COMPANY D ARRIVES IN BOISE IN FINE CONDITION AND ALL READY FOR EVENTUALITIES

Boys From This City Received With Enthusiasm in the Capital City—Boise Fairly Seething With Patriotic Fervor—Twin Falls and Buhl Boys Escorted by Band—No Plans For Leaving Announced as Yet.

(By Lieut. R. E. Leighton, Special Times Correspondent With Company D.)

BOISE, Ida., June 22.—The boys arrived in the state capital in fine shape yesterday. Company D had 72 men, all of whom appeared in fine condition, and all turned up for eventualities. Company K of Buhl, had 64 men on hand, and they, too, were ready to take their share of the mess and do their duty whatever it might be. The Boise band met us at the depot and escorted us through the streets which were lined with enthusiastic citizens, all of whom appeared to be in the best of health and spirits. The men and women who bore the brunt of the Revolutionary struggle could possibly have been. In fact, the state capital was in a ferment of excitement following the monster preparedness parade held the night before which was led by the G. A. R., the Spanish war veterans and other local organizations. In the memory of the oldest inhabitant so many flags had never before been seen. The eloquence of Governor Alexander, Lieutenant Governor Taylor, Mayor Haynes, James B. Hawley, Captain Davis, Colonel Wood and others added more fuel to the burning flames of patriotism. Nearly $100 was raised on the spot for the regimental fund. The battalion from northern Idaho will arrive today. Everything is getting into shape here and the boys are in the front, but up to the present no intimation has been received in regard to the time when the troops will leave the border. The boys all wish good luck to the folks at home and send greetings to everybody through THE TIMES.

TWIN FALLS BIDS GOODBYE TO BOYS

Large Crowd Turns Out to Early Morning Departure

FIRM HANDSHAKES AND CHEERFUL SMILES GIVEN SOLDIERS.

Big Mass Meeting Held Tuesday Night And Tribute Is Given To Company D. I. N. G.

Twin Falls arose bright and early Wednesday morning to see the brave boys in khaki off for the trip to Boise and the border and long before the train arrived a vast crowd had congregated, crowded from all parts of the city and from the country round about. The "old boys" who had worn the blue in the '90s were in a body, leading "Old Glory," the waving and swaying of the departing troops stood bravely by imparting confidence with their firm handshakes and cheerful smiles. Fathers and mothers, too, were there praying that the confident prediction of Captain P. W. McJannet, "We're coming back, night in all cases," be fulfilled. The train left pulled into the station and out of the cars Company K, of Buhl, full of confidence, for the critical moment of parting had passed with the boys and they were away from the station. They came in cheering and heartily did the crowd respond. There was a lot of cheering, a last goodbye, as the band, or what was left of it, played patriotic airs. The G. A. R. gave three cheers and a cheer, while the Buhl company shouted "What's the matter with the Twin Falls? She's All Right! Whose all right? Twin Falls!" and cheered again and again, the coming back from the assembled multitude. The train pulled away, last lingering glances were thrown back, until the main street crossing was passed, then the boys turned hopefully to the future, fully prepared to meet all contingencies. The Buhl boys were greatly excited over a report that officers were to be switched and that they might have to serve under other officers than those of their own selection. They insisted that the troops could in all instances be depended on to give better service under their own officers. Buhl raised about $500 for the mess according to J. M. Bradley, who gives up publicity work to face the stern realities of war. If necessary, and when says, however, that he will make on his own a contribution and glowing tribute to the members of the local militia. The meeting was called for seven-thirty o'clock, but long before that time the seats were filled with expectant people awaiting the arrival of the mil-

SHARP WARNING TO CARRANZA

"Gravest Consequences" Will Follow if He Carries Out Threats

DEMAND FOR WITHDRAWAL OF TROOPS FLATLY REJECTED

"United States Will Perform Full Duty," Must Demonstrate Ability to Protect Border.

WASHINGTON.—The American note flatly rejecting Gen. Carranza's demand for the withdrawal of United States troops from Mexico and rebuking the Carranza government for the discourteous tone and temper of its last communication, was handed today to Eliazar Arrondito, the Mexican ambassador-designate. Carranza's continuing outrages against Americans and their property both in Mexico and on American soil are reviewed in the note and warning is given that the troops will be kept in Mexico until such time as the de facto government performs the duty which the United States has not sought of participation in the civil war. It concludes with the statement that if the de facto government continues to ignore this obligation and carries out its threat to defend its territory by an appeal to arms against the Americans, the gravest consequences will follow. "While this government would deeply regret such a result," the note says, "it cannot recede from its settled determination to maintain its national rights and to perform its full duty in protecting further invasions of its territory of the United States and in removing the peril which Americans along the international boundary have borne so long with patience and forbearance." "I am reluctant to be forced to the conclusion which might be drawn from the de facto government's declaration," says Lansing, "that in spite of the crimes committed and the sinister designs of Villa and his followers, did not and does not now intend or desire that these outlaws should be captured, destroyed or dispersed by American troops or at the request of this government by Mexican troops." The purposes of the United States toward Mexico, questioned in the last communication, are announced in the following language: "If a denial is needed that this government has had ulterior and improper motives in its diplomatic representations or has countenanced the activities of American sympathizers and the American press opposed to the de facto government, I am glad to state emphatically to deny it. It is, however, a matter of common knowledge that the Mexican press has been more active than the press in the United States in endeavoring to inflame the two peoples against each other and to

MEXICANS KILL FORTY AMERICAN SOLDIERS-----CAPTURE SEVENTEEN

General Gomez, Carranza Commander, Killed In Bloody Encounter With Americans

WAR MAY BE DECLARED ANY MOMENT

STATE MILITIA TO BE RECRUITED TO WAR STRENGTH AT EARLIEST POSSIBLE MOMENT Governor Alexander, supposedly acting on instructions from Washington, is enlisting the people of the state to increase the strength of the state militia to full war strength as soon as possible. An urgent telegram was received by Mayor Sawdey of Twin Falls at two o'clock this afternoon to this effect. This action is thought to precede a declaration of war by the United States on account of the killing of American soldiers yesterday, reported in another column. The message follows: THE MAYOR OF TWIN FALLS, Twin Falls, Idaho. I request that yourself, Captain Longley, Lieutenant McQuinn of Buhl, in connection with Lieutenant Slee and Capt. H. W. Wilson and Dr. Weatherly of Buhl, act as recruiting officers for your section of the state. Act promptly and assist the officers named as the Idaho regiment has to be put on war footing. Enlist the Commercial club and other organizations in your aid. All expenses borne by the state. Answer. Lieutenant Slee will be down today. M. ALEXANDER, Governor.

ROUGH RIDER REGIMENT FOR IDAHO IN CASE OF WAR WITH MEXICANS

Recruits Can Enlist at Office of THE TIMES—Colonel Thomas Hamer Will Be In Command—Harry McKinley and John Warren White to Help Get Men—Want 200 From Twin Falls and Cassia Counties.

In the event of war with Mexico enlistment of recruits will be received at the office of THE TIMES for the Rough Rider regiment, which will be organized by Colonel Thomas Hamer, of St. Anthony. The work of enlisting at Buhl and at Piler will be in the hands of John Warren White, editor of the Buhl Pioneer, and Harry McKinley, a former resident of this city and Piler. Colonel Hamer was head of the Idaho regiment in the Philippine war, and Mr. White served there in a Nebraska regiment. Application blanks will be on hand at THE TIMES office. The plan is to organize a regiment of this state and it is expected that 200 of the number will be recruited from Twin Falls and Cassia counties. A number of native young men desire to go to the front should a call be issued for volunteers, as it undoubtedly will if war is declared. Sawdey, White and McKinley will be in Twin Falls frequently and help in getting enlistments.

DR. ALEXANDER IS NOW RECOVERING

Infection From Cut During Operation Resulted In Bad Case of Poisoning.

Word received today from Dr. Alexander from Salt Lake City, is to the effect that the infection on his hand, resulting from a cut by an infected instrument, is much better and that he will probably be home in a few days. Dr. Alexander went to Salt Lake City, Sunday, and has been under the care of Dr. Hosmer ever since. He received his injuries last Wednesday while operating on Robert Lierman, a Chicago boy, for tonsillitis. Young Lierman vomited while the operation was in progress and in drawing out the lance, the doctor cut his hand, while protecting his patient.

OBTAIN RIGHT-OF-WAY ON CEDAR CREEK ROAD

O. E. Carlson and T. E. Moore, Twin Falls County Commissioners, View Work This Week.

A right-of-way has been secured for the Cedar Creek road through the homestead of Charles Hand, and this will mean that the work on the road will go right ahead. O. E. Carlson and T. E. Moore, county commissioners, went over the road this week and report that the crew is working on top of the Cedar Creek grade and that the road will be swung along the south side of the mountain pass.

PLEASURE PRODUCERS HAVE FIRST FILM

Will Give Shows In Local Theatre About July 1. Expect Film to Prove Success.

"The first Pleasure Film is now completed, and will be shown at a local theatre about the first of July," said James Taylor, manager of the Pleasure Producing Co. "When this happens the people of this city will be treated to an entertainment which will be one as good a production as is usually shown by the larger film corporations. This film has employed only local talent and has been staged and photographed by local men, using equipment secured by local capital. The enterprise is unique, because it is the first one of its kind to be organized in Idaho and when it has had time to organize, its activities will undoubtedly prove a very good advertising medium for Idaho and what Idaho offers. It will especially feature the Twin Falls tract, and as these films will be distributed throughout the entire country, it is a foregone conclusion that much good will come to this city. "The film is a two-reel, semi-western drama, entitled 'The Man of Sorrows,' and from the standpoint of plot is especially strong. "The acting of the characters is far better than was at first expected and the showmen public will no doubt doubt enjoy a pleasant surprise when the picture is thrown on the screen. "The cast included Mildred Conway, Loretta Walters, Mrs. J. R. Conway, C. G. Dorey, John Johnson, James L. Tate and Wm. L. Rogers, in the title role."

WAR MAY BE DECLARED ANY MOMENT

(W. N. U. Dispatch to TIMES, June 22nd.)

In bloody battle between American and Mexican soldiers near Carrizal, Mexico, forty Americans and twenty Mexicans were killed, the Mexican casualties including General Felix Gomez, a Carranza general. American report is that troops were ambushed while returning from scouting trip. Mexicans claim their messenger was fired on by American captain. Mexicans use machine gun, accounting for heavy American losses. Mexicans claim to have captured seventeen Americans. Will be taken to Chihuahua City. Believed that if attack was attempt to back up Carranzas' edict by force, that war will result. General Pershing expected to avenge killing of soldiers by pursuit of attacking force.

EL PASO, Tex.—A detachment of American soldiers clashed with Carranza forces at Carrizal, about 90 miles south of El Paso, early Wednesday, both sides suffering heavy casualties, according to unofficial reports received by Mexican military authorities in Juarez Wednesday night.

Telegraph Business Is Barometer of Good Times

WEEKLY INCREASE AVERAGES 40 PER CENT. OVER LAST YEAR.

Money Transfer Has Doubled in Last Year, Says Local Telegraph Manager.

According to H. H. Hedstrom, local manager of the Western Union office, Twin Falls is enjoying unusual prosperity, a condition which seems to be more evident here than at outside points.

"The telegraph business," said Mr. Hedstrom, "is one of the most accurate business barometers in the country. People do not send messages during hard times unless absolutely necessary. There has been a marked increase in messages sent from Twin Falls during the past few weeks, and this is indicative of general prosperity in and around the city."

"There has been an increase of from $50 to $125 a week over corresponding weeks a year ago. The average increase is 40 per cent. Business in this office last week totaled $222, the total for the same week last year being $210."

"Another factor indicating good times," said Mr. Hedstrom, "is the increase in money transfer by telegraph. This phase of the business has more than doubled in the last year. The cablegram business has also grown in volume."

"The Western Union has in use a graph system by which the management is able to note the fluctuations in the business of each office. In the local office," said Mr. Hedstrom, "the system shows that for the past two years business has been running on without fluctuation. The last few weeks, however, the increase has been marked and the turn-over is higher now than it has ever been before. The manager states that a comparison of the local graph with those from the outside shows that business prosperity is centered about Twin Falls, and the money seems to originate here."

"This general increase is notwithstanding the fact that June and July are usually the poorest months in the telegraph business. The increase has warranted the addition to the local force of one extra operator and an extra messenger-clerk, and Mr. Hedstrom says the company does not add to its force unless the business increases has every indication of being permanent."

Mr. Hedstrom is optimistic in regard to the fall outlook in the telegraph business. September, October and November are the busiest months in wire traffic and he believes the already heavy business enjoyed by the local office, will see still greater increase.

HOW GASOLINE EXPLOSIONS FROM STATIC ELECTRICITY CAN BE PREVENTED

THE SAFETY FIRST department of the Oregon Short Line railroad, has sent letters to all its employees, containing an article clipped from The Traveler's Standard, urging automobile drivers to exercise care in generating power for their cars and pointing out many dangers which may be averted by a little precaution. The advice, while directed to the employees of the railroad, is of interest to all automobilists.

It is as follows:

For some time reports have been received of fires originating during the handling of gasoline when there was apparently no means of starting a fire. No persons near these gasoline fires were either smoking or carrying matches, and there were no open lights of any kind in the vicinity. It appears the fires "just happened," without any cause whatever. This, of course, is contrary to all experience, and, after considerable investigation, the fires have been found to be due to ignition of gasoline vapor by sparks of static electricity.

In the interest of safety, so far as concerns accidents from the collection of gasoline, official instructions to the following effect have been issued to the various police and fire departments in the state of Massachusetts:

1. In drawing gasoline from a pump into a can the metal of the can should always be in electrical contact with the metal of the pump, so that any electricity that may be generated can pass off quietly through the pump to the ground. Wooden handles or other insulating substances on the handle of cans should be removed at once, so that when a can is hung by the handle on the hook all parts of the can will be in electrical contact with the pump. We know of two fires that have been caused by neglect of this precaution.

2. In filling the tank of a motor vehicle with gasoline from a can through a metal funnel containing a chamois skin strainer care should be taken to have the metal of the funnel in electrical contact with the metal of the tank, and also to have the can from which the gasoline is poured kept in electrical contact with the funnel. If it is inconvenient to rest the mouth of the can directly upon the edge of the funnel during the pouring, a piece of clean copper chain should be soldered to the mouth of the can used for this purpose, and the end of the chain should be allowed to rest in electrical contact with the tank or the funnel, and preferably with both of them. Blocks of wood or other insulating substances should never be placed around the filling hole of the tank to make the funnel stand upright during the process of filling, because they insulate the funnel from the tank and allow electricity to accumulate in the metal of the funnel, when it would otherwise pass off harmlessly as fast as formed to the metal of the vehicle. It has been known that "man stands on the rubber covering of the running board of a motor vehicle and fills the tank with gasoline from a can which he holds in the air sufficient electricity may be generated by the friction of the gasoline passing out of the mouth of the can to cause a spark and resultant fire, when the can is brought near any metal substance. Hence the necessity of the copper chain and of electrical contact with the funnel and the tank during filling. Neglect of these precautions has resulted in at least five fires.

3. In filling the tank of a motor vehicle with gasoline from a pump with a hose having a metal nozzle fires have been known to occur from frictional electricity generated by the passage of the gasoline through the rubber hose and collecting in dangerous intensity in the metal nozzle, from which it is discharged by means of a spark when the nozzle is brought near any metal substance. During the process of filling in this manner the metal nozzle should be kept in electrical contact with the car tank, or a hose with a metal fitting should be used. A bare copper wire woven through the inside of the hose and soldered to the metal of the nozzle at one end and to the metal of the pump connection at the other will insure the metal nozzle of electricity in the gasoline inside of the hose by conducting it off to the pump and the ground. At least two fires have been caused by neglecting these precautions.

Recent tests prove that as much as 500 volts can easily be generated by the forced passage of gasoline over non-conducting substances.

Automobiles should also protect against accumulation of deadly gas (carbon monoxide) in garages from running engines, as it has produced fatal results, day to day. If an engine is run indoors care should be taken to provide ample ventilation to expel the gas.

RABIES—AN ANSWER.

Have just read the letter in this issue by the "Doubter" and I have no doubt that if he were bitten by a pound or any other dog showing symptoms of the so-called rabies, the train couldn't go fast enough to carry him to Boise to receive the pasteur treatment. "Doubter" displays a wonderful amount of ignorance to put his own opinions before some of our most skilled physicians.

I can swear to what I have seen in my court in the land. Some of the rest of us have seen "poisoned" dogs also. I have read words on rabies also, and believe it to be a specific blood poisoning, transmissible to other animals, man included, in the same form as the one having it. I fear "Doubter" forgot to mention the last part of this. He being a confirmed bachelor no doubt puts a dog's intelligence far ahead of a woman's or child's and so pretends to judge his affection on a pack of hounds.

Yours,

"WITHOUT A DOUBT."

Why Leave Machinery in the Rain?

It is proved that machinery exposed to the weather not only loses time as quickly as they wear out. In other words, every dollar you invest in a machine that gets three of them if you let it.

Some men use their hands to store their tools, but usually there isn't enough space. Why not keep it in a shed? It's the modern way.

The cost of building such a shed is much less than you think, much less than what you'd otherwise have to pay for new machines and new parts.

We have a full line of good building materials. The sooner you get your shed started, the sooner it will start saving you money.

THE BOOZE JOINT AT TWIN SPRINGS.

An organized effort which originated in Kimberly, is being made to induce the commissioners of Elko county, Nevada, to revoke the license under which a saloon, just across the state boundary, fifteen miles south of Rogerson, is operated.

The officials of Elko county will be entirely within their legal rights if they decline to heed the request which is presented. The governor of Idaho will make in response to the petitions which are being addressed to him by the people of this county. It is to be hoped, however, that as a matter of courtesy, and while not legally obligated, certainly morally obligated, Elko county will accede to the wishes of the people of Twin Falls county in this respect.

That the state of Nevada has not seen fit to enact a prohibition law or that Elko county prefers to be "wet" instead of "dry," are matters which pertain to the people of that state and county, and with which the people of Idaho and particularly of Twin Falls county have no disposition to interfere. In the absence of any national prohibition act, the alcohol climate of Nevada is a condition that the Nevada people have a right to determine for themselves. No interference of any character with this right is contemplated by those asking the discontinuance of the Twin Springs resort.

It is because the Twin Springs institution was established and is maintained solely to interfere with the right of this county and the right of this state to discontinue the use of intoxicating liquors within the limits of the state and county, that the commissioners of Elko county, Nevada, are petitioned to discontinue this booze joint, which obviously is being conducted not for the purpose of supplying the demands of Nevada people, but solely to profit by an illicit trade from Idaho.

We are confident that if the matter is properly presented to the commissioners of Elko county they will cooperate with this county to the extent of refusing to license a saloon whose income depends solely upon a trade that violates the laws of a neighboring state. However, much the prohibition advocates of this county might like to see the liquor traffic in Nevada or Elko county entirely eliminated, they cannot go further in their requests to the commissioners of Elko county, nor do we understand that they propose to.

If Elko county will grant such a reasonable request it will go a long way towards improving the situation, lessening the illegal traffic in liquor, and making it possible for the officials of Twin Falls county to come somewhere near establishing the standard of "dryness" in this vicinity that the people want.

REJECTS SCHEME FOR ADVERTISING

Commercial Club Turns Down Herald Proposition

MERCHANTS SAY MONEY BETTER EXPENDED LOCALLY.

Large Crowd Views Motion Picture Taking at Shoshone Falls Wednesday Afternoon.

The Twin Falls Commercial club and the Merchants' association decided yesterday morning after long consideration, that they would not accept the offer of the Chicago Herald to give publicity to Twin Falls, for the consideration of $2000 to pay "for packing and shipping only," as the "Free Cure" distributors say, and that they would make a sensible campaign for advancement and ward development of the bureau and other tracts would do more for the business interests of the city than the expenditure of a large sum of money on the movie crowds in the interest of a Chicago newspaper could possibly do.

Another argument brought forth against the advertising proposition was that this type of publicity would not reach the class of buyers who would be of value in advancing the interests of this locality. As all the land at present is taken up there is no room for the substantial farmer of the middle west.

The plan as originally described by Walter H. Roderick, advance man of the paper, to the newspapers of this city, involved the taking of pictures by President M. S. Beatty of the Amazon Film company to be used in motion pictures, in lost towns and cities, through the middle-west, and the description of the towns, cities and surrounding country by a special writer, this service the newspaper was to be repaid in subscriptions. The city was also to have the privilege of placing an exhibit in a show in Chicago, fully described in these columns at the time. Mr. Roderick added that Ward D. Williams representing the paper, would further describe the matter on his arrival, Tuesday, June 20. Mr. Williams did. He arrived with H. A. Smith of Omaha, colonization and industrial agent of the Union Pacific, and President Beatty, Tuesday afternoon and held the matter before the city, mentioning the industrial feature of the $2000. The business men were skeptical. One man suggested that the sort of immigrants that would come were principally those who would add to competition in business and on the labor market rather than those who would develop the agricultural resources of the tract. Others objected along the same line. It was decided to take the matter up with the Merchants' association, and Wednesday morning another meeting was held at which the proposition was definitely rejected.

The vote taken, however, had to be settled by the chairman, as those present were equally for and against the proposition.

THE ORPHEUM VAUDEVILLE.

Patrons of the Orpheum may be interested in knowing that the vaudeville which is being played at that theatre is the best of the kind being shown on some of the best vaudeville stages in the west. One of the acts playing at the local theatre last week was highly spoken of by the Salt Lake papers where it played at the Pantages theatre, one of the leading vaudeville houses of that city. The other act shown at the Orpheum program was taken from Seattle where it was seen at a high class vaudeville house. Manager Anderson of the Orpheum, is doing everything possible to obtain the best vaudeville for his patrons.

LILLIAN WALKER AT ISIS

Refusing to continue as the family drudge, because of her failure to "land a husband," Cella, the oldest daughter of a great Englishman and his wife, creates a fiasco out of her imagination. Prior to this time she was forced to wear green stockings at the wedding of her younger sister—an old English custom marking her entrance into spinsterhood.

Her announcement caused a decided change in the attitude of her family and friends toward her and she becomes the pet of the household. Suitors appear, seeing nothing unbecomingly charged, pay her attention and her life becomes happily once more. As a mark of devotion toward Col. Smith, the name she calls her lover, she is forced to pen him many tender letters. Without her knowledge, these find their way into the past, and eventually find their way into the hands of Col. Smith, quartered in South Africa. He is puzzled in the extreme but finds much delight in reading the letters and develops a great curiosity to see and talk with their author.

Such is the way the story of "Green Stockings" starts. The working out of this pretty comedy by Miss Walker shows her at her best and the story itself will prove intensely interesting.

In addition to Miss Walker, Ham and Paul are shown in a one-reel comedy, Friday and Saturday.

Mac Sennett says he is a little suspicious that many of the Triangle-Kayser directors timed their last picture so they would Hollywood, the ending of the trout season. Four of the fifteen directors working under the general supervision of Sennett turned in their pictures last week, then took

PATRIOTIC PARADE ON JULY FOURTH

Everybody Get a Flag and Get In Is Advice Given

THE GRANDEST PROCESSION EVER SEEN HERE IS PLANNED.

Prices For Floats Representing the Patriotic, the Commercial and the Aesthetic Offered.

"Everybody get off the sidewalk and join the parade, carrying a flag, if you are an American we expect you," is the statement given out by the committee for the patriotic parade on July 4th. It is confidently believed will be the greatest event of its kind that ever took place in the history of Idaho. The details relative to the parade will be given in the coming days. The parade will be held on Tuesday, but complete arrangements will be made so that everybody can take a part without being compelled to walk so far as to get tired.

The parade will begin at 10 o'clock, sharp, and will be all over before the procession of the Robinsons' circus comes on at 11 o'clock. First will come the Grand Army of the Republic, followed by the "Glee" club, the place where Company D would have marched, had it been on hand instead of defending the country; the "Glee" club, and the "Glee" club. The band will follow these, and after the band will come the city officials and the officials of the civic organizations. This will be followed by the fraternal orders, the baseball teams, the floats, and the decorated autos. No auto without the flag or national colors will parade, and at the proper time the police will be on hand.

It is planned to make the display of floats for the city as best as seen in the city. There will be first and second prizes of $10 and $5 for the best and second best commercial floats, and first and second prizes of $10 and $5 for the best and second best patriotic floats, representing love of country, and the best and second best floats representing the patriotic spirit. There will be a prize of $5 for the most beautifully decorated float, representing the way in which people want to do things. It is planned to have the "Star Spangled Banner" sung as the parade passes.

ADDITIONAL SOCIETY.

Owing to Chautauqua, the meeting of the Wednesday Auction Bridge club was postponed to June 28th, when it will be held at the home of Mrs. W. H. Greenhow.

Adds New Department—The Twin Falls Vinegar and Cider company has added to its equipment modern machinery for the manufacture of soda water. In its products, the company uses true fruit juices instead of artificial flavors. Elm Park well water, reported by the state chemist as being the purest water on the tract, is also used. Twin Falls is the company's brand name, and they have had printed an attractive label showing a red apple with photograph of Twin Falls in colors in the center.

Case Under Adversity—In the preliminary hearing held Wednesday of the case against R. E. Gregg, of Hollister, accused of burglary by R. H. Lee, the case was taken under advisement by Judge Ostrom. Judge Ostrom has as yet been handed down. A second charge was made against Gregg, by Irla Fuller, who accuses the former of theft of a set of furs.

WANAMAKER TALKS ON THE JUDICIARY

Ohio Supreme Justice Speaks on "People and Their Courts"

LARGE CROWD HEAR HIM AT THE CHAUTAUQUA TENT.

Declares That Monopolies Are Behind the Bosses in Controlling Hidden Government.

That the judiciary is behind the rest of our political and economic system in evolutionary development; that lawyers as a whole and judges as a whole are honest and able, but that many are wrapped in a web of technicalities which incapacitates them from seeing things in their true relations; that men of the peculiar type of mind which naturally takes the point of view of monopolies and violators of the laws of regulating big business are placed on the bench as well as in executive and legislative positions, through hidden machinery manipulated by political bosses secretly in the service of big business, for the purpose of securing biased opinions honestly given, and that the people should take at least as much care to see that their legislators represent their views, were men advanced for a reform in judicial practices by Judge R. M. Wanamaker, associate justice in the supreme court of Ohio, at the Chautauqua Tent, Wednesday night. Judge Wanamaker takes the position that power everywhere, even in Russia, resides ultimately with the people. Men of all kinds, he said, are to neglect their duties and then abuse the law makers or law interpreters for failing to do their full duty. If people want laws honestly made and fairly interpreted it is necessary that they pay close attention to the operation of the machinery of government. This is what Abraham Lincoln, the greatest man of all history, advocated. Some years ago "Hattling Bob" LaFollette, on examining the machinery of government in his own state, discovered that the people were not getting fair return in the way of grit for the meat put into the hopper at the mill. He discovered that special interests were taking things out of the way of franchises and privileges and putting in fraudulent material instead. He also discovered that great interests by means of money were taking away the power of government furnished by the people. He made the statement that there was a "hidden government" at work, and afterwards, Bryan and T. R. and others used the same expression. It was denied, but at the constitutional convention held last year in New York, Illinois, Iowa and elsewhere, the address was roundly applauded by the large audience in attendance.

big business made a great speech in which he said that during the past generation the government of the great state of New York had seldom resided in Albany where the governor and legislature and higher courts met, but for years had been at No. 49 Broadway, the office of Thomas C. Platt, Judge, Wanamaker, however, contended that the boss was not the ultimate source of hidden government. He told an experience which he had when prosecuting attorney in Ohio. A Democratic politician tried to buy a franchise, without proper regard for the law, all Republicans, came and threatened him with defeat if he insisted on prosecuting the offending Democrat. They said that they owned both newspapers, both committees, and controlled the situation and that they were interested in the carrying of the illegal franchise and he must not prosecute the Democratic politician. He insisted and won his fight, but it taught him, and his later experience confirmed him in his conviction, that the great interests were behind the machine and owned them. Judge Wanamaker paid a high tribute to lawyers as a whole for ability and honesty, and said that in the main the men who gave biased opinions were not intentionally dishonest. A man who makes a practice of criminal law becomes accustomed to looking at things minutely for the purpose of finding flaws. He may be absolutely honest and may become wealthy and famous, but he is developing a type of mind that sees things from a limited point of view. Elevate this man to the bench and he is still the same man. He interprets the law honestly as he interprets it for his criminal practice. Similarly, a man who spends his life in the service of great predatory interests, looks at the law only from their point of view and when on the bench sees things just as he saw them as a lawyer. Against all this Judge Wanamaker protested and insisted that the people should take care to discover the point of view of the candidate for the judiciary no less than the candidate for the legislature. He closed his address by apparently absurd declarations, given on technical grounds, and to show that it was a matter of mental bias and not of corruption, cited the case of the Missouri supreme court which turned loose a penniless thief, who was caught stealing two shoes, because the indictment charged it as he had stolen "a pair of shoes," whereas he had inadvertently stolen two shoes for the same fact and this did not, in the opinion of the court, constitute "a pair." The laws delay, also came in for a sound scolding, the speaker declaring that delayed justice ceased to be justice. He said that the Ohio supreme court had so amended its procedure that it was able to get to any case within two or three months and get rid of it, instead of waiting for years.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—Sheridan's attempt to make a business man of his son Bibbs by starting him in the machine shop ends in Bibbs going to a sanitarium, a nervous wreck.

CHAPTER II—On his return Bibbs is met at the station by his sister Edith.

CHAPTER III—He finds himself an inconsiderate and unaccomplished figure in the "New House" of the Sheridans. He sees Mary Vertrees looking at him from a summer house next door.

CHAPTER IV—The Vertreeses, old town family and impoverished, call on the Sheridans, new-rich, and offend them. Mary puts into words her unspoken wish that she marry one of the Sheridan boys.

CHAPTER V—At the Sheridan house-warming banquet Sheridan spreads himself. Mary Vertrees encounters Jim Sheridan's attention, and Bibbs hears he is to be sent back to the machine shop.

CHAPTER VI—Mary tells her mother about the banquet and shocks her mother by talking of Jim as a matrimonial possibility.

CHAPTER VII—Jim tells Mary Bibbs is not a lunatic. "Just queer," he proposes to Mary, who half accepts him.

CHAPTER VIII—Sheridan tells Bibbs he must go back to the machine shop as soon as he is strong enough. In spite of Bibbs' plea to be allowed to write.

CHAPTER IX—Edith and Bibbs, Roscoe Sheridan's wife, quarrel over Bobby Lamborn; Sybil goes to Mary for help to keep Lamborn from marrying Edith, and Mary leaves her in the room alone.

CHAPTER X—Bibbs has to break to his father the news of Jim's sudden death.

CHAPTER XI—All the rest of the family helps in their grief. Bibbs becomes temporary master of the house. At the funeral he meets Mary and rides home with her.

CHAPTER XII—Mrs. Sheridan pleads with Bibbs to return to the machine shop for his father's sake, and he consents.

CHAPTER XIII—Bibbs purposely interrupts a tea-party between Edith and Lamborn. He tells Edith that he overheard Lamborn making love to Roscoe's wife.

CHAPTER XIV—Mutual love of music arouses intimate friendship between Bibbs and Mary.

CHAPTER XV—Mary sells her piano to get the finances of the Vertrees family.

CHAPTER XVI—Roscoe and his wife quarrel over Lamborn.

CHAPTER XVII—Sheridan finds Roscoe in an intoxicated condition during office hours and takes him home.

CHAPTER XVIII—Friendship between Bibbs and Mary ripens into a more intimate relation, and under Mary's influence Bibbs decides to return to the machine shop.

CHAPTER XIX—Sheridan finds his son Roscoe's affairs in a muddled condition owing to his intemperate habits.

CHAPTER XX—Bibbs, under the inspiration of Mary's enthusiasm, makes good in the machine shop. Sheridan is injured while attempting to show the boy how to do his work.

CHAPTER XXI—Sybil, intensely jealous over her position in the household, makes a scene in the Sheridan home, and Lamborn is ordered out of the house by Sheridan.

CHAPTER XXII—Bibbs finds great happiness in his work and his growing love for Mary.

CHAPTER XXIII—Edith leaves for New York, ostensibly to visit a friend. Roscoe tells his father that he is going to quit the business and go away with his wife.

CHAPTER XXIV.

Sheridan waited until he heard the sound of the outer door closing; then he rose and pushed a tiny disk set in the wall. Jackson appeared.

"Has Bibbs got home from work?"

"Mist' Bibbs? No, sah."

"Tell him I want to see him, soon as he comes."

"Yesuh."

Sheridan returned to his chair and fixed his attention fiercely upon the newspaper. He found it difficult to pursue the items beyond their explanatory rubrics—there was nothing unusual or startling to concentrate his attention.

"Molenaar Puts Blame on Brakes, Three Killed When Car Slides," "Burglars Make Big Hunt," "Road Works Approve Big Car-line Extension."

"Hold-up Men Injure Two, Man Found in Alley, Skull Fractured."

"Sickening Story Told in Divorce Court," "Plan New Eighteen-story Structure," "Schoolgirl Meets Death Under Automobile," "Negro Cuts Three, One Dead," "Life Crushed Out: Third Elevator Accident in Same Building Causes Action by Coroner."

"Declare Millits Will be Menace, Polish Societies Protest to Governor in Church Rieling Case," "Short $3,500 in Accounts, Trusted Man Kille Self With Drug."

"Found Proven, Family Without Food or Fuel, Baby Dead When Parents Return Home From Seeking Work," "Minister Returned From Trip Abroad Lectures on Big Future of Our City, Sees Big Improvement During Short Absence, Says to European City Hosts 'Candle'."

(Sheridan nodded approvingly here.)

Bibbs came through the hall whistling, and entered the room briskly.

"Well, father, did you want me?"

"Yes, sit down," Sheridan got up, and Bibbs took a seat by the fire, holding out his hands to the crackling blaze, for it was cold outdoors.

"I came within seven of the shop record today," he said. "I handled more strips than any other workman in any day this morn'g. The nearest to me is sixteen behind."

"There," exclaimed his father, greatly pleased. "What'd I tell you? I'd like to hear Gurney hint again that I wasn't right in saying you there—I would just like to hear him! And you—ain't you ashamed of makin' such a fuss about it? Ain't you?"

"I didn't go at it in the right spirit the other time," Bibbs said, smiling brightly, his face glowing in the cheerful firelight. "I didn't know the difference it meant to like a thing."

"Well, I guess I've pretty thoroughly vindicated my judgment. I guess I have! I said the shop'd be good for you, and it was. I said it wouldn't hurt you, and it hasn't. It's been just exactly what I said it would be. Ain't that so?"

"Looks like it," Bibbs agreed, gayly.

"Well, I'd like to know any place I been wrong, first and last! Instead of hurtin' you, it's been the making of you—physically. It's started you out to be the huskiest one of the whole family. Now, then, mentally—that's different. I don't say it unkindly, Bibbs, but you got to do something for yourself mentally, just like what's been done physically. And I'm goin' to help you."

Sheridan decided to sit down again. He brought his chair close to his son's, and, leaning over, tapped Bibbs' knee confidentially. "I got plans for you, Bibbs," he said.

Bibbs instantly looked thoroughly alarmed. He drew back. "I—I'm all right now, father."

"Listen," Sheridan settled himself in his chair, and spoke in the tone of a reasonable man reasoning. "Listen here, Bibbs. I had another blow today, and it was a hard one and right in the face, though I have been expected it. Now I'll be frank with you. As I said a minute ago, mentally I couldn't ever called you exactly strong. You got will power, I'll say that for you. I never knew boy or man that could be stubborn—never in my life! Now, then, you've showed you could learn to run that machine best of any man in the shop, in no time at all. That looks to me like you could learn to do other things. I don't deny but what it's an unenviable sign, but I got to give you a job. Now, then, I'm goin' to give you a job. I wanted to send you straight on up through the shops—a year or two, maybe—but I can't do it. I lost Jim, and now I've lost Roscoe. He's quit. He's hid down on me. If he ever comes back at all, he'll be a long time pickin' up the strings, and, anyway, he ain't the man I thought he was. I can't count on him. I got to have somebody. I know I can count on me, and I'm down to this: you're my last chance. Bibbs, I got to lower you to use what brains you got and see if we can't develop 'em a little. Who knows? And I'm goin' to put my time in on it. I'm goin' to take you right down to work with me, and I won't be hard on you if you're a little slow at first. And I'm goin' to do the big thing for you. I'm goin' to make you feel you got to do the big thing for me, in return. I'm goin' to make an appeal to your ambition that'll make you dizzy! He tapped his son on the knee again. "Bibbs, I'm goin' to start you off this way: I'm goin' to make you a director in the Pump Works company; I'm goin' to make you vice president of the Realty company and a vice-president of the Trust company."

Bibbs jumped to his feet, blanched.

"Oh, no!" he cried.

Sheridan took his dismay to be the excitement of sudden joy. "Yes, sir! And there's some pretty fat little salaries goes with those vice-presidencies, and a pinch of stock in the Pump company with the directorship. You thought I was pretty mean about the shop—oh, I know you did—but you see the old man can play both ways. And so right now, the minute you've been to me and got the way I wanted you to, I'm down from the new deck. And I'll keep on handin' it out bigger and bigger every time you show me you're big enough to play the hand I deal you. I'm startin' you with a pretty big one, my boy."

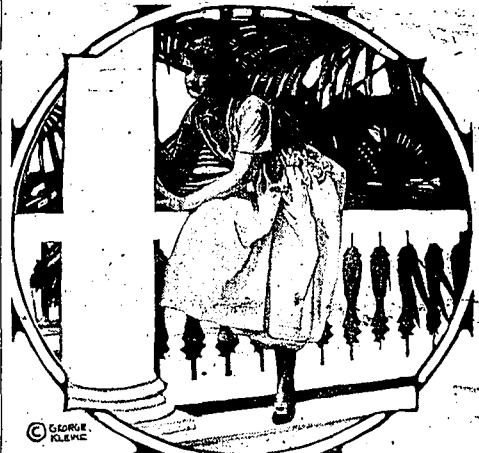

"But I don't—I don't—I don't want it!" Bibbs stammered.

Sheridan looked perplexed. "What's the matter with you? Didn't you understand what I was tellin' you?"

"I know, I know! But I can't take it."

"What's the matter with you?" Sher-idaho was half amazed, half suspicious.

"Your head feel funny?"

"I've never been quite so sane in my life," said Bibbs, "as I have lately."

And I've got just what I want. I'm living exactly the right life. I'm earning my daily bread, and I'm happy in doing it. My wages are enough. I don't want any more money, and I don't deserve any."

"Pammon!" Sheridan sprang up.

"You've turned Socialist! You been listening to those fellows down there, and you—"

"No, sir. I think there's a great deal in what they say, but that isn't it."

Sheridan tried to restrain his growing fury, and succeeded partially.

"Then what is it? What's the matter?"

"Nothing," his son returned, nervously. "Nothing—except that I'm content. I don't want to change any thing."

"Why not?"

Bibbs had the incredible folly to try to explain. "I'll tell you, father, if I can. I know it may be hard to understand—"

"Yes, I think it may be," said Sheridan, grimly. "What you say usually is a little that way. Go on."

Perturbed and distressed, Bibbs rose instinctively; he felt himself at every possible disadvantage. He was a sleeper clinging to a dream—a rough hand stretched to shake him and wake him. He went to a table and made vague drawings upon it with a dagger, and as he spoke he kept his eyes lowered.

"You weren't altogether right about the shop—that is, in one way you weren't, father."

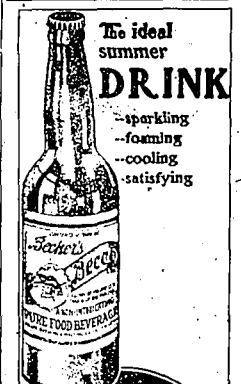

He glanced up apprehensively. Sheridan stood facing him, expressionless, and made an attempt to interrupt. "That's difficult to explain," Bibbs continued, lowering his eyes again, to follow the tracings of his finger. "I—I believe the shop might have done for me this time if I hadn't—something hadn't helped me to—oh, not to do it, but to be happy in it. Well, I am happy in it. I want to go on just as I am. And of all things on earth that I don't want, I don't want to live a business life—I don't want to be drawn into it. I don't think it is living—and now I am living. I have the beautiful toll—and I can think. In business as important as yours I couldn't think anything but business. I don't—I don't think making money is worth while."

"Go on," said Sheridan, curtly, as Bibbs paused timidly.

"It hasn't seemed to get anywhere, that I can see," said Bibbs. "You think this city is rich and powerful—but what's the use of its being rich and powerful? They don't teach the children any more in the schools because the city is rich and powerful. They teach them more than they used to because some people—not rich and powerful people—have thought the thought to teach the children. And yet when you've been reading the paper I've heard you objecting to the children being taught anything except what would help them to make money. You said it was wasting the taxes. You want them taught to make a living, but not to live. When I was a little boy this wasn't an ugly town; now it's hideous. What's the use of being big just to be hideous? I mean I don't think all this has meant really going ahead—it's just been getting bigger and dirtier and noisier. Wasn't the whole country happier and in many ways wiser when it was smaller and cleaner and quieter and kinder? I know you think I'm an utter fool, but, after all, though, aren't business and politics just the housekeeping part of life? And wouldn't you despise a woman that not only made her housekeeping her ambition, but did it so nobly and bravely that the whole neighborhood was in a continual turmoil over it? And suppose she suffered and thought about her housekeeping all the time, and was always having additions built to her house when she couldn't keep clean what she already had; and suppose, with it all, she made the house altogether unpeaceful and unlivable—

"Just one minute!" Sheridan interrupted, adding, with terrible courtesy, "If you will permit me? Have you ever been right about anything?"

"I don't quite—"

"I ask the simple question: Have you ever been right about anything whatever in the course of your life? Have you ever been right upon any subject or question you've thought about or talked about? Can you mention one single time when you were proved to be right?"

He was flourishing the discarded hand as he spoke, but Bibbs said only, "If I'm always been wrong before, surely there's more chance that I'm right about this. It seems reasonable to suppose something would be due to bring up my average."

"Yes, I thought you wouldn't see the point. And there's another you probably couldn't see, but I'll take the liberty to mention it. You been talking all your life. Pretty much everything I ever wanted you to do, you'd let out some kind of a holler, like you are now—and yet I can't seem to remember once when you didn't have to lay down and do what I said. But go on with your remarks about our city and the business of this country. Go on!"

"I don't want to be part of it," said Bibbs, with unvoiced decision. "I want to keep to myself, and I'm doing it now. I couldn't, if I went down there with you. I'd be swallowed into it. I don't care for money enough to—"

"No," his father interrupted, still dangerously quiet. "You've never had to earn a living. Anybody could tell that by what you say. Now, let me remind you: you're eating pretty fair food; you're wearing pretty fine clothes. Just suppose one of these noisy housekeepers—me, for instance—decided to let you do your own housekeeping. May I ask what your proposition would be?"

"I'm earning nine dollars a week," said Bibbs, sturdily. "That's enough, shouldn't mind at all."

"Who's paying you that nine dollars a week?"

"My work," Bibbs answered. "I've done so well on that clipping machine I believe I could work up to fifteen or even twenty a week at another job. I could be a fair plumber in a few months, I'm sure. I'd rather have a trade than be in business—I should, intuitively."

"You better set about learning a pretty damn quick!" But Sheridan struggled with his temper and again was partially successful in controlling it. "You better learn a trade over Sunday, because you're either going down with me to my office Monday morning—or you can go to plumbing!"

"All right," said Bibbs, gently. "I can get along."

Sheridan raised his hands sardonically, as in prayer. "O God," he said, "this boy was crazy enough before he began to earn nine dollars a week, and now his money's gone to his head! Can't you do nothing for him?" Then he hung his hands apart, palms outward, in a furious gesture of dismissal. "Get out of this room! You got a skull that's thicker'n a whale's thigh-bone, but it's cracked span' all the way across! You're cracked! Oh, but I got a fine layout here! One son died, one quit, and one's a hooler. The loon's all I got left! Well, mister, look or no look, cracked and crazy or whatever you are, I'll take you with me Monday morning, and I'll work you and learn you—yes and I'll learn you, if I got to—until I've made something out of you that's fit to be called a business man! I'll keep at you while I'm able to stand, and if I have to lay down to die I'll be whisperin' at you till they get the embalmin' fluid into me! Now go on, and don't let me hear from you again till you can come and tell me you've waked up, you poor, pitiful, 'million-dollar' sleep-walker!"

Bibbs gave him a queer look. There was something like reproach in it, for once; but there was more than that—he seemed to be startled by his father's last word.

CHAPTER XXV.

There was sleep that evening, with a whooping wind, but neither this storm nor that other which so immediately threatened him held place in the consciousness of Bibbs Sheridan when he came once more to the presence of Mary. All was right in his world as he sat with her, reading Maurice Maeterlinck's "Alladine and Palomides." And while the zinc cater held out to bring him such golden nights as these, all the king's horses and all the king's men might not serve to break the spell.

Bibbs slept slowly, but in a reasonable manner, as if he were talking; and Mary, looking at him steadily from beneath her curled fingers, appeared to discover no fault. It had grown to be her habit to look at him whenever there was an opportunity. It may be said, in truth, that while they were together, and it was light, she looked at him all the time.

When he came to the end of "Alladine and Palomides" they were silent a little while, considering together; then he turned back the pages and said:

"There's something I want to read over. This:

You would think I threw a window open at the dawn. I see that a soul that can be seen around her—that takes up in its own life an ideal child and without saying anything to you consoling you for everything. . . . I shall never see that child again. I do not know how it can be, but my knees bend in spite of me when I speak of it."

He stopped and looked at her.

"You boy!" said Mary, not very clearly.

"Oh, yes," he returned. "But it's true—especially my knees!"

"You boy?" she murmured again, blushing charmingly.

Another time over. "The first time I ever saw you, Bibbs, you were looking into a mirror. Do it again. But you needn't read it—I can give it to you: 'A little Greek slave that came from the heart of Atræus!'"

"I'm one of the hands at the Twin works—and going to stay one, unless I have to decide to study plumbing."

"No," she shook her head. "You love and want what's beautiful and delicate and serene; it's really art that you want in your life, and here always wanted. You seemed to me, from the first, the most wistful person I had ever known, and that's what you were wistful for."

Bibbs looked doubtful; but after a moment he took the matter seemed to clarify itself to him. "Why, no," he said; "I wanted something else more than that. I wanted you."

"And here I am!" she laughed, completely understanding. "I think we're like those two in 'The Chalk and the Cheese.' I'm just the round blue, gaudy cross-breed man, Benzy, who followed that gentle Gerard and told everybody that the devil was dead."

"He isn't, though," said Bibbs, as a hoarse little bell in the next room began to ring. "I'm just the round blue, gaudy cross-breed man, Benzy, who followed that gentle Gerard and told everybody that the devil was dead."

And she kept the door open—even tonight, though the sleet and fine snow swept in upon her bare throat and arms, and her brown hair was strewn with tiny white stars. His heart leaped as he turned and saw that she was there, waving her hand to him, as if he did not know that the storm touched her. When he had gone on, Mary did as she always did—she went into an unlit room across the hall from that in which they had spent the evening, and, looking from the window, watched him until he was out of sight.

The storm made that dim out tonight, but she caught a glimpse of him under the street lamp that stood between the two houses, and saw that he turned to look back again. Then, and not before, she looked at the upper windows of Roscoe's house across the street. They were dark. Mary waited, but after a little while she closed the front door and returned to her window.

A moment later two of the upper windows of Roscoe's house flashed into light and a hand lowered the shade of one of them. Mary felt the cold then—it was the third night she had seen those windows lighted and that shade lowered, just after Bibbs had gone.

Bibbs stopped at his last look back at the open door, and, with a thin mantle of white already upon his shoulders, made his way, gasping in the wind, to the lee of the sheltering wing of the new house.

A stricken George, muttering hoarsely, admitted him, and Bibbs became aware of a paroxysm within the house. "Terrible sounds came" from the library, Sheridan cursing as never before; his wife sobbing, her voice rising to an agonized squeal of protest upon each of a series of muffled detonations—the outrageous thumping of a bandaged hand upon wood; the Gurney sharply imperious. "Keep your hand in that sling! Keep your hand in that sling! Keep your hand in that sling!"

"Look!" George gasped, delighted to play herald for so important a tragedy; and he renewed upon his face the cheery expression with which he had first beheld the ruins his calamitous gesture hid before the eyes of Bibbs. "Look at a laminal statue!"

Gazing down the hall, Bibbs saw heroic wreckage, seemingly Byzantine—spotted colonial fragments of a shattered torso, appallingly human; and gilded and silvered heaps of magnificence strewn among ruinous palms like the spoil of a barbarians' battle. There had been a massacre in the house—the Moor had been hurled from his pedestal.

"He hit 'at ole laminal statue,'" said George. "Pow!"

"My father?"

"Yessuh! Pow! He hit 'er! An' you can run all at about quick 'a I kin telegram—she sho' you 'a pol' bus' a blood-vessel. He ain't takin' no 'tall now. He ain't nothin' 'tall to what he was 'while ago. You done miss 'it, Miss' Bibbs. Doctuh got him 'quid' down, so to what he was. Pow! but 'er! Yessuh!"

stance, if everybody should stop going to the movies it would save a lot of money, but disrupt and bankrupt thousands of firms and cut down the income of other thousands relying on this industry. We could do without many things, but the sacrifice would be costly to someone. With no surplus income, as a people, the millions of Europe cannot begin to save without destroying more than they save. They cannot, strictly speaking, save at all. They can only stop spending except for necessities and spend for war; but that is merely a conversion of wealth. Germany has been adopting extreme measures, and has been building the consumption of luxuries in Europe's poverty past the Great Britain has a thrift campaign on, and all unnecessary imports will be curtailed. But habits are not changed in a day and the efforts of spendthrift nations to be thrifty are pathetic.

In contrast with the plight of Europe, the United States is the only leading nation on earth, now having surplus capital. It is the only country that can really save—whose thrift is not forced. Not only because of our unique position, but because if cultivated now, thrift will make us the biggest moneyed factor in the world. Thrift was never fashionable, but ought to be always. Europe's loss must be our gain, and our gain will be lasting only as we make the habit lasting. Europe must learn how to be poor again, while we must learn how to be rich, losing our heads for riches while Europe's poverty past the hill. Every dollar you save now helps along in the good work. America's star of thrift is nearing its zenith.

SECURITY OF GASOLINE

REPORTED AMONG JOBBERS.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Independent oil jobbers testified before the federal trade commission that they were unable to buy gasoline from the refiners except in small quantities and that in spite of the increasing prices of the last year their actual profits had been no greater than in former years.

In many cases, they declare, jobbers were forced to order from refiners at higher prices than they were then receiving from their customers, depending for their profits on the increase which came before the refiners could deliver their orders.

All of the witnesses agreed that they had been unable to buy from the Standard Oil companies within the year, and were told that Standard Oil concerns had to withhold their produce from their regular customers.

SHOSHONE PAVING BEFORE COUNCIL

Intentional Ordinance Is Passed
Tuesday Night

JULY 11, LAST DAY FOR MAKING
WRITTEN PROTESTS.

New Water Rules Adopted and Inspector Ordered to Provide For Cleaning Reservoir.

The estimated cost of paving for Shoshone street under the petition was given as $28,350. The intentional ordinance gives property owners the right to protest, the date for such protests being set for July 11, on or before which date protests in writing must be on file with the city clerk. The ordinance is published elsewhere in these columns.

This charity ordinance was for the purpose of relieving sudden calls which require attention before the matter can be handled by the county commissioners. The money for this purpose was placed at the disposal of Chairman F. F. Bruckner, of the finance committee.

Water Inspector Porter reported that the reservoir had not been cleaned since the time when memory of man runneth not to the contrary, and that there was no authentic evidence going to show that it had ever been cleaned. He said that in order to clean it properly it would be necessary to run a pipe around the reservoir to the low line canal, connecting with the 16-inch pipe leading to the city. This would cost about $1700. The council authorized him to buy and install the pipe and also for the enforcement of rules governing the case where more than one person uses the same tank.

These rules are published in this issue, officially.

The city council met in adjourned session last night after the gathering at the chaletauqua tent and transacted considerable business including the granting of leave to Ed Johnson to put in a modern electrical gasoline tank near his garage opposite the library on Shoshone street; the passing of an intentional ordinance for the creation of a paving district on Shoshone street; the adoption of additional rules governing the use of water; set aside $100 for emergency charity work; authorized Water Inspector W. F. Porter to purchase pipe necessary for use in the decennial bath of the reservoir, and granted license privileges to the Fourth of July committee.

The first petition of Mr. Johnson for privilege to put in a tank on Shoshone street was refused on the ground that the city had adopted the policy of refusing such permits for the big tank parties. It was changed to a request for the right to bury such tank at the end of a concrete alley 40 feet from the pavement and the tank was granted. A service station will also be constructed by the company.

City Engineer J. A. Bybee made a report on the Golden Rule addition paving.

TWIN FALLS BIDS

GOODBYE TO BOYS

tiamen and the speakers for the occasion. It is estimated that 1500 people were present.

Promptly at half past seven, music by the city band was heard outside the tent, and as the seventy members of the local militia filed through the crowds to their seats, reserved at the front of the tent, the crowd expressed pride and admiration for the boys by holding in their feet and cheering. Another cheer was given when several veterans of the Civil war arrived with the colors.

The speeches were simple and short, but all the more expressive of the feeling of the occasion because of this. Mayor Sweeley was first to speak and he expressed his gratification at the sight of the large number of people present.

Representing the people of Twin Falls, Mayor Sweeley paid tribute to the members of the local militia for the enthusiastic and prompt manner in which they responded to the call of the president.

"This mobilization means more than a gathering of our young men to the defense of our flag," said Mr. Sweeley. "It is a crystallization of the country's patriotism and gives evidence that the people of need all are willing to contribute to the general cause."

Mr. Sweeley called upon S. P. Atherton, a veteran of the Civil war, and "more capable of inspiring the spirit of the occasion." Mr. Atherton in a rousing address assured the volunteers of the hearty support of the citizens of Twin Falls, and predicted that the stress of battle, if it should come, the home boys would acquire themselves bravely and proudly.

The mayor then said a few words of pleasure at the manner in which the business men had responded to a call to increase the treasury of Company D, presented to Captain F. F. McRobert a check for $220, the sum subscribed in a few hours work by liberal spirited men in town. Captain McRobert responded for Company D and thanked the citizens for their thoughtfulness and support, and made promises for the members of his company that they would do everything in their power when called upon to strengthen the confidence placed in them by the people of Twin Falls.

Mayor Sweeley next spoke, the needs of the Company in various ways and outlined the plan of organization to help the men obtain complete equipment. He said that 200 abdominal bands, for use in hot weather, and 100 kit bags to hold each man's possessions, were needed and called upon the patriotic women of the city to volunteer their services by making these bands and bags so that Company D might be assured of being the first fully equipped company in the state. It was found that about one-fifth of the woolen material required for the bands could be procured in the city, and an order of 200 yards is now on its way from Chicago, by express. This day will hold up the work for a couple of days, but by that time Mr. Sweeley says the complete organization of those who will handle the outfitting work will be perfected. No special organization of Red Cross service here is yet thought out, but will be later.

Captain Lenchy was last called upon and in his usual interesting manner gave reminiscences of his own war time experiences, and gave a "rowing" trainee to the American mother, who, he said, far outshone the traditional Spartan mother, when the time came for making a sacrifice of her sons on the altar of war.

Captain Lenchy gave, warning to the men of the many trials and temptations which beset the path of the soldier cut off from all the ties of home and parents, and in a dual blessing on the soldier, he said:

"I know that you will be true to your country and your flag, but also be true to these loving mothers, wives and sisters left behind. Be true to yourself and your God, and God be with you."

A word of appreciation was given by Mr. Sweeley to Mr. Erickson, of the Chaletauqua, for the kind donation of the tent for the occasion. Mr. Erickson then replied that the Chaletauqua system was always glad to do its share in an event of this kind, and he introduced the International Operatic company, who sang "The Soldier's Chorus" from the opera "Faust," a song quite appropriate to the occasion.

With three rousing cheers for Company D, the meeting broke up. The members of Company D of Twin Falls, who left for Boise Wednesday morning, are:

Captain P. W. McRobert, First Lieutenant C. H. Krenzel, Second Lieutenant R. E. Lichten, First Sergeant C. G. Dorey, Quartermaster J. H. Smith, V. E. Golden, A. D. Rounds, A. E. Wenzel, Corporals S. "THE BELOVED VAGABOND"

Truly a wonderful five-part play, an adaptation from the book by the same name. A note-worthy, beautiful picture in story, acting, settings and photography; the whole is a pure delight. If we should fill the entire page with fine oratory about its quality, we are sincere in saying we could not praise it too much; if you paid five times the admission of our regular schedule, it is our candid opinion you would say it was well worth the price. It contains none of the sensational stunts which are usually required to make a costly feature; yet, this picture cost over $25,000 to produce; it is a high-class work of art; it portrays a quaint character and a simple romance so artistically that you cannot help but enjoy the production; it is one you will remember a long time.

Times' Special Correspondence.
David Clark and Mrs. Franklin Brown entertained a large number of their friends at a dancing party last Monday evening, given at the home of

Mr. and Mrs. David Clark, who live two and quarter miles east of Twin Falls. Dancing commenced at an early hour and continued until well along into the morning of Tuesday. A heavy shower prevented the attendance of several of the invited guests, but despite the inclemency of the weather a large crowd enjoyed their sociability. Messrs. Wall of Twin Falls, and Charley Shroll of this place, furnished music with violin and guitar. At midnight refreshments of sandwiches, cake and coffee were served, then the dancing resumed. Those present were: Messrs. and Mesdames Nesbit, Copenhagen, Johnson, Mitchell, Baker, Gilman, Mrs. Percy Walslaw, Messrs. Johnston, Copenhagen, Wagner, Modlin, and the Messrs. Parker, Tukin, Berthold, Wagner, Smith, also Franklin Brown and wife and D. E. Clark and wife, and Miss Hunsaker.

Mrs. Ira Nicholson and daughter Willoh of the Oaks Corner district, are guests at American Falls this week, where Mrs. Nicholson's parents live. A picnic party spent the day at Shoshone falls Sunday, passing a very pleasant day. Those going down were: S. Follen and family, Charley Throll and family and Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd and children.

Frank Johnson was a caller in the neighborhood last week. Mr. Johnson was formerly field man for the sugar beet factory here.

Mrs. Belle Schroll is visiting with her parents, who live over on the North Side near Eden. She was accompanied by her sister, Mrs. Bertha Clyde, and twins, who live in Twin Falls.

Mr. Van Cliff of Oaks Corner, is building a fine new bungalow, one of the most modern to be built here for some time.

Frank Wilson is recovering rapidly from his recent indisposition of a short time ago.

W. Schroll and wife, parents of the Schroll boys here, are visiting with relatives and friends of our neighborhood this week.

Ben Deacon purchased a new Ford car last week.
