Woman, two boys arrested in Craig Hadden shooting

Police say suspects also plotted to kill police officer

By Andrea Jackson
Times-News writer

JEROME — A Shoshone woman is accused of recruiting her teenaged son and another boy to shoot her former father-in-law, and then offering an undercover federal agent $10,000 to kill a Shoshone city police officer, according to court records.

Traci N. Hadden, 34, was lodged Friday in the Twin Falls County Jail on a $1 million bond in connection with the April 1 attack on Craig Hadden, 61, a Shoshone businessman who survived being shot four times in the driveway of his Lincoln County home.

Traci Hadden's 15-year-old son, Blue, is charged as a juvenile with accessory to a felony, solicitation of first-degree murder, and grand theft. Another boy, Michael Cannon, 16, is charged as an adult with attempted murder and solicitation of first-degree murder. Authorities would not give Cannon's hometown, or say how he was connected to the Haddens.

After Craig Hadden was shot he told police he suspected his ex-daughter-in-law was responsible.

Investigators planted a GPS tracking device on Traci Hadden's car and discovered she was spending late nights and early mornings at Cannon's house when his parents weren't home or were sleeping, according to Lincoln County Court records.

Authorities then followed Traci Hadden and saw her and Cannon engage in an "intimate embrace," court records show.

But the case took off for author-

Officials: City does not own Murtaugh cemetery

By Jared S. Hopkins
Times-News writer

City of Murtaugh and Twin Falls County officials now say the one-acre parcel in Murtaugh where the Artesian City Cemetery sits is not owned by the city and instead belongs to the Coiners, a longtime farming family in the Magic Valley.

The Twin Falls County Sheriff's Office began an investigation last month into whether graves at the historic cemetery were disturbed when trees and weeds were removed.

In the latest twist to a saga that's driven a wedge into the small farming community, officials said last week that records show the land belongs to a trust with the family of state Sen. Chuck Coimer of Twin Falls.

Coimer, who wasn't aware his family owned the land, said it should be transferred to a public entity. But the Murtaugh City Council decided it's not interested — adding one more question

Final signoff for analog TV broadcasts

By Peter Svensson
Associated Press writer

NEW YORK — TV shows were replaced by the hiss of static in perhaps 1 million U.S. homes Friday as stations ended their analog broadcasts and abandoned the transmission technology in use since the days of Milton Berle, Sid Caesar and Howdy Doody.

The vast majority of households that rely on antennas for their TV signals were prepared for the shutdown, but many people remained vexed by the challenge of setting up digital reception.

Hundreds of people began lining up about 3 a.m. Friday outside the Freestore Foodbank in Cincinnati, five hours before the agency began giving out 250 free digital converter boxes. The center had given all the converters away by 10:30 a.m., and many people were still in line.

Harvey Durrett, 48, said he got in line about 6 a.m. but was unable to get a converter, which costs about $40 to $60 in electronics stores unless the consumer has a $40 coupon from the government.

"I'm on disability, and I can't really afford to buy one," Durrett said. "I can't get anything on my TV now, so I guess I'll have to go to friends' houses if I want to watch anything."

Any set hooked up to cable or a satellite dish is unaffected by the end of analog broadcasts, but around 17 million U.S. households rely on antennas. Nielsen Co. said poor and minority households were less likely to be prepared for Friday's analog shutdown, as were households consisting of people younger than 35.

TV stations were free to choose when in the day to cut their signals, and many were holding off until late at night. That means the full effect of the shutdown will not be apparent until this weekend.

At WTTG, a Fox affiliate in Washington, the 11 a.m. newscast concluded with the signoff used when the station was a part of the old DuMont Broadcasting Network — playing The Star-Spangled Banner, followed by a test signal. Then at noon, the station showed an engineer pushing a red button to shut off the analog broadcast.

TV stations, electronics stores and the government said most of the calls they received Friday were from people who had converter boxes, but needed help setting them up.

Burley man leads police on 3 a.m. car, foot chase

By Damon Hunzeker
Times-News writer

BURLEY — A Burley man's attempt to elude police Friday morning did not work out very well, at least not for him.

Cassia County Sheriff's Deputy Brice Nelson, while observing vehicles north of Burley at 3 a.m. Friday, followed a vehicle that, according to the police report, straddled the dividing line of the road. The 1994 Saturn was driven by Justin Daniels Adams, 21, of Burley.

After Nelson turned his overhead lights on, the suspect's vehicle didn't stop. Nelson then turned on his siren "to see if the driver was just not paying attention," the report reads.

The driver accelerated from 31 mph to 50 mph and drove through Heyburn — "almost crashing into a fence" and running at least five stop signs, according to the report.

Before entering Burley, the vehicle allegedly drove south on U.S. Highway 30 at 88 mph and passed a truck.

In Burley, Adams allegedly turned on Hiland Avenue and headed north before he

CSI praises earmarks as a boon to campus

Federal money pays $1.76 million to improve traffic

By Ben Botkin
Times-News writer

At the College of Southern Idaho, federal earmarks have made a mark on the campus.

Federal earmarks, used by lawmakers to direct money toward a specific cause, have brought more than $2 million to CSI in recent years. While earmarks sometimes are derided as "pork," earmarks serve a useful, beneficial purpose for the college, CSI President Jerry Beck said Friday in a Times-News editorial board meeting.

For example, federal earmarks have provided $1.76 million in the past three years for the Student Safety Initiative. That has paved the way for the college's redesigned entrance at Falls Avenue that was identified as a problem area for accidents. The project included a traffic signal at the intersection.

The money also will go toward work on the new Cheney Road bypass from North College Road to Washington Street. The money was secured through the offices of Sen. Mike Crapo and Rep. Mike Simpson, both Idaho Republicans.

Earmarks can work when they are used appropriately and focus on a project that offers a significant return to taxpayers, said John Revier, Simpson's deputy chief of staff.

The traffic safety work, along with other funding for the college's manufacturing program, meet that requirement, he said. "They both stand as a good example of how earmarking can be used," he said, adding that traffic infrastructure has long been recognized as a legitimate need. Other earmark-funded projects at CSI are:

- $285,000 that will buy equipment for the college's manufacturing technology program. That includes equipment that simulate machining technology and actual machining equipment.

- $200,000 for online education courses that school paraprofessionals are required to take for their credentials.

Projects such as the manufacturing technology program are an upfront investment that fills a need by training employees for the local workforce, Revier said.

MORNING BRIEFING

Pat's Picks

Four things to do today

Pat Marcantonio

It's a busy day with lots to choose from.

• History comes to life at the Jerome County Historical Society's Live History Days from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Idaho Farm and Ranch Museum, northeast of the junction of U.S. Highway 93 and Interstate 84. It includes demonstrations and lots more. Admission is $5 with kids 12 and younger free. Sunday features a church service at 11 a.m. You can tour the farm afterward.

• The Southern Idaho Writing Workshop takes place from 9:30 to 5 p.m. at Idaho Pizza Co., 1859 Kimberly Road, Twin Falls. Classes include "Plotting and Pacing," "Writing and Marketing the Short Story" and "Writing Creative Nonfiction." Cost is $35, but doesn't include lunch.

• It's free fishing day from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. at Riley Pond at the Hagerman State Fish Hatchery and 8 a.m. to noon at Gaver's Lagoon at the Hayspur Fish Hatchery near Picabo. You get a hot dog lunch, casting lessons, and lots more.

• And one more: Open microphone night gives local performers a chance to shine. Sound will be provided. It starts at 6 p.m. at the Riverside Park and Amphitheater in Heyburn. It's free to watch and perform, but call 312-7157 or 878-7529 to get on the schedule.

Have your own pick you want to share? Something that is unique to the area and that may take people by surprise? E-mail me at patm@magicvalley.com.

The informant told police the boys came to him because they thought he was a Hells Angels motorcycle club member, and they wanted to sell stolen ATVs and guns, and have him kill Shoshone Police Officer Michael Thompson, records show.

That's when police brought in a U.S. Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives agent to pose as another Hells Angels member and "meet with Blue Hadden, Mike Cannon and possibly Traci Hadden to discuss purchasing the ATVs, guns, and murder for hire," court records show.

At that June 10 meeting in a motel room, Traci Hadden allegedly told the agent that both she and her son wanted Thompson dead, although no motive is listed in court papers.

"Traci Hadden said that she would call him to her house or fake a traffic accident or whatever it took to get the officer where they needed him to kill him," according to court papers.

Traci Hadden allegedly arranged for Cannon to pull the trigger on her former father-in-law, authorities assert, though she allegedly told the confidential informant "that she planned it: she sat above Craig Hadden's house for two weeks watching his movements; told the boys where to park; and where to shoot from," court records show.

No motive for the shooting is listed in court papers, but there was recent friction between Hadden and his ex-daughter-in-law, according to court papers. The day before the shooting, the Lincoln County courts issued a no-contact order against Traci Hadden on behalf of Craig Hadden. And she is accused of other crimes against her former father-in-law before the shooting.

On Nov. 26, she was charged with misdemeanor trespassing for allegedly entering Hadden's property "after repeatedly being told not to enter," according to Lincoln County court records. That was after Hadden wrote the court saying his former daughter-in-law may claim to have personal property on his farm, but that he told her he would call the police if she entered.

In court Friday in Twin Falls, Traci Hadden briefly questioned the allegations, though ultimately she said she understands the charges.

"When they booked me in they said it was for grand theft, and then I was served with a warrant, so I don't know," she said during her brief arraignment on the Lincoln County warrant in Twin Falls 5th District Court.

Traci Hadden has a criminal record dating to 1996 that includes grand theft, forgery and illegal possession of a weapon, said Idaho Department of Correction Spokesman Jeff Ray.

Craig Hadden said Friday he feels safer in light of the arrests but declined further comment.

Authorities also said Friday during a news conference at the Idaho State Police office in Jerome that the community is safer now.

Before the arrests Hadden was recovering from his injuries in an undisclosed location due to security concerns, and he said last month that he might return to his home at 212 E. 620 N. where he lived for 20 years, and go back to running his businesses. He ran Idaho Yak ranch, Hadden Realty, CDL Storage, Main Stop gas and convenience store and an unnamed loan business.

A Shoshone Police dispatcher reached Friday night said Chief Robert Quiroga and Thompson had both been placed under a gag order and could not comment about the case.

Traci Hadden has yet to be assigned another court date.

Craig Hadden had offered a $10,000 reward for information about his shooting. It is unknown if the confidential informant claimed the reward.

The Times-News usually does not name juvenile defendants, but is doing so in this case because of the serious nature of the charges against Blue Hadden and because his identity would be obvious because he is the son of Traci Hadden, said Editor James G. Wright.

"slammed into the curb ... (bed)room there was a male laying on the bed wearing the same clothing that he had on when he ran from his car," the report reads.

Following a couple of other evasive maneuvers, the vehicle ended up in an alley near Seventh Street and Normal Avenue.

"The driver got out of his vehicle and ran west-bound between two trailer houses," according to the report.

A passenger in the vehicle — a 42-year-old Burley man — told police he knew the driver's address but not his name.

The passenger gave the driver's address to Nelson, who looked up the vehicle's registration and found that it matched the address. The passenger told police that the driver "didn't want to stop because he thinks he has a warrant out of California." Adams was born in San Francisco.

After knocking on the door of the identified residence, a woman — Terra Britt, 40, identified by a horsehead tattoo on her left breast — answered but refused admittance.

Nelson called a county prosecutor and was told "we did have probable cause to go into the house to find the suspect because of the fresh pursuit ... I kicked the front door," the report reads.

"When we entered the (bed)room there was a male laying on the bed wearing the same clothing that he had on when he ran from his car," the report reads.

Both Britt and Adams were arrested — Britt for obstruction, Adams on a felony eluding charge.

On the way to jail, according to the report, Nelson asked Adams why he ran away and what he was thinking. "I wasn't thinking," Adams allegedly said. When asked about passenger, Adams allegedly told police, "He was telling me to stop, but I told him if he got in the driver's seat we would stop."

Later in the day, Cassia County Sheriff Randy Kidd talked about the general problem of eluding police officers.

"If the risk outweighs the gain, the shift supervisor always has the discretion to call off a chase, depending on the traffic and other conditions associated with the time of day," he said.

"In this case, that early in the morning, there wasn't much traffic, but we're always cognizant of the danger involved, and it always presents a risk to be driving that fast."

mark to the issue.

Twin Falls County Sheriff's Office Spokeswoman Lori Stewart said the investigation should finish early next week.

Last week, detectives discovered a headstone, perhaps validating claims made by residents that the cemetery was desecrated when it was cleaned up in late April. Coiner said he was told a few days ago he owned the land, but he and his family agree it should be in public hands.

"We don't need to own it and it needs to be in the hands of a public entity," said Coiner.

The cemetery was part of a large land sale in 1949 to Coiner's father and uncle, both of whom are now deceased, from a woman named Ethel Stoner, according to documents shown to the Times-News by Bill Hollifield, Murtaugh's city attorney. But in 1996, the Coiners left out the cemetery when they sold the land to farmer Darrell Funk.

On Monday, the City Council held a closed-door meeting to discuss whether to acquire the one-acre parcel. Afterward, no motion was made, indicating the council isn't interested, whether as a purchase or as a donation, Hollifield said.

Meanwhile, it remains unclear how or why workers uprooted trees and buried weeds at the cemetery in late April. After saying he asked Funk to clean the cemetery, Mayor Dee Hunsaker has since claimed he was misquoted. Funk has not returned phone calls since the issue erupted. Last week, Hunsaker deferred comment to Hollifield.

"It's my understanding Funk asked the mayor," said Hollifield. He said Hunsaker obliged because "the City Council for the last five, six years thought it was theirs and did have control over it."

It's unclear how the City Council came to believe it owned the cemetery. County officials have been unable to find the deed to the property.

Mychel Matthews, the most vocal resident on the matter, said residents are waiting until the sheriff's investigation is over.

"We have no intention of dropping it but we're not going to just jump the gun," she said. "We are taking it very seriously."

Tom Gilbertson, treasurer of the county's historical museum who also sits on the county's historical commission, said he hopes the cemetery is preserved. He said accepting it as a donation is a possibility, as is its incorporation as a nonprofit. He's a partner in a local nonprofit and said it might explore acquiring the land, too.

Twin Falls County Prosecutor Grant Loebs said the owner of the land could play a role "depending upon what happened." Under state law, desecration of any grave, cemetery, headstone, grave marker or similar burial area is considered a misdemeanor.

Flash flood watch returns today

Times-News

The National Weather Service has again issued a flash-flood watch for southern Idaho this weekend, prompted by the possibility of heavy rain falling on ground already drenched by previous storms.

The watch runs from this afternoon to late Sunday and covers most of the southern half of Idaho, locally including most or all of Blaine, Camas, Cassia, Gooding, Jerome and Twin Falls counties. It serves as an early warning that conditions favorable to flash floods may develop over the weekend — highlighting small-stream and urban-street flooding as possibilities.

The agency issued a similar watch last weekend. On the night of June 6, a former Owyhee County sheriff's deputy died when he was washed off of Idaho Highway 78 in his car by a flash flood.

Filer to honor fallen WWII aviator

Memorial to Wayne Gentry dedicated today

By John E. Swayze
Times-News correspondent

FILER — Maxine Wanzenried can hardly believe a casual dinner conversation led to the creation of a World War II memorial honoring the service of her brother, U.S. Navy 2nd Lt. Wayne Roy Gentry, who was killed in action Nov. 2, 1942, in the Solomon Islands.

"I told John and Lori Holt my brother's story about two years ago," Wanzenried, of Twin Falls, said. "There was comment at the time about doing something, but Wayne would be blown away by the idea that someone would do this for him."

Today, the Holts will dedicate a memorial flag pole and plaque to Gentry at 214 Main St. in Filer, honoring the former Filer High School standout athlete who gave his life for his country at age 22.

"I really support these guys who decide to go into the military," John Holt said. "It's sad when we forget about someone like Wayne, and we're trying to make sure that doesn't happen."

Second Lt. Wayne Gentry's sister, Maxine Wanzenried, talks about a photo collage of Gentry, the destroyer escort USS Gentry named in his honor and news articles about Gentry's life and military service. A memorial honoring Gentry will be dedicated today in Filer.

Filer. He was a four-year letterman in football, basketball and track and field at Filer High. Wanzenried remembers listening to a radio broadcast of one of her brother's football games as a fifth-grade student.

"All through the game it was Gentry did this or Gentry did that, and I was so proud of my brother," she said.

Through his time in service, Gentry kept in touch with family through a steady stream of correspondence. Many of his letters to Wanzenried contained tidbits of brotherly advice on subjects from dating to getting school pictures taken.

"Just be a lady" or "Try to look your best because I want a good one," Wanzenried said she read.

"He must have thought I was flighty or maybe a tomboy."

On May 27, 1942, Gentry transferred to the U.S. Marine Corps as part of the Marine Torpedo Bombing Squadron 132 "Crying Red Asses," flying the Douglas SBD Dauntless A-24 Banshee dive bomber.

on Guadalcanal Island on Oct. 30, 1942 with the objective of removing the Japanese threat to shipping routes. Three days later, he was killed in action over the Solomon Islands.

Wanzenried said wartime precautions made details hard to come by, but she was told her brother volunteered for a dangerous mission.

"We don't know if it was to strafe enemy ships or what, but he crashed and the only way they could identify his body was by the serial number on his pistol," she said.

Gentry's bravery was recognized with a posthumous Air Medal and later by naming the destroyer escort USS Gentry after him. On Feb. 15, 1944, Wanzenried traveled to Orange, Texas, to launch the ship named after her brother, breaking a bottle over its bow.

"Wayne's men thought so much of him and his integrity that they put his name in for consideration," Wanzenried said. "Even after all these years it's still hard, but I'm so proud of him."

401K-9: Twin Falls initiates police dog retirement plan

By Nichole Carnell
Times-News writer

Now all officers can retire with minimal worry, including those with four legs.

On Thursday, Twin Falls County commissioners adopted the county's first canine retirement resolution. The resolution was needed due to the increase of the K-9 unit that is being initiated by the sheriff's department, said Sheriff Tom Carter.

There was previously no official policy on how to retire the dogs, said Carter.

The newly adopted retirement plan requires homes for the retired dogs to have fenced yards, and prohibits cats or young children to live in the homes.

Families will be able to purchase K-9 retirees from the sheriff's office for no more than $250, according to the resolution, which gives the sheriff's department discretion to choose the best family.

"We want to find the best home for the dog and give it the quality of life that it deserves," said Carter.

An additional three K-9 officers are being added to the unit, giving the department one strictly narcotic dog and three dual-purpose dogs which would be trained in narcotics as well as patrol.

Currently the sheriff's department is training one K-9 from Germany, Flynn, a 20-month-old German shepherd, who was purchased for about $8,000. In addition, the department has received one narcotics dog free from Canyon County. The sheriff's department is currently in the process of purchasing an additional dual-purpose dog to complete the K-9 unit expansion.

"The K-9 is a tool for the department, but that's not to say the two don't become attached," Carter said of the K-9 teams.

The sheriff's department currently has one K-9 on the force that is nearing retirement age. Croix, a 9-year-old dual-purpose German shepherd, and his handler, Deputy Morgan Case, have been a team since 2003. Croix lives with Case and is with him on patrol at all times. "Anytime he is out, he is technically training," said Case. "Croix is a working dog."

Croix is what Case called an "any day dog," being that any day could be his last on the force. "I think it's great," said Case when asked about the new resolution.

Croix and Case have won many awards from the Idaho Police Canine Association, including first place in narcotics last year and multiple high finishes in obedience. "Croix and I have had a great run," said Case, "We're a team."

Volunteer church group had swine flu in N. Idaho

COEUR D'ALENE (AP) — Panhandle Health District officials say no local residents have reported swine flu symptoms after a volunteer church group with infected members recently hosted events in the area.

District spokeswoman Cynthia Taggart said the group of about 100 from a San Diego church spent a week in the area, and had a barbecue for law enforcement officials and worked on volunteer projects.

On June 4, a state laboratory in Boise confirmed that a woman in her 20s in the group tested positive for swine flu, and over the weekend confirmed four more members had the illness.

Taggart said the church group responded quickly and isolated sick group members at a hotel in Ponderay. She said the group returned to California by bus on Tuesday.

"They were wearing masks and they had a lot of hand sanitizer," Taggart told The Spokesman Review.

In eastern Idaho, a student group from Japan that was scheduled to travel to Idaho Falls in July and August as part of Sister Cities International has canceled the trip due to swine flu concerns.

MacKenzie O'Bleness, the 13-year-old secretary for the Idaho Falls Sister Cities Student Delegation, said all Sister Cities group trips to and from Japan have been canceled nationwide.

"I was very sad," she told the Post Register. "We're talking about doing some pen pal things."

Red Cross might not see any money from house sale

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — A five-bedroom home built with donated labor to raise money for the American Red Cross of Greater Idaho has finally sold, but it's unclear if the nonprofit will receive any of the money.

The home failed to sell at its original price of $289,000 in April 2007 and then failed to attract enough interest in a raffle earlier this year when only about 500 tickets sold, falling short of the minimum needed.

"The raffle was our last attempt to facilitate the disposal of the house," Sue Robinson, chief executive officer of Red Cross of Greater Idaho, told the Post Register.

The raffle did raise $50,000, which the Red Cross split with the winner.

About 100 businesses donated labor, products and services to build the 2,800-square-foot house that includes a home theater system.

After failing to attract a buyer in 2007 the price was reduced to $225,000 in 2008. Then when the raffle failed the Eastern Idaho Homebuilders Association in January assumed responsibility for selling the house.

Kerry Howell, a real estate agent with High Desert Realtors, said the price was reduced to $195,000 and the house sold about three weeks ago.

"Now that it has actually sold, it is totally up to the (home builders association) if they choose to make a gift from the proceeds," Robinson said.

Brett Skidmore, association president, said it had to pay the mortgage, gas and electric fees while the house sat unsold, and will have to pay the closing costs once the sale is final.

Idaho Supreme Court hears Micron price-fixing case

By Rebecca Boone
Associated Press writer

BOISE — The Idaho Supreme Court heard arguments Friday on whether a shareholder's lawsuit against Micron Technology Inc.'s board of directors should be allowed to proceed.

The lawsuit, brought by Scott Orrock on behalf of the company, contends that Micron CEO, President and Chairman Steven Appleton and several members of the board participated in a price-fixing scheme starting in 2000, and that the board failed to correct the behavior or hold anyone responsible for years.

Micron, a Boise-based major producer of computer chips, has faced legal problems over allegations that it worked with other companies to fix the price of dynamic random-access memory chips, or DRAM.

Micron was granted immunity by the U.S. Justice Department during an investigation into whether chip companies conspired to manipulate the number of DRAM chips released to market in order to inflate prices. That investigation resulted in more than $730 million in fines and guilty pleas from four companies — Samsung Electronics Co., Elpida Memory Inc., Infineon Technologies AG and Hynix Semiconductor Inc.

Although Micron was given immunity from criminal charges, it was not protected from civil lawsuits. In 2007, Micron settled a federal class-action lawsuit on behalf of customers that alleged price-fixing and violations of antitrust laws. Micron has also been named in an antitrust lawsuit filed by at least 35 states, including Idaho.

Orrock's lawsuit was filed as a derivative action, which allows a shareholder to sue company leaders or insiders on behalf of a corporation, claiming they failed to exercise their authority for the benefit of the company.

Normally, derivative lawsuits require that a shareholder first present the board with allegations and demand that board members take action. Orrock didn't present a demand to the board, so 4th District Judge Darla Williamson dismissed the suit.

On Friday, Orrock's attorney, Marc Umeda, told the Supreme Court he should be exempt from the requirement because he knew that asking the board to change would be futile. The board knew or should have known the price-fixing was occurring, Umeda said, and chose not to investigate, try to stop it or seek redress from those involved.

"Ninety-five percent of Micron's revenues came from DRAM. Stock prices went up and down based on the price of DRAM," Umeda said. "If your company is DRAM and you sit on the board of directors, I don't think it's too much to expect you to know what's going on with DRAM prices."

Barry Kaplan, the attorney representing the board of directors and the other defendants, said Orrock had nothing to back up his claim that the board knew about any price-fixing scheme.

"Before you decide to skip the important step of making demand (to the board) you need to know why it will be futile," Kaplan told the justices. "Instead, plaintiff here has skipped all of that process and comes here and says, 'I don't know, and nobody knows, but this is my supposition of what happened.' That's a silly assumption."

Orrock claims that at least as early as 2000, board members consciously ignored warnings that would have alerted them to Micron's role in the price-fixing conspiracy. Even after the company was subpoenaed to testify before a federal grand jury, Orrock contends, the board failed to take the wrongdoers out of their positions with the company or seek any redress for the millions of dollars the scheme cost Micron.

Kaplan said the board fully cooperated with the Justice Department, mitigating any damages to the company, and that Orrock's lawsuit contains nothing to show the board did not act in good faith.

The Supreme Court took the matter under advisement and could issue its ruling before the end of the year.

QUOTABLE

“When you’re alone like me, that’s my partner.”
 — Patricia Bruchalski, 82, about her TV as some one million homes are affected by the switch from analog to digital television

PETA tries to enlist local cops in war against circuses

JEERS: To People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals, the Norfolk, Va.,-based animal-rights group, for seeking to deputize Twin Falls County Sheriff Tom Carter and Twin Falls Mayor Lance Clow in their campaign against the Shrine Circus.

The circus came to the Twin Falls County Fairgrounds in Filer on Thursday, including two elephants named Tina and Jewell, owned by Will Davenport. The pachyderms are ill, according to PETA, and wanted Carter and Clow to conduct a snap inspection.

Davenport, PETA says, is in trouble with the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service for mistreating the elephants.

We wonder how anyone in the Twin Falls County Sheriff’s Office or Twin Falls City Hall would be qualified to judge the health of an elephant. More likely PETA’s request was just another salvo in the group’s long-running effort to outlaw circuses with animals.

We’d take this complaint more seriously if it came from a mainstream animal-welfare organization like the Humane Society.

CHEERS: To Burley Economic Development Director Doug Manning, for landing another big employer.

Magic Valley Poultry International plans to build a chicken-processing plant in Burley that will eventually create 1,000 new jobs.

Manning’s Burley Development Authority and the Mini-Cassia Development

Commission are on an impressive winning streak, attracting major employers such as DOT Foods, Hy-Line, Gossner Foods, Brewster Dairy, High Desert Milk and Packaging Specialties since 2006.

“Cassia wasn’t really showing any construction activity before 2007 but Twin Falls was seeing a lot of it,” Jan Roeser, regional economist for the Idaho Department of Labor, told the Times-News recently. “But within the past couple of years Cassia has seen significant growth while Twin Falls has slacked off.”

JEERS: To Marie Bulgin, director of the University of Idaho’s Caine Veterinary Teaching Center, for an oversight that may have driven state policy toward bighorn sheep in the wrong direction.

Bulgin claims she didn’t know of research in her own shop linking bighorn deaths to bacteria they likely contracted from domestic sheep on the range. Remarkable, considering that her own daughter conducted some of the DNA analysis.

The UI is now investigating statements made by Bulgin, a past president of the Idaho Wool Growers Association and an ally of ranchers fighting federal efforts to protect bighorns by restricting grazing in on public land near western Idaho’s Hell’s Canyon area.

Based on the assumption that bighorn sheep pass disease to domestic sheep — and not vice-versa — the Legislature passed a bighorn management law this year that requires the Idaho Department of Fish and Game to develop plans which could involve killing or moving bighorns straying too close to domestic sheep grazing allotments on federal land.

“It is my opinion that essentially all scientists who work with bighorn sheep or have evaluated the scientific literature dispute or ignore most of the testimony that (Bulgin) has given for the last several years,” said Washington State University microbiology professor Bill Foreyt.

Bulgin is no longer credible. She should resign.

The faces of the mortgage meltdown

Late last year, on a weekend afternoon, I spotted the husky teenager next door packing boxes in the garage.

I’ve known the kid, James, since he was 4. He was best friends with my son, Jesse. They were inseparable — “Jesse James” I used to call them. Our entire families seemed woven together. For years, James’ two older sisters had tag-teamed as our baby sitters.

So I asked James, now 18, what was up with all the boxes. He looked at me glumly and said, “We’ve got three days to get out.”

JOEL SAPPELL

James and his family had lost their home in the Eagle Rock section of Los Angeles to foreclosure.

I’m not sure exactly how this happened, but I do know that money had been tight since his dad was laid flat by a heart problem. An older brother, meanwhile, had gotten himself into some bad — and probably costly — legal problems.

The truth is that, in recent years, as Jesse and James grew older, they also grew distant, finding new friends and interests at different schools. His sisters moved away, and I rarely saw the mom and dad anymore.

But none of that mattered when I saw the sadness in James’ face, a look I hadn’t seen since those boyhood days of skinned knees and hurt feelings. Instantly, all those foreclosure stories I had been reading meant a whole lot more to me. This wasn’t about toxic assets. This was about a struggling family, which, after 14 years, would vanish from the neighborhood in three days.

Week after week, whenever I looked at that padlocked house, I wondered how James and his family were faring in their Glendale apartment. And I thought about all the other young people who’ve been forced to make this wrenching transition — whether or not their folks recklessly gambled on subprime loans or drained their home’s equity for big-screen TVs and big cars, or simply had a run of bad luck. Regardless of the reasons, I had come to see the foreclosure mess as utterly depressing.

Then I met Hilary and Mark.

Engaged, the young couple snapped up the house next door at a bargain price from an investment company that had bought it at a foreclosure auction.

“We never thought we’d be able to afford a house in L.A.,” says Mark.

“I pinch myself every time I crawl into bed,” says Hilary.

Both in their early 30s, Hilary and Mark were a revelation, a ray of sunlight in the foreclosure storm. Yes, a door has slammed shut on many unfortunate homeowners. But another has been flung open for thousands of first-time buyers like Hilary and Mark, who had been locked out of the housing market by soaring prices.

The latest survey by the National Association of Realtors found that, in the first quarter of this year, first-time buyers accounted for nearly half of all purchases. Hilary and Mark say most of their apartment-dwelling friends are now searching, including one couple that has asked wedding guests for one gift: a contribution to a house fund.

My new neighbors found the home on an Internet real-estate site, where it had been listed for just three days. The investment company had made a few fixes, slapped on some paint and jacked up the price by more than $100,000, which was still a deal.

In the next couple of years, Hilary and Mark plan to bring a child into the home that once housed five. In the meantime, they spend weekends together planting flowers and entertaining friends on their patio. They’ve brought a new spirit to the home and to the neighborhood.

One of our community’s most prolific real-estate agents, Tracy King, tells me she sees a lot of buyers like my neighbors — enthusiastic first-timers who spot the charm and potential in smaller homes that more experienced buyers reject. “After being in the business a long time,” she says, “you forget how exciting it can be.”

I remember that excitement. The Craftsman home where my wife and I live with our son and daughter is our first. And, like Hilary and Mark, we thought we never would be able to swing homeownership — until the market dropped in the late ’80s and early ’90s, leaving many mortgage casualties in its wake.

I first visited the place at sunset on a glorious day of Santa Ana breezes. A golden light poured through the wood-framed windows. I called my wife and said without a trace of doubt: “I’ve found our dream home.” That was 15 years and a million cherished memories ago.

Who knows whether my children will be able to afford their own homes or whether my wife and I will be able to scrape together enough cash to help them, as my parents did for us. But as I’ve watched the anguish and then joy unfold next door, and reflected on my own experiences, I know there’s no point in worrying now. For in real estate — like life — the future always will deliver the unexpected.

Not all congressional earmarks are pork

Each of us is affected in some way by the deficits, downturns and employment cutbacks that lurk in every corner of our world today. No wonder there's so much tension, anxiety and anger over these conditions and the people we blame for them. More than at any other time most of us can remember, these are difficult days to be an elected leader. Every vote that has anything to do with people's tax dollars is viewed with great suspicion. In the space the Times-News has graciously allowed me today, I would like to shed some necessary light on one of those terms that has become a red flag, a flashpoint and has produced controversy:

Congressional earmarks. These additions to major budget bills, sometimes cleverly concealed within legislation that has nothing to do with what the addition will fund, have long been referred to as "pork." Often, they become a way for members of Congress to "reward" their constituents or the groups who got them elected. Notwithstanding the sometimes colorful history of earmarks, I would like to illustrate how the College of Southern Idaho — and all of us in southern Idaho — benefit from some of these earmarks.

READER COMMENT

Congressman Mike Simpson and Sen. Mike Crapo have been especially helpful and forward-looking as they have directed funding to projects that benefit

CSI, its students and our communities. These funds have names such as "Student Safety Initiative," "Paraprofessional Online Learning" and "Pro-Tech." They may sound awkward but in fact their benefits reach deep into the fabric of southern Idaho:

- A total of $1.76 million is making Twin Falls traffic smoother and safer for all of us. The Student Safety Initiative helped fund the redesign of the CSI entrance at Falls Avenue that in recent years was the site of many accidents and many more near-misses between vehicles and pedestrians. Some of that money will also be used to create the new Cheney Road bypass from North College Road to Washington Street. We can now see the great need for this project as traffic increases exponentially in that area.

- $285,000 has just been awarded to CSI's new Manufacturing Technology program. This means that people who felt consigned to menial jobs are able to train on state-of-the-art equipment for careers that will do more than just make ends meet. Young people can also learn these technical skills that will prepare them to enter the job market sooner and more profitably.

- Education for paraprofessionals that once required much sacrifice to accommodate classroom schedules can be largely accomplished online, thanks to another earmark of $200,000 that makes this possible.

As CSI's president, I have some idea what it's like to make long-range decision that will be viewed in the short term less than positively. That gives me an even greater respect for the jobs our members of Congress do. I applaud their wisdom and courage.

On behalf of CSI's board of trustees and the students and the communities we serve, I express thanks to Congressman Simpson and Sen. Crapo for many efforts on our behalf. Thanks also to first-term Sen. Jim Risch, whose vision of a better future gave rise to CSI's soon-to-be-completed Health Sciences building that will expand student access to some of tomorrow's most important jobs. You have my promise that CSI will continue to ask only for what we need most and what will be of greatest benefit to southern Idaho.

Jerry Beck of Twin Falls is the president of the College of Southern Idaho.

Americans won't get fooled again

Perhaps you've seen those television commercials denouncing health care reform as a plot to create a Canadian-style totalitarian nightmare, and you feel a wee bit scared.

Back in the election campaign, some people spread rumors that Barack Obama might be a secret Muslim conspiring to impose Sharia law on us. That seems unlikely now, but what if he's a covert Canadian plotting to impose ... health care?

Rick Scott, a former hospital company chief executive, leads a group called Conservatives for Patients' Rights. He was forced to resign as CEO after his company defrauded the government through overbilling and is now spending his time trying to block meaningful health care reform by terrifying us with commercials of "real-life stories of the victims of government-run health care."

So here's a far more repre-

sentative "real-life story."

Diane Tucker, 59, is an American lawyer who moved to Vancouver, B.C., in 2006. Like everyone else there, she now pays the equivalent of just $49 a month for health care.

Two years ago, Tucker was working on her office computer when she noticed she was having trouble typing with her right hand. "I realized my hand was numb, so I tried to stand up to shake it out," she remembered. "But I had trouble standing."

A colleague called 911, and an ambulance rushed her to the nearest hospital. "An emergency room doctor met me at the door, and they took me straight upstairs to the CT scan," she recalled. A neurologist explained that she had suffered a stroke.

Tucker spent a week at the hospital.

There were two patients to a room, and conditions were not as opulent as at some American hospitals. "The food was horrible," she said.

Then again, the price was right. "They never spoke to me about money," she said. "Not when I checked in, and not when I left."

Scaremongers emphasize the waits for specialists in Canada, and there's some truth to the stories. After the stroke, Tucker needed to make an appointment with a neurologist and an ophthalmologist to see if she should drive again. Initially, those appointments would have meant a two- or three-month wait, although in the end she managed to arrange them more quickly.

Last year, Tucker fainted while on a visit to San Francisco, and an ambulance rushed her to the nearest hospital.

"The first person I saw was a lady with a computer," she said, "asking me how I intended to pay the bill!"

Tucker had insurance, but was told she would have to pay herself and seek reimbursement. She was discharged after five hours. The bill came to $8,789.29.

If Tucker's story surprises you, you should know that Scott's public relations initiative against health reform is led by the same firm that orchestrated the "Swift boat campaign" against Sen. John Kerry. These commercials are just as false. President Obama is not proposing government-run health care — just a public insurance element in the mix.

In 1993, the "Harry and Louise" commercials frightened Americans into abandoning health reform. Let's ensure those scare tactics don't work this time.

Retail sales climb 0.5 percent in May

Report shows largest increase since January

By Martin Crutsinger
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — Retail sales rose by the largest amount in four months in May, as a rebound in demand at auto dealerships and gas stations helped to offset continued weakness at department stores.

The Commerce Department said retail sales increased by 0.5 percent last month, in line with economists' expectations. It was the largest increase since sales surged by 1.7 percent in January following six straight declines.

The May advance could be another signal that the worst of the recession is over.

However, the all-important consumer sector is not expected to come roaring back, given all the troubles facing households as the country slogs through the worst recession in decades.

The 0.5 percent May increase followed two straight declines including an April drop of 0.2 percent, which was originally estimated as a larger 0.4 percent fall.

BUSINESS BRIEFS

Julietta man sentenced on fraud and tax charges

LEWISTON — A 44-year-old Julietta man has been ordered to spend a year in federal prison for bankruptcy fraud and failure to file an income tax return.

U.S. District Judge Edward Lodge also ordered Jeffrey Lewis Grinolds to pay more than $200,000 in restitution.

Grinolds was accused of filing for bankruptcy in 2003, claiming he only had $30 cash and an interest in a wrecked truck worth $300. He also denied being self-employed.

But the IRS investigated and found he had interest in a sole proprietorship called Grinolds Fabrication, interests in logging contracts and a savings account with more than $4,000.

Federal prosecutors said Grinolds also failed to file income tax returns for 2003, despite earning more than $389,000 during that period.

He pleaded guilty to the charges last September.

Mortgage company files for liquidation

COEUR D'ALENE — A Coeur d'Alene mortgage modification company has filed for bankruptcy.

Apply 2 Save Inc., which said it could negotiate restructured mortgages for homeowners facing foreclosure, closed its doors last month. The company filed for liquidation in U.S. Bankruptcy Court on Tuesday, listing assets of $5.2 million and $7.8 million in liabilities — with most of the liabilities in the form of employees seeking back wages and clients who say they didn't get what they paid for when they sought the company's intervention.

The state of Idaho sued Apply 2 Save in Kootenai County District Court in April, contending the company preyed on desperate homeowners.

Labor, aging seek applicants for seven VISTA volunteer positions

The Idaho Department of Labor and the Idaho Office on Aging are seeking applicants for seven positions through the Volunteers in Service to America program.

The Office on Aging volunteer will help design and develop services for older workers.

The Labor Department volunteers — stationed in local offices throughout the state — will help coordinate jobs funded by federal stimulus dollars and develop apprenticeships, work force service orientations, job search workshops, job clubs and tools to identify worker skills that can be transferred to new occupations.

Applicants must have an e-mail address. To apply go to <https://my.americorps.gov/mp/login.do> and click on "Apply to Serve" to begin the process. The deadline is June 23.

For more information contact Diana Kearby at 208-332-3570 ext. 3080 or by e-mail at diana.kearby@labor.idaho.gov.

Spuds to spirits

E. Idaho distiller turns potatoes into vodka

By Jimmy Hancock
Idaho State Journal

RIGBY — Ken Wyatt started his New Hampshire-based company in 2001, while Allison Evanow started her California-based operation in 2004. Both are considered up-and-comers in the spirit industry.

Wyatt's company distributes 44 Degrees North, which boasts three different vodkas under that label, including a huckleberry-flavored spirit that has become the top-selling flavored vodka in the Gem State.

Evanow is making her mark in the industry as one of, if not the only, 100 percent organic spirit label in the U.S. Her label, Square One, offers three different organic vodkas, including a cucumber-flavored variety.

But besides flexing their entrepreneurial spirit by taking on the "big boys" and offering their own specialty brands of premium vodka, each has another thing in common — Distilled Resources Inc., also known as DRinc. And both agree that the Rigby-based distiller is an instrumental partner in the success they are experiencing.

"They really understood what I tried to do all the way and believed in it," Evanow said. "They really are partners. They approach it as if they have an ownership in the brand."

Neighbors are forcing neighbors into foreclosure

Lacey Pilat, left, and her husband, Steven Pilat pose outside their home in Irving, Texas. Thousands of Americans who have more or less kept up with their mortgages are still in danger of losing their homes because they made a fateful trade-off in this shaky economy — they let their homeowner association dues slide. The couple is among those who have been threatened with foreclosure after Lacey, lost her job catering lavish corporate parties and nearly lost the house.

The fine print of homeowner associations is getting more attention from struggling owners

By Paul J. Weber
Associated Press writer

IRVING, Texas — Thousands of Americans who have generally kept up with their mortgages are still in danger of losing their homes because they made a fateful trade-off in this shaky economy — they let their homeowner association dues slide.

Many homeowners are learning to their surprise that condo and neighborhood associations that oversee security patrols, mow lawns, plant flowers and clean the community swimming pool may have the right to foreclose when dues aren't paid. That right is often written into the purchase agreement signed by the homeowner.

Among those who have been threatened with foreclosure is Lacey Pilat, who lost her job catering lavish corporate parties and nearly lost her two-story house in this Dallas suburb.

"Basically, our landscaper was foreclosing on the house," said Steve Pilat, her husband. "That's the way we looked at it."

These foreclosure actions do not necessarily pit neighbor against neighbor. Many homeowner associations have turned the job of collecting member dues over to outside management companies. And to them, it's strictly business, not personal.

GM, Chrysler executives defend dealership closings

Some lawmakers criticize move as short-sighted

By Ken Thomas
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — General Motors and Chrysler executives defended the closings of hundreds of dealerships Friday as House lawmakers questioned whether the decisions would save any money or help the troubled companies rebound.

"Many dealers and the communities they serve frankly feel blind-sided," said Rep. Greg Walden, R-Ore.

GM CEO Fritz Henderson told a skeptical House panel that the dealer cuts were "quite painful" but necessary to preserve over 200,000 jobs at GM's remaining dealers.

"In essence, this is our last chance," Henderson told the House Energy and Commerce Committee's oversight and investigations subcommittee.

Chrysler Deputy CEO Jim Press said the cuts were "the

Auto sales rose by 0.5 percent last month, the best showing since a 2.7 percent surge in January. Even with the gain, sales are still 21.5 percent below where they were a year ago as autotmakers continue to struggle with the worst sales environment in decades. In an effort to spur demand, autotmakers have stepped up their incentive offers.

Excluding autos, retail sales were up 0.5 percent in May, better than the 0.2 percent gain that economists had been expecting.

Much of that strength, however, came from a 3.6 percent jump in sales at gasoline service stations, an increase which reflected in large part rising gasoline prices. The retail sales are not adjusted for inflation. Sales were also up at hardware stores, grocery stores and health stores. Those gains helped to offset a 0.2 percent drop at general merchandise stores, a category which includes department stores and big retail chains such as Wal-Mart.

Last week, many U.S. retailers reported disappointing sales for May. The tally by Goldman Sachs and the International Council of Shopping Centers showed that overall same-store sales fell 4.6 percent, worse than the 3 percent drop predicted. Sales at stores open for at least a year are considered a key barometer of retail health. To cope with the longest recession of the post World War II period and an unemployment rate which has hit a 25-year high of 9.4 percent, many families are spending less and saving more as they deal with layoff fears and shrunken home equity and retirement accounts.

In one hopeful sign, a Federal Reserve snapshot of economic conditions issued Wednesday found that five of the central bank's 12 regions said the economy's downward trend "is showing signs of moderating," and hopes for future business activity improved.

The Fed survey is consistent with observations from Fed Chairman Ben Bernanke and other central bank officials that the recession - which started in December 2007 and is now the longest since World War II - is loosening its grip on the economy.

Many analysts predict the economy is sinking at a pace of between 1 and 3 percent in the current quarter. If they are right, that would mark a big moderation from the steep declines seen since last fall. The economy shrank at a pace of 6.3 percent in the final quarter of last year, and by 5.7 percent in the first three months of this year. It marked the worst six-month performance in 50 years.

Homeowner association boards and their management companies defend the practice, saying maintaining the neighborhood preserves everyone's property values.

"We have compassion for those folks. At the same time, we feel for the rest of the homeowners who are paying their dues," said Andrew Schlegel, executive vice president for Merit Property Management, which manages more than 140,000 California homes in community associations.

In California, associations can foreclose only after 12 months of missed fees or $1,800 in back dues.

Key health care senators have industry ties

WASHINGTON (AP) — Influential senators working to overhaul the nation's health care system have investments and family ties with some of the biggest names in the industry. The wife of Sen. Chris Dodd, the lawmaker in charge of writing the Senate's bill, sits on the boards of four health care companies.

Members of both parties have industry connections, including Democrats Jay Rockefeller and Tom Harkin, in addition to Dodd, and Republicans Tom Coburn, Judd Gregg, John Kyl and Orrin Hatch, financial reports showed Friday.

Jackie Clegg Dodd, wife of the Connecticut Democrat, is on the boards of Javelin Pharmaceuticals Inc., Cardiome Pharma Corp., Brookdale Senior Living and Pear Tree Pharmaceuticals.

Dodd is filling in for ailing Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., chairman of the Health, Education, Labor and Pensions Committee, which will soon start work on a health care bill.

Other publicly available documents show Mrs. Dodd last year was one of the most highly compensated non-employee members of the Javelin Pharmaceuticals Inc. board, on which she has served since 2004. She earned $32,000 in fees and $109,587 in stock option awards last year, according to the company's SEC filings.

Mrs. Dodd earned $79,063 in fees from Cardiome in its last fiscal year, while Brookdale Senior Living gave her $122,231 in stock awards in 2008, their SEC filings show. She earned no income from her post as a director for Pear Tree Pharmaceuticals but holds up to $15,000 in stock in Pear Tree, which describes itself as a development-stage pharmaceutical company focused on the needs of aging women.

The annual financial disclosure reports for members of Congress are less precise.

They only require that assets and liabilities be listed in ranges of values.

Dodd sought a 90-day extension to file his report covering last year, giving him until mid-August to submit his report, but released his report Friday to The Associated Press.

Bryan DeAngelis, Dodd's spokesman, said, "Jackie Clegg Dodd's career is her own; absolutely independent of Senator Dodd, as it was when they married 10 years ago. The senator has worked to reform our health care system for decades, and nothing about his wife's career is relevant at all to his leadership of that effort."

DeAngelis said that Mrs.

Dodd has hired a personal ethics lawyer to avoid any conflicts of interest and is not a lobbyist.

Other reports showed: • Rockefeller, D-W.Va., reported $15,001 to $50,000 in capital gains for his wife from the sale of a stake in Athenahealth Inc., a business services company that helps medical providers with billing and clinical operations.

Rockefeller is honorary chairman of the Alliance for Health Reform, a Washington nonprofit whose board includes representatives from the UnitedHealth Group health insurance company; AFL-CIO labor union; the AARP, which sells health insurance; St. John Health, a nonprofit health system that includes seven hospitals and 125 medical facilities in southeast Michigan; CIGNA Corp., an employer-sponsored benefits company; and the United Hospital Fund of New York.

• Coburn, R-Okla., is a practicing physician. He reported slight business income, $268, from the Muskogee Allergy Clinic last year; $3,000 to $45,000 in stock in Affymetrix Inc., a biotechnology company and pioneer in genetic analysis; $1,000 to $15,000 in stock in Pfizer Inc., a pharmaceutical company; and a $1,000 to $15,000 interest in Thomas A. Coburn, MD, Inc.

MONEY IN MAKEUP

Avon, Mary Kay ranks boom as a second-job option

By Juanita Cousins
Associated Press writer

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Armies of new Avon ladies, Mary Kay reps and Tupperware sellers are advancing on living rooms across the country, their ranks full of professionals forced to take a second job amid the recession.

Becke Alexander, sales manager for New York-based Avon Products Inc., hears each week from laid-off bankers and stay-at-home moms, but also gainfully employed people worried how long they'll stay that way. All of them are willing to knock on doors, host parties or do whatever else it takes to peddle some makeup.

"I need money. That's what I've been hearing since about November," Alexander said. "There are no hobby seekers coming here. It's people with a legitimate need."

Job cuts, shrinking bonuses and scaled-back hours have pushed more people than ever to become direct sales representatives, a phenomenon industry experts say they've seen before.

In the 1990-1991 recession, the number of direct sellers increased 8 percent to 5.1 million Americans. In the 2001 recession, the work force increased to 12.2 million.

And while 2008 figures are not yet available, in 2007 an estimated 15 million people nationwide were in direct sales. Some 58 percent of became reps as a second job, according to the Direct Selling Association, a trade group that represents 200 U.S. companies.

When money began getting tight in Nicole Robinson's household in Garland, Texas, the full-time pharmaceutical sales rep signed up to host Mary Kay parties and give facials, working just six hours to make about $600 a week.

"Costs aren't going down and opportunities are tightening up. Raises and bonuses aren't as big. And I didn't want to ever be in a situation where we were in jeopardy," said Robinson, who joined Mary Kay Cosmetics Inc. in September.

Business declined at the international cell phone company her husband works for, she said, and they wanted to continue their moderate lifestyle and contribute to their children's college funds.

"We were looking for a plan B for our family to make additional income," she said. "We really didn't want to participate in the recession."

Rhonda Shasteen, chief marketing director for Mary Kay, said the Addison, Texas-based company saw traffic on its Web site increase by 108 percent in March, when the company began airing television ads to attract new sales reps.

The sales force grew 22 percent from January to March, compared with the same period last year. The privately owned company wouldn't say whether its profits also increased during that period.

Orlando, Fla.-based Tupperware Brands said globally it's making more money and has more people selling its products, spokeswoman Nora Alonso said.

Direct sales reps can earn commissions between 25 to 50 percent of retail sales, and some companies will also pay for recruiting a new sales person. Direct sellers also can earn rewards, too, including jewelry, handbags, furniture, appliances, cars and vacations.

There can be expenses. It costs about $10 to get the Avon starter kit of products and brochures, and some companies require the sales people to purchase products wholesale and then resell them. Mary Kay consultants purchase mascara for $7.50; the company recommends they sell it for twice that.

Companies that are members of the Direct Selling Association are required to have buyback programs where they refund at least 90 percent of costs to sales representatives who get stuck with products.

During stronger economies, people usually take on direct sales jobs so they can have money for leisure spending, said Larry Chonko, business ethics professor at The University of Texas at Arlington.

"Times are tough as we know and there is an absolute need for extra income," Chonko said. "Direct sales is not recession-proof, but it is the kind of business that even in a recession you can make success of it."

Drugmakers rush to produce a swine flu vaccine

LONDON (AP) — With swine flu now an official pandemic, the race is on among drugmakers to produce a vaccine.

GlaxoSmithKline said Thursday after the World Health Organization declared a global flu epidemic that it would be ready within weeks to begin large-scale vaccine production. Sanofi-Aventis also said it had started working on its own version. On Friday, Swiss pharma giant Novartis announced it had created an experimental vaccine that has not been tested in people. Novartis' vaccine was made via a cell-based technology that may prove faster than the traditional way of making vaccines, which relies on chicken eggs.

Many rich countries like Britain, Canada and France signed contracts with pharmaceuticals long ago, guaranteeing them access to pandemic vaccine. WHO and others estimate that about 2.4 billion doses of pandemic vaccine could be available in about a year.

The likely scramble for vaccines will leave many people in poorer countries empty-handed.

So far, swine flu has been mostly detected in developed countries like the United States, Europe, Japan and Australia.

"We do not know how this virus will behave under conditions typically found in the developing world," WHO chief Dr. Margaret Chan said Thursday. She said the agency expects to see a "bleaker" picture as the virus makes its way to Africa and Asia.

On Friday, WHO said that 74 countries had reported nearly 30,000 swine flu cases including 145 deaths.

WHO spokesman Gregory Hartl said officials were concerned people in poorer countries and those fighting other health problems like malaria, tuberculosis, malnutrition and pneumonia might be more susceptible to swine flu.

On Friday, WHO said that 74 countries had reported nearly 30,000 cases including 145 deaths. But so far, the virus appears to be mild. Most people don't need medical treatment to get better.

But the virus might have a more devastating effect in people with underlying health problems. About half of the people who have died from swine flu have had complications like asthma, diabetes, and obesity.

"Any population that has health challenges is potentially going to be at higher risk with H1N1 (swine flu)," Hartl said.

Gay activists decry Obama's stand on marriage case

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Gay rights groups expressed dismay with the Obama administration Friday over its championing of the Defense of Marriage Act, a law the president pledged to try to repeal while on the campaign trail.

The government filed a motion late Thursday to dismiss the case of Arthur Smelt and Christopher Hammer, who are challenging the 1996 federal act. The law prevents couples in states that recognize same-sex unions from securing Social Security spousal benefits, filing joint taxes and other federal rights of marriage.

U.S. Department of Justice lawyers argued that the act — known informally as DOMA — is constitutional and contended that awarding federal marriage benefits to gays would infringe on the rights of taxpayers in the 30 states that specifically prohibit same-sex marriages.

"The president made very explicit and emphatic campaign promises that he opposes DOMA and would provide leadership calling on Congress to repeal it," said Jennifer Pizer, marriage project director for Lambda Legal. "This brief is not consistent with that promise."

Justice spokeswoman Tracy Schmalzer said Friday that the department is abiding by its standard practice of defending existing law and that the filing doesn't mean Obama has changed his mind about wanting to see gay couples win federal recognition.

"Until Congress passes legislation repealing the law, the administration will continue to defend the statute when it is challenged in the justice system," Schmalzer said.

More than four months into his first term, Obama has been under growing pressure from gay rights activists who supported his candidacy to move forward on repealing DOMA and the "don't ask, don't tell" policy that prevents gays from serving openly in the military.

Stalled coal plant in Ill. gets approval

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Energy Department is moving forward on a futuristic coal-burning power plant in Illinois that the Bush administration had declared dead.

Energy Secretary Steven Chu said Friday that reviving the FutureGen plant is an important step that shows the Obama administration's commitment to carbon-capture technology.

"Developing this technology is critically important for reducing greenhouse gas emissions in the U.S. and around the world," Chu said in a statement.

Negotiations for the FutureGen project have been under way since the Obama administration announced it would consider reviving the project.

Six more bodies recovered from Air France jet crash

RECIFE, Brazil (AP) — Six more bodies were recovered from the Atlantic Ocean where an Air France jet crashed, Brazilian officials said Friday, as the race to find the black boxes and gather key evidence from human remains and debris gained urgency.

On the coast, investigators examined corpses and received the first wreckage: two plane seats, oxygen masks, water bottles, and several structural pieces, some no bigger than a man's hand.

Almost two weeks after the crash, Brazil's military said the search is becoming increasingly difficult and a tentative June 25 date for halting efforts has been set. Beginning Monday, officials will meet every two days to evaluate when to stop the search, depending on whether they are still finding bodies or debris.

The black boxes — whose emergency locator beacons begin to fade after 30 days — along with debris and bodies from the jet, all contain crucial clues as to how and why Air France Flight 447 went down en route from Rio de Janeiro to Paris.

Navy Vice Adm. Edison Lawrence said the Brazilians "have information" that a French ship has found six more bodies — which would bring the total found to 50. It was not clear when these bodies were recovered, Lawrence said he thought it was either Thursday or Friday. It wasn't immediately possible to verify this with French officials.

William Waldock, who teaches air crash investigation at Embry-Riddle Aeronautical University in Prescott, Arizona, said the ability for a body to float in water — and remain visible to searchers — depends highly on water temperatures and sea life in the area.

Bush takes another jump

Ex-president marks his 85th birthday

Former President Bush celebrates his 85th birthday jumping with the Army's Golden Knights. Pictured with President Bush is SFC Michael Elliott.

KENNEBUNKPORT, Maine (AP) — Former President George H.W. Bush marked his 85th birthday on Friday the same way he did his 75th and 80th birthdays: He leaped from a plane and zoomed downward at more than 100 mph in freefall before parachuting safely to a spot near his oceanfront home.

Bush made the tandem jump from 10,500 feet with Sgt. 1st Class Mike Elliott of the Army's Golden Knights, who guided them to a gentle landing on the lawn of St. Ann's Church.

He told reporters that he jumped Friday for two reasons: to experience the exhilaration of free-falling and to show that seniors can remain active and do fun things.

"Just because you're an old guy, you don't have to sit around drooling in the corner," Bush said. "Get out and do something. Get out and enjoy life."

All five of Bush's children, including former President

George W. Bush, were there, along with 14 grandchildren, two brothers and a sister.

Elliott said he was "definitely nervous" because of Bush's age and the presence of his entire family.

"What we do is inherently dangerous, so there's always some risk, but we pride ourselves on safety and make sure everything goes as planned. And today it went without a hitch," he said.

Bush's first parachute jump came when his plane was shot down over the Pacific in 1944 during World War II. He bailed out at 1,500 feet after a bombing mission over ChiChi Jima. His two crewmates didn't make it.

In 1997, Bush fulfilled a wartime promise he made to himself that someday he'd jump from a plane for fun by hopping out over Yuma, Ariz., and he jumped again on his 75th birthday at his library in Texas.

Sarah Palin says Letterman owes women an apology

NEW YORK (AP) — Sarah Palin says David Letterman owes an apology to young women across the country for his joke about her daughter.

The Alaska governor appeared on NBC's "Today" show Friday, continuing a feud with the CBS "Late Show" funnyman over his joke earlier this week that Palin's daughter got "knocked up" by New York Yankee third baseman Alex Rodriguez during their recent trip to New York.

Palin also said she doesn't believe she should be automatically considered the front-runner for the Republican presidential nomination in 2012.

jokes about raping or having sex of any description with a 14-year-old girl." He said he was guilty of poor taste.

Palin said Friday that it was time for people to rise up against Letterman's form of humor.

"No wonder young girls especially have such low self-esteem in America when we think it's funny for a so-called comedian to get away with such a remark as he did," she said. "I don't think that's acceptable."

The National Organization for Women placed Letterman in its "media hall of shame."

"I think what David Letterman said is terrible, is inappropriate and nobody should be making jokes about the sexual activities of teenagers, whether they are the daughters of politicians or not," said Kim Gandy, NOW president.

"Comedians in search of a laugh should really know better than to snicker about men having sex with teenage girls or young women half their age," NOW wrote on its Web site. Rodriguez is 33; Letterman is 62.

Palin said there was a double standard where the media treats President Barack Obama's family as generally off-limits, while her family was the butt of jokes during last fall's presidential campaign and beyond.

She's a favorite target of Letterman's. The "Late Show" host made 95 jokes about Palin after the election through March 15 — more than Jay Leno, Conan O'Brien, Jon Stewart and Stephen Colbert combined, according to the Center for Media and Public Affairs.

Real 'Lucy in the Sky with Diamonds' gravely ill

LONDON (AP) — They were childhood chums. Then they drifted apart, lost touch completely, and only renewed their friendship decades later, when illness struck.

Not so unusual, really. Except she is Lucy Vodden — the girl who was the inspiration for the Beatles' 1967 psychedelic classic "Lucy in the Sky With Diamonds" — and he is Julian Lennon, the musician son of John Lennon.

They are linked together by something that happened more than 40 years ago when Julian brought home a drawing from school and told his father, "That's Lucy in the sky with diamonds."

Just the sort of cute phrase lots of 3- or 4-year-olds produce — but not many have a father like John Lennon, who used it as a springboard for a legendary song that became a centerpiece on the landmark album "Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band."

"Julian got in touch with me out of the blue, when he heard how ill I was, and he said he wanted to do something for me," said the 46-year-old Vodden, who has lupus, a chronic disease where the immune system attacks the body's own tissue.

Lennon, who lives in France, sent his old friend flowers and vouchers she could use to buy plants at a local gardening center, since working in her garden is one of the few activities she is still occasionally well enough to enjoy. More importantly, he has offered her friendship and a connection to more carefree days. They communicate mostly by text message.

"I wasn't sure at first how to approach her. I wanted at least to get a note to her," Julian Lennon told The Associated Press. "Then I heard she had a great love of gardening, and I thought I'd help with something she's passionate about, and I love gardening too. I wanted to do something to put a smile on her face."

Vodden admits she enjoys her association with the song, but doesn't particularly care for it. Perhaps that's not surprising. It was thought by many at the time, including BBC executives who banned the song, that the classic was a paean to LSD because of the initials in the title. Plus, she and Julian were 4 years old in 1967, the "Summer of Love" when "Sgt. Pepper" was released to worldwide acclaim. She missed the psychedelic era to which the song is ineluctably linked.

"I don't relate to the song, to that type of song," said Vodden, described as "the girl with kaleidoscope eyes" in the lyrics. "As a teenager, I made the mistake of telling a couple of friends at school that I was the Lucy in the song and they said, 'No, it's not you, my parents said it's about drugs.' And I didn't know what LSD was at the time, so I just kept it quiet, to myself."

There's no doubt the fanciful lyrics and swirling musical effects draw heavily on the LSD experiences that were shaping Lennon's artistic output at the time — although many of the musical flourishes were provided by producer George Martin, who was not a drug user.

"The imagery in the song is partly a reflection of John's drug experiences, and partly his love of 'Alice in Wonderland,'" said Steve Turner, an author.

Kimberly, Twin Falls set up Donnelley title date

Times-News

Zayne Slotten's two-out single in the bottom of the seventh inning scored two runs and lifted the Twin Falls American Legion Baseball Class A team into today's championship game of the Donnelley Sports Wood Bat Classic with a 2-1 win over Capital on Friday evening at Bill Ingram Field.

After being held to just two hits the entire game, Slotten lashed a ball into the outfield to score Casey Merritt, with Ryan Fuchs alertly scoring on an errant throw home to win the game for the Cowboys, who edged past Blackfoot 6-5 earlier on Friday to up their record to 2-1 in the tournament.

Kyle Mealer went 3-for-3 and had a two-run double in the decisive fifth inning of the win over Blackfoot.

"We felt pretty lucky to win that second game. Five of the seven innings we had guys at third base and couldn't get them in, so we felt fortunate to win it because we had so many opportunities," said Twin Falls coach Mark Schaal. "It was a really good pitching baseball game. We had some kids step up, and it was good to see them compete and win close ball games."

Just as was the case with Twin Falls, it took a two-out single in the bottom of the seventh for Kimberly to advance to the championship game.

Next gen of Mini-Cassia rivalry lives at RBI Tourney

By Ryan Howe
Times-News writer

RUPERT — The rivalries within the Burley-Minico rivalry can be the most fun to watch, such as when Spartans pitcher K.J. Redder's cousin, Burley's Kace Redder, came to the plate in the fourth inning.

K.J. swore it wasn't intentional, but his first-pitch curveball didn't break and beamed Kace, who promptly blew his cousin a kiss as he trotted to first base.

As fans got a sneak peek at the next generation of the rivalry at the RBI Tournament on Friday, they left reassured that the next few years won't lack competitive fire between the cross-river foes.

"In a couple years it's going to get better and better," said Burley coach Devin Kunz after his Green Sox American Legion Baseball Class A team beat Minico A 5-2.

While these up-and-comers still have much to work on when it comes to mechanics and fundamentals, they've already got one essential aspect of their game perfected: disdain for their rival.

"We still have a long ways to go, but knowing you're heading in the right direction makes you feel good," Kunz said.

The Green Sox won despite the Spartans out-hitting them 7-3.

"It's frustrating," said K.J. Redder. "I don't like Burley. They don't like us, and we don't like them. It's very competitive."

Burley led 2-0 early on, even though K.J. Redder

TCU pitcher Paul Gerrish, a former Filer star, throws during Game 2 of the Horned Frogs' NCAA super regional series against Texas in Austin, Texas, on June 7.

Frog from Filer

For Gerrish, coming close to CWS hurts, still special

INSIDE: A preview of the College World Series, Sports 4

Everyone loves an overachiever. The trouble is, unless you're the 2008 Fresno State baseball team, which came out of nowhere to win the College World Series, overachieving inevitably leads to bigger heartbreak.

Such is the life now led by former Filer High School star Paul Gerrish and his Texas Christian University Horned Frogs. TCU had never made it out of the NCAA regional tournament, yet this season came within one game of reaching the Mecca of college baseball, Rosenblatt Stadium in Omaha, Neb.

Instead, they will watch the eight teams left standing on TV, much like the rest of the country.

"We enjoyed getting to play in the super regional. Obviously in the end it hurt being so close, one game away from Omaha," said Gerrish. "But we're thinking about next year, what we have to do and get better to get past the super regional and get to Omaha."

Gerrish, who led the Wildcats to the Class 3A state championship in 2005, earned a spot as a starting pitcher in the Horned Frogs rotation and had set some high goals along with his teammates.

"We've made the regional tournament a few years in a row so we wanted to win one. It's a big step for our program, but obviously we wanted to do more, win the super regional and get to play in Omaha."

Gerrish got TCU to within that one game with a seven-inning performance in Game 2 of a super regional series with tournament No. 1 seed Texas. He allowed two runs on five hits and struck out six without a walk in front of several thousand Longhorns

Bulldawgs host Vipers in RMFL 1st round

By Dustin Lapray
Times-News correspondent

The Magic Valley Bulldawgs and Davis (Utah) Vipers are two teams have a lot in common with their 7-1 records, dominating defense, productive offense, momentum, and that extra desire playoff games deliver: to play one more week.

The Rocky Mountain Football League AA playoffs pit the Bulldawgs against the Vipers in the opening round at 7 p.m. tonight at Jerome High School.

The Bulldawgs earned home-field advantage with a 34-0 win last week. The two teams have not met this season. Davis' only loss was a 15-6 slugfest at Glacier (Mont.).

The Bulldawgs won seven consecutive games after falling 7-5 to the Helena (Mont.) Titans to open the season.

Look for the Vipers to run the ball, a power and iso game with the read option out of shotgun sets.

Nate Jackson leads the team with 504 rushing yards this season.

The Vipers average 191.2 rushing yards per game.

Three Vipers played quarterback to limited success.

Mike Messenger leads the team with six rushing touchdowns.

Magic Valley captain Lonnie Edwards will start his league record 97th game.

Edwards plays tailback (444 yards, 5 TDs), returns kicks (35.7 yd average) and slashes at quarterbacks (7-of-13, 208 yards, 4 TDs). Greg Gandolfo marshals the offense but only completes 41.1 percent of his passes.

M.V. linebacker Jason Blair (28.5 tackles) and strong safety Tierre Johnson (27.5) lead a staunch Bulldawg defense that only gives up 7.4 points per game.

The Vipers average 25.6 points per game.

The winner plays next week at the 8-0 Logan Stampedo and former Idaho State quarterback Mike Jenkins (78 percent completion).

Tickets are $5 for adults, and children 12 and under get in free.

Penguins top Red Wings for Cup

Pittsburgh Penguins captain Sidney Crosby lifts the Stanley Cup after the Penguins beat Detroit 2-1 in Game 7 of the Stanley Cup finals in Detroit on Friday.

DETROIT — Slide over Super Mario and make room on the Stanley Cup for a new batch of Pittsburgh Penguins.

Max Talbot scored two second-period goals, and the Penguins overcame the loss of captain Sidney Crosby and a whole lot of history to beat the defending champion Detroit Red Wings 2-1 on Friday night in Game 7 and win the Stanley Cup for the third time.

Instead of the Red Wings becoming the NHL's first repeat champion since they won consecutive titles in 1997 and 1998, this turned into a Penguins party for the first time since now-team owner Mario Lemieux captained them to championships in 1991 and '92.

The Penguins turned the tables on the Red Wings and captured the Cup on enemy ice, just as Detroit did in Pittsburgh last year. The Penguins are the first to win the title year after losing in the finals since Edmonton did it 25 years against the New York Islanders — the last finals rematch before this one.

Evgeni Malkin, who led the playoffs with 36 points, earned the Conn Smythe Trophy as the postseason MVP. He assisted on Talbot's first goal.

Crosby, just four years after being the No. 1 selection in the draft, became the youngest captain of a champion at 21 years old.

"It's unbelievable. It's the stuff you dream of as a kid. It's reality now," Crosby said. "We worked so hard. It's amazing to see how far we've come, and couldn't feel any better."

Marc-Andre Fleury was stellar in making 23 saves — none bigger than the two he made in the final seconds, the last as he dived across the crease and knocked away a shot by Niklas Lidstrom.

Vickers wins Michigan pole for 3rd of season

BROOKLYN, Mich. (AP) — Brian Vickers would love to turn the eighth pole of his NASCAR Sprint Cup career into his first win with Red Bull Racing.

"It truly seems like every time we have the car to win, something happens to keep us from doing it," Vickers said Friday after beating out Kyle Busch at Michigan International Speedway for his third pole of the season. "We just have to get past that."

He had a good chance at MIS last August, when he started from the pole, led 21 laps but wound up seventh.

"We've had the poles and we've had the fast car," Vickers said. "We had the car to win here last year.

Right up to the very end of the race, we thought we put ourselves in a great position and (during) a late caution we got put back several positions for some reasons.

"Later NASCAR admitted they made a mistake. It cost us the race. We did all we could."

Vickers also pointed to the race in Charlotte last month. He felt he had the car to contend for a victory in the Coca-Cola 600, but never got the chance in a race shortened by rain.

"Granted, there's a lot of races this year where we could have done better," he said. "Hopefully, we can do our part again Sunday, have the best car, make the right decisions and, beyond that, we're just going to have to get some luck."

Vickers didn't need any luck in qualifying on the 2-mile oval, posting a lap of 189.110 mph. Runner-up Busch wasn't close at 188.536.

Three-time reigning Cup champion Jimmie Johnson was third at 188.299, followed by David Reutimann at 188.137, Kurt Busch at 187.950 and AJ Allmendinger at 187.891.

Series points leader Tony Stewart, coming off his first win as an owner-driver, was 11th at 187.100, while Dale Earnhardt Jr., the defending race winner, qualified 30th at 186.003.

Castillo drop hands Yankees win

NEW YORK — Mets second baseman Luis Castillo dropped Alex Rodriguez's lazy popup with two outs in the ninth inning as two runs scored, and the Yankees escaped with a wild 9-8 victory over the Mets on Friday night.

David Wright had put the Mets ahead 8-7 with an eighth-inning double off Mariano Rivera (1-2), and Francisco Rodriguez (1-1) appeared to escape a ninth-inning jam on the popup by A-Rod. But Castillo allowed the ball to pop out of his glove as he tried for a one-handed catch on the right field grass. The Yankees ran onto the field as Derek Jeter scored from second and Mark Teixeira from first.

CLEVELAND — Shin-Soo Choo got the job done again — this time without any avian assistance.

A day after his winning hit glanced off a gull in the outfield, Choo drove in three runs for the Indians to help rookie David Huff get his second big league win.

RED SOX 5, PHILLIES 2, 13 INNINGS

PHILADELPHIA — Jacoby Ellsbury hit a tiebreaking RBI single in the 13th inning and Boston won an interleague matchup between division leaders.

Ryan Howard's solo homer off fill-in closer

Ramon Ramirez with one in the ninth tied it, but the Phillies couldn't pull out their third straight comeback win in extra innings.

MARLINS 7, BLUE JAYS 3

TORONTO — Cody Ross hit a tiebreaking grand slam and Chris Coghlan had a career-high four hits. Toronto right-hander Roy Halladay left after three innings because of a sore groin.

TIGERS 3, PIRATES 1

PITTSBURGH — Rick Porcello threw seven crisp innings and had a pair of RBI singles for his first major league hits.

Placido Polanco went 4 for 4 for AL Central-leading Detroit, which has won six of eight. Porcello (7-4) allowed one run and six hits.

BREWERS 7, WHITE SOX 2

MILWAUKEE — Struggling Corey Hart drove in three runs on a double and a triple and saved two more with a diving catch for the Milwaukee Brewers.

ROYALS 4, REDS 1

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Luke Hochevar tossed a three-hitter in his first career complete game and Alberto Callapso hit a two-run homer.

BRVES 7, ORIOLES 2

BALTIMORE — Brian McCann tied a career high with four hits and Tommy Hanson recorded his first major league victory. McCann's third hit, a bases-loaded single, scored Nate McLouth and gave Atlanta a 3-2 lead in the fifth inning. Garret Anderson followed with a run-scoring walk.

RAVS 4, NATIONALS 3

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — One pitch after an error prolonged his at-bat, Gabe Kapler hit a pinch-hit home run. GM making 'NASCAR-wide' cuts in support

Move won't affect T.F. racer

The Associated Press

BROOKLYN, Mich. — General Motors has told NASCAR teams it is cutting back on its support in all of the sanctioning body's professional series, but the decision won't affect a local driver.

Twin Falls racer Jonathon Gomez, who drives the No. 60 Chevrolet in the Camping World Series West as part of NASCAR's Drive for Diversity initiative, said his team wouldn't suffer any effects from the announcement as he has secured all his own sponsorship and doesn't receive anything from GM other than driving a Chevrolet.

"At our level we don't get any funding or factory support like the top three levels (of NASCAR) do," Gomez said. "It isn't going to affect us one bit."

Among the teams already notified that they will lose funding are JR Motorsports, owned by Sprint Cup star Dale Earnhardt Jr., and Kevin Harvick Inc., co-owned by Cup star Harvick and his wife, DeLana. JRM races in the second-tier Nationwide Series, while KHI has entries in Nationwide and the third-tier Camping World Truck Series.

Cuts are also expected in the top-tier Sprint Cup series.

Chevrolet spokesman Terry Rhadigan said Friday that GM, reorganizing through Chapter 11 bankruptcy, said cuts would be made soon.

Rhadigan would not say if one series would be affected more than others, nor would he say the size of the cuts or how much GM spends on NASCAR. The automaker, through its Chevrolet brand, provides cash and other support to teams, including engines and parts.

Rhadigan, however, said GM has no plans to withdraw Chevrolet from the stock car sport.

The GM cutbacks are the latest in a series of economic blows to the sport.

The global economic crisis led to more than 1,000 team members being laid off at the end of last season, and Chrysler, which just came out of bankruptcy, has cutback its funding of Dodge teams this year. Earlier this week, Richard Petty Motorsports laid off nine employees and reduced salaries throughout the company, a byproduct of Chrysler's Chapter 11 filing.

Ford, also facing financial problems, cut back its support in the truck series heading into this season.

But in the fifth, Winmill broke up the no-hitter with a base hit and then later stole Ingram Field on Friday afternoon.

Evan Jerke scored on a passed ball to tie the game moments before Mumm's base hit kept the Astros (5-2) undefeated in the tournament thus far. Kimberly hammered Capital 13-2 earlier Friday in its second game of the tournament.

Seth Champlin allowed two hits in a complete-game effort over Blackfoot, which followed a trio of Astro pitchers — Sam Bourgeois, A.J. Schroeder and Jordan Gentry — combining to yield just six hits to Capital. "We walked one guy today. You might have a little more confidence out there to throw strikes with wooden bats, but that was the key for us was we threw the ball well today," said Kimberly coach Tom Myers. "They put the ball in play and our defense played really well."

Kimberly and Twin Falls will play at 12:30 p.m., today.

Modifieds, Super Stocks in tonight's lineup

By Linda Brittsan

Times-News correspondent

The Mountain Dew Modifieds, Budweiser Super Stocks, Magic Valley Pipe Street Stocks and Quale's Electronics Hornets are all in the lineup for this evening at Magic Valley Speedway.

Jerry McKean won his first race of the year in the Super Stocks division last Saturday night in a car borrowed from 2008 champion Jonathon Gomez. To go along with the win, McKean also wrapped up a current tie in the point standings with Norm Hatke.

MVP Street Stocks driver Stacey Jensen wasn't absent long from the winner's circle, capturing a main event win in the division May 30.

However Steve Edens, just behind Jensen in the standings, is still seeking a victory.

Additionally, the Six-Cylinder Racing League cars return for their second appearance of the season at MVS.

Free admission to tonight's events will be given to all kids 12 and under wanting to get in on the box-car race to be held at intermission. All that is needed to participate is a cardboard box fashioned into a racecar.

Gates open at 3 p.m., qualifying begins at 5:30 and the green flag waves at 6 to kick off the heat races.

MVS POINT STANDINGS

Pepsi Late Model: 1. T.J. Woodhall 545, 2. Kris McKean 450, 3. Norm Hatke 440, 4. Eddy McKean 437, 5. Jeff Wade 427.

Storms stop 2nd day, Mickelson with 3 to play

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — Phil Mickelson is looking a bit more at ease, the golf course providing some of the distraction he wanted while he and his wife deals with her breast cancer.

Now if he can just hit his putter back under control.

Mickelson just missed a couple birdie attempts Friday, then cost himself a stroke when a par putt lipped out. Not that he got the chance to correct his stroke during the second round of the St. Jude Classic. He marked his tee shot in the 16th fairway, got a ride off the course and jumped into his car after play was stopped ahead of thunderstorms that had tornado sirens wailing.

Play was halted and fans and players were cleared from the TPC Southwind course when the horn sounded 10 minutes before thunder could be heard on Friday. Tornado sirens then went off approximately 40 minutes after play was stopped with the storm tossing equipment around the course and knocking power out in parts of town.

Brian Gay held the clubhouse lead after a 4-under 66 put him at 10-under 130 through 36 holes, two strokes ahead of Robert Allenby and Bryce Molder (63), with Allenby having three holes to play. A total of 78 golfers still must finish when the second round resumes Saturday morning.

Mickelson was at 4 under with three birdies and a bogey in his first event since announcing his wife has breast cancer. This is a tuneup for the U.S. Open at Bethpage Black, and his preparation showed when he pulled an iron instead of driver or a wood on the tee a couple times Friday.

Hundreds of fans followed Mickelson from hole to hole yet again at the TPC Southwind course, many wearing pink in support of Mickelson and the fight against breast cancer.

"The star this week is Phil Mickelson," said John Senden, who shot a 66.

Mickelson appeared much more relaxed Friday, even laughing a couple times during breaks with playing partner Padraig

Brian Gay hits his second shot out of a bunker to the No. 17 green during the second round of the St. Jude Classic golf tournament in Memphis, Tenn., Friday.

Harrington. He started tied for 19th at 2 under and began with three straight pars on a day with almost no wind and near perfect scoring conditions until the storm approached.

He finally got going with a birdie on No. 4 — the first of three birdies over the next six holes.

He mashed his drive 348 yards on the par-4 9th, staying dry when his ball stopped within a few feet right of the pond guarding the front left of the green. He stuck his approach within 5 feet from the pin and rolled in another putt for birdie to move to 5 under.

Then came the struggles with the putter. Mickelson left a birdie attempt short on No. 11 and had to tap in for par. He pulled an iron off the tee on the par-4 No. 12 and laid up to avoid the lake along the right fairway before dropping his second shot 12 feet from the cup. His birdie attempt rolled just right of the hole and a couple feet past.

Then Mickelson pushed his drive into the rough, coming up a couple feet short of knee-high weeds. He bogeyed the hole but not because of that drive. He missed a 25-footer for birdie, then lipped out a 3-footer for par when the ball hit the back of the cup and turned out right.

LPGA CHAMPIONSHIP

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md. — Anna Nordqvist made a 36-foot birdie putt on the final hole to break a tie with Nicole Castrale and take the lead in the LPGA Championship.

Nordqvist, a rookie from Sweden who played at Arizona State, began the day in second place — one stroke behind Castrale in the major championship. Starting on No. 10, Nordqvist birdied three of the first eight holes before losing momentum.

She was 2 over during a nine-hole stretch before making her 11th birdie of the tournament, on No. 9, to move to 8-under 136 at Bulle Rock.

COLLEGE WORLD SERIES

Longhorns long on tradition, short on experience

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — The locals who have grown accustomed to watching Texas at the College World Series year in and year out don't know whether to greet the Longhorns with "Howdy, stranger," or "Welcome back."

With a cast lacking the star power of past Texas squads, the Longhorns are in Omaha for a record 33rd time but the first time in four years.

No current Longhorn has played on Division I baseball's biggest stage but, as the top seed, Texas is favored on paper to win its seventh national title. The 'Horns will go against a field that features 2008 CWS qualifiers North Carolina and LSU and first-timers Virginia and Southern Mississippi.

Bracket 1 play opens Saturday with Arkansas (39-22) meeting No. 2-seeded Cal State Fullerton (47-14) in the afternoon and Virginia (48-13-1) facing No. 3 LSU (51-16) at night. Sunday's Bracket 2 first-round games pit No. 5 Arizona State (49-12) and No. 4 North Carolina (47-16) in the afternoon and Southern Miss (40-24) against Texas (46-14-1) at night.

Winners emerging from double-elimination bracket play meet in the best-of-three finals starting June 22.

Texas will try to become the first No. 1 seed to win the CWS since Miami in 1999.

No team seeded among the top eight nationally has won the title since Rice in 2003.

Like the past two championships, Fresno State and Oregon State, the Longhorns' roster is short on high draft picks and All-Americans. Texas, in fact, hasn't been to the CWS since winning it all in 2005.

Augie Garrido, college baseball's all-time winningest coach, said he's more concerned with developing successful college players than pro prospects.

"At what point does physical talent supercede the heart and soul of a player?" Garrido said. "You've got to have 25 people working together, and that's what baseball is really about. Our guys work hard on the fundamentals, they're pretty unselfish and they'll do anything it takes to win."

The Longhorns aren't like those college baseball powers of yesteryear that put up huge numbers. They come in ranked 196th out of 288 teams in home runs (39), 208th in batting (.287) and 216th in scoring (6.0). Maybe their most impressive offensive stat is their nation-leading 96 sacrifice bunts, including an NCAA-record seven in their super-regional opener against TCU.

But these boys can pitch and field. The Longhorns are first nationally in fewest hits allowed (7.3 per game), second in ERA (2.84), fourth in fielding (.979) and ninth in walks allowed (2.63).

Taylor Jungmann (8-3, 2.27 ERA) and Chance Ruffin (10-2, 3.02) lead a pitching staff that has posted six shutouts and held right-handed batters to a .201 average.

Among the other teams:

- Cal State-Fullerton returns six players who were on the Titans' 2007 CWS team. The Titans have three players with 10 or more home runs for the first time in a decade. Daniel Renken (11-2, 2.36) and freshmen Noe Ramirez (9-1, 2.86) and Tyler Pill (11-3, 3.95) lead a deep pitching staff.

"A lot has been said about how we had an easy road to Omaha, but there's no coach up here who believes there's an easy road to Omaha," coach Dave Serrano said. "I'm proud of what we accomplished."

- The Razorbacks came into the NCAAs off losses in 10 of 13 games, but they went 4-0 in regionals, including two wins over host Oklahoma, and are averaging almost 11 runs in their five national tournament victories.

- Virginia's appearance is a homecoming for coach Brian O'Connor, who grew up in the Omaha area and pitched for hometown Creighton in the 1991 CWS. The Cavaliers have a 1.45 ERA in six national tournament games, and their bullpen allowed just one earned run in 16 innings in the three-game super regional at Mississippi.

- Arizona State is at the CWS for the 21st time and third time in five years. The Sun Devils pack plenty of offensive punch with a .305 team batting average, but their identity is pitching. Mike Leake (16-1, 1.36), the No. 8 pick in the draft (Cincinnati), headlines a staff that has a nation-leading 2.78 ERA. Leake and Josh Spence have combined to strike out 259.

- North Carolina, the first team to make four consecutive trips to Omaha since Stanford appeared in five from 1999 to 2003, features the No. 2 overall draft pick in first baseman Dustin Ackley (Seattle). Ackley is the marquee player for the Tar Heels, with his 22 homers and .412 average. Four other starters are batting better than .300.

North Carolina can pitch a little, too, averaging more than 10 strikeouts per nine innings. And the Tar Heels have CWS-tested pitchers in Adam Warren (9-2) and Alex White (8-4).

- Southern Miss is the surprise qualifier, but the Golden Eagles can take heart in knowing that 2008 champion Fresno State also came to the CWS as a No. 3 regional seed. The Eagles will be trying to extend the career of coach Corky Palmer, who announced his retirement in April.

Paul Gerrish, far right, is congratulated by Filer teammates after scoring a run during the second inning of their Class 3A state semifinal baseball game with Weiser at Treasure Valley Community College in Ontario, Ore., on May 19, 2005.

fans in Austin, compared to the smattering of TCU fans that made the trip from Fort Worth.

"It was a lot of fun getting to pitch in that kind of environment. There were eight or nine thousand Texas fans and only a few hundred TCU fans. It was a lot of fun to see that stadium go quiet when you'd get a big strikeout or get an important out," said Gerrish. "I think all things considered it was my best start being on the road against a great team and in that kind of situation. I definitely didn't feel like I made every pitch I wanted to — I probably never will — but all in all I thought I did pretty well."

Gerrish, who battled tendinitis mid-season and split time between the bullpen and the starting rotation, had been accustomed to being the Friday starter of weekend series, a spot typically reserved for the staff ace. Yet TCU coach Jim Schlossnagle, knowing that Game 2 against Texas would either be for a trip to Omaha or to avoid going home, turned to the redshirt junior for that situation.

"Coach didn't want to put a freshman in that situation," said Gerrish. "It shows he has a lot of trust in me. I've been in the program a while, and it shows he has confidence to put me in that situation."

That last great performance is something Gerrish thinks he can use toward next season, when the Horned Frogs try to up the ante again and get over the last game to play in what will be the final series at Rosenblatt.

Replacing TCU's offense might be problematic, but Gerrish said that the experience of a pitching staff that only loses one reliever should help build on what he called a special season.

"This is my third season here, and this team probably wasn't the most talented of the teams I've seen here, but this was a team that played the hardest and had the best team chemistry, and it's a special team. It was definitely a step in the right direction for TCU," Gerrish said. "We know we'll have a lot of upperclassmen on the pitching staff next year so that'll be one of our strengths. But our coaching staff does a good job of filling holes, and we have a lot of younger players on the team who can hit the ball. We'll be fine."

After Game 4 falter, Magic still believe

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Magic coach Stan Van Gundy tried to sleep. He closed his eyes, but his cluttered basketball brain, a cyclone of Xs and Os, wouldn't relax.

Game 4 of the NBA finals, the one Orlando fumbled away with atrocious free-throw shooting, a hideous third quarter and questionable late-game strategy, kept Van Gundy awake.

It may for many nights ahead.

Maybe years.

With only a few hours to reflect on what went wrong on Thursday night in Los Angeles' 98-91 overtime win against the Magic, Van Gundy, who elected not to have his team foul with a three-point lead in the final seconds of regulation, was asked if a night's rest had brought him any clarity.

"The assumption of a night's sleep is way off base," he said on a conference call.

Leading 87-84 with 11.1 seconds to go, the Magic allowed Derek Fisher, L.A.'s Mr. Big and Bigger Shot, to dribble into the frontcourt and hit a game-tying 3-pointer with 4.6 seconds left. Fisher, who would stick a fork in the Magic's hopes — and perhaps their season — with another 3-pointer in OT, made his shot over Orlando guard Jameer Nelson, who was slow to react to Fisher's penetration.

Game 5

Lakers at Magic
6 p.m., Sunday, ABC

During a timeout after Magic center Dwight Howard had bricked the two biggest free throws of his young career, Van Gundy had told his team, which went just 22 of 37 from the line, not to foul. Too much time left, Van Gundy thought. And not with Kobe Bryant around.

He didn't want to risk more missed free throws, giving the Lakers more chances.

Van Gundy is sticking to his (van)guns.

"I've rethought it and rethought it," he said as the teams took a two-day break before Sunday's Game 5. "It's easy to say now, 'Do I wish we had fouled as opposed to giving that up?' Yeah, but I still don't think at 11 seconds to go in a game that we're going to foul in that situation. I'll put it this way: You always have regrets. Faced with the same situation again at 11 seconds, we still wouldn't be telling them to foul."

The Magic can't afford to look back any longer. They've got a mountain to climb.

The Lakers, one win from their 15th title, are the 30th team in league history to take a 3-1 lead in the finals. The other 29 claimed the championship.

Still, Van Gundy feels his squad, which has twice taken the Lakers to overtime and carried Orlando's fans on a stomach-churning, turn-twisting journey this season as wild as any ride at Disney World, is capable of a historic comeback.

"It's not like we're in a situation where we feel like we can't play with the Lakers and don't have a chance to win or anything else," he said. "Our confidence level will be high. Our guys have demonstrated incredible resiliency all year. I would expect us to play extremely well on Sunday."

Los Angeles is bracing for Orlando's best shot.

This is the moment Bryant, seeking his fourth title, and the Lakers have been building toward. After losing to the Boston Celtics in last year's finals, their focus since the season began has been solely on getting back to the top. Now, they are 48 minutes from redemption and another championship. They don't intend to relax until it is theirs.

The mission is nearly accomplished. Nearly.

"You have to stay focused," Bryant said after scoring 32 points in Game 4. "You have to hold on to your excitement and just prepare. Prepare, prepare, prepare and go get ready."

UN imposes new sanctions on N. Korea

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The U.N. Security Council imposed punishing new sanctions on North Korea Friday, toughening an arms embargo and authorizing ship searches on the high seas in an attempt to thwart the reclusive nation's nuclear and ballistic missile programs.

The unanimous support for the resolution reflected international disapproval for recent actions by North Korea, which defied the council by conducting a second nuclear test on May 25 and heightened global tensions with recent missile launches that raised the specter of a renegade nuclear state. North Korea has repeatedly warned that it would view new sanctions as a declaration of war, but it boycotted Friday's vote — in sharp contrast to the October 2006 Security Council meeting where sanctions were imposed after the country's first nuclear test. Then, the North Korean ambassador immediately rejected the resolution, accused council members of "gangster-like" action and walked out of the council chamber.

U.S. Ambassador Susan Rice, who shepherded the resolution through two weeks of complex and sometimes difficult negotiations, told reporters in Washington that the administration was "very pleased" with the council's "unprecedented" and "innovative" action.

She cautioned that North Korea could react to the resolution with "further provocation."

"There's reason to believe they may respond in an irresponsible fashion to this," she said.

North Korea said Monday in its main newspaper that it would respond to any new sanctions with "corresponding self-defense measures." On Tuesday, the North said it would use nuclear weapons in a "merciless offensive" if provoked.

The resolution seeks to deprive North Korea of financing and material for its weapons program and bans the communist country's lucrative arms exports, especially missiles. It does not ban normal trade, but does call on international financial institutions to halt grants, aid or loans to the North except for humanitarian, development and denuclearization programs.

China and Russia, the North's closest allies, supported the resolution, but stressed that it did not authorize the use of force against North Korea, a key demand by both countries. Diplomats said during the negotiations both countries pushed to ensure that the measures not hurt ordinary people in North Korea who face daily hardships.

Russia's U.N. Ambassador Vitaly Churkin called the North's repeat nuclear test "a serious blow" to efforts to prevent the proliferation of nuclear weapons and said the resolution was "an appropriate response" targeted at the weapons programs.

China's U.N. Ambassador Zhang Yesui said the nuclear test had affected regional peace and security. He strongly urged North Korea to promote the denuclearization of the Korean peninsula and return quickly to Beijing-hosted six-party talks aimed at dismantling its nuclear program.

Rivals both claim victory in Iran's election

Govt. says Ahmadinejad has huge lead

By Anna Johnson and Brian Murphy
Associated Press Writers

TEHRAN, Iran — Iran's interior ministry said Saturday President Mahmoud Ahmadinejad took a commanding lead with nearly 70 percent of all votes counted, but his pro-reform rival countered that he was the clear victor and warned of possible fraud in the election.

The dispute rose up even before the votes were counted — sharply boosting tensions after an intense monthlong race between the combative president and his main challenger, Mir Hossein Mousavi, who has the backing of a growing youth-oriented movement.

Mousavi declared himself "definitely the winner" based on "all indications from all over Iran." He also alleged widespread irregularities, including closing polls with voters still waiting — suggesting he was ready to challenge the results.

But bringing any showdown into the streets would certainly face a swift backlash from security forces, which have already issued stark warnings against unrest or any threat to the Islamic regime. A series of cyber-strikes — text messaging blackouts, blocks on pro-Mousavi Web sites and widespread Internet disruptions — also raised worried that authorities were prepared to exert further pressures on the communications lifelines of the rejuvenated reformist movement.

An Iranian woman waits in line to vote with her friends, in northeastern Tehran, Iran, Friday. Iranians packed polling stations from boutique-lined streets in north Tehran to conservative bastions in the countryside Friday, with a choice that's left the nation divided and on edge.

The messy and tense outcome capped a long day of voting. It was extended for several hours to accommodate a huge turnout that had people waiting for hours at polling stations in blistering heat and nighttime downpours.

Mousavi, a 1980s-era prime minister, had been counting on an outpouring from what's been called his "green tsunami" — the signature color of his campaign and the new banner for reformists seeking wider liberties at home and a gentler face for Iran abroad. He raised hopes that a new leadership might embrace

President Barack Obama's invitation to open dialogue and take a less confrontation path with the West over Iran's nuclear program.

But moments after Mousavi called a news conference to declare victory, Iran's state news agency reported that Ahmadinejad was the victor. Both claims came shortly after polls close but before any vote tallies were announced.

Before dawn, Ahmadinejad supporters weaved through Tehran's streets on motorbikes shouting "Allahu Akbar," or God is Great.

By early Saturday, Ahmadinejad had 65.9 percent and Mousavi had 31.1 percent with 68 percent of all votes counted, said Kamran Daneshjoo, a senior official with the Interior Ministry, which oversees the voting.

Based on figures released by the ministry, around 75 percent of the 46.2 million eligible voters went to the polls.

There was no sign of increased security, but the warnings had already been issued.

The political chief of the powerful Revolutionary Guard cautioned Wednesday it would crush any "revolution" against the Islamic regime by Mousavi's "green movement."

The interior ministry said all rallies or political gatherings would be banned until after the formal announcement of results later Saturday.

Mousavi, however, was equally harsh — accusing the Islamic establishment was "manipulating the people's vote" to keep Ahmadinejad in power.

"I'll pursue this. I won't give up. There is no way back," he said.

During the voting, some communications across Iran were disrupted. Internet connections slowed dramatically in some spots, hindering the operations of news organizations including The Associated Press. It was not immediately clear what had caused the disruptions.

About a dozen Ahmadinejad supporters pelted a Mousavi office in Tehran with tear gas canisters, but no one was injured, said Saeed Shariati, head of Mousavi's Web campaign. The attack could not be independently confirmed.

Obama won't rule out freeing detainees in U.S.

White House sees opposition

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite fierce opposition in Congress, the White House insisted Friday it has not ruled out releasing Guantanamo Bay detainees in the United States. But with narrowing options, the administration has begun shipping newly cleared inmates abroad to regain momentum in its effort to close the Cuba-based prison camp.

White House spokesman Robert Gibbs said the administration has not abandoned the possibility of releasing detainees in the U.S., but he added that national security considerations would govern any moves.

"We're not going to make any decisions about transfer or release that threatens the security of the country," Gibbs said at the end of a week in which nine detainees were transferred under high security to foreign nations, and one to the United States to face trial.

Gibbs said the release of those detainees showed "marked progress" and other decisions were being made on a case-by-case basis. President Barack Obama said last month that the cases of 50 detainees had been reviewed — and the administration said 48 of them were waiting for release to foreign nations.

But the prospects for any transfers of Guantanamo inmates to the mainland U.S. have dimmed in recent weeks as Congress acted to block funding to pay for the moves. And foreign countries have been hesitant to take even cleared detainees who were deemed not to pose security threats.

Authorities announced late Friday that three detainees had been sent home to Saudi Arabia.

The Justice Department said the trio will be subject to judicial review in Saudi Arabia before they participate in a "rehabilitation" program administered by the Saudi government.

Top Sunni lawmaker killed outside mosque

BAGHDAD (AP) — The moderate leader of the largest Sunni bloc in parliament was assassinated Friday after delivering a sermon at a Baghdad mosque, a killing that could set back efforts to reconcile differences between the two Muslim sects before national elections.

Harith al-Obeidi, 47, was an outspoken advocate for prisoners' rights, one of the most divisive issues in relations between the disfavored Sunni minority and the Shiite-led government.

He was killed a day after colleagues said he called on parliament to summon interior and defense ministry officials to answer allegations of torture in Iraqi jails. Although most detainees are Sunni, al-Obeidi promoted human rights for all Iraqis, even followers of radical Shiite cleric Muqtada al-Sadr.

Politicians traded theories and accusations over a possible motive for the killing — ranging from retaliation for his campaign for detainees, to punishment by Sunni extremists for his joint efforts with Shiite groups to achieve national reconciliation.

Schwarzenegger: A bad time to sell state assets

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Gov. Arnold Schwarzenegger says it's the wrong time to consider putting California landmarks up for sale — less than a month after he proposed doing just that.

He acknowledged Friday it was not "the best time right now" to sell state assets such as the San Quentin State Prison, the Los Angeles Memorial Coliseum and the California State Fairgrounds.

Schwarzenegger originally announced the proposal in May as part of his revised plan to address a $24.3 billion budget deficit.

The Republican governor said California could generate $3 billion from selling seven landmarks and 11 office buildings scattered around the state.

The commercial real estate market is just one part of California's economy that has been pummeled by the recession.

Real estate experts told The Associated Press last week that many of the properties would be undervalued if placed on the market now because the commercial real estate market is so poor. Many potential buyers also might have trouble obtaining credit.

Even if the properties were put up for sale this year, California would not realize proceeds for perhaps two to five years — and in some cases even longer. That would do nothing for the current budget crisis.

In his comments Friday, Schwarzenegger said he remained committed to selling state assets but also said his plan would likely have little, if any, effect on the immediate budget crisis.

"There are some people that always say now, to solve this financial crisis, we should just get rid of some of our state property. It doesn't work that easily," he said.

Schwarzenegger spokeswoman Rachel Cameron said the governor's central message remains unchanged.

"The bottom line here is the state should not be in the real estate market," she said. "As far as timing ... we need to look at all of our options to increase our cash flow."

Everything looking up for space launch today

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — NASA zipped through the final hours of its countdown for space shuttle Endeavour, on track for launch this morning to the international space station.

Forecasters were sticking with their 90 percent "go" weather forecast.

NASA began fueling the spaceship late Friday night, and the seven astronauts were set to climb aboard in the wee hours of Saturday. Launch time is 5:17 a.m. Mountain Time.

Endeavour and its crew will deliver the final segment of Japan's huge space station lab, along with some spare parts for the orbiting outpost and more than 600 pounds of food for the six men living there.

When Endeavour pulls up, there will be 13 people together in orbit for the first time.

Of the seven shuttle astronauts, only one is a woman, a Canadian. The rest of the crew are U.S. citizens. On board the space station, the crew is more international. The six occupants, all men, represent Belgium, Canada, Japan and Russia, as well as the United States.

D.C. Holocaust museum reopens after shooting

WASHINGTON (AP) — Liz Johnson showed up Friday to the U.S. Holocaust Memorial Museum with 12 Girl Scouts in tow. None of them was alive when the Holocaust took place, but they were determined that a fatal shooting at the museum two days earlier wouldn't keep them from supporting its mission.

The members of the Dallas troop were among the hundreds of visitors who streamed into the museum as it opened for the first time since authorities said 88-year-old James von Brunn of Annapolis, Md., gunned down a security guard who had opened the door for him.

"To say that we can't do this because of this event is that man winning," said Johnson, 35, whose group clad in lavender T-shirts was among the first people in line. "We're not going to let him win."

The museum, which was closed Thursday for a day of mourning, opened to crowds that officials said were about the same size as usual this time of year.

"We're not going to let him win!"
— Museum visitor Liz Johnson, of murder suspect James von Brunn

Meanwhile, rabbis around the country were preparing to discuss the shooting with their congregations at weekend services. At the conservative B'Nai Torah Congregation in Boca Raton, Fla., Rabbi David Englander expected the shooting to resonate with the 1,300-family temple's numerous Holocaust survivors.

"This is an assault on what they went through," Englander said. "This isn't just some statistic or some random act of violence. It's representative of Holocaust denial everywhere."

At the museum, few signs of the shooting remained. The crime scene tape was gone, and the bullet-scarred front doors had been replaced.

About two dozen flower bouquets near the entrance formed a makeshift memorial to the slain guard, 39-year-old Stephen T. Johns, who lived in Temple Hills, Md. On top of one bouquet was a photo of the slain security guard Johns, who was black, with the inscription, "Truly a righteous Gentile." The term "righteous gentile" has been used to describe non-Jewish people who took risks to save Jews from the Holocaust.

Before talking Friday to museum visitors about surviving the Holocaust, 89-year-old Charles Stein of Springfield, Va., called von Brunn a "crazy one" and said he was concerned there could be copy-cats. The native Austrian's parents were killed in Nazi gas chambers in 1942.

He added that the world will always have its share of Holocaust deniers and anti-semites such as von Brunn. "There's nothing you can do about it," Stein said. "Unfortunately, we have laws to protect people like him for saying whatever he wants to say."

Authorities have charged von Brunn with murder in the Wednesday attack.

AROUND THE STATE

UI prof daughter: Sheep research wasn't suppressed

BOISE— The daughter of a University of Idaho professor being investigated by the school after she long denied wild bighorns can catch diseases from domestic sheep on the range while her own lab had evidence to the contrary is defending her mother.

Jeanne Bulgin, a former employee at the Caine Veterinary Teaching Center in Caldwell, said any suggestion such material was suppressed by her mother, Marie Bulgin, amounts to "slander."

In 1994, Jeanne Bulgin worked on two cases involving two bighorns where Caine center and state scientists determined parasites that likely caused their deadly pneumonia were biochemically identical to bacteria found in the domestic sheep they'd mixed with.

But Jeanne Bulgin said her mother, now head of the center, never made it a practice to discuss with her research being done at the facility.

Marie Bulgin maintains she didn't know about the 1994 studies until this year.

Tamarack funded through June 21

BOISE — A state judge approved a lender's plan to fund minimal operations at Tamarack Resort, but the moribund central Idaho vacation retreat's future remains shrouded in uncertainty.

Fourth District Court Judge Patrick Owen approved reallocating money remaining from loans lenders led by Credit Suisse Group have provided starting in late 2008.

It's costing about $250,000 to preserve the property for the first three weeks of June.

Lenders have agreed to pay about $35,000 for liability insurance, but Douglas R. Pahl, lawyer for the court-appointed receiver running Tamarack, says a $160,000 property tax bill to Valley County won't be paid.

That will likely mean extra fees of up to 3 percent a month, Pahl says.

Meanwhile, discussions continue on resolving $300 million in outstanding loans and penalties owed by Tamarack to the Credit Suisse-led lending group — and finding a potential buyer for the resort, shuttered in March as losses mounted.

Another Boise biker dies in collision

BOISE — A 37-year-old bicycle rider was killed after a collision with a vehicle driven by a teenager, the third cyclist to die in a month in Idaho's capital city.

Kevin Pavlis of Meridian was struck Thursday just before 8 p.m. as he was traveling east on a stretch of Hill Road on Boise's north side. It's among the city's most popular bike routes, frequented by hundreds of cyclists each week for commuting or training.

Police say the 16-year-old driver of a sport-utility vehicle apparently made a left turn into Pavlis, who was riding with a group of other cyclists.

CPR was performed at the scene, but Pavlis, who was wearing a helmet, died of his injuries at a Boise hospital.

Police are still investigating.

Jim Lee Chu of Eagle and Thomas D. Bettger of Boise died May 21 after being struck by automobiles.

Conflicts arise on trail system

POCATELLO — Pocatello officials are considering a management plan for a popular trail system because of conflicts among mountain bikers, horseback riders, ATV users and hikers.

Pocatello Mayor Roger Chase put together a committee made up of trail users to study the problems at City Creek, an area of about 2,500 acres belonging to the city.

The committee is to present a draft of its plan to the City Council this summer.

"I have been shocked at how many of the most popular trails used by mountain bikers, runners and hikers have been ruined by horses," mountain biker Ronda Feltis told the Idaho State Journal. "When a 1,000 pound horse rides a wet trail, it turns into a trench of potholes."

Equestrian Annalucy Keller said mountain bikers don't own the trails.

"They are so proud of it. They think they discovered it," Keller said. "I've been living up here for 40 years. A little mountain terrain won't hurt anyone. They are mountain bikes. If they don't like lumps, go down on the Greenway and pedal."

Hannah Sanger, environmental educator with the city, closed the area to motorized vehicles Friday after some areas were damaged. City Creek is part of a watershed that helps resupply an aquifer and the Portneuf River.

Charge dismissed in stabbing case

BLACKFOOT — Bingham County Magistrate Charles Roos has thrown out an accessory to a felony charge against a Blackfoot man.

Roos said Thursday that the evidence against 30-year-old Jeffrey Harrington wasn't sufficient for the case to proceed.

Prosecutors charged Harrington in connection with the Memorial Day stabbing death of Robert Padilla. Courtney James Payan has been charged with second-degree murder and Epifanio Dearcos Sr. has been charged with aggravated battery in connection with Padilla's death.

Historic anti-tobacco bill takes aim at teen smoking

WASHINGTON (AP) — No more "light" cigarettes or candy-flavored smokes. Bigger, scarier warning labels. Fewer ads featuring sexy young smokers.

Historic anti-smoking legislation sped to final congressional passage on Friday — after a bitter fight lasting nearly a half-century — and lawmakers and the White House quickly declared it would save the lives of thousands of smokers of all ages. Even more important, they said, the measure could keep countless young people from starting in the first place.

President Barack Obama, admittedly still struggling with his own nicotine habit, saluted passage of the bill, which he will soon sign. He said, "For over a decade, leaders of both parties have fought to prevent tobacco companies from marketing their products to children and provide the public with the information they need to understand what a dangerous habit this is."

Specifically, the measure for the first time will give the Food and Drug Administration authority to regulate what goes into tobacco products, demand changes or elimination of toxic substances and block the introduction of new products.

Will it matter as much as supporters say? Smokers lighting up outside Washington offices had mixed reactions.

Government researcher Reginald Little, 47, said he swiped his first cigarette from his grandfather at age 15, thought regulation was needed "because you don't know exactly what's in it."

But Becky Cook, a 22-

year-old program analyst, said that, while she supported limits on ads aimed at children, "I already know it's bad for me, so I don't think knowing how much is really in one cigarette is really going to make a difference."

The thousand health and consumer groups that endorsed the bill say that, combined with other anti-smoking efforts, it can significantly reduce the 400,000 deaths and $100 billion in health care costs attributed every year to smoking in the U.S.

Under the legislation:

- Cigarette packages will have warning labels that cover 50 percent of the front and rear. The word "warning" must be included in capital letters.

- Any remaining tobacco-related sponsorships of sports and entertainment events will be banned, as will giveaways of non-tobacco items with the purchase of a tobacco product. A federal ban will be imposed on all outdoor tobacco advertising within 1,000 feet of schools and playgrounds.

- Point-of-sale advertising will be limited to adults-only facilities, and remaining vending machines will disappear except in places restricted to adults. Retailers who sell to minors will be subject to federal enforcement and penalties.

- Smokers, particularly the younger crowd, will find they can no longer buy cigarettes sweetened by candy flavors or any herb or spices such as strawberry, grape, orange, clove, cinnamon or vanilla. Cigarettes advertised as "light" or "mild," giving the impression that they aren't as harmful to health, will no longer be found on store shelves.

Declo woman directs pageant

By Kimberly Williams-Brackett
Times-News correspondent

A Utah woman with Idaho roots is director of the Miss Deaf Utah pageant, held today in Riverton, Utah.

Andrea Anderson, former Declo resident and daughter of John and Joyce Simpson, filled the vacant seat a year ago after the Miss Deaf Utah court was dissolved in 2005.

Anderson

"The pageant was on hold for a few years since there were many things that needed to be fixed in the organization and needed new leadership," Anderson said.

The pageant is sponsored by the Utah Association for the Deaf, Inc.

In 1995 Anderson was crowned Miss Deaf Idaho and went on to win the evening gown category in Portland, Ore., at the Miss Deaf America pageant, which was held every two years since 1972, in conjunction with the National Association of the Deaf.

Anderson was the last Miss Deaf Idaho crowned.

"There was a lack of leadership and organization and funds," Anderson said.

The last Miss Deaf Idaho pageant was held in Idaho Falls in conjunction with the Idaho Association of the Deaf conference.

With a hearing disability, she was a student at the Idaho School for the Deaf and the Blind in Gooding for three years.

Davis to receive Eagle Scout Award

Whitt Davis will receive his Eagle Scout Award at a Court of Honor at 6 p.m. Sunday at the Declo LDS Stake Center. He is a member of troop 127 sponsored by Declo 2nd Ward of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. He is the 14-year-old son of Joey and Terina Davis.

Davis completed his Eagle project in August 2008. His project consisted of removing a 20-foot section of sidewalk that divided the east and west parking lots of Declo High School.

Davis

The sidewalk was replaced with a handicap ramp, new curb and an entrance/exit for vehicles. Upon completion, the project joined parking areas, improving traffic flow and safety.

Davis will be a freshman at Declo High School.

Speed sometimes needed when lights, sirens are not

Q: I've seen officers going over the speed limit while in their patrol cars without their lights or siren on. Don't they have to have their lights and sirens going to go over the speed limit?

A: No. Sometimes we need to get to a scene that does not require lights and sirens but we still need to get there in a hurry. Sometimes officers may be headed to a scene where lights, and especially sirens, could jeopardize the situation.

There are a few officers who drive fast just to drive fast. I would encourage citizens to talk with the boss of an officer if it's believed he or she is habitually driving in such a manner.

I should add that there are also undercover officers who may be headed to a crime scene, in or out of progress, who could be speeding.

Q: Are those RADAR speed trailers accurate on the speeds or are they cosmetic?

A: They're purely cosmetic.

If you stop and check them out you get a free makeup sample. Then you have to put on the makeup and smile because of the joke I attempted to tell you.

The truth is that the RADAR trailer is a regular RADAR unit that has a bigger screen. If you see somebody drive by the trailer and they are speeding, you could actually sign a citation

Slippery elm bark a miraculous remedy for some people

DEAR DR. GOTT: About two years ago, you published a letter from a woman who said she had a problem for six years that was eventually helped by taking slippery elm bark. Her symptoms of debilitating, ongoing nausea and vomiting were almost exactly the same that our 43-year-old son had for almost 10 months.

ASK DR. GOTT
Dr. Peter

Both reported they were under constant care by their doctors, to no avail.

Our son was told to take Prilosec, which he did, with no change whatsoever. When his doctor finally referred him to a gastroenterologist, and after many, many tests in hospital and out, nothing could be diagnosed. He had just about given up. Under his doctor's direction, he stopped the Prilosec. His job was in jeopardy. He was hospitalized overnight due to dehydration. Yet he was healthy in all other respects.

When I told my son about the woman's letter, he finally tracked down a place where he could buy slippery elm bark. Almost immediately, he became well. He missed taking it for one day and felt sick. He went right back on it, is staying on it, and is fit as a fiddle! If the remedy is psychosomatic, so be it. For whatever reason, it is working.

DEAR READER: Slippery elm is also known as the red elm, sweet elm and others. This native North American tree has been utilized in a number of ways for countless years, including canoe making, as a food preservative, as a source of survival food during the Revolutionary War and as a medicine. The inner bark contains the medicinal portion, which is dried and powdered before use. It has a high mucilage content, which becomes a slick gel when mixed with water. It is reportedly good for coating and calming the Jerry Lopez, center, of Houston, sings along with the band 'Fire Proof' Wednesday night during the beginning of a service at Outcry in the Barrio in Twin Falls. The church specializes in helping people overcome alcohol, drug and other addictions. About 120 former addicts from seven different Texas centers came to Twin Falls this week to help the church spread its message of hope, which centers on the healing powers of Jesus Christ, they say.

Outreach ministry offers hope to addicts

By Andrew Weeks
Times-News writer

After years of drug abuse and violence, Tony Lopez hit rock bottom.

Support groups, counseling, prison — they didn't matter. None of them helped. Only when he learned about Jesus Christ did his life begin to change.

Now he, along with more than 100 other former alcohol and drug addicts, are spreading a message of hope in the Magic Valley, letting people know that no matter how dark their world might seem, there is a light that can guide them to a new day.

"We hope to reach out to the rejects of society — those who are struggling, those who have given up on themselves," said Lopez, noting that drugs, especially meth, continue to overpower people in communities across the country. "But there's hope. Man, there's hope."

Lopez now serves as the Twin Falls pastor of Outcry in the Barrio, an outreach ministry composed of former drug addicts, gang members, murderers, thieves and others, he said. The church serves under its parent Victory Life Ministries in San Antonio, Texas, founded in 1972 by former drug addict Freddie Garcia. About 120 former addicts from seven centers in Texas came to Twin Falls this week to help the local church spread the message of hope.

Lopez said it's an "easy message" the ministry provides: People don't have to continue living in the dark; Jesus can help change them. How? The power is in the Christian message, he said.

"Our main focus is on the power of the cross," Lopez said. "We're telling people how we were once heroin, meth or other addicts, that there was no hope for us. Drugs had taken us to places where we had no self-respect. We would lie, cheat, steal, had no respect for authority; some of us had been to prison. Then someone came to tell us about the loving message of Calvary, how Christ died for us and then rose from the dead. That simple message changes lives."

Outcry in the Barrio — Spanish for neighborhood — became an official ministry in Twin Falls on May 8, but members have been proselytizing in the area for about a year, Lopez said. They bought their current church building at 450 Third Ave. W. after Christian Life Fellowship offered it to them for $1 in January. The ministry hopes to expand, eventually opening facilities in Boise, Burley and Gooding.

At least four rallies, much like revivals, have been held this week in Twin Falls — one at the church, others around the city — where church members shared their conversion experiences with the public.

Jim and Diania Crapson of Twin Falls attended a rally Thursday night at Radio

Rocio Lozano, of Houston, worships with her 6-month-old son, Roman, Wednesday at Outcry in the Barrio church in Twin Falls. Three other rallies were held this week at other locations in the city.

Tony Lopez, pastor of the Twin Falls Outcry in the Barrio, joins in worship at the church Wednesday night. Lopez, a former drug addict who spent time in prison, says his life began to change after he heard messages from former drug users about how Jesus Christ had helped them overcome their addictions.

Rondevo. They sat outside the center because the music inside was too loud for them, they said. But after Lopez asked them if they accepted Christ and his saving power, they were invited to join the congregation.

"We've been Christians for a while, but this is really out of this world," said Jim, noting that hearing the testimony of former addicts "touches me to the heart."

The Crapsons, now on probation, moved from Nebraska to California seeking job opportunities but settled in Twin Falls in 2006 after a series of letdowns. Eventually, because of their drug and alcohol addictions, their two children were taken away. They still cannot see the children today, they said.

The couple plan to make Twin Falls their permanent home, and are happy to have found a church they feel comfortable attending. Other churches did not welcome them the way a Christian body should, they said. They think Outcry in the Barrio will be a good fit.

"We're now members of a really rockin' church," Jim said, as music blared from inside the center, where people clapped, stomped, waved and shouted "Jesus!" Between numbers, former addicts — some rough-looking with bandannas and tattoos — shared their conversion experiences.

The messages — the gospel plan told in street language, as Lopez calls it — was what helped him to see the light.

Lopez, 32, committed his first violent crime in California at age 9, when he stabbed a person. He was "put away" until he was 17, he said, but he wasn't rehabilitated. As a member of a gang he became addicted to heroin and shot another victim. He was sent to prison for seven years.

Not having parental guidance, Lopez grew up on the streets. Gangs became his family, the streets his home.

"That was the only thing that was offered to me. I was hopeless," he said. "The truth was that Jesus Christ had a plan and future for my life."

Members of Victory Life taught him, in the street language he was used to, that life wasn't hopeless; that he could change. Hearing about how the gospel had given them the courage and strength to fight their addictions, he felt pricked in his own heart. They were living examples of the power of the Word, Lopez said.

Though he had heard about Jesus previously, he never heard about him to the extent these ministers preached or in so personal a manner as they shared. But even after learning about Jesus, overcoming his own addictions didn't come easy, Lopez said. But it gave him the courage and strength others had talked about to fight his own battles.

"There were struggles along the way. It was a process," he said. But he began to be accountable; he began to see things in a new light. He said he had a relapse into drugs for a few days early on but that was the last time.

Today, eight years after release from prison, he sometimes has a tough time remembering what life was like before he accepted Jesus into his life. He prays that he might remember, though, so he can better minister to those who are going through the same things.

The ministry offers a 24-hour hotline, and offers a place for addicts to stay while counselors help them to overcome their addictions. There's a minimum 90-day stay, Lopez said, paid for by the ministry. Some have stayed for six months or longer. Afterward, the recovering addicts may choose to go to San Antonio, Texas, to be trained in the ministry.

Not everyone rehabilitates. There's always temptation, said Diego Rodriguez, a former addict from San Antonio. For him, however, the change seemed almost instantaneous.

"It's something you have to experience yourself to understand," he said. Though he had tried other avenues of recovery, it wasn't until he "sincerely approached Christ" that he could finally change.

"He's been the key to our success," Rodriguez said.

"Society says once an addict, always an addict. But we believe who the Son sets free is free indeed," added Lopez, who considers himself living proof of the power of Christ. "I'm not the same person I used to be. I'm not that person anymore."

The only thing that looks out of place with the Jerome Idaho Stake's reenactment of a pioneer trek is the modern-day vehicles and trailer set in the background. Some of the handcarts the youth used while on the trek sit on the far left.

Jerome area youth reenact pioneer trek

By Andrew Weeks
Times-News writer

You likely won't see people pulling handcarts these days — unless, that is, you're part of a pioneer reenactment.

Such was the scene this week in the Raft River area, where youth and their leaders from the Jerome Idaho Stake of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints gathered to learn more about their church's pioneer heritage, deepen their appreciation of their own ancestors, and come to better know Jesus Christ.

About 240 youth, ages 12 to 18, attended the four-day event, which reenacted the pioneer trek of handcart companies as they traveled from the Midwest to what's now Salt Lake City.

Participants dressed in period clothing and hiked six miles the first day, three Members of the LDS Jerome Idaho Stake on Tuesday unload handcarts in the Raft River area that youth ages 12 to 18 would use to reenact a pioneer trek. The experience, leaders say, was to help give the youth an appreciation for their pioneer heritage and, with that understanding, deepen their faith in Jesus Christ.

miles the next, then five miles, and, finally, one mile, according to stake member Lara Miller.

Before they went on the trip, the youth were asked to search out one of their ancestors who had a pioneer experience, so they could better understand what that ancestor went through, ElRay Bingham, second counselor in the stake presidency, said.

"That's part of the purpose," Bingham said, "to understand some of the things their ancestors went through.

"As the youth learn those types of things, they might say they got it pretty easy compared to the physical hardships (of their ancestors)," he said. "But we have different challenges today, with all the evil that's in the world. We're trying to tie the past with the present ... that they have to rely on and have faith in the Savior Jesus Christ to get through their own experiences."

Besides the religious convictions that leaders hope will root deeper in the youth, the event helps youth to make friendships, teaches them how to get along with others, including people they don't know, and enjoy time in the outdoors.

"It's not all about hardship, but it's a lot of fun," Bingham's wife, Roberta, said. Among other things, members learned about Dutch oven cooking and slept under the stars, she said.

As a stake chairwoman over the handcarts, Roberta Bingham joined in with the youth, trekking and doing the other things required as part of the experience. The Bingham's own children made the trek in previous years and, because of it, made friends they wouldn't have made otherwise, she said.

Though a lot of planning went into the trek, the time and hard work was well worth it, Roberta Bingham said.

The trek hasn't been an annual event with the stake, as the last one took place about four years ago. She's not sure when the next trek will be planned, as that will be evaluated at another time, she said.

A legacy of loopiness

My 18-month-old grandson, Dallin, took a fall off the garage stairs last week.

It wasn't a horrible fall. In retrospect, it could have been much worse. But it was enough of a fall onto a hard concrete floor that it knocked him out cold. For about 30 seconds — which seemed to his mother, Jen, like 30 minutes — little Dallin lay completely motionless, not even breathing. Jen worked frantically to revive him, but even when he finally started to breathe again, his breathing was shallow and his eyes sort of rolled between open and closed. Jen called 911, which — wouldn't you know it? — seemed to trigger Dallin's return to normalcy. By the time the paramedics arrived Dallin was breathing and behaving as if nothing had happened.

Even though it had.

In fact, it had happened once before, when another fall knocked the toddler out. So the paramedics advised Jen to take Dallin in to see his doctor immediately — just to be sure everything was OK.

VALUE SPEAK
Joseph Walker

And it was — thank God. Within a few hours he was back to his old tricks, making toilet paper soup in the potty after his bath, requiring a second bath but — happily — no hospital visits.

Now, I don't know what most of you are thinking when you read that little story. But there are five of you who are reading this (you guys are reading this, aren't you?) for whom I know exactly what you are thinking. My five living brothers and sisters are thinking: "Joey, that's what you used to do!"

And they're right, of course. Although I don't remember it, I have heard many times through the years — like at every family gathering since I was 5 — how, when I was a toddler, I used to fall and hit my head and pass out. From what I've been told, whichever big brother or sister was around at the time would blow into my mouth to revive me, and I would come out of it kind of loopy and dazed and wobbly. Evidently the family would gather to watch me smile vacantly and wander aimlessly as my little toddling body sort of ... you know ... rebooted.

In those pre-television days, this is what was known as "family entertainment." So in a sense, my big brothers and sisters remember these serio-comic episodes as fondly as I remember Anything Can Happen Day on "The Mickey Mouse Club."

I pointed out to Jen this interesting similarity between her semi-cherubic son and his semi-aged grandfather. I was hoping it would give her comfort to know that I somehow managed to survive these fairly frequent forays into oblivion (which some readers may contend continue to this very day). It didn't occur to me until later that maybe it had the opposite effect. Maybe my daughter-in-law looks at me — still loopy, dazed and more wobbly than ever — and worries for her child's future.

And now suddenly I'm worried too. Dallin is my only grandson, my only hope for a posterity that shares my name. Is this what it means to be a Walker: coordination/consciousness issues? Is loopiness my lasting legacy? Is the family crest to be altered, the bold knight at the top replaced by a rendering of a dazed, prone child?

I hope not. Thankfully I think I still have a few more years to imbue our shared name with some meaning. My DNA may not help him become a professional athlete or a noted philosopher, and I don't expect a windfall that will result in a life-changing inheritance for him. But perhaps I can do something in my remaining years — however many there may be — to leave him a legacy of service, kindness, compassion and love. That would be a heritage that he could proudly embrace.

Consciously or ... you know ... un-

Christian group claims progress on a common Easter observance

By Bradley S. Klapper
Associated Press writer

GENEVA — Christianity's largest ecumenical movement expressed hope recently that churches were moving closer to a common Easter for the world's Christians, despite a historical debate nearly as old as the religion.

Catholic and Protestant congregations will celebrate their belief in Jesus' resurrection on the same day as Orthodox churches in 2010 and 2011 because of a coincidence in the Julian and Gregorian calendars. The common holiday has happened three times this decade.

But the World Council of Churches says consensus is emerging that these should not just be occasional occurrences.

At a recent meeting in Lviv, Ukraine, theologians representing nearly the breadth of Christianity agreed in principle on a strategy for all the faithful to continue observing their feast together.

"It's not a problem of principle, of dogma or of doctrine," said Juan Michel, spokesman for the council, whose 350 Protestant, Orthodox and other churches represent more than 560 million Christians. It cooperates with the Roman Catholic Church, which is not a member.

"It's more of a pastoral issue for some churches," said Michel. "There are concerns how the faithful will feel if there is a change in the traditional way of calculating the date."

The confusion over Easter's historical date arose in the early days of Christianity as the faith spread and different groups interpreted the four Gospels in different ways.

According to Matthew, Mark and Luke's Gospels, the last meal Jesus shared with his disciples was the Jewish Passover meal, while John's Gospel says that Jesus died on the feast of Passover itself.

Christianity's leading authorities first sought to establish a common date in 325 at the Council of Nicaea, determining it as the first Sunday after the full moon following the spring equinox.

The problem before the advent of modern astronomy was calculating the equinox. Orthodox churches use March 21 in the Julian calendar, but since the 16th century the Western date has been derived in the Gregorian calendar. The resulting difference can be up to five weeks apart.

The council said theologians from the Vatican and various Orthodox and Protestant churches endorsed a compromise on May 15 that Easter should be held for all Christians using an equinox based on accurate astronomical data.

Under the plan the unified Easter usually falls as it would under the Gregorian calendar used by Catholics and Protestants, said Dagmar Heller, an ecumenical professor in Switzerland heading the council's faith and order commission.

In the next 15 years, the only time Western churches would have to change Easter is in 2019 from April 21 to March 24. The bigger adjustment would be for the Orthodox Church, which has experienced several schisms in its history over the question of dates.

Christian groups have been trying for a century to establish a common Easter. In the 1920s some proposed a fixed Sunday as the date, but others opposed losing the theological link of the first Easter with Passover — which Jews still celebrate according to a lunar calendar.

Reformed Church adopts apartheid-era 'standard of unity'

HOLLAND, Mich. — Leaders of the Reformed Church in America have adopted a declaration of human unity, reconciliation and justice written in South Africa during apartheid.

The Belhar Confession is the New York City-based church's fourth "standard of unity" and its first new one since 1619. The General Synod approved it while meeting in Holland.

The document was written in 1982 by the Dutch Reformed Mission Church, a black denomination in South Africa. It says race "or any other human or social factor" should not divide the followers of Jesus Christ.

The church's other historic standards are the Heidelberg Catechism, the Canons of Dort and the Belgic Confession.

The Reformed Church in America also decided, after considering a report on a three-year dialogue on homosexuality, to continue that dialogue. The discussion followed a 2005 church trial of an ex-New Brunswick Theological Seminary president who performed his daughter's lesbian wedding.

Mormon church history library holding open house

SALT LAKE CITY — The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints has unveiled a new church history library.

The library will house the Mormon church's historical documents, records, journals, photographs, film and microfiche.

The 240,000-square-foot library is holding an open house on Friday and today. Dozens of selected artifacts will be on display.

The library contains a dozen storage vaults controlled for temperature, humidity and security, including protections against fire and earthquakes.

Two of the 12 vaults are subzero storage areas for film preservation. The rest are kept at 55 degrees.

The library will be dedicated June 20 and open on June 22.

Michele Ann Beall

BELLEVUE — Michele Ann Beall, 54, of Bellevue, died Thursday, June 11, 2009, at her home of liver cancer.

She was born March 21, 1955, in Jerome, the daughter of Omar D. Eldredge and Pauline R. Chapin. She grew up in Hailey in the 1960s, attended Hailey Grade School and high school through the 11th grade. She married Jerry Beall on Nov. 24, 1986, in Reno, Nev. She lived most of her life in Hailey and Bellevue and all of her life in Idaho. Michele was a loving mother, wife, sister and daughter and a good friend to all who knew her. She will be missed very much.

Michele opened a day care in her home in 2002. Then in 2005, her daughter, Amber, came to work with her. They had a very good business for all these years, and Amber has taken over the entire business for herself. She loved to go camping with her family and much enjoyed the Chapin family reunion. Michele also worked as head school lunch cook from 1984 to 1989. She also worked in Sun Valley at Christmas break for Ethel Kennedy in the 1970s when she was just 14 years old.

She is survived by her daughter, Amber Beall (Levi Morton) of Twin Falls; sons, Douglas Beall and Mike (Ada) Beall, all of Bellevue; sister, Ruth (Thomas) Mattix of Spokane, Wash.; brothers, A. Brent Eldredge of Carey and Barry D. (Veronica) Eldredge of Coos Bay, Ore.; grandchildren, Teagan, Brandon and Jennica; and many nieces, nephews, aunts and uncles. She was preceded in death by her father, Omar D. Eldredge; and a brother, Kevin D. Eldredge.

A viewing will be held at 3 p.m. Wednesday, June 17, at the Wood River Chapel in Hailey. A graveside service will be at 1 p.m. Friday, June 19, at the Bellevue Cemetery in Bellevue.

Marnie Lee Rich

Marnie Lee Rich passed from this world to a much better place Wednesday, June 10, 2009, at her home in Twin Falls. She fought a very brave battle with multiple medical conditions.

Marnie was born Aug. 1, 1976, to Jon and Donna Brownfield Rich in Logan, Utah. Marnie attended schools in Twin Falls and graduated from Twin Falls Alternative School in 1993. She graduated from the College of Southern Idaho in 2003 as a certified medical assistant. The love of Marnie's life came in 1991; Shayna Rich Gorgen was born to her in Twin Falls. Life took on a total new meaning when Shayna came into her life. She and Shayna moved to live with Bill and Ann Gorgen in 1991, staying until she went to college. The pride of her life graduated this spring from TFCA as co-valedictorian. Marnie had many things she wanted to do and achieve in her life but it was cut short.

Marnie is survived by her daughter, Shayna; her parents, Jon Rich and Donna McIntyre; her brothers, Adam Rich, Nick (Brandy) Denney and David McIntyre; her sisters, Erin McIntyre and Kelly (Mark) Ford; and her grandparents, Marge (Ed) Baily and Patty Brownfield. Marnie was preceded in death by her grandparents, Buzz Brownfield, and Burk and Ann Rich.

A memorial service for Marnie will be held at 1 p.m. Monday, June 15, at Grace Baptist Church, 798 Eastland Drive N. in Twin Falls, with Pastor Mark Sjostrom officiating. In lieu of flowers, the family suggests memorials be given to the Grace Baptist Church, in care of Shayna Rich Gorgen. Contributions may be given to funeral chapel staff or mailed to Grace Baptist church, 798 Eastland Drive N., Twin Falls, ID 83301. Arrangements are under the direction of Reynolds Funeral Chapel in Twin Falls.

Olive Claudine Bean

HOMEDALE — Quietly putting away for the last time her thermometer, stethoscope and hypodermic needles, our favorite nurse, Olive Claudine Bean, 87 years young, left her family, friends and many wonderful memories on Saturday, May 16, 2009, at the Owyhee Health and Rehabilitation Center in Homedale, Idaho.

An Idaho legacy born in Nampa on Jan. 27, 1922, to Otis and Sadie Hughes Howard, Ollie and her siblings, Quetta, Bud and Toni, enjoyed growing up in the challenging and rugged mountainous mining and logging towns of Rocky Bar and Pine. Being confined there all winter by deep snow necessitated that they ski and snowshoe to the one-room school house. At other times, both parents worked on ranches that are now buried under the waters of the Anderson Ranch Dam. A champion Idaho fiddler, her father would walk several miles on the weekends to play the violin for area dances.

After graduating from Filer High School, Ollie entered nursing school at St. Luke's in Boise and graduated in 1943 with her RN degree. As a registered nurse, Ollie worked in the Magic Valley for 43 years, working several years for Dr. Knight in Kimberly and for Dr. Covington and Dr. Schwartz in Twin Falls.

Ollie married Richard J. Kawieki on Sept. 12, 1942, in Nampa and James D. Bean (Mick) on Jan. 9, 1951, in Twin Falls, with both marriages later ending in divorce.

Ollie was an excellent cook and a master of many hobbies. She loved to make things to willingly share with everyone. She was a longtime member of the Pleasant Valley Willing Workers' Club and especially looked forward to their monthly meetings.

Ollie was very proud of her son, Randy, when he chose to follow in her footsteps into the medical field by becoming a veterinarian; he is currently practicing at Owyhee Veterinary Clinic in Homedale. He and his wife, Marlene, gave her two grandsons, Kory and Barry. She supported them in all of their endeavors from afar and was always eager to fix them a meal when they came to visit.

Ollie was preceded in death by her parents, Otis and Sadie Howard; her brother, Harold (Bud) Howard; and sister, Shirley Utahna (Toni) Hill. She is survived by her son, Dr. Randy (Marlene) Bean; grandsons, Kory (Sylvia) Bean and Barry (Karen) Bean; sister, Chiquetta Grice of New Mexico; sister-in-law, Beverly Howard of California; many nieces and nephews; and of course, her numerous close friends.

Ollie's generous and compassionate nursing demeanor that touched the lives of so many will be remembered at her memorial service at 11 a.m. Saturday, June 20, 2009, in the Woods Pavilion at Rock Creek Park in Twin Falls.

Donations may be made to the Idaho Songs Project, in care of Slim Chance Music, 74900 Sky Ranch Road, Nampa, ID 83686, or the Idaho Humanities Council.

John Francis Miller

HAILEY — John Francis Miller of Hailey passed away Wednesday, June 10, 2009.

He was born June 30, 1926, in Salina, Kan., to Fred and Rhea Miller. John was the 11th of 12 children. In 1936 after the Dust Bowl hit Kansas, John's parents were forced to quit farming and move to Idaho, where John's father had secured employment. John attended schools in Hailey and joined the Army in 1944. After his discharge from the Army in 1947, he returned to Hailey and, on May 13, 1948, he married Virginia Nelson, also of Hailey. John and Virginia had just celebrated their 61st wedding anniversary.

John was, by trade, a mechanic working for 25 years at Sawtooth Motors in Hailey. John and his son, Mark, owned and operated Hailey Chevron for seven years. At the time of his retirement in 1993, he was working for Hailey as supervisor of the River Plant.

Many will remember John for his love of cars — and making them go fast. Shortly after returning from military service, he built and raced his cars around southern Idaho, winning many titles and earning the nickname "Joltin' Johnny." John was also an excellent skier, and he taught his three children as well as his wife how to ski. The family spent many winter weekends skiing at Rotorun Ski Resort west of Hailey. Later, John became interested in snowmobiling and Mark joined his father in the love of that sport for many years. John was immensely proud of his family.

He is survived by his wife, Virginia of Hailey; three children, Marilyn (Tom) Parker of Boise, Mary (Dave) Morely of Boise and Mark (Rustin) Miller of Hailey; five grandchildren, Sara Calhoun, Joel Parker, Whitney Parker, Avin Carroll and Jozey Mitcham; two great-grandchildren, Alec Higley and Jayden Calhoun; and two sisters, Dorothy Sandow of Abilene, Kan., and Rhea Rubino of Saratoga, Calif. He was preceded in death by his parents, four sisters and five brothers.

The family suggests in lieu of flowers that memorial contributions be made to the Blaine County Senior Center.

A graveside service will be held at 1 p.m. Tuesday, June 16, at the Hailey Cemetery. Friends and family are welcome to join the family after the service at 2 p.m. at the Blaine County Senior Center. A light lunch will be served.

Arrangements are under the direction of the Wood River Chapel in Hailey (www.woodriverchapel.com).

Betty B. Olmstead

Betty B. Olmstead, age 84, of Twin Falls, died Wednesday, June 10, 2009, in Twin Falls.

She was born Dec. 16, 1924, to John and Ephra Brickell on a very cold and snowy day in Buhl. She attended Cedar Draw Country School from first to eighth grades and graduated from Buhl High School in 1943. She graduated from Albion State Normal School, where she obtained a teaching degree. She taught school at Kimberly, teaching in numerous grades. After teaching, she went to work for the Federal State Inspection Services in Twin Falls prior to her marriage.

Neil and Betty met at a local dance and they were married May 20, 1954. They raised their four children on the local farm south of Twin Falls.

Betty was preceded in death by her husband, Neil in 1997. Survivors include their children, daughter, Carolyn Peterson (Steve) of Hayden; son, Brent Olmstead of Boise; daughter, Rosalee Shanley (Ray) of Anaheim, Calif.; and daughter, Jeanine Clayton (Steve) of Twin Falls. They have eight grandchildren, Holly Tacke, Steve Peterson, Jacob Olmstead, Erin Shanley, Michael Shanley, Berkley Olmstead, Murphy Olmstead and Annie Clayton. Also, they were blessed with four great-grandchildren.

Betty was very proud of her children and their accomplishments. Her family was her greatest joy. Her family viewed her as a beautiful person with a huge heart to all. Betty was very active in the First Presbyterian Church in Twin Falls and also the church in Hollister. She was recognized and honored receiving the Presbyterian Woman of the Year and Honorary Life Membership in day in Buhl. She attended Presbyterian Women awards in 2007. She was a member of Circle 5, manager of the church's Scotch Shop and willingly volunteered whenever she could. She served as a deacon of the church.

Since her marriage she has been a member of the Shamrock Club, the Twentieth Century Club, Magic Valley Historical Society and Cowbells. She was a devoted sister of Chapter BP of PEO. She volunteered for various organizations in the community and for a time willingly gave of herself to the hospital auxiliary.

Her family and people of the community will remember Betty as being a generous person who willingly devoted time to help others; her love and care of her friends and her cat, Spice; her ability to raise beautiful flowers and an abundance of vegetables was well known and she willingly shared the fruits of her labor with friends and neighbors. She gave to the Valley House, Safe House, Jubilee House and always found donations for the Battered Women's Shelter.

A funeral service will be held at 2 p.m. Monday, June 15, at White Mortuary, with Pastor Al Fry officiating. A concluding service will follow at the Twin Falls Cemetery. In lieu of flowers, the family requests that contributions be given to one of the charitable organizations she so willingly gave to listed above.

Violet Sebring

Violet Sebring, 99, of Twin Falls died Thursday, June 11, 2009, in Twin Falls.

She was born Violet Sherrets in a family with 10 brothers and sisters in Topeka, Kan., on Nov. 10, 1909.

It was there at a dance she met the only man she gave her heart to, Myron "Buck" Sebring. They had one son, Myron Duane Sebring, born Sept. 4, 1930. The family moved to Alameda, Calif., in 1942. Violet worked for Skippy Peanut Butter for 18 years, a job she truly loved.

Violet was the last survivor of her husband, son, and all her loving brothers, sisters, in-laws and cousins (what a family reunion she is now taking part of). Not invited to the reunion are her savoring four granddaughters, seven great-grandchildren and eight great-great-grandchildren.

A celebration of Violet's life will be held at 2 p.m. Monday, June 15, at Reynolds Funeral Chapel, 2466 Addison Ave. E. in Twin Falls. Burial will follow at Sunset Memorial Park.

A viewing for family and friends will be held from noon until the time of the service Monday at Reynolds Funeral Chapel.

Man indicted in artifact theft probe found dead

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A Utah physician indicted in a federal investigation into the theft of ancient artifacts in the Four Corners region has been found dead in an apparent suicide, a sheriff's official said Friday.

San Juan County Sheriff's Chief Deputy Grayson Redd, a distant relative, said James Redd's body was found Thursday afternoon by his local church leader near a dried-up pond on his property in Blanding.

Phil Mueller, a family member, said Redd died from apparent carbon monoxide poisoning in his Jeep.

"It's a tragic loss for the community," Mueller told The Associated Press. "He was everybody's general practitioner and birthed most of the babies in Blanding."

Police did not verify a cause of death, but the sheriff's chief deputy said the death has been ruled a suicide.

James Redd, 60, was one of 24 people indicted after a two-year investigation. The indictments were announced by federal officials on Wednesday. Court papers say those involved stole, received or tried to sell American Indian artifacts, including bowls, stone pipes, arrowheads, pendants and necklaces.

Cooper Tire ordered to share documents for lawsuit

LOGAN, Utah (AP) — A federal appeals court has ordered Cooper Tire & Rubber Co. to release hundreds of documents on the design and construction of its tires. A Cooper tire blew out during a 2005 van crash that killed eight Utah State University students and their instructor.

The Findlay, Ohio-based company says it makes good tires and blames the Sept. 26, 2005, crash on high speed, overloading and tire under-inflation.

Lawyers for families of the crash victims — including two survivors — say previously disclosed company documents raise questions about the integrity of all Cooper tires. The Denver-based 10th Circuit Court of Appeals upheld a lower court on Tuesday and ordered Cooper to share information about defects in all of its tires.

"We respectfully disagree with the court's opinion but will abide by this pretrial ruling and comply fully with our discovery obligations," said Cooper's investor-relations manager Curtis Schneekloth.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

"No man ever followed his genius till it misled him."

— Henry David Thoreau

To mark the the U.S. trials currently taking place, I am using one of my favorite deals from the finals of the 2005 trials. This deal, which came up in the last segment of a very close match, shows both sides making noteworthy plays.

First, consider how you would play in six spades. Since everything comes down to the play of the trumps, do you cash the ace early, or take two finesses? The percentage play is to take two finesses and make the contract as the cards lie.

However, put yourself in Fred Gitelman's shoes. Fred was sitting West and knew that if the spade ace was to his right, the slam would go down, but what if it were to his left? To try to prevent declarer from following the percentage line in trumps, he led the heart nine to the first trick!

Surely declarer would not now risk a losing spade finesse, given the threat of a heart ruff. Would that induce him to play spades from the top? No sale! Michael Rosenberg, smelling a rat, won the heart lead in hand to pass the spade jack. Well-done, both sides, but the swing went to Gitelman's opponents.

Still, Gitelman had the last laugh when his squad won the event and went on to take the bronze medal in the World Championships.

ANSWER: The quality of your hearts is bad, but the control-rich nature of your hand, coupled with your 16-count, argues for aggression. Jump to three hearts, and if it goes wrong, tell your partner you thought the heart two was the 10.

Adopted child needs to know his family history of addiction

DEAR ABBY: My 14-year-old son, "Adam," has known he was adopted since he was old enough to understand. Adam's birth parents both were addicted to drugs, alcohol and tobacco. In fact, Adam tested positive for cocaine at birth.

Should I tell him that he is at risk for addiction because of his biological heritage? I want him to be aware, yet I don't want to bad-mouth his birth parents or in any way lead him to think that this is his destiny. I know he associates with kids who may be involved in these things.

— CONCERNED MOM

IN ATLANTA
DEAR CONCERNED MOM: Frankly, you should have had this conversation with Adam by the time he was 9. He must definitely be given this information. To remain silent would be like failing to warn a child with balance problems not to walk a tightrope.

It would not be "bad-mouthing" to explain to Adam that because his adoption records show his parents were both addicts, it's extremely important that he avoid addictive substances because he could become addicted more easily than the average person. Explain that while it isn't a guarantee that he'll become hooked, the tendency is there. Forewarned is forearmed.

DEAR ABBY
Jeane Phillips

DEAR ABBY: I am one of your male readers. A year and a half ago, my brother was killed in an automobile accident by a drunk driver. We are a very close family, and everyone was devastated. My sister-in-law, "Grace," and I were always close, and we have become closer lately. Now we're discussing the possibility of a relationship.

Grace has three grown sons, and I realize there could be issues or concerns with the boys and our families, but we feel they would want us to be happy.

Is this something that is acceptable, and does it happen often? We have never discussed the fact that I am not my brother and cannot — and never would try to — replace him. I couldn't. He was a great man.

— LOOKING FOR INSIGHT IN THE MIDWEST

DEAR LOOKING FOR INSIGHT: While I do not have any statistics about widows and widowers becoming romantically involved with former in-laws, I can tell you that this situation is not as unusual as you might think, and the subject has appeared before in my column. It is understandable that you and Grace would be drawn to each other. You have years of shared history in common, and that could form the basis of a very successful union. If you love each other, I say go for it.

DEAR ABBY: When I take a break at work I like to read, but I am often interrupted by co-workers. Even though they see me reading, they insist on starting a conversation. I don't mean to be rude, but it is relaxing for me to "escape" for a few minutes, and I feel robbed when I can't enjoy my latest book. It is too far to go to my car, and we are not supposed to leave the area anyway.

What can I do or say without being considered unkind?

— ANITA IN CINCINNATI

DEAR ANITA: Try this — nicely warn your co-workers in advance that reading is your form of relaxation and you would appreciate it if they let you concentrate on your book during your break. That way, everyone will get the message in a nonconfrontational way.

Another thought: Place a Do Not Disturb sign with large lettering next to you if you think it will help them get the hint.

IF JUNE 13 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: You may be forced by circumstances to ride out the doldrums or sit on your hands through the middle of July. That is a good thing because undertaking new responsibilities could become an albatross around your neck. If you want to sail through pleasant seas, wait until the beginning of August when you have a helpful but temporary reprieve. You may have the opportunity for travel, to take up a new study or to hook up with benevolent and charitable partners. Put major plans into motion in December when you have the vision and wisdom to make positive, beneficial choices and when people view you in the most attractive light so you can successfully interview for a new job or meet the person of your dreams.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Good manners work wonders. Your interest in a variety of unusual subjects can earn you the friendship or admiration of those with less adventurous souls. Be content to stick to the conventional route.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Remain alert. A significant other might assess a situation better than you can, so listen up. If you contemplate an investment or purchase, however, you might hear only what you want to hear.

HOROSCOPE
Jeraldine Saunders

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Play it as it lays. If social activities take the spotlight and business endeavors get shoved onto the back burner, then give in with good grace. Family connections may give you a chance to shine in public.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): When in Rome, do as the Romans do. Adapt to the customs, habits and morals of others that you are thrown into contact with. You may meet up with some fresh — and friendly — faces on your travels.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Head out for some sunbathing, but carry an umbrella. Some cautious preparation will prevent you from being taken by surprise. Maintain a little cynicism where money or future plans are concerned.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Traditional values keep you afloat when new ideas come flooding in. Your friends and partners may stray from the herd and tempt you to discard conventions. A surprise phone call might brighten your day.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Rub the bottle the right way and the genie will purr with pleasure. A recent conquest or a rekindled love yearns to bask in the sunshine of your approval and may grant you your every wish.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Pin the tail on the donkey. Drive and initiative can get you where you want to go. Balance a forthright, can-do attitude with a sense of humor and you can outmaneuver all opposition to your plans.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Those who are too intent on winning might ignore the rules of the game. Unexpected news or offers could send you off on a wild goose chase. Hold off on starting important new projects.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): False starts are to be expected when everyone in the crowd is waving a checkered flag. This isn't a good time to go along with the crowd or to let mixed signals deter you from your goals.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): People feed on your energy without draining it. Once stirred by your example, others could go to great lengths to imitate your unconventional methods. Prevent a friend from burning valuable bridges.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Things usually turn out the best for people who make the best of things. You could be distracted or upset by minor emergencies. You may find that others block your efforts to be entertaining.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Saturday, June 13, the 164th day of 2009. There are 201 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:

On June 13, 1966, the Supreme Court issued its landmark Miranda v. Arizona decision, ruling that criminal suspects had to be informed of their constitutional right to consult with an attorney and to remain silent before being questioned by police.

On this date:

In 1886, King Ludwig II of Bavaria drowned in Lake Starnberg.

In 1927, aviation hero Charles Lindbergh was honored with a ticker-tape parade in New York City.

In 1935, James Braddock claimed the title of world heavyweight boxing champion from Max Baer in a 15-round fight in Long Island City, N.Y.

In 1944, Germany began launching flying-bomb attacks against Britain during World War II.

In 1957, the Mayflower II, a replica of the ship that brought the Pilgrims to America in 1620, arrived at Plymouth, Mass., after a nearly two-month journey from England.

In 1967, President Lyndon B. Johnson nominated Solicitor-General Thurgood Marshall to become the first black justice on the U.S. Supreme Court.

In 1971, The New York Times began publishing excerpts of the Pentagon Papers, a secret study of America's involvement in Vietnam.

In 1981, a scare occurred during a parade in London when a teenager fired six blank shots at Queen Elizabeth II.

In 1983, the U.S. space probe Pioneer 10, launched in 1972, became the first spacecraft to leave the solar system as it crossed the orbit of Neptune.

In 1996, the 81-day-old Freeman standoff ended as 16 remaining members of the anti-government group surrendered to the FBI and left their Montana ranch.

Ten years ago: NATO soldiers shot dead two armed men as peacekeepers tried to contain new violence in Kosovo; Russian troops, meanwhile, blocked British troops from entering the airport in Pristina, the capital of Kosovo.

Five years ago: In Iraq, gunmen assassinated senior Education Ministry official Kamal al-Jarah. Former President George H.W. Bush celebrated his 80th birthday (a day late) with a 13,000-foot parachute jump over his presidential library in College Station, Texas. Annika Sorenstam won the LPGA Championship for the second straight year.

One year ago: Tim Russert, moderator of NBC's "Meet the Press," died unexpectedly while preparing for his weekly broadcast; he was 58. Rising water from the Cedar River forced the evacuation of a hospital in downtown Cedar Rapids, Iowa; in Des Moines, officials issued a voluntary evacuation order for much of downtown and other areas bordering the Des Moines River. Pope Benedict XVI took President George W. Bush on a rare stroll through the lush grounds of the Vatican Gardens during the leaders' third visit together.

LEGAL NOTICE

The Idaho Department of Fish and Game was informed by the Bureau of Fisheries and Regional fishery managers that, through June 7, weekly angler surveys indicated that about 89 percent of the State's harvest share of hatchery Chinook salmon greater than or equal to 24 inches total length (adults) returning to the Clearwater River drainage was harvested. Angler surveys also indicate that about 66% of the State's harvest share of hatchery Chinook salmon less than 24 inches total length returning to the Clearwater drainage was harvested. By June 11, anglers likely will have harvested about 94 percent of the State's share of Chinook salmon greater than or equal to 24 inches total length and about 70% of the State's share of Chinook salmon less than 24 inches total length. The majority of that harvest has occurred downstream of the Orofino Bridge.

To provide opportunity in fisheries in the South Fork Clearwater and Lochsa rivers to harvest Chinook salmon greater than or equal to 24 inches total length and upstream communities, such as Orofino, Kamiah, Kootkia and Grangeville to continue to harvest Chinook salmon less than 24 inches total length, the Bureau of Fisheries recommends closing the North Fork Clearwater River and the mainstem Clearwater River fisheries downstream of the Orofino Bridge effective the end of fishing on June 11, 2009. The Bureau of fisheries also recommends prohibiting retention of Chinook salmon greater than or equal to 24 inches total length in the mainstem Clearwater River from the Orofino Bridge upstream to the South Fork Clearwater River effective the end of fishing on June 11, 2009 and closing the Chinook salmon fishery in the mainstem Clearwater River from the Orofino Bridge upstream to the South Fork Clearwater river effective the end of fishing on June 17, 2009.

Pursuant to his authority under Idaho Code Section 36-106(e)(6) (A), the Idaho Department of Fish and Game Director hereby closes the North Fork Clearwater River and the mainstem Clearwater River downstream of the Orofino Bridge effective the end of fishing on June 11, 2009. The Director also closes the mainstem Clearwater upstream of the Orofino Bridge to the South Fork Clearwater River to the retention of Chinook Salmon greater than or equal to 24 inches total length effective the end of fishing on June 11, 2009 and closes that section of the Clearwater River upstream of the Orofino Bridge to the South Fork Clearwater River to Chinook salmon fishing effective the end of fishing on June 17, 2009.

Copies of Order 09-33 are available at the Idaho Department of Fish and Game headquarters, 600 South Walnut, PO Box 25, Boise, Idaho 83707.

DATED this 10th day of June

SUDOKU

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Concepts Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.
