JFAC revises budget cuts for state workers

Measure's fate unclear amid House GOP opposition By Jared S. Hopkins Times-News writer

BOISE - After one of its most tense debates in years, the Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee on Wednesday voted personnel costs, though the measure faces stiff Republicans.

The decision, supported by senators and House Democrats, eliminates an across-the-board salary cut for state workers and instead allows agency directors to determine how to attain a 3 percent budget cut. An additional 2 percent budget reduction – about $6 million – would be covered by federal stimulus funding.

The revision comes in response to Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter, who publicly blasted JFAC after it approved the across-theboard salary cut. He offered a compromise in written form, a document some legislators said 12-8 to revise cuts to state should be considered ahead of any rumors.

JFAC Co-chairman Sen. resistance from House Dean Cameron, R-Rupert, said the decision will preserve jobs and protect

Burley girl dies after suffering seizure in tub

By Damon Hunzeker Times-News writer

BURLEY – A girl died in a Utah hospital Tuesday after suffering a seizure in a bathtub at a Burley apartment complex Saturday night, according to a Cassia County Sheriff's report.

Maya Hall, 3, daughter of Elena Hall, had been in a tub filled with about six inches of cool water to lower her fever-induced temperature. Six other people, mostly family members, were in the apartment at the time.

While making a salad, her mother heard a splash but assumed the girl was playing. When she checked on her daughter, the girl was face down in the bathtub, the report said. Elena Hall attempted to resuscitate her daughter and told her sister to call 911. After sheriff's officers arrived at the Sawtooth Village Apartments, the girl was taken by ambulance to Cassia Regional Medical Center and then taken by air ambulance to Primary Children's Hospital in Salt Lake City. After three days of attempting to revive the girl's pulmonary functions, she was pronounced dead Tuesday, the report stated. Maya Hall had suffered from seizures since before her first birthday and had been treated over the years but never definitively diagnosed. Doctors told her family that the girl would probably grow out of the seizures by the time she became six years old, the report said.

Law Disorder...

April 5 police reports: Burglary:

A 47-year-old Burley woman named "Cricket" who has cited for reckless driving the previous night reported that her husband, who was arrested for domestic battery the same night, tried to pry her front door open and may have stolen "a bunch of antiques" in the past two weeks. "Cricket" was unable to give a written statement because she had poor writing, the police report reads.

The window had six small holes in it. The boys had been firing a BB gun at a can in the area earlier. When asked if they could have missed the can and hit the window, one of them said yes. Prior to the arrival of police, the boy's father broke the BB gun.

Phone harassment:

The mother of a 16-year-old Burley female was called and asked if she was her daughter. According to the police report, the voice appeared to be "older with a smoked too many cigarettes rasp to it." The number was checked and determined to belong to a man "listed as homeless."

PUC seeks comment on emissions credits

The Idaho Public Utilities Rupert town hall meeting Commission will take public comment through April 17 on the best use of revenue from sales of Idaho Power Co.'s sulfur dioxide

The utility earned about $5.3 million from those sales during 2008 and part of 2009, only about a fourth of what the emission allowances brought in in 2007.

At least 90 percent of the new 2008, sale proceeds were deducted from Idaho Power's annual power cost adjustment, reducing that surcharge for customers. A portion of the 2008 revenue, $500,000, also went to expand energy-education programs in the utility's service territory, a decision made just last month.

Blaine commissioners hear latest on wolf activity

HAILEY - Following an emotional meeting with the public on Saturday night in Hailey, representatives from Idaho Department of Fish and Game brought their message about the Phantom Hill wolf pack to the Blaine County commissioners on Tuesday.

"We need to be able to manage wolves in Idaho like other predators, and other prey for that matter," said Jerome Hansen, regional supervisor for the department, species from federal endangered lists. He also emphasized the work the department has been doing to protect human safety. "That apparently wasn't enough to a lot of folks. It was a pretty strong message from a few people."

Education stimulus funding bill introduced in House

BOISE – A House panel agreed to introduce a bill Tuesday that state education officials say provides flexibility to districts during a recession, but which Democrats said is difficult to decipher and should educators.

The bill would allow for positions to be funded by stimulus funding for two years, and it would allow for up to 5 percent of the money to go toward virtual, or online, courses.

Districts must use a certain amount of state money for staffing and return what's not used to the state, a concept referred to as "use it or lose it" money.

Tom Luna, said the bill would provide "additional flexibility." He said it's been shared with Idaho's Rep. Grant Burgoyne, Dschool boards and administrators, but that's it so far.

Day care compromise bill deserves to be law

t's not a great day care regulation bill that passed the Idaho House Health and Welfare Committee last week, but it's a good one. And a darn sight better than what Idaho has now.

Under the legislation, facilities that take care of seven or more children must be licensed. Under current law, it's 13 kids.

There must be smoke detectors and telephones on the premises, and fencing around water. Fire and safety inspections would be required, as would criminal background checks for workers in any day care with four or more children.

Our concern is that the compromise is running out of time. The full House has yet to vote on the measure, and if it passes the bill must be reconciled with the Senate's considerably more stringent version. If a House-Senate conference can agree, the two chambers still must approve.

The biggest sticking point is the cost of inspections, which under the House bill would be picked up by the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare. Providers would pay under the Senate version.

If the House bill prevails, that would require reopening Health and Welfare's budget, which the Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee is about to finalize.

There may be as few as seven working days left in this legislative session. That's not much time to get everything done.

Aspects of Sen. Tim Corder's bill should be added next year, but that will be easier if there's a tougher day care law on the books than it would be with just the current statute.

There needs to be an effective mechanism for identifying day cares with four to six kids so background checks can be run. And there should be some minimal fire code standards.

This compromise wouldn't have happened without the hard work of Rep. Sharon Block, R-Twin Falls, the Health and Welfare Committee chairwoman. and committee member Rep. Lynn Luker, R-Boise, who crafted the amendments. Similar bills died in the committee the past four years.

Still, the credit mostly belongs to Corder, a threeterm Republican from Mountain Home who made it his mission to get tougher day care regulation approved by the Legislature and wouldn't give up until it happened. But he's still go some work to do.

Our view: Despite a historic vote by the House Health and Welfare Committee on tougher day care regulation, it's far from certain that the Legislature will resident Obama recently stated that he is a big believer in "persistence," and he provided examples of how he will persist in many areas of economic policy. That word and his examples gave me more hope for the future of the U.S. economy than I have had in some time.

We are experiencing the mother of all modern financial crises. Real and imaginary counterparty risk, policy uncertainty, and widespread panic have reduced purely private financial transactions to a trickle in many vital markets. Unfortunately, an already complex economic problem is being compounded by an awful political environment, and the prefrontal cortex of our political system is freezing up as well. Politicians and commentators from the left and right are in panic mode and have retrenched to their basic instincts, moving away from reasoned analysis. It is, frankly, scary to hear the right regurgitating the untimely liquidationist claims that Treasury Secretary Andrew Mellon made during the onset of the Great Depression. It is left going after Wall Street "oligarchs" and the financial institutions they have always hated, which finally are easy prey.

Fortunately, some voices of reason remain, and the Treasury, Federal Reserve and Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. are among them. They have been persistent. It is true that the announcement made in early February by Treasury Secretary Timothy Geithner lacked specifics, but it was not short on principles and general guidelines. These principles recognized the systemic nature of today's crisis and the critical role economy is private capital. Policies must encourage rather than discourage private capital participation for the short run as well as the long run. One of the main problems behind the crisis is excessive leverage, which means too much debt relative to equity. We need more, not less, equity and more, not fewer, shareholders. Because it is the government's responsibility to ensure a wellfunctioning financial system during episodes of panic, it is not anti-capitalist for the government to support private capital during these episodes, just as it is not anti-capitalist to charge for this service in advance and to regulate financial institutions of systemic importance.

The U.S. financial system is worth preserving, and the only safe policy while investors are in panic mode is to preserve it with as few changes as possible, with the government providing the resources needed to get to a point where we can fix the structural problems that contributed to the crisis. Contrary to popular perception, providing this support has nothing to do with the "zombie" policies of the Japanese experience during the 1990s. There, the problem was that banks kept making loans to unproductive companies to avoid having to recognize the losses associated with old loans to those companies. As a result, good companies had less access to loans than they would have otherwise. But a policy of supporting the sale of troubled assets through public guarantees, loans and equity participation, complemented with a publicprivate program to strengthen the capital of systemically important financial institutions, is the opposite of the zombie strategy. Such a framework builds a solid foundation for new lending and does not create incentives for banks to lend to the wrong clients.

Woman's hell shows why we need online harassment laws

irst came the phone calls: men, strangers, telling Barbara Goddard they'd seen her ad on Craigslist and were eager to come over for her promised "casual encounter."

Later that week, men started showing up at Goddard's door in Reston, Va., ready for an evening of random sex. "I'm here from Craigslist," they'd say. "You've been set up," Goddard would tell them. By that time, she'd figured out what was happening: Someone was posting offers in her name on online message boards, with her home address.

Goddard called Fairfax

County police, who stepped up patrols, even posting an officer inside Goddard's apartment. Still, the men kept coming. Both Goddard, 65, and the police say they had a good idea who was behind the attack, but despite months of effort, nothing has been done.

The men who came cannot be arrested: Technically, lawyers say, they've been invited. And the person behind the phony invitations remains uncharged – because the laws protecting people from such attacks aren't tough enough; because the culprits make themselves into phantoms, changing e-mail addresses and identities by the minute; and because the Web sites used for such harassment resist handing over records.

"We all agree there's a void in the law," says Fairfax County Supervisor Cathy Hudgins, D-Hunter Mill, who helped Goddard win attention from the police department's fraud unit. "No matter what this woman said or did, she couldn't get the situation resolved."

"There was really very little we could do for her," says John Keats, a Fairfax lawyer who represented Goddard after the person she believes was tormenting her swore out a complaint against Goddard – bizarrely accusing the victim of having done exactly what had been done to her ("unwanted phone calls and visits by unknown men at her home looking for sex.")

Keats got that case thrown out easily: He summoned six police officers to court and all told the judge that it was Goddard who was the victim, not the complainant.

But Keats, police and Hudgins concluded that there's little Virginia law can do to protect someone on the wrong end of Internet harassment. This is a relatively new area of law, and federal prosecutors didn't press their first case of cyberharassment until 2004.

A few states have outlawed online harassment, but many say it's difficult to protect victims of cyberstalkers while maintaining a strong defense of free speech.

Goddard's nightmare has been going on for 18 months. Goddard has turned to medications for her nerves. She has hid inside her apartment. She posted a sign on her door: "If you're from Craigslist, you've been set up." The tormentor adapted: The next online invitation informed men that "My cell phone isn't working, but I will be home, so bang on the patio door. Ignore notice on front door."

Some victims in such cases have been driven to move to escape their predator. No one can answer Goddard's question: "My life has been turned upside down. I don't sleep well. I check the door constantly. Why do I have to live like this?"

No transparency at HUD: another disastrous Obama nominee

f you need a shining example of the utter disingenuousness of Barack Obama's commitment to government transparency, I have two words for you: Ron Sims. This lifelong political hack is to transparency what sunlight is to Dracula, what salt is to a slug, what kryptonite is to Superman, what "The View" is to intelligent debate.

That is: lethal.

In its press release announcing the nomination of the Seattle-area county executive to the No. 2 post at the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, the White House described Sims as a "visionary urban leader." The White House also touted Sims' "willingness to make the tough choices necessary to ensure that American tax dollars are spent wiselv."

But Sims' key accomplishments in the Pacific Northwest have involved

OTHER VIEWS What Idaho newspapers are saying about ...

... opening Idaho's check register

Idaho Statesman, Boise

In a quirky bit of irony, Idaho will not put its checkbook online because some legislators are concerned about the cost.

These worries have put a good idea on hold - and, we hope, just temporarily.

Taxpayers have every right to track every dollar of state spending. Putting the books online isn't just a nice thing to do: It will save taxpayer dollars in the long run.

A deadlocked House of Representatives killed the bill, which would have created an online state database, on a 32-32 tie vote (a tie vote kills a bill). Critics were largely concerned with passing along unknown costs to illegally keeping taxpayers in the dark. Despite his long-known notoriety in Washington state as an incompetent manager and obstinate campaign finance law-breaker, President Obama trusts Sims to oversee the day-to-day operations of a federal agency with 8,500 employees, a $39 billion yearly budget, and a chronic history of corruption and cronyism.

A Senate Banking Committee staffer told me this week that Sims' confirmation hearing will likely be scheduled soon after the Easter recess. Let's hope someone on the committee is talking to the folks who have fought the real Sims in his own backyard.

Ask Stefan Sharkansky. A

Seattle blogger and citizen activist, Sharkansky blew the whistle on election fraud shenanigans involving Sims' office during the November 2004 gubernatorial election. He has fought since December 2004 to obtain public records related to gross errors in the county's ballot counting. Since filing suit against Sims in October 2005, Sharkansky told me, "the county has released a number of additional documents which confirm both (a) that county officials unlawfully counted hundreds of ineligible ballots in the 2004 election (a multiple of the 133 vote "margin of victory" in the governor's race); and (b) that they unlawfully withheld documentation of the illegal vote counting from public disclosure for many months (up to a few years) after the documents were first requested."

This alleged defiance of open-records laws fits a disgraceful pattern in Sims' office. Ask Armen Yousoufian. In 1997, the former Boeing engineer embarked on what would be a 12-year legal battle to force Sims to obey public-disclosure rules. Instead of making the "tough choices necessary to ensure that American tax dollars are spent wisely," Sims did everything in his power to ensure that King County, Wash., taxpayers were deprived of vital information on how their money was being spent.

Yousoufian wanted access to government documents related to a sports stadium subsidy plan up for a vote in Washington in the summer of 1997. The records he requested at the end of May 1997 pertained to the fiscal impact of a massive taxhike proposal to build a new football palace for the Seattle Seahawks. Time was of the essence: County residents were preparing to vote on a ballot initiative package worth $300 million on June 17 of that year.

But Sims, corporate water-carrier for Microsoft billionaire and Seahawks owner Paul Allen, didn't put an informed citizenry first. His office deliberately stonewalled Yousoufian's request – at first failing to deliver the documents, then claiming they didn't exist, and then admonishing him to bug off. While Sims' deputies gave Yousoufian the grand runaround, Referendum 48 passed by a margin of 51-49.

Yousoufian launched a one-man crusade to hold Sims accountable to taxpayers. In 2000, he sued under Washington's openrecords law. He spent $330,000 of his own money in legal fees and 4,000 hours of his own time. A lower court ruled in his favor, dinging the county's obstructionism as "egregious," but skimped in awarding him the minimum $5 a day for each of the 8,252 days that Sims' office withheld the documents. The courts found "hundreds" of instances where Sims' office deceived Yousoufian or refused to tell the truth. To deter future abuse. Yousoufian appealed for higher fines.

In January 2009, the high court issued a historic ruling in Yousoufian's favor, damning Sims' "blatant violations of the state Public Records Act." This travesty is the singular responsibility of Ron Sims. It dragged on through his entire tenure as King County executive and beyond. The state Supreme Court remanded the case back to the lower courts to determine a final fine that may exceed some $1 million in taxpayer funds.

Obama's best and brightest: working hard to keep taxpayers in the dark. Long live transparency!

state agencies already juggling budget cuts.

The sponsor of the bill, Republican Phil Hart, said during debate that the searchable online database could end up costing $250,000 ...

That's a red flag, and we can't blame lawmakers from balking. Legislators should know upfront what an online database would cost state agencies. But the concept of a database shouldn't die with Hart's bill.

An online database would make state spending more transparent - and, as a result, that much more frugal. Agency administrators would have a powerful incentive to look closely at expenses: the knowledge that taxpayers and legislators would also have the power to scrutinize spending.

When agencies are more publicly accountable for spending – whether it's a hotel room for an out-ofstate conference, or an endof-budget-year vehicle purchase – they will naturally be motivated to make frugal decisions.

An online database is not a new concept. Twenty-nine states - including neighboring Washington, Nevada and Utah – provide searchable spending information, according to Sunshine Week, an organization dedicated to raising public awareness about access to government records ...

Idaho Press-Tribune, Nampa

The many components of plans to cut education spending moving through the Legislature form a complex matrix of changes that allow schools to reopen teacher contracts, reduce teacher pay, freeze experience increments and make other changes in education policy.

Lawmakers and State Superintendent of Public Instruction Tom Luna must follow the pieces and parts closely to ensure they don't come out in a way that places school districts in a bind without options at the local level ...

Luna has devised a package of cuts that he believes will lessen the impact on students, and lawmakers have largely gone along with those ideas. But as the session winds down, let's make sure districts have flexibility. Some districts may choose to reduce pay through fewer workdays. Some may want to reduce pay and renegotiate contracts. Others may want to try to cut expenses and not pay.

Does the package allow for those decisions to come from locally elected boards?

State officials need make sure it does ... In this economic crisis, local schools should have the same power to prioritize with local involvement when making cuts or redirecting services.

Lawmakers shouldn't go home with legislation that leaves district officials' hands tied.

They must ensure that, at least for the financial emergency, local boards have more freedom than ever to make choices that best serve their communities.

I am proud of our men and women who are serving in the armed forces. I am not proud of the war they are serving in. I served in Vietnam with the idea that we would soon bring the war to an end. My tour of duty was extended three months, and the war went on. Countless lives were lost because our government lied to us, and we did not belong there. I protested that war in a peace rally with Jane Fonda in Denver in 1968, after I had honorably served in it. Is the war in Iraq any different?

We need to join together as brothers and sisters and engage in the real wars against poverty and ignorance. Let us fight against greed, discrimination and indifference. Regarding the April 21 auction of 6.81 acres of the R-2 residential plot just west of the Canyon Ridge High School:

Our understanding of the horrendous traffic influx expected in this area does not seem conducive to the addition of more housing units so close to the school. We do understand the budget needs of the school district to recover some costs of the project. However the cost recovery benefit could be offset in time by the addition of traffic and adjoining unknown occupation.

Would it be possible for the school district's public relations to improve by a transfer of this small plot to the parks and recreation department? What a thought! A small park next to Park View Drive. There are no parks anywhere near this area. A nice place to

A psychologist and a juvenile probation department committee both said the boy would be best served in the juvenile court system, based on his immaturity and lack of competency to stand trial as an adult.

But in its 20-page ruling, the high court found the youth would likely need treatment long after he would be released if convicted under the juvenile court system, and that he was sophisticated and street-smart for his age.

The case began in 2007 when some teens riding their bicycles down an alley in Nampa encountered a boy, later identified as Reizenstein, and then saw a half-naked little girl who appeared to be unconscious lying nearby, according to a brief filed by the Idaho attorney general's office.

The Idaho Public Utilities Commission designated CenturyTel as an Eligible Telecommunications Carrier or ETC within its service. area for universal service purposes. The goal of universal service is to provide all Idaho citizens access to essential telecommunications services.

CenturyTel provides single party residential and business services from $21.75 to $24.10 per month for residential customers and $39.77 per month for business customers. This includes access to long distance carriers, Emergency Services, Operator Services, Directory Assistance and Toll Blocking. Use of these services may result in added charges. Specific rates for your areas can be provided upon request.

CenturyTel offers qualified customers Lifeline and Link-Up Service if you meet certain low-income eligibility requirements. Lifeline Service includes a monthly discount up to $8.25 for basic phone charges (including a $6.50 waiver of the Federal Subscriber Line Charge), as well as toll blocking at no charge and a waiver of the deposit if toll blocking is selected by qualifying customers. Link-Up Service provides a discount on installation charges and charges to move service. Residents of Tribal Lands can also qualify for the additional Federal portion of the Lifeline program.

Apply at a Community Action Agency (CAA) office or with an Idaho Department of Health and Welfare Regional Office for Lifeline and/or Link-up. If you are eligible, your name and telephone number will be forwarded to your local telephone company.

Ada County Commissioners are park.

The county has spent a month soliciting proposals from those interested in leasing Les Bois Park. The commissioners could decide as soon as April 14 which party will win the lease.

The two parties who have submitted lease proposals are Dave Parrie of Spirit Valley Raceway and Scott Sherwood of Boise Racing - The Greene Group.

Boise hole-in-the-ground goes to primary creditor

The deed to the long-vacant half-acre hole in downtown Boise has been handed over to primary lien holder Capps Holding.

The site was originally planned to be developed into the state's tallest tower, with residential and retail space.

But Capps Holdings, the parent company of Robert Capps Homes, foreclosed on the property after developer Gary D. Rogers' company Charterhouse Boise Downtown Properties defaulted on a $2.5 million loan. Charterhouse acquired the site from former developer Rick Peterson in 2006.

A public auction for the land was held Tuesday, but no one besides ting their inventories under con-Capps showed up to bid on the trol. property.

COLUMBUS – Oil prices took reviewing two proposals from off Wednesday after new governentities that want to lease the ment data showed bulging crude county's 68-acre horse racing inventories grew less than what analysts expected, but settled only slightly above where they started the session.

Benchmark crude for May deliverv rose as high as $51.30 a barrel on the New York Mercantile Exchange, $2.15 above Monday's settlement. But prices beat a retreat by afternoon, settling up 23 cents at $49.38.

Some analysts suggested the initial rally came from traders covering bets that the price of oil would fall, rather than any excitement about government inventory data.

For the week ended Friday crude Agriculture futures supplies increased by 1.7 million barrels, or 0.5 percent, to 361.1 million barrels, 15.2 percent above year-ago levels, the Energy Department's Energy Information of Trade. Administration said in its weekly report.

The dollar showed some strength against other major currencies. That held the price of gold to a moderate gain.

Light, sweet crude rose 23 cents to settle at $49.38 a barrel on the New York Mercantile Exchange.

said Wednesday that wholesale inventories dropped 1.5 percent in February, the most on records dating to January 1992 and more than double analysts' expectations.

Sales at the wholesale level rose 0.6 percent, the first increase since June and a sharp reversal from January's revised 2.4 percent drop. That shows retailers and other businesses have begun to replenish their supplies.

The sixth straight monthly drop in wholesale inventories can be viewed as positive in the longterm because once stockpiles have been adjusted for the economic slowdown, businesses may be able to increase orders for new goods.

98 shots from 'new Rambo' in N.Y. shooting spurs ammo debate

13 people at an upstate New York immigration center fired 98 shots from two handguns in a little more than a minute, police said Wednesday, a gunslinging feat one expert said would make him a "new Rambo?

Gun control advocates said if a man who complained about not getting enough in unemployment benefits could afford enough ammunition to repeatedly practice shooting and go into his killing zone with a satchel of bullets around his neck, new ways are needed to stem gun violence, including raising the price of ammunition.

Ballistics reports showed Iverly Wong fired 87 times from a 9mm Beretta and 11 times from a .45-caliber handgun. If he bought the ammunition online. he could have paid as little as $40 for proficient because he's the rounds he fired.

Friends say Wong complained that he only received $200 a week in unemployment benefits.

"Chris Rock says in one of his routines - have all the guns you want but charge like $1,000 for every bullet," said Jackie Hilly of New Yorkers Against Gun Violence. "I think if you raised the price, you would probably discourage the violence, but I don't think you would prevent it?"

Police said almost all 13 victims died instantly. Four others were wounded but tary.

"I asked our range officer and he said easily in a minute you could rip off 98 rounds," said Police Chief Joseph Zikuski. "Our range people tell us it was over in a minute, a minute and a half. It doesn't take long. Especially, it's our understanding that he an accomplished was marksman?'

Dan Kash, the owner of LAX Firing Range in Inglewood, Calif., was dubious that Wong fired that many rounds in the time police say he did.

"He'd have to be superwalking and shooting, and shooting probably moving targets," Kash said. "Either it took a lot longer than what cops are saying, or this guy is more than just the average Joe. Unless the guy is some type of super gunslinger, no, he's not going to be able to do that?"

Kash said it would take more than just practice on a shooting range and suggested combat training or military experience would be needed to be that fast and accurate. There is no record of Wong serving in the mili-

Some criticize police handling of California girl's disappearance

By Juliana Barbassa and Marcus Wohlsen Associated Press writers

TRACY, Calif. - Police called the disappearance of 8-year-old Sandra Cantu a missing persons case, not an abduction, for 10 days until some farm workers drained an irrigation pond and found her body stuffed in a suitcase.

Some residents and a lawenforcement expert sav authorities in Tracy should have publicly expressed more urgency about the case and warned of the danger that could be lurking in their Northern California community. But police say that despite their initial uncertainty about Sandra's fate, they did everything they could, scouring the area, calling in reinforcements and exploring theories from dealing with a runaway to looking for a kidnapper.

"Until we had an indication that Sandra had been killed, we were treating this as a missing persons case," said Tracy police spokesman Sgt. Tony Sheneman.

"We had no indication of an abduction," he said. "We wanted to be as careful as possible."

Sandra's body was found Monday a few miles from her home. Police have interviewed hundreds of people and served more than 15 search warrants, including one at a local church, but say they have no suspects so far.

An autopsy on the girl has been completed, but results will not be available for several weeks, a coroner's spokesman said Wednesday. Officials declined to discuss any preliminary findings.

WASHINGTON - Tinkering with Earth's climate to chill runaway global warming - a radical idea once dismissed out of hand - is being discussed by the White House as a potential emergency option, the president's new science adviser missing persons case such as this?' But officials say city police quickly asked for help, calling in the Joaquin Sheriff's San Department, other neighboring law enforcement and the FBI.

And those are just the predicted problems. Scientists say they worry about side effects that they don't anticipate.

Hours after Sandra's family reported her missing the evening of March 27, the city opened its emergency operations center, normally reserved for earthquakes and fires, according to city spokesman Matt Robinson.

Police say they never issued an Amber Alert because they had no information on a suspect or mode of transportation connected to an abduction, which is normally required for the

That's because global warming is happening so rapidly, John Holdren told The Associated Press in his first interview since being confirmed last month.

The concept of using technology to purposely cool the climate is called geoengineering. One option raised by Holdren and proposed by a Nobel Prize-winning scientist includes shooting pollution particles into the upper atmosphere to reflect the sun's rays.

Using such an experimental measure is only being thought of as a last resort. Holdren said.

"It's got to be looked at," he said. "We don't have the luxury ... of ruling any approach off the table?

His concern is that the United States and other nations won't slow global warming fast enough and that several "tipping points" could be fast approaching. Once such milestones are reached, such as complete of "really intolerable consequences," he said.

Twice in a half-hour interview, Holdren compared car with bad brakes driving toward a cliff in the fog?"

He and many experts believe that warming of a few degrees more would lead to disastrous drought conditions and food shortages in some regions, rising seas and more powerful coastal storms in others.

At first, Holdren characterized the potential need to technologically tinker with the climate as just his personal view. However, he went on to say he has raised it logical Society is crafting a in administration discussions.

Artificial trees

Proposal: Use industrial size artificial trees to filter 90,000 tons of carbon dioxide from the wind per year. Each tree can filter 6.6 pounds of CO2 per second which would be transported to a processing facility and then stored. Problems: Separation, transportation and disposal costs are high; leakage a risk to humans, ecosystems.

"There's a very vigorous process going on of discussing all the options for addressing the energy climate challenge?

Holdren said discussions loss of summer sea ice in the include Cabinet officials and Arctic, it increases chances heads of sub-Cabinet level a MacArthur Foundation agencies, such as NASA and the Environmental Protection Agency.

The British Parliament has also discussed the idea. At an international meeting of climate scientists last month in Copenhagen, 15 talks dealt with different aspects of geoengineering.

Holdren, a 1981 winner of "genius" grant, outlined these possible geoengineering options:

• Shooting sulfur particles (like those produced by power plants and volcanoes, for example) into the upper gained steam when it was proposed by Nobel laureate Paul Crutzen in 2006. It would be "basically mimicking the effect of volcanoes in screening out the incoming sunlight," Holdren said.

• Creating artificial "trees" – giant towers that suck carbon dioxide out of the air and store it.

The first approach would "try to produce a cooling effect to offset the heating effect of carbon dioxide and "We're talking about all engineering's potential, to other greenhouse gases,"

But he said there could be some people as too risky, the Obama administration could get unusual support on the idea from groups that have often denied the harm of global warming in the past.

The conservative think tank American Enterprise Institute has its own geoengineering project, saying it could be "feasible and costeffective?" And Cato Institute scholar Jerry Taylor said Wednesday: "Very few people would rule out geoengineering on its face?

Holdren didn't spell out under what circumstances such extreme measures might ever be called for. And he emphasized they are not something to rely on.

"It would be preferable by far," he said, "to solve this problem by reducing emissions of greenhouse gases."

Yet there is already significant opposition building to the House Democratic leaders' bill aimed at achieving President Barack Obama's goal of cutting greenhouse gas emissions 20 percent by 2020 and 80 percent by 2050.

Holdren said temperatures should be kept from rising more than 3.6 degrees. To get there, he said the U.S. and other industrial nations have to begin permanent dramatic cuts in carbon dioxide pollution by 2015, with developing countries following suit within a decade.

Those efforts are racing against three tipping points he cited: Earth could be as close as six years away from the loss of Arctic summer sea ice, he said, and that has the potential of altering the climate in unforeseen ways. Other elements that could dramatically speed up climate change include the release of frozen methane from thawing permafrost in Siberia, and more and bigger wildfires worldwide.

L'AQUILA, Italy - Bells tolled in hilltowns across central Italy on Wednesday as the first funerals got under way for victims of the country's devastating earthquake. The Vatican granted a dispensation so a funeral Mass for most of the 272 dead could be celebrated on Good Friday.

As more bodies were pulled from the rubble, some of the 28,000 homeless spent another day lining up for food and water at some of the 20 tent camps that have sprouted up around this quake-devastated city.

Pope Benedict XVI said he would visit the area soon. Rescue efforts continued but officials began discussing rebuilding the stricken region and reopening schools. They stressed it identified, the ANSA news would take a month or two to have a clear idea of the extent of the damage. "For now the needs are Silvio Berlusconi said. basic. The people in the camps, they don't have toothbrushes, they don't have toothpaste," said Massimo Cialente, mayor of the hard-hit city of L'Aquila. "You can't find a place to buy cigarettes or get a coffee." The magnitude-6.3 quake hit L'Aquila and several towns covering 230 square miles in central Italy early Monday, leveling buildings ing. and reducing entire blocks to piles of rubble. It was the when firefighters arrived to be stepped up.

The Vatican's No. 2, Cardinal Tarcisio Bertone was to celebrate a funeral Mass for the bulk of the victims on Friday, Vatican officials said.

The Vatican granted a special dispensation for the Mass to be celebrated since Good Friday, which marks Jesus' death by crucifixion, is the only day in the year in which Mass in not celebrated in the Roman Catholic church.

The funeral is expected to be held in an outdoor square at a police training school in L'Aquila, the Vatican said. "At the moment, there is no church in L'Aquila which can be used," because they are all so damaged, said Vatican

Roxana Saberi, who grew up in Fargo, North Dakota, and is a dual citizen of the U.S. and Iran. has been living in Iran for six years. She has reported from there for several news organizations, including National Public Radio and the British Broadcasting Corp.

An investigative judge involved in the case told state TV that Saberi was passing classified information to U.S. intelligence services.

"Under the cover of a journalist, she visited government buildings, established contacts with some of the employees, gathered classified information and sent it to the U.S. intelligence services," said the judge, who under security rules was identified only by his surname, Heidarifard.

"Her activities were discovered by the counter-espionage department of the Intelligence Ministry," Heidarifard said.

Saberi will stand trial next week, the judge said, though he did not specify which day.

The announcement of espionage charges got the attention of the Obama administration, which has been pushing for her release.

"We are deeply concerned by the news that we're hearing," U.S. Secretary of State Hillary Rodham Clinton told reporters at the State Department, adding that the administration has asked Swiss diplomats in Iran for the "most accurate, up-to-date information" on Saberi. Though the U.S. has no diplomatic relations with Iran, it has an interests section at the Swiss Embassy.

Participants in Camp Discovery Idaho raft the Salmon River in September 2008. This year, the organization will offer two similar trips: one for teenagers, the other for young adults. The program helps cancer survivors to connect with peers, challenge themselves in the outdoors, and address physical and emotional issues unique to cancer.

OUTDOORS BRIEFS

House panel approves Idaho Fish and Game fee hike

BOISE – The House Resources Committee approved a measure to hunters and anglers, a measure that's already cleared the Senate.

The panel voted 13-5 Tuesday to raise revenue at the Idaho Department of Fish and Game by $2.55 million annually.

lawmakers opted against a hike originally pushed by the state wildlife agency that would have totaled about 20 percent, or $7 million, that targeted Idaho residents, too.

The full House will take up the scaled-back measure.

The agency says it needs additional money to continue existing services for hunters, anglers and other outdoor enthusiasts.

Fish and Game has a $76 million annual budget and 528 employees, operating with money from hunting and fishing tag fees, and federal and private grants.

Big game rules for 2009 now on the Web

The Idaho big game hunting seasons and rules brochure for 2009 seasons is available now from Fish and Game at http://fishandgame.idaho.gov/.

The same brochure is in the printing process and copies will be available at license vendors and Fish and Game offices statewide by mid-April.

Primary changes this year include some new caps on general season elk tags, making pronghorn archery seasons unlimited controlled hunts this year, and the game management unit boundaries are back in the book this year.

In March the Idaho Fish and Game Commission adopted hunting season dates on wolves statewide, pending removal of wolves in Idaho from the endangered species list, which would take effect May 4.

The seasons in the Lolo and Sawtooth zones would run from Sept. 1-March 31. In the Selway and Middle Fork zones, the seasons would run from Sept. 15-Dec. 31, and elsewhere from Oct. 1-Dec. 31.

YELLOWSTONE Amid the recession, state NATIONAL PARK, Wyo. -Visitors to Yellowstone National Park can expect up to 30-minute delays while repairs are made to the Grand Loop Road this spring and summer.

The road is scheduled to open for the year April 17.

Repairs are planned on the road through Gibbon Canyon between Madison and Norris junctions. Park officials say that in addition to the daytime delays, the road will be closed between 10 p.m. and 8 a.m. from

May 16 through Aug. 16. No delays or nighttime closures are planned during the Memorial Day and Independence Day weekends.

The road will close to all travel starting Aug. 17 while a bridge is replaced. The road is expected to reopen to snowmobile and snowcoach travel in December.

Sharp-tailed grouse returning to Antelope Island

SALT LAKE CITY - A prairie bird once scattered around Utah, but now more rare, will soon be staging a comeback at Antelope Island State Park.

The Utah Wildlife Board approved a plan Thursday to allow about 60 Columbian sharp-tailed grouse to be transplanted to the island in the middle of the Great Salt Lake.

The project is part of a larger effort to bolster the bird's population in Utah and keep it off the federal endangered species list.

Dave Olsen, a state biologist, says crews may move the first set of birds to the island later this spring. More will be transplanted next fall and winter.

State officials estimate the sharp-tailed grouse occupies about 5 percent Commissioners would of its historic habitat in set harvest quotas in Utah. Biologists have identified 26 other places in Hunters will notice no Utah where the grouse

SALT LAKE CITY - The American pika - a shortlegged, hamster-sized fur ball that huddles in high mountain slopes - isn't built for long-distance travel.

So as the West's climate warms, the tiny pika has little choice but to scurry a little farther upslope to beat the heat.

Kentucky cavers asked to help protect bat

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) -Federal officials are asking people in Kentucky and other states, including North Carolina, to stay out of caves where bats hibernate to try to stop the spread of a disease that's killing thousands of the flying mammals.

the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service calls "white-nose syndrome." The fungus causes bats to come out of hibernation early, leading to starvation. It hasn't yet showed up in Kentucky, but officials are still asking peowhere bats nest.

"It's amazing how fast it's moved south," Steve Thomas, an ecologist with the National Park Service based at Mammoth Cave National Park in Kentucky, told The Courier-Journal. "It's devastating to the bats."

The advisory does not apply to commercial caves like Mammoth, but Fish and Wildlife officials would not rule out possible future restrictions.

The agency issued an advisory last month asking people to stay out of caves where bats hibernate in nine states where the disease has been found – Vermont, New Hampshire, New York, Massachusetts, Connecticut, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, West Virginia and future.

Virginia – and four neighboring states, where it has vet to show up: Kentucky. Ohio, Tennessee and North Carolina.

In caves where the syndrome has been found, 95 percent to 100 percent of bats have died, said Diana Weaver, a spokeswoman for Bats are dying from what the Fish and Wildlife Service. Weaver said the environmental impact is not yet known, but "bats are voracious predators of night-flying insects such as beetles and moths or aquatic flies and mosquitoes."

Author and cave explorer ple to stay out of caves Roger Brucker, who has written about Kentucky caves, said bats are known to eat three to five times their weight in insects per night, "and the death of hundreds of thousands of bats means millions of pounds of dangerous mosquitoes and other bugs can overwhelm farm crops, animals, and infect people."

At Mammoth Cave National Park, workers already keep people out of areas where bats hibernate, said park spokeswoman Vickie Carson.

But Carson said there are about 200 other caves in the national park that are only open to researchers who have special permits. Thomas said it is possible that access to those caves could be restricted in the MONTEREY, Calif. - As a relatively new convert to mountain biking, I'm already familiar with the hazards of this pastime.

In my short two or three years as an enthusiast, I've been a victim of protruding roots, tire-swallowing sand pits, teeth-jarring washboard trails and slick, halfburied rocks that have sabotaged my good times like rain on a picnic.

But I never thought I would have to worry about Claymore mines, hand grenades, 3-inch antitank rifle grenades and 81-millimeter mortars.

I next tried a chemical solution, smashing a highly-flammable hexamethylenetetramine tablet made by Esbit, a stove company. The chemical dust whooshed to flame with a match. But FireSteel's best sparks were still impotent.

few have actually shrunk.

One example of a shrinking constellation is Leo, the Lion. Currently, Leo stands high in the south at 10 p.m.. spanning about 35 degrees (slightly less than two hand spans at arm's length) from nose to tail. Ptolemy, in the second century A.D., described a considerably larger Leo. Denebola, the star now representing the tip of Leo's tail, sat at the base of the tail. The tuft of Leo's tail was a smattering of faint stars in the neighboring constellation of Coma Berenices (described here last April). And the backwards-question-mark

Another giant constellation of old was Argo Navis, the ship of Jason's Argonauts. Originally, Argo spanned an area nearly 50 percent larger than the biggest modern constellation: Hydra, the Water Snake (directly below Leo). Mid-18th century astronomers divided unwieldy Argo into three smaller constellations (Puppis, the Stern; Carina,

The Mesopotamians used the sky to mark the seasons. By 150 B.C. the Greeks had a relatively sophisticated calendar, and constellations became a tool for cataloging the stars. The smaller constellations in the following centuries just made the job a bit easier.

Rare cancer misdiagnosed as harmless bowel condition

DEAR DR. GOTT: I

would like to see you devote some space to a rare illness called carcinoid cancer, which is formed by neuroendocrine tumors. My husband was diagnosed with metastasizing carcinoid cancer in 2006.

The mascot for these patients is the zebra because the disease is often misdiagnosed as Irritable

Bowel Syndrome, Crohn's disease and other bowel ailments. Because of the difficulty in getting a proper diagnosis, the motto is "If you think it's a horse, think again."

My husband's case is unusual because his primary tumor was located around the descending aorta, not the liver, as is typical. The cancer has since spread to his lungs and bones. He is a valiant warrior and tries to live a normal life in spite of the devastating side effects. As far as we know, there is no cure. Treatment is usually surgery to reduce the tumors or a drug called Sandostatin. My husband was given interferon but had to stop because Medicare refused to pay since it is not an approved carcinoid-cancer treatment

We are fortunate to have a support group for this disease only 30 miles away. It has been a lifeline for both of us. Your readers may be interested in more information, which can be found online at www.carcinoid.org.

DEAR READER:

Carcinoid cancer is a relatively complex condition. It involves slow-growing tumors that can present in nearly any part of the body. The most common sites are the small intestine, appendix and rectum.

Some tumors may even produce hormones that can cause a condition known as Carcinoid Syndrome. The primary symptom is carcinoid crisis, which may Early detection and removal of all the tumor tissue may lead to a complete and permanent cure. However, because the tumors are so slow-growing, the onset of symptoms can precede diagnosis by several years. Some tumors may not even be noticed until they have spread and multiplied to painful levels.

There are a few treatment options including surgery, chemotherapy and cancer-specific medication known as somatostatin analogues given by injection. Radiotherapy is used only for tumors that have spread within the skeletal system.

Nutritious high-protein diets, vitamin and mineral supplements, antidiarrheal drugs and more can be used in conjunction with the above treatments, primarily as a means to reduce the severity and

Holy Cross priests object to Obama invitation

By Ken Kusmer Associated Press writer

SOUTH BEND, Ind. -Ten priests from the order that founded the University of Notre Dame say the school risks its "true soul" and could distance itself from the Roman Catholic Church by inviting President Barack Obama to campus next month.

The members of the Congregation of the Holy Cross, which helps run the university, asked the Rev. John Jenkins, the Holy Cross priest who is Notre Dame's president, and the university's board of fellows to reconsider the invitation to Obama because he supports abortion rights.

"Failure to do so will damage the integrity of the institution," said the letter published Wednesday in the Notre Dame Observer.

ment address and receive an honorary degree. The decision by the nation's best-known Catholic university sparked widespread anger among many Catholics who said Notre Dame should not honor someone whose policies on abortion and embryonic stem-cell research clash with core church teachings on human life.

Hundreds of abortion opponents protested on campus Sunday, and the priests said the invitation has opened a "fissure" between Notre Dame and many bishops. More than a dozen bishops have denounced Obama's appearance. including Cardinal Francis George of Chicago, president of the U.S. Conference of Catholic Bishops.

Jenkins has said the university does not condone all of Obama's policies, and spokesman Dennis Brown has said Notre Dame does not plan to rescind the invitation.

"We respect the opinions of members of the Holy Cross community and others," Brown said.

Obama would be the ninth U.S. president to receive an honorary degree from Notre Dame and sixth sitting president to address graduates. Other commencement speakers have included Dwight Eisenhower, Jimmy Carter, Ronald Reagan, George H.W. Bush, and George W. Bush.

Cecilia Prinster, president of the Notre Dame Alumni Association, noted in a column also published in the campus newspaper that Obama's policies in areas such as health care reform, economic security and environmental stewardship are in line with Catholic social teaching.

Woman's tofu license plate curdles in Colorado

DENVER (AP) - One Colorado woman's love for tofu has been judged Xrated by state officials.

Kelly Coffman-Lee wanted to tell the world about her fondness for bean curd by picking certain letters for her SUV's license plate.

Her suggestion for the plate: "ILVTOFU."

But the Division of Motor Vehicles blocked her plan because they thought the combination of letters could be interpreted as profane.

Says Department of Revenue spokesman Mark Couch: "We don't allow 'FU' because some people could read that as street language for sex."

Officials meet periodically to ensure state plates stay free of letters that abbreviate gang slang, drug terms or obscene phrases.

plaining of pain in his ribs. It had been a slowly escalating injury that was thought to have possibly stemmed from a spectacular diving catch Lyons made at the Buck's Bags Spring Classic the week before.

He couldn't breathe well. He thought he had cracked a rib. He tried playing through the pain, but it kept getting worse, so bad he couldn't sleep at night.

Without Lyons on the field, the Bobcats lost to Hillcrest. The next day, Saturday, Lyons didn't even stick around in the dugout to support the team as they got swept by Century in a doubleheader. It was their fifth straight loss, and it felt like the Bobcats' season could be heading down the drain. The players were confused, some a little hurt, that their leadoff hitter and best outfielder bailed on them.

The most perplexing thing was, Garrett Lyons just isn't the type to abandon his team or let an injury keep him off the field. Even players from other teams thought it was odd. A Minico player in the stands Saturday said that something must be really wrong if Lyons isn't playing. He RUPERT - Pete Coats wasn't satisfied with his three-RBI double in the first inning of Minco's Great Basin Conference West showdown with Wood River on Wednesday.

To top it off, the speedy Minico junior stole home, too.

It was that kind of day for the Spartans, with just about everything going right in a 15-0, five-inning rout of Wood River.

After struggling early this season, Minico (6-10 overall, 2-0 GBW) now holds the outright lead in the conference standings.

"We've got Burley and Jerome still, and they should give us some pretty good games," said Minico pitcher Chris Joyce. We want to host districts here, so it's really important to get off to a good start and win all our district games."

Joyce earned the shutout, giving up just two hits while striking out eight and walking three.

"In the first inning I came out and threw a lot of strikes and it gave me a lot of confidence going into the next few innings," Joyce said. "We're playing with a lot of confidence. We're going up (to the plate) swinging."

Three Wood River pitchers gave up a combined 10 walks, which helped Minico load the bases in each of the first three innings. "In practice we've really focused on batting because we'd been struggling," said Coats. "We've been focusing on that scrap mentality. We've been swinging it well the last couple days, hopefully that carries into Pocatello, and more importantly Burley (next week)." The Spartans will travel to Pocatello on Friday.

After all, this is the same kid who flew around the football field with reckless abandon, taking on guys twice his size. He's nothing if not tough, strong-willed and good-spirited. Nothing could stop him from competing.

That is, until Monday morning, when Lvons left school early to see a doctor. X-rays revealed cancer.

Suddenly, a five-game losing streak didn't seem that important anymore.

"It's definitely a reality check," said senior captain Kace Redder. "We were all devastated after Saturday because we were like, man. what's going on with our season? Then when we found out about Garrett, we were like, man, this doesn't even matter. This is just baseball. This is just a game."

GOODING - For some, the Zion's/Farmer's Invitational track meet was all about managing the wind. For others, it didn't really matter what Wednesday's weather threw at them.

The Twin Falls boys and the Buhl girls each had a bit of both, victories in the meet held at the Idaho School for the Deaf and the Blind's track complex.

Buhl's girls won handily, their 164 points easily surpassing second-place Gooding's 72. The Indians built their advantage on the track, where they won eight of the 12 events. Clara Comer won the 100 and 400, while Desiree Hepworth took a clean sweep of all three distance races.

PITTSBURGH (AP) - DeJuan Blair guaranteed Pitt coach Jamie Dixon a year ago that he would play a full college career. One exceptional season changed all that. Blair said Wednesday he will declare for the NBA draft and has begun hiring representatives, ending any possibility that the All-America center could return for his junior season.

Blair is projected as a midto late first-round pick. He plans to hire an agent within the next several weeks, and has retained Pittsburgh attorney James Cook to handle him in marketing and advertising matters.

Arizona State All-America guard James Harden says he will hire an agent and make himself available to the NBA draft. The 6-foot-5 sophomore from Los Angeles, the Pac-10 player of the year, led the conference in scoring a 20.1 per game. Others to declare on Wednesday included Arizona forward Jordan Hill and Wake Forest point guard Jeff Teague. Hill averaged 18.1 points and 11 rebounds this season for the Wildcats. The 6-foot-2 Teague averaged a team-best 18.8 points and dished out 110 assists for the Demon Deacons this past season. He's scored 1,000 points in his two-year college career.

IS THE MASTERS TOO TOUGH? Bv Doug Ferguson

Associated Press writer

AUGUSTA, Ga. - The azaleas are brighter than ever. As usual, not a blade of grass is out of place. Anticipation is higher than it has been in years at the Masters, with Tiger Woods a winner again after knee surgery and Padraig Harrington going for a third straight major.

But the buzz at Augusta National has been tempered by three years of more teeth-gnashing than fistpumping.

Birdies have been replaced by bogeys.

Players are becoming more vocal in their criticism of a course that has produced so much excitement from so many charges over the years. They say it has become too long, too tough.

The cathedral of golf is starting to remind Masters chairman Billy Payne of a concert.

"Criticism hurts a little bit," Payne said Wednesday. "It's like when you go to a a little more forward to wind piano recital of one of your granddaughters and vou shorter. hear somebody say, 'Boy, that's the worst kid I've ever seen? It hurts your feelings."

Pavne responded by making the course shorter - by 10 yards.

The club also enlarged the tee boxes on the par-4 seving officials to move the tees par. A year ago, whipping tunity to demonstrate their

Tiger Woods isn't so sure. "The golf course has changed quite a bit," he said. "Your strategy has changed. You don't go out there looking to shoot super-low rounds because they are not out there anymore, especially with these conditions that we've had the last two years."

much has it How changed?

Woods has been a runner-up the last two years and has broken par only twice, with just one of those rounds in the 60s.

But it's more than the 510 vards that were added to the course since Woods captured his first green jacket in 1997. Augusta National used to mow one half of the fairway toward the green and the other half toward the tee. It was advantageous and risky – to hit the side of the fairway mowed toward the green because the ball would roll more. Now the entire fairway is mowed toward the tee.

Basterrechea and Wendell junior Nathan Ormond, both lanky and lean jumpers, dueled all the way to 6-foot-2 in the high jump event. Basterrechea cleared it easily on the first try, while Ormond couldn't repeat the trick. The Gooding jumper used his mismatched shoes - a coach's suggestion, he said - to ultimately clear 6-4, a season best.

CSI

Fakahafua (Judge Memorial) and Felicity Jones (Bear River).

"They're all just incredible kids," said Rogers, who added that the six are good players who can become great in coming years.

Matkin averaged 17.1 points, 5.4 assists and 3.1 rebounds at Twin Falls during the 2007-08 season. An ACL tear in June of 2008 caused her to miss half of her senior season at Vallivue, but she still averaged 8.3 points per game in helping her team to a fifth-place finish at the Class 5A state tournament.

"She can really shoot it," said Rogers.

Checketts contributed 17.7 points and 10.8 rebounds for Preston, shooting 65 percent from the field. Hardison scored 7.2 points a game in helping Highland to a 23-0 regular season, while Kearsley, a 6-foot post, averaged 17.8 points as a senior, while recording 372 career blocks.

Fakahafua was named the Deseret News Class 3A All-State MVP after averaging 14 points and 9.8 rebounds and will give CSI another strong post player.

Jones, a 5-7 guard, conassists, 4.2 rebounds and 3.1 steals for Bear River. "She's good," said Rogers, who marveled that Jones didn't wind up at Utah State or another NCAA Division I program.

MONTREAL, LUCET WEIGH SIGNING OPTIONS

College of Southern Idaho sophomore Daequon Montreal will make two official campus visits in the coming days as he decides where to sign next season. The 6-foot-8 forward will visit South Florida this weekend and Fresno State next weekend. He took a recruiting trip to Oral Roberts in the fall and recently made an unofficial visit to Boise State.

Montreal has ruled out St. Johns, according to CSI head coach Steve Gosar, and it appears that Arizona, Baylor, Kent State, Gonzaga, Utah and BYU are also off the radar at this point. The NCAA signing period begins April 15.

Montreal averaged 15.9 points and 8.9 rebounds for the 22-9 Golden Eagles.

Four members of the CSI women's team are expected to sign with NCAA Division I programs in the coming weeks. Soana Lucet has made visits to Memphis and Louisville. She'll visit Arizona this week along with teammate Maddy Plunkett, who sat out the season with a torn ACL. Lucet led CSI with 21.1 points and 8.2 rebounds a game. Plunkett has visited Middle Tennessee State and has interest from several four-year schools, where she'll have three years of eligibility after taking a medical redshirt. Point guard Martina Holloway (8.9 points, 9.5 assists) has offers from a number of schools, while LaCale Pringle-Buchanan (11.9 points, 6.3 rebounds, 3.9 steals) is likely headed to Utah State.

Jones will likely compete ing career and enroll as a stuwith Katreese "Kiki" Lockett for the starting point guard University-Idaho. role on next year's team. Lockett, who started at forward from Plain City, Georgetown, joined CSI in Utah, has also decided not to late January and redshirted. The Golden Eagles lose the season, but could wind up nation's assist leader in Martina Holloway.

Meanwhile, Raft River tributed 11.0 points, 4.3 High graduate Nicole Harper Tate and forwards Kalika has decided not to return to CSI for her sophomore season. Harper started 26 games as a freshman, averaging 5.3 points, 3.1 rebounds and 2.7 assists. Rogers said Harper plans to end her college play- Conference title.

Basterrechea said. "Nathan really pushes me, and I push him. I think he's one of the main reasons I did so well."

Notes: Wendell's Alyssa Nelson nearly took home four individual first-place honors at the meet. She won the 100 and 300 hurdles as well as the long jump, but was a foot short of first place in the triple jump, set tling for second to Buhl's Ellie Spencer.

NOTICE OF HEARING ON NAME CHANGE Case No.: CV-2009-0000164

A Petition to change the name of Zachary Tate Jones, born June 3, 1998 in Idaho Falls, Idaho residing at 1674 E 3000 S Wendell, Idaho 83355, has been filed in Gooding County District Court, Idaho. The name will change to Tate Bryson Zampedri, because: he has not had contact with his father for approximately 11 years. Tate has already started going by Tate Zampedri. It would be much easier if he could have the name legally.

The child's father is living and his address is Bingham County Jail Pocatello, Idaho 83402.

A hearing on the petition is scheduled for 2:00 o'clock PM on May 13, 2009, at the County Courthouse. Objections may be filed by any person who can show the court a good reason against the name change.

NOTICE OF APPLICATION FOR APPROVAL OF THIRD MITIGATION PLAN TO COMPENSATE

NOTICES

SNAKE RIVER FARM Notice is hereby given that on March 12, 2009, North Snake Ground Water District and Magic Valley Ground Water District (collectively referred to as "the districts"), c/o Randall C. Budge, Racine Olson Nye Budge & Bailey, PO Box 1391, Pocatello ID 83204-1391, submitted a Third Mitigation Plan (Over-the-Rim Plan) of North Snake Ground Water District and Magic Valley Ground Water District (plan or mitigation plan) to the Department of Water Resources (Department). On March 19, 2009 the districts augmented the plan. The Department will process this plan pursuant to the Department's Conjunctive Management Rules (IDAPA 37, Title 03, Chapter 11). The members of the districts hold ground water rights for domestic, municipal, commercial and industrial uses, and for irrigation of approximately 220,000 acres located mostly north of the Snake River within Gooding, Jerome, Lincoln, Minidoka, Blaine and Cassia Counties. Certain of these ground water rights have priority dates junior to the priority dates of certain water rights from spring sources that discharge to the Buhl to Thousand Springs reach of the Snake River. The ground water and the springs are interconnected sources of water. The districts have proposed the mitigation plan to mitigate injury to earlier priority surface water rights that may result from depletions under later priority ground water rights. The surface water rights which the mitigation plan proposes to benefit are: 36-4013B and 36-7148, both held by Clear Springs Foods for use at their Snake River Farm hatchery facility. The Over-the-Rim plan provides up to 3.0 cfs continuous flow of ground water or spring water directly into the head works of Clear Springs Foods hatchery facility north of Buhl. The plan proposes to permanently discontinue use of seven wells for irrigation and change the use of the wells from irrigation to year-round aquaculture. This will be accomplished by conversion of the irrigation of up to 2,000 acres near the site from ground water supply to surface water supply and utilization of the wells to supply water to Clear Springs Foods hatchery facility and/or utilization of a spring right held by the Idaho Department of Fish and Game for delivery to Clear Springs Foods hatchery facility.

The Department has not determined the adequacy of the proposed plan. A complete copy of the proposed plan is available for review at either the Department's State Office in Boise, the Department's Regional Office in Twin Falls, or may be viewed online at the following website along with other related documents:

http://www.idwr.idaho.gov/Calls/Spring%20Users%

20Calls/snake_river.htm

Any protest against approval of the plan must be filed with the Department of Water Resources, together with a protest fee of $25 on or before April 20, 2009. The protest must include a certificate of service showing that a copy of the protest has been mailed to or served on the districts. DAVID R. TUTHILL JR. Director

Phone call won't ease guilt caused by 20-year old affair

DEAR ABBY: I was pleased that you advised 'Remorseful in Georgia" (Jan. 27) to find another outlet for her guilt and "leave the scab alone." I was recently contacted by my fiance's former girlfriend, a woman who had made several attempts to break us up when we first became a couple. Although she apologized for the problems she tried so hard to cause between us, all it did was dredge the feelings of anger and anxiety up again. She was calling for purely selfish reasons — not to give me the chance to confront her, but under the guise of "wanting to be friends." Whatever made her think I would want her friendship?!

If "Remorseful" needs a way to rid herself of her guilt, I recommend she get therapy. She may be trying to escape her karma. In my experience, she can run, but she can't hide.

IN NEW YORK

DEAR UNTOUCHABLE: Some readers felt I should have preached forgiveness, and they referenced AA and the Bible – both of which advocate making amends to those we have harmed in the past. They may or may not be right, but I saw no reason for "Remorseful" to transfer her burden of guilt to the shoulders of the person she

IF APRIL 9 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: You will be more contented and serene when you get a whiff of romantic ardor this fall. In the meantime, your ambitions are at the center of everything you do and may cause restless discontent. Because you are still in an apprentice stage, you can't start anything of importance until you have earned your wings in August. You may capture the heart of a new love or just have enriching experiences with a permanent companion between September and January. don't agree with your reply to "Remorseful." It's never too late to say "I'm sorry," no matter what the offense. The words don't benefit only the person carrying the guilt. Someone who has been hurt in such a traumatic fashion needs to know that his or her pain has finally been acknowledged, even 20 years later.

Those women will never friends. But be "Remorseful" admitting her part in the betraval, albeit without comparing it to her - UNTOUCHABLE own past pain, could start both women on a journey to emotional healing. I am sure is so stupid as to be bitter that's why AA and similar support groups stress the need to seek forgiveness for past wrongs as one of the steps to keeping it together.

DIANE IN NEW HAMPSHIRE DEAR ABBY: I was in the same situation as "Remorseful," Although my husband and I had been

She was gracious. She laughed and said, "Honey, you did me the biggest favor anyone has ever done for me. You took him off my hands!" We laughed, we cried and DEAR ABBY: Sorry, but I had a wonderful conversation. I'm so glad I made that call.

 RELIEVED IN TEXAS DEAR ABBY: This is for "Remorseful" – the gal who feels guilt from 20 years ago for an affair she had. Why do women always feel the need to apologize for things that MEN do? The man was the adult here. The gal was 20 and living in a fantasyland of happily ever after. If the exwife feels anger, she should direct it where it is needed at the HUSBAND, not the young girl lured in with fake promises.

Get over it! If the ex-wife over a failed marriage from 20 years ago - that she herself probably had a hand in the demise of - then it's HER problem and not "Remorseful's." Stop letting the men off the hook. The husband didn't care, so why should she?

Five years ago: Four employees of Halliburton subsidiary KBR were killed in an attack on a fuel truck convoy near Baghdad; a U.S. soldier in the convoy, Sgt. Elmer Krause, was found dead weeks later. Four people went missing, including Army Specialist Keith M. Maupin, whose remains were found in 2008. The body of civilian truck driver Wiliam Bradley was found in January 2005; Thomas Hamill escaped his captors in May 2004; Timothy Bell remains unaccounted for.

One year ago: America's war commander in Iraq faced Congress for a second day; Army Gen. David Petraeus told lawmakers he was unlikely to endorse any fresh buildup of troops even if security in the country deteriorated. The Olympic torch was rerouted away from thousands of demonstrators and spectators who had crowded San Francisco's waterfront to witness the flame's symbolic journey to the Beijing Games during its

THE ACES ON BRIDGE® Bobby Wolff

"As for disappointing them, I should not so much mind; but I can't abide to disappoint myself." — Oliver Goldsmith

The final of the 1999 Junior World Championships in Florida saw Italy defeat USA comfortably. Even the best home-team results got smothered - look at today's deal, for example. Eric Greco of the U.S. team found one of the best plays of the tournament, but all it did was hold his losses to 5 IMPs!

On the opening lead of the heart 10 against four spades, Greco rose with the king and ran the diamond 10. He won the heart return in dummy and then passed the diamond nine after a lot of thought. He was trying to set up the diamonds for a discard from dummy, without letting East in. His line would work well enough if hearts were 5-2, but would have been very dangerous if hearts broke 4-3, and it might have led to running into a diamond ruff.

All was well, since Greco had read the cards correctly, and West could do no better than exit with a club when he took the second diamond. Declarer ruffed, cashed the top spades, and led the fourth diamond to pitch the heart loser, making the hand. Alas for USA, four spades doubled was let through in the other room when the first three tricks started the same way, but declarer then came to hand with a top spade to lead the diamond ace. West neglected to unblock his other top diamond on this trick, so East could not get in to cash the hearts, and the play transposed back to Greco's line.

ANSWER: Your hand is so good in support of clubs that a club slam may be in the offing. But if partner has short hearts, three no-trump may be best. To find out whether your values are working, bid three hearts now, and let partner decide if he wants to play no-trump or some other strain. When only two suits have been bid, you tell partner where you live, not where you have a concern.
