Aquifer plan approval expected today

Technology delays decision one day

By Nate Poppino
Times-News writer

The Idaho Water Resource Board is expected to approve the final version of a plan for fixing the Eastern Snake Plain Aquifer today, handing the issue over to a Legislature focused more on tight state budgets than new programs.

The plan, commissioned by the Legislature in 2006 to combat a declining aquifer and increased water-rights litigation, is aimed at restoring the aquifer's flows by using a variety of tools — recharge, ground-to-surface water conversions and other means.

To accomplish that, the state and water users will have to chip in between $70 million and $100 million during the first 10-year phase of the plan. About 60 percent of the sum is tabbed to come from

- $150,000 Industrial/commercial
- $3 million State of Idaho

Federal and conservation grant monies will also be pursued.

Fish and Game makes push for more funds

By Jared S. Hopkins
Times-News writer

BOISE — The two biggest issues facing the Idaho Department of Fish and Game are preserving habitat and maintaining access, and both issues can be improved with more money, Fish and Game Commission Chairman Wayne Wright told lawmakers Wednesday.

Wright's comments to the Senate Resources and Environment Committee during a general discussion underscored the department's proposal this session to raise fees — in many cases more than 20 percent — to raise an estimated $6.9 million in new revenue.

"We need to preserve habitat. I think we're

PRESIDENT BECK TO JFAC: CSI WILL MEET GOALS

College raises fees, expects record enrollment

By Jared S. Hopkins
Times-News writer

BOISE — College of Southern Idaho President Jerry Beck told state budget writers Wednesday the school will meet its aggressive projections in student enrollment to help balance next year's budget.

Faced with an economic crisis expected to bring cuts to nearly every state agency, CSI plans to offset rising costs with revenue from record-setting enrollment, in part by raising student fees $5 per credit. Beck told members of the Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee that CSI will cover a projected $1.3 million shortfall.

"Your success in achieving that is very dependent on the 10 percent increase in class size, which is very aggressive," said Rep. Frank Henderson, R-Post Falls.

Beck agreed and said being aggressive is exactly what's allowed CSI to expand programs at an affordable rate. He said fall semester's enrollment was up 5 percent, partly due to a strong advertising campaign in the summer, and he expects 8 to 10 percent more students this year for a record number of students.

"We know we're on the positive side," Beck said. "We are confident these numbers will be able to be reached."

Questioned why property tax revenue equates to just 16 percent of the CSI budget, Beck pointed out that North Idaho

Qwest, ENA and Syringa win IEN contracts

By Jared S. Hopkins
Times-News writer

BOISE — The Idaho Department of Administration on Wednesday disclosed the winners of contracts to begin implementation of the proposed $50 million Idaho Education Network as Qwest and Education Networks of America.

The two companies — as well as Syringa, which is working with ENA — will share $10 million to begin the first year of the program, but actual costs still have to be worked out, said Idaho Department of Administration Chief-of-Staff Teresa Luna.

The companies were mailed letters of intent to do business last week but official disclosure was embargoed until a protest period ended for companies to challenge the winning bids.

Qwest — which helped develop a similar broadband education network in Utah — is credited with bringing the IEN concept to the Legislature more than a year ago.

And, like the other companies involved, it holds a presence in Idaho politics through a strong lobbying effort.

In the two-year 2008 election cycle, Qwest, ENA and Syringa contributed about $100,000 to various Idaho political campaigns, according to the Idaho secretary of state.

The IEN is designed to go beyond existing online courses, such as the Idaho Digital Learning Academy, to deliver a broader range of courses to

Lobbying remark clashes with Little campaign event

By John Miller
Associated Press writer

BOISE — A week after new Idaho Lt. Gov. Brad Little said it was the "best practice" for elected officials not to accept campaign contributions from lobbyists during the legislative session, dozens of lobbyists with issues pending before the 2009 Legislature are chipping in more than $6,000 to sponsor a campaign event that benefits him.

This comes as minority Democrats promote a bill to forbid lobbyists from giving contributions during the session to elected officials like Little, as part of good government reforms. At least 16 states ban or restrict such giving from all contributors during legislative sessions; another 12 restrict giving by lobbyists, according to the National Conference of State Legislatures.

Little, appointed earlier this month by Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter, would use the proceeds to run for the lt. gov. post in 2010.

During a taped Idaho Public Television interview last Friday, the former Republican state Senate leader from Emmett said lawmakers frown upon campaign contributions from lobbyists during the session, to avoid appearance of any impropriety or "quid pro quo."

"Generally, if you look at the reporting, there is none," Little said during the public affairs program "Idaho Reports."

As lieutenant governor, Little presides over the Senate and is the tiebreaker in any deadlocked votes.

Little added that while he's College, at 31 percent, has higher property values; College of Western Idaho, at 29 percent, has a larger population than Twin Falls and Jerome counties; and CSI's levy is already at its maximum.

Local lawmakers commended CSI and said CSI's recipe of increasing classes, expanding courses and drawing additional students helps mitigate the economic struggles it faces.

"President Beck has shown dynamic leadership," JFAC Co-chairman Dean Cameron, R-Rupert, said.

"Frankly, we wish more of the university presidents were following his lead."

When asked how CSI decides to close courses if they don't draw 75 percent capacity, Beck said it's typically a three-year process and fully evaluated.

"Most of the time the course has just run its course and you need to bite the bullet and shut it down," he said.

The decision to charge an additional $5 per credit — a typical three-credit class will jump from $285 to $300 — is expected to garner $360,000 as the college seeks new revenue to meet growing costs. It's already withdrawn two legislative budget requests for a combined more than $500,000 for occupancy costs and dual-credit expansion in response to the economic downturn that's swept the nation, the state's low budget projections and to parallel the budget from Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter. Otter's proposed a reduction of $921,900, or about 7 percent, from the original 2009 appropriation.

losing it every year. We need to somehow maintain and enhance habitat," said Wright of Twin Falls, who's the Magic Valley regional commissioner. He added, "Secondly, access. I feel strongly about the importance of maintaining access. We're losing it as we sit here today."

But a handful of the seven-member commission, including Wright, cited the need for additional revenue in order to continue its services, including maintaining and improving access for sportsmen. Fish and Game receives no money from the state's general fund, and the agency hasn't increased fees since 2005.

"We need to look at creating the ways to generate dollars for access," Wright said. "The days of expecting ranchers and farmers to just let people onto their land are probably going by the wayside."

Sen. Dean Cameron, R-Rupert, said there are a number of places in his region where landowners — sometime corporations — allow access to people they know and prohibit others.

"To me that's a little bit of an abuse of landowner permits," Cameron said.

Wright said there's a balance between allowing access and working with landowners, and there is a pilot program being organized to address the issues.

"There are some things I think we can do to show appreciation to our landowners and, at the same time, allow more access," he said. "They're tied at the hip."

Asked how more hunting opportunities can be created, Commissioner Gary Power said, "We need to get some outside funding where we can look at things with broader concept ... As resource goes down you've got to have more restrictions."

In related news, senators again expressed displeasure at the federal government's slow response in removing gray wolves from the federal Endangered Species Act.

But this time, they found themselves preaching to the choir.

"This body in Boise will not have to tell this commission to solve this problem. We know what it's all about," said

Commissioner Tony McDermott, adding there is growing support among sportsmen to sue under the 10th Amendment, which relegates to states powers not explicitly given to the federal government. "The minute we're given the authority to handle the issue, this department and this commission plan to do so — very aggressively."

Sen. Jeff Siddoway, R-Terret, an elk rancher and ardent critic of the feds' handling of the matter, said he hopes the department does just that.

"I hope the director (Cal Groen) heard that loud and clear and it can be filtered down the ranks ... so that when a livestock producer shows up and there's a pack of six or 10 wolves and wildlife services can go ahead and take out what's out there even before they know what's out there to get rid of what's out there," he said.

newly wired Idaho classrooms. Its creation under state law also provides it to spur economic development and assist state government telecommunications. The contracts, if funded, will also allow the state to transition from older state-owned services and equipment to a new model owned and managed by a service provider, Luna wrote in an e-mail.

But funding must be secured in order for the project to continue, and state budget writers have expressed skepticism with starting new programs while cutting budgets for education and health and welfare.

Officials say 70 percent of the five-year, $50 million IEN project would be reimbursed by the federal government, with the rest coming in matching funds from the state. Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter's 2010 budget request includes $3 million to cover the state's share of the first phase.

Meanwhile, Administration Director Mike Gwartney has found the $100,000 in his budget to apply for federal funding to beat a mid-February deadline to make an application for federal matching funds to keep the project on track. That means Gwartney would no longer need a "legal way around" the Legislature if it refuses the request, which he told the Times-News he had found last week.

IEN development is overseen by Gwartney's department because the project's bigger than its name implies. The infrastructure links classrooms, but it will also be used by economic development, public safety and other state agencies detailed in provisions included in legislation the Legislature adopted unanimously.

Senate Democrats reshuffle in Boise after Stennett departure

By Jared S. Hopkins
Times-News writer

BOISE — Senate Democrats shook up their leadership team Wednesday, electing a three-person faction from Boise and replacing Clint Stennett as minority leader with Kate Kelly.

The seven-member caucus also elevated four-term lawmaker Elliot Werk to assistant minority leader from caucus chairman, a position filled by Les Bock, who moved over from the House this year.

Democrats said the changes came only because Stennett announced Monday he'll miss the entire 2009 session. The Ketchum senator who was recently elected to an eighth term is undergoing treatment after undergoing brain surgery a year ago. Jon Thorson has been serving as his temporary replacement.

"We just feel we need a strong leadership team to move the caucus forward," she said. "We've been talking about this and it's been difficult. We'd been hopeful he'd come back (this session)."

Kelly said Stennett was consulted before the vote and upon his return the caucus will review the leadership team.

"When he returns we will review the issue," Kelly said. "We want him back and to be minority leader."

Federal decision on vaccine, autism could set precedent

By Andrea Jackson
Times-News writer

A decision expected this week from the United States Court of Federal Claims could set a precedent on whether a common vaccine for measles, mumps and rubella can cause autism in some children.

For the first time, the federal claims court will rule on three cases asserting MMR vaccines substantially contributed to autism in children, said local lawyer Curtis Webb, who argued one of the cases.

If Webb's case prevails, more people could become eligible for monetary compensation from the government.

The federal claims court runs the 22-year-old National Vaccine Injury Compensation Program (VICP) to reduce lawsuits against doctors and drug manufacturers.

People claiming injury from vaccines can take their case to VICP and try to win money from the government. Payouts come from a trust fund holding excise taxes from each dose of vaccine sold in America. The U.S. Department of Health and Human Services serves as the defense.

Webb, who specializes in vaccine injury law, says his 8-year-old client, Yates Hazlehurst, of Jackson, Tenn., wouldn't have gotten autism if he hadn't been immunized for MMR.

The common vaccine Hazlehurst got "was a substantial contributing cause of his regressive autism," Webb said in court papers.

The government, however, disagrees and says autism is genetic.

"To date there is no definite scientific proof that any vaccine or combination of vaccines can cause autism," according to the National Institutes of Health. "Vaccines actually help the immune system to defend the body."

Webb, however, says MMR vaccines contribute to autism found in some children.

"We don't think children should stop getting vaccinated," he said.

"We're saying genes were a factor, but so was the vaccination."

Hazlehurst lost his health insurance coverage for his condition and then he stopped improving, said Webb.

The ruling could shape ideas on whether vaccines can contribute to autism.

But, "that's not what it's about," said Webb. "(The rulings) are about whether the family can provide the therapy needed for their child to have a normal life."

As of May, 5,365 autism cases were filed with VICP, according to the U.S. Court of Federal Claims, Office of Special Masters.

Minidoka Co. coroner to resign

State law, opening of second funeral home near Rupert forces action by Joel Heward

By Laurie Welch
Times-News writer

Minidoka County Coroner Joel Heward plans to tender his resignation to keep from breaking a state law regarding the potential conflict of interest for acting coroners who also work at funeral homes.

Heward works full-time at Hansen Payne Mortuary in Rupert as a licensed funeral director and embalmer. The issue recently came to light after a new mortuary, Morrison Funeral Home & Crematorium, opened south of Rupert.

"Basically, if you work as a funeral director you can't act as coroner if there is more than one funeral home in the county," Heward said Wednesday. "I definitely plan to resign."

Heward met with county commissioners Monday to discuss the issue addressed in state law which dictates that no coroner can engage in the final disposition of bodies or provide related services to the body of any person whose death requires a coroner's investigation.

The law is not applicable in counties with only one funeral home and exempts coroners who also work in ambulance service.

A person who violates the law could be found guilty of a misdemeanor crime, according to the statute.

Minidoka County Commission Chairman Dan

Stapelman said the statute is pretty clear on the matter and the best thing would be for Heward to resign.

"You can take it to Lance (Stevenson, county attorney) to look at again but it looks like they have got you boxed in," Stapelman said to Heward.

Heward was elected to a four-year term as coroner in 2006 and handled 47 cases as coroner in 2008. He served as deputy coroner for two years prior to serving as coroner.

"It's almost a full-time job. You have to be on call 24 hours a day, seven days a week," Heward said.

Laurie Welch may be reached at 208-677-8767 or lwelch@magicvalley.com.

the various user groups, and what the plan should state about collecting that money has figured strongly in the board's discussions.

Jonathan Bartsch, a consultant for CDR Associates who helped the board and an advisory committee develop the plan, walked members through a few last changes aimed at working out funding and keeping the plan intact during a Wednesday morning teleconference. After, he said he thinks the changes have largely addressed concerns raised during a recent public-comment period, including whether the plan preempts state water law.

Language specifying who will monitor the project and handle the money has been strengthened since a draft version of the plan was first released in November. And on the financial side, possible funding sources have been moved to an appendix at the end, while a carefully negotiated table of how much each set of water users is expected to chip in was left in the plan itself.

Any tinkering with that table by legislators could undo the whole effort, board members worried.

"We heard last week that this is a package deal as far as stakeholders are concerned," said board member Jerry Rigby, referring to a past meeting.

In a time of state budget cuts, water officials are now focused on just getting the plan approved and sorting out exact funding details down the road. Idaho Department of Water Resources Administrator Hal Anderson told board members that a recent estimate shows it could take from 18 months to two years to set up the system for collecting water users' shares. That includes submitting legislation, as well as working out who would physically collect the money — perhaps county assessors, he said.

After the meeting, Anderson said that not asking legislators for full funding this year may actually make it easier to get the plan approved. For the near future, he said, the project needs just enough dollars to stay afloat.

"Certainly the state and the water board can come up with funds to keep the momentum going," he said.

Board members decided to continue the meeting this morning after some had problems reading Adobe PDF versions of the proposed changes. But before they did, they heard from one member of the advisory committee who endorsed the funding language and said he doesn't think the full share is needed this year.

"I think that's a good plan," said Jim Tucker with Idaho Power Co. "I think that's just reality, frankly."

Providers concerned about competing with Twin Falls County clinic

By Nate Poppino
Times-News writer

Twin Falls County officials say they just wanted to streamline and improve the counseling services offered to low-income residents and those going through the county's specialty courts when they set up a new counseling center.

But a group of private and nonprofit providers in Twin Falls say they're now worried they'll end up competing with the county for clients who secure payment through state programs.

Their concerns center on the new county Treatment and Recovery Clinic, at 233 Gooding St. N., Twin Falls, which has applied for the license necessary to accept state funding for adult patients. Such licenses are handed out by the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare, which tries to balance the number of licenses with the perceived need in an area, said Deborah Thomas, clinical director for the Walker Center in Twin Falls.

The problem, Thomas said, is that the providers feel there isn't a need for more adult outpatient services in the area, meaning a government agency will take away some of their business — including people in the specialty courts. The groups — the Walker Center, Sitman Inc., Lifestyle Changes Counseling, Positive Connections, Preferred Family and Children's Services and Proactive Advantage — summarized their concern in a letter to county commissioners earlier this week.

"In a time of recession and anticipation of further budget cuts, it is disturbing to think the county would enter into a business which would provide direct competition to small businesses in the community who are already providing the same service," it states.

The businesses are set to meet with commissioners at 2 p.m. today to expand on their concerns. On Wednesday, commissioners seemed somewhat confused and saddened by the letter. Commissioner Tom Mikesell, who was involved when the center proposal was first developed several years back,

'The reality is addictions are out there and it's a major issue,' says counselor Lauri Morrill, sitting behind the members of the women's program. 'These people need help.' Representatives of Sitman Inc. and several other counseling providers will talk to the Twin Falls County commissioners today over concerns that they'll have to compete with the county for state resources.

said it allows the county to treat people in jail for free and then maintain their provider afterwards.

"It's nothing that happened overnight," Mikesell said of the project.

The providers seem partly concerned about the county possibly expanding its services, and said that center staff told them they were instructed to turn a profit. Adding to the problem, they pointed out that clinic director Jaci Urie is related to County Commission Chairman

George Urie, and questioned how the commissioner had handled the conflict of interest.

"This is the foot in the door," said Jason K. Beard with Preferred.

But commissioners insisted that they have no desire to operate a full-fledged mental health clinic, and Urie said he either recuses himself or discloses his conflict when matters that specifically affect Jaci come up.

He did participate in a vote earlier this week setting general fees for adult treatment at the clinic, he said. Jaci had her position prior to his election, he noted.

Thomas said she sees a role for the county filling a treatment gap through the clinic, and that she just wants to have a more-open discussion about how best to serve the community.

"It's about the clients and how we serve them," she said.

State: Native American students mislabeled

POCATELLO (AP) — The state Department of Education says a school district in eastern Idaho has labeled Native American students who struggle because of race or poverty as disabled and placed them in special education classes.

The department has ordered Idaho School District 25 in Pocatello to direct nearly $368,000 from its special education budget to its general operating fund and use the money to pay for student intervention programs.

The department plans to meet with district administrators, who govern schools in Pocatello and Chubbuck, in February.

An analysis of student enrollment shows a significant and disproportionate number of Native American students have been identified as having learning disabilities, according to a letter the department sent district officials on Oct. 24.

The federally mandated analysis uses race and ethnicity information to determine whether specific groups of students have been excessively placed in special education classes.

The state has told District 25 administrators to better distinguish between a "difference" and a "true disability."

Chris Hansen, a Boise attorney representing the district, says students are placed in special education programs based on individual needs and many minority students remain in traditional classrooms.

"Certainly, the district does not put children in special education due to their race or ethnic background," Hansen told the Idaho State Journal.

The state needs to give the district funding to develop a new intervention system; otherwise, removing Native American students from special education classes could do harm, Hansen said.

The state has ordered district administrators to overhaul the system they use to identify students who require special education courses and to report any revisions to policies and procedures.

Minnick opposes stimulus bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic Rep. Minnick of Idaho voted against a bill that calls for $819 billion in spending hikes and tax cuts.

Minnick, a freshman from Boise, said Wednesday he was concerned about massive spending in the bill that appeared unrelated to stimulating the ailing economy. A spokesman said Minnick supports provisions in the bill that create jobs.

Minnick was one of only 11 Democrats to vote against the bill.

Rep. Mike Simpson, Minnick's Republican counterpart in the House, also voted against the package.

Simpson said the spending bill will hurtle the nation deeper into debt and isn't the best remedy for stimulating the economy. The bill was approved 244-188.

State closes Idaho Falls investment company

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — The Idaho Department of Finance has issued a cease and desist order to an Idaho Falls investment firm under investigation for operating what state officials say appears to be a Ponzi scheme.

The order issued Tuesday targets Trigon Group Inc., and Daren Palmer, identified as Trigon's owner and president. It prohibits Palmer from selling or accepting investors' funds unless he registers as a securities trader.

Finance Department officials began investigating Palmer last month after the agency met with about 30 investors who said they were defrauded.

But the order marks the first time state investigators have acknowledged that Palmer and Trigon may have been engaged in fraudulent dealings with investors.

Investigators allege Palmer spent investors' capital to pay out returns to other investors and to finance the construction of his Idaho Falls home.

The state has been reluctant to compare Trigon's practices to a Ponzi scheme or pyramid scheme, which is an investment scam in which money from new investors is used to pay old investors.

"Can I say the entire thing was simply a Ponzi? No, but those factors certainly lead us in that direction," Finance Department Securities Bureau Chief Marilyn Chastain told the Post-Register.

Palmer did not return phone messages left at his home Wednesday by the Associated Press. Palmer has been represented in his negotiations with the state by LibertyBell Law Group, based in Burbank, Calif. LibertyBell managing attorney Gina Tennen declined to comment to the Post-Register Tuesday.

Construction ceased on Palmer's multimillion-dollar home in the Canterbury Park subdivision in Idaho Falls when subcontractors began filing liens, claiming they had not been paid for work on the elaborate home.

Taxpayers fed up with standoff over clinic costs

It's the kind of arcane government dispute that sets taxpayers' teeth on edge, and it's time it was settled.

Twin Falls County and St. Luke's Health System are still feuding about the former Twin Falls Clinic and Hospital building.

Under the terms of the agreement that sold the once county-owned Magic Valley Regional Medical Center in 2006, St. Luke's is required to contribute $3 million in in-kind services to remodel the clinic building for use as county offices. The deal allows a maximum of $45 per square-foot remodeled.

The county has asked for more, and after the disagreement became public, the two entered non-binding mediation on the matter. The first day of talks opened Dec. 16; Friday was the second round.

The two sides were still unable to resolve their disagreement by the end of Friday, and have not yet decided whether to try a third, St. Luke's Magic Valley CEO Mark Schwartz said on Monday.

Schwartz said he wasn't sure what the alternative would be to another day of talks. Both sides fleetingly mentioned possible lawsuits early last year, when relations soured. Enough already. It's time to follow St. Luke's suggestion and submit the matter to a judge for binding arbitration.

Twenty-nine months into this process, this disagreement now has more to do with ego than with contractual obligations and responsibility to the taxpayers. Get it resolved.

Our view:

Twin Falls County and St. Luke's Health System should let a judge decide their disagreement over costs to remodel the former Twin Falls Clinic and Hospital.

What do you think?

We welcome viewpoints from our readers on this and other issues.

Wall Street's socialist jet-setters

WASHINGTON — As President Obama spreads his New Testament balm over the capital, I'm longing for a bit of Old Testament wrath.

Couldn't he throw down his BlackBerry tablet and smash it in anger over the feckless financiers, the gods of gold and their idols — in this case not a gilt calf but an $87,000 area rug, a cache of diamond Tiffany and Cartier watches and a French-made luxury corporate jet?

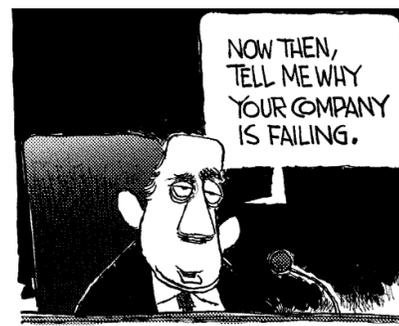

MAUREEN DOWD

Now that we're nationalizing, couldn't we fire any obtuse bankers and auto executives who cling to perks and bonuses even as the economy is following John Thain down his antique commode?

How could Citigroup be so dumb as to go ahead with plans to get a new $50 million corporate jet, the exclusive Dassault Falcon 7X seating 12, after losing $28.5 billion in the last 15 months and receiving $345 billion in government investments and guarantees?

The "Citiboobs" — as The New York Post, which broke the news, calls them — watched as the car chieftains got in trouble for flying their private jets to Washington to ask for bailouts, and the AIG moguls got dragged before Congress for spending their bailout on California spa treatments. But the boobies still didn't get the message.

The former masters of the universe don't seem to fully comprehend that their universe has crumbled and, thanks to them, so has ours. Real people are losing real jobs at Caterpillar, Home Depot and Sprint Nextel; these and other companies announced on Monday that they would cut more than 75,000 jobs in the U.S. and around the world, as consumer confidence and home prices swan-dived. Prodded by an appalled Sen. Carl Levin, Tim Geithner directed Treasury officials to call the Citiboobs and tell them the new jet would not fly.

"They woke up pretty quickly," says a Treasury official, adding that they protested for a bit. "Six months ago, they would have kept the plane and flown it to Washington."

Levin said that the financiers will not be able to change their warped mentality, but will have to be reined in by Geithner's new leashes. "I have no confidence that they intend or desire to change," Levin told me. "These bankers got away with murder, and it's obscene that close to nothing is being asked of financial institutions. I get incensed at the thought that a bank that's getting billions of dollars in taxpayer money is out there buying fancy new airplanes."

New York's attorney general, Andrew Cuomo, always gratifying on the issue of clawing back money from the greedy creeps on Wall Street, on Tuesday subpoenaed Thain, the former Merrill Lynch chief executive, over $4 billion in bonuses he handed out as the failing firm was bought by Bank of America.

In an interview with Maria Bartiromo on CNBC, Thain used the specious, contemptible reasoning that other executives use to rationalize why they're keeping their bonuses as profits are plunging.

"If you don't pay your best people, you will destroy your franchise," and they'll go elsewhere, he said.

Hello? They destroyed the franchise. Let's call their bluff. Let's see what a great job market it is for the geniuses of capitalism who lost $15 billion in three months and helped usher in socialism.

Bartiromo also asked Thain to explain, when jobs and salaries were being cut at his firm, how he could justify spending $1 million to renovate his office. As The Daily Beast and CNBC reported, big-ticket items included curtains for $28,000, a pair of chairs for $87,000, fabric for a "Roman Shade" for $11,000, Regency chairs for $24,000, six wall sconces for $2,700, a $13,000 chandelier in the private dining room and six dining chairs for $37,000, a "custom coffee table" for $16,000, an antique commode "on legs" for $35,000, and a $1,400

"parchment waste can."

Does that mean you can only throw used parchment in it or is it made of parchment? It's psychopathic to spend a million redoing your office when the folks outside it are losing jobs, homes, pensions and savings.

Thain should never rise above the level of stocking the money in ATMs again. Just think: This guy could have been Treasury secretary if John McCain had won.

Bartiromo pressed: What was wrong with the office of his predecessor, Stanley O'Neal?

"Well — his office was very different — than — the — the general decor of — Merrill's offices," Thain replied. "It really would have been — very difficult — for — me to use it in the form that it was in."

Did it have a desk and a phone?

How are these ruthless, careless ghouls who murdered the economy still walking around — and not as perps?

Bring on the shackles. Let the show trials begin.

Obama move is like sucker punch to your little sister

As a former correctional officer, I learned the difference between respect and disrespect while working in a state prison. It is not required for inmates to respect officers or for officers to respect inmates. But disrespect is unacceptable to both sides.

President Obama, in his first week of office, signed two executive orders into law, both laws having been opposed by pro-life groups in the past. For the president to sign these executive orders on the anniversary week of Roe v. Wade, when millions of Americans gather together in peaceful demonstrations to honor and lament the deaths of nearly 50 million American babies, is a grave offense.

During a time when people were expressing the hurt etched into hearts and minds, the president's actions equate to sucker punching your own little sister.

For the good of the country, President Obama and his advisers should spend some time in a prison; they might learn what inmates and officers already know, and that is "to be disrespected is to be treated as less than human."

I hope this year finally brings passage of this bill to assure protection of this wilderness, wildlife and precious solitude that it so deserves.

Malkin, Thomas offer hope for newspaper readers

To Michelle Malkin: I am 77 years old; some would say "from that old school," but during those years, I served my country in the U.S. Navy in the Korean War, earned three degrees in engineering, paid for my wife to obtain her college degrees and helped to raise a family. I have seen and done a great many things in my life; I have seen courage and devotion to duty, if you will. You and Cal Thomas are the reason I do not give up hope for the newspapers. My wife and I have a great respect for both of you, for your great courage to face the likes of John Murtha and John Kerry and call a spade a spade when you see one.

I live in a small town in south-central Idaho. The local newspaper is called Times-News. For a long time, it was just a rag! Mostly very liberal, so we would not read it. There has been some changes for the better because they print your column.

We simply wanted you to know that there some educated folks out here in the West who respect you greatly for your courage!

Here's what Idaho newspapers are saying about ...

... texting and driving

Idaho Mountain Express, Ketchum

As America's love affair with automobiles turned into an addiction, rules of the road and traffic laws became necessary to prevent chaos on streets and highways.

The overriding theme behind most laws requires drivers to act with good judgment, be free of chemical and alcohol influences and have vehicles under control in all circumstances to avoid injuring others or creating accidents.

Electronics have brought new menaces to the road — cell phones and their texting features in the hands of drivers.

Led by Democratic state Sen. Les Bock of Boise, several Idaho lawmakers are introducing legislation that would make it illegal for drivers to text while driving or to use cell phones without a hands-free rig allowing conversation while driving with both hands. The bill proposes a $75 fine.

The new law is logical, needed and perfectly timed.

Keeping up with the times is necessary for effective traffic enforcement. Emerging nationwide statistics cited by the National Safety Council show an estimated 600,000 annual accidents, resulting in 330,000 injuries and 2,600 deaths, caused by distracted drivers using cell phones or writing text messages on their phones. Seven other states have similar laws.

Foes of the proposed law may argue against imposing new restrictions on drivers. They would miss the point. It's the state's obligation to impose restrictions that would increase safety. Laws governing speeding, drinking and driving, and reckless behavior are all restrictions on drivers' carefree abuse of vehicles ...

... save rainy day funds

Idaho Press Tribune, Nampa

Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter used solid reasoning in his decision to recommend that the state use no more than 35 percent of the total reserves in the state's "rainy day funds" to support spending through mid-2010.

Some critics argue that the state should dig deeper into the reserve funds to prevent a 5 percent cut in the general fund's public school appropriation, but that's short-sighted.

The truth is, the current economic crisis isn't just a rainy day, it's a rainy season.

Few experts anticipate a rebound before next year's legislative session. And if that's the case, lawmakers would be wise to hold those precious reserve dollars just where they are.

This editorial board unanimously opposes any proposal that spends more from the reserves than the governor has recommended.

Consider these factors:

- ... the legislative Economic Outlook Committee forecast sales and income tax revenue of $2.56 billion in the 2010 budget, 3.8 percent lower than Otter's initial $2.66 billion projection. For fiscal year 2011, the panel's forecast is 5.8 percent, or $161 million, lower than Otter's.

- Thousands of Idaho workers continue to lose jobs every month and the state Labor Department doesn't expect the deteriorating employment picture to change before late in the year.

- Sen. Dean Cameron, co-chairman of the Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee, asked agencies not to spend their one-time money or capital outlay money in case tax revenue figures for January take a turn for the worse.

- Each week, another round of large employers and small businesses across the country either go into bankruptcy or close outright.

- Times are tougher for many businesses that continue to stay afloat, which means they pay less corporate income tax to the state ...

With so many signs of deeper trouble ahead, it would be unwise to overspend the budget cushion ...

... hammering small districts

Post Register, Idaho Falls

No school district faces more dire circumstances from Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter's proposed budget cuts than these:

- Butte County — It loses $196,000 from a $3.5 million budget. The reinvigorated Craig-Wyden bill for rural schools restores about two-thirds. But this is a heavily taxed and impoverished district, so new levies are out. Expect students to pay more to play sports, attend more crowded classrooms and have fewer support services.

- Firth — Gone would be $250,000 from a $4.5 million budget. With the economy stagnant and enrollment dropping, seeking a supplemental levy to make up the difference isn't likely. Students risk crowding into classrooms and losing electives such as music, art and drama.

- Fremont — It loses $700,000 from a $14 million budget and recovers only a third from Craig-Wyden. Bonds for three buildings equal out to a yearly tax bill of $150 per $100,000 of taxable value. In this tough, rural economy, passing an additional property tax to replace lost state support is problematic. Next year, teachers might lose some benefits, and classrooms might get crowded and electives — music, art, drama — more limited ...

What's the common denominator? An across-the-board cut hits smaller, rural schools hard. Staff cuts can't be easily absorbed. Falling enrollments translate into diminished state money. Often, they have poor economies and tax bases that are compromised by large, federal, tax-exempt acreages.

These schools are the largest state operation in town. Often, they're the largest employer.

Otter should know that. He's made a big deal visiting each of these communities, declaring them "Capital for the Day" and bringing a battery of bureaucrats along.

How could he have missed this lesson?

We used to take care of each other

President Obama's campaign theme of ending politics as usual and creating a new bipartisanship that will get things done for the American people is about to be tested now that he has the power — or at least some of the power — to make it happen.

The president has commendably met with Republican congressional leaders during the early stages of his push for an economic "stimulus" plan, but now comes the hard part. There remain two distinct and possibly irreconcilable differences between traditional Republicans and traditional Democrats. Republicans once believed and encouraged doing for one's self and approaching government as a last resort. Democrats see government as a first resource and people as an expanding pool of victims who are incapable of independently bettering their lives (and if they do, they are to be taxed to subsidize those who don't).

The Obama "stimulus" plan is a $1 trillion dollar gamble more suited to Las Vegas than Washington. It bets the economic vitality of future generations on the belief that money from Washington would jumpstart the economy. Generally, one jumpstarts a car when the battery is dead, but America's "batteries" (its people) are not dead. The vehicle has stalled because too much government meddling and loss of personal responsibility has flooded the engine. More meddling will not revive the economy anymore than holding down the accelerator on a flooded engine will start a car.

Republicans might enjoy more credibility when calling for individual responsibility had they behaved differently during the years they controlled Congress and/or the White House. There are initial signs they may again be finding their voice and embracing the beliefs that once brought them to power for the announced purpose of downsizing government and "upsizing" opportunity.

House Republican Leader John Boehner appeared on "Meet the Press" Sunday and said "Government can't fix this. We can't borrow and spend our way back to prosperity. But what we can do is provide incentives to businesses and families to reinvest in our economy."

This is classic Republican doctrine, but while President Obama has promised to consider GOP ideas, don't look for him to embrace this one. To do so would mean opposing his liberal congressional leadership, which wants increasing numbers of Americans dependent on government in order to maintain the party's power.

Have you read the proposed stimulus plan (www.readthestimulus.org)? Because government intends to spend your money (now borrowed from foreign governments, but paid for later with higher taxes), you had better read it.

Here are just four of many examples: $1 billion for the ultimate in community organizing to create "employment opportunities for low-income and unemployed persons." When the money runs out, if it ever does, will those people have real jobs in a business or service industry, or will they have government jobs that require more money in the future? A board to oversee the spending would get $14 million and $800 million would go to AMTRAK, which has not been able to sustain itself, despite $29 billion in government subsidies. There are millions included for contraceptives and the abortion industry, which are unrelated to job creation.

In last Sunday's Washington Post there was a picture of Pennsylvania Avenue in 1885. The stores and hotels in the picture no longer exist. They weren't bailed out. They closed or became something else.

We are experiencing economic difficulties because we thought we could live outside our means forever. We falsely believed that home values would constantly escalate along with our stock portfolios. More than a stimulus, we need the lessons that wrong decisions and failure bring. Let the house of cards collapse and let's start over with those economic principles that have worked for every generation.

We used to take care of each other. Returning to that ethic would do more than revive the economy. It would revive us.

LAPD: Father in family's murder-suicide was awash in debt

By Thomas Watkins
Associated Press writer

LOS ANGELES — Awash in debt, behind on his mortgage and recently fired from his job at a hospital, Ervin Lupoe was planning on leaving California.

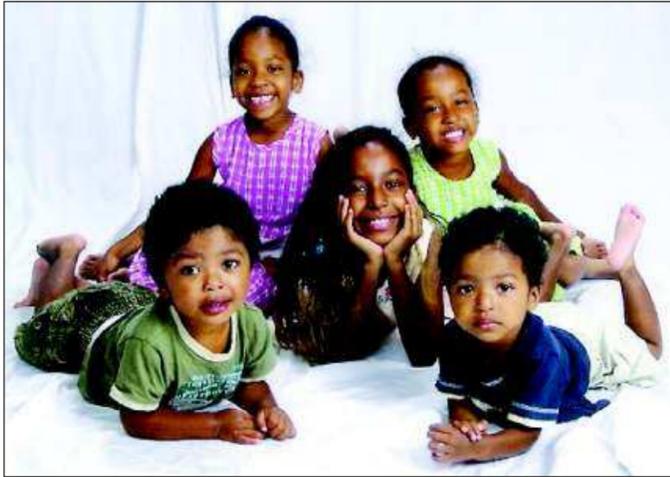

The 40-year-old father of five pulled his children out of school, packed his SUV with snow chains and winter clothing for him and his family and appeared ready for the trip to his brother-in-law's home in Garden City, Kan.

It's not yet known if he was planning on leaving for good in a bid to flee his mounting money problems or if the trip would have only been temporary.

Whatever his intention, Lupoe never got to Kansas.

Instead, police say, he shot his five children and wife to death before turning the gun on himself.

"Something happened in the last 48 hours that made him snap," said Detective

David Cortez of the Los Angeles police department, the lead investigator in the case. "(He saw) no other way, no other direction."

Investigators found evidence of spiraling financial woes, including a bounced check to the Internal Revenue Service. Lupoe owed at least $15,000, as well as thousands of dollars on a home equity line of credit.

He also was at least one month behind on a mortgage for his home in Wilmington, near the ports of Los Angeles and Long Beach, Cortez said.

But Cortez said it was Lupoe, not the stagnant state of the economy, that was to blame.

"Being there and walking through the crime scene, it's a lot easier to see him as the suspect than the economy did this to him," Cortez said. "It's how he chose to respond to the circumstances; he had options."

Police found the bodies of Lupoe, his wife and five children Tuesday morning. The bodies of 2-year-old twin boys, Benjamin and Christian, were beside their dead mother, Ana. In another bedroom, the bodies of 5-year-old twin girls, Jaszmin and Jassely, and their 8-year-old sister Brittney lay on a mattress pad next to their lifeless father.

He appeared to have attempted to muffle the sound of gunfire by shooting a semiautomatic handgun through a pillow.

"It looked like they were all caught by surprise," Cortez said.

Neighbors' reports of firecracker sounds indicated the family might have been killed the evening before and Lupoe shot himself the next day, Cortez said.

Lupoe and his 38-year-old wife both were recently fired from their jobs as hospital technicians at Kaiser Permanente Medical Center

West Los Angeles. They had lied about their income to try to get cheaper child care, Cortez said.

Lupoe phoned his brother-in-law Monday morning saying he was on his way to Kansas, Cortez said. Caesar Ramirez asked to speak to his sister but Lupoe declined. The next he heard from Lupoe was a phone call Tuesday morning saying he'd just killed his family and he left everything, including a small settlement from a traffic accident, to his brother-in-law.

Ramirez called Garden City police who contacted Los Angeles police, Garden City police Sgt. Michael Reagle said.

Lupoe had faxed a bitter, two-page letter to a local TV news station the morning he killed himself, saying a hospital administrator told him he "should not even have bothered to come to work" and "should have blown (his) brains out."

Fed pledges to use all tools to help economy

By Jeannine Aversa
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — The Federal Reserve, acknowledging the economy has continued to deteriorate, signaled Wednesday that it will keep using unconventional tools to cushion the fallout, including keeping a key interest rate at a record low for quite “some time.”

Specifically, the Fed said it is “prepared” to buy longer-term Treasury securities if the circumstances warrant such action. At its December meeting, the Fed said it was merely evaluating that option. Such a move could help drive down mortgage rates and provide help to the stricken housing market, economists said.

The Fed also agreed — with one dissent — to keep the targeted range for the federal funds rate between zero and 0.25 percent. The funds rate is the interest banks charge each other on overnight loans. Economists predict the Fed will leave rates at that range through the rest of this year.

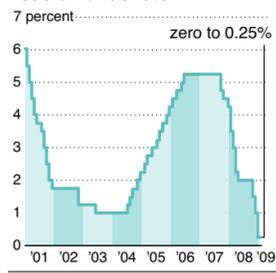

Jeffrey Lacker, president of the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond, was the sole dissenter. He wanted the Fed to move forward on buying Treasury securities.

“The economy has weakened further,” the Fed said. To provide support, it said it would keep rates at rock bottom levels for “some time.”

Having taken the unprecedented step of slashing its key rate to record lows at its previous meeting in December, the central bank pledged anew to look to other unconventional ways to revive the economy.

Fed Chairman Ben Bernanke and his colleagues are battling a three-headed economic monster: crises in housing, credit and financial markets that — taken together — haven't been seen since the 1930s.

Despite the Fed's aggressive rate-cutting campaign, a string of bold Fed programs and a $700 billion financial bailout program run by the Treasury Department, credit and financial markets are still stressed and far from normal.

Yet, the Fed said there's been some thawing of frozen credit conditions.

“Conditions in some financial markets have improved, in part reflecting government efforts to provide liquidity and strengthen financial institutions; nevertheless, credit conditions for households and firms remain extremely tight,” the Fed said.

The Fed also said it stands ready to expand another program aimed at providing relief to the crippled mortgage market.

The central bank is buying up to $500 billion in mortgage-backed securities guaranteed by Fannie Mae, Freddie Mac and Ginnie Mae. It also has agreed to buy up to $100 billion of Fannie and Freddie debt. Mortgage rates have fallen in the wake of the program's announcement late last year. The Fed said it could buy more of these securities or extend the length of the program.

The central bank also said it will be launching a program aimed at bolstering the availability of consumer loans.

Under the program, which is expected to start in February, up to $200 billion will be made available to spur auto, student and credit card loans as well as loans to small businesses. To do that, the Fed will buy securities backed by those different types of consumer debt. The Fed also hopes that action will lower rates on those loans.

Starbucks barista Alex Igarta hands a coffee drink to a customer from a drive-up window at a store near the company's corporate headquarters Monday in Seattle. Starbucks reported Wednesday that its profits dropped 69 percent in its fiscal first quarter and it plans to close more stores and cut more jobs.

A bitter brew

By Lauren Shepherd
Associated Press writer

NEW YORK — Starbucks Corp. announced a new round of store closures and layoffs as it reported Wednesday that its profit dropped 69 percent in its fiscal first quarter with sales continuing to slide.

The company plans to close 300 underperforming stores around the world by the end of the fiscal year in addition to the 600 it already planned to close in the U.S. The company has already closed 384 of those stores.

The additional closures could result in the loss of 6,000 in-store jobs. Starbucks also plans to lay off about 700 non-store employees.

It also has reduced the number of new stores it plans to open.

The cuts and changes will result in about $500 million in savings in fiscal 2009, the company said.

Edward Jones analyst Jack Russo said the cuts make sense given the decline in Starbucks' sales in recent quarters.

“This is going to be a transition year,” Russo said. He said the company will have to “claw their way back.”

Wall Street had largely expected Starbucks to report dismal performance for the quarter, which ended Dec. 28, because it had warned last month that slow sales likely would cause it to miss analysts' estimates.

Heeding the company's warning, analysts lowered their average expectation from 22 cents per share to 17 cents per share.

But the company still fell short,

WASHINGTON — Bucking the Obama administration, House Republicans on Wednesday defeated a bill to delay the upcoming transition from analog to digital television broadcasting to June 12 — leaving an estimated 6.5 million U.S. households unprepared for the switchover.

The 258-168 vote failed to clear the two-thirds threshold needed for passage in a victory for GOP members, who warn that postponing the transition from the current Feb. 17 deadline would confuse consumers.

House Republicans say a delay also would burden wireless companies and public safety agencies waiting for the spectrum that will be freed up by the switch, and create added costs for television stations that would have to continue broadcasting both analog and digital signals for four more months.

The defeat is a setback for President Barack Obama and Democrats on Capitol Hill, who maintain that the Bush administration bungled efforts to ensure that all consumers — particularly poor, rural and low-income Americans — will be ready for next month's analog shut-off.

The Obama administration had no immediate comment on the House vote and the next step remains unclear.

Gene Kimmelman, vice president for federal policy at the Consumers Union, which has been lobbying for a delay, said he hopes House Democrats will bring the bill up again for a regular floor vote, which would only require majority support to pass. Wednesday's vote took place under a special procedure that required two-thirds support for passage.

The Nielsen Co. estimates more than 6.5 million U.S. households that rely on analog television sets to pick up over-the-air broadcast signals still are not prepared for the transition.

Still, Jonathan Collegio, vice president for the digital television transition at the National Association of Broadcasters, argues the Nielsen estimate may overstate the number of viewers who are not ready. He noted that the numbers exclude consumers who have already purchased a converter box but not yet installed it, as well as those who have

Boeing posts loss, announces job cuts

By Daniel Lovering

PITTSBURGH — Facing falling air traffic and pressure on military budgets, Boeing Co. announced plans to cut 10,000 jobs after reporting a surprise fourth-quarter loss Wednesday.

The Chicago-based company, which makes passenger and military jets, became the latest blue chip company to mirror a slowdown in the world economy, as air travel wanes, airlines cut costs, and the government shifts focus to construction spending. Boeing, whose orders plunged in 2008 following three years of very strong bookings, also announced lower-than-expected earnings for this year.

“The global economy continues to weaken and is adversely affecting air traffic growth and financing,” Jim McNerney, Boeing's chairman, president and chief executive, said in a conference call. “We are also expecting pressure on defense budgets in light of the economic recovery and financial rescue packages put forth by various governments.”

Boeing's job cuts expand plans announced earlier this month to eliminate 4,500 positions from its Seattle-based commercial jet business. But McNerney said

Wednesday an additional 5,500 positions would be slashed in other parts of the company, including its defense division, which accounts for roughly half Boeing's revenue.

Boeing reported a fourth-quarter loss of $56 million, or 8 cents per share, compared with profit of $1.03 billion, or $1.36 per share, a year earlier. Results were dragged down

BUSINESS BRIEFS

Wells Fargo reports good news despite fourth quarter loss

NEW YORK — Wells Fargo & Co. had some good news in its fourth-quarter earnings report even as it lost $2.83 billion.

The banking company that's still absorbing troubled Wachovia Corp. is making loans, getting more money from depositors and maintaining its dividend. And it has no plans to seek more federal financial help.

Wells Fargo's loss grew out of significant charges it took to reduce its exposure to Wachovia's risky assets and a build-up of its reserves to cover future losses. Yet the results also showed that the San Francisco-based bank is holding up better than many of its peers, and the report helped ease some of investors' concerns about the Wachovia deal.

"The underlying results were certainly challenging, but Wells seems to be managing quite well," said Tom Kersting, a financial services analyst at Edward Jones.

Shares soared more than 32 percent, adding $5.17 to $21.36 in afternoon trading.

For the final three months of the year, Wells Fargo reported a net loss of $2.83 billion, or 79 cents per share, after paying preferred dividends. This compares with earnings of $1.36 billion, or 41 cents per share, a year earlier.

GM ends controversial 'jobs bank' program

NEW YORK — General Motors Corp.'s "jobs bank" program will end Monday, following a similar move at Chrysler LLC that helps satisfy the conditions the government imposed when it lent the automakers $17.4 billion late last year.

The program gives union workers at the Detroit Three most of their pay and benefits while they are laid off — sometimes for years. It was the target of much ire during the companies' requests for a federal bailout.

GM spokesman Tony Sapienza said Wednesday that the 1,600 GM workers in the jobs bank will be placed on layoff and will need to file for unemployment. They'll receive about 72 percent of their salaries, paid by state unemployment benefits and GM subsidies. The workers also will get medical and other benefits from the company.

The length of time workers can receive unemployment benefits varies from state to state but usually amounts to about 48 weeks, Sapienza said. After that, they'll no longer get paid.

ConocoPhillips reports $31.8 billion loss

HOUSTON — Signaling that Big Oil's heyday is over for now, ConocoPhillips posted an enormous fourth-quarter loss Wednesday as the energy giant was stung by $34 billion in asset writedowns and plunging crude prices. It also gave a dire forecast for the next couple of years.

Chairman and chief executive Jim Mulva said the nation's third-largest oil company was preparing for a "significant, multiyear recession."

ConocoPhillips "is planning for a prolonged and difficult business environment," Mulva told analysts during a conference call, noting that "2009 and 2010 will be very challenging for our global economy and the energy business."

ConocoPhillips was the first of the major oil companies to report fourth-quarter earnings. Not everyone is expected to follow ConocoPhillips as it lays off hundreds of workers, writes down assets and cuts spending, but earnings across the board are forecast to be the worst anyone has seen in some time. Other oil majors release results over the next week.

The Houston-based company's net income for the October-December period amounted to a loss of $21.37 per share, compared with a profit of $4.4 billion, or $2.71 per share, a year earlier. Revenue fell 18 percent to $44.5 billion from $52.7 billion a year ago.

Union membership rises for second straight year

WASHINGTON — Union membership jumped to 12.4 percent of the nation's work force last year, amid widespread job losses and credit woes in a troubled economy.

The ranks of organized labor rose by 428,000 workers in 2008, the biggest annual gain since the government began compiling such data in 1983, the Bureau of Labor Statistics reported Wednesday.

It's also the second year in a row that unions have added to their ranks. Membership rose by 311,000 members in 2007, to account for 12.1 percent of workers.

Overall, union membership remains well below the peak of 35 percent during labor's heyday of the 1950s. Membership was about 20 percent in 1983.

requested coupons but not yet received them.

What's more, consumers who subscribe to cable or satellite TV service or who own a TV with a digital tuner will not lose reception.

Speaking on the House floor late Tuesday, Joe Barton of Texas, the top Republican on the House Commerce Committee, insisted a postponement is not necessary.

"We could do nothing worse than to delay this transition date," Barton said in a statement Wednesday. "The bill is a solution looking for a problem that exists mostly in the mind of the Obama administration."

Barton led the push to scuttle the bill, which passed the Senate unanimously on Monday night after lawmakers in that chamber struck a bipartisan compromise.

Senate Democrats won over Republican support by allowing broadcast stations to make the switch from analog to digital signals sooner than the June deadline if they choose and permitting public safety agencies to take over vacant spectrum promised to them as soon as it becomes available.

But those concessions did not placate most Republicans in the House. Only 22

Republicans voted for the bill, while 155 voted against it. Among House Democrats, 236 voted for the bill and just 13 voted against it.

Congress in 2005 required broadcasters to switch from analog to digital signals, which are more efficient, to free up valuable chunks of wireless spectrum to be used for commercial services and interoperable emergency-response networks.

Starbucks

with net income of $64.3 million, or 9 cents per share, down from $208.1 million, or 28 cents per share a year earlier.

Excluding charges from closing the 600 U.S. stores and 61 stores in Australia, the company said it earned 15 cents per share in its first quarter.

Revenue fell to $2.62 billion from $2.77 billion, while analysts had predicted revenue of $2.70 billion.

The revenue drop stemmed from a 9 percent decline in same-store sales, or sales at locations open at least a year, considered a key gauge of restaurant and retail performance. That dip was worse than the company's fourth-quarter decline of 8 percent.

The company's U.S. same-store sales dropped 10 percent in the first quarter.

Starbucks also said its Chief Executive Howard Schultz will be paid just $10,000 in base salary for fiscal 2009, including health insurance and other benefits. His salary was $1.2 million in 2008.

Schultz still could take home more compensation in the form of stock options. In the last fiscal year, he received stock options worth $7.8 million when granted, which helped boost his total compensation near $10 million.

The company said it plans to open only 140 new stores in the U.S. in fiscal 2009, down from its previous target of 200. Overseas, it will open 170, down from the 270 it had planned to open.

The company also said it will not provide any sales or earnings guidance "given the uncertainty in the global consumer retail environment."

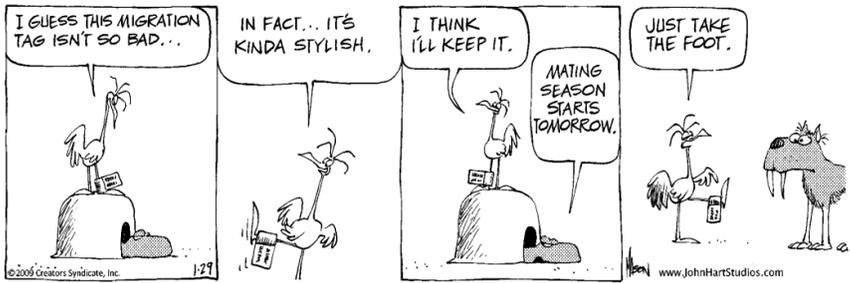

Shares fell 49 cents, or 5.1 percent, to $9.16 in electronic after hours trading after rising 5.5 percent during regular trading Wednesday.

More than a million wait in icy darkness across U.S.

By Daniel Shea
 Associated Press writer

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. — Well over a million people shivered in ice-bound homes across the country Wednesday, waiting for warmer weather and for utility crews to restring power lines brought down by a storm that killed 23 as it took a journey from the Southern Plains to the East Coast.

But with temperatures plunging, utility officials warned that it could be mid-February before electricity is restored to some of the hardest-hit places. The worst of the power failures were in Kentucky, Arkansas and Ohio. Just getting to their source was difficult for utility crews. Ice-encrusted tree limbs and power lines blocked glazed roads, and cracking limbs pierced the air like popping gunfire as they snapped. In Kentucky, National Guard soldiers were dispatched to remove the debris. Oklahoma, already struggling to restore power there, planned to send crews to help in Arkansas later in the week. "It looks like a tornado came through, but there wasn't a path; it was everywhere," said Mel Coleman, the chief executive officer of the North Arkansas Electric Cooperative in Salem. The power is out at his house, too, and he spent Tuesday night in a chair at his office. The storm was "worse than we ever imagined," he said. In Arkansas — where ice was 3 inches thick in some places — people huddled next to fireplaces, wood-burning stoves and portable heaters powered by generators. When it got too cold, they left for shelters or relatives' homes that weren't hit as badly. "We bundled up together on a bed with four blankets. It's freezing," said Pearl Schmidt of Paintsville, in eastern Kentucky. Her family endured 32-degree weather Wednesday morning before leaving their house for a shelter.

The number of homes and businesses without power totaled around 1.4 million Wednesday evening, in a swath of states from Oklahoma to West Virginia. Arkansas had more than 350,000 customers in the dark; Kentucky had about a half-million. The actual number of people affected the power failures could be much higher.

SNOW BIKES II

(This time they're motorized and a heck of a lot faster)

Story and photos by
Andrew Weeks

It took a while for the morning fog to lift, but even while it sat heavy in the canyon a handful of off-road enthusiasts, sitting atop their dirt bikes, roamed the snowy hillsides.

The two — dirt bikes and snow — don't usually mix well, or at least they didn't until a Nampa-based company created the Radix Kit, which converts just about any dirt bike into a snow machine.

Expect to see some of these snow bikes around, company officials said. The trend is already catching on.

More than a dozen people from motorcycle shops in Nampa, Burley and Twin Falls visited the South Hills on Saturday to test ride snow bikes, which are described differently by different riders.

Some said they are like riding jet skis, others said they are difficult to describe.

It was the first time that Twin Falls resident Rick Stephens rode one of the bikes. Though he rides both snowmobiles and dirt bikes, he said snow bikes handle like neither.

"It's like riding a snowboard with a motor," said Brett Blaser of Nampa-based 2Moto Snow Bikes, the company that manufactures the kit that for a little more than $4,000 turns dirt bikes into snow bikes. The Radix, which is made to fit most manufacturers' dirt bikes, comes with a rubberized track that replaces a bike's rear tire and a ski for the front.

The concept of converting dirt bikes into snow bikes began about Riders try out snow bikes at the South Hills. Earlier attempts to market them didn't catch on.

Are snow bikes here to stay?

Over the past two weeks or so I've had the chance to find out a little about snow bikes — both the motorized and non-motorized kinds.

The latter, mountain-bike type, were demoed at Magic Mountain Ski Resort on Jan. 17, while the former, motorcycle variety was tested by riders at the South Hills on Jan. 24. The first is manufactured by Geary Snow Bikes in Kaysville, Utah, the other by 2Moto Snow Bikes in Nampa, Idaho.

I find it interesting that both styles of bikes are emerging in the marketplace at about the same time. After years of engineering and testing by both companies, they've finally manufactured products that are saleable to the public.

Retailers say they are already catching on. But will the momentum last or is it just a passing fancy? I guess that's up to you, the retailer. Previous attempts by others to manufacture similar products, such as the SkiBob, didn't catch on as much as expected.

The bikes obviously hit a niche market. That is especially true in today's economy. Snow bikes aren't cheap: $895 for Geary's, and $4,249 for 2Moto's kit that will literally transform any dirt bike into a snow bike. Or the real deal for about $12,499.

If you're going to spend that much money on a recreational toy, you're either tired of snowboarders and skiers monopolizing the slopes, you're an off-road enthusiast, or you have enough money you don't know what to do with.

That said, niche markets have been known to be viable markets. Isn't that what the computer was at one time, all those many years ago? Now you can barely live without them (though I'm sure there are a great many people who still do; it's just that I haven't met anyone yet who does).

A RIDER'S
NOTEBOOK
Andrew Weeks

Trevor Hollibaugh tears up the snow Saturday at the South Hills. It was his first time riding a snow bike.

Some people can live without snow bikes, though. They're not like the computer, though I have it on good authority that they're a lot more fun. We'll have to wait to see how much they catch on in the years ahead.

So what appeals to me, Geary's bikes or 2Moto's? To be honest, I didn't have the time to ride either. But I did like Geary's demonstrations much better: Instead of a bunch of guys in helmets, it was observed at Magic Mountain that at least one ski bunny was riding a snow bike. I don't know about you, but for me that's always a better demonstration.

And now I'm going to wait until my wife hits me. Maybe I'll hide today's paper from her.

Winter wanderlust: Local off-road clubs plan season events

By Blair Koch
Times-News correspondent

Now that Idaho is smack dab in the middle of its sledding season there is no better time to gather friends and family to enjoy some of the state's 7,000 miles of groomed trails and seemingly endless fresh powder.

"Idaho has more groomed snowmobile trails than any other western state and some of the most spectacular scenery you'll ever see," boasts the Web site, VisitIdaho.org.

You can plan your own ride at www.idahowinter.org, which has information on riding areas and trails across the state.

Or you can tag along with a riding club.

The Magic Valley Snowmobile Club has a variety of rides planned through the end of the season. Even non-members are welcome to join the pack.

On Saturday MVSC will host its annual Stanley Ride. The riders in attendance will determine the terrain taken throughout the day.

"There are groomed trails to more challenging, off-trail terrain. It's a great place to ride," said club President Terry Howe.

The club will meet at 10:30 a.m. at Mountain Village parking lot on Stanley's main drag, Howe said.

A 7 p.m., dinner will be hosted by club Secretary Peggy Stanley at her cabin in Stanley. The dinner is a great opportunity for new members and non-members to mingle with others sharing the same passion for sledding. (Lunch is on your own.)

"There are so many benefits of becoming a member. For one, the camaraderie with other people who share the love and enthusiasm for the sport, plus you get to ride with other experienced riders who may know different riding areas — and that is always important," Stanley said. "On the other hand, participating in the club is a way to be educated on land issues ... it's a proactive way to get involved and fight for the right of riders."

With membership in the local club, riders get automatic membership into the Idaho State Snowmobile Association, Stanley said.

Other events the club has scheduled include:

- Feb. 21-22, Bone to Alpine: This destination ride promises to unveil majestic scenery from Bone, Idaho, to Alpine, Wyo. The club will

Avalanche danger heightened in Uintas

SALT LAKE CITY — The Utah Avalanche Center says deep, water-logged snow in parts of the state is creating potentially lethal avalanche conditions.

The center's warning on Tuesday urges people to avoid steep slopes in the western Uinta Mountains and the Wasatch Plateau until conditions stabilize.

Snowpack in some of those areas has nearly doubled since Thursday, overloading a weak base and increasing the odds that a large avalanche might be triggered.

The center says the most likely spots for avalanches are high-elevation, north-facing slopes 35 degrees or steeper.

Four people have died in Utah avalanches this season.

Jackson Hole lodging bookings off from last year

JACKSON, Wyo. — A Jackson Hole Chamber of Commerce lodging barometer shows advance bookings for the coming weekend to be about 21 percent behind last year's pace.

The listing provides further confirmation of a below-par tourism season in the Jackson Hole area.

The chamber compiles the listing weekly, and the latest forecast compares Saturday with the Feb. 2 advanced bookings in 2008. Total occupancy of surveyed rooms this year was 55 percent, compared with 70 percent last year.

Downtown Jackson bookings were at 66 percent of capacity this year, compared with 74 last year. Teton Village hotels were booked at 51 percent of capacity, compared with 87 percent last year.

Condos and vacation rentals slipped from 81 percent to 60 percent. And highway lodging bookings are at 16 percent, compared with 31 percent last year.

Skiers lap up luxury at new Sun Valley lodge

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

Nordic skiers aren't accustomed to luxury. A warming shack is good. A yurt is better.

Nordic skiers in Sun Valley literally skied into the lap of luxury this year with the opening of a multimillion dollar 58,756-square foot lodge.

"I've skied all over the world and I've never seen a Nordic facility that's this luxurious," said Muffy Ritz, a former Rossignol ski team racer who still travels the world competing at Master World Cup championships. "The chandeliers, the locker rooms, the carpeting — this is more elegant even than the Seattle Ridge Lodge, Carol's Dollar Mountain Lodge, River Run and the Warm Springs Lodge on Bald Mountain."

The lodge, which doubles as a golf clubhouse in summer, boasts 700 tons of North Star granite mined from quarry that Olympic gold medalist Picabo Street's family owns above Triumph.

Inside is Italian and Indian stone, a spacious entryway with cathedral ceilings, heavy beams, European carpeting and huge chandeliers.

A spacious dining room that stretches from one side of the building to the other offers tenderloin carpaccio, crab cakes, sweet potato fries, lake perch with orange ginger glaze and flat iron steak — a far cry from the hot dogs, soup and brownies the old Nordic shack served.

Skiers can get a quick workout at lunch, then shower off in elegant locker room with butternut paneling, marble countertops and plasma TVs.

Just down the hall is an indoor driving range open year round where golfers can videotape themselves, overlaying their swing onto Tiger Woods' to see how they measure up. Another room offers a simulator where a foursome can play a round of golf at Pebble Beach while snow covers Sun Valley's tees.

And the 19,781 square-foot basement, which currently serves as storage, is being eyed as a huge health spa with a lap pool.

Outside are 200 heated parking spaces.

"It's so Sun Valley — I love it," said Brad Mitchell, a Nordic enthusiast who works with the city of Sun Valley.

Sun Valley's newest building, the Sun Valley Club, replaces a drafty 800-square foot building that is believed to be Sun Valley's oldest building. The smaller building, which could fit into the retail shop of the new clubhouse, served as a potbellied-warmed timing shack where employees clocked in and out and kept track of Union Pacific trains arriving from Shoshone when Sun Valley Resort opened in 1936.

The new building seems to be attracting skiers and non-skiers alike.

"A lot of people come and eat and wander through the shop. They watch the skiers out on the trails and then decide 'I think I'm going to try it,'" said Ned Wheeler, director for Sun Valley's Nordic Center.

One woman who did just that is Vickie South.

"The new building definitely played a part in getting me out here," said the Ketchum woman. "It's fantastic — I can't believe how pretty it is. And the food is good. It's a nice place to start out your ski day and finish it."

Indeed, the center offers immediate access to a plethora of trails, including a wide flat beginners area and a couple practice loops with short gentle hills about the height of a loading dock that allow beginners to get the feel for skiing small hills.

The Trail Creek Loop winds its way around the Sun Valley Golf Course, leading to more difficult trails with names like Elevator. One trail offers people a place to ski with their dogs. And another, the Diamondback Loop, climbs through the new White Clouds Golf Course to a mountaintop view with stunning views of Elkhorn, Baldy, the Warm Springs area and the mountains to the north.

Sun Valley eventually hopes to build a terrain park, with a quarter pipe figure and other interesting terrain features for youngsters, said Hans Muehleger, Sun Valley's director of skiing.

There's also talk of lights for limited night skiing and snowmaking.

"The snowmaking would help guarantee that we can offer some skiing by Thanksgiving in most years, when the mountain opens," Wheeler said.

Artemis, the moon goddess, visits her sisters this week

Most celestial objects' names — including the constellations, planets, sun and moon — date to ancient times. Of those with a definite gender, 30 are male but only 16 are female. The "fair sex" is badly underrepresented in the sky.

This week, the celestial ladies are making up in quality what they lack in quantity. Tonight, the waxing crescent moon (associated with Artemis, the goddess of the hunt) pays a visit to Venus (the Roman name for the Greek Aphrodite, the goddess of love).

As the two brightest objects in the nighttime sky, their proximity (less than a palm's width apart at arm's length) will produce a picture-postcard view. This meeting takes place in Pisces, near the part of the constellation representing the piscine form assumed by Aphrodite to escape a ravaging sea monster.

After tonight the thin, sliver Artemis climbs higher and higher, transforming into a half-illuminated first-quarter moon on Monday night.

But a still larger meeting of feminine pulchritude is yet to come.

On Wednesday night start looking for the moon after 6:30 p.m., in twilight. As the sky darkens, it will be apparent that quite a conclave is transpiring. The moon will overlap the Pleiades star cluster, also known as the Seven Sisters (daughters of Atlas). At 7 p.m. two Pleiads — Taygeta and Maia — will be hidden, only to emerge from the moon's lower right edge between 7:05 and 7:15 p.m. The best way to watch this event, known as a lunar occultation, will be with binoculars or a telescope, which will also show many more Pleiads, too faint for the unaided eye.

If you miss these two meetings, there's a near repeat next month, with the Moon much closer to Venus on the 27th, but not quite reaching the Pleiades before setting in the early morning hours of March 3.

Next week: A subtle eclipse for the sharp-eyed.

Dirt series bike camp makes return to Sun Valley

Times-News

The Rocky Mountain Dirt Series Women's MTB Cycling Camp will return to Sun Valley on June 20-21.

The camp is open to 40 women who are looking to improve their skills and confidence on all types of mountain trails, and is appropriate for beginner, intermediate, and advanced riders.

The Dirt Series camps start to fill up quickly once registration opens Feb. 1. This is an opportunity for women who want to have fun riding and learn from female instructors in the sport.

The camp is a two-day format with skills sessions in the morning and a trail ride in the afternoon to practice new-found skills.

For the morning skills sessions, the Dirt Series travels with a truck load of obstacles to help riders get proficient with basic front wheel lifts, switchback techniques, high speed cornering, wheelie drops, manuals and bunny hops.

The Dirt Series travels with their own fleet of Rocky Mountain demo bikes for those who would like to try some different bike technology. Sturtes Bike Shop in Sun Valley/Ketchum will also have some Rocky Mountain demos available for the weekend.

Cost for the camp is $325 per person. Lunch is provided each day. For complete camp information and registration: www.dirtseries.com.

Innovative products for the outdoors

A heated winter jacket. Ovoid-grip trekking poles. Gummy athletic gel.

These are a few of the innovative products coming to market later in 2009 in the outdoors industry. Last week, at the Outdoor Retailer Winter Market trade show in Salt Lake City, I got a peek into this future of outdoors gear and apparel. Here's the rundown on five items that caught my eye.

Mountain Hardware Refugium Trifecta jacket:

Stay dry. Heat your core. Charge your electronics. Those are the features Mountain Hardware promises with its new "jacket system," a waterproof shell jacket with a battery-powered, heated liner.

Plug in the Ardica battery pack and the liner pumps heat via receptors embedded in the fabric. Or, use a cable connector to charge your cell phone or music player as it sits cozy in warmth in the Trifecta's inside pocket.

All these tricks don't come cheap, however. The jacket, available later this year, will cost $550.

Leki AER-GON Grip: A rounded grip atop a trekking pole that sits nice in the palm, especially for descents, was the big new item from Leki. The AER-GON grip incorporates an ovoid shape that can be palmed or held traditionally for several grip options. Its handle has a rubberized and dimpled top for texture, and the company's proprietary strap-adjustment system for quick tweaks for fit. The AER-GON will come in 11 new trekking poles, including women-specific designs.

TREW outerwear: This small outfit from Hood River, Ore., adds the performance of top-end outerwear to a line of ski and snowboarding jackets and pants that look most at home in a terrain park. But take the company's jackets, pants, and bibs into the backcountry for some ski touring and the products perform with waterproof-breathable fabric, high collars (no neck gaiter required), expandable chest pockets that can accommodate climbing skins, and other neat design touches.

Adventure Medical Kits Women's Edition Travel kit: As its name implies, this is a first-aid kit for women, and it includes all the usual medical supplies — wound care implementations, medications, instructional materials — plus components for women-only like tampons and meds for menstrual cramps.

For international trips, a "visual card tool" can help you communicate a medical issue when a language barrier is present by simply pointing to diagrams and pictures on a card. Available in March for $60.

GU Chomps Performance Energy Chews: GU Energy Labs' latest athletic enhancer comes in the form of a gummy chew. GU Chomps cost $2.20 per packet and are made to address an athlete's craving for solid food during training or racing while delivering nutrients and electrolytes.

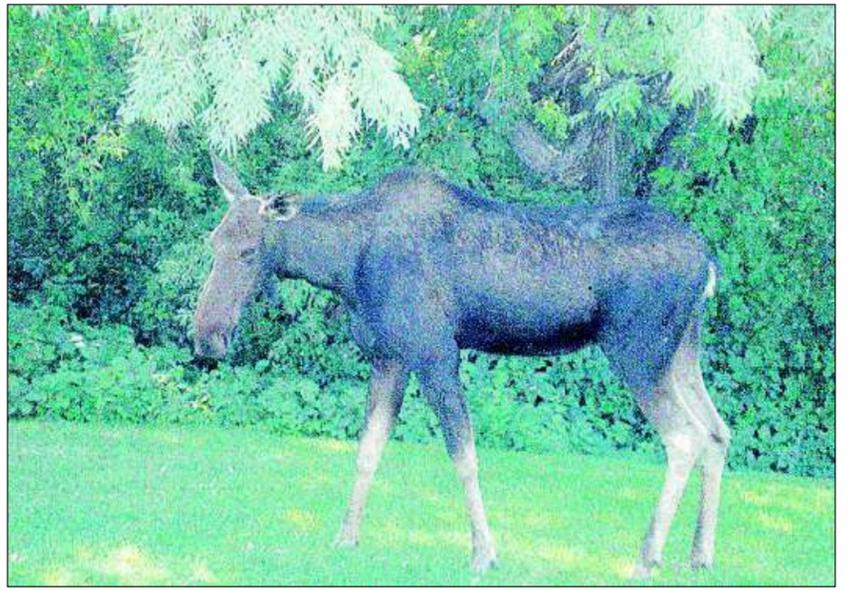

The company will ship Chomps in March in Blueberry Pomegranate, Orange, Cran Apple, and Strawberry flavors.

Nutritionally, the chews contain complex carbohydrates from maltodextrin and simple carbs from tapioca syrup and cane sugar, as well as antioxidants in the form of vitamins C and E (to accelerate recovery from hard workouts, according to the company).

Stephen Regenold writes a daily blog on outdoors gear at www.gearjunkie.com.

Bridger Forest plan limits ATVs

JACKSON, Wyo. (AP) — Bridger-Teton National Forest officials have approved a plan that limits off-road motorized vehicles to designated trails and roads on the western Wyoming forest.

The use of motorcycles and all-terrain vehicles in the forest around Jackson Hole had largely been unregulated before the agency announced Tuesday that it had issued a final decision on the plan. Wilderness was one of the few exceptions.

The final plan eliminates unrestricted use and designates 392 miles of roads and 88 miles of trails where motorized use is allowed.

While the plan keeps many trails popular with motorized vehicle users, it does impose more seasonal limits to protect wildlife and sensitive soils during certain times of the year.

The plan met with approval from both motorized advocates and environmental groups.

13 years ago, Blaser said, though the company only started selling the kits this year. But already they're gaining interest, he said.

Riders were seen Saturday riding rough-shod up hills and across open fields, into and out of the fog that kept the distant trees shrouded in its gloom. Come springtime when sunshine replaces fog and the snow begins to melt, these same riders will bring their machines back to the hills, this time to ride them as dirt bikes.

That's the great thing about the snow bike kit, Blaser said.

Instead of storing motorcycles for the winter, the kit, which takes about two hours to mount, allows riders to use their machines all year long.

And forget kickstands. With the snowmobile-like track and ski, bikes don't need any. Adventure Motorsports in Twin Falls and Let's Ride in Burley, both which had representatives visit the hills Saturday, sell the kits.

"They're catching on," said Randy Ivie, a sales associate at Adventure. The shop, he said, has already sold about 12 kits this season. "When you haul these things (snow bikes) around it's like having two naked ladies in your truck. They draw a lot of attention," Ivie said.

Snow bikes target a niche audience. They aren't for everyone, especially with a price tag of about $4,249. Nampa-based 2Moto also sells the Rogue 650, a fully outfitted snow bike that retails for about $12,499.

The hefty price tags didn't stop newcomer Trevor Hollibaugh of Kimberly to proclaim that he wants one.

Hollibaugh said he likes dirt bikes and first rode one as a snow bike Saturday. He said that riding it didn't feel much different than what it does riding a motorcycle in the dirt.

"They're a lot of fun to ride," he said.

The "town" is really nothing more than a parking lot off the highway, Howe said, but it's a great starting point.

After loading sleds, club members will travel to Alpine for an overnight stay. Participants must arrange and pay for their own overnight accommodations. Howe suggests making plans now, as lodging is limited and fills up fast.

The money raised will stay in southern Idaho; past year raffle funds have been donated to organizations like Valley House and Coats for Kids.

Although the snow is still falling, now is the perfect time to gear up for early-spring all-terrain vehicle fun.

On Feb. 28 the Magic Valley ATV Riders will hold its first scheduled season ride (if Mother Nature allows). The ride will take ATV enthusiasts through 40 miles of trail near the Sailor Creek Bombing Range in the Bruneau desert.

MVATVR President Stan Mai said the ride will take place right along the edge of the bombing range up to the edge of the Bruneau River Canyon.

"You can see assimilators and targets in the bombing range, and the canyon is pretty awesome," Mai said. "Of course, you can get to the destination by highway if you are coming from Mountain Home, but the ride is out in the middle of the desert and riding is way more fun."

The organization's Web site, www.mvatvr.org, will continually be updated with ride information, including the group's meeting place.

The club will hold its next meeting at 6 p.m., Feb. 11, at Idaho Pizza, 1759 Kimberly Rd., in Twin Falls.

Question: My wife and I filed our own Chapter 7 bankruptcy and now the bankruptcy trustee wants to seize my daughter's car because my name is on the title. Is this legal?

Answer: In Idaho, it is clear that if your name is on the title to a car, then you have an ownership interest in that car. When you file a bankruptcy, all the assets you have an ownership interest in become part of your bankruptcy estate and can be liquidated for the benefit of your creditors UNLESS THE ASSET IS EXEMPT. Idaho law provides a generous list of exemptions to protect the common types of property items most people own. However, you and your wife are entitled to only one automobile exemption each. Apparently, you used the exemptions on the cars you and your wife drive, leaving your daughter's car unprotected. You should contact an experienced bankruptcy attorney immediately. Even at this late stage, it might be possible to realign your exemptions to protect all or a portion of the value of your daughter's car. Even if that is not possible, there are other options including (1) negotiating a cash payment with the trustee in lieu of seizure, and (2) conversion of your case to a case under Chapter 13 of the Bankruptcy Code. This is yet another sad example of why saving money by not hiring an attorney may turn out to be very costly in the end.

Jerome ordinance banning turn at busy intersection nears enforcement

By Mary Hanson
Times-News correspondent

If you're driving anything much longer than a Ford F-350 Long Bed through Jerome, don't plan on turning at the city's busiest intersection.

On Dec. 16, the Jerome City Council passed an ordinance prohibiting vehicles longer than 22 feet from turning at the intersection of Lincoln and Main streets. At the time, the city announced enforcement of the ordinance would begin once signs that clearly mark the truck route and alert drivers to the turn restrictions were posted.

In about three weeks, the signs go up. Jerome Public Works Director Walt Appell said there has always been a problem at the intersection when semitrailers and other long trucks try to make turns there.

"We've had so much damage there by trucks trying to turn," Appell said. "They have gotten stuck, have damaged light poles, fire hydrants, concrete medians and knocked down all kinds of signs. They have even damaged the electrical service to traffic lights."

Appell said the situation caused traffic jams and costs taxpayers a lot of money.

With recent upgrades to downtown infrastructure, the city thought now is a good time to address the problem of the damage at the intersection.

"So, we are saying continue straight through the intersection or use the sign directions to travel in that area in

Camas Co. Library to reopen in new building

By Amy Ballard
Times-News correspondent

FAIRFIELD — Volunteers hauled, unpacked, shelved and rearranged books last week as the Camas County Library prepared to occupy its new home on Soldier Road in Fairfield.

Transporting the 11,000 books in the library's collection is a labor of love for some helpers. Bonnie McGough, a Fairfield resident of three years and an avid reader, came in Tuesday to organize books that had been in storage due to lack of space at the library's former location at 519 First St. W.

"I'm delighted to get more space," she said. "I've read my way through most of the books that were already there."

McGough said she plans to donate several bookcases full of books now that there is more room. "I'll wait until we're done moving, though," she said.

The library will open in its new location on Monday with hours from 12:30 to 5:30 p.m., Monday through Wednesday and Friday. Thursday hours are 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

The move comes after years of preparation. Ever since the library opened its doors in 1973, board members have known the 800 square-foot building would eventually be outgrown. In 2007, the library board formed a separate foundation to secure long-term financing for a new building that would not burden taxpayers with a levy.

Financing for the $310,000 building purchase and renovation came through Farm Credit Services with loan guarantees from the USDA. Farm Credit Services also gave a grant for the project.

Donations from other organizations have gone a long way to make the upgrade possible. The Apex Foundation bought bookshelves for the children's section. When Micron eliminated its library recently, the Boise-based company donated 60 feet of bookshelves to the library.

Members of the community are doing their part too. Through foundation memberships and other donations during a fundraiser at the Camas County Fair last year, $11,000 was raised to satisfy the lender upfront.

Since then the donated amount has more than doubled, said Matt McLam, chairman of the foundation's board of directors.

Area business owner Nancy Hallowell and her husband purchased an annual membership.

"My son loves to read," she said. "I'm really looking forward to getting over there and seeing (the new building) and taking Drew." Besides feeding her 11-year-old's voracious appetite for books, Hallowell said the new library will fill a need for all kids in the community.

"It'll be a nice place to be after school," she said.

To volunteer or donate, call the library at 208-764-2553. To view the library's collection, visit <http://camas.lili.org>.

Irrigation scholarship applications accepted

The Idaho Irrigation Equipment Association expects to award thousands of dollars in scholarships to deserving students going into agricultural irrigation or turf-landscape irrigation fields in 2009.

In 2008, the IIEA awarded $15,100 in scholarships to 22 students. College scholarships ranged from $500 to $1,200 per student.

Students were selected on the basis of academic accomplishment, leadership and interest in pursuing a degree in an agricultural irrigation or turf/landscape-related field.

Graduating high school seniors or college students may contact their local IIEA Member irrigation equipment dealer or contact IIEA Secretary Tondee Clark at 377-8188 to request an application form.

The form is also available at www.idahoirrigationequipmentassociation.org. All applications are due Feb. 15. Previous award winners are encouraged to apply if they are still attending college.

Seeking alternatives to cholesterol-lowering medicine

DEAR DR. GOTT: I am an active 71-year-old woman with a cholesterol reading of 258, which I know is high. I do not want to go on medication, and my doctor seems to feel that since I am not heavy, exercise regularly and my HDL is excellent, I shouldn't be concerned.

I don't eat meat or fats and watch what I do eat. I also read that taking flaxseed is good for lowering cholesterol levels, so I take a tablespoon of flaxseed meal each morning.

Is my doctor correct in advising me that I shouldn't be concerned? Is there anything else I should be doing to lower the numbers since I really do not want to take statins?

ASK DR. GOTT
Dr. Peter Gott

I would appreciate hearing your opinion on this.

DEAR READER: More and more emphasis is being placed today on lowering total cholesterol levels. Excessive amounts of cholesterol in the blood have been linked to plaque developing in blood vessels. Over time, plaque buildup can lead to inadequate amounts of blood traveling through the arteries. This, in turn, can cause coronary-artery disease, heart attack and stroke. Optimal values for total cholesterol are below 200 mg/dL. With a level of 258, you are above the normal range and are at an increased risk for related medical issues.

I fully appreciate your reluctance to go on statin drugs. There are a number of medications in the category that work by blocking a substance the liver requires to make cholesterol. While some people can take statins without experiencing any side effects, others have reported cramping, nausea and diarrhea. Follow-up laboratory blood testing is vital to be assured there is no liver damage, another common side effect.

You already watch your diet, exercise and take flaxseed. If you smoke, which I doubt, you should discontinue the habit. Alcohol can be consumed in modest amounts. Excessive amounts can lead to liver, heart and other organ damage. My guess is that your problem may be genetic, so you could have higher-than-normal levels despite all your efforts.

Consider eating oatmeal for breakfast and salmon once or twice weekly for dinner. Try adding cinnamon to breakfast cereals and other food items. Over-the-counter niacin can lower triglycerides by limiting the liver's ability to produce low-density lipoprotein (LDL or "bad") cholesterol. A recommended initial dose is 250 milligrams daily with incremental increases to 1,000 milligrams daily. Niacin can cause flushing and itching that can be counteracted by taking an antihistamine or an 81-milligram aspirin about 15 minutes prior to taking the niacin. There are several other drugs available without prescription that might be a good first step. They generally contain plant sterols that have been reported to lower levels.

Speak with your physician regarding your concerns about being placed on a statin drug and discuss options. I'm inclined to agree that you needn't worry, but he or she just might have some alternative suggestions.

To give you related information, I am sending you a copy of my newly revised Health Report "Understanding Cholesterol." Other readers who would like a copy should send a self-addressed, stamped, No. 10 envelope and $2 to Newsletter, PO Box 167, Wickliffe, OH 44092. Be sure to mention the title.

Peter Gott is a retired physician and the author of the book "Dr. Gott's No Flour, No Sugar Diet," available at most chain and independent bookstores, and the recently published "Dr. Gott's No Flour, No Sugar Cookbook."

order to get where you need to go," Appell said.

Appell added the ordinance is currently in effect but won't be enforced until the signs are up. A delay in posting the signage has given the city a little extra time to get the word out.

"When you see the traffic signs, just follow them and you will be okay," said Appell.

Appell said those attempting to turn at the intersection in a 22-foot-plus vehicle will be issued a ticket for up to $150. Those ticketed may also be liable for damages their vehicle creates.

"There are no exceptions to this ordinance. City vehicles and crews have to obey the signs, too," Appell said.

In December, city officials suggested West Avenue D and Birch Street as nearby streets that can be used for turning.

And if you're wondering what a 22-foot-long vehicle looks like, consider this: A 2006 Ford F-350 Super Duty Crew Cab Long Bed is just longer than 21.8 feet — less than four inches from creeping over the ordinance's limit.

Lynyrd Skynyrd keyboardist dies at Florida home

By Ron Word
Associated Press writer

ORANGE PARK, Fla. — Lynyrd Skynyrd keyboard player Billy Powell, who played on such hits as "Sweet Home Alabama" and survived the 1977 plane crash that killed three band members, died Wednesday. He was 56.

Powell called 911 in this Jacksonville suburb saying he was having trouble breathing. Rescuers performed CPR, but he was pronounced dead about an hour later, Orange Park Police Lt. Mark Cornett said.

Powell

Powell, who had a history of heart problems, missed a Tuesday appointment with his doctor for a cardiac evaluation, and a heart attack is suspected as the cause of death.

The Jacksonville-based band was formed in 1966 by a group of high school students — famously, it took its name from a physical education teacher they disliked, Leonard Skinner. Powell joined the group in 1970 and became its keyboardist in 1972, the year before they released their first album, "Pronounced leh-nerd skinner."

It became one of the South's most popular rock groups, and gained national fame with such hits as "Free Bird," "What's Your Name" and especially "Sweet Home Alabama," which reached the top 10 on the charts in 1974. The band was inducted into the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame in 2006.

The band was decimated on Oct. 20, 1977, when their chartered plane crashed in a swamp near McComb, Miss.

Six people were killed — lead singer Ronnie Van Zant; guitarist Steve Gaines; Gaines' sister, vocalist Cassie Gaines; as well as an assistant road manager, the pilot and co-pilot.

Powell received facial injuries in the crash, but eventually recovered. He was the only band member well enough to attend the funerals of those killed in the crash.

Two years after the accident, Powell and fellow members Allen Collins, Gary Rossington and Leon Wilkeson formed the Rossington-Collins Band. It broke up in 1982.

In 1987 Johnny Van Zant — Ronnie's brother — and a new Lynyrd Skynyrd Band went on a tribute tour, and Powell was on hand again in 1991 when the revived version of the band put out a new album, "Lynyrd Skynyrd 1991" and started a tour in Baton Rouge, La., where the band was headed in 1977 when the plane crashed.

Fans who kept their tickets from the canceled 1977 concert were admitted free.

The band's last album, "Vicious Cycle," was released in 2003.

Johnny Van Zant was devastated by Powell's death. Harkening back to the deaths of other members of the band, he said: "Maybe it is just the destiny of Lynyrd Skynyrd. We've played before millions and millions of people and it's been a wonderful ride and a bumpy one too."

Van Zant said Powell had been a roadie for the band when his brother heard him playing the keyboard.

Author and Parade columnist James Brady dies at 80

By Polly Anderson
Associated Press writer

NEW YORK — James Brady, the Parade magazine celebrity columnist whose wide-ranging career also included novels, a memoir on his Korean War service and a stint as publisher of the fashion bible Women's Wear Daily, has died at 80.

Brady

Brady's death was announced Tuesday by Parade magazine, where he wrote the celebrity profile column "In Step With" for nearly 25 years. He died Monday at his Manhattan home.

Brady also was credited with initiating the New York Post's popular Page Six gossip section when he worked for publisher Rupert Murdoch in the 1970s. During that time, he also succeeded Clay Felker as editor of New York magazine when Murdoch acquired it in 1977.

His varied interests were alluded to in a 1997 New York Times profile. At Brady's home in East Hampton, it said, "photos from years gone by paper the walls. Mr. Brady with (designer Coco) Chanel in Paris, Mr. Brady with a young Brooke Shields in New York, Mr. Brady in combat fatigues in Korea, Mr. Brady with President Bush in Washington."

The Times praised his 1990 memoir on Korea, "The Coldest War," as "a superb personal memoir of the way it was. ... What distinguishes Mr. Brady's book is its clarity and modesty; there is no heroic flag-waving here."

He followed it up with a 2000 novel, "The Marines of Autumn," and his 2005 "The Scariest Place in the World: A Marine Returns to North Korea."

He had gone back in 2003 for Parade magazine, and in the book he shared his experiences and emotions on seeing the place 50 years after the war ended in a stalemate. In "The Scariest Place," he wrote that none of the many later events of his life "matched the intensity, the gravitas and sheer excitement" of combat as leader of a rifle platoon.

Among his other books was "Further Lane," a 1997 murder mystery set in East Hampton; and two novels drawing on his years in the women's wear field: "Designs" and "Fashion Show."

He had become Women's Wear Daily's publisher in 1964. Working with Fairchild Publications chief John Fairchild, he helped make the daily into a publication popular with 1960s fashionistas as well as professionals in the clothing trade.

He jumped to Hearst Corp. in 1971 and was publisher of its fashion magazine Harper's Bazaar.

But many readers knew him best for his contributions at Parade, which is delivered with the Times-News each Sunday. CEO Walter Anderson said Brady "was a friend to the 73 million Americans who looked forward to his column each week. ... He will be extraordinarily missed."

His last column will appear Feb. 15. It will feature actor Kevin Bacon.

Fern Wilson Carson

BURLEY — Fern Wilson Carson, a 97-year-old former Burley resident, passed away Sunday, Jan. 25, 2009, in Scottsdale, Ariz.

Fern was born May 19, 1912, in Oakley, the daughter of Roy and Lenna Wilson. She was raised in Oakley, attending schools there. She married Willis T. Mabey; together they lived in Colorado until his death in 1939. She later returned to the Burley area and worked as telephone operator for three years. She married Darward "Kit" Carson. Fern and Kit owned and operated Burley Truck and Tractor Co. This business later became a Datsun-Nissan dealership. After the death of her husband, Kit, she moved to Scottsdale, Ariz., to be near her daughter.

Huge stimulus bill passes House as Obama prods

Not one Republican votes in favor of it

By David Espo
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — Bipartisan it wasn't.

In a swift victory for President Barack Obama, the Democratic-controlled House approved a historically huge $819 billion stimulus bill Wednesday night, filled with new spending and tax cuts at the core of the young administration's revival plan for the desperately ailing economy.

The vote was 244-188, with Republicans unanimous in opposition despite Obama's frequent pleas for bipartisan support.

"This recovery plan will save or create more than three million new jobs over the next few years," the president said in a written statement released moments after the House voted. Still later, he welcomed congressional leaders of both parties to the White House for drinks as he continued to lobby for the legislation.

Earlier, Obama declared, "We don't have a moment to spare" as congressional allies hastened to do his bidding in the face of the worst economic crisis since the Great Depression.

The vote sent the bill to the Senate, where debate could begin as early as Monday on a companion measure already taking shape. Democratic leaders have pledged to have legislation ready for Obama's signature by mid-February.

A mere eight days after Inauguration Day, Speaker Nancy Pelosi said the events heralded a new era. "The ship of state is difficult to turn," said the California Democrat. "But that is what we must do. That is what President Obama called us to do in his inaugural address."

With unemployment at its highest level in a quarter-century, the banking industry wobbling despite the infusion of staggering sums of bailout money and states struggling with budget crises, Democrats said the legislation was desperately needed.

"Another week that we delay is another 100,000 or more people unemployed. I don't think we want that on our consciences," said Rep.

David Obey, D-Wis., chairman of the House Appropriations Committee and one of the leading architects of the legislation.

Republicans said the bill was short on tax cuts and contained too much spending, much of it wasteful, and would fall far short of administration's predictions of job creation.

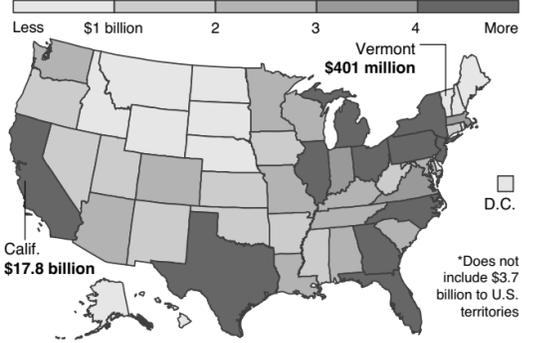

The party's leader, Rep. John Boehner of Ohio, said the measure "won't create many jobs, but it will create plenty of programs and projects through slow-moving government spending." A GOP alternative, comprised almost entirely of tax cuts, was defeated, 266-170.

On the final vote, the legislation drew the support of all but 11 Democrats, while all Republicans opposed it.

Blueprint to stimulate states

The economic recovery package voted on by the House includes money to help states balance their budgets, as well as funding for special education, programs for disadvantaged students, school construction, roads, bridges and mass transit.

Spending, ($149.9 billion*)

Note: Does not include new Medicaid and other health care funding, extended unemployment benefits, other spending items and $3 billion in additional mass transit aid adopted Wednesday as an amendment to the bill.

AROUND THE NATION

WASHINGTON Postmaster General: Mail days may need to be cut

Snow, rain, gloom of night — no matter what, the mail will get through. But maybe not quite as often.

Massive deficits could force the post office to cut out one day of mail delivery, the postmaster general told Congress on Wednesday, asking lawmakers to lift the requirement that the agency deliver mail six days a week.

If the change happens, that doesn't necessarily mean an end to Saturday mail delivery. Previous post office studies have looked at the possibility of skipping some other day when mail flow is light, such as Tuesday.

Faced with dwindling mail volume and rising costs, the post office was $2.8 billion in the red last year. "If current trends continue, we could experience a net loss of $6 billion or more this fiscal year," Postmaster General John E. Potter said in testimony for a Senate Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs subcommittee.

NEW YORK Gene therapy cures form of 'bubble boy disease'

Gene therapy seems to have cured eight of 10 children who had potentially fatal "bubble boy disease," according to a study that followed their progress for about four years after treatment.

The eight patients were no longer on medication for the rare disease, which cripples the body's defenses against infection. The successful treatment is reported in Thursday's issue of the New England Journal of Medicine and offers hope for treating other diseases with a gene therapy approach.

ILLINOIS

Senate leader says gov. wants time at trial

SPRINGFIELD — Gov. Rod Blagojevich has asked to make a statement at the impeachment trial he has so far avoided, but still refuses to answer questions from the lawmakers who will decide whether to remove him from office, the Illinois Senate president announced Wednesday.

A buzz swept through the Senate chambers during the surprise announcement, which interrupted the third day of the unprecedented trial. The prosecution later rested its case against Blagojevich, who is accused of trying to sell President Barack Obama's U.S. Senate seat to the highest bidder, among other corruption charges.

Closing arguments are expected today, and the Senate could decide Blagojevich's fate later today.

Freezing death of veteran in Michigan house sparks anger

By David Eggert
Associated Press writer

BAY CITY, Mich. — When neighbors went inside Marvin Schur's house, the windows were frosted over, icicles hung from a faucet, and the 93-year-old World War II veteran lay dead on the bedroom floor in a winter jacket over four layers of clothing.

He froze to death — slowly and painfully, authorities say — days after the electric company installed a power-limiting device because of more than $1,000 in unpaid bills.

The old man's sad end two weeks ago has led to outrage, soul-searching and a resolve never to let something like this happen again.

"There's got to be a way in today's computer age they can find out if someone's over a certain age," said Chad Sepos, 37, a copy machine installer who lives a block away in this Lake Huron city of 34,000 people, about 90 miles from Detroit. "It's just sad."

One of the saddest things of all was that Schur appeared to have plenty of money, and, in fact, one of the neighbors who entered the home reported seeing cash clipped to a pile of bills on the kitchen table. Schur's nephew suggested the old man's mind may have been slipping.

A sealed limiting device remains on the back of Marvin Schur's electric meter in Bay City, Mich., Tuesday. The device restricts power and blows out like a fuse if usage rises past a set level. Electricity isn't restored until the device is flipped back on.

Schur, or "Mutts," was a retired foundry worker who lived alone, his wife having died a couple of years ago. The couple had no children. He could often be seen through the big front window of his comfortably furnished home of 50 or 60 years, watching TV or keeping an eye on his neighborhood.

On Jan. 13, a worker with the city-owned utility installed a "limiter" on Schur's electric meter after four months of unpaid bills. The device restricts power and blows like a fuse if usage rises past a set level. Electricity is not restored until the device is flipped back on by the homeowner, who must walk outside to the meter.

Bay City Electric Light & Power did not contact Schur face-to-face to notify him of the device and explain how it works, instead following its usual policy by leaving a note on the door. But neighbors said Schur rarely, if ever, left the house in the cold.

At some point, the device evidently tripped and was not reset, authorities said. Schur's home was heated by a gas furnace, not electricity, but some gas furnaces do not work properly if the power is out.

Neighbors discovered Schur's body on Jan. 17 in his home, a yellow house with peeling paint. The outside temperature ranged from a high of 12 degrees to a low of minus 9 on Jan. 15, the day he was believed to have died. A heating pad was on his favorite armchair by the window. The oven door was open, perhaps to heat the place.

U.S. envoy urges stronger Gaza truce

By Lee Keath
Associated Press writer

Mitchell

JERUSALEM — As Israeli-Hamas violence flared, President Barack Obama's new Mideast envoy promised on Wednesday a vigorous push for peace, saying Gaza militants must end their weapons smuggling and the blockaded borders must be pried open if a cease-fire is to take hold.

George Mitchell held his first round of talks with regional leaders to determine the next steps the Obama administration would take toward reviving peace negotiations following Israel's blistering military offensive against Gaza's Islamic Hamas rulers. But continued violence in Gaza underscored the more immediate priority — shoring up the 10-day-old cease-fire.

Hours before Mitchell arrived in Jerusalem, Israeli warplanes pounded Gaza smuggling tunnels in reprisal for a Palestinian bombing on Tuesday that killed an Israeli soldier. After he spoke, militants fired a rocket into Israel and the military responded with another airstrike. There was no immediate word of any casualties.

After talks in Jerusalem with Israeli Prime Minister Ehud Olmert, Mitchell said consolidating the cease-fire was "of critical importance."

He said a longer-term truce should be based on "an end to smuggling and reopening of the crossings" into Gaza. Israel and Egypt have kept their borders with Gaza largely closed since the Islamic militant Hamas seized control of the territory in 2007.

Mitchell embarked on his Mideast foray just a week after Obama took office. After finishing his consultations in the region and with European leaders, he said he would report his recommendations to the president and Secretary of State Hillary Rodham Clinton.

IRAQ Voting begins in Iraqi provincial elections

BAGHDAD — Tens of thousands of police and soldiers, doctors at hospitals, prisoners clad in orange jumpsuits and residents forced from contested towns cast early ballots Wednesday in provincial elections that will redraw Iraq's political landscape.

Regular voting is scheduled for Saturday to choose the equivalent of state legislatures in 14 of the country's 18 provinces. But early voting was allowed for certain groups, in particular the security forces, which will be deployed as part of a security clampdown. On election day, the government has ordered a nighttime curfew, the closing of Iraq's borders and airport, and a ban on traffic in towns and cities.

There was scattered violence Wednesday. Assaults gunned down two policemen in Tuz Khurmatu, 50 miles south of the disputed city of Kirkuk, and a bombing killed a policeman in the northern city of Mosul. But attacks so far have been relatively few compared to the onslaught that preceded Iraq's first elections in 2005. Sunni Arabs largely boycotted the vote, delivering disproportionate power to Shiite Arabs and Kurds in some provinces.

Casting his vote at the Nidhal High School for Girls, Lt. Gen. Hussein al-Awadi praised the quieter climate this time and suggested that sectarian tensions — the Sunni and Shiite conflict that wracked Baghdad in 2006 and 2007 — had subsided.

CHINA Wen: China cautiously optimistic on economy

DAVOS — Chinese Premier Wen Jiabao brought cautious optimism to the World Economic Forum Wednesday, predicting that his country will achieve its target of 8 percent economic growth this year despite the global financial meltdown.

Wen called for enhanced U.S.-China cooperation to address the issue, even as he and Russian Prime Minister Vladimir Putin obliquely criticized the United States, blaming a relentless pursuit of profits for the worst financial crisis since the Great Depression.

Both Wen and Putin said the crisis had impacted their countries' economies, but Putin refrained from specific forecasts.

Wen conceded that creating 8 percent growth — the rate China needs to avoid unemployment and social unrest — was "a tall order," but he said it was attainable with growth in China "on the track of steady and fast development."

Even so, the rate would represent retrenchment for China, where growth in 2008 hit a seven-year low of 9 percent. That broke a five-year streak of double-digit expansion. Still, Wen voiced confidence.

"Will China's economy continue to grow fast and steadily? Some people have doubts about it," he said. "Yet, I can give you a definite answer: yes it will. We are full of confidence."

The annual meeting of politicians, well-heeled business leaders and well-meaning activists and celebrities gathered under a pall that has seen personal fortunes trimmed, companies shuttered and hundreds of thousands of jobs lost. President Barack Obama's top economic policy makers did not attend.

Spartans blast Bobcats

Minico wrestlers dominate Burley in dual

By Ryan Howe
Times-News writer

Minico hammered Burley 69-7 in a wrestling dual Wednesday night in a final tune-up before this weekend's Red Halverson Invitational. In 11 matches wrestled, the Spartans earned nine wins, including seven pins.

"I think we're looking better all the time," said Minico coach Brad Cooper. "We've got a lot of youth, but I think they're finally coming around."

Minico features four freshmen on its varsity roster this season, and two of those won by pinfall: Alberto Ramirez at 119 pounds and David Borden at 145.

"This gives us some confidence heading into this weekend," Borden said. "Overall we have a good team and I think we all need to wrestle smart (at Red Halverson) and work hard through those consolations if we get bumped down."

Despite the lopsided team score, the night featured a handful of great battles, including a tight match at 160 between Minico's Colby May and Burley's Adrian Quiroz. May narrowly escaped with a 1-0 decision.

The Broncos (14-5, 5-2 Western Athletic Conference) have won 14 straight over the Vandals (9-10, 3-3). But Idaho is 7-1 at home this season and Boise State has dropped two conference road games already. Junior guard Mac Hopson leads the Vandals, while Mark Sanchez and Paul Noonan pace a balanced BSU offense.

Jerome boys stroll past WR

By David Bashore
Times-News writer

With a massive conference game against Burley looming on Friday, Jerome's home game Wednesday against struggling Wood River had all the makings of a trap game, from an outsider's point of view.

Fortunately for the Tigers, they too realized the potential pitfall.

Wood River hit nine 3-pointers in the game, but it was still nowhere near enough as Class 4A No. 2 Jerome was quick out of the blocks and took a 75-55 win to improve to 14-2 on the year and 4-0 in the Great Basin Conference West.

Kevin Williams scored a game-high 23 and pulled down 12 boards for Jerome, and Kameron Pearce added 22 points to the cause as the duo nearly combined to outscore Wood River by themselves.

"We just wanted to run our offense, because we've really been starting to click there. We wanted to take it to them early," said Williams, whose interior presence proved too much for the Wolverines (1-11, 0-3 GBW) to handle.

Pearce scored 10 in the first quarter and Williams added nine in the first and third periods to set the tone offensively.

It helped make up for a sluggish defensive effort in the first half, during which the Tigers conceded seven 3-pointers and 35 points — three more than they allowed all game in the previous matchup between the two teams this season.

"Our coaches really made sure that our focus was on this one. We got it done, and now we can focus on Burley," said Pearce, who hit four 3-pointers. "We were a little slow on the defensive end, letting them get too many open shots but we adjusted in the second half and started contesting their shots."

Bryan Tidwell led Wood River with 16 points, while Michale Brunker scored all of his 15 on 3-point shots.

Wood River coach John Radford was pleased with some of the things his team was able to accomplish despite the defeat.

"Jerome is a great team, and they're very good offensively," Radford said. "The positive thing for us was that when we attacked their pressure defense, we were able to get some open shots and they went in for us."

With the win, the Tigers can now focus their full attention on the two-time defending state champions, who come to town on Friday. Jerome can clinch at least a share of the regular-season title with a win, and beating Burley for the second time this season would go a long way to ensuring that the Tigers stay home for the district tournament.

"That's been a goal for us all season," Pearce said of trying to secure the No. 1 seed for the conference tournament. "It's going to be a big game ... we don't want to lose on this floor, because we play really well here."

Blowout debate hits closer to home

Scores of 63-4, 93-12 and 64-11: Those are some of the margins by which Richfield, the top-ranked girls basketball team in Class 1A Division II, has defeated opponents this season. On the surface it smacks of similarity to the recent controversy in Texas surrounding the Covenant School's 100-0 victory over Dallas Academy earlier this month.

DAVID BASHORE

Covenant used a press defense into the third quarter, shot 3-pointers through the fourth and led 59-0 at halftime. Kyle Queal, head of the school, requested that the game be reconsidered as a forfeit, citing that "a victory without honor is a great loss." Head coach Micah Grimes disagreed, saying that his team played with honor and integrity.

He was fired Sunday. Depending on who you talk to, there are two distinct impressions of how Richfield goes about beating its opponents.

Last Friday against Magic Valley Christian, a team in its first year of varsity play, Richfield coach Steve Kent told the Times-News he called off the press about midway through the first quarter of a 63-4 victory. The starters, except for Michelle Kent and Lea Piper, were on the bench for the night by halftime.

CSI softball: 'We're so ready'

Golden Eagles open third season of play on Friday

By Bradley Guire
Times-News writer

The College of Southern Idaho softball program got a taste for the national tournament last year in only its second year of existence. It's only served to whet the appetites for head coach Nick Baumert and the returning Golden Eagles to defend the Region 18 championship and strive once again for the top prize in the NJCAA's Division I.

"You're expectations are always to win the national championship," Baumert said. "You kind of get nervous saying that, but we were there last year and saw it. Now that next step is getting to that championship game and making a push for that national title."

Baumert returns five players from last year's national seventh-place team in Megan Zimmerman, Cassi Merrill, Dani Grant, McKensy Hillstead and Kyla Bryant. New faces include Brigham Young transfer Erin Olanderand (sophomore) and Debbie Dodds, a high school All-American and two-time first-team

Twin Falls boys smoked by I.F. on the road

Times-News

The Twin Falls boys hit the road to Idaho Falls Wednesday looking to get ahead in the regional standings. Instead, they're in the middle of the pack following a 58-46 loss to the Tigers. They fall to 3-3 in Region Four-Five-Six with the loss.

"They were the more aggressive team," Bruin assistant coach Shaun Walker said of Idaho Falls. "It almost felt like we didn't get off the bus."

Jon Pulsifer, who usually scores in the low 20s, was held to just a dozen points. No other Bruin touched double digits. Twin Falls was outbounded by the Tigers and beat to every loose ball, according to Walker.

Twin Falls (10-5, 3-3) will travel to Pocatello Friday to play Century.

Study: NFL TV ads full of violence, sex, alcohol

SAN FRANCISCO — Half of the commercial breaks during NFL telecasts show at least one advertisement featuring sex, drugs or alcohol, according to a study by a nationwide nonprofit group.

Common Sense Media, which provides ratings and reviews of TV shows, movies and video games to parents, released the results Thursday. CSM said its staff watched 50 NFL games this season and logged more than 5,000 commercials.

Among its findings: — 40 percent of games showed ads for erectile dysfunction drugs.

— 46.5 percent of the sexual or violent advertisements were promotions by the broadcast networks for their own programs.

— Almost 500 of the ads showed an increased form of violence, including murders, explosions and gun-fights.

"Without a doubt, this issue is brought up by our members more than any other," said James Steyer, founder and CEO of San Francisco-based CSM. "When I go speak to groups, invariably someone will ask me why no one is doing anything about this."

"We don't object that they can advertise their products. It's OK on the Howard Stern show at 2 a.m.," he said.

Celtics 'House' Kings in Boston

BOSTON — Eddie House scored 28 points on a career-high eight 3-pointers, and Rajon Rondo had 24 points and nine assists Wednesday night to lead the Boston Celtics to their ninth win in row, 119-100 over the Sacramento Kings.

It was the seventh straight loss for Sacramento, which opened a 10-point lead in the first quarter before Boston scored the next six points.

MAVERICKS 117, WARRIORS 93

DALLAS — Dirk Nowitzki and Josh Howard keyed a game-changing run during the second quarter, and Jason Terry scored 22 points to lead Dallas past Golden State.

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Jose Calderon had 17 points and 11 assists to help Toronto win three straight for the first time since the start of the season.

Serena Williams moves into fourth Australian Open final

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — Serena Williams moved within a win of a 10th Grand Slam title and fourth in Australia with a dominating 6-3, 6-4 victory over Elena Dementieva on Thursday.

With the roof closed at Rod Laver Arena to protect the players and fans from outside temperatures topping 111 degrees, Williams played her best match of the tournament.

"I haven't moved like that for a while, so I was a little shocked," she said.

The second-seeded Williams has a sequence of winning the Australian Open every alternate year since 2003.

She was only a game from a quarterfinal exit on Wednesday when Svetlana Kuznetsova was serving for the match but found her rhythm quickly against Dementieva, who had won their previous three matches.

The 27-year-old American got the only break in the eighth game of the first set and, after falling behind 3-0 in the second, ran off four straight games to get back in front.

After exchanging service breaks again, Williams held to clinch the match in 54 minutes.

After beating Russians in two successive matches, she'll face another one in the final. No. 3 Dinara Safina played No. 7 Vera Zvonareva in the second semifinal.

While it was cooler inside than out at Melbourne Park, Williams already had soaked through her blue dress with sweat by the time the second game was over, not surprising since they had played 16 minutes.

When Williams blasted a clean crosscourt winner while serving at 3-3, she gave Dementieva a long glare. Dementieva smacked a service return winner on the next point and glared right back.

Williams got the only break of the set in the next game when Dementieva hit consecutive backhands wide, then held with the help of an ace.

Dementieva held to start the second set in a game that went to deuce five times and lasted 14 minutes, then broke Williams en route to a 3-0 lead.

That sparked a four-game run for Williams until Dementieva broke to even the second set at 4-4.

Then nerves seemed to get the best of Dementieva. Having problems with her service toss, she double-faulted twice, the second setting up break point. Williams ripped a backhand winner down the line and pumped her fist as she looked toward her mother Oracene and sister Venus.

Roger Federer, seeking a record-equaling 14th Grand Slam singles title to match Pete Sampras' career record, was playing American Andy Roddick in the night semifinal.

No. 2 Federer, who is 15-2 against the seventh-seeded Roddick, who beat defending champion Novak Djokovic in the quarterfinals.

Top-ranked Rafael Nadal set up an all-Spanish semifinal against Fernando Verdasco when he beat No. 6 Gilles Simon 6-2, 7-5, 7-5 on Wednesday night, when the temperature had dipped to 93 degrees from the high of 109 degrees.

Verdasco ousted 2008 runner-up Jo-Wilfried Tsonga 7-6 (2), 3-6, 6-3, 6-2.

Bowden, Florida St. agree on 1-year contract

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Bobby Bowden signed a one-year contract Wednesday to coach a 34th season at Florida State, prolonging his duel with Penn State's Joe Paterno to see who will retire as college football's all-time leader in wins.

The school's announcement said Bowden will be paid just under $2.5 million, the same as last year.

"I am glad to get it signed up for another year like I said I would do after each year," Bowden said in a statement. "I appreciate the university's support. We are busy recruiting and looking forward to next season."

Bowden has said many times in recent weeks that he planned to return.

FSU offensive coordinator Jimbo Fisher must replace Bowden by January 2011 or the school will owe him $5 million.

One of the best matches of the night was Minico's Garth Crane and Burley's Michael Durfee at 112. Durfee dominated for five minutes, 45 seconds and had the match all but won, leading 5-1 with the clock ticking below 15 seconds in the third round. But Crane used a Granby roll to escape and score five quick points as time expired for the 6-5 decision.

"I wasn't being very aggressive on my feet and wasn't thinking very well early in the match," Crane said. "It was a last-second shot, I knew the time was running out."

Burley's two victories came courtesy Brandon Chesley's decision at 103 pounds and Christian Parke's major decision at 125.

"He wrestled tough tonight," Parke said of his opponent, Minico's Jesse Burgara. "I wrestled him earlier this season and pinned him, but he was tougher tonight."

Parke's record this season is now 19-4, a marked improvement from his 20-19 overall mark last year. The sophomore credits his recent success to being smarter and more relaxed on the mat.

Both Minico and Burley will be wrestling at the Red Halverson invite Friday and Saturday at Minico High School.

"There's kind of a freshness to it," Baumert said of the 2009 group. "I think the kids feed off of that. It's kind of exciting that way."

Generra Nielson, a Class 2A state champion in Utah, is one of those freshmen who is ready to live up to the short but established legacy of CSI softball.

"I just don't want to disappoint them," she said. "They worked really hard last year, and they want to get further than they did in nationals. I want to help them get there. I just want to do it. I just want to get there. We're ready. We're so ready."

The Golden Eagles get their first shot Friday at the 2009 Great Western Shootout in Yuma, Ariz., as they face teams like Arizona Western, Pima College, Mesa College and Eastern Arizona. History hasn't been kind to the Eagles when playing on the road. Last year, CSI compiled a 12-15 away record, with a slow 4-5 start during this same tournament.

"We'll go down and be competitive," Baumert said. "It's always a challenge for us that first weekend."

Batting

If they can swing the bat, Baumert will find them a spot to play. This weekend, Jaelle Judkins, a lefty slapper, looks to be the leadoff hitter, while Zimmerman and Merrill, who recorded .415 and .397 batting averages respectively in 2008, will follow in the 2-3 spots. Brittany Gonzales will bat cleanup.

Rounding out the middle and bottom of the order are Hillstead, Ashley Chappel, Olander, Grant and Pocatello product Kayla Powell.

"We won't have the power numbers like we had the first two years," Baumert said. "It'll be more line drive hitters."

Fielding

Zimmerman will step up as a team leader, taking over at catcher for the departed Anna Sorrell. Chelsea Nix could also see some time behind the plate. Merrill will start in left field, Grant will play in center and Olander in right completes the outfield. Replacing Rachel Evans at shortstop will be no easy task, but Chappel will get her chance. Baumert called her a "slick-fielding infielder." Gonzales will handle first, while second and third will be up for grabs between Michon Vanderpoel, Madison Allen and Powell.

Pitching

Hillstead and Bryant are the only returning pitchers. Hillstead won seven of eight games started in early 2008, acquiring a 3.32 ERA across 50.2 innings pitched. She is slated to start against Arizona Western Friday during the first game of the Shootout, with Bryant throwing the second and Nielson the third. Brie Dimond and Thain will be available for relief work, though the lefty Dimond could find herself in the four-man rotation. When not taking the circle, they'll move around the infield.

Tough Christmas marked turning point for Cardinals

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Even the weather in Arizona was gloomy in the aftermath of the Cardinals' 40-point loss to New England.

One game remained before the playoffs began, and coach Ken Whisenhunt was mad.

"That was the first time I ... saw him really upset," nose tackle Bryan Robinson said.

The grueling Christmas week of practice that followed somehow transformed these NFL chumps into NFC champs who face Pittsburgh Sunday in the Super Bowl.

"I think it's easy to look back on it now and say that it was the turning point," Whisenhunt said on Wednesday. "Obviously, I was very upset with the way we were playing. I also was concerned about a playoff game being two weeks away and the style of football that we were playing."

Concerned is way too mild a word. He was as embarrassed as he was angry, and he apologized to the community.

"We've worked hard to create something here, to gain the trust of a lot of our fans," he said at the time, "and we feel like we've let them down."

Whisenhunt then issued a public warning to his players. "We've got a few guys that need to pick up their game," he said then. "If they don't, they'll be some other guys playing."

Whisenhunt put the team in full pads for heavy workouts in a chilly rain on Christmas Eve day. Christmas morning was the same, and the weather was even more miserable for a team accustomed to sunny workouts with temperatures in the 70s.

Usually low-keyed, Whisenhunt let his team have it. He hollered, he criticized.

"He said, 'You know what? Bring the big-boy pads,'" Robinson said on

Arizona vs. Pittsburgh

4 p.m., Sunday, NBC

Wednesday. "That's the only way I know to basically show I'm not lettin' up, that I'm keeping my foot on the gas pedal and we'll see what happens."

Whisenhunt told the players that anyone who didn't give it his all would not play in the playoffs.

"It made us wake up and realize the playoffs were coming and if we were going to keep playing like we did, we would have a short playoff run," defensive end Bertrand Berry said.

The Cardinals had surrendered without a fight in New England; they trailed 28-0 at the half and 44-0 after three quarters.

The Patriots rolled for 514 yards, 183 on the ground and 331 through the air. Kurt Warner completed 6 of 18 passes for 30 yards. The players seemed more interested in huddling around the sideline space heaters than in playing football.

Then there was the trip home. Bad weather kept the team charter on a Providence, R.I., runway for 2½ hours. Once airborne, the plane ran into severe headwinds, forcing a refueling stop in Minneapolis.

All through the 14-hour journey, Whisenhunt simmered.

His team, which had started the season 7-3 and ran away with the weak NFC West, had lost four of five. A defeat in the season finale against Seattle would send the Cardinals into the playoffs at 8-8.

"I think he was real disappointed in the fact he felt like he'd taken care of us all year, taken care of our bodies, being healthy, cutting down reps in practice," Robinson said, "and then we go out there and lay an egg."

Make that eggs.

The first fell in a 48-20 blowout at Philadelphia in front of a national television audience. Thanksgiving night. Brian Westbrook ran over, through and around the awful defense.

The following week the lowly St. Louis Rams came to town, and Arizona clinched the NFC West with a 34-10 victory. It was a bit of fool's gold for Cardinals' fans. When the competition got tough again, Arizona folded like a cheap tent.

In its worst home performance in Whisenhunt's two seasons in Arizona, the Cardinals lost to Minnesota 35-14, allowing Adrian Peterson to rush for 165 yards and Tarvaris Jackson to throw for four scores.

"Those games shocked us a little bit," Warner said.

"We were playing good teams," he said, "and it was like, all of a sudden, a cloud moved over us and said, 'Hey, this is what it is going to be about. These are what the teams are like in the playoffs. You better show up.'"

Whisenhunt said he put the players in full pads to get their attention.

"I think our players essentially bought into that," Whisenhunt said. "There was a sense of urgency that we recaptured that week."

Arizona is 4-0 since then.

The Cardinals beat the Seahawks 34-21 in Seattle's final game under coach Mike Holmgren. They opened the playoffs by beating Atlanta 30-24, then stunned the Panthers in Carolina 33-13 before beating Philadelphia 32-25 to win the NFC championship.

Few sports turnarounds have been more dramatic.

Kent and Piper are both seniors who are running out of time to play high school basketball, so he allowed them to play into the third quarter. Juggling both a desire to let his seniors enjoy as much court time as possible along with a healthy respect for opponents leaves Steve Kent walking the fine line.

Magic Valley Christian coach Darlene Kuiper, whose team lost its other conference game against Richfield by the score of 64-11, declined to comment about the manner in which Richfield took on her team. Even so, there are murmurs of resentment toward the margin of some of Richfield's wins. Whether it stems from a genuine perception of Richfield running up the score or from nothing more than an envy of talent, coaching or any other shortcoming is unclear, but it's usually in the eye of the beholder.

In a way Richfield is a victim of its own success. Forced to yield 12 of a maximum 20 games this season to a conference in which only Dietrich and Carey even remotely pose a threat, Richfield's starters sit out or half or more of most games, according to Kent. The Tigers don't stop scoring or playing good basic defense, but the second-string gets valuable game experience in mop-up duty.

Considering that such frequent bench-clearings actually could hurt Richfield when it comes time to play three games in as many days at the state tournament, with the possibility of having to play the starters for all four quarters in all three games, the situation becomes even more murky. But that doesn't mean steps can't be taken to achieve a more ideal solution for all involved.

In the premier division of Scotland's professional soccer league, the 12 teams are divided at the middle of the standings after 33 of the season's 38 games. To complete the season, the top six teams play each other again while the bottom six do the same, but they don't cross over again.

While it's not feasible to execute a conference split in the middle of any season, adopting a similar format in preseason scheduling could prove beneficial to all Northside conference members. Assuming a full field of eight teams and using this season's standings as an example, the top four teams (Richfield, Carey, Dietrich and Camas County) could play each other twice while playing the bottom four teams (Community School, Magic Valley Christian, Bliss and Murtaugh) once, and vice versa.

Not only would such a move open up four more dates for the top teams to schedule games against opponents that will prepare them for the state tournament, it would create more opportunities for the conference strugglers to build program-sustaining confidence against teams at their level. Moreover, it could diminish the prism of resentment — valid or not — through which some view the juggernaut schools at that level.

Now that's doing right by everyone involved, regardless of the score.

Thongs praised and panned by men responding to poll

DEAR READERS: As promised, today you'll see what some male readers had to say about thongs, as well as the results of my reader poll. Fifty-five percent voted thongs up, 28 percent voted thongs down, and 17 percent gave mixed reviews. And 9 percent of the readers were male ...

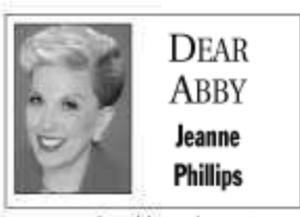

DEAR ABBY: Thongs up, girl! I switched to thongs when I turned 14 and have never looked back. A man can't wear tight white jeans with anything else.

— Love ...DINO
IN SAN FRANCISCO
DEAR ABBY: I'm a guy who wears string thongs under my work uniform and for casual day or evening underwear. I also wear thong swimwear by my pool in the summer, which I suppose makes me

— STRUNG UP
THE MIDDLE IN VEGAS
DEAR ABBY: I have never understood why girls would wear something that appears to violate all laws of comfort.

The only way for me to solve this mystery was to try a thong. I purchased two and wore them exclusively for a couple of days. After the initial "getting used to," they were comfortable. In fact, I like them so much I bought a few more this evening. I am also thinking about buying other ladies' underwear.

While this might be perceived as less than masculine, what I saw in the lingerie section looked a lot more comfortable and sexy to me than my old boxers or briefs. Abby, why won't they let us guys wear sexy underwear?

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

— CONFUSED
IN VIRGINIA
DEAR ABBY: I'm voting thongs down. I'm 62 and grew up in the '50s and '60s with three good-looking sisters who always wore pretty ladies' nylon briefs — all different colors, lace trim, prints, solids, flowers, silk panties. Wow! That was the style back then. All the girls wore them — Marilyn Monroe, Bette Page, etc.

In the '70s and '80s girls adopted those ugly bikini panties, and now they're wearing thongs? Abby, please urge them to adopt those pretty panties of the '50s and '60s again.

— JACK
IN BROCKTON, MASS.
DEAR ABBY: Wearing thong underwear has nothing to do with comfort. It's about concealing the dreaded pantyline on today's tight fashions. Pulling the waist so high as to expose it is unsightly on most of the bodies I have seen. And yeah, it's like driving past the scene of an accident — you know you shouldn't, but you just have to look!

— ROBERT IN MOUNTAIN LAKES, N.J.
DEAR ABBY: Thongs up or down? Up, they're uncomfortable — I twist my neck and strain my eyes — but I have to say I really love them down.

— TODD
IN MILWAUKEE
DEAR ABBY: I have three responses to "San Diego Sinner." One: Wearing a thong does not make one a sinner. Two: If you're wearing one only to avoid being laughed at, you're wearing it for the wrong reason. Three: There are attractive and sexy alternatives to thongs such as bikini underwear and boy shorts.

— MATT
IN SAN FRANCISCO
DEAR ABBY: Thong underwear is as silly a fad as I can remember. Not all males find thong underwear appealing. Artful but suggestive concealment is what makes females appealing to men, not explicitness.

— M.J.H.
COLUMBUS, OHIO
DEAR ABBY: With regard to your poll, the whole world now knows Abby doesn't wear a thong. Pity.

— CLIFF
IN HALLANDALE, FLA.
DEAR CLIFF: OK, so I'm "a little behind" the times.
PS. I love your imagination.

IF JANUARY 29 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: You have great ambitions growing within during the year ahead and you can achieve them through perseverance and hard work. However, pay close attention for the next six weeks when you have better luck than usual and may be offered an opportunity to further your ambitions right away. Anything that is offered now could prove extremely beneficial and anyone you meet could be particularly helpful. In July and August you are at your best when dealing with business, career and financial matters. October is a great month for a romantic holiday or vacation.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Teach someone the ropes. You are so good at what you do that you are the perfect person to act as a model of efficiency. Setting a good example is one of your skills and will win you respect and notice.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Saying and doing are two different things. For the next few days you might be wise to ignore an impulse to blur out your thoughts, as you might not have the whole picture. Test out a new attitude.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Do a favor for a friend. You might not be repaid exactly the way you imagine, but something good may eventually materialize from your carefree generosity. Get jobs done with Energizer Bunny speediness.

HOROSCOPE
Jeraldine Saunders

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Organization is a way to escape fleeting gloomy thoughts that could tempt you to make changes not in your best interest. Straighten out drawers, put tax receipts in order or alphabetize the spice rack.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Set reasonable and achievable goals without promising too much to others. If no one expects too much from you, it is easy to be seen as successful, even if the results are not as good as you had hoped.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Go out of your way to find ways to enjoy your job. It is often much easier to find fault with something or someone than to find good things to say. Train yourself to be both proactive and productive.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You may be painting yourself into a corner. You might let someone think you are better or more talented than you really are. Take a new relationship slowly until you know exactly where you stand.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): The more things change, the more they stay the same. Some decisions may remain up in the air, or unresolved, as certain people jockey for a new position. It is best to bide your time and avoid controversy.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): In the "Dragnet" TV series, Sgt. Joe Friday only wanted "just the facts, ma'am." They say that no news is good news, but you may be able to use facts, gossip or hearsay to your advantage.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Make a list of the things that you plan to get done today. Then check each item off as the day goes by. You will find that you can easily become more productive if you become more organized.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Your charm can make a big impression on someone you need on your side. The stars, however, aren't aligned favorably for making a deal, signing a contract or investing your hard earned cash.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): See more clearly. Don't call the world dirty because you forgot to clean your glasses. Not everyone is as high-minded as you are, but sometimes you forget that it is a long fall down from a pedestal.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Thursday, Jan. 29, the 29th day of 2009. There are 336 days left in the year.
Today's Highlight in History:
On Jan. 29, 1820, Britain's King George III died at Windsor Castle, ending a reign that had seen both the American and French revolutions.

On this date:
In 1843, the 25th president of the United States, William McKinley, was born in Niles, Ohio.
In 1845, Edgar Allan Poe's poem "The Raven" was first published, in the New York Evening Mirror.
In 1861, Kansas became the 34th state of the Union.
In 1919, the ratification of the 18th Amendment to the Constitution, which launched Prohibition, was certified by Acting Secretary of State Frank L. Polk.
In 1929, The Seeing Eye, a New Jersey-based school which trains guide dogs to assist the blind, was incorporated by Dorothy Harrison Eustis and Morris Frank.
In 1936, the first members of baseball's Hall of Fame, including Ty Cobb and Babe Ruth, were investigation of former White House deputy chief of staff Harold Ickes.

Five years ago: A suicide bomber struck a bus in Jerusalem, killing 10 Israelis. British author M.M. Kaye died in Lavenham, England, at age 95.
One year ago: John McCain won a breakthrough triumph in the Florida primary, easing past Mitt Romney for his first-ever triumph in a primary open only to Republicans. Democrat Hillary Rodham Clinton claimed victory in a campaign-free Florida presidential primary in which all the candidates had signed pledges not to compete. (The national Democratic Party had stripped the state of its delegates as punishment for moving its primary ahead of Feb. 5.) Margaret Truman, the only child of President Harry S. Truman, died in Chicago at age 83. Raymond Jacobs, believed to be the last surviving member of the group of Marines photographed during the first U.S. flag-raising on Iwo Jima, died in Redding, Calif., at age 82.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE® Bobby Wolff

"The greatest of faults, I should say, is to be conscious of none."
— Thomas Carlyle

In today's deal from the Dyspeptics Club, South felt aggrieved at the hot defense found by East-West, while not realizing that his own play might have contributed to the debacle. Of course, his partner, North, was not going to let him off the hook so easily.

In four hearts South covered the lead of the club nine with dummy's queen, and on winning with the ace, East switched smartly to his singleton trump. South played the jack, captured by West with the queen, who continued with the ace and another heart, denuding dummy of trumps. Now declarer could no longer ruff a spade for his 10th trick.

As North commented, South's chance to shine had come when dummy first came down. All he needed to do was allow West's club nine to hold. No damage could then be done from that side of the table. Declarer can cash the ace and king of spades and ruff a spade in dummy. The safest continuation is the club king, as East surely must have the ace. If the king is covered, ruff, then return to dummy with a top diamond to discard the last spade on the established club queen. All that would be lost are two trump tricks.

Should East overtake the club nine with the jack at the first trick to return a heart, the two losing spades in hand can later be discarded on the queen and 10 of clubs, after East's ace is ruffed away.
