Falls gear up for ideal weekend

Peak flows, spring weather expected to draw crowds

Times-News

The city of Twin Falls is expecting larger crowds this weekend as the water runoff over Shoshone Falls nears a peak that should rival the falls' show three years ago.

The city will provide bus service today and Sunday from the Dierkes Lake parking lot to the main overlook at the falls, as traffic is expected to climb for spectators wanting to see more water over the falls.

Officers from the Twin Falls Police Department and, if needed, the Twin Falls County Sheriff's Department, will provide traffic control. Currently there is about 17,000 cubic feet per second going over the falls, or roughly 7.6 million gallons of water every minute.

The falls have steadily grown for days, fed by flood-control releases from reservoirs in the upper Snake River.

But according to provisional data from the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation, releases into the Snake from Milner Dam spiked on Wednesday afternoon, rising from 8,000 cfs to nearly 14,000 cfs by early the next morning.

Flows that peaked at 19,400 cfs in 2006, according to Reclamation, resulted in lines of cars and a record $275,000 in revenue for the city — which charges admission of $3 per vehicle.

SKATING ON THIN ICE

HAILEY — In the spring, when color returns to gardens as flowers bloom, color also returns to the Hailey skate park on the caps and shirts of skaters.

This spring, though, expressionism has been a little too colorful. Incidents of graffiti and vandalism have been frequent, and two weeks ago, two 15-year-old boys shot a BB gun at several younger kids.

The Hailey City Council is readying to consider the future of the skate park, and asking skaters and parents to take responsibility for the safety and cleanliness of the park. Otherwise, they warn, they may consider closing it.

"Here's the hope, that we can get community involvement, that we can get kids to respond to an adult or someone who they think would help things get straightened out again," said Hailey City Councilwoman Martha Burke, who was on the council before the park was built a decade ago. "The conversation has to be approached that way: 'Do you care enough to keep this thing going?'" didn't keep away the skaters, mostly 10- to 15-year-old boys in jeans and hoodies.

Recent chilly weather

The park is state-of-the-art, they say, one of the best in the country, and they feel lucky to have it in their neighborhood.

"It flows real nice, and has big stuff, and smaller stuff if you're learning," said Kyle Eames, 15. He said much of the trouble has been caused by kids who aren't there to perfect their "ollie."

Judge: Hearing closed to protect defendant's rights

By Andrea Jackson
Times-News writer

Fifth District Court Judge Jason Walker said Friday that he closed a status hearing on the commitment of an accused murderer "to preserve the defendant's right to a fair trial," even though prior proceedings related to the man's mental competency have been held in open court during the 9-month-old criminal case.

Fortino Leon, 73, is accused of first-degree murder in the July shooting of Javier Zavala-Paniagua, 22, in the street in front of his home in Jerome. He also is charged with aggravated assault and aggravated battery in relation to the shooting of his estranged wife, Maria Leon, 41, who was living with Zavala-

Paniagua at the time.

Walker on Thursday abruptly closed Leon's status hearing — a day after granting media permission to place cameras in the courtroom — without saying why, or determining whether Leon was fit for trial.

On Friday, Walker signed an order saying Leon "continues to lack the capacity to assist in his own defense ... It is unlikely that the defendant will be fit to proceed in the foreseeable future."

That order stays proceedings for at least 180 days so the state can continue to monitor Leon.

New pollution limits seen for cars, big plants

By H. Josef Herbert
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — Cars, power plants and factories could all soon face much tougher pollution limits after a government declaration Friday setting the stage for the first federal regulation of gases blamed for global warming.

The Environmental Protection Agency took a big step in that direction, concluding that carbon dioxide and five other greenhouse gases are a major hazard to Americans' health. That was a reversal from the Bush administration, which resisted such a conclusion and said it would be costly for companies to meet new emission limits and therefore could harm the national economy.

"In both magnitude and probability, climate change is an enormous problem (and) the greenhouse gases that are responsible for it endanger public health and welfare," said the EPA, concluding the dangers warrant action under federal air pollution laws.

Smog covers midtown Manhattan in New York in July 2007. The EPA said Friday that carbon dioxide and five other greenhouse gases from cars and many industrial plants 'endanger public health and welfare,' setting the stage for regulating them under federal clean air laws.

It was the first time the federal government had said it was ready to use the Clean Air Act to require power plants, cars and trucks to curtail their release of climate-changing pollution, especially from the burning of fossil fuels.

The agency said the science pointing to man-made pollution as a cause of global warming is "compelling and overwhelming." It also said emissions from motor vehicles contribute.

EPA Administrator Lisa Jackson cautioned that regulations are not imminent and made clear that the Obama administration would prefer that Congress address the climate issue through a broader "cap-and-trade" program that would limit heat-trapping pollution. But she said it was clear from the EPA analysis "that greenhouse gas pollution is a serious problem now and for future generations" and steps are needed to curtail the impact.

Even if actual regulations are not imminent, the EPA action was seen as likely to encourage action on Capitol Hill. It's "a wake-up call for Congress" — deal with it directly through legislation or let the EPA regulate, said Sen. Barbara Boxer, D-Calif., who chairs the Senate committee dealing with climate legislation.

Jerome County faces revenue shortfall

Officials seek to save $1.3 million

By Nate Poppino
Times-News writer

Jerome County officials have been asked to find ways to tighten their budgets after projections show the county could end up $1.3 million short this fiscal year.

The budget forecast, compiled by Jerome County Clerk Michelle Emerson, was based on a 3.3 percent decline in revenue during each of the first two quarters of the year, Commission Chairman Charlie Howell said Friday. Building permits and other items just aren't coming in as expected, he said.

The shortage would be roughly 10 percent of the county's $10.6 million budget. The county's fiscal year runs Oct. 1 to Sept. 30.

Commissioners and department heads met Tuesday to examine the findings, and were given two weeks to come up with budget savings before a follow-up meeting, Howell said. Officials, he said, were told to bring back "anything that they could come up with, not including layoffs but including a four-day work week."

Based on those 2006 numbers, visitors to the falls this weekend might have a 30- to 45-minute wait, Parks and Recreation Director Dennis Bowyer said.

Mike Beus, a hydrologist in Reclamation's Burley office, said this year's peak probably won't exceed 2006's, but will come close. Flows could increase 1,500 to 2,000 cfs more over the weekend, then could begin to decline after Tuesday as irrigation demand kicks in. Flows still should be above at least 12,000 cfs next weekend and should stay high for at least a couple more weeks, Beus said — though he has to study a new water forecast before he can be sure.

If there are no major crowd problems, Bowyer said he will send the buses home early.

with trial it shall immediately notify the court and the matter shall be set for a hearing," the judge's order said. "If, after a hearing on the matter, the court agrees ... and finds the conditions which justified the commitment to the department do not continue to exist, criminal proceedings may resume."

Walker's belated written order doesn't say if he will also bar the public from the next scheduled hearing in the case, which is set for Oct. 15. Nor does it say how closing Thursday's hearing preserved Leon's rights. Leon's mental status was discussed in open court in at least three previous hearings.

Leon's mental fitness has been in question since at least November, when he was placed in the Idaho Department of Correction Secure Medical Program. Letters addressing Leon's mental condition have been part of the public court file, and have been discussed by attorneys in at least two open court hearings that resulted in prior commitment extensions. Walker had previously rejected defense motions to close the case to the public. Thursday's closure came in response to a motion from the prosecution.

"Judge Walker's action is baffling, particularly in light of his previous strong statement that it is important that the public know the facts of this case," said James G. Wright, editor of the Times-News. "We have asked our attorney to review the closure and we are considering our options in ensuring that the public isn't shut out of future proceedings in this or any other murder case."

Speaking on behalf of 5th Judicial District Administrative Judge Barry Wood, who is out of town and unavailable for comment, District Court Judge John Melanson of Rupert said judges don't want the public to think they're acting in secret.

"The courts are sensitive to the need to keep hearings open," Melanson said. "I think a judge has it in his power to close a proceeding when he determines it should be done."

Park

"It's mostly people who don't really belong. They come with a skateboard, but don't skate."

Paul Klimes, 12, said he was at the park the afternoon of the BB-gun incident, but he stayed on the other side from the trouble-makers.

"We were too afraid to come over here," he said. And, like the other kids who were there when the cops showed up, he wouldn't tell them who the shooters were. "I told my dad about the BB gun thing and he asked why I didn't speak up."

Hailey Police Chief Jeff Gunter said kids wouldn't come forward as witnesses since they were scared of retaliation. The police did discover who one of the shooters was, and the second confessed. Both boys, who aren't being identified because they are minors, have been banned indefinitely from the park and will be arrested if they're caught there again. Gunter hopes this policy will discourage such behavior from others.

"It's a great asset to the city of Hailey, but we can't spend all our time policing it, we can't spend all our time picking up trash," Gunter said. He has no qualms about closing the park if illegal behavior continues. "How far do we let it escalate? It's got to be a safe environment."

Safety's a high priority for parents, too, but they're reluctant to let the actions of a few kids affect those who are behaving appropriately.

"They need a place to go and things to do. The skate park didn't create that (the criminal behavior), the parents did," said Deborah Moon, at the park on Thursday to pick up her two boys. "You're going to get the bad kids with the good kids ... I don't worry my kids are going to be sucked into the negative."

Burke said she has heard more positive comments about the park than negative, and if users can keep it clean and safe, the council would consider investing more money.

There could be a street skating park installed nearby, and solar-powered lights to let skaters grind rails after dusk. The lights would also likely have motion sensors to alert police to late-night shenanigans.

"Our goal is to make it work, but it'll be their decision whether it works or not," said Tom Hellen, Hailey Public Works Director, of the skaters. "If this kind of trouble keeps up, there's nobody in the city who will want to spend money on it."

Kids at the skate park on Thursday afternoon said they would try to attend the upcoming meeting to plead their case.

Jerome

Emerson had already compiled a list of possible solutions on Tuesday, Howell said, among them cuts in building funds and urban renewal.

"I'm a firm believer (that) you bring a problem, you bring a couple solutions," he said.

Some ideas have already provoked strong reactions around the county, including a suggestion on Emerson's list to reassign half of a $100,000 fund saved up to build a new 4-H livestock barn at the county fairgrounds. The idea wasn't given more than a mention on Tuesday, Howell said. But word of it has reached people such as Carla Miller, a 4-H leader who said the long-planned barn needs to be built now that its decayed predecessor is demolished.

"The kids really deserve and are really looking forward to this barn," Miller said, adding that she understands the county's budget pressures. "When there's not a barn there, it's pretty hard to take the money away from the kids at this point, too."

Officials seem dedicated to disrupting as little as possible. Sheriff Doug McFall said the revenue decline hasn't affected his operations so far, and he's looking at ways to slim it further. His budget totals about $1.45 million, including roughly $1 million just in wages.

Vital items like jail and emergency-services funding won't be cut, he said. But he might propose selling surplus county equipment in one giant auction, as well as the four-day work week for some personnel and energy-efficiency steps such as not leaving patrol cars idling as often.

"We will not do anything that will deter from services to the citizens," McFall said. Assessor Rick Haberman oversees a $100,500 expenses budget and a $380,600 appraisal budget. But he said those budgets are tight, and his required duties leave little wiggle room. Solutions might include trimming his capital line back a bit, he said.

"We'll help them wherever we can," he said.

The commissioners, who have $106,400, have discussed cutting down on travel and other ideas, Howell said. He plans to suggest a $100 per month pay cut as well, adding that he wants to balance out his salary and those of the other two commissioners more anyway.

CLARIFICATION

BOISE (AP) — In Friday's front page story about the Legislature, the Associated Press quoted Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter's spokesman saying Otter did not attend the Tax Day rally in Boise because he was meeting with his accountant. On Friday, Otter spokesman Jon Hanian clarified that the governor was to meet with his accountant during the rally, but postponed the appointment to meet with legislative leaders on budget issues.

Health trust prepares for 2nd year of grants

By Nate Poppino
Times-News writer

Grants passed out by the Twin Falls Health Initiatives Trust will likely follow the same timeline as last year's initial run, the president of the trust's board of directors said Friday.

Funded with an eventual $20 million from the 2006 sale of then-Magic Valley Regional Medical Center, trust money is tabbed for projects to improve health care and related issues in Twin Falls County.

Board members doled out their first grants just months ago, voting in December to spend nearly $510,000 on 13 different projects. Now, they're preparing the framework for this year's awards, said board President Curtis Eaton.

Board members have tentatively decided to put out notification of a request for proposals roughly around June, with actual applications due in September, Eaton said. The board wants to provide more time this year for people to submit grant requests, he said, after some weren't able to respond as quickly as hoped last year. The basic timeline was firm up at the trust's monthly meeting on Thursday.

"This will give everyone a chance to possibly meet with their boards and develop their ideas more fully internally before they submit an application," Eaton said.

Awards decision should be finalized in December, and the board will again hold an awards celebration.

Roughly the same amount of money should be available this year for awards, according to early estimates by the board's finance committee. The grant money comes from interest earned on the $20 million sum. The actual amount should be finalized at the board's May meeting, Eaton said.

Though the past year hasn't treated investments very kindly, the trust money has paid a return every month, he said. The money is currently in a state pool, and board members are talking again about hiring a money manager to help direct their investing.

"There has been no loss in this account," Eaton said.

Though there's no evidence yet to show it, board members expect to see more requests this year, anticipating a greater need for services. They'll rely on last year's experience to process however many show up, Eaton said, with hopefully fewer kinks to work out.

"It really does give us a bit of collective comfort on what we're doing this next time," he said.

T.F. man arrested after episode

Times-News

A Twin Falls man is charged with unlawful entry and domestic battery after he allegedly trespassed into his ex-wife's house wearing only underwear, forced her into a bathroom and subjected her to a bizarre episode.

Christopher A. Frix, 33, was arraigned in Twin Falls 5th District Court Thursday after his behavior allegedly became stranger inside of the jail. From his cell, Frix undressed, sang "Amazing Grace" and anointed himself in his own urine, which he also drank, court records show.

Police say they had to kick down a bathroom door April 5 at the home of Frix's ex-wife because Frix was allegedly holding her there against her will, quoting scripture, and refusing to open the door for police, according to court records.

"(Police) kicked the door open because we were in fear of her safety due to her exclamations and Mr. Frix's bizarre statements," court records show.

Before removing the door, though, police say they heard Frix talking from inside the bathroom.

"I then heard Mr. Frix say 'the darkness is a good place, you don't have to be afraid, you don't have to be afraid of the dark, in fact let there be light,'" according to court records.

Frix allegedly told police he had smoked marijuana earlier in the day and "was diagnosed with schizoid effective disorder when he was a teenager."

Two hours before police arrested Frix, they received a call that he was "having a psychotic breakdown and that he had left on foot ...

Officers were unable to locate him," according to court records.

Frix recently quit a nursing job, according to the police affidavit filed in Twin Falls 5th District Court.

He posted $300 bond Thursday to get out of jail following his first court appearance where he pleaded not guilty to the allegations against him.

Efforts to reach Frix for comment were unsuccessful Friday. He has a pretrial set for May 26.

Man sentenced for gun crime

Times-News

A Twin Falls man has been sentenced to five years in federal prison for illegally possessing a firearm as a felon, according to a press release Friday from the U.S. Department of Justice.

An earlier felony firearm case against Joshua Holman, 28, was dismissed by the Twin Falls County Prosecutor's Office so it could be handled by the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives, said Twin Falls County Prosecutor Grant Loebs.

"We dismissed it because the U.S. attorney showed interest," said Loebs on Friday, adding the federal system has a tougher penalty for illegal firearm possession compared to the state.

The maximum 10-year federal punishment for illegal firearm possession by a felon is double the state's maximum punishment of 5 years, Loebs said.

Holman pleaded guilty to the federal charge in January. "An ATF special agent inspected the APT, Model Backup, .380 semi-automatic pistol, bearing serial number BRIANI, and determined that it had been manufactured outside of the state of Idaho and therefore was shipped and transported in interstate commerce," federal court records show.

Holman was convicted of a felony in Twin Falls County on Oct. 12, 2007, for possession of a controlled substance. The federal case was his seventh felony offense in 10 years, according to the DOJ release.

With Holman's plea, the U.S. Attorney's Office for Idaho dismissed a charge of meth possession against him, according to federal court records.

...in Cassia County

From selected April 12 police reports:

Attempted strangulation, aggravated battery:

According to a police report, a 26-year-old Burley man accused his girlfriend of looking at another guy at a party and then beat her up. The woman had multiple bruises and scratches on her arms, knees, shoulders, and chest, as well as red marks on her neck.

She initially told police that she woke up and discovered the injuries. She later conceded that her boyfriend was strangling her when she woke up after passing out. She passed out again, and he left the house. The woman went to the hospital with a friend but didn't press charges or give police her boyfriend's name. Her ex-husband later called the sheriff's office, provided the man's name, and asked if he could press charges. Police requested a warrant for the man's arrest on charges of attempted strangulation and aggravated battery.

Harassment:
A 30-year-old Burley woman reported that she has been receiving phone calls from her ex-husband, who, according to the report, "threatens her that he is going to send the immigration to her house to pick her up and take her back to Mexico."

Information:
A 37-year-old Twin Falls man was threatened by two 51-year-old Burley men after they overheard him threatening a daughter of one of the men for refusing to give him a bottle of window cleaner while getting gas at Smith's in Burley.

Rescued ship captain praises SEAL 'superheroes'

By John Curran
Associated Press writer

UNDERHILL, Vt. — The unassuming ship captain who escaped the clutches of Somali pirates said upon his triumphant arrival home Friday that he was just an ordinary seaman doing his job, not a hero, and he praised the Navy for its daring rescue mission.

"They're the superheroes," Richard Phillips said. "They're the titans. They're impossible men doing an impossible job, and they did the impossible with me.... They're at the point of the sword every day, doing an impossible job every day."

Phillips was saved on Easter Sunday, when Navy SEAL snipers killed three pirates with three simultaneous nighttime gunshots.

"I'm not a hero, the military is," he said, appearing healthy and invigorated at a brief airport news conference shortly after his arrival.

Phillips' wife, Andrea, and their adult children, Daniel and Mariah, went on board the corporate jet to greet him at the Burlington airport. Phillips, wearing a cap from the USS Bainbridge destroyer, which rescued him, waved to a small, cheering crowd and hugged his daughter as he walked inside a building for a private reunion.

He later emerged to praise his fellow crew members of the Maersk Alabama cargo ship.

"We did it," he said. "We did what we were trained to do."

When Phillips was rescued, his arms were bound. On Friday, abrasions and scabs could be seen on the insides of his forearms. Asked what the high-seas hostage experience was like, he said: "Indescribable, indescribable."

The captain, who spoke

for just a couple of minutes, was to be feted later at his home in nearby Underhill with his favorite beer, a chicken pot pie made by a friend and brownies made by his mother-in-law. He was greeted by two dozen people waving American flags.

There was no immediate plan for a parade or public celebration, owing to the family's status as somewhat reluctant celebrities.

"We're respecting the family's wishes and waiting to see what they'd like to do," said Kari Papelbon, the town's zoning administrator.

But all around town, the yellow ribbons that came to symbolize Underhill's hope during the five days of Phillips' captivity fluttered in a spring breeze, with lots of late additions as his arrival drew near.

There was a "Welcome Home Captain" sign in front of the Stitch In Time yarn shop, a "Welcome Home Captain Phillips" sign in front of Browns River Middle School and a "Welcome Home Captain Phillips" tar paper sign affixed to a red barn across the street from the family's home.

Just as telling were a pair of posterboard signs on the fence in front of Phillips' home.

"Thank You for Your Prayers," said one.

"Please Give Us Some Time as a Family," said another, a polite message to members of the media and anyone else hoping to get close.

Police also had kept people away from the airport.

QUOTABLE

"We have sent word to the U.S. government in private and in public that we are willing to discuss everything."
 — Cuban President Raul Castro

Casual Friday? Certainly in the Legislature

JEERS: What time did you go home from work Friday?

The Idaho House of Representatives recessed for the day at 10:50 a.m. The Senate held out until noon.

That cost us taxpayers $30,000, as does every day the Legislature remains in session.

Friday was Day 96, making this the second-longest Legislature in history. If you're running a tab, that's $2.88 million since lawmakers gathered on Jan. 12.

What are we getting for our money? Not much. No new highway repair funding. No regulation for day care facilities. No ethics reform legislation. Not even, so far, a session-ending budget bill.

So why are lawmakers still in Boise? Excellent question. We suggest you ask them.

The phone number is 800-626-0471. The email address is the first initial and last name of the legislator, @house.idaho.gov or @senate.idaho.gov.

CHEERS: To Chris Carey, the district manager of PSI Environmental Systems, for thinking outside the box in getting Twin Falls residents to recycle more.

Carey told the City Council this week he'd like to see Twin Falls switch from curbside recycling tubs to a "single stream" system — using a wheeled cart rather than a tub, and not requiring people to sort their cardboard from their garbage cans.

Twin Falls' 3 1/2-year-old curbside recycling system has reduced the amount of garbage that goes to the dump each year by about 2 percent. That's a significant amount of trash, but not great participation by the city's households.

The City Council must sign off on any change in the way PSI collect recyclables, but Carey's idea seems like one it should seriously consider.

JEERS: To the Legislature, for shooting first and asking questions later.

The House of Representatives this week approved a bill mandating the state Department of Fish and Game kill or move wild sheep that wander onto public grazing allotments above Hells Canyon, North America's deepest river gorge.

The measure cleared the Senate before Thursday's 51-17 vote. It now goes to Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter.

Western Idaho rancher Ron Shirts has frequented the Legislature this year, to rail against a 1997 agreement ranchers signed with the U.S. Forest Service, states and sheep groups to protect their operations from problems, should transplanted bighorns mix with domestic sheep.

With the Forest Service considering forcing Shirts and others to shutter grazing to protect bighorns from deadly illnesses, this latest bill aims to send a message to federal managers to stop.

Environmentalists, on the other hand, want foes to work on a solution. That's a more sensible solution.

All invited to T.F. library celebration

We, as members of the board of trustees of the Twin Falls Public Library, invite everyone to our 100th birthday party from 2 to 4 p.m. today. Dress up as your favorite book character, eat birthday cake, cut the red ribbon and win prizes. We will also be recognizing donors who responded to our "call to action" by donating local history materials to our Idaho Room. Partygoers will be able to explore the archives and take a behind-the-scenes tour and see how the library really works!

It's a year for us to celebrate our 100 years of library service, but let's also remember that in today's challenging economy, libraries offer free resources to help people find jobs and learn new skills. You can connect at your library with people of all ages and backgrounds who use the library to find entertainment, self-help or their place in the community. With free resources like books, magazines, audio books, DVDs and computer and WiFi access, our citizens will do better in school, be able to tackle do-it-yourself projects and learn new ways to improve their health.

What makes the library unique is access to trained professionals — librarians — to help people find and interpret the information they need to make a difference in their lives. Our libraries also help keep us connected, providing a space for people of all ages, classes and races to come together, while keeping us connected to events and people around the world. It's where people can keep up with world events or research where to volunteer locally.

Come join us in our celebration!

Put away the hate and begin understanding

The shirt and the slogan say Idaho is Too Great for Hate. That seems simple, like what we teach our kindergarten children. But folks still criticize different skin colors, ethnicity, tall vs. short, fat vs. thin, male vs. female, gay vs. straight. These are attributes God gave us — we cannot change them. I am pretty sure that no one in Kenya chooses to be white, yet there are white people there. People don't choose to be black, Asian or Hispanic, they just are.

I am a straight white grandma with gray hair dyed brown, blue eyes, a body that is always too heavy. I can't imagine being gay, but someone I love is gay and I know enough gay people to love God's plan for them — no one chooses to be gay. Why would anyone choose a life that sets them up as the target of hatred? Why would anyone choose a life that could get them evicted from housing even though they pay their rent on time and follow all the rules? Why would anyone choose a life where they feel they must hide to get along or keep their job? Why would anyone choose a life of fear?

When people like John Pitts write to the newspaper and speak of lifestyle choices, they obviously have not thought it through. Could John Pitts fall in love with a man? I really doubt it. The same holds true for my daughter — she can only fall in love with women.

I would like to invite Mr. Pitts to visit the Gay Lesbian Bisexual Transgender group in town or meet with me or others to talk about it. If we don't love and accept the people we meet in life, we miss out on wonderful things. We also miss out on God's plan for us.

Mr. Pitts, you can call me — I am in the phone book. Please remember, Idaho (and the world also) is Too Great for Hate. This is not about "special rights," it is about treating our neighbors as ourselves.

We need to make banking boring again

Thirty-plus years ago, when I was a graduate student in economics, only the least ambitious of my classmates sought careers in the financial world. Even then, investment banks paid more than teaching or public service — but not that much more, and anyway, everyone knew that banking was, well, boring.

In the years that followed, of course, banking became anything but boring. Wheeling and dealing flourished, and pay scales in finance shot up, drawing in many of the nation's best and brightest young people. And we were assured that our supersized financial sector was the key to prosperity.

Instead, however, finance turned into the monster that ate the world economy. Recently, the economists Thomas Philippon and Ariell Reshef circulated a paper that could have been titled "The Rise and Fall of Boring Banking." They show that banking in America has gone through three eras over the past century.

Before 1930, banking was an exciting industry featuring a number of larger-than-life figures, who built giant financial empires. This highflying finance sector presided over a rapid increase in debt: Household debt as a percentage of GDP almost doubled between World War I and 1929.

PAUL KRUGMAN

During this first era of high finance, bankers were, on average, paid much more than their counterparts in other industries. But finance lost its glamour when the banking system collapsed during the Great Depression.

The banking industry that emerged from that collapse was tightly regulated, far less colorful than it had been before the Depression, and far less lucrative for those who ran it. Banking became boring, partly because bankers were so conservative about lending: Household debt, which had fallen sharply as a percentage of GDP during the Depression and World War II, stayed far below pre-1930s levels.

Strange to say, this era of boring banking was also an era of spectacular economic progress for most Americans.

After 1980, however, as the political winds shifted, many of the regulations on banks were lifted — and banking became exciting again. Debt began rising rapidly, eventually reaching just about the same level relative to GDP as in 1929.

And the financial industry exploded in size. By the middle of this decade, it accounted for a third of corporate profits.

As these changes took place, finance again became a high-paying career — spectacularly high-paying, for those who built new financial empires. Indeed, soaring incomes in finance played a large role in creating America's second Gilded Age.

Needless to say, the new superstars believed that they had earned their wealth. "I think that the results our company had, which is where the great majority of my wealth came from, justified what I got," said Sanford Weill in 2007, a year after he retired from Citigroup. And many economists agreed.

Only a few people warned that this supercharged financial system might come to a bad end. Perhaps the most notable Cassandra was Raghuram Rajan of the University of Chicago, a former chief economist at the International Monetary Fund, who argued at a 2005 conference that the rapid growth of finance had increased the risk of a "catastrophic meltdown."

But other participants in the conference, including Lawrence Summers, now the head of the National Economic Council, ridiculed Rajan's concerns.

And the meltdown came.

Much of the seeming success of the financial industry has now been revealed as an illusion. Worse yet, the collapse of the financial house of cards has wreaked havoc with the rest of the economy, with world trade and industrial output actually falling faster than they did in the Great Depression. And the catastrophe has led to calls for much more regulation of the financial industry.

But my sense is that policymakers are still thinking mainly about rearranging the boxes on the bank supervisory organization chart. They're not at all ready to do what needs to be done — which is to make banking boring again.

Part of the problem is that boring banking would mean poorer bankers, and the financial industry still has a lot of friends in high places. But it's also a matter of ideology: Despite everything that has happened, most people in positions of power still associate fancy finance with economic progress.

Can they be persuaded otherwise? Will we find the will to pursue serious financial reform? If not, the current crisis won't be a one-time event; it will be the shape of things to come.

Did Jon Stewart single-handedly destroy GOP?

WASHINGTON — A little less than a year ago, I participated in a meeting with some prominent political analysts forecasting the 2008 election. One topic focused on trends in the youth vote.

For Republicans, the patterns were ominous. George W. Bush lost to John Kerry among 18-29-year-olds by nine points (54 percent — 45 percent) in 2004.

Two years later in 2006, Democratic congressional candidates expanded that gap to 22 points, winning the younger demographic group on average 60 percent-38 percent. And at this meeting in the summer of 2008, one analyst noted Barack Obama might beat John McCain by over 30 points in the under-30 cohort.

He was right. The Democratic presidential candidate's margin surged to 34 points last November (66 percent -32 percent) among 18-29-year-olds. Ouch!

During one of the breaks, I asked a well-respected academic political scientist what accounted for the sharp move in recent years.

His answer: "Comedy Central." "Jon Stewart has done more to destroy the Republican brand among young voters than any person in America." And after reviewing some new research, it's clear he may have been on to something.

The 18-29-year-olds are indeed getting more of their political news from non-traditional sources. A 2004 Pew study, for example, found that these Americans cited comedy shows like "Saturday Night Live" or "The Daily Show" almost as frequently as newspapers and network news as a primary source of information about campaigns.

But does this shift in viewership also affect political attitudes and behavior? Some new research suggests it does. Most investigations focus on cruder measures — such as tallying the number of jokes about Republicans versus Democrats. But a study just published by East Carolina University political scientist Jonathan S. Morris takes a more in-depth look at the impact of late-night comedy on political views.

In the March issue of Political Behavior, Morris says "The Daily Show's" coverage of Republicans significantly damaged the images of President George W. Bush and Vice President Dick Cheney. At the same time, the program's treatment of John Kerry and John Edwards did not result in any movement in attitudes.

Using an innovative research design, Morris analyzed "The Daily Show's" coverage of the Republican and Democratic presidential candidates during the two national party conventions in 2004. He tracked attitudes about each side before and after the conventions and found Stewart's program harmed Republicans more than Democrats. Morris concludes: "The attitude shift of Stewart's audience during the Republican National Convention was significant, and watchers of "The Daily Show" became increasingly hostile toward President Bush and Vice President Cheney, while attitudes toward John Kerry and John Edwards remained fairly consistent. This relationship held even when several demographic and attitudinal factors were controlled, and the effect was not limited to partisan Democrats."

The study also shows the content of the criticism took on different styles. The humor aimed at Republicans "... took a sharper edge, and over one-third of the jokes preyed on policy failures or character flaws surrounding the participants," Morris writes. Democratic stories, by contrast, were "more light-hearted."

Morris is careful not to over-interpret his findings. And, he points out that Stewart has said repeatedly he is "... just having fun pointing out the absurdities that emanate from the people and processes involved in today's political world" and not intending to per-suaude anyone.

"Regardless," Morris writes, "... even though Stewart may not intend to persuade anyone, the evidence suggest that may have happened ..."

In an increasingly fragmented media world, a shrinking share of voters receives election information from traditional sources such as network news. We also know that comedy is an effective way to communicate political information and persuade. As a result, more Americans will likely draw at least part of their political information from comedy-based sources.

Maybe the toxic mix of ridicule, sarcasm and ad hominem attack so prevalent in late-night humor is only an effective political weapon for the left. Certain media and tactics seem to flourish more with some audiences than others. Conservative affection for talk radio is an example. Fox's attempt to compete in the late-night humor world with "The 1/2 Hour News Hour" in 2007 flopped. But conservatives should not abandon comedy in their political shtick. And given the current trajectory of unified Democratic Party control in Washington, budding conservative humorists are going to have lots of material.

Untie the hands of port of entry officers

Worried about road work — reference Times-News article April 14:

Why not untie the restraints on Idaho's port of entry officers? We have trained officers equipped with portable scales that are so restricted they cannot be effective. These officers need to be able to randomly stop obviously overloaded trucks for on-the-spot weight enforcement. Instead, they are limited to designated sites properly signed to weigh trucks. What a joke this is because as soon as they get set up,

Burley has its share of open-meeting controversy

I am responding to Jared Hopkins' article of April 3, "Open-meeting bill awaits Otter's signature," in which he reports that the ongoing open-meeting law violation involving the city of Burley was begun because Mayor Jon Anderson claimed that City Councilman Jay Lenkersdorfer "... violated the ... law by calling unannounced subcommittee meetings."

Burley has committees, several of them, but no subcommittees, so even God would have a difficult time figuring out what Anderson meant (nothing new there).

I believe Anderson was being deliberately misleading, intentionally muddying the water about the ongoing investigation because the investigation really has to do with a recreation committee meeting that Anderson himself and three city councilmen attended. Thus, if anybody is in trouble, all four of them are.

And, as you have pointed out a couple of times, Anderson is no stranger to open-meeting law controversy. He was recently the subject of an investigation that I instigated in which the investigator discovered that there were two quite different sets of minutes for the meeting under investigation.

One set of minutes was the official minutes prepared by the city clerk and on which I partially made my case. The other was a bogus set presented to the investigator by one of the four persons at City Hall interviewed by the investigator. Nobody "fessed up" on the bogus set (see Damon Hunzeker's article, Nov. 28, 2008).

Bernanke: Financial innovation needs regulation

By Martin Crutsinger
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — Federal Reserve Chairman Ben Bernanke said Friday that financial innovation is good for the economy but must be accompanied by proper regulation.

New financial products, such as subprime mortgages and structured investment vehicles, have become symbols of the economic crisis. The challenge for the government is to come up with regulations that protect consumers without stifling innovation, the Fed chief said.

"As we have seen all too clearly during the past two years, innovation that is inappropriately implemented can be positively harmful," Bernanke said in a speech to a Fed conference. "It would be unwise to try to stop financial innovation, but we must be more alert to its risks and the need to manage those risks properly."

The central bank already is

moving in that direction. The Fed and other regulators last year put forward credit card rules that were seen as the biggest clampdown in decades, seeking to protect consumers from companies that arbitrarily raise interest rates or don't give borrowers adequate time to pay their bills. But those rules don't take effect until next year.

The central bank also approved new regulations aimed at curbing abuses on home mortgages. They bar lenders from making loans without proof of a borrower's income and would require lenders to make sure risky borrowers set aside money to pay for taxes and insurance.

However, critics complained that federal regulators have moved too slowly and not done enough in the face of heavy lobbying from financial services firms. On the housing front, critics contend that a more vigilant Fed might have prevented the worst abuses during the boom when borrowers got homes they clearly could not afford, often under terms they did not fully understand.

In his speech, Bernanke said regulators need to watch closely to ensure that complex financial products and services are explained in ways that consumers can understand.

Structured investment vehicles and securities tied to subprime mortgages are among the complex products that contributed to the financial crisis and credit crunch.

SIVs are funds that borrow money by issuing short-term securities at a low interest rate and then lend that money by purchasing long-term securities at higher interest. Investors can profit from the difference, but SIVs began to struggle as demand dried up for short-term bonds during the credit crisis. The value of SIV holdings fell sharply, forcing banks such as Citigroup Inc. that operated the off-balance sheet funds, to provide them with financial support.

Citigroup, GE earnings lift hopes for economy

Banks say loan losses continue to mount despite strong earnings

By Marcy Gordon
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — A flurry of better-than-expected bank earnings reports this week, coupled with some tentatively encouraging economic data, suggest the economy and the financial system might not be quite as sick as many had believed.

Or are they? Facing conflicting evidence, analysts are wrestling with whether the economy is making a fitful climb back up — or whether the crisis will get worse before it gets better.

"We're beginning to get a little visibility on how banged up corporate America has been," Mark Vitner, senior economist at Wachovia Corp., said of Friday's earnings reports from Citigroup Inc. and General Electric Co.

But the better-than expected results from the banking giant and the diversified manufacturer — among the most beleaguered companies in their industries — buttress the notion "that just maybe we can see some light at the end of the tunnel now," said Vitner, who anticipates an end to the recession toward year's end but continued high unemployment well into 2010.

The number of Americans receiving jobless benefits has surpassed 6 million for the first time while housing construction unexpectedly plunged in March. Still, even those outwardly negative reports carried some silver linings suggesting the recession could be easing, namely a second straight drop in new jobless claims and some stability in new single-family homes.

GM bankruptcy 'probable'

Automaker still intends to restructure out of court

By Kendra Marr
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — General Motors chief executive Fritz Henderson said the automaker still intends to restructure its business outside of bankruptcy, but a filing is still "probable" given all the concessions it must achieve with such a short deadline.

GM, which has already received $13.4 billion in government loans, is working on a two track plan: outside bankruptcy and inside.

"Contingency planning is under way," Henderson told reporters Friday morning.

In a push to be more transparent, Friday's GM conference call was the first of a series of discussions designed to provide updates on the auto giant's restructuring decisions and actions, which must be completed by June 1.

In keeping with its Feb. 17 submission to the Treasury Department, GM will soon need another cash infusion in the second quarter to keep the company running.

Home building in the area falls in March

Nationwide, housing construction falls 10.8 percent

By Joshua Palmer
Times-News writer

Good news about buyer incentives and record low interest rates wasn't enough to boost new home construction in most parts of south-central Idaho.

New home construction permits that were issued in Twin Falls during March fell more than 80 percent compared to the same time last year to a record low of three new-home permits.

New home construction permits are considered a barometer of future activity.

The City of Jerome saw a slight increase compared to the previous year for total of eight new home construction permits issued last month.

Builders say there was a less of a housing overhang in Jerome, which will likely lead to a builders market this summer.

The City of Burley did not report the number of new home construction permits issued in March.

Across the rest of the nation, housing construction plunged to the second lowest level on record in March, providing a sobering sign that the worst housing slump in decades has not yet ended.

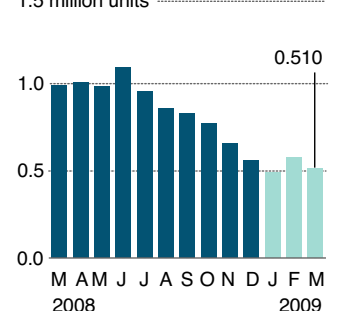

The Commerce Department said Thursday construction of new homes and apartments dropped 10.8 percent last month to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 510,000 units. That was the second lowest construction pace in records that go back 50 years.

The decline was worse than economists had expected and February

A business manager in Twin Falls said he was stunned by an applicant who stood before him last week.

"I had an 18-year-old who came to the interview in a T-shirt, torn jeans and sandals," said the manager, who asked to remain anonymous because he had not received corporate approval to speak to the media. "His application was folded in his back pocket and I had to stop my conversation with him so he could answer a call on his (cell) phone."

The manager said it was an extreme case, but added that it's more common than most people realize.

"Doesn't anyone teach these kids about presentation?" he asked.

As a matter of fact — they do. Linda Arrossa, a professional counselor, works with school districts, employers and economic development groups in south-central Idaho to prepare students for the workforce.

It's called the Fundamental Skills Certificate, and it teaches students about everything from appearance to computer literacy. Students have to prove themselves to employers and counselors that they have mastered about 35 skills before they can be certified.

It's not an easy program, but it's worth it. Linda Arrossa can be reached at 208-308-8276 or linda.arrossa@gmail.com

Note to business owners from Jerome Police Department: On April 14, the Twin Falls Police Department arrested a female who attempted to pass a $100 bill at the Magic Valley Mall.

As a result of this information, the Jerome Police Department recovered approximately $3,000 in counterfeit $100 bills in the City of Jerome.

Jerome police say they have developed information that some of the bills were distributed to other people in Jerome and Twin Falls, and as such, they may still be attempting to pass the counterfeit bills.

Police ask that business owners attempt to delay or identify the passers of counterfeit bills and contact law enforcement.

U.S. lifts some restrictions on embryo stem cells

WASHINGTON (AP) — When President Barack Obama eased limits on taxpayer-funded embryonic stem cell research, the big question became how far scientists could go. Friday, the government answered: They must use cells culled from fertility clinic embryos that otherwise would be thrown away.

Draft guidelines released by the National Institutes of Health reflect rules with broad congressional support, excluding more controversial sources such as cells derived from embryos created just for experiments.

"We think this will be a huge boost for the science," said Acting NIH Director Raynard King. "This was the right policy for the agency at this point in time."

The limit will disappoint some researchers who wanted to use a broader variety of cells. But it still means that perhaps hundreds more stem cell lines will be available for government-funded study soon.

"Some groups and scientists have wanted the administration to go further. But we are happy to have this progress after such a long period of limited opportunities to pursue this very important line of research," said Alan Leshner of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

The guidelines are "a reasonable compromise based on where the science stands now," said Dr. Sean Morrison, director of the University of Michigan Center for Stem Cell

Biology. "We may need to revisit some of the details down the road depending on how the science develops."

Scientists are trying to harness embryonic stem cells — master cells that can morph into any cell of the body — to one day create replacement tissues and better treat, possibly even cure, ailments ranging from diabetes to Parkinson's to spinal cord injury.

Culling those stem cells — which can propagate indefinitely in lab dishes — destroys a days-old embryo, a result strongly opposed by many on moral grounds. So the Bush administration had limited taxpayer-supported research to a small number of embryonic stem cell "lines" or groups already in existence as of August 2001.

'A new beginning'

U.S., Cuba advance dizzying thaw in relations

By Vivian Sequera and Ben Feller
Associated Press writers

PORT-OF-SPAIN, Trinidad — Trading their warmest words in a half-century, the United States and Cuba built momentum toward renewed ties on Friday, with President Barack Obama declaring he "seeks a new beginning" — including direct talks — with the island's communist regime.

As leaders of the Americas gathered for a summit in this Caribbean nation, the head of the Organization of American States even said he'll ask his group to invite Cuba back after 47 years.

In remarks kicking off the weekend gathering of nations — of which Cuba was the only country in the region not represented — Obama repeated the kind of remarks toward the Castro regime that marked his campaign for the presidency.

"The United States seeks a new beginning with Cuba," he said at the Summit of the Americas opening ceremony, according to his remarks released in advance by the White House. "I know there is a longer journey that must be traveled in overcoming decades of mistrust, but there are critical steps we can take toward a new day."

Analysts cautioned that the week's developments were encouraging but do not necessarily mean normalized relations are around the corner.

"This is a thaw, but it's a thaw that's going to take some time," said Michael Shifter of the Inter-American Dialogue in Washington. "I wouldn't look for any dramatic breakthroughs. There's a lot of distrust."

Still, President Cristina Fernandez of Argentina, in her remarks to the summit's inaugural session, won applause when she called on the United States to lift the "anachronism that the blockade means today."

"Let's not miss the chance," she said, to build a new relationship with Cuba.

The flurry of back-and-forth gestures began earlier this week when Obama dropped restrictions on travel and remittances to Cuba, challenging his Cuban counterpart, Raul Castro, to reciprocate. Obama noted those moves and renewed his promise for his administration to engage with the Cuban government "on a wide range of issues," including human rights, free speech, democratic reform, drugs, immigration and the economy.

"Let me be clear: I am not interested in talking for the sake of talking," the president said. "But I do believe that we can move U.S.-Cuban relations in a new direction."

In a diplomatic exchange of the kind that normally takes months or years, Castro had responded within hours to Obama's policy changes this week. He extended Cuba's most open offer for talks since the Eisenhower administration, saying he's ready to discuss "human rights, freedom of the press, political prisoners — everything." Cuban officials have historically bristled at discussing human rights or political prisoners, of whom they hold about 200.

The United States replied Friday, with Secretary of State Hillary Rodham Clinton offering: "We welcome his comments, the overture they represent, and we are taking a very serious look at how we intend to respond!"

NEW YORK (AP) — Long Friday. He added that before he was named to Rattner had disclosed the head President Barack Obama's auto task force, investigation to the White House before his appointment.

Street investor who landed a $100 million deal with New York's pension fund.

Now Rattner is embroiled in a corruption investigation that has already ensnared several New York political figures and cast a spotlight on the murky practice of paying fees to win investments from the colossal fund.

Prosecutors said Rattner's private equity firm forked over a $1.1 million kickback to an aide to the former state comptroller during its bid for the pension deal. They also said the company invested in a low-budget, goofball comedy produced by a relative of a pension fund manager.

As details of Rattner's involvement emerged, White House press secretary Robert Gibbs said the administration was aware of the allegations but still supported Rattner.

"He's not accused of doing any wrongdoing, and he's not likely to face any criminal or civil charges as it relates to this," Gibbs said

Rattner was chosen by Obama to help rescue the American auto industry from its worst crisis in history. He reports to Treasury Secretary Timothy Geithner. It was not immediately clear what kind of fallout the Rattner episode will have on Obama.

It may all come down to whether Rattner is found to be a victim of a shakedown by corrupt pension fund officials or a bribe-offering deal maker exposed by New York Attorney General Andrew Cuomo's investigation. Rattner hasn't commented on his role.

Rattner is among several executives whose conduct was examined by state and federal officials as part of Cuomo's investigation into whether top aides to former Comptroller Alan Hevesi took bribes from investment firms seeking deals with the pension fund.

Rattner's company, the Quadrangle Group, paid more than $1.1 million in "finder's fees" to one of those aides, political consultant Hank Morris.

Appeals court cancels offshore drilling program

WASHINGTON — A federal appeals court ruled Friday that the Bush administration did not properly study the environmental impact of expanding oil and gas drilling off the Alaska coast and canceled a program to find new reserves.

A three-judge panel in Washington found that the Bush-era Interior Department failed to consider the effect on the environment and marine life before it began the process in August 2005 to expand an oil and gas leasing program in the Beaufort, Bering, and Chukchi seas.

It wasn't entirely clear whether the decision applies to other areas of the same expanded offshore drilling program, including tracks in the Gulf of Mexico and along the Atlantic Coast.

Interior won't challenge rule on guns in parks

WASHINGTON — The Obama administration said Friday it will not appeal a federal court ruling that prohibits carrying loaded guns in national parks and wildlife refuges.

Instead, the Interior Department said it will conduct a full environmental review of an earlier policy that allowed concealed, loaded guns in parks and refuges.

U.S. District Judge Colleen Kollar-Kotelly struck down the gun policy last month. She called the rule, issued in the waning days of the Bush administration, severely flawed and said officials failed to evaluate its possible environmental impacts, as required by law. The judge set an April 20 deadline for the Interior Department to indicate its likely response.

The Bush rule, which took effect in January, allowed visitors to carry a loaded gun into a park or wildlife refuge as long as the person had a permit for a concealed weapon and the state where the park or refuge was located allowed concealed firearms. Previously, guns in parks had been severely restricted.

CPSC signals delay in lead law for ATVs

WASHINGTON — Motorcycle shops should soon be able to sell youth ATVs and motorbikes again, at least temporarily.

The Consumer Product Safety Commission said Friday that it plans to delay enforcement of a new anti-lead law that has kept all-terrain vehicles and dirt bikes off showroom floors — not because of concerns over safety, but because some bike parts contain lead.

Five records fall at Buhl Rotary Invitational

By David Bashore
Times-News writer

BUHL — It's gotta be the shoes, the old slogan reads. But having a good pair of running legs in those shoes sure doesn't hurt.

In brand new ultra-lightweight running shoes he only got last week, Burley senior distance runner Taylor Bean left yet another mark on the Buhl Rotary Invitational on Friday.

Bean circled the track eight times at a pace never before seen at the meet, completing the boys 3,200-meter run in 10 minutes and 4 seconds, six ticks better than his own previous meet record set last season.

It was 10 seconds short of his personal record but Bean's race perfectly reflected his M.O., as he raced off at the starting gun, set the tempo and never let anyone pass him. Bean added a win in the 800 to go with his two-mile victory.

"That's just kind of how I like to do it, just get to the front and avoid the pack," Bean said. "I'm not going to mess around or play any (tactical) games out there."

Many of those who didn't mess around got rewarded, some with meet records to go with Bean's new mark.

Kimberly long jumper Keegan Brady broke the meet record of 21 feet, 5 inches with his first jump of the day (21-11), then bettered his own mark on his very next jump. The 22 foot, 1/2-inch leap stood over the rest of the day and put Brady's name both at the top of the leaderboard and in the Rotary Invitational record books.

With a building breeze at his back, Brady barely scratched on his final two jumps, both of which appeared in the vicinity of his record jump, but he was pleased with the outcome nonetheless.

"It's a good foot and a half over my previous best jump, so I'm pretty excited about it," Brady said. "When I jumped, I knew it was a good one but I didn't think it was that good."

On the track the races were dynamic and close, by and large, including a small surprise in the girls 100.

Seeded second in her heat, Minico freshman Marlee Chandler outpaced Buhl phenom Clara Comer to win the heat in 12.76 seconds. Kaitana Martinez of Wood River won the event with a 12.68 in

THE VAUXHALL PIPELINE

BASEBALL ACADEMY SENDING TOP CANADIAN TALENT TO CSI

By David Bashore • Times-News writer

About 50 miles north-east of Lethbridge, Alberta, sits the town of Vauxhall. With a population of 1,069 — about 330 fewer people than Shoshone — Vauxhall as a town goes unnoticed. Vauxhall as a baseball

Three players from CSI's current team — shortstop Tanner Craswell, center fielder Lionel Morrill and utility Dale Anderson — came from Vauxhall and two 2009 Jets, Tyler Vavra and Jean-Guy Bilodeau, have inked NJCAA National Letters of Intent to play in Twin Falls next season.

This is only the third year for the Vauxhall Academy of Baseball, but the link to CSI was 25 years in the making.

"When we started the Academy three years ago, our goal was to get players to play college baseball. I've had a special relationship with CSI for a long time, and it's an easy sell for me (to send kids to CSI)," said Vauxhall assistant coach Jim Kotkas. "Boomer and Skip (Walker, CSI's head and assistant coach, respectively) seem to have a trust for the players that we send out of our program"

Kotkas played for CSI from 1982-84 under Skip Walker, helping the team win the NJCAA Division I national championship in his sophomore season. The relationship between Kotkas and town, however, is anything but.

This tiny Canadian prairie town is home to one of the premier baseball academies in Canada, and also stands as the College of Southern Idaho's newest baseball pipeline.

and both Skip and Boomer Walker has continued to this day, and Kotkas was sending players to CSI even before academy baseball came to Vauxhall.

CSI has brought in Canadian players for years, but the likes of Grant Kveder, Eric Cattoni and Ken Fuglerud were largely on Kotkas' recommendation, and evaluation with Kotkas would bring one of Lethbridge's American Legion teams to the annual Cowboy Classic.

Anymore, the personal look helps, but it's clear that Boomer Walker holds Kotkas in such high esteem that a recommendation is usually all that's needed.

"I have a lot of respect for Jim Kotkas, and I've known him for a long time. He has tremendous pride in CSI, and we both want good players that are good people. It's not as much of a necessity to see those players play, because we have trust in the kind of kids that they put out," Walker said.

BSU's role players beat stars in final scrimmage

By Dustin Lapray
Times-News correspondent

BOISE — Boise State's spring football camp concluded Friday at Bronco Stadium in fitting fashion for a program proud of its underdog demarcation.

The "all-star" team lost, and the team made up of misfits and role players got the 14-10 win.

Head coach Chris Petersen created a draft, split the squad into two teams and let them play it out in 8-minute quarters.

Assistant coaches Brent Pease (White Team) and Pete Kwiatkowski (Blue Team) took the reigns, and Pete was in the box pulling players out of the game to make it interesting.

"We talked about doing this before, but we never had the numbers to do it," Petersen said. "I think the kids appreciate it more, I hope the fans appreciate it. It's so much about competing. We talk about it so much."

For Pease, it opened his coaching repertoire.

"It's weird because I'm still pulling for the offense," Pease said. "I want to see all the receivers do well, but it's kind of cool to be around the defensive guys and see how they think and how they're competing and be around some of their calls."

Many played on both sides of the ball. George Iloka and Brandyn Thompson played receiver. Kyle Wilson caught a 40-yard pass from Kellen Moore on the game's second play. Doug Martin made four tackles. And of course, Michael "Bacon" Atkinson rumbled off a 25-yard run, a dive play off a gap right side (imagine being a defensive back trying to tackle a 320-pound tackle).

"I just went up and got a couple good blocks and one of the guys missed a tackle," Atkinson said. "I told all the guys that if I ever get into the open I am bouncing it to the outside. It was a joke, but it actually happened."

Austin Pettis gave the White team the 14-10 lead late in the fourth quarter. Mike Coughlin took the snap, handed off to Matt Kaiserman who handed a reverse to Pettis, and the junior receiver hit Tyler Shoemaker for a 85-yard strike.

A class of their own for Pepsi Late Models

By Linda Brittsan
Times-News correspondent

Tonight at Magic Valley Speedway, the Pepsi Late Models will head out on to the track without the company of the modifieds for the first time in several seasons.

The past cries of the drivers from both classes of cars for equality will fall silent — at least on that matter — and they will get down to just racing.

The battle will take on other dimensions, one of which will be showcasing drivers with various amounts of experience behind the wheel at MVS' one-third-mile track.

Dan Pehrson has gathered 15 seasons of competition at MVS in various classes and is set to begin his third season of competition in a Late Model this evening.

"We're thrashing on it right now," Pehrson said.

Bruins earn season sweep over Tigers

By John Derr
Times-News writer

JEROME — Jerome was in a giving mood Friday and Twin Falls was more than willing to take advantage.

Tiger miscues led to four unearned runs, aiding the Bruins' 7-5 victory in non-conference baseball action.

"Anytime you beat Jerome it's a good day," said Braden Box, who went 3-for-3 and scored three runs to pace the Twin Falls offense.

The two teams met at the beginning of the season with Twin Falls taking the 12-2 run-rule victory. This time it would be close and go the distance.

Things were interesting early as the umpires were involved in a couple disputed plays. Jacob Coats doubled in a run then scored on an error for the Bruins.

Jerome responded as Richard Gibson blasted a triple to center while Trey Berett chipped in an RBI single as the teams were

Richfield's Kent signs with Walla Walla

By Ryan Howe
Times-News writer

Richfield High senior Michelle Kent has committed to play basketball at Walla Walla Community College.

"I really love the school and I love playing with all the players because I'm familiar with a lot of them," Kent said. "I really clicked with them when I went there."

Kent will be the third player from the Magic Valley on the Walla

"We're in need of some good guards who can shoot it, and she's a solid outside shooter."

-- Walla Walla coach Bobbi Hazeltine

Walla roster, joining Kayla Hutcheson from Kimberly and recent signee Kassi Kerbs from Burley.

"I've always had kids from Idaho, but they've mainly been from north Idaho," said Walla Walla head coach Bobbi Hazeltine. "It's exciting now to get some kids from southern Idaho and Twin Falls."

Kent possesses the one characteristic Hazeltine looks for most in recruits.

"Mostly what we need are kids who come from winning programs," she said. "I try to get kids who know how to win."

As a senior, Kent helped lead the Tigers to an undefeated 25-0 season and the 2009 Class 1A Division II state championship. She received first-team all-state honors by averaging 12.5 points, seven rebounds, 5.7 assists and 3.8 steals per game. Kent was also a member of Richfield's 2007 state title team.

With so many talented players, Hazeltine said the Warriors have faced a lot of zone defenses. Kent is expected to counteract that by providing an outside threat.

"We're in need of some good guards who can shoot it, and she's a solid outside shooter," Hazeltine said. "Teams are zoning us because we're hard to guard, and I just needed some shooters, and she's one of the better shooters that we brought in."

Walla Walla went 21-7 and placed fourth at this year's NWAACC tournament.

"It's always been my goal to (play in college) ever since I started playing basketball," Kent said. "I think I'm ready for it. It's going to be way different, but I look forward to it."

CSI baseball falls flat on the road

Times-News

Two games, 14 innings and all the College of Southern Idaho baseball team could muster was three infield singles.

Western Nevada College freshman right hander Kramer Champlin no-hit the Golden Eagles in a 1-0 Game 1 victory, and the Wildcats run-ruled CSI 9-1 in seven innings in Game 2 to complete the sweep in Carson City, Nev., on Friday.

Champlin and CSI ace Sam Armstrong dueled each other in the first inning. Armstrong gave up just three hits, but he made one mistake and WNC catcher Jerome Pena turned it into a solo home run for the only run of the game.

"Sam threw unbelievable. The two other hits they got were jam-shots, but he left the one ball over the plate and the Pena kid didn't miss it," said CSI head coach Boomer Walker. "The first game we didn't play badly, it was just a circumstance of a guy throwing real well and our guy throwing real well ... we obviously didn't get any hits and that makes it tough."

In Game 2, the Golden Eagles (23-21, 16-14 Scenic West Athletic Conference) got themselves into a desirable situation, with the bases loaded without an out and the heart of the order coming up. But a pair of strikeouts and a lazy fly ball to right field spoiled the only hits of the doubleheader -- all three singles came in consecutive at bats -- and ended the threat with CSI still down 2-0.

Walker was disappointed with the way that situation deteriorated, but backed his players.

"We needed to capitalize on that, we couldn't script it any better but we couldn't get it done. But I'd want those guys up again, (failing to score) won't happen again," Walker said. "Whatever could go wrong in that second game did."

The teams will be back at it again at 1 p.m., MDT, today for another doubleheader.

"It's a real gut-check day," Walker said. "Obviously we're going to have to come out and get through whatever struggles we have, and play better than today. After a day like (Friday), thank goodness we're playing (Saturday). You really want to get right back out there."

NEW PLYMOUTH 8, DECLO 6

One bad inning spoiled Declo's otherwise impressive outing Friday at the Glens Ferry Softball Tournament.

Declo saw its 6-2 lead evaporate as New Plymouth scored six runs in the bottom of the sixth to steal an 8-6 victory.

Jessica Fuentes had a double and Melissa Carson hit a triple for Declo, which dropped to 8-7 overall (1-0 Canyon Conference). The Hornets couldn't hold on, but Declo coach Kari Osterhout was ecstatic at how well her team competed against last year's Class 2A state runner-up.

"We couldn't, shoulda won," said Osterhout. "We came in as total underdogs and we just decided to be intense and decided to play ball. We just fell apart in one inning." Declo will travel to Kimberly on Thursday.

Baseball GLENS FERRY TOURNAMENT WENDELL, GLENS FERRY WIN

Wendell got a two-hitter from Keith Mowery to beat Wells, Nev., 9-1 at the Glens Ferry Wooden Bat Tournament on Friday.

The Trojans scored their nine runs on just three hits, taking advantage of opportunities and manufacturing some runs.

Glens Ferry closed the day with an 8-2 win over Filer in a game that was scoreless through the middle of the sixth inning. The Pilots (10-7) then unloaded for eight runs, while Filer only replied with a couple of unearned runs in the top of the seventh.

Adrian Martinez threw the complete-game fourth-hitter, striking out 13.

"They've all been real well-played games," Glens Ferry coach Denis Uhl said of the first two days of the tournament. "There are some really good teams, and one more coming in (Saturday) in New Plymouth. Should stack up to be some pretty good baseball tomorrow."

In other tournament action, Minico's junior-varsity team beat Wells 14-3 and Parma beat Malad 4-2.

tied 3-3 after three. Twin Falls loaded the bases on two errors and a single by Box with no outs in the top of the fifth. A sacrifice fly by Zeb Sneed and a balk, the second of the game by Jerome, gave the Bruins a lead they would never relinquish.

Jerome challenged in the sixth, but couldn't cut into the lead. Things got worse in the top of the seventh as Box doubled to open the inning.

"I have had trouble with my front foot leading so I came into the game with the approach that I would sit back and drive the ball," said Box.

Next up was Sneed, who was 0-for-3 at that point. He gave the Bruins much needed insurance runs with a soaring two-run home run over the left field wall.

"It was a 2-0 count so I knew it would be a strike and just waited for it. We wanted to score more runs to make it harder for them to come back," said Sneed. "We weren't ready to play and didn't have the intensity we usually do, but we kept battling." Those runs would definitely matter as Jerome rallied in the bottom of the seventh. Kris Bos and Nolan McDonald both tallied RBI singles to pull within a pair, but the Bruin defense stepped up, ending the game with a ground out to short.

Jerome coach Tom Bobrowski said it was the little things that hurt his team, which finished with a trio of errors and the same number of free passes.

"We outit them and outpitched them. Defense was a little shaky at times and that cost us," said Bobrowski. "We are progressing and I am excited about that. This is a good group who want to learn."

The Bruins will be right back in action today as they battle Idaho Falls in a conference doubleheader. The winner will be in good position to host the region tournament.

Jerome hosts Minico on Tuesday then visits the Spartans on Wednesday in its final league games before district tourney play.

week," Shoemaker said. "It worked out perfect. The defense bit on the reverse and just found me on the streak on the side."

Shoemaker also caught a 26-yard pass from Michael Coughlin to get the White Team on the board. Shoemaker faked like he was going to block for a wide-receiver screen, then ran a flag route. Coughlin found him wide open.

On the all-important extra point, turned into a long try because of excessive celebration, the Blue Team chanted Jimmy Pavle's name, but the walk-on converted his try to make it 10-7.

Moore hit Titus Young on a 13-yard fade corner route, beating Cedric Febis to score the Blue Team's only touchdown. Kyle Brotzman, the No. 1 pick in the draft, hit a 32-yard field goal and missed a 52-yarder.

"That was beyond fun," Austin Pettis said. "We play against each other every day in practice, so it was just fun to be able to switch things up and play

Sheffield hits No. 500 in win

NEW YORK — Gary Sheffield joined the 500-homer club, and Luis Castillo drove in the winning run with a two-out single in the ninth inning, giving the New York Mets a 5-4 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers on Friday night.

Ryan Braun hit a three-run homer to give Milwaukee a 4-3 lead in the sixth before Sheffield connected off Mitch Stetter, who was facing his first batter in relief of Dave Bush. The nine-time All-Star was on as a pinch hitter and sent a full-count pitch an estimated 385 feet for his first hit of the season for the Mets.

PIRATES 3, BRAVES 0

PITTSBURGH — Paul Maholm combined with two relievers on a six-hitter and Pittsburgh handed Atlanta its fourth straight loss.

Maholm (2-0) pitched seven innings, allowing four hits. The left-hander, who worked around three walks, two hit batters and a balk, lowered his ERA to 0.87 in winning his first home start of the season.

PADRES 8, PHILLIES 7

PHILADELPHIA — Scott Hairston homered and hit a go-ahead two-run double in the eighth inning, helping San Diego overcome a six-run deficit.

The World Series champion Phillies honored legendary broadcaster Harry Kalas in a moving ceremony before the game. The Hall of Fame announcer died Monday in Washington after collapsing in the broadcast booth before a game against the Nationals.

New York Mets outfielder Gary Sheffield (10) reacts after hitting his 500th home run during the seventh inning of Friday's game against the Milwaukee Brewers in New York.

MARLINS 3, NATIONALS 2, 10 INNINGS

WASHINGTON — Jeremy Hermida hit an RBI infield single in the 10th inning to lift Florida to its fifth straight win.

Florida's 9-1 record marks the best start in franchise history, topping the 1997 and 2004 Marlins who both opened 8-1.

CUBS 8, CARDINALS 7

CHICAGO - After striking out three times earlier in the game, Alfonso Soriano hit a two-run homer in the eighth inning to rally Chicago past St. Louis.

REDS 2, ASTROS 1

HOUSTON — Ramon Hernandez hit a two-run homer in the ninth inning to lift Cincinnati.

Jose Valverde (0-1), who missed Thursday's game with a back strain, walked Edwin Encarnacion with one out in the ninth before Hernandez hit his first homer over the right-field fence. It was Valverde's first blown save of the year.

AMERICAN LEAGUE YANKEES 6, INDIANS 5

NEW YORK — Derek Jeter broke an eighth-inning tie with the Yankees' fifth solo home run for the team's first win at the new Yankee Stadium.

Johnny Damon, Mark Teixeira, Melky Cabrera and Robinson Cano also connected as New York avoided dropping the first two games at its new home.

ATHLETICS 8, BLUE JAYS 5

TORONTO — Matt Holliday hit a go-ahead RBI double in the seventh inning, Bobby Crosby drove in three runs and Oakland beat Toronto.

RAVS 6, WHITE SOX 5

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — Ben Zobrist hit a pinch-hit grand slam and Carlos Pena homered for the fifth time in six days to help Tampa Bay past Chicago.

RED SOX 10, ORIOLES 8

BOSTON — Jason Bay and J.D. Drew homered to help Boston overcome a seven-run deficit.

ROYALS 12, RANGERS 3

ARLINGTON, Texas — Gil Meche pitched into the seventh without allowing a run, and Mark Teahen assumed his new role by going 5-for-6 with a homer.

TWINS 11, ANGELS 9

MINNEAPOLIS — Jason Kubel completed the ninth cycle in Twins history with a dramatic go-ahead grand slam to cap a seven-run rally in the bottom of the eighth inning.

Johnson not resting on past success at race

Martin claims 3rd pole of season

AVONDALE, Ariz. (AP) — Jimmie Johnson crushed the field at Phoenix International Raceway last fall, running away to his third straight victory in the desert with ease.

He'll try to make it four in a row tonight, but is straying from the strategy that has worked so well for him.

Johnson and his Hendrick Motorsports team came to Phoenix with a brand new setup, hoping it will be enough to equalize any gains made by his competition.

"Just hoping that it's going to be faster and better," Johnson said Friday. "I've come in too cocky in my own mind," he said. "I've come in not really confident enough in some respects because of what's gone on during the season. Through those highs and lows, I've kind of found a spot where I come in with confidence, and I feel like we've got a good plan.

"I take today as today, and then tomorrow just really try to keep it simple and stay even-keel through it all."

It's not clear what more Johnson can do to be better at Phoenix, where he has nine top-10 finishes in 11 starts. Johnson has led 505 miles at Phoenix, and his average finish is a 5.5 — second only to Martinsville (5.3) of Johnson's best tracks.

Despite his successful record, he managed to turn it up a notch in sweeping both races last season. Johnson led 337 of the 625 laps raced at Phoenix last year, and was out front for all but 96 in the fall.

But it's not enough for a No. 48 team that is always pushing for more. With NASCAR's ban on testing this season, Johnson and crew chief Chad Knaus weren't positive they've maintained their superiority.

AVONDALE, Ariz. (AP) — Mark Martin has won his third pole of the season, qualifying first Friday night at Phoenix International Raceway.

Martin ran a lap at 133.814 mph in his Hendrick Motorsports Chevrolet to beat Kyle Busch and Kurt Busch for the top starting spot Saturday night. Before this season, Martin had not won a pole since 2001.

Kyle Busch qualified second with a lap at 133.725 in a Toyota, and older brother Kurt was third in a Dodge with a lap at 133.700.

Jeff Gordon qualified fourth in a Chevrolet and was followed by Brian Vickers in a Toyota.

The top 10 was rounded out by Tony Stewart, Paul Menard, David Reutimann, Regan Smith and Jimmie Johnson.

ty, so they decided to try something new during Friday's practices.

In straying from what's worked so well, they are giving themselves an opportunity to be good later in the season at similar race tracks.

"Without testing, it's a good opportunity to work on our short-track program, our mile program," Johnson said. "What we learn here will cross over to Richmond, will also cross over to New Hampshire to a certain degree. Even if it doesn't work, we can go to the shop, dig in deeper and then show up at Richmond a generation ahead of where we're at now and maybe a step closer to a better package."

Changing things up a bit also keeps Johnson humble. He's won a record-tying three consecutive Cup championships, in part because his team has consistently adapted to the newest technology.

Gay's birdie streak gives him Horizon lead

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. — Brian Gay's run of five straight birdies lifted him past a revived Todd Hamilton after two rounds of the Verizon Heritage Friday.

Gay made six birdies on the front nine, including five in a row from the fourth through ninth holes to help him to a 66 and, at 9-under par, a one-stroke lead over former British Open champion Hamilton.

First-round leader Alex Cejka followed his 64 with an even-par 71 and was tied at 7-under with two-time U.S. Open champion Lee Janzen.

Janzen's round of 70 featured an ace on the 17th hole.

Gay has steadily improved over his 11 full PGA Tour seasons. His best came last year with his first career victory at the Mayakoba Golf Classic and a personal high of more than $2.2 million in earnings. "That front nine was awesome," Gay said.

Gay's streak began when he rolled in an 18-footer for birdie on the par-3 4th hole, then picked up steam with a 25-foot putt a hole later. His approach from a fairway bunker landed inside 5 feet for a third straight birdie.

After a birdie putt inside 10 feet on the seventh, Gay closed the stretch with another sizeable putt of 20 feet to get reach 10 under.

Gay led a strong, if not stellar field, as many of the world's best players took the week off to recuperate after the Masters.

Green jacket winner Angel Cabrera took a break as did Tiger Woods and Phil Mickelson. In all, just six of the top 20 ranked golfers teed it up here.

Hamilton, who tied for 15th at Augusta, may have found his major championship at the right time.

His five-year PGA Tour exemption from that 2004 win ends this season. And Hamilton had done little in the year's first three months — seven missed cuts in nine events — to guarantee him a spot beyond December.

NELSON LEADS PRICE BY 1 SHOT AT OUTBACK PRO-AM

LUTZ, Fla. — Larry Nelson shot a 6-under 65 to take a one-shot lead over Nick Price after the first round of the Outback Pro-Am on Friday.

Nelson got going with a chip-in for par at No. 13 at the Champions Tour event at TPC Tampa Bay. He then had birdies at Nos. 16, 1, 3 and 8.

Mark McNulty and Mike McCullough had 67s, while Jay Haas shot a 68.

the next heat, but Chandler was happy with her race against one of the area's best.

"It pushes you to be better and to work harder," Chandler said of racing against the best competition in the area. "You're just thinking that you have to win, have to do your best and never let up."

Jerome's girls won the team competition by 40 points over Buhl. The Tigers were anchored by wins from Mikesell Clegg in both distance races and a second-place showing in the 800, and a strong throwing effort from Tinley Garey.

The Minico boys rode their relays, including the state's fastest 4x200 team, to a one-point win over Great Basin West rival Jerome. Buhl was fourth overall, but Bertrand Alcaraz Garcia won the three sprints easily, including a blistering 10.86 time in the 100.

Other records to fall Friday were the girls 300 hurdles (Delaney Fox, Wood River), long jump (Hayley Reinstra, Jerome) and triple jump (Kaitlin Keller, Kimberly).

MVS Point Standings

"We dented it up pretty good last year so we're putting on a new front clip and a new body — but we'll have it ready for tonight."

"When you take it apart and put it all back together you never know what it's going to do out there, but I'm pretty optimistic even though we haven't had any track time on it yet.

"I think things will be better with the two separate classes, we'll all have the same style car and all have the same tires and weight."

Lonnie Lowder, a former dirt track racer who recently transplanted to Twin Falls from the Pocatello area, put in a few laps at MVS late last season and is anxious to make the full-time plunge into asphalt track racing this year.

"It's a transition from dirt to pavement because you have to learn how to run a different line. It's probably going to take me most of the year to learn. But I think it's going to be more fun I know it's not going to be near as dirty," he said.

"Eddy (McKean) has done a great job with the track and it's a great facility. And I think the guys that run here are as good as anybody in the country," Lowder added.

As far as having any opening-night jitters, Lowder speaks candidly: "Absolutely. You always do, no matter how long you've been racing."

Jeff Wade, who will pilot the No. 9 car this evening, is starting this evening's events as a true rookie in the series. The Paul resident just recently purchased the late model car from McKean Motorsports and is hoping to draw from the experience he has collected in five years of go-kart racing.

2009 NBA PLAYOFF PREVIEW

Western Conference

Eastern Conference

Kobe Bryant

Deron Williams

LeBron James

Richard Hamilton

NO. 1 LOS ANGELES LAKERS (65-17) VS. NO. 8 UTAH JAZZ (48-34)

Season series: Lakers, 2-1.

Buzz: The Jazz made the 2007 West Finals, and last spring handed the Lakers two of their three losses in the West draw, but this isn't that team, having just finished in a 2-7 nose dive. ... Worse, these aren't the same Lakers, who played even farther over the Jazz players' heads Tuesday with Andrew Bynum back.

Prediction: Coach Jerry Sloan wasn't setting the Lakers up when he said that Utah's outlook is "bleak." It is, but they'll fight to the end. Lakers, 4-1.

Schedule: Sunday: at L.A. Lakers, 3 p.m.; Tuesday: at L.A. Lakers, 8:30 p.m.; Thursday: at Utah, 8:30 p.m.; April 25: at Utah, 7 p.m.; April 27: at L.A. Lakers; April 30: at Utah; May 2: at L.A.

Chauncey Billups

Chris Paul

NO. 2 DENVER NUGGETS (54-28) VS. NO. 7 NEW ORLEANS HORNETS (49-33)

Season series: 2-2.

Buzz: The Nuggets turned their wacky ship around with Chauncey Billups, breaking the franchise record for wins, with major moves by previously-crazed J.R. Smith and Chris Andersen. ... Nevertheless, New Orleans' Chris Paul may be the game's most dominating player, but, aside from David West and Peja Stojakovic, may as well have been playing with nine guys from the D League.

Prediction: If Tyson Chandler averages 30 minutes and 10 rebounds, the Hornets win. Otherwise, Denver, 4-2.

Schedule: Sunday: at Denver, 8:30 p.m.; Wednesday: at Denver, 8:30 p.m.; April 25: at New Orleans, 11 a.m.; April 27: at New Orleans, TBA; April 29: at Denver; May 1: at New Orleans; May 3: at Denver.

Tony Parker

Dirk Nowitzki

NO. 3 SAN ANTONIO SPURS (54-28) VS. NO. 6 DALLAS MAVS (50-32)

Season series: 2-2.

Buzz: After all the Spurs survived, this looks like business as usual, even with Manu Ginobili gone and Tim Duncan's knees so sore, Coach Gregg Popovich pulled him out of a late game, telling him, "I don't need a hero, I need a healthy player." ... Faded as the Mavericks are, they flew under the radar all season, finishing 48-25 after starting 2-7 under Rick Carlisle, with Dirk Nowitzki, Jason Terry and Jason Kidd.

Prediction: Nothing is forever. Dallas, 4-3.

Schedule: Saturday: at San Antonio, 6 p.m.; Monday: at San Antonio, 7:30 p.m.; Thursday: at Dallas, 6:30 p.m.; April 25: at Dallas, 2 p.m.; April 28: at San Antonio; May 1: at Dallas; May 3: at San Antonio.

Brandon Roy

Ron Artest

NO. 4 PORTLAND BLAZERS (54-28) VS. NO. 5 HOUSTON ROCKETS (53-29)

Season series: Houston, 2-1.

Buzz: The heavyweight matchup of the first round, matching the young Trail Blazers and the veteran Rockets. Portland kept improving despite Greg Oden's comings and goings, finishing 19-6. Houston survived a near civil war, as teammates fumed at Tracy McGrady's coming and goings, finishing 22-8 after he left for good.

Prediction: As deep and physical as the Rockets are, the closest thing they have to a closer now is Ron Artest. The Trail Blazers have Brandon Roy. Portland, 4-3.

Schedule: Saturday: at Portland, 8:30 p.m.; Tuesday: at Portland, 8 p.m.; April 24: at Houston, 7:30 p.m.; April 26: at Houston, 7 p.m.; April 28: at Portland; April 30: at Houston; May 2: at Portland.

NO. 1 CLEVELAND CAVS (66-16) VS. NO. 8 DETROIT PISTONS (39-43)

Season series: Cleveland, 3-1.

Buzz: These old foes met in bitter series in 2006 and 2007, which they split, but these aren't the veteran Pistons, who made the last six East Finals, or the young Cavaliers, trying to get over the hump. Now the Cavaliers are the grown-ups and the Pistons the young team, but they're going down, not up, with their first losing season since 2000-01.

Prediction: The only surprise will be if the Pistons win a game. Cleveland, 4-0.

Schedule: Saturday: at Cleveland, 1 p.m.; Tuesday: at Cleveland, 6 p.m.; April 24: at Detroit, 5 p.m.; April 26: at Detroit, 1:30 p.m.; April 29: at Cleveland; May 1: at Detroit; May 3: at Cleveland.

Paul Pierce

Derrick Rose

NO. 2 BOSTON CELTICS (62-20) VS. NO. 7 CHICAGO BULLS (41-41)

Season series: Boston, 2-1.

Buzz: In other bad news, the Celtics were set to play Philadelphia, whom they swept ... until the Bulls dropped their finale — at home, to Toronto. The Bulls turned their last meeting with the Celtics into a track meet and won, 127-121, part of a 12-4 finish led by new leading scorer John Salmons and rookie Derrick Rose.

Prediction: In a break for the Celtics, at last, Salmons, who's also the only Bull who can guard Paul Pierce, has a groin injury. Boston, 4-2.

Schedule: Saturday: at Boston, 10:30 a.m.; Monday: at Boston, 5 p.m.; Thursday: at Chicago, 6 p.m.; April 26: at Chicago, 11 a.m.; April 28: at Boston; April 30: at Chicago; May 2: at Boston.

Dwight Howard

Andre Iguodala

NO. 3 ORLANDO MAGIC (59-23) VS. NO. 6 PHILADELPHIA 76ERS (41-41)

Season series: Orlando, 3-0.

Buzz: The Magic got past the first round last spring for the first time since Shaquille O'Neal was there and may be ready for more. With Mr. Inside, Dwight Howard, and a roster full of shooters, even top teams have trouble matching up, with the Magic 10-5 against the Lakers, Celtics and Cavaliers over two seasons.

Prediction: The 76ers can't match up with them either, or anyone else at the end, finishing 1-6. Orlando, 4-1.

Schedule: Sunday: at Orlando, 3:30 p.m.; Wednesday: at Orlando, 5 p.m.; April 24: at Philadelphia, 6 p.m.; April 26: at Philadelphia, 4:30 p.m.; April 28: at Orlando; April 30: at Philadelphia; May 2: at Orlando.

Josh Smith

Dwyane Wade

NO. 4 ATLANTA HAWKS (47-35) VS. NO. 5 MIAMI HEAT (43-39)

Season series: Atlanta, 3-1.

Buzz: The Comeback Bowl between the Hawks, who shocked the Celtics last spring as a 37-45 playoff team and just posted their first winning record in 10 years, while the Heat went from 15 wins to 43. ... Coincidentally or not, with Jermaine O'Neal (surprise!) a dud, Miami Coach Eric Spoelstra finally unchained rookie Michael Beasley, who averaged 20 points in April.

Prediction: Three Hawks guard Dwyane Wade, sometimes at the same time. Atlanta escapes, 4-3.

Schedule: Sunday: at Atlanta, 6 p.m.; Wednesday: at Atlanta, 6 p.m.; April 25: at Miami, 4:30 p.m.; April 27: at Miami, TBA; April 29: at Atlanta; May 1: at Miami; May 3: at Atlanta.

Pipeline

"We're always glad to have those Canadian players on our team, because you know they aren't going to take anything for granted. They don't have the exposure or the experience, and don't have a lot as far as baseball goes — but it's getting better — but they work hard for everything they get."

It helps that predecessors let you know what to expect at the next level, as was the case with Craswell. The CSI freshman shortstop sent about a page-long e-mail to his former teammates at Vauxhall this year, detailing things he expected and things he didn't expect.

Perhaps it was a means of working things out for himself, but the main reason was to let his friends know what to expect if they were to make it in the college game.

"We got the inside scoop on everything before you go (to CSI)," said Vavra, who added that he considered Craswell, his roommate last season at Vauxhall, his best friend. "I can ask (Craswell) what it's like, what to expect?"

Said Craswell: "I did it so that they wouldn't show up and find out ... this is different than high school. The coaches are all about winning, the players are all about winning, and you can have a four-game set and some guys won't touch the field. Not everyone plays."

In three short years, Vauxhall has gone from a hatched plan to one of the pre-eminent forces in Canadian prep baseball. For Morrill and Anderson, two members of the inaugural Vauxhall team, it was a chance to get more exposure and experience to parlay baseball into an education.

"I heard about Vauxhall from (Jets head coach Les McTavish), and it sounded like a good deal," said Morrill, who was selected in the 2008 MLB First-Year Player Draft by the Minnesota Twins but opted to come to CSI anyway. "You get tons of exposure and the western provinces are usually warmer so you can play a ton more baseball there."

Said Anderson: "All of us were there for the same reason, and that's because we had a passion for the game of baseball, and that was the opportunity for us to do it. Everyone in the community got behind us as well."

Such is the talent stocked on the roster that the Jets have found trouble getting consistent quality opposition in Canada, instead heading south of the border to face college teams, legion teams, high school teams such as Twin Falls, and tournaments in Las Vegas.

That has changed the game for CSI, which was at one point pretty much the only school calling for Vauxhall players. Now, Vauxhall has players headed to Texas Tech and Kentucky this season.

"They explained it to me when they first started it, and I couldn't quite wrap my head around it. I thought, 'You're going to have these kids come hundreds or thousands of miles from home to go to high school and play baseball,' and I wondered if it would work," Walker said. "But they had a great plan, and they were able to schedule some college teams, legion teams, high-school teams and they really hit the road."

"They've got two of the biggest names in Canadian baseball working there, in Les McTavish and Jim Kotkas, so they can attract a lot of talented players from all around Canada on name recognition alone."

CSI has a variety of appeals for the Vauxhall players. One of those is keeping MLB prospects open — MLB drafts are eligible for the First-Year Player Draft in their final year of high school and each of their two seasons at a junior college, but if they go to a four-year school right away they cannot be drafted until the end of their junior season or until they turn 21, whichever comes first.

Morrill admitted that played a factor in his decision. For Bilodeau, like Morrill a draft prospect coming straight out of Vauxhall, it may and it may not.

"I try not to think about (maybe getting drafted), because if you do think about it then it's all you think about. Then, if it doesn't happen, you end up crushed," Bilodeau said. "I'm just happy to be coming here and working on getting better."

For most players who come to CSI, however, the draft isn't even a thought. Instead it all comes down to the right fit.

Kotkas speaks so highly of his time at CSI that many of his charges at Vauxhall can't help wanting to experience the feeling for themselves.

"If it weren't for Coach K, I wouldn't be here," Craswell said. "I know from talking to (Vavra) that he wanted to be here from minute one."

Said Kotkas: "The best two years of my life were in this community, and it hasn't changed. I grew up from a boy to a man here (in Twin Falls) ... when people leave this program they cry. It means that much."

Guerin's OT goal sends Pens to win over Flyers

PITTSBURGH — Bill Guerin scored his second goal of the game after Pittsburgh went on a rare two-man advantage in overtime, and the Penguins went up two games in their first-round playoff series against the Philadelphia Flyers on Friday night.

Guerin, at 38 the oldest player on a mostly young team, took Sergei Gonchar's pass from center point and skated toward the net from the low left circle, faked a pass and beat goalie Martin Biron on a shot that deflected off the left post and into the net 18:29 into overtime.

HURRICANES 2, DEVILS 1
NEWARK, N.J. — Defenseman Tim Gleason scored his first NHL playoff goal on a slap shot at 2:40 of overtime and the Carolina Hurricanes beat the New Jersey Devils 2-1 Friday night, tying their first round playoff series at a game apiece.

Eric Staal scored the other goal for the Hurricanes.

M-C schools hold book drive

Terry L. Garner, Carolee Moncur and Helen Almanza, representing the Mini-Cassia Reading Foundation, recently attended a Rupert Kiwanis luncheon to help launch the Kiwanis school-wide book drive.

Scott Rogers, Minidoka County School District superintendent, presented a plaque of appreciation to all Kiwanis members for their efforts in placing Kiwanis-sponsored clubs in all Minidoka County schools. Minidoka County School District 331 is the only district to have these Kiwanis sponsored clubs in every school, Rogers said. The clubs, which include Key Clubs, Builders Clubs and K-Kids Clubs are in all levels of schools in the district.

Garner, executive director of the reading foundation, said he has asked for the support of all county school administrators in this project. The book drive will run from Monday to May 2 in all schools, Garner said. He added that this is a two-county effort, with both Cassia and Minidoka schools participating.

"We are hoping that with this book drive we will be able to assure that we have enough books to continue to give a free book to every low-income child in Minidoka and Cassia County," said Almanza, assistant administrator for the foundation.

Anyone wanting to contribute to the book drive may drop off their books at the Mini-Cassia Reading Foundation headquarters at Heyburn Elementary School during school hours. "We really need books. We gave away 11,000 books last year," Almanza said.

Club meets, shares music

The Burley Music Club met March 16 at the United Methodist Church and was entertained with a program arranged by Jolene Hobson, for the Crusade For Strings day with mothers and daughters playing their violins.

Pilling grew up in Rupert and were very young when they first performed for the Music Club years ago. This time they performed with their daughters, Jordyn, Sidney, Cassidy and Madeline.

The next meeting of the Burley Music Club will be at 1:30 p.m.

Monday at the United Methodist Church, 450 E. 27th St., Burley. The program will include students from St. Nicholas School, under the direction of Linele Griffin. The meeting is open to the public. Prospective members and current members are urged to attend.

Eluding: felony or misdemeanor?

Q: What's the difference between felony eluding and misdemeanor eluding?

A: The difference is that one is a felony and the other is a misdemeanor. OK, now that you got up from rolling around the floor in pain, let's talk about the differences.

Felony eluding requires that the driver of the eluding vehicle create a danger to people or property of people either inside or outside his or her car. If damage is done to property or persons, or the vehicle travels in excess of 30 mph above the speed limit, it's a felony.

Other things — such as running stop signs and red lights, can come into play — as either would create danger to anyone legally entering the intersection at the time.

Misdemeanor eluding carries a penalty of up to one year of suspended driving privileges and possible local jail time, whereas felony eluding can land you in prison and get your driving privileges revoked for up to three years.

In all my years on the force, most pursuits have been for dumb reasons, such as someone trying to avoid a ticket or believing that he or she could simply outrun the police and get away. Truth is, unless your vehicle can travel faster than the speed of sound on the radio frequency that police use to share your license plate number and vehicle information, it's not worth risking your life or the life of someone else just because you don't want to get caught.

Police are trained in pursuit, and even if you do get away, that license plate will usually come back to bite you when you're placed under arrest later.

There's only one case that eluding ever worked out with no charges filed. When the driver was finally caught, he told the officer, "My wife ran off with a police officer and I thought maybe you were trying to return her."

That, unlike eluding, is a joke. Q: Why are some people headed to prison protected so closely and sometimes wearing bulletproof vests? Wouldn't it be cheaper to let somebody take them out than to jail them?

A: First off, I hope that's a question phrased in the form of a bad joke.

The cost wouldn't be cheaper because, by law, any person who causes harm to the convict would be punishable by the same laws as if they had harmed an innocent person. A convict still has some rights — protection while in custody is one. Any cost of incarcerating the inmate would be passed right along to the vigilante who would likely be incarcerated for life for the murder.

I think it's best to stay out of prison than to change places with any convict. After all, if prison was the vacation some of us think it is, everybody would be trying to break in — not out.

Declo grad Conditt receives fellowship

Shari Hills Conditt, daughter of Lynn DeLayne Pehrson and Edna Pehrson of Heyburn, has been selected to receive the James Madison Senior Fellowship.

The James Madison Senior Fellowship is awarded to fewer than 50 high school history teachers each year. It is designed to help offset the costs and encourage continued study of American history and the U.S. Constitution.

The fellowship pays all associated costs in seeking a master's degree in history, as well as providing for summer course work at Georgetown University in Washington D.C.

Conditt graduated from Declo High School in 1996 and attended both the University of Idaho and Illinois State University. She is a national board-certified teacher and is currently employed by Woodland High School in Woodland, Wash., teaching U.S. history and advanced placement U.S. history. She also works as a national board certification facilitator for Washington State University.

Fitness production held in Burley

The "LiVe — This is Your Life!" production will be presented to Burley Junior High School at 1:30 p.m. April 27.

The production, sponsored by Intermountain Healthcare, is a "research-proven, thought-provoking, rib-tickling funny theater show geared to helping kids in grades 6-9 take charge of growing up healthy and fit," according to organizers. It teaches some basic "8 to LiVe by" principles that can make a difference in the health of youths.

The program was created by Barbara Storper, executive director of FoodPlay Productions, an Emmy Award-winning organization which produces nationally touring theater shows.

The campaign's goal is to change attitudes of adolescents ages 11-15, by making it cool to be more active, watch less TV, shorten video game play and make healthier food choices.

Information about the program can be found at 222.intermountainlive.org.

Patient's blood work shows anemia was inconsequential

DEAR DR. GOTT: I am a 67-year-old female with metastasized breast cancer. In 1997, I was diagnosed with breast cancer, had a core needle biopsy, lumpectomy, radiation and chemotherapy for six months. I was then cancer-free for 10 years.

During most of those 10 years, I was a third-grade teacher. I followed a diet daily with my husband. I continue to speed walk.

Three years ago, my cancer returned. The first year was spent being misdiagnosed by my primary-care physician, who insisted I had bursitis. Then I developed digestive problems and went to a kinesthetic chiropractor, who suggested I become a vegetarian and give up taking acetaminophen and ibuprofen. After six months, I switched doctors.

This time, my new doctor listened to me and immediately sent me for an MRI, which showed that my cancer was back in most of my bones. Because my pain was localized to my hip, I had radiation for 15 days. The radiologist told me I would be wheelchair-bound in six months, but I am still walking and pain-free.

After that, I was given chemotherapy every 28 days, which kept my cancer tests in a normal range for two years. Now it is abnormal again, and a CT and PET scan both showed the cancer was spreading, but there is no organ involvement. I am back on chemotherapy every 28 days.

I also have white-coat hypertension because of the constant needle prodding during my doctor visits. (My veins are not good.) In office, my pressure is between 130/85 and 155/74. Outside the office, it is about 117/76. My doctor

I suggested putting a port in, but I am reluctant because I have watched three close cancer-survivor friends die from port complications.

I provided that history in the hopes it will help you answer my question. My oncologist has been telling me for months that I am anemic and it's getting worse. I started eating red meat, fish and turkey again and have gained some weight. Wanting to know more, I went online and looked up anemia and iron deficiency, but strangely, I don't seem to fit the profile for someone who is anemic. I am not fatigued or irritable, don't have a gray pallor, weakness, brittle or grooved nails, and I don't crave anything strange like clay. I feel fit and healthy and just accepted an eight-week long-term substitute position.

I have enclosed a copy of my lab results from August 2008 to January 2009. I don't know what is going on.

DEAR READER: You have a complex history, but I hope I can simplify at least one matter for you. According to your lab reports, you were indeed anemic during all of your blood work. However, that anemia was so slight that it was inconsequential. For example, your hospital uses normal lab values of 4.2 to 5.4. Five of your six results were about 3.9, and the sixth was 4.1. That shows improvement, not worsening. With your results so close to normal, I wouldn't worry, but I urge you to return to your oncologist and ask why he thinks your anemia is worsening.

The Modern Woodmen of America area Youth Service Club consists of youths ranging from 7-16 years of age.

Cheryl Noble is a volunteer for the group, which currently has five such youth clubs in the area. The clubs are encouraged to reach out and better their community through various service projects each year. Among the many activities the groups have participated in are assisting and honoring veterans, donating and planting three large trees at Burley High School, stained the fence at Storybook Park, held activities for children at the library and Hiland Estates, collected and donated food for the Burley Senior Center, donated funds for the Crop

Walk, and more.

This year's project will be part of a National service project known as Join Hands Day where youth service clubs and adult service clubs around the country join together on projects to help and improve their communities.

Five area youth clubs are planning on working with members of the Mini-Cassia Christmas Council to collect toys. The drive will be held from 10 a.m. to noon May 2, at Dworshak Elementary School in Burley.

Christmas Council members will work with the youth groups and the toys collected will be delivered to the council at the end of the drive.

Karrick Kelly, a junior from Buhl, participated with fellow University of Idaho Engineering students who designed a snowmobile with the best acceleration, fuel economy and value in the SAE International Clean Snowmobile Challenge, leading to a third-place finish.

The team receives sponsorship for the National Institute for Advanced Transportation Technology.

SAE International's Clean Snowmobile Challenge is an engineering design competition for college and university students that challenges them to reengineer an existing snowmobile to reduce emissions and noise. Their modified snowmobiles will compete in a variety of events including emissions, noise, fuel economy/endurance, acceleration, handling, static display, cold start and design.

The team also earned the Michigan Snowmobile Association Endurance Award and the NGK Spark Plugs Cold Start Award at the competition, as well as garnering the best subjective ride, second best oral presentation, second best design paper and lightest snowmobile honors.

Standing up for the environment

Sun Valley church plans free viewing of film 'Renewal'

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

An interfaith coalition is placing solar panels next to stained glass windows in New Jersey.

Another is helping raise and supply organic meat to Muslims in Chicago.

Buddhists in San Francisco are working to save trees by encouraging major magazine publishers to use recycled paper. Evangelical Christians in West Virginia are working to keep mining corporations from removing the tops of mountains to extract coal to feed U.S. power plants.

And urban Jewish children in Connecticut are learning to explore the woods, get a hands-on feel for where their food comes from and cut down on the amount of waste they generate — right alongside their Hebrew studies.

These are just some of the ways people of faith are standing up for the environment, according to the film "Renewal."

A free showing of the film will be held on Earth Sunday — April 26 — at St. Thomas Church, 201 Sun Valley Rd. in Sun Valley.

Coffee and refreshments will be provided at 11 a.m. The film will start at 11:15 a.m.

The showing, a joint venture between St. Thomas and Ketchum's Environmental Resource Center, had its genesis at the Sun Valley Spiritual Film Festival last fall.

The film attracted about a hundred viewers, many of whom expressed hope in a discussion afterwards that local faith communities could do more to interject themselves into the fight for the environment.

Father Ken Brannon, the rector at St. Thomas Episcopal Church, lamented that religious faiths had long given short shrift to God's creation, even taking the attitude that they must subjugate it in some circumstances.

"I don't feel I've gotten dirty environmentally," he said.

"Without knowing the creation, we cannot know the Creator," added Teresa Gregory, of Our Lady of the Snows Catholic Church in Sun Valley. "We have to care for that relationship so we can have access."

Jeanne Cassell, a member of St. Thomas Church, said that the church established a Green Team two months ago to help the church think green. The committee has already helped the church recognize its recycling efforts, said Judi Fuller. It also plans to integrate environmental tidbits into the Sunday School curriculum. And it has proposed planting some of the flower boxes around the church this summer with vegetables, rather than flowers.

Members have also been encouraged to wear green to church on Earth Sunday.

"I found the film most inspiring," Cassell said. "It showed how the spiritual roots of various faiths can lead us to work together to preserve the natural resources with which we've been blessed."

"As someone who grew up on a farm and who still to this day loves the earth as a gardener and a hiker, the film unites two things that are important to me. That is, working in an ecumenical matter — uniting faith traditions — to accomplish goals that serve the environment."

New Roman Catholic leader aims to renew church

By Rachel Zoll
Associated Press writer

NEW YORK — Archbishop Timothy Dolan was installed Wednesday as the leader of Roman Catholic New York, taking the most prominent American pulpit in the church during an elaborate ceremony that drew thousands of parishioners and civic leaders to St. Patrick's Cathedral.

Known for his wit and warmth, Dolan beamed as he walked down the aisle toward the altar, waving to the crowd, hugging well-wishers and stopping to shake hands in a front pew with Mayor Michael Bloomberg and Gov. David Paterson, among others who attended.

At a news conference hours earlier, Dolan said he would challenge efforts to legalize gay marriage in New York state. Paterson is expected Thursday to introduce such a bill; gays and lesbians can already marry across the border in Connecticut, Massachusetts and, later this year, Vermont.

In his sermon, Dolan lamented that the church was "ridiculed for her teaching on the sanctity of marriage." He said his goal was to revive observance in the church and protect human life, "from the tiny baby in the womb to the last moment of natural passing."

"The church is a loving mother who has a zest for life and serves life everywhere, but she can become a protective 'mama bear' when the life of her innocent, helpless cubs is threatened," he said, sparking a standing ovation. "Everyone in this mega-community is a somebody with an extraordinary destiny. Everybody is a somebody in whom God has invested infinite love."

Dolan, 59, the former Milwaukee archbishop, succeeded Cardinal Edward Egan, 77, who retired after nine years in the job. Dolan is expected to eventually be named a cardinal.

The Archdiocese of New York is the nation's second-largest diocese after Los Angeles, yet it is the most visible Catholic post in the country.

Among Dolan's predecessors was Cardinal Francis Spellman, who was so influential that his residence was dubbed "the powerhouse." Cardinal John O'Connor was the most forceful Catholic voice in the national debates of his era, especially on abortion. Dolan said in the news conference that his new job "does have an enhanced prominence that might take getting used to on my part."

Yet he appeared to revel in the spotlight of the two-day installation, which began with an evening prayer service in the cathedral Tuesday night. At Wednesday's Mass, about 150 bishops, archbishops and cardinals took part in the procession inside St. Patrick's, accompanied by hundreds of priests and other representatives of the archdiocese.

As Dolan awaited his entrance, he shook hands with police officers who were guarding the church and waved to the hundreds of onlookers kept behind barriers across the street.

Recent, upcoming LDS movies

The (Provo) Daily Herald

OREM, Utah — In January, the annual LDS Film Festival at the SCERA Center for the Arts in Orem, Utah, had the largest visitorship numbers in its nearly decade-long history, with almost 7,000 people stopping by. So while the genre of films targeted to members of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints may appear to be dwindling, there's still an audience out there.

You might say that the biggest "Mormon" movie of the last 12 months is "Twilight." The film version of LDS author's Stephenie Meyers' best-selling vampire novel rang up more than $190 million in ticket sales and the sequel is already being zoomed through production. OK, yeah, it probably doesn't count — at least not until the book where Edward takes the missionary discussions. (That one's coming up, right?)

What other LDS movies were out there? Only a few made it to theaters, but a handful of others popped out of the direct-to-DVD pipeline. Here's a select look at what's come through in the last year, as well as a list of five films to watch for:

Theatrical releases

- "Emma Smith: My Story" (Released on April 11, 2008; total domestic gross: $881,787). As promised in its title, the film presents the seldom-told story of the life of Emma Smith faithful spouse to LDS Church founder Joseph Smith. The actors who play Emma and Joseph are the same ones used in the LDS Church film "Joseph Smith: Prophet of the Restoration." Available on DVD: Yes.

- "The Errand of Angels" (Released on Aug. 22, 2008; total domestic gross: $195,184). Sisters are doing it for themselves — preaching the gospel, that is — in the first feature film about LDS proselytizing missionaries to focus on sister missionaries. Director Christian Vuissa shot the movie on location in his native Austria. Available on DVD: Yes.

- "Forever Strong" (Released on Sept. 19, 2008; total domestic gross: $719,556). Director Ryan Little ("Saints and Soldiers") spins one of those true-sports yarns about the amazing success

Vatican decries reaction to pope's condom remarks

By Nicole Winfield
Associated Press writer

VATICAN CITY — The Vatican on Friday denounced the criticisms of the pope's comments about condoms and AIDS during his trip to Africa, saying they marked an unprecedented attempt to intimidate him into silence.

Pope Benedict XVI said last month that condoms weren't the answer to Africa's AIDS epidemic and could make the problem worse.

France, Germany, the U.N. AIDS-fighting agency as well as the British medical journal The Lancet criticized the comments as irresponsible and dangerous. The Belgian parliament passed a resolution calling them "unacceptable" and demanding that the government officially protest.

Belgium's ambassador to the Holy See lodged the formal protest Wednesday prompting the strongly worded Vatican statement Friday.

Criticizing the Belgian vote, the Vatican said it deplored "the fact that a parliamentary assembly should have thought it appropriate to criticize the Holy Father on the basis of an isolated extract from an interview, separated from its context."

It said the remarks had been "used by some groups with a clear intent to intimidate, as if to dissuade the Pope from expressing himself on certain themes of obvious moral relevance and from teaching the Church's doctrine."

It wasn't immediately clear which groups the Vatican was referring to. The Belgian resolution, which passed April 2, said Benedict's comments ran against numerous international declarations and actions taken by the United Nations and others who have been fighting AIDS and other transmittable diseases such as malaria.

It said they were "unacceptable" and that the Belgian government didn't share them.

A similar resolution is under consideration by the Belgian Senate.

In its statement, the Vatican decried what it said was an "unprecedented media campaign" in Europe that was unleashed by the pope's remarks about condoms, while ignoring Benedict's fuller message about the need to care for those suffering from AIDS.

The Vatican said it was consoled that Africans and "the true friends of Africa" had praised and appreciated the pontiff's remarks.

The 82-year-old pope, who marks his fourth anniversary as pontiff on Sunday, has faced enormous criticism recently. In addition to the uproar over his condom comments, his decision to remove the excommunication of a bishop who denied the Holocaust sparked outcry, even within his own church.

charming eyewitness to the work both spiritual and bureaucratic that occupies Benedict's day.

"I can say he's a tireless worker, but also likeable and cordial," a longtime collaborator of the pope, Monsignor Damiano Marzotto, wrote in a prologue to the book.

The book was written by Jeanne Perego and illustrated by Donata Dal Molin Casagrande, who teamed up for "Joseph and Chico," which publisher Edizioni Messaggero Padova said has sold tens of thousands of books in 14 countries. An English edition is expected soon.

Most of the information about the pontiff's daily routine has been published in some form or another in the Italian media over the years.

The book was published as Benedict spent his 82nd birthday with his brother, Monsignor Georg Ratzinger, at the papal summer retreat in the hills south of Rome.

Monsignor Ratzinger, whom the pontiff has described as his trustworthy guide and companion, is a frequent visitor to Castel Gandolfo and last year was named an honorary citizen of the town.

Benedict is spending the week at the residence to relax after his busy Holy Week services. He is due back at the Vatican on Sunday.

hospital worker from the Bronx who joined the crowd outside. "I need to pray for him."

Archbishop Pietro Sambi, the Vatican ambassador to the U.S., read a letter from Pope Benedict XVI naming Dolan to the job. After the document was notarized, Dolan formally became New York's archbishop. When he was handed the golden crosier, or bishop's staff, a symbol of his office, he joked, "Do I keep this?"

The archdiocese covers a region with 2.5 million parishioners in nearly 400 churches and an annual budget estimated to be at least half a billion dollars.

Its vast Catholic service network includes 10 colleges and universities, hundreds of schools and aid agencies, and nine hospitals that treat about a million people annually.

Dolan faces challenges identical to those for bishops nationwide: strengthening the finances of Catholic schools and parishes as Catholics move from urban areas to the suburbs; boosting the low rate of Mass attendance and serving a growing number of Latinos and other immigrants.

DVD releases

- "The Adventures of Food Boy" — High School Musical supporting player Lucas Grabeel stars as a young lad who has the unlikely power of making food shoot out of his hands.

- "Mario's Conviction" — This documentary tells the story of Detroit mobster Mario Facione's unlikely (to say the least) conversion to Mormonism.

- "Whisper Island" — A lost Civil War treasure could save a family ranch that's days away from foreclosure — but only if plucky Sam Dalton can find it!

Upcoming theatrical release

- "Father in Israel" (Release date TBA; played at 2009 LDS Film Festival) A father of six becomes an LDS bishop on the same day that his daughter gets engaged and his employer orders him to cut dozens of jobs.

Christian Vuissa wrote and directed this "tribute to fatherhood."

Upcoming DVD releases

- "Once Upon a Summer" (DVD release on April 24; played at 2009 LDS Film Festival). Heather Beers ("Charly") stars in a story about childhood friends who are reunited after one of them becomes terminally ill.

- "One Man's Treasure" (DVD release on March 31; played at 2009 LDS Film Festival, with additional one-week run at two Utah theaters). LDS missionaries, four elders and two sisters, find something unexpected when they're assigned to relaunch the church's proselytizing effort in a Philadelphia suburb.

- "Scout Camp" (Release date TBA; played at 2009 LDS Film Festival). Filmed locally, this story of adventures in Scouting stars Kirby Heyborne and could get a brief theatrical release.

- "The Sinking of Santa Isabel" (DVD release on July 8; played at 2009 LDS Film Festival). At age 27, Webster reboots his disappointing life by vowing to live in a treehouse for an entire summer.

Dutch lawmakers to invite Dalai Lama to parliament

By Mike Corder
Associated Press writer

THE HAGUE, Netherlands — Dutch lawmakers said Thursday they will invite the Dalai Lama to parliament despite a warning from China that the visit would harm relations between the two nations.

A lawmaker for the ruling Christian Democrats also sharply criticized China's ambassador for attempting to interfere with Dutch politics.

The ambassador sent a letter to the chairman of Parliament's foreign affairs committee urging lawmakers not to invite the exiled Tibetan spiritual leader.

The Dutch don't interfere with Chinese political meetings "and we expect the same respect from the Chinese ambassador," legislator Maarten Haverkamp said.

The Dalai Lama is expected to visit in June.

The Chinese ambassador, Zhang Jun, could not be reached for comment and the parliament refused to release his letter.

However, national broadcaster NOS obtained a copy and posted it on its Web site.

In it, Zhang says he does not want to see "the momentum of our bilateral relations in this challenging time of global economic crisis be severely weakened by this issue."

China's growing economic might has emboldened it to increasingly push to isolate the Dalai Lama, who won the Nobel Peace Prize in 1989.

Beijing froze high-level contacts with France after President Nicolas Sarkozy met the Dalai Lama in Poland in December. Relations were restored under a deal in which France pledged to reject Tibetan independence in any form.

Also, South Africa drew criticism last month when it barred the Dalai Lama from attending a peace conference, a move widely seen as bowing to pressure from Beijing.

Last month marked the first anniversary of anti-government riots in Lhasa, Tibet's regional capital, and 50 years since the Dalai Lama escaped into exile in India after Chinese troops crushed a Tibetan uprising.

Psychiatrist teaches 'mindfulness' to smokers, uses Buddhist practices

By Ed Stannard
New Haven Register

WEST HAVEN, Conn. — A Yale psychiatrist is bringing together neuroscience and Buddhist practices to help people overcome their addictions.

Dr. Judson A. Brewer has conducted studies with alcoholics and cocaine addicts and now is beginning research to help people quit smoking.

Brewer is medical director of the Yale Therapeutic Neuroscience Clinic, based at the Veterans Affairs medical center. What he teaches is mindfulness, a concept rooted in Buddhism.

"Mindfulness has a two-component definition for the scientific community," Brewer said. "First, it's maintaining your attention on the present moment, and the second is you're bringing to that a nonjudgmental attitude of acceptance and curiosity."

Addicts use their drug or substance of choice to relieve stress and tension, Brewer said, and that behavior becomes habitual.

"Everybody forms habits based on their prior experiences," Brewer said. "Those habits inform how we approach each new situation."

What the clinic's training does is help the addict break the cycle of turning to a drug to relieve the seemingly unbearable feelings created by stresses such as loneliness or anger. Brewer compares it to surfing; the wave represents a feeling like anger; we wipe out to get rid of the feeling.

"The secret is, your anger's going to go away anyway, if you can just ride that wave," even though you fear that you're going to wipe out in the surf, Brewer said.

"You get crushed by these waves. Every time you react to them you get crushed by them. Every time they ride that wave, they get better at riding it."

The knowledge that the addict is not a slave to the drug enables him or her to resist the urge more easily each time. "That adds this huge element of openness when you know how something works there's much more freedom to not react to it."

The experienced Buddhist knows that anger and other stresses will go away. "Where Buddhism comes in, it says everything is impermanent," that life is change, Brewer said. That includes suffering.

Buddhism is based on the Four Noble Truths. The first is that life is suffering, and the second is that we cause our own suffering through our ignorance and attachments to our desires. The third truth is that we can overcome those desires and the fourth is to follow the Buddhist path to enlightenment.

Mindfulness training is the clinic's version of that path, in which people are given exercises which Brewer summed up by the acronym SOBER: Stop; Observe the body, emotions and thoughts; Breathe and notice your breath; Expand your awareness to other phenomena; and Respond in a healthy way.

Natural and organic 100 percent wholesome hugging

According my friend Andrew, there are six basic essentials of life: air, water, food, clothing, shelter and hugging.

Yes, that's right. Hugging. This isn't just Andrew's opinion. He says he has scientific evidence indicating that every human being needs four hugs per day to survive, eight hugs per day to maintain life at a strong emotional level and 12 hugs per day in order to flourish and grow.

I'm not sure which scientists made this discovery or how they conducted their research. I don't know if one standard-length hug can be replaced by two quick squeezes, or if one mondo-super-supreme hug can fulfill your minimum daily hug requirements. I offer this information simply because — well, they just might be right, and I wouldn't want you to miss out on one of life's most pleasant essentials.

As a hugger or huggie. Frankly, I'm glad to see that hugging is finally getting its due. I come from a long line of huggers. Mom used to hug away our fears. Dad used to hug away our hurts. My oldest sister Jean used to hug me when it was Mom and Dad who I was afraid wanted to hurt me.

When we were really, really angry with each other, my sister Kathy and I used to hug each other until we couldn't breathe. That's because we knew we'd get in trouble for hitting, but we never got in trouble for hugging. We told Mom we only did it because we loved each other so much, but the truth is, we liked to see who could be the first to make the other's face turn blue.

VALUE SPEAK

For most people, however, hugging is less combative. In fact, Andrew's scientists — whoever they may be — insist that hugging is downright healthy. This is probably because, as Andrew says, "hugging is natural, organic, sweet, free of pesticides and preservatives. Hugging contains no artificial ingredients. It's 100 percent wholesome. No calories, no nicotine."

I don't know about that, but I do know that hugging helps. In fact, sometimes it's the only thing that will help.

A few years ago I was a lay minister in my church, and I spent a lot of time with a troubled young man in the congregation. He was a good kid with great potential, but he kept using that potential in negative ways. He usually started out with good intentions, then he would make a bad choice or a dumb move, and before you knew it, he was hip deep in difficulty.

One night I visited him in jail, and he looked helpless and frightened. His parents were weary of his escapades and were unwilling to bail him out. His friends had turned against him, and his girlfriend wouldn't talk to him. He was embarrassed, frustrated and completely alone. I wanted to say something to help him feel better, but I couldn't find the words. Silence hung between us like a rain-soaked hammock. And so I did the only thing I could think of to do: I hugged him. At first he just stood there awkwardly and let me hug him. After a few seconds he tried to pull away, but I wouldn't let go. The longer we stood there hugging, the more he relaxed. Then I heard him sniffing. Then his shoulders were shaking. And then he was sobbing uncontrollably in my arms.

I wish I could tell you that this moment changed his life. The fact is, he continued making questionable choices. But it clearly was a turning point in my relationship with him, and in my ability to have influence.

I'm not saying that hugging is a panacea for the world's problems. It won't create peace in the Middle East. It won't put nourishing food in the mouths of starving children. It won't offer protection from a hurricane, a tornado, cancer or the wrath of Simon Cowell. But it won't hurt, either. And it just might give you the courage you need to cope with that other stuff.

Whether you're the hugger or the huggie.

RELIGION LETTER

There is no controversy

Your featured article, "Christian Controversy," contained the theme of Mormons not being considered Christians by Christian religions. Does this truly matter to the Mormon whose founding principles are based on the Christian religions of this world being described as "all wrong, all their creeds were an abomination in his (God's) sight, those professors were all corrupt, they draw near to me (God) with their lips, but their hearts are far from me (God); they teach for doctrines the commandments of men, having a form of godliness, but they deny the power thereof" (Articles of Faith, 12th edition, page 11, paragraph 3).

With this description of Christianity in their writings, why would any respectable Mormon entertain such a ludicrous notion as wanting to be part of such an "abomination?" You don't find Christians complaining that The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints will not recognize them as Mormons.

The truth of the matter is: Mormons and Christians do not share the same doctrinal beliefs. There is no controversy. It is just a fact of life. To say that only a specific religion of this faith or that will be admitted to heaven is where many have failed to understand. It was correctly stated in the article that people of all religions will be left out of heaven simply because they never accepted God's free gift of salvation. The only ones truly qualified to decide if one is going to heaven or not is the individual that has either chosen to accept or deny God's gift of salvation through Jesus Christ and the almighty God himself.

Let me leave you with this question: If I accept Mormons as Christian, will they accept me as Mormon?

Patricia A. (Sullivan) Gaskin

Patricia A. (Sullivan) Gaskin, Pat, Patti, Sully, passed away Wednesday, April 15, 2009, at the age of 54 after a long battle with cancer in Twin Falls.

Loving wife of Jim, beloved mother of Colleen (Steve) Nowak and Sean (Jenn) Gaskin. Supported by her loving family, she now joins her late father, Jim Sullivan, and she will be dearly missed by her mother, Lynn (Stipp) Sullivan; sisters, Linda (Larry) Murphy and Katie (Mike) Miley; brothers, Barry (Alison) Sullivan, Brian (Denise) Sullivan and Joe (Becky Sisco) Sullivan. Many nieces and nephews share their love and support as well. Offering additional love and support through Jim's family are his mother, Marge (the late Jim) Gaskin, Pat (Lyle) Dalen, Leslie (Rick) Perry, Jerry (Kelly) Gaskin, Mary (Trevor) Nichols and Terry (Julie) Gaskin, along with several nieces and nephews. Many have preceded Patti on her journey and, hopefully, she's already had a chance to say hello to Kate as well as others. Originally from the Chicago area, Pat moved with her husband to Twin Falls in September 2000. She was a psychiatric nurse manager for many years with her most recent and most fulfilling being at St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center at Canyon View. She was active at St. Edward's Catholic Church and sang in the choir for several years. She was also very active in her Mary Kay business. Pat loved traveling, especially to Hawaii, and loved spending time with her family. She was also very active with many local and regional mental health networks and support groups.

Visitation will be from 3 to 7 p.m. Sunday, April 19, at White Mortuary in Twin Falls, and a rosary will be conducted at 7 p.m. The funeral Mass will be said at 10 a.m. Monday, April 20, at St Edward's Catholic Church in Twin Falls. In lieu of flowers, the family respectfully requests donations to the Lance Armstrong Foundation/LiveStrong, National Mail Processing Center, P.O. Box 6003, Albert Lea, MN 56007-6603, www.live-strong.com.

Ross Matthew Pennington

Ross Matthew Pennington was born May 23, 1918, to Stella and Matt Pennington in Twin Falls. He grew up in this area, the eighth child in a family of 10. Ross met Janet McMaster in school at Hansen, where Ross was an athletic football player, cheerleader and Janet a horse-riding, strong-willed lady. The two graduated together and married Nov. 30, 1939. The family purchased their Jerome farm, the old headquarters for the Newman Sheep Ranch in 1941. Ross and Janet raised their four children Larry, Nancy and "the boys," Dean and Wayne, on the farm.

Ross and Janet both worked hard on the farm but enjoyed square dancing as a couple. They both enjoyed hunting, fishing and camping and made certain their children went with them. The family always did these things together. Winter brought evenings of popcorn and pinocle. All of the children worked on the farm growing up. Larry and Nancy, the first two children, have always said that Dean and Wayne had an easy life because by the time they came along there was indoor plumbing and electricity! They also had a television, only one station, but what a wonder.

Every year, Ross worked up a large vegetable garden for Janet to plant and tend. Raspberries, cabbages, green beans and wondrous gladiolas were picked, canned, made into jelly or sauerkraut or just enjoyed. It was necessary but also a work of family love.

Happily, Larry and Sue returned to Jerome to their own farm and their two children, Matt and Angelique, were close by to enjoy. Dean's first child, Amanda, was also raised in this area and they showered her with love. Ross and Janet also loved to travel to visit their grown children, Nancy and Wayne, in the Seattle, Wash., area, and Dean and Karrie and their children, Autumn and Nathan, in Tucson, Ariz., and Leland, Miss. Their travels were always adventures. They often took their pickup camper and stopped along the way to enjoy the country. They visited friends and family from Idaho to Georgia to California. Ross lost his beloved Janet to breast cancer in 1986. The loss made a terrible hole in Ross's life.

Ross found joy in his remaining years with Donna Mason, a loving companion. They also traveled. They went abroad to England, Scotland and Ireland. They took the Canadian railway across our northern neighbor, and all visited all over the United States. Ross was always a farmer even after he retired. He loved fried Mississippi catfish and could eat an amazing amount. He enjoyed seeing not just catfish farming but farming practices everywhere he went. He could spend hours going from farm to farm talking to local farmers and looking at their land. Ross could always talk about farming.

Ross was the last surviving sibling, ending his generation. This was a generation used to hard work and often amazed by the luxuries of their latter lives.

Ross's death will be felt by his surviving loved ones, Donna Mason of Twin Falls. His oldest son, Larry and his wife, Sue, live in Jerome; their children, Ross's grandson, Matthew Ross, lives in Rigby, and Ross's granddaughter, Angelique Joanna Carpenter, lives with her husband, Doug and their six children, Megan, Jared, Nicole, Benjamin, Joanna and Ariel in North Carolina. His daughter, Nancy, lives in Twin Falls. His son Dean and his wife Karrie live in Mississippi; their children, Ross's grandchildren, Amanda, who lives in Denver and Autumn and Nathan who live in Mississippi. Their youngest son, Wayne and Marilyn Morrison, live in Kirkland, Wash.

The family requests that, in lieu of flowers, donations be made to Hospice Visions, the Idaho Water Education Foundation, or charity of your choice.

Ralph Benjamin (Bill) Bailey

Ralph Benjamin (Bill) Bailey, of Twin Falls, passed away Wednesday, April 15, 2009, of congestive heart failure.

He was born Aug. 17, 1923, in Twin Falls, to Ben and Katie Bailey. Bill proudly served in the U.S. Navy during World War II. On July 3, 1943, he married Peggy Sorensen. Bill was a lifelong truck driver (proud of all the miles). He finished his career driving for Olmstead Cattle Company.

He is survived by his daughters, Benita Lynne (Dan) Baeskens of Salt Lake City, Utah, Brenda Loraine

Bailey (Mark Crawford) of St. George, Utah and West Yellowstone, Mont.; one grandson, William Bradley (Lisa) Baeskens; two great-grandchildren, Landon and Avriel; and his beloved pets Zena and Stinky. He was preceded in death by his parents; his wife, Peggy; and his eldest daughter, Peggy Lee.

Our very special thank you to Doug Albright and family and also all of his neighbors and friends in Twin Falls.

At Bill's request, no service is planned. Cremation was under the direction of White Mortuary, "Chapel by the Park."

Salmonella killing birds in Sun Valley

KETCHUM (AP) — A small outbreak of salmonella is killing birds in the Sun Valley area, Idaho Fish and Game wildlife veterinarian Mark Drew said.

Hailey resident Jeramie Dreyfuss found about 30 dead birds in her back yard and sent them to Drew to be examined. Drew said he found traces of the bacteria salmonella in the birds. He said it's likely they got it from dirty bird feeders and tainted seed, the Idaho Mountain Express reported.

"We don't know the source," he said. "But my thoughts right now are that it's a feeder hygiene situation where there are a lot of feeders out and a lot of contaminated seed that's old and wet."

The affected birds are pine siskins, small creatures that are considered susceptible to salmonella. Drew did not immediately know what strain of salmonella killed the birds or what caused the outbreak.

Drew recommended that people clean their bird feeders and consider not feeding the birds for the next week or so.

Similar cases have been reported nationwide, said Krysten Schuler, a wildlife disease specialist for the U.S. Geological Survey National Wildlife Health Center.

"We are having national reports of salmonellosis that is specific to birds," Schuler said. "The message to get out about this disease is that it is common to backyard birdfeeders, as they can easily become contaminated. So it's important for people to clean their feeders using a 10 percent bleach solution, and while outbreaks are going on like this, it is better to take down their feeders for about two weeks so the birds don't congregate."

Despite the die-off in Hailey, Schuler and Drew are not particularly concerned.

"This is not a problem that is unanticipated," Drew said. "We've seen the problem before, and it is happening in other places in the country."

The deaths appear to be fairly localized, Drew said.

"Thirty birds out of a said population of 3,000 is very small, even if there may well be other incidents of death," he said.

Drew said people should pay attention to hygiene habits in their homes, especially for dogs, cats and young children, who can pick up contaminated seeds or bird feces.

Salmonella is also suspected in the recent deaths of songbirds in Wisconsin, Virginia and Maine.

Ore. ranchers cry for wolf hearings

BAKER CITY, Ore. (AP) — Ranchers are pressing the Oregon Legislature for legislation to let them track and kill wolves that attack livestock.

The Baker City Herald said that earlier this week, the Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife confirmed that wolves had killed sheep at a Baker County ranch in two attacks, the first such since wolves began re-entering the state from Idaho.

Rancher Curt Jacobs says the death toll is now 24.

Endangered species laws forbid ranchers to kill wolves caught in the act of attacking livestock — leaving that to wildlife agents.

Ranchers and others at a meeting Thursday in Baker City made plans to lobby the Legislature to hold hearings on a bill that would expand ranchers' options in wolf control and amend it to spell out their right to track and kill the predators.

During the packed meeting of the Baker County Livestock Association, Jacobs narrated a video showing the bodies of dead lambs, with close-up footage of bite wounds.

Before a motion-sensing camera caught the wolves in the act, Jacobs said the ODFW investigation appeared to be focused on pinning the blame on his dogs, a neighbor's dogs or coyotes.

Texas company: We want nation's radioactive waste

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A company is signaling its intent to turn a rural Texas county near the New Mexico state line into the home of the only dump in the United States capable of disposing of all classes of low-level radioactive waste from around the country.

South Carolina shut its doors to nearly all of the nation's low-level radioactive waste in July, leaving 36 states with no place to dispose of certain waste from nuclear power plants, hospitals, universities and research labs.

Dallas-based Waste Control Specialists LLC received a license from state regulators earlier this year to begin accepting U.S. Department of Energy waste from around the country and commercial waste from Texas and Vermont at its Andrews County facility in west Texas.

But the company wrote in an April 6 letter to the Nuclear Regulatory Commission that it wants to dispose of commercial waste from other states too. The letter was sent in advance of an NRC public hearing on low-level radioactive waste being held Friday.

"We believe flexible import provisions would go very far toward resolving the nation's challenges ... now that the Barnwell (S.C.) facility no longer allows nationwide access for disposal of these wastes," William Dornsife, the company's executive vice president for licensing and regulatory affairs wrote.

Prudential Idaho Homes & Properties held a 9 week Open House Blitz featuring 9 homes for 9 weeks for 2009. It was a successful event with a brightly colored ad in each Saturday's Times News along with balloons tied to the many signs leading to our properties. People attending the open houses could sign up at each home to win a flat screen TV.

Claire was very excited when she received the call after her name was drawn as the winner! Prudential agent RoseAnn Eckrote of the Eckrote Team has been working with Claire Wilkes guiding her through the real estate process.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: The way my mother dresses has me so embarrassed I don't want to be seen in public with her. Her hair looks as if she's stuck her finger in a light socket, her clothes are three sizes too big, she wears no makeup. It looks as if she just rolled out of bed, no matter where she is going.

Mom held a dinner party for my birthday, and even my boyfriend did a double take when he walked in and saw her wearing a giant T-shirt that came to her mid-thigh. Abby, she wasn't even wearing a bra! When I mentioned it to her the next day, she just laughed it off.

I take pride in my appearance. I realize that not everyone is as concerned as I am about their appearance. But shouldn't she respect others enough to at least look decent? Am I being conceited, or should she be given a makeover?

—MORTIFIED IN EUGENE

DEAR MORTIFIED: Has your mother always been unkempt and careless about her appearance, or is this something new? If it's something new, then she does not need a makeover; she needs a checkup from her doctor. If she has always presented herself this way, then I doubt she is open to change. Makeovers can work wonders, but they are successful only if the person is willing to admit that one is needed.

DEAR ABBY: My grandmother died while I was out of the country on a two-week vacation. My dad left when I was in second grade, and she raised me along with my mother. We were very close. I always took care of her and made time to spend with her.

Although she had been in poor health for two years, Grandma was not in critical condition when I left. She passed away three days before I was to return, and my family held her funeral the day before I arrived.

I had expressed my wishes that they wait if at all possible. They did not, and I feel betrayed. We have always been close, and now I am so hurt and angry that I don't even want to see them. Can you offer any advice?

—CRUSHED IN NEW HAMPSHIRE

DEAR CRUSHED: Please accept my sympathy for your loss. It is regrettable that the funeral could not be postponed, but there may have been extenuating circumstances.

Your feelings of anger are a part of your grieving process, and it is important that you work them through. It would be helpful for you to discuss this with your clergyman so he or she can guide you to a grief support group. Please don't wait. The sooner you resolve this, the better it will be for you and your family, who I am sure are also grieving.

DEAR ABBY: When dining out and someone asks for the salt (or any other item at the table) should you (a) use it first and then pass it, or (b) pass it first and then ask for it back?

—BETH IN WOODSTOCK, ILL.

DEAR BETH: When someone asks you to pass the salt, you should hand both the salt and pepper shakers at the same time, without helping yourself first. The same goes for any other item.

IF APRIL 18 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY:

Your love of fun and adventure makes you a popular figure who appeals to a wide range of people this spring. This summer you may go to great lengths to indulge in all the good things in life that appeal to your sense of fun. Don't forget that you may need to pay the piper in October and settle the obligations you have accumulated. If you have been attentive to your commitments, you may be granted a special favor or opportunity this fall. If you follow through on wise counsel, your life can become more fulfilling and prosper on both the material and spiritual planes.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You sing a duet with your inner self. You are in complete harmony, knowing exactly what you want. You might realize that others are insincere or indirect about discussing their wants and needs.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): The object of your affection may tug at your heartstrings and twist them around a little finger. Remember the reasons this person captured your heart in the first place. Show your appreciation in little ways.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): The calculator wins. You are so mentally precise that you might be able to calculate exactly how many jellybeans are in the jar. Social activities could lead to an important new friendship.

HOROSCOPE
Jeraldine Saunders

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Pay attention to those in the know. Use their wisdom or advice to your advantage. Listen carefully, as there is much to be learned. Know when to speak and when to keep your thoughts to yourself.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Work could take a back seat to personal enjoyment. A romantic interlude could highlight the day, whether with a current love interest or perhaps somebody new. Be alert and look for the green lights.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You can't have your cake and eat it, too. Take things one step at a time, rather than going for everything at once. It may seem more attractive to have it all, but greater rewards can be obtained with patience.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Eat humble pie. You might feel like the star of the show, but you will find greater success by being a team player. Acting like a prima donna could bring undue criticism, so keep your feet on the ground.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Unexpected complications may sidetrack your social life. Any temporary unpleasantness will pass quickly. Reckless investments or changes could cause more problems than they are worth.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Too much of a good thing could have consequences. You may feel the need to indulge in competitions, but moderation is the key. A certain someone will understand if you make an apology.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Might is not always right. You are determined to succeed and may step on a few toes to get your way. You would do well to heed the words of others. Reliable advice will lead you in the right direction.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You only live once. Make the best of whatever you already have rather than lamenting over what you don't, and can't, have. Hook up with groups of people that share your interests, joys, and desires.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Change is not always good. You may discover something new and have an urge to break away from the crowd. Changing partners or breaking off with a loved one could become a drawback in the long run.

TEN YEARS AGO:

NATO launched its most active day of airstrikes in its assault on Yugoslavia, pummeling refineries, bridges and dozens of other targets in the 25th straight day of attacks. Wayne Gretzky played his last National Hockey League game as his New York Rangers lost to Pittsburgh 2-1 in overtime at Madison Square Garden.

Five years ago: Spanish Prime Minister Jose Luis Rodriguez Zapatero ordered a withdrawal of Spanish troops from Iraq, fulfilling a campaign pledge and trying to calm his uneasy nation after bombings that killed 191 people in Madrid.

One year ago: Addressing the United Nations, Pope Benedict XVI said international cooperation needed to solve urgent problems was "in crisis" because decisions rested in the hands of a few powerful nations. Alaska Gov. Sarah Palin gave birth to her fifth child, a son named Trig.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Saturday, April 18, the 108th day of 2009. There are 257 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On April 18, 1906, a devastating earthquake struck San Francisco, followed by raging fires; estimates of the final death toll range between 3,000 and 6,000.

On this date:
 In 1775, Paul Revere began his famous ride from Charlestown to Lexington, Mass., warning American colonists that the British were coming.

In 1907, San Francisco's Fairmont Hotel opened, a year to the day after the earthquake.

In 1934, 75 years ago, the first laundromat (called a "washateria") opened, in Fort Worth, Texas.

war correspondent Ernie Pyle, 44, was killed by Japanese gunfire on the Pacific island of Ie Shima, off Okinawa.

In 1946, the League of Nations went out of business.

In 1949, the Republic of Ireland was proclaimed.

In 1978, the Senate approved the Panama Canal Treaty, providing for the complete turnover of control of the waterway to Panama on the last day of 1999.

In 1980, the independent nation of Zimbabwe, formerly Zimbabwe Rhodesia, came into being.

In 1983, 63 people, including 17 Americans, were killed at the U.S. Embassy in Beirut, Lebanon, by a suicide bomber.

LEGAL NOTICE
 PUBLIC COMMENTS SOUGHT ON LOW-INCOME WEATHERIZATION ASSISTANCE PROGRAM

The State of Idaho will accept public comment on its American Recovery and Reinvestment Act funding plan for the U.S. Department of Energy's Low-Income Weatherization Assistance Program. The ARRA State Plan is available for review at Community Action Partnership Association of Idaho, located at 5400 W. Franklin Rd., Suite G in Boise, Idaho. A public hearing on the plan will be held from 9:00-12:00 pm on Wednesday April 22, 2009 in Boise at El Ada Community Action Partnership, 2250 Vista, Boise, Idaho.
 The Weatherization Assistance Program assists low-income families through the installation of weatherization measures in their homes. The measures include insulation, air sealing, and heating systems improvements that enhance the energy efficiency of the homes. Program services help eligible families reduce their heating costs, promoting the health and safety of the family and conserving energy resources.
 Summary of changes to the 2009 State Plan:

- Increase in the average allowable weatherization expenditure per unit as directed by DOE
- Development of Ramp Up plan to increase weatherization production statewide
- Development of standardized processes for program delivery and training
- Utilization of ARRA funds over a two year period

Public comments for written testimony on the State Plan will be accepted from April 12, 2009-April 22, 2009. Send or deliver comments to:

 ON APPLICATION FOR CONDITIONAL USE PERMIT
 #2009-09-CU

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that a hearing will be held on Thursday, the 21st day of May, 2009, at 3 o'clock PM, Burley City Hall, Council Chambers, 1401 Overland Ave, Burley, Idaho before the Cassia County Planning & Zoning Commission on the application of Hepworth Family Landholdings LLC, 696 S 800 W, Burley, ID 83318 and AT&T/Edge Wireless c/o Evelyn Grime, PLACE! Inc, 1611 Warren St Boise, ID 83706 regarding an Application for Conditional Use Permit, which application was received by the County on the 8th day of December, 2008, for the purpose of Monopole for Wireless/Cellular Service.
 The property is located on lands at approximately 12475 S 400 W, Cassia County, Idaho, more particularly described as follows: Part of the North 1/2 of Section 27, T.12, R.22 E.B.M., Cassia County, Idaho.
 Such lands are located within the AG zone. Pursuant to the Cassia County Zoning Ordinance a Conditional Use Permit is required for development in said zone.
 The applicant will appear at this hearing to provide to the Cassia County Planning & Zoning Commission all the information required for issuance of a conditional use permit for the proposed use under the Cassia County Zoning Ordinance, before such permit can be issued.
 A copy of the Application for Conditional Use Permit, including relevant maps and drawings, and information concerning the hearing process is available for review by the public at the office of the Zoning Administrator, Room #4 in the basement of the Cassia County Courthouse, 1459 Overland Ave., Burley, Idaho, prior to the hearing.
 All other interested persons are invited to attend the hearing on the question of issuance of the requested conditional use permit. Such other interested persons are advised that in order to participate in the hearing, the following regulations apply:

A. Written Statements of Support Or Objections: All persons to whom notice is mailed shall be advised in that notice that they and others who can establish that their substantial rights would be affected by the approval or denial of the permit may file written objections or supporting statements with the planning and zoning commission secretary no later than ten (10) days prior to the hearing setting forth in that writing that person's support or objection to the issuance of the new conditional use permit.
 1. Written objections shall set forth each requirement of law (local, state or federal) which the objecting party believes the conditional use permit would violate.
 2. Written statements shall also set forth either that the party making the statement owns property within one (1) mile of the external boundaries of the conditional use permit site described in the application and/or otherwise setting forth the substantial rights that would be affected by the approval or denial of the permit.
 3. Additional, any party desiring to file any document(s) exceeding one (1) one-sided, 8 1/2"x11" sized page, shall file such document (s) at least ten (10) days prior to the hearing, with the planning and zoning commission secretary. The planning and zoning commission reserves the right to reject any proffered documentation that violates the intent of this regulation.

B. Providing Testimony at the Public Hearing: Any person who files a statement in support or objection to the issuance of a new conditional use permit shall indicate in such statement whether or not such person desires to testify at the hearing.
 1. Prior to the hearing the planning and zoning commission shall determine which of those persons who desire to testify will be permitted to testify at the hearing.
 2. All statements of support or objections shall be made a part of the record at the hearing, but no person except the applicant shall be permitted to testify at the hearing unless they have previously filed a written statement of support for or objection to the issuance of the permit.
 DATED this 13th day of April, 2009.

SALES

www.elkodaily.com

Advertising Sales Director

The Elko Daily Free Press is seeking a focused, creative Advertising Sales Director with an affinity for numbers and a passion for investing in account executives that employ a relentless curiosity in discovering and meeting real customer needs. Ad Director candidates should have a track record of successful sales supervisory experience in a fast-paced business.

We need someone who will spend a significant portion of each week outside the office, calling on both current customers and non-advertisers with our account executives. The Advertising Sales Director will work to systematically increase the number of active advertisers in the Elko Daily Free Press and the frequency with which they advertise with us.

If you prefer to invest your time coaching account executives in the regular practice of "needs-analysis" rather than in the creation of short-term, product-focused revenue "fixes", we want to talk to you.

The Advertising Sales Director will oversee seven retail/classified account executives, as well as several graphic artists and an experienced support staff. They will be a vital contributor to creating the online future of the newspaper and will be a collegial member of the management team charged with setting the course for future success.

The Elko Daily Free Press provides a meaningful work environment for our employees, rewards innovation and risk-taking, and offers opportunities for career development. In addition to the Elko Daily Free Press, the Advertising Sales Director will oversee sales into The Finder, Northern Nevada Real Estate, Mining Quarterly, a variety of other niche publications and our online newspaper www.elkodaily.com.

Elko is a vibrant northern Nevada gold-mining town located along Interstate 80, with an established gaming/hospitality industry, a strong community college and a thriving retail and manufacturing base. Elko has over 300 days of sunshine annually and is in close proximity to unlimited four-season recreational opportunities.

The Advertising Sales Director position offers a competitive salary, excellent benefits package, and career progression possibilities within Lee Enterprises. If interested in this excellent opportunity, please apply online at <http://www.elkodaily.com/workhere/>

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Conceptis Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday

THE ACES ON BRIDGE

Bobby Wolff

"What is called a sincere work is one that is endowed with enough strength to give reality to an illusion."

— Max Jacob

"Play the card you are known to hold" is the theme of today's deal, which comes from "Deceptive Play," by David Bird and Tim Bourke.

In three no-trump, South captures West's heart queen with the king and leads a low club to the 10, which holds, East following with the five. From West's perspective, what is the club position? There is no way that a sane South would be finessing the 10 on the first round if he had the king. Therefore a low doubleton is South's likely holding. This means that East began life with club K-5 and has done extremely well to hold up the king. (Remember: your partner is allowed to play well, on occasion.)

Now declarer returns to the spade ace in hand and leads another club. If West follows with the eight, having contributed the two on the first round, South will be justifiably suspicious. As declarer cannot cope with West holding K-J-8-2 of clubs, and the jack would already have appeared had West's initial holding been club K-J-2, declarer's best chance to play the suit without loss may be to rise with the ace, dropping East's king — much to East's displeasure.

West is obliged to contribute the jack on the second round of clubs — the card he is inferentially known to hold — to foster the illusion that his initial club holding was K-J-2. It is then extremely unlikely that South would rise with dummy's ace.

ANSWER: You appear not to have a great heart fit since partner did not raise the suit. Presumably, your partner's hand is minimum and balanced. While hearts could still be right, it's better to bid one no-trump now. Partner can still bid on if appropriate, but, in practice, you may find your soft honors stand up better at no-trump than in a suit contract.
