Twin Falls County, St. Luke's announce clinic agreement

Details withheld until the final draft is complete By Nate Poppino Times-News writer

Twin Falls County and St. Center have reached a tentative agreement to resolve the hospital should contribute to renovate a downtown Twin Falls clinic.

Both groups announced the agreement in a short press release mid-day Thursday, noting that the agreement is subject to finalization of terms. Representatives spent Wednesday in a closed-door mediation session, the third 2006 agreement that sold such session since December.

Idaho State University silences 4 languages

POCATELLO (AP) Students will not be able to take Chinese, Russian, Latin or Arabic courses at Idaho State University next year, the chairman of the language department says.

Four of the nine languages offered at the state university in eastern Idaho are being cut in the fall because of faculty cuts and low student enrollment, said department Chairman Jim Fogelquist.

"With some of the languages that are difficult, the demand tends to be low," Fogelquist told the Idaho State Journal. "Languages like Chinese and Arabic are more easily sustained in larger urban areas."

The department will lay off the professor who taught Chinese this year. Professors who taught Russian and Latin are retiring at the end of the school year and their positions will be left empty.

The Arabic instructor will go back to teaching just chemistry on the Pocatello campus.

The university will still offer majors and minors in German and French, Spanish, along with a minor in Japanese. The Shoshoni language courses are offered in conjunction with the anthropology department, Fogelquist said.

At least two of the languages being eliminated -Chinese and Arabic - were targeted for cancellation largely because of low enrollment, said university Provost Gary Olson.

"Some languages always draw lots of students, such as Spanish. Some languages, it's touch and go," Olson said. "It would be fiscally irresponsible for a university to run tiny programs that didn't draw many students when you have a program next to it that's drawing so many students you can't staff the classes."

Apple apologizes for 'Baby Shaker' iPhone game

CUPERTINO, Calif. (AP) - Apple Inc. is apologizing for allowing a 99-cent iPhone game called "Baby Shaker'' that let a player quiet a virtual crying infant by shaking the device.

Apple removed the program from the iPhone's App Store on Wednesday, but critics pressed for an apology Thursday.

Apple spokeswoman Natalie Kerris said Thursday that the game was "deeply offensive" and said it should not have been approved for sale.

"We sincerely apologize for this mistake," Kerris said in a statement.

Apple approves the programs that outside software developers make available in the store. "Baby Shaker" came from a company called Sikalosoft, which has not commented.

The game asked players to see how long they could endure a baby's cries and then shake the phone to stop the wailing.

Whatever happened to compromise in the Idaho House?

"Things fall apart. The center cannot hold." - William Butler Yeats en. Denton Darrington, R-Declo, tells the story of a day in December 1992 when he found out who would be on the Judiciary Committee that he was to chair for the upcoming session of the Idaho Legislature. One of the Democrats was Barbara Chamberlain, an outspoken liberal from Coeur d'Alene.

"People warned me about her; that she was too partisan to work with," Darrington says. "But you know, we developed a wonderful working relationship."

That sort of thing still happens in both houses of the Legislature, but not as often as it used too.

The vital center – that convergence zone of conservatism and liberalism where actual progress happens in representative democracies - is far too thin this first session of the 60th Idaho Legislature, especially in the House of Representatives.

You can count the House moderates - lawmakers such as Rep. Leon Smith, R-Twin Falls, and Rep. Wendy Jaquet, D-Ketchum – on the fingers of both hands. Many of them disappeared in the election of 2006, when Boise Democrats swept centrist Republicans out of the Legislature.

The rest of the House is as bitterly polarized as it's ever been.

And less effective than it's ever been.

The Idaho House has a long history of leaders who tolerated different opinions. Pete Cenarrusa made a practice of appointing his critics in the House GOP caucus to important committees, thus keeping his friends close and his political enemies closer. Maybe that's why the Carey Republican is considered one of the more successful House speakers in Idaho history.

Four of Cenarrusa's successors - William Lanting, Tom Boyd, Mike Simpson and Bruce Newcomb - listened to views with which they didn't agree. Simpson and Newcomb in particular rarely burned bridges because they understood they might have to cross them some day.

Those days are all but gone in the House. When he was elected in 2006, Speaker Lawerence Denney made quick work of lawmakers who had backed his moderate opponent, Bill Deal. Conservatives chair 12 of the House's 14 standing committees and control its four-

And what they didn't spend right away they buried in chests at secret places to intrigue the dreams of generations of boys with the shivering thought that the next inlet just might be the place.

They scampered the rigging like spiders, their swords were hand-held lightning, and in an eye's wink they could throw a knife that would pin the frilly cuff of a king's captain to the mainmast.

And if it all finally led to the gallows, they went with a sneer and a last bit of spitted spite for the powerful whose orderly world is ordered only to their own advantage.

Which, alas, brings us to Abduwali Abdukadir Muse, a frightened Somali youth, crying in front of the judge in trial and the phone rings and a New York courtroom and, despite the efforts of an interpreter, seemingly little comprehending of what was going on.

The U.S. government says he is 18 years old, which would suit the government's purposes. His lawyers say he is 15, which would suit theirs.

Either way, the United States intends to try him as an adult and has charged him with piracy, the first such charge as far as anyone can tell in more than a century, and prosecutors mean to imprison him for life, the mandatory sentence.

Serious business indeed, as it should be, but what's this? We learn that the young man's – boy's? – mother phoned BBC in London to insist her son is only 16 and to say the pirates forced him to join them.

A pirate's momma calls up? Can you feature Blackbeard at a drumhead a woman's quavering voice pleads, "Edward" - Edward Teach was his real name but there was no box office in it - "Edward is good boy and the bad men made him do it."

Right there, the whole pirate thing collapses. 'Treasure Island" never dawns on Robert Louis Stevenson. Errol Flynn and Burt Lancaster never climb to a crow's nest and any swordplay is confined to, let's say, private matters. Long John Silver never fries his first fish stick.

And we are left to realize that, all along, pirates were just seaborne criminal gangs, piracy was never anything better than carjacking with waves and the high jinks ashore had all the good-times allure of a bad night in a meth house.

Abduwali Abdukadir Muse is a man out of his time. Or boy. He will go to whatever end that fate is readying for him as just a sorry case, without so much as a note of Erich Korngold's fine and sweeping, windand-sail music to accompany him along.

He should been in the movies.

There's a party line now, and litmus tests. And far too seldom is heard a discouraging word in the GOP caucus Individual House members are as capable as they've ever been. Many - Rep. Fred Wood of Burley, Rep. Maxine Bell of Jerome, Rep. Darrell Bolz of Caldwell, Rep. Lynn Luker of Boise, to name four - are consensus-builders and talented legislative craftsmen. But for others, such as Reps. Jeff Thompson and Russ Matthews of Idaho Falls, Rep. Tom Loertscher of Iona and Rep. Dick Harwood of St. Maries, the House is more of a conservative debating club than a legislative assembly.

The Senate works better, in part, because it's smaller. Nearly all senators have personal relationships with colleagues across the political and ideological divides. And although reasoned debate doesn't always prevail, members are expected to give it a try.

That's no accident. Steeped in the tradition of consensus-builders like Phil Batt, Laird Noh, Dick High, John Barker, Jerry Twiggs and Mike Crapo, the Senate's culture is cooperation.

Partisanship flourishes in both chambers, but the legislative environment is simply harsher in the House. More than in the Senate, legislating is a zero-sum proposition where there must be winners and losers. Political and ideological points must be made and opponents' ideas and motives savaged.

As much as any other reason, that's why the House hasn't gotten off dead center this session.

Obama's first 100 days bode well for future

s we approach the 100-day mark for the • Obama administration, you will hear and see a wide variety of grades for the new president's performance.

Remember this. What has happened so far is no more than the overture to the first act of this opera. The big stuff is still to come. The soprano has not opened her mouth for her signature aria. That will be health care reform. The devilish baritone is still offstage. Wait for the first international crisis.

Barack Obama has launched a lot of schemes, but has fulfilled few of them. What he has shown – and it is an important accomplishment in itself - is a mastery of the art of managing the presidency.

It is important because it is the first and most basic test of his ultimate ability to be a successful president. And it is surprising, because there was no reason to assume that he had the skills to direct such a large enterprise.

Never before in his 47 years had the lawyer-writerpolitician had to recruit. assign and motivate a professional staff of this size and skill and organize it to meet his needs and carry out his purposes. His staffs in the Illinois Legislature and the U.S. Senate were minuscule. The campaign itself was by far his largest organizational challenge, and he passed with flying colors. But the presidency poses far tougher tests than amassing 270 electoral votes.

Obama had a few stumbles in assembling his Cabinet and, as a result, lost the services of one potential major asset, Tom Daschle, his original choice to manage his health care initiative. Many of the Cabinet members are still learning their jobs, but the White House staff has supported what so far has been a bravura performance on Obama's part.

Particularly striking has been the staff's ability to move rapidly to tackle inherited challenges and launch ambitious initiatives without creating a sense of confusion about the essential priorities of the new president.

Hardly a day has gone by in often ended without a decithe first three months that Americans have not seen and heard Obama on their TV screens in a variety of roles chiefly as economic salvage director for seriously shattered housing, credit and employment systems. But also as commander in chief of armed forces fighting two wars, diplomatic traveler engaged with other world leaders, and agenda-setter for Congress - to say nothing of first father, first fan, first consort of Michelle and first master of Bo.

Making these daily kaleidoscopes look coherent and not confusing – requires enormous discipline. And nowhere more than in the management of the White House schedule. The task and the tools were sketched for me last week by chief of staff Rahm Emanuel, who had a close-up look at the nearfatal costs of losing control as a White House staff member in the chaotic first two years of the Clinton administration.

As Bradley Patterson, the pre-eminent scholar of White House staff work, remarked last week, Clinton's schedule was "set and reset and reset again," in impromptu meetings that sion. That led to his major initiatives – health care. NAFTA, the budget, "reinventing government" - literally bumping each other out of the way.

Obama inherited a much improved scheduling system from the first MBA president, George Bush, with an electronic calendar, stretching from the next day to the next month to the next year, available to senior staffers.

Obama has continued Bush's pattern of weekly Saturday scheduling sessions, run by Emanuel, Alvssa Mastromonaco, the director of scheduling and advance, and Danielle Crutchfield, the president's own scheduler. and attended by other senior staffers. A daily early-morning scheduling huddle allows for fine-tuning and updating.

The challenge will become greater as Obama's initiatives move to Capitol Hill, where a single senator can throw up a roadblock, and when the inevitable foreign crisis explodes. But the overture has gone well, and so far, the cast seems to know its parts.

Can Muslims wrest their religion from the lunatics?

I n Afghanistan, 300 brave women marched to demand a measure of equal rights, defying a furious mob of about 1,000 people who spat, threw stones and called the women "whores." The marchers asserted that a woman should not need her husband's consent to go to school or work outside the home.

In Pakistan, the Taliban flogged a teenage girl in front of a crowd, as two men held her face down in the dirt. A video shows the girl, whose "crime" may have been to go out of her house alone, crying piteously that she will never break the rules again.

Muslim fundamentalists damage Islam far more than any number of Danish cartoonists ever could, for it's inevitably the extremists who capture the world's attention. But there is the beginning of an intellectual reform movement in the Islamic world, and one window into this awakening was an international conference this week at the University of Notre Dame on the latest scholarship about the Quran.

"We're experiencing right now in Quranic studies a rise of interest analogous to the rise of critical Bible studies in the 19th century," said Gabriel Said Reynolds, a Notre Dame professor and organizer of the conference.

The rigorous application of historical analysis to the Quran is as controversial today in the Muslim world as its application to the Bible was in the 1800s. For some literal-minded Christians, it was traumatic to discover that the ending of the Gospel of Mark, describing encounters with the resurrected Jesus, is stylistically different from the rest of Mark and is widely regarded by scholars as a later addition.

Likewise, Biblical scholars distressed the faithful by focusing on inconsistencies among the gospels. The Gospel of Matthew says that Judas hanged himself, while Acts describes him falling down in a field and dying; the Gospel of John disagrees with other gospels about whether the crucifixion occurred on Passover or the day before. For those who considered every word of the Bible literally God's word, this kind of scholarship felt sacrilegious.

Now those same discomfiting analytical tools are being applied to the Quran. At Notre Dame, scholars analyzed ancient texts of the Quran that show signs of writing that was erased and rewritten. Other scholars challenged traditional interpretations of the Quran, such as the notion that some other person (perhaps Judas or Peter) was transformed to look like Jesus and crucified in his place, while Jesus himself escaped to Heaven.

One scholar, who uses the pseudonym Christoph Luxenberg for safety, has raised eyebrows and hackles by suggesting that the "houri" promised to martyrs when they reach heaven doesn't actually mean "virgin" after all. He argues that instead it means "grapes," and since conceptions of paradise involved bounteous fruit, that might make sense. But suicide bombers presumably would be in for a disappointment if they reached the pearly gates and were presented 72 grapes.

Nasr Hamid Abu Zayd, an Egyptian Muslim, argues eloquently that if the Quran is interpreted sensibly in context then it carries a strong message of social justice and women's rights.

Abu Zayd's own career underscores the challenges that scholars face in the Muslim world. When he declared that keeping slave girls and taxing non-Muslims were contrary to Islam, he infuriated conservative judges. An Egyptian court declared that he could not be a real Muslim and thus divorced him from his wife. The couple fled to Europe, and Abu Zayd is helping the LibForAll Foundation, which promotes moderate interpretations throughout the Islamic world.

"The Islamic reformation started as early as the 19th century," notes Abu Zayd, and, of course, it has even earlier roots as well. One important school of Quranic scholarship, Mutazilism, held 1,000 years ago that the Quran need not be interpreted literally, and even today Iranian scholars are surprisingly open to critical scholarship and interpretations.

If the Islamic world is going to enjoy a revival, if fundamentalists are to be tamed, if women are to be employed more productively, then moderate interpretations of the Quran will have to gain ascendancy. There are signs of that, including a brand of "feminist Islam" that cites verses and traditions suggesting that the Prophet Muhammad favored women's rights.

Reynolds says that Muslim scholars have asked that conference papers be translated into Arabic so that they can get a broader hearing. If the great intellectual fires are reawakening within Islam, after centuries of torpor, then that will be the best weapon yet against extremism.

"If you put public policy to a religious test," he said, "you risk becoming a religious party, and in a free country. a political party cannot remain viable in the long term if it is seen as sectarian." Meghan McCain claimed, "Too many Republicans want to cling to past successes. There are

h n those who think we can win the White House and to Congress back by being so 'more' conservative. Worse, is there are those who think co we can win by changing is nothing at all about what h our party has become." if

In his remarks, Schmidt tried to engage in moral acrobatics, asserting that a pro-life position ought to translate into support for same-sex marriage: "The argument of the pro-life community acquires its moral force because it holds that the life of the unborn is not distinct in its dignity from the life of the born, and, thus, possesses a Godgiven right to be protected."

That argument could easily be turned around. If God gives rights to the unborn, doesn't he also get credit for defining marriage as between a man and a woman? The comment from the preacher at my wedding (and many other weddings in the "old days") seems relevant: "What God has joined together, let no man put asunder."

Republicans are in electoral trouble for many reasons, but one of them surely is not that they are insufficiently liberal on social issues. What's the point of having a two-party system if one party mimics the other? Many erstwhile Republican voters turned on the GOP not because they were insufficiently liberal, but because they were insufficiently conservative.

Schmidt and McCain could not begin to count the number of votes that would be lost were the party to abandon social conservatives and their issues. Whatever minimal gains might be made from younger, more progressive Republicans will be more than offset by older (and younger) social conservatives who will abandon the party and either stay home in disgust on Election Day, or vote for third-party candidates. Either scenario will bring the same result: the election of more liberal Democrats.

What shall it profit a party if it gains electoral victory, but loses its political soul?

Twin Falls folks should protest property taxes

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

My husband and I have lived and worked in Twin Falls for years, he as a building contractor and myself as a real estate broker for 26 years, now living in Kimberly. We have been in Twin Falls County and have paid taxes on several properties, vet we have no sav in Twin Falls because we live in Kimberly, which, by the way, had to raise its water bills because of Twin Falls raising the price of the water and sewer to Kimberly.

It disturbs me greatly that taxes that go up every year in a real estate market that has continually spiraled downward for the past two years. We should be paying less rather than more in property taxes. In addition, the city continually raises water bills for people of Twin Falls. The city has also greatly reduced the amount of water that we can use.

When our property values are inflated, the insurance on our homes also goes up.

In my opinion, the people who own property in Twin Falls should go to the city and protest.

We are already losing businesses in the area. This is not the time to raise taxes and other costs. Please join with me and help make our voices heard.

IDAHO FALLS (AP) - A new U.S. Geological Survey report shows that the level of a nuclear contaminant found in well water near the Idaho National Laboratory is low enough to be considered safe for drinking.

The report was based on testing done at 19 monitoring wells in 2007. It showed that average concentrations of the potentially harmful isotope Iodine-129 were 25 percent of the maximum contaminant level for safe drinking water under a threshold set by the Environmental Protection Agency.

The levels were nearly identical to findings from a 2003 study of the same wells, USGS scientist and study author Roy Bartholomay told the Post Register.

"The good news is that there shouldn't be any concern for anyone in the public," he said. "We didn't really see a change in concentrations (between 2003 and 2007). although we had really hoped to see those concentrations continue to decrease because (Iodine-129) hasn't been discharged since 1988."

One well studied in 2007 did have concentrations of Iodine-129 slightly higher than the EPA drinking water threshold, Bartholomay said, but officials were not immediately concerned because the well is not a public water source.

People exposed to high levels of Iodine-129 are at risk of developing thyroid cancer, he said.

The USGS began monitoring wells to track the isotope in 1977. Iodine-129 occurs naturally and is also a byproduct of nuclear fission.

Representatives for BP PLC and Chevron Corp. said their companies supported said it was unfair to penalize the new standards, with the caveat that the board periodically review the standards. Under the low-carbon fuel standard, petroleum refiners, companies that blend fuel and distributors must increase the cleanliness of the fuels they sell in California beginning in 2011.

The petroleum industry warned that the state was moving too quickly without assurances that the alternative fuels they will be required to sell would be available for the market. Representatives asked the board to delay a decision until next year.

"It's frankly unclear to us how we will comply with this regulation," said Catherine Reheis-Boyd, chief operating officer of the Western States Petroleum available Association.

YEARS

SEATTLE (AP) - Microsoft Corp. said Thursday its quarterly revenue fell from the previous year for the first time in its 23-year history as a public company, while its profit dived 32 percent.

The shortfall illustrated the toll the recession has taken on the world's largest software maker, even though Microsoft remains one of the richest and most profitable companies. In January, Microsoft said it needed to resort to its first mass layoffs, cutting 5,000 jobs, and on Thursday it announced it would do away with merit pay increases for employees in the next fiscal year.

Microsoft did not issue earnings guidance for the rest of the year, and it offered no hope for a rebound in the current quarter.

"I didn't see any improvement at the end of the quarter that gives me encouragement that we're at the bottom and coming out of it," said Chris Liddell, Microsoft's chief financial officer.

Even so, Microsoft shares gained 2.6 percent in extended trading after the earnings report, having closed earlier at $18.92, up 14 cents.

Redmond-based Microsoft said that in its fiscal third-quarter, which ended March 31, profit was $2.98 billion, or 33 cents per share. In the same quarter of 2008, Microsoft earned $4.39 billion, or 47 cents per share.

Microsoft's profit included a $290 million charge for severance from some of the lavoffs announced in January. The software maker also wrote down $420 million related to investments that lost value.

New job data signals lengthy recovery

By Christpher S. Rugaber Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON Worse-than-expected news on unemployment and home sales Thursday dampened optimism that a broad economic recovery might be near.

The Labor Department said initial claims for unemployment compensation rose to a seasonally adjusted 640,000, up from a revised 613,000 the previous week. That was slightly more than analysts' expectations of 635,000.

Economists are closely watching the unemployment compensation data because they believe a sustained decline in the number of initial claims could signal the end of the recession is nearing. Jobless claims have historically peaked six to 10 weeks before recessions end, according to a report by Goldman Sachs. Initial claims reflect job cuts by

Idaho to use online show to promote tourism

Reality show meets promotional event

The Associated Press

SEATTLE - Wish you could afford a free, 10-day family vacation in a beautiful setting with fun stuff planned for you?

The Idaho Division of Tourism would like to hear from you. But you have to be from the Seattle area and willing to have your vacation recorded for an online reality series.

The Idaho folks say there's another catch: It's an active vacation - not one that involves sitting by the pool. You'll be fishing, rafting and horseback riding at locations throughout the state. But you won't have to plan a thing. And did they mention, it's free?

More than 5 million of the 32 million people who visited Idaho last year came from Washington state, with 1 million of those from Seattle. Tourism officials want to attract more of the same.

"It's very exciting. I've not heard of anyone doing this," Kellie Kluksdal, spokeswoman for the Idaho Division of Tourism, told the Seattle Post-Intelligencer. "But after some coaxing from our agency, we figured this was probably the way to go."

The ad agency, Drake Cooper, thought digital media was a good idea to attract potential Idaho visitors, who might be spending more time on the Internet employers.

But the latest report shows job losses remain high. The four-week average of claims, which smooths out volatility, dropped slightly to 646,750, about 12,000 below the peak in early April. Goldman Sachs economists have said a decline of 30.000 to 40.000 in the four-week average is needed to signal a peak.

Abiel Reinhart, economist at IPMorgan Chase Bank. said further declines in the four-week average "would show that our forecast for a resumption of economic growth in (the third quarter) is reasonable."

Other economists said that despite the biggerthan-expected rise in new jobless claims, the range has remained mostly steady for about two months. That's a signal that the pace of layoffs may be leveling off.

But in another sign of labor market weakness, the number of people continuing to claim benefits rose to 6.13 million, setting a record for the 12th straight week.

As a proportion of the work force, the total jobless benefit rolls are the highest since January 1983. The continuing claims data lag initial claims by a week.

Meanwhile, the National Association of Realtors said home sales fell 3 percent to an annual rate of 4.57 million last month, from a downwardly revised pace of 4.71 million units in February.

Green, Ky., plant. GM announced Thursday it will temporarily close 13 assembly plants in the U.S. and Mexico for more than two months starting in May. The move comes amid slumping sales and a bloated inventory of vehicles.

Closures could send ripple effect through states

By Tom Krisher Associated Press writer

DETROIT - General Motors Corp. said Thursday it will temporarily close 13 assembly plants in the U.S. and Mexico some for more than two months - as it tries to pare due to slumping sales.

The company said in a statement that the closures will begin in May. Shutdown weeks vary by factory, but some will be closed for nine or 10 weeks.

GM said the shutdowns will help control high dealer inventories and bring production in line with sales. The company plans to cut production by 190,000 vehicles.

The troubled automaker has 22 assembly plants in North America. Dozens of other factories stamp metal parts and build engines and transmissions, and they also will see temporary closures.

GM normally shuts down weeks each summer to prepare for the new model vear, but assembly plants that will see additional down weeks are in Arlington, Texas; Bowling Green, Kentucky.; Detroit-Hamtramck, Michigan; Flint, Michigan; Fort Wayne, Indiana; Lansing, Michigan; Lordstown, Ohio; Pontiac, Michigan; performing at or close to Shreveport, Wilmington, Delaware; Wentzville, Missouri; and Silao, Mexico.

The longest shutdown is 10 weeks at Fort Wavne. which makes the Chevrolet Silverado and GMC Sierra pickup trucks.

that GM planned to close most of its factories for up to nine weeks.

GM North President Troy Clarke said in the statement that the company has been controlling inventories since the first of the year, but it needs to do more.

"While sales have been Louisiana; our plan estimates, and Spring Hill, Tennessee; dealer inventories have been reduced accordingly. we want to more closely align inventories with even more conservative market assumptions," he said.

The move is a result of slumping sales, but some analysts and dealers fear The Associated Press the plant closings could back its bloated inventory its assembly plants for two first reported Wednesday further scare car buyers already made nervous by talk of a GM bankruptcy.

The agency has hired an L.A. casting director, who is looking for a Seattle family with two or three kids, 10 free days from June 14-24, the ability to function around a film crew and perhaps a little familial excitement.

"These won't be home videos. There'll be a story," said Josh Mercaldo, the Drake Cooper brand manager for the Idaho account. "Even if there is some dysfunction and some drama around that, that is going to be something we're going to be looking for."

The results were "a little disappointing" given that homes are more affordable than they've been in years and mortgage rates are near record lows, said Lawrence Yun, the group's chief economist. The median sales price in March was $175,200, a plunge of 12.4 percent from a year ago, but higher than February's median price of $168,200. While median sales prices typically rise slightly in early spring, the 4 percent monthly increase was larger than expected.

lost weight. They began to suggest he should quit.

Kellermann was found dead in his basement this week in an apparent suicide, only a day after speaking to a human resource officer at the company and arranging to take time off because he'd been working such long hours. After seven months of trying to help the company emerge from financial disaster, some close to him wonder if it was just too much for Kellermann to try and pick up the pieces.

"If there was a reason it had to be the stress, the mounting stress and pressure of a company ... he worked so hard to help and resurrect and make good," said David Gorder, a movie producer living in Hollywood Hills, Calif., who was a fraternity brother of Kellermann's when they studied together at the University of Michigan. "Maybe he kept it inside too much."

It can be a mystery what makes people even those seemingly successful - take their own lives. But Kellermann had clearly been under immense stress at Freddie Mac, which has dealt with an unceasing torrent of bad news that began six years ago, when an accounting scandal forced the resignation of two chief executives.

Kellermann, 41, had risen through the ranks at Freddie Mac since beginning as an accountant 16 years ago. Gorder, who shared an apartment with him when he first started at the company, remembered how much he cherished the job.

"He loved Freddie Mac to no end," Gorder said.

recovered, but the cases are a growing medical mystery because it's unclear how they caught the virus.

None of the seven people were in contact with pigs, which is how people usually catch swine flu. And only a few were in contact with each other, according to the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

Still, health officials said it's not a cause for public alarm: The five in California and two in Texas have all recovered, and testing indicates some mainstream antiviral medications seem to work against the virus.

Dr. Anne Schuchat of the CDC said officials believe it can spread human-tohuman, which is unusual for a swine flu virus.

The CDC is checking people who have been in contact with the seven confirmed cases, who all became ill between late March and mid-April.

Because of intensive searching, it's likely health officials will find additional cases, said Schuchat, director of the CDC's National Center for Immunization and Respiratory Diseases.

CDC officials detected a virus with a unique combination of gene segments that have not been seen in people or pigs before. The bug contains human virus, avian virus from North America and pig viruses from North America, Europe and Asia.

Health officials have seen mixes of bird, pig and human virus before, but never such an intercontinental combination with more than one pig virus in the mix.

COMMUNITY Buhl fire department has new chief, assistant

By Blair Koch Times-News correspondent

BUHL - By hiring within its fire department, Buhl was able to save an untold amount of money and get one heck of a fire chief, officials say.

Mark Korsen, initially full-time hired in November 2006 as assistant chief, was officially named the city's fire chief during the April 13 city council meeting. He fills the vacancy left by the resignation of former chief Earl Tyree earlier this year. Nathan Fawcett was also promoted to assistant fire chief.

"Why go through the expense when you have two very highly qualified individuals already?" said Mayor Charles Sheridan.

Korsen, 45, has nearly 20 fires. He was a volunteer government has recorded bombings, mortar attacks 87,215 of its citizens killed since 2005 in violence ranging from catastrophic bombings to execution-style slayings, according to government statistics obtained by The Associated Press that break open one of the most closely guarded secrets of the war.

Combined with tallies based on hospital sources and media reports since the beginning of the war and an in-depth review of available evidence by The Associated Press, the figures show that more than 110,600 Iraqis have died in violence since the 2003 U.S.-led invasion.

The number is a minimum count of violent deaths. The official who provided the data to the AP, on condition of anonymity because of its sensitivity, estimated the actual number of deaths at 10 to 20 percent higher because of thousands who are still missing and civilians who were buried in the chaos of war without official records.

The Health Ministry has tallied death certificates since 2005, and late that year the United Nations began using them – along with hospital and morgue figures - to publicly release casualty counts. But by early 2007, when sectarian violence was putting political pressure on the U.S. and Iraqi governments, the Iraqi numbers disappeared. The United Nations "repeatedly asked for that cooperation" to resume but never received a response, U.N. associate spokesman Farhan Haq said Thursday.

When the fed-up Miss Adelaide – 14 years a gambler's fiancee – sings "Take Back Your Mink," her fellow Hot Box nightclub dancers illustrate her frustration by stripping off not just their minks, but their pearls, gloves, hats and dresses.

But on a high school stage?

That's the dilemma of any parent volunteering to handle costumes for a production of "Guys and Dolls," Frank Loesser's 1950 Broadway musical about gamblers and the missionary girl and nightclub singer who help them go straight.

"Part of my challenge was maintaining the burlesque dancers and having them be appropriate for a high school show," said Christean Hovey of Jerome, the mom who stepped up for costume duty in the Jerome High School production opening Thursday.

She researched online to see what other high schools have done with the Hot Box dance, then settled on a compromise: black leotards and white bloomers underneath the long. blue formal dresses she rented for the actresses.

"In the dance, these dresses come off," Hovey said. Their secret is lots of Velcro in the back.

Another challenge for Hovey was creating nine hats that are styled for 1930s showgirls, match those dresses and – of course – come off easily.

"I did a little bit of sewing and a little bit of hot gluing and used some feathers and some sparkly things," she said.

Teen musicians find

venues in creative places

By Melissa Davlin Times-News writer

Twin Falls music fans are hearing noises in new places lately. Since the November closing of all-ages venue The Shop, teen musicians have been searching for new venues. Some options, like Welch Music in Twin Falls, show promise, while at others, like the Disabled American Veterans Hall, musicians are encountering the same hurdles as in previous places.

In November, The Shop shut down after police informed owners Corey who performs as Brittany M., will play at McCombs and Mikey Eveleth they needed a special use permit to continue the opening of Welch Music's Play Time holding concerts. The venue drew the city's attention after concert goer Justin Sweat kicked another audience member, Devin Boudreaux, in the head during a metal show mosh pit. Although prosecutors dropped charges against Sweat, musicians remained homeless.

Haunted by a tale of twins

y previous BookChat column about keeping just a dozen books evoked more than a few responses, and it has been great fun hearing people's comments and what their own favorite 12 would be.

This led me to begin a list of book categories which, if nothing else, would make for good conversation during dinner parties and long airplane rides. So far, it includes: "Books I Wish I Had Written," "Books I Can't Believe Were Published," "Books With Great Opening Lines" and "Books That Still Haunt Me."

This last category quickly yields several titles, including "Shadow of the Wind" by Carlos Ruiz Zafon; "The Hunger Games" by Suzanne Collins; and "Forever" by Pete Hamill. But at the very top of the list is "The Girls," by Canadian author Lori Lansens.

If a friend had not raved about the book, I probably would have passed it by. A fictional story about conjoined twins seemed a bit out of my comfort zone. But she insisted, so I read it; even though that was several months ago, snippets of the story keep stealing into my thoughts.

UDI BAXTER

Lansens' writing is eloquent and richly nuanced and captured me from the beginning.

Here are the book's first paragraphs:

"I have never looked into my sister's eyes. I have never bathed alone. I have never stood in the grass at night and raised my arms to a beguiling moon. I've never used an airplane bathroom. Or worn a hat. Or been kissed like that. I've never driven a car. Or slept through the night. Never a private talk. Or solo walk. I've never climbed a tree. Or faded into a crowd. So many things I've never done. but oh. how I've been loved. And, if such things were to be, I'd live a thousand lives as me, to be loved so exponentially ...

"I've never set eyes on my sister, except in mirror images and photographs, but I know Ruby's gestures as my own, through the movement of her muscles and bone. I love my sister as I love myself. I hate her that way too. This is the story of my life. I'm calling it 'Autobiography of a Conjoined Twin.' But since my sister claims that it can't technically ('technically' is Ruby's current favourite word) be considered an autobiography and is opposed to my telling what she considers our story, I have agreed that she should write some chapters from her point of view. I will strive to tell my story honestly, allowing that my truth will be coloured a shade different from my sister's and acknowledging that it's sometimes necessary for the writer to connect the dots."

The girls are born to an unwed teenage mother during a tornado in a small town outside Toronto. Two weeks later, they are abandoned, and Aunt Lovey, the nurse who has been caring for them, takes them into her heart and home. She refuses to see them as deformed or disabled, and loves them for the two individuals that they are.

The book was hard to put down, but often, I would stop and let the paragraphs I had just read sink into my brain and heart. Lansens truly brought Ruby and Rose to life. "This is not a memoir," I would have to remind myself.

This is their story. "The Girls" is stunning, moving and totally believable. I also predict it will be on numerous readers' lists of "Books That Still Haunt."

Times-News

Middle School TCS Players from The Community School in Mad Hatter and the tricky Sun Valley – will present "Wonderland" at 7 p.m. May 1 and at 5 p.m. May 2 in the TCS Theatre.

It's the Disney version of "Alice in Wonderland" with such favorites as "Zip-A-Dee-Doo-Dah" and "I'm Late!" You'll follow Alice as she leaves her familiar playground to chase the White Rabbit into the topsy-turvy, nooddball array of citizens.

Meet the likes of the utterly confused twins, Tweedle Dee and Tweedle Dum, the incorrigible Cheshire Cat. You'll be treated to a Caribbean Caucus Race, and an evil game of Simon Says led by the Queen of Hearts where the loser risks losing his head. Will Alice ever find her way home?

The production is directed by Joel Vilinsky, with Alyssa Hershey as music director.

Tickets for the family-friendly show will be sold at the Iconoclast rules world of Wonderland and its bookstore and at the door for $5. Information: 622-3960, ext. 138.

The Associated Press

CHICAGO - Paul Pierce scored 24 points, Rajon Rondo added 20 and the defending champion Boston Celtics beat the Chicago Bulls 107-86 on Thursday night to take a 2-1 lead in their first-round playoff series.

The teams split two dramatic games in Boston, but this one never really was in doubt. The Celtics led by 11 after one quarter and 22 at the half on their way to an easy win.

Rondo looked just fine after ting eight of 15 shots, he had 11 spraining his right ankle in Game 2 rebounds and six assists. He's now and missing practice Tuesday, turning in another dominant postseason performance. Besides hit-

Cassie Wood is ready for a new adventure.

The 5-foot-8 College of Southern Idaho sophomore guard signed a National Letter of Intent on Thursday with Oklahoma Panhandle State University, an NCAA Division II program in Goodwell, Okla.

"I'm very excited," said Wood, who was a four-year starter at Richfield High School before coming to CSI. "I'm excited to get out and try something new."

Wood is the first of CSI's sophomores to sign with a four-year program. She averaged 2.8 points and 2.6 rebounds for the 26-5 Golden Eagles, while

Idaho football holds spring game today

For the Times-News

The rebuilding project that is Idaho Vandals football continues for head coach Robb Akey. Today, Akey's Vandals cap spring football camp with the annual Silver and Gold game. When the contest kicks off at 5:30 p.m., today, Akey hopes to see three things: improved fundamentals, knowledge of the system and a competitive fire.

"We had a very competitive winter and that carried into spring ball," he said. "I want to see that continue."

WOOD RIVER BOYS WIN AT FALLS CLASSIC

Led by 72s from Crockett Stearns and Jonathon Hobbs, the Wood River boys took first place at the Class 4A Falls Classic at Sand Creek Golf Course in Idaho Falls on Thursday. The two were part of a four-way tie for medalist honors, which Pocatello's Ryan Pearson claimed in a playoff.

Minico finished sixth and was led by Byron Pinther's 77. Josh Thurston's 80 topped Burley, which tied for ninth. On the girls side, Burley's Shawna Pace shot a 92 for the fifth-best round of the day.

BURLEY 8, MINICO 4

The excitement of playing its rival on its brand new tennis courts couldn't inspire Minico on Thursday as the visiting Burley Bobcats beat the Spartans 8-4.

Burley swept the boys singles matches, while Minico took all girls singles matches. Burlev won all boys and mixed doubles matches, while the teams split in girls doubles.

CSI baseball on deck

This weekend's doubleheaders: CSI (24-22, 17-15 SWAC) at Colorado Northwestern (7-39, 3-29 SWAC), 1 p.m., Friday; noon Saturday. CSI last week: 1-3 at Western Nevada (L1-0, L9-

1, W 5-1, L 3-2). CNCC last week: 0-4 at Southern Nevada (L 9-1, L 10-0, L 4-1, L 3-2).

Last time they met: CSI swept the Spartans five weeks ago in Twin Falls, winning 8-2, 7-1, 7-3 and 6-2.

About the Spartans: CNCC is in a greater freefall than its record indicates, having lost 11 in a row and 24 of its last 25 and scoring just seven runs in its last nine contests. Joel Fernandez leads the Spartans with a .255 batting average, while Steven Rodgers is the team leader in hits (33), doubles (11), triples (2) and runs batted in (14). Todd Kruse leads the pitching staff in ERA (5.27), innings pitched (66 1-3) and strikeouts (35) Boomer's breakdown: "It's always difficult going into a place where you're facing someone you know you're more talented than, and you get lackadaisical. I hope that doesn't happen because we can't afford to, because with our group it tends to lead to losses. And having that type of play anymore leads do doubt, and we need to not only be playing well now but to be playing confident. I just told our guys that we have eight games left to get close to reaching our potential and then try to reach it at regionals. We have a lot of room to grow and a short amount of time to get it. The consistent days of good weather led to good productive practices and I think the guys are looking forward to having a good weekend."

CSI head coach Boomer Walker

Tournament watch: CSI can clinch the No. 3 seed for the Region 18 Tournament this weekend with any combination of five wins and Salt Lake losses. The No. 3 seed will face Colorado Northwestern in the first round of the Region 18 Tournament, which will be held at either Western or Southern Nevada in two weeks. Off the air: There will be no radio coverage of this weekend's games. Check Magicvalley.com for a recap on Saturday and Sunday. Injury report: Preston Olson threw off a mound this week, an encouraging sign as CSI hopes to have him available for the region tournament. Olson is doubtful this weekend. Tyler Barrett will be pushed back a day to Saturday to give him an extra day to nurse a lingering ankle injury, with Casey Lish moving up in the rotation.

On deck: CSI hosts Eastern Utah next weekend to close the regular season.

CSI softball on deck

ALLENS

This weekend's doubleheaders: No. 10 CSI (37-15-2, 28-10 SWAC) at Western Nevada College (10-34, 10-34 SWAC); 1 p.m. Friday; noon Saturday

CSI last week: 2-0 against Treasure Valley Community College (W 12-1, W 9-1) Western Nevada last week: 0-4 against College of Southern Nevada (L 13-11, L 11-0, L 12-4, L 5-0)

Last meeting: The Golden Eagles swept the Wildcats in late February in Carson City.

About the Wildcats: Ambar Huish leads the lineup, batting .375 with 28 RBIs, and while others are hitting more than .300, overall the Wildcats hit .268. Huish is also a threat around the base paths, successfully stealing 17 of 22 attempts. In the circle, Alyson Herman is 9-25 with a 7.87 ERA. Opponents average .393 when she pitch-

Injury report: Generra Nielson (concussion) is cleared for competition this weekend.

Nick's notes: "By the fact that (Western Nevada) has played 40 games, they're better than when we last saw them. Those kids have more experience and have been around the block one more time. It's good to get going again after being off. We want to get off to a fast start: throwing strikes and hitting pitches that our hitters are accustomed to hitting."

- CSI head coach Nick Baumert

On deck: The Golden Eagles head back to Nevada to face Southern Nevada for the final SWAC series.

Local free-throw sharpshooters headed to Elks contest

Twin Falls youngsters Regan Harr and Casey Hoggarth are in Springfield, Mass., this weekend to compete in the Elks Hoop Shoot National Free Throw Contest on Saturday.

Harr and Hoggarth both won the state and regional championships, Harr in the girls ages 10-11 division and Hoggarth in the boys 10-11 group.

In the Elks Hoop Shoot, each participant tries 25 free throws, with the most prolific shooter advancing to the next stage of the competition. The state competition was Feb. 2 in Blackfoot, with the regional competition March 7 in Portland, Ore.

Harr, a student at Morningside Elementary, hit 19 of 25 shots to win her regional title, while Immanuel Lutheran School student Hoggarth connected on 18 of 25 to win.

Both Hoggarth and Harr traveled with their parents, courtesy of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, to Springfield for the national finals. They are among 72 finalists competing for one of six national trophies.

The Elks Hoop Shoot is in its 37th year and has had more than 104 million participants.

Hernandez gem boosts M's

SEATTLE – Ichiro Suzuki lined James Shields' second pitch of the game for a home run and ace Felix Hernandez helped his injury riddled team with a seven-inning gem in the Seattle Mariner's 1-0 victory over the Tampa Bay Rays on Thursday.

David Aardsma pitched a perfect eighth with two strikeouts. Brandon Morrow walked Pat Burrell with one out in the ninth and sent pinch-runner Gabe Kapler to second with a wild pitch. But Morrow got Ben Zobrist to pop out and Dioner Navarro to fly out for his fifth save in five chances, as the first-place Mariners finished their initial homestand of the season 5-4.

The win was the second 1-0 victory of the season for a surprising Mariners squad his sixth home run. that leads the American League with a team ERA of 3.01. Seattle won only one 1-0 contest all last season, Eaton took a four-hitter while losing 101 games.

Lions might draft Stafford No. 1 to lead the way

DETROIT (AP) Matthew Stafford might become the face, voice and arm of perhaps the biggest rebuilding project in NFL history.

If the Detroit Lions take the Georgia quarterback with the No. 1 pick Saturday, a man with ties to the league who has known Stafford for years is convinced he can handle it.

"They should be so lucky to draft Matthew because he's going to be a great quarterback for the next 10, 12 years," Gil Brandt, the former personnel director of the Cowboys and the NFL's scouting consultant, said in a telephone interview from Dallas. "I've known him since he was in the seventh chances were "very good" driver from my house to his and my son was two years before the draft begins. behind him in high school.

FALCONS ACQUIRE TE GONZALEZ

ATLANTA (AP) — The Atlanta Falcons boosted their hopes for another trip to the playoffs by acquiring tight end Tony Gonzalez from the Kansas City Chiefs on Thursday for a draft pick next year. The Chiefs insisted they also improved their chances for success in 2009 by making the trade.

The Falcons will send a second-round pick in 2010 to Kansas City in exchange for Gonzalez, the only tight end in NFL history selected to 10 Pro Bowls.

Gonzalez caught 96 passes for 1,058 yards and 10 touchdowns in 2008. He owns NFL career records for tight ends with 916 receptions, 10,940 yards receiving, 76 TDs receiving and 26 100-yard receiving games.

"It's somewhat bittersweet," Gonzalez told FoxSports.com. "I love Kansas City. I grew up in Kansas City. The city means a lot to me. I got there when I turned 21. It will be sad to leave a city I love. But I'm looking forward to making a Super Bowl run in Atlanta every year for the next three or four years."

"Obviously, the draft is the biggest crap shoot there is," Stafford has said.

Recent No. 1 picks have proven that.

Eight of the last 11 players taken first overall in the NFL have been QBs, and half of them either haven't or didn't pan out for the teams that took them.

For every Peyton Manning and Carson Palmer, guys like Tim Couch and David Carr have shown there are no guarantees.

Mayhew tried to downplay the immediate impact the No. 1 pick will have for the Lions.

"It's very important, but the draft is not for opening day," he said.

The Lions acknowledge they've been negotiating contract terms with agents of multiple players.

"We can agree on the parameters. We can agree on some structure," Mayhew said. "But I think you ultimately have to agree with one person."

Wood River (7-12 overall, 1-5 GBW) will be the tournament's fourth seed and will play at either Minico or Jerome in the first round.

Burley (7-16, 2-3), which still has its final league game against Minico remaining, is guaranteed the third seed.

Wolverines starter Greg Wakefield allowed just two runs on three hits, throwing 57 strikes to 43 balls.

Burley got on the board in the first when Nelson Geary, who reached on an error, scored on John Cummings' single. Cummings was 2-for-3 with a double. The Bobcats loaded the bases with one out, but Wakefield got out of the jam by getting Burley to hit into a double play.

2009 SUBARU FORESTER CROSSOVER IMPROVED UTILITY, SPORT SEDAN DYNAMICS!

RoadWorthy! By Ken Chester, Jr. Motor News Media Corporation

ubaru has introduced all-new 2009 Forester crossover SUV to the American marketplace. Now in its third-generation, the Forester continues to build on its strong reputation as an icon of safety, dependability and versatility. The new Subaru crossover SUV features a bolder, more SUV-like exterior design while making a major leap in safety technology, comfort, refinement and driving dynamics.

The new Subaru rides on an all-new platform that, features a 3.6-inch longer wheelbase that improves ride and interior space, especially rear legroom. Hip and shoulder room have also been increased in the new Forester. The new platform also improves crash-worthiness and provides a stiffer platform for crisper handling.

Available in the following trim levels; 2.5X, 2.5X Premium, 2.5X Limited, 2.5XT and 2.5 XT Limited - the 2009 Subaru Forester is powered by the automakeris legendary 2.5L 4-cylinder Boxer engine. The normally aspirated engine has been modified for 2009 to improve performance, drivability and economy. A new intake port design helps improve both lowend torque and emissions. A new optimized catalyst system provides improved emissions performance. The i-Active Valve Lift System (AVLS) ensures a broad torque curve and smooth response at all engine speeds, while also helping to improve fuel efficiency. The switch from a single rear muffler to dual mufflers reduces exhaust backpressure while ensuring quiet operation.

Turbo-charged models are powered by a revised 2.5L 4-cylinder engine, which receives a new intake system, redesigned turbochargers and intercooler to produce more torque at a lower rpm for a smooth stream of power.

Torque is communicated through a newly enhanced fivespeed manual gearbox or a four-speed automatic transmission with SPORTSHIFT control. This energy is delivered through Subaru's Symmetrical All-Wheel Drive system to all four wheels.

The 2009 Subaru Forester platform is based on the Subaru DC3 (Dynamic Chassis Control Concept) which underpins the high-performance new chassis and body are designed for improved rigidity and ride comfort with the addition of high-tension steel at key structural points. Control hardware includes a heavy-duty raised fourwheel suspension which features a new doublewishbone rear suspension. Replacing the previous strut-type configuration, the new rear suspension is mounted to a subframe to provide improved ride and handling as well as increased cargo room.

Inside the passenger cabin, Subaru has placed a new emphasis on comfort and spaciousness. The sweeping twin cockpit design embraces occupants, and brushed aluminum-look inserts flow into the center stack. The center console shape adds to the airiness of the interior, aided by sculpted door panels and improved headroom. The standard 60/40 split rear seatbacks fold to provide a flat cargo floor, made wider between the wheelhouses by the new double-wishbone suspension.

Parents' absence is leaving a hole in little girl's life

DEAR ABBY: I'm a nanny and have been for three years. The 10-year-old girl I work with is wonderful, and I love her dearly. Her parents are not abusive, but they are caught up in their own lives. They devote very little time or effort to their daughter.

only thing my The employers ever talk to her about is school (she's an A student) and academics, When they are home they spend very little time with her. They never buy her even tiny gifts "just because" only when she brings home A's does she get gifts. Of course she is upset by this. She confides in me, to the point of tears.

How can I get her parents to take an active role in her life? I know better than to tell a parent how to be a parent, but they are slowly scarring their daughter and making her resent them. I know they love her, but their parenting makes her feel unlovable.

- NANNY IN NEW YORK NANNY: DEAR

Loneliness is the ultimate poverty. For all of her financial advantages, that girl is emotionally starved and for good reason. Her parents appear to be so self-involved they give her only the bare minimum and have handed that "chore" off to you. I'm

But if they can't or won't devote the time, she should be involved in extracurricular activities that will get her out of the house - things like sports and classes in music, dance, drama, etc. which will give her more positive feedback and less time to brood.

My friend "Terri" says you don't have to have a date, but I am still skeptical. Although it might be fun going with Terri and other friends, who am I supposed to share a slow dance with? I'd feel awkward sitting there while everyone else danced. And I would feel uncomfortable if a guy I didn't know asked me to dance.

If I give up on the idea of going, I might miss a special night, but could also be a potentially avoiding situation. embarrassing What's your advice?

- UNDECIDED TEEN DEAR UNDECIDED: Stop worrying about what "might" happen, go to the prom with your friends and keep an open mind. If you aren't asked to dance, look around and you'll probably see others who haven't been asked, either. Talk to them. I'm sure they'll be glad for the company.

If someone you don't know asks you to dance, it means he thinks you're attractive. That's a compliment. So smile, be polite and dance with him. If he's not your dream partner, remember it's only a dance - not a marriage proposal.

THE ACES ON BI

. . . . . . . . . . . .

"From each according to his faculties, to each according to his needs; that is what we wish sincerely and energetically." Michael Bakunin

Take a look at today's sixspade contract, where, curiously, it is far more important to find the diamonds behaving than to find the trumps splitting.

You win the opening club lead and draw trumps in four rounds, as East pitches three clubs. Next come the three top diamonds. All is well when the suit splits, and West lets go of a heart on both the third and fourth round of the suit. What now?

Consider that at this point in the deal, you have an inferential count of East's hand: seven clubs, three diamonds and one spade; thus two hearts. On the auction either defender could have the heart king. In practice you should try to follow a line that will succeed against West if he has the heart king since he has five hearts compared to East's two. Leading to the heart queen only succeeds against king-doubleton in East.

What you must do is to take your life in your hands, cashing your remaining club honor to set up a potential club winner for East, then lead the heart eight from the board, intending to run it to West. That player will win it cheaply and be endplayed, forced to lead away from the heart king at trick 12.

You might reasonably ask what you should do if East covers the heart eight with the jack, as he might do in the diagramed hand. The answer is that you should play West for the 10 by finessing on the way back.

ANSWER: Did you automatically reach for the three-no-trump bid? Consider that if partner has five hearts and four clubs, he will have no outside losers (your winners take care of that), but he may have losers on the third and fourth round of clubs. Your hearts will take care of them, but only if you play in hearts. Bid three hearts, and be prepared to cooperate in any slam venture.
