truly,
FRANK F. BECKER.

CLUB WOMEN ENJOY MEETING AT POCATELLO

Eighty-seven Delegates Present, Including Six From Twin Falls—Special Program Rendered.

The sixteenth annual meeting of the first district federation of women's clubs of Idaho was held in Pocatello last week. Eighty-seven delegates were present at the convention, including six members of the Twentieth Century club of Twin Falls, namely, Meadames E. C. Barnes, M. E. Morse, M. J. Sweeley, Schrader, H. W. Clouchek and J. E. Cookeley.

The business session was well attended, many fine papers read and numerous problems of vital interest discussed. Mrs. Sweeley read an exceptionally fine paper regarding the proposed Sawtooth National Park. The Sawtooth reserve covers an area of 509 square miles and is one of the most extraordinary scenic beauty spots in the country. It is already a government reserve, but is being used chiefly for pasturing, and for this reason the proposal is being fought strongly by the sheep and cattle interests.

The following resolutions were passed: Resolved that the first district recommend to the state that the legislative committee be instructed to draft a bill to extend the time of residence in Idaho before action can be brought for divorce; that the legislative committee be instructed to ask the coming legislature for an appropriation sufficient to complete the home already partially built for the people under the state plan; that they also endorse the bill presented by the board of education for the abolishing of the state superintendent; that each club in the district devote one program the coming year to civil service study, location, membership, use, and maintenance of all penal and charitable institutions of the state; that the district urge the passage of a state wide or partial civil service bill at the coming legislative session; that the district recommend to the state that the legislative committee employ a competent club woman whose business it shall be to watch and care for the public schools; legislative meetings, both in house, senate, and committees that these women work under the guidance of the legislative committee and state president.

Other resolutions followed to the club ladies of Pocatello, who displayed no little ability as competent hostesses. During the stay of the Twin Falls women in Pocatello they were the guests at numerous dinners and luncheons given by the Pocatello women, and a most enjoyable time is reported by all. The programs which occupied almost the entire three days were both interesting and

PAPER TO GO STILL HIGHER IS BELIEF EXPRESSED BY BIG PAPER HOUSE

Powder Companies Buying Big Stock of Country at Fabulous Prices. Fibrous Textures of Fine Papers, Being Converted Into Ammunition for Bombs, Torpedoes, Howitzers and Machine Guns. Newspaper Readers in Germany Have to Give Back Old Papers.

FURTHER INCREASE in the price of paper, with no immediate possibility of an early return to normal conditions, are predicted by Partridge, a publication issued by the White Paper company of Cincinnati. Explaining the cause of the recent advances, it says:

"Cellulose is the fibrous matter that is the basis of all kinds of paper. This substance is produced commercially from cotton and linen rags and from wood pulp. Millions of tons of cellulose are required annually to supply the requirements of the paper-mills of the world.

"In normal times 60 per cent of the rags and 40 per cent of the sulphite used for the manufacture of paper in the United States is imported from foreign countries.

"But cellulose is also the basis of modern high explosives. The Dupont powder mills have installed an enormous battery of beaters having a capacity vastly greater than the capacity of any paper mill in the United States. They are paying fabulous prices for rag stock and commanding the first choice of rags from all over the country.

"What in normal times would be the fibrous texture of fine papers is now being converted into ammunition for bombs and torpedoes and howitzer and machine guns.

"Germany has confiscated the entire supply of raw materials for the manufacture of paper within the confines of her empire. Even the wood pulp of Germany is now being converted into explosives, sparing only the minimum amount of such amounts of paper as are absolutely essential for domestic requirements. The government of Germany has fixed the size limit which the publisher of a newspaper in the empire may not exceed. The German resident who would buy a daily paper can do so only on condition that he surrender the paper of the day before to be returned to the paper mill, cleaned and converted again into stock for the publication of future issues.

"England, in time of peace, exports coal to Sweden and balances the account by importing Swedish pulp. But with the outbreak of the great war the British empire needed all her fuel supply to operate her munition plants and warships.

"Sweden, in retaliation, has refused to ship pulp to Great Britain, and, owing to her shortage of coal and the dangers and difficulties of ocean traffic, she is now shipping very little pulp to the United States.

"South America, Central America, Australia, India, Africa and many of the European countries, finding their usual sources of supply closed to them, clamor to the United States for relief and find that our stock of raw material is so nearly exhausted that we can scarcely produce enough paper to meet the requirements of our own people.

"The god of war has not only appropriated the wood pulp and cotton essential to the manufacture of paper, but he has also claimed for his destructive purposes the bulk of available chemicals of scarcely less importance.

"Bleached sulphite (wood fiber) that formerly sold for $2.55 per hundred-weight, now commands as high as $5 per hundred-weight. Bleaching powders that commonly sell for little more than a cent, the paper manufacturer commonly buys for 40 cents per pound are now difficult to obtain even at $2.50 per pound.

"Every article that enters into the production of paper has advanced in price and is still bound to advance to even higher prices. Labor, now feeling the stimulus of war orders, commands more than the same grade of labor could command before the war.

"There is no immediate possibility of a speedy return to normal prices. With the curtailment of production of raw materials and the artificial demand for cellulose for the production of high explosives, paper must continue to advance in cost. Even the termination of hostilities could not restore normal conditions until after sufficient time had elapsed to permit industry to return to healthy conditions and to allow for the manufacture of enormous reserve stock.

"To the printer this all means the urgent necessity of advancing his prices in proportion to the general advances in the market. Paper already purchased and held in stock must be valued at market prices because it cannot be replaced for less."
