A NEED FOR FOOD

Help for the homeless

MEAGAN THOMPSON/Times-News

Laurie Wayment, left, and Shelly Newlan clean up the kitchen and prepare sack lunches for a field trip Thursday after the lunch-hour rush at Robert Stuart Junior High School in Twin Falls. The school will participate in a summer meal program that provides kids with free meals during the summer. 'There's a lot of low-income kids in this town and they need the food,' said kitchen manager Gail McHenry.

Federal stimulus dollars will be used in the struggle against homelessness in the region and across the state.

The South Central Community Action Partnership, which serves an eight-county region, is receiving federal stimulus funding to assist more people and provide services such as GED tutoring. The non-profit organization is receiving about $448,000 to use during a three-year period, said Leanne Trappen, community service director for the partnership.

That money will allow the organization to help an additional 100 households a year that need help paying for rent and utilities, Trappen said. The funding also gives the organization more flexibility.

"Currently our funding only allows us to assist one time and only if they have adequate income to pay next month's rent," Trappen said. "If they don't have any income, we can't help them."

With the stimulus funding, the partnership can assist people more than once, provided they have a plan in place for getting back on their feet. That

Summer meals may increase at area schools

By Ben Botkin
Times-News writer

This summer, the number of youngsters lining up for free meals may be on the rise.

With a sluggish economy, some school district officials anticipate an increase in the demand for meals provided free of charge to children between 1 and 18 years old. School districts are reimbursed for the summer meals through the federal Summer Food Program, which is funded through the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

In Twin Falls alone, the school district served 145,000 lunches last summer, and a roughly 5 percent increase is anticipated for this summer. That increase is based in part on the increase the school district has observed in students signing up this year for the free and reduced school lunch program.

"This is the first summer with the bad economy and I know there are kids out there that can use it," said Susan Henderson, the food service supervisor of the district.

For students on the free and reduced lunch program in school, families — particularly those with several children — face the prospect of higher grocery costs when school lets out.

"It puts a hardship on them," Henderson said.

While the meals help students, the program is open to all children between 1 and 18 years old regardless of whether they attend school in the district.

Widening of Falls Avenue will happen, but residents upset

By Jared S. Hopkins
Times-News writer

Twin Falls city officials said they've worked through the kinks with most residents who oppose widening Falls Avenue West. But a pocket of homeowners remain leery of losing a sizeable chunk of their front yards.

Twin Falls City Engineer Jackie Fields said plans continue for the $3.2 million project and the city settled most issues with property owners along the one-mile stretch slated for widening. Two informational sessions were held with homeowners, and the City Council was updated, too.

"There was much more understanding with what the city was trying to do and what it means for the residents," Fields said in a recent interview. It's been 30 years since any major work has been done on the road.

"They didn't pacify us. We gave up. What can you do? You can't go marching down the street with a pitchfork."

Times-News earns 9 awards in regional contest

Times-News

The Times-News has earned three first-place awards at the Society of Professional Journalists 2008 Northwest Excellence in Journalism Awards. The newspaper also earned six third-place awards, including a third-place finish by the staff in the comprehensive coverage category for its six-day series "River of Stone."

Staff writers Steve Crump, Melissa Davlin and Jared S. Hopkins each took first-place prizes.

Crump won the editorial/commentary category, and also earned third-place for general column selections.

Davlin took first-place for social issues reporting, with a three-part story on a paroled felon starting a new life, as well as third-place in long feature category.

Hopkins was also a first-place winner in Fighting the Taliban in Afghanistan — if U.S. patrols can find them

By Fisnik Abrashi
Associated Press writer

TATAR, Afghanistan — Lt. Eric Schwirian speaks softly, smiles a lot and shakes many wary hands during his platoon's three-day trek deep into an Afghan valley, looking for a fight with the Taliban.

But while thousands of extra troops have poured into Afghanistan this year in an escalating conflict, this unit in the central Afghan province of Wardak has barely had a sighting of its quarry.

It's frustrating for these infantrymen to feel as though they're chasing ghosts among the villages and terraced fields, but their daily routine — patience, presence, tea-drinking and handshakes — is central to America's counterinsurgency strategy.

The platoon is part of a 3,000-strong brigade from

MORNING BRIEFING

Pat's Picks

Three things to do today

Pat Marcantonio

● Think about signing up for the College of Southern Idaho Sun Valley Summer Spanish Institute, June 15-19, where grownups can broaden Spanish language skills and knowledge of Spanish-speaking cultures. It's held at the Community Campus in Hailey. For more information visit http://offcampus.csi.edu/blaine/summer_spanish_institute/index.asp, or call the CSI Blaine County Center: 208-788-2033.

● Clean out your closet and donate your good shoes to Soles4Souls Inc. to give to people in need. You can take your shoes to the Twin Falls Reformed Church, 1631 Grandview Drive N., or Castleford High School, 500 W. Main St. Information: Katy DeVries, 543-6971.

● Don't waste the fine weather. Grab a picnic and the family and head to Neptune Park, 302 South F. St. in Rupert. There are six tennis courts, basketball courts, horseshoe pits and more.

Have your own pick you want to share? Something that is unique to the area and that may take people by surprise? E-mail me at patm@magicvalley.com.

includes steps like a budget plan and getting an education or job training.

"They have to be showing they are doing these things to change their situation," Trappen said.

Last year, the partnership's homelessness prevention assistance program helped 565 households in its eight-county region, including 241 in Twin Falls County, 165 in Cassia County and 125 in Minidoka County.

Another 189 households were denied because of a lack of funding or they didn't qualify, Trappen said.

That funding is part of $4.4 million in federal money that the Idaho Housing and Finance Association is distributing across the state.

The money will likely be available by September, said Janet Lovell-Smith, grant programs manager for Idaho Housing and Finance Association.

"It's just an amazing boost to Idaho to get these funds," she said.

South Central Community Action Partnership also is expecting additional stimulus funding for a one-year period that will provide services such as GED tutoring, job training, and classes in skills like budgeting and finance.

The funding amount isn't known yet, but it's anticipated to cover needs like employees, child care for adults taking classes and GED testing.

While the stimulus funding for the classes is only for one year, it gives the organization a chance to show results and build community support, Trappen said.

"My hope is that one year is going to allow us to show that this is needed, it's effective, and here's our outcome," she said.

Falls

The city chose to widen the road to three lanes but leave enough room to restripe it in the future for four lanes when the need is there. There are more subdivisions planned nearby and the new St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center will be built along Grandview Drive. The widening is planned from Washington Street North to at least Grandview Drive.

But the project has drawn controversy common with an area directly impacted by a growing city. Last summer about two dozen residents signed a petition in opposition to the widening and submitted it to the City Council.

Some of them said opposition remains — they've simply accepted their fate.

"They didn't pacify us. We gave up," said Donnie Knudson, who owns property on Falls Avenue West and started the petition last year. "What can you do? You can't go marching down the street with a pitchfork."

Knudson said plenty of his neighbors remain upset. Many complain of trees being cut and one is even losing his well.

"The wheel of government turns slow but you can't stop it," said Knudson, who said he's losing 1,000 square-feet. "We did what we could. They're just gonna do what they're gonna do."

The project is part of the city's long-term transportation master plan designed to contain and improve congestion. It's currently in its design state and construction is scheduled to begin this fall.

Councilman Will Kezele said Friday he'd still like to meet with any citizens that remain upset, although he acknowledged some growing pains on busy streets like Falls Avenue are difficult to avoid since it's an "arterial" street.

"It's tough to have that change in your front yard," he said. "But that being said, that doesn't mean the citizens have no say in it. And I would hope they continue to dialogue it."

Food

This year, the district is expanding options and offering meals at Clyde Thomsen Park and Carriage Apartments.

There's also an evening meal once a week that provides free pizza.

Melissa McGrath, spokeswoman for the Idaho State Department of Education, said that part of the training for sponsors of the program includes preparation for higher volumes of children showing up. The federal funding for the program is funneled through the state agency.

By the program's nature, though, it can be difficult for some districts to pinpoint the demand in advance. There are no income restrictions for participants. The children and their parents do not need to fill out applications or sign up in advance. As a result, final numbers won't be known until children show up.

"I don't know what to think until we actually start it," said Carolyn Sullivan, food service supervisor for Jerome School District. "I have no idea. It could be and it might not be. It's just hard to say until we get into it."

The brigade came in after the Taliban started wreaking havoc on the roads, ambushing convoys, killing government officials and feeding a perception that the capital was under siege.

The fight in Wardak province now involves more roadside bombs and less direct confrontation than what other troops are facing in the eastern provinces bordering Pakistan and the south. That's where the insurgency is the strongest and where most of the 21,000 extra troops sent by U.S. President Barack Obama will deploy.

The U.S. military expects roadside and suicide bombings to spike by 50 percent this year. Taliban bombings killed 172 U.S. and other soldiers last year, according to military figures, and far more Afghan civilians.

"I know there's a need for it with the economic situation the way it is, so I'm hoping we have a good response," said Phyllis Bean, food service director for Minidoka County School District.

Mary Ann Roskelley, child nutrition programs director for Cassia County School District, said she's not sure what to expect this summer, adding that the district didn't see a substantial increase in the number of students in the free and reduced lunch program.

Daveda Whitesell, lunch supervisor for Shoshone School District, said that the district usually plans on about 200 meals a day and adjusts as needed after the meals begin. She said that the district could serve more meals than it has in prior years.

"It's free for all children," she said. "It doesn't matter where they're from."

Elsewhere in the state, a higher demand is anticipated. Pocatello School District in southeastern Idaho gave away 127,000 lunches. This year, officials are expecting to give away 150,000 lunches — about 3,000 per day.

Groups gather to remember Utah massacre victims on 150th anniversary

ST. GEORGE, Utah (AP) — Historians, Mormon church officials and descendants of those connected with the Mountain Meadows Massacre in 1857 gathered to mark the 150th anniversary of the reburying of bones from those killed in the attack.

The ceremony on Saturday was also a chance for three descendant groups of the massacre victims to hear from The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints about efforts to get national landmark status for the site.

On Sept. 11, 1857, 120 men, women and children from the Baker-Fancher wagon train were attacked and murdered at Mountain Meadows by Cedar City-area church and militia leaders. The Arkansas-based travelers were bound for California when their stopover in the meadows turned deadly.

The 2,500-acre Mountain Meadows site is already on the National Register of Historic Places.

Richard Turley Jr., an assistant church historian, said the proposal to get the site landmark status — including photos and details on how it will be managed — has been filed electronically with the National Park Service. Hard copies will be mailed Monday.

A marker describing the Mountain Meadows burial site which is in the valley, at rear, in Mountain Meadows, Utah, is seen in July 2002.

If it moves forward, the proposal will be reviewed by several committees.

“All comments we’ve had in the process have been positive,” Turley said.

For some of those gathered at the site on Saturday, the ceremony was a powerful reminder of a dark chapter in state history.

“This is hallowed ground,” said Phil Bolinger, president of the Mountain Meadows Monument Foundation Inc. “But I must admit it felt like a haunted place, so I hope this gathering helps the ghosts at the Mountain Meadows site to rest along with all sides of this tragic story.”

A year and a half after the massacre, Army Maj. James Carleton and his troops visited the site, which is about 30 miles north of St. George, and collected the bones that were buried in hastily dug graves. The bones were then reburied.

But wounds and controversy have persisted.

Recently, though, church officials and descendant groups have been working on common goals to preserve the site.

Church historian Marlin Jensen said the church has expanded its ownership of land at the site to 700 acres, including more than 200 acres that would have been subdivided near the meadows.

Some of the recently acquired land is believed to be the location where Carleton buried the bones, Jensen said.

Plans are in the works for a parking area, improved access, signs and fences.

The church has also opened its archives to three scholars who wrote a book about the massacre.

Terry Fancher, president of the Mountain Meadows Association, praised the efforts of the church.

“Opening the archives has brought more and more to light as to why and how this happened at this site,” said Fancher. “Let’s hope the spirit of openness continues to blossom.”

AROUND THE STATE

POCATELLO After ritual abuse, woman goes public

A Pocatello woman whose boyfriend was convicted of more than 100 counts of aggravated battery and sent to prison earlier this year says their stormy 15-year relationship ended with four months of violence and ritual torture before she finally broke free late last year.

Sharon Tusi told the Idaho State Journal she stepped forward with her tale of abuse in hopes women in similar situations might read about her and realize they don't have to stay with violent partners.

Jose Manuel Sanchez, 61, was found guilty in February of 112 counts of felony aggravated battery for subjecting her to ritualistic torture by burning her buttocks and genital area nightly with an electric wood-burning tool. A 6th District Court judge in April denied leniency for Sanchez, who will spend at least 24 years in a state prison.

Tusi, whose burns ranged from 1- to 2-inches long, believed Sanchez would hurt her children if she told anyone about what was happening. Last December, she finally had her daughter call Chubbuck Police, who arrested Sanchez. Prosecutors charged him with multiple counts of aggravated battery after she showed them her wounds suffered since September 2008.

Tusi told the newspaper Sanchez convinced her a secret order was not pleased with her parenting skills, and said there were a number of people waiting to take her children if she did not comply.

“All along I was thinking, ‘How can I get out of here, keep my children with me and get away?’” Tusi said. “But I believed these people could do anything. They were above the law.”

CALDWELL Turbulent meeting at Lake Lowell

The choppy, wind-whipped waters of southwestern Idaho's Lake Lowell continue to be the subject of political turbulence, too.

Federal managers of the Deer Flat Wildlife Refuge must have a new management plan finished by 2012.

As a result, they're considering how a number of historical uses of the man-made reservoir including water skiing fit with the refuge's mission of promoting wildlife habitat and environmental conservation.

U.S. Sen. Mike Crapo, an

Idaho Republican, was at the 102-year-old lake Saturday for a public meeting where he got an earful from boaters.

Devin Dice, a Canyon County resident, fears boating could be on the chopping block and says “they’re ruining a great recreation opportunity.”

COEUR D'ALENE Cda schools see 26 reported abuse cases in 2009

There were 26 cases of suspected child abuse, abandonment or neglect in the Coeur d'Alene School District during the 2008-2009 school year.

Statewide, about 40 percent of all reported child abuse cases are reported by teachers and school counselors.

That makes public educators a critical link in protecting the safety of some of Idaho's most vulnerable residents: Its children.

Tom Shanahan, a spokesman for the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare, says, “Teachers have opportunities to observe changes in behavior, absence patterns, and see injuries that might not be obvious to someone who sees them only sporadically.”

2 die in separate recreation accidents

Separate recreational accidents in northern Idaho claimed the lives of at least two people last weekend.

KANSAS
Source: Suspect in custody in abortion doctor slaying

WICHITA — Prominent late-term abortion provider George Tiller was shot and killed Sunday in a Wichita church where he was serving as an usher, his attorney said.

The gunman fled, but a 51-year-old suspect was detained some 170 miles away in suburban Kansas City three hours after the shooting, Wichita Deputy Police Chief Tom Stolz said.

Although Stolz refused to release the man's name, Johnson County sheriff's spokesman Tom Erickson identified the detained man as Scott Roeder. He has not been charged in the slaying and was expected to be taken to Wichita for questioning.

Police did not release a motive for the shooting. But the doctor's violent death was the latest in a string of shootings and bombings over two decades directed against abortion clinics, doctors and staff.

Long a focus of national anti-abortion groups, including a summer-long protest in 1991, Tiller was shot during morning services at Reformation Lutheran Church while his wife was in the choir, his attorney Dan Monnat said. Police said the gunman had fled in a car registered in Merriam, a Kansas City suburb nearly 200 miles away.

Tiller's Women's Health Care Services clinic is one of just three in the nation where abortions are performed after the 21st week of pregnancy.

Tiller's killing is "an unspeakable tragedy," his widow, four children and 10 grandchildren said in statement issued by Monnat.

WASHINGTON
GOP senators sidestep harsh words on Sotomayor

Leading GOP senators on Sunday passed up the chance to stifle racially charged criticism of Sonia Sotomayor by fellow Republicans as the party out of power in Washington struggled to develop a unified political strategy to oppose the first Hispanic nominated to the Supreme Court.

Sotomayor, an appeals court judge, already faces scrutiny from conservatives over a 2001 remark that her experiences as a Latina would lead her to better decisions than a white man.

Talk-show host Rush Limbaugh has called her a "racist" while former House Speaker Newt Gingrich, saying a "Latina woman racist" is unsuitable for the court, has called for withdrawing the nomination.

The Senate's top Republicans didn't disavow those assessments, although they urged different language to oppose President Barack Obama's first nominee to the high court.

Those appearing on Sunday's news shows walked gingerly when it came to criticizing a member of the fast-growing Hispanic population. They court a potential backlash from their conservative base because Limbaugh and Gingrich hold tremendous sway among the Republican faithful.

"I definitely think we need to have the respectful tone and we need to look at the record," said Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison, a Republican from Texas. "We need to have the responsibilities that have been put on us by the Constitution taken very seriously."

Octomom and her 14 kids get TV show

LOS ANGELES — The Southern California woman who gave birth to the world's longest-surviving set of octuplets has reportedly signed a deal to star in a reality television series.

People magazine reported Sunday on its Web site that Nadya Suleman has agreed to be filmed by a British production company. Suleman gave birth to the six boys and two girls in January and also has six other children.

Suleman lawyer Jeff Czech says production company Eyeworks hasn't yet sold the proposed show to any American television network and plans to air the series on British TV.

He says film crews will not follow Suleman and her children 24 hours a day, but will document birthdays and special family events.

Pixar goes 'Up' with $68.2 million debut weekend

LOS ANGELES — The animated action comedy "Up" took flight with a $68.2 million opening weekend, maintaining a perfect box-office track record for Pixar Animation, whose 10 films all have been commercial and critical hits.

"Up" had the third-best opening for a film from Disney-owned Pixar, just behind the $70 million debuts for "Finding Nemo" and "The Incredibles." Last summer's Disney-Pixar release, "WALL-E," debuted with $63.1 million.

GM prepares for bankruptcy protection announcement

By Kimberly S. Johnson and Tom Krisher
Associated press writers

DETROIT — With the clock ticking on a June 1 government deadline to restructure, General Motors Corp. worked feverishly Sunday to shore up its global businesses to clear the way for a speedy reorganization in bankruptcy court.

GM, part of American life for more than 100 years and once the country's largest employer, is expected to file for Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection at 8 a.m. EDT Monday, according to people familiar with the company's plans. They declined to be identified because the plans haven't been officially announced.

GM plans to name turnaround executive Al Koch to serve as its chief restructuring officer to help the company through bankruptcy protection, said a person familiar with the matter. The person, who spoke on condition of anonymity, was not authorized to speak about the appointment publicly.

Koch, a managing director with AlixPartners LLP, is a veteran turnaround specialist who helped Kmart Corp. through its Chapter 11 reorganization. He will lead the separation of the automaker's assets into a "New GM" and the remaining parts of the company that will form "Old GM." Koch will lead the management team that winds down the "Old GM" company once the automaker emerges from bankruptcy.

A majority of the Detroit automaker's unsecured bondholders have accepted a deal viewed as crucial to reorganization, and Germany agreed to loan $2 billion to GM's German unit, Opel, as part of its acquisition by a Canadian auto parts supplier.

The moves don't change much for GM, but better prepare it for a bankruptcy protection filing, said Rebecca Lindland, an auto analyst for the consulting firm IHS Global Insight.

"The more agreements GM has with its interests, the better the bankruptcy is going to go," she said. "It's not a game changer at all."

It would be the largest industrial bankruptcy in U.S. history, and the fourth-largest overall. In addition, a GM bankruptcy would be unprecedented as the federal government would pump billions more into the com-

Obama's efforts to engage Cuba facing big test

By Matthew Lee
Associated Press writer

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador — A diplomatic tug-of-war over Cuba's outcast status in the Organization of American States takes center stage at the group's meeting this week in Honduras, testing U.S. efforts to engage the communist nation.

Numerous Latin American countries are pushing to reverse the 1962 expulsion of Cuba from the 34-country group, although the Cuban government insists it has no interest in returning.

An OAS official told The Associated Press that a decision on clearing the way for Cuba to rejoin the group could be postponed unless there is a consensus. In that case, Tuesday's meeting could produce a statement supporting efforts to find a solution. Secretary of State Hillary Rodham Clinton, who arrived in El Salvador on Sunday, is scheduled to attend.

In a positive development in U.S.-Cuban relations, a State Department official said Sunday that Cuba has agreed to resume talks with the administration on legal immigration of Cubans to the United States and on direct mail service.

U.S. officials say they are ready to support lifting the resolution that suspending Cuba from the OAS, but want to tie readmission to democratic reforms in Cuba. Nicaragua, backed by Venezuela, Bolivia and others, favors an approach that would declare Cuba's expulsion an error and remove all legal hurdles to it regaining its membership.

Diplomats at OAS headquarters in Washington have tried frantically to forge a compromise. Nicaragua has threatened to press for a vote on its proposal.

Albert R. Ramdin, the OAS' assistant secretary general, sought to play down the prospect of a final agreement on Cuba's status. "Theoretically we can always vote, but in practical political terms it seems that it's not an option," Ramdin said in San Pedro Sula, Honduras, the meeting site.

A vote could put the U.S. on the spot. Although the OAS generally operates by consensus, a two-thirds majority vote, or 23 countries, is all that's needed for a resolution to pass.

One senior U.S. official involved in the negotiations would not rule out the possibility that Clinton might skip the meeting unless there was a compromise acceptable to the U.S. The official spoke on condition of anonymity because of the sensitive nature of the negotiations.

The administration is committed to a set of principles the OAS approved in 2001 that enshrines democracy as a right of all people in the Western Hemisphere.

The meeting comes at a delicate time in President Barack Obama's outreach to Cuba. Already, his administration has lifted travel and financial restrictions on Americans with family in Cuba. In addition Sunday's news that Cuba has consented to restarting immigration talks, Cuba has expressed a willingness to cooperate with the U.S. on fighting terrorism and drug trafficking, and on hurricane disaster preparedness.

Cuban leader Raul Castro and his ailing brother, Fidel, have reacted coolly to the easing of restrictions and demanded an end to the decades-old U.S. embargo on the island.

U.S. officials have ruled that out — and Cuba's return to the OAS — until Cuba makes moves toward democratic pluralism, releases political prisoners and respects fundamental rights.

But Cuba's Communist Party daily Granma ended a three-day denunciation of the OAS on Friday by saying Cuba "does not need the OAS. It does not want it, even reformed. We will never return to that decrepit old house of Washington."

Immune therapies finally working against cancer

TillBy Marilyn Marchione
Associated Press writer

ORLANDO, Fla. — First there was surgery, then chemotherapy and radiation. Now, doctors have overcome 30 years of false starts and found success with a fourth way to fight cancer: using the body's natural defender, the immune system.

The approach is called a cancer vaccine, although it treats the disease rather than prevents it.

At a cancer conference Sunday, researchers said one such vaccine kept a common form of lymphoma from worsening for more than a year. That's huge in this field, where progress is glacial and success with a new treatment is often measured in weeks or even days.

Experimental vaccines against three other cancers — prostate, the deadly skin disease melanoma and an often fatal childhood tumor called neuroblastoma — also gave positive results in late-stage testing in recent weeks, after decades of struggles in the lab.

"I don't know what we did differently to make the breakthrough," said Dr. Len Lichtenfeld of the American Cancer Society.

Instead of a single "A-Ha!" moment, there have been many "ah, so" discoveries about the immune system that now seem to be paying off, said Dr. John Niederhuber, director of the National Cancer Institute.

It's way too soon to declare victory. No one knows how long the benefits will last, whether people will need "boosters" to keep their disease in check, or whether vaccines will ever be a cure. Many vaccines must be custom-made for each patient. How practical will that be, and what will it cost?

Those are all good questions — but there are no answers yet, said Dr. Richard Schilsky, a University of Chicago cancer specialist who is president of the American Society of Clinical Oncology.

Several vaccine studies were reported over the weekend at the oncology group's annual meeting in Florida.

Mr. Rick Noriega and Family

I have written you this letter with my deepest apologies and regret the things you and your family had to go through, not only for the things I have done, but for the time you lost from your work, family and loved ones.

I can only hope you can find it in you to forgive me. Although we both were robbed of time and money from the same person we will always share the same experience that we will pass on to others. I can only pray others do not go through the same path.

If I can assist in helping you in any other matters please feel free to call or write me.

God bless you and your Family.

Sincerely, Cecilio Trevino Jr.

Woodhall cooks up win in Outback Steakhouse 100

LINDA BRITTSAN/For the Times-News

TJ Woodhall, center, Kris McKean, right and Cliff Chester finished first, second and third in the Outback Steakhouse 100 Saturday night at Magic Valley Speedway.

By Linda Brittsan
Times-News correspondent

Pepsi Late Models driver TJ Woodhall led just five laps of the Outback Steakhouse 100 Saturday night at Magic Valley Speedway, but most importantly, one of them was the final lap.

Kris McKean became the front runner at lap 17 of the main event race and by lap 25 the young driver developed a big lead on the field. Meanwhile, Norm Hatke and Woodhall began a long fight for second position. As Hatke was holding his ground as runner-up, the caution was displayed at lap 58.

The restart would allow Hatke a better shot at leader McKean, but also afforded Woodhall a good look at Hatke. Woodhall took advantage of the restart and quickly got around him and by lap 75 he was ahead of Hatke by seven car lengths.

As the race wound down, Woodhall was on McKean's bumper to challenge for the lead. His efforts would pay off in just five laps.

"After the restart I was able to catch Norm (Hatke) but I really wasn't running super hard at that point," Woodhall said. "But then I noticed I was starting to catch Kris (McKean) and I started to run a little but harder. With 10 laps to go my spotter told me it was time to get moving."

Woodhall then turned on the afterburners and was able to make the pass for the lead and hold on for his first win of season.

"With this being my wedding anniversary and all this is really special," Woodhall added.

Though McKean led for much of the race, the victory eluded him in the end.

"I was just trying to hold on to my spot and I didn't think he (Woodhall) could get around me unless I messed up," McKean said.

FOWBLE WINS MOUNTAIN DEW MODIFIEDS

Rick Fowble held the lead throughout the 20-lap main event race while Dustin Miller and Scott Gilligan fought for second. Gilligan was able to get around Miller at the halfway mark while Fowble made his first trip to Victory Lane this season.

JOHNSON WINS AT DOVER

By Dan Gelston
Associated Press writer

DOVER, Del. — Jimmie Johnson nosed past Tony Stewart with two laps left in a thrilling battle to the finish and won the Sprint Cup Series race at Dover International Speedway.

Johnson pushed Stewart over the final few laps Sunday on the concrete and finally caught him with an outside pass. Johnson won his second race of the season and got his fourth career Cup victory at Dover.

"We just couldn't hold off Jimmie," Stewart said. "He was like a freight train coming."

Johnson dominated most of the race and led 298 total laps after leading only 12 laps combined in the last six races. The three-time defending Cup champion had a slow pit stop with 36 laps left that dropped him from the lead. With crew chief Chad Knaus telling Johnson he would catch Stewart, Johnson pulled out his 42nd career win.

"I just had to go," Johnson said. "I had one heck of a race with Tony. That's how racing's supposed to be done."

He was followed by Stewart, Greg Biffle, Matt Kenseth and Kurt Busch.

Dale Earnhardt Jr. finished 12th in his first race with crew chief Lance McGrew.

Stewart passed Jeff Gordon for the Cup points lead and became the first owner/driver to sit atop the standings since Alan Kulwicki won the Cup title in 1992.

Gordon ran two laps down in his backup car most of the race and finished 26th to fall 46 points behind Stewart.

Johnson appeared to have the race under control and was never really challenged for most of the 400-mile race. When he came in for a four-tire pit stop with 36 laps, a faulty exchange by his crew slowed him down and dropped him back into traffic in ninth place.

Johnson was far from sunk. "It was a small hiccup," Johnson said.

One by one, he picked off the drivers in front of him. He charged past Kasey Kahne and Kurt Busch until only Biffle and Stewart were ahead of the No. 48 Chevrolet with 10 laps left. Johnson passed Biffle and that set up the frantic finish that rivaled Talladega for the most dramatic end so far this season.

"I don't know how it gets much more exciting than that," Stewart said.

Earnhardt posted his best finish since Talladega in his first race without longtime crew chief Tony Eury Jr. Hendrick Motorsports made the decision to give McGrew a shot at calling the race a week earlier than expected. He ran in the top 10 for a portion of the first half of the race, and has to hope this kind of finish can start to turn his season around.

FRENCH OPEN

Nadal

upset by Soderling

By Howard Fendrich
Associated Press writer

PARIS — For 31 matches, Rafael Nadal ruled the red clay of Roland Garros, boasting an unbeaten record and an unbreakable will.

For 31 matches, this was his surface, his tournament, his time.

For 31 matches, dating to his debut on May 23, 2005, Nadal never truly was challenged, much less defeated, at the French Open, allowing him to win four consecutive titles and close in on becoming the first player in history with five in a row.

Until Sunday. Until the fourth round of the 2009 French Open. Until Robin Soderling, a 24-year-old from Sweden with a bit of an attitude and 6-foot-3 inches worth of power, transformed Nadal's career mark at Roland Garros from a best-ever 31-0 to 31-1 with 3½ hours of assertive, and sometimes spectacular, play.

"Well, that's the end of the road, and I have to accept it," Nadal said. "I have to accept my defeat as I accepted my victories: with calm."

Simply put, Soderling's 6-2, 6-7 (2), 6-4, 7-6 (2) victory over the No. 1-seeded Nadal rates as one of the biggest upsets in tennis history. Not sure? Set aside all of Nadal's bona fides for a moment — the dominance on clay; the six Grand Slam titles, including at Wimbledon and Australian Open — and focus on this: The 23rd-seeded Soderling never had won so much as a third-round match at any major tournament before this one.

"I kept telling myself, 'This is just another match,'"

DETROIT — The Red Wings found a perfect way to move halfway to a repeat — beat the Pittsburgh Penguins back-to-back.

So much for Detroit being old, beaten down and needing a break. The Red Wings topped the Penguins 3-1 in Game 2 of the finals Sunday night and are two wins from holding onto the Stanley Cup.

Just as they did a year ago in winning the title for the 11th time and fourth in 11 seasons, the Red Wings took the first two games from the Penguins at home. This year posed a new challenge, sweeping a pair on consecutive nights three days after finishing the Western Conference finals.

Rookie defenseman Jonathan Ericsson, who watched that series clincher Wednesday night in the dressing room hours after having his appendix removed, scored the tying goal for Detroit in the second period.

Valtteri Filppula added the go-ahead tally 6:08 later, and Justin Abdelkader scored his second of the series in the third. The Red Wings left the ice in front of their cheering, towel-waving fans and headed for Pittsburgh with

Peralta has 3 RBIs, Tribe rallies past Yankees

CLEVELAND — Jhonny Peralta drove in three runs with three hits, including the game-winning single with one out in the ninth inning as the Cleveland Indians defeated the New York Yankees 5-4 Sunday.

Peralta lined a 3-1 pitch from David Robertson past diving third baseman Alex Rodriguez on the backhand side to score Trevor Crowe from second base.

Mark Teixeira extended his season-high hitting streak to 13 games and had four RBIs for New York. He hit a two-run homer, his 16th, in the sixth off former Yankees right-hander Carl Pavano. His two-run double off Matt Herges in the eighth tied it at 4.

New York played its 17th straight errorless game, tying the major league record set by Boston in June 2006, but lost for only the fourth time in 18 games.

Kerry Wood (2-2) pitched one scoreless inning for the win. He got Jorge Posada to bounce into an inning-ending double play to end the top of the ninth.

ATHLETICS 5, RANGERS 4

ARLINGTON, Texas — Adam Kennedy homered twice, including a one-out tiebreaker in the ninth for the first run allowed by Texas reliever Frank Francisco this season, and the Athletics ended a four-game skid with a victory over the AL West-leading Rangers.

RED SOX 8, BLUE JAYS 2

TORONTO — Kevin Youkilis homered twice, Dustin Pedroia hit a three-run shot and Jon Lester struck out a career-high 12 as the Red Sox beat the Blue Jays.

TWINS 3, RAYS 2

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. —

Brendan Harris homered and Justin Morneau and Carlos Gomez also drove in runs to help the Twins avoid a weekend sweep with a victory over the Rays.

WHITE SOX 7, ROYALS 4

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Chris Getz hit a tiebreaking two-run single off Juan Cruz in the ninth inning, and the White Sox rallied past the Royals for their first three-game sweep in Kansas City since 2005.

ANGELS 9, MARINERS 8

ANAHEIM, Calif. — Kendry Morales capped a three-run ninth inning with a bases-loaded RBI single and the Los Angeles Angels overcame a seven-run deficit to beat the Seattle Mariners 9-8 on Sunday and avoid a three game sweep.

TIGERS 3, ORIOLES 0

BALTIMORE — Edwin Jackson allowed two hits over eight innings, Curtis Granderson homered, and the Tigers beat the Orioles to earn a split of the four-game series.

NATIONAL LEAGUE PHILLIES 4, NATIONALS 2

PHILADELPHIA — Jamie Moyer went six strong innings to win his 250th career game, and the Philadelphia Phillies won their third straight game, 4-2 over the stumbling Washington Nationals on Sunday.

GIANTS 5, CARDINALS 3

SAN FRANCISCO — Rich Aurilia hit his first home run of the season to give San Francisco the lead in the seventh, Aaron Rowand doubled and scored twice and the Giants took the rubber game from the Cardinals.

ASTROS 2, PIRATES 1

PITTSBURGH — Mike Hampton continued his mastery over the Pittsburgh Pirates, allowing only one run in seven innings in Houston's win.

PADRES 5, ROCKIES 2

DENVER — Adrian Gonzalez hit his major-league leading 20th home run, Chad Gaudin struck out a season-high nine and the Padres beat the Rockies.

BREWERS 5, REDS 2

MILWAUKEE — Mike Cameron homered and Yovani Gallardo won his fifth game as the Brewers swept the three-game series from the Reds.

METS 3, MARLINS 2

NEW YORK — John Maine shut down Florida again before becoming the latest Mets player sidelined by sickness or injury, and New York held off the Marlins to cap a highly successful month.

BRAVES 9, DIAMONDBACKS 3

PHOENIX — Chipper Jones homered and drove in four runs, Garrett Anderson hit his first home run with the Braves, and Atlanta routed the Diamondbacks.

DODGERS 8, CUBS 2

CHICAGO — Eric Milton pitched into the sixth inning for his second straight win, and the Los Angeles Dodgers backed him with a five-run first while beating the Chicago Cubs 8-2 Sunday night to salvage a four-game split.

Stricker wins Colonial on playoff hole

FORT WORTH, Texas — Steve Stricker has all sorts of top-10 finishes on the PGA Tour this season. Now he has the best one, too.

Stricker birdied the second hole of a sudden-death playoff to beat Tim Clark and Steve Marino and win the Crowne Plaza Invitational. It was his first title after being second, third, fourth, sixth and seventh at other tournaments this year.

Clark, who has won the most money ($12.7 million) without winning a tournament in PGA Tour history, blew a two-shot lead with five holes left, including a bogey on No. 18 that forced the playoff. He also missed a short putt that would've won it on the first hole of the playoff.

MCNULTY WINS PRINCIPAL CHARITY CLASSIC WITH BIRDIE PUTT

WEST DES MOINES, Iowa — Mark McNulty won the Principal Charity Classic for his seventh Champions Tour victory, beating Fred Funk with a 30-foot birdie putt on the fourth hole of a playoff.

JOHNSON BIRDIES PLAYOFF HOLE TO WIN REX HOSPITAL OPEN

RALEIGH, N.C. — Kevin Johnson birdied the first hole of a playoff with Jeff Gallagher to win the Nationwide Tour's Rex Hospital Open.

CEVAER TAKES EUROPEAN OPEN

ASH, England — France's Christian Cevaer won the European Open for his second career European tour win, closing with a 2-over 74 for a one-stroke victory. Cevaer, also the 2004 Spanish Open winner, had a 7-under 281 total on The London Golf Club course. Scotland's Gary Orr (71), England's Steve Webster (71) and Spain's Alvaro Quiros (72) tied for second.

"One of the things I liked about Lance is I felt like I was in the pit box with him all day, and I felt like he was riding with me all day," Earnhardt said. "That was a good feeling. Hopefully we can keep that up."

Johnson took the lead for the first time on the 49th lap and twice held the lead for 67 laps. He thrashed the rest of the field about as soundly as any driver had in a race this season.

Hendrick driver Mark Martin was 10th.

"As dominant as Jimmie was, it looked like the rest of our drivers were driving for second," team owner Rick Hendrick said.

MILES TAKES NAPA PONY STOCKS

The No. 47 car made its appearance at the front of the pack at lap four but this time it was not Josh Pitz behind the wheel, it was former Pony Stocks champion Billi Miles. Miles was able to fend off challenges from Raymond Homolka and Wade Henslee to win.

JENSEN WINS MAGIC VALLEY PIPE STREET STOCKS

Stacey Jensen looked to be on a mission to get back into the winner's circle as soon as the main event got underway. Starting at the rear of the field Jensen worked his way through to take over the lead from Bruce Henry at lap 12. Steve Edens engaged in combat with Jensen for the remainder of the race, but lost the battle and finished second.

GILLIGAN WINS QUALE'S ELECTRONICS HORNETS

With Bob Gilligan in the lead of the main event race, the yellow flag was brought out at lap 11 and the pace car soon gathered the field for the restart in the opposite direction.

Gilligan was not rattled with the change in course and quickly developed a considerable lead that helped him beat out second place finisher JB Rodgers by 8.803 seconds in the 25-lap race.

RESULTS: Pepsi Late Models: 1. TJ Woodhall, 2. Kris McKean, 3. Cliff Chester, 4. Norm Hatke, Travis Milbourne. Mountain Dew Modifieds: 1. Rick Fowble, 2. Scott Gilligan, 3. Dustin Miller. NAPA Pony Stocks: 1. Billi Miles, 2. Raymond Homolka, 3. Wade Henslee, 4. Michael Stuart, 5. Craig Nutthak. MVP Street Stocks: 1. Stacey Jensen, 2. Steve Edens, 3. Jim Shirley, 4. Bruce Henry, 5. John Newell. Quale's Electronics Hornets: 1. Bob Gilligan, 2. JB Rodgers, 3. Jeff Peck, 4. Brennan VanderMeer, 5. Frank Potter.

Redwings

another commanding lead.

Game 3 is Tuesday night, and the odds favor the Red Wings' quest to become the NHL's first repeat champion since they did it in 1997 and '98. Teams that win Games 1 and 2 at home have captured the Cup 31 of 32 times.

Frustration boiled over for Pittsburgh with 18.2 seconds left, when Max Talbot stuck his stick in goalie Chris Osgood's midsection after he made his 31st save. That led to a fight between Evgeni Malkin and Red Wings forward Henrik Zetterberg that left both players' jerseys torn on the ice.

The Penguins, who dropped the opener 3-1 on Saturday night, played better in this two-game set compared to a year ago when virtually the whole roster experienced the finals for the first time.

Malkin had a strong first period and staked Pittsburgh to an early 1-0 lead. It just wasn't enough as Detroit — especially Zetterberg — bottled up captain Sidney Crosby and kept him pointless for the second straight night.

Crosby sent a perfect feed from behind the net to Bill Guerin, whose bid to tie the game in the second period was foiled when the puck struck the inside of the left post.

French Open

Soderling said.

Nadal won all three of their previous meetings, including a contentious match at Wimbledon in 2007, and a 6-1, 6-0 rout on clay at Rome in April. But this time, Nadal was a half-step slower than usual — he tumbled to the ground in the third set, smearing clay all over his pink shirt and Soderling was lights-out good.

Soderling finished with 61 winners, 28 more than Nadal, and won the point on 27 of 35 trips to the net. "One of those days,"

Nadal said. "I had someone playing very well in front of me."

The stunning result rendered the rest of Sunday's action around the grounds mere footnotes, from reigning French Open women's champion Ana Ivanovic's exit in a 6-2, 6-3 loss to No. 9 Victoria Azarenka of Belarus, to Maria Sharapova's latest three-set victory, to the Williams' sisters loss in doubles.

All that really mattered on this day was Nadal's ouster. In the first round, he broke Bjorn Borg's record of 28 straight French Open wins by a man. In the second, he eclipsed Chris Evert's overall tournament record of 29.

"Everybody's in a state of shock, I would think," said Mats Wilander, a three-time French Open champion on who works with Soderling as Sweden's Davis Cup captain. "At some point, Nadal was going to lose. But nobody expected it to happen today, and maybe not this year. Now it's a matter of: There's a tournament to be won."

The biggest beneficiary might be Roger Federer, the 13-time major champion whose resume is missing only a French Open title. Looked at another way, the pressure on Federer to finally win the championship at Roland Garros ratchets far higher. Federer lost to Nadal in each of the past three finals at Roland Garros, and in the 2005 semifinals, too.

"If one guy deserves it," Nadal said, "that's him."

It takes years to produce a dropout

There are many roads to failure in this society, but the surest way is to drop out of high school.

Over a working lifetime from ages 18-64, high school dropouts earn about $400,000 less than those who graduate, according to Northeastern University. For males, the lifetime earnings loss is nearly $485,000.

Among Idaho prison inmates, 31 percent didn't finish high school, according to the Department of Correction.

But numbers like those don't faze a 16-year-old kid who's consistently failed in school.

South-central Idaho isn't without resources in rescuing dropouts, including alternative high schools and public-school vocational programs. But the most effective way of dealing with dropouts is by taking steps years before to keep them in school.

Johns Hopkins University researcher Robert Belfanz found that Philadelphia sixth-graders who failed math or English, or who attended school less than 80 percent of the time, or who received a poor final behavior grade in a core course, had only a 10 to 20 percent chance of graduating on time.

"It is during the middle grades that students either launch toward achievement and attainment, or slide off track and are placed on a path of frustration, failure, and, ultimately, early exit from the only secure path to adult success," he said.

Among his recommendations:

- Take attendance seriously. It's during the middle school years that students discover they can miss a few days, and then a growing number of days, with few or no repercussions.

- Separate attendance from classroom performance. It's counterproductive to lower grades for poor attendance. Instead, students should be given a structure for making up missed assignments.

- Teach success. Middle school students need to learn that hard work will bring tangible rewards and that positive behavior will be recognized.

- Create "academic merit badges." Students should be recognized for mastering significant chunks of knowledge and developing intellectual skills.

- Phone the parents. Not just when Johnny doesn't show up for school, but also when he hasn't turned in his homework.

Idaho's dropout rate in general and Twin Falls' in particular are too high. In the 2007-08 school year, attrition among ninth- through 12th-grade students was 2.78 percent in the Twin Falls School District, compared with a state average of 1.96 percent.

With the transformation of O'Leary and Stuart junior high schools into middle schools this fall, the district has an opportunity to engage in an aggressive effort to keep students from dropping out later.

Our view: Middle school is the time to prevent kids from quitting high school. What do you think? We welcome viewpoints from our readers on this and other issues.

Disgusted? Then you may be a conservative

If you want to tell whether someone is conservative or liberal, what are a couple of completely non-political questions that will give a good clue?

NICHOLAS KRISTOF

How's this: Would you be willing to slap your father in the face, with his permission, as part of a comedy skit?

And, second: Does it disgust you to touch the faucet in a public rest room?

Studies suggest that conservatives are more often distressed by actions that seem disrespectful of authority, such as slapping Dad. Liberals don't worry as long as Dad has given permission.

Likewise, conservatives are more likely than liberals to sense contamination or perceive disgust. People who would be disgusted to find that they had accidentally sipped from an acquaintance's drink are more likely to identify as conservatives.

The upshot is that liberals and conservatives don't just think differently, they also feel differently. This may even be a result, in part, of divergent neural responses.

This came up after I wrote a column earlier this year called "The Daily Me." I argued that most of us employ the Internet not to seek the best information, but rather to select information that confirms our prejudices. To overcome that tendency, I argued, we should set aside time for a daily mental workout with an ideological sparring partner. Afterward, I heard from Jonathan Haidt, a psychology professor at the University of Virginia. "You got the problem right, but the prescription wrong," he said.

Simply exposing people to counterarguments may not accomplish much, he said, and may inflame antagonisms.

A study by Diana Mutz of the University of Pennsylvania found that when people saw tight television shots of blowhards with whom they disagreed, they felt that the other side was even less legitimate than before.

The larger point is that liberals and conservatives often form judgments through flash intuitions that aren't a result of a deliberative process. The crucial part of the brain for these judgments is the medial prefrontal cortex, which has more to do with moralizing than with rationality. If you damage your prefrontal cortex, your IQ may be unaffected, but you'll have trouble harrumphing.

One of the main divides between left and right is the dependence on different moral values. For liberals, morality derives mostly from fairness and prevention of harm. For conservatives, morality also involves upholding authority and loyalty — and revulsion at disgust.

Some evolutionary psychologists believe that disgust emerged as a protective mechanism against health risks, like feces, spoiled food or corpses.

Later, many societies came to apply the same emotion to social "threats." Humans appear to be the only species that registers disgust, which is why a dog will wag its tail in puzzlement when its horrified owner yanks it back from eating excrement.

Psychologists have developed a "disgust scale" based on how queasy people would be in 27 situations, such as stepping barefoot on an earthworm or smelling urine in a tunnel. Conservatives systematically register more disgust than liberals.

It appears that we start with moral intuitions that our brains then find evidence to support. For example, one experiment involved hypnotizing subjects to expect a flash of disgust at the word "take." They were then told about Dan, a student council president who "tries to take topics that appeal to both professors and students."

The research subjects felt disgust but couldn't find any good reason for it. So, in some cases, they concocted their own reasons, such as: "Dan is a popularity-seeking snob."

So how do we discipline our brains to be more open-minded, more honest, more empirical? A start is to reach out to moderates on the other side — ideally eating meals with them, for that breaks down "us vs. them" battle lines that seem embedded in us. The Web site www.civilpolitics.org is an attempt to build this intuitive appreciation for the other side's morality, even if it's not our morality.

"Minds are very hard things to open, and the best way to open the mind is through the heart," Haidt says. "Our minds were not designed by evolution to discover the truth; they were designed to play social games."

Thus persuasion may be most effective when built on human interactions.

Gay rights were probably advanced largely by the public's growing awareness of friends and family members who were gay.

A corollary is that the most potent way to win over opponents is to accept that they have legitimate concerns, for that triggers an instinct to reciprocate. As it happens, we have a brilliant exemplar of this style of rhetoric in politics right now — Barack Obama.

Elm trees a citywide and year-long nuisance

I have to ask this question. Is there anyone else out there who is really sick of elm trees? Or is it just me? Is anyone else tired of the seeds? The wonderful seeds that fall in the spring — the mess you fight the rest of the summer! The seeds that grow wherever they land! In the flowerbeds — cracks of the sidewalks — around the flagpole — from the grill of your pickup — driveway — anywhere at all! Are you tired of cleaning up after them?

First you have the seeds and the lovely sap that gets all over the cars etc., then when the wind blows (like it always does around here in the spring), you have the sticks and branches to clean up. Most of trees are not taken care of so that adds to the mess. Then in the fall, they are the last trees to lose their leaves! I know the trees were planted by our founding fathers because they grow fast (that is the understatement of the year!).

Most of these trees are very old. And they are a hazard. If my trash is in someone else's yard or blown about in the alley, it is my responsibility to pick it up. Should it not be the owner of the tree that has to clean up the mess from these trees when the garbage from them continually ends up in everyone else's yard? If I wanted to have the mess from the tree, I would have one in my yard.

Maybe if those who are tired of the mess will contact our councilmen, maybe we can start getting something done about these nuisance, mess-making, annoying, hazardous eyesores.

Artesian Cemetery issue needs to be resolved

It's past Memorial Day and past time to solve the Artesian Cemetery issue.

It is obvious that Darrell Funk is not going to take responsibility for the desecration of the 100-year-old cemetery.

I was disappointed to hear on TALK Radio, Kelly Klaas and the Times-News' Steve Crump making light of this issue without seeing the results of Mr. Funk's "cleanup." If the sheriff's investigation is not ongoing and we can do so, it is in the interest of the community to get together and make this "right."

Ruth Owens of Hollister has a baby sister buried at Artesian. She has the right to visit the cemetery as the last resting place of her sister. Along with the dozens of others that were buried there through the early 1900s. The cemetery is currently about one-third of its original one-acre size. The evidence of visible rows of graves is now gone. All that remains is six markers of the eight that were documented in August of 2008.

Murtaugh Mayor Dee Hunsaker has begun a campaign to use volunteer labor and funds to rehabilitate the site, starting with wildlife friendly fence and planting of native grasses, along with plants that can survive in high desert conditions.

For more information, please call the mayor, Mychel Matthews at 420-8305 or Duane Turner at 421-0931.

Relay for Life is giving those with cancer hope

The question most frequently asked of American Cancer Society volunteers and Relayers is "Why do you do this event year after year?" You may look at the person and realize that they don't "get it," and wonder if there is any way to explain how Relay changes people's lives.

How do you explain the story of the newly diagnosed cancer patient who attends a Relay and meets another cancer survivor who has had the same exact disease and is still alive? How do you explain the story of a caregiver who has traveled down a path of compassion, love, joy, sorrow, guilt, loss and depression? You explain how, at Relay, a caregiver can talk to the only other person who could possibly understand this difficult journey — another caregiver.

How do you explain the story of a friend or co-worker who has seen someone they know battle this deadly disease and has felt they could do so very little to help? Yes, they could take the person to treatments or mow their yard or bring them dinner, but it isn't enough. Yet at Relay, you can form a team, raise money, educate people on cancer, and fight back against a disease that takes too much.

What these people have found at Relay is — hope. You can feel it in the air at 3 a.m. when you walk into a Relay. Wandering across a damp football field, you can almost touch the energy. That energy is hope — the combined power of hundreds or thousands of people who have come together with a common cause: to eradicate a disease.

I wish to thank the Magic Valley community for being involved in and contributing to the 2009 Relay for Life. It was very successful. We exceeded almost all of our goals.

Roxanne Gunner

BOISE — Nelda Roxanne Dockstader Gunner, 47, passed away May 27, 2009, peacefully surrounded by her family.

She was born March 16, 1962, to Dallas Diane Overstreet and William Duane Dockstader. Roxanne grew up in Rupert with her grandparents Newell and Nelda Dockstader. She was the baby of the family and definitely earned the name "baby." She and her brother and sister remained close throughout the years.

Education was important to Roxanne. She earned her GED and went on to receive her BBA and MBA from Boise State University. She also worked for BSU for 20 years and was granted emeritus status when her health began to fail. She ended her career in a job she loved as an instructor for the BSU - Larry Selland College of Applied Technology. She was loved by her students who enjoyed her teaching style and her humor.

In 1987, she married her wonderful, loving husband, Don Gunner. Roxanne had four children, Jacob, Brianna, Aly, and Gavin. Their lives were filled with work, vacations, camping trips, girl scouts, and sports events even after she was diagnosed with breast cancer in 1997. Roxanne lived 12 full years traveling all over the world while enduring the many efforts to rid her of the cancer. She lived with hope, happiness, and courage and set an example of how to live life as if there were no tomorrow.

Roxanne crammed a lifetime of living into her short life. She leaves behind her husband, Don, and children, Jacob, Brianna, Aly, and Gavin; grandchildren, Paytin and Allana; her mother, Dallas Mitchell; and sisters, Jolene, Wanita (John), Donita (Kenny); her brothers, Wesley (Becky), Shawn (Patty) and Tate (Susan); her in-laws, Frank and Shirley Gunner, Ron (Dawn) Gunner, and Scott (Tammy) Gunner, of Selah, Wash.; and many nieces, nephews, aunts and uncles, and friends. She will be missed beyond words.

The family wishes to thank the staff at Mountain States Tumor Institute and St. Luke's Hospice for their care and support. And we want to especially thank the many friends and co-workers who have been there for the family.

A viewing will be held Tuesday, June 2 from 4 to 7 p.m. at Summers Funeral Home, Boise Chapel. Funeral services will be on Wednesday, June 3 at 4 p.m. at The First United Methodist Church, The Cathedral of The Rockies, 717 N. 11th Street, Boise, Idaho 83702. Services are under the direction of Summers Funeral Home, Boise Chapel.

In lieu of flowers, the family suggests donations be made to MSTI, or an account has been set up at Bank of the Cascades for her children's college fund.

Mary E. (Beth) Hayden

Mary E. (Beth) Hayden, 63, of Canon City, Colo., passed away in a tragic plane crash April 24, 2009, along with her longtime partner, Allan Melendy, also of Canon City.

Ms. Hayden was born Sept. 8, 1945, in Denver, and grew up in Colorado Springs, Colo. She was the youngest of three children.

Beth resided in Rupert for nearly 20 years and raised her family on a farm there. She earned her bachelor's degree in 1986 and her master's degree in 1990 from Idaho State University. From 1990 to 2007, Beth resided in Washington, D.C., and held many positions for the federal government.

In 1994, she joined the United States Department of Agriculture. While at the USDA she co-authored the National Organic Standard, won numerous awards for her work for the National Organic Program and served as the national spokesperson.

Upon her departure from the USDA, Beth moved to Canon City to be closer to her parents and family. She then embraced a new career as a much sought-after consultant, for her work in the field of organics, and most recently carbon credit regulation.

Beth enjoyed spending time with her beloved pets, organic gardening, skiing, cooking for her family and the opportunity her career afforded her to travel. She is survived by daughter, Sarah Hayden, of Kirkland, Wash., son, Phillip, (Denise) and granddaughter, Madeline Hayden of Kenmore, Wash., father, Herb Knowles, of Canon City, sister, Sandi (Bud) Allen of Canon City, and brother, Ron (Gayle) Knowles of Kiowa, Colo., and numerous other family members.

She was preceded in death by her mother, Mary Knowles of Canon City. The family asks that remembrances be made on behalf of Beth Hayden and Allan Melendy to the Mono County Sheriff Search and Rescue Team, P.O. Box 1954, Mammoth Lakes, CA 93546-1954, or via their Web site: <http://www.monosar.org/>.

Bertha Kraus Price

BURLEY — Bertha Kraus Price, 87, of Burley, passed away Saturday, May 30, 2009, at the Cassia Regional Medical Center.

She was born April 8, 1922, in Lamar, Colo., the daughter of Lorens and Anna Maria Trupp Weimer Kraus. She married Eugene Fredrick Price on May 17, 1941, in a wedding chapel in Las Vegas, Nev.

Bertha was an outstanding homemaker and a great helpmate to her husband. She enjoyed gardening. This was evident by the beautiful zinnias, powder puff mums and roses that adorned her meticulous yard. She was a collector of antiques, glass skunks and little wooden boxes.

She was an active member of the Ebenezer Congregational Church of Paul.

Survivors include her husband of 68 years, Eugene F. Price of Burley; her children, Betty Jean (Kenneth) Seese of Burley, and Monty Jay Price (Carlene Paarmann) of Pocatello; a daughter-in-law, Toni Price of Boise; a goddaughter, MaryAnn Lebsack Perez of

Boise; one grandson, Matthew (Jennifer) Price; three grandchildren, Allison Clair Price, Mason James Price and Andrew Joel Price; and her siblings, Edward Weimer of Greeley, Colo., Walter Kraus of Rupert, and Emma Kraus (LeRoy) Lebsack of Paul.

She was preceded in death by her parents; one son, Jim E. Price; a grandson, Michael David Seese; one sister, Dollie Knopp; and six brothers, Edward, David, Lorens, Jake, and Wilhelm Kraus, and John Weimer, Jr.

The funeral will be held at 11 a.m. Wednesday, June 3, at the Ebenezer Congregational Church, 121 N. Second W. in Paul, with her son-in-law, Kenneth Seese officiating. Burial will follow at the Pleasant View Cemetery.

Friends may call from 6 until 8 p.m. Tuesday at the Rasmussen Funeral Home, 1350 E. 16th St., Burley, and from 10 until 10:45 a.m. Wednesday at the church.

The family suggests memorials be directed to the Ebenezer Congregational Church Memorial Fund or to a charity of choice.

Last survivor of the Titanic dies

LONDON — Millvina Dean, who as a baby was wrapped in a sack and lowered into a lifeboat in the frigid North Atlantic, died Sunday, having been the last survivor of 1912 sinking of the RMS Titanic.

She was 97 years old, and she died where she had lived — in Southampton, England, the city her family had tried to leave behind when it took the ship's ill-fated maiden voyage, bound for America.

She died in her sleep early Sunday, her friend Gunter Babler told the Associated Press. It was the 98th anniversary of the launch of the ship that was billed as "practically unsinkable."

Babler said Dean's long-time companion, Bruno Nordmanis, called him in Switzerland to say staff at Woodlands Ridge Nursing Home in Southampton discovered Dean in her room Sunday morning. He said she had been hospitalized with pneumonia last week but she had recovered and returned to the home.

Dean was just over 2 months old when the Titanic hit an iceberg on the night of April 14, 1912. The ship sank in less than three hours.

Dean was one of 706 people — mostly women and children — who survived. Her father was among the 1,517 who died.

Dean's family were steerage passengers setting out from the English port of Southampton for a new life in the United States. Her father had sold his pub and hoped to open a tobacconists' shop in Kansas City, Missouri, where his wife had relatives.

New legal battle in Guantanamo

GUANTANAMO BAY NAVAL BASE — A session of the Guantanamo war crimes court that starts Sunday will likely show the difficulties President Barack Obama faces in changing the system and closing the prison by January.

The case in question, of a Canadian charged with killing an American soldier, is stalled by infighting among lawyers.

Other defendants have even more complex legal issues, and officials say the U.S. may have to choose between delaying Guantanamo's closure or quickly finding somewhere else to hold the trials.

"I don't think they'll get a single trial done by January," said Michael Berrigan, the deputy chief defense counsel for the Guantanamo tribunals. "I don't think there's any way."

6 dead in battle between Hamas, Palestinian police

QALQILIYA — Forces loyal to the moderate Palestinian president stormed a Hamas hideout in the West Bank and set off a fierce gunbattle that left six dead Sunday, the worst violence since the factions fought a pitched battle over Gaza two years ago.

Militants lobbed grenades and fired automatic weapons to push back the raid in a two-story building in Qalqiliya, a West Bank town known for its strong Hamas presence. That drew dozens of President Mahmoud Abbas' forces to the hideout.

When it was over, pools of blood, tear gas canisters and hundreds of spent shell casings littered the floor. Walls were partly burned down during the battle.

Qalqiliya, which elected a Hamas mayor in 2005, was tense Sunday. Women gathered near the scene heaped insults on policemen.

A young Chinese boy takes a break in Tiananmen Square in Beijing on May 18. The Chinese government is heavily invested in suppressing the memory of the 1989 Tiananmen Square democracy movement and its violent end. Two decades on the authoritarian government has largely succeeded in turning it into a non-issue for many, using stunning economic growth, sophisticated propaganda and repression to stifle public discussion.

Tiananmen: A battle of remembering vs. forgetting

By Charles Hutzler
Associated Press writer

BEIJING — As a young poet, Cui Weiping was not much interested in politics. But she says she could never shake the image of her husband returning home on a June night 20 years ago, his pants mottled with the blood of people shot by the Chinese army.

Now Cui is speaking out, trying to rescue the memory of the 1989 Tiananmen Square democracy movement and its violent end from a powerful government heavily invested in suppressing their very mention.

With the approach Thursday of the 20th anniversary of "six-four," Chinese shorthand for the June 4 crackdown date, this Beijing Film Academy professor feels a duty to remember.

"Opening fire was not our responsibility these 20 years. But not talking about six-four has been our responsibility these 20 years," said Cui, a slight, soft-spoken woman with a pixie-ish haircut.

In mid-May, 53-year-old Cui gave a speech on the duty to speak out to small gathering of like-minded liberals. She posted her comments — "Are we intending to continue this silence?" — on her blog. They were excised by censors from the Chinese site but then reposted by others and removed again repeatedly.

Two decades on, the events in the heart of the Chinese capital and elsewhere remain an essential issue for some Chinese even as the authoritarian government has largely succeeded in turning it into a non-issue for many, using stunning economic growth, sophisticated propaganda and repression to stifle public discussion.

The struggle matters because as China becomes economically and diplomatically stronger, its leaders and supporters point to their system as a model, an alternative to the capitalist, democratic West teetering in financial crisis. Gleaming rebuilt cities like Shanghai and the grand, flawless Beijing Olympics are what the Chinese leadership wants to be associated with, not the crackdown.

Tiananmen Square has been remodeled too, with patches of grass to make it look less cold and forbidding.

The trouble is, the memories keep percolating. "Eighty-nine is like a dead rat in the Chinese political system. It's getting stinkier by the day," said Anne-Marie Brady, a Chinese politics expert at New Zealand's University of Canterbury. "It has to be dealt with at some point."

The Tiananmen movement rose from a ferment of reform bubbling through China and the Soviet Bloc. When a popular reformist leader died, students in Beijing marched to Tiananmen to demand change, later occupying the square for weeks and drawing in as many as a million people. People from other parts of China joined them, thronging around a makeshift statue of liberty. After hard-liners reasserted themselves, the military assault came, killing hundreds. In one iconic moment of resistance, a lone man holding shopping bags stood in front of a column of tanks.

Though they rarely talk about it, people in their 30s and older in Beijing and elsewhere remember the demonstrations and the months of martial law.

Make a splash with swimming lessons

By Blair Koch
Times-News correspondent

As quick as Tony Lopez scrambles up and over the pool wall, the 8-year-old is up in the air. His bare, wet legs tucked as close to his chest as possible, Lopez yells "Cannonball!"

Sprays of cool, blue water shoot from the pool, displaced by the boy's jump.

Lopez's head breaks the water's surface, his black hair shining in glorious late-spring sun. Beads of water drip from his enthusiastic smile onto his chin, then into the pool.

Lopez seems comfortable in the water — fearless even — but the Oregon Trail Elementary second-grader said he'd love to take a few swimming lessons. Fortunately, south-central Idaho has no shortage of summer swimming schools, and some of the programs begin this week.

"I've never taken lessons and I would like to learn to swim," Lopez said. "I can get around but can't swim."

One day Lopez wants to move from jumping off the shallow end to the diving boards of the deep end, as would classmate Tyson Strunk, 8.

Strunk said he took swimming lessons years ago but they were hard. Now that he's a bit more strapping and strong, Strunk said he feels ready to try again.

"I just like swimming a lot now," he said.

Even if kids don't like to swim, there will likely come a time when knowing how will be imperative.

"Swimming is an essential skill everyone needs to know," said John Pauley, Twin Falls YMCA aquatics director.

Every summer the pool teaches some 500 lessons to the under-18 crowd. Like numerous facilities across southern Idaho, the Twin Falls pool offers a variety of lessons at many times and caters to everyone from the novice guppy to the steadfast pool shark.

"We like to mix up the lessons with a bit of fun, so the kids get to play some games along with learning strokes ... we really want to get the kids ready to pursue swim team at the junior high and high school level, if that's something they want to do," Pauley said.

Keeping cool in the hot summer sun is just one perk. Increasing your child's physical fitness is another, said Paula Potter of the Jerome Recreation District.

"Swimming is a lot cooler than running down the street or doing other outdoor activities, and it works your entire body," Potter said.

Many pools offer three or four two-week sessions, running four or five days of the week.

To better accommodate busy families, the Blaine County Recreation District pool throws month-long Saturday swimming schools into its schedule, said aquatics director Cameron Randolph.

"After getting a lot of positive feedback about the Saturday lessons, we decided to give it a shot and bring them back this year," Randolph said.

Like the Twin Falls YMCA, the Blaine recreation facility builds its lessons on the premise that one day the little swimmers may want to compete on a team.

Randolph said students not only are taught how to keep safe but are shown proper stroke technique. So when their students are seen frog kicking and breast stroking, people take notice.

"We want people, when they see our kids out swimming, to say 'Hey, where did you learn to swim?' We want them to notice beautiful strokes," Randolph said.

Even if your kids never compete with a swim team, they may need to learn their way around the water, whether for a boat ride or a year-end school trip to the city pool.

- June 13, Elks Lodge No. 2106, 85 S. 200 W. in Rupert.
- June 17, Immanuel Lutheran Church, 2055 Filer Ave. E. in Twin Falls.

The screenings help identify blocked arteries and irregular heart rhythm, abdominal aortic aneurysms and hardening of the arteries in the legs.

The bone density screening to assess osteoporosis risk is appropriate for both men and women. All five screenings take 60 to 90 minutes to complete.

Cost is $139. Pre-registration required. Appointments: 1-877-237-1287 or www.lifelinescreening.com.

"To do for you" is a listing of health-related activities, events and education. Submit information by Thursday for publication in the following Monday's Healthy & Fit section. E-mail notices to ramona@magic-valley.com.

HEALTH BRIEFS

Have you laughed today?

Have you had your daily dose of laughter today? A good chuckle, guffaw or giggle isn't just a mental pick-me-up. It has important physical benefits as well. According to the Mayo Clinic, laughter can help alleviate stress by:

- Enhancing your intake of oxygen-rich air, stimulating your heart, lungs and muscles

- Increasing the endorphins released to your brain

- Easing digestion and stimulating circulation

- Releasing neuropeptides that help fight stress and some more serious illnesses

With all these benefits, how can you resist lightening up? Go ahead, laugh out loud!

Pain in heels a common foot problem

From bunions to corns, there is no shortage of ailments you might experience in your feet. But a recent survey by the American Podiatric

Medical Association (APMA) found that heel pain seems to be one of the most common, affecting nearly 40 percent of Americans.

If you find yourself among the sufferers, consider your shoes, the APMA says. Wearing shoes that fit well, are appropriate for the activity you are doing and don't have excessively or unevenly worn heels and soles are some of the best things you can do for your feet. Also stretch your foot and ankle muscles before exercise, and talk to a podiatrist about your foot pain to discover further treatment possibilities.

You've been downsized. Now what?

"What would I do if I lost my job?" Fortunately, there are positive actions you can take, regardless of your employment situation now. For the next seven weeks we will discuss what you can do to control these challenges.

Week 7 - Seek professional guidance
You may be able to manage many of the challenges if you lost your job yourself, but there are some that require the assistance of a professional such as rolling over your 401K, assessing and meeting your insurance needs and mapping out a financial strategy. The number one priority when you've been downsized - safeguarding your well-being and that of your family. Be sure the financial professional you choose to work with shares the same priority.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE® Bobby Wolff

"Great lords have their pleasures, but the people have fun."
— Baron de Montesquieu

In England there is an annual bridge match between the Houses of Commons and Lords at the Portland Club. Today's deal comes from a match a few years ago that was won comfortably by the Commons, bringing the overall standing to a 15-15 draw.

Look first at the North-South bidding, where both North and South bid too much. An overcall does not have to be as strong as an opening bid, so South should simply have responded one no-trump. North would then probably remove to two diamonds and end in two spades. Equally, with only nine points, North had no reason to bid over two no-trump.

Now, as West, would you double the final contract? At the table the double was based more on West's four tricks and a general lack of confidence in the auction than anything else. Having decided to double, have you chosen your lead? West led his fourth-highest heart and declarer could not be prevented from making eight tricks. It was not a triumph — but not a tragedy either.

Later, West asked the onlookers if they would have led the heart jack to pin dummy's 10. While that lead is a true long-shot, a good case can be made for leading the heart ACE. There is no prospect of partner gaining the lead, so West has to defend this hand on his own. That lead works against this layout, and also against a singleton king or queen or a doubleton 10 in the North hand.

ANSWER: Just as in today's deal, there is a lot to be said for the lead of the spade ace. You are not likely to be able to get partner on lead for the duration of the hand, and would like to try to pick off a doubleton king or jack of spades in declarer's or dummy's hand. Leading the ace gives you the flexibility to continue with a high or low spade.

Boss and his assistant differ on who deserves a thank you

DEAR ABBY: I work as an administrative assistant for a company in Louisville. Each year we invite several "high-level" customers to attend the Kentucky Derby. We spare no expense on this event, paying for hotels, track tickets, food, drinks, limos, etc. for three full days. Last year, my boss told me he was "disappointed" that I had not thought of sending thank-you notes to our guests after the event. He felt we should thank them for taking time away from their personal lives to visit us.

I say that after three days of running myself silly behind the scenes, the thank-you notes should come from them. Your opinion, please.

- WHO THANKS WHO IN KENTUCKY

DEAR WHO THANKS WHO: I understand your frustration because no one wants to be taken for granted, but you are confusing business etiquette with social etiquette. Your boss isn't entertaining those people because he likes them. He is doing it so they will return the favor by doing business with his company. So please do what he says and start writing. A form letter, individually prepared for each client, should do the trick. Each one should be a signed original expressing the sentiments your boss would like to have conveyed.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: I have been dating "Mary" for 18 months, and I was really starting to fall for her. Things were going well until three weeks ago, when she informed me that she has a serious gambling problem. She has maxed out her credit cards and has no money left in her savings. Until this point, Mary had given me the impression that she was someone I could trust and that she was in control of her life.

I am in total shock and very upset about the fact that she has misrepresented herself to me. She said she didn't want to lose me. She says that even though we're not married, every relationship has its ups and downs, and a piece of paper should not define commitment.

Some of my friends say I should never see her again as she is manipulative. Others say continuing the relationship depends on how I feel about her. While I can forgive her, I am having a problem with the issue of trust. Abby, given the circumstances, do you feel this is someone I can trust? My gut tells me buyer beware.

- ON THE FENCE IN NEVADA

DEAR ON THE FENCE: Has Mary made any effort to seek help for her gambling problem? If the answer is no - and I suspect it is - then listen to your gut. Listen to your head. And if you have any doubt that they're leading you in the right direction, listen to what your lawyer and accountant have to say about the risk of pursuing this relationship further.

DEAR ABBY: Many friends approach me for advice. I want to help them. It's in my nature to be helpful. However, there are times when I'm out of advice and just want to close the door. How can I continue to help, but also close the door without putting someone off?

- ADVISER IN INDIANA

DEAR ADVISER: Recognize that a fountain of advice must occasionally shut down for servicing and preventive maintenance. In your case, what you're trying to prevent is burnout. A friend will understand if you say, "I'd love to help, but I'm fresh out of ideas today - let's talk about something else."

IF JUNE 1 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY:

A passion to achieve your dreams may be the key note of your life until the end of the year. You may be building a business or other important project in the coming months. Initial frustrations that plague you throughout the next few weeks can't bar you from eventual success in August, but you must guard against being distracted or sidetracked by something of dubious value in early July. In November you may be floating on cloud nine and inspired to try your hand at something exotic or unusual. That may be a good time for a vacation or romantic getaway with a special someone

ARIES (March 21-April 19):

Just because you can differentiate between a need and a want doesn't mean you should ignore the wants. Turn your wants into lofty goals and when the time is right you will be able to achieve them.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20):

Put your foot in the door rather than putting your foot down. It may be tempting to put rigid guidelines in place but you will only make people resent you or be challenged to rebel against the rules.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20):

There's no business like show business. Don't keep your knowledge to yourself.

HOROSCOPE
Jeraldine Saunders

Make it your business to show someone how to do something. You have a talent for teachings others how to be more successful.

CANCER (June 21-July 22):

Every favor has a price tag. You are prodded by your conscience to return favors as soon as possible. A generous donation, reciprocal dinner date, or commission split can knock your budget on its ear.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22):

The only time you can score the points is when the ball is in your court. Avoid wasting your energy on something that is outside your control or on any activity that is not going to pay dividends.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22):

Pay attention to the compass bearings rather than diving in blindly. You may be required to navigate the complexities of intricate family relationships. Act only from love to avoid aggravating the situation.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22):

Self-discipline and self-control might prevent you from making a new BFF at a group gathering. At the same time, you will avoid getting entangled with people who could upset your careful plans.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): In the business world it pays to be detail oriented. You might be put in a situation in which you must have the answer to important questions right at your fingertips. Get the facts in order to succeed.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21):

Don't just trust to luck. Map out practical ways to make your money grow or put your business into the black. Sound business practices are absolutely necessary to success and must be developed.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19):

A small amount of spontaneous consumption is good for the soul. There's more to life than bills and work. Someone in your family circle may be delighted to share a treat or to receive a thoughtful gift.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18):

Rely on your own ability, not that of others. You might be too eager to please - and unless you watch out might end up doing everyone else's work. There might not be as much time as needed.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20):

Be a savvy shopper and simply wait for the next sale. You may feel that you need to impress your colleagues or out-Jones the Joneses by having the finest accoutrements. In reality, no one will notice.

Today is Monday, June 1, the 152nd day of 2009. There are 213 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:

On June 1, 1813, the mortally wounded commander of the U.S. frigate Chesapeake, Capt. James Lawrence, said, "Don't give up the ship" during a losing battle with a British frigate, the HMS Shannon, during the War of 1812.

On this date:

In 1533, Anne Boleyn, the second wife of King Henry VIII, was crowned as Queen Consort of England. In 1792, Kentucky became the 15th state of the union. In 1796, Tennessee became the 16th state. In 1868, James Buchanan, the 15th president of the United States, died near Lancaster, Pa., at age 77. In 1909, the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition opened in Seattle. (The fair closed the following October.)

In 1943, a civilian flight from Portugal to England was shot down by the Germans during World War II, killing all 17 people aboard, including actor Leslie Howard. In 1958, Charles de Gaulle became premier of France, marking the beginning of the end of the Fourth Republic.

TODAY IN HISTORY

In 1979, the short-lived state of Zimbabwe Rhodesia came into existence.

In 1980, CNN made its debut.

In 1989, former Sunday school teacher John E. List, sought for almost 18 years in the slayings of his mother, wife and three children in Westfield, N.J., was arrested in Richmond, Va. (List was later sentenced to life in prison; he died March 21, 2008.)

Ten years ago: An American Airlines MD-82 landed off-center during a severe thunderstorm in Little Rock, Ark., and barreled off the end of the runway, breaking apart and catching fire; 11 people, including the captain, died.

President Bill Clinton ordered a government investigation into whether - and how - the entertainment business was marketing violence to children. (In a report released in September 2000, federal regulators said the movie, video game and music industries aggressively marketed to underage youths violent products that carried adult ratings.)

Five years ago: A federal judge declared the Partial-Birth Abortion Ban Act unconstitutional, saying the measure infringed on women's right to choose. (The U.S. Supreme Court upheld the law in April 2007.) Ghazi Mashal Ajil al-Yawer, a powerful Sunni Muslim tribal leader and critic of the U.S.-led occupation, was named president of Iraq's incoming government. Historian-biographer William Manchester died in Middletown, Conn., at age 82.

One year ago: Hillary Rodham Clinton won a lopsided, but largely symbolic, victory in Puerto Rico's presidential primary. Fire ripped through a lot at Universal Studios. At least eight people suffocated at an overcrowded stadium in Monrovia during a soccer match between host Liberia and Gambia. NASA's Phoenix Mars Lander took its first practice scoop of Martian soil. Fashion designer Yves Saint Laurent died in Paris at age 71.
