Keipper gets prison for involuntary manslaughter

Judge hands 2-6 years for killing

By Andrea Jackson
Times-News writer

JEROME — A man convicted of involuntary manslaughter for shooting his domestic partner to death last year was sent to prison for two to six years, despite his lawyer's push for probation and a silent prosecutor at Wednesday's sentencing hearing in Jerome.

Cliff Keipper, 31, gunned down the man he called his husband, Jeremy Thomas, 33, at their Jerome County home on Jan. 1, 2008.

Originally facing life in prison for second-degree murder, allegations against Keipper were reduced to involuntary manslaughter after a recent private mediation hearing.

Keipper entered an Alford plea to that charge, meaning he didn't admit to the crime, but acknowledges there was enough evidence to convict him.

During that mediation hearing, Jerome County Prosecutor Mike Seib agreed not to make arguments from his side of the bench at sentencing.

So, the defense monopolized Wednesday's hearing, calling Keipper's friends to the stand, all of whom testified Keipper would do well on probation.

A chiropractor, a Jerome County detective, an Air Force sergeant, a bail bondsman, and a female friend — who even put up her house to bond Keipper out of jail — all said he is a good man. Some even referred to him as a "jolly green giant."

Seib, who's no longer chief prosecutor but still works in the office, didn't cross-examine any of them, offer witnesses for the state, or say anything except ask for restitution, before 5th District Court Judge John Butler handed down the sentence.

Lawmaker wants moratorium on charter schools

By Jared S. Hopkins
Times-News writer

BOISE — A Democratic legislator from Pocatello wants to place a three-year moratorium on authorization of new charter schools, citing concern that the schools are pulling away millions from local districts during an economic downturn.

In what is likely the first of many debates over education funding this session, the Senate Education Committee voted 5-4 Wednesday to print the bill with supporters saying the tough economy means the legislation should at least be printed for discussion.

Bill sponsor Sen. Dick Sagness, D-Pocatello, said he reviewed 16 physical charter schools and found in their initial stages of operation, about $1.3 million was shifted from local school districts. In total, that's roughly $7 million to $10 million.

"That's a chunk of change," Sagness said. "My contention is that the traditional districts need that

With levies passed, Gooding School District to plan ahead

By Ben Botkin
Times-News writer

Although Gooding School District has counted the ballots, the wait continues for the Legislature to make final decisions about the state's public education funding.

This much is known: With the supplemental levy and plant facilities levy renewal both approved by voters on Tuesday, the district will have a funding source that doesn't rely on the actions of lawmakers in Boise.

The district's 10-year plant facilities levy renewal passed with 66.2 percent voter approval. Out of 1,060 voters, 702 voted in favor of the levy and 358 were against it.

With the two-year supplemental levy, 62.9 percent of voters approved it, with 669 voting in favor of the levy and 393 opposed.

"We're excited," said Superintendent Heather Williams, adding that the district appreciates the voters' support. "We view it as a vote of confidence from our community."

Idaho justices lift man's violent sex predator label

By Rebecca Boone
Associated Press writer

BOISE — The Idaho Supreme Court says the state's method of classifying violent sexual predators is unconstitutional and has ordered that the label be removed from a man who admitted to four rapes.

Tuesday's ruling from a divided court came in the case of Jason C. Smith, who was sent to prison for the 1998 rape of a 15-year-old girl in Twin Falls County.

Before his release in 2005, Smith was referred to the Sexual Offender Classification Board to determine if he should be classified as a violent sexual predator, according to the ruling. The board — after reviewing a psychosexual evaluation and other tests — decided he was likely to commit more crimes in the future and should be considered a violent sexual predator.

Smith asked for a judicial review of the classification, and after an evidentiary hearing, 5th District Judge John Hohnhorst upheld the label.

But the Supreme Court disagreed, saying that Idaho's laws dictating how violent sexual predators are classified are "constitutionally infirm" because they don't give offenders an adequate chance to fight the board's decision.

Congress, Obama clear way for huge economic stimulus

By David Espo
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — Moving with lightning speed, the Democratic-controlled Congress and White House agreed Wednesday on a compromise $790 billion economic stimulus bill designed to create millions of jobs in a nation reeling from recession. President Barack Obama could sign the measure within days.

"More than one-third of this bill is dedicated to providing tax relief for middle-class families, cutting taxes for 95 percent of American workers," said Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid at a Capitol news conference where he was joined by moderates from both parties whose support is essential for the legislation's final passage.

House Speaker Nancy Pelosi, D-Calif., Reid's partner in negotiations over more than 24 hours, initially withheld her approval for more than two hours in a dispute over federal funding for school construction. She said the delay had been worth it: "We had to make sure the investment in education" was in the bill.

Obama, who campaigned energetically for the measure, welcomed the agreement in a written statement that said it would "save or create more than 3.5 million jobs and get our economy back on track."

The emerging legislation is at the core of Obama's economic recovery program, and includes help for victims of the recession in the form of expanded unemployment benefits, food stamps, health coverage and more, as well as billions for states that face the prospect of making deep cuts in school aid and other programs.

Another provision will mean a one-time payment of $250 for millions of beneficiaries who receive Social Security, Supplemental Security Income and veterans pensions and disability, according to officials.

Highlights of stimulus plan

By Jim Abrams
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — Now that there's a tentative agreement on the economic stimulus plan that President Barack Obama and other supporters hope will provide a considerable jolt to the economy, how long will it take to get infrastructure and other projects moving? And do economists think the plan is big enough to create millions of jobs?

Here are some questions and answers about the latest version of the stimulus initiative.

than $1 million in state funding through a combination of state budget cuts to education and declining enrollment.

The levies will provide another source of funding to help offset that impact, Williams said, adding that the district still doesn't know what the Legislature's final budget decisions for education will be.

"This supplemental levy and the plant facilities levy will allow us to not be as reliant on the state revenue, but we really don't know what this means for us until we see the final state budget for education," Williams said.

"But it does give us some hope that our cuts won't have to be as drastic."

The school district will spend the next couple months collecting bids on building repair projects like foundation repairs at the high school, repairs to a school's roof drainage system, and floor and ceiling improvements.

Williams said that the district has taken steps to communicate and be transparent, including posting its bills and expenditures on its Web site.

deviant sexual behavior is such that the Board's designation as a VSP may well be warranted," Justice Joel Horton wrote for the majority, which also included Justices Roger Burdick and Jim Jones. "The important question presented by this appeal, however, is not whether he deserves that label. Rather, the question that is the focal point of this Court's inquiry is whether the State of Idaho has labeled Smith as a VSP in a fashion that comports with his constitutional right to due process."

Twin Falls County Prosecutor Grant Loeb

agreed that the violent sexual predator statute is difficult to work with.

The ruling doesn't change Smith's conviction, but he is deserving of the title, Loeb said. "It's too bad because if there's ever such a thing as a violent sexual predator, Jason Smith is one."

Smith's criminal history extends over several years. In 1990, Smith, 14, pleaded guilty to lewd conduct with a minor for raping a 5-year-old boy that he was baby-sitting and was ordered to complete a sex offender treatment program. In 1993, a second male victim came forward and

Smith pleaded guilty to one count of rape. In that case, Smith was sentenced as an adult to 30 days in county jail and then committed to the custody of the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare until age 21.

In 1998, the then-21-year-old Smith pleaded guilty to raping a 15-year-old girl. He was on probation for burglary and sentenced to eight years in prison and ordered to serve at least three years before he could be eligible for parole.

In 2005, Smith admitted to raping a third young boy before 1990, though that case has never been charged, according to the ruling.

Receiving a violent sexual predator designation is a scarlet letter, Horton said. Violent sexual predators must update their address and photograph with the state every 90 days, instead of the annual update required of other sex offenders. Additionally, they are required to remain on the registry as violent sexual predators for life. Other sex offenders can petition to be released from the registration requirements after 10 years.

T.F. felon gets 2-5 years prison for having gun

A convicted felon who led Twin Falls Police on a very public foot chase through town in October was sentenced on Monday to two to five years in prison for possessing a firearm.

Charges unfolded after Chaz Golding, 21, of Twin Falls, was stopped by police and they determined there was a warrant out for his arrest.

Golding, however, allegedly tried to run and police unsuccessfully tried to shoot him with a Taser.

Golding allegedly fled from the 400 block of Madrona Street North to an intersection at Dorian Drive and Teton Street, according to court records.

After his arrest, he tested positive for meth at the Twin Falls County Jail.

Golding told authorities he took the gun in question from his uncle and planned to sell it for drugs, according to court records.

The maximum punishment in Idaho for felon in possession of a firearm is five years.

Groundwater users, fish farm negotiate plan for missing water

By Nate Poppino
Times-News writer

The debate over mitigation water for a Buhl-area fish farm has moved from the courtroom to the meeting room.

Representatives of Clear Springs Foods and the groundwater pumpers who owe the company water met Tuesday for the first day of private negotiations over supplying that water. The negotiations were requested by the pumpers and ordered by Idaho Department of Water Resources Director Dave Tuthill, who delayed a hearing last week for one month to give both sides time to strike a deal.

Tuthill ruled last year that pumpers on the north side of the Snake River owe 2 to 3 cubic feet per second of water to Clear Springs, whose trout farm has senior water rights. Both sides have since scuffled over how the water should be provided, with the pumpers' most recent plan offering to pay the company directly for its financial losses.

Clear Springs had argued against the negotiations at first. Both sides chose as mediator former Idaho Chief Justice Gerald Schroeder, who has served as hearing officer for appeals of recent water-call decisions — including the Thousand Springs case.

The negotiations are private, and those involved in them couldn't say much on Wednesday.

Lynn Tominaga, executive director of the Idaho Ground

Water Appropriators, said negotiations have started but haven't gotten far yet. And Randy MacMillan, Clear Springs' vice president of research and environmental affairs, said he couldn't say what's next after Tuesday's first day of discussion. He said his company is moving forward assuming the March 10 hearing will still happen — a possibility if the current talks fall through.

Asked to expand on why he ordered the negotiations when one side made it clear it didn't like the idea, Tuthill put out a statement saying the process provides more possible solutions than what the law allows him to order in a hearing. He only has two options: order the pumpers to provide the missing water, or shut off the water to about 50,000 acres of south-central Idaho.

Though the pumpers argued that their latest plan for providing water didn't need to go through the usual public notice procedures, Tuthill disagreed and ordered notices to be sent out.

All parties involved — including the state — are also gearing up for a judicial review of Tuthill's decision in 5th District Court. The pumpers, Clear Springs and another fish farm, Blue Lakes Trout, have all questioned aspects of how Tuthill reached his conclusions in the water call. The case will be heard by Judge John Melanson at 1:30 p.m. April 28 at the Gooding County Courthouse.

Buhl moves to help residents with utility fees

By Blair Koch
Times-News correspondent

Fifteen dollars doesn't sound like enough money to make or break a budget but Buhl City Council President Regie Finney said it can add up for people already struggling to pay the city's nearly $150 monthly utility bill.

During Monday's City Council meeting Finney suggested that Buhl start waiving the $15 late fee assessed to residents' bills to help keep people on track.

"That late fee is going to hurt people that much more," Finney said.

Finney said the city has received several complaints that the combined water, sewer and garbage bill is making it difficult for those on fixed incomes, especially the town's senior citizen population, to make ends meet.

Council members thought the idea was valid and said criteria and procedure should be drafted.

"We need a policy statement ... along those lines," said Councilman Dick VanZante.

Late fee waivers won't be a blanket policy. Habitual late payers, for instance, may not qualify.

"We're not going to abolish the late fee policy but I think we could forgive it under certain circumstances," Finney said.

In addition to possible fee forgiveness the city will also look at how to set up a fund for residents in need of payment assistance. Mayor Charles Sheridan reported that an anonymous donor recently gave the city $250 to assist residents with their bills.

"We need to develop a way for distributing the funds for subsidizing water bills," Sheridan said.

In the meantime, donations to the assistance fund can be made anytime at City Hall, 203 Broadway Ave. N., 543-5650.

The council will discuss the proposed fee waiver and fund criteria at its Feb. 23 meeting.

Transportation planners seek public input at Feb. 19 meeting

Times-News

Public transportation planners with the Idaho Transportation Department will seek ideas from citizens in Blaine, Camas, Cassia, Gooding, Jerome, Lincoln, Minidoka and Twin Falls counties at a coordination meeting Feb. 19 in Twin Falls.

The effort is part of a statewide initiative for mobility management that emphasizes moving people instead of modes of transportation.

The meeting will be at the Idaho Health and Welfare Conference Room, 601 Pole Line Road, from 9 a.m. to noon, with an open house from 5 to 7 p.m.

Citizens, advocacy groups, transportation providers, human service agencies, and local leaders are encouraged to take part in the discussion of mobility services for their region. Topics will include improved coordination of existing transportation providers, addition of critical transportation services to areas of highest need and implementing demand-response (dial-a-ride) transportation services to rural areas.

The regional meetings will be repeated within 60 days to include bicycle and pedestrian modes. To learn more of the statewide initiative called Idaho's Mobility and Access Pathway: 800-527-7985.

Twin Falls abuse treatment provider calls it quits

By Nate Poppino
Times-News writer

Six years after Sitman Inc. opened its doors in Twin Falls, the substance-abuse treatment clinic will close them, shuttering its Gooding Street location on Feb. 27.

Such health-care providers face a number of pressures — most notably poor reimbursement rates for treating state Medicaid users. But the “final straw,” as Executive and Clinical Director Sherri Molina put it, was the news that Twin Falls County is opening up a clinic to provide services for inmates in its jail and drug court.

“After so long ... it's just not something we chose to keep battling,” said Molina, who announced Sitman would close just days after she and other treatment providers told county commissioners they worried the new clinic would compete with them.

In a Feb. 2 letter to state health officials, Molina wrote that her company made a number of “cuts and concessions” over the past year to keep its services intact but can't squeeze itself further — though the letter didn't specify the county as an issue.

One copy of the letter went to Bethany Gadzinski, the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare's state bureau chief for substance-abuse disorders. She said Wednesday that Sitman closing means the loss of south-central Idaho's only treatment provider that specializes in helping women who are either pregnant or have children — and who often have suffered abuse and other problems.

“It's a hit for the state of Idaho,” Gadzinski said, adding that Molina was recently selected for a national women's services training and describing the women's program as “one of our premier programs in this state.”

The women's services clients will just have to make do with what's available until Health and Welfare can either train up an existing provider or bring in a new one already trained in that field, Gadzinski said. Training someone new could take six months to a year, she said.

Other providers in the area called Molina as soon as they heard the news, asking what they could do to help care for her whole client base, said Deborah Thomas with the Walker Center. The drug and specialty courts are finding new providers for the people in their system, she said —

Molina said they're all going to the county clinic.

County officials still don't think they're the competition Molina sees them as. County Commissioner Tom Mikesell said Wednesday that he hadn't heard anything about why Sitman is closing, and views the closure as a business decision that has “little or nothing to do” with the county.

“They can do what they want,” he said. “We're not even into that business yet.”

Molina's employees will also have to chart new courses in a battered job market. One Sitman employee may take a job at the county's clinic, Molina said, joining two others previously hired there. Another may end up at the Walker Center, and a third plans to finish a master's degree.

Molina herself isn't sure what's next, although she said she plans to finish out at least another semester of teaching at the College of Southern Idaho. She'll have to leave the Magic Valley if she wants to open another clinic somewhere, she said.

“God will put me where he wants me to be,” she said.

Blaine County sheriff presents possible Ketchum merger

By Ariel Hansen
Times-News writer

HAILEY — He didn't have the numbers yet, but Blaine County Sheriff Walt Femling does have an argument for merging his office with the Ketchum Police Department.

Femling presented the Blaine County commissioners with his understanding of the possible benefits and challenges of combining the departments — similar to the presentation he made behind closed doors to the Ketchum City Council last week.

“It's not just about saving dollars, it has to show benefits to everybody involved, or it won't work,” Femling said.

Femling's arguments for merging include: additional opportunities for officers to transfer or advance within the combined department; improving retention; flexibility to assign officers to emergencies or big events; joint department and regional planning; increased accountability because Femling is an elected official; a single set of procedures and policies to create consistent response to citizens; reduced insurance liability and a smaller law enforcement budget for Ketchum; and improved statistics for crime fighting.

He also argued that investigations could be handled more efficiently if one of Ketchum's detectives became a street officer under a combined department.

“It's our philosophy that more crimes are solved when you have people on the street and fewer detectives,” Femling said. “We don't have Ketchum criminals and county criminals, we have criminals who go out stealing whatever they can.”

Femling's office has experience merging with another department — the Bellevue Marshals came under his jurisdiction a few years ago — and he recognized that loss of department identity could be an issue.

“That was certainly a concern when we merged with Bellevue,” Femling said. He said all the officers would wear the same uniform, but each jurisdiction would feature a municipal patch in addition to the sheriff's office patch. Other concerns include potential loss of local control, but he suggested the Ketchum police chief would continue to report to the Ketchum City Council as well as to himself and the Blaine commissioners.

“There's resistance to this because of the cultures involved,” said Commissioner Larry Schoen. “We have to overcome some of that resistance to change.”

He and Commissioner Angenie McCleary appeared supportive of Femling's proposal to merge. Commissioner Tom Bowman was absent. “I think it really helps meet the needs of the county and the city,” McCleary said.

Femling said he expects to have firm budget numbers available by the time he publicly presents his plan to the Ketchum council on Tuesday.

“We are still actively working on those budget issues, because once you put a number out there, it becomes the number,” he said.

Seat belt patrols to start in Rupert

By Laurie Welch
Times-News writer

The Rupert Police Department will ramp up efforts to enforce seat belt use in the city starting today.

Rupert Police Chief Randy White said the department received a $3,000 grant from the Idaho Transportation Department that will pay for the campaign.

White said the money allows the department to pay its officers overtime for extra seat belt enforcement patrol.

The campaign will be implemented in law enforcement agencies throughout Idaho, according to a press release issued by the Rupert Police Department.

“Vehicles are built with a reinforced safety cage to protect you if you are in a crash,” said White. “Staying within that cage is your best chance to survive because there is room to live if you stay in the vehicle properly buckled up.”

According to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, correctly used seat belts reduce the likelihood of fatal and serious injury during crashes by half and are the most effective safety feature of any vehicle.

When seat belts are not used the chance of ejection dramatically increases. A 2007 Idaho study showed that 76 percent of people who were killed during single-vehicle rollovers were not wearing a seat belt. In more than 80 percent of fatalities stemming from DUI crashes, the person was not wearing a seat belt and 63 percent of those who died in speed-related crashes were not buckled up, according to the release.

White said this Valentine's Day people should put their seat belt on for those who love them because the slogan “Click it, Don't Risk It” really can mean the difference between life and death.

My Family's Introduction to Chiropractic

I came to understand the importance of health when I was sixteen years old. My father, a former WWII hero and a very athletic man, began to deteriorate before my eyes. He began to suffer from pain in his entire right side. It was in his shoulder, neck, arm and even his right hip and leg. At first pain pills helped, but over a period of weeks and months, the pain grew worse. The pills upset his stomach, and he became more ill and depressed. I saw the adverse effects of his illness on my mom and our family. Doctor after doctor just gave him the same advice — take more pills. He got to a point that he could only sleep for 15 minutes at a time. A friend suggested he see Dr. Pangle, a Doctor of Chiropractic. At the time, Dad did not know what a chiropractor was, but he was desperate. Dr. Pangle conducted a spinal examination and x-rays to find the cause of the condition, not just a treatment of the pain. He located a small misalignment (subluxation) in Dad's neck. The irritated nerves coming from that area were the source of the problem. Dad had a series of adjustments over several months. Miraculously, in less than 90 days, after being sick for over a year, Dad not only received relief but function back in his right side. It was truly amazing for Dad, but it was fantastic to me to see such a wonderful change in my family. I learned that illness affects the entire family unit, and I never forgot that experience. Later I experienced first hand the wonderful benefits of chiropractic after I suffered many sports injuries as a former athlete. Chiropractic added years to my life and life to my years!

A: A combination of tax cuts and spending incentives totaling nearly $790 billion is aimed at putting money back in the pockets of consumers and businesses and creating millions of jobs. It also looks to accomplish some long-term goals, such as making the country more energy efficient and improving the nation's crumbling roads and bridges.

Overall, the package breaks down to nearly two-thirds spending initiatives and just over one-third tax cuts.

Q: Does the bill include federal aid to the states?

A: Yes. It includes major contributions to states to help with their budget shortfalls and assure the viability of Medicaid and education programs.

Sen. Susan Collins of Maine, the moderate Republican who helped broker the deal, said the spending includes about $90 billion in increased federal matches to states to help pay for Medicaid, along with a $54 billion "fiscal stabilization" fund that states could use to build and repair schools and improve facilities at institutions of higher learning.

Q: What are some of the other main focuses of the bill?

A: Here are some highlights:

Education: The package has some $11.5 billion to support the IDEA program for special education. There's another $10 billion for a federal program to help low-income students.

Energy: The package includes funds to modernize the electrical grid — in part by incorporating renewable energy resources — and to make federal buildings more energy efficient and help low-income households weatherize their homes.

Health: The plan includes subsidies to allow people who are laid off to purchase health insurance through the federal COBRA plan. There is also money to support hospitals seeking to modernize health information technology.

Infrastructure: The infrastructure section of the package includes funds for building and repairing highways and bridges, expanding transit systems, upgrading airports and rail systems and building and repairing federal buildings — with the focus on making them more energy efficient. Funds are available for clean water projects, cleanup of environmental waste areas and nuclear waste cleanups.

Money devoted solely to transportation infrastructure reaches almost $50 billion. Collins said that when all the infrastructure projects for roads, sewers, energy and electricity transmission are added up, it will reach about $150 billion.

The package includes money to bring broadband Internet service to underserved areas.

Other highlights: The plan also supports National Institutes of Health research and contributes to programs in the departments of defense, homeland security, veterans affairs and state.

Q: What are some of the tax breaks in the bill?

A: It includes Obama's signature "Making Work Pay" tax credit for 95 percent of workers, though negotiators agreed to trim the credit to $400 a year instead of $500 — or $800 for married couples, cut from Obama's original proposal of $1,000. It would begin showing up in most workers' paychecks in June as an extra $13 a week in take-home pay, falling to about $8 a week next January.

There is also a $70 billion, one-year fix for the alternative minimum tax. The fix would save some 20 million mainly upper-middle-income taxpayers about $2,000 in taxes for 2009.

Q: How will infrastructure spending affect jobs?

A: The Federal Highway Administration has estimated that every $1 billion the federal government spends on infrastructure projects translates to 35,000 jobs. Collins put the total infrastructure spending — including highways, mass transit, environmental cleanups and broadband facilities — at $150 billion. Do the math and that translates into more than 5 million jobs, based on the highway administration's assumptions.

Senate leaders have offered their own estimate — they said Wednesday that the total stimulus package will sustain some 3.5 million jobs.

Q: How long would it take for highway projects to begin?

A: Lawmakers say most of the projects could be up and running within 90 days, although it could take somewhat more time in northern states with longer winters. Highway construction groups have estimated that there are thousands of projects that could be started within that 90 days.

Q: Do economists feel the stimulus package is big enough to actually stimulate the economy?

A: Many leading economists have concluded that the stimulus alone may be insufficient to bring a quick turnaround for the economy.

Mark Zandi, chief economist at Moody's Economy.com, called for a larger package of spending and tax breaks and predicted that unemployment could top 9 percent next year, up from the current 7.6 percent, even if an $800 billion package is enacted. Nobel laureate economist Paul Krugman also contends that $800 billion will fall short of filling the gap left by projected reductions in consumer and business spending.

Obama has also acknowledged that the stimulus measures are only "one leg of the stool" needed to stabilize the economy. Spending initiatives and tax cuts, he has said, must be combined with the ongoing massive effort to restore confidence and integrity to financial markets, get credit flowing again and right the collapsed housing market.

Idaho must take action against drivers on phones

If there's an idea that should pass the Idaho Legislature 105-0 this session, it's freshman Sen. Les Bock's proposal to make it illegal for motorists to engage in cell phone text-messaging at the wheel.

Any driver who's ever come grille-to-grille with a texting teenager would agree.

We're less enthusiastic about Bock's notion of banning drivers from talking on cell phones altogether unless they use hands-free devices, but it's an idea worth exploring. Most of the research we've seen indicates that talking on a wireless phone itself — not just holding a handset while driving — is the problem.

Either way, the Boise Democrat has a point about the hazards of phoning while driving: Some studies say cell conversations impair drivers as much as or even more than alcohol.

The Harvard Center of Risk Analysis concluded that 636,000 traffic accidents occur annually because of someone using a wireless phone, resulting in 330,000 injuries and 2,600 deaths.

At least seven states, including Washington and California, prohibit talking on a cell phone while driving without a hands-free device.

What we'd really like to see is a combination of public- and private-sector sanctions: Insurance companies should jack up their rates for anyone who gets in an accident while talking on a wireless phone, and a motorist who is stopped for inattentive driving should face a stiffer fine if the cause of the distraction is a cell phone.

But whatever the sanctions, it's clear that Idaho needs to act to force telephoning motorists to take the hazards of driving while talking seriously.

Bock's bill deserves a full public hearing, and Senate Transportation Chairman John McGee, R-Caldwell, should give it one.

Our view: Idaho and insurance companies should start making it much more uncomfortable for people to use cell phones while driving. What do you think? We welcome viewpoints from our readers on this and other issues.

Not with my tax dollars you don't!

President Obama is back in messianic campaign mode. It is unbecoming. When he's not snarling at conservative opponents of his endless spending programs, he's pandering to supporters as the nation's community organizer-in-chief.

MICHELLE MALKIN

At a stimulus rally in Fort Myers, Fla., on Tuesday, a woman named Henrietta Hughes stood up to decry the mortgage crisis and ask Obama for his personal help. Choking back tears, she implored: "I have an urgent need. ... We need a home, our own kitchen, our own bathroom."

If she had more time, she probably would have remembered to ask Obama to fill up her gas tank, too. The soul-fixer dutifully asked her name, gave her a hug and ordered his staff to meet with her. Supporters cried, "Amen!" and "Yes!" A young McDonald's worker named Julio Osegueda bolted out of his seat and exclaimed: "It is such a blessing to see you. Oh! Gracious God, thank you so much!"

The event turned into a full-blown revival meeting when Obama announced that the Senate had passed his massive stimulus plan. Audience members erupted into applause. Tongues of fire descended from the sky. Loaves and fishes (or rather, pork and Kool-Aid) multiplied miraculously into trillions for all. GOP Gov. Mark Sanford of South Carolina didn't know how right he was when he warned over the weekend: "We're moving precipitously close to what I would call a savior-based economy."

Like Mighty Mouse, President Obama is here to save the day. The government is here to help — and it is your patriotic duty to pay for it all without preconditions.

Hughes didn't explain the cause of her financial turmoil. Obama didn't ask. And if we conservatives dare to question the circumstances — and the underlying assumption that it is government's (that is, taxpayers') role to bail her out — we'll be lambasted as cruel haters of the downtrodden.

Home ownership is not an entitlement. Credit is not a civil right. Your property-value preservation is not my problem.

Woe unto ye unbelievers in Big Government who cling to what Obama derided as "ideological rigidity."

Well, pardon my unbending belief in fairness and personal responsibility, but why should my tax dollars go to feed the housing entitlement beast?

At his fear-mongering press conference Monday night, Obama lamented that homeowners "are seeing their property values decline." Countrywide crony Sen. Chris Dodd successfully stuffed $50 billion into the just-passed stimulus package for Treasury Secretary Tim Geithner to spend on "mandatory loan modifications" for homeowners deep underwater on their mortgages. That's in addition to the $20 billion already allocated by the House last month for the same purpose.

Banks have been engaged in these "Mo Mod" programs over the past year. Democrats want to accelerate the pace and use the power of government to essentially provide a blanket amnesty for borrowers and lenders who made bad financial decisions.

Yes, there are many responsible borrowers out there having trouble negotiating loan modifications. But this $50 billion giveaway to the banks — on top of the upward of $2 trillion more from the Treasury department, on top of the $700 billion in original "TARP" funding — is throwing more bad money after bad.

This massive expansion of government meddling in the housing market — yet another attempt to get federal bureaucrats in the business of rewriting loan contracts and reducing principal — will just delay the inevitable. A report released by the Comptroller of the Currency in December showed that more than half of loans modified in the first quarter of 2008 fell 30 days delinquent within six months. And after six months, 35 percent of people were 60 or more days behind on their payments.

Where's the fairness in forcing prudent homeowners and renters to subsidize people who bought overpriced houses and rescue the banks that lent to them?

Tellingly, Obama chose Fort Myers to drum up support for his wealth redistributionism. The area has been one of the hardest hit by foreclosures, as the president was quick to point out. But many of those homes are second or third homes and investment properties. And low housing prices are not a catastrophe for everyone. They've created opportunities for Americans who haven't been able to buy in an artificially inflated market. The median sales price of a home in the Fort Myers area fell 50 percent to $106,900, from $215,200 in December 2007. Bargain-priced home sales are up 146 percent from a year ago.

It's sacrilegious to say it in the Age of Obama, but it needs to be said: Home ownership is not an entitlement. Credit is not a civil right. Your property-value preservation is not my problem. Can I get an "Amen!"?

Hartgen bill would silence the common person

How would you like to spend a year in jail or have a felony conviction and spend even longer in jail, all compliments of Idaho Rep. Steve Hartgen?

One of the only avenues of free speech left open to the common person is the Internet. The Internet is the last way people without a massive amount of capital can communicate with the other folks around the world. The press, radio, television, periodicals, telephones and the media in general are all controlled by big money, governments, religious groups and powerful people with massive resources.

Despots, dictators, robber-barons, clerics and totalitarian regimes throughout history and today do and have used various treacherous methods to silence the common person and stifle his voice. These unscrupulous and unsavory tyrants use words like "annoy, terrify, threaten, intimidate, harass or offend" and then, for good measure, they add a few words like "lewd, profane, threats of violence and disturbing the peace" just to cloud the issue and destroy any person who dares to speak out against them.

Punishment involves, among others, cutting off one's head, incarceration, the infamous iron mask, disappearing, destroying one's livelihood and the ability to provide for one's family.

Rep. Steven Hartgen, a former newspaper publisher from Magic Valley, just introduced bill HB82 to the Idaho Legislature that would provide for the common person who uses the Internet to spend one year in jail or, for those audacious offenders who do not get the message the first time, a full-blown felony conviction. Of course, the tribunal that would decide the severity of your crime of free speech will be controlled by the same power elite that now controls the government, press, radio, television, periodicals, telephones and the media in general.

Despite legality, alcohol is America's deadliest drug

When I read the letter written by a legalized drug dealer who sells alcohol, America's drug of choice, I went to the dictionary to look up intoxication. Definitions included "stupefaction by the action of a chemical substance; a poisoning, as by a spiritous or narcotic substance; the physiological state produced by a poison or other toxic substance (syn: drunkenness)." The writer claimed that a gun being misused, not beer, caused a young man to be shot in the leg. Was the shooter intoxicated? Was his intoxication related to his choice to misuse a gun? Who benefits by providing the intoxicant?

By any measure you want to use, alcohol is America's deadliest drug, legality notwithstanding.

On a related matter, Steve Crump recently wrote a humorous column about Utah's dumb alcohol laws. He was completely correct, but I thought to myself — how could any alcohol law be dumber than ingesting alcohol at all?

Here's what Idaho newspapers are saying about ...

... no place for heroes

Coeur d'Alene Press

So North Idaho isn't known for having a longstanding love affair with government. But the anger that erupted online Tuesday ... set a modern local standard for governmental disgust. The cause? Our front page story Tuesday about the heroic postal carrier who saved a woman's life, had a minor accident running into a mailbox later that day, and has been fired from his job ...

"Every silver lining has a cloud," wrote one reader. "If you are a hard worker, and do a good job working for the people — you have no future in the government," posted another. ... The same day 21-year-old Isaac Fish received his National Post Carrier Award in the mail, he learned that he was also losing his job. It's easy to throw mud at most forms of government these days ... much of it is perfectly warranted. But we prefer in this case to cast the post office in a gentler light, hoping the same consideration will be given Mr. Fish. This young man is a poster child for what's good in our world. ... One tiny slip on an icy road should not cast him forever into the dark shadows of a cold, unflinching governmental policy. ... keep grocery credit Post Register, Idaho Falls Suspending the grocery sales tax credit increase ought to be a deal breaker for Gov. Butch Otter's plan to raise fuel taxes and registration fees. That's not the choice Otter is offering, of course. The governor, who ... unveiled his plan for a $174 million boost in highway funding, has never wavered on the principle that Idaho's poorest citizens deserve a sales tax break. But others aren't so resolute. Next year, the grocery tax credit rises to $60 per person in low-income households and $40 for everybody else. It would cost Idaho $14.5 million. Within six years, most will get $100 back. Seniors will get $120. That will cost $122 million. Times are tough, so budget-writing committee co-chairs Sen. Dean Cameron, R-Rupert, and Rep. Maxine Bell, R-Jerome, have suggested postponing the tax break ... Passing Otter's highway plan and putting on hold this year's phase-in of the grocery tax credit boost would (transfer) more ... of this state's expenses onto the backs of those least able to pay. Transportation taxes fall hardest on low-income workers ... Idaho's low-income workers tend to commute farther to their jobs. Often they reside in rural communities. They driver older gas guzzlers.

Get back to reality and stop listening to Rush

Listening to the "coffee shop statesmen" criticizing the Obama plans to stabilize the teetering economy reminds me of the people on the Titanic who refused to get into the life boats because they didn't think the ship would sink. What is beyond my comprehension is the attitude of the "Old Fogey" who totally depend on Social Security and Medicare for their existence. Don't those fools know funding for those programs depends on jobs? They better get back to reality and quit listening to Rush Limbaugh, Fox News and the rest of that ilk, all directed by Roger Aisles and Karl Rove. All of the above are the "workers" for the propagand machine for the Republican elite who created the mess we are in (Clear Channel Radio, Fox News).

Idiot Limbaugh recently stated that Hoover was only responsible for one year of the Depression. Rush should check his history, but that isn't even a dent in his lies and distortions.

Everyone who gets a Social Security check should be on their knees thanking FDR. In spite of the malicious effort by the Republican Supreme Court to derail Roosevelt's programs, he managed to save a lot of people.

To the hungry (starving) — the WPA, the Civilian Conservation Corps, food assistance and medical care; to desperate real estate owners — amortized mortgages; to the failing banks — closed until proven solvent, capital stock no longer drawn out at the expense of depositors (Does that sound familiar?). Everyone in America, even you "Old Fogey," will benefit if Obama can save the ship. Everyone in America will suffer if he fails. George Bush and his "elites" created about $6 trillion in national debt in eight years that produced nothing. If it takes another trillion that might get the pumps going, again, we better do it. RICHARD E. BYRD Rogerson

Where is outrage from lame media over bailout?

Where is the outrage from the lame media and the public in regard to the failed bailout last year that we will be saddled with for years to come?

No guidelines were attached when our money was given away. One of the most dangerous men in Washington, Congressman Barney Frank, admitted a giant mistake had been made on the first failed bailout.

But the fair and balanced media gave him and his pals a "get out of jail" pass once again. Where was the outrage regarding the millions of dollars of pork these idiots saddled us with?

Here are a few examples of the pork the media buried: Wool research fund, $148 million; film and TV production, $478 million; Puerto Rican rum producers, $192 million; domestic production in Puerto Rico, $243 million; motor sports racing track facilities, $100 million; study on wooden arrows used by children, $2 million; and investments in the District of Columbia, $178 million. These lightweights that we elected have just done it again to us to the tune of more than $800 billion in their so-called stimulus package, loaded with more pork. With all the suffering going on, millions out of work, lost homes, these fools on Capitol Hill voted themselves a pay raise; outrageous — naw. But then that was not enough; they then increased their expense money from $30,000 a year to $90,000 a year. And again no outrage; lame media. Our beloved leaders that think they are going to pull us out of the mess they caused. Yeah, good luck. These lightweights on Capitol Hill should be in a cell next to O.J. But once again the chosen ones get a pass from the decaying media. MIKE SIMMONS Buhl

Skiers take center stage at World Winter Games

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

SUN VALLEY — Carine Wagner was making a determined push to the finish line when she heard boisterous cheering from Team USA on the sidelines.

Suddenly, the finish line could wait. The skier from Luxembourg stopped and waved before resuming her journey.

"Don't you love it?" laughed Ketchum resident John Flattery, watching from the sidelines.

Such a gesture might be unusual in the world of athletics, but not at the Special Olympics World Winter Games this week in Sun Valley.

The games are full of unique moments — from the racer who forgot to tie his shoes and skied right out of them to the racer who kept racing past the finish line, leaving volunteers chasing after him.

The medal podium has seen its moments, from the skier who climbed onto the podium swinging his arms as if he were still skiing to the young boy from the Kyrgyz Republic who couldn't bear to part with his stuffed bear and Coca-Cola chews long enough to receive his medal.

A Mesa, Calif., snowboarder — Sam Mesa — tweaked his knee on his first run Wednesday but returned for a his second run, although his coach determined later Mesa may have torn some ligaments.

"I didn't want to stop," said Mesa, who had to wear a splint to hobble onto the medal podium. "I was having too much fun."

Hundreds of people lined the cross country ski course outside Sun Valley's Nordic Center Tuesday and Wednesday, cheering the athletes on.

Three Norwegians raced up the course waving large Norwegian flags every time one of their countrymen came into view of the finish line.

Pilar Barbero of Spain took the "Be a fan" slogan to heart, cheering the racers on by waving two colorful fans as she shouted "Bravo! Muy Bien!"

And 65 school kids from Jackpot, Nev., showed up with cowbells and other noisemakers in hand.

"The kids can't believe these athletes are doing what they're doing," said teacher John Ward. "I tried cross country skiing once so I know how hard it can be. I hope my students get the understanding that life isn't always easy. But sometimes we complain and we really don't have it so bad."

Sometimes it was difficult to tell who was bursting with more pride — the parents or the skiers.

Sweden's Erik Norelius celebrated after winning a silver medal in the 3-kilometer freestyle.

"Now I can go home and show people I'm cool," he said.

His mother, Marta Norelius, was content to stay in the moment.

"For me as a mother, being here is really overwhelming," she said, tears welling in her eyes. "I never thought I'd experience something like this when we got a son who was special."

Karen Bossick may be reached at 208-578-2111.

John Martin of the Czech Republic celebrates his gold medal on the podium Wednesday afternoon in Sun Valley.

South-central Idaho poised to rebound

Despite national recession, region's economy should show reliance, says economist

By Joshua Palmer
Times-News writer

Economic growth in south-central Idaho will continue to slow during 2009, but the region will likely recover more quickly than other parts of Idaho and the United States, said an economist from the O'Connor Center for the Rocky Mountain West. Larry Swanson, an economist with the center that is with the University of Montana, told bankers and business leaders Wednesday morning that conservative growth, healthy local banks and a diverse economic base will insulate the region against a deepening economic crisis.

He said that south-central Idaho is experiencing the "spillover" from this national economic slowdown, but added that impact will depend on how long

What's important for what's ahead...

- The quality of your community .. infrastructure, schools, neighborhoods, commercial development, streets and parks.
- The quality of your work force .. diverse, appropriately educated, and adaptive with training and education
- The quality of your surrounding environment .. attractive, well-planned neighborhoods, downtowns and commercial districts the recession lasts and how deep it becomes.

"The Twin Falls area is really well situated to make it through the recession because it didn't dig itself into a hole," Swanson said. "The area doesn't produce a significant housing overhang that is dragging markets down elsewhere in the United States."

He also said that changing demographics in the region may

Almost all the windows were damaged during the weekend at Tse Restaurant located at 1021 Blue Lakes Blvd N. in Twin Falls.

Although little is known at this point, Twin Falls Police say the windows were likely broken with a blunt instrument during the weekend.

On Wednesday, most of the windows were boarded up and the restaurant was closed.

A recorded message at Tse Restaurant said the business "would be closed for a couple days."

Business owners concerned about Overland Avenue construction

Construction on Overland Avenue in Burley has some business owners worried that patrons will take their business elsewhere.

The City of Burley received plans earlier this year from the Idaho Transportation Department to complete a $14 million construction project, which city officials say will improve Overland from Interstate 84 to the Snake River.

"It's long overdue, but I don't think many of us are eager to see it happen," said the owner of a gas station on Overland Avenue. "I think some customers will try and avoid the mess and take their business somewhere else."

He added that with sales down, it's the best time to lose customers.

Construction will begin late this year or early next, say city officials. The construction is expected to last six months.

Filling in for outgoing BID member: The City of Twin Falls is seeking an owner, tenant or merchant in downtown Twin Falls to serve on the board of directors for the Downtown Business Improvement District.

Kevin Dane recently resigned from the board — creating a vacant seat that city officials want to fill as quickly as possible.

The BID plays a critical role helping the district with recommendations on parking, landscaping and maintenance as well as developing and executing marketing plans, events, promotions, and advertising for the district.

The City Council is asking BID members in good standing who are interested in serving on the board to submit a letter of interest.

A committee consisting of the Mayor Lance Clow, Council Member Don Hall, and Economic Development Director Melinda Anderson will interview candidates and make recommendations to the city council.

This appointment will be to finish serving out Dane's term which ends June 30, 2009.

Send letters of interest & qualifications to Anderson at manderson@tfd.org by Feb. 11.

Big 8 questioned about $700,000,000,000.00

Eight of the nation's top bankers before the House Financial Services Committee on Wednesday morning on Capitol Hill. The executives were explaining how they used their portion of the government's $700 billion banking bailout and whether they plan to seek more.

Financial institutions vow to work for reform

By Jim Kuhnhehn
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — Facing a disgusted public and Congress, investment bank CEOs agreed with demands for greater accountability Wednesday in the first testimony on how they're spending money from the taxpayer-funded $700 billion bailout.

"Both our firm and our industry have far to go to regain the trust of taxpayers, investors and public officials," John J. Mack, head of Morgan Stanley, told the House Financial Institutions Committee.

Added JP Morgan Chase & Co.'s Jamie Dimon: "We stand ready to do our part going forward."

The eight top investment

bankers appearing before the panel were generally contrite and conceded they have work to do to win over a bitter public and an exasperated Congress. They had little choice but to acknowledge as much, given intense anger and anxiety as the troubled financial system continues to spiral downward in an ever-worsening recession.

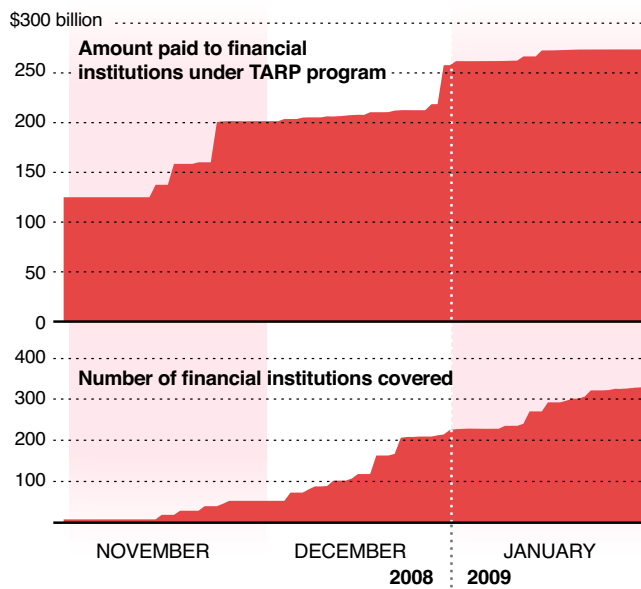

Taxpayers are furious with big investment banks that benefited from the federal bailout designed to get credit moving again, but which also spent lavishly on executive bonuses, company retreats and office redecorating.

Lawmakers also are feeling the heat for signing off on the bailout package plan, which was

Billions pumped into banks

The government rolled out a $700 billion bailout last year, known as the Troubled Asset Relief Program (TARP), hoping that injecting money into banks would expand lending and ease the credit crisis.

Expediting the building process

By Joshua Palmer
Times-News writer

Economic development officials are creating a program that will make it faster and easier to build light industrial buildings in Twin Falls.

The program, which is being called the Virtual Building program, will bring land owners, local builders and city officials together to fast-track the building process.

City Economic Development Director Melinda Anderson said the program is still in the planning stages but was approved earlier in the week by the economic development board.

A shortage of commercial and industrial space has been an ongoing concern among economic development officials in south-central Idaho, who say that potential businesses often choose a new location based on the availability of building space.

"The reason for doing this is to provide businesses that are looking at our area with a

Tax code revision will change the way accountants do business

By Joshua Palmer
Times-News writer

A revision to the nation's tax code will make it a misdemeanor offense for anyone engaged in tax preparation to use client data without written consent.

According to Internal Revenue Service regulation 7216, the IRS will require tax preparers to obtain written consent from a client in order to use financial data that is held by an individual or business owner's bank or attorney.

Accountant such as those at Cooper Norman, say it will change the way tax preparers operate on a daily basis.

"Primarily, it will be an inconvenience to get that information," said Ron Belliston, a on whether the Obama administration will need to request more money to fund its financial industry rescue plan. Obama's finance chief declined to speculate and told the Senate Budget Committee that more requests are possible.

A day after unveiling an effort to pump up to $2 trillion into the financial system, Geithner defended the lack of detail in the plan that caused fresh heartburn on Wall Street and Capitol Hill.

Despite a large population of aging boomers in south-central Idaho, Swanson said the region has started to attract more young people since 2000.

Swanson said most young people are coming to the area seeking employment opportunities.

"That's important because the young adults between 25 and 39 years old are the population that's replenishing the workforce," he said.

IRS officials say the change will better protect taxpayers' tax return information, particularly where electronic theft and security data breaches are all too common.

The updated regulations generally prohibit "tax return preparers" from disclosing or using clients' tax return information for purposes other than tax return preparation without taxpayers' knowing, informed and voluntary consent.

They also provide specific exceptions that allow preparers to disclose or use return information without taxpayer consent.

PENNSYLVANIA

Judges accused of jailing kids for cash

WILKES-BARRE — For years, the juvenile court system in Wilkes-Barre operated like a conveyor belt: Youngsters were brought before judges without a lawyer, given hearings that lasted only a minute or two, and then sent off to juvenile prison for months for minor offenses.

The explanation, prosecutors say, was corruption on the bench.

In one of the most shocking cases of courtroom graft on record, two Pennsylvania judges have been charged with taking millions of dollars in kickbacks to send teenagers to two privately run youth detention centers.

"I've never encountered, and I don't think that we will in our lifetimes, a case where literally thousands of kids' lives were just tossed aside in order for a couple of judges to make some money," said Marsha Levick, an attorney with the Philadelphia-based Juvenile Law Center, which is representing hundreds of youths sentenced in Wilkes-Barre.

Prosecutors say Luzerne County Judges Mark Ciavarella and Michael Conahan took $2.6 million in payoffs to put juvenile offenders in lockups run by PA Child Care LLC and a sister company, Western PA Child Care LLC. The judges were charged on Jan. 26 and removed from the bench by the Pennsylvania Supreme Court shortly afterward.

No company officials have been charged, but the investigation is still going on.

NEW YORK
Body dragged nearly 20 miles on NYC highways

NEW YORK — A van traveled for nearly an hour over busy New York City roads before its driver discovered the horrific cargo it had dragged almost 20 miles: the partially scraped-away body of a man who was plowed over by an SUV just before he got caught under the van.

Police said the gruesome episode was accidental and that they have no plans to charge the drivers at this time.

But that did not diminish the shock of seeing a dead man hooked under a van that had just traversed some of the busiest roads in the city. Police said the driver, Manuel Lituma Sanchez, had no idea he hit the victim until the end of his trip, when a bystander told him something was dragging under his van.

Investigators were working to identify the body, which was found largely intact but horribly battered. The man's heels were shorn off. His clothes and several layers of skin on his legs and buttocks were worn off. The back of his head was worn through to the scalp.

A business card, Western Union receipt and a broken iPhone were found in the man's pockets, NYPD spokesman Paul Browne said.

WASHINGTON
69 computers missing at nuclear weapons lab

WASHINGTON — The Los Alamos nuclear weapons laboratory in New Mexico is missing 69 computers, including at least a dozen that were stolen last year, a lab spokesman said.

No classified information has been lost, spokesman Kevin Roark said.

The watchdog group Project on Government Oversight on Wednesday released a memo dated Feb. 3 from the Energy Department's National Nuclear Security Administration that said 67 computers were missing, including 13 that were lost or stolen in past 12 months.

Roark initially confirmed those figures, but later updated them. He said a total of 80 computers were lost or stolen in 2008, but 11 were recovered.

The lab was initiating a monthlong inventory to account for every computer, Roark said. The computers were a cybersecurity issue because they may contain personal information like names and addresses, but they did not contain any classified information, he said.

Peanut Corp. owner refuses to testify

WASHINGTON — See the jar, the congressman challenged Stewart Parnell, holding up a container of the peanut seller's products and asking if he'd dare eat them. Parnell pleaded the Fifth.

The owner of the peanut company at the heart of the massive salmonella recall refused to answer the lawmaker's questions — or any others — Wednesday about the bacteria-tainted products he defiantly told employees to ship to some 50 manufacturers of cookies, crackers and ice cream.

"Turn them loose," Parnell had told his plant manager in an internal e-mail disclosed at the House hearing. The e-mail referred to products that once were deemed contaminated but were cleared in a second test last year.

Summoned by congressional subpoena, the owner of Peanut Corp. of America repeatedly invoked his right not to incriminate himself at the House Energy and Commerce subcommittee hearing on the salmonella outbreak that has sickened some 600 people, may be linked to nine deaths — the latest reported in Ohio on Wednesday — and resulted in one of the largest product recalls of more than 1,900 items.

MASSACHUSETTS
Regulator: Madoff's wife pulls $10M before arrest

BOSTON — The wife of disgraced money manager Bernard Madoff withdrew more than $15 million from a firm co-owned by her husband — including $10 million on the day their children turned her husband over to authorities for overseeing an alleged $50 billion Ponzi scheme, the top securities regulator in Massachusetts said Wednesday.

Secretary of State William Galvin said Ruth Madoff, 67, withdrew $5.5 million on Nov. 25 and $10 million on Dec. 10 — the day before Bernard Madoff was arrested — from Cohmad Securities Corp., a New York firm co-owned by her husband.

The secretary cited wire transfer records produced by Cohmad as proof of the withdrawals. They came as Madoffs' scheme was unraveling as investors filed $7 billion worth of redemption requests.

They also appeared to follow what authorities consider a disturbing trend on the part of the Madoffs to hide money that could be used to reimburse burned investors.

Prosecutors have already said investigators found 100 signed checks worth $173 million that Madoff was ready to send out to his closest family and friends at the time of his arrest in December.

CALIFORNIA
Taxpayers may have to cover octuplets' costs

LOS ANGELES — A big share of the financial burden of raising Nadya Suleman's 14 children could fall on the shoulders of California's taxpayers, compounding the public furor in a state already billions of dollars in the red.

Even before the 33-year-old single, unemployed mother gave birth to octuplets last month, she had been caring for her six other children with the help of $490 a month in food stamps, plus Social Security disability payments for three of the youngsters. The public aid will almost certainly be increased with the new additions to her family.

Also, the hospital where the octuplets are expected to spend seven to 12 weeks has requested reimbursement from Medi-Cal, the state's Medicaid program, for care of the premature babies, according to the Los Angeles Times. The cost has not been disclosed.

Paying smokers to quit boosts success rate, study finds

The Associated Press

Dangling enough dollars in front of smokers who want to quit helps many more succeed, an experiment with hundreds of General Electric Co. workers indicates.

Among those paid up to $750 to quit and stay off cigarettes, 15 percent were still tobacco-free about a year later. That may not sound like much, but it's three times the success rate of a comparison group that got no such bonuses.

GE was so impressed it plans to offer an incentive program nationwide next year, aiming to save some of the company's estimated $50 million annually in extra health and other costs for smoking employees.

"This kind of reward system provides them with direct, positive feedback in the present," not just delayed, intangible health benefits, said Dr. Kevin Volpp, the lead researcher of the study.

Volpp, who oversees the health incentives center at the University of Pennsylvania, called the study the largest ever of employer incentives to stop smoking.

The $750 was "a good incentive," said Dan Anzalone, a study participant who quit smoking cold turkey three years ago next month — after a 35-year habit.

A logistics specialist at a GE plant in Schenectady, N.Y., Anzalone tried quitting with antidepressants about seven years ago but couldn't. He tried quitting on New Year's Day most years, but generally only lasted a couple days.

So he signed up for Penn's federally funded study, unaware that he would be paid. Half the 878 participants, at about 85 U.S. GE sites, were put in the financial rewards group; the other half were just encouraged to join quit-smoking programs and use the company's health coverage for doctor visits and anti-smoking drugs.

Results of the study, which began in 2005, were reported in today's New England Journal of Medicine.

The incentive group got increasingly higher payments the longer they stayed off tobacco, up to a total of $750 after 12 months.

Anzalone said the incentive program was all he needed: He didn't go to smoking cessation classes or use nicotine patches or gum, or medicines.

2 satellites collide 500 miles over Siberia

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Two big communications satellites collided in the first-ever crash of its kind in orbit, shooting out a pair of massive debris clouds and posing a slight risk to the international space station.

NASA said it will take weeks to determine the full magnitude of the crash, which occurred nearly 500 miles over Siberia on Tuesday.

"We knew this was going to happen eventually," said Mark Matney, an orbital debris scientist at Johnson Space Center in Houston.

NASA believes any risk to the space station and its three astronauts is low. It orbits about 270 miles below the collision course. There also should be no danger to the space shuttle set to launch with seven astronauts on Feb. 22, officials said, but that will be re-evaluated in the coming days.

The collision involved an Iridium commercial satellite, which was launched in 1997, and a Russian satellite launched in 1993 and believed to be nonfunctioning. The Russian satellite was out of control, Matney said.

The Iridium craft weighed 1,235 pounds, and the Russian craft nearly a ton.

No one has any idea yet how many pieces were generated or how big they might be.

"Right now, they're definitely counting dozens," Matney said. "I would suspect that they'll be counting hundreds when the counting is done."

New report shows Idaho's nursing needs may be met by 2012

BOISE (AP) — The need for registered nurses, a job now in high demand throughout Idaho, could taper off in the next three years, a report by a group of nursing experts says.

The December report by the 22-member nursing council appointed by Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter concludes that the supply of registered nurses will meet demand at hospitals and clinics by 2012 if nursing programs continue to expand as planned.

The findings project a dramatic turnaround in the state, the Idaho Statesman reported.

For years, health officials have complained that Idaho lacks enough nurses to fully staff its hospitals and clinics.

But members of the council also say the rapid economic downturn has altered many of the report's assumptions and projections.

For example, some of the state's biggest hospitals, located in Ada County, no longer report a nursing shortage.

Fish and Game scales back on increase proposal

By Andrew Weeks
Times-News writer

They still want money to fund department programs, but now they're not asking for as much money.

Officials with the Idaho Department of Fish and Game said they have scaled back their fee increase proposal from 20 percent to 15 percent, striking employee

"You've got to remember that when we came up with the original proposal, it was last July."

— Bill Hutchison, Fish and Game's special assistant to the director compensation funds from the draft.

"Employees will not be given an adjustment this year for inflation," as was originally proposed, Fish and Game Commissioner Wayne

Wright told the Times-News. "Some compensation will be held this year."

The changes would amount to about $5.1 million annually for three years instead of the former proposal of $6.9 million a year.

For sportsmen, that means some licenses and tags would not increase after all — a resident combination license, for instance, would stay at $31.75 — while other items would increase, but not as much as they would under the former proposal.

"You've got to remember that when we came up with the original proposal, it was last July," said Bill Hutchison, Fish and Game's special assistant to the director. "We were basing it on the inflation rate at the time, a 3 percent cost of living increase for our employees, and high gas prices. Things have changed since then. The Legislature probably won't give salary increases to state employees and gas prices aren't as high."

If passed by the Legislature, about 71 percent of the revenue increase would go toward maintaining existing programs,

Sun Valley cross-country ski program keeps growing

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

"Come on!" exhorts Muffy Ritz, dangling a bunch of wine glasses in front of 12 skiers.

Each woman skate skis past her, taking a glass and gulping its contents before tossing it aside in the snow.

It looks like a game. But it's a game with a point.

Ritz is preparing her Vamps to grab liquid refreshment at the aid stations placed along a race-course without having to stop and chat.

With 120 women, the Vamps women's ski program in Sun Valley is likely the largest, most successful women's cross-country ski programs in the country.

The name stands for Women and Muffy's Programs. Better that, Muffy quipped, than WIMPS, or Women in Muffy's programs.

The program has grown from four 12 years ago despite Ritz's best efforts to keep it small. And the sub-groups within the program have grown, too, to include groups with names like Tramps, Scamps and Champs.

It was Carol Rank, a former competitive horse rider with an obsessive passion for cross-country skiing, who first urged Ritz to teach a ladies clinic.

"I was getting good race results on my own but I wanted to raise the bar and see where I could go. I loved the way Muffy skied and thought that maybe she could help me raise my level of fitness and teach me about the rhythm of the sport," said Rank, a dental hygienist from Ketchum.

Ritz taught her how to train more effectively by doing three or four 15-minute interval workouts. Rank ate it up — so much so, that she started racing at World Cup Masters races in such far-flung places as Lillehammer, Norway.

Now Rank is even looking towards Ritz — who skis

Ketchum skier Kim Nalen takes a knee on purpose so other skiers can practice getting around a fallen skier.

Also ...

The Inga-Laami — another of Muffy Ritz's creations — will be held Saturday, Feb. 28, at the Sun Valley Nordic Center. Women are encouraged to show up in Norwegian dress and ski one of three different loops. They will then meet back at the Nordic Center for food and prizes. Proceeds from the $10 entry fee will go to The Advocates and Bald Mountain Rescue Fund.

with an artificial hip — to help her get back on track after her own hip replacement.

"I don't know if I would have gotten into racing as much as I have without Muffy's help. I would have been just an average skier," said Rank.

Of course, Ritz's name is synonymous with the word "race."

Originally, a cross-country runner and alpine ski racer, Ritz took up cross-country skiing on a lark while a 21-year-old college student at the University of Colorado. "It became my life — very quickly," she said.

In two years, she was ranked the fourth best female skier in the nation. A year later, she was named to the national team.

Since then, she's won the prestigious American Birkebeiner race a couple times and she's won her age category in World Cup Masters competitions numerous times. She's also raced on Rossignol's race team for 29 years, making her the most veteran member of the team.

Despite her own competitive nature, she reserves a nurturing touch for those in her Vamps program.

"She has a mothering edge, but she's not soft," said Lili Simpson, one of a cadre of Vamps coaches that includes former Olympians and U.S. Ski Team members.

Ritz also adds a feminine touch to her program.

She kicks off each Vamps season with a cocktail party followed by a Nordic ski fashion show and wine and cheese party at Backwoods Mountain Sports. Those parties segue into other parties, including "Dress like a VAMP Day," in which the women ski around the Nordic Center in everything from lacy bras and fishnet stockings to a Marie Antoinette wig piled high on their heads.

For pop-up privacy, try the Sqivvy

It looks like an outhouse made of nylon. Or else it's a strange tent for tall people. But the Sqivvy, a new shelter product from Logan, Utah, isn't a tent at all. You can't comfortably sleep in it. Pop it open and stake it out, and you'll notice an oversight rendering the shelter all but obsolete for camping: There is no roof.

THE GEAR JUNKIE
Stephen Regenold

The Sqivvy, which costs $89.95 and is sold at www.sqivvy.com, is marketed as a "portable pop-up privacy shelter." Its genesis was with a trail runner who needed to change clothes in a public place. He was sick of pulling on shorts while hiding in his car. "I had a eureka moment," said Paul Vaslet, company founder.

Vaslet's epiphany led to the creation of a 4x4-foot shelter that's about 7 feet tall. It comes in a package the size and shape of a bike tire, unfolding instantly to pop into form when you throw it into the air.

While it comes roofless, the company includes an add-on fly to cover the top. There's a removable floor, internal pockets for gear stowage, and a single screen window. The door zips open in a giant C shape, letting you leap in and out while changing before a run in a city park, or pulling on bike shorts beside your parked car, or at a beach before running out to play in the waves.

Since its release, Vaslet said the Sqivvy's use has evolved. He cites cyclists who warm up inside a Sqivvy before the start of a race.

Photographers shoot from inside it during bad weather. You can use it as an ad hoc shower room while camping.

Vaslet employed a Sqivvy on a recent Grand Canyon rafting trip as a portable outhouse, stashing a bucket toilet inside.

I set up a Sqivvy on a frozen lake in Minnesota while dog sledding.

BLM wants to tighten access to southern Utah cave

By Mike Stark
Associated Press writer

SALT LAKE CITY — For nearly a century, southern Utah's largest cave has drawn a mishmash of serious explorers, untrained spelunkers, Boy Scouts, teenage revelers, vandals, litterbugs and drinkers.

Now, after years of restoration work — including intensive sandblasting to get rid of graffiti and the removal of untold bags of garbage — the Bureau of Land Management is looking to tighten access to the 1.3-mile long cave.

A proposal now up for public comment would add locked gates at the cave's two entrances and limit entry to those with permits, which would be free and limited to 50 per day. Caving equipment such as reliable lighting and hard hats also would be required.

Jimmy Tyree, director of the BLM's field office in St. George, said the gates and new rules could be in place by this summer.

The change has been a long time coming, he said. Graffiti once greeted every visitor and trash littered many of the cave's labyrinthine passages and caverns. Some visitors lit campfires and others left thousands of feet of string behind as a way to find their way through the cave's six levels.

"There needed to be some sort of management controls in place," Tyree said.

Located about 15 miles west of St. George, the cave has a long, colorful history. There's evidence that American Indians spent time there. Inscribed names going back to the 1920s and 1930s have been matched with rosters of a nearby mine, said Kyle Voyles, a cave specialist at Arizona's Grand Canyon-Parashant National Monument who has helped map Bloomington Cave.

In this 2005 photo released by the U.S. Bureau of Land Management, volunteers Jason Ballenski, left, and Max Powell, right, sandblast graffiti from Bloomington Cave in southern Utah. The Bureau of Land Management is considering tightening access to the cave after decades of abuse by vandals. Jimmy Tyree, director of the BLM's field office in St. George, said the gates and new rules could be in place by summer 2009.

The cave later became popular with touring students and teenagers looking for a place to party.

At one point in 1952, officials dynamited the cave's entrance because they were worried it was no longer safe. Teenagers quickly removed the rubble and reopened the entrance. Another attempt to shut off the entrance two years later also failed.

The cave became a popular target for graffiti with the advent of spray paint decades ago.

"The degradation has been going on a long time," Voyles said.

Discussions began several years ago about cleaning up the cave, which logs 800 to 1,200 visits per year.

"It was just overwhelming as far as where to begin," said Jon Jasper, an Arizona-based BLM planner who worked on the restoration project.

Volunteers sandblasted graffiti from about 600 feet of passages in 2005. Volunteers also patrolled the cave looking for garbage.

"We'd bring in trash bags and laundry bags. Each person would come out full of these gigantic bags of trash coming out of the caves," Jasper said.

Cave managers also started looking at ways to make the cave safer.

Groups of visitors are common in the cave but most lack even the most basic caving equipment, including reliable lights and hard hats.

In 2002, a Boy Scout had to be rescued after breaking his leg in a fall. Later that year, a teenage girl fell to her death.

The BLM put up an information kiosk near the entrance to the cave but it was damaged in a wildfire in 2006 and destroyed by vandals last year. It has since been replaced.

The proposed permitting system would include requirements for proper equipment and information about "cave etiquette."

The changes also may benefit some of the cave's lesser-seen residents. BLM officials believe the number of Townsend's big-eared bats declined as more people visited the cave. The agency is hoping the permit system will lessen the pressure on the bats' habitat. The gates proposed for the cave's entrances also are designed to be "bat friendly."

The BLM's office in St. George is taking public comment on the proposal through Feb. 25.

At the end of the year there's an awards party with a bevy of awards, including one for "Best Fall" and the Jean Cooper Award. The latter rewards the person who did the goofiest thing all season — Cooper once missed three classes in a row—first because she couldn't remember where she had left her boots, then because she locked her skis in her car and lastly because she got her car stuck in a snow bank.

The actual ski training begins in October with a variety of fun activities that include an orienteering competition and lunging across the lawn at Dollar Mountain Cabin swinging boulders from side to side. And in true Vamps fashion there are always prizes to spur the women on.

Tracey Caraluzzi, a transplant from Washington, D.C., joined the pre-season training to get fit and was inspired to take up skate skiing.

"After just five weeks on skis I'm not about to tackle the Boulder Mountain Tour. But I love the Vamps — the camaraderie is great," said Caraluzzi, co-owner of CIRO Restaurant in Ketchum.

Ritz added the Vamps Challenge to her program this year, offering a chance at prizes for women who participate in two Nordic races or events and ski 10 different loops. The latter, designed to entice women to become acquainted with ski opportunities ranging from Hailey to Stanley, includes easy loops like the North Fork Loop near Sawtooth National Recreation Area headquarters and more difficult terrain like Rip n Tear at Galena Lodge.

Ritz's efforts appear to be paying off. Last weekend 40 of her 120 Vamps entered the Boulder Mountain Tour — a 20-mile race starting at Galena Lodge.

"I don't think the Vamps would work if it were just about ski lessons — anyone can teach skiing," she said. "It works because it's also very social — and women are great social animals."

"And it empowers so many women. I love seeing their smiles."

400 years of advances in telescope technology

This year marks the 400th anniversary of Galileo's first astronomical investigations with a telescope. Although crude, his homemade instrument began an avalanche of celestial discoveries that continue to the present day.

Prior to the space age, astronomers were hampered by the ocean of atmosphere through which all astronomical objects' light must pass.

Dust, moisture, and turbulence all distort starlight. But equally important is the fact that the atmosphere absorbs other forms of electromagnetic energy like x-rays and infrared, rendering the study of objects that emit such energies impossible from the earth's surface. To solve both problems, telescopes began to be put in

The best known space telescope is probably the Hubble Space Telescope, launched in 1990. It was followed by the Compton Gamma Ray Observatory (launched in 1991), the Chandra X-ray Observatory (launched in 1999) and the Spitzer Space Telescope (launched in 2003), which sees infrared "heat" energy. Together the four comprise NASA's "Great Observatories," all of which except Compton are still operating and returning stunning discoveries about the universe.

The ability to see astronomical sources in a variety of colors, both visible and invisible, has pushed our understanding of the universe forward by an amount comparable to the leap that Galileo's telescope provided over the unaided eye.

In honor of the telescope's quadricentennial, 2009 has been designated the International Year of Astronomy. The celebration will feature numerous events around the world, including some right here in the Magic Valley. At 3 p.m. Saturday (one day shy of Galileo's 445th birthday), the College of Southern Idaho's Herrett Center museum will unveil four giant images of a single astronomical target by the Great Observatories. These amazing, multi-spectral views will showcase the power of space-based astronomy at the dawn of the telescope's fifth century.

Next week: Comet discovery across political borders.

according to Hutchison. The remaining 29 percent would go toward habitat restoration, improved access, new family fishing waters, increased fish production, deferred maintenance needs for wildlife management areas and marshes, and youth programs.

Officials said they don't know if the decreased proposal amount will help it to pass the Legislature, but they're keeping their fingers crossed.

"I think anything is difficult (to pass) right now because of the tough economic times we're in," said Jerome Hansen, Fish and Game's Magic Valley regional supervisor. But then again, "we haven't asked for an increase in four years. We've kept our belt tightened all along."

If passed, legislators and the governor have the final say on what the increase would be.

The department, officials said, is trying to be as transparent as possible.

"We're still full steam ahead, still out talking to folks," Hansen said.

"At a minimum, we want to make sure that sportsmen at least understand what the proposal is all about."

and harnessing a troublesome dog.

After unpacking the shelter and letting it pop open, a friend steadied it in the wind. I staked it down, pulling a guy line from each corner and burying stakes in the snow.

There was moderate wind and the Sqivvy — a boxy and non-aerodynamic shelter with flat walls — stopped the air like a sail. Its guy lines flexed, and the walls shuttered. But the Sqivvy never blew down.

At one point, while I was warming up inside, a gust beat a wall inward, the fabric bowing in before popping back to shape.

Packing the Sqivvy up is a trick. You fold it in half, then in half again, its walls hinging closed, internal poles moving to their places. Then a twist and the puzzle swirls back into its original bike-tire-size shape, letting you stow it away in a circular bag.

The Sqivvy's outer fabric is water resistant, but not waterproof, making it usable only in light rain with its fly attached. It is vulnerable to high wind and could easily take flight in a strong gust.

But the shelter sets up quickly and provides a nice space to change, get warm, or stay out of moderate wind and falling snow. I'll keep my Sqivvy on hand as a place to put on bike shorts, warm up, shower, and perform other not yet realized tasks when I need quick privacy or some element of weather protection in the outdoors.

Bighorn sheep are back but struggling

By Caleb Warnock
The Daily Herald

PROVO, Utah — On Jan. 30, the future of Utah's bighorn sheep hung in the balance as volunteers spread pneumonia medication, mixed with hay and sliced apples, over the frozen mountain above Cedar Hills.

Biologists are hoping the pellets of anti-parasitic medication can stave off the biological battle that sheep and state officials have been waging against Mother Nature in order to stabilize the sheep population.

"Bighorn sheep were the predominate big-game animal here in Utah before the pioneers came," said state wildlife biologist Dale Liechty as he watched 11 of the sheep grazing in patches of native grass poking from the surrounding snow. "Through agricultural practices and domestic sheep grazing, they pretty much died out."

Now they are back but struggling.

Native bighorn sheep were last seen in Utah in the 1930s. Since January 2000, more than 70 bighorn sheep have been reintroduced into the mountains ranging from American Fork Canyon to Provo's Rock Canyon through a joint effort between the Foundation for North American Wild Sheep, the Utah Division of Wildlife Resources, sportsmen, conservation groups and private citizens.

The sheep seemed healthy as they watched volunteers

Big Horn Sheep graze on the Cedar Hills Golf Course on Jan. 31, in Cedar Hills, Utah. Utah Department of Wildlife volunteers fed sheep deworming medication Saturday to help keep the animals healthy and increase the overall population.

warily. Every few minutes the sheep would chase each other, butting heads and posturing as they fought over grazing spots.

Because the bacterial pneumonia not only kills adult sheep but is transferred from ewes to lambs, it kills the upcoming generation as well. Because of this the population has fallen, now numbering just several dozen.

The grim task of collecting the bodies of the dead sheep for lab analysis over the past two years has fallen to BYU student Kanalu Sproat among others. Sproat said he believes he has collected up to 60 of the dead sheep.

The pneumonia death is caused by high densities of lung worms that build up in the sheep, typically hitting hardest in the spring, Sproat said. The worms are believed to be spreading from domestic hobby herds of sheep kept by local residents.

The question now is if the pneumonia cannot be reversed, how long can new sheep be brought in, knowing they might catch the disease?

Biologists and sheep lovers who have been funding the program through donations are not giving up without a fight. Volunteers of the state's Dedicated Hunter program joined biologists on the mountain to spread the deworming pellets in hopes of success.

Kodi Francom of Lehi brought his two sons, Brock, 11, and Braxton, 10, to help.

"It just sounded like a lot of fun to hike around and see the sheep," said Francom. "We've seen them out and about, but we've never seen them bunched up before."

The boys said they were excited to get within feet of the animals as they worked. The sheep are wild, but especially in winter and spring can often be found among houses, vexing homeowners by eating tulips and other landscaping.

"They were pretty cool," said Brock, describing how he and his brother helped set up the hay and apples for the sheep.

Travis Trane, also of Lehi, said he found the volunteer opportunity on a Web site.

He too said he had decided to volunteer because it was a unique and fun opportunity to aid the sheep.

"I just like to be able to help," he said.

Biologist have reported that the medication program has been used successfully in other places, including Provo Canyon and the mountains above Springville. The sheep are medicated in the winter while other food is hard to find because the sheep are willing to eat foreign foods such as apples and hay.

Bighorn sheep are characterized by their curled horns and are known for their intense head-butting battles during the November breeding season.

Though their brownish gray coats are camouflaged against the mountainside and rocky cliffs, the sheep become very active during breeding season and are more easily spotted along the foothills and rocky ledges.

Utah has three subspecies of bighorn sheep including desert bighorn sheep, which are found in several locations throughout southern Utah; California bighorn sheep, which have recently been translocated to Antelope Island and into the Newfoundland Mountain Range; and the Rocky Mountain bighorn sheep, which are found in Utah County, Flaming Gorge, North Slope of the Uinta Mountains, Desolation Canyon and Dinosaur National Monument.

Time running out to apply for turkey, bear tags

Hunters have about a week left to apply for this spring's controlled turkey and bear hunts.

The application period ends Sunday.

Spring turkey and spring black bear seasons start April 15 — some controlled hunts open later. Leftover tags for spring turkey and bear controlled hunts go on sale April 1.

Hunters may apply for controlled hunts at any hunting and fishing license vendor; Fish and Game office; with a credit card by calling 1-800-55HUNT5 or 1-800-824-3729; or online at fishandgame.idaho.gov.

Good outlook for spring chinook season

So far four Chinook salmon have been counted at the Bonneville Dam on the Columbia River, but all were headed downstream.

Still, the early forecast is for a good Chinook fishing season in Idaho this year.

"We're confident that enough Chinook will return to Idaho this spring for a mid to late April season opening," anadromous fish manager Pete Hassemmer told the Idaho Fish and Game Commission.

Predictions based in part on the number of jacks returning last year, suggest more than 105,000 hatchery Chinook and more than 22,000 wild Chinook may cross Lower Granite Dam this year. Most of those fish are destined for the Salmon and Clearwater river basins in Idaho.

The number of returning wild fish is the fourth largest since 1979.

The predicted return of hatchery fish means Idaho recreational anglers' share could be more than 9,000 fish on the Clearwater River, more than 9,000 on the lower Salmon and Little Salmon rivers, and almost 1,400 on the Snake River.

Idaho Fish and Game managers expect to propose fishing seasons on the Clearwater, Salmon, Little Salmon and Snake rivers in March, Hassemmer said. And in May, they expect to propose summer seasons on the upper Salmon River and South Fork Salmon River.

Chinook salmon fishing seasons can be set only by the commissioners.

F&G Commission conference calls to start

Utah bill to raise fine for killing bald eagle goes to governor

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — State lawmakers have approved a bill to increase the fine for killing a bald eagle.

State Rep. Roger Barrus, R-Centerville, sponsored House Bill 34. Following House approval, the state Senate unanimously approved the measure on Friday. It now goes to Gov. Jon Huntsman.

Because the bald eagle was recently removed from the federal endangered species list, the fine for killing the bird dropped to $100. Barrus' bill increases the fine to $1,000, the same as it was before the bald eagle was taken off the list.

Sen. Margaret Dayton, R-Orem, the bill's Senate sponsor, says the measure will help keep the bald eagle from going back on the list.

Managing conflicting species a contentious issue

Question: "How does the department manage species that conflict with each other like cutthroat trout and white pelicans or wolves and elk?"

Answer: You've hit upon two contentious issues. A law called The Wildlife Policy sets out the state's responsibility for managing all the state's wildlife.

In Idaho Code 36-103, The Wildlife Policy of the State of Idaho: "All wildlife, including all wild animals, wild birds, and fish, within the state of Idaho, is hereby declared to be property of the state of Idaho. It shall be preserved, protected, perpetuated, and managed. It shall be only captured or taken at such times or places, under such conditions, or by such means, or in such manner, as will preserve, protect, and perpetuate such wildlife, and provide for the citizens of this state and as by law permitted to others, continued supplies of such wildlife or hunting, fishing and trapping."

ASK THE OFFICER
Gary Hompland

This law puts several wildlife species at odds with Idaho sportsmen or at odds with each other. To intentionally ignore one or the other species could be grounds for an accusation against the Department for violating Idaho law.

In the case of elk and wolves, the Department is anticipating the opportunity to take over management of wolves. If allowed to do so, wolves would become a big game animal and managed in a manner similar to other predators of deer and elk.

Cutthroat trout, the Idaho state fish, have struggled for survival throughout its range. Prized by anglers, they have also been subject to hybridization with rainbow trout. State fisheries managers have taken steps to protect and rebuild remaining native populations of cutthroat trout.

The white pelican is a sensitive species with federal protection under the Migratory Bird Treaty Act. They are a unique colonial nesting species that travels great distances to capture fish and return to their nesting colony. Unfortunately, pelicans have found fishing for cutthroat trout to their liking in many southern Idaho reservoirs where they are being stocked in an effort to rebuild native populations.

On one hand, anglers and fisheries biologists want fewer white pelicans because of their impact on native cutthroat trout populations; on the other hand, birders and some wildlife biologists favor habitat improvements and protections for the white pelicans due to their aesthetic values. This is quite a conundrum, and the Idaho Fish and Game Commission will be grappling with this issue in the near future with a management plan for both species.

Idaho sportsmen and women feel very close to Idaho's natural resources and will always have their "favored species." These sportsmen and women are the backbone of our support for the "best wildlife management possible." We, in the department, will always be indebted to them for their support, even on contentious issues such as that described above.

This will not be the last time several wildlife species or wildlife user groups will be in conflict based on their preferences for one species over another. The important thing to remember is Idaho law treats them all the same, but does not allow the department that luxury.

Gary Hompland, regional conservation officer for the Idaho Department of Fish and Game, may be reached at 208-324-4350 or ghompland@idfg.idaho.gov.

Question: Fred wrote: "I filed a Chapter 7 bankruptcy in April. My uncle Donald passed away in July. Donald's personal representative just told me that I am in the will and should receive about $50,000.00. My bankruptcy attorney says I have to give the money to the Bankruptcy Trustee. Can't I just dismiss my bankruptcy and keep the money?"

Answer: The filing of a bankruptcy creates an "estate." All assets that exist on the date of filing become part of the estate and can be liquidated for the benefit of your creditors unless the assets are exempt under state law. Idaho law provides sufficient exemptions so that most Idaho debtors do not have any assets liquidated. However, the Bankruptcy Code specifically identifies inheritances that you become entitled to within 6 months after filing your bankruptcy case as property of the estate just as if the inheritance had existed on the date your case was filed. The Bankruptcy Court would not approve dismissal because your creditors are entitled to the money in your estate. Since Idaho law does not exempt your inheritance, uncle Donald's bequest to you will be used to pay the claims of your creditors and to pay administrative expenses of your case. After the expenses and claims are paid, the rest of the money will be returned to you.

JHS senior Morrell helps hurting kids

By Mary Hanson
Times-News correspondent

JEROME — When it came time for her senior project, Jerome High School senior Ashley Morrell, 18, said she didn't want to take an "easy way out."

Since she wants to study nursing after she graduates, Morrell said she decided on raising money for youths who were in the hospital due to emergencies.

"That's a time when kids are scared and need a lot of comforting and reassurance," she said.

After talking it over with her project mentor, Morrell came up with her original idea. She would raise money through fun runs at school and donations and buy gifts for young people of different ages. She executed that plan and delivered a haul to the Saint Benedicts emergency room and acute care center for dispersal to hospitalized children.

Morrell plans to pursue a degree in nursing at Idaho State University or Montana Tech University. She is the daughter of Carl and Loriane Morrell of Jerome.

"My mom and dad are proud of me, I know, for this project," she said.

Morrell is a fourth-year cheerleader and fourth-year varsity softball pitcher with a 3.90 grade-point average.

"I'm just going to concentrate on my studies at college, though," she said. "Getting a degree in nursing will take most of my time."

Are menthol rubs good for cold symptoms?

DEAR DR. GOTT: My mother is old school in that I grew up slathered in Vicks and put to bed at the first sign of sniffles or a cough. The rub would allow me to breathe easier when she spread it on my chest and under my nose, but boy, did I smell bad!

itself or that I am actually asking this question. Is it safe to use this same treatment on my own children?

DEAR READER: It depends on the age of your children. All menthol products, including Vicks, can cause breathing problems, eye and lung inflammation, liver damage, airway constriction and allergic reactions in some infants and children. These products don't actually clear congestion or help reduce a cough; they simply increase the production of mucus and inflame children's airways, which are narrower than those of adults.

Dr. Bruce Rubin writes in CHEST, an official journal of the American College of Chest Physicians, that he began his studies with ferrets, whose respiratory systems are similar to those of infants, after hearing of an infant who developed respiratory difficulty following a home-treatment of Vicks placed under her nose.

Following his studies, he recommended "never putting Vicks in, or under, the nose of anybody — adult or child. Some of the ingredients in Vicks, notably the menthol, trick the brain into thinking that it is easier to breathe by triggering a cold sensation, which is processed as indicating more airflow. Vicks may make you feel better, but it can't help you breathe better."

Beyond Rubin's studies, in 2008 the Food and Drug Administration was requested by a group of pediatricians to revise the standards for over-the-counter

Games

Continued from Outdoors 5 the competition at the 2009 Special Olympics World Winter Games in Sun Valley Monday. Each, it seemed had a story to tell. Like Hashimoto, athletes from India had never skied on real snow before — only sand. They arrived in minimal clothing, prompting volunteer Connie Bernsen Hoffman, a former Jerome resident now living in Ketchum, to donate the two hats she had with her to cover their heads before giving them directions to the Gold Mine thrift store. "This whole thing is just so special," said Idaho State Trooper K.R. Winn, of Jerome, as he let athletes don his hat for pictures. "I've had more fun escorting these athletes on the buses. One youngster from Tokyo grabbed on to me and wouldn't let me go." Alicia Paulin, a 15-year-old snowboarder who attends the Idaho State School for the Deaf and the Blind in Gooding, was among the athletes competing.

Paulin finished fourth in her first race in Novice Giant Slalom. It was good enough to land her on the unique podium designed for eight medalists. "I've liked the whole experience," she said shyly. "I've met people from all over the world and racing wasn't really hard." While advanced snowboarders whizzed down the course, others took it slowly, spreading their arms out like wings waiting to take flight. One boarder fell three times between two gates but stuck with it. "That's courage there," said

Steve Grogan, a former Special Olympian who took third in the world eight years ago in shot put. Now a Special Olympics board member, the Rathdrum resident said he expected each athlete gathered in Idaho this week to benefit from their experience. "I could not have stood here and talked with you like this eight years ago," he said. "My experience with Special Olympics gave me confidence." Dr. Gott

Continued from Outdoors 5 and-cold remedies for children under 6 years of age, citing a lack of evidence they even work. There is mounting evidence the remedies can cause seizures, difficulty breathing, cardiac problems and more. In fact, even the Vicks packaging recommends asking the advice of a physician for use on children under 2 years of age. It has been noted that manufacturers are not voluntarily removing cough-and-cold remedies for children from pharmacy and grocery-store shelves, since they do provide relief to older children when taken according to package inserts. Americans spend about $300 million every year on the plethora of products offered, despite warnings. I am sure it will take a considerable period of time before the FDA takes a stand on whether to modify their present standards. In the interim, infants and young children should be under the care of their pediatricians, and parents should be guided by their medical recommendations. Should any question remain, request a referral to a pulmonologist who specializes in pediatric medicine. To give you related information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "Pulmonary Disease." Alma Alven Thibault

JEROME — Alma Alven Thibault, 92, of Santa Clarita, Calif., and formerly of Jerome, went home to her Father in Heaven on Wednesday, Feb. 4, 2009.

She was born March 23, 1916, in Naper, Neb., to Christian and Fredrika Schlet Kulm. Alma was the 10th child of 13 children and was the last remaining survivor of her family. She married Draton Foster Thibault on Aug. 15, 1933, in Butte, Neb. They enjoyed 41 years of a very happy marriage and were blessed with three sons and one daughter. They farmed in Naper, Neb., until December 1943, when they moved to Jerome. They continued to farm, raising their family on a farm northeast of town. Due to Draton's health, they moved to Palmdale, Calif., in 1969.

Her grandchildren, great-grandchildren and the children in her neighborhood spent many happy hours at her home, learning to cook, sew and play the marble game of Aggravation. She had a great love for children and they for her. Alma will be remembered for her love of God and her wonderful meals. She was an incredible cook and had a tremendous work ethic. Alma always taught her family to be honest and upright by her example. She was dearly loved and will be missed by both family and friends.

Survivors include her children, Donald (Phyllis) of Jerome, Dale (Vivian) of Bothell, Wash., Leo (Joanne) of Little Rock, Calif., and Wanda (Rusty) Rustaino of St. George, Utah. Also surviving are 15 grandchildren; 40 great-grandchildren, 13 great-great-grandchildren; a sister-in-law, Birdean Thibault; and numerous nieces and nephews. She was preceded in death by her parents, 12 siblings and her husband.

The funeral for Alma Thibault will be conducted at 2 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 14, at St. Paul's Lutheran Church, 1301 N. Davis in Jerome, with the Rev. B. Camin officiating. Burial will follow at Sunset Memorial Park in Twin Falls. No public viewing is planned. Services are under the direction of the Hove-Robertson Funeral Chapel in Jerome.

Russell A. Czaplicki

Russell A. Czaplicki was born Nov. 18, 1946, the only child of Julian "Whitey" and Maxine Czaplicki in Phoenix, Ariz. Just as he lived his life with dignity and style, Russell left us on Monday, Feb. 9, 2009, from complications of pancreatic cancer. He spent his last days surrounded by family and many valued friends sharing memories of good times.

As a teenager, Russell often played baseball but forsook the sport for FFA, bull riding and horses. This was quite a challenge for a "city-kid" raised in Phoenix. His desire to be on a horse led to his life career in the cattle business. During his high school years, Russell worked for feedlots in the Phoenix area and later learned more of the trade by working on ranches in southern Arizona. His calf raising enterprise was moved from Arizona to Idaho when he and his wife, Rose, moved to Idaho in the early 1970s. Russell and Rose personalized their farm with many tree plantings and flowers while starting their family with sons, Garrett, Darren and Todd. Russell started buying cattle for Agri-Beef and, by the late 1970s, was working for J.R.

Simplot Co. Russell worked with many people from California, Nevada, Arizona and Mexico, who eventually became some of his closest friends.

Throughout his life, he had many hobbies. His favorites included traveling, photography, gardening, tennis, skiing and, most importantly, spending time with people. Due to the diversity of his upbringing and personality, he was able to relate and comfort others in a truly selfless manner. Although his life was too short, this did not stop him from experiencing it to the fullest and enjoying every minute of it. He shared that joy not only with those closest to him but with everyone he knew.

Russell is preceded in death by his parents; and son, Garrett. He is survived by his previous wife, Rose; sons, Todd and Darren; wife, Sharon Meeks; and stepdaughters, Leah and Jenna Meeks.

A service will be conducted at 10:30 a.m. Friday, Feb. 13, by White Mortuary at the United Methodist Church in Twin Falls. A viewing will be held from 5 to 7 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 12, at White Mortuary. Even though flowers were Russell's passion, a remembrance in his name to St. Luke's Hospice or the Czaplicki Parkinson's Fund at Wells Fargo, Addison branch are encouraged.

Mae Merkley Morrow

GOODING — Mae Merkley Morrow, 70, formerly of Gooding, passed away peacefully Monday, Feb. 9, 2009, at her home in Twin Falls with her family at her side.

Mae was born June 5, 1938, in Montpelier, to Max and Gwen Reeder Merkley. Mae was raised in Twin Falls with her brother, Ron, and graduated from Twin Falls High School in 1956. On Feb. 18, 1959, she married Don C. Morrow, and they made their life together in Twin Falls; Sparks, Nev.; and moved to Gooding in 1973. Mae and Don owned and operated several businesses in Gooding, and she accompanied Don on many trips during his tenure as mayor of Gooding and Gooding County commissioner. Our Mom was a wonderful wife, mother, grandmother and the best friend you could have. Her greatest joy was being surrounded by her children and grandchildren and being involved in their many activities. Her smiling face, cheerful attitude and constant encouragement will be deeply missed by all who knew her.

Mae is survived by her sons, Bart (Marcy) Morrow of Gooding and Nathan Morrow of Twin Falls; grandchildren, Chelsea Morrow and Gretchen Morrow, both of Twin Falls, and Andrew Jensen of Gooding and Jared Jensen of North Pole, Alaska. Mae was preceded in death by her husband, Don; her parents and a brother.

Special thanks to Dr. John Gies, Aspen Grove Hospice and, most especially, Jeannie Benson, Don and Mae's hospice nurse and dear friend.

Mae's wishes were that no viewing or service be held. In lieu of flowers, contributions may be made in Mae's name to Gooding Hospital Foundation or a charity of choice.

Cremation arrangements are under the direction of Demaray Funeral Service, Gooding Chapel.

Dallas M. 'Bud' Christopherson

JEROME — Dallas M. "Bud" Christopherson, 90, beloved husband, father and grandfather, passed away peacefully Sunday, Feb. 8, at his home in Jerome.

He met and married his lifelong partner and the love of his life, Dorothy Ida Ott, in 1941. Bud served his country in the Navy during World War II. After his return, Bud found his career as an electrician and was a member for 60 years of IBEW No. 449.

Bud worked for many years as an electrician at the Atomic Energy Commission Site near Arco. During that time, he and his family lived in Arco, where all of the children attended grade school and high school. Bud was an accomplished boxer, an Idaho Golden Gloves champion, and had a brief professional career from which he retired with a record of 23-0, including 13 knockouts. Bud was a rugged and avid outdoorsman all his life. He was an active fisherman, hunter, prospector, rock hound and story teller.

Former Idaho state Rep. Meyer dies of colon cancer

RATHDRUM, Idaho (AP) — Former Rep. Wayne Meyer has died of colon cancer. He was 59.

Officials at English Funeral Chapel in Coeur d'Alene, which is handling the funeral arrangements, said Meyer died early Tuesday.

Meyer, a bluegrass farmer and Republican from Rathdrum, served in the Idaho House from 1995 to 2004 and served on the Education, Business and Joint Finance Appropriations committees.

"I don't think Wayne ever had an enemy in the Legislature," Sen. John Goedde, R-Coeur d'Alene, told the Coeur d'Alene Press. "He was the type of person who tried to be a peacemaker and he had friends in both bodies. Everyone was aware of his background as a grass farmer and appreciated that he walked a fine line in that area."

While in the Legislature, Meyer fought for money to protect northern Idaho's underground drinking water source, sponsored a bill that made the huckleberry the state fruit, helped maintain simulcast racing in Idaho and helped create the dual enrollment system that allows high school juniors and seniors to take college courses for credit.

Celia Gould, director for the Idaho Department of Agriculture, said she had lost a friend and agriculture lost a great advocate.

"When I served with Wayne in the Legislature, I knew him as a man that would stand on conviction," Gould said. "Being politically correct never entered his mind and for that he was always highly regarded by his colleagues."

Outside the statehouse, Meyer served as a high school basketball referee for 22 years and was chairman of the Rathdrum Chamber of Commerce's legislative committee.

He was also one of the last bluegrass farmers on the Rathdrum Prairie to burn bluegrass stubble, which clean air advocates said harmed air quality and the health of northern Idaho residents. Farmers maintained that the burning was necessary to shock the ground into producing higher yields.

The practice, once widespread in northern Idaho, has dwindled to about 550 acres due to environmental outcry and increased development. Last year, burning was limited to two days, and 408 of the acres burned were Meyer's.

Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter honored Meyer for distinguished public service during the Rathdrum "Capitol for a Day" event in December.

Meyer's funeral is scheduled for 11 a.m. Friday at St. Pius X Catholic Church in Coeur d'Alene. Burial is at Evergreen Cemetery in Post Falls.

Egypt unveils ancient mummy, part of new find

By Katarina Kratovac
Associated Press writer

SAQQARA, Egypt — Illuminated only by torches and camera lights, Egyptian laborers used crowbars and picks Wednesday to lift the lid off a 2,600-year-old limestone sarcophagus, exposing — for the first time since it was sealed in antiquity — a perfectly preserved mummy.

The mummy, wrapped in dark-stained canvas, is part of Egypt's latest archaeological discovery of a burial chamber 36 feet below ground at the ancient necropolis of Saqqara. The find, made three weeks ago, was publicly announced Monday and shown to reporters for the first time Wednesday.

Egypt's archaeology chief Zahi Hawass has dubbed it a "storeroom for mummies," because it houses eight wooden and limestone sarcophagi as well as at least two dozen mummies.

Hawass led a group of international media Wednesday into the burial chamber, supervising as one person at a time was lowered into the shaft, holding on to a rope-pulled winch turned by workers above ground.

"It's moments like these, seeing something for the first time, that hold all the passion

"It's moments like these, seeing something for the first time, that hold all the passion of archaeology."

— Zahi Hawass, Egypt's archaeology chief of archaeology," Hawass said after the mummy was unveiled.

The find dates back to 640 B.C., or the 26th Dynasty — Egypt's last independent kingdom before a succession of foreign conquerors.

Hawass said the discovery was important because it shows much of the sprawling site at Saqqara, about 12 miles south of Cairo, has yet to be unearthed. Rulers of ancient Memphis, the capital of Egypt's Old Kingdom, were buried at Saqqara.

Inside the chamber, 22 mummies lay covered only by sand in four niches dug into the chamber's walls. Most were badly decomposed, showing only skulls and parts of skeletons, with decayed mummy wrappings. The sarcophagi were placed throughout the room.

A dog's mummy — possibly of a pet — was also found along with mummies of children, prompting speculation the chamber holds the remains of a large family, with the richer, more prominent members, buried in the sarcophagi.

"Only the rich could afford to have sarcophagi made of limestone from Thebes," said Hawass.

Kimberly wins rough game for SCIC title

By David Bashore
Times-News writer

It wasn't pretty, but these are the kinds of games that need to be won if a team wants any chance at some state hardware.

Overcoming early foul trouble, a halftime deficit and a game tempo played much more in Wendell's favor, the Kimberly girls basketball team rallied in the second half to scrape out a 39-32 win at the College of Southern Idaho on Wednesday, successfully defending its Sawtooth Central Idaho Conference championship.

Megan Crist had a game-high 14 points for Kimberly (18-3), half of that coming in the fourth quarter, but it was a pair of sophomores that kept the Bulldogs in the game long enough for the senior forward to make her impact.

Whitney Carlton scored seven first-half points, including five straight to end the first quarter and start the second. That kept Kimberly hanging around while Crist, fellow senior Kelsey Molyneux and junior Alex Pfefferle sat out almost all of the second period with foul trouble.

"We needed some players to step up when we were in foul trouble early," said Carlton, who finished with eight points, five rebounds and three assists. "I haven't been having the best of games lately, but having the team believing me was a big help tonight."

Nellie Makings, who struggled so badly with her 3-point shooting in the first three quarters that some fans were encouraging her to shoot all night, gave those fans just what they asked for and buried two treys in the fourth quarter to keep the game tied late.

Then Crist went to work, fouling out both Kristen Brandsma and Jori Fleming, as well as hitting two buckets and three free throws down the stretch.

"It was just one of those nights when things weren't going well for us, but defensively we managed to hang around and then we got the ball in to Megan in the fourth quarter, which was what we wanted to do all along," Kimberly coach Rich Bishop said. "Those two (sophomores) hit some big shots for us, and we knew we needed someone to step up. I was proud of the girls

Bruin boys escape with win over Spartans

T.F. uses Burley mistakes to win 58-52 nailbiter

By Bradley Guire
Times-News writer

The Minico boys were a basket way from tying it up and possibly sending Wednesday's game to overtime, but late turnovers and other errors cost them.

Twin Falls battled through, hit most of its free throws and grabbed key rebounds in contrast to put away the Spartans 58-52 at Baun Gymnasium in Twin Falls.

"We made crucial mistakes," Minico's Coltin Johnson said. "We didn't box out. We had two or three turnovers. We made these tiny mistakes. They didn't."

Twin Falls was up just 52-50 with less than 60 seconds left, and the Spartans started fouling to freeze the clock, hoping the Bruins would miss at the line. Brennan Lancaster, Jon Pulsifer and Jordan Hamblin hit 6 of 10, putting a bit of a cushion between themselves and Minico, which managed to get to the line only twice. The few times that a Bruin missed on the second shot, either Pulsifer or Marcus Jardine got to the ball first.

"We just couldn't get the rebounds off those missed free throws," Minico coach Mike Graefe said.

The previous 31 minutes was comprised of a tight game where neither team took much of a lead. Pulsifer got his usual double-double (13 points, 10 rebounds), but it was Jardine who stepped up in this one.

The younger brother of former Bruins Brady and Kelsey scored a team-high 14

CSI's Milicic out for season with ACL tear

Golden Eagles up to No. 11 in NJCAA poll

By Mike Christensen
Times-News writer

College of Southern Idaho sophomore Noelle Milicic has a complete tear of her ACL and is likely out for the remainder of the season for the No. 11 Golden Eagles.

Milicic

An MRI Tuesday confirmed the knee injury, which occurred during practice on Monday.

The CSI women's top reserve, Milicic was averaging 7.0 points and 4.0 rebounds in about 15 minutes a game for the 19-4 Golden Eagles (8-1 Scenic West Athletic Conference).

"The last month or so she's really been playing well for us," said CSI head coach Randy Rogers. "We could use her as a starter, but we like bringing her off the bench because she runs the floor well and she can shoot it. Defensively, she's long and athletic."

The 6-foot sophomore was shooting 49 percent from the field and also dishing out about one assist per game. She is the second CSI player

Vandals having surprisingly good year

By Nicholas K. Geranios
Associated Press writer

MOSCOW — Idaho plays the hottest team in the nation on Thursday, and it is a credit to new coach Don Verlin that the outcome is not a foregone conclusion.

Verlin has produced a big improvement at Idaho (10-12, 4-5 Western Athletic Conference). The school, now in its fourth season in the WAC, was 7-41 in the league over its first three seasons.

Thursday, the Vandals host No. 21 Utah State, which Verlin helped build into a basketball power during a decade as an assistant coach under Stew Morrill. The Aggies (23-1, 11-0 WAC) have won 18 straight games, the longest streak in the nation.

Declo takes down American Falls

By Ryan Howe
Times-News writer

Now that the regular season is over, the Declo boys are ready to put to rest any skepticism that the Hornets are a legitimate top-3 team in Class 2A.

"We have a great group of kids who know how to play hard until the very end and we're always able to pull it off," said Jeremy Jenkins after Declo's 57-50 season finale win over nonconference foe American Falls.

It took a solid effort to the very end for the Hornets (15-5 overall, 4-0 Canyon Conference) to come away victorious. Just like their first meeting with American Falls — a 67-58 loss on Jan. 14 — the Hornets saw a sizable first-half lead evaporate. But unlike that first game, Declo was able to make plays down the stretch on Wednesday.

Despite trailing by 15 early on, American Falls rallied to game solidly. We did it again tonight," said Declo coach Dee Lewis.

Holtman leads Raft River over Sho-Ban

By Diane Philbin
Times-News writer

University of Tennessee coach Pat Summitt has always said, "You win with players."

With junior Whitney Holtman running the floor and leading an intense Trojan defense, the Raft River Trojans bounced back from a Saturday night loss to the Challis Vikings by dropping the Sho-Ban Chiefs 64-48 in the second-place game of the Class 1A Division I Snake River Conference Tournament in Shoshone.

"I just gave Whitney full run on the court and she did a great job," said Raft River coach Jeremy Qualls. "This team is scrappy and the girls are a bunch of hard workers. They have always been able to respond from a loss.

"We had some good things going right off, some good vibes. Give credit to Sho-Ban. They never quit and they kept the game interesting."

Unlike in the championship game against Challis where most of the offense came from Sally Hansen, the Trojans had four players in double figures against the Chiefs. Hansen once again led Raft River with 21 points and Holtman followed with 15. Hailey Higley posted 14 and Chelze Nye added 10.

"Whitney is our defensive barometer," said Marli Manning. "She comes out on fire and sets the tone. Sho-Ban is a good team. We needed to be strong tonight and play our game."

There was only one tie and Raft River only gave up the lead to Sho-Ban once. That came with 59 seconds remaining in the third quarter as the Chiefs took a one-point lead, 39-38 on a basket by Jill Graves.

The Trojans regained the lead with 13 seconds remaining and were in command in the final period, outscoring Sho-Ban 24-9.

For Sho-Ban, Shayann Johnson and Samantha Bear each scored 15 points and Graves had 14.

Heading into state, Manning believes the team's strengths are hard work and intensity. The senior is excited for state and believes the Trojans are ready, but added, "We don't want to underestimate anyone and we always need to give 100 percent."

Sho-Ban advances to a play-in game at 3 p.m., Saturday, Feb. 14 at Glenns Ferry against the third-place team from District III.

Williams leads Jazz past Lakers

SALT LAKE CITY — Deron Williams had 31 points and 11 assists and the Utah Jazz snapped the Los Angeles Lakers' seven-game winning streak with a 113-109 victory Wednesday night.

Mehmet Okur scored 22 points, CJ Miles had 17 and Ronnie Brewer added 16 to give the injury-plagued Jazz their fourth win in the last five games.

Kobe Bryant scored 37 points and Lamar Odom had 19 points and 19 rebounds, but the Lakers allowed the Jazz to shoot a season-high 58.6 percent.

The Jazz didn't score from the field and made 2-for-8 from the line in a nearly four-minute stretch in the fourth quarter to give the Lakers a last gasp.

Williams made 3-of-6 free throws in the last 25 seconds while Derek Fisher missed two 3-point attempts and Bryant misfired once to clinch the Jazz win.

Allen Iverson scored 26 for the Pistons, who fell a game under .500 since he joined the lineup.

HOUSTON — Yao Ming had 24 points and 18 rebounds, Rafer Alston dished out a season-high 13 assists and the Rockets won again without the injured Tracy McGrady.

Luis Scola added 19 points and 11 rebounds and Ron Artest scored 19 for the Rockets, who improved to 12-6 with McGrady out of the lineup this season. McGrady missed his 17th game with soreness in his left knee, the aftermath of offseason surgery. He also sat out one game with a sprained ankle.

BUCKS 122, PACERS 110

MILWAUKEE — Richard Jefferson scored 22 of his 32 points in the second half and Ramon Sessions added 15 points and a season-high 17 assists.

points and grabbed seven boards.

"We're getting everything we want out of Marcus," Bruins head coach Matt Harr said.

Jardine's seven points in the third quarter accounted for half of Twin Falls' production during that 8-minute span. Bronson Miller led the Spartans with 11 points on the strength of three buckets from beyond the arc, and Johnson finished with 10.

Minico (7-12, 2-3) is back at it tonight to face Great Basin Conference West foe Wood River at home. It is the Spartan's final contest before the district tournament. A victory will tie them with Burley for second place in the district, and the two teams would have a tiebreak for the No. 2 seed.

The Bruins (13-6, 4-4 Region Four-Five-Six) will travel to Jerome Friday in an attempt to extend the winning streak over the Tigers to 20.

"We've got to come out with a fire in our eyes and go see what we can do," Jardine said.

for continuing to fight when things weren't going their way."

Kimberly committed just five turnovers in the game and induced 22 from Wendell (17-7), but couldn't make the advantage count due to poor shooting.

Erin O'Brien co-led the Trojans with 11 points, all of them coming in one run in the second quarter. O'Brien scored all of Wendell's points in the period, benefiting from the team's methodical half-court offense to run off screens and set herself up with a shot from the right elbow.

"She's a really good shooter, and she gave us a real spark there in the second quarter," said Wendell coach Delon Huse. "Kimberly did a great job adjusting on her in the second half so we couldn't get her those shots."

Jaci Lancaster also scored 11 for the Trojans, who gave the ball away on five straight trips down the floor in the late goings — two turnovers and three offensive fouls.

Kimberly advances to next week's state tournament in Nampa, where the Bulldogs will face the winner of a play-in game in Pocatello on Saturday. Teton will face either Marsh Valley or Bear Lake in that game.

Wendell, meanwhile, will travel to Glenns Ferry on Saturday for a state play-in game against either Homedale or Weiser.

The decisive play came with 31 seconds left and the Hornets up by two. Declo's Shaylon Fenstermaker missed his second free throw, but Jenkins skied high for the rebound and in the same motion fed a touch-pass to Tyler Briggs under the hoop for an easy layup. It was the final boost Declo needed to put the game away.

"I heard the two (American Falls) kids yelling that they were going pinch me, so I knew I had to get a good jump on it," Jenkins said. "The ball bounced off just right and I saw Briggs cut to the basket."

Just before tipoff, Declo post player Jarad Erickson came down with flu-like symptoms and was unable to play. But Briggs and Fenstermaker provided enough production inside, combining for 31 points.

"It was big for our kids to play without someone who plays a lot of minutes for us," Lewis said. "Jarad is usually good for eight rebounds and eight or nine points a game and he brings a toughness for us. Kids stepped up. Connor Garner and Dawson Bowcut's defense at the start of the fourth quarter was really big to get us back into it."

Garner added 15 points for Declo. Devin Mock led the Beavers with 13.

Declo, which is ranked No. 3 in the most recent Class 2A media poll, has won seven of its last eight and earned the Canyon Conference's No. 1 seed and home-court advantage for the district tournament, which begins Monday as Valley travels to Glenns Ferry. The winner of that game advances to play Declo on Wednesday at Declo High School. The Hornets are 9-1 at home this season.

Wie to make debut as LPGA Tour member

KAHUKU, Hawaii — At nearly every turn at Turtle Bay, there are posters of Annika Sorenstam covered in leis, proudly celebrating the 70th of her 72 titles in her spectacular LPGA Tour career.

With the 2008 SBS Open champion enjoying retirement, several youngsters are vying to make their mark, including a special class of so-called "rookies."

The group includes Jiayi Shin, Stacy Lewis, Vicky Hurst and Michelle Wie, who was happy to be home, confident and looking for a fresh start to her career when play begins Thursday in the season-opening event.

"These four rookies that we talk about headlining the rookie class, every single one of them feel capable of sweeping the LPGA," tour commissioner Carolyn Bivens said. "They're fearless. They're not typical rookies."

Wie appeared relaxed during her pro-am round Wednesday, joking with her caddie, signing autographs and comfortably crushing drives like in year's past.

"I feel like it's a whole new beginning for me. It's a completely new slate," Wie said. "I'm not going to think about the past and not even going to think too much of the future. I'm just really excited for this week, for tomorrow, and I'm just going to think about what I can do best for each moment."

While the rookies have all made a name for themselves through winning on different levels, none of them come close to having the endorsement deals, bank account and fame of Wie, who for years has been looking to add to her trophy case.

Wie, who first played an LPGA event at age 12, is trying to change that and said she's been working on her game "constantly."

"The game's a funny thing. One day it feels really good and other days you have to work hard on it," she said.

"But I've been working on it really hard ... So hopefully my game's a lot better than it was, ever before. I'm really excited to show that."

LPGA TOUR, GOLF CHANNEL AGREE TO 10-YEAR DEAL

KAHUKU, Hawaii — The LPGA Tour announced a 10-year agreement with Golf Channel on Wednesday, making the network the tour's exclusive cable home beginning in 2010.

The agreement, which

LPGA commissioner Carolyn Bivens called "groundbreaking" establishes the tour as the only stand-alone U.S. women's professional sports organization to receive a rights fee agreement for domestic broadcast coverage. Financial details of the agreement were not disclosed.

Bivens said the fee was important, but the driving forces were finding a consistent home on TV and a partner to grow with.

New York Jets QB Brett Favre to retire, again

NEW YORK (AP) — Brett Favre swears this is the real deal — no more last-minute comebacks.

The 39-year-old quarterback retired again Wednesday and insisted he won't look back. Well, at least for now.

"I have no reason to wonder why you would be so skeptical," Favre said Wednesday with a slight chuckle after announcing he was leaving the game after 18 record-setting seasons.

Favre, who retired last March only to return a few months later, kept this goodbye simple — no tearful farewell or jam-packed news conference. He spoke to the New York Jets on Wednesday morning, telling owner Woody Johnson, general manager Mike Tannenbaum and coach Rex Ryan that he was calling it a career.

"I have family and friends who are like, 'All right, Brett. Is this the real deal?'" Favre said during a conference call. "To me, it is. It is. Believe me. It's been a wonderful career, I couldn't ask for anything more. It was worth a shot for me to go to New York. I wish I could've played better down the stretch. I didn't.

"It's time to leave."

The Jets placed Favre on the reserve-retired list, meaning the quarterback's retirement paperwork had been filed with the NFL — something he didn't do last winter with the Packers.

"Emotionally, I'm OK with it," said Favre, who spent the day on his bulldozer and doing yard work on the grounds at his home in Kiln, Miss. "I really felt like it was time. Obviously, the circumstances last year were a lot different. Physically, if I felt better, we may not be having this conversation, but I think that's more than anything the writing on the wall."

His decision came six weeks after his only season with the Jets ended in disappointment as New York went 1-4 down the stretch and failed to make the playoffs.

A major reason for the collapse was Favre, who threw nine interceptions in those five games. He said he played with a torn biceps tendon in his right shoulder that got worse later in the season and needed a cortisone injection after the team's game at San Francisco in Week 14.

"It's something that obviously I was able to play with," he said. "I don't think I was nearly as productive as the season progressed, but it very well could be fine next year. I'm well aware of that. But then again, it could linger and bother me throughout the year and I just felt like it was time. I think that, to me more than anything, was a wakeup call."

Favre insisted that even if his shoulder felt better next season, he's still done with playing.

"It's nothing I would second-guess, no," he said.

If this is indeed it for Favre, he leaves the game with a slew of records, including career touchdown passes (464), completions (5,720), yards passing (65,127), regular-season victories (169) and interceptions (310).

Tejada guilty of misleading Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dressed in a defendant's dark suit instead of an All-Star's crisp uniform, Miguel Tejada became the first high-profile player convicted of a crime stemming from baseball's steroids era, pleading guilty Wednesday in federal court to misleading Congress about the use of performance-enhancing drugs.

Under a plea agreement with the same prosecutors pursuing a perjury indictment against Roger Clemens, Tejada admitted he withheld information about an ex-teamsmate's use of steroids and human growth hormone when questioned by a House committee's investigators in August 2005.

Tejada — the 2002 American League MVP with the Oakland Athletics and a five-time All-Star shortstop now with the Houston Astros — also acknowledged he bought HGH while playing for the A's, but said he threw the drugs away without using them. Prosecutors said they have no evidence to contradict that.

"I just want to apologize," Tejada said as he fought back tears hours later at a Houston news conference, where he did not take questions. "I made a mistake, and now I know how serious of a mistake that I made for not answering a question about another teammate."

The misdemeanor can lead to as much as a year in jail. Federal guidelines call for a lighter sentence, and one of his lawyers, Mark Tuohy, said he thinks Tejada will receive probation.

Astros general manager Ed Wade expects Tejada to be present when players report for spring training Tuesday in Florida. Wade also said Tejada still plans to play in the March 5-23 World Baseball Classic.

"Hopefully, we're one more step for putting a lot of stuff behind us," Wade said. "It's been a tough week for baseball and sports in general. We're finding out that it takes a lot of time for lies to dissipate and for sins to disappear."

Federal Magistrate Judge Alan Kay set Tejada's sentencing for March 26; the Astros are not scheduled to play an exhibition game that day.

Kay asked more than once whether the Dominican Republic-born Tejada understood this could affect his immigration status in the United States. "Yes, your honor," Tejada replied.

A letter sent by prosecutors to his attorneys on Feb. 5 outlining the terms of their plea deal said: "His guilty plea in this case may subject him to detention, deportation and other sanctions at the direction of the United States Immigration and Customs Enforcement."

But Tuohy said Tejada's status has been discussed with immigration officials. The lawyer does not believe Tejada will be deported because of this case.

EX-GIRLFRIEND FILES LAWSUIT AGAINST ALOMAR

NEW YORK — An ex-girlfriend of Roberto Alomar filed an explosive lawsuit alleging the former baseball star insisted on unprotected sex for four years despite having AIDS.

The lawsuit, filed Jan. 30 and transferred to U.S. District Court on Wednesday, contains accusations that could not be corroborated but portray Alomar as someone who demanded sex without a condom despite showing obvious signs of HIV.

Ilya Dall is seeking at least $15 million in punitive damages from the 41-year-old former infielder. Alomar, who was once engaged to tennis star Mary Pierce, spent 17 years in the majors and was one of the game's great second basemen.

"This is a very private, personal matter and I greatly appreciate all the support I have received in the past few days from my family, friends and colleagues in baseball," Alomar said in a statement. "I am in very good health and I ask that you respect my privacy during this time."

"As for the lawsuit, it is filled with lies and I am deeply saddened that someone I cared for would make such terrible accusations and try to hurt me in this way."

Calls seeking comment to lawyers for Alomar and Dall were not immediately returned. Alomar lawyer Charles Bach told the New York Daily News the allegations are "frivolous and baseless."

Johnson overlooked after 3 straight championships?

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Jimmie Johnson came to Daytona International Speedway with a new beard and a cut finger, two topics that have so far overshadowed his status as NASCAR's three-time defending champion.

So just how overlooked is Johnson's on-track achievements? Carl Edwards was picked over Johnson to win this year's Sprint Cup championship.

"What about me?" Johnson wondered Wednesday, the first full day of preparations for the season-opening Daytona 500. "I just thought, 'Damn, if you won three championships in a row, you'd think you'd be a favorite.'"

Johnson earned a spot in NASCAR's record book last season, tying Cale Yarborough's 30-year-old mark as the only driver to win three straight Cup titles. He's won 40 races in his seven seasons and has crushed the competition through consistency: a bad day for Johnson is finishing outside the top 10, which he did only 14 times last season.

Yet there's a perception that Johnson's achievements are overlooked, even though no driver has figured out how to catch him.

"He's such a damn good guy, that I think he gets overlooked a lot," said good friend and former teammate Casey Mears. "Here's a guy that has done something nobody has done in a long time, in an era that isn't even close to how it was in the past. It was competitive, but not near as competitive as it is now. So to do what he's done in these days is ridiculous."

"But he's not one of those guys who is jumping up and down saying 'Look what I did.' He's not asking for that attention."

The end result is an unusual level of interest in both his close-cropped new beard and the left middle finger he sliced with a kitchen knife last month.

Vandals

"It definitely was awkward there, but it was more with the fans and the people around," Verlin said. "Hopefully, the awkwardness is on him this time when he comes to our place."

The Vandals, enjoying their best start in a decade, have been the surprise of the WAC this season.

They are led by Mac Hopson, a transfer from Washington State, who's averaging 16.4 points, 5.9

assists and 5.1 rebounds per game. Kashif Watson adds 10 points per game, while Brandon Wiley averages 9.3 points and 6 rebounds.

The Vandals don't have any signature wins over major programs, and suffered lopsided early losses to No. 19 Gonzaga and No. 9 Michigan St. But they have already beaten Nevada, Hawaii, New Mexico State and archrival Boise State, breaking a 14-game winning streak, and sit in fourth place in the league.

Their WAC losses have been narrow except for an uncharacteristic 71-49 pounding at Hawaii in their last outing. They had beaten Hawaii by 20 in Moscow.

"We played as poorly as we have played all year and I don't really know why," Verlin said of the loss. "I think we are a little tired and we may be a little worn down, but we have got to get over that because we have a huge week."

Verlin, who brought in 12

new players, realizes there are plenty of hurdles to overcome.

Idaho has not beaten a ranked opponent since 1982, and hasn't played in the NCAA tournament since 1990.

"You're always excited, especially when you get the best teams on your home court," Verlin said. "I know our guys are excited and looking forward to the game and you are not a competitor if you're not."

Milicic

to have her season ended by an ACL tear after All-American post Maddy Plunkett suffered the same injury during a preseason jamboree in October.

"We've lost another key part of our team," said Rogers of Milicic.

In her absence, 6-foot freshman MeChel Hunt will likely take on a larger role along with sophomore guard Cassie Wood.

CSI, which moved up one spot in the NJCAA Division I Women's Basketball Top 25 released Wednesday, takes its league-leading record to Ephraim, Utah, this week for a pair of games at second-place Snow College.

The Badgers are 16-8 overall and 7-2 in SWAC play, including a 4-0 mark at home. But CSI has won 16 of its last 17 games and the No. 11 ranking is the highest since the Golden Eagles were No. 3 in the preseason poll on Oct. 22.

With the poll being used to seed teams for the NJCAA tournament in March, Rogers said the ranking will be a boon for his team if it can win the Region 18 tourney title.

 A Petition, a copy of which is attached, has been filed in the above-entitled matter in the Magistrate's Division of the District Court of Twin Falls County, Idaho, by the Prosecuting Attorney, alleging the above-named child comes within the jurisdiction of the Child Protective Act.

 You are notified that if you fail to appear without reasonable cause, the Court may proceed in your absence or you may be proceeded against for contempt of Court.
 You are notified that the parent(s), guardian, or a custodian may be financially liable for the support and/or treatment of the child.

NOTICE OF APPLICATION FOR APPROVAL OF SECOND MITIGATION PLAN TO COMPENSATE SNAKE RIVER FARMS

Notice is hereby given that on December 18, 2008, North Snake Ground Water District and Magic Valley Ground Water District (collectively referred to as "the districts"), c/o Randall C. Budge, Racine Olson Nye Budge & Bailey, PO Box 1391, Pocatello ID 83204-1391, submitted a Second Mitigation Plan of North Snake Ground Water District and Magic Valley Ground Water District (plan or mitigation plan) to the Department of Water Resources (Department). The Department will process this plan pursuant to the Department's Conjunctive Management Rules (IDAPA 37, Title 03, Chapter 11).

The members of the districts hold ground water rights for domestic, municipal, commercial and industrial uses, and for irrigation of approximately 220,000 acres located mostly north of the Snake River within Gooding, Jerome, Lincoln, Minidoka, Blaine and Cassia Counties. Certain of these ground water rights have priority dates junior to the priority dates of certain water rights from spring sources that discharge to the Buhl to Thousand Springs reach of the Snake River. The ground water and the springs are interconnected sources of water. The districts have proposed the mitigation plan to mitigate injury to earlier priority surface water rights that may result from depletions under later priority ground water rights. The surface water rights which the mitigation plan proposes to benefit are: 36-4013B and 36-7148, both held by Clear Springs Foods for use at their Snake River Farm hatchery facility. The mitigation proposed is in the form of monetary compensation in the amount of $17,820 per cubic foot per second loss of flow per year caused by the ground water depletions.

The Department has not determined the adequacy of the proposed plan. A complete copy of the proposed plan is available for review at either the Department's State Office in Boise, the Department's Regional Office in Twin Falls, or may be viewed online at the following website along with other related documents: http://www.idwr.idaho.gov/Calls/Spring%20Users%20Calls/snake_river.htm

Any protest against approval of the plan must be filed with the Department of Water Resources, together with a protest fee of $25 on or before February 23, 2009. The protest must include a certificate of service showing that a copy of the protest has been mailed to or served on the districts.

Couple rules out divorce for sake of grown children

DEAR ABBY: Two years ago, my husband of 25 years, "Glen," discovered that I'd had an affair 10 years earlier. After he found out, he couldn't sleep or eat, had recurring nightmares about the affair and was suicidal. He says it is still the first thing that pops into his mind when he wakes up and the last thing he thinks about when he goes to sleep. Neither of us thinks he will ever be able to get over it.

Glen doesn't want to be married to someone who would lie and cheat, and I don't want to be married to someone who can't love me. Actually, I don't think I love him, either. We have discussed divorce many times but it always comes down to our kids.

They are all on their own, but they would be devastated if we divorced — especially if they knew what caused it. We don't want them to go through the pain that Glen has gone through. We love them and cherish the times we still have together as a family. If we were to divorce, it would never be the same.

Are we crazy to stay together for the kids?

— GOING THROUGH THE MOTIONS IN ILLINOIS

DEAR GOING: I am not the person who should answer that question. Only you and Glen can do that. I can, however, advise you that you and your husband are two years overdue for couples therapy.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

Infidelity is painful, but it is possible to recover from it, heal a marriage and emerge stronger than ever as a couple. However, if it is not possible to do that, then divorce is a preferable alternative to the marriage you have described.

DEAR ABBY: I have a simple answer for "Frustrated in Pennsylvania" (Nov. 30), whose wife forgets to enter her check amounts into her check register. I had the same problem when I was first married.

My smart wife went to the bank and asked for advice. The checks I've used ever since make a carbon copy. The date, to whom the check is written and the amount are all automatically recorded on the copy. The checks come in a wide selection of designs — and the peace of mind is really nice.

— BOB B. LE CENTER, MINN.

DEAR BOB: Many readers wrote, as you did, that duplicate checks are the solution to this common problem, which, by the way, affects both men and women. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: Here's what I did

IF FEBRUARY 12 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: The Force is with you. Not only are you admired and viewed by others through rose-colored glasses, but you are also at a zenith of personal ambition. You can accomplish much this year by securing the job of your dreams or obtaining a promotion. If you are single, a soul mate may cross your path between now and August, or you may enter into a permanent commitment. In May and July, enjoy the fruits of your labors and look for unexpected lucky breaks that relieve you of pressing responsibilities or open up a world of possibilities.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Friendships are not expendable. Even if you feel that you have outgrown a relationship, you will never be at peace with yourself if you sacrifice a friendship to make a few bucks.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Be a friend to win a friend. You're charismatic and attractive under these stars, so do your best to win friends and influence others. You might discover a lifelong friend or ally. Business matters flourish.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Never promise more than you can deliver. This isn't a good day to make important decisions because you are much too optimistic and have a tendency to ignore possible pitfalls. Try not to exaggerate.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Hide and seek. Prosperity is just around the corner, but you won't want everyone to know that your main intention is to make money or earn a promotion. Ensure that you can keep friendships, as well.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Spend money to make money, but remember that it is wise to save a few pennies whenever possible if you want to accumulate a nest egg. Be alert for actions, not words, from a partner.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Inspire, don't conspire. Career and business matters can reach new heights of glory. You won't be able to outfox the wise old owl or to crow about your accomplishments, but you can set a good example.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Good posture is more than just a matter of etiquette. Keep your shoulders back and walk proudly. Romantic dreams can become a reality under these pleasant stars if you walk the straight and narrow.

Today is Thursday, Feb. 12, the 43rd day of 2009. There are 322 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Feb. 12, 1809, Abraham Lincoln, the 16th president of the United States, was born in present-day LaRue County, Ky. Naturalist Charles Darwin was born in Shrewsbury, England.

On this date:
 In 1554, Lady Jane Grey, who'd claimed the throne of England for nine days, and her husband, Guildford Dudley, were beheaded after being condemned for high treason.

In 1818, Chile officially proclaimed its independence, more than seven years after initially renouncing Spanish rule.

In 1870, women in the Utah Territory gained the right to vote. (However, that right was taken away in 1887 before being restored in 1895).

In 1908, the first round-the-world automobile race began in New York. (It ended in Paris the following July with the drivers of the American car, a Thomas Flyer, declared the winners over teams from Germany and Italy.)

In 1909, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People was founded in New York.

TODAY IN HISTORY

In 1912, Pu Yi, the last emperor of China, abdicated, marking the end of the Qing Dynasty.

In 1914, ground was broken for the Lincoln Memorial in Washington, D.C. (The cornerstone was laid on this date one year later.)

In 1940, the radio play "The Adventures of Superman" debuted with Bud Collyer as the Man of Steel.

In 1959, the redesigned Lincoln penny, with an image of the Lincoln Memorial replacing two ears of wheat on the reverse side, went into circulation.

In 1973, Operation Homecoming began as the first release of American prisoners of war from the Vietnam conflict took place.

Ten years ago: The Senate voted to acquit President Bill Clinton of perjury and obstruction of justice; Clinton told Americans he was "profoundly sorry" for what he'd said and done in the Monica Lewinsky affair that triggered it all. Swarms of anxious travelers were left stranded when American Airlines again scrubbed more than 1,000 flights after its pilots defied a court order and continued their mass sickout.

Five years ago: Defying a California law, San Francisco officials began performing weddings for same-sex couples. Four men were charged in a 42-count indictment alleging they'd run a steroid-distribution ring that provided performance-enhancing drugs to dozens of athletes in the NFL, the major leagues and track and field. (All four later pleaded guilty to steroids-related charges, and two of them, personal trainer Greg Anderson and Bay Area Laboratory Co-Operative founder Victor Conte, served several months in prison.)

One year ago: Democrat Barack Obama and Republican John McCain won their respective parties' primaries in Maryland, Virginia and the District of Columbia. General Motors reported losing $38.7 billion in 2007, the largest annual loss in automotive history, and offered buyouts to 74,000 hourly workers. Imad Mughniyah, one of world's most wanted terrorists, was killed in a car bombing in Damascus, Syria. Character actor David Groh died in Los Angeles at age 68. Uno became the first beagle named Westminster's best in show.

— LORRAINE H. SIERRA VISTA, ARIZ.

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I could never resolve our conflicts over finances. We have more arguments about money than any other subject. We finally resolved it by getting three separate accounts: hers, mine and "household," to which we both contribute equally.

— GERALD IN LA QUINTA, CALIF.

— FAITH IN HANNIBAL, MO.

DEAR FAITH: The rule of thumb that I was taught is that calls between 9 a.m. and 9 p.m. are appropriate. To call before or after that could be intrusive because the person may retire early or sleep a little later.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Major progress can be made, especially in the love department, but business requirements or responsibilities could keep you apart. New ways of doing things can challenge even the most adept.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Stature is not a substitute for substance. It is fabulous to have lofty connections and a great reputation, but it is also necessary to possess the necessary qualifications and experience.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Don't feel snubbed by situations that require formality. You might be more impressed by the label than by the quality today, so if you see something that looks like a bargain be sure it passes inspection.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You may have too many irons in the fire to juggle without getting burned. Rest assured that someone will show up to lend a hand. A true blue friend may be there in the nick of time.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Concentrate on the big issues for the best success. Don't get sidetracked by coupon clipping or petty economies. Those who find you the most enthralling will be your best advocates for business success or love.

In 1812, Massachusetts Gov. Elbridge Gerry signed a redistricting law favoring his party, giving rise to the term "gerrymandering."

In 1861, President-elect Abraham Lincoln departed Springfield, Ill., for Washington.

Ten years ago: A federal jury in New York found several gun makers responsible in three area shootings for letting guns fall into the hands of criminals and assessed damages; gun makers were found liable in six other instances, but no monetary damages were awarded. (However, the plaintiffs suffered a setback in 2001 when the New York Court of Appeals invalidated such claims.)

Five years ago: Wesley Clark dropped out of the race for the White House. A car bomb at an army recruiting center in Baghdad, Iraq, killed 47 people. Cable TV giant Comcast Corp. launched a hostile bid to buy The Walt Disney Co. for more than $54 billion. (Comcast later dropped its bid).

SUDOKU

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Conceptis Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.

ANSWER: A simple raise to two hearts is sufficient, with all your points in what is probably one of the opponents' suits. If you had all your values in hearts, not spades, you would consider doing more (e.g., making a heavy preemptive raise), but as it is, although you might compete to three hearts later, you do not have to do so yet.

I have been playing bridge for 50 years, and what interests and excites me about the game is that no rules can be set in stone. Everybody knows how to take a finesse, you might say, but you would be wrong.

In today's deal, West opened one no-trump to show a balanced 11-14 points, and East transferred into hearts, but you still managed to reach four spades. On the top-heart lead, you duck to make sure to keep East off lead. You then win the heart continuation and draw trump, as East pitches a heart and two small clubs. What is the next move?

You might play three rounds of diamonds to toss West in, but what if East has the diamond queen? There is room for it, after all. If you lead a club to your king, West wins and underleads in clubs to East for the fatal diamond shift, so is there a solution?

Yes, there is. Ruff a heart to hand — just in case! Then lead a LOW club from your hand. East wins, and does best to play a diamond, but you rise with the ace and play the club king. You know West must win this and face immediate concession. If he plays back a club, you have a ruff and sluff, and if he exits with a diamond, it will be into your K-J tenace. In either case, your diamond loser goes away.
