House panel clears URA reform bill

Bill passes 10-8 despite opposition from MV cities

By Jared S. Hopkins
Times-News writer

BOISE — A measure aimed at holding Idaho's urban renewal agencies more accountable narrowly cleared the House Revenue and Taxation Committee on Wednesday, overcoming opposing testimony from two Magic Valley city officials.

The bill, from Rep. Phil Hart, R-Athol, would require the state tax commission to review proposals for new and expanded urban renewal districts, as well as annual reports by the urban renewal agencies. It also mandates that any local taxing districts must approve a proposed revenue allocation area if their boundaries would overlap.

"It will serve the people of Idaho well if there were more eyes looking at these proposals and scrutinizing

The bill passed 10-8 after more than an hour of testimony, including opposition

Skies still shaking

More reports of 'skyquakes,' but no new answers

By Nate Poppino
Times-News writer

Magic Valley residents reported a fresh round of strange rumbling events Wednesday morning, leaving some still baffled about their source.

The incidents, sometimes known as "skyquakes," have been recorded across the country. One year ago, a string of them happened in the Magic Valley at 11:23 p.m. several evenings in a row. This month, they've been reported at all hours across south-central Idaho and northern Nevada — including 10 a.m. Wednesday morning.

Jim Kevan of Rupert said the morning event shook his entertainment center at home and lasted just a few seconds. He said he first thought it was his kids roughhousing.

"It sounded like somebody was running across the room just as loud as they could go, with their heels on the ground," he said.

Not everyone was surprised. From her home southwest of Castleford, Paula Jackson spoke of watching military aircraft drop flares on the nearby Juniper Butte bombing range, and of the occasional cracks in the sheet rock of her aging home.

"It's going on today," she said of the shaking. "It's just the Air Force."

As in the past, the general consensus was that the military was somehow responsible. In an e-mail on Sunday, Scott and Robyn Seigworth wrote that they noticed the events on three consecutive nights last week between 10:15 and 10:30 p.m. They've tracked the rumblings for a year or so, finding that they seem to coincide with full moons — possibly a sign that U.S. Air Force trainings are the cause.

Three Creek School caters to one student

By Ben Botkin
Times-News writer

ROGERSON — In her classroom at Three Creek School, 7-year-old Kodee Severe looked at a globe, searching for Ireland.

After Kodee found the country on the map, her teacher, Marilyn Boss, complimented the second-grader.

"You are such a smart kid,"

Boss said. "Way to go!"

No one else besides Kodee needed to learn about Ireland on Tuesday — St. Patrick's Day — at Three Creek School.

Kodee became the only student in November when a family moved, taking three of the school's four children away.

Three Creek School preserves remnants of what was once common in public education's earlier days — a one-room schoolhouse where a handful of children of various ages learn from one teacher. Since about 1900, Three Creek School has served youngsters in kindergarten through eighth grade, never growing larger than 18 students.

Fish and Game begins wolf hazing near Sun Valley

By Nate Poppino
Times-News writer

The Idaho Department of Fish and Game has officially begun hazing a pack of wolves hanging around Sun Valley in an attempt to steer them away from civilization.

Attempts to drive off the Phantom Hill pack began Tuesday when biologists spooked the wolves with a helicopter, said Regan Berkley, a regional wildlife biologist in the department's Magic Valley office. The work will continue over the next few days, prompted by the wolves' regional tour in search of elk.

"We want to make them think that humans are not someone they want to be too close to," Berkley said.

The wolves first showed up around the start of the month, drawing attention when schedules to reduce the need for overtime?"

Hicks said he expects the officers to return to work, but doesn't know when they may rejoin the force of 67 sworn officers.

"I have no estimates as to potential overtime costs," he said. "It is a priority to us to ensure that their physical and psychological needs are met before returning to work."

Holler's identity was officially released Wednesday morning, the day after his death in Room 2 of the motel at 447 Addison Ave. W. He was listed online until Wednesday as one of Twin Falls County's "most wanted" for a probation violation connected to a grand theft conviction.

Hicks said police went to the motel on a call about a suspect connected to a stolen van.

"As the officers began to confront the suspect within the room, he produced a handgun," Hicks said Wednesday in a press release. "That's when four officers pulled their weapons and fired. The suspect was hit and pronounced deceased at the scene."

Police say they don't know how many shots were fired or by whom.

A Birddog Bail Enforcement agent in Twin Falls called a tip in to police about Holler's whereabouts, said C.L. Jones, part-owner of the company.

"The tip came through our office about where he was," said Jones, adding police "breached" the motel room door and his colleague protected children outside.

"Dispatch asked him (the private bail agent) to stand by and observe and he had my permission to do that?"

Police are not commenting on any role Birddog Bail Enforcement may have had in the shooting.

A city fire truck was parked Wednesday outside Room 2 at the Dunes Motel until about noon to clean up, police said.

Neighbors at the motel said they heard about eight shots fired. A man staying in another room at the motel, Brent Howard, told the Times-News Tuesday night that his cousin was renting Room 2 and got a visit from Holler, who "packed a gun" there.

Reached Wednesday by phone, Holler's father, Randy Holler Sr. said his family is grieving, in contact with police, and declined further comment.

Authorities released the names of officers involved in the city's last officer-involved shooting two days after that fatality. The June 30, 2007, shooting at WinCo Foods by city police officers Ben Mittelstadt and Steve Benkula ended in the death of Logan Brizzee, 19, a suspected shoplifter who drew a loaded gun on the lawmen. They were both later cleared of criminal wrongdoing.

Idaho State Police are doing the criminal investigation into Tuesday's shooting and Ada County prosecutors will review their reports.

"The priority is getting the evidence collected," said ISP Capt. Kedrick Willis. "We want to make sure their (officers') needs are taken care of."

Holler's body was sent Wednesday for an autopsy.

Quakes

Brian Orban said officials found "nothing definitive" tying base activity to last week's incidents, even after checking with Hill Air Force Base in northern Utah. He confirmed that aircraft from the Idaho base flew in the Twin Falls vicinity at about 10 a.m. Wednesday morning, but said the exercise wasn't any different from what the jets normally do.

"The bottom line is that we're flying where we normally fly," he said, adding that military flight routes are painstakingly put together to avoid disturbing people.

The biggest earthquake recorded anywhere near the Magic Valley in the last week by the U.S. Geological Survey was a magnitude 3.8, centered 14 miles west of Elko, Nev., early Tuesday morning. Residents of Carlin, just 9 miles from the epicenter, told the Elko Daily Free Press that they didn't feel a thing from the quake.

Kurt Othberg, a research geologist with the Idaho Geological Survey, pondered that the events may be very tiny, shallow earthquakes. Asked about other theories, such as the rumblings being caused by the ground sagging over declining aquifers, Othberg said he'd heard of that concept. But he wasn't sure it applies to the hard lava rock of the Snake River Plain.

"We need more seismometers, is the truth," he said.

Three Creek

building is isolated in rural Twin Falls County.

When all is quiet at the school, sometimes the only sound is wind rustling across vast stretches of sagebrush and ranchland. In the land surrounding Three Creek School, cattle and elk outnumber schoolchildren by far. The closest town, Rogerson, is 36 miles away along a two-lane country road.

It's here at Three Creek School where proposed legislation that affects only a handful of tiny schools garners the most attention. The legislation would give the Idaho State Board of Education more flexibility in deciding whether to close school districts with an enrollment of less than five students. The bill would change the law's current language from "shall" to "may," giving the state board more discretion in closing districts.

Besides Three Creek, four other Idaho school districts with tiny enrollments are affected.

"Regardless of where they are at, they're entitled to an education," said Sen. Bert Brackett, R-Rogerson, a sponsor of the bill and a former student of Three Creek School himself.

The bill has passed the House and still needs a vote in the Senate.

Brackett said that the remote character of schools such as Three Creek School would create difficulties for students if a closure were to happen, especially during bad weather. Without the small schools, students would be forced to spend more time traveling to class, which isn't good for elementary children, he said.

Boss agrees. Shuttering Three Creek School and forcing students to ride a bus about an hour each way would leave them too tired to learn well when they reached school, she said.

"That one child is as important as 10 or 20," Boss said.

Kodee's classroom schedule is like that of other second-graders. Her class subjects include computer work, reading, math, English, and spelling, all of which she learns through one-on-one instruction from her teacher.

In the classroom, the two sit together at a small table where they work on lessons and eat lunch. Other times, Kodee sits at the only student desk in the room.

Besides one-on-one instruction, a small class size has other advantages such as field trips that would be cumbersome for large groups of students, Boss said. For example, Kodee saw a veterinarian do an operation, which is a profession she's interested in.

And she gets along with her teacher, too.

"Even though there's no one to play with, I've still got Mrs. Boss to play with," Kodee said.

With just one student, the teacher no longer gives a student of the month award.

But that will likely change.

This fall, two more students will join Kodee, bringing the school's size up to three.

Kodee's looking forward to that.

"I think it will be fun, mostly," she said.

Wolf

they attacked and killed a mountain lion in the Elkhorn area. From there, Berkley recounted, the wolves appeared a few days later along the East Fork of the Big Wood River before swinging southwest to the Greenhorn Gulch drainage.

On Tuesday, the helicopter found them up Independence Gulch and pushed them farther east, away from Idaho Highway 75, she said. Hazing efforts now will include the helicopter and noisy "cracker shells" fired by people on the ground. The animals aren't likely to be removed or killed by the federal government because they've stuck to their usual prey, elk.

The hazing might also be helped by the fact that the snow in the area is melting, the precursor to the elk's usual move into higher terrain. Biologists hope that the wolves will follow them.

"The timing of this is right on the edge," Berkley said. "We would expect the wolves to take the hint."

And that would help out uneasy homeowners not used to wolves in the area. Lesley Andrus, who lives on Greenhorn Gulch Road, said she hasn't seen any, but knew to watch out.

"You're conscious when you take your dog out for a walk," she said.

Marcee Graff with the Wood River Elk Trust II said she'd gone out with Stanley wolf advocate Lynne Stone a couple of times to see the wolves, as well as the occasional elk carcass.

She said the trust — which used to feed the elk every winter before a lawsuit stopped that — would like to see more high-ridge feeding occur, a move she said would keep both the elk and the wolves away from subdivisions.

Lower-elevation feedings can lead to situations like the current one, Berkley said. She warned homeowners not to approach wolves, and to continue to keep pets and livestock closer to home and under control.

Ben Frank sentencing set for March 26

District says board will review matter

By Laurie Welch
Times-News writer

A Minico High School teacher and coach found guilty of battery and unlawful entry by a Boise jury is slated to appear before a magistrate judge for sentencing at 9 a.m., March 26.

Benjamin Frank was found guilty of the misdemeanor charges in 4th District Ada County Court March 5 by a jury after standing trial on a felony attempted strangulation charge stemming from an incident at Jacobi Patterson's Boise home on Feb. 22, 2008.

The Ada County jury found Frank not guilty of the felony attempted strangulation charge.

"Personnel matters are a part of the board's executive session privilege and are subject to confidentiality," said Scott Rogers, Minidoka County School District Superintendent. "I cannot comment on personnel matters and employee discipline. The board is aware of the court proceedings and has been briefed by legal counsel."

Rogers said Wednesday that Frank is still employed by the district as a teacher and a coach.

"Mr. Frank is not currently on administrative leave. Personnel matters are reviewed by the board every month," Rogers said. "The next board meeting is scheduled for April 15, 2009. Perhaps the court case will be completed by that time. The board has the sole authority to review personnel issues and take action when necessary and appropriate according to law and district policy."

Frank was initially placed on administrative leave but later reinstated by the school board after recommendations by the district's legal counsel, Rogers said during an earlier interview.

While similar personnel cases have not arisen for coaches in the Minidoka County School District, the Twin Falls School District took action against two coaches in recent years.

Mark Schaal was suspended as a Twin Falls football coach for a year after a driving under the influence charge was dismissed by the courts in 2003. He never regained the head coach position, but is still a coach at TFHS.

One year later, his successor Gary Krumm, resigned as coach after being arrested on a felony charge of domestic battery, one misdemeanor count of DUI and one misdemeanor count of interfering with a 911 call. He was later dismissed by the school board as a teacher after he pleaded guilty to two misdemeanor counts of domestic battery and one misdemeanor count of driving under the influence. He is now the head football coach at Jerome High School.

According to Idaho code, battery is punishable by imprisonment in county jail for no more than six months, a fine of up to $1,000 or a combination of both.

Jerome sheriff probes child hanging

7-year-old boy taken to Boise-area hospital

Times-News

Jerome County Sheriff's Office investigators are probing what they think is an accidental hanging of a child discovered by his sister around noon, Wednesday, attached to a coat hook on his bedroom door.

The 7-year-old boy apparently "climbed on a box fan by the door when his shirt got caught on the coat hook causing the injuries," according to a press release from the sheriff's office.

The child was taken to Saint Alphonsus Regional Medical Center, said Jerome County Sheriff Doug McFall on Wednesday afternoon.

The hanging at a residence four miles from Jerome is still under investigation but foul play isn't suspected, McFall said.

were among the half-dozen officials who said the bill would further hurt Idaho's economy during a recession and punish law-abiding communities for problems incurred elsewhere in Idaho.

The bill also addresses a requirement that the base assessment tax rolls in revenue allocation areas not exceed 10 percent of the currently assessed valuation of all taxable property within the city's limits.

Anderson told lawmakers the bill would hurt the ability of the Twin Falls URA to attract businesses and said the URA helped create 1,200 new jobs since 1998. She said it's unnecessary for proposed revenue allocation areas to be approved by overlapping taxing districts since such oversight is handled in judicial confirmations.

"You're giving a lot of power to one individual taxing district," she said. "We believe we comply with the way code is written. This really hurts urban renewal."

For more than a year, the Twin Falls URA pursued a controversial project that included a new downtown city hall and retail space, spending millions on consultants and property purchases. Hart has questioned the level of accountability of the URA in pushing the ambitious four-block project, which has been dramatically scaled back in light of the recession.

Mitton told the committee the URA in Burley helped bring companies like Dot Foods and Pacific Ethanol — which recently announced it was temporarily closing — and the bill will have "devastating" effect on recruiting efforts.

But lawmakers said court cases in Rexburg and the Treasure Valley indicate abuse of urban renewal occur throughout Idaho and the URA agencies were collecting money that should go to local taxing districts, such as local highway authorities.

"The fact of the matter is there is an impact to these guys and there is no recourse for these districts to be protected," said House Majority Leader Mike Moyle, R-Star.

Magic Valley's two committee members, Reps. Scott Bedke, R-Oakley, and Leon Smith, R-Twin Falls, voted against the bill.

The bill is similar to a proposal from Hart last year, which died because of a controversial attempt to ban "shoe-stringing," where city blocks outside blighted areas are included in urban renewal zones.

That method was used by Twin Falls officials to recruit a Dell call center seven years ago.

The tax commission doesn't have a position on the bill, said commission lawyer Dan John.

Religious talk at Burley Council meeting incites concern from activist

By Damon Hunzeker
Times-News writer

BURLEY — Each Burley City Council meeting begins with a prayer — so, while not completely surprising that someone would use an agenda item to preach, it was more than some people expected Tuesday night.

Larry Nisle, of the Mini-Cassia Ministerial Association, announced a conference titled "Speak up for Morality" that will be held at the Best Western Burley Inn and Convention Center March 27 and 28.

He didn't stop there, though. "There have been 50 million abortions since Roe v. Wade," Nisle said.

He then said traditional marriage is under assault in California, referring to the passage last year of Proposition 8, which prevented gay marriage. That law is now before that state's Supreme Court.

When man is in charge, rather than God, Nisle asserted, sin and moral corruption transpire, adding that society must "go back to absolute moral authority, which is God."

"The atheists, secularists, and humanists are winning this battle," he said.

Community activist John Walsh then stood up and loudly asked, "Mr.

Mayor, should we be doing this in a City Council meeting? This is lecturing on religion."

Mayor Jon Anderson told Walsh that he could ask for time on the agenda at the next council meeting and that Nisle was making an announcement.

"He (Nisle) asked if he could be on the agenda to announce the meeting, and I thought that was appropriate. I didn't expect him to go into the detail that he did," Anderson said Wednesday. "It's typical of Mr. Walsh not to like what he hears at council meetings, so I wasn't too dismayed."

Walsh, in a back-handed endorsement of the conference, suggested that biblical literalists who approve of killing homosexuals and believe humans can't exercise morality without God and accept the idea that Earth is 6,000 years old should attend Stand up for Morality.

"You'll hear nothing to challenge your views," he said.

Councilman Steve McGill, who thought it was fine for Nisle to announce the conference, simply said, "To start making statements about one group over another in a city council meeting was inappropriate. The council represents all kinds of different people."

FOR THE RECORD

Cassia County police reports for March 16

Disturbing the peace, resisting arrest, et cetera:

Four people were arrested at the Sawtooth Village Apartments in Burley after police responded to a noise complaint. The most significant arrest was the renter of the apartment, Mercedes Gonzales, 19, who answered the door in "a red bra and white shorts." She then, according to Deputy Jason Rogers' report, shut and locked the door.

Police breached the door and found four people inside the bathroom. "Mercedes had gone and hid in the bathroom, then jumped in the shower, and took her clothes off, faking that she was taking a shower," the report reads. Later, she came out wrapped in towel, trying to make phone calls and "spinning her body."

She accused Rogers, according to his report, of touching her breast and raping her. Gonzales was charged with disturbing the peace, obstruction and delay of arrest, and illegal consumption of alcohol.

Resisting arrest:

19-year-old Quaid Brody Lindsay was questioned in Burley about suspicious activity with a flashlight in the parking lot of an apartment complex. Police discovered warrants for Lindsay out of Cassia and Twin Falls counties.

Lindsey told police he wouldn't present a problem, but when he was told to put his hands behind his back, he ran into a playground and was summarily Tased in the back. "Quaid then went to ground ... Quaid was then cooperative," the report reads. He was arrested for the two warrants and for resisting and obstructing arrest.

Harassment by phone:

A 20-year-old Burley female reported that her ex-boyfriend followed her from Montana and began leaving derogatory messages on her phone. According to the report, in addition to some money, "he wanted his shirt, pants, and elk horn."

Injury to child:

Nicholas Brent Dudley, 35, of Burley, was arrested for allegedly punching a baby in the back. Dudley told police that he has an "anger problem."

Larceny:

Natasha Chapman, 24, was arrested at CAL-Ranch Stores in Burley for allegedly stealing a pair of shoes by taking hers off, putting them in the new shoes' box, and walking out with the new shoes on her feet.

Curfew:

Three juvenile females were handcuffed and taken to the sheriff's office for walking around at 1:18 a.m.

Two other juvenile females were charged with curfew violations for being outside at 11:30 p.m.

Driving violation:

Andrea Barendregt, 24, of Burley, was arrested for driving without privileges. She admitted to police that her license was suspended from a driving-under-the-influence conviction. She had also been arrested the previous night for driving without privileges in Minidoka County.

Sheriff's deputies work a crime scene Wednesday on Interstate 15 in southern Utah's Washington County. Officials say a man wanted in the slaying of a North Carolina family killed his girlfriend and himself after a high-speed police chase.

Suspect in slaying of NC family of four dead in Utah

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Answers to what led to the slayings of a mother and her three children in a western North Carolina home might have died along with the suspect, who killed himself as police closed in on him along a stretch of Utah highway, investigators said Wednesday.

For almost a week, Conover police detectives were trying to find the man witnesses said was lurking outside the home and grabbed one of the victims, yanking her inside. As sheriff's deputies in southwestern Utah Tuesday night chased that suspect, alleged opium trafficker Chiew Chan Saevang of Wisconsin, he killed his girlfriend, Yer Yang, then himself, police said.

With no chance to question him in the shooting and stabbing deaths of Lisa Saephan and her three children — 20-year-old Melanie, 18-year-old Pauline and 4-year-old Cody — what exactly happened on March 12 in the home in the quiet subdivision remains a mystery.

"It's like trying to put together a big puzzle," said Coy Reid, chief deputy with North Carolina's Catawba County Sheriff's Office. "They could've finished the rest of the pieces. We still have a lot to tie up and finish in the investigation."

Authorities said that investigation could ultimately end with Saephan's husband facing charges of trafficking drugs. Although he is not implicated in his family's slayings, detectives suggested that Brian Tzeo's involvement in a trafficking ring with the suspects may have been behind the attacks.

"The information we have suggests the father was a drug distributor," Reid said. "He has cooperated with us. And we're not at liberty to talk about that right now. It's an ongoing investigation."

Tzeo hung up when reached by phone.

Seven minutes after North Carolina authorities put out a national alert with Saevang's license plate, Utah deputies in Washington County spotted his car on Interstate 15 near the southwestern border with Arizona headed west. As deputies gave chase, Saevang's BMW hit another car, went up an embankment, stopped on a hillside and caught fire. Saevang had fatally shot himself and the

AROUND THE STATE

BOISE Lawmaker offers compromise on teacher contracts

House Education Committee Chairman Bob Nonini has pulled back a contentious plan to save money by limiting teacher contracts and on Wednesday offered a compromise bill.

Nonini, R-Coeur d'Alene, proposed legislation last month to allow teacher contracts to expire at the end of each fiscal year and give school districts authority to modify contracts any time the state declares a fiscal emergency.

Democratic lawmakers and the Idaho Education Association balked at the legislation, saying it appeared Nonini wanted the roughly 14,000 public school teachers in Idaho to make all the sacrifices in the tough economic climate.

The proposal was put on hold as lawmakers sifted through the federal stimulus package and consulted groups such as the teachers union.

Nonini introduced his new bill on teacher contracts to the House Education Committee.

"This is a compromise piece of legislation," Nonini said.

It allows school boards to declare a fiscal emergency and modify teacher contracts through an extensive process that includes a public hearing on the changes and comment from the local teachers union.

Union President Sherri Wood said she supports the plan because it moves decisions to the local level and outlines several steps school districts must follow when declaring a fiscal emergency and changing contracts.

Idaho Falls has best metropolitan growth

Idaho Falls was the fastest-growing metropolitan area in Idaho between July 1, 2007, and July 1, 2008, according to estimates released Wednesday by the U.S. Census Bureau.

Idaho Falls grew 3.2 percent in the year to 122,995 residents. Coeur d'Alene was second, growing 2.4 percent to 137,475 residents.

Boise, the state's largest population center, grew 2.2 percent to 599,753 residents.

Pocatello grew 1.1 percent, and Lewiston 0.8 percent.

Metropolitan areas are a central city and the surrounding county or counties. The nationwide growth rate was 0.9 percent in the year, according to the Population Reference Bureau.

The Census also estimated populations for so-called micropolitan areas, smaller cities and surrounding counties. Twin Falls was the fastest-growing in Idaho, up 2.1 percent to 94,752 in the year.

Private drivers ed bill dies in House Committee

A House Committee has killed a measure that would have created a licensing board for privately owned driving schools.

The Department of Education currently oversees both public school and private driver education programs.

The bill would have created a five member licensing board with authority over fees and standards for the private schools. The department would have continued governing driver education through public schools.

House State Affairs Committee members said Wednesday that opponents haven't been able to agree on the best way to manage private driving schools, specifically whether to create statewide instruction standards.

Rupert Republican Rep. John Stevenson says he can't support the change until both types of driver education program operate under the same minimum standards.

House panel wants feds to back off

Rep. Dick Harwood, a St. Maries Republican, told the House State Affairs Committee Wednesday that the federal government is overstepping its role and Idaho's sovereignty with mandated programs like No Child Left Behind, the education reform legislation promoted by former President Bush.

The committee passed the resolution and sent it to the full House, where it stands a good chance of winning support.

State sovereignty is outlined in the U.S. Constitution's 10th amendment, which says powers not granted to the federal government are reserved for the states.

Harwood says states — not the federal government — are responsible to finance and govern health and welfare programs, schools and highways.

Repairs on Idaho's crumbling roads can wait no longer

It may be the least-popular major legislation ever considered by the Idaho House of Representatives that stands an even chance of passing.

The House today will vote on Gov. Butch's Otter's proposed gasoline tax and registration fee increases to pay to repair the state's crumbling roads. So loathe are lawmakers to increase taxes during a recession that the conservative members of the House leadership — who are sponsoring Otter's bills — were actually going hat-in-hand to members of the Democratic minority this week asking for their support.

The vote will be that close. We think lawmakers should swallow hard and say yes.

Why? Because the backlog in deferred maintenance on Idaho's highways is growing by at least $240 million a year, and the Legislature didn't approve a dime of new funding last year.

The governor's cause wasn't helped Wednesday when his office announced that because of a math error at the Idaho Transportation Department, the package will net about $11 million less than previously announced.

Hiking Idaho car and truck registration fees would actually only raise about $33 million, not the $44 million projected.

The combination of a 7-cent increase in the gas tax and registration fee increases will raise about $94 million after a three-year phase-in, down from the previous projection of $105 million.

Otter is trying to win over skeptics by arguing that Idaho residents, on average, will pay just $54 more per year with both bills, but will benefit from 2,500 new jobs, increased safety and reduced highway congestion.

The fuel tax would rise a total of 7 cents over three years — from 25 cents per gallon now to 28 cents this year, then 2-cent-per-gallon raises in each of the following two years. For owners of cars less than two years old, state registration fees would jump to $84, from $48 now. For the roughly 53 percent of Idaho residents whose cars are older than eight years, the fee would rise to $36, from $24.

Truck registration fees also would increase. Owners of the largest commercial trucks would pay $600 annually by 2013, up from $515 today.

Other legislation in the package would eliminate the ethanol tax exemption and shift funding for the Idaho State Police from roads-related taxes to the general fund.

The alternative is another year of deterioration of Idaho's infrastructure and perhaps the last chance for several years to do anything about it.

Most legislators believe they'll be working with less tax revenue during that 2010 session than they have this year. That would mean 2011 at the earliest before the Legislature could do anything meaningful about catching up with the backlog in highway repair.

We can't wait that long. Today is one of those occasions when Idahoans need their elected representatives to hold their noses and do the right thing.

Our view: Idaho's House of Representatives should approve Gov. C.L. 'Butch' Otter's package for highway repair funding, even though it will raise gasoline taxes and vehicle registration fees in a tough economy.

What do you think? We welcome viewpoints from our readers on this and other issues.

Who wants to be a millionaire?

Over the centuries, the United States has been most conspicuous for one trait: manic energy. Americans work longer hours than any other people. We switch jobs more frequently, move more often, earn more and consume more.

DAVID BROOKS

This energy was first aroused by abundance, by the tantalizing sense that dazzling wealth was available just over the next hill. But it has also been sustained by a popular culture that celebrates commercial ambition. From Benjamin Franklin and Alexander Hamilton, through Horatio Alger and Norman Vincent Peale, up until Donald Trump and Jim Cramer, popular figures have always emerged to champion the American gospel of success, encouraging middle-class people to strive, risk and make money.

This gospel gets dented during each of the nation's financial crises, but it always returns with a vengeance. The late 19th century was a time of economic turmoil. Yet it was also a time when this commercial creed was preached most fervently. Andrew Carnegie published "The Gospel of Wealth." Elbert Hubbard published "A Message to Garcia," which celebrated industriousness and ambition and sold nearly 40 million copies. The Baptist minister Russell Conwell traveled the country delivering his "Acres of Diamonds" sermon to rapturous audiences more than 6,000 times.

"I say that the opportunity to get rich, to attain unto great wealth, is here now within the reach of almost every man and woman who hears me speak tonight!" Conwell thundered to his audiences. "I say that you ought to get rich, and it is your duty to get rich ... Money is power, and you ought to be reasonably ambitious to have it. You ought, because you can do more good with it than you could without it."

The Great Depression suppressed economic activity, but not the commercial spirit. In the middle of it, Dale Carnegie published "How to Win Friends and Influence People," which promised imminent success and went on to sell more copies than any other book to that point but the Bible. The stagflation of the 1970s didn't discredit capitalism. It gave rise to the supply-side movement and the apotheosis of the entrepreneur.

In short, The United States will never be Europe. It was born as a commercial republic. It's addicted to the pace of commercial enterprise. After periodic pauses, the country inevitably returns to its elemental nature.

The United States is in one of those pauses today. It has been odd, over the past six months, not to have the gospel of success as part of the normal background music of life. You go about your day, taking in the news and the new movies, books and songs, and only gradually do you become aware that there is an absence. There are no aspirational stories of rags-to-riches success floating around. There are no new how-to-get-rich enthusiasms.

There are few magazine covers breathlessly telling readers that some new possibility — biotechnology, nanotechnology — is about to change everything. That part of American culture that stokes ambition and encourages risk has gone silent.

We are now in an astonishingly noncommercial moment. Risk is out of favor. The financial world is abashed. Enterprise is suspended. The public culture is dominated by one downbeat story after another as members of the educated class explore and enjoy the humiliation of the capitalist vulgararians.

Washington is temporarily at the center of the nation's economic gravity and a noncommercial administration holds sway. This is an administration that has many lawyers and academics but almost no businesspeople in it, let alone self-made entrepreneurs. The president speaks passionately about education and health care reform, but he is strangely aloof from the banking crisis and displays no passion when speaking about commercial drive and success.

But if there is one thing we can be sure of, it is that this pause will not last. The cultural DNA of the past 400 years will not be erased. The pendulum will swing hard. The gospel of success will recapture the imagination.

Somewhere right now there's probably a smart publisher searching for the most unabashed, ambitious, pro-wealth, pro-success manuscript she can find, and in about three months she'll pile it up in the nation's bookstores. Somewhere there's probably a TV producer thinking of hiring Jim Cramer to do a show to tell story after story of unapologetic business success. Somewhere there's a politician finding a way to ride the commercial renaissance that is bound to come, ready to explain how government can sometimes nurture entrepreneurial greatness and sometimes should get out of the way.

Walt Whitman got America right in his essay, "Democratic Vistas." He acknowledged the vulgarity of the American success drive. He toted up its moral failings. But in the end, he accepted his country's "extreme business energy," its "almost maniacal appetite for wealth." He knew that the country's dreams were all built upon that energy and drive, and eventually the spirit of commercial optimism would always prevail.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Too bad, Mexico: Solve your own problems

In response to a Times-News article of Feb 28, I agree that the United States should try to stop Mexican gangs from importing weapons across the border. We should certainly put forth as much effort as Mexico has shown in stopping its undocumented citizens pouring across the border, bringing illegal drugs and staying to cripple our education, medical, Social Security and welfare programs.

It's a shame that its drug-dealing gangs are decimating themselves with gunfire instead of machete strokes, but somehow I can, if forced, live with that knowledge.

Isn't it time we finally allow another country to solve its own problems?

Naturally, we should do everything in our power to stop the use of such firepower within our own borders. Perhaps that would show our commitment. Frankly, I've cried myself to sleep too many nights over other countries telling us what we must do to make life better for them (while forever holding out their hands for more of our largess). Sorry, I just don't have any tears left.

Idaho can't afford new charter school districts

Has the GOP forgotten Tom Stivers? Rep. Stivers served in the Idaho House of Representatives for many years. Each and every year, he called for the consolidation of school districts as a method of saving money. Instead, our government has created more than 30 new districts under the guise of charter schools. Each of these districts operates within the boundaries of existing districts.

The charter school districts were created with fewer restrictions than public schools so they could be innovative and find creative ways to be more successful than other schools. What innovations have they developed? How has the Department of Education shared those ideas with other districts?

A study on the Department of Education Web site says 70 percent of parents chose charter schools because of their philosophy and 60 percent said they like the small class sizes.

I don't know about the philosophy, but I do wonder how the state plans to implement the small class size among the rest of the public schools.

Gov. Otter says the schools must cut staff costs to save the money he plans to hold back this year. It seems elimination of the 30 districts created over the last 10 years would save a fortune. Instead, Superintendent Tom Luna has announced the creation of eight more charter districts this year. We cannot afford to create new districts for the sole purpose of giving parents school choice while reducing the budgets of the existing districts.

Basketball, cheerleading program was awesome

Since moving to Twin Falls from Florida in 2007, my family and I have been thankful for all the wonderful people and opportunities in the Magic Valley.

The latest jewel was Upward Basketball and Cheerleading at the First Church of the Nazarene. Our heartfelt thanks go to all who worked so hard to bring this program to the area and who supported the athletes and activities.

The children were taught to play a game and to show good sportsmanship, but everyone in attendance learned the most important lesson is to live life with grace and compassion. This was an awesome experience!

Here's what Idaho newspapers are saying about ...

... please don't feed the animals

Idaho Mountain Express, Ketchum

Wolves have been spotted this month in and near the Wood River Valley. It's likely they are the well-known Phantom Hill pack that summered north of Ketchum.

The pack reportedly killed a cougar in a dispute over an elk carcass near Elkhorn, fed on elk in another canyon and wandered near Trail Creek Road near Sun Valley where dog owners go to let their canines run in the winter.

The appearance of the pack has created anxiety as well as excitement in the valley as its human inhabitants try to work out their feelings about sharing the canyons with a wolf pack.

Like other predators, wolves follow elk and deer herds in hopes of bagging a meal. The valley's humans have made that a lot easier by privately feeding elk in areas near homes — contrary to the advice of the Idaho Department of Fish and Game.

Private feeding now means that wolves are part of the package, yet there are no restrictions on private feeding that attracts and concentrates wintering elk.

People do so with the best of intentions ... Attracting wolves is surely an unintended consequence, but a fact now that once endangered wolves have been re-established in Idaho.

It's time to stop private feeding. Fish and Game feeds a small number of herds well away from human habitation, but it cannot control private feeding.

The Idaho Legislature should enact laws to prohibit private feeding and to provide penalties. To let private feeding go on will only encourage conflicts among humans, big game and predators.

... Risch's big tax blunder

Post Register, Idaho Falls

If then-Gov. Jim Risch hadn't pushed his 2006 tax shift package in a rushed, one-day special legislative session, we would have recognized more of its flaws.

Cutting schools from property tax support saved $260 million. Raising the sales tax from a nickel to 6 cents on the dollar replaced $210 million. That equals $50 million in tax cuts, which went to wealthy homeowners and corporations. Everybody else — especially low-income families who rent their homes — paid more.

Only a deepening recession could reveal the Risch tax shift's true damage to the schools.

Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter said the school budget must be slashed about $109 million next year. Just having that debate tells you something about Risch's tax shift:

It destabilized school funding. Before Risch took office, schools relied on a maintenance and operation levy for a quarter of their money; the state general fund provided the rest. During its past decade, the amount of dollars this levy produced for schools increased 77 percent to $293.5 million. Had Risch left well enough alone, the state Tax Commission estimates the levy would have generated at least $166 million more this year. Instead, schools are stuck with the sales tax, down 8.8 percent, and the income taxes, down 14.5 percent.

The $114 million school stabilization account couldn't meet the challenge of a deep and prolonged slow-down. Just keeping the schools afloat this year would have all but depleted it, had the Obama federal stimulus package not provided another $166 million.

Otter's right. Schools will eventually run out of money when the stimulus and the reserve account are gone. Call that a structural deficit — schools cost more than we're paying ...

Nearly three-quarters of Idaho voters approved Risch's plan in a 2006 advisory vote. But the question was loaded. Nowhere in it did the ballot measure note school funding had been cut $50 million and otherwise destabilized. In fact, the measure promoted the tax shift as a way to protect funding for public schools.

Plummeting home values and a shaky economy mean money will be too short to drop the sales tax back to 5 percent even with a restored maintenance and operation levy. But reviving the M&O levy might relieve enough pressure on the state budget to accelerate lifting the unconscionably regressive sales tax on food.

Make this the defining question of next year's campaign: Do we continue chopping away at our schools or is it time to correct this mistake?

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Memorial Plaza is a vision for the future

Most of you know that the town hall meetings over the past year have been an important tool in our efforts to advance the Mayors' Initiative 2010 for the revitalization of Historic Downtown. I value the opportunity to share ideas on our efforts, progress and future plans. The February town hall meeting was reluctantly cancelled because of a personal family emergency. This month, I again ask for your understanding, as I must deviate from the planned schedule and delay our next town hall meeting one week.

It remains our plan to launch a full-fledged effort to create a Memorial Plaza, incorporating a Veterans Service Center in Historic Downtown. This plaza will be a place to honor those diverse Americans who have made sacrifices for the freedoms and civil liberties we enjoy today. We will need the input and resources of the various veterans groups to advance the plan.

We continue to see impacts of the financial crisis that grips our nation. The good news is we are one month closer to an economic recovery. The Memorial Plaza is a vision for the future and the efforts today will reduce the time needed to fulfill the dream tomorrow. If we are to minimize any public funding, we need to be well organized and have our plans ready to implement. When private capital begins to flow, those who are ready will be first in line. Some people, businesses and communities may wait until they have absolute confidence in the future, others will prosper by being prepared for the next generation of prosperity.

If you would like to be part of this project or share your thoughts, please join us on Thursday evening, March 26, at 7 p.m. We will meet in the council "overflow room," at 305 Third Ave. E.

Stevenson is right: Let's get back to basics

I am writing in support of Zeb Bell and Bert Stevenson.

It is high time that we get back to the fundamentals held by the founding fathers of this country. It is only by God we have this land and the freedoms we enjoy. Our forefathers knew full well the need to stay near to God and his word.

If you look to the original writings of those men, you would find that they claimed no personal victory in bringing this country to its beginning but gave glory to almighty God for the provisions he had given to them. I am proud of Bert and Zeb for the use of their time and talents and their taking a stand for what is right. Right and wrong is established by the word of God not by the thinking of man. Morals are not set by customs or acceptance by the people of the day but by absolute truth which has been given to us by God in his Word.

MAKING SENSE OF INVESTING

Fund essentials, not frills, in tough economic times

Since I left office as superintendent of public instruction more than two years ago, I've pretty much kept my mouth shut and my eyes and ears open. I had my turn eight times over to argue for a public school budget so it's no wonder that I felt some empathy for my successor as he faced legislators. I know I had to justify every penny requested and report afterward on every penny spent, so I'm pretty aware of how to construct a tight budget.

Now, in these difficult times, I have three suggestions for budget writers that I think could help local schools and their students.

1. It is time the Legislature starts trusting local school boards to do the right thing. I believe Idaho citizens have every bit as much confidence in their locally elected school trustees as they have in their locally elected legislators.

The Legislature can stop placing strings on money sent to districts. For starters, legislators should do away with telling local boards how much to spend on textbooks and how much to give to each teacher for personal classroom supplies. I know those were campaign promises, and the budget writers funded those promises for two years. This year the Legislature should remove those dictates and let local boards decide whether they need textbooks or heating oil, construction paper or electric lights.

READER COMMENT

2. The state should put a moratorium on authorizing new charter schools. Every new charter has the same effect as adding another school district and that just slices the monetary pie even thinner.

And the state should absolutely stop authorizing any more virtual charter schools. We have plenty already — and we ship millions of our dollars to these out-of-state companies with little accountability required on how the money is spent.

3. Fund essentials, not initiatives. For example, the Idaho Reading Initiative, begun about a decade ago, appears to be over. No scores have been reported for two years. The initiative money can come out of the State Department of Education's budget and instead go directly to districts.

The expected increase in federal money can legally be used to support teacher training in math and reading with an emphasis on helping all kids get a good start while providing extra help to kids who need it. If state funds are sufficient to continue the math initiative, its focus should be limited to students in middle and high school as they transition from simple arithmetic to complex mathematics.

Put most simply, I suggest downsizing centralized funding to cover essentials and sending the excess to the districts.

I realize that these adjustments are relatively small in dollars and they won't provide the money districts need if they are to avoid eliminating programs for our able or gifted students, but they symbolize some important values. A return to local control, pausing or stopping expensive programs, and eliminating special initiatives until we get our financial house back in order are positive steps that will be welcomed by local school boards and even more by the people who are doing their best every day to help our kids learn: teachers, administrators and support staff.

CITY OF BURLEY

NOTICE OF POSSIBLE POWER OUTAGE

Who is affected? Any customer who pays a City of Burley electric bill

When: Friday March 20th, from 8:00 am until 2:00 pm

Why: A major substation supplying power to the City of Burley must be turned off for maintenance on some equipment.

What can customers do?

Use only the electrical energy you really need during those hours. Examples: delay running dishwashers, clothes washers & dryers until the afternoon. Enjoy a sandwich for lunch.

What will the City do?

We shall reduce our electric load by handling all water and sewer consumption with generators. We shall connect all our customers to our alternate substation with the goal of keeping power on for everybody. However, if the load is too much, the City will have to turn off power to part of its customers for a few hours. This would then switch to other customers a little later.

Questions: Please call the Electric Department at 878-2538.

Our goal is to keep power on for everyone during the entire equipment maintenance schedule.

Death penalty recommended for California arson killer

By Greg Risling
Associated Press writer

RIVERSIDE, Calif. — A jury recommended the death penalty Wednesday for a man convicted of murdering five federal firefighters who were overrun by one of several wildfires he ignited in Southern California in 2006.

Jurors took less than a day to decide that Raymond Lee Oyler deserved to die. Prosecutors cited the horrific pain the fire crew suffered and the terror the auto mechanic's fires caused in rural areas of Riverside County. Outside court, Maria Loutzenhiser, the wife of slain fire Capt. Mark Loutzenhiser, thanked jurors and prosecutors "for putting an end to everybody's misery and giving everybody peace of mind."

"I'm grateful they put Oyler in jail and that he's there and he can't do this anymore," she said.

Oyler's daughter echoed his lawyers' claim that he never intended to kill anyone.

"That was not in his mind. My dad is not this monster they paint him to be," 21-year-old Heather Oyler said outside the courtroom.

Oyler, 38, was convicted of five counts of first-degree murder, 20 counts of arson and 17 counts of using an incendiary device. At sentencing, set for June 5, the judge still could give him the punishment the defense had urged jurors to choose: life in prison without the possibility of parole.

The jury foreman, who declined to give his name, said the two-month trial was an emotional ordeal but the evidence showed Oyler's guilt and helped persuade the panel he should get the death penalty.

"There were more tears today than any other day," he said. "It's not an easy decision to make."

The foreman choked back tears as he recalled some of the testimony from family members. He hugged several of them outside court.

Prosecutor Michael Hestrin told jurors in closing arguments of the trial's penalty phase that Oyler was not a casual arsonist but instead sought the power to end people's lives.

Oyler was convicted of setting numerous fires in rural areas of Riverside County in 2006. The fatal blaze, known as the Esperanza Fire, roared to life that October as fierce Santa Ana winds swept through valleys and mountains about 90 miles east of Los Angeles.

Jurors began penalty phase deliberations when closing arguments ended Tuesday afternoon.

The crew of San Bernardino National Forest Engine 57 was overwhelmed after deploying to protect an unoccupied house perched at the top of a steep drainage in the San Jacinto Mountains.

Utah lawmakers pass up $61 million in stimulus funds

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Utah lawmakers failed to change state law so they could get more than $61 million in federal stimulus money meant to help the unemployed.

To get the funding lawmakers would have had to change the law to allow about 4,200 jobless Utahns — among them part-time workers and those who quit working to accompany a spouse who is changing jobs — to get unemployment benefits.

Those people don't currently qualify.

Utah legislators were worried employers would get hit with more unemployment taxes to cover the costs.

Senate Majority Leader Sheldon Killpack, R-Syracuse, said it doesn't make much sense to change state law to get one-time money.

"Unless you fully understand what you're doing, you're better to leave the money on the table than put a new program into code that you're not planning to keep," Killpack said.

Lawmakers looked at including a sunset provision so the expanded benefits would expire when the federal money runs out, but were told they couldn't. It was unclear whether they could later repeal an expansion of benefits, so they didn't act at all during the 45-day session that ended last week.

About $6 million of the $61 million over three years would have gone toward covering the expanded benefits while the rest would have gone into the state's overall unemployment benefits pool.

The state's unemployment rate rose to 4.6 percent in January, up from 3.2 percent the previous January.

Allison Rowland, the budget director for the group Voices for Utah's Children, said it was a mistake not to take the money.

"There's no question that people who have had the misfortune to lose their jobs in Utah over the last month to year are going to be negatively affected," Rowland said. "Utah citizens don't get some federal tax break because our state chose not to accept some of this money."

Utah has until August 2011 to change state law and claim the funds.

Idaho farmers caught in crossfire of trade dispute

By Joshua Palmer
Times-News writer

Southern Idaho is caught in the crossfire of a trade dispute between Mexico and the Obama administration, say Idaho State Department of Agriculture officials.

Mexico's Economy Secretary announced Wednesday that he has placed a 20 percent tariff on frozen potatoes, a 15 percent tariff on dried peas and a 10 percent tariff on onions.

Economy Secretary Gerardo Ruiz Mateos announced the tariffs in response to the U.S. closure of a pilot program that allowed Mexican trucks to transport goods in the United States. That program was a step toward complying with a requirement of the 1994 North American Free Trade Agreement that Mexican trucks gain full access to U.S. highways by January 2000.

More than 80 other products exported by the United States to Mexico were also slapped with tariffs that officials say will bring some exports to a screeching halt.

Mexican officials did not increase tariffs on staples such as beans, wheat and other grains; however, ISDA officials point out that Idaho's primary exports are value-added food products such as dried peas and frozen potatoes.

"A 20 percent tariff added to our agricultural products will have a huge impact on our agricultural exports," said Laura Johnson, ISDA section manager for the market development division. "It will make it so we can't compete in markets in Mexico."

The end result could be devastating for Idaho, which relies on Mexico as its second-largest agricultural trade partner.

Idaho's exports to Mexico totaled more than $183 million in 2008, and almost 70 percent of the total was agricultural exports.

Wednesday's announcement frustrated ISDA officials and state lawmakers who began an aggressive marketing campaign in 2006 to increase trade with Mexico.

Since the campaign began, frozen potato exports increased more than 20 percent and dried peas increased almost 7 percent. Both are grown and processed in southern Idaho.

ISDA officials say Idaho farmers will feel the brunt of the new tariffs.

General Mills 3Q profit falls on higher costs

By Emily Fredrix
Associated Press writer

MILWAUKEE — General Mills Inc. said Wednesday that its profit dropped 33 percent in the fiscal third quarter on higher costs and a stronger dollar as sales increased of top brands like Cheerios.

The Golden Valley, Minn.-based maker of Yoplait Yogurt, Wheaties cereal and Pillsbury Toaster Strudel also lifted its 2009 adjusted profit forecast, citing increased marketing.

For the period ended Feb. 22, earnings fell to $288.9 million, or 85 cents per share, compared with $430.1 million, or $1.23 per share, a year ago.

Excluding an insurance settlement, the reversal of a tax benefit and other items, earnings were 79 cents per share compared with 87 cents in the prior-year period.

The earnings missed the expectations of 88 cents per share of analysts surveyed by Thomson Reuters, who generally exclude one-time items.

Shares fell $4.65, or 8.7 percent, to $49.01, setting a new 52-week low of $48.45.

"Our results this quarter reflect a difficult comparison against strong prior-year results, as well as significantly higher input costs in the current period," Chief Executive Ken Powell said in a statement.

The company's biggest miss in the quarter was its food service segment, Janney Montgomery Scott analyst Jonathan Feeney wrote to clients. That business, which sells to restaurants and retail outlets — areas where consumers are cutting their spending — posted a 6 percent drop in net sales to $462 million in the quarter, while volume plunged 12 percent.

"I guess we should quit being surprised by this kind of weakness, but it is dissonant with what the company had implied very recently," he wrote.

Food companies are benefiting as more cash-strapped consumers eat at home, but their food service businesses are hurting because of that. They're also seeing profit margins shrink due to high costs for commodities like corn and fuel oil, which reached record highs last summer. Although they have started to moderate, General Mills still expects costs to be up 9 percent for the fiscal year from last year.

To recoup high costs, food companies have been raising their prices.

Fed to buy up to $300B long-term Treasury bonds

By Jeannine Aversa
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — The Federal Reserve announced Wednesday it will spend up to $300 billion over the next six months to buy long-term government bonds, a new step aimed at lifting the country out of recession by lowering rates on mortgages and other consumer debt.

At the same time, the Fed left a key short-term bank lending rate at a record low of between zero and 0.25 percent. Economists predict the Fed will hold the rate in that zone for the rest of this year and for most — if not all — of next year.

Fed purchases should boost Treasury prices and drive down their rates. That would ripple through and lower rates on other kinds of debt. The last time the Fed set out to influence long-term interest rates was during the 1960s.

The Fed also said it will buy more mortgage-backed securities guaranteed by Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac to help that battered market. The central bank will buy an additional $750 billion, bringing its total purchases of these securities to $1.25 trillion. It also will boost its purchase of Fannie and Freddie debt to $200 billion.

"This is not only going to keep mortgage rates low for a long period of time," said Greg McBride, a senior financial analyst at Bankrate.com. "The mere announcement may produce a honeymoon effect and bring mortgage rates down to even lower levels in the coming days."

In addition, the Fed said a $1 trillion program to jump-start consumer and small business lending could be expanded to include other financial assets.

The program — which is rolling out this week — currently is focused on spurring lending for autos, education, credit cards and loans for business equipment. The government already has announced an expansion to include commercial real-estate assets. Any broadening of the program would be beyond that area.

The Fed's action is keeping Wall Street's big rally alive. After being down earlier in the day, the Dow Jones industrial average added about 30 points in afternoon trading, and broader indicators also rose.

Fed Chairman Ben Bernanke and his colleagues are taking the new steps as the economy sinks deeper into recession.

Since the Fed last met in late January, "the economy continues

Filer Mutual Telephone audit displays financial stability

Company sees decline in standard phone lines

By John E. Swayze
Times-News correspondent

FILER — An audit of Filer Mutual Telephone Company's 2008 fiscal year records shows that the company is in good financial shape.

Daniel Owens, from the Minnesota based accounting firm, Owens Thielen and Company, gave patrons and Filer Mutual's board of directors an overview Tuesday during the company's annual meeting.

Owens identified several reasons for the favorable report, as well as areas where company activity was effected by the current economic downturn. Filer Mutual's cash position increased from $45,672 in 2007 to $916,536 in 2008 without using long term debt.

"That was all from operating inflows and less investing outflow," he said. "A line of credit was taken in the early part of the year, but that was paid off, so it puts you in a good position going into next year."

Filer Mutual, along with five other independent phone companies in Idaho, had a 20 percent or $1.6 million investment in the Syringa Network — a cell phone service provider for southern and eastern Idaho.

Due to a good year in 2008, Filer Mutual received $350,000 in capital returns. About $650,000 has been contributed to Syringa Wireless, so far this year, but uncertainty about the economy has caused the board to

Consumer prices rise 0.4 percent in February

By Martin Crutsinger
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — Consumer prices rose in February by the largest amount in seven months as gasoline prices surged again and clothing costs jumped the most in nearly two decades.

But the increase appeared to ease many economists' concerns about dangerous price movements in either direction. The recession is expected to dampen any inflation pressures for at least the rest of this year, while the slight uptick in

The Dow Jones industrial average rose 90.88, or 1.2 percent, to 7,486.58. Broader stock indicators jumped, too. The Standard & Poor's 500 index added 16.23, or 2.1 percent, to 794.35, and the Nasdaq composite index rose 29.11, or 2 percent, to 1,491.22. Stocks have risen for six out of the last seven days. Since the market rally began last week, the Dow has jumped 14.4 percent, and the S&P 500 has soared 17.4 percent. The Russell 2000 index of smaller companies jumped 14.04, or 3.5 percent, to 417.63. More than four stocks rose for every one that fell on the New York Stock Exchange, where volume came to 2.08 billion shares. The dollar fell against other major currencies. Gold prices also slid.

BUSINESS ROUNDUP

Prosecutors charge Madoff's accountant with fraud

NEW YORK - Bernard Madoff's longtime accountant was arrested on fraud charges Wednesday and accused of helping the disgraced money manager cheat thousands of investors out of billions of dollars in the past two decades. The charges against David Friehling, 49, come as federal authorities turn their attention to people they believe helped Madoff fool 4,800 investors into thinking that their investments were growing comfortably each year. Friehling is the first person to be arrested since the Madoff scandal broke three months ago.

Friehling ran an accounting office in a nondescript suburban building north of New York City, and quickly drew scrutiny over how he could have not detected the fraud. Experts in accounting also said it would be preposterous for such a tiny firm to properly audit an operation the size of Madoff's.

IBM in talks to buy Sun Microsystems

IBM Corp. is in talks to buy Sun Microsystems Inc. for at least $6.5 billion in cash, a deal that would shake up Silicon Valley and the corporate computing market, The Associated Press has learned.

A person familiar with the situation told the AP of the negotiations, confirming an earlier report Wednesday in The Wall Street Journal. This person spoke on condition of anonymity because the talks are ongoing.

The Journal cited unnamed people familiar with the matter and said the deal could occur as early as this week.

Armonk, N.Y.-based IBM and Santa Clara, Calif.-based Sun both make computer systems for corporate customers. A purchase of Sun could help IBM in the finance and telecommunications markets as it tries to expand its role in digitizing key pieces of infrastructure, from electric utilities to water supplies.

Fannie Mae: Refinance volume triples in February

WASHINGTON - Fannie Mae said the volume of mortgage loans it refinanced in February totaled $41 billion, nearly triple January's volume.

Feds to ease restrictions on 'American Taliban'

INDIANAPOLIS — Federal prison officials are easing restrictions on American-born Taliban soldier John Walker Lindh, moves that his attorney said Wednesday will allow Lindh to tell his story for the first time.

U.S. Department of Justice spokesman Dean Boyd said the restrictions on Lindh, 28, will expire Friday. He said the current limits Lindh faces are not public and he cannot discuss them.

Although former U.S. Attorney General John Ashcroft first imposed restrictions on Lindh in March 2002, Boyd said they have been modified several times as "the perceived threat of Lindh's communications diminished."

Lindh is serving a 20-year sentence for aiding Afghanistan's now-defunct Taliban government. He was captured in Afghanistan in November 2001 by U.S. forces sent to topple the Taliban after the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks.

WASHINGTON
AG signals shift in marijuana policy

WASHINGTON — Attorney General Eric Holder signaled a change on medical marijuana policy Wednesday, saying federal agents will target marijuana distributors only when they violate both federal and state law.

That would be a departure from the policy of the Bush administration, which targeted medical marijuana dispensaries in California even if they complied with that state's law.

"The policy is to go after those people who violate both federal and state law," Holder said in a question-and-answer session with reporters at the Justice Department.

Medical marijuana advocates in California welcomed the news, but said they still worried about the pending cases of those already in court on drug charges.

California law permits the sale of marijuana for medical purposes, though it still is against federal law.

Births break record; 40 percent out-of-wedlock

ATLANTA — Remember the baby boom? No, not the one after World War II. More babies were born in the United States in 2007 than any other year in the nation's history — and a wedding band made increasingly little difference in the matter.

The 4,317,119 births, reported by federal researchers Wednesday, topped a record first set in 1957 at the height of the baby boom.

Behind the number is both good and bad news. While it shows the U.S. population is more than replacing itself, a healthy trend, the teen birth rate was up for a second year in a row.

The birth rate rose slightly for women of all ages, and births to unwed mothers reached an all-time high of about 40 percent, continuing a trend that started years ago. More than three-quarters of these women were 20 or older.

For a variety of reasons, it's become more acceptable for women to have babies without a husband, said Duke University's S. Philip Morgan, a leading fertility researcher.

AIG bonuses: Some repaid, Congress to vote on tax

By David Espo
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — Under intense pressure from the Obama administration and Congress, the head of bailed-out insurance giant AIG declared Wednesday that some of the firm's executives have begun returning all or part of bonuses totaling $165 million.

Edward Liddy offered no details, and lawmakers were in no mood to wait. He was still fielding their questions when House Democratic leaders announced plans for a vote Thursday on legislation to tax away 90 percent of the extra pay for executives at AIG and many other bailed-out firms.

Liddy, brought in last year to oversee a company that has received $182 billion in federal bailout money, said he, too, was angry about the bonuses. But he did not respond directly when advised in pungent terms to pay to the Treasury all the money handed out last weekend in "retention payments."

"Eat it now. Take it out of your profits down the road. It's a lot sweeter now than it's gonna be later," said Rep. Gary Ackerman, D-N.Y.

Liddy slid into the witness chair at a congressional hearing as President Barack Obama sought anew to quell a furor that has bedeviled his administration since word of the bonuses surfaced over the weekend.

Obama, who took office just under two months ago,

told reporters his administration was not responsible for a lack of federal supervision of AIG that preceded the company's demise, nor for the decision made last year to pay what he called "outrageous bonuses."

Still, he said, "The buck stops with me." He said that "my goal is to make sure that we never put ourselves in this kind of position again," and he disclosed the administration was consulting with Congress on the possibility of creating a new agency to govern the meltdown of large financial institutions such as AIG.

He also gave a strong vote of confidence to Treasury Secretary Tim Geithner, who has been the target of growing Republican criticism.

Later, at a town hall meeting in Costa Mesa, Calif., Obama said that while his administration was addressing the AIG bonuses specifically, he said he wanted to "make sure we don't find ourselves in this situation again, where taxpayers are on the hook for losses in bad times and all the wealth generated in good times goes to those at the very top."

Obama spoke as congressional Democrats worked on legislation designed to recoup most or all of the $165 million by exposing it to new taxes.

Rep. Charles Rangel, D-N.Y., chairman of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee, said the new 90 percent tax would apply to bonus money paid to employees earning more than $250,000 at firms that have received more than $5 billion in federal bailout funds. Mortgage giants Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac are covered under the proposal.

Liddy said that on Tuesday, he had "asked those who have received retention payments in excess of $100,000 or more to return at least half of those payments." Some have "already stepped forward and returned 100 percent," he added.

Majority Leader Steny Hoyer, D-Md., said the House bill would be voted on under rules requiring a two-thirds majority for passage.

Recession fuels gold rush with Tupperware-style parties

By Rodrigue Ngowi
Associated Press writer

GRANBY, Conn. — The women gathered in the kitchen, enjoying brie and chocolate tortes as they told stories about their high school rings and pieces of jewelry given to them by ex-husbands and boyfriends. But they weren't just reminiscing for old times' sake.

The guests at Cheryl Podgorski's "gold party" were there to trade in their old jewelry for cash.

Gold parties — the recession answer to Tupperware parties — have become increasingly popular around the country as people cast about for ways to raise money. A professional gold buyer tests and appraises the guests' jewelry and then pays them on the spot.

Guests say getting together with friends in somebody's living room makes it a fun, social occasion, and feels more respectable than hocking their rings, necklaces and brooches at seedy pawn shops or selling them back to jewelry stores.

"It's terrific because it's a little bit intimidating to think about walking into a jewelry store, even though they may be heavily advertising it, and, you know, to someone that you don't know and turning over your valuables to them," said Pat Walsh, a 56-year-old retired store manager from Simsbury, Conn.

Walsh went home with $286 after selling a pinky ring she received as a wedding favor 35 years ago, circle-linked bracelets, broken necklaces and a few large, mismatched or outdated earrings.

Gold prices are close to their highest levels on record, hovering around $900 per ounce, up from $400 five years ago. Analysts say investors looking for a safe haven for their money while the stock market is in a meltdown could keep gold prices high for some time.

That — together with aggressive advertising by online scrap gold buyers, jewelry stores and gold party organizers — has led many people to clean out their jewelry boxes and dresser drawers.

Several companies are mining the phenomenon, which first began to thrive in Michigan a couple of years ago amid the struggles of the auto industry. My Gold Party LLC now has at least 35 representatives running parties in 21 states and is looking for more, said January Thomas, co-owner of the Grosse Pointe Woods, Mich.-based company.

"It's definitely a growing trend. I mean, the economy is not getting any better," Thomas said.

Actress Natasha Richardson, 45, dies after fall on ski slope

By Hillel Italie
Associated Press writer

NEW YORK — Natasha Richardson, a gifted and precocious heiress to acting royalty whose career highlights included the film "Patty Hearst" and a Tony-winning performance in a stage revival of "Cabaret," died Wednesday at age 45 after suffering a head injury during a beginners' ski lesson.

Alan Nierob, the Los Angeles-based publicist for Richardson's husband Liam Neeson, confirmed her death in a written statement.

"Liam Neeson, his sons (Micheal, 13, and 12-year-old Daniel), and the entire family are shocked and devastated by the tragic death of their beloved Natasha," the statement said. "They are profoundly grateful for the support, love and prayers of everyone, and ask for privacy during this very difficult time."

The statement did not give details on the cause of death for Richardson, who suffered a head injury and fell on a beginner's trail during a private ski lesson at the luxury Mont Tremblant ski resort in Quebec. Seemingly fine after the fall, about an hour later she complained that she didn't feel well.

She was hospitalized Tuesday in Montreal and later flown to a hospital in New York, where family members had been seen coming and going.

Vanessa Redgrave, Richardson's mother, arrived in a car with darkened windows and was taken through a garage when she arrived at the Lenox Hill Hospital on Manhattan's Upper East Side about 5 p.m. Wednesday.

An hour earlier, Richardson's sister, Joely, arrived alone and was swarmed by the media as she entered through the back of the hospital.

Democrats are in comfortable control of the House but do not control two-thirds of the seats, meaning the outcome of the vote would probably be determined by tax-averse Republicans.

Republicans raised pointed questions about the extent of Geithner's advance knowledge of the bonuses, and stressed they had been locked out of discussions earlier this year when Democrats decided to jettison a provision from legislation that could have revoked the payments.

"The fact is that the bill the president signed, which protected the AIG bonuses and others, was written behind closed doors by Democratic leaders of the House and Senate. There was no transparency," said Sen. Charles Grassley, R-Iowa, the senior Republican on the Senate Finance Committee.

Dino find raises questions on origin of feathers

By Malcolm Ritter
 Associated Press writer

NEW YORK — A small dinosaur that once roamed northeastern China was covered with a stiff, hairlike fuzz, a discovery that suggests feathers began to evolve much earlier than many researchers believe — maybe even in the earliest dinosaurs.

Scientists had previously identified feathers and so-called "dinofuzz" in theropods, two-legged meat-eaters that are widely considered the ancestors of birds.

But the Chinese creature is only distantly related to theropods, and the hollow filaments of its fuzz may be primitive feathers, say the scientists who report the find in today's issue of the journal Nature.

Dinosaurs split into two branches early on, more than 235 million years ago.

Theropods belong to one branch, and the Chinese creature is a primitive member of the other branch. Maybe both branches inherited primitive feathers from common ancestors before or at the split — in other words, the first dinosaurs, the researchers suggest.

Some other experts said they're not ready to buy that argument.

No fossils from the first dinosaurs are known, while the fossil record for feathers goes back about 150 million years.

The dinosaur find is reported by scientists at the Chinese Academy of Sciences and the Chinese Academy of Geological Sciences, both in Beijing, and elsewhere.

The creature lived sometime between 144 million and 99 million years ago. It walked on two legs and had a long tail. The discovered specimen — apparently not an adult — measured only about 28 inches long overall. It's not clear what the creature ate with its fang-like teeth.

The study authors named the creature Tianyulong confuciusi. The name comes from the Shandong Tianyu Museum of Nature in Shangdong Province, which houses the specimen, and the philosopher Confucius.

Tianyulong's remains, laid out on the surface of a stone slab, show three patches of hair-like fuzz. The filaments were generally about 1.5 inches long, but those on the tail were a bit more than 2 inches long.

While the study authors argue that primitive feathers may have been found in the earliest dinosaurs, they suggest that some later species lost them during evolution.

In a Nature commentary, Lawrence Witmer of the Ohio University College of Osteopathic Medicine said it's not yet certain whether Tianyulong's filaments are part of the evolution of feathers.

"Perhaps the only clear conclusion that can be drawn ... is that little Tianyulong has made an already confusing picture of feather origins even fuzzier," Witmer wrote.

Mark Norell, a prominent dinosaur researcher at the American Museum of Natural History in New York, said he'd already believed that the first dinosaurs had primitive feathers.

He believes most dinosaurs had something related to feathers, but that lack of preservation has hidden that in the fossil record.

Austrian incest father pleads guilty to charges, faces life

By Veronika Oleksyn and William J. Kole
 Associated Press writers

ST. POELTEN, Austria — Josef Fritzl abruptly pleaded guilty to all of the charges against him Wednesday — a surprising twist amid disclosures that the daughter he imprisoned for 24 years in a dungeon where she bore him seven children secretly sat in on the trial.

Adding intrigue to a case that has drawn worldwide attention, Fritzl calmly acknowledged his guilt, including to homicide, and said his change of heart came after hearing his daughter's heart-wrenching videotaped testimony.

"I declare myself guilty to the charges in the indictment," Fritzl, 73, told a panel of judges, referring to what he called "my sick behavior."

Fritzl was charged with negligent homicide in the death of an infant boy as well as enslavement, rape, incest, forced imprisonment and coercion. Initially he pleaded guilty to incest and partially guilty to rape and coercion. The change means he could face up to life in prison for the homicide charge.

Legal experts say the eight-member jury will still have to deliver verdicts despite Fritzl's guilty pleas, although his confessions could be grounds for a lesser sentence. Verdicts and sentences were expected today after closing statements.

Fritzl's daughter Elisabeth was the prosecution's key witness. Now 42, she was 18 when he imprisoned her in the squalid, windowless cell he built beneath the family's home in the town of Amstetten, where he raped her for years, sometimes in front of the children.

Asked by the judge what led him to change his mind, Fritzl said it was Elisabeth's testimony. Fritzl, jurors and others in court viewed 11 hours of her videotaped statement during closed-door sessions Monday and Tuesday, but officials were not allowed to provide details.

Fritzl's lawyer, Rudolf Mayer, said his client asked to see a psychiatrist after Tuesday's court hearing.

"It must really have shaken him up," he said of Elisabeth's testimony.

However, a person familiar with the trial told The Associated Press that Elisabeth herself was in court on both days, when the public and media were excluded — suggesting her presence might have unnerved Fritzl and prompted him to change his pleas. The person spoke on condition of anonymity because discussion of the closed proceedings was not authorized.

Before the trial, prosecutors had said Elisabeth would not be present. Court spokesman Franz Cutka said Elisabeth was not in court Wednesday and declined to comment further.

The homicide charge came for the death of a 2-day-old twin boy — Michael — born to Elisabeth in April 1996 who prosecutors say might have survived with proper medical care had he and his mother not been locked in the basement.

Elisabeth and her six surviving children, who range in age from 6 to 20, have spent months recovering in a psychiatric clinic and at a secret location. Prosecutors have described her as a "broken" woman.

Psychiatrist Adelheid Kastner told the court Wednesday that Fritzl has a serious personality disorder and would pose a threat to others if freed. She recommended that Fritzl serve his sentence in a special prison for psychologically deranged criminals or a ward for abnormal criminals in a regular jail.

Kastner told Austrian television Wednesday evening that she believes Fritzl is a suicide risk and should be monitored.

"For sure, he has reached the moment when the whole house of cards has collapsed," she said.

Fritzl expressed regret that he didn't bring the ailing infant out of the cellar and get medical help.

"I don't know why I didn't help," he said. "I just overlooked it. I thought the little one would survive."

"I should have recognized that the baby was doing poorly," he added.

Fritzl's lawyer had previously claimed his client only saw the newborn once he was already dead; Fritzl told investigators he burned the body in a furnace.

Salmon booms and busts tough to change

By Jeff Barnard
Associated Press writer

GRANTS PASS, Ore. — Federal fisheries biologists say the 2008 collapse of salmon returning to California's Sacramento River was triggered primarily by climatic conditions that produced little food in the ocean, compounded by too much reliance on fish produced in hatcheries instead of the wild.

NOAA Fisheries Service warned in the Wednesday report that there is little federal fisheries managers can do directly to prevent the boom and bust cycle from repeating, given the lack of genetic diversity brought about by as many as 90 percent of the young fish each year coming from hatcheries, and the increasing frequency of swings in ocean conditions.

They suggested the Pacific Fishery

Management Council, which sets ocean salmon fishing quotas, support the difficult long-term steps of rebuilding habitat in rivers, and reforming practices in hatcheries, to restore the genetic diversity that has allowed salmon to survive a changing environment for thousands of years.

"We have been wedded to this idea that the solution is just hatchery production," said Steve Lindley, a research ecologist for NOAA Fisheries in Santa Cruz, Calif. "I think that is the wrong response in the long run."

Hatcheries have operated for more than 100 years on the West Coast to make up for habitat lost to cities, farms, logging and mining.

Studies in recent years indicate that the

Many sights to behold when hiking Big Cottonwood Canyon near Oakley

By Andrew Weeks
Times-News writer

OAKLEY — After an ice sheet moved from one side of Goose Creek Reservoir to the other a little after 1 p.m. March 5, crashing into shore and leaving chunks of ice on the beach, Burley resident Ira Coltrin decided it was time to leave. After all, the ice caused him to lose his hook, line and sinker. Besides, he hadn't had luck catching any fish.

It was too windy, for one reason; too cold for another.

Instead of going home Coltrin headed to an area called Big Cottonwood Canyon, there to look for wild turkeys where he had seen them in the past. But like the fish he didn't catch, he also didn't see any turkeys.

But Times-News photographer Justin Jackson and I saw the birds — big and black in a field a couple hundred yards off — on our way out of the canyon later in the day.

I was familiar with a canyon by the same name in Utah, but not this one. It looked different, of Sun Valley Ski Instructor Tom Watson explains senior skiing techniques to Hailey resident Lynn Pritchett.

Sun Valley ski instructor becomes 'senior specialist'

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

Tom Watson has taught skiing for 37 years.

He's taught pizza wedges to kids, bump skiing to teenagers and parallel turns to adults.

Now the Sun Valley ski instructor has become one of the nation's first Senior Specialists.

The idea: to teach older skiers subtle changes they can make in their skiing so they can ski all day long with the vigor of a youngster.

"As a Sun Valley instructor, I want to have as many tools at my disposal as possible," said Watson, a former teacher in Bellevue, Wash. "These techniques are not anything earth-shattering. But they do make skiing easier so older skiers can enjoy the activity with the same intensity that they did at age 30 or 40."

Watson said he jumped at the opportunity to pursue accreditation because Sun Valley caters to a good number of skiers age 50 and older.

"Sun Valley gets a lot of very active older skiers. They're very good skiers. But even they can benefit by making a few small changes to take the pressure off their knees and hips," he said.

The Senior Specialist accreditation Watson received through PSIA-

NW (Professional Ski Instructors of America-Northwest) is so new that its developers are still developing techniques for skiing moguls, crud and off-piste.

"Two of the guys in our teaching clinic were in their late 70s and

end of the day,

group was

son said.

"Now, if I start to feel my legs tiring, I shift into those nuances

and I can ski all day!"

Seniors have special needs, Watson said. Many have arthritis or other joint problems. Many have blown out knees in the past or even had hip replacements. They don't have the strength they did at 30;

their reaction time is slower.

They may even have developed some fears due to worsening eyesight or other problems that are causing them to lean back.

One of the ways the new teaching methodology can help is by focusing on a "skarved turn," which gives skiers license to skid-up to a point.

"Everyone, especially racers, is taught that the ideal turn is a pure carve.

But that puts tremendous pressure on the knees and hips," Watson said.

"Skarved turns are made up of a skid and a carve.

They're not pure skidding but they're not a pure carve,

Running with California company's customizable shoes

"Don't just sell shoes. Solve Problems."

That's the pitch Somnio Running, a new company in Santa Cruz, Calif., gives retailers when talking about its line of high-end running shoes, which will be available in May for about $125.

Touted as the world's first "truly customizable" running shoes, Somnio's three debut models can be tweaked and adjusted in a shop to match a runner's unique anatomy and biomechanics. "It's like a bike fit for your feet," said Sean Sullivan, the company founder and a bike industry veteran.

The secret sauce in Somnio's (www.somniorunning.com) system includes three types of footbeds; cushion inserts with differing densities for the heel and forefoot areas; and varus wedge inserts made to help align the foot and lower leg.

In total, when mixed and matched these components and custom configurations can create 648 unique shoe types, including different setups for the right and left foot. "In five years, this could be the way most people will buy running footwear," Sullivan asserted.

I was fitted for a pair of Somnio shoes earlier this month at the Boulder Center for Sports Medicine in Boulder, Colo., where Dr. Andy Pruitt, an internationally-known athletic trainer, Sun Valley Ski Instructor Tom Watson says he can now ski all day long without feeling it in his quads.

Skiier

"We also work on things like moving in balance with the ski instead of driving it. And facing the direction we're skiing while slightly looking downhill, rather than having our shoulders squarely facing downhill."

techniques to the new ski equipment and make ski friends.

Watson said he tried the new techniques out on three California skiers, each of whom was over 70 years of age, last week.

The three — a man and two women — had talked about giving up skiing because it was getting too difficult for them. But by the end of the day, they were ooh-ing and awe-ing, Watson said. When he last saw them, they were headed off to the ski shop to buy new skis in anticipation of continuing skiing into their 80s.

Sun Valley Snowsports Supervisor Annie Erickson said the teachings sound like something that would fit in with Sun Valley's course offerings, along with the women's clinics, locals clinics and adaptive skiing lessons the resort already offers.

"I don't know much about it but it intrigues me very much," she said.

Snowsports Director Allan Patzer agreed.

"It does get harder for older people to ski the way they did when they were younger, and I'm including myself in that category," he said. "We can't ski the zipper line on the bumps the way we used to. We're faced with all these new styles of skis that beg us to ski differently than the way we used to. So, yes, I think we can make use of something like this."

Winchester's mini-mag: The .22 WMR

It was the most dramatic one-shot kill of a small game animal I had ever witnessed. And considering that it was also the first round of .22 Winchester Magnum (WMR) I had ever triggered at anything other than a paper target or aluminum can, I was doubly impressed.

SHOOTING THE BULL
Rich Simpson

This incident occurred along the banks of the Popo Agie River above Lander, Wyo., early in the summer of '86 and involved one very surprised angler (me) and one very perturbed skunk. We happened upon one another in the tall ferns lining the river bank. My first glimpse revealed the crouching skunk just three feet away with its posterior pointed in my direction.

I instinctively drew my Ruger .22 Single Six revolver, thumbed back the hammer, centered the pole cat above the front sight and jerked the trigger. The 40 gr. jacketed hollow point slammed the skunk to the ground, killing it so quickly that it never had a chance to spray me down. I was impressed!

Though initially developed as a rifle cartridge, the .22 Winchester Magnum Rimfire first saw the light of day in Smith & Wesson and Ruger revolvers, as well as Savage's curious Model 24 — a unique .22/410 over-under combination gun. The Big Red "W" didn't chamber one of its own rifles, the Model 61 slide action, until late in 1960.

Designed to be the browniest stallion in its rimfire stable, the .22 WMR was formed by lengthening and strengthening the casing of its own .22 Winchester Rimfire (WRF) — a rimfire powerhouse from the 1890s.

This increased powder capacity allowed the new WMR to blast its 40 gr. jacketed hollow points out of rifle length barrels at 1,900 fps, easily besting the more sedate 1,450 fps of the WRF. Handgunners could muster an impressive 1,400 fps from the abbreviated barrels of their weapons.

So where does the .22 WMR fit within the realm of modern hunting and sporting cartridges?

In my opinion, the .22 WMR fills a relatively narrow niche as a specialty small game and varmint hunting cartridge. By launching bullets of similar weights at nearly twice the velocity, the .22 WMR easily trumps the performance of the most popular small game rimfire round of all time, the .22 LR. With its 40 gr. bullet carrying as much velocity out at 100 yards as the .22 LR does at the muzzle, the hunter enjoys a much flattened trajectory curve, enhanced penetration, expansion, and known-down power at all ranges.

In fact, when pursuing small edible beasts such as rabbits and tree squirrels, many hunters substitute the lower-powered .22 WRF, which is much less damaging to eating meat and completely safe to use in guns chambered for the .22 WMR.

A number of friends have discovered the joys of calling coyotes in close and have replaced their trusty .223s and .22-250s with .22 Mags. shooting Hornady's new 30 V-Max slugs.

But not me. As soon as the new grass starts to push up from the warming earth, I'm heading to the lava fields with my CZ 452 and Ruger Single Six in tow. I'll be sniping gophers and rock chucks with my .22 WMR's, continuing a 49-year-old rimfire varmint tradition.

Good shooting!

How to get there

Big Cottonwood Wildlife Management Area is northwest of Oakley in Cassia County. To reach the site, take Interstate 84 to Exit 208 (Burley) and travel 20 miles south on State Highway 27 to the BCWMA sign (1600 South). Turn west on 1600 South and follow the signs 7 miles to the management area. For more information: <http://fishandgame.idaho.gov/cms/wildlife/wma/bigcotton/> hunters and backpackers also use the area.

Beware, if you go: You might run into wildlife.

We came across a beaver dam near a pool of water, which we later found out was a beaver pond.

The 814-acre area was purchased by Fish and Game in 1993 for fish and wildlife conservation and is home to reintroduced California bighorn sheep, mule deer, upland birds, wild turkeys, bobcat, Yellowstone cutthroat trout and other wildlife, according to Fish and Game.

Fish & Game also says visitors to the area might even see red-tailed hawks.

As stars go, the sun is below the median but above the mean

It's heard so often in astronomy, it's almost a cliché: The sun is an average star. But it really depends on how you look at it.

Size (or, more precisely, diameter) is what most people think of when comparing stars. The sun is about 100 times wider than the smallest stars, while the largest stars span 2,000 times the sun's diameter. In this sense the sun is a pipsqueak. But since the smallest stars vastly outnumber the largest, the sun's diameter is actually well above the average.

Then there's the sun's mass (or "weight"). The lightest red dwarf stars possess about 8 percent of the sun's mass (any smaller and their cores would be too cool to produce energy by nuclear fusion). The largest supergiant stars weigh in at 150 solar masses. As with diameters, that makes the sun's mass closer to the lightest stars than the heaviest due to the relative scarcity of the latter. And again, because low mass stars are so commonplace, the sun weighs in above average.

A star's mass is the primary determinant of its surface temperature. Red dwarf stars glow at less than 6,000 degrees Fahrenheit. Blue-white supergiants blaze at 90,000 degrees Fahrenheit. The sun is about 10,000 degrees, but determining the average stellar temperature is a tricky business, since the range of stellar masses (and temperatures) has changed over the uni-

The oldest stars are tiny, cool red dwarfs that have been slowly consuming their supply of hydrogen fuel since shortly after the universe's birth 14 billion years ago, and are still feebly shining with many billions of years' worth of fuel left. If a red dwarf is a gas-sipping Prius, then a supergiant is a stellar Hummer, guzzling its entire supply of hydrogen in about a million years. The sun, at 5 billion years old, has roughly half its fuel remaining.

Alleged poacher snared with GPS

OGDEN, Utah (AP) — A trapper accused of illegally killing bobcats is challenging the use of a GPS device that was attached to his truck as he visited dozens of trap lines in northern Utah.

Lawyers for Jared Beal, 41, of North Ogden, say game wardens weren't justified in using the Global Positioning Device, which they surreptitiously attached to his truck at his home.

They want a state judge to throw out evidence that includes 31 pelts taken from his house.

Authorities say Beal was exceeding his bobcat quota in Utah and selling 60 or more pelts a year in Wyoming.

Shoes

was hired as a consultant to help develop and refine the Somnio system. My custom shoes — assembled after a 10-minute treadmill run and a foot analysis on Somnio's measuring device — were made to help me correct a pronation problem and better align my ankles and hips.

Arch comfort, leg alignment, cushioning, foot strike, and pronation control are among the benefits a Somnio customer might find. The company touts its shoes as making a runner more efficient, more comfortable, faster, and less prone to injury.

"Biomechanically, human beings are made to walk, not run," said Dr. Pruitt. He noted the stresses put on the feet, ankles, knees, hips and back from excessive running. "We hope this shoe can give people a longer overall running career."

Customizing footwear is not exactly a new concept. One-off custom orthotics are a standard item at places like the Boulder Center for Sports Medicine, though they can cost hundreds of dollars.

Or, go to any established running shop and your stride can be assessed in minutes on a treadmill. From there, Nike, Brooks, Asics and other companies have long offered shoe types to correct pronation and other stride issues, marketing models made for stability, motion control, or neutral stances.

A Somnio fitting employs similar assessment techniques, including foot size, arch-height measurement, cant, and pronation. The shoe builder then notches in the Somnio heel and forefoot cushions, adds a varus wedge, and inserts the footbed to make one of the possible 648 shoe types to, in theory, fit your foot like a glove.

My initial test included a couple miles of running on a treadmill.

The custom shoes felt good on my feet, and my strides were quiet as I paced along on the conveyed rubber mat.

But over the next few weeks, where I'll start using my Somnios outside on training runs, the true nature of these shoes will come to light. Somnio's patented product seems like a neat evolution for footwear. The company has an impressive system for fit.

Now, I need to pace out a few dozen miles to see how the company's prescribed fit works for me.

course, but pretty. We followed Coltrin to the site, a Wildlife Management Area, northwest of Oakley, and after he left we decided to hike in an area along Big Cottonwood Trail.

A visitors box greeted us, where scribbled on paper were 12 entries that listed 24 people who had used the trail from Jan. 11 to Feb. 28. Off to the right were comments:

"Nice ride."
"We need a few fish here."
"Put where to fish on Web site."

By the time we hit the trail the wind had calmed — or maybe it just wasn't blowing like it had been at Goose Creek — and the quietude of the surroundings enveloped us. It was later shattered by what sounded like the baying of wolves far off in the distance.

Juniper foothills climbed near the trail, which sat near a small creek, with sage brush leading to their tops. The area also is home to cottonwood, river birch and willow trees, according to the Idaho Department of Fish and Game Web site.

The trail is used for hiking, horseback riding and mountain biking. Anglers,

Biologists release 3,000 endangered fish in Utah river

LAVERKIN, Utah (AP) — Biologists released 3,000 endangered woundfin into the Virgin River as part of an effort to reintroduce the rare fish.

The release, which took place last Thursday, was the second one this month. Previously, 1,500 Virgin River chub were released into the river, which winds through Washington County in southern Utah.

Amos Rehm, a fish biologist with the Utah Department of Natural Resources, says woundfin and other fish have suffered because of invasive species as well as human pressures like development and water use.

Rehm says a plan to pump irrigation water from reservoirs back upstream should keep water levels higher for the fish.

system creates fish that are less able to survive in the wild, especially in hard times.

On Tuesday, a 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruling upheld NOAA Fisheries' discretion to use hatcheries to bolster endangered runs, but not rely on them to replace wild fish.

In the Sacramento, wild strains of chinook did not collapse so precipitously as the fall run, which is dominated by hatchery fish, the report found.

"I would predict that given ocean conditions improving and a record level of hatchery production, we will see record levels of the fishery again in a few years," Lindley said. "But it's not going to last. We are going to have this problem again. And it may be more severe next time."

Sport and commercial fishing seasons off California and Oregon were practically shut down in 2008 after a sudden drop in the Sacramento fall chinook run, and fishermen qualified for $170 million in federal disaster assistance.

Forecasts call for about twice as many salmon overall on the West Coast this year, but the numbers are still low, and fishing is expected to remain sparse off California and Oregon until next year, when numbers are forecast to rebound thanks to a flip in the climatic cycle that governs food abundance in the ocean.

The report discounted arguments that record irrigation withdrawals from the Sacramento Delta in 2006, the year that the 2008 adults migrated to the ocean, were a factor in the collapse.

Hatchery fish are generally trucked around the delta and released in San Francisco Bay, and those swimming through the delta had gone through by the time heavy pumping occurred in the summer, Lindley said.

Glen Spain of Pacific Coast Federation of Fishermen's Associations, which represents California salmon fishermen, said it was still important to fix the obstacles of fish swimming through the delta, because very few survive the journey.

"We have an obligation to fix the delta and fix the river system first, because that's the stuff we screwed up as humans," he said.

Lindley said a faulty forecast model allowed too much fishing in 2007, but that did not cause the collapse. The forecast model has been corrected.

OUTDOORS IN BRIEF

Magic Valley Fly fishers to meet

The Magic Valley Fly fishers will hold their regular monthly meeting tonight at the Rock Creek Restaurant, 200 Addison Ave. W. in Twin Falls.

The meeting will start at 7 p.m. The featured program of the meeting will be the showing of a DVD entitled, "Drift." If you covet action and watching fly-fishing personalities get their fill of it, you'll like the video. It features stunning cinematography and far-flung fly-fishing personalities that include footage from Kashmir, Belize, Bahamas, Green River and the Frying Pan to name a few. The meeting is open to the public.

Fish & Game to set big game seasons

The Idaho Fish and Game Commission is scheduled to set seasons for deer, elk, pronghorn, black bear and mountain lion during its Boise meeting, March 23 and 24.

The two-day meeting at Fish and Game headquarters, 600 S. Walnut in Boise, kicks off with a public comment period at 7 p.m. March 23 in the Trophy Room at Fish and Game headquarters.

Agenda items include a legislative update and an update on wolf status and management. Commissioners also will hear updates on grizzly bear recovery and outfitting upland game and waterfowl.

Fish and Game managers will present a draft pelican management plan and a proposal for a spring Chinook salmon season.

Strutters to hold couple banquet

The South Hills Strutters, the Twin Falls Chapter of The National Wild Turkey Federation, will hold its 5th Annual Couple Banquet on March 28 at Radio Rondevoo, 241 Main Ave. W. in Twin Falls. Doors Open at 5 p.m., dinner at 6:30. Chef Kirt Martin of the Snake River Grill will serve prime rib or marinated chicken breast.

Costs are as follows: Single $55 (includes one membership and one meal); couple $80 (includes one membership and two meals); sponsor $285 (includes one sponsor membership, two meals, $100 in raffle tickets, one lapel pin, one NWTFF sponsor knife, one multi-tool set and a one-in-eight chance to win a gun or other prizes.); Jake $25 (17 years and younger, one youth membership and one meal). Gun-of-the-year raffle tickets $20 each

(Winchester Super X3 gas operated, 12-gauge auto-loading shotgun.)

A live and silent auction, games and raffles will also be held. Space is limited. Tickets can be purchased at the door. Proceeds go toward local projects.

For information: John Howard at 734-9116 or 737-9900, or Kirby Butler at 420-4881.

Boater safety class scheduled

The Twin Falls County Sheriff's Office, in conjunction with Century Boat Land, is offering a free Boater Safety Education course from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday at Century Boat Land, 299 Addison Ave. W. in Twin Falls.

This is an approved course through Idaho Parks and Recreation and the United States Coast Guard. Participants will receive a certificate upon completion. The class is open to all ages and is designed for anyone who owns or operates any type of boat, including jet skis, on Idaho waterways.

Boat inspections will also be conducted during this time. To register: Lori Nebeker at 736-4126.

F&G annual fur auction in April

The Idaho Fish and Game annual Hide and Fur Auction will be held starting at 9 a.m. April 25 at the Fish and Game region office, 324 S. 417 E. in Jerome. The spring auction, also known as the "Fur Sale," will include items such as hides, furs, antlers and horns. No wolves this year.

A taxidermist-furbuyer license is required in advance to bid on bear or mountain lion parts. Resident licenses are $40 for one year, and nonresident licenses are $140.75. The licenses can be purchased at any F&G office. Buyers for personal use are not required to have a taxidermist-furbuyer license.

A preview period begins at 8 a.m., and the auction starts at 9 a.m. Only checks and cash will be accepted as payment for the winning bids.

For more information or a list of auction items: 208-324-4359.

Remington Arms names new CEO

The Board of Directors of Remington Arms Company and its parent, Freedom Group, Inc. has named Theodore (Ted) Torbeck as the CEO of both entities. Torbert replaces Thomas (Tommy) Millner, who has accepted the CEO and president's position at Cabela's Incorporated.

In a statement, Freedom Group Chairman Paul Miller thanked Millner for his many years of leadership, saying Torbeck's experience would be important as the companies worked to "expand into new markets."

Scheduled shoot at Jerome Gun Club

The Jerome Gun Club will hold a sporting clays shoot on April 4. This is a 100-target event. If you have never shot sporting clays at Jerome Gun Club, your first 50 targets are free. Cost is $20 for adults and $14 for juniors under age 18. There is a $5 charge for non-members.

Sign up time is 9 a.m. and a shotgun start begins at 10 a.m.

On March 28, April 4, 11 and 18, is a league shoot. Shooters may shoot in the league or just shoot for fun.

The club is located 11 miles north of the junction of Highway 93 and Interstate 84 at mile marker 64.

The next scheduled shoot is April 19.

Question: Bill asked: "My wife & I divorced about 3 years ago. She was awarded the house which had a 1st & 2nd mortgage. I was ordered to pay 1/2 of the monthly payments on the 2nd mortgage until the $75,000.00 balance was paid. Last year my wife refinanced the house & paid off the 2nd mortgage. I know I owe half of the balance that was paid off, but the loss of my job has kept me from paying anything. My wife was recently killed in an accident & her father is the personal representative of her estate. He is dragging me back into divorce court to try & force me to pay the estate the money that I owed to my deceased ex-wife. Would a bankruptcy take care of this debt?"

Answer: A bankruptcy discharge eliminates your legal obligation to repay most debts. However, there are certain debts that are not discharged, including debts to a former spouse arising from a divorce. If your former wife were still alive, your bankruptcy would not eliminate your debt to her. But due to her untimely death, a bankruptcy will help you. Bankruptcy courts have ruled in similar situations that the personal representative of the estate does not have legal "standing" to challenge the discharge. Therefore, the property settlement debt to your deceased ex-wife will be eliminated in your bankruptcy.

New deputy fire chief on the job in Jerome

By Mary Hanson
Times-News correspondent

JEROME — This week Karine Aebi celebrated two major milestones — her 40th birthday and being sworn in as the City of Jerome's deputy fire chief.

Aebi was sworn in to her new position at Tuesday's Jerome City Council meeting.

Aebi, originally from Oregon, received an associate degree in fire science from Boise State University, where she is currently finishing up her baccalaureate work.

Aebi has worked as a firefighter in Oregon, Washington and Caldwell and said, "I had a pretty good idea about the way Jerome's department works together. I'm happy to get here and get started. I can see there is a lot to know about Jerome and the Jerome area."

Aebi said she enjoys teaching and presenting hands-on workshops, which she said she has spent a lot of time doing. In addition to her regular duties with the city, she hopes to use her teaching experience to promote fire prevention in the area.

Aebi is an avid motorcyclist and enjoys skiing, hunting and fishing.

Heading toward a new phase

Longtime Jerome Library employee Mary Vogel readies for retirement

By Mary Hanson
Times-News correspondent

JEROME — Retiring Jerome Public Library Assistant Director Mary Vogel and her husband, Leon, have made a lot of decisions about retirement.

The first is "nothing is final about our plans." The second is that they will take some time and visit each of their six children and their families. That means in addition to Canada, they will visit Georgia, Nebraska, Lewiston, Weiser and St. Anthony.

Vogel has lived all her life in Idaho and most of it in the Jerome area. Leon came to Idaho when he was a young man. The couple plans to keep a lifelong habit of volunteering and contributing to the community, especially their work in their church.

Vogel plays the acoustic guitar and has led a music ministry for many years. She and her husband also lead and participate in various prayer groups which they say are very important to them.

"We are so excited about this new phase of our lives!" Vogel said. "But we will be in and out of Jerome and we expect to continue seeing all the people we love, and seeing our friends and neighbors."

"We've been busy giving stuff away for quite awhile," Vogel said. "But we are keeping our house."

"My husband and I are looking forward to time to be together. We've always done everything together."

Co-worker and friend, Edie Waite, said, "Mary has a great sense of humor and we are going to miss her keeping us laughing." She was a great trainer for new librarians and in fact, she trained me.

"Mary will be sorely missed at the library," Waite said.

On Wednesday, library patrons can stop in during regular hours to congratulate Vogel.

Jerome Search and Rescue installs new officers

Installation of 2009 officers for Jerome County Sheriff's Search and Rescue was held recently during a banquet.

Those installed include Commander Jeramy Wells, Vice Commander Bill Wilson, Secretary/Treasurer Ranae Capps and Directors Aaron Crockett, Cinda Wilson, Regina Rock, and Samantha Warren, along with Deputy Sheriff Rick Ustick, liaison officer.

Several members were recognized for their years of service in Jerome County Search and Rescue.

Five years: Donna Jacobsen, Ranae Capps, Calvin Connell, and Sassy Connell.

Twenty years: Regina Rock, Samantha Warren, and Bill Wilson.

Twenty-five years: Robert Helms.

Thirty years: Fritz Gratzler, who was also voted in as a lifetime member.

Thirty-five years ago on Dec. 22, 1974, Jerome snowmobiler Randy Hayes was lost in the mountains south of Twin Falls. A call was made and snowmobilers from Mini-Cassia, Twin Falls and Jerome met at Diamond Field Jack's snowmobile site to search for Hayes.

His body was found Dec. 27, 1974. Shortly after that, Jerome snowmobilers formed the Randy Hayes Memorial Jerome County Sheriff's Search and Rescue Organization. Since then the organization has been called many times to search for and rescue missing persons and bodies of deceased persons. In the past five years, search dogs and their handlers have been added to the unit. The six dogs are from the Twin Falls K-9 group and are capable of finding lost persons and cadavers. The organization also participates in monthly training in repelling off the Snake River canyon walls, rigging of rescue ropes, and rescue dog handling support. The unit has several rescue boats for use in the river and in lakes for search and recovery.

Ringworm treated with over-the-counter meds

DEAR DR. GOTT: My young son has two areas of ringworm on his arm. Since we've never experienced this before, I would like some direction as to how I can best treat it.

DEAR READER: Ringworm is an infection of the skin caused by a fungus, not by a worm, as the name implies. There are several forms that present

ASK DR. GOTT

with itchy, red, scaly patches that can blister and ooze. Areas commonly affected are arms, legs, nails, the scalp, groin and feet. Those that occur around the groin area are commonly known as jock itch; those of the feet are commonly known as athlete's foot.

Bacteria and fungi live on the body. While some are useful, others are not. Those that aren't have the ability to multiply rapidly and form infections.

Ringworm is contagious and can be passed easily from person to person through direct contact, by sharing a hairbrush, comb, unwashed clothing or in common shower areas. Dogs (and more commonly) cats also carry the fungus.

Ringworm is ordinarily diagnosed through an exam. It is most often eradicated without physician involvement by using over-the-counter antifungal creams, lotions or powders, specifically those that contain miconazole. One such product is Miranel, which contains 2 percent miconazole nitrate as its active ingredient. It is promoted as an antifungal for areas around and under nails but can be applied directly to areas where ringworm exists. Treatment with this or other brands available at your local pharmacy should show results within a four-week period. Your pharmacist will be able to assist you with the brands he or she carries.

Keep infected areas dry,

If any lesion is questionable, consult a physician. He or she can test with a blue light in a darkened room. If a fungus appears, it will appear fluorescent and will provide the proper diagnosis. Consult a doctor if patches worsen in intensity, become warm to the touch, if a fever occurs, or if red streaking appears near the site of the ringworm.

Swainston awarded for weather service

Luann Swainston of Richfield has contributed to the National Weather Service Cooperative Weather Observations program for 10 years.

Her service in weather observing and weather record-keeping for the community of Richfield and the National Weather Service provides climatic information to the state and the nation. Swainston received her certificate and lapel pin to commemorate the occasion on March 3.

Across southeastern Idaho and northern Utah, nearly 70 volunteer weather observers provide weather reports fundamental in assisting the National Weather Service — a division of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration — to more accurately predict the climate of the region.

Swainston is among a group of people contributing their time to accurately collect weather information used in NWS climate forecasts. These people are part of the National Weather Service's Cooperative program of nearly 12,000 volunteers.

William (Bill) E. Barkdull III

William (Bill) E. Barkdull III passed away March 11, 2009, in Denver, Colo.

Bill was born Feb. 4, 1962, to Bill and Darlene Barkdull in Burley, Idaho. He grew up in the Mini-Cassia area, attending school in Burley and spending summers working on the family farm in Raft River.

Bill was a jack-of-all-trades and took pride in the labors of a hard day's work. After high school he moved to Aurora, Neb., and became a master welder. He spent several years out in the Midwest working on large construction projects in many major metropolitan cities, specializing in structural steel.

In 1988 he moved back to the Mini-Cassia area where he met, and later married, Lynne Eppers. Here they made their home and raised their two boys, Blake and Keven. Bill found his calling in the directional drilling trade and took up traveling once again to give his family a good life; he never hesitated in sacrificing himself to provide for them; they were the light of his life.

In 2005 he went to work for JM Cable out in Erie, Co. Blake accompanied him as his drilling apprentice and Bill taught Blake everything he needed to know to become an expert in the trade. Due to the hardships of working away from home, he and Lynne divorced in 2007, and Bill made a new home in Loveland, Colorado, for Keven and him to spend every opportunity they got together.

Bill was preceded in death by his loving mother, Leona (Darlene) Barkdull. He is survived by his father, William E. Barkdull Jr. of Burley; children, Blake (Autumn) Eppers and Keven Barkdull of Rupert; granddaughters, Draya and Darien Eppers, also of Rupert; sisters, Carolyn (Randy) Hymas of Twin Falls, Marlene (Gene) Olsen of Clovis, Calif., and Genese (Chip) Martini of Burley; and many nieces, nephews and friends, with special mention going to Gary McLaws, Mike Tegan and George Raimodi, his closest friends.

Bill lived a fearless life of travel and hard work which was a major contributor in the early departure of a beloved father, son, brother and friend. His motto was to "work hard and play harder;" and those who knew him best know he wouldn't have lived his life any other way.

A small memorial will be held in his honor at a later date. You were loved and you will be missed, Dad—Rest in peace!!

Virgil 'Don' Mitchell

JEROME — On March 7, 2009, at Twin Falls, Idaho, America lost another WWII veteran. Don Mitchell, 88, passed away while at River Ridge Care Center.

Vegas until they retired and moved to Jerome. Don and Laura loved to travel around our beautiful country together. They were each other's constant companion.

Don is survived by his wife of 57 years, Laura E. Mitchell, and many friends.

He was preceded in death by his parents.

His soft-spoken humor and kindness will be missed. Don's final resting place will be in the Idaho State Veteran's Cemetery in Boise, Idaho.

Arrangements are under the care of Farnsworth Mortuary of Jerome.

Don was born Sept. 18, 1920, in Vernon, Texas, the son of Charles and Alma Mitchell. He served in the U.S. Army Air Corps and was severely injured in combat in France. He was honorably discharged on Jan. 24, 1946.

While working in Las Vegas, he met and later married his "child bride" Laura E. Hallier on June 12, 1951. They both worked in Las excited about attending the jamboree in 2010, to be involved in a celebration honoring the 100th birthday of the Boy Scout program.

Rex was born Sept. 15, 1955, in Jerome, the son of Rex B. and Lucile Garner Thomason. He was raised with a brother and sister on a farm in the Falls City community southeast of Jerome and attended Falls City School through the third grade. He then attended Washington Elementary and Jerome Junior High School and graduated from Jerome High School in 1974. He worked at Tupperware for a short time, then enrolled at the College of Southern Idaho in the vocational-technical program and received an applied science degree in the drafting program. He worked for Volco Inc. as a draftsman, then worked for Tupperware in the maintenance department for several years until its closure in 1988. He also worked for Sears and Lynwood Chevron, and was working for Black Petroleum at the time of his death.

Rex was a great handyman; he could build or repair most anything, such as decks and steps. At the age of 12, he became a Boy Scout in Troop 36, sponsored by the Jerome LDS 1st Ward, which began his lifetime of activity with the Scouting program. He has served in many positions with the Boy Scouts and was serving as National Jamboree secretary and Order of the Arrow committee member at the time of his death. He attended the National Boy Scout Jamboree in 1981 as an assistant Scoutmaster, then attended jamborees in 1985, 1989, 1997, 2001 and 2005, serving on staff in the trading post and on security. He was preparing for and was

He participated in Wood Badge in 1982, received a Silver Beaver award in 1994 and was a member of the Order of the Arrow. He liked to go to traderees, where he could buy or swap Scout patches, neckerchiefs and other memorabilia. He had a large collection of these items and often displayed them at Eagle Scout courts of honor and other Scouting functions. Many of his patches were ones he had designed for the Snake River Council and Order of the Arrow, Mai I Shu Lodge No. 363. He also had many parts for a model railroad and a big coin collection.

He was preceded in death by his grandparents; and his father, Rex B. Thomason. He is survived by his mother, Lucile G. Thomason of Jerome; brother, David (Jill) Thomason of Syracuse, Utah; sister, Ellen Kaye Thomason of Jerome; four nieces, Natalee, Marin and Audree Thomason, all of Salt Lake City, Utah, and Kaitlin Thomason of Syracuse, Utah; and many friends.

The funeral will be at 11 a.m. Saturday, March 21, at the Jerome LDS Stake Center, 26 N. Tiger Drive. Friends and family may call from 6 to 8 p.m. Friday, March 20, at Farnsworth Mortuary, 1343 S. Lincoln in Jerome, and from 10 to 10:45 a.m. Saturday at the church. In lieu of donations, the family requests donations be made in his memory to the Boy Scouts of America, Snake River Council, 2988 Falls Ave. E., Twin Falls, ID 83301.

Brett 'Spiffie' Hanway

Brett "Spiffie" Hanway, 35, of Twin Falls, passed away Monday, March 16, 2009, in Twin Falls.

He was born Sept. 24, 1973, in Washington, DC, to Lewis and Barbara Hanway. Brett spent the early part of his childhood traveling the country and Europe with his parents as an Army family. Afterwards, he made a permanent home in Kimberly.

Brett met Debbie Sousa in October, 1996, and they spent 12 years creating a beautiful life and family together. To this union, two daughters, Tyra and Bryanna, and a beautiful son, Daryl, (who blessed us all for just a short time) were born.

was an avid KC Chief fan and enjoyed antagonizing his big brother and sister.

In addition to his two daughters, Tyra and Bryanna, he is survived by his parents, Lewis and Barbara Hanway; brother, Robert (Rhoda) Hanway; sister, Kathy (Jeff) Logan; significant other, Janie Hamilton; several nieces and nephews; and a wonderful assortment of very special friends.

A memorial service will be held at 11 a.m., Saturday, March 21, at Parke's Magic Valley Funeral Home, 2551 Kimberly Road, Twin Falls. A graveside inurnment will follow at the Twin Falls Cemetery Memorial Columbarium.

Condolences may be sent to the family at www.magicvalleyfuneral-home.com.

Harold Leroy Porter

JEROME — Harold Leroy Porter, 72, of Jerome, began his eternal journey after passing peacefully from this earth on Friday, March 13, 2009, at Twin Falls Care Center following a long and hard-fought battle with lung cancer.

He was born Sept. 23, 1936, in Hamilton, Ontario, Canada, to Sara Jean and Harry Porter. He grew up around Ontario and British Columbia, Canada, until moving to Hailey, Idaho, where he attended high school.

After high school, Harold enlisted in the United States Army and was stationed in Germany where he met and married his wife of 49 years, Karin. Together, they traveled extensively throughout his military career. Following his retirement from the Army, they returned to Twin Falls. In 1982, Harold and his family moved to Hailey where Harold pursued a new career opportunity. He retired again in 2001, and they settled in Jerome where they resided until Harold's passing.

Harold was a Vietnam veteran and a member of the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars. He was also a member of the Masonic Lodge, Order of the Eastern Star and he was a Shriner. He enjoyed riding his mini bike in several local parades.

Harold is survived by his wife, Karin of Jerome; daughter, Barbara of Twin Falls; son, William of Hailey; sister, Valerie (Doug) Pinder of Ontario, Canada; and sister, Patricia (Tom) Koretchuk of British Columbia, Canada.

At Harold's request, no services will be held. A private family interment will follow at a later date. In lieu of flowers, the family suggests memorial contributions be made in Harold's name to a charity of the donor's choice.

Jared D. Harding

BOISE — We lost our beloved son, brother and friend on Sunday, March 15, 2009, and the BSU Broncos lost one of their biggest fans.

Jared D. Harding, 40, of Boise and formerly of Jerome, was born on May 29, 1968, in Gooding, Idaho. He grew up in Jerome and graduated from high school in 1986.

He was an avid sportsman, playing Optimist baseball where he was always chosen for the all-star games, then moving on to football in junior high and high school. In spite of his small stature he was a starting lineman for the Jerome Tigers. He was most proud of being a part of the 1985 State Championship team and of being chosen for the Shiners' All Star Game.

After graduation, he went to visit a friend in Irvine, Calif. He found a good job and a great family to live with so he stayed for two years. While there, he learned to surf and loved spending time on the beach and in the ocean. He then went north to Olympia, Wash., near his cousins so he could be back closer to the mountains and away from the California crowds.

In 1990, he moved back home to Idaho, settling in Boise where his parents and sister were living at the time. He ventured into many endeavors, spending several years with Tony Applegate, building custom motorcycles, but worked most years at Sun Valley Marble.

Along the way he met a lot of great people, a few of which became life-long friends. He remained a fan of football, but was almost fanatical about the Boise State Broncos. His home décor had shifted to blue and orange, and every game was an event. He was our resident expert on all the technical details of the games, pointing out officials' errors in calls and stats on all the plays.

Besides his passion for BSU football, he was most happy and comfortable in the mountains. He was known to brave the rains of Washington State and in Idaho the snows of winter and mosquitoes of summer, just to be in the mountains camping and fishing with his friends. His sister will miss the "arguments" around the camp fire of who had the most privileges and who was punished the most growing up. Sometimes we did this just to see how long our friends would tolerate the "poor me" stories.

To many who didn't know him well, Jared appeared to be very shy and quiet. But to any who had the honor of being in his inner circle, we got to know his witty and wry sense of humor and his ability to converse on most any subject. He valued his friends, and was loyal and generous. He readily sacrificed any extras for himself when a friend was in need.

Jared is survived by his parents, Don and LaNona Harding; sister, Keri Moran; and brother-in-law, Brad Ooley.

As parents, we had a son to be proud of. He was unassuming and independent, never asking anything of us except our love. His wit, his honesty, his compassion will be missed immeasurably by us, and by all who knew him.

A memorial and visitation will be held on Saturday, March 21, from 1 to 4 p.m., at the home of his parents, 802 15th Ave. E., in Jerome. Please, no flowers — you may make a contribution to a favorite cause if you desire. Arrangements are under the care of Farnsworth Mortuary of Jerome.

Mary Jo Phillips Berge

Mary Jo Phillips Berge was born on June 2, 1943, in Portland, Ore., to Edward and Lucille Phillips. She spent the majority of her growing-up years in Valley City, ND, and remained there until she graduated from high school.

She met and married Frank Berge on Jan. 19, 1968, in Aberdeen, Wash., moving to St. Maries in 1977 where she lived and raised her children, until moving to the Magic Valley in 2004 to live near her daughters.

Mary Jo was devoted to her family; she was a loving homemaker, mother, grandmother and wife. She enjoyed reading, cooking, collecting recipes and being outside in the sunshine.

She was preceded in death by her parents, Edward Phillips and Lucille Schilling Phillips; and is survived by her sister, Donna McDonald of St. Maries; her husband, Frank; her two daughters, Donna Hatch and Christine Custer, both of Twin Falls; five grandchildren, Phillips Hayman, Christopher Hayman, Paige Hatch, Rachel Custer and Benjamin Custer; and her step-son, Randy Berge, and his three sons. The family suggests memorials be sent to the Shriner's Hospital for Crippled Children, P.O. Box 2472, Spokane, Wash. 99210. A memorial service will be held at 1 p.m., Saturday, March 21, at the First Presbyterian Church of Twin Falls.

Mae Johnson

JEROME — Mae Johnson, 89, of Jerome, passed away March 17, 2009, in Jerome.

She was born July 11, 1919, in Blackfoot, Idaho, the daughter of Jack Rudolph and Carry Midtlieder Rudolph. She was raised in Kimberly.

Mae married Roy Walter Johnson and they made their home in Kimberly where they had three children. In 1972, they settled in Jerome where Mae worked at Tupperware and also farmed with her husband. She loved gardening and her flowers and also enjoyed crocheting.

Mae is survived by her son, Dale (Iris) Johnson of Gooding; her daughter, Bonnie Johnson of Jerome; step-son, Donald (Inez) Johnson of Medford, Ore.;

three grandsons, Wally Johnson, Rex Johnson and Ben Johnson; three great-grandchildren; one sister, Hannah (Ray) Read of Kimberly; and many extended family members and friends.

A graveside service will be conducted at 2 p.m., Saturday, March 21, at Sunset Memorial Park, 2296 Kimberly Road, Twin Falls, with Pastor Jesse Dunn officiating.

A visitation will be held Friday, March 20, at Farnsworth Mortuary, 1343 S. Lincoln, Jerome, where family and friends may call from 2 to 4 p.m.

Woody Lee Reed

Woody Lee Reed, formerly of Twin Falls, passed away Monday, March 2, 2009, at his home in Glendale, Ariz.

which became Reed Tractor.

Woody and Fran

He was born Oct. 22, 1918, in Twin Falls, Idaho, to Ethel

Minerly Reed and Duffy Goodman Reed. He was raised in Twin Falls, attended Twin Falls schools and graduated from Twin Falls High School in 1936. He attended the University of Idaho and graduated with a Bachelor of Science in Business Administration in 1940. He was a member of the Beta Theta Phi Fraternity.

Woody married his childhood sweetheart, Frances Wilson, on July 9, 1941. During WWII he served in the infantry of the United States Army and as a navigator in the United States Air Corp. In the Air Corp he was assigned to the Fourth Ferry command and attained the rank of second lieutenant while serving in the European theater.

After the war, Woody worked as office manager at the Twin Falls Flour Mill and as an executive in the Duffy Reed Construction Co. Woody worked with his dad and his brother, Duffy, in major construction projects all over the West and most of Idaho, building railroads, airports, reclamation projects and highways.

After the death of his father and brother, he closed the business in 1965. In 1966 he purchased the Williams Case Farm Equipment Co.

spent many enjoyable winters in Arizona. Fran passed away in 1990. In 1993, Woody married Irma Riordan Cahill, a friend from Iowa. They resided in Iowa in the summer and Arizona in the winter.

Woody was involved in the Twin Falls community, Episcopal Church of the Ascension and the Blue Lakes Country Club.

Woody was preceded in death by his wife, Frances Reed; his parents, Duffy and Ethel Reed; brother, Duffy Reed; and granddaughter, Kimberly Chasse Heffner. Surviving are his wife, Irma Reed of Nevada, Iowa; daughters, Marilyn Reed Chase of Boise and Barbara Reed (Jim) Thiel of Nampa; grandchildren, Rob and Jennifer Chase of Boise, Justin and Jennifer Thiel, and Ben and Kelly Thiel, all of Meridian; great-grandchildren, Courtney and Robbie Chase, Cassie Heffner, Carson and Kenzie Thiel and Paige Thiel; several nieces and nephews; and his extended family with Irma, in Iowa.

An inurnment service will be held at 3 p.m., Saturday, March 21, at Sunset Memorial Park in Twin Falls. Arrangements are under the direction of White Mortuary "Chapel by the Park."

Clancy Carter

Clancy Carter, Manager of the Twin Falls cemetery and Head Cemetarian has been with the Parke's Magic Valley Funeral Home and Crematory and Twin Falls Cemetery for the past 11 years. He opens or supervises the opening of every grave, keeps records of the cemetery and oversees personally a wide variety of operations that involve the day-to-day maintenance of running the cemetery. Clancy is one of our most valuable employees at Parke's Funeral Home. Clancy and his wife, Tara and sons Kyle and Cameron live in Twin Falls. They are very happy to call Twin Falls and the Magic Valley home. Clancy grew up in Buhl and has lived in this area for close to 20 years. He is one of the people you will see, if you ever have a need and he generally works every service at the funeral home in one capacity or another. We at Parke's feel blessed to have Clancy as part of our funeral home family.

Margaret Alice King

Our beloved mother and grandmother, Margaret Alice King, concluded her journey here on earth and began her eternal life in heaven on Monday, March 16, 2009. Margaret was born in Earlimart, Calif., on Dec. 27, 1934, to Arthur and Olive Porter. She moved to Homedale with her family in the winter of 1944 where she was raised, and graduated from Homedale High School in 1952. Margaret married Ira "Bud" King in July, following her graduation. They lived in Washington for a short time while he was in the service, and they lived in Middleton for a small period, but the remaining time Margaret called Homedale her home. They started their family in 1957, and Margaret spent the rest of her life caring for her children, grandchildren and great grandchildren. She was a very loving, compassionate and cheerful person who could brighten the dimmest of rooms with her smile, and she lived her life to its fullest. Margaret was an extremely hard worker, working on the farm and dairy as a child and later as an adult. However, the profession that she loved and became known for was bus driver for the Homedale School District and was even referred to as the "Grandma of Precious Cargo." She took great pride in her job and loved "her kids" on the bus and was a loyal fan of the athletic teams that she transported. Margaret had a vast love of the outdoors. She spent countless hours in her park-like yard caring for her beautiful flowers, bushes and berries. She also loved spending as much time as possible camping and fishing in the mountains, especially with family and friends. Margaret was greeted in heaven by her husband, Ira "Bud" King; parents, Arthur and Olive Porter; brother, Gurdon "Sonny" Porter; and grandson, Gary Eastman. Margaret will watch over her remaining family; brother, Leonard Porter and wife, Deb; son, Kenny King and wife, Debbie, daughter, Sharon Eastman and husband, Hank; daughter, Diana King and Matt Horsley; daughter, Janice Biggins and husband, Tom; grandchildren, Brett and Bryan Eastman, Tyler, Rolida, Corey and Kylee King, Melissa and Matt McBride, Lora and Matt Ingram, Steven and Stacie Foote, Michaela and Elizabeth Biggins and Sklyer Holtry; six special great-grandchildren; and numerous nieces and nephews. A funeral will be held at 11 a.m. on Monday, March 23, at the Mountain View Nazarene Church in Wilder, facilitated by Flahiff Funeral Chapel of Homedale. If you wish to make contributions in Margaret's name, you can do so to the St. Alphonsus Cancer Center or the Homedale School District.

Analysis by Times-News sports editor Mike Christensen

Toughest region

The top four seeds in the Midwest Region – Louisville, Michigan State, Kansas and Wake Forest – are all legitimate national title contenders. The top three were all in the hunt for No. 1 seeds entering conference tournament play, while Wake is loaded with pro talent and spent time ranked No. 1 during the regular season.

Weakest region

The West Region features a No. 1 seed in Connecticut that is 27-4 overall, but just 4-3 since guard Jerome Dyson went down to injury. The Huskies could struggle with No. 8 seed BYU in the second round. While second-seeded Memphis spent the season blowing out Conference USA foes, it lost to Georgetown, Syracuse and Xavier in non-conference play. Could the Memphis reach the Final Four? Certainly. But the Tigers could also bow out as early as Round 2.

Defending champs

The Kansas Jayhawks beat Memphis in overtime to claim the title last year. While Kansas could be in the Final Four once more, the Jayhawks face a scary first-round foe in North Dakota State. N.D. State's nickname? The Bison. Why does that matter? The last time Kansas was a No. 3 seed, it lost to the 14th-seeded Bison of Bucknell in the 2005 tournament. Guard Ben Woodside and North Dakota State could deliver some Bison déjà vu on Friday.

Upset alert

Five double-digit seeds (not counting 7-10 matchups) most likely to win in the first round:
No. 12 Arizona vs. No. 5 Utah
No. 12 Northern Iowa vs. No. 5 Purdue
No. 13 Mississippi State vs. No. 4 Washington
No. 11 VCU vs. No. 6 UCLA
No. 12 Western Kentucky vs. No. 5 Illinois

Idaho advances past Drake

Times-News

They made hard work of it, but the Idaho Vandals became the last Idaho-based men's basketball team standing.

Trevor Morris led five Vandals in double figures with 16 points as Idaho knocked off visiting Drake 69-67 in the opening round of the CollegeInsider.com Tournament on Wednesday.

With Cowan Spectrum closed for renovations, the game was moved to Memorial Gym. But neither a site change nor an unfamiliar opponent could deny Idaho (17-15) a trip to the CIT quarterfinals, where it will face a yet to be determined opponent.

Kashif Watson and Brandon Wiley each scored 13 for Idaho, while Luciano de Souza added 11 and Mac Hopson chipped in 10.

The Vandals led 32-31 at the half and fell behind but rallied to extend their season.

Drake (17-16) was led by 18 points from Josh Young and 17 from Jonathan Cox.

Stanford eliminates Boise State

The Associated Press

STANFORD, Calif. — Jeremy Green scored 19 points, three off his career high, and Lawrence Hill added 18 points as Stanford defeated Boise State 96-76 in a first-round game of the College Basketball Invitational on Wednesday night.

Landry Fields added 16 points for the Cardinal (19-13), who have won four of their last six and will play at Wichita State in the quarterfinals on Monday.

Kurt Cunningham scored 16 of his career high 25 points in the first half for the Broncos (19-13), who dropped their third straight and sixth in the last eight games.

Ike Okoye had 14 points and Aaron Gardner added 13 points for Boise State, which finished in a three-way tie for third in the WAC and was 1-3 versus the NCAA field.

Times-News

Following a four-game sweep of then-No. 13 College of Southern Nevada, the College of Southern Idaho softball team cracked the top 10 Wednesday as the NJCAA released its first Division I poll. The Golden Eagles jumped 17 spots after being ranked No. 27 in the preseason poll.

CSI head coach Nick Baumert said. "It gives you credence as far as the work put in to this point. I'm not sure it means too much, but it's kind of nice to get up in the poll and that people are recognizing that work."

CSI (24-10-2, 17-5 Scenic West Athletic Conference) received 44 points and is three spots behind Scenic

Aggies, Cougars set for 1st-round rematch

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Same seed. Same opponent. This NCAA tournament matchup has a familiar feel.

BYU and Texas A&M meet again today in the first round of the West Regional. It's a rematch from last year when the Aggies won 67-62.

The eighth-seeded Cougars (25-7) — they've been in this spot three straight seasons — and ninth-seeded Aggies (23-9) were surprised they drew each other when the brackets were announced. But it made preparation a little easier. All they had to do was pop in the tape from their previous meeting to get a refresher.

"We were all like,

On TV

BYU vs. Texas A&M
10:30 a.m., CBS

'Again!'" Aggies guard Derrick Roland said Wednesday. "It's no surprises. We know what to expect. They're a good team. We'll be ready."

Texas A&M's five starters all played double-digit minutes against the Cougars last year while four of BYU's starters saw significant action. Both coaching staffs probably spent more time breaking down film from that game than any this season. If they expose just one tendency or weakness, that can give them an edge.

"We were all like, 'Again!'"

— Derrick Roland, Texas A&M player, on his team's reaction to playing BYU again in the NCAA's

"One of the things that we've done as a staff is just try to find the things that were good, that we did really well in that game, that we can kind of emphasize," BYU coach Dave Rose said. "We have a pretty good idea of how physical they are and how they like to play."

The Cougars know one player they have to defend a little better this time around is Josh Carter. A senior forward who averages 14.1 points per game, Carter scored 26 against BYU last time.

"I figure they'll stay closer with me," Carter said. "Last year, they were leaving me a little bit more. I don't expect them to do that."

Carter leads a balanced offense that includes Donald Sloan (11.7), Bryan Davis (10.4) and Chinemelu Elonu (10.1). Texas A&M has excellent shooters — Carter, Sloan and B.J. Holmes are long-range threats — and is strong inside. The Aggies rebounded their opponent in 11 of their last 12 games, holding an average margin of 8.3 in that span.

"One of the keys is definitely going to be Josh Carter," Cougars guard Lee Cummard said. "We're going to have to do a good job containing him as a team. Taking care of the basketball and rebounding is another key. They're physical. Sometimes they send three, four guys to the offensive glass. If we can control that, it will really help a lot."

BYU is an outstanding perimeter-shooting team led by a trio of scorers. Cummard (16.8), Jimmer Fredette (16.2) and Jonathan Tavernari (15.9) combined to shoot 38.2 percent (168-of-440) from 3-point range. Jackson Emery also can shoot well, knocking down

Cummard, Fredette and Tavernari shot 41.2 percent (7-of-17) from 3-point range in their loss to Texas A&M.

"To me, it's all about transition defense and finding shooters in transition," Aggies coach Mark Turgeon said. "If you can slow that down a little bit, you have a chance. If you don't do that, you have no chance against them. It's a tough matchup. They're hard to guard. Those three scorers will make tough shots, closely guarded shots. You just have to accept that, go the other way, do the best you can. It's a challenge for us."

Florida rolls to NIT victory

GAINESVILLE, Fla. — Nick Calathes broke out of a shooting slump with 19 points, Chandler Parsons added 17 points and 14 rebounds, and Florida beat Jacksonville 84-62 Wednesday night in the opening round of the NIT.

The Gators, who lost four of their last six and missed the NCAA tournament for the second consecutive year, played one of their best first halves of the season. They shot 63 percent from the field, were 6-of-9 from 3-point range and had a 21-point lead at the break.

Florida (24-10) extended it to 25 early in the second half on Ray Shipman's dunk, then coasted the rest of the way. The Gators will host Miami in the second round Friday.

VIRGINIA TECH 116, DUQUESNE 108, 20T

BLACKSBURG, Va. — Virginia Tech got 33 points from A.D. Vassallo and 23 from Jeff Allen and the Hokies scored on their first five possessions in the second overtime to overcome 46 points from Duquesne's Aaron Jackson.

Duquesne (21-13), making its first postseason appearance since the 1994 NIT, closed out its best season since the 1971 team went 21-4.

Tech appeared to have the game under control in the first overtime, leading by six with under a minute to go. But the Dukes rallied and tied the game at 94 on Jackson's layup with less than 2 seconds left.

MIAMI 78, PROVIDENCE 66

PROVIDENCE, R.I. — Jack McClintock made seven 3-pointers and scored 25 points in the first round of the NIT.

Dwayne Collins had 12 rebounds and Lance Hurdle added 12 points for the Hurricanes (19-12), who outrebounded the Friars 44-35.

KANSAS STATE 83, ILLINOIS STATE 79, OT

MANHATTAN, Kan. — Jacob Pullen scored seven of his career-high 32 points in overtime.

Darren Kent added 19 points for the Wildcats (22-11). Dominique Sutton finished with nine points and 12 rebounds, including an offensive grab he put back to tie the game at 73 with four seconds remaining and force the overtime.

Champ Oguchi led Illinois State (24-10) with 23 points but fouled out midway through the overtime.

TULSA 68, NORTHWESTERN 59

TULSA, Okla. — Jerome Jordan scored 16 points to lead four Golden Hurricane players in double figures.

Ben Uzoh and Justin Hurtt both scored 13 for Tulsa (25-10), which outscored Northwestern 40-29 in the second half. Ray Reese added 12 for the Golden Hurricane.

Craig Moore and Kevin Coble led the Wildcats (17-14) with 17 points apiece.

CREIGHTON 73, BOWLING GREEN 71

OMAHA, Neb. — P'Allen Stinnett scored 18 points, including two big free throws in the final minute, and Creighton came from behind.

The Bluejays (27-7) will host Kentucky (21-13) in a second-round game Monday.

Creighton, which trailed by 14 points in the first half and by 8 with 8½ minutes left, went ahead 69-67 with 4:41 to play on Booker Woodfox's 3-pointer.

BAYLOR 74, GEORGETOWN 72

WACO, Texas — LaceDarius Dunn and Kevin Rogers each scored 20 points and Curtis Jerrells added 19.

The Bears (21-14) claimed their first NIT win in four appearances.

Jerrells put Baylor ahead 74-69 with a pair of free throws with eight seconds remaining.

AUBURN 87, TENN-MARTIN 82

AUBURN, Ala. — DeWayne Reed scored 23 points and Quantez Robertson added 19 — both career highs in the first round of the NIT on Wednesday night.

Reed made five 3-pointers for the Tigers (23-11), who hit a season-high 14 from beyond the arc in their first postseason game since 2003.

Auburn faces Tulsa on Friday night.

Minico baseball falls at Preston

Times-News

today.

Casey Christiansen threw a gem, giving up just two earned runs in a complete game, but the Minico baseball team couldn't generate much offense and fell 3-1 in the first game of a two-day home-and-home series with Preston on Wednesday.

Christiansen gave up just three hits for the visiting Spartans (0-3), who mustered just five of their own in defeat.

"Casey threw a great game, definitely pitched well enough to win, we just did not hit," said Minico assistant coach Mike Hoey. "We're pretty young so we're trying to feel our way around with some of those young guys who don't have a lot of varsity experience. It'll be a work in progress until we get where we need to be at the end of the year."

SLCC men rampage to semifinal berth

Times-News

D.J. Wright scored 22 of his 30 points in the first half and pulled down 11 rebounds for a double-double as the Salt Lake Community College men's basketball team ripped the North Dakota State College of Science 91-55 on Wednesday to advance to the semifinals of the NJCAA Division I Men's Basketball Championships in Hutchinson, Kan.

The Bruins (29-6) led 47-26 at the half, shooting 64 percent from the field in the opening 20 minutes. Oden finished the game shooting 58 percent from the floor and 46.2 percent from beyond the 3-point arc.

Nate Bendall added 17 points for the Bruins, while Ridge McKeither led the Wildcats with 14 points. North Dakota State shot just 29 percent from the floor, and a miserable 7.7 percent from 3-point range.

Salt Lake will play top-ranked Chipola College (33-1) of Florida on Friday for a berth in the championship game.

In opening-round women's action, Sheridan (Wyo.) College was hammered by Chipola (Fla.) 86-47 on Wednesday. Shoshone graduate Kori Bingham did not play after violating team rules, but is expected to be back in the starting lineup today when the Generals take on East Mississippi in an elimination game, according to her father Bob Bingham.

Celtics clinch division title with win over Heat

BOSTON — Paul Pierce scored 36 points and the Boston Celtics clinched the Atlantic Division title with a 112-108 victory Wednesday night against the Miami Heat, who played without NBA scoring-leader Dwyane Wade.

Wade missed his first game of the season because of a right hip flexor.

But Boston was without Kevin Garnett for the 13th straight game with a strained right knee and Ray Allen, who hyperextended his elbow Tuesday night in a loss at Chicago.

Rajon Rondo had 27 for Boston. Miami, in its third overtime game in its last five, was led by Michael Beasley with 21 points and Mario Chalmers with 19.

HORNETS 94, TIMBERWOLVES 93

NEW ORLEANS — Chris Paul capped a 26-point, 10-assist, five-steal performance for New Orleans by setting up David West's dunk with 12.6 seconds left.

Minnesota's Randy Foye missed a 17-foot jumper as time expired, allowing New Orleans to escape with the victory.

BULLS 103, THUNDER 96

OKLAHOMA CITY — Derrick Rose scored 20 of his 25 points and didn't miss a shot in the second half as Chicago snapped a seven-game road losing streak.

NBA's top rookie point guards, Rose was unstoppable in the second half. The No. 1 pick in last year's draft hit all 10 of his shots.

Russell Westbrook, the fourth overall pick in the draft, had 15 points and pulled the Thunder within 99-96 by driving past Rose for a layup in the final minute before Oklahoma City's rally fell short.

MAGIC 106, BUCKS 80

MILWAUKEE — Dwight Howard had 28 points and came up three assists shy of a triple double, powering Orlando past Milwaukee.

Howard finished with 12 rebounds and seven assists, while Hedo Turkoglu added 14 points and 10 rebounds for Orlando.

Charlie Villanueva had 17 points for the Bucks.

NETS 115, KNICKS 89

NEW YORK — Vince Carter scored 29 points, Brook Lopez had 23 to help New Jersey salvage the final game of an otherwise miserable five-game trip.

The Nets lost the first four games of the trip out West, losing All-Star point guard Devin Harris to a sprained

TRAIL BLAZERS 95, PACERS 85

INDIANAPOLIS — Brandon Roy scored 20 points, and Portland center Greg Oden won his first pro game in his hometown.

Oden finished with four points and seven rebounds in 12 minutes.

BOBCATS 104, KINGS 88

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Gerald Wallace had 25 points and 12 rebounds and Charlotte beat short-handed Sacramento to keep the Kings winless against the Eastern Conference.

NUGGETS 111, GRIZZLIES 109

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — Carmelo Anthony scored 35 points, including the go-ahead three-point play with 33.2 remaining, as Denver overcame a 17-point second-half deficit.

The Nuggets snapped a six-game road losing streak. Chauncey Billups added 18 points and 12 assists for Denver.

Rudy Gay led Memphis with 30 points.

Dunn's error costly in U.S. loss to Venezuela

MIAMI (AP) — United States manager Davey Johnson was right to have reservations about playing Adam Dunn at first base.

The desperation defensive deployment backfired Wednesday night in the World Baseball Classic when Dunn made a wild throw that led to four unearned runs and Venezuela won Group 2 by beating the Americans 10-6 to conclude second-round play in Miami.

Both teams had already qualified for the semifinals this weekend in Los Angeles.

Venezuela will play the second-seeded team from Group 1 on Saturday at Dodger Stadium, and the Americans will play in the other semifinal Sunday. The semifinalists from Group 1 in San Diego will be South Korea and the winner of Wednesday night's game between Cuba and Japan.

Team USA qualified for the semifinals for the first time by scoring three runs in the ninth inning Tuesday night to beat Puerto Rico 6-5. The Americans failed to come up with much of an encore, falling behind when Venezuela scored six runs in the second inning with the help of Dunn's error.

Johnson would prefer to play Dunn in the outfield, but Venezuela's Gerardo Parra (1) and Magglio Ordonez (30) are congratulated by teammates after scoring on a double by Henry Blanco against the United States in the second inning of a World Baseball Classic game in Miami on Wednesday.

with Kevin Youkilis sidelined for the rest of the WBC because of a sprained ankle, there was no better option at first base.

With runners at the corners in the second inning, Dunn charged a chopper and made a throw home that sailed 10 feet wide of the catcher. Before the inning ended, Henry Blanco hit a two-run double off Jeremy Guthrie (0-2), and Jose Lopez and Miguel Cabrera each doubled home a run.

Dunn made another error in the eighth.

Venezuela finished with 15 hits, including a three-run homer by Max Ramirez. Team USA had 12 hits but stranded 11 runners.

The weather was as bad as the pitching. Rain delayed the start for more than an hour and fell during much of the game. The conditions did little to quiet the crowd of 16,575, with Venezuela fans again chanting, pounding drums and booing Magglio Ordonez. Many Venezuelans dislike their left fielder because he supports the country's president, Hugo Chavez.

A bad hair day for Lance Armstrong

PARIS — Lance Armstrong literally had a bad hair day.

A French anti-doping inspector armed with a pair of scissors this week took six clumps of the former Tour de France champion's hair that now will be tested for signs of drug use. Armstrong says his hair was so "butchered" by the test that he had to get a buzz-cut to hide the mess.

If it sounds like a joke, it's anything but. In France, hair tests are now being used to hunt down the use of banned substances in sports. Here, when anti-doping authorities say they want the scalps of cheats, they mean it.

In Armstrong's case, it's not unreasonable to question whether anti-doping authorities around the world aren't going a little overboard. By his count, the culling of hair, blood and urine samples after he trained Tuesday in the south of France was the 24th time since he resumed cycling in August that he's been subjected to an unannounced anti-doping control.

The sample-collector "flew down from Paris, he was a French doctor, couldn't have been nicer. He was a total gentleman," Armstrong told The Associated Press by phone on Wednesday.

But "he didn't make my hair look very good, that's why I cut it after that, after he butchered it," Armstrong said. "There were a few good stripes at the back so we just buzzed it down."

The 37-year-old is staying good humored about the whole thing. He posted a photo of himself and his new hair on a Web site he uses to keep fans abreast of his movements and thoughts. But although he is being careful not to gripe, he also noticed that he seems to be getting tested far more than many other riders.

"A lot of my co-workers and old friends and former teammates are (on) less than 5" such tests, he told AP. "I'm fully aware that it's part of the job. I knew that going in. I'm a little surprised by the frequency, but I'm not complaining," he said.

"The honest truth is that it's only inconvenient if they come right when you're done training, so you're tired from training. There's things like that where you go 'Oh, I have to deal with this now?' Or if you're in the middle of dinner or if you're with your children."

Persistent doubts about whether Armstrong used drugs to win a record seven Tours explain in part why testers are targeting him.

Armstrong insists he raced clean. And being tested a lot now works to his advantage, allowing him to keep the skeptics at bay as he tries to focus attention focused on his fight against cancer, the main reason he came back to the sport.

That's probably why he's keeping count of all his tests and publicizing them.

Also, the anti-doping regime progressed in the three years he was retired following his last Tour win in 2005. Unlike back then, the UCI now uses blood tests to try to determine over time whether riders are doping. Many of the tests Armstrong has had since his return to cycling have been for the UCI and its blood-watching program.

With this week's test, France's anti-doping agency was not only looking for drug use but also to send a message: Armstrong should not expect any favorable treatment.

The agency's chief, Pierre Bordry, made that quite clear, saying Armstrong "needs to know that he is like everyone else."

So it gave him the full treatment. Two samples — A and B — were taken not only of urine, which is standard, but also of blood and hair.

The hair test "troubled him quite a lot," said the agency's director of doping controls, Jean-Pierre Verdy. Hair is clipped with scissors, and six clumps each the diameter of a pencil were taken in all, he said. "Sometimes, it leaves holes," Verdy said.

There's a certain amount of overlapping going on between the various agencies that are keeping a careful eye on Armstrong, and perhaps the number of tests could be reduced if they shared results better. Armstrong says he even had a drug tester from Germany visit him in his native Texas — hardly cost-effective or environmentally aware.

The French anti-doping agency says the governing body of cycling, the UCI, won't share data that it is collecting on riders with blood tests. That means the agency conducts its own blood tests and bought its own equipment to interpret results in the same way the UCI does. In its defense, the UCI says it cannot share riders' blood readings without their consent.

Armstrong says it was the first time he has undergone a hair test, which was "the only thing that made it spectacular."

"At the end of the day, I have nothing to hide," he said. "You want to come and get blood, urine, hair, whatever you want, come on."

Mackey wins 3rd straight Iditarod

NOME, Alaska (AP) — Make it three Iditarods in a row for Lance Mackey.

The musher from Fairbanks won the 1,100-mile trek across the Alaska wilderness Wednesday in the world's most famous sled dog race. And it wasn't even close.

Mackey slapped hands with fans along Nome's Front Street. About a block from the finish line, he raised both arms in victory and rode that way into the chute at 11:38 a.m., hours ahead of his nearest competitors in the Iditarod Trail Sled Dog Race.

Immediately after winning, he gave treats to his dogs, calling them the "real heroes."

"This never gets old," he said at the finish line as he hugged two of his dogs.

"It's pretty awesome. Pretty cool!"

Alaska Gov. Sarah Palin congratulated Mackey by phone.

"We are so proud of you, Lance, and we're considering this the greatest team in Iditarod history," Palin said.

She also told the 38-year-old Mackey, a throat cancer survivor, "You continue to give all of us hope, the adversity that you have overcome, the challenges you've met, believe me, it resonates across our nation and across our world."

Mackey commended his "little superstar Maple," a 3-year-old female who was in the lead for much of the last part of the race. He hauled her and 9-year-old Larry, one of his traditional lead dogs, onto the stage with him.

Mackey became the third musher in the race's 37-year history to win in three consecutive years, joining Susan Butcher (1986-88) and Doug Swingley (1999-01).

He finished about six hours ahead of the second- and third-place mushers, Sebastian Schnuelle of Canada and John Baker of Kotzebue.

He increased his lead along the wind-swept western coast of Alaska. Fierce, biting winds blew in off the Bering Sea, forcing temperatures to 50 below zero. Many mushers waited out the storm in checkpoints.

In Mackey's two previous victories, he headed into the Iditarod about two weeks after winning the 1,000-mile Yukon Quest International Sled Dog Race, considered a tougher race.

He didn't run the Yukon Quest this year, choosing instead to train an Alaska Native musher for the Iditarod.

Sixty-seven teams began the race more than a week ago in Willow, about 50 miles north of Anchorage. Ten teams have scratched or been withdrawn.

Three dogs have died in this year's race.

IOC could scrap revenue deal with U.S. Olympic body

LONDON (AP) — The International Olympic Committee could end its revenue-sharing deal with the U.S. Olympic body unless the Americans agree to a revised formula and smaller share of the money pie, according to a top official involved in the negotiations.

IOC executive board member Denis Oswald told The Associated Press that the U.S. Olympic Committee must make concessions at a key meeting in Denver next week or face possible cancellation of the long-standing revenue contract that has riled many international sports officials.

"If there is no agreement, then we would possibly terminate the contract and completely renegotiate another one," said Oswald, who heads the Association of Summer Olympic International Federations.

The revenue issue has strained relations between the USOC and the international Olympic movement for years and now threatens to hinder Chicago's bid for the 2016 Summer Games in the final months of the campaign.

Under the open-ended contract, the USOC receives nearly 13 percent of Olympic television rights fees and 20 percent of global marketing revenues.

U.S. companies pay well more than that percentage into the IOC's overall budget. NBC paid about $894 million to televise the Beijing Games last year, compared to about $443.5 million from the European Broadcasting Union and $7 million from Chinese networks.

Still, some IOC members, international sports federations and national Olympic committees have complained bitterly that the U.S. continues to receive the lion's share of money. The U.S. slice was about $300 million for the 2005-08 cycle and could be $450 million for 2009-2012.

"We still feel it is not acceptable they can get as much as all the NOCs receive together," Oswald said, referring to the other 204 national Olympic associations.

Bob Ctvrtlik, the USOC vice chairman for international relations, said the American federation is preparing for talks next week in Denver.

"As we have for two years, we're trying to find a solution that benefits all members of the Olympic family," Ctvrtlik said.

But the global financial crisis could make a deal more difficult. The USOC is cutting its work force by up to 15 percent and trimming about 5 percent out of its $142 million 2009 operating budget.

"It would have been easier a year ago," Oswald said. "They are claiming they are hit by the financial crisis. Of course they are hit just like everybody else."

The revenue contract was negotiated in 1996 and has no specific time limit, but the IOC believes it can cancel it and renegotiate a new deal to take effect in 2020.

"It is not possible to have a contract that has no end," Oswald said.

Said sale will be made without covenant or warranty regarding title, possession or encumbrances to satisfy the obligation secured by and pursuant to the power of sale conferred in the deed of trust executed by Clinton R. Jackson and Erin D. Jackson, husband and wife, as grantor, to TitleFact, Inc., as Trustee, for the benefit and security of CLS Mortgage, Inc., as Beneficiary, recorded on March 10, 2006, as Twin Falls County Recorder's No. 2006-005849, the beneficial interest in which was assigned to Ronald G. Schoenberger, a married man dealing in his sole and separate property, as to an undivided 67% interest, and Lincoln B. Fiske, Jr. and Lori A. Bruchman-Fiske, husband and wife, as to an undivided 33% interest, under an Assignment recorded under Twin Falls County Recorder's No. 2006-007194.

THE ABOVE GRANTORS ARE NAMED TO COMPLY WITH SECTION 45-1506(4)(a) IDAHO CODE. NO REPRESENTATION IS MADE THAT THEY ARE, OR ARE NOT, PRESENTLY RESPONSIBLE FOR THIS OBLIGATION.

The default for which the foreclosure is to be made is the failure to pay when due, under the Deed of Trust and Note dated March 6, 2006, the monthly payments for principal and interest of $862.84 per month for the month of May, 2008, and all subsequent payments until the date of sale or reinstatement, with a monthly late charge of $86.28. Uncollected late charges are $1,451.20, including the February late charge, and the principal balance owing as of this date on the obligation secured by said Deed of Trust is $78,000.00, plus accruing interest at 13% per annum from May 1, 2008. All delinquent payments are now due, plus accumulated late charges, unpaid and accruing 2006, 2007 and first half 2008 real property taxes in the sums of $500.88, $611.26 and $349.24, respectively, plus interest and penalty, trustee's fees, attorney's fees, costs, escrow fees, and advances made to protect the security associated with this foreclosure. The amount necessary to bring the loan current through the March 10, 2009 payment, would be $9,579.86 in principal and interest payments, $1,014.75 force-placed insurance premium, $100.00 force-placed insurance fee; $121.00 in escrow fees, $100.00 attorney demand letter, $100.00 in CLS Escrow transfer fees, along with all costs and fees associated with this foreclosure. The beneficiary elects to sell or cause the trust property to be sold to satisfy this obligation.

A pre-bid conference is scheduled at Joslin Field, Magic Valley Regional Airport in the Conference room in the terminal for interested Contractors on April 8, 2009, at 10:00 am.

No Bidder may withdraw his Bid within sixty (60) days after the actual date of the opening thereof.

The award of the contract is subject to approval of the Federal Aviation Administration and availability of federal funding.

The proposed contract is under and subject to Executive Order 11246 of September 24, 1965 and to the Equal Employment Opportunity (EEO) and Federal Labor Provisions.

All labor on the project shall be paid no less than the minimum wage rates established by the U.S. Secretary of Labor.

Each Bidder must supply all the information required by the Bid Documents and Specifications.

Each Bidder must complete, sign and furnish with his Bid a "Certification of Nonsegregated Facilities" and a statement entitled "Bidder's Statement on Previous Contracts Subject to EEO Clause," as contained in the Bid Proposal.

A Contractor having fifty (50) or more employees and his subcontractors having fifty (50) or more employees and who may be awarded a subcontract of $50,000 or more will be required to maintain an affirmative action program, the standards for which are contained in the FAA Special Provisions.

Where the Bid of the apparent low responsible Bidder is in the amount of $1 million or more, the Bidder and his known first-tier subcontractors which will be awarded subcontracts of $1 million or more will be subject to full, on-site, preaward equal opportunity compliance reviews before the award of the Contract for the purpose of determining whether the Bidder or his subcontractors are able to comply with the provisions of the equal opportunity clause.

To be eligible for award, each bidder must comply with the affirmative action requirements, which are contained in the FAA Special Provisions.

Disadvantaged business enterprises will be afforded full opportunity to submit bids in response to this invitation and will not be discriminated against on the ground of race, color, sex, or national origin in consideration for an award of any contract entered into pursuant to this advertisement.

Women will be afforded equal opportunity in all areas of employment. However, the employment of women shall not diminish the standards of requirements for the employment of minorities.

The EEO requirements, labor provisions and wage rates are included in the Specifications and Bid Documents and are available for inspection at the Engineer's office.

In determining the lowest responsive bid, the Owner will consider all acceptable bids on a basis consistent with the Contract Documents. The Owner will also consider whether the bidder is a responsible bidder.

Before a contract will be awarded for work contemplated herein, the Owner will conduct such investigation as is necessary to determine the performance record and ability of the apparent low bidder to perform the size and type of work specified under this Contract. Upon request, the bidder shall submit such information as deemed necessary by the Owner to evaluate the bidder's qualifications.

All bids must be signed and accompanied by evidence of authority to sign.

Bids must be accompanied by Bid Security in the form of a bid bond, certified check, cashiers check or cash in the amount of five percent (5%) of the amount of the bid proposal. Said bid security shall be forfeited to City of Twin Falls and Twin Falls County as liquidated damages should the successful bidder fail to enter into contract in accordance with their proposal as specified in the Instructions to Bidders.

City of Twin Falls reserves the right to reject any or all proposals, waive any nonmaterial irregularities in the bids received, and to accept the proposal deemed most advantageous to the best interest of City of Twin Falls.

IMPORTANT INFORMATION ABOUT FILER MUTUAL TELEPHONE COMPANY SERVICE IN IDAHO

We provide a wide variety of products and services including the following basic residential service offerings in Idaho:

	Monthly Rates	One-Time Charges
Single Party Residential Service	$21.00	$25.00
Single Party Lifeline Service*	$14.00	$12.50

In addition to the above monthly rates, a $6.50 Federal Subscriber Line Charge applies. The $6.50 charge is paid entirely by the federal lifeline program for lifeline customers.

The above rates include the following:

- Local calling and the ability to receive unlimited incoming calls;
- Touch tone capability;
- Access to operator services, directory assistance, and long distance service providers;
- Voice grade access to the public switched network;
- Free access to emergency 9-1-1- and 800 or 800-like toll free services;
- Free toll blocking for ULTS;
- Access to the telephone relay service; and
- Free access to the business office

* This is a state and federally funded program, which provides discounted service to low-income residential customers who meet the eligibility rules established by the Idaho Public Utilities Commission. A discounted basic service rate, discounted one-time installation charges, and free toll blocking are offered to eligible customers.

The nationwide switch to digital television broadcasting will be complete on June 12, 2009, but your local television stations may switch sooner. After the switch, analog-only television sets that receive TV programming through an antenna will need a converter box to continue to receive over-the-air TV. Watch your local stations to find out when they will turn off their analog signal and switch to digital-only broadcasting. Analog-only TVs should continue to work as before to receive low power, Class A or translator television stations and with cable and satellite TV services, gaming consoles, VCRs, DVD players, and similar products. Information about the DTV transition is available from your local television stations, www.DTV.gov, or 1-888-CALL-FCC (TTY 1-888-TELL-FCC) and from WWW.dtv2009.gov or 1-888-DTV-2009 (TTY 1-877-530-2634) for information about subsidized coupons for digital-to-analog converter boxes.

NOTICES

IMPORTANT NOTICE

The nationwide switch to digital television broadcasting will be complete on June 12, 2009, but your local television stations may switch sooner. After the switch, analog-only television sets that receive TV programming through an antenna will need a converter box to continue to receive over-the-air TV. Watch your local stations to find out when they will turn off their analog signal and switch to digital-only broadcasting. Analog-only TVs should continue to work as before to receive low power. Class A or translator television stations and with cable and satellite TV services, gaming consoles, VCRs, DVD players, and similar products. Information about the DTV transition is available from your local television stations, www.DTV.gov or 1-888-CALL-FCC (TTY 1-888-TELL-FCC), and from www.dvt2009.gov or 1-888-DTV-2009 (TTY 1-877-530-2634) for information about subsidized coupons for digital-to-analog converter boxes.

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Concepts Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.

Longtime neighbor launches charm offensive on daughter

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been friends with our next door neighbors "Henry" and "Flo" for many years. When our daughter graduated from college, I didn't think much about it when Henry gave her a bracelet. He said it was for her graduation.

After that, he began giving her other expensive items for birthdays and such. I know our daughter should not have accepted these gifts, but she thought Henry was just a nice old man. Then one day he actually asked her if she would like to go out with him some time. She told him it wouldn't be appropriate.

I feel uncomfortable around my neighbors now. Is it my business to tell Flo? I have a hunch that some of the items may have come from her jewelry box. What would you do?

- DELICATE PROBLEM IN KANSAS CITY

DEAR DELICATE PROBLEM: I would instruct my daughter to box up all of the items "Harmless Henry" gave her and return them to him, because they might be stolen property - and were given with strings attached. And I would seriously consider mentioning to Flo to keep her eye on Henry, because he appears to be spending too much time in fantasyland.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: I have a wedding etiquette question I hope you can help me with. My fiance's best man, "Rocky," is his best friend since childhood. He's a great person, and I couldn't ask for a better friend for my future husband.

Here's the problem: Rocky happens to be a well-known celebrity. While many relatives and friends have met him, many more have not.

My fiance and I are normal people with average lives, and we know many of our guests will be star-struck at the event. We want Rocky to enjoy the day like everyone else and not be hounded by fans wanting pictures or autographs. We have spoken with him about our concerns, and we're all on the same page here.

What is the best way to handle this? Should I tell people beforehand, or just let them show up at the wedding and see what happens? Your insight would be most appreciated.

- BAFFLED

IF MARCH 19 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY:

You could be considered a beautiful dreamer during the first half of the year ahead. You are hopeful that people are as committed as you are, but often may misread or misinterpret the facts due to wishful thinking. With your Disneyland attitude, you will find that vacations will be extremely enjoyable between now and early September, but in October you had best keep the nose to the grindstone as authority figures aren't likely to tolerate the least infraction of the rules. You can make serious mistakes of judgment, so do not borrow money or sign contracts.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Understanding and sympathy always trumps fear. Someone might approach you and try to patch up a misunderstanding. The intentions are honest but rely upon past experiences as a key to future results.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Use superglue. One of your pet projects may have fallen off the wall like Humpty Dumpty, but you can pick up the pieces and fit them together in a much stronger and more viable position.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Crawl out from under your rock. Cosmic conditions are ripe for setting

HOROSCOPE
Jeraldine Saunders

upsets to rest. Matters that threatened your security are now in the past. Pick up the phone; make social contact a priority.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Climb right back into the saddle. If you fall off a horse it's best to try again as soon as possible. Don't let past mistakes or hesitations keep you from trying again. Romantic yearnings will be satisfied.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Amorous overtures could be poetry to your ear. A brief stalemate with a partner or companion could slowly collapse under the weight of understanding and compassion. Avoid investments or expenditures.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Yesterday's misunderstandings won't spoil today's search for romance. A special someone will be unable to resist your animal magnetism. You are especially attractive; develop harmonious feelings.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Play the game for keeps. Find a congenial partner for some mutual enjoyment.

Whether you have a family to cherish or a romantic twinkle in your eye, it is a

BRIDE-TO-BE

DEAR BRIDE-TO-BE: By all means let your guests know at the time you receive their RSVPs that there will be a celebrity present at your wedding - but that this is not a public appearance; he will be there as a member of the wedding party.

They should also be told that you and your fiance would appreciate it if guests refrain from seeking autographs or pictures. If you tell them what kind of behavior you expect from them, there will be less of a mob scene.

P.S. If "Rocky" is approached, he should have the presence of mind to point out nicely that this is YOUR day, and he would prefer to keep it that way.

DEAR ABBY: Who should greet whom first? Is it the guest walking into someone's home? Or should the host be the first to greet guest(s)?

What if you're the only one saying hello all the time?

- MARISSA IN HIGHLAND MILLS, N.Y.

DEAR MARISSA: I would think that when the host opens the door, both parties would greet each other at the same time. However, if it didn't happen, I wouldn't let it stop me from offering a cheery hello and a smile. And neither should you.

good time to socialize and enjoy companionship.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Water always seeks its own level. If you are in touch with your ambitions you will seek others who can help you along on the road to success. Don't make any irrevocable changes or promises.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Play fair and others will play fair with you. Rules don't have to create tyranny, but they can provide you with a safety net. Just be sure there isn't a "weasel clause" or an inviting loophole.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Life is like a roller coaster with many its ups and downs. This is an "up" day when you are easily in step with loved ones. It is best not to gamble with your resources or make changes in your finances.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Your generosity breeds more generosity. Dip into your well of bubbling optimism to soothe the brow of any underdogs who have experienced a difficult week. Love play is a distinct possibility.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Answer the call of the wild. You may need to lace up your track shoes to keep up with energetic friends and partners who are free to roam. You will make it to the finish line if you concentrate on teamwork.

Today is Thursday, March 19, the 78th day of 2009. There are 287 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On March 19, 1979, the U.S. House of Representatives began televising its day-to-day business.

On this date:
In 1850, the opera "Faust" by Charles Gounod premiered in Paris.

In 1917, the Supreme Court, in Wilson v. New, upheld the eight-hour work day for railroad workers.

In 1918, Congress approved daylight saving time.

In 1920, the Senate rejected, for a second time, the Treaty of Versailles by 49 to 35, falling short of the two-thirds majority needed for approval.

In 1931, Nevada Gov. Fred B. Balzar signed a measure legalizing casino gambling.

In 1945, during World War II, 724 people were killed when a Japanese dive bomber attacked the carrier USS Franklin off Japan; the ship, however, was saved. Adolf Hitler issued his so-called "Nero Decree," ordering the destruction of German facilities that could fall into Allied hands.

In 1953, the Academy Awards was televised for the first time; "The Greatest Show on Earth" was named best picture of 1952.

In 1976, Buckingham Palace announced the separation of Princess Margaret and her husband, the Earl of Snowdon, after 16 years of marriage.

In 1987, televangelist Jim Bakker resigned as chairman of his PTL ministry organization amid a sex and money scandal involving Jessica Hahn, a former church secretary.

In 2003, President George W. Bush ordered the start of war against Iraq. (Because of the time difference, it was early March 20 in Iraq.)

Ten years ago: During a White House news conference, President Bill Clinton prepared the nation for airstrikes against Serbian targets following the collapse of Kosovo peace talks in Paris. A powerful bomb shattered an outdoor food market in Vladikavkaz, Russia, killing at least 53 people.

Five years ago: President George W. Bush, on the first anniversary of the Iraq war, urged unity in the war against terrorism. Taiwanese President Chen Shui-bian and his vice president were shot and slightly wounded in an apparent assassination attempt on the final day of Taiwan's presidential campaign. The Army dropped all charges against Capt. James Yee, a military chaplain at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, who had been accused of mishandling classified information.

One year ago: Five years after launching the invasion of Iraq, President George W. Bush strongly signaled he wouldn't order troop withdrawals beyond those already planned because he refused to "jeopardize the hard-fought gains" of the past year. In a new audio message, Osama bin Laden criticized the publication of drawings insulting to the Prophet Muhammad and warned Europeans of a strong reaction to come. Death claimed science fiction writer Arthur C. Clarke at age 90 and actor Paul Scofield at age 86.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

"I missed my chance with one of the lords of life. And I have something to expiate; A pettiness."

— D.H. Lawrence

The final of the Vanderbilt in Detroit last spring saw a team of four from the Polish national squad win a close match. Congratulations to the Polish team, not only for surviving the week with only four players, but also for being the first Polish team to win a major event in the United States.

Playing as four for a week can take it out of you. Krzysztof Martens, one of the victorious players, generously showed me this deal to indicate how fatigue can get the better of anybody.

Four hearts is not a great spot — especially on a spade lead. Before I show you what happened, plan the play. Assume that the cards will allow you to make.

At the table, Martens won and took two diamond finesses. East next ruffed away the diamond ace, so Martens overruffed and played a club to dummy, which held. Then a heart toward the king left the defenders no chance. East ducked, but Martens went up with the king, played another heart, and claimed 10 tricks when the honors appeared.

The defenders could have prevailed by winning the club ace and underleading in spades to allow the lead of the fourth diamond, ruffed with the heart ace. That promotes the heart queen to the setting trick. However, declarer could and should have countered that by discarding his spade on the third diamond. That cuts the defenders' communications.

ANSWER: In this auction you can pass, treating your hand as a minimum, but I prefer a three-club bid, which ought to show precisely this hand pattern. (If you had four spades, you would insist on making spades trump, and if you were balanced, you would not look for a suit contract.) This way, you let partner decide where to go, having painted him the full picture.
