Murder charges reduced for Aragon, Quintana

Father, cousin involved in child's tragic trek now face manslaughter

By Andrea Jackson
Times-News writer

The Lincoln County prosecutor Wednesday reduced murder charges against a father and cousin accused in a girl's freezing death, after a defense lawyer pushed for a total dismissal.

Robert Aragon and his cousin Kenneth Quintana were each charged with second-degree murder and felony injury to a child, after Aragon's daughter, Sage, 11, died from hypothermia and her brother, Bear, suffered hypothermia during a Christmas day trek to visit their mother.

Aragon and Quintana are now charged with a lesser crime of involuntary manslaughter and face up to 10 years in prison, rather than 10 years to life for second-degree murder. The men are still charged with felony injury to a child.

Lincoln County Prosecutor E. Scott Paul didn't give an explanation in court records for why he's changed the charges. Judge Mark Ingram ordered attorneys to not talk to media about the case.

Quintana's lawyer, Douglas Nelson of the Roark Law Firm, filed an extensive memorandum Tuesday to dismiss the case — hours before Paul's charging changes hit 5th District Court in Shoshone.

Nelson said Quintana wasn't the legal guardian of the children and isn't responsible for what happened to them,

District gauging community support for $16.3 million bond that would help pay for new classrooms, cafeteria and gym

By Ben Botkin
Times-News writer

Jerome School District might decide to ask voters to approve a $16.3 million bond issue that will bring improvements to its high school.

Before that happens, though, the district wants to get a sense of how much community support — or opposition — exists for a proposal that would raise property taxes in a troubled economic climate. The Jerome Chamber of Commerce on Wednesday heard a presentation with details of what a bond proposal would bring to the community.

"We're here to educate you," said Kelly Bangarter, co-chair of a community committee that's gathering input and will make a recommendation to the school board.

He stressed that the committee wants to get lots of feedback before making a recommendation to the district's school board about whether to pursue a bond. The committee may make a recommendation to the school board as soon as February, he said.

"Our kids are only one-fourth of our population, but they're 100 percent of the future," Bangarter said.

Idaho officials: Meningitis exposure on bus reported

Bus stopped in Burley, Twin Falls

The Associated Press

BOISE — The Idaho Department of Health and Welfare is warning people who rode a Greyhound bus from Salt Lake City to Boise on Sunday that they may have been exposed to meningitis.

In a news release Wednesday, the department says up to 24 people who were on the bus may have been exposed to a patient with the disease.

Department spokeswoman Emily Simmitt said the bus trip began in Denver, and the ill person — who was only identified as a Nevada resident — was taken off the bus in Salt Lake City. The person died at a Salt Lake City hospital, and lab results showed the person had invasive meningococcal disease.

The bus made stops in Burley, Twin Falls, Boise and Nampa before continuing on to Portland, Ore. Simmitt said people who were on the bus should contact the department so they can get information about steps they should take to reduce the risk of developing the potentially fatal disease.

The health department says people most at risk of contracting the disease are those who had close contact with a patient, such as kissing, sharing food or beverages, or living with a person with the disease.

Simmitt said the disease is not easily transmitted from person to person, but people who are at risk of developing the illness should get preventative antibiotic treatment.

Shoshone school officials exploring options after bond fails

By Ben Botkin
Times-News writer

Shoshone School District officials aren't ready to commit to proposing another bond for school building improvements.

But they are not ruling it out for the future, either.

Last November, a $7.5 million bond proposal failed to garner enough votes to pass. If approved, it would have provided money for additional classrooms, a new gym and a multi-purpose room.

Superintendent Mel Wiseman talked with the school board on Tuesday night about what the district should do next. By law, the district has to wait six months before it can return to voters with another bond proposal.

"There was no positive action taken," Wiseman said.

"They basically want me to keep doing some homework."

For now, Wiseman will continue exploring costs of improvements and potential timelines for a second try at a bond. It's also possible that the district could pursue maintenance work to take care of drainage problems, which was part of the original bond proposal.

Wiseman stressed that no final decision has been made about whether the district will make a second attempt at seeking a bond.

"It's still an exploratory stage," he said. "We're very well aware of where the economic times are at."

Wiseman said it will take awhile before the district decides where to go from here.

Wolves and endangered list: an on-again, off-again relationship

Animal taken off endangered species list again, unknown for how long

By Nate Poppino
Times-News writer

Idaho's wolves are back off the endangered species list, though likely only as long as it will take for environmental groups to challenge the decision.

Working to recover from courtroom setbacks last year, the U.S. Department of Fish and Wildlife on Wednesday delisted wolves in Idaho, Montana and several western Great Lakes states. Left off the list was Wyoming, whose state laws and wolf management plan were criticized last year by a federal judge and deemed insufficient by the agency this time around.

The move, in the works since last fall, was announced by Deputy Secretary of the Interior Lynn Scarlett. Idaho, which had about half of the estimated 1,500 wolves in the three-state Rockies area last year, will have a target population level of 500.

"We believe this is a major success story for conservation," Scarlett said in a conference call with reporters. "We can all be proud of our various roles in saving this icon of the American wilderness."

Fish and Wildlife raced to complete the delisting rule before President-elect Barack Obama's administration takes over on Tuesday. The agency tried once last year to delist wolves in both regions, but withdrew its rule after court challenges questioned the wolves' ability to flourish and the agency's ability to leave the animals endangered across the rest of the country.

Officials with the Idaho Department of Fish and Game have worked since last fall to prepare for a according to court records.

Aragon drove Dec. 25 with Quintana to take Sage and Bear, 12, to see their mother, JoLeta Jenks. The car became caught in snow at 9 a.m. on West Magic Road near the Blaine County line, and the children tried to walk nearly 10 miles through frigid conditions to see Jenks, authorities assert.

Searchers found Bear about 11 hours later in a Bureau of Land Management restroom suffering from hypothermia. They found Sage at about 2 a.m. on Dec. 26 covered in snow, three miles from where she started walking.

Sage was pronounced dead at an area hospital. Bear was treated and released.

Nelson argues in court records that Quintana was just a passenger.

"Quintana possessed no legal authority to direct Bear and Sage to disobey their father, nor did Quintana possess legal authority to direct Robert Aragon to change his mind about letting the children start walking to their mother's house," according to court records.

In his first set of charges, Paul asserted Quintana and Aragon killed Sage with malice aforethought.

But now, Paul alleges Quintana and Aragon didn't have malice, but still killed Sage "without due caution and circumspection," according to court records.

Nelson, however, asserts

Quintana shouldn't be charged for this.

"There can be no more criminal responsibility for Kenneth Quintana in this unfortunate situation than if he has noticed that Sage and Bear were drowning in the neighbor's pool and did nothing to render assistance," Nelson argues in court records.

Aragon is lodged at the Jerome County Jail on $500,000 bond. Quintana is at the Blaine County Jail under $150,000 bond, authorities said Wednesday.

Preliminary hearings were set for Wednesday, but rescheduled to Jan. 23.

bond would add about $35 of taxes annually to property with an assessed value of $100,000, officials said.

Principal Clark Muscat showed plans outlining what improvements are needed at the high school, saying that student growth and additional state-mandated math and science requirements are creating a need for more space. A $16.3 million bond would allow the high school to have eight more classrooms and add a new gymnasium and cafeteria. The existing cafeteria would be remodeled into administrative offices.

"You don't want to be on the major staircase when the bell rings," Muscat said.

There are also safety concerns that a bond would help, Muscat said. The bond would allow the school to add a second entrance for buses, more parking and a stop light at the intersection of Tiger Drive and State Highway 25.

Forty accidents have taken place at that intersection since 1999, Muscat said.

Survey forms that ask for input about whether or not to seek a bond were passed out to several dozen attendees. The results, which will be looked at with other feedback, were not tabulated yet on Wednesday.

Superintendent Jim Cobble said he can see advantages and disadvantages to seeking a bond. The downside is that the proposal would bring increased taxes during a tough economic time. A potential advantage is that interest rates for a bond issue would be low, he said.

"I can see the logic for both," Cobble said. "My only strong feeling is my preference to do what the bulk of possible delisting. Deputy Director Jim Unsworth said Wednesday that the agency is in the middle of updating its wolf information for when it takes over, including for a possible fall hunting season. The Fish and Game Commission will continue to push for revisions to the federal protective rules as well, Chairman Wayne Wright said, just in case the wolves are listed again.

Unsworth ran legislators through the day's news in the afternoon, and said they — like many Idahoans and the agency — seemed frustrated with how long it's taking the state to control the predators.

"There's no good biological reason not to delist this animal," he said.

Others' reactions were mixed. Suzanne Stone, based in Boise for the Defenders of Wildlife, said shortly after

"People are calling me every day from all around the state."

— Ron Gillett, head of the Idaho Anti-Wolf Coalition

Scarlett's announcement that another legal challenge is "definitely" in the works.

Activist Ron Gillett, head of the Idaho Anti-Wolf Coalition, spent part of Wednesday in Boise working with what he described as a "grassroots" citizens' committee and a couple of state legislators to prepare possible bills opposing the state's wolf population. He said he still doesn't believe any number of wolves can be safely managed in Idaho without harming other interests.

"People are calling me every day from all around the state," he said mid-morning.

"They're tired of no management. They're tired of the lies, the tainted biology."

Idaho's four-man congressional delegation issued a statement Wednesday afternoon approving of the delisting decision.

"Idaho has the ability to manage wolves just as we do bears and cats," said Sen. Jim Risch. "We can do this, and do it better than the federal government ever will."

The Interior Department's decision will take effect 30 days after its publication in the Federal Register, which officials said would happen early next week. There's still a chance it could be reversed by Obama's administration after he is sworn in Tuesday, said Rowan Gould, acting director of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

Department of Corrections says no-growth plan will make cuts easier

By Jared S. Hopkins
Times-News writer

BOISE — Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter is proposing a 12 percent budget cut for the Department of Corrections next year, but the agency director says the reduction is manageable because it's already saving money and expects the number of prisoners to hold steady.

Department of Corrections Director Brent Reinke said Wednesday Otter's proposal to trim the agency's budget by $11 million will be covered largely by savings from holding fewer prisoners than anticipated — IDOC is currently 611 prisoners below projections — and by returning inmates housed outside Idaho.

"The idea behind that is the successes of '08 are going to continue," he said. "Even in difficult fiscal times, it's something to celebrate because we're not growing at an enormous rate."

But some lawmakers, including Rep. Leon Smith, R-Twin Falls, said 12 percent could be too heavy of a cut. He said the recent prison riot at the Idaho State Correctional Institution shows how crowded facilities are.

"The control is not there unless we beef up our personnel," Smith, vice chairman of the House judiciary committee, said. "It just looks to me that 12 percent is a real heavy hit on corrections unless we're going to start turning people loose."

But corrections also saved an additional $4 million this year because prisoner numbers held steady, Reinke said. He cited help from the Office of Drug Policy, drug courts and rehabilitation, and getting 1,000 more inmates through programming.

Otter's proposal is to trim 12 percent from this year's original appropriation, so the mid-year cuts he ordered are taken into account. As a result, the agency is reduced by only $6.8 million after the mid-year cuts.

Reinke said $5 million will come in savings by having no growth, which was not the trend before this year. The remaining $1.8 million will come in other areas, including adding beds to existing facilities.

The 4 percent mid-year budget cuts ordered by Otter led to a $3.5 million trim by the agency, $1.2 million of which was saved by returning out-of-state prisoners to Idaho.

Reinke said he plans for the remaining 325 prisoners to return in August, September and October.

"Idaho inmates are best-managed in Idaho," said Reinke, a former Twin Falls County commissioner.

Still, the proposed cuts come during a national recession — when crime typically increases. And Idaho's unemployment rate has jumped to 6.6 percent — its highest rate in 20 years.

But Reinke is confident the state can avoid overcrowded prisons if the entire criminal justice system works together.

"We have to run a better system to be better to accommodate," he said. "It means we have to do a better job with the inmates we have in custody and do a better job managing (programs) ... in the community."

IDOC will also study privatization of its prison in Orofino, something officials announced Wednesday in a legislative committee meeting. But private management of prisons stirred controversy last year when the state severed its contract with The Geo Group. Idaho Correctional Center is the only privately run, state-owned facility in Idaho, and is managed by the Corrections Corp. of America.

"We're looking this as a cost-benefit analysis," Reinke said.

He said there have not been layoffs but it's unclear how the agency will be affected in 2010, depending on the Legislature's appropriation and the economy.

Time-based measuring system could aid Buhl's arsenic battle

By Nate Poppino
Times-News writer

The city of Buhl may now have another option when it comes to fighting high arsenic levels.

Normally, DEQ measures drinking-water wells quarterly, said Lance Nielsen, state drinking water program manager for the Idaho Department of Environmental Quality. The average of the quarters is used to determine if a city's water is in compliance.

But a method called "time-weighted averaging" relies on the fact that health problems related to arsenic come from long-term exposure. A well may test above the limit, Nielsen said. But if it's only run for part of the year, overall arsenic levels can be below the 10-parts-per-billion limit.

The averaging method is an option allowed in federal rule, but not practical in all cities, Nielsen said. Researching and selecting an option for fighting arsenic is largely up to city engineers, he said, who know their own systems best.

"It's not something, really, that we expect could be used very often," he said.

Coeur d'Alene approached DEQ about using the method to handle its arsenic problems, receiving clearance in July to test it, said Water Superintendent Jim Markley. Eight of the city's nine wells meet the standard. The problem well measures between 20 and 30 ppb, he said, but is only run for roughly 40 days a year.

To get DEQ's blessing, the city worked with the agency to determine if the averaging method would leave residents any worse off than the quarterly check. Further research indicated it wouldn't, and Markley said he expects residents near the well could see less than 5 ppb in their water.

"We're in the process of demonstrating it through testing," he said, adding that samples are made monthly.

Time-weighted averaging likely isn't an option for Twin Falls, which runs all its wells year-round and doesn't have a distribution system conducive to the practice, said Mark Holtzen with J-U-B Engineers.

Castleford is also out of luck, with two wells that both test high for arsenic. But Buhl might be able to benefit from the practice, said Jeff Huntington, water department manager for both Buhl and Castleford. Buhl, he said, is in the middle of restructuring its well system and may approach DEQ about using the averaging method after that's complete.

Buhl's arsenic levels range from 6 to 18 ppb. Its City Council passed a resolution in December asking for federal emergency funding to cover water and wastewater projects, including an $8 million arsenic treatment facility.

"We looked at it before," Huntington said of averaging. "We were advised (by DEQ) that it wouldn't work."

Huntington said none of Buhl's wells are seasonal at the moment. But David Anderson and Brian Reed with DEQ said information they've received shows Buhl to have one year-round well and three that run largely in the summer or from spring to fall — making averaging tricky, but possible.

As far as Nielsen knows, Coeur d'Alene is the only city currently using time-weighted averaging. That doesn't mean DEQ isn't open to more, though.

"We would consider it anywhere in the state," he said.

Va. company recalls peanut butter nationwide

By Sue Lindsey
Associated Press writer

ROANOKE, Va. — A peanut butter maker that sells bulk supplies to institutions issued a nationwide recall of peanut butter from one of its plants as officials on Wednesday reported two more deaths associated with a salmonella outbreak.

Lynchburg-based Peanut Corp. of America company issued the recall late Tuesday for 21 lots of peanut butter made at its plant in Blakely, Ga., on or after July 1 because of possible salmonella contamination.

The national salmonella outbreak has sickened more than 400 people in 43 states. Health officials in Minnesota and Idaho reported Wednesday that one death in each state had been linked to the outbreak. One death in Minnesota and two in Virginia were confirmed Tuesday.

All five were adults who had salmonella when they died, though their causes of death haven't been determined. The Centers for Disease Control said the salmonella outbreak may have contributed.

Peanut Corp. of America said none of the peanut butter being recalled is sold through retail stores. Its peanut butter is made for bulk distribution to institutions, food service industries and private label food companies. The company said the peanut butter is sold under the brand name Parnell's Pride and by the King Nut Co. as King Nut.

Health officials had recommended nursing homes, hospitals, schools, universities and restaurants discard containers of peanut butter linked to the outbreak. The peanut butter was in containers of five to 50 pounds.

The recall was issued after an open container of King Nut peanut butter in a long-term care facility in Minnesota was found to contain a strain of salmonella.

"We deeply regret that this has happened," Stewart Parnell, owner and president of Peanut Corp. of America, said in a news release. "Out of an abundance of caution, we are voluntarily withdrawing this produce and contacting our customers."

Customers were notified by phone and in writing, the company said.

The Georgia Department of Agriculture so far has found nothing in samples tested from Peanut Corp.'s Blakely plant, spokesman Arty Schronce said Wednesday, but added the testing process can take several days.

Authorities have declined to identify the five people who died. But state Health Department spokesman Phil Giaramita said Wednesday the two Virginia cases involved an adult over the age of 65 in southwestern Virginia and a younger adult in the northwestern part of the state. He said 18 cases of salmonella have been reported in the state.

Health officials said a man in his 70s who had numerous underlying health conditions was the second person to die in Minnesota, where 13 people have been hospitalized.

The Idaho death occurred in the fall.

The CDC has said the illnesses started between Sept. 3 and Jan. 6, but people became sick after Oct. 1.

King Nut recalled the peanut butter over the weekend in the seven states where it distributed it. King Nut president Martin Kanan had said he didn't want to wait for Peanut Corp. to act. He did not immediately return a message Wednesday seeking comment on the wider recall.

Besides the Georgia plant, Peanut Corp. of America has plants in Suffolk, Va., and Plainview, Texas.

Georgia agriculture officials have one to three inspectors at the Blakely plant and more people working on the case at the department's Atlanta headquarters, Schronce said. He said peanut butter plants in the state are inspected once or twice a year and more frequently if problems are found.

Rep. Wood says optional programs in Medicaid likely first to go

By Jared S. Hopkins
Times-News writer

Rep. Fred Wood, R-Burley, a physician in his second term, sits on the Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee and drafts the Health and Welfare section of the budget.

In an interview Tuesday, Wood said 2009 will be a tough year for state health care programs, adding any cuts will be done to limit the impact on Idahoans and provide for the state's economic recovery.

Wood said he has yet to review all of the proposals from Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter, who is asking for a $543 million Department of Health and Welfare budget, which is 7.5 percent less than this year. But most lawmakers agree with Otter that cuts will be made.

Excerpts from Wood's Tuesday interview with the Times-News:

Times-News: What is an example of a cut with limited impact on Idaho?

Wood: For instance, in Health and Welfare, there are outpatient programs that (if cut) would have the effect of a lot more sick people in hospitals ... So what you have to do is look at each program and say "OK, if this program is funded less, what are the implications — one year from now, two years from now, five years from now — if we don't have an immediate turn around from this economy?" ... That is what we will be going through for the next six weeks before we start setting budgets.

T-N: How might Medicaid change with this economy?

W: I think that's more dependent on the federal government (and whether it makes changes) ... If you have to make cuts out of the Department of Health and Welfare of any significant degree then basically you're going to end up cutting the trustee and benefit payments out of Medicaid some. Now, if the feds — and I understand the federal government will have some sort of health care stimulus package out by February — what that looks like ... I don't know. We will know that by the time we probably get ready to set the Health and Welfare budget. But at this point in time we don't know how that will change.

Magicvalley.com

READ: Times-News political reporter Jared S. Hopkins' blog, Capitol Confidential.

T-N: So where might these cuts come from?

W: To participate and get federal dollars, there are certain mandatory programs that the federal government requires. There are other programs that are optional ... what most states have done is to first look at those optional programs and reduce expenditures or eliminate completely the optional programs (such as dental care). Whether you reduce reimbursement for that or you lower reimbursements, I don't know.

T-N: Otter wants to increase the number of residencies in Idaho to close the gap on the doctor shortage. In the past you've said this option, and not a medical school, is the right approach.

W: The governor is (right). If you look at it historically, where people do their residencies has a bigger impact on where they practice than on where they go to medical school. So, money put toward residency programs — if in fact your goal is to keep more people, more positions in Idaho — than you're going to get more bang or your buck with residency programs than you are with medical school programs.

State colleges and universities may boost tuition another 10 percent

By John Miller
Associated Press writer

BOISE — Idaho university and college students, already paying about 30 percent more than in 2004 for tuition and fees, should expect more increases for the upcoming school year to help make up for state budget cuts.

"Clearly, that's where they will seek to generate some additional revenue," Matt Freeman, a higher education budget analyst, said Wednesday. "There will be program eliminations, which will lead to a longer time to graduate. Along with fee increases, that will increase the total cost of education."

Freeman testified before the 20-lawmaker Joint Finance Appropriations Committee, which is writing the state's budget for fiscal year 2010, which starts July 1.

For the 2009-2010 year, universities and colleges could raise tuition by up to 10 percent, though presidents late last year backed off a proposal to boost fees by more than that. Hearings start this month on the respective campuses to give students, faculty and staff a chance to comment, and the state Board of Education plans to meet April 6 to consider any proposed increase, said spokesman Mark Browning.

Idaho's four-year schools are due to get $28 million less in state funding in the coming fiscal year, under Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter's recommendation. That's 9.9 percent less than the original appropriation for the current fiscal year. State funding represents 70 percent of schools' budgets, with tuition and fees covering the rest.

Last year, Board of Education members approved a 5 percent hike for students at Boise State University, the University of Idaho in Moscow and Lewis-Clark State College and 6 percent at Idaho State University in Pocatello. Tuition is now $2,332 per semester at ISU, $2,316 at BSU and UI and $2,146 at L-C State.

In 2004, tuition was about $1,800 per semester.

At Wednesday's budget hearing, two competing views of Idaho's higher education funding emerged. Some Republican lawmakers said budget cuts will give institutions, like other state agencies, a chance to scrutinize their offerings to eliminate programs that are no longer relevant. Democrats on the panel said Idaho higher education still hasn't fully recovered from a 10 percent, $23 million budget reduction in fiscal year 2003.

"I think it is an opportunity," Rep. Maxine Bell, R-Jerome and co-chairwoman of the budget writing committee, told The Associated Press. "You can look now and fine-tune your mission."

Rep. Shirley Ringo, D-Moscow and a member of the committee, countered that the state should use some of its remaining $330 million in economic reserves to shore up schools, so students don't face higher increases, especially as unemployment has risen to 6.6 percent.

"We all know that when the economy is down, people lose jobs and many are turning to educational opportunities to try to transition," Ringo said. "Colleges and universities are still reeling from the 2003 cut-backs. It's unfair to assert they haven't already been taking a really hard look at their programs and how to get lean and mean."

Otter has said he only wants to use about $75 million from the so-called "rainy day funds" to shore up the 2010 budget, on concern Idaho's economic malaise may extend well beyond the coming fiscal year.

Wayne Hammon, the Republican governor's budget chief, said there may be limited room to negotiate on the final amount to be used to reinforce the budget this year.

"The actual number isn't paramount," Hammon told the AP. "That's going to be the subject of debate. But making sure we do not harm future years is paramount."

Marty Peterson, the University of Idaho's top lobbyist, said additional money from rainy day funds would be appreciated, but a windfall isn't expected.

"Higher ed isn't pursuing anything other than what the state board and the governor recommended," Peterson said.

Graham Garner, ISU's university relations director, told the AP the Pocatello school has asked its administrators to cut 12 percent from its 2010 budget — about 2 percentage points more than Otter's proposal — to build up now-depleted reserves.

"We want to make sure we've got something in our pocket, if additional opportunities arise," Garner said.

Gov. Otter apologizes over 'sneaky' computer spat

BOISE (AP) — Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter has apologized after his budget director called lawmakers "sneaky" for tucking a $142,300 request for computer services into an adjustment to their base budget.

Otter told Idaho Public Television in an interview — to appear on Friday's 8 p.m. "Idaho Reports" program — that Wayne Hammon made a "poor choice of words" during a Joint Finance Appropriations Committee hearing Tuesday morning.

The governor was clearly trying to assuage ruffled feathers when he told IPTV interviewer Thanh Tan, "It was probably poor timing to bring it up, especially the second day into the session."

Otter vetoed a similar line item last year, forcing lawmakers to tap money elsewhere to buy new laptop computers.

They said the laptops were sorely needed — and insist the 2010 request is perfectly legitimate.

On Tuesday, Hammon had threatened a renewed veto, contending the spending should be a new line item.

Let the state Ed Board be just that — a board

Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter was roundly criticized for proposing cuts to public school funding this year, but his State of the State address on Monday contained another idea that may do much to improve Idaho education in the long run.

The governor wants to strip the Idaho State Board of Education of many of its duties, shifting its focus to oversight and policy issues.

It's about time. The panel has long since overstepped its constitutional role of supervising public education.

That mission creep has been going on for a generation, but it reached its zenith four years ago when at the behest of then-Gov. Dirk Kempthorne the all-Republican state board was allowed to take responsibility for standardized testing from then-Superintendent Marilyn Howard, who was then Idaho's only Democrat elected statewide.

The move was a disaster. The state board spent money it didn't have, assumed duties it couldn't handle, and through negligence deprived students of preparation they need to take the make-or-break Idaho Standards Achievement Test.

To his credit, nobody was angrier about the state board's misfeasance than Otter. On Monday, the governor said the board is too involved in the daily operations of entities such as the Commission for Libraries, the Historical Society and the Archeological Survey.

So if the Legislature agrees, the Department of Education will oversee the daily operations of the school assessment program. The board of education would continue being responsible for the accountability that comes from ISAT tests, which determine which schools make Adequate Yearly Progress as required by the federal No Child Left Behind Act.

It's a good first step. The next would be turning over all education management to the Department of Education, including colleges and universities.

The state board is no more capable of running the day-to-day operations of Idaho colleges than the Micron board of directors is equipped to manage a DRAM production line in Boise. What we have in Idaho are competing public education power structures — the state board on one hand and the state department on the other — with different goals, different methodologies and different personalities.

We just can't afford both anymore.

Idaho would benefit enormously from a unified approach under which the public schools and higher education were complementary enterprises, not dueling interests vying for legislative approval. That doesn't mean there wouldn't be a place for locally run community colleges; it just means that everyone in charge of public education would — finally — be on the same page.

The state Board of Education should be comprised of the "big-picture" people — folks who set the agenda for public schools, kindergarten through grade school. Let them hire professionals like those at the Department of Education to handle the details.

Our view:

Good for Gov. Otter for seeking to trim the responsibilities of the Idaho State Board of Education. Now how about transferring the day-to-day operation of Idaho colleges to the Idaho Department of Education?

What do you think?

We welcome viewpoints from our readers on this and other issues.

Taxing smokers to pay for SCHIP

Everybody's going to have to give," President-elect Barack Obama warned over the weekend. And some people will have to give more than others — starting with low-income smokers.

MICHELLE MALKIN

Democrats are rushing this week to impose massive tax hikes of at least 61 cents on every cigarette pack sold in America, in addition to new increases on other tobacco products. The money will fund a long-planned federal expansion of the State Children's Health Insurance Program.

Yes, this is Dr. Big Nanny's prescription for recession: punitive tax increases on the poor to feed a universal health care Trojan horse.

Obama and his liberal Democratic colleagues sure have a funny way of demonstrating "progressive" values, don't they? Health surveys show that smokers are more likely to be blue-collar workers, minorities and have less than a high-school education. The National Taxpayers Union noted that tobacco taxes take a 50 times larger share of income from those earning less than $20,000 than those earning more than $200,000. Put another way: Families making less than $30,000 per year pay more than half of all taxes paid on cigarettes, while families making more than $60,000 pay only 14 percent.

That's the dictionary definition of "regressive," not "progressive."

And what will that money buy? SCHIP, you'll recall, is the joint federal-state program that covers health insurance for children and families at or near the poverty line. During the last two years, President Bush and the Republicans took a rare fiscally conservative stand against widening eligibility criteria far beyond the working poor. Democrats wanted to be able to enroll families with incomes at 300 or 400 percent of the poverty level — adding an estimated $35 billion over five years to the existing SCHIP funding costs.

Opponents of this HillaryCare-esque push were lambasted as cruel child-haters for arguing that the program should not be extended to include well-off families, illegal aliens and single adults. They were attacked as heartless penny-pinchers for questioning the wisdom of subsidizing the SCHIP expansion with a dwindling and unstable funding source (smoking is on the decline and cigarette tax revenues are shrinking).

But if these do-gooders truly cared about The Children, they'd be cursing mightily over the squandering of current SCHIP funds and the cheating of the very children the program was intended to help. State data analyzed by the Department of Health and Human Services reveal that 13 states spent more than 44 percent of their SCHIP funds in 2008 on people who are neither children nor pregnant women. Michigan topped the list with more than 70 percent of its federal children's health insurance funds earmarked for adults who have no kids.

In New Jersey, people earning as much as $295,000 were enrolled in its SCHIP program, dubbed "NJ FamilyCare." Like many states, New Jersey failed to check eligibility for all program enrollees and refuses to conduct stringent assets tests.

As I've noted before, the refusal to do assets tests on federal health insurance programs is why federal entitlements are exploding and government keeps expanding. After an audit found that the New Jersey program had paid $43.1 million to participants without knowing whether they were eligible, Republican Assemblyman Richard Merkt observed that it "called into serious question the state's competence to run health insurance programs." Multiply that by 50 states.

How will the Democrats prevent such fraud? I'd give you more details about the Obama/Democratic tax hike on the poor to expand children's health care coverage for the non-poor and non-children, but as of Tuesday afternoon, there was no legislation text available. And no hearings are planned before the expansion is rushed through for Obama to sign.

The Wall Street Journal did report that Democrats plan to lift decade-old restrictions to allow legal immigrant children to tap into SCHIP. But there's no word on whether citizenship eligibility requirements will be strengthened. Democratic leadership hasn't responded to Republican entreaties on that issue, either. Hurray for the deliberative process.

What I can tell you for sure is that the SCHIP expansion is a rest stop on the road to a universal health insurance entitlement built on the backs of overtaxed low-income workers. Welcome to the era of "shared sacrifice."

Burley leaders deserve thanks for new businesses

Happy New Year to all the citizens of Mini-Cassia land. I would like to take this opportunity to thank the mayor of the city of Burley and most of the City Council for the efforts in bringing the many new business entities to the area.

We have High Desert Milk, Pacific Ethanol, Dutchman Trailers, DOT Foods, Hy-Line North America, Packaging Specialties and Gossner Foods. For every dollar spent by these employees, it moves through the economy seven times.

The money some of these businesses received came from Urban Renewal. If we had a few more jobs in the area, then maybe there would still be a local newspaper and no empty store fronts. Our communities really suffered when Kraft Foods and J.R. Simplot decided to close their doors. I think if Mr. Lenkersdorfer

Malkin, Thomas have some badly skewed perspectives

Like baying hounds hot on a fresh scent, Michelle Malkin and Cal Thomas are in full cry. Their prey, one Barack Obama, isn't even treed yet and they are already condemning his plans to entrap us from our perilous predicament.

They clamor that his proposal to employ Americans to rebuild our decaying infrastructure and retrofit for greater energy independence is pure "pork." Perhaps they have never heard of failing levees or falling bridges or the energy crisis. Maybe they have never heard of the positive multiplier effect on the economy that comes from productively employed, taxpaying consumers. It may be to their dismay that their corporate masters would find it impossible to outsource these jobs.

Interestingly, it is never "pork" when it comes to trillions to bail out banks or big business. It's also not wasteful to preemptively strike an air defenseless land that had no involvement in 9/11 and no weapons of mass destruction. Years after "mission accomplished" and Daddy Bush's hand-picked dictator is dead, the no-bid contracts and fiscal foolhardiness continue.

These two pundits' boisterous barks are intended to distract us so that we forget that the wealthiest among us have been exempted from paying more than a pittance for nearly a decade. This was supposed to make us immune to fiscal failure but instead, we are facing financial catastrophe. That is why I hope, this time, Michelle's and Cal's outcries will be recognized for what they are: "Barking up the wrong tree." Finally, Americans should realize that working together to improve America is a far better plan than attempting to impose "A New World Order."

Immigration system should take onus of enforcement off employers

The Idaho Business Coalition for Immigration Reform is a coalition of Idaho businesses and trade associations dedicated to advocating for sensible reform of the U.S. immigration system. We are small businesses, manufacturers, agri-businesses, farmers and service providers. We are the backbone of the Idaho economy.

America's immigration crisis has gone on for far too long. Its disruptions and distortions are too serious to allow extreme special interests to continue looking for scapegoats and blocking meaningful solutions.

As a coalition, we feel that neither amnesty nor mass deportation is the answer. Amnesty unfairly rewards those who broke our laws, and mass deportation is simply unrealistic. Current enforcement policy is centered on undocumented workers who are actually contributing to our economy. The enforcement priority should target those engaged in criminal activities.

That is why we support a sensible guest worker program that takes undocumented workers off the black market and legitimizes their economic contributions without providing an expedited pathway toward citizenship status. This type of a program, in conjunction with increased enforcement at the border, will more readily allow the government to know who is entering our country.

A guest worker program that provides foreign workers with a worker ID removes the incentive for millions of people to illegally enter our country. It adds workers to our tax base, generates revenue for needed social services and satisfies needs and our national understanding of citizenship require that immigration and citizenship be handled by the federal government. Ultimately, only the federal government can fix what's wrong with the immigration system.

The role of state government in this issue should be one of assisting businesses to find qualified workers to keep the wheels of commerce turning — not looking for ways to punish an employer and stifle economic growth.

We encourage the Idaho legislative leaders to work with the Congress and the president to craft an immigration policy that allows for employers to hire workers who are in our country legally and provides a sensible workable process for immigrants seeking work to not only enter our country legitimately but to also contribute to our society and economy.

the need that employers have for a reliable labor pool.

Those who are here illegally and want to stay should be assessed a fine, pay any owed back taxes and submit to and pass a criminal background check. When all of that is completed, the individual should be given a renewable work permit that is valid as long as the individual stays employed.

This approach is much more logical than forcing employers to be the enforcement arm of our nation's immigration policy. Punishing employers for hiring improperly documented workers will not only further damage our economy but will prove to be a deterrent to future economic growth.

Tim Geithner's failure to pay taxes shouldn't be condoned

What is wrong with our country? Rules and laws no longer apply to anyone; do whatever makes you feel good!

The article in the Times-News this morning (Jan. 14) has me boiling. Obama's nominee of Geithner to run the Treasury Department fails to pay $34,000 in back taxes, and he is being condoned for his actions.

What if it were you or I? Not only that, but they want to skirt the rules and schedule a hearing as early as Friday? How many rules do they want to skirt, break or not pay any attention to? Not only does he keep help whose legal status has expired (that means not legal), Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid dismissed these events as "a few little hiccups." Do hiccups apply to all of us or to just those few in D.C.?

Personally, I think a rule is a rule, a law is a law and they should apply to all equally!

Officer charged with murder in Oakland BART train shooting

By Maria L. La Ganga and Maura Dolan
Los Angeles Times

OAKLAND, Calif. — In a racially tinged case that has sparked outrage and street protests in Oakland, a former transit police officer seen on video shooting an unarmed man in the back has been charged with murder and could face life in prison, authorities said Wednesday.

Johannes Mehslerle was arrested Tuesday night in Zephyr Cove, Nev., nearly a week after resigning from the Bay Area Rapid Transit district police force in the wake of the New Year's Day shooting death of Oscar J. Grant III.

"At this point, what I feel the evidence indicates is an unlawful killing done by an intentional act," Alameda County District Attorney Tom Orloff said Wednesday while announcing the charges.

Legal experts said it was rare for an officer to be charged with murder in connection with an on-duty shooting, and that a conviction would be difficult to get.

Mehslerle

Mehslerle's attorney, Christopher Miller, said he expected that his client eventually would be cleared of the charges arising from "that chaotic night."

Mehslerle "was a fine young officer with an excellent work history," Miller said at a news conference in Sacramento, adding that "this case is not just about a video."

The shooting of Grant, a 22-year-old black father, by the 27-year-old white officer sparked a protest a week ago that ended in 100 arrests. Scores of buildings were damaged and cars were torched in downtown Oakland.

The city girded for the possibility of more violence during a demonstration Wednesday. Many employers sent workers home early to ease traffic expected from the 4 p.m. protest and also because "there is a degree of uncertainty," Oakland Mayor Ron Dellums said.

Despite concerns, the protest was peaceful.

Hundreds of people gathered at City Hall and marched to the Alameda County courthouse, shouting, "We will march, we will chant, until there's justice for Oscar Grant," and "I am Oscar Grant!" Organizers called for Orloff's resignation. Police in riot gear were out in force.

Addressing the group on Oak Street between the courthouse and the county administration building, Grant's grandfather rejoiced that "they got the man who killed my grandson." Oscar Grant Sr. beseeched the crowd to "keep peace."

The shooting occurred two weeks ago, early New Year's morning. Grant and friends were heading home to the East Bay aboard a BART train, after celebrating New Year's Eve in San Francisco, when a fight broke out between two groups of riders. BART police met the train at the station and demanded that passengers disembark.

In videos that have been broadcast on television and viewed hundreds of thousands of times on the Internet, a uniformed officer later identified as Mehslerle stands over a prostrate Grant, pulls his gun and fires point-blank into Grant's back.

Although six of the officers involved in the incident gave statements shortly afterward, Mehslerle contacted an attorney and refused to comment. Nearly a week after the shooting, he resigned from the BART police force and holed up at a family property near Lake Tahoe.

"At this point, what I feel the evidence indicates is an unlawful killing done by an intentional act."

Credit indicators show signs of thaw

Mortgage rates slide to record lows

By Tom Petruno
Los Angeles Times

The global credit freeze is showing the clearest signs yet of thawing since the Treasury and the Federal Reserve launched a massive rescue of the financial system last fall.

For consumers, the best indicator of better credit-market conditions is a continuing slide in mortgage rates, which has fueled a refinancing boom. The average 30-year home loan rate slid to 5.01 percent last week, a record low and down from 5.47 percent in mid-December.

A more arcane but closely watched indicator — the interest rate major banks charge one another for three-month loans, which rocketed in October at the height of the financial crisis — fell to a five-year low Tuesday.

Another sign that the credit-market ice floe is slowly breaking up: Companies have been able to raise tens of billions of dollars in the bond market in the past week, as investors have stepped up to buy new debt.

Last week companies issued $41 billion in bonds, the biggest weekly total in nearly eight months, according to Bloomberg. On Tuesday, companies including McDonald's Corp., FedEx Corp. and Amgen Inc. offered $16.7 billion in new bonds for sale.

Demand for corporate bonds has surged in part because many brokerages and other financial advisers are telling clients that high-quality company debt is a less risky way than stocks to bet on an eventual economic recovery. Bonds, at least earn interest while investors wait for things to get better.

Michael Darda, chief economist at investment company MKM Partners, said the continuing decline in short-term bank funding costs and the jump in corporate bond issuance show that the Federal Reserve "is having some success treating the symptoms of the credit crisis."

Still, he said, "We have great reluctance to sound the 'all clear' bell for the U.S. economy considering the

CSI opens new Career Center As unemployment rises, so does number of visitors to center

By Joshua Palmer

The College of Southern Idaho didn't open its new Career Center to address the current challenges facing workers in south-central Idaho.

But even as workers at the center unpack the last boxes in their new office, they are seeing an increasing number of newly unemployed workers seeking assistance.

The Career Center, which is located in the Student Union building on the CSI campus, will officially open January 28 to help job seekers find their ideal career.

Unlike career placement services, the center will help students and members of the community match skill-sets and interests with possible careers.

"We do not place them into job positions, we help them find what is best suited for them," said Kate Woods, coordinator of career and counseling services at CSI. "We are trying to help people find a balance between what's fun and what's practical."

With the economy slowing down and regional unemployment on the rise, more unemployed workers are searching for new and more stable careers, she said.

The Idaho Department of Labor reported last week that unemployment in the Twin Falls micropolitan

Business leaders urge thinking beyond roads

BOISE — Idaho business leaders and economic experts say Idaho's economic recovery is riding on more than fixing roads and bridges.

The state could receive millions of dollars in federal stimulus money, and experts say that could help Idaho if it is used to improve education.

Experts also say some money should be used to help a new generation of entrepreneurs succeed, resulting in more jobs.

"I would immediately adopt packages to make Idaho a better place to spend research and development dollars," said Jefferson Jewell, co-founder of Blackfin Technology, a Boise marketing company. "That includes investing in education and giving incentives for research and development spending."

State public education programs are among the biggest targets of $217 million in proposed budget cuts that Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter outlined Monday during his State of the State speech, where he called for "frugality and common sense" as well as compassion.

Otter recommends that Idaho spend about $2.74 billion in fiscal year 2010, starting next July, a 7.3 percent reduction from the original fiscal 2009 appropriation of roughly $2.96 billion. Otter has already cut some $130 million from current year spending.

During his speech, he also outlined his plan to raise another $174 million annually for highway projects by 2014, including increasing the state gas tax to 35 cents a gallon, from 25 cents, and raising vehicle registration fees.

"We've done a great job of solidifying a legacy employer base, promoting our reputation and building a wonderful lifestyle," Mark Rivers, a commercial district developer, told the Idaho Statesman. "But we haven't done enough to create the next generation of job growth and new investment and new ideas. If our top priority

Twin Falls pharmacy sheds franchise

Pharmacy sheds franchise to become locally owned:

A Twin Falls pharmacy has shed its franchise name in order to become a family owned operation.

The former Medicine Shoppe, located at 615 Filer Ave. in Twin Falls, changed its name to K.J. Pharmacy last month.

Kent Jensen, the pharmacy's owner, said he bought out the Twin Falls location for an undisclosed price. He added that the only significant change is that he will no longer pay dues to the Medicine Shoppe franchise.

"It's still the same products, same location and the same service," he said.

Jensen said the financing for the buy-out was made easier by working with a local bank — D.L. Evans in Twin Falls.

Potatoes go on Awesome Adventure: Millions of kids across the U.S. will learn about Idaho Potatoes.

Awesome Adventures, a weekly syndicated television series takes kids on journeys around the world.

Boise was their latest adventure destination.

The television crew, hosted by Mysterio Clark, and two Idaho teens kicked off their adventure at a potato storage shed in Wilder, Idaho. Doug Gross, a third generation potato grower and shed owner, explained the growing, harvesting and storage process.

With potatoes in hand, the crew went to the Brick 29 Bistro in Nampa, to turn their tubers into Jo-Jos.

"It was a thrill for Idaho potatoes to be featured in this high quality educational program," said Frank Muir, president and CEO of the Idaho Potato Commission. "My hope is that kids who watch the program will be amazed by and appreciate all the steps it takes to get potatoes from the farm to their dinner plates."

Study: Doctors who follow basic checklist cut surgical deaths in half

The Associated Press
 ATLANTA — Scrawl on the patient with a permanent marker to show where the surgeon should cut. Ask the person's name to make sure you have the right patient. Count sponges to make sure you didn't leave any inside the body.
 Doctors worldwide who followed a checklist of steps like these cut the death rate from surgery almost in half and complications by more than a third in a large international study of how to avoid blatant operating room mistakes.

 The results — most dramatic in developing countries — startled the researchers.
 "I was blown away," said Dr. Atul Gawande, a Harvard surgeon and medical journalist who led the study, published in Thursday's New England Journal of Medicine.
 U.S. hospitals have been required since 2004 to take some of these precautions. But the 19-item checklist used in the study was far more detailed than what is required or what many institutions do.

 The researchers estimated that implementing the longer checklist in all U.S. operating rooms would save at least $15 billion a year.
 "Most of these things happen most of the time for most patients, but we need to make it so that all these things happen all the time for all patients, because each slip represents an opportunity for harm," said Dr. Alex Haynes of the Harvard School of Public Health, one of the study's authors.

 The checklist was developed by the World Health Organization and includes measures such as these:
 • Before the patient is given anesthesia, make sure the part of the body to be operated on is marked, and make sure everyone on the surgical team knows if the patient has an allergy.
 • Before the surgeons cut, make sure everyone in the operating room knows one another and what their roles will be during the operation, and confirm that all the needed X-rays and scan images are in the room.

 • After surgery, check that all the needles, sponges and instruments are accounted for.
 That checklist was tested in 2007-08 in eight cities around the world: Seattle; Toronto; London; New Delhi; Auckland, New Zealand; Amman, Jordan; Manila, Philippines; and Ifakara, Tanzania. (Heart and pediatric cases were excluded.)

F&G tries to educate sportsmen on fee increase proposal

By Andrew Weeks
Times-News writer

It might not be the best time economically to ask for a fee increase, but if it doesn't happen soon some wildlife programs won't be able to expand. Some might even have to be scaled back, according to the Idaho Department of Fish and Game.

That's why the department is pitching a fee increase on hunting and fishing licenses.

The proposal to raise fees, which the Fish and Game Commission approved last fall, hits the Legislature this session, but what happens is anybody's guess. For now, the department is trying to get the word out among sportsmen.

To do that, Fish and Game has been hosting breakfasts at various locations across the state, and last Thursday it held a chili feed and discussion at the Magic Valley regional office in Jerome. About 65 people attended the event.

Sportsmen gathered to share chilies made with different wildlife meat and to learn about the proposal.

That proposal includes a 20 percent overall revenue increase that would generate roughly $6.9 million a year for three years — or $20.7 million total — to meet inflation needs and enhance programs.

According to Fish and Game Director Cal Groen, increased costs are affecting Fish and Game's ability to do its job. "In the four years since fees last were raised, Idaho Fish and Game's budget has increased only 2 percent, compared to 26 percent for the average state agency," Groen wrote in a Reader Comment to the Times-News on Dec. 18, 2008. "The price of fish food alone has increased 31 percent in the past four years and game farm-raised pheasants have gone up 25 percent. Inflation has taken a bite as well." Fish and Game can't raise license and permit fees without the approval of the Legislature and the governor. But the additional money

SAFETY ON THE SLOPES

Doctor, others say being properly geared helps prevent serious injuries while skiing

By Andrew Weeks
Times-News writer

He never thought it'd happen to him. After all, he knew how to ski.

Crashing — and seriously hurting himself — was the furthest thing from his mind.

But it happened, unexpectedly like most accidents happen, and Kent Holyoak was taken by air ambulance to the hospital because he had split open his head after crashing while skiing at Magic Mountain.

That was in 2007. While maneuvering on a slope Holyoak struck a rock, pitched forward, and hit his head against another rock, which left him with a seven-inch laceration on his head.

Though the scar is not as noticeable as he once thought it would be — "I had a great plastic surgeon," he said — when he dons his skis today, which he does quite often, he admits, he comes to the hills better prepared.

"I had thought about grabbing a helmet that morning. But I didn't," Holyoak, of Twin Falls, said. "It was early season, and the base had only about six to seven inches of snow. I knew that, and paid the price for it (by not wearing a helmet)."

That same year there was an estimated 101,111 people injured in the United States from skiing and snowboarding accidents according to the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission's National Electronic Injury Surveillance System.

While wearing protective gear isn't a sure bet to ward off injury, it does improve the chances. To Holyoak, a helmet is the most important thing a person can wear while on the slopes, though goggles, durable gloves and proper-fitting boots and skis are also important.

Unfortunately, not everyone pays attention to safety suggestions.

Wearing a helmet while skiing or snowboarding "greatly decreases the risk of serious head injury," Dr. Eric Cassidy, director of the emergency department at St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center, told the Times-News. At least once a week during the winter season, someone is brought to the hospital with a serious head injury stemming from a skiing or snowboarding accident, Cassidy said.

Locally there seems to be more snowboarders injured than skiers, he's observed. The reason, he believes, is because a lot of teenagers seem to be drawn to snowboarding and for some reason they don't wear their helmets.

He suggests that if a person isn't wearing a helmet, they shouldn't be allowed a lift ticket. While that might seem extreme to some snow enthusiasts, it'd definitely be a way to help spread the message about the importance of protecting your head.

Not everyone agrees with the suggestion.

If too many rules inhibit skiers' choices, they, especially beginners, might decide they don't like the recreation sport, said Ryan Kober, owner of Elevation Sports in Twin Falls.

Filling up with the 'hydration vessel'

This is not a water bottle. The KOR ONE, a new water-toting container made for outdoors enthusiasts, exercisers and everyday users, is indeed a "hydration vessel."

At least that's according to KOR Ideas Inc., the maker of these one-foot-tall elliptical flasks, which hold 25 fluid ounces of water and were purportedly designed with inspiration from "the organic beauty of blown glass."

It costs $29.99 and is available at www.korwater.com or select retailers around the country.

What makes a KOR ONE bottle — yes, I will deign to call it such — so special? For starters, it is made of a material called Eastman Tritan, which is a clear and strong synthetic compound that has no bisphenol-A (BPA), a suspect chemical still prevalent in some water bottles.

KOR Ideas touts a partnership with a design firm in the creation of its hydration vessel. The bottle is nice to look at and easy to hold.

There are several appreciable small touches, including a pop-top lid on a metal hinge, a large pour spout, and a rubber bottom to make it set smoothly on a hard surface.

Other design decisions are less pragmatic: The bottle includes a "mantra insert" area where you can pop a rubber guard and place a piece of paper face down with a picture or saying. Each time you open the lid for a drink the "mantra" is then visible to "inspire you, one sip at a time," as the company puts it.

I used my KOR ONE bottle mainly in the everyday category, toting it in a backpack for short bike rides this fall or while walking in the woods near my home. It has little in the way of performance for outdoors activities, as the bottle is bulky and too tall considering its liquid capacity. You can't open it easily with one hand and you can't rack it on a bike. There is little insulation for winter use.

But water stays fresh inside. It's easy to drink from and has a clean, ergonomic design to grip and sip. The bottle, manufactured in Monterrey, Mexico, should last for years.

KOR Ideas' namesake bottle is admittedly a bit kooky. At $30, many people will scoff at the price. But the company seems sincere in its mission: To inspire personal health and global sustainability through a new type of drinking vessel.

If KOR can convince people to reuse a bottle instead of throwing away disposables then I am a fan — paper mantra insert or not.

Killing cabin fever with Quigley

New winter park another way to enjoy outdoors in the snow

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

HAILEY — It's a cabin fever reliever. A new playground suited to cold and snow.

The Quigley Nordic Winter Park has sprung up on the outskirts of Hailey, offering valley residents and visitors one more way to enjoy winter in Idaho's mountains.

The park sits at the trailhead of the Quigley Nordic trails in a canyon of knobby treeless hills adjacent to Wood River High School.

The park is girded on two sides by a sledding hill that offers a nice overview of Hailey and the snow-covered high school football field below.

A Nordic terrain park offers roller coaster dips and waves and banks on which skiers can test their skills.

And there's a wide flat area that beginning Nordic skiers can learn to skate ski and classic ski.

Need to sit down? Check out the 20-foot yurt that's heated by wood stove during daylight hours.

The wheelchair-accessible yurt, enhanced by a paper lantern hanging from the ceiling and ornamental painting by Bellevue artists Marie Stewart, is outfitted with a couple of sofas and chairs, a picnic table and complimentary cocoa, apple cider and tea.

There are even Tonka trucks and rag dolls for young'uns who need a toy break from the cold. And there's a patio outside for those who just want to bask in the sun.

"It's a great new addition to the community," said Marcia Kent, of Hailey. "So many people come out here during their lunch hour, and the sledding hill is a big attraction for kids and families."

On Saturday the place was a whirlwind of activity with more than 60 cars crowding into the parking lot.

Adults took lessons while children climbed up and sledded down the sledding hill like yo-yos. A variety of dogs — from Jack Russell terriers to golden retrievers strutted around — happy to sniff and be sniffed.

Victor Thomas was among the parents who took a few rides down the hill with his children — 7-year-old Beckler and 6-year-old Tori — before heading out to take a few laps around the 10 kilometers of cross-country ski tracks that loop through the alfalfa fields and over gentle sloping foothills.

"This is the coolest thing ever," he said. "It's our new favorite place in the whole world. It's a great place for dogs to run all over and go crazy. I can play with the kids for awhile. Then they can continue sledding while I go skiing. I know they're safe and comfortable — they can go in the yurt if they're cold. And they're not bugging me about when we're going to go home."

If you go

Quigley Nordic Winter Park is located on the eastern outskirts of Hailey. To get there, turn onto Fox Acres Road across from the airport. Passes for Quigley Nordic area are less expensive than the trails around Galena Lodge. Day passes are $10 versus $15 on the North Valley trails. Children 12 and under ski free. Season passes for Quigley are $99 versus $199 for the North Valley trails. Ski classes are offered Mondays, Wednesdays and Saturdays. For more information: Blaine County Recreation District at 788-2117 or go to www.bcrd.org

The park was built by the Blaine County Recreation District as a base camp for winter fun-lovers.

The District's Trails Coordinator Eric Larsen built the terrain park out of dirt and waited for the snow to cover it.

"One more snow and it'll be in real good shape," he said.

Meanwhile, the sledding hill was designed to provide youngsters a safe place to sled, keeping them off steeper hillsides that could prove risky when there's avalanche danger.

The park has been buzzing with activity since the Recreation District opened it just before the holidays, said district spokesman Kris Stoffer.

"We have about 30 young racers with the Sun Valley Ski Education Foundation's Devo team out here all the time. And we even have Moms and kids out here during the week a lot," she said. "It's nice because being on the outskirts of Hailey it's so handy for so many people to access immediately after school or during their lunch break."

Stoffer said the park has prompted a big increase in the number of people using Quigley this year.

"And with the yurt, they can spend more time hanging out," she added. "They don't have to get out and do their thing and jump back in their car and head home because they're cold."

Prints of spiral galaxy to be unveiled at Herrett Center

The Herrett Center for Arts and Science at the College of Southern Idaho has been chosen as one of 117 sites in 40 states to be an official partner in the International Year of Astronomy this year. The kick off event will be the unveiling of a Great Observatories image that will be displayed in the Herrett Center's Browning/Keveren gallery.

Centennial Observatory Coordinator Chris Anderson says the prints are of a distinctive spiral galaxy called M101, which has been photographed extensively from various telescopes and observatories. What makes these images unique, said Anderson, is that identical images from the Hubble, Spitzer, and Chandra space telescopes will be combined to give viewers a never-before-seen look at this galaxy. Each of the three telescopes 'sees' in a different spectrum of light — visible, infrared, and x-ray.

The high-resolution prints will be displayed on the gallery's wall just outside the entrance to the Herrett Center's Faulkner Planetarium. The unveiling ceremony on Feb. 14 is expected to begin at 3 p.m. and will be accompanied by refreshments, activities, and a new program at the Faulkner Planetarium called "Bad Astronomy," based on the popular books and blogs of Phil Plait.

Anderson says the image unveiling will be the first of several events to be held this year at the Herrett Center to mark the International Year of Astronomy, which coincides with the 400th anniversary of the development of Galileo's telescope.

For more information about the International Year of Astronomy and related displays and activities: <http://hubblesource.stsci.edu/events/iya/> or at www.csi.edu/herrett.

Access Yes! application period open

Interested landowners may apply to participate in an incentive program that compensates participating landowners who provide hunters and anglers access to or through their land.

The application period to participate in Access Yes! in 2009 is open now. The deadline is Feb. 15. Enrollment and bid applications are available on the Idaho Department of Fish and Game Web site. The forms must be downloaded and mailed to Fish and Game.

The Access Yes! program is designed to improve hunter and angler access to private land or across private land to public land beyond by compensating willing landowners.

The program lets landowners specify conditions of access to meet their needs, provides access to wildlife that may cause depredation problems and helps improve hunter ethics and the relationships between hunters/anglers and landowners.

The program is a cooperative effort among the departments of Fish and Game, the Idaho Department of Agriculture and the Idaho Fish and Game Advisory Committee.

Fish and Wildlife Foundation appoints new board members

The Idaho Fish and Wildlife Foundation has appointed two new board members — Joan Yost of Meridian and C. David McClain of Buhl.

Yost brings decades of experience in business and nonprofits to the Foundation. She enjoys the outdoors and is an experienced fly fisher and skier.

McClain is a farmer for more than 20 years, a business owner and sportsman, and has been involved with the Chamber of Commerce, Rotary, Ducks Unlimited and a number of fundraisers.

The Idaho Fish and Wildlife Foundation is a nonprofit committed to supporting projects dedicated to acquiring, preserving and enhancing fish and wildlife habitat. The foundation creates unique opportunities to experience Idaho's fish and wildlife.

Duck deaths cause confirmed

State wildlife officials have confirmed that 175 mallard ducks found near Ammon died from aspergillosis, a common fungal infection.

Aspergillosis is a respiratory tract infection caused by a fungus commonly found in soil, dead leaves, moldy grain, compost piles or other decaying vegetation. The fungus can cause respiratory-tract infections in birds that inhale the spores.

No additional dead ducks have been found and no source of moldy grain has been located, said Mark Drew, wildlife veterinarian with the Idaho Department of Fish and Game.

There is no risk to duck hunters of getting this disease from harvested ducks. The disease is a fungal infection and is not contagious to humans or between birds. As with all game, hunters should wear latex gloves when cleaning birds and they should be thoroughly cooked before eating.

Hunters are advised not to kill any obviously sick animals, including ducks and other waterfowl.

Visual gem: spot a pair of sibling star clusters

The brightest part of the Milky Way arches high overhead in summertime.

Nonetheless, the winter Milky Way features one of the sky's finest visual gems.

The double cluster is a pair of star families so bright and close together that they appear as a single splotch of silvery light to the unaided eye. The earliest written description of the clusters appears in a Greek catalog that predates the telescope by more than 17 centuries.

Formally, the clusters are known as NGC 869 and NGC 884, as cataloged by Johan Dreyer in 1888. Alternately, they are labeled h and Chi Persei (since they lie in the constellation of Perseus), although these names are likely erroneous, having resulted from errors in transcription from pre-telescopic catalogs that labeled them as a "nebulous star."

Each cluster is similar in size (about 60 light years wide) and distance (around 7,200 light years away). Each was born when a large cloud of interstellar gas collapsed and fragmented into thousands of stars, NGC 884, 3.2 million years ago, and NGC 869 about 1.4 million years earlier.

That's young as star clusters go; the Pleiades (or Seven Sisters) cluster, currently standing very high in the south at 8:30 p.m., is more than 100 million years old.

Despite their similarities, 869 is a bit brighter and its stars are more centrally concentrated. Most telescopes at low magnifications can fit both in a single, dazzling field of view.

To find the double cluster, go outside around 7 p.m. and face north.

Slowly scan the faint Milky Way high overhead for a small, slightly brighter patch, just to the upper right of the "crooked letter M" constellation of Cassiopeia. Unaided eyes, binoculars, and telescopes each give a worthwhile view.

Next week: Saturn's disappearing rings.

Think again before shooting into a flock

Question: "I was goose hunting over decoys last weekend near Hansen. While we had stepped out of our blind in the decoys to take a break, a driver in a truck on the county road fired a high-powered rifle into our decoys, thinking they were real geese! The potential for death or serious injury to me, my children, and grandchildren scared me beyond belief and now infuriates me! Is there anything I could or should (have done) to prevent this?"

Answer: What you have described involves numerous misdemeanor and possible felonious crimes. A rifle is an unlawful weapon for hunting migratory birds, shooting from the roadway is unlawful, shooting onto private property is a hunting trespass, and use of a motorized vehicle to hunt is unlawful.

In addition, causing death as a result of the reckless discharge of a firearm could result in being charged with involuntary manslaughter. The shooter would also be liable for any injuries or damages.

ASK THE OFFICER

From our conversation the vehicle description (a red Chevy S-10 extended cab pickup, with two occupants and a yellow lab and black lab in the bed) may be helpful in helping the public provide suspect information. This incident occurred at about 4 p.m. at the intersection of 3200 N. 4100 E. in Hansen (about 4 miles west of Murtaugh Lake).

Not only is this activity a violation of Idaho law, it's a classic case of a reckless decision that could have had grave consequences. From the potential consequences it's obvious this person did not think about what could have happened. Below is a case in point:

About a year ago in Kansas a young man came home at Christmas break from his freshman year at college. As soon as he walked through the door he greeted his mother, dropped his clothes on the floor of his old bedroom, and grabbed his hunting stuff. He kissed his mom and said, "I'll be back in a couple hours, I'm going goose hunting with Steve and Bill."

While lying in the decoy spread someone driving along the county road shot a high-powered rifle into the decoys, thinking they were geese, and the young man died.

All the laws in Kansas could not save this young man. Today his father doesn't think ill about hunters or hunting because, he said,

"The man that shot my son was not a hunter!"

Additional laws in Idaho would not prevent someone from violating the law or exercising bad judgment. Rifles are not authorized for the hunting of any migratory birds for this very reason.

Hopefully this column will spread the word and discourage someone from ever shooting into a flock of geese with a rifle again. In the situation near Hansen, the hunters and their dogs were fortunate that they were not injured or killed.

If anyone has any knowledge about this incident or the suspects involved, please contact me at the e-mail address or telephone number below.

Elk foundation to hold anniversary banquet

Times-News

The Magic Valley Chapter of the Rocky Mountain Elk Foundation will host an "elk camp" fundraiser at Radio Rondevo, 241 Main Ave. West in Twin Falls on Saturday, Feb. 7.

To help celebrate the 21st anniversary, an RMEF laser engraved Cyclops LED flashlight will be given to each new or renewing member, limited one per family. This banquet event features an "elk camp" meal and games, raffles, silent and live auctions to raise money for elk and wildlife habitat in Idaho.

Ticket information and applications are available from any committee member or by calling Steve Westphal at 420-6085 or Mike Harrison at 731-5527.

Working for wildlife

Habitat area an example of what cooperative effort can accomplish

By Rob Morris
Times-News correspondent

It has been said that cooperation is the key to accomplishment.

Just a few miles north of Filer is an example of what a cooperative effort can accomplish. What was once a noxious weed-infested sink hole is now an island of badly-needed habitat for waterfowl, upland birds and a small herd of mule deer.

The LQ-Drain Wildlife Habitat Area, 2450 E. 4200 N., is a 17-acre parcel of land owned by the Idaho Department of Fish and Game with seasonal waterfowl ponds, upland-bird nesting cover and a newly planted hedgerow for winter cover.

Purchased by Idaho Power and deeded to IDFG, the project was intended as a seasonal wetland to filter out excess nutrients before canal water returns to the Snake River, and provide habitat for wildlife. Planned and funded as a joint effort by IDFG, Twin Falls Canal Company, Idaho Power and the Idaho Department of Environmental Quality, the project was designed in the fall of 2000 and is now almost complete.

"In 2001 Twin Falls Canal Company dug the settling ponds and constructed the dikes around the ponds," said Bruce Palmer, IDFG regional habitat biologist, the driving force behind the project. "Cattails and bulrushes were planted and established naturally through wind-blown seed. In 2004 local Boy Scouts planted willows around the perimeter of the settling ponds banks; all these plantings help filter out sediment and provide cover for waterfowl, songbirds and upland birds."

While touring the area with Palmer, I noticed the thick stands of cattails near the edge of the ponds — sorely needed winter cover for pheasants.

Palmer continued to list the improvements: "In 2004 a mix of grasses, forbs and native shrubs were seeded in order to increase upland bird and non-game bird nesting cover; the next year we began to irrigate the seeding area twice a week and had to control all the weeds that sprouted with the irrigation," he said. "We found out the existing gravity flow irrigation system was pretty much shot, and we were going to have to upgrade in order to complete the rest of the habitat projects: a five-row shelterbelt for winter cover and increasing the density of the nesting cover. Of course, that would take funding, and that's always hard to come-by."

Palmer then set out to ferret out some money.

"The Idaho Fish and Wildlife Foundation donated $5,000 to the project through grant funding and the local chapter of Sportsmen for Fish and Wildlife gave us $2,000 right then and there," Palmer said. "With the initial money, I was able to get matching monies from the HIP fund (Habitat Improvement Project) and other license-dollar funds. Idaho Power brought in the electricity and we were able to have a pressurized irrigation system installed."

The project was not without its difficulties, however. "We had to plant the shelterbelt in the spring, before the irrigation system was fully in place," Palmer said. "Unfortunately, we had a very warm month of May and the freshly planted shrubs were in dire need of water. I was hand watering all the shrubs with a bucket, trying desperately not lose any. I had friends, family and co-workers helping me carry water."

"Fortunately, we were blessed with a cold snap and quite a bit of rain that first week in June and the contractor finished the installation. Out of the 740 shrubs planted, we only lost five plants."

Projects for the coming year include seeding the dikes around the settling ponds in a grass/forb mixture and planting a small food plot. This will provide both food and winter cover for upland birds and mule deer.

Although the area is only 17 acres it attracts and holds a surprising amount of wildlife. Ducks use the area as nesting and brood-rearing habitat during irrigation season and as resting water as the pond evaporates after irrigation season.

"Ducks tended to use the receding water on the pond as resting water and I suspect as a food source," Palmer said. "Quite a few aquatic insects, snails and other invertebrate are exposed as the pond dries up."

"Although they are present during the early part of the duck season, I've had comments that they are difficult to put a sneak on them and get within shotgun range."

In addition, Hungarian partridge, pheasants and a small herd of mule deer may also be found in the area.

The habitat area shows what Fish and Game can do for those who support it, namely hunters and anglers. By using grants, awards and other funding, 17 acres of wasteland was transformed into future habitat. Hunters eagerly await the same placement of importance and creativity on the other thousands of acres IDFG owns within the Magic Valley.

Safety

Kober, who used to ski patrol at Soldier Mountain several years ago, said he's seen a number of accidents on the slopes. A lot of them happen at the end of the day when skiers are tired.

"But some people just don't like to wear them," he said of helmets, noting that other proper-fitting gear will help people avoid accidents by allowing them to better maneuver in the snow.

A ski boot should be snug rather than loose. And the proper length and style of skis and snowboards — shorter for beginners, for instance — is important, Kober said.

He wears a helmet today — "it's safer, there's no second-guessing that," he said — but said it comes down to personal preference.

Still, it only takes one accident to cause a brain injury, said Page Geske, director of Safe Kids of Magic Valley, which is affiliated with St Luke's. People have to ask themselves if they'd be ready for the consequences of an accident while not wearing a helmet. "How would a head injury affect the rest of your life?"

Like brushing teeth to prevent dental decay, there's a reason why people wear helmets — to protect their heads from serious injury, she said.

A helmet, Cassidy added, does not guarantee that head injuries won't happen — he's seen it before — but they "greatly reduce the risks," he said.

Parents should set an example for their children and make sure they wear helmets when on the slopes, Geske said.

In an effort to help parents become better informed, Safe Kids operates a store at 598 Addison Ave. West in Twin Falls, and helps customers choose not only ski helmets but other items — from bicycle helmets to children's car seats — to help people protect themselves when out and about.

It's important that helmets be properly fitted, Geske said. And when using a ski helmet it is important to not add anything to it, such as a ski cap, as it will effect how the helmet responds in a crash.

Geske believes it's unwise for skiers, snowboarders and other recreationists to not wear helmets, especially once they've been warned about potential dangers.

Since becoming a victim of a ski crash, Holyoak thinks likewise.

"You'll never know the terrain that well. You don't always know what's changed. Your head is a pretty valuable item, so making sure it's protected is pretty important," he said. "I feel fortunate that I came away with only a large scar."

Fees

comes from fees — not taxes.

Rather than seeking an across-the-board increase, Fish and Game has developed a "differential" fee schedule, which would increase the costs of tags and permits on selected game and fish. A resident combination license would increase 11 percent or $3.50, plus a $1.75 vendor's fee, to $37; while a non-resident combination license would increase 20 percent or $40.25, plus the vendor's fee, to $240. The vendor's fee is tacked onto all items.

Nearly 80 percent of the revenue would go toward maintaining and expanding existing programs and cover employee compensation and inflation costs over the next three years. The remaining 20 percent, about $4.1 million, would go toward habitat restoration, improved access, new family fishing waters, increased fish production, deferred maintenance needs for wildlife management areas and marshes, and youth programs.

"We really need this to be able to survive and to keep existing programs going," Kelton Hatch, regional conservation educator, said. "We understand that everybody's belts are tight. The fee increases would directly affect me as well. I have four hunters in my household. Yeah, I'm gonna feel the pinch."

About 50 percent of Fish and Game's funding is generated through license fees; the remaining 50 percent comes from grants and federal funding, Hatch said. If the Legislature doesn't approve the fee increase, he said, certain programs might be trimmed back instead of being able to expand.

"We really don't have anywhere else to tighten things up," Jerome Hansen, supervisor with the Magic Valley regional office, said of the proposal. The last fee increase — 10 percent in 2005 — was aimed to last two years, but the department was able to stretch it to last four, Hansen said.

"It's time again," he said. "We really are funded by sportsmen, and we want to make sure they know what we're proposing and, hopefully, they'll support us."

But not every sportsman does support the proposal.

In the past, the tendency has been for the state to rubber stamp any fee increase Fish and Game requests, said Tony Mayer, founder of SaveElk.com, a nonprofit organization created about a year ago in an effort to help protect the West's wildlife.

"Fish and Game has grown into this very large organization that we feel, has lost its focus," he said. "They've become distracted in several areas, notably with the gray wolf introduction into our state. They haven't stood up for game like they should have. They've evolved into a catch-all department for ... wilderness-related issues and other things that people believe are nice to have, such as bird-watching areas and wildflower and plant research, but that are not consistent with the mandate of the Legislature in the creation of Fish and Game."

Mayer believes yet another fee increase would adversely affect local communities, particularly as it raises license fees for non-residents.

"We're going to see small business being affected, grocery stores, motels, sporting goods shops," he said. "The residual impact is going to be great" because it will keep some sportsmen away.

Mayer said it may seem almost non-democratic to oppose a wildlife proposal, but believes it should be opposed until Fish and Game can, in his opinion, direct money to fund its original mission: To better protect wildlife.

But Hatch said the department's non-game programs help teach the rising generation and newcomers to Idaho about the state's many outdoor opportunities. Last year the department took more than 700 kids fishing as part of Trout in the Classroom, he said.

"Hopefully one day they'll be anglers," Hatch said.

Still, Mayer encourages anyone, whether they oppose the proposal or support it, to contact their legislator.

Fish and Game encourages supporters to do the same.

But officials say they don't expect much to happen this year, because it usually takes a while for people to understand enough about a proposed money issue before they can make an educated decision.

A topsy-turvy economy doesn't make it any easier.

"It's a tough sell. We know that, and they know that," Hansen said. "We know how tough it is out there. Things are super tight."

That said, Idaho's abundant outdoor opportunities can be therapeutic.

"It gives folks something to do when times are tough, if they get laid off, for instance," Hansen said. "It may very well be one of the most important things we have going for us."

BANKRUPTCY

Chapter 7 & 13
Stop Collections, Foreclosures & Garnishments
Fast • Experienced

Question: My wife and I filed our own Chapter 7 bankruptcy and now the bankruptcy trustee wants to seize my daughter's car because my name is on the title. Is this legal?

Answer: In Idaho, it is clear that if your name is on the title to a car, then you have an ownership interest in that car. When you file a bankruptcy, all the assets you have an ownership interest in become part of your bankruptcy estate and can be liquidated for the benefit of your creditors UNLESS THE ASSET IS EXEMPT. Idaho law provides a generous list of exemptions to protect the common types of property items most people own. However, you and your wife are entitled to only one automobile exemption each. Apparently, you used the exemptions on the cars you and your wife drive, leaving your daughter's car unprotected. You should contact an experienced bankruptcy attorney immediately. Even at this late stage, it might be possible to realign your exemptions to protect all or a portion of the value of your daughter's car. Even if that is not possible, there are other options including (1) negotiating a cash payment with the trustee in lieu of seizure, and (2) conversion of your case to a case under Chapter 13 of the Bankruptcy Code. This is yet another sad example of why saving money by not hiring an attorney may turn out to be very costly in the end.

Tom and Cheri Watson, who used to volunteer at a soup kitchen in the Seattle area, are among the volunteers who will feed those in need at the Presbyterian Church of the Big Wood in Ketchum.

New soup kitchen opens in Ketchum

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

Cheri Watson has a Seattle soup kitchen on speed dial.

Earlier this week, she was trying to get a certain lasagna recipe in time for the inaugural supper of Ketchum's new soup kitchen.

The free meals, which will be offered from 6 to 7 p.m. every Wednesday at the Presbyterian Church of the Big Wood, are designed to complement a Hailey soup kitchen that just celebrated its 11th anniversary.

"So many people think of Sun Valley as the place for the rich and famous, but there are a lot of needy people here," said soup kitchen volunteer Beth Grinstead. "I was excited to hear about this project because I love to give back to our community and I feel there is a need to help the worker bees of our community get through tough times."

Michael Hobbs, a computer programmer for the school district, said he felt compelled to organize the dinners as he watched gas and food prices rise while available jobs declined.

A warm dish

Ketchum Community Dinners will offer free meals from 6 to 7 p.m. Wednesdays at the Presbyterian Church of the Big Wood, 100 Saddle Road, Ketchum.

Souper Suppers offer free meals from 5:30 to 6:30 p.m. Mondays and Thursdays at St. Charles Catholic Church, 311 S. First Ave., Hailey.

Keith and Paula Perry of Perry's restaurant were quick to offer day-old bread, and Big Wood Bread followed suit. Wood River Middle School teacher Jill Clark has volunteered her home economics students to cook an occasional meal and several church groups have said they will pitch in as well.

The South Central Community Action Partnership is also helping to provide food, along with the Blaine County Hunger Coalition and Idaho Food Bank.

Lynn Flickinger said the number of people partaking in the twice-weekly Souper Suppers in Hailey doubled from 30 early last year to 60 by fall. Volunteers fed more than 80 people at Christmas.

"In 2007 we served over 3,000 meals. By the end of 2008 we had served over 5,000 meals and I'm afraid the numbers are going to continue to climb until there's a major change in the economy," she said.

The Blaine County Hunger Coalition likewise is giving out triple the amount of food it gave out last year at this time, said Coalition Director Jeanne Liston.

"And I keep hearing these scary statistics, such as how 75 percent of the construction workers in the valley are laid off," she added.

It doesn't help that the cost of living in the Wood River Valley is higher than other parts of Idaho.

A Job Gap Study in 2007 showed a single parent with two children in the county must make $24.79 an hour or $51,042 a year to meet the basic needs of the family. And that amount continues to increase.

People have to choose between paying rent and buying food, said Liston. "The food bank looks good right now — partly because giving is always up around the holidays. But it goes so quickly. We need both ... both food we can hand out and already-cooked dinners like the soup kitchens offer."

Watson, a Microsoft consultant who also works at the ski desk at Warm Springs Lodge, is just glad she can help.

"We are super excited that these dinners will reach out to our community in a real time of need," she said.

Now if she could just get that lasagna recipe.

"I was excited to hear about this project because I love to give back to our community.."

Rare form of dementia leaves woman speechless

DEAR DR. GOTT: My 63-year-old daughter was a healthy, active woman until two years ago, when she started having trouble with her speech. She couldn't bring out the words she wanted to say and also could not remember things. She was later diagnosed with frontotemporal dementia (primary progressive aphasia). I was told this essentially means she cannot understand language.

Can you tell me what causes this? Is it terminal? Her doctors have said there is no cure or help they can offer her. It is very sad to see her struggle like this.

DEAR READER: Frontotemporal dementia (FTD) is a blanket term for a group of rare disorders

ASK DR. GOTT
Dr. Peter Gott

that affect the frontal and temporal portions of the brain. These areas are associated with personality, behavior and language. Disorders in the group include Pick's disease, primary progressive aphasia and semantic dementia. There is currently a debate whether to include corticobasal degeneration and progressive supranuclear palsy. Should this happen, the name would likely be changed again to Pick Complex.

There is no treatment that has been shown to slow FTD. Because the inability to control behavior and personality are the primary symptoms of most of the disorders that make up FTD, behavioral modification, antidepressants and sedative/tranquilizers to control dangerous or unacceptable behaviors may be necessary. Your daughter has a subtype that causes impairment or loss of the ability to understand and perform speech and other linguistic tasks. Primary progressive aphasia, which your daughter has, affects not only spoken language but written language, as well. Speech therapy may be an option.

Some of the subtypes of frontotemporal dementia appear to have a genetic component. Often, however, there is no family history. Researchers are still trying to uncover what causes these conditions, but most theories involve a loss of nerve cells, shrinkage of the frontal and temporal lobes of the brain and deposits of damaged proteins inside nerves.

Unfortunately, at this time, FTD does appear to be a terminal affliction. Some suffers may live only two years and others up to 10. Eventually, most will require 24-hour care and monitoring. Each case is different, and the rate of deterioration varies.

I suggest you speak with your daughter's physicians for their prognoses, as they are most familiar with her specific case. They may be able to put you in contact with support groups and organizations that can help you prepare to care for her properly. It is important to make your daughter as comfortable as possible, and that means knowing what may come next as her disorder progresses.

I recommend that you and others interested in learning more about frontotemporal dementia, go online to learn more. Excellent information is available from the National Institute of Neurological Disorders and Stroke (www.ninds.nih.gov), the Association for Frontotemporal Dementias (www.FTD-Picks.org or 1-866-507-7222) and the Mayo Clinic (www.MayoClinic.com).

George Ray Clawson

George Ray Clawson passed away peacefully in his sleep Monday, Jan. 12, 2009.

He was born Sept. 28, 1925, to Ray Clawson and Veva Harker in Shelley. He was raised in Charlo, Mont., with his siblings, Veva, Orilla, Marion, Rone, Jack, Myrtle and Beth. When he was 16 years old, his mother passed away so he lived with relatives in Shelley until his Aunt Leah invited him to be a part of her family. He called her his "second mother." George's father, Ray later married Margaret Lieshman, combining his family with her six children.

George left high school in order to serve his country in the United States Navy during World War II; Aunt Leah walked through the high school graduation line in his place. He was in the Pacific Theater on the USS Alhena (aka 9) as a motor machinist mate II.

After the war in 1946, George was called on an LDS mission to New Zealand, where he was greatly loved and was given the honored Maori name of "Korohana," which means "Old Man" or a tribal leader. He learned to speak the Maori language and was later privileged to participate in the Maori LDS Temple film. For many years, he entertained audiences by doing Maori war dances (haka) and telling of his love of New Zealand and its people. Our family gatherings still include a haka.

George met a beautiful blonde from Shelley and pledged his love to her for all eternity. George married Helma "Margene" Andersen in the Idaho Falls Temple in 1951. He graduated from Utah State University with a bachelor's degree in refrigeration and air conditioning. During college, George became a commissioned officer in the Air Force Reserves. The Clawsons lived in Salt Lake City, Bountiful and Spanish Fork, Utah, before moving to Idaho, where they resided in Twin Falls and Hazelton, and then settled in Twin Falls.

George was one of the first teachers hired by the new College of Southern Idaho. He taught refrigeration and air conditioning until he retired in 1991. He subsequently earned two master's degrees. Six children were born to George and Margene: Ron (Sharalee), Luan Zenk (Stan), Lynn (Connie), Arlene Madsen (Duff), Sally Richardson (Corky) and Chad (Penny Buckland). He has 21 grandchildren and 4½ great-grandchildren. George is preceded in death by his parents; his sisters, Veva and Beth; and brother, Jack.

George left a legacy of love for his posterity; he never doubted his testimony of the Savior Jesus Christ and his children knew that. George served in many capacities in the LDS Church, including Scoutmaster, bishop, counselor, stake mission president, Sunday school teacher, high counselor and priest's teacher. George encouraged his children and grandchildren to gain an education and to serve missions. He was always a missionary and loved teaching the gospel; he would strike up a conversation with anyone, anywhere, and it always led back to the church. George and Margene served four missions together, in Rapid City, S.D.; Auckland, New Zealand; Cove Fort, Utah; and Palmyra, N.Y.

George was a great advocate of the Boy Scouts. As Scoutmaster, he helped several boys earn their Eagle rank. He was also advancement chairman and was awarded the Silver Beaver for his many years of Scouting service.

George loved being outdoors. He camped and fished whenever he had a chance. He loved watching his garden grow; on summer evenings you could always find him outside with his pants rolled up, pulling weeds and checking on his vegetables. He grew a huge garden and was eager to share his bounty with neighbors.

George had twinkling eyes and an infectious smile. Four years ago, he suffered a stroke during knee surgery and since that time has been cared for by his loving wife, Margene, who rarely left his side. Many thanks to all who have helped during these past few years with meals and rides and "grandpa-sitting services."

The funeral will be held at 10 a.m. Saturday, Jan. 17, at the LDS chapel on Hankins Road North in Twin Falls, with a viewing beginning one hour prior to the service. From 7 to 8 p.m. Friday, Jan. 16, friends and family will be welcome at Parke's Magic Valley Funeral Home, 2551 Kimberly Road in Twin Falls. Interment will be in Goshen following the service. In lieu of flowers, please donate to the Boy Scouts of America, the Church Missionary Fund or the Perpetual Education Fund.

We love you, Dad. Condolences may be sent to the family at www.magicvalleyfuneralhome.com.

Blaineda G. Owens

Blaineda Gayle Owens, 53, was called by God to live forever in the Kingdom of Heaven on Sunday, Jan. 11, 2009, while surrounded by her loved ones. Her death took place at St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center and was an end to a courageous battle against cancer.

Blaineda was born June 27, 1955, in Phoenix, Ariz., to Howard and Roberta Webb and was the third of five children. Blaineda's family moved to Filer in the early '60s, where she attended school until her junior year when she moved to California with the love of her life, Michael. The two of them were married on June 30, 1972, after returning to Twin Falls. Shortly after their marriage, Blaineda successfully completed courses at the College of Southern Idaho to obtain her GED. Blaineda worked most of her life as an issue clerk at the Amalgamated Sugar factory in Twin Falls and retired in the fall of 2007 after being diagnosed with cancer.

Blaineda had many hobbies including hiking, camping, fishing and attending family events. Her true passion in life was spoiling her two granddaughters and watching them grow.

Blaineda is survived by her beloved husband of 37 years, Michael V. Owens; three sons, Michael S. Owens, Brad L. Owens (Ashley) and Howard S. Owens; two precious granddaughters, Aunica and Kemorale; two brothers, Doyle Webb (Susan) and D'Von Webb; two sisters, Sharon Dedman (Rocky) and Patsy Webb (Bryce Romans); and numerous nieces and nephews. Blaineda was preceded in death by her parents, Howard and Roberta Webb.

A public viewing will be held from 4 to 6 p.m. Sunday, Jan. 18, at Parke's Magic Valley Funeral Home, 2551 Kimberly Road in Twin Falls. The memorial service will be held at 2 p.m. Monday, Jan. 19, at the same location. In lieu of flowers, the family requests that donations be made to the Humane Society to honor Blaineda's love for cats.

Condolences may be sent to the family at www.magicvalleyfuneralhome.com.

Fontella Rose Loe Huddleston

MERIDIAN — Fontella Rose Loe Huddleston was born April 4, 1946, in Babbitt, Nev. She lost her battle with cancer Monday, Jan. 12, 2009.

A memorial service will be held at 11 a.m. Saturday, Jan. 17, at Summers Funeral Homes, Ustick Chapel. Family and friends will gather at the home of Pam and Craig Reynick following the service.

Fon was the first of eight children and spent much of her youth helping raise her siblings and spending summers with them on her granny's farm. She married young and had four children of her own. She had a great sense of humor and was loved and respected by so many.

She enjoyed her wood crafts and going to yard sales but most of all spending time with her grandchildren and great-grandsons.

Family get-togethers were always fun. On several occasions, Fon and her daughters had what they called "girl's weekends." These were always so much fun no matter where they were held, and we all went home with sore stomach muscles from laughing so hard and so much. She loved to laugh and was always up for a good-hearted practical joke. Her smile will be with us all forever.

Not only was she the best mom, but she was such a great sister, aunt, friend, grandmother and great-grandmother. She had so much love for her family and friends and each of them have such wonderful memories of time spent together. She made each of our spouses and significant others feel like her own and loved them all! We will all miss her very much.

In 2003, a great new adventure started for Fon. Ostin, the first of two great-grandsons was born. She and Ostin became fast buddies and she loved being able to spend time with him. Then in 2005, another gift, Ayden, was born. She was a great playmate to these two brothers and wanted to spend much more time with them. "Grams" was the best playmate two little boys could ask for. Cancer may have taken her from us, but she will always be a special guardian angel for "the boys."

She is survived by her seven siblings, April (Dan) Brogdon, Ralph Loe Jr. (Bobbie), Roberta Loe, Tom Hannifan, Bill Hannifan, Nancy Flowers (Bob and Allison), Frank Hannifan (Yvonne); four children, Pam (Craig) Reynick, Jim Bridwell Jr., Becky (Mark) Neville and Kim (Nate Wade) Bridwell; grandchildren, Jeremy Mickelson, Amye Browne, Amber, Jacob and Caitlyn Neville, and Elijah Bargo; and great-grandsons, Ostin Neville and Ayden Coates. She was preceded in death by her father, stepfather and mother.

Ricardo Montalban of 'Fantasy Island' dies, 88

By Adam Bernstein
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Ricardo Montalban, a Mexican-born actor who starred in Hollywood dramas and candy-colored musicals in the 1940s and '50s and was perhaps best known as the debonair host of the TV drama "Fantasy Island" and as pitchman for the "soft Corinthian leather" of the Chrysler Cordoba, died Wednesday at his home in Los Angeles of congestive heart failure. He was 88.

Montalban parlayed early success as a leading man of Mexican cinema into a Hollywood contract in the late '40s as the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio's resident "Latin lover" opposite Esther Williams.

Given big budgets, the films were splashy showcases for swimming star Williams but were considered breakthroughs in the respect that, at least in the case of "Neptune's Daughter" (1949), a white actress was romantically involved with Montalban's character. In other roles, he was her brother.

Decades later, he campaigned actively to improve the variety of parts available to Hispanic and Latino actors. This was crucial, he said, at a time when "the only Hispanics children could see were banditos, peons and gigolos."

Although he continued in lighter fare at MGM, he also acted in several first-rate dramas, including William Wellman's "Battleground" (1949) as a soldier in the Battle of the Bulge, and "Border Incident" (1949) and "Mystery Street" (1950) as law enforcement officials.

But for the most part, he remained busy in an almost ridiculous array of ethnic movie roles. He was an American Indian in "Across the Wide Missouri" (1951) with Clark Gable, a Japanese kabuki actor in "Sayonara" (1957) with Marlon Brando and the rich Italian ladies man in the musical "Sweet Charity" (1968) with Shirley MacLaine. He played a French duke in the comedy "Love Is a Ball" (1963) and won an Emmy Award for his portrayal of an Indian chief in the TV miniseries "How the West Was Won, Part II" (1978).

Montalban received a Tony Award nomination for his long-running stage role as Lena Horne's fisherman lover in the musical "Jamaica" (1957) and began to make forays onto TV programs including westerns and sitcoms.

His best-remembered work on the small screen was the role of the white-suited Mr. Roarke in "Fantasy Island," a romantic drama that aired on ABC from 1978 to 1984. Like other shows produced by Aaron Spelling, it featured an exotic locale where women tended to remove clothing.

Television scholar Robert Thompson of Syracuse University said the show's casting of Montalban as Mr.

Roarke and the diminutive actor Herve Villechaize as his sidekick Tattoo was significant "in an era when you did not see a lot of people of different ethnic groups and colors on television."

Moreover, Thompson said, Montalban's portrayal of Mr. Roarke was elegant, sexual, powerful and able to add "gravitas to a show with an otherwise pretty cheesy pedigree." In each episode, Mr. Roarke greeted a series of guest actors with drinks and allowed them to live out a fantasy of their choosing, often with the characters becoming sadder but wiser.

Explaining the role of Mr. Roarke, Montalban told an interviewer at the time: "Was he a magician? A hypnotist? Did he use hallucinogenic drugs? I finally came across a character that works for me. He has the essence of mystery, but I need a point of view so that my performance is consistent. I now play him 95 percent believable and 5 percent mystery. He doesn't have to behave mysteriously, only what he does is mysterious."

British TV spy star Patrick McGoohan dies at age 80

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Patrick McGoohan, a dashing actor who brought originality to early TV spy series such as "The Prisoner" and "Secret Agent" in the 1960s and who later won two Emmy Awards for his guest appearances on the "Colombo" TV series died Tuesday in Los Angeles. He was 80.

The family declined to provide the exact cause of death.

Raised in England, McGoohan appeared in several British stage and film productions, including the terrific action film about rival truckers, "Hell Drivers" (1957), and a reworking of "Othello" set in a contemporary jazz setting, "All Night Long" (1962), which also featured musicians Dave Brubeck and Charles Mingus.

McGoohan's film career was sporadic, including supporting roles as the warden opposite Clint Eastwood in "Escape From Alcatraz" (1979) or the cruel king to Mel Gibson's warrior in "Braveheart" (1995). Instead he focused on a prolific television career as an actor, writer and director.

He gained wide notice for his leading role on the British series "Danger Man" (1960), which aired on CBS as "Secret Agent" in the mid-1960s to capitalize on Ian Fleming's James Bond franchise.

McGoohan played John Drake, a British security investigator who offers his services to governments around the world. Johnny Rivers popularized the show's theme song, "Secret Agent Man," with lyrics that begin:

"There's a man who leads a life of danger
To everyone he meets he stays a stranger."

The music captured the sleek hero, who shared an interest with Bond in sporty cars, exotic locations and concealed gadgetry and introduced himself as "Drake, John Drake."

The comparison stopped there, because McGoohan, a married and devout Catholic, insisted on avoiding Bond's womanizing or cold violence.

"When Drake fights, he fights clean," McGoohan once explained. "He abhors bloodshed. He carries a gun, but doesn't use it unless necessary — and then he doesn't shoot to kill. He prefers to use his wits. He is a person with a sophisticated background and a philosophy. I want Drake to be in the heroic mould, like the classic Western hero — which means he has to be a good man." McGoohan also reportedly refused the movie role of Bond, which went to his "Hell Drivers" co-actor Sean Connery.

AROUND THE NATION

WASHINGTON
U.S. foreclosure filings up 81 percent in 2008

WASHINGTON — More than 2.3 million American homeowners faced foreclosure proceedings last year, an 81 percent increase from 2007, with the worst yet to come as consumers grapple with layoffs, shrinking investment portfolios and falling home prices.

Nationwide, more than 860,000 properties were actually repossessed by lenders, more than double the 2007 level, according to RealtyTrac, a foreclosure listing firm based in Irvine, Calif., which compiled the figures.

Moody's Economy.com, a research firm, predicts the number of homes lost to foreclosure is likely to rise by another 18 percent this year before tapering off slightly through 2011.

Still, foreclosures — which keep breaking records going back 30 years, according to the Mortgage Bankers Association — are likely to remain well above normal levels for years to come, and that will continue to keep home prices from rebounding.

"Hitting bottom is a lot different than coming off the bottom," said Christopher Thornberg, a principal with Beacon Economics in Los Angeles.

The RealtyTrac report comes as Democrats, including President-elect Barack Obama, develop plans to use up to $100 billion of the remaining $350 billion in financial bailout money in an attempt to prevent the foreclosure crisis from getting even worse.

The four states with the highest foreclosure rates last year were Nevada, Florida, Arizona and California.

Steve Jobs backtracks on health, takes leave

SEATTLE — Apple Inc. co-founder and Chief Executive Steve Jobs said Wednesday he is taking a medical leave until June, even though just a week ago the cancer survivor tried to assure investors and employees his recent weight loss was caused by an easily treatable hormone deficiency.

Apple's stock dropped 7 percent.

Jobs, 53, said in a letter last week that he would remain at Apple's helm despite the hormone problem, and that he had already begun a "relatively simple and straightforward" treatment. But in an e-mail to employees Wednesday, Jobs backtracked.

"During the past week I have learned that my health-related issues are more complex than I originally thought," he wrote.

FLORIDA

Money manager charged in ill-fated flight

CHATTAHOOCHEE — A daredevil money manager whose run from ruin was halted when investigators interrupted his suicide attempt at a Florida campground found his legal problems compounded Wednesday as authorities filed federal charges against him in the three-day ordeal.

U.S. Marshals tracked Marcus Schrenker, 38, to a north Florida campground late Tuesday night, peeling back the flap to his one-man tent to discover him in clouded consciousness with blood-soaked arms, muttering the word "die."

The capture ended a multi-state scramble to find him after he allegedly staged a plane crash and parachuted out over Alabama, then fled.

Scott Wilson, a spokesman for the U.S. Marshals Northern District of Florida, said Schrenker was charged with intentionally wrecking his aircraft and faking a distress call, causing the Coast Guard to launch a search to save his life when it wasn't necessary.

NEW JERSEY

Kids with Nazi-inspired names taken from home

HOLLAND TOWNSHIP — Three New Jersey siblings whose names have Nazi connotations have been placed in state custody, police said.

The children, ranging in age from 3 to under 1, were removed from their home Friday. They drew attention last month when a supermarket bakery refused to put the name of the oldest — Adolf Hitler Campbell — on a birthday cake.

State workers didn't tell police why the children were taken, police Sgt. John Harris said. A spokeswoman for the state Division of Youth and Family Services, Kate Bernyk, said she would not comment on any specific case, but she said the state would not remove children from a home simply because of their names.

Sen. Graham cites worldwide goodwill for Obama

President-elect Barack Obama looks on as Sen. Lindsey Graham, R-S.C. discusses his recent trip to Afghanistan, Iraq, Kuwait and Pakistan.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A confidant of the man Barack Obama defeated in November said Wednesday that the president-elect has earned enormous global goodwill and “a moment in time” to re-engage other nations with the United States.

The assessment by Sen. Lindsey Graham, R-S.C., was noteworthy because he is a conservative Republican and one of Sen. John McCain's closest friends. Graham campaigned vigorously against Obama in last year's presidential race.

Noting himself that he had been “one of the chief opponents” of Obama, Graham pronounced himself now “very pleased” with the president-elect's attitude and policies toward the countries they visited.

Graham appeared Wednesday with Vice President-elect Joe Biden at Obama's transition headquarters. Biden and Graham were there to brief Obama on what they learned during a just-completed five-day, bipartisan fact-finding mission to Kuwait, Pakistan, Afghanistan and Iraq.

“I cannot tell you how much enthusiasm we saw in Pakistan for this new president,” Graham said, sitting in a chair to Obama's right. “There is a moment in time here for this country to re-engage the international community, to make sure that we have international support to stabilize Afghanistan, Pakistan and Iraq.”

He added: “This president's popularity and the respect that he has earned throughout the world gives America a chance to re-engage not only in the region, but in a way that will in the long term make this job easier, take some pressure off our troops. And that's a compliment to you and the way you have campaigned.”

Biden and Graham gave Obama an initial report on their trip and will later present the president-elect with a more detailed accounting.

10-day truce sought as death toll tops 1,000 in Gaza

By Salah Nasrawi and Lee Keath
Associated Press writers

CAIRO, Egypt — Egypt and Hamas are close to a deal for a 10-day cease-fire between Israel and the Palestinian militant group in Gaza, where the death toll from the Israeli offensive exceeded 1,000, officials said Wednesday.

Egyptian and Hamas officials expressed optimism that an agreement for a temporary halt in fighting could be sealed soon and presented to Israel. But even if all sides sign on, further talks will be needed to resolve contentious disputes over policing Gaza's borders and ensure a longer-term truce.

“We're working with Hamas and we're working with the Israeli side. We hope to reach an outcome soon,” Egyptian Foreign Ministry spokesman Hossam Zaki told the British Broadcasting Corp.

Nine Israeli human rights groups accused the army of endangering Gazan civilians and called for a war crimes investigation. The groups wrote to Israeli leaders that the Gaza campaign has left civilians with nowhere to flee. Foreign Ministry spokesman Yigal Palmor said Israel supports freedom of expression, even if an opinion “is not based on any solid evidence and even if it is tainted with political bias.”

Guerrillas in Lebanon sent rockets crashing into northern Israel on Wednesday for the second time in a week, drawing an Israeli artillery barrage and threatening to drag the Jewish state into a second front.

Egyptian and Hamas officials held intensive talks in Cairo. Late Wednesday, Salah al-Bardawil, a Gaza-based Hamas official, stopped short of saying Hamas had accepted the Egyptian proposal. He told reporters that “we submitted our points of view” on the proposed deal, adding, “We hope that this Egyptian effort will succeed.”

Ghazi Hamad, another Gaza-based Hamas official, told the BBC, “I am optimistic now because I think there is no other choice for us. ... This kind of agreement can be done now, and I think now there is good progress in Egypt. We hope that now Egypt will contact Israel and talk about all issues.”

But there were signs Hamas' leadership-in-exile had reservations. Osama Hamdan, a leading Hamas official in Beirut, said there were still points Hamas had not agreed to. “We do not agree with the initiative as it stands now,” he told Al-Jazeera TV.

The contradictory comments were the latest sign of cracks between Hamas leaders under fire in Gaza and the leadership-in-exile, which is largely based in Syria and is seen as more hard-line. Hamas officials, however, insist that the movement is unified, and it was not clear if Hamdan's tougher tone was a negotiating tactic or a sign of division.

Israel launched its offensive Dec. 27 to halt years of Palestinian rocket attacks.

Pilots pick up first conference win

By Bradley Guire
Times-News writer

The Valley boys rallied in the third quarter during their Wednesday home contest, but ran out of gas, allowing Glens Ferry to win its Canyon Conference opener 69-46.

The Pilots paced themselves through the game, putting up 15-plus point quarters. Crane finished with a 27-point, 14-rebound double-double, and teammates Ross Arellano and Johnny Popoca scored in double figures as well. Glens Ferry shot 28-for-51 from the field (55 percent) and 10-for-12 from the foul line. Still, they weren't thrilled with the production.

"We wanted a bigger lead," said Arellano, who added that offensive putbacks were a key to the point production. Glens Ferry outrebounded Valley 30-18.

The Pilots led 35-25 at the break and opened the second half with a six-point run to widen the gap. Valley's Crystian Orozco led a valiant effort, scoring all of his 12 points during the third quarter.

"I decided to get something done," Orozco said.

He hit a 3-pointer to get things started, then went on an eight-point run by himself with goals coming off jumpers and putbacks. It was frustrating for the Pilots, who were having trouble on defense.

"There was some miscommunication," Glens Ferry coach Jeremiah Johnston said.

Glens Ferry closed the third with another six-point run as Valley stalled, hitting only 2 of 17 shots during the fourth. Then, as Valley coach Steve Hunter put it, Crane took over.

"I was happy with the effort," Hunter added. "It was nice to see Crystian put some baskets in and build his confidence."

The Pilots (8-3, 1-0) will travel to Buhl tonight. Valley (5-8) falls to 0-2 in conference play and will host Oakley Friday.

YOUTH movement

Gooding High School varsity basketball coach Max Piper keeps a keen eye on his team during a game against Shoshone Jan. 8 in Shoshone.

It's time to redefine losing

I see a lot of winning and a lot of losing in my line of work.

Losing is not only a part of sports, it is also an unavoidable part of life. Even the highest achievers deal with losing now and again.

So why did legendary Green Bay Packers coach Vince Lombardi say, "Winning isn't everything, it's the only thing"?

RYAN HOWE

On Jan. 1, the Times-News published my column titled "Winning costs a lot more nowadays." Since then, I have received many phone calls, e-mails and even been stopped by people on the street. Some of the feedback came from parents who are concerned that their children's hard work and dedication to a sport is not translating to victories and trophies. Others complain that their child should get more playing time. Mostly, these parents blame coaches and administrators for losing seasons.

"All I want is for the program to be successful," one parent lamented.

No one can fault a parent for wanting his or her child to be successful. The questions I ask these parents are: What should be the ultimate goal in high school sports? How do we measure success?

These are rhetorical inquiries, as I don't have a definitive answer.

I get the feeling that some parents aren't driven by seeing their child succeed, rather they are more afraid of what could happen if their child fails. They try to protect their kids from the pain of defeat.

So I think the answer is not to define success, but instead to redefine losing.

Losing is giving less than your best effort. Losing is giving up when there is time left on the clock. Losing is believing that your personal worth is in direct relation to your points per game average. Losing is trying to live up to another's expectations rather than heeding your inner self. Losing is looking back 10 or 20 years after graduation and defining yourself by what you did in high school.

We all certainly want to see these young athletes reach their highest potential. But lessons from a loss can't be learned any other way. While each sport owns only one state champion each season, there can be

Gooding boys basketball squad now guided by fresh staff

By Bradley Guire
Times-News writer

Years of mediocrity have weighed on the Gooding boys basketball team. It's a program that hasn't finished above .500 in six seasons and is on its third coach since 2006. Yet the players have a renewed optimism about the future under their new coaches, none of whom are more than 30.

Head coach Max Piper, 21, is a former Richfield player under Garr Ward. His assistants are Cody Jacobson, 28, and former Richfield teammate Braiden Buckner, 18. Piper served as an assistant to Ward last year, but this is his first stint in the top job, for better or worse.

"The first day, I had to hand out practice jerseys," Piper said, "and 32 kids swarmed around me, all looking to me. I was shocked and overwhelmed, but I had always been in a leader role so it didn't take long for me to step in."

Not everyone welcomed the arrival of Piper. Some players quit the team before the first practice, and even Buckner was doubtful when Piper first asked if he would lead the freshman team.

"At first, I chuckled at the idea," Buckner said, "then he convinced me to do it."

Everyone on staff knew that there might be some resistance and scrutiny.

"To be a coach, you have to be mature and watch what you do," Buckner added. "You can't be the normal teenager because people are watching."

Piper said that age was the main factor. He called a team meeting before practices began and laid it out — if anyone had a problem with his age, they could leave. Some did, he said.

For the players that remained, age is not a deciding factor when it comes to

CSI women up to 16th in NJCAA poll

By Mike Christensen
Times-News writer

Last weekend's lopsided road wins over Scenic West Athletic Conference foes Colorado Northwestern Community College and the College of Eastern Utah helped the College of Southern Idaho women inch up one spot in the latest NJCAA Division I Women's Basketball Top 25.

The Golden Eagles, No. 16 in the rankings released on Wednesday, will host No. 19

North Idaho College at 3 p.m. Saturday in a pivotal SWAC contest.

"That'll be a good win because they're a good team," said CSI head coach Randy Rogers, whose team owns a 13-3 record (2-0 SWAC) and a 10-game winning streak.

The Cardinals are 15-2 (2-0 SWAC) and feature a deep and talented group of guards, led by Idaho State transfer Bianca Cheever.

Kimberly grad makes Sports Illustrated

Times-News

This probably wasn't the way Kayla Hutcherson envisioned making it into Sports Illustrated, but in time it could grow on her.

The Kimberly graduate, and freshman power forward at Walla Walla (Wash.) Community College, suffered a horrific concussion earlier this season after colliding with a teammate during press defense drills at practice.

Hutcherson's story is featured in this week's Sports Illustrated, as the subject of Chris Ballard's "Point After" column, in which Ballard chronicles her continued recovery.

left Hutcherson with complete memory loss. Even now, she struggles to remember names and faces, people and places.

"I feel like my life's like a puzzle, and I have to put it together," Hutcherson told Sports Illustrated.

On-court, at least, things are coming together. Hutcherson was cleared to play and made her collegiate debut on Jan. 7, scoring 13 points in 14 minutes of WWCC's 100-50 win over Walla Walla University.

Hutcherson also played 12 minutes in WWCC's 78-72 loss to Columbia Basin College three days later, scoring just one point and logging four rebounds.

"The game has come back to her," Ballard wrote. "As for the rest of her life, Kayla is still waiting."

JEROME CRUISES AT BUHL TRI

The Jerome Tigers proved why they're one of the best teams in the Magic Valley, throttling Buhl and Burley in a tri-match at Buhl on Wednesday.

Cory Cummins, Jon Albers, Heyden Thacker, Cody McCoy, Kyle Novis and Alex Boguslawski each scored victories in both of their matches. All of those wrestlers recorded two pins except McCoy, who outlasted Buhl's Chance Share 6-4 in overtime for one of his wins, and Agee.

Buhl edged Burley in the third dual, after the teams tied 42-42 and had to go well down in the tiebreaker criteria list to the team getting the very first points in the dual. Buhl recorded the first takedown in the first match of the dual so the Indians took the team victory.

Oklahoma City Thunder's Nenad Krstic, left, grabs a rebound in front of Utah Jazz center Kosta Koufos during the fourth quarter in Oklahoma City, Wednesday. Oklahoma City won 114-93.

Jazz drop game to lowly Thunder

OKLAHOMA CITY — Jeff Green scored 23 points, Russell Westbrook added 22 and Kevin Durant had 21, and Oklahoma City used a 22-7 third-quarter run to take control in the Thunder's 114-93 victory over the Utah Jazz on Wednesday night.

Nenad Krstic had 14 points and 11 rebounds, and Nick Collison added 11 rebounds for the Thunder, which outrebounded Utah 48-26. The victory was the seventh of the season for the Thunder and their fourth in eight games.

Deron Williams scored 25 points for the Jazz, which had a four-game winning streak ended. All of those came at home; this was the team's fifth straight loss on the road. Kyle Korver had 14 points, but just two in the second half.

SPURS 112, LAKERS 111

SAN ANTONIO — Roger Mason hit a jumper with 10 seconds left and made a free throw after being fouled by Derrick Fisher, and the San Antonio Spurs beat the Los Angeles Lakers in the first meeting between the teams since the Western Conference finals.

After Mason's three-point play, the Lakers failed to get a shot off when Trevor Ariza was called for traveling.

Manu Ginobili led San Antonio with 27 points. Bryant led Los Angeles with 29.

HORNETS 104, MAVERICKS 97

DALLAS — Chris Paul nearly showed Jason Kidd what a quadruple-double looks like, putting up 33 points, 11 assists, 10 rebounds and seven steals in New Orleans' victory over slumping Dallas.

Paul had to settle for his fourth triple-double of the season, one he's certain to savor because it came against Kidd, the active leader in that category and the guy who started ahead of him at point guard on the gold medal-winning U.S. Olympic team.

CELTICS 118, NETS 86

BOSTON — Paul Pierce shook off a cold first half and scored 18 points in the third quarter with perfect shooting to lead Boston to its third straight win.

Pierce went 5-for-5 in the period, all 3-pointers, and added three free throws as he scored 22 points two nights after getting a season-high 39 in an overtime win over Toronto.

KNICKS 128, WIZARDS 122

NEW YORK — David Lee had 30 points and 10 rebounds, reserve Al Harrington scored 27 points, and New York handed Washington its sixth straight loss.

Quentin Richardson added 26 points for the Knicks.

PACERS 110, PISTONS 106, OT

INDIANAPOLIS — Danny Granger scored 24 points and made the tying shot for Indiana with 3.9 seconds left in regulation for Indiana.

T.J. Ford scored 23 points, and Troy Murphy added 18 points and 13 rebounds to help the Pacers snap a three-game losing streak.

76ERS 100, TRAIL BLAZERS 79

PHILADELPHIA — Andre Iguodala scored a season-high 29 points, and Lou Williams had 14 to lead Philadelphia to its fifth straight victory.

Iguodala made four of Philadelphia's season-high 11 3-pointers and just missed becoming the first Sixers player to score 30 points in a game this season.

BULLS 102, RAPTORS 98

TORONTO — Derrick Rose scored 17 of his 25 points in the fourth quarter and added 10 assists for Chicago, and Luol Deng had 16 points and 14 rebounds.

HEAT 102, BUCKS 99

MILWAUKEE — Reserve Daequan Cook hit six 3-pointers and had a career-high 24 points for Miami, and former Marquette star Dwyane Wade overcame a 5-for-20 shooting night with 17 points and 13 assists.

Luke Ridnour had 25 points for Milwaukee.

many more winners.

Since I've never had a child play high school sports, I called the one person I knew would give me an unbiased parental perspective on this subject: my mother. You see, I played for a high school football team that had a 1-15 record and a basketball team that won just eight games in two years.

"It was tough to see you work so hard and not win more games," my mom told me. "But when I look back, I don't think about the losses. I remember all the good times you had with your friends and teammates. It wasn't all about winning, it was about the experience.

"Look at everything you learned about teamwork, discipline and perseverance. When you set your course toward winning in life, there is going to be some opposition along the way. That's what teaches us life's most valuable lessons. How many times did Thomas Edison fail on the light bulb? Sometimes it takes a lot of losses to get that win.

"Yeah, you lost a lot of games in high school, but you still turned out OK."

respect, but it was both an obstacle and a foundation for building a working relationship with the players. It's a process that will take time, but it had to begin with a will to even compete.

"We have to want to play," senior Justin Parke said, "and it was hard to do that with Gooding's past."

While Parke said that it is at times easier to have a coach that can relate to the tribulations of being a teenager in today's world, it's never in doubt that Piper and his staff are in charge. Despite a 1-8 start to the season, most people can find little to complain about with Piper's program, modeled around what he learned from Ward. Piper has the players dress in slacks and ties for game day, provide support to the girls team and send thank you cards and Christmas cards to those who aid the program. Piper said it's about teaching the kids that they're part of something bigger than themselves.

"People are probably looking at wins and losses," said Gooding athletic director Joleen Toone, who was on the committee that interviewed coaching candidates. "We like to win, but the kids are learning life-time skills. That's what it's

TEXAS A&M 84, NO. 21 BAYLOR 73

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Chinemelu Elonu and Bryan Davis both scored 17 points and Elonu had 16 rebounds as Texas A&M got its first Big 12 win.

The last time these teams met in College Station, it took five overtimes for Baylor to get a 116-110 victory in the longest game in Big 12 history.

ILLINOIS 66, NO. 25 MICHIGAN 51

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. — Mike Tisdale scored 24 points on 10-of-12 shooting and Demetri McCamey added 17 points for the Illini.

REGION SCORE

COLORADO ST. 71, UNLV 69
FORT COLLINS, Colo. —

Andy Ogide had 18 points and six rebounds as Colorado State ended a 19-game regular season conference losing streak with a 71-69 victory over UNLV Wednesday night.

Adam Nigon and Willis Gardner had 11 points each for Colorado State (6-11 overall, 1-2 Mountain West Conference), which hadn't won a Mountain West Conference regular season game since beating Wyoming 89-83 in overtime on Feb. 24, 2006. In other Mountain West action, Utah earned a 57-36 win at Air Force.

Eagle's Westbrook banged-up, but remains a threat

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Brian Westbrook walks around slowly, often with a limp. He watches practices from the sideline, needing the extra rest to be ready for game days.

Injuries have limited Westbrook's production this season, but the Philadelphia Eagles still rely on their dynamic running back, even if he's only a decoy at times.

"It's frustrating when you're not 100 percent," Westbrook said Wednesday. "I've been battling all year. I continue to be positive, I can do the things I need to do to help this team."

Westbrook missed one game with an ankle injury and another with broken ribs. He also has sore knees that make it difficult for him to climb four steps to reach the podium for his weekly news conference. It's no wonder with the way he hobbles that coach Andy Reid gives Westbrook time off during the week.

Westbrook sat out Wednesday's practice, but he'll certainly play against the Arizona Cardinals in Sunday's NFC championship game.

"Just being able to get my legs, my knees, my ankles a little bit of rest, I think it continues to help me recover a little bit better, a little bit more every week," Westbrook said. "That's something that I think is playing a big part of me even being able to go out there and play on Sundays."

Westbrook was an All-Pro last season when he led the NFL with a franchise-record 2,104 total yards from scrimmage, including 1,333 on the ground. He became the first Eagles player to rush for more than 1,000 yards in consecutive seasons since Duce Staley in 1998-99, and led all NFL running backs with a team-record 90 receptions.

The team rewarded him with a three-year contract worth $21 million, including $13 million guaranteed the first two years.

But Westbrook struggled to match those prolific numbers. He had just 936 yards rushing and his average of 4.0 yards per carry was tied for the lowest in his career. He caught 54 passes for 402 yards, his lowest totals since 2003. Westbrook did set a career-best with 14 TDs, though.

No matter how banged-up Westbrook appears, defenses focus on him whenever he's on the field.

"Twenty-two eyes on 36," Giants defensive coordinator Steve Spagnuolo preached to his players before last week's divisional playoff.

Westbrook had 131 yards rushing, 72 more receiving and a pair of touchdowns against New York in Philadelphia's win at Giants Stadium last month.

Spagnuolo was intent on making sure his defense didn't let that happen again.

The final totals for Westbrook: 46 yards on 20 touches (18 carries, 2 receptions). Mission accomplished for the Giants' D. But Donovan McNabb made big plays in the air, and the Eagles beat New York 23-11 to advance to the conference championship game for the fifth time in eight years.

"They put an extra guy up in the box. They clearly wanted to take Westbrook out of the game, which I understand after the last game," Reid said. "It opened things up for other players, so that's one nice thing about this offense. You have to make the adjustments and utilize what the other team is going to present to you."

The threat of Westbrook allowed McNabb to sell a play-action fake and toss a 1-yard TD pass to Brent Celek in the fourth quarter. Later in the game, McNabb sold another play-fake to Westbrook and connected with DeSean Jackson for a 48-yard gain that set up a field goal.

In Philadelphia's 26-14 victory at Minnesota in the first round, Westbrook was held to 38 yards rushing on 20 carries. But he broke loose for a 71-yard TD on a screen pass to seal the victory in the fourth quarter.

"I think he's done a great job of just taking care of his body and giving us all that he has," McNabb said. "It's important that the other guys, like the receivers and tight ends, be able to take pressure off him as well as being able to make plays on the outside to keep defenses honest and give him an opportunity to run through lanes and pick up yards for us."

By avoiding the turnovers one might expect from a rookie, Baltimore Ravens quarterback Joe Flacco has outplayed quarterbacks with better resumes and far more experience.

Flacco puts up dazzling numbers — in win column

OWINGS MILLS, Md. (AP) — Joe Flacco has been making headlines this postseason for what he hasn't done.

In two games, the Baltimore Ravens quarterback has completed only 44 percent of his passes, thrown for one touchdown and is averaging 148 yards through the air.

Nothing special there. Yet Flacco has not fumbled or been intercepted, and that's the biggest reason why he is the first rookie quarterback in NFL history to win two playoff games. He's no Joe Montana, but the man known in Baltimore as "Joe Cool" has outplayed quarterbacks with longer resumes and far more experience.

Chad Pennington threw four interceptions in Miami's 27-9 loss to the Ravens, and Kerry Collins was picked off in the red zone last week, a key play in top-seeded Tennessee's 13-10 defeat.

Although he's careful with the football in his hand, that doesn't mean Flacco is conservative to a fault. He threw a 48-yard touchdown pass to Derrick Mason in the first quarter at Tennessee, and directed a 51-yard drive in the closing minutes that resulted in Matt Stover's game-winning field goal.

"I don't care what anybody says. I'm going to go out there and make as many plays as I can," Flacco said Wednesday. "If it's not there, I'm not going to be dumb enough to try to take the play anyway. I'm going to do what I can to make sure it's a safe play... I'm looking to hit the play over the top, and if it's not there, I'm going to check it down."

It's a sound philosophy, especially because the Ravens (13-5) possess the second-ranked defense in the NFL. So, when Baltimore faces the Pittsburgh Steelers on Sunday in the AFC championship game, Flacco's No. 1 priority — by far — will be to protect the football.

"It's an important part of our game," he said. "If you're not converting, not scoring touchdowns, at least you're living for the next set of downs. You punt the ball away and let the (defense) take care of it. We've done that pretty well the first couple of games."

Former Ravens coach Brian Billick won a championship for Baltimore in 2001 by combining a suffocating defense with a take-no-chances offense run by Trent

Ravens at Steelers

4:30 p.m., Sunday, CBS

Dilfer. Asked to assess the play of Flacco in the postseason, Billick told Fox Sports Radio, "Obviously, Flacco is playing above what you'd expect as a rookie. I don't want to say he hasn't impacted the game, but he hasn't lost the game compared to Eli Manning and Kerry Collins, and some of the turnovers they've had."

Flacco has thrown only five interceptions in Baltimore's last 13 games; it is no coincidence that the Ravens are 11-2 in that span. He may be a rookie, but the guy just doesn't make the kind of mistakes that cause a team to lose.

"I don't necessarily know what makes him special at doing that. That's just who he is," Steelers coach Mike Tomlin said. "I hear what they say about him, in that he has a calm demeanor. I think that works in his favor."

Tomlin and the Steelers have faced Flacco and the Ravens twice this season, winning both games. In the latter matchup, on Dec. 14, Flacco was 11-for-28 for 115 yards and two interceptions in a 13-9 defeat. Long before that, however, Tomlin realized Baltimore's rookie quarterback was going to be a factor in this rivalry for years to come.

Playing on the road in his third NFL game, Flacco guided the Ravens on a 76-yard drive to knot the score at 20 and force overtime.

"I think at the point I realized we were going to have to deal with this guy for a long time," Tomlin said.

The intensity will increase a notch or two when the teams meet Sunday for the right to play in the Super Bowl. Flacco doesn't intend to let the pressure get to him.

"I know that it's different, but you can't let yourself think that," he said. "You can't go out on the field and say, 'Wow, what am I doing out here?' You've got to act like you're supposed to be here. That's what being a quarterback is. You have to act like you're going to get the job done. The bottom line is, if you don't get it done, you don't. I can deal with that. It's going to happen eventually. I'm not afraid to fail."

PLAYOFF PICKS

Cardinals to continue upset run?

By Dave Goldberg
Associated Press writer

The Arizona Cardinals haven't won any kind of championship beyond a division title in 61 years.

The oddsmakers don't think they will on Sunday either. Even with the NFC title game at home in their climate-controlled stadium, they are 3½ point underdogs to Philadelphia.

That seems right for two reasons.

One is the 48-20 beating administered to Arizona by the Eagles on Thanksgiving night, one of several late-season lopsided losses the Cardinals absorbed.

Another is the fact this is Philadelphia's fifth NFC title game since the 2001 season, just five fewer than the total number of playoff games the Cardinals have played since beating Philadelphia 28-21 for the 1947 NFL championship as the Chicago Cardinals. In fact, until they upset Carolina last week, the Cardinals were the only NFC team not to have made it to a conference title game since the AFL-NFL merger in 1970.

On the other hand, the Cards are certainly better at home: 7-2, including their first-round playoff win over Atlanta; they are 4-5 on the road. And any team is dangerous with an experienced quarterback like Kurt Warner and a receiver like Larry Fitzgerald, who can pluck the ball out of the air no matter how closely he's covered.

But Warner has to be protected. Despite a glorious history that includes two MVP awards and a Super Bowl MVP, he is prone to turning the ball over under pressure. In that regular-season loss in Philly, he threw three interceptions.

Beyond that, the Eagles have won six of their last seven games.

And road teams have been winning in the playoffs — this season and last.

EAGLES, 24-20

Baltimore (plus 6) at Pittsburgh

This spread is only one point less than the total of seven by which the Steelers beat the Ravens twice; 23-20 in Pittsburgh and 13-9 in Baltimore. That latter game was decided by replay when referee Walt Coleman overturned a no-TD call on the field and decided that Santonio Holmes had the ball about an inch or two into the end zone on the winning touchdown reception.

But the Steelers are playing as well now as they had all season. Willie Parker finally has shaken the injuries that plagued him all year, and that gives Pittsburgh a running game it has lacked, taking a lot of the pressure off Ben Roethlisberger.

Baltimore's vaunted defense, meanwhile, allowed 391 yards to Tennessee, but won because of three Titans turnovers and an injury that kept outstanding rookie running back Chris Johnson out in the second half.

This one won't be as close.

STEELERS, 21-13

LAST WEEK: 2-2 (spread); 2-2 (straight up)

Bradford returning to Oklahoma, McCoy leaving Pittsburgh

The Associated Press

Sam Bradford is going to play at Oklahoma for at least another year. Fellow sophomore LeSean McCoy is headed for the pros.

Bradford, the Heisman Trophy winner, said Wednesday he will pass on the NFL draft and return to Oklahoma for his junior season. The Sooners lost to Florida in the BCS national title game last week.

Bradford led the nation with 50 touchdown passes and a quarterback rating of 180.8. He likely would have been one of the first quarterbacks taken in April's draft.

He'll also be taking another crack at the Heisman. Archie Griffin of Ohio State is the only player to win two Heismans. Florida quarterback Tim Tebow, the 2007 winner who is returning for his senior season, finished third behind Bradford in the Heisman voting this season.

Today is the deadline for juniors and third-year sophomore such as Bradford and McCoy to make themselves draft eligible.

Pittsburgh's talented running back McCoy will head to the NFL as the owner of several school records. McCoy told coach Dave Wannstedt of his decision in a phone call Wednesday. The two met last Friday, but a teary-eyed McCoy couldn't make up his mind. He delayed the decision again Monday.

"I have frequently played both choices in my mind. I have considered my alternatives and I have prayed," McCoy said in a statement issued by the school. "I have made my final decision and will forego my junior season."

NFL scouts project the 5-foot-11, 210-pound McCoy as a late first-round to early second-round pick.

Other players deciding to return to school Wednesday included LSU running back Charles Scott and offensive lineman Ciron Black, Kentucky cornerback Trevar Lindley and UCLA cornerback Alterraun Verner.

For LSU, Scott ran for 1,174 yards, the fifth-best mark in school history and 18 touchdowns in 2008.

Black has been the starting left offensive tackle for the past three years. He has started 40 consecutive games for LSU.

"It's really good for me to come back," Black said. "I'm really close to graduating. I also have a lot more to do in college. I have to be more of a leader. Both of us have a lot we need to do. We want to be real leaders."

Former LSU stars LaRon Landry and Glenn Dorsey elected to return for their senior seasons and ended up being top-five NFL draft picks.

Lindley led the Wildcats with four interceptions and led the SEC in total passes defended last season.

Ohio State wide receiver Brian Hartline also announced Wednesday that he will skip his final year of eligibility. He had 90 catches for 1,449 yards and 13 touchdowns during his Ohio State career, and is expected to graduate in June with a communications degree.

USDA Forest Service, Sawtooth National Forest
Fairfield Ranger District
Camas County, State of Idaho
Kelley Creek / Grouse Butte / Blue Ridge OHV Trail Project
Smoky Dome / Miller OHV Trail Project

The Fairfield Ranger District of the Sawtooth National Forest is proposing to designate and create two trail loops for vehicles 50" or less in width. Both proposals involve new trail construction, heavy maintenance and some widening of existing single track system trails. The "Environmental Assessment Travel Plan Revisions, Elimination of Motorized Cross-country Travel and Motorized Route Designation" completed in February 2008, by the USDA-Forest Service for the Sawtooth National Forest, identified these trails for future planning and analyzed the cumulative effects.

- 1. Kelley Creek / Grouse Butte / Blue Ridge OHV Trail Project
This first proposal is to designate and create a loop trail for vehicles 50" or less in width that will connect into the Iron Mountain Trail 7050. The trail segments which would be affected by this proposal are as follows:
 - Construction of 4.9 miles of trail near the ridge line to the north of the West Fork Kelley Creek drainage. This trail will replace NFS Trail 7038 which is currently designated for motorcycle only.
 - Widening and minor reroutes on 3 miles of National Forest System (NFS) Virginia Gulch Trail 7037 connecting National Forest System Road 166B3 with the Blue Ridge Connector Trail 7616 & 7048. Trail 7037 is currently designated for motorcycle only.
 - Widening and minor reroutes on 4 miles of NFS Blue Ridge Connector Trail 7616 & 7048 from the junction with Virginia Gulch Trail 7037 to the intersection with NFS Iron Mountain Trail 7050. Trail 048 is currently designated for motorcycle only.
 - Widening and minor reroutes on 1 mile of trail from the junction with NFS Trails 7037 to the junction with National Forest System Road 166N.

2. Smoky Dome / Miller OHV Trail Project
The second proposal is to designate and create a loop trail for vehicles 50" or less in width that will connect into the Smoky Dome Jeep Trail 7989 and Forest Road 70010.

- The trail segments which would be affected by this proposal are as follows:
- Heavy maintenance on NFS Trail 7992 which is currently designated for vehicles 50"/E or less in width.
 - Construction of .5 miles of trail beginning at the terminus of Trail 7992 and ending at Forest Road 70010.
 - Widening and minor reroutes on .5 miles of Miller Creek Trail 7067 beginning at Forest Road 70010. Trail 7067 is currently designated for motorcycle only.
 - Construction of trail to access the Smoky Dome Jeep Trail 7989 at junction with Forest Road 70010.

NOTICE OF TRUSTEE'S SALE

On May 6, 2009, at the hour of 11:00 o'clock AM of said day, at First American Title, 260 Third Avenue North, Twin Falls, Idaho, JUST LAW, INC., as Successor Trustee, will sell at public auction to the highest bidder, for cash, in lawful money of the United States, all payable at the time of sale, the following described real property, situated in the County of Twin Falls, State of Idaho, and described as follows to wit:

Lot 12 and 13 in Block 69 of Buhl Townsite, according to the official plat thereof, filed in Book 1 of plats at page(s) 33 official records of Twin Falls County, Idaho.

The Trustee has no knowledge of a more particular description of the above referenced real property, but for purposes of compliance with Section 60-113 Idaho Code, the Trustee has been informed the address of 113 8th Ave. South, Buhl, ID, is sometimes associated with the said real property.

This Trustee's Sale is subject to a bankruptcy filing, a payoff, a reinstatement or any other conditions of which the Trustee is not aware that would cause the cancellation of this sale. Further, if any of these conditions exist, this sale may be null and void, the successful bidder's funds shall be returned, and the Trustee and the Beneficiary shall not be liable to the successful bidder for any damages.

Said sale will be made without covenant or warranty regarding title, possessions or encumbrances to satisfy the obligation secured by and pursuant to the power of sale conferred in the Deed of Trust executed by Keith A. Kelly, Sandra R. Kelly, Husband and Wife and Matt Kelly, An Unmarried Person, as Grantor(s) with Mortgage Electronic Registration Systems, Inc. as the Beneficiary, under the Deed of Trust recorded January 28, 2000, as Instrument No. 2000001432, Loan Modification Recorded May 6, 2003, Instrument No. 2003011557 and March 14, 2006, Instrument No. 2006006053, in the records of Twin Falls County, Idaho. The Beneficial interest of said Deed of Trust was subsequently assigned to Midfirst Bank, recorded January 11, 2007, as Instrument No. 2007000931, Modification Agreement recorded July 18, 2007, Instrument No. 2007017634, in the records of said County.

THE ABOVE GRANTORS ARE NAMED TO COMPLY WITH SECTION 45-1506(4)(a), IDAHO CODE. NO REPRESENTATION IS MADE THAT THEY ARE, OR ARE NOT, PRESENTLY RESPONSIBLE FOR THIS OBLIGATION.

The default for which this sale is to be made is the failure to pay the amount due under the certain Promissory Note and Deed of Trust, in the amounts called for thereunder as follows: Monthly payments in the amount of $866.92 for the months of March 2008 through and including to the date of sale, together with late charges and monthly payments accruing. SUMMARY OF LINCOLN COUNTY ORDINANCE NUMBER 1212-08-3

Pursuant to Idaho Code 31-715A, The Lincoln County Subdivision Ordinance is hereby summarized for publication:

1. Lincoln County;
2. Lincoln County Ordinance number 1212-08-3;
3. The Lincoln County Subdivision Ordinance;
4. Principal provisions of the ordinance are:
 - A. A statement of purpose; interpretation, administration, jurisdiction, conflicts with other ordinances and laws, and severability of the ordinance;
 - B. Providing for definition to be used in the ordinance;
 - C. Providing a procedure for rural subdivision approval;
 - D. Providing for financial guarantee arrangements;
 - E. Describing the Plat Application process;
 - F. Penalties for failure to complete a public improvement;

(1) 4.3.6 PENALTY IN CASE OF FAILURE TO COMPLETE THE CONSTRUCTION OF A PUBLIC IMPROVEMENT: In the event the developer shall, in any case, fail to complete such work within the period of time as required by the conditions of the guarantee for the completion of the public improvements, it shall be the responsibility of the Commission to proceed to have such work completed. In order to accomplish this, the Commission shall reimburse itself for the cost and expense thereof by appropriating the cash deposit, certified check, irrevocable letter of credit, or negotiable bond which the developer may have deposited in lieu of a surety bond, or may take such steps as necessary to require performance by the bonding or surety company, and as included in a written agreement between the Commission and the developer.

G. Defining an appeal procedure;
H. Providing for design standards;
I. Defining violation enforcement and penalties:

6.1 DETECTION OF VIOLATION
6.1.1 The Administrator shall receive and document complaints and then research the County Assessor's records and perform the necessary investigation under the guidance of the Prosecuting Attorney to enforce violations of the ordinance.

6.2 ENFORCEMENT
6.2.1 No rural subdivision plat required by this ordinance or the Idaho Code shall be admitted to the public lands records of the county or recorded by the Lincoln County Recorder until such rural subdivision plat has received approval by the Commission. The Lincoln County Prosecuting Attorney shall, in addition to taking whatever criminal action deemed necessary, take appropriate civil or criminal action in response to a violation of this ordinance.

6.3 PENALTIES
6.3.1.1 Penalties for failure to comply with the provisions of this ordinance shall be as follows: Violation of any of the provisions of this ordinance or failure to comply with any of its requirements shall constitute a misdemeanor. Each day such violation continues shall be treated and constitutes a separate offense. The land owner, tenant, subdivider, builder, public official or any other person, who commits, participates in, assists in, or maintains such violation may each be found guilty individually. Nothing herein contained shall prevent the Commission or any other public official or private citizen from taking such lawful action as is necessary to restrain or prevent any violation of this ordinance or of the Idaho Code.

J. Waiver of Commission liability pertaining to this ordinance:

(1) 6.3.2 COMMISSION RESPONSIBILITY
6.3.2.1 The Commission shall not be legally responsible or incur any liability in any way for the future conditions of anything pertaining to this ordinance. This document is intended to avoid problems but does not guarantee complete safety or satisfaction for the subdivider, purchaser or the public.

K. Providing for amendment procedures; and,
L. Providing for an effective date - this ordinance shall become effective one month after adoption by the County Commissioners and publication in the newspaper of record, the Times-News.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR Bureau of Land Management

Notice of Realty Action: Proposed Sale of Public Land, Idaho and Termination of a Multiple Use Classification on a portion of these lands

SUMMARY: A Notice of Realty Action associated to the actions described below and published in the Federal Register segregated the following described public land in Blaine County, Idaho, which are being considered for direct sale under the authority of Sections 203 and 209 of the Federal Land Policy and Management Act of 1976, (90 Stat. 2750, 43 U.S.C. 1713): Boise Meridian, T. 4 N., R. 18 E., Sec. 25, Lots 19-21, and 23-24 (19.44 acres, more or less). Conveyance of the identified public land will be subject to valid existing rights and encumbrances of record, including but not limited to, rights-of-way for roads and public utilities. Conveyance of any mineral interests pursuant to Section 209 of the FLPMA will be analyzed during processing of the proposed sale. Until completion of the sale, the BLM is no longer accepting land use applications affecting the identified public land, except applications for the amendment of previously-filed right-of-way applications or existing authorizations to increase the term of the grants in accordance with 43 CFR 2807.15 and 2886.15. The segregative effect will terminate upon issuance of a patent, publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER of a termination of the segregation, or 2 years after the associated Notice of Realty Action was first published in the Federal Register, unless extended by the BLM State Director in accordance with 43 CFR 2711.1-2(d) prior to the termination date.

COMMENTS: Interested parties and the general public may submit in writing any comments concerning the land being considered for sale, including notification of any encumbrances or other claims relating to the identified land, to Field Manager, BLM Shoshone Field Office, at the following address. In order to ensure consideration in the environmental analysis of the proposed sale, it would be most helpful if comments could be received by February 15, 2009. Comments must be in writing. Comments transmitted via e-mail will not be accepted. Comments, including names and street addresses of respondents, will be available for public review at the BLM Shoshone Field Office during regular business hours, except holidays. Individual respondents may request confidentiality. Before including your address, phone number, e-mail address, or other personal identifying information in your comment, you should be aware that your entire comment including your personal identifying information may be made publicly available at any time. While you can ask us in your comment to withhold your personal identifying information from public review, we cannot guarantee that we will be able to do so. If you wish to have your name or address withheld from public disclosure under the Freedom of Information Act, you must state this prominently at the beginning of your comments. Any determination by the BLM to release or withhold the names and/or addresses of those who comment will be made on a case-by-case basis. Such requests will be honored to the extent allowed by law. The BLM will make available for public review, in their entirety, all comments submitted by businesses or organizations, including comments by individuals in their capacity as an official or representative of a business or organization. (Authority: 43 CFR 2711.1-2)

The State Plan is available for review at Community Action Partnership Association of Idaho, located at 5400 W. Franklin Rd., Suite G in Boise, Idaho. A public hearing on the plan will be held from 9:00 - 12:00 pm on Monday January 26, 2009 in Boise at 5400 W. Franklin Street, Suite G.

The Weatherization Assistance Program assists low-income families through the installation of weatherization measures in their homes. The measures include insulation, air sealing, and heating systems improvements that enhance the energy efficiency of the homes. Program services help eligible families reduce their heating costs, promoting the health and safety of the family and conserving energy resources.

Summary of changes to the 2009 State Plan:
* Increase in the average allowable weatherization expenditure per unit as directed by DOE
* Development of Initial Ramp Up plan to increase weatherization production statewide
* Utilization of supplemental funding for two years; regular allocation in one year

Public comments for written testimony on the State Plan will be accepted from January 19, 2009 - January 26, 2009. Send or deliver comments to: Idaho Department of Health and Welfare CERM Team 450 W. State Street, 2nd floor Boise, Idaho 83720-0036

NOTICE OF TRUSTEE'S SALE

TS No. 08-0096148 Title Order No. W830998 Parcel No. RP08201000070A The following described property will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder, payable in lawful money of the United States, in the lobby of Alliance Title & Escrow located at 1411 Falls Ave. East, Suite 1315, Twin Falls, ID 83301, on 04/20/2009 at 11:00 am, (recognized local time) for the purpose of foreclosing that certain Deed of Trust recorded 10/15/2007 as Instrument Number 2007-025287, and executed by JOHN R MORTIMER, AN UNMARRIED, ALSO KNOWN AS JOHN MORTIMER, AN UNMARRIED MAN, as Grantor(s), in favor of COUNTRYWIDE BANK, FSB., as Beneficiary, to RECONTRUST COMPANY, the Current Trustee of record, covering the following real property located in Twin Falls County, state of Idaho: LOT 7 OF SOUTH VIEW ESTATES, TWIN FALLS COUNTY, IDAHO ACCORDING TO THE PLAT THEREOF, RECORDED IN BOOK 11 OF PLATS, PAGE 36, RECORDS OF SAID COUNTY The Trustee has no knowledge of a more particular description of the above referenced real property, but for purpose of compliance with Idaho Code, Section 60-113, the Trustee has been informed that the street address of 1151 SOUTHVIEW DR, TWIN FALLS, ID 83301-5586 is sometimes associated with said real property. Bidders must be prepared to tender the trustee the full amount of the bid at the sale in the form of cash, or a cashier's check drawn on a state or federally insured savings institution. Said sale will be made without covenant or warranty, express or implied, regarding title, possession or encumbrances to satisfy the obligation secured by and pursuant to the power of sale conferred in that certain Deed of Trust. The default for which this sale is to be made is: Failure to pay the monthly payment due 01/01/2008 of principal, interest and impounds and subsequent installments due thereafter; plus late charges, with interest currently accruing at 6.250% per annum; together with all subsequent sums advanced by beneficiary pursuant to the terms and conditions of said Deed of Trust, and any supplemental modifications thereto. The principal balance owing as of this date on said obligation is $149,529.83, plus interest, costs and expenses actually incurred in enforcing the obligations thereunder and in this sale, together with any unpaid and/or accruing real property taxes, and/or assessments, attorneys' fees, Trustees' fees and costs, and any other amount advanced to protect said security, as authorized in the promissory note secured by the aforementioned Deed of Trust. Therefore, the Beneficiary elects to sell, or cause said trust property to be sold, to satisfy said obligation. NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT THIS FIRM IS ATTEMPTING TO COLLECT A DEBT AND ANY INFORMATION OBTAINED WILL BE USED FOR THAT PURPOSE, AND THAT THE DEBT MAY BE DISPUTED. THE ABOVE GRANTORS ARE NAMED TO COMPLY WITH SECTION 45-1506(4)(a) IDAHO CODE. NO REPRESENTATION IS MADE THAT THEY ARE, OR ARE NOT, PRESENTLY RESPONSIBLE FOR THIS OBLIGATION. Mothers of young children need 'time out' to recharge

DEAR ABBY: I am a physician and mother of a toddler who understands "New Mom in Las Vegas" (Nov. 4), the woman who is concerned because she finds playing with her 8-month-old tedious. While postpartum depression should be ruled out, it is not uncommon for an adult woman to be bored by endless hours of playing with blocks and rattles.

Raising a child is the most rewarding, loving and, yes, sometimes boring job a person can take on. Suggesting that women are good mothers only if they are constantly enthralled with children's activities sets them up for feelings of failure and inadequacy.

Getting out of the house for any activity, such as a walk or a trip to the library or store, helps relieve the tedium. Most experts urge new mothers to take personal time away from their children as a way to maintain their sense of individuality and perspective. If reading or going online recharges "Mom," it should not be considered an unhealthy escape.

A final word: The new dad should help his partner feel appreciated and practice his own parenting skills by giving her a break from child care.

— HAPPY MOM IN CHESTER, VT.

DEAR HAPPY MOM: Thank you for mentioning that fathers are an important part of the equation. "New Mom," and others like her, will appreciate your letter of support. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: Every mother is

DEAR ABBY

different. Some of us were meant to be stay-at-home moms, others need the challenge of a career and the company of other adults. This doesn't make someone a bad mom.

Perhaps "New Mom" should consider returning to her career earlier than she had planned. Although being a working mom is a tough balancing act, it may provide her with what she needs as both a mother and as a woman.

— NEW MOM WITH A PLAN

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 75-year-old mom of four boys, all born 18 months apart. I was bored silly playing with babies, but found a way to make it work for me. I would pack up my babies and walk outside in the morning and after nap time. We walked for miles observing nature while I got some much-needed exercise. I had the healthiest babies in town and looked pretty good myself! I can't remember "playing" with my boys, but we all have fond memories of hours at the park, walking in the rain and snack time at the convenience store.

— OLD MOM IN TEXAS

DEAR ABBY: I am the mother of two nearly grown girls. I never felt it was my responsibility to be their playmate. When they were babies and toddlers, they played while I pursued my interests, hobbies and chores. While I sewed, they played with fabric and ribbons. While I cooked, they played at my feet with pots, pans and spoons. While I did yard work, they played in the sandbox.

It's important for our children to see us as individuals who are more than "their" parents. Finding a playgroup is always a good idea. Seeking therapy may be necessary, too. Completely abandoning the person you were before becoming a parent is unhealthy for both parent and child.

— MARGIE IN ROCHESTER, N.Y.

DEAR ABBY: I enjoyed caring for my children, but there were times when I thought if I had to drive one more toy car across the carpet making car noises with my mouth, I would literally fling myself out the window. I woke up with the Barney theme song in my head and couldn't stop cutting all food into bite-size pieces. How many games of peek-a-boo can you play before you wonder if the liquor store delivers? No one prepares you for this type of job.

Things will change as her child gets older, and she can benefit from the support of other moms if she finds a playgroup. Please tell her not to feel guilty!

— BEEN THERE, DONE THAT (WITHOUT ALCOHOL)

HOROSCOPE
Jeraldine Saunders

IF JANUARY 15 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: You are riding high on a wave of business, job or career success between now and July. You have a good head for healthy business practices and possess some street smarts to boot. You might find yourself at a crossroads in September or October where you won't know which way to turn. Just remember that your first impulses probably are incorrect, that you must honor obligations at all costs, and that good advice from people with a proven track record can turn you in the right direction.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): If you set the bar too high, reaching it will seem utterly hopeless and you may lose interest. Be realistic and be happy with whatever progress you do make. A loyal companion will be in your corner today.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): No one will be able to live up to unrealistic expectations. It may seem for a few hours that the boss or someone else in your life seems to expect more than you can deliver. Don't be overly concerned.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Share thoughts and ideas with a trusted friend or loved one. It is fun to dream and make plans — even if some are unlikely to come true. The weekend ahead might be perfect for a carnival or sight-seeing trip.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Pay attention to the details. What may seem like an insignificant point could be the key to achieving your goals or making a great impression. Study all the ins and outs carefully before taking action.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): All that glitters isn't gold. That's why wise miners have their finds assayed by a specialist. If any new enthusiasm or attraction grabs your attention, it is wise to seek second opinions and appraisals.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Keep your money in your pocket and your opinions to yourself. Your investment ideas are temporarily off base or somewhat out of kilter. You could make an error because you forget to read the fine print.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Recharge your batteries. It is not a fortuitous time for taking on any heavy responsibilities or making weighty decisions. Enjoy making plans for the upcoming weekend; spend time with family.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Be the life of the party. Your social skills will come into play. You can keep the ball rolling or make a particularly attractive presentation. Even the busiest person will take a few moments to hear you out.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Weigh the odds. Remember that there's always a slight chance of failure, even with a seemingly sure thing. Don't be taken in by a well-known scam. Hold off on major purchases until next week.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Have dream, will travel. You are ready to suspend your belief when toying with fantastic ideas and aims. Don't make any permanent changes; just expect a good time with a weekend off or a vacation.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Knowledge is golden. However, it is how you utilize and interpret that knowledge that makes all the difference. Wisdom cannot be bought; it can only be gained through experience.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Race for home. Partners and others you meet on your own turf are likely to have your best interests at heart. Expectations are high from those who attract you the most so do your best to win approval.

Today is Thursday, Jan. 15, the 15th day of 2009. There are 350 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Jan. 15, 1929, civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr. was born in Atlanta.

On this date: In 1559, England's Queen Elizabeth I was crowned in Westminster Abbey.

In 1777, the people of New Connecticut declared their independence. (The tiny republic later became the state of Vermont.)

In 1844, the University of Notre Dame received its charter from the state of Indiana.

In 1909, jazz drummer and composer Gene Krupa was born in Chicago.

In 1942, Jawaharlal Nehru was named to succeed Mohandas K. Gandhi as head of India's Congress Party.

In 1943, work was completed on the Pentagon, headquarters of the U.S. Department of Defense.

TODAY IN HISTORY

In 1947, the mutilated remains of Elizabeth Short, the 22-year-old aspiring actress nicknamed the "Black Dahlia," were found in a vacant Los Angeles lot; her slaying remains unsolved.

In 1967, the Green Bay Packers of the National Football League defeated the Kansas City Chiefs of the American Football League 35-10 in the first AFL-NFL World Championship Game, retroactively known as Super Bowl I.

In 1973, President Richard M. Nixon announced the suspension of all U.S. offensive action in North Vietnam, citing progress in peace negotiations.

In 1989, NATO, the Warsaw Pact and 12 other European countries adopted a human rights and security agreement in Vienna, Austria.

Ten years ago: House prosecutors prodded senators at President Bill Clinton's impeachment trial to summon Monica Lewinsky and others for testimony and "invite the president" to appear as well.

Five years ago: The NASA Spirit rover rolled onto the surface of Mars for the first time since the vehicle bounced to a landing nearly two weeks earlier. Fourteen-year-old golfer Michelle Wie shot a 2-over 72 in the first round at the PGA Sony Open in Honolulu. "First Wives Club" novelist Olivia Goldsmith died in New York at age 54.

One year ago: Mitt Romney scored his first major primary victory in his native Michigan. During a visit to Saudi Arabia, President George W. Bush warned that surging oil prices threatened the U.S. economy and he urged OPEC nations to boost their output. Actor Brad Renfro, who as a youngster had played the title role in "The Client," was found dead in his Los Angeles home; he was 25.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE Bobby Wolff

"Circumstantial evidence is a very tricky thing," answered Holmes thoughtfully. "It may seem to point very straight to one thing, but if you shift your own point of view a little, you may find it pointing in an equally uncompromising manner to something entirely different."
— Sir Arthur Conan Doyle

Today's deal from a team game sees one South playing in straight-forward fashion, while another South mixed a little deception in and was generously rewarded.

Both declarers played three no-trump after North (vulnerable) had opened a slightly flimsy preempt. In one room, after a heart-lead to the ace and the heart-eight return to the three and jack, West paused. He knew the missing hearts were the queen and nine, but who had them? If East had either Q-8 or 9-8, at trick two he would have returned the higher card; so South had them both. Accordingly, a switch was required, and West guessed well when he played a spade. Now, whether declarer won or ducked, he could take no more than eight tricks.

In the other room, declarer was alive to the position. How could he persuade the defenders to continue hearts and set up his ninth trick for him? At trick two, when the heart eight was continued, he played the nine on it. Now consider the position from West's perspective: If declarer had queen-third of hearts and the spade queen in addition to his other assets, he would have nine top winners unless the defenders cashed out at once. And the play of the hearts thus far was entirely consistent with South having three hearts to the Q-9 and East having A-8-3 of hearts. So West cashed the heart king at trick three and found it was now too late to set the game.

ANSWER: After you opened in third seat, it looks natural to pass since game your way is not likely. But I would raise to two spades, more to keep the opponents out of a red suit than to try to get to a makable partscore or game. Passing is a confession of weakness and makes it too easy for the opponents to come in.
