Shifting focus

With building enclosed, work on new school moves indoors

At Canyon Ridge High School, the final shape of the building is clear and most of the construction work has shifted to the inside.

In the new school's future gym, stacks of wood rest on the floor. After the wood flooring adapts to the gym's climate, workers will begin laying it down in April and turn the concrete floor into a hardwood gym floor.

"The structure is pretty well done," said Leonard Bay, the project's site superintendent. "The finishing work is the next big push."

Classrooms, for example, still need floor coverings and ceiling tiles when the painting is finished. The floor covering work is expected to start this week.

The work is on schedule, said Dale Thornsberry, the district's facilities manager. The goal is for most of the furniture moving to take place between June and July, Thornsberry said.

He said he will give a presentation to the school board in April or May that shows where the district stands as far as the costs for the high school and the district's other construction projects.

In 2006, the cost of Canyon Ridge was estimated at about $37.6 million. Later, district officials estimated it could cost as much as $47 million, citing inflation and increased prices of construction materials.

"Nothing has changed in that regard," Thornsberry said of Canyon Ridge's estimated cost. "It didn't get any less, and it hasn't gotten any more."

Other projects within the district are:

- A multipurpose room at Morningside Elementary School is scheduled to be finished by April. The project still needs flooring and outside landscaping.

- The multipurpose room at Harrison Elementary School is scheduled to be finished by May 1. The remaining work includes windows and doors.

- The Twin Falls High School west entrance remodeling is underway, and set for completion by Aug. 1. Block walls are finished and inside work is still needed before the project will be complete.

Cheney: Obama detainee policies make U.S. less safe

By Douglass K. Daniel
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — Former Vice President Dick Cheney said Sunday that Americans are less safe now that President Barack Obama has overturned Bush terrorism-fighting policies and that nearly all the Republican administration's goals in Iraq have been achieved.

"There is no prospect" that Iraq will return to producing weapons of mass destruction or supporting terrorists, Cheney asserted, "as long as it's a democratically governed country, as long as they have got the security forces they do now and a relationship with the United States."

Fulfilling campaign pledges, Obama has suspended military trials for suspected terrorists and announced he will close the U.S. detention facility at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, as well as overseas sites where the CIA has held some detainees. The president

Grocers want price cuts from food makers

Food makers: we're still catching up with last year's record costs

By Emily Fredrix and Sarah Skidmore
Associated Press writers

Retailers, who begrudgingly went along when food makers pushed up prices to recoup record-high costs, are flexing newfound muscle and demanding price cuts to match the recent steep retreat in ingredient costs.

Food makers are resisting, saying the uncertain economy and volatile costs make price cuts unwise. But retailers aren't backing down.

Consumers — who responded to the higher prices by favoring grocers' in-house products over national brands and by shopping more at discounters — may end up with

HOW STORES, FOOD MAKERS COMPETE ON RETAIL PRICES

The Associated Press

THE TENSION: Retailers — seeing their customers pulling back on spending — want food makers to drop their prices on name brand foods now that their ingredient costs have retreated from record highs.

THE MUSCLE: Sales of in-house brands are rising as consumers cut costs, and that's giving grocers power in their negotiations, since their competition with food companies is growing.

THE RESPONSE: Food makers say that, although ingredient costs have dropped, they're still high. And the costs are unpredictable, so it wouldn't be prudent to drop prices. But they're working with retailers to hold promotions to provide some temporary cutbacks.

Moderate Democrats in Congress win clout

By Julie Hirschfeld Davis
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — Moderate Democrats in Congress who built their ranks in November's elections are nudging their party's liberal agenda to the center, working to add a pro-business dose of pragmatism to President Barack Obama's plans to rescue homeowners, overhaul health care and revamp energy policy.

and a keen understanding of how markets work, these Democrats have taken an increasingly influential and visible role in debates over federal spending and housing. They also have powerful allies in the White House. Obama told the House's band of New Democrats during a meeting last week that he considered himself one of them, according to several attendees. His chief of staff, former Rep. Rahm Emanuel, is one of their most prominent alumni.

Among recent signs of their clout:

- The 68-member New Democrat Coalition temporarily sidelined a measure to let bankruptcy judges rewrite mortgages. They held out for limits on court-ordered easing of mortgages, a move lenders were demanding.

- A few centrist Senate Democrats helped slow passage of a $410 billion spending bill because of its cost.

"This is a healthy reprise (of) what we had in the Clinton administration. We were go-to people on the pro-growth area and on balancing the budget, and on making sure that we were competitive in the trade environment," said California Rep. Ellen O. Tauscher, head of the New Democrats. "We've got members strategically placed throughout all the big committees. ... We can really deliver votes."

fewer choices all around. "We don't have to carry three brands," Costco Wholesale Corp.'s Chief Financial Officer Richard Galanti told investors earlier this month. "We can choose between brands that are going to be more aggressive, that help us help our members."

Costco has been lowering its prices, Galanti said, and is prepared to sacrifice profit margins and cut national brands that won't negotiate on pricing — if that's what it takes to drive sales.

"We are not the only ones out there pressuring manufacturers," he said.

Steven Burd, president of grocery chain Safeway Inc., recently told investors that it has gotten some vendors to roll back their prices. Like many retailers, it is finding its new strength in its in-house brands, including Safeway Select, O organics and Primo Taglio deli products.

"We're going to chew them up on corporate brands," Burd said of food makers that don't lower prices. "And we're just going to keep driving corporate brands."

The situation grew so tense last month that grocer Delhaize SA in Belgium said it would no longer stock at least 250 Unilever products because the food maker was making "unprecedented" demands that would force retail prices up 30 percent.

The grocer, which operates Food Lion and Sweetbay stores in the U.S., said Unilever also was demanding it carry some products consumers did not want.

The two companies apparently reached an agreement this month, though the terms are unclear.

Food makers, which raised prices last year after fuel and some ingredient costs hit record highs in the summer, are leery of dropping their prices in case commodity costs come back up and pinch their profit margins. They say they're still catching up with last year's costs, even as they confront tougher competition from the retailers they rely on to sell their products.

Producers are making some changes that can provide relief to both consumers and retailers, said Frank Luby, a partner with Simon-Kucher and Partners who consults with companies on pricing.

Some are changing package sizes, often shrinking them while keeping prices steady so shoppers don't pay more to remain with their favorite brands.

But this tactic can make them targets of their competitors — as ice cream maker Haagen-Dazs learned when it announced recently that it will shrink some of its containers. Rival Ben & Jerry's, owned by Unilever, said on its Web site — without naming Haagen-Dazs outright — that consumers are hurting just like food makers and they deserve a full pint of ice cream, not just 14 ounces.

Another change food companies are making is to focus promotions — which they negotiate with grocers — on staples like dairy, cereal and soup, BMO Capital Markets analyst Kenneth Zaslow has said.

Bernanke: recession could end this year

WASHINGTON (AP) — America's recession "probably" will end this year if the government succeeds in bolstering the banking system, Federal Reserve Chairman Ben Bernanke said Sunday in a rare television interview.

In carefully hedged remarks in a taped interview with CBS' "60 Minutes," Bernanke seemed to express a bit more optimism that this could be done.

Still, Bernanke stressed — as he did to Congress last month — that the prospects for the recession ending this year and a recovery taking root next year hinge on a difficult task: getting banks to lend more freely again and getting the financial markets to work more normally.

"We've seen some progress in the financial

"We've seen some progress in the financial markets, absolutely. But until we get that stabilized and working normally, we're not going to see recovery."

— Federal Reserve Chairman Ben Bernanke

markets, absolutely," Bernanke said. "But until we get that stabilized and working normally, we're not going to see recovery."

"But we do have a plan. We're working on it. And, I do think that we will get it stabilized, and we'll see the recession coming to an end probably this year."

Even if the recession, which began in December 2007, ends this year, the unemployment rate will keep climbing past the current quarter-century high of 8.1 percent, Bernanke said.

A growing number of economists think the jobless rate will hit 10 percent by the end of this year.

Asked about the biggest potential dangers now, Bernanke suggested a lack of "political will" to solve the financial crisis.

He said, though, that the United States has averted the risk of plunging into a depression.

"I think we've gotten past that," he said.

It's rare for a sitting Fed chief to grant an interview, whether for broadcast or print. Bernanke said he chose to do so because it's an "extraordinary time" for the country, and it gave him a chance to speak directly to the American public. (A transcript of the interview was provided in advance of the broadcast.)

Bernanke spoke at a time of rising public anger over financial bailouts using taxpayer money. Battling the worst financial crisis since the 1930s, the government has put hundreds of billions of those dollars at risk to prop up troubled institutions and stabilize the banking system.

Institutions that have been thrown lifelines include American International Group Inc., Citigroup Inc., Bank of America Corp., mortgage giants Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac and others.

Cheney

waterboarding, part of the Bush program of enhanced interrogation, as torture.

Asked on CNN's "State of the Union" if he thought Obama has made Americans less safe with those actions, Cheney replied, "I do."

"I think those programs were absolutely essential to the success we enjoyed of being able to collect the intelligence that let us defeat all further attempts to launch attacks against the United States since 9/11," Cheney said.

"I think that's a great success story. It was done legally. It was done in accordance with our constitutional practices and principles," he said. "President Obama campaigned against it all across the country. And now he is making some choices that, in my mind, will, in fact, raise the risk to the American people of another attack."

Some Democratic lawmakers and other administration critics have denounced those and other Bush programs, such as warrantless surveillance, as counterproductive and illegal. In defending these policies established by President George W. Bush following the attacks of Sept. 11, 2001, Cheney said he had seen a report itemizing specific attacks that had been stopped because of the intelligence gathered through those programs.

"It's still classified. I can't give you the details of it without violating classification, but I can say there were a great many of them," he said.

Cheney said the U.S.-led invasion on March 19, 2003 (March 20, Iraq time) has led to democratic elections, a constitution and the defeat of al-Qaida in Iraq, and undermined Iran's efforts to influence events in Iraq.

"We have succeeded in creating in the heart of the Middle East a democratically governed Iraq, and that is a big deal, and it is, in fact, what we set out to do," he said.

Asked if he was declaring "mission accomplished" — those words graced a banner aboard the USS Abraham Lincoln that heralded Bush's overly optimistic declaration on May 1, 2003, that major combat operations had ended in Iraq — Cheney replied: "I wouldn't use that, just because it triggers reactions that we don't need."

He added: "But I would ask people — and the press, too — to take an honest look at the circumstances in Iraq today and how far we've come."

In a wide-ranging interview, Cheney also:

● Agreed that Obama had inherited "difficult" economic circumstances but rejected efforts to blame the Bush administration.

"We are in the midst of a worldwide economic period of considerable difficulty here," he said. "It doesn't do just to go back and say, 'Well, George Bush was president and that is why everything is screwed up,' because that is simply not true."

● Contended that Rep. Barney Frank of Massachusetts and Sen. Chris Dodd of Connecticut, Democrats with top positions on congressional banking committees, blocked Bush administration efforts to reform lenders Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac. "I think the collapse of those two institutions, as much as anything, contributed to the financial difficulties we've been living with since," he said.

● Worried that Obama was using the economic crisis "to justify a massive expansion in the government and much more authority for the government over the private sector, and I don't think that's good."

Wood River Valley group encouraging students to walk

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

HAILEY — Those hoping to create a healthier student body in Blaine County's schools by encouraging students to bike or walk to school are running into barriers — the students' loving parents.

Parents who drive their kids to school are creating increased traffic in school zones, contributing to the safety issues many parents cite as reasons against allowing their children to walk to school, one area resident says.

"Ninety percent of the cars at Hailey Elementary are parents dropping off their kids," said Jim Finch, who is coordinating Mountain Rides Safe Routes to School program. "We create our own barrier."

Finch said his staff has counted as many as 200 cars at a single elementary school. He's taken pictures of cars going the wrong way on roads and even parking the wrong way.

He'd like to find a way to limit the number of parents dropping their children off at Hailey Elementary School to 75 or less per day.

"There should be disincentives for dropping your child off at the front door of the school. Or you should pay for the privilege," Finch said. "Other schools around the country have managed to limit the number of parents dropping their children off to 50 cars or less."

Finch's proposal has reached the ears of the Blaine County School Board Chairman Alex Sundali.

"I think we should charge money for everyone to drive their child to school," she said. "It's amazing what charging money will do."

That proposal coming to fruition may be a long way off but bike education classes for both students and their parents are in the works, as is a valleywide contest promoting biking and walking. Bike and pedestrian safety training will be offered at area schools from the end of March through early April, while a number of other bike-related events are also approaching.

Blaine County School Superintendent Jim Lewis noted several infrastructure improvements have been made in the past year to make it easier for children to walk or bicycle to school, including a new crossing light on Warm Springs Road in Ketchum.

Sidewalks along Elm Street near Hailey Elementary are scheduled for construction this spring. And the city of Hailey has been awarded $71,500 for a Woodside Elementary Connector in fiscal year 2009.

Even new sidewalks are not helpful, however, if they are not kept free of snow, Finch said.

Finch added that he is enlisting parents, faculty and students to design a Safe Routes Travel Plan for Wood River Middle School.

Kimberly schools tout recent successes, discuss distance learning program

By Jeremy Roberts
Times-News reporter

Kimberly School District Board Directors met Thursday to discuss recent student achievements, along with the districts distance learning program.

District teacher Denice Mumm reported on recent student-involved outreach projects, highlighting two that stood out. Students Erica Williams, Nicole Allen, and Katie Robinson, began a project to benefit Pennies for Peace, which provides community-based education for children in Pakistan and Afghanistan and is overseen by the Central Asia Institute.

As a contribution to the program, students Whitney Erickson and Jackie Hunt started a bake sale at one of the boy's basketball tournaments.

Tournament directors also contributed, by changing its charge for a halftime free-throw shoot fundraiser of $1 per free throw to a penny per free throw, Mumm said. These combined fundraisers brought in a total of $1,227.34, which will fully fund one school to be established by the CAI, Mumm said.

When asked about her thoughts on the program, Mumm stated it was "a wonderful experience for the kids to find out that they could help someone else."

Kimberly High School was commended for its conduct at the 2009 Class 3A boy's state basketball tournament. The Idaho High School Activities Association awarded Kimberly with the 3A sportsmanship award, which was judged on a basis on behavior displayed by the team and coach, the cheerleading squad, school administrators, and anyone who was in the team's cheering section.

Kimberly High School Principal Luke Schroeder said, "I think it shows the character of not only our school, but also our community. It's not just a school award, it's a community award"

Wheelchair-bound students in the district will now be able to graduate with the rest of their class, as Starr Corporation of Twin Falls is donating a ramp to make the school's stage wheelchair accessible.

A distance learning program was discussed. It is an after-school program offered for students that "want to take a course that they had failed, to get ahead, or take a course that they can't fit into their schedule," according to District Superintendent Kathleen Noh. The classes offered will be correspondence courses from designated schools, and online courses offered through the Idaho Digital Learning Academy.

Academic awards will also be recognized on May 21. The awards ceremony will be in conjunction with an open house at 3:30 p.m. Teachers and parents are encouraged to attend.

too, forcing Democratic leaders to bow to their demands. They demonstrated that two weeks ago when House leaders canceled votes on the bankruptcy loan modification bill, which Obama backs, because of concerns among the moderates about how it could affect homeowners struggling to make their monthly payments.

The measure got back on track and passed only after the New Democrats won changes that could make it more difficult to qualify for a loan rewrite in bankruptcy.

In the process, the moderates took heat from liberal activists who called them "corporatists" working on behalf of banking lobbyists instead of their constituents.

Tauscher, a former Wall Street investment banker, said she hasn't met with a banking lobbyist in months. But she makes no apologies for her relationships with the business sector, which she notes employs her constituents. New Democrats' ability to work with industry to find a middle ground on major issues is important now, she argued, given the wave of crises that has shaken the public's confidence.

"Those that are advocating for purity in ideology or as a test for who's a good Democrat are going to have their heart broken. They're also not going to get anything done," Tauscher said.

Business interests are pleased to see the moderates gaining greater prominence. Fearing a rush by Obama and a strengthened Democratic congressional majority to impose burdensome new policies with little regard for how they might affect companies' bottom lines, their lobbyists say centrists can broker compromises.

"A number of the New Democrats have a Ph.D. in the art of the doable," said Jeff Peck, a top financial services lobbyist. "The more severe the crisis, the greater the desire and need for people off the Hill to find members who actually want to get stuff done, and the New Democrats have a well-deserved reputation for doing that."

In the Senate, a more loosely affiliated group of Democratic centrists led by Sens. Evan Bayh of Indiana, Tom Carper of Delaware and Blanche Lincoln of Arkansas plans to launch its own coalition in the coming weeks. The group of about 15 could be a critical voting bloc as Senate Democratic leaders, with a 58-41 working majority that includes two independents, search for the elusive 60 votes necessary to advance most legislation beyond the minefield of procedural hurdles.

"Our group is not to be a counterweight to anyone or to obstruct anything. On the contrary, our group is to get things done."

"Our group is not to be a counterweight to anyone or to obstruct anything. On the contrary, our group is to get things done," Bayh said. "You've got to get to 60 votes in the Senate most of the time, and our group will be a key to making that happen."

In the House, New Democrats aim to play a leading role on expanding international trade and overhauling health care and energy policy. Already, they have been active pushing technology initiatives embraced by Obama, including funding the creation of a "smart," energy-efficient electricity grid and new incentives to switch doctors to electronic record-keeping.

They recently released a detailed set of principles for modernizing financial regulations following last year's meltdown. Their task force on the issue is led by Rep. Melissa Bean, D-Ill., who has the ear of the House Financial Services Committee's liberal chairman, Rep. Barney Frank, D-Mass. Rep. Jim Himes, D-

Conn., a former executive at the investment bank Goldman Sachs, is also heavily involved.

"We're very connected to the business community and very much appreciate the importance of their success to our overall economic recovery. We are trying to champion their issues and concerns," Bean said. "We're going to be at the table and we're going to assert ourselves when we think it's important."

WASHINGTON

White House says economy is 'sound' despite mess

The economy is fundamentally sound despite the temporary "mess" it's in, the White House said Sunday in the kind of upbeat assessment that Barack Obama had mocked as a presidential candidate.

Obama's Democratic allies pleaded for patience with an administration hitting the two-month mark this week, while Republicans said the White House's plans ignore small business and the immediate need to fix what ails the economy. After weeks projecting a dismal outlook on the economy, administration officials — led by the president himself in recent days — swung their rhetoric toward optimism in what became Wall Street's best stretch since November.

During the fall campaign, Obama relentlessly criticized his Republican opponent, Sen. John McCain, for declaring, "The fundamentals of our economy are strong." Obama's team painted the veteran senator as out of touch and failing to grasp the challenges facing the country.

But on Sunday, that optimistic message came from economic adviser Christina Romer. When asked during an appearance on NBC's "Meet the Press" if the fundamentals of the economy were sound, she replied: "Of course they are sound."

"The fundamentals are sound in the sense that the American workers are sound, we have a good capital stock, we have good technology," she said. "We know that — that temporarily we're in a mess, right? We've seen huge job loss, we've seen very large falls in GDP. So certainly in the short run we're in a — in a bad situation?"

Bomb kills 4 U.S. soldiers as Afghan clashes spike

KABUL — A roadside bomb killed four American soldiers in eastern Afghanistan on Sunday — new evidence of rising violence in a region where clashes and attacks in the first two months of 2009 more than doubled from the same period a year ago.

The spike in violence along the border is an early indication that roadside bombs and other ambushes are likely to surge as thousands of new U.S. forces arrive in Afghanistan this year.

Brig. Gen. Richard Blanchette, a spokesman for the NATO-led force here, confirmed that a roadside bomb killed four U.S. troops in eastern Afghanistan. A U.S. statement indicated the troops were based in Jalalabad.

A suicide bomber, meanwhile, attacked a NATO convoy in Kabul on Sunday but instead killed two passers-by — among 18 people killed Sunday, officials said.

Clashes and attacks in the eastern province of Kunar surged 131 percent in January and February from the same period in 2008, said Lt. Col. Rumi Nielson-Green, a U.S. spokeswoman.

Official: Pakistan to restore chief justice

ISLAMABAD — Pakistan agreed today to reinstate a fired chief justice, a government official said, a move that could help defuse a political crisis that has sparked street battles and raised fears of instability in the country at a time of surging Islamist violence.

Opposition leaders and lawyers had vowed to sit-in at the parliament today until Iftikhar Mohammad Chaudhry, known for his independence and willingness to challenge authority, was reinstated. The capital has been barricaded and scores of extra police brought in amid fears of violence.

A senior government official said Chaudhry would be sworn in on March 22, the day after the current chief justice was due to retire. He spoke on condition of anonymity because the prime minister was due formally announce the decision later today.

The concession came as thousands of protesters led by Nawaz Sharif, the head of the largest opposition party and a longtime foe of President Asif Ali Zardari, were traveling to Islamabad in a convoy to join the planned sit-in.

Party spokesman Pervaiz Rasheed said it had received confirmation of the government's decision to restore Chaudhry from "its messengers" and said Sharif would address supporters after Gilani's address, following which the convoy would return to Lahore.

FLORIDA
Police: Man kills 4 at family gathering in Miami before shooting himself

MIAMI — A man barged into a birthday party early Sunday, shot his estranged wife and three other people to death, then went home, set his truck and house on fire and killed himself, police said.

Witnesses described a chaotic scene that started when the man showed up uninvited at the party and told about a dozen people there that he blamed them for his wife leaving him, said homicide detective Ervens Ford.

Then he opened fire. Some took cover while others, including a pregnant woman, ran into the street.

"It was chaotic," Ford said. "I can't imagine what it was like in there."

The man also killed his 51-year-old wife's mother and daughter, along with her daughter's boyfriend, whose birthday they were celebrating, Ford said.

Passenger on Frankfurt-to-Detroit flight had TB

ROMULUS, Mich. (AP) — The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention says a passenger on a Northwest Airlines flight from Frankfurt, Germany, to Detroit has been diagnosed with tuberculosis.

Northwest says the passenger was on Tuesday's Flight 51 to Detroit Metropolitan Airport.

CDC spokeswoman Shelly Diaz tells The Associated Press the risk is low that other passengers might contract tuberculosis. She said Sunday that health officials were seeking to contact 17 passengers seated near the sick passenger so they can be tested for tuberculosis as a "cautionary move."

Northwest Airlines was acquired last year by Atlanta-based Delta Air Lines Inc.

Diaz says details about the sick passenger weren't being released.

Former TFHS and CSI player concludes college career

Amy Bratvold has set the standard for area girls basketball players: she excelled as a fixture of the Twin Falls High School program, became an off-and-on starter for the College of Southern Idaho women's team and then a Division I player for the Eastern Washington University Eagles.

Following her final game as a Golden Eagle in 2007, CSI head coach Randy Rogers said, "(Bratvold) shows that local kids can play. Her legacy is that it can happen."

Bratvold, who is majoring in exercise science and looks forward to a career as a physical therapist, ended her college basketball career on March 7 when Eastern Washington dropped its final game and failed to make the Big Sky Conference tournament. She took a few minutes this

Times-News: Overall — CSI and Eastern Washington — how would you describe your college career?

Amy Bratvold: I'm glad I went to a junior college first, and then stepped up to Division I. I enjoyed playing at CSI and being at home and around family. Also, it was good to grow up and get away and play D-I and play with better athletes. My grandparents live in Coeur d'Alene, which is 45 minutes away, and I have family in Sacramento, so a lot of family came to games. It was really important to me.

T-N: Was it difficult to remain enthusiastic about playing Division I when playing for a struggling team after enjoying success at CSI?

Cardinals, Panthers, Heels, Huskies earn top seeds

By Eddie Pells
Associated Press writer

The Big East put up a big number Sunday: Three No. 1 seeds in the NCAA tournament.

Louisville, Pittsburgh and Connecticut helped the Big East, a group originally created for basketball only, become the first conference to put three teams on the top line. North Carolina, the regular-season Atlantic Coast Conference champion, was the other top seed.

Louisville was the top overall seed in the tournament and will play in the Midwest. The Cardinals will open against the winner of an opening-round game Tuesday between Alabama State and Morehead State.

The rest of the tournament starts Thursday and Friday. The Final Four is scheduled for Ford Field in Detroit on April 4 and 6.

Mickelson wins Doral

By Doug Ferguson
Associated Press writer

DORAL, Fla. — No longer the best player without a World Golf Championship, Phil Mickelson won a spirited duel at Doral on Sunday to win the CA Championship and put himself in position to reach No. 1 in the world.

Mickelson, taken to a hospital on the eve of the final round with heat exhaustion and dehydration, survived seven lead changes in 11 holes against Nick Watney before hanging on with seven pars for a 3-under 69 and a one-shot victory.

Mickelson won for the second time in four weeks and moved to No. 2 in the world ranking, as close to Tiger Woods as he has ever been. Depending on how Woods fares at Bay Hill, Mickelson might have a chance to go to No. 1 when he plays again.

Winning this tournament was all that mattered. Four years ago, Mickelson lost a two-shot lead against Woods in a duel that ranks among the best ever at Doral. He didn't get his revenge against the world's No. 1 player, but Watney gave him all he could handle.

FORSMAN WINS AT&T CHAMPIONS CLASSIC

SANTA CLARITA, Calif. — Dan Forsman won the AT&T Champions Classic on Sunday for his first victory in 12 Champions Tour stars, overcoming a five-stroke deficit in regulation and beating Don Pooley with a birdie on the first extra hole.

"I'm at a loss for words right now," said the 50-year-old Forsman, a five-time winner on the PGA Tour. "It means so much to win on the Champions Tour."

Forsman, five strokes behind Joey Sindelar entering the round, shot a 6-under 66 — the best round of the day — to match Pooley (70) at 11-under 205 on the Valencia Country Club course. Forsman earned $240,000.

Team USA beats Netherlands 9-3

MIAMI — Baseball looked more like America's national pastime Sunday night.

Team USA avoided elimination from the World Baseball Classic, beating the Netherlands 9-3 to ease the sting of a drubbing endured against Puerto Rico the night before.

Jimmy Rollins drove in four runs with a homer, triple and sacrifice fly, and Team USA newcomer Brian Roberts went 3-for-3 with two walks, two runs and two RBIs. Roy Oswalt pitched four scoreless innings, then six relievers completed a 12-hitter.

Even with a six-run lead in the eighth, the Americans remained feisty. Matt Lindstrom gave up a leadoff homer to Bryan Engelhardt, who took a long look at his prodigious drive before jogging around the bases. When Lindstrom's next pitch sailed behind Vince Rooi, Dutch players took several steps onto the field as they yelled angrily at the pitcher.

JAPAN 10, CUBA 6

SAN DIEGO — Dice-K is more than OK with the World Baseball Classic — and Petco Park.

Pitching in the same ballpark where he led Japan to the inaugural WBC title three years ago, Boston Red Sox ace Daisuke Matsuzaka was brilliant in silencing Cuba's previously undefeated big boppers, leading Japan to a 6-0 win in the second round on Sunday.

Matsuzaka improved to 5-0 in five WBC starts.

Purdue beats Ohio St. for Big Ten title

INDIANAPOLIS — Purdue finally lived up to its billing. The Boilermakers, the preseason favorites in the Big Ten, fell to a No. 3 seed in the conference tournament by losing three of their final four regular season games. They found their groove at Consecration Fieldhouse. E'Twaun Moore scored 14 of his 17 points in the second half, and No. 24 Purdue rallied to beat Ohio State 65-61 on Sunday for its first Big Ten tournament title. Moore made 4 of 8 3-pointers in the second half. "My teammates did a good job of distributing and finding the openings," he said. "I just got a few open looks. Once I got the first one (3-pointer), that gave me a little confidence." JaJuan Johnson scored 16 points, and Robbie Hummel added nine points, 11 rebounds and five assists.

BULLDOGS DANCING! MSU UPSETS VOLS 64-61, WINS SEC

TAMPA, Fla. — When Mississippi State finished its surprising run through the Southeastern Conference tournament, Twany Beckham grabbed an SEC sign and hoisted it high above his head. One problem: It was upside-down, which may have been fitting considering it was the Bulldogs celebrating the league title and an automatic berth in the NCAA tournament, not regular-season winner LSU, co-East Division champion Tennessee or perennial powerhouse Kentucky.

"The only thing I know is we don't have to sit here and worry about being on a bubble," Mississippi State coach Rick Stansbury said. "We busted that bubble. That's all that matters."

DUKE BEATS FLORIDA ST. 79-69, WINS ACC TOURNAMENT

ATLANTA — A year ago, as they walked off the court after another early exit from the NCAA tournament, Jon Scheyer and Gerald Henderson made sure to soak it all in. They didn't want to forget how much it hurt. They didn't want to forget how it felt to be denied a championship. On Sunday, they finally got their title. Led by its two junior stars, No. 9 Duke swamped upstart Florida State with a barrage of 3-pointers on the way to a 79-69 victory in the Atlantic Coast Conference championship game, giving the Blue Devils their eighth ACC crown in 11 years.

Bryant, balanced Lakers beat Mavericks

LOS ANGELES — Kobe Bryant scored 28 points, Trevor Ariza had a career-high 26, and the Los Angeles Lakers squandered a big lead before taking control late in a 107-100 victory over the Dallas Mavericks on Sunday. Pau Gasol added 25 for the Lakers, who are battling Cleveland for the NBA's best record and are already the Pacific Division champs. They could meet the Mavericks in the first round of the playoffs.

BUCKS 86, CELTICS 77
 MILWAUKEE — Charlie Villanueva scored 11 of his 19 points in the fourth quarter, and Milwaukee held off Boston. Kendrick Perkins scored a career-high 26 points with 12 rebounds, but had little help from anybody else as Milwaukee denied the defending champions a chance to clinch their second straight Atlantic Division crown. Paul Pierce had 15 points.

CAVALIERS 98, KNICKS 93
 CLEVELAND — Mo Williams scored 23 points, LeBron James added 19 and Cleveland opened a crucial stretch of home games by beating New York. The Cavaliers didn't put the Knicks away until the final minutes and improved the NBA's best home record to 29-1. Cleveland, battling Boston for the best mark in the Eastern Conference and home-court advantage in the postseason, will play seven of its next eight games at Quicken Loans Arena.

MAGIC 105, JAZZ 87
 ORLANDO, Fla. — Dwight Howard had 28 points and 20 rebounds, leading Orlando over weary Utah for its third straight victory.

76ERS 85, HEAT 77
 PHILADELPHIA — Andre Iguodala scored 21 points, seldom-used Donyell Marshall got his 10 points in the fourth quarter and Philadelphia beat Miami. Dwyane Wade, coming off a 50-point performance in a triple-overtime victory over Utah on Saturday, was held to 18. The NBA's leading scorer looked tired after playing a career-high 52½ minutes against the Jazz. He shot 8-for-21 in 34½ minutes.

HAWKS 98, TRAIL BLAZERS 80
 ATLANTA — Joe Johnson scored 35 points, Josh Smith had 19 points and eight rebounds, and Atlanta beat Portland for its fifth consecutive victory.

GRIZZLIES 89, PISTONS 84
 AUBURN HILLS, Mich. — Mike Conley scored 20 points and Darko Milicic added a double-double against his former team as Memphis ended a seven-game losing streak to Detroit.

RAPTORS 110, PACERS 87
 TORONTO — Andrea Bargnani scored 27 points, Chris Bosh had 15 points and 13 rebounds, and Toronto used a big second half to beat Indiana and snap a seven-game losing streak.

were successful and then at CSI. ... We had a lot of struggles these past two years. But I grew as a person and learned a lot about coming through adversity. Last year, we didn't do so good, but this year we did really well and almost made the tournament. We were showing up, working hard and getting better every day. The coaches kept believing and the team stuck together during some hard times. We struggled on the court, but we were there as a team and enjoyed each other's company.

T-N: What will you remember most about college basketball?
AB: I really miss playing at CSI. The community is really involved, and having family there and friends ... I miss that overall college experience. Here at Eastern, we had some crazy road trips. We were delayed on flights or the bus got snowed in — just crazy road trips. We'd be stuck on a bus all day, but still playing games and having fun.

T-N: What does life after college hold for you?
AB: I've gone back and forth. This is my plan right now: I graduate in the summer, then I'm going to Oklahoma to become a graduate assistant to my old coach at Eastern (Tom Webb). Tera Tremayne is on the team there. I enjoyed playing for coach Webb, and I'm looking forward to that opportunity.

Carolina in the South and UConn in the West, the region the Huskies were in when they won their championships in 1999 and 2004.

Of the four top seeds, coach Rick Pitino's Cardinals were the only team to win their conference tournament. Louisville entered the Big East conference tournament as the top seed, though Pitt and UConn were more highly regarded throughout the regular season, each spending time at No. 1 in The Associated Press poll.

But there was a lot of switching in the top spot this season — it changed hands seven times, to be exact — so it was no surprise there would be some debate about the No. 1 seeds. For instance, Duke wound up a second seed despite winning the ACC tournament, beating the Florida State team the Tar Heels had lost to the day before; and North Carolina swept Duke.

Meanwhile, Memphis (31-3) got snubbed, taking the second seed in the West despite a 25-game winning streak. The Tigers are often downgraded for playing in the less-than-stellar Conference USA, but John Calipari's team proved people wrong last year, making it to the national title game.

"If we're a 1, we're a 1; if we're a 2, we're a 2. We just want to play," Calipari said before the bracket came out.

In the West, it's Memphis vs. Cal State-Northridge; Missouri vs. Cornell; Washington vs. Mississippi State; Purdue vs. Northern Iowa; Marquette vs. Utah State; California vs. Maryland; BYU vs.

Texas A&M.

Last year's national champion, Kansas, is almost completely revamped this year and was seeded third in the Midwest with an opening game against North Dakota State.

Arizona extended its string of tournament appearances to a quarter century, and the 25th bid will be among the most debated. The Wildcats were thought by many to be off the bubble after an early loss to Arizona State in the Pac-10 tournament, but made it as 12th seed in the Midwest.

In the Midwest, No. 2 seed Michigan State will face No. 15 seed Robert Morris. In other games: Kansas vs. N. Dakota State; Wake Forest vs. Cleveland State; Utah vs. Arizona; West Virginia vs. Dayton; Boston College vs. Southern California; Ohio State vs. Siena.

The Twin Falls High School softball team finished their tournament in St. George Utah 3-2 on Saturday afternoon.

They lost a close game with Foothills, then came back and won their second game against Snow Canyon. Killi McBride had a homerun in each game that helped the Bruins edge out Snow Canyon 4-3.

The test you need to take

“You don’t get symptoms with colon cancer until you’ve waited too long. The most common symptom is no symptom.”
— Dr. Seth Wheeler, a Twin Falls gastroenterologist

Cancer survivor Tom Malone of Murtaugh listens to grandchildren Ian Hanes, 7, and Colby Hanes, 9, as they show off their Game Boys and 7-year-old granddaughter Presley Malone snaps photos with her new camera Thursday. Turning 50? Don’t wait to get a colon screening

By Ariel Hansen
Times-News writer

It isn’t often that husbands thank their wives for pestering them to do something, but Tom Malone of Murtaugh is grateful his did.

“I turned 50 and my wife, bless her heart, she’s the one who pushed me into this,” Malone said. Not long after his birthday last fall, Malone went to get a colonoscopy, and the doctor gave him bad news. “When I heard cancer, I thought my life was done.”

But because he was screened early, Malone’s doctors gave him a good prognosis. He had a portion of his colon removed, got radiation and is almost finished with chemotherapy.

“We’re going to kick this cancer, I know that,” Malone said. “The doctor said I have a better chance of getting run over now than dying of cancer.”

Dr. Seth Wheeler, a Twin Falls board-certified gastroenterologist, said that if Malone had come in for his colonoscopy even earlier, he might have been able to

COLORECTAL CANCER IS A KILLER

Colorectal cancer is the second-leading cause of cancer deaths in Idaho, with 3,440 cases diagnosed in the state and 1,185 deaths from it between 2000 and 2005. Idaho ranks 46th among states for people age 50 and older having had a colonoscopy or sigmoidoscopy in the past five years. Lack of screening and infrequent screening lead to cases being diagnosed too late. AUBREY WATCH

In 2008, Aubrey Cheney of Gooding flew to California with her sister, Mandi Kramer of Boise, to compete in season seven of NBC’s “The Biggest Loser Couples.” The sisters are now on the Blue Team.

Last week’s episode: Individual team members weigh against members of the other team. Whichever team wins the most match-ups will come out on top. Aubrey goes head-to-head with Laura of the Black Team, while Mandi faces off with Sione.

Aubrey’s starting weight: 249 pounds
Weight lost this week: 2
Current weight: 200 pounds

Shortly after, the two teams face a relay challenge. The Black Team wins, but Aubrey gives them a run for their money. At the weigh-in, Aubrey beats Laura, but Mandi has gained two pounds, despite working her butt off the whole week.

The Blue Team loses the match-ups, forcing them to send a member home. Ron, Kristen and Cathy, who always vote as a block, decide to vote Mandi off.

Mandi, Aubrey and Laura decide to vote for Cathy, which will cause a tie and force the Black Team to decide whom to send home. When realizing the Black Team will send Aubrey home, though, Mandi breaks their arrangement and votes for Ron instead. Aubrey cries when she realizes that her sister is going home.

Good news, though: In the follow-up video, Mandi shows how smokin’ hot she looks now. Since going to the ranch, she has lost 84 pounds.

This week, the contestants leave the ranch for seven days to work out from home.

Watch Aubrey’s progress at 7 p.m. Tuesdays on NBC.

NEW YORK — Here's another bump in the landscape of economic meltdown: adult acne.

Stress is a leading cause of breakouts, and there's no shortage of that these days in the office of Oakland, Calif.-based Dr. Katie Rodan. Many of her clients are either in the financial field or have husbands who are.

Meanwhile, Manhattan dermatologist Dr. Cheryl Karcher is performing far fewer liposuctions or botox injections but is seeing more patients than ever. "They're all insurance patients for eczema, acne and warts — they're all another hit from the immune system," she says.

Karcher explains that the nervous system and hormone systems work together. "They are tightly intertwined and the nervous system is stimulated by stress. ... I am seeing more acne than you can believe."

A traffic jam or a spat with a significant other can set off a rise in cortisol that causes a breakout, but there isn't usually a collective mass of people experiencing a high-anxiety event like there is right now with the recession.

With a 16-year-old daughter to care for — and college to pay for — as well as elderly parents, Zondra Barricks says the economy weighs on her almost every day.

"My skin is a barometer of my emotional state," says Barricks, a patient of Rodan. "I am trying to take care of myself, behind the scenes I'm taking care of my skin. ... I have to cut back, but I don't want to look the raggedy way I'm feeling."

Dr. Kathy Fields points to a widely circulated Stanford University study from 2002 that found students had more severe acne during exam periods than other times of the year.

"When your cortisol levels go up — and we're having so many spikes during the day — that aggravates acne. Your cortisol levels go up more in one day than a cave-man had in one year," says Fields, a co-founder with Rodan of the anti-acne formula Proactiv.

Makeup — oil-free and noncomedogenic concealers — can be a quick fix without exasperating the problem. Rodan says mineral makeup is OK and some concealing products contain salicylic acid, which would at least mean that if some makeup is creeping into the pores, some medicine is going with it.

Still, it's easier to minimize acne if you get to it before it's fully developed, she says.

If you're not sleeping or if you find yourself picking at your skin even before a pimple appears, she says, you might be helping to trigger a breakout. Instead, use an anti-acne product and manage the stress.

"Try a yoga class," Rodan suggests. "If you're so stressed that

MEAGAN THOMPSON/Times-News

Cancer survivor Tom Malone says his first month after being diagnosed was a state of pure depression. His wife, Linda, encouraged him to be positive. 'If he was really in bad shape I told him they would've moved him to Salt Lake but they kept him around here,' she says.

Malone is now tested every year to make sure the cancer does not return.

Screen

primary relative — parent or sibling — who had the disease should start getting regular screenings when they are 10 years younger than the relative was when that cancer was diagnosed. Talk to your doctor if you have questions about when you should start being screened.

And it's not as bad as you've heard.

Sedation is used during most colonoscopies, Wheeler said, so most people don't even remember the procedure. And because the doctors who perform the tests do so many of them, patients can feel comfortable even in that intimate situation.

"Pride is a big factor for me, I don't want some stranger looking at my butt," Malone said with a laugh. "My doctor said, when you look at a hundred butts a day, they all get to looking the same."

Most important, Wheeler said, is to absolutely never wait until you have symptoms before seeking a screening.

"You don't get symptoms with colon cancer until you've waited too long," he said. "The most common symptom is no symptom."

Now that he's fought off his own colon cancer, Malone said he is telling everyone in his family to get colonoscopies too. Especially his kids: "I've told them when it comes their time, I'll pay for their screenings."

In the meantime, Malone is making a point to spend a lot more time with his grandkids. "My outlook on everyday life is different; I get up every morning and thank the Lord," he said. "I'm looking forward to each day to come."

New mom reluctantly uses workplace bathroom as a pumping station

DEAR ABBY: I am a new mom who works in a high-tech start-up company that does not provide a mother's room. I'm the first employee here to have a baby. The corporate plaza in which my office is located also doesn't provide one. Therefore, I must resort to using the restroom to pump my breast milk, which must be done every few hours.

Some of the women using the restroom have wondered aloud about the "weird noise" they hear, while others walk back and forth searching for the source of the "sound."

How should I respond to them? Using the restroom is not my choice, but it is the only option I have because I plan to breast-feed my baby for as long as I can.

- PRIVACY PLEASE IN SANTA CLARA, CALIF.

DEAR PRIVACY PLEASE: You're reacting as if pumping breast milk is something to be ashamed of. It isn't. While you may be the first woman at the company to have given birth, I guarantee you won't be the last. So start communicating with the other female co-workers. It might be in all of your best interests to bring this to the attention of your supervisor or your boss.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

And as to the "pacers" and "wonderers" in the restroom — try to understand that they are merely curious. Consider printing a sign you can tape to the door of the stall you occupy that reads: "Breast Pumping Station." It will stop the questions and save you from yelling out, "It's my breast pump!"

DEAR ABBY: I was a stay-at-home mom for many years and enrolled in college when my youngest entered kindergarten. I held various part-time (and later full-time) dead-end jobs to supplement my husband's income. It took 15 years, but I finally graduated with a B.A. in history, although I have since discovered there isn't much I can do with my degree.

After almost 30 years of marriage, my husband decided he wanted a divorce. I am now on my own and struggling to survive. I have no marketable skills, can't afford to attend school full-time because I must work in order to have benefits, and don't have the money to pay for more training without going into further debt. I don't know how I'll ever be self-supporting.

My current job pays $10 an hour, the benefits are good, but I don't really like my job or see myself ever earning a higher hourly wage. If it wasn't for alimony, I'd be even worse off, but that won't last forever. (I have three years left.)

I'm thankful that my kids are on their own and don't need my support, but they can't help me either. What options are there for someone in my situation?

- FRUSTRATED IN NORTH CAROLINA

DEAR FRUSTRATED: You are an educated, literate, mature college graduate. You could make some executive an excellent, competent personal assistant. Depending upon what the requirements are in your state, you might also be able to be a teacher's assistant in one of the schools.

Contact an employment agency and ask if it can give you a skill assessment. I am sure you could find a job where your attributes would be appreciated if you start looking.

IF MARCH 16 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY:

Life is like a huge present that you can keep unwrapping with surprises tucked inside between now and the end of August. People might come and go, but the insights and new perspectives you develop could alter your life permanently. Because your life will be enriched by contacts with a new assortment of people and ideas, you will grow and learn to be more open-minded.

In September through October, avoid making new commitments, taking out loans or risking investments. Next February true love is possible as other people in your life will be more dependable, and your appeal to others is at its highest point. Start any key initiative for business then, or commit to a relationship, and it is very likely to succeed.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Mind always conquers matter. Executive decisions can be made that turn tables. This is a good day to perform aggressive thinking; tackle problems that need hand-eye coordination or a swift resolution.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): If the shoe fits, wear it. You might be able to take important steps within the confines of an intimate relationship. You might find that your feelings are reciprocated if you make your move tonight.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Monday, March 16, the 75th day of 2009. There are 290 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On March 16, 1968, during the Vietnam War, the My Lai Massacre of Vietnamese civilians was carried out by U.S. Army troops; estimates of the death toll vary between 347 and 504. The same day, in Washington, D.C., Sen. Robert F. Kennedy of New York announced his candidacy for the Democratic presidential nomination.

On this date:
In A.D. 37, Roman emperor Tiberius died; he was succeeded by Caligula.

In 1751, James Madison, fourth president of the United States, was born in Port Conway, Va.

In 1802, President Thomas Jefferson signed a measure authorizing the establishment of the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, N.Y.

In 1915, the Federal Trade Commission began opera-

HOROSCOPE

Jeraldine Saunders

GEMINI (May 21-June 20):

Remain light on your feet. Ignore past problems. Jump into action and make decisions with aplomb. Be willing to negotiate a resolution of conflicting viewpoints without taking the subject too personally.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): A new contact might seem committed, but could turn out to be unpredictable in the end. Doubts evaporate later this evening when affection is on tap with a steady beau or existing special someone.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Rub the lamp the right way. The genie might pop out of the bottle and grant you a romantic wish. A new hookup may end up being "just a friend," but a significant other could be especially affectionate.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Listen for the sounds of silence. The shifting sands might alter a key personal relationship or a business situation. It might not be what is said, but what is left unsaid, that can create future problems.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): A relationship might fit you like a glove. If you are looking for love, you will find it in all the right places. Even the most self-absorbed person will not be able to resist your charms and enticements tonight.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Take what is offered. Someone close could be sizzling with desire, and you merely need to glance in the right direction. If you are looking for a romantic oasis, quench your thirst for love this evening.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Hook up with someone who is energetic. Much can be accomplished when everyone is enthusiastic to carry out a plan. Precious moments of shared feelings are easy to express later tonight.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Make the best of good timing. Your allure is magnified and you can mesmerize an appreciative audience. This is one of the best nights for whispering sweet nothings in someone's ear.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Dreams could veer toward the inspirational. A great deal of fun can be stirred by a small bit of imagination. Significant relationships might need some tender loving care; listen to your intuition.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Pretty is as pretty does. Someone might "do" something that is extremely helpful and appear in a much more favorable light even though you might initially consider their ideas or actions aggressive.

December 1991.

Ten years ago: The Dow Jones industrial average briefly topped the 10,000 level, reaching a high of 10,001.78 before retreating. The entire 20-member European Commission resigned following publication of a critical report on sloppy management and cronyism. The Nebraska Cornhuskers beat Chicago State 50-3 in an NCAA baseball game.

Five years ago: China declared victory in its fight against bird flu, saying it had "stamped out" all its known cases. Mitch Seavey won the Iditarod Trail Sled Dog Race in nine days, 12 hours, 20 minutes and 22 seconds.

One year ago: Protests spread from Tibet into three neighboring provinces; the Dalai Lama decried what he called the "cultural genocide" taking place in his homeland and called for an international investigation into China's crackdown on demonstrators. Actor Ivan Dixon died in Charlotte, N.C., at age 76.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE® Bobby Wolff

"None but the brave deserves the fair."

— John Dryden

To mark the the Spring Nationals now being held in Houston, I shall be using deals from last year's spring tournament, which was held in Detroit. You can follow the current tournament by reading the bulletins on the ACBL Web site at acbl.org, or watching live coverage toward the end of the week at bridgebase.com.

The best play that I encountered in the Mixed Pairs found me on the receiving end. I thought Michael Yuen and Angela Fenton did very well here.

My one-spade bid perhaps deserved a fate worse than it got. But given that the contract of three clubs would have produced an easy 150 for East-West, the defenders needed the third under-trick to get back to par.

Against three spades, West led the diamond queen, ducked all around, and led another diamond to East's king. Yuen made a very thoughtful shift to the heart eight, covered by the jack and queen. (Shifting to the heart 10 would not have made West's life easy.)

Now the heart ace was led, East playing the nine. Then Fenton played a club to the king, and East continued with the diamond ace and a fourth diamond. I ruffed high as Fenton pitched both her hearts. Now, as declarer, I had to guess spades at once, with no re-entry to my hand. Not surprisingly, I led low to dummy's spade eight, since the trumps were known to be 3-1. This resulted in down 150 — mission accomplished for the defenders.
