CITY OF HEROES

Oakley firefighters awarded Idaho Medal of Honor

By Damon Hunzeker
Times-News writer

The city of Oakley has produced a gallant group of firefighters — and they don't even get paid for it.

In 2006, two volunteers from the Oakley Fire Department were awarded the Idaho Medal of Honor, a prestigious and rare recognition from the state.

Friday, two more volunteer firefighters from Oakley — Dave Roundy, 36, and Dave Korom, 35 — received the medals.

They were honored for rescuing Tanessa Papp, 20, of Burley, from a flaming collision earlier this year. Without the quick aid provided by Roundy and Korom, Papp almost certainly would have died. At the very least, she would have been severely burned.

On the night of Jan. 18, the driver of a tanker truck took a wrong turn in heavy fog on Highway 27 in Oakley. While backing up across the road, Papp approached in a pickup and collided with the tanker. She was trapped and unconscious. The pickup was on fire. As the cab filled with smoke, flames moved from the outside and appeared on the dashboard.

"With the fog that night, you couldn't see a foot in front of you," Korom said. "It was my wedding anniversary. It happened right in front of my house while we were having dinner. I was in my pajamas and slippers when I ran out to see what happened."

A series of fortunate events conspired in Papp's favor — beginning with the collision occurring in front of Korom's house — such as Roundy, a Heyburn police officer and volunteer Oakley firefighter, driving in the opposite direction of the incident. A doctor was traveling on the same road and later provided assistance.

When Korom got to the scene, Roundy was attempting to break out the driver's side window with his police baton.

Korom moved Roundy aside and punched his fist through the window.

"It's the only time a person can get away with throwing a cop out of the way, but the baton just wasn't working," Korom said.

"I guess he hit it just about right," Roundy said.

The entire rescue comprised less than a minute of time. Seconds after Roundy and Korom pulled Papp through the window and carried her to

T.F. developer reimbursement rules could change

T.F. officials, developers say public improvement paybacks aren't equitable

By Andrea Jackson
Times-News writer

Private developers installing public infrastructure in Twin Falls could get more payback from a city-run system that collects fees on later developments that benefit from their work.

Since 1977 the city has mandated the amount of money developers who build sewer and water lines can collect from other builders who later hook into the lines, but the system has come under fire from developers who say the rules are unfair, difficult to regulate and should change.

Developers also want more reimbursement for roads, pressurized irrigation stations, and pressur-ized irrigation lines, according to the city, which only serves as an administrator for the system.

Under terms of a city resolution passed in 2000, developers may get reimbursed 15 percent of their cost to extend water or sewer lines. An earlier and later resolution say developers may get reimbursed for up to half the costs.

Developers cannot be reimbursed after failing to maintain address with the city, after 20 years, or when a full line length has been reimbursed, according to a 2007 resolution.

City officials have not said how much the developer's payback might increase, or how many people might be affected by any

Ketchum's tax receipts continue to decline

No additional layoffs or significant service reductions planned

By Ariel Hansen
Times-News writer

In a resort community, summer and winter are always the busy times. In between are the slack, or shoulder, seasons, and business owners know that they won't get the traffic they do during peak seasons.

That's been particularly true in Ketchum this spring, as overall tourism-related tax receipts are down by about a third over the same time last year.

"It's a very challenging situation. Obviously we have all up and down the valley a visitor-based economy, and people are doing less visiting in these economic times," said Charles Conn, Ketchum city councilman. "There's some sunshine in the national economy, and hopefully once people feel that they're less likely to lose their jobs they'll return to their favorite vacation spots."

Ketchum and other resort towns rely on a local option tax (LOT), which creates additional revenues to the cities from taxing tourist-related purchases such as hotel rooms and

T.F. Council to vote on $10.25 million loan

By Ben Botkin
Times-News writer

The Twin Falls City Council will be voting on a $10.25 million loan agreement today for the purchase of water rights at Pristine Springs.

The water rights are a step that city officials are looking at as a way of resolving a problem of arsenic in parts of the city's water supply. The City Council will meet at 5 p.m. today in Council Chambers, 305 Third Ave. E.

Bonds will be issued for the transaction and the city is financing the deal through the Idaho Bond Bank.

The payments on the agreement will be about $900,000 a year for 15 years

Jerome Co. holds hearing on airport zoning issue

By John Plestina
Times-News correspondent

JEROME — Opponents of zoning changes near Jerome's airport say they will protest land-use changes when the Jerome County Planning and Zoning Commission holds a hearing tonight.

At issue for the county is a potential to lose federal funding for the airport if the county commission doesn't amend the zoning ordinance, said Jerome County Airport Manager Bonnie Deitrick. There is also a risk that the Federal Aviation Administration could demand that the county refund $150,000 in federal funding per year for at least the past nine years.

Meanwhile, farmers in the 20-square-mile area currently zoned for agricultural use, which limits construction to one structure per 40 acres, are opposed to changes that

Three things to do today

Pat Marcantonio

• It's time to give at the American Red Cross blood drive at 6 p.m. at the Rupert Civic Center. Roll up those sleeves and call 436-0360 for an appointment.

• Shoot hoops and help fight cancer. Sign up for Project Mutual Telephone's 3-on-3 basketball tournament fundraiser for the American Cancer Society's Relay for Life May 15-16. Register at the PMT office or at www.pmt.org by Friday. Cost is $35 per player. Information: Jesse, 436-5955 or Terri, 434-7127.

• Take a tour of the new St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center in Twin Falls. The St. Luke's Magic Valley Health Foundation has tours set at 5:30 p.m. Tuesday and May 28. Attendees will meet in the gray construction trailer at the new hospital site on the corner of Grandview Drive and Pole Line Road. Sign up: Julie Blick, 737-2486 or julieb@mvrmc.org.

BASE jumper injured

Times-News staff

A paramedic from Maryland had not regained consciousness Sunday night after a BASE jumping accident earlier in the morning, said Jerome County Sheriff Doug McFall.

McFall said the jumper, Scott Doyle, suffered head injuries after his parachute twisted and his helmet cracked open after striking the canyon wall twice near the Jerome County Blue Lakes Grade.

"He's still alive," said McFall Sunday night, "pretty much his injuries are head injuries and he has not regained consciousness."

McFall said Doyle, in his 30s, is hospitalized at Saint Alphonsus Regional Medical Center in Boise.

"The chute came out and twisted around to where it headed back towards the wall," McFall said, adding this was the first BASE jump accident his office has handled so far this year.

A MySpace page online for Doyle shows pictures of parachuting and BASE jumping and lists an interest of his as "jumping out of things."

McFall said Doyle was found unconscious at the base of the canyon, and a helicopter landed about 100 feet from the crash site to remove him.

Rules

"New development generally speaking pays for itself," said Mayor Lance Clow. "I think it's tough now economically and they (developers) want to get this done before the next round of development."

In addition to asking for a larger payback, developers have also asked the city for faster payment. Now, a developer may have to wait years for other builders to pay into the city-administered system, and to see the money come to them to cover their initial costs.

Developer Brad Wills last week told the City Council that he is due hundreds of thousands of dollars in anticipated paybacks from other users. He did not return a call Friday for further comment.

"A lot of builders have money sitting out there waiting to be reimbursed," said Councilman Will Kezele, who said there's room for improvement with the current system.

"(Developers) have to put out what appears to be an unfair share up front under the current system, and have to wait longer to get it back," Kezele said.

Developers of residential projects in the northwest part of town alone are due about $2 million, Clow said Saturday. City Engineer Jackie Fields on Thursday said there are a "couple dozen" outstanding paybacks.

"A new system looks like it will be more fair for the builder," Kezele said. "The current system kind of stifles growth ... Right now the first guy in has to cover the burden and hold the burden for some time."

The council last week gave Fields and the development community a green light to work up a proposal for a new reimbursement system, which would require council approval. A committee that includes developers may be established to recommend paybacks, and the city wants to use its mapping software to administer the system, the city said.

Kezele said he hopes the system will be put online with mapping software to the city's Web site to promote transparency.

Developers are not supposed to make a profit on reimbursements because they also benefit from public improvements they install, Clow said.

"A lot of times the community doesn't understand when the city isn't building but the developer is, and then they dedicate that to the city," Clow said.

essary expense."

In other business, the council will consider:

• A cooperative agreement with the Idaho Transportation Department for the installation of water and sewer lines on Rock Creek Bridge. The city expects to pay the state an estimated $40,000 for the project.

• Two right-of-way agreements along Washington Street North for the widening project.

The tanker turned out to be full of whey, but at the time, it wasn't clear.

"It was so foggy, you couldn't tell. We were hoping it wasn't a fuel truck, but we didn't know," Korom said.

Papp sustained only minor injuries.

Eight other Medal of Honor recipients were recognized at Friday's ceremony — all of whom were Boise police officers, one of them honored posthumously for dying in the line of duty.

Characteristic of people considered heroes, both Korom and Roundy dismissed their actions compared to the Boise officers.

"Oh, man, it's difficult to put into words," Roundy said, holding back tears. "One of them was killed in a shootout. That kind of puts things in perspective. Other people go into more danger than we probably were ... just to be included in that list of names was really special."

Bill von Tagen, chairman of the Medal of Honor Commission, explained the criteria for the award.

"The Medal of Honor is not awarded to somebody who simply finds himself in a dangerous situation," he said. "It's about how they perform in that situation. These men sacrificed their own safety to save that young woman ... We sometimes wonder where people like this come from. They come from Oakley, Burley, Coeur d'Alene — all over Idaho ... but I suggested Oakley put 'City of Heroes' on the sign coming into town."

Korom and Roundy both said they weren't concerned about their lives at the time but thought about it afterward.

"After a couple of days, you wonder — what if I'd jumped in when the fire flashed?" Korom said. "But at the time, you're just worried about a helpless person."

alcohol by the glass. Condominium LOT taxes are down the most over the previous 12 months, followed by building materials. Less affected over the past year have been room receipts, down 12.8 percent, liquor receipts, down 10.9 percent, and other retail, down 12.2 percent.

April, however, saw many of these categories down significantly over the previous April. Room receipts were down 51 percent, liquor 37 percent, and other retail 47 percent, for example. "They're down, quite a bit, in all categories," said Ketchum City Administrative Clerk Kathleen Schwartzenberger.

Conn said that in recent years, the slack season has been less slack, in some part due to efforts to increase awareness of spring and autumn events and creation of special deals.

"Maybe this is a return to a slack of old, when businesses would shut down during slack," he said. Recent economic development, including the approval of several large hotel and resort projects, may help relieve this trend in the future. "Those are some years away and we're just going to have to weather it."

The Ketchum City Council eliminated several positions earlier this spring and reduced budgets for departments, and Conn said he's not aware of any additional need for budget cuts at this time.

"We started to anticipate that in the budget cycle last August, so so far we've been able to manage our expenses," he said. "Obviously it's hard to do the same with less but everybody's working really hard."

The budget process for next year is beginning to ramp up, and Conn said the council will be looking to the summer LOT numbers to see if a national upturn makes it to Ketchum.

develop airspace and land-use maps.

A conceptual map dated Jan. 7 showed the proposed zoning change stretching from Tiger Drive to N. 600 East, and E. 200 North to E. 200 South. The airport is located about three miles east of the city.

While Deitrick said the changes are "not rezoning," County P&Z Administrator Art Brown said Deitrick was is correct to say the proposed change would make the outlying area compatible with existing airspace, but said it does amount to rezoning.

"In this case there are some changes in regulations," Brown said. "I think that everybody should come to the hearing and hear all that is being presented."

Proposed changes vary in different parts of the overlay zone and include restrictions of one structure per one, five and 10 acres in different locations and a prohibition of new home construction in the takeoff and landing path.

Eighteen families collectively owning more than 5,200 acres within the area have organized themselves as Jerome County Citizens for Responsible Airport Management (JCCRAM) to oppose the changes.

"Many current owners have held the expectation for years that their property would increase in value as the need for housing in the city increases. Now they are faced with restrictions that would preclude those options," stated a Jan. 13 release from the group.

"The 20-square-mile rezoning is too broad and oversteps their bounds as an airport board," said Sandy Pittock, a farm owner within the affected area and a spokesperson for JCCRAM.

Ed Lawson, a Ketchum attorney representing JCCRAM, called the proposed amended zoning an unusual, unnecessary taking of private property rights, adding that the county's comprehensive plan addresses the protection of prime agricultural land and preserving the rural character of the county.

In the middle of the issue is the city of Jerome.

"At this point the city hasn't taken an official issue. We're still researching it. It's not clear exactly what has been proposed," said City Administrator Ben Marchant. "It definitely impacts the city's area of impact."

A state statute gives cities discretion over planning and zoning decisions affecting areas within one mile of city limits, Marchant said. The affected area lies in a designated future growth area for the city.

Friedman airport considers TSA mandates

By Ariel Hansen
Times-News writer

HAILEY — Should security at a small airport like Friedman Memorial in Hailey be treated the same as a large airport like Denver International?

Friedman manager Rick Baird doesn't think so and recently argued to the airport authority that the Transportation Security Administration is asking too much and not offering enough.

"They're asking us to do something that's going to have an additional burden and an additional cost and they're not giving us any additional resources," Baird said. The TSA is mandating additional background checks, training requirements and other changes that Baird estimates will cost the airport between $15,000 and $25,000. "We know that the security corrective is going to require an additional workload."

Airports should have more input into what is appropriate for each facility, Baird said, and the TSA should be more aware of public budgeting cycles when they require additional money be spent.

Jets are seen at Friedman Memorial Airport in Hailey. Airport officials are considering Transportation Security Administration mandates that airport Manager Rick Baird says will be a burden.

Friedman, for example, is in the middle of its budget year, so the TSA required expenses can't be included in any specific line-item.

In addition, small airports tend to serve the same people day after day, while large airports serve a large, rotating clientele. "Most (local pilots) have been flying out of this airport longer than I've been an airport manager," Baird said. "Should we have to do the same requirements on somebody that we're very familiar with that we do on a stranger we know nothing about?"

The airport authority also considered a suggestion by its attorney,

Denver-based Peter Kirsch, that the governance model for the proposed replacement airport be modified. That model would have five members — one each from the three commission districts, one from the aviation sector and one appointed by county commissioners, who will be the decision makers on the airport.

Kirsch said the model itself is great but additional thought is needed for how current authority would transition to the new board.

"You want the new authority members to get some institutional knowledge before they have to run a new airport," Kirsch said. "You bring them on gradually." Perhaps as each current member's term expires, one of the new board members would be appointed, he suggested.

He did note that the transition from one airport to a new one is not linear. Many parts of the process work at once. For example, a Hailey representative could stay on the new airport board until the old site has been redeveloped, he said.

The Friedman Airport Authority will consider both subjects at its June 2 meeting.

Jerome committee to meet before bond election

By Ben Botkin
Times-News writer

There's one more chance for Jerome School District voters to ask questions before deciding on May 21 whether to approve a $15.8 million bond levy for improvements to Jerome High School.

The citizens' steering committee overseeing the bond proposal will meet at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday in the library of Jerome High School. The Jerome School Board voted in April to send the bond to voters after the committee made that recommendation.

The meeting on Wednesday will primarily look at what tasks remain for the committee before May 21, said Kelly Bangerter, co-chairman of the committee. However, anyone with questions is welcome to attend, he said.

The committee's efforts have included making phone calls to people living within the district to make them aware of the election.

"A lot of people are very positive," Bangerter said. "We're very optimistic."

The 20-year bond would add $73 of taxes annually to every $100,000 of taxable assessed value. The bond would bring improvements that include eight new classrooms, a remodeling of the performing arts auditorium, an expanded cafeteria and a new, second gymnasium for the school.

The bond also would provide money for a new traffic signal at Idaho Highway 25 and Tiger Drive.

Superintendent Jim Cobble said he's made an effort to let the citizens' committee oversee the process, adding that it's similar to how the district has planned other levy elections in the past.

The district's voters in April approved a one-year renewal of a $650,000 supplemental levy.

CITY OF TWIN FALLS DRIVING UNDER THE INFLUENCE SENTENCINGS
Cyelas B. Hanks, 36, Twin Falls; driving under the influence; $500 fine, $300 suspended; $90.50 costs; $75 public defender fee; 30 days jail, 27 suspended, credit for one day served, two days work detail; driving privileges suspended 90 days; 12 months probation; no alcohol.

From May 4 police reports:

Driving under the influence:

A 27-year-old Colorado man was arrested for driving under the influence in Declo after being pulled over for crossing the white line several times. He didn't have a driver's license. When asked how much he had to drink, the report reads, "He told me that it was a lot." It was. According to the report, his blood-alcohol content was .343 — more than quadruple the legal limit.

Battery:

A 56-year-old Burley man allegedly punched a Burley male, 19, in the mouth because, according to the report, the 19-year-old called the man "a mooch." They both had blood on their coats. No charges.

From May 5 police reports:

Resisting and obstructing an officer:

A male Burley High School student, 16, who was "hobbled" by police last month and arrested for resisting, obstructing, and "being incorrigible" after telling officers that he only has to obey "God's laws" was arrested again. He wasn't "hobbled" this time, but he was Tasered. According to the report, the boy left school and began "walking down Highway 30 towards Murtaugh." He was followed by two teachers and a counselor. When police arrived and told him to stop, the juvenile allegedly said, "I've got my freedom" and ran away. He was then Tasered in the back. The darts didn't penetrate his skin because he was wearing a coat. After an officer tackled him and asked if he was hurt, the boy, according to the report, "said no, but he did say it was shocking him on his upper left arm."

Experts say
GM bankruptcy
almost inevitable

DETROIT — For General Motors Corp., the task at hand is so difficult that experts say a Chapter 11 bankruptcy filing is all but inevitable.

To remake itself outside of court, GM must persuade bondholders to swap $27 billion in debt for 10 percent of its risky stock. On top of that, the automaker must work out deals with its union, announce factory closures, cut or sell brands and force hundreds of dealers out of business — all in three weeks.

"I just don't see how it's possible, given all of the pieces," said Stephen J. Lubben, a professor at Seton Hall University School of Law who specializes in bankruptcy.

GM, which has received $15.4 billion in federal aid, faces a June 1 government deadline to complete its restructuring plan. If it can't finish in time, the company will follow Detroit competitor Chrysler LLC into bankruptcy protection.

Although company executives said last week they would still prefer to restructure out of court, experts say all GM is doing now is lining up majorities of stakeholders to make its court-supervised reorganization move more quickly.

SRI LANKA
Doctor: Artillery
barrage in Sri Lanka
kills 378 civilians

COLOMBO — An unrelenting hail of artillery in Sri Lanka's war zone killed at least 378 civilians, according to a government doctor who survived the attack as shells flew near the makeshift hospital. More than 100 of the victims were children, the U.N. said Sunday.

A rebel-linked Web site blamed the attack on the government, while the military accused the beleaguered Tamil Tigers of shelling their own territory to gain international sympathy and force a cease-fire.

The attack marked the bloodiest assault on ethnic Tamil civilians since the civil war flared again more than three years ago. Health officials said a hospital in the war zone was overwhelmed by casualties, and the death toll was expected to rise.

Reports of the fighting are difficult to verify because the government bars journalists and aid workers from the war zone, but the U.N. confirmed a heavy toll from the attack.

CALIFORNIA
Fire crews, Santa Barbara residents
help stop wildfires

SANTA BARBARA — Relieved to see their ash-covered houses still intact, grateful homeowners are paying tribute to firefighters by tooting car horns and posting large thank-you signs on their front lawns.

The firefighters, who began to get the upper hand this weekend on a fierce blaze that destroyed dozens of homes, were just as quick to share the credit.

They say if residents of the hillside homes ringing Santa Barbara hadn't been aggressive in clearing brush and fire-prone plants from their property, hundreds of homes, not just 31, could have been lost.

"More homes would have burned had they not done their defensible space work," Santa Barbara County Fire Chief Tom Franklin said.

The fire also has damaged 47 homes and forced about 30,000 people to flee. All but about 350 evacuees were allowed to return home Sunday as firefighters had the blaze 55 percent contained.

PAKISTAN
Army says up to 500 militants killed
so far in Swat Valley

MINGORA — Tens of thousands of civilians, many on foot or donkey-led carts, took advantage of a lifted curfew to flee Pakistan's embattled Swat Valley on Sunday, while the army said it had killed 400 to 500 militants in its battle against the Taliban.

The hemorrhaging of residents from a scenic valley that once attracted hordes of tourists threatened to greatly exacerbate an existing internal refugee crisis for a nuclear-armed nation already facing economic, political and other woes.

The army offensive has garnered praise from the U.S., which wants Pakistan to root out havens on its soil where Taliban militants can plan attacks on American and NATO forces across the border in Afghanistan. In an interview aired Sunday, Pakistan's president urged international support for the fight and insisted the army had enough troops in the northwest to handle the threat.

When a love of tofu is deemed tastelessSpecialized license plate on tofu could be misinterpreted

By DeeDee Correll
Special to the Los Angeles Times

DENVER — All Kelley Coffman-Lee wanted to do was broadcast her love of tofu to the driving public.

So the Colorado vegan applied to the state's Department of Revenue for a vanity license plate for her Suzuki SL-7 carrying the message: ILVTOFU.

Clerks at her local motor vehicle office approved the plate — but it did not escape the discerning eyes of state revenue officials, who detected another way that Coffman-Lee's penchant for tofu could be read.

"It could be misinterpreted in a way that suggests that she likes something other than tofu," explained revenue department spokesman Mark Couch.

Application denied. Not only that, but Coffman-Lee's pithy ode to soy went straight onto the department's list of letter combinations banned under a state law that permits authorities to weed out those applications deemed "offensive to good taste or decency."

Others that haven't passed muster: OBITEME, 2EROTIC and PASSGAS.

The list has grown to 2,744 entries over the years as residents apply for creative combinations of letters to express their personal preferences.

"The list has grown over the years," Couch said. "Ever since we've had vanity plates, there's been someone trying to slip one by us."

Coffman-Lee thinks ILOVTOFU does not deserve the list. "My whole family is vegan, so tofu is like a staple for us. I was just going to have a cool license plate, and the DMV misinterpreted my message," Coffman-Lee told the Denver Post after the application was denied.

Now the American Civil Liberties Union of Colorado has entered the fray, questioning what they call censorship by the state.

The ACLU has obtained the list of banned phrases, and the group says it will publish on its Web site. The list reveals "the more serious ways in which this attempt to purge offensive words has wound up being an effort to censor ideas and viewpoints," said Mark Silverstein, legal director of the Colorado ACLU, noting that the list includes: BADUSA, 4HEMP and OK2BGAY.

Concerns phosphorus used in Afghan battle

U.S. says it didn't use incendiary, claims Taliban fighters may have

By Jason Straziuso
and Rahim Faiez
Associated Press writers

KABUL — Doctors voiced concern over "unusual" burns on Afghan villagers wounded in an already controversial U.S.-Taliban battle, and the country's top human rights groups said Sunday it is investigating the possibility white phosphorus was used.

The American military denied using the incendiary in the battle in Farah province — which President Hamid Karzai has said killed 125 to 130 civilians — but left open the possibility that Taliban militants did. The U.S. says Taliban fighters have used white phosphorus, a spontaneously flammable material that leaves severe chemical burns on flesh, at least four times the last two years.

Using white phosphorus to illuminate a target or create smoke is considered legitimate under international law, but rights groups say its use over populated areas can indiscriminately burn civilians and constitutes a war crime.

Afghan doctors told The Associated Press they have treated at least 14 patients with severe burns the doctors have never seen before.

The villagers were wounded during last Monday's battle in Farah province.

Allegations that white phosphorus or another chemical may have been used threatens to deepen the controversy over what Afghan officials say could be the worst case of civilian deaths since the 2001 U.S. invasion that ousted the Taliban regime.

In Kabul on Sunday, hundreds of people marched near Kabul University to protest the U.S. military's role in the deaths. Protesters carried signs denouncing the U.S. and chanted anti-American slogans.

The incident in Farah drew the condemnation of Karzai, who called for an end to airstrikes. The U.S. has said militants kept villagers captive in hopes they would die in the fighting, creating a civilian casualties controversy.

However, President Barack Obama's national security adviser said Sunday the United States would not end airstrikes. Retired Gen. James Jones refused to rule out any action because "we can't fight with one hand tied behind our back."

Along with Afghan and U.S. investigations into the battle, the Afghan Independent Human Rights Commission has been looking into concerns that white phosphorus may have been used after strange burns were reported. Nader Nadery, a commissioner in the leading rights organization, said more investigation was needed.

Pope calls on Middle East Christians to persevere

By Jeffrey Fleishman
Los Angeles Times

AMMAN, Jordan — Pope Benedict XVI told approximately 20,000 followers in an open-air Mass on Sunday that Christians in the Middle East are "deeply touched by difficulties and uncertainties" but that they must be strong in their faith to counter religious extremism.

The pope's message on the final day of his pilgrimage to Jordan was for Christians to persevere as their populations decline in a Middle East that offers limited economic opportunity and is torn by violence and radicalism. He called on Roman Catholics to reach across religious divides to make peace.

"May you never forget the great dignity which derives from your Christian heritage, or fail to sense the loving solidarity of all your brothers and sisters in the church throughout the world," said the 82-year-old pontiff, who leaves Jordan today for the next leg of his trip, a visit to Israel and the West Bank.

Much of Benedict's concentration while in this tribal kingdom was on improving the Vatican's relations with the Muslim world following his 2006 lecture that quoted a medieval emperor as saying some of the Prophet Muhammad's teachings were "evil and inhuman." Moderate Muslim clerics credited the pontiff's speech Saturday at the Al-Husseïn bin Talal mosque as a sign that the pontiff regretted his remarks and was serious about interfaith dialogue.

During Sunday's Mass in Amman International Stadium, Benedict turned his attention to Christians in the Holy Land, whose numbers have been declining for decades. In Jordan, for example, Christians accounted for 30 percent of the population in 1950. They make up less than 4

Gomez runs away with MVS win

By Linda Brittsan
Times-News correspondent

Jonathon Gomez managed to escape a multi-car pileup with minor damage before going on to win the Pepsi Late Models main event race Saturday night at Magic Valley Speedway.

The incident at lap 13 sent several cars to the pits and forced an extended red-flag condition on the track. The rides of John Wood and Gary Porter were out for the night while John Newhouse, Eddy McKean, Chris Schrade, Cliff Chester and Gomez all received damage of varying degrees.

At the restart, Dan Pehrson reclaimed the lead

T.F. Bruins tee up for state championship

By Bradley Guire
Times-News writer

Eight would be great for the Twin Falls girls golf team.

The Bruins have won seven Class 5A team state championships this decade and are in pursuit of No. 8, starting today at Highland Golf Course in Pocatello.

They girls are fresh off yet another Region Four-Five-Six championship, which they won at Highland. The state championship will mark their second consecutive appearance at the course and at least third this season. The Bruins, all of whom shot 87 or higher, weren't particularly pleased with their performance in the region championship. Now they know the pitfalls to avoid for the championship.

"We didn't pay attention to the greens," region runner-up Jenna Sharp said. "It was very different from before. They were so much faster than in past tournaments."

"And they moved back the tees, so the holes are longer, but we have to do our best with them."

If successful, this would also mark the Bruin girls' 11th state title since 1994 for a decade and a half of dominance.

Meanwhile, the boys are after their third state title of the 2000s. They carded 313 at the region meet, but they're not letting the round go to their heads. On many occasions, the Twin Falls boys have acknowledged Eagle and Centennial as state favorites. Even so, the Bruins remain optimistic about their chances.

"Eagle looks like the best team," region medalist Jordan Hamblin said, "but they can be beaten at Highland. We've played there enough this year, and we could peak at the right time."

Hamblin shot 71 last Tuesday to medal.

The state championship begins today and ends Tuesday.

Bradley Guire may be reached at bguire@magic-valley.com or 208-735-3229.

State golf tournaments

Today and Tuesday
Class 5A

Where: Highland Golf Course, Pocatello

What to watch for from District IV: The defending state champion Twin Falls girls look to continue their dominance, aiming for their eighth title this decade. The Bruin boys, led by region medalist Jordan Hamblin, are also in the title mix.

Class 4A

Where: Jefferson Hills Golf Course, Rigby

What to watch for from District IV: The Wood River boys, led by District IV-V medalist Jonathon Hobbs, could contend for a team title, while Jerome's Jordan Roberts looks for a good individual showing. The Wood River girls, including Aimee Evans, will look to make noise along with Burley's Shawna Pace, who has been consistent throughout the season.

Class 3A

Where: Idaho Falls Country Club

What to watch for from District IV: Two words: Jaci Lancaster. The Wendell senior is a three-team Class 2A state medalist and looks to repeat the feat at the 3A level. Lancaster has rarely been challenged this season, but should get some good competition in Idaho Falls, particularly from Shelley's defending champion Sheryl Bitter. On the team front, Kimberly's boys claimed the district title, but the Bulldogs will be hard-pressed to hang with powerhouse Shelley, led by Will, Tommy, Mason and Tanner Higham.

Class 2A

Where: Sandcreek Golf Course, Idaho Falls

What to watch for from District IV: Castleford's Dylan Kinyon claimed District IV medalist honors and could be near the top of the state leaderboard along with Peter Atkinson (Community School) and Shaylon Fenstermaker (Declo). On the girls side, the Magic Valley Christian duo of Michelle Kootstra and Kristina Reitsma has been solid all season and should do well at Sandcreek. — Capsules by Mike Christensen.

POCKET ROCKETS

Rockets' smallest player scores 34; even series at 2 with win over L.A.

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Rockets not only beat the Los Angeles Lakers without Yao Ming, they made it look easy.

Aaron Brooks scored a career-high 34, Shane Battier sank five 3-pointers and added 23 and the Houston Rockets routed the Los Angeles Lakers 99-87 on Sunday to even their Western Conference semifinal at two games apiece.

Luis Scola had 11 points and 14 rebounds as the Rockets got exactly the team effort they needed after Yao broke his left foot in the Lakers' win in Game 3.

Game 5 is Tuesday night in Los Angeles, and anyone who thought the Rockets were finished without their best player only needed to watch the first few minutes on Sunday, when Houston built a 22-7 lead.

Pau Gasol scored 30 points and Kobe Bryant had a quiet 15 for Los Angeles.

Lakers coach Phil Jackson warned his team about taking the Rockets too lightly after hearing about Yao's injury. But the Lakers looked lethargic from the start, giving away careless turnovers and playing lax defense.

The Rockets opened the game with a 22-7 run, starting 4-of-5 from 3-point range. Bryant scored the Lakers' first three baskets, but the rest of the team missed its first seven shots.

Houston led 54-36 at the break. The Lakers grabbed only two offensive rebounds and generated only four fast-break points in their lowest-scoring half of the season. Battier had 15 points at halftime, two more than Bryant.

The Rockets outscored Los Angeles 29-18 in the decisive third quarter, led by Brooks' 17 points. The speedy, 6-foot guard finished the quarter by catching a midcourt pass by Ron Artest and putting in a layup just before the buzzer.

Familiar faces lead District VI in Oakley

Diane Philbin
Times-News writer

OAKLEY — Kelli Kindig of Minico posted a 7.45-second run in goat tying Friday night and Meghan Tolle of Burley was 2.60 seconds in break-away on Saturday afternoon for the quickest times of the season in each event as the District VI traveled to Oakley for the first of two straight weekends.

Megan Crist of Kimberly swept the poles and Tanisha Adams of Declo the barrels. There were no qualified rides in saddle bronc or bull riding on Friday night, but the cowboys changed that on Saturday afternoon.

Brady Manning of Oakley scored 71 points in saddle bronc for his seventh win beating the 43 by Tegan Nevarez of Minico and Jace Hutchison of Raft River won the bull riding for his sixth win with a best ride of 73 points over the 71-point ride of Colton Baratti of Filer.

Saturday Sara Goodwin of Filer with a time of 8.37 seconds picked up her first win in goats and a 69-point Friday ride in bareback by Taylor Osterhout gave the Declo cowboy his first win.

The District VI returns to Oakley this weekend.

FAST TIMES AND FIRST TIME WINNERS FOR DISTRICT V

Mattie MacGregor of Jerome tied her goat in 8.44 seconds, Chayna Jones of Jerome was 2.73 in break-away and Cy Eames of Gooding made a 4.35-second run in steer wrestling to record the fastest times of the season as the District V traveled to Carey over the weekend.

Kash Wilson and Jordon Gill of Gooding finished one-two in bareback riding Friday and Saturday night. Wilson won for the fourth time on Friday scoring 70 points on Moonshine Madness and was 68 points on Black Cat on Saturday for his fifth win.

On Friday night there were no qualified rides in saddle bronc or bull riding.

On Saturday, Cy Eames of Gooding and Blueberry Hill combined for 58 in saddle bronc and Jesse Robinson of Carey got his first win in bull riding marking a 74 on Millers Bottom Up to beat the 68-point ride of Montana Barlow of Valley. Eames and partner, Justin Parke of Gooding won for the sixth time in team roping.

First-time winner's were Garrett Webb of Wendell in calf roping, Jori Fleming of Wendell in goats, Jamie Lancaster of Valley in breakaway and Codee Roberts of Glens Ferry and Luke Hubert of Dietrich in team roping.

The District V travels to Gooding for the district finals May 22-23.

Henrik Stenson, of Sweden, tees off on the first hole during the final round of The Players Championship golf tournament at TPC Sawgrass in Ponte Vedra Beach, Fla., Sunday.

Stenson shoots 66 to blow away final field at Players

PONTE VEDRA BEACH, Fla. — Henrik Stenson kept bogeys off his card and clothes on his body, earning fame Sunday for a flawless round of golf and a surprising blowout victory in The Players Championship.

Stenson wondered if he would be known best for stripping to his underwear to play out of a water hazard at Doral.

This didn't make for great pictures, but it was close to perfection.

The 33-year-old Swede shot a 6-under 66 and was the only player without a bogey in the final round on a treacherous TPC Sawgrass course that featured firm, fast conditions rarely seen this side of a major.

Trailing by five shots, he took advantage of a swift collapse by Alex Cejka, joined the leaders by chipping in for birdie short of the seventh green and pulled away with a 32 on the back nine when the only drama was the margin of victory.

He wound up four shots clear of Ryder Cup teammate Ian Poulter, who shot a 70 for his best finish ever on the PGA Tour.

Tiger Woods played in the last group and was never a factor. He was part of the six-way tie that included Stenson, and even as Cejka faltered to a 42 on the front nine, Woods couldn't take advantage. He finished with a Sunday, and the St. Louis Cardinals overcame five Cincinnati homers — including two solo shots in the ninth — to beat the Reds 8-7 and salvage the final game.

DIAMONDBACKS 10, NATIONALS 8

PHOENIX — Chris Snyder and Eric Byrnes each drove in three runs and the Diamondbacks gave manager A.J. Hinch his first victory.

ASTROS 12, PADRES 5

HOUSTON — Miguel Tejada and Carlos Lee each drove in four runs to help Astros ace Roy Oswalt get his first win of the season.

DODGERS 4, GIANTS 4

LOS ANGELES — Randy Winn hit a tiebreaking two-run single with the bases loaded in the 13th inning and finished with four hits, leading the San Francisco Giants to a 7-5 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers on Sunday.

AMERICAN LEAGUE MARINERS 5, TWINS 3

MINNEAPOLIS — Ken Griffey Jr. hit a tying, two-run homer in the eighth inning Sunday to rouse the Seattle Mariners in a 5-3 victory over the Minnesota Twins that stopped their six-game losing streak.

ANGELS 4, ROYALS 3

BLUE JAYS 5, ATHLETICS 0

OAKLAND, Calif. — Brett Cecil yielded five hits over eight impressive innings to earn his first major league victory, Alex Rios drove in three runs and Toronto beat Oakland for its seventh win in 10 games.

TIGERS 5, INDIANS 3

CLEVELAND — Rick Porcello extended Detroit's streak of strong pitching, and the Tigers completed a three-game sweep of the struggling Indians.

YANKEES 5, ORIOLES 3

BALTIMORE — Johnny Damon hit a three-run homer in the seventh inning, the biggest blow in a long-ball surge that carried New York past Baltimore.

RANGERS 7, WHITE SOX 1

CHICAGO — Hank Blalock homered twice, Vicente Padilla allowed one hit in seven innings and the Texas Rangers ended Bartolo Colon's dominance against them by beating Chicago.

RED SOX 4, RAYS 3

BOSTON — Jonathan Papelbon powered his way out of a ninth inning jam with three straight strikeouts after Jason Bay doubled home the go-ahead run in the eighth, and the Boston Red Sox beat Tampa Bay 4-3 Sunday night.

Red Wings beat Ducks 4-1

DETROIT — Johan Franzen, Jiri Hudler, Darren Helm and Henrik Zetterberg scored, helping the Detroit Red Wings beat the Anaheim Ducks 4-1 on Sunday.

The defending Stanley Cup champions' dominating performance gave them a 3-2 lead in the Western Conference semifinal series. Game 6 will be Tuesday night at Anaheim.

Ryan Whitney scored late in the second period and Jonas Hiller stopped 34 shots, giving the Ducks a chance until Helm made it 3-1 with 3:08 left. Zetterberg added an empty-net goal in the final minute.

Detroit's Chris Osgood finished with 16 saves.

Franzen had his seventh goal of the postseason and scored for the 20th time in 25 playoff games since the start of last year's title run. He usually blends in behind the Red Wings' other stars, unless it's the playoffs.

Indy 500 rookie Matos leads 2nd-day qualifying

By Mike Harris
Associated Press writer

INDIANAPOLIS — With so many veteran drivers trying to make it into the field for the Indianapolis 500 on the second day of qualifications, it seemed unlikely the spotlight would fall on rookie Raphael Matos.

But the 28-year-old Indy rookie led the way Sunday, posting a four-lap average of 223.429 mph to top the second group of 11 drivers to make it into the 33-car field for the May 24 race.

Even Matos was impressed by how fast he ran — especially after failing to make it into the lineup on Saturday with a 222.466 effort.

"Yeah, I was a little bit surprised," he said. "But we did a qualifying simulation during the five minutes before qualifying started, and we made a few adjustments in the car for the qualifying run and found almost half a mile an hour. So I'm extremely happy for the Luczo Dragon team. ... Let's go racing."

Sunday's seven fastest drivers posted speeds quicker than the 222.622 by Alex Lloyd, the slowest of the 11 drivers who earned spots in the lineup on Saturday.

CELTICS 95, MAGIC 94

ORLANDO, Fla. — Glen Davis made a 21-foot jumper as time expired to help the Boston Celtics hold off a furious rally and defeat the Orlando Magic 95-94 on Sunday night to even their Eastern Conference semifinal at two games apiece.

Davis took the pass on the wing from Paul Pierce, swished the jumper and ran to half-court where he was mobbed by teammates, leaving the Orlando home crowd silenced.

Davis' jumper followed a pair of free throws by Rashard Lewis that put the Magic ahead with 11.3 seconds to play. Davis also hit a 15-foot jumper in the final minute and finished with 21 points.

Dwight Howard had 23 points and 17 rebounds, and Lewis scored 22 for the Magic. Game 5 is Tuesday in Boston.

Stenson, who won for the 10th time in his career worldwide, finished at 12-under 276 and earned $1.71 million. He will move to No. 5 in the world ranking. Cejka made only one birdie and shot a 79.

Kerr, also the 2005 Kingsmill winner, had a 16-under 268 total and earned $330,000 for her 12th career LPGA Tour title. She closed with a 1-under 70 after opening with rounds of 69, 63 and 66.

Kim finished with a 71. Song-Hee Kim (71) and Lindsey Wright (73) tied for third at 13 under. Top-ranked Lorena Ochoa, the first- and second-round leader, shot her second straight 74 to finish 10th at 7 under. Michelle Wie (69) tied for 15th at 5 under.

Hatke, Woodhall and Newhouse competing for the second.

Woodhall and Hatke battled side-by-side late in the race but Woodhall was able to pull ahead to secure the runner-up position.

"The car was real strong tonight," Woodhall said. "Once I got past the No. 26 (Newhouse) all the sudden I started catching Gomez out of the corner of my eye again. For a long time I couldn't see him and I thought I was faster than him at that point."

Gomez, who has been touring this season with the NASCAR West Series made his first appearance at MVS this year.

"It was fun," said Gomez, who had lapped all but Woodhall by the end of the race. "I had heard about the last race so the plan was to just stay out of the wreck... we got a little damage but nothing bad. Then we got out front and just got a go!"

PITZ WINS NAPA PONY STOCKS

Josh Pitz was able to overtake Ray Homolka at lap seven and by the time the checkered flag fell on the main event race, he had amassed a quarter-track lead on the rest of the field. It was Pitz' second main event win of the season.

EDITORIAL

More than in most towns, Ketchumites get their money’s worth

In an era of grumpy parochialism — and shrinking tax funding — the city of Ketchum is a breath of fresh air.

The Ketchum City Council voted last week to start negotiating with the Blaine County Sheriff’s Office to handle city law enforcement.

Last winter, of course, Ketchum City Councilman Charles Conn was the driving force, along with Sun Valley City Councilman Dave Chase, for a referendum on merging the two cities. Ketchum also has pushed for a Blaine County-wide emergency dispatch system.

Our view:

The city of Ketchum is a model of a community seeking efficiencies in government by seeking to combine services with other government entities.

Ketchum city officials seem to grasp the reality of local government in Idaho these days: There are too many government agencies, and too much service duplication. That reality is especially acute in Ketchum, where dwindling tourism and last year’s catastrophic fire have taken a real toll.

Under the proposed law enforcement contract with Blaine County, Ketchum would save $1.16 million over the next four years. That’s significant for a city with a $11.7 million budget.

What distinguishes Ketchum from south-central Idaho’s three-dozen other incorporated communities is a willingness to ask which services it really needs and which are better shared with other municipalities. That gives Mayor Randy Hall and the City Council more flexibility to balance the budget.

It’s not that there aren’t sacred cows in Ketchum — the recent bruising debate over consolidation with Sun Valley demonstrated that — it’s just that Ketchum is far more willing to talk about sacrificing them.

If south-central Idaho cities within the same counties — Ketchum, Sun Valley, Hailey, Bellevue, for example, or Shoshone, Dietrich or Richfield, or Rupert, Paul, Heyburn, Acequia and Minidoka — shared services, they could save taxpayers millions of dollars.

And if school and highway districts did the same, county commissioners might actual be able to cut property taxes significantly.

So the question isn’t whether Ketchum is ahead of the curve in seeking greater efficiencies in government. The question is why other towns aren’t doing the same.

Saving nickels and dimes won’t do it

WASHINGTON — The mountain labored, and brought forth a mouse. Last week the administration confronted the budget of the U.S. government in the “line-by-line” review long promised by President Obama — and found theoretical savings almost invisible to the naked eye.

The nickels-and-dimes exercise, a repeat of equally futile gestures by former President George W. Bush, claimed $17 billion in savings in a $3.4 trillion spending plan — a bit less than one-half of 1 percent.

Judd Gregg, the ranking Republican on the Senate Budget Committee, said, “This amounts to less than an asterisk when it comes to the amount of debt and deficit that we will be running up as a government.”

The Democratic chairman of that committee, Kent Conrad of North Dakota, was a bit more polite, saying that “the effort will help,” but adding that “as important as program terminations and cuts are, we should not lose sight of the far larger threat to our nation’s finances — the combination of the retiring baby boom generation, rising health care costs and our outdated and inefficient revenue system.”

Conrad and Gregg have proposed attacking that larger problem by creating a bipartisan commission to examine the big entitlement programs — Social Security, Medicare and Medicaid — where savings must be found, and the tax systems that support them. That proposal and its counterpart in the House, sponsored by Republican Rep. Frank Wolf of Virginia and Democratic Rep. Jim Cooper of Tennessee, have been stymied for two years principally by the adamant opposition of House Speaker Nancy Pelosi.

So far, Obama has not challenged her, even though he knows as well as anyone that significant steps to avoid a succession of trillion-dollar annual deficits when we emerge from this recession clearly will require reform of entitlements and taxes.

Last week, in a courageous break with party solidarity, the House majority leader, Steny Hoyer, reiterated his support for the commission idea, suggesting that along with the overall health care reform Obama has put on the agenda, Congress tackle Social Security.

As Hoyer pointed out, the options for dealing with Social Security “are well and widely understood. We can bring in more revenues. We can restrain the growth of benefits, particularly for higher-income workers, while we strengthen the safety net for lower-income workers. And/or we can raise the retirement age, recognizing that our life expectancy is significantly higher today.”

“What is missing here,” he said, “is not ideas. It is political will,” and the degree of trust between the parties that would permit successful bargaining.

More and more individual Democrats and Republicans are expressing a readiness for such an effort. In response to Hoyer’s speech, Republican Sen. Lindsey Graham of South Carolina, who traveled the country last year with John McCain, told my Washington Post colleague, Lori Montgomery, “I think we can get double-digit Republican support for a reasonable compromise.”

As if to confirm his words, Republican Sen. George Voinovich of Ohio and independent Democrat Joe Lieberman of Connecticut introduced an entitlement commission bill of their own last week. Voinovich told me that he thinks “the prospects for action on the issue are very, very good, because the feeling is growing that we can’t sustain the path we’re on.”

When I spoke with Graham by phone, he outlined a plan that would not only embrace Hoyer’s proposals but provide bigger benefits for retirees past 80 “who are outliving their 401(k)s” in increasing numbers.

Graham said that with leadership from Obama, including a barnstorming tour with congressional supporters from both parties, such a compromise could pass Congress this year — with no need for a commission.

But while these Republicans are gung-ho, Hoyer is cautious. He reminded me in an interview that both Pelosi and Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid have thrown cold water on the commission idea, and said that signals from the White House suggest that Obama would not want anything to get in the way of his health care and energy initiatives this year.

If that means more futile gestures, like last week’s tiny budget cuts, the nation — and Obama — will have missed an opportunity.

It’s past time to get real about wind and solar power

Why are we ignoring things we know? We know that the sun doesn’t always shine and that the wind doesn’t always blow. That means that solar cells and wind energy systems don’t always provide electric power. Nevertheless, solar and wind energy seem to have captured the public’s support as potentially being the primary or total answer to our electric power needs.

Solar cells and wind turbines are appealing because they are “renewables” with promising implications and because they emit no carbon dioxide during operation, which is certainly a plus. But because both are intermittent electric power generators, they cannot produce electricity “on demand,” something that the public requires. We expect the lights to go on when we flip a switch, and we do not expect our computers to shut down as nature dictates.

Solar and wind electricity are available only part of the time that consumers demand power. Solar cells produce no electric power at night, and clouds greatly reduce their output. The wind doesn’t blow at a constant rate, and sometimes it does not blow at all.

If large-scale electric energy storage were viable, solar and wind intermittency would be less of a problem. However, large-scale electric energy storage is possible only in the few locations where there are hydroelectric dams. But when we use hydroelectric dams for electric energy storage, we reduce their electric power output, which would otherwise have been used by consumers. In other words, we suffer a loss to gain power on demand from wind and solar.

At locations without such hydroelectric dams, which is most places, solar and wind electricity systems must be backed up 100 percent by other forms of generation to ensure against blackouts. In today’s world, that backup power can only come from fossil fuels.

Because of this need for full fossil fuel backup, the public will pay a large premium for solar and wind — paying once for the solar and wind system (made financially feasible through substantial subsidies) and again for the fossil fuel system, which must be kept running at a low level at all times to be able to quickly ramp up in cases of sudden declines in sunshine and wind. Thus, the total cost of such a system includes the cost of the solar and wind machines, their subsidies, and the cost of the full backup power system running in “spinning reserve.”

Finally, since solar and wind conditions are most favorable in the Southwest and the center of the country, costly transmission lines will be needed to move that lower-cost solar and wind energy to population centers on the coasts. There must be considerable redundancy in those new transmission lines to guard against damage due to natural disasters and terrorism, leading to considerable additional costs.

The climate change benefits that accrue from solar and wind power with 100 percent fossil fuel backup are associated with the fossil fuels not used at the standby power plants. Because solar and wind have the capacity to deliver only 30 to 40 percent of their full power ratings in even the best locations, they provide a carbon dioxide reduction of less than 30 to 40 percent, considering the fossil fuels needed for the “spinning reserve.” That’s far less than the 100 percent that many people believe, and it all comes with a high cost premium.

The United States will need an array of electric power production options to meet its needs in the years ahead. Solar and wind will have their places, as will other renewables.

Realistically, however, solar and wind will probably only provide a modest percentage of future U.S. power. Some serious realism in energy planning is needed, preferably from analysts who are not backing one horse or another.

James R. Schlesinger was the first secretary of energy and established the National Renewable Energy Laboratory. Robert L. Hirsch is senior energy adviser at Management Information Services Inc. Previously he managed the federal renewables program at the Energy Research and Development Administration, the predecessor to the Energy Department.

Former Idaho House Rep. Reed Hansen, 79, of Idaho Falls dies

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — M. Reed Hansen, an Idaho Falls farmer and seven-term Idaho House representative, died Friday. He was 79.

A Republican, Hansen served as an elected precinct committeeman for 18 years and in 1984 was appointed to fill a vacancy in the House by Gov. Cecil Andrus. He served 14 years in the Legislature, chairing the Health and Welfare Committee and serving on the Resources and Environment Committee and Revenue and Taxation Committee.

Along with former state Rep. Tom Boyd, he was a part of the "steelhead caucus," so named because it was always swimming upstream against more conservative interests, the Post Register reported.

"He was from a prominent Republican family that wasn't afraid to go against party interests when it counted," said Marty Trillhaase, former Post Register Opinions editor, who covered Hansen's career. "He was a very nice guy."

Hansen was the lone eastern Idaho legislator in 1992 to vote for the Henry's Fork Protection Plan, which, among other things, protected Mesa Falls from hydropower development.

That vote likely cost Hansen his seat, when he lost the primary by five votes to Republican Jack Barraclough. He was later re-elected to the House, serving from 1995 to 2000.

Hansen never backed away from his vote on the issue.

"I am very proud of my role in protecting Mesa Falls," he said at the time. "I won't apologize to anyone on that ever, ever, ever."

The lawmaker was also known for his homemade sourdough bread, and when he delivered it to other legislators, a deal was in the works, former legislator Dane Watkins said.

Hansen wasn't the only one in his family to shape Idaho politics. His brother Orville served in the Idaho House and Senate and four years in the U.S. House of Representatives. His brother John served 12 years in the Idaho Senate and his nephew Jim served in the Idaho House.

Source: $2 trillion offered in health savings

By Ricardo Alonso-Zaldivar
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — Top representatives of the health care industry plan to offer $2 trillion in cost reductions over 10 years in a bid to help pass President Barack Obama's health overhaul, a source familiar with the negotiations said Sunday.

Industry officials representing health insurers, hospitals, doctors, drug makers and a major labor union plan to be at White House on Monday to present the offer.

Costs have emerged as the biggest obstacle to Obama's ambitious plan to provide health insurance for everybody. The upfront tab for the federal government from Obama's proposed expansion of health coverage will be due right away while the savings he expects from wringing waste and inefficiency from the health care system will take longer to show up.

A source outside the administration told The Associated Press that the savings would come from slowing projected cost increases by a small percentage each year for 10 years. The result over time would be an estimated $2 trillion in savings on health care costs. The source requested anonymity in order to speak before the public announcement.

In a rare move before the administration has unveiled all the details of its proposal, the industry groups are trying to strike a deal now with Obama officials to help get coverage for all Americans in the hopes they can stave off legislation that would restrict their profitability in future years. Obama has courted industry and provider groups; he invited representatives to a health care summit discussion at the White House. There is a sense among some of the groups that this may be the best opportunity to strike a deal before public opinion turns against them, fueled by anger over costs.

Insurers, for example, want to avoid creation of a government health plan that would directly compete with them to enroll middle-class workers and their families. Drug makers worry that in the future, new medications might have to pass a cost-benefit test before they can win approval. And hospitals and doctors are concerned the government could dictate what they get paid to care for any patient, not only the elderly and the poor.

It's unclear whether the proposed savings will prove decisive in pushing a health care overhaul through Congress this summer, as Democratic leaders have vowed to do. Covering the estimated 50 million uninsured Americans could cost from $1.2 trillion to $1.5 trillion over 10 years. To pay for that, lawmakers would have to identify specific savings in government programs like Medicare, or come up with new revenues.

But the industry offer shows a willingness to help find the money. That's far different from the situation in the 1990s, when insurers and other key groups successfully opposed the Clinton administration's plan to cover all Americans.

Smart cameras

Many are asking a machine to spot threats human eyes may miss

The Associated Press

The surveillance cameras at Big Y, a Massachusetts grocery chain, are not just passively recording customers and staff. They're studying checkout lines for signs of "sweethearting."

That's when cashiers use subtle tricks to pass free goods to friends: obscuring the bar code, slipping an item behind the scanner, passing two items at a time but charging for one.

There simply aren't enough watchful human eyes to keep it from happening. So Big Y is using technology to block it — with implications far beyond dishonest cashiers.

Mathematical algorithms embedded in the stores' new security system pick out sweethearting on their own. There's no need for a security guard watching banks of video monitors or reviewing hours of grainy footage. When the system thinks it's spotted evidence, it alerts management on a computer screen and offers up the footage.

The possibilities that researchers envision for this kind of technology have the ring of science fiction. Think of systems that spot abandoned packages on a train platform or alert an airline crew to a potential terrorist on board. Already, cities like Chicago have invested in "anomaly detection" cameras around town, linked to emergency headquarters. The city plans to announce this week that it is using the technology at Navy Pier, one of Chicago's best-known attractions.

But just how smart have these cameras really become?

"Some of the claims that are made are just ridiculous," says Oliver Vellacott, the chief executive of IndigoVision, a British company that makes video-analysis technology. "That you're going to spot suspicious behavior in people about to stab someone on the street?"

Big Y's security system comes from a Cambridge, Mass.-based company called StopLift Inc. The technology works by scouring video pixels for various gestures and deciding whether they add up to a normal transaction at the register or not.

Cameras in grocery stores have a limited area to keep an eye on. They look for only a few sets of defined behaviors that may signal a cashier is not charging the customer. ... The task grows much more complicated if you're trying to, say, spot the one hijacker among a plane full of innocent passengers.

In the middle of a six-month trial, Mark Gaudette, Big Y's head of loss prevention, decided he'd seen enough and began rolling out the system in all of the chain's 58 locations.

"We realized that we had a problem with training," Gaudette said, explaining that in many cases cashiers didn't realize they were missing the scanner. "Most folks are just distracted."

He would not say how much the company is spending on the technology, but said he expects to save up to $3 million a year by using it.

As a test case, Big Y's success may be misleading. Cameras in grocery stores have a limited area to keep an eye on. They look for only a few sets of defined behaviors that may signal a cashier is not charging the customer. And they don't have to catch every thief to save a store money.

The task grows much more complicated if you're trying to, say, spot the one hijacker among a plane full of innocent passengers.

Yet that is entirely possible, according to some researchers. Dr. James Ferryman leads a team at Britain's University of Reading that joined a European consortium last year with just that goal in mind. The European Union put up part of the funding.

Using a mock-up of an Airbus, the researchers tested camera systems that would identify threats inside passenger planes. Some of the cameras on board, Ferryman said, focused on a passenger's face and upper torso, looking for telltale signs that someone may be up to no good — heavy sweating, for instance.

A central computer would take on the job of compiling data from the cameras — and from audio sensors and the plane itself, among other sources — and deciding whether a credible threat existed before alerting the crew.

But giving a camera the ability to sniff out unruly behavior or what Ferryman called "the potential beginnings of a terrorist action" requires accounting for a huge number of variables that could affect passengers' behavior. Is the plane on a short domestic flight or a 12-hour trans-Atlantic haul? Are there mostly business customers on board or families headed for a vacation? Is the plane landing or taking off?

"A threat in one particular situation may not be in another," Ferryman said. "You don't want a system where the cabin crew is constantly being given false alerts."

For all of the complexity, Ferryman said the testing done so far leaves him confident that automated threat detectors will emerge — assuming regulations would prod airlines into paying extra for planes outfitted with the systems.

Hubble telescope awaits its final polish

By John Johnson Jr.
Los Angeles Times

After 19 years of service, during which time it has provided the most eye-popping images ever of galaxies, nebulae and, most recently, of a planet orbiting an alien star, the Hubble Space Telescope is suffering the pains of old age.

It's unsteady, with only half its gyroscopes working, and several key science instruments are broken. To restore the ailing telescope to its former glory, NASA on Monday plans to launch the fifth and final repair mission to the orbiting telescope.

The mission is unusually risky, even by space travel standards, involving five spacewalks and extended time in the debris-riddled layer above Earth, where even a small collision with space junk could render the shuttle useless.

Top NASA officials say they have done everything they can to ensure the safety of the crew of the shuttle Atlantis, from flying the orbiter upside down and backward to minimize the danger of being struck in a vulnerable place by space debris to having a second shuttle on the launch pad in case a rescue mission must be mounted.

"This is going to be an extremely challenging mission," said shuttle pilot Greg Johnson.

But if successful, the mission will leave the telescope with six new gyroscopes, six fully charged batteries, and four repaired or replaced cameras and spectrographs, including the workhorse wide-field camera No. 2 that was responsible for some of Hubble's most dramatic images.

The repairs will keep Hubble functioning at peak efficiency at least through 2014, by which time the next-generation James Webb telescope is scheduled to take its place. Upgraded instruments will allow the refurbished telescope to look back in time to the very beginnings of the universe.

"This will be our first realistic chance of detecting the first stars and galaxies that formed" right after the Big Bang, almost 14 billion years ago, said astronomer Matthew Malkan of the University of California, Los Angeles, whose team will be among the first users of the refurbished instrument.

Your guide to exercise words you've never heard of

By Ariel Hansen
Times-News writer

HAILEY — Has your exercise routine gotten a little too routine? It might be time to toss aside the treadmill, or abandon that boring aerobics video. But what to choose to replace it?

Take a look at the class schedules for gyms around south-central Idaho, and you might get a little confused. In addition to the good old weightlifting and circuit training, there are probably things you've heard of but never tried — yoga, Pilates, step, spin, tai chi. And then there are those you don't know how to pronounce, let alone do.

To help you in your search for the next great fat burner, muscle builder or flexibility booster, here are some tips from a local fitness coach on how to approach a new class or concept. And in case you're ready to take the leap to something new, we've also included area instructors describing some of their weirdly named classes and why you might want to try them.

Don't be shy

Fitness instructors love to teach, says Rayette Wright, personal training director at Impact Athletic in Burley.

If you ask, they'll be happy to demonstrate or describe to see whether a class or exercise might be right for you. Once you decide to try a class, show up about 10 minutes early to get acquainted with the equipment or space, and introduce yourself to the instructor. Let her know if you have any specific limitations — a joint injury, or a body particularly out of shape — and she'll likely adjust her patter during class to give you extra encouragement or tips on how to modify the routine.

"You go home with your own body, so do what feels comfortable at your level," Wright says. "As an instructor, I love when someone says, 'Where am I supposed to be feeling this?' because there's more than one person who's feeling that."

If you're paying for a gym membership, don't be afraid to take advantage of it by asking frequent questions of staff. Often, they can explain a piece of equipment or give you a tip that'll make your workout much more efficient.

Even if you're paying by the class, though, the instructors are there to help you. So if you didn't understand something, or feel like you're not keeping up, request a five- or 10-minute private session after class.

WATCH: A video of Zumba in action, and an explanation from Wood River Valley instructor Lory Rainey.

Zumba:

Available at many locations, including Gold's Gym, Zenergy, Ketchum YMCA, High Altitude Fitness, Blaine County Fitness and the College of Southern Idaho's Hailey campus; information at Zumba.com.

"Zumba is a new internationally recognized dance class," says Kerry Samudio, director of marketing for Zenergy. "It has a Latin-based feel to it; it's a great mind-body-spirit kind of connection."

In a way, Zumba (ZOOM-buh) harkens back to those aerobics dance classes that got women sweating in the 1980s. With hip-swiveling, though, not leg warmers. Instructor Lory Rainey, who teaches Zumba classes throughout the Wood River Valley, says there was a reason those dance classes were so popular, and it explains why Zumba has taken off across the country so fast.

"For many of us, we didn't want a step class, we wanted somebody to choreograph fabulous songs that we could dance to," Rainey says. "I have women who haven't been to the gym in 20 years. Women are calling and telling me, 'I've been doing the same thing over and over, and I want to do something different!'"

Zumba instructor Lory Rainey demonstrates some of the high-energy, high-spirit movements the new dance craze is becoming famous for.

Zumba combines modern and Latin dance movements with integrated exercises like lunges and standing crunches, set to high-energy music, and Rainey says she has lost six inches off her body measurements in recent months just by teaching the classes.

The BOSU, which is basically half a balance ball, adds balance and core components to many other kinds of exercise, from aerobics to strength training.

BOSU Body Sculpt:

Class available at Zenergy in Sun Valley; BOSUs can be found in many gyms.

You've probably seen those big balance balls — showing up in living room corners as well as gyms, even replacing swivel chairs in offices. The balance ball's higher-energy sister is the BOSU (BOH-soo), which is short for "both sides utilized." It looks like half of a balance ball, with the bottom flat. Like the name implies, it can be used with either the round or the flat side down.

"They offer a great element of balance to almost any exercise," says Kerry Samudio, director of marketing for Zenergy. "Just as you would with a balance ball, you can do a number of balance exercises on top of them, turn them upside down and do push-ups on them."

Add a BOSU to any aerobics or simple strength routine, and the balancing required to stay on the apparatus will strengthen your core and add a level of challenge.

These days, computers are a vital part of everyday life. But all that screen time puts strain on the eyes. The American Optometric Association (AOA) recommends you rest your eyes frequently — by looking away from the computer for 20 seconds or so — and blink forcefully or use a humidifier to keep them moist. Here are some more suggestions for dealing with what the AOA calls computer vision syndrome:

- Adjust your monitor to its highest resolution. The better clarity will be more comfortable on the eyes. But if the high resolution makes things too small to

- Minimize reflected glare on your monitor with dimmer lights or glare reduction filters. (Look for filters with the AOA Seal of Acceptance.) If you can, eliminate bright light from your peripheral vision and position your monitor perpendicular to windows or lights.

- Work at a distance that is comfortable for you. You should not have to strain to see the screen.

- Talk to your optometrist about the computer work you do. General eyeglass prescriptions, such as bifocals, may not be adequate since computers are usually farther and higher than most other reading tasks.

Feldenkrais:

Class available at Ketchum YMCA; information at feldenkrais.com.

This one's not so easy to pin down, even by instructor John Vladimiroff.

"It's such an enigma to talk about, because it's an experiential activity that's very difficult to describe," Vladimiroff says. "It's a self-nurturing exploration of movement."

There are two kinds of Feldenkrais (FELL-den-kryce) classes Vladimiroff offers, the group "Awareness through Movement" and the one-on-one "Functional Integration."

"You are taken through a proscribed set of movements during a class, with certain constraints that require you to use yourself in unusual ways," Vladimiroff says.

An example from feldenkrais.com: Lying flat on your back, you might be asked to bring one knee up so your foot rests flat on the floor, then make minute adjustments to the placement of your foot to achieve the most efficient small rotation in your hips.

"What you end up with is oftentimes people come out feeling like they've had a massage, people find improvement in whatever their athletic or physical endeavors are," Vladimiroff says.

Vladimiroff says he has students who use Feldenkrais to improve their athletic performance in a competitive sport, and others who don't exercise at all. All find improved flexibility, strength and body awareness through the class, he says.

"Feldenkrais can be beneficial to everybody, though not everyone will like it," he says. "You'll never know how nice it is until you try it."

Vinayasa yoga:

Class available at Gold's Gym in Twin Falls.

Unless you've been living under a rock — and maybe even then, since it probably takes some good flexibility to fit under that rock — you've heard of yoga. There are many different kinds though, so talk to an instructor or do some research if you're looking for something specific.

Vinayasa (vee-nah-YAH-sah) yoga, says instructor Kathy Jones, "is a linking of poses, so you're moving from one pose into the next pose into the next pose into the next pose. The flow gets your heart rate up, and helps open the meridians in the body."

She likes to accompany her class with atypical music — not the quiet, new-agey ambient sound you might associate with yoga, but more alternative tunes that Jones hears in movies and cafes. The rhythms of the music help keep the poses moving smoothly, like this sun salutation she teaches in class: It goes from a mountain pose to a forward bend then to a runner's lunge, then into cobra, then into a downward facing dog. From there it returns to a forward bend, and then back up to mountain pose.

Jones says the smooth movement from pose to pose releases toxins more effectively than when there are pauses between movements, and she says vinayasa is a great stress reliever.

NOTICE OF SALE

On the 26th day of August, 2009, at the hour of 11:00 A.M. of said day, at the lobby of the office of Land Title and Escrow, Inc., 211 West 13th, Burley, Idaho, Land Title and Escrow, Inc., successor trustee, will sell at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, lawful money of the United States, all payable at the time of sale, the below described real estate situated in Cassia County, State of Idaho, below described.

The beneficiaries, Harold L. Johnson and Vanda M. Johnson, husband and wife, have elected to declare the entire balance due under a certain promissory note and to sell or cause to be sold the trust property (commonly known as 1519 Conant Avenue, Burley, Idaho) to satisfy said obligation. The property is more particularly described as:

Lot 6 in Block 166 of the BURLEY TOWNSHIP, as the same is platted in the official plat thereof, now of record in the office of the County Recorder of the County of Cassia, State of Idaho.

Said sale will be made without covenant of warranty regarding title, possession, or encumbrances, to satisfy the obligation secured by and pursuant to the power of sale conferred in the Deed of Trust dated February 9, 2005, between themselves, as beneficiaries, and Lynn Marie Phillips-Magee, an unmarried woman; Steven Aaron Wignall, an unmarried man; and, Trellagene Phillips, an unmarried woman, all as "Grantor", recorded as Instrument Number 300439 in the records of the Recorder of Cassia County, Idaho on February 14, 2005, given to Harold L. Johnson and Vanda M. Johnson, husband and wife, as beneficiaries. Based on information and belief, it may be that Lynn Marie Phillips-Magee and Steven Aaron Wignall, are husband wife and that Lynn Marie Phillips-Magee may now be known as Lynn Marie Wignall.

Foreclosure is being effected because of default in the payment of the obligation due and owing from the grantor to beneficiaries, and evidenced by a promissory note, which said obligation is secured by the said deed of trust. Said default, as of the date of the Notice of Default, consists of the failure to make monthly installment payments or other obligations of $5,062.51 since April 1, 2009, under Deed of Trust Note. The total principal and interest due is $101,656.68 as of April 1, 2009, which amount is due plus accrued interest, late charges, back real property taxes, escrow fees, attorneys fees and any other costs or expenses associated with this foreclosure. The Notice of Default was recorded in the records of Cassia County Idaho on April 7, 2009, as Instrument No. 2009-001631.

That by reason of said default, the beneficiaries of said deed of trust have, in the Notice of Default, declared all sums secured by said deed of trust immediately due and payable.

For additional information contact the trustee or the attorney for the beneficiaries: Steven A. Tuft, 1918 Overland Avenue, P.O. Box 759, Burley, Idaho 83318. Tel: 208-678-2922.

ORDINANCE NO. 1061
BILL NO. 536

AN ORDINANCE OF THE MAYOR AND COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF JEROME, IDAHO, AMENDING ORDINANCE NO. 1060 OF THE CITY OF JEROME, IDAHO, BY INCREASING THE NUMBER OF MOBILE HOMES OR MANUFACTURED HOMES REQUIRED TO QUALIFY AS A MANUFACTURED OR MOBILE HOME PARK; CHANGING THE ANNUAL DATE FOR FILING APPLICATIONS FOR RENEWAL OF LICENSES FOR MOBILE HOME OR MANUFACTURED HOME PARKS; PROVIDING FOR AN EFFECTIVE DATE.

WHEREAS, the City recently enacted Ordinance No. 1060 amending provisions of Title 15 Chapter 24 and Title 17 Chapter 8 of the Jerome Municipal Code; and

WHEREAS the City has determined that the ordinance should be amended to provide for six (6), in lieu of two (2) units to qualify as a manufactured or mobile home park; and,

WHEREAS, the City has determined that for more effective administration, the date for submitting applications for renewal of mobile home or manufactured home park licenses should be altered.

BE IT THEREFORE ORDAINED BY THE MAYOR AND COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF JEROME, IDAHO, AS FOLLOWS:

Section 1: Section 1 of Ordinance No.1060 of the City of Jerome is amended to read as follows:

Section 1. Section 15.24.010D of the Jerome Municipal Code is amended to read as follows:

D. "Mobile Home Park" or "Manufactured Home Park" mean any site or tract of land under single ownership, upon which ~~two (2) six (6)~~ or more Mobile Homes or Manufactured Homes are located, either free of charge or for revenue purposes; and shall include any roadway, building, structure, vehicle or enclosure used or intended for use as a part of the facilities of such park. For purposes of this chapter the terms "Mobile Home Park" and "Manufactured Home Park" shall be synonymous.

Section 2: Section 2 of Ordinance No. 1060 of the City of Jerome is amended to read as follows:

Section 2. Section 15.24.060 of the Jerome Municipal Code is amended to read as follows:

15.24.060 License - Fee and expiration date.

An annual license fee, to be determined from time to time by resolution of the city council, shall be required for the initial issuance of any license under this chapter. Initial license fees shall be paid at the time of the filing of the initial application. Each license issued pursuant to this chapter shall expire on the ~~31st day of December 30th day of June~~ of each year, commencing with the year of its issuance. The initial licensing fee for a partial year may be prorated to the percentage of the fee attributable to the remaining portion of the calendar year in which the initial license is issued. Thereafter, an annual renewal of license fee shall be paid by every owner of a mobile home park.

Section 3: Section 3 of Ordinance No. 1060 of the City of Jerome is amended to read as follows:

Section 3. Section 17.08.440 of the Jerome Municipal Code is amended to read as follows:

17.08.440 Mobile Home Park; Manufactured Home Park:

The terms "Mobile Home Park" and "Manufactured Home Park" each means any site or tract of land under single ownership, upon which ~~two (2) six (6)~~ or more mobile homes or manufactured homes are located, either free of charge or for revenue purposes; and shall include any roadway, building, structure, vehicle or enclosure used or intended for use as a part of the facilities of such park.

Section 4: This ordinance shall become effective upon its passage and publication as required by law.

PASSED BY THE COUNCIL this 5th day of May, 2009.

SIGNED BY THE MAYOR this 6th day of May, 2009.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE® Bobby Wolff

"In baiting a mousetrap with cheese, always leave room for the mouse."

— Saki

To mark the start of the Cavendish tournament in Henderson, Las Vegas, this week's deals all come from last year's Cavendish.

Steve Weinstein was declarer in today's deal. He played three no-trump on a heart lead ducked to East's king, and East shifted to a spade. Steve took the third spade, cashed his top diamonds, then went to the club ace and cashed the diamond queen. At this point he had reached a five-card ending. When West followed to the third diamond, declarer could infer that he had begun with 3-5-3-2 shape.

Had West shown out on the diamond queen, Weinstein would have had to guess where the club queen was, knowing the suit to be 3-3. He would have had the choice of finessing, or of endplaying West with it on the third round of the suit. As it was, though, declarer knew from East's play to trick two that West had begun with five hearts and was still clutching four of them; but what was his other card?

Weinstein now led a club back to his nine for a guaranteed endplay on West. Even if West had been able to win the club 10, he would have to give dummy a trick and a heart entry for the repeat of the club finesse if needed.

If the club nine had held the trick, declarer does not get the endplay, but he gets an extra club trick. Either way, he has nine tricks.

Grandkids become the losers in parents' war with in-laws

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I had a falling-out with his parents last October. We sent them an e-mail in December to let them know we have no desire to keep our children — ages 5 and 6 — from them. We feel it is important that they have a good relationship with their grandparents even though we don't.

My in-laws never responded and have made no attempt to see the children. They do send cards to them for holidays and birthdays, however.

While we accept that they want nothing to do with us, the kids keep asking why they don't get to see Nana and Papa anymore. We tell them that Nana and Papa love them very much, but are very busy. My in-laws live just 10 minutes away.

Abby, how do I continue to explain this situation to my children? They have done nothing wrong, and my heart breaks for them.

— DON'T BLAME THE KIDS

DEAR DON'T: You are behaving as if the ball is now in your in-laws' court. Continue telling your children that their grandparents love them, and have them pick up the phone and call Nana and Papa. If your

DEAR ABBY

in-laws are screening their calls and don't answer, have the children leave a message saying they miss their grandparents and would like to see them. Then the ball will be in their court.

DEAR ABBY: My son will graduate in June from a college in the Northeast. We live way down south. I am sending a few invitations to announce the occasion. No one is expected to make the trip for the event.

If people send only congratulatory cards, is a thank-you in order if no gifts are received?

— GRAD'S MOM

DEAR MOM: You should not send an invitation to anyone you know will not attend the graduation ceremony. To do so would seem like a bid for a gift. Instead, send a graduation announcement.

According to "Emily Post's Etiquette": "Recipients of any kind of announcement are not expected to give gifts, though they may want to send a congratulatory note or card."

When someone does something nice for someone else, it deserves to be acknowledged. If your son receives a card congratulating him on his graduation, he should take a moment and drop the sender a note saying, "Thank you for remembering me at this special time in my life."

DEAR ABBY: I am a single woman in my mid-20s and am in the process of buying my first home. It is a great house and not necessarily a typical "starter" home.

My issue is many friends and acquaintances keep asking me how much I am purchasing the home for and how can I afford it. I was raised that to ask about someone's financial situation is rude and intrusive. Am I right, or has this become acceptable?

— VEXED IN TEXAS

DEAR VEXED: It's not surprising that someone would be curious. However, you are right. It IS bad manners to ask people what they paid for something. That's why you are perfectly within your rights to say that you would prefer not to answer and the question makes you uncomfortable.

IF MAY 11 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: You have the know-how and ambition to succeed this year. Don't take a vacation or shirk your duties in August; that is when you should keep that nose firmly pressed to the grindstone. Opportunities may pop up that could distract you, but it is best to stick to something tried and true. In November you are especially susceptible to well-meant promises that are unlikely to pan out. Assess your romantic and career situation carefully before floating off on cloud nine. You can launch important business plans in December with impunity.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Hang in there. You are blessed with high energy levels. Embark on interactive projects and explore avenues of continuing education. Avoid entering into new deals or signing agreements or contracts.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Don't settle for the mediocre; care enough to send only the very best. Make a point of sending thank-you notes and going out of your way to acknowledge others. Use diplomatic skills to ease tensions.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Avoid joining the sour grapes on the grapevine. Gossip can be interesting and make you seem like you're on top of the social heap but it can also create friction. Be discreet when engaged in small talk.

HOROSCOPE

CANCER (June 21-July 22): It's the little things that count. Insignificant doses of fun or kindness can create a treasure trove of good will. You may be aware of fighting at work, but you can't make a difference either way.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): When playing cards, a bad bluff that is called could lose one's shirt. Some things may be beyond your understanding, so don't pretend that you're on top of things when you're uncertain of certain aspects.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You may be older and wiser, but you don't know it all. Don't be persuaded to do something against your better judgment. Avoid making decisions without solid facts.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Delve into your past and look up an old pal. Old and trusted friends who remain in high esteem may appreciate a call. Romantic desires and fantasies, if put into action, may prove to be less than ideal. SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Count your blessings. It may be annoying that others seem to be merely going through the motions, but be thankful that they care enough to do just that. Avoid being overly dramatic.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Take a chill pill. You might be revved up and ready to do battle over the most insignificant matters. Be mindful of the feelings of others — and don't work yourself up into making drastic changes.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Go with the program. Earn respect and kudos by being diplomatic and tactful. Keep a close watch on your wallet; avoid spending until you are absolutely sure of where your dollars are going.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Avoid dwelling in the past; sentimentality can block relationships. Previous indiscretions and mistakes could be revealed — and cause problems. Put off making key financial decisions until next week.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Ignorance is not always bliss. You may go through the day with a smile on your face, but there may be something that you are unaware of that is hampering your progress. Take time to get the low down.

Today is Monday, May 11, the 131st day of 2009. There are 234 days left in the year.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today's Highlight in History: On May 11, 1946, the first CARE packages arrived in Europe, at Le Havre, France.

On this date: In 1502, Christopher Columbus left Cadiz, Spain, on his fourth and final trip to the Western Hemisphere.

In 1647, Peter Stuyvesant arrived in New Amsterdam to become governor of New Netherland.

In 1858, Minnesota became the 32nd state of the Union.

In 1910, Glacier National Park in Montana was established.

In 1944, Allied forces launched a major offensive against German lines in Italy.

In 1949, Siam changed its name back to Thailand.

In 1973, charges against Daniel Ellsberg for his role in the "Pentagon Papers" case were dismissed by Judge William M. Byrne, who cited government misconduct. In 1981, legendary reggae artist Bob Marley died in a Miami hospital at age 36.

In 1985, 56 people died when a flash fire swept a jam-packed soccer stadium in Bradford, England.

In 1996, an Atlanta-bound ValuJet DC-9 caught fire shortly after takeoff from Miami and crashed into the Florida Everglades, killing all 110 people on board.

Ten years ago: Stung by an espionage scandal, Energy Secretary Bill Richardson said he would halt the Clinton administration's aggressive declassification of Cold War-era nuclear documents. In Beijing, protests outside the U.S. Embassy over NATO's bombing of the Chinese Embassy in Belgrade eased after state-run television aired U.S. and NATO apologies for the attack.

Five years ago: A video on an al-Qaida-linked Web site showed the beheading of businessman Nick Berg, an American who'd been kidnapped in Iraq. Six Israeli soldiers were killed when their armored personnel carrier was blown up by Palestinian militants in Gaza City. Los Angeles Lakers star Kobe Bryant pleaded not guilty in a Colorado court to a rape charge. (Prosecutors later dropped the case.)

One year ago: Serbia's pro-Western president, Boris Tadic, declared victory in parliamentary elections — a stunning upset over ultra-nationalists. A cease-fire ended weeks of bloody fighting in Baghdad's Sadr City district. Parvati Shallow was the last woman standing on CBS' "Survivor: Micronesia — Fans vs. Favorites." (Shallow had previously come in sixth place on "Survivor: Cook Islands.")
