House kills gas tax, again

BOISE - The House on Thursday voted 37-32 to reject a one-year, 2-cent increase on the state's 25-cent-per-gallon gas tax, the second time anti-tax conservatives and Democrats aligned to vote down raising the cost of fuel.

The bill would've yielded

$17.6 million to repair Idaho's deteriorating state and local roads and bridges. Weeks ago, many of the same lawmakers voted against a three-year, 7-cent increase from Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter - a bill already scaled down as a compromise.

JFAC funds CAMP, local highways

Omnibus bill could stall in House

By Jared S. Hopkins Times-News writer

BOISE - State budget writers on Thursday agreed to use some of the state's $45 million in discretionary federal stimulus to fund the Comprehensive Aquifer Management Plan and road maintenance overseen by local highway officials.

Budget writers wrapped up their work in the 2009 Legislature after a second straight day of tense debate. The Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee unanimously agreed to spend $2 million to fund CAMP's first phase, and voted 11-9 to spend $17.4 million to directly address local highway needs - not state roads.

The CAMP funding came as a surprise, as lawmakers said throughout the session it was unlikely funds would be targeted for the anticipated $10 million cost of the first phase of projects benefiting the Eastern Snake Plain Aquifer.

The Idaho Water Resource Board planned to fund the initial phase with its own money.

"We also recognize next year that may even be harder," JFAC co-chairman Sen. Dean Cameron, R-Rupert,

State universities launch study of climate change

By Nate Poppino Times-News writer

HOLLISTER - Outside Hollister Elementary School, rain lashed the landscape. Earlier, hail had fallen in Jerome County.

Inside the school's gym, University of Idaho water-resources engineering professor Rick Allen prepared to talk to members of the Twin Falls Soil and Water Conservation District and Salmon River Canal Co. about climate change.

The weather didn't make it easier to pitch the subject to a skeptical crowd - about half raised their hands when asked if they thought warming trends were just a normal climate variation. But Allen was ready for that as he introduced a new five-year study on climate change's effects in Idaho. Whether man's actually warming the Earth or not, he asked, isn't it worth knowing what would happen if he is?

Scientists with the U of I, Boise State University and Idaho State University think it is. With help from the University of Washington, the three schools have launched a new research project applying various global prediction models to the Salmon River American white pelicans congregate on a small island off the southern bank of Lake Walcott Thursday afternoon at the Minidoka National Wildlife Refuge northeast of Rupert. Idaho Fish and Game is seeking public comment on a new pelican management plan to reduce the impact of pelicans on fish populations in southern and southwest Idaho.

Fish and Game proposes halving pelican populations

By Nate Poppino Times-News writer

The Idaho Department of Fish and Game intends to halve the number of pelicans nesting at two colonies in south-central and southeastern Idaho over the next five years, according to a draft management plan released this week.

Once on the decline, the birds have experienced tremendous growth across the West since the 1980s. One colony in the Minidoka National Wildlife Refuge on Lake Walcott grew from about 400 breeding birds in 2002 to more than 4,000 birds six years later. In the same time, a colony at Blackfoot Reservoir grew from 1,400 breeding birds to 2,400.

Fish and Game attributes part of the increases at Lake Walcott to a change in counting methods that started in 2006. But the document states the numbers are proof that the birds are thriving, and harming cutthroat trout and sport fisheries in eastern Idaho.

The agency's plan calls for reducing bird numbers by more than half through both lethal and non-lethal actions, while still maintaining a viable population: 700 breeding birds at the Blackfoot Reservoir and 2,100 in Lake Walcott.

To do that, the state department has to prove to the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service that the birds are harming fisheries - pelicans are protected under the Migratory Bird Treaty Act of 1918. The draft management plan provides plenty of documentation about why Fish and Game thinks fish in eastern Idaho are threatened. But it's remarkably silent about the Magic Valley.

That's because the department doesn't have the data to accurately

Pirates put Obama in 21st-century bind

By Anne Gearan Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON - A ragtag band of pirates has put President Barack Obama in a bind: He commands overwhelming firepower in the form of a growing flotilla of U.S. warships, but he doesn't want to use it.

Thursday's decision to Whooping cough reported in Lincoln Co.

Times-News

Health-district officials are asking parents to check their children's vaccination status and consider receiving booster vaccines themselves after five cases of pertussis were confirmed in Lincoln County.

The disease, more commonly known as whooping cough, is considered serious because it is frequently complicated by pneumonia and ear infections, especially in infants, according to the South Central Public Health District. Death is rare, however. Symptoms usually develop within one to two weeks of exposure and early signs include the persistent cough that gives the disease its name. The cough usually occurs in explosive bursts ending with a typical high-pitched whoop as the person catches their breath.

People with a cough are contagious for three weeks if untreated and for five days after treatment with antibiotics has begun. Those experiencing the symptoms should consult their health-care provider and limit exposure to others through good hygiene. Teens ages 11 to 18 and adults ages 19 to 64 should be vaccinated with a newly licensed booster.

"The last thing we want to do is start the CAMP process and then not be able to uphold our end of the agreement."

Cameron said funneling the $17.4 million toward local highway districts is the quickest way to repair infrastructure while creating jobs.

"It's short-term help — the need is there," said Rep. Jim Patrick, R-Twin Falls, who made the motion for the local highway money.

The Idaho Transportation Department's resources are already stretched to the maximum, Cameron said, adding that other sources of help — millions in stimulus; $82 million in new bonding if approved by the House; and new revenue if the Legislature agrees on a mechanism — are in the works.

The rest of the discretionary stimulus will go to:

- $7.4 million to reduce state employee payroll cuts from 5 percent to 3 percent
- $15 million for local water and wastewater projects
- $3 million for the Idaho Education Network

Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter's budget chief, Wayne Hammon, said most of the JFAC action Thursday is in line with his recommendations.

"The governor's very supportive of CAMP," Hammon said. "I don't think it's a bad appropriation by any means but there are some questions about when we should commit the $2 million."

The IEN is a broadband network designed to help schools in rural areas, and will eventually connect all state agencies.

"I see this as an opportunity to make sure our students across our state have equal access to education," said Rep. Wendy Jaquet, D-Ketchum.

The budget revisions — as well as those made Wednesday — are presented as an all-encompassing, omnibus bill, which essentially means it's all or nothing when put to a vote.

It also makes passage in the House uncertain, as Republicans have said their caucus is unified in supporting a 5 percent cut to state employee costs, not the 3 percent reduction that also uses stimulus money. The latter passed JFAC Wednesday on a 12-8 vote. "There's an amending order," said House GOP Caucus Chairman Ken Roberts, R-Donnelly, said when asked how the House will approach the omnibus bill.

federal or state, is ready, willing and able to throw a drowning man a brick," said Rep. Lenore Barrett, R-Challis.

Otter, who has championed new revenue for transportation since last year's session, responded with disappointment but said he will continue to work on reaching a solution.

"A legislative audit confirmed the need," Otter said in a statement after the vote. "For months now we have made every compromise, addressed every legitimate concern and provided every alternative that opponents wanted. Instead of working in the best interest of Idaho, 37 members of the House continue finding new excuses to do nothing. That is irresponsible. I have done and will continue doing everything I can."

But GOP House leaders aren't optimistic something will pass. Of Otter's original plans to raise $174 million annually after five years for transportation, only a bill to lift the ethanol exemption has passed the House.

"This House has gone through every computation, every machination, every permutation," House

Assistant Majority Leader Scott Bedke, R-Oakley said.

On the floor, Bedke argued for the tax increase to help pay off the "Connecting Idaho" bonding legislators approve each year to build roads.

"How many more years is it prudent fiscally to continue to bond without providing additional money into the highway distribution account?" he asked. "These types of things, these large projects — they don't turn on a dime."

Rep. Leon Smith, R-Twin Falls, debated the increase would amount to just a dollar a month for the average driver.

"We need to maintain our roads," he said. "I would urge your support for this piddly little bill."

Afterward, Smith — a former chairman of the state transportation board — said the roads will continue to deteriorate and wasn't optimistic about something new.

"We are intent on keeping our reputation as a do-nothing Legislature, and we did nothing again," he said.

Last year, Otter rejected a one-year, $68 million package on the grounds it wasn't a multi-year package.

describe the effects the large colony has on the area, said Fish and Game Commission Chairman Wayne Wright, who represents the region. So the department has proposed an adaptive plan that requires deeper studies of the colony before determining just what actions to take against it, he said.

State biologists, however, have monitored the Blackfoot Reservoir colony for five or six years now, and believe its effects on Yellowstone cutthroat trout in particular merit the population change.

"The cutthroat are in danger of even being listed if we're not careful," Wright said.

The department, he added, has "good anecdotal evidence" that the same problems exist in south-central Idaho. Some of the people who stock fish across the region say pelicans can take 95 percent of what goes in.

Fish and Game is taking public comments on the draft plan through May 5. The commission could vote on the matter at a May 14 meeting in Pocatello.

Comments will likely range from anglers frustrated with the number of sport fish the birds eat to bird advocates who maintain pelicans play an important role in the ecosystem and eat primarily non-sport fish.

Wright noted the dramatically different opinions on the topic, but said he thinks a number of people still aren't aware of the issue in general. The comment period is an attempt to change that, he said.

"We just want to make sure we stay on top of it and that we manage it correctly," he said.

Basin and Snake River Plain. Steering clear of any political debates on the topic, Allen said the scientists will examine the environmental and economic changes that could occur if warming trends alter snow melt, aquifer behavior and other natural processes.

Their findings could be of great significance to irrigators. Warming trends since 1920 already correspond with a 45- to 60-percent decrease in the amount of water contained in Pacific Northwest snowpacks, Allen said. In future years, spring snowpack is projected to decline further and melt earlier, while severe droughts become more common and winter floods become more of a risk.

Allen said he's excited to be working with the other two universities.

"We haven't always done that so well," he said.

But he noted that some of the hard data may be depressing for farmers on the Salmon Tract, plagued in recent years by lingering drought.

Things aren't looking the best this year either, said Ron Abramovich with the U.S. Natural Resources Conservation Service. He walked his audience through a recap of past stream flow predictions for Salmon Falls Creek — noting that supplies were tighter than expected in six of the past eight years — and warned canal shareholders to hedge their bets despite decent snowpack measurements and river predictions. Water allotments could be slightly less than last year's tight supply, he said.

Abramovich said his agency doesn't have an official opinion on climate change, but has tracked a change in weather behavior.

"What we're seeing is a greater degree of climate variability," he said.

What that means in the long term, Allen said, might not be clear until it happens.

"If we all live another 100 years, we'll see," Allen said.

Pirates

resolve the hostage situation and bring the pirates to justice," Secretary of State Hillary Rodham Clinton said while Obama remained silent for a second straight day.

"Piracy may be a centuries-old problem but we are working to bring an appropriate 21st century response," Clinton said.

That modern-day response included more warships — a remnant of 20th-century U.S. exceptionalism — as well as high-tech surveillance planes buzzing above the crisis waters.

In private, however, U.S.

officials acknowledged there were way too few to counter a rising scourge of piracy along the lawless Somali coast.

Even as more Navy ships, including the guided-missile frigate USS Haliburton, arrive near the Horn of Africa, there will be fewer than two dozen international warships patrolling an area nearly five times the size of Texas.

"It's a big area and you can't be everywhere at once," Pentagon spokesman Bryan Whitman said Thursday.

The Obama administration is also considering changes to an international anti-piracy partnership proposed by the Bush administration in its last weeks.

Outside advisers have recommended expanding the task force mandate to hunt pirate "mother ships" far from shore. These non-descript larger vessels shelter the small speedboats that pirates usually use to quickly close on a commercial ship and scramble aboard.

"We are looking for ways to increase the effectiveness of what we are doing," Clinton said.

The top U.N. envoy for Somalia, in Washington for previously scheduled talks, said the piracy problem cannot be resolved until proper governance is restored in the country.

"This problem is at sea, but the root causes are on land," Ahmedou Ould-Abdallah said. He urged U.N. Security Council members to urgently revisit rampant insecurity and instability in Somalia, which has not had a functioning government since 1991.

"We go after rogue states, why not anarchic states?" he said.

The International Maritime Bureau and the International Maritime Organization said attacks in the Gulf of Aden and off the coast of Somalia more than doubled from 2007 to 2008.

Two Twin Falls school board seats up for grabs in May election

By Ben Botkin
Times-News writer

Two seats on the Twin Falls School District's board of trustees are up for grabs in the election next month.

Voters will elect two trustees — one for the zone 1 seat and one for the zone 3 seat of the school board — on May 19.

Candidates have until 5 p.m. April 17 to file paperwork declaring candidacy with the Twin Falls School District office.

The zone 1 seat is currently held by Bryan Matsuoka, who has been on the school board since 1998.

The zone 3 seat is held by Dan King, who was appointed there to fill a vacancy in June 2008. King replaced Vera Redman on the board.

Matsuoka, also the board's chairman, said he hasn't decided yet if he's going to run. King said he intends to run for election this year and has turned in his petition.

"I've always felt education is important," King said, adding that having spent some time on the board gaining experience will be helpful. "I've enjoyed it."

Candidates must live in the zone of the seat they are seeking.

Petitions must be signed by at least five voters residing in the candidate's zone.

School board members are not paid and are elected to three-year terms.

SIRCOMM to search for new director

Ad for Shearman's position to go up next week

By Nate Poppino
Times-News writer

JEROME — Officials will hire a new director for the Southern Idaho Regional Communications Center, filling the job instead of dividing its duties among other personnel, the center's governing board decided Thursday.

Former Director John Shearman resigned March 6, two days after the SIRCOMM Joint Powers Board placed him on administrative leave. Since then, board Chairman Tom Mikesell and other board members have helped fill in at the dispatch center while they and center staff reviewed operations and whether Shearman's position should be filled.

After meeting behind closed doors for more than an hour with attorney Kirtlan Naylor, board members announced Thursday afternoon that they will advertise the vacant director's position. The opening could be posted on the Web sites of SIRCOMM, the four counties it covers and the Idaho Department of Labor by the middle of next week, Mikesell said. It will likely be advertised for a couple of weeks before the board interviews candidates.

Board members spoke of possibly bringing a new director on board by the start of May. The board will continue to evaluate the center's organizational structure and finances with the new director, they said.

"It's important that we get a new leader in SIRCOMM as quickly as possible," Mikesell said.

It's still not clear why Shearman was suspended, though past discussions have seemed to imply that he lost his job due to financial issues and the direction he was steering the center. Mikesell offered no further comment on that situation on Thursday. Shearman himself declined comment on the matter last month.

Also Thursday, the board approved a recent audit of the center's finances and discussed a number of other items, including concerns that dispatch-equipment vendors are giving people access to SIRCOMM channels without asking for proof they can have it.

Members also heard an update on attempts to recover E-911 fees from phone carriers who use the Internet or similar networks for communications.

Known as Voice-over-Internet-Protocol or VoIP carriers, many seem to be either not passing on the E-911 fees or relying on third-party companies that aren't doing the work, said administrative assistant Elara Smith. One company, she said, may even have called SIRCOMM to ask how the fees are used while pretending to be someone else. It's unknown how much new revenue the fees might provide if paid.

SIRCOMM handles more than 40 police, fire and EMS agencies in Gooding, Jerome, Lincoln and Twin Falls counties — everything in the four counties except for the city of Twin Falls' police and fire departments. Its current budgets total roughly $2 million, paid for largely by the counties and through various fees.

The governing board is made up of one county commissioner from each of the four counties. Mikesell is a Twin Falls County commissioner.

Blaine schools mull biodiesel tank for buses

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

HAILEY — The Blaine County School District wants to put in a 12,000-gallon biodiesel tank just northeast of its baseball fields near the Community Campus.

Access to its own biodiesel would save the school district 1,455 bus trips — or 3,000 miles a year — to fill up the 27 buses parked at the district's bus barn at the Community Campus, said Mike Chatterton, the district's financial manager.

It would save $10,000 a year in wages because bus drivers won't have to drive to fill up, he said, adding it will save middleman costs incurred from buying fuel at a Hailey service station.

In addition, it will reduce emissions and fumes, he said.

Biodiesel, which is made from a blend of vegetable oils and diesel, releases fewer emissions than petroleum-only diesel. The B20 biodiesel the district wants to use contains 20 percent biodiesel compared with the 5 percent biodiesel that is currently available in the valley.

"When the school district built the bus facility, the city asked us to investigate the possibility of using biodiesel," Chatterton said. "So this helps us with our relations with Hailey."

The school district would put the $80,000 tank behind a retaining wall that's out of the avalanche zone.

Only the top corner would be visible to any of the neighborhood residents, said planner John Gaeddert, who added that the school district would be willing to put in landscaping to hide the visible corner.

The tank would sit above ground on a concrete slab.

It would be placed inside a rubber membrane and surrounded by rebar and concrete, making it practically impossible for anything to leak, said Rex Squires, the director's transportation director.

A tanker truck would only have to bring fuel three or four times a year, Chatterton said.

Becki Keefer, one of several neighborhood residents who turned out Wednesday night to hear about the plans, applauded the school district for pursuing biodiesel. But she questioned whether something of a light industrial nature should be put in a residential neighborhood.

It would be great, she said, if it could be put somewhere where other public entities, such as the city or the valley-wide bus system, could share it.

Chatterton said he agreed with her. "But we don't have that option right now."

About 1,300 students ride the bus to school, up from 1,100 before gas prices escalated, Chatterton said. That's a third of the school population.

Many other students bicycle or walk to school.

Businessman shot in Lincoln Co. recovering

Still no arrests made in April 1 shooting

By Andrea Jackson
Times-News writer

A Shoshone businessman shot outside his home on April 1 was recovering Thursday in a Boise hospital, as authorities continued to investigate without making any arrests.

Craig Hadden was in serious condition on Thursday afternoon at Saint Alphonsus Regional Medical Center, an improvement from his previous listing of critical, according to the hospital.

Hadden, 61, was shot in his chest while leaving his Lincoln County home on April 1 at about 9:20 a.m. Deputies found him lying in front of his garage, according to press releases from the Lincoln County Sheriff's Office.

Hadden is associated with three businesses in Shoshone: Hadden Realty, Idaho Yak and the Main Stop gas and convenience store.

"He is doing better," said Alejandra Garcia, Hadden's assistant at Hadden Realty, on Thursday. "He's recuperating, he's talking."

More than a week after the shooting, Garcia says she still wants to know who shot her boss.

"We wish we knew, but they don't move quick," she said. "I hope he comes back soon."

Lincoln County Sheriff Kevin Ellis on Thursday said authorities are still "interviewing parties." And the case has its challenges, he said.

"I guess the biggest challenge is that we're not like CSI," said Ellis of the television program. "We can't do it all in a half hour. It takes time to process evidence."

Last week, authorities said they got a search warrant for Hadden's property to look "for any possible evidence that may have been left behind."

Authorities have declined to discuss any evidence, but multiple agencies are cooperating to try and crack the case, including the Gooding County Sheriff's Office, Twin Falls County Sheriff's Office and the Idaho State Police.

Last week, Ellis said authorities were investigating "several persons of interest." On Thursday, he confirmed those "several persons of interest" have not changed, but declined to disclose how many there are.

More than a week after the shooting, Garcia said she thinks authorities should know who pulled the trigger. "I think by now they should know," she said, adding she hopes to visit Hadden this weekend.

Lincoln County Prosecutor E. Scott Paul did not return calls for comment.

Calls to Hadden's residence have not been returned.

SV council reverses dispatch funding decision

One-year agreement dependent on legal opinions, governance model

By Ariel Hansen
Times-News writer

HAILEY — The Sun Valley City Council reversed itself on Monday night, voting to approve a temporary solution to fund consolidated dispatch in the county, at the request of Blaine County Commissioner Larry Schoen.

The council had voted last month to reject the solution, which divides each jurisdiction's fund allocation based on its number of dwelling units. Councilmen said they preferred allocation based on how many calls to first responders each jurisdiction makes.

Following the rejection, Schoen presented a suggestion making the dwelling-unit solution temporary, to allow the parties to do several things over the next year. First, he would ask the state's attorney general for a letter indicating that office's opinion about who is financially responsible.

Schoen has said the county believes all participating jurisdictions must pay, but representatives for those jurisdictions have indicated they believe the county should legally be wholly responsible.

Second, he would have the first-responder users' group that originally recommended the calls-for-service model reassess that recommendation based on suggestions that have been floated since.

He also wants each jurisdiction to look hard at its needs and budgets when they come back to the table.

The council unanimously voted to accept the temporary funding mechanism, with the understanding that during the next year a long-term governance model will be developed.

"We either need to play together or not at all," said Sun Valley Mayor Wayne

Willich, who referred to last year's failed initiative that would have based funding on home value. "If this is a stalling tactic on anybody's part to wind up for another ballot measure this fall, we're going to get really cranky."

Councilman Nils Ribi also re-expressed his intention to ask the state emergency communications commission for its recommendation on a funding solution.

He noted not all parties needed to sign on to that effort for it to go forward, but that it would an additional expert opinion to the discussion.

Blaine Co. to replace airport governance model

By Ariel Hansen
Times-News writer

HAILEY — Whatever airport replaces Friedman Memorial Airport will have to serve all of Blaine County — and surrounding counties, too. The Blaine County commissioners on Tuesday agreed with a blue ribbon commission that the five-seat body governing the new airport must represent the entire county.

"I think this is a good governance model," said Commissioner Larry Schoen. "It allows for participation across the community (and) there's ample opportunity to find well-qualified members."

The model includes one member elected by the aviation community, one directly representing the county commissioners (who are legally responsible for the airport), and three representatives nominated from the three county commission districts.

The nominating committees that will suggest these representatives will include a commissioner as well as representatives from the cities and other interests in each district. The commissioners will choose from among two or three nominees, and will have the right to remove any member without cause.

Len Harlig, a former county commissioner and current member of the Friedman airport governance board, raised several concerns about this model, particularly that it might become a political body rather than business-driven. He noted that some north-county reluctance to relocate the airport may translate to antipathy on the new governance board if the commissioners aren't careful.

"You're going to be placing at least one person on your authority who has a vested interest in remaining at Friedman, expanding potential for conflict," Harlig said. "I've sat on your side of the desk and been presented with limited alternatives and was forced to choose the least of the evils."

Commissioner Tom Bowman, who has been most involved in the process, said he feels there are enough filters in place to minimize that possibility, and the other commissioners agreed. Bowman will next take the model to Blaine's cities to get input before the commissioners vote to enact it.

Law & Disorder... in Cassia County

April 5 police reports:

Possession of drug paraphernalia:

Police were dispatched to a pink house in Burley and questioned Juan Quintero, 18, for suspicion of drinking. The teenager, according to the report, hesitated to say when he was born but eventually said, "May 31 ... 19 ... 90." Deputy Matt Arthur suspected that Quintero had been smoking marijuana. "I told him that he smelled of marijuana," the report reads. "I asked Juan to stick out his tongue ... I noticed a green film across his tongue. With my training and experience, this is also indicative to someone who had smoked marijuana."

Driving under the influence:

Jonathan English, 40, of Burley, was arrested near the Pomerelle Ski Resort. English's license was suspended from a previous DUI arrest. According to the report, he drove onto the guard rail and rolled his 1981 Toyota pickup on its side. He was arrested for driving under the influence and driving without privileges. "He said it was a good day there skiing," the report reads.

Vandalism:

Police were dispatched to Burley High School about a dead animal on the property. "The animal carcass appeared to be a decaying brown and white calf," the report reads. "The calf was placed on top of the school's rock at the front of the building. The number '21' was written in the grass next to the rock with orange spray paint."

April 6 police reports:

Suspicious person:

A Burley woman, 22, reported that an Asian man who doesn't speak English has been walking around her neighborhood over the past two months and using his laptop while sitting in alleys. She suspects the man is stealing wireless Internet services from various houses. According to the police report, "The male subject is always dressed in black, and now there is a second male subject walking around with him."

Preparing for the swing...

...Is Just Good Business.

Do you remember being pushed in a swing as a child?

Did you ever stop to think that in life, you never really get off that swing. Up and down, back and forth, you just took it for granted that the swing would go both ways.

That's a lesson sometimes forgotten as adults. To keep the swing moving, you had to lean back, pump your feet, and hold on for dear life. During an economic down-turn, you have to lean back a little farther, pump a little harder, and hold on a little tighter. It's the only way you can ride it back to the top.

In southern Idaho, we're lucky things are a little more stable here than other places, but that's because we keep pumping when others don't. We never stop looking for new business opportunities, we push each other to make sure everyone keeps swinging and we constantly prepare for the up-turn. Because, if you're not prepared when the swing changes direction, you're likely to fall out. And that's the best way we know of to miss out on the ride.

Here's the word on the Street

This is the 15th anniversary of the Lillehammer Winter Games in Norway, where Picabo Street won her first Olympic skiing medal ...

So whatever happened to the earth girl from Triumph who astonished everyone by becoming a world-beater? ...

For starters, she turned 38 last week — impossible to believe if you look at a photo of the baby-faced 23-year-old standing on the medals platform in 1994 ... Street has a 4-year-old son and got married on a mountaintop in Alabama last fall ...

She divides her time between the Birmingham suburb of Gardendale (population 13,402), where her 32-year-old husband, John Reeser lives, and Park City, Utah, where she arranges ski clinics and works as a TV personality and motivational speaker ...

Street retired after the 2002 Salt Lake City Olympics with two Olympic medals and nine World Cup victories ... Her World Cup season championship in the downhill in 1995 was the first by an American in a speed skiing event ...

Born and raised in Triumph — an old mining camp in the mountains five miles east of Ketchum — Street was a member of the Hailey Ski Team, but went to school at Rowland Hall-St. Mark's School in Salt Lake City, which has a world-renowned ski academy ... Street's mother, Dee, still lives in Hailey ...

YOU MIGHT NOT want to bet the rent on it, but New York statistical whiz Nate Silver is predicting Idaho may legalize gay marriage as early as 2011 ...

Silver, who parlayed his knowledge of statistics into a career predicting sports teams' performance, recently branched out into political prognostication on his Web site, FiveThirtyEight.com ... He told NewWest, a Missoula, Mont.-based online magazine, that he looked at a series of political and demographic variables in Idaho and attempted to forecast the percentage of the vote a marriage ban would receive ...

"Marriage bans, however, are losing ground at a rate of slightly less than 2 points per year," he told NewWest ... "So, for example, we'd project that a state in which a marriage ban passed with 60 percent of the vote last year would only have 58 percent of its voters approve the ban this year" ...

But there's a disclaimer ... "It is entirely possible, of course, that past trends will not be predictive of future results," Silver said ... "There could be a backlash against gay marriage, somewhat as there was a backlash against drug legalization in the 1980s?..."

Has he been to Idaho? ...

Rupert weighs Howarth property demolition

By Laurie Welch
Times-News writer

RUPERT — Rupert city officials are taking a second look at a proposal from an individual who wants to tear down the wooden portion of a building referred to as the Howarth property, after reviewing the costs the city would incur to perform the demolition itself.

The property at 725 Scott Ave. was gifted to the city by the previous owners and was declared surplus in 2004. City officials have struggled since to find an economical way of disposing of the property.

Rupert City Superintendent Dennis Andrew said if the city paid to have the taller wooden portion removed for salvage by James Ahrens of Georgetown as proposed, it would cut the city's labor to remove the remaining brick structure by 50 to 70 percent.

Costs for the city to demolish both the wooden and brick structures came in at $30,375.

Andrew said Ahrens indicated he could start on the project right away and estimated completion in 30 days.

The city would still have to deal with the foundation of the wooden building as well as the brick portion, Andrew said. The city would also have to dispose of the unsalvageable material from the wooden building demolition site. And the city's attorney would need to draft a contract and check on Ahrens' insurance.

Rupert City Council Chairman Mike Brown said the city would have to make sure it removed itself from any liability during the proposed salvage but said it idea looked promising.

Rupert City Attorney Kelly Anthon said he will perform the necessary preliminary checks before the council makes a final decision.

"My only question is where was he four years ago," said Councilman Todd McGhie.

You better get used to those highway potholes

The rejection by the Idaho House of Representatives on Thursday of a proposal to raise the state gasoline tax by 2 cents to cover the costs of road repairs was bad enough.

But the same day, the Legislature’s Joint-Finance Appropriations Committee voted to spend all $17 million of federal transportation stimulus money on highway districts.

If you’re keeping score, that’s secondary roads $17 million, primary roads $0. What’s wrong with this picture?

Primary highways — defined as those administered by the Idaho Transportation Department — carry 54 percent of the vehicle miles of travel in Idaho. Interstates alone handle 41 percent. Traffic on the state highway system has more than doubled since 1984.

Not that local highway districts don’t need help too. They receive just 38 percent of state funding for roads, and many Magic Valley districts — Jerome, Hillsdale, Wendell, Gooding and Murtaugh in particular — have struggled to maintain highways under increasing dairy industry traffic.

But there are many highway districts — Twin Falls, for example — with good roads and relatively modest traffic compared to primary highways.

Gov. C.L. “Butch” Otter called the House’s action “irresponsible,” and he’s right.

“For months now we have made every compromise, addressed every legitimate concern and provided every alternative that opponents wanted,” Otter said Thursday. “Instead of working in the best interest of Idaho, 37 members of the House continue finding new excuses to do nothing.”

Several weeks ago, while arguing for the governor’s original 7-cents-a-gallon-over-three-years proposal, Rep. Leon Smith, R-Twin Falls, said if lawmakers failed to pass a highway funding bill, this would be a “do-nothing Legislature.” It’s hard to argue otherwise.

For the second consecutive year, legislators have failed to address Idaho’s mounting highway repair deficit. By the time they convene in January for the next session, maintenance problems will be well on the way to becoming a structural crisis.

Meanwhile, JFAC might want to reconsider sending all the stimulus dollars to the highways districts. After all, that’s all the new maintenance funding Idaho is going to get this year.

Our view: For the second year, the Idaho Legislature has failed to address highways — a linchpin of the state’s economy.

What do you think? We welcome viewpoints from our readers on this and other issues.

Tobacco may soon be a regulated drug

It is an odious victory, yet a victory nonetheless. After millions of premature deaths from cigarettes since the first surgeon general’s warnings on packs in the mid-1960s, the House voted last week, 298-112, to give the Food and Drug Administration the authority to regulate tobacco.

DERRICK Z. JACKSON

Henry Waxman, the California crusader on this issue for nearly three decades, called the vote historic, though “it has taken us far too long to get to this point ... FDA is the only agency with the right combination of scientific expertise, regulatory experience, and public health mission to oversee these products effectively.”

The measure now heads to the Senate where it will be championed by Massachusetts Senator Edward M. Kennedy, who has declared tobacco “the most lethal of all consumer products.” Kennedy will face some opposition by tobacco-state colleagues such as North Carolina’s Richard Burr. But even the No. 1 recipient of tobacco campaign contributions on Capitol Hill, Senate minority leader Mitch McConnell of Kentucky, acknowledged earlier this year the tidal wave of health concerns about tobacco, citing public no-smoking ordinances throughout his state.

“While we are still an important tobacco state, it is not as pervasive as it used to be,” McConnell said. “... The tobacco culture has largely ended in Kentucky.”

The odious part is that tobacco culture is not going away anytime soon. Tobacco still has its tentacles reaching insidiously into state and local politics. Take North Dakota, for instance. Last month, a bid to ban tobacco products on state college campuses failed and last week, the North Dakota House voted down a bill to ban smoking in cars by adults if children under 16 are inside. The law was proposed by middle school children in Williston. One Republican, Representative Darrell Nottestad of Grand Forks, supported the bill saying, “An infant in a smoking car has no one to speak for it.”

Congress and the Obama administration have done a great service by jacking up the federal cigarette tax this month by 62 cents a pack. As many studies have shown, raising taxes cuts smoking rates. But that still leaves plenty of poor countries to prey on and despite tobacco-control initiatives in many countries, smoking-related deaths are currently on track to rise from its current 5.4 million a year to 8 million people a year, according to the World Health Organization. The CEO of Philip Morris International, Louis Camilleri, earned $37 million in compensation last year, a 68 percent raise. Unlike Detroit car executives who were shamed out of their corporate jets, Camilleri’s compensation includes personal use of the company jet, the Associated Press reported last month.

The bill passed by the House would limit more than ever outdoor advertising near schools, ban remaining sports and entertainment sponsorships, ban deceptive “light” and “mild” descriptions of cigarettes and allow the FDA to limit the amount of key ingredients such as nicotine and limit or reduce other ingredients such as menthol or candy-like flavors.

But in order to reduce political roadblocks that could easily be put up by an industry that has thrown $62 million in campaign cash at congressional and presidential races since 1990, the legislation would grant the tobacco industry nonvoting status on a new tobacco products scientific advisory committee. Tobacco manufacturers would get two seats and tobacco growers would get a third. Seven of the nine voting members would be scientists, doctors, or otherwise from the healthcare field.

That understandably rankled the most ardent of tobacco control advocates, but it was enough for Philip Morris to break ranks with lesser cigarette makers to support the legislation, and still retain the support of groups like the American Cancer Society, the American Lung Association, the American Heart Association, and the Campaign for Tobacco-Free Kids. That Philip Morris or someone from the tobacco industry is about to become an official arm of the government is annoying, but it is better than the endless arms race of lawyers, false advertising, and feel-good cigarette sponsorships. The tobacco bill means of course that cigarettes themselves will not be banned. But America has moved one step closer to blunting the influence of Big Tobacco.

State transparency Web site awaits better times

Idahoans foot the bill for state government. They deserve to have a clear understanding of how their tax dollars are spent. The difficulties arrive when we debate the details of what constitutes government transparency, how to pay for it, and what benefits it will provide.

There is no hard-and-fast guarantee putting the state’s checkbook online will save tax dollars. However, making sure taxpayers know how, and where, their money is spent is good government. During the years I served as chairwoman of the House Revenue and Taxation committee, I learned that increasing public oversight improves the process of governing.

As state controller, I am responsible for maintaining Idaho’s financial systems. This gives me unique insight into what it will take to build and maintain a state transparency Web site, aka online checkbook. There are very real one-time and ongoing costs associated with putting the state’s financial data online. It is appropriate for the Legislature to weigh these costs, particularly considering the current eco-

READER COMMENT

nomie climate.

House Bill 263, which failed in the House of Representatives, sought to impose a legislative mandate for a government financial transparency Web site, when my office is already preparing to deliver this service. It would not be prudent to legislate a transparency solution that fails to solicit citizen input, does not provide the types of information taxpayers want to see online, and overlooks the importance of designing a cost effective method of extracting data from our financial systems.

Any transparency project must also recognize that raw data about expenditures is of limited value, unless we know the context behind the expenditures.

The state controller’s office has already been working to put Idaho’s financial data online, and to establish how much this project will cost. Prior to this year’s legislative session, my office reviewed other state’s transparency efforts, talked to citizens and advocacy groups, discussed the project with legislators, built a model Web site, and laid the groundwork for putting Idaho’s financial information online. If now were the prudent time to spend your tax dollars on a transparency Web site, my office would be poised to deliver.

But in consideration of the turbulent economy, now is not the right time to spend the estimated $250,000 needed to implement this project. That’s why I withdrew my funding request for this project. There are other, more pressing needs elsewhere in state government.

All Idaho citizens have access to our state’s financial data through the Idaho Public Records Act. While this process is not as convenient as a transparency Web site, it does ensure the people have access to information about how their tax dollars are spent. Public records requests also provide a greater amount of detail, specificity, and context that a transparency Web site cannot match.

My office also publishes a variety of reports, including the state’s Comprehensive Annual Financial Report and Legislative Handbook, which provides detailed information about the state’s finances. These reports can be downloaded from my Web site at <http://www.sco.idaho.gov>.

Government must ensure the accounting of your tax dollars is clear and open for public scrutiny. HB 263 engaged our legislators in a vital debate about government transparency. Ultimately, the Legislature understood a collaborative process, not a legislative mandate, would best serve the people of Idaho.

When the economy improves for Idaho’s families, the time will be right to invest the tax dollars needed to bring greater illumination to state finances by making this information available online, and the state controller’s office will be ready to deliver.

Donna Jones, a Payette Republican, is serving her first term as state controller. She is responding to legislation proposed by state Rep. Phil Hart, R-Athol, that would put the state’s financial records online.

HOW THEY VOTED

Here’s south-central Idaho legislators’ vote in the House to kill the gas tax bill, HB 135a, which failed, 32-37:

No: Rep. Maxine Bell, R-Jerome, and Rep. Donna Pence, D-Gooding.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

If you've had enough, plan to attend park gathering

Have you had enough yet? Of bills being passed that have not been read, higher taxes, Pelosi running the country, sharing the wealth, political correctness, earmarks, corrupt government. It is time we, the people, use our First Amendment rights and petition the government for a redress of grievances while we still have this right.

If you have not noticed, we have slid into socialism and are heading to Marxism: Since the G20, our economic sovereignty has been abolished. Are you willing to wait for more change?

I have sat and watched our freedoms being taken bill by bill, lie by lie. I daily see our Constitution is being shredded, and I wonder what happened to that revolutionary spirit of our forefathers? They mutually pledged to each other their Lives, their fortunes, and their sacred honor; they knew how expensive the price of freedom is and they paid it. They left us a great inheritance, a free sovereign nation, the Bill Of Rights, the Declaration of Independence, the Constitution of the United States of America, the wisest document next to the Bible.

We the people need to pass this great inheritance on to our children and grandchildren. When was the last time you read these documents? If it has been a long time, don't feel bad. I don't think this government has read them either. If you have found that revolutionary spirit of our forefathers and are tired of sitting and watching and have had enough, then join us April 11 at the Twin Falls City Park on Sixth Street and Shoshone Street North at noon.

"Let us be sure that those who come after will say of us in our time that in our time we did everything that could be done. We finished the race; we kept them free; we kept the faith" (Ronald Reagan).

Traffic light is welcome sign in T.F.

I am writing to thank the city of Twin Falls for putting up "Ashley's Light," the light that is on the corner of North College Road and Washington Street.

I have given that light that name because of the accident involving Ashley, which happened in December of last year. I have lived near that intersection in the past and have known how dangerous it is. Because of that I have avoided that intersection many times.

A gentleman wrote in some time ago stating that the girl had died. Actually, Ashley is still alive and is rehabilitating in a Boise hospital. Only by the grace of God will she be coming home very soon.

Don't point your finger at law officers

Ariana Marin, I wish to respond to your letter of April 2.

Our world has drastically changed in the last 20 years. Every day, someone, including children, commits violent acts such as shooting sprees or even killing their own family members. The profession of the peace officer has had to adapt in order to effectively keep the peace and protect the citizens. Police officers are human and are who we trust to protect us and help keep order in a world full of many who are sadly disorderly, to say the least. If you put yourself in their situations, what would you do? If you think you will have time to weigh your options and think about a plan of action, you're wrong. Peace officers are trained in what to do, but making a split-second decision in an emergency with a person or persons who aren't being rational isn't so easy.

Consider the huge amount of responsibility on one's shoulders in such a scenario. They must think about the person they're dealing with — very unpredictable and potentially dangerous; they must consider the safety of the citizens there at the scene; they must think about their own welfare (police officers are parents, sons, daughters, etc., also). This is only a limited list of concerns, all of which must be considered in less than a few seconds, perhaps.

Consider if you were the person in danger. Who would you blame if you or one of your loved ones was fatally hurt? My guess is the police officer. Most of the public don't risk their lives for others by choice. I challenge you to consider the dynamics of situations such as you wrote about before pointing your finger at the ones that are there to protect you as well as the bad guys.

Sound familiar?

And hedge funds shall save them. The government plans to woo private equity firms with tax breaks and other financial goodies to win their help bailing out banks. Never mind that just last summer, the same firms came under fire for the favorable tax treatment they receive.

Treasury Secretary Timothy Geithner last month unveiled his plan to jump-start the banking system with the Public-Private Investment Program, or PPIP.

It calls for Treasury to combine as much as $100 billion in bailout money with private capital to buy toxic assets lurking on banks' books. To get hedge funds to buy into these rancid asset pools, the government plans a slew of inducements and guarantees that basically shield the hedge funds from risk.

The hope is that the bad loans can be sold later at a profit, which will repay taxpayers and generate a profit for the private investors.

If it sounds familiar, it should. Geithner's taking a page from the savings and loan debacle.

Back in 1988, the Federal Home Loan Bank Board developed the Southwest Plan, in which the government took bad assets from failed thrifts and pooled them in the Resolution Trust Corp., which sold them later. The rest of the assets including deposits and loans not in default were bundled and sold to investors.

"I keep harkening back to the RTC and the bailout that occurred then, which was largely successful," said Walter Stuart, an attorney with Vinson & Elkins, who represented Southwest Plan investors.

This time, the banks will sell the troubled assets through an auction process, which should set prices for securities that banks have been unable to value.

There's a key difference between the Southwest Plan and the PPIP. In the S&L crisis, institutions failed and were seized by the government before their assets were sold.

This time, the government propped up the banks, which will choose what to sell.

The Southwest Plan offers another cautionary tale for today. About a year after the plan was implemented, Congress became worried bank investors were making too much easy money. So it passed a law that reduced the returns retroactively, sparking a slew of lawsuits.

The S&L bailout succeeded, but that doesn't mean PPIP will. After all, PPIP's success hinges on some of the same investors who fed the bad habits that caused this crisis.

A favorite hedge fund investing strategy, for example, was to buy credit-default swaps that AIG and other firms peddled, the same soured investments that have forced billions in bailouts.

The hedgies combined the swaps purchases with short sales of stocks, especially shares of companies whose stock would be vulnerable to mark-to-market accounting write-downs, betting the shares would decline.

The result: Some of the biggest hedge funds made hefty profits last year, even as the rest of the economy cratered.

The 25 highest-earning hedge fund managers took home a combined $11.6 billion, making last year the third-best on record, according to Institutional Investor magazine. And now, these recession profiteers are being tapped to bail out the system they helped trash.

Unfortunately, that, too, sounds all too familiar.

Developer plans 84-acre business park in Burley

Primm says city 'poised to grow'

By Damon Hunzeker
Times-News writer

BURLEY — The River's Edge Business Park in Burley will, despite the name, not be on the edge of the river — at least not until phase two of the operation begins.

Phase one, expected to begin this summer, encompasses 60.5 acres on the south side of West 16th St. and 23.5 acres on the north side.

Jim Primm, of Twin Falls, along with his partner, owns the property and envisions office/retail buildings, apartments, a convenience store, a truck plaza, an industrial campus, and storage units.

Much of the allure for Primm's company — PR93 — relates to Burley's infrastructure improvements in the industrial area to accommodate Pacific Ethanol, Dot Foods, Packing Specialties, and other companies.

But a general feeling about the area is equally responsible for the massive project.

"Burley is poised to grow. It's a great recreation area, with 32 miles of navigable river," Primm said. "Burley is very pro-growth. We haven't seen any city in the last three to five years with people more excited about bringing new businesses to their community."

As far as the industrial-campus portion of the project goes, some of the businesses Primm and the city hope to attract are companies affected by Proposition

2 in California last year — which essentially gave businesses that raise animals in caged environments 24 months to either shut down or relocate.

Those companies will need to begin the process of moving within a year, Primm said, and he expects some of them to come to Burley.

"We're marketing to large corporations with a lot of employees," Primm said.

"They're all ag-based, so it will fit in well with the community. We hope the whole Magic Valley will benefit from each one of these companies."

Because of the recession and diminished financing, the project is running about six months behind schedule.

However, Primm said a lot of factors have recently come

Shoppers check out beds for sale inside Costco in Mountain View, Calif. Warehouse operator Costco Wholesale Corp. said same-store sales fell more than analysts expected. But the figure rose after adjusting for plunging gas prices and the stronger dollar.

U.S. shoppers stay cautious, but sales declines ease

By Mae Anderson
Associated Press writer

NEW YORK — March same-store sales fell for the sixth straight month, as U.S. consumers continued to shop cautiously and stick mostly to necessities such as food, but there were some glimmers of stabilization in retailers' reports on Thursday.

The later Easter hurt some results — notably Wal-Mart Stores Inc. — but several retailers predicted strong April sales and boosted first-quarter guidance.

Discounters continued to outperform other sectors while the luxury market remained weak as shoppers continued looking for deals.

Retailers have been slashing costs and cutting inventory in an effort to improve results amid weak consumer spending.

closely watched by economists and analysts because it accounts for 70 percent of all U.S. economic activity. Any sign of stability could be a hint of a bottom to the recession.

While many retailers reported same-store sales declines, some boosted at least the low end of their quarterly guidance including TJX Cos., American Eagle Outfitters Inc., Hot Topic Inc., Aeropostale Inc., J.C. Penney Co. and others.

According to a preliminary tally by the International Council of Shopping Centers, same-store sales fell 2.1 percent in March. But ICSC Chief Economist Michael Niemira said that includes a 3 percentage point decline related to the later Easter and calendar shift.

Niemira added that because of Easter, a shift in the calendar and the plunge in gas prices, looking at March and April figures together will be a better indicator of any stabilization in consumer spending.

"On the surface, March is weaker than we've been seeing the last few months but we know that's not the underlying trend," he said.

"The tone and comments from retailers really reflect a better performance than reported, but the jury is still out on whether we really have stabilized."

Discounters continued to report better results than most retailers, but there was some improvement in results for mall-based chains such as Gap Inc. and Limited Stores Inc. Though weak sales persisted, many retailers reported foot traffic improved.

"It looks like the whole 'less worse' phenomenon continues in March," said Ken Perkins, president of Retail Metrics LLC. "The numbers are still soft, but at least they're stabilizing and maybe improving a little bit."

March's figures are expected to mark the industry's sixth straight month of overall same-store sales declines.

Milk processor waits to ramp up production

IMP fully staffed, but below capacity

By Joshua Palmer
Times-News writer

The Idaho Milk Products facility in Jerome has been operating at about a quarter of its capacity as the cooperative waits for customers to approve product quality and for market conditions to improve.

The 185,000 square-foot facility, which is owned by Bettencourt Dairy Farms, Big Sky Farms, Aardema Dairy and Scott Jackson, will convert raw milk into four different products — including one of the purest forms of protein on the market.

John Martin, plant manager, said the facility began processing raw milk on Feb. 25 after "working the bugs out."

"Right now we are processing about 800,000 pounds of milk per day," he said. "That's about a

Tax planning should be year-round process

It can be tempting for small business owners, once their income tax returns are filed, to put the whole issue of taxes behind them.

Resist that urge. Owners who don't grasp the idea that a company's tax planning — in reality, overall business and financial planning — is a year-round process may be setting their businesses up for an even tougher time in this difficult economy. They might also miss out on some tax law changes that are designed to help small businesses get through the recession.

"They've got to keep their eyes open relative to what's happening on the budget level," Barbara Weltman, a tax attorney in Millwood, N.Y., and author of "J.K. Lasser's Small Business Taxes," said of business owners.

It's hard to run a business and keep up with tax law or economic stimulus legislation. That's a good reason to stay in touch with a tax or financial adviser whose job is to know what changes are coming down. And it's

New jobless claims fall more than expected to 654K

WASHINGTON (AP) - New jobless claims fell more than expected last week but are stuck at elevated levels, while the number of people continuing to receive unemployment insurance approached 6 million, setting a record for the 10th straight week. The government data released Thursday bolster recent projections from the Federal Reserve and private economists that the nation's job market will remain weak into next year as companies purge thousands more workers. The Labor Department said the tally of initial jobless claims fell to a seasonally adjusted 654,000.

Bank

JPMorgan Chase & Co. all report next week. Wells Fargo's stock surged $2.71, or 18.2 percent, to $17.60 in midday trading. Broader markets also rose on the Wells Fargo report, with the Dow Jones industrial average gaining more than 159 points to 7,996. San Francisco-based Wells Fargo, which has received $25 billion in funds as part of the government's bank bailout plan, anticipates earnings after preferred dividends of about 55 cents per share. Revenue for the period ended March 31 is expected to climb 16 percent to $20 billion. Analysts polled by Thomson Reuters forecast profit of 23 cents per share on revenue of $19 billion. Analysts' estimates typically exclude one-time items. Wells Fargo earned $2 billion during the first quarter last year. The bank's chief financial officer, however, did caution that the economy hasn't necessarily recovered yet. "It's premature to conclude the economy has turned," said Howard Atkins, Wells Fargo's CFO. "All I can tell you is we're seeing a lot of business." Revenue at Wells Fargo, which has been one of the strongest banks during the ongoing credit crisis and recession, was bolstered by strong mortgage banking and capital markets business, Atkins told The Associated Press. During the first quarter, Wells Fargo received about $190 billion in mortgage applications, a 64 percent jump from the previous quarter. More than 40 percent of that volume came in March. Most of that business was refinance applications, but about 25 percent came from customers looking to purchase homes, Atkins said, noting the recent quarter's mortgage activity has been among the strongest since the housing market began to collapse in 2007. The government has been implementing many new programs in an effort to cut interest rates, hoping to bolster the beleaguered housing market, and those programs have definitely helped, Atkins said. "For sure the reduction in interest rates is having an impact on the wave of activity in the mortgage market," Atkins said. The bank is still facing loan losses as customers fall behind on repaying loans during the recession. It said its loan-loss provision will total about $4.6 billion for the first quarter, including adding $1.3 billion to its credit reserves. Wells Fargo now has $23 billion in reserves to cover future loan losses.

Heavy storms rake Midwest; tornado hits Arkansas town

MENA, Ark. — A tornado struck a small Arkansas town on Thursday night, causing minor injuries, as part of a severe storm system moving quickly across the nation's midsection.

The reported tornado scored a direct hit on the Polk County Courthouse in Mena, near the Oklahoma state line, said Renee Preslar, a spokeswoman for the Arkansas Department of Emergency Management.

Gov. Mike Beebe dispatched 30 National Guard soldiers to the town after local officials asked for troops to secure the heavily damaged downtown area, Preslar said.

Twelve minor injuries were reported in Mena, but authorities were going door-to-door checking for more injuries. A 13th person was hospitalized in Howard County after a tree was toppled onto a house.

A state trooper in Mena called for assistance after his patrol car got stuck in the storm, pelted with debris and covered with power lines, state police spokesman Bill Sadler said.

"I'm in the middle of a tornado," Sadler said the trooper reported.

Damage also was reported in eastern Oklahoma, apparently from the same storm.

Preslar said local officials had asked utility companies to shut off all gas lines to Mena and surrounding areas. Sadler said troopers reported a gas main had ruptured.

The National Weather Service reported that 3-inch diameter hail — forecasters described it as apple-sized — fell south of Mena just before the tornado hit downtown. Tornado damage was also reported at Ink, 5 miles east of Mena.

A twister damaged chicken coops in Howard County and another storm damaged an oil rig in Miller County, near the Louisiana and Texas state lines.

Violent thunderstorms moved quickly across southern Missouri, carrying large hail, winds up to 60 and 70 mph and reports of funnel clouds and tornadoes.

"I'm in the middle of a tornado."

Health behind the scenes

Medical lab techs play pivotal role in health care

By Katherine Welch
Times-News correspondent

Every step counts when it comes to saving lives. At St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center in Twin Falls, medical technicians perform many of the behind-the-scenes steps that complement the work of the hospitals' physicians.

"About 70 percent of diagnoses physicians make are based on lab work," said Michelle Harris, lab manager to 94 employees at St. Luke's.

The walls that make up the clinical lab enclose a world responsible for providing accurate information on patient health.

The blood bank houses red blood cells, fresh and frozen plasma and platelets. "This is one place you can really, really do damage if you're not careful," said Jessica Sleep, a clinical laboratory scientist at St. Luke's. Correctly matching blood types is essential to the well-being of the patient. All of the donated blood comes from the American Red Cross.

Tonia Bruess, marketing coordinator for the hospital, said the lab is not only used for diagnostics, but for monitoring patients as well. Lab scientists employ a variety of methods to analyze maladies through chemical and biological tests. Some of the most painstaking work is done with microbiology and cultures taken from patients to help diagnose an illness.

"It takes time — organisms have to grow and it is never stat," said Harris.

There are many other components to the lab. It employs couriers, phlebotomists, specimen processors, cytotechnologists, transcribers, histotechnologists and pathologists, among others.

Jill Campbell, a histotechnologist, says they are required to do 90 percent of their tests in fewer than 20 minutes. They need to do it right the first time because they may not have another tissue sample available, she said.

Once the tests have been conducted by lab workers, pathologists examine the results and make diagnoses.

"The lab is very stringent on quality control. It is accredited by the American College of Pathologists and goes through a strict accreditation process with lots of regulations," Harris said.

Workers staff the lab around the clock, where an inquisitive nature is a prerequisite in the battle to improve patients' lives.

"The lab is a great place. It's like putting together all the different pieces of a puzzle," Sleep said. "You can follow a patient all the way through and see the whole picture of the hospital. You get to see a little bit of everything."

April 19-25 is National Medical Lab Professionals Week and lab employees hope to educate the community about their work.

Kimberly track gives Bulldogs room to run

By Blair Koch
Times-News correspondent

KIMBERLY — Kimberly Middle School eighth grader Samantha Walker isn't going to miss the mud puddles and uneven terrain — not to mention the increased risk for sprained ankles and other injuries — that used to be prevalent when practicing the 100-meter dash.

Walker said she looks forward to practicing on the district's new track but took time on Saturday to celebrate alongside more than 100 Kimberly residents during a ribbon cutting ceremony for the school district's new track that featured hamburgers, hot dogs and a few fun races.

"It is going to be easier to run," said Walker, 14. "On rainy days it won't be so muddy. Plus, now other schools can come to Kimberly for meets."

Although Kimberly wasn't able to get on the schedule to host track events this year, the Bulldogs' new home will be on the circuit next year.

Officials budgeted $275,000 for the track but the project came in under budget, said High School Track Coach Marvin Mumm.

"The district was able to use those funds somewhere else," Mumm said.

Mumm said the track is a great addition for the district.

"It is really going to help us. We used to go to Twin Falls so we could work on hurdles and hand-offs ... now we can practice here," he said.

The Bulldogs track team has 64 members on this year's roster, Mumm said, down from last year's 72 participants. He expects even more students may be interested in joining now that the district has an all-weather surface.

Thirteen-year-old April

Adamson said the track is something students are proud of. She was surprised so many people came out for Saturday's event.

"It's kind of nice ... it shows that the community cares about the school and in seeing us perform," Adamson said.

The community is also welcome to use the facility, said Kimberly Booster Club President Dan Rongen.

"The emphasis on getting the track completed was that it would be for the community," he said. "Come by here anytime and there are people from the community walking or teachers from the elementary bringing students out to exercise or coming out after school. It isn't just for the track team."

Dental sealants offered at Popplewell Elementary

Beginning Wednesday, Popplewell Elementary School second graders can receive free dental sealants to help prevent cavities. Dental sealants fill the deep grooves of a child's back teeth, where 90 percent of children's cavities occur. The sealants are painless to apply and can last several years.

Delta Dental of Idaho provides sealants on-site at schools serving low-income families as part of its Community Outreach program. To receive this free cavity-prevention treatment, children must have a parent or guardian sign a health history and permission form. Additional permission forms are available at the school. Information: 208-489-3550.

Brian Scott Swanson

FILER — Brian Scott Swanson, 45, passed away Sunday, April 5, 2009.

He was born to Thomas H. Swanson and Marilyn J. Swanson in La Mesa, Calif., on Sept. 29, 1963. He then traveled with his family to many interesting destinations, finally settling in Coeur d'Alene. He graduated from Coeur d'Alene High School in 1981 and from there went to Lewis and Clark State College and earned his electronics degree. He then worked for Thorco Electric as an apprentice electrician. He was currently working at Wheeler Electric in Twin Falls as a journeyman electrician. He was on the Post Falls Fire Department from January 1988 to February 1990 when he made his move to Filer, where he was with the Filer Fire Department. Brian enjoyed the outdoors, camping, hunting and four-wheeling with his great friends and family.

He is survived by his parents of Post Falls; sisters, Sandy (Doug) Callen of Filer and Sheri (Chuck) Knapp of Post Falls; brother, Brad (Beth) Swanson of New London, N.H.; nieces, Sara Knapp and Taylor Swanson; nephews, Cory (Elizabeth) Callen, Jeremy Callen and Sam Swanson; his great-nieces and nephews, Genea, Riley, Paige and Bodie Callen; and his best friend, Tim Fisher of Filer.

Brian, we don't know why you left us this early in your young life but you will be sorely missed by all those who knew and loved you.

A viewing will be held from 4 to 6 p.m. Friday, April 10, at Parke's Magic Valley Funeral Home with a funeral service being held at 1 p.m. Saturday, April 11, with visitation starting at noon at Parke's Magic Valley Funeral Home, 2551 Kimberly Road in Twin Falls. Burial will follow at the Filer Cemetery. In lieu of flowers, the family suggests donations to the Filer Fire Department.

Reed L. Christensen

MONTPELIER, — Reed L. Christensen, 74, passed away Wednesday, April 8, 2009, at his home.

He was born May 13, 1934, to Louis and Myrle Christensen in Manti, Utah. He was raised and educated in Manti, Utah. He graduated from Snow College with a degree in chemistry. Reed served as a supply sergeant in the U.S. Army in White Sands, N.M. Reed married Carol Borden, the love of his life, on July 4, 1956, in Jerome; their marriage was later solemnized in the Logan LDS Temple. Reed enjoyed horses, barbequing, golfing and roast beef for Sunday dinner.

Reed is survived by his children, Richard of Hamilton, Mont., Mark (Allison) of Kaysville, Utah, and Valerie Petersen of Montpelier; and a daughter-in-law, Beth Christensen Farley; 13 grandchildren; and nine great-grandchildren. He was preceded in death by his wife, Carol.

A graveside service will be held at 1 p.m. Saturday, April 11, at the Jerome Cemetery in Jerome.

Carlene Bridger

Carlene Bridger, age 70, passed away at Bridgeview Estates Care Center in Twin Falls on Tuesday, April 7, 2009.

Carlene was born June 5, 1938, in La Grande, Ore., to Carlos Paul Bell and Melda Hyde Bell. She attended schools in Mount Eden, Calif., a little one-room schoolhouse near Wallowa, Ore., and seventh through November of her senior year in high school at Wells, Nev.

Carlene married Terry A. Montgomery on Nov. 26, 1955, in Elko, Nev. Three children were born to them, a son, Wayne Ray who died in infancy; a daughter, Melda Gene, and a second daughter, Judy Lynn. The couple divorced Aug. 23, 1960, and remarried Sept. 26, 1960, and divorced again May 22, 1964. Carlene then married Harrell L. Sanders on Aug. 5, 1964, and moved to Kimberly. Harrell was killed in a construction accident on March 24, 1966. Carlene married Michael W. Milner on July 23, 1966. They divorced on Oct. 30, 1967. She then married Horace (Hoss) W. Bridger on Nov. 4, 1967, in Twin Falls. They lived in Wells, Nev.; Everett, Marysville, and Arlington, Wash.; and Kimberly before moving back to Twin Falls. A daughter, Corrie Denise, was born to them there. The family moved to Kimberly for a while, then back to Twin Falls.

Carlene worked at Idaho Frozen Foods, Universal Frozen Foods and Lamb-Weston from April 9, 1973, until her retirement from there on Feb. 28, 2001. Carlene was a member of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. She enjoyed doing genealogy work, painting, and crocheting.

Since Carlene had no brothers and sisters of her own, she became very close to Hoss's brothers and sisters and their families. Her sister-in-law, Florence "Toots" Fiscus, became her best friend.

Carlene is survived by her three daughters, Gene Montgomery Redd (LeRoy), Judy Montgomery Eisenhauer Loughmiller (Larry) and Corrie Bridger Baker; three grandsons, Daniel Ray Redd (Holly), Michael Bert Redd and Makenzi William Bridger; six granddaughters, Jeannie Marie Redd Derby (Travis), Katie Belle Eisenhauer Tatton (Josh), Kari Lynn Eisenhauer Griffie (Adam), Libbie Lisa Loughmiller Oram (T.J.), Tara Jean Bogart Loughmiller Lammers (Travis) and Dacia Ann Baker; and 14 great-grandchildren, Maria, Katie, Allison, Jennifer and Danielle Redd; Dennis, Becky and Charlie Derby; Allison, Isaac and Jacob Tatton; Jayci Griffie; Genevieve Oram; and Brock Lammers.

She was preceded in death by her parents; her son, Wayne Montgomery; her former husbands; her husband, Horace; grandson, Wayne LeRoy Redd; and son-in-law, Jerry D. Eisenhauer.

The family will receive visitors from 6 to 8 p.m. Friday, April 10, at Parke's Magic Valley Funeral Home, 2551 Kimberly Road. A memorial service will be held at noon Saturday, April 11, at the Twin Falls LDS West Stake Center on Harrison Street. Interment will occur at the old Metropolitan Cemetery near Wells, Nev., at a later date.

Carlene died as a result of complications due to 45 years of smoking. She tried to quit but was unable to do so until it was too late.

Smoking steals your money, your time, your beauty, your health and finally your life. Her (and our) message to you is this: Don't do it!

DEATH NOTICE

Jane Wolfe

Jane Wolfe, 87, of Spokane, Wash., and formerly of Twin Falls, died Wednesday, April 8, 2009.

A memorial service will be held at 2 p.m. Friday, April 17, at Parke's Magic Valley Funeral Home, 2551 Kimberly Road in Twin Falls.

Boise teen gets life in prison for killing father

BOISE (AP) — A Boise teen who pleaded guilty to killing his father has been sentenced to life in prison.

Derek Lewis, 18, was sentenced Thursday in 4th District Court and must serve at least 20 years before he's eligible for parole.

Lewis pleaded guilty in February to second-degree murder in the March 2008 slaying of his father.

He was 17 when police say he shot his father, 45-year-old Dennis Lewis, at their home in Boise. The teen then took off in his father's truck to the Oregon coast, where he was apprehended after a high-speed chase.

An autopsy revealed the father died of a small caliber gunshot to the back of the head.

In a jail interview with the Idaho Statesman last week, Lewis said the shooting was an accident. He said he didn't know the .22-caliber rifle was loaded when he pulled the trigger, and was "shocked when the gun went off."

"I just want to tell my family that I am so sorry for what happened," Lewis told the newspaper. "There isn't a day that goes by where I don't think about what happened. ... I wish I could go back to that minute, to undo it all and put that gun down."

At Lewis' sentencing, 4th District Court Judge Michael McLaughlin rejected his claim that the shooting was an accident.

"It's easy to rationalize things," McLaughlin told Lewis. "You know this was not an accident. You made a conscious, knowing choice."

Previously, Lewis had said he argued with his father on the day of the shooting while the two were doing dishes, and that his father grabbed him by the shirt.

But Lewis told the newspaper he made up the story about an argument because he didn't think anyone would believe the shooting was an accident.

"That was a lie," he said. "I got along good with my dad. I am still not sure why I said that."

Molly Tripp, Derek's mother, said she thinks he "just got really scared about what happened."

As for the arguing between the two, she said "it was just typical teenage son and father stuff, about things like driving the truck. They loved each other. It was pretty normal relationship."

FDA changes mind, says painkiller for dying OK

NEW YORK (AP) — The decision sounded reasonable. Pull 14 painkillers off the market because they had never received federal approval.

These drugs might be unsafe, ineffective or of poor quality, the Food and Drug Administration said. It ordered that manufacturing cease within 60 days. Patients could use other painkillers that were already approved instead, they said.

On Thursday, the FDA announced it had targeted one drug too many.

Officials changed their minds about a form of liquid morphine that is given to perhaps as many as 2 million people at the end of life and dying at home. For these people, no substitute is available, the FDA learned from protesting doctors and patients.

Just a few drops of the concentrated liquid, placed in the mouth of a patient who has trouble swallowing, lets a caregiver provide rapid pain relief.

The FDA's Dr. Douglas Throckmorton said the drug would remain on the market until it's replaced by an approved version or some equivalent therapy.

The reversal was welcomed by experts in hospice care and pain relief.

Dr. Diane Meier, director of the Center to Advance Palliative Care at the Mount Sinai School of Medicine in New York, called Thursday's decision "fabulous.... It's incredibly refreshing and makes me hopeful about our government."

The order has not changed for the other painkillers, at least for now, said Throckmorton, deputy director of the agency's Center for Drug Evaluation and Research.

CLEAR CREEK, Utah — Larry Vern Kempton

— Larry Vern Kempton, age 69, of Clear Creek, Utah, died Wednesday, April 8, 2009, in Malta.

He was born on Oct. 3, 1939, in Brigham City, Utah, to Vern and Reta (Miller) Kempton. He was an only child and his mother's "Little Man." He graduated from Raft River High School in Malta in 1957. He married Patricia Gail Ward on Dec. 17, 1960. From this marriage, he had a stepdaughter, Cheryle Ann Bates Ward. They later divorced. Larry later married Coralee Teeter on June 7, 1967. This union was blessed with five children, Lorelee, Vern, Jesse, Clair and Kandice. This marriage also ended in divorce. He then married Carla Stewart Sydnor on Oct. 13, 2000. This marriage brought two additional stepdaughters, Becky and Carin.

Rodeo was Larry's passion, along with kids and horses. During high school, he won a buckle in Bronc riding at the third Idaho State High School Rodeo in Grace. Beginning at the age of 15 (from 1953 until 1957), he spent his summer months participating in various rodeos. From 1957 until 1967, Larry was on the road full time with Earl Hutchison with Crescent H Rodeo working as a pickup man. He competed in saddle bronc and hauled and took care of the stock. He later went to the first two National Finals in Dallas, Texas, and worked stock for Swany Kirby and Harley Tucker from Oregon. He was a member of the Rodeo Cowboys Association (now known as the PRCA). He was a lifetime member of the AQHA, raising and training Quarter Horses for ranch and rodeo work. Larry was a director for the Raft River High School in the 6th District High School Rodeo Association for 19 years. He also served four years as an Idaho State

Rodeo Association director.

In addition to ranching in Clear Creek, Utah, Larry drove school bus for Box Elder County, Utah, taking Utah and Idaho school children to the schools in Malta for more than 26 years. He recently received a recognition award for 25 years without an accident.

Larry was the secretary-treasurer of the West Box Elder Soil District and was a member of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, having served as secretary of the Sunday school, ward clerk, High Priest group assistant and, for 5½ years, served in the bishopric with Bishop Alan Harper. He was also a home teacher.

He is survived by his wife, Carla Kempton; his children, Lorelee (Carl) Boden of Elba, Vern (Rachel) Kempton of Clear Creek, Utah, Jesse (Ben) Cardon of Pocatello, Clair (Christine) Kempton of Rogerson and Kandice Kempton (Larry's pride and joy who he spent lots of quality time with) of Malta; his stepdaughters, Cheryle Ann Bates Ward, Becky (Rob) Jenne of Reno, Nev., and Carin (Michael) Pluto of Star; and his grandchildren, Brodee, Bradley, Emmet, Max, Bonnie and Adam Boden; Keely, Kristy, Paden, Colby, Duke and Reta Kempton; Kilah and Adessa Cardon; Gracelynn, Jardee and Journey Jo Kempton; and Nathaniel and Alyssa Jenne. He was preceded in death by his parents.

Errol Eugene Porter, age 60, was received into the loving arms of his Heavenly Father on Monday, March 31, 2009, following extended illness.

Errol was born in Yuma, Ariz., on Feb. 6, 1949, to Gerald Francis Porter and Adelaida "Della" (Hernandez) Porter. His father was a surveyor for the Bureau of Land Management, so the family traveled as required to various job sites in Utah, Arizona and California. Errol graduated from Kofa High School in Yuma, Ariz., in 1967.

On Sept. 22, 1973, Errol was united in marriage to Deborah Ann Cope. From this union, two children were born: Stephen Michael and Cherie Lynn. During this time, Errol was employed with Sears in Los Angeles, Calif. Debbie and Errol later divorced on Oct. 27, 1980. Errol attended a Spanish class and a family history class at Arizona Western College. He also attended classes on U.S. History and western civilization at the College of Southern Idaho. His favorite subject was history, and he had an intense interest in Oliver Cromwell.

On July 3, 1981, Errol married Stella Darleen (Trout) Porter at the Mesa Temple of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints in Arizona. In September of that year, Debbie, Errol's ex-wife, married Bob Ladensack and they, Darleen and Errol, became close friends, often spending time together at dinner, movies or in family visits. Their combined families included Cherie and Stephen, named above; Lisa Maxine Estrada of Pleasant Grove, Utah, Dana Rose Peters (Duane) of Chatham, Va., and Kimberly Lynn Tate (James) of Picayune, Miss.

Errol worked as a meeting house custodian for more than 16 years in Arizona, Idaho and Utah before becoming disabled while employed by The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. At the time of his death, Errol was a high priest in the church and, during the course of his life, had served in numerous callings including ordinance worker at the Provo Temple in Utah, teacher, cub master, gospel doctrine teacher and family history extraction worker. Errol was privileged to serve eight stake missions, three of which he served with his wife Darleen, and was ward mission leader during three of those missions.

Errol is survived by his wife, Darleen; children, Cherie Lynn Contreras (Armando) of Huntington Beach, Calif., Stephen Porter of Tennessee, Lisa Maxine Estrada of Pleasant Grove, Utah, Dana Rose Peters (Duane) of Chatham, Va., and Kimberly Lynn Tate (James) of Picayune, Miss.; one sister, Shelene Mesa of Yuma, Ariz.; two brothers, Jonathan Lee Porter (Eilene) of Yuma, Ariz., and Gerald "Gerry" Francis Porter Jr. (Dolores) of Yuma, Ariz.; uncle, Lalo Hernandez of Yuma, Ariz.; and his ex-wife, Debbie of Tennessee. Also surviving Errol are 20 of what he considered his most precious treasures, 17 grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

A funeral was held Saturday, April 4, at The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints were held in Danville, Va. A funeral in Twin Falls will be under the direction of White Mortuary "Chapel by the Park." A viewing will be held from 6 to 8 p.m. Thursday, April 9, at White Mortuary, and from 10 to 11 a.m. Friday, April 10, at The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints in Hollister. The funeral will be conducted at 11 a.m. at the church, followed by a memorial service at Sunset Memorial Park.

Condolences may be sent to the family at yellowrose1944@msn.com or to 921 Lester Road, Chatham, VA 24531.

Friends say ship's captain in high-seas hostage drama is no-nonsense sailor

By John Curran
 Associated Press writer

UNDERHILL, Vt. — He went from driving a cab in Boston to piloting multimillion-dollar cargo vessels around the world.

Now Capt. Richard Phillips is at the center of a high seas-piracy drama after offering himself up as the lone hostage to the gang that overtook his ship. The selfless act is no surprise to those who know him.

Relatives and friends describe Phillips as a seaman's seaman with a keen sense of humor who's always ready with tales of his adventures in far-off ports. "The way the guy tells a story is amazing," said brother-in-law Tom Coggio, 41, of Richmond, southeast of Burlington. "We're just all waiting for him to get home and tell this one."

The burly sailor balances long stretches at sea with precious time at home — working on his 19th-century farmhouse, taking his children tubing on nearby Lake Champlain and generally savoring life on land.

The crew of the Maersk Alabama managed to retake the ship Wednesday after Phillips offered himself as a hostage to the Somali pirates.

On Thursday, hostage negotiators for the FBI joined the U.S. Navy in efforts to free Phillips. An American destroyer and a spy plane kept watch on the standoff near the Horn of Africa.

At his home Thursday, family members maintained a nervous vigil, awaiting word on his fate. Sister-in-law Lea Coggio said a representative of Maersk called to let Phillips' wife know that food and water had been delivered to the lifeboat.

"I think he's coping, knowing Richard," she said. "He's a smart guy, and he's in control. He's had a handheld radio since he's been in the lifeboat."

Those who know him describe the 53-year-old as a fun-loving sportsman who's all business at sea.

As a child, he was a sturdy, good-natured boy who played basketball, football and lacrosse and went by "Jungle," a nickname inherited from his father, who coached youth sports.

The toughness implied by the name fit, says Stephen Blasi, who went to grade school and graduated high school with him in 1973 in Winchester, Mass. "He was a strong kid," said

Blasi, 54, of Portsmouth, N.H. "Not the type of person that would be out fighting, but probably someone you wouldn't want to fight if you didn't have to. And you know, you'd never have to unless you did it, unless you did something to him."

Another childhood friend, Donald Carey, described Phillips as a good-looking, athletic youngster who was modest.

"He was kind of like Gary Cooper, in a sense," said Carey, of Winchester, Mass. "He played football, he played basketball, he played lacrosse. But he never made a big deal out of being a successful member of any of those teams."

"If you forgot your lunch, he'd hand you half of his. In a heartbeat," Carey said.

A burly 6-footer with a thick Boston accent, Phillips worked as a cab driver in Boston during his time at the Massachusetts Maritime Academy in Bourne, Mass., where he graduated in 1979.

Phillips met wife, Andrea, in a bar outside Boston's Fenway Park. She was studying to become a nurse at the time.

They married, in 1987. Andrea Phillips, 51, is now an emergency room nurse at Fletcher Allen Health Care in nearby Burlington. They have two children — Daniel, a 20-year-old a sophomore at Elmira College in New York state, and Mariah, 19, a freshman at Castleton State College in Vermont.

Two summers ago, Phillips had a brush with death. Playing football at a family gathering in New Hampshire, he suffered a broken neck diving to catch the ball, hitting his head on a boulder.

"The doctors said he was a hair from becoming a quadriplegic, but he got healed up with that," Tom Coggio said.

By this year, he was back on Vermont's slopes, skiing and snowboarding.

CALIFORNIA Marine is freed in Iraqi prisoner's death

A military jury acquitted Marine Sgt. Ryan Weemer on Thursday of all charges in the fatal shooting of an Iraqi prisoner during a 2004 battle in Fallujah.

At Camp Pendleton, Calif., a jury of eight officers, all of whom had served in Iraq, Afghanistan or both, deliberated for seven hours over two days before announcing its decision.

Weemer was charged with unpremeditated murder and dereliction of duty, which could have brought a life sentence. The court-martial judge had also given the jury the option of finding him guilty of voluntary manslaughter or assault, which would have brought lesser penalties.

Weemer's sister, mother and high-school English teacher broke down in tears when the verdict was read.

His lead civilian attorney, Paul Hackett, embraced Weemer, whose eyes appeared to glisten with tears.

Three Marines were charged in the killing of four prisoners; two have now been acquitted. Whether the third will proceed to court-martial is unclear.

WASHINGTON Scientists unlock one secret of bird flight

WASHINGTON — For millennia, people have watched the birds and bees and wondered: "How do they do that?"

Thanks to high-speed film and some persistent scientists, at least one of the secrets of flight is now revealed.

When birds, bats or bugs make a turn, all they have to do is start flapping their wings normally again and they straighten right out.

That came as a surprise to researchers who thought turning and stopping took more steps.

Lead researcher Tyson L. Hedrick of the University of North Carolina compared it to sitting at a desk chair and turning left. It's a three-step process, launch the turn by pushing with one foot, turn, then stop by pushing with the other.

It's a simpler, one-step process for flying animals,

Young and seeking the spotlight?
Magic Valley is a great place for a first

CURTAIN CALL

By Melissa Davlin
Times-News writer

Twin Falls, Twin Falls, it's a helluva town — for young theater goers and music lovers, at least.

Between the Curtain Call Awards, the Danny Marona Performing Arts Scholarships — both awarded last Friday — and other opportunities like JuMP Co., Missoula Children's Theatre and Great Basin Jazz Camp, young performers have an array of opportunities to show their blooming skills.

In Magic Valley alone, there is a play almost every weekend, said Danny Marona, who led the awards ceremony. Reach up to Wood River Valley and you'll find Company of Fools' workshops for students, like scriptwriting camp New Voices for the Theatre, or Stages of Wonder for children in grades one through five. In Mini-Cassia, there is Mount Harrison Heritage Foundation, which recruits actors of all ages for its plays.

Last Friday, many of those musicians and dancers received recognition from the Danny Marona Performing Arts Scholarship Finals and the Curtain Call Awards. At the awards show, the Twin Falls High School drum corps opened the night with a percussion performance, and Rocky Top Cloggers followed with three foot-stomping routines.

Diane Stevens, executive assistant for the Marona fund, then announced the remaining 10 Curtain Call Award recipients.

The real treat came when the scholarship contestants took the stage. Of the nine students performing, eight played piano or

REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

This songbird merits attention

Pop music fans, keep your eyes and ears on Alaina Davis.

Davis, 18, has been performing at events in the Twin Falls area for years, including Art in the Park, Festival of Trees and private weddings. And in 2007, Davis flew to Omaha, Neb., to audition for "American Idol."

Last Friday, Davis sang "Home Sweet Home," originally by Motley Crue (although I have a feeling she channeled Carrie Underwood for her performance).

Her sweet vocals blew me away. American Idol, why the heck didn't you let this songbird go to Hollywood?

Davis may not have won the scholarship competition, but I have a feeling she'll be just fine furthering her entertainment career.

Conning and cunning

A slice of life on the lower end

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

KETCHUM — Had it had the face of Thomas Jefferson on one side and Monticello on the other, it would never have raised an eyebrow.

But it was an American Buffalo.

And when Don, the proprietor of an inner-city junk store, learned he had sold the coin for much less than it was worth, he had to get it back.

The ways in which he and two petty crooks scheme to steal what they believe is rightfully theirs form the basis of the David Mamet play "American Buffalo."

And it opens Wednesday at the nexStage Theatre in Ketchum.

"It's a character study about three small-time hoods whose lives are wrapped up in conning and thievery. And they're not good at it," said former theater professor Jamey Reynolds.

The play won a New York Drama Critics Circle Award for best play of the 1977 season. It was also nominated for two Tony Awards.

A clash between business and friendship, it revolves around Don and his teenage friend Bob, who plot how they can steal the coin collection of the wealthy man who bought the American Buffalo and thereby cheated them out of the opportunity to make it in society.

A third friend, Teach, lends his questionable expertise, even as he questions young Bob's inexperience and loyalty.

"The characters are absolutely believable — nobody you'd want to meet in a dark alley," said Bostin Mitchell, who plays the lad.

"It's a slice of life — a slice on the lower end," said Steve d'Smith, an Equity actor who plays Don. "It's very imaginative, very interesting — and you don't get to see much of that."

The play, being directed by Dean Cerutti, sports humor in the commedia dell'arte vein. It's funny in its stupidity, said Reynolds, an Equity actor who plays Teach.

"In modern-day terms, it might be similar to 'M*A*S*H,'" he added. "These guys are crooks but they have a lot of humanity. And, really, they're similar to a lot of us who base so much on dreams."

Like many Mamet plays, this one has its fill of cuss words. But the gutter talk fits the characters, Reynolds said.

Reynolds is producing the play through his new theater company, which he calls The American Classic Theater.

"I love American standards like Tennessee Williams. Classics give actors a lot to work with," he said. "I've always felt actors get more out of classics such as 'Arsenic and Old Lace' and 'You Can't Take It With You' than modern plays that haven't proven themselves. And, with the economy being what it is, I think the classics give audiences more bang for their bucks."

There's a reason Mamet was able to adapt several of Anton Chekhov's works so well, added Reynolds: "He is brilliant. And this piece is a great story, a very interesting piece of work."

Awards

Continued from Entertainment 1 sang. Only one, Kylee Morrison, danced. Others stood out by showing off other skills in their performances. Vocalist Susan Dodds incorporated some acting into her song, "Wishing You Were Somehow Here Again," from Phantom of the Opera, and three of the students — Tess Gregg, Jillian Hale and Kaylani Setoki — performed their original compositions for the competition.

Classical pieces, like pianist Becca Stonemets' rendition of "Piano Concerto No. 1 in D flat" by Sergei Prokofiev or vocalist Joseph Bosteder's take on "This is the Moment" from Jekyll and Hyde, proved to be popular with the students. Alaina Davis opted for a contemporary take on "Home Sweet Home," made newly popular by country artist Carrie Underwood, while Amber Wagner sang Sam Cooke's 1963 classic, "A Change is Gonna Come."

Between performances, audience members waved placards with their favorite performers' names. Wild cheers greeted each student as they arrived on stage, and even louder applause hailed their music and dance.

Fourth Brown Bag Lecture highlights local flight history

Times-News

A longtime Twin Falls company will be in the spotlight as Magic Valley Arts Council presents the fourth installment of its Brown Bag Lecture Series, at noon April 24 at Twin Falls Public Library.

John W. Reeder will speak on "Reeder Flying Service from 1941-2009," an overview of Reeder Flying Service Inc. history from the early flight instruction and crop dusting days to what has become a utility helicopter operation servicing fire-fighting, power and pipeline patrol, surveying, game counting and many other jobs, as well as an international business buying and selling helicopters, airplanes and aircraft engines and parts.

A Twin Falls native, Reeder graduated from

Twin Falls High School in 1962, earned a bachelor's degree in marketing from Utah State University and in 1970 returned to Twin Falls to join the family in running RFS.

Reeder started to fly at age 15 and on his 16th birthday soloed, garnering his license.

John's father, Charles T. Reeder, started the company in 1941 as a flight instruction service. During World War II his mother kept the record book, required by the war department, that tracked all aircraft transport in the area. From 1948 to 1995, RFS maintained a large crop dusting service and in 1960 it added helicopter operations.

Today, RFS maintains a fixed base operation terminal for all private planes landing at Joslin Field, Magic Valley Regional Airport with a lounge, flight plan room, offices, aviation refueling and customer repair hangars.

The free lecture is open to the public. Bring a brown bag lunch, or pre-order a box lunch by the afternoon of April 23: 734-2787.

Variety show raises money to help CSI students pay medical bills

By Erica Littlefield
Times-News correspondent

Singer and College of Southern Idaho student Robin Mingo just couldn't resist the opportunity to use her talent for a good cause.

Mingo will perform Bonnie Raitt's classic "Something to Talk About" at the second annual Change for Children variety show and fundraiser. Mingo said she attended the first Change for Children last year and was so impressed that she decided to audition this year. The show is organized by the ASCSI Student Senate, and this year the theme is "All Grown Up — Battered But Not Beaten."

The event is a fundraiser for three current or former CSI students: Rosa Lopez, Graham Stanley and Leano Zephir. Although Mingo doesn't know them personally, she wanted to do her part to help.

"The work that the students put into it made me want to help in any way I could," Mingo said. "It was very inspirational. As a community, we need to reach out and help each other."

The show starts at 7 p.m. Thursday in the CSI Fine Arts Auditorium. Admission is free, but donations will be accepted.

In November, Lopez was crossing Washington Street on her way to class at CSI when she was struck by a car. She suffered a fractured pelvis, bruises and damage to her teeth. Stanley was robbed and attacked by three men in Tempe, Ariz., in September and spent time recovering in the hospital there. Zephir was at a friend's house when a man slipped in the back door and attacked him. He suffered numerous injuries, including a fractured cheek, and underwent reconstructive surgery.

Event proceeds will help the three students pay their medical bills.

Daniel Watland, CSI student body treasurer and coordinator for the event, said part of the reason the three students were chosen was their close connection to CSI. Stanley is the son of CSI Dean of Students Graydon Stanley, and Lopez and Zephir served on the Student Senate. Watland said he thought the show would be the perfect way to give back to them.

"They've all had horrible things happen, but they're not letting it get to them," Watland said.

The event will truly be a night of variety. The acts include singers, bands, dancers, even a drum line. Most of the performers are CSI students, but auditions were open to the public and some of the acts feature community members.

CSI student Yajaira Veronica has been dancing since she was 2 and is an accomplished belly dancer. She will perform two dances at the show — a solo belly dance routine to "Eyes Like Yours" by Shakira, and a group number to "Run the Show" by Kat DeLuna with her sister Yadira and cousin Michelle Arreola.

"It's tough getting the three of us together," Veronica said. "Whenever we're together, we put on the song and try to get it down."

Veronica said she and her dance partners are excited to do their part for the charitable event, and are anxious to see what the other

Yajaira Veronica, 19, practices her dance moves to 'Eyes Like Yours' by Shakira. 'I haven't been on stage since I've been out of high school, so I just wanted to get back out there,' says Veronica. Teens can develop photo skills on the farm

Times-News

Teens who are new to digital photography, as well as those looking to strengthen their skills, may sign up for a one-day "Digital Photography Teen Workshop" offered by the Sun Valley Center for the Arts.

The class will visit the south Blaine County farm of Dick and Melinda Springs, founders of Wood River Natural Foods. Students will be able to photograph animals, landscapes and people going about the farm's business, with guidance from instructor Dev Khalsa on qualities of light and how to create more interesting images using rules of composition.

Students will become comfortable with the digital camera and digital terminology — and learn a few things about local food production along the way, organizers said.

Khalsa, who teaches photography at The Community School, holds a degree in photojournalism from the University of New Mexico and operates a photography business.

The workshop will meet at the Sun Valley Center for the Arts' Hailey location from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. April 18. Cost is $10. Space is limited so Khalsa can work individually with participants, and advance registration is required.

Register: www.sunvalleycenter.org or 726-9491, ext. 10. Bring your own camera or borrow one from the center.

NNU band plays free Twin Falls concert

Times-News

The Concert Band from Northwest Nazarene University in Nampa will present a concert at 7 p.m. April 17 in the Twin Falls Church of the Nazarene's sanctuary, 1231 Washington St. N. There is no admission charge, but an offering will be taken.

The one-hour concert by the 40-piece touring ensemble will feature a variety of sacred and secular compositions, including "All Creatures of Our God and King" by Stephen Bulla, "Rejouissance" (a setting of the Martin Luther's "A Mighty Fortress is our God"),

"October" by Eric Whitacre, J.S. Bach's "Komm! Susser Tod," arranged by Alfred Reed, and the ever-popular "Washington Post March" by John Philip Sousa.

The band is directed by Eric Adamson of Nampa. Adamson earned his undergraduate music degree from NNU and his master's from Southern Oregon University.

Adamson is making a reputation as a composer and arranger of band literature. His "Owyhee Canyonland Overture" was commissioned by the state of Idaho, and his "Twentyfour 7" was premiered recently by the Treasure Valley Concert Band.

Book babble

Book clubs offer a quiet kind of entertainment

By Blair Koch
Times-News correspondent

Book worms young and old agree: There is something special about getting together with fellow lovers of literature and chatting about what you've been reading.

Keri Harker, 11, of Jerome loves book clubs and is active in Jerome's youth club, The Book Ends, and the Famous, Fabulous Book Worms in Buhl.

"I like this environment because you're not forced to do things, like in school; everyone is here because they want to be," Harker said.

Youth clubs, which include reading time, crafts, games and snacks, aim to lure readers into a lifetime passion for books and, perhaps, participation in an adult club. Older readers may forgo the crayons, but they share the same passion for reading.

The Filer Public Library's Multicultural Book Club organized several years ago after another book discussion program was successful.

"We enjoyed the book talks so much that we just kept going," said assistant director Shirley Vance. "We've read a lot of titles that I probably wouldn't have picked up on my own and ended up enjoying them thoroughly."

The discussions broaden members' experience with the titles.

"It's fun hearing the ideas and opinions from other people. We all love to read and value each other's thoughts and opinions; the books end up meaning a lot more to you," Vance said.

The Burley Public Library hosts the weekly Women's Afternoon Reading Club, with two alternating Thursday sessions for patrons to choose from.

Although the group is geared toward women, men are welcome.

"Those who have attended are women, but it would be nice for men to come. We would enjoy their perspective on the books," said Valerie Bame, children's librarian and program director at the Burley library.

"The clubs select their own titles ... they read both fiction and nonfiction, giving people the chance to read something they normally wouldn't and broadening their perspective and offering a greater understanding of what they're reading," Bame said.

If that sounds fun, check out a club near you:

Hailey library series pays tribute to American Indian tribes

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

HAILEY — Marilyn Angel Wynn is a walking encyclopedia of information about American Indian tribes across the country.

It comes, she says, from 15 years of crisscrossing the country, filming and photographing daily life on American Indian reservations.

"Tourism is becoming a big deal for many of the tribes. And that's good for those wanting exotic destinations to visit — visiting Navajo land is like visiting a foreign country with English a second language for many of the people there," Wynn said. "Some reservations are like visiting Disneyland on a reservation. Others are undiscovered — far away from the interstate."

The Bellevue photographer will show some of her slides and talk about American Indians' lifestyles Thursday at the Hailey Public Library.

The library has planned five days of free activities paying tribute to American Indians beginning Monday in conjunction with a five-part series that PBS is launching, titled "We Shall Remain."

The "American Experience" series starts locally at 9 p.m. Monday with a look at American Indians at the time of the Mayflower and concludes with Wounded Knee and a look at the future.

"We realized it fell during National Library Week and so we got pretty excited about the idea," said librarian Jeanie Johnston. "It's the biggest thing we've ever organized on our own."

In addition to Wynn, archaeologist James Woods, director of the Herrett Center for Arts and Sciences in Twin Falls, will talk about how the collapse of the Mayan civilization pertains to the society in which we live.

"I will be talking a little about 2012 since that seems to be on everyone's mind right now," he said. "Essentially, the Maya did not consider the implications of overexploiting the environment, and most scholars now feel deforestation from over-farming led to the Classic Period 'collapse.'"

The Mayan calendar ends Dec. 21, 2012. Some people believe this signifies an apocalyptic catastrophe. Others say it merely represents a transition into a new age of consciousness.

Here's the Hailey library's schedule:

Monday, noon — Brown bag lunch showing of a documentary, "Indian Warriors: The Untold Story of the Civil War." The film tells about between 20,000 and 30,000 American Indians who fought in the Civil War.

Tuesday, 6:30 p.m. — Woods gives a slide presentation on Mayan civilization that includes his own research at one of the oldest and largest stone ruins in Guatemala.

Wednesday, 4 p.m. — Children are invited to create Ojo de Dios, or God's eyes, and other American Indian crafts.

Thursday, 3:30 p.m. — Family StoryTime focuses on North American myths and stories. Afterward, listeners may create sand paintings and dream catchers.

Thursday, 6:30 p.m. — Wynn shows her slides of American Indian homelands and lifestyles from Florida to Vancouver Island, where she grew up in the Pacific Northwest rainforest.

April 17, 4 p.m. — Showing of "Smoke Signals," a comedy about two young Coeur d'Alene Indians — a nerd and a brooding basketball player — who leave home to pick up the ashes of the basketball player's father. Their journey becomes an unexpectedly unforgettable adventure of friendship and discovery.

There also will be a display of Native American artifacts on loan from the Blaine County Museum, as well as an art contest involving Wood River Middle and High School students.

Campbell opens with 65 at Masters

Tiger Woods five shots back

By Doug Ferguson
Associated Press writer

AUGUSTA, Ga. — Chad Campbell ran off five straight birdies, the best start ever in the Masters. Jim Furyk charged up the crowd with four straight birdies late in his round. Even that notoriously slow starter, Tiger Woods, got in on the act.

Anyone worried that Augusta National had lost its excitement only had to listen to the sweetest of sounds Thursday.

The roars returned to the Masters.

Campbell led an assault on the record book with nine birdies in 15 holes before two late mistakes made him settle for a 7-under 65 and a one-shot lead over Furyk and Hunter Mahan.

"It is nice to hear some noises again," Sandy Lyle said.

record scoring — warm sunshine and only a gentle breeze, along with inviting hole locations and greens that were soft and smooth.

The cheers came from all corners for 11 hours of golf that produced six eagles and 354 birdies. There were 19 rounds in the 60s, the most ever for the first round, and only four fewer than the entire tournament last year.

It was so easy that Woods nearly broke 70 in the opening round for the first time in his career.

Bryant cracks the CSI rotation, wants to keep pitching at a 4-year

By Bradley Guire • Times-News writer

From the pitcher's circle, Kyla Bryant's eyes can bore a hole through you. They can frustrate you. They can take from you. Your confidence. Your swagger. Your at bat. These eyes do not see what you and I see. Beyond these eyes you only find determination, the absence of negativity. These are the eyes of a potential NCAA Division I competitor. But is she ready?

CSI baseball looks to finish strong against Salt Lake

By David Bashore
Times-News writer

As temperatures reached the high 70s on Tuesday, the baseball chatter was alive at Skip Walker Field.

Colby Robison and Trent Johnson took turns fielding grounders and throws at first base, all the while busting each other's chops about the high-school days between their alma maters (Madison for Robison, Idaho Falls for Johnson).

Freshman right-handed pitcher Preston Olson searched for the switch in the press box to play music over the speakers to serenade the practice. It took him a while, and the team let him hear about it.

Even in baseball, where the rivalry traditionally lies with the College of Southern Nevada, there is no week for the College of Southern Idaho quite like the week it plays Salt Lake.

"It's a big week, but they're all big weeks," said CSI head coach Boomer Walker. "But the weather helps get the guys a little loose."

They might be loose, but it's far from an "all gas, no brake" situation: CSI is painfully aware of the way in which it lost two of the four games at Salt Lake City earlier this season. The Golden

This weekend's doubleheaders: Salt Lake (18-18, 11-13 SWAC) at CSI (20-18, 13-11 SWAC), 1 p.m., Friday, noon Saturday.

CSI last week: 1-3 vs. Southern Nevada (L 5-3, L 6-5, W 4-3, L 7-5). SLCC last week: 3-1 vs. Colorado Northwestern (L 5-4, W 16-6, W 5-4, W 9-0).

Last time they met: The two teams split a four-game set in Salt Lake City on March 6-7, with CSI winning 7-3 and 11-4 and Salt Lake taking 4-3 and 5-4 victories.

About the Bruins: Salt Lake and CSI are about as even as they come. The Bruins hit for a marginally lower average (.272 to CSI's .294), led by J.R. Roland's .333. Roland also has a team-high 30 hits, 8 doubles, 4 home runs and 23 RBIs. Starting pitcher Nelson Castleberry is better than his 3-5 record indicates, as he has thrown a team-high 53 2-3 innings with a 3.02 ERA and 55 strikeouts. Fellow starters Derek Christensen (3.24) and Jeremy Atkinson (3.27) aren't too far behind Castleberry in the ERA department, giving Salt Lake three solid starters. Former CSI pitcher Zane Gray has yet to give up an earned run out of the bullpen, in 13 innings pitched. The Bruins' team ERA (3.84) is nearly a full run better than that of CSI (4.64).

Boomer's breakdown: "I know we're a better team than five weeks ago and I assume they are too. They don't hit quite as well as we do, but they maybe have a little bit better pitching. It's going to come down to who gets the big hit and who makes the big pitch, just like it does every week."

— CSI head coach Boomer Walker

Eagles blew a seventh-inning lead in each day's opener of the four-game series.

They've also got the bitter pill of an extra-inning loss to Southern Nevada last Saturday, a game which they should have won.

"Were so close and played so well, and we basically just gave two games away," said

Tigers claw past Burley

By David Bashore
Times-News writer

JEROME — After dealing with adversity all week, the Burley baseball team finally dished a little out to Jerome on Thursday.

But like the Bobcats had done earlier in the week, the Tigers found an answer.

Kris Bos went 2-for-2 and drove in four runs, including a two-run homer and the go-ahead sacrifice fly in the bottom of the sixth inning as Jerome rallied for three runs in the bottom of the sixth to take an 8-7 win over Burley.

Despite committing five errors in the first three innings to give Burley (6-12, 1-1 Great Basin Conference West) a 5-2 edge heading into the home half of the third, Jerome (6-4, 1-1) scrambled to keep pace and ultimately took the lead for good in its last at bat.

"We just had to keep the positive attitude, and that's what we've been working on," said Bos, who recently inked a letter of intent to play baseball next season at Corban College, a Christian school in Salem, Ore. "I've felt really comfortable at the plate, just throwing my hands at the ball and letting it go wherever it goes."

Devon Molitor picked up the win in relief for the Tigers, while Logan Parker nailed down the save with a perfect seventh inning.

Kace Redder picked up the loss for the Bobcats, who were scheduled to visit teammate Garrett Lyons in Salt Lake City Thursday before their game with Jerome was pushed back from Wednesday due to rain.

While Lyons undergoes treatment for testicular cancer, Burley is left searching for the balance between coping with tragedy and remaining focused.

"There's no doubt that Garrett is on our minds, but we're in contact with him and his family and we know he just wants us to go out and just play hard and play our best," said Burley head coach Devin Kunz. "Today we did that for the most part, but the wheels came off for us in the sixth inning."

"You have to give credit to Jerome, but I feel we should have played better. We don't have a power pitcher, they're all finesse, so when they put the ball in play our defense has to make the play. That's been our M.O., and we weren't able to do that. You can't afford not to against good teams."

Jerome heads to Rigby today while Burley hosts defending Class 4A champion Bishop Kelly on Saturday.

Angels rookie Adenhart killed in car crash

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Los Angeles Angels pitcher Nick Adenhart and two others were killed by a suspected drunk driver Thursday, a shocking end to the life of a rookie who had overcome major elbow surgery to realize his big league dreams.

The accident in neighboring Fullerton occurred hours after the 22-year-old pitcher made his season debut with his father in the stands, throwing six scoreless innings against the Oakland Athletics. The Angels ultimately lost the game, 6-4.

The team postponed

Thursday night's game with Oakland, the final one of their season-opening series.

"It is a tragedy that will never be forgotten," manager Mike Scioscia said at an Angel Stadium news conference.

Adenhart's father, Jim, a retired Secret Service agent, walked onto the field in the empty stadium Thursday and spent several moments alone on the pitcher's mound. Wearing a red sweatshirt, the Angels' color, he briefly covered his eyes with one hand.

Jim Adenhart also spoke during a closed-door meeting of players and team officials.

"He just wanted to say thank you for the opportunity, thank you for raising his kid in minor league ball on up through the system in the Angels' organization," outfielder Torii Hunter said.

Nick Adenhart was a passenger in a silver Mitsubishi Eclipse that was broadsided in an intersection about 12:30 a.m. by a minivan that apparently ran a red light, police said.

The impact spun around both vehicles, and one then struck another car but that driver was not hurt, police said.

The minivan driver fled the crash on foot and was captured about 30 minutes later. Police identified him as Andrew Thomas Gallo, 22, of Riverside, and said he had a suspended license because of a previous drunken driving conviction.

Preliminary results indicated Gallo's blood-alcohol level was "substantially over the legal limit" of .08 percent, police Lt. Kevin Hamilton said.

Gallo was interviewed by investigators Thursday afternoon. Hamilton said Gallo would be booked later on three counts of murder, three counts of vehicular manslaughter, felony hit-and-run and driving under the influence of alcohol.

A spokeswoman for the Orange County district attorney's office said charges against Gallo likely wouldn't be filed Thursday because police were still investigating.

Adenhart died in surgery at the University of California, Irvine Medical Center.

Martinez hurt, but Giants win

SAN FRANCISCO — Giants reliever Joe Martinez was hit in the head by Mike Cameron's line drive in the ninth inning, but was able to walk off the field Thursday in San Francisco's 7-1 win over the Milwaukee Brewers.

Martinez was conscious and taken to a hospital for a CT scan and evaluation. His forehead was bloody and his right eye was swollen.

Martinez, who made his major league debut Tuesday and was the winner in the Giants' opener, was struck near the right temple by Cameron's two-out liner. The 26-year-old pitcher dropped to his knees, and players on both sides winced at the scene.

Team trainers rushed to Martinez's aid. After a few minutes, he was able to walk away with a cloth held to his nose. Cameron, who was credited with a double, was beside himself. He grimaced, looked away and slowed while running to first base. Cameron knelt at second base with his head in his hands while Martinez was being treated, and stayed down even after the pitcher left.

CARDINALS 2, PIRATES 1

ST. LOUIS — Chris Carpenter took a no-hit bid into the seventh inning and combined with two relievers on a one-hitter, leading the St. Louis Cardinals over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Carpenter (1-0) didn't allow a hit until Ramon Vazquez singled just under the glove of second baseman Skip Schumaker with two outs in the seventh.

Votto had a three-run homer and an RBI single off Oliver Perez, who rarely has such a tough time against a left-handed hitter, and the Cincinnati Reds beat the New York Mets to salvage the final game of their opening series.

Bronson Arroyo (1-0), who'd had trouble with carpal tunnel syndrome, giving up five runs in six innings. Francisco Cordero struck out the side in the ninth, converting Cincinnati's first save opportunity of the season.

PADRES 4, DODGERS 3

SAN DIEGO — Adrian Gonzalez's solo homer started a three-run rally in the eighth inning that carried the San Diego Padres over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Closer Heath Bell got out of a jam in the ninth for his second save and the Padres salvaged a split of an opening, four-game series against the defending NL West champion Dodgers.

RANGERS 12, INDIANS 8

ARLINGTON, Texas — The Texas Rangers are 3-0 for the first time since 1996.

Marlon Byrd and Ian Kinsler hit long home runs and the Rangers completed their season-opening series sweep, outslugging the Cleveland Indians 12-8 Thursday.

Byrd's homer was a three-run shot that capped a five-run first off Carl Pavano (0-1), making his first start for Cleveland after being a free-agent bust with the Yankees the past four seasons. Byrd matched a career high with five RBIs.

YANKEES 11, ORIOLES 2

BALTIMORE — A.J. Burnett won in his Yankees debut and fellow newcomers Mark Teixeira and Nick Swisher homered as New York beat Baltimore for its first win this season.

RAYS 4, RED SOX 3

BOSTON — Matt Garza pitched seven innings of four-hit ball, Tampa Bay hit three homers off Daisuke Matsuzaka, and the Rays beat the Boston Red Sox to win their opening three-game series.

Evan Longoria had three hits, including a two-run homer, and Matt Joyce and Shawn Riggans also homered for the defending AL champions.

ROYALS 2, WHITE SOX 1

CHICAGO — Coco Crisp's two-run homer in the ninth inning broke a scoreless tie and the Kansas City Royals held off the Chicago White Sox.

BLUE JAYS 6, TIGERS 2

TORONTO — Ricky Romero outpitched Rick Porcello in the first matchup of former first-round draft picks making their major league debuts against each other, and the Toronto Blue Jays rallied to beat the Detroit Tigers for their third win in the opening four-game series.

MARINERS 2, TWINS 0

MINNEAPOLIS — Jarrod Washburn gave up five hits in eight innings and Brandon Morrow got his first save of the season to lead the Seattle Mariners over the Minnesota Twins.

Washburn (1-0) struck out four with just one walk to get his first victory since July 27. Adrian Belte and Rob Johnson had RBI singles for the Mariners split the four-game set.

Davidson's Curry still undecided on NBA

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Davidson guard Stephen Curry, the nation's leading scorer, is still undecided on whether to leave school for the NBA.

His father, former NBA sharpshooter Dell Curry, says Thursday that his son is in "pause mode." He indicated a decision could come next week. The deadline to declare for the draft is April 26.

Curry averaged 28.6 points for the Wildcats. A year earlier, he led Davidson within a missed 3-pointer of the Final Four.

The 6-foot-3 Curry is projected as a first-round pick.

If Curry returns for his senior season, he'd have an outside shot at eclipsing Pete Maravich's NCAA Division I career scoring record.

While Curry is undecided, a few more players declared for the draft on Thursday, including Wake Forest sophomore forward James Johnson.

A spokesman for Wasserman Media Group said Thursday that Johnson has signed with their agency and will be represented by Dan Tobin. That means Johnson will not be able to return to play for the school.

The 6-foot-9 Johnson was the top rebounder with 8.5 per game and second on the team in scoring at 15.8 points. He's been projected to be a first-round pick in most mock drafts.

Wake Forest guard Jeff Teague also declared for the draft this week, but did not hire an agent. Coach Dino Gaudio believes Teague will

Bulls close in on playoff spot

CHICAGO (AP) — Ben Gordon and Tyrus Thomas each scored 24 points, and the Chicago Bulls closed in on their fourth playoff appearance in five years with a 113-99 victory over the Philadelphia 76ers on Thursday night.

The seventh-place Bulls reduced their magic number to one over Charlotte, which visits Saturday, and moved a half game ahead of Detroit in the Eastern Conference.

Thomas set a season-high for points while converting a career-best 14 of 14 free throws. He scored 10 points in the third quarter and Gordon added seven as the Bulls turned a halftime tie into an 82-72 lead before pulling away for their 13th home win in 14 games.

return for his junior season.

Forward Al-Farouq Aminu is returning to Wake Forest for his sophomore season.

Miami junior forward Dwayne Collins declared but has not hired an agent. The 6-foot-8 Collins was Miami's second-leading scorer last season, averaging 10.6 points per game. He also had a team-high 7.3 rebounds per game during the 2008-09 season.

UCLA guard Jrue Holiday did the same, leaving open the option of returning for his sophomore season.

Bryant

"I think so" was a phrase uttered by most when talking about the College of Southern Idaho pitcher, a sophomore from Surrey, B.C., that has moved herself from benchwarmer to starter at one of the nation's top junior college softball programs. All she wants is two more years.

Bryant barely got five innings of game experience during her freshman season. In her lone 2008 start, she earned a 13-1 victory over Treasure Valley Community College in a five-inning appearance, giving up one run on three hits. She walked three and struck out none. Head coach Nick Baumert described her performance as inconsistent without a lot of velocity or movement in her pitches.

"We left her with that," Baumert said of the season-ending meeting, where he lays down what a player should work on for next season. "She came back from the summer break and was a completely different kid."

Bryant headed home to Canada, where she played with the Delta Heat summer league, reuniting with kid sister Kelsey, who is a CSI signee. She took advantage of every game, every practice, every bullpen session with a mission to reappear in Twin Falls and claim a spot in the rotation.

"I came up this year with nothing to lose," Bryant said. "I could just get better. I think I showed coach that I

CSI last week: 4-0 against Snow College (W 15-8, W 13-1, W 11-2, W 9-1)

North Idaho last week: 3-1 against Western Nevada College (W 11-2, W 5-0, L 4-2, W 9-0)

Last meeting: The Cardinals took three of a four-game series in Coeur d'Alene back in February.

Cardinals pitcher Nina Gonzalez struck out 15 Eagles through three games.

About the Cardinals: Wailana Buchanan leads NIC at the plate, batting .390 with 35 RBIs. Most players are in the single-digits when it comes to extra-base hits, meaning the Cardinals rely on small ball and brave base running rather than power hitting to get the job done. Jessica Fagan has nearly 30 stolen bases. Pitchers Karri Johnson (14-11) and Gonzalez both have ERAs in the mid-2s with more than 110 strikeouts each.

Nick's notes: "One thing about North Idaho is that they're so aggressive on the base paths. When they come in, instead of moving runners with bunts or drag bunt, they'll try to steal. They're always looking to take two bases instead of base-to-base. Defense has to be weary of that. That's the big thing for us."

— CSI head coach Nick Baumert

Injury update: Dani Grant (right shoulder) and Generra Nielson (head) will be game-time decisions.

On deck: The Golden Eagles will travel to Ontario, Ore., Tuesday to face Treasure Valley Community College. They will have the weekend off.

was here to work hard and earn my spot as a starting pitcher."

Bryant got to work for the No. 11 Eagles this spring, earning her second college victory against Pima Community College, another top 10 team, in a January tournament in Arizona. She allowed seven hits and only struck out one, but she gave up no walks and no runs in a 7-0 shutout. Baumert called it one of her best performances.

She's also had games where not much of anything worked, like last weekend against Snow College when she allowed six runs in less than two innings. But overall Bryant has continued to perform at a competitive level. The sophomore is 7-4 with a 2.72 ERA through 64.1 innings. She's struck out 41, and opponents are batting .277 against her.

Her disposition had changed. Former pitcher and student coach Desirae Thomson noticed a more positive attitude. Catcher Megan Zimmerman called it her work ethic. Baumert said it was attitude.

"She brings ... I don't know if it's a can-do attitude, but it's kind of cocky," Baumert said. "Jody (Zillner) kind of carried herself that way last year, just that demeanor that she's going to get after you."

The attitude and the look are an important part of her pitching persona: The eye black smudged under stone cold eyes and across her cheeks like war paint. The grunt upon the softball's release. The expressions that give little away.

"You can tell with other pitchers when they're struggling," Zimmerman said. "With Kyla, she's got such a stoic face the whole time, you can't tell, especially the batters can't tell, if they're getting to her."

Regardless, there's still much work to do. On paper, Bryant's stats trail behind the other pitchers and many of her teammates have already lined up a spot to play at a four-year program while she is still looking. Since she was a small child, all she's ever wanted to do was play four years of college softball, and she's almost there.

Interest has been brewing in Pocatello and Caldwell from Idaho State, an NCAA Division I program, and College of Idaho, NAIA Division II school where former Golden Eagle Zillner is now an ace hurler. Either choice would suit Bryant, who has come to call southern Idaho home. She also wouldn't mind the proximity to her sister.

But is she ready? Baumert: "I think so. When we talk about Kyla at her best, like against Pima or that first Salt Lake game, she is consistent at that higher level. She had a good game against Southern Nevada. If she competes and throws at that level, I think she can compete at a four-year school."

Thomson: "I think so. She didn't get to play a lot last year. She took advantage of the summer and really worked hard. She's going to have to do it again. Right now, she's not as ready as she could be. If she works, she'll be fine."

Zimmerman: "I think so. If she keeps working hard, she'll progress even more. She doesn't take any crap from the other teams. When she's out there, she's the best. That's her mentality."

Bryant: "I think I'm ready. My freshman year, I didn't play but I learned a lot. I think I'm ready to move on to bigger and better things."

Iran president says ready for nuke talks

ISFAHAN — Iran's president said Thursday his country is open to talks with the U.S. and other countries over its nuclear program. But he insisted the talks must be based on respect for Iran's rights, suggesting the West should not try to force Tehran to stop uranium enrichment.

Hard-liner Mahmoud Ahmadinejad said Iran would present a new proposal for negotiations, saying "conditions have changed" — an apparent reference to President Barack Obama's election and Iran's own progress in its nuclear program since previous talks with Iran were held last year. He did not elaborate on the proposal.

Ahmadinejad's speech Thursday made clear he saw a difference between Obama and former President George W. Bush, who took a tough stance on Iran.

Ahmadinejad spoke during celebrations for Iran's Nuclear Day, in which a number of nuclear advances were announced.

Among them, officials said the number of centrifuges at Iran's enrichment facility has increased to 7,000 — up from 6,000 announced in February — and that a new, more advanced type of centrifuge has been tested. Ahmadinejad also inaugurated a new plant for developing uranium fuel for a planned hard-water reactor.

Italy quake death toll rises to 287

L'AQUILA — This quake ravaged medieval city took a limping step toward normalcy Thursday as butchers, bakers and other shopkeepers reopened for business and firefighters began entering buildings to grab essential items for the homeless.

Three days after the quake the made the historic center uninhabitable and halted nearly all economic activity, the death toll reached 287, civil protection authorities said Thursday night. Police said the victims including 20 children and teens.

Premier Silvio Berlusconi said the government also had increased the sum allocated for emergency aid to 100 million euros ($133 million), and that reconstruction would cost several billion euros.

On yet another day punctuated by aftershocks, a particularly sharply felt tremor rocked the quake-stricken area at 9:38 p.m. The shaking lasted a minute and was felt in Rome some 70 miles away from L'Aquila.

An unoccupied four-story building, heavily damaged in Monday's quake, collapsed in L'Aquila's historic center, Carabinieri military police said.

Italy's National Geophysics Institute said the aftershock registered 4.9 on the Richter scale.

Returning troops get brain injury tests

FORT CAMPBELL — Every soldier who's gone to war in the past year paused before leaving to take a brain test — basic math, matching numbers and symbols and identifying patterns to measure response time and accuracy. Now that some of these troops have returned, they're taking a fresh round of tests, all part of a broad effort by the military to better treat head injuries.

The Department of Defense is also deploying some unusual weapons for treating the injuries, including paint guns and motion-sensitive video games integrated into therapy at new trauma centers around the country.

Funding for the treatment of these injuries is expected to increase under President Barack Obama, who said Thursday his new military and veterans affairs budget will focus on diagnosing brain injuries and psychological disabilities that have gone untreated.

More than 150,000 service members from the Marines, Air Force, Army and Navy have undergone the testing that became mandatory last year. Those who suffer a concussion or similar head injury will get a follow-up test.

Britain's top anti-terror officer resigns after security blunder

By Nancy Zuckerbrod
Associated Press writer

LONDON — Britain's top counter-terrorist police officer resigned Thursday after he was photographed carrying clearly visible secret documents about an operation against an alleged al-Qaida plot by Pakistani nationals to launch an attack in Britain.

Assistant Commissioner Bob Quick's blunder forced police to scramble to round up the suspects sooner than planned. Twelve men were arrested late Wednesday in raids across northwest England.

Prime Minister Gordon Brown said the raids had disrupted "a very big terrorist plot."

"We have been following it for some time," Brown told reporters.

Greater Manchester Police Chief Constable Peter Fahy said police had not identified a threat to any particular target. But he said the raids had been triggered because police thought public safety was at risk.

"We perceived a threat was there and we had to take action," he said.

"What happened essentially meant we have brought the matter forward but it would have happened in the next 24 hours in any event," he said.

Police said 11 of the men arrested were Pakistanis, most on student visas, and the twelfth was British. Several past terrorist plots in Britain had links to Pakistan, including the July 7, 2005, London transit attacks by four suicide bombers that killed 52 commuters.

"We know that there are links between terrorists in Britain and terrorists in Pakistan," said Brown. He said he would be asking Pakistani Prime Minister Asif Ali Zardari to take tougher action.

The British government currently assesses the country's terror threat level as "severe," the second-highest of five possible ratings. It means the government considers an attack likely.

Quick, the Metropolitan Police anti-terror chief, was photographed Wednesday clutching confidential documents as he arrived for a meeting with Brown at 10 Downing St. The document on top showed details of an anti-terror operation code-named Operation Pathway.

When officials became aware that clearly readable photographs of the document — which listed names of senior officers and plans for a series of raids — were in circulation, they changed their timetable for action.

News organizations were warned by a joint government-media body Wednesday that "publication or broadcast of any details of this photograph would seriously damage national security."

Hundreds of officers swooped on eight addresses across northwest England

Wednesday evening — a contrast to the dawn raids usually favored by police.

Greater Manchester Police said the suspects were detained under anti-terrorism laws in the cities of Manchester and Liverpool and the surrounding area, about 200 miles northwest of London.

The raids targeted homes, an Internet cafe, Liverpool's John Moores University and a car driving along a highway.

Once the raids were over, Quick swiftly stepped down.

"I have today offered my resignation in the knowledge that my action could have compromised a major counterterrorism operation," he said in a statement Thursday.

2010 CHEVROLET CAMARO COUPE

Muscle Machine!!

First Look
By Kimmi D. Rawlins,
Automotive Rhythms
Motor News Media Corporation

Open up the gates of hell and let loose the fire from an American icon like it was 1967. After years of anticipation, GM unleashes what everyone has been patiently awaiting: the 2010 Chevy Camaro. Teased first at the Detroit Auto Show some time ago and then again in Transformers: The Movie, the production versions are currently being built and should arrive at dealerships mid April.

Yet, is GM's party crasher hitting the scene a little too late amid all of the financial turmoil it is embattled in? Can the Camaro rescue the rest of the GM auto squad from 160-day supplies when the norm is 60-days? Will Bumblebee and the Autobots bailout GM from the cunning Decepticons who are on a warpath for revenge? It is dicey right now but at least Chevy has a Pro Bowler with an A-gamer on the team!

It is no great secret that stellar designs sell cars. Stylistically, the Camaro is a head nodder. It influences easy. Yellow Jacket Camaro V6 automatic is an eye catcher. Even without the 20s, the rear spoiler and rumble from the V8 the Camaro causes commotion. So the key is for Chevy to infiltrate the market as heavy and as quickly as possible because once the honeymoon is over, consumers will look for the next best thing. It happened with the Dodge Challenger. Chevy and GM do not have time for professional embarrassment and they need to move that muscle with impunity!

The Camaro launch is so important to Chevy that they brought out the big guns for the recent media drive in Detroit. Troy Clark, GM North American president, feels this is a great time to launch such a vehicle. Meaning, the game plan for GM is to jolt the market and bring back consumer confidence.

For example, Chevy has heard from 800,000 individuals inquiring about the muscle car and already has 14,000 orders from dealers. To Chevy, this is not a retro vehicle. It is the future.

"The new Camaro is just that - new," said Ed Welborn, vice president of GM Global Design. "We acknowledge the nameplate's strong heritage in the design, but recognize that keeping this modern sports car relevant meant more."

Its brazen style is so strong that Chevy is not only going after its two nemesis Mustang and Challenger, but also Nissan Z, Scion TC, Honda Civic, Mazda RX-8, BMW 3-Series and more.

They believe they will have a broad reach amongst younger, well educated consumers. The socially acceptable retro look is progressive and original details are maintained like the silhouette of course, side gills (non-functional) and the four-piece gauges down by the shifter. Yet, those seem more distracting as the driver has to lower his head to read their inputs.

The interior comes with either cloth or leather and four seats. But passengers stuffed in the back will grumble for the rest of the ride. So basically it is a 2+2. And get used to the exorbitant amount of plastics. Especially on the passenger side because that is all that is there. It would be nice to see some multi-layer materials, faux aluminum trim or something. Digital technologies include Bluetooth, iPod 30-pin connection, a Boston Acoustics sounds system, XM and OnStar's Turn by Turn navigation. Turn by Turn displays instructions on the radio screen and in the instrument cluster, and also has voice directions. The Boston Acoustics system is only mediocre with the windows up.

The brawn and beef of the muscle mania is, of course, the Corvette derived 6.2 LS3 V8 with 426 hp and 420 lbs-feet of torque, one more than the Challenger's Hemi V8. Pair it with the Tremec six-speed manual, disengage the StabiliTrak electronic stability control system and let those 201 staggered Pirelli spin like windmills (18s standard; 19s, 20s and 21s optional). The system, when activated, features a competitive mode for aggressive drivers and Launch Control to limit wheel spin on take off.

The second V8 is the L99 with 400 hp and 410 lbs-feet of torque and comes exclusively with a six-speed automatic. Yet, the steering-wheel mounted gear shifters are actuated via tabs placed under the wheel and not the inactive butterflies which mostly every manual auto uses. The Tremec manual is our preference! The L99 also features an Active Fuel Management System which cuts the eight cylinders to four when necessary helping the vehicle achieve 25 highway mpg.

Both engines are found in the Camaro SS. The 3.6-liter direct-injected V6 is rated at 304 horsepower and is the engine of choice for LS and LT models. It gets 29 highway mpg. All vehicles have true dual exhausts (bigger pipes on SS) and a new technologically preferred independent rear suspension versus a live axle.

The SS gets bigger Brembo brakes which brings the SS to a stop in less than 117 feet. These brakes work as advertised. It would be nice to see the Brembo calipers painted red opposed to the less noticeable faded black.

The first Camaro sold for $350,000 at Barnett-Jackson, with the bulk of the money going to charity. Consumers can get theirs starting at $22,995 (SS $39K). Overall the vehicle is impressive for the price point and one of the most easily influencing vehicles on the road today.

ORDINANCE NO. 1254

AN ORDINANCE OF THE CITY OF BURLEY, IDAHO, CONFIRMING THE ASSESSMENT ROLL FOR LOCAL IMPROVEMENT DISTRICT NO. 3 ALSO KNOWN AS THE HY-LINE LOCAL IMPROVEMENT DISTRICT; DETERMINING THE REGULARITY, VALIDITY, AND CORRECTNESS OF THE ASSESSMENT ROLL; DETERMINING THE REGULARITY, VALIDITY, AND CORRECTNESS OF THE ASSESSMENT CONTAINED IN THE ASSESSMENT ROLL; PROVIDING THE ASSESSMENT IS CONDITIONAL; PROVIDING UNPAID ASSESSMENTS MAY BE PAID IN INSTALLMENTS; CREATING A PRESUMPTION; SETTING THE TERMS OF INSTALLMENT OBLIGATIONS; AND PROVIDING AN EFFECTIVE DATE.

BE IT ORDAINED BY THE MAYOR AND COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF BURLEY:

Section 1: The assessment roll for Local Improvement District No. 3, also known as the Hy-Line Local Improvement District (the "District"), a true copy of which is attached hereto, is hereby adopted and confirmed.

Section 2: The Burley City Council (the "Council") hereby determines that the assessment roll, the assessment contained therein, and the amount levied on each parcel of land is regular, valid, and correct, and the Council hereby orders the levy of the assessments in said assessment roll and thereby levies against each parcel of real property shown in said assessment roll the amount of assessment listed therein.

Section 3: The Council hereby finds each parcel of land identified in the assessment roll is benefited to the amount of the assessment levied thereon and that each parcel benefits in direct proportion to the projected assessed value once the project improvements and private improvements to the parcels are completed.

Section 4: The full assessment of each parcel is computed based upon the benefit to the parcel.

Section 5: The payment of the assessments will be conditional, assuming that installment payments of the assessment are elected by the property owners. The bonded indebtedness to be paid by the installment payments of the assessment has an alternative source of payment from tax increment financing to be provided by the Burley Development Authority, which will issue bonds (the "Revenue Allocation Bonds") to pay the full cost of the project. The condition for the collection of the installment payment of the assessment under this roll will be any shortfall in the tax increment financing resulting in insufficient proceeds to meet the periodic payment obligation of the Revenue Allocation Bonds. Installment payments on the assessment will correspond in amount and interest rate to the payments on the Revenue Allocation Bonds. To the extent that a payment is made on the Revenue Allocation Bonds, the same will constitute a credit against the payment of a corresponding installment payment of the assessment.

Upon notice from the holder of the Revenue Allocation Bonds as to the happening of the condition, the City Clerk will give the assessed property owners written notification that the corresponding installment payment of the assessment is due and payable within 30 days, and shall be in an amount equal to the deficiency in payment of the Revenue Allocation Bonds from the tax increment, prorated amongst the assessed property owners in the proportion each owner's assessment bears to the total. If the tax increment financing recovers and there are sufficient proceeds to meet the periodic payment obligation, the condition requiring the installment payment of the assessment will no longer be in force until such time, if any, another shortfall in tax increment payments occurs.

In the event the assessed property owners exercise the option to pay periodically during any period, the full assessment shall bear interest at the rate of 8.50% per annum on the principal balance owing on the local improvement bonds, the original principal balance of which shall be the same amount as for the Revenue Allocation Bonds, and the full assessment will not be satisfied until the bonded indebtedness is retired.

All installment payments shall be due at least ten days prior to the date a payment on the bonded indebtedness becomes due. The installment payments shall be paid to the City Treasurer at the Burley City Hall. Installment payments will be delinquent twenty (20) days after due.

Section 6: The City Clerk shall immediately file with the Cassia County Recorder a notice of assessment lien which shall contain the date of this Ordinance and a description of the boundaries of this District. The City Clerk shall also immediately certify and file said assessment roll with the City Treasurer, and the full amount of the assessments therein contained shall be immediately due and payable to said City Treasurer thirty (30) days from the date of the adoption of this Ordinance and if the whole of said assessments are not paid within thirty (30) days thereafter, such assessments shall become delinquent and shall be collected in the same manner and with the same penalties and interest added thereto as hereinafter provided for delinquent assessments; provided, however, that all such assessments, or any part thereof, may, at the election of the owner, be paid in installments, with interest, as hereinafter provided. Failure to pay the whole assessment within thirty (30) days from the date of the adoption of this Ordinance shall be conclusively presumed and considered and held to be an election on the part of all persons interested, whether under disability or otherwise, to pay in such installments. In case of such election to pay in installments, the unpaid assessment shall be payable to the said City Treasurer in such installments of principal and interest as set forth in Section 5 of this Ordinance and in any local improvement bonds hereafter authorized by the Council on behalf of the District, at the same interest rate as that to be borne by any local improvement bonds hereafter authorized. The amount of installment payments of assessments due in any one year may be reduced conditionally by the City to the extent that the City receives funds from sources, other than payment of assessments, which have been designated to be used for payment of the bonds of the District. Any installment not paid within twenty (20) days after the installment payment is due shall be considered delinquent, and a two percent (2%) penalty will be added to the amount of said installment. Failure to pay any installment, whether of principal or interest, when due, shall cause the whole amount of the unpaid principal to become due and payable immediately, and the City shall proceed to collect all of the said unpaid assessments, both principal and interest, and all penalties, in the manner provided by the Local Improvement District Code of the State of Idaho (Idaho Code Sections 50-1701, et seq.) and all laws amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto. Before the issuance of such local improvement bonds, the owner of any piece of property liable for any assessment may redeem his property from such liability by paying all the installments of assessments which are due, plus any penalties and interest which may be payable on the same, and also the amount of installments not due with interest on the latter at the rate provided in the bonds, from the date of the last installment due to one (1) year after the next interest date of said bonds. After said bonds have been issued, such property may be redeemed by the owner thereof as provided by the Council, but the total amount to be paid shall be not less than the amount of all the installments of assessments which are due plus any penalties and interest which may be payable on the same, and also the amount of installments not due with interest on the latter at the rate provided in the bonds, from the date of the last installment due to one (1) year after the next interest date of said bonds.

Section 7: The City Treasurer shall, upon passage of the assessment roll, mail a postcard or letter to each property owner assessed in the District, at his post office address, if known, or if unknown, to the post office in the City, in accordance with the provisions of Section 50 1716, Idaho Code, stating the total amount of said property owners assessment, together with the substance of the terms of payments as hereinbefore set forth. Subsequent notices of payment may list only current installments due. An affidavit of mailing of this notice shall be filed before the date of delinquency in the office of said City Treasurer, in the file of the District, but the failure of the City Treasurer to give any notice required by Section 50 1716, Idaho Code, or to do any other act or thing required by said code section, shall not affect the validity of the assessments or installments thereof due or extend the time for payment, but may subject the City to liability to a taxpayer for any damage sustained by the latter by reason of such failure.

Section 8: The confirmation of said assessment roll herein made is a final determination of the regularity, validity and correctness of said assessment roll, of each assessment contained therein and the amount levied on each lot, parcel or tract of real property, subject to the appeal of any person who filed objections to the said assessment roll at or prior to the hearing on the same, which appeal, as provided by Section 50 1718, Idaho Code, is to be brought about by filing notice of the appeal, in writing, with the City Clerk and Clerk of the District Court within thirty (30) days from the date of publication of this Ordinance. No suit to set aside any assessments so made, or to enjoin the making of the same, shall be brought, nor any defense to the validity thereof be allowed, except by appeal subsequent to this confirmation as herein provided. Any person filing such appeal must also comply with the bond requirements set forth in Section 50 1718, Idaho Code.

Section 9: All proceedings heretofore had in connection with the creation of the District, the preparation and adoption of said assessment roll, the hearing held thereof, and the giving of the notice of said hearing of said assessment roll are hereby in all respects ratified, approved and confirmed.

Section 10: The Council shall use its best efforts to cause the Burley Development Authority to issue its tax increment Revenue Allocation Bonds as soon as reasonably possible, and the Council shall also take action to cause an installment local improvement bond or bonds as appropriate, conditionally payable from assessments as described herein, to be issued by the District as soon as reasonably possible.

Section 11: This ordinance shall be effective upon its passage, approval and publication.

ASSESSMENT ROLL FOR LOCAL IMPROVEMENT DISTRICT NO. 3

The City of Burley hereby considers for approval the following assessment roll prepared and filed pursuant to Idaho Code § 50-1712 for improvements made to Local Improvement District No. 3 pursuant to Burley Ordinance No. 1246.

The payment of the assessment will be conditional, assuming that installment payments of the assessment are elected by the property owners. The bonded indebtedness to be paid by the installment payments of the assessment has an alternative source of payment from tax increment financing to be provided by the Burley Development Authority, which will issue bonds (the "Revenue Allocation Bonds") to pay the full cost of the project. The condition for the collection of the installment payment of the assessment under this roll will be any shortfall in the tax increment financing resulting in insufficient proceeds to meet the periodic payment obligation of the Revenue Allocation Bonds. Installment payments on the assessment will correspond in amount and interest rate to the payments on the Revenue Allocation Bonds. To the extent that a payment is made on the Revenue Allocation Bonds, the same will constitute a credit against the payment of a corresponding installment payment of the assessment.

Upon notice from the holder of the Revenue Allocation Bonds as to the happening of the condition, the City Clerk will give the assessed property owners written notification that the corresponding installment payment of the assessment is due and payable within 30 days, and shall be in an amount equal to the deficiency in payment of the Revenue Allocation Bonds from the tax increment, prorated amongst the assessed property owners in the proportion each owner's assessment bears to the total. If the tax increment financing recovers and there are sufficient proceeds to meet the periodic payment obligation, the condition requiring the installment payment of the assessment will no longer be in force until such time, if any, another shortfall in tax increment payments occurs.

In the event the assessed property owners exercise the option to pay periodically during any period, the full assessment shall bear interest at the rate of 8.50% per annum on the principal balance owing on the local improvement bonds, the original principal balance of which shall be the same amount as for the Revenue Allocation Bonds, and the full assessment will not be satisfied until the bonded indebtedness is retired.

ORDINANCE NO. 1255

AN ORDINANCE OF THE CITY OF BURLEY, IDAHO, CONFIRMING THE ASSESSMENT ROLL FOR LOCAL IMPROVEMENT DISTRICT NO. 4; DETERMINING THE REGULARITY, VALIDITY, AND CORRECTNESS OF THE ASSESSMENT ROLL; DETERMINING THE REGULARITY, VALIDITY, AND CORRECTNESS OF THE ASSESSMENT CONTAINED IN THE ASSESSMENT ROLL; PROVIDING THE ASSESSMENT IS CONDITIONAL; PROVIDING UNPAID ASSESSMENTS MAY BE PAID IN INSTALLMENTS; CREATING A PRESUMPTION; SETTING THE TERMS OF INSTALLMENT OBLIGATIONS; AND PROVIDING AN EFFECTIVE DATE. BE IT ORDAINED BY THE MAYOR AND COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF BURLEY:

Section 1: The assessment roll for Local Improvement District No. 4 (the "District"), a true copy of which is attached hereto, is hereby adopted and confirmed.
Section 2: The Burley City Council (the "Council") hereby determines that the assessment roll, the assessment contained therein, and the amount levied on the parcel of land is regular, valid, and correct, and the Council hereby orders the levy of the assessments in said assessment roll and thereby levies against each parcel of real property shown in said assessment roll the amount of assessment listed therein.
Section 3: The Council hereby finds the parcel of land identified in the assessment roll is benefited to the amount of the assessment levied thereon.
Section 4: The full assessment of the parcel is computed based upon the benefit to the parcel and that it is the only parcel within the district.
Section 5: The payment of the assessment will be conditional, assuming that installment payments of the assessment are elected by the property owner. The bonded indebtedness to be paid by the installment payments of the assessment has an alternative source of payment from tax increment financing to be provided by the Burley Development Authority, which will issue bonds (the "Revenue Allocation Bonds") to pay the full cost of the project. The condition for the collection of the installment payment of the assessment under this roll will be any shortfall in the tax increment financing resulting in insufficient proceeds to meet the periodic payment obligation of the Revenue Allocation Bonds. Installment payments on the assessment will correspond in amount and interest rate to the payments on the Revenue Allocation Bonds. To the extent that a payment is made on the Revenue Allocation Bonds, the same will constitute a credit against the payment of a corresponding installment payment of the assessment.

Upon notice from the holder of the Revenue Allocation Bonds as to the happening of the condition, the City Clerk will give the assessed property owner written notification that the corresponding installment payment of the assessment is due and payable within 30 days, and shall be in an amount equal to the deficiency in payment of the Revenue Allocation Bonds from the tax increment. If the tax increment financing recovers and there are sufficient proceeds to meet the periodic payment obligation, the condition requiring the installment payment of the assessment will no longer be in force until such time, if any, another shortfall in tax increment payments occurs. In the event the assessed property owner exercises the option to pay periodically during any period, the full assessment shall bear interest at the rate of 8.50% per annum on the principal balance owing on the local improvement bonds, the original principal balance of which shall be the same amount as for the Revenue Allocation Bonds, and the full assessment will not be satisfied until the bonded indebtedness is retired.

All installment payments shall be due ten days prior to the date a payment on the bonded indebtedness becomes due. The installment payments shall be paid to the City Treasurer at the Burley City Hall. Installment payments will be delinquent twenty (20) days after due.

Section 6: The City Clerk shall immediately file with the Cassia County Recorder a notice of assessment lien which shall contain the date of this Ordinance and a description of the boundaries of this District. The City Clerk shall also immediately certify and file said assessment roll with the City Treasurer, and the full amount of the assessments therein contained shall be immediately due and payable to said City Treasurer thirty (30) days from the date of the adoption of this Ordinance and if the whole of said assessments are not paid within thirty (30) days thereafter, such assessments shall become delinquent and shall be collected in the same manner and with the same penalties and interest added thereto as hereinafter provided for delinquent assessments; provided, however, that all such assessments, or any part thereof, may, at the election of the owner, be paid in installments, with interest, as hereinafter provided. Failure to pay the whole assessment within thirty (30) days from the date of the adoption of this Ordinance shall be conclusively presumed and considered and held to be an election on the part of all persons interested, whether under disability or otherwise, to pay in such installments. In case of such election to pay in installments, the unpaid assessment shall be payable to the said City Treasurer in such installments of principal and interest as set forth in Section 5 of this Ordinance and in any local improvement bonds hereafter authorized by the Council on behalf of the District, at the same interest rate as that to be borne by any local improvement bonds hereafter authorized. The amount of installment payments of assessments due in any one year may be reduced conditionally by the City to the extent that the City receives funds from sources, other than payment of assessments, which have been designated to be used for payment of the bonds of the District. Any installment not paid within twenty (20) days after the installment payment is due shall be considered delinquent, and a two percent (2%) penalty will be added to the amount of said installment. Failure to pay any installment, whether of principal or interest, when due, shall cause the whole amount of the unpaid principal to become due and payable immediately, and the City shall proceed to collect all of the said unpaid assessments, both principal and interest, and all penalties, in the manner provided by the Local Improvement District Code of the State of Idaho (Idaho Code Sections 50-1701, et seq.) and all laws amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto. Before the issuance of such local improvement bonds, the owner of any piece of property liable for any assessment may redeem his property from such liability by paying all the installments of assessments which are due, plus any penalties and interest which may be payable on the same, and also the amount of installments not due with interest on the latter at the rate provided in the bonds, from the date of the last installment due to one (1) year after the next interest date of said bonds. After said bonds have been issued, such property may be redeemed by the owner thereof as provided by the Council, but the total amount to be paid shall be not less than the amount of all the installments of assessments which are due plus any penalties and interest which may be payable on the same, and also the amount of installments not due with interest on the latter at the rate provided in the bonds, from the date of the last installment due to one (1) year after the next interest date of said bonds.

Section 7: The City Treasurer shall, upon passage of the assessment roll, mail a postcard or letter to each property owner assessed in the District, at his post office address, if known, or if unknown, to the post office in the City, in accordance with the provisions of Section 50 1716, Idaho Code, stating the total amount of said property owners assessment, together with the substance of the terms of payments as hereinbefore set forth. Subsequent notices of payment may list only current installments due. An affidavit of mailing of this notice shall be filed before the date of delinquency in the office of said City Treasurer, in the file of the District, but the failure of the City Treasurer to give any notice required by Section 50 1716, Idaho Code, or to do any other act or thing required by said code section, shall not affect the validity of the assessments or installments thereof due or extend the time for payment, but may subject the City to liability to a taxpayer for any damage sustained by the latter by reason of such failure.

Section 8: The confirmation of said assessment roll herein made is a final determination of the regularity, validity and correctness of said assessment roll, of each assessment contained therein and the amount levied on each lot, parcel or tract of real property, subject to the appeal of any person who filed objections to the said assessment roll at or prior to the hearing on the same, which appeal, as provided by Section 50 1718, Idaho Code, is to be brought about by filing notice of the appeal, in writing, with the City Clerk and Clerk of the District Court within thirty (30) days from the date of publication of this Ordinance. No suit to set aside any assessments so made, or to enjoin the making of the same, shall be brought, nor any defense to the validity thereof be allowed, except by appeal subsequent to this confirmation as herein provided. Any person filing such appeal must also comply with the bond requirements set forth in Section 50 1718, Idaho Code.

Section 9: All proceedings heretofore had in connection with the creation of the District, the preparation and adoption of said assessment roll, the hearing held thereof, and the giving of the notice of said hearing of said assessment roll are hereby in all respects ratified, approved and confirmed.

Section 10: The Council shall use its best efforts to cause the Burley Development Authority to issue its tax increment Revenue Allocation Bonds as soon as reasonably possible, and the Council shall also take action to cause an installment local improvement bond or bonds as appropriate, conditionally payable from assessments as described herein, to be issued by the District as soon as reasonably possible.

Section 11: This ordinance shall be effective upon its passage, approval and publication.

ASSESSMENT ROLL FOR LOCAL IMPROVEMENT DISTRICT NO. 4

The City of Burley hereby considers the following assessment roll prepared and filed pursuant to Idaho Code § 50-1712 for improvements made to Local Improvement District No. 4 pursuant to Burley Ordinance No. 1243.

The payment of the assessment will be conditional, assuming that installment payments of the assessment are elected by the property owner. The bonded indebtedness to be paid by the installment payments of the assessment has an alternative source of payment from tax increment financing to be provided by the Burley Development Authority, which will issue bonds (the "Revenue Allocation Bonds") to pay the full cost of the project. The condition for the collection of the installment payment of the assessment under this roll will be any shortfall in the tax increment financing resulting in insufficient proceeds to meet the periodic payment obligation of the Revenue Allocation Bonds. Installment payments on the assessment will correspond in amount and interest rate to the payments on the Revenue Allocation Bonds. To the extent that a payment is made on the Revenue Allocation Bonds, the same will constitute a credit against the payment of a corresponding installment payment of the assessment.

Upon notice from the holder of the Revenue Allocation Bonds as to the happening of the condition, the City Clerk will give the assessed property owner written notification that the corresponding installment payment of the assessment is due and payable within 30 days, and shall be in an amount equal to the deficiency in payment of the Revenue Allocation Bonds from the tax increment. If the tax increment financing recovers and there are sufficient proceeds to meet the periodic payment obligation, the condition requiring the installment payment of the assessment will no longer be in force until such time, if any, another shortfall in tax increment payments occurs. In the event the assessed property owner exercises the option to pay periodically during any period, the full assessment shall bear interest at the rate of 8.50% per annum on the principal balance owing on the local improvement bonds, the original principal balance of which shall be the same amount as for the Revenue Allocation Bonds, and the full assessment will not be satisfied until the bonded indebtedness is retired.
