Bank files $6.3-million complaint against Lathams

Sheriff seizes dozens of vehicles from former car dealer

By Andrea Jackson
Times-News writer

KeyBank National Association has filed a $6.3 million complaint against the owners of a closed Twin Falls auto enterprise, along with two of its general managers and a local finance company.

In court papers, the bank alleges Robert Latham Jr. and Robert Latham Sr. violated bank credit agreements by wholesaling cars, failing to pay the bank — called “selling out of trust,” — denying the bank the ability to inspect the cars, and violating limits on how many older used cars they could sell.

Acting on behalf of the bank, the Twin Falls County Sheriff's Office began seizing vehicles that had been on the Latham lots, retrieving about 30 vehicles as of Wednesday, said Sheriff's Office spokeswoman Lori Nebeker. The Lathams were making arrangements Thursday to turn over another 31 vehicles, she said.

The Lathams operated Latham Motors in downtown Twin Falls, which closed in October, and Hertz of the Magic Valley, which opened in 2000 under the franchise name RLS Inc. It specialized in selling low-mileage lease-return vehicles, and closed earlier this month.

The Lathams also operate Latham's Auto Super Store in Elko, Nev. Attempts to reach that dealership were unsuccessful Thursday, and the telephone there appeared to have been disconnected.

Scott Reaves and Tracy Frank were general managers of Latham Motors, and Reaves is the registered agent of 1-800-Finance Inc. in Twin Falls. They are named as defendants in the suit, which says some or all of the vehicles have been seen at 195 Addison Ave. W. — the office of 1-800-Finance Inc., according to court records.

“On information and belief, the personal property collateral has been wrongfully transferred to and/or is being wrongfully detained by 1-800-Finance Inc., or other related entities,” according to the court record.

As of Feb. 20, the defendants owed KeyBank more than $6.3 million, including principal and interest that continues to accrue, according to court records.

Area educators play lottery in bid to raise money

By Ben Botkin
Times-News writer

For Teresa Corr, scratching dozens of lottery tickets became part of her job on Thursday.

Corr, a paraprofessional at Paul Elementary School, was at the Idaho Lottery's annual Scratch for Schools fundraiser on Thursday at the College of Southern Idaho. The event provided educators from about two dozen schools throughout the Magic Valley with an opportunity to scratch lottery tickets to raise money for their schools.

The goal was simple: scratch as many of the 300 provided lottery tickets as possible within five minutes, with the winning tickets providing the prize money. The five finalists advanced to another round, gaining another 300 tickets — and the chance to win more.

The winner of the second round received yet another batch of 300 tickets — 900 total tickets. The second-place finisher received a third batch of 150 tickets — 750 in all.

The educators didn't need to be math teachers to know that winning the first round meant more tickets and better odds of winning more lottery money.

“Don't scratch until I tell you,” said David Workman, a spokesman for the Idaho Lottery.

A scratching frenzy began as the school employees worked in teams of two scratchers and a third person feeding out the tickets.

Workman counted down the time. “Ninety seconds, everybody,” he said.

After the first round, Corr's team scratched 99 tickets. “It made your arms hurt,” she said. “I was just so focused.”

Twenty tickets were disqualified, though, because they weren't scratched all the way.

“I thought we'd be able to do more than that,” said Ralyn Nelson, a librarian at Paul Elementary School.

Participants said the competition was tiring. “It's very intense,” said Debbie Stone, a fourth-grade teacher at Murtaugh Elementary School. “Your fingers and thumb feel like they're going to fall off. It's just fun.”

Castleford High School finished first in both rounds, with 107 tickets the first round. The second time, the team did even better, with 120 tickets.

And how did they win? “Scratch like mad,” said Roger Wells, an agriculture teacher at Castleford High School.

Naranjo sentenced to 13 to 21 years for Gonzalez murder

By Andrea Jackson
Times-News writer

The man authorities say shot and killed Vicente Gonzalez almost two years ago in Twin Falls was sent to prison on Thursday for 13 to 21 years.

James Naranjo pleaded guilty to second-degree murder, after he was originally charged with murder in the first degree. The sentence was in accordance with his agreement with prosecutors.

Police say Gonzalez, who was 29 at the time of his murder was shot multiple times at his home at 434 Fourth Ave. W., after a May 30, 2007, altercation at the Klover Klub in Twin Falls.

Three other men were charged and convicted of accessory to murder in the killing. Reyes Duran, 28, got five years probation, while Ben Duran, 33, and Eric Gonzalez, 23, were sent to prison for two to five years.

Ben Duran was put into a

BURLEY — Marijuana doesn't last long in Cassia County.

Robert Hernandez, 30, of Burley, was arrested for drug trafficking Wednesday following an investigation that involved the U.S. Postal Service, Idaho State Police, Cassia County Sheriff's Office and the Mini-Cassia Drug Task Force — comprised of officers from Cassia and Minidoka counties, Rupert, and Heyburn.

According to an ISP press release, the operation on 16th Street in Burley resulted in the seizure of “15 pounds of high-grade marijuana, with an estimated street value of $30,000.”

ISP Captain Kedrick Wills, the officer in charge of the investigation, was unavailable for comment Thursday.

Cassia County Sheriff

Randy Kidd talked about the bust — but, because the investigation was conducted by ISP, he couldn't comment on the specific events that led to the arrest.

“This is actually the third package of a significant quantity of marijuana that ISP or us has intercepted through some kind of parcel delivery system in the past couple of years,” he said.

Kidd emphasized the importance of interagency cooperation.

“This case is a prime example of how law-enforcement agencies — whether state, federal or local — work together and in support of each other to enforce the laws of ... Idaho,” he said.

Somali militant group triggers U.S. terror concerns

Officials: Al-Shabab may spawn suicide bombers in U.S.

By Lolita C. Baldor
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — As people crowded into the capital for Barack Obama's inaugural celebration, senior counterterrorism officials huddled in the White House situation room, frantically trying to unravel intelligence about a possible attack on Washington.

By Tuesday afternoon, as Obama took the oath of office, the threat of a terror plot by the Somalia-based al-

Shabab organization had been debunked, but the flurry of activity underscored growing worries about this Islamic militant group.

“I think they are a serious problem, and I don't think that we should be glib and take it lightly,” said Theresa Whelan, deputy assistant secretary of Defense for African Affairs. “Are they the ones that are going to plan the next major terrorist attack in the United States and carry it out? Probably not. But could they provide some of the foot soldiers for it? Yes.”

The State Department considers al-Shabab a terrorist organization with links to al-Qaida, something the group

Latham

Reaves declined comment on the lawsuit. Neither Robert Latham Sr., who lives in Hawaii, nor Frank returned phone calls from the Times-News. Robert Latham Jr. could not be reached for comment.

Selling out of trust — selling a car financed by a bank without repaying the lender — could be considered a crime when the lender is a federally insured bank, said David Johnson, a 30-year veteran in auto sales, and president of Pro Business Solutions, a Twin Falls-based marketing management consulting firm. Johnson is also a Twin Falls City Council member.

The Lathams' corporate entity, RLS Inc., allegedly sold out of trust to the tune of $4.8 million, attorneys for the federally insured bank allege in court papers.

“You actually could be criminally charged if they (the bank) are federally insured, but it depends on the exact arrangement,” said Johnson. “A dealer that's out of trust with the bank generally isn't going to stay in business. I think selling a single car out of trust is a bad thing.”

Twin Falls County Prosecutor Grant Loeb said

he has not received a report from law enforcement alleging any criminal activity related to the auto dealers, and Nebeker said her office is only recovering vehicles for the bank under a writ of possession.

“There's no criminal charges on our end,” Nebeker said.

In court papers, the bank said it needed a writ of possession because it believes the defendants would conceal the vehicles, remove them from the state, or sell them to innocent buyers.

The lawsuit alleges the defendants were “attempting to further hide ... dissipate and/or transfer the personal property collateral without the knowledge and/or consent of Key Bank,” according to the lawsuit.

The bank's lawyer, Rebecca Rainey, of Moffatt, Thomas, Barrett, Rock & Fields Chartered, in Boise, declined to comment.

Court records also assert the defendants were selling more than twice the amount of “used older” vehicles than was allowed under their credit agreements with KeyBank.

Andrea Jackson may be reached at 208-735-3380 or ajackson@magicvalley.com.

Naranjo

Even after Naranjo's guilty plea, versions of what happened varied Thursday from both sides of the courtroom.

Loeb said Naranjo shot into a window and through an open door into the house.

Naranjo told authorities in a pre-sentence report that he only shot through a window, after one of the other men shot the gun through the door.

Whether or not that's true isn't the point, said 5th District Court Judge Randy Stoker. That's “of little consequence to me because you're the man who took a man's life.”

Gonzalez's family wasn't in the courtroom Thursday.

Stoker said the hearing represents the end of a chapter of “unfortunate violence in this community.”

In the end, Naranjo apologized. “I take responsibility for all this,” he said. “I know ‘sorry’ isn't going to replace him.”

The men didn't know each other, Loeb told the court, and Gonzalez “really did nothing wrong at all.”

His death, Loeb said, was “a tragic loss of an innocent person's life.”

Terror

denies. Al-Shabab, which means “The Youth,” has been gaining ground as Somalia's Western-backed government crumbles. The group's goal is to establish an Islamic state in Somalia.

U.S. counterterrorism officials say they detect a disturbing pattern, one that mirrors al-Qaida methods and could spawn homegrown insurgents and suicide bombers in the U.S.

Counterterrorism officials suspect that al-Shabab is recruiting young men from Somali communities in Minnesota and other Midwestern states, luring them back to their home country for terror training and creating cells of fighters who could travel to other countries, including the United States, to launch attacks.

Four months ago, a young Somali man left Minneapolis to become a suicide bomber. He detonated a bomb he was wearing, one step in a series of coordinated attacks targeting a U.N. compound, the Ethiopian consulate and the presidential palace in Somaliland's capital, Hargeisa.

It was the first known time a U.S. citizen was a suicide bomber.

In response, the FBI stepped up efforts to reach out to community leaders in the Minneapolis area, where young Somali-American men have disappeared and are believed to have traveled to Somalia to fight with militants. FBI spokesman E.K. Wilson said that since the disappearances, the bureau has worked to expand relationships with community elders, religious leaders and others active in the local Somali population, which numbers about 80,000.

“We want them to come forward with concerns about their young people,” Wilson said. “We share the same concerns. We want to help, and we need people with concerns to come forward with information.”

U.S. officials aren't sure who is recruiting for al-Shabab, or whether recruits trained in Somalia have been returning to the United States. That uncertainty increased the concerns about the inaugural weekend intelligence reports. Counterterrorism officials described the time as tense as they faced a threat that appeared to grow in credibility as the hours passed.

At the National Counterterrorism Center in northern Virginia, law enforcement and military authorities worked to dissect the threat, which emanated from a suspect in Uganda. At the White House, outgoing Bush administration officials and their incoming Obama counterparts monitored the situation while preparing for the presidential transition.

The most alarming aspect, said one former Bush official, was that they knew the inauguration would be a good target for any terrorist group, because of the huge crowds and political significance. And there already had been several cases that linked individuals, including Somalis, in the United States to terrorist acts in Somalia. Those included:

- Daniel Maldonado, a New Hampshire native, trained at a terrorist camp in Somalia alongside al-Qaida members in efforts to help overthrow the Somali government. He was captured by Kenyan military while trying to flee Somalia and is serving a 10-year prison sentence in the U.S.

- Rupert Shumpert, who was from Seattle, was indicted on counterfeit charges in a case that also concluded he spoke often in support for jihad. He fled the country and went to Somalia, where he was killed last year.

- Shirwa Ahmed, a young Somali-American, left his family in Minnesota and blew himself up in one of the coordinated suicide bombings in Somalia last Oct. 29.

Whelan, who has been a senior policy adviser on African issues at the Pentagon for 14 years, said the al-Shabab threat is complex and evolving, potentially becoming more serious as al-Qaida or other Islamic ideologues try to make inroads into the Somali communities in the U.S.

“There has been a lot of movement back and forth (to Somalia) for a long time, and that leaves us open to the potential that weaknesses will be exploited by those that have jihadist aims,” she said. “We need to be very careful because we have seen that we are internally vulnerable because of the Somali Diaspora.”

Federal authorities won't say whether they've tracked any of the Somali youth returning to the U.S. after traveling to their homeland.

Blaine Co. conducts drug sweep, arrests five

By Ariel Hansen
Times-News writer

HAILEY — Blaine County law enforcement arrested five people on Wednesday connected to three drug search warrants served in the Hailey area. At one home, a small pipe bomb was found, and the Twin Falls bomb squad was called in to diffuse it.

Blaine County's Narcotic Enforcement Team, Idaho State Police and the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives joined three municipal police agencies in the Wood River Valley to execute the warrants. The narcotics team issued a press release on Thursday.

Blaine County Sheriff Walt Femling said the warrants were unrelated to a federal nationwide drug crackdown on Wednesday, announced by U.S. Attorney General Eric H. Holder Jr.

"This was our own local investigation we'd been doing for some time," Femling said.

The first warrant was served on 310 W. Walnut St. in downtown Hailey, where 29-year-old Jose Alberto Vera-Hidalgo was arrested for two counts of delivery of cocaine and one count of possession of cocaine with intent to deliver. Officers allegedly found cocaine at the home.

The second search warrant was executed at 249 Alturus Drive outside of Hailey, where officers allegedly found methamphetamine. Arrested at the residence were 27-year-old Benjamin Wagstaff on two counts of delivery of meth and one count of possession of meth with intent to deliver, and 18-year-old Rachel W. Lee on one count of frequenting a place where drugs are known to be sold or used.

Also allegedly found at this address was a small, homemade pipe bomb. The Twin Falls Bomb Squad was called in to diffuse the bomb, and evidence was retained from it.

No determination has yet been made whether to federally charge Wagstaff with possession of an explosive device, according to the press release.

Twin Falls Police Department Staff Sgt. Dan Lewin said the bomb squad used tools to open the device, rather than using countercharges to detonate it. The bomb squad responds a few times a year to Blaine County, most often for old commercial explosives such as dynamite, he said.

Down the street at 202 Alturus Drive, a warrant allegedly recovered $3,500 in money suspected to be the proceeds of drug sales. The residence was listed under Lidia "Lilly" Llamas and Augustine Martinez-Lazo, and was the subject of another search warrant last August. Martinez-Lazo is being held on federal drug charges based on that prior search, while Llamas still rents the residence and has not been federally charged.

During this search, 34-year-old Francisco Llamas was arrested on two counts of trafficking cocaine. Jesus Guttierrez-Andrades, whose age was not identified, was detained for an Immigration and Naturalization Services hold.

Also on Wednesday, 24-year-old Lesdi Parra-Quinones was arrested during a traffic stop on North Gannett Road. Cocaine was allegedly found in the vehicle, and Parra-Quinones was charged with aiding and abetting a delivery of cocaine and possession of cocaine with intent to deliver.

Blaine County Sheriff's Office Detective Steve Harkins, who issued the press release, declined to comment on whether the cases are connected, or to add any details to the release. The investigation is ongoing, the release stated, and more arrests are expected.

Winds leave parts of valley dark

By Nate Poppino
Times-News writer

A storm that brought wind and snow to the Magic Valley on Thursday also caused widespread power outages, knocking out power to an estimated 3,000 customers and leaving at least one city in the dark.

By 5:15 p.m., that number was down to 1,170, and crews had just returned power to 756 customers in Kimberly, Idaho Power Co. spokeswoman Stephanie McCurdy said. The outages also covered areas near Eden and Paul and came when high winds blew fuses and broke transformers, spokesman Russ Jones said.

Much of the Magic Valley was under a wind advisory until 6 p.m. The National Weather Service recorded winds of 40 mph and gusts of 49 mph at the Twin Falls airport shortly before noon, while winds in the Burley area were somewhat calmer.

Though Idaho Power's database showed most outages started at about 1:30 p.m. or later, some areas of the valley reported them earlier.

Lorie Reese, a secretary at Vera C. O'Leary Junior High School in Twin Falls, said the school lost power around 1 p.m. for 20 or 25 minutes. Teachers and administrators told students to stay put to keep them out of the darkened halls.

"We didn't want kids wandering around," Reese said.

The outages closed the Forest Service's Minidoka Ranger District office in Burley at 1:30 p.m., a spokeswoman said. And Ed Bryant, owner of Maxie's Pizza and Pasta in Kimberly, said around 3:35 p.m. that he hadn't had power for about two-and-a-half hours. Though he was mostly shut down, he said he'd turned on a gas oven in case people called in pizza orders.

Kris Churchman, a supervisor at the Southern Idaho Regional Communications Center, said around 3:30 p.m. that she'd received relatively few calls about the storm. She noted Kimberly's loss of power and another incident where a transformer blew as exceptions.

"We made it through just all right," she said.

Avalanche danger increasing in WR Valley

The Idaho Department of Parks and Recreation will offer an avalanche basics class for snowmobilers this weekend in Fairfield. The course is free, but requires preregistration. To register, contact Lance Robinson, at 208-514-2413 or lrobinson@idpr.idaho.gov.

HAILEY — The Sawtooth National Forest Avalanche Center's warnings about avalanche danger have been increasing all week, and on Thursday the danger was approaching high.

"Human-triggered slides have already occurred throughout the week, with several more reported from yesterday," said Janet Kellam in a warning sent out Thursday morning as snow fell thick and fast. Two to four inches were expected in Ketchum on Thursday, with as much as eight inches forecasted for Galena Summit.

Accompanying the storm were strong winds and blowing snow across the region, what Kellam called a "hit-and-run storm."

Warm weather in recent weeks has weakened the snowpack, and Thursday's snow is likely to trigger avalanches in areas where more than a foot of newer snow has accumulated or where wind slabs have developed, Kellam said.

"These slides are running fast and fanning out wider than you may expect due to the extent of the weak, underlying snow," she said. "Stability tests indicate many slopes are approaching the tipping point, they only need a little more new snow load or windblown snow to produce an avalanche. You could be on those slopes yesterday and not trigger a slide; today and through the weekend may be a different story."

Kellam recommends backcountry recreationists keep to slopes less than 30 degrees, unconnected to steeper slopes. Kellam predicted the least stable would be slopes on the east, southeast and west, particularly where loose snow is piling on top of weak faceted snow and old crusts.

Evidence surfaces in Sarah Johnson case

By Ariel Hansen
Times-News writer

HAILEY — Lawyers for Sarah Johnson, the Bellevue teenager convicted of killing her parents in 2003, have filed a petition with the court to review a fingerprint, found on the weapon used in the slaying, that has recently been identified.

Johnson

In a motion for discovery, Johnson's attorneys argue that one of the key issues at trial was unidentified fingerprints found on a bullet box, an unspent round and a rifle scope.

"This newly discovered evidence goes directly to the heart of the case, in that it is very likely that the person who left this fingerprint is in fact guilty of committing the crime for which (Johnson) was convicted," states the motion. Her attorneys hope that the fingerprint could affect Johnson's appeals and possibly entitle her to a new trial.

Blaine County Sheriff Walt Femling said his office has positively excluded the fingerprint's owner from any potential guilt in the crime.

"We have investigated that and that print belongs to the roommate of the person who owned the weapon," he said, identifying that owner as a renter of the Johnson guesthouse. The roommate had legally fired the weapon and helped move it into the guesthouse, explaining his prints, Femling said.

"We feel extremely confident there's no connection between that person and Sarah Johnson," he said. "It's fully explainable. She is guilty."

Johnson is serving two life terms at the Pocatello Women's Correctional Facility.

A lab worker at the Idaho State Police Bureau of Criminal Identification who identified the fingerprint is scheduled to appear in Hailey in court to testify on March 3.

Married couple claims indigence after being sued for $306K for alleged embezzlement

By Andrea Jackson
Times-News writer

A married couple sued for more than $306,000 by Hamilton Manufacturing Inc. told 5th District Court in Twin Falls that they're having money problems, and can't even afford an attorney.

Robie Probasco, former comptroller of HMI, allegedly embezzled $306,030 during his employment there from 2003 to 2008, by forging the CEO's name to checks, according to the lawsuit.

The money benefited himself and his "marital community" so Probasco's wife, Kelly Probasco, is also being sued, court papers show.

They were in court on Thursday representing themselves when they got an explanation of the civil litigation process.

That came after the Probascos submitted a letter to the court requesting more information.

The Probascos' letter filed in 5th District Court also claims they're having money problems.

"We are unable to afford an attorney," the Probascos said in their letter. "We owe more than the home is worth... We would like to stay in our home as long as possible."

A judge on Feb. 13 froze the Probascos' assets including vehicles, real property and a bank account.

In their letter, the Probascos said they intend to cooperate with the lawsuit.

"We do not object to the writ of possession and intend to fully abide by it."

The Probascos also disclosed in their letter a time share they have in Las Vegas. They couldn't be reached on Thursday for comment.

The couple makes requests in their letter filed with the court. "Can a settlement be discussed or negotiated below the total amount? Can any items be exempt?"

The couple filed for bankruptcy in 2002, a year before

Robie Probasco started working at Hamilton, according to court records. The company didn't know he had filed for bankruptcy, CEO Christy Earnes confirmed last week.

Embezzlement, fraud, forgery and theft are all asserted in the lawsuit, but no one had been charged by Thursday with a crime, according to online court records.

A motion hearing in the case was set for March 3 in Twin Falls.

Jerome district seeks levy renewal

By Ben Botkin
Times-News writer

Jerome School District is asking its patrons to renew its supplemental levy of $650,000 a year.

Voters will decide on March 31 if they want to continue having the supplemental levy. The levy's amount is not changed in the proposal.

A simple majority is needed to pass the supplemental levy and the renewal is for one year.

"We've had it more than 10 years, but it's been a consistent $650,000 supplemental levy," said Mike Gibson, district business manager. "This is a continuation of the $650,000 supplemental levy we've had in place."

Idaho law allows school districts to seek supplemental levies from voters as a way of raising money.

Gibson said the funding, if approved, will continue helping areas like school technology, remediation for students, and reading instruction programs.

"We found it necessary to approach the patrons to make sure those programs were in place," Gibson said.

Gibson said the district is mindful that the economy is suffering.

"Everybody's fully aware of circumstances," Gibson said. "We're aware of the price of milk and we're watching how that impacts our local economy. Obviously, everybody's been slowed by the circumstances, but we still have slow growth of students in the district."

The levy is $6.50 for every $100,000 of assessed property value.

Former utility clerk accused of embezzling from Bellevue

HAILEY — A former clerk for Bellevue's Water and Sewer Department has been charged with grand theft embezzlement.

Court documents charge that Lacey Loughmiller took more than $1,000 from the city between May and December 2007, "by the defendant receiving cash payment from customers for utility bills from the City of Bellevue and appropriating without authorization the money obtained therein to herself and or for her benefit."

Loughmiller, now of Richfield, could not be reached for comment Thursday.

Tom Blanchard, Bellevue city administrator, confirmed that Loughmiller is no longer on the city payroll but declined to comment further.

Health officials report rise in flu cases

Anecdotal reports from schools and health providers seem to show that cases of the flu, or flu-like illness, are increasing throughout Idaho, the state Department of Health and Welfare warned Thursday.

The disease is not one the state requires physicians to report. Nevertheless, the apparent rise in cases was enough to worry officials, who urged people to get vaccinations and take other steps to protect themselves.

Flu has contributed to three Idaho deaths this year, all people over the age of 50.

The department recommended the flu vaccine as the best way to avoid the disease, and stated this year's version seems to be a good match for the current strains of the disease. A record amount of vaccine was produced this year, and many health care providers and public health districts are still providing doses.

Democratic leadership will visit Twin Falls

The Idaho Democratic Legislative Caucus' "Legislative Listening Tour" will be in Twin Falls on Saturday night, to discuss the 2009 Idaho Legislature and answer questions in a public forum.

House Minority Leader John Rusche of Lewiston, Assistant House Minority Leader James Ruchti of Pocatello and Senate Assistant Minority Leader Elliott Werk of Boise will speak at the no-host event, set for 7 to 8 p.m. at Idaho Pizza Company, 1859 Kimberly Road.

"Our Democratic legislators know that involved citizens are the key to a successful democracy and that it's important to get out of Boise and hear what people are thinking," said Randy Johnson, executive director of the Idaho Democratic Legislative Caucus. "The legislators look forward to meeting and talking with Magic Valley residents this weekend."

Historic Idaho photo collection could go online

"A huge amount of work has been done by the library in terms of cataloguing the collection. We are hoping to take up where the library left off."

— Hailey Historic Preservation Commission Chairman Rob Lonning

KETCHUM (AP) — A collection of photographs of the resort area of central Idaho dating back more than 100 years could be put into digital form and made available online.

The photos taken by Martyn Mallory between 1890 and 1936 show automobiles on a dusty Main Street in Hailey, a view of Ketchum with no vehicles, and the construction of the Sun Valley Lodge.

He also photographed parades and other events of the era.

"I am happy to see this is happening," Rose Mallory, daughter-in-law of Martyn Mallory, told the Idaho Mountain Express. "I would like to see the photographs made available to the public."

The collection of 3,000 prints and about 1,500 original cellulose-nitrate and glass negatives has been stored at the Hailey Public Library for the past 12 years.

The Hailey Historic Preservation Commission has applied for a grant to assess the status of the collection.

"A huge amount of work has been done by the library in terms of cataloguing the collection," said commission Chairman Rob Lonning. "We are hoping to take up where the library left off."

He recently attended a two-day workshop in Bellevue, Wash., put on by the Society of American Archivists that gave tips on how to identify the type of process used to make old photos.

"The celluloid negatives in the Mallory collection tend to disintegrate and can become flammable," Lonning said.

Mallory was born in 1880 in Kelton, Utah, and moved to Hailey when he was 3 when his family started a merchandise store on Main Street.

At age 9, he photographed the Women's Temperance League burning gambling tables on Main Street.

He worked as a ranger for the Sawtooth National Forest, and was a businessman and county assessor.

"Mallory got out quite a bit," said Rick Ardinger, executive director of the Idaho Council on the Humanities, who called the collection "quite a find."

Micron layoffs will force budget figures revision

Legislators said Wednesday it's expected the state's $2.55 billion revenue target for next year will be lowered following Micron's announcement that it plans to lay off 2,000 workers by August.

Senate Majority Leader Bart Davis, R-Idaho Falls, told the Times-News that the Joint Finance Appropriations Committee will likely lower the figure. JFAC's adopted target was about $101 million less than a recommendation from Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter.

House Assistant Majority Leader Scott Bedke, R-Oakley, said he understands Otter's economists are working on some updated figures.

"It will have an impact on where we set the revenue target," Davis said of the layoffs. "JFAC will revisit the number previously approved."

Micron, once the state's largest private employer, has drastically scaled back its operations in Idaho and has laid off hundreds in recent years. The recent announcement came Monday.

Senate GOP Caucus Chairman Russ Fulcher, R-Meridian, said Wednesday that during the body's closed-caucus meeting, there was discussion "in passing" about the impact of the layoffs.

"We didn't dwell on that at all," he told reporters. "This is a moving target. That's a whole part of the frustration."

Lottery revenue bill sent to amending order

The Senate State Affairs Committee voted 5-4 Wednesday to send a proposal to change how local school districts use their share of revenue from the state lottery to the Senate's amending order.

The bill, sponsored by Sen. Dick Sagness, D-Pocatello, would allow districts to use their share of revenue from the Idaho State Lottery as discretionary funding for three years.

Currently, the money must go toward capital projects, or brick and mortar uses. The rest of the money goes to the state's permanent building fund.

"The only thing this does — the only thing — is allow them some flexibility in these tough economic times," Sagness told the committee.

Republican legislators voiced concerns, including how local districts would fund infrastructure projects, whether districts would be pressured into putting the money toward salaries and if the three-year staple was too long.

Idaho to use Medicaid boost to plug budget holes

By John Miller
Associated Press writer

BOISE — A boost in federal payments for insurance programs for Idaho's poor that's part of the $787 billion federal stimulus bill could save millions of dollars that the state can shift to fill budget holes elsewhere.

The federal government has covered about 70 percent of Idaho's $1.4 billion

Medicaid program, but that will jump to 79 percent as a result of the massive spending bill signed by President Barack Obama last week, legislative budget analyst Amy Castro told the Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee on Thursday.

Consequently, Idaho will save $52.3 million this fiscal year and $73.2 million in the fiscal year starting July 1, when taking into account cuts to existing Medicaid programs that already cleared the 2009 Legislature and the expected passage of a $10.4 million savings bill still in the Senate.

Even with the new federal money, state officials want to preserve those Medicaid cuts, including ending non-emergency transportation for some recipients and freezing nursing-home rates, arguing they more closely align with what's offered by private insurers.

Legislators say the stimulus-related savings on Idaho's share of Medicaid could lessen the planned state personnel cuts of 5 percent being contemplated for fiscal year 2010.

"Perhaps it won't be the 5 percent," said Rep. Maxine Bell, R-Jerome and co-chairwoman of the budget writing committee. "I don't see any other way to save jobs."

Idaho now expects to take in only $2.55 billion in revenue in the year ending June 30, down hundreds of millions from the year earlier, and many fear things will get worse.

Details of how the federal stimulus will affect Idaho aren't yet clear, Bell said, and lawmakers and their legislative advisers say they don't have all the answers yet.

What's more, there's a separate process playing out in Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter's office. He has given state agencies and private companies until next Wednesday to submit a list of proposals that could qualify for federal money.

A panel will review those submissions until March 19 before Otter will issue recommendations to the Legislature.

Study: Idaho school districts could save money through consolidation

By Jessie L. Bonner
Associated Press writer

BOISE — The state could stretch scarce education resources if school districts consolidate the services they offer, but further streamlining will be necessary for significant savings, a study requested by Idaho lawmakers has found.

The Legislature's nonpartisan Office of Performance Evaluations says school districts would benefit from consolidation in three major areas: student transportation, buying office supplies and materials, and professional development.

"No doubt it will save money, it will do some good, but there is bigger savings in administration salaries and the consolidation of the school districts themselves," said Rakesh Mohan, director of the Office of Performance Evaluations.

The report released this week says the Legislature should study the largest expense for public school districts and review salaries for employees such as teachers, principals and superintendents, as well as exploring the feasibility of consolidating district administrations or districts as a whole.

The evaluation office recommends the Legislature also consider reviewing school district spending on employee health insurance and special education support services to further save money.

Lawmakers requested the study on the feasibility of consolidating the services school districts offer more than a year ago, Mohan said.

"Now I believe the value of this report is much higher considering the economic times we are in," he said.

The report says Idaho is among few states where lawmakers have yet to tackle a comprehensive approach to consolidating district services, a practice some school administrators are leery of because they fear a loss of local control.

But several school districts in Idaho have created partnerships to offer such things as special education, alternative high schools and professional-technical education.

For example, a group of five rural districts in southern Idaho founded the Canyon-Owyhee School Service to offer services that were financially impossible for them to provide on their own. The agency, formed by the Homedale, Marsing, Notus, Parma and Wilder school districts, estimates it saved the state more than $2 million during the 2006-2007 school year on special education programs.

Districts in Idaho also have created partnerships to write grants, offer college-prep programs and provide affordable health insurance to employees, the report says.

The report says the state should offer more incentives for school districts, particularly in rural areas, to merge the services they offer and save money on expenses such as busing students.

Idaho spent nearly $70 million reimbursing districts for transportation during the 2007-2008 school year. The report recommends neighboring districts merge bus routes and transport students together to the same extracurricular activities.

The small-town amenities Idaho can no longer afford

When it comes to public policy, Idahoans don't necessarily need to be hit over the head with a 2-by-4 to get their attention. But sometimes it helps.

Case in point: The Legislature's Office of Performance Evaluations studied how consolidating school district services would work, and OPE released its report this week to the bipartisan Joint Legislative Oversight Committee, which oversees audits of state agencies for the Legislature.

OPE found that Idaho's small school districts spend significantly more per pupil than do larger districts.

Districts with fewer than 500 students spent an average of $8,447 in general maintenance and operations funds per student in 2007, compared with $5,372 in districts with 5,000 to 15,000 students and $6,578 in districts with 15,000 or more.

The good news is that there are small, rural Idaho districts that understand that those numbers are unsustainable in a tough economy.

Researchers found several with successful cooperatives, including food services, professional-technical classes and purchasing.

But not nearly enough.

So OPE Director Rakesh Mohan recommends the state look at ways for districts to cooperate to save money in three areas: purchasing supplies and materials, professional development, and transportation.

The state's smallest districts spent an average of $132 per student on supplies in 2007, while very large districts spent about $66.

If adjoining districts merged bus services and eliminated a single supervisory position and two bus routes, for example, the state would save nearly $300,000 after five years.

The report advised lawmakers to revise Idaho law to allow for consolidation of services and transportation cooperatives. The Legislature should do so before it adjourns in April.

At minimum, it's time for the school boards, patrons and administrators in the Murtaugh, Hansen, Kimberly, Buhl, Filer, Castleford, Shoshone, Richfield, Dietrich, Gooding, Wendell, Hagerman and Bliss school districts to do some serious soul-searching about whether their way of doing business still makes sense.

We don't think it does. If these districts are adamantly against full-fledged consolidation, they at least must be required to combine services for efficiencies.

It's nice to have a basketball team or an FFA group that does your community proud, but the rest of Idaho — mostly urban and suburban taxpayers — are simply unwilling to underwrite those luxuries any more.

For small districts, consolidation is the future — the only future.

Why can't we start today, when the state's economy desperately requires it?

Our view: One way or another, small Idaho school districts must consolidate. What do you think? We welcome viewpoints from our readers on this and other issues.

Yikes! Is Louisiana's Gov. Jindal really the voice of the new GOP?

Whenever a president gives a major address, like the one Barack Obama delivered to Congress this week, the opposition party delivers a rejoinder. Which American citizens always ignore. Louisiana Gov. Bobby Jindal's speech was, therefore, a kind of triumph. So bad, people actually paid attention!

GAIL COLLINS

We will pass over Jindal's delivery, which sounded a little like a junior high schooler's entry into the Chamber of Commerce "I Speak for Fiscal Restraint" contest. The content was the thing: A message to the nation that the Republicans were not going to have anything important or useful to say about the current economic crisis.

Absent any deep thoughts, the Republicans are going to complain about waste. The high point of Jindal's address came when he laced into "wasteful spending" in the stimulus bill, and used as an example a $140 million appropriation for keeping an eye on the volcanoes in places like Alaska, where one is currently rumbling.

"Instead of monitoring volcanoes, what Congress should be monitoring is the eruption of spending in Washington, D.C.," Jindal claimed.

I don't know about you, but my reaction was: Wow, what a great stimulus plan. The most wasteful thing in it is volcano monitoring.

Louisiana has gotten $130 billion in post-Katrina aid. How is it that the stars of the Republican austerity movement come from the states that suck up the most federal money? Taxpayers in New York send way more to Washington than they get back so more can go to places like Alaska and Louisiana. Which is fine, as long as we don't have to hear their governors bragging about how the folks who elected them want to keep their tax money to themselves. Of course they do! That's because they're living off ours.

The Republicans can't try to convince the country their ideas are better, because of that intellectual bankruptcy problem. All they can do is make Barack Obama's programs look feckless, plunging everyone into so much despair that by next summer the public will be ready to go live in caves and eat squirrel stew.

The waste argument is a perpetual winner because there will always be some. Years ago, when I was a reporter, I remember getting a call from a woman in the Bronx who was screaming: "They're over on Moshulu Parkway, planting dead trees!" Sure enough, a city work crew was digging holes along the side of the street and carefully sticking in brown and dried-up pieces of foliage. The men claimed the trees had simply lost their leaves for the winter — an explanation somewhat undermined by the fact that they were evergreens.

I'm telling you this because on Tuesday I was talking with a high-ranking Obama administration official about the stimulus plan. "There will be a dead tree planted, figuratively speaking," he said somberly. "That will happen."

How could it not? Much of the stimulus money is being channeled through state and local governments, through tens of thousands of governors, mayors, county executives, transportation commissioners, parks superintendents and so on. Try to imagine the person in that pyramid with the lowest IQ, and you'll understand that there's a dead-tree planter hidden in there somewhere.

The White House is trying to overcome this problem with a Transparency and Accountability Board, overseen by Vice President Joe Biden. It is supposed to reassure the public that the stimulus money isn't being wasted. But some people within the administration are arguing that isn't enough, that the government needs to bombard people with examples of what's being done right — like holding big rallies for all the schoolteachers whose jobs are saved by the stimulus.

Or — and I swear to you this is a real idea — inventing a kind of stimulus logo, like the old National Recovery Administration blue eagle, that could be posted on every federally funded project, as one official explained, "to show the public exactly what we're doing."

Let us skip over the fact that the National Recovery Administration is best remembered as the part of the New Deal that didn't work.

GOP is wrong; stimulus will help Idaho

My experience on the budget committee has helped me see that the stimulus legislation will be beneficial to the state. I wish we did not need it but with the current state of our economy — 50,000 people who are currently unemployed in Idaho and a 136 percent increase in our unemployment rates — I think we should take advantage of the help that has been provided to us.

You may have heard that the governor has asked former governors to assist him in understanding the legislation. He has also tapped the former directors of the Division of Financial Management. His team will study the 1,000-plus page legislation and he should have suggestions to the legislative budget committee, JFAC, by March 19. In the meantime JFA, will be doing our own due diligence with our staff. Starting on Monday with an overview from our JFAC chief staffer, we will be looking at the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009 (aka the Stimulus, HR 1) to see how we think it pertains to education, economic development, health and welfare, labor, natural resources, energy, water development, transportation, criminal justice and homeland security. live/ and clicking on JFAC meetings on the right hand side of the page. We start at 8:30 most mornings.

There are two important guidelines that I think we need to keep in mind as we think about using these funds. The first is that we shouldn't be starting any new programs. This is short-term funding, for two years, in most cases. When the stimulus money runs out, we don't want to be trying to fund a new program we can't afford.

My second guideline is to think of this money as an investment. We can invest in facilities funding for schools. We might want to invest money in making all our schools energy efficient. In the short run, the construction industry would benefit with more jobs. In the long run, the investment would have a good payback because school utility costs would decrease.

THE LIGHTER SIDE OF POLITICS

Doonesbury

Mallard Fillmore

Why are governors holding up stimulus help for states?

If there is anyone in politics who is admired above all others by folks who have lost their jobs, and maybe have lost their homes and health coverage, too, it is the politician who will stand on principle to keep them from receiving help.

This seems to be the understanding of the several Republican governors who have been making noises about rejecting major parts of the stimulus package recently enacted by Congress. (Noises? They are playing the tune on a circus callopie!)

The governors of Idaho, Louisiana, South Carolina, Mississippi, Alaska, Texas and Georgia say principle, not politics, is the point. Perhaps that is so.

At any rate, their stand is of a piece with the showing by congressional Republicans, all but three of whom opposed the economic recovery act in the first place, usually on the grounds that it has a lot of spending — which, of course, is precisely the stimulus.

The apparent principle: that with the economy tanking, jobs disappearing by the hundreds of thousands and leading banks beggared, doing nothing is better than doing anything that Republican conservatives would rather not.

Most Republican governors haven't read the situation that way and, with whatever misgivings, are lining up for the money. The seven who are threatening to hold out, however principled they may be, must also see advantage glittering down the road. At least four are patently if not yet avowedly in the market for the next presidential nomination.

All have sundry complaints but they focus on a provision that would extend and expand unemployment insurance. Small wonder. They lead states which generally operate with unemployment compensation rules that crimp eligibility more narrowly in their states than in most.

TOM

The governors of Idaho, Louisiana, South Carolina, Mississippi, Alaska, Texas and Georgia say principle, not politics, is the point.

The hang-back govts figure that if they expand eligibility to meet the recovery act's standards — by, for instance, covering some laid off part-time workers — then some years down the road, when the stimulus funds peter out, they might be pressured to increase the state business taxes that support unemployment compensation.

It is not a coincidence that the seven potential opt-outs represent low-tax, low-service states that are deep-dug conservative. The history of poverty that dogs most of those states has not moved them from their enduring conviction that nothing will buy good times — some day — like refusing to oblige businesses to any civic responsibility.

This is one of the oldest of American political hustles. To the nation's struggling workaday, offer not any practical, pocketbook help, nor even to their children the certainty of top-notch schooling, but the emotional satisfaction of striking a chesty stand against big government, especially when it really is trying to help.

Nifty principle.

America is so through with Texas — at least for the moment

In 1845, the second-largest independent country in North America, the Republic of Texas, held its nose, took a deep breath and merged with its upstart eastern neighbor, the United States. For the next century, Texas didn't give America much trouble. By and large, it was known for cattle with large horns, men with large hats and its citizenry's penchant for orneriness, braggadocio and shooting one another.

All that began to change in the late 1940s, when America suddenly discovered that an awful lot of Texans had somehow become very, very rich — and very, very interested in national politics. The East Coast establishment's dismay at this news was captured in a six-part series of front-page stories in The Washington Post that began 55 years ago this month. Authored by the Pulitzer Prize-winning White House correspondent Edward T. Folliard, the package promised what an editor's note called a first-ever look at "The Big Dealers, the fabulous money men of Texas who have been pouring part of their millions into American politics. ... The unique thing about them is public ignorance of their motives, purposes and ideas."

Thus began more than half a century of Texas political power that would see the first Texan, Lyndon B. Johnson, take a seat in the Oval Office; a second, George H.W. Bush, 25 years later; and in short order a third, George W. Bush. Along the way, the Texas "Big Dealers," a class of right-wing oilmen more commonly known as the Big Rich, would thrust upon the nation a series of princelings, beginning with their in-house attorney, John Connally, and leading through men such as Tom DeLay, Dick Armey and Phil Gramm.

But now even the proudest Texans must admit: The days of Lone Star Power are over. Now that George W. Bush has high-tailed it back to Dallas, there is no Texan of any real significance left on the national stage. The most visible Texan in Washington right now is probably the Libertarian Ron Paul. I don't think I need to say much more than that.

It's been a long time since Texas was irrelevant. Few remember it now, but before World War II it was regarded as little more than a super-size Mississippi. The state might have remained a marginalized curiosity, but oil changed everything. Until the Great Depression, control of Texas oil remained largely in the hands of Yankee corporations. But between 1930 and 1935, four Texans discovered the largest oilfields ever found in the Lower 48.

H.L. Hunt, a onetime Arkansas gambler and practicing bigamist cut a deal to buy the heart of the East Texas field. His Dallas neighbor Clint Murchison made his fortune running illegal "hot oil" during the Depression. Murchison's boyhood chum Sid Richardson, a Fort Worth wildcatter, hit it big in far West Texas. And Hugh Roy Cullen, a fifth-grade dropout, doled out political advice to anyone who would listen — and to quite a few who wouldn't.

Texas will rise again, of that I have no doubt. Remember Santa Anna. He thought he'd stomped the Texans at the Alamo, yet it took barely two media cycles for Sam Houston to spring off the canvas and chase him back to Mexico. So smile if you want. I'm telling you, they'll be back.

It was these four oilmen whose millions built the foundation of Texas political power. Murchison and Richardson used suitcases of illegal cash to help get LBJ elected to the Senate in 1948.

Three years later Cullen bought a radio network with an eye toward making it a proto-Fox News. When it went belly up, he took to lobbying checks into political races around the country; Cullen was the largest single donor to American candidates in 1952 and again in 1954.

Hunt went a step further, starting the first genuine conservative media network, Facts Forum.

The Big Rich emerged at a key moment in the nation's political history, a period that saw the birth pangs of modern conservatism. They got Texas rolling down a path that by the 1960s would give birth to the modern Texas GOP, one of the first great Republican machines of the postwar South.

Ever since, Texas oil money has been a reliable backbone of the conservative movement. Though the first George Bush was never conservative enough for most oilmen, the younger Bush was the real deal — an actual Texan wildcatter who shared the Big Rich's values and views pretty much across the board.

And now, well, it's over. The Bush administration's bonfire of the inanities has made being a Texan something you don't brag about.

I'll miss all those Texans around Washington.

The big boots, the big belt buckles, the big talk, the vaguely horrified look on the faces of network correspondents forced to do standups amid the cow pies and convenience stores ringing the Crawford White House.

Texas will rise again, of that I have no doubt. Remember Santa Anna. He thought he'd stomped the Texans at the Alamo, yet it took barely two media cycles for Sam Houston to spring off the canvas and chase him back to Mexico. So smile if you want. I'm telling you, they'll be back.

Article was lacking some essential information

As a senior citizen, I am always scanning the paper for articles on health. On page Main 6 of today's paper, "Calcium tied to lower cancer risk ..." the article was very interesting to me but lacked a final sentence as to what foods contain calcium.

No, don't send me a brochure or ask me write someone.

I have a bookcase full of all that. I just need to know when I read an article about diets for seniors, foods that we buy and eat are also included with all the chemical information. Just add one more line.

Beer, wine tax would burden taxpayers

Wake up, Idaho! The sky is falling once more. Some of your brilliant politicians in Boise are attempting to pick your pocket again by proposing an obscene increase in beer and wine taxes during a severely depressed economy to support state substance-abuse funding. This makes as much sense as levying a 1-cent tax on every pound of sugar produced by Amalgamated Sugar to combat obesity and diabetes.

Politicos love to kill the goose that laid the golden egg by using fallacious arguments to justify their positions.

Their claim is that taxes have not increased on these products since 1961 and 1971 respectively. So what! Has volume stayed the same since those dates? Learn to live within your means. We the public have to.

This tax is the perfect storm to further burden the restaurant, food and beverage industry in an already turbulent time. Do I have a self interest in this topic? No. I brew beer and make wine, producing the maximum allowed by law at home.

Obama budget shows mammoth deficit

President's plan calls for higher taxes on the wealthy

By Andrew Taylor
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — President Barack Obama charted a dramatic new course for the nation Thursday with a bold but contentious budget proposing higher taxes on the wealthy and the first steps toward guaranteed health care for all — accompanied by an astonishing $1.75 trillion federal deficit that would be nearly four times the highest in history.

Denouncing what he called the "dishonest accounting" of recent federal budgets, Obama unveiled his own $3.6 trillion blueprint for next year, a bold proposal that would transfer wealth from rich taxpayers to the middle class and the poor.

Congressional approval without major change is anything but sure. The plan is filled with political land mines including an initiative to combat global warming that would hit consumers with considerably higher utility bills. Other proposals would take on entrenched interests such as big farming, insurance companies and drug makers.

Obama blamed the expected federal deficit explosion on a "deep and destructive" recession and recent efforts to battle it including the Wall Street bailout and the just-passed $787 billion stimulus plan. The $1.75 trillion deficit estimate for this year is $250 billion more than projected just days ago because of proposed new spending for a fresh bailout for banks and other financial institutions.

As the nation digs out of the most serious economic crisis in decades, Obama said, "We will, each and every one of us, have to compromise on certain things we care about but which we simply cannot afford right now."

Signaling budget battles to come, Republicans were skeptical Obama was doing without much at all.

"We can't tax and spend our way to prosperity," said House GOP leader John Boehner of Ohio. "The era of big government is back, and Democrats are asking you to pay for it."

Obama plans to move aggressively toward rebalancing the tax system, extending a $400 tax credit for most workers — $800 for couples — while letting expire President George W. Bush's tax cuts for couples making more than $250,000 a year.

Thursday's 134-page budget submission, a nonbinding recommendation to Congress, says the plan would close the deficit to a more reasonable — but still eye-popping — $533 billion after five years. That would still be higher than last year's record $455 billion deficit.

And the national debt would more than double by the end of the upcoming decade, raising worries that so much federal borrowing could drive up interest rates and erode the value of the dollar.

Also, to narrow the budget gap, Obama relies on rosier predictions of economic growth — including a 3.2 percent boost in the economy next year — than most private sector economists foresee.

There is already resistance from Democrats who are upset with the budget's plan to curb the ability of wealthier people to reduce their tax bills through deductions for mortgage interest, charitable contributions and state and local taxes.

Gates: Media photos of war dead need families' OK

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Obama administration is reversing an 18-year ban on news coverage of the return of war dead, allowing photographs of flag-covered caskets when families of the fallen troops agree, Defense Secretary Robert Gates said Thursday.

"My conclusion was we should not presume to make the decision for the families," Gates said in announcing results of a quick review of a ban that had stood through Republican and Democratic administrations.

Although details are being worked out, the new policy will give families a choice of whether to admit the press to ceremonies at Dover Air Force Base in Delaware, the entry point to the United States for the caskets of overseas war dead.

President Barack Obama asked for a re-examination of the blanket ban and supports the decision to change it, White House press secretary Robert Gibbs said.

"I have always believed that the decision as to how to honor our fallen heroes should be left up to the families," Vice President Joe Biden said. "The past practice didn't account for a family's wishes and I believed that was wrong."

Bartering makes a comeback for those short on cash

By Anne Wallace Allen
Associated Press writer

BOISE — Tired of her pink bathroom countertops but short on cash for a remodel, Rachel Alemany decided to get the work done the old-fashioned way: through bartering.

Alemany has experience putting down flooring, so she and her husband traded flooring work with a neighbor who has tiling experience.

"It was that easy," said Alemany, a special education teacher from Pittsfield, Mass. She got the idea from her mother-in-law, who exchanged renovations for room and board.

Bartering — the trading of goods or services without using cash — is making a comeback in a troubled economy. It can be as simple as trading baby-sitting with another family, or as complex as an exchange with strangers facilitated by one of the several Web sites that have sprung up to connect barterers.

Bartering ads on online exchange sites have increased about 100 percent since last year, according to online classified advertising services.

Boise beautician Heather Wood has traded haircuts and pedicures for years of daycare, kids' clothes, a paint job for her car, an oil change, a set of professional portraits for her family and dental cleaning.

"It's fun, and it builds a whole different kind of a relationship," said Wood, who has five children. "They're getting what they want and I'm getting what I want. I would much rather do that than make cash most of the time."

These days, making cash isn't always an option, so many have decided it is worth the effort to trade, say, an outgrown kid's bike for a neighbor's lawnmower, or a massage for some gardening supplies.

"I'm finding it a little bit difficult to sell anything right now," said Jeremy Kildow of Nampa, who chose bartering when he decided to get rid of a $1,000

New home sales continue slide as existing homes see increase in region

By Joshua Palmer
Times-News writer

New home sales continued to decline in Twin Falls County in January as new homeowners bought up existing homes at lower prices.

Sales of existing homes increased almost 14 percent compared to the previous year, with a total of 33 homes sold in January, according to the Intermountain Multiple Listing Service. However, the reports also shows that new home sales declined more than 50 percent to 5 newly constructed homes sold in January.

Real estate agents say more affordable homes are being bought up by buyers seeking more home for their dollar.

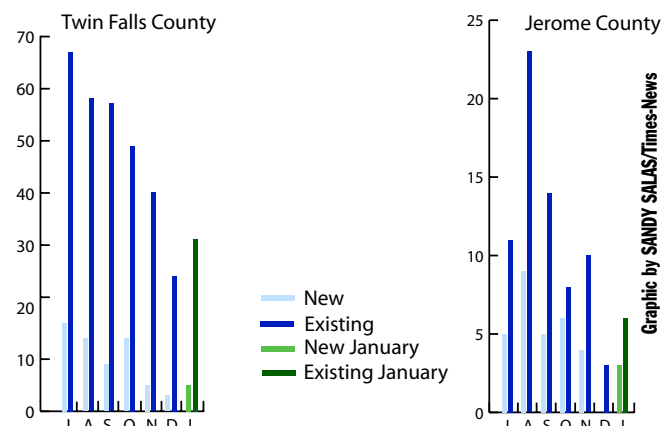

"We are starting to see buyers come out of the woodwork to look at homes," said Mary Shaw, realtor with Prudential Idaho Homes and Properties.

Shaw said its to soon to say if the regional housing market will continue to see sales growth in the months ahead, but she added that lower housing prices in south-central Idaho have put homes within reach of more buyers.

South-central Idaho bankers tell lawmakers agriculture is doing fine

Dairy prices remain below break-even levels

By Jared S. Hopkins
Times-News writer

BOISE — Idaho bankers told lawmakers Thursday that agriculture — for years the economic backbone of Idaho — generally remains steady during the economic downturn, and the dairy industry's recent struggles should soon turnaround.

Most banks in Idaho that engage in borrowing and lending with farmers are not experiencing problems elsewhere in the country, the bankers from Northwest Farm Credit Services, US Bank and Magic Valley Bank told the Senate Agricultural Affairs Committee. They said the lucrative last few years have provided some financial cushion for farmers, but banks have specific departments to work with farmers who struggle to make loan payments.

"Banks have not changed or tightened their underwriting requirements in any significant way," said Tony Kevan, a vice president with Magic Valley Bank in Twin Falls. "Most are just very strictly adhering to the lending policies they have had for several years."

Commodities that fared best last year include alfalfa hay, corn, onion and sugar beets, Kip Bryson, vice president with US Bank said. But this year they are still

NEW YORK — The anxiety on Wall Street is likely to linger for some time. But that may be lessened for average investors by a greater understanding of how the markets work.

Three recent book releases may help you gain an understanding of how the markets work, and help you sort out the barrage of possible changes to the financial system being discussed in Washington, D.C.

TITLE: The Wall Street Journal Guide to the End of Wall Street As We Know It
AUTHOR: Dave Kansas

SUMMARY: This book by Dave Kansas — editor at large of FiLife.com and former editor of The Wall Street Journal's Money & Investing section — helps cut through the clutter of headlines over regarding the seismic changes reshaping the country's financial system. Kansas goes over the roots of the current crisis and the roles of factors such as sub-prime mortgages, derivatives, ratings agencies and private equity funds.

Using a workbook format, each chapter ends with a FAQ section that explains financial terms and answers common questions. Peppered throughout are historical snapshots on companies like Bear Stearns and Merrill Lynch and biographies on key players such as Timothy Geithner and Ben Bernanke. The book also aims to give average investors some guidance by discussing the safety of various investment vehicles,

Entrepreneurs find upsides in home-based small businesses

For many of the millions of Americans who lost their jobs over the past year, the next step is starting a business. And many of these enterprises are being launched out of the entrepreneurs' homes.

Owners of new home-based businesses find there are pros and cons to running a company out of a spare bedroom or den. The upsides include a more flexible lifestyle and huge cost savings. Among the drawbacks: having to work alone, without a dedicated support staff, and keeping work and personal lives separate.

Joanne Hakim, who recently started her company, The Pen Is The Sword, in her house in Norwood, N.J., finds that a home-based business can be isolating after the experience of being surrounded by many co-workers.

"I took for granted the interaction that I had with colleagues every day," said Hakim, whose business includes copywriting, editing and design. "You fail to realize the importance of stimulation in your life."

But, she said, "you don't have the constant interruptions that you do" in a workplace with many other people.

The transition can be easier for other owners. Charlene Li, who runs her new business, Altimeter Group, out of her San Mateo, Calif., home, was used to not having face-to-face contact with staffers or clients, since many were in other cities. She had a different challenge: She no longer had an information technology department to turn to for help.

"I'm a pretty techie person, but I still had a hard time figuring out how to set things up," said Li, who has a consulting and speaking business.

Homes

Continued from Business 1 existing home in Twin Falls County sold in January declined about $8,900 from a year ago to $130,000. Shaw said the regional housing market is still far stronger than other parts of the nation where sales continue to dwindle. The Commerce Department reported Thursday that home sales sales nationwide fell 10.2 percent to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 309,000, the worst showing on records going back to 1963. With nationwide sales sagging, an inventory barometer also ballooned to a record high. The government said it would take 13.3 months at the current sales pace to exhaust supply. That puts even more downward pressure on prices. The median sales price fell to $201,100 in January, a record 9.9 percent drop from the previous month. The median price is the midpoint, where half sell for more and half for less. The average home price also dropped to $234,600 last month, a 9.8 percent decline from December. Foreclosures are especially high in California, Florida, Nevada and Arizona — states that had once led the housing boom, which went bust several years ago.

Bartering

Continued from Business 1 camera, a kayak, a stainless steel kitchen range and other items. Kildow put his stuff on a Boise-area exchange site under "barter" and suggested horses, pack mules, a four-wheel-drive truck, a computer or a flat-screen TV in exchange. So far, he's had an offer of a truck, some computers, and a wedding ring. Bartering can be less expensive than buying because there are few overhead costs for rent or staff. However, not all costs are eliminated. The IRS considers barter dollars as identical to real currency for tax reporting, and barterers must obtain a special form, the 1099-B. But bartering can also be more fun than paying cash. "The human element and the relationship between buyers and sellers becomes more important when we get involved in bartering transactions," said Gary Forman, president of a company called Dollar Stretcher that publishes methods for saving money. "I'm not sure we don't have some longing for that."

Books

Continued from Business 1 such as money market savings and brokerage accounts. TITLE: Dear Mr. Buffett: What An Investor Learns 1,269 Miles From Wall Street. AUTHOR: Janet Tavakoli. SUMMARY: Much that's written about Warren Buffett is done at arms length, and often from New York, or some other financial hub far from Buffett's domain in Omaha, Nebraska. Janet Tavakoli brings impressive credentials in trying to take readers inside the mind of the Oracle of Omaha. Buffett invited the financial derivatives expert to lunch after reading one of her previous books, and the meeting led to a three-year exchange of e-mails and letters. The book focuses on their discussions of the unchecked credit risks that led to the ongoing Wall Street meltdown. But there's also a more basic message about how common sense can triumph over greed and panic. TITLE: The Seven Rules of Wall Street. AUTHOR: Sam Stovall. SUMMARY: For those looking for ways to help sort out the mess on Wall Street and nudge their investments back to life, Sam Stovall, the chief investment strategist for Standard & Poor's Equity Research, offers seven. Using a collection of old Wall Street sayings as guides for an investment strategy, the author expands on a discussion he regularly leads at an annual investor conference. But his take on these maxims isn't always predictable. For example, the chapter under "Sell In May, Then Go Away," doesn't recommend you dump stocks during the summer months. If you do so, you may miss out an opportunity to take advantage of stocks that generally perform well during summertime, Stovall says, and instead he explores which sectors tend to do better when the market overall typically slows down. Each chapter is backed up with statistical analysis, charts and graphs that illustrate his plain language explanations and suggestions.

Still, the one area that has struggled in the last couple of months has been the dairy industry, although that appears to be temporary and could recover soon, the bankers said. Additionally, Kevan added that the reduced herd sizes have reduced use of hay and silage. Feed costs have fallen since record highs last fall and milk prices could rebound by June because of efforts by the industry to decrease the size of herds.

Buhl holds health and community fair

BUHL — What do free eye exams, blood pressure checks and information on aging have in common?

All of these services, just naming a few, were available at Tuesday's health and community fair in Buhl. The fair, hosted by the West End Head Start and Buhl Chamber of Commerce, was held at the Popplewell Elementary School gymnasium and drew hundreds of people who browsed nearly 50 booths, enjoyed a free baked potato and chili dinner and were entertained by the elementary honor choir and high school jazz and select choirs.

While the event is annual, this year was geared to bring more health-related services and business to the fair.

"Years and years ago the chamber had a small health fair and Head Start had a community event. Somewhere along the way it was decided to merge the two separate events," said chamber Administrative Assistant Michelle Olsen. "... This event is just a good way for the community to come together and acquaint themselves with the services available to them."

Beem earns Eagle Scout award

Bryce Beem received his Eagle Scout award Nov. 22. He is a member of Troop 65 from Twin Falls. The scout master is Harry Zitterkopf.

Beem earned 33 merit badges and had enough badges to earn bronze and silver palms. For his Eagle Project, he took down an old fence at Sunset Memorial Park and put up a new stained fence. He was assisted by the troop boys, leaders, grandparents and parents. The project took 165 hours to complete.

He was on staff for National Youth Leadership Training and also staffed Boy Scout Camp last summer. In February, he went to Japan with 31 other scouts from the United States on a Scouting Friendship trip for 10 days. He has been lodge chief for Order of the Arrow for a year, also chapter chief and also has his Brother Hood.

Dennis Bowyer, left, and Barry Knoblich, right, members of the Twin Falls Optimist Club for more than 20 years, were given awards by President Luree Evans at the Feb. 19 meeting. Both have been chairmen for each of their respective programs for many years. Bowyer engaged the club in helping the city put on the Easter Egg Hunt in City Park. For more than 25 years the Optimists have been rolling eggs and helping children sweep the park clean in less than a minute. Knoblich has helped the club honor two youths from area high schools for their achievements and citizenship each year.

From medications to diet, flatulence has many causes

DEAR DR. GOTT: I suffer from extreme gas. It never goes away. I have tried many different prescriptions and over-the-counter drugs, but nothing has helped. I also try to watch my diet carefully in an attempt to avoid common gas-causing foods. I read your column regularly and have noticed that you offer some really good suggestions to people with all sorts of medical problems. I hope you can offer me some help.

DEAR READER: Gas can have several causes, from the foods we consume to medications to medical conditions such as Irritable Bowel Syndrome. Sometimes, as we age, we simply have more gas, as well.

In your brief note, you don't give your age, any health problems you may have or list any medications (including herbals and OTCs) you may be taking. I can, therefore, give only general advice.

First, watch your diet. Beans are notorious for causing gas. But broccoli, cucumbers and other vegetables can cause gas, too. This doesn't mean you should stop eating them; simply reduce your intake, especially if you are consuming them on a regular basis. Even something as simple as milk and other dairy foods could cause a problem for those who are sensitive or who are lactose intolerant. Don't forget to avoid carbonated beverages.

Food allergies are a leading cause of gastrointestinal distress (including gas). They are also likely to be underdiagnosed. To determine whether this could be the cause of your gas, keep a food journal for a month or two. Be sure to record what you eat, when you eat it, how much you eat and whether your flatulence is worse or better than normal. Once you're finished with the journal, you should be able to look back and see a pattern. Then you can start experimenting by eliminating certain foods from your diet to see whether you experience any improvement. Medication could be another cause. If you are taking any prescriptions, herbals, supplements or over-the-counter drugs, check the side effects carefully. If increased flatulence is listed, you may wish to find an alternative. Your local pharmacist may also be aware of side effects that may not be listed, especially on OTCs. If there is no identifiable cause for your gas, you may simply be one of the unfortunate people who gets "gassier" with age. There are several remedies for this, however. Products such as Beano can be added directly to food. Chlorophyll tablets, which can be found at most health-food stores, can eliminate the odor of your flatulence. Another easy remedy is to simply add baking soda to water and drink it. The gas should disappear shortly thereafter. To give you related information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "Compelling Home Remedies." Other readers who would like a copy should send a self-addressed, stamped No. 10 envelope and $2 to Newsletter, PO Box 167, Wickliffe, OH 44092. Be sure to mention the title(s). fair and Cooper said they'd likely come again. The fair is a staple event for the Buhl Lions Club. Members with the club spent their time providing free basic eye vision screenings for fairgoers. "It was kind of fun," said Karina Dominguez, 9, of Buhl. Her vision was okay but some people are shocked with their screening results. "We have people who have their vision screened and they find out that their vision isn't great," said member

Marie Inchausti. The club will be going around to schools throughout Twin Falls County to screen students' vision. If a screening indicates the student needs to follow-up with a professional, a report is sent home through the school. "It is important for students to get their eyes checked but a lot don't have the opportunity. If they can't see they can't read and can have trouble in school," Inchausti said. Buhl's community fair will be back next year and so will the Lions Club, which is good thing, Inchausti said, because people should get their vision checked annually.

Their teacher, Estina Martin, received a certificate of recognition for her continuing support of the contest and her contributions to the study of American history. Grade 6, first-place honors were awarded to Sierra Norman, Sawtooth Elementary School.

The DAR also sponsors a Christopher Columbus essay contest for grades 9-12. Tenth-grader Kelly Ann Buddecke of Twin Falls High School won. This year's essay topic was "Discuss five perils faced by Christopher Columbus' expeditions and how Columbus and his crew overcame them."

Buddecke has participated in DAR essay contests since she was in the fifth grade and has placed first at her grade level each year.

Contest winners received awards from DAR's American History Chair Maureen Williams at a special reception at the Jerome Public Library on Feb. 7. The first-place essay at each grade level has been forwarded to the Idaho State Society DAR

Pauline Irene Bonneau

CALDWELL — Pauline Irene Bonneau passed away Sunday, Feb. 22, 2009, in Caldwell. Cremation arrangements are under the direction of D a k a n F u n e r a l Chapel in Caldwell.

Pauline was born May 27, 1930, in Dover, N.H., to Joseph and Marie Anne St. Jean. She was a lifelong Dover resident, growing up on the family farm on Grove Street, formerly the Peabody Estate. She attended church at St. Charles Parish and graduated from Dover High School.

On Sept. 1, 1952, she married the love of her life, George Bonneau, and they built their home where the barn once stood on the farm. She began her life as "mom" when she and George became the proud parents of their only son, Ronald Joseph in May of 1957. When George passed all too soon in 1961, she entered a new phase of her life — that of a widowed young mother.

She spent much of her working career as a teller at Merchants Bank, a position she retired from in 1995.

While small in stature, she had the courage and determination of someone twice her size. Those qualities, along with the support of her family, gave her the strength to succeed in every aspect of her life.

Pauline's faith and the family she shared at St. Charles Parish was a blessing that gave her much joy and comfort.

She continued in her role as parish bookkeeper after her retirement and enjoyed the time she spent daily with Father Paul, Priscilla Guppy, Tom Hardy and Marie Twombly. In 2007, she moved to Idaho to be with her son, Ron, and while it was difficult for her to leave her home and friends in Dover, she was excited at the opportunity to be close to her son for the first time in many years.

Pauline is survived by her son, Ron and his wife, Michele of Caldwell; her sister, Yvette (Bill) Attaya of Burlington, Mass.; nephews, Mark (Janice) Attaya of Billerica, Mass., and Chris (Jeanne) Attaya of Wakefield, Mass.; and nieces, Ann Cope of Andover, Mass., Michelle (Mike) Kelo of Chesterfield, Va., and Caroline (Gil) Entzminger of Petersburg, Va. She is also survived by her "adopted" children, Ron "Jake" Sutherland of Exeter, N.H., Arthur "Art" Signorelli of Portsmouth, N.H., Roseanne Kilty of Dover, N.H., Barb Hopson Dill of Campton, N.H., and Jill Listowich Howe of Eugene, Ore. She was preceded in death by her beloved husband, George; her parents, Joseph and Marie Anne; and her "adopted" son, Rick Danjou of Wareham, Mass.

A funeral Mass and celebration of Pauline's Life will be held this summer in Dover, N.H. In lieu of flowers, the family requests that a donation be made in her name to Alzheimer's research.

The family wishes to thank the staff of Prestige Assisted Living at Autumn Wind, the place that became home for Mom this past year as well as being her surrogate family in Idaho. You are the best and Mom loved you all very much.

Although known by many names such as "Mom," "Ma B," "Little Sister," "Auntie Pleen," "Ma Tante," "Memère" and "Short Mama," ultimately, she was always Pauline, a woman loved by many and one who will be missed by all who knew her.

Au revoir!

David L. Dellett

David L. Dellett, 64, of Twin Falls, passed away Wednesday, Feb. 18, 2009.

He was born Aug. 9, 1944, in Kansas City, Mo. Shortly after his birth, his family moved to Northbrook, Ill., where he lived and attended school until his high school graduation in 1962. After graduation, David attended Northwestern University in Evanston, Ill., working part time as a lifeguard. He was then employed by a medical supply company until he moved to Twin Falls in 1970. At that time, he and two partners purchased the Bowladrome Recreational Center. He owned the establishment until 2007, when the partners sold the business; however, David continued to work at the bowling center providing his expertise and services to the new owner. He took great delight in teaching bowling for the CSI Physical Education Department and in being a member of the Board of Directors of Valley House. David was sensitive, thoughtful and kind-hearted. He had the ability to connect with everyone. He was curious about people and loved talking to them. He was open-minded to everybody's point of view. He really was a student of people. David had a passion for animals of all kinds, but his most cherished prizes were his two Labrador retrievers, Halley and Hershey. He loved nature and was the happiest when he could be by the ocean, on a lake or up in the mountains. He especially enjoyed fireside chats with many of his friends.

David is survived by his wife, Cathie, who he met in Twin Falls and married in 1989; two stepdaughters, Cindy (Chris) Whittaker and Sherry (Alan) Lowrance; three grandsons; one step-granddaughter; two brothers, Rob (Karen) Dellett and Rick (Donna) Dellett; one niece; and three nephews.

A memorial service will be held at 1 p.m. Saturday, March 14, at the First Baptist Church, 910 Shoshone St. in Twin Falls. Memorial contributions may be made in David's name to Valley House, P.O. Box 774, Twin Falls, ID 83303. Arrangements are under the direction of White Mortuary "Chapel by the Park."

David's message to all of us would be to love unconditionally and not to take yourself too seriously.

George Duncan

He was born June 26, 1921, in West Plains, Mo., the son of Clarence and Berta Bacon Duncan. On May 10, 1937, in West Plains, Mo., he married the love of his life, Edith Alma Henry. Together, they had six children. In 1958, George and Edith opened their hearts and family to a beautiful adopted daughter, Carol Johnson. He heard a calling from the Lord and became an ordained minister of the gospel for the Assemblies of God Church. George pioneered three churches for the Assemblies of God. Faith Assembly in Twin Falls, Mount Vernon Assembly of God in Mount Vernon, Ill., and Calvary Assembly of God in Calval.

George and Edith traveled the United States extensively as evangelists for many years.

Throughout his life, he enjoyed restoring cars, playing the piano, guitar and banjo, and singing. His family greatly enjoyed listening to him play his instruments and sing.

Surviving are his wife, Edith Duncan of Jerome; daughters, Lois Stephens of Nampa, Barbara Hoshaw of Jerome, Beverly Kirby of Lafayette, Tenn., Pat Pollard of Twin Falls and Carol Johnson of Lewiston; sons, George Duncan Jr. of Orofino and Dan Duncan of West Plains, Mo.; along with 28 grandchildren; 79 great-grandchildren; and 35 great-great-grandchildren. RIVERSIDE, Calif. — A mechanic accused of igniting a wildfire that killed five firefighters in 2006 had worked for months to perfect an incendiary device, a prosecutor told jurors Thursday in closing arguments.

Raymond Oyler, 38, experimented with different types of devices and terrain before he started the deadly blaze, Deputy District Attorney Michael Hestrin told the Riverside County Superior Court jury.

"He knew this fire was going to race up that mountain, and he also knew these brave men were going to go racing up that mountain ... and stand toe-to-toe with that fire," Hestrin said. "He knew that, and he did it anyway."

Oyler pleaded not guilty to five counts of first-degree murder, 23 counts of arson and 17 counts of using an incendiary device. He is accused of setting blazes during a five-month period in 2006, from May 16 to the fatal fire on Oct. 26 that destroyed 34 homes and 20 outbuildings and charred nearly 70 square miles. He could face the death penalty if convicted.

The prosecutor reminded jurors that arson investigators found the remains of incendiary devices made of wooden matches bundled around or laid over a cigarette and attached with rubber bands or duct tape after some of the fires. The cigarette would be lit as a "timing device," allowing an average of 10 minutes before the matches were sparked, Hestrin said.

Hestrin said Oyler was active in setting fires during a period when he did not have full-time employment, and that once he began working again, the number of fires set decreased.

The prosecutor also said no fires were set for six weeks following a fight between Oyler and his fiancée during which she confronted him about starting fires and threatened to leave him.

Two of the incendiary devices had Oyler's DNA on the cigarette, but Oyler's attorney, Mark McDonald, said that didn't prove his client set the fatal blaze.

"When you look at the evidence in this case ... it's theories, theories," he said. "The theories they've presented to you are not even accurate."

McDonald said testimony showed that Oyler was at home watching his 7-month-old daughter when the deadly fire broke out and that he could not be the arsonist.

McDonald also challenged the assertion that all the fires were set by one person. An expert on arson and incendiary devices testified for the defense that as many as three people could have set the blazes because of subtle differences in the cigarette devices used to start them.

McDonald said investigators rushed to pin the blame on someone because of public outrage after the blaze and then scrambled to fill holes in the evidence.

AROUND THE STATE

Stimulus plan could reduce Idaho tax revenue by $14M

BOISE — Idaho could lose $14.1 million in state tax revenue in 2010 and 2011 due to the federal economic stimulus package, if lawmakers match state tax code to changes in the Internal Revenue Service rules, as is custom.
 Sen. Brent Hill, a Rexburg Republican and certified public accountant, said the loss would come as the state conforms its code to provisions in the $787 billion stimulus signed by President Barack Obama last week, including temporarily suspending taxes on unemployment benefits and a sales tax deduction for vehicle purchases.
 Despite the hit to state revenue, Hill recommends the 2009 Legislature make the changes.
 Different state and federal tax codes could confuse taxpayers, cost businesses time and expense and wipe out positive effects of the stimulus, Hill said, adding Idaho has options, such as raising some tax rates or suspending the grocery tax credit expansion, to make up for any reduced revenue.

18 degree programs in a move to save money.

The council on Tuesday also approved merging the department of chemical engineering with the department of materials science and engineering.
 The moves had previously been approved by the University Curriculum Committee. The proposed cuts and merging of departments next goes to the state Board of Education for a final decision, possibly in April.

Half of the courses are master of arts in teaching degrees in subjects that include Spanish, French, German, biology, history, chemistry, Earth science and geology.
 "All those (master's programs), the departments have no problem," said Jill Dacey, who heads the Curriculum Committee and is a faculty member of the department of art and design.

She said that the College of Science or the College of Education will develop replacement teaching programs.
 The programs proposed for elimination had low enrollment, she told the Moscow-Pullman Daily News.

Lawmakers delay vote on Idaho gas tax hike

BOISE — House leaders say it will be a week — or longer — before the Transportation Committee votes on Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter's proposal to raise Idaho's 25-cents-per-gallon gas tax by 10 cents over five years.
 At a hearing Thursday in Boise, industry, cities, counties and highway districts championed the proposal to raise $88 million annually by 2014.
 It's all part of the Republican governor's plan to boost revenue by $174 million annually to fix roads and bridges.
 But Rep. Ken Roberts, House majority caucus leader, says the vote will be delayed because a compromise is in the works. Many lawmakers are reluctant to approve multiple years of tax increases like Otter wants in a time of economic turmoil.

Pregnant N. Idaho robber pleads guilty

COEUR D'ALENE — A northern Idaho woman who robbed a bank while pregnant nearly three years ago could have to spend the rest of her life in prison and pay a $50,000 fine.
 Christie Lynn Brisboy, 26, pleaded guilty to robbery in First District Court on Wednesday.
 Police say Brisboy went to a Bank of America location in downtown Coeur d'Alene on March 20, 2006, wearing a maternity top. Brisboy told the bank teller she had four children and a fifth child on the way.
 The teller gave Brisboy money after she said she had a gun and a list of bills she needed to pay. Brisboy walked away on foot and wasn't arrested until Jan. 15 of this year.
 Brisboy was charged with the robbery after a joint investigation by Coeur d'Alene police and the FBI.
 Her defense attorney, John Redal, says Brisboy pleaded guilty to the robbery to avoid federal charges. She is scheduled to be sentenced in court on April 13.

. And the winners are ... Oscar-picking contest results in tie

By Melissa Davlin
Times-News writer

Christine McNurlin and Dawn Jones shared the spotlight in this year's Times-News Oscar-picking contest.

Neither of the women is a newcomer to victory — this is McNurlin's fourth win and Jones' sixth. The two beat out 47 other entrants to claim the title yet again, and each received a $25 gift certificate to Best Buy for their efforts.

Both women correctly predicted that Sean Penn would win Best Actor for his portrayal of California's first openly gay politician in "Milk," that Kate Winslet would get her first Academy Award for Best Actress, and that "WALL-E" would walk away with the Best Animated Feature title. The only category out of our 11 that the two missed was Best Foreign Language Film, which happened to be the tie-breaker for this contest. (Japanese film "Departures" won the award.)

How did they do it? A combination of research and plain ol' luck. Jones, pictured at left, said she couldn't rely on her personal favorites for picking the movies.

"I just loved the movie 'Benjamin Button,'" she said. "That was the one I really liked, but (the race) just wasn't going in its favor."

Jones had seen only a couple of the nominated flicks, and doesn't even plan on seeing Best Picture winner "Slumdog Millionaire."

"I'm really not that interested in it," the Twin Falls woman said, adding that she prefers romantic movies. "You can't really beat 'Gone with the Wind.'"

McNurlin, on the other hand, has seen almost all of the nominees — except for the foreign films, which rarely find their way to south-central Idaho. She sees about two movies in the theater per month, most of them while on dates with her husband.

"Our first date was a movie," said McNurlin, at right, who lives in Twin Falls. She prefers chick flicks, while he loves action movies. "We always take turns picking the movie," she said. She rents the films she misses in the theater.

And don't think this is the last you'll see of Jones and McNurlin in the Oscar-picking contest.

"I love to win," Jones said.

Symphonic sounds and surprises

Magic Valley Symphony concert is full of special appearances

By Blair Koch
Times-News correspondent

"Wow, our orchestra has never sounded so good," said Gary Garofano, spellbound by the rich flow of music coming from the College of Southern Idaho Fine Arts Theater stage during Tuesday night's rehearsal.

Perhaps it's the program of passionate Spanish music the Magic Valley Symphony will perform tonight, or the infusion of energy brought to every rehearsal by guest conductor Jose Luis Egiluz of Bilbao, Spain. All that Garofano knows is the group sounds awesome and tonight's performance will be a treat to symphony musicians and the audience.

"It is unique in that we seldom ever have a guest conductor," said Garofano, a Twin Falls psychiatric social worker by day and classical

America's true musical heritage

I consider my musical tastes to be diverse. I especially appreciate a lot of the local artists and always enjoy a good show. However, one band made such a great impression on me the first time I saw them that they have become my favorite local band: the groovy trio known as Swamp Cats.

George Marsh, lead singer and guitarist, is the mastermind of the band, which was started in 1992. He was inspired to play blues when he listened to John Lee Hooker's 1962 album with the Muddy Waters band, titled "Live at Cafe a Go-Go." Throughout his blues career, he has played alongside prestigious blues artists such as Mike Bloomfield, Eddy Shaw, Jimmy Reed and his original inspiration, Hooker. His dedication to the genre is phenomenal, calling it America's true musical heritage.

His fellow band members share his enthusiasm for the music. Jack Cappi, originally from Detroit, plays bass. On the drums is "Drummer Dave" Stewart from Chicago. They play more shows than any local band I know and have been a part of the Hagerman Blues Festival every year since its conception. The weekend following my interview with George was the "first time in 2 1/2 months" that the band has had a break from weekend shows.

Swamp Cats wants their fans to also greatly enjoy the blues, so they give their listeners music that they can relate to. George has also noticed that when people listen to the blues, they seem to be harmonious and get along better. The band is excited by growth of the number of fans, as well as the range of age groups who are starting to enjoy what they play. There is never a bad place to play the blues, according to George.

The musicians plan a full-length album, "Here Kitty Kitty Kitty," which should be ready for the public in May. Following that, they hope to tour West Coast blues festivals. George ultimately wants to take Swamp Cats to Europe, and to tour with Buddy Guy or Los Lonely Boys.

Upcoming shows include the Pioneer Club in Twin Falls today and Saturday, the Hailey Hotel on March 13, and Woody's in Twin Falls on March 27 and 28. Also, starting May 24, the band plans to start "Blues & BBQ" at Woody's every Sunday throughout the summer. Though there is a Web site in the works, keep your eyes on the Times-News's Events Calendar to know where you can experience any further blues goodness that is Swamp Cats.

Jeremy "Patches" Roberts has been to numerous local shows, as well as being the vocalist for a few bands in the past. He is a music enthusiast and is the founder of Southern Idaho Musician's Network, groups.myspace.com/liveeat breathe music.

Symphony

remember. Prior to the symphony is the pre-concert performance by the Magic Valley Youth Orchestra's advanced ensemble, with director Carson Wong. The Biotzetik Basque Choir of Boise will wrap up the night with a performance in the foyer, providing the perfect backdrop for guests to enjoy an art exhibit featuring works by Magic Valley High School students.

Garofano is featured with the community orchestra in "Fantasia para un Gentlehombe," by Joaquin Rodrigo. He is also joining the youth orchestra for a concert.

"The Spanish music is undeniably passionate, energized. Even the slow sections have a verve to them," Garofano said. "For me, the hardest part is getting the guitar to sing. It is a percussive instrument; the moment you pluck, the note starts dying. To get the guitar to sing, with the full symphony behind me, has the additional challenge to play at a decibel to be heard but to keep it singing."

For the orchestra, Egiluz said the 5/8 rhythm of the second movement in "Danzas Fantasticas," by Joaquin Turina, was technically tricky.

"It is a Basque rhythm and at first they struggled with it. But then, they just got it," Egiluz said.

Working with the orchestra has been a treat for Egiluz, who is spending the year in Boise on sabbatical. Although the Magic Valley Symphony is a small, intimate group of musicians, he has enjoyed his time in Twin Falls as much as his time on stage with the Ukrainian State Orchestra of Kiev or conducting in the leading concert halls of Spain, the Auditorio Nacional of Madrid, Bilbao's Palacio Euskalduna, the Kursaal in San Sebastian or the Baluarte of Pamplona.

"I am very pleased with the orchestra. They are good bunch of people, fantastic people," he said.

It doesn't matter that Magic

Garofano

Valley Symphony may not be as technically astute as the professional musicians he's worked with. As a conductor, he said, his job is to assess the group's musical level and take it up to the next.

"You need to know where you are and improve ... and they've done that," Egiluz said.

Tonight will be filled with the music of Spain. It's likely to be a new experience for the audience as the symphony hadn't heard or played any of the arrangements before now.

"This music is hot," said symphony horn player and publicist Paula Brown Sinclair of Twin Falls. "Actually, I've seen all these notes before, but not arranged like this. It is the rhythm that is challeng-

Every Friday and Saturday night throughout the 2009 season, the Bruneau Dunes State Park observatory will be open to the public for viewing the night skies. Each program starts at sunset and runs late into the evening. Observatory programs are held in the Steele Reese Education Center; topics include comets, nebulae, galaxies and many more.

Entrance to the park is $4 per vehicle. The charge for the observatory and program is $3; children under age 6 get in free.

Bruneau Dunes State Park is south of Mountain Home. A love story with a twist, by Minico High thespians

By Judy Albertson
Times News writer

RUPERT — Minico High School's music department will present the stage production of "7 Brides For 7 Brothers," directed by choir instructor Jeff Collier with choreography by Kami Fisher.

It's a story of backwoods bride kidnapping that ends in the happy reconciliation of seven pairs of sweethearts.

Performances are set for 7 p.m. Thursday, March 6 and March 7 at the Minico High auditorium, plus a matinee at 1 p.m. March 7.

Tickets are $5 for adults and $3 for students, available from cast members or at the door.

"We will also be performing at a private show for fourth- and fifth-grade students in Minidoka County on Wednesday to introduce them to musical theater," Collier said.

Julie Plocher conducts the show's live pit orchestra, and Collier said the entire music department will participate in the performance. Sets were designed and built by eight students in the stage technician class, under Collier's guidance.

The play was selected because of its versatility, Collier said. "It's such a wonderful play and an opportunity for so many students to participate."

The leads are senior Oliver Evensen, who plays Adam, and junior Cheri Bourne, playing Millie, the new bride who reforms Adam's six ill-mannered brothers, even teaching them to dance. The brothers all want wives of their own, but the girls they like already have jealous suitors. So the stage is set for kidnapping.

The other brothers and their kidnapped sweethearts are Benjamin: Devon May; Dorcas: Brittney Robertson; Caleb: Joseph Sunderland; Ruth: Jessie Layton; Daniel: Levi Graham; Liza: Jaclyn Crane; Ephraim: Erik Merrill; Martha: Lyn Brisbin; Frank: Trevor Woodland; Sarah: Kelsi Hadden; Gideon: Stetzen Bailey; and Alice: Kara Jentsch.

The suitors destined to lose out are Carl: Parker Mittelsteadt; Luke: Calvin Morris; Matt: Garrett Christensen; Joel: Tyrell Morris; Zeke: Michael Defilippes; and Jeb: Justin Bourne.

Fathers are Mr. Bixby: Harold Walters; Mr. Perkins: Daniel Dayley; Liza's Pa: Jonathan Dayley; Martha's Pa: Devin Hansen; and Mr. Kines: Garrett Homer. CJ Richardson plays the preacher. In the role of Mrs. Bixby is Shilynn Garcia, and playing Mrs. Perkins is Stephanie Moon.

Townspeople are played by Sunny McHan, Susie McHan, Kaylee Blacker, Emilie Merrill, Lygia Alves, Cami Jolley, Holly Phillips, Dusti Garcia, Sheldon Brown and Kami Fisher.

"The community is going to love this play," Collier said.

Learning to paint like a master

By Terri McAfee
Times-News correspondent

When someone tells Maria Smith that they would love to paint like her but can't draw a straight line, she replies: "Anyone can learn to paint if they study and take the time to learn."

At The Artist's Atelier, her Twin Falls art school, Smith teaches oil painting and drawing, using 19th century methods.

Smith has been interested in drawing and painting since she was a child, born at the beginning of World War II in the Netherlands. Toys were not plentiful; she was given a newspaper and a pencil with which to amuse herself.

"When I was 14, my parents gave me a small paint box with little tubes of oil paint and a tiny canvas board," she said. "From that moment on, oil paints became my medium of choice."

Her father extolled the merits of Dutch masters Vermeer and Rembrandt.

"I decided that if Rembrandt and Vermeer could become masters using oil paint, then I could as well. They were, after all, just Dutch people who painted. Now, some 50 years later, I am of the same opinion" and still working on it, she said.

Smith's first goal with a new student is to teach him to see like an artist.

"For the serious artist, nothing is more important than seeing, truly seeing," Smith said, emphasizing the difference between looking and seeing.

"Looking implies a strictly visual taking in of what is before us in a mechanical way with our eyes. Looking is a fairly superficial, literal way of seeing," Smith explained. A person looks just long enough to identify an object.

"True seeing is seeing objectively. It is a focused visual observation without undue influence from preconceived ideas or beliefs," Smith said. "It is seeing without interpretation — without attaching meaning to what we see. This is most difficult and is the greatest hindrance to learning to paint well — not lack of talent."

Smith teaches a solid understanding of seeing planes, light, form, dimension, air, space, balance and design, as well as effects of different kinds of light on various surface textures.

Declo resident Bernice MacKenzie has painted with Smith for a year. Learning how "light moves across your painting" has enriched her painting experience. Texture intrigues her. "I have painted wood, cloth, glass, leather, pottery and metals," she said.

Whether you are an experienced painter or an unpledged one, Smith can help.

Dorothy Keaton, a 94-year-old from Rupert who has painted for 35 years, said there is always something new to learn. "She has taught me that the shadows really make the picture, along with color, accuracy and perspective."

Art-loving kids can go crazy at free festival

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

HAILEY — The Big Bad Wolf gets a workout as he deals with both the three little pigs and Little Red Riding Hood.

And kids get a workout as they choose from a whirlwind of art activities, including drumming, creative movement, bookmaking and puppetry.

It's all part of the second annual Children's Arts Festival hosted by the Wood River Arts Alliance. The free festival for kindergartners through fifth-graders will be held from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. March 7 at the Community Campus in Hailey. It's next to Wood River High School at 1050 Fox Acres Road.

"It's so exciting to see the kids darting from one thing to the next," said Ketchum resident Anna Johnson. "I took my 3-year-old last year and she had an amazing time. It's a great way to spend a snowy day having fun with your child."

"I have three children, and they loved to be able to try out a lot of different things in one day," echoed Shannon Finnegan, Wood River Arts Alliance executive director.

The festival is designed to expose children to all kinds of arts including dance, drama, music, visual arts and literary arts in a non-competitive atmosphere, said Claudia McCain of the alliance.

The Sun Valley Summer Symphony School of Music faculty and guests will perform "Cinderella" at 9:30 a.m. St. Thomas Playhouse will present Moses Goldberg's adaptation of "Red Riding Hood and the Three Little Pigs" at 12:15 p.m. And Footlight Dance will perform "Olympic Dances" at 3 p.m. before the Ketchum World Beat Street Band concludes the day with drumming.

Four 50-minute classes will be offered at 10 and 11 a.m. and 1 and 2 p.m. — first come, first served — with registration beginning at 9 a.m. Boulder Mountain Clayworks will offer a class on making spring baskets of clay; Ketchum Art Festival artist Nancy Liston will lead one in ceramic painting on tile. The Sun Valley Center for the Arts will offer a class on pop-up landscape books,

CAN'T CATCH THE HOOD AT THE FESTIVAL?

St. Thomas Playhouse is presenting Moses Goldberg's "Little Red Riding Hood and the Three Little Pigs" for kindergartners through fourth-graders at Wood River Valley schools, libraries and other venues through March 7. In addition to next week's festival, the professional actors and musicians will present the free 40-minute adaptation of the two fairy tales for the public at 2:30 p.m. Saturday at Iconoclast Books in Ketchum.

while Iconoclast Books offers a class on bookmaking.

Elsewhere at the festival, Company of Fools will offer its Stages of Wonder creative movement, while Sun Valley Co. delves into comedy on the stage. Red Letter Co-Op will center its presentation around stories, fables and songs, while Royal Larkspur Theatre Co. offers puppet demonstrations and the Sun Valley Summer Symphony gives a musical rendition of "Ferdinand the Bull." Nia of Sun Valley will offer a movement and magic course, while Tom Nash serves up an hour of music for the kids.

There also will be several drop-in events, such as the popular instrument petting zoo provided by the Sun Valley Summer Symphony and Notes Music, and a bouncy house and games provided by Blaine Country Recreation District.

In addition, there will be an art display by second- and fifth-graders and middle and high school students.

Children will be given a reusable grocery bag, a set of watercolors, a bee eraser and a colorful pencil upon registration. All participants may register for one of three iPods to be given away during the day.

Interpreters will be available for Spanish participants. Lunch is available for purchase on site, or children may bring a brown bag lunch.

Symphonic sounds from CSI band

By Blair Koch
Times-News correspondent

Mallets in hand, Glenn Colley awaits the right time to strike the pallet of wooden bars splayed out in front of him. Colley, a percussionist with the College of Southern Idaho's Symphonic Band, plays a variety of instruments in the rhythm section. But during "The March From 1941" by John Williams, the xylophone is all his.

Colley mouths the 4/4 time to the steadily moving tempo as sounds swell from the wind, brass and bass sections. His arms and hands snap into action, the xylophone's clean vibrato punctuating the march's movement.

"All of the pieces are tricky," Colley said.

It isn't "1941" that trips up the Twin Falls resident, but a piece called "Variations on a Korean Folk Song," written in 1965 by John Barnes Chance.

"It is extra fast," Colley said. "Variations" is great to listen to, horrible to play."

If the Symphonic Band, largely a community ensemble, can pull the piece together, the audience will get an opportunity to experience the fairly new composition during a Tuesday concert.

Director Paul Pugh, filling in during George Halsell's semester-long sabbatical, said the concert features music from 19th, 20th and 21st century composers like Richard Wagner, Alfred Reed, Dimitri Shostakovich and Howard Hansen.

Pugh, who also teaches band and strings at Burley Middle School, especially looks forward to presenting "October," written by his former college classmate Eric Whitacre.

"October" was originally for a vocal chorus," Pugh said. "The sound is very open ... a very modern piece."

Bassoon player Jenny Whitmore of Twin Falls said audiences will enjoy Genaro Codina's "The Zacatecas March," an unofficial national anthem of Mexico. With an unforgiving tempo, Whitmore said, you either keep up or get trampled down.

"It is a full-fledged march. Get down and move because we are going to be moving," she said.

Donations at the door will go to the CSI Music Department Scholarship Fund.

Let your tastes tour the world at library fundraiser

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

KETCHUM — The library stacks will be transformed into the stalls of a South American market. The reading area will be covered in Indian rugs and wrapped in saris and Himalayan art.

Yet another room will be made over into the Whistle Stop Cafe, bursting with Southern-style gumbo and peppered bacon dipped in chocolate, when the Community Library serves up six courses of literary and gastronomic delight on March 8.

The fourth annual Our Moveable Feast — a benefit for The Community Library — will be held at 5:30 p.m. March 8 at the library, 415 Spruce Ave. N., in Ketchum.

"It's quite a popular event, bringing in about 500 people," said Penny Monger, who is helping Susan Bilkey with the India room. "Some of the rooms are quite elaborate; the people who are working on them are very skilled. And there's every kind of food you can imagine, from chicken curry to a variety of elegant desserts."

This year's feast is titled "The Joy of Cooking." Rooms of the library will be decorated to evoke the images of several books dealing with food. And food will be served to match.

The room named after Isak Dinesen's "Babette's Feast," for instance, will serve up a banquet of French nibbles presented by Bistro 44, Ciro, Cristina's, Michel's Christiana and Riccabona's.

Indian food will be served in a room based on Chitra Divakaruni's "The Mistress of Spices." Latin American foods will be offered in a room patterned after Jorge Amado's "Gabiella, Clove and Cinnamon." Fried green tomatoes will be fore and front in a room based on Fannie Flagg's "Fried Green Tomatoes at the Whistle Stop Cafe." And dessert will be served in a room based on Maurice Sendak's "In the Night Kitchen."

based on Barbara Kingsolver's "Animal, Vegetable, Miracle," will offer a potluck of silent auction items, including historical photographs, restaurant gift certificates, a children's sleepover at the library, cooking lessons from a variety of chefs, celebrity chef dinners in elegant private homes and week-long stays at homes in Provence, the Adirondacks, London, Mexico, Hawaii and Stanley, Idaho.

"We've come up with a wide variety of auction items dealing with food, including a picnic for six on a sailboat on Alturas Lake," said auction chairwoman Connie Hoffman.

This year's feast will include two entrances — one at the main door and the other at the children's library — to minimize a huge crush at the beginning.

The $100 admission includes food, wine and non-alcoholic beverages. Three no-host bars will offer cocktails.

The strolling dinner party is designed to raise operating funds for the library, which receives no tax dollars. The library got about 130,000 user visits last year. It charges no late fees and allows use by everyone from Ketchum residents to those living in Katmandu.

Compared to small university libraries by some patrons, it has 130,000 books, photos, CDs and other items in its collection. Its Regional History Department has been used by a variety of people, including actress Meg Ryan who researched there for a movie role. And it offers free lectures and films almost weekly.

Started by 17 women who chipped in a dollar each to build a library in 1955, the library gets much of its operating budget from the Gold Mine thrift store. Still, it needs to raise $700,000 on top of that.

Events, such as the Moveable Feast and a tour of elegant homes, account for about 16 percent of the budget with the feast being the more lucrative of the two, said Colleen Crain, the library's development director.

Bruins force second title tilt

T.F. wins at Madison to earn rematch tonight

By Bradley Guire
Times-News writer

REXBURG — Tonight should be a battle.

The Twin Falls boys basketball team has played the Madison Bobcats four times this season, and with the Bruins' 61-53 victory Thursday in Rexburg, the series is tied at 2-2. The next one is for the Region Four-Five-Six championship and the top region seed to next weekend's Class 5A boys state basketball championship tournament in Nampa.

A resurgent fourth quarter kept the trophy out of the Bobcats' hands and made sure Madison would trek to Twin Falls for today's 7 p.m. rematch.

"We knew we could blow them out in the fourth," Bruin post Pulsifer said. "We chose to do that."

That's not to say there weren't a few scary moments, particularly in the third period.

After nearly doubling up the Bobcats with a 34-18 halftime lead, Madison came back in a big way during the third, determined not to miss out on winning the title in their home gym. Madison held Twin Falls to just three points while putting up 17 of its own.

But Twin Falls held on, and although Madison pulled within a possession, it never regained the lead.

LaCale Pringle-Buchanan

HANDS

Pringle-Buchanan a difference maker on and off court for CSI

By Mike Christensen
Times-News writer

For many, basketball is about the thrill of competition or the exhilaration of the big play.

For College of Southern Idaho sophomore LaCale Pringle-Buchanan, it serves an altogether different purpose.

"Basketball is a way for me to just relax," said the CSI sophomore. "It's like a safe haven."

What the game does for Pringle-Buchanan, she does for her teammates.

"She does have a way off the court to get kids to relax and enjoy themselves," said CSI head coach Randy Rogers.

As teammate Martina Holloway put it, "If animosity happens, she's the one to crack the quick joke to calm everyone back down. She's the one to keep people laughing and smiling."

It wasn't always that way.

Growing up in Seattle, Wash., Pringle-Buchanan never knew her biological father and didn't have much of a relationship with a birth mother who struggled through drug use and prison time.

Pringle-Buchanan spent time living with relatives and in numerous foster and group homes until moving in with her AAU coach Bernard "Buck" Buchanan and his wife Patricia Simon in 1999.

BIG

Daequon Montreal

BROTHER

Montreal fills important role with young CSI squad

By Mike Christensen
Times-News writer

The role is a familiar one for Daequon Montreal. In fact, it's one he's been filling most of his life.

Growing up the second oldest of his mother's five children in Syracuse, N.Y., Montreal has played the part of big brother for a long time. He's also among the oldest of his 14 paternal brothers — all of whom he knows and keeps in touch with.

"That's kind of where I get my leadership from," said Montreal. "I've been looking out for people my whole life."

So when the College of Southern Idaho men's basketball program needed someone to play big brother to a roster filled with newcomers, Montreal was ready and able.

"This year, I just saw that I had a responsibility to lead these freshmen and show them what it's like in this region," said Montreal, the lone returning player from the 2007-08 squad. "I've just taken leadership."

During his first season at CSI, Montreal was the lone freshman to break into the regular rotation on a sophomore-laden team that went 30-2 and won the regular-season Scenic West Athletic Conference title. The 6-8 forward averaged 9.6 points and 4.3 rebounds in 15 minutes a game. This year, he's playing nearly twice that much while putting up 15.9 points and a team-best 9.0 rebounds a game.

But his role goes far beyond statistics.

Pilots upset Declo to earn rematch

By Ryan Howe
Times-News writer

DECLO — The charity stripe hadn't been kind to the Glens Ferry Pilots Thursday night, so when Gabe Arevalo stepped to the line with 20 seconds remaining and his team precariously holding onto a two-point lead, all he could do was smile and relax.

"I needed to put them in so our team could win," Arevalo said. "I concentrated really hard, relaxed, smoothed it out and just shot 'em."

Tiger boys grab Great Basin title

On the strength of 10 3-pointers, the West Division champion Tigers took home the Great Basin Conference championship Thursday night with a 60-50 win over East Division champ Pocatello.

Logan Parker and Gus Callen co-led Jerome (22-2) with 17 points apiece, while Kevin Williams added 14 to the cause.

NEW AND NOTES

Miles cleared by doctors

CSI freshman guard Nate Miles is day-to-day with the injury to his right hand, but it appears he does not have a fracture as was believed earlier this week. CSI athletic director Joel Bate said

Miles was given no restrictions by doctors on Thursday and could play today and Saturday against Colorado Northwestern Community College.

First-round bye for CSI

If the CSI men sweep CNCC this weekend, it will own the No. 3 seed for next week's Region 18 Tournament and will receive a first-round bye. The Golden Eagles would have played sixth-seeded CNCC on March 5 for a third straight game, but the Spartans "will not be allowed to participate in the postseason due to a lack of filing eligibility," Bate confirmed by phone Thursday evening.

Century eliminates Bobcats in cliffhanger

By David Bashore
 Times-News writer

JEROME — You can never write off a champion until the final horn sounds, but that fact alone wasn't enough to save Burley on Thursday night.

Storm Shelley scored a game-high 24 as Century ensured there would be a new Class 4A state champion this season with a 53-50 win over Burley in the Great Basin Conference crossover elimination game.

Kyle Hepworth scored 22 for the Bobcats, and both star players took over for their respective teams down the stretch. Neither team led by more than three in the final quarter after each led by as many as eight in the first three.

The Bobcats couldn't find their range in the second half, while Century clawed back into the game and took an eight-point lead of its own with an 18-1 run in the third period. This came after the Diamondbacks were woefully cold in before halftime.

"They made a little run at the start of the third and we sat back a little," Hepworth said. "But we got back into the game and just couldn't get far enough ahead. They made a couple more plays than we did."

Hepworth, one of the leading scorers in the state, turned provider in the early stages, letting the Diamondback defense collapse around him before feeding an unguarded Bill Blauer. The play worked to perfection several times, and Blauer finished with 16 points.

But the Burley senior will look back at one play in particular, where he tried to inbound with 17 seconds left and couldn't find A.J. Hunter. A Century player was first to deflect the ball and the Diamondbacks hit two free throws to ice it and deny Burley a return trip to the state tournament.

"My defender was helping ... I shouldn't have made the pass but that was just one of a lot of mistakes in the game," Hepworth said. "This season as a whole has been a lot of fun, and we improved a lot from the first game."

"Sure, it would have been nice to get back to state but we're happy to have gotten this far."

Century will face Blackfoot in Pocatello on Saturday for a trip to state, while Burley ends its season at 11-14.

Dietrich, Richfield net state berths with Northside semifinal victories

Times-News

Scott Perron hit the decisive bucket with just more than 20 seconds remaining and Dietrich clinched a state tournament berth by advancing to the Class 1A Division II Northside Conference championship with a 47-45 win over host Carey.

Jaren Stoddard led all scorers with 16 points for the Blue Devils, while Perron added 10. Stoddard, Kolton Hubert and Andrew Rocha each had nine rebounds for Dietrich (16-6).

Both teams struggled from the foul line and turned the ball over with alarming frequency, but it was Dietrich that had a couple more key plays to take the win.

"We played hard, and they played hard. It was just one of those games where we were fortunate to take the win," said Dietrich coach Wayne Dill.

Heith Adamson scored 15 for Carey (17-5), while Trevor Peck and Brett Adamson each had 12.

Dietrich will play Richfield for the championship on Saturday, while Carey faces Bliss in an elimination game tonight.

RICHFIELD 57, MURTAUGH 51

Top-seeded Richfield moved into the Class 1A Division II Northside Conference championship game with a 57-51 win over Murtaugh Thursday night in Carey, clinching a state tournament berth in the process.

Tel Clark and Michael Lezamiz did most of the damage offensively for the Tigers (18-3), scoring 24 and 19, respectively.

Manuel Pacheco and Humberto Pacheco each scored 11 to pace the Red Devils, while Zach Cummins added 10.

Murtaugh (12-8) plays Camas County (4-18) in an 8 p.m. elimination game tonight.

Former Bulls player, commentator Van Lier dies

CHICAGO — Norm Van Lier, one of the most popular players in Chicago Bulls history and one of the NBA's top defensive players in the 1970s, was found dead in his home just blocks away from the team's arena Thursday. He was 61.

The cause of death was not immediately known, authorities said.

Van Lier, who most recently worked for Comcast SportsNet Chicago, had been scheduled as a pre- and post-game analyst for Wednesday night's Bulls game with the New Jersey Nets.

Comcast officials became concerned when Van Lier did not show up for work and could not be reached Thursday. An employee was sent to his apartment near the United Center on the city's near West Side, said Jim Corno, president of Comcast SportsNet Chicago. The employee tried unsuccessfully to get inside.

Authorities responded to a subsequent well-being check and found Van Lier unresponsive shortly before 1 p.m. He was pronounced dead at the scene, Chicago Fire Department spokesman Quention Curtis said.

EX-BULLS BROADCASTER, COACH JOHNNY 'RED' KERR DIES

CHICAGO — Johnny "Red" Kerr, the former Chicago Bulls coach who spent more than three decades as a broadcaster for the team, has died. He was 76.

Bulls spokesman Tim Hallam says Kerr died Thursday at his home. He had been battling prostate cancer.

The Bulls unveiled a statue of Kerr at the United Center during an emotional ceremony earlier this month that included taped messages from President Obama and commissioner David Stern and speeches from Scottie Pippen and Michael Jordan. Kerr coached the Bulls to the playoffs in their inaugural 1966-67 season and spent more than 30 years calling their games.

Parker's backcourt accomplice, junior Kameron Pearce, bagged half of the Tigers' 18 assists, which came on 22 field goals made. "When we pass the ball like that we're probably not going to lose," said Parker, who celebrated his 18th birthday Thursday. "Kam did a great job cutting to the basket and kicking out to the open man."

The Tigers were able to offset 20 points from Pocatello senior Michael Decker by playing tight defense on the rest of the Indians' weapons. Colter Morton scored just eight points, while fellow interior player Shae Andrews was limited to six.

Jerome went on a 3-point blitz in the third quarter, hitting five of its treys in that period alone.

"Coach (Joe Messick) gave us a good talking to at half-time. First half was pretty lackluster and you can't play like that against the Great Basin East champ," Parker said.

Jerome will face either Mountain Home or Columbia next Thursday to open the state tournament. The game will be at 6:15 p.m., at Borah High School in Boise. Pocatello has a 1:15 p.m., date with District VI champion Hillcrest.

"We have to just take it one game at a time, even if we don't want to. We've all been looking forward to that state championship since we were little kids," Parker said. "We'll be ready for whoever we get."

Arevalo sank both free throws to put the finishing touches on Glens Ferry's 50-46 victory over Declo in the first championship game of the boys Class 2A Canyon Conference tournament. The Pilots (18-6) and Hornets (16-6) meet again at 7 p.m. today in Glens Ferry with a championship and state tourney berth on the line.

Glens Ferry almost let it slip away with a handful of turnovers and a horrendous 4-of-15 shooting from the foul line in the fourth quarter. The Pilots saw their 10-point lead dwindle to one with three minutes left.

"We came out with more intensity than we did the last three games against (Declo)," said Mike Crane, who scored 14 points for the Pilots. "It was our intensity and that feeling of if you lose, you go home. That's all we wanted, just another day."

After losing to Declo twice in the regular season and once more earlier in the tournament, Glens Ferry regrouped and stole a win on the Hornets' home floor, where they had a 10-1 record this season. Declo had won eight of its last nine games heading into Thursday night.

"Declo is tough here," said Glens Ferry coach Jeremiah Johnston. "We had to control the tempo a little better and try to get up a little bit and force the pressure on their defensively and we did that for three and a half quarters." Ross Arellano scored 14 for Glens Ferry and Johnny Popoca added 11. Defensively, the Pilots focused on Declo's Connor Garner and held him to eight points — about half his average.

Jarad Erickson and Tyler Briggs led Declo with 12 points apiece.

"(Tonight) we'll have to regroup and adjust to get back into an offensive flow, which we didn't do a good job of tonight," said Declo coach Dee Lewis. "We didn't match what Glens Ferry brought to us. As a team I don't think we've played a great game yet and (tonight) that's what we're going to need."

Bruins

"I didn't expect them to make that good of a run," Twin Falls head coach Matt Harr said. "We had some turnovers that were a flash-back to earlier this season. They hit some big shots, and in that gym, the momentum doubles for them."

Pulsifer poured in a dozen of his 20 points during the final quarter, and got some help from Marcus Jardine and Brennan Lancaster. Pulsifer would also grab 11 rebounds for another double-double.

Said Harr: "I'm extremely happy with their composure. The guys never panicked."

The Bruins went on a small run during the end of the first quarter and start of the second, eventually pulling away for the double-figure lead. T.J. Ellis contributed points from beyond the 3-point arc, hitting a pair of treys to balloon the lead.

"The normal shooters were covered," Ellis said, "so they made the extra pass, and I made my shots."

Now it's back to Baun Gymnasium, and the Bruins don't want anybody cutting down their nets. If Twin Falls can prove victorious, it will open state tournament play against the third seed from District III in a 3 p.m. contest Thursday at the Idaho Center. Otherwise, Twin Falls will face District III's second seed at 8 p.m.

All the Bruins have to do is beat the Bobcats one more time. As Harr put it, "It'll be a gut-check for both teams."

NBA lines up additional money for interested teams

Stern: It's not a bailout

NEW YORK (AP) — The NBA has lined up $200 million to distribute to teams interested in additional cash, which the league considers a sign it remains strong in a slumping economy.

Between $13 million and $20 million will be available to each of 12 teams that have expressed interest in the funds, commissioner David Stern said Thursday. The money can be used for any purpose, including helping teams deal with operating losses incurred because of the economy.

It should not, Stern said, be construed as a bailout. At a time when credit markets have been frozen, investors saw the NBA as a safe bet.

"It's exactly the opposite" of a bailout, Stern told The Associated Press. "This was a show of strength in the credit worthiness of the NBA's teams."

The NBA declined to name the teams interested in the money.

The league has an existing $1.7 billion credit facility, essentially a line of credit established by lenders from which teams can borrow. The league had been interested in growing the facility when the credit markets seized up last fall.

"They told us there's no chance of any additional funds being raised for any sports league, and indeed,

Rockets rout Cavs

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Rockets held LeBron James without an assist for the first time in his career and limited Cleveland to its lowest point total of the season, beating the Cavaliers 93-74 on Thursday night.

Yao Ming scored 28 points and Ron Artest added 15 while harassing James on defense most of the night, leading the Rockets to their sixth consecutive victory and ninth straight at home. James scored 21 points, but went 7-for-21 from the field with three turnovers. He left for good with 4:03 left, the first time in 493 NBA games (counting playoffs) he failed to record an assist.

The Cavaliers had season-low point totals in the first (11) and third (10) quarters, and their 34 percent shooting (27-for-80) was also a season worst.

the credit facilities that had come up for other leagues were being termed out rather than renewed," Stern said.

JPMorgan Chase and Bank of America recently approached the league to say $150 million might be available, a figure that eventually grew to $200 million.

"It's a great sign of confidence in us and that's wonderful that the market is opening up, so we'll take it," Stern said. "And we turned to our teams and said, 'OK, we've got this much more to distribute under the facility for those of you who want it now.'"

Saturday re-signs with Colts

The Associated Press

Hours before free agency began, the spotlight, for once, was on linemen.

Colts star center Jeff Saturday, a three-time Pro Bowler, agreed to a three-year deal to remain in Indianapolis.

Saturday's agent, Ralph Cindrich, confirmed the deal to The Associated Press on Thursday night. He didn't disclose financial details, but said the deal will make Saturday one of the highest-paid centers in the NFL.

The move came a day after the NFL salary cap increased from $123 million to $127 million. It was also a day after the Colts officially released Marvin Harrison, freeing up $6 million under the salary cap.

Getting the opposite treatment was Derrick Dockery, who was released by Buffalo. Two years ago, Dockery, a run-of-the-mill guard, left the Washington Redskins for a seven-year, $49 million deal with Buffalo. He was one of several interior linemen who got record-breaking deals that season.

When he was cut by the Bills, Dockery was $28 million short of fulfilling the contract. He was a casualty of both his so-so play and the current economic climate, in which only the top free agents are likely to strike it rich.

"If the money doesn't go to one particular player, it should go to getting one or two or three players who make your team a better club," said Tennessee general manager Mike Reinfeldt, sounding as though he might be resigned to losing one of the premier free agents in this year's class — All-Pro defensive tackle Albert Haynesworth.

Miami re-signed Yermiah Bell on the eve of free agency and acquired Gibril Wilson, who landed a big contract for the second year in a row.

Wilson, a five-year veteran released last week by the Raiders, signed a $27.5 million, five-year deal. He'll receive $8 million guaranteed and $16.5 million in the first three years of the contract.

Bell, who has spent his entire five-year career with Miami, signed a $20 million, four-year contract rather than testing free agency. His deal is worth $10 million guaranteed.

OFFICIAL SAYS VICK OK'D FOR HOME CONFINEMENT

RICHMOND, Va. — Imprisoned NFL star Michael Vick will be allowed to serve the last two months of his sentence under home confinement because there is no room at a halfway house for him, a government official told The Associated Press Thursday.

Vick is serving a 23-month sentence at the federal penitentiary in Leavenworth, Kan., after pleading guilty to bankrolling a dogfighting operation at a home he owned in eastern Virginia's Surry County. He also admitted to participating in the killing of several underperforming dogs.

HAWAII REJECTS NFL'S PRO BOWL PROPOSAL

HONOLULU — The Hawaii Tourism Authority board Thursday rejected the NFL's proposal to return the Pro Bowl to the islands in 2011 and '12.

The 10-member board, however, approved a motion to renegotiate with the NFL, if the league is willing. The board voted 6-4 against the proposal. It cited several concerns, primarily the NFL's decision to move its annual all-star game to a week before the Super Bowl and whether the $4 million to host each game could be better used for other purposes.

SOCAL CITY APPROVES PROPOSAL FOR NFL STADIUM

LOS ANGELES — City Council members in the city of Industry unanimously approved a proposal Thursday for a pro football stadium intended to lure a team back to the Los Angeles area.

The vote helped clear the way for developers of the $800 million venue to begin talks with NFL teams about a possible move to the industrial and warehousing city 15 miles east of Los Angeles.

ACCENTURE MATCH PLAY CHAMPIONSHIP

TIGER TAMED

Tiger Woods removes his hat as he approaches Tim Clark after Clark's 4 and 2 victory in their second round match at the World Golf Championships Accenture Match Play Championship Thursday in Marana, Ariz.

Woods loses in second round to Tim Clark

MARANA, Ariz. — Just about everything went according to plan for Tiger Woods in his celebrated return to golf.

Except he didn't plan on leaving this early.

Woods had no complaints with his game or his knee, but he had no answer Thursday for Tim Clark of South Africa, who played 16 holes without a bogey and knocked the world's No. 1 player out of the Accenture Match Play Championship.

So where does Woods go from here?

"I go to the airport," he said. His swing looked as good as it did eight months ago when he won the U.S. Open. His knee felt so strong that when Woods discovered his tee shot into the desert on the 15th hole hit a cart path and went out of bounds — a shot that ended any hope of a rally — he chose to walk 350 yards back to the tee instead of accepting a ride in the cart.

"I knew I had to play out of my mind to beat him," Clark said.

And he did, pouring in six birdies and constantly putting the pressure on Woods throughout a sunny day in the high desert. Clark won, 4 and 2, when he hit his tee shot to 4 feet that Woods conceded for birdie after failing to chip in from off the green.

"I hit it really good today," Woods said. "I just didn't make enough birdies. Tim made some birdies there, and I didn't answer him in the middle part of the round,

"I hit it really good today. I just didn't make enough birdies. Tim (Clark) made some birdies there, and I didn't answer him in the middle part of the round, and consequently I got behind."

and consequently I got behind."

Only about 100 fans remained late in the afternoon at Dove Mountain, which surely will lack the energy it had the first two days to welcome back golf's biggest star. Phil Mickelson, the No. 5 seed who survived another scare, is the highest-rated player left in a tournament that is now down to 16 players.

The good news for golf is that it probably won't have to wait eight months to see him again.

Woods likely will play in two weeks at Doral in the CA Championship, although he said he would wait to see how his left knee felt. This was his first tournament since reconstructive surgery on the knee one week after he won the U.S. Open at Torrey Pines in June.

Clark, a pesky opponent with a sharp short game, didn't give him much of a chance.

"I was really working hard to keep myself calm and try to play my own game," Clark said. "I put a lot of iron shots pretty close, and I think perhaps he wasn't expecting that or not. But I don't think I'm ever going to intimidate Tiger Woods, let's put it that way."

Clark, who has four victories around the world but is 0-for-176 on the PGA Tour, next plays a teenager who might be the best hope of bringing some attention back to this World Golf Championship.

Rory McIlroy, the 19-year-old whiz kid from Northern Ireland, birdied his last two holes for a 1-up victory over Hunter Mahan. He would have been Woods' next opponent.

"It would have been great to play him," McIlroy said. "You have to play well to beat Tiger, and obviously Tim did that today."

Vijay Singh, the No. 4 seed, lost his last three holes and was beaten by Luke Donald of England in 19 holes.

Besides Mickelson, who is coming off a victory last week at Riviera, the only other top-10 players remaining were No. 8 seed Geoff Ogilvy, who won in 19 holes for the second straight day, this time against Shingo Katayama; and No. 9 seed Camilo Villegas, who beat Miguel Angel Jimenez, 5 and 4.

Villegas has played only 26 holes in two rounds.

VAN PELT RIDES BIRDIE BINGE TO LEAD IN MEXICO

PLAYA DEL CARMEN, Mexico — Bo Van Pelt birdied seven of his last nine holes at the Mayakoba Golf Classic Thursday for a 7-under 63 and the first-round lead. He started the run with four straight birdies, then birdied three of the final four holes, including about a 2-foot putt to close the round in style.

Chris Riley and Jarrod Lyle opened with 65s. Rookie Scott Piercy, who has three top-25 finishes in four starts this year, was in a group at 66.

Defending champion Brian Gay was tied for 20th at 68. David Toms — the world's 65th-ranked player, leaving him one spot from making the Match Play field — shot a 70.

KOREA'S JIN JOO HONG TAKES LPGA THAILAND LEAD

PATTAYA, Thailand — Jin Joo Hong of South Korea emerged as a surprise first-round leader Thursday after shooting a 6-under 66 at the $1.45 million LPGA Thailand.

In a field boasting all the world's top 10 players, it was the unheralded Hong who fired six birdies and an eagle against two bogeys to open a two-stroke lead over Sweden's Helen Alfredsson and four Americans: Paula Creamer, Angela Stanford, Kristy McPherson and Brittany Lang.

Dodgers and Giants resume rivalry in Arizona

The Associated Press

While the Dodgers and Giants found another place to renew their heated rivalry, Jose Reyes took a liking to his new spot in the lineup.

Longtime adversaries first in New York, then California and now in the Cactus League, the Dodgers and Giants squared off again Thursday in a fresh locale: Scottsdale, Ariz.

Russell Martin homered off Matt Cain and drove in three runs as Los Angeles spoiled San Francisco's spring training home opener with a 16-7 victory.

Both teams are now in Arizona after the Dodgers left their longtime home in Vero Beach, Fla., to open their new facility in the Phoenix area this year. The Giants have trained in Arizona since 1952.

"It was pretty weird," Cain said. "It's good to see these guys, but it's always also kind of nice to go into a season when they haven't seen us and we haven't seen them. Sometimes you think you have an advantage if you are a pitcher."

The game was played before a placid crowd of 5,803 at Scottsdale Stadium and was a pale comparison to what Dodgers manager Joe Torre saw in another famous rivalry in previous springs.

"The Yankees and Red Sox was nuts in spring. They sold banners and buttons and stuff. It was stupid. The fans wanted it that way," said Torre, who spent 12 seasons as New York's manager before taking over the Dodgers in 2008.

"When I say stupid, I don't say it shouldn't have been done. The fans get that from their angst. It was funny. Thank goodness you went and played somewhere it was funny, as opposed to times we had to go through so often. We know the difference. Everybody knows

Dropped from the leadoff spot to No. 3 in the order, he hit a grand slam, a solo homer and had six RBIs to power the New York Mets past the Florida Marlins 9-0 at Port St. Lucie, Fla.

"I didn't do anything different," Reyes said. "I just put my best swing on the ball and tried to go from there."

Taking the long road: some prep teams log big miles for games

The Associated Press

It was almost 2 a.m. by the time the Findlay players tumbled into bed at the hotel, the end of yet another long day of carrying bags through airports, waiting in security lines and cramming their long, lanky frames into airplane seats for a cross-country flight.

A few hours' sleep in beds far from their suburban Las Vegas homes, and it was time to get ready for their first game. It's a schedule minor leaguers and some college players know all too well.

The Findlay Pilots, however, are still in high school.

And trips like that are hardly unusual for many top prep basketball programs.

The Associated Press examined the schedules of the top 25 prep teams and found that, with growing corporate and public interest in the sport, some are logging tens of thousands of miles each year. Findlay will travel nearly 32,000 miles this season — three times the mileage of perennial college powerhouse Duke.

Add in classes and homework, and a kid's game can look more like a job.

"I have very strong reservations about how wise it is for us to be going down this road," said Bruce Svare, psychology professor at the State University of New York at Albany and director of the National Institute for Sports Reform. "Is it wise educationally? Is it wise fiscally? I think the argument could be made in both cases that it is not."

The well-traveled schools argue that they're exposing athletes to the best competition and giving students a peek at the challenges awaiting them in college and beyond.

Among the top 25 teams in this week's National Prep Poll, the AP found:

- Twelve will travel more than 5,000 miles this season — roughly a roundtrip between New York and Las Vegas.

- Nine will travel 10,000 miles or more.

- Only three will travel fewer than 1,000 miles, and two of those are in Indiana, which has strict travel rules.

- Road trips aren't limited to private schools best known for sports. Los Angeles public schools Westchester and Fairfax will travel more than 10,000 miles this season.

High school sports have always involved some travel. But the popularity of the NCAA Final Four and the advent of cable TV and the Internet have created an almost insatiable appetite for college basketball, and there's a similar frenzy at the high school level.

ESPN has televised 56 regular-season high school games since 2002, including 15 this season. Last fall, it launched ESPNrise.com — dedicated to prep sports. The number of tournaments and special events has grown in the last decade, fed by fans eager to see tomorrow's stars.

Pringle-Buchanan

"I bounced around a lot. But if I could do it all over again, I wouldn't change anything in my life because I feel like everything I've been through has made me a much stronger person," said Pringle-Buchanan. "I know how to handle situations that most people don't."

In 2002, Buchanan and Simon officially adopted Pringle-Buchanan, giving her the stability and hope that helped transform her into the confident, outgoing person who walks CSI's campus.

"I was one of the lucky few to get adopted when I'm old," said Pringle-Buchanan, who redshirted one season at Pepperdine before coming to CSI.

On the basketball court, she is a jack of all trades, playing virtually every position for the 11th-ranked Golden Eagles.

While her averages of 11.7 points, 6.3 rebounds and 3.8 steals are impressive, her knack for getting steals is uncanny.

"It looks like someone's going to be open, but she's running the lane to get the steal," Holloway said of Pringle-Buchanan's 3.8 steals per game, a number that ranks fourth nationally in the NJCAA ranks.

During her first season in Twin Falls, Pringle-Buchanan was forced to play a lot of point guard. But with Holloway, the nation's assist leader on board, the 5-foot-10 Pringle-Buchanan has been freed up to play on the wing and in the post.

Of all the positions she plays, her favorite is small forward because "you get to be physical, but you can still shoot outside" — she hits 37 percent from 3-point range.

The physical nature of Pringle-Buchanan's play pays dividends on the court, as does the easy-going demeanor away from the game.

"Opponents get intimidated by her," said Rogers, "which is funny because she is the most unintimidating person just talking to her and being one-on-one with her. It's just her nature to enjoy herself in every situation."

This season, life dealt Pringle-Buchanan another challenge when she lost someone who helped her through her difficult childhood. On Jan. 30, Jerry Ann Brown, a day care owner in the Seattle area, succumbed to cancer.

"She pretty much raised all of us," Pringle-Buchanan said of Brown. "She helped take care of me for a long part of my life, up until I met my foster dad, Buck."

Pringle-Buchanan returned to Seattle in late January, spending some time with Brown before she passed.

But the player who has a nickname for virtually all of her teammates was soon back in Twin Falls, filling up the stat sheet and making everyone around her smile along the way.

"She's just a good person to be around," said Holloway.

It goes beyond that. Pringle-Buchanan is working on adopting her young brother Hussayn Ford, while her older sister plans to adopt Hussayn's twin sister Hydia.

It's the fulfillment of a promise the two sisters made years ago. For now, the twins are in good hands, staying with Buck Buchanan.

"He does an amazing job of raising kids," said Pringle-Buchanan.

Her life alone is evidence of that.

Montreal

"He's been huge," said CSI head coach Steve Gosar. "He brings not just the experience of having played last year, but he can relate that experience. Some of the younger guys and the new guys just don't understand how hard of a league this is and how tough it is — not just with the teams, but the travel."

With only one other sophomore on this year's roster — University of San Francisco transfer Jay Watkins — Montreal has had to do a lot of teaching, on and off the court. While he admitted occasional frustration in having to direct teammates where to go when plays were called, he said he loves this year's Golden Eagles.

"It's been a lot of fun. We've got a great group of guys," said Montreal. "It's fun going on the road trips and on the buses, they keep me laughing."

Freshman point guard Jamelle Barrett credits

"He's been great in the locker room just being a leader to the guys to help them understand we've got to go for loose balls and do all the little things we have to do to get wins."

— CSI men's basketball head coach Steve Gosar

Montreal for much of his personal growth this season.

"He's been big in my whole development," said Barrett, "in little things from plays, to being prepared for road trips because I've never been through it."

"He's like a big brother to me."

Montreal also sets the tone in the classroom, taking care of business there first and foremost. As he ponders where he'll play next year — his ever-growing list suitors includes St. Johns, UMass, Baylor, Utah, South Florida, BYU, Boise State, Fresno State and Gonzaga — academic factors are at the forefront of his decision-making.

While largely a leader by example, Montreal isn't afraid to speak up when the time comes.

"He's been great in the locker room just being a leader to the guys to help them understand we've got to go for loose balls and do all the little things we have to do to get wins," said Gosar. "He just helps reiterate what we've been telling them as coaches."

"He's just got that experience, that seasoning that you can only get from having played in the league. He just doesn't get rattled that much."

All this from a guy who didn't start playing basketball until his sophomore year of high school. While Montreal followed his older brother's high school career, he never pictured himself playing the game. Track was Montreal's first love as he competed in the high jump, long jump, triple jump and 4x100-meter relay.

But his gym coach at Corcoran High School in Syracuse convinced him to come out for basketball his sophomore year. After half a season on the junior varsity team, he was moved to varsity and went on to start his junior and season seasons.

"I just picked it up really fast," said Montreal.

That natural ability for the game is coupled with a relentless work ethic. Montreal stayed in Twin Falls last summer, working on his game with former CSI head coach Barret Peery and Gosar in daily workouts. The result is improvement in every facet in his game, but particularly in his shooting ability on mid-range jumpers and 3-pointers. During a pair of games at Snow College earlier this month, Montreal went 9-for-10 from 3-point range. He is shooting 41 percent beyond the arc this year compared to 20 percent as a freshman.

It's no surprise when Montreal says "I expect to play for money someday."

But for the next few weeks, Montreal will do his best to lead the young Golden Eagles to Region 18 Tournament title and a trip to the NJCAA national tournament in Hutchinson, Kan.

Said Montreal: "We've just got to go out there and compete, but we're right where we need to be."

2009 HYUNDAI SANTA FE CROSSOVER

REFINED FUNCTIONALITY!

RoadWorthy!
By Ken Chester, Jr.
Motor News Media Corporation

With impressively handsome packaging, modern interior presentation and accents, the second-generation Hyundai Santa Fe crossover continues to win critical acclaim and new customers.

For 2009, the Santa Fe is equipped with improved audio systems and standard USB/iPod auxiliary ports. Additionally, the SE Touring Package adds a power driver seat and HomeLink; the Trailer Prep Package is now standard on SE and Limited models; and roof rack cross rails are standard on SE and Limited models.

Offered in GLS, SE and Limited trim levels and available front or all-wheel drive, the Santa Fe is powered by either a 2.7L or 3.3L V6 engine. The base V6 is bolted to a five-speed manual gearbox, while a four-speed automatic with SHIFTRONIC is an available option. The 3.3L V6 is joined to a five-speed SHIFTRONIC automatic transmission.

The optional, electronically controlled all-wheel drive system is engineered to automatically route power to the wheels offering the best traction. The driver-selectable AWD lock provides a fixed 50/50 torque split between front and rear wheels, which can improve traction in certain conditions.

Tuned by Hyundai's US-based engineering team, control hardware includes a MacPherson strut front and multi-link rear suspension system. A reverse L-shaped lower arm provides superior steering feel with improved dynamic control. The caster angle is set to 4.4 degrees for impressive straight-line stability and overall dynamics.

Front subframe and rear cross member bushings are designed to improve ride quality and NVH (noise, vibration and harshness). The rear trailing arms are engineered to reduce road noise intrusion and improve geometry. All four wheels are controlled by coil springs and fade-resistant gas-charged dampers, while front and rear stabilizer bars help keep the vehicle flat during cornering.

Inside the cabin, Hyundai offers consumers standard five occupant seating with a third row seat for a total of seven, an available option. The use of laminated steel, robust body rigidity and the use of a sophisticated triple-sealing door/body interface results in a very quiet cabin.

Interior gauges, switches and buttons feature blue backlighting, which highlights the modern, integrated design. Cupholders are ringed with blue light to aid nighttime driving, while soft-touch, high-quality materials, low-gloss surfaces and zero-tolerance net-fits are used throughout the interior.

Second-row seating features 60/40 split, flip-fold seating, while the optional third-row seats are of the 50/50 split-fold-into-the-floor variety.

Donations from friends put couple under microscope

DEAR ABBY: My husband, "Dwight," was very ill a few years ago. Some wonderful folks held a fundraiser to help us with bills and unpaid leave. We paid all of the outstanding medical bills and living expenses with a large portion of the money; the remainder has been set aside for an organ transplant Dwight will need a few years down the road.

We are extremely grateful to everyone who put forth the time and effort, as well as those who donated money. Dwight is now in remission, and we are both back to our full-time jobs.

Over the last three years, the only time we have taken for ourselves is a couple of long weekends. Our home is old and we've had to replace some windows and do some minor repairs. Our car is 10 years old and still runs fine, but eventually we will have to buy another one.

I'm afraid that people who helped us may think we are squandering their gift if we take a vacation or buy a car. Even when we repaired our home, we felt guilty.

My husband is healthy right now, and we would like to enjoy ourselves before things change again. The last thing we want to do is hurt anyone's feelings or jeopardize our friendships. Would you please share your thoughts on this?

—LIVING IN A GLASS HOUSE

IF FEBRUARY 27 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: In the coming year, you could achieve your fondest dreams if you are willing to work hard. You almost glow with trustworthiness and sincerity and will be more popular and beguiling than usual between now and September. Sidestep making crucial decisions, changes or promises during May when the stars may briefly monkeywrench your plans. Do your best to be responsible and ethical in all matters, as others may be more critical of your actions. Plan to put your most crucial plans, such as starting a new job or getting engaged, into motion in September when you will have the most assistance from the universe.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You can't win 'em all. There is a possibility that a strained relationship may have become untenable. Some folks may hide their motives. Pick up your marbles and take them home to play another day.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Don't be so desperate to win attention that you indiscriminately choose your companions. What you imagine is hidden is quite obvious to others, and what you think is clear may be obtuse.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Networking with like-minded individuals can unlock unforeseen possibilities and broaden your horizons. Stick close to those who share your vision of the future, but take promises with a grain of salt.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Take a time-out from an intense love affair. Delay making an important proposal or commitment. There may be something that is undisclosed or hidden that will change your mind later.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Make your vocation your vacation. If you are doing what you enjoy doing, you will surely be a success. Ward off potential trouble within a key relationship by keeping your imagination within bounds.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Some of your troubles can be traced to saying yes too quickly and not saying no soon enough. Hide the credit cards, as you may be tempted to purchase something of dubious long-term value.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Relationships are like Humpty Dumpty. If you force commitment issues something may break. Once broken, all the king's horses and all the king's men are of no help at all.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You can't please all the people all the time. A kindhearted gesture can be taken the wrong way or backfire. As misunderstandings may arise, it is wise to be cautious about accepting invitations.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Don't give your heart away. Fantasies belong in fairy tales; you can close the book when you are done. Avoid making major purchases, as something might not be all it is advertised to be.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Keep your pennies in your pocket today and avoid making significant purchases. You may have a tendency to be vague or inaccurate with cash, so count your change and check your receipts.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): The tree that bends with the wind can spring back unharmed after the storm. Some relationships may not withstand the strain of changing circumstances. Minor clashes can trigger major breakups.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Your ardent desire for companionship may deceive you into thinking that a passing attraction is worthy of your romantic attentions. Get feedback from trustworthy friends before you dive in headfirst.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

DEAR LIVING: In a situation like yours, appearances DO matter. People are extremely sensitive these days about money that is intended for one purpose being spent on another.

If you haven't already done so, to avoid any misunderstandings, put what remains of the donated monies into a separate interest-bearing account earmarked for your husband's transplant. This will enable you to live your lives.

Should anyone second-guess you, explain that you are taking the vacation or buying the next car with your earnings, and that the funds that were donated will eventually be used for the purpose for which they were intended.
