Former T.F. detective charged with 5 felonies

Gambrel accused of prescription fraud, conspiracy

By Andrea Jackson
Times-News writer

Former Twin Falls Police Det. Curtis Gambrel taught children how to stay off drugs through the nationally recognized D.A.R.E. program before he retired two years ago. Now he's facing felony drug charges.

A complaint against Gambrel, 44, was filed Wednesday in Twin Falls 5th District court asserting three counts of felony prescription fraud and two counts of conspiracy to commit prescription fraud for acts allegedly committed between January 2005 and April 2, 2007 — the same day his retirement was publicly announced.

A special prosecutor from the Ada County Prosecutor's Office filed the charges against Gambrel after Twin Falls County Prosecutor Grant Loeb handed over the case to avoid a possible conflict of interest.

The allegations come a week after Gambrel's former nurse practitioner, Jan Sund, 55, pleaded guilty on April 30 to two counts of conspiracy to commit prescription fraud and two counts of prescription fraud.

While still a police officer, Gambrel allegedly obtained medically unnecessary prescriptions for oxycodone and hydrocodone from Sund and then split the drugs with her, according to court records.

Gambrel was named in 16 charges of prescription fraud and conspiracy to commit prescription fraud that were originally levied against Sund in December. Sund gave testimony on April 30, days before Gambrel was charged.

"I wrote a prescription for hydrocodone and Curtis (Gambrel) filled it and split it with me," Sund told the court last month in Twin Falls.

Twin Falls police say they learned of the allegations against Gambrel in June 2008, a year after his retirement. "Gambrel's name was uncovered during a separate investigation the Drug Enforcement Administration was conducting on Sund," city police said in a press release Thursday.

Police did their own internal investigation into Gambrel last year that ended in October. On Thursday, the department said its investigation recommended criminal charges.

Legislative lightning round

Lawmakers scramble with adjournment expected today

By Jared S. Hopkins
Times-News writer

BOISE — Rushing to finish the 2009 Legislature and avoid setting the record for the longest session ever, lawmakers hustled Thursday to tie up any loose ends in legislation — and ended up having to fix some that unraveled in the process.

Legislators on Wednesday announced a multi-part transportation funding deal reached with Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter intended to end the session, which would tie the longest ever if it lasts until Saturday. On Thursday, they raced toward adjournment — rewriting bills introduced just hours before, tearing through hearings on bills and even stopping a floor debate for 30 minutes to review the legality of a bill.

Still, the expectation from nearly every lawmaker is to finish today. The Senate meets at 9 a.m. The House meets at 10 a.m.

"I hope there's no snags," said House Majority Leader Mike Moyle, R-Star. "Keep your fingers crossed."

Both the Senate and House worked late into Thursday evening, with the House grinding until 6:30 p.m., the Senate an hour more. Closed-door meetings — a staple in these final days of the Legislature — were held to hammer out

Eight in running for SIRCOMM director job, more could apply

Deadline for applications is today

By Nate Poppino
Times-News writer

The Southern Idaho Regional Communications Center faces problems with aging transmission equipment. It must meet a federally mandated transition to digital broadcasts by 2012, and its staff says it may not be receiving some contracted fees and services.

Those issues apparently make for an exciting job opportunity. As many as 12 people are lining up to apply for SIRCOMM's vacant director position, two months after former Director John Shearman was placed on leave and then resigned.

The four-county dispatch center's Joint Powers Board set today as the deadline for applicants. Board Chairman Tom Mikesell, a Twin Falls County commissioner, said Thursday that at least eight people and possibly 12 had submitted applications so far.

The new director would oversee all operations and management activities at the dispatch center, which handles more than 40 police, fire and EMS agencies in Gooding, Jerome, Lincoln and Twin Falls counties — everything in the

Minico baseball coach gets 29 days, fine

By Jared S. Hopkins
Times-News writer

BOISE — Ben Frank, head baseball coach and biology teacher at Minico High School, was sentenced Thursday to 29 days in jail and to pay a $1,000 fine on convictions stemming from an incident last year with an ex-girlfriend.

In March, a jury in the 4th District Ada County Courthouse found Frank not guilty on a felony charge of attempting to strangle Jacobi Patterson. Instead, the jury convicted him of battery and unlawful entry, both misdemeanors, allowing him to avoid the maximum 15-year sentence associated with the strangulation charge.

On the battery conviction, Frank was sentenced Thursday to 180 days in jail and a $1,000 fine plus court costs. But Judge John Hawley suspended most of the jail time, leaving Frank with 29 days that may be served via a work release program or something similar.

On the unlawful entry conviction, Hawley suspended the $1,000 fine and 90-day jail sentence but required unsupervised probation and payment of court costs.

"On one hand I see an innocent victim," Hawley said prior to sentencing. "On the other hand I see someone who lost control, snapped and that frightened me somewhat."

The case stems from the Feb. 22, 2008 incident in the Boise home of Patterson, who dated Frank for six to eight months. Patterson ended the relationship but a few days later Frank drove to her home from Rupert and they engaged in a physical argument.

"I'd just like to apologize to Jacobi," Frank, 30, said in court. "I had no business being at your house and I would never in a million years intentionally want to hurt you in any way."

Hawley said Frank appears to be a positive member of his community, a respected teacher and someone who learns from his mistakes.

Gambrel

"We prepared affidavits to that effect," said Twin Falls Police Department Capt. Matt Hicks. "We feel the charges are warranted."

Twin Falls Police Chief James Munn Jr. agreed. "I do believe there was probable cause that these offenses were committed," said Munn, adding "guilt or innocence is not my call, that's the call of the court."

Munn said city police officers met in groups to discuss the charges against Gambrel. "They (officers) were devastated by this ... It takes time for it to heal, but we will."

During Gambrel's 22-year career, he was a patrol officer, detective and D.A.R.E. instructor. D.A.R.E. or Drug Abuse Resistance Education offers classes for kids in kindergarten through 12th grade led by police who teach "how to resist peer pressure and live productive drug and violence-free lives," according to the D.A.R.E. Web site.

Efforts by the Times-News to reach Gambrel on Thursday were not successful.

Loebs said he is not concerned that cases Gambrel worked on as a police officer could be challenged if he is convicted of a felony. "There would have to be some showing that there was some effect on a case, from some conduct that he (Gambrel) did that was improper," Loebs said.

Other people besides Gambrel were named in the allegations against Sund. They have not been charged with crimes, Loebs confirmed.

According to Idaho Peace Officer Standards and Training, Gambrel is not currently employed in law enforcement in the state.

POST Director Jeff Black said an investigation into Gambrel's peace officer certification could ensue. "We will open an investigation as soon as the criminal charges are resolved."

The Idaho Board of Pharmacy and the DEA received numerous complaints about Sund almost seven years ago, according to court records. "The complaints ranged from allegations that she was splitting prescriptions with her patients to practicing as a nurse practitioner while impaired," court records show.

The state pharmacy board also got a tip about Sund from Gambrel's wife in 2005. She wrote a letter to the board "stating Sund was over-prescribing pain medication for her husband, Curtis Gambrel." The letter also said Sund was "abusing her prescribing rights" and "receiving kickbacks from patients," according to court records.

Sund surrendered her controlled substance registration by October 2007 and has a sentencing hearing set for July 10.

Gambrel is ordered to appear in court May 27. The felony prescription crimes each carry punishments of up to four years in prison, Loebs confirmed.

details on the $55 million transportation deal, finalize other horse-trading agreed upon and ensure the two chambers live up to their sides of deals.

The old cliché that drafting legislation is like creating sausage — you make mistakes, then correct problems — rang true.

"It's being made out in public; put a little pepper in there, no, put a little more meat in there!" Rep. Fred Wood, R-Burley, said around 5 p.m. "Negotiations are still going on."

In the morning, the House introduced the bills needed to complete the transportation package but then had to reintroduce two of them later on.

One bill to shift $16 million in gas tax revenue from the Idaho State Police budget to highways in fiscal year 2011 had to be revised after it had the wrong year of implementation.

A bill to create a task force to study roads had to be redrafted after some Republicans on the House floor opposed some of its components.

In the afternoon, the Senate and House held committee meetings to hold hearings on bills and then quickly pass them. The Senate Transportation Committee met at 6:30 p.m., while the House Ways and Means Committee met three times.

Sen. Dean Cameron, R-Rupert, said legislators want to make sure everything passes muster.

"We have tremendous concerns about it," he said. "For some legislators, they think we're going too slow and for others it feels like we're trampling over them."

Moyle said the frenetic activity is typical during the waning days of a session. "Sometimes it's easier to just fix the bills and then reintroduce them," he said.

The road funding deal also includes lifting the ethanol tax exemption, raising Department of Motor Vehicle fees, limiting temporary truck permits, and registering out-of-state trailers in Idaho. It lacks Otter's coveted increase in the state fuel tax — a contentious issue that placed the session in stalemate.

Otter has made raising new revenue to fix Idaho's roads and bridges a priority since taking office in 2007. He wanted $175 million in January but as the session dragged on he lowered that amount, hoping to appeal to House members.

Backhoes and other assorted earth-moving equipment lined up near the site of the college's new health sciences and human services building, which is under construction. Inside the college's Expo Center, hands-on activities included drywall work.

Hayden Blair, a 17-year-old junior at Twin Falls High School, was at the controls of a backhoe, maneuvering dirt out of a hole and piling it up.

Les Preston of Burkes Tractor Co. in Twin Falls gave him some pointers when the backhoe needed to lift higher as the dirt pile grew. Despite Blair's lack of experience, Preston saw some initial skill.

"They all need just a little bit of time," he said. "He's getting a full bucket and making his moves count."

Blair enjoyed the experience.

"It's pretty fun, but I'm guessing it would get pretty repetitive after a while," he said.

Spenser Standlee, a 17-year-old junior for Jerome High School, worked with a piece of equipment that flattens out dirt on the ground. He described the equipment as "shaky" but didn't mind.

"All in all, it's pretty fun to use," he said.

On Saturday, the event is open to the general public from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

salary requirements, and budget records show Shearman would have received $75,000 this fiscal year.

After reviewing the dispatch center's administrative structure, budgets and other details, board members decided about one month ago to hire a new director. They had originally hoped to hire one by early May.

Mikesell, who hadn't had a chance to review any of the applications, said he hoped to give them a look by early next week and discuss them with other board members at a board meeting on Thursday. After that, he said, the board will work with the fire, emergency-medical and police agencies it supports to set up candidate interviews.

"We wanted someone in place as quickly as we could," he said.

The governing board hasn't said why Shearman was suspended, though past discussions have seemed to imply that he lost his job due to financial issues and the direction he was steering the center. Whatever the cause, his resignation was far from the first odd one for a SIRCOMM director.

The dispatch center took over dispatch duties for the four counties in 1996. In late 1997, Project Manager Al Sandner stepped down, citing political infighting among the center's cities and counties as a factor.

Sandner's successor, Jeff Rodeman, was placed on paid leave for about six months and then resigned in 2002 after SIRCOMM employees hired an exotic dancer to perform at the center for a co-worker's birthday. Former Twin Falls County Sheriff Wayne Tausley then ran the center for about a year until he stepped down when the city of Twin Falls sued SIRCOMM over an emergency dispatch channel.

Shearman's predecessor, Ron Vogt, took over after Tausley and retired quietly last year.

T.F. bomb scare closes routes briefly

Police: cell phone left outside T.F. business was a donation, not bomb

Times-News

Twin Falls Police closed Canyon Crest Drive between Pole Line Road and Canyon Crest Dining and Event Center for about an hour early Thursday morning in response to a bomb threat.

A used cell phone was left outside a local dialysis center under an egg carton, Twin Falls police said.

Staff Sgt. Dan Lewin, the bomb squad commander, said it took about 30 minutes to determine that the cell phone found outside the DeVita dialysis center at 1840 Canyon Crest Drive was not a bomb.

Lewin said the cell phone and charger were left by an unknown person in an attempt to donate it. The donation box it was apparently destined for, however, was inside the building. Lewin said the donation was apparently left under an egg box to protect it from the elements.

That caused concern, said Lewin, and police were called at about 5:15 a.m. "An employee saw the wires protruding from under the egg carton."

DeVita Spokeswoman Kelsey Rood said operations were back up by 7:30 a.m. and confirmed the company was involved in accepting cell phone donations.

In a press release Thursday, Twin Falls Police asked that any donations be made during business hours. "Although the intentions of the person leaving the cell phone and charger near the door are not believed to be malicious, the Twin Falls Police Department would like to remind persons making donations at any location to do so during business hours or make specific arrangements with such business prior to leaving any items."

A walking trail to the east of the business was also closed briefly Thursday, police said.

Lewin said Thursday's incident was the fifth time the Twin Falls Police Bomb Squad was called out this year to investigate.

From May 3 police reports:
Stalking, et cetera: Cameron Barrus, 19, of Burley, was arrested for felony stalking, encouraging violations of the Juvenile Corrections Act and obstructing an officer. According to the report, police were looking for a reported runaway — a 16-year-old female — at Barrus' trailer. Barrus allegedly told police, "I don't know where she is. I haven't seen her all day. I swear to God." A neighbor reported seeing the girl running away from the trailer while Barrus was questioned. Later, Barrus admitted that he was scared about getting into trouble because he has a no-contact order with the girl. He was promptly arrested.

Property damage: Somebody drove into a mailbox outside of Burley, then over-corrected and ran over, according to the report, "several old fence logs." Green paint was left on the mailbox. No suspects.

From May 4 police reports:
Driving under the influence: A 35-year-old male from Los Angeles, after picking up a 49-year-old female with a bulldog tattoo on her ankle from the Mini-Cassia Regional Medical Center, was arrested for driving under the influence. According to the report, the suspicions of several hospital employees were aroused — especially when, as one of them told police, while the man picked the woman up, he "was jumping around, clapping hands, and was acting like he was extra happy. It was not normal behavior."

After stopping at a Maverick convenience store, the outpatient and the allegedly drunk man switched places, because, according to the reason provided in the report, "her passenger can't (drive) because he has a suspended license." The man was arrested for driving under the influence and for driving without privileges. The woman, unable to function behind the wheel because her eyes had been dilated at the hospital, was picked up by her sister.

Filer explores four-day workweek

By John E. Swayze
Times-News correspondent

FILER — The city of Filer may be joining a growing number of south-central Idaho communities moving toward a four-day workweek.

Council members on Tuesday discussed the possible benefits of allowing city office and maintenance staff to close down operations on Fridays.

"I know that other communities in the area, like Jerome, Gooding and Twin Falls, have been doing this for a while," Mayor Bob Templeman said.

"I have no reason to doubt it would work here." Bellevue and Gooding recently adopted a four-day workweek, which has been discussed in other area municipalities. Before any change can receive approval, city officials need to get some solid cost savings figures down on paper. Maintenance Director Bud Compher believes the move could result in a reduction of cost for his department.

"I haven't sat down to put anything on paper yet but other towns that have adopted the four-day week save thousands of dollars," he said. "It's hard to say if it'd be the same for us but we could get more work done in less time and bring down our fuel and overtime costs."

City Clerk Shari Hart pointed out that her office probably wouldn't see any real saving but extending office hours Monday through Thursday from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. could benefit residents.

"Because our police would still be using the building, this probably wouldn't have much impact on city office expenses," she said. "But having the office open longer during the four remaining days might help those who come in after work to pay their utility bills."

In other business, the city's new official Web site, www.cityoffiler.com, contains a short history of the community, city services contact information, monthly council meeting agendas and links to an event calendar and news.

U.S. to wind down help for some banks

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The government signaled Thursday that its financial rescue efforts may have reached their high-water mark, announcing that the much-anticipated "stress tests" of 19 large banks showed that only one, GMAC, was likely to need additional taxpayer aid and that it would begin to unwind assistance for the healthiest firms.

Despite a deepening recession and projections that banks will continue to lose money, the government will require the firms to increase their capital by a total of just $9.5 billion. The government also will require 10 of the banks to strengthen their capacity to absorb losses by adding $74.6 billion to the portion of their capital that comes from common equity. Banks are likely to meet that edict by converting their holdings of other forms of capital and raising new money from investors.

The announcement at the Treasury Department Thursday culminated a three-month process designed to show that banks are returning to health after a crisis that left the entire industry dependent on federal aid. Officials said that banks continue to hold vast quantities of ill-considered loans and could suffer losses totaling $600 billion over the next 20 months as the borrowers default.

Postal Service backs off ending wilderness air route

By Todd Dvorak
Associated Press writer

BOISE — The U.S. Postal Service has backed off its plan to sever its contract with the pilot flying the only backcountry air mail route remaining in the lower 48 states.

U.S. Postmaster General John Potter notified Idaho's congressional leaders Thursday that the $46,000 annual contract with pilot Ray Arnold, of Cascade, will be renewed another year. Potter said acceptable mail service to backcountry customers could not be achieved any other way than the ongoing air service.

In April, the Postal Service decided to save money by ending its 34-year contract with Arnold, who delivers mail, food, medicine and other goods once a week to more than 20 ranches and families in central Idaho's Idaho's congressional leaders promptly launched a lobbying offensive to keep the service alive.

"This is great news for Idahoans who treasure our backcountry, the way of life this small service represents and the lifeline this service provides to remote sections of Central Idaho," Rep. Walt Minnick, D-Idaho, said Thursday.

The contract was scheduled to expire in June, leaving the backcountry inhabitants with no easy alternative for getting their mail.

Potter said the Postal Service still faces significant financial challenges, with fiscal year 2009 losses projected at $6 billion.

"This is why we have been examining all contracts nationwide to reduce our expenditures," Potter wrote in a letter to Minnick and other members of the state's congressional delegation.

Arnold, who operates Arnold Aviation, flies once a week to ranches scattered across the more than 2-million-acre wilderness, including some homes or ranches more than 60 miles from the nearest road.

He's developed tight bonds with his customers, and routinely delivers groceries, supplies and rental movies with the bills, magazines and letters.

"This is great news for Idahoans who treasure our backcountry ..."

“My 17-year-old daughter is afraid. She knows she must go back but doesn't want to.”
 – Silvia Mendez, as high schools and universities in Mexico reopened Thursday two weeks after the swine flu outbreak

EDITORIAL

It's not a great compromise, but it's a compromise

The “going-home” bill finally emerged in the Idaho Legislature on Wednesday, the compromise that is supposed to send lawmakers packing after 17 weeks.

There's no gas tax increase, as Gov. Butch Otter had wished, but instead a pastiche of legislation designed to raise $57 million for highway repair funding. The governor had wanted at least $75 million.

The deal's essential elements include:

- Higher administrative fees for the Division of Motor Vehicles — $13.1 million
- Removal of the ethanol tax exemption — $16.4 million
- Shifting funding from Idaho State Police to the general fund in fiscal year 2011 — $16.4 million
- Eliminating funding to Parks and Recreation from the gasoline tax — $4.83 million
- Allowing out-of-state trailers to be registered in Idaho — $2 million to $5 million

The key element in that package is the shift in ISP funding away from the Highway Distribution Account — money earmarked primarily for roads — to the General Fund.

The General Fund, a $2.7 billion kitty of tax revenue that pays for basic government, is a more appropriate place for an essential public need such as the state police. Trouble is, education, health and welfare and most other state services are paid for through the General Fund, which means that cops on the street could be competing with textbooks in the classroom for scarce dollars.

To avoid that in the long run, the Legislature has set up a task force to “identify alternative dedicated funding sources for the Idaho State Police and for the Idaho Department of Parks and Recreation on an ongoing basis to offset those funds shifted away ... to fund transportation.” It will include three members of the House and three from the Senate, plus the co-chairmen of the Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee.

There's a second task force in the works to look into modernizing transportation funding in Idaho. It's inevitable that among its recommendations will be raising the gasoline tax and probably vehicle registration fees as well.

But those alternatives simply weren't going to happen this session. At some point, the practical argument over whether now was the time to raise fuel taxes turned into a philosophical dispute between the House and the governor.

So at minimum, Idaho will have $57 million to fix the roads — all earmarked for the Idaho Transportation Department (another $17 million in federal stimulus money is likely to go the highway districts). That's not enough to put much of a dent in a backlog of highway repairs that now stands at between $140 million and $240 million, but it's sure better than nothing — which is what the Legislature appropriated for road repairs last session.

And it's sufficient, mercifully, to send this session of the Legislature home.

The most aggravating aspect of this compromise is that it contains nothing, at the 116th day of the session, that couldn't have been agreed upon after the 89th day, when the House defeated a 2 cents gas tax increase proposal. At $30,000 a day, the difference cost Idaho taxpayers $810,000.

In a recession, that's just too much investment in stubbornness and ego.

Who's to blame? For starters, Countrywide

If there was ever an economic climate in which to play the Blame Game for the financial meltdown of the century, we're wallowing in it.

Time magazine not long ago published its “25 People to Blame for the Financial Crisis.” It caught my eye, I must admit, if only to rant about the choices. No. 1 on the Time list is former Texas Sen. Phil Gramm, the same chap who last summer said we were in a “mental recession” and that we have “sort of become a nation of whiners.”

ROBERT TRIGAUX

At No. 3 is Angelo Mozilo, founder and former chief of the nation's biggest lender of subprime mortgages, Countrywide Financial. Bank of America bought Countrywide and is busy changing its name to a brand less tainted by irresponsible lending.

Mozilo's in great demand. Florida Attorney General Bill McCollum says Mozilo and Countrywide violated the state's deceptive trade practices act by placing consumers in loans they could not afford or with false or misleading rates. He wants Mozilo to come testify in a Florida court.

Which brings us to newer take on the Blame Game. An investigative report called Who's Behind the Financial Meltdown? was issued this week by the Center for Public Integrity. It identifies the top 25 originators of high-interest subprime loans, accounting for nearly $1 trillion, from 2005 through 2007.

Who's No. 1? Countrywide.

The nonprofit, nonpartisan center focuses on investigative research on public policy issues. It's backed by the Carnegie Corp. of New York, the Ford Foundation and the John D. and Catherine T. MacArthur Foundation, among other groups.

Here's what's most disturbing. All 25 of the top subprime lenders were mortgage companies like Countrywide, Ameriquest Mortgage and New Century Financial. They existed to make lots of mortgages but relied on someone else to provide their funding actual cash and capital to back mortgages they made.

It turns out that many of the companies funding these subprime mortgage lenders are the giant banks that are now getting bailed out with federal taxpayer and TARP funds.

The center found at least 21 of the 25 subprime lenders were financed by banks receiving bailout money through direct ownership, credit agreements, or buying loans for securitization.

“The mega-banks that funded the subprime industry were not victims of an unforeseen financial collapse, as they have sometimes portrayed themselves,” says Center for Public Integrity director Bill Buzenberg. “These banks were deliberate enablers that bankrolled the type of lending that's now threatening the financial system.”

According to the center's report, “U.S. and European investment banks invested enormous sums in subprime lending due to unceasing demand for high-yield, high-risk bonds backed by home mortgages. The banks made huge profits while their executives collected handsome bonuses until the bottom fell out of the real estate market.”

Investment banks Lehman Brothers, Merrill Lynch, JP Morgan & Co., and Citigroup Inc. owned and financed subprime lenders. Others, like Credit Suisse First Boston and Goldman Sachs, were big backers of subprime lenders.

Bailouts for the very clowns who fumbled this from the start? Unleash the dogs!

Student achievement results from the “nation's report card” published last week show that we are on the right track. Since enactment of the bipartisan No Child Left Behind Act, which called for all students to be on grade level in reading and math by 2014, students have been making progress in reading and math in elementary and middle school. Improvement has been greatest for African American and Hispanic students and those students who are lowest-achieving.

But in our high schools, the National Assessment of Educational Progress data tell a troubling story, especially in light of our need to compete in a global knowledge economy.

Scores continue to be flat for 17 year olds in both reading and math over the almost 30-year history of the test. We know that only half of African American and Hispanic students graduate from high school on time. Yet policy-makers have not had the courage to use the real accountability that is working in our elementary and middle schools in our high schools. It's no accident that the

MARGARET SPELLINGS

United States has had nine straight years of increasing scores for elementary school students. In the decades before No Child Left Behind was signed into law in 2002 and the state reforms that led to it, taxpayers spent hundreds of billions of dollars on education and hoped for the best. Since No Child Left Behind, we have expected results. The law required that every student in grades three through eight be assessed annually in reading and math, that those results be disaggregated and that the information be provided to educators and parents. And that is exactly the age group for which we are seeing results. Consider: In the 10 years since 1999, reading scores for 9 year olds have risen eight points; in the nearly three decades before that, scores rose only four points. In the past 10 years, math scores have increased 11 points, while in the nearly three decades prior, scores rose only 13 points.

Teachers and principals who have embraced accountability have made these increases possible. And while this is good progress, we should not be satisfied. The achievement gap continues to plague our country. Because of the state and federal assessment data we now have, we know precisely which districts, schools, teachers and students need help and which are doing well. We've diagnosed the problem — the approximately 4,000 schools that have failed to meet their annual goals for five straight years and the 2,000 high schools that produce more than half of all dropouts. Now we have to deal with those chronically low-performing schools — the ones that need more than just tinkering around the edges.

That's why it is troubling that instead of fixing our lowest-performing schools, policy-makers are diverting their attention toward discussing the need to raise standards to international levels. Do a significant number of states need to raise the bar? Yes, and I am hopeful that this rhetoric will lead to better, clearer, higher expectations for every student. I'm also for more sophisticated ways of measuring achievement and rewarding teachers who do the hardest work and get results. But we must not let up on an accountability approach that is showing results. As we focus on raising the bar, we must work urgently to turn around the schools that don't even meet minimal standards.

In the coming months, we will hear discussions about postponing grade-level achievement for all students by 2014. We will hear calls for more resources beyond the $100 billion in education funding in the federal stimulus package. We will hear that America cannot make further improvements in education until we spend more on the social safety net. We will hear lots of talk that, when boiled down, amounts to retreat from meaningful accountability and would delay requirements that our kids perform on grade level. Turning our attention away from the problem at hand will only slow down or stop the gains we are seeing across the country. Our children deserve better than that.

America's shame: 14-year-old prostitutes

ATLANTA — Jasmine Caldwell was 14 and selling sex on the streets when an opportunity arose to escape her pimp. An undercover policeman picked her up.

NICHOLAS KRISTOF

The cop could have rescued her from the pimp, who ran a string of 13 girls and took every cent they earned. If the cop had taken Jasmine to a shelter, she could have resumed her education and tried to put her life back in order.

Instead, the policeman showed her his handcuffs and threatened to send her to prison. Terrified, she cried and pleaded not to be jailed. Then, she said, he offered to release her in exchange for sex.

Afterward, the policeman returned her to the street. Then her pimp beat her up for failing to collect any money. "That happens a lot," said Jasmine, who is now 21. "The cops sometimes just want to blackmail you into having sex."

I've often reported on sex trafficking in other countries, and that has made me curious about the situation here in the United States. Prostitution in America isn't as brutal as it is in, say, India, Nepal, Pakistan, Cambodia and Malaysia (where young girls are routinely kidnapped, imprisoned and tortured by brothel owners, occasionally even killed). But the scene on American streets is still appalling — and it continues largely because neither the authorities nor society as a whole show much interest in 14-year-old girls pimped on the streets.

If a middle-class white girl goes missing, radio stations broadcast amber alerts, and cable TV fills the air with "missing beauty" updates. But 13-year-old black or Latina girls from poor neighborhoods vanish all the time, and the pimps are among the few people who show any interest.

These domestic girls are often runaways or those called "throwaways" by social workers: teenagers who fight with their parents and are then kicked out of the home. These girls tend to be much younger than the women trafficked from abroad and, as best I can tell, are more likely to be controlled by force.

Pimps are not the business partners they purport to be. They typically take every penny the girls earn. They work the girls seven nights a week. They sometimes tattoo their girls the way ranchers brand their cattle, and they back up their business model with fists and threats.

"If you don't earn enough money, you get beat," said Jasmine, an African-American who has turned her life around with the help of Covenant House, an organization that works with children on the street.

The business model of pimping is remarkably similar whether in Atlanta or Calcutta: Take vulnerable, disposable girls whom nobody cares about, use a mix of "friendship," humiliation, beatings, narcotics and threats to break the girls and induce 100 percent compliance, and then rent out their body parts.

It's not solely violence that keeps the girls working for their pimps. Jasmine fled an abusive home at age 13, and she said she — like most girls — stayed with the pimp mostly because of his emotional manipulation. "I thought he loved me, so I wanted to be around him," she said.

That's common. Girls who are starved of self-esteem finally meet a man who showers them with gifts, drugs and dollops of affection. That, and a lack of alternatives, keeps them working for him — and if that isn't enough, he shows a gun in the girl's mouth and threatens to kill her.

Solutions are complicated and involve broader efforts to overcome urban poverty, including improving schools and attempting to shore up the family structure. But a first step is to stop treating these teenagers as criminals and focusing instead on arresting the pimps and the customers — and the corrupt cops.

"The problem isn't the girls in the streets; it's the men in the pews," notes Stephanie Davis, who has worked with Mayor Shirley Franklin to help coordinate a campaign to get teenage prostitutes off the streets.

Two amiable teenage prostitutes, working without a pimp for the "fast money," told me that there will always be women and girls selling sex voluntarily. They're probably right. But we can significantly reduce the number of 14-year-old girls who are terrorized by pimps and raped by many men seven nights a week. That's doable, if it's a national priority, if we're willing to create the equivalent of a nationwide amber alert.

To save jobs, kill the death tax

Few taxes raise less revenue or make less sense than the federal estate tax. It is scheduled to be eliminated temporarily — for 2010 — only to reappear in 2011, and it has been a sore spot to family business owners since its inception. Research shows that these concerns are legitimate — and, if anything, understated.

DOUGLAS HOLTZ-EAKIN

Faced with the sunset provision, the White House would like to lock in the current tax rate permanently — 45 percent of total assets over $3.5 million at the time of death. At the same time, some members of Congress are pressing to raise the rate and lower the exclusion, while others would like to do just the reverse.

One thing's for sure: Something needs to be done. The uncertainty helps no one.

In this instance, policymakers should put aside partisanship and politics and base their decisions on what we know about how the estate tax affects the economy.

We know that high estate-tax rates provide small-business owners with a powerful incentive to limit the size of their companies. Why would a business owner want to expand his or her company beyond a certain size if the end result would be a large "death tax" bill that would negate much of the hard work and sacrifices the owner and the owner's family made?

We know, too, that many business owners, faced with the tax, will make the rational decision to spend their business's profits rather than reinvest in the company.

We also know that if profits aren't being pumped back into businesses, and the businesses aren't growing, they also are not hiring.

All this is important. According to a recent survey by the Robert H. Smith School of Business at the University of Maryland and Network Solutions of Herndon, Va., even as the economy was plummeting last year, about 69 percent of small businesses were reporting profits.

Today, the roughly 27 million small businesses in the United States employ more than 40 million workers, according to the Census Bureau. Some estimates place the total number of employees closer to 50 million.

Using a back-of-the-envelope calculation, if just a fraction of the profitable small businesses — say 1 in 10 — added just one additional employee in the coming year, we would be talking about the creation of more than 1.8 million jobs.

But, because of estate taxes, the incentive for many small businesses is to not expand, even in good times.

If lawmakers are really concerned about creating jobs, eliminating the estate tax would be a sensible next step.

Douglas Holtz-Eakin served as director of the Congressional Budget Office from 2003 to 2005. He wrote this commentary for the Los Angeles Times.

California wildfire burns 75 homes in Santa Barbara

By Jeff Wilson
Associated Press writer

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. — Paradise is not lost, but it's in flames — again.

The seasonal wildfires that menace this idyllic coastal city roared to life earlier than usual but with all-too-familiar ferocity, damaging or destroying 75 homes and forcing about 12,000 people to flee.

"I knew it was time to leave," said Tom Morse, 62, a day after he dusted off his motorhome as the fire neared his Mission Canyon Heights house. "I could see the flames getting close."

The fire was just the latest to ravage the area known as the American Riviera, home to screen stars, former presidents and Oprah Winfrey. The blaze reached the burn area of another wildfire that just six months ago destroyed about 200 homes in Santa Barbara and Montecito.

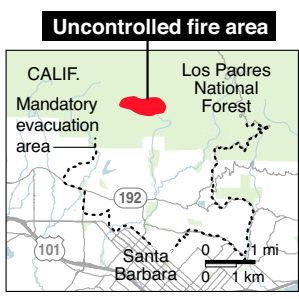

By day's end, state officials said the latest fire grew from 1,300 acres to more than 2,700 acres — roughly 4 square miles. Firefighters were on alert for a predicted return of a "sundowner" — fierce winds that late in the day can sweep down from the Santa Ynez Mountains towering close behind Santa Barbara.

The wind did kick up, but it blew from the ocean pushing the fire up into the mountains and away from homes.

A sundowner on Wednesday afternoon turned a slumbering brush fire on rugged slopes above the city into a towering wildfire that hurled flames into homes and spit embers into more distant neighborhoods.

About 4,700 homes remained evacuated, and another 12,000 people were advised to be ready to leave.

"It started firestorming dramatically," said Gregg but two faced surgery. Other injuries ranged from smoke inhalation to ankle sprains.

Structure losses were still being counted but the numbers were expected to be in the dozens, not hundreds, said Joe Waterman, the incident commander from the California Department of Forestry and Fire Protection.

Franklin said the destruction during Wednesday's firestorm could have been much worse.

"There maybe should have been hundreds of homes lost due to the amount of fuel in that canyon and the 70 mph winds," he said. "There was some real effort made on that fire front and some real saves that the firefighters made out there?"

Patronyk, a lifelong Santa Barbara resident who grabbed a hose and started wetting his roof when he saw other houses ablaze. "The fire got within 200 to 300 feet of my house.

"There was a lot of pressure to leave," he said. "Police wanted me out and I got a frantic call from my sister, who was walking up the hill to get me. So I packed up the car and left, picking her up on the way?"

About 2,300 firefighters from many departments were on the lines, aided by aircraft. The fire was just 10 percent contained.

Authorities reported 10 firefighters injured, including three who sheltered in a house during a firestorm. They were in good condition at a Los Angeles burn center

Sutherland charged over head-butt incident

NEW YORK (AP) — Kiefer Sutherland was charged with misdemeanor assault Thursday for allegedly head-butting a fashion designer at a Manhattan nightclub.

The star of Fox television's "24" reported to a lower Manhattan police station in a Lincoln Town Car with his lawyers, but he did not speak to reporters.

Sutherland

Sutherland, 42, was interviewed by investigators, given a ticket, ordered to appear in court June 22 and released on his own recognizance. The minor charge is akin to a speeding ticket.

But the case could create another major legal hassle for Sutherland, who served 48 days in jail on a drunken-driving charge in California last year.

The designer, Jack McCollough of the high-end Proenza Schouler fashion house, claims that Sutherland attacked him after an argument, leaving him with a cut on his face. The alleged assault happened at about 2 a.m. Tuesday.

Detectives were planning to question actress Brooke Shields as a witness because she was at the trendy SoHo nightclub SubMercer, in the basement of the Mercer Hotel, where the altercation took place. Drinks at the ultra-hip club cost around $15.

No decision has been made on whether the charge will affect Sutherland's probation for a drunken-driving conviction in Los Angeles, said Frank Mateljan, a spokesman for the Los Angeles City Attorney.

Idaho Power foresaw tough times ahead

Utility has begun lengthy process of restructuring operations

By Joshua Palmer
Times-News writer

Idaho Power saw warning signs in February 2008 that the national recession was weighing on the company's operations.

Concerns among the utility's leadership prompted south-central Idaho's largest power provider to restructure its operations, said company officials in a conference call with shareholders on Thursday.

Officials said significantly slower growth in Idaho Power's residential and commercial customer base, and the rising cost of infrastructure improvements, forced the company to cut up to 40 jobs and freeze salaries for senior management.

During 2008, Idaho Power added about 4,000 residential customers, about a 1 percent growth rate and the slowest rate of growth since 1989, said Stephanie McCurdy, corporate communications specialist with Idaho Power.

The residential segment of the company's customer base represents 36 percent of total electrical usage.

In response to the economic challenges facing the company, Idaho Power announced Wednesday that it would cut or seek voluntary severance of up to 40 employees.

"We have identified and notified 165 employees in the delivery and customer support areas that we're looking for 30 to 40 employees to agree to voluntary severance,"

McCurdy said. "If (the employees) choose this option, there won't be a need for phase two."

She said phase two would consist of "redeploying" employees to other areas within the company that are experiencing growth.

Officials do not yet know what parts of the state will be effected.

Idaho Power began tightening its budgets in 2008 by deferring some infrastructure projects,

Wal-Mart gains market share as consumers look for lower prices

By Anne D'Innocenzio

NEW YORK — Consumers enticed by warmer weather and glimmers of hope for the economy bought a few more items in April, helping discounter Wal-Mart Stores and many mall clothing chains post better results for the month than expected.

Business in many areas remains weak, however, and analysts expect a slow recovery as unemployment remains high and other economic woes persist.

Among merchants that reported sales Thursday, mall-based clothing stores including Gap, American Eagle and Wet Seal posted smaller declines than ana-

New jobless claims hit a 14-week low

By Martin Crutsinger
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — New applications for jobless benefits plunged to the lowest level in 14 weeks, a further indication that the massive wave of layoffs has peaked. Still, the number of unemployed workers getting benefits climbed to a new record.

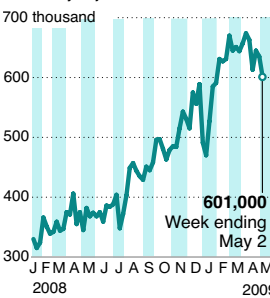

The Labor Department reported Thursday that the number of newly laid off workers applying for benefits dropped to 601,000 last week. That was far better than the rise to 635,000 claims that economists expected.

But the total number of people receiving jobless

Idaho campaign to market 'culinary tourism'

SUN VALLEY — The state of Idaho is about to let the world in on a long-running secret: That there's more in Idaho's food basket than its famous potatoes.

In fact, Idaho has 140 different crops, with the dairy and cheese industry in the Magic Valley leading the way, said Diane Norton, a marketing developer for the Idaho Division of Tourism.

Norton told those attending the Idaho Conference on Recreation and Tourism going on this week at Sun Valley that the division of tourism plans to capitalize on the burgeoning nationwide interest in culinary tourism that attracts 27 million travelers each year.

More than wine tastings or wine tours, culinary tourism includes cooking classes, farmers markets, food festivals, gourmet food shopping and unique dining experiences.

To promote it, the division of tourism is creating an online culinary portal on its website where they will list culinary events around the state, such as the potato runs in Eastern Idaho and a new tour combining Idaho whitewater rafting trips with Idaho wines.

"We want to build it up in September, October and November — our shoulder season," Norton said.

The portal will feature guided and self-guided culinary tours, among other things.

"Byway bites" — unique culinary opportunities — will be highlighted along scenic byways such as the Snake River Canyon Scenic Byway and the Sawtooth Scenic Byway.

And each of Idaho's seven regions will be given its own culinary names.

To get Idahoans thinking about the unique culinary experiences they can offer, the state's Agriculture Department has organized

The nation's greatest cheeses that you didn't know were made in S.C. Idaho

Glanbia Foods, the world's largest producer of American-style cheddar cheese, won a record-breaking eight awards for making some of the best cheese in the United States.

Glanbia earned two gold, four silver and two bronze medals at the recent 2009 U.S. Championship Cheese

BIZ BITES
Josh Palmer

Contest held in Wisconsin.

Glanbia's cheeses won their categories from over

1,336 entries from around the country.

A panel of independent judges evaluated entries on numerous cheese attributes including texture, body, color, taste and finish.

"Glanbia's Twin Falls plant has earned an unprecedented number of medals this year for producing superior quality cheeses, some of the best this country has to offer," said Jeff Williams, president and chief executive officer of Glanbia Foods. "Our 640 employees and the 200 dairy farms that supply Glanbia with premium quality milk should be very proud of these national recognitions for making outstanding cheese."

Glanbia Foods is the largest American-style cheddar cheese manufacturer in the world.

Between Glanbia and its joint venture Southwest Cheese, the company processes approximately 20 million pounds of milk every day into cheese and whey products from three world-class cheese manufacturing and whey processing facilities in Twin Falls, Gooding and Richfield — resulting in more than 700 million pounds of cheese and 125 million pounds of dairy ingredients annually.

AIG 1st-quarter loss narrows to $4.35 billion

NEW YORK (AP) - Battered insurer American International Group Inc. said Thursday its first-quarter loss narrowed, and was sharply lower than the record-setting loss it posted a quarter ago.

The New York-based insurance giant said it lost $4.35 billion, or $1.98 per share, during the quarter ended March 31, compared with $7.81 billion, or $3.09 per share, during the same quarter last year.

AIG lost $61.7 billion during the fourth quarter - the most ever in a quarter by a U.S. corporation - amid the mushrooming credit crisis and shortly after its near collapse. AIG's first-quarter operating loss, which excludes impairment and accounting charges, totaled $1.6 billion, or 97 cents per share. The impairment charge for the quarter totaled $2.63 billion.

several farmer-chef collaborations, or mini-trade shows, in places like Sun Valley, Sandpoint and Idaho Falls, said Leah Clark, who heads up the state's Idaho Preferred division.

Last week, the state even held a farm-to-school collaborative in Jerome where producers sought to convince school officials that they could serve students homegrown products like Idaho trout.

The Agriculture Department has also joined hands with the Tourism Division to bring in writers from around the world to showcase Idaho sturgeon, alligator, elk and other foods.

"These efforts are huge for helping small producers like myself," said Joe Schnerr, who owns a small Boise winery called Cinder. "People are connecting to products because of a story. So the more stories we put out there the better."

Dawn Sanders, regional advertising manager for Sunset Publishing Company, said Idahoans should soon see "As seen in Sunset Magazine" stickers appearing in businesses whose products are featured in the magazine.

Idaho needn't market just its highbrow dining experiences, she added. That means promoting the taco

Buhl High School principal takes job at Canyon Ridge

By Blair Koch
Times-News correspondent

BUHL — With just one more year before graduating, Buhl High School junior Chelsea Alvey was looking forward to having current Principal Mike Gemar see her class off.

Now that Gemar, who has been with the district for more than 26 years, recently announced his resignation Alvey said she's sorry to see him go.

"I really liked Mr. Gemar. He likes to talk to students and be involved, that was fun," said the 17-year-old. "I've known him for quite awhile. I've gone to Buhl since kindergarten and he's always been around."

Alvey said Gemar's history with students is special and isn't looking forward to "starting over with someone new."

Although Gemar, 51, will miss the students in Buhl he is looking forward to helping Canyon Ridge High School start fresh.

The high school is now under construction in Twin Falls and will be open in the fall. Gemar will serve as the school's vice principal.

"It's just a career move," Gemar said of his decision to leave Buhl. "I think (Canyon Ridge) will be a fun challenge. It's unique, literally, to open a brand new school that didn't exist."

Gemar said he is looking forward to working with Twin Falls officials to help Canyon Ridge develop a tradition the school will carry forward.

"We'll be having formal meetings in the near future. Right now there are just some ideas being formulated to make Canyon Ridge successful," Gemar said. "I look forward to being a part of that."

The move to a new district is a first for Gemar. He began his teaching and administration tenure in Buhl directly after graduating college. His many positions within the district include high school athletic director, dean of students for the elementary and high schools, health, gym and special education teacher and special education director.

BLAIR KOCH/For the Times-News

Buhl High School Principal Mike Gemar responds to 'millions of e-mails' in his office on Tuesday. Gemar recently resigned as principal of the school to take a position as the vice principal at Canyon Ridge High School in Twin Falls, which opens to students in the fall. He has worked in the Buhl district for more than 26 years.

For the past three years Gemar has served as BHS principal.

While the district searches to find a replacement for Gemar, his colleagues are just enjoying the last of his time at the school.

"He's been in the district for so long, he knows the kids and the families, has a history," said BHS Administrative Assistant Kathy Schofield. "It is going to be different without his being here?"

Lucky for Canyon Ridge, Alvey said, they won't be disappointed in Gemar's being there.

Local Kiwanis club admits first honorary member

Times-News

A visually impaired woman and her service dog have been named as the Kiwanis Club of Twin Falls' first-ever honorary members.

Marianne Schmidt and her golden Labrador, Poncho, received the honor April 16 during a club meeting at the Turf Club in Twin Falls.

The Kiwanis mission revolves around children, and Schmidt recently shared with the group how service dogs can assist autistic kids, said member Bob Rynbrand.

"She became an honorary member for working with children with autism and teaching us."

Schmidt works as a developmental specialist at Magic Valley Rehabilitation Services Inc. in Twin Falls and said Friday she appreciates the honor.

"It was a nice thing," said Schmidt. "They were so receptive when I came and introduced Poncho. I thought it was a good connection to help."

The local Kiwanis club has about 90 members, and Schmidt's dues are waived, Rynbrand said.

Reader prefers natural treatments, found doctor who agrees

DEAR DR. GOTT: I am a 54-year-old male. I really enjoy when someone writes to you about an over-the-counter remedy to a problem by utilizing vitamins. You are willing to listen without putting the person down.

I recently had my HMO change my assigned physician to one who was a little more open to options that am enjoying naturally compounded hormones and a variety of vitamin and herbal supplements. My insurance does not want to pay the $75 a month for the hormones, but if I opted for a synthetic pharmaceutical for $300 a month, they would pay for it. Insurance and pharmaceutical corporations and their K Street lobbyists have a stronghold on our country thanks to corrupt politicians.

DEAR READER: To begin with, every person has different needs and expectations when it comes to physicians. Some people prefer females, some males; others want an older, more established doctor rather than one younger with the newest training available. It's what makes us human. I'm glad you found someone who shares your views when it comes to your personal care.

There are many instances in which the appropriate treatment for a condition is physician-prescribed medication. Intense medical training has programmed every physician to appreciate the years of research that preceded the manufacture of certain drugs for the treatment of hundreds of serious conditions. We cannot deny that, and thank heavens the research has been done and the medications are available. The combination has saved millions

The fact that all drugs carry side effects is another issue. Most people don't experience nasty side effects, and, for the most part, they work as intended.

There are many instances, however, in which a vitamin or herbal supplement might suffice without the use of expensive prescription drugs. It is important to accept alternatives. People are often afraid to express opinions to their personal physician for fear of offending him or her. An over-the-counter remedy is one way in which they can avoid this. Thank you for writing.

Peter Gott is a retired physician and the author of the book "Dr. Gott's No Flour, No Sugar Diet."

Jay R. Grijalva

Jay R. Grijalva, of Twin Falls, went home to be with his heavenly father on Tuesday, May 5, 2009, with his loving family by his side.

As much as Jay's family and friends wanted to share one more fishing trip, camping trip to the South Hills or one more laugh with him, they accept the end of his journey and admire the dignity he had during his final days.

Jay was born to Jess and Paula (Bacon) Grijalva on Dec. 27, 1967, in Twin Falls. He attended school in Kimberly and Filer and spent most of his youth in Hansen.

Jay's passions were fishing, camping, biking and gardening with his family. Jay idolized his dad and looked forward to the fishing trips and just about anywhere his dad wanted to take him. He loved to tinker with just about anything that would come apart. It was a challenge to see how it worked and if he could get it back together again.

Jay is survived by the love of his life of 16 years, Linda Peterson of Twin Falls; two stepchildren, James and Brittany Peterson of Twin Falls; his parents, Jess and Paula Grijalva of Twin Falls; two brothers, Duane (Bridgett) Grijalva of Packwood, Iowa, and Jason (Corie) Grijalva of Twin Falls; one sister, Cheline (Grijalva) Fenerty of Mount Juliet, Tenn.; grandfather, James J. McMichael of Boise; and several aunts, uncles, cousins, nieces, nephews and a grandbaby to be. He was preceded in death by one sister, his paternal grandparents, maternal grandparents, and several aunts and uncles.

Jay will be missed and greatly loved by all who knew him. Rest in Peace, Chunk, we love you!!!!

A service will be held at 2 p.m. Friday, May 8, at White Mortuary in Twin Falls. In lieu of flowers, a donation to help the family can be given to White Mortuary.

Lyndell was born Jan. 26, 1944, in Wendell, to Kenneth James and Pauline Pearl Lehmann. Lyndell attended schools in Wendell. At an early age, he started work hauling hay; this work continued for most of his working career as a farm and ranch hand for many operations in the Castleford and Buhl areas. He drove truck for Blick Trucking and retired in 2003 due to health concerns.

Lyndell met the love of his life, Janet Ruyts, and they spent many happy years together. Janet passed away in 1990. He adopted Janet's grandkids and remained close to them through the rest of his life. He had an outgoing personality and loved kids. He knew everyone in town, especially in the agriculture community. Lyndell spent two years in Alaska and came home with a lot of big fish stories.

Lyndell was preceded in death by his parents; brothers, James, Marlin and Dennis; sister, Charlene; and life partner, Janet Ruyts. He is survived by a daughter, Tracey Franzen; stepdaughter, Kathy Ruyts; grandchildren, Cherith, Gavin, Tyler, Mason and Makayla; step granddaughters, Sonia Ruyts and Veronica West; step grandson, Jason Southwick; brothers, Steve Lehmann and Randall Lehmann; sisters, Cheryl Fahrenwald, Penny Miner, Novella Crandall and Lynetta Mavencamp; and many nieces and nephews.

The funeral will be at 4:30 p.m. Friday, May 8, at Farmer Funeral Chapel in Buhl.

AROUND THE NATION

Ray Nance, 94, last surviving D-Day Bedford Boy, dies

Ray Nance, the last surviving member of a group of central Virginia National Guardsmen from World War II who came to be known as the Bedford Boys, died of congestive heart failure April 19 at the Elks National Home in Bedford, said his wife, Alpha. He was 94.

Long after Nance, then a 29-year-old Army first lieutenant, waded ashore on Normandy on June 6, 1944, the retired postal worker and son of a tobacco farmer remained haunted by dreams of D-Day that would wake him in the middle of the night with memories of his hometown friends whose lives ended far too soon. Nineteen of his fellow Bedford soldiers in Company A of the 29th Infantry Division's 116th Regiment died, most of whom were killed within the first half-hour.

"It's been with me all these years, and it hasn't been good for me," Nance told the Virginian-Pilot in 2001, the year the National D-Day Memorial was dedicated in Bedford, a site chosen because of the town's collective loss on the day Allied forces invaded Europe.

Colorful Mississippi mayor dies days after primary loss

JACKSON, Miss. — Right or wrong, Frank Melton did things his way.

The flamboyant mayor of Mississippi's largest city refused to back down, whether he was posting pictures of drug dealers on billboards or leading a sledgehammer attack on a duplex he considered a crack house. If nothing else, he was passionate, maybe too passionate, especially in his unorthodox fight against crime.

Melton died early Thursday, two days after he was whisked from his home in an ambulance just as the polls closed in his unsuccessful re-election bid.

Melton was 60. Funeral arrangements are incomplete and his family has not released a cause of death. He had a history of heart problems and reportedly refused to be considered for a transplant.

His death denied federal prosecutors another chance to try to put him behind bars. He was to stand trial Monday for leading a 2006 vigilante-style raid on the duplex, which he said was a haven for drug dealing and prostitution. A judge indicated Thursday the case would be dismissed.

'Wizard of Oz' Munchkin Mickey Carroll dies at 89

ST. LOUIS — Mickey Carroll, one of the last surviving Munchkins from the 1939 beloved film "The Wizard of Oz," died Thursday. He was 89.

His caretaker, Linda Dodge, said Carroll died in his sleep at her home in suburban Crestwood. He had heart problems and received a pacemaker in February. Until January, he had lived in his own home in suburban Bel-Nor.

Carroll was one of more than 100 adults and children who were recruited to play the movie natives of what author L. Frank Baum called Munchkin Country in his 1900 book "The Wonderful Wizard of Oz."

Carroll told The Associated Press in a 2007 interview that the Munchkins made only $125 a week while filming the movie that would become a classic.

"The Wizard of Oz" was Carroll's only movie. When it appeared on television in the 1960s, he found a new career at charitable events, retail events and Oz-related events.

"It's not me; it's the movie," Carroll said. "When they see me, they think of their childhood, and it makes them smile."

Venetia Phair, who named planet Pluto, dies at 90

LONDON — Venetia Phair, who was 11 years old when she suggested Pluto as the name of the newly discovered planet, has died at age 90, her family said.

She died at home in Epsom on April 30, the family said; the cause of death was not disclosed. The family said a funeral would be held on Friday.

Born Venetia Burney, she suggested the name to her grandfather at breakfast in 1930.

"My grandfather, as usual, opened the paper, The Times, and in it he read that a new planet had been discovered. He wondered what it should be called. We all wondered," she recalled in a short film, "Naming Pluto," released earlier this year.

"And then I said, 'why not call it Pluto?' And the whole thing stemmed from that."

Flu hysteria? Some say officials 'cried swine'

By Lindsey Tanner and Mike Stobbe
Associated Press writers

CHICAGO — Did government health officials "cry swine" when they sounded the alarm on what looked like a threatening new flu?

Students, from left, Sammy Arne, Alix Gast and Kyle Edwards ride bikes outside Fred Moiola Elementary School, Monday in Fountain Valley, Calif. The school was closed for swine flu sanitizing.

The so-far mild swine flu outbreak has many people saying all the talk about a devastating global epidemic was just fear-mongering hype. But that's not how public health officials see it, calling complacency the thing that keeps them up at night.

Students, from left, Sammy Arne, Alix Gast and Kyle Edwards ride bikes outside Fred Moiola Elementary School, Monday in Fountain Valley, Calif. The school was closed for swine flu sanitizing.

The World Health Organization added a scary-sounding warning Thursday, predicting up to 2 billion people could catch the new flu if the outbreak turns into a global epidemic.

at the start based on early reports of an aggressive and deadly flu in Mexico. Miranda Smith, whose graduation ceremony at Cisco Junior College in central Texas was canceled to avoid spreading the flu, blames the media.

Many blame such alarms and the breathless media coverage for creating an overreaction that disrupted many people's lives.

"I don't know anyone who has it. I haven't met anyone who knows anyone who contracted it," said Carl Shepherd, a suburban Chicago video producer and father of two. "It's really frightening more people than it should have. It's like crying wolf."

Schools shut down, idling even healthy kids and forcing parents to stay home from work; colleges scaled back or even canceled graduation ceremonies; a big Cinco de Mayo celebration in Chicago was canned; face masks and hand sanitizers

Two weeks after news broke about the new flu strain, there have been 46 deaths — 44 in Mexico and two in the United States. More than 2,300 are sick in 26 countries, including about 900 U.S. cases. Those are much lower numbers than were feared

CONNECTICUT
Police talked to, freed shooting suspect

MIDDLETOWN — The day after Johanna Justin-Jinich was gunned down, as police warned her alleged killer might be a threat to the Wesleyan University and Jewish communities, sources revealed that police talked to the man now identified as the suspect and let him go.

Police late Thursday were still looking for Stephen Morgan, whose family called a news conference in Massachusetts to urge him to turn himself in. Middletown police have obtained a warrant for Morgan's arrest; the U.S. Marshals and Wesleyan are offering a $10,000 reward for information leading to Morgan's capture; and officials at Wesleyan said the campus will begin to resume a normal routine Friday.

His family is "shocked and sickened by the tragedy," Stephen Morgan's youngest sister, Diana Morgan, told The Associated Press outside the family's home in Marblehead, Mass. The family urged Morgan to "avoid any further bloodshed."

According to law enforcement sources, shortly after Justin-Jinich's brutal slaying, Middletown police obtained Morgan's name and contact information, but then let him go. Morgan wore a disguise,

Annual Lucy Stricker celebration a sure hit for Mother's Day

By Blair Koch

Times-News correspondent

Lucy Stricker wasn't born on Mother's Day. But when the holiday was declared and recognized nationally around the turn of the last century, she merged the observances and invited the pioneering community out for a picnic.

On Sunday, celebrate your mom by treating her to a social Lucy Stricker herself would be proud of — the annual Mother's Day event featuring great food, entertainment and relaxing ambiance. The event is at the historical Rock Creek Station and Stricker home-site, tucked into the rolling foothills south of Kimberly and Hansen.

For a suggested lunch donation of $8, visitors can lounge in the sprawling lawn — just yards from Rock Creek —

See STRICKER, Entertainment 2

Enjoy Mother's Day from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Sunday at Stricker Ranch, 3715 E. 3200 N. (south of U.S. Highway 30 near Kimberly and Hansen).

While you're there, watch for these historical nuances throughout the structure:

- Keep your eye open for the newly refurbished front door. The ornate wooden door includes primary-colored stained glass sent to the Strickers from Germany in the early 1900s, when the home was built.
- The home also features original Sears, Roebuck-produced door frames. The wooden frames have intricately sculptured details throughout and are prominent in the home's sitting room, parlor and dining room.
- Speaking of the dining room, closed to the public until this weekend, watch for the built-in China hutch — telling of the century-old architecture.
- The stairway leading to the second story is also an indicator of building practices prominent during the time: steep and narrow. Take them anyway, and enjoy Victorian pastel paint adorning the many bedrooms on the second floor.
- Original Stricker furniture is salted throughout the home, giving an intimate look into daily life on this prominent Magic Valley frontier property.

While watching the music video for Jamie Foxx's "Blame It," keep an eye out for the Idahoans on the dance floor.

It's hard to see the sisters in the red-tinted club setting, but they're in there, gyrating and writhing with Foxx, rapper T-Pain and the rest of the dancers.

Keesha and Riquel Olander moved to Los Angeles separately to pursue their dancing dreams. Between the music videos, concerts and choreography gigs, their plans are panning out well.

Both sisters started their dance careers at Nielsen School of Dance in Twin Falls. At 17, Keesha moved to Los Angeles to attend Edge School of Performing Arts. She danced up to 12 hours a day and worked to get noticed without an agent.

The hard work paid off. R&B singer Tyrese hired Keesha, now 25, as a dancer, then choreographer. Soon, she was touring with Tyrese and networking with pop

The show goes on: Arts in southern Idaho strong despite economy

By Erica Littlefield
Times-News correspondent

In southern Idaho, the show goes on.

Local arts organizations are thriving, despite the national recession. Audiences and monetary support for arts events have remained steady, organizers say. Kathy Ruyts, owner and facilitator of the Eighth Street Center in Buhl, believes people will continue to take advantage of the variety of music, theater and art Magic Valley has to offer, even when money is tight.

"There's still momentum in the local area," said Ruyts. "In these challenging times, it's very important to continue exploring creativity and the arts."

At this time last year, many local arts groups were reducing their budgets and making other adjustments in anticipation of a tough year. To combat the potential downturn in business, some started offering new programs and activities to draw in more people. Robin Dober, owner of Twin Falls pottery studio Hands On, recently started a monthly teen night, and she waives the studio fee at her monthly Coffee House Nights.

"It's a bargain, because they're getting more for their money," Dober said. "I'm always trying to come up with new programs and ideas."

Camille Barigar, fine arts special events coordinator for the College of Southern Idaho, said she anticipated a decrease in ticket sales for Arts on Tour productions this year, but four of the six shows sold out. Barigar said ticket sales were on par with last year's, which was a record-breaker for the performance series.

"There doesn't seem to be any slowing down in what our patrons expect,"

Classical music: Mendelssohn's 'Elijah'

Seen May 1 at College of Southern Idaho Fine Arts Auditorium

The Magic Valley Symphony, Magic Valley Chorale and Twin Falls High School Chamber Singers, filling the entire stage, poured forth volume and marvelous blendings of voice and instrument in the performance of this sacred oratorio. The printed lyrics were greatly appreciated and helpful in dissecting the many layers.

Cowboy music: Bar J Wranglers, in Mini-Cassia Community Concert series

Seen May 1 at Burley's King Fine Arts Center

The Magic Valley audience for these cowboy troubadours is a loyal and enthusiastic one. No wonder: Wyoming's Wranglers bring amazing vocal melodies and instrumentals. And they're funny. But this time around, their jokes lacked something in freshness; hopefully they'll develop new comedy material before their next trip to southern Idaho.

Show was well done (of course, it's Jerome High School). The kids demonstrated their talents and performed with energy and enthusiasm, providing an evening of great entertainment. Jonica Hovey (Miss Adelaide), Scott Hall (Nathan Detroit), Tom Crozier (Harry the Horse) and the rest (can't list everyone) were super, again.

Ponder Hemingway prose at Brown Bag Lecture in Twin Falls

Times-News

Writing teacher Ted Dyer will speak on "Unlocking the Secrets of Hemingway's Prose Style" at the fifth lecture in Magic Valley Arts Council's 2009 Brown Bag Lecture Series, at noon May 29 at Twin Falls Public Library.

Dyer

"Join us to penetrate the mysteries of the famous prose style of Ernest Hemingway," the arts council's announcement says. "Experience the shock of the new, in the same manner that Hemingway's readers did in the 1920s, when his very influential brand of Modernism captured America's literary imagination."

Dyer teaches writing for the Hailey extension of the College of Southern Idaho, and literature for Idaho State University's Department of Continuing Education. Dyer has taught Hemingway and Pound for both schools and has worked as a freelance lecturer on Hemingway since 1990. Dyer is a member of the Ezra Pound Association, an organization devoted to the preservation of Pound's birthplace in Hailey. He also is a freelance journalist and musician.

The free lecture is open to the public. Bring a brown bag lunch, or pre-order a box lunch by May 28, at 734-2787.

Dance

When now-21-year-old Riquel moved to Los Angeles 2 1/2 years ago, she worked her way up with a little help from her sister, who introduced her to industry contacts. She didn't need help for all her endeavors, though — twice, Riquel tried out for the Fox hit reality show "So You Think You Can Dance," almost making it to the final round both times before getting cut.

Now, the sisters regularly perform together. In addition to the "Blame It" video, they have danced for Kanye West and hip-hop group Stix.

The sisters credit their hometown for keeping them grounded in the big city, where Keesha said young, naive hopefuls looking for fame often end up in jobs they regret.

"I'm so grateful for Twin Falls, Idaho," Riquel said. "Basically, for my sister and I both, it humbled us. We had our heads on straight before we left."

ly. As a choreographer, she hires her own dancers and works on projects for different artists and can stay put in Los Angeles.

Riquel, however, is ready to keep dancing.

"It is so much about who you know and how you look, but at the same time, if you just never give up, your time will come," Riquel said. "It's so important to truly realize, if your mind's set, that nobody can ever stop you from doing what you want to do."

for an authentic barbeque lunch, listen to the Gem State Fiddlers, enjoy many historical stories and oral histories and try their luck at tomahawk throwing.

The Oregon Trail Muzzle Loaders will be on site for black powder demonstrations, and a variety of local artisans are lined up to sell their wares. Visitors may tour the home and meander around Twin Falls County's oldest building: the Rock Creek Store, built in 1865.

Fred Tate of Gem State Fiddlers said the group will likely play tunes from the period of Stricker's prime.

"We never know what exactly we play until we get there ... songs are played based on what pops into our heads, at the time," Tate said. "Personally, I like 'Whistling Rufus,' it's a fun kind of jig."

Other group favorites to keep your toe ready to tap to include "Red River Valley" and "Old Spinning Wheel."

"We like the old traditional stuff. The songs that are passed down player to player," Tate said.

Pieces of a wagon can be seen at the Rock Creek Station and Stricker Store homesite May 2 just south of Hansen.

Johnson of Twin Falls, president of the Friends of Stricker preservation group, said they'll be prepared for a great time, come rain or shine.

"Of course you'll be able to picnic in the lawn and we'll have tents up and space available indoors. The party will go on regardless of what the weather does," Johnson said.

Inside the home, guests will finally be able to see the dining room — which was central to community functions a century ago.

"This is where people came, to the dining room, whether they were here for a social or a community meeting," said Friends of Stricker treasurer Judy Robinson.

Robinson especially enjoys the atmosphere at the site and the history represented — a time long past but as visible as the Oregon Trail wagon ruts in front of the property.

"This site was important to the creation of the valley and important before that. It's just a nice place to sit and relax," Robinson said.

What mother doesn't deserve to do just that?

Arts

Continued from Entertainment 1 Barigar said. "We're heading down the exact same path for next year."

Tickets for the Mini-Cassia Community Concert Association's season also remained steady. President Susan Tuft said the association sold about 900 season tickets in September. It has averaged between 850 and 900 season tickets each year for the past 10 years.

"It just doesn't seem like there's much difference," Tuft said. "We'd already sold our memberships before everyone started feeling the effects of the economy. We'll just have to wait and see what next year's sales bring."

Local arts groups have noticed an increase in the number of people who attend their free or low-cost events. From January to May, Magic Valley Arts Council offers the Brown Bag Lecture Series — free monthly lectures at Twin Falls Public Library. Stacy Madsen, arts council executive director, said between 75 and 125 people attend the lectures, which is an increase from years past.

"People are looking for things that are closer to home and easier on their pocketbook," Madsen said. "Arts are sometimes considered a luxury, but they're often what we turn to in times of stress."

Fundraising for the arts has also changed because of the economy. Madsen said that although the arts council's money raised from local donations has stayed about the same, the number of grants available from national organizations has decreased. Madsen said the council sold 125 tickets to its annual La Mascarade fundraiser in March and brought in about the same amount of donation money as last year.

The full effect of the national economy on local arts organizations is yet to be seen. Many groups are still waiting to hear whether they've been awarded the grants they've applied for, and some have important fundraisers coming up later in the year. Sally Boettger, director of development for the Sun Valley Center for the Arts, said the center's main fundraiser is a three-day auction held every July. The center depends heavily on money raised at the event, and Boettger said she is confident local communities will continue to support the arts.

"It seems like people have a real appetite for entertainment and escape, and they're looking close to home to find it," Boettger said.

Oregon archaeologist to detail oldest human remains in the Americas

Times-News

An ancient human in what is now south-central Oregon could scarcely have imagined that bodily waste would become an item of intense interest some 14,000 years in the future. Humorous as it may sound, what we leave behind can be of great value and interest — if it survives.

Dennis Jenkins of the Museum of Natural and Cultural History at the University of Oregon in Eugene will be the school year's final Herrett Forum speaker at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday. His topic: "Archaeology of America's Oldest Human Remains: Ancient DNA at the Paisley Caves of Oregon."

The caves, said Jenkins, are part of a ridge that was carved into the shoreline of Chewaucan, a Pleistocene-era lake. Scientists who excavated the caves in the late 1930s discovered bones from horse, bison and camel-like animals. Over time, the excavation also yielded human hair and feces that have since been dated to 14,300 years ago, making them evidence of the oldest human remains in North or South America.

Jenkins will talk about the methods used to determine the diet of this early man or woman, which included biscuit root, grass seeds, berries, rose hips and proteins including horse, bison, mountain sheep, rat, squirrel and dog or wolf. Other items found at the now-famous site, such as fibers, sewing threads and cordage, help round out the picture of Pleistocene life in the American Northwest.

No tickets are required for this free public lecture. Doors open at 7 p.m. The Herrett Center for Arts and Science is on the north side of the College of Southern Idaho campus.

Late Twin Falls writer's story appears in second volume

Times-News

A story by former Times-News assistant features editor and columnist Denise Turner, who died in 2005, is up for another inning.

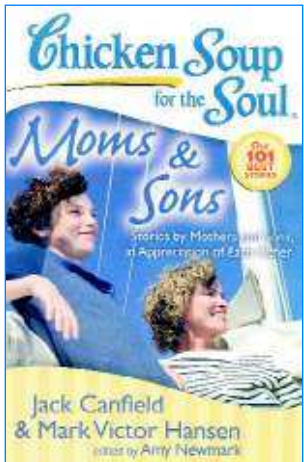

Turner's essay, "It's Baseball Season," first included in the "Chicken Soup for the Baseball Fan's Soul" volume in 2001, is reprinted in the new "Chicken Soup for the Soul: Moms & Sons" ($14.95).

"I'm determined to be the right kind of T-ball mom," Turner wrote in her essay about son Steve's ball games.

"Steve was 7, and didn't know whether or not he liked baseball when he started playing T-ball in a City Rec Department league with a team made up of Sawtooth (Elementary School) kids," Turner told a reporter in 2001. "He decided to try it because his dad loves baseball so much that he goes to sleep counting baseball stats in his head."

Now, Steve Turner lives in Pocatello and works for a pharmaceutical delivery business. He earned a bachelor's degree in biology from Northwest Nazarene University, and he played baseball at Eastern Oregon University in La Grande and at NNU.

Denise Turner worked for the Times-News for 11 years before her death from cancer.

TO NEVERLAND ON THEIR TOES

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

HAILEY — Hip-hop dance wasn't even on the radar when J.M. Barrie conceived a mischievous little boy named Peter Pan at the turn of the 20th century.

But even a boy who refuses to grow up can get in the swing of a music genre that began in the Bronx in the 1970s with the debut of rap music in Footlight Dance Centre's version of "Peter Pan."

Footlight Dance will present a "Peter Pan" that incorporates hip-hop, tap, jazz, ballet and modern dance at 7 p.m. Saturday and 2 p.m. Sunday at the Community Campus Theatre, 1050 Fox Acres Road in Hailey. Tickets are $5, available at Chapter One Bookstore in Ketchum and The Toy Store in Hailey and at the door.

"There's no rigging capacity at the Community Campus, so we can't fly through the air. But we leap to Neverland as high as we can go," said Hanna Curran, who portrays Peter Pan.

Some 150 dancers will bring the colorful pageant of pirates and mermaids, fairies and Indians, to life.

Some have danced with Footlight since they were 4, going on to study at some top dance schools and camps. Rika Pere, for instance, spent a year studying at Idyllwild Arts Academy in California.

Madora Ooms, who dances the part of Wendy, has studied at the College of Southern Idaho dance camp, as well as the Dance in the Mountains camp that brings teachers from around the nation to Sun Valley each year.

"Several of us have gone through every level of dance there was since we were 4, so we're really a close-knit group," she said. "And Peter Pan is really fun because you get to act a lot, in addition to dancing."

"Peter Pan" marks the 25th anniversary of Footlight Dance. Director Hilarie Neely started it after serving a residency in Sun Valley with Portland Dance Theatre.

"I named it Footlight Dance because, as dancers, we try to be light on our feet. And, at the same time, we dance in the footlights," said Neely, who estimates she has taught a thousand youngsters over the years.

Courtesy photos

Peter Pan and Wendy play with Peter's shadow during this weekend's Footlight Dance production of 'Peter Pan' in Hailey.

Curran said "Peter Pan" is a particularly good production to offer audiences in a recession.

"It reminds me that life's so good," she said. "I know these are hard times. But 'Peter Pan' teaches that if you have a positive attitude, things will work out."

Karen Bossick may be reached at kbossick@cox-internet.com.

Captain Hook, sidekick Smee and the pirates are frightened by the menacing crocodile that is always getting in their way. Footlight Dance Centre will present the timeless tale Saturday and Sunday.

Texas country group headlines folk festival

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

HAILEY — The Gourds are back with their hillbilly wail, Texas drawl and honky-tonk ballads.

The Austin, Texas, country music group will headline the 32nd annual Northern Rockies Folk Festival on July 31 and Aug. 1 at Hailey's Hop Porter Park.

They will be joined by Brave Combo, a Denton, Texas, New Wave polka band that's also been known to play a rocking cha cha, rumba, bossa nova, bubblegum or zydeco number.

The 2009 festival will feature two days of national and local bands and a new ticketing policy, according to the festival's new director, Lucas Hess.

This year's festival kicks off at 5 p.m. July 31 with Bellevue's folk rock/country group Up a Creek. Following will be Brave Combo at 6:30 p.m. and The Blasters, a rockabilly band from Los Angeles, at 8:30 p.m.

The Gourds, who proved a big hit at last year's Northern Rockies Folk Festival, will be back to Hailey this summer.

On Aug. 1, music will start at 11:30 a.m. with Joe Paisley, a Bellevue singer with a couple of albums under his guitar strap. He'll be followed by such local groups as No Cheap Horses at 12:30 p.m., The Kim Stocking Band at 3 p.m. and Ryebender at 4:30 p.m.

Olin and the Moon will perform at 6:15 p.m. The group features David and Travis LaBrel and Marshall Vore, who moved from the Wood River Valley to Los Angeles, where they formed a band with a couple of other young men. Their debut album, "Terrible Town," features the story of a young band moving from a small town to a big city.

The Gourds, who proved a big hit at last year's folk fest, will wrap up the festival beginning at 8:30 p.m.

Under a new ticketing policy, the buttons good for both days of the festival have morphed into two-day wristbands, available for $25 when purchased in advance online at www.nrff.net, at Notes Music in Hailey or at Chapter One Bookstore in Ketchum.

Single-day tickets are also available, at $12 for July 31 and $18 for Aug. 1.

Ketchum man reunites with college band

Debut album climbs to 53

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

Ketchum resident Michael Carpenter calls it his "youth preservation device."

After 20-plus years and a fruitful career in software and investments, he has resumed beating on a drumhead. He has a new CD — "Ryebender: Hollow and Drifting" — to show for it.

Carpenter, who co-owns Gallery DeNovo in Ketchum, reunited several months ago with members of the rock band he played with at Oregon State University. His friends flew into Sun Valley from their homes in Chicago, Oregon and Alaska and spent the next eight days recording at the new DeNovo studio that Carpenter bought.

One of those songs was named Song of the Week on garageband.com. One band member made a splash on YouTube during the national election with his "Joe the Plumber" song. They were asked to play at this summer's Northern Rockies Folk Festival. And next they knew, their debut album had climbed to 53 on the AMA charts.

"That's pretty amazing considering Bruce Springsteen's album was No. 39 on the charts at the same time," said Matt VanderNoot, who booked Carpenter and one other band member to play at Papa Hemi's Hideaway restaurant during Ketchum's SolFest festival. "They have a really rich sound. I would recommend them to anyone."

Carpenter said it was scary taking up the drums again because it seemed like that part of his life was so long ago. But he practiced four or five hours a day for six days a week. And he was happy with how the album turned out.

The album is eclectic. One song is about a "One Horse Town" where "they sing the same old songs." "Your Time Has Come and Gone" talks about how you can't make it right with another wrong.

"The music is a little more country-flavored than the New Age rock that we used to play. But it's really good music, nonetheless, with roots, rock, pop, country, folk, bluegrass and Irish influences. It's on

KAREN BOSSICK/For the Times-News

Jason Ward teamed up with Michael Carpenter in late March as half of the band Ryebender played its blend of Americana at Papa Hemi's Hideaway in Ketchum.

Amazon.com, iTunes. More than 50 radio stations are playing the record — 15 of them in heavy rotation," Carpenter said.

Carpenter's friends have pursued different careers — as a computer engineer, in construction, in film and video.

But taking up music again was almost like unlocking a language that had been locked away in their brains, Carpenter said. "There's nothing like reverting 20 years and remembering what it was like to play together. It's my attempt to stay young through music."

Robin Reiners is seeing a side of her husband she never saw before, since she missed out on the band experience when they were in college. But she likes it. "I'm just so proud of Michael and the gang," she said.

Bulldogs grab 3A state berth

By Diane Philbin
Times-News writer

KIMBERLY — Simply dominant.

Kimberly rode its offense to the tune of 13 hits and Nellie Makings threw a one-hitter as the Bulldogs blanked Buhl 10-0 in five innings to claim the Sawtooth Central Idaho Conference softball championship and a berth to next week's Class 3A state tournament.

Makings (16-1) recorded eight strikeouts and no walks in the circle and was one of the leaders at the plate, going 2-for-4 including a double and three RBIs. She was credited with driving in the 10th and final run in the fifth inning with her double. Whitney Carlton was 2-for-2 with a pair of RBIs and was responsible for moving runners into scoring position with two well-executed sacrifice bunts.

Hitting in the No. 9 spot, Jandy Altemose had three hits in three trips with an RBI and Averie Schroeder was 2-for-3 with a double and three RBIs.

"We're happy and excited to be going back to state to show what we can do," said Altemose. "Today with Nellie on the mound and the four-run lead, our defense was ready to back her up. We knew she would get her job done and hit her spots."

Kimberly scored the only run it would need as Buhl pitcher Katherine Hunter allowed an unearned run in the first inning without the benefit of a Bulldog hit.

Lead-off hitter Schroeder raced into second base on a routine fly ball that was dropped by the Buhl outfield and advanced to third on a sacrifice bunt by Carlton. Schroeder scored on an infield groundout by Makings.

The Bulldogs blew the game open with three runs in the second and put it away with two runs in the fourth. A walk, a single and three consecutive doubles in the fifth resulted in four runs and ended the game as the Bulldogs run-ruled the Indians.

Makings retired the first five batters she faced before

Courtney Azevedo hit a slow roller to the left side of the Kimberly infield and beat the throw for the only Buhl hit. Makings followed with a strikeout to end the second inning.

"We just needed to come to hit and put the ball in play," said Buhl coach Shelly Hart. "Give all the credit to Kimberly. They outplayed us today. I wish them all the luck at state."

Kimberly coach Rich Bishop was pleased with the Bulldogs overall aggressiveness at the plate.

"We kept hitting through the whole game," said Kimberly coach Rich Bishop. "Anytime we get four or five runs with Nellie on the mound, it puts us in a good position. I feel for Buhl

Wood Rivers' Martinez wins high jump; Jerome girls take team title

By Ryan Howe
Times-News writer

RUPERT — Athletes this special don't come along very often.

Kaitana Martinez is a star on the soccer pitch, basketball court and softball diamond for Wood River. On Thursday at the Class 4A District IV-V track and field championships, she added track star to her resume, winning the girls high jump with a leap of 5 feet.

An impressive achievement, considering she just started high jumping last week. She also finished second in the triple jump on Wednesday.

Oh yeah, and she's just a freshman. If all goes as planned, Martinez will become Wood River's first-ever four-year, four-sport letter winner.

"I thought I had a chance at maybe third or fourth and at least make a bid to state," Martinez said. "I came out and jumped my best today."

Martinez credits her wide range of success to good coaching and strong family support, especially from her older brother Juan Martinez, a WRHS junior.

"It started when we were little, he always encourages me," said Martinez of her brother. "We work a lot together and he helps me train."

Being such a gifted athlete can cause dilemmas, however. The Class 4A state track and field meet is next Thursday through Saturday in Boise. Meanwhile, the Wolverine softball team has also earned a trip to state, which will be played the same time in Post Falls, some 440 miles away. Martinez said she might have to catch an airplane to Spokane after her track events to join her softball teammates.

The Jerome girls won the overall team title with 202 points. Preston was second (129), followed by Minico (111). Jerome's individual winners included Mackenzie Chojnacky (800 meters), Chelsea Layne (400), Hayley Rienstra (long jump) and Tinley Garey (shot put).

On the boys side, Pocatello took top honors with 142.5 team points, followed by Jerome (137) in second place.

Several individual athletes from the Magic Valley qualified for state during the two-day event that culminated Thursday afternoon at Minico High School, despite gusting winds that

CSI baseball finds a way, reaches semifinal game

By Justin Lawson
Times-News correspondent

CARSON CITY, Nev. — In the game baseball, a player can make a bad play in one inning only to pick themselves back up at the next opportunity. On Thursday that's what College of Southern Idaho right fielder Tyler Chism did.

After Chism made an error in the seventh inning that allowed the tying run to get on base, he legged out an infield single in the eighth and came around to score. One inning later he came in from right field to get the final out of the game in relief and preserve a 3-2 win over No. 2-seeded Southern Nevada to advance to the Region 18 Tournament semifinals.

"I knew I was coming up next, I was like second up, and I wanted to redeem myself so I hit a ground ball and got up the line quick enough," said Chism, who led the team from the plate with a 3-for-4 performance.

Chism hit a grounder to the left side of the field in eighth inning and then slid into first base with first baseman Marvin Campbell stretching out to get the ball. He was hit over to second by Victor Spencer, who grounded out, and Trent Johnson hit a 1-2 liner up the middle for the decisive run.

Seventh-inning do-over propels CSI to victory

By Bradley Guire
Times-News writer

SALT LAKE CITY — It was a situation that Chelsea Nix got to fix.

The College of Southern Idaho was in danger of falling to the elimination bracket of the Region 18 softball tournament on Thursday, but the Golden Eagles prevailed, defeating North Idaho College 7-6 at Bruin Field.

Tied 6-6 with two outs in the bottom of the seventh, CSI was able to finish off the Cardinals with the help of Chelsea Nix's RBI single, but it wasn't as simple of an at bat as the scorebook shows. With Madison Allen at first base, pinch running for Brittany Gonzales, Nix hit into a fielder's choice for what should have been the final out to send the game into extra innings.

The Golden Eagles had not taken a single lead, though head coach Nick Baumert said he remained calm.

"I had a quiet assurance that we would make a game of it," he said.

But the game would not see extra innings because while Allen shot off the base toward second, the umpire called for an illegal pitch on closer Nina Gonzalez. The crew conferred on the call and sent Allen to second base and Nix back to the plate.

"It was a big relief," Allen said. From there, she was able to score the winning run.

Nix, who went 3-for-4 with the all-important RBI, said she saw it as chance to "go back and fix it." Her RBI single rolled hard into right field, and Allen went scrambling on Baumert's signal. Instead of throwing home for a play at the plate, NIC right fielder Brigggett Plenger threw the ball to second, hoping for an out to cancel the run. But Nix had stopped at first, leaving no play at second and ending the game.

"Both teams wanted it, so we knew it could go both ways," Nix said. "I knew that we could come back. I knew we could pull it out."

NIC opened the game with a pair of runs in the first, and CSI started chasing. The Golden Eagles were able to keep up on the strength of two-run homers by Erin Olander and Ashley Chappel, who started off CSI scoring with her two-run shot. Olander's second home run tied the game in the bottom of the seventh to keep the Eagles alive. She finished with four RBIs.

Buhl girls, Kimberly boys cement SCIC track dominance

By David Bashore
Times-News writer

FILER — Wednesday saw Skyler Barger shave 50 seconds off her 3,200-meter time as Buhl teammate Desiree Hepworth led her home to a one-two finish. On Thursday it was the freshman's turn to lead the senior across the line.

Barger finished the 800 meters in a time of 2 minutes, 31.77 seconds to win the Sawtooth Central Idaho Conference championship and qualify for next week's state meet at Boise State University in yet another event. Barger and Hepworth each will run in three individual events at the state meet.

Hepworth was right behind her, in one of many dominant performances from the Buhl girls track team, which won the team title going away over nemesis Kimberly, 155 points to 99.

"Desiree has given me some help with my techniques, and I know that if I can keep up with her that I'm going to have good times," Barger said. "The 800 is tough because it's not long enough for you to make a move late, you have to try and gain your position early. I don't really think about much out there, though, I just clear my mind and run."

Barger and Hepworth finished second and third in the 1,600, behind Kimberly's Kaitlyn Gerard.

The Indian dominance continued in the sprints, which were swept by Buhl freshman Clara Comer. Bertrand Alcaraz Garcia did likewise for the Indians in the boys sprints, with Brian Schofield taking the 800 for good measure.

But it wasn't enough for the Indians to put a serious challenge to Kimberly, which easily won the boys team title. Strong showings in the hurdle events, won by Kolby Hardy and Ethan Richmond, helped bolster a powerful all-around effort from the Bulldogs.

It was almost undone in some respects in the relays, when Kimberly survived with a combination of speed and good fortune to win the 4x100 and 4x200 relays.

In the 4x100, Jordan Cazeau and Braeden Nield bungled the first exchange but Kimberly was back in the

Declo boys, girls sweep 2A district titles

Times-News

Declo's boys and girls claimed top team honors at the Class 2A District IV track and field championships in Gooding on Thursday.

The Hornets earned 94 points on the boys side to nearly double second-place Glens Ferry's 48. Dawson Bowcutt won the 100- and 200-meter sprints, while Brawn Baker (400), Brady Anderson (800), Davis Jones (1,600) and Thomas Koyle (110 hurdles) also had first-place efforts for Declo's boys.

The Hornets won the girls side by outpointing Valley 80-64.

Brittini Duncan's sweep of the 100 and 200 meters aided the Hornets' cause, while Christina Christiansen won the 100 and 300 hurdles. Myca Burch (400), McKell Anderson (800) and Sierra Zollinger (1,600) also won for Declo.

The top two finishers in each event move on to next week's Class 2A state tournament in Boise along with each relay winner. The second-place relay in each event will enter the at-large pool with other second-place relay teams from around the state, with the best time getting an at-large berth.

RAFT RIVER BOYS, GIRLS DOMINATE AT DISTRICTS

Sally Hansen won three more events at the Class 1A District IV state qualifier, sweeping the sprints to help the Raft River girls track team to a dominating team victory at the meet in Gooding on Thursday.

Hansen won four events in total, and Raft River won two more relays to finish at 165 points, with nearest competitor Camas County totaling 100.

Jaren Stoddard swept the sprints as expected for Dietrich on Thursday, but the Blue Devils could only finish a distant third as Raft River held off Mini-Cassia rival Oakley for the boys crown.

The top four individual finishers in each event plus the top two relays from each event qualified directly for the state meet next week in Boise, while fifth-place individuals and third-place relays will have to wait and see how their marks compare to other similar finishers around the state to see if they get an at-large berth.

TWIN FALLS COMES UP SHORT IN REGION TITLE GAME

A few consecutive miscues in the first inning were enough to cost Twin Falls a Region Four-Five-Six championship in a 3-0 loss to Highland in Idaho Falls on Thursday.

Despite the loss, the Bruins will advance to next week's Class 5A state tournament in Coeur d'Alene where they'll face Centennial at 6 p.m., MDT, next Thursday.

The Bruins got a no-hitter and four strikeouts from Brianna Bishop in the title game, but couldn't overcome their early mistakes in windy conditions.

Bishop's lone walk of the game, followed by a wild pitch, got Highland in scoring position. A botched run-down between third and home allowed two Rams to score and another error allowed the game's third and final run.

Twin Falls had five hits, including double by Katelyn Van Loo, but couldn't muster any runs.

"We had our chances," said Twin Falls coach Ken Johnson.

The Bruins reached the title game with a 1-0 win over Skyline. Two walks and a Grizzly error loaded the bases in the first inning. The lone run came home when Skyline walked Kylie Kuest.

Katelynn Fjeld struck out nine in the win.

Declo Claims 2A State Berth

Behind five home runs, Declo pounded Glens Ferry in consecutive games to earn the Canyon Conference tournament title and the school's first-ever trip to the Class 2A state tournament.

Sarah Silcock homered twice in a 13-3, five-inning win in Game 1, including a two-run shot and a three-run blast.

Game 2 was called in the fourth inning after Catherine Blakeslee's three-run homer made it 21-3. That was the Hornets' third three-run blast of the game as Brinlee Breshears and Melissa Carson recorded home runs as well.

"We are excited. This is a first for Declo softball," said Declo coach Kari Osterhout, whose team will face Melba at 6 p.m., MDT in the first round of the state tournament next Thursday in Lewiston.

"They have a good chance to be real competitive," Osterhout said of her team's state hopes.

Both Breshears and Shelby Koyle went 3-for-4 in Game 2. They each picked up a win in the circle as well.

WOOD RIVER 5, PRESTON 1

Taylor Gove hit her first-ever home run, a three-run shot in the fifth inning, as Wood River won the Great Basin Conference championship with a 5-1 victory over visiting Preston on Thursday.

The Wolverines scored four times in the fifth, bolstering pitcher Sam Engel, who surrendered just two hits and struck out five.

"We're playing really good softball right now ... maybe (the best) we've ever played at Wood River High School," said Wood River coach Dale Martin. "There are three things you need to win games - pitching, defense and timely hitting - and we're getting all three at once. And we're playing with a lot of confidence."

Wood River (14-10) will face the third-place team from District III at 6 p.m., MDT, next Thursday in the first round of the state tournament in Post Falls.

POCATELLO 5, JEROME 4, EIGHT INNINGS

Jordahn Denny hit a three-run walk-off home run in the bottom of the eighth inning as Pocatello stayed alive with a 5-4 extra-inning win over Jerome in Twin Falls on Thursday afternoon.

The game was tied 2-2 after seven, and Jerome scored twice in the top of the eighth to take the lead. But with the bases loaded and one out, a line shot went right at a Pocatello defender and the Tigers couldn't capitalize any further.

Pocatello got runners on second and third in the home half for Denny, who ended the game and Jerome's season with one swing.

Red Sox tie record with 12-run inning

BOSTON — The Boston Red Sox tied a modern major league record with 12 runs in an inning before making an out and Tim Wakefield won his fourth straight decision, 13-3 over the Cleveland Indians on Thursday night.

Jason Bay hit a three-run homer and an RBI double and four other batters had two-run hits in the sixth when the Red Sox obliterated a 2-1 deficit and broke the AL record of 11 runs before an out was recorded.

Boston had nine hits and three walks in the inning before Matt Herges retired Mike Lowell on a grounder to third, drawing cheers from the crowd. Then he struck out Rocco Baldelli and got J.D. Drew on a grounder to second.

The Red Sox tied the mark for games since 1900 set by the Brooklyn Dodgers on May 24, 1953. The Dodgers had 12 runs in the eighth inning of a 16-2 win at Philadelphia.

Ramirez suspension sends shocks through Mannywood

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A few months ago, during the deadlocked negotiations between deadlocked slugger Manny Ramirez and the Los Angeles Dodgers, catcher Russell Martin boldly insisted the team could win without him if necessary.

Now, the Dodgers will get a chance to prove it.

Mannywood was rocked Thursday when the All-Star outfielder was suspended for 50 games for using a banned drug.

"Do I still think we can win without him? I think he makes us a better team when he's with us, but without him we still have a good team and we're still capable of winning us some ball-games," Martin said before Thursday night's game against Washington.

"He's one of the best hitters of all time, so it's definitely going to be tough. But what can you do? You've just got to move on and keep plugging away. You have to take it either as a challenge, and that's what we're going to do," he added.

Even before the first pitch of the game, Ramirez's penalty had a noticeable effect. The Manny-style dreadlock hats that had been on sale at the concession stands at Chavez Ravine on Wednesday night had been pulled off at least one shelf. Other Manny-related memorabilia was missing, too.

The Dodgers said there may have been a misunderstanding with the Ramirez merchandise, but that it still was for sale. But more than one vendor said they were instructed not to sell any Manny merchandise until further notice.

Los Angeles manager Joe Torre said he called Ramirez and that the 36-year-old star called him back.

"He feels very badly. Right now he's trying to gather his thoughts," Torre said. "The worst thing I think a person can be is a disappointment to somebody else, and Manny feels like a disappointment."

Juan Pierre will replace Ramirez in left field, but isn't enjoying the circumstances surrounding his chance to play regularly again.

"I'll pray for him and his family that they get through this all OK, and I wish the best for them. That's all I got," Pierre said.

The defending NL West champions held a 6 1/2-game lead on San Francisco when the penalty was announced. Ramirez is eligible to return July 3.

LeBron, Cavs coast past Hawks at home, 105-85

CLEVELAND (AP) — While the rest of the NBA exchanges elbows, flagrant fouls and menacing stares in the playoffs, the Cleveland Cavaliers are looking for a fight.

So far, they can't find one.

LeBron James scored 27 points, ending the first and second quarters with last-second baskets, and Mo Williams added 15 points as the untested Cavs overpowered the Atlanta Hawks 105-85 on Thursday night to open a 2-0 lead in their Eastern Conference semifinal.

Now a perfect 6-0 in the postseason, the Cavaliers tied a league record by winning their sixth consecutive playoff game by double digits. The only other team to do it was the 2004 Indiana Pacers.

Maurice Evans scored 16 points and Mike Bibby had 11 for the Hawks, who were missing center Al Horford and forward Marvin Williams because of injuries. If that wasn't bad enough, leading scorer Joe Johnson rolled his right ankle in the third quarter and did not return.

X-rays were negative and the Hawks said Johnson is doubtful for Game 3 on Saturday in Atlanta.

Just like Game 1, this one was easy for the Cavs. Too easy.

In his second game since being named MVP, James dropped a long 3-pointer in the final second of the first half as the Cavaliers opened a 24-point lead that swelled to 36 in the third. James and the Cavaliers starters spent the entire fourth quarter lounging on the bench as Atlanta's reserves outplayed the Cavs' backups in 12 minutes of garbage time to make the score respectable.

"Defense," James said when asked how the Cavs dominated. "That has been us throughout the whole series and the whole playoffs. When we get D stops it's easy to execute on offense.

"We had great defense ... and then we got some great looks on the other end."

The best-of-seven series switches to Atlanta's Philips Arena, where the Hawks went 31-10 during the regular season and beat Cleveland once. That was back on Dec. 13, when the Cavaliers were just finding out how good they were and the Hawks were at full strength.

Nearly five months later, things have changed. The Cavs are 43-2 at home, 32-5 since the All-Star break, and playing their best ball.

"We are a confident ball-club, we believe we can win on the road as well as at home," James said. "It will be a hostile environment, but we know we can handle that."

Cleveland has been the league's most dominant team in the postseason. The Cavs blew through Detroit in four games and have barely broken a sweat against the overmatched Hawks, who haven't figured out to slow James — or any of his teammates — and have struggled to score.

coming off the field (after the error) I was going up to say something to him and that guy was, 'Hey, let's go,'" CSI coach Boomer Walker said. "There wasn't any upset or pout. ... It was like, 'Hey, I'll get this thing back for us.'"

In the ninth inning, CSI closer Tyler Curtis struggled to finish the game after coming on in the bottom of the sixth when starter Sam Armstrong ran into trouble. Jordan Keegan led off the ninth with a walk, and Casey Sato sacrifice bunted to move him into scoring position. Keegan moved to third on Ryan Scott's comeback to Curtis.

With the game-tying run 90 feet away, Walker called in Chism, who made his sixth appearance of his collegiate career. After inheriting a 1-0 count, Chism got No. 9 hitter Daniel Higa to ground out to shortstop Tanner Craswell to end the game.

"Every time (Walker) goes to the mound, I kind of hope he's going to point out (to right field)," Chism said. "I just wanted to throw strikes because it's the bottom of the lineup, so just throw strikes and make them put the ball in play"

The win was only CSI's third against CNS this season in nine attempts and the seventh game between the two decided by two or fewer runs. Southern Nevada pitcher Egan Smith went the distance, but took the loss. He gave up seven hits and struck out eight.

With Armstrong, Curtis and Tyler Barrett having logged significant action already in the tournament, CSI will likely look to Pocatello freshman Casey Lish in today's 11 a.m., MDT, game against regular-season champion Western Nevada, which throttled Eastern Utah 12-3. The winner advances and clinches a berth in next week's tri-regional tournament, to be hosted by the Region 18 Tournament champion. The Golden Eagles have made

Crane shoots 65, leads at Players

PONTE VEDRA BEACH, Fla. — Ben Crane plays his best golf when he keeps it simple. His day began with a drive down PGA Tour Boulevard on the back of his caddie's moped because his wife had the car. Once he got on the TPC Sawgrass, he kept the ball on land — not easy to do on a course where 89 balls found the water — and then got it into the hole so quickly he needed only 22 putts. He left the thrills, and the spills, to everyone else Thursday at The Players Championship. "A lot of people say 'horses for courses,'" Crane said after a 7-under 65 for a one-shot lead. "But for me, it's just a matter of am I able to keep it simple and just play golf and not worry about too much about other things?" Tiger Woods worried about his putting. He didn't make one longer than 4 feet on his way to a 1-under 71. Defending champion Sergio Garcia also had a 71, but there is nothing simple about his game right now. Even with a respectable score, he said he was playing so badly it "makes me want to puke." Phil Mickelson fired off three straight birdies, then hit only four greens in regulation the rest of the way for a 73, the first time he failed to break par in the opening round on the TPC Sawgrass in eight years. "Looked like it was going to be a great round," Mickelson said. "And then it just kind of went away." Crane couldn't relate. He dropped only two shots — from a bunker on No. 8 and the rough-covered mounds right of the 14th fairway — and made four birdie putts longer than 20 feet.

"It's one of those rounds that you just live for when you're a golfer," he said. "And I had one today at one of my favorite courses and tournaments of all time." He had a one-shot lead over John Mallinger, Alex Cejka and Richard S. Johnson, with a large group at 67 that included Retief Goosen, David Toms, Camilo Villegas and Scott Verplank, who had two eagles — one of them from 150 yards out on the 15th fairway, another with a putt that seemed about that long on the par-5 second. That can happen on one of the most exciting courses in golf, where small mistakes can turn into big numbers. Brian Gay made a small error by trying to reach the fourth green from the left rough, coming up short and into the water. He took a drop, dumped it in the water again, finally got on land and three-putted for a quintuple-bogey 9 on his way to an 80, one of five players who failed to break 80. OCHOA IN FRONT AT MICHELOB ULTRA OPEN WILLIAMSBURG, Va. — Lorena Ochoa shot a 7-under 64 to take a one-shot lead over Lindsey Wright after the first round of the Michelob Ultra Open at Kingsmill. Coming off a victory two weeks ago in her native Mexico, the top-ranked Ochoa had eight birdies and a bogey on the soggy 6,315-yard River Course at Kingsmill. She's seeking her first victory in the event after finishing second three times. Hee-Won Han, Sarah Lee and Minea Blomqvist shot 66s, Seon Hwa Lee, Na Yeon Choi and Amy

Eames, Taylor leading the way in District V

Times-News

Cy Eames continues to hold the top spot in District V rodeo's boys overall standings with 157 points but J2 Bridges of Valley (116) has moved into the runner-up spot, holding a narrow two-point lead over Justin Parke of Gooding (114). A week ago, Parke and Eames were tied for the lead in calf roping but Parke now leads Eames by three points. The race in steer wrestling is tight with Eames leading with 46 points followed by Bridges with 45. Luke Hubert of Dietrich is third at 44 and brother Kolton Hubert is fourth with 43.

Eames and Parke are the top team ropers. Bridges holds a 10-point lead over Montana Barlow of Valley in bull riding and Jordan Gill is the top bareback rider. Ryley Palmer of Richfield made the first qualified ride in saddle bronc at Jerome last weekend. Rookie Haillie Taylor of Wood River leads fellow rookie Valene Lickley of Valley by 18 points — 161 to 143 — in the girls all-around and rookie races. Taylor leads the district in barrels, while Lickley is tops in breakaway and poles and Mattie MacGregor of Jerome is best in goats.

District V will be in Carey this weekend with performances at 7 p.m. on Friday and 5 p.m. on Saturday.

Report: Favre tells Childress he's still retired

EDEN PRAIRIE, Minn. (AP) — For Brad Childress, it was just another day at the office. And, for now, Brett Favre is not wearing purple. The Minnesota Vikings' dalliance with the supposedly retired quarterback didn't reach the stage of face-to-face, close-to-deal talks Thursday — and maybe they never will. Yahoo! Sports reported that Favre called Childress sometime Wednesday or early Thursday and told the coach he wants to stay retired. Favre's longtime agent, Bus Cook, reiterated for the second straight day that his famously fickle client hadn't changed his plan to stay out of the game. ESPN and USA Today said Cook told reporters in Mississippi, where Favre lives, that the former MVP was still retired — though the agent added that Favre could always change his mind in the future. One certainty was Childress spent office hours at work in Minnesota. After reports the coach was to travel south for discussions with Favre, Twin Cities television station KMSP broadcast video of his early-morning arrival at Winter Park. The coach's black sports utility vehicle was still parked at the team's facility in Minneapolis into the evening, and through a team spokesman he declined comment to a handful of media across the street. Yahoo cited an unidentified source close to the team in reporting that the Vikings won't sign the 39-year-old quarterback, who owns many of the NFL's major passing records. If that holds true, and Favre doesn't come back to fill the only glaring hole on an otherwise Super Bowl-ready roster, can the Vikings win under the original plan of having Tarvaris Jackson and Sage Rosenfels compete for the quarterback job? No problem, said All-Pro defensive end Jared Allen. "Our plan never revolved around him," Allen told The Associated Press by phone. "He's obviously a heck of a player. If he wants to stay retired, more power to him. Our offseason goals were never about whether or not we would acquire Brett Favre. Our goals are still the same: to win the division, make the playoffs and see how far we can go. I think our team has all the confidence in the world we can do that." Allen, one of the leaders in the Vikings locker room, expressed confidence in the current quarterbacks to do what's necessary to win. "You have to understand that we try to stay focused on the goal at hand, and that's not going to change," he said. Favre's uncertainty about whether to quit pro football after 18 seasons or keep playing has created the kind of drama usually reserved for one of his performances with the Vikings' chief rival, Green Bay.

Wadsworth, Wilson maintain top spots in District VI rodeo

Times-News

The race in the girls overall standings is starting to heat up for District VI rodeo. Kindee Wilson of Filer is still in the lead with 234 points, but Megan Crist of Kimberly (215) and Katie Vierstra of Filer (213) are right on Wilson's heels. Crist leads the field in goats and poles, while Vierstra is the top cowgirl in breakaway. Wilson and Filer partner Tyler Stradley rank at the top in team roping. A good weekend by Crist or Vierstra and any slip by Wilson could shake up the standings.

In the boys overall standings, Cody Wadsworth with 173 points has extended his lead over Raul Hurtado of Oakley (128). Wadsworth's younger brother Tyler has moved into the third spot with 123 points followed by Brady Manning of Oakley (117) and Wyatt Holtman of Raft River (110) is fifth. Cody Wadsworth (48) and Tyler Wadsworth (47) sit first and second in calf roping, but three other cowboys are within 10 points of the lead, including Kimberly teammate Brock Casperson with 45 points.

Gates says Afghan-bound U.S. troops outpacing equipment

By Lara Jakes
Associated Press writer

CAMP LEATHERNECK, Afghanistan — Thousands of U.S. troops are being rushed to Afghanistan without the equipment they will need to fight an emboldened Taliban, U.S. Defense Secretary Robert Gates and military officials said Thursday.

The equipment delay is “a considerable concern,” Gates said as he toured a dusty forward base in south Afghanistan where some 200 newly deployed Marines and sailors are arriving each day as part of the buildup of 21,000 new U.S. troops.

Marines who arrived in southern Afghanistan this week mark the vanguard of the expansion Obama has ordered to reverse a war his commanders say they are not winning. Pentagon officials said the initial Marine units are small advance parties, to be followed by much larger waves of forces in the coming weeks. The officials spoke on condition of anonymity to describe troop movements.

“I heard this on several occasions today, that the equipment is coming in behind the troops and is not here and available for them when they arrive,” Gates said at a news conference Thursday night in Kabul before a fly-around through bases in Afghanistan.

Gates attributed the delays to “the amount of equipment that has to be brought in and, frankly, the relatively limited infrastructure in terms of airfields and so on of how to get it in here.”

Despite concerns about pressing U.S. military needs in Iraq and insurgents' interference with supply lines, the real problem has been “more a logistical challenge than it is anything else,” Gates said. He promised to pursue the problem after he returns to Washington on Saturday.

The scope of the equipment shortage was not immediately clear. One Marine corporal at Camp Leatherneck told Gates during a 15-minute town-hall meeting in sweltering heat that he needed more communications equipment.

The Pentagon has already been grappling with how to beef up mine-resistant patrol trucks that have shown success in Iraq but are not resilient enough to withstand Afghanistan's hilly and rugged terrain.

The equipment shortage leaves U.S. troops vulnerable as the Taliban and other extremist groups are ramping up attacks with Afghanistan national elections approaching.

In a chilling reminder of the risks U.S. troops face, Gates said casualties among American, Afghanistan and other international security forces are up 75 percent since the beginning of the year.

Brig. Gen. John Nicholson, commander of military forces in Afghanistan's southern region, predicted a surge of violence through the Aug. 20 elections. But Nicholson said he expects the attacks will cease once the Taliban understands that they cannot drive away U.S. and international forces.

AROUND THE WORLD

AFGHANISTAN Official says 147 die in U.S.-Taliban clash

KABUL — Sobbing relatives showed U.S. and Afghan investigators the demolished buildings and graves in two western villages where a local official said Thursday he collected the names of 147 people killed in a disputed incident involving American forces and Taliban militants.

If local reports of the death toll are confirmed, it would be the deadliest case of civilian casualties in Afghanistan since the 2001 U.S.-led invasion that ousted the Taliban regime. Although the results of the joint U.S.-Afghan investigation were not expected to be announced until today, Afghans blamed U.S. bombing raids for the deaths in the villages of Ganjabad and Gerani. In the capital of Farah province, where the fighting took place, some 150 stone-throwing protesters chanted “Death to America” and clashed with police.

The large number of civilian deaths comes at an awkward time for the Obama administration, as it steps up its military campaign here while emphasizing the importance of nonmilitary efforts to stabilize the country. President Barack Obama expressed sympathy over the loss of life in a White House meeting Wednesday with Afghan President Hamid Karzai, who contends that such killings undermine support for the fight against the Taliban.

Defense Secretary Robert Gates, whose two-day visit in Afghanistan was overshadowed by the case, offered a new expression of U.S. regret for the deaths but stopped short of taking blame. U.S. officials maintained that the Taliban might have been responsible for at least some of the deaths.

IRAQ Embattled security firm exits Baghdad

BAGHDAD — The American security firm once known as Blackwater ended its operations in the diplomatic hub of Baghdad on Thursday, bringing to a close a bitter chapter in U.S.-Iraqi relations that began with a deadly shooting by its contractors.

Iraqis welcomed the departure from the capital of the company, which has protected American diplomats in Iraq since the start of the war in 2003. The company, which has changed its name to Xe, will continue to have guards in some southern areas and to run its aviation service and through September.

The end of the firm's Baghdad operations comes nearly two years after the Iraqi government first demanded it leave after the September 2007 shooting on a busy square in central Baghdad that left as many as 17 Iraqi civilians dead.

It was small consolation for Iraqis.

“As far as I'm concerned this decision should have been taken years ago. Any security firm in Iraq should have used Iraqi personnel so that they could help them know Iraqi culture,” Baghdad resident Jabar Farhan said.

U.S. Embassy spokeswoman Susan Ziaadeh said Xe's contract for Baghdad ended Thursday and a new security provider, Herndon, Virginia-based Triple Canopy, was taking over.

KENTUCKY Ex-soldier convicted in Iraq rape, slayings

PADUCAH — A federal jury convicted a former soldier Thursday of raping and fatally shooting a 14-year-old girl after killing her parents and younger sister while he was serving in Iraq.

Pfc. Steven Dale Green

faces a possible death sentence when the penalty phase of his trial opens Monday in the unusual case of a crime in a war zone being prosecuted in civilian court.

Green, 24, of Midland, Texas, was being tried in federal court because he had been discharged from the Army for a personality disorder before he was charged with the Iraq crimes. Green stared straight ahead as the verdict was read in U.S. District Court in western Kentucky.

Defense attorney Darren Wolff, speaking afterward, said the defense never denied Green's involvement.

“Is this verdict a surprise to us? No. The goal has always been to save our client's life,” Wolff said. “And, now we're going to go to the most important phase, which is the sentencing phase and we're going to accomplish that goal.”

The lead prosecutor, Assistant U.S. Attorney Marisa Ford, declined comment.

The trial began April 27, and jurors deliberated for more than 10 hours beginning Wednesday before finding Green guilty. Jurors didn't look at Green as they entered the courtroom before the verdict was read.

Green's defense team had asked them to consider the “context” of war, saying soldiers in Green's unit of the 101st Airborne Division lacked leadership. Defense attorneys also said the Army missed signs that Green was struggling after the loss of friends in combat and that it offered little help to him and other soldiers in his unit.

O H I O Demjanjuk loses deportation plea

CLEVELAND — Alleged Nazi death camp guard John Demjanjuk lost his bid Thursday to get the U.S. Supreme Court to stop his deportation to Germany, where an arrest warrant accuses him of 29,000 counts of accessory to murder during World War II. The legal case spans more than three decades.

Justice John Paul Stevens denied, without comment, Demjanjuk's plea to step into his case. The 89-year-old retired autoworker lives in suburban Cleveland, and he, his family and his lawyers say he's in poor health and too frail to be sent overseas.

Demjanjuk maintains he was held by the Germans as a Soviet prisoner of war and was never a camp guard.

With his U.S. options dwindling, Demjanjuk's attorney in Germany appealed Thursday to a German court to block the deportation.

There was no immediate indication from Immigration and Customs Enforcement whether the agency would move promptly to deport Demjanjuk. The agency and the Department of Justice said they were cooperating with Germany on the deportation but offered no timetable.

John Demjanjuk Jr. gave no indication in an e-mail to The Associated Press of any further appeal planned on his father's behalf.

2010 FORD TAURUS SHO SEDAN

SPORTY FLAGSHIP!

First Look!
By Ken Chester, Jr.
Motor News Media
Corporation

It is back! After a ten-year absence from the heart and soul of the Ford-brand model line-up, the nameplate has re-introduced the performance variant of its popular Taurus sedan, which has been extensively redesigned and upgraded for the 2010 model year.

Originally introduced in 1989, the Taurus SHO was conceived as a discreet performance-oriented sports sedan, ideally suited to the automotive enthusiast needing the room and capability of a four-door full-size car. Produced through 1999, more than 100,000 were sold.

"The new Taurus SHO delivers on the authentic "sleeper" sedan formula but adds all-new luxury appointments, convenience features and technologies to an unsurpassed balance of power and fuel economy," said Mark Fields, Ford's president of the Americas. "This new sport derivative answers enthusiasts' calls for a premium Ford flagship sedan with even more attitude."

Unique exterior styling cues for the SHO include sporty premium

Inside the cabin, the new Taurus SHO interior encourages performance driving. Leather-trimmed seats with Miko Suede inserts are comfortable and luxurious. A perforated leather-wrapped steering wheel puts the driver in smooth touch with the road. Front seats are 10-way power adjustable while the SHO accelerator and brake pedals are trimmed in aluminum. The console, instrument and door panels feature SHO-specific authentic aluminum appliques. SHO branding appears on the unique floor mats and on the passenger side of the instrument panel.

painted wheels, low profile 19-inch Goodyear Eagle tires, a decklid-mounted spoiler and twin chrome exhaust tips. The SHO also features a uniquely finished interpretation of the Ford signature three-bar grille with SHO-specific parking lamp bezels.

Ushering in a new generation of premium performance and fuel economy, the 2010 Taurus SHO is equipped with the new 3.5L EcoBoost twinturbo V6 engine. This engine delivers V8 levels of power without compromising its V6 fuel economy. This advanced powerplant features gasoline direct injection. The direct injection of fuel into the cylinder during the intake stroke produces a well-mixed air-fuel charge when compared to regular port-style injection systems. Fuel vaporization during the intake stroke cools the incoming air, improving volumetric efficiency and lowers the likelihood of engine knock.

By using twin turbochargers as opposed to a single unit, results in reduced internal inertia, allowing the engine to avoid the "turbo lag" often prevalent in earlier-generation turbo applications. The new Taurus SHO also features an enhanced 6F55 SelectShift six-speed automatic transmission with control paddles mounted on the steering wheel.

Power is communicated to the pavement through a sophisticated torque sensing all-wheel drive system.

Control hardware for the SHO sedan features a sport-tuned suspension with unique shock absorbers, springs, stabilizer bars and strut mount bushings specifically developed and harmonized to deliver the best combination of road holding, cornering agility and steering responsiveness.

Kids caught in crossfire of parents' dietary debate

DEAR ABBY: My wife is a vegetarian, but I am not. We agreed to raise our children as vegetarians until they could make that decision for themselves.

My children are now 6 and 10 and have indicated that they no longer want to be vegetarians. The older child is particularly frustrated that she's not allowed to eat such things as pasta sauce or soup that contains beef or chicken stock.

However, my wife is now reneging on our agreement. She says the kids aren't old enough to make such a decision, and she's refusing to set an age when they can do so.

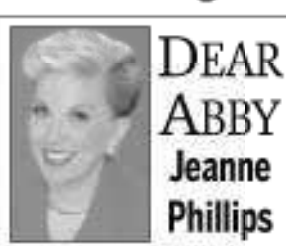

I don't think we, as parents, should impose our preferences on our kids and deny them what they want. Am I wrong?

— MASSACHUSETTS CARNIVORE

DEAR CARNIVORE: Are you kidding? Parents impose their preferences on their children all the time, and for as long as they can.

Your wife may be right that the kids should refrain from eating meat and meat products, but she is being heavy-handed and going about it in the wrong way. Unless she is prepared to stand over them 24/7, there is no way she can prevent them from eating meat if they are determined to do so.

What she can do is make

DEAR ABBY Jeanne Phillips

sure they understand why she is a staunch vegetarian and why she would prefer that they remain that way. But there's no guarantee that they will — particularly if she permits this to become a power struggle.

DEAR ABBY: You have always encouraged your readers to stay informed and be prepared. That's why we are writing you on behalf of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration's Office of Women's Health (OWH) and WomenHeart to share with you and your readers our new, free Heart Health Kit for women and their families.

Heart disease is the leading cause of death among American women, but we can all take steps to protect ourselves. That's why the OWH and WomenHeart have teamed up to create this must-have kit. It features information on major topics that are essential to keeping your heart healthy — including high blood pressure, cholesterol, diabetes and stroke. It also includes tips for women on recognizing the warning signs of a heart attack, which can be different from those experienced by men. Abby, thank you for informing your readers about this serious issue, and please alert them to place their orders now because supplies are limited.

— KATHLEEN UHL, M.D., ASSISTANT COMMISSIONER FOR WOMEN'S HEALTH, FDA LISA TATE, CEO, NATIONAL COALITION FOR WOMEN WITH HEART DISEASE

DEAR KATHLEEN AND LISA: My readers' well-being is important to me, and I'm pleased to help get the word out.

In today's stressful environment, reliable health information is something we can never have too much of — and in this case it is being offered absolutely free of charge. So when you order your Heart Health Kit, don't forget your mothers, sisters, aunts and close friends, and order one for them, too.

For the fastest service, the kits can be ordered online at www.pueblo.gsa.gov. If you don't have online access, send your name and address to Heart Health Kit, Pueblo, CO 81009, or call toll-free (888) 878-3256 weekdays 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. Eastern time and ask for the kit. Remember, quantities are limited, so if you're interested in this free offer, don't delay — order today.

IF MAY 8 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: You are likely to develop a wider range of ambitions in the year ahead.

You tend to trust to luck to see you through, but must work hard, honor your promises and tackle your responsibilities like a dog with a bone, especially in July. August is a great time for a fabulous weekend getaway or romantic interlude.

In September you may be placed head-to-head with a new friend or be invited to join an organization that will provide you with valuable connections. In October and November, don't take friends or favors for granted or you may spoil your chances in business or career. You may find career success or even form a significant relationship this year.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): If you've got it, flaunt it. It could be a brilliant smile or powerful connections that act as an aphrodisiac for a certain someone. An amorous fire can be rekindled if you play your cards right this evening.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Someone you care about won't be satisfied with half measures. Find ways to squirrel away earnings in a safe place or investigate an attractive investment that will provide you with extra security.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Carry some potholders

along in your bag if you are intending to play with fire this evening. A smoldering romantic relationship may need careful handling, but will prove very satisfactory in the clinch.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): It doesn't pay to be a wallflower. Be warm and welcoming. Take some decisive steps towards achieving your goals. Someone harbors a secret passion for you and is just waiting for a green light.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Team up with others if you wish to be effective. Where love is concerned you may be rubbing shoulders with coworkers. Under these stars a mild infatuation could unleash unexpectedly deep passions.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Put some bells on your toes. You can flaunt attention grabbing possessions and signal your desirability. Compelling personal magnetism could be a big turn on for a certain someone this evening.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Someone might light your fire. The urge to merge grows stronger with each passing minute if you are hooked up with the right person. Insist on quality in possessions as well as companions.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Sail into the sunset with an amorous partner. Money and love are two major turns this weekend. You may have more than one opportunity to improve your net worth or make a sound investment.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Show off your bling, rings and favorite things. Getting a special someone's notice requires having an attractive appearance that begs for attention. Focus on getting what you want.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): The path you take while investigating a new venture might be paved with gold. Don't discount someone's undeniable attractiveness. What seems like a casual flirtation might conceal profound feelings.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Relax and relieve the strain of maintaining a stiff upper lip. Iron-fisted will power can get you into the ring, but it is fancy footwork that will keep you from being knocked down and out of harm's way.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Don't judge a book by its cover. Under someone's stiff upper lip lurks a heart that thumps with anticipation of your every glance. Innocent flirtations may lead to passionate desire under these seductive stars.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

"When earth breaks up and heaven expands,
How will the change strike me and you
In the house not made with hands?"

— Robert Browning

West found the only lead to give South a problem in his contract of four spades — namely, a trump. With any other attack, declarer wins, plays ace and another club and, when on play again, a third club. If the club suit fails to break 3-3, South's fourth club can be ruffed in dummy.

It is always difficult to reject a good plan when circumstances render it unlikely to succeed. But South appreciated that the plan of playing on clubs was unlikely to work unless they broke favorably, as the lead must be lost twice, and two further trump returns would denude dummy of ruffing values.

The winning line was perhaps more elegant than taking the club ruff in dummy, but just as sure to come home. It involves a dummy reversal — declarer taking three ruffs in the South hand. Declarer carefully won the opening trump lead in hand with the ace. Then the ace and king of hearts were cashed, a diamond played to dummy's ace, and a heart ruffed high. Another diamond followed, and on winning, West returned another trump. This was won in dummy and a diamond was ruffed. (Notice that care was needed when winning the opening lead and when ruffing a heart, that dummy's trump entry was not compromised.)

Now a club to dummy's ace and a further diamond ruff brought the tally to nine. Although the South hand is now bereft of trumps, the master spade remaining in dummy is the 10th trick.

ANSWER: Your partner's action shows a hand with a long and good club suit. And since a jump to three clubs at his first turn would have been pre-emptive, it makes sense for this sequence to show an opening bid. Having established that, you seem to have enough to raise to three clubs, since you have a decent hand and good club support.
