Church gets seminary site

LDS building will be next to new high school

By Ben Botkin Times-News writer

The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints will have a seminary for students of Canyon Ridge High School.

The church intends to begin construction this spring and to open the building when Canyon Ridge takes students in the fall, said Mark Holmstead, president of the church's Twin Falls West Stake.

"As local leaders, we're planning on the seminary to be completed so local LDS kids can attend," Holmstead said. "That was why that property was acquired."

Holmstead anticipates that about 90 of Canyon Ridge's roughly 900 students students will take religious instruction courses at the seminary during release time peri-

The building will be west of the new school at the southeast corner of Park View Drive and Cheney Drive, which is still under construction.

The land in the past was owned by the Twin Falls School District, but was transferred to the church through a series of transactions that also involved the city of Twin

In September 2007, the 1.37acre property, valued at about $103,000, was transferred to the city along with a couple unrelated

The district also agreed to construct the east half of the street, curb, gutter and sidewalk along Park View Drive adjacent to the land, at the cost of $77,250.

The district's other properties that the city received were two acres along Hankins Road, valued at $120,000, and 11 acres on the south end of the city valued at $137,500, according to a written agreement approved by the school board and city council.

Ethan Hunt, center, a senior at Twin Falls High School, talks with his seminary teacher, Rob Wallace, Thursday while Tabitha Wicker looks on at The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints seminary in Twin Falls High School.

In exchange, the city waived all building permit fees for Canyon Ridge and did not require the district to pay for reconstruction of part of North College Road or other street improvements for Washington Street North and Cheney Drive near the new school.

The city also waived a requirement that the district pay a share of the cost of a traffic signal at the intersection of North College Road and Washington Street North.

The total value of all the waivers was $443,854, compared with $437,750 that the school district gave the city in land and improve-

"We traded value for value," said Mitch Humble, community development director for Twin Falls. "The school board looked at this agreement and the City Council looked at it and approved it."

Last September, the city purchased the LDS Softball Complex located south of Highland Park, trading the land near the new high school and paying the church about $259,000, Humble said.

The future seminary property was deeded to church in November. Humble said his understanding is the city didn't need to go through a public bidding process because the deal involved a trade for other property.

Bliss High teacher accused of having sex with student

By Andrea Jackson Times-News writer

A Bliss High School teacher allegedly had sex with a 16-year-old student, including once at a shop in the school, according to Gooding County court records.

Anna M. Bettencourt, 39, of Wendell, is charged with two counts of felony sexual battery of a minor. Police interviewed and arrested Bettencourt Tuesday, and she was arraigned Wednesday in Gooding County 5th District Court.

She was suspended with pay this week from her social studies teaching post, pending the resolution of the case against her, said Bliss School District Clerk Michelle Elliot.

Bettencourt and the male student allegedly had intercourse twice between Aug. 15 and Sept. 30 — once on the floor of the school's agriculture shop on a Sunday, and again in the boy's pickup truck after they met up at the school, according to court records filed Wednesday. According to court records, both the boy and the teacher admitted they had sex twice.

The boy "told some people about it, and it became very difficult for her (Bettencourt) to teach," court

Workers add to a liquid-waste lagoon at the Dry Creek Dairy on Thursday, as seen from 3000 North Road.

Twin Falls County examines waste lagoon at Murtaugh dairy

By Nate Poppino Times-News writer

MURTAUGH — Twin Falls County officials say they are investigating a dairy southwest of Murtaugh for its attempt to deal with excess animal waste.

Dry Creek Dairy, owned by Luis Bettencourt, appears to be expanding its liquidwaste lagoon beyond what's allowed in its special-use permit, Planning and Zoning Administrator Rick Dunn said Thursday.

Confined-animal feeding operations are allowed to repair or modify existing lagoons as needed, he said.

Dry Creek's — as much as 50 acres of new lagoon in an area slated for composting — have to go through the permitting process.

The county received a complaint on Feb. 9 and has since asked Bettencourt for more information about what he's doing, as well as notified the Idaho State Department of Agriculture.

Several construction vehicles could be seen pushing dirt around north of the dairy's main buildings on Thursday. But Joe Brasil, who oversees cows and waste management for Bettencourt's facilities south

But adjustments the size of of the Snake River, said the work isn't a new lagoon so much as a safety precaution.

The dairy was a little behind in emptying its holding ponds before winter set in, he said. About four feet of snowfall in late December coincided with the facility's digester breaking down, leading to full holding ponds and runoff issues. To avoid any more problems, he said, workers are adding to a banked area to control

Brasil emphasized that the dairy will be more careful this fall.

Ketchum lays off four, freezes salaries

By Ariel Hansen Times-News writer

KETCHUM — Ketchum garnered the dubious distinction of being the first city in the Magic and Wood River valleys to lay off workers due to the economy.

"The needs of the many versus the needs of the few," said Ketchum Mayor Randy Hall. "We evaluated all the positions in the city and made very difficult choices about a very dedicated employee pool.'

The layoffs came after about $730,000 had already been cut from the city's budget in recent months, and they were accompanied by salary freezes across the board, reductions in elected officials' salaries, and a 3 percent cut in all departments. Five city positions, including three in the police department, will remain unfilled through the end of the fiscal year at least.

The mayor, who makes approximately $36,000, and City Council members, all paid around $20,000, will see 10 percent pay cuts.

The individuals whose positions were eliminated were legal assistant Barbi Ross, public information officer and special events coordinator Kim Rogers, community service officer and parking enforcer Joan Loubot, and building inspector Tom Abbot.

All these positions have been affected by declines in city revenues from local option taxes, state revenue sharing and building permits.

"It was very difficult to justify spending tax dollars on a building inspector when there are no buildings to inspect," Hall said, noting that events like 48 Straight have also shut down, leaving little for a special events coordinator to do. "We waited until what we thought was the last possible moment. Because we don't see any bright sign within the economy, we can no longer afford to meet these salary obliga-

In total, today's layoffs and the other cost-cutting efforts will save the city an additional $586,000.

Hall said he hopes these cuts will be sufficient to tide the city through until the next budget, but with the economy looking as it does, he isn't optimistic 2010 will be any easier.

'We are working on contingencies for a worsening economy and it might very well mean more reduction in force," he said.

On Feb. 13 a school official called the Gooding County sheriff's office to report "possible sexual battery of a minor," according to police reports. While interviewing school officials, authorities determined that a school aide had first heard about the alleged encounters sexual in November but had not reported it until Tuesday. "That's a personnel issue

Kevin Lancaster, superintendent of the 170-student school district, could not be reached for comment Thursday.

According to court records, the school aide gave deputies copies of text messages she said Bettencourt had sent to her. In the messages, Bettencourt allegedly acknowledges "text flirting" with the boy. The boy told authorities the sexual relationship began six or seven months ago when Bettencourt began texting him sexually charged messages, according to court records. "She said she was going Bettencourt was released from jail on her own recognizance, but ordered not to have contact with children other than her own. She was distraught during her police interview this week, according to court records. "She told me that she would rather die than hurt

The Comanche is a fourseat, single-engine plane, and considered a more complex plane to fly because of its retractable landing gear and constant speed propeller. Kenner said that was why the original plan was for the more experienced Kenner to fly the plane to Utah.

"Craig indicated that he had 15 hours flying a Comanche," Kenner said. "That's what he told me multiple times. He looked comfortable in it."

With Jewett in his new plane and Kenner in his, they left the Caldwell Industrial Airport on Sunday between 7 and 8 p.m., authorities said.

"The plan was: Just fly straight home, and I'll follow you," Kenner said.

Kenner lost sight of Jewett in the faster Comanche not long after take off, but communicated by radio for about 40 minutes. Kenner said Jewett told him he was ascending and descending rapidly like a roller coaster.

"Early on, I think he was doing quite a bit of that for fun. You get a new toy," Kenner said. "We talked about the weather. You could see mountain obscurations."

Kenner said he told Jewett to turn off his strobe lights to avoid night blindness. Jewett told Kenner he might land in Mountain Home, about 50 miles east of Boise, to close the door of his aircraft because it was not fully latched.

Dairyman files second Twin Falls appeal

Machado seeks review of dairy expansion denial

By Nate Poppino Times-News writer

A man seeking to expand his western Twin Falls County dairy will again plead his case to the county commissioners, they confirmed Tuesday.

Mal Machado, whose Providence Dairy sits within a one-mile setback along Salmon Falls Creek Canyon southwest of Buhl, applied last year for a variance to expand the operation but was turned down by the county Planning and Zoning Commission in June. County commissioners found in November that the P&Z likely voted without a quorum and sent the matter back for another hearing. But Machado was again turned down in January, as before by just one vote.

Now, he's again appealed the decision to the county commissioners, who serve as the appeal board for P&Z deci-

The dairyman currently leases the six-acre facility, but has agreements to buy it and join it with 154 acres of farmland next door. In the process, he would expand from 200 milking cows to 420 and bring 60 dry cows and 467 heifers already associated with the dairy onto the site. The changes likely wouldn't happen for two years.

It's not clear what reasoning Machado will argue this time around. His attorney, John Lothspeich, declined comment on his pending filing on Wednesday. But the dairyman's new appeal could end up being similar to his first fact, most people present one, only one piece of which dealt with the quorum issue.

Lothspeich also argued then that the P&Z didn't follow its own standards of review for granting variances — writing among other issues that the variance is in line with the county's comprehensive plan and that denying it will affect the dairy's current operations, contrary to the P&Z's opinion.

Commissioners stopped short of addressing those issues in the previous appeal, declaring them moot after ruling on the lack of a quorum.

January's discussion touched on the same issues. In including P&Z members and the general public — seemed to agree with one of Lothspeich's arguments, that denying the variance would cause the dairy's demise several years down the road. County staff and the four P&Z members opposing the variance said, however, that the facility wouldn't suffer "undue hardship," in part because Machado doesn't own the won't hear the appeal for several weeks. They voted Tuesday to extend the filing deadline for Machado and the Planning and Zoning Department, giving them more time to compile the transcript of the hearing and file their briefs.

N. Idaho lawmaker wants state gov. checkbook online

By Jared S. Hopkins Times-News writer

BOISE — A north Idaho legislator wants to put Idaho's state government expenses on an online searchable database modeled after the federal program set up by President Obama when he was a U.S. senator.

Rep. Phil Hart, R-Athol, introduced "The Taxpayer Transparency Act" on Thursday to the House State Affairs Committee to create a database of all state government spending, including advisory commissions. It would be administered by the state controller's office and would add more openness to government, he said. It would not lead to the release of private information like state worker personnel records.

"It would be the radar," Hart said. "It would create more visibility."

Hart said the legislation is essentially two parts, and the $250,000 estimated to purchase software and pay staff wouldn't be spent unless the state found the money.

He said the amount could be less but conceded he hasn't consulted with state budget writers.

Still, Hart said the bill could lead to long-term savings and said a similar mechanism in Texas yielded around $4.8 million in sav-

Democrats, all of whom voted against introducing the measure, said they liked the idea but were concerned about its funding in the current economic climate.

"This is a great bill but it scares me to death," said Rep. Anne Pasley-Stuart, D-Boise said. "That's a lot of money and we don't have Republicans echoed similar concerns but voted to print the bill with the hope that more information will be available at a hearing.

"The more transparency we have in state government the better," said Rep. Raul Labrador, R-Eagle.

Blaine County officials hear from expert on airport governance

By Ariel Hansen Times-News writer

KETCHUM — Though a new airport to replace Friedman Memorial in Hailey is likely still a long way off, elected officials in Blaine County are already planning for that future.

On Wednesday, representatives from the cities and the county met in Ketchum to hear from a lawyer who specializes in airport governance, to gather information about possible ways to structure a governance board for the replacement airport.

Daniel Reimer, Colorado-based Kaplan Kirsch & Rockwell, was

"You may end up throwing a very expensive party that no one wants to attend."

 Jay Hagenbuch, co-owner of a charter jet, about the possibilty of the county driving away high-end airport users

Friedman Authority.

He didn't make any specific recommendations, but the elected officials said the background he provided will be invaluable.

Among the issues they discussed was who should be represented on a governance board. Friedman does — and presumably the replacement airport will — have commercial flights as well as general brought to the meeting by aviation flights, which are Airport unscheduled. The officials recognize that input from both user groups will be needed.

> Jay Hagenbuch, who coowns a charter jet, said there also needs to be representation for high-end users who own their own planes but want to remain low-profile. These users may choose rival resort towns if it becomes too difficult to get to the Sun Valley area, he warned.

"You may end up throwing a very expensive party that no one wants to attend," Hagenbuch said.

Ketchum City Councilman Charles Conn said that while he agrees that votes on the governance board shouldn't be based on money, the economic engines that drive the north county are critical to the vitality of the county as a whole.

'We have to figure out what we can do to not make ourselves less attractive," he understood by critical peosaid.

Many of his constituents say they haven't heard good arguments for why the current airport can't be improved, or why its replacement can't be located closer to the north end of the county, he said. "Those things haven't been well enough ple up here for us to steamroll into any decisions."

The blue ribbon commission on airport governance is scheduled to meet again on March 4 in Hailey.

State to receive $4M in homelessness funds

Idaho will receive more than $4 million this year from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development for housing and support services for the homeless.

Grants from the federal provide agency will $926,135 for the Boise area, while the rest of the state will share about $3.1 million in both Continuum of Care and Emergency Shelter grants. The money will fund programs for both families and individuals in Twin Falls, Pocatello, Idaho Falls and other communities.

Among other recipients, Magic Valley Transitional Housing will get roughly $49,500, and Twin Falls Transitional Housing will get about $44,200.

A press release quoted HUD Secretary Shaun Donovan as saying the grants represent "a critical lifeline" for victims of home foreclosures or job layoffs.

Idaho universities look to get stimulus dollars

BOISE (AP) — Idaho colleges that want a piece of the $1 billion economic stimulus money headed Idaho's way will have to submit proposals to the state's Division of Financial Management by noon on March 4.

The agency will review those proposals and, by March 19, make recommendations to an Executive Stimulus Committee appointed by Gov. C.L.

"Butch" Otter.

Task force members, who were recently notified of their selection, include university vice presidents, students, faculty members and staff, with each assigned to review a certain portion of and we'll turn over every rock the stimulus bill.

"A lot of people have some of the benefits of this bill,

Fletcher noted that stimulus projects must spur job creation, and that Otter has requested that the proposals not result in a future financial burden to the state.

"ISU will spare no effort, to make sure we maximize all both for the university and together make sure they spent, not studied.' for the state of Idaho," receive fair consideration by Boise State U Fletcher said.

Making a trip through northern Idaho, Rep. Walt Minnick, D-Idaho, said he would work to make sure the University of Idaho receives money from the stimulus package that he voted against.

"I told them I will do anything I can to facilitate that, months appointing commis-and when they get their list sions," he said. "It's to be Minnick said the state should rely on existing agencies, such as the State Board of Education, to distribute the money.

Boise State University spokesman Frank Zang said the school has an administrative council that regularly discusses the economic situation and how the school can deal with budget challenges.

'We will work with state officials to determine where we have viable projects that meet the qualifications of the stimulus package," he said.

JFAC plans meetings on stimulus next week

BOISE (AP) — Idaho budget writers will review the potential effect of the $787 billion federal stimulus package on Idaho most of next week.

Sen. Dean Cameron, Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee co-chairman, plans an overview of the massive, 1,100-page stimulus bill on Monday, followed by meetings focusing on education and universities Tuesday, the Department of Health and Welfare Thursday, and the Department

Transportation on Friday. Gov. Otter has said he'll take until at least late March to review the stimulus package and its booty for Idaho, which could be up to $1 billion over a couple years.

Next week, Idaho lawmakers also plan to review how changes made by the stimulus package to the federal tax code will affect filings in Idaho, including a possible loss of some revenue as the state conforms its laws to the federal government's.

Decision to privatize prison rests with board

BOISE (AP) — The head of Idaho's Department of Correction says the threemember Board of Correction could have the final say over whether to privatize the prison at Orofino.

Brent Reinke says Idaho's Constitution delegates the power to privatize state-run prisons to the board, and doesn't require the approval of the Idaho Legislature.

His comments came Thursday in response to a question from Sen. Joyce Broadsword, R-Sagle, during a meeting of the Senate's Health and Welfare Committee.

The Correction Department, under the direction of Gov. Otter, is researching the possibility of privatizing the state-run Idaho Correctional Institution at Orofino as a way to save money if the budget picture in 2011 and 2012 doesn't improve.

Otter is a proponent of private prisons; in 2008 the Legislature rebuffed an effort to build a new private prison. However, lawmakers did agree to add 600 more beds to what is currently the only private prison within state borders — the Correction Corp. of America-run Idaho Correction Center south of Boise.

Some lawmakers have voiced concern over any plan that would lead to privatizing the Orofino prison, fearing that state employees there could lose jobs or be forced to work for lower pay and benefits if the facility is handed over to a private company. Reinke said the department was keeping the Orofino employees wellinformed about the process, and said at this point it is still just research — not a request for bids. Still, he said, it would all come down to the budget.

How did Jason Smith fall through the cracks?

magine you're a parent of small children who picks up the Terre Haute, Ind., Tribune-Star this morning and learns that your neighbor is Jason Carrol Smith.

Convicted three times for sexual assault of a minor, this former Twin Falls resident is the type of criminal who violent sexual predator lists were designed to identify.

Indiana authorities know Smith is a sexual criminal, but until Wednesday they believed he had been convicted of statutory rape — a sex crime, to be sure, but one based on the age of a consensual victim. That's when Times-News reporter Andrea Jackson connected the dots for them.

Smith, 33, managed to scrub most of his record by moving to a small central Indiana town in 2007, two years after he was released from prison in Idaho. He registered as a sex offender in Indiana, but that state's public Web site doesn't mention two of the three criminal convictions that earned him a classification as a Violent Sexual Predator in Idaho. That status was dropped last week following an Idaho Supreme Court ruling.

Here's Smith rap sheet:

• In 1990 at the age of 14, Smith raped a 5-yearold Twin Falls boy he was babysitting. He was convicted as a juvenile and put in a three-month sex offender program that took him six months to complete because of his behavior.

• Three years later, Smith admitted to raping another boy. After 30 days in jail he was remanded to state custody until he was 21. Smith's cousin, Pam Henstock, said he raped her son and killed a dog in front of him as a way to frighten the child into keeping the rape secret.

• In 1998, Smith pleaded guilty to raping a 15-year-old girl and went to prison.

• When he was released from prison in 2005, Smith told authorities he raped another boy who was only 5 or 6 years old sometime before 1990. That confession came during a polygraph test, but did not result in criminal charges.

If Jason Smith isn't a dangerous sexual predator, he'll do until the real thing comes along.

In June 2007, Smith informed the state he was moving to Brazil, Ind. According to the Indiana sex offender site, he's now living in Terre Haute.

The sheriff there, who is responsible for adding Smith to his state's Web site, says he doesn't have the staff to do much more than repeat what the new offender in town tells them about his past.

Idaho officials won't say what they told Indiana about Smith. It's up to the receiving state to ask for details.

Smith hasn't been arrested for anything in Indiana, but those who know him best — including his own family — say they fear he will attack again.

We sincerely hope children around Terre Haute aren't forced to pay the price for interstate bureaucratic blind spots.

It came with bench seats, the better to have your date close to you. I bought it used (this was before cars were "preowned") in 1961. My Dad cosigned the $750 note, which I

CAL THOMAS

Those were the days when you could fill up for pocket change. Somewhere I have old Esso receipts that show a full tank of regular gas cost me $3.

Chevrolet, Buick, Pontiac and Cadillac were the mainstays of GM, as Fairlane, Crestline Skyliner, Falcon and later Galaxie were for Ford, some of which I would own as an adult. I would also own some Chrysler products, so I have contributed to the profits of all the "Big Three."

Ford is fending for itself without a bailout from Washington, but GM and Chrysler have filed their restructuring proposals with the government in order to receive additional billions to keep them solvent. On Tuesday, GM received the final $4 billion on a $13.4 billion federal commitment. Chrysler, also getting $4 billion, has already requested an additional $3 billion. The money is conditioned on GM and Chrysler coming up with comprehensive restructuring plans that will prove to the government that they have made "aggressive" progress since they pleaded with lawmakers last

Here's a better idea: Let them die a slow death, with the emphasis on slow. Tell workers (management always seems to land on its feet) that they have a fixed amount of time to look for new jobs. Government will help them with training and education, but government cannot prop up companies that no longer make products people want to buy in large enough numbers for them to remain profitable.

There are many reasons the car companies are in trouble, all of which have been reported in the major media, but that is the past and it is way too late in the game to do much about guaranteed pensions and health care that ended up crippling GM, even after the company successfully negotiated with UAW members to decrease retirement benefits, which, honestly, is a little like quitting smoking after being diagnosed with lung cancer.

Some of the cars of my childhood are no more. Kaiser-Frazier was the biggest postwar challenger to the Big Three. Models included the 1949 Kaiser Custom Vagabond, the 1948 Frazer Manhattan four-door sedan, the Dragon sedans and Henry J coupes. In 1970, Kaiser, then known as the Kaiser Jeep Corporation, was sold to American Motors Corporation. Other auto companies either went out of business or were bought. These included Packard ("ask the man who owns one"), Studebaker ("first by far with a postwar car"), and Hudson, which began making cars in 1909 and, like other automobile companies, in early 1942 was ordered by the U.S. government to stop making passenger cars and concentrate exclusively on fulfilling war contracts. In 1954, Hudson eventually merged with Nash-Kelvinator to become American Motors, a company that lasted in one form or another until 1987 when Chrysler gobbled it up.

None of these companies (and many more before them and after with names such as Tucker, DeLorean and Duesenberg) received government bailouts. If they couldn't sell their products at a profit, they either sold out, or went bust. People who worked for them found other jobs. No one starved to death.

Americans have benefited from capitalism. Our government should not be undermining an economic system that has produced more prosperity for its citizens than any nation on Earth. It cannot forever prop up companies that make products not enough people wish to buy. If a growing number of people prefer cars not produced by GM and Chrysler, how will a government rescue plan make them more likely to buy them?

The "going out of business sale" sign should go up now. Taxpayers should not be expected to underwrite dying companies, unless we get a free car for our money. But that only happens on "Oprah.

Americans must experience it, he said, before they can find balance in their lives.

Speaking of extremist behavior, an article in The New York Times last week caught my eye. It was about lunatic people who have unplugged their refrigerators in the name of energy efficiency.

As best as I can get it, they survive with a small freezer in the basement and a steady rotation of ice water bottles from said basement freezer toted up into the dead refrigerator in the kitchen to keep it cool enough to preserve some foods. Meat for hungry mouths? Try Wendy's.

This whole thing is nuts. It has far less to do with survival in hard times than it does in trumpeting extremism in the name of energy savings. I know a lot of serious environmentalists who would blanch at the thought of losing their refrigerators. Think of a family of five eating two or three meals a day sans refrigerator. Powdered milk, anyone?

Other suggestions I've stumbled on include: using 20-watt bulbs at your desk

(I'd go blind.) Use cold water in the washing machine. (Sometimes.) Cook small items in the microwave instead of the oven. (Like a veal chop?)

I'm also reading that you can cut your electric bill significantly if you unplug in the morning all of the passive energy eaters — TV, computer, toaster, microwave, coffee machine — and plug them back in the evening when you need them. Are most Americans going to unplug and replug all of them every day? What part of "no" don't you understand?

It goes on. A guy named Jeff Yeager, whom Matt Lauer called "The Ultimate Cheapskate" on "The Today Show," is riding high, wide, and handsome these days. He has been living insanely close to the bone for years, and now, proud as punch, stands as a guru to the herd of neophyte Scrooges. His diet is based on massive consumption of lentils, which he calls "the perfect food." Rock on, Jeff.

I have a friend who frequents a boot exchange.

He can easily afford new hiking boots but checks out the used men's hiking boots because he's cheap.

I actually harbor some sympathy for the well heeled who have taken the big fall. They've developed a brave new vocabulary to explain their new plight. To wit: "It feels great to be living in only one house again." And: "There's nothing wrong with public school for the kids." And: "We never used the third car anyway."

Look, we all need to cut consumption and live moderate lives. People have been ready to change for ages. But we shouldn't lurch from one extreme to the other either. That's called crazy.

ACORN and Obama are together again signing in Denver, President Obama immediately launched into his next New Raw Deal expansion: a massive mortgage entitlement program forcing lenders to refinance at an initial cost of $50 billion to $100 billion. That's in addition to the bipartisan-supported $50 billion in the "stimulus" bill to bail out homeowners underwater on their mortgages and the $2 billion in "neighborhood stabilization" funds to alleviate the foreclosure crisis. In tandem with the White House Bad Borrowers Bailout, Obama's old friends at the Association of Community Organizations for Reform Now (ACORN) are launching a new campaign of their own: the "Home Savers" campaign. What a coinky-dinky, huh? As with most of the bully tactics of the radical left-wing group, it ain't gonna be pretty. They are the shock troops on the streets doing the dirty work while the Community Organizer-in-Chief keeps his delicate hands clean.

Trumpets ACORN: "On Feb. 19, ACORN members will launch a new tactic in fighting foreclosures: civil disobedience. Participants in the ACORN Home Savers campaign nationwide will simply refuse to move out of foreclosed homes, or in some cases, will move back in. ACORN homesteaders intend to squat in their homes until a comprehensive, federal solution for people facing foreclosure is put in funded with your tax dollars, will scream, pound their fists, chain themselves to buildings, padlock the doors and engage in illegal behavior until they get what they want. It's a recipe for anarchy. Threatens Baltimore ACORN's Louis Beverly, who calls himself a "Foreclosure Fighter":

"After you've used all your legal options, your last resort is civil disobedience. We're talking about families who have been in their homes 20 or 30 years. People who are assets in the community, who look out for the elderly, who have community associations, and these are the people being kicked out of the community."

We can all sympathize with good folks who can't pay their bills. But as I've said repeatedly in my criticism of the mortgage entitlement mentality embraced by both parties in Washington, home ownership is not a civil right and neither is home retention. Artificially propping up the housing market will only result in more of the same costly borrowspend-panic-repeat cycles that got us into this mess in the first place. Failing corporations need to fail. So do failing home borrowers. This is borrowing from frugal renter Peter to pay profligate Paul's home loan.

Now that's the kind of theft that should be the subject of civil disobedience.

Instead, ACORN offices, funded with your tax dollars, are training teams of "Home Savers" — described as "people ready and willing to mobilize on short notice to defend the homesteaders against attempts to evict them." Ready, willing and able to mobilize on short notice because they are either unemployed or employed full time as ACORN shakedown artists.

Guess who's encouraging them to defy the law. Democratic Rep. Marcy Kaptur of Ohio, who told them: "Stay in your homes. If the American people, anybody out there is being foreclosed, don't leave." The housing bullies will be assisted by leftwing propaganda documentarians at the Brave New Foundation, headed up by Hollywood lib Robert Greenwald, who will disseminate sob stories to crank up pressure while Obama pushes his housing entitlement plan.

ACORN has waited three decades for this moment in the sun. And as Obama promised ACORN members at a forum in December 2007, "We're going to be calling all of you in to help us shape the agenda. We're gonna be having meetings all across the country ... so that you have input into the agenda." The moment is nigh. Prepare for law-lessness.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Hartgen should be praised for Internet legislation

I was offended by the sarcastic and hateful letter by Max D. Hatfield of Dallas, Texas. His letter defamed Rep. Stephen Hartgen for introducing legislation that would make it illegal in Idaho to "use the Internet to annoy, terrify, threaten, intimidate, harass or offend." It is already illegal to do these by telephone, and this bill adds the Internet and email to the prohibition.

Mr. Hatfield obviously thinks that a person has a right to send any kind of hateful, obscene or libelous material to anyone as long as it is done electronically.
Material placed on a Web site can spread embarrassing, false and hurtful text and photos to thousands of people in a matter of minutes.

I encourage Mr. Hatfield and everyone else to read the article, "Keyboard Cowards" on Page 61 of the December 2008 edition of Reader's Digest. This kind of material is not funny or amusing; it is extremely harmful and can ruin lives.

Mr. Hartgen is to be commended for attempting to protect the citizens of Idaho from this kind of garbage. I will encourage my Idaho representatives to support House Bill 82.

It's not the time to raise gas tax, registration fees

With Idaho paying unemployment to more than 39,000 people who are out of work, why would you raise the tax on gas and the cost of vehicle registrations?

Compared to a lot of other states, Idaho is low on the vehicle registrations, but we are also low on wages. Did you ever think that maybe the people of Idaho have to eat? How can they look for jobs or do anything else if the taxes in this state keep going up? How about the people who have jobs but have taken cuts in pay to keep their jobs? They also have to buy gas and groceries. If you haven't noticed, the cost of groceries has not gone down, and with the raise in gas, groceries will probably go up again.

If our state is short on money, maybe it is because our government hasn't taken care of spending wisely. Also, if the state is short of money, what do you think the people of Idaho are, rich?

It seems that only our politicians are rich. Since we pay their gas bills and subsidize the governor's rent ($4,500 monthly), they have no worries.

Obama discusses Afghanistan, trade while in Canada

OTTAWA (AP) — President Barack Obama courted relations with America's snowy northern neighbor Thursday, declining to ask war-weary Canada to do more in Afghanistan, promising he won't allow a protectionist creep into U.S. trade policy and talking reassuringly around thorny energy issues.

Obama-happy crowds cheered Obama's seven-hour visit, his first outside U.S. borders as president, and he returned the compliment with a quick stop at an indoor market where he delighted shopkeepers by picking up pastries and souvenirs for his daughters.

"I love this country and think that we could not have a better friend and ally," Obama said as he appeared side-by-side with Canadian Prime Minister Stephen Harper at gothic Parliament Hill. He later slipped slightly as he walked to his plane and joked that the weather reminded him of Chicago.

Harper in turn rolled out the red carpet for the new president. The Conservative leader had been close to President George W. Bush, personally and on policy. But he made clear with subtle jabs backward that he was casting his and his country's lot now with the vastly more popular Obama.

"As we all know, one of President Obama's big missions is to continue world environmental standards leadership by the United States of America, but in a way that is more collaborative," Harper said, an apparent reference to Bush's go-italone diplomatic style.

Still, rhetorical niceties aside, there are some sharp differences between the U.S. and its largest trading partner and biggest supplier of oil. On several topics, where Obama came armed with reassurances, Harper offered mini-lectures, albeit gently delivered.

the 7-year-old On Afghanistan war, for instance, the Canadian leader said that NATO and U.S. forces fighting a resurgent Taliban insurgency are not "through our own efforts going to establish peace and security in Afghanistan." With Obama's administration undertaking a broad review of the U.S. strategy there, Harper suggested that any new policy "have the idea of an end date, of a transition to Afghan responsibility for security, and to greater Western partnership for economic development."

On Canada's massive oilrich tar sands, Harper suggested that the kind of emissions regulations that environmentalists would like Obama to support would be unfair, making a comparison to the U.S. coal industry. "It's very hard to have a tough regulatory system here when we are competing with an unregulated economy south of the border," Harper said.

On trade, Obama stuck to his pledge to eventually seek changes in the 1994 North American Free Trade Agreement to increase enforcement of labor and government must release sealed documents that could reveal new details about the origins and scope of the prostitution investigation that brought down former New York Gov. Eliot Spitzer, a judge ordered Thursday.

U.S. District Judge Jed S. Rakoff wrote in federal court in Manhattan that the documents, which were FBI applications for wiretaps, should be unsealed "given the strong and obvious public interest in disclosure." He ordered them released by Tuesday.

Prosecutors, who can appeal the decision, had no immediate comment.

The New York Times sued late last year to get access to the documents, which name the 67 people besides Spitzer who were clients of Emperor's Club VIP, a highend prostitute service. The Times has agreed to allow the government to withhold the names of the customers in the documents.

None of those customers except Spitzer has ever been identified and no client was ever charged.

ENSURING HEALTH CARE COVERAGE

Idaho advocacy group seeks changes to health insurance for small businesses

By Blair Koch

Times-News correspondent

FILER — At Wayment Manufacturing, Ray Waters has found steady employment and an opportunity to increase specialty skills as a fabricator at the plant that makes everything from prosthetic arm parts to rear-view mirror brackets for old Chevrolet pickup trucks.

The 38-year-old Filer resident enjoys his job but would feel more at ease if he and his family had health insurance coverage.

"My wife has epilepsy and takes prescription medication...which costs $350 a month. That is all we pay if nothing else wrong," he said. goes

Throw in the occasional doctor or hospital visit, an MRI imaging or blood test and those costs easily result in thousands of dollars in bills. Wayment Manufacturing covered employees' and spouses' health insurance up to about a year ago but had to drop the plan when costs became a burden too great to bear.

"Even with the insurance it helped out a little bit but we didn't have vision or dental coverage. My son had a broken tooth and got braces and to pay for that we got a credit card, $5,000, and it's maxed out," Waters said. "We pay on that every month, at 19 percent interest."

His boss, Larry Wayment would like to offer his small workforce health benefits, and once did, but the cost made a plan unattainable.

"The costs just outweighed the benefits. For three employees and two wives I was paying $1,100 a month. When it was going to cost even more I just couldn't do it anymore," Wayment said.

Wayment's position is far from unique and instead of sitting back he's joined the Idaho Main Street Alliance Small Business Coalition to try and find a solution to the nation's growing health care crisis. The Main Street Alliance has such state coalitions across the country includ> ing Colorado, Illinois, Iowa, Maine, Montana, New Jersey, New York, Oregon and Washington.

The Idaho coalition has picked up over 200 Idaho member businesses since it was organized in September 2008.

- 53 percent of businesses with current or recent coverage reported switching to insurance with higher out-of-pocket

Small businesses shouldn't skimp on insurance coverage

nsurance coverage is an expense that many small business owners might be tempted to cut back on or even forgo as they try to cut costs during the recession. They're making a bet that they won't need the coverage, but it's a bet they could lose.

Spring floods aren't too far off in the future, to be followed inevitably by tornadoes and the hurricane season. And there are the more mundane disasters that can also threaten a business fire, theft, power outages, even someone being injured on the premises. Loretta Worters, vice president for communications of the Insurance Information Institute, a New York-based trade group, said insurance may seem like a lower financial priority for some small business owners right now.

"They're facing all these challenges today: rents are rising, financing hard to get," she said. "Things are daunting to them, but one thing they have to think of is the whole issue of being underinsured."

An underinsured business doesn't have adequate coverage for disasters or incidents like fires, thefts or accidents. But even companies that aren't cutting back their coverage might be unwittingly uninsured. Worters noted that a business might have made improvements to its building or bought new equipment, and if an insurance policy isn't adjusted upward, payments could fall well short of the replacement

At the same time, she noted, real estate values have fallen and so it might make sense for some companies to reduce coverage.

Still, an owner uneasy in this economy might decide to play the odds and either cancel a policy or cut it back too far. Or, make a mistake out of ignorance, by buying insurance to cover damage from forces such as wind, rain, hail and fire, and not checking to see what isn't covered. For example, damage from flooding or earthquakes isn't covered in such policies. That coverage has to be purchased separately.

Some owners might also decide against business interruption insurance, which is available in what's known as a business owner's policy, or BOP, which also includes property coverage. Business interruption insurance makes the coverage more expensive, but it can mean a company's survival when it can't operate because of a disaster; this type of policy covers a company's expenses and lost profits.

Many workers who have been downsized over the last year have decided to start businesses out of their homes, and many are likely to be underinsured because they mistakenly assume their homeowners coverage will protect them. The same can apply in the case of a vehicle

Utility companies want to help pay your bills

BOISE — Avista Corp. and other utility companies are asking Idaho lawmakers for permission to provide assistance programs for customers who need help paying their utility bills.

Avista lobbyist Neil Colwell told the Senate State Affairs Committee on Wednesday that Idaho is among few states where utilities are not allowed to provide these services and state money is not made available.

Colwell said the cost of the assistance program would be passed on to existing customers, who should expect their bills to increase by about $1 each month.

Terri Ottens, representing a coalition of community action groups in Idaho, supports the bill and says utilities are already passing on the costs of unpaid bills to existing customers.

A stunning drop-off in driving by Americans has led to growing levels of gasoline in storage.

Total gasoline inventories rose 1.1 million barrels last week, or 0.5 percent, to 218.7 million barrels compared with analyst projections of a decline of 1 million barrels.

of the past year, the report's four-week moving average showed that gasoline consumption rose 0.8 percent. Declining demand has been a key factor in stunning drop in oil prices after peaking at $147 last July.

"You're starting to seeing these things turn positive now and that's kind of a big surprise," Peter Beutel of Camon Hanover of the increase in consumption. "Demand has been the big bearish story of 2009 and now its changing."

and Appliance Warehouse is another active coalition business. It pays 75 percent of the cost for insurance on nine employees; last year the company spent over $34,000 on coverage.

With the economy driving down sales and revenue the company may shift more of the cost to employees but Chief Executive Officer Wendy Somerset says they don't want to.

"It's a concern because small businesses don't have affordable options for health care, we can't join a large group — like Home Depot, who gets to spread the costs of their care over a lot of people," Somerset said. "Small business is losing seasoned, experienced employees to big box stores because they are able to provide health benefits."

Somerset said they joined forces with Main Street Alliance to push for change in health care.

The alliance, in addressing wanted change con-

Coordinator Nancy Snodgrass reported that small businesses are willing to contribute for good health care — of those surveyed, 62 percent said they would pay four to seven percent of payroll, or more, to guarantee affordable and quality coverage.

"Business owners want more choice and would like to see an insurance pool developed, like the state insurance pool for workman's compensation," Snodgrass said. "In Idaho we want more regulation of the insurance industry."

Snodgrass said alliance members have met with several lawmakers to find support for their Transparency in Reporting for Understanding Trust and Honesty Act, or TRUTH.

While lawmakers are eager to listen, so far none have taken the bill on.

tional policy. But, the important thing is to check — you don't want to find out you're not covered when a client coming to visit trips over the family dog and falls.

And, Worters said, the additional coverage may come in the relatively inexpensive form of an endorsement to your homeowners' policy.

Owners of businesses in certain industries should also be aware of policies tailored to their line of work — for example, restaurant owners might want to take out policies to cover food spoilage.

There are plenty of resources to help owners be sure they're adequately covered — including having the right kinds of insurance.

A DAY ON WALL STREET

The Dow finished inches above its November low on Tuesday and Wednesday. On Tuesday, the blue chips tumbled 298 points, or 3.79 percent, to 7,552.60 — just 31-hundredths of a point above its Nov. 20 close of 7,552.29, which was its lowest finish since

The Dow and S&P remain above their Nov. 21 trading lows, an important psychological barrier for traders. For the Dow, 7,449.38 was the November trading low; for the S&P it was 741.02. Bond prices fell after jumping amid the slide in stocks Tuesday. The yield on the benchmark 10-year Treasury note, which moves opposite its price, rose to 2.76 percent from 2.65 percent late

Dental sealants at Harrison Elementary

Beginning Wednesday, Harrison Elementary School second and third graders can receive free dental sealants to help prevent cavities. Dental sealants fill the deep grooves of a child's back teeth, where 90 percent of children's cavities occur. The sealants are painless to apply and can last several years or more.

Delta Dental of Idaho provides sealants on-site at schools serving low-income families as part of its Community Outreach program. The Delta Dental Sealant Clinic will be held through March 5 at the school. To receive this free cavity-prevention treatment, children must have a parent or guardian sign a health history and permission form. Additional permission forms are available at the school. Herniated disc difficult but not impossible to treat

DEAR DR. GOTT: My mother was diagnosed with a herniated disc last year. She was in pain but able to walk. She tried physical therapy, which did not help, and also steroid injections into her back. The first shot helped only a little, and the second did nothing at all. Her legs are now much weaker, and the pain is more intense, and she has to use a wheelchair because of it. Surgery is not an option because of her diabetes, high blood pressure, a partially blocked carotid artery and autoimmune hepatitis. Is there any way to treat her pain and weakness?

DEAR READER: Your mother certainly has some serious health conditions that would likely disqualify her for surgery because of the high risk of complications. That being said, there are still several treatment options she hasn't tried.

difficult to treat and can be quite disabling. This is a condition in which one or more of the intervertebral discs of the spine bulges or breaks open. When this occurs, the disc often pushes on sensitive nerves in the spinal cord, causing pain, leg and lowerextremity weakness, fecal and/or urinary incontinence and more. Most sufferers respond well to physical therapy that increases backmuscle strength, which then holds the discs in proper alignment. When this fails to provide adequate relief, physicians move on to pre-

Chiropractic manipulation is also a viable choice. While many physicians do not recommend this and do not even consider chiropractors part of the medical community, I believe chiropractors can be extremely helpful for certain conditions. These specialists can physically manipulate the muscles, discs and vertebrae of the spine. It may take several weeks or months before results are noticeable, but for many, relief can be experienced within just a few visits.

Exercise is important to keep the muscles strong and well-toned. Water aerobics and strength-building classes under the close supervision of her instructors may help because of the ease of mov-

A Twin Falls City license is more than a requirement it can ensure and expedite your pets' opportunity to get home ... 2009 city licenses are up for renewal now. Visit the Twin Falls Animal Shelter for your 2009 city dog license.

February is National Spay/Neuter month. Do your part in preventing unwanted litters of animals from overcrowding animal shelters. The number of cats and dogs entering animal shelters a year is 6-8 million. On an average, cats can have as many as 3 liters in a year and dogs can have 2 litters a year. Spay or neuter surgery carries a one-time cost that is relatively small when you consider the benefits. Spaying and neutering your pet makes them a better companion, less likely to bite or be aggressive, and keeps them from wandering from home. Contact your veterinarian to have your animals spayed or neutered today!

Mark your calendar for our "Furr Ball Fundraiser" March 7, 2009 from 7pm-midnight at the Turf Club. Cost is $20 per person or $35 a couple and tickets can be purchased at the animal shelter or at the door. Appetizers, no host bar, raffles, and live band. We encourage our community to join us for this fun event to help our areas homeless pets.

Idaho bill could require midwife license

By Sarah D. Wire Associated Press writer

BOISE — Midwives sav they've addressed doctors' and hospitals' concerns over a plan to license midwives, after opposition helped kill a similar proposal last year. The bill that died in the legislature last year would have made licensing voluntary and drew the ire of groups such as the Idaho Medical Association. Currently Idaho requires no license or certification to be a midwife, but midwives are recognized by state law.

The House State Affairs Committee has agreed to debate the measure put forth by the Idaho Midwifery Council more fully. Last year's hearing on the bill lasted two days and occasionally became heated.

Idaho Medical Association CEO Susie Pouliot told the Associated Press that the license. group has not taken an official stance on this year's bill and hopes to make a decision during its daylong board meeting Friday.

The Medical Association board had a problem with draft legislation provided in December but by working together, the Midwifery Council and the Medical Association have come a long way toward addressing the association's concerns, Pouliot said.

She said requiring licenses instead of making them voluntary has made her more comfortable with the bill. "That's huge, the voluntary possibility last year was a complete nonstarter," Pouliot said.

A similar bill is currently through moving Wyoming Legislature. Montana, Utah, Oregon and Washington all require a

In 2005, legislators passed a voluntary naturopath licensing law that has since prompted years of disagreements between rival groups of naturopaths. Some lawmakers are currently trying to repeal that law, saying it is so flawed that it needs to be dumped completely.

Pouliot cautioned that the groups may still have philosophical differences about the midwife legislation.

The bill would require midwives to be licensed by the North American Registry of Midwives, a national organization that governs the profession. It would also require them to get extra training in suturing and pharmacology.

Idaho Midwifery Council Lobbyist Kris Ellis said about 40 midwives currently operating across the state would have one year to qualify for a Midwifery Web site.

license. The bill also contains a clause to waive the license if a midwife has been practicing in the state for five years and has been the primary midwife for at least 75 births within the last 10

Ellis said the council doesn't expect opposition to the bill because of the work it did with the medical organiza-

According to the Idaho Bureau of Vital Records and Health Statistics, there were around 25,000 babies born in the state in 2008, most with a doctor present. The bureau does not track the number of births that take place outside a hospital but 622 births had a midwife recorded as being present.

Midwifery has been legalized through licensing or registration in 24 states, according to the Citizens for

BOISE (AP) — The 2009 Special Olympics World Winter Games helped boost businesses in Boise, retailers and restaurant operators

"It seemed like there were definitely more bodies coming through the doors," Denton Musser of P.F. Chang's restaurant in downtown Boise told the Idaho Statesman.

The games held earlier this month drew nearly 2,000 athletes from 95 countries. The athletes were accompanied by delegates, family members and fans.

Jenny Kroll, manager of Proto's Pizza, said the restaurant had "a ton" of Special Olympics athletes, coaches and parents.

It will be several weeks before sales and hotel taxes are added up to give an indication of how much money the Games brought to the area. Idaho's chief economist, Mike Ferguson, said that the state gets $600,000 in sales tax for every $10 million in spending.

"It is possible we could see as much as a couple million, I suppose," he said.

Bruce Schrepple, chief financial officer for the games, said the organization will likely have spent about $21 million — mostly in Idaho — by the time it has finished paying bills.

wrongly used car seat.

More workers were needed by businesses during the games.

"We know restaurants, we know hotels, we know lots and lots of bus drivers had work (last) week that they wouldn't have had otherwise," said Bobbie Patterson, executive director of the Boise Convention Center and Visitors Bureau.

She said the bureau's information center sold more items during the games than it usually does in three months. She also noted that a Special Olympics program called Healthy Athletes brought hundreds of volunteer health care providers to town. Bibiana Nertney, spokeswoman for the Idaho Department of Commerce, said the games showed off the state's ski slopes and philanthropic nature. Idaho received additional publicity from a visit by Vice President Joe Biden near the close of the games.

She said all of that could help draw tourists.

"It really puts Idaho in a great light," Nertney said. "We had the vice president come and visit. Certainly, there was a lot of coverage on that. In public relations value, we will see an impact of several hundred thousand dollars."

Montana bill seeks to wrest wolf control from feds

By Kahrin Deines Associated Press writer

HELENA, Mont. — A Republican lawmaker says Montana should assert its authority over wolf management, despite recent signs the federal government may be about to relinquish control.

Senate Bill 183 would void existing state and federal agreements about wolf management. It would also compel the Montana attorney general's office to seek compensation for damages caused by wolves in Montana from the federal government.

"This bill is the only leverage we have on the feds to try to get them to delist before any more precious time expires," said Sen. Joe Balyeat, R-Bozeman, the bill's sponsor.

Last month the U.S. Interior Department decided to remove wolves from endangered species protections in the Northern Rockies and the Great Lakes region, but that decision has been held up by the Obama administration. The change would shift management from the federal government to the states.

Balyeat told the Senate Fish and Game Committee Thursday that Montana cannot wait passively for federal action to protect its game herds and hunting heritage.

Balyeat is an avid hunter and his measure drew support from both the Montana Shooting Sports Association and the Montana Multiple Use Association, which support hunters' use of natural resources.

"I admit that this bill is strong medicine, but I think it's going to take strong medicine to save the patient," said Gary Marbut of the Shooting Sports Association. The attorney general and Wildlife and Parks oppose the measure. Chris Smith, a spokesman for the department, said voiding the wolf management plan the state has

the Department of Fish, negotiated with the federal government would imperil the pending delisting. Others, who generally support stricter wolf policies, also testified against the bill, including the Montana Farm Bureau, the Montana Wool Growers Association, the Montana the Montana Board of Livestock. They expressed worry the bill's passage could derail delisting, and threaten federal funds for compensation services that exist for livestock owners who lose property to wolves. "It's very difficult to stand up here seemingly on the side of the wolf," said Jean Johnson, of the Montana Outfitters and Guides Association. "We aren't. But we are on the side of the wolf management plan."

Cattlemen's Association and

Wolf management policies have occasioned controversy since the species was reintroduced Yellowstone National Park in 1994 and 1995. Their population numbers — and their effect on the number of elk, other game animals and livestock — have often been contested.

Currently Montana is home to between 450 and 500 gray wolves, according to the state's wildlife department.

Texas may let hunters shoot pigs from choppers

By Paul J. Weber Associated Press writer

MERTZON, Texas Millions of wild pigs weighing up to 300 pounds have been tearing up crops, trampling fences and eating just about anything in their path in Texas. But now they had better watch their hairy backs.

A state lawmaker is proposing to allow ordinary Texans with rifles and shotguns to shoot the voracious. tusked animals from helicop-

For years, ranchers in the Lone Star State have hired professional hunters in choppers to thin the hogs' fast-multiplying ranks. Now state Rep. Sid Miller of the Fort Worth area wants to bring more firepower to the task by issuing permits to sportsmen.

"I've had numerous calls and complaints that someone needs to do something," Miller said. "We're losing ground on this problem."

If approved, it could be the first program of its kind in the nation. Some other states, like Gov. Sarah Palin's Alaska, allow aerial hunting, but only to control predators, such as bears and wolves.

Some Texans worry about collateral damage.

"If they're going to open up to where you can do this and anybody who's got a helicopter can go off to an old bov's place and hunt, that's going to be bad," said Jay Smith, owner of Smith Helicopters in Cotulla. Some people "may get confused and shoot the rancher's dog or a calf."

Miller gave assurances the hunting would be closely regulated, though details on such things as how many hunters would be allowed to take part, and how many hogs they would be permitted to kill, have yet to be worked out.

Kyle Lange searches for feral pigs near Mertzon, Texas, on Wednesday. Under legislation proposed by a Fort Worth lawmaker, recreational sportsmen would be allowed to join professional hunters like Lange to aerialhunt feral hogs to help thin out their relentlessly multiplying and destructive ranks from the perch of a helicopter.

"You're not going to have some bubba up there going, 'Pass me a beer and ammo' and hunting some hogs," the legislator said. "We certainly want to do it right."

Many hunters landowners will probably leave the carcasses in the field, just as they do now. Wild hogs that are gunned down cannot be sold for meat under U.S. agriculture regulations. (Moreover, wild boar is said by some to be tough and gamey.)

An estimated 2 million wild hogs are causing $52 million a vear in crop damage in Texas, according to agricultural experts. Pigs that they are, they eat just about anything, including the carcasses of their own brethren. They trample crops, dig up plants with their snouts and steal animal feed. Entire peanut farms have been stripped. And the pasture-wrecking porkers are causing trouble well beyond farms. Authorities in Texas are reporting an increase in collisions between hogs and cars, while golf courses and suburbs are increasingly finding turf uprooted by hogs.

The animals are descended from hogs introduced into Texas by Spanish explorers more than 300 years ago. But their numbers began booming in the 1980s.

Facebook removes 5,500 sex offenders since May

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Facebook has removed more than 5,500 convicted sex offenders from its social networking Web site since May, Connecticut's attorney general said Thursdav.

Richard Blumenthal said the world's largest social networking site, which claims to have more than 175 million active members, reported to his office that 5,585 convicted sex offenders were found on the Web site and removed between May 1, 2008, and Jan. 31, 2009.

"The message in this number is Facebook has an equal stake in solving this problem of protecting children," said Blumenthal, who along with North Carolina Attorney General Roy Cooper has led an effort remove sex offenders from the social networking Web sites.

'They have an equal stake in the predator problem and its solution."

Earlier this month, rival networking site MySpace announced it had removed 90,000 sex offenders in a two-year period.

Last year, the attorneys general got both sites to implement dozens of safeguards, including finding better ways to verify users' ages and putting limits on older users' ability to search the profiles of members under 18.

Teen arrested in 9 arsons in fire-ravaged Pa. town

COATESVILLE, Pa. (AP) — A 19-year-old described as a pyromaniac who liked to watch things burn was charged Thursday with setting nine fires in an arsonplagued steel town, including a block-long blaze that displaced dozens of people last month.

Roger Leon Barlow Jr., of nearby Downingtown, was charged with arson, aggravated assault and related counts. He was arraigned Thursday afternoon and his bail was set at $9 million.

Barlow is a pyromaniac who liked to watch things burn, Chester County District Attorney Joseph Carroll told The Associated Press. The teen told investigators on Wednesday that he set the fires, all of them since Jan. 2, according to a police affidavit.

Carroll would not discuss a motive for the blazes at a news conference Thursday. He said he does not believe the fires were gang-related, hate crimes or targeted at specific individuals.

Coatesville, about 35 miles west of Philadelphia, has tallied 18 arsons this year.

Trina Ciocca, owner of Uptown Dance Studio in Wendell, teaches a jazz dance to the 'High School Musical 3' soundtrack Feb. 10. Ciocca choreographs all of the dances for each of her 12 classes, plus solo performances.

ENDELL — Outside, the Wendell streets were cold and blustery, but Uptown Dance Studio was alive with laughter and song.

Music from the "Mamma Mia!" soundtrack spilled out of the studio and into the waiting room, where chatty mothers watched their daughters through a window.

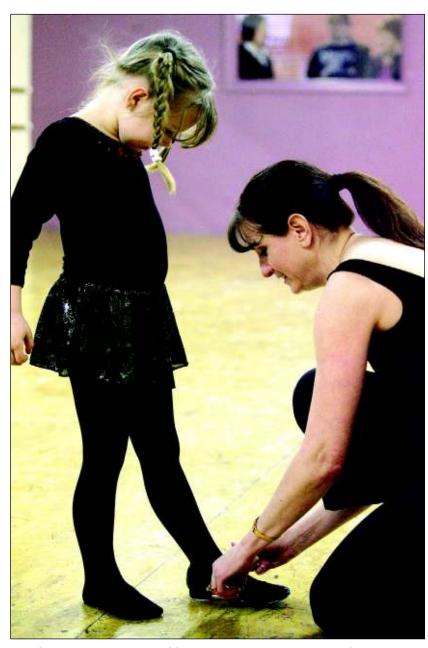

This is how dance instructor Trina Ciocca spends many of her afternoons: sharing her passion for dance with her small students.

Ciocca's 10-year-old daughter, Brooke, helped the girls warm up Feb. 10. The two share a passion for dance, although Ciocca encourages Brooke to try other things. Recently, Brooke decided to give basketball a shot, although she still talks about going to college for dance.

After the warm-up, Ciocca switched the music to "Now or Never" from the "High School Musical 3" soundtrack. The girls practiced their cheerleadinginspired routine, and though some seemed more enthralled with their new pompoms than their performance, they slowly got better and better. Ciocca offered suggestions along the way — "Straight legs!" "Point that toe." "Your arms are down!" — and walked through the moves with unending patience, repeating steps as many times as needed for the girls to get them per-

Managing the dance studio is a part-time gig for Ciocca, and it's definitely not about the money. She loves dance, she loves kids, she loves teaching. Her passions tie into her day job, too. Ciocca teaches physical education, health and dance at Wendell Middle School.

Ciocca gets to school by 7:30 a.m. and stays until 3:30 p.m. On Mondays, Tuesdays and Wednesdays, she goes straight to as 8 p.m. Brooke often comes along — sometimes for her own dance lessons, sometimes to help with the younger children.

While one class left and another started filing in, Brooke tried to negotiate for a ride home before Ciocca's trip to an evening basketball game, where one of her middle school dance classes would perform at halftime. Ciocca didn't have time to stop by home first, so

Brooke would have to come along. "It won't kill you to watch a basketball game," Ciocca said. Brooke

Broadway artist plays Burley tonight

By Coreen Hart Times-News correspondent

The Community Concert series will present singer and actress Emily Skinner, a Tony-nominated veteran of Broadway. Tonight's performance is one of 11 appearances Skinner will make this season before returning home.

"I'm so delighted to do it," Skinner said from New Orleans by telephone. "I am seeing places I've never seen before.'

Her concert will be informal; she'll talk about the songs, an eclectic group of Broadway classics from the golden age of theater and some contemporary pieces.

"I tend to lean toward the old stuff," she said. "Those songs were straightforward and simple. I suppose the evening will be kind of like a musical theater master class. I don't mean it will be dull. It will be fun for people.'

She enjoys giving background on the music and explaining what makes each song unique, bringing some of the glamour and excitement of the Great White Way to distant audiences.

"The cost of producing a show is so high now, producers are reluctant to invest in an unknown quantity, so that's why you see so many new shows patterned after movies, or remakes of classics. The cost of a seat is about $125 now, so the only people who can afford them are people with money, and those tend to be the older, retired people," Skinner said. "As a result, audiences are dwindling and an entire generation of young people are missing out. They are not creating a new audience. I don't want to think of musical theater as getting smaller and smaller. But it is happening. For 25 years that has been happen-

Brown Bag Lecture features architectural writer

Henry Whiting II will speak on "Frank Lloyd Wright in Idaho" for the second installment in the Magic Valley Arts Council's 2009 Brown Bag Lecture Series, set for noon Feb. 27 at the Twin Falls Public Library.

Wright's only artist studio, perched high on a cliff above the Snake River near Hagerman, stands testament to the architect's mastery of his craft — a building he described as "shaken from my sleeve."

While Wright's stature as an architect is usually measured by his masterpieces, such as Fallingwater, the Johnson Wax Building and the Guggenheim Museum, genius can be seen in the work of art.

Oakley singers headline Burley gala

Organizers plan talent lineup

By Judy Albertson Times-News writer

BURLEY Mount Harrison Heritage Foundation will present its 11th annual Gala in celebration of the King Fine Arts Center's anniversary. With entertainment from local and visiting performers, it's set for 7:30 p.m. March 2 at King Fine Arts, 2100 Park Ave. in Burley.

Tickets are $8 for sections I, II and III, and $5 for sections IV, V and VI, available at Book Plaza and Welch Music in Burley, at The Book Store in Rupert and at the door.

Performing this year are David and Lisa Koziol. Lisa, an Oakley native, met David while working as a nanny in Connecticut. He had performed in a Connecticut rock band and took opera lessons to keep his voice toned. When the band broke up he continued singing in the opera company.

"We met in church. David was in the opera company. I was singing and he heard me and we started dating, then later we started singing together," Lisa said.

Lisa began filling in at the opera company if someone did not show up for a performance, thus earning a part in an opera. "They were impressed that I could sight read. I guess I had a good, clean, clear voice so they gave me the part when she didn't show up," Lisa said.

When the Koziols moved to Oakley 5 1/2 years ago, they immediately got involved in the Oakley Valley Arts Council. She will appear in her second play in March, and David has been involved in five shows in some capacity. If he isn't performing, he works on sound. He makes slight changes in recorded music to fit the plays, and runs the sound board during performances

"When someone from the King Fine Arts Center heard us singing at an event at the Wilson Theatre in Rupert, they asked us to sing at this event," Lisa Koziol said. The couple will sing "The Prayer," a popular song recorded by Andrea Bocelli, Celine Dion, Josh Groban and Charlotte Church.

"David has a hard time singing quiet ... he sings heavy rock or opera and is a high lyric tenor. So I have to sing alto. Often we write our own parts. You might even hear a bit of Italian," Lisa said.

Rick Bollar will host the

Also performing: Adam Tilley on violin, playing the "Schindler's List" theme; Clay Handy and Barbara Sorensen singing "Do You Love Me"; Kyle Jenks and Felicia Horsley Poteet singing "Now I Have Everything"; a piano duet by Mayna McGill and Jeff Rasmussen; Zach Harman with two selections, "Impossible Dream" and "You're Still You"; a violin duet by Elise Anderson and Emily Pilling; Rob Newman with selections from 'Brigadoon"; selections from the "Fiddler on the Roof" production; and the Jennifer Sager dancers.

"We want the gala to be special every year," said Roberta Christiansen, one of the organizers. "I think people will be pleased with this year's program."

CSI offers new class in American Indian flutemaking

Times-News

The American Indian flute is not only a magnificent instrument, but also a spiritual one that carries a part of each of its creators as well as the rekindled spirit of the tree it came from, say organizers of an upcoming class.

The College of Southern Idaho's Community Education Center will offer workshop "Native American Flutemaking."

Whether you're inexperienced or skilled in woodworking, under the instruction of veteran flute maker Mike Wamego, you'll craft a handmade, six-holed, pentatonic flute. Learn more about Wamego and the flutes he makes at myweb.cableone.net/shama

Compassion to action

College thespians present narratives of human rights

By Blair Koch Times-News correspondent

The College of Southern Idaho Theater Department's upcoming production will surely transcend entertainment. Instead of escapism the audience will come face to face with atrocities rarely impacting the lives of Americans.

Audiences won't leave the theater after "Speak Truth to Power: Voices from Beyond the Dark" feeling giddy. They may feel slapped around, worn down after an hour of narratives that chronicle the struggles and survival of prominent human rights activists like the Dalai Lama, Vaclav Havel, Desmond Tutu and Elie Wiesel, to name a few.

Theater goers may feel angry and uncomfortable with the stories, ranging from female genital mutilation to war crimes, torture and decades of imprisonment and that's OK, said director Tony Mannen.

"We are so comfortable in the USA ...we bitch about the snow or the price of a gallon of gas, but these people, these are stories of survival. These atrocities still happen, every day," Mannen said. "At the end of the day nobody really cares. We offer lip service and say 'oh, how horrible,' but we do nothing."

Cast member Katy Braman hopes the onstage art will move people from complacency to action. The 22-yearold plays The Man in the negative ugliness inside everyone. He causes doubt, speaks ridicule and gets people to see the bad in themselves and others," Braman said. "The hardest part in presenting this character was for me to identify with The Man inside of myself."

Braman said The Man will speak as a reflection of everyone sitting in the audience.

"I'm hoping that when they leave and go home they will realize that everyone has this ugliness and it's up to them to do something to face that. It starts with an awareness and people can take it from there," Braman said.

The Apollo moon landing of 1969 was actually staged in Hollywood. Aliens have visited the earth in UFOs. Astrology predicts and influences the important events in my life. The "Bad Astronomer" himself, Phil Plait, makes humorous and engaging appearances on these and other topics in the planetarium show that bears the name of his famous book.

"Bad Astronomy: Myths and Misconceptions" is the newest show at the Faulkner Planetarium in the Herrett Center for Arts and Science.

Plait describes himself as an astronomer, teacher, author and space junkie. Although he is delighted by the curiosity people always show about astronomy, he is frequently amazed at the myths and misconceptions in which so many believe. Hence, his book and subsequent planetarium show.

Much of what people think they know, says Plait in the show narration, they've seen on TV or in movies. Science has been a big part of movie storytelling. However, the portrayal has been pretty uneven over the years. Some films, such as "2001: A Space Odyssey," portray science pretty accurately. But many others are fiction.

Still, Plait takes a lighthearted view of not only what works and what doesn't in real science, but also how boring many of our favorite space movies would be if they adhered to strict principles of science.

"Bad Astronomy" shows at 7 p.m. Tuesdays, Fridays and Saturdays at the Faulkner Planetarium. Admission is $4.50 for adults, $3.50 for seniors and $2.50 for students.

Public radio commentator to speak in Twin Falls

Times-News

Bob Edwards, host of National Public Radio's "Morning Edition" for more than 30 years, will speak in Twin Falls from noon to 1:30 p.m. Sunday at the CSI Fine Auditorium. His appearance is hosted by The Boise State Radio Network.

During his years with NPR, Edwards conducted more than 25,000 interviews with guests ranging from celebrities to politicians and authors. In this 90-minute presentation, he will share behind-the-scenes from a life of broadcasting and answer audience questions.

Edwards won the DuPont-Columbia Award for radio journalism. In 1999, he and "Morning Edition" received a Peabody Award for excellence in broadcasting. Edwards also received the Edward R. Murrow Award from the Corporation of Public Broadcasting for outstanding contributions to public radio.

In 2004, he left NPR to work as a host for XM Satellite Radio and continues to host Bob Edwards Weekend for public radio which features conversation, performance and the occasional documentary with entertainers, newsmakers, writers and regular folks.

Tickets are $25, available at the door, online at radio.boisestate.edu or at 1-

SUN VALLEY — Paula Rasmussen is an attorney. But when she appears in the Sun Valley Club next weekend she'll present love songs, not a law brief. Rasmussen, you see, is also an opera singer. And she'll offer an evening of Frenchinspired pop and opera favorites with tenor George Dyer for Sun Valley Opera's "I Love Paris."

The concerts will be held two evenings at the new Sun Valley Club.

Because I have a second career as an attorney, I only choose to sing a few concerts and concert versions of opera a year. I am just too busy to be on the road for too long," Rasmussen said. "Sun Valley is perfect because the concerts are close together, and working with the producers and promoters is very easy-going."

The mezzo-soprano, who has sung twice for Sun Valley Opera, was touted as a rising star when she broke onto the opera scene

'She has such an intoxicating velvet soprano voice you don't want her to end," said Sun Valley Opera co-founder Frank Meyer. "When she sang 'Don't Cry for Me, Argentina' a few years ago, she brought the house down." As word about Rasmussen's talents spread, she began spending 11 months a year on the road — "a different country a month," she said. She found traveling grueling, missing everyday things like attending friends' > paper. So she enrolled in Golden Gate University in San Francisco in pursuit of a law degree. She has since worked in family court, with the San Francisco District Attorney and in U.S. Magistrate Court.

birthday parties and reading the daily

"I like family and criminal law because it affords me the opportunity to have an immediate impact on someone's life," said Rasmussen, whose husband — professional singer Don Sherrill — is now also pursuing a law degree. Rasmussen plans to sing "A Vie En Rose" by Edith Piaf, Schonberg's "I Dreamed a Dream" from "Les Miserables," some "Werther" by Massenet and some of Bizet's "Carmen."

"I wish I had more time to learn the entire collection of Piaf because the more I listen to it the more I love it," she said. "There is so much great French music that it is hard to choose which songs to do. But I love our program and think there is something in it for everyone — a few opera favorites, some French art song, pop and jazz songs by Cole Porter and Piaf. And we may throw in some American musical, as well."

Rasmussen, who has sung in major opera houses around the world, including Opera National de Paris, is looking forward to singing with Dyer again, as well.

Dyer is a singing actor who has been a Mormon Tabernacle Choir guest soloist. He received critical acclaim for his role in "H.M.S. Pinafore" with New York City Opera at the Lincoln Center. He is currently performing the lead role in "Abduction from the Šeraglio" with Hawaii Opera Theatre.

Meyer said the fireside salon concert at the Sun Valley Club will offer music lovers the chance to listen to some of the greatest French songs ever written "in a setting as intimate as a private French villa."

"I just think it's going to be wonderful," said opera fan Mary Helmeke of Hailey. "I love love songs, and this is an opportunity to be up close and personal with the singers." Karen Bossick may be reached at Bearfoot musicians got together as students at music camps in Alaska, when the youngest was 14. Soon, they were touring during summer breaks, as well as promoting and teaching music camps. They became crowd favorites at festivals including Wintergrass, Grey Fox, Strawberry Festival and six consecutive years at RockyGrass.

Now, the Alaska natives have released their third album, "Follow Me," and launched a U.S. tour, and they plan a new studio recording for release in fall 2009.

IDAHO HIGH SCHOOL GIRLS BASKETBALL STATE CHAMPIONSHIPS: DAY 1

SAILING INTO SEMIS

Jerome makes quick work of Mountain Home

By David Bashore Times-News writer

MERIDIAN — One hurdle cleared, two to go.

Aubree Callen scored 14 and pulled down eight rebounds, Tinley Garey added 13 points and the Jerome girls basketball team went on a 24-0 run over 10 firsthalf minutes to beat Mountain Home 52-36 in the Class 4A state quarterfinals at Mountain View High School on Thursday.

Jerome (21-4) switched to a 2-3 zone defense midway through the first quarter, to great effect. Mountain Home (12-12) didn't score another point until there were less than three minutes left in the half.

"That zone really threw them off guard, I think. The biggest thing was our defensive intensity," said Jerome head coach Brent Clark. "It helped that we were able to run on them a little, and get some transition points. It was a great job from the girls."

Garey scored most of her points on the same move, a pick-and-roll from the high post. It seemed to be there no matter the player, be it Garey, Allison Bruckner (six points), Baylie Smith (five) or Jordann Hollifield (two).

Garey and Smith both hit 3pointers to beat a buzzer, Garey's coming at the end of the third and Smith's at halftime.

"That's huge for Tinley, in her first state game and she has near her season high in points. What a time to have it," said Clark.

The first half was something to behold from a Jerome perspective, as a swarming extended defense and fast-break offense combined to vex Mountain Home

By John Derr Times-News writer

NAMPA — A second-half rally wasn't quite enough for Kimberly as the Bulldogs fell 49-44 to Teton in the quarterfinals of the Class 3A girls state basketball tournament Thursday night at Skyview High School.

"In the first half we kind of psyched ourselves out. In the second half we did what we wanted, we iust fell a little bit short," said junior guard Alex Pfefferle, who finished with a team-high 15 points.

Kimberly will take of the loser of the Wendell/Bonners Ferry game today at 3:15 pm., today.

It was a rough first half for Kimberly, which turned the ball over 10 times while the Redskins shots 67 percent from the field. Kimberly went 7-for-19 from the field before intermission.

Teton's top player, 6-foot senior post Laurel Kearsley, caused problems early as Kimberly trailed 7-0 midway through the

Jerome boys secure spot in GBW title game

By Ryan Howe Times-News writer

JEROME — It's turning out to be a banner winter season for the Jerome boys in District IV.

Jerome has won Great Basin Conference championships in girls basketball and wrestling. Now the boys hoops team is in position to make it a clean sweep.

Minico hung around with No. 1 seeded Jerome for three quarters Thursday, but once the Tigers got INSIDE into crunch time, they proved to be the more poised group on the floor as they pulled away 55-45.

The win places Jerome (20-2) in Monday's championship game of the District IV Great Basin Conference West tournament. Meanwhile, Minico (9-13) will host Burley in an elimination game Saturday, with the winner advancing to face Jerome on Monday.

Burley has won the past four conference titles, and Jerome coach Joe Messick said the Tigers haven't reached the state tournament since 1998.

"Burley has been running the show the last few years, now it's Jerome's turn," said Jerome point guard Logan Parker, who scored 10 points. "We haven't lost this year on our floor and that's our mentality."

Four Tigers reached double-figure scoring, led by Kameron Pearce with 15 points and five assists. Gus Callen chipped in with 10 points and Kevin Williams earned a double-double with 11 points and 11 boards.

'That's a senior-led ballclub that's been through the wars," Minico coach Mike Graefe said of Jerome. "They made one or two more plays than we did."

Jerome led by as many as 12 in the first half. Minico rallied, and Bronson Miller brought the Spartans to within one on his four-point play to open the fourth quarter.

However, Jerome was able to hang on without making a field goal in the game's final seven minutes. Jerome was also outrebounded 43-30 for the game and kept the door open for a Minico rally by converting just 6 of 11 free throws in the final

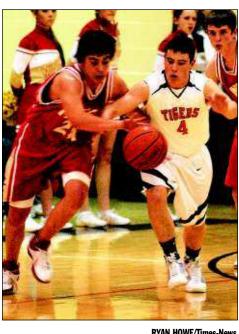

Despite those let-downs, Jerome never looked frazzled.

"There were times when we didn't play our best basketball tonight and we just gutted it out and found a way to win at the end," said Jerome coach Joe Messick.

Coltin Johnson had 14 points and eight rebounds to lead Minico.

"Minico played some good ball tonight," Parker said. "Our ball movement could

Buhl wins District IV wrestling title

By Bradley Guire Times-News writer

WENDELL — The Buhl Indians won their second straight District IV wrestling team title Thursday with three grapplers claiming championship medals at Wendell High School.

The Indians finished with 180 team points, just 13 more than runner-up Filer. The top four from each class qualified for next week's with 14 qualifiers, Buhl had a dozen, Wendell will send 10 and Gooding and Kimberly will have nine state participants apiece.

Blake Finney was one of Buhl's three champions, winning his third district title. The junior pinned Wendell's Ryan Slade in the 160-pound championship match.

"It feels good to win another district title," he said. He claimed the 140-pound 145 as a sophomore.

It was the first district title for many wrestlers, including Kimberly's Allen Hunt (171 pounds) and Gooding's Calvin Walgamott (215). Hunt, a senior, said it was also his first year to qualify for state. He scored a pinfall over

Valley, Hall battle way into semifinals

By Jason Chatraw Times-News correspondent

BOISE — Katie Hall knows what it's like to freeze on the biggest stage of the state rodeo competition. But in the first round of the Class 2A girls state basketball tournament Thursday night, Hall and the Valley Vikings iced Melba 54-48 to advance to the semifinals Friday night at Bishop Kelly High School.

"I've been under the lights and frozen before," admitted Hall, who still carries around her breakaway second-place state rodeo belt buckle — the last time she froze. "After as many times as I've frozen, I think I know how to avoid it now.'

Hall, a 6-foot senior, played like the seasoned veteran that she is, dominating on the boards and finishing with a game-high 15 points and 13 rebounds. For good measure, she added five steals and blocked a pair of shots.

"Local teams know about Katie," Valley coach Brian Hardy said. "She usually gets double teamed. But we got single coverage on her tonight, so we took advantage of it."

Hall had a two-inch advantage on Melba's tallest player, and it showed. However, it wasn't just Hall's height advantage that helped Valley dominate on the boards. Senior Camelle Sizemore muscled down nine rebounds, while Ashley Kraus snagged five as Valley outrebounded Melba, 31-15.

"I think we did a good job of pounding the ball inside and controlling the boards, something we've been able to do all year," Hardy said. Valley (18-3) never trailed in the game and responded to every Melba run with a run of its own.

Trailing 20-14, Melba (14-7) began pressuring Valley and earned a couple of buckets on breakaways to go on a 7-2 run and pull within 22-21 with 3:30 left in the second quarter. However, Valley managed to convert at the free throw line and maintained a 26-24 halftime lead.

In the third quarter, Valley built a 39-31 lead behind six points from Hall and some long-range shooting by Alyssa Henry.

With Melba edging closer late in the third quarter, junior Gabi Nava hit two big shots—one to close the third quarter and one to start the fourth quarter, pushing the Vikings' lead back to eight.

"(Nava) hit some big shots like that for us in the last three or four games of the season," Hardy said of Nava. "She only gets a few buckets a game, but they're usually big ones."

Undaunted by the large deficit, Melba went on a 10-2 run to tie the game at 45-45 with 4:30 remaining, the first time the game had been tied since 5-5 early in the first quarter.

Then Valley's experience took over as it methodically spread the floor and took high percentage shots, finishing the game on a 10-3 run to put away Melba.

"We have a lot of faith in each other," Hall said. "So when we get in a tight situation like we were in tonight in the fourth quarter, we know what to do. I don't think there

Second half spurt leads Tigers to semis

Dietrich, Carey meet today in semifinal game

By John Derr Times-News writer

NAMPA — After a great start, Richfield weathered a drought before running away down the stretch to defeat North Gem in the first round of the Class 1A Division II girls state basketball tournament Thursday afternoon at Nampa High School. "We realized there are no second chances at state. We can't be champs if we lose," said Teenie Kent, who led the Tigers with 15 points, including 10 in the third quarter as Richfield won 51-

The Tigers will play Greenleaf Friends Academy, which defeated Mackay, in the semifinals at 1:15 p.m., today. The earlier time for the semis is due to the championship game being played at 9:30 a.m. Saturday.

Richfield defeated North Gem by 13 points during the regular season. Early on it looked like the rematch wouldn't be that close.

With four different players scoring the Tigers led 9-0 early. North Gem finally got on the board five minutes into the game and proceeded to go on an 8-0 run. Richfield kept firing away,

"In the second half we played like we are capable of. I told the girls our goal is to win and advance and to forget the stuff that happened

> the first half." Richfield head coach Steve Kent but nothing would fall. The Tigers finished the half shooting just 18 percent.

Late free throws by Teenie and Michelle Kent put the Tigers up19-14 to end a lowscoring first half.

With a renewed focus on defense, Richfield got another run going in the second half, keyed by Lea Piper and Teenie Kent.

'We stepped up our game," said Teenie Kent.

Lea Piper was a monster in the paint, knocking away passes, grabbing rebounds and tossing in 10 points.

"I had to make up for the first half," said Piper, who finished with five rebounds and four steals. "I was just in the right spot at the right time. I just worked harder. I don't think I was ready the first half."

Michelle Kent, who chipped in nine points, nailed the 3-pointer early in the fourth for the Tigers biggest lead at 45-20.

With well over six minutes left, Steve Kent began emptying his bench, giving the starters much needed rest for the next two days.

"In the second half we played like we are capable of," said Steve Kent. "I told the girls our goal is to win and advance and to forget the stuff that happened the first half."

DIETRICH 57 GARDEN VALLEY 56

Jesse Dill made two free throws with no time left on the clock at Dietrich rallied to shock Garden Valley 57-

Garden Valley went to the foul line with a 56-54 lead and 10 seconds remaining, but missed the front end of a 1-and-1 situation. Dill grabbed the rebound and found Nakia Norman who was fouled on her shot attempt. Norman made the first free throw, but missed the second. Dill grabbed the offensive rebound and was fouled on her putback try to set up the winning foul

"It was quite amazing," said Acev Shaw, whose 19-6 team will face Carey at 3 p.m. today in the semifinals. Dill score 26 points and had eight rebounds, while her sister Moriah Dill added 14 points and nine boards. Moriah Dill and Dayna Phillips both had key late shots as Dietrich rallied in the final minutes.

Lacey Jones had a gamehigh 28 to lead Garden Valley (18-3).

CAREY 44, SUMMIT ACADEMY 39

Free throw shooting set the Carey Panthers apart from Summit Academy during the first round of the tournament, as both teams had an equal number of field goals. But Carey (14-9) made five more free throws, which was the difference in its 44-39 victory.

The Panthers went 13 of 25 , while the Patriots hit just 8 of 13 from the stripe. Both teams made 15 field goals. Jessica Parke led the Panthers with 14 points, while Amy Ellsworth tallied an 11-point, 12-rebound double-double. Parke had five steals.

Carey will play Northside Conference rival Dietrich at 3 p.m. today in the championship semifinals.

Holtman's heroics key to Raft River win

Trojans slip past Kendrick to advance to semis

By David Bashore Times-News writer

NAMPA — There's a belief that if Sally Hansen goes missing on the scoreboard, Raft River is in trouble.

Time to ditch that line of thinking.

Whitney Holtman scored 16 points and had two precious steals and a deflection inside the final minute as the Raft River girls basketball team fended off Kendrick 51-50 in the Class 1A Division I quarterfinals at Columbia High School on Thursday afternoon.

Holtman's first steal led to Chelzee Nye's layup to provide the final margin. Her second theft came with about 12 seconds left in the game and resulted in Kendrick not getting a last shot after she deflected an up-court pass as time expired.

"Whitney's got a nose for the basketball. She's really our heart and soul on defense," said Raft River head coach Jeremy Qualls. "It's almost like having another coach out there on the floor, because sometimes she can call the defense based on what she sees out there."

The Tigers were solid in their effort to stonewall Hansen, limiting the Raft River standout to just three points. But she had seven rebounds, three assists and four steals to help get her teammates more involved.

"That's both a bad thing and a good thing," said Qualls. "It forces other players to step up and make things happen, and it hopefully will help (spur Hansen on) later on in the tournament."

Marli Manning hit two vital 3-pointers early in the fourth quarter, the first of which gave Raft River the lead, the Trojans' first since they led 7-6 midway through the first period. She finished with eight points and had a chance to ice it from the foul line — as did Holtman — but some missed free throws late turned out not to be killers.

"It was really, really intense out there, and it just came down to having a lot of hardworking teammates that really wanted it," said Manning. "We practice on game situations a lot and we know that if we make a mistake we can still get back there and play tougher defense and do it again."

Holtman's last steal and the decisive deflection helped redeem the missed shots. She attributed a short memory to her ability to pick up after missing two shots that would have iced it.

You just have to let your mistakes go," she said. "You can always come back on the next play and get it back."

Hailey Higley added 13 points for the Trojans. Kendrick was led by a gamehigh 24 points and 15 rebounds from 6-foot-3 post Myriah Deeds, while Morgan Jo Wolff scored 19 and dished out five assists.

Raft River (18-6) will look to advance to its second straight state championship game when the Trojans play Clearwater Valley in the semifinals at 6:15 p.m., tonight. Clearwater Valley earned a 58-30 win over Rimrock on Thursday.

It was expected to be something of a trap game for Jerome, which won its conference with an average 29.5point margin of victory and beat Mountain Home by double digits twice during the regular season.

But with the reminder of another trap game in their minds, a first-round loss to Bishop Kelly in the state tournament last season, the Ierome girls weren't going to let it happen again.

Bruin grapplers prepare for 5A state qualifier

By Bradley Guire Times-News writer

It's not a matter of merely qualifying or placing at this year's Idaho High School Wrestling Class 5A Championships for Twin Falls wrestler Zak Slotten. There is only winning.

"I'm going to win it all," the 171-pounder said. "It's all or nothing.'

The first step comes today in Idaho Falls as the Bruins vie for state seeds at the Region Four-Five-Six tournament. Slotten took fifth last

CSI sluggers gear up for home cookin'

By David Bashore Times-News writer

The College of Southern Idaho baseball team's final tune-up for Scenic West Athletic Conference play will be a unique one.

To prepare for next weekend's trip to the College of Southern Nevada, Golden Eagles will host the Prairie Baseball Academy, a travel team from Canada, for noon doubleheaders on both Saturday and Sunday.

Nope, that's not a misprint. CSI's at home. In February.

The field is still wet in places and the grass is nowhere near green — CSI head coach Boomer Walker said the playing surface at Skip Walker Field will probably need to be replaced in the summer — but home is home. Especially for a team that has just one series at home in its first five weekends of play.

"It's tough when you're on the road. You're playing in different parks, have to figure out how the wind affects everything," said Walker. "When you're at home, it's the same routine, the same place to sleep, the same field because vou've been practicing on it all season long."

The Golden Eagles (4-5) still haven't had a full practice at the Skip because of weather and field conditions, but they have gotten nine games in at warmweather sites. And that has proved a test to which no amount of practice can compare — all nine of the contests were played in Arizona or Nevada, against teams from Florida, Texas, Arizona and California.

Despite the sub-.500 record, CSI appears pleased with the turn of events so far this season. The Golden Eagles hope that the neareven start, particularly the way in which they played last weekend at Southern Nevada, is merely a flash of things to come.

"It makes a big difference, playing the warm weather rather than the cold. Your hands don't sting when you get jammed and it's just a different ballgame," said sophomore Tyler Chism, who picked up a win and had a pair of 3-for-4 outings last weekend in Henderson, Nev. "Against those warmweather teams that have played a lot more than we have, I think that we showed how good of a team we're going to be when we get going into the region.

"We've had a few innings here and there where we've played well, but we're still waiting for that game where it all comes together."

"We were not on our game to start," said Kimberly coach Rich Bishop. "The girls responded well, unfortunately we didn't have one of our better games."

Kearsley, who tallied a game-high 19, pushed Teton's lead early in the third quarter, but Pfefferle scored the next 10 Bulldog points and Kimberly took its first lead on a Crist 3-pointer with 2:20 left in the peridownhill," said Bishop. Teton quickly regained the lead and went 5 of 8 at the foul line down the stretch to seal the win. "In a close game you have to make your free throws and they did," said Bishop. "Things just didn't go our way."

Kimberly shot just 27 percent for the game, going 6 of 29 after intermission.

"Our shots weren't falling and they hit their outside shots," said Pfefferle.

WENDELL 44, BONNERS FERRÝ 38

The Wendell Trojans kept trying to pull away, but the Bonners Ferry Badgers kept nipping at their heals.

Up by double digits throughout much of the second half, Wendell held on down the stretch to defeat Bonners Ferry 44-38 and earn a spot in the state semifinals.

It took awhile for the Trojans to get things going as both teams struggled early.

Kristen Brandsma tossed in four points the first quarter, but she went to the bench with two fouls and Wendell trailed by one after the opening period. Jori Fleming converted an oldfashioned three-point play late in the second as the Trojans led 19-14 at the break.

'We did what we needed to do, (Friday) we will be settled down," said Fleming, who tallied 13 points.

Things clicked for Wendell in third quarter, but the Badgers made a run in the fourth to get with four at the six-minute mark.

That's when Iaci Lancaster stepped up. The senior point guard went 3for-4 from the charity stripe and chipped in a pair of assists as the lead grew back to double digits. The senior guard also led the team with 10 rebounds ands six assists.

"A lot of practicing," said Lancaster of the free throws. "We let up a little and knew we had to step it up."

It still wasn't a done deal. A pair of late 3-pointers by the Badgers made it interesting yet again.

But the Trojans got some help from the bench as Erin O'Brien converted inside and grabbed a huge offensive rebound to help Wendell seal the victory. "I just wanted to score," said O'Brien, who finished with seven. "We had to pick up the intensity again when they made a comeback."

Said Fleming: "We got a lead and then let them comeback. We need to work on finishing."

Duke snaps two-game losing streak against St. John's

Henderson scored 19 points and Duke's starters scored all but four points as the ninthranked Blue Devils snapped a two-game losing streak with a 76-69 victory over St. John's on Thursday night.

The Blue Devils (21-5) came in having lost three of four, including the consecutive losses to North Carolina and Boston College. They looked more like the team that has spent the entire season in the top 10, including one week at No. 1, hitting 3pointers and converting turnovers into points.

Jon Scheyer had 18 points, Kyle Singler scored 15, Elliot Williams had a career-high 11

NEW YORK — Gerald and Lance Thomas added the past eight games. nine for Duke. The start was the sixth this season for Thomas and the second for Williams as coach Mike Krzyzewski made some changes to the lineup.

NO. 12 VILLANOVA 82, RUTGERS 72

VILLANOVA, Pa. — Scottie Reynolds scored 21 points and Corey Stokes had 17.

Corey Fisher scored seven of his 14 points in a 2-minute stretch midway through the second half that turned a two-point hole into a 63-56 lead. Villanova (21-5, 9-4 Big East) then went 8-for-11 from the floor and used a 20-5 run to win for the seventh time in Rutgers (10-16, 1-12) gamely tried to duplicate last year's 80-68 stunner over the Wildcats in Piscataway, N.J., and kept this one close for most of the first 30 minutes. Mike Rosario scored 19 points and Anthony Farmer had 17.

CHARLOTTE 65, NO. 16 XAVIER 60

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Ian Andersen scored 16 points and Lamont Mack scored all 12 of his points in the final 8 minutes.

Mack, Charlotte's top scorer coming in, got into early foul trouble and missed his first six shots. He then hit four of his final six, including a 3pointer with 31 seconds left to put the 49ers ahead 62-58.

An'Juan Wilderness iced it by going 3-for-4 from the foul line in the final 11 seconds before the Charlotte students stormed the floor in the 49ers' biggest win in a down

NO. 17 GONZAGA 91, LOYOLA MARYMOUNT 54

SPOKANE, Wash. — Steven Gray scored a career-high 23 points and No. 17 Gonzaga won its ninth consecutive West Coast Conference regular season title and earn the top seed in the league tournament.

Josh Heytvelt added 18 points as Gonzaga (20-5, 11-0 WCC) won at least 20 games for a 12th consecutive season. Gray made five of seven 3-pointers, all in his 21-point second half.

IDAHO ST. 63, MONTANA ST. 56

BOZEMAN, Mont. Donnie Carson scored 13 points and grabbed five rebounds to lead Idaho State to a 63-56 win over Montana State on Thursday night.

Matt Stucki, Amorrow Morgan and Lucas Steijn finished with 12 points apiece for the Bengals (8-19, 7-6 Big Skv).

Idaho State went on a 13-3 run capped by four straight points from Morgan to take a 22-13 lead with just under seven minutes to play in the first half.

The Bobcats (12-12, 6-7) narrowed the margin and kept it close for most of the second half, but Idaho State put the game out of reach with five minutes to play as they extended the lead to nine on Stucki's fall-away jumper.

Will Bynum led Montana State with 15 points. Branden Johnson finished with 13 points in the place of Bobby Howard, a regular starting forward who was out with a knee injury.

Texas Tech head football coach Mike Leach, university agree on new contract

LUBBOCK, Texas — Texas Tech and coach Antonio Spurs beat the Detroit Pistons 83-79 Mike Leach agreed Thursday on a new contract after months of contentious negotiations.

Leach signed the contract shortly after he and Kent Hance, the university's chancellor, met for about two hours Thursday afternoon to hammer out an agreement. Hance said the negotiating part lasted only about 15 minutes.

"Me and my family are thrilled to death that we're going to be in Lubbock for another five years," Leach said at an evening news conference. "I appreciate Chancellor Hance and Gerald (Myers') efforts to allow us to stay here and the opportunity to be here to coach the Red Raiders for many years to come."

Weeks ago, Leach and Tech essentially settled on the financial terms of a five-year, $12.7 million deal. But Leach took issue with several clauses the school added when the sides were trading proposals.

NFL SCOUTING COMBINE SIZE DOESN'T MEAN EVERYTHING FOR U-LINEMEN

Alabama's Smith one of top rated players in draft

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Andre Smith has the highest profile among offensive linemen at this week's NFL's annual scouting combine.

Herman Johnson still carries more weight.

Smith, the tackle, and Johnson, the guard, are two of the top rated players at their respective positions and could plug major holes for teams in need of pass protection and run blocking — if they can answer some big questions this week.

For Smith, projected by some to be the top pick in April's draft, it comes down to the subtleties of playing right tackle or left.

For Johnson, it's all about the pounds.

"I've lost more than 20 pounds since the Senior Bowl," Johnson said after weighing in at 364 on Thursday. "Some people said to drop some weight and show them what I could do."

Johnson has done his part. But showing off isn't a normal activity at the combine, where many top prospects skip the workouts and opt instead to showcase their skills on college campuses.

Smith may be the exception because he hasn't yet decided whether to participate in Saturday's drills, something that could help scouts determine where he should play.

The distinction could be Right now, Smith is projected by some to be the No. 1 pick in April's draft, but the money and higher draft picks are usually spent on the coveted left tackles, who protect a right-handed quarterback's blindside. So if they determine Smith is a better stock could slip and his childhood dreams may take

"It's true, I asked my dad when I was in 6th grade, going into seventh grade, what was the highest paid position in the NFL," Smith said. "He told me."

Smith then grew to be 6foot-4, 332 pounds and honed his skills into those needed to be an elite NFL

Alabama offensive lineman Andre Smith talks about his football draft prospects during a press conference at the NFL Scouting Combine in Indianapolis, Thursday.

"I've lost more than 20 pounds since the Senior Bowl. Some people said to drop some weight and show them what I could do."

> - Herman Johnson, former LSU guard who weighed in at 364 pounds Thursday

Scouts may now have another question to ponder. Smith was suspended from Alabama's bowl game after it was reported he had dealings with an agent. That fit on the right side, his draft is a violation of NCAA rules and could have ended his college eligibility though coach Nick Saban said he would have welcomed Smith back for his senior season.

On Thursday, Smith, for the first time, denied the suspension was related to an agent, saving instead he hadn't chosen Alvin Keels to represent him until two weeks

"It was just a bad decision," he said. "I went to talk is easily the largest linemen even the weighty nicknames

Panthers' Peppers gets franchise tag

The Associated Press

Julius Peppers was slapped with the franchise player tag by Carolina on Thursday, making it more difficult for the star defensive end to get his wish and leave the Panthers.

The tag was applied after the Panthers agreed on a new contract with left tackle Jordan Gross. That cleared the way for Carolina to use the team's only franchise tag on Peppers, who had 14½ sacks last season but expressed his desire to leave the Panthers and their 4-3 to Coach Saban about it, and in the draft, about 30 pounds he thought it was best to proheavier than any of the other tect the team. I hurt, I cried, I roughly 330 players at the shed some tears, I talked to combine. That could give my teammates about it. But teams a formidable interior it had nothing to do with an agent."

on what the indiscretion

Johnson is an intriguing prospect for another reason: Sheer size.

At 6-foot-8, 364 pounds, he scheme for a team that plays a 3-4 defense.

The move came on the final day for teams to apply a franchise designation, which keeps a player under the control of his current team for an average salary of the top five players at his position. Overall, 14 of the NFL's 32 teams protected players with the franchise

In addition to Peppers, among those tagged on Thursday were cornerback Dunta Robinson of Houston; tight end Bo Scaife of Tennessee; line-presence to block the increasingly bulky group of Smith wouldn't elaborate defensive tackles that stuff the run.

But 364 is paltry compared to his freshman reporting weight at LSU, 411.

So Johnson is accustomed to the stares, questions and backer Leroy Hill of Seattle; and offensive tackle Max Starks of Pittsburgh.

Meanwhile, All-Pro cornerback Nnamdi Asomugha re-signed with Oakland, avoiding the franchise tag he had last season by agreeing to a three-year contract that's thought to be the richest ever given to a defensive back. It's value is estimated at $30 million.

But the most intriguing move involves Peppers, the second overall pick in the 2002 draft. His big season followed a 2007 in which he had just 21/2 sacks.

such as "The House," given to him by former LSU teammate Marcus because, well, Spears thought he was as big as a house.

Apparently, it's in the genes.

His birth weight, 15 pounds, 14 ounces, is considered the Louisiana record and the doctor who delivered Johnson still calls on his birthday to remind him that mark has not been broken.

Shaq, other big names stay put at trade deadline

The Associated Press

Shaquille O'Neal and all the other big names stayed put on trade deadline day, with owners perhaps scared of making moves that added salary in an uncertain economic climate.

The Cleveland Cavaliers were among the suitors that reportedly reached out to Phoenix to inquire about O'Neal, but they couldn't close a deal for him or any other big man they sought to battle defending NBA champion Boston.

Amare Stoudemire and Vince Carter headlined the stars who had space on the rumor mill in recent weeks but went nowhere, with teams having to balance a player's impact on the court with his effect on the wallet.

"If anybody hasn't figured out that the economy is hitting every company in the country and in the world, they're not very bright," Dallas owner Mark Cuban said Wednesday. "Of course it's hitting everybody and everybody has to be considerate of

The Suns were believed to be one of the teams considering financial-based moves during a disappointing season. But after Phoenix fired Terry Porter on Monday and scored 140 points in consecutive wins under new coach Alvin Gentry, owner Robert Sarver gave the go-ahead to keep the team together.
"We could have made moves to save money and, given the economy and our payroll, that would have been understandable," manager Steve Kerr said, "but he stepped up and allowed us to move forward with what we have."

The only top contender to make an upgrade was Orlando, which landed Rafer

Houston in a three-team deal that also included Memphis. The Magic needed point guard to replace All-Star Jameer

The Kings also waived Mikki Moore after continuing their salary cap purge with their third trade in a week. Sacramento sent Brad Miller and John Salmons to the Bulls on Wednesday for Andres Nocioni, Drew Gooden, Michael Ruffin and Cedric Simmons. LOS ANGELES — With a flop shot that was amazing even by his standards, Phil Mickelson took a step toward shaking off his West Coast doldrums Thursday with his best round ever at Riviera.

From 40 yards behind the 10th green, his ball buried in the rough and his landing area no bigger than a hub cap, Mickelson's barely cleared the bunker and settled 6 feet from the hole to start his day with a birdie.

It sent him to an 8-under 63 and a one-shot lead at the Northern Trust Open, a round Mickelson desperately needed after one of the worst starts to his

FBI tracks down financier in fraud case

WASHINGTON (AP) Texas financier R. Allen Stanford was tracked down Thursday in Virginia, where FBI agents served him with legal papers in a multibillion-dollar fraud case.

FBI agents, acting at the request of the Securities and Exchange Commission, served Stanford court orders and other documents, the FBI and the SEC said.

Stanford is not under arrest and is not in custody. In a civil complaint

Tuesday, the SEC accused Stanford, two other executives and three of his companies with committing an $8 billion fraud

lured investors with promises of improbable and unsubstantiated high returns on certificates of deposit and other investments. It's not clear how much of the $8 billion was lost and how much investors might recover.

Until regulators got help Thursday from the FBI, the SEC had not been able to find Stanford.

A law enforcement official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the billionaire was served Thursday afternoon by an agent who had staked out a location in Fredericksburg, Va.

Around 1:45 p.m., the agent spotted Stanford in a charged with any crime, car driven by Stanford's girlfriend. The agent spoke to Stanford, who was riding in the passenger side, the official said. The agent handed Stanford the SEC complaint, a federal court order freezing Stanford's assets and another order naming a receiver.

Stanford told the agent he understood and would make arrangements to surrender his passport, the official

Strains threaten military readiness

WASHINGTON (AP) -For the third consecutive year, a classified Pentagon assessment has concluded there's a significant risk that the U.S. military could not respond quickly and fully to any new crisis, The Associated Press learned.

The latest risk assessment, drawn up by Adm. Mike Mullen, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, comes despite recent security gains in Iraq and plans for troop cuts there.

The assessment finds that the U.S. continues to face persistent terrorist threats, and the military is still stretched and strained from long and repeated tours to the warfront.

Senior military officials spoke about the report on condition of anonymity because it is a classified document. Prepared every year, and routinely delivered to Congress with the budget, the risk assessment paints a broad picture of the security threats and hotspots around the world and the U.S. military's ability to deal with them. Mullen has delivered it to Defense Secretary Robert Gates.

Gates will send an accompanying report to Congress outlining what the military is doing to address the risks.

This year's assessment finds many of the same global security issues as previous years — ranging from terrorist organizations and unstable governments to the potential for high-tech cyber attacks. It also reflects the Pentagon's ongoing struggle to maintain a military that can respond to threats from other countries, while honing newer counterinsurgency techniques to battle more unconventional dangers, such as suicide bombers and lethal roadside bombs.

Unusual attraction

Chimpanzee had bond with owner

By John Christoffersen Associated Press writer

STAMFORD, Conn. — Travis the chimpanzee's relationship with his owner was closer than those of some married couples.

Sandra Herold gave him the finest food, and wine in long-stemmed glasses. They took baths together and cuddled in the bed they shared. Travis brushed the lonely widow's hair each night and pined for her when she was

If she left the house alone, Travis would give her a kiss.

"If I left with someone Travis would get upset," Herold said Wednesday.

Experts say the unusually human relationship would have been confusing for any animal. It may have also played a role in Travis' savage attack Monday on Herold's friend, 55-year-old Charla Nash of Stamford.

"This is a crazy relationship," said Stephen Rene Tello, executive director of Primarily Primates, a sanctuary for chimps in Texas. "He was probably very bonded with her. I can kind of see it in his eyes this is his surrogate mother."

And chimps like 14-vearold Travis, who was shot and killed by police, protect their mates and turf.

"If there is another person entering his space, he might consider it a threat to his territory, or even his mate," Tello said.

Police say Travis attacked Nash when she arrived at the house to help lure the chimp back into Herold's house. Herold speculated that Travis was being protective of her and attacked Nash because she had a different hairstyle. was driving a different car and held a stuffed toy in front of her face to get the chimp's attention.

Nash suffered massive injuries to her face and hands, requiring more than seven hours of surgery by four teams of doctors to stabilize her. She was transferred in critical condition Thursday to the Cleveland Clinic. which two months ago performed the nation's first successful face transplant.

Hospital officials say Nash is being treated for her injuries and it's unknown if she will be a candidate for a face transplant.

Monday's attack was not the first time Travis bit someone, a former Stamford resident now living in Atlanta said Thursday.

Leslie Mostel Paul told The Associated Press the chimp grabbed her hand and bit it hard enough to draw blood in 1996, while the animal was sitting in Herold's car in a Stamford office parking lot. Paul said she had tried to shake Travis' hand after Herold gave her permission to say hello.

Paul described Herold as being more aggravated than upset about the incident, and said she had to get rabies shots because Herold was slow in producing Travis' medical records.

"My impression was she was more like, 'Oh, this is gonna be a pain in the neck," Paul said.

Paul said she reported the incident to police but received no follow-up calls.

"I told them this was serious," said Paul, who spoke by phone from New York, where she was visiting relatives. "If it was a child, it could have ripped the hand off or an arm out a socket."

In an earlier interview on NBC's "Today" show, Paul said, "I honestly believe if they had followed through, maybe the laws would have been changed sooner and this other woman wouldn't be in the hospital, fighting for her life now."

Herold did not return a call seeking comment Thursday about Paul's claims. Police say they have no record of complaints, aside from a 2003 incident where Travis escaped from a vehicle and led police on a two-hour downtown chase before he was caught.

Authorities have not said whether Herold will face criminal charges. Connecticut state allowed her to own the chimp as a pet, though several state leaders are calling for tighter restrictions in the wake of Monday's attack.

Herold, who was known to buckle Travis in her car for rides and dress him in baseball shirts, tried to rescue Nash by stabbing Travis and hitting him with a shovel. "I stabbed something I raised as a son," she said Wednesday.

It's not known why the chimp suddenly attacked. Herold has given differing accounts on whether she treated the agitated chimp with Xanax, an anti-anxiety drug that had not been prescribed for him.

Mexico: Exodus of migrants declines

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Migration from Mexico, mainly to the United States, has fallen dramatically as fewer Mexicans leave their country to look for work abroad amid a global economic downturn, the government said Thursday.

The net outflow of Mexicans — both legal and illegal — declined by over 50 percent in the 12 months ending in August 2008, compared the same period a year earlier, said the Eduardo Sojo, president of the board of Mexico's National Statistics, Geography and Information Institute.

Sojo attributed the net drop in migration to tough economic conditions abroad motivating Mexicans to stay at home, rather than Mexicans in other countries returning to their homeland.

"There is declining tendency of people going abroad, but we have not detected, up to now, any increase in people returning to the country," Sojo said.

Sojo also said a recent survey of "leading indicators" suggests that the number of Mexicans planning to emigrate in the future is also dropping. He did not provide details of that survey.

He said the net outflow of Mexicans — those leaving the country minus those returning from abroad — dropped to 204,000 people between August 2007 and August 2008. That was down from 455,000 for the year ending in August

The number of returning Mexicans was roughly the same over the two periods, declining slightly to 450,000 by late 2008, from 478,000 in the 2007 period.

Parliament wants U.S. to vacate air base

BISHKEK, Kyrgyzstan (AP) Kyrgyzstan's parliament voted Thursday to close a key U.S. air base in the country a move that could hamper President Barack Obama's efforts to increase the number of U.S. forces in Afghanistan.

Deputies voted 78-1 with two abstentions for the government-backed bill to cancel the lease agreement on the Manas air base, a transit point for 15,000 troops and 500 tons of cargo each month to and from Afghanistan. The move follows Russia's offer of $2.15 billion in aid and loans to the impoverished Central Asian country.

U.S. Defense Secretary Robert Gates, in Poland for NATO talks, said the United States would consider paying more rent to continue using the strategic base. Speaking after the parliament vote in Kyrgyzstan, Gates said he considers talks still open over the future of the base.

Russia has denied pushing Kyrgyzstan to shut the base, but U.S. officials were skepti-

Black pastors to ask Burris to resign

CHICAGO — A Chicago minister tells The Associated Press he and other black pastors who previously supported U.S. Sen. Roland Burris now plan to ask him to resign.

The minister spoke Thursday on condition of anonymity because a meeting with Burris hadn't yet been scheduled.

Many of the city's black pastors supported seating Burris because of his scandal-free reputation — even though he was appointed by then-Gov. Rod Blagojevich after the governor was arrested. But revelations that Burris attempted to raise money for Blagojevich while seeking the Senate job have eroded some of his support. Blagojevich is accused of trying to sell the Senate appointment. A Burris spokeswoman

Schwarzenegger to sign budget legislation

SACRAMENTO California lawmakers passed a massive tax increase Thursday along with making billions in spending cuts, ending a grueling week of negotiations over closing the state's $42 billion budget deficit.

The package of bills was sent to Gov. Arnold Schwarzenegger after the early-morning votes in the Assembly and Senate, and the Republican governor was scheduled to sign it Friday. Schwarzenegger called the Legislature's work couranoting that geous. Democrats compromised on their opposition to deep spending cuts and some Republican lawmakers set aside their opposition to tax increases.

eaturing ample power and strong towing capacity, the Mazda B-Series is built to handle the toughest off-highway terrain. Yet, this rugged truck boasts a comfortable and refined cabin and looks just as good on the cityis paved paths.

Full hybrids achieve their greatest improvement in fuel economy during stop-and-go driving. This is when the electric motor is most efficient. In fact the Mariner Hybrid delivers approximately 80 percent better fuel economy in city driving than the conventional V6 Mariner, and can travel more than 500 miles in city driving on a single tank of gasoline.

Based on the reliable Ford Ranger pickup truck, the B-Series is available as a two-door Regular Cab or fourdoor, four-seat Cab Plus and two- or four-wheel drive systems. Power for the Mazda pickup is generated by a choice of a 2.3L four-cylinder or 4.0L V6 engines. Torque is communicated to the ground through the standard five-speed manual gearbox. A sophisticated and smooth-shifting five-speed automatic transmission is an available option.

The Regular cab is only offered with the 2.3L engine and the 4x4 is only offered as a Cab Plus and offered with the 4.0L engine. To better meet customer demands, the high-end B4000 Cab Plus SE model was discontinued in the U.S. market for 2009.

All 4x4 B-Series trucks feature low-range gearing and automaticlocking front hubs for tackling steep hills and low traction situations like deep mud or snow, or slippery boat loading ramps. Functionality is always at the forefront as all B-Series models are superbly practical. offering standard cargo-bed tiedown hooks, and a wide range of options such as a cargo-bed extender, retractable tie-down hooks, tie-down loops and a soft tonnean cover.

In keeping with the automakeris ifun-to-drivei mantra for all of its models, the B-Series trucks are fitted with an independent double-wishbone front suspension which allows a great amount of wheel-travel for tough offhighway operation without sacrificing on-road feel or performance. A leafspring set-up for the rear is tuned to provide a comfortable ride and great road handling without compromising the truckis core ability as a load carrier.

Power-assisted rack-and-pinion steering, gas-filled shock absorbers and a front stabilizer bar are fitted on all models for sure on-road drivability and response as well as great offhighway durability.

In addition, all B-Series trucks feature power-assisted front ventilated disc brakes with rear drums. Fourwheel anti-lock brakes are fitted as standard across the range to prevent wheel lockup and reduce stopping distances in certain conditions.

Inside the passenger cabin, storage space is abundant and clever. Bins within the center console, center armrest and front doors are spacious, and a pair of cupholders are also positioned to be driver-friendly.

Marriages blessed in church

not licensed at courthouse DEAR READERS: Since I print-Dear

ed the letter from "Deceived in Arizona" (Nov. 30), I have learned that not only individuals, but also some churches feel so strongly about separating the legal aspect of marriage from the religious that they have voted to only "bless unions," and their clergy no longer sign marriage licenses. Among them are member churches of the United Church of Christ, the Unitarian-Universalists and the Quakers. Instead, the model they follow is the one used in Europe, in which couples go to a courthouse to register their marriage, and then to a church or synagogue for a religious ceremony. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: In this day and age, especially with jobs so scarce, a lot of young couples are finding that by becoming legally married they disqualify themselves from things like prenatal care, health care for their children and government assistance programs. In order to survive, many couples now opt to have the ceremony

Another idea gaining in popularity is that unless everyone in this country has equal rights for marriage, no one should be getting married. Several couples I know have married without the paperwork because they regard the alternative the same as sitting at a segregated lunch counter, and they are unwilling to support segregation.

Many people feel there is a blatant disregard for separation of church and state and that "legal" marriages are not at all legal, but an example of government recognizing those with faith while disregarding those who have a different point of view on what family is.

- REV. M.N.R. IN NEW YORK

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I were married by a minister, but without a marriage license because his financial problems could have adversely affected me. Because we did want to commit to each other, we called it a "Ceremony of Commitment." We view ourselves as being married, and I have a ring.

When the ceremony was held, everyone knew what was going on. We requested no gifts, but many people still brought them. Because we were honest, some of the members of my church have turned against me and refuse to talk to me. They acknowledge my granddaughter and will talk to her while I am standing there watching, but will not say a word to me.

The way the couple in the letter you published handled it wasn't fair to their families and guests. They should have been upfront about it, which would have given everyone the right to make their own decision about whether to attend. I see nothing wrong with being married in the eyes of God. When the Bible was written, did they have marriage licenses then? - REBECCA

IN SUNNYVALE, CALIF.

DEAR ABBY: Increasing numbers of us reject licenses from the state in favor of honoring God's word — and it's not just old people who want to hang onto welfare benefits.

Nowhere in the Bible does a servant of God ask permission from the government to marry. The Father is more than good enough. And while there are references to 'what God has joined together," there is no similar praise for what Caesar has blessed.

The state may want to control and even redefine marriage. But a covenant before God, and witnesses, has been more than good enough for His people throughout most of history, and it has worked for my house for more than 30

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

"Ain't misbehavin' I'm savin' my love for you."

- Ella Fitzgerald

At the Yeh Brothers Cup (which was held in Chinese Taipei last year) there were all sorts of deceptive shenanigans in the defense to today's three no-trump.

When Neville Eber held the West cards, he led a diamond. Geoff Hampson put up dummy's king as Chris Bosenberg, East, followed with the eight, strongly suggesting four. Declarer now played a club back to the king, and Eber calmly dropped the queen under it. He knew declarer was 5-2 in spades and diamonds, and whether declarer had three clubs or four, he could be sure that the club gueen was dead in the water.

The play worked better than he could have hoped. Declarer took the card at face value and elected to go after spades (in other words, needing both the spade and heart finesses). He tried to cross to the heart jack and the roof fell in: down three.

But it is well-known that there are more ways of killing a cat than by choking it with cream. When Migry Campanile was on lead after a less informative auction (one no-trump - three no-trump), she kicked off with a spade — none of this fourth-highest nonsense for

Her partner, Michael Barel, returned the suit, and Campanile shifted to a diamond. Declarer ran the spades now, and Campanile had to find two discards, pitching a heart, then the club 10. Declarer now elected to cross to the heart ace and lead a club to the nine. Oops!

ANSWER: Your partner's cue-bid shows a good hand and asks you to reveal either a diamond stopper or spade support. Your diamond stopper is real, your spade support nebulous, so rebid two no-trump and leave it up to your partner to decide where to go from here.
