Filer Items

(From The Filer Journal.)

E. L. Albright and Miss Fern Vining were married at the home of the bride's parents this afternoon. They will leave immediately for Vardoe, Washington, where they will make their future home.

Reuben Schiffman, who is farming a half mile west of town, has installed a centrifugal pump and runs the engine with kerosene instead of gasoline. Reuben uses the pump to irrigate a few acres of high land.

Some time ago when F. Brooks sold his farm east of town and returned to the east, The Journal predicted that he would return within a year. F. Brooks returned to Filer, hand and baggage, this week.

A willing bunch of helpers assisted Rev. Crabtree in renovating the basement of the church Tuesday afternoon. Ed Calvert of Eden, returning home from Filer last Sunday had the misfortune of driving over the other side of the grade with his new Case car. No one was hurt and practically no damage done to the car.

Mr. Harkins has begun active work on the race track at the county fair grounds and will rush same to completion. Jas. Dybee is this week completing the survey and building construction will begin at once.

Rev. Albright of the Evangelical church has been transferred to Vardoe, Wash. Rev. John Abbott of Pineville, Ore., will take charge of the church at this place. Rev. Albright has made many friends in Filer who regret his departure this year.

A paper is being generously signed this week by Filer business men and citizens expressing appreciation and confidence in Rev. E. Crabtree. This is done to assure him that the community, with a few exceptions, are behind him in his good work.

The basement of the M. E. church is being fitted up for Sunday school purposes. Also the basement under the Minnott house is receiving the final touches to make it desirable for Sunday school purposes.

A large crowd of baseball fans journeyed to Twin Falls last Sunday to witness the game between the Twin Falls and Rupert. The latter won by a score of 4 to 1. Rupert has a team of real ball players this year and put up a snappy game.

At the next regular meeting of the Woman's club on Wednesday, June 7, important business will be transacted and a large attendance of members is urged. The program for the children's festival will be given on the school house lawn June 15.

Times' Special Correspondence. Richard Griffith was a Kimberly bushy car last Friday.

Will Gibson, wife and little son Wayne, were guests at the Franklin Brown home on decoration day. The dancing party to be given at the home of D. F. Clark, was postponed until this coming Friday night, for which the invitations are again issued.

Elmer Johnson, Leon Martin and L. Roy Valentine, attended the boys' picnic meeting in Twin Falls last Friday night.

P. R. Walshaw returned to Utah last Monday after a visit to his family and many friends of this place. A fine display of his dying is to be seen in the rooms made into suits in the Eldridge Clothing store of Twin Falls.

James Herron has purchased an additional 10 acres known as the Journey place, and just across the road from his home. This he has planned to beed seed, making in all 47 acres of beets which Mr. Herron is raising for the sugar company this year.

Little Mable Walshaw, who has been on the sick list with tonsillitis, is much better.

S. A. Martin is moving his house back, preparatory to building a fine seven-room bungalow in the near future.

Considerable blasting has been done over at the sugar factory during the past month, due to the excavating of the silo, which will cover 3 acres of ground, and be 20 feet deep. The silo will be cemented and used for holding the beet pulp, which will be sold to the farmers for feeding purposes next fall and winter. The sugar company plan also on feeding a large number of cattle and hogs of their own, the yards to be down in the canyon of Rock creek.

Charley Shroll, wife and little daughter, Mable, were attending in Twin Falls Saturday evening.

David Clark attended a meeting of the board of directors of the Twin Falls Nickel school Friday evening.

Jack Jensen, agent for the Ford car, was a caller in our neighborhood looking after his farm interests.

Joe Wilson was a business caller in Twin Falls last Wednesday.

C. A. Baker and wife, and Charles Overfield, wife and babies, autoed to the eastern part of the tract Sunday.

Mr. Nicholson, wife and daughter, Wilho, were shopping in Twin Falls on Saturday.

A picnic social was held at the home of Benjamin Holland of the Oak Corner district last Saturday evening. The same given by the members of the Oak Corner club to their different families. A pleasant evening was spent and a large quantity of pies consumed.

Clayton School, wife and little daughter, and A. C. Skillman, wife and daughter Edith, were Jerome visitors Saturday where they visited with the school's brother Roy and family. They returned home Sunday.

Several of our residents attended the services at Twin Falls on decoration day.

Edward Walshaw was suffering from a badly inflamed finger last week, the same being caused by being caught in a fence only a few minutes more of time to stop.

Mrs. R. Griffith has completely recovered from her unpleasant experience in the high winds of several weeks ago.

Our attention has recently been called by the speed-drivers of autos along the Kimberly road, which drive in a fraction of a minute more of their time was left in time to reach Burley or some other destination as far way. One car last week came up a snappy game.

At the next regular meeting of the Woman's club on Wednesday, June 7, important business will be transacted and a large attendance of members is urged. The program for the children's festival will be given on the school house lawn June 15.

Miss Leah Shroll of Eden, has been visiting with friends and relatives here the past week, returning home Saturday.

Last Friday, Master Bernard Martin was ten years old, as big, racy with its ten candles signified. The afternoon was passed in games, when at 5:30 o'clock a birthday luncheon was served. The guests present were: Margaret and Gerald Stram, Isabelle and Frankie Clark, Marion Heaton, Ray Johnson, Edward Walshaw, Little Mable Walshaw not being able to come on account of sickness.

Guy Hall and wife were shoppers in Twin Falls Monday.

A pleasant rain visited our section last evening, brushing up those smiles on the farmers' faces.

NATIONAL GUARD TO ENCAMP IN BOISE

Gathering Held From July 2 to July 16—Want to Hold Them in Healdsburg.

The Idaho National Guard will hold their encampment in Boise this year in accordance with the policy of the war department to keep men in readiness for mobilization in all the states. Adjutant General Crow wanted the encampment at American Lake while it was at one time announced that the encampment would be held at Salt Lake City. Both plans have been unsatisfactory to the department which ordered the guard to meet in the state capital barracks from July 2 to July 16.

EMINENT RUSSIAN VIOLINIST NOW TOURING WESTERN AMERICA

Renowned Concert Artist Secured For Chautauqua

THE engagement of Alexander von Skibinsky, the famous Russian violinist, for western Chautauqua is a signal example of the musical standard set and maintained for Chautauqua patrons. As concert master in the great music centers of Europe Mr. Skibinsky was especially known not only for the firm delivery of his touch, but for the velocity and brilliancy of his technique. In his few years in America he has more than made good the glowing accounts which preceded him.

TWIN FALLS IS GROWING RAPIDLY

Actual Count Shows More Than 132 New Homes

TOTAL COST OF STRUCTURES IS $285,000

Last Count Two Months Ago Showed Eighty Since the Beginning of the Year.

According to James McMillan, secretary of the Twin Falls Commercial club, a count of the new buildings, both residences and business blocks, finished after January 1, or now in the course of construction, number 132. The total estimated cost of these buildings will be nearly four hundred thousand dollars. The houses are of all sorts and sizes from small residences to large store buildings, but an unusually large proportion are comfortable homes.

About two months ago Arthur L. Swind made a count of the buildings finished after January 1, or now in the course of construction and found that they numbered 80. Mr. McMillan's count indicates that 52 new structures have been started within the past two months, which is in every way a satisfactory condition.

That prosperous condition while more strikingly manifest in this city than anywhere else on the trail, is by no means confined to Twin Falls. Superintendent C. G. Manning of Buhl, who was in the city Friday, said that building was still in full blast in his city, where a number of large structures are being erected, and that more than 30 new residences had gone up there since he arrived last fall. Kimberly, Hansen and Murtaugh all show growth, especially the first-named.

Special Notice to Truss Wearers

H. H. Spurgeon, truss expert, now head of the fitting department of the largest truss and elastic goods house in the northwest, will be at the Perkins hotel on the afternoon and evening of Sunday, June 11th, with a complete line of Honest John and Wm. H. Horn & Co. trusses for men, women and children, and will take orders for elastic hosiery, belts, etc. If you want to avail yourself of the services of an experienced expert in this line with the understanding that there is no charge if your hernia is not held with comfort and satisfaction to yourself.

You cannot afford to overlook this opportunity. I hold the worst cases of rupture with my mechanical appliances, and many cures have been reported through their proper use and fitting.

Please address all correspondence to me in a plain sealed envelope in care of the above hotel, so I may arrange your appointment at a reasonable time, thereby giving you strict privacy.

PROMINENT BUHL CITIZEN WEDS

E. A. Milner, Pioneer Lumberman, Marries Former Schoolmate in Nebraska.

E. A. Milner, a pioneer of the Twin Falls tract, and manager of the Milner-Perrine Lumber company at Buhl, since the town was first established, was married on May 15, in Hastings, Neb., to Mrs. H. S. Brown of the Buhl, where they will make their home.

The marriage of E. A. Milner, of Buhl, Idaho, and Mrs. H. S. Brown of 215 Saunders avenue, was solemnized at the Clark hotel at 11 o'clock this morning. Rev. A. A. Brooks of the Methodist church officiating.

"The couple will leave tonight for a brief trip eastward. They expect to return to Hastings Sunday and will make a brief stop before going to their home. Mr. Milner is engaged in the lumber business in Buhl and has extensive livestock interests. He and his bride were classmates in Bloomington, Wis.

"The only witnesses to the ceremony were the bride's daughter, Mrs. John C. Harless of Fairbury, Mrs. J. C. Corey and Mrs. Charles Waldrup of this city.

Mr. Milner has been an occasional visitor to Hastings for a number of years."

GREAT WOOL CLIP SHIPPED AT BUHL

Fifteen Car Loads Sent Out This Year—One Sheep Yielded 15 Pounds.

Fifteen carloads of wool clip have been purchased from the sheep growers around Buhl during the past month and shipped to eastern markets by the Buhl Railroad. Fleeces have been selling from 25 cents to 30 cents a pound, depending upon the quality. A car contains from $5,000 to $8,000 worth of wool, and is estimated that over $100,000 worth of it has been shipped out.

Sheep growers report that the clip has been heavy this year, and there is still some shearing to be done to considerable more to be sold. It is estimated that the total wool crop from the Buhl country will near the $200,000 mark. And Buhl is not considered a sheep raising country, either.

The Rambouillet prize winning buck owned by S. A. Gillette and exhibited at the Buhl Cornucopia last September, also made a record for wool producing. Forty-eight pounds of high quality wool was clipped from him last week, and at the price wool is now, the clip will sell for about $44. Anthony Larsen did the shearing and he said that four of the ewes averaged 19 pounds each.

These Rambouillet sheep are purebred and registered, and were imported by John H. Gillette, who paid a fancy price for them. They are building up a registered flock of that breed as rapidly as possible.

PRESIDENT WILSON STATES HIS REASONS FOR APPOINTING BRANDEIS

In response to an inquiry from Senator Culberson, asking the president for the reasons actuating him in making the nomination of Mr. Brandeis for associate justice of the Supreme court, the president sent the following letter:

The White House, Washington, May 5, 1916.

My Dear Senator: I am very much obliged to you for giving me an opportunity to make clear to the judiciary committee my reasons for nominating Mr. Louis D. Brandeis to fill the vacancy in the Supreme court of the United States created by the death of Mr. Justice Lamar. For I am profoundly interested in the confirmation of the appointment by the senate.

There is probably no more important duty imposed upon the president in connection with the general administration of the government than that of naming members of the Supreme court, and I need hardly tell you that I named Mr. Brandeis as a member of that great tribunal only because I knew him to be singularly qualified by learning, by gifts, and by character for the position.

Many charges have been made against Mr. Brandeis. The report of your subcommittee has already made it plain to you and to the country at large how unfounded those charges were. They threw a great deal more light upon the character and motives of those with whom they originated than upon the qualifications of Mr. Brandeis. I myself looked into them three years ago, when I desired to make Mr. Brandeis a member of my cabinet, and found that they proceeded from persons who had only known Mr. Brandeis because he had refused to be servicable to them in the promotion of their own selfish interests, and from those whom they had prejudiced and misled. The propaganda I have dealt with him in matters where his position was one of extraordinary and very distressing nature, those who love fairness and value the dignity of the great professions.

I perceived from the first that the charges were intrinsically incredible for anyone who had known Mr. Brandeis. I have known him. I have tested him by seeking his advice upon some of the most difficult and perplexing public questions about which it was necessary for me to form a judgment. I have dealt with him in matters where his position was one of extraordinary and very distressing nature, and as well as large questions of justice and the public benefit were involved.

In every matter in which I have had test of his judgment and point of view I have received from him completely singularly enlightening, singularly clear-sighted and judicial, and above all, full of moral stimulation. He is a friend of all just men and a lover of all honest endeavor, and no man can how to talk about the right—he knows how to set it forward in the face of his enemies. I know, from direct personal knowledge of the man, what I am doing when I named him for the highest and most responsible tribunal of the nation.

Louis D. Brandeis. Of his extraordinary ability as a lawyer no man who is competent to judge can speak with anything but the highest admiration. You will remember that in the opinion of the late Chief Justice Fuller he was the ablest man who ever appeared before the Supreme court of the United States. "He is also," the chief justice added, "absolutely fearless in the discharge of his duties."

Those who have resorted to him for assistance in settling great industrial disputes can testify to his fairness and love of justice in the most difficult controversies between farmers, workmen, and manufacturers of New York city, for example, he gave a truly remarkable proof of his judicial temperament, and had what must have been the greatest satisfaction of rendering decisions which both sides were willing to accept as disinterested and even-handed.

Mr. Brandeis has rendered many notable services to the city and state with which his professional life has been identified. He successfully directed the difficult campaign which resulted in obtaining cheaper gas for the city of Boston. It was chiefly under his leadership and through his efforts that legislation was secured in Massachusetts which authorized savings banks to issue insurance policies for small sums at much reduced rates. And some gentlemen who tried very hard to obtain control of the Boston Elevated Railway company in the early days of the city for a period of 39 years can probably testify as to his ability as the people's advocate when public interests call for an effective campaign.

He is a man of great energy, and without compensation, and earnestly whether he got it or not, the gratitude of every citizen of the state and city he served. These are but a few of the areas of this kind he has freely rendered. I am sure that his friends, community and public rights throughout the country to see his quality significantly recognized by his elevation to the Supreme bench. For the whole country is interested in his quality and is interested in this appointment.

I did not, in making choice of Mr. Brandeis, ask for or depend upon "endorsements." I acted upon public knowledge and personal acquaintance with the man, and preferred to name a lawyer for this great office whose ability and character were so widely recognized that he needed no endorsement. I did, however, personally consult many men in whose judgment I had great confidence, and am happy to say was supported in my selection by the voluntary recommendation of the attorney general of the United States, who urged Mr. Brandeis upon my consideration independently of any suggestion from me.

Let me say, by way of summing up, my dear senator, that I nominated Mr. Brandeis for the Supreme court because it was and is a deliberate judgment that, of all the men now at the bar whom it has been my privilege to observe, test, and know, he is exceptionally qualified to discharge his duties with the highest of his impartial, impersonal, orderly, and constructive mind; his rare analytical powers, his deep human sympathy, his profound acquaintance with the historical roots of our institutions and laws in their spirit, and of the many evidences he has given of being imbued, to the very heart, with our American ideals of justice and equality of opportunity; of his knowledge of modern economic conditions, and of the American people, and the masses of the people, or of his genius in getting persons to unite in common and harmonious action and look with frank and kindly eyes into each other's minds, who had before been heated antagonists.

This friend of justice and of men will ornament the high court of which we are all so justly proud. I am glad to have the opportunity to pay him this tribute of admiration and of confidence; and I trust that your committee will accept this nomination as coming from me, quick with a sense of public obligation and responsibility. With warmest regard, cordially and sincerely yours,

WOODROW WILSON.
The Hon. Charles A. Culberson, United States Senate.

TALKS ON THIEF
THIEF
Without me no man has ever achieved success, nor has any nation ever become great.

I have seen the back of every successful career, and the cornerstone of every fortune.

All the world knows me and most of the world knows my name.

The poor man have me as well as the rich.

My power is limitless, my application is boundless, my effort is boundless.

He who possesses me has contentment in the present and surety for the future.

I am of greater value than pearls, rubies and diamonds.

Once you have me, no man can take me away.

I have seen the back of every successful career, and the cornerstone of every fortune.

To obtain me you need not put no capital but personal effort, and on all you invest in me I guarantee dividends that last through life and after.

I am as free as air.

Charles Zueblin

Chautauqua's purpose, is to project dominant ideas into communities otherwise severed from immediate contact with those forces by reason of size of location. This primary of the Chautauqua is, however, in this year, by those familiar with the directing powers of the practical reforms which have secured a spiked foot in America. It is, in fact, conceded that the impelling genius of the nation—the awakening of our civic conscience—is Charles Zueblin, the public lecturer and author of the Western Chautauqua for 1916.

The lecture which Mr. Zueblin will deliver at Chautauqua will be a slight composite of the keys to his three authoritative books: "Democracy and the Overman," "The Religion of a Democracy," and "American Municipal Progress," a digest of which may be summed up in a sentence: "Democracy, national and municipal, expressed in the fellowship of human service."

In a series of campaigns for civic improvement, extending over a period of nearly five years, Mr. Zueblin has left an enduring impress on those of our American cities, which for efficiency in administration, brevity of speech, and earnestness of purpose and buildings—the democratizing of human wants, in terms of mutual service—have become a by-word among travelers and authorities on municipal progress.

Charles Zueblin electrifies an audience by the brilliance of his oratory, the vivacity of his speech, and his practical constructive optimism. Zueblin is of that timber which maintains the backbone of the Chautauqua movement, enlightened American institutions, heart at heart our highest aims and ideals.

The Children's Hour

Of course sometimes, not often, there is "a move" in one of the plates, but so good is our equipment, so assured is our confidence—the "knowing how," if you choose to call it so—that on many a day this spring we have made 40 portrait negatives and were able to submit proofs from all the next morning. There have been certain crowded times in our studio when we have made 72 portrait negatives in a day without the loss of one plate.

Since a fair share of these negatives are of children, and children are usually very active, you may be certain of this fact: while The Children's Hour means only fun for the children, such results as these imply ability of a high degree on the part of the photographer. These results and this ability, the out-growth of thorough training and long experience, we are prepared to give you.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—Sheridan's attempt to make a business man of his son, Bibbs, by starting him in the machine shop ends in him going to a sanatorium, a nervous wreck.

CHAPTER II—On his return Bibbs is met at the station by his sister Edith.

CHAPTER III—Edith finds herself an impulsive, self-indulgent girl, who, in the "New House" of the Sheridan, she sees Mary Vertrees looking at him from a summer house next door.

CHAPTER IV—The Vertreeses, old town ladies and impoverished, call on the Sheridans, and, afterward, the cousins. Mary puts into words her parental sympathy, which she shares with one of the Sheridan boys.

CHAPTER V—At the Sheridan house—warning, however, Sheridan spreads his
net. Mary frankly encourages Jim Sheridan, and Bibbs hears he is to be sent back to the machine shop.

CHAPTER VI—Mary tells her mother about the banquet and checks her mother by talking of Jim as a marriageable possibility.

CHAPTER VII—Jim tells Mary Bibbs is not a lunatic, but a queer. He proposes to Mary, who half accepts him.

CHAPTER VIII—Sheridan tells Bibbs he must go back to the machine shop, and points out he is strong enough, in spite of his "fit," to be a success.

CHAPTER IX—Edith and Abby, Roscoe Sheridan's wife, quarrel over Bibbs' language. Sybil goes to Mary for help to keep Lamborn from marrying Edith, and Mary leaves her in the room alone.

CHAPTER X—Bibbs has to break in his father the news of Jim's sudden death.
CHAPTER XI—All the rest of the family helpless in their grief, Bibbs becomes temporary master of the house. At the funeral he meets Mary and becomes friendly.

CHAPTER XII—Mrs. Sheridan pleads with Bibbs to return to the machine shop for his father's sake, and to consent to CHAPTER XIII—Bibbs purposely interrupts a tea-party between Edith and Lamborn. He tells Edith that he loves a woman.

CHAPTER XIV—Mutual love of music brings an intimate friendship between Bibbs and Mary.

CHAPTER XV—Mary sells her piano to help out the finances of the Vertreeses.

CHAPTER XVI—Roscoe and his wife quarrel over Lamborn.

CHAPTER XVII—Sheridan finds Roscoe in an intoxicated condition during office hours and takes him home.

CHAPTER XVIII.

He emerged only upon a second summon to dine, two hours later, and came to the table so white and silent that his wife made her anxiety manifest and was but partially reassured by his explanation that his lunch had
"disagreed" with him a little.

Presently, however, he spoke effectively. Bibbs, whose appetite had become hearty, was helping himself to a second breast of capon from white-kitchen's salver. "Here's another difference between Midas and chicken," Sheridan remarked, grimly. "I reckon you overlooked that—Midas looks to me like he had the advantage there."

Bibbs retained enough presence of mind to transfer the capon breast to his plate without dropping it and to reply, "Yes—he covers over it."

Having returned his antagonist's fire in this fashion, he laughed—for he could blush distinctly now—and his mother looked upon him with pleasure, though the reference to Midas and chicken was of course jargon to her.

"Did you ever see anybody improve the way that child has?" she exclaimed.
"I declare, Bibbs, sometimes lately you look right handsome!"

"It's got to be such a gadabout," Edith replied.

"I found something of his on the floor upstairs this morning, before anybody was up," said Sheridan. "I reckon if people lose things in this house and expect to get 'em back, they better get up as soon as I do."

"That was it he lost?" asked Edith.
"The money," her father returned.
"Seems to me like I forgot to bring it home with me. I looked it over—thought perhaps it was something pretty important, belonging to a busy man like him. He affected to search his pockets. 'What did I do with it, now?' Oh yes! Seems to me like I remember leavin' it down at the office—
in the waste basket."

"Good place for it," Bibbs murmured, still red.

Sheridan gave him a grin. "Perhaps pretty soon you'll be getting up early enough to find things before I do!"

It was a threat, and Bibbs repeated the substance of it, later in the evening, to Mary Vertrees—who had come to know each other that well.

"My time's here at last," he said, as they sat together in the melancholy dim light of the room which had been demanded of his plans. But the gas light, though from a single jet, shed no melancholy upon Bibbs, nor could any room seem here that knew the shading presence of Mary. He spoke lightly, not sadly.

"Yes, it's come. I've shirked and put it off, but I can't shirk and put it any longer. It's really my part to go to him—at least it would be my father's.
He means what he says, and the time's come to serve my sentence. Hard labor for life, I think."

Mary shook her head. "I don't think so. He's too kind."

"You think my father's kind?" And Bibbs stared at her.

"Yes, I'm sure of it. I've felt that he's a great, brave heart. It's only that he's to be kind in his own way—because he can't understand any other way."

"What you mean by 'kind'?"
"Ah, yes," said Bibbs. "If that's what you mean by 'kind'?"

She looked at him gravely, earnest concern in her friendly eyes. "It's going to be pretty hard for you, isn't it?"

"Oh—selfishly," he returned, smiling.
"This has been just the last flicker of revolt. Nobody minds work, if he likes the kind of work. There'd be no loneliness in the world if each man found the thing that he could do best; but the only work I happen to want to do is useless—I have to give it up. Tomorrow I'll be a day laborer."

"What is it like—exactly?"
"It wasn't muscularly exhausting—not at all. They couldn't give me a heavier job because I wasn't good enough."

"That what will you do? I want to know."

"When I left," said Bibbs, "I was
'on' what they call over there a 'clipping machine,' and that's what I'll be sent back to. It's very simple and very easy. I feel long strips of sheet metal, a pair of steel jaws, and the jaws bite the zinc into little circles. And yet I was a very bad hand at it."

He had kept his voice cheerful as he spoke, but he had grown a shade paler, and there was a latent anguish deep in his eyes. He may have known it and wished her not to see it, but he turned away.

"You do that all day long?" she exclaimed. "No wonder—She broke off, and then, after a keen glance at his face, she said: "I should think you would have been a 'bad hand at it.'"

He laughed ruefully. "I think it's the noise, though—I'm ashamed to say it. You see, it's a very powerful machine, and there's a sort of rhythmic crashing—a crash every time the jaws bite off a circle."

"How often is that?"
"The thing should make about sixty-eight things a minute—a little more than one a second."

"And you're close to it?"
"Oh, the workman has to sit in its lap," he said, turning to her more grimly. "The others don't mind. You see, it's something wrong with me."
He gave an odd way of flinching from the confounded thing—I think and duck a little every time the crash comes, and I couldn't get over it. I was a treat to the other workmen in that room; they'll be glad to see me again."

"And now Bibbs looked up. She stood before him straight and tall, splendid in generous strength, her eyes shining and wet.

"If I mean that much to you," she cried, "they can't harm you! Go back to the shop—put your hand to the work of your day's work. Let the machines crash their sixty-eight times a minute, but remember each crash that deafens you is that much nearer the evening and me!"

He stumbled to his feet. "You say—"
he gasped.

"Every evening, dear Bibbs!"
He could only stare, bewildered.
"Every evening. I want you. They shan't hurt you again!" And she held out her hand to him: it was strong and warm in his nervous clasp. "If I could, I'd go and feed the strips of zinc to the machine with you," she said. "But all day long I'll send my thoughts to you. You must keep remembering that your friend stands beside you. And when the work is done—won't the night make up for the day?"

Light seemed to glow from her; he was blinded by that radiance of kindness. But all he could say was, husk-ily, "To think you're there—with me—standing beside the old sinner!"

And they laughed and looked at each other, and at last Bibbs found what it meant not to be alone in the world.
He had a friend.

back. They used to laugh at me all day long."

Now his gaze was averted from Bibbs now; she sat with her elbow resting on the arm of the chair, her lifted hand pressed against her cheek. She was staring at the wall, and her eyes had a burning brightness in them.

"It doesn't seem possible anyone could do that to you," she said, in a low voice. "No. He's not kind. He ought to be proud to help you to the pleasure to write books; it should be his greatest privilege to have them published for you."

"You can see him?" Bibbs interrupted, a faint ripple of hilarity in his voice. "No. It's just as well he never got the— But what's the use? I've never written anything worth printing, and I never shall."

"You couldn't," she said.
"That's because you've never seen the poor little things I've tried to do."
"You wouldn't let me, but I know you could! Ah, it's a pity!"

"It isn't," said Bibbs, honestly. "I never could—but you're the kindest lady in this world, Miss Vertrees."

She gave him a flashing glance, and it was as kind as he said she was.
"That sounds wrong," she said, impulsively. "I mean 'Miss Vertrees.' I've thought of you by your first name ever since I met you. Wouldn't you rather call me Bibbs?"

Bibbs was dazzled; he drew a long,
deep breath and did not speak.

"Wouldn't you?" she asked, without strife of coquetry.

"If I can't," he said, in a low voice,
"I'll try to say it." "But I'll come to you to say it," said Bibbs. "Two years. But I don't mind the prospect of a repetition so much as—"

"So much as what?" she prompted,
as he stopped.

Bibbs looked up at her shyly. "I want to say it, but—But I come to a dead blank when I try. I—"

"Go on. Say it, whatever it is,"
she bade him. "You wouldn't know how to say anything I shouldn't like."

"I doubt if you'd either like or dislike it," he said, but—But I returned, moving uncomfortably in his chair and looking at his feet—he seemed to feel awkward, thoroughly. "You see, all my life—until I met you—I've invited myself saying anything I wrote if I ever had a chance to say it."

He said nothing more, but he never used to feel as if I hadn't ever had any sort of a life at all. I'd never been of use to anything or anybody,
and I'd never had anything, myself,
except a kind of lightheaded thinking."

"I'm not sure," he said, "but I've used to be useful, and I don't see any prospect of being useful, but I have had something for myself. I've had a beautiful and happy experience, and it makes my life seem to be—I mean

Famous Mawson Antarctic Moving Pictures

In securing the marvelous motion pictures that will be shown at chautauquas, Sir Douglas Mawson, the young Australian scientist, fought enemies as dangerous as the machine guns—or even dum dum bullets. In the Antarctic he waged a war as dangerous as the war being fought on European battlefields today.

Only in the Antarctic they never met the enemy face to face and they never have a chance to fire back. It is the frost that penetrates your body
and cripples you for the long tramp;
it is the blizzard that blinds you till you lose the trail; it is the treacherous hidden crevasse all covered with snow into which one unsuspecting step may plunge you and your sleds down into unending space from which there is no return. Lack of food, securty, loneliness—these and a dozen other hazards make Antarctic exploring extremely dangerous and hazardous.

Sir Douglas Mawson went through all the difficulties and after twenty-seven months returned to civilization with a wonderful story and a set of motion pictures the greatest ever made and by far the most expensive.

In these pictures may be seen the animal and bird life of the Antarctic,
the Titanic floating icebergs, the glaciers and crevasses, the ice caves and many other unusual phenomena.

The Sir Douglas Mawson motion pictures of the Antarctic are marvelous and thrilling. After you have seen them at the chautauquas—you and all your family—you will admit that they are the most thrilling as well as educational pictures that have ever been shown.

ALL READY FOR THE PARISH HALL BENEFIT

Chicken Dinner Followed By Program Will Be Given Friday Evening, June 9.

Episcopians are saving their appetites for the chicken dinner which will be given at the Episcopal Parish hall Friday evening, June 9th, and to which the multitude is invited. There will be no waiting for the meal to begin, as the dinner will be served at once. The dinner will be followed by a musical entertainment. The following is the menu:

Chicken, Creamed New Potatoes, Corn, Southern Style, Pickles, Olives, Jelly, Pineapple Salad, Water, Cherry Pie, Lemon Pie, Pumpkin Pie, Cream Cheese, Made in Idaho, Coffee, Toasts.

At 5:30 sharp a literary and musical entertainment will be offered from the stage, now fully equipped with new and modern apparatus. The following is the program:

Part I.
Overture, selected. Orchestra.
Piano solo, selected. Katherine Hoche.
Reading, selected. Mrs. W. H. Brown.
Vocal Solo, with violin obligato, by Mr. Neil Schettler. Miss Louise Carlyle.
Violin solo, selected. Miss Viola Alfonte.
Reading, "Gentleman, the King". Mr. Ralph Morse.
Vocal Duet, "Last Night". Mrs. Marion Tucker and Mr. D. C. Watson.
Trio, (Piano, Violin, Cello). Miss Viola Alfonte, Miss Pauline Alfonte, Mr. Wm. Colburn.
*Mr. Morse gives the reading with which he won the state inter-collegiate contest at Pocatello last winter.

Part II.
"Penelope, or The Milkman's Bride" (Comic opera in one act).
Miss Alice Taylor.
Chaika (The Milkman). Ralph Morse.
Fitcher (The Policeman). Dr. C. A. Leigh.
Tosser (The Grenadier). Nelson Hayward.
(Under stage management of W. McK. Olsen.)

Tickets to dinner and entertainment are sold separately at fifty cents each; and as the entire proceeds are devoted to the furnishing of the hall, and as "one good turn deserves another," a liberal patronage is confidently anticipated from the generous Twin Falls public.

SMALL BOY ELECTROCUTED AT MINIDOKA DAM

In Attempt to Climb Tower He Came In Contact With Wire of High Voltage.

Theodore Leon, the eight-year-old son of Mrs. Cesar Leon, who lives near the dam, met instant death at 5:30 Memorial day. The lad was touching one of the wires at the dam received the full charge of 33,000 volts resulting in his death. According to the story related by an older brother of the lad, his intentions were to go up the tower and touch the wire with a piece of sage brush which he carried with him. He saw how the wire was completed between the boy's body and the tower, he was enveloped in a vicious flame. The wire was about fifty feet from the ground and the boy after being horribly burned, plunged downward. The fall resulted in a crushed skull in addition to other injuries. The brother ran home to break the sad news and the mother and uncle of the unfortunate child rushed to the side of the little victim. Upon examination of the tower it was discovered that the metal cage tower, beams which received the current had been fused and it was thought that the boy had thrown his arm over the wire or had come in contact with it in some other effective manner.

New Decision On Game Law—It seems that the federal authorities have again upset the theories of sportsmen regarding the open and closed seasons on migratory birds. Last season there was considerable controversy over the situation, and sportsmen generally felt content to stand pat on the federal regulation, making October 1st the first day of the open season on ducks, the statute having defined it a month earlier.

In the meantime it appears that various factors have been busy in the effort to set aside the regulation and create a new one, and according to a bulletin received locally from the department of agriculture, which has jurisdiction over the game department, a break open season is before us for this year. If another change is not made.

The zones are also changed, and on the rather peculiar theory, Idaho is placed in the breeding zone, and the season opened 25 days earlier than last year—the very thing the sportsmen have fought against, as the birds of the breeding areas of this state will be moved down by thousands and not shooters long before their pin-feathers are even half developed.

opened earlier and closed earlier, the states of Oregon, Washington and Utah, are excepted, and the same open season as last year obtains with the neighbors, or between October 1 and January 16.

This means that the sportsmen can get busy early in September and run all the old ducks into the neighboring states, and kill off the fledglings, and about the time the shooting gets good in the states of Oregon, Washington and Utah, and the ducks come back to Idaho, the season will be closed. Sportsmen of this locality are rather at a loss to figure out who promulgated this eccentric regulation.

—Pocatello Tribune.

DUCK SEASON WILL OPEN SEPTEMBER 6
Through the efforts of the sportsmen of southern Idaho and State Game Warden Roy Jones, the federal game department has rescinded their previous order of opening the duck season in Idaho as late as October 1st. The new ruling changes the former zone and places Idaho with Montana and Wyoming and opens the season for this territory on the 6th of September, making it just a month earlier than last year and fixing six days later than former years.

property owners were willing to have a sewer put through but some opposed a sidewalk. The council ordered the closing up of agreements relative to the sewer alone as soon as possible.

—North Side News.

Another factor that entered into the closing of the contract was the prompt delivery guaranteed by the Maxwell Company. A promise was made that the cars would all be turned over in three days and this promise was fulfilled to the letter.

The growing popularity of the Maxwell chassis in the commercial field was another element that entered into the transaction. These chassis are delivered all ready for the tops to be fitted on. There is no extra wiring or adjusting to be done. The tops may be made according to the specifications and requirements of the owner. Many merchants are finding this a most convenient method of purchasing cars for delivery purposes.

—Twin Falls Times.

The council after receiving reports of officers, adjourned until Saturday night.

MAXWELL GETS BIG

MUNICIPAL ORDER

The Maxwell Motor Company closed a contract last week with the municipal government of Kansas City for twenty-seven new motor cars. The order was placed by William C. Weaver, purchasing agent for Kansas City, after he had made an investigation extending over a field of cars of various makes. He found the Maxwell best adapted to the needs of the exacting municipal service, because of its durability, its dependability and its great economy in operation.

A Timely Warning

ELEVEN well-known automobiles have advanced in price within the last ninety days.

The Maxwell Company has not increased their prices. We do not know what their plans are, but we do know and you know that materials entering into the construction of good automobiles now cost from 20 to 300 per cent more than they did six months ago.

Nothing is to be gained by delay. Much may be lost.

Not only may you lose several dollars in the purchase price, but you are sacrificing the enjoyment, the relaxation, the health-giving properties—everything, in fact, that makes motoring the favorite pastime of the nation.

We urge you to come in and investigate the Maxwell.

Or, we will refer you to any number of Maxwell owners and let them tell you their own story in their own way.

They will tell you what they have told us. That the Maxwell is good-looking—that it is powerful—that it is comfortable—that it is economical—in short, that it is the best investment they ever made. They will tell you more and they will tell you gladly and freely.

That's the way they feel toward us and the Maxwell Car.

Whatever you do, don't put this off. We have a few cars on hand and can take orders for immediate or future delivery—at present prices. If you can't come in today, phone us for a Maxwell demonstration.
