Leon case remains under wraps

Judge refuses to unseal information on Jerome man accused of murder

By Andrea Jackson
Times-News writer

JEROME — A judge in a Jerome courtroom refused to unseal information Thursday that might show why an accused murderer is not standing trial.

The Times-News challenged the closure of hearings and the sealing of documents in the murder case against Fortino Leon of Jerome, who lacks a trial date nearly a year after his arrest.

The newspaper's May 1 motion requesting access to sealed records in the murder case was heard Thursday in Jerome County 5th District Court. Leon was not present in the courtroom, and apparently did not receive notice of the hearing from the court, according to court records.

The mental competency of Leon, 73, has been at issue in the court since he was accused of first-degree murder in the July street-side shooting of Javier Zavala-Paniagua, 22. Leon also is charged with aggravated assault and aggravated battery for allegedly shooting his estranged wife, Maria Leon, 41, who was apparently living with Zavala-Paniagua at the time.

After he was arrested, Leon requested a lawyer and did not offer a statement to police, according to a Jerome County 5th District Court record. He then claimed memory problems

JHS bond defeated

By Ben Botkin
Times-News writer

Jerome School District voters defeated a $15.8 million bond issue that would have brought a series of improvements to Jerome High School.

Most precincts were counted by about 10 p.m. Thursday — enough for Superintendent Jim Cobble to know that the bond was rejected. He said that the economy may have played in role in voters turning down the bond.

"There's no question it was defeated," Cobble said, adding that the planners of the bond did a good job. "I think the folks who were involved in that (bond proposal) were convinced it was a good plan. It is hard economic times."

The bond would have brought remodeling and renovation projects that included: eight new classrooms, an upgrade of the performing arts auditorium, an enlarged cafeteria and another gymnasium.

As part of the project, administrative offices would have been moved from the second floor to the first floor to boost security. The school, built in the mid-1970s, now has an enrollment of nearly 1,000 students.

Originally designed for about 650 students, eight classes were added to Jerome High School in the 1990s when enrollment topped 800 students.

Student growth, more state-mandated math and science requirements and a need for more security were reasons cited by the bond's supporters.

The 20-year bond's impact on property taxes was originally estimated at $73 per $100,000 of assessed value.

That estimate, though, was later lowered because the school district had been approved for at least $5 million in interest-free bonds from federal stimulus funding.

State parks stay open, despite budget cuts

By Jared S. Hopkins
Times-News writer

In spite of all the economic uncertainty that's reached Idaho, there remains a steady source of relaxation — the outdoors.

"The parks are right in our backyard," said Dave Landrum, park manager at Thousand Springs State Park. "There are so many people that don't realize what we have in our backyard. It's discovering something new. It's breathtaking. There isn't a day that doesn't go by that I go, 'wow' — and I'm working in it."

The Idaho Department of Parks and Recreation announced this week that despite the recent budget slashing, all 30 state parks and recreational trails will remain open this season.

The idea is to offer Idahoans and families affordable opportunities to enjoy themselves, despite cuts that include reducing state employee payrolls and trimming costs for maintenance and operations, according to a news release.

Day-use fees in state parks are $4 for vehicles, with yearly passes at $25. Overnight fees at camp sites range from $9 to $22 depending on the services provided.

"At a time when budgets are tight, our agency understands that families will want to turn to their state parks for affordable outdoor experiences," said IDPR Director Robert Meinen. "For that reason, IDPR is going to do everything it can to ensure that Idaho's state parks are open and accessible to visitors this year."

For the fiscal year 2010, which starts July 1, the agency received a 14.5 percent overall budget cut, including a 58 percent cut to general fund support.

IDPR spokeswoman Jennifer Wernex said it's difficult how to say how each park will be affected after July 1 because the funding was only approved recently. She assured IDPR will manage as best as possible.

In south-central Idaho, it's unclear how budget cuts will affect state parks but officials said they're doing their best to keep the parks in consistent shape.

At Thousand Springs, there are currently three full-time and six seasonal workers — a decrease that is softened by volunteers, Landrum said. The crews will travel instead of being stationary, but Landrum said they will work hard and keep all the areas looking good.

"The staff here is both seasonal and full-time and they take pride in their parks," he said. "I

Bellevue student found dead at home, no evidence of foul play

Other man in home sent to hospital hours later

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

An 18-year-old Bellevue man was found dead in his bedroom Thursday morning, and his 18-year-old friend was taken to the hospital from the same home about two hours later.

William Glahn, a student at Silver Creek Alternative School in Hailey for the past three years, was found dead at his Sixth Street home by paramedics, Blaine County Coroner Russ Mikel said.

There was no evidence of trauma or foul play, said Mikel, adding that Glahn had passed away several hours before he was found.

Mikel said an autopsy will be conducted today to determine the cause of death.

Justin Herald, a lieutenant paramedic with Wood River Fire and Rescue, said paramedics responded to the house in Bellevue at 7:50 a.m. Thursday after receiving a call that Glahn was cold and not breathing.

Glahn had appeared to be OK the night before, according to friends and family, Herald said.

Two hours later, emergency personnel were called back to the scene where they found a friend of Glahn having a seizure. The second man was lucid while being transported to St. Luke's Wood River Medical Center, Herald said. The man's name has not been released by officials.

The second man appeared to be fine during the 7:50 a.m. call, Herald said. Herald added that it's uncertain if the two cases were related.

Bellevue police evacuated the house as a precaution and had Intermountain Gas test for carbon monoxide, an odorless gas that can cause death by binding to red blood cells and displacing the oxygen a body needs to live. Authorities won't be able to determine whether Glahn's death was caused by carbon monoxide poisoning until they get the toxicology report, Mikel said.

Usually emergency personnel see the most problems with carbon monoxide during winter months when snow knocks off a vent pipe and recirculates the burnt fuel from a gas heater or water heater through the house, Herald said.

T.F. School District receives $762,246

Times-News

The Idaho Board of Land Commissioners gave a ceremonial check for $762,246 to the Twin Falls School District on Thursday.

The check represented the district's trust disbursement for 2009, which comes from the board's endowment lands. The lands, nearly 2.5 million acres, contributed more than $34 million to public education in Idaho.

Revenue from logging, mining, grazing leases and cottage site rentals is invested into the endowment fund. The endowment started in 1969 with $77 million and is now worth more than $880 million.

From May 13 police reports: Information:

A 3-year-old boy, in response to a Health and Welfare complaint, was found with burns on his feet. According to the report, "the house was a mess," and the burns were identical on both of his feet. The mother told police "she doesn't know how he burned his feet. She thought it was because he was running around with his shoes off and without socks."

From May 14 police reports: Driving under the influence:

A 41-year-old Burley bartender with a gargoyle tattooed on her back was arrested for driving under the influence.

According to the report, Deputy Terry Higley pulled the woman over after noticing that she was driving with no headlights on. Common to DUI reports, she allegedly told Higley that she had consumed two beers. During the field sobriety tests, Higley asked if she had suffered any head injuries — no, she said, according to the report, but "said she had an eye problem and I asked her why and she said she had a weird eye. I advised (the woman) that she was not following my finger with either one and she said OK." During the alphabet test, the report reads: "I asked (the woman) if she knew her ABCs. I advised her to not sign them and then once she started, counted A through V and then XYZ missing W."

"I advised (the woman) I wanted her to count from 21 down to 1 and she advised she was a mathematical retard and said she could not even do her 8 times and I advised her I'm not asking her to multiply." The woman was arrested for driving under the influence. The word "advised" was used 31 times in the page-and-a-half report.

No early release for Filer juniors

By John E. Swayze

Times-News correspondent

FILER — School board members have approved discontinuing early release for the junior class at Filer High School.

Early release gave juniors and seniors the option of spending part of their school day attending classes at the College of Southern Idaho or pursuing employment opportunities.

But last month, high school principal Leon Madsen argued that ending the junior class option would keep students on campus and help them better prepare for the academic demands of their senior year. The policy change will not affect early release for seniors.

"To be honest, some students just figure it's an opportunity to sleep in," Madsen said. "I think their time would be better served right here in school."

The board also accepted a previously recommended change to the district graduation policy. Beginning with the 2013 senior class, graduates must complete 56 credits. The addition of two credits will exceed state math requirements of six credits.

Joe Reams, from Brennan Construction of Pocatello, reported Wednesday on progress of the district's $16 million construction project. Recent bids for Filer Elementary and Hollister Elementary roofing projects also came in $195,000 under budget.

"If you approve everything I'm asking for here, tonight, the whole project comes in at over $2 million under budget," Reams said.

He asked for and received the go-ahead to spend $4,000 to improve lighting in the high school gym and $17,000 for interior and exterior painting and sealing at the high school. However, a request for $25,000 to enhance lighting in the high school parking lot was postponed until a decision can be made regarding the engineer's suggestion of using about one candle power of illumination per square foot of parking lot.

"I'm not totally convinced that we're getting what we need or they'll use our money wisely," board member Aaron Williams said. "I'm not saying I'm not going to vote for it. But there's some level of incompetence that comes along with these professionals."

In other action, Western States Bus Service presented the school district with two $500 scholarships for deserving Filer High School seniors planning on continuing their education. Filer Elementary received $500, while an additional $100 was given to the district library grant.

"You can distribute the scholarship money anyway you wish, but we ask that you let us know who the recipients are," Western States Manager Michelle Damron said. "I want to thank you for another great year!"

Motion

at his first court appearance for the case.

Reports from doctors about whether Leon is mentally competent to stand trial will remain sealed, 5th District Court Judge Jason Walker decided on Thursday. Leon will stand trial only if he is found mentally fit to proceed. Idaho lacks a separate insanity defense.

Walker said he will unseal court minutes that he had previously sealed in the criminal case. All other sealed items will remain under wraps for now, he said Thursday.

Walker's decision comes after he abruptly removed the public from a hearing in Leon's criminal case on April 16 without "giving an explanation" he said on Thursday, adding Leon's "underlying" criminal case is open to the public.

Leon's lawyer, Stacey

Gosnell-Taylor, and Jerome County Prosecutor John Horgan were strongly aligned against the motion from the Times-News.

They agreed unsealing the documents would impinge on Leon's right to a fair trial — if he has one — and could lead to a possible change of venue. A motion for change of venue has not been filed for the case, according to online court records.

"I'm here today on behalf of the citizens of Jerome County and their right to try this case in this county," said Horgan. Previously, Paul Kroeger, a deputy prosecutor, had been handling the case in court.

Horgan said taxpayers fund a change of venue, which "far outweighs the right of a newspaper to get these records."

During the motion hearing Thursday, Horgan shared why he thinks the newspaper filed a motion with the court.

"We're talking about the newspaper wanting to have some salacious information," he said.

Lawyer for the Times-News Fritz Haemmerle called that "insulting." He said the newspaper "wants to report what's going on in a first-degree murder case."

Times-News Editor James Wright, said the newspaper "brought this action on behalf of everyone in Idaho, because we believe that the public has a right to know what its courts are doing."

Wright also said he hopes prosecutors are trying to bring the case to trial.

Horgan did not return a call Thursday from the Times-News for further comment.

Walker declined to redact any sealed records as an alternative to not releasing them at all.

"We're talking about the newspaper wanting to have some salacious information."

— Jerome County Prosecutor John Horgan

"I was disappointed that the court took the most restrictive method of sealing the documents," said Haemmerle.

The motion to unseal was brought by the Times-News with financial assistance by The Associated Press, said Wright, adding a decision has not been made on whether to appeal.

Machado returns to Twin Falls County for second dairy appeal

By Nate Poppino
Times-News writer

A western Twin Falls County dairyman has once again urged county commissioners to let him expand his dairy, appearing before them for his second appeal roughly one year after he asked the county for a variance.

Mal Machado, whose Providence Dairy sits within a one-mile setback along Salmon Falls Creek Canyon southwest of Buhl, had his initial variance request turned down by the county Planning and Zoning Commission in June 2008. County commissioners found in November that the P&Z likely voted without a quorum and sent the matter back for another hearing. But the P&Z again turned him down this January, as before by just one vote. The dairyman currently leases the six-acre facility, but has agreements to buy it and join it with 154 acres of farmland next door. In the process, he would expand from 200 milking cows to 420 and bring 60 dry cows and 467 heifers already associated with the dairy onto the site. The changes likely wouldn't happen for two years.

On Wednesday morning, Machado's attorney John Lothspeich explained his client's second appeal to commissioners, arguing that alleged errors and prejudice on the P&Z's part resulted in an improper decision.

With Machado and his family seated in the room, Lothspeich revisited old arguments that the expansion would actually be in line with the county's comprehensive plan. He criticized P&Z Chairman Brent Stastny for treating the request as a new dairy and stating that Machado wouldn't face "undue loss" if he did not get the variance — even as he acknowledged that a denial would put the dairy out of business and force the Machados to move.

Stastny, Lothspeich argued, didn't seem willing to grant variances in general, based on a quote from the January meeting's transcript.

"Why have the county go through the long process of making a comprehensive plan and passing ordinances if we're going to tear them apart in here?" Stastny is recorded as asking.

Rich Carlson, representing the Idaho Rural Council, argued that the P&Z's decision was right both times, and that the request isn't proper on many levels. He asked commissioners to look at other restrictions on dairies besides the canyon setback that he said render Machado's request not unique at all, and argued that variances are meant to deal with physical placement of structures, not expansions or economic factors.

He noted a committee of industry representatives and concerned neighbors that had a hand in developing the county's current ordinance, and said there's no reason to revisit or allow exceptions to the canyon-rim setback.

"We settled that a long time ago," Carlson said.

Commissioners asked little in the way of questions, though Deputy Prosecutor Matt Pember confirmed that Machado does have a legal interest in the property. They plan to issue a written decision within 10 days.

South Central Public Health District recognizes several retirements

By Nate Poppino
Times-News writer

The South Central Public Health District will lose three longtime employees this spring, including two of its current department directors.

Next week, the district will bid farewell to husband-and-wife team Tom and Maggi Machala, who respectively serve as the district's director of communicable disease and prevention and director of community health and the region's Women, Infants and Children program. Then on June 16, Dan Kriz — who formerly ran the district's environmental health program and now leads that department's work in Jerome County — will retire after 21 years with the district.

The Machalas came to Twin Falls in 1980 after a two-year stint in the Peace Corps, and settled into a series of health-care jobs with a variety of providers and agencies.

Maggi Machala worked at what's now St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center, running its child-birth education programs. Meanwhile, she served on the first board of directors for the nonprofit Family Health Services and helped write its bylaws. When the hospital shed some jobs a few years in, she said, she came to the health district, starting her long career there.

Her husband made a few more detours — starting at the district as a health educator in 1980, but then leaving later that decade to spend five years running Family Health Services. Tom Machala then headed the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare's regional Medicaid unit for 11 years before returning to the health district, at first running its public health preparedness efforts after the Sept. 11, 2001, attacks.

On Wednesday, both received plaques from the district's governing Board of Health commemorating their years with the district — 24 for Maggi, 12 for Tom. A third plaque for Kriz will be presented to him later, said District Director Rene LeBlanc, as he was unable to attend this week's event.

Wednesday was also the final day the district accepted applications for the Machalas' successor. LeBlanc said budget difficulties — the district lost 15 percent of its state income after cuts made during the Legislature, though its county funding will remain the same as last year — led him to combine their departments into one unit led by a newly christened "public health administrator."

At least 10 people have applied for the job, and interviews will likely be conducted next month, LeBlanc said.

Meanwhile, after their last days at the district and a retirement reception next week, the Machalas will leave the Magic Valley for Madras, Ore., where Tom Machala will serve as public health director for Jefferson County. The couple said they'll be closer to family, but will miss their time in Twin Falls.

"It's been a wonderful place to call home," Maggi Machala said.

Shoshone school district plans for pay cuts

By John Plestina
Times-News correspondent

SHOSHONE — When Shoshone school trustees meet June 10 they will consider a flat budget, with spending unchanged from last year.

Superintendent Mel Wiseman is mandated to have the finished budget completed 10 days prior to its presentation during a public hearing at the June 10 meeting.

Projected expenses are higher than they were for the 2008-09 fiscal year. Federal stimulus funds and employee attrition have made the amount the district must raise equal to last year. Shoshone is experiencing a staff reduction of one and a half positions that Wiseman said the district is not likely to fill.

"We're a little over $5 million," he said of the budget. "It's flat. If it weren't for stimulus money we would be down about $150,000."

"There's $126,000 more spent. I'm still not in a panic," Wiseman said at the last school board meeting, held May 12.

He explained that when the trustees last met, the budget balanced and he was working with a rough working budget. Wiseman said he lists all potential expenses when he drafts budgets.

"We knew our minimal budget projections. I try to be as conservative as I can when it comes to revenue projections," he said.

"We refined the amounts of our revenue projections. It's called just making the numbers work," Wiseman said.

Sustainability for the students is a very high priority, he said.

Shoshone teachers can expect 2.63 percent pay cuts for the next school year. The salary reductions go as high as 5 percent for administrators for a district average of 3.6 percent. The reductions are the percents the state is reducing in funding to the district. Also, the district will not pay annual increments for the number of years of experience based on the state funding reduction.

"The state looks on it as a freeze. Teachers look on it as a pay cut because they are not going to get an increase," Wiseman said.

"It's a convoluted mess," the superintendent told the school board May 12.

The district pays $6,540 for health insurance, vision and a small life insurance policy for each teacher.

New Hailey development gains support

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

HAILEY — Support tilted toward the construction of a new development east of Hailey, despite some concerns about water and wildlife rights.

Steve Kearns told Hailey City Council members Tuesday night that Hailey has always been a working man's town, providing the airport and other infrastructure for the Wood River Valley.

"I for one think the citizens of Hailey deserve the amenities of this project," he said. "It makes Hailey a place to drive to and not drive through."

About 125 people packed into the choir room of the Wood River Middle School to give their views on a development that would include an 18-hole public golf course, clubhouse, Nordic center and up to 379 homes.

The Hailey City Council is considering annexing 1,109 acres that David Hennessy owns. Hennessy could build four times more homes within city limits than he can in the county.

Business owner Doug Brown, speaking on behalf of the Wood River Economic Partnership, said that the project would create 490 construction jobs each year for 15 years and that having affordable public access would be a huge asset for years to come.

But builder Richard Stopol countered that, most likely, construction jobs would go to people outside the valley.

Hailey Attorney Ned Williamson said that the development's potable water system would be connected to Hailey's system. Sources for irrigation could include water from the Hiawatha canal or reclaimed wastewater from Hailey's water treatment plant.

The property's water rights include one dating back to 1889, the most senior water rights in Blaine County, he said. But some question the quantity of water available, he added.

Wendy Pabich said she was concerned that the amount of water needed to water the course would give the city a significant water deficit, given a declining water table.

"As a taxpayer, I don't want to see the city shut down my vegetable garden," she added.

Several people cautioned against the city making any deals with the developer, noting how the Sweetwater and Old Cutters developments had stalled.

But Ketchum resident Spyder Stevens suggested that the city could hedge its bets by having the developer

Doug Brown, who owns Jane's Paper Place in Ketchum, extols the benefits the Quigley Canyon development could bring to a Wood River Valley region that's been hard hit by the recession.

"(Quigley) can still be a place where all this can continue if we plan it right. You should never sacrifice the land or the animals. But I think we can live in harmony."

— Bob Rosso, who served 20 years on the board of the Blaine County Recreation District build the course and clubhouse before beginning residential construction.

"My son and I love to play golf but playing at (nine-hole) Bigwood is all we can afford, and it sucks," he said.

Don Wiseman, director of the Sun Valley Ski Education Foundation, said Quigley Canyon is one of the most used amenities in the Blaine County Recreation District's system during winter when it is used by hundreds of cross-country skiers. The developer has been "more than receptive" to everything the foundation has asked of him, Wiseman added, even offering to donate land for a Nordic center.

But Nathan Welch said the Wood River Land Trust was concerned that residential construction in Deadman's Gulch and beyond the Quigley pond would disrupt migration corridors

WHAT'S NEXT?

The Hailey City Council will meet at 5:30 p.m. Tuesday at City Hall to hear reports on sewer and management issues. The public will have one more chance to offer comment and, if there is time, the council will begin deliberating. The Council plans to start or continue deliberations at 5:30 p.m. Thursday.

Bob Rosso, who served 20 years on the board of the Blaine County Recreation District, noted how the valley's crown jewels, such as its bike path, did not get built without a fight.

But he praised the developer's heart and conscience.

"Everybody in Hailey feels Quigley is theirs — it's where they hike and ski and hunt," he said. "And it can still be a place where all this can continue if we plan it right. You should never sacrifice the land or the animals. But I think we can live in harmony."

Security showdown: In D.C., a sharp virtual debate between Obama and Cheney

By Jennifer Loven
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — President Obama fought Thursday to retake command of the emotional debate over closing Guantanamo, denouncing “fear-mongering” by political opponents and insisting that maximum-security prisons in the U.S. can safely house dangerous terror suspects.

In a unique bit of Washington theater, former Vice President Dick Cheney delivered his own address just one minute later, defending the Bush administration’s creation of the prison camp at the U.S. Naval base in Cuba as vigorously as Obama denounced it.

Obama

Obama, appearing at the National Archives with its immensely symbolic backdrop of the nation’s founding documents, said that closing Guantanamo would “enlist our values” to make America safer. Speaking a day after an overwhelming congressional rebuke to his pledge to close the prison, he forcefully declared the camp a hindrance — not a help — to preventing future terrorist attacks. He contends that the prison, which has held hundreds of detainees for years without charges or trials, motivates U.S. enemies overseas.

The president promised to work with lawmakers to develop “an appropriate legal regime” for those who can’t be tried and are too dangerous to be released. Still, he did not provide the level of detail about his plans that lawmakers, including Democrats, demanded in a 90-6 Senate vote denying money for the shutdown on Wednesday.

Cheney, in his own speech, denounced some of Obama’s actions since taking office as “unwise in the extreme” and “recklessness cloaked in righteousness,” repeating his contention from a series of headline-grabbing appearances recently that the new president is endangering the country by turning aside Bush-era policies. The former vice president, a primary architect of the Bush approach, accused Obama of looking for “a political strategy, not a national security strategy.”

Cheney

However, neither Cheney nor Obama brought significant new information to bear on the debate that has roiled Washington for weeks. Instead, each presented what amounted to lengthy — and dueling — summations of entrenched positions. Reaction afterward followed well-tilled ground as well, with no sign that Obama was winning the votes he will need to close the prison.

As Obama has made one decision after another on Bush-era terror-fighting tools, liberals have expressed dismay at what they view as a Democratic president acting much like his Republican predecessor.

They cite Obama’s moves to reverse himself and fight the court-ordered release of prisoner-abuse photos, to revive military tribunals for some terror suspects

(although he is revamping how they would work), to oppose a truth commission to investigate past detainee treatment and to continue using in some cases Bush’s “state secrets” doctrine that claims unchecked presidential power to prevent information disclosure in court.

Senate passes $91.3-billion war funding bill

By Andrew Taylor
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — The Senate on Thursday passed a $91.3 billion military spending bill, shorn of money President Barack Obama wants to close the Guantanamo Bay prison but allowing him to significantly ramp up the U.S. war in Afghanistan.

The Senate voted 86-3 to pass the bill, which provides money for military and diplomatic operations in Iraq and Afghanistan, setting up House-Senate talks on a compromise measure to present to Obama next month.

The spending measure closely tracks Obama’s request for war funds, although the $80 million he was seeking to close the U.S. naval prison at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, was dropped Wednesday.

A three-day Senate debate on the bill featured little of the angst over the situation in Afghanistan that permeated debate in the House last week on companion legislation.

Obama is sending more than 20,000 additional troops there and, for the first time next year, the annual cost of the war in Afghanistan is projected to exceed the cost of fighting in Iraq.

With support forces, the number of U.S. forces in Afghanistan is expected to be about 68,000 by the end of the year — more than double the size of the U.S. force at the end of 2008.

Among the few cautionary voices was Sen. Barbara Boxer, D-Calif.

“I want to give this administration ... the resources it needs to successfully end these wars,” Boxer said. “I don’t support an open-ended commitment of American troops to Afghanistan. And if we do not see measurable progress, we must reconsider our engagement and strategy there.”

Debate pretty much fizzled after Democrats retreated and moved to delete from the bill money to close Guantanamo, where about 240 terrorism suspects still are held. The companion House bill had already taken that step.

The underlying war funding measure has gotten relatively little attention, even though it would boost total approved spending for the Iraq and Afghanistan wars above $900 billion.

The Pentagon would receive $73 billion under the legislation, including $4.6 billion to train and equip Afghan and Iraqi security forces; $400 million to train and equip Pakistan’s security forces, and $21.9 billion to procure new mine-resistant vehicles, aircraft, weapons and ammunition, among other items.

"The lack of a comprehensive, well-thought-out plan led to a predictable political backlash on Guantanamo."
 — Sen. John McCain after the Senate refused to close Guantanamo Bay prison until the Obama administration delivers a satisfactory plan for what to do with the detainees

EDITORIAL

County government is Idaho's great anachronism

Boise County Prosecuting Attorney Ron Twilegar is in trouble. Twilegar, a Democrat elected last fall, doesn't actually live in Boise County, charge Republican office-holders at the Courthouse in Idaho City. They say Twilegar's real residence is Ada County, where he served four terms in the Legislature and ran unsuccessfully for the U.S. Senate in 1990.

Attorney General Lawrence Wasden is investigating.

Boise County has 7,500 residents and its county seat is 40 miles from Boise. The Idaho Bar lists no attorneys in Boise County.

So why, we wonder, isn't it OK for Twilegar to live in Boise and work for the taxpayers of Boise County?

Because of a 119-year old state law that says candidates for prosecutor must be legal residents and registered to vote at least 30 days before Election Day. Twilegar moved his voter registration from Boise to Boise County in June 2008.

That might make sense if Twilegar were running for prosecutor in Ada County, where hundreds of lawyers live and practice.

But Boise County? Or Camas? Or Clark? Or any of the other 16 Idaho counties with fewer than 10,000 residents?

Twilegar's gate is just one more reason why Idaho's rigid system of nine elected officials per county doesn't make sense anymore. State law allows counties, by a vote of residents, to alter their systems of government, but there have been no takers.

Boise County would be better off if the three commissioners hired the county attorney, along with the coroner, the assessor and perhaps the sheriff. That way, its citizens would get the services of the best available professionals, not just folks who happen to live inside the county line.

So rather than trying to suss out where Twilegar hangs his hat at night, the Boise County commissioners should be thinking about ways to organize local government more effectively.

Money for nothing is back

On July 15, 2007, The New York Times published an article with the headline "The Richest of the Rich, Proud of a New Gilded Age." The most prominently featured of the "new titans" was Sanford Weill, the former chairman of Citigroup, who insisted that he and his peers in the financial sector had earned their immense wealth through their contributions to society.

PAUL KRUGMAN

Soon after that article was printed, the financial edifice Weill took credit for helping to build collapsed, inflicting immense collateral damage in the process. Even if we manage to avoid a repeat of the Great Depression, the world economy will take years to recover from this crisis.

All of which explains why we should be disturbed by a recent Times article, reporting that pay at investment banks, after dipping last year, is soaring again — right back up to 2007 levels.

Why is this disturbing? Let me count the ways.

First, there's no longer any reason to believe that the wizards of Wall Street actually contribute anything positive to society, let alone enough to justify those humongous paychecks.

Remember that the gilded Wall Street of 2007 was a fairly new phenomenon. From the 1930s until around 1980, banking paid no better than other industries, yet kept the economy's wheels turning.

So why did some bankers suddenly begin making vast fortunes? It was, we were told, a reward for their creativity — for financial innovation. At this point, however, it's hard to think of any major recent financial innovations that actually aided society, as opposed to being new, improved ways to blow bubbles, evade regulations and implement de facto Ponzi schemes.

Consider a recent speech by Ben Bernanke, the Federal Reserve chairman, in which he tried to defend financial innovation. His examples of "good" financial innovations were (1) credit cards — not exactly a new idea, (2) overdraft protection and (3) subprime mortgages. These were the things for which bankers got paid the big bucks?

Still, you might argue that we have a free-market economy, and it's up to the private sector to decide how much its employees are worth. But this brings me to my second point: Wall Street is no longer, in any real sense, part of the private sector. It's a ward of the state, every bit as dependent on government aid as recipients of Temporary Assistance for Needy Families, aka "welfare."

I'm not just talking about the $600 billion or so already committed under the TARP. There are also the huge credit lines extended by the Federal Reserve, large-scale lending by Federal Home Loan

Banks, the taxpayer-financed payoffs of AIG contracts, the vast expansion of FDIC guarantees and, more broadly, the implicit backing provided to every financial firm considered too big, or too strategic, to fail.

One can argue that it's necessary to rescue Wall Street to protect the economy as a whole. But given all that taxpayer money on the line, financial firms should be acting like public utilities, not returning to the practices and paychecks of 2007.

Furthermore, paying vast sums to wheeler-dealers is dangerous. Why, after all, did bankers take such huge risks? Because success offered such gigantic rewards: Even executives who blew up their companies could and did walk away with hundreds of millions. Now we're seeing similar rewards offered to people who can play their risky games with federal backing.

So what's going on here? Why are paychecks heading for the stratosphere again? Claims that firms have to pay these salaries to retain their best people aren't plausible: With employment in the financial sector plunging, where are those people going to go?

No, the real reason financial firms are paying big again is simply because they can. They're making money again, and why not? After all, they can borrow cheaply, thanks to all those federal guarantees, and lend at much higher rates. So it's eat, drink and be merry, for tomorrow you may be regulated.

Or maybe not. There's a palpable sense in the financial press that the storm has passed: Stocks are up, the economy's nosedive may be leveling off, and the Obama administration will probably let the bankers off a few stern speeches. Rightly or wrongly, the bankers seem to believe that a return to business as usual is just around the corner.

We can only hope that our leaders prove them wrong, and carry through with real reform. In 2008, overpaid bankers taking big risks with other people's money brought the world economy to its knees. The last thing we need is to give them a chance to do it all over again.

Parenting advice that borders on quackery

The passive-aggressive baby industry wants you to feel so completely, even dangerously unprepared for the challenges (they're always "challenges") of parenthood that you will run out and read its magazines, buy its products and take its advice. Kaching!

Here's a tip from a little article on flying a kite with your kid: "Choose a sunny day when there's no chance of lightning!"

You mean, don't fly kites when there's a funnel cloud headed for the driveway? Got it.

Or how about this pointer from Parenting magazine on how to delight your baby: "Lean in close and kiss her nose." Kissing my baby. Why didn't I think of that?

These tips treat parents as if we were the 2-year-olds. This talking down to parents is big business; the "mom market" has reached $1.7 trillion in annual revenue, according to the book

LENORE SKENAZY

"Parenting, Inc.," with $700 million spent on zero-to-age-2 toys alone. That's a lot of pull toys.

Excuse me. Push and pull toys.

The whole gestalt is enough to convince us moms that today's children not have their trajectory pretty well mapped out simply by being born human: cry, crawl, toddle, walk, grow up, breed and cry some more. No, this generation won't make it without a whole lot of help from specialists, safety gear and Internet searches. But why? Are our children more vulnerable than any previous generation in history?

Of course not. We're living in a time when parents worry about their offspring's safety and development and health and you name it more than ever, thanks to a parenting industry that relies on turning us into nervous wrecks.

It begins even before the baby's born. There are books and books about what to eat during pregnancy, as if the average expectant woman couldn't figure out whether she should choose the kale or the Krispy Kremer.

That kind of counsel is too reasonable for the parenting-industrial complex. There's no rest for the weary parent in this high-alert world, especially after the little bundle arrives. Take, for instance, the baby bath thermometer, an item so popular that there are several competing brands on the market. The cheapest one looks like a rubber duck. Place it in the tub and if the bathwater is too hot, these words magically appear on its tummy: "Too hot!"

You'd have to be convinced that you're incapable of testing the water temperature with your own hand before you'd buy this gadget. But that's what that crafty duck is out to do: undermine your confidence in your own childrearing capabilities.

It's hard to feel secure about being a good mom now that every decision is so fraught with consequences. My friend Lainie Gutterman, who is just entering her second trimester, says that her head is spinning. "I don't know what's right, what's wrong, and for everyone who swears by something," she says, "there's someone who hates that product and thinks it's overpriced."

Usually that someone is me. And not just because it's a waste of money. It's because I want the old days back.

For my friends and me things have changed dramatically in a single generation. The worries that make us hyperventilate didn't even faze our moms — and not because they were lazy or bad. It's just that in the past, people didn't see every tiny parenting decision as such a big deal. Our moms could feed us formula and not worry about whether they were subtracting IQ points. They could let us bike around the block without thinking about last night's Nancy Grace. They could hang a mobile above the crib and not worry too much about:

- Whether it was developmentally appropriate.
- Whether the attachments were facing the right way. And ...
- Whether we were going to strangle ourselves if we somehow managed to pull the mobile down, play with the pull chain and accidentally wrap it around our necks.

They didn't sweat the way we do because they were reading Dr. Spock, the childcare guru of the 1950s and '60s, who famously began his book "Baby and Child Care" with the words, "Trust yourself. You know more than you think you do." Not, "Freak out! Your baby is at a super-important stage and you must devote every fiber of your being to helping him ace it!"

Deprived of this kind of "help," our parents let us stay outdoors till the streetlights came on, and maybe even fly a kite on days that weren't perfectly sunny.

We should thank those moms for all that they did. But we should also thank the current crop of moms, stuck trying to do their best in the face of a whole parenting culture that's insisting, "You're not doing it right!"

Yes we are. Or at least we're doing it right enough, thank you, and the odds are very much on our side.

Kids bearing the brunt of recession

With so much attention focused on the banking system and arguments over bailouts, the plight of America's children in this severe economic downturn is getting short shrift.

Official statistics are not yet readily available, but there is little doubt that poverty and family homelessness are rising, that the quality of public education in many communities is deteriorating and that legions of children are losing access to health care as their parents join the expanding ranks of the unemployed.

This is a toxic mix for children, a demoralizing convergence of factors that have long been known to impede the ability of young people to flourish.

"It's actually quite frightening," said Dr. Irwin Redlener, president of the Children's Health Fund in New York. "We're seeing very unsettling reports of increased numbers of children in poverty. Those numbers may rise from about 12.5 million before the recession to nearly 17 million by the end of this year."

Redlener is a pediatrician who also is a professor at Columbia University's Mailman School of Public Health. He co-founded the Children's Health Fund with the singer Paul Simon back in 1987 in response to a homeless crisis in New York City that saw families with small children wallowing tragically in squalid welfare hotels.

Redlener and Simon raised enough money to purchase a medically equipped van that traveled the city to bring free health care to homeless kids.

What is happening now, nationally, is overwhelming compared with New York's problems in the mid-1980s. "We are seeing the emergence of what amounts to a 'recession generation,'" said Redlener. "This includes the children who were already living in poverty, but also millions more whose families had a reasonable chance of making it. Two years ago, they saw themselves as working class and middle class, but now many are unemployed or underemployed, and one of the results is that we're seeing growing numbers of children depending on emergency rooms for health care or going without care."

The Center on Budget and Policy Priorities has noted that changes in food stamp enrollment closely track changes in poverty. Since the start of the recession, the number of people receiving food stamps has increased by 4.6 million, nearly 17 percent. According to the center, that's an indication of a substantial increase in poverty over the same period. And that's bad news for children.

Similarly grim evidence is mounting with regard to homelessness. Surges in the number of families living in shelters are being reported by officials in communities across the country.

"This spike in homelessness," the center said, "is worsening what was already a large and persistent problem. Even before the current recession, an estimated 1.6 million people, including 340,000 children, were homeless and living in emergency shelters or transitional housing over the course of a year. Many more adults and children were living on the street, in shelters for victims of domestic violence, or temporarily in the homes of friends and relatives."

With unemployment expected to continue to rise for the foreseeable future, and with state and local governments staggering beneath the weight of budget deficits, there is no reason to believe that these problems — and their profound negative impact on children — will do anything but worsen.

States from coast to coast are cutting social service programs. Arizona's child protection agency, for example, has cut back on its investigations of abuse and neglect reports. Similar cutbacks in socially beneficial and even life-saving programs for children are in the works in many states.

Redlener described what is occurring as "a quiet disaster."

The number of state-of-the-art mobile medical units operated by the Children's Health Fund has grown from one in 1987 to 37. In an effort to bring health care to some of the children most in need right now — while at the same time drawing attention to the plight of children in general in these tough economic times — Redlener is planning to deploy the distinctive blue vans to some of the communities hardest hit by the recession.

"We're going to take them to various parts of the country where there have been significant cutbacks in services," he said, "and for a weekend we'll provide free health and dental care to children whose parents cannot afford to pay for care. We'll also refer every child that we see to an ongoing source of care in their community, if we can find one."

The goal, he said, in addition to helping as many children as possible, is to spark additional help for children from all quarters, government and private. "Kids can't wait for the economic recovery to have their immediate needs cared for," he said.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Community must remember internment

I wish to have our community remember the World War II internment of the Japanese. They were American people who suffered loss of freedom and rights because the Constitution was violated. Because internment happened in this community, I would like this community to memorialize it with something such as a statue or monument in a city park or visitor center or maybe a piece of land that the city could be willing to dedicate.

Other suggestions are an internment museum, photo hall or a memorial garden.

I want people to remember the past so that we avoid repeating it.

Override levy merits voters' full support

We are writing to encourage all citizens in the city of Burley to go to the polls on May 26 and vote "yes" for the Library Override Levy. This levy has been in effect for the last two years and has proved to be very beneficial to all those who use the library, in and out of the city limits.

A good library is a valuable and essential asset to any city. The director and all the employees of the Burley Library have certainly done their utmost to make books, information and other activities available to us.

When the question is asked, "Do you want to volunteer to pay higher taxes so the Burley Library has enough money to spend to provide the necessary services?" then another question is, "Are you happy with the manner in which the library spent the additional $440,000 you and our neighbors gave them over the past two years?" The answer to both of these questions is a resounding yes! Just go to the library at any given time and you will see the people of Burley and Cassia County utilizing the many benefits the library offers.

The city of Burley needs a library that adequately serves its citizens, and by once again passing this levy, this can be done. We will once again be voting "yes" and hope that many of the citizens of Burley will do likewise.

Cultural understanding can remedy problems

Our multicultural world requires the ability to work and respond to each other in a manner that acknowledges and respects individuals' culturally based beliefs, attitudes, behaviors and customs. Our actions and behaviors need to show understanding.

We have to care about people and want to understand their culture before we can make a difference in their lives. This doesn't happen when we purposely acknowledge or allow only one way of being.

There are positive assets and benefits of diversity. For example, two studies examining drug use among African American and Puerto Rican adolescents found that knowledge of cultural history and ethnic identity diminished drug use according to Substance Abuse and Mental Health Service Administration's National Clearinghouse for Alcohol and Drug Information on Dec. 11, 2006. It should not be assumed that acculturation is more important than maintaining a cultural identity.

Programs high in cultural competence are able to incorporate youth's ideas and values into their activities and structures, and the youth are less likely to fall through the cracks into drug use and other harmful behaviors that cause them to drop out of school.

We can get past our bias when we open our hearts and seek understanding of those who are different from us. We must not base our understanding on our assumptions without any real awareness. Respecting and learning about culture promotes a focus on the positive characteristics and strengths of a community. This respect and learning will develop culturally appropriate, relevant and sensitive strategies of helping individuals and groups.

To judge is to separate, and to know is to love. To not go below the surface of our differences is to fail in relationship. We can't help someone we don't respect.

No gas price redux

Fuel costs more, but don't expect a repeat of 2008

By John Porretto
Associated Press writer

HOUSTON — As tens of millions tank up and hit the road for Memorial Day weekend, gas prices are rising fast enough to revive painful memories of the $4-a-gallon summer of 2008. Rest easy: The economic slack created by the recession all but guarantees prices won't spike the way they did last year, analysts say.

On Thursday, a gallon of unleaded averaged $2.36. That's much cheaper than the $3.80 it cost this time last year, but prices are still up about 30 cents a gallon this month, enough to make drivers flinch.

"Uh-oh," cab driver Jay Biyani said while filling up this week in Manhattan. "That's the first thing I say when I pull into this gas station each day. Right now it's not that bad, but it's a lot worse than two weeks ago."

Even so, the auto club AAA estimates 32.4 million people, or about one in 10 Americans, will travel over the holiday, most of them driving. That's a slight 1.5 percent increase from 2008.

Vacations make a lot more sense for many families than they did last year. Airfares, hotels and tourist attractions are all cheaper

New jobless claims decline

Auto shutdowns likely to inflate numbers

By Christopher S. Rugaber
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — The number of newly laid-off workers requesting unemployment insurance dropped slightly last week after spiking due to auto layoffs, while continuing jobless claims moved closer to 7 million.

Jobs are likely to remain scarce through next year and maybe beyond that even though the overall economy seems to be picking up. Fresh evidence of improvement came Thursday from a private research group. It said its index of leading indicators rose in April for the first time in seven months.

The Labor Department said Thursday that initial claims for jobless benefits fell to a seasonally adjusted 631,000, down from a revised figure of 643,000 the previous week. That nearly matched analysts' expectations of 630,000 new claims.

Many economists said that while layoffs probably are still declining, they may not be doing so as fast as had been hoped. New jobless claims, which had dropped to a 14-week low of 605,000 earlier this month, are seen as a measure of the pace of layoffs.

Factory shutdowns by Chrysler LLC and General Motors Corp. likely will continue to inflate the claims figures until this summer, economists said. The shutdowns also could affect auto suppliers, which employ roughly 3 million workers.

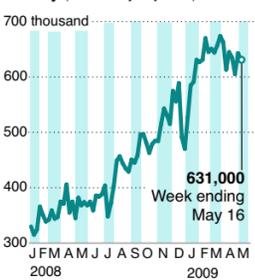

"We expect that the auto shutdowns will be lifting claims for the next couple of months," said Dean Maki, an

FOLLOWING THE MONEY

Tracking stimulus spending may not be as easy as promised

By Alec MacGillis
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Shortly after the economic stimulus bill was signed, Vice President Biden was talking up the administration's Web site to track the spending, Recovery.gov, when he accidentally directed people to Recovery.org.

As slip-ups go, this one had an upside: Unlike the government site, the privately run Recovery.org is actually providing detailed information about how the $787 billion in stimulus money is being spent.

To build support for the stimulus package, President Obama vowed unprecedented transparency, a big part of which, he said, would be allowing taxpayers to track money to the street level on Recovery.gov. Together with a spruced-up WhiteHouse.gov, the site would inject the stodgy federal bureaucracy with the same Webby accessibility and Facebook-generation flair that defined the Obama campaign.

But three months after the bill was signed, Recovery.gov offers little beyond news releases, general breakdowns of spending, and acronym-laden spreadsheets and timelines. And congressional Democrats, state officials and advocates of open government worry that the White House cannot come close to clearing the high bar it set.

Rep. Brad Miller, D-N.C., who chaired a House hearing about stimulus transparency this month, hailed Obama for seeking more openness than the Bush administration. But he added that the Obama team, tech-savvy as it is, has promised more than it can deliver. "It's proven to be much more difficult than anyone imagined going in," he said. "They may not achieve the transparency they set out to."

Rep. Paul Broun, Ga., the top Republican on the House science panel's investigations subcommittee, was harsher. "This is another broken promise by the Obama administration," he said. "We don't have the transparency and the

BUSINESS BRIEF

Finally Home classes set for June

The "Finally Home" program, which teaches people how to buy their first house, will be held from 6 to 10 p.m. Tuesday and Wednesday, June 23 and 24 in room 115 of the Shields building at the College of Southern Idaho.

The classes will be the last held in Twin Falls until this fall.

The program, which is funded by federal grants and state and local partnerships, educates first time home buyers about home shopping, realtor selection, insurance, down payment, closing costs and other aspects of getting into their first home.

Those who complete the two-evening course may qualify for reduced mortgage insurance premiums, down payment and closing cost assistance and other special lender programs.

The cost for both classes is $10 per person. Pre-registration is required. For information or to sign up, contact Penny Johnson at CSI at 208-732-6287 or at pjohnson@csi.edu.

The Dow fell 129.91, or 1.5 percent, to 8,292.13, after earlier falling as much as 201 points. The Standard & Poor's 500 index fell 15.14, or 1.7 percent, to 888.33, and the Nasdaq composite index fell 32.59, or 1.9 percent, to 1,695.25. In other trading, the Russell 2000 index of smaller companies fell 12.83, or 2.6 percent, to 476.52. About three stocks fell for every one that rose on the New York Stock Exchange, where volume came to 1.44 billion shares. The dollar was mostly lower against other major currencies, while gold prices rose. Light, sweet crude fell 99 cents to settle at $61.05 a barrel on the New York Mercantile Exchange after rising sharply earlier in the week. Investors worried that continued sluggishness in the economy would reduce demand. Overseas, Japan's Nikkei stock average rose 0.2 percent. In Europe, stocks fell after the S&P warning about Britain's debt. The FTSE 100 in London tumbled 2.8 percent. Germany's DAX index fell 2.7 percent, and France's CAC-40 lost 2.6 percent.

Barnes & Noble's sales drop

By Sarah Skidmore
Associated Press writer

PORTLAND, Ore. — Barnes & Noble officials said Thursday that persistent weak spending by consumers led to a wider first-quarter loss, but its results beat analysts' estimates and the bookseller raised its profit forecast for the year. The stock closed Thursday up 71 cents, at $24.60 per share. The nation's largest bookstore chain has eliminated jobs, cut costs and bought e-book retailer Fictionwise to try to capture some of the growing market for electronic books.

But the company has struggled as shoppers buy fewer books and music or turn to online or discount competitors like Amazon for purchases. New York-based Barnes & Noble lost $2.7 million, or 5 cents per share, for the quarter ended May 2. That compares to a loss of $2.2 million, or 4 cents per share, a year earlier. Excluding the impact of discontinued operations, the company lost 4 cents per share, better than the loss of 15 cents per share analysts expected. Revenue fell 4 percent to $1.11 billion, also better than the $1.08 billion analysts expected. Online sales dropped 7 percent and comparable-store sales fell 5.7 percent, slightly better than the 6 percent to 9 percent drop the company anticipated.

High-desert survivor

At 93, Patrick is oldest living Hollister High School grad

By Kimberly Williams-Brackett
Times-News correspondent

HOLLISTER — Seventy-five years ago, Rolly Patrick graduated from Hollister High School. At 93, he's the school's oldest living graduate.

"There were 20 to 25 graduates who attended the reunion last summer," said Hollister High reunion committee member Cornie Lanting. "Originally we had reunions every five years. Now it's every two years."

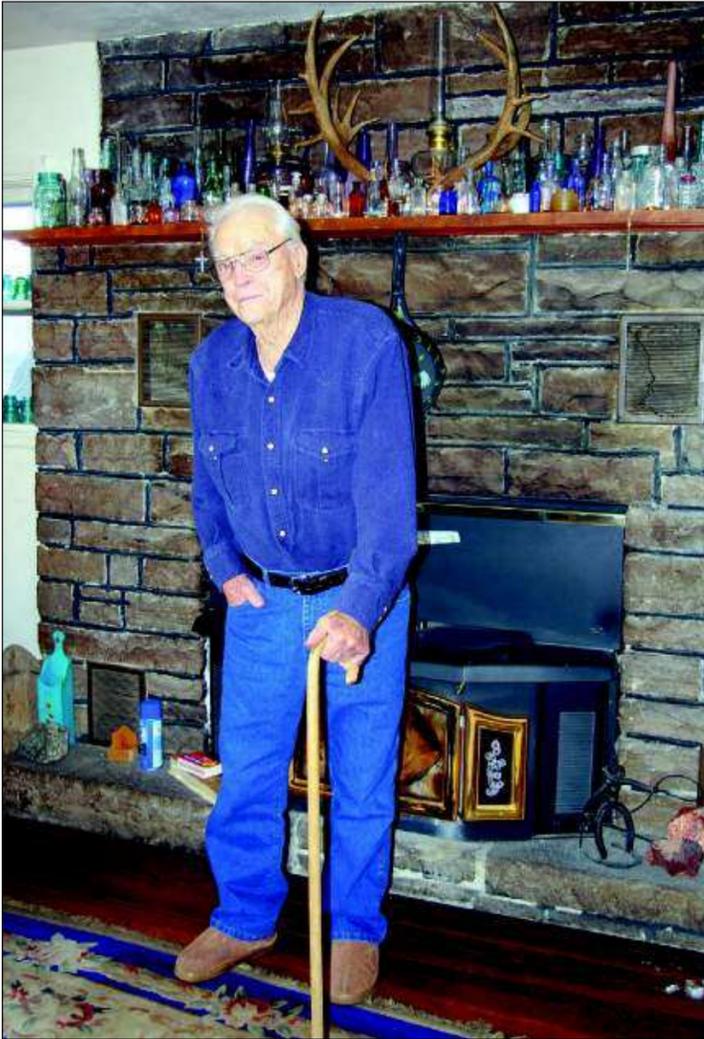

Former Hollister High student Maureen Fleenor said although there had been a high school since 1912, the first high school graduation was held in 1925.

In the 23 years Hollister High existed, 225 students graduated. The largest graduating class — 17 students — received their diplomas in 1937. The two-student graduating class of 1948 was the school's smallest — and last. The next year, Hollister consolidated with the Filer School District.

Patrick came from a family who settled in the Three Creek area in 1896. He attended House Creek School for the three years before his family moved to Hollister so Patrick's oldest sister could attend high school.

He rode horseback to school with his two sisters.

"Can you imagine being afraid of everything? The era lasted for four or five years," said Patrick's daughter,

Three Creek community meets

By Kimberly Williams-Brackett
Times-News correspondent

ROGERSON — The top priorities at Tuesday's Three Creek community meeting were long-term planning options of how to best serve the needs of area children, legislative and State Board of Education actions, funding the school's facilities project through a levy and facility needs.

Three Creek School Board Chairman Harlan Mink said the school needs to fund a study to "start making an assessment of what we will need and when." Despite an enrollment of one student this year, next year there will be three students. Mink said there are approximately eight children under the age of 5 in the Three Creek area.

State lawmakers passed a bill this year that gives the State Board of Education discretion in keeping small school districts open. Previously, districts with less than five enrolled students for consecutive years were forced to merge with another district.

The school could consolidate with districts that serve Castleford, Filer or Bruneau-Grand View, though Mink said it would not have a say in which one.

Board member Antonia Gonzalez said her two daughters commute three hours daily from their home at House Creek to Filer High School.

The board sought input from 21 residents in attendance to approve a resolution calling for a one-year supplemental levy election for $20,000. If the school merges with another district, three Creek property owners would have to adopt the merged district's tax levy, which varies from $2 to $5 of taxes to every $1,000 of taxable assessed value. In addition, it may become difficult to get improvements on Three Creek's facility.

An election is scheduled for noon to 8 p.m. June 16, with polling sites at the Three Creek School for Twin Falls County voters, and House Creek guest cabin for Owyhee County voters.

The board continues to update the school to become more compliant with the Americans with Disabilities Act. A portable ramp will be added and an ADA-approved bathroom is planned.

Mink said $12,000 is needed to make the school's kitchen compliant to serve lunch to students.

Students receive refurbished computers

By Nichole Carnell
Times-News writer

The Magic Valley recently became a little more high tech.

On May 15, nearly 300 area students received refurbished computers from Computers for Kids, a Boise-based nonprofit. The organization was founded in 2002, inside a Boise garage, by a mother who needed a computer for her son. Used computers from businesses, school districts and private donors are refurbished in Boise and distributed annually to student-applicants across the state. Since 2002 the organization has given 10,000 computers in the state, including 1,600 in the Magic Valley.

The application process is non-need based; students need only to be enrolled in school. The application can be accessed from the organization's Web site, while some students, like 12-year-old Caylie Hale, received a paper application through their school.

Students ranging from kindergartners to college sophomores lined up outside the Twin Falls Army National Guard Armory on the College of Southern Idaho campus to receive their computer. Crates of monitors and long rows of labeled computers lined the armory a limited corps of volunteers tried to disburse the machines to the waiting crowd.

Students and their parents waited in a line that reached the street until they received their specific, individually built computer and chose their monitor.

Erika Brown, a 9-year-old student from North Valley Academy charter school in Gooding, searched with her mother to find the biggest monitor.

"I am really excited because it will be more responsibility for me," said Brown.

It was a relief for her mother, Helen Tonjes-Brown, because North Valley Academy requires work to be done on a computer. This program was the only way for her family to support that requirement, she said.

"I think it's a fabulous opportunity for kids and parents who can't afford to buy a computer outright," said Tonjes-Brown.

"The thing with these computers is its not just helping the students, its helping the family," said Computers for Kids representative Tammy Gardner. "For a lot of these families this is their first computer."

The organization provides tech support for one year to all the students and their families. Information: www.cfkidaho.org.

Low testosterone level and poor balance bother senior

DEAR DR. GOTT: Please forgive my handwritten letter. There is no one in Arizona who can install a new ribbon onto my manual typewriter.

I am a man, 88-1/2 years of age, who has been plagued with poor balance for five years. I was accustomed to walking up to 10 miles a day, working as a carpenter eight hours and fitting in five hours of dancing to the big bands, getting home at 5 a.m.

One day, while watching a health program on television, the speaker said that diminished testosterone levels could be fatal. Now I'm concerned about my testosterone levels and my poor balance. What type of specialist is required?

DEAR READER: Let's take the problems as you present them. Initially, I applaud your memory.

There aren't too many young people who even know what a manual typewriter is or what big-band music sounds like.

I suggest you contact a local office-supply store such as Staples or OfficeMax, which should be able to locate an appropriate typewriter ribbon for you and may even be able to help you install it.

The reasons for poor balance are numerous. Perhaps you have a buildup of wax in one ear, an inner-ear problem, a central-nervous-system disorder such as Parkinson's, peripheral nerve disease or something else. You should either seek the services of a neurologist or return to your primary-care physician for a referral. He or she can order the appropriate testing and perhaps get to the bottom of the issue.

A recent study suggests men with low testosterone levels after the age of 40 have a higher risk of death over a four-year period than those with normal levels. The study also indicated it remains unclear

Optimist International has a day designated for respect for law. This year Twin Falls Optimist member Daniel Meehl helped honor Dawn Anderson of the Twin Falls County Patrol and Probation office with the Jim Mildon Memorial Award. The Twin Falls club created this award in honor Mildon, a police officer and former member of the club. 'Jim was even respected and revered by the people he put in jail,' Meehl said. Anderson was raised in Gooding. She is married with two children. Pictured, from left, Meehl and Anderson.

Kabakoro honored in Washington

U.S. Senators Mike Crapo and Jim Risch congratulated two Idaho students for being named the state's top youth volunteers for 2009 by The Prudential Spirit of Community Awards program. The students are Hosanna Kabakoro of Twin Falls and Darrien Gish of Nampa.

work and participate in a concluding annual research conference planned this year at Idaho State University in Pocatello Aug. 3-5.

College of Southern Idaho student Aaron Packham of Twin Falls will study this summer as an INBRE fellow at the Boise VA Medical Center.

T.F. students win writing awards

Twin Falls students Ellie Jackson and Lillyauna Godfrey captured third-place honors for their grade levels in the Idaho Public Television regional "Reading Rainbow" Young Writers and Illustrators Awards contests.

Jackson's story titled "The Contest," finished third in the third-grade level in the IdahoPTV/KAID regional contest out of Boise. Godfrey's story titled "The Cat" placed third in the first-grade level in the IdahoPTV/KISU regional contest out of Pocatello.

All contestants wrote stories illustrated with at least five pictures and submitted the entries to the IdahoPTV station in their region. Stories were judged on originality, creative expression, storytelling and integration of text and pictures.

"Reading Rainbow," a television series that encourages children to read on their own, airs weekdays on IdahoPTV.

1934 graduating class.

Patrick met Beth Patrick, his wife of 62 years, when he was "About 7 or 8 years old," he said. He recalled stacking hay for $1.50 a day just to be close to his neighbor, who he married in 1939 and has three daughters with — Dee, Bethene and Ronda Macaw.

The third-generation rancher lives at Devil Creek Ranch, which he bought from his parents, Karl and Carolyn Patrick, in 1946. He said he's been in the "ranching business all my life."

He runs 600 head of cows on Devil and Deadwood creeks, and the Turner ranch at lower House Creek.

"We put up 800 ton of grass hay last year," said Patrick.

Patrick's daughter, Ronda, said, "As he gets older, he's not as sure-footed. But he still checks on his cows and does some of the ranching duties. He also likes to go to Jarbidge, Nev. to look at the river to determine if it will be a high or low water year."

Patrick was elected president of the 71 Livestock Association from 1956 to 1962, and president of the Idaho Cattle Association in 1975. He was inducted into the Southern Idaho

Livestock Hall of Fame in 1977.

Patrick was born in 1916 at his grandparents' home in Roseworth, which was a township south of Castleford. At 18 days old, his parents brought him home in a wagon to Steele Springs. He was raised at Crawfish on Flat Creek and spent 13 years at Deadwood Creek. Most of the homes Patrick was raised in throughout his life in Three Creek no longer exist.

But he does, a high-desert survivor of southern Twin Falls County.

whether the two conditions — low testosterone and the higher risk of death — are even related. Further studies and research are necessary before we can confirm anything.

Testosterone levels vary considerably between people, and levels decrease naturally as a man ages. I suggest, once again, that you return to your doctor and have him arrange to have blood drawn to determine whether a problem exists. He or she is the one with a complete medical history on you. This is very important, since there is an extremely wide variation of the normal range for men. What's appropriate for one person might be entirely inappropriate for another, based on medical history. My local hospital uses a range of anything between 90 and 890.

You might even enlist the services of an urologist, who can provide appropriate answers for you. At 88-1/2, you deserve all the quality time you can muster. Get help, get those fingers nimble while typing, and enjoy your life. I'll bet you have some fascinating stories to tell!

He said the Idaho National Laboratory's Wireless Communications Group recommends satellite communication, as it would provide cost-effective voice and data services with the greatest coverage in the area.

The provider for the

Enid Richards Cook

Enid Richards Cook was born in Carey on Aug. 31, 1920, to Samuel Parker Richards and Mary Cooper Richards and passed away Sunday, May 17, 2009.

The Richards family moved from Carey to Twin Falls in 1925, crossing the Snake River above Shoshone Falls on the horse-drawn ferry. Enid graduated from Twin Falls High School in 1938, where she was active in school and had the female lead in "Our Town" and "Death Takes a Holiday." Enid graduated from the Southern Branch of the University of Idaho, now Idaho State University. She was a member of Delta Epsilon Kappa and was president of Sigma Sigma Beta and the Pan Hellenic Council and was rated the girl most likely to succeed.

She taught grade school in Inkom and Hailey. In February of 1943, she married Harvey M. Cook of Twin Falls, traveling to Barksdale Field in Shreveport, La., where Harvey was stationed during the first part of World War II. She found that she was the only woman aboard a troop train. They were married on Feb. 13, 1943. Since the wedding chapel was filled with Harvey's Army buddies, Enid realized that Harvey was the only person she knew at her wedding because during the war it was impossible for family and friends to travel long distances.

After the war, the Cooks settled in Salt Lake City until 1950 when they moved to Twin Falls, where Harvey started the Harvey M. Cook Insurance Agency and Enid later established a ballroom dance studio. Ballroom dancing became a family affair where husband, Harvey; sons, Richard and Dennis; and daughter, Janice, assisted in teaching countless students the art of ballroom dancing throughout the Magic Valley. Enid constantly met people who remembered the dance lessons.

The couple was active in Blue Lakes Country Club, and loved to entertain and travel. Enid was active in the Hospital Guild, Music Club and civic activities and loved duplicate bridge, where she earned the level of NAC master. She belonged to two coffee groups, one that met weekly since 1952. She also danced with the Top Hat Tappers for several years.

Because of Harvey's ill health, the Cooks spent the winters in Surprise, Ariz., where Enid continued to teach ballroom dance. After Harvey's death, Enid became activity director of Pueblo El Mirage Resort for one year, then taught dancing at the Sun Flower Resort in Surprise, Ariz., for many years.

Enid was preceded in death by her parents; two sisters; brother; and her husband, Harvey; son-in-law, Craig Taylor; and many friends. She is survived by her three children, H. Richard (Wanda) Cook of Twin Falls, Dennis (Janet) Cook of Bountiful, Utah, and Janice Taylor of Sandy, Utah; 10 grandchildren; nine great-grandchildren; one niece; and two nephews.

The Cook family enjoyed being together, boating, water skiing, dancing, camping, picnicking and just being together.

A celebration of life will be held at 11 a.m. Tuesday, May 26, at the Parke's Magic Valley Funeral Home, 2551 Kimberly Road in Twin Falls. Interment will be held at a later date.

She was a member of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. In lieu of flowers, contributions are suggested to the Library Service for the Blind, 325 W. State St., Boise, ID 83702-6072; or the Magic Valley Symphony Orchestra, P.O. Box 1805, Twin Falls, ID 83303-1805.

Robert Allen Wilson

KIMBERLY — Robert came into this world on the 22nd day of a hot August in the fall of 1973. He left the world in a house fire on the 19th of May 2009. Robert had an amazing ability to make people laugh and to always make them feel comfortable.

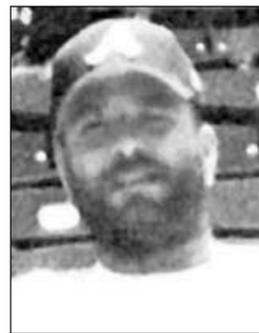

Robert was born to Shirley Wilson in Jerome. Together with his brother, Jerry, and sister, Erin, they were fortunate to see many new and wonderful places. They lived in Utah, California, South Carolina, Pennsylvania and Alaska. They spent a lot of time with each other and had a very special bond between them.

Robert's strong work ethic came at the age of 13. He became a paperboy with three routes of his own. Winter in Alaska was probably not the best place for that job, but with each destination, Robert added his sense of adventure. In 1989, Robert and his family called Jerome their home. He went to Jerome Senior High School, where he had the cunning ability to be on the yearbook committee but never have his picture in the book. He graduated in 1991.

During and after high school, Robert worked as a manager for Ridley's. People close to him wondered if he liked his job because he got to boss people around or if he just wanted to add up store receipts in his head. About the same time, he discovered his talent for playing darts. He loved darts but for him it was the people that made the game worth playing.

In 1999, Robert went to work for Owen Hardwood Floors. With Jeff on one side and Lincoln on the other, he acquired the trade of Master Hardwood. That same year, he fell in love with a high school classmate, Faye Johnson. Robert and Faye moved to Kimberly prior to having their first daughter, Gwentyth. Two years later, their second daughter, Riley, was born. He had two little girls that were wrapped around his fingers. In 2006, Robert went to work for Morgan's Flooring Company as a district floor manager, and he traveled to Washington and Oregon often for work.

Robert had a passion for music that affected everyone around him. His favorite pastime was dancing with his daughters to Bob Dylan records. Robert was so proud that his wife could be a stay-at-home mother with their children. He was proud of and dearly loved his girls; they were his "kindergarten" and "second-grader." He was also proud that he had shown his children 14 states before the youngest one was 5. From an Alaskan glacier, Wrigley Field or even just camping, Robert was always ready for an expedition that would show his family something new.

Preceding him in death and the hosts of his welcoming committee are his grandmother, Emily Fuller, Grandma Dina Wilson, the Wilson great-grandparents, Edith and her husband, Uncle Tom Wilson; niece, Megan Hammann; and brother-in-law, Spencer Johnson. He is survived by his wife, Faye; and daughters, Gwentyth and Riley, all of Kimberly; his mom, Shirley Wilson of Boise; brother, Jerry and sister-in-law, Sammy Wilson of Twin Falls; sister, Erin and brother-in-law, Jack Hammann of Boise; sister and brother-in-law, Christine and David Ash of Texas; mother and father-in-law, Ann and Ron Lancaster of Jerome; Grandpa Dale Wilson of Esparto, Calif.; nieces, Avery, Emily and Aubrey; nephew, Conner; uncles, Ken Fuller, Rod Chester, Jim Day and John Wilson; aunts, Ilene Fuller, Barbara Chester, Bobbi Day and Suzy; also his "brothers from another mother," Chip, Lincoln, Clay, Ryan, Lance and Jake.

A celebration of life will be held for Robert at 11 a.m. Saturday, May 23, at the Lighthouse Christian Fellowship, 960 Eastland Drive N. in Twin Falls.

Cremation arrangements are under the care and direction of the Hove-Robertson Funeral Chapel in Jerome.

Actress Lucy Gordon found dead at age 28 in Paris

By Jean-Pierre Verges
Associated Press writer

PARIS — British actress Lucy Gordon, who appeared in "Spider-Man 3," was found dead in her Paris apartment after apparently committing suicide, French police said Thursday. She was 28.

An autopsy has been ordered to determine the cause of death, though it appeared to be a suicide, said an official with the Paris police headquarters. The official, who spoke on condition of anonymity because of police agency policy, gave no details.

Gordon, who would have turned 29 on Friday, appeared in a dozen films, including as reporter Jennifer Dugan in "Spider-Man 3." She portrays British singer and actress Jane Birkin in an upcoming biopic about Serge Gainsbourg.

Gordon's father said the death was a "complete shock."

Speaking from the family's home in Oxford, Richard Gordon told Britain's Press Association that his daughter was "a natural actress all her life, since she was about 2."

"She's always loved being on stage and in front of the camera and she has kept all her naturalness and charm all the way through. She has been the most beautiful daughter. We are obviously devastated."

He said she loved her latest role, in the Gainsbourg film, and thought the cast was "wonderfully creative and supportive."

He added that his daughter spent much of her childhood and her summer vacations in France and was bilingual. She recently moved to Paris after living in New York.

Gordon's agents did not return phone calls seeking comment Thursday.

Brought in to oversee AIG's rescue, CEO Liddy to resign

By Brady Dennis
 The Washington Post

 AIG Chairman Edward Liddy testifies March 18 on Capitol Hill in Washington. American International Group Inc. on Thursday said Liddy plans to step down when a search for replacements is complete.

"This is going to be nice, organized transition," Liddy said in an interview Thursday. "We're going to do it well. We're going to do it right!"

He has recommended that the company separate the position of chairman and chief executive into two jobs, saying that it makes sense from a corporate governance standpoint and as AIG spins off units into separate companies.

Liddy's tenure at AIG has been anything but tranquil. Since September, the government's total commitment to the company has more than doubled, to an estimated $180 billion. Liddy has struggled in his plan to pay back AIG's debt by selling off the company's worldwide operating units, as the sinking economy has battered asset prices and kept potential buyers at bay.

In early March, AIG posted a $62 billion loss for the fourth quarter of 2008 — the largest such loss of any company in U.S. history. Weeks later, Liddy became a magnet for public criticism over millions of dollars in retention bonuses paid to workers at AIG Financial Products, the unit whose faulty derivative contracts had wrecked the company. On Capitol Hill, he absorbed the anger of lawmakers who grilled him about company bonuses AIG's lack of transparency, its payments to trading partners and its plans for survival.

Homeless New Mexico mom confesses to killing 3-year-old son at playground

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. — A mother playing with her children at a park spotted a little black sneaker sticking out of the sand underneath the playground equipment. Figuring a youngster had lost his shoe, she bent down to pick it up. It was strangely heavy.

She had made a ghastly discovery: a dead little boy, buried in the sand.

For nearly a week, who the toddler was, how he died, and who put him there were a chilling mystery until Thursday, when a drawing of the youngster circulated by police led to the arrest of a young mother on murder charges.

Albuquerque police said Tiffany Toribio, 23, confessed to suffocating her 3-year-old son, Tyuss "Ty" Toribio, as he slept on the climbing gym — a crime so cold-blooded that neighbors struggled to comprehend it, and even veteran officers became choked up.

"For a mother to kill her own child is unfathomable. Most people can't even imagine how you could even think about doing something like that," said Cmdr. Michael Geier. "We'll never really understand why that happened, but we now understand the dynamics of what led up to that."

Toribio was homeless and sleeping in the park, having been kicked out of her mother's home and a friend's apartment in the days before her son's death because she was ignoring the boy and withholding affection, investigators said.

"What makes this story especially sad was when asked the reason why she took Ty's life, Tiffany said that she did not want him to grow up with no one caring about him the same way that she had grown up with no one caring about her," said Police Chief Ray Schultz, his eyes watery and his voice thick with emotion.

What had baffled police after the discovery of the body was that the chubby-cheeked boy appeared to have been well-fed, showed no signs of physical abuse and was wearing a matching outfit that seemed to suggest he had been well-cared for.

But when no one came forward to report a missing child, police came to suspect that whoever buried Ty was a parent or someone taking care of him.

Police went door-to-door in the neighborhood around the park. They contacted schools, day care centers and homeless shelters. They asked families at other playgrounds about the boy. They reviewed hours of video surveillance tapes from courthouses, hospitals and stores.

They followed up on more than 100 tips.

The break in the case came just hours after police released a photograph-like picture of the boy. Family members and others called a tip line to say the picture of "Baby Angel" — as neighbors living near the park nicknamed him — looked like Ty.

Then, police received a tip that Toribio was on her way to the police station to turn herself in. Officers stopped her as she was walking on the street.

The police chief said Toribio told detectives that she suffocated her son in Alvarado Park before dawn on May 13 by putting her hand over his mouth and nose. She said she had second thoughts and performed CPR on the boy, resuscitating him, but reconsidered and smothered him again.

Investigators said she then buried him under the climbing gym's hanging bridge, where the body was found two days later.

Schultz called it "somber day" in Albuquerque.

"He was a very special child and that's what makes this case so hard for everybody within the Albuquerque Police Department that's worked on it for the last six days," he said.

Schultz said Toribio attempted suicide in jail and was under close observation. A single mother, Toribio had no criminal record or history of drug or alcohol abuse, the police chief said.

Electronica artist Hayley Curby has a substantial online fan base, but with no venue for local performance the teen artist doesn't have a way to reach a live audience in Twin Falls.

By Melissa Davlin
Times-News writer

You won't find her on any entertainment calendars, or see her in the lineup for local shows. The only place to see her live is in her Twin Falls bedroom, where friends get a front-row futon seat to her musical experiments.

But with the help of the online networking site MySpace.com, electronica musician Hayley Curby has earned fans on almost every continent, all without leaving her home studio.

The 17-year-old first started listening to electronica at 14, when her older sister introduced her to PlayRadioPlay!, a Texas-based indie group with electronic roots.

"Me and my sister were joking around and we said, 'We should do this!'" Curby said. "And I guess I actually took it seriously."

So a few months ago, she transferred her piano-playing skills to an electronic keyboard, then began recording tracks. Her pieces are composed of layers of sound, recorded one at a time and mixed together for hypnotic music.

It all starts in her bedroom, where the walls are a soft green, painted by Curby with images and words. Poetry adorns her mirrors, and magazine photos are pasted above her bed.

On a recent Thursday afternoon, Curby performed for friends Katelyn Jorgensen, 17, and Gilbert Reyes, 16.

"She's an amazing artist," Reyes said, just before Curby

Fossil Days has new faces

By Melissa Davlin
Times-News writer

Rosalie Sorrels is no stranger to Hagerman.

The folk-singing Idaho native has friends in the area, and spent part of her childhood at her grandparents' farm in Twin Falls.

So it makes perfect sense that two-time Grammy-nominated Sorrels is headlining the revamped Hagerman Fossil Days. Her presence adds to the excitement the new Hagerman Events Committee feels about the celebration. After all, it's the first time the new group has taken over the planning for the 21-year-old event, and they want to make sure it's the biggest and best celebration Hagerman has ever seen.

The Hagerman Events Committee formed last year after the Hagerman Chamber of Commerce declared the 2008

"We've worked hard to bring it back," said Phyllis Ross, secretary of the events committee.

And Sorrels' performance isn't the only event to be excited about. Christie Davis, chairwoman of the committee, and Phyllis Ross, the committee's secretary and advertising chair, said Fossil Days is full of events for everyone in the family: a fish scramble for kids, food

And of course, fossils will be on display.

"They're the main thing here," Davis said.

Some of the three-day festival's events will honor military veterans, including a parade and a 21-gun salute. A pancake breakfast at the Hagerman Senior Center will bring much-needed funds to the seniors.

"This is the major fundraiser for the senior center of the year, and last year when they didn't have it, it really affected them for the year," Davis said.

Both Davis and Ross were giddy about the community's support of the new, improved Fossil Days.

"In previous years, there was probably a handful, two handfuls of sponsors," Davis said. "This year, we have 80." Fifty vendors will pack the park, and 30 more are on a waiting list.

In a phone interview with the Times-News, Sorrels said she is looking forward to her trip to Hagerman.

"I have friends who live there," she said. "I love Hagerman. I love the Thousand Springs."

The artist will play from 3-5 p.m. on the stage. During her set, she plans to play songs she has collected and written about Idaho.

"I'm getting so old I feel like a fossil myself," added Sorrels, who is turning 76 this year. "Maybe I'll talk about that."

Beats

Continued from Entertainment 1 background, while "MDMA" starts with an alarm clock beeping. One song, "Katelyn J," was written for Jorgensen.

Curby doesn't know of any other Twin Falls electronica musicians, although there are a handful in Boise. Her lack of access to mixing equipment makes live performances impossible, so she depends completely on the Internet to spread her sound. In March, she put four tracks on her MySpace page and started sending out friend requests to encourage users to listen to her tunes.

Two months later, her music profile is filled with compliments from other musicians and casual listeners alike. "Nice music!" wrote Mate from Szeged, Hungary. "Dig the sounds you're putting out, yo. Keep it up," wrote Shaun from Osaka, Japan. Michalis Vassiliou, who performs as M_Basix, agreed. "Nice music here," he wrote from Athens, Greece.

Ashtyn Gonzales of San Bernardino, Calif., said she didn't listen to electronica music until Curby, her long-time friend, posted her tracks on MySpace.

MEAGAN THOMPSON/Times-News

Hayley Curby plays a beat for the Times-News in her room during a recent interview. Curby says her music isn't necessarily pretty because strives to capture 'everyday' sounds.

"I'm typically not an electronica fan, but after listening to her music I started listening to related artists," Gonzales wrote in an e-mail to the Times-News. "It's very addicting."

At one point, Curby wrote to her idol, Daniel Hunter of PlayRadioPlay!, to draw his attention to her site.

"Amazingly, he replied," Curby said. "He told me my music was really good and he gave me some critique."

Hunter isn't the only one to offer up opinions. Brendan Sifford of Shoshone suggested Curby add length to her songs and go a little more wild, while praising her on her style.

MySpace user Nathanelvin! of Missouri offered a more blunt criticism. "(Your) music makes my head bleed," he wrote. When Curby prodded further, he admitted he just didn't like electronica, and to not take his comments personally.

"I'm one voice, and a picky one at that," he wrote.

"When I first started, I was really sad when people did that," Curby said. But she has learned to brush off the negative comments and appreciates genuine feedback, even if it's critical.

It's all part of exposing the world to her music. And it sure beats passing around mix tapes.

The College of Southern Idaho will be offering a two-part class, "Wild and Wacky Artists" for grades 2-5 this summer. Instructor Robin Dober studied art history at Smith College in Northampton, Mass. and relocated to Twin Falls in 1998. She opened Hands On in 2003 as a paint-your-own pottery studio where customers could share quality time with friends and family in a relaxing environment, while making their own gifts. Since its original opening as a contemporary ceramic studio, Hands On has added mosaic, metal, glass, spa and jewelry projects to its repertoire of available projects. Class sizes are limited, and early registration is recommended.

In part one, students will learn about five different artists' lives and work. They will study style and approach to color and design while using their imaginations to create a masterpiece which incorporates each artist's style.

They will make five different projects, including a Matisse-style pencil holder, a Mondrian wall hanging, a Picasso-style pitcher, an abstract Kandinsky plate and your very own Kahlo-style self portrait. This class will be held 9-11 a.m. Monday through Friday June 8-12 at Hands On, 147 Shoshone St N, Downtown Twin Falls. The cost is $90 with an additional supply fee of $25 paid to the instructor Robin Dober.

Part two introduces five Impressionist and Post-Impressionist artists, their lives, their work and their painting techniques. Students will discuss each artist's biography, learn about his/her painting style and paint something using each artist's unique style. They will make five different projects, including a Seurat-style pointillism box, a Monet mug, a Van Gogh "Starry Night" trivet, a Gauguin-style metal photo board and a Rousseau-style cereal bowl. Part one is not required to take this class.

This class will be held 9-11 a.m. Monday through Friday, July 27-31 at Hands On, 147 Shoshone St N, Downtown Twin Falls. The cost is $90 with an additional supply fee of $25 paid to the instructor.

Step through Shoshone

Walking tour will feature historical buildings

By John Plestina
Times-News correspondent

SHOSHONE — A walking tour of Shoshone's historic sites May 30 will afford the public a rare opportunity to view the interiors of several structures dating to the 1880s.

Several of the stops along the tour route will highlight Lincoln County's Basque heritage.

The newly formed Lincoln County Historical Society and the Bureau of Land Management Shoshone Field Office are sponsoring the free walking tour on as part of Archaeology and Historic Preservation Month.

The tour will include visits to five or six buildings that will be opened for the tour. Participants will receive handouts with photos and will walk past several other buildings that are not available for interior inspection. Several of the buildings are on the National Historic Register.

"Many of the buildings have a very distinctive style of lava rock architecture unique to this area and are on the Lava Rock Structure Historic District," said Lisa Cresswell, a co-chair of the historical society. "One of the goals of our historical society is to preserve this unique building style."

Bud Andrew co-chairs the

The 125-year-old Soloaga boarding house on East B Street was built by Basque settler Domingo Soloaga Sr., and operated by his family for more than a century. The structure is believed to be lava rock construction beneath a stucco facade. The tour will include the inside of the building, which has been closed for about four years.

The tour on May 30 will include the historic McFall Hotel on North Rail Street West.

The Lincoln County Historical Society meets in the Whistle Stop Antique Store at 6:30 p.m. the second Wednesday of each month.

Anyone wishing to take the Shoshone walking tour should come to the Lincoln County Extension Building at the fairgrounds off South Beverly Street at 10 a.m. on May 30. For information about the tour or the historical society, contact Lisa Cresswell at 731-8127 or lcresswe@juno.com.

historical society with Cresswell. He is a long-time Shoshone resident who will participate in the tour. Andrew will point out the locations of some historical buildings that are no longer standing.

"Because of the sheep business we had so many Basque people living here. The sheep business started in Lincoln County in the 1880s. There were a number of Basque sheep herders," he said, adding that descendants of some of the Basque settlers that came to Lincoln County more than 120 years ago remain in Shoshone and surrounding communities.

"There's a bunch of buildings that have been demolished," Andrew said. "We're going to go by the old Center Grocery Store. It was built in the 1880s."

"It became the Stock Growers Merc and later a farmers' market. It burned down while it was farmers market on Thanksgiving Day of 1992," he said.

The tour will include a visit to the Soloaga boarding house, which was built by Basque settler Domingo Soloaga Sr. and operated by his family for many years. The tour will include the inside of the building, which has been closed to the public since 2005.

"It is one of the best remaining examples of a Basque boarding house in Idaho," Cresswell said.

"There's no lava rock showing on the front or sides, but I'm sure it's under the stucco," she said.

Basque stonemasons built many of Shoshone's lava rock buildings.

The next stop will be the Frank Gooding home, now the Governor's Mansion Bed and Breakfast, the homes of Tom Gooding and Fred Gooding, the Lincoln County Courthouse, the Episcopal Church, the Methodist Church, the Masonic Hall and the McCall Hotel.

Frank Gooding started the National Wool Growers Association in Shoshone, Cresswell said.

"We'll walk along Rail Street and point out some of the old buildings. The old J.C. Penney that is now the Whistle Stop Antique Store," Cresswell said.

One historical building the tour will not be allowed to enter is the Union Pacific Depot, which is currently used for Union Pacific Railroad office space. Cresswell said the railroad did not make the building available to the tour.

The tour is just one project taken on by the 21-member Lincoln County Historical Society, which was formed in February.

"We don't have a true space (for meetings). We do have a little space inside the antique store," Cresswell said.

The group hopes to obtain a building in the future. Cresswell said they have approached the Union Pacific about the depot without success.

"We haven't gotten a whole lot of participation from Richfield or Dietrich. I think we're just new and the word hasn't gotten out," she said.

The Historical Society plans to have an informational booth during Shoshone's Arts in the Park, July 11 and 12.

Andrew said the staff in the booth will include Paul Bancroft, who will have celebrated his 100th birthday the day before. The now 99-year-old Bancroft has lived in Shoshone most of his life.

With the primary goal of preserving the history of Lincoln County, the historical society also offers assistance to the owners of historic buildings, promotes heritage tourism and encourages community pride.

Public comment sought on soil cleanup project at the Idaho Site's Test Area North Complex

The U.S. Department of Energy (DOE) is seeking public comment on a small-scale soil cleanup at the Idaho Site's Test Area North (TAN) complex. An Engineering Evaluation/Cost Analysis (EE/CA) document with three proposed alternatives for the soil cleanup is under evaluation by DOE, the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, and Idaho's Department of Environmental Quality.

Full-scale decommissioning, decontamination, and demolition of the major TAN facilities began in 2005 and the work was completed in 2008.

The project under evaluation includes cleaning up contaminated soil at a former wastewater disposal pond. From 1972 until 2007, the pond received treated sanitary wastewater, low-level radioactive wastewater, and cold process water. Because of the low levels of soil contamination the 3.2-acre area continued to be evaluated, using institutional controls for sampling and monitoring. Further evaluation determined that the 3.2 acre area contained contaminants requiring remediation.

Three proposed alternatives are detailed in the EE/CA document, which is available online at the links provided below. The alternatives are: (1) No Action - soil remains in place with continued monitoring, (2) Excavation of cesium-137 and mercury hot spots and institutional controls until the contamination decays to background levels, and (3) Installation of a cap to cover the contamination, combined with monitoring and institutional controls.

Alternative 2 is the preferred alternative. This alternative is consistent with the long-term strategy for cleaning up TAN while ensuring protection of workers, the public, and environment and helps prepare the area for possible future missions. Alternative 2 is easily implemented and cost effective. Waste generated from this action would be disposed of on-site at the Idaho CERCLA Disposal Facility or at off-Site facilities, in accordance with established waste acceptance criteria.

The removal action EE/CA for the TSF-07 disposal pond is available on the Idaho Cleanup Project homepage at:

https://idahocleanupproject.com/portals/0/documents/TSF-07_EE-CA_DOE-ID-11401.pdf

The EE/CA has also been posted to the Idaho National Laboratory (INL) Administrative Record website, and is available for public comment through June 21, 2009. The INL Administrative Record can be found on the Internet at:

<http://ar.inel.gov/images/pdf/200905/2009051900543TUA.pdf> and hard copies are available to the public at the following locations:

Boise, ID 83725	Idaho Falls, ID 83415

After the close of the public comment period, DOE will address public comments in an Action Memorandum and document its selected alternative.

'Between Fences' could make good neighbors

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

KETCHUM — Marc Mutz first started lining up the skis outside his house as a way to preserve cherished skis he couldn't bear to part with.

Over time, friends and acquaintances added their own skis.

Today the fence is a head turner on Ketchum's Warm Springs Road with ski boots still attached to some skis and a pink flamingo atop the corner.

The variety of fences that stretch across America is truly amazing, said Sandra Hofferber, director of Regional History Department at Ketchum's Community Library.

There are decorative fences constructed of hub cups, wooden wagon wheels, horseshoes, even a fence made of shoes in northern Idaho. There are white picket fences that offer warm, fuzzy connotations about home. And there are barbed wire fences that remind some, like Ketchum ski instructor Rod Tatsuno, of the Japanese-American internment camp in Topaz, Utah, where he and his family lived during World War II.

Fences are the focal point of a Smithsonian Institution traveling exhibit that opens Saturday and continues through July 3 at The Community Library in Ketchum.

The month-long observance will include a variety of lectures, film showings and book discussions, as well as the Pulitzer and Tony award-winning play "Fences," written by the late African-American playwright August Wilson.

"It's an interesting exhibit that poses a lot of questions," said Hofferber. "We take for granted that there are fences and there's a right to fence things in. And we use fences as kind of barriers we put up to keep them out and keep us safe. How do people decide who 'they' are?"

Fences have a lot of negative connotations, noted Tatsuno. But they also have beneficial purposes, he added.

"Take the cords hanging around the perimeters of Bald Mountain. They keep people from going places where we'd never find them again," he said. "I'm up there 125 days a year and I don't feel fenced in or fenced out. There are places where no one should be and it'll cost you if you duck under the fence."

The library will celebrate

Between Fences with an opening reception at 5:30 p.m. Saturday.

There'll be "Don't Fence Me In"-type Western music performed by Keith Joe Dick, Jim Paisley and Fletcher Brock, and a recitation of Robert Frost.

There will be a contemporary photo exhibit of fences — physical and metaphorical — curated by Ketchum photographer Alfredo Rego and thematic art quilts created by Alfredo's wife, award-winning quilter Leslie Rego.

College of Southern Idaho accepting applications for summer dance camp

Times-News

The CSI Fine Arts Center is taking registrations for its annual CSI/IDAA Summer Dance Workshop, held in July on the CSI campus in Twin Falls.

The workshop provides intensive training to students ages 12 and up who have had a minimum of two consecutive years of dance, with a choice of a one- or two-week workshop.

Students take five to seven hours of class per day in ballet, jazz, tap, lyrical and modern techniques, plus musical theatre, world dance, choreography and other related areas.

The camp features a guest faculty of professional dancers and dance instructors from across the country.

Extracurricular events include game night, movies, a canyon excursion, swimming parties, a fashion show, an ice cream social, a pizza and autograph party, barbecues, a carnival, a pampering night and an end-of-camp recital for family and friends.

There is also a junior camp, designed to introduce younger students ages 9 through 11 to the concept of an intensive workshop, taught by the regular camp faculty in a wide range of classes over the weekend. Chaperoned dormitory housing and meals are available for all ages.

The one-week workshop is July 12-17; the two-week workshop is July 12-24. Junior Camp, available to the younger students regardless of dance experience, runs July 18-19. Tuition, with or without board, ranges from $80 to $735.

For a registration form and information, go online to csi.edu/dancecamp, or call 732-6288.

Ketchum gallery walk to feature farm art, canning

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

KETCHUM — You can get your art with a song or even pickles at Saturday's Gallery Walk in Ketchum.

Company of Fools singers will serenade browsers at The Open Room, while a ukulele player from Boise picks and grins at Broschofsky Galleries.

And the Sun Valley Center for the Arts will take on the air of a county fair as ribbons are handed out for the pickles and other canned fruits and vegetables that valley residents offered up as part of the current exhibition, "Farming in the 21st Century."

The Memorial Day Weekend Gallery Walk, on Saturday, will feature new hours — from 5 to 8 p.m. — to let people cruise the art and have dinner out.

The one exception is the Fools' event at The Open Room, where Gilman Contemporary will provide the art and CIRO the food.

• The party begins at 6 p.m. on the terrace outside The Open Room in the Walnut Avenue Mall at 680 Sun Valley Road. The singing by Jana Arnold, John Glenn and R.L. Rowsey will begin at 7 p.m.

L'Anne Gilman and Claudia Aulum will donate a percentage of the sales of art and furniture that night to the Fools, and guests may make donations directly to the Fools.

And the Fools will sell discounted tickets to the three plays they'll offer in July — "110 in the Shade," the musical version of "The Rainmaker"; "Steel Magnolias"; and "Welcome Home, Jenny Sutter." Drawings will be held throughout the evening, as well.

"Great art is great art, whether it's a beautiful painting from Gilman Contemporary, the perfect appetizer or a song performed by our wonderful artists," said Fools artist John Glenn.

• Several blocks away at Fifth and Washington streets, the Sun Valley Center for the Arts will mark the closing of its "Farming in the 21st Century" exhibition with food, drink and awards for its local canning competition from 5:30 to 6:30 p.m.

The exhibition explores the romance and reality of farming through the work of four contemporary artists — Julie Moos, Michael Gregory, Geoff Krueger and Tracy Linder.

• Broschofsky Gallery, 360 East Ave., is celebrating the new coffee table book, "Under Eagles Wings: The Art of Michael Coleman" with an exhibition of the artist's cowboy works. Owner Minnette Broschofsky said the gallery will also feature a ukulele artist from Boise as the warm-up act to an entire ukulele group that will perform at the July 4 gallery walk.

• Kneeland Gallery, 271 First Ave. N., will offer a "Prelude to Summer" group exhibition with new work by such artists as Ovanes Berberian, a Russian who paints stunning landscapes, as well as Kent Lovelace, Robert 'Honfleur Apple II' at the Kneeland Gallery.

Moore and Steven Adams.

• Gail Severn Gallery, 400 First Ave. N., will burst with the color and creativity of several different artists as it hosts its annual Spring Flower Show.

• The Friesen Gallery, 320 First Ave. N., will feature the glass work of Jeanne Brennan, a Pilchuck Glass School artist, who uses bird forms as vessels to encase and entomb images and other objects in order to provoke a sense of possibility and potential, loss and decay.

Also, Reilly Jensen, a Seattle designer will present 13 oil paintings in an exhibition titled

GALLERY CLOSES

One gallery that will not be open for the Gallery Walk this go-around is the Anne Reed Gallery at 391 First Ave. N. Anne Reed Gallery closed its doors last week after 27 years. Owner Barbi Reed said the gallery is "going virtual."

"We feel we can do so much more that way than what we're doing here," said Reed, as she glanced around at the packing material. "I know it sounds strange after 27 years of this but with virtual exhibitions we can have more exhibitors, the flexibility to show more work."

Anne Reed Gallery, named for Barbi's mother, was one of the first art galleries to open in Ketchum. Since then, the town has gained a reputation for its world-class art scene.

The gallery introduced the first all-sculpture exhibition in Ketchum and it was the first gallery in the state to exhibit large-scale contemporary photographs.

'Depth of Fall' will be at Kneeland Gallery.

"Speechless." The paintings are comprised of such elements as spray paint, which represents graffiti, and grids that read as topographical views of a town or city.

• Toneri Hink Gallery, 400 Sun Valley Road, is showing off Hailey wood-carver R.C. Hink's new seven-drawer "Treasure Chest" made of five native woods: aspen, juniper, honeysuckle and walnut. The chest features leather-lined drawers and a bevel swiveling oval mirror.

Other works by Hink include a floor lamp made of hand-carved pine with a linden trout swimming around a juniper branch and a carved walnut fly reel.

Hailey springs into spring

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

HAILEY — The Hailey Chamber will parade out Springfest, its annual ode to spring, this weekend.

But it doesn't appear that Chamber representatives were too confident about the season.

They decided to move the arts and crafts festival inside for the first time ever, long before the weatherman made a prediction of sunny weather with temperatures in the low 70s.

Chamber representative Anna Svidgal said the festival's 50 artists and craftsmen were delighted with the decision to go indoors.

"Over the years, they've had to put up with rain and snow and hail. The lavender soap lady from Burley even had some of her goods ruined one year."

The 24th Annual Springfest will be held from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday at The Community Campus, 1050 Fox Acres Road.

The free event will feature arts and crafts and food, including teriyaki chicken and gyros. There also will be free entertainment.

The Soldier Mountain All-Stars cheerleaders will perform at noon both days, and the Wood River Community Orchestra will perform at 2 p.m. both days.

There also will be a bouncy castle provided by the Blaine County Recreation District and other activities for the kids.

Springfest was conceived to kick off the official summer tourist season in the Wood River Valley, said Chamber Director Jim Spinelli.

In the early days, traffic along the road that runs through Hailey was so light that organizers actually held the festival on Main Street, added Teddie Daley, director of the Blaine County Historical Museum.

In those days, Springfest included a beer garden, oompah band and plenty of polka dancing reminiscent of Oktoberfest.

Jacquelin Guzman is among those who have taken up their instruments in the year-old Wood River Community Orchestra, which will perform a variety of music from Bach to Beethoven at this weekend's Springfest.

NBA PLAYOFFS

Nuggets tie-up series

Denver beats Lakers by 3 in Game 2

By Beth Harris
Associated Press writer

LOS ANGELES — The Lakers' 24-year playoff dominance of the Denver Nuggets dissipated over the final 29 seconds of the fourth quarter.

That's when Kenyon Martin hit a layup in traffic and Chauncey Billups made 3 of 4 free throws to give Denver a 106-103 victory in Game 2 on Thursday night to even the Western Conference finals.

It was Denver's first-ever playoff win against Los Angeles, which owned an 11-0 record dating to 1985, the second-longest postseason winning streak against one team in NBA history.

Carmelo Anthony had 34 points and 14 rebounds, Billups had 27 points and 16 rebounds and Linas Kleiza added 16 points for the Nuggets. Nene finished with six points, nine rebounds and six assists.

Kobe Bryant had 32 points, including making all 10 of his free throws, Trevor Ariza scored a career play-off-high 20 points and Pau Gasol 17 points and 17 rebounds for the Lakers, who dropped to 7-2 at Staples Center in the playoffs this season.

"To get one on the road is always tough. We came in and got it," Anthony said. "We're mentally tough and we showed that in this game coming off the loss that we gave away in Game 1."

Game 3 is Saturday night in Denver.

"I think this is going to be a long series," Denver coach George Karl said.

The Nuggets recovered from poor free throw shooting in a two-point loss in Game 1 to make 17 consecutive foul shots until Billups missed one with 4 seconds remaining. He hit the second to seal the victory.

Derek Fisher launched a 3-pointer from the right corner that missed as time expired.

Tied at 101, Martin made the layup off Nene's assist that gave the Nuggets the lead for good.

Bryant dribbled upcourt and got into traffic, with Nene tipping the ball away to earn a jump ball with 18 seconds left. Gasol controlled the tip to Ariza, but the ball squirted away and Fisher fouled Billups. He made both for a 105-101 lead.

Martin fouled Gasol, who made both before Billups got fouled.

The Lakers were shaky on free throws in the fourth, making 9 of 14, while Denver didn't blink at the line.

Kleiza's 3-pointer early in the fourth quarter gave the Nuggets an 85-82 lead, their first since the game's opening minutes. Billups followed with two free throws and Anthony hit two baskets in a row to extend Denver's lead to 91-84.

Bryant missed a jumper, but he came up big on the Lakers' next possession, hitting a 3-pointer with Anthony's hand in his face. Shannon Brown tossed in a 3 and Lamar Odom made two free throws as part of an 11-2 run that put the Lakers back in front 95-93.

LeBron, Cavs get first taste of playoff adversity

By Tom Withers
Associated Press writer

CLEVELAND — The 24-second shot clock has been fixed. The Cleveland Cavaliers are next on the repairs-to-do list.

The Orlando Magic caused some extensive collateral damage with their stunning win in Game 1 of the Eastern Conference finals.

They exposed Cleveland's depth, shredded its defense, snatched home-court advantage and put the NBA's top-seeded team in an unfamiliar position — behind in a series and desperate for a win heading into Game 2 on Friday night.

"We're looking at it as a must win," MVP LeBron James said before practice on Thursday.

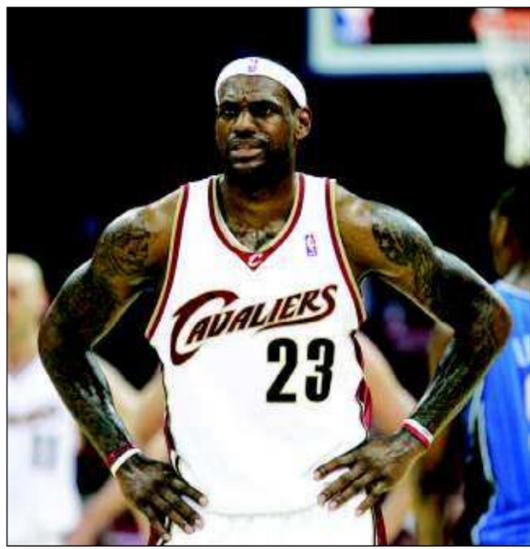

"It's obvious," Cavs guard Mo Williams said, echoing the must-win sentiment. "My grandma knows that. Yeah, it's a must win. Hell yeah."

Behind a torrent of clutch 3-pointers — the winner by Rashard Lewis with 14.7 seconds left — and Dwight Howard's broad shoulders, the Magic muscled their way into Cleveland's noisy arena and rallied for a stunning 107-106 victory that may have altered the perception that the Cavaliers are the team to beat in the postseason.

This is no smoke-and-mirrors Magic act. Orlando is the real deal.

Howard set the tone by busting one of the shot clocks with a vicious dunk in

Vick home in Va., fitted with electronic monitor

By Larry O'Dell
Associated Press writer

HAMPTON, Va. — After Michael Vick's first few frenzied hours at home, things seemed to settle down.

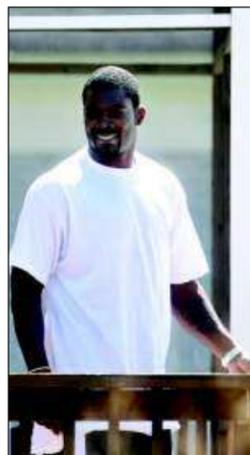

The media ranks thinned out, and gawkers were leaving after lingering into the early morning hours Thursday, hoping for a glimpse of the suspended NFL star.

Once the meeting with local probation officers was out of the way, Vick finally was reunited with his family.

"He is obviously delighted to be home," his Virginia-based attorney, Lawrence Woodward, said.

And so ended the 28-hour, 1,200-mile journey that began early Wednesday in Leavenworth, Kan.

Still, the former Atlanta Falcons quarterback remains a federal inmate, serving two months of home confinement to complete his 23-month sentence for running a dogfighting ring. He cannot speak to the media without permission from the Bureau of Prisons. Efforts to get permission are under way, Woodward said.

Suspended NFL quarterback Michael Vick, right, steps out onto his deck while testing out his electronic monitor worn on his ankle Thursday in Hampton, Va.

Vick arrived in a black sport utility vehicle with blackout curtains, part of a four-vehicle caravan carrying a security team and others, and cruised directly into a side garage. Later, he briefly appeared on the deck of his five-bedroom home, as he and a probation officer tested the electronic monitor Vick will wear for two months.

Idaho athletics hires Buhl native

MOSCOW — Buhl native Nick Popplewell has joined the University of Idaho Department of Athletics as its Director of Marketing.

Popplewell, who earned his undergraduate degree at Idaho and completes his master's work at the University of Washington in June, served as the department's interim marketing director the past year.

Popplewell's initial involvement with Vandal Athletics was as a student volunteer for athletic director Rob Spear in 2006. He was an intern during 2007 and was appointed the interim director in the fall of 2008 while he finished his graduate studies at Washington.

Mauer, Twins lay 20 runs on White Sox

CHICAGO — Joe Mauer hit a grand slam, two doubles and drove in six runs as the Minnesota Twins routed the White Sox 20-1 Thursday, matching Chicago's most-lopsided loss in team history.

Michael Cuddyer, Joe Crede and Matt Tolbert also homered as Minnesota ended a six-game losing streak and made the White Sox pine even more for Jake Peavy.

The White Sox and Padres had agreed to a deal to send the ace pitcher to Chicago, but he turned down the trade, choosing to remain with his longtime team.

INDIANS 8, ROYALS 3

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Victor Martinez drove in three runs and the Indians got past Zack Greinke by getting to the Kansas City bullpen.

Greinke's record stayed at 7-1 with his first no-decision in nine starts. He went six innings, gave up a season-high eight hits and left with a 3-2 lead. His major league-leading ERA crept up to 0.82 from 0.60.

RAYS 6, ATHLETICS 5

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — Pinch-hitter Ben Zobrist tied the game with a two-run homer in the bottom of the ninth and Carl Crawford then won it with an RBI single in the Rays victory over the Athletics.

Zobrist got the Rays even at 5 with the homer off Andrew Bailey.

YANKEES 7, ORIOLES 4

out to a big lead after losing Joba Chamberlain to a leg injury in the first inning, driving in three runs as the Yankees beat the Orioles for their ninth straight win.

Cano hit an RBI double in New York's four-run first and a two-run shot in the second. Melky Cabrera, subbing for a sore Johnny Damon, had a two-run double in the first and Hideki Matsui connected in the fifth to give Yankee Stadium the record for most homers in a ballpark's first 20 games.

TIGERS 4, RANGERS 3

DETROIT — Miguel Cabrera hit a go-ahead single in the eighth inning and the Tigers won their sixth straight game, defeating the Rangers.

Curtis Granderson and Clete Thomas homered for Detroit. The Tigers completed their second sweep of Texas this season, and have beaten the Rangers 11 times in a row at Comerica Park.

RED SOX 5, BLUE JAYS 1

BOSTON — Jason Bay set a Red Sox record with his 11th straight homer with runners on base and Jon Lester rebounded from two bad outings as Boston completed a three-game sweep of the Blue Jays.

Bay hit his 13th homer of the year, a two-run shot in a three-run first inning, and Boston led 5-0 before Aaron Hill singled in Toronto's run in the seventh.

National League

PHILLIES 12, REDS 5

CINCINNATI — Chase Utley homered and drove in four runs, and Philadelphia's powerful offense overcame another disappointing performance by a starter.

Utley had a two-run single and a double off Micah Owings (3-5), who got nine outs and showed the strain of throwing a lot of innings lately. Utley also had one of the Phillies' four solo homers — Greg Dobbs, Ryan Howard and Raul Ibanez connected, as well.

NATIONALS 5, PIRATES 4

WASHINGTON — Ryan Zimmerman and Adam Dunn had RBI singles in the eighth inning, helping the Nationals end a seven-game skid with a come-from-behind victory over the Pirates.

Cristian Guzman started the decisive rally in the eighth with a one-out single off Tom Gorzelanny (1-1) and moved to second on Nick Johnson's single to center. Zimmerman followed with a tying single to right, the 39th straight game he has reached base safely. Dunn put Washington ahead with the fourth straight single of the inning.

ROCKIES 9, BRAVES 0

ATLANTA — Aaron Cook pitched a four-hit shutout and Todd Helton's grand slam ended Colorado's power slump as the Rockies spoiled Kris Medlen's debut with a win over Atlanta.

Cook (3-1) retired the final 16 batters for his second career shutout. He had 20 groundouts and did not allow a baserunner to advance past second for his first win in eight career starts against Atlanta.

DIAMONDBACKS 4, MARLINS 3

MIAMI — Mark Reynolds hit a two-run homer in the eighth inning and the Diamondbacks took advantage of the Marlins' weary bullpen to rally for a victory.

Reynolds' home run came off Cristhian Martinez, making his major league debut. Florida's relief corps was spent after a double-header split Wednesday, capped by Arizona's victory in a 13-inning nightcap that ended at 1:48 a.m.

CARDINALS 3, CUBS 1

ST. LOUIS — Adam Wainwright came within an out of the St. Louis Cardinals' second complete game during a three-game sweep of the Chicago Cubs and Albert Pujols hit a first-inning homer that knocked out the "1" on the Big Mac Land sign in left field in a 3-1 victory Thursday night.

Wainwright (4-2) allowed five hits in 8 2-3 innings, striking out seven with one walk before Ryan Franklin got Milton Bradley to line out with a man on for his 11th save in 12 chances.

BREWERS 4, ASTROS 3

HOUSTON — Prince Fielder drove in two with a single and Corey Hart had an RBI double in a three-run seventh, and Milwaukee rallied.

Hunter Pence and Miguel Tejada homered for the Astros, who blew a 3-0 lead after manager Cecil Cooper and first baseman Lance Berkman were ejected for arguing a close call at home plate.

Malkin scores 3 as Pens take 2-0 lead

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Carolina Hurricanes talked and talked before the Eastern Conference playoffs began about the importance of slowing down Sidney Crosby. Maybe they forget about the Pittsburgh Penguins' other star, Evgeni Malkin.

Malkin put Pittsburgh ahead for good by scoring twice in the third period of his first three-goal playoff performance, and the Penguins beat the Hurricanes 7-4 Thursday night to open a two-game lead in the conference finals.

Crosby scored a record-tying sixth goal to start a playoff game, yet was upstaged by NHL regular-season scoring leader Malkin during an exceptional effort that also gave Malkin the playoff scoring lead 25-24 over Crosby. Malkin has four of Pittsburgh's 10 goals in the series.

"It was a great game for me," Malkin said. Carolina had won five straight Game 2s, including the first two rounds this spring after losing Game 1 each time, but couldn't match Pittsburgh's Mario Lemieux era-like run-and-gun offense despite rallying to tie three times. The Hurricanes will host Game 3 on Saturday night.

Malkin, seemingly motivated by Carolina's attempts to be more physical with him than usual during the second period, ended a succession of strong shifts by scoring to make it 5-4 with 8:50 gone in the third period.

"He played a determined game," teammate Bill Guerin said of Malkin. "He's got that size and skill."

Malkin, relying on his speed and offensive creativity to set up scoring chances on almost every shift in the final period, made it 6-4 less than four minutes later with a one-man goal. He picked up the puck in the corner, carried it behind the net and used a spin move to put a backhand past goalie Cam Ward from a bad angle for his 10th of the playoffs.

"It was a great shot," Carolina defenseman Dennis Seidenberg said.

the opening minutes, a we're-here-to-play moment that stunned a Cleveland crowd that later shuffled out of the building wondering what went wrong after seeing the Cavs lose on their home floor for just the third time in 46 games.

After Thursday's practice, Howard, standing near the same basket, was asked if he was done breaking things.

"No," he said, flashing a smile. "Not yet."

periodically with the officers, perhaps as early as Friday. He will also be starting his $10-an-hour job as a construction laborer — a condition of his probation.

In his limited ventures outside the house, Vick might run into people like Shaun Brantley of Chesapeake, Va., who brought his 4-year-old pit bull, Caesar, to Vick's neighborhood — a reminder of the dogs killed in the "Bad Newz Kennels" dogfighting operation.

"It's really inhumane what he did," Brantley said. "He deserves a whole lot more than what he got."

Jason Boesen of Hampton, Va., who wore a No. 7 Vick Falcons jersey, took the opposite view.

"Everyone deserves a second chance," he said. "There's people in the NFL that have done worse than him."

Boston Celtics in the conference semis, feel as if they're not being given a chance to win this series and advance to the finals for the first time since 1995.

"I don't even think most of the nation knows that we're in this series," Orlando coach Stan Van Gundy said after the Magic's light workout at Quicken Loans Arena. "This is the 'Cleveland Cavaliers and LeBron James series.' Who they are playing against is incidental.

"It doesn't bother me and I don't think it bothers our guys. That's the way it is. Look, they won 66 games. They swept through two rounds of the playoffs. They've got the most valuable player in the league ... But it doesn't matter.

"The bottom line is this is not the BCS, where people get to vote for who the best teams are. We actually get to play on the court to decide that."

The Magic, a mercurial squad that can dazzle one minute and disappear the next, fell behind by 16 points in the first quarter of Game 1 and were down 15 at halftime. But urged by the fiery Van Gundy, they kept chipping away and fighting, and in the second half their shots began to fall.

Roger Goodell that he is sorry and ready to live a different life. Goodell has said those are the main factors that will guide his decision on whether to lift Vick's indefinite suspension.

"I definitely support his efforts at re-entering society and hope the public understands he's paid his debt, and I know he's remorseful," said Tennessee Titans tight end Alge Crumpler, a former Vick teammate. "Nothing I can say matters. It's all about Mike's actions, what he does, how people perceive the things that he does and how he reaches out and tries to help people understand the things that he's lost."

The Atlanta Falcons have already said Vick won't play for them again, and Jacksonville Jaguars owner Wayne Weaver said he wasn't interested, either.

Vick will be released from federal custody July 20.

Riding the recession: Selig pleased despite drop

NEW YORK (AP) — While Major League Baseball's attendance is down 6.4 percent from a year ago and 20 of 30 teams have experienced drops, commissioner Bud Selig is pleased with how the sport is surviving a season of recession.

"The clubs are very aggressive now in the way they're reaching out. I actually complimented them today at the end of the meeting," he said Thursday after the owners' quarterly gathering. "You've got some teams in economic markets that are have really, really been hurt."

The 30 teams averaged 28,661 through Wednesday, down from 30,636 through May 20 last year. And Selig said per capita spending on tickets combined with concessions had been "quite a bit reduced, there's no question about it."

Moving to new stadiums with smaller capacities, the Mets saw average attendance fall 22 percent and the Yankees saw theirs decrease 14 percent. Other big drops were experienced by the Washington (34 percent), Detroit (30 percent), Atlanta (20 percent), Colorado (17 percent), San Diego (18 percent), Toronto (14 percent) and Houston (13 percent).

Just four teams have seen double-digit percentage increases: AL champion Tampa Bay (32 percent), Florida (26 percent), Kansas City (16 percent) and World Series champion Philadelphia (10 percent).

And eight of the 28 stadiums that were in use before this year have set their attendance lows for regularly scheduled games: Atlanta's Turner Field (15,364 on May 18), Cincinnati's Great American Ball Park (9,878 on April 28), Cleveland's Progressive Field (11,408 on April 21), St. Louis' Busch Stadium (35,206 on April 7), San Diego's Petco Park (13,646 on May 5), San Francisco's AT&T Park (23,934 on April 22), Toronto's Rogers Centre (12,145 on April 8) and Washington's Nationals Park (12,473 on April 20).

In addition, the new Yankee Stadium and the Mets' Citi Field have both failed to sell out any game since their openers.

Selig said attendance should be viewed against the standards set in recent seasons. Baseball had a record average of 32,785 two years ago, breaking a mark that had stood since 1993, and the average declined slightly last year to 32,539.

"It's early. We've had horrendous weather," Selig said. "I'm encouraged. Look, I read people saying, 'Oh, we're going to be down this, and we're going to be down that. And look at all the empty seats.' And then you compare to last year — remember, let me remind all of you, we're going against numbers that are stunning."

He said 15 or 16 teams held ticket prices even, six or seven cut them and the rest raised them. Many teams instituted discounted tickets and cheaper food prices, including $1 hot dogs.

"Frankly, recession or not, this is the way it should be every year," he said.

Selig defended the Yankees against criticism that they unleashed class warfare at their new $1.5-billion ballpark, which has a concrete moat dividing the $500-$2,625 seats closest to the field from the rest of the lower deck. The Yankees won't let anyone into the first five-to-nine rows of the Legends Suite during batting practice who doesn't have a ticket for that area.

"The Yankees are as sensitive and fan friendly as all the other organizations," he said. "There always has been a real linkage between the management and its fans. ... and I'm satisfied that the Yankees understand that."

Long returns to track amid uncertain NASCAR future

CONCORD, N.C. — Carl Long's best Cup Series finish came at Lowe's Motor Speedway in 2001 and he got married at the track's luxurious Speedway Club two years later.

"This place has been pretty good to me," Long said Thursday. "I sure hope my career doesn't end here."

It could. Long was suspended 12 races, docked 200 points and essentially fined $200,000 for having an illegal engine at Lowe's last weekend. All were record penalties for the sport.

Long appealed the punishment Thursday, hoping the National Stock Car Racing Commission will reduce the figures at a June 2 hearing. NASCAR, meanwhile, deferred Long's suspension until the hearing, allowing him to return to his full-time job as a crew member for the No. 34 Chevrolet.

So the part-time driver was back at work Thursday, but still trying to come to terms with a ruling that threatens to end the racing career of a guy who struggles to pay his bills every month.

"I'm still in shock," Long said. "I just hope the people in the hearing ... common sense has got to take place. Somewhere in the world, sometime, common sense has to come out. I can bash NASCAR and everybody around me, but let's exhaust every avenue there is to exhaust and then if we have to go out and have a parade about it, we will."

Long, who made 23 races between 2000 and 2006, said he bought the engine from a "reputable builder" who fields motors for several Cup teams and said all the paperwork showed it was within NASCAR specifications. It malfunctioned during practice for the All-Star race Friday, prompting the team to change engines.

Under NASCAR rules, any engine removed from a car is subject to inspection. The owner, though, has the option of turning the engine over to NASCAR or loading up his car and leaving the track. So had Long even suspected the engine would fail NASCAR's exam, he said he would have left the speedway.

Instead, he turned the engine over without hesitation.

He failed to qualify for the All-Star race with a backup motor, and then learned Wednesday how costly the entire trip turned out to be.

TRUOX GETTING CLOSE TO MAKING DECISION ON FUTURE

CONCORD, N.C. — Martin Truex Jr. will decide whether to return to Earnhardt Ganassi Racing in the next few weeks.

Truex, a disappointing 19th in the Sprint Cup points standings heading into Sunday's Coca-Cola 600 at Lowe's Motor Speedway, said Thursday he was close to making a decision on his future.

But he didn't give any hints about where he might end up next season.

Truex signed a one-year contract last year to remain with Dale Earnhardt Inc., hoping to help turn around the struggling team. But DEI merged with Chip Ganassi Racing a few months later, creating some chaos that may have contributed to Truex's poor season.

His performance now has him at forefront of free agent speculation.

A recent false rumor had him replacing struggling rookie Joey Logano at Joe Gibbs Racing, and his name has surfaced as a candidate for the No. 55 if owner/driver Michael Waltrip decides to retire at the end of the season.

"I'll let you know in a few weeks," Truex said. "There's a lot of things that

Newman wins pole for Coca-Cola 600

CONCORD, N.C. (AP) — Ryan Newman turned a lap at 188.475 mph Thursday night to grab the top starting spot for the Coca-Cola 600.

It was Newman's eighth career pole at Lowe's Motor Speedway — the most of any active driver — and the Stewart-Haas Racing driver's 44th overall.

Kyle Busch will start second Sunday in NASCAR's longest race after a lap of 188.258. Points leader Jeff Gordon qualified third, followed by Hendrick Motorsports teammates Mark Martin and Jimmie Johnson.

Bill Elliott needed to qualify on speed and earned the 10th spot for his 800th career start.

J.J. Yeley, filling in for suspended driver Jeremy Mayfield, failed to qualify for the race.

factor into the decision. It's not like I'm making the decision for six months. It's a big deal. You've got to figure out where you want to be in three years and whether or not that decision will get you there. That's what I'm looking at."

MAYFIELD MEETS WITH NASCAR; LEGAL ACTION POSSIBLE

CONCORD, N.C. — The attorney for Jeremy Mayfield hinted Thursday he'll take legal action to have Mayfield's NASCAR suspension lifted.

Mayfield and attorney Bill Diehl met for more than an hour with NASCAR officials. Although Diehl said the meeting was cordial, it did not get them any closer to resolving the issue. Mayfield was suspended May 9 for failing a random drug test.

"Jeremy doesn't believe that he's done anything that supports his suspension for the use of drugs," Diehl said.

NASCAR has not revealed what banned substance Mayfield used, and Diehl also refused to identify the substance.

Diehl did not say what his next move will be, but strongly hinted at taking legal action Friday that will challenge the suspension and the validity of the drug test. He said he received copies of two toxicology reports this week from NASCAR.

"We're contesting everything that happened," Diehl said. "We hope that it's a mistake."

Nitties, Duke share lead at Nelson

IRVING, Texas — Fun-loving PGA Tour rookie James Nitties can get serious, too.

While not shy about his tour bio that lists his special interests as clubbing, girls and movies, the 26-year-old Australian is trying to stay focused on a stretch of tournaments that could culminate with a spot in the U.S. Open.

"It's not easy, but I just made an executive decision where I have to play well over the next five weeks," Nitties said. "It's not just fun and games out here."

Nitties finished with four consecutive birdies for a 5-under 65 Thursday to share the first-round lead at the HP Byron Nelson Championship with Ken Duke, another surprise at the top of the leaderboard.

Duke snapped a streak of 11 consecutive rounds in the 70s to share the first-round lead for only the second time in his 118 career starts. His putt at No. 18 stopped 3 inches from the hole, or he could have had another birdie and the lead alone.

"You think you should do better than you're doing, and then you press the issues and don't just let it come to you," the 40-year-old Duke said. "I guess that's kind of what I've done."

Until the Nelson, when he had five birdies over eight holes after being even through the first eight.

Ian Poulter of England follows through on his drive off the seventh tee during the first round of the Byron Nelson Championship golf tournament at TPC Four Seasons in Irving, Texas, Thursday. Poulter finished the day at one-under, 69.

66s, and Jesper Parnevik and Tommy Armour III were among a group of a dozen players with 67s.

Defending champion Adam Scott started with consecutive bogeys and went on to a 71.

HOCH LEADS AT SENIOR PGA CHAMPIONSHIP

BEACHWOOD, Ohio — Scott Hoch bogeyed the final two holes for a 4-under 66 and share of the first-round lead with Tom Purtzer in the 70th Senior PGA Championship, the first major of the year for the over-50 set.

Their 66s matched the lowest competitive score at venerable Canterbury Golf Club, which joined Oak Hill in Rochester, N.Y., as the only course to host all five of the premier U.S. men's championships played at rotating sites.

Germany's Bernhard Langer, a two-time winner this year and the Champions Tour's top money-winner, had a 68 and was alone in third. Tom Kite, John Morse, Mark James, Joey Sindelar, Larry Mize, Dana Quigley and Fred Gibson were the only other players under par, each with a 69. Only 10 players broke par and 12 others shot even-par 70 in warm and sunny weather with blustery wind at the 88-year-old layout in suburban Cleveland.

ICHER, PARK SHARE EARLY EDGE AT LPGA CORNING CLASSIC

CORNING, N.Y. — France's Karine Icher and

South Korea's Hee Young Park shot 8-under 64s to share the first-round lead in the final LPGA Corning Classic.

Park had eight one-putt birdies, only one from more than 10 feet, and completed her round on the forgiving Corning Country Club course with a 6-footer at No. 18. Icher, playing in the final threesome, tied her with an 8-foot putt at No. 18.

Minea Blomqvist, Sandra Gal, Sarah Lee, Soo-Yun Kang, and Hee-Won Han shot 65s, and Paula Creamer, Morgan Pressel, Nicole Castrale, Sarah Kemp, Jimin Jeong and Na Yeon Choi opened with 66s. Michelle Wie shot a 73.

Childress says he believes Favre remains retired

EDEN PRAIRIE, Minn. (AP) — Words about Brett Favre's retirement always include a qualifier, and Vikings coach Brad Childress offered the latest: "As far as I know."

Childress declined Thursday to close the door on signing the famously flip-flopping quarterback, who declared for a second time in February he was done with football for good.

The coach confirmed for the first time this year, though, that he's spoken with Favre, but said their last contact was "several weeks ago" and solely by phone.

"It was worth a conversation," Childress said, "and as far as I know he's still retired."

Favre has, at least according to several media reports relying on unnamed sources, considered coming out of retirement in recent weeks while assessing his health. He has a partially torn biceps tendon, which causes pain in his throwing shoulder and prompted him to call it quits after a 2008 season with the New York Jets that started well but ended badly.

When the Jets released him this offseason, making him a free agent, Favre said: "Nothing has changed. At this time, I am retired and have no intention of returning to football."

Favre's agent, Bus Cook, has repeated a similar line this month while unsubstantiated speculation about Favre's status has swirled around the country, claiming his client remains retired — to the best of his knowledge.

Without a no-way, no-how statement from either the Vikings, Favre or his inner circle, well, the possibility won't be forgotten anytime soon. But Childress tried to put it to rest, taking questions from reporters for the first time in three weeks.

Biden wraps up
Balkan tour

PRISTINA — U.S. Vice President Joe Biden on Thursday received a hero's welcome in the place where it was expected — among Kosovo Albanians who are thanking America for leading them to independence from Serbia.

But, his visit to Serbia a day earlier may have gotten the new Obama administration some unexpected allies — the Serbs, who oppose Kosovo's independence.

In Kosovo, Biden was wrapping up a three-day tour of the volatile southeastern European region that also included stops in Bosnia and Serbia.

The visit was meant to demonstrate renewed U.S. interest in the region riven by bloody ethnic wars of the 1990s, which the West accused Serbia of fomenting.

AFGHANISTAN
U.S. troops seize 16.5 tons of drugs, kill 34 militants

KABUL — American and Afghan forces seized 16.5 tons of drugs and killed 34 militants during a three-day operation against a key insurgent stronghold in southern Afghanistan, a U.S. military statement said Thursday.

The seizure was one of the biggest by foreign troops in Afghanistan since 2001 and an indication of a nexus between the insurgency and the drug trade that fuels it.

The narcotics were taken following an operation in the village of Marjah, a major drug-processing hub in Helmand province, which is the world's largest opium poppy producing region.

"They hit them where it hurts the most in a main command node and in the wallet," said Col. Greg Julian, the chief U.S. military spokesman.

PAKISTAN
Allies aid refugees fleeing from Taliban

ISLAMABAD — Donations to help refugees fleeing Pakistan's latest offensive against the Taliban surpassed $200 million Thursday, as the country's allies sought to ease a crisis that risks eroding public support for military action against the militants.

About 1.9 million people have fled the fighting in the Swat Valley and surrounding areas, a mountainous region not far from the Afghan border where the Taliban have found safe haven in recent years. More than 160,000 are staying in sweltering camps just south of the battle zone; the rest have been taken in by relatives.

The United Nations has set up tent schools at the camps. At one on Thursday, teachers drilled dozens of kids sitting cross-legged on mats in numbers and letters before giving the pupils packets of biscuits as an incentive for them to return.

NEW ZEALAND
Couple withdraws money, flees after bank error

WELLINGTON — Police launched an international search for two New Zealanders who allegedly took the money and ran after a bank mistakenly put 10 million New Zealand dollars ($6.1 million) into their account.

The couple, who operated a gas station in the northern city of Rotorua, applied to Westpac Bank for a NZ$10,000 ($6,000) overdraft, but 1,000 times that amount was paid into their account. The two then withdrew some of the money and disappeared, Detective Senior Sgt. David Harvey said. Westpac said Thursday it considered the money to be stolen.

Ex-soldier spared death sentence for Iraq murders

By Brett Barouquere
Associated Press writer

PADUCAH, Ky. — An ex-soldier convicted of raping and killing an Iraqi teen and murdering her family was spared the death penalty Thursday and will serve a life sentence after jurors couldn't agree unanimously on a punishment.

Former Pfc. Steven Dale Green of Midland, Texas, will be formally sentenced Sept. 4 by U.S. District Judge Thomas B. Russell. Jurors who convicted Green on May 7 told Russell they couldn't agree on the appropriate sentence after deliberating more than 10 hours over two days.

In a March 2006 attack in Mahmoudiya, about 20 miles south of Baghdad, Green and three other soldiers went to the home of 14-year-old Abeer Qassim al-Janabi. Green shot and killed the teen's mother, father and sister, then became the third soldier to rape the girl before killing her.

Green's attorneys never denied Green's involvement in the attack. Instead, they focused on trying to build a case that Green didn't deserve the death penalty.

Defense attorneys presented former Marines and other soldiers Green served with who testified that Green faced an unusually stressful combat tour in Iraq in a unit that suffered heavy casualties and didn't receive sufficient Army leadership while serving in Iraq's "Triangle of Death."

Enemy attacks killed two command sergeants, a lieutenant and a specialist in Green's unit during 12 days in December 2005. Jurors also were told that Green's unit was left alone to run a traffic checkpoint for several weeks without a break.

Green's father, John, and brother, Doug, sighed as the verdict was read.

"It's the better of two bad choices," said John Green, also of Midland, Texas.

Doug Green, 28, said the jury reached the appropriate decision.

"I do think it gives him a chance to have some semblance of a life," Doug Green said. "We're grateful for that."

The other soldiers directly involved in the attack are serving long sentences in military prison and testified against Green, who was tried in federal court as a civilian because he had been discharged from the Army before his arrest.

Suicide bomb kills 3 U.S. soldiers, 12 Iraqis

By Nada Bakri
The Washington Post

BAGHDAD, Iraq — Three U.S. soldiers and 12 Iraqis were killed Thursday by a bomb at a crowded market in the southern Baghdad neighborhood of Doura, residents and U.S. and Iraqi officials said.

Another 25 people were wounded, including five U.S. soldiers, according to the residents and officials. The Americans were part of a unit conducting a foot patrol at the market.

Witnesses said the explosion was caused by a suicide bomber, but officials could not confirm that.

The bomb exploded a little before 11 a.m. near an office for a detachment of a U.S.-backed militia, tearing through the market teeming with shoppers and residents. It marked the largest loss of life for U.S. soldiers in a single enemy attack in Baghdad since April 2008.

"I was about to cross the street and suddenly I heard a loud explosion," said Ahmad Falah, a 19-year-old blacksmith. "Then I saw a head on the street and another man without an arm. Pieces of flesh were all over the ground."

Women cry Thursday in Baghdad, Iraq, during the funeral of a victim in Wednesday's car bomb explosion in a Shiite neighborhood of northwest Baghdad, which killed 40 people and injured more than 80.

After the explosion, vendors shut most shops and restaurants, and scores of people, unsettled by the attack, fled the neighborhood. Iraqi and U.S. soldiers cordoned off the area. At least eight U.S. armored cars were parked near the bombing site, and U.S. soldiers carrying machine guns patrolled the streets on foot.

The attack took place a few yards away from a checkpoint for Iraqi police commandos, and residents expressed shock at how the assailant managed to pass through security wearing an explosive belt without being caught.

Maj. David Shoupe, a U.S. military spokesman, said the blast was caused by an improvised mine that detonated near a foot patrol in Baghdad. He said he could not confirm the attacker was a suicide bomber. But police at the scene showed pictures taken with their mobile phones of the severed head of the man they believed was the assailant, and some residents said they knew the identity of the bomber.

Earlier in the day, a suicide bomber killed at least eight members of the same American-backed paramilitary group in Kirkuk, north of Baghdad, as the group members were waiting outside an army station to get paid. It is the second time in recent weeks that individuals in the groups, known as Sons of Iraq, have been targeted by explosives as they waited for their salaries.

The attack came as the toll from a car bomb Wednesday in a poor Shiite neighborhood of northern Baghdad rose to 40 dead and 83 wounded.

The attacks ended a lull that Baghdad had experienced since April when series of suicide bombings struck predominantly Shiite neighborhoods, making last month the most violent this year.

Civilian casualties have mounted each month this year, as the United States prepares to withdraw combat troops from cities by June 30.

But for days this month, amid a break in the bombings, Baghdad's most formidable problems had seemed to be traffic sometimes snarled for a mile before omnipresent checkpoints and the heat of an early summer.

New French law on Internet piracy meets skepticism

By Deborah Seward
Associated Press writer

PARIS — A thousand French Internet users a day could be taken off-line following approval of President Nicolas Sarkozy's pet project — an unprecedented law to cut the Internet connections of about civil liberties.

"We should be careful about interfering with the freedom of exchange of information," said Wolfgang Zankl, professor at the University of Vienna and president of the European Center for E-Commerce. "This is a constitutional right which no one should be barred from."

Some Internet experts say the law will be technically impossible to apply. It requires Internet subscribers to install special software that would enable authorities to track down and identify those suspected of illegal downloads, but some experts say such programs do not yet exist.

And because it denies accused pirates the chance to defend themselves before their Web connections are severed, legal experts say it will not stand up in court.

The measure's first short-term test came Tuesday, when the opposition Socialists took their objections before the Constitutional Council, which has a month to issue a ruling.

If the council decides the law does not violate the constitution, it could take effect by summer.

It calls for graduated reprisals against alleged offenders. If a suspected pirate fails to heed e-mail warnings and a certified letter, Internet access would be cut for two months to a year — with the subscriber required to keep paying for the service under the contract's terms.

Christine Albanel, the French culture minister, foresees cutting 1,000 Internet connections a day and sending 13,000 warnings to first- or second-time offenders.

In the United States, the music industry has waged war on content swappers with limited success. A campaign to sue individuals who repeatedly download free songs was dropped last year in favor of an effort to work more closely with Internet service providers to try to block connections of alleged offenders. AT&T, the largest Internet service provider in the U.S., is beginning to send the warnings to its subscribers.

Sarkozy

As the husband of supermodel-turned-pop star Carla Bruni and friend to some of France's most powerful media figures, Sarkozy has long basked in his cozy ties with the entertainment industry, which has embraced the measure.

But many in Europe have denounced it, saying government controls needed to enforce the law could open the way for invasive state monitoring that violate privacy. And legal challenges at home could derail it: The opposition is trying to get the law declared unconstitutional.

Predictably, music, film and other industry groups have welcomed the measure. John Kennedy, chairman and CEO of the International Federation of the Phonographic Industry, said Wednesday that it represents a "sea change."

Critics, however, worry

2009 SUZUKI EQUATOR PICKUP TRUCK

NEW VEHICLE, EXPANDED POSSIBILITIES!

RoadWorthy!
By Ken Chester, Jr.
Motor News Media
Corporation

To bolster its versatile and dynamic product line and to enhance the company's bold and adventurous identity, Suzuki introduces the all-new 2009 Equator, marking Suzuki's first entry into the midsize pickup truck market. The new Equator offers a well-rounded combination of style, utility, comfort and off-road capability, which truck buyers -- many of whom are current Suzuki motorcycle, ATV and marine owners and loyalists -- demand and enjoy.

Developed as a joint effort with Nissan North America, Inc., the 2009 rear-wheel drive Equator is based on Nissan's rock-solid Frontier pickup and available in both Extended Cab and Crew Cab body styles. Four-wheel-drive (4WD) is an available option for Crew Cab models. To accommodate loads ranging from ATVs to motorcycles, Suzuki offers Crew Cab variants in both Short Bed and Long Bed configurations.

Both Extended Cab and Crew Cab models offer an available high-utility bed

that includes a factory-applied spray-on bedliner and an innovative tie-down system with adjustable tracks, extending cargo-hauling versatility for active and spontaneous lifestyles. The tie-down system employs five special "C" cross-section rails mounted in the bed (two channels in the bed floor and one each on the bed side rails and the bed header panel). Removable utility cleats slide into the channels, providing a wide range of attachment points for securing cargo.

Available in Base, Premium, Sport and RMZ-4 (Crew Cab) trim levels the all-new Equator is equipped with a 2.5L four-cylinder engine or available 4.0L V6 powerplant. Designed for outstanding performance and durability, the Equator's V6 engine features an aluminum block with cast iron cylinder liners, Teflon®-coated pistons, micro-finished forged steel crankshaft, micro-finished camshafts driven by a silent two-stage timing chain and variable valve timing.

The Suzuki pickup truck comes equipped with either a five-speed electronically controlled automatic transmission or five-speed manual transmission available only on four-cylinder models, and offers an available shift-on-the-fly 4WD system that features an electronically controlled part-time two-speed transfer case. For enhanced off-road capability, the rugged Equator offers a comprehensive off-road traction system, including four-wheel active limited slip traction control, electronic locking rear differential, Vehicle Dynamic Control, Hill Descent Control and Hill Hold Control.

Control hardware for the Equator includes an all-steel double-wishbone front suspension that balances rugged capability with everyday driving comfort. In the rear, a proven solid axle configuration uses overslung leaf springs and a long suspension travel for the best combination of on- and off-road dynamics and carrying ability.

The Equator's interior strikes a balance between pickup truck function and quality sedan comfort, with both Extended Cab and Crew Cab body styles featuring flip-up rear seats, a fold-flat front passenger seat and removable storage boxes tucked beneath the rear seats to provide additional cargo capacity. Additional convenience features include a dual glove box with lock and center console storage with power outlet. A number of power points and cupholders, including one-liter bottle storage in the front doors, are standard throughout the truck. Available equipment packages add cruise control, power mirrors, door locks and windows and remote keyless entry.

Manufacturer's Suggested Retail Price (MSRP) for the 2009 Suzuki Equator pickup truck starts from $17,220 for the base 2WD extended cab up to $30,600 for the Crew Cab RMZ-Sport. Destination charges add $775.

Mom refuses to stop driving despite history of seizures

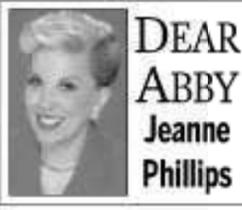

DEAR ABBY: My mother is 66 and has had two major epileptic seizures. The incidents occurred in the middle of the night, and each time she was unconscious for a long time (45 minutes or more) and was taken to the emergency room by ambulance. She also has "minor" seizures that last only 30 to 60 seconds. I have seen them.

Her doctor has told her not to drive and that it's against the law in our state for her to drive until she has been seizure-free for six months. The problem is, Mom and her husband believe she can drive safely. She even bought a new car so she can get "better gas mileage."

I have offered to take Mom to doctors and other appointments, etc. She allows me to, but still drives herself to the grocery store and hairdresser and other places because they are "close by." (Not!)

Abby, I lost a brother in a car accident. I don't want to lose my mother in one, too. I'm also afraid for the safety of pedestrians and other drivers in her path. What can I do or say to get Mom to follow the doctor's orders?

- WORRIED IN THE WEST
DEAR WORRIED: Nothing. Because your mother refuses to use common sense or listen to reason, accept that talking to her is like talking to a wall. A person doesn't have to have a major seizure to cause an accident. A blackout lasting a few seconds can cause a driver to lose control of a vehicle.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

If your mother's physician isn't aware that she hasn't been complying with his or her instructions, let the doctor know. Write a letter explaining that you have seen her having minor seizures and that she's still driving. Urge him (or her) to notify the Department of Motor Vehicles, and you should do the same. The more time that goes by without this being dealt with, the greater the chances your mother could kill herself or kill or maim an innocent person who happens to cross her path at the wrong time.

DEAR ABBY: I am 14 years old and aware of what is going on in the world around me. My parents have owned a successful company for years, but with the economy in its current state, our family is having a tough time. We live a luxurious life and I am very blessed, but we have begun to give things up. I am fine with that. My parents have changed. If I ask how things are, they get mad at me. If I tell them I don't need something, such as a present for my birthday, they ask me why and I tell them, "I know we don't have money to spend right now." Then they say, "We have money, but it's in the bank and is only for emergencies such as an illness."

How can I convince my parents that it is OK to tell me what is going on, and that we should go through it as a family?

- TEEN IN CALIFORNIA

DEAR TEEN: It is the instinct of every parent to protect his or her child. That may be what your parents are trying to do when you raise the sensitive subjects of "how things are" and birthday gifts. What they may not realize is that you are no longer a child, and the questions and statements you are making are a reflection of your anxiety.

As stressful as the current economic environment may be, fear of the unknown can be even worse. By telling you they are not out of funds but being careful about how they will be spent, your parents have already taken the first step in letting you know what's going on, but now they need to fill in more of the blanks. Please tell them that that's what I suggest.

IF MAY 22 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY:

Expect fair winds and pleasant sailing throughout the next few months. With minimum effort you can successfully launch a pet business project in June and as the summer unfolds you might be blessed by additional business success. Center your future on the plans and advice you receive in December and January because the people you meet at that time may bring something beneficial to the table. Don't make changes, add to your debt load, or make crucial promises in early November when your luck is temporarily on hiatus.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Good news travels fast. When you have the best product, people beat a path to your door. If you are conscientious about the details and never settle for less than the best, your reputation will be enhanced.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Confidence levels are rising. If you pay attention to the things that will enhance your reputation, you could earn some extra pennies. Be generous with your business contacts, as well as loved ones.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): The messenger of the gods, Mercury, is retrograde until the end of the month. This cosmic situation may spur you on to greater cre-activity or give you the breathing space you need to master a new skill.

HOROSCOPE

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Stay on the right track. Give yourself permission to be creative and inventive. You possess the passion to pursue your fondest dreams successfully. Look forward to romance-laden happy trails.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Pull out all the stops. The heavenly conditions are fabulous for creative endeavors, meeting new people, and acting on inspirations. By delegating authority you can preserve more time for personal interests.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): No man is an island. Team up with others to handle mundane tasks or invite a friend along on what would otherwise be a boring errand. You can mix a little fun in with your business projects.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Be grateful for lucky stars. Someone in close connection might share a stroke of good fortune with you. Learn everything you can about a new subject of interest. Wear out the search engine or library card.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You don't have to yield to pressure. Concentrate on work, career, and reputation even if a partner is in relentless pursuit. There will be plenty of time for amorous appointments later this evening.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Strike up the band. You could become the center of attention. Outgoing friendliness and enthusiasm may attract new playmates or facilitate a meeting of the minds with a longtime bosom buddy.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Passions push you to perform at the peak of perfection. You are in step with the major trends. Someone might even be a bit jealous of your commendable accomplishments. In love, the sky is the limit.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Take advantage of your unique attractiveness. Your pleasantly playful antics will make people sit up and take notice. This is a fabulous day to meet new friends or to network for valuable connections.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): A cheerful demeanor may attract plenty of notice. Your friends might keep you hopping with phone calls, impromptu visits, or a stream of ideas. Develop new contacts through email or the internet.

Today is Friday, May 22, the 142nd day of 2009. There are 223 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:

On May 22, 1969, the lunar module of Apollo 10, with Thomas P. Stafford and Eugene Cernan aboard, flew to within nine miles of the moon's surface in a dress rehearsal for the first lunar landing.

On this date:
In 1813, composer Richard Wagner was born in Leipzig, Germany.

In 1859, author Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, the creator of Sherlock Holmes, was born in Edinburgh, Scotland.

In 1868, a major train robbery took place near Marshfield, Ind., as members of the Reno gang made off with $96,000 in loot.

In 1907, actor-director Laurence Olivier was born in Dorking, Surrey, England.

In 1939, the foreign ministers of Germany and Italy, Joachim von Ribbentrop and Galeazzo Ciano, signed a "Pact of Steel" committing the two countries to a military alliance.

In 1947, the Truman Doctrine was enacted as Congress appropriated military and economic aid for

TODAY IN HISTORY

Greece and Turkey.

In 1968, the nuclear-powered submarine USS Scorpion, with 99 men aboard, sank in the Atlantic Ocean. (The remains of the sub were later found on the ocean floor 400 miles southwest of the Azores.)

In 1972, President Richard Nixon began a visit to the Soviet Union, during which he and Kremlin leaders signed the Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty. The island nation of Ceylon became the republic of Sri Lanka.

In 1979, Canadians voted in parliamentary elections that put the Progressive Conservatives in power, ending the 11-year tenure of Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau.

In 1992, after a reign lasting nearly 30 years, Johnny Carson hosted NBC's "Tonight Show" for the last time.

Ten years ago: Columbine High School seniors wearing blue-and-silver gowns marched single file in a graduation ceremony that mixed celebration of the day with sorrow for victims of the recent massacre.

Five years ago: In Tunisia, Arab leaders convened their annual summit, but the opening session was overshadowed by the walkout of Libyan leader Moammar Gadhafi, who criticized peace efforts. Filmmaker Michael Moore's "Fahrenheit 9/11," a scathing indictment of Bush White House actions after the Sept. 11 attacks, won the top prize at the Cannes Film Festival. Samuel C. Johnson Jr., who'd built the family's S.C. Johnson Wax company into a consumer products giant, died at age 76.

One year ago: A Texas appeals court said the state had no right to take more than 400 children from a polygamist sect's ranch. (After the Texas Supreme Court upheld the ruling, the children were returned to their parents.) Britain's Conservative Party won a special election that was viewed as a barometer of the popularity of Prime Minister and Labour Party leader Gordon Brown. Indiana Jones returned to the big screen in "Indiana Jones and the Kingdom of the Crystal Skull."

SUDOKU

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Concepts Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

"Between two evils, I always pick the one I never tried before."

— Raoul Walsh

In six spades how do you plan to make 12 tricks once West leads the heart jack to your bare ace and you pull trump?

If diamonds were 3-2, then playing the ace, king and jack of diamonds would ensure that you could reach dummy with the diamond nine. However, with the given layout, a straightforward play in diamonds will see West take two tricks to set the contract.

The best play is to cash the diamond ace and then make a surprising play — lead the diamond jack next. Whenever West wins his diamond queen, he is endplayed, forced to concede the 12th trick no matter what he does.

If West withholds his diamond queen, then king and another diamond will leave him on play. Again he will have only hearts and clubs left, either of which will give you your 12th trick.

Had East turned up with four diamonds headed by the queen and 10, he would take the diamond queen and return a club. You would now need him to have started life with the club king.

Incidentally, if diamonds were 5-0 and trumps were 2-2, you would lead the diamond jack next if it was West who had the diamond length. Otherwise, you would continue with ace and another club, playing for the hand with the diamond void to have the club king. That way he must next give you an entry to dummy with either a heart or a club.

ANSWER: This seems to be worth a double. Your partner heard you pass initially and still volunteered a call of two spades — he must have some extras. With a trump trick and your club honor well-placed, it looks right to let the opponents know they cannot push you around with impunity.

NOTICE OF TRUSTEE'S SALE

On September 16, 2009, at the hour of 11:00 o'clock AM of said day, at First American Title, 260 Third Avenue North, Twin Falls, Idaho, JUST LAW, INC., as Successor Trustee, will sell at public auction to the highest bidder, for cash, in lawful money of the United States, all payable at the time of sale, the following described real property, situated in the County of Twin Falls, State of Idaho, and described as follows to wit:

Lot 17 except the West 10 feet thereof and all of Lots 18 and 19 in Block 25 of KIMBERLY TOWNSITE, Twin Falls County, Idaho, according to the official plat thereof.

The Trustee has no knowledge of a more particular description of the above referenced real property, but for purposes of compliance with Section 60-113 Idaho Code, the Trustee has been informed the address of 414 Center St West, Kimberly, ID, is sometimes associated with the said real property.

This Trustee's Sale is subject to a bankruptcy filing, a payoff, a reinstatement or any other conditions of which the Trustee is not aware that would cause the cancellation of this sale. Further, if any of these conditions exist, this sale may be null and void, the successful bidder's funds shall be returned, and the Trustee and the Beneficiary shall not be liable to the successful bidder for any damages.

Said sale will be made without covenant or warranty regarding title, possessions or encumbrances to satisfy the obligation secured by and pursuant to the power of sale conferred in the Deed of Trust executed by Artemio A. Frias and Hannah L. Frias, husband and wife, as Grantor(s) with Mortgage Electronic Registration Systems, Inc. as the Beneficiary, under the Deed of Trust recorded November 23, 2007, as Instrument No. 2007028143, in the records of Twin Falls County, Idaho. The Beneficial interest of said Deed of Trust was subsequently assigned to Nationstar Mortgage, LLC, recorded May 5, 2009, as Instrument No. 2009-009998, in the records of said County. THE ABOVE GRANTORS ARE NAMED TO COMPLY WITH SECTION 45-1506(4)(A), IDAHO CODE. NO REPRESENTATION IS MADE THAT THEY ARE, OR ARE NOT, PRESENTLY RESPONSIBLE FOR THIS OBLIGATION.

The default for which this sale is to be made is the failure to pay the amount due under the certain Promissory Note and Deed of Trust, in the amounts called for thereunder as follows: Monthly payments in the amount of $1,100.94 for the months of January 2009 through and including to the date of sale, together with late charges and monthly payments accruing. The sum owing on the obligation secured by said Deed of Trust is $131,662.72 as principal, plus service charges, attorney's fees, costs of this foreclosure, any and all funds expended by Beneficiary to protect their security interest, and interest accruing at the rate of 7.875% from December 1, 2008, together with delinquent taxes plus penalties and interest to the date of sale. The Beneficiary elects to sell or cause the trust property to be sold to satisfy said obligation.

Dated this 12th day of May, 2009.
