Murder suspect's divorce moves forward

Leon, unfit for trial, filed two months before allegedly shooting his wife

By Andrea Jackson
Times-News writer

JEROME — A Jerome man considered mentally unfit to fight a murder charge made headway

Thursday on getting a divorce from the woman police say he shot.

After 18 years of marriage, lawyers for Fortino Leon, 73, and the wife he allegedly shot last July, Maria Abigail Leon, 41, agreed on Thursday to a divorce settlement giving Leon much less than he originally wanted. A judge on Thursday, though, had yet to sign an order making the divorce official, according to the court.

Leon filed for divorce only two months before he allegedly shot his wife and killed the man she was living with, Javier Zavala-Paniagua, 22, outside 221 Fifth Ave. E. in Jerome, court records show. He is also charged with felony aggravated battery and assault.

Citing irreconcilable differences in his May 11 divorce complaint, Leon wanted Maria Leon to pay child support, and he asked to get their house.

In the end, though, divorce lawyers penned an agreement giving Leon much less than he wanted before the alleged shooting.

Maria Leon is expected to get the couple's property on Avenue F in Jerome, along with two of three vehicles, and custody of their 14-year-old son without child support,

New hospital taking shape; delays not affecting work much

By Ben Botkin
Times-News writer

North Canyon Medical Center is taking shape as construction crews put together a new hospital for Gooding that is scheduled to open in March 2010.

The progress follows a nearly three month-long delay of work when the hospital in December halted construction. The delay came because hospital planners decided to wait for interest rates to improve before securing the final financing arrangements.

Though there was a delay previously, subcontractors were able to bring out more crews because of the economic downturn, which helped make up for the lost time, said Earl Fitzpatrick, chief executive officer of the new hospital's board.

"Our staff is happy," he said. "We're working on transition planning."

At the hospital, exterior walls are up and much roofing is in, which gives the public a sense of what to

Police: Driver in Kimberly Road crash fell asleep

By Nate Poppino
Times-News writer

The driver who crashed his sport utility vehicle into a Twin Falls business last week had fallen asleep at the wheel, city police said Thursday.

Kenneth M. Simmons, 45, passed sobriety tests and will not be cited for the June 2 incident, in which he also knocked over a power pole and caused a brief natural-gas leak, said Staff Sgt. Dennis Pullin.

Simmons was headed west on Kimberly Road when his Chevrolet Tahoe swerved south into the pole, breaking a water line in Carquest Auto Parts' front landscaping and rupturing the gas line before hitting CONTECH Construction Projects Inc. An employee in the small CONTECH shop stepped out barely one minute before he would have been hit.

Reached at home Thursday afternoon, Simmons said he had had a month of fairly erratic sleep before the crash and had been to the doctor for blood

Idaho's first lady visits her former college

By Ben Botkin
Times-News writer

Idaho first lady Lori Otter visited the College of Southern Idaho on Thursday, where she encouraged an audience to support scholarships and remembered a hug from her college days.

A 1987 graduate of the College of Southern Idaho, Otter said in her speech that as a student she got a hug from Graydon Stanley when she needed one. The audience laughed, including Stanley, CSI's dean of students.

The luncheon, hosted by the CSI Foundation, served as a reminder that four-year universities also have ties to the college and encouraged people to support education. The foundation, a nonprofit organization, is involved in fundraising efforts that include scholarships for students.

"You can throw money at education; we know that," Otter said. "But it's the people and it's the boots on the ground when it comes to education that makes education happen."

CSI provided the opportunity for a girl from Kimberly to attend college, Otter said. After graduating from CSI, Otter went on to get a bachelor's degree from Boise State University, followed by a master's degree in 2004 from Northwest Nazarene University.

Currently, officials are looking at centralizing the operations of three universities with a current presence at CSI to maximize the services for students in one location. The universities are the Idaho State University, the University of Idaho and Boise State University.

Otter reminded the audience that they're investing in the long-term future of the next generation that will see results for years to come.

"I'm one of those seeds you planted a long time ago," she said.

Curtis Eaton, the foundation's executive director, said that the foundation has a scholarship program specifically aimed for students who transfer to the four-year university programs. The universities offer programs at CSI that help students obtain advanced degrees without needing to leave the CSI campus.

"There are people out there that are unable to go to college," he said.

The attendees also toured the new health sciences and human services building that's under construction and the Breckenridge Ag Endowment Farm.

PETA asks T.F. mayor, sheriff to investigate circus

PETA, as it's more commonly known, requested Thursday morning that city and county officials conduct unannounced inspections of the elephants that are to appear at the Shrine Circus Thursday at the Twin Falls County Fair-grounds in Filer.

In a letter sent to Twin Falls Mayor Lance Clow, the Twin Falls City Council and Twin Falls County Sheriff Tom Carter, PETA urged the city and county to take action against Will Davenport,

How the Klan almost took over Twin Falls

This year is the 25th anniversary of the first of a series of cross burnings in Jerome County by white supremacists, actions that were widely condemned at the time — especially from the pulpit ...

But most folks don't realize how close the Ku Klux Klan came to gaining political control in the Magic Valley — especially Twin Falls — in the years after World War I ... And local Protestant clergymen were in the front rank of the Klan sympathizers ...

The anti-black, anti-Catholic, anti-Mormon, anti-immigrant and anti-Semitic hate group was a major national political force in the 1920s, taking power in Indiana, Colorado, Alabama, Oklahoma, Texas and Oregon ...

According to College of Southern Idaho historian Jim Gentry, the Rev. L.E. Berger — a Nazarene minister — began organizing Klan groups in Twin Falls, Buhl, Jerome and Rupert and claimed 1,000 members by December 1922 ... Berger led revival meetings for the Methodist, Presbyterian, Baptist and Christian churches, denounced public dancing and accused a local doctor of performing abortions, Gentry writes in his history of Twin Falls, "In the Middle and on the Edge" ...

The editor of the Twin Falls Daily News — forerunner of the Times-News — organized an anti-Klan campaign that prevented the group from taking control of City Hall in a 1923 election ... Yet the Klan candidate for mayor lost by just 44 votes, and Klan sympathizers forced a runoff for the City Council seats ...

In August 1924, Gentry says, the Klan held an all-day rally at the Twin Falls County Fairgrounds in Filer, claiming a crowd of 45,000 ... That October, the Rev. J.E. Simp, pastor of the Kimberly Christian Church, addressed a gathering of 500 in the old Laving Theater, dressed in full Klan regalia ...

Eventually, an anti-Klan backlash began to build and Twin Falls police started arresting anyone wearing a hood ... Yet the group's influence was still strong enough in the 1925 city election to force a runoff for several City Council positions ...

But the national Klan organization splintered, and local members and sympathizers began to drift away, according to Gentry ... Idaho was spared the lynchings and open harassment of Catholics, Mormons, Jews and blacks that happened all across the West during the '20s.

But things almost turned out very differently in Twin Falls ...

Lewis to retire as Blaine Co. superintendent

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

Lewis

HAILEY — Blaine County School District Superintendent Jim Lewis announced Tuesday that he will resign Aug. 31, several months earlier than he had planned.

Lewis said he planned to retire at the end of the 2009-10 school year, but had decided to step down in the wake of public comment calling for change.

Two school board members — chairman Alex Sundali and Kim Nilsen — were defeated in a school board election a few weeks ago. Their challengers, Paul Bates and Steve Guthrie, had touted the need for change.

Lonnie Barber, who was brought in two years ago as assistant superintendent, is expected to succeed Lewis. Barber has a master's degree in curriculum and instruction from Boise State University and a doctorate in education from the University of Idaho.

The school board Tuesday also approved a $74 million school budget for the 2009-10 fiscal year, which is $1.2 million more than last year's budget.

About $57.6 million of that is general fund money, which covers the cost of actually educating the children and includes the exceptional child program, gifted and talented program and guidance and health programs.

The school district will not have to lay off any staff next year because it was able to use carryover funds from this year to absorb state funding cuts, said Mike Chatterton, the district's budget manager.

Lewis, who served 10 years at the helm of the school district, was a school administrator on the Kenai Peninsula of Alaska when he became assistant superintendent for the Blaine County School District in 1995.

During his tenure he was instrumental in starting the dual immersion program, which he said would help the county's growing Latino population. He turned the old high school into a community campus now used by an array of community groups.

Sundali recalled when her daughter and five other accelerated math students learned that they would be repeating what they'd already learned when they made the transition to middle school.

"Jim Lewis said that wouldn't do and he figured out a way for them to continue their acceleration in math," she said. "That was the beginning of our accelerated math program, and what benefited six kids then has since benefited hundreds of kids."

Hailey Council considers changes to fowl, energy ordinances

By Ariel Hansen
Times-News writer

HAILEY — Hailey residents may soon have more opportunities to keep chickens, or fuel their houses with wind or solar power.

The city council is considering changes to its ordinances that would encourage or allow energy efficiency, native landscaping, small-scale wind and solar power generators, accessory dwelling units in certain zones, and urban chickens.

Chickens dominated the council's Monday night discussion with members expressing concerns about the impact the birds would have on neighbors. The proposed ordinance would limit a coop to five chickens and no roosters. The coop and associated fences must be located a certain distance from each property line.

"It's a good idea, but there are potential problems, like flying over to the neighbor's house," said Councilman Fritz Haemmerle. "I want the authority to protect the neighbors if things go awry?" Staff members said they had not heard of significant problems in other cities during their research into urban chickens, but added they would make additional calls.

The council discussed making coops subject to conditional use permits, another kind of permit, or perhaps a license like those required for dogs, which could be revoked if the chickens become a problem. They did indicate that any associated fees would be kept low.

Height and cosmetic issues were of primary concern to the council members when discussing solar and wind power systems, and they asked staff to come back with additional details on what such systems might look like or how they would be positioned to address these concerns.

Most of the councilors favored the idea of accessory dwelling units, such as mother-in-law apartments or small rental houses. However, Haemmerle noted that even small units can house large numbers of people who would then have an impact on the neighborhood in terms of number of parked cars and traffic. He asked staff to consider possible restrictions on accessory dwelling units to be presented when the issue next comes before the council.

The council also set its next four meetings: July 13 and 20 for regular council meetings and, if needed, July 14 and 21 to address Quigley Canyon, the large development proposed for annexation.

Locals compete for Miss Idaho title

Jessica Starley and Deidre Edmunds will compete in the Miss Idaho Scholarship Pageant today and Saturday at the Morrison Center in Boise.

Starley, the daughter of Allen and Corinne Starley of Twin Falls, has served as Miss Magic Valley for the past year and has promoted the platform, "Read Across America."

She promoted reading by having contests at I.B. Perrine Elementary School, reading to local elementary students and participating in a princess party at Hands On, where she read books and helped young girls decorate pottery pieces.

Starley will be a junior at Brigham Young University in the fall and is majoring in English. She plans to complete a master's program in library science. She will relinquish her title to a new Miss Magic Valley at 7 p.m. June 27 in the Roper Auditorium during the 2009 Miss Magic Valley Scholarship Program.

Edmunds, Miss Central Idaho, is the daughter of Ken and Jane Edmunds of Twin Falls. She graduated from Twin Falls High School in 2007 where she was active in student leadership, National Honor Society, Chamber Singers and Jive. She was also active with the Nielsen School of Dance Stargazer dance team.

Her platform is "Redefine Service," a program she helped develop at BYU. The program, which she has been promoting at area junior high schools, encourages teens to look at doing service daily and helps them understand the impact service can have on other people. Edmunds is a junior at BYU. She is majoring in recreation management with an emphasis in commercial leisure services. She will perform a self-choreographed tap dance for her talent portion of the program.

Filer veteran awarded Bronze Star

By John E. Swayze
Times-News correspondent

FILER — Today, Lawrence Merl Schmoie downplays his time in the military.

But a Bronze Star tells the story of an 85-year-old veteran who served with distinction in the European theater of World War II.

Schmoie wasn't even aware of his Bronze Star eligibility until his son-in-law, a U.S. Army National Guard colonel, set the process in motion. Almost a year after the required paperwork was completed, and with a little help from the office of U.S. Congressman Mike Simpson, delivery was made on May 21.

"One of the requirements is the combat infantryman's badge that I do have on my uniform," he said. "I don't think this is really that big of a deal, but it's something the kids wanted."

The Bronze Star can be awarded to ground troops who serve with merit in any U.S. Army conflict after Dec. 6, 1941.

Before he was drafted into the Army on Aug. 15, 1943, Schmoie says he hadn't planned on becoming part of the war. However, until the German surrender on May 7, 1945, he served as an infantry rifleman and

"I was living in Buhl at the time, enjoying life with a beautiful woman and a child," he said. "I did what I was told because it was my duty, but why would I want to leave all that and go someplace to get shot at and maybe killed?"

Marjorie Schmoie gave birth to their first of six children 10 days before her husband was scheduled to begin his military training.

"It was terrifying but my parents, sisters and a brother were in seventh heaven to help take care of the baby," she said.

Anzio, on Italy's western coast, as part of the 1st Armored Division's 14th Armored Infantry unit. By the time he reached Italy, Allied forces had already completed Operation Shingle, a Jan. 22, 1944 amphibious beachhead landing at Anzio.

"I think we were there for about one month as replacement for men they had lost," Schmoie said.

However, Allied forces were still well within range of enemy artillery. During the first day's push out of Anzio, fierce German resistance kept the invasion force from gaining more than half a mile. Unable to go farther, Schmoie and a buddy dug in for the night. The next morning, Schmoie remembers being selected to collect food rations — a move that saved his life.

"When I came back and was headed for the foxhole, the sergeant stopped and told me I might not want to go there," he said. "A mortar had landed in that hole and my buddy was no longer there. All they found was his boot with a foot and ankle in it."

Schmoie was a member of the Allied forces that liberated Rome from the Germans on June 4, 1944. His unit pushed on, pursuing German forces into the North Apennines, where control of a hill changed hands in a fierce series of battles.

It was during one defense of the hill that Schmoie had a brush with a bullet meant for him.

He recalls diving into a shell hole he'd seen during a previous assault to avoid the machine gun bullets that peppered the earthen bank behind him. Only after reaching the valley floor did he fully begin to realize what had happened.

"A buddy came up and asked how I'd ripped my jacket. A bullet had made a hole through the combat jacket and winter sweater but it didn't get the underwear," he said. "Don't know if I told you, but the German machine gunner didn't make it."

But Schmoie did, as his division pushed 50 miles north to the Po Valley, where Schmoie spent the rest of the war driving a half-track on reconnaissance missions. He spent time after the war in Switzerland and with occupation forces in Germany before he was discharged Nov. 12, 1945 with the rank of corporal.

Board should let new Blaine schools chief do his job

What's the toughest school superintendent's job in Idaho? Hands down, it's running the Blaine County School District. Patrons are intensely — some would say obsessively — involved in their kids' education, and decisions by the superintendent and the School Board are constantly second-guessed.

So it's not surprising that Superintendent Jim Lewis would, as he did this week, decide to retire a year early. Yet it's a loss for the 3,200 students in the district.

Simply put, the 62-year-old Lewis — who became superintendent in 1999 — has the temperament to deal with a constantly bubbling cauldron of ideas and demands, and to do so with equanimity. So, by most accounts, does his successor, Assistant Superintendent Lonnie Barber, 52, who previously ran the Caldwell School District.

The timing of Lewis' departure had everything to do with doubts expressed about Barber by two new Blaine County School Board members. Paul Bates, who defeated board Chairman Alexandra Sundali in the May election, and Steve Guthrie, who unseated Kim Nilsen, said before the election they were unhappy with the process by which Barber was hired two years ago. But Bates and Guthrie don't take office until July 14, so Sundali and Nilsen were part of the unanimous decision to anoint Barber to replace Lewis.

Not that the newcomers were in a position to block Barber's appointment in any case. The three holdover trustees — Julie Dahlgren, Mari Beth Matthews and Daniel Parke — are Barber supporters. But when Barber inherits Lewis' job on Aug. 31, he'll have to hit the ground running.

We hope he'll inherit his predecessor's philosophy that education is a collaboration. Lewis deftly prevented the Blaine County schools from lapsing into paralysis by analysis because he's a good listener and doesn't take challenges to his ideas personally.

Meanwhile, Bates and Guthrie should let Barber do his job. He's been a teacher, principal and superintendent in a larger school district than Blaine County, and he's a worthy successor to Lewis.

But he has a tough act to follow.

Our view:

The early retirement of Blaine County School Superintendent Jim Lewis is a loss for the district's students, but his successor should be given a chance to succeed.

Where the angriest words can lead

Look out how you use proud words. When you let proud words go, it is not easy to call them back. They wear long boots, hard boots; they walk off proud; they can't hear you calling.
 — Carl Sandburg

COLBERT I. KING

Words have consequences — a lesson I've learned, and relearned, after nearly 20 years of editorial and column writing.

Which makes Fox News Channel's Bill O'Reilly all the more unbelievable when he holds himself harmless in creating the atmosphere that helped diminish the humanity of George Tiller, the Kansas doctor who performed late-term abortions.

O'Reilly used his show, "The O'Reilly Factor," to demonize Tiller.

A few of his words, as reported by Salon.com: Tiller "destroys fetuses for just about any reason right up until the birthdate for $5,000." Then-Kansas Gov. Kathleen Sebelius "doesn't seem to be real upset about this guy operating a death mill, which is exactly what it is, in her state, does she?" And: "No question Dr. Tiller has blood on his hands." No calls to murder, for sure. And certainly no license for the suspect in Tiller's death, Scott Roeder, to gun down the doctor during Sunday services at a Wichita church.

But to suggest that O'Reilly should not hold himself accountable for his incendiary words is to ask too much. Words have consequences.

That's also why I wince when I read anti-Obama slurs on pro-gun Web sites. President Obama is trying to "get your guns," reads one. "Get your guns while you still can," shouts a pro-gun advertisement.

A news release from the Citizens Committee for the Right to Keep and Bear Arms charges that Obama wants to stack the federal courts with "liberal anti-gunners."

There has been a steady stream of these ominous warnings since November's presidential election. Apparently the red flags grabbed the attention of Richard Andrew "Pop"

Poplawski, the Pennsylvania man accused of shooting to death three police officers and wounding a fourth in the spring.

Poplawski, reported the Pittsburgh Tribune-Review, slept with a gun under his pillow in a basement filled with firearms and ammunition, convinced that Jews controlled the media and that Obama was scheming to take away his arsenal.

His childhood friend, Edward Perkovic, said Poplawski feared "the Obama gun ban that's on the way."

Words have consequences.

That thought seems completely lost on the Fox News network, which launches a daily rhetorical assault on Obama, starting with the "Fox and Friends" morning show. The anti-Obama beat goes on through the day, and reaches a fevered pitch at night with Sean Hannity.

Witness excerpts from a recent exchange between Hannity and radio talk show host Rush Limbaugh:

Limbaugh: "I do not hide from it. I do want and I still want Obama to fail!"

Hannity: "But it's interesting here. . . A lot of things you are saying — (Obama) is apologizing for America's arrogance. He has taken over car companies. They want to dictate CEO pay. All of these things have been unfolding. Socialism is the Obama vision for America."

Limbaugh: "And fascism. We must not be afraid to use that word either. It is a combination of the two."

Limbaugh and Hannity know the standard definition of fascism: "a regime that exalts nation and often race above the individual and that stands for a centralized autocratic government headed by a dictatorial leader, severe economic and social regimentation, and forcible suppression of opposition."

And they must know how their characterization of Obama goes over with those Americans who live in fear that all they hold dear is coming under attack by a fascist in the White House.

What do Hannity, Limbaugh and the pro-gun lobby expect their words will do?

Words, after all, have consequences.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Complain about Areva before it's too late

Areva is trying to use Idaho for its own ends while giving relatively little in return. Areva is a giant French nuclear corporation. Areva people want to build a uranium enrichment plant in eastern Idaho. It has secured significant Bonneville property and Idaho State tax incentives. It has applied for $2 billion in nuclear bailout money in the form of loan guarantees from the federal government.

The corporation, last month, decided to double the capacity of the plant, which could mean even more Idaho State tax incentives and federal loan guarantees. Where will it store its nuclear waste? Yucca Mountain is closed.

If Areva stores it in Idaho, we'll be stuck with this nuke waste stored over our drinking water. Areva is not a good neighbor, even in France. An operation like this one depletes our groundwater and will possibly contaminate it, as it has already done in the North Sea.

Why would this corporation be any more careful away from its home territory? What assurance do we have that this material won't end up some place like Iran or North Korea? Do you like our tax money going to a foreign corporation? What can this corporation possibly give us that will compensate for reducing the level of unemployment relatively little, taking our water and risking groundwater contamination while making a product which could, in the wrong hands, wipe us out?

If you don't think a corporation like this one should be in Idaho, call or write your representative or senator. RALPH FRIEDEMANN Jerome

CSI event to explore complexity of big ideas

Is your brain dulled from sitcom reruns and too much weeding in your yard? The College of Southern Idaho has just the thing to revitalize your thinking!

On June 25 and 26, the Civil Liberties Symposium will present a stimulating variety of knowledgeable speakers such as a filmmaker, a federal judge, a storyteller, the superintendent of Mount Rushmore, a UCLA professor, a veteran broadcast journalist, etc. This event is in its fourth year because the mix and debate of ideas is so darned interesting! The speakers and audience explore the complexities of important ideas such as those expressed in the Constitution.

This is an event for every thinking brain and has an added benefit for teachers and students because a CSI or BSU credit is available and, on Friday, a free workshop is designed for educators.

Sunday's Times-News had an ad for the symposium, but it could not convey the intellectual fun that these speakers present. If your brain is ready for a rejuvenating shake-up, contact Dr. Russ Tremayne at rtremayne@csi.edu and attend this exciting symposium at the CSI Herrett Center.

Cheers to Legislature for going slowly

Legislative frustration? Mr. Allred answers to his own frustration in the opinion,

"Taking sides?"

In the current session, the Legislature arrived at the proper conclusion, guaranteed in representative government: frustration! Frustration guarantees that the process will be slowed down. When the legislative process is slowed down, better decisions are made.

I, as a voter and taxpayer, regularly voiced my opinions to my elected representatives on many issues including road maintenance. Obviously, so did many other voters. And the result was as it should be. Our representatives listened to and represented their constituents.

Too often, our elected representatives make the mistake of thinking that they were elected to make "wise" decisions contrary to the will of the very people who elected them. When representatives don't listen to their constituents, the predictable result is the financial and political crisis that our country is in today at all levels — federal, state, county and city. It is not the job of our elected representatives to do what they think is best, but to listen to their constituents.

I applaud the fact that very few bills were passed. With the passage of every bill comes a new law. Laws, by their very definition, ultimately restrict the liberty of the citizens who must live under them. So, cheers to the Legislature for passing the fewest number of bills in the past 50 years. And cheers to the founders for creating a system of representative government that guarantees that the will of the majority of voters will be accurately represented, not the will of the elected representatives.

U.S. Senate approves landmark tobacco bill

By Lyndsey Layton
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The Senate approved landmark legislation Thursday that would give the government sweeping new power to oversee tobacco, which is used by 20 percent of Americans but has been largely unregulated since the country was founded.

The 79-to-17 vote virtually ensures the bill will become law. It now goes to the House, which passed a nearly identical version in April, for a final vote early next week. President Obama, himself a smoker who has struggled to quit, has said he will sign it.

Congress has been trying for more than a decade to regulate tobacco, coming close several times but faltering in the face of opposition from the tobacco lobby, the White House or procedural hangups. But over the years, changing social attitudes toward smoking helped transform the idea of regulation from controversial to common sense.

"There's been a fundamental sea change in attitudes about tobacco in both the Congress and the public," said Matthew Myers, president of the Campaign for Tobacco-Free Kids, which led a coalition of more than 1,000 public health and faith organizations that supported the legislation. "A bill this broad, comprehensive, this strong would have been unimaginable even five years ago."

The legislation, which comes 50 years after the surgeon general first warned about the health effects of tobacco, gives broad new authority to the Food and Drug Administration to regulate the manufacturing and marketing of cigarettes, cigars and other tobacco products.

"Miracles still happen," the bill's sponsor, Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., said in a statement. Kennedy, who had worked for years to push the bill forward, is battling brain cancer and missed Thursday's vote. "The United States Senate has finally said 'no' to Big Tobacco. Decades of irresponsible delay are finally over!"

Sen. Richard Burr, R-N.C., whose state is home to R.J. Reynolds Tobacco and Lorillard Tobacco, tried to kill the measure, arguing that the FDA cannot handle additional duties.

AROUND THE NATION

WISCONSIN WASHINGTON Obama confronts critics on health care overhaul

GREEN BAY — President Barack Obama challenged Republican critics Thursday to offer alternative plans for overhauling U.S. health care, declaring he's "happy to steal people's ideas" but that doing nothing about out-of-reach costs and uninsured Americans is not an option.

"What else do we say to all those families who spend more on health care than on housing or on food?" Obama said at a town hall-style meeting, surrounded by supportive citizens in the nation's heartland. "What do we tell those businesses that are choosing between closing their doors and letting their workers go?"

Undertaking an aggressive new effort to push a major health-care measure through Congress by August, Obama rebuked critics from both the right and left — conservatives who say his support for creating a government-sponsored insurance option alongside private coverage would send the country toward an unsustainable nationalized plan, as well as liberals who are concerned he won't go far enough to mandate universal coverage.

WASHINGTON CIA: Bin Laden may still be in Pakistan

CIA Director Leon Panetta says he believes Osama bin Laden is still in Pakistan.

The spy agency hopes to close in on the al-Qaida leader as Pakistan's military cracks down on the tribal area where he is thought to be hiding.

Panetta told reporters after a speech on Capitol Hill that finding bin Laden remains one of the CIA's top priorities. He said he hopes that the combination of increased CIA activity and the Pakistani military offensive will give the United States a better chance of nabbing him.

Panetta said in his speech that the CIA has increased the number of officers and agents in Pakistan who are providing targeting and other information to attack the al-Qaida network there.

BERMUDA 4 former detainees enter a new world

HAMILTON — Four Guantanamo detainees from arid, predominantly Muslim western China were transferred to this very proper British colony

Thursday, marking an unexpected new chapter in their odyssey.

Freed after being locked up seven years, the four men were given ties during their flight to the island and their lawyers gave quick lessons in how to knot them. They kept a low profile after landing and declined to talk with journalists.

They arrived just as islanders were starting to celebrate Bermuda's 400th year of settlement. But Washington's surprise announcement of the transfer set off grumbling by some islanders, and the colonial rulers in London bristled over not being told ahead of time.

Putting a cloud over the deal, Britain's government said it was studying whether to allow Bermuda Premier Ewart Brown to go ahead with his plan to take in the men as refugees.

ID A H O Letter: UI prof's daughter knew of bighorn disease link

BOISE — A wildlife biologist has questioned how a University of Idaho professor didn't know of research linking bighorn deaths to a disease they caught from domestic sheep on the range, when her own daughter conducted the research.

Vic Coggins, who oversees bighorn management in northeastern Oregon, cites a 1995 letter from UI researcher Jeanne M. Bulgin.

In it, Bulgin confirms bacteria that helped kill a bighorn ram matched bacteria found in a domestic herd it had contacted.

Marie Bulgin, Jeanne Bulgin's mother, heads up the UI's Caine Veterinary Teaching Center in Caldwell. For years, she's denied evidence of such transmission in the wild, in front of the Idaho Legislature and in federal court.

WASHINGTON Radioactive wasp nests uncovered at nuclear site

YAKIMA — If workers cleaning up the nation's most contaminated nuclear site didn't have enough to worry about, now they've got to deal with radioactive wasp nests.

Mud dauber wasps built the nests, which have been largely abandoned by their flighty owners, in holes at south-central Washington's Hanford nuclear reservation in 2003.

That's when workers finished covering cleaned-up waste sites with fresh topsoil, native plants and straw to help the plants grow — inadvertently creating perfect ground cover for the insects to build their nests. Nearby cleanup work also provided a steady supply of mud, which the wasps used as building material.

The nests, which could number in the thousands, are "fairly highly contaminated" with radioactive isotopes, such as cesium and cobalt, but don't pose a significant threat to workers digging them up.

CALIFORNIA Chastity Bono says she'll change sex

LOS ANGELES — Chastity Bono is having a sex change to become a man.

A spokesman for Bono, born a girl to Sonny and Cher, says he "has made the courageous decision to honor his true identity" and began the sex-change process earlier this year.

Publicist Howard Bragman said Bono is proud of his decision and hopes "that his choice to transition will open the hearts and minds of the public regarding this issue."

The 40-year-old writer, activist and reality-TV star came out as gay 20 years ago, Bragman said.

7 smart places to stash your cash

Home safe sales smash 60 year record due to new banking worries

By Aaron Robinson
Universal Media Syndicate

So you're still hiding money under the mattress or in the bread box?

Well, you're not alone.

Ever since financial institutions have been dropping like flies, millions of Americans have stopped relying solely on their banks.

Are banks safe? Well maybe. But with so much to lose, here are 7 things we can consider to protect the little we have left.

1. Be sure your institution is insured.

If you're not sure if your bank is FDIC insured find out or get your money out.

Insured or not, the fact is this. The FDIC has only enough cash on hand to cover about 2% of nationwide deposits. Pretty scary stuff, so it's not always wise to have all your eggs in one basket.

2. Start and grow a coin collection.

Coin collections are tangible assets that will always keep their face value, instead of just owning stocks that could depreciate or lose you money.

If times ever get really tough, U.S. Gov't coins will always bail you out. A good safety net is to insist on only never-circulated U.S. Gov't issued coins.

3. Keep cash safe at home.

Cash is King. Believe it, but remember not to keep it in a thief's favorite spot; like in the bread box or the mattress.

These will never have the protection that a quality home safe can provide to safeguard your money. See #7 for more.

4. US Savings Bonds, an old

U.S. Savings Bonds are an easy way for your money to stay safe in the future.

However, if lost or stolen they could be difficult to replace unless the serial number was kept in a safe place. But be careful because they must now be held for at least 1 year before cashing them in.

5. Gold and silver still shine.

If you own gold or silver, great, hold on to it. But if you don't, one of your best bets is to try to get as many U.S. Gov't issued gold and silver coins as you can. Due to the recent demand, the U.S. Mint had to halt the production of some of their most valued gold coins.

6. Hold on to real estate.

With interest rates at historic all-time lows the market is sure to recover and property values will once again bounce back. So those who hold on to their homes for the long term will likely reap the benefits of these investments.

■ SHOULD HAVE HAD MONEY IN A SAFE:

Stunned customers show up at this California bank only to find the bank suddenly closed.

7. Buy a good safe.

Home safes become an absolute necessity during economic turmoil. If you already have one make sure it's big enough and heavy enough to foil a thief. It will also keep nosy relatives out of your business.

A good safe made from solid steel construction can cost anywhere from $300 to over a thousand dollars. But, because of the huge spike in recent sales, safes may be hard to come by.

But if you can find a good one, you'll have your own Fort Knox to keep everything safe including official documents, coin collections, currency, U.S. Savings Bonds, guns, gold, silver, deeds, wills and other legal papers.

With all this you'll be much safer, just in case your bank is the next to fail. ■

Free armored safes being doled out to public

Armored Safe giveaway ends public worry for those who rush to buy up hoards of brilliant, never-circulated U.S. Gov't issued coins that will never lose their cash value

By Shawn Oyler
Universal Media Syndicate

UMS - Imagine finally getting something that will never lose its value.

Sounds too good to be true?

Well, it's true and word is quickly spreading about the free hand-out of Armored Safes that are being stocked full of never-circulated U.S. Gov't issued coins and currency that by law will never be minted again.

These free Armored Safes are being turned over to the general public who make it in time to beat the order deadline for their share of the hoard of brilliant, never-circulated U.S. Gov't coins and currency before the 72 hour shutoff.

"The frantic demand for U.S. Gov't coins has caused the U.S. Mint® to officially halt the sale of many of its most valuable coins," said lead consultant for the World Reserve Thomas C. Harris, Retired Deputy Director of the U.S. Treasury Bureau of Engraving and Printing.

"Today, the World Reserve began to release this hoard of U.S. Gov't coins and currency in a free Armored Safe to the general public. Having valuable U.S. Gov't coins serves as an economic life raft. This valuable Collection will never, never, never lose its face value. You will always have something worth a lot of money," said Harris.

Here's the best part, among the U.S. Gov't issued coins and currency that everyone gets is the highly sought after American Eagle 1-ounce silver bullion coin made from solid .999 fine silver; 250 new 2005 U.S. Buffalo Nickels in sealed rolls, a banker's stack of historic $2 bills and a full vault tube of the Presidential Golden Dollar Coins.

Here's why that is so important. Just think if you would have saved the same number of never-circulated Eisenhower Dollar coins from 1974. Remarkably, they would now be worth 500% more in collector value.

This gives you a hint that these are not the same grade as the coins found in loose change, or from the local bank. In fact, these coins remain in brilliant, never-circulated condition if left sealed and untouched.

U.S. Gov't Savings Bonds used to be a favorite way to keep money safe and popular to give as gifts. But no one can take a Savings Bond and go buy something with it.

That's why this hoard of valuable coins gives everyone the comfort of having full control of their money. No matter what, they will never lose

■ HELP IS ON THE WAY: This never-before-seen photo captures the rapid shipment of free Presidential Armored Safes that are now being shipped to U.S. citizens all across the country. their U.S. cash value.

If times ever get really tough any coin in the hoard could be used to buy anything. But unless it is a good reason, only a fool would do that because this personal hoard of money is already worth so much more in collector value.

"So many people are buying up these coins. Even for those people who give away some of their collection as gifts, they are keeping the Armored Safe for themselves," said Robert Anthony, Director of the private World Reserve Monetary Exchange.

"This Safe is one of the absolute best places to keep valuables and important papers. People will now have a safe place to store their wills, guns, jewelry, antiques, keys, coins and even cash," Anthony said.

"The only problem the Safe creates is when it's time to read your Will. You need to make sure everyone knows who you want to leave it to," he said.

"When Americans get their hands on this Safe and their very own personal hoard of U.S. Gov't Coins, they'll really do a double take. Everyone will feel like they just won the lottery," he said. ■

Idaho led nation in green jobs growth

New companies attribute the low cost of living, government support for alternative energy growth

By Joshua Palmer
Times-News writer

A growing green energy industry in Idaho may prove to be favorable for the College of Southern Idaho, which hopes to train students in wind-turbine technology.

Officials with the region's leading economic development group, the College of Southern Idaho and local municipalities have initiated an ambitious campaign to add wind energy production and technology to the region's economic base.

But it may be the training capabilities that prove critical to southern Idaho's success in alternative energy production.

Nordic Windpower employs seven people in Idaho now, but by the end of this year the wind-turbine manufacturer expects to have 25 employees in its Pocatello plant.

"We are using Idaho for a launch pad to support customers all over the country," said Prakash Ramachandran, Nordic Windpower's chief financial officer.

Nordic isn't alone. The Pew Research Center found that between 1998 and 2007, Idaho jobs in the wind, solar, biofuel and energy efficiency industries grew at a rate of 126.1 percent, while overall Idaho jobs grew by 13.8 percent.

Idaho, Nebraska, South Dakota and Wyoming led the nation in percentage growth.

There were 4,500 of these jobs in Idaho in 2007, and today even more growth is coming. Just down the road from Nordic in Pocatello, the Hawaiian company Hoku Scientific is building a $390 million plant to make silicon for solar panels.

Once the plant is fully operational in 2010, Hoku expects to have 200 workers in Pocatello. It could expand to more than 300 eventually.

In Boise, 50 people already are working in the new light-emitting diode business that Micron Technology has committed to join later this year. Solar companies are looking to relocate to

More control sought for U.S. executive pay

Opponents say new oversight will lead to 'flight of talent'

By Jim Kuhnhenn
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — The Obama administration struck a delicate balance on executive pay Thursday, blaming flawed compensation packages for encouraging disastrous risk-taking but insisting it does not want to dictate how corporations reward their top people.

Gene Sperling, a top counselor to Treasury Secretary Timothy Geithner, conceded to a congressional committee that imposing compensation caps on companies could lead to a flight of talent.

"I can say with certainty that nobody in the Obama administration is proposing such a thing," he said.

Yet, at the same time, he and officials with the Federal Reserve and the Securities and Exchange Commission laid out a case for how payment structures rewarded short-term gains at the expense of long-term performance and contributed to the U.S. financial crisis.

The administration plans to seek legislation that would try to rein in compensation at publicly traded companies through nonbinding shareholder votes and by decreasing management influence on pay decisions.

But some Democrats on the House Financial Services Committee said Thursday the administration's efforts to hector the private sector into

The Obama administration named Feinberg, a lawyer who oversaw payments to families of victims of the Sept. 11, 2001, terror attacks on the United States, as a 'special master' with power to reject any pay plan that he deems excessive at the seven companies with the biggest injections of public money. Feinberg also would have authority to review compensation for the top 100 salaried employees at those firms.

Americans' net worth shrinks $1.33 trillion

By Jeannine Aversa
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — American households lost $1.33 trillion of their wealth in the first three months of the year as the recession took a bite out of stock portfolios and dragged down home prices.

The Federal Reserve reported Thursday that household net worth fell to $50.38 trillion in the January-March quarter, the lowest level since the third quarter of 2004. The first-quarter figure marked a decline of 2.6 percent, or $1.33 trillion, from the final quarter of 2008.

Net worth represents total assets such as homes and checking accounts, minus liabilities like mortgages and credit card debt.

The damage to wealth in the first quarter came from the sinking stock market. The value of Americans' stock holdings dropped 5.8 percent from the final quarter of last year. The slide on Wall Street that began in late 2007 and gained speed last fall erased more than half the value of the U.S. stock market.

The value of stocks in the Dow Jones U.S. Total Stock Market Index, which measures nearly all U.S.-based companies, tumbled to $8 trillion when stocks hit a 12-year low on March 9. That was down from $19.2

trillion in October 2007.

The central bank's numbers don't reflect all the gains since stocks began rallying. On paper, the market is up $3.1 trillion from early March, though still down $8.1 trillion from the peak.

Another hit to household net worth came from falling house prices. The value of real-estate holdings fell 2.4 percent, according to the Fed report.

Collectively, homeowners had only 41.4 percent equity in their homes in the first quarter. That was down from 42.9 percent in the fourth quarter and was the lowest on records dating to 1945.

MORTGAGE RATES RISE AGAIN

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Rates for 30-year home loans jumped to the highest level in seven months this week, leading to a slowdown in refinancing activity, Freddie Mac said Thursday.

The average rate for a 30-year fixed mortgage was 5.59 percent this week, up from 5.29 percent last week,

Freddie Mac said. The last time the average 30-year fixed rate mortgage was higher was the week ended Nov. 26 of last year, when it averaged 5.97 percent.

Frank Nothaft, Freddie Mac's chief economist, said the higher rates followed an increase in bond yields, a barometer for interest rates on mortgages and other loans.

On Wednesday, the government was forced to lift the yield on 10-year Treasury notes to 3.99 percent to lure in buyers at an auction. That was the highest yield it's offered since last August, before it started bailing out the nation's financial industry.

Though there are signs that the troubled U.S. housing market is beginning to Government forced to lift yield on 10-year treasury to attract buyers stabilize, higher rates could threaten or slow down any recovery, since borrowers would be able to borrow less money and might decide to hold off on their purchases.

Nothaft said the higher rates "are slowing refinancing activity but not demand for home purchases."

During the three-weeks ended June 5, interest rates for 30-year fixed-rate mortgages rose nearly one-half of a percentage point, Nothaft said. Conventional mortgage applications for refinancing fell each week during that period, while applications for home purchases consecutively increased, according to the Mortgage Bankers Association.

Freddie Mac collects mortgage rates on Monday through Wednesday of each week from lenders around the country. Rates often fluctuate significantly, even within a given day.

The average rate on a 15-year fixed-rate mortgage rose to 5.06 percent, up from 4.79 percent last week, according to Freddie Mac.

Rates on five-year, adjustable-rate mortgages averaged 5.17 percent, up from 4.85 percent last week. Rates on one-year, adjustable-rate mortgages rose to 5.04 percent from 4.81 percent.

The rates do not include add-on fees known as points. The nationwide fee averaged 0.7 point last week for 30-year and 15-year mortgages, and one-year adjustable rate loans. Fees averaged 0.6 point for five-year adjustable rate loans.

Chance LeRoy Craig

JEROME — Chance LeRoy Craig, 22, of Jerome, passed away Saturday, June 6, 2009, in Boise, Idaho.

He was born Dec. 6, 1986, in Twin Falls, Idaho, the son of Bryan E. Craig and Tracia "Traci" S. Black Craig. Chance was raised in Jerome and graduated from Jerome High School.

Chance was athletic and loved to participate in, coach, referee and supervise sporting activities. He found the most joy in playing basketball with his "Band of Brothers" and after high school, sought that sense of family with other teams, teammates and sporting events.

Chance also loved to play softball and continued to surprise himself with his abilities. He participated on several teams, often for the fun of competing but always for the love of the game. Ultimately, he loved being a part of something greater than himself.

Chance found joy in interacting with others. He loved to tease and be teased and was especially delighted when his jokes evoked an unexpected reaction from others. He knew which buttons to push to get a response and would escape with a grin and a twinkle in his eye.

Chance had a great impact on the children he met and would go out of his way to say something to encourage, motivate, and inspire. He didn't see this as the gift we knew it to be but took great pains to make sure no child left the gym (or his presence) feeling badly about their performance.

When Chance was unable to communicate with his adopted family through spoken language, he took it upon himself to learn sign language. Always one to interact with others, it was important to him to have the ability to communicate, put others at ease and always tease.

Chance's love of his life was his son, Kolbi Bryan Craig, who was born on Valentine's Day, 2008. Everything Chance did was for Kolbi and his future. He taught Kolbi to do things that resulted in the creation of a miniature prankster, just like his dad. Kolbi, who looks like his dad, already appears to have his dad's compassionate and loving nature. We are blessed by such a gift.

Chance loved his friends and family and made a deep impression on his brothers and sisters who all equally adored him. He continued to give in death as he did in life by becoming an organ donor and helping those in need to love, live and carry on a happy life.

Chance loved and admired his dad, Bryan, and wanted to be just like him. For the majority of his adult years, Chance took on the responsibility of operating and working in the Lawn's Plus business. He did a fantastic job and had the foundation for a successful future.

Chance is survived by his father and mother, Bryan and Tracia, five sisters, Chelsea, Tatumn, Teagan, Avrea and Emrea; and two brothers, Brady and Camden. He is also survived by maternal grandparents, Bill and Judy Black, and paternal grandparents, LeRoy and Joyce Craig, as well as many aunts, uncles and cousins.

Chance was preceded in death by his great-grandparents, an uncle, an aunt, and three cousins.

A funeral service will be conducted at 11 a.m. Saturday, June 13, at the Jerome High School auditorium, 104 Tiger Drive in Jerome. A visitation will be held Friday evening, June 12, also at the Jerome High School auditorium, where family and friends may call from 6 to 8 p.m., and again on Saturday one hour prior to the service. Interment will follow in the Jerome Cemetery.

In lieu of flowers, the family suggests that memorials be made to: Chance Craig Memorial Scholarship, College of Southern Idaho, P.O. Box 1238, Twin Falls, ID 83303-1238.

Jody Brown

RENO, Nev. — M. Josephine "Jody" Brown, 93, passed away Wednesday, May 20, 2009, in Reno, Nev.

She was born Sept. 15, 1915, in Burley, to Clarence "Pop" and Josephine Cole Baker. In 1937, Jody married Ocee Brown, and they had been married for 60 years when Ocee passed away in 1997. They moved around quite a bit, living in Burley, Challis and Stanley. They later moved to Crescent City and then Eureka, Calif., before finally settling down in the San Francisco Bay Area in 1951. Jody was a charter member of Shepherd of the Hills United Methodist Church in St. George, Utah. She was active in disciple Bible study, served as liturgist, received the Quiet Disciple Award and was honored by the Rocky Mountain Conference for her work and stewardship. After church and family, another important thing in her life was her membership in PEO, which is a philanthropic organization dedicated to supporting higher education for women. She was a member of Chapter AM in St. George, Utah. In 2005, Jody was honored at the Utah State Convention of PEO for her 70 years of service.

Jody is survived by her son, Ocee (Ali) Brown of St. Augustine, Fla.; daughter, Jan (Jim) Patrick of Reno, Nev.; grandchildren, Rick and Craig Brown, and Melissa (Matt) Leh; great-grandchildren, Ash Rickli and Christopher Leh; and many loving nieces and nephews.

The family is especially grateful for the kind and loving care Jody received while living at The Meadows in St. George and later at Park Place Assisted Living and LifeCare Center in Reno.

Controversial Chicago prosecutor Edward Hanrahan dies at age 88

By Patricia Sullivan
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Edward V. Hanrahan, the former Cook County, Ill., state's attorney under whose oversight a squad of police officers raided the Black Panther Party headquarters in 1969 and killed two of its leaders, died June 9 of complications from leukemia at his home in River Forest, Ill., a Chicago suburb. He was 88.

Fourteen police officers assigned to his office, acting on a tip from an FBI informant, burst into the West Side Chicago apartment early Dec. 4, 1969, in search of illegal weapons.

Police had raided it three times before, but this time they were armed with a map that showed where Panther leaders Mark Clark and Fred Hampton slept. In a fusillade, Clark and Hampton were killed.

Hanrahan, who had made his name as a law-and-order prosecutor unafraid to pursue organized crime figures, defended the police tactics, saying the black activists shot first. Later probes showed that one of the Panthers had fired at least one shot, and the multiple bullet holes that Hanrahan pointed to as evidence of more were exposed nail heads.

The police fired between 82 and 99 shots in the four-room apartment.

Black and white Chicagoans were deeply enraged and frightened by the event. Some considered the raid a massacre and blamed J. Edgar Hoover's FBI Cointelpro covert intelligence program for setting it up. Others thought Hampton was a dangerous radical — just before his death he had told the Chicago Sun-Times that he was "at war with the pigs."

The radical Weathermen two months earlier had staged the Days of Rage, an anti-Vietnam War demonstration that attempted to spark revolution. And no one had forgotten the police riot at the Democratic National Convention a year before.

Hanrahan

Along with the police, Hanrahan was indicted on charges of conspiracy to present false evidence and obstruction of justice, but all were later cleared. A protracted civil suit ended in 1982, with the survivors of the raid and families of the deceased receiving an award of $1.85 million.

A judge ruled that the government had conspired to deny the Panthers their civil rights.

Hanrahan, who had often been talked about as a possible mayor or Illinois governor, never recovered his political career. He lost a 1972 reelection campaign, two mayoral races in the 1970s and a campaign for alderman in the early 1980s. He went into private practice and often defended suburban governments as well as police and fire officials, said his nephew, Tom Wheeler.

He was not bitter about what transpired, Wheeler said, nor was he a bigot, an accusation that dogged him for years. The Black Panthers, originally organized to protect minority communities from police brutality, created medical clinics and provided free food to schoolchildren before becoming a Marxist organization. Clark and Hampton were held up as martyrs to the cause, and Hanrahan was excoriated as a racist.

"Nothing could be further from the truth. At the end of his life, he traveled, he learned two foreign languages, he studied philosophy and the Bible, he learned to play the piano and joined a book club," Wheeler said. "He served meals to the homeless" through a church shelter program.

Born in Coconut Grove, Fla., Edward Vincent Hanrahan moved to Chicago with his family when he was a boy. He graduated from the University of Notre Dame. During World War II, he served in the Army Signal Corps in the United States, and in 1948 he received a degree from Harvard Law School.

Police: We weren't chasing car before Philadelphia crash

By Joann Loviglio
Associated Press writer

PHILADELPHIA — A car that jumped a curb and crashed into a crowd, killing a woman and three young children, was fleeing a police officer who had tried unsuccessfully to stop the driver but who got stuck in traffic and couldn't give chase, the police commissioner said Thursday.

"Did a pursuit take place? The answer is no," police Commissioner Charles Ramsey said during a news conference at police headquarters, pointing to the mug shot of one of two suspects. "The fault belongs to the individual you see here."

Ramsey said the officer would have been justified if he had chased the driver of the car or a second man, who a witness said had earlier jumped out of the car and stolen a motorcycle at gunpoint.

The driver of the car, Donta Cradock, and the man who fled on the motorcycle, Ivan

Rodriguez, have been charged with murder, armed robbery, assault and related offenses, police said.

Cradock, 18, and Rodriguez, 20, have long criminal records and already had bench warrants out for their arrests, but police said it wasn't immediately clear for what offenses. Cradock has eight prior arrests on charges including assault, burglary and weapon possession; Rodriguez has five prior arrests on charges including car theft and criminal mischief.

The men were in custody but hadn't been arraigned as of Thursday afternoon and apparently didn't have lawyers yet.

The events started when a witness told the officer he had seen a passenger get out of the car and steal a motorcycle Wednesday night. The officer later spotted a car matching the witness' description at a traffic light in the Feltonville neighborhood.

The officer pulled up behind the car, turned on his emergency lights and ordered the driver to get out, but the driver sped off, Ramsey said.

The officer was stuck in traffic and wasn't able to pursue the driver immediately, Ramsey said. He lost sight of the car before coming upon the crash scene about a mile away.

Prominent Utah veterinarian Osguthorpe dies

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — D.A. Osguthorpe, a Utah veterinarian and rancher who rose to notoriety after blaming the U.S. government for the deaths of sheep from exposure to nerve gas during the 1960s, has died at 88.

Osguthorpe died Monday at his home in Holladay.

A Blackfoot native, Osguthorpe, who went by 'Doc,' opened his Utah veterinary practice in 1943.

In the late 1960s, Osguthorpe's tests on dead sheep led to an admission by the U.S. Army that it had conducted nerve gas tests from an airplane in Utah's west desert.

He testified before Congress and the government later paid damages to the ranchers who had lost their sheep.

Osguthorpe was also widely recognized for his conservation work.

Musicians set up before entertainers take to the stage at Wendell City Park for the 2007 Dairy Days festivities.

By Blair Koch

Times-News correspondent

What's black and white and fun all over?

It's Wendell's annual Dairy Days, set for June 18-20 — a celebration of the dairy men and women in one of Magic Valley's biggest industries.

This year's theme, "Happy Birthday to Moo!" touches on Wendell's centennial, celebrated this year. Helping set a carnival atmosphere around town will be decorated cow signs placed outside businesses.

The city's herd will consist of at least 80 cheerfully dressed cows, said Dairy Days coordinator Rita Conklin. It's up to Dairy Days visitors to vote on their favorites.

"The cows have to be out by (Monday), and the public can judge them. Each cow will have a bucket by it. If you want to vote for it, just place a piece of paper in the bucket," Conklin said. "During Dairy Days the cows will be taken to the tennis courts (in City Park) for display and the winners will be announced Saturday afternoon," June 20.

Vendors will peddle everything from handmade jewelry to hamburgers, and the carnival has been expanded to include rides, from the fun train for little tykes to the Orbiter, which gets the young at heart spinning in the air. Carnival ride tickets are $1 each.

"Dairy Days is a great way to meet and get to know your neighbors," said Dairy Days volunteer Dan Neal, who moved to Wendell with his wife, Marilyn, just a few years ago. "It's the fun little things — like getting thrown into 'jail' and getting people to post your 'bail,' all for raising money for the American Legion — that make this small-town event a lot of fun."

Cows and carnies aside, the three-day event is a superb opportunity to highlight the city's talented residents, Conklin said. Entertainment is lined up

Mixed-age cast takes on tale of tradition and change

By Hosanna Kabakoro
Times-News correspondent

Over the past few weeks, Magic Valley School of Performing Arts has been transformed from an ordinary building into a turn-of-the-century Russian village as the company prepares to stage its latest production. Magic Valley residents of all ages, dressed in the clothing of rural Russian Jews, seem to fill every nook and cranny of the rehearsal hall.

"Tradition!" shouts retired entertainer Danny Marona, who plays Rev Tevye in the company's upcoming production of "Fiddler on the Roof," opening Thursday.

When Marona was asked to play the leading role, he says, there was no question. "Tevye has always been one of my all-time favorite characters, and over the years I have used bits and pieces of Tevye's character in my comedy routines." As director Kim Kokx looks on, cast members scurry to assigned positions for the opening scene of Act 1.

"We have a fantastic cast, and I'm really looking forward to watching them do what they do best!" she says.

In the scene, Rev Tevye sings about tradition and its importance to the small village of mainly Yiddish Jews. Tevye battles modern influences throughout the play as his daughters become older, fall in love and are tempted away from their traditional values and religious beliefs.

- Where: College of Southern Idaho Fine Arts building
- When: 7 p.m. Thursday, June 19 and June 20; also, 2 p.m. June 20

The story takes place in 1905 and is based on a compilation of stories written by Sholem Aleichem about Tevye the milkman and his daughters.

"I'm really excited to be in this production," said Corey Roseberry, a Washington State University student who plays a constable. "I'm home for the summer, and it's great to be a part of this cast of all ages and see how well we work together."

Just shy of 90 years old, Francis Egbert has witnessed society and technology evolve. Things were done quite differently when he was a youngster, but he thinks it's still important to give credit where it's due — to our past.

Illustrated doggy book is WR Valley keepsake

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

It wasn't long ago that Dot was just a pound hound, hoping someone would rescue her from the Animal Shelter of the Wood River Valley.

Now she has her own biography, and its proceeds will benefit other pets at the shelter.

Lee and Dennis Higdon, who live on a ranch north of Sun Valley, will read "Dot's Story," which they initially wrote and illustrated for their grandchildren, and sign copies of it at 1 p.m. Saturday at Iconoclast Books in Ketchum. There will be gifts and prizes. And everyone will be invited to meet and walk current shelter residents.

Brooke Bonner, who sits on the Animal Shelter's board, said she learned of the book because she carries Lee Higdon's oil paintings at her Green Antelope Gallery in Bellevue.

Readers will likely recognize many of the scenes in the book, including one of dogs lying in front of Tully's.

"What an incredible keepsake," said shelter board member Donna Svei. "It captures this valley at this moment in time."

More than 700 animals go through the no-kill shelter each year, Svei said. And the past few months have seen up to 45 dogs and 37 cats a month.

"Dot's Story," $20, is available at Iconoclast Books, the Barkin' Basement thrift shop in Hailey and Green Antelope Gallery in Bellevue. All sales benefit the Animal Shelter.

a way to reclaim the arts for the glory of God," Kokx said. "Theater is notorious for being very catty and vicious, and we think it is important to introduce people to the arts in a positive and healthy environment."

One way the school does this is to make sure that everyone who wants to participate is given a part.

"Our auditions are different from others in the sense that no one is cut from the cast. We believe that every individual should be given the opportunity to shine on stage," she said.

"I've been in productions with MV-SPA before and it is really my home away from home," said Ambur Miller, who plays Chava.

In recent years, MV-SPA has produced "Beauty and the Beast," "Wizard of Oz," the popular "High School Musical" and classics like "Les Miserable," "Guys and prove-up shack, poor house and church.

In the words of actor Teddy Laird: "We become a family during the process of putting a play together."

IFARM even has Jerome's first jail.

"You can see the carvings on the wall in the jail, markings of how many days people were kept," Egbert said.

The area's heritage is rooted deep at IFARM, which will bring history to the present during the weekend event with demonstrations on quilting, spinning, cleaning clothes on a washboard, sheep shearing, horse plowing and rope making, to name a few. Some volunteers and attendees go the extra mile and wear pioneer-style clothing.

"I can't imagine doing that farm work wearing one of those long dresses, but that's what they did," said Edith Harmon of Buhl.

Harmon, a member of Magic Valley Tractor Pullers, enjoys Live History Days every year. This year the pullers will take part in the Parade of Power, at 11:30 a.m. Saturday, where tractors line up and parade around the grounds. The pull begins at noon.

In addition to helping keep statistics from the pull, Harmon walks the expansive grounds and takes in all the activities. "Last year they had bread-making demonstrations and we got to sample it. The bread was great, especially along with homemade butter," she said.

Butter churning is a crowd favorite at Live History Days, said Jerome County Historical Society secretary

Peg Roberson. Pressing cider is, too.

All of the site's historical buildings will be open for self-tours, and she said other events will include pioneer-era children's games, a pie auction and a wagon train on display. Snake River Convoy plans to bring six wagons to IFARM today; the group will stay at the farm until Monday morning, Roberson said.

"If you ever wanted to see what an actual wagon train looked like, this is your chance," Roberson said. "This is the first time they've come, and we're excited to have them."

Want to join the wagon train as it pulls into IFARM? Meet the train at the blinking light on U.S. Highway 93 north of Twin Falls at 2 p.m. today, Roberson said. The historical society will host a barbecue for the train this evening, and the public is welcome. Just bring your own drink, place settings and a salad to share. Dinner will be served at 6 p.m.

On Sunday morning, a non-denominational, old-fashioned community church service will be held at 11 a.m., in the Canyonside church building at IFARM.

Musical accompaniment will be on the facility's 100-year-old organ, Roberson said. Following the service is a bring-your-own-picnic lunch.

for the City Park stage, including Motion's Ballroom dance team, Uptown Dance Studio and local songbird Shirley Bower.

"All the entertainment is local players. We've got Shirley Bower singing the blues and folk music on the stage and local dance studios bringing out their young dancers and even the Snake River Community Players presenting the 'Hub City Follies' variety show ... it's all people from around here and I think it will enhance the whole experience," Conklin said.

"Hub City Follies" will take the audience back to vaudeville with a variety show of one-act dramas, dancing, singing and instrumental ensembles. Snake River Community Players member Kathleen Smith said the show gives a nod to the period in which Wendell was established, when vaudeville was at its peak.

"It's going to be a real variety show patterned off vaudeville style," Smith said. "The show even includes an original theater piece, a spoof on Wendell."

This year's car show will be bigger and better than before, said coordinator Louie Bay, and will be held behind City Hall, at 375 First Ave. E.

"If it's got wheels then it can be in the show," Bay said. "Last year we even had an old Studebaker wagon; we never really know what to expect."

Other highlights include a free, family-friendly street dance June 19, featuring the country-rock Billie Holman Band (yep, another Wendellite).

Of course June 20 would not be complete with the annual parade, which begins at 10:30 a.m., traveling west on Main Street from the high school, and then south on Idaho Street to the edge of town.

Parade entries will be accepted to the start of the parade, with staging at the high school parking lot beginning at 8:30 a.m.

Big Wood festival returns for third year

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

A dollar a band. That's all it will cost you for a license to spread your blanket on the grass for two days of easy-listening folk, bluegrass and Celtic music in Bellevue.

The third annual Big Wood Folk Music Festival will be held June 19 and 20 at Bellevue's city park.

The music starts at 4 p.m. June 19 and 11 a.m. June 20. Buttons good for both days are $10, available at Golden Elk Restaurant in Hailey, Riverbend Coffee House in Bellevue and Notes Music Store in Hailey. They will cost $12 at the gate.

"We have an awesome lineup — more new faces than we've ever had before and some of the same old musicians coming back with new songs," said the festival's founder, Michael White.

Indeed, there will be 10 acts.

New to the festival is Sheryl Mae Grace.

"She's an amazing talent with many compositions in her collection," said White. "She plays guitar, has a lot of energy and a beautiful voice."

Another new addition to the lineup is The Headwaters Band from Stanley, a bluegrass folk duo of guitarist Marc Kottraba and mandolin player Dave Muscavage. They play everything from John Hiatt to John Prine, Lester Flatt to Paul Simon.

Another festival newcomer is Up a Creek, a partial reincarnation of Red-Headed Fiddler, featuring Jeff London on bass, Bill Spoon, Raul Vandenberg and Scott Seaward.

Joining them is an entirely new band — Hickory Blue, the contemporary country/crossover folk band of Ned Wheeler, Brad Pearson, Craig Meyers, Jason Vontver and Courtney Lloyd.

Wheeler said the band is excited about making its public debut: "We play Nickel Creek music, John Denver songs — that sort of thing. And our vocalist, Courtney Lloyd, has a fabulous voice."

Other performers:

- No Cheap Horses, which includes Gerard Kelly of Doc Tater on guitar and Mia Edsell of Stetson on guitar and banjo.

- The Boulder Brothers, who play energetic Celtic-flavored music and several songs about historical events in the Wood River Valley.

- Slow Children Playing with national fiddling contender Matt Renner.

- The Kim Stocking Band, with Kim Stocking, Chip Booth, Mike Saul, Jeremy Hadden and Troy Tadlock.

- Michael White, a versatile finger picker on guitar.

- Aaron Baker, a singer and piano player.

Vendors will sell food, beverages and crafts at the park.

Ted Macklin, a sound technician who has played with Boulder Brothers and other groups, said the festival gives local musicians a chance to tell stories and perform.

"Of course we have some artists from outside the valley, too — I guess you could call it a venue for some great central Idaho musicians to play."

Author of ski-slope intrigue signs books in Twin Falls

Beth Groundwater will be the first to tell you it takes determination, perseverance and a thick skin to become a published author. Over 100 rejections netted her eight short stories in print, and 89 literary agents said no before one decided to take a chance on her. A vocation not for the faint of heart!

The Colorado author's "Claire Hanover, Gift Basket Designer, Mystery Series" debuted in 2007 with the publication of "A Real Basket Case." The book met with good reviews and was nominated for the 2007 Best First Novel Agatha Award (named for Agatha Christie).

Her second book, "To Hell in a Handbasket" (Five Star, $25.95), has just been released, and Groundwater will sign both books from 6 to 8 p.m. Thursday at Twin Falls' Barnes & Noble Booksellers.

The new book begins: "Claire Hanover's knees slammed up toward her chest. She shoved them down and around the mogul and braced for the next impact. Oof! Then the next and the next. All she could hear were her labored breaths and her skis swishing through three inches of Colorado champagne powder sprinkled over the bumps of packed snow.

"Her body lurched, thrown back on her skis. Punching out with her fist, she drove her downhill knee forward to regain her balance. It screamed in protest. She stabbed her ski pole into another mogul and swung around it. Three more turns, she promised her 46-year-old knees. Then we'll rest."

But this family ski vacation in Breckenridge for Claire, her husband, Roger, and their daughter, Judy, takes a deadly turn when the sister of Judy's boyfriend, Nick, is killed in what is initially thought to be a hit-and-run accident on the slopes. The action immediately ratchets higher when a black SUV causes a second hit-and-run death 24 hours later. It takes some doing, but Claire finally convinces the police and sheriff that the two deaths are connected and not accidents at all.

Unbeknownst to Nick, his father has been in the employ of a powerful Russian mobster from Denver for years. And now they want Nick to become part of the "family." This element makes for a gripping story.

The plot is fast-paced and intriguing, although a bit predictable and cliched at times. I found Groundwater's technique of having Claire ask herself questions and then answering them, or making asides (all in italics), to be very distracting. And the dialogue, which is a major test of skill for any author, was somewhat uneven and often did not ring true.

But this sophomore effort shows off Groundwater's humor and storytelling ability, and I predict we are going to see many more adventures with Claire Hanover. And mystery readers who like their tales with humor and a bit of spice will welcome them.

Country star lights up pavilion

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

SUN VALLEY — The new Sun Valley Pavilion goes country on June 19 when the covered outdoor concert hall hosts "Dancing with the Stars" alum Sara Evans.

She's a hot country star who ought to play well to Idaho audiences," said John Mauldin, Sun Valley's entertainment director.

Indeed, Evans has been all over the map of country music as she's racked up several Top 10 hits. Born in Boonville, Mo., she began singing with her family's band at age 5, even singing to help pay her medical bills when she was struck by an automobile. As soon as she was 16, she moved up the road a few miles to the college town of Columbia where she sang in a club for the next two years.

Evans grabbed a "Tiger by the Tail" when her recording of the song caught the attention of its songwriter, Harlan Howard, leading to a contract with RCA.

With a tug in the throat, she started as a traditionalist, following in the footsteps of female greats like Patsy Cline and Loretta Lynn before going pop country. Her first No. 1 record, "No Place That Far," a duet with Vince Gill, came in 1998.

"I remember it because I thought things could absolutely not get any better," she said. "I was expecting my first child and having my first No. 1 record."

Now, a decade later, she has plenty of other hits to croon about, including "Girl's Night Out," "A Real Fine Place to Start," "Suds in the Bucket" and "Born to Fly." She's been crowned the Academy of Country Music's Female Vocalist of the Year and received the CMA's Video of the Year for "Born to Fly."

in Birmingham, Ala., said she is releasing a new single, "Desperately," this month. Her first book, a fictional love story named after her song "The Sweet By and By" and published by a Christian book publisher, will come out in July.

She noted she'll celebrate a milestone in a love story of her own making — her first anniversary to Jay Barker, a former University of Alabama quarterback — just a few days before her Sun Valley appearance.

Free lecture remembers Depression photographer

Times-News

Clark Worswick, an expert on Walker Evans, will give an overview of the career of this influential photographer and discuss the connections between Evans' photography and work by other photographers on view at the Sun Valley Center for the Arts in Ketchum, in its "The Rural Vernacular" exhibition.

"In the world of 20th century American photography, the career of Walker Evans is unique," Worswick said in a press release. "In a career that spanned nearly 50 years, Evans profoundly — even radically — changed the way Americans look at themselves, their social causes and their country. It was Evans, almost singularly, who defined the American rural vision of itself during the Great Depression."

In his free lecture at The Center at 7 p.m. Thursday, Worswick will talk about Evans' approach to photography and the pull that Evans continues to exert on artists in the 21st century. Information: www.sunvalleycenter.org or 726-9491, ext. 10.

L.A. cast brings August Wilson's 'Fences' to Ketchum

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

KETCHUM — Gary Hoffman couldn't field the cast he needed to stage "Fences" in mostly white Sun Valley.

Nor could he find it in Twin Falls or Boise.

He had to go all the way to Los Angeles to find an all-black cast to produce August Wilson's Pulitzer and Tony Award-winning play.

But the effort is worth it, he said, considering the actors' impressive resumes — they include master's degrees in theater, work with Shakespeare companies around the world, parts in films like "Star Trek" and recurring roles on shows like "Seinfeld," "Law and Order," "Frasier" and "E.R."

The cast of seven will be directed by Ben Bradley, who received the L.A. Drama Critics "Best L.A. Director" in 2003 and 2008 for his work on Wilson plays chronicling the 20th century African-American experience.

President Obama and the First Lady recently saw "Joe

- When: 6 p.m. June 19; 7 p.m. June 20-21
- Where: nexStage Theatre, 120 S. Main St., Ketchum
- Tickets: The June 19 dinner theater show is $125, with proceeds benefiting The Community Library and nexStage Theatre. Catered by Ketchum caterer Jes Gelet, it will feature a buffet including paella and grilled pineapple skewers with sour cream maple ginger sauce. Audience members can meet the director and cast following the show. June 20-21 performances are $20 each; call 208-726-4TKS or 208-726-3493.

Turner's Come and Gone" — one of the Wilson plays that Bradley directed as part of that 10-part series.

"Fences" will open with a dinner show June 19 at the nexStage Theatre and conclude with regular performances June 20 and 21.

"This is a monumental work for the Wood River Valley to ponder," said Hoffman, whose Royal Larkspur Play Troupe has produced such classics as "Waiting for Godot." "It tells an incredibly moving story that is humorous, intense and compassionate."

The play is set in 1957 just as the Civil Rights movement is starting.

But it's not a racial play — rather, a human play about people struggling with relationships, money, children and the realization of their dreams.

There's a father who saw his dreams of playing major league baseball dashed at a time black ballplayers were segregated in the Negro League, said Connie Hoffman, Gary's wife. His son is being recruited for college football. But Dad is reluctant to let him go for it, fearing he, too, will face heartbreak.

"I saw the play in Los Angeles and it was absolutely one of the best plays I've ever seen," said part-time Ketchum resident Janis Abrams. "I would go anywhere to see it again."

The play is being produced in conjunction with the Smithsonian exhibit "Between Fences," showing at The Community Library in Ketchum through July 4.

"Fences" is a major, major work that uses fences as a metaphor for barriers, obstructions and hindrances of all types in society," said Gary Hoffman. "It's a wonderful play about what fences do.

And what they do, according to the play, is keep people out. But they also keep people in. And, in this case, they're a symbol of families and keeping families together."

Colombians wear masks as a precaution against swine flu, Thursday at a hospital in Bogota. The World Health Organization told its member nations it was declaring a swine flu pandemic Thursday, as infections climbed in the United States, Europe, Australia, South America and elsewhere.

WHO: Swine flu a pandemic, first in 41 years

By Maria Cheng and Frank Jordans
Associated Press writers

GENEVA — Swine flu is now formally a pandemic, a declaration by U.N. health officials that will speed vaccine production and spur government spending to combat the first global flu epidemic in 41 years.

Thursday's announcement by the World Health Organization doesn't mean the virus is any more lethal — only that its spread is considered unstoppable.

Since it was first detected in late April in Mexico and the United States, swine flu has reached 74 countries, infecting nearly 29,000 people. Most who catch the bug have only mild symptoms and don't need medical treatment.

WHO chief Dr. Margaret Chan made the long-awaited declaration after the U.N. agency held an emergency meeting with flu experts and said she was moving to phase 6 — the agency's highest alert level — which means a pandemic is under way.

"The world is moving into the early days of its first influenza pandemic in the 21st century," Chan said in Geneva.

Dr. Thomas Frieden, the new head of the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, said in Atlanta that he does not expect widespread public anxiety in the United States as a result of the declaration, noting it came nearly two months after the virus was identified.

For many weeks, U.S. health officials have been treating it as a pandemic, increasing the availability of anti-viral flu medicines and pouring money into a possible vaccination program. And scientists have grown to understand that the virus is generally not much more severe than the seasonal flu.

"That helps to tamp down any fears that may be excessive," Frieden said at a news conference — his first as CDC director.

But the virus can still be deadly and may change into a more frightening form in the near future, and so people should not be complacent, he added.

So far, swine flu has caused 144 deaths, compared with ordinary flu that kills up to 500,000 people a year.

The pandemic decision might have been made much earlier if WHO had more accurate information about swine flu's rising sweep through Europe. Chan said she called the emergency meeting with flu experts after concerns were raised that some countries, such as Britain, were not accurately reporting their cases.

Chan said the experts unanimously agreed there was a wider spread of swine flu than was being reported.

She would not say which country tipped the world into the pandemic, but WHO flu chief Keiji Fukuda said the situation from Australia seemed to indicate the virus was spreading rapidly there — more than 1,300 cases were reported by Thursday.

In Chile, authorities have identified almost 1,700 cases to WHO.

Many health experts said the world has been in a pandemic for weeks but WHO became too bogged down by politics to declare one.

2009 NBA FINALS

Lakers take OT win in Game 4

By Tom Withers
Associated Press writer

ORLANDO, Fla. — Kobe Bryant is one win from an NBA title to call his own. Derek Fisher got him there. Fisher forced overtime with a 3-pointer with 4.6 seconds left in regulation and then drilled another one with 31.3 seconds to go in overtime as the Los Angeles Lakers outlasted the Orlando Magic 99-91 in Game 4 on Thursday night to open a 3-1 lead in the NBA finals. It was the first time since 1984, when Magic Johnson's Lakers and Larry Bird's Celtics hooked up, that two games in a finals have gone to overtime. When the clock expired, Bryant, trying to win his first championship without Shaquille O'Neal, looked at Tiger Woods and wiped sweat from his brow in relief. Fisher, who has bailed out the Lakers in plenty of big games before, thrust both arms in the air in triumph.

The Lakers can wrap up their 15th title on Sunday night in Game 5. Bryant finished with 32 points, eight assists and seven rebounds. Trevor Ariza and Pau Gasol each had 16 for Los Angeles, which came back from a 12-point half-time deficit. Ariza had 13 of the Lakers' 30 points in the third quarter. The Lakers are 7-0 following a loss in this postseason. Unless they can force a Game 6, the Magic will remember this as another finals game that got away. Dwight Howard was magnificent everywhere but at the free-throw line. Orlando's superman of a center had 16 points, 21 rebounds and a finals-record nine blocks. But he made just 6 of 14 foul shots, and it was his two crucial misses with 11.1 seconds to go in regulation that doomed the Magic. First, Fisher, who has made a career of hitting memorable shots in clutch

Kimberly cruises past Twin Falls in Donnelley

By David Bashore
Times-News writer

In baseball, experience lends itself well to easier adjustments, be it shifting from metal bats to wooden ones or playing in sloppy conditions rather than pristine. The Kimberly Astros have plenty of experience and showed it against a team lacking in the same department. Kimberly scored nine runs in the first three innings, including a six-run third, and cruised to a 10-3 win over the Twin Falls Class A American Legion Baseball team in the Donnelley Sports Wood Bat Tournament at Bill Ingram Field on Thursday. The Astros cranked out 13 hits on the day, though few were well struck. They scored most of their early runs by remaining patient at the plate and dumping hits into shallow left and right field. "We knew coming with the wood bats that we really just needed to get the bat on the ball

Curtis excited, relieved to be a Marlin

Anderson, Smith taken on day three

By David Bashore
Times-News writer

College of Southern Idaho pitcher Tyler Curtis didn't even need a call to know he'd gotten the call — the Web beat the Florida Marlins to the punch.

"My dad was upstairs on the computer, and I was downstairs waiting for the call, and he found out first," said Curtis, who was selected Wednesday in the 13th round of the Major League Baseball First-Year Player Draft. "He came running down the stairs and telling me I needed to see something — I thought something bad had happened — but he showed me I'd been drafted, and we were all freaking out."

"I already knew about it when the Marlins called, so I was pretty emotional (on the phone)."

Curtis said the phone call was essentially a congratulatory call from the Marlins, who had been in regular contact with Curtis and initially indicated they were prepared to take him as early as the seventh round.

Congratulations were followed by an outlining of how the process will continue. The two sides now can work on the parameters of a contract, which must be signed by Aug. 17, as the traditional Aug. 15 deadline falls on a weekend.

Curtis expressed his relief after going through the wringer and added that while it's early in the game, he is leaning toward signing the pro contract if the deal is to his liking. If not, he'll honor his National Letter of Intent at Brigham Young University next season.

"We were all stressing out, just waiting through the whole draft process. At first it was really exciting, but now it's just kind of a big relief that all my hard work has paid off," Curtis said. "I think it's a good fit for me because they're younger, too, and hopefully I can work my way up through the system. It's going to depend on the package (offered), but I'm leaning toward signing with the Marlins. But I don't want to blow off BYU entirely, because they've been really good to me. I'll be happy no matter which way it works out."

Minico blasted in RBI tourney

By Ryan Howe
Times-News writer

RUPERT — One ugly inning and the lack of timely hitting cost the Minico Spartans American Legion Baseball Class AA squad in Thursday's RBI Tournament action at Warburton Field as Northridge (Utah) whipped the Spartans 12-2 in six innings. Pitcher Kolten Mahoney allowed just three hits while striking out five and walking three for Northridge, which is made up of all-star players from several schools spanning from

Layton to Logan, Utah. "We're facing high level teams and with the group of guys we have we're going to have to play good, clean baseball," said Minico coach Ben Frank. "Hopefully, our guys start getting tired of getting rolled on." Minico stranded seven base runners, six of them in scoring position. The Spartans loaded the bases with no outs in the first inning but could only score one run on a Northridge error. The Spartans tied the game 2-2 in the fourth when courtesy

NCAA places Alabama football program on probation

The Associated Press

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. — The NCAA placed Alabama's football program and 15 other of the school's athletic teams on three years' probation for major violations due to misuse of free textbooks, stripping the Crimson Tide of 21 football wins over a three-year period. The NCAA said 201 athletes in 16 sports obtained

"impermissible benefits" by using their scholarships to obtain free textbooks for other students. Alabama identified 22 athletes, including seven football players, as "intentional wrongdoers" who knew they were receiving improper benefits.

As a result, the NCAA ruled the football team must vacate any wins in which any of those seven players took part during 2005-07. Alabama said that pending a successful appeal, the decision would cost the program 21 wins, including the 2005 Cotton Bowl victory over Texas Tech and an upset of Florida earlier that season. Neither the football team nor any other sport lost postseason eligibility or scholarships. Opponents who lost games vacated by Alabama won't be allowed to change their records to reflect a victory.

The other 15 "wrongdoers" were members of the men's tennis, and men's and women's track and field programs. The NCAA said those individuals must

Sox sweep Yankees for 3rd time this season

BOSTON — J.D. Drew hit an eighth-inning rally, then scored the go-ahead run on Mike Lowell's fly ball to help Boston improve to 8-0 against the Yankees this year with a 4-3 win on Thursday.

It's the first time the Red Sox have opened the season with eight straight wins against their New York rivals since they helped christen the brand-new Fenway Park by winning the first 14 matchups against the Highlanders in 1912.

Takashi Saito (1-0) earned his first AL victory with four outs of scoreless relief, and Jonathan Papelbon pitched the ninth for his 16th save. David Ortiz hit his third homer in five games.

After cruising through seven innings, CC Sabathia (5-4) ran into trouble when Nick Green hit a leadoff single and Dustin Pedroia walked. The Yankees bullpen couldn't Sabathia out of the jam.

Branan contributed a sacrifice fly during a three-run rally in the third, then capped his night with a 450-foot blast in the seventh. Branan's team-leading 14th homer tied for the sixth-longest at Camden Yards.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL

Joe Montana's son headed to Washington

SEATTLE — Just like his dad, Nick Montana will wear a golden helmet in college. Unlike his famous father, he'll be doing it on the shores of Lake Washington and not under the watchful eye of Touchdown Jesus.

Nick Montana, the son of former Notre Dame and NFL great Joe Montana, has given a verbal commitment to play his college ball at Washington. He will be a senior at Oaks Christian High School in Westlake Village, Calif. this fall. He told his coach Bill Redell on Tuesday night of his decision to become a Husky after visiting the school last weekend.

Montana is considered one of the top prep quarterbacks for the class of 2010, rated by Scout.com as the No. 13 quarterback prospect in the country. Last season as a junior, he led Oaks Christian to a 14-0 record, threw for more than 2,500 yards and 33 touchdowns.

With one high school season left, Montana is already accepting the task of helping rebuild the once proud program at Washington.

OFFICIAL: NCAA VIOLATING FLA. OPEN GOVERNMENT LAWS

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. — The dispute between the NCAA and Florida State University over sanctions that could force the school to forfeit wins in 10 sports and a national track championship is drawing scrutiny from some of the state's elected officials.

The NCAA cannot privately respond to a Florida State appeal — which it's attempting to do in violation of the state's open government laws, the attorney general's office said Thursday.

Longtime football coach Bobby Bowden could possibly lose as many as 14 of his career if the penalty from an academic cheating case sticks. That would make it difficult for Bowden to compete with Penn State's Joe Paterno in their race for most victories among major college coaches. Paterno begins the 2009 season with 383, one more than Bowden.

Florida State has until July 1 to respond to the NCAA letter.

AG CLOSES INVESTIGATION INTO ANDRE SMITH CASE

MONTGOMERY, Ala. — Alabama Attorney General Troy King has closed the investigation into former Alabama star Andre Smith's alleged dealings with a sports agent.

King said Wednesday the investigation found no probable cause to believe anyone violated Alabama's sports agents law. Crimson Tide coach Nick Saban suspended the All-America left tackle days before the Crimson Tide's Sugar Bowl game against Utah amid allegations that Smith or a person representing him had improper contact with a sports agent.

The Alabama Uniform Athlete Agents Act requires sports agents to register in Alabama and prohibits them from giving anything of value directly or indirectly to a student athlete. The law also requires sports agents to notify university officials if a contract has been made with an athlete.

PHILADELPHIA GETS ARMY-NAVY GAME 5 OF NEXT 8 YEARS

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — The Army-Navy football game will be held in Philadelphia for five of the next eight years, beginning in 2010.

The Naval Academy announced Tuesday that the annual duel between the service academies will be played at Philadelphia's Lincoln Financial Field in 2010, 2012, 2013, 2015 and 2017.

The teams will play at FedEx Field, home of the Washington Redskins, in 2011. Baltimore's M&T Bank Stadium, where the NFL's Ravens play, will host the event in 2014 and 2016.

Penguins and Red Wings go one more time for Cup

Stanley Cup

Game 7
Penguins at Red Wings
6 p.m., NBC

DETROIT — Nicklas Lidstrom, Chris Osgood and Kirk Maltby spread out like a perfectly shaped triangle in the Detroit Red Wings dressing room and tried to explain how Game 7 of the Stanley Cup finals is really like any other game.

When that seemingly unbelievable message comes from guys who have championship rings that nearly cover a whole hand it begins to sound plausible.

"It's hard to really mentally sell it to yourself that it's just another game, but it is," Maltby said Thursday.

Lidstrom, Maltby, Tomas Holmstrom and Kris Draper are going for their fifth title in 12 seasons Friday night in Game 7 against the Pittsburgh Penguins. Osgood is on the verge of a fourth ring, third as the Red Wings starting goalie.

Detroit had a shot for its second straight Cup on Tuesday night in Game 6, but fell 2-1 in Pittsburgh. The Red Wings have one more chance to secure it, and they will try at home where they are 11-1 in the playoffs — 3-0 in this series.

"It's no different," said Osgood, 15-7 with a 2.00 goals-against average in the playoffs. "Game 7 is just another game to win the Cup. That was our Game 7 in Pittsburgh."

Given the chance to practice in Detroit on Thursday, Penguins coach Dan Bylsma decided the upside wasn't enough to sacrifice another day at home. The Penguins skated one last time in Pittsburgh before flying to Detroit.

History strongly favors the Red Wings heading into the final game of the season. Home teams are 12-2 in championship Game 7s and have won 80 of the 128 playoff series that have gone the distance (62.5 percent).

situations, pulled up and without hesitating dropped a 3-pointer over Orlando's Jameer Nelson with 4.6 seconds left to tie it 87-87. The shot stunned the Magic's maniacal crowd, which was hoping the home team could win its second straight finals game after dropping its first six.

Fisher had missed his first five 3s, but came up with one the little left-hander will cherish forever.

Just as they did in Game 2, Orlando had one final try, and this time guard

Courtney Lee, who misfired on a tougher-than-it-looked layup in that loss, wasn't on the floor. The Magic inbounded the ball to Mickael Pietrus, but his long and contested jumper was off.

Bryant scored two quick baskets in the overtime, and Howard tied it when he split two free throws with 1:27 remaining.

On L.A.'s next trip, Ariza grabbed his own miss to get another 24 seconds and Fisher lined up and drilled his 3-pointer from the top of the key to make it 94-91.

vacate any records they hold and team point totals will be reconfigured accordingly from regular season and postseason events.

The student-athletes acquired textbooks and materials of value greater than $100 for friends and other student-athletes. The four biggest offenders in dollar value were among the seven football players, who received from $2,714 to $3,947 in improper benefits.

The other sports hit with probation were softball, baseball, gymnastics, women's basketball, soccer, volleyball and both the men's and women's teams in basketball, golf, swimming, tennis and track and field. Only five of the school's 21 athletic programs were not involved.

The university was ordered to pay a $43,900 fine.

The university uncovered the violations after an

Alabama Supply Store employee realized that an athlete had more than $1,600 in charges for the fall 2007 semester and alerted school officials. Athletes get free textbooks with their scholarship, but some were accused of getting additional textbooks for other students.

When Sam Eller came on in relief of Hill, Twin Falls seemed to have a reversal in fortune, but it was a case of too little, too late as the Astros pushed the lead to 9-0 after three innings.

Eller's control and a late mini-surge were two things the Cowboys looked to build upon for today's pair of games.

"We need to clean up our game a little bit, and execute better," said Twin Falls coach Mark Schaal. "We struggled to throw strikes early and gave them a few easy runs ... with the wooden bats (scoring) four or five runs is probably going to win the game for you. We just need to execute better and throw strikes, but we're a young team and playing against older teams is good for us."

Kimberly's roster is comprising way to Chaz Myers, who picked up the win with four innings of relief work. Isaac Hill was tagged with the loss for the Cowboys, struggling with his control and failing to make it out of the third inning.

Mitchell Stewart delivered the biggest counterpunch the Cowboys could muster, smacking a two-run double down the left-field line in the bottom of the sixth. The only other run Twin Falls scored came in the fourth courtesy of a fielding error and three balks.

Twin Falls and Kimberly will both play the other two teams in the tournament, Capital and Blackfoot, today. Twin Falls plays at 10 a.m., and 5:30 p.m., while Kimberly plays the two middle games at 12:30 p.m., and 3 p.m.

Who looks like the real capitalists now?

Another reason to love European football: Owners who really wheel and deal.

JIM LITKE

Over here, people think Mark Cuban is a maverick and that the Yankees throw money around like sheiks. Over there, Cuban would be as controversial as lint, and some of the teams that throw around enough money to turn the Yankees green with envy really are owned by sheiks — not to mention a Russian oligarch, an Indian steel czar and the serial headline-making prime minister of Italy.

Over here, big clubs develop some players, draft a few and trade for the rest. Over there, the players that don't come up through their own system, they simply buy from somewhere else — a billionaire's fantasy league stretching around the globe.

So who looks like capitalists now?

"Here's one way to think about it," said John Binder, an economist and associate professor at Illinois-Chicago who studies the European game. "If you want a copy machine, you just buy it. You don't offer somebody two desks and a box of pens for it.

"Unlike American owners, the people who own teams in Europe can buy players, and do."

Do they ever. On Thursday, with Spanish construction magnate Florentino Perez back in control of the team, Real Madrid agreed to pay English club Manchester United a record transfer fee of $131 million to bring Portuguese star Cristiano Ronaldo to Spain. Ronaldo, arguably the best player in the world, won't see much of the fee. And all Real got for its money was the privilege of negotiating a contract with him, likely to be in the neighborhood of six years for upwards of $60 million.

Perez also set the previous record, just three days ago, by buying Brazilian star Kaka from AC Milan for $92 million. No word yet on what he's likely to want, though reports say he rejected a deal earlier this year from two English clubs rumored to be between $150 million and $200 million.

Now consider that Perez, who doesn't actually own the club so much as call the shots as its president, has been back in power for 10 days or so. And that Real, despite winning the league title in 2007-08 and finishing second to Barcelona this past year, is on its third coach since last December.

Perez perfected his shell game during his first stewardship of the club, from 2000-2006. He won election back then by promising to dazzle Real's 60,000 members with the game's biggest stars and delivered. He brought in the "galacticos" — a group that included Zinedine Zidane, Luis Figo, David Beckham, Raul Gonzalez, Roberto Carlos and the other Ronaldo — by setting record transfer fees one month and breaking them the next.

Perez promised to do it again this time, without naming names.

"When we talk about assembling a team of All-Stars, like people here think the Yankees do, we're still talking about a sport that sells almost entirely to one country," said Binder, the economist. "But if you've got an All-Star team in soccer, you can sell it everywhere around the world.

"That," he added, "is a whole lot of cash."

Jim Litke is a national sports columnist for The Associated Press.

Mickelson trails upon return

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — Phil Mickelson wasted no time firing up fans with birdies on the opening two holes. Then came a sliced tee shot into the water and a nearly four-putt green. He birdied two of the last three holes.

A typical round for one of golf's most unpredictable stars.

Returning to work for the first time since disclosing last month that wife Amy has breast cancer, Mickelson got off to a solid start in the St. Jude Classic with a 2-under 68 that left him four shots behind Brian Gay. Mickelson wore a pink ribbon stitched into the side of his white cap and at times looked fatigued.

Jose Maria Olazabal, a two-time Masters champion recently elected to the World Golf Hall of Fame, was the day's surprise. Still coping with arthritis pain, the Spaniard shot a 66 to finish in a group that included Rich Beem and Graeme McDowell.

John Daly, playing on the PGA Tour for the first time since a six-month suspension for off-course activities that brought unwanted publicity, shot a 72.

Gay has narrowly missed out on qualifying for the first two majors, although he has one chance left. Having won at Hilton Head last month, a victory this week would get him into the U.S. Open. He led by one shot over Jimmy Walker.

CASTRALE LEADS LPGA CHAMPIONSHIP

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md. — Nicole Castrale birdied six of the first nine holes and finished with a 7-under 65 to take a one-shot lead over rookie Anna Nordqvist after the opening round of the LPGA Championship.

Castrale's 6-under 30 was the lowest score on the front nine at Bulle Rock since the tournament moved from DuPont Country Club in 2005. Taking advantage of a wet course that slowed the greens, Castrale played virtually flawless golf until a drive into the rough on 18 led to her only bogey of the day.

Castrale, who had a career-low 64 at Bulle Rock in 2006, has one career win in seven years on the LPGA Tour — the 2007 Ginn Tribute — and hasn't finished better than a tie for 15th this year. Nordqvist is playing in her fourth professional tournament.

China's Shanshan Feng was third at 67.

Michelle Wie shot a 70, Lorena Ochoa had a 72, defending champion Yani Tseng was at 73, and Brittany Lincicome, seeking to win a second straight major, had five bogeys and a double bogey en route to a 75.

Motivated by two recent losses, Phelps races again

SANTA CLARA, Calif. (AP) — Michael Phelps has descended from the mountains of Colorado still stinging from two recent losses in the pool.

The 14-time Olympic gold medalist feels he has something to prove, mostly to himself, and he hopes to avenge those defeats this weekend at the Santa Clara Invitational Grand Prix.

Last month, Phelps was beaten by a couple of world recordholders in the 100-meter freestyle and backstroke events at the Charlotte Grand Prix, his first meet since capturing a record eight gold medals at the Beijing Games. He also won two events — the 100 butterfly and 200 free.

Phelps said Thursday after practice that losing will motivate him. He is back in serious training, having spent the last three weeks at high-altitude.

2010 MAZDA 3 SEDAN

RAISING THE BAR – AGAIN!

First Look!
By Ken Chester, Jr.
Motor News Media Corporation

In sync with consumers' mindset-change toward affordable, efficient, yet high-quality automobiles, Mazda presents the all-new 2010 MAZDA3. This redefined, reengineered, and restyled sport compact climbs atop its predecessor's tall shoulders to deliver improved appearance and performance, fresh features, and an unmatched level of refinement.

Like all Mazdas, the 2010 MAZDA3 has the soul of a sports car, ensuring that driving enjoyment is a top priority. In response to the rising expectations of a dedicated sport-compact customer base and new consumers attracted to a fuel-efficient yet highly versatile 4-door sedan, this second-generation model also offers: a more sophisticated and exciting exterior hinting at Mazda's Nagare (motion and flow) design philosophy; elevated driving dynamics attributable to comprehensive body, chassis, and powertrain enhancements; key safety and environmental upgrades; a higher level of standard and optional equipment; and an overall sophistication that ventures beyond the sport-compact segment to rival import models costing thousands more.

The MAZDA3's styling begins with a bold grille

that is purposely polarizing. The combination of the two medium-sized grille openings used previously into one larger opening also pays functional dividends.

Designer Jonathan Frear said, "Shifting the air-intake lower on the car increases the pressure of the flow. As a result, the actual grille opening is 20-percent smaller than what was necessary with the previous generation MAZDA3. Most of the air is routed over the hood or around the sides of the car, yielding a significantly lower drag coefficient. Cars equipped with an automatic transmission have a second driver's-side inlet opening that routes air through a heat exchanger."

Base power for the MAZDA3 is generated by the MZR 2.0L four-cylinder engine, while 's' models are equipped with a more powerful 2.5L prime mover (up in displacement from last year's 2.3L engine). Two transmissions are offered in the MAZDA3: a smooth-shifting manual box or a sophisticated, electronically controlled automatic with a manual-shift mode. Both are fitted with five forward speeds.

The MZR 2.5-liter engine is available with a six-speed manual transmission or a five-speed electronically controlled automatic with manual shift control, borrowed from the larger, up-market MAZDA6.

Inside the passenger cabin, the new MAZDA3's cockpit is configured to support the driver in a more dedicated manner than any sport-compact competitor. Two large instrument clusters are carefully positioned and clearly marked to deliver engine and road speed information. Key controls are located in the steering wheel spokes where they can be reached with minimum distraction.

A new Multi-Information Display screen containing navigation, audio, and trip information is positioned high on the instrument panel to avoid the need for the driver to refocus vision off the road ahead. A second screen slightly to the right provides station frequency and climate control setting information.

The new instrument panel top cover is a padded, seamless, and elegantly grained surface that sweeps from the center console to both A-pillars. The center console provides two cupholders, a sliding armrest, and a roomy storage box, before blending in a continuous curve into the instrument panel. HVAC and audio controls are large, properly textured and illuminated to provide a visual feedback that a command has been received. A damper is included to smooth the opening and closing of the small compartment built into the instrument panel, the overhead sunglasses storage box and the roomy glove box.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE

Bobby Wolff

"You, for example, clever to a fault..."

Read somewhat seldom, think perhaps even less."

— Robert Browning

Today's deal, from the 2008 Open Trials, is a complicated one. Look at the play in three no-trump, and note in passing that four hearts may need the hearts to split, while the no-trump game has extra chances.

Declarer was Babu Koneru, whose RHO doubled the three-spade cue-bid. This gave Koneru a good clue that the spade ace was on his right.

The opening lead was the spade 10, promising the nine and a higher honor. East knew declarer could not run the hearts. To keep communications open in spades, he craftily inserted the jack at the first trick, breaking one of the cardinal rules about finessing against partner. His plan was to get the lead in hearts, play spade ace, and lead another spade to his partner. But Koneru was too clever for him: he ducked the first trick, playing for this precise lie of the cards.

The defenders might still have prevailed if they had seen all four hands. They needed to shift to diamonds early, so that West could regain the lead for a club play. That way, the defenders take two spade tricks and one in each of the other suits. But after East continued the attack on spades at the second trick, declarer could take one spade trick, six hearts and the two minor-suit aces for the contract.

Whether or not you agree with declarer's play, you must congratulate East and South on their play to the first trick.

ANSWER: This sequence does not suggest a weak hand with only three clubs, correcting to a better partscore. It suggests a strong hand, probably with a 1-4-3-5 pattern, looking for game. Since clubs offer the best trump fit and you have a decent hand, bid four clubs to invite game.

Mom's careless spending may cost her children their home

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: I am torn about what to do. My sister has five children, all under 18. She has full custody and receives child support every month from her ex-husband. The problem is, she has been spending the money that's intended for the children on her boyfriends. Because of it, they have been homeless twice, and it may happen again.

women's restroom with me if no family bathroom is available. He can use the bathroom by himself, of course, but I worry about who might be lurking in the men's room while he is out of my sight. Other mothers say they agree that a "bad man" could be loitering in public restrooms these days.

The only person in that household with a steady job is the oldest — a boy — but he can't support all of them by himself. How can I make my sister see how irresponsible and immature she is?

Is it more traumatic for him to come into the ladies' room or have me stand outside the men's room yelling, "Is everything all right in there?"

My nephew would like to move out, but he is afraid it would seem like he is abandoning his family. Please help me.

— ALARMED AUNTIE IND.C.

DEAR ALARMED AUNTIE: Your sister's behavior is not only irresponsible, but also dangerous for the welfare of her children. If it is possible to contact their father and let him know what has been going on, I'm recommending that you do so. You should also contact Child Protective Services because while foster care is not "ideal," it would be better than what is going on in your sister's household.

DEAR LISA: If your son is old enough to be embarrassed by having to come into the women's restroom, then he should not be forced into it. It is not necessary to stand outside the men's room yelling, "Is everything all right in there?" Simply announce loudly when your son enters that you will be "waiting right here," so anyone inside will know he is not alone. Then, if your son isn't out in a reasonable period of time, ask if everything is all right. And if he doesn't respond, check on him.

Abby, what is the proper etiquette for such situations?
— CAN PAY MY WAY IN TENNESSEE

DEAR CAN PAY: Your friend's father is obviously a man of means, who could afford to treat you and did not feel comfortable allowing you to pay for the meals and hotel expenses. It is possible that he comes from the "men pay for everything" generation. While you may be too young to remember, it's the one that grew into adulthood before the women's rights movement. Rather than having given your friend money to pass along to her dad, a better solution would have been to send her parents a lovely gift with a letter included, thanking them for their generosity.

DEAR ABBY: I am embarrassing my 7-year-old son. I make him come into the

IF JUNE 12 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: You could want too much, too soon during the next few weeks. Don't press too hard for agreements or make promises, as you must take the time to get into shape physically, mentally and emotionally before you can widen your future horizons. In August you may be offered something that seems very attractive or lucrative, but may entail too many responsibilities or hardships. For the best success, wait for September to make a change, apply for a new job, make a decision about a romantic commitment or undertake anything of great importance in your life. You will find that opportunity knocks again in December and that is another very fortunate time to put the most important plans or decisions into motion.

HOROSCOPE

be tough and get going. You might perform your best under pressure.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Choose quality over quantity. A yen for excitement may make someone more adventurous than usual. Everyone's routines or plans might be disrupted just to appease one person's thirst for change.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Someone who is a perfectionist isn't necessarily perfect. Be diplomatic if you must double-check details or if someone is a stickler for a faultless performance. A pushy person could annoy you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A surprise or two is good for your psyche. Changing tastes or altered viewpoints may not last so don't spend too much time or money on something that is slightly frivolous or out of the ordinary.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Pick and choose. If you are popular and in demand, it would be wise to be discriminating about new hookups. You can be original where work is concerned, but remain conservative with your finances.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): The porridge is too hot. Like Goldilocks, you experiment with different situations or styles looking for the one that is just right. Just don't overstep the bounds of propriety or invade other people's spaces.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Someone may compete with you for the top position. If you aspire to be top gun in your profession or workplace, be as nice as possible. You can handle sudden changes of plan and surprises with dexterity.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Live and let live. You can't undo or erase the past, but you can find ways to avoid repeating it. Certain mistakes or errors could come to your attention. This may mean the time is right to fix them.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Today is Friday, June 12, the 163rd day of 2009. There are 202 days left in the year.

20: Embrace change and innovation. The people you meet now might not stay in your life for more than a blink of an eye, but could still offer powerful insights or open your eyes to some exciting possibilities.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): All that you truly need lies within you. Things in the past that have deeply distressed you for days on end should be dealt with on the spot so you can flush them completely out of your system.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): If you break enough rules, a new rule eventually is created. Until that time, you must yield to the pressure to conform and stick to what you know best. Seek the sound advice of a close friend or partner.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Casual hookups don't need to turn into bosom buddies. Keep a smile on your face and mingle with like-minded acquaintances, but don't be suckered into perpetuating an emotionally draining relationship.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Be regarded by others as someone who isn't self-righteous or complacent. When the going gets tough, you can be counted upon to

LEGAL NOTICE

The Idaho Department of Fish and Game was informed by the Bureau of Fisheries and Regional fishery managers that, through June 7, weekly angler surveys indicated that about 89 percent of the State's harvest share of hatchery Chinook salmon greater than or equal to 24 inches total length (adults) returning to the Clearwater River drainage was harvested. Angler surveys also indicate that about 66% of the State's harvest share of hatchery Chinook salmon less than 24 inches total length returning to the Clearwater drainage was harvested. By June 11, anglers likely will have harvested about 94 percent of the State's share of Chinook salmon greater than or equal to 24 inches total length and about 70% of the State's share of Chinook salmon less than 24 inches total length. The majority of that harvest has occurred downstream of the Orofino Bridge.

To provide opportunity in fisheries in the South Fork Clearwater and Lochsa rivers to harvest Chinook salmon greater than or equal to 24 inches total length and upstream communities, such as Orofino, Kamiah, Kooskia and Grangeville to continue to harvest Chinook salmon less than 24 inches total length, the Bureau of Fisheries recommends closing the North Fork Clearwater River and the mainstem Clearwater River fisheries downstream of the Orofino Bridge effective the end of fishing on June 11, 2009. The Bureau of fisheries also recommends prohibiting retention of Chinook salmon greater than or equal to 24 inches total length in the mainstem Clearwater River from the Orofino Bridge upstream to the South Fork Clearwater River effective the end of fishing on June 11, 2009 and closing the Chinook salmon fishery in the mainstem Clearwater River from the Orofino Bridge upstream to the South Fork Clearwater river effective the end of fishing on June 17, 2009.

Pursuant to his authority under Idaho Code Section 36-106(e)(6) (A), the Idaho Department of Fish and Game Director hereby closes the North Fork Clearwater River and the mainstem Clearwater River downstream of the Orofino Bridge effective the end of fishing on June 11, 2009. The Director also closes the mainstem Clearwater upstream of the Orofino Bridge to the South Fork Clearwater River to the retention of Chinook Salmon greater than or equal to 24 inches total length effective the end of fishing on June 11, 2009 and closes that section of the Clearwater River upstream of the Orofino Bridge to the South Fork Clearwater River to Chinook salmon fishing effective the end of fishing on June 17, 2009.

Copies of Order 09-33 are available at the Idaho Department of Fish and Game headquarters, 600 South Walnut, PO Box 25, Boise, Idaho 83707.

Have you considered serving food, Burt?

At first, yes...

But the overhead for inventory and hiring a cook was a bit too much...

Even if you had a microwave and frozen dinners, I bet you'd have a bunch of sales!

I'd personally settle for a sleeve of saltines and Velveeta a right now...
