SHAKEN UP IN ACCIDENT

MEAGAN THOMPSON/Times-News

Twin Falls firefighter Tim Lauda scoops up a scared dog as Monica Culbertson reaches out to the pet, which was riding in a car that was involved in an accident Friday at the intersection of Shoshone Street and Second Avenue North in Twin Falls. The driver of a white van that collided with Rena Crockett's Toyota was cited for failing to obey a traffic signal, a Twin Falls police officer at the scene said. Crockett was transported to St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center, and her dog, Molly, was handed over to Crockett's friends, Culbertson and Dinna Orr.

Panel dumps city consolidation bill

Ketchum, Sun Valley citizens won't have say in naming new city

By Jared S. Hopkins
Times-News writer

BOISE — The Senate State Affairs Committee on Friday voted 5-3 against a bill that would allow citizens of consolidating cities to name the new city instead of basing the name on the city with the larger population.

The bill, sponsored by Sen. John Thorson, D-Sun Valley, is in response to the years-old debate between Sun Valley and Ketchum over consolidation. Over the last year, the matter has intensified as the economic downturn has hurt Ketchum more than Sun Valley.

The bill would remove the requirement that when cities consolidate, the name of the city with the larger population remain.

Ketchum is larger than Sun Valley.

Consolidating Ketchum and Sun Valley would lead to less government and lower taxes, and having two cities within one mile of each other is a setback, Thorson said.

"It's a great benefit for the elected officials — I used to be one," said Thorson, a temporary legislator and former Sun Valley mayor. "But it's not a great benefit for the citizens."

Sun Valley Mayor Wayne Willich and Sun Valley Company General Manager Wally Huffman testified against the bill while Sun Valley City Councilwoman Joan Lamb testified for it.

Nils Ribi, the Sun Valley City Council president, said the bill was intended for Ketchum to adopt Sun Valley's brand and better financial spreadsheet as the larger city struggles in the recession.

"Giving them our name and our fund balance is not going to help them recover," he said.

Shoshone shooting still a mystery

Authorities are probing 'several persons of interest'

By Andrea Jackson
Times-News writer

Lincoln County Sheriff Kevin Ellis says there are "several persons of interest" behind Wednesday's unsolved shooting that left a prominent Shoshone businessman in critical condition at a Boise hospital.

Craig Hadden, 61, was shot in his chest while leaving his Lincoln County home at about 9:20 a.m., and deputies found him lying in front of his garage at about 9:30 a.m., according to press releases Wednesday and Friday from the Lincoln County Sheriff's Office.

Ellis said even though a shooter hasn't been arrested, the community is safe.

"There should be no concern for another shooting," Ellis told the Times-News Friday. "I think I can definitely say that."

The shooting is not likely accidental or self-inflicted, Ellis confirmed.

Different details about the shooting were reportedly released Thursday from

Wendell police briefly put student in handcuffs

Child's mother asks to file complaint against department

By Nate Poppino
Times-News writer

An incident involving an out-of-control student at Wendell Elementary School on Wednesday ended with the boy in handcuffs, police confirmed Friday.

Wendell Police Chief Kirtus Gaston said police were called to the school when the boy, aged 8 or 9, became physically aggressive with school staff and his peers.

He was briefly handcuffed with his hands behind his back — at the request of a family member — during the incident to protect those around him, the police chief said.

"At one point in time, he was endangering classmates," Gaston said.

Gaston and one other officer responded. He says they handcuffed the boy in a classroom that was emptied due to the incident. Only the officers, school staff, the boy and his family members were in the room at the time.

Details of the incident still aren't clear, but Gaston said the boy was later released to his parents.

Police also contacted Health and Welfare's Children and Family Services about the matter, Gaston said. He said he believes the child is now getting whatever help he needs from his parents, the school and Health and Welfare.

Kathy James, the Health and Welfare program's regional manager, did not confirm her agency's involvement in the case. But, she said, if her staff was called to a situation like that, they would assess any danger to the child and study the family's situation, just like any other abuse or neglect call.

If there's no need for the state to intervene but a family still needs help for their child, she'll hook them up with other services in the area.

The child's parents could not be reached for comment on Friday. The mother of the child contacted the Gooding County Sheriff's Office and asked to file a complaint against Wendell police, but Sheriff Shaun Gough said he suggested she instead contact an attorney.

The boy "was treated like any other child," Gaston said.

The family could not be reached for comment.

Magic Valley towns vie for wastewater project funding

State agency takes public comment on loan priorities

By Nate Poppino
Times-News writer

Some faced pressure from tightened regulations. Others just needed help to keep up with existing ones.

Though a number of south-central Idaho towns still face serious wastewater problems today, they've made progress in fixing various problems despite tight budgets and small tax bases, according to Greg Misbach and Dave Anderson in the Idaho Department of Environmental Quality's Twin Falls office.

The state agency is taking public comment on priority lists for this year's wastewater loans and planning grants, and almost every Magic Valley town and city appears somewhere in the two lists. In both cases, requests far surpass available funding.

Castleford officials say they need a $15,000 grant to investigate unlined lagoons that may be leaking into the ground. Towns from Fairfield to Rupert and Bellevue have all asked to repair and improve their systems with low-interest loans, most asking for millions of dollars. The final rankings will be voted on by the Board of Environmental Quality at its April 21 meeting in Boise.

More entities have applied for loans this year, Misbach said, largely because federal stimulus money is also available.

BINGHAMTON, N.Y. — The community center was filled with people from countries as far off as Kazakhstan and Uzbekistan, all working to become more

Funds

Recipients could include towns such as Bliss, told to change from septic tanks and an out-of-code lagoon to a sewer system. An April 28 bond election would raise up to $1 million to help pay for the work — and, City Clerk Leslie Lopes said, demonstrate that citizens support fixing their waste problems, hopefully attracting enough federal stimulus money to cover the rest of the nearly $7 million project.

"That's why this is kind of our only shot," Lopes said, sharing her concerns about the project. "If the town doesn't support it, they're not going to give us the money, I don't think."

Installing the sewer system costs more than the town can afford, even through loans from DEQ's revolving fund, Misbach said.

That's also the case for Murtaugh, which in 2006 learned it had to delay a planned subdivision to avoid overstressing its wastewater system.

Now, Murtaugh officials are close to finalizing a facilities plan and environmental documents for improvements to submit to DEQ. The state agency gave the town a temporary waiver on a couple of pollution limits, said Tracy Ahrens with J-U-B Engineers, allowing officials to focus on a couple of upgrades at a time and dropping what was a $2.6 million project down to $850,000. Funding could come through the stimulus, the Idaho Department of Commerce's community block grants and other sources.

Some towns are farther through the process: both Filer and Wendell received DEQ loans in 2008. And Dietrich, the DEQ officials said, won't have to complete a decade-long sewer project right away unless it grows.

After the list is finalized, DEQ will start working down it, sending out letters to see if people are ready to start their projects.

"Then we can maybe start putting shovels in the dirt," Anderson said.

Cities

"They need to figure out how to solve their own economic issues."

Ribi said the committee's decision takes some heat off the table and allows the cities to focus on more important aspects of consolidation, such as finances and control of the cities.

Legislators, meanwhile, were concerned about the state meddling in a local issue.

"The perception is crystal clear that this interjects the Legislature directly into the medulla of a local feud," said Sen. Denton Darrington, R-Declo.

An attempt by Senate

Majority Leader Bart Davis, R-Idaho Falls, to amend the bill died 4-4. He said he supported the concept but was uncomfortable with the way the bill was written.

"I buy off on the premise," he said.

Emotions ran high during the hearing, and resulted in a tussle between some Sun Valley boosters and a reporter in the hallway afterward.

Willich confronted an Associated Press reporter about the matter. During a heated verbal exchange, Huffman had to be restrained by a statehouse security guard. The parties separated without further incident, however.

Shooting

into a boiler room and a storage room and prayed he wouldn't follow.

"I heard the shots, every shot. I heard no screams, just silence, shooting," said Zhanar Tokhtabayeva, a 30-year-old Kazakh who was in an English class when her teacher screamed for everyone to go to the storage room. "I heard shooting, very long time, and I was thinking, when will this stop? I was thinking that my life was finished."

The gunman killed 13 people — all but one of them in the classroom — before apparently killing himself Friday morning at the American Civic Association building in Binghamton. Four people were critically wounded.

One of the receptionists survived; shot in the abdomen, she played dead before crawling under a desk and calling 911. Police Chief Joseph Zikuski said she stayed on the phone for 90 minutes, "feeding us information constantly," despite her serious wound.

"She's a hero in her own right," he said.

Investigators said they had yet to establish a motive for the massacre, which was at least the fifth deadly mass shooting in the U.S. in the past month alone.

Police said they arrived within two minutes at the American Civic Association, an organization that helps immigrants settle in this country. The gunman was believed to be a Vietnamese immigrant himself.

The man believed to have carried out the attack was found dead with a self-inflicted gunshot wound in an office, a satchel containing ammunition slung around his neck, authorities said. Police found two handguns — a 9 mm and a .45-caliber — as well as a hunting knife, authorities said.

Thirty-seven people in all made it out of the building, including 26 who hid in the boiler room in the basement, cowering there for three hours while police methodically searched the building and tried to determine whether the gunman was still alive and whether he was holding any hostages, Zikuski said. Those in the basement stayed in contact with police by cell phone, switching from one phone to another when their batteries ran out, Zikuski said. Others hid in closets and under desks.

Police heard no gunfire after they arrived but waited for about an hour before entering the building to make sure it was safe for officers. They then spent two hours searching the building.

At one point, police led a number of men out of the building in plastic handcuffs while they tried to sort out the victims from the killer or killers.

Most of the people brought out couldn't speak English, the chief said.

Alex Galkin, an immigrant from Uzbekistan, said he was taking English classes when he heard a shot and quickly went to the basement with about 20 other people.

"It was just panic," Galkin said.

Counselors tended to relatives of victims at a Catholic Charities office. Outside, Omri Yigal waited for word on his wife, Delores, who was taking English lessons when the gunman attacked.

He left hours later, with no answers.

"They told me they don't have much hope for me," the Filipino immigrant said before going home to wait for a telephone call.

Dr. Jeffrey King, speaking at Catholic Charities, said he was certain his mother, 72-year-old Roberta King, who taught English at the community center, was among the dead.

Lincoln County Prosecutor E. Scott Paul's office to a Web site operated by Lincoln County Commissioner Marsha Hiatt.

The Web site, Lincoln County Chatter, quoted an unidentified "official from the Lincoln County Prosecutor's office" as saying, "The incident happened in his driveway and the wounds he received are consistent with being shot from behind. He told the responding paramedics that he did not hear or see anything when he was shot. There has been a bullet recovered from the bumper of his car. His prognosis is for recovery."

Ellis wouldn't say Friday whether the details reported on Hiatt's Web site are correct. "I don't know what the prosecutor may have said."

Paul has not returned repeated calls Thursday and Friday from the Times-News. Hiatt also did not return a call Friday.

The release Friday from the Lincoln County Sheriff's Office, though, was approved by both Ellis and Paul, Ellis said.

Ellis declined to say who called deputies to Hadden's home. "There are things we still need to verify and are not at liberty to release," said Ellis.

Idaho State Police and the Twin Falls County Sheriff's Office helped out at the shooting scene, according to Friday's release from the sheriff's office.

"A search warrant was obtained and executed at the property, looking for any possible evidence that may have been left behind," the release shows.

Hadden remained Friday afternoon in critical condition at Saint Alphonsus Regional Medical Center in Boise, according to the hospital.

No one answered the phone Friday at Hadden's home north of Shoshone at 212 E. 620 N.

Hadden is associated with three businesses in Lincoln County: Hadden Realty, The Main Stop gas and convenience store and Idaho Yak, a business that raises the long-haired bovine for slaughter.

The Yaks and other animals on Hadden's property are being cared for since the shooting, but those wanting to help may call the Lincoln County Sheriff's Office at 208-886-2250, Ellis said.

Twin Falls man accused of trafficking high-grade marijuana

Times-News

A Twin Falls man was arraigned Friday in 5th District Court for allegedly trafficking high-grade marijuana in what police say was one of the biggest indoor growing operations they've ever seen.

Brent L. Rasmussen, 44, was arraigned Friday, about seven weeks after police removed 144 high-grade marijuana plants — weighing in at about 45 pounds — from his home at 664 Washington St. S., according to court records.

"I immediately realized that this was the largest indoor marijuana growing operation that I had ever seen," wrote Twin Falls Police Officer Clinton Doerr in court records, adding police also seized un-rooted clones of marijuana.

Doerr, who is also a police dog handler, has been employed 15 years in law enforcement in Twin Falls County, records show.

Twin Falls police were first called to the home to "investigate the allegation of an illegal cultivation of marijuana," according to court records.

"There were motion activated lights on the side of the house and garage and there were electronic surveillance cameras mounted in the yard, on the house, and on the garage," according to a police report. "I learned there were motion sensor alarms that chimed in the house when there was movement in the driveway."

Police say they told Rasmussen — who was in a wheelchair and employed by a jewelry store — that they wouldn't arrest him on Feb. 12 if he let them collect the pot, according to court records.

"Mr. Rasmussen seemed surprised, looked down at the ground with his shoulders slumped, and told me he would allow us to come inside his house to collect the marijuana," Doerr wrote in his report filed in court.

Rasmussen allegedly told police the marijuana was called "Sour Diesel" and "White Widow," court records show.

Police believe the marijuana was extremely potent, records show.

"Mr. Rasmussen explained to me that his quality of marijuana was a high grade," Doerr wrote in court records. "He explained to me that the properties of his marijuana did not create paranoia like other varieties."

Rasmussen allegedly told police he had been "selling to friends or select people that would come to his residence," Doerr wrote in court records.

Police say the street value for the marijuana was about $50 to $100 per gram. Authorities also removed drug paraphernalia from the home, court records show.

Adamson to serve 27 months for tax conviction

By Nate Poppino
Times-News writer

A 57-year-old Chubbuck resident whose company managed several Magic Valley nursing homes will serve 27 months in federal prison for failing to pay taxes from his nursing-home-management business.

Dan Adamson, a former Jerome County prosecutor and 2006 gubernatorial candidate, will serve three years supervised release after his prison sentence and be required to pay back more than $7 million in missing taxes, said Michelle Mallard, an assistant district attorney in Pocatello and the prosecutor in the case.

Adamson, who served as Jerome County prosecutor from 1980 to 1984, pleaded guilty last fall to one count of failing to pass on federal taxes for six homes his business managed in California. His restitution includes tax periods from June 2001 through December 2003 and March 2005 through June of 2007.

The company, Northwest Bec-Corp, also managed nursing-home facilities in Idaho and Oregon.

U.S. District Judge B. Lynn Winmill had refused to accept Adamson's guilty plea earlier this week, but sentenced him Friday morning in Pocatello after attorneys negotiated changes to a plea agreement.

Mallard said prosecutors revised the plea to allow Winmill to consider "all relevant conduct" when following federal sentencing guidelines, basically allowing the judge to look at Adamson's past actions and other factors.

Mallard said her office was pleased with the results for an unusual case for eastern Idaho. She said she hopes the sentence, rendered two weeks before income taxes are due, reminds people of the need to pay their taxes — especially business owners.

"We all have to do our part," she said.

Adamson's attorney, Max Wheeler of Salt Lake City, could not be reached for comment Friday afternoon. In December, Wheeler said his client's actions were prompted by state and federal cutbacks in Medicaid and Medicare reimbursement rates. Adamson chose to stop passing on some income-tax withholdings to the Internal Revenue Service rather than cut back on care or close facilities.

Adamson lost to current Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter in the 2006 primary.

Twin Falls teen's cause of death remains unclear

Ben Botkin
Times-News writer

Susanne Boden doesn't know what caused the sudden death of her son, 16-year-old Justin Mallory of Twin Falls.

Mallory, who was a sophomore at Twin Falls High School, died suddenly on March 20 while visiting family in Nevada during his spring break.

Boden said that nothing related to drugs or alcohol led to her son's passing. No substances were in his system and it's unknown if further tests will determine the cause of death, Boden said.

"He was a good kid," Boden said. "It's a parent's worst nightmare."

Boden said she may not know until June if officials have determined a cause of death.

"Not knowing is really, really difficult for all of his friends and family," Boden said. "Justin just had so many people who loved him."

Mallory liked fishing, dirt bikes and playing basketball with friends, Boden said.

"He just really enjoyed life," she said.

A celebration of life will be held for Mallory at 11 a.m. today at the Roper Auditorium at Twin Falls High School, 1615 Filer Ave. E.

Law & Disorder... ...in Cassia County

March 31 police reports:

Battery:

A Burley man, 43, was attacked by his sister-in-law, 52. The man was watching his mother's house while she stayed at the Parkview Care and Rehabilitation Center. His sister-in-law wanted to get into the house and asked the man for his keys. He refused. She called a locksmith to open the house. An argument ensued. She punched the man in the face. He told police he doesn't know why she wanted in the house but said he won't go back while she's there. The man declined to press charges.

Burglary:

Two males, ages 19 and 20, were reported to have stolen two cases of beer from Wal-Mart in Burley. They fled, along with two passengers, in a white Cadillac that had no license plates. The males, according to the police report, entered the store wearing hooded sweatshirts that obscured their faces. A Wal-Mart employee followed them to the front of the store because he suspected they were too young to buy beer. They left without paying and got into the Cadillac. Ironically, the other two males in the vehicle, ages 23 and 24, would have been able to legally purchase the beer. After a short pursuit with a Heyburn Police officer, the driver pulled over, got out, and ran away. A warrant has been issued for his arrest. The other three were arrested and charged with burglary. One of them told police "his friends were at Wal-Mart, and two of his friends did something stupid."

Information report:

A 49-year-old Burley man left his home in the morning and then returned to retrieve his checkbook. A car was parked in front of his house. He entered through the back door and found a woman wandering around his home. "The female seemed to be disoriented and asked him for help and said she was having a diabetic seizure," the police report reads. The woman collapsed on the floor. The man attempted to call an ambulance. The woman suddenly regained her composure and visited with the man for about 30 minutes and then left. After discussing the incident with neighbors, the man discovered that the woman frequently enters homes and fakes diabetic seizures while looking for prescription medication. He didn't have any prescription medication and reported nothing missing.

SE Idaho city backs return of train route

POCATELLO — The Pocatello City Council in southeast Idaho has unanimously voted to support efforts to restore Amtrak's Pioneer Route that used to run through the region.

"We think it's a good idea," Pocatello Mayor Roger Chase said Thursday. "It does a couple of things. For one, it brings people from outside of town."

The Pioneer Route between Salt Lake City and Seattle with stops in Idaho was discontinued in 1997 after losing $20 million the previous year.

Sam Nettinga has been involved in bringing the route back. He told officials that support for the route needs to start growing because Amtrak is looking at bringing back at least three routes, the Idaho State Journal reported.

"There won't be enough money to fund all three of the test routes," Nettinga said. "That's where we play the role of coming out strongly in favor of it and demonstrating that there is significant interest for it in this part of the country."

House kills plan to put state checkbook online

BOISE — House Republicans and Democrats narrowly killed a plan to put Idaho government spending online after some members raised concern its price tag would burden Idaho's budget at a time of shrinking revenues.

The chamber deadlocked 32-32, defeating the proposal. Six representatives were absent.

Hayden Republican Rep. Phil Hart conceded his searchable Internet database plan could have a $250,000 price tag, but argued states like Missouri have saved money with such programs that allow citizens to scrutinize spending.

That didn't convince foes, who said the goals were laudable — but too expensive.

"I have no objection to transparency," said Boise Democrat Anne Pasley-Stuart. "What I do object to is the cost."

Rep. Raul Labrador, an Eagle Republican who backed the measure, called it "a great first step" at holding government more accountable.

Ex-day care owner pleads guilty to felony injury

MIDDLETON — A former day-care operator from southwestern Idaho has pleaded guilty to felony injury to a child as part of an agreement with Canyon County prosecutors and faces up to 10 years in prison.

David Scott Begley, 44, and his wife operated the Petra Christian Daycare at their Middleton home until 2007.

Begley was indicted last year on three charges of lewd conduct with a child and accused of inappropriate activity with three kids aged between 4 and 9 years old.

The charges were dismissed last week as part of an agreement with prosecutors and Begley, who was scheduled to go to trial in April, pleaded guilty to a lesser charge.

Begley entered an Alford Plea, acknowledging there was enough evidence to convict him without admitting guilt.

Panel passes pay day lender license bill

BOISE — A House Committee has passed a bill to keep unlicensed pay day lenders from reclaiming debts from Idaho customers.

The bill would require all pay day lenders who make loans in Idaho to be licensed, and block those not licensed with the state from reclaiming unpaid debts. The bill would also allow the state Department of Finance to issue cease and desist orders and sue unlicensed companies.

The bill mainly targets online pay day lenders that are harder to regulate.

The House Business Committee passed the bill Friday. It now goes before the full House, where sponsors expect it to pass easily.

Sandpoint Republican Sen. Shawn Keough told The Associated Press that without the bill, increased regulation could push people to online lenders who are harder to control. She says all pay day lenders should follow the same rules.

Bank forecloses on North Idaho luxury development

COEUR D'ALENE — A bank has foreclosed on an 1,100-acre luxury golf community development project in northern Idaho that failed to attract any home buyers.

American Bank, based in Bozeman, Mont., filed the action Wednesday in Idaho's 1st District Court seeking to have Black Rock North sold at a sheriff's auction to repay a $14.6 million loan, plus $400,000 in interest, late charges and legal fees.

"The sale of secondary properties and homes is very, very slow," Barry Davidson, an attorney representing developer Marshall Chesrown, told The Spokesman-Review of Spokane, Wash. "Black Rock North was a project that is well-conceived, but like many other high-end projects, the national recession has severely affected it."

Black Rock North was intended to be an extension of the adjoining waterfront retreat called Club at Black Rock, the first luxury golf resort development in the area.

Davidson said the two developments are separate.

The bank said it must be repaid first ahead of construction and service companies, of which there are about a dozen with liens.

Of those, Wadsworth Golf Construction of the Southwest is owed $2.34 million.

Police remove 60 cats from duplex

LEHI, Utah (AP) — Police removed more than 60 cats from a woman's Utah County apartment after receiving an anonymous complaint.

Lehi Code Inspector Arnie Hunt says the woman's two-bedroom apartment in Lehi also was condemned because it was filthy, unhealthy and not structurally sound.

Police in biohazard suits spent three hours Thursday rounding up the cats. They appeared to be in good shape and were taken to an animal shelter in Lindon.

City officials say the woman, who was not cited, was allowed to keep two cats and a dog.

Hunt says city officials removed 35 cats from the woman's home three years ago.

Oil shale estimates increase

DENVER (AP) — The U.S. Geological Survey now estimates the Piceance Basin in western Colorado has about 50 percent more oil shale than it thought 20 years ago.

USGS said Thursday it revised its estimate to about 1.5 trillion barrels of in-place oil shale resources after looking at new areas that previously had too little data for research.

The USGS study didn't try to estimate how much oil might be recoverable.

The Piceance (PEE-ance) Basin contains one of the thickest and richest oil shale deposits in the world, but companies have yet to find an economically viable way to bake the rock and extract oil from it. Commercial production could be at least a decade away.

The Department of Energy has used an estimate that the Green River Formation, which covers parts of Utah, Wyoming and Colorado, including the Piceance Basin, contains up to 1.8 trillion barrels of in-place resources, with about 800 billion barrels of recoverable.

OPINION

QUOTABLE

"I'm saddened and hurt but I am not surprised by the indictment. I am innocent."
 — Former Illinois Gov. Rod Blagojevich in a statement after he was hit with a 19-count federal indictment

What's this? A politician who won't go to the public trough?

CHEERS: To Idaho's 1st District congressman, Walt Minnick, for swearing off earmarks — the mother's milk of pork barrel spending in Congress.

The freshman Democrat this week said in writing that he's bypassing the chance to insert special funding requests for Idaho in the federal budget for fiscal year 2010. (Idaho's other congressman, Republican Mike Simpson, did use earmarks).

Minnick says with the economy in poor shape, it's time to cut back on all spending and building more national debt. Avoiding earmarks this year is a way to keep his promise to be a leader on government accountability, he said.

A congressman swearing off earmarks is akin to W.C. Fields giving up bourbon. Good for Minnick.

JEERS: To the majority Idaho Republican legislators, who just can't bring themselves to make voting easier.

A week after the Senate State Affairs Committee scuttled legislation to consolidate elections, House Speaker Lawrence Denney, R-Midvale, and Senate President Pro Tempore Bob Geddes, R-Soda Springs, introduced a bill that would do away with Idaho's mail-in voter registration.

Many other Republicans in and out of the Legislature also want to restrict GOP primary elections to registered Republicans; Idaho now has an open primary.

What's puzzling is that the current Idaho voting system has been very good to Republicans, who dominate the Legislature, control all elected statewide offices and hold three of Idaho's four seats in Congress.

What are they afraid of? Voting ought to be as convenient as possible.

CHEERS: To the Legislature, for sending a bill to Gov. C.L.

"Butch" Otter that would put teeth in Idaho's Open Meeting Law.

The legislation, which passed the House 59-10 this week, will clarify the law for public officials while strengthening the safeguards against violations. It was already approved unanimously by the Senate.

All 16 lawmakers from the Magic and Wood River valleys supported it.

First adopted in 1974, the Idaho Open Meeting Law guarantees all citizens the right to observe and participate in meetings of public entities.

The current bill clarifies some aspects of the law and spells out stiffer penalties, including:

- Fines of up to $50 for governmental bodies that violate the law, regardless of intent.

- A civil penalty of as much as $500 for public bodies that knowingly violate the law.

- A civil penalty of as much as $500 for those who violate the law twice within 12 months.

- The start of an executive session — a closed-door meeting — must be cited in meeting minutes. It would also require a governmental agency to list the specific reason for the closed-door meeting. Currently, agencies must only list a general description.

This was a vote for open government and greater democracy.

How to make credit good again

In this recession, we seek the boogeyman. If we can identify a villain, the recourse is simple: Slay it. Identify the problem; find the solution.

The search has centered on the credit industry, the vast network of lenders eager to loan Americans money. In the housing sector, an explosion of sub-prime lenders gave borrowers deals that were truly too good to be true, trapping them in impossible loans. In the retail sector, credit card vendors flooded mailboxes, offering easy entree to the good life broadcast on nightly commercials. From one vantage, the credit industry is to blame for our economic woes.

Thus, the solutions have centered on tightening credit — lending only to home buyers who can make a 20 percent down payment, returning to the standards of 20 years ago under which a buyer was supposed to pay no more than 28 percent of his or her income for housing, and rejecting "credit impaired" borrowers with less-than-stellar records. Credit card companies have raised fees and increased penalties.

Consumers have emerged as both victims and perpetrators. They are victims to the extent that ruthless lenders gulled them into ever-ascending loans. They are perpetrators in that they rang up expenses with abandon — fueling the overall indebtedness.

Already this paradigm is influencing behavior. Today, home buying is down; renting is up. Retail spending is down; savings are up. Yet this simplistic credit-as-villain outlook masks a more nuanced picture.

From a different vantage, credit was an economic white knight. Easy credit fueled the prosperity of the last decade. Daniel Webster called credit "the vital air of the system of modern commerce." A panoply of mortgage products fueled the home-building industry, which kept the economy afloat during the last decade. Although other sectors plummeted, housing stayed strong. Related industries (wood, gypsum, cement) flourished, as did companies that made appliances and furniture. Now that only stellar borrowers, with large down payments and hefty incomes, get mortgages, we have seen the home-building/buying industry, and with it the economy, retrench.

As for retail, now that consumers are cutting back on purchases, retail giants are shrinking — or dying.

Just as crucially, tight credit threatens to shut the safety valve of the low-wage sector of the economy. Many Americans have been borrowing, quite simply, to live. Try paying for an apartment, food, clothes and medicines on the $20,000 annual salary of a low-wage worker. We have an anodyne myth that everybody who works full time in this country can somehow make do. The "secret" to their making do is often a Visa card with a balance that is never paid off. For low-wage workers, credit has been a lifesaving crutch.

So as we attempt to jump-start the economy of 2009, we should recognize both the risks and advantages inherent in a robust credit industry. Credit undergirded our economic expansion; if we close the spigots too tightly, we must be prepared to accept an economy that stagnates.

Absent access to credit, we also must be prepared to watch low-wage workers slide into desperate straits. On an individual level, we will see more misery. On a macro level, we will see more evictions, more repossessions, more bankruptcies. Whatever the virtue of savings, some people cannot save: They live paycheck to paycheck, with each month's bills lapping at the monthly income. Low-wage workers need credit. They need it to stay in their homes, feed their families, drive to their jobs. With the right products and the right terms, these workers can still have access to that crucial crutch.

Rather than merely tightening credit, the challenge is to recalibrate the country's access to credit so that more responsibility for making good loans lies with lenders and so that the burden is not almost entirely on would-be borrowers. Recalibrating would mean returning to the responsible use of underwriting that is transparent and allows for a higher debt-to-income ratio with a higher down payment. It would allow people with past credit problems to qualify for loans that do not expose them to excessive risks and that start off with manageable mortgage payments relative to their incomes.

No more open lines of credit to students who have no income — indeed, who have never paid a utility bill. No more mortgages to buyers who cannot afford the payments — or to buyers who have no "rainy day" savings. Micro-print contracts must be transparent and protect the consumer. Lenders must take responsibility not just for originating loans but for loans' performance.

If instead we merely vanquish credit as the villain behind our downturn, the victory may be Pyrrhic.

Cookies made by West Minico students a hit

The American Legion Auxiliary Unit 17 of Burley would like to thank Laurie McMillan and her two classes at West Minico Middle School for the Valentine cookies they made for the veterans.

I had the pleasure of attending the afternoon class and watched the students decorate the cookies. What imaginations they have! I was also asked to tell them about the veterans and how the cookies would be added to a decorated bag with candy and a valentine for each veteran in the Burley Care Center and the Warren House. The Veterans were so happy to receive them and especially wanted the students to know how much it meant to be remembered.

What is so special about the students donating the cookies to the veterans is that these are cookies they could keep for themselves and they were so happy they would go to veterans.

We would again like to thank Laurie McMillan and her very special students.

Mini-Cassia CROP walk was a big success

The Mini-Cassia CROP Hunger Walk was a huge success this past September 2008. More than $13,036 was contributed by our neighbors and friends to support the hunger-fighting efforts of church World Service, both here at home and around the world. Our local agencies received approximately $3,271 to aid fellow Burley residents in need. Just think, the funds raised here in Burley and in CROP Hunger Walks across the United States will make a difference in the lives of people in some 80 countries around the world from working with AIDS orphans in Africa to aiding farm families in Central America and even assisting hurricane survivors here in the states as they continue to rebuild their homes and lives following Katrina's devastation.

CROP Walks truly are Communities Responding to Overcome Poverty. Again, thank you to all who worked so hard to make the 2008 CROP Hunger Walk such a resounding success. Volunteering, walking, donating - we all have shown that citizens of Burley are truly citizens of the world. See you Sept. 26 at the 2009 CROP Hunger Walk and God bless!

Making up for lost wilderness

On Monday, President Obama signed the Omnibus Public Lands Management Act, placing more than 2 million acres of public land in nine states under Wilderness Act protection. The new legislation preserves remote glacial valleys in Wyoming, fragile deserts in California and dense forests in northern Michigan, making these and other tracts of pristine land permanently off-limits to road building, oil and gas drilling and commercial timber harvesting.

But for all the joy the law brings to those who treasure America's wild places, it was nevertheless a bittersweet victory. After eight years of the Bush administration's assault on public lands, there's still so much to be done - and undone.

During George W. Bush's presidency, millions of acres of public land were leased for oil and gas drilling and logging. The Endangered Species Act was ignored and weakened. Snowmobiles and off-road vehicles were allowed to invade national forests and parks.

The damage was so deep that it's hard to know where to begin. But let's start with oil and gas exploration. During the eight years Bush was in office, the amount of public land leased to gas and oil companies increased several-fold, bringing the total number of acres leased to 44 million of the 258 million acres the BLM manages, including 5 million acres designated as wild mustang habitat.

The Bush administration also ignored rules put in place to protect undeveloped public lands. The Clinton administration's "Roadless Area Conservation Rule" was aimed at stopping road building in 58.5 million acres of forest lands. But when Bush came into office, officials of his administration let it be known that the Justice Department would not defend the rule. Soon, battles raged in courts across the West, producing conflicting decisions. Because of the legal disputes, only seven miles of proposed forest roads have been built, but the rule's fate is still undecided.

And then there is the Endangered Species Act. During the Bush years, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service was loath to extend protections to new plants and animals. And even when species did make it on the list, the department refused to designate "critical habitat" necessary for the species' survival.

Another Bush rule declared that when any Arctic species, such as polar bears, was under review for listing, scientists and officials could not consider the effects of greenhouse gases produced outside the Arctic.

It was the Bush administration's utter disregard of the Clean Water Act that made it possible for the coal industry to destroy a large swath of the Appalachians.

Not all of the damage to our land and its creatures can be reversed. But new laws and federal regulations could at least create a solid legal foundation on which large-scale restoration can begin.

Jobless rate soars to 8.5 percent, 13M now jobless

Idaho rate above 7 percent, several Magic Valley counties down

By Jeannine Aversa
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — Unemployment zoomed to 8.5 percent last month, the highest in a quarter-century, as employers axed 663,000 more workers and pushed the nation's jobless ranks past 13 million. The hard times were only expected to get harder — a painful 10 percent jobless rate before long.

The current rate would be even higher — 15.6 percent — if it included laid-off workers who have given up looking for new jobs or have had to settle for part-time work because they can't do any better. That's the highest on record for that number in figures that go back to 1994.

"Even if the economy continues to show signs of improvement, businesses will cut jobs and trim fats to stay lean and mean," said Sung Won Sohn, economist at the Martin Smith School of Business at California State University.

In Idaho, the number of unemployed workers rose three-tenths of a point to 7.1 percent in March, the first time in over 21 years it's risen above 7 percent. Another 2,100 workers swelled the ranks of the jobless to a record 53,000.

However, the Magic Valley continued to show resilience — unemployment rates actually fell in Twin Falls, Jerome, Gooding, Camas and Lincoln counties.

The significance of Idaho's March decline was underscored in construction, when jobs normally increase as the weather improves and new projects begin. But this year, construction shed another 700 jobs between February and March.

Job losses throughout

Idaho have been widespread. Over 6,500 manufacturing, primarily in high technology, and 8,300 construction jobs were lost over the past 12 months along with 9,400 transportation and warehousing jobs, 8,600 jobs in professional and business services and 2,600 in leisure and hospitality, mostly in restaurants and bars. The limited bright spot was 1,900 new jobs in health care.

So far, the public has shown great hopes for the economic policies of new

Changes to loans rise; many don't pare payments

By Alan Zibel
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — Though lenders are boosting their attempts to curb record-high home foreclosures, fewer than half of loan modifications made at the end of last year actually reduced borrowers' payments by more than 10 percent, data released Friday show.

The report, based on an analysis of nearly 35 million loans worth more than $6 trillion, was published by the federal Office of the Comptroller of the Currency and the Office of Thrift Supervision. It provides the most detailed and broad analysis to date of efforts to stem the foreclosure crisis, which President Barack Obama is trying to combat with a $75 billion plan to promote loan modifications.

The report helps explain why many loans are falling back into

Jobless make TV ads pitching themselves for work

By Russell Contreras
Associated Press writer

CHELMSFORD, Mass. — Jayna Dinsmore dressed in a sharp pink blouse and black slacks and made the pitch she hoped would end her five months of unemployment: Experienced marketing manager and analyst. Diverse background. Trade show experience.

Only she wasn't talking to an interviewer. She was talking to a TV camera.

After sending resumes, attending networking events and blogging about her search for employment, Dinsmore joined a small but growing number of unemployed people who have made television commercials about themselves to try to get directly into prospective employers' living rooms.

"I figure any exposure I can get is a great thing," said Dinsmore, a 33-year-old married mother with a newly minted master's degree in marketing from Bentley University.

"The New England Job Show," a new public cable access production, allows hungry job seekers to record 30-second commercials in a studio at a middle school in "Basically, this is a project and we all have some project management experience. Our goal is to get people jobs."

— Kristyn Silk, who was laid off from Fidelity Investments in November

Chelmsford, near the New Hampshire state line. Volunteers — all also unemployed — then put the commercials into a half-hour episode that includes discussions on dressing professionally, personal finances and health care options.

About a dozen job seekers have taped commercials, and none has landed a job yet. But the first commercials just started airing last week.

The job show airs on at least five area public access stations. Comcast spokesman Jim Hughes said the cable company, which operates in many of the Massachusetts towns, didn't have viewership numbers.

Creator and executive producer Ken Masson said the show's uniqueness will catch eyes. "Everyone talks about being cutting edge. Well, this is cutting edge," said Masson, himself an unemployed community banker.

The commercials are different from personalized online videos that have exploded on YouTube because employers don't have to actually search for these.

But the commercials cast a wide net: There's no guarantee that hiring managers in the jobseekers' industries will see them. Those taping the spots said they were hoping to get lucky with the TV ad while also pursuing more targeted and traditional job search methods.

Other cable access stations have job programs: For two decades the state of Michigan has produced its own cable access job show featuring experts talking about employment trends, personal finance and career tips; and KSAR-15 TV, the public access station in Saratoga, Calif., airs a show on job hunting for California's Bay-area viewers.

But the personal pitches from job seekers appear to be

Bernanke backs strategy

Fed 'extremely uncomfortable' about bailouts

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — While acknowledging that the Federal Reserve was "extremely uncomfortable" about last year's bailouts of big financial companies, Fed Chairman Ben Bernanke said Friday the central bank's strategy to ease the financial crisis is working.

Bernanke was referring to the Fed's unprecedented decisions last year to step in and financially back JPMorgan Chase & Co.'s takeover of troubled investment house Bear Stearns and

Hundreds protest on Wall Street; ask U.S. to 'bail out the people'

By Verena Dobnik
Associated Press writer

NEW YORK — Chanting "Whose street? Our street!" hundreds of people rallied on Wall Street on Friday to protest the billions of dollars in federal bailout money to big business.

Monica Moorehead, managing editor of the left-leaning newspaper Workers World, said the crowd gathered to protest the capitalist system which helps AIG and other companies she said steal money from us.

The crowd was waving signs reading, "No more money for Wall Street."

The protesters gathered in a steady rain behind police barricades and marched along Broadway and through the narrow streets in downtown Manhattan. They walked past the headquarters of American International Group Inc. and several banks that received federal funds to stay afloat. Some of the companies posted security guards outside their entrances.

The march ended in Foley Square, near the federal courthouse. The crowd planned a second protest on Saturday.

Police said four people who tried to block traffic by walking down the middle of Broadway were charged with disorderly conduct.

Loans

 default after being modified. Many borrowers and consumer groups contend that the modifications offered by the lending industry aren't very generous, despite more than a year of public prodding from regulators.

For instance, nearly one in four loan modifications in the fourth quarter actually resulted in increased monthly payments. That situation can happen when lenders add fees or past-due interest to a loan and spread those payments out over the 30- or 40-year period.

Perhaps unsurprisingly, the report found that loans were far less likely to fall back into default if a borrower's monthly payment is reduced by a healthy amount.

Nine months after modification, about 26 percent of loans in which payments had dropped by 10 percent or more had fallen back into default. That compares with about half of loans in which the payment was unchanged or increased.</

Too-tall corpse?

S.C. man's body was apparently cut to fit coffin

By Jeffrey Collins
Associated Press writer

ALLENDALE, S.C. — James Hines was a giant — a 6-foot-7, 300-pound preacher and funk musician so big that after he died in 2004, a macabre rumor began circulating in this small town that the undertaker had to cut off his legs to fit him in the coffin.

This week, after years of whispers, Hines' body was exhumed, and the gruesome story appeared to be all too true.

The coroner's office said only that it had found "undesirable evidence," and a criminal investigation has been opened. But Hines' widow said investigators told her that his legs had been cut off between the ankle and calf, and his feet had been placed inside the casket.

"It's just like pulling the scab off an old sore. I was kind of like smoothing things out. But now it's like starting all over again," Ann Hines said Thursday, two days after investigators pulled the casket from the ground, lifted the lid, photographed the contents and returned it to the earth, all without leaving the graveyard.

Under South Carolina law, destroying or desecrating human remains is punishable by one to 10 years in prison.

Reached this week, a man who identified himself as the owner of Cave Funeral Home, which handled the funeral, declined to comment.

The allegations were so startling that funeral directors around the country are talking about the case.

"You hear old wives' tales about this around the turn of the century, but, no, this was a shock to me," said Doggett Whitaker, a past president of the National Funeral Directors Association.

Ann Hines said that she and her family went to the funeral home after her husband's death to make the final arrangements, and she picked out a standard-size casket. At the funeral, only the top half of the lid was open, showing Hines from the chest up, she said. She said nobody ever suggested a bigger box.

Funeral directors sometimes pull up the knees or shift the padding in the coffin to make sure the body fits. But the best solution is usually a longer casket, Whitaker said, adding: "Just being upfront and honest with the family is the best path to take."

He said bodies are usually measured and families told where a corpse's head will rest in the casket. Longer caskets are routinely manufactured, though they cost more than standard ones.

Duffie Stone, the county prosecutor, would not comment on the investigation.

Around town, Hines was an unforgettable figure, and not just because of his size. An albino black man, he performed for decades as a soul and funk guitarist.

His group, J. Hines and the Boys, never hit it big but filled clubs and auditoriums in the Southeast, and small radio stations played some of its recordings, including "Funky Funk" and "Can't Think of Nothing (Blank Mind)?"

He gave up what he called his instrument of sin when he found God in the early 1990s. But his pastor had heard Hines' recordings and, convinced that Hines should share his gift, took him to buy a new guitar.

Eventually, Hines became a minister in Allendale, about 75 miles southwest of the capital, Columbia. He played his guitar during services at the church he built and on a nearby Christian radio station until his death from skin cancer at 60.

At his funeral, several people, including one of Hines' five children, said the casket looked too small. Hines was about 79 inches tall in his bare feet, according to his family.

The interior length of a standard coffin is about 80 inches but can vary by a few inches, depending on the padding, the thickness of the walls and other features, said Scott Jones, chief executive of Service Casket Co., a casket distributor in Columbus, Ga.

After the funeral, the rumors began — started, some say, by a former funeral home worker — and it seemed as if all 3,700 people in town were talking about the burial.

Ann Hines said she threatened to sue Cave Funeral Home and the business agreed to settle out of court as long as she did not tell anyone how much she received. She said workers at the funeral home never told her exactly what happened. She said she accepted the deal and tried to forget about the whole thing and stop wondering why nobody even apologized.

Eventually, someone called the South Carolina Board of Funeral Service, and the coroner and an investigator with the agency received the widow's permission to dig up the grave.

Obama seeks help in Afghan terror fight

STRASBOURG, France (AP) — Courting Europe with an American-style campaign, President Barack Obama on Friday talked up his plans — popular here — to eliminate nuclear weapons, close the Guantanamo Bay prison and tackle global warming.

In return, he's hoping for European popular support in the anti-terror fight in Afghanistan.

Obama seems likely to win fresh commitments at today's 60th anniversary NATO summit. He can expect more civilian aid and small troop increases for training Afghan forces and providing security for upcoming elections.

But the European public has no stomach for more intense military involvement by their nations. So Obama is unlikely to get additional help in the way of either major combat troops or new deployments to the toughest areas of the fighting in southern and eastern Afghanistan.

Obama and his aides sought ahead of time to get frame that outcome in the best possible light.

"It's not just a matter of more resources, it's a matter of more effectively using the resources we have," Obama said.

That comment came in the midst of a remarkable event he created at a basketball arena in Strasbourg, a campaign-style "town hall" in which he fielded questions from young French and German men and women.

Separately, Secretary of State Hillary Rodham Clinton said securing new commitments from allies would neither begin nor end with the NATO meetings, noting that nations need more time to digest Obama's week-old revamped Afghanistan-Pakistan strategy. "The NATO summit is not a pledging conference," she told reporters.

Obama's national security adviser, retired Gen. James Jones, said Obama's new approach to Afghanistan, which calls for increasing U.S. troops by 21,000, narrowing the mission on uprooting terrorist safe havens and broadening the focus to include Pakistan, would inspire fresh involvement. "I think there's a new mood," Jones said.

Iowa court OKs gay marriage

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Iowa's Supreme Court legalized gay marriage Friday in a unanimous and emphatic decision that makes Iowa the third state — and first in the nation's heartland — to allow same-sex couples to wed.

Iowa joins only Massachusetts and Connecticut in permitting same-sex marriage. For six months last year, California's high court allowed gay marriage before voters banned it in November.

The Iowa justices upheld a lower-court ruling that rejected a state law restricting marriage to a union between a man and woman.

The county attorney who defended the law said he would not seek a rehearing. The only recourse for opponents appeared to be a constitutional amendment, which could take years to ratify.

"We are firmly convinced the exclusion of gay and lesbian people from the institution of civil marriage does not substantially further any important governmental objective," the Supreme Court wrote.

Iowa lawmakers have "excluded a historically disfavored class of persons from a supremely important civil institution without a constitutionally sufficient justification."

Gitmo detainee to go to France

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico — An Algerian held at Guantanamo is to be settled in France, France's foreign minister said Friday, marking a possible breakthrough in President Barack Obama's quest to close the prison and resettle dozens of prisoners in foreign lands.

News of the pending release came as Obama visited Strasbourg, France, where French President Nicolas Sarkozy said he will accept one detainee. Foreign Minister Bernard Kouchner said later the person is Algerian.

Human Rights Watch urged other European Union countries to accept detainees who cannot return to their home countries because they would risk torture or other abuse.

"The Obama administration can't solve the Guantanamo problem on its own," said Joanne Mariner of Human Rights Watch in New York. "European allies have long urged the U.S. to close Guantanamo. Now they have a chance to help make that happen."

Ohio man branded Nazi guard gets deportation stay

CLEVELAND — John Demjanjuk, accused of being a Nazi death camp guard, marked his 89th birthday Friday by winning a reprieve of his ordered deportation to Germany to face possible trial.

His son, John Demjanjuk Jr., said an immigration judge issued the stay of a deportation expected during the weekend.

Germany says Demjanjuk had been expected there by Monday.

Demjanjuk, a retired auto worker who lives in the Cleveland suburb of Seven Hills, kept out of sight Friday, as he has for years. He has argued that his deportation would amount to torture, given his frail health.

A German arrest warrant issued in March accuses the Ukrainian-born Demjanjuk of 29,000 counts of acting as an accessory to murder at the Sobibor camp in occupied Poland during World War II.

Go home, Google: English villagers send camera car packing

By Jill Lawless
Associated Press writer

LONDON — You're never far from a camera in Britain, a country that has accepted the presence of millions of surveillance cameras in its streets, shopping centers and public spaces.

But for the villagers of Broughton in southern England, the roving eye of Google was one camera too far.

A gaggle of residents in the affluent hamlet formed a human chain to turn away a car shooting images for Google Street View, the popular service that allows Internet users to see high-quality photos of houses and streets around the world.

An undated file photo of one of Google's street mapping cars. For the villagers of Broughton in southern England, the roving eye of Google was a camera too far.

Broughton's tiny victory for people power is the latest sign of concern about the U.S. Internet juggernaut's collection of vast amounts of data, from satellite photos on Google Earth to the searches performed by Internet users and the shopping habits of e-mail users.

"I was upstairs when I spotted the camera car driving down the lane," villager Paul Jacobs told The Times of London newspaper. "My immediate reaction was anger: How dare anyone take a photograph of my home without my consent?"

Jacobs quickly rounded up his neighbors, who blocked the road and forced the car to retreat.

The local police force confirmed it had been called to the village Wednesday by "reports of a dispute between a crowd of people and a Google Street View contractor."

"They felt his presence was an intrusion of their privacy,"

Thames Valley Police said in a statement sent Friday to The Associated Press. "When police arrived at the scene, the car had moved on."

Street View debuted in the United States in 2007 and has since spread to countries including France, Italy, Spain, Australia and Japan. It launched in Britain last month, sparking a debate about freedom of information and the right to privacy.

Street View has sparked concern elsewhere as well. In the United States, Google removed images of shelters for battered women.

In the Netherlands, concerns have been raised about the safety of anyone trying to photograph Amsterdam's notorious Red Light district.

So far, Google's images stop just outside the district.

In Italy, consumer groups have raised a variety of concerns and asked Google to put visual and sound warnings on the cars that take its Street View pictures.

"People feel sensitive about their local area, about their home, and digitization in great detail of those images threatens a great many people," said Simon Davies of London-based watchdog Privacy International.

For months, Google's Street View vehicle — a car with a pole-mounted revolving camera protruding from the top — has been roaming the streets of Britain, capturing 360-degree images of streets.

Final Four a refuge for UConn, Michigan State

By Nancy Armour
Associated Press writer

DETROIT — One look at the thousands of fans waiting in the rain an hour before the gates at Ford Field opened, and it's clear where Michigan State's motivation comes from.

For Connecticut, the focus is much narrower, though no less powerful. A year removed from that crushing loss to San Diego in the NCAA tournament, two from that unUConn-like 17-14 record, their program buffeted this season by coach Jim Calhoun's latest health scares and other distractions, the court is the Huskies' refuge, the one place they are truly in control.

"This team has given me incredible joy this season," said Calhoun, a Hall of Famer who was diagnosed with his third bout of cancer last May. "They were the tonic, quite frankly, the best

Heels, Wildcats shed stereotypes at Final Four

By Eddie Pells

DETROIT — They're not quite who we thought they were.

North Carolina isn't exactly that group of kids who just couldn't resist banding together to take another shot at winning the national title.

Villanova isn't exactly that lovable little underdog looking for the perfect game, ala the 1985 title team led by Rollie Massimino.

They meet Saturday in the Final Four, each a win away from playing for the national title, and each still waiting to write the final chapter on how they'll be remembered.

"There's no question it would have been a huge disappointment if we hadn't gotten back to the Final Four," Tar Heels coach Roy Williams said.

Boise State receivers fight for field time

By Dustin Lapray
Times-News correspondent

BOISE — The past two seasons Jeremy Childs led the Boise State football team with 154 receptions. Childs' early departure for the NFL leaves an open position for young receivers to leap into the starting lineup.

BSU rotates receivers in groups and packages, so a bunch of pass-catchers will get on the field, and sophomore quarterback Kellen Moore will try to find them all.

At the top of the depth chart is 6-foot-3 Austin Pettis and 5-11 Titus Young. The two juniors differ greatly. Young may be the fastest guy on the team; Pettis has the hops, height and hands.

"I don't have the speed, I have the height," Pettis said. "You gotta pick and choose how you attack (defenses). We exploit that sometimes in games."

Pettis' height helps in the red zone. His nine touchdowns led the team last season. Only Childs recorded more receptions than Pettis' 95 catches the past two seasons.

CSI softball blows past Snow

By Bradley Guire
Times-News writer

There was no denying that Friday's strong west wind both hampered and helped the No. 11 College of Southern Idaho softball team in its doubleheader sweep of visiting Scenic West Athletic Conference rival Snow College. The Golden Eagles won 15-8 and 13-1.

The National Weather Service had issued an advisory for the area, and at Eagle Field that 30-35 mph wind was a constant, wreaking havoc on pitchers, batters and outfielders as it blew everything toward right field.

"It was definitely a challenge," Golden Eagles right fielder Erin Olander said. "The wind brought ... I don't know, it was hard. You just do the best you can."

The gusts challenged the CSI pitchers to make adjustments, and there were no favors in store for Game 1 starter Kyla Bryant. The sophomore struggled through the first two innings, giving up six earned runs on seven hits as the Badgers went up 6-0. "Anything she threw just seemed to

Golden Eagles tumble to defeat against CSN

By David Bashore
Times-News writer

That hole the College of Southern Idaho baseball team was hoping to claw out of in the second half of the Scenic West Athletic Conference season got two games deeper Friday, with two fewer games with which to work.

CSI had its 10-game win streak snapped by the College of Southern Nevada after the Golden Eagles wasted leads in both halves of a doubleheader and wound up suffering a sweep that all but killed off their hopes of finishing in the SWAC's top two at the end of the regular season.

The usually reliable Sam Armstrong, staked to a 2-1 lead after four, couldn't get out of the fifth inning of Game 1 and gave up all five runs in a 5-3 defeat.

A similar fate befell Tyler Curtis in the nightcap, when he couldn't get out of the fifth after CSI (19-17, 12-10 SWAC) gave him a three-run lead after four. He gave all three back in the top of the fifth and the Golden Eagles went on to lose 6-5 despite benefiting from seven Southern Nevada errors.

"We just haven't figured out how to win close games. I don't think they outplayed us, not to say we outplayed them, but the difference is that they have the experience of figuring out how to win games like this," said CSI head coach Boomer Walker. "It's kind of demoralizing but if you're in a

Minico rallies; Burley falls to Hillcrest

By Ryan Howe
Times-News writer

RUPERT — All season, Minico has been finding ways to lose baseball games. On Friday the Spartans had to battle back twice, but finally found a way to win with a 9-6 victory over Hillcrest.

The Spartans improved to 4-9 as the young club got a much-needed confidence boost.

“Yeah, our record isn’t where we want it to be, but nothing has changed,” said Minico’s Alex Moon. “We’ve had the same goals the whole year and that’s to win a state championship.”

Moon had an exceptional day, going 4-for-4 from the plate with four RBIs. He also pitched a solid four and 2-3 innings of relief.

“I felt like Moon was a pretty good matchup for these guys,” said Minico coach Ben Frank. “He did a good job of coming in and killing their momentum, then offensively he had a great day for us.”

Moon’s two-run homer in the second tied it 2-2. His run-scoring single in the third tied it 4-4. The Spartans took the lead for good on Landon Barnes’ RBI single in the fourth, and Chris Joyce and Casey Christiansen followed

HILLCREST 13, BURLEY 12, SIX INNINGS

After their defeat at Minico, the Knights loaded the bus and headed to Burley, where they beat the host Bobcats 13-12 in a game that was called after six innings due to weather.

Burley fell behind 7-2 in the second inning, but battled back to take the lead 12-11 in the fifth. Jake Mills, who went 3-for-3 with a pair of RBI, knocked in the go-ahead run.

But the Knights got a pair of runs off reliever Edgar Perez, who otherwise had a more-than-decent outing, in the top of the sixth and took the lead on Casey Hillyard’s run-scoring triple. No one knew it at the time, but that became the game-winner as snow began to fall in the top of the seventh.

Burley (5-9) gave the game away with costly errors, foremost among them was a dropped routine fly ball in the fourth that would have been the third out. Instead, Hillcrest went on to score four more runs.

“We had three or four errors cost us six runs. Routine errors,” said Burley coach

Times-News

Katelyn Fjeld fired a no-hitter, striking out eight Middleton batters as Twin Falls took a 13-0, five-inning victory on the road over the Vikings on Friday afternoon.

Brianna Bishop followed with a complete-game four-hitter in an 8-1 win in Game 2 to complete the sweep.

The Bruins (9-5) smashed 17 hits in the doubleheader, including nine for extra bases. Erica Coats had three doubles, while Kalli McBride and Katelyn Van Loo each had a double and a homer. Fjeld had the other extra-base hit, a double.

But Friday was all about the pitching.

“Katelyn threw it hard and had a really good sequence going. She kept them off balance the whole time,” said Twin Falls coach Ken Johnson. “Brianna had her best game of the year in Game 2. She had good control, her changeup was working and she was moving the ball around all game.”

“It was a learning experience,” Minico head coach Steve Latta said. “Kuna was fast, and they took every advantage to steal a base. Defensively, (the Spartans) played more solid than they have in the past. Hopefully, they got something out of it.”

Spring ball key in ISU's development

By Mark Liptak

Times-News correspondent

POCATELLO — From the first day he took over, Idaho State football coach John Zamberlin has been preaching patience and the fact that rebuilding a program that has spent the last quarter century stuck in neutral would take time.

Progress along the edges has been made as players are staying out of trouble, the team’s overall grade point average is going up. Now Zamberlin and his team expects progress to be made in the win column.

To that end spring football practice carries perhaps more importance than in the previous two seasons and Zamberlin, his staff and his players are going at it with gusto.

Coming off a 1-11 season, gutted by injuries and having lost some key performers, nothing can be taken for granted during workouts this month.

“That’s why everyone is wearing a shirt that says ‘No excuses, no explanation,’” said Zamberlin.

Rebuilding a defense that ranked near the bottom of the Big Sky Conference is one a priority in spring workouts.

“We’ve got to stop the run and we’ve got to find a guy who will step up and rush the passer. We’ve got some great kids coming in the fall and I think we’ll find someone to solve those areas,” said Zamberlin.

In fact, ISU has added 10 new defensive linemen. Asked what the strength of the defense was at this moment, Zamberlin didn’t hesitate: “It’s our secondary.”

The offense lost players like all-conference receiver Eddie Thompson and running backs Ken Cornist and Kenyon Blue, but Zamberlin is encouraged.

“We’ve got a great group of receivers returning and Clint Knickrehm will be fine in the fall.”

Knickrehm is sitting out spring practice as he recovers from wrist surgery.

The quarterback position is a battle between two-year starter Russel Hill and Kyle Blum. Zamberlin likes that situation.

“It’s competition ... we’ll see who plays better and how many people have two guys at that spot they have confidence in?”

Special teams right now is a mixed bag as the only kicker around is Jarrett Huk, who struggled on field goals but was great with kickoffs. Return man J.D. Ponciano is a threat to run any kick back for a score. The big issue is finding a small but vital element, a long snapper.

“We had two guys get hurt last year at that spot and we’ve got to find someone to fill the role. If not we’ll have to recruit late and get that position stabilized,” said Zamberlin.

Fighting the inclement weather hasn’t helped in the early going, two days have already been postponed and the team is scrambling to find makeup time indoors at Holt Arena.

One practice has been scheduled for 5:30 a.m. for example, but that’s just one more hill to climb for Zamberlin and his program. And it doesn’t faze him.

“Progress doesn’t just happen,” he said. “We’re going to keep working to keep getting better.”

Vandals hold first spring scrimmage

For the Times-News

Can Idaho football coach Robb Akey have his cake and eat it, too?

That’s the question today as Vandals hold their first full scrimmage of spring camp at 10 a.m. on the SprinTurf Field.

“The biggest thing I want to see coming out of this scrimmage,” Akey said, “is to see kids making plays, performing at their position and making things happen. ... I’m looking for both sides to have success and so, obviously, someone is having success and somebody gets beat on the other side.”

Although the Vandals have just five spring practices under their belts, Akey said he is seeing some areas starting to take form. Akey has seen Irv Stevens step up at center to assume the position vacated by four-year starter Adam Korb. Bryce Sinclair has shown some offseason improvement that could land him in the lineup on the offensive line as well.

Junior quarterback Nathan Enderle is working with the No. 1 offense but he’s seeing competition from redshirt freshman Justin Morales and sophomore transfer Brian Reader. Their receivers have been more sure-handed with senior Max Komar stepping up in a leadership role. Juniors Maurice Shaw, Eric Greenwood and Dewey Hale, and sophomore Preston Davis have shown progress.

The defensive line is starting to sort itself out but questions remain. The battle at linebacker will likely carry over to fall when players who are being held out of contact this spring will be back in full force.

Special teams will have a more front-and-center presence as new coordinators Patrick Libey and Jeremy Thielbahr put their plans into place and newcomers Trey Farquhar (kicker) and Bobby Cowan (punter) have live looks.

Akey continues to stress the importance of learning.

“Who’s going to make plays? Which of the two sides of the ball is going to execute their package a little bit better? Within that, which of the individuals are going to make some things happen?” Akey said. “Ultimately, that’s what I’m going to be looking for — individuals doing things within what our teams need to do.”

The Vandals wrap up spring camp with the Silver and Gold game on April 26. Idaho opens the regular season Sept. 5 at New Mexico State.

Receivers

Young only played three games last season before he was suspended for violating team rules, so his numbers dipped (10 receptions, one TD). But, in 2007, he caught 44 passes and five TDs.

“Titus is probably one of the most explosive players I’ve ever seen,” Pettis said. “It was rough last year not having him, but he hasn’t missed a beat. You can tell in spring ball, his attitude is much better. He’s out there working hard, trying to get better.”

BSU receivers coach Brent Pease said both Pettis and Young have the ability to be all-league performers.

After the two juniors it’s hard to name a definitive hierarchy among the receivers. All are young and few have mastered the playbook. Pettis said he didn’t truly feel comfortable with all the receiver positions until the middle of last season.

“Everything comes so fast,” Pease said. “They don’t all learn all the positions; they learn their positions. Once you learn something, you move on to something else.”

Tyler Shoemaker (6-1), Mitch Burroughs (5-9) and Chris Potter (5-11) stand next in line. Childs is gone along with seniors Vinny Perretta, Tanyon Bissell and Julian Hawkins.

“When guys leave and there are spots like that, you’ve got to take your opportunities and run with them,” Shoemaker said. “My goal is to get on the field.”

The ‘special roles’ of running the option, misdirection, reverses and the halfback pass must also be filled.

The speedy Potter may be that guy. He played quarterback his senior high school season.

“I’d be excited if I was the one to do those plays,” Potter said. “We have more than one person who can do those plays. I’m not really set on one position. No matter where they want to stick me, as long as I’m on the field, I’ll take it.”

Shoemaker is the only one of the three to play last season (seven receptions, two TDs).

The slot receivers can get open if defenses double Young or Pettis, especially if BSU tight ends eat up linebackers and safeties.

“You can’t leave them open or they’re going to make plays,” Shoemaker said. “Somebody’s going to be open somewhere and with Kellen back there you know he’s going to find that guy.”

Shoemaker could be a solid third threat at receiver. Burroughs and Potter surely have the speed and can make plays in space, but their size may limit positive matchups in game situations.

That’s part of spring camp, figuring out who can do what the best.

“It’s pretty competitive,” Burroughs said. “A lot of us are fighting for a spot. We all get a lot of reps.”

There are only eight receivers in spring camp, but in the fall some others may get a chance to play as true freshman, like Aaron Burks (6-0, 180) who is in camp already, or Geraldo Hiwat (6-3, 195), or Kirby Moore (6-2, 210).

Griffin, Self win Associated Press college awards

DETROIT (AP) — In a season when the Big East dominated the polls and the NCAA tournament, the Big 12 won both major individual awards.

Blake Griffin, the sophomore forward from Oklahoma who led the nation in rebounding, collisions and hustle plays, was the runaway choice as The Associated Press' college basketball player of the year Friday. Bill Self, who led Kansas from a decimated national champion to a fifth straight Big 12 title, was selected coach of the year.

"I think our league was better than people gave us credit for, in fact, we were probably only behind the Big East," Self said.

The top two teams in the conference were Oklahoma and Kansas, but when they met for the only time Feb. 24, Griffin wasn't able to play in Kansas' 87-78 victory after sustaining a concussion against Texas.

"I think the biggest reason I won this award is that when we played Oklahoma, we held Blake scoreless," Self joked. "In the last few years I had the chance to try and stop players like Kevin Durant of Texas, Michael Beasley of Kansas State and Blake Griffin, three of the most dominant players in the country. He's been the best of the three, and he will have a fabulous pro career."

Self wasn't pushing Griffin, who averaged 22.7 points and national-best 14.4 rebounds while shooting 65.4 percent from the field, toward an NBA career, but that is the question the only unanimous All-America will face over and over.

"When I get back I'll sit down with Coach Capel and go over some stuff and hopefully come to a decision sometime soon," Griffin said. "It will be sometime soon, maybe the middle of next week. It will be next week for sure."

Capel said he "probably" would take Griffin back if he decided to return to

Self

Oklahoma, which finished 30-6 and lost to North Carolina in the regional finals. But the decision will be made by Griffin and his parents, and Capel will support it 100 percent.

Griffin received 66 votes from the 71-member national media panel that selects the weekly Top 25. Tyler Hansbrough of North Carolina, last season's player of the year as a junior, and Pittsburgh sophomore DeJuan Blair both got two votes in the balloting done before the NCAA tournament, while Ty Lawson of North Carolina received one vote.

Capel agreed when asked if Griffin could be considered a throwback player because of the way he plays, but he's very much a modern player, too.

"You can look at him as the kind of prototypical power forward in today's game with his ability to handle the ball, pass, do those things," Capel said. "Some of the throwbacks were just power, they were just strong. He embodies that, but he's incredibly skilled; as he moves forward with his career you'll see those things in his game. I've said this and, not to put any pressure on him, but when Blake makes the jump to the NBA he'll be a better pro than he was a college player. He'll continue to get better. He's only 20, and I know how hard he works."

Self called his team's ability to finish 14-2 and win the Big 12 title "unbelievable."

"I really think after winning at Baylor and then at Kansas State, I thought we could jack around and win the league," he said. "It probably wasn't until the first of February that I thought we had a good team. I would have sold out for getting in the tournament, then we win the league."

The Jayhawks finished 27-8 and reached the round of 16, losing to Michigan State.

Self received 28 of the 71 votes cast, easily beating Jamie Dixon of Pittsburgh, who had 10.

Jazz guard Ronnie Brewer, left, and Timberwolves forward Brian Cardinal dive for a loose ball during the second half Friday in Salt Lake City.

Fading Jazz fall to T'Wolves

SALT LAKE CITY — Ryan Gomes hit a tie-breaking 3-pointer with a minute left and the Minnesota Timberwolves held off the Utah Jazz 103-102 on Friday night to snap a nine-game road losing streak.

Deron Williams missed a shot at the buzzer that would have won it for Utah, which lost its third straight. The loss at home, where Utah had won 15 straight, was a huge blow to the Jazz's diminishing hopes for home-court advantage in the first round of the playoffs.

Williams thought he was fouled on the final shot and shouted at the officials as they left the floor before he finally went to the locker room. He finished with 34 points and 11 assists.

Gomes and Rodney Carney both scored 25 points, and Mike Miller had 14 points.

MAGIC 116, CAVALIERS 87
ORLANDO, Fla. — Dwight Howard had 20 points and 11 rebounds, and the Orlando Magic rode a strong second-half start to go ahead by 41 points and hand the Cleveland

Cavaliers their most lopsided loss of the season with a 116-87 blowout Friday night.

Rashard Lewis had 22 points, and Hedo Turkoglu added 13 for the Magic, who remained percentage points behind Boston — but tied in the loss column — for the Eastern Conference's second seed.

LeBron James finished with 26 points and nine rebounds, but shot 7-for-20 from the floor. James stayed in for part of the fourth quarter to help Cleveland dodge its worst loss since he was drafted in 2003. Cleveland's 35-point loss at Detroit on Nov. 11, 2007, was the most lopsided in the LeBron Era, and a 17-point loss against the Lakers in January had been the Cavs' worst this season.

HEAT 97, BOBCATS 92
CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Dwyane Wade had 27 points and 10 assists, and Miami clinched a playoff berth a year after an ugly 15-win season.

Joining the 1968-69 San Diego Rockets as only the second NBA team to reach the playoffs after going 15-67 the season before, the Heat rallied from an early 15-point deficit to snap a two-game losing streak.

Wade made three free throws in the final 19 seconds. Charlotte's Raymond Felton then missed a tying 3-point attempt with 5 seconds left.

Gerald Wallace had 21 points in a damaging loss for the Bobcats, who dropped their second straight to fall two games behind idle Chicago for the final playoff spot in the Eastern Conference.

CELTICS 104, HAWKS 92
BOSTON — Paul Pierce scored 21 points, and Rajon Rondo had 20 to help Boston maintain its hold on the second-best record in the Eastern Conference.

Kendrick Perkins had 12 points and 10 rebounds, and Glen "Big Baby" Davis added 19 points in place of Kevin Garnett, who missed his fourth straight game and his 17th of 21 because of a right knee strain. Flip Murray had 21 points for Atlanta.

SPURS 126, PACERS 121
INDIANAPOLIS — Tony

Parker had 31 points and 10 assists, and Tim Duncan had 22 points and 11 rebounds for San Antonio.

Michael Finley added 18 points, and Drew Gooden had 17 for the Spurs, a half-game behind Denver in the race for the No. 2 seed in the Western Conference. Danny Granger had 35 points for Indiana, four games behind Chicago for the No. 8 spot in the East.

TRAIL BLAZERS 107, THUNDER 72
OKLAHOMA CITY — LaMarcus Aldridge had 35 points and a career-high 18 rebounds, and Portland closed in on a playoff spot.

Brandon Roy added 15 points for Portland. Kevin Durant led Oklahoma City with 13.

GRIZZLIES 107, MAVERICKS 102
MEMPHIS, Tenn. — Rudy Gay had 27 points and 10 rebounds, and Mike Conley added 25 points in Memphis' third straight victory and fourth in five games.

Dallas star Dirk Nowitzki scored 25 of his 36 points in the second half.

Casey, Ogilvy top Houston leaderboard

HUMBLE, Texas — Paul Casey shot a 2-under 70 on Friday for a share of the lead with Geoff Ogilvy and John Senden at 8 under during the suspended second round of the Shell Houston Open.

Casey was one of only five players to complete two rounds Friday after high wind suspended play Thursday afternoon. The horns sounded at 7:43 p.m. Friday with 65 players on the course and 72 others scheduled to start their second rounds Saturday morning.

"I didn't think we'd get done," Casey said, "but we did. That was great."

Ogilvy, the Australian star who won the season-opening Mercedes-Benz and the Accenture Match Play, played 14 holes in the second round, while Senden played 10.

Ogilvy opened with a 67, then birdied seven of the first nine holes of his second round. He had a double bogey on the par-4 second and a bogey at the fourth.

Ogilvy and Casey were two of the 72 players who had their first-round tee times pushed back to Friday. Casey shot a 6-under 66 in his first round, then raced the sun to finish a second-round 70. After two-putting for par on No. 17, he ran to the 18th tee and smacked a 318-yard drive into the fairway just before the round was officially suspended, allowing him to finish the hole Friday.

"I figured it was worth it," Casey said. "There's something to be said about saving energy. It's turning into a long week. If I had to get up early (Saturday), that could have been very detrimental. I took a chance, ran for the tee."

Bo Van Pelt (67) was 7 under along with Jonathan Byrd, Henrik Stenson, Tommy Armour III and former SMU player Colt Knost.

desert wind that tore through the Coachella Valley on Friday blew a new set of players to the top of the leaderboard of the Kraft Nabisco Championship.

Kristy McPherson and Christina Kim teed off well before the wind started gusting and jumped into the lead at 6-under 138 at the halfway point of the LPGA Tour's first major of the season. McPherson shot a 70, and Kim had a 69 at Mission Hills, where palm trees swayed and flags snapped in the breeze.

Cristie Kerr also teed off in the morning and shot a 68 to finish at 5 under. First-round leader Brittany Lincicome (74) was 4 under, and Jimin Kang (70) and Lindsey Wright (71) were 3 under.

MCGOWAN LEADS ESTORIL OPEN
CASCAIS, Portugal — England's Ross McGowan shot a 2-over 73 to take a one-stroke lead after the second round of the Estoril Open.

McGowan had a 5-under 137 total at Oitavos Dunes. He opened with a 64. Spain's Carlos del Moral (71) and Scotland's Chris Doak (70) were tied for second.

UConn

medicine I could ever possibly receive."

You can say the Michigan State-Connecticut matchup in the Final Four on Saturday night is only a game, even though the winner advances to play for a national title. But when real-world problems — unemployment, cancer, possible recruiting violations — are a constant companion, those 2½ hours they play give fans and players alike an escape.

Connecticut (31-4) was expected to be good again this year — when, really, are the Huskies not? Then came the news in late May that Calhoun had skin cancer again and would need radiation. The treatment killed the cancer cells, but it also sapped his strength and energy.

Yet when practice began in the fall, there was Calhoun on the sidelines. "He brushes it off, and the next day he's at work," Jeff Adrien said. "We really learned from Coach the mental side, and that's what makes us who we are."

They would need every bit of that strength.

With big man Hasheem Thabeet looking like a newer version of Dikembe Mutombo, A.J. Price recovered from a torn ACL and Jerome Dyson patrolling the perimeter, the Huskies raced out to a 24-1 start. North Carolina, Pittsburgh, Louisville — none of them looked as good as Connecticut — and it sure looked as if the Huskies were on their way to a third national title.

But in UConn's Feb. 11 game against Syracuse, Dyson collided with another player and suffered a season-ending knee injury. Two weeks later, Calhoun went on a tirade after a free-lance journalist peppered him with questions about his $1.6 million salary, an exchange that became an instant YouTube hit. The Connecticut governor later called it an "embarrassing display."

Calhoun missed the Huskies' first-round rout of Chattanooga after being hospitalized for dehydration.

"I don't know this to be true, I don't think it is a medical fact... if that 'dehydration' all that stuff, was because I was trying to take care of everything," Calhoun said. "I'm not someone who's going to just let something happen without at least trying to attack it or find a better way to do those things. I think that short trip might have been caused from me trying to handle so much, because they're my responsibility."

Heels

Such is life when all four NBA prospects decide to stick around another year.

But other than Tyler Hansbrough, last year's player of the year who really likes college, the return of this talented group had more to do with the realities of the NBA than with any pact they made among themselves — say, the way Florida's players did before they won their second straight championship in 2007.

Wayne Ellington and Danny Green went through workouts and weren't projected as first-round draft picks. Ty Lawson got mixed feedback.

"I talked to 24 teams and every team I talked to about Ty said, 'I think he's going to be a No. 1 draft choice,'" Williams said. "But none of those teams said they were going to take him. The teams in the top 20 told me they would not. So I gave Ty and his family that information."

Oddly enough, though, instead of having to recruit the players, as so many coaches often do, Williams almost tried to unrecruit them. He welcomed them back but only with conditions.

"Please understand, if you decide to come back, it's not going to be about you," Williams said of his conversations with the players. "I'm not going to get you 30 shots. I'm not going to figure out how to make you the leading scorer."

Rather, he was going to try to put together a team that could get back to the Final Four and a chance to fashion a better ending than last year. North Carolina fell behind 40-12 to Kansas in the first half and a furious rally fell short.

"It was our first Final Four," Hansbrough explained. "Now, I guess we'll be more prepared."

The Tar Heels (32-4) are, not surprisingly, a 5-6 favorite to win the whole tournament and a 7½-point pick over Villanova (30-7).

Yes, the Wildcats are the underdogs here in Detroit. But not THAT kind of underdog.

Taking on a burgeoning dynasty in Patrick Ewing and Georgetown, the Wildcats won 66-64 by shooting 78.6 percent that night at Rupp Arena, a mark that has only been topped twice since in the NCAA tournament (Oklahoma State 1992, North Carolina 1998) and never with the stakes so high.

They played the perfect game.

This Villanova team might not have to.

Suzuki on disabled list with bleeding ulcer

SEATTLE — Mariners star Ichiro Suzuki is being treated for a bleeding ulcer and was placed on the 15-day disabled list Friday, sending Seattle into opening day minus one of baseball's best players.

The Mariners said the ulcer is no longer bleeding. Doctors have restricted the 35-year-old outfielder's activity but are optimistic he'll be ready to play when he's eligible to come off the DL on April 15.

Suzuki played for Japan in the World Baseball Classic. He complained of severe fatigue earlier this week and missed Seattle's final three spring training games in Arizona, and was diagnosed with the ulcer — a relatively rare condition for an athlete — after seeing doctors Thursday.

"I know how much (Ichiro) cares. This is the first time in eight years he's been on the DL," Mariners manager Don Wakamatsu said Friday night in Las Vegas before the team opened a two-game weekend set against Colorado. "Every indication is that it will be 15 days. We'll see how he is after that."

The All-Star right fielder didn't accompany the team to Las Vegas, instead staying in Arizona and having a light workout at their spring training complex in Peoria on Friday. Seattle opens the season Monday at Minnesota.

"It was a very difficult decision to place Ichiro on the disabled list, especially since we know what a fierce competitor he is and how important it is to him to help the team," Mariners general manager Jack Zduriencik said. "However, we determined it was in both his best interest, and the best interest of the club, to place him on the DL at this time."

METS AGREE TO DEAL WITH SHEFFIELD, 1 HR SHY OF 500

NEW YORK — Gary Sheffield plans to go for No.

500 with the New York Mets.

One home run shy of the milestone, Sheffield reached a contract agreement with New York on Friday, three days after he was released by the Detroit Tigers in a surprising move.

Just hours before opening their beaming new ballpark Friday night with an exhibition game against Boston, the Mets made another splash by acquiring the outspoken Sheffield. He is expected to be in New York on Saturday and the deal is contingent on him passing a physical, general manager Omar Minaya said.

Driver Kurt Busch makes his way through the garage area after qualifying for the NASCAR Food City 500 auto race in Bristol, Tenn. Friday.

Kurt Busch, Penske move past testy talk in Texas

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — The exchange on the radio between frustrated Kurt Busch and car owner Roger Penske was far from cordial.

While neither resorted to yelling, their back-and-forth made it clear neither was too pleased with the other at that moment. But that was last week, during another long day on a short track.

"Roger and I are definitely on the same page, and I have the utmost respect for him," Busch said Friday. "In the heat of battle, sometimes things are said that aren't exactly the right thing to say. ... That's behind us."

As are Bristol and Martinsville, for now.

After consecutive races on the tight half-miles, where Busch said the team will have to improve to compete for a series title, NASCAR's Sprint Cup series moves this weekend to the 1½-mile, high-banked Texas Motor Speedway. It is one of the fastest tracks on the circuit and similar to Atlanta, where Busch won three races ago.

"I feel like our mile-and-a-half program is definitely where we want it," Busch said.

But he obviously didn't have the same feeling last week in Martinsville, where he finished 18th after starting on the front row beside polesitter Jeff Gordon.

Coming off pit row after a stop, Busch bluntly told his crew on the radio that a "stupid adjustment" had been made and that there was no way to compete for the victory. Penske responded by telling him to do his best and that he would be fine. But that only led to a testy exchange between driver and owner.

"It's the most frustrating thing in the world to think that you think that we're better than we are," Busch said.

"If you don't blow yourself up, we'd be a lot better,"

Reutimann on pole in Texas, Gordon 2nd

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — David Reutimann has taken Michael Waltrip Racing from a mangled mess at Texas to the front of the field.

Reutimann earned the pole for the NASCAR Sprint Cup race at the 1½-mile, high-banked Texas Motor Speedway with a lap of 190.517 mph on Friday.

"I guess that puts an exclamation mark on just how things have changed," said Reutimann, driving the No. 00 Toyota owned by Waltrip.

A year ago, the No. 00 was driven in Texas qualifying by Cup rookie Michael McDowell, who escaped unscathed from a horrific, tumbling crash when he slammed into the wall and rolled at least eight times before coming to a rest at the bottom of the track.

Two years ago, the first for Waltrip's team, Reutimann didn't get a chance to race at Texas after qualifying was canceled because of severe weather. The team didn't have enough points to get into the field.

Reutimann, 11th in season points, won his only other pole in last season's finale at Homestead. Waltrip will start 34th Sunday in the Samsung 500.

Carl Edwards, who won both Texas races last year to become the track's first three-time winner, qualified 13th.

Season points leader Jeff Gordon will start his Chevrolet on the outside of front row after a qualifying lap of 190.194 mph on a windy day. Texas is one of two active tracks where the four-time Cup champion with 81 race victories has never won. Matt Kenseth will start third, followed by David Ragan, Paul Menard and Kasey Kahne.

Penske said, referring to the driver's mental approach and not the car. "So let's get serious here, OK? You understand?"

Busch's response: "10-4, dude. 10-4."

Braving rain, fans enjoy NY parks

NEW YORK (AP) — The fields were sloppy, the view was sweet.

Eager New York fans turned out on a damp Friday night to watch the Yankees and Mets test their plush and pricey new ballparks in exhibition games, a double debut in a city that hasn't had a new Major League Baseball stadium in 45 years.

The faithful were awed. Given what these places cost, maybe they ought to be.

"When I pass, I want my ashes to be buried here. That's how beautiful it is," John Zozzaro of Glen Cove said as he admired $800 million Citi Field in Queens, where fans lavished praise on everything from the brilliant green of the outfield to the cup holders in front of the seats.

Across town, Frank Sinatra songs played as fans took in the new Yankee Stadium, bedecked with old Yankees memorabilia and pictures of team titans such as Babe Ruth. At $1.5 billion, it is the costliest baseball stadium ever built.

"It looks great. I think the word is 'majestic.' It's awesome," said 39-year-old Mike Generose. He and his wife, Lori, 24, had driven to the game from their home in Allentown, Pa.

The Mets' first pitch came first, delivered by Livan Hernandez and taken for a ball by Boston's Jacoby Ellsbury. An hour later, Hall of Famer Reggie Jackson threw out the ceremonial first pitch at Yankee Stadium before a boisterous crowd.

The festive atmosphere lasted right to the end as both teams came away with victories. The Mets beat the Red Sox 4-3, with new closer Francisco Rodriguez getting the save. The Yankees hit three homers, including a three-run shot by Cody Ransom, Alex Rodriguez's injury replacement, and beat the Cubs 7-4.

Conditions weren't perfect for players or fans. It rained on and off throughout the day, and showers swept through the area in the evening, hitting both ballparks. The Mets game was delayed in the sixth inning.

Fans at both ballparks retreated from their seats to the warmth of the many restaurants and clubs at each spot.

But even before Derek Jeter started the Yankees' first inning with a double, the Hard Rock Cafe was jammed. Other fans were slow to get to their seats as the games started, taking time to wander through the concourses, snap photos and assess the buildings with a mix of excitement and nostalgia.

As a longtime Yankees fan who saw more than 200 games at the old House that Ruth Built, Mike Generose acknowledged feeling a bit sentimental about the Yankees' old park, still standing alongside the new venue.

"A little bit of your heart stays across the street," he said. "But I guess if you have to move, this is a good place to move into."

The Bronx stadium felt and sounded every bit like its urban setting, with elevated subway trains rumbling by within sight behind the outfield.

John Panzico lauded the ballpark's openness as he squeezed the new, cushioned seats.

"I grew up in the old stadium. I brought my children there," said the 62-year-old Panzico, who was raised on Staten Island and now lives in upstate Monroe. "I hope I'll be starting a new tradition at this stadium with my grandchildren."

Continued from Sports 1 situation like that ... you have to find a way."

Gabe Weidenaar notched a complete-game win for Southern Nevada (26-12, 18-4) in Game 1, his sixth victory of the season. He worked around two errors and a pair of unearned runs to pick up the win.

In Game 2, Kenny McDowell picked up the win in relief of Egan Smith, as CSI left 11 runners on base to let the Coyotes off the hook for their woeful seven-error effort in the field.

Lionel Morrill drove in three of the five Golden Eagle runs, continuing his improvement over the first half of the year. But he too was left at a loss to explain the team's inability to maintain any kind of momentum over the two games.

"I just stopped thinking too much and started

The two teams will be back at it this afternoon for a doubleheader that CSI essentially must sweep to harbor any lingering hopes of earning a first-round bye in the Region 18 Tournament as one of the top two seeds.

To get that sweep, the Golden Eagles are going to have to get over Friday's disappointment quickly.

"The best thing for us is to just forget about it," Morrill said. "We can't have it eating at us ... and (today) is going to be even harder."

Continued from Sports 1 bleeding and allowed just two runs through 5 1-3 innings. The Badgers tallied eight hits against the reliever, but the CSI fielders made the plays to strand more than a dozen Snow base runners throughout the game. Dimond, who earned her third win, said that adjusting her pitches to the inside corner was difficult but that it was crucial to stopping the Badgers upon entering a tough situation.

"I knew that I had to get the job done," Dimond said. "I've been in those situations before. I wasn't thinking about the situation itself, I was just focusing on how to make my pitches work, especially on the inside because the wind was working against it."

At the plate, the Eagles rallied for 15 runs, this time with the wind working for them.

McKensy Hillstead hit 2-for-4 with five RBIs, and four of those were scored on a fifth-inning grand slam. Olander also hit 2-for-4 with three RBIs. She and catcher Megan Zimmerman also homered.

"We had a couple of wind-blown balls that got out of the yard," Baumert said. "I felt comfortable with our approach at the plate."

CSI continued hitting well

through Game 2 for a five-inning run-rule victory. Cassi Merrill batted 2-for-4 with three RBIs, Brittany Gonzales went 2-for-3 with three RBIs and Jaelle Judkins hit 2-for-3 with a pair of runs batted in. Hillstead picked up the win from the circle, allowing one unearned run but striking out eight in her complete game.

"It was what we needed," Baumert said. "With (Generra Nielson) not being able to go today, we needed a good outing."

Osgood family collected history for seven generations

By Coreen Hart
Times-News correspondent

RUPERT — Ray Stockton lost a good friend and gained a big job in 2004.

When his good friend Sam Osgood Jr. passed away at 86, he had no nearby family. Stockton was named administrator of Osgood's estate and soon discovered a heap of historical items too good to sell or discard.

"It took us two years to get it ready to auction off," Stockton said. "The further I got into it, the more interesting stuff I found. I had mixed emotions about this, but he had one of the biggest artifact collections around."

Stockton has organized a number of the artifacts in a massive display cabinet he restored that now stands in the Minidoka County Historical Society Museum. While he was organizing the trove of ancient treasures, he found a Times-News article that showed Osgood with an ornate pocket watch on display at the College of Southern Idaho's Herrett Center.

"I got thinking, there is a lot of history here that should be kept here instead of auctioning it off to individuals."

Stockton found that Osgood's family had collected the items for generations, well before he met Osgood in 1970 in Osgood's family-run Texaco station and gem shop in Rupert. Stockton said Osgood never married and "didn't talk too much. He was a quiet kind of guy." Still, the two quickly became friends.

Diving deeper into Osgood's treasures, Stockton found paperwork that verified that the ornate watch once belonged to one of Osgood's ancestors. Samuel Osgood, who lived from 1747 to 1813, served as postmaster general

Ray Stockton has spent more than two years assembling this display at the Minidoka County Historical Society Museum. He inherited the items from his friend, Sam Osgood Jr., and organized them for the display.

TREASURE HUNT THE RIGHT WAY

Bureau of Land Management archaeologist Suzanne Hendrickson reminds would-be treasure hunters that removing artifacts from public land is punishable by a misdemeanor or felony crime. She said BLM is interested in archaeological sites on public land and encourages those who find artifacts to mark the sight, preferably with the use of a GPS device, and notify the BLM, which will examine the site and any found artifacts.

for the United States from 1789-91, Stockton said.

"The watch was presented to (him) by Benjamin Franklin, who was a good friend of Sam Osgood and the first postmaster general of the Continental Congress, as a token of appreciation," Stockton said. "George Washington appointed Sam Osgood to the post."

The watch is now prominently displayed in the museum. Only feet away, artifacts from an ancient buffalo rib used for scraping hides to arrowheads from throughout the West are displayed near bright wall hangings.

Prehistoric bison bones found at the Acequia gravel pits and throughout Idaho are prominently displayed. The display has drawn area archaeologists, including the Bureau of Land Management's Suzanne Hendrickson.

"People need to come out and see the expanse of it," Stockton said. "It's really interesting."

Anne Schenk, museum curator and secretary, agrees.

"There is so much information here," she said. "We have been contemplating this display since '04."

The museum is located at 99 E. Baseline Road, one mile east of Rupert. For more information, visit <http://www.minidoka.id.us/historical-society/> or call 208-436-0336.

Christian controversy

As LDS faithful gather, some question Mormon claim to Christianity

By Andrew Weeks
Times-News writer

Twin Falls resident Lindsay McMurtry considers himself a good Christian. He believes in God, prayer, the Bible and in serving his fellow man. He believes that "there is none other name (than Jesus Christ) ... whereby we must be saved." (Acts 4:12.)

That's why he's baffled when he hears others say his beliefs are not Christian.

McMurtry has heard the controversy time and again since he joined The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints more than 30 years ago. Sometimes the claims by others that Mormons are not Christian have made him angry; other times they've made him laugh.

Photos by ERIN MATHSON/For the Times-News

Lindsay McMurtry discusses the scriptures Thursday with his family in their Twin Falls home. McMurtry, who joined the Mormon Church at age 16, considers himself a good Christian. He joined the church after he felt God had answered his prayer, he says.

The controversy on whether Mormons are Christian came to a fever pitch in the Magic Valley last summer when the LDS Church opened its Twin Falls temple for public tours. Church officials say a number of people turned favorable toward Mormonism, while others say it opened their eyes to the further workings of a cult.

As LDS leaders gather for their annual conference this weekend — about 42,000 Latter-days Saints live in south-central Idaho — the question remains: Are Mormons Christian?

For McMurtry there is no controversy. He's already made his peace with God, and says he's never doubted the doctrinal stance of the Mormon Church.

That witness was given to him in answer to prayer, he said.

McMurtry, 50, joined the Mormon Church at age 16 in Hatfield, Mass., after having met for a time with church missionaries. They encouraged him to read and pray about the Book of Mormon, but he found that difficult to do.

"I didn't like to read anything at all back then," he said.

The missionaries told him if he wanted to know for himself if Mormonism was right that he'd have to put in the effort to find out. If he found that the Book of Mormon was true, the missionaries told him, he'd know that the church's other religious claims were also true. Finally, he began a serious perusal of the book, but still had never taken it to God in prayer.

That all changed one afternoon.

The answer that came to him as he prayed struck him like lightning.

"I remember a very strong, warm feeling that came over me," he said. "I thought, 'Who turned on the heater?' I opened my eyes, thinking I was sitting over a vent, but I wasn't. I remember thinking holy cow, holy cow, holy cow.

"I've said prayers all my life, but I never thought He might know me well enough to answer a prayer like that. I was filled with that warmth that comes from having felt like my Father in Heaven was reaching out to me. I was filled with peace and very happy."

Thereafter, McMurtry joined the church and has never wavered in his faith.

"It doesn't mean I know everything. Sometimes I've had questions," he said. "But I've never doubted."

...

Some members of other churches doubt very much that there's anything divine to the Mormon experience.

Evangelicals are apt to point out that feelings don't matter much, that they can be deceiving. One publication about witnessing to Mormons says, "Warn the Mormon about trusting in feelings ... for a validation of Mormonism's truth claim. Without historical, objective verification, feelings are useless."

McMurtry wonders how members of other faiths reconcile that assumption when they talk about having a "born-again" experience, which is based on deep feelings of change, but say warm feelings in prayer cannot be taken seriously when it comes to the Mormon question.

Traditional Christians believe in a trinity, that all humankind is saved through the grace of Jesus Christ with no effort on their part, and that the Bible is the complete and infallible word of God. While Mormons share similar beliefs, there are differences.

Mormons believe in a three-being "godhead," not the triune doctrine that says God, Jesus and the Holy Spirit are one and the same, says Terry McCurdy, area spokesman for the LDS Church.

Though Mormons believe it is through the grace of Christ that one might be saved, they also believe persons will be judged by their works. And besides believing the Bible — "as far as it is translated correctly," according to a church article of faith — Mormons also believe in three other books as scripture.

These differences often upset traditional Christians.

Furthermore, Mormons believe original Christianity suffered from an apostasy after Jesus' apostles died. Various churches evolved, each interpreting the scriptures to their own liking, but in none of them were found the complete gospel as Christ had taught, Mormons say. And, they say, the Bible was tampered with by careless translators.

Buhl's community kitchen relocates, serves same need

By Blair Koch
Times-News correspondent

BUHL — Tom Worley knew he would get a hot meal and enjoy conversation with other diners at the Community Kitchen.

What he didn't expect was being served.

For more than four years Worley had frequented the free weekly meal, which up until Wednesday was served at the Immaculate Conception Catholic Church.

"This is very nice," Worley said of the facilities at Buhl's Calvary Chapel. "I like the atmosphere; it's different. The meal was always good at the Catholic church, but it reminded me of the military — you went up and got your food. We were never served like this."

Calvary member Cody McKinney, 14, said it felt good to work on behalf of Christ. McKinney was one of about 15 volunteers who helped with the church's first meal.

"Working helps me feel like I'm helping Him, doing His deeds," McKinney said.

Pastor Steve Matheson said the church didn't know how many diners to expect to its first Bread of Life Community Kitchen meal. The Catholic church had been feeding a solid 50 people a week, but Matheson said he expects that number to increase.

"I think the numbers went down a bit over the last couple of weeks, because people thought the meals would just stop," he said. "We figured around 30 people tonight and we'll grow from there."

Matheson's spirit had been stirring over getting involved with the Community Kitchen for quite some time.

"It really is an amazing story," he said. "When I called to say we were interested in helping out, the lady on the phone started crying and said, 'We've been praying that someone would be taking it over.' Their last day was March 25."

With pledged support from the congregation a seamless transition meant no missed meals for community members needing one.

In addition to time and food donations from within the church, Matheson said the Idaho Food Bank and South Central Community Action are also providing foodstuffs. Donations are also being sought.

"You don't have to be a church member to come ... we'll take as many people in need that come," said Calvary member Herb Caudill.

Chicago cardinal: Obama Notre Dame invite an 'embarrassment'

CHICAGO — The head of the Roman Catholic church in Chicago says the University of Notre Dame's commencement speech invitation to President Obama is an "extreme embarrassment."

Cardinal Francis George urged Catholics at a weekend conference to call, e-mail and write letters expressing their outrage. Video of the message was posted Wednesday on lifesitenews.com.

However, George says the South Bend, Ind., school shouldn't rescind Obama's May 17 invitation. He says the office of the president deserves "some respect."

Notre Dame has a tradition of inviting new presidents to speak at graduation. But many Catholics are angry because of Obama's support for abortion rights and embryonic stem cell research.

Former VP Al Gore meets with Mormons

SALT LAKE CITY — Officials say former Vice President Al Gore has met with Mormon church President Thomas S. Monson to discuss concerns over carbon dioxide emissions.

In a statement, the church says Gore met with Monson and other senior leaders of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints on Thursday. He gave a 30-minute presentation about CO2 emissions, which was followed by several minutes of questions and answers.

Gore, who served as vice president for eight years, is now the chairman of a firm focused on sustainable investing and a co-founder of an independent cable and television network that uses viewer-created content.

An environmental advocate, Gore is also the author of "An Inconvenient Truth," a best-selling book about global warming. The documentary film of the same name won two Academy Awards in 2007. He shared the 2007 Nobel Peace Prize for his efforts to combat global warming.

Archbishop visits mosque as part of outreach effort

DEARBORN, Mich. — The new Roman Catholic archbishop of Detroit has visited one of the nation's largest mosques, part of a continuing outreach to Muslims and other faith groups.

Archbishop Allen Vigneron met with Muslim leaders at the Islamic Center of America in Dearborn, which boasts a large Muslim population.

"So many of us here today are bound by the word of God, and we look to Abraham as one of our fathers in faith," Vigneron said. "I am almost overwhelmed by your words of welcome and warmth."

Vigneron's trip to the mosque is at least the third by an Archbishop of Detroit. Cardinal Adam Maida, who has since retired, visited in a show of goodwill after the terrorist attacks of Sept. 11, 2001.

Vigneron, formerly bishop of the Diocese of Oakland, became leader of 1.4 million southeastern Michigan Catholics in January.

Imam Sayid Hassan al-Qazwini, the head of the Islamic Center of America, called Dearborn "the Muslim capital of the West" in his welcoming remarks to the archbishop.

"God says in the Quran, 'You will certainly find the nearest in friendship to those who say they are Christian,'" he said. "Jesus and Muhammad are none other than but two channels to God. Let us open our houses of worship to each other."

Scandal-scarred megachurch pastor dies of cancer

ATLANTA — A former megachurch leader who rose to fame with a progressive evangelical ministry only to have it crumble after a series of sex scandals will be honored in the church he helped build in suburban Atlanta.

Archbishop Earl Paulk of the Cathedral of the Holy Spirit at Chapel Hill Harvester Church died March 29, after a battle with cancer. He was 81.

For years the church was at the forefront of many social movements — admitting black members in the 1960s, ordaining women and opening its doors to gays. But Paulk was dogged for decades by scandal.

The most shocking came in October 2007 when a court-ordered paternity test showed he was the biological father of his brother's son, D.E. Paulk, who had become head pastor of the church the previous year.

Earl Paulk had sworn in an affidavit he'd never had sex with anyone but his wife, which led to him pleading guilty to a felony charge of lying under oath.

Mormons point to Paul's words that a "falling away" (2 Thes. 2:3) would occur and Peter's prediction that a "restitution" (Acts 3:21) would happen at a then-future day. Mormons believe that in the 1830s the charismatic church founder Joseph Smith was God's instrument in bringing back the complete gospel, including additional scripture that complements the Bible.

While friendly with other churches, Mormons — also known as Latter-day Saints or LDS — believe theirs is the true church of God. Other churches may be sincere and teach certain gospel truths, they say, but do not have the fullness of truth found in Mormon theology.

That's a handful, enough to make some traditional Christians bark. They say it is the Mormons who are wrong. Christ's gospel never fell into apostasy, they say, and we still have the Bible.

Mormons are good people but that doesn't mean they're going to heaven, Mark Sjostrom, pastor of Grace Baptist Church in Twin Falls, said. Their salvation is at peril, because their beliefs do not align with traditional biblical beliefs, he said.

"There are at least four ways that they are wrong," Sjostrom said. "Their Bible is different, their God is different, their Jesus is different, and their gospel is different."

Sjostrom refers, in part, to the Doctrine and Covenants — one of Mormonism's four books of scripture — that says God has a "body of flesh and bones as tangible as man's" (130:22.)

"But the Bible tells us that God is spirit," he said. "So somebody's wrong."

Christian quoted John L. Smith, Southern Baptist founder of Utah Mission, more than a decade ago as saying something similar: "Mormonism is either totally true or totally false. If it's true, every other religion in America is false."

Greg Fadness, pastor of Lighthouse Christian Fellowship in Twin Falls, said it's absurd to think that Mormonism is right. "That's like saying two plus two equals five," he said.

But are they Christian?

Yes, according to a slight majority of the public, if you believe a poll conducted by the Pew Forum on Religion and Public Life. About 52 percent acknowledge Mormonism as a Christian religion, according to the 2007 poll, while 31 percent consider it a non-Christian religion.

"Of course we're Christian," McCurdy said. "First of all, our church's name indicates we believe in Christ. He is very near and dear to us, and we believe it is through him that we are saved. ... But what is the definition of a Christian? Our belief is that it is a person who professes a belief in Jesus Christ and then follows his teachings and his life. But not everyone accepts that definition, and we know that."

Still, others believe that Mormons worship "a different Jesus."

"I view those who identify themselves with the Christian faith as being in a broad spectrum," Phil Airhart, pastor of First United Methodist in Twin Falls, said. He said it is a "slippery slope" when people start judging who is Christian and who is not, something he doesn't feel right about doing.

McCurdy doesn't think there is a Mormon/Christian conflict as much as believing it's a matter of interpretation.

Fadness said sole belief in Jesus doesn't make one a Christian. "A Christian may not necessarily be a member of a church; it is someone who has an eternal relationship with God through Christ," he said. "Not everybody in our church is a Christian, because they have not developed that relationship."

Though he does not believe the Mormon Church is Christian, he believes that individual members might be.

"Can a Mormon be a Christian? Is it possible for someone to belong to the LDS Church and have a relationship with God? The answer to that, I believe, is yes," Fadness said. "God loves the world. I know that. He loves Mormons, he loves Muslims, he loves Hindus, he loves Buddhists. And God wants people, no matter what religion they belong to, to come into a relationship with him."

Fadness said he loves the Mormon people and respects them for their high family and moral values. His and other Christians' difference with them lie in doctrine.

He said there are members of his church who once belonged to the Mormon Church, but, trusting solely in the Bible, left the Utah-based church to pursue green pastures with Lighthouse.

But that, too, goes both ways.

McMurtry left the Presbyterian faith after he felt he received an answer to his prayer to join the Mormons.

Interpretation aside, McCurdy finds it odd when people devoted to their own faith tell him that what he's experienced and feels is wrong.

"Having that thrown in my face strikes me as funny," he said. "I feel that the best way to confront that is by turning the other cheek, to show my Christian beliefs while they're denying that I have such beliefs."

Even so, he said he has no animosity for those who believe contrary to his views. That's what helps to make the world go 'round. He tries to respect others' beliefs and only hopes they will respect his whether they agree with him or not.

Churches hold Passover programs

Two churches host Christ in the Passover presentations. What do the Jewish Passover and Jesus' Last Supper have in common?

Eric Bennett, speaking on behalf of Jews for Jesus, will answer that question in a presentation called "Christ in the Passover" at two locations this week.

The program will be presented at 6 p.m. Sunday at the Eastside Baptist Church, 204 Eastland Drive N., and 7 p.m. Friday at the First Baptist Church, 910 Shoshone St. E., both in Twin Falls.

Using a visual display of traditional Passover accoutrements, the presentation will enhance understanding and appreciation of the Jewish background of the Christian Communion. Ancient and modern Jewish customs are discussed and described with an emphasis on the aspect of redemption, which Christ accomplished at Calvary.

A table is set with the traditional Jewish Passover items, including representative foods, which are explained, but not eaten. The ceremonial Seder plate, the three-compartment pouch in which the matzo (unleavened bread) is kept, as well as the traditional cup of Elijah are presented, and new insights to their Christological significance are provided.

This demonstration was originally written by Moishe Rosen, founder and former executive director of Jews for Jesus. It was abstracted from writings of the late Rabbi Leopold Cohn. Rosen says some of the most important elements of Christian doctrine, such as the Trinity, the principle of substitutionary atonement and salvation through a personal relationship with the Messiah, are implied in the Seder (Passover feast) as observed by Orthodox Jews.

Rosen says "Our message is not new, but we're telling it in a new way. For too long the Jewish roots of Christianity have been forgotten." In keeping with the Jewish context of Christianity, he and his wife have co-authored a book titled "Christ in the Passover," which focuses on Passover to demonstrate the continuity of the Old and New Testament scriptures.

Those attending the programs will have an opportunity to examine literature and materials from Jews for Jesus. Bennett will be available for questions.

Soledad Michel

RUPERT — Soledad Michel, 75, of Rupert, passed away Thursday, April 2, 2009, at her home.

Soledad was born Feb. 11, 1934, in Durango, Mexico, (Santa Maria Del Oro) to Casimiro Michel and Alvina Herrera M. She lived in Albuquerque, N.M., for 40 years and has resided in Rupert for the past 13 years. She was a loving sister for the Jehovah Witnesses and studied the word of the Lord. She provided for her three children by being a live-in caregiver for other families. She saved and longed for a better life for her three children. She enjoyed walking to pay bills and preaching.

Soledad is survived by her children, Maria Marta Mota, Felipe Mota and Jose Eleazar Mota; grandchildren, Efren, Theodoro, Luis, D'onica, Felipe, Victor, Casimiro, Daniel, Samantha, Crystal and Juan Carlos; great-grandchildren, Efren Jr., Theodore Jr., Mia, Mariah, Martin Jr., Marely Guadalupe, Eleazar, Carlitos and Mia; great-grandchildren, Casimiro Michel and Alvina Herrera; brothers, Heriberto Michel, Felipe Michel, Carlos Michel and Fransico Michel; sisters, Rosa Maria Soto, Soledad Michel and Naty Pazarro; and the Jehovah Witnesses and all the loving congregation. She was preceded in death by Alvina Herrera.

The family would like to thank brothers and sister who traveled from far away and her brothers and sisters who cared for her from the congregation.

The funeral will be held at 2 p.m. Saturday, April 4, with a gathering for family and friends one hour prior to the service at the Hansen Mortuary Rupert Chapel, 710 Sixth St., and 11 a.m. Monday, April 6, followed by the burial at the Rupert Cemetery.

Alton Ezra Hansen

Alton Ezra Hansen, 90, of Twin Falls, died Thursday, April 2, 2009, at the Twin Falls Care Center with family by his side.

Alton was born July 25, 1918, in Chesterfield, with his twin sister, Afton Elizabeth, to Andrew Ezra Hansen and Emma Jane Grant Hansen. He always boasted about being the older of the twins. When they were 8 years old, the family moved to the Hazelton (Greenwood) area. He attended school in Greenwood and Hazelton, where he played basketball. His senior year, he was high point man of the district tournament. He graduated from Hazelton High School in 1936. He attended Idaho State University for one semester. He played one minute of basketball for Idaho State before injuring an ankle. He worked as a shepherd before he was married.

He married Bessie Wickham on June 5, 1939. He farmed for Art Baisch and Mike Fillmore. He farmed land down by the Hazelton Cemetery, where he used to rest the horses and go read the headstones. They had three children, Larry, Connie and Curtis. Later, he farmed the Les Saunders place, the Humphrey place on Valley Road and the Baisch place south of Hazelton. Alton ran the Mobil Station (now Valley Service) for one year. He farmed many years for Bill Morgan and, in 1965, Alton and Bessie moved to Burley and continued farming for Bill Morgan.

Alton and Bessie attended all the football and basketball games at Valley High School while their children were in school and for many years after they graduated. You always knew Alton was in the crowd because you could hear him yelling at the referees. Several times he was asked to leave, but he never did. Bessie would dig her fingernails into Alton's leg to try and keep him quiet, but he always said he'd paid his ticket, he could yell if he wanted. They again began attending ball games at Valley when their grandchildren started playing.

Alton took his family on many, many camping, hunting and fishing trips. Many times, Alton hardly got his pole in the water because he was constantly untangling lines, replacing hooks, baiting hooks or teaching his kids and grandkids how to clean a fish. Alton retired from farming in 1985 and moved back to Hazelton. In 2000, he moved to Twin Falls but continued to attend farm sales all over the Magic Valley.

Alton was preceded in death by his wife, Bessie; son, Curtis; two brothers, Ray Hansen and John Hansen; three sisters, Fern Hansen, Vincey Hansen and twin, Afton Dopson Schofield. He is survived by son, Larry (Dorothea) Hansen of Idaho Falls; and daughter, Connie (Dennis) Hardy of Twin Falls; two sisters, Elnora Chadwick of Moses Lake, Wash., and LuDene Green of Pasco, Wash.; also close friends, Betty and Leon Bailey of Paul and their families. Alton had nine grandchildren, 28 great-grandchildren and one great-great-granddaughter.

A graveside service will be held at 1:30 p.m. Saturday, April 4, at the Hazelton Cemetery. There will be no public viewing. Arrangements are under the direction of White Mortuary "Chapel by the Park."

'Crossfire' creator Tom Braden dies at age 92

WASHINGTON (AP) — Tom Wardell Braden, who once worked for the CIA and helped launch CNN's political debate show "Crossfire," has died, his family said. He was 92. Braden also was known for writing "Eight is Enough," a 1975 book about his eight children that inspired a TV show.

Braden died Friday from natural causes at his home in Denver, according to his daughter, Susan Braden of Takoma Park, Md.

Braden's 1975 book about life with his eight children inspired the namesake TV show "Eight is Enough" that ran on ABC from 1977 to 1981. Susan Braden said her father captured the humor of his bustling household.

"He had a gift for writing about kids. He could relate to them and write about them in a way that I really haven't seen anybody else do," Braden said. "He had that gift to write about everyday life that we all know, but we can't really write about like he could."

Braden was born on Feb. 22, 1917, in Greene, Iowa. He moved to New York City during the Great Depression and worked for a printer. He later graduated from Dartmouth College in New Hampshire, which accepted him even though he didn't have a high school diploma, his daughter said.

During World War II, Braden served with the British and U.S. armies. He then joined the CIA in 1950 and worked to promote American arts in Europe to counter communism.

Braden left the CIA in 1954 and bought a newspaper in Oceanside, Calif., which he ran for the next decade. His newspaper columns about his family later culminated in his book.

He returned to Washington in the late 1960s and helped create a local radio and TV show called "Confrontation." Then in 1982, he took the same idea of partisan sparring and created "Crossfire" with Pat Buchanan.

No charges in Spokane garage death

By Nicholas K. Geranios
Associated Press writer

SPOKANE, Wash. — No criminal charges will be filed in the case of a Pullman woman whose car plunged off the fifth floor of a downtown Spokane parking garage in 2006, Spokane County Prosecutor Steve Tucker said Friday.

Tucker said his office and the state Attorney General's office both reviewed files forwarded by federal prosecutors in the death of Jo Ellen Savage, and both decided that criminal charges of manslaughter were not warranted.

Savage died April 8, 2006, when her car hit a concrete barrier on the fifth floor of the River Park Square parking garage. The barrier gave way, and her car plunged onto an entry ramp below.

"It will be difficult to establish beyond a reasonable doubt that Jo Ellen Savage's death was caused by either the criminal recklessness or criminal negligence of the parking facility owners or operators," the attorney general's office said in its report to Tucker.

Critics immediately denounced the decision, especially the fact that the attorney general's office simply reviewed existing documents and did not do its own investigation of the death.

"How can you make a decision if you don't investigate it?" said Tony Bamonte, a former sheriff of Pend Oreille County, calling for Tucker's recall.

Critics of the deal that financed the mall have been pushing hard for criminal charges to be brought against the mall developers, the prominent Cowles family in Spokane, on grounds they knew the garage had construction flaws. Cowles Co. also owns The Spokesman-

Review newspaper and many other businesses in the region.

Savage's family has already received a settlement from Cowles Co.'s insurers for more than $1 million.

"This is further substantiation of what we always asserted, that the garage was both built and maintained in accordance with applicable building standards," said Duane Swinton, an attorney representing Cowles Co.

Bamonte and other critics called the decision another in a long string of coverups related to the financing of the mall.

He accused the attorney general's office of ignoring information and interview subjects offered by the mall critics and the Cowles family's influence dissuades local officials from challenging them.

Swinton denied that Cowles Co. officials tried to sway Tucker's decision.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE® Bobby Wolff

"A worker may be the hammer's master, but the hammer still prevails. A tool knows exactly how it is meant to be handled, while the user of the tool can only have an approximate idea."
 — Milan Kundera

One of my colleagues at world championships for many years, the distinguished New Zealand player and administrator John Wignall found this nice play in four hearts.

Before you look at the play, consider what material you wish to use for your 10th trick. A squeeze seems unlikely, so how will you utilize those club spots to produce an extra trick?

The defenders started normally enough by leading a top diamond rather than a spade. Declarer won in hand, drew trumps, and now exited with a spade to East.

A club shift would have been immediately fatal, so East could do nothing but play off two more top spades. When West discarded, that marked him as having been dealt a 2-1-6-4 shape.

Now all Wignall needed was for West to hold the club ace. He ruffed the third spade and led out his penultimate trump, dummy still having three diamonds and three clubs. What five cards was West to keep? If he kept two diamonds and three clubs, declarer would pitch a club from the board. Then he would ruff out the diamonds and use the club queen to enter dummy and cash North's winner. By contrast, if West pitched a club, then declarer would lead to the club queen and duck a club on the way back. West's ace would fall on empty air.

Either way, declarer was home, for a game swing to his side when the line was missed in the other room.

ANSWER: Partner has shown clubs and spades and a good hand — and no interest in defending facing heart length or he would have doubled. You have useful cards for partner in each of his suits so should bid, not pass; and since your partner's clubs should be longer than his spades, you should bid three clubs now.

Troubled youngster bothered by the lack of trust in parents

DEAR ABBY: I am an 11-year-old with a serious problem. I don't trust my parents. I doubt I ever will. I just can't tell them things. I end up praying to my dead grandpa — that's OK, but he doesn't give me any answers.

I trust my sister more than I could ever trust Mom or Dad. It feels wrong sometimes. I don't like to be around people. I have no way of knowing whether I can trust them. There is part of my life that only my sister knows about.

I feel bad about not trusting my parents. Is there any solution to this problem? Should I talk to them about it?

— NO TRUST
 IN PLANO, TEXAS

DEAR NO TRUST: I am concerned for you, and I hope you will take what I say seriously. Your parents brought you into this world and are there to protect you. Confiding in your sister is a good thing, but if you are in trouble — and I suspect you may be — she may not be experienced enough to give you the guidance you need.

If you want things to get better, it is very important that you tell your parents or some other adult who is close to you — a relative or school counselor — what has caused you to lose trust in people. That in itself will be a giant first step in solving your problem because you need more help than you can get in a letter.

DEAR ABBY
 Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: I was recently given a gift that I have reason to believe was made from stolen materials, on company premises, using stolen time. The item is of a religious nature, although the business itself is in the field of manufacturing.

The person who gave me the gift is aware that I value integrity and honesty above all things. I wonder if he is trying to challenge my principles.

At any rate, I'm at a loss as to what to do with the gift. I do not feel comfortable keeping it, but for reasons of family harmony cannot return it. Any suggestions?

— ROLE MODEL
 IN PENNSYLVANIA

DEAR ROLE MODEL: In a non-confrontational way, ask the person who gave you the gift how it was made or acquired. Then, if you feel you have accepted stolen property, return it to the giver and explain why. By doing so you will demonstrate that you don't give in to temptation when presented with an ethical challenge, and it may be an important lesson to someone who may need to hear it.

DEAR ABBY: My older brother moved from the East Coast to Wyoming 20 years ago, which put him in a different time zone — two hours behind me. He died in June of last year.

I am planning to get a tattoo memorializing the date and time of my brother's passing, but have reached a dilemma. My brother died June 12 at 11 p.m. in Wyoming, but it was 1 a.m. June 13 here in Connecticut.

Which date should I use? I have asked friends who say I should go with what feels right to me, but others have told me to use the date on his death certificate. Which is correct?

— DAY LATE
 AND TWO HOURS SHORT

DEAR DAY LATE: The date on your brother's death certificate. However, tattoos are very personal, and if you choose to use the time and date in Connecticut of his passing, no one should criticize you for it.

IF APRIL 4 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: For the next eight weeks you would be wise to sit on your hands and avoid meddling in anything that could possibly alter the major structures of your life. This might mean keeping the credit card in your pocket or postponing a vacation. People are more apt to criticize your actions, too, so it is wise to get to work on time and stay late. The tide turns by the very end of May, however, and that is when a fortuitous solution to your problems could appear, an opportunity might knock on your door, and you can set plans into motion that will greatly improve your future. Avoid controversy and take no chances during August. For career and business pursuits, your best month for launching successful initiatives is January.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): There are no boundaries to your inspirations. It is an ideal time to plan out your goals, objectives and dreams. Don't start a new project or be afraid to take constructive criticism from the peanut gallery.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You aren't born with respect; you must earn it. You may find yourself the subject of conversations, but the outcome will be favorable. You can be the go-between who brings two people together for idealistic purposes.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You aren't born with respect; you must earn it. You may find yourself the subject of conversations, but the outcome will be favorable. You can be the go-between who brings two people together for idealistic purposes.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): The gang has made you the leader of the pack. Your obvious trust and sincerity will attract the same treatment from those outside your inner circle. It is a poor time to make major purchases so put the money in the vault.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Manage your time wisely. Creative interests could monopolize your time and cause you to neglect other responsibilities. A misunderstanding could cause an unexpected reaction leading to a small crisis.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): As a wide man once said, "Keep your friends close, but keep your enemies closer." Stall or delay when you are faced with the task of making agreements or proposals. Make a conscious effort to err on the side of generosity.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Be open and clear as to what your exact intentions are. You can save face and avoid embarrassment by outlining your objectives for others. If making a minor investment, put the emphasis on minor.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Have it your way. Yesterday's indulgences and luxuries force you to sacrifice some of today's pleasures. Concentrate on what matters most to you and the minor inconveniences will fade away.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Let it all hang out. Be generous and open with your money when dealing with your close friends and loved ones. Do not try to mix business with pleasure; confusion and mix-ups are certain to follow.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Dress to impress. Put your best foot forward; if you create an aura of success those around you will think you are successful. A romantic interest is likely to set your world afire; glow with affection.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): It's time to go all afire as a social butterfly. Have a gathering of friends, spend time with family or go out on the town. A financial situation may re-emerge and cause embarrassment. Leave nothing to chance.

20: It's not the knowledge itself, but how one utilizes that knowledge that makes it valuable. Brush up on current events, get involved with online learning or take a continuing education class. Knowledge is beneficial.
