Otter offers compromise on budget

House wary, Senate more receptive

By Jared S. Hopkins
Times-News writer

BOISE — The air was tense at the Legislature on April Fools' Day — but not because of any pranks.

Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter proposed a budget compromise to lawmakers that includes eliminating across-the-board pay cuts to state employees approved by the Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee. However, the Senate and House remain divided over whether the plan is ripe as the economy continues its struggles.

The plan — e-mailed early Monday morning to legislators by Otter's budget chief — came one day after Otter blasted JFAC members for issuing the pay cuts and accused them of mistrusting agency directors. Lawmakers have said the pay cuts are the best way to budget fairly.

Central to Otter's new proposal is a 3 percent cut in personnel costs to be administered by agency directors, with about $8 million additionally coming from the $45 million in general stimulus money. It would replace the JFAC decision for a 5 percent cut to state personnel through a 3 percent pay cut and 2 percent as decided by directors. Otter wanted the 5 percent decided entirely by directors.

"It's a proposal. It's not an agreement," said Otter's spokesman, Jon Hanian. "The governor offered this as a way to move the ball."

March storms douse irrigators' worries

By Nate Poppino
Times-News writer

Ever since December, hydrologists have warned that March would have to be unusually wet for irrigators to have an adequate water supply this year.

March, it seems, came through.

Above-average rain and snowfall, particularly in the past two weeks, has rescued stream flows throughout most of Idaho, said Ron Abramovich, a hydrologist with the Natural Resources Conservation Service. The agency is in the process of drafting water-supply predictions for release in a few days.

March precipitation ranged from 85 percent to 155 percent of normal, with the Oakley basin the only one below normal, Abramovich said. Provisional data on

More charges may loom for Burley joyriders

BURLEY — Two of the four juveniles from Burley who allegedly stole two vehicles, then crashed after a high-speed chase in Elko, Nev., are now in a Salt Lake City hospital. The other two remain in a juvenile detention center in Nevada.

The juveniles have been charged with grand larceny of a motor vehicle. More charges are expected to be added, especially for the 13-year-old driver — including a second grand-theft charge — after the investigation by the Elko County Sheriff's Office is complete.

Two of the suspects are 12 years old, and the other two are 13.

The events began Monday in Burley. A man came into the Cassia County Sheriff's Office and reported that his son had run away.

The man was told that his son was absent from school and found him at home, along with two other boys, trying to pry open a window. When they saw the boy's dad, the boys ran and couldn't be found.

A few streets away, another man's 1999 Chevrolet pickup — unlocked, with its keys in the ignition — was stolen. It was later recovered in Wells, Nev.

Shoshone man wounded in shooting

By Ben Botkin
Times-News writer

A rural Shoshone real estate businessman was reportedly wounded in a shooting on Wednesday morning.

Craig Hadden, owner of Hadden Realty in Shoshone, was taken to a hospital in Boise following the incident, said his secretary, Alejandra Garcia. Garcia said she was told that Hadden was shot, adding that she wasn't aware of the circumstances of the case because she wasn't there.

"I don't know what really happened," she said.

Lincoln County Sheriff's deputies and Idaho State Police troopers were still at the scene, which was north of Shoshone in Lincoln County, at 5 p.m. Wednesday. The location matches an address for Hadden in online records.

Wednesday evening, a Lincoln County Sheriff's Office release stated "deputies responded to a shooting in the North Shoshone area" at about 9:30 a.m. Wednesday. The release didn't offer any names, said the victim was flown to a Boise hospital and stated further releases will come from the Lincoln County Prosecutor's Office.

A deputy confirmed that officials were at the scene, but refused to give any specifics.

A patient named Craig Hadden was listed in critical condition on Wednesday evening at Saint Alphonsus Regional Medical Center in Boise.

Despite the lack of specifics from police, the word of Hadden being shot has spread through the local community.

"He's a very friendly person," Garcia said. "He knows a lot of people."

As a result, the real estate office has been flooded with inquiries.

"Lots of people have been calling," Garcia said, adding that some had asked if April Fools' Day meant that misinformation was spreading. "They've been calling and wondering if it's a joke."

T.F. County leaders discuss jail crowding

Rising number of female inmates largely blamed

By Andrea Jackson
Times-News writer

The 20-year-old Twin Falls County Adult Detention Center is overcrowded mainly because the female inmate population exceeds what the lockup was built to hold, said Capt. Doug Hughes, jail administrator.

"In the last few years we've seen the number of female inmates double," he said.

That means the overcrowded jail often has empty beds in cell blocks designed for men but holding women. At times, 16-bed cells hold only four female inmates, said Hughes.

The jail was originally built to hold 20 women but now lodges up to 35, said Hughes. "There's not much we can do about that."

But county leaders are meeting to come up with solutions.

Commissioners on Wednesday visited with four district judges, Hughes and other sheriff's department officials at Twin Falls 5th District

Jail

Court to brainstorm the problem.

There were 183 inmates lodged Wednesday in the 224-bed jail, with nine others being held in out-of-county jails for lack of room here.

Building a new jail is unlikely right now, so reducing overcrowding is the goal, said Twin Falls County Commissioner Tom Mikesell. "I don't know if any of us have an answer."

Hughes said Wednesday's meeting opens communication, which may help the facility last longer during trying economic times.

"Eventually we'll have to look at expansion," Hughes said. "I just don't think it would be very good of us as public officials not to seek out and try other avenues."

Three of every 10 inmates at the Twin Falls County Jail in recent months were being held post-sentencing, according to information from the sheriff's office.

About 5 percent of the jail's inmates were being held for border patrol, and most inmates, or 64 percent, have yet to be sentenced, according to sheriff's office information.

The majority of inmates are in jail on felony charges, or 69 percent. "I think that's good," said Twin Falls County Commissioner Terry Kramer.

Judges were sympathetic to crowding at the jail, and highlighted bed-saving measures in place including special courts and programming.

"Judges can't make their sentencing decisions based on how full the Twin Falls County Jail is," said Twin Falls 5th District Court Judge Randy Stoker.

Officials agreed they plan to meet again and include prosecutors in the discussion.

Budget

Also under Otter's plan, $45 million in stimulus funding would be used to provide $3 million to establish the Idaho Education Network, a statewide broadband network; $15 million for water projects; with the remainder going toward transportation projects. About $30 million in state reserves would help balance the budget.

"It's definitely a compromise," said JFAC co-chairman Sen. Dean Cameron, R-Rupert. "He had some other things that he would've wanted in there, and we had some other things that we would've wanted in there."

But House leaders aren't backing it. House Majority Leader Mike Moyle R-Star, said. "That's an idea that's floating out there. Whatever."

Instead, they want personnel cuts of 5 percent administered by directors — Otter's original proposal. They are willing to allow 2 percent to be returned if the economy shows signs of recovery.

Moyle said, "The governor's OK with that."

House Assistant Majority Leader Scott Bedke, R-Oakley, said JFAC is already giving directors flexibility in some agencies, including higher education and the military division, which shows "there is no one size fits all."

Otter's proposed 3 percent cut "doesn't have enough support in the House" where members prefer 5 percent, Bedke said. "I think that's the preferred way to proceed. We're not out of the boat economically."

Personnel cost cuts for both educators and state employees have emerged as one of the fiercest debates of the session. In the Magic Valley, more than 30 state workers expressed frustration to lawmakers in Burley Saturday.

Meanwhile, Senate Assistant Majority Leader Joe Stegner, R-Lewiston, said JFAC's been flexible all along and Otter's latest proposal is sound.

"I'm hopeful we've reached the point where we can do minimal amount of damage to state government and state employees," he said. "I think the Senate will endorse and support this effort."

Minority Democrats said they didn't speak with Otter directly about Wednesday's proposal but said they've met with him regularly.

"We've been saying all along we shouldn't be leaving reserves in the reserve accounts," said House Assistant Minority Leader James Ruchti, D-Pocatello.

they found another vehicle that was running and stole it."

They took the second vehicle to Elko.

"They were being followed by the sheriff's department. It was a very high rate of speed, over 100 mph, and they overturned several times just past an off-ramp stop sign," said Nevada Highway Patrol Officer Jim Stewart. "They were all transported to the Elko hospital. Two of them were then flown to Salt Lake for the treatment of serious injuries."

Stewart said one of the boys was thrown from the vehicle, but there are conflicting reports about which one. Two of the boys remain in Salt Lake City; two are in the Elko Juvenile Detention Center.

"I've been doing this for about 15 years, and I've never heard of anything like this happening. It's pretty rare," Stewart said. "People steal cars all the time, but because of the ages — 12 and 13 — it shocked all of us. We were surprised they knew how to drive."

Elko County Sheriff's Lt. Doug Gailey said the boys' plan is a mystery.

"They haven't mentioned anything about where they were going," he said. "In fact, they were pretty uncooperative. They wouldn't even tell us their names or where they were from."

The kids employed at least one safety precaution.

"They allegedly stole two vehicles, led police on a 100-mph chase, and rolled the car — but they put their seat belts on. It shows they're not totally crazy," Gailey said.

Water

Wednesday showed snowpack levels ranging from 85 to 105 percent across the state.

An NRCS summary from December stated snowpacks on April 1 needed to be between 80 and 120 percent of average for adequate irrigation supplies.

"The March precipitation was a little icing on the cake, basically," Abramovich said.

Those beneficial storms should continue for at least the next week, said Jay Breidenbach with the National Weather Service. Another system is expected starting today, and after a break this weekend, more storms should appear next week.

The longest-range forecast Breidenbach has shows a good chance of another colder spring, keeping irrigation demand low and snowpack melting slowly. The water year, once predicted to be dry like 2007, could start out moist and cool, more like 2008.

In fact, Abramovich said, another cool spring with a brief warm spike to start the snow melting would be ideal.

"We couldn't really come up with a better scenario

"It'll plateau at that level for about a week, then go up from there," Beus said.

Irrigators had hoped Reclamation might delay the spills to take better advantage of them. But the overall reservoir reports are still reassuring news for people like Bill Thompson, manager of the Minidoka Irrigation District. His district could start filling its canals early next week, though the ongoing storms might delay that a few days.

"I think we're in pretty good shape," he said Wednesday. "I really do."

Brian Olmstead, general manager of the Twin Falls Canal Co., said his canals should see water in them Monday or Tuesday. Those canals may in the end receive just more than their average supply, he said, thanks in no small part to the past couple of weeks' storms.

Irrigators in the Salmon Falls, Oakley and Big Lost areas may still see shortages due to lingering drought effects, Abramovich warned. And spring rain and snow still could change the forecast, he warned.

"(But) that's money in the bank right there," he said of all the snow now on the ground.

Supplemental levy for Jerome schools passes

By Ben Botkin
Times-News writer

In a time of state cuts to education, Jerome School District officials found a brighter piece of budget news this week.

The district's voters on Tuesday night passed a one-year renewal of the district's $650,000 supplemental levy, with 67.38 percent approval. Out of 837 voters, 564 voted in favor and 273 were against the renewal. The measure needed a simple majority to pass.

District officials said its budget for the upcoming school year would have been much worse had the levy failed.

The Legislature's Joint Finance Appropriations

Committee recently has recommended that $69 million be cut from the statewide budget for public schools.

"I don't even know if I could describe how valuable it was," Jerome Superintendent Jim Cobble said of the levy vote. "I think it was absolutely crucial that we'd pass that."

If the district had to deal with state budget cuts and lost the supplemental levy at the same time, the result would have been "devastating," Cobble said, adding that he appreciates the support of patrons.

"I think it reflects a level of support this community has made toward the school district," he said.

The supplemental levy will help maintain the programs and services already in place, district officials said.

For example, the district stresses reading in the early years for long-term success, said Mike Gibson, the district's business manager. The district also has all-day kindergarten programs for youngsters who need the extra help.

"If you're dealing with kids and you can address their needs in reading, particularly in grades K through third, it gives them a more significant chance of succeeding in their 13-year career in education so we emphasize those areas," Gibson said.

Blaine students have 2 days of early release

Blaine County School District students will get out two hours early on Wednesday and May 11 to allow teachers time for professional development.

"We want to see how it goes and evaluate it for next year," said Superintendent Jim Lewis.

The district began grappling with the idea of having early release days or even full days for professional development a year ago. One of the concerns board members have had is what parents will do with their children on those days.

Some parents have said it's easier to find care for a full day but full days aren't feasible given the funding plan the schools have with the state, said Lewis.

Board member Julie Dahlgren said parents can use early-out time to sched-appointments. Or, they can work with organizations such as the YMCA, said board member Alex Sundali. Elementary school teacher Laurie Luft said the early out will allow teachers to collaborate on projects or to get up to speed on things like a new software program the school district is working on.

Blaine school board election is May 19

The Blaine County School District will hold a school board election on May 19.

Positions are open for seats currently held by board Chairwoman Alex Sundali and Trustee Kim Nilsen.

Sundali represents Zone 4, which includes all of Ketchum west of Idaho Highway 75 and north of Deer Creek Road to the Custer County line. Nilsen represents Zone 2, which covers an area south of Croy Creek Road, Fox Acres Road and Quigley Gulch Road and north of Glendale Road and Muldoon Canyon Road. The city of Bellevue is not included.

Declarations of candidacy forms are available at the district office at 118 W. Bullion St., Hailey. The deadline for filing is 5 p.m. April 17. Voting will take place from noon until 8 p.m. at Hemingway Elementary School in Ketchum for Zone 4 and at Hailey Elementary School for Zone 2.

Swan Falls bills pass Senate committee

By Jared S. Hopkins
Times-News writer

BOISE — The Senate Resources Committee on Wednesday unanimously approved three bills to codify into law the settlement announced last week regarding the Swan Falls agreement between the state and Idaho Power Co.

Central to the settlement — which basically reaffirms most items in the 1984 Swan Falls Agreement — is that Idaho Power has given up its objections to the way the state manages Snake River water rights held in trust for its Swan Falls Dam.

The rights have been the focus of an ongoing court case. But a settlement negotiated over the past couple months will wrap up most remaining issues and pave the way for talks to resolve those that remain.

"This does not change the Swan Falls agreement," said Deputy Attorney General Clive Strong, who drafted the legal agreement and the bill with attorneys for Idaho Power and Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter.

The bills require the Idaho Water Resource Board to approve any managed recharge project beyond 10,000 annual acre-feet of water, the same procedures for surface storage reservoirs; authorize the state's water chief to issue permits and licenses for groundwater recharge; clarifies that the Swan Falls agreement doesn't preclude use of water for researching; and consolidates existing state policy with respect to aquifer recharge.

Strong added that the agreement is not intended to resolve similar, unresolved issues remain regarding recharge above Milner Dam and rights for that dam owned by the North Side and Twin Falls canal companies.

"That is a separate matter. It is not resolved by this issue," he said. "It's not intended to affect other issues."

The bills now head to the Senate floor for a full vote, which could come as early as today.

In related news, the Senate committee has scheduled a hearing Monday for a bill to have the Comprehensive Aquifer Management Plan as a component of the state water plan. It's already passed the House. The plan was ordered by the Legislature two years ago because of a declining aquifer and rising number of water lawsuits.

Sellers are making $12,000+ a month with eBay and Craigs List

Despite the fact that economic indicators point towards the United States heading towards a recession, with stock market crashes, home foreclosures, unemployment, gas prices peaking at all time highs and government bailouts. One of the major bright spots in this dismal economy is eBay. The opportunity to work with eBay and other online auction web sites can have positive benefits for anyone. Why settle for minimum wage when it's possible to make over $100,000 a year from the comfort of your home? Online Auctions are ever growing in popularity, and over 220 million people signed up for eBay, with approximately 1.5 million individuals making a full-time living through online auctioning, people are leaving their everyday jobs.

Michael J. Syme, online

auction expert and author of the book "Simple Steps to Making Money with Online Auctions," is one of many people who have left the mundane aspect of a 9-to-5 desk job and has begun to make his own income at home with the help of his children. Now Syme is making around $12,000 a month by selling a variety of items that can be found in any home and any yard sale.

"People shouldn't wait until they find themselves laid off or out of a job before they find out they are not financially secure," Syme said. "They should start ensuring their own and their family's financial future immediately."

Jessica H. a single mother of two says "I purchased my first new car this year from the extra money I made selling on the internet".

Not only does eBay allow people to make money and get rid of some things that may no longer be of use, there are more benefits than cash. If a seller can make $1,000 a month or more with eBay, they can qualify for most of the same benefits that would be made available in a regular 9-to-5 job, such as health, vision, and pharmacy and dental. Over 200,000 members of eBay qualify for these benefits and more.

Using eBay at home cut back on paying for gas and having to deal with the hassle of rush hour traffic, in addition, consumer demands through the Internet are continually growing, allowing for a higher income rate per seller. Consolidated revenues for eBay in the year 2008 are expected to reach anywhere from $7.05 billion to $7.3, a 31% improvement from the year 2007.

It's not surprising, with recent economic woes people are looking to make their dollar go further, eBay and other online auction sites are the place to buy items for a discount.

According to a speech given by former Senior Vice President of Products Development, Lynn Reddy, On eBay, there is an average of one car sold every two minutes, a car part or accessory sold every three seconds, diamond jewelry every 83 seconds, and a pair of timberland shoes every 10 minutes. These items and more, from concert tickets to clothing needs, are bought and sold daily by average people looking to gain or save on income to better their current cash flow.

"Anybody can do it if they know the right technique," Syme said. "With the right techniques it's easy to make extra income."

Author and eBay expert makes $12,000 a month from home

Syme said he does not recommend attempting to become a full-time online auctioneer with eBay without learning the basics first.

"It's like driving a car," Syme said. "It's easy to do but if no one shows you how to drive, you could end up in an accident that costs you time and money to fix."

This should not be taken as discouragement to start working with online auctions. It's rather easy to get started in the process and become acquainted with the techniques. With a little homework, access to an internet-ready computer, and some basic computer knowledge, anyone can be on their way to making money with the fastest growing community in the U.S.

"Why worry where your next paycheck will come from," Syme said, "when selling on eBay it's like getting paid every day."

Grocery tax credit unlikely to change

By Jared S. Hopkins
Times-News writer

BOISE — If there's a silver lining for Idahoans to the slash-and-burn theme at the 2009 Idaho Legislature, it might come in the form of apples and oranges.

Legislators considered weeks ago whether to delay an increase in the state's grocery tax credit that takes effect July 1, to save money in the economic downturn.

Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter wants to keep it and many lawmakers don't support changing the credit, which will increase annually.

Throughout the session, Otter has said he wants to keep the grocery tax credit to offset the state's 6 percent sales tax on groceries. On Tuesday he hadn't changed his tone.

"I've made my position on that well known," Otter told reporters. "That grocery tax is as important an element of our financial responsibility to citizens of Idaho almost as any other financial consideration that we're now debating on."

Last year, the Legislature agreed that members of a family of four earning less than $25,000 each get $50, while members of families earning more each get $30. Rebates for each resident would rise by $10 each year to a maximum of $100 and $120 for seniors. That's costing about $22 million, an amount that will grow to $122 million annually by 2015.

Weeks ago Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee co-chairmen Sen. Dean Cameron, R-Rupert, and Rep. Maxine Bell, R-Jerome, considered delaying the credit increase to save the state about $14.5 million.

But with the session winding down, there's no push to delay the credit.

Cameron said he still supports delaying it because there aren't any signs the economy is going to turn around. But not all his colleagues share the sentiment.

The credit increase is set in law and triggers annually — done that way to remove it from the budget wrangling, said Rep. Cliff Bayer, R-Boise, a JFAC member who helped craft the legislation last year.

"There was chatter of suspending it. There was chatter of changing who gets it," Bayer said. "As far as I'm concerned, it will continue."

Some Democrats said they still want the credit to increase because it will help out struggling families who need it the most. But they said it might need to be delayed at some point if the economy continues to struggle.

"Some of those people who will get that lost their jobs about a month ago," said Minority Caucus Chairman Rep. Bill Killeen, D-Boise.

To change the credit lawmakers would need to pass legislation, or Otter would need to issue an executive order, based on a provision inserted into last year's legislation in case of economic problems.

Future still uncertain for SIRCOMM

By Nate Poppino
Times-News writer

Officials from four Magic Valley counties are still working out the future of a multi-county dispatch center, the chairman of the center's governing board said Wednesday.

The Southern Idaho Regional Communications Center lost its director nearly one month ago when John Shearman was placed on administrative leave. He resigned two days later. Members of the SIRCOMM Joint Powers Board — one county commissioner each from Gooding, Jerome, Lincoln and Twin Falls counties — agreed the week after to review the center's policies, procedures and status before deciding whether to even replace Shearman.

Shearman's departure came as the center works to replace and repair aging transmission equipment, as well as prepare for a federally mandated transition to digital equipment over the next couple of years. Staff and the governing board are also examining the center's budget.

A decision on the matter could have come this week. But Joint Powers Board Chairman Tom Mikesell, a Twin Falls County commissioner, said board members met again on Monday and decided to gather a little more information before making a decision. He said his counterparts from the other three counties wanted time as well to talk to dispatch staff a little more, as well as to the agencies that rely on the center.

Mikesell said he has compiled a list of what he believes needs to be done to move SIRCOMM forward and presented it during a closed-door discussion on Monday. Those parts of the list that board members adopt should become public at the board's next meeting, set for April 9, he said.

SIRCOMM handles more than 40 police, fire and EMS agencies — everything in the four counties except for the city of Twin Falls' police and fire departments.

Its current budgets total roughly $2 million, paid for largely by the counties and through various fees.

New plea agreement made in Adamson case

Times-News

Nursing-home operator and 2006 gubernatorial candidate Dan Adamson will return to court Friday after attorneys renegotiated his plea agreement in a federal tax case.

Adamson, who served as Jerome County prosecutor from 1980 to 1984, pleaded guilty last fall to one count of failing to pass on federal income withholding taxes and employee contributions to Social Security and Medicare for his business, Northwest Bec Corp. The company managed nursing-home facilities in Idaho, California and Oregon — including a number in the Magic Valley.

However, U.S. District Judge B. Lynn Winnmill refused to accept Adamson's plea agreement on Monday, in which prosecutors agreed not to submit any more evidence against Adamson. Winnmill said he needed to hear all evidence to properly render a sentence.

Attorneys for both sides have worked since to adjust the agreement. Assistant District Attorney Michelle Mallard said Wednesday afternoon that a new one has been finalized and that it will be presented during Adamson's new sentencing date, 9 a.m. Friday at the federal courthouse in Pocatello.

OPINION

QUOTE

“They failed miserably in an attempt to bring him down based on some crazed notion of him being corrupt.”
 — William Canfield, former staffer of ex-Sen. Ted Stevens of Alaska

EDITORIAL

Wood's big idea: Clarity and flexibility on municipal debt

Across Idaho, lawyers and district judges have become at least as influential as the voters in determining how cities and other political subdivisions raise money.

That's because Idaho's Constitution restricts the debt municipalities can take on. Projects requiring long-term debt must either get two-thirds approval from the electorate or win a judge's approval as “ordinary and necessary” expenses.

But a 2006 Idaho Supreme Court decision said municipalities must get voter approval for such spending unless there's an emergency. City officials say the decision created uncertainty and minimized their ability to fund projects or sign contracts.

Now legislation sponsored by Rep. Fred Wood, R-Burley, could change that.

Wood this week introduced a proposed constitutional amendment that would grant exceptions for political subdivisions to enter long-term debt. If the House Ways and Means Committee approves it, the measure must clear both the House and Senate by a two-thirds majority. The amendment doesn't need the governor's signature, but must be passed by a voter majority statewide.

It's a question worth asking the state's voters.

Wood's amendment would allow taxing entities to:

- Build or acquire a revenue-generating public facility if it generates non-tax revenue.
- Expand city-owned public electric systems.
- Sign contracts to buy or lease personal property for up to five years if the annual payments aren't more than the agency's annual general revenue.
- Agree to multi-year leases if the payment isn't more than the entity's annual income and the lease can be cancelled without liability.

In 2004, the city of Boise secured a district judge's permission for a $27 million plan to expand the city airport's parking garage. But David Frazier, a local government watchdog, sued to stop the project. Three years ago, the Supreme Court ruled in his favor and said Idaho's Constitution allows governments to bypass the voters only in an emergency.

Ever since, the murky legal definition of “emergency” has driven most cities' spending plans.

Last year, 5th District Judge Randy Stoker approved a Twin Falls request to incur debt to pay for $33.3 million in water projects to meet federal arsenic standards and increase the city water supply, saying it met the “ordinary and necessary” definition. The other option would have been to hold a citywide vote requiring two-thirds approval.

It's not always practical for cities and other taxing districts to go to the voters and ask permission to, say, buy a piece of property needed to complete a public-works project. That land, available for $500,000 today, might cost $1 million by the time the voter-consent process runs its course.

And because of the Idaho Constitution's super-majority requirement, most bond-issue elections fail in this state.

Wood's proposal wouldn't overturn the Frazier decision or force new taxes on anyone. It would simply put to the question to taxpayers whether local governments should have more latitude in spending their money.

We're not advocating giving cities a blank check; just a little more flexibility.

Our view: It's not always realistic for Idaho cities and other political subdivisions to ask for voters' permission to spend money. What do you think? We welcome viewpoints from our readers on this and other issues.

Say goodbye to Hummer Nation

You know you're in trouble when Old Europe chastises you for being too socialist. But, hey, nobody's perfect — except maybe Michelle Obama, who landed in London with a huge Obama entourage, wearing a daffodil yellow dress and looking like a confident ray of USA sunshine.

As President Obama renegotiates the terms of American leadership this week in Europe, those of us left at home struggle to get over our affluenza. That condition, the bane of the middle class, is defined in a book of the same name as “a painful, contagious, socially transmitted condition of overload, debt, anxiety and waste resulting from the dogged pursuit of more.”

The president is obviously worried about leaving us alone and under the economic weather; that must be why his Department of Health and Human Services put up some advice Tuesday on its Web site about “Getting Through Tough Economic Times.”

“Economic turmoil (e.g., increased unemployment, foreclosures, loss of investments and other financial distress) can result in a whole host of negative health effects — both physical and mental,” the government Web page sympathized, offering warning signs such as “persistent sadness/crying” and “excessive irritability/anger” and tips for managing stress, including: “Trying to keep things in perspective — recognize the good aspects of life and retain hope for the future.” And one particularly useful for Rick Wagoner and those of us in the newspaper business: Develop new employment skills.

It even went so far as to list suicide warning signs that sagely included “looking for ways to kill oneself.”

I heard a French scientist on a radio show once explain that Americans would always insist on supersizing things because our “reptilian brain” likes things big. We're still big, as Norma Desmond said. It's everything around us that's collapsing and shrinking. The Wall Street Journal had an article last week reporting that, now that gas prices have gone back down, almost half a million fuel-frugal small cars are piling up unsold at dealers around the country.

“I don't think Americans really like small cars,” Beau Boeckmann, a Ford dealer in California, told the Journal. “They drive them when they think they have to, when gas prices are high. But we're big people, and we like big cars.”

That's the big nettle we're grasping. How big do we need to be to still feel American? How big can our national debt grow? How big can our cars be?

Many people were wringing their hands about the president forcing the resignation of Wagoner, whose GM lost $82 billion in the last four years, took $13.4 billion in bailout money and asked for $16.6 billion more, even as the carmaker's market share melted from 33 percent to 18 percent and its stock slid from more than $70 a share to less than $4 — about the price of a couple gallons of gas.

But Obama's move was bracing, a sign, at long last, that the president will not tolerate failure, not when he has to print all the money in the universe to underwrite obtuseness. Wagoner showed no foresight or willingness to curb an unhealthy appetite for the big. He failed to eliminate brands and launched the Hummer brand in 2001. (Hummers remain icons of power in Iraq.)

“I thought it was absolutely bizarre,” said Maryann Keller, an independent automotive analyst, adding that “it was aimed at people who didn't know what to do with the money they had. It was discretionary spending by males who clearly had other cars in their garages.” Wagoner stuck to gas-guzzling pickups and SUVs long after it was clear that higher gas prices meant he should vary the fleet with more fuel-efficient vehicles.

The Iran hostage crisis in 1979 put America on notice that future relations with the Middle East would be volatile and that we had better get some methadone or ethanol or switch grass or something and get over our addiction to oil. But Detroit defiantly stuck its head in the sand. A lot of longtime auto watchers felt relief and excitement at Wagoner's crisp dismissal, knowing that the reckoning is at last here. The problems in the car industry have been so apparent for so long, and the failure to face up to them and move into a greener future has been so frustrating.

Obama must nurse us through our affluenza, addressing both our visceral need to be big and our cerebral decision to be leaner — and much, much smarter.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

No expectations: Is that any way to live?

There's a great line from the Gospel according to MASH. Frank Burns devises a clever scheme to get rid of the camp's garbage. Col. Potter is skeptical. Frank eagerly assures Potter, “Don't worry, Sir, I won't disappoint you!” The colonel fires back, “Frank, you can't disappoint me because I don't expect nothing of you!”

Wouldn't it be nice to have that attitude about the AIG bailout or the dismal state of education in America? How wonderful to check out, expecting nothing substantive from a $3.6 trillion budget, expecting no solution to the endless Afghan wars. No hope the neighbor's junk car lot will ever go away or your kid will succeed in starting his business. A worry-free life! You can't disappoint, 'cause I don't expect anything from you.

It's tempting to disengage from the news which seems “all bad.” But to live without hope is not really living. There's so much anger in the coffee houses precisely because we do care, and we feel powerless. Across America, political bitchin' is our No. 1 national sport. Gossip is a close second. Then I recall a guy who lived a long time ago and did nothing but good in the midst of intense government corruption. His motto was “Don't get mad, get even.” Trade anger for forgiveness; trade hatred for love. Trade bitchin' for helpin'! They executed him anyway, on a Friday, and to prove his point, his friends changed its name from “Bad Friday” to “Good Friday.”

And in my more brilliant moments, I recall my own weaknesses, my own screwed up bailouts, the kids I've slain with my tongue, the disappointments I've caused others. And especially, the words “You are forgiven” do I recall. Hope springs eternal.

So, as the tempest round me roars, how can I keep from singin'?

Staff should keep their opinions out of paper

Marjorie Dubois of Jerome, you were 100 percent correct in your letter to the editor in Friday, March 27, paper.

It appears that stories about men not being provided with bras or Andrea Jackson's story questioning police practices during an officer-involved shooting are more important topics than officers being slain while performing their duties.

While we are on the subject of reporting, Mr. Editor, why don't you keep some of your ridiculous opinions to yourself and concentrate on reporting news. After all, isn't reporting news your job? Cutting back with your opinions and not displaying your pompous attitude may increase sales.

The same advice goes to Andrea Jackson: You are supposed to report news without interjection of personal feelings. The stories you write that involve the law enforcement look like you have some sort of (vendetta) against law enforcement. The public does not care about your attitude toward the police, just the news.

CHUCK VAN VOOREN Buhl

Seems like every police shooting ends in death

A lot of people don't see the whole picture when you let us know about situations; they just say “Well, too bad,” “Stupid thing to do,” or something similar to that. Am I not right?

It used to be that when someone was caught for whatever bad thing they'd done or were doing — pulled out a gun and shot or something similar — an officer would shoot but not to kill, just to hurt in an area not fatal, enough to get the person in custody. Lately it seems like every shooting, there is an officer will feel his life is in danger or threatened, even say “It couldn't be avoided” and the criminal, as some would call him/her, gets shot — not just shot, but shot to death. It's not right.

Officers seem to take too much advantage of a gun in their hands. If you watch the news closely, you'll remember people getting shot at by an officer for having toy guns on them. I've even gone through similar situations where some kids age 10 were shooting at tin cans with a BB gun no more than 10 steps away and still got surrounded by six cop cars. Officers pointing guns and not listening to the adults telling them what's going on. Imagine your 10-year-old being thrown on the ground by an officer, watching how his face gets smashed into the pavement, just for being there, not even holding a gun.

I'm not trying to justify what Randy Holler did, but I'm questioning the way it all happened.

We miss you, R. J. ARIANA MARIN Twin Falls

Pharmacy bill unnecessary, bad for business, patients

The Idaho Senate will soon consider legislation — House Bill 216 — that would provide pharmacists immunity from liability when they refuse to fill a prescription based on religious or ethical reasons. As a licensed pharmacist, I see two major problems with the bill: The proposal seeks to provide a right that pharmacists already have, and it has far-reaching effects that may create troubling and unintended consequences, especially for Idaho business owners.

Pharmacists in the state of Idaho have always had the right to turn away business like any other business or profession. The absence of a “duty to fill” in Idaho Pharmacy Rule, by default, allows pharmacists the “right to refuse” a prescription that would result in a fatal overdose as well as many other circumstances.

READER COMMENT

I have received letters from fellow pharmacists who say HB 216 is unnecessary. Sam Hoagland is a pharmacist who practices law and has taught pharmacy law for ten years at the School of Pharmacy at Idaho State University. According to Professor Hoagland, David Ripley of Idaho Chooses Life brought his desire for a conscience police to the Idaho Board of Pharmacy. The board urged him to consult with pharmacists to review and discuss the idea before drafting legislation. Neither he nor the bill's sponsor, Rep. Tom Loertscher, chose to do that.

House Bill 216 is not only unnecessary for pharmacists; it would stymie Idaho business owners who are already struggling in this economic downturn. If HB 216 becomes law, pharmacists can refuse to dispense medications at their whim. Any attempt by employers to restrict such decisions could be met with litigation.

Furthermore, employers cannot protect their customers or their businesses by asking questions during an employment interview to find out exactly what a job candidate's future moral objections might be.

HB 216 isn't just about one medication. It would provide immunity to a Scientist pharmacist who refuses to dispense anti-depression medications, a fundamentalist Christian who refuses to dispense birth control pills or even a pharmacist who — believing that older people are a drain on the health insurance system — decides to withhold medicine from an elderly person with a terminal illness. This last possibility is especially worrisome since, although the bill would prohibit discrimination based on a patient's race, color, religion, sex or national origin, it offers no protections for discrimination based on age or disability.

The bill's worst aspect, however, may be its lack of a referral provision. If passed, HB 216 would allow pharmacists to refuse to fill prescriptions without requiring them to refer the patient to someone who will. Imagine the frustration of a business owner who found an employee regularly refusing service to customers. Imagine the distress of patients or families forced to drive all over town — or worse, to another town — simply to find someone to honor a doctor's prescription.

As it is written, HB 216 is unnecessary, overreaching and should be rejected by the Senate. Moreover, any future legislation about the practice of pharmacy ought to be written with the review and discussion of our profession, and with the goal of balancing the rights of Idaho pharmacists, business owners, doctors and patients. Call your state senator at (800) 626-0471 and ask him or her to oppose House Bill 216.

Here's what Idaho newspapers are saying about ...

... our tin-eared lawmakers

Lewiston Tribune

What will it take to get state regulation of small day care centers through the Idaho House of Representatives? Not this:

Twin Falls mother Brandi Whaley's 5-month-old daughter was violently shaken by a day-care provider who Whaley says lied about her skills and certification. The child suffered two broken ribs, a fractured arm, bleeding on the brain and hundreds of hemorrhages in each eye.

The provider was charged with felony injury to a child, but remains free to offer day care to other Idaho parents.

That's because the state refuses to impose even minimal regulations on people looking after fewer than 13 children. There are no criminal background checks — Whaley says her child's day-care provider had a history of embezzlement — no inspections to ensure safe conditions and no requirement for training in even rudimentary first aid.

And for another year, it appears there won't be those regulations. The House Health and Welfare Committee, a haven for anti-government zealots, voted (last week) to delay indefinitely further consideration of Rep. George Saylor's fifth consecutive attempt to lift Idaho out of last place in protecting children in day care. Louisiana ranks 49th, just above the Gem State.

Before rejecting by a 12-4 vote a motion to send the bill to the floor with a recommendation that it pass, the committee heard almost four hours of testimony, nearly all of it in favor ... Oh, and members also viewed photographs of Whaley's injured child.

Saylor, D-Coeur d'Alene, offered to increase from four to seven the number of children who could be cared for by unregulated providers, but members rejected that as well.

"It's the very conservative ideology that we've run up against in the past," Saylor said after the committee shelved the bill, which passed the Senate 30-5 ...

What will it take to get state regulation of small day-care centers through the Idaho House of Representatives? Probably, a different Idaho House of Representatives.

... punishing bartenders

Idaho Press-Tribune, Nampa

Amid the dozens of pages of a bill that largely updates Idaho's liquor laws are some troubling changes in how the state would enforce controls on serving alcohol to minors and customers who are already intoxicated.

The point of the overhaul in most respects is to update outdated rules and regulations.

But illegal alcohol sales to young people and over-serving customers, which heightens the threat of drunk drivers on the road, are hardly archaic concerns.

Consider these changes:

- For businesses that provide training for workers, the license holder would receive a warning for an establishment's first two violations of liquor laws in three years, and a $500 fine for a third violation.

- When an employee without training is caught serving alcohol to a minor, the punishment for a license holder is a $300 fine for the first violation and $1,000 for a second violation within three years.

- Wording of the law is altered from forbidding serving customers who are "intoxicated or apparently intoxicated" to "obviously intoxicated."

- Liquor businesses that have provided training yet sell to minors would not be punished unless they did so three times in a three-year period ...

But it creates a worrisome situation.

If the bill becomes law, employees who serve to minors or intoxicated customers face a fine of up to $1,000 and even jail time on the first offense. But business owners who have trained employees would get just a "warning letter" for the first two offenses in a three-year period.

So essentially license holders get a free pass while their employees face tough sanctions ...

If the provisions remain, the bill should sit in a drawer until clearer thinking prevails.

Slap on the wrist won't deter sexual predator

This letter is regarding Jason Smith. I am here as a mother of two of his victims. At the time, they were 5 and 29 months. I am Pam Henstock. Jason Smith was my cousin. He is a violent sexual predator. My kids never told me what happened; I knew something but could not prove it. Two years later, Jason confessed. My son, then 7, went to the police station and retold his nightmare, gory details how he threatened them if they told, and then testified in court.

Jason had seven counts of sodomy on him alone and there was another child in court. There are victims younger than mine. If what Jason did to my kids and other kids is not violent, then what is? He never received punishment for what he had done. He was slapped on the hand. While in prison for the 15-year-old, he refused to take sexual offender classes. Therefore, he has not tried to help himself. Yes, he was sexually abused as a child and his mother turned a blind eye. Thus the cycle continues. My kids had therapy. They have to live with this awful thing. Meanwhile Jason gets to go on as if nothing happened and offend again.

I teach 4-year-olds. We teach them about body safety and no one has a right to touch you and what to do. However, we as parents tell our kids there is no such thing as monsters, they are not real, and they are! They wear the face of Jason Smith. However, the Supreme Court is making it hard to protect the innocent of the world by letting people like Jason Smith not register as a violent sexual predator. The people of the USA have a right to know who lives by them and what he has done.

Economy contracting at slower pace, no bottom yet

By Martin Crutsinger
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — New economic reports on construction spending, manufacturing and pending home sales suggest the recession may be moving closer to a bottom.

But most analysts think the low point is still months away, with more bad news likely before the economy stabilizes and begins to rebound.

"I think the best that can be said right now is that the pace of decline has slowed, but we are still heading down," said David Wyss, chief economist at Standard & Poor's in New York. "Any recovery is still a work in progress."

Wyss predicted that the recession, already the longest in a quarter-century, will last until September. But he said the decline in the gross domestic product in the current April-June quarter will probably be just half the 6.3 percent drop that was recorded in the final three months of last year.

The Commerce Department reported Wednesday that construction spending dropped 0.9 percent in February, the fifth straight monthly decline but less than the expected 1.5 percent decrease.

Meanwhile, a trade group's measure of the health of manufacturing in March showed that key sector of the economy shrank for the 14th straight month.

The Institute for Supply Management said its manufacturing index rose to 36.3 last month from 35.8 in February. Even with the small increase, the index is stuck well below the reading of 50 that is the dividing line between growth and recession. The index hit a 28-year low of 32.9 in December.

"Manufacturing is still totally in the dumps, but it doesn't seem to be sinking further," said Joel Naroff, chief economist at Naroff Economic Advisors.

March proved to be another dismal month for U.S. automakers as low consumer confidence kept buyers away. General Motors Corp. led the slide, with a 45 percent drop in sales compared with March 2008.

Ford Motor Co. reported a 41 percent decline, and Chrysler LLC said sales plunged 39 percent.

But on Wall Street, stocks rose after the construction and manufacturing reports were better than expected, and the National Association of Realtors said pending home sales rebounded in February from a record low. The Dow Jones industrial average added more than 152 points, or 2 percent, to 7761.60. Broader indicators also rose on the first trading day of the second quarter.

The 0.9 percent fall in construction spending was led by a 4.3 percent drop in housing.

That pushed housing construction to the lowest level in 11 years. Home builders have cut back sharply, but they face a rising glut of unsold homes as record mortgage foreclosures dump more properties on the market.

Britain's Prime Minister Gordon Brown and U.S. President Obama during a press conference at the Foreign and Commonwealth Office in London Wednesday.

Obama, Brown predict G20 deal to fight recession

By Jane Wardell
Associated Press writer

LONDON — Doggedly optimistic in the face of doubts, President Barack Obama and British Prime Minister Gordon Brown predicted Thursday's emergency G-20 economic summit would produce a significant global deal to tackle the deepening worldwide recession.

Others weren't so sure. France warned on Wednesday that neither it nor Germany would agree to "false compromises" that soft-pedal a need for tougher financial regulation to curb abuses that contributed to the spreading chaos. And outside the carefully scripted meetings, protesters smashed bank windows and pelted police with eggs and fruit.

Thousands surged into London's financial district, blockading the Bank of England and breaking into a branch of the Royal Bank of Scotland. Elsewhere, however, inside the meetings, Obama said differences among the presidents and prime ministers of the Group of 20 rich and emerging countries, were "vastly overstated."

"I am absolutely confident that this meeting will reflect enormous consensus about the need to work in concert to deal with these problems," said Obama, who is under pressure to make a good showing in his first major international appearance.

With economic chaos spreading, Brown, the host of the summit, predicted agreement on a coordinated strategy, including a possible $100 billion fund to finance global trade, tighter financial rules and action to support economic growth and job creation.

G-20 leaders are also in general agreement on a plan to double the money available to the International Monetary Fund, to some $500 billion, to help emerging countries.

Consensus on further measures is by no means clear.

Brown initially trumpeted the gathering as "a new Bretton Woods — a new financial architecture for the years ahead." But the meeting so far bears little similarity to the 1944 New Hampshire conference where the eventual winners of World War II gathered to set postwar global monetary and financial order.

Washington has eased off on its push for other governments to pump more money into economic stimulus programs after heavy opposition from European countries, who contend their bigger social safety nets make more spending unnecessary.

Germany and France have instead campaigned for tougher rules to restrain financial market excesses.

Lending problems still hamper small business sales

NEW YORK (AP) — Andrea Edmunds got a great deal when she decided to buy a small business. But that still didn't make it easy.

Edmunds recently bought back PoshTots and PoshLiving, two linked retail companies she had co-owned until three years ago. The firms' new parent company was in bankruptcy court and Edmunds wanted to buy the businesses back, even though the companies' sales were way down and financing is hard to get.

"I had enough confidence and faith that it's going to turn around," Edmunds said of her businesses and the economy.

Edmunds managed to accomplish what many would-be entrepreneurs are hoping for in a troubled economy: to buy a small business despite the many obstacles that are making deals hard to complete.

Business brokers, who bring buyers and sellers together, say there are a growing number of people who want to buy, including many who have lost their jobs over the past year and need to make a living. And there are plenty who want to sell, including baby boomers hankering for retirement.

Getting financing for deals is still tough, although the government has taken steps to make Small Business Administration loans easier to obtain. The brokers say banks are not only uneasy about borrowers, they're also questioning the health of the companies up for sale.

"Even with those changes, we feel that it seems as if the money may never reach the small business owner," said Jeff Hoops, senior vice president of The Haley Group in Paso Robles, Calif.

Small businesses have found it hard to borrow from banks for years, long before the recession; a neophyte owner or company has been too risky for many banks to take on. The recession and banks' unwillingness to lend in general over the past six months have made it that much harder.

Edmunds said her financing came from a private, locally-owned bank that was supportive of her plans. The fact that she knew her businesses so well was a plus, and the purchase price was down dramatically — $735,000, compared to the $12 million she and two partners got three years ago. The companies, based in Glen Allen, Va., sell upscale home furnishings.

Brokers are seeing lower prices in general along with fewer transactions.

Peter Berg, managing director of Transworld Business Brokers in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., said the volume of deals his firm did last year fell 10 percent but the value of all the deals put together went down 30 percent.

Meanwhile, deals are taking longer to complete while banks give prospective borrowers and companies much closer scrutiny. Emmet Apolinario, who owns a Sunbelt brokerage in

Authorities seize Madoff's home, boats in Florida

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Federal authorities seized disgraced financier Bernard Madoff's Palm Beach mansion, his vintage yacht and a smaller boat Wednesday, part of an effort to recoup assets to pay back investors he swindled.

Barry Golden, a spokesman for the U.S. Marshals Service, said about five U.S. marshals arrived at the 8,753-square-foot, five-bedroom mansion late Wednesday afternoon, hours after marshals seized the boats. Authorities planned to enter and secure the mansion, change the locks and conduct an inventory of the property, which Palm Beach County records show had a taxable value of $9.3 million last year.

Golden said marshals will spend about three to four hours filming and photographing items in the house that might be removed at some point. The mansion was unoccupied when federal authorities arrived.

"It's not an April Fools' joke," he said.

Palm Beach County property records show the mansion was purchased in 1994 under his wife Ruth's name for $3.8 million. The 2008 property tax bill was $157,298. Golden said the estate would be "monitored and maintained" and is no longer considered Madoff's property.

"Once the judge signed the order, it stopped being Bernie Madoff's home," Golden said.

Earlier in the day, Golden said Madoff's 55-foot yacht named "Bull" and a 24-foot motor boat were taken from marinas on Florida's east coast. The yacht, a 1969 Rybovich, is worth $2.2 million.

"A lot of money was put into maintaining this boat," Golden said. "This boat was extremely well kept, extremely clean. Engine compartment was spotless. It looked like somebody took a bottle of 409 and scrubbed it every day."

Madoff, 70, is in jail in New York awaiting sentencing after he pleaded guilty to swindling billions from investors in what could be the biggest scam in Wall Street history. He faces up to 150 years behind bars.

Prosecutors are seizing as much as they can of Madoff's personal fortune, and have begun demanding millions of dollars in payments from his relatives. Roughly 6,700 people have filed claims for a share of whatever is recovered. Thousands more — some who lost in excess of $1 million — are expected to come forward.

Supreme Court backs power plants over fish protection

By Robert Barnes
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court said Wednesday that the Environmental Protection Agency may consider whether protecting fish and other aquatic creatures is worth the cost of the most advanced upgrades for older power plants, a defeat for environmentalists who had challenged the government's position.

The court ruled 6 to 3 that such cost-benefit decisions are allowed under the Clean Water Act as the agency moved to require more than 500 older power plants to upgrade the ways they draw water to cool machinery. Water-intake systems kill 3.4 billion fish and shellfish each year, the EPA estimated.

But the technology that could bring the older plants more in line with new plants would cost about $3.5 billion annually, the EPA said.

Environmentalists argued that the Clean Water Act requires remedies that "reflect the best technology available for minimizing adverse environmental impact," and that Congress understood it was nearly impossible to put a monetary value on the loss of wildlife. But Justice Antonin Scalia wrote that even the environmentalists acknowledged that there was some limit to whether the most advanced technology was worth it.

"It seems to us, therefore, that the phrase 'best technology available,' even with the added specification 'for minimizing adverse environmental impact,' does not unambiguously preclude cost-benefit analysis," he wrote.

Power plants draw more than 214 billion gallons of water from U.S. waterways daily to cool power plants, "squashing," in Scalia's words, billions of fish and other small aquatic creatures against intake screens or sucking them into the cooling systems. In newer plants, closed-cooling systems reduce the rate by 98 percent.

But it is extremely costly to implement such systems at older plants, and the EPA said less expensive plans would reduce the loss by 80 percent to 95 percent.

Industry has long advocated the cost-benefit analysis embraced by the Bush administration's EPA. But whether the Obama administration will feel the same is another question, and environmentalists have begun to lobby for a different approach.

Alex Matthiessen, president of the New York-based environmental group Riverkeeper, which brought the lawsuit, noted that the court did not say that EPA is required to use the cost-benefit analysis, only that it may.

"We are looking forward to working with EPA's new administrator, whom we are confident will agree that the Bush EPA regulations failed to satisfy the Clean Water Act," he said.

Environmental groups pointed out that new EPA Administrator Lisa Jackson previously headed the environmental protection agency in New Jersey, one of the states that supported Riverkeeper in the suit. An EPA spokeswoman said the department had no comment on the decision.

Justice John Paul Stevens, in dissent, said that the majority was ignoring the plain language of the statute, and that he found it "puzzling" that the court relied on Congress's silence about whether a cost-benefit analysis was appropriate to decide that it was allowed. He was joined by Justices David Souter and Ruth Bader Ginsburg.

Vindicated: Decision to drop Stevens case points to scrutiny of prosecutors

By Carrie Johnson and Del Quentin Wilber
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — During the corruption trial against former Alaska Sen. Ted Stevens, federal prosecutors were chastised by a judge for letting a witness leave town. They got in trouble for submitting erroneous evidence and were reprimanded for failing to turn over key witness statements. An FBI agent has since complained about the prosecution team's misconduct.

Wednesday Attorney General Eric H. Holder Jr. announced that he had had enough. The Justice Department asked U.S. District Judge Emmet Sullivan to drop the case after learning that prosecutors had failed to turn over notes that contradicted testimony from their key witness.

The discovery by a fresh team of lawyers and their acknowledgment that the material should have been shared with the former senator's defense team, led Holder, a former public corruption prosecutor, to conclude that the department's biggest public corruption case in a decade could not be salvaged.

Holder's decision invites tough new scrutiny on a unit that polices corrupt officials and could foreshadow a shakeup in the way the government prosecutes such cases, according to lawyers who work on such cases.

Current and former department lawyers predict an overhaul that will sweep aside senior leaders in the Public Integrity Section, two of whom were cited in contempt of court by the Stevens trial judge. That ruling triggered an internal ethics probe that has produced the awkward situation in which prosecutors and FBI agents who worked side by side on the case are pointing fingers of blame at each other, sources said.

The public integrity section in recent years has lagged in both personnel and investigative firepower, veterans of the office say. Its work has produced acquittals and second guessing from judges.

Stevens issued a statement that said he was "grateful that the new team of responsible prosecutors at the Department of Justice has acknowledged that I did not receive a fair trial and has dismissed all the charges against me."

Holder's decision could also benefit another Alaska politician, GOP Rep. Don Young, who is the subject of an ongoing corruption probe. Inconsistencies by witnesses in the Stevens case could make prosecutors reluctant to use those same witnesses — oil services company executive Bill Allen and contractor Rick Smith — in any possible case against Young.

And other ongoing investigations of members of Congress, which have already been slowed by problems with collecting evidence and protecting lawmakers' constitutional privileges, could grow more painstaking given additional levels of care and oversight by department brass who want to avoid a repeat of the Stevens debacle.

Defense lawyers who represent public officials already are seeking to exploit the government's problems in the Stevens case to help their own clients accused of political corruption, three of them said Wednesday.

CHEYENNE, Wyo. — The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service released a formal rule Wednesday to remove gray wolves from the federal endangered list in Montana and Idaho while keeping protections in Wyoming.

That state and environmentalists promised to challenge immediately when the formal delisting rule is published Thursday in the Federal Register.

Interior Secretary Ken Salazar had said last month that he would uphold the agency's decision to continue managing wolves in Wyoming.

State Attorney General Bruce Salzburg said Wyoming will sue over being denied management of wolves.

The state has proposed classifying wolves as predators that could be shot on sight in most of the state and managed as trophy game in some parts.

The Natural Resources Defense Council and other environmental groups said they would sue over their contention that federal protections are inadequate.

representing conservation groups — said they were "going to fight until we can get to legitimate recovery. We think that the population is close to appropriate recovery levels, but it's not there yet."

Ed Bangs, wolf recovery coordinator with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service in Montana, said the agency expected the legal challenges.

"We know we're going to be in litigation over this whole thing," he said.

Salzburg said Wednesday that Wyoming objected to the federal agency's request to raise the number of wolves the state should accommodate. He said the agency has said for years that Wyoming, Montana and Idaho needed to maintain 15 breeding pairs and at least 150 wolves each. The rule released this week specifies that Wyoming also should maintain at least seven breeding pairs and 70 wolves outside of Yellowstone and Grand Teton national parks.

"The Fish and Wildlife Service needs to make its decisions based solely on science, as opposed to what we think are political and public relations concerns that in our view don't have a place in a listing or delisting decision," Salzburg said.

Obama won't defend Bush's cuts in protections for spotted owls

By Jeff Barnard
Associated Press writer

GRANTS PASS, Ore. — The Obama administration has notified a federal court that it will not defend the Bush administration's decision to cut protections for the northern spotted owl, a threatened bird whose need for old growth forests has been at the center of long-standing battles over logging in the Northwest.

In a motion filed Tuesday in U.S. District Court in Washington, D.C., lawyers for the Department of Interior said they based the decision on an inspector general's report finding potential political interference in owl protections by a former deputy assistant Interior secretary, Julie MacDonald.

The motion is the latest in a series of actions in lawsuits over Bush administration plans to cut protections for threatened and endangered species. Similar motions were filed recently in cases involving Gunnison sage grouse, Canada lynx, and bull trout, whose habitat needs stand in the way of grazing, logging and mining on federal lands.

A northern spotted owl sits on a tree in the Deschutes National Forest near Camp Sherman, Ore., in May 2003. The Department of the Interior told a federal court Wednesday that it will not defend the Bush administration's decision to cut back protections for the threatened species.

MacDonald resigned in May 2007. The Interior Department's inspector general found evidence of political interference in 20 decisions involving threatened and endangered species and said MacDonald was involved in 13.

"It is very clear they are drawing a line saying, 'We are not going to have anything to do with that kind of political meddling,'" said Todd True, an attorney for Earthjustice, which represents conservation groups that intervened in the case.

The Wildlife Society, the Society for Conservation Biology and the American Ornithologists Union said last year that the owl recovery plan was better than a draft they had flunked outright, but there was still no scientific basis for allowing more logging of the old growth forests where the threatened bird lives.

If a new spotted owl recovery plan and critical habitat designation are developed and impose the levels of old growth forest habitat protection sought by conservation groups, it would be very difficult for the U.S. Bureau of Land Management to go forward with the Bush administration's last attempt to increase logging in owl country.

Man sentenced to 24 years in torture case
 POCATELLO — An eastern Idaho man convicted for torturing a woman with a wood burning tool over a period of several months will spend at least 24 years in a state prison.
 Jose Manuel Sanchez, 61, of Chubbuck, was sentenced Tuesday by 6th District Judge David C. Nye.
 In February, a jury deliberated for more than eight hours before convicting Sanchez of 112 counts of aggravated battery for torturing the woman repeatedly over a four-month period in late 2007 at the end of their 16-year relationship.

 During the seven-day trial, prosecutors accused Sanchez of coming to the woman's home in the evening and burning her genital region and buttocks with a wood burning tool. Police reports indicate that between 10 and 20 percent of the woman's body had suffered burns.

 "The question was not whether or not (Sanchez) should be incarcerated, but for how long," Nye said during Tuesday's hearing.

Nine patients made nearly 2,700 ER visits
 AUSTIN — Just nine people accounted for nearly 2,700 of the emergency room visits in the Austin area during the past six years at a cost of $3 million to taxpayers and others, according to a report.

 The patients went to hospital emergency rooms 2,678 times from 2003 through 2008, said the report from the nonprofit Integrated Care Collaboration, a group of health care providers who care for low-income and uninsured patients.
 "What we're really trying to do is find out who's using our emergency rooms ... and find solutions," said Ann Kitchen, executive director of the group, which presented the report last week to the Travis County Healthcare District board.

 The average emergency room visit costs $1,000. Hospitals and taxpayers paid the bill through government programs such as Medicare and Medicaid, Kitchen said.

 MILFORD — It's no April Fools' joke. The baby bunny really does have two noses.
 A Connecticut pet shop worker found the nosey bunny in a delivery of 6-week-old dwarf rabbits that arrived at the Milford store last week. Both noses have two nostrils.

 The owner of the Purrfect Pets shop says the bunny eats, drinks and hops around like the rest of the litter. Beardsley Zoo director Gregg Dancho says the deformity could be the result of too much inbreeding or the parents' exposure to pesticides or poisons.

More to see than rocks at Castleford monument

Story by Andrew Weeks

CASTLEFORD — The man and his two children appeared insignificant standing below the 48-foot tall monolith, which looked as if it might topple over upon them.

But just as it had for thousands of years, the rock held its place.

Rivera had come to the Magic Valley from Spokane, Wash., for a local conference, and while here he decided to visit Castleford’s Balanced Rock.

When he stopped for directions at a local business, the woman helping him chuckled. She did not seem to think Balanced Rock was worth much of a visit, Rivera said. But he wasn’t disappointed.

“I’d recommend it to anyone who has not seen it before,” he said. “It was very impressive.”

Once Rivera and his children, Jared and Jenna, left the site, two other cars pulled up at the dirt parking inlet at the trail’s base. The occupants of one vehicle stepped out and began their hike up the trail to give closer examination of the boulder; the people in the other car viewed the rock from the parking lot.

The hiking trail is a moderate incline, and if you’re in good shape you can reach the top in less than five minutes. Take it slower coming down, though, as loose rocks will make your descent slippery if you’re not careful. Good hiking boots are recommended.

Besides the popular monument, “there are some other cool rock formations up there,” Rivera said.

The weather-beaten wooden sign at the entrance of Balanced Rock Park appeared to have been there for a while; obviously, so has the centuries-old canyon that houses the park.

The park — which you’ll pass on your left a little less than a mile from Balanced Rock if you’re coming from Buhl — is long and narrow and lies between large rock walls and a cozy river. Picnic tables sit nearby for those interested in spending some family time at the park.

Farther in, eye-catching rock formations — some covered in moss, others dotted with holes — fill parts of the landscape. A narrow trail runs along the river, and the hike is easy without many inclines. But you can only go a half-mile or so before travel is blocked by a rock wall.

If you’re a birder it might be a good place to visit, especially as the weather warms. Birds roost high in the rocky crevices and cliffs, while above them crows and hawks soar in search of small game, their coos and caws echoing loud and long in the canyon.

The sounds here — such as the semis that roar their way along 3700 North near the park’s entrance — seem distorted, almost haunting, as their vibrations bounce back and forth along the rocky walls.

TO GET THERE

From Buhl, take Main Street to the west and turn right on Burley Avenue, then follow the signs about 15 miles northwest through farmland to Balanced Rock. Two options present themselves as you wind your way between rocky bluffs along 3700 North: A small park is hidden to the left, and Balanced Rock itself lies ahead on the right. For more information: 208-736-2350.

If you plan to visit Balanced Rock or its park, make sure you go on a blue-sky day. The rock formations stand out darker and seem more intriguing when set against a blue backdrop.

At top, a view of off-road trails can be seen in the area’s expansive open fields and rolling hills — a stark contrast to the monument’s rocky terrain.

Balanced Rock, a basalt monolith formed thousands of years ago by differential wind and weather patterns, is 48-feet tall, 40-feet wide, and sits atop a base that is little more than 3-feet wide, according to a bullet-holed sign across the road from the site.

One wonders if the rock will forever balance itself on the small platform. In the early to mid 1900s, the base was reinforced with cement after someone tried to chip away at the rock, said Max Yingst, recreation planner for the Bureau of Land Management’s Jarbidge Field Office.

“Someone had apparently wanted to see it roll down the hill,” he said.

Still doing its balancing act, the iconic rock appears it would do much more than roll if it ever did fall.

Spring skiing

About 150 skiers expected to turn out at Sun Valley half-pipe event

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

Sven Ciemann, a Swiss business consultant, just celebrated his 10th Spring Break in Sun Valley.

He wouldn't have it any other way.

It gives him the opportunity to trade the fog he's been skiing in all winter back home for Sun Valley's trademark sun.

It gives him a chance to ski Sun Valley's continuous fall line — ski slopes that angle downward without flat pauses along the way.

And it gives him a chance to party.

"I love the people, I love the mountain ... And I love the music that Sun Valley has on the patio when you're finished skiing. The Swiss don't have a clue when it comes to knowing how to finish the ski day off right. The Swiss are too busy thinking," he said.

Indeed, spring skiing in Sun Valley can seem like one big party.

After a winter of packing around snow shovels and dressing like a seven-layer salad, locals are only too ready to shed their sweaters and embrace the sun beating down on Bald Mountain.

And out-of-town guests are happy to join them as they hail the changing of the seasons.

"Spring skiing is the carrot at the end of the stick. We go through the rest of the season with all its multiple conditions to get to this — and then we grab it," said Ketchum skier Tom Oliverio.

It's easy to get rhapsodic about

KAREN BOSSICK/For the Times-News

Spring typically sees some of the lightest ski crowds of the year at Sun Valley, even though the conditions are often some of the best.

spring skiing. It's a time when you can strip to a turtleneck and a vest as the sun bakes the chairlifts. A time when you can revel in the cool spray of the skier's wake in front of you.

It's a time when others dress up in hula skirts and other crazy costumes. A time when the bumps are soft enough that even the mogul challenged can weed their way through them. A time when you can finish the day off by kicking off your boots and tapping your feet to the live music on the patio at Warm Springs or a street dance outside Apple's Bar and Grill.

The paragliders add their pizzazz circling over the mountain under bright blue and red and yellow wings.

And this weekend 150 of the best freestyle skiers in the west are adding their twists and turns, as they compete in Sun Valley's half-pipe and on a carpet of bumps on Roundhouse Slope.

Never mind that the lift tickets cost about half of what they are during regular season.

Sun Valley residents boast that Baldy has some of the best spring skiing on the planet.

The sun makes such regular appearances you'd think it was on Sun Valley's payroll. The grooming is so impeccable that it's rare to find an icy spot, even first thing in the morning. And the ski runs are situated so that you can follow the sun as the day progresses, leaving the slushy stuff behind for firmer conditions.

"I don't know of too many places in the country that get the cold nights we do and then the bright sun to soften the firm snow into corn snow," said Sun Valley's marketing director Jack Sibbach.

The weather has been just cool enough for the past week that the skiing on Baldy has been smooth and even creamy from top to bottom the moment the lifts open — even on the Warm Springs side of the mountain.

But, generally speaking, those who ski Baldy regularly know there are a few tricks to spring skiing.

If the snow got sippy the day before and then froze overnight, start out on the River Run side of the mountain, skiing runs like Ridge that are in the sun.

Seattle Ridge can also be very soft first thing in the morning since it is usually the last to be groomed.

Save Canyon and Warm Springs, which are last to get the sun, until later in the morning. Ditto for runs that weren't groomed that morning — they won't ski as well first thing in the morning as those that have been freshly groomed.

The Bowls and moguls along Christmas Ridge warm up amazingly quick in the heat of the sun. Catch them before they get too mooshy. Then head toward the bumps in Hemingway, Cozy, Arnold's Run and on Picabo's Street.

If the day's a little on the colder side, stick to the runs that have been groomed.

If a little rain falls, don't sweat it — it just softens things up.

"I skied Mt. Hood in Oregon before we moved here and it gets so

LAST CHANCE TO SKI

This is the last weekend for Seattle Ridge and the Bowls on Baldy. They will close at the end of the day on Sunday.

Baldy and Dollar will continue to be open through April 12 — Easter Sunday. And Apple's Bar and Grill will celebrate the end of the season with its annual street dance on Saturday, April 11.

College students and instructors can ski Sun Valley now for $30 with college ID. Adults can ski it for $55 and children for $33.

Those with season passes at other resorts can get a discount. And weekend discount cards are valid seven days a week.

Sun Valley also has a variety of lodging specials, available by calling 1-800-786-8259. And the resort is offering 30 percent off food, wine and beer at its mall restaurants — including its Sunday brunch in the Lodge — with the exception of Easter Sunday.

marshy during spring. Here the snow is so perfect," said Oliverio. "You can sleep in and still have the same great conditions you might have had earlier late in the morning. If the snow's soft you can ski the bumps all day. And if it's a little colder you can ski the groomers and still have good skiing."

Many people give up on skiing come April, noted longtime Sun Valley skier Randy Wilkins.

"And that's too bad because the skiing's absolutely wonderful!"

Cooking in the wild with the Esbit Pocket Stove

Invented in 1936, and applied toward the heating of water and food for millions of campers and backpackers since, the Esbit solid fuel tablet is a compact and quick alternative heat source to white gas and cartridge-based camp stoves. The tablets — based on a chemical compound called hexamethylenetetramine — ignite at the touch of a match and burn a near-invisible blue flame for 15 minutes at a pop.

I have employed Esbit tablets as firestarters, the tiny chemical bricks working as a guaranteed flame to light leaves or dead sticks in a hurry at the base of a roaring campfire to come. For heating water and soup, I use the company's classic Esbit Pocket Stove, a $10 foldable shell of galvanized steel that resembles an animal trap.

Simply unfold the stove, insert a tablet, set a pot on top, and light.

Convenience and weight savings — not heat output or performance — are the main advantages to most items Esbit makes. The parent company, Esbit Compagnie GmbH of Hamburg, Germany, does not project cutting-edge innovation in its line of pots, stoves, cups, lids, and chemical tablets.

Its products — distributed in the United States by AGS Labs (www.agsbrands.com) of Dallas, Texas — are for the most part simple, with few or no moving parts, zero mechanical components, and nothing much to fail.

For all these reasons, plus the cheap price, I am a fan of the Pocket Stove for ultralight wilderness trips. On the downside, there is no temperature adjustment or heat regulation — the tablets burn at one steady temp until they're done. You can't simmer a pot of stew on low flame. And the tablets have a chemical stench.

But for quick heat with little fuss, there aren't many better solutions.

This month, I tested a new product from the company.

THE GEAR JUNKIE
Stephen Regenold

The Esbit Stove/Cookset, an all-in-one pot, lid, and stove package, weighs just seven ounces and stacks together for transport in a pack.

The miniature cook pot, made of anodized aluminum, holds a max capacity of 20 ounces of liquid — the equivalent of a large cup of coffee — but more manageably you can heat or boil about 14 ounces without a lot of splash-over.

It costs $30 and has fairly limited use for backpackers. Stick a tablet underneath and the Cookset can heat a cup of water in short order. In my test — on a windless, 40-degree day — the stove brought eight liquid ounces of water to a boil in six minutes. That's enough for a small cup of tea.

But when I tried to boil 16 ounces of water, the whole life cycle of a single Esbit tablet — about 17 minutes of flame output — was not enough to bring on a boil. Bubbles were percolating. The water was steaming. But a full boil never came.

Further, you cannot melt snow efficiently in this small pot. For purification, you cannot boil water quickly enough to make any serious quantity.

Overall, the Esbit Stove/Cookset struck as extremely narrow in its use. If I need to heat a small can of soup, it does the job fine. It will heat your water with little fuss for a mug of instant coffee in the wilds.

For anything more than that, I am going to stick with the company's $10 Pocket Stove, a contraption that's been around for decades and one that works with pots both large and small.

Water for wildlife: Guzzlers at Bell Rapids serve area animals

By Rob Morris
Times-News correspondent

Say the word guzzler to Idaho bird hunters and they are likely to conjure up scenes of the arid southwest: sparsely spaced shrubs of creosote bush, mesquite and cholla cactus sheltering coveys of gamble and scaled quail.

Others may not be familiar with guzzlers — contraptions that catch and store water from rain and snow.

Guzzlers are put in areas where the lack of available water prevents wildlife from becoming established or expanding. Water stored in guzzlers is available year-round but is particularly critical in the hot, dry summer months of July, August and early September.

The Idaho Department of Fish and Game has been busy installing guzzlers on the Bell Rapids Wildlife Tracts south of Bliss. Jointly managed by the Bureau of Land Management and IDFG, these tracts had some of the historically highest upland bird harvest rates within the Magic Valley region. Pheasants and Hungarian partridge found nesting cover and food in the surrounding crop fields and wintered on the BLM tracts.

In 2004, a water right buyout agreement was negotiated between landowners and Idaho Power Co., and the area turned to cattle grazing rather than farming. Surprisingly, good populations of upland birds remain, especially huns.

"We want to do everything we can to maintain upland bird populations on the Bell Rapids area," said Bruce Palmer, F&G's regional wildlife biologist. "When the area was farmed, there was plenty of water up there. Now, without irrigation, water could be the limiting factor for upland birds.

"After the buyout agreement in 2004, we discovered that several guzzlers had been installed in the mid-1970s when the area was first surveyed and fenced off, although they had to be manually filled. We hired a water truck and filled them up and found every one leaked like a sieve."

Undaunted, Palmer secured funds with BLM and installed seven guzzlers in 2007.

Large guzzlers that are designed and built for bigger game such as elk or bighorn sheep can be expensive to build and install. Since small game, birds and the occasional deer or pronghorn antelope are the species that use the guzzlers, such substantial infrastructure wasn't needed. Palmer went with a smaller unit, costing much less and being much easier to install.

"Last year we installed an additional five guzzlers, bringing the total to 12," he said.

So, are they being used?

"We have evidence of upland birds, rabbits, deer, pronghorn and badgers regularly coming in for a drink. We'd like to do track counts (clearing off an area and doing species identification by their tracts in the soft dirt) or perhaps by setting up a trail camera to do more accurate use counts as well as giving us a handle on species density."

The bird hunting may not be what it once was on Bell Rapids, but thanks to Fish and Game and the guzzler installations, there will always be birds to hunt.

Participate in 100 hours of astronomy

If you haven't heard by now, this year — the quadricentennial of Galileo's first use of a telescope — has been designated the International Year of Astronomy. The theme of IYA2009 is "The Universe — Yours to Discover," and the goal is to involve everyone in the celebration of the oldest science.

Starting today at 9 a.m. is "100 Hours of Astronomy," one of the most ambitious of eleven IYA2009 cornerstone projects. It kicks off with a live Web streaming event from Philadelphia's Franklin Institute, with a virtual tour of their exhibit featuring one of only two of Galileo's telescopes still in existence. That's followed at 11 a.m. by 90 minutes of interactive webcasts from several science centers around the world on a variety of topics. Participants can submit questions to experts and receive answers in real time.

"Around the World in 80 Telescopes" will feature a day-long webcast of real astronomers operating observatory telescopes and working on their research. This webcast runs from 3 a.m. Friday to 3 a.m. Saturday.

Local amateur astronomers (including yours truly) will participate in International Sidewalk Astronomy Night, an annual event that has been scheduled to coincide with 100HA. Weather permitting we'll have portable telescopes set up near the corner of Main Avenue and Shoshone Street in downtown Twin Falls, offering free views of the moon, Saturn, and other targets bright enough to outshine street lights.

Throughout the 100 hours, opportunities will be offered for anyone to

Salmon poisoning can kill dogs

Warning to steelhead and salmon anglers: Sharing your catch with your dog can be an act of kindness that kills.

Salmon Poisoning Disease is a potentially fatal illness seen in dogs that eat the flesh or entrails of raw ocean-going fish such as steelhead and salmon.

Characterized by parasites infected with a rickettsial organism that attack the dog's digestive system, salmon poisoning can mimic gastrointestinal illnesses. Symptoms usually appear within six days and include nausea, vomiting, lack of appetite, diarrhea, dehydration and weakness.

If untreated, the poisoning is generally fatal within 14 days. About 90 percent of dogs showing symptoms die if they are not treated. Caught early enough, however, salmon poisoning can easily be treated with an antibiotic and de-wormer to kill the parasite and rickettsial organism.

"With a healthy steelhead run now in our rivers and a strong salmon run predicted, dog owners should really watch their pets closely," said Lucas Swanson, conservation officer for Idaho Department of Fish and Game.

Several local dog owners have recently lost their dogs to salmon poisoning because they just thought their dogs had a stomach ache, Swanson said.

"If your dog is not its usual chipper self and its temperature is above 101, head for your local veterinarian as soon as possible," he said.

And it's not just dogs taken on fishing trips that are at risk. "If you have a dog that wanders or raids garbage cans and you are unsure of what it has eaten, consider the possibility of salmon poisoning," he said.

Life of preparation set up prized kill

By Kris Millgate
For The Associated Press

AMMON — Denny Austad's hideaway is a testament to his ingenuity and passion. From the ammunition that fills the shelves to the rifle bench, even the brass cartridges he crafts to his own specifications, everything is personally designed and crafted.

And he'd have it no other way.

"I've spent eight or nine years developing this process," said Austad, a rifle designer and hunter from Ammon. "I guess some people would say I should get a life and they may be right about that, but the results I get are cutting edge."

It's that edge that Austad believes helped him to claim a spot in the hunting world's record books recently for bagging the biggest bull elk taken in the wild, on public land and under fair chase conditions.

The highly prized elk, nicknamed the "spider bull," for its antler configuration, was widely known in hunting circles. And now, Austad's lifetime commitment to his hobby puts him in the center of that circle.

Denny Austad trims and shapes his own cartridges before packing the gun powder and bullet in Ammon, Idaho on Jan. 20. The physicist spent a decade modifying math formulas for rifle and ammunition performance.

The 67-year-old sportsman started his lifetime commitment to the outdoors when he was in kindergarten. Austad spent his childhood running through the water and the woods of southern Minnesota.

"He tells stories about catching fish and taking them down to the old folks home as a donation," said Wayne Austad, Denny Austad's oldest son. "His mother was sick of a fridge full of fish and that's how he made sure he could keep fishing."

He knew he would eventually have more time and money to hunt and fish if he earned a college degree. So he joined the Air Force to cover the cost of school. He later graduated with a bachelor's degree in physics and became the scientific computing division director at the Idaho National Laboratory before leaving three decades ago to pursue a career in real estate.

Idaho's outdoors suited his lifestyle and he started spending countless hours prepping for adventure in his loading room.

"He's always had a loading room of some sort," Wayne Austad said. "I wish I knew as much about what I like to do and went all out for it. He has such passion for his hobbies, his business and his family. He doesn't do anything at half-rate speed."

Denny Austad also knows the hours spent in his loading room translate into a sense of heightened confidence in the field.

For example, he knows he doesn't have to adjust his shot unless it's beyond the 500-yard range.

He contends the spider bull was 180 yards away.

"No one in their right mind really sets out to shoot a state record or a world record," Austad said. "That's just luck of the draw and the stars line up. One definition of luck is when preparation meets opportunity."

Last fall, Austad spent 13 days with an outfitter on Monroe Mountain in central Utah. During that time, he overcame a bout of carbon monoxide poisoning that slowed him for several days and worked harder than ever before on a hunt before firing a split-second shot on Sept. 30 just as the elusive bull spotted him.

"When I shot the spider bull, he went straight down," said Austad. "It was a 180-yard shot and it was a clean shot. It vaporized 68 percent of the liver. When you have rifles that perform like that, you get tremendous results."

The Boone and Crockett Club rates the wild bull as the world record non-typical American elk. A panel of judges awarded 478 5/8 Boone and Crockett points for the elk, nearly 100 points more than the club's minimum rating. The previous record was 450 6/8.

Conservation group buys easement to help salmon

BOISE (AP) — More than 1,200 acres of wetlands and other habitat near Challis will be protected under a new conservation easement.

The Nature Conservancy bought the easement rights to try to stop development on the land, which they say includes prime salmon spawning habitat on the Pahsimeroi River and land used by sage grouse, songbirds and big game animals. The money for the purchase comes from the federally funded Idaho Snake River Basin Adjudication Habitat Fund and the Kemmerer Foundation.

The land is owned by Beartooth Capital, an investment partnership that specializes in acquiring and restoring ecologically important lands, Nature Conservancy officials said in a press release. Besides the wetlands, the easement property includes tributary streams to the Pahsimeroi, pastures and irrigated agricultural lands.

"This is truly a wildlife paradise," Mark Davidson, a conservation manager with The Nature Conservancy, said in a prepared statement. "By working with Beartooth and our agency partners, we're ensuring that this ranch continues to provide the clean water, beautiful springs and elk and salmon that make the Pahsimeroi Valley a special place."

The easement makes 300 acres of wetlands permanently off limits to any extensive use. Three miles of streamside habitat will be protected and restored along Big Springs Creek, one of the tributaries to the Pahsimeroi River. Farming and ranching will continue on some parts of the property.

"Preserving the Western way of life is important," Court Smith of Beartooth Capital said in a prepared statement. "There aren't many places left in the world on which you can see salmon, steelhead, trout, elk, moose, deer, ducks, geese and swans all on the same property."

The Pahsimeroi is one of the watersheds identified by federal agencies, the state and Indian tribes as critical to preventing the extinction of endangered salmon and steelhead in the Columbia and Snake river basins, the Idaho Statesman reported.

Federal attorneys used it as an example of how they can assure they are taking all the measures necessary, during a federal court hearing in Portland, Ore., earlier this month in a lawsuit filed by salmon advocates.

OUTDOOR BRIEFS

Foundation donates GPS collars to aid research

JEROME — The Magic Valley Chapter of the Mule Deer Foundation recently donated funds to the Idaho Department of Fish and Game to purchase three GPS radio collars.

GPS radio collars use satellites to collect animal locations and then store the location data on a memory card within the collar. Because the collars can collect and store several locations per day, this technology can help biologists obtain accurate information on specific migration routes, locations of highway crossings, and detailed seasonal use areas.

These collars will be placed on mule deer in the Wood River Valley in order to better understand seasonal migration patterns. The data obtained from this research will help Fish and Game biologists work with county planners, developers, and other organizations to craft development proposals that minimize impacts on wildlife in a fast-growing area.

The Magic Valley Chapter has planned its 13th annual banquet for April 25 at the Twin Falls County Fairgrounds in Filer. If you would like to help in fundraising efforts and attend the banquet: Ron Bishop at 324-5719 or e-mail to stephron@big-valley.net

Fish and Game fur auction coming up

The Idaho Fish and Game's annual Hide and Fur Auction will begin at 9 a.m. April 25 at the Fish and Game regional office, 324 S. 417 E. in Jerome. Items include hides, furs, antlers and horns. No wolves this year.

A taxidermist-furbuyer license is required in advance to bid on bear and mountain lion parts. Resident licenses are $40 for one year, and nonresident licenses are $140.75. The licenses can be purchased at any Idaho Fish and Game office.

Buyers for personal use are not required to have a taxidermist-furbuyer license.

Preview opens at 8 a.m., auction starts at 9 a.m. Only checks and cash will be accepted as payment for the winning bids.

For more information or a list of auction items: 208-324-4359.

Super Hunt tickets available

Entries in the first Super Hunt and Super Hunt Combo drawing must be received at the Fish and Game headquarters by May 31; drawing is set for June 15. Super Hunt is a fundraising drawing for 40 big-game tags, handed out to winners in two drawings.

Winners can participate in any open hunt in the state for deer, elk, pronghorn or moose, including general and controlled hunts.

The June drawing will be for eight elk, deer and pronghorn hunts and one moose hunt; one "Super Hunt Combo" ticket also will be drawn for one elk, deer, pronghorn and moose. A second drawing in mid-August will be for tickets for two elk, deer and pronghorn hunts and one moose. The entry period for the second drawing is June 2-Aug. 11.

The first ticket costs $6; additional tickets for the same species is $4. Super Hunt Combo tickets is $20; additional tickets are $16. Tickets are available at 800-824-3729 or 800-554-8685, at license vendors, all Fish and Game offices and <http://fishandgame.idaho.gov/cms/hunt/superhunt/>.

Hunters can help Citizens Against Poaching

Hunters who are applying for a controlled hunt might consider helping the fight against poaching, and it won't cost them an extra dime.

The major source of revenue for the Citizens Against Poaching program (CAP) is a check-off on controlled hunt applications. Simply check the "Yes" box, and $1 of the $6.25 application fee goes to the program.

Citizens Against Poaching, a non-profit corporation, was established in December 1980 by concerned hunters under the guidance of the Idaho Department of Fish and Game. CAP and F&G share responsibility for the program.

Reward offered for information resulting in a citation or warrant — a conviction is not necessary. Persons reporting information may remain anonymous.

Rewards are: $100 for birds, fish, and general violations; $250 for most big game animals; $500 for trophy species such as sheep, goat, grizzly, moose and caribou. In special circumstances, with CAP board approval, these amounts can be higher.

In addition to the check-off, other funding sources include donations and court ordered reimbursements.

Perfect 'packin' pistols

Spring has officially arrived, and despite the intermittent rain and snow showers, days are getting longer. As the snow recedes from the highlands and the new blades of green start to push up from the warming earth, my walkabout sessions begin in earnest.

What I love about these "get off the couch" forays is that they require little in terms of time or equipment, but work wonders for clearing one's head of the daily clamor of political rhetoric and help condition winter-softened muscles for those rigorous summer activities ahead.

Since packing light is the order of the day, I subscribe to the minimalist philosophy. Within my day pack are a water bottle, high energy snacks, extra socks and overnight emergency supplies. A walking (shooting) pistol, belt holster, and .22 pistol round out my kit.

Like many outdoorsmen, I consider a .22 pistol to be the ideal tool for these brief outdoor jaunts. Generally lightweight and fairly com-pack, .22 handguns offer ample accuracy and power for plinking, small game hunting, close range varmint sniping and protection from two- or four-legged predators. Two perennial favorites that I'd like to highlight today are Ruger's series of MK I, II, III rimfire autoloaders and Browning's classy Buckmark.

Let's start with the Rugers. With well more than 3 million units sold since the model's introduction in 1949, Bill Ruger's first production firearm is now America's No. 1 selling rimfire handgun. True to William B's credo, the original or "Standard" (later coined the MK I) model offered the shooter an incredibly rugged, reliable, and accurate 10-shot .22 LR pistol that any working man (or boy) could afford.

So resilient is the basic design of this autoloader that with continued upgrades in safety and functional features, the pistol has kept pace with the ever-evolving demands of hunters, plinkers, informal and competitive target shooters, and individuals interested in a rimfire handgun for self defense. The model is now in its third incarnation. The improved MK II first appeared in 1982 and its current replacement — the MK III — was launched in 2004.

So what are you getting when you purchase a Ruger .22 semi-auto? Plenty! The MK III can be had in either blued carbon or stainless steel with a tapered standard, full-blown heavyweight, or tapered bull barrel of varied lengths, depending on the model. The standard barrels bear fixed sights; the heavier barreled guns sport adjustable steel or Hi-Viz fiber optic sights. Weaver-style bases allow the heavier barreled guns to carry optical sights. Check 'em out at www.ruger-firearms.com.

To me, the Browning Buckmark is a slightly more refined (and expensive) pistol than the Ruger. I believe that it sports a crisper trigger and more ergonomic grip, making it easier for me to shoot accurately. Styled to imitate the vaunted Colt Woodsman (a J. Browning design), the Buckmark also offers plenty of specialty options that you can peruse at www.browning.com.

So the next time the weather clears and the open spaces beckon, why not holster your .22 pistol, shoulder your day pack and head for the hills? You'll thank me for it.

Good shooting!

BANKRUPTCY

Chapter 7 & 13 Stop Collections, Foreclosures & Garnishments Fast • Experienced

Question: My bankruptcy case is closed. I'm trying to refinance my house, but the bank says there is a lien against my house in favor of one of my creditors in bankruptcy. What can I do?

Answer: Your creditor sued you and received a court judgment that was then recorded in your county, creating a lien. Although the underlying debt was discharged in your bankruptcy, the lien remains and must be paid or otherwise cleared before your home can be refinanced or sold. In Idaho, you are entitled to a homestead exemption that protects the equity in your home from your creditors. If the judgment lien impairs your exemption, it could have been removed while your bankruptcy case was still open. In order to remove the lien now, your case will need to be reopened, then you will have to file the appropriate motion and documents. This can be a time consuming process and there are fees to be paid to the court. An experienced bankruptcy attorney can handle this matter easily. Because the lien was not removed during the bankruptcy, I assume that you filed the case on your own or used a paid bankruptcy petition preparer. It's unfortunate, but what you saved by not using an attorney for your bankruptcy is probably less than you will spend reopening your case and removing the lien now. Bankruptcy is complex. Every debtor can benefit from being represented by an experienced bankruptcy attorney.

STUDENTS VISIT JEROME DAIRY

Dugan Dairy Farm, owned by Chris and Shelly Dugan of Jerome, recently hosted the Immanuel Lutheran Preschool from Twin Falls for a day on the farm. The Dugans opened their barn doors for the preschoolers in what they call their 'Farmer For A Day' program. 'We feel it is so important to teach our young people about where their food comes from right from the start,' said Shelly Dugan. The students from Rita Beed's classroom were able to observe the milking process and learn about feeding procedures on a dairy farm. The students studied farming for several weeks before taking the hands-on trip. 'It's amazing that even here in Idaho where agriculture is so prevalent that we see children who have never been up close to a cow before,' Chris Dugan said. 'It's our job as farmers to teach the next generation.' Students also watched as a tanker picked up milk to be delivered to the cheese plant. After a hayride around the operation the students were able to ask questions about farm and comment on what they had experienced.

Jerome jail discussions held

Times-News

The Jerome County Commission and Sheriff Doug McFall will meet with county residents to discuss a proposed new county jail on Monday and Tuesday.

Public meetings will be held at 6:30 p.m. Monday at the First Segregation Fire Station in Eden, and at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Jerome County Courthouse Annex building in Jerome.

Rocky Mountain Corrections will give a detailed presentation on the proposed jail, including needs, construction and operating costs, potential siting and other issues.

"We really want to hear the community's input on the proposed facility," Commissioner Charlie Howell said in a recent release. "We've put a lot of work into analyzing all the issues and feel good about the proposal we've come up with."

According to a recent release, a 2007 needs assessment showed that Jerome County will need at least 111 additional jail beds by 2028. Currently, the county operates a 35-bed jail and rents additional beds in surrounding counties to house its inmate overflow at a cost of $1.5 million per year, the release said.

Jerome students hold international night

On Feb. 27, the Book Ends Book Club and members of Mr. Pease's sixth-grade class from Jerome Middle School presented Come Fly the International Skies Night.

The program was presented at the Jerome Senior/Community Center. Two guest presenters included Lael Zarch from Australia and Frederike, a German exchange student. The children of The Book Ends Book Club performed the skit "Jet Lag," written by Linda Henderson, and a Greek dance.

Five students told about different countries they had studied. After the presentations guests were invited to look at the displays and taste some authentic food from each discussed country. Ninety-four people attended the free presentation.

Tyler Tolman

By Mary Hanson
Times-News correspondent

JEROME — Like most standout students, Jerome High School senior Tyler Tolman, 17, has a 4.0 grade-point average. But it's more Tolman's methods than his results that have impressed teacher Ken Nordquist.

"Tyler doesn't just strive for good grades," Nordquist said. "he strives to understand. And he is a natural leader who leads by example."

Nordquist teaches physics and works closely with Tolman as a cross-country and track coach.

Tolman is a three-year member of Jerome High School's student council and a National Honor Society Member. He is also active in 4-H and basketball.

Tolman says he plans to major in computer science at Brigham Young University-Idaho in Rexburg and hopes to return to the Jerome area after he finishes his education.

"Jerome is a nice little town," he said. "I like living in Jerome."

Tolman has five brothers and one sister. His parents are Randy and Catrina Tolman.

Cub Scouts hold wooden car race

Cub Scout Pack 139, sponsored by the Jerome United Methodist Church Men's Group ran its pinewood derby races at the St. Jerome's Catholic Parish Hall on March 14.

The Tigers, Wolves, Bears and Webelos participated in the race. Each scout had to follow the official rules of construction for their derby car.

To qualify for the race the cars must pass point inspections before entering the race. The body of the car is constructed of wood that is an official pinewood derby kit. After the cars pass inspection they are then placed on the "Paddock" table. Each scout has a chance to race their car in a double-elimination tournament.

The derby cars were raced on a double metal track equipped with an electronic finish line. Each winner was presented with a ribbon medallion and all racers received a participation card.

Meat is not a necessary part of a proper diet

DEAR DR. GOTT: Over the past several years, you have occasionally written about proper diets. The one that sticks out in my memory is one from a lady who said she didn't like meat and wanted to know if it was OK to leave it out of her diet. You told her that we really don't need meat, but I completely disagree with you.

ASK DR. GOTT
Dr. Peter Gott

Most nutritionists tell us we need to eat at least 3 ounces (about the size of a deck of cards) of meat a day. They reason that there are 21 amino acids (which are proteins) we need to ingest to remain healthy, and some of them are found only in meat.

Nutritionists tell us that we should eat one serving of meat, two to three servings of vegetables, two to three servings of fruits, four servings of whole grains, two servings of dairy products and one serving of potatoes every day in order to get the nutrients our bodies need. Eating a restricted diet is not a wise thing to do on a long-term basis, but short term for weight loss is OK.

You need to let your readers know that it is important to eat meat every day.

DEAR READER: Despite your letter, I maintain that meat is not a necessary part of the diet as long as legumes, nuts and other high-protein foods are consumed, as well.

According to the Mayo Clinic (www.MayoClinic.com/health/vegetarian-diet/HQ01596), there are four major groups of vegetarians. The most strict is the vegan diet, which does not contain any animal-based food, preferring plant-based foods only. The next group is made up of lacto-vegetarians, who consume milk and dairy products with their plant-based foods. Then there are the lacto-ovo vegetarians (the most common version

See DR. GOTT, Outdoors 6

Dr. Gott

Continued from Outdoors 5 of vegetarianism), who consume foods that are plant-based as well as those that come from living animals (eggs, milk, cheese, yogurt, etc.). The final group is made up of flexitarians, or semi-vegetarians, who consume primarily lacto-ovo vegetarian diets but occasionally eat small amounts of meat, poultry or fish. I am not sure I would consider this part of the vegetarian group, however. There are several meat alternatives available to vegetarians that simulate the taste and texture of meat, such as soy burgers, texturized vegetable protein, tofu hot dogs and more. Soy milk, rice milk and almond milk are available as cow-milk replacements. It is important to get the vitamin/calcium-fortified versions to ensure adequate nutrition. Soy cheese is a nondairy alternative for cow- or goat-milk cheeses. Vegetarians should take vitamin and mineral supplements or increase their intake of foods high in calcium, B-12, iron and zinc. It is also vital to have an adequate intake of protein, be it from eggs, dairy, soy, legumes, lentils, nuts, seeds or whole grains. I also recommend anyone interested in a vegetarian diet speak with his or her physician or request a referral to a nutritionist, who can provide information about essential nutrients and what foods are highest in them. Peter Gott is a retired physician and the author of the book "Dr. Gott's No Flour, No Sugar Diet," and the recently published "Dr. Gott's No Flour, No Sugar Cookbook."

Elmer W. Wilson

Elmer W. Wilson was born Dec. 20, 1917, in Shoshone, and passed away Monday, March 16, 2009, in Twin Falls.

His father worked for the railroad. In those days, the family got a pass to "ride the rails" and Elmer delighted in telling stories about his train rides and adventures. His father was transferred many times with the railroad so the family lived in a number of places, including Texas. He used to comment on how flat it was there, but he always came back to the Magic Valley area. He spent a considerable amount of time with an aunt and three cousins and had many tales about their antics and life at that time.

Elmer graduated from Twin Falls High School. He went on to the University of Idaho, but the Depression interrupted his college studies. Instead, he took correspondence courses while working and became an accountant. For a time, he was an IRS auditor and traveled all over the Northwest and California. He had a longtime accounting practice in Twin Falls.

As a very young adult, Elmer worked on a ranch near Anderson Ranch

Reservoir. He walked to Boise from the ranch and enjoyed that time in his life. He also lived for a time on a ranch in Montana. A licensed pilot, he told many stories of his adventures, which included a close scrape or two. He was an avid outdoorsman and enjoyed hunting, fishing and downhill skiing, particularly at Pommerelle. His friends made these activities enjoyable for him. In later years, Elmer said he had two goals left; one was to live to be 90 years old and the other was to practice accounting for 70 years. Both goals were achieved. He was 91 years old and his accounting practice had been open for almost 71 years. He was still active and worked right up to his last day.

Elmer is survived by one nephew and many friends. He was preceded in death by his father and mother, Joseph and Opal Wilson; his stepmother, Faye Wilson; a sister, Verna Mae; as well as Nellie, his wife of more than 40 years. He will be missed by all who knew him.

Cremation was under the direction of White Mortuary "Chapel by the Park.

Karl Schmidt

WENDELL — Karl Schmidt, 95, passed away Monday, March 30, 2009, at the Cenoma House, an assisted living facility in Twin Falls.

Karl was born April 29, 1913, in McGregor, Mich. He was the son of David Schmidt and Amelia Wegner, immigrants from Susannental, Russia. He lived and farmed in Lovell, Wyo. Karl served in the 115th Horse Calvary of Wyoming. On Dec. 11, 1940, he married Minnie Emmett. Karl loved horses and cattle and was a ranch foreman in Small, Idaho; Greenwood, Miss., and Asbury, N.J. In 1961, Karl and his family moved to Gooding, where he worked for the city of Gooding as the water master until his retirement in 1977. After retirement, he continued to work for local farmers and ranchers, spending some summers in Fir Grove on horseback herding cattle. They continued to live in Gooding until 2000, when they sold their home and moved to Twin Falls to live with their son, Gilbert. Karl saw many changes in his long life in the farming industry. He started his career behind teams of work horses and ended it in air-conditioned gas powered cabs.

Karl was a true cowboy, and got great joy from his ranching experiences. He loved being outside riding, fishing, and cutting wood. He loved his family and enjoyed his children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren. He was a

Sources: Pentagon seeks $3B for Pakistan military

By Lolita C. Baldor
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — The Obama administration plans to seek as much as $3 billion over the next five years to train and equip Pakistan's military, and is considering sending 10,000 more troops to battle the Taliban in Afghanistan, defense officials said Wednesday.

The money would include $500 million in an additional war budget request for the coming year that will go to Congress this month, The Associated Press has learned.

In outlining the spending program publicly for the first time, defense officials told the Senate Armed Services Committee it is critical to train and equip the Pakistanis so they have the skills and will to fight.

The $3 billion for Pakistan would complement a plan for $7.5 billion in civilian aid.

That civilian request would come in legislation sponsored by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee chairman, Democrat John Kerry of Massachusetts, and the committee's top Republican, Richard Lugar of Indiana.

With the administration's backing, their bill would provide $1.5 billion next year, linked to Pakistan's counterterrorism and democracy-building efforts, officials said.

Defense and other administration officials spoke about the spending plans on condition of anonymity because the specific budget requests have not been released.

Also Wednesday, senators questioned Gen. David Petraeus, who heads U.S. Central Command, and Undersecretary Michele Flournoy over the possible deployment of 10,000 more troops to Afghanistan.

Petraeus said he had forwarded the proposed increase to the Pentagon. That plan could mean stationing nearly 80,000 American forces in the country by next year. There are 38,000 U.S. troops now in Afghanistan.

Lawmakers asked why the extra brigade and headquarters unit requested by Gen. David McKiernan, who oversees U.S. forces in Afghanistan, had not yet been approved by President Barack Obama.

"I think it would be far better to announce that we will have the additional 10,000 troops dispatched," said Sen. John McCain, R-Ariz. "To dribble out these decisions, I think, can create the impression of incrementalism."

Flournoy said Obama is aware of the request, but was told he does not have to consider it until this fall because the additional troops won't be needed until next year. By the fall, she said, McKiernan will have had time to reassess his troop needs.

Iran says no 'talks' with U.S. envoy at conference

By Nasser Karimi
and Brian Murphy
Associated Press writers

TEHRAN, Iran — Iran dismissed American government reports that senior U.S. and Iran envoys had a cordial — and promising — face-to-face exchange at an international conference, saying Wednesday that no "talks" took place.

The competing accounts of Tuesday's encounter in the Netherlands appeared to reflect the different approaches to overtures to end the United States' and Iran's nearly 30-year diplomat standoff.

Washington has seemed eager to build on President Barack Obama's surprise video message last month to seek engagement with Iran's ruling clerics.

Iran has — in public, at least — been far cooler to making immediate contacts, but has not fully rejected some openings in the future.

Iran's take on The Hague conference was just as nuanced — not flatly denying that senior U.S. diplomat Richard Holbrooke and Iranian diplomat Mehdi Akhundzadeh met at a conference to discuss Afghanistan but concentrating on the semantics of whether official talks took place.

"Maybe this — the report on the meeting by the U.S. — indicates that the other party is hasty to take advantage of the conference," Akhundzadeh was quoted by the official Islamic Republic News Agency.

The statement noted that any exchange that occurred at the Afghanistan conference was not comparable with official talks, such as the ambassador-level meetings between the United States and Iran to discuss Iraq.

"Rest assured," IRNA quoted Akhundzadeh, Iran's deputy foreign minister, "that if there is a decision to have talks with U.S., like the talks on Iraq, all will be informed about it. There is nothing to hide."

In Washington, the State Department insisted Wednesday that Holbrooke met with the Iranian envoy. Department spokesman Gordon Duguid said there was a "brief handshake" on the edge of the conference — but stressed it was not a lengthy encounter.

"To describe it as substantive or even lengthy would be inaccurate, that is true. It was an engagement for Mr. Holbrooke," Duguid told reporters.

Tehran-based political analyst Saeed Leilaz interpreted the Iranian response as trying to deflect any domestic suspicions of secret contacts.

CSI rodeo strong in region, national standings

Team hosts rodeo Friday and Saturday

By Diane Philbin
Times-News writer

Second-year College of Southern Idaho rodeo coaches Steve Birnie and Brian Tubbs believe this might be one of the strongest men's team the school has fielded in recent years and the two have high hopes that CSI will send both its men's and women's team to the College National Finals Rodeo in June.

The CSI men are currently first in the team standings in the Rocky Mountain Region and sit at the top of the national standings. Meanwhile, the women are third in the region and have moved into the top 25 in the national rankings at 24th.

This weekend, they'll be competing in Twin Falls as part of the 33rd Annual CSI Intercollegiate Rodeo Friday and Saturday at the College of Southern Idaho's Eldon Evans Expo Center.

CSI's cowboys and cowgirls possess a lot of depth and talent, which could be a challenge as they each compete for individual points in the region, trying to accumulate enough throughout the season to place in the top three in the region to qualify for the CNFR.

Is it possible to have too much talent?

"Never, as long as we have good kids that work for the program and are good team players," said Birnie.

CSI has always had a reputation for being a rough stock school, especially during the Shawn Davis era. But there is now plenty of talent in the timed events as well.

"We have opened it up and are tough this year at both ends of the arena," said Birnie. "And now we have good balance between the rough stock and timed events."

Six of the top 10 regional spots in bull riding are held by CSI cowboys with Zack Elliott being the top man in the region

Jerome wins showdown

ASHLEY SMITH/Times-News

Kimberly catcher Nick Dame catches Jerome's Jake Lammers at the plate Thursday during the sixth inning of Game 1 of a doubleheader in Jerome.

Tigers edge out 2-1 win over Kimberly

By Diane Philbin
Times-News writer

It wasn't exactly a vintage performance, but Jerome coach Tom Bobrowski will take it.

Given the cold and windy weather conditions, Kimberly pitcher Kyler Hartley and Jordy Garrard of Jerome were both very impressive on the mound for their respective teams. But in the end, it was Garrard's Jerome Tigers that were able to grab a 2-1 win over Hartley and the Bulldogs.

After Kimberly scored an unearned run in the first inning on a single and a Jerome error, Garrard, throwing all off-speed pitches at the Bulldog hitters, shut down Kimberly allowing only three hits and striking out five for 6 2-3 innings.

"My best pitch today was my off-speed curve," said Garrard. "Sometimes it's good to work being behind. Then you have to throw better to hit your spots and work harder. And the defense always helps."

With a strong wind gusting out to left field, junior pinch-hitter Josh Walgamott used the wind to his advantage, driving a clutch double to left field in the fourth inning to plate Nolan McDonald and finally get the Tigers on the board.

The Tigers scored the winning run in the sixth inning. After Cameron Stauffer led off the inning with a single followed by a Bulldog error, Kimberly coach Darin Gonzales brought in reliever Seth Champlin. Champlin hit McDonald and Trey Barrett, scoring Stauffer.

Stauffer led the Tigers offense going 2-for-3.

"Kyler pitched good and got out of some jams," said Gonzales. "I was disappointed at our decisions at the plate. We were not able to make any adjustments against Garrard."

Garrard walked Hartley to leadoff the seventh inning, his first free pass of the game. Following a sacrifice bunt by Trevor Soderquist and a groundout by Clay Mathews, Bobrowski decided to bring in hard-throwing southpaw Kris Bos to get the final out.

Bos walked his first batter before striking out Nic Jayo to end the game. But it wasn't exactly a gratifying win.

"We came out with zero intensity in the first inning, especially on the infield," said Bobrowski. "The infield has been improving lately. We knew our defense was young and inexperienced

Twin Falls second baseman Brianna Bishop tries to turn a double play during the Bruins' 11-0 win over Burley Wednesday.

Big pitcher's duel collapses in Burley

Twin Falls claims 11-0 victory

By Ryan Howe
Times-News writer

BURLEY — Two of the area's top pitchers stepped into the circle for a non-conference softball showdown Wednesday. One had a great game, while the other had an outing she'd just as soon forget.

Twin Falls ace Katelyn Fjeld threw another gem and the Bruins' bats were consistently productive in an 11-0 win over Burley.

"We had solid defense. Those girls got a lot of balls that (Burley) hit off me and I'm really proud of them for doing that," Fjeld said. "It was good weather for the most part and my pitches were working. It was just a good day."

Fjeld struck out eight, allowed zero extra-base hits and never faced more than four batters in an inning. Burley's five hits were futile as the Bobcats (8-2) were shut out for the first time this season.

Meanwhile, the Bruins (5-5) were consistent at the plate. While they never scored more than two runs in an inning, they did put runs on the board

The Bob Latham Sr. Match Play Championship won't see a 21st edition this summer, as both Robert Latham Sr. and Twin Falls Municipal Golf Course PGA Professional Mike Hamblin confirmed that the event is off.

"It's obvious," Latham said in a phone conversation. "We're out of business, and the economy is bad."

According to Latham, recent tournaments have cost more than $100,000 to sponsor.

The Lathams operated Latham Motors in downtown Twin Falls, which closed in October, as well as Hertz of Magic Valley and Latham's Auto Super Store in Elko, Nev. Those dealerships closed in

T.F. baseball makes it 9 straight

Times-News

The Twin Falls baseball team won its ninth straight on Wednesday, defeating Minico 10-2 at Warburton Field. Two big innings gave the Bruins all their runs as Twin Falls scored four in the second and six in the seventh. Jared Jordan connected twice at the plate for two RBIs, while Zeb Sneed picked up the victory on the mound.

"Zeb threw well enough," Twin Falls head coach Tim Stadelmeir said. "He struggled with the bottom of their order and had a few too many walks. He's still working through some things. But he had good life on his fastball, so we hope to get him geared up for Highland."

The Bruins (13-2) will host their Region Four-Five-Six foe for a pair of games at 2 p.m., Saturday at Bill Ingram Field. Minico will travel to play Hillcrest on Friday.

Allen, Celtics get past Bobcats

BOSTON — Ray Allen made a 3-pointer with 2.1 seconds left in the second overtime Wednesday night to lift the Boston Celtics to a 111-109 victory over the Charlotte Bobcats and into second place in the Eastern Conference.

The Bobcats, fighting for the final playoff spot in the conference, blew leads in the last 30 seconds of the fourth quarter and both overtimes and fell 1½ games behind the Chicago Bulls, who were idle. The Celtics moved a game ahead of Orlando, which lost to Toronto.

Paul Pierce led Boston with 32 points, Allen added 22 and Rajon Rondo had 21 points and nine assists. Gerald Wallace had 20 points and 10 rebounds for the Bobcats, and Boris Diaw scored 17 points.

MAVERICKS 98, HEAT 96

DALLAS — Dirk Nowitzki scored 30 points, and Josh Howard had 20 points and drew a game-saving foul with 2.3 seconds left in Dallas' victory over Miami.

The Mavericks beat the Heat for the 10th straight time, although that's only the regular season. Miami climbed from an 0-2 deficit to win the next four and claim the 2006 title.

Dwyane Wade had 23 points and six assists, but wasn't able to pull off any late-game heroics, in part because of stiff defense by Jason Kidd.

LAKERS 104, BUCKS 98

MILWAUKEE — Kobe Bryant rebounded from a rough shooting night to hit his first seven from the field and score 30 points, Pau Gasol had eight of his 15 in the fourth quarter, and Los Angeles beat Milwaukee.

Lamar Odom added 20 points and 10 rebounds for the Lakers, who were playing the finale of a grueling seven-game road trip and coming off two straight losses.

Ramon Sessions had his first career triple-double for the Bucks, who fell four games out of the Eastern Conference's final playoff spot.

Sessions finished with

Boston Celtics guard Ray Allen (20) and Charlotte Bobcats forward Gerald Wallace (3) react after Allen hit the winning 3-point shot during the second overtime in Boston on Wednesday.

FAVORS LEADS EAST IN MCDONALD'S GAME

CORAL GABLES, Fla. (AP) — Georgia Tech recruit Derrick Favors scored 19 points and grabbed eight rebounds to lead the East past the West 113-110 in the boys McDonald's All-American game Wednesday night.

Favors was left wide open for an alley-oop pass from Lance Stephenson with 41.7 seconds left, and Favors slammed it home for a 111-110 lead.

"Derrick is a very sneaky person," said Oklahoma-bound Keith Gallon, who scored a game-high 20 points. "You turn around and he's gone."

Dominic Cheek, who is headed to Villanova, and Pittsburgh recruit Dante Taylor each scored 15 points for the East, which leads the all-time series 18-14.

16 points, 16 assists and 10 rebounds.

RAPTORS 99, MAGIC 95

ORLANDO, Fla. — Chris Bosh had 24 points, including a 22-footer over Dwight Howard with 29 seconds left that put the game out of reach, and Toronto beat Orlando.

Jose Calderon had 21 points, and Shawn Marion added 17 points and 15 rebounds for the Raptors, who nearly blew an 11-point lead before holding on to extend their season-high winning streak to five games. Rashard Lewis missed a potential tying 3-pointer with 20 seconds left to seal Toronto's win.

Dwight Howard had 30 points and nine rebounds for Orlando (55-19), which fell percentage points behind Boston for the Eastern Conference's second seed.

NETS 111, PISTONS 98

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Devin Harris had 19 points and 11 assists, and New Jersey snapped a season-high, five-game losing streak by beating sluggish Detroit.

Keyon Dooling, inserted into the starting lineup to give the team more life, scored 18 of his 23 points in the second half in helping the reeling Nets win for only the seventh time in 24 games. The point total matched his season high.

Richard Hamilton scored 29 points for the Pistons, who were playing their fourth game in five nights. They were also without Rasheed Wallace, who was suspended for picking up his 16th technical foul the night before.

GRIZZLIES 112, WIZARDS 107

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Rudy Gay scored 25 points and Mike Conley added 22 to lead Memphis over Washington for its first home win since the All-Star break.

Marc Gasol and O.J. Mayo scored 18 points apiece. Gasol grabbed nine rebounds, and Mayo had seven assists. Hakim Warrick had 12 points.

Caron Butler had 31 points for Washington, which lost its third straight, while Antawn Jamison had 28 points and 10 rebounds. Reserve Nick Young had 16 points and Javaris Crittenton finished with 13 points and a career-high 11 rebounds.

Golden Eagles slip in NJCAA softball poll

Times-News

After being swept by Salt Lake Community College in four games last weekend, the College of Southern Idaho softball team has dropped a spot in the NJCAA Division I poll to No. 11.

The Golden Eagles are one of three Scenic West Athletic Conference teams in the top 20. The Bruins rose two spots to No. 5, while North Idaho College has entered the poll, tied at No. 20 with Seminole Community College.

Salt Lake leads the region standings, with CSI in second and North Idaho closing in at third.

SWAC standings and the complete national poll are on Sports 3. Read more about the Golden Eagles' home stand against Snow College Friday in the Times-News and online at the Magic Valley Overtime blog at <http://www.magicvalley.com/blogs/sports>.

Michigan State's past and present at Final Four

DETROIT (AP) — Michigan State's 90-mile bus ride to its Final Four hotel puts the wheels in motion for the spotlight team heading into college basketball's signature event in the Motor City.

Hundreds of fans flocked to the Breslin Center in East Lansing as the team pulled away and a string of supporters lined the streets en route to the expressway. More fans were waiting in the Detroit suburb of Troy when the Spartans arrived at their home away from home.

The story line might get even sweeter for the Spartans if they can upset top-seeded Connecticut because their famed mentor, Magic Johnson, is going to deliver the game ball for the title game with Larry Bird 30 years after they met in a transcendent event.

"It almost seems like a divine order that Michigan State is playing in Detroit," former Spartans star Greg Kelsner said Wednesday. "If Michigan State wins it all, my God, I don't know if it could get any more surreal than that?"

It didn't — and hasn't — gotten any bigger in the NCAA tournament than it was in Salt Lake City on March 26, 1979, when Johnson and Kelsner led Michigan State to a win over the Bird-led Indiana State Sycamores.

"The TV rating of 24.1 hasn't been passed in college or pro basketball since and it'll always be No. 1 because there were four channels then and 804 now," said CBS TV analyst Seth Davis, whose book, "When March Went Mad: The Game That Transformed Basketball," was released last month. "The 1979 game would've been a big deal 10 years later, but the lasting impact its had comes down to timing."

"It was played six months before the launch of ESPN.

Magic and Bird went on to play for championships against each other in the NBA, which was at a low. The NCAA tournament expanded twice more over the next five years and hasn't expanded since."

In part because Michigan State fans are expected to fill any seats that would've potentially been empty, the NCAA expects Monday's championship crowd to break the attendance record of 63,959 set in 1987 when Keith Smart's jumper lifted Indiana to a title over Syracuse at the Superdome in New Orleans.

"The reason there can be 70,000 people at Ford Field this weekend is because of what Magic and Bird did," Saint Joseph's coach Phil Martelli said.

The current Spartans earned the right to play a starring role in their story line because they upset top-seeded Louisville on Sunday in the Midwest regional final.

"Full circle," Johnson told reporters after the game in Indianapolis.

Bird spoke to reporters in Indianapolis about the 30-year anniversary of the historic on March 26 of the 1979 game.

And, the Pacers president said he wasn't talking about the game — which he claims he's never watched from start to finish — again.

Bird said losing, with a 33-0 record, was the toughest loss of his career.

"It broke my heart that I wasn't able to bring back a championship to the city of Terre Haute and the Indiana State Sycamores because I put so much into that," he said, before adding, "It hurts just as much today as it did back then."

Michigan State began its march to the Motor City with a tribute to the 1979 team during its first practice in mid-October.

Izzo arrived in a green Volkswagen bus with his wife and children, all sporting hippie garb, and his players sported short shorts during a dunk contest and scrimmage.

"Another corny entrance and another corny midnight madness, but this one had significant value," Izzo said. "That was our way of thanking and making them a part of our modern day."

"Now, it goes from an article or whatever to maybe a front-page deal just because of them and us. It will be pretty cool."

Cardinals scrap timetable for Glaus' return after rehab setback

The Associated Press

The St. Louis Cardinals are going to be without Troy Glaus for longer than they expected after the third baseman had a setback in his rehabilitation from arthroscopic shoulder surgery.

Dodgers slugger Manny Ramirez feels fine — he just thinks he's running behind schedule this spring.

Glaus originally was expected to miss only a few weeks of the regular season. But St. Louis said Wednesday that Glaus will be re-evaluated around June 1.

"It's just not responding as quickly as we'd hoped," Glaus said in Jupiter, Fla. "It obviously didn't go as smoothly or uneventfully as we had hoped."

David Freese is the top candidate to start at third with Glaus out. The 25-year-old rookie, acquired from the Padres for Jim Edmonds in 2007, hit .306 with 26 homers and 91 RBIs at Triple-A Memphis last season.

General manager John Mozeliak told The Associated Press that Glaus might have pushed too hard in his rehab schedule. He said Glaus' progress will be assessed in a few weeks.

"Sometimes, being overly optimistic can hurt you," Mozeliak said. "When a player is aggressive trying to move, sometimes it can affect him."

Glaus began throwing, hitting off a tee and fielding grounders midway through spring training, but stopped after soreness lingered longer than expected. He was examined in California last week by Dr. Lewis Yocum, who performed the surgery in January.

Glaus will be in St. Louis for opening day on Monday, then travel to Phoenix to continue his rehab. He'll be working with physical therapist Keith Kocher, who helped Glaus rehab from shoulder surgery in 2004.

"A new set of eyes and a new set of hands can maybe figure something that, I don't want to say was missed, but maybe something that wasn't recognized," Glaus said.

Greg Gumbel says he was tricked into infomercials intros

MIAMI — Greg Gumbel was tricked by a television producer into taping introductions for infomercials — footage the CBS Sports broadcaster thought would be used for educational programs, according to a federal lawsuit.

Gumbel, who hosts CBS' coverage of the NCAA men's basketball tournament, filed the lawsuit Tuesday in U.S. District Court in Fort Lauderdale. Paul Douglas Scott, owner of the Deerfield Beach-based Encore Television Group Inc., did not tell Gumbel the introductions would be used to promote products ranging from time-shares to tools, the lawsuit says.

Scott approached Gumbel and his agent in 2007 with a deal to introduce educational and news-oriented programming that would be produced by Encore, according to the lawsuit. Scott told Gumbel they would be producing 2-minute education stories called "Eye on America."

The stories were supposed to cover subjects like health technology, business, trends and fashion. Gumbel was paid $50,000 to tape introductions for one day in late 2007 at Encore's studios. He was then paid $60,000 to record for another day in early 2008.

It wasn't until later that Gumbel learned the programs were actually infomercials, designed to look like news broadcasts but paid for by the subjects of the shows, according to the suit. Gumbel claims the shows incorrectly suggest he personally endorsed certain products.

Altidore scores 3 against Trinidad

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Jozy Altidore became the youngest American with an international hat trick, and the United States beat Trinidad and Tobago 3-0 Wednesday night to maintain its lead in the final round of qualifying for next year's World Cup.

Making just his fourth international start, Altidore connected in the 13th, 71st and 89th minutes, all three times off passes from Landon Donovan.

The 19-year-old forward, an increasingly important part of the U.S. roster, also scored as a substitute in the 77th minute last Saturday to start the U.S. comeback from a two-goal deficit in a 2-2 tie at El Salvador.

Stallworth charged with DUI manslaughter in crash

MIAMI — Cleveland Browns wide receiver Donte Stallworth was charged Wednesday with killing a pedestrian last month while driving drunk after a night out at a swank South Beach nightclub.

An arrest warrant charging Stallworth, 28, with DUI manslaughter was filed in the March 14 accident that killed 59-year-old Mario Reyes. If convicted, Stallworth would face as many as 15 years in prison.

Stallworth

Stallworth's blood-alcohol level after the crash was .126, well above Florida's legal limit of .08, according to results of a blood test. Stallworth will also be charged with DUI, which carries a possible six-month sentence plus fines and community service for first offenders.

"Whenever a deadly accident occurs and a driver is impaired, families suffer," said Miami-Dade State Attorney Katherine Fernandez Rundle in a statement. "I can only repeat this message over and over: if you are going to drink, don't drive."

Stallworth, who is expected to surrender in court today, released a statement last month saying he was "grief-stricken" over the accident. Prosecutors said they will ask that he be released on $200,000 bail. Stallworth will be prohibited from driving while on bail and not allowed to drink alcohol, according to court documents. He also must observe a 12 a.m. to 6 a.m. curfew and must submit to random alcohol and drug testing through the NFL's substance abuse program.

Cop who stopped NFL player resigns

DALLAS — The police officer who pulled out his gun and threatened an NFL player with jail instead of allowing him inside a hospital where his mother-in-law was dying resigned Wednesday.

Officer Robert Powell had been placed on paid leave pending an investigation of the March 18 incident.

"I made this decision in the hope that my resignation will allow the Dallas Police Department, my fellow officers and the citizens of Dallas to better reflect on this experience, learn from the mistakes made, and move forward," Powell said in a statement issued through his attorneys.

He had stopped Houston Texans running back Ryan Moats' SUV outside Baylor Regional Medical Center in suburban Plano after the vehicle rolled through a red light.

The officer pulled out his gun and threatened Moats with jail as the player and his family pleaded to be allowed to go inside the hospital. Powell continued writing

Moats a ticket and lecturing him even after a fellow officer confirmed that Moats' mother-in-law was dying.

Jonetta Collinsworth, 45, died of breast cancer before Powell allowed Moats to go inside the hospital.

Man wants plea withdrawn in Sean Taylor case

MIAMI — A man who pleaded guilty to avoid a possible life sentence in the killing of Washington Redskins safety Sean Taylor now wants to back out of the deal, his attorney said Wednesday.

Venjah Hunte, 21, would have served 29 years under the deal reached last May, in exchange for his cooperation with prosecutors. Hunte's attorney, Michael Hornung, said he disagrees with his client's desire to withdraw his guilty plea, and that Hunte will appear in court today in Miami to ask for a new court-appointed lawyer.

"There's a difference in the philosophy going forward," Hornung said. "His desire is to have an attorney appointed so that he can withdraw from his plea."

Hornung wouldn't discuss what led his client to change his mind, citing confidentiality rules. He said his recommendation was to take the plea deal rather than the life sentence four co-defendants face if convicted.

Houston Open draws big names

HUMBLE, Texas — The Shell Houston Open has gotten exactly what it wanted, three years after getting the event moved to the weekend before the Masters.

OK, the tournament still couldn't lure Tiger Woods, who's sticking to his usual routine of not playing the run-up event to a major.

But 15 of the top 20 players in the world rankings did come to The Tournament Course at Redstone for their final tuneup before Augusta, including Phil Mickelson, Sergio Garcia, Geoff Ogilvy and Pádraig Harrington. Former top-ranked players Greg Norman and Fred Couples are also among the star-studded field, the best in the tournament's 63-year history.

"Word of mouth has been good and important to us," tournament director Steve Timms said. "The golf course's reputation is growing, the players all seem to enjoy it. It's what we hoped for."

Organizers have tried to simulate conditions at Augusta — fast greens, light rough and fairways mowed toward the tee — and the Masters-like setup has generated enough positive buzz to lure top players from both the PGA and international tours.

A tournament-record 39 foreign-born players will play, including 21 who've already qualified for the Masters.

"They've definitely done a magnificent job preparing it, as close as it can be, from what we might see at Augusta," said Garcia, playing in Houston for the first time. "There are definitely a lot of similarities you can find."

Harrington, who's won the last two majors, has made Houston an annual stop since 2006, when the Tournament Course became the host. He also appreciates the Augusta-like conditions, but said the Houston Open has gained prestige of its own.

"Nobody's turned up this week who doesn't want to win this tournament," Harrington said. "The idea, when you build your schedule, is to peak for the majors. But you're never going to complain if it happens to be this week as well."

"We stayed off the high fastball. We have a pretty decent hitting team as long as we're not chasing pitches all over the place. They swung it pretty good today," said Twin Falls head coach Ken Johnson.

Kalli McBride went 3-for-4 with four RBIs. Her two-run home run in the third inning made it 5-0 and seemed to knock the air out of Burley.

Brianna Bishop and Kylee Kuest each went 3-for-4 with an RBI.

"I'm not too worried about this game and the girls. All of them know that they could have contributed a little bit better," said Burley coach Tim Campbell. "We're a better team than this by far. We made too many little mistakes. It seemed like tonight we clumped a lot of inconsistent things together and we didn't get the job done like we should have."

and standing first in the nation as well.

Led by freshman Jesse Wright, five Golden Eagles are presently in the top 10 in saddle bronc riding. The Utah cowboy is currently the best in the region and tops the national standings. Wright also competes in bull riding and is eighth in the region in that event.

"I like riding broncs better than bulls, I guess, because I'm better at it," said Wright, who credits the team's chemistry for its success this year.

"We are all pretty laid back and we all get along," he said. "We practice hard and help each other out. During practice, we get on three or four horses. We are pretty focused and are working hard to make our own destiny."

On the timed event side, the women's team currently has four cowgirls in the top 10 in breakaway roping and the men have four of the region's top 10 cowboys in steer wrestling.

Sophomore Aaron Skinner ranks in the top 10 in the region in tie-down roping (first), steer wrestling (third) and team roping (second), and leads the men's all-around standings. He also sits on top in the all-around national rankings where he occupies top-10 positions in tie down roping (fourth), steer wrestling (eighth) and team roping (second).

"I'm not really chasing the all around but I want to be top dog in my three events," said Skinner. "I had a bad weekend at Utah Valley but hopefully on our home turf, I can make up some points. Our men's team has good talent and the kids continue to work harder to improve for the next level."

With the women's team just one good rodeo away from second place, Kortni Scott of Marsing is hopeful that the team can make up enough ground this weekend to finish second in the region.

"Competing at home will be to our advantage," said Scott, who sits 11th in breakaway and 15th in goats in the region. "All of us are excited about being at home this weekend in a familiar arena on our own turf for the crowd and our families."

The Golden Eagles are coming off a good performance this past weekend at Utah Valley University where the men finished first and the women second.

Ten teams from the region will compete at CSI this week. Rodeo action begins at 8 p.m. each night with slack slated for 10 a.m., Saturday.

February, and Latham, among others, is the subject of a $6.3 million complaint by KeyBank National Association. Prior to 2008, the event was called Latham Motors Match Play Championship.

Hamblin said it was too late to find another marquee sponsor for the late-June golf championship, but he alluded to the possibility that the event could return in some form for 2010.

"It's late in the game. We'll try next summer, whether it's with Bob or another sponsor," he said.

Latham III planned on not racing

The racing career of Bobby Latham III wasn't affected by his family's business closings as the former Rocky Mountain Challenge Series driver said the venture was shut down and the car sold last year.

"It hasn't had a whole lot of effect on my career," he said. "I moved to Boise eight months ago and had planned on shutting down. It's kind of coincidental."

Latham raced in four Rocky Mountain Challenge Series events in 2008 at

Magic Valley Speedway, the last of which was the Napa 150. The September race was the RMCS championship race, though Latham was not in contention for the title.

He cited the increasing cost of maintaining a car as a reason for putting his time on the track on hold. He said he is currently training to fly helicopters and might compete in a few races at MVSS, but driving for somebody else.

NOTICE OF APPLICATION FOR APPROVAL OF THIRD MITIGATION PLAN TO COMPENSATE SNAKE RIVER FARM

Notice is hereby given that on March 12, 2009, North Snake Ground Water District and Magic Valley Ground Water District (collectively referred to as "the districts"), c/o Randall C. Budge, Racine Olson Nye Budge & Bailey, PO Box 1391, Pocatello ID 83204-1391, submitted a Third Mitigation Plan (Over-the-Rim Plan) of North Snake Ground Water District and Magic Valley Ground Water District (plan or mitigation plan) to the Department of Water Resources (Department). On March 19, 2009 the districts augmented the plan. The Department will process this plan pursuant to the Department's Conjunctive Management Rules (IDAPA 37, Title 03, Chapter 11).

The members of the districts hold ground water rights for domestic, municipal, commercial and industrial uses, and for irrigation of approximately 220,000 acres located mostly north of the Snake River within Gooding, Jerome, Lincoln, Minidoka, Blaine and Cassia Counties. Certain of these ground water rights have priority dates junior to the priority dates of certain water rights from spring sources that discharge to the Buhl to Thousand Springs reach of the Snake River. The ground water and the springs are interconnected sources of water. The districts have proposed the mitigation plan to mitigate injury to earlier priority surface water rights that may result from depletions under later priority ground water rights. The surface water rights which the mitigation plan proposes to benefit are: 36-4013B and 36-7148, both held by Clear Springs Foods for use at their Snake River Farm hatchery facility. The Over-the-Rim plan provides up to 3.0 cfs continuous flow of ground water or spring water directly into the head works of Clear Springs Foods hatchery facility north of Buhl. The plan proposes to permanently discontinue use of seven wells for irrigation and change the use of the wells from irrigation to year-round aquaculture. This will be accomplished by conversion of the irrigation of up to 2,000 acres near the site from ground water supply to surface water supply and utilization of the wells to supply water to Clear Springs Foods hatchery facility and/or utilization of a spring right held by the Idaho Department of Fish and Game for delivery to Clear Springs Foods hatchery facility. The Department has not determined the adequacy of the proposed plan. A complete copy of the proposed plan is available for review at either the Department's State Office in Boise, the Department's Regional Office in Twin Falls, or may be viewed online at the following website along with other related documents:

http://www.idwr.idaho.gov/Calls/Spring%20Users%20Calls/snake\_river.htm

Any protest against approval of the plan must be filed with the Department of Water Resources, together with a protest fee of $25 on or before April 20, 2009. The protest must include a certificate of service showing that a copy of the protest has been mailed to or served on the districts.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE® Bobby Wolff

"And nothing brings me all things."
— William Shakespeare

Creating trump tricks from thin air is an art form, and there were a number of artists at work in today's deal from the 2001 World Championships.

Generally, South became declarer in four hearts after opening with one no-trump and completing the transfer. However, four hearts is a poor contract — poorer still after the ace and king of clubs are cashed. For trumps to play for one loser, either the heart J-10 must be doubleton, or one hand must hold the ace plus just one other heart, with declarer having to guess well.

At some tables, after West cashed the two top clubs and continued with a third, declarer won with his club jack and played a low heart toward the king, which held, gathering the 10 from East. A low heart from the table brought the jack, and after South's queen lost to the ace, the nine was established: contract made.

Other declarers thought that West's having the top clubs made it more likely that East had the heart ace. They crossed to dummy to lead a trump to their queen. If West takes this, declarer has little option but to play the king when back on lead, with gratifying results.

However, see what transpired when West smoothly ducked the heart queen. Seemingly, the only reasonable shot left for South was to play East for A-10 bare, continuing with a low heart from both hands. East now made the jack, with West's heart ace still to come; down one.

ANSWER: Cue-bid two clubs, which sets up a force until a suit is agreed upon. If your partner responds in a major suit, raise to game. (You may not make it, but how will you know till you try?) If partner responds two diamonds, bid two hearts and take it from there. You may be able to stop in three of a major, facing a minimum hand.

Woman needs an hour alone between work and husband

DEAR ABBY: When my husband, "Wyatt," and I first started dating, we both had jobs. Because I am a teacher, my workday ended about two hours before his, allowing me some much-needed time alone before he came home.

Just before our wedding three months ago, Wyatt was laid off, and he has not been able to find another job. Although he is in school part-time, he is always in the house when I return from work.

Abby, I have no time for myself! All day I work with my students, and all evening I am with Wyatt. I have tried to explain to him that I need a little time to unwind when I first get home, but he always finds some reason to stick his head in and chat while I'm reading or taking a bath. I desperately need some alone time. I love my husband dearly, but how can I tell him I need an hour away from him?

— PRIVACY PLEASE

DEAR P.P.: You are not the only spouse — of either sex — who needs some alone time to quietly transition from workday to home life. Explain this again to your husband, and do it just the way you have explained it to me. Unless you speak up, one of these days he will

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

interrupt you, and you will erupt — which isn't fair to him.

If he STILL doesn't get the message, start jogging after work — for about an hour.

DEAR ABBY: I am co-hosting a baby shower for a friend. I do not know the other hostess well. She is insisting on serving alcohol at the shower because many of the mommy-to-be's friends like to drink, and she says "it will provide some 'class' to the shower." I disagree.

I'm not a prude, and I do drink occasionally, but I think it is inappropriate to serve alcohol at a baby shower — especially when the guest of honor can't partake. Am I justified in stating my disapproval? And would it be OK for me to decline to contribute financially toward that shower expense?

— NOT A PRUDE
IN COLUMBUS, OHIO

DEAR NOT A PRUDE: Nowhere have I seen it written that in order for a baby shower to be "classy," alcohol must be served. You are certainly within your rights to air your feelings on this subject. The point you are making is a valid one. And if your co-hostess wants to go ahead and serve alcohol at the shower, you are under no obligation to help her foot the bill.

DEAR ABBY: I was able to retire while I was in my mid-50s, after teaching for 33 years. Since then, I have been traveling as often as possible and volunteering on a regular basis.

Sometimes in these situations I find myself with a group of people older than I am. When I am asked my age, which I don't mind, the response I get is, "Oh, you're just a pup!" Because I am chronologically younger than most of the group shouldn't automatically discount or invalidate me.

How can I respond to these comments nicely, yet make the point that I also have something to offer regardless of my age?

— AGELESS PUP
IN ARVADA, COLO.

DEAR AGELESS PUP: First of all, stop being so defensive. When someone calls you a "young pup," just laugh and say, "If you think I'm a young pup, you're barking up the wrong tree!"

IF APRIL 2 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY:

Between now and the second week of May, you seem to have luck on your side or a protective angel watching over your interests. Because your judgment is better than usual and you are goaded forward by inspirational motives, this is an ideal time to make crucial decisions or launch the most important plans for the future. July is an excellent time to seek business or career success, but be cautious about beginning any new job, investment or major change in August when your judgment is not as good as it should be and you could make mistakes.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Sometimes vinegar is better than sugar. Something that is way too sweet can be nauseating. It is best to avoid social situations tonight. Spend the evening curled up with a good book or in front of the TV.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): It may be better to sit on the fence for now rather than choose a side to jump off of. Sneaking suspicions and a lack of trust could spoil your plans for the evening. It might be better just to stay in.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): The world works in threes. Stories tell of three wishes, three magic words or three tests to attain a major

HOROSCOPE

reward. Be vigilant and don't leap at the first option that comes your way. Weigh all choices carefully.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Don't rock the boat. You can't always get what you want, but you can be sure to get what you need. Don't say things that you may regret. You are ripe for a break up but next week you'll want the makeup.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): All wounds heal in time. Like that proverbial watch, you can take a licking and keep on ticking. Lick wounds in private this evening. Take a rain check on a dinner invitation and reschedule it for tomorrow.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): There's no need to make a final decision now. You may feel pressured into choosing a side. Remain neutral until all the facts have presented themselves. It is better to be thrifty than go on a spending spree.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Don't swim upstream. It is far wiser to stick with conventions and protocol than to try to be the center of attention. Be businesslike. Follow established traditions and stay late to meet a deadline if necessary.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A penny saved is a penny earned. Take your cash as far as it will go. Squeeze that dollar until your fingers turn green. Don't get drawn into petty squabbles or nitpicking contests over who said what.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Hold the course. Stay focused on goals you've set out to achieve. Jump at opportunities rather than conclusions. Avoid making firm promises or commitments. Stall business dealings until next week.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Don't be afraid to set your expectations high. Take great strides towards attaining goals while staying well within the realm of convention. Learn from your mistakes, and that includes not repeating them.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Ride out the storm. Others may have placed undue responsibilities upon you and make you feel like a round peg jammed into a square hole. Rest assured the problem is not yours but the perspective of others.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Love is not always the answer. Avoid a nasty fall by passing up a chance for a hookup with someone new and stay out of the limelight. It is a bad time for making important decisions or new purchases.

Today is Thursday, April 2, the 92nd day of 2009. There are 273 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On April 2, 1792, Congress passed the Coinage Act, which authorized establishment of the U.S. Mint.

On this date:

In 1513, Spanish explorer Juan Ponce de Leon landed in present-day Florida.

In 1860, the first Italian Parliament met in Turin.

In 1865, Confederate President Jefferson Davis and most of his Cabinet fled the Confederate capital of Richmond, Va., because of advancing Union forces.

In 1917, President Woodrow Wilson asked Congress to declare war against Germany, saying, "The world must be made safe for democracy." (Congress declared war four days later.)

In 1932, aviator Charles A. Lindbergh and John F. Condon went to a cemetery in the Bronx, N.Y., where Condon turned over $50,000 to a man called "John" in exchange for Lindbergh's kidnapped son. (The child, who was not returned, was found dead

the following month.)

In 1968, the influential science-fiction film "2001: A Space Odyssey" produced and directed by Stanley Kubrick, had its world premiere in Washington.

In 1974, French president Georges Pompidou died in Paris.

In 1982, several thousand troops from Argentina seized the disputed Falkland Islands, located in the south Atlantic, from Britain. (Britain seized the islands back the following June.)

In 1986, four American passengers were killed when a bomb exploded aboard a TWA jetliner en route from Rome to Athens, Greece.

In 2005, Pope John Paul II, who'd led the Roman Catholic Church for 26 years, died in his Vatican apartment at age 84.

Ten years ago: The Labor Department reported that the nation's unemployment rate fell to a 29-year low of 4.2 percent in March 1999.

Five years ago: A judge in New York declared a mistrial in the grand-larceny case against two former Tyco executives after a juror apparently received an intimidating letter and phone call for supposedly siding with the defense. (Former CEO L. Dennis Kozlowski and CFO Mark H. Swartz were convicted in a retrial of looting Tyco of more than $600 million in corporate bonuses and loans; each was sentenced to 8 1/3 to 25 years in prison.)

Flags of seven new NATO members from former communist Europe rose at alliance headquarters in Brussels for the first time, marking the biggest expansion in NATO's 55-year history.

One year ago: President George W. Bush suffered a painful diplomatic setback when NATO allies rebuffed his passionate pleas to put former Soviet republics Ukraine and Georgia on the path toward membership. Irish Prime Minister Bertie Ahern, who'd helped broker peace in Northern Ireland but couldn't survive a scandal over his collection of cash from businessmen, announced he would resign.
