Property assessments draw complaints

T.F. assessor quiet on figures

By Jared S. Hopkins
Times-News writer

Twin Falls County's taxable value increased since last year by nearly $118 million, or 2.93 percent, according to preliminary figures from county assessor's office.

The increase, which has not been equalized and is still fluid, is an overall number for the entire county. Individual property values for some properties increased while others decreased. In Twin Falls County, assessments are based on data from Oct. 1, 2007 to Sept. 31, 2008, said County Assessor Gerry Bowden. Properties are physically appraised once every five years.

"Everything we do is based on sales," Bowden said.

Individual assessments were mailed earlier this month, and data provided by Bowden represent a June 16 snapshot. The numbers can vary daily until the assessments are finalized in July, after county commissioners rule

The percentage was calculated by the Times-News using figures

Bowden said clear estimations cannot be made until they are finalized. He offered only broad generalizations.

"We didn't have a change going on," he said. "Our values are still staying pretty level."

BLM: Holes of little harm

Bureau says transmission project drilling won't cause significant damage

By Nate Poppino
Times-News writer

The U.S. Bureau of Land Management believes the drilling of more than 900 boreholes along the proposed route for a new transmission-line project will not cause any significant harm to public lands.

The agency announced its finding regarding preliminary work for the 1,150-mile Gateway West Transmission Line project in a draft environmental assessment released Thursday. Officials will now gather public comment on the document through July 22 before any official adoption of the finding.

The transmission project would be a joint venture of Idaho Power Co. and Rocky Mountain Power, connecting substations near Glenrock, Wyo., and Boise with 230- and 500-kilovolt power lines. The boreholes are needed for early geotechnical work for designing the foundations and support structures holding the lines.

JEROME — Fighting wildfires is no game, but "spicing up training a little bit" couldn't hurt, said Shane McDonald, the Bureau of Land Management's Twin Falls district assistant fire regulations officer.

Area BLM firefighters capped off fire training season Thursday at Devil's Corral near the Snake River Canyon with an engine challenge competition.

Thursday's session came after smoke jumping training among BLM employees Wednesday at the Twin Falls District Fire and Aviation Program at Joslin Field, Magic Valley Regional Airport.

Each year, all BLM fire districts must hold an internal preparedness review of the engines and their operators, McDonald said. The review includes equipment checks, safety tests, and procedure drills.

Thursday's review was different from past years because fire crews competed against each other for recognition and a possible gift certificate — but most importantly, bragging rights.

At each of six review stations, crews were timed, or given points for proficiency on equipment and individual preparedness, safety knowledge, hose lying skill, engine driving, water pumping and line digging. Stations were facilitated by BLM supervisors from around the Magic Valley.

Training for the upcoming fire season has been going on for the past four weeks, and with the weather creating more fuels than

Growing deficit threatens Obama's popularity

By Jennifer Loven and Liz Sidoti
Associated Press writers

Analysis

WASHINGTON — The solid armor of President Obama's popularity may have a crack — a nearly $2 trillion-sized one.

There's continued and considerable public restiveness over eye-popping federal budget deficits, a potential danger for both Obama's ambitious agenda and his political fortunes.

About $1.3 trillion when Obama took office, this year's deficit now is on track to soar to a record $1.85 trillion after his massive influx of federal spending to stimulate the moribund economy, help struggling homeowners, stabilize frozen credit markets and bail out troubled banks, automakers and insurers.

With those actions, Obama has greatly expanded the government's reach — and, polls say, stoked people's concerns.

From the start, Obama has been sensitive about skyrocketing deficits. He's grown only more so lately.

Shortly after his November election, the president-elect said: "We

Those growing more wary are mostly political independents, the fickle swing voters who decide close elections. They were critical to the winning coalition Obama assembled last fall and certainly will be critical again if he runs in 2012.

shouldn't worry about the deficit next year or even the year after" because righting the economy should take precedence. Seven months later, he declared that the deficit problem "keeps me awake at night."

He's mindful of this: The public's lingering wariness over a government plunging deeper into the red threatens to turn into a major liability. As he said in April: "We also have a deficit — a confidence gap — when it comes to the American people."

Recent polls indicate as much.

Assessments

County Assessor Max Vaughn estimated his county's total taxable value declined between 3.4 percent and 4 percent. Those figures could also change once equalized, but Vaughn said they shouldn't be off too much.

When asked for a measurement of changes in valuation by individual sectors such as commercial or residential property, Bowden again declined to release numbers, saying the information wasn't immediately available and he needed to create a report.

Property owners have until 5 p.m. Monday to file an appeal of their assessments. If a compromise is not reached with Bowden's office, then the property owners may appeal to the county commissioners, who serve as the Board of Equalization.

The 2.93 percent increase covers the total taxable value of all property in the county, and it includes commercial and residential parcels, but not "operating" property such as utilities and railroads.

As in other years, many property owners say they are upset about the rise in their assessments.

Gene Kisling of Twin Falls said his land assessment jumped 48 percent, to lead to an overall 8 percent overall increase in his property assessment — and many of his neighbors saw the same.

"Most of them are experiencing about a 45 percent increase in the land assessment and the assessor's office has told us that has to do with the price that vacant lots went up last year," said Kisling, a former licensed Realtor. "I don't know if that's true or not because none of (the vacant lots) have sold in our area."

About 60 appeals have already been filed, according to the Twin Falls County commissioners' office. Two years ago, there were 130 total challenges. Dozens of property owners have already met with Bowden's staff.

"I personally have not had one person come to me and talk about it," Twin Falls Commissioner Terry Kramer said. "I'm not hearing anything, but seeing quite a bit of action in the office, which means people are filling out appeals forms."

Doug Vollmer, a certified appraiser who regularly deals with land transactions, said the limited information available to county assessors handicaps them. But he said after recently questioning a client's appraisal for $1.6 million, the amount was adjusted to less than a $1 million.

"There's definitely a discrepancy from property to property," he said. "There's no consistency."

usual the firefighters must prepare for a busy season, said McDonald.

The Twin Falls District is responsible for about 4.5 million acres of federal land, he said, plus state land and private property that the BLM helps to protect.

"It's nice we have had some time to train and drill with the weather being down," said Miguel Martinez, BLM engine operator in Burley. There has been no major fire in the Twin Falls district so far this summer, McDonald said.

"We're not so much anxious," Martinez said, "we are just trying to keep a level head and not let the rain and the moisture catch us with our hands down."

Project

Only about 280 borings would actually take place on BLM land in Idaho and Wyoming; 91 would be in field offices covering south-central Idaho. The rest would be on state lands, private property and American Indian reservations, where the companies expect some drilling access will be denied.

Tests would be needed roughly every two miles along the main and alternate proposed routes, according to the assessment. The utilities have asked the BLM for a short-term right-of-way grant for the work, though the assessment does not give a firm time frame.

According to the document, the boreholes would be 6- to 8-inches wide and run an average of 40-feet deep. Each hole would take about half a day to drill, and would be filled in with drill cuttings.

Of all the categories reviewed by the BLM, only fish in the Colorado River are listed as likely to be adversely affected by the temporary work. Seasonal restrictions would apply to work near sagegrouse leks, and biologists and archaeologists would scout in front of a work crew to ensure sensitive species and cultural sites aren't disturbed, said Natalie Cooper with the BLM's Idaho office.

Idaho Power officials were not available for comment Thursday afternoon.

A draft of the main environmental impact statement for the transmission project is expected to come out late this summer, but no other assessments are expected to be needed, Cooper said. She noted the larger project has drawn its share of attention — mostly from landowners unhappy with the route — and said she expects some of that may bleed over into the borehole document.

"I can imagine we'll have some comments," she said.

called police about her disappearance from her Twin Falls home.

The girl worked with Avila at Mi Pueblo, a Twin Falls Mexican bakery. Her parents suspected Avila in the disappearance because they thought the two were dating without their consent and her parents thought Avila was 19, according to court records.

Police say Avila first denied involvement in the girl's disappearance until another Mi Pueblo worker gave authorities Avila's cell phone showing he had been communicating with the girl after she disappeared, court records show.

With that, police told Avila he was a suspect and detained him, according to court records. "Eduardo then advised that he did know where she was and he would tell us."

Avila allegedly went on to tell police the girl was staying in room 6 of the Dunes Motel in Twin Falls, where she answered the door on Monday. There, she allegedly told authorities that Avila got her the room on Sunday, and at 4 a.m. on Monday she ran away from home and took a taxi to the room.

Motel workers told police that Avila gave a different name to reserve the room — Marcos Avila — and that he planned to buy the room for a month for himself and someone he referred to as his wife, according to court records.

Avila allegedly told police he used a false name "to make it harder for (the girl) to be found," court records show.

Motel workers also told authorities that Avila had other one-night stays there, though he has a home in town. Authorities don't know if Avila's motel stays were with the girl, court records show.

Avila and the girl on Monday both denied an "intimate relationship," police say in court records.

But on Tuesday, the teenager changed her story after her parents called police with concerns that Avila had sex with their underage daughter, according to court records.

The girl allegedly told police Tuesday that in April "Eduardo had told her that he was going to be with her forever and talked her into having sex with him at the Dunes Motel," court records show.

"Eduardo picked her up from O'Leary Junior High School on a Tuesday in April 2009 and drove her to the Dunes Motel where they had sex," according to court records. "After having sex Eduardo drove (the girl) back to O'Leary Junior High and dropped her off at the bus stop."

The girl is not charged with a crime, according to online court records, though police say they arrested her on Monday for being incorrigible and a runaway.

After Avila's arrest, the girl's dad allegedly told police he is "worried Eduardo will come back to Twin Falls, after being deported to Mexico, to harm (the girl) or the family?"

A 14-year-old Jerome girl was allegedly taken from her school in October by 35-year-old Hector Guerrero-Castillo but she was found in December in Mexico City and returned to her parents.

Guerrero-Castillo was charged with kidnapping and 10 counts of lewd conduct with a minor. Authorities think he is probably still in Mexico.

"A warrant has been issued for his arrest, but he is still at large and believed to be in Mexico," said Jerome County Sheriff Doug McFall.

Avila was arraigned Tuesday for the enticement charge and has a preliminary hearing in that case set for July 7. He was arraigned Wednesday on the lewd conduct allegation and that case is scheduled for a preliminary hearing on June 26 in Twin Falls 5th District Court.

Obama

The nonpartisan Pew Research Center reported Thursday that a majority of Americans — 55 percent — are optimistic that Obama will eventually reduce the budget deficit. But that's a smaller slice than the 61 percent of people who approve of him generally.

And according to a new New York Times/CBS News poll, 60 percent of Americans don't believe the president has a strategy for dealing with the deficit.

Also, 58 percent in an NBC/Wall Street Journal poll want Obama to make controlling the deficit a higher priority than a speedy economic recovery. And, nearly half expressed a "great deal" of concern about the increase of government intervention in American life that Obama has overseen, from taking over companies to influencing corporate bonuses and seeking to add government-sponsored insurance to the health care system.

Those growing more wary are mostly political independents, the fickle swing voters who decide close elections. They were critical to the winning coalition Obama assembled last fall and certainly will be critical again if he runs in 2012.

In the nearer term, if voters turn on Obama, it could threaten the Democrats' comfortable majority in Congress and make it difficult for the president to secure approval for his ambitious proposals to overhaul health care, revamp energy policy and institute sweeping economic reforms. Democrats up for re-election in 2010 will gladly attach themselves to Obama if he's successful — but they also will just as quickly distance themselves from him amid failure.

So far, the reservoir of concern hasn't dragged down Obama's overall approval ratings. Despite disappointing economic progress and international turmoil, solid majorities still view the president favorably and larger numbers than in years say the country is on the right track. And, for now at least, people blame former President George W. Bush for the deficit more than they blame Obama, by far.

But the GOP senses a rare opportunity for a potent message against the popular president. Republicans are hammering Obama as a big-spending, big-government, big-deficit leader.

Democrats argue the public's anxiety is temporary.

"We're in an intermediate period where people have seen government take action but they haven't seen the impact yet. They will," said Matt Bennett, vice president of the centrist Democratic group Third Way. "The concerns will drop when it starts looking like the government's action is helping their families and communities."

Not wanting to chance it, the White House repeatedly looks for ways to stress its commitment to reducing both deficits and government intervention.

Obama has promised to cut the deficit by half within his four-year term. He also focuses just as much on the need to drastically cut the expense of health care as he does on expanding coverage. He pledges at every turn that he won't accept any plan that increases the deficit. Expect this to continue as the debate heats up into the summer and fall.

Critics have mocked some of his efforts.

Using his first formal Cabinet meeting in April for a frugality push, Obama gave agency chiefs 90 days to find $100 million in savings. Calculators immediately revealed the figure as a pittance representing just one-twentieth of 1 percent of the federal deficit for March alone.

Magic Valley's summer of the UFOs

Turns out July and August of 1947 were a lot wackier around here than we realized ...

My Tuesday column about unidentified flying objects in the Magic Valley promoted a string of phone calls and e-mails from folks who wanted to talk about their own local UFO experiences ...

But the best of all came Monday, before the column was even published, from Beth Twitchell Swenson, adult reference librarian at the Twin Falls Public Library ... Among her other duties, Beth is the keeper of Times-News archives ...

And she e-mailed to describe the amazing number of strange celestial sightings that were chronicled in these parts in mid-1947 ...

As you may know, on July 8, 1947, something mysterious crashed near Roswell, N.M., touching off the now-62-year-old UFO industry ... Many unexplained flying objects were reported in and around Twin Falls that summer ...

Thanks to Beth, here's a sample:

- On July 3, 1947 — five days before Roswell — two flying saucers were reported over Twin Falls — and another over Richfield ...

"R.L. Dempsey, residing in a trailer camp near Truck Lane market, reported seeing two flying saucers ... at 5:10 p.m. ... Dempsey described them as flying high, appearing shiny and sounding like Flying Fortresses at an altitude of about 20,000 feet." ...

- On the Fourth of July, at least 35 flying objects were seen by 60 people picnicking in Twin Falls City Park, appearing in three formations about 10 minutes apart ...

- On July 8 — the same day the Air Force announced the Roswell incident — 11 Twin Falls residents and five Jerome residents reported seeing flying saucers ...

- On July 11, Mrs. Fred Eastbrook found a 30-inch metal disk — complete with a Plexiglas dome — in the back yard of a neighbor on Twin Falls' Seventh Avenue East ... The object appeared to have torn up patches of grass as it landed ... Stamped on the metal were the words "Inspected by TM?!"

Police turned it over to the Army, but two days later four teenagers told the Twin Falls police chief that it was a prank ...

- Then came Aug. 13, the granddaddy of all UFO days in Twin Falls ... A fish farmer and his two sons were angling in the Snake River Canyon at about 1 p.m. when they saw a hat-shaped, sky blue, 20-foot-wide flying object 300 feet away and 75 feet above the ground ... Treetops under it were spinning wildly, although the object itself didn't appear to rotate. It made a swishing sound, and there was a red flame visible on one side ... The witnesses reported it was traveling about 1,000 mph ...

- On Aug. 19, 10 to 15 luminous flying saucers were reported over Twin Falls ... Two days later came the explanation: Observers were actually seeing spotlights from the Cassia County Fair and Rodeo in Burley reflected off clouds ...

So why was everyone outdoors at night in the summer of '47, looking at the sky and seeing all kinds of specters? ...

Granted, it was an edgy time for America, with the Cold War just beginning ... But a much better explanation, I think, is that nobody yet had cable ...

Jerome Co. to pay for another evaluation of murder suspect

By Andrea Jackson
Times-News writer

JEROME — A judge decided Wednesday that Jerome County must pay for another psychological evaluation of a 73-year-old murder suspect who has yet to be found fit for trial.

Fortino Leon was charged last year with first-degree murder and aggravated battery and assault, for allegedly shooting his now ex-wife, Maria A. Leon, 41, and killing the man she was with, 22-year-old Javier Zavala-Paniagua, on July 1 outside 221 5th Ave. E. in Jerome.

Officials with the Idaho Department of Correction were optimistic in December that Leon might be able to stand trial in the future, though he remained unable as recently as April, according to court records.

State authorities have submitted to the court reports on Leon's status since his mental fitness was questioned Aug. 1, when Judge Jason Walker signed an order to determine Leon's fitness to proceed, according to court records.

Walker declined recently to make all of Leon's reports public, citing potential fair-trial right impingement.

On Monday, Leon's public defender, Dan Taylor, filed a motion for another mental evaluation after officials with the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare's State Hospital South filed their conclusions with the court.

The conclusions are not part of Leon's public file, and both prosecutors and public defenders have opposed the release of sealed records in the case.

But Taylor says in court records he wants a doctor referred to only by the last name "Tyson" to "perform a follow-up evaluation of Leon in order to confirm or dispute State Hospital's conclusions."

Dr. Tyson, Taylor said in court records, is "already familiar with this matter and will be able to provide a detailed and unbiased conclusion."

Leon was scheduled to have another status hearing on Thursday in Jerome County 5th District Court, though Walker continued that so defense lawyers can get their county-funded, independent report on Leon.

Shoshone council OKs police funds in Hadden case

City police officer stayed out of town in relation to shooting case

By John Plestina
Times-News correspondent

SHOSHONE — The Shoshone City Council approved open-ended funding Tuesday night for a police officer and his family to stay in an out-of-town motel due to unspecified reasons related to the June 12 arrests of Traci Hadden, her son and another youth in the shooting case of Craig Hadden.

Officer Mike Thompson and his family had to be displaced, Police Chief Jon Daubner told the council. He requested that the city pay for a hotel bill for an unspecified period.

The council unanimously approved Daubner’s request without discussing the matter.

Traci N. Hadden, 34, her son, Blue Hadden, 15, and friend Michael “Mikey” Cannon, 16, all of Shoshone, are accused in the April 1 shooting of Craig Hadden, a Shoshone businessman who was seriously injured. Cannon is the alleged shooter.

While the trio faces a host of charges that include an alleged conspiracy to kill Thompson, no motive for the plan has been given. Thompson and Daubner remain under a gag order in the criminal investigation.

When asked about his request following the council meeting, Daubner said he is under a gag order and cannot say more.

“I knew about it because we (he and Daubner) talked about it,” said Shoshone Mayor J.R. Churchman. “It was one of those safety first, worry later situations.”

He said Thompson and his family are no longer staying in a motel. Churchman said he thought the bill might cost the city about $300.

Churchman declined to elaborate on the specifics. “We’ve been told, ‘Don’t talk about it,’” he said.

Study looks at Idaho charter schools

By Ben Botkin
Times-News writer

A decade into the history of charter schools in Idaho, a new study shows that the state’s charter schools have a high level of satisfaction among students, parents and teachers and academic results that can rival those of traditional public schools.

Commissioned by the Idaho State Department of Education and paid for with federal money, the study was conducted by the Northwest Regional Educational Laboratory in Portland, Ore. The study looked at the 26 “bricks and mortar” charter schools that are not virtual online charter schools. Idaho has 31 charter schools, five of which are virtual charters.

Charter schools are public schools that are given more flexibility than their traditional public school counterparts.

The study’s results show:
• Seventy-nine percent of charter schools in 2007-2008 made Adequate Yearly Progress, a requirement under the federal No Child Left Behind Act. In that same year, 54 percent of non-charter public schools made AYP.

• For parents choosing charter schools, the top three things influencing their decision are: small school or class sizes, the school’s philosophy and a safe school environment.

• Ninety-seven percent

“We’re very pleased with what the results show. Perhaps the most important thing is the satisfaction level of parents and students. That shows they’re happy with what they’re getting”

— Ken Burgess, a lobbyist for the Coalition of Idaho Charter School Families of parents, students and teachers are happy with their charter school.

The study’s results will likely be cited in future policy discussions that center on charter school issues in Idaho. In the 2009 Legislature, there was talk of both a temporary moratorium on charter schools as well as lifting the cap that limits charter school growth.

“We’re very pleased with

The study is part of the state agency’s overall goal in evaluating all programs and areas of education to see what’s working well, said Melissa McGrath, spokeswoman for the State Department of Education.

Deby Infanger, chairwoman of the board for North Valley Academy in Gooding, said it’s good to see information that shows charter schools are reaping results.

“I thought it was very encouraging because it’s always good to have hard data that supports what you are thinking,” she said.

Buhl man charged with rape

Times-News

A Buhl man was arraigned Thursday on a rape allegation filed by a woman who told authorities she is a lesbian and would never have consented to sex with a man, according to Twin Falls 5th District Court records.

Marty Wade Stone, 37, was lodged Thursday in the Twin Falls County Jail on $25,000 bond after he was arrested at his home on a warrant charging rape, dated Wednesday from the Twin Falls County Prosecutor’s Office.

Police say the woman — whose age is not listed in court records — reported last month that she was raped by a man after she went with him to another home to get some darts to play a game.

The woman told authorities that before going with her alleged rapist, she had “come to a residence in Buhl, Idaho, to recover some items from a residence where she had formerly lived,” according to court records, which don’t list the addresses.

Police say in court records they interviewed the woman at St. Luke’s Magic Valley Medical

He claims victim initiated sex, she says she’s a lesbian and wouldn’t have consented

Center, where she said she tried to hit the man with her head to make him stop, though authorities “did not notice any injury or bruising on either party,” according to court records.

Stone denied the allegations, and allegedly told police he had consensual sex with the woman after she initiated the contact.

The victim requested authorities charge Stone with raping her, according to court records.

Congress passes 'cash for clunkers' program

By Ken Thomas
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — Congress approved a "cash for clunkers" program Thursday to provide government incentives of $3,500 to $4,500 to motorists who trade in their gas guzzlers for more fuel efficient vehicles after Senate Democrats narrowly defeated a Republican effort to kill the plan.

Auto state senators said the program would help hard-pressed car dealers and automakers by bringing buyers into showrooms, and they got help from President Barack Obama and Vice President Joe Biden, who made calls to wavering Democrats urging them to keep the plan alive.

"This is an emergency for families and small businesses — for an industry that has been the backbone of our economy for a generation," said Sen. Debbie Stabenow, D-Mich., who sponsored the proposal.

Opponents said it would increase the federal debt without doing much to get expensive-to-operate vehicles off the roads.

Senate supporters of the program overcame a procedural hurdle by the plan's leading opponent, Sen. Judd Gregg, R-N.H., on a 60-36 vote, winning the votes needed to keep the program in a $106 billion war-spending plan that the Senate passed later Thursday.

The House approved the cash for clunkers bill last week on a vote of 298-119 and Senate Democrats attached it to the war-spending bill. The overall bill now goes to the White House for Obama's signature.

Four Republicans — Kit Bond of Missouri, Thad Cochran of Mississippi, Susan Collins of Maine and George Voinovich of Ohio — voted with two independents and 54 Democrats in favor of the clunker measure, while Democrat Ben Nelson of Nebraska was opposed along with 35 Republicans.

Sen. Maria Cantwell, D-Wash., changed her vote to support the vehicle incentive plan and spoke by phone with Obama during the vote.

Cantwell spokeswoman Ciaran Clayton said Obama "acknowledged Senator Cantwell's concerns that the cash-for-clunkers program ... did not do enough to meet our nation's urgent need to reduce foreign oil dependence" and vowed to work with Cantwell and others to "maximize the number of efficient cars on America's roads."

Obama and Biden reached out to Democrats Patrick Leahy of Vermont, Claire McCaskill of Missouri and Michael Bennet of Colorado, according to two people familiar with the outreach.

AROUND THE NATION

WASHINGTON Senate Democrats pare back health bill

Key Senate Democrats, bidding for bipartisan support on health care, pared back subsidies designed to make insurance more affordable on Thursday and floated a compromise that rules out direct government competition against private insurers.

Despite the cost-cutting, the proposal backed by Sen. Max Baucus, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, requires most individuals to purchase coverage and forbids insurance companies from denying it on the basis of pre-existing medical conditions.

The brief outline did not specify how the government's costs would be covered, although Baucus and many Republicans favor a tax on certain employer-provided health benefits. The Montana Democrat has said he intends to hold the cost of the legislation to about $1 trillion, well below the $1.6 trillion estimate the Congressional Budget Office made of an earlier set of options.

Senate questions Obama's financial oversight plan

President Obama's plan to increase oversight of banks and other financial institutions ran into skepticism Thursday on Capitol Hill where senators sharply questioned whether it was enough to prevent another economic meltdown.

The lack of a ringing endorsement suggests the proposal was headed for a rewrite by a Congress sensitive to voter frustration with the government's handling of the economy.

"They're very angry, and they are worried. And they are wondering who's looking out for them," Sen. Christopher Dodd, chairman of the Senate Banking Committee, said of his constituents.

In testimony before the panel, Treasury Secretary Timothy Geithner defended the proposal as the nation's best shot.

"It will be very hard, perhaps impossible, for any authority, any individual to anticipate and pre-empt all potential sources of future risk," Geithner said.

Lawmakers mostly agreed that change was needed to streamline federal regulation and fill in oversight gaps believed to have contributed to the housing and credit crisis. Several Democrats also lauded the proposed creation of a new consumer-protection agency that would police the market for deceptive business practices in such financial products as credit cards and mortgages.

MICHIGAN Test shows man is not long-missing boy

KALKASKA — DNA testing disproved a Michigan man's suspicions that he was a toddler kidnapped on New York's Long Island in 1955, the FBI said Thursday, closing a chapter in a bizarre mystery that started after he began researching his roots on the Internet.

The FBI said in a statement that a test showed John Barnes, an unemployed man in his 50s who lives in northwest Michigan, is not Stephen Damman, who disappeared at age 2 from outside an East Meadow market while his mother shopped.

The sample showed Barnes could not have the same mother as Pamela Damman Horne, the sister of the toddler who was with him when he disappeared, the FBI said. She was found in her stroller, unharmed, around the corner from the market.

NEW JERSEY Pilot on flight dies; jet lands safely

NEWARK — The only inkling passengers had that something was wrong on the Continental Airlines flight over the Atlantic Ocean was when an announcement came over the loudspeaker asking if there was a doctor on board.

Otherwise, flight attendants continued to serve snacks. Passengers read magazines and watched movies. And the flight kept on its schedule.

But in the cockpit, the 60-year-old captain had died of a suspected heart attack and two co-pilots took over the controls. The 247 passengers aboard did not learn what had happened until the flight from Brussels landed safely Thursday and was met by fire trucks, emergency vehicles and dozens of reporters.

"I was shocked," said Dora Dekeyser of Houston. "Nobody knew anything."

"We weren't panicking. I never thought it was something as serious as this. We were relaxed," said Dekeyser's granddaughter, Stephanie Mallis, 18, of Lansdale, Pa.

Not all sex offenders belong on Idaho's blacklist

Twelve years ago, Claude Freedle made a mistake. He was 26, and had a sexual relationship in Oregon with a girl who was 17. They married and had two children, but Freedle was convicted of having sex with a minor.

Since moving to Castleford in May, Freedle's past has made him a target. When a resident found Freedle on Twin Falls County's online sex offender registry, his life was turned upside down.

Fliers were posted around town depicting Freedle as a threat to the town's children. His car windows are dotted with BB holes, and someone threw a beer bottle at his front door.

Freedle's wife and infant daughter now tag along with him to work. His spouse is afraid to stay alone in the modest home they hoped to buy later this year, he said.

A construction contractor, Freedle's public exposure has cost him tens of thousands of dollars in lost wages, along with his hopes of starting a quiet, honest life in Castleford.

That's wrong, says Twin Falls County Deputy Sheriff's Sgt. Doug Sugden.

“This man has paid for the crime six times over,” he said. “Not only did the crime occur 12 years ago but he married the gal after getting out of prison and they had another child together.”

“Here's a guy who is doing everything right and just wants to live his life,” Sugden said.

The sergeant's right. Freedle's relationship with the minor girl was a crime punishable in just a handful of states, Idaho included.

And that's the trouble with the state's 16-year-old sex-offender registry: It treats people like Freedle the same as pedophiles.

There's a quantum difference between a young adult who has a consensual relationship with a 17-year-old and a grownup who molests children. The Legislature should recognize that.

It's possible to get off the Idaho sex-offender list — after 10 years. Adults may petition the court to be relieved of having to register.

Few do so, however — mostly because they don't want to get involved in the criminal justice system again.

Freedle shouldn't have been on the registry in the first place. Either the Idaho State Police or a committee appointed by judiciary should have the authority to determine who belongs on the list — and who doesn't.

Meanwhile, the life of a man who made a mistake a long time ago and who has since played by the rules in shambles. The Castleford community is better than that.

Our view: Idaho can't have it two ways: Either we want former sex offenders to go straight or we should expect them to re-offend. If we choose the former, we must let them get on with their lives.

What do you think? We welcome viewpoints from our readers on this and other issues.

A bipartisan health care reform bill?

WASHINGTON — Fifteen years ago, when Democratic Sen. Tom Daschle was running interference for the Clintons' effort at health care reform, his goal in life was to enlist Sen. Bob Dole, the hugely influential Republican leader, as a co-sponsor. Daschle never got him, and the enterprise crashed and burned.

DAVID BRODER

When I did a joint interview with the two of them this week, Dole remarked that “we started out working together, and then it fell apart” — the victim of a massive lobbying campaign, a bunch of tactical errors by the president and first lady, and Dole's presidential ambitions, which moved him into the camp of the Republican naysayers.

Now, 15 years later, Daschle and Dole, along with another former Republican leader, Howard Baker, have come together with a report outlining the provisions of a possible bipartisan health bill — and strong recommendations on how to pass it. (The fourth original member of this Bipartisan Policy Center board, former Democratic leader George Mitchell, dropped out to become President Obama's special envoy to the Middle East.)

In a phone conversation the day before their report was officially released, Daschle and Dole agreed that prospects for enactment of major reform are far better now than in 1994 — and better than they would have been even two years ago. “The situation is far more dire on costs and quality and access to care,” Daschle said. Added Dole: “You have business, labor and a whole cross section of people saying, ‘We have to have reform.’”

But it will still be a heavy lift. Like Obama, they estimate the added cost of insuring the 46 million without health coverage may total $1.2 trillion over 10 years, and say that at least half that will have to come from new revenues — if the Obama goal of budget neutrality is to be met.

To raise it, they would assess large companies that do not offer employees health insurance a fee based on their payrolls — a mandate that Dole acknowledges would be hard for many Republicans to swallow. And they would impose taxes for the first time on the so-called Cadillac policies paid for by employers — a change opposed by many Democrats, by unions and by Obama when it was advocated by John McCain during last year's election campaign.

But that is only the beginning of the bitter medicine Dole and Daschle are asking their fellow partisans to choke down.

Acknowledging that there is little chance for bipartisanship in the House, Dole urged Senate Republicans to give up any thought of filibustering the health bill. “We need a group of Republicans who will give an early demonstration that bipartisanship is possible,” he said.

Daschle, in turn, said he thinks the Democrats should not attempt to ram a health bill through the Senate by using the budget reconciliation device to pass it with 51 votes, rather than the 60 votes most legislation requires.

Daschle, who would have been Obama's point man on health reform had his tax returns for recent years not caused him problems, made the point that a reform of this magnitude should not be forced through on a narrow majority. Australia, he said, “passed and repealed health reform several times, before they got a strong enough vote to sustain it.”

It is significant that the Daschle-Dole plan sidesteps the raging controversy over whether there should be a government-sponsored plan to compete with private insurers. Obama and most other Democrats are demanding it; Republicans and conservative Democrats call it a deal-breaker.

Daschle reluctantly agreed that there would be no federal-government plan. Instead, individual states that wanted it could include such a plan on the menu for their residents, with technical help from the feds in setting it up. Five years from now, if a demand for such an option still exists, the president could recommend it — and Congress would have to vote on it.

It was damned hard for Dole and Daschle, neither of whom faces the voters or the lobbyists, to agree. It will be much harder to extract a bipartisan bill from Congress.

Give us back our recreation gas tax

In their haste to get out of town, our state legislators agreed to eliminate a beneficial gas tax-funded program and dump the money into highways to satisfy the governor. They killed the recreation gas tax program, acknowledged to be the best in the country. It was abolished with little debate, for the sake of expediency. Here's what the legislators failed to consider:

Idaho has an established policy not to apply highway taxes on gas not used on highways. For example, farmers and loggers routinely apply for a refund on the taxes they've paid at the pump for gas they've used on the farm or in the woods. Individually, they each get their money back.

In 1983, Idaho motorized recreationists asked the Legislature for the right to give up their individual tax refunds and pool it in a recreation fund. It was set up to be managed and administered by Idaho Department of Parks and Recreation.

This small (3 percent) portion of the gas tax is refunded back to recreation. It benefits Idahoans in many ways, for example: boating facilities; education and enforcement; state parks; bridges, and recreation parking lots and facilities; trails; OHV education; search and rescue, and snowmobile trail-groomers.

Each one of these benefits has a success story to tell. For snowmobiling, the gas tax pays for the groomers that groom 8,000 miles of trail, more miles than any other Western state. Snowmobilers leverage this equipment fund by paying additional registration fees. This pays for groomer operation, fuel, and other facilities. They augment these dollars with thousands of volunteer hours. Without the gas tax seed money, it would all collapse.

Off-road motor vehicle grants pay for hundreds of miles of trail improvements, trailheads and facilities, bridges, and camping improvements — both formal and informal. For each dollar of gas tax fund granted, many other dollars are added through matching funds and volunteer labor. Projects abide by strict guidelines and are reviewed by multi-user grant committees and the IDPR board. These projects would never happen without the initial impetus of the gas tax fund.

The boaters who enjoy the benefits of the waterways programs can tell a similar story.

As the projects are implemented, they bring together land managers, professionals from Parks and Recreation, county governments and recreationists. Collectively, they become the recreation infrastructure that supports tourism in rural economies.

Our state legislators took the pennies for highways, and threw away dollars of benefit for recreation. Perhaps as a concession, they set up a task force of legislators to study how the fund can be replaced. They'll be holding meetings this summer to “come up with alternatives.” I've got an alternative for them: Give us back our gas tax!

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Quote taken out of context

I recently reviewed an editorial opinion published by the Times-News entitled “T.F. school district uses loophole to dodge controversy?” In the editorial opinion, a statement that I had made was quoted, however, it was taken out of the context of the discussion I had with the reporter who interviewed me. During that interview, I explained to the Time-News reporter, Ben Botkin, that I had received an e-mail from the district clerk with regard to whether this matter should be heard in an executive session. I called the clerk to discuss the matter and learned that part of the parent's appeal to the district was a complaint about how the policy had been enacted by the board of trustees and how it had been implemented by district personnel. As the Times-News editorial and news articles point out according to Richard Powell “it had to do with the implementation of the policy and the failure to disclose information.” Idaho Code allows the board to convene into executive session to hear complaints or charges against a public officer, employee or staff member. I.C. 67-2345(1)(b). In the context of what I told the reporter I did say “if it had just been an appeal of the decision by the district it should have been in an open meeting, but that's not how it came across to me.” In addition, I never said or implied that I did not get the full story from the district. It is unfortunate that the Times-News editor never took the time to call me and interview me himself or ask for my comments before he published his opinion.

Obama's AmeriCrooks and cronies scandal

President Obama promised he would end "Washington games." But his abrupt firing of the AmeriCorps inspector general is more of the same. The brewing scandal smells like the Beltway cronyism of the Bush years. And the apparent meddling of first lady Michelle Obama in the matter smacks of the corruption of the Clinton years.

S News of AmeriCorps watchdog Gerald Walpin's unceremonious dismissal first broke last week in Youth Today, an independent national publication focused on the volunteerism sector. Walpin was appointed by President Bush in 2007 and has served well, honorably and effectively. Too effectively. His removal came a week after he "questioned the eligibility of the largest and most expensive AmeriCorps program, and while the IG was contesting the 'propriety' of a settlement made with a mayor for alleged misuse of AmeriCorps funds," according to Youth Today.

The first taxpayer-subsidized program is the Teaching Fellows Program, run by the Research Foundation of the City University of New York. Walpin's audit uncovered a multitude of grant violations, including criminal background check lapses and "pervasive problems of eligibility, timekeeping and documentation."

Walpin's office questioned duplicate educational awards of more than $16 million and costs worth nearly $775,000. CUNY refused to return excess funds that it had drawn down, failed to revise procedures to prevent such grant abuse. Walpin advised AmeriCorps' parent organization, the Corporation for National and Community Service, to cut off any new funding and re-examine past government funding totaling upward of $75 million.

CNCS, now chaired by Democratic mega-fundraiser Alan Solomont, has ignored Walpin's recommendations. The Obama watchdogs are snoozing.

The second program Walpin challenged is the nonprofit St. HOPE Academy, run by Obama supporter Kevin Johnson, the Democratic mayor of Sacramento and a former NBA basketball star. In a special May 2009 report, Walpin's office blew the whistle on a highly politicized U.S. attorney's office settlement with Johnson and his deputy, Dana Gonzalez. The pair exploited nearly $900,000 in AmeriCorps funding for personal and political gain. Based on Walpin's investigation last year, CNCS suspended their access to federal funds after determining that they were:

- Using AmeriCorps members to "recruit students for St. HOPE Academy;"
- Using AmeriCorps members for political activities in connection with the "Sacramento board of education election;"
- Assigning grant-funded AmeriCorps members to perform services "personally benefiting ... Johnson," such as "driving (him) to personal appointments, washing (his) car and running personal errands"; and
- Improperly using AmeriCorps "members to perform non-AmeriCorps clerical and other services" that "were outside the scope of the grant and therefore were impermissible" for "the benefit of St. HOPE."

But in the wake of Johnson's mayoral victory and Obama's election in November, the U.S. attorney's office in Sacramento rushed to settle with the new mayor so he could avail himself of federal stimulus funds and other government money. It was, Walpin said in his special report last month, "akin to deciding that, while one should not put a fox in a small chicken coop, it is fine to do so in a large chicken coop! The settlement ... leaves the unmistakable impression that relief from a suspension can be bought."

Shortly after, the White House announced that it had "lost confidence" in Walpin. The decks are clear to install lackeys who will protect the government volunteerism industry and its Democratic cronies.

GOP Sen. Charles Grassley of Iowa is pressing Obama for more details. Tough questions need to be asked of the first lady, who has "taken the lead" in selecting AmeriCorps' managers, according to Youth Today. Her former chief of staff, Jackie Norris, will serve as a "senior adviser" to CNCS beginning next week. What role did they play in Walpin's sacking? And why?

Mrs. Obama's interest is more than passing. She ran the AmeriCorps-funded nonprofit Public Allies in Chicago from 1993-1996 and served on its national board until 2001. Like so many of the AmeriCorps recipients investigated by the inspector general's office over the years, Public Allies was found to have violated basic eligibility and compliance rules. A January 2007 audit reported that the group lacked internal controls verifying that recipients of education grants and living allowances were legal citizens or permanent residents as required by law.

Transparency. Accountability. Fiscal responsibility. In Obama World, these are proving to be nothing more than words. Just words.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Islam isn't all that tolerant

You asked for comments on your op-ed about the Muslim center that is being set up in Twin Falls.

Behind all the talk of "tolerance, political correctness and fairness" is the stark reality of where that religion is coming from and what is its ultimate goal. The guiding book of its faith, the Koran, is the same book that guides Osama bin Laden. The faithful followers of that faith must respond to its requirements to eliminate all Jews and other "infidels" who do not bow down to Allah of the Muslim faith.

Those of the Christian faith are of the "infidels" and are targeted for elimination. Deny it if you want; talk around it with vain platitudes of compromise and tolerance, but check out the Arab countries of the Middle East. Where Islam is the state religion by law, no one is allowed to practice or promote any other faith on threat of death. Here in the USA recently, a Muslim man cut his wife's head off! Murder by U.S. law, but not so under their rules. Ladies, are you excited about that exhibit of "freedom of expression" and "holy obedience"?

Most concerning, though, is our First Amendment position. If its tenant truly is "the free exercise of one's religious faith," then how will that work out when one faith's "free exercise" calls for killing all non-believers? Will our courts and their activist judges be "compromising and tolerant"? Will you be likewise?

President Obama carefully avoided calling attention to all these aspects of the Muslim faith in his compromising speech in Egypt recently, heralding the great humane and peaceful practices of the Muslim nations. His heritage is Muslim. Though he claims to be Christian, he has never said anything positive about Christ, Christianity or Christians that I've heard. Go figure.

COCOLALLA Penned wolf bites child during tour

A 6-year-old girl who put her left hand through a chain-link fence during a tour of a wolf enclosure in northern Idaho was bitten and pulled against the fence by one of the wolves.

The Panhandle Health District investigates reports of animal bites, and spokeswoman Cynthia Taggart said the agency is looking into the incident that occurred Sunday at the Wolf People's facility.

There are differing accounts of what happened.

Julia Griffin, of Naples, said her daughter was given permission to pet one of the wolves and that the girl ended up needing more than a dozen stitches in her left hand.

The girl was treated and released Sunday at Bonner General Hospital in Sandpoint.

"My daughter stuck her hand up to one of the wolves and it just grabbed her and tried to pull her right through the chain-link fence," Griffin told the Bonner County Daily Bee. Nancy Taylor, Wolf People's founder and operator, said she was guiding the tour and warned the group not to reach into the enclosure containing a 2-year-old tundra wolf named Honta Yo because he was a young wolf and might try to grab belongings.

Taylor said she had turned her attention to another wolf when the girl was bitten.

"When I turned back, this little girl had her arm all the way into the pen with four adults standing right next to her," said Taylor.

Witnesses said the wolf released its grip on the girl after one of the workers entered the enclosure.

Taylor said Wolf People has a clean safety record in its nearly 16 years. Wolf People also said that Honta Yo is vaccinated against rabies.

KETCHUM Ketchum to keep free wireless Internet

Officials in the resort town of Ketchum say a free wireless Internet system will continue.

The Ketchum Urban Renewal Agency on Monday approved a deal with Nampa-based Network Operations Co. to maintain and manage the system for at least a year.

Matthew Wheeler, president of Network Operations, proposed a deal that will cost the city about $850 a month. He says the cost could be less if it draws advertisers.

The free wireless network launched in September 2007 with a grant from Allen & Co.

But earlier this year city officials said the system would be shut down because it didn't have enough money to pay what was then a monthly cost of about $2,500.

Improve your collections to help secure cash flow

Over lunch recently, I spoke with a banker regarding the critical need for business owners to keep up with their accounts receivable.

In a stormy economy, it can be even more difficult to collect. In turn, it can threaten your ability to access working capital, reinvest in the company, get financing and even pay your own bills. By taking steps to improve your collection process, many business owners can improve their chances of maintaining a steady stream of cash even during harsh economic times.

BUSINESS INSIGHT
Scott Plew

Excuses don't pay off

The quality of your products or services, and the efficiency of order fulfillment and distribution processes, can significantly impact collections. You give customers an excuse not to pay when an order arrives damaged, late or not at all, or a customer is incorrectly billed or doesn't receive promised discounts or special offers.

Make sure you resolve billing mistakes quickly and ask customers to pay any portion of the bill they're not disputing. Once the matter is resolved and the product or service has been delivered, ask the customer to pay off the bill and sign off on the matter by making a note on the final invoice. This will help protect you from potential future claims.

Automate everything

Sending invoices out late can also thwart your collection efforts. Become familiar with industry norms before setting your payment schedules — whether they're on 30-, 45- or 60-day cycles. If your most important or largest clients have their own payment schedules, be sure to set them up in your system. If you haven't already done so, implement an automated collection system that generates invoices when work is complete, flags problem accounts and generates useful financial reports. Consider sending client invoices electronically and enable them to pay online. You can send statements out monthly as a routine reminder of balances due.

Regularly verify account information to make sure invoices and statements are accurate and get into the right hands. Be sure to set clear standards and expectations with customers — both verbally and in writing — about your credit policy, including pricing, delivery and payment terms.

5 tricks of the trade

Despite your best efforts, you're still likely to encounter slow-paying customers. Here are five strategies to increase your chances of receiving timely payments:

- 1. Request payment up front. Ask customers for a deposit on each order or provide a service retainer.
- 2. Reward timely payments. Give discounts to customers who pay on time or improve their payment histories.
- 3. Charge fees. Assess fees or finance charges for past due amounts. Place extremely delinquent accounts on credit hold or adjust their payment terms to cash on delivery (COD).
- 4. Stay connected. Make regular calls and send e-mail reminders to clients who haven't settled their accounts. If necessary, either you or the manager who works directly with the client should try to resolve the payment issues with your lead contact at the company or even the owner. Consider executing a promissory note to prevent the client from disputing the charges in the future.
- 5. Get professional help. If your efforts aren't fruitful, get help from an attorney or collection agency. Keep in mind, though, that third-party fees may consume much of the collected amount.

Simpson searching for ag research funds

By Joshua Palmer
Times-News writer

Congressman Mike Simpson, a member of the House Appropriations Committee, hopes to secure more than $13.4 million in federal funding for agriculture research in Idaho.

The House Appropriations Committee approved the request late Thursday night as part of the 2010 Agriculture Appropriations bill.

The bill is expected to be read in the House of Representatives "in the next few weeks," said a spokesman for Simpson's office.

A majority of the funding would go to the University of Idaho to conduct the research, which Simpson said would benefit agriculture in the Pacific Northwest.

"Agriculture research is not only central to the mission of Land Grant Colleges like the University of Idaho, but it is critical to the economic vitality of our region's primary commodities and the jobs those commodities support," Simpson said. "While federal funding is severely limited and taxpayer resources should be spent with great care, each of these programs has a long history of success and importance to Idaho's agriculture sector."

Among its many provisions, the bill includes $8.3 million in funding to eradicate a potato cyst nematode outbreak in Idaho's signature commodity and $349,000 for research at the University of Idaho into preventing the diseases re-occurrence.

John Revier, a spokesman for Simpson's office, said the funding to eradicate the disease was part of the appropriations baseline — meaning that the money is not an earmark.

However, the remaining $5.4 million that Simpson is proposing would be an increase to the Agriculture Appropriations bill, which Congresswoman Rosa DeLauro, chairwoman of the House Agricultural Appropriations subcommittee, said is currently $2.3 billion more than the previous year.

Simpson has argued that the money would be well spent by funding research to prevent threats to agriculture in the Pacific Northwest.

"Since it was found back in 2006, potato cyst nematode has posed an unwelcome threat to

CINCINNATI — With shoplifting on the rise — including organized teams sweeping through stores and lifting scores of items in minutes — retailers are beefing up plainclothes patrols and video surveillance, and competitors are working together to prevent crime.

Stores are running online stings and sending security guards onto sales floors posing as customers. The FBI helped create a database for trading notes on suspects and their methods. Minneapolis-based Target Corp. even has a forensic lab and tracks video feed from its 1,700 stores at regional hubs.

"In light of today's economy and the expense pressure, it is an investment that shows good return," said Brad Brekke, a former FBI special agent who heads assets protection for Target. "There is definitely economic pressure generating more activity across the board — fraud, theft, cyber crime. The Stores are employing new measures, both seen and unseen, to fight back against rising theft problems during the recession. While retailers won't give away all their security secrets, industry officials say stores are adding plainclothes patrols on their floors and that increasingly sophisticated video surveillance systems, some that allow a security expert to monitor stores across the country, are becoming common.

intensity has gone up as the economy has gone down."

The National Retail Federation, a trade group, says nearly half of 115 retailers it surveyed are spending more on crime-fighting — some companies spend more than $1 million a year just on personnel hired to stop crime rings. The NRF, which opens a loss prevention conference Monday in Los Angeles, says 92 percent of the surveyed retailers were victims of organized theft teams last year, an 8 percent increase, even as many saw slumping sales.

grocery stores across the country this year. But retailers say the vast majority of their losses are from thefts by organized rings that usually send in a small group including a getaway driver, an in-store lookout and several "shoppers."

Employers face questions on using independent contractors

Times-News staff

As Idaho businesses navigate the economic uncertainties of the current recession, turning to independent contractors to do the work that direct employees once did can be seen as a cost-saving strategy.

But incorrectly designating workers as independent contractors carries severe financial consequences.

"Independent contractors can be a valuable asset to a business," Idaho Department of Labor Director Roger B. Madsen said. "But there are specific criteria workers must meet to be considered contractors, and ignoring those criteria to improperly cut operating costs will become a drain on a business once it is discovered in addition to putting other businesses at a competitive disadvantage."

Misclassifying employees as independent contractors can lead to significant federal and state tax liabilities, civil fines and even criminal penalties.

A worker is not necessarily an independent contractor simply because the worker claims to be an independent contractor; signs a contract; is paid on commission, by piece-work or by the job; performs services sporadically, inconsistently or is on call or works for more than one employer, although any of these criteria can be a factor in determining independent contractor status.

Among the critical elements is whether the employer controls only the outcome of the work. To that end issues of concern are whether the worker has a permanent relationship with the employer, receives employee-type benefits such as health care or pensions, performs work integral to the day-to-day operations of the business, has the right to determine his own hours or has his own operating costs and provides his own tools and equipment.

AN INDEPENDENT CONTRACTOR

To be an independent contractor, a worker must be both:

- Free of the direction or control of the employer in the performance of the work, and
- Engaged in an independently established trade, occupation, profession or business.

— Source: Idaho Department of Labor

"We want Idaho businesses to understand when it is proper to use independent contractors and when the worker is actually an employee," Madsen said. "Avoiding what can be serious financial consequences from misclassifying employees is very important to us. We have a vested interest in seeing Idaho businesses succeed."

one of Idaho's most visible commodities and to the economic livelihood of farmers and communities," he said.

In 2006, the potato cyst nematode, which lodges in spud roots and can seriously cut yields, was found near Shelley - the first outbreak in the United States.

The finding led to a temporary ban on Idaho potatoes by Canada and Mexico - costing producers and the state millions of dollars in lost sales.

Besides research into the nematode, the bill also includes funding for a variety of research programs, such as:

- Aquaculture Research in Idaho and Washington.
- Barley for Rural Development in Idaho and Montana.
- Increasing Shelf Life of Agricultural Commodities.
- Greater Yellowstone Interagency Brucellosis Committee.
- Tri-State Predator Control Program in Idaho, Montana and Wyoming.

Joe LaRocca, a senior adviser for the retail federation, said it only makes sense to cooperate with competitors to fight the problem, which officials peg at $35 billion a year and rising.

"You know you're getting hit and your neighbor is getting hit and, by working together, you have a much better rate of identification and prevention," LaRocca said.

Wal-Mart Stores Inc., Saks Inc., Ann Taylor Stores Corp. and others share information in the 2-year-old national database with the hope of stopping organized teams that take medicines, popular-brand clothes, video games and electronics - items that can be quickly resold in small shops, flea markets and online.

"I'm even amazed sometimes at what these guys do," said Jerry Biggs, who heads anti-organized crime efforts for the Walgreen Co. drugstore chain. "They're in and out in four minutes. They can go from store to store, do this all day long."

Biggs said the rings know more households are looking harder for bargains - often online, where many high-volume thefts are fenced, or in flea markets and small shops - during the recession.

Help for the hungry

Summer lunch programs

By Blair Koch
Times-News correspondent

Crystal Saunders rests her leg, supported in an unforgiving brace, as her four children tear into sack lunches at the Twin Falls City Park on June 12.

Saunders said partaking in the free meal isn't a financial necessity but welcome nonetheless.

"It sure is nice ... especially while I'm laid up," said Saunders.

The children, ages 2 to 7, have enjoyed the free lunches at the park a couple of times. The meals are healthy and interesting for the kids, Saunders said.

"It's probably healthier than what I would be giving them right now," she said. "The kids really like it."

The meals of a grilled cheese sandwich, apple, chips and milk were served in numerous parks and schools throughout Twin Falls as part of the school district's involvement in the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Summer Food Service Program.

Many school districts in the Magic Valley are taking part in the food program, which provide free lunches, and sometimes breakfast, to all youth ages 1 to 18 years regardless of their financial need.

Friends Chase Falconburg, 12, and Raymond Stone, 9, said they enjoy eating lunch surrounded by friends and people they know.

Both kids are experiencing financial challenges at home and said the lunches served at City Park are something their stomachs look forward to.

"The first day we missed it," said Chase.

Stone finishes the thought, "and it sucked."

Chase said his parents recently divorced and his dad works long hours throughout the week. He's been spending time with Raymond's family but is aware of the financial situation causing stress to his friend.

"We try to save as much food as we can so everyone can eat a lot at dinner," Raymond said. "When we saw this going on we asked if we could get a lunch and they told us that we could come everyday and that's what we've been doing."

The children say that without the program they'd likely just skip lunch.

"It's nice to know that people are willing to give others help, to people who can't afford it," said Chase. "It makes me want to do the same thing, to help, when I'm able."

Summer meals, served from Jackpot, Nev., to Hailey, are an annual program but this year the need has increased with the area's increased unemployment and stagnating wages.

At Twin Falls City Park about 150 lunches are given away each day. District-wide the number has peaked at 2,300 lunches in a single day.

The increased need has been seen across southern Idaho and beyond. While this year's cost remains unknown, Congress appropriated $357.9 million for the program this year, up from $312.2 million last year and significantly increased from the 1980 cost of $110.1 million, according to information released by the Idaho Department of Education.

In Idaho there were more than 1.15 million meals served in the summer of 2007 and that number is likely to increase once this year's summer numbers are tallied.

Three Creek Baptist Mission gives new life to historic store

By Kimberly Williams-Brackett
Times-News correspondent

ROGERSON — The old Three Creek Store isn't a store anymore. But 111 years after it was built, the historic building still resembles the mercantile that was once robbed by some of the most notorious bandits of the Old West.

Carver was a former member of "Black Jack" Tom Ketchum's gang who threw in with Cassidy's Wild Bunch. Ketchum was a relative of Three Creek Store owner Jim Duncan, according to Ernst's article. Duncan, a transplant from Knickerbocker, Texas, who came to the Three Creek area on a cattle drive, built the store and post office "with rocks quarried from the nearby creeks," Ernst wrote.

According to Ernst, Cassidy did right by Duncan after rousting him out of bed at gunpoint to have him load two pack horses with groceries and hats to be used in the Wild Bunch's escape after a planned bank robbery in Winnemucca, Nev.,

According to Ernst, Cassidy promised to pay Duncan back. Days later, a sack was left at the store full of enough money to pay for the taken items twice over, Ernst wrote.

Three Creek native Lola Blossom, 91, said rancher George Moore "furnished the horses for the Winnemucca bank robbers who went through this country."

"It was a popular gathering place for many years," Blossom said of the store. "There used to be a long hitching rail for horses and many times I've seen it so full of horses that I had to tie mine to sagebrush."

The hubbub of Royle's deed requirements and the Baptists' work on the isolated store centers around the store's place in Idaho history.

Alcoholism may be cause of fiance's problems

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have a question about my fiance. He is a 48-year-old alcoholic with cirrhosis of the liver. He also has hypertension, probably from his drinking, for which he takes two medications.

He swears he is going to stop drinking before we get married.

I have been a nurse for 33 years. Can a person have a lot (enough to soak through his underpants, jeans and bed sheets) of rectal bleeding (fresh, red blood) because of an ulcer or drinking? He refuses to have a colonoscopy or a lower GI series and won't even tell his primary-care physician.

DEAR READER: Your fiance needs to see a physician immediately if he is experiencing rectal bleeding, especially if it is as severe as you claim.

Rectal bleeding can have many causes, ranging from benign hemorrhoids and intestinal polyps to ulcerative colitis and malignant colon cancer. Alcohol abuse and cirrhosis can also lead to easy bleeding. Hypertension can weaken blood vessels, and some medications used to treat it carry the side effects of easy bleeding, ulcers and more.

Your fiance is behaving very irresponsibly in regards to his health. By refusing to seek medical help, he is gambling with his life and, unfortunately, unless he steps up to the plate and makes drastic changes, the outcome will not be favorable.

Chronic alcohol abuse has already damaged his liver. If further damage is inflicted, he may well need a new liver, but his chances of receiving one are slim to none because he is an active alcoholic. Further liver damage may be taking place as a consequence of his hypertension medication.

Perhaps now is the time to call, write or make an appointment with his physician to let him know about your concerns and the current situation. While you are probably not privy to what your fiancé and his doctor discuss (because of HIPAA), you can at least inform the doctor so he or she can attempt to provide proper testing and treatment.

Before you marry this man, I urge you to sit down and discuss your concerns and fears about his health and addiction. While you may love him, you cannot change him. Unless he is willing to help himself, you will be further committing to a very unhealthy relationship in which one or both of you may end up emotionally and/or physically hurt.

I recommend you get your facts together, write down a list of your concerns and talk it out. If he is unable or unwilling to get the help he needs, now may be your best chance to walk away. I don't want to sound cruel, but your future husband is displaying behavior that clearly shows he does not care enough about you to take care of himself. He is making you suffer for his problems, which is highly unfair and inconsiderate.

There are several options for both of you. Alcoholics Anonymous (www.aa.org) is a great resource for treating alcohol addictions. Al-Anon/Alateen (www.al-anon.alateen.org, 1-888-4AL-ANON) is a support group for the friends and families of alcoholics. There are also hospital detox and inpatient and outpatient rehabilitation facilities available throughout the country.

JEROME — Lester Chess, 88, of Jerome, passed away Wednesday, June 17, 2009, in Jerome.

He was born March 2, 1921, in Picabo, Idaho, the son of Benjamin Ross Chess and Clara Alice Davis Chess. He was raised in Picabo and left home at the age of 13. On March 19, 1942, Les married Irene Miller in Jerome, Idaho. Shortly after their wedding, Les served his country in the Army in five major battles during World War II. Following an honorable discharge, he returned to Jerome, where he and Irene made their home and raised three wonderful daughters. Les spent most of his working life driving truck.

He hauled milk, worked at Walker Gas and Oil, Ida-Cal, Jerome Highway District and Jerome Gas and Oil. In his free time, he enjoyed hunting, fishing and playing cards. He especially loved spending time with his family.

Les is survived by his sweetheart of 67 years of "wedded bliss," Irene Chess of Jerome; their daughters, Alta Boguslawski, Bonnie Graw and Susie (Tony) Homan, all of Jerome; six grandchildren; eight great-grandchildren; one brother, David (Jackie) Chess of Paso Robles, Calif.; and many extended family members and friends.

He was preceded in death by his parents, seven sisters, six brothers and two sons-in-law, Ramon McGraw and Eldon Boguslawski.

A funeral service will be conducted at 11 a.m. Monday June 22, at Farnsworth Mortuary Chapel, 1343 S. Lincoln in Jerome, with Father Ron Wekerle presiding. A visitation for family and friends will begin one hour prior to the service. Interment will follow in the Jerome Cemetery.

Mary Eleanor Eddy Leth

BUHL — Mary Eleanor Eddy Leth, 92, of Buhl, passed away Wednesday, June 17, 2009, at a retirement home in Nampa.

Mary was born April 6, 1917, in Twin Falls, Idaho, to Hugh B. and Flora Eddy. Barbara, Carol and Harriet soon joined the family. When she was 8, they moved to Shoshone Falls, where her father worked for Idaho Power. In order to attend school, they crossed the Snake River, using the bridge above the falls, and then climbed the road to the top of the canyon rim where they caught the school bus. Later, Idaho Power moved them to Thousand Springs and Mom graduated from Hagerman High School. She attended the College of Idaho, where she obtained an associates degree in education. She had met our father, Leonard Leth, at the C of I and they fell in love. After a wait of a year, while she taught school in Sweet, Idaho, and he taught in Fairfield, Idaho, they were married Aug. 5, 1938, at Thousand Springs. They moved to Emmett, Idaho, where Dad taught in the high school. The next year they moved to Buhl, Idaho, where Dad taught school and farmed. Linda, Carl and Robert were added to their family.

An active member in the Buhl Presbyterian Church, she played the piano and organ for more than 50 years. A fervent supporter of the arts, she accompanied many area soloists. Fairview Grange and Fairview Kensington also benefited from her service and expertise at the piano.

She supported us kids in everything we did, from piano recitals to football games to showing animals at the fair.

We could count on her to be in the audience, cheering us on. She and Dad enjoyed many years of traveling in their mini-home, as well as their numerous good friends with whom they shared picnics, card parties, camping and fishing trips, and good times together.

A lady of many talents, Mother was not only an expert cook, seamstress and knitter, but possessed the ability to grow a variety of beautiful houseplants.

Survivors include her children, Linda (Lonnie) Skogsberg of Nampa, Idaho, Carl (Gwen) Leth of Pasco, Wash., and Robert (Cathy) Leth of Salmon, Idaho; sister, Barbara Patrick of Caldwell, Idaho; seven grandchildren and 10 great-grandchildren.

Her parents; her husband, Leonard; sisters, Carol Puleo and Harriet Mahoney; and cherished granddaughter, Kara Leth, preceded her in death.

Donations in her name may be made to the Idaho Youth Ranch, 5465 Irving St., Boise, ID 83706, or to the Buhl Presbyterian Church, 516 Main St., Buhl, ID 83316.

Viewing will be from 4 to 6 p.m. Friday, June 19, at Farmer Funeral Chapel in Buhl. A graveside service will be held at 11 a.m. Saturday, June 20, at the West End Cemetery in Buhl.

First U.S. woman on Antarctica dies at 89

By Patricia Sullivan
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Edith "Jackie" Ronne never intended to leave Bethesda, Md. She had gone to Beaumont, Texas, in 1947, to see off her explorer husband as he and a volunteer crew headed to Antarctica to fill in the blanks on the map of the last continent. She packed little more than a good suit, a good dress, nylon stockings and high heels for the trip.

But Finn Ronne, her husband of two years, was persuasive. He talked her into accompanying him, stop by stop, to Panama and then Chile. The Norwegian-born former U.S. Navy captain insisted that he couldn't manage his low-budget exploration without her; he didn't have the language skills to write dispatches for the North American Newspaper Alliance, one of the trip's sponsors.

When Jackie Ronne finally agreed to go all the way to Antarctica, she insisted that another woman come along. Jennie Darlington, the new wife of the expedition's chief pilot, joined the trip. It was a wise decision. Although most of the men didn't like having women along, their presence helped calm what became a tense and argumentative 15 months.

Ronne was the first American woman to land in Antarctica, and she and Darlington, a Canadian, were the first women to overwinter there, from 1947 to 1948. (Caroline Mikkelsen, the wife of a Norwegian explorer, was the first woman to step foot on the continent, in 1935.) She Ronne became an international celebrity for a time and a sought-after speaker on popular cruises to the polar seas. She died of cancer and Alzheimer's disease Sunday at the Carriage Hill nursing home in Bethesda. She was 89.

Ronne, a Baltimore native with a degree in history from George Washington University, was the trip's recorder-historian. She also assisted the seismologist, who measured the first earthquake recorded in Antarctica and kept track of the tides. She filed dispatches, often under her husband's name, for the news alliance and the New York Times, which later described her as "young and winsome."

The continent's natural beauty took her by surprise. "The approach to the Continent through light pack ice was magnificent. I was totally in awe of where I was going and I anticipated a great adventure," she wrote in the book "Antarctica's First Lady" (2004).

Widow of late Chilean president Allende dead at 94

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — Hortensia Bussi, the widow of Chilean President Salvador Allende who helped lead opposition to the military dictatorship that ousted her socialist husband in a bloody 1973 coup, died Thursday. She was 94.

Her physician, Dr. Paz Rojas, said Bussi died while taking a morning nap.

"She died quietly, she did not suffer," Rojas told state television.

Bussi's husband, an avowed Marxist, was elected president in 1970 and was toppled three years later in an uprising by the military led by Gen. Augusto Pinochet. Allende killed himself Sept. 11, 1973, while under air and ground attack at the presidential palace, rather than surrender.

His wife, known as Tencha, had sought refuge at the home of a family friend. The next day, she was flown on a small air force plane to the resort city of Vina del Mar for her husband's burial. She would later complain that the military sealed the coffin without letting her see his body.

Bussi went into exile in Mexico, where she was active in campaigns against the Pinochet dictatorship. She lived there with two of her three daughters — Carmen Paz and Isabel, who is now a congresswoman for her father's Socialist Party. The third daughter, Beatriz, lived in Havana with her Cuban husband.

Bussi returned to Chile in 1990 after civilian rule was restored and she spent the last few years virtually confined to her Santiago home.

Born July 22, 1914, in the port of Valparaiso, Bussi was first a history and geography teacher, and then worked for some time at the government's statistics institute.

U.S. boosts Hawaii defense to counter North Korean threat

By Jae-soon Chang. Associated Press writer. SEOUL, South Korea — The United States has deployed anti-missile defenses around Hawaii amid reports that North Korea may fire its most advanced ballistic missile toward the U.S. islands early next month.

South Korean Army soldiers sit on a K-9 self-propelled howitzer during a military drill against possible attack from North Korea near the demilitarized zone that separates the two Koreas, Thursday in Yeonchon, north of Seoul, South Korea.

It was uncertain what the Kang Nam was carrying, but it has been involved in weapons proliferation before, one of the officials said. The missile now being readied in the North is believed to be a Taepodong-2 with a range of up to 4,000 miles.

The Guardian Council, the nation's constitutional watchdog, agreed to review specific complaints of Mousavi and two other candidates running against Ahmadinejad but has not broached the widespread belief among Mousavi supporters that the vote was rigged.

A report in a Japanese newspaper said Pyongyang might test-fire its Taepodong-2 toward Hawaii around the U.S. holiday of Independence Day. North Korea test-fired a similar long-range missile on July 4 three years ago, but it failed seconds after liftoff.

international community, which punished North Korea with new U.N. sanctions for conducting a second nuclear test on May 25 in defiance of a U.N. ban. North Korea spurned the U.N. Security Council resolution with threats of war and pledges to expand its nuclear bomb-making program.

The ship, which may be carrying illicit weapons, was in the Pacific Ocean off the coast of China on Thursday, the officials said on condition of anonymity because they were discussing intelligence.

Judge to review Cheney interview with FBI

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal judge said Thursday that he wants to look at notes from the FBI's interview with former Vice President Dick Cheney during the investigation into who leaked the identity of a CIA operative.

Interactive family shows at Glenns Ferry Opera Theatre

Story and photos by Erica Littlefield • Times-News correspondent

GLENN'S FERRY — Backstage at the Glenns Ferry Opera Theatre, energy is high. It's opening night for the company's production of the Old West melodrama "Blazing Guns at Roaring Gulch," and the women and girls in the cast maneuver deftly around their small dressing room, sharing counter space and the mirror. They look through the racks of costumes that line the back wall and grab shoes from a wire organizer hanging from a door. Mothers help their sons and daughters with makeup, and cast members laugh and joke as they help each other with costumes. That enthusiasm is part of what makes productions at the opera theater stand out. The company started its 16th season last weekend, and cast member Kim Kovac said the company's interactive, family-friendly shows are the perfect way to spend a summer evening. "In this day and age, people need to come in and leave their cares at the door and just enjoy the silly antics," Kovac said. "It's just good, clean fun." Connie and Rich Wills own the historical building and run the theater company. Each summer the company rotates performances of two shows. This year, audiences can see the comedy murder mystery "Let Him Sleep 'til It's Time for His Funeral" every Friday through Aug. 28, and "Blazing Guns at Roaring Gulch" every Saturday through Aug. 29. The Glenns Ferry Opera Theatre experience starts the moment you walk through the door. The atmosphere in the historical building makes you feel like you're being transported back in time. Wood floors gleam like they were installed yesterday, and photos from past productions hang on the wall. At

Expect a new vibe at Saturday's art festival

By Melissa Davlin
Times-News writer

It's the first public event for southern Idaho's newest artist group, and organizers hope it will shake up Twin Falls' established art scene.

Twin Falls Artist Coalition is presenting the Summer Solstice Art Festival on Saturday at Woody's, in Twin Falls' redeveloping warehouse district. The festival will feature poetry, film, paintings, sculptures and other art forms. A tattooist will be on site offering tattoos, and bands will play throughout the day.

So why hold the festival at a bar? Coalition president Bryan James said Woody's owner David Woodhead has supported local artists for years and offered up the bar and outside lot for free. Woodhead also owns the Lamphouse Theatre, next door to Woody's, where local filmmakers will show their films during the festival.

Coalition vice president Jim Stetler said none of his static art will be on display — "just going to be too darn busy to do that and keep an eye on it," he said — but he is reading some of his poetry with other writers throughout the evening.

Stetler and James, longtime friends who have worked in the arts scenes in Athens, Ga., and Jacksonville, Fla., are optimistic that young artists in Twin Falls

Live music: Snake River Canyon Jam

July 10-13 in the canyon and other venues around Twin Falls, organized by Twin Falls Area Chamber of Commerce and Magic Valley Arts Council

A great selection of reggae, jazz, folk, gypsy and R&B capped off an exciting Snake River Canyon Jam. When the bands came out Saturday, so did the sun, and the crowd on hand was treated to some extraordinary entertainment. Broadening the selection of music made this a memorable event.

— Mark Stowman of Twin Falls

What an awesome time. We can never do anything about the weather, but we can sure support our community and take advantage of our surroundings. The variety of entertainment was the best from singing to just listening to the music, tapping your feet and getting up to dance.

— Bobbi Pyle, chamber membership coordinator

Even rain could not deter last weekend's Snake River Canyon Jam from being the finest musical kickoff to summer in south-central Idaho. What an impressive four-day lineup of some of the best Pacific Northwest jazz, funk, soul, Cajun and reggae music — an aural feast for the soul!

— Stacy Madsen, arts council executive director

Snake River Canyon Jam was a blast! Friday night's event at Kimberly Nurseries was especially an adventure after a rainstorm blew in. Very impressed to see everybody be both flexible and fun and move everything inside — including the band. The band, Bellamy Rose, was rockin'! What a community treasure!

— Whitney Beem of Twin Falls

The Voodoo Mountain Zydeco band was one of the best zydeco bands I have ever heard (and made me crave crayfish etouffee), and huddling in O'Dunken's listening to the gypsy jazz coolness that was Hot Club Sandwich while the rain pounded against the windows was a little bit of heaven.

— Camille Barigar of Twin Falls

Ten bands. Four days. Low cost. High energy. If you skipped any of the jam, you missed out. The event has the potential to rival music festivals around the West — as long as it gathers more support from us locals. Let organizers know what you want to hear next year!

— Shawn Barigar, chamber president and CEO

Live jazz: Air Conditioning

June 12 at Pandora's in Twin Falls, during Snake River Canyon Jam

The musicians lent a nice jam-band sound to the eatery but didn't have a good stage presence — the bass player kept turning around and playing into the wall. But I was looking at my date most of the time anyway, and their music kept us in a festive mood.

the piano in the front of the room, 84-year-old Dorothy Nichols plays song from "The King and I" and "The Music Man." A concession stand in the lobby sells popcorn, soda, licorice ropes and other candy.

The evening's entertainment actually starts before the show begins, and the audience is part of the action. As people entered the building for the "Blazing Guns" opening night Saturday, the older boys in the cast took women by the arms and led them to their seats. The younger kids helped serve the meal. Just before the show started, Rich Wills recognized the audience members who had traveled the farthest and presented them with Idaho Spud candy bars. Wills also invited anyone with a June birthday to come up in front of the stage, and the entire cast and crew sang to them. "We look at what makes it fun, what makes it memorable," Connie Wills said.

"Blazing Guns at Roaring Gulch" is a traditional Old West melodrama, and booing for the villains and cheering for the heroes is not only encouraged, but expected. The theater is across the street from railroad tracks, and if a train passes during a performance, the cast stops the action and leads the audience in singing "I've Been Working on the Railroad."

"I think it's marvelous," said audience member Janice Aagaard, who came from Boise to see the melodrama. "They put on an excellent show for everyone. The kids are just charming."

The shows have a family feel because there are people of all ages in the cast, and families perform in the company together. Brian and Cherrynn Bizik, with daughters Alleigha and Anna, perform in "Blazing Guns." As showtime approached, Cherrynn, who plays heroine Willie Lovelace, helped Anna and Alleigha finish their make-up.

"It's been a great activity for the whole family to get involved in," Cherrynn said.

The Glens Ferry theater is no professional troupe, but Connie Wills said there are advantages to being a community theater. Connie said she and her husband have watched the locals in their shows develop their talent and potential, and have enjoyed seeing audience members come back year after year.

"We're not a professional theater, but everyone has a good time," Connie said.

Acoustic guitar, American style

By Melissa Davlin
Times-News writer

Take three acoustic guitars, add a trio of jazz-loving musicians, and toss with a cheery, lazy American sound.

Mix in a little blues and folk, and you have New West Guitar, a Los Angeles-based jazz guitar trio that is passing through Twin Falls on a tour across the American West.

The band will host a jazz guitar workshop at Welch Music on Wednesday afternoon, then play at Pandora's that evening. The group, composed of University of Southern California graduates Brady Cohen, John Storie and Perry Smith, has toured in Europe, Asia and the U.S. since the band's founding in 2003.

In a June 8 phone interview with the Times-News, Storie said he anticipated this tour, which will take him and his bandmates on almost 50 stops through Idaho, Washington, California and Oregon.

"I can't wait to get out of L.A. for a minute," Storie said.

On Wednesday, Los Angeles-based New West Guitar will host a jazz guitar clinic at Welch Music in Twin Falls. The band will also perform at Pandora's that evening.

He said the guitar clinic is open to both musicians and music fans — no guitar experience required. At the clinic, the trio will discuss blending music genres and writing music for guitars. In smaller towns like Twin Falls, Storie said, music clinics attract eclectic groups of musicians, so they are going to keep the curriculum open.

Create great mosaic art for your home

Times-News

In the project-based class "Mosaic Table," you can create a table of your own design.

Mosaic is an ancient and versatile art form that can transform an ordinary project into a work of art, class organizers said. Everything you need is supplied: the table, the base, all types of tesserae (including varieties of vitreous glass, stained glass, ceramic tile and metallic gems), glue, grout and tools.

In the first session, you'll learn about mosaic pattern layout and design and begin work on your table. The second session is devoted to cutting tesserae and creating your design. The last session covers grouting and sealing.

Instructor Robin Dober owns Hands On, a do-it-yourself pottery, mosaic and glass studio in Twin Falls.

The class is offered through the College of Southern Idaho Community Education Center from 6 to 8 p.m. Tuesdays, July 21 to Aug. 4, at Hands On, 147 Shoshone St. N. in Twin Falls. Cost is $60, plus $60 paid to Dober for materials.

Terrilyn Skycop will premier her new movie, "The ReKeying," (at right) at the festival. The movie tells the story of two friends trapped in a dream, trying to unlock a puzzle to help them wake up. Film screenings start at 5 p.m.

The Kryptonauts, a Twin Falls psychobilly band, will perform inside Woody's, which is off limits to those younger than 21. Other bands playing throughout the day include sOphia and SKITTISH iTZ.

Festival

Continued from Entertainment 1 will rally behind their group. Later in the year, they plan to apply for nonprofit status and hope to start youth art education programs in Magic Valley. They also plan another festival, to take place in September. "There's so much just good energy here in Twin, and so much opportunity," Stetler said.

Flute fest draws some of genre's top musicians

By Blair Koch
Times-News correspondent

This weekend's Magic Valley Flute and Art Festival may be the first of its like in Idaho, but you wouldn't realize its infancy by looking at the entertainment lineup. It reads like a who's who in flute music: world flute master Gary Stroutsos, Vince Chafin, William Hoshal, Brent Haines, Vance and Marby Pennington, Terry Jones, Joe Young.

World percussionists Mark Holland and N. Scott Robinson are also slated for the Filer festival.

Organizer Marsha Sanders of Twin Falls said the artists will be easily recognized by those already interested in world and American Indian flutes and will become fast favorites to people hearing them for the first time.

"These musicians are working their way to Main Street," Sanders said. "We are lucky to have them coming, and people will be thrilled with the music and how approachable they are."

The flutists are common at big festivals like the Zion Flute and Drum Festival, which draws thousands of visitors to Utah's Zion National Park each May.

In addition to evening concerts, today's and Saturday's attendees may sit in on many of the free workshops led by guest musicians. Topics include beginning and intermediate flute playing, playing with other instruments, home studio recording basics, advanced rhythmic improvisation, beginning flute making and working with world percussion.

Sanders said the festival has drawn attention from near and far and hopes people enjoy being exposed to the sacred and traditional art form.

"My husband and I play our flutes at local flea markets and such, and people are drawn to them. There was a hunger to hear and learn more, and from that experience the festival was born," Sanders said.

Stroutsos, a Seattle musician, has produced and recorded more than a dozen albums and been featured on the NPR syndicated programs "Echoes" with John Diliberto and Skitch Henderson's "New York Evening At The Pops."

He was featured on Ken Burns' PBS documentary "Lewis and Clark: The Journey of The Corps of Discovery," which led to a performance at the White House in 1997.

Experiencing Stroutsos wouldn't be complete without his playing of traditional American Indian flutes, and he'll also engage audiences with Chinese bamboo Xiao and Dize flutes.

"Although thousands of years old, they are relatively new to the world and seldom heard outside the walls of China," Stroutsos told the Times-News.

Stroutsos said his influence comes from American jazz, Afro-Cuban and American Indian styles. His favorite piece of music will take audiences back thousands of years with "Cherished Grandmas" is "contemplative, lonely, and if you listen close you can hear the land and hear the voices of the people inside the music," Stroutsos said.

While influenced by traditional Indian flute music, Boise flutist Joe Young moves in a different direction — to the contemporary side.

"It's New Age, world music that just happens to use the native flute," said Young, who plays alongside two guitarists and a percussion/bass player.

Descriptions of his genre include meditative and healing.

Young said his music tells a story or evokes specific images. His song "Shadow and Light" was inspired by a short hike on Mount Rainier.

"The trail we were on was the Trail of Shadow in an old-growth forest. The light was streaming from the trees," Young said.

In the song, to be played during tonight's concert, Young plays a double native flute called a drone to produce gentle, flowing melodies. Throughout, Young verbally coaxes audiences back to the trail.

"The song tells the story and gets people to imagine walking on that trail," Young said.

City of T.F. presents movies in the park

Times-News

Family-friendly movies are coming to the Twin Falls City Park the last Fridays of June, July and August.

Show up with a blanket or some chairs and, of course, the kids, and enjoy these free films:

June 26: 9:30 p.m., "American Tail"

July 31: 9 p.m., "Charlotte's Web"

Aug. 28: 8:30 p.m., "The Parent Trap"

"It turns out that projecting the movies onto the curved band shell makes everything in the films look fabulously realistic," Julie Pence, the city's public information coordinator, said Wednesday. "This was unpredicted, and as a result the city didn't have to secure a screen — this arrangement works better."

The movies-in-the-park concept originated with Twin Falls recreation supervisor Stacy McClintock, who began searching last fall for family entertainment.

"And, well, I actually got this particular idea from the movie 'The Wedding Planner,'" she said in a city press release. McClintock then applied for a First Federal grant, and in December the bank's foundation awarded $3,500 to the city for the program.

The Twin Falls Kiwanis Club will offer soda and popcorn for sale, but families may bring their own food, too.

"Families can enjoy a picnic or late dinner while they watch the movies," McClintock said.

Organizers ask parents to monitor their children as if they were in a movie theater or at a drive-in.

"City Park is right on Shoshone Street, which is very busy," McClintock said in the release. "We want to make sure children are safe, and we also want to make sure everyone can enjoy the movies without disruption."

Register this month for kids' annual arts day

Times-News

One day last July in Twin Falls' City Park, some children grooved to hip-hop, others painted trees, while others watched puppet shows or jammed on tubas.

The long-running Kids Art In the Park event was as popular as ever, judging by the 300-kid turnout. And it's back this summer.

Magic Valley Arts Council will hold the 18th year of Kids Art in the Park on July 11, and early registration for best class selection ends June 30.

At Kids Art in the Park, you'll find visual and performing arts workshops for children ages 3-14.

Participants receive materials and instruction for a $2 registration fee; scholarships, as small as they are, are available.

The annual event exposes kids to a variety of fine art and contemporary craft. Workshops emphasize the educational aspects of visual, performing, literary and musical arts. Preschoolers enjoy workshops designed for their age and motor skill development.

A children's variety show at noon showcases the talents of young local singers, musicians, dancers and dramatic actors.

A hot dog lunch is available for $3.

Book talks feature fan favorites

Times-News

Buhl Public Library is introducing a new series of monthly programs called Fan's Favorite Book Talks.

From 1:15 to 2:15 p.m. June 27, the library will kick it off with Janet Evanovich's books, especially the Stephanie Plum novels. Her latest, "Finger Lickin' Fifteen," releases on Tuesday, and organizers thought it appropriate to start with a popular mystery author who just released a new book.

Anyone can sign up for the library's waiting list on the new book.

Mechelle Fogelsong will help lead the discussion. Anyone who has read any of Evanovich's books is welcome.

In July, Amanda Hatfield will lead a discussion of Laurell K. Hamilton's books, particularly the Anita Blake series, on a date to be announced.

'Best place to be'

Summer evenings in the Wood River Valley, with jazz

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

KETCHUM — Jazz in the Park returns for its third year Sunday, with some familiar acts and a new one, too.

"The new act is the Idaho Falls Big Band. There's 17 of them and they're all lifelong jazz musicians — professionals with music degrees," said organizer Will Caldwell. "They're not even charging, they're just dying to come and play in Sun Valley."

The six free concerts sponsored by Ketchum resident Dayle Fowler will run from 6 to 8 p.m. Sundays through July 26 in Rotary Park across from the YMCA on Warm Springs Road. Bring low-back chairs, a picnic and your own beverages, as no food or beverages will be available for sale.

"It's a beautiful setting, very intimate and colorful. And the people seem very loving of the music," said Ketchum pianist Alan Pennay. "It's like one big party."

The bands play under the cover of the picnic shelter while fans park their lawn chairs in the shade of cottonwoods and other trees that line the riverside park. Invariably, someone asks Cheryl Morrell, who sings with Pennay, to sing "Somewhere Over the Rainbow."

"I always look forward to Jazz in the Park because the audience is thrilled to be there, because when you can listen to music and be here in this valley it's the best place to be," Morrell said.

Jazz in the Park doesn't extend into August because it's too hard to compete with the Sun Valley Summer Symphony, which runs the first two weeks of August, Caldwell said.

This year's lineup:
Sunday: Paul Tillotson and friends. Tillotson is a popular New York musician who performs at Sun Valley during the winter to feed his skiing habit.

June 28: Sun Valley Latin Jazz Ensemble, featuring Russ Caldwell, Jeff Rew, Josh Kelly, Boise pianist Chuck Smith and a yet-to-be-named guitar player.

July 5: John Northrop and the Jazz Rangers, playing jazz guitar with a bossa nova feel. Will include Jeff Rew, Russ Caldwell and others.

July 12: Ketchum pianist Alan Pennay and vocalist Cheryl Morrell.

July 19: Kevin Kirk and Onomatopeia, a large Boise band, playing a fusion of classical jazz and modern jazz.

July 26: Idaho Falls Big Band — all 17 of them.

Send the kids to painting class at CSI

Times-News

A weeklong "Just Paint!" workshop for kids in grades four through six will explore a variety of painting styles and techniques.

Using watercolors and acrylic paints, students will create works in the styles of Vincent Van Gogh, Henri Matisse, Claude Monet and Pablo Picasso, organizers said. One day will be devoted to painting in an original style.

Bring an old shirt or apron. Supplies are included in the class cost of $90. Instructor Kimberly Schoenauer has college degrees in art, drama and elementary education.

The youth class is offered through the College of Southern Idaho Community Education Center — as part of its College for Kids — from 1 to 4 p.m. June 22-26 in the Art building room 112 next to the main campus.

In Sun Valley, a tale for any town

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

SUN VALLEY — A night at the local 7-Eleven turns out to be a profound experience in the play "Suburbia."

Life is turned upside down for the teens and 20-somethings who hang out at the convenience store.

"Everyone is searching for something," said Anna Johnson, the play's director. "The play deals with racism, homophobia, love addiction and addiction to fame, fortune and success. And, in the end, it helps us realize that there's nothing outside of ourselves that can bring happiness."

Eric Bogosian's play will be presented by St. Thomas Playhouse Summer Theater at 7:30 p.m. tonight through Sunday at The Community School Theatre.

The play was set in "Anywhere, USA," said actor Conor Zaft. The story could take place even in the Wood River Valley.

"To me this is not a play, it's reality," he said. "It's what happens anywhere in the USA. The themes are definitely relevant, and I promise you no one will be disappointed by the ending."

The play, which volleys between the American dream and the American nightmare, was called "a rare must-see" by the New York Post when it premiered at the Lincoln Center Theater.

"It reveals the absurdity of holding any kind of prejudice," said Kevin Wade, a Community School graduate who is going into his senior year at Tisch University in New York.

GATOR NATION

Florida is everyone's favorite for repeat national title

Florida quarterback Tim Tebow

All photos courtesy universities

The minute Tim Tebow said he would return for his senior season, the debate was over. The Florida Gators are the preseason No. 1 team in college football.

With the 2007 Heisman winner under center and 20 returning starters from last year's 13-1 team that beat Oklahoma for the BCS National Championship, picking the Gators at the top is a no-brainer.

Their schedule features three gimmees in non-conference play, and they avoid cross-division SEC rivals Alabama and Ole Miss.

It all sets up for a repeat title for Urban Meyer's crew. But before Florida takes the trophy back to Gainesville, there are 14 foes eager to ruin the Gators' party plans.

Trainers want to cull football 2-a-days

Area coaches, trainers advise common sense and observation

By Bradley Guire
Times-News writer

It's just too hot for two-a-days.

That's the message from the National Athletic Trainers' Association, which released a new report Thursday on the dangers of heat stress for high school football players, according to the Associated Press.

The Annual Survey of Football Related Injury Research Data Web site tallies 20 player deaths at all levels of competition due to heat stroke this decade, and the NATA says it's time for teams to scale back those

Idaho football all-stars meet in the dome

By Tim Flagstad

In August, Skylar Morgan will line up behind Sean McElwain, who will do his best to clear a path for the shifty running back.

On Saturday, the two will stand on opposite sidelines in the building they'll call home during their college years.

Morgan

Morgan and McElwain — two Idaho State signees — will participate in Saturday's fifth annual Idaho high school all-star football game. Morgan, who graduated from Minico, will play for Team Idaho, while McElwain, a graduate of Eagle, will wear the colors of Team Treasure Valley.

"It's exciting to be able to come and play with all those kids you hear about from all over the state," Morgan said. "It's great because you don't really get to meet these kids, and you get to come up and meet them. You get to see who they are and where they stand. There's great athletes out here playing."

Rain suspends 1st round of Open

By Tim Reynolds
Associated Press writer

FARMINGDALE, N.Y. — The first round of the U.S. Open started Thursday. The end is not yet in sight.

Making greens look like swimming pools and creating streams on many fairways, a daylong deluge overwhelmed an already-waterlogged Bethpage Black and postponed most of the opening round until Friday.

Rain started falling moments before play began at 7 a.m., prompted a suspension at 10:16 a.m., and the United States Golf Association gave up hope for the day just before 2 p.m.

No one completed more than 11 holes, and half the 156-man field didn't even get started.

"Where's my canoe," mused Ian Poulter on his Twitter feed.

Oh, and while Friday's forecast isn't as bad, more rain is possible. And Saturday is expected to be much like what greeted players Thursday.

"I wish I had better news," said Jim Hyler, chairman of the USGA's championship committee.

In other words, this is no longer just a test of skill, but a test of patience, as well.

Already, there's talk of a Monday finish, and not one like the classic playoff between Tiger Woods and Rocco Mediate a year ago at Torrey Pines. For the record, the last regulation Monday finish at the U.S. Open was 1983.

"They did the right thing," said Jeff Brehaut, who left for the day in a

Adams, Hughes shine at state finals

Times-News

Thursday was a good one for cowboys and cowgirls from the Magic Valley. Several participants from District V and VI turned in first-place efforts as the Idaho High School Finals Rodeo began its second go round at Bannock County Fairgrounds in Pocatello.

Tanisha Adams of Declo had a 16.842-second time in barrel racing to finish first on the day.

"It's awesome. It's like an adrenaline rush," Adams said of her top finish.

Asked what keyed her winning ride, Adams credited her horse, Diamond. "He's a freakin' machine," she said.

Chisum Hughes of Filer earned a time of 5.22 seconds in steer wrestling during the evening performance to take over first place in the second go. He knocked off Cody Wadsworth of Kimberly, whose 5.75-second effort was tops in the morning performance. Wendell's Ty Webb leads in a tie-down roping after an 11.07-second effort.

Megan Crist of Kimberly clocked a time of 21.219 in pole bending to take the top spot. She also led in goat tying after the first go.

Gooding's Kash Wilson turned in a 68-point ride Thursday morning, while teammate Jordan Gill earned 67 points as the duo finished 1-2 in the performance.

They were bumped to third and fourth in the standings after the evening results.

Cy Eames and Justin Parke are sitting second in team roping with a 9.40-second ride on Thursday.

In girls cutting action held earlier in the week, Jamie Lancaster of Valley took first-place honors with 51.5 points.

The rodeo continues today with performances at 10 a.m. and 7 p.m. The top 20 in each event then advance to Saturday's championship round, which follows the 10 a.m. queen coronation.

Webb tops tie-down event at CNFR

Times-News

Wendell cowboy Rob Webb leads the overall standings in tie-down roping after Thursday's third go at the College National Finals Rodeo in Casper, Wyo.

Webb, competing for Walla Walla (Wash.) Community College, clocked a time of 12.3 seconds for fourth place in the third go, giving him a 37.5 average and 50 points to pace the event. He and partner Ted Walker of King Hill, competing for the University of Idaho, have completed three go-rounds of team roping and did not compete Thursday. They slipped to seventh place overall with a 34.5 average and 90 points.

For the College of Southern Idaho men's team, not many competed Thursday either. Monty Johnson, Tag Elliott and brother Zack all slipped in the bull riding standings by as many as six spots after being idle on Thursday.

Jesse Wright, finished with his go-rounds in saddle bronco, did not ride but fell to 13th overall. Alex

Wright is down to No. 24 in the event, but he still has one go left. In steer wrestling, Skinner is 17th, while he and partner Tyrel Jensen have still not scored in team roping.

Filer's Cassie Vierstra (South Plains College) recorded no score in her third go in breakaway roping. She is 32nd overall.

TWIN FALLS AA WINS TWO
 The Twin Falls Cowboys

American Legion Baseball Class AA squad picked up a pair of wins on the opening day of the Scott Klaudt Tournament in Missoula, Mont., on Thursday.

The Cowboys slipped past Bellevue (Wash.) in the morning, earning a 9-8 win. Remington Pullin went 4-for-4, while Jacob Coats doubled and tripled in the win. Twin Falls jumped out to a 6-1 lead after two innings, but a six-run third brought Bellevue back.

A lone run in the top of the sixth proved to be the difference for the Cowboys (10-2).

Post Falls proved no match for Twin Falls in the afternoon as the Cowboys led 12-0 after three innings and coasted home. Braden Box went 2-for-4 in the win.

Twin Falls faces host Missoula at 7 p.m. tonight. Coats will be on the mound for the Cowboys.

 Head coach Kenneth

James said the game came down to one bad offensive inning and one bad defensive inning. Other than a walked-in run during the first, Jerome was unable to connect at the plate and produce runs. Also, the five runs allowed in the second were the result of booted balls.

"(Cameron) Stauffer pitched very well, but we didn't make outs early in the game," James said.

Heat

August pre-season practices. That may not be necessary as many states like Idaho have rules and precautions for preventing heat stress in athletic participation.

Twin Falls High School head football coach Allyn Reynolds said that methods are a lot different from his playing days and that athletic programs are taking the issue seriously.

"We're real free with water," Reynolds said. "We have it all around the practice fields and keep it very cold."

Reynolds is an NATA-certified athletic trainer who has held the position of trainer for the Bruins since the mid-1980s - he holds degrees from the University of Las Vegas-Nevada and the University of Arizona, and worked briefly at Princeton University in New Jersey before returning home to the Magic Valley.

At Twin Falls, breaks are scripted into practice, players are encouraged to take their helmets off when not participating in drills and the coaches use various methods for gauging ambient temperature and humidity on the fields. The staff also strives to inform the players how to spot warning signs of dehydration, such as "apple juice yellow" urine and a lack of sweat after exertion. Medications and legal supplements like creatine are also a concern to coaches as some may absorb fluid in the body.

"That's the thing that scares me," Reynolds said. "Not all kids are on medication, but you almost have to be a pharmacist and know which medicines could cause dehydration."

The NATA wants schools to introduce an acclimatization program which includes time limits on practice and the elimination of daily two-a-days. While college programs fall under NCAA and other association guidelines, high schools are governed on the state level. The National Federation of State High School Associations can't enforce a nation-wide policy. The Idaho High School Activities Association rules manual already lists many of these proposed guidelines as strict rules, and it also provides a list of precautions coaches and trainers can take to prevent heat stroke.

Many coaches maintain that some level of two-a-day practices is vital to a program to get players in shape for the season. Minico High School athletic director and head football coach Tim Perrigot is one who takes reasonable approaches to scheduling. The Spartans' two-a-days start early in the morning and late in the evening to avoid the hottest time of the day, a routine many area coaches also follow. Some schools won't necessarily have a full two weeks of two-a-days because of various scheduling issues with coaches and players.

"It's really important that coaches be smart," Perrigot said. "I know that it sounds like common sense. You can't go too long, it can't be too hot and there has to be plenty of water."

four-way tie for the very early lead at 1 under through 11 holes. "It got bad."

Conditions were arduous for everyone, including Woods, whose U.S. Open defense started with an adventure.

Woods pulled his tee shot 50 yards into the rough before scrambling for an improbable par on his opening hole, as increasingly strong rain pelted an already-wet course.

Playing alongside fellow reigning major winners Padraig Harrington and Angel Cabrera, Woods' first shot was so far off line he considered playing a second ball from the tee.

"Way left," caddie Steve Williams said to the world's No. 1 player on the tee box.

Woods eventually hit his second from near the front of a merchandise tent, his ball sailing over the thickest rough alongside the opening fairway. He ended up playing off grass trampled by several days of foot traffic, then got up and down from a greenside bunker for par.

How good was his save? Cabrera and Harrington, both of whom were in decidedly better spots off the tee, each made bogey.

So while Woods successfully salvaged his first hole, work crews - armed with squeegees on greens and using hoses to pump water off the 18th fairway - eventually couldn't keep up with the rainfall.

Less than a half-inch had fallen when play was halted, but the already soggy course couldn't take the extra moisture.

And it wouldn't let up, either.

Spectators take cover under umbrellas as they pass the 14th green at the Bethpage Black course in Farmingdale, N.Y., on Thursday.

"The volume of rain falling was outpacing our ability to squeegee the greens," Hyler said, as rain pelted the tent he was standing in, a constant, ominous pitter-patter. "That was the bottom line. The greens just became unplayable and we needed to suspend."

Brehaut, Johan Edfors, Andrew Parr and Ryan Spears were the only players under par when play was stopped, all 1 under.

Woods was 1 over through six holes. When play resumes at 7:30 a.m. Friday, he'll have a 10-foot par putt on the seventh green.

Cabrera, Poulter and Justin Leonard were among those at even par when play was halted. Other notables: Former U.S. Open champions Geoff Ogilvy, Jim Furyk and Michael Campbell were 1 over, Boo Weekley and Zach Johnson were 2 over and Harrington was 4 over.

The 78 players in the morning session made only 32 birdies, but 169 bogeys or worse.

Forecasters said all week that rain could have a serious effect on the tournament, especially during the first day.

They couldn't have been more right.

Rickie Fowler, an amateur who made the cut at last year's Open, was the first person to swing away from the opening hole Thursday. He arrived at the tee at 6:54 a.m.

It started raining two minutes later.

"There's a long way to go," Brehaut said.

BEAT THE HEAT

The Idaho High School Activities Association's official policy on heat stress and athletic participation advises seven precautions that control or prevent heat stress issues. Here's a quick rundown of those precautions, and the full text can be found on page 68 of the rules manual, which is available in PDF format at <http://www.idhsaa.org>.

1. Adequate hydration before practices
2. Acclimatization to weather conditions
3. Adequate hydration during practice
4. Safe weight loss can be charted
5. Careful observation of significant weight loss
6. Noticing trouble signs such as nausea, incoherence, fatigue, weakness, vomiting, cramps, weak rapid pulse, visual disturbance and unsteadiness
7. Warn athletes about using products containing ephedra, which can speed metabolism, increase body heat and constrict blood vessels

Most importantly, the IHSAA advises to cool the body with ice or cold water while calling for immediate medical attention if a player suffers heat stroke as any delay could prove fatal.

THE PROPOSAL

The NATA released acclimatization guidelines that it would like to see high schools adopt when it comes to pre-season practice. Those that the IHSAA have listed in its rules manual are noted.

1. The first five days to feature one practice daily.
2. No practice should last more than three hours. (IHSAA)
3. A minimum three-hour recovery between practices. (IHSAA)
4. Helmets only the first two days, shoulder pads starting on day three, full pads on day six. (IHSAA, however full pads on day five)
5. During the second week of practice, a two-a-day must be followed by a single practice the next day.

Game

For Morgan, McElwain and Highland tackle Chris Hardinger, who will join Morgan on Team Idaho, the week spent preparing for the game also will give them a chance to get to know fellow future Bengals.

"It helps you adapt with them," the soft-spoken McElwain said, "and know who you're gonna play with"

All three of the Idaho State signees have ample experience playing in Holt Arena, so Saturday's exhibition won't be a first-time thing.

Hardinger, of course, played all of his home games with the Rams at the mini-dome.

Morgan's Spartans competed in numerous playoff games on the Holt Arena turf, and the running back put on a show in the building during last year's Rocky Mountain Rumble. In that game against Colfax of California, Morgan ran for 174 yards on 25 carries, and he scored three touchdowns, including a 90-yard return of the opening kickoff.

McElwain's Mustang teammates fell to Hardinger's Highland's squad in the 2008 Class 5A state championship.

He hopes to make a better high school memory in the dome before calling it home.

Playing close to home was a major factor in Morgan's decision to sign with Idaho State.

He said several members of his family already have purchased season tickets and plan on making the short drive east for all of his games.

Based on the lack of depth the Bengals have at running back, Saturday's game may not be the only time Morgan sees game action in Holt Arena this year.

"They're saying that if I keep working hard, I can get playing time right off," Morgan said. "Hopefully that opportunity comes, and I can take advantage of it."

Gonzalez, Padres edge Mariners

SAN DIEGO — Adrian Gonzalez matched his career high with four hits, including a homer, and scored the winning run with two outs in the 10th inning as the San Diego Padres beat the Seattle Mariners 4-3 Thursday to end their major league-record interleague losing streak at 13.

Gonzalez doubled off Miguel Batista (3-2) and scored on Kevin Kouzmanoff's single to left, beating the throw from Andy Chavez. Gonzalez also homered in the sixth, his first in 13 games, to tie Albert Pujols for the major league lead with 23.

Heath Bell (3-1) threw two innings for the win.

The Padres had lost 10 straight games to Seattle in San Diego, and 16 of 20 overall against the Mariners.

Seattle's Franklin Gutierrez hit two homers for the first time in his career, both off Josh Geer. Gutierrez has six this season.

Calhoun's grand slam, double keys ASU's win

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Kole Calhoun hit a game-tying grand slam in the fifth inning and a go-ahead double in the seventh, and Arizona State erased a four-run deficit in a 12-5 victory over North Carolina at the College World Series on Thursday night.

Calhoun has homered in each of the Sun Devils' CWS games and has driven in 10 runs.

ASU (51-13), the No. 5 national seed, plays No. 1 Texas on Friday night. The Sun Devils have to win that game and another Saturday against the Longhorns to advance to next week's best-of-three finals. Carolina finished 48-18.

Josh Spence (10-1) allowed seven hits and four runs, three earned, in seven innings. Colin Bates (4-4) took the loss in relief of Matt Harvey, who threw a CWS-record four wild pitches.

Long's record suspension reduced to 8 races

NASCAR driver Carl Long's suspension has been reduced to eight races from a record 12, but his record $200,000 fine remains.

National Stock Car Racing commissioner Charles Strang heard Long's final appeal Monday in Chicago. He announced the reduced suspension Wednesday.

Long, a part-time driver in the Sprint Cup series, was penalized for having an oversized engine at Lowe's Motor Speedway in May. Long and his wife, car owner DeeDee Long, were suspended 12 races and docked 200 points. Crew chief Charles Swing was fined $200,000.

Long appealed in hopes of leniency for his low-budget team. He got some relief, but the fine could keep him from racing again.

"I suppose it's good news," Long told The Associated Press on Thursday. "Eight is better than 12. But they ain't gonna budge on the fine, and they know I can't pay it. They intentionally put it out of my reach."

Long said there is no way Swing will be able to pay the fine, and under NASCAR rules, it would then revert to the car owner.

And Long's team won't be allowed to compete until the fine is paid.

More than $16,000 has been raised for Long's cause, with donations coming through his Web site and from a couple "pass the hat" events at racetracks.

"That's a long ways off from $200,000," Long said. "If I can keep stuff like that going, then maybe $200,000 is in sight."

MAAYFIELD EXPERT UNDER FIRE DEFENDS CREDENTIALS

SONOMA, Calif. — An expert witness for suspended driver Jeremy Mayfield said he tried to fix mistakes in an affidavit about his educational background, but the errors were still submitted to court.

Harvey MacFenerstein said Thursday he pointed out the errors to John Buric, an attorney for Mayfield, and was assured the corrections would be made before the affidavit was submitted May 29.

The inaccuracies were challenged Tuesday in federal court by NASCAR, who accused MacFenerstein of lying about his credentials in six sworn statements.

MacFenerstein, president of Analytical Toxicology Corp., a drug-testing laboratory in San Antonio, Texas, said he read about NASCAR's motion on the Internet and called Buric to find out what had happened with his affidavit.

"I said to him 'What's going on?'" MacFenerstein said in a phone interview with The Associated Press.

"He said not to worry and 'Just don't say anything.' Well, now I am saying something because this has caused embarrassment to me, this has hurt my business. I am getting threats through e-mail. It's been a nightmare."

NASCAR has asked that MacFenerstein's testimony be dismissed. Mayfield is challenging his indefinite drug suspension, prompted by a positive drug test, and MacFenerstein's affidavit was the basis of the argument.

Stallworth suspended indefinitely by NFL

NEW YORK — Cleveland Browns receiver Donte Stallworth was indefinitely suspended by the NFL on Thursday for driving drunk and killing a pedestrian in Miami.

"The conduct reflected in your guilty plea resulted in the tragic loss of life and was inexcusable," Commissioner Roger Goodell said in a letter to Stallworth.

"While the criminal justice system has determined the legal consequences of this incident, it is my responsibility as NFL commissioner today and will continue to work closely with the league regarding this matter."

After a night drinking at a bar in Miami Beach's Fountainebleau hotel, police said Stallworth hit Reyes, who was rushing to catch a bus after finishing work about 7:15 a.m. Stallworth told police he flashed his lights in an attempt to warn Reyes, who was not in a crosswalk when struck.

Stallworth, who stopped after the crash and reported the accident, had a blood-alcohol level well above Florida's legal limit. Police estimated Stallworth was driving about 50 mph in a 40 mph zone.

Kimberly grad joins husband for Ironman in Coeur d'Alene

By Bill Buley
Coeur d'Alene Press

DALTON GARDENS — Holly Wuest knows exactly what she'll do when she finishes the Ford Ironman Coeur d'Alene on Sunday.

Call her grandmother. "My family is really fretting about this whole thing," the 24-year-old said. "My mom and my grandma are terrified about it. We have to call my grandma as soon as I'm done and tell her I'm OK."

Holly's mom is even flying up on Sunday from Twin Falls to see her daughter, a 2003 Kimberly High graduate, in action.

"She's not going to see the swim, which is a good thing because that's what she's really terrified about," Holly said with a laugh.

Give credit to her husband Justin for scaring his wife's parents, Keith and Vickie Owings.

"It's kind of his idea to do this," she said, with a smile and glance at her husband sitting next to her in the kitchen of their Dalton Gardens home.

Justin, 26, will also be competing in Ironman. While it will be his second, it will be her first, so he had to do just a little convincing to talk her into signing up.

"I did it five years ago, and we had been talking about it last year. She wanted to do one eventually," Justin explained. "It's kind of motivating watching everyone down there. We were in the moment and signed up. I'm excited for it."

Holly is too, kind of.

"I'm pretty nervous. This is my first time," she said. "I did a sprint triathlon last year and that's pretty much my only experience. I think I can finish it. That's the important thing."

Holly, a kindergarten teacher at Betty Keifer Elementary, and Justin, an engineer at the Idaho Transportation Department, trained up to 20 hours a week to prepare for the 2.4-mile swim, 112-mile bike ride and 26.2-mile run.

Justin, a graduate of Lakeland High School, completed the 2004 Ironman in about 12 hours and 40 minutes. He volunteers every year, and was ready to try again.

"I just figure it's my health plan to keep me in check," he said.

They believe their training time has been good for their marriage.

"We haven't had any arguments," Holly laughed. "We have put a lot of time in together and we encourage each other, so I think it's been very positive."

They like to test themselves in Idaho's outdoors. Both enjoy rafting, kayaking, mountain biking and rock climbing.

Why not add Ironman to the list?

"We had talked about it for a while," Holly said. "I wanted to do it eventually. In my mind I was thinking, start small with the Coeur d'Alene triathlon, then a half Ironman, then maybe eventually the whole thing. He said he was signing up, I said, 'OK I might as well.' It was so spur of the moment I didn't have time to think."

Holly did admit that there are those days she questions her husband for talking her into it.

"I say, 'This is all your fault' when I'm exhausted after teaching and training," she laughed.

But after volunteering last year she wanted to try, too.

"It was very motivating, exciting, that made it easy to convince me to do it," Holly said.

Justin calms her worries by telling her he had the same jitters his first time. Once you're in the water, just keep going.

"You always think you should have done more, ran more, to prepare," he said. "She's ready."

Holly said Justin has been "very motivating" through-

"There's no way I could do this if he wasn't pushing me along."

— Holly Wuest, on her husband's encouragement out her preparation for Sunday's 140.6-mile adventure.

"There's no way I could do this if he wasn't pushing me along. He's really good at keeping me upbeat and excited about it. He's probably the main drive of the whole thing."

She paused for a moment, than looked at her husband once more with a grin.

"I figure when it's done it will be a good accomplishment," she said, "and then I can thank him."

2010 KIA SOUL PASSENGER VEHICLE

HEART & PERSONAL SOUL!

First Look!
By Ken Chester, Jr.
Motor News Media
Corporation

Unveiled at the 2008 Los Angeles Auto Show, Kia introduced its newest addition to its growing American line-up with the all new 2010 Kia Soul. Designed in Southern California, Soul's bold and edgy design is indicative of the new Kia design theme, with more package and styling combinations than any previous Kia vehicle.

"The Soul is for those who love individuality but don't like to be categorized by finding the next best thing," said Michael Sprague, vice president of marketing, Kia Motors America (KMA). Indicative of the new design direction of KMA, Soul is an attractive and customizable vehicle for those looking for something with a little more personality than other vehicles on the market today.

Power for the all-new front-drive Kia Soul is generated by a 1.6L, four-cylinder engine mated to a five-speed manual transmission. For those looking for a little more power, a 2.0L four-cylinder engine is available with either the five-speed manual or a four-speed automatic transmission.

Starting with an all-new vehicle platform, the new Kia is built with more than 70 percent high-tensile-strength steel to enhance structural strength without adding a lot of weight. As a result, the Kia-engineered body achieves high torsional stiffness, benefiting handling, ride quality and refinement. Additional measures to help ensure good noise vibration and harshness (NVH) qualities are fitted throughout the Soul.

Mounted on the front sub frame that supports the engine and transmission, the Soul is fitted with a fully independent front and twist-beam rear suspension system, with front MacPherson struts and coil springs, designed to deliver responsive handling and an agile ride.

In the rear, the Soul suspension is sub-frame-mounted with a transverse torsion beam axle with trailing arms for a smooth ride and minimum intrusion into the cargo space. For optimal space, the rear anti-roll stabilizer bar is mounted inside the torsion beam.

The Soul's interior design is decidedly influenced by the car's highly specified audio system. An uncluttered dashboard with a three-dial instrument cluster, LCD illumination, a floating center stack design is the key visual feature and offers enticing access to the AM/FM/CD/MP3 audio system outfitted with SIRIUS Satellite Radio capabilities and three months complimentary service.

Standard auxiliary and USB input jacks are located in the center console with full iPod® controllability via the audio head unit and steering wheel controls.

Additional standard interior features include a tilt steering column, power door locks, power windows with driver's side auto-down, map lamps and a rear wiper and washer. Stylishly appointed cloth seats provide comfortable seating while a 60/40 split-folding rear seat offers multiple seating and cargo arrangements depending on driver and passenger needs.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE

Bobby Wolff

"I was a modest, good-humored boy. It is Oxford that has made me insufferable."

— Mar Beerbohm

The site for the smaller world championships has recently tended to be outside Europe and America, because the logistics of organizing such events devolves naturally to the countries with a smaller member base.

The last World Junior Teams Championships in the United States took place in Florida in 1999, and the European contingent, as usual, came to the fore. Three of the four European teams made it through to the semifinals, where Italy beat Israel, and USA2 beat Denmark. In the finals Italy won comfortably, demonstrating that they and Poland are the major forces in European bridge now and in the near future.

Even the one European team that failed to qualify, Norway, had its moments, missing out by just one qualifying place. Today's deal against Brazil showed Boye Brogeland (now a seasoned international) at his best. In the other room his teammates had sacrificed with the East-West cards in four spades doubled, for minus 100. But Brogeland (South) played four hearts after East had doubled one club.

On the diamond-seven lead to the queen and king and a diamond back, Brogeland led a heart to his queen, then played a heart to the ace and a heart back. He won the diamond 10 with his jack, and when West discarded, Boye saw that East's hand-pattern was likely to be 4-3-5-1. So he cashed the club king and finessed the club seven at the next trick. Contract made, and a big swing to Norway.

ANSWER: Did you jump to three no-trump? That is the natural thing to do, but if you think about it a little more, the way to show this hand precisely is to bid two no-trump. After all, with 15-17 you would have opened one no-trump, so if you jump in no-trump, it shows 18-19. What is a jump to three no-trump? It shows a long solid or semisolid club suit and a heart stopper.

Family objects to woman's plunge into internet romance

DEAR ABBY: I met "Paul" through an ad I placed on an Internet dating service. We have been out in person and have also been cyber-dating for nearly a year. Paul used to live close by, but he got an offer on his place, so he sold it and moved to his second home in another state. He invited me to come along, but because I had college-aged children still residing with me, I didn't move.

My kids have now moved into places of their own, and Paul has asked that we buy our own house in the state where my kids live. I agreed. The problem is my extended family. Except for my sister, everyone thinks I'm being taken advantage of. Paul has more money than I will ever have in my life. I trust and love him. My children approve of our relationship.

DEAR ABBY
 Jeanne Phillips

Does it matter that most of our relationship thus far has been spent on the Internet? We talk on the phone, chat online and probably spend more time together than couples living together do. How do I politely tell my family to back off? If I get hurt, I get hurt — but it's a chance I'm willing to take.

— HAPPY AND HOPING
 IN MICHIGAN
DEAR HAPPY AND HOPING: I have a suggestion. While in some areas the real estate market is beginning to recover, it should become even better as the economy improves — so why don't you and Paul rent out your houses for now, and rent an apartment for a year in the area in which you are considering buying? That way, you won't be rushing into a purchase in an area you're not familiar with, and you and Paul can decide if you're as compatible in person as you are on the phone and Internet. Please understand I am not implying that there is anything wrong with Paul, only that you should not rush into making a hefty financial investment while in the heat of passion.

DEAR ABBY: My husband was laid off in 2008 and has searched everywhere, even out of state, for a job and found nothing. I feel bad for him because he is home 24/7. I try to get him out of the house to no avail, and when I ask him to tell me how he really feels, he says he's fine and that he will be OK. I want him to express the way he feels because he is keeping all of his pain and stress to himself. How can I help him?

— WORRIED WIFE
 IN ENGLEWOOD, N.J.
DEAR WORRIED WIFE: Men and women do not always express their innermost feelings in the same way, so please stop trying to pry the pain and stress out of your husband or you may add to it.

What concerns me more than your husband's unwillingness to "dump" is the fact that he is staying in the house 24/7. Cocooning is no way to find another job. However, volunteering some of the time he has on his hands could be. And that's what you should insist he do.

DEAR ABBY: I have cancer and my family and friends are hosting a fundraiser with dinner and a silent auction. My question is, what do I do with the things that are not purchased? Should I return them to the donors or what? Thank you.

— J.C. IN ILLINOIS
DEAR J.C.: Offer to return the items to the donors, and if they refuse, donate them to the American Cancer Society at one of its thrift stores.

IF JUNE 19 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Unrealistic appraisals of people and circumstances could create unrealistic expectations on your part in the year ahead. Opportunities for romance or career may entail extra responsibilities that in turn cause additional setbacks. In September and December you might be somewhat gullible about a certain relationship or blinded by someone's impressive credentials. It is best to wait until the beginning of the year to make crucial decisions that will affect your future or to reevaluate a new love interest. In January your judgment is better than usual and others will be very generous with their praise, as well as their wallets, so it is a good time to ask for favors or advancement.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Deeds must match the words. A certain someone might whisper entertaining sweet nothings in your ears to convince you that he or she is totally trustworthy. You will want to test out this theory in action.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): It takes two to tango. You may be initially suspicious about a business or romantic offer, but that works both ways. You won't be convinced unless body language matches up with the verbal message.

GEMINI (May 21-June

HOROSCOPE

Jeraldine Saunders

20): Put the seashell up to your ear and listen. Perhaps you have been afraid to broach a sensitive subject. The words needed to win someone's support or affection will come from an odd place when needed.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Never preach to the choir. Those in your immediate circle already share your views and opinions. You don't need to convince anyone of anything and may resent someone who is heavy-handed.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Stop questioning and start doing. You can expertly connect the dots where money is concerned and can engineer a plausible strategy. Bookkeeping software might be a helpful addition to your desktop.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Security is never guaranteed in life. Choosing a special someone because you think he or she offers predictability might teach you a lesson in the long run unless your own reliability has stood the test of time.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Love the one you're with. Your love life might briefly seem dull or unsatisfactory, but this isn't the time to make changes. Remain patient; you can't develop long-term trust and commitment overnight.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Meet your match. Your intensity of purpose can be put to good use at the job or for a business project. You are more attractive than you think. Problems evaporate in the face of unflinching faithfulness.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Forgiveness is only skin deep. You are willing to let bygones be bygones and expect that others will respond in kind. However, a situation that you thought was past history may reappear.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Spend money to make money, but save money to keep money. You may have to economize or reassess your spending. This is not a good time for investments — but a great time for consolidation.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Let your heart rule your head. Read between the lines if loved ones are temporarily evasive or pretend to play hard to get. You are likely to be the winning gladiator in the arena of love.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Smooth talkers get their way. If you are trying to earn a big commission or make a romantic fantasy come true, trust in your gift for gab, as it can turn things around and earn you the desired results.

Today is Friday, June 19, the 170th day of 2009. There are 195 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:

On June 19, 1865, Union troops commanded by Maj. Gen. Gordon Granger arrived in Galveston, Texas, with news that the Civil War was over, and that all remaining slaves in Texas were free.

On this date:

In 1862, slavery was outlawed in U.S. territories.

In 1910, Father's Day was celebrated for the first time, in Spokane, Wash.

In 1917, during World War I, King George V ordered the British royal family to dispense with German titles and surnames; the family took the name "Windsor."

In 1934, the Federal Communications Commission was created; it replaced the Federal Radio Commission.

In 1938, four dozen people were killed when a railroad bridge in Montana collapsed, sending a train known as the "Olympian" hurtling into Custer Creek.

TODAY IN HISTORY

In 1952, the celebrity-panel game show "I've Got A Secret" made its debut on CBS-TV with Garry Moore as host.

In 1953, Julius Rosenberg, 35, and his wife, Ethel, 37, convicted of conspiring to pass U.S. atomic secrets to the Soviet Union, were executed at Sing Sing Prison in Ossining, N.Y.

In 1964, the Civil Rights Act of 1964 was approved by the Senate, 73-27, after surviving a lengthy filibuster.

In 1977, Pope Paul VI proclaimed a 19th-century Philadelphia bishop, John Neumann, the first male U.S. saint.

In 1986, University of Maryland basketball star Len Bias, the first draft pick of the Boston Celtics, suffered a fatal cocaine-induced seizure.

Ten years ago: Author Stephen King was seriously injured when he was struck by a van driven by Bryan Smith on a two-lane highway in North Lovell, Maine. Britain's Prince Edward married commoner Sophie Rhys-Jones in Windsor, England. The Dallas Stars won the Stanley Cup in triple overtime by defeating the Buffalo Sabres 2-1 in Game 6. Turin, Italy, was chosen as the site of the 2006 Winter Olympic Games.

Five years ago: The U.S. military stepped up its campaign against militant leader Abu Musab al-Zarqawi, launching an airstrike that pulverized a suspected hideout in Fallujah, Iraq.

One year ago: President George W. Bush surveyed the aftermath of devastating floods during a quick tour of the Midwest, assuring residents and rescuers alike that he was listening to their concerns and understood their exhaustion. Democrat Barack Obama announced he would bypass public financing for the presidential election, even though Republican John McCain was accepting it.

LEGAL NOTICE

The Idaho Department of Fish and Game was informed by the Bureau of Fisheries that weekly angler surveys indicated that as of June 14, over 40% of the State's harvest share of hatchery Chinook salmon returning to Rapid River Fish Hatchery (RRFH) has been harvested. The majority of this harvest has occurred in the mainstem Salmon River in the Riggins City Park Hole area. Managers forecast that by June 21, up to 80% of the RRFH share could be harvested. In order to allow for extended Chinook salmon fishing opportunities and distribute the harvest equitably, managers recommend that the fishery in the mainstem Salmon River from the Time Zone Bridge near Riggins upstream to the mouth of Short's Creek and the section of the Little Salmon River from the mouth upstream approximately 200 yards to the posted boundary be closed to harvest of Chinook salmon 24 inches and greater in total length (adults) effective the end of fishing hours on Friday, June 19, 2009. Managers also recommend that the adult portion of the daily and possession limits for Chinook salmon be lowered to 1 per day and 3 in possession in the waters open to Chinook salmon fishing in the mainstem Salmon River downstream of the Time Zone Bridge and the Little Salmon River upstream of the posted boundary approximately 200 yards upstream of the mouth effective the end of fishing hours on Friday, June 19, 2009.

Pursuant to his authority under Idaho Code Section 36-106(e)(6) (A), the Idaho Department of Fish and Game Director hereby closes the mainstem Salmon River from the Time Zone Bridge near Riggins upstream to the mouth of Short's Creek to the harvest of Chinook Salmon greater than or equal to 24 inches total length, and lowers the harvest limits on Chinook salmon greater than or equal to 24 inches to 1 per day and 3 in possession in the waters open to Chinook Salmon fishing in the mainstem Salmon River downstream of the Time Zone Bridge and the Little Salmon River upstream of the posted boundary approximately 200 yards upstream of the mouth effective the end of fishing hours on Friday, June 19, 2009.

Copies of Order 09-35 are available at the Idaho Department of Fish and Game headquarters, 600 South Walnut, PO Box 25, Boise, ID 83707.
