Judge shuts public out of murder case hearing

Unusual move comes without warning or explanation

By Andrea Jackson
Times-News writer

JEROME — Fifth District Court Judge Jason Walker Thursday shut the public out of a criminal hearing in a first-degree murder case without saying if 73-year-old Fortino Leon is mentally fit to stand trial or why he was sealing the case. Leon's mental fitness has been in question since at least November, when he was placed in the Idaho Department of Correction Secure Medical Program.

He is accused of first-degree murder for the July shooting of Javier Zavala-Paniagua, 22, outside a Jerome residence at 221 Fifth Ave. E. Leon is also charged with aggravated assault and aggravated battery for shooting his estranged wife, Maria Leon, 41. Neighbors have said Maria Leon was living with Zavala-Paniagua for at least a month before the shooting unfolded in front of their home on a sunny day, along a quiet residential street, in the presence of children riding on scooters. On Thursday, just a day after granting media requests to allow cameras in the courtroom, Walker without explanation closed the hearing and asked reporters to leave the courtroom. He said only that he was granting a motion from prosecutors "to seal the proceedings." There was no discussion of that motion in the open courtroom. Walker allowed lawyers in the case, witnesses, and Maria Leon to remain in court. Sealing a murder proceeding is unusual, even when issues involve the mental health of the accused, local attorneys familiar with such cases said Thursday. Judges commonly weigh matters in open court, and close proceedings only after ruling the defendant is

Teacher accused of sex with student offered plea deal

Prosecutors propose 3-10 years in prison for her guilty plea

By Andrea Jackson
Times-News writer

GOODING — Prosecutors want to put Anna Bettencourt in prison for at least three years for allegedly having sex with a student while she was a teacher at Bliss High School last fall. Bettencourt, 39, is charged with two felony counts of sexual battery of a minor for allegedly engaging in sexual relations with a 16-year-old male student twice between Aug. 15 and Sept. 30, according to a court record obtained by the Times-News before Judge Casey Robinson sealed it from the public on Feb. 19. Bettencourt was in Gooding County 5th District Court on Thursday for a preliminary hearing, which she waived, saying little more than quiet affirmations to the judge regarding her understanding of the case. Jerome County Prosecutor John Horgan quickly put the plea offer on the table.

Jerome school board approves asking voters for $15.8M

By Ben Botkin

JEROME — Jerome School District voters will decide in May whether to approve a bond levy that would provide remodeling and additions to the community's high school. The Jerome School District's Board voted unanimously on Thursday in favor of asking voters to pass a $15.8 million, 20-year bond for the high school improvements. The bond would add $73 of taxes annually to every $100,000 of taxable assessed value. The bond election will be on May 21. "This is going to create a great opportunity for the district and the community as a whole," said Kelly Bangarter, co-chair of the citizens' steering committee that made the recommendation to the board. Bangarter said improvements to the high school facility are needed because the student population has grown close to 1,000 students, well above the building's capacity. New state science requirements for high school students are also affecting the need for more space, he said. The high school, built in the mid-1970s, was originally designed for about 650 students. Eight classrooms were added in 1990 when enrollment grew beyond 800 students. The bond would bring eight new classrooms, including another science lab, a remodeling and upgrade of the performing arts auditorium and stage area, an expanded cafeteria and adding a new, second gymnasium facility. As part of the remodeling, the administrative offices would be moved from the second floor to the first to improve security at the school. There would also be a new traffic signal at

IDAHO LEGISLATURE 2009 STRANGE SESSION

Legislators' actions getting weirder

By John Miller
Associated Press writer

BOISE — As what is now the second-longest Idaho Legislature in 119 years hit its 95th day, quirks are emerging almost hourly in an institution that's jealously guarded its reputation over the years as an enclave for eccentrics. Take this week's House debate on Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter's bill to reform Idaho's 62-year-old system of doling out liquor licenses by quota. Currently, a single license is allowed for every 1,500 residents of cities; Otter's plan would have given cities and counties the right to issue licenses to restaurants and hotels as they saw fit. That prompted one lawmaker, Rep. Russ Mathews, R-Idaho Falls, to raise the specter of McDonald's restaurants across the state seeking licenses to sell Jack and Cokes and Long Island iced teas alongside Happy Meals and McNuggets. Mickey D's customers, Mathews feared, would "be able to get a little nippy instead of a happy toy." The measure was soundly defeated. You know something is a little topsy turvy when neighboring Utah, with America's largest population of tee-totaling Mormons, just a month earlier had passed state's most sweeping liquor law reforms in 40 years, but Idaho decided to stick with a system promoting "temperance and morality" that came into existence two years after GIs returned from World War II. The weirdness doesn't stop there.

Lawyers ask judge to split grazing suit

By Todd Dvorak
Associated Press writer

BOISE — The federal government is asking a judge to break apart a sweeping lawsuit that accuses federal land managers of putting grazing and energy interests ahead of preserving sage grouse across millions of acres of public land across the West. The lawsuit, filed last year in U.S. District Court here,

"It's not a case of if you've seen one, you've seen them all."

challenges 16 separate land use plans developed by the Bureau of Land Management in recent years to manage about 25 million acres in Montana, Idaho, Nevada, Utah, Wyoming and northern California. The Idaho-based Western Watersheds Project contends the BLM violated federal environmental laws, as well as its own policies, in writing those plans. In its lawsuit, the group accuses the agency of failing to properly consider the impacts livestock grazing, oil and gas drilling and other activities would have on the sage grouse and its diminishing habitat. Legacy nationalities dwindling in region

Who are we, the 174,057 souls who choose to live in south-central Idaho? ...

The Census Bureau asks that question from time to time, and in the Magic and Wood River valleys they found that we're probably more homogenous than we think — at least when it comes to the countries of our forebears ...

Eighteen percent of us — 31,787 — claim English origins ... Sixteen percent (28,589) are German, and another 9 percent (14,858) hearken to Ireland ...

Together, those three Northern European ethnic groups make up 43 percent of the population ...

Another 11 percent (19,926) is Mexican, and an additional 2.5 percent describe themselves as "other Hispanic or Latino" ... That brings the Latino population to 13.5 percent, or 24,217 ...

What's surprising — and a little sad — is how small a percentage some of the legacy ethnic groups that settled this region are today ...

Basques, for example, make up just fourth-tenths of 1 percent of the population ... The Dutch, so integral in the development of dairying — the Magic Valley's dominant industry — comprise just 2.7 percent of the population ...

And there are fewer than 1,700 American Indians in south-central Idaho, less than 1 percent ...

Of course, this Census data about national origin relies on the honesty of the respondents, so it's not completely accurate ... And those surveyed can list more than one ethnic ancestry ...

Collision sends driver, two children to hospital

Times-News

A car hit a semi truck in Jerome on Thursday afternoon, sending the car's driver and two children to the hospital.

Kenneth Koch, 24, of Twin Falls, was travelling westbound on Main Street when his 2007 Ford Focus collided with the tail end of a semi-trailer turning eastbound onto Main Street, according to an Idaho State police report.

Koch was sent by air ambulance to St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center with non-life threatening injuries. Two children, ages 4 and 2, were transported to the hospital by ambulance, also with non-life threatening injuries, according to the ISP report.

Jerome County Sheriff Doug McFall said the driver of the car, later identified by ISP as Koch, suffered head injuries. He said the car held one car seat and one child ended up on the car's floorboards.

An ISP investigation by Trooper Steve Otto is ongoing. Otto was assisted by Sgt. Keith Thompson, Cpl. Sean Walker and Commercial Vehicle Spc. Seth Uhlenkott.

Kimberly approves water tower lease for Internet service

By Jeremy Roberts
Times-News correspondent

The Kimberly City Council on Tuesday approved leasing space atop the city water tower to an area wireless internet company.

Councilmen approved a bid from Safelink Internet Services of Rupert to lease space for equipment needed to provide services to area residents. Under terms of the contract, Safelink will provide Internet service to city offices and donate two new printers to the Kimberly Public Library.

The motion by Councilman Kedrick Wills to approve the bid carried unanimously.

The council also passed a resolution to allow Mayor Dave Overacre, Council President George Plew, City Administrator Polly Hulsey and Deputy City Clerk Jean Hopkins to endorse their names on behalf of the city on any city-related documents.

"This is something that the bank has requested to make sure that when they have checks that are passing through Magic Valley Bank that they know that the city has authorized the signers of those documents."

The motion to pass the resolution was also unanimously carried.

In other business,

Kimberly will implement an identity theft prevention program to protect residents who pay for city utility services. A motion to adopt Section 114 of the Fair and Accurate Transaction Act passed unanimously.

Overacre also encouraged residents' participation in the U.S. Census Bureau's 2010 Census.

"This is a very important issue for our community, for our country and for our state," he said. "All of our federal funding is tied to our census."

Kimberly Police Chief Pat Birmingham welcomed new officer Mike Huffman, presenting Huffman with a certificate to signify his completion of the 10-week Police Officer Standards and Training program.

The council also addressed the nearing Arbor Day celebration, held at 1 p.m. Thursday at Paint Brush Park, on the corner of Ballard's Way and Paintbrush Avenue. A tree planting will be held and the city will receive its sixth Tree City USA award, given to the winner of the Tree City poster contest.

Officials clean up chemical containers near Auger Falls

Boxes formed paintball arena

By Nate Poppino
Times-News writer

A complaint about possible hazardous chemicals near the Snake River last week turned up not chemicals, but rather someone's amateur sports arena.

State and county officials cleaned up what appeared to be a makeshift paintball course in the Snake River Canyon near Auger Falls.

The arena, set up next to the abandoned concrete bridge that once connected the river's north bank to its south, was built out of four or five plastic 250-gallon chemical containers, said Bob Wright, Jerome County's code enforcement officer. A complaint about the containers reached his office on April 6, prompting an investigation by him, county disaster services director Clint Blackwood and the state departments of Environmental Quality and Fish and Game.

"They just popped up out of the blue," Wright said of the containers.

Photos of the scene before the cleanup show the box-like containers sitting in metal frames on bare, bleached rock. Paintball dots can be seen on several containers and occasionally on the ground.

Some of the containers still had warning labels stating they once contained a couple of chemicals used at dairies, officials said. But their valves were closed, and it appeared to have been a while since any of them held dangerous chemicals, said Tom Askew, a hazardous waste specialist for DEQ.

"These were old," he said, adding later, "(People) reuse those things for just everything and anything."

While officials don't think anything leaked into the ground or river, the containers still could have caused problems if they had been swept away by a rising Snake River. Whoever placed the containers had tried to pour some cement in each one, Askew said. But officials still worried that the river, fed by flood-control releases in its upper reaches, would sweep them away.

Though the agencies were still sorting out who had jurisdiction over the area, the rising waters spurred Fish and Game to take action and pull the containers out. Wright received confirmation April 9 that the containers were taken to a landfill, he said.

"I just said, 'Man, we've got to go get those out,'" regional habitat biologist Bruce Palmer said.

Just days later, pictures taken by Wright show a rushing river where the makeshift course sat.

"I was surprised that the river rose that much," said Wright, who lives along the Snake.

Unfortunately, officials said, they won't likely figure out who put the containers in place. Nearly all identifying marks are gone, Palmer said, and the containers may have been given away or sold after they were first emptied.

"There were some old tire tracks," he said. "That was about it."

Even if their owners can't be found, Wright said, he's still happy with the swift, cooperative action the agencies took to prevent a worse situation.

"We were more concerned about getting them out of there," he said.

CAMP funding removed from deal

By Jared S. Hopkins
Times-News writer

BOISE — Republican legislative leaders promise their members will support the tentative budget compromise on stimulus money and state employee payroll hatched with Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter.

The plan — cobbled together Wednesday after a Senate-backed bill was rejected by the House — currently doesn't provide $2 million of federal stimulus for the first phase of the Comprehensive Aquifer Management Program included in the bill that died.

"I would've preferred to fund it," Sen. Dean Cameron, R-Rupert, co-chairman of the Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee, said of the CAMP funding.

But CAMP stakeholders agree the item didn't have statewide appeal, said House Assistant Majority Leader Scott Bedke, R-Oakley.

The main compromise is a 5 percent, or $32 million, cut to most state agency payrolls supported by Otter and the House, instead of the 3 percent the Senate wanted. Otter will be able to soften the 5 percent cut with discretionary rainy day funds.

The compromise closes one dispute delaying adjournment, though the issue of raising new revenue to fix Idaho's roads still looms during the second-longest session in Idaho legislative history.

House GOP leaders said their caucus is unified. "The House is satisfied with the agreement," said Bedke.

Senate Republicans said they'll support the bill, albeit reluctantly. Senate Assistant Majority Leader Joe Stegner, R-Lewiston, said the Senate is left with little leverage.

"The governor and the House wanted this and in that case that leaves the Senate without any bargaining positions," he said.

Cameron argued the Senate didn't give in to the House. Instead, he said, the House preferred an even deeper cut to state payrolls and opposed Otter's discretionary rainy day funds.

"From my perspective, nobody won anything," Cameron said. "There will be layoffs and I think the governor understands that, so he'll have the opportunity to mitigate those layoffs."

Otter spokesman Jon Hanian didn't confirm a deal is final but said Otter has held productive meetings.

Meanwhile, details of the compromise emerged Friday:

- Agencies primarily funded federally or through dedicated funding — like the Department of Agriculture and Fish and Game Department, respectfully — will receive 3 percent reductions. The difference, due to shortfalls in state tax revenue, will be made up with rainy day funds.

• State judiciary and legislative workers will receive 3 percent cuts, not 5 percent, because they are not under the constitutional discretion of Otter.

Many Democrats don't support the deal, particularly due to increasing the state payroll cut to 5 percent and relying on Otter — not agency directors — to reduce it over the year.

"It doesn't give employees any certainty," said Rep. Wendy Jaquet, D-Ketchum, who sits on JFAC. "If you are an agency head you might think twice about going to the governor for help — you might get punished in next year's budget."

JFAC is scheduled to meet Monday to discuss the deal.

Construction on U.S. 93 and U.S. 20 to slow traffic

Times-News

Construction projects on U.S. Highway 93 north of Richfield and on U.S. Highway 20 between Timmerman Junction and Carey will slow traffic and limit over-legal truck travel in the northeast Magic Valley beginning Monday, the Idaho Transportation Department has announced.

Beginning Monday, U.S. 93 will be reduced to one lane from the north end of Richfield to the intersection with Pagari Road (milepost 182 to 189) for road construction. Crews will be blasting and removing rock during the early stages of construction.

Drivers are asked to watch for flaggers. A pilot car will be used to shuttle traffic through the construction zone and a 45 mph speed limit will be in effect. Delays of 15 minutes can be expected, with longer delays possible during blasting operations.

Also beginning Monday, U.S. 20 will be reduced to one lane at the Silver Creek bridge at milepost 191 for slab replacement on the bridge approach. Bridge work is the first phase of a larger road construction project beginning in June between Gannett Road and the Silver Creek bridge (milepost 186 to 192).

A lane closure over the bridge will be controlled by a construction traffic signal.

Drivers can expect delays of up to 15 minutes. A 35 mph speed limit will be in effect through the construction zone. A 12-foot width limit will also be enforced.

Because of width restrictions, any permitted over-legal loads are asked to use U.S. 93. Drivers are required give 24-hour notice to ITD in Shoshone, 208-886-7800.

Western Construction Inc. of Boise is the contractor for both projects, each costing about $3.5 million.

Canyon County sets cap on inmate numbers

CALDWELL (AP) — Commissioners in southwest Idaho's Canyon County have set a cap on the number of inmates in the county jail.

The resolution approved Wednesday sets a preferred cap in the main jail of 255 inmates, with a maximum of 296.

The main jail population has been near or above 300 on some days this month. Last month, the American Civil Liberties Union asked a federal judge to order the county to immediately fix problems at the jail, contending that inmates were being sickened by the conditions and their safety was at risk.

Chief Deputy Gary Deulen told the Idaho Press-Tribune on Wednesday that the cap puts the jail in compliance with Idaho jail standards.

"If we're at 296 and we arrest one person then we're over capacity," Deulen said.

The county for months has been using electronic monitoring and day reporting to decrease jail crowding.

"We're still trying to house serious offenders in a jail that was designed for numbers (from) two decades ago," said Commissioner Steve Rule.

In the motion it filed in U.S. District Court, the ACLU said the jail suffered from overcrowding, inadequate ventilation, inadequate sanitation, inadequate plumbing, and inadequate recreation. The problems, it said, were "the product of systemic failures in policies or practices."

Jail conditions amount to cruel and unusual punishment, the ACLU said, and the county should be ordered to have the jail inspected by experts and then submit to the court a plan to correct the problems.

In a prepared statement, ACLU attorney Stephen Pevar said it was shameful that county officials allowed the jail to become so foul.

The county has denied inmates face cruel and unusual treatment due to jail conditions.

In 2006, county voters rejected a $71.5 million bond to build a new jail.

More bears die; climate change and hunters blamed

By Matthew Brown
Associated Press writer

BOZEMAN, Mont. — Hunters are killing grizzly bears in record numbers around Yellowstone National Park, threatening to curb the species' decades-long recovery just two years after it was removed from the endangered species list.

Driving the high death rate, researchers say, is the bears' continued expansion across the 15,000-square-mile Yellowstone region of Montana, Idaho and Wyoming.

Bears are being seen — and killed — in places where they were absent for decades. And with climate change suspected in the devastation of one of the bear's food sources, there is worry the trend will continue as the animals roam farther afield in search of food.

"Last year may have been one those fluke years," said Chuck Schwartz, a bear biologist with the U.S. Geological Survey. "Last year could be the beginning of a trend."

Yellowstone's 600 grizzlies were removed from the endangered species list in 2007, following a recovery program that cost more than $20 million. If the death rate stays high for a second consecutive year, that would trigger a review of the bear's endangered status.

Federal officials say there were 48 bears killed by humans last year, out of 71 total deaths. At least 20 of the bruins died at the hands of hunters who shot bears in self-defense or after mistaking them for other animals.

"It's kind of a spur-of-the-moment thing. All you see is a big bear coming at you full speed," said Ron Leming, a Wyoming elk hunter who survived an attack from a 500-pound male grizzly before his father shot it dead with an arrow.

"If you play dead he might sit there and eat you," Leming said.

Schwartz and other biologists who study grizzlies insist the population remains strong for now, growing on average 4 percent to 5 percent a year. Yet they acknowledge climate change could prove the wild card that puts that growth in check.

An epidemic of beetles in Yellowstone's high country has laid waste to tens of thousands of acres of white-bark pine trees, which have seeds that some grizzlies rely on as a dietary staple.

Beetle epidemics are cyclical in the Northern Rockies. The latest one has been prolonged by several consecutive winters in which subfreezing temperatures did not last long enough to knock back the infestation.

If a warming world leads to less whitebark pine, environmentalists fear grizzlies will become more aggressive in challenging hunters — contests that bears usually lose.

"The prospect is that every year is going to be a bad food year because of what's happening to whitebark," said Doug Honnold, an attorney for the group Earthjustice.

Blaine County needs least stimulus cash, but receives most

The per capita income in Blaine County is $33,845. According to the Census Bureau, just 1.3 percent of the county’s nearly 22,000 residents use public transportation to get to work.

So while the $1.61 million that the city of Ketchum-affiliated Mountain Rides will receive in federal stimulus funds to buy 11 new vans or buses is welcome, we wonder if it couldn’t have been better spent elsewhere in south-central Idaho.

Like for the non-profit Living Independent Network Corp., which provides transportation services for elderly and disabled residents. Ketchum will get 26 times more than the $62,000 LINC gets for a single van for disabled people and some preventative maintenance vehicles.

In the eight counties LINC serves there are 23,273 people aged 65 and older, according to the Census Bureau. About 9 percent of them — nearly 2,000 people — fall below the poverty line. That’s less than $11,000 for an individual, about $15,000 for a couple.

But there are also more than 4,000 disabled workers in the region, the Social Security Administration reports. That’s a big constituency for LINC’s services.

The grants were approved by a nine-member regional committee comprised of government officials, as well as nonprofit and business representatives, who reviewed requests for stimulus money to help upgrade transportation services in south-central Idaho. To qualify, projects had to be shovel-ready — able to begin work within six months.

Had LINC offered a more ambitious proposal, it might have been accepted if it met federal guidelines.

Neither the Blaine County nor the LINC projects will create a lot of new jobs; three for Mountain Rides, while preserving one job for LINC.

But in this round, 97 percent of the federal stimulus transportation money earmarked for south-central Idaho will be spent in Blaine County. That illustrates just how inexact an instrument for economic development the stimulus is — and the importance of having a good grant-writer.

Our view:
 The feds are spending $1.68 million to bolster transportation services in the Wood River Valley — and $62,000 in the rest of south-central Idaho.

It’s not you; it really is confusing

You aren’t losing your mind. This stuff is confusing.

As we continue struggling to get out of here, some attention is being paid to what brought us to this place. In some quarters, though certainly not all, understanding history is still seen as one way to avoid repeating our mistakes.

But along with a sense of history one apparently needs an appreciation for irony. Or bourbon.

For example: The Federal Reserve in many economic circles is being pummeled for creating this mess, certainly the housing bubble, with its too low rates earlier this decade.

The Fed’s solution to the Great Recession, which was ignited by the housing bust, has been to take rates even lower. And this is making those of a certain age (50-plus) and with a sense of history remember the

THOMAS OLIVER

Carter years when inflation and mortgage rates topped 18 percent (1980).

Or, look at housing. The problem was too many houses being purchased by people who were given mortgages modified to make them more affordable. So the solution to the problem is to modify those mortgages even more, so that many of those same people can avoid foreclosure.

Or, take our financial institutions:

Banks made too many bad loans, so the solution is to supply them more money and insist they make loans they are uncomfortable with.

Insurance companies covered risky bets that lost big, so instead of letting the companies learn their lessons in bankruptcy court, the government is bailing them out with money legislated for banks. Since we are making up the rules as we go along, it’s no big deal to learn these insurance companies bought up small savings and loans last fall in order to qualify as banks and a federal bailout.

Then there’s our government’s most-favored industry: autos. American auto companies were crippled in the marketplace for years by congressional mandates and unrealistic union benefits, so the solution is to appoint a federal czar to fire executives, threaten the board but leave union leadership intact, while promising even more congressionally mandated models.

On the personal side, we know the consumer over-spent and overindulged and we’re now pulling back, paying off debt and saving more. But this is bad, we’re told, as such thrifty behavior will undermine economic recovery.

Enough. You can read “Alice in Wonderland” or the latest business news if you want more.

In the meantime, take some solace in knowing that you aren’t losing your mind. This is confusing. Counterintuitive at best, if policy-makers are right this time.

It will be a while before our confidence in the system returns, but there seems to be less fear.

Maybe we’re just getting used to this place. Like the frog in the boiling pot of water.

We’re all right-wing extremists now

What and who exactly are President Obama’s homeland security officials afraid of these days? If you are a member of an active conservative group that opposes abortion, favors strict immigration enforcement, lobbies to protect Second Amendment rights, protests big government, advocates federalism or represents veterans who believe in any of the above, the answer is: You.

Department of Homeland Security Sec. Janet Napolitano has turned her attention away from acts of Islamic jihad on American soil. Instead, her department is sounding the alarm over an unquantified “resurgence” in “right-wing extremism activity.” On April 7, DHS sent a nine-page warning memo to law enforcement offices across the country titled “Right-wing Extremism: Current Economic and Political Climate Fueling Resurgence in Radicalization and Recruitment.”

The report includes a sweeping definition of the threat:

“Right-wing extremism in the United States can be broadly divided into those groups, movements and adherents that are primarily hate-oriented (based on hatred of particular religious, racial or ethnic groups), and those that are mainly antigovernment, rejecting federal authority in favor of state or local authority, or rejecting government authority entirely. It may include groups and individuals that are dedicated to a single issue, such as opposition to abortion or immigration.”

The DHS spokespeople I talked to on Monday insisted that the report was not a politicized document and that DHS had done similar assessments on “left-wing extremism” in the past. But past domestic terrorism reports have always been very specific in identifying security threats — such as the Animal Liberation Front and the Earth Liberation Front — and very specific in identifying their methods and targets, including repeated physical harassment, arson and vandalism against pharmaceutical companies, farms, labs and university researchers.

By contrast, the Obama DHS report is an overarching indictment of conservatives.

“Right-wing extremist chatter on the Internet continues to focus on the economy, the perceived loss of U.S. jobs in the manufacturing and construction sectors, and home foreclosures,” the assessment warns. When I asked DHS spokeswoman Sara Kuban to explain who was responsible for this “extremist chatter,” she could not and would not name names.

Moreover, the report relies on the work of the left-leaning Southern Poverty Law Center to stir anxiety over “disgruntled military veterans” — a citation that gives us valuable insight into how DHS will define “hate-oriented” groups. The SPLC, you see, has designated the venerable American Legion a “hate group” for its stance on immigration enforcement. The report offers zero data, but states with an almost resentful attitude toward protected free speech: “Debates over appropriate immigration levels and enforcement policy generally fall within the realm of protected political speech under the First Amendment, but in some cases, anti-immigration or strident pro-enforcement fervor has been directed against specific groups and has the potential to turn violent.”

“Potential to turn violent”? So did the hysterical fervor whipped up by Capitol Hill over the AIG bonuses, which prompted ugly death threats from across the country. No mention here, though. Not “right wing” enough. Nor will you see Obama DHS warnings to police and sheriff’s departments about self-proclaimed bank terrorists such as Bruce Marks of the aggressive Neighborhood Assistance Corporation of America or the mob activists of ACORN who have committed burglary, stormed corporate executives’ homes and vowed to conduct “civil disobedience” by “any means necessary” in response to the “current economic and political climate.”

If you can redefine dissenting opinion as “hate,” you can brand your political opponents as “extremists” — and you can marginalize electoral threats. “Antigovernment”? “Pro-enforcement”? “Disgruntled”? Feeling taxed enough already and “recruiting” and “radicalizing” your friends and neighbors through “chatter on the Internet”?

We are all right-wing extremists now. Welcome to the club.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

No Murtaugh schools on ‘improvement’ status

In response to the April 15 editorial in the Times-News: I agree with the importance of community members becoming involved in school boards and thank those who are willing to give of their time to do so. I would also like to address the statements regarding the Murtaugh School District.

The district does serve a high percentage of at-risk students with over 70 percent qualifying for free or reduced lunch. We also serve a high percentage of migrant and limited English students. I am proud to say with the efforts of a small but exceptional staff and outstanding community support, none of our schools are on “improvement” status for not making Adequate Yearly

Progress and 96 percent of our students in kindergarten through third grade are at grade level on the winter IRI.

Our students are given a variety of extended services to ensure their academic success within our district, including free preschool for all students and full-time kindergarten for the past 15 years. I don’t know of any school district, teacher, or administrator in the state who feels like they have a large “margin for error,” given the difficult economic times and the importance of a child’s education. We are all experiencing the same difficulties, regardless of the size of our district or the students we serve.

THE LIGHTER SIDE OF POLITICS

How to raise the nation's IQ

Poor people have IQ's significantly lower than those of rich people, and the awkward conventional wisdom has been that this is in large part a function of genetics.

After all, a series of studies seemed to indicate that IQ is largely inherited. Identical twins raised apart, for example, have IQ's that are remarkably similar. They are even closer on average than those of fraternal twins who grow up together.

If intelligence were deeply encoded in our genes, that would lead to the depressing conclusion that neither schooling nor anti-poverty programs can accomplish much. Yet while this view of IQ as overwhelmingly inherited has been widely held, the evidence is growing that it is, at a practical level, profoundly wrong. Richard Nisbett, a psychology professor at the University of Michigan, has just demolished this view in a superb new book, "Intelligence and How to Get It," which also offers terrific advice for addressing poverty and inequality in America.

Nisbett provides suggestions for transforming your own urchins into geniuses — praise effort more than achievement, teach delayed gratification, limit reprimands and use praise to stimulate curiosity — but focuses on how to raise America's collective IQ. That's important, because while IQ doesn't measure pure intellect — we're not certain exactly what it does measure — differences do matter, and a higher IQ correlates to greater success in life.

Intelligence does seem to be highly inherited in middle-class households, and that's the reason for the findings of the twins studies: Very few impoverished kids were included in those studies. But Professor Eric Turkheimer of the University of Virginia has conducted further research demonstrating that in poor and chaotic households, IQ is minimally the result of genetics — because everybody is held back.

"Bad environments suppress children's IQ's," Turkheimer said.

One gauge of that is that when poor children are adopted into upper-middle-class households, their IQ's rise by 12 to 18 points, depending on the study. For example, a French study showed that children from poor households adopted into upper-middle-class homes averaged an IQ of 107 by one test and 111 by another. Their siblings who were not adopted averaged 95 on both tests.

Another indication of malleability is that IQ has risen sharply over time. Indeed, the average IQ of a person in 1917 would amount to only 73 on today's IQ test. Half the population of 1917 would be considered mentally retarded by today's measurements, Nisbett says.

Good schooling correlates particularly closely to higher IQ's. One indication of the importance of school is that children's IQ's drop or stagnate over the summer months when they are on vacation (particularly for kids whose parents don't inflict books or summer programs on them).

Nisbett strongly advocates intensive early childhood education because of its proven ability to raise IQ and improve long-term outcomes. The Milwaukee Project, for example, took African-American children considered at risk for mental retardation and assigned them randomly either to a control group that received no help or to a group that enjoyed intensive day care and education from 6 months of age until they left to enter first grade.

By age 5, the children in the program averaged an IQ of 110, compared with 83 for children in the control group. Even years later in adolescence, those children were still 10 points ahead in IQ.

Nisbett suggests putting less money into Head Start, which has a mixed record, and more into these intensive childhood programs. He also notes that schools in the Knowledge Is Power Program (better known as KIPP) have tested exceptionally well and favors experiments to see if they can be scaled up.

Another proven intervention is to tell junior-high-school students that IQ is expandable, and that their intelligence is something they can help shape. Students exposed to that idea work harder and get better grades. That's particularly true of girls and math, apparently because some girls assume that they are genetically disadvantaged at numbers; deprived of an excuse for failure, they excel.

"Some of the things that work are very cheap," Nisbett noted. "Convincing junior high kids that intelligence is under their control — you could argue that that should be in the junior high curriculum right now?"

The implication of this new research on intelligence is that the economic-stimulus package should also be an intellectual-stimulus program. By my calculation, if we were to push early childhood education and bolster schools in poor neighborhoods, we just might be able to raise the United States collective IQ by as much as 1 billion points.

That should be a no-brainer.

OTHER VIEWS

Here's what Idaho newspapers are saying about ...

... what? another committee?

Idaho Mountain Express, Ketchum

The noisy controversy over who will shoulder the cost of local dispatch services has come full circle: It may be going back to a committee.

Some cities in Blaine County oppose a funding formula that distributes costs to them based on their number of addresses. They have approved the formula only temporarily. Others oppose a scheme based on the number of calls originating in each city or the county.

The temporary scheme will be in place for just one year. In the meantime, Blaine County Commissioner Larry Schoen wants to form a new committee of dispatch users to research various funding options and their effects on dispatch services.

It's fair to ask why, given the performance of the first committee that looked at the subject.

That committee, made up of non-elected officials, produced miscommunication, not compromise, when elected officials in Hailey, Bellevue and Carey said they had been left in the dark about the committee's work and were surprised when they got whopping bills from the county for their share of dispatch costs.

Subsequent meetings of mayors and county commissioners regularly devolved into finger-pointing and polarization. Maybe a year of committee meetings will soften positions and cool tempers. Maybe there is more information out there that could shed light on the subject.

However, any new committee must operate better than its predecessor ... the county and the cities need to insist on progress reports from the committee presented in open public meetings of the cities and the county board.

The committee should be required to issue a written report by a certain date. No one should have the space to claim they didn't know what was going on ...

... make 'em stay overtime

Coeur d'Alene Press

Governor, you've got a right to be mad.

We hope Idahoans everywhere join the fume fest.

... the House snuffed Gov. Butch Otter's proposed 2 cent gas tax increase by a 37-32 vote. Of the 37 nays, 23 were Republicans ...

All this session, Gov. Otter has ratcheted down his request to increase the 25-cent gas tax so our state has the money to make highways, bridges and other essential transportation infrastructure safe ... If our state is to climb out of this recession, it will do so largely on four wheels ...

Because the price of gas has been lopped almost in half in the past year, consumers won't be shattered by an increase of roughly 1 percent. This is the best, most direct way to get users to pay for their impact on infrastructure.

... Improving transportation infrastructure is one of the best ways not just to put people back to work quickly, but to bolster a state economy that will improve the financial condition of other departments, as well.

We wouldn't blame the governor if he flexed gubernatorial muscle on this matter, forcing legislators to confront the desperate condition of our state's highways and bridges before they go home for the year.

... no place for partisanship

Post Register, Idaho Falls

City elections have been nonpartisan affairs, but some Bonneville County Republicans ... want to extend their reach into Idaho Falls City Hall.

Although no party label would appear on the ballot, the GOP could formally endorse its slate of mayoral and City Council candidates, as well as lend financial support.

That's likely to limit your choices in the city election. Party litmus tests tend to restrict competition.

Since 1996, Democrats have fielded candidates in 35 percent of the Bonneville County commission races.

City elections are much more vibrant. In the past dozen years, all three Idaho Falls mayoral campaigns have been contested. Of the 18 City Council seats up for a vote, 72 percent have been challenged ...

... For some voters, the shorthand of a party endorsement is all they need. It suggests the candidate's broad philosophy. But what does a candidate's position on gay rights, abortion or even state tax issues tell you about how he will run libraries, swimming pools or even plow the streets? ... Nonpartisan politics at the city and school board level are entry points for novices ...

Would the idea of declaring fealty to one political party or the other be enough to discourage someone from getting involved at all?

Hospital gunman slays 2, takes own life in southern California

By Raja Abdulrahim, Louis Sahagun and Carol J. Williams
Los Angeles Times

LONG BEACH, Calif. — A pharmacy technician showed up for work at Long Beach Memorial Medical Center on Thursday brandishing two handguns, killed his boss and another manager then fatally shot himself, witnesses said.

The shootings just before noon sent panicked patients, visitors and hospital workers running for cover as the agitated gunman stalked the corridors in search of his victims.

Long Beach police officers called to the scene found two bodies, one inside the hospital and another outside the emergency room entrance, said Police Chief Anthony Batts.

The gunman was identified as Mario Ramirez, 50, of Alhambra, said Lisa Massacani, a police department spokeswoman. The two victims were Hugo Bustamante, 46, of Cypress and Kelly Hales, 56, of Redondo Beach.

Bustamante was pronounced dead at the scene and Hales after about six hours of emergency treatment.

According to witness accounts, the gunman went first to the pharmacy, near the emergency room and outpatient area, and fatally shot Bustamante, firing at least twice at his face. He then went in search of Hales, whom he confronted outside the emergency room.

Laura Harris, 64, saw the second shooting as she drove by the emergency entrance, en route to visiting her hospitalized mother.

"I just saw the gun," Harris recalled later, her voice quivering.

The gunman shot his second victim, Hales, in the leg, and after he fell to the ground then "stood over him and shot him again," Harris said. He put the gun to his own head but appeared to be wavering, she added.

"I don't know if he tried to shoot or if he was making up his mind," Harris said, describing how he began pacing and appeared frustrated. "Then he put it to his head" and pulled the trigger, said the shaken witness.

X-ray technician Ed Collins was stepping out of an elevator in the main lobby as that scene unfolded and a "code blue" alarm sounded, signaling a security emergency.

He witnessed an anguished exchange between a female coworker and the gunman, with the shooter telling her, "Get out of here! Leave!" just before turning the gun on himself.

Jobless claims top 6M; housing starts plummet

By Christopher S. Rugaber
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — The number of people receiving jobless benefits exceeded 6 million for the first time, the government reported Thursday, and housing construction unexpectedly plunged to its second-lowest level on record — fresh evidence that the recession is far from over.

Analysts expect the labor market to remain weak for the most of this year with companies reluctant to hire new workers until an economic recovery is well under way. And the latest housing data show the slump in that market, a major factor in triggering the recession, has yet to hit bottom.

Still, economists found some silver linings. For the second straight week the number of people filing new benefits claims dropped more than expected, and single-family home construction, while depressed, appears to be leveling off.

The Labor Department said Thursday that its tally of initial unemployment claims dropped to a seasonally adjusted 610,000 from a revised 663,000 the previous week. That was significantly below analysts' expectations of 655,000 and the lowest level since late January.

A Labor Department analyst said a jump in layoffs that usually occurs during the spring holidays didn't take place, which magnified the drop in new claims.

Economists said holiday-related distortion in the numbers made it difficult to determine whether the labor market is stabilizing. Many remain bearish.

Meanwhile, the Commerce Department said construction of new homes and apartments dropped 10.8 percent last month to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 510,000 units, the second lowest pace on records that go back 50 years.

The decline was worse than economists expected and February activity also was revised lower. Applications for building permits, considered a good barometer of future activity, also fell in March to an annual rate of 513,000 units, lower than the 550,000 economists expected.

But the single-family sector actually stabilized in March at an annual rate of 358,000 units, the same as February. Two months of stability could signal that

Earnings up at JPMorgan

Better-than-expected profit still behind last year's gains

By Madlen Read
Associated Press writer

NEW YORK — JPMorgan Chase & Co.'s first-quarter profit wasn't as good as last year's, but it told investors what they wanted to hear: Banking is not dead.

JPMorgan became the third big bank in a week to release upbeat earnings news, reporting Thursday that it earned $2.14 billion for the January-March period, thanks to both strong trading activity and banking to consumers. The company's performance added to the evidence that the financial industry is starting to recover from the devastating losses caused by the credit crisis and the recession, even as banks still contend with rising loan defaults.

The bank's chief executive also said that it could pay back its $25 billion in government funding immediately, and that it has no intention of using the government's Public-Private Investment Program to sell so-called "toxic assets" such as mortgage-backed securities.

"Folks, it's become a scarlet letter," CEO Jamie Dimon said of government funding. Banks that have accepted federal bailout funds are now subject to greater government scrutiny and limits on how much they pay their top executives.

Stimulus funds in states: It costs money to spend

By Anna Jo Bratton
Associated Press writer

LINCOLN, Neb. — When it comes to the $787 billion in federal stimulus money flowing from Washington to the states, it will cost money to spend money.

Nebraska's governor's office told lawmakers it expects to spend more than $1.2 million over two years to oversee disbursement of about $1.5 billion Nebraska stands to receive in federal stimulus funds.

Other states are in similar straits. But Washington — at least for now — isn't handing out money for states to hire auditors and accountants, and the stimulus law requires stringent reporting from states to ensure transparency and curb abuses.

"I don't really have a good solution of where to come up with the money,"

— Larry Bare, Nebraska governor's chief of staff

DELICIOUS DEALS

Drinkers save money by taking it home

By Emily Fredrix
Associated Press writer

MILWAUKEE — Bad economy or not, Marty Stogsdill still likes his scotch.

But the 26-year-old computer consultant is more apt to enjoy it at his condo with friends than in a bar these days. Going out, he pays $10 to $18 for a glass of scotch. At home? He can buy a bottle for $35 to $50.

"You're not really giving anything up," he said. "You're just cutting out the markup, essentially."

A growing number of consumers are spurning drinking in restaurants and bars to save money. They're also choosing less expensive beer, wine and liquor to take home. Some are even trading down from wine and spirits to beer, which typically costs less.

Stogsdill says when he does go out in Milwaukee, it's only to happy hours and often for cheaper beers — anything to cut his drinking budget.

Sales of liquor, wine and beer meant to be consumed at home are now expected to rise 4.8 percent this year to $79 billion, according to Mintel International Group. The Chicago-based research firm recently had to revise its 2009 forecast to keep up with how quickly people are changing their behavior.

The best red, white wines under $10

The Associated Press

Here are some recommendations from Phil Bilodeau, owner of Thief Wine shop and bar in Milwaukee, for red and white wines that cost $10 a bottle or less:

- REDS:
- Protocolo 2006 Tempranillo, Tierra La Castilla, Spain — Strawberry and cherry with a hint of Tempranillo's classic leathery character. Pairs well with food or on its own.
 - D'Aragon 2007 Grenache Carinena, Spain — Full-bodied red berry fruit flavor, good balance.
 - Luis Felipe Edwards 2007 Reserva Carmenera, Colchagua Valley, Chile — Dark fruit, good for Cabernet fans.
- WHITES:
- El Hada 2007 Viura/Verdejo, Rueda, Spain — Crisp and refreshing with citrus fruit and brisk acidity. Look for wines from Rueda.
 - The Ruins 2008 Chardonnay/Vigonier, Robertson, South Africa — Lush, creamy lemon flavors, peachy apricot notes.
 - Santa Florentina Torrontes, Famatina Valley, Argentina — A great example of a lesser-known grape, Torrontes is floral, with undertones of stone fruits and minerality.

Garage sales becoming a necessity for some families in debt

By Anna Gorman and Hector Becerra
Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES — Hoping to earn extra money to pay her mounting bills, Francesca Nichols posted an ad on Craigslist: "Giant Yard Sale — Everything Must Go!"

So at 5:30 on a Saturday morning, she and her husband filled their driveway with purchases made during better times: a wooden dresser, top-of-the-line child car seats, a hand-painted mirror and piles of expensive clothes.

Two hours later, Nichols waved a wad of bills and smiled. "Wow, honey," she said to her husband.

Unfortunately, their total earnings for the day — $275 (plus $8 from their son's lemonade stand) — won't go far. Nichols and her husband are both unemployed; he was laid off from Wells Fargo last summer, and she recently took a stress leave from a car sales company after her pay was cut four times in six months. They have more than $30,000 in credit card debt and a $2,400 monthly mortgage payment. But Nichols, 40, said every bit helps.

"I have never been in this situ-

Garage sale season is getting under way, but in yet another sign of the recession, many families are holding sales out of necessity. And some buyers are new to the yard sale circuit, realizing they can no longer afford to shop at the mall.

"I believe that this year will see more garage sales than ever before," said Bruce Littlefield, author of the 2007 book "Garage Sale America." "The recession sort of shook us a little bit and made us realize we all have more than we really need. That includes big-ticket items."

Littlefield, who maintains a blog about garage sales, said they are good for both sides.

"The win for the seller is that they are getting rid of things that they no longer need or want, and they are getting some pocket change," he said. "For the buyer, they are going to get things for

Still dancing after 52 years

T.F. studio a local landmark for area dancers

By Hosanna Kabakoro
Times-News correspondent

Kelli Turner pushes a dust mop across the floor of Mauldin's Dance Academy in downtown Twin Falls, reflecting on the years of ballet slippers and clicking tap shoes that have slid across the worn wood.

"Fifty-two years is a long time," she says with a laugh. "I've spent most of my life teaching dance in this studio. My parents, siblings, daughter and I have all taught here. It's definitely a family thing."

Turner is the eldest daughter of Bon and Donna Mauldin, who started the dance school in an old church building in 1957. Turner, her sister Shari Mauldin, and daughter Nyjse, have taught tap, ballet, lyrical and jazz dance styles to students age 2 and up for 35 years.

"The Twin Falls studio is one of the oldest in the Magic Valley, but we also have studios in Jerome and Kimberly," Turner said.

Over the course of five decades, hundreds of students have entered the big, double doors to pursue their dreams of becoming dancers. Lora Crider was one of them.

"I started dancing with Mauldin's in the preschool class of 1968 and kept dancing until I graduated from Twin Falls High School," she said. "All three of my daughters have danced with Kelli."

Dancer Jordan Warren, 17, said she's danced with Turner since she was 2 years old.

"I basically live here," she said. "Dancing with Kelli has taught me more than technique. It's taught me discipline and given me confidence and determination."

Aside from her work inside Mauldin's, Turner is also co-founder of the Canyon Rim Dance Classic, held annually at the College of Southern Idaho. The competition draws dancers from surrounding states and donates proceeds to the Magic Valley American Cancer Society.

This year's competition will be held April 24-25 at the CSI Gymnasium.

"This will be our ninth year of competition and to date we've raised more than $48,000," Turner said. "It's a great way to support youth and the arts while making a difference in the Magic Valley."

As she finishes dusting, Turner's voice is drowned out by voices and the clicking of little tap shoes in the studio foyer. Another afternoon in Turner's life begins as she greets her newest generation of dancers.

Hollister approves Idaho Power franchise fee

By Kimberly Williams-Brackett
Times-News correspondent

HOLLISTER — The Hollister City Council on Tuesday approved a 10-year agreement with Idaho Power Company to allow the electric company to operate in the city while paying a 1 percent franchise fee.

Mayor Dixie Choate said Idaho Power will pay the city for construction, maintenance and operations in Hollister. The city has had an agreement with Idaho Power since 1967.

"A franchise is an agreement between Idaho Power and a city that allows us to locate electrical facilities within the streets and alleys of that city," said Idaho Power representative Dan Olmstead.

Olmstead said the signed agreement will go through Idaho Power's legal department before it is filed with the Idaho Public Utilities Commission. He said the franchise fee would be noted as a separate line item on monthly bills beginning in June.

Many cities charge their citizens a fee for the franchise, based on a percentage of each customer's Idaho Power bill. Idaho Power collects the franchise fee and forwards it to the city.

In other business, the city council adopted a revised transportation plan. Lisa Bachman with J-U-B Engineers said, "It will provide funding down the road." Because the council didn't have the plan "shovel ready" it was not eligible for federal stimulus funding.

However, Bachman said Hollister residents may be eligible for the Weatherization Assistance Program. WAP funds are used to improve the energy efficiency of low-income dwellings using the most advanced technologies and testing protocols available.

Choate said the council paid $290,000 to repave two blocks of road from Main Street to Hollister Elementary School. At an estimated $1 million a mile to upgrade the road, it can really add up, Choate said. She said there are a lot of truckers driving through Hollister and traveling to and from dairies.

The city council also announced it will support Johnny Horizon Day on May 2, providing a picnic for elementary school students.

"This is the sixth or seventh year we've done this," said Choate. A dumpster will be delivered at the Grange Hall a week prior to Johnny Horizon Day. No appliances or tires can be disposed of. Choate said the transfer station will hold a tire disposal day.

The council hosted its inaugural Easter egg hunt on April 4 at the city park. There were approximately 20 kids "from little bitty squirts in big hats" to lots of grandparents, said Choate.

He was drafted into the U.S. Army in 1942, serving 4.5 years. He returned to barbering, then served two years as a deputy sheriff. In 1952 he and Bill Rappleye bought Idaho Barber and Beauty Shop in Twin Falls. They sold the shop in 1985.

In 1961 the Van Noys bought a farm south of town.

He served as bishop and counselor for the LDS Twin Falls 1st Ward and as counselor for the Twin Falls 9th Ward. In 1986 and 1987 he and Gwen served in the England Bristol Mission.

Children include Don Van Noy, St. George, Utah; Susan Cameron, Moscow; Robert Van Noy, Salt Lake City; Marilyn Kohler, Bowling Green, Ky.; Paul Van Noy, Chicago, Ill.; and Amy Nelson, Logan, Utah. They have 33 grandchildren and 64 great-grandchildren.

Alternative, inexpensive remedies for psoriasis

DEAR DR. GOTT:

Please tell me what to do to get rid of my psoriasis. I've had it for a long time and just can't seem to get rid of it. I do have a prescription for Taclonex that works well, but I don't have health insurance to continue to fill the expensive prescription. What else can I do?

DEAR READER: Most forms of psoriasis are cyclical, meaning symptoms flare up, subside and then flare up again. An outbreak can present with red, scaly patches of skin, itching,

ASK DR. GOTT

painful joints and more. Common forms can appear anywhere on the body, including the inside of the mouth.

Risk factors include a family history of the disease, immune disorders, stress, exposure to cold, certain medications and more.

Treatment depends on the location of the outbreak. Some lesions might be controlled with an over-the-counter topical cream. Corticosteroids are prescription anti-inflammatory drugs prescribed frequently. And, as you pointed out, some drugs can be quite expensive.

Keep your skin moisturized, especially after bathing. Avoid harsh soaps and very hot water. Both will dry your skin and aggravate the lesions. Use a sun block prior to going out of doors in daily sunlight. Controlled exposure can improve lesions, but take caution not to overdo it, as too much sun will trigger an outbreak.

Alternative control includes synthetic forms of vitamin D that may reduce inflammation of the skin and block cells from reproducing. Medicated chest rubs can be applied to affected areas to relieve the itch and stop the scaling.

Apart from being healthful, eating a banana a day can benefit psoriasis, not for the fruit, rather for the peel. Simply rub the inside of the peel over small or mildly irritated areas two or three times a day. Cut the balance of the peel into patches large enough to cover the most serious lesions. Hold in place with paper tape. Replace daily. The results will be astonishing.

The Twin Falls Animal Shelter has been overrun with puppies, dogs, cats and kittens.

We need the communities' support in helping these animals find homes. You can help out by adopting or supporting their care financially while they are waiting for a home.

We also need foster homes for the many litters of puppies and kittens too small to stay at the animal shelter. If you are interested in becoming a foster home, please contact us for more information.

If you are available to foster an adult dog that has been waiting to be adopted at the animal shelter for a long period of time, please contact us as well.

With spring and summer upon us, it is very critical for the community to vaccinate, spay, and neuter its' pets. To keep our area diseases free please see your veterinarian for the vaccinations recommended for your pet.

If you've had a hard time finding Loren Holloway lately, that's because he's been holed up in a shop, fixing up his 1931 Ford Model A two-door sedan.

The engine is in place and the frame is ready to go. Now he's sanding and hopes to have it painted within the next two weeks. He's thinking tan with a brown stripe. Classic colors.

Holloway, 65, had a while to decide. The car sat in his shed for more than 20 years.

The mechanic bought the car in pieces and jumped right into the restoration process, then abandoned it for other projects.

"I've had the frame and the engine and all that done at least 17 years," Holloway said. Although he hasn't been working on it, the Ford has been on his mind.

"I just been wanting to do it for so many years," Holloway said. "I just want to get it finished. I want to drive it."

So a couple of years ago, emboldened by a College of Southern Idaho evening class, he started where he left off almost two decades ago. Already, he has poured $5,000 and about 1,000 hours into the Model A.

"When you restore something, it's something you don't want to rush," Holloway said. "Take your time and do it right."

This isn't his first restoration project, nor will it be his last. Already, Holloway has restored a 1926 Model T Roadster and a '58 Chevy. When he's done with this Model A, he has a 1929 Model A truck that needs a face-lift.

And what does his wife think of all that? "She thinks it's all right," Holloway said. "She has her hobbies too, so it kind of balances out."

Besides, she benefits too. Soon, Holloway will repaint her '72 Volkswagen Beetle.

He hopes to have it painted by the end of May and reassembled by September.

Wondering about its two-school future, Jive! reaches a new performance height

BLAIR KOCH/For the Times-News

The Twin Falls High School performing group Jive! promises to get the audience toe-tapping to the medley 'Mary Poppins: The Musical,' arranged by Mac Huff. Here, cast members rehearse 'A Spoonful of Sugar' with nonstop dancing action.

Times-News correspondent

"I don't think there has been a better group than we have now."

— Twin Falls High School junior and Jive! member Jordan Kezele

For the past 10 years, select Twin Falls High School students have made up the elite cast of the Jive! performing troupe.

Next fall, Twin Falls High will share the Jive! legacy with the new Canyon Ridge High School. But for now the group is focusing on its last one-school show — completely Bruin style.

"I don't think there has been a better group than we have now," said member

Jordan Kezele, a junior.

Kezele, 17, always planned on being in Jive! through his senior year. But with the school altering its class scheduling, it looks like this spring will mark the end of his career.

"We are singing a lot of good songs and they are fun," Kezele said. "In a way, Jive! is an outlet. You get to do these amazing things with people you grow close to. I've wanted to be in Jive! since I saw them as a little kid, and I got to."

Kezele will be able to take away the accomplishment of performing "Wicked" with the group, which was one of the most demanding pieces Jive! ever brought to stage.

Before Jive! was offered at Twin Falls High, students performed with a madrigal ensemble. Nice, but nowhere near as exciting or challenging as performing the Broadway hit "Wicked." The medley returns for the group's upcoming show.

"When they write these arrangements they aren't thinking of high school kids," said director Joe Casperson. "These productions — like 'Wicked,' which was probably the most challenging for the group, is for Broadway. When we first started with 'Wicked' it was tough, but now they have it down flat."

Youngsters in Jive! never stop to amaze Casperson or those who volunteer their time to help take each performance up a notch.

"Each year it seemed that the group got better and better and we kept throwing more difficult things at them," said Pam Nielsen, who choreographs with her husband, Kim Nielsen. "It's amazing what these kids could pull off."

Next year, when the new Canyon Ridge High School opens its doors, Jive! will be made up of musicians and dancers from both schools, depending on results from mandatory tryouts.

Casperson said scheduling changes will make it more difficult for students to fit the class into their lineups, and he is concerned.

"There isn't as much wiggle room," Casperson said. "I think we may end up with a smaller group — not a lower caliber of group, just smaller."

Smaller numbers — Jive! now has 14 pairs of boys and girls — tightens the reins on arrangement choice, he said.

"It will change our options ... but there will be neat arrangements that we can do," Casperson said.

In the meantime, audiences will delight in Jive's spring concert, featuring a mix of familiar "Mary Poppins" and "Mission: Impossible" arrangements and the hugely popular and

Cowboy troubadour Ian Tyson plays Ketchum

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

KETCHUM — Singer-songwriter Ian Tyson will perform at 7:30 p.m. April 24 at the nexStage Theatre in Ketchum.

Tyson is celebrating five decades of performance with a full schedule of concerts, a television special and a new CD titled "Yellowhead to Yellowstone and Other Love Stories."

The title song sporting Tyson's weathered voice tells the tale of a wolf pack being transported from Canada to Yellowstone to escape extinction. Other songs include "Fiddler Must be Paid" and "Estrangement," the latter reflecting Tyson's difficult divorce and another broken love affair.

At 75, Tyson has been writing and playing music for 50 years and has a little arthritis in his left wrist to prove it. He came to prominence first as half of the duo Ian and Sylvia, who recorded "Someday Soon," "Four Strong Winds" and "You Were On My Mind."

He stayed in the spotlight after they broke up, recording such songs as "Navajo Rug."

An Alberta, Canada, rancher, he is a good friend of Ketchum singer-songwriter Bruce Innes, who had Tyson guest on the network CBC TV show he hosted for several years in Canada.

Last year, Tyson roped in a sell-out crowd at the nexStage Theatre, entertaining them with stories about "wild horse heaven" and "endless seas of sagebrush" while playing such tunes as "Somewhere Over the Rainbow," a swing-style version of "Blue Moon" and his happy-go-lucky "Magpie." "He's a wonderful storyteller, a great songwriter and a good singer," said Innes.

Tickets are $40, available at Sturtevant's Mountain Outfitters in Hailey and Ketchum and at the nexStage Theatre, or at 726-4501 or 726-4957.

Sick of the same old routine? Shake up your Saturday night with A Magic Night in Magic Valley.

The evening will feature Idaho belly dancers and Arizona dancer Ava Fleming, as well as a screening of 2008 documentary "Belly."

Fleming, who has been dancing for 15 years, runs a dance studio in Phoenix and tours internationally. In 2004, she swept all three categories in the Egyptian Belly Dancer of the Universe Competition: Miss Congeniality, People's Choice and Champion.

Each dancer has a unique style, Fleming said. She calls hers Egyptian-style American cabaret, which fuses traditional moves with Fleming's individual flare.

"I have a unique style in and of myself," Fleming said. "I try to make it accessible to those who aren't in the culture while sustaining the art and the culture value."

Fleming will have two sets in the show. Belly dancing troupes and duets from Boise, Pocatello and Twin Falls will also perform, event organizer Connie Jones said, bringing an array of styles to the show.

pletely different." After the dancing showcase, Boise documentarians

Cecilia and Chad Rinn will show their new feature-length film, "Belly," featuring dancers from across the Northwest, including Twin Falls dance instructors Jenna Harder and Christina Gonzales of Shimmy Shakti Studio of Yoga & Belly Dance. The director, Cecilia Rinn, weaves her dancing experiences in with the stories of other performers.

The art form, Jones said, speaks to every woman and appeals to her femininity. Dancers of every shape and size will perform, as well as every age. The youngest is in her 20s, and the oldest is 70. "It's a woman's dance," she said.

The band participates in Katrina relief projects and has been featured by CNN, Nightline and the New York Times.

Africa on ice

By Karen Bossick
Times-News
correspondent

SUN VALLEY — Olympic ice dancer Andrzej Dostatni has been called on to do some complicated maneuvers on ice before.

Saturday's feat may top them all, as he skates in the figure of an 11-foot giraffe on his quarter-inch blades.

"The head alone is taller than my daughter. And she's just under 5 feet," said Andrea Nelson, whose daughter Alexandra Harten portrays a zebra.

The wild romp across the ice is part of the ice show Eskate to Africa, set for 2 p.m. and 6 p.m. Saturday in Sun Valley's indoor ice rink.

Put on by the Sun Valley Figure Skating Club, it will feature skaters as young as 4, as well as several professional and competitive figure skaters and ice dancers like Dostatni.

"It has a lot of songs the kids will like, like "I Like to Move It ... Move It." And there are Broadway tunes for the older generation," said Julianna Lamb, a 15-year-old Eskate to Africa features a zoo full of elaborate costumes.

YOUR TURN

Has Eskate to Africa got you tempted to lace up the skates? Well, saddle up. There will be free community skating on Sun Valley's outdoor rink sandwiched between the two shows from 3 to 5:30 p.m. Saturday. The Lion and other characters from the show will join the skaters. Sun Valley Co. and the Girl Scouts are co-sponsoring the community skate.

National Showcase champion who is handling publicity for the show as part of her Girl Scout Gold Award project.

The show is based on the popular "Madagascar" cartoon movie about four best friends in the Central Park Zoo who go in search of a fourth friend when that friend turns up missing. Having had a pampered upbringing in captivity, they quickly find what life in the wild is all about as they meet a colorful cast of most unusual characters.

Professional skater Gia Guddat plays an enormous hippo fattened up by pillows, and Alexandra Harten, a zebra.

Arizona Semones plays the Lemur King, while Telar McClure and Nicole Pratt perform comical solo numbers. And then there's the devious rope-jumping penguins: Caitlin Sholtis, Grace Eagan, Claire Siderman and Lauren Jacobs.

The show promises to be just as spectacular as last year's "Ice Rink Musical," considering the array of colorful animal costumes fashioned by Holly Wheeler and Guddat.

Michelle Genting painted two 156-foot scenic backdrops: one of Central Park and the other of an African plains watering hole.

"Our goal is to make it bigger and better every year," said Gentling, whose daughter Sheldon is among more than 50 skaters in the show. "The backdrop and costumes are great, but those little skaters are amazing. They're pretty talented. And after the testing and competing, it's so much fun for them to be able to put on a show like this."

Tickets are $5, $10 and $25, available at Chapter One Bookstore, at Tater Tots and at the door until they're sold out. Reserved on-ice seating is available at 622-8020.

'Othello' a no-go

Times-News

Cut! With just a week before the opening night for "Othello," director Laine Steel announced the show will not go on.

The show had been scheduled to open Wednesday at the College of Southern Idaho. William Shakespeare's classic tragedy was to be produced by the CSI Theatre Department, but Steel said the cast was simply not ready.

Between learning lines and staging, students' grades were suffering. Judging the actors over-scheduled and over their heads, Steel decided to cease production.

"With that in mind, the show has been cancelled," Steel said.

For ticket rebate information, call the CSI Box Office at 732-6288 or 732-6788.

Student Zach Lloyd, 23, rehearses his role as Othello on the balcony overlooking the death of Roderigo, played by Jose Aguilar. Though public performances were cancelled, theater students learned from the exercise. "I'm trying to mix in Othello's character everything he is going through, upheaval and pain, betrayal and a sense of duty," Lloyd said during a recent rehearsal.

Musical theater: Oakley Valley Arts Council's 'Oliver'

Seen April 10 at Howells Opera House, Oakley

Oliver certainly looked angelic, and the littlest orphans were endearing. It took a while to get used to a jolly Mr. Bumble. Tall, spare Mrs. Sowerberry was my favorite, though. The bridge set was excellent and drew an exclamation from the audience.

Art: 2009 College of Southern Idaho Student Exhibition

Open through May 2 at the Herrett Center's Jean B. King Gallery

Paint me green with envy. This year's CSI Student Exhibition is a showcase of scintillating talent. Bold paintings and exceptional print-making solidify an expressive mix of imaginative pieces. Featuring the best the college has to offer, the exhibit speaks volumes about the quality of the CSI art program.

Young Boise State trio makes strides

It's bigger, faster, stronger for athletes in spring camp

By Dustin Lapray
Times-News correspondent

BOISE — As spring camp concludes this week for the Boise State football team, improvements are evident in a great number of BSU's young players. They appear bigger, faster, stronger and, most importantly, more prepared for the season to come.

Each athlete blends personal instincts with team collectivism in this venture to improve. Three players in particular, defensive tackle Michael Atkinson, running back Matt Kaiserman and linebacker Hunter White have put the impetus on themselves to get better.

Michael Atkinson Freshman, DT

At 6-foot and 320 pounds, Atkinson is the biggest defensive tackle the Broncos have.

"I take two guys at a time," said Atkinson, who is from Windsor, Ontario, and keep your gap?"

Still, when Atkinson arrived in Boise, he didn't feel up to task of playing for the Broncos.

"When I first got here, I didn't think I could play with these guys," Atkinson said. "When I got used to it, I realized I could. (Being BSU's 2008 Defensive) Scout Player of the Year Canada. "I am more of a runner than I am a fast guy. You gotta be able to take on the blocks gave me some confidence for what I could do for the team, made me think maybe I'm not as bad as I thought I was."

The Broncos typically play smaller, more mobile tackles, but Atkinson is a whole different animal.

"As long as I can keep my quick feet and I can play with the guys, I'm not really that much concerned with my weight," Atkinson said. "If I start losing it and I can't play as well as I usually do, then I'll worry, but if I can do my job as I am, I guess weight's not an issue for me."

BUHL — The Kimberly Bulldogs continued down the road to a likely Sawtooth Central Idaho Conference championship, defeating the Buhl softball squad 10-0 in six innings Thursday in Buhl. The Indians turned the tables in the second game, a non-conference affair, winning 4-3.

Kimberly, which is undefeated in league play, added runs here and there quietly through the first few innings but shut the door on Buhl in the sixth as six more were scored.

Averie Schroeder tallied three hits in Game 1 and reached base on a fielder's choice as the leadoff hitter and scored two runs.

"I think we had an awesome day," Schroeder said. "We all hit the ball really well, and whenever somebody didn't do something very good we picked them up and kept going."

Kaitlyn Goetz hit 2-for-3 with two runs scored and two RBIs as her last at bat drove in the final two runs, and Whitney Carlton drove in two runs. Kimberly head coach Rich Bishop said he liked seeing better plate discipline out of his team, something he felt the Bulldogs have struggled with lately.

Pitcher Nellie Makings earned the victory, giving up zero runs on three hits. She walked two and struck out eight in six innings. Indians hurler Katherine Hunter allowed 10 runs on eight hits, recording six walks and five strikeouts.

"We didn't have great defense," Hunter said. "We didn't come out with our bats, we needed to do that. We could have

Tigers get by Wood River, 10-5

Jerome baseball jumps out early in victory

JEROME — Despite beating Wood River 10-5 and moving to 3-1 in Great Basin Conference West play and 9-5 overall, Jerome baseball coach Tom Bobrowski sees a bad habit his Tigers have gotten into that might eventually come back to haunt the Jerome team.

"This team tends to coast when we have a lead," said Bobrowski after Thursday's win. "It's something we need to fix soon."

The Tigers jumped out in front early, scoring five runs in the first inning by taking advantage of some first-inning wildness by Wolverine starter Shane Freisen. The Wood River junior issued five walks, hit a batter and gave up two hits, forcing Wood River coach Matt Nelson to replace Freisen with Zak Sjoberg.

"Shane really has great stuff but he is struggling with his mechanics," said Nelson. "It's tough when you just can't get over the hump. But we are beginning to put some little things together and our fundamentals are getting better."

After three scoreless innings, Wood River finally put a run on the board in the fourth, but Jerome fired back in the home half of the inning by plating five runs. The Wolverines added two runs in the fifth and tallied two more in the sixth.

"I really liked our approach at the plate," said Bobrowski. "We hit the ball hard and kept it down. We have been averaging about eight fly outs and I think we only had one today."

Junior catcher Cameron Stauffer led the Tigers at the plate with two hits, including a two-run double and four RBIs.

'Upstairs, Downstairs'

Some complain about the feel at Yankee palace

NEW YORK (AP) — Down in the plush, teak-armed seats of the ultra-deluxe Legends Suite section, Rose Mattiello sighed in the glorious sunshine Thursday as she enjoyed the treat of a lifetime — a gift from her son of opening day tickets at the new Yankee Stadium.

Out in the bleachers, in a section with an obstructed view, Melanie Mugno was fuming. She couldn't see left field from her $5 seat. She couldn't see the flat-screen TVs placed too far below her, or the huge scoreboard just above.

"Look at this," she said in exasperation — the benches didn't even have seat backs.

The christening of spanking-new, $1.5 billion Yankee Stadium, with its exquisite dining, private clubs, conference rooms, martini bar, farmer's market and crazy prices for the best seats — $2,625! — had a decidedly "Upstairs, Downstairs" feel about it.

And yet the outraged Mugno was in the minority. Most fans were philosophical about the extravagance that strikes some as crass and insensitive in the midst of a crippling recession. The stadium was conceived long before the downturn, many reasoned.

And hey — it was a truly gorgeous day.

"I could care less about all that stuff," said Mario Valente, of New Milford, N.J., sitting next to his awe-struck fourth-grader, Michael, in $375 seats. "It's opening day, and I'm here with my son."

While you can still catch a game for as little as $5 — in an area obscured by the Mohegan Sun Sports Bar — attention has focused on the seats behind home plate, which go for as much as $2,625 for single games and north of $200,000 for a season ticket. Even Yankees managing general partner Hal Steinbrenner has acknowledged some may be overpriced.

On Thursday, those seats held likely suspects from the worlds of high finance and politics. Mayor Michael Bloomberg and former Mayor Rudolph Giuliani among those who watched the Yankees lose to the Cleveland Indians, 10-2. But there were also some regular folks who'd shelled out the money for one unforgettable experience.

"It's really for this little guy that I'm doing it," said Eldon Chan, a banker accompanied by his 3-year-old son, Evan, in the front row to the right of home plate. "It may never happen again for him. We've got to enjoy it while it lasts. I can't see paying this on a regular basis, but for today, it was worth it."

realistic: She once held season tickets but has long since been priced out. This trip to the Legends section was likely her last. But for a few hours, the 57-year-old administrative assistant was going to enjoy it.

And she had options, especially for dining. She could order penne with veal and chicken bolognese at her seat if she wished, or an Italian antipasto wrap prepared by Fresco by Scotto, a noted Italian restaurant in Manhattan.

Or she and her daughter, Ann O'Connell, could check out the gourmet options in the Legends Suite Club or one of two exclusive dugout lounges. Should they visit the ladies' room, they'd find it softly lit with footlights, shiny black tiles on the walls, and video screens above the sinks showing highlights from the life of Babe Ruth.

"It is excessive," O'Connell said. "But what gets me really mad is how people just buy these tickets and then sell them. As for the Yankees, it's not just them. Everything costs. Look at Hollywood, where they pay the stars millions. So let's be fair about this?"

Lower down, in a seat that was a comparative steal at $375, Mike Iantuano wondered how the super-deluxe seats could even be worth it.

"I honestly think it's ridiculous — with the economy the way it is. It's obnoxious," he said. Besides, they were, in his words, just a sticky piece of gum's throw away.

"If I'm down there," he said, "I want a massage, too."

It was actually because of the recession that Derek Gauss was at the game in the first place.

The 44-year-old from Williamston, Mich., was laid off two weeks ago from his insurance job. So he and a friend flew in for two Yankees games. They paid almost $700 online for two $5 tickets in the bleachers.

"There's millions of people in New York — I'm sure there's enough who can afford the top seats," Gauss said. "It doesn't bother me."

Season ticket holder Lisa Curesky was fine with the ticket prices — well, not really, she said, but she could deal with it for now. What really annoyed her at the moment was the price of a beer: nine bucks.

Cardinals take down Cubs, 7-4

CHICAGO — Chris Duncan atoned for some shoddy defense with a homer and three RBIs, and Yadier Molina drove in the go-ahead run that sent the St. Louis Cardinals to a 7-4 victory over the Chicago Cubs on Thursday.

The Cardinals have won seven of their last eight and, perhaps more importantly, took the first of what will be 16 games against their long-time rivals.

Milton Bradley, who'd been on his best behavior since signing a $30 million contract with the Cubs, argued a called third strike as a pinch-hitter with the bases loaded in the sixth inning and was ejected by umpire Larry Vanover.

Cardinals starter Adam Wainwright (2-0) then escaped the jam by getting Alfonso Soriano to fly out, leaving the score tied at 4.

Jake Peavy settled down after allowing Carlos Delgado's long three-run homer in the first and surprising San Diego held on for its sixth win in seven games. Former Mets reliever Heath Bell pitched a perfect ninth for his fifth save in five chances.

NATIONALS 8, PHILLIES 2
WASHINGTON — Adam

Dunn hit one of Washington's four homers, Shairon Martis threw 6 1-3 solid innings, and the Nationals avoided setting a club record for most consecutive losses to start a season.

Washington is 1-7; in the franchise's two-city history, only this edition and the 1998 Montreal Expos opened 0-7, according to STATS LLC.

MARLINS 6, BRAVES 2
ATLANTA — Cody Ross hit a three-run homer to snap out of an early slump, and Florida finished off its first three-game sweep in Atlanta.

Ross finished with three hits and four RBIs after beginning the day with a .115 average, helping Florida (8-1) get off to its best start since opening the 1997 season with eight wins in the first nine games.

ASTROS 6, PIRATES 3
PITTSBURGH — Lance Berkman made up for an earlier missed opportunity with a go-ahead, three-run homer in the sixth inning, and Houston overcame an early two-run deficit to beat Pittsburgh.

Hunter Pence added a solo home run as the Astros won the final two games of the three-game series. Before that, they'd lost five straight during a 1-6 start, their worst in 25 seasons.

AMERICAN LEAGUE INDIANS 10, YANKEES 2

NEW YORK — After an 85-year-run in a stadium that produced 26 World Series titles, New York saw its hitters fizzle and its bullpen come apart on a sunny Thursday afternoon in a 10-2 loss to the Cleveland Indians.

Jhonny Peralta broke a seventh-inning tie with a two-run double off Jose Veras, and Grady Sizemore hit a grand slam into the right-field seats off Damaso Marte. Victor Martinez's solo homer capped a nine-run burst.

Yankees batters stranded 10 runners in the first five innings, going 0-for-7 with runners in scoring position. The primary cheers were for Jorge Posada, who hit the first home run in the ballpark's history, a fifth-inning drive off Cliff Lee that landed in Monument Park behind center field.

WHITE SOX 3, RAYS 2
ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — John Danks pitched six strong innings and Jermaine Dye hit a two-run homer to lead Chicago.

Danks (1-0) limited the AL champions to two hits and had a shutout until Carlos Pena homered with one out in the sixth. Dioner Navarro had the other hit off the left-hander, a two-out single in the second inning.

BLUE JAYS 9, TWINS 2
MINNEAPOLIS — Roy Halladay reared back and stifled the Twins again for seven dominant innings, and the Toronto Blue Jays breezed past Minnesota with another round of relentless swings.

Cejka leads Verizon

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — Alex Cejka wants to stay healthy this season. Playing his best golf wouldn't hurt, either.

Cejka, who missed more than three months last year because of neck surgery, shot his best round in nearly two years, a 7-under 64, to take a one-stroke lead at the Verizon Heritage on Thursday.

His bogey-free performance was capped by a 47-foot putt for birdie on the difficult, wind-swept 17th hole. That left Cejka with his first first-round lead since 2006, a shot ahead of two-time U.S. Open champion Lee Janzen and two in front of last year's Masters winner, Trevor Immelman.

"Just hopefully, everything stays well and I get healthy and practice hard," he said.

Cejka felt pain at the British Open last summer. Over the next month, he lost most of his strength on his left side. The diagnosis was a pinched nerve that required surgery last September to fuse vertebrae in his neck.

He only played sparingly until this season and his early results were not great, missing the cut three times in his first seven events.

Things perked up in March with a pair of 13th-place finishes at The Honda Classic and the Puerto Rico Open. The recovery took its biggest step yet at Harbour Town Golf Links.

Blackhawks earn playoff win over Calgary

CHICAGO — Martin Havlat scored 12 seconds into overtime and the Chicago Blackhawks won their first playoff game in seven years, beating the Calgary Flames 3-2 on Thursday night in the West Conference quarterfinals.

After tying it late in regulation, Havlat drove a wrist shot past Miikka Kiprusoff from between the circles for the third-fastest overtime goal in playoff history, sending a towel-waving crowd at the United Center into a frenzy.

Mike Cammalleri gave Calgary a 2-1 lead about 4 minutes into the final period when he scored on a 2-on-1 break, taking a nice pass from Daymond Langkow.

But Chicago got even with 5:33 left when Havlat scored on his own rebound after Kiprusoff stopped his initial shot from the right circle.

Game 2 is Saturday night in Chicago.

BRAUNS 4, CANADIENS 2
BOSTON — Phil Kessel

had two goals and an assist, and Zdeno Chara scored with 8:45 left to break a third-period tie for Boston.

Tim Thomas stopped 26 shots for the Bruins, who are the top-seeded team in the Eastern Conference but haven't gotten out of the first round in a decade.

Carey Price made 35 saves for the Canadiens.

Kessel and David Krejci gave Boston a 2-0 lead before Montreal tied it on goals by Chris Higgins and Alex Kovalev. Kessel made it 4-2 with 13.4 seconds left on an empty-netter on a pass from Milan Lucic, a goal that prompted a round of fisticuffs that continued after the final whistle.

Montreal and Boston have met an NHL-record 32 times in the playoffs, with the Canadiens winning 24 times, including last year when they had the No. 1 seed in the Eastern Conference but needed seven games to get out of the first round.

RED WINGS 4, BLUE JACKETS 1
DETROIT — Jonathan Ericsson was credited with the go-ahead goal for Detroit with 6:39 left in the second period on a shot that Manny Malhotra redirected into his own net trying to stop the puck with his glove. Jiri Hudler, Nicklas Kronwall and Johan Franzen also scored for Stanley Cup champion Detroit, and Chris Osgood made 20 saves, allowing only R.J. Umberger's goal.

Ex-coach, NBC broadcaster John Madden retires

NEW YORK (AP) — John Madden's last game as a football announcer was a thrilling Super Bowl decided in the final seconds.

The perfect ending to a run as one of sports' most popular broadcasters, now that Madden called it a career Thursday. Yet it didn't fit Madden's style to think about his retirement that way.

"I'm a grinder," he said on his Bay Area radio show. "You just grind and get through it and when it's all over, you think about it. You don't rush into any decisions."

Madden's exuberance for football and blue-collar persona endeared him to TV viewers for three decades. Boom! As sudden as his signature call, he's leaving midway through a six-year contract with NBC's "Sunday Night Football."

Madden

the age of 73, he wanted to spend more time with his family. His 50th wedding anniversary is this fall, and his five grandchildren are old

"I think his work ethic and passion and love for the game made him apart from everybody else," said longtime broadcast partner Pat Summerall.

Madden said his health is fine, but at the age of 73, he wanted to spend more time with his family. His 50th wedding anniversary is this fall, and his five grandchildren are old enough to notice when he's gone.

"The thing that made it hard is not because I'm second guessing: 'Is it the right decision?' But I enjoyed it so damn much," Madden said. "I enjoyed the game and the players and the coaches and the film and the travel and everything."

Cris Collinsworth will replace Madden, moving over from the network's studio show, NBC Sports chief Dick Ebersol said.

"Just like everywhere you go, the university is a whole different step from high school, especially in Canada," Atkinson said. "It took a while to get used to, but after a while you get with the flow and your teammates help you out."

He said he never watched the Canadian Football League. His proximity to Detroit made him an NFL fan. When asked what he can improve on his game, Atkinson didn't hesitate.

"Endurance," he said. "When I go home for the break (after school), that's what I am trying to focus on, working out running, trying to get my endurance up so I am ready to go full-force."

With Jeremy Avery and D.J. Harper poised to take Ian Johnson's starting role in the backfield, one might think Kaiserman won't see the field much this fall.

Before spring camp, he spent practice sessions with the third-team offense. Now he's running with the first team.

"It's definitely a step up and a whole different game when you're up with the ones," said Kaiserman. "It allows you to get used to the speed of the game and get comfortable with your line."

The Nampa product put on 10 pounds this year and wants to add 10 more. His work may get him in the regular rotation.

"Anyone who comes here and has the right work ethic, the right attitude toward it, has a step," Kaiserman said. "Everyone here works hard, but if you are determined enough, I think you can find a starting spot if you want to."

He carried the ball more and more this spring, as the BSU staff preserves its tailbacks for fall camp and the season ahead. It's a role he has embraced.

"It's a great chance for young guys to get reps and comfortable with the team," Kaiserman said. "For the older guys it's a huge opportunity for them to get fresh, but also to watch film hard, get a good effort out at practice and get something out of it."

Kaiserman runs upright and balanced with a forward lean. He's not too flashy, but plays tough. This spring he has learned how to adapt his skills to the team's goals for each play.

"We have certain plays that call for patience and others where you just have to get your shoulders down and go," Kaiserman said. "Every play I go out with the mindset that I am going to score every time. I realize that's not realistic, but I think it gives you an edge."

Moore said if he had a draft choice he'd take his center, Thomas Byrd.

2009 SUBARU FORESTER CROSSOVER

IMPROVED UTILITY, SPORT SEDAN DYNAMICS!

RoadWorthy!

Subaru has introduced all-new 2009 Forester crossover SUV to the American marketplace. Now in its third-generation, the Forester continues to build on its strong reputation as an icon of safety, dependability and versatility. The new Subaru crossover SUV features a bolder, more SUV-like exterior design while making a major leap in safety technology, comfort, refinement and driving dynamics.

The new Subaru rides on an all-new platform that features a 3.6-inch longer wheelbase that improves ride and interior space, especially rear legroom. Hip and shoulder room have also been increased in the new Forester. The new platform also improves crash-worthiness and provides a stiffer platform for crisper handling.

Available in the following trim levels: 2.5X, 2.5X Premium, 2.5X Limited, 2.5XT and 2.5XT Limited - the 2009 Subaru Forester is powered by the automaker's legendary 2.5L 4-cylinder Boxer engine. The normally aspirated engine has been modified for 2009 to improve performance, drivability and economy. A new intake port design helps improve both low-end torque and emissions. A new optimized catalyst system provides improved emissions performance. The i-Active Valve Lift System (AVLS) ensures a broad torque curve and smooth response at all engine speeds, while also helping to improve fuel efficiency. The switch from a single rear muffler to dual mufflers reduces exhaust backpressure while ensuring quiet operation.

Turbo-charged models are powered by a revised 2.5L 4-cylinder engine, which receives a new intake system, redesigned turbochargers and intercooler to produce more torque at a lower rpm for a smooth stream of power.

Torque is communicated through a newly enhanced five-speed manual gearbox or a four-speed automatic transmission with SPORTSHIFT control.

This energy is delivered through Subaru's Symmetrical All-Wheel Drive system to all four wheels.

The 2009 Subaru Forester platform is based on the Subaru DC3 (Dynamic Chassis Control Concept) which underpins the high-performance Impreza models. The new chassis and body are designed for improved rigidity and ride comfort with the addition of high-tension steel at key structural points. Control hardware includes a heavy-duty raised four-wheel suspension which features a new double-wishbone rear suspension. Replacing the previous strut-type configuration, the new rear suspension is mounted to a subframe to provide improved ride and handling as well as increased cargo room.

Inside the passenger cabin, Subaru has placed a new emphasis on comfort and spaciousness. New materials, including double-stitched fabrics and high-grade plastics, impart a feeling of higher quality. Front seatback comfort is enhanced by the use of specially developed seat cushion and seatback spring. The sweeping twin cockpit design embraces occupants, and brushed aluminum-look inserts flow into the center stack. The center console shape adds to the airiness of the interior, aided by sculpted door panels and improved headroom. Each door panel houses a molded recess that can accommodate a 24-oz. soft drink bottle, as well as loose items. The standard 60/40 split rear seatbacks fold to provide a flat cargo floor, made wider between the wheelhouses by the new double-wishbone suspension. The cargo area is large enough to accommodate four Tour-sized golf bags or four large overnight suitcases with the rear seat backs in the raised position.
