JACKSON LAKE DAM NEARLY COMPLETED

Will Conserve Shortage - Water For Irrigation
Fay Cox and Harvey Standlee of Murtaugh in Custody

GREATEST CAPACITY OF ANY DAM OF ITS HEIGHT.

Secretary-Taylor Says Extra Water Will Likely Not Be Needed Here This Year.

Shortly after July 1, this year, two-thirds of the maximum allotment of 6000 acre feet which is assigned to the Twin Falls South Side tract as a result of the building of the Jackson Lake storage dam, will be available, it is expected. Owing to the amount of snow in the mountains and the large run of water now coming down the river, Secretary W. O. Taylor said yesterday that it was not probable that this water would be needed this year. Next year the full amount of 95,000 acre feet will be available if required.

The following from the Mouth of the Snake of the Capital News gives a description of the dam and the total amount of storage capacity, which will be utilized to hold water for the tracts along the Snake river, in case of unusually dry years which might otherwise result in shortage.

The Jackson Lake dam, extension to enable storage of additional water for the Twin Falls north and south side projects will be completed in July of the present year. At that time the sale of water by the reclamation service from the Minidoka reservoir to the Twin Falls project will cease. The Jackson Lake reservoir is in Wyoming, about 25 miles south of the Yellowstone park boundary. The water in the lake is not available in Wyoming, but is in Idaho.

"The concrete work is finished and the earthwork will be done next month."

"The Jackson Lake reservoir will store considerable water, which will be available for use this year. Its storage capacity is 100,000 acre feet, the greatest of any dam in the world of its height, 57 feet. The main dam will be completed within the original estimate of $40,000, which is also a remarkable feature."

"It will take the water from Jackson Lake seven days to flow down the Snake river to the Miller dam, and to arrange for the passage of this storage water, a conference was held in the office of State Engineer Smith at which time representatives of all irrigation and canal companies on the Snake river above Miller were present. The meeting was held at the state engineer's office and a full understanding might be had with respect to handling of the Jackson Lake water, which will pass over the Miller dam, and canal headwaters before it reaches its point of diversion to the Twin Falls project."

CONVOCATION OF 1917 MEET AT TWIN FALLS

The dinner will begin at 5:30 and continue until 8:00 o'clock, after which the tables will be cleared and a program given, the details of which have not yet been worked out, but which promises to be something unique and worth while.

TWO ARRESTED ON STATUTORY CHARGE

Fay Cox and Harvey Standlee of Murtaugh in Custody

IMPLICATED BY STATEMENT OF GIRL TO OFFICERS.

Condition of Lawlessness Among Young Folks Said To Exist in Small Town.

Fay Cox and Harvey Standlee of Murtaugh, are under arrest, charged with a statutory offense and several young men from that town are in police custody as a result of a statement made Monday evening to the officers by Elsie Williams, who gives her age as 16 years.

Speaking of the matter yesterday Mr. Ormsby said: "For the past six months I have been hearing rumors of an alleged lawless condition said to prevail at Murtaugh, but definite information was lacking. Monday I was asked to go to that town and investigate as a result of recent developments there. I went, accompanied by Sheriff Kendall, and the investigation convinced me that a bad state of lawlessness among young people existed in that community and that certain young men there were in the habit of making young girls drunk for immoral purposes. We brought Elsie Williams in and she made a statement implicating the young men now under arrest and others. We arrested these men and Tuesday returned to Murtaugh but found that several other young men had disappeared. I believe that Saturday night dances had had much to do with the bad conditions existing among the young people there. I intend to see that all the young men of the town are punished to the full extent of the law, both in Murtaugh and elsewhere in the county."

Attorney C. M. Booth, has been retained to defend the young men, whose arraignment will be held at such time as he and County Attorney David may be able to arrange during the term of the district court, now in session, and before which they both have a number of cases.

LARGER POSTAL DEPOSITS TO BE ACCEPTED

Changes in Postal Savings Bank Regulations Made Possible by Law Just Passed.

Larger postal savings deposits will now be accepted at the Post Office. This is made possible by an important amendment to the Post Savings Act just approved by President Wilson. A postal savings depositor may now have an account amounting to $1000 upon which interest will be paid. Formerly $500 was the maximum amount he could have in his account. This increase of postal savings facilities will be very gratifying to thousands of depositors who have already made use of the plan. They are anxious to entrust more of their savings to Uncle Sam. Another feature of the amendment that will avoid further embarrassment to the public and to postal officials is the going away with the limit on the amount that could be accepted from a depositor monthly. Under the old law $100 could be deposited in a calendar month. The amendment abolishes this restriction. While the Postal Savings System has already proved a signal success as is shown by the fact that more than a half a million deposits have been made, the public has fallen short of meeting the full demands of the public because of the restriction which have now been eliminated. Postmaster General Burleson and Third Assistant Postmaster General Dockery were unhesitant in their efforts to secure a modification of the limitations and the new liberalizing legislation is particularly gratifying to them.

AYNT OF J. A. WATERS PASSES AWAY

Mrs. M. M. Clarke, died at the home of her son, William Clarke, near this city, Monday afternoon, at the age of 74 years. The funeral was held from the Grossman chapel Tuesday, and was conducted by the Christian Science church of this city. Interment in the Twin Falls cemetery. Mrs. Clarke came here from Napa, Colorado, three years ago. She leaves a son, Frank, in Napa, and a daughter, William, in this county. She was a widow for 48 years. She was an aunt of J. A. Waters.

CONTRACT FOR SCHOOL IS AWARDED

Northern Pacific Construction Company to Do Work

CONTRACT FOR PLUMBING IS AWARDED TO FRANK HEALY.

Matters of Installing Heating Was Deferred Until Friday Night For Final Action.

The contract for the construction of the new grade school was let Monday night to the Northern Pacific Construction company of Portland, which erected the last wings built on the high school building, for the sum of $23,330, this company being the lowest bidder. Other bidders were E. White, $24,612; Bobler & Felt, $26,217; W. G. Reed, $26,950, and Fraiser, Dodd and Taylor, $26,972.

The contract for the plumbing was let to Frank Healy for $2,112; other bidders being L. J. White, $2,107; W. G. Reed, $2,421; J. F. Conroy, $2,900; Ham & Hamer, $2,156; Home Plumbing & Heating company, $2,435; Halbyntine, $2,384.

The heating contract was not let, the matter being referred to a meeting tomorrow night. Bids for the contract were: W. G. McPherson, $5,934; Boyer, $3,800 for furnace or $6,875 for steam; L. E. White, $5,880; Frank Healy, $6,682; W. G. Reed, $6,600; J. P. Conroy, $6,848.

Relative to the plumbing contract the board took the position that it was better to let the contract to a man than at a slightly increased figure, so they rejected the bid of J. P. Conroy on this ground. The difference between White and Healy was held so small as to be virtually immaterial, so the board held the bid to be practically equal. On Monday night the board awarded the contract to Healy.

BURLEY EXCURSION IS BEING PLANNED

Will Run Excursion to Ball Game If Arrangements Can Be Made - Kimberly Reiter.

An excursion is talked of to the baseball game in Burley Sunday between the team of this city and the Burley batters. It is not definitely decided whether it can be arranged for. The game promises to be a warm one.

Twin Falls beat Kimberly in a good game on Decoration day by a score of eight to two. Features were the hitting of Thompson of Kimberly, who made a home run and a single; the pitching of Chrisman of the batters by the Twin Falls team. Kimberly got nothing after the first innings, while the home team got two in the first, repeated in the second, added three in the fourth and one in the fifth. Walters of this city, made a two bagger. Lemp and Thompson, who pitched for Kimberly, struck out four each, while Chrisman, twirling for this city, struck out eight.

Batteries were: Lemp, Thompson and Eubanks for Kimberly, and Chrisman and McCormick for Twin Falls. Barker umpired the game.

ELKS PROGRAM NOT COMPLETE.

The Elks' program for flag day is being amended and will be finally made up tonight so that its publication this week is impossible.

ROCK CREEK HAS FINE FRUIT CROP

John F. Hansen Says Orchards Will Yield Well

APPLES, PEACHES, PEAR AND SOUR CHERRIES ABUNDANT.

Crockett Funeral Large - Walton Referred - Wooden Shoe Cowboys Get Initiated.

"They said that the fruit was all killed down here and they also said that it was all dead at Rock Creek, but it isn't," said John F. Hansen, of that town yesterday. "I suppose that you had better not publish that without investigation as folks might doubt it," laughed Mr. Hansen. "But we have got a good crop of fruit. Apples, early peaches, pears and sour cherries are in fine condition. Early cherries, but our fruit crop is good taken altogether. You ought to come out and see for yourself."

"I saw something at the Wooden Shoe headquarters today that always amuses me when I see it. It was the breaking in of new cowboys. One young fellow in particular got an awful fright. The old cowboys led out a horse which they told him was the trained nurse go today and that he killed the same old horse myself 19 years ago and he was a quiet animal then."

"The funeral of Mel Crockett yesterday was one of the largest ever seen in that part of the country; there were 41 autos in the procession. Mel was born on Rock Creek and everybody knew him and regretted his death. His funeral closed two years ago and his mother passed away before. He left one brother, George Crockett, and a sister, Mrs. Pearl Dunke."

"I learned this morning as I came in that John Walton who was hurt in the accident in which Crockett was killed, is so much better that he left the hospital here today and that he is considered out of danger at last and is improving very rapidly."

TILLERY PROVES LIVE CORPSE FOR MOURNERS

Buhl Merchant and Family Felt to Verify Story of Wholesale Accident Death.

That Ben R. Tillery and his whole family who were reported annihilated in an auto accident at either the Magic dam or the Salmon dam on Memorial day are still alive and able to take three square meals a day is the information brought from Buhl this morning by E. Marguarden, who says that the proprietor of the Golden Rule store in the west end city is not only well, but is unable to account for the starting of the gruesome tale of the rumor. The report was that Mr. Tillery had run his machine over a bank into the water and that all were killed.

CASE AGAINST W. C. WALTERS DISMISSED BY THE STATE

The case of the State of Idaho against W. C. Walters was dismissed by the court on a certain day in the opening of court yesterday morning. Walters was charged with embezzlement of a calf.

GREAT SEEDHOUSE IS BEING ERRECTED

Courteen Seed Company of Milwaukee Begins Building

NEW STRUCTURE WILL COST APPROXIMATELY $25,000.

Building Will Be of Brick and Cement and Will Be Modern in Every Way.

Excavation work began yesterday on the basement of the new, modern brick seed house of the Courteen Seed company of Milwaukee, which when completed will be one of the finest structures of its kind on the tract, and with machinery will cost in the neighborhood of $25,000. The walls will be of brick; the basement cemented and the roof will be of tar and gravel.

The main structure will be two-story and a basement, 65 by 100 feet in size. There will be a tower 60 feet in height and other late appliances. The Courteen Seed company, which is a pioneer institution of the northwest, and one of the largest seed companies in the country, has heretofore bought Twin Falls tract products through local agents, but realizing the possibilities and actualities of this country has decided to locate a large seed house here permanently. The basement will contain large storage rooms in which farmers may store their grain.

A contract has been let of W. G. Reed & company of this city. The excavating is being done by the Crozier Transfer company.

The new building will be erected on Shoshone street south, along side the end of the switch extending between Fourth and Fifth avenue south.

BAPTIST PEOPLE ENDORSE PASTOR

Congregation Recommends Rev. B. C. Miller, Who Resigns For His Health.

Rev. B. C. Miller, who resigned the pastorate of the Baptist church in this city recently, on account of ill health, and who will leave Monday for Portland, Ore., for recuperation, received a strong and unanimous recommendation from his congregation Sunday when he held the closing service here. The pulpit will be filled by ministers supplied by the state board until a pastor is selected.

CAUGHT TOO MANY.

Assistant State Game Warden Joe Hilsommon returned yesterday from Halley where he took in Harry Munger of Filer for catching more than the required number of fish. He cited him $15. Other offenders were said to have been on the ground, but had been driven out by the cold weather. This recalls the fish that was given Bob See of Buhl, who it is said, went out last week to fish and had not been on the ground five minutes when he landed a fish that just reached the total limit allowed. Bob was about to throw the fish back and resume operations but remembering that the law was against catching more than a certain weight, regardless of the disposition of them when caught, he returned sorrowing with the catch to Behl.

MAD HOUND DRIVES FAMILY TO HOUSE

Mrs. Barnhouse and Children Have Thrilling Experience

FROTH FALLING FROM OPEN MOUTH OF ANIMAL.

Animal Bites Fearfully at Fence Until Killed by a Young Boy.

Driven into their home by a mad hound with foaming mouth and black tongue which he furiously attacked the fence, the wife and children of Marshall Barnhouse, who live near Hollister, remained in a state of siege Monday morning until the rabid animal was dispatched by a 22-calibre rifle in the hands of the 11-year-old son. The thrilling story of the adventure is told in the following letter to THE TIMES by Mrs. Barnhouse:

"This morning about 11 o'clock my four little ones and myself were at the back of the garden. 10 or 12 rods from the house, when there came a number of hounds, when we looked up and to our horror saw a hound with black, hanging tongue and foaming jaws at the cow collar and I the 22-months old baby under my arm, and we ran for the house, the hound (one belonging to the Deep Creek Orchard Co., of which I understand it was a number) followed us, all without muzzles, running loose following around the fence. When we escaped inside the house it was the fence, my 11-year-old boy got the 22 rifle and shot it from the porch, hitting it in the hind parts and it raised its head but did not utter a sound. He shot it and it was from some. Mr. Barnhouse being road commissioner, is obliged to be from home most of the time, leaving us all alone. I had it been for the fence we would have been bitten beyond doubt. Still there is no protection for us by law I understand. I have been told yesterday with County Clerk E. Deep Creek Orchard company, which is said to have several more, all without muzzles. This is simply facts, and it left me with my nerves entirely shaken."

It is reported that a mad dog was shot yesterday by a farmer living near the high line canal.

DEAD ANIMALS ARE LEFT IN THE FIELDS

Deputies Find Many Carcasses Which They Are Burying to Prevent Spread of Disease.

Deputies H. G. Jackson and J. H. Eric are having their own time burying the dead animals left by owners in pastures and vacant lots throughout the county, as evident from a report filed yesterday with County Clerk J. Finch, by the first named deputy. As the names of all the persons owning the dead animals have not yet been secured, the publication of the list of owners has been deferred, but such items as this following occur frequently in the report: "One dead sheep, one dead cow, two dead sheep, one dead horse," "21 head dead sheep," "Four dead horses," "one dead dog," "one sheep and one cow." The cause of death in most instances seems to be unknown. The deputies say that some of these animals are so located that pollution of streams from their carcasses is possible. Whether steps will be taken to prosecute anyone or whether the neglect in the cases were due to the present laws, has not been ascertained.

JACK DAVIS FREED ON FELONY CHARGE

Claimed He Used Only Necessary Force in Killing Nelson Case Dismissed Today.

The case of the state of Idaho against Stephen Nelson for an alleged assault on the person of Marcell Wixom at the county hospital some time ago, was dismissed today. Jack Davis, who was arrested some time ago on the charge of committing a felonious assault with a deadly weapon on the person of A. W. Sprague, was acquitted by the jury last night. Davis produced evidence to show that he had been left in charge of the ranch on which the trouble took place, with instructions from the owner to eject trespassers. He claimed that he ordered Sprague off the premises and that on the refusal of the latter to go he ejected him. His defense was that he had not used unnecessary force in ejecting him.

PRESIDENT ENDORSES PEACE LEAGUE PLAN

Siles Audience to Enthusiasm—Declares in Favor of Freedom Of Seas.

WASHINGTON—President Wilson unhesitatingly endorsed the formation of a league of nations having for its purpose the enforcement of peace.

The endorsement was given in his long expected address at the banquet of the League to Enforce Peace, which followed William Howard Taft. It came as a climax to a two-day session which this afternoon heard Theodore Roosevelt, ex-minister of Belgium, urge congress to adopt a resolution favoring sending Taft abroad after the war to sound out the allies on the question of a league of nations.

The president made it plain, said an organization would follow out the fundamental belief that every people has a right to choose the sovereignty under which they shall live; and, too, he said, the aged methods of secret diplomacy which he held responsible for the present war could not exist under such a league.

The president's brief speech was frequently interrupted by prolonged applause. It contained an outline of the president's position as to the possibilities of mediation.

"The eyes of the world," he said, "are turned eagerly, more and more eagerly toward the hope of peace. The longer the war lasts, the more deeply do we become convinced that it should be brought to an end and the world be permitted to resume its normal life and course again."

Without making a specific move toward peace, the president's speech plainly served to show America is willing and ready to assume the task of peace-making should opportunity offer. Should the opportunity of initiating peace come to him, the president said he would move on these lines.

First, such a settlement with regard to their own immediate interests as the belligerents may agree upon. Our interests lie only in peace and its future guarantee.

Second, a universal association of the nations to maintain the free-lane security of the highways of the seas and to prevent any war begun either contrary to treaty covenants or without warning and full submission of the causes to the world, a universal guarantee of territorial integrity and political independence.

The president said one of the great lessons the war has taught is that the peace of the world must henceforth depend upon a new and more wholesome diplomacy, "which would prevent a war springing suddenly out of a secret council," without warning to the world, without discussion and without any of the deliberate movements of counsel with which it would seem natural to approach such a stupendous crisis.

COTTON ACREAGE LARGELY INCREASED

Belief That Demand Will Increase
When Peace Comes—Industry Diversified.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The outlook for a cotton acreage between 15 and 20 per cent larger than last year, probably nearer the former figure than the latter, according to a special committee of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, of which A. W. Douglas, of St. Louis, is chairman. Despite the great increase in acreage this year, the committee declares there cannot be expected an equal increase in the total production. It contends that large yields of all agricultural staples depend more upon the production per acre than upon the total acreage. Reports throughout the cotton belt indicate conditions diametrically opposite to those of a year ago. The high price of cotton prevailing for some months past stimulated planting this spring.

The general feeling among the cotton planters and farmers seems to be, according to what the National Chamber committee says, that since the cotton industry lived through a valedictory sack as the European war it can stand any turn of fortune. Furthermore, it is pointed out that with the coming of peace, there must be renewed demand for cotton products. Hence, the planters figured it was safe and wise once more to put in a larger acreage.

The planting of other products—grains and forage—has taken new directions in portions of Oklahoma and particularly in northern Texas, where the peanut industry has become of great local moment, according to the committee. Not only is there a demand for the oil for fuel and purposes, but the cake is used for food for livestock and the plant itself for fodder. There is also the consequent enrichment of the soil by inoculation with nitrogen from the air. Sudan grass, a sure forage crop under most trying conditions of heat and drought, finds increasing favor in the eyes of the Oklahoma farmers, with consequent increase of acreage. In eastern Arkansas alfalfa is a familiar sight, where twenty years ago it was almost unknown. This is true in large measure of many sections of Mississippi.

There is more livestock today—cattle and hogs—in the south, more poultry of all kinds, more dairy cows, than for a great many years, the committee says. Finally, the desperate and forbidding situation which prevailed in 1915 has been completely transformed by the common sense and intelligence displayed, the self-denial, persistence, and the fertility shown by the southern people. Agricultural, and consequently all industrial and commercial interests throughout the southern states, are upon a surer and more solid foundation than ever before in the history of the country.

MINNESOTA HOST LAUGHED AT LIGHTNING

Hotel Struck Hotel But Failed to Knock It Out—Proprietor Only Grimaced.

MORRIS, Minn.—During the progress of a thunder storm which burst over the city late Monday afternoon a bolt of lightning struck the Morris hotel and ripped off a corner, destroyed some of the roof ornaments and sped to ash barrels below, says the Tribune. The guests had just finished supper and were listening to jokes by Landford Grosz when the bolt came and put a stop to the levity. Some of the guests who had just explained they were living thermometers when it came to recording sudden changes in the weather, received electrical shocks, but through it all Landford Grosz only smiled. The damage to the building is slight.

CLOVER SEED GROWERS PROFIT BY RECENT RAINS

Greatly Increased Acreage Has Been Planted to That Crop This Year.

The marked success attained in the year 1915 in growing clover seed in southern Idaho has resulted in a very large increase in the seedling of lands to clover. The orchardist seeds to clover with the two-fold purpose of supplying humus and nitrogen to the soil supporting the orchard in the production of fruit and also securing a possible seed crop that shall help to cover the expense of caring for the orchard. The recent rains have been very helpful in securing a stand of clover from this spring's seedling.

Under our conditions the alfalfa clover is regarded as the most certain to produce a seed crop. In growing an alfalfa seed crop the first crop growth is allowed to grow through to produce seed. The seed crop will probably be ready in late July. On the other hand red clover is believed to produce the largest seed crop from the second cutting instead of the first. The first crop of red clover, according to Prof. Center of the state university department of extension work, should be cut when many heads are formed but comparatively few are yet in bloom. This leaves the red clover plant in the best condition to produce many seed stalks for the succeeding seed crop. The red clover seed should mature under out conditions late in August or early September.

Richard Brothers of Upper Deer Flat, near Nampa, from red clover in their orchard last year, sold $40 worth of seed per acre, a material help in supporting orchard expenses.—Nampa Leader-Herald.

SEED POTATOES TO BE PRODUCED SCIENTIFICALLY

Potato Disease Must Be Eliminated
In Order To Maintain Even Reputation.

Professor E. P. Taylor of the University of Idaho, says that Idaho seeks to have the finest grade potatoes in the world within five years. A plan of intensive farming, wherein the seed and farming land is to be improved, was put into effect this planting season, ninety plots of richest Idaho land being put under cultivation.

The extension department of the agricultural division of the state university is back of the movement. Professor Taylor and Professor O. D. Center directing the work. In their plans thorough extermination of unfit potatoes, which may be diseased in even the slightest respect, and the cultivation of the world's best seed are included.

Speaking of the movement, which he said is the first in the west, Mr. Taylor said:

"Idaho now ships 10,000 carloads yearly. This brings in $3,000,000 annually. Our potatoes are ranked among the best, but it is the desire of the state to make them the very best. Consequently the movement which was started this spring."

"Under the direction of university officials, the finest seed in the state was produced for planting, and we selected ninety acres of the best land for cultivation, the plants varying from one to three acres. None of the acres contained diseased potatoes, and in most instances we saw to it that alfalfa and clover lands were used."

"As a public demonstration, seed potatoes were planted, the directors cutting each potato and examining it carefully to see if any part might be diseased. If not, the seed was washed in a chemical solution, after which it was planted."

"Expert farmers were then procured to care for them, and another inspection is to be made at blooming time, when the weak sprouts will be culled out 'rogued' out, as Idaho farmers say. The term 'rogued out' meaning that the rogue potatoes which had persisted enough to creep in with the good ones shall be killed. They will be moved bodily from the land, so that there will be no chance of parts of them being left for seed when the crops are gathered and again distributed.

"As a further encouragement to the farmers, the university department will place certified tags on the good seed, and they will in turn be sold to other farmers, the highest of prices being paid for them."

This movement, according to Mr. Taylor, was first tried in Wisconsin, and within two years a noticeable improvement was produced. The improvement, he expects, will be rapid in Idaho, as the farmers there are quick to grasp the idea.

CONFERENCE PENDING

Dr. W. A. Sullivan goes to Boise to confer with State Sanitary Board this week.

Dr. W. A. Sullivan, of the United States bureau of animal industry, goes to Boise Saturday for the purpose of conferring with the state livestock sanitary board with a view of preparing plans for the coming year for the work on the Twin Falls and other tracts in this part of the state during the coming fiscal year. The plans, after arrangement with the board, will be submitted to the state university for approval.

Dr. L. C. Henderson, of the bureau, has been assigned by Dr. Sullivan to attend the meeting of the Anti-Hog Cholera association of Richfield Friday and Saturday of this week for the purpose of giving four demonstrations in the treatment of the disease in the presence of members of the association. This organization was formed last February with the co-operation of Dr. Sullivan, who, although it lies outside his territory, felt that it was along the line of his work and would prove, as it did prove, a great benefit to the farmers of that community, who had previously lost heavily from hog cholera.

H. W. Hochbaum, state agricultural leader, and Professor E. J. Priestel, of the university extension department, will accompany Dr. Henderson. Professor Priestel, who recently suffered a broken arm in an auto accident, is around again, though he still keeps his injured arm in a sling.

THE SALMON TRACT AGAIN.

Some years ago I wrote an article that was printed in the papers, pointing out the water supply, based on information state officials had given me. I had confidence in the integrity of those officials for they said that when there was water for not only 500,000 acres, but 120,000, still they thought it advisable to cut the segregation to 80,000, selling that acreage first and adding to it later. Now this was a point that was very much misleading. Not only to me but many others. I have been criticised and censured ever since for what I did, but I believed the state knew what it was doing and made my statements in good faith.

But what do we find the state of conditions on the project to be at the present time? Now I am going to be fair in what I write and will allow any one to answer this, or criticize as much as they please or want. I am going to put the facts as they are, and I care not whom it may hurt, for the time has come on this project when there is not only people in poor circumstances, but there will be crime committed if some relief is not given from some source, either the state or the courts must do something to relieve the situation.

Many people have come here and spent all their means, many as much as several thousands of dollars, have also spent five years of watchful waiting and almost broken down their health with hard work. There is just as in this place a class of people on this project as you can find any place in Idaho. Now there is a breaking point, and it will come, if something is not done before long. You may ask why is it going to come? First—The people here have been waiting with all the patience that any one can have. Under Governor Little's administration they tried to get something done, and no relief came. Second—They have appealed to the government, and no relief came. The government explaining that it was a Carey act project, and the state's duty. Third—They then appealed to the courts and did get some consolation from Judge Frank Dietrich—thanks to one man whose heart is with the people who are trying to build up an empire. Fourth—The present state executive, Moses Alexander, pushes from Idaho's bull rushes and promises to give us some help, in fact to get us out of our troubles. Who do we find? The last legislature passed a resolution creating an irrigation commission to investigate the different Carey act projects in the state in order to report to the state land board. One would naturally think that the land board would act according to that report, or why was the report not made? Why did not the board act? Because it did not suit the companies that started these projects. It looks that way to the settlers.

The people of Idaho, or the taxpayers, stand the expense of that commission and they went into details that none of the state land boards has come. Their report stated that there was water for only 25,000 acres. I seem to ignore the commission's report. Why did they send the state engineer down here? He reports that there is water for 40,000 acres. The land board says this is what you must take and they map out what must be cut out, and then tell us that we must take this proposition or fight it out with the company in court.

The settler is so poor he has no money to fight with, the state is to blame for the trouble in the first place. The settler cannot rely on the state engineer's report for the reason that state engineers' reports will not hold water.

The past has proven beyond a doubt that they have misrepresented the amount of water available just to get fat jobs. Can you blame the people down here? I say no. I want to say that such men as James A. Waters, our last state representative from Twin Falls county, knows more about irrigation than all the state engineers combined that have been in office in the past few years.

If we had men like him for state officers the defunct projects of this state would not be as they are today. Mr. Waters was a member of the irrigation commission and thanks to him and the rest of that commission, they are the kind of men we should have for our land board. Then we would have a clean, decent state to live in.

No one can estimate what these defunct projects have done in retarding the growth of the state unless you come down and pioneer among us. I certainly hope that the people throughout the state will see to it at the next election that men are put in office that will work to get these projects straightened out, and that the more prosperous farmers will not forget their unfortunate brothers, and be too busy when the time comes to help elect men that will try to build up Idaho instead of tearing it down and driving people away as is being done at the present time.

Don H. Bark, the U. S. government expert on the duty of water in his investigation of the Salmon tract told me that we should have two acres set where half of our land was in grass and the other half in grain crops, that amount to be retained on the land and that we would have from 25 to 30 per cent waste, which would be equivalent to 2 1/2 to 3 1/2 acre feet delivered over our walls.

Now I have been investigating at different times on other projects for twenty-five years. I find in my study of the soil and its requirements that Mr. Bark is nearer right than any one that has given this project careful study. It is useless for us to get along with any less. Now if we don't get that amount we will make a failure farming in the future as we have in the past.

We have a school district here at Hollister that covers over six square miles, or 36 sections of land. We bonded the district for $30,000, built a fine school building. At this time it would not be too large enough had the country gone ahead as the Twin Falls tract has done.

As it is we cannot meet the obligations

Cottolene

"The Natural Shortening"

Foods cooked with Cottolene come to the table with their natural goodness improved with a better flavor.

Biscuits shortened with it delight by their taste, their lightness, their whiteness and their wholesomeness.

Pie crust shortened with Cottolene has that flaky goodness which perfects the whole pie.

All foods fried in it are better-tasting and digestible because Cottolene does not soak into them.

There is no substitute for Cottolene—nothing "just as good."

Try Cottolene—try it in your biscuits, for example, then in your other cooking. Arrange with your grocer for a regular supply. It is packed in pails of various sizes.

Write our General Offices, Chicago, for a free copy of our real cook book, "HOME HELPS."

tions in paying for the building and have our schools kept up to the standard of other schools. We have to hire cheap help, and then don't know how we are going to come out as people are too poor to pay their taxes. Now this is a shame for Idaho, but it is true.

You may say that we are going to do about it? We can do nothing but leave the state as many others have done, unless the state and its people will help us.

There are many settlers who will seek revenge in some way for they are getting desperate and you people of Idaho must help to prevent any greater trouble and reinstate Idaho's good name as God gave it to us.

A Salmon truck farmer, and Idaho booster.

Yours truly,
A. E. LARSEN.

Fine coffee such as Schilling's Best needs only one favor: please make it right.

The result is worth while—and economical. Not that the price by the pound is low, but a pound of Schilling's Best makes more cups of smooth, rich coffee.

You can easily prove this.

A great part of this economy is due to even grinding and immediate packing in vacuum-sealed tins.

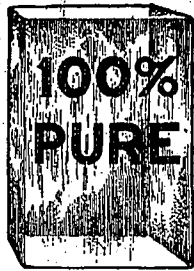

Schilling's Best is sold through grocers only.

Slump in Hogs and Slowness in Sheep—Cattle Are Still Very Steady.

Cattle during the past week were characterized chiefly by the California run. Comparing the run of natives from that section this year and last year the present receipts show very good quality and considering that they were grass stuff prices realized were prices good. All during the week the prices were steady with an outlook for lower prices if the receipts continued heavy. Today's receipts, however, do not bear out the idea of heavy receipts for this week. Less than 500 head were in the pens for the day's trading.

The first shipment of Mexicans arrived today from California. These cattle were from the famous Hearst Estate. Other shipments from California today were native steers, mainly of the receipts were local, Oregon and Washington offerings.

Steer trade started out rather early today and native Californians went at the usual price they had been bringing for the past week or two. Handy weights from $8.50 to $9.50. The Mexicans were considered to be of extra quality and brought exceptionally good prices for their class $8.00 was realized for the bulk. Other steers sold at steady. Offerings were sharply curtailed.

Cows and heifers were in short supply, being mostly cutouts from other shipments and drive-ins. Prices were steady on the usual quality of dairy type offerings.

Veal calves have been holding steady right along with a rather strong tendency. The 5c per lb. has been reached several times, often enough to reflect the trend of the trade. Offerings below top have fared comparatively as well as the best grades in most cases.

The morning count in the sheep house was very satisfactory, about 1300 being offered. Quotations were ordinary, except on a fair bunch of wethers that got a raise out of the market. Eighty-five was the rate on this shipment.

Hog receipts took a sudden jump today with nearly 5,000 head ready for the buyers. This is the largest Monday receipts for some weeks, being almost as large as all of last week's offerings on this market.

Early reports indicate a lower market in the Eastern hog circles. Dealers were not inclined on account of the rather large supply to open the deal this morning in an active way. Market did not get under swing until late.

After the buyers and sellers got together which lowered the bidding but was established. Up to noon $8.25 was the top, with bulk around a dime under last week's close.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—Sheridan's attempt to make a business man of his son Bibb starting him in the machine shop ends in Bibb going to a sanitarium, a nervous break.

CHAPTER II.—On his return Bibb is met at the station by his sister Edith.
CHAPTER III.—He finds himself an inconsiderable and unappreciated figure in the "New Home" of the Sheridans. He sees Mary Vertrees looking at him from among the crowd.

CHAPTER IV.—The Vertreeses, old town family and unimpaired, call on the Sheridans and afterward discuss them.
Mary puts into words her parents' unspoken wish that she marry
one of the Sheridans.

CHAPTER V.—At the Sheridan home,
warning banquet Sheridan greets him.
Mary frankly encourages him. Sheridan's attention, and Bibb leaves him to be sent back to the machine shop.

CHAPTER VI.—Mary tells her mother
about the banquet and shakes her mother by talking of Jim as a matrimonial possibility.

CHAPTER VII.—Jim tells Mary Bibb is not a lunatic. He asks her to go with him to Mary, who half accepts him.

CHAPTER VIII.—Sheridan tells Bibb
he must go back to the machine shop as soon as he is strong enough, in spite of Bibb's plea to be allowed to write.

CHAPTER IX.—Edith and Mary, Bessie Sheridan's wife, quarrel over Bibb's return. Edith goes to Mary for help to keep Bibb from making Edith and Mary leave her in the room alone.

CHAPTER X.—Bibb has to break to his father the news of Jim's sudden death.

CHAPTER XI.—All the rest of the family helpless in their grief, Bibb becomes suspicious of the business. At last he meets Mary and rides home alone.

CHAPTER XII.—Mrs. Sheridan pleads
with Bibb to return to the machine shop
for his father's sake, and he consents.

CHAPTER XIII.—Bibb purposely interrupts a letter-writing session of Edith and Lavinia. He tells Edith that he overheard Lavinia talking about his mother's wife.

CHAPTER XIV.—Mutual love of music brings an intimate friendship between Bibb and Mary.

CHAPTER XV.—Mary tells her plans to help out the finances of the Vertrees family.

CHAPTER XVI.—Roscoe and his wife quarrel over Lavinia.

CHAPTER XVII.

At seven o'clock on the last morning of that month, Sheridan, passing through the upper hall, found a couple of scribbled sheets of note paper lying on the floor. He recognized the handwriting and put the sheets in his coat pocket, intending to give them to George of Jackson for return to the owner, but he forgot and carried them downtown with him. At noon he found himself alone in his office, and having a little leisure, remembered the papers he had picked up, took them out, and glanced at them. Having satisfied himself that Bibb's scribbles were only a sample of the kind of writing
his son preferred to the machine shop,
he decided, innocently enough, that he would be justified in reading them.

It appears that a lady will not plau-sibly upon some windy generalization
a conclusion, and will wear the most accessible expression of accepting it the law, and then—days afterward, when the time is a moment to be promulgated
—she will inquire out of a clear sky:
"Why did you say that the people downtown have nothing in life that a chicken hasn't? What did you mean?" And she may say it in a manner that makes a sensible reply very difficult—you will be so full of wonder that she remembered
so accurately.

Yet, what does the rooster lack? He has food and shelter; he is warm in winter, his wives call out on fine family for him, but does. He has a clear eye
over him; he breathes sweet air; he walks
in and out under a roof of flowers.
He must die, violently perhaps, but quickly. In Bibb's case a better way?
The rooster's eyes and children must die.
Are those of Bibb's immortal? His life is shorter than that of Bibb, but Bibb's life is a sixth as long as that of the Gibson's tortoise.

The rooster is a dependent; he depends upon the farmer and the weather. Bibb is a dependent; he depends upon the farmer and the weather. The rooster thinks only of the moment; Bibb provides for tomorrow. What does he provide for tomorrow? Nothing that the rooster will not have without providing.
The rooster and the prosperous worker;
they are born, they grub, they love; they grub and love grubbing; they grub and they die. Neither knows beauty; neither knows knowledge. And after all, when Midas and the rooster die, there is one thing Bibb has had and rooster has not.
Midas was a man; he was a man, and that has been his life and his love and his god. He cannot take that god with him when he also. "I wonder if the worthy gods are those we can take with us."

Midas must teach all to be as Bibb;
the young must be raised in his religion.
The manuscript coded there, and Sheridan was not anxious for more. He crumpled the sheets into a ball, deposit-ing it (with vigor) in a wastebasket
beside him; then, rising, he consulted a Cyclopedia, and a letter, and a book agent had somehow sold to him years
before; a volume now first put to use for the location of "Midas." Having read the legend, Sheridan walked up and down the spacious office, exhaling the breath of contempt. "That fool!"
he mumbled.

He felt very lonely, and this was, dully, his hardest hour. For a long time he and Jim had lunched together habitually at a restaurant near the Sheridan building, where they spent twenty minutes in the consumption of food, and twenty in talk, with clears. Now Sheridan remained alone in his office, he had not gone out to lunch since Jim's death, nor did he have anything said to him—he fasted
until evening.

It was the time he missed Jim personally the most—the voice and eyes and lambslike, all brisk and alert, all hospitable. But Sheridan's sense of loss went far deeper. Jim was the one who would have been sure to keep the great property growing creature, year by year. Sheridan had fallen asleep, night after night, picturing
what the growth would be under Jim.
He had believed that Jim was absolutely certain to be one of the biggest men in the country. Well, it was all up to Roscoe now!

That reminded him of a question he had in mind to ask Roscoe. It was a question Sheridan considered of importance, but his wife had suggested it—though vaguely—and he had meant to speak to Roscoe about it.
However, Roscoe had not come into his father's office for several days, and when Sheridan had seen his son at home, he had been no opportunity.

He waited until the greater part of his day's work was over, toward four o'clock, and then went down to Roscoe's office, which was on a lower floor.
He found several men waiting for business interviews in an outer room of the series Roscoe occupied; and he supposed that he would find his son busy with others, and that his question would have to be postponed, but when

"My Name," said Roscoe, "Can Help
That?"

he entered the door marked "R. C.
Sheridan, Private," Roscoe was there
alone.

He was sitting with his back to the door, his feet on a window-sill, and he did not turn as his father opened the door.

"Some pretty good men out there waiting to see you, my boy," said Sheridan. "What's the matter?"

"Nothing," Roscoe answered indif-ferently, not moving.

"Well, I guess that's all right, too.
I let 'em wait sometimes myself; I just want to ask you a question, but I expect I'll keep it for you're working something out in your mind."

Roscoe made no reply; and his father, who had turned to the door,
paused with his hand on the knob,
staring, curiously, at the motionless
figure in the chair. Usually the son seemed pleased and eager when he came to the office. "You're all right,
ain't you?" said Sheridan. "Not sick,
are you?"

"No."
Sheridan was puzzled; then, abruptly, he decided to ask his question. "I wanted to talk to you about that young Lamborn," he said. "I guess your mother thinks he's coming to see Edith pretty often, and you know him longer than any of us, so—"

"I won't," said Roscoe, thickly. "I won't say a dam' thing about him!"

Sheridan uttered an exclamation and walked quickly to a position near the window where he could see his son's face. Roscoe's eyes were bloodshot and vacant; his hair was disordered, his mouth was distorted, and he was deadly pale. The father stood against "George" he muttered. "Roscoe!"

"My name," said Roscoe. "Can't help
that!"

"Roscoe!" Blank astonishment was Sheridan's first sensation. Probably nothing in the world could have more amazed him than to find Roscoe—the steady old wheel-horse—in this condition. "How'd you get this way?" he demanded. "You caught cold and took —much for it?"

For reply Roscoe laughed hoarsely.
"You! Could I be taken all time, lately. First you notice it?"

"By George!" cried Sheridan. "I thought I'd smell it on you a good deal lately, but I wouldn't 'a' believed you'd take more was good for you.
Ho! To see you like a common hog!"

Roscoe chuckled and threw out his right arm in a meaningless gesture.
"Ho!" he repeated, chuckling.

"Yes, a hog!" said Sheridan, angrily.
"In business hours! I don't object to anybody's taking a drink if he wants to, out of business hours; but if a man
keeps the work right up to the scratch,
I wouldn't be the one to bust him if he got good an' drunk once in two,
three years, maybe. It ain't my way.
I let it alone, but I never believed in forcing my way on a crowd in any normal matters. I guess I was wrong!
You think them men out there are waitin' to talk business with a drunkard? You think you can come to your office and do business drunk?"

"By George!" I wonder how often this has been happening and me not on to it!
I'll have a look over your books tomorrow, and I'll—"

Roscoe stumbled to his feet, laughing wildly, and stood swaying, continuing to hold himself in position by clutching the back of the heavy chair
in which he had been sitting.

"Ho—ho!" he cried. "I'm my principles, too. Be drunk all you want to—outside business hours. Don't forget to lock the door after you're done! Business! Business! You're right, father. Drink! Die! Everything goes to hell, but don't let innuere
business!"

Sheridan had seized the telephone upon Roscoe's desk, and was calling his own office, overheard. "Alacrombie? Come down to my son Roscoe's suite and get rid of some gentlemen that are waitin' there to see him in room two-fourteen. You needn't come in to let me know they're gone; we don't want to be disturbed. Tell Dun-low to call my house and send Claus down here with a closed car. We may have to go out. Tell him to hustle, and call me at Roscoe's room as soon as the car gets here. 'T's all!"

Roscoe had laughed bitterly throughout this monologue. "Drunk in business hours! That's awf'! Musn't do such thing! Musn't get drunk, musn't gamble, musn't kill 'nobody—not in business hours! All right any other time. Kill 'nobody you want to—long 'tain't in business hours! Fine!
Musn't have any trouble 't' innere-business. Keep your trouble 't' home.
Don't bring it to the office. Might innere business! Don't let your wife innere business! Keep all, all, all your trouble at your innere, an'
your innere—your innere—keep 'em all for home use! If you got die, go on die 't' home—don't die round the office!
Might innere business!"

Sheridan picked up a newspaper from Roscoe's desk, and sat down with his back to his son, affecting to read.
Roscoe seemed to be unaware of his father's significant posture.

"You know 't' I think?" he went on. "I think Bibb only one the family an' tellin' me 't' work an' 't' work an' din't get married. Jim worked, an' he got killed. I worked, an' I got married. Look at me! Just look at me, I ask you. Fine 'dustries young business man. Look whass happen to me!
Fine! He lifted his hand from the sustaining chair in a deplorable gesture, and immediately losing his balance, fell across the chair and crashing to the floor with a crash, remaining prostrate for several minutes, during which Sheridan did not relax his apparent attention to the newspaper. He did not even look round at the sound of Roscoe's fall.

Roscoe slowly climbed to an upright position, pulling himself up by holding to the chair. He was slightly sobered outwardly, having progressed in the prostrate interval to a state of beatitude less volatile. He rubbed his dazed eyes with the back of his left hand.

"What—what you ask me while ago?" he said.

"Nothin'."
"Yes, you did. What—what was it?"

"Nothin'. You better sit down."
"You ask me that I thought about Lamborn. You did ask me that. Well,
I won't tell you. I won't say dam'
word 'bout him!"

The telephone bell tinkled. Sheridan placed the receiver to his ear and said,
"Right down." When he got Roscoe's coat and hat from a closet and brought them to his son. "Get into this coat,"
he said. "You're goin' home."

"All right," murmured Roscoe, obedi-
ently.

They went out into the main hall by a side door. Roscoe walked out of the building without lurching, and twenty minutes later walked into his own house in the same manner, neither he nor his father having spoken a word in the interval.

Sheridan did not go in with him; he went home, and to his own room without meeting any of his family. But as he passed Bibb's door he heard from within the sound of a cheerful young voice, humming jubilant fragments of songs:

Who looks the mustang in the eye?
With a leap from the ground
To the middle in a bound.
An' away—and away!
Hi-yay!

It was the first time in Sheridan's life that he had ever detected any musical symptom whatever in Bibb—he had never even heard him whistle
—and it seemed the last touch of irony
that the useless fool should be merry today.

To Sheridan it was Tom o' Bedlam singing while the house burned; and he did not tarry to enter the melody, but went into his own room and locked the
door.

HOW TO DRAW A CHECK.

The first thing a depositor in a bank
should learn is how to draw a check,
for if a check is improperly drawn it may lead to confusion and might bring a loss to the bank and annoyance to the depositor. In the first place, the figures should be plainly made, so that no question can arise as to the amount. If a figure is carelessly made, so that it confuses those who handle the check, numberless hours of work may follow. For instance, if a bank receives a check for $188 with a poor "8" and a clerical blots it out it may take many hours' time to find the difference and the 4th day's work may have to be gone over. The rule should be: Never make a figure that may be mistaken and never pass one that is in doubt—correct it by crossing out the bad and making a good one alongside.

Second, the words and figures should agree. The law says that if the two are different, the written words govern, but make both carefully and then alike.

Third, begin the writing to the left of the writing space and fill in the unused space with a wavy line. Begin the figures well up against the $ sign and make the character 00-00
after, but close up against the figures. Use a good black ink and write firmly, so that plenty of ink gets into the fibre of the paper.

Fourth, always write your name exactly as you wrote it on the bank's signature card. "Mrs. William Smith"
may be the same person as "Mary V.
Smith," but the bank account doesn't sound that way.

Adopt one signature and stick to it.
Do not flourish, nor make a fancy signature. Handwriting experts will tell you that a plain, distinctive signature, with no flourishes, is the most difficult to forge.

The law of forgery is that the bank is bound to know your signature, and pays a forged instrument at its peril.
The risk is all theirs. But that is not the way you should help eliminate the chance of forgery by taking care
that your checks are properly drawn.
If you are grossly negligent, you might have to stand the loss yourself.
Better be safe than sorry. There are numerous protecting devices on the market, some better than others, and for them you cannot be charged with any negligence in making your checks forgery-proof. Do not make it easy to work a fraud through your account.
Do not give checks to strangers. Do not leave your check book lying around. Do not leave a signed check where it may be filled in and used.
Your banker will bless you if you follow the foregoing suggestions.

TRIED TO PERSUADE TAYLOR NOT TO RUN

State Auditor Endeavored to Prevent Lieutenant Governor From Entering.

A letter made public in Boise last week indicated a determination of politicians in the northern part of the state to get Lieutenant Governor Taylor out of the race for Republican gubernatorial nomination with a view of concentrating on George E. Crum. The letter was written by State Auditor F. L. Huston to Lieutenant Governor Taylor March 20, but was not made public at the time. It seems to have utterly failed in its purpose.

The letter follows:
"Hon. Herman H. Taylor,
"Sault Ste. Marie, Idaho.
"Dear Sir: Several newspaper articles lately indicate that you are going to get in the race. You will remember, I think, that you asked Joe Peterson and I sitting here in my office, one day, to let you know the truth about the situation as we found it, and I hope that you will listen to what I have to say from the standpoint of real friendship and that I am telling the truth when I say that I am advising you for your own best interests.

"I have had to make three trips to Idaho Falls lately on personal business and while over there I have made it a point to look into the situation as carefully as possible and I find that Crum has a lead down there with D. W. Davis a close second, and I find that Crum is much stronger in the southwest than D. W. Davis. I have canvassed the situation in the Gooding, Shoshone and Twin Falls counties and I am absolutely certain when I say that I do not think you can win at this time.

"Yesterday I overheard a discussion of the situation and one party remarked that if the north could not get together when an opportunity offered, the south might just as well nominate a full ticket and go to it. The same party remarked that Mr. Johnson, with Charley Storey out of the field, could beat Barker. Of course, I doubt this, although Johnson would have been a strong second last time had Storey not entered the race.

"There are a number of other matters in this connection that affect me personally that I do not care to write about, but would like to discuss with you before you make your announcement. I will be in Spokane the latter part of next week if you care to wait until that time. If you can defer your announcement until you see me I wish you would wire me at my expense and I will get there just as soon as possible.

"Yours sincerely,
"F. L. HUSTON."

SYLVESTER LONG, MAN WHO SAYS THINGS

Prominent Lecturer One of Popular Speakers in America Today

A MAN'S success in this day and age depends a great deal on whether he can "come back." The man who can "come back" and make a blazer success than ever before is the man who forges ahead and in the end has won a way into the hearts of the people.

Sylvester A. Long is a man who can "come back." He is one of the lecturers on the Chautauqua, and he "puts it over" in a way that is unusual. He is so well liked over the country that he has lectured in some cities as many as fifteen times, and that is an unusual record. Mr. Long has lectured in Cincinnati, Portland, Kansas City, Ogden, Philadelphia and dozens of other large cities. Mr. Long will be in demand here after he has been heard at the Chautauqua, for Mr. Long says things and says them fast and well.

AUDITORIUM PROGRAM CLOSED THE SERVICES

Rev. A. Stewart Delivered Address of Memorial Day—Delightful Musical Selection—Glee.

The closing scenes of the Memorial day program took place at the auditorium of the high school Tuesday afternoon. Commander W. W. Humphrey of the Dan McCook Post, G. A. R., presided. The program was opened by the offering of the invocation by Rev. C. E. Evans. Past Commander J. H. Barnes read general order No. 11. Lincoln's Gettysburg address was read by Mrs. W. E. Anson. Solos by Mrs. James and Miss Marie Roberts, were much appreciated.

Major Stewart introduced Rev. A. Stewart, of Kimberly, the speaker of the day, saying that on this day we voiced the patriotism which we felt in the heart of the nation. Stewart said that the day was not one which should be spent in pool games, ball games or dancing, but a day that was sacred to the memory of the men who had power to bring his audience back to the landing of the pilgrims from the Mayflower. He had seen many of the great ships like the Mayflower and Titania in the harbor at New York, from which great city he had said that seven months ago, but none of these vessels seemed so beautiful to him as the Mayflower. He pictured the difficulties under which the pilgrims landed amid ice and storm, but said that they would not land on the Sabbath day to relieve their own sufferings. He wished that similar sacrifices were made today in Sunday observance. Referring briefly to the revolutionary struggle and to the war of 1812, the speaker said that the blot of slavery in this country, for which all sections were equally responsible, resulted in a war which should never have been fought. Having paid a tribute to Abraham Lincoln as a man belonging to all countries, Rev. Stewart said in substance, that he believed the country was today confronted with the problem of abolishing the use of the toxicating drinks. He had no use for those foreigners who denounced our laws and said "in the old country I could get a glass of beer if I wanted it." There were plenty of boats going back to Europe for all such to travel on.

In conclusion he declared that next to the church of God no institution had done so much for the people as the public schools. He thanked God that in this country there were still thousands of little red school houses in which it was not a crime against the law to read the Word of God. He denounced all, whether infidel or other, who opposed reading the Bible in the public schools.

FRIDAY AND SATURDAY

WILLIAM S. HART

FEATURED IN A TRIANGLE KAY-BEE.
THOMAS INCE PRODUCTION IN 5 PARTS, ENTITLED

The ARYAN

The story of a Western "bad man," interpreted by the greatest actor of "bad man" parts, William S. Hart, a man who was raised on the plains of Dakota among the Sioux Indians, and therefore knows what is true to life. The story, too, of a little girl whose absolute trust in the end of the Aryan race, that their men will protect their women, send her unafraid into a camp of ruffians where no white man is allowed, to demand food and shelter for her people. It is the sort of photoplay that paints straight at the heart and tugs hard on the heart strings. It has lots of big scenes with hundreds of people; a forty-nine's caravan reproduced to the minutest details; and one tremendous situation after another.

A Very Interesting and Beautiful Scene, Divulging the Beauties of Snake River Canyon, Showing Twin Falls, Milner Falls, Salmon Falls and Other Scenes of Interest.

Little Meena's Romance

A BEAUTIFUL STORY IN 5 PARTS, SUPERVISED BY D. W. GRIFFITH

"Little Meena's Romance" is a Triangle feature built about a delightful love story between a little Dutch girl living in Pennsylvania and a real Count compelled to sell clothes wringers for a living. How they meet later in "high society" is productive of much laughter and some tears. It has all the elements of a human interest film, and should be playing still when many another is forgotten. It teaches thrift; it teaches morality; it teaches generosity; it teaches cleanliness; it teaches love. Don't miss "Little Meena's Romance." It's the kind of a story we like. It's the kind of a story we believe the majority of our patrons will enjoy. It's an exquisite production with a star of great brilliance in Dorothy Gish.
