CUTTING THROUGH THE RED TAPE

Buhl officials hoping for more federal cash after Simpson pledges $500K to improve wastewater

By Blair Koch

Times-News correspondent

BUHL - Although U.S. Rep. Mike Simpson, R-Idaho, recently announced his securing $500,000 in appropriations for Buhl's wastewater overhaul, Mayor Charles Sheridan knows not to count on funding until the check arrives.

The half-million may have been approved by the House Appropriations Committee for inclusion into the Interior and Environment Appropriation Bill but needs to make it over the next hurdle: the bill is now headed to the full House for consideration and it won't be known if the funding for Buhl will be included in the final version.

A vote on the bill is expected within the next couple weeks. Even if the bill is approved, Buhl won't see the money until 2011 at the earli-

"We have been awarded appropriations in the past two of them for $300,000 a piece for the water project and have yet to get any of that." Sheridan said. "Those were awarded for (fiscal years) 2008 and 2009."

It's all about cutting through the proverbial red tape. Once the appropriations are approved by Congress, it is diverted to various agencies.

The water project appropriations are administrated the through Environmental Protection Agency and funded through the agency's State BILLINGS, Mont. Federal officials and livestock agencies in Wyoming, Idaho and Montana have reached a broad agreement to fundamentally alter the government's approach to brucellosis, a costly animal disease that causes pregnant cattle and other animals to miscarry.

The Yellowstone region is the last domestic reservoir of the disease, which persists in wild bison and elk. The disease once infected an estimated 127,000 farms nationwide. But after a costly eradication program lasting decades, some federal and state officials say it's now time to shift efforts to control the disease from a nationwide program to one concentrated around Yellowstone.

Blaine County puts off signing, wants to review Ketchum police contract

By Ariel Hansen Times-News writer

HAILEY Blaine County commissioners said Tuesday that they and county staff have not had enough time to review the final version of a contract for law enforcement services with the city of Ketchum. Although the Ketchum City Council signed it last week, it was not returned to the county until late Monday.

Sheriff Walt Femling said he would like to implement the contract on July 1, in part because the Ketchum Police Department is struggling with reduced staff as it continues to meet the city's law enforcement

"We are already sending people in there at no cost,"

Femling said. "It is in somewhat disarray and they want this to happen pretty darn quick."

County Administrator Derek Voss and Blaine County Attorney Tim Graves said they would review the contract on Tuesday afternoon, and the commissioners will see it again on Thursday morning.

"I intend to sign this contract. I just don't intend to sign it today," Commissioner Tom Bowman, emphasizing the county's need to feel comfortable with all the contract details. "This is a win for Ketchum; this is a tie for us."

Police in reports said the woman's home was in disarray, with overturned furniture and broken items. The woman also told officers that her 18-month-old child was knocked to the ground during the assault.

Craig left the woman's home before police arrived. According to reports, as officers were interviewing her Craig sent her text-messages that "made reference to what had just occurred and indicated to (the victim) that what he had done was unforgivable and unbelievable."

At the request of Twin Falls police, Jerome officers went to Craig's home, where they found that he "had attempted suicide and had shot himself in the face and head area."

Sawtooth forest officials applaud Tidwell as U.S. Forest Service chief Restoration Act to death, more power to him.

Simply put, this legislation jeopardizes water rights - and water use as we know it - in Idaho. The CWRA is supposed to update the Clean Water Act of 1972, the landmark legislation that cleaned up America's waterways. That law put "navigable" rivers and streams under federal jurisdiction.

But the new bill, which passed the Senate Committee on Environment and Public Works last week, would extend federal control to all "waters of the United States." That's a huge - and deeply troubling expansion of federal authority.

"This bill threatens the current Clean Water Act statute and would allow for government regulation of virtually all interstate and intrastate waters and their tributaries, including rivers, intermittent streams, mudflats, sandflats, prairie potholes, wet meadows, playa lakes, natural ponds and others," Crapo said. "It also would grant federal regulators new and expanded authority over activities affecting these waters, which has serious implications for commerce. I intend to use every tool and privilege afforded to slow or stop this illconceived attack on Idaho's sovereignty over managing its water."

The bill, sponsored by Sen. Russell Feingold, D-Wis., was introduced as a result of the U.S. Supreme Court rulings in Solid Waste Agency of Northern Cook County v. Corps of Engineers in 2001 and Rapanos v. United States in 2006. The high court ruled in those cases that "navigable waters" only applies to large, continuously flowing bodies of water.

But Feingold's remedy is far worse than the jurisdictional enforcement problems those two decisions created. CWRA would expand federal control of private property, overriding a state's fundamental right to oversee waters within its borders and to usurp the power of landowners to manage their property as they see fit. Neither the Constitution nor the original Clean Water Act, written by Democratic Sen. Edmund Muskie, envisioned limitless federal jurisdiction.

The legislation has enough problems that its passage by the full Senate is in doubt. But if a filibuster is needed, we hope Sen. Crapo is in good he Supreme Court announced last week that it would not review a lawsuit challenging the military's "don't ask, don't tell" policy forbidding homosexuals from serving openly. The Obama administration had asked the court not to take the case as the president considers ending the ban.

Allowing gays in military is inevitable

JOHN M. SHALIKASHVILI

News that the president would change the policy had inspired a group of retired flag officers to argue on this spring that service by openly gay individuals would harm morale, discipline, cohesion, recruitment and retention in the U.S. military. They wrote as part of a larger effort by more than 1,000 retired officers to keep the ban in place.

According to the generals and admirals, allowing gay men and lesbians to serve openly would make parents less willing to allow their sons and daughters to enlist. The argument assumes that anti-gay sentiment is so fierce and widespread that moving to a policy of equal treatment would drive away thousands and could ultimately "break the All-Volunteer Force." Not only is there no evidence to support these conclusions, but research shows conclusively that openly gay service members would not undermine military readiness.

Tradition is a critical military value, and the armed forces have a long-standing tradition of banning gay men and lesbians. Equally important military traditions, however, are learning and adapting - and my colleagues made claims as if no new knowledge has been acquired over past decades, during which time Israel and Britain joined more than 20 other nations to allow openly gay individuals to serve without overall problems.

But it is not just foreign militaries that show service by openly gay individuals works. The U.S. military itself has had successful experiences. Enforcement of the ban was suspended without problems during the Persian Gulf War, and there were no reports of angry departures. A majority of U.S. service members say they know or believe that someone in their unit is gay, according to a 2006 Zogby International poll, and most of those who know of openly gay peers report no detriment to morale or cohesion. A recent study coauthored by Laura Miller of Rand Corp. found no correlation between a unit's readiness and whether known gays serve in it. And last year, four retired flag and general officers studied all available evidence and found that allowing gays to serve posed no risk to force

While the proper timing of repealing "don't ask, don't tell" remains uncertain, it is evident to me that a policy change is inevitable. More than three-quarters of the public favors the change. Polls show that even a majority of Republicans support allowing openly gay people to serve. Within the military, the climate has changed dramatically since 1993. Conversations I've held with service members make clear that, while the military remains a traditional culture, that tradition no longer requires banning open service by gays. There will undoubtedly be some teething pains, but I have no doubt our leadership can handle it.

Given the inevitability of change, whether via executive order or legislative repeal, it will be important for senior leaders to send clear signals of support to the rank and file. Every general officer knows that mixed signals undermine leadership. Indeed, studies show that when organizations implement controversial change, signals from the top must be clear. For such a large group of retired senior officers to oppose the inevitable could cause the very disruptions they predict.

The officers who oppose lifting the ban argued that there is "no compelling national security reason" to let openly gay troops serve. They also say, however, that "losses of even a few thousand sergeants, petty officers and experienced midgrade officers" are unaffordable. Under current policy, we have lost more than 13,000 of those people, such as the Arabic-language speaker featured in the new film "Ask Not." In addition, researchers at the University of California at Los Angeles have found that nearly 4,000 people leave voluntarily each year because of the ban, and that more than 40,000 recruits might join if the ban is ended.

President Obama has wisely indicated that he will consult carefully with military leadership before making any change to "don't ask, don't tell." In the same way that military leaders take into account research about what works and what doesn't when contemplating a new strategy or doctrine, it will be important for the conversation about gays and lesbians in the military to be informed by data, not speculation or emotion. That people on all sides of the issue feel strongly about it is more reason, not less, to let the evidence do the talking.

John Shalikashvili, a retired Army general, was chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff from 1993 to 1997. He wrote this for The Washington Post.

ITD action could speed up Blue Lakes project

ll the fuss over the Blue Lakes Boulevard reconstruction project would be just spilled milk and not worthy of attention if nothing else remained at stake and nothing could be done about it. But this is exactly not the case.

Consider: If 200 Blue Lakes businesses are losing just $200 a day, then more than $1.2 million is being lost by these businesses monthly, more than $7 million in total, and that revenue employs our citizens. More importantly, a single makeable decision by the Idaho Transportation Department can dramatically change the scenario in July, rather than September or October.

A major misconception underlies the problem and the solution. The misconception is that the project is ahead of schedule. ITD reported to our staff in a March 27 meeting that it would pave Perrine Bridge to Pole Line in April and begin paving south of Pole Line in May. ITD also published bulletins (see May 22, 2009, bulletin on ITD.gov) indicating its intent to pave sections. Unfortunately a decision was later made not to begin asphalt production and pave until June, reportedly because the contractor was paving on Highway 75 or elsewhere. In other words, the availability of paving equipment prevented a large section from being open some time ago. True, the project is ahead of schedule if you are rooting for the lead horse that digs up the pavement. If you are rooting for the last horse, paving that was scheduled begin in April, then your horse has been stuck in the gate for two months. Most drivers and business owners are interested in the last horse, not the lead.

Now it would appear that this is being tough on ITD; actually, that is not the point. Business owners and citizens are not concerned about debating the details.

The issue is this: ITD can pave sections of prepared roadway, rather than waiting on paving the northbound side until September. If, after paving southbound Blue Lakes, they begin paving northbound sections as soon as is possible, we will see full sections complete and open as early as July, perceptions about driving Blue Lakes will change and more months of devastating losses especially for small business owners will be avoided.

The contractor reported to a business group on June 10 that the paying machine will be removed from Twin Falls in late June to another project and will not return to pave until the entire length of the northbound side is fully prepared in September. If this occurs, very little relief is in sight for many more weeks.

The Times-News and the ITD have suggested that business owners should have insisted on 24hour paving. True, if ITD had not promised accessibility to businesses throughout the project and that it would pave sections of the roadway from lightto-light as the project proceeded then we should have demanded something more. But rather than contending over what was said to be cost prohibitive -24hour work — citizens and business owners relied upon ITD's commitments and sought to be support-

Twin Falls will see intensive ITD activity for the coming two years on West Pole Line and Washington streets, so its commitments matter. Mr. Rigby, district engineer with ITD, indicated last week in a public meeting that sectioned paving was possible, agreeing that it would bring relief much sooner on the Blue Lakes project. We encourage the ITD to take this action and build trust with the community that the ITD will do all it can to minimize the impact while it serves local citizens.

Who's funding Obamacare?

f you believe the White House, there are 30 million Americans who support a government health care takeover. But if you look at the funding behind the Obamacare campaign, it's the same few leftist billionaires, union bosses and partisan community organizers pushing the socialized medicine agenda. Let's connect the dots.

Today, a national "grassroots" coalition called Health Care for America Now will march on Capitol Hill to demand universal health care. The ground troops won't have to march very far. HCAN, you see, is no heartland network. It is headquartered at 1825 K St. in Washington, D.C. smack dab in the middle of Beltway lobby land.

In fact, 1825 K St. is Ground Zero for a plethora of "progressive" groups subsidized by anti-war, anti-Republican, Big Nanny special interests. Around Washington, the office complex is known as "The Other K Street." The Washington Post noted in 2007 that "its most prominent tenants form an abbreviated who's who of wellfunded allies of the Democratic Party.... Big money from unions such as the Service Employees International Union and the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, as well as the Internet-fueled MoveOn, has provided groups like those at 1825 K St. the wherewithal to mount huge campaigns." MoveOn, of course, is the recreational political vehicle of radical liberal sugar daddy George Soros. The magnate's financial fingerprints are all over the HCAN coalition, which includes MoveOn, the action fund of the Center for American Progress (a Soros think tank) and the Campaign for America's Future (a prowelfare state lobbying out-

MICHELLE MALKIN

HCAN has a $40 million budget, with $10 million pitched in by The Atlantic Philanthropies – a Bermuda-based organization fronted by Soros acolyte Gara LaMarche. Also in the money mix: notorious Democratic donors Herb and Marion Sandler, the left-wing moguls who made billions selling subprime mortgages and helped Soros fund his vast network of left-wing activist satellites. By their side is billionaire Peter Lewis of Progressive Insurance, whose "Progressive Future" youth group has dispatched clueless volunteers armed with clipboards and literature bashing Rush Limbaugh and Fox News to scare up support for Obamacare. And two more left-wing heavyweights joining the HCAN parade: the corruption-plagued SEIU (which has battled numerous embezzlement scandals among its chapters across the country while crusading for consumer and patients' rights) and Obama's old chums at fraud-riddled ACORN, the Association of Community Organizations for Reform Now.

ACORN and HCAN are linked by left-wing philanthropist Drummond Pike, who heads the nonprofit Tides Foundation/Tides Center. As the tax disclaimer for HCAN discloses, "HCAN is related to Health Care for America Education Fund, a project of The Tides Center, a section 501(c)(3) public charity." For decades, the Tides Center and its parent organization, the Tides Foundation, have seeded some of the country's most radical activist groups of the left, including the communist-friendly United for Peace and Justice, the jihadist-friendly National Lawyers Guild and the grievance-mongering Council on American-Islamic Relations.

Pike is the same philanthropist who assisted ACORN founder Wade Rathke after his brother, Dale, was caught embezzling nearly $1 million from the group. Wade Rathke sits on the Tides Foundation board of directors. In a conspiracy to cover up Dale Rathke's massive theft of funds, Pike volunteered to buy a promissory note worth $800,000 to cover the debt. These are the populist do-gooders supposedly looking out for you and your health.

Why do they want Obamacare? An internal ACORN memo I obtained from August 2008 makes the motives clear: "Over our 38 years, health care organizing has never been a major focus either nationally or locally for ACORN," wrote ACORN Philadelphia regional director Craig Robbins. "But increasingly, ACORN offices around the country are doing work on health care." The goal: "Building ACORN Power."

The memo outlines the ACORN/HCAN partnership and their strategy of opposing any programs that rely on "unregulated private insurance" - and then parlaying political victory on government-run health care "to move our ACORN agenda (or at least part of it) with key electeds that we might otherwise not be able to pull

The objective, in other words, is to piggyback and exploit Obamacare to improve and protect their political health. The "grassroots" movement is not about representing Main Street. It's about peddling influence and power at 1825 K Street.

Dairymen must ensure study's impartiality

In response to the article in the Thursday Times-News (June 18) titled "Kimberly lab prepares to track dairy water use," I have some concerns about the sharing of information between the agencies involved.

According to Webster's Encyclopedic Dictionary (1994), a study is a detailed examination and analysis of a subject. The quote in the article that the results will bring better understanding but will not be defensible in court also clarifies the definition. Then the question seems to be why the agencies involved cannot share detailed information obtained by this study. As a nurse, I am aware of the rigorous requirements a research project must adhere to before it is used for a change in the way care is rendered. Research is freely shared and replicated to enhance the validity of its findings. Even though this is not a research project, I would presume the information obtained would want to remain objective and at the highest standards. Recently in the news, a surgeon conducting studies for a large medical device manufacturer was accused of fabricating results to reflect positively on the company due to its monetary involvement (Wall Street Journal, June 18). Consumers read such reports and can draw negative conclusions of any study funded by an organization that would benefit by the results.

With the Idaho Department of Water Resources selected for oversight of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's study, it should enhance objective findings. But comparing the Idaho Department of Water Resources to the police could be construed as inflammatory and an injustice to the agency. Therefore it behooves the Idaho Dairymen's Association and the USDA to ensure impartiality and make sure all information is easily accessed and shared with the IDWR.

Raft River Bookmobile in need of donations

The Raft River Bookmobile is $400 short of reaching its necessary funding of $10,600. We have had good support this year with generous donations from local businesses, patrons and friends, but it is not enough.

This past year, the bookmobile doubled its service, visiting the rural communities of southeastern Cassia County every other week. More than 11,800 books, audio books and DVDs were checked out last year, proof of the valuable service provided by the bookmobile.

We would appreciate any donations to help us raise the money needed to pay for this year's service. Checks should be made out to Cassia County for the Bookmobile and sent to Janis Durfee, P.O. Box 175, Almo, ID 83312.

Thank you very much. JANICE DURFEE Almo

Obama seeking power over private sector

Regarding Sue Child's letter of June 22:

Hey, hey, I'm with you about protesting Obama's health care plan. I've written letters and e-mailed the president and our representatives and senators. All but one sound as though they agree with me. I don't know who else to contact. Other senators and representatives will not accept e-mails if vou are not their constituent. It seems the only recourse we have is waiting until the next election and hope other states vote out their Democrats who are running right alongside the Obama administration in all this "change."

Short of traveling to Washington, D.C., and "storming" the Capitol, nothing will change until people get over the love of their "messiah" and actually see what his policies are. Obama is not the least bit interested in helping this country out of the problems that he and Democrats, in part, helped create. If he were, all he had to do was lower taxes for awhile and quit spending. After all, when was the last time you strengthened your finances by spending way more that you had? Obama and his cronies are only interested in amassing power over the private sector. (See banking, lending, mortgaging, insurance, automobile manufacturing and now health care and climate change taxes). They know so much better how you should live than you do. They are only here to "help" you.

So if anyone has any good ideas, let me know. I'm open to almost anything legit that will help. And by the way, are we all that interested in Obama's diet, compliments of Maureen Dowd?

Fed mulls tweaks to economic revival programs

By Jeannine Aversa Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON – With signs the economy is improving but still fragile, Federal Reserve policymakers are considering whether some programs intended to drive down rates on mortgages and other consumer debt should be slowed down.

Most economists predict Fed Chairman Ben Bernanke and his colleagues won't launch any bold new efforts at the end of a two-day meeting Wednesday.

Fears have grown on Wall Street that the Fed's radical efforts to lift the country out of the longest recession since World War II could ignite inflation later on.

"Injecting additional money into the banking system is a pretty dangerous game right now, and the Fed cannot afford to press on the accelerator amid a potentially inflationary environment," said Richard Yamarone, economist at Argus Research.

Wanting to snuff out any rise in inflation expectations, the Fed could opt to tweak its alreadyannounced programs to slow down purchases of either government debt or mortgage-backed securities. Doing so also could help avert possible market disruptions and make it easier for the Fed to reel in these programs once the economy rebounds.

In March, the Fed launched a bold $1.2 trillion effort to drive down interest rates to try to revive lending and get Americans to spend more freely again. It said it would spend up to $300 billion to buy long-term government bonds over six months and boost its purchases of mortgage securities. So far, the Fed has bought about $177.5 billion in Treasury bonds.

The Fed is on track to buy up to $1.25 trillion worth of securities issued by Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac by the end of this year or early next year. Nearly $456 billion worth of those securities have been pur-

But slowing down the purchases carries risk, including that rates on mortgages and government debt could rise more than expected, which could hurt the economy's prospects for emerging from recession, economists said.

Durable goods orders rise unexpectedly in May

By Martin Crutsinger

Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON - Orders to U.S. factories for big-ticket manufactured goods rose sharply for a second straight month in May, and a key indicator of business investment surged by the largest amount in nearly five years.

The Commerce Department said Wednesday that demand for durable goods rose 1.8 percent last month, far better than the 0.6 percent decline that economists in April, with both months posting the best performance since December 2007, when the recession began.

Orders for non-defense capital goods, a key proxy for business investment plans, jumped 4.8 percent, the biggest increase since September 2004. That could signal that businesses have stopped trimming their investment spend-

The back-to-back monthly gains in orders for durable goods, or items expected to last at least three years, were further evidence that a dismal stretch for U.S. manufacturers may be nearing an end. Still, analysts say any sustained rebound is still months away.

American companies have been forced to trim millions of workers as they struggle with the longest U.S. recession since World War II.

> Excluding transportation, orders for durable goods posted a 1.1 percent rise in May, also better than the 0.4 percent drop that had been expected.

> Demand for transportation products rose 3.6 percent, reflecting a 68.1 percent surge in orders for commercial aircraft, a volatile category that had fallen 1.4 percent the previous month.

The big increase in aircraft offset continued weakness in the troubled auto sector. Demand for motor vehicles and parts fell 8.1 percent in May, reflecting major disruptions from the bankruptcy filings at Chrysler LLC and General Motors Corp.

BUSINESS BRIEFS

Monsanto 30 profit falls 14 pct. will cut 900 jobs

ST. LOUIS – Monsanto, the world's biggest seed maker, says its third-quarter profit fell 14 percent and plans to 900 jobs, or about 4 percent of its work force.

The earnings beat Wall Street's forecast. But the St. Louis-based company says the restructuring will drag down fourth-quarter profit by 41 cents to 47 cents per share. It also says its full-year profit will be on the low end of its previous forecast of $4.40 to $4.50 per share. Monsanto Co. said Wednesday it earned $694 million, or $1.25 per share, in the latest quarter. That's down from a profit of $811 million, or $1.45 per share, a year earlier.

Monsanto says its revenue fell 11 percent to $3.16 billion. Analysts had been looking for earnings of $1.17 per share and revenue of $3.45

Rite Aid pares 1Q loss but lowers 2010 forecast

CAMP HILL, Pa. – Drugstore operator Rite Aid Corp. said Wednesday it narrowed its fiscal first-quarter loss by closing stores and trimming costs, but it expects a of refinancing expenses.

The company lost $98.4 million, or 11 cents per share, compared with $156.6 million, or 20 cents per share, a year ago. Revenue fell 1 percent to $6.53 billion from $6.61 billion due to 86 store closings.

Analysts expected a loss of 13 cents per share and revenue of $6.55 billion for the quarter ended May 30, according to Thomson Reuters. In premarket trading, Rite Aid shares added 3 cents, or 2.4 percent, to $1.29.

grew 0.6 percent, while prescriptions filled rose 2.2 percent.

Rite Aid bought 1,850 Brooks Eckerd stores in June 2007 for $2.36 billion, but sales at those stores have been weaker than at its older stores.

The company cut its selling, general and administrative expenses by about $82 million, to $1.71 billion. Cost of goods sold decreased about $47 million, to $4.76 billion.

Energy prices drop as gasoline supplies surge

By Chris Kahn

Associated Press writer

NEW YORK – Energy prices fell Wednesday after the U.S. government reported that gasoline in storage grew for the thirdstraight week, another signal that consumer demand for energy is waning.

Benchmark crude for August delivery lost 57 cents to settle at $68.67 a barrel on the New York Mercantile Exchange.

In London, Brent prices fell 47 cents to settle at $68.33 a barrel on the ICE Futures exchange.

The Energy Department's Energy Information Administration reported Wednesday that U.S. oil supplies dropped more than expected last week, falling 1.1 percent. Still, gasoline in storage swelled more than ICE Futures exchange.

expected to 208.9 million bar-

Supply and demand numbers this year have taken a back seat to the dollar, however.

Fedederal Reserve, which said in March it would spend $1.2 trillion to revive lending, has sent investors flocking to oil and other commodities in search of a hedge against inflation. But on Wednesday, the Fed said that inflation will remain "subdued for some time."

After the announcement, the euro moved slightly lower at $1.3919 from $1.4083.

Orders for machinery rose 7.7 percent, while demand for computers and related products surged 9.4 percent last month.

The overall economy, as measured by the gross domestic product, shrank at annual rates of 6.3 percent in the final three months of last year and 5.7 percent in the January-March quarter. That was the worst six-month stretch for the GDP in more than 50 years. The government is scheduled to revise the first-quarter GDP figure Thursday, but analysts expect that revision will leave the overall figure unchanged. Many economists believe that GDP in the current quarter will show a much smaller decline of around 2 percent with growth returning in the second half of this

But they do not expect the unemployment rate will turn around quickly. The jobless rate jumped to a 25-year high of 9.4 percent in May.

Revival

A recent run-up in rates on mortgages and Treasury securities, if prolonged, could choke off prospects for an economic recovery. Some of those fears were eased last week, when rates on 30-year mortgages dipped to 5.38 percent after a string of weekly increases.

Meanwhile, the Fed is all but certain to hold its key bank lending rate at a record low between zero and 0.25 percent when the meeting concludes and probably through the rest of this year, economists said.

That means commercial banks' prime lending rate, used to peg rates on home equity loans, certain credit cards and other consumer loans, will stay around 3.25 percent, the lowest in decades.

Bernanke has predicted the recession will end later this year. Some analysts say the economy will start growing again as soon as the July-September quarter as the Fed's actions so far, along with the federal stimulus of tax cuts and increased government spending, take hold.

There have been signs of some improvements: home sales have firmed: construction activity has picked up - albeit off record-low levels; consumer spending has stabilized following a massive cutback at the end of last year; layoffs are slowing and some credit stresses have eased.

Investigators look at 'anomalies' in stretch of D.C. track

By Brian Westley and Nafeesa Syeed Associated Press writers

WASHINGTON Investigators are focusing on a stretch of track near the site of a deadly commuter train crash after finding abnormalities Wednesday in vital equipment that detects passing trains and transmits speed and stop commands.

The test results raised the possibility that trains passing through that stretch could have had trouble receiving signals to stop or slow down. Officials stopped short of saying whether the sensors were broken, refusing to elaborate on the "anomalies" that testers found.

"Whether trains are operated in automatic or vital," said Boards. "We're particularly interested in the speed commands that might be Metrorail's 33-year history sent from that circuit when there's a train standing on that circuit?"

Astronomers find mysterious space blobs are pubescent galaxies

By Seth Borenstein AP Science writer

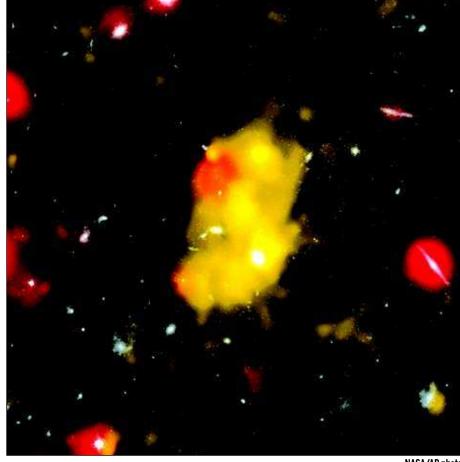

WASHINGTON

Mysterious space blobs aren't infant galaxies as astronomers once thought. Scientists say they mostly consist of galaxies going through puberty, all hot and bothered.

A new study using NASA's Chandra X-Ray Observatory and other space and ground telescopes comes up with an explanation for these highenergy glowing blobs that have been observed for about decade. a Astronomers looked at 29 of these gaseous blobs in one distant area of the universe, dating back to more than 11 billion years ago.

One theory was that they were young galaxies cooling off. But the new research says they are hot and chaotic with gas halos, growing supermassive black holes and about to stabilize. The blobs are the adolescent galaxies and the hydrogen gas, leftover from their creation.

Study lead author James Geach of Durham University in England said in an e-mail that the reason chaos is occurring in the nal of galaxies coming of Martin Rees, England's billions of years ago, Rees blobs "is due to the violent processes occurring in the galaxies, black hole growth. starbursts, mergers. Outdoor buffs praise benefits of camping with four wheelers

Story and photos by Andrew Weeks

Camping isn't what it used to be. For some it has become a lot more fun, especially when they bring their off-road vehicles.

A growing number of campers are bringing their all-terrain vehicles with them when heading into the hills and there are a number of reasons why, according to Stan Mai, president of the Magic Valley ATV Riders. For starters, four wheelers make hauling firewood easier and they're great for getting at hard-to-reach angling destinations, he said.

"ATVs are very big for some anglers," Mai said. "There's a lot of places you can't get to with a full-size vehicle, but you can get to them with an ATV."

Minnesota ATVs claim world record for longest parade

SILVER BAY, Minn. (AP) - All-terrain vehicle riders are claiming a world record for their turnout June 13 in Silver Bay, on Minnesota's North Shore.

The All-Terrain Vehicle Association of Minnesota tried to line up more than 2,000 ATVs into the longest parade documented Guinness Records.

Group spokesman Les Schermerhorn said they fell short of that total, but their count was 1,632 ATVs, and they now will work with the Guinness organization over the next several weeks to verify the claim.

The current parade record of 1.138 ATVs was set by the Harlan County Ridge Runners of Evarts, Ky., in 2006.

Three-wheelers and side-by-side don't count toward the record. The Minnesota group's attempt last year fell 55 four-wheelers short of the Kentucky group's total.

Dirt bike dreams

or several years while growing up I knew what I wanted to do with my life and it had nothing to do with journalism.

I wanted to be a motocross superstar. Yes, superstar.

A RIDER'S NOTEBOOK Andrew Weeks

My dad had an old racing Honda that he kept in the garage. Don't ask me how old or what model bike it was, because I don't remember. I only know that the old blackand-silver bike was sleek, lightweight, and loud.

Though it sat mostly unused in the garage, waiting to be fixed up so it could race again, I remember hearing it run at least one time. The earth — and my eardrums seemed to shake with its massive engine-bass. I'd been around other motocross machines, but this one seemed louder. I dreamt the bike would one day be mine, and that with it I'd fly over the hills of the Anaheim, Calif., arena where motocross racers still gather today.

Magazines would publish stories about me, my picture stuck on their covers.

Time, finances and life issues weren't on my side. At least that's what I thought when my starstruck dreams never materialized.

But, I've heard it said, things work out for a reason.

Maybe.

I'm no superstar when I head to the trails with my dirt bike. I don't fly over hills or try to impress the crowds (there usually isn't any crowds to impress), and champagne isn't showered on me when I complete the ride. But that's OK, because I like my dirt bike, my leisurely trail rides, and my journalism.

I'm not cutout for superstar status.

I'm easy. Just gimme a bike and I'll have a good

But that doesn't mean I don't enjoy looking back, wondering what if my former dream had come

I still think about that black-and-silver motorcycle all those many years ago. My dad eventually sold the bike. Maybe someone, somewhere is living the dream I once had.

That's OK. I'm on to new dreams these days and it has nothing to do with motocross.

Space probe crashes are no accident

ne week ago today, a spacecraft began a journey slated to end with its spectacular crash on the moon. Five years ago, another spacecraft crashed into a comet. These are just the latest examples of space probes whose missions ended with deliberate destruction to advance scientific knowledge.

The Lunar Crater Observation and Sensing Satellite (LCROSS) and its Centaur booster rocket will impact near the lunar south pole in October.

Their goal is to vaporize materials in deep, shadowed craters with the hope of exhuming water ice that could be crucial for future lunar exploration.

Deep Impact crashed into Comet Tempel 1 in 2005 to provide the first glimpse of material dredged from beneath a comet's surface.

SKYWATCH Chris Anderson

Actually, solar system impact science goes back decades. After the early Apollo missions' sensors discovered weak lunar seismic activity, later Apollo boosters were guided into impact trajectories to send sound waves through the moon to analyze its interior. Geologists employ this same technique on a much smaller scale, by setting off high explosives and measuring the sound waves from them with remote seismometers.

Sometimes, however, spacecraft are crashed not to glean data, but to protect future opportunities to do science. The Galileo spacecraft, which entered orbit around Jupiter in 1995, was deliberately incinerated by a high-speed plunge into the Jovian atmosphere at its mission end in 2003. Scientists wanted to safeguard against possible biological contamination of Jupiter's moons (considered possible havens for alien organisms) by terrestrial bacteria should Galileo have accidentally crashed on one of them. Galileo's mission also began with a crash, when it sent a probe to a fiery end below Jupiter's cloud tops after directly sensing the temperature, pressure and composition of the atmosphere.

If you'd like to see LCROSS's spectacular end, the flash is predicted to be visible to large amateur telescopes in the early morning of Oct. 8. More will follow in this column as the date approaches.

Next week: The moon's complex motion.

uestion: Fred wrote: "I filed a Chapter 7 bankruptcy in April. My uncle Donald passed away in July. Donald's personal representative just told me that I am in the will and should receive about $50,000.00. My bankruptcy attorney says I have to give the money to the Bankruptcy Trustee. Can't I just dismiss my bankruptcy and keep the money?

nswer: The filing of a bankruptcy creates an "estate". All assets that exist on the date of filing become part of the estate and can be liquidated for the benefit of your creditors unless the assets are exempt under state law. Idaho law provides sufficient exemptions so that most Idaho debtors do not have any assets liquidated. However, the Bankruptcy Code specifically identifies inheritances that you become entitled to within 6 months after filing your bankruptcy case as property of the estate just as it the inheritance had existed on the date your case was filed. The Bankruptcy Court would not approve dismissal because your creditors are entitled to the money in your estate. Since Idaho law does not exempt your inheritance uncle Donald's bequest to you will be used to pay the claims of your creditors and to pay administrative expenses of your case. After the expenses and claims are paid, the rest of the money will be returned to you.

When symptoms do occur, they present in the form of muscle or joint pain, poor appetite, nausea and fatigue, and are commonly attributed to other causes. Later-stage symptoms can be low-grade fever and persistent or recurring jaundice of the skin and eyes.

Hepatitis C can be acquired by contact with blood contaminated with the virus, through injecting drugs with contaminated needles, body piercing, tattooing or through

A pound of cure?

Disease prevention often costs more than it saves

By Carla K. Johnson

Associated Press writer

CHICAGO - When it comes to health care spending, an ounce of prevention is seldom worth a pound of

Take Mrs. Jones, a hypothetical 55year-old obese woman at risk for diabetes. It costs $900 a year to hire a personal lifestyle coach to help her lose weight and prevent diabetes. Suppose that the coaching works for Mrs. Jones, and she is spared diabetes and all the resulting health bills.

But research shows that for every person like Mrs. Jones, six other people iust like her get nothing out of such a program. They either don't lose weight or get diabetes anyway or wouldn't have developed it in the first place. The yearly cost of the prevention program for those six people: $5,400.

That's probably more than Mrs. Jones' health bills from diabetes would have amounted to.

There goes your pound of cure.

The truth is, shockingly few prevention efforts actually save the health care system money overall, despite claims by the president and some in Congress.

Discussing daily aspirin use with people at risk of heart disease does save money. So do vaccinations for children. When doctors talk to smokers and offer medication to help them quit, that, too, saves money.

But those are the exceptions.

Prevention is a good deal, some experts say, if you can buy one year of perfect health for less than $50,000. The most-recommended prevention efforts — like flu shots for adults, Pap smears for women and colon cancer screening for people over 50 - meet that cutoff. But they certainly don't save money.

Some say cost is beside the point, since those things save lives at what's deemed a reasonable expense.

Back to Mrs. Jones. Helping 100 people like her would cost $270,000 over three years, but also would prevent 15 new cases of diabetes, avoid the need for blood pressure or cholesterol-lowering pills in 11 people, avoid $65,500 in medical spending for all 100 people and sickness.

University School of Medicine in Research Foundation in Minneapolis Indianapolis said recent studies suggest that offering the diabetes prevention program to groups of 10 people – instead of one-on-one coaching — can gained. lead to similar benefits and cost as little as $15 per month.

The YMCA is offering just such a group program. Retired accountant Paul Mullen, 66, of Indianapolis, has lost 18 pounds since May and brought his blood sugar down because of lifestyle changes he learned. He pays $115 for the yearlong program, on top of his Y membership fee.

> Those are definitely bargains if you're using the arbitrary cutoff of $50,000 per healthy year to decide what's a good investment in health spending. And some economists say Americans would be willing to spend even more than that, say $100,000 per perfect health year.

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. -The Academy Awards will have 10 best-picture nominees instead of the usual five starting next year, improving the odds for films such as "The Dark Knight," a fan and critic favorite that was snubbed last time.

Prehistoric flute found in Germany

BERLIN(AP) - A birdbone flute unearthed in a German cave was carved some 35,000 years ago and is the oldest handcrafted musical instrument yet discovered, archaeologists say, offering the latest evidence that early modern humans in Europe had established a complex and creative culture.

A team led by University of Tuebingen archaeologist Nicholas Conard assembled the flute from 12 pieces of griffon vulture bone scattered in a small plot of the Hohle Fels cave in southern Germany.

Together, the pieces comprise a 8.6-inch instrument with five holes and a notched end. Conard said the flute was 35,000 years old.

WAC moves hoops tourneys to Vegas

Orleans Arena will host 2011, 2012 events

Staff and wire reports

For fans and coaches of Western Athletic Conference basketball, the announcement by commissioner Karl Benson is a welcome one.

The WAC announced Wednesday that the 2011 and 2012 WAC basketball tournaments will be held at the Orleans Arena in Las Vegas. For fans, Vegas means warm weather and plenty to do before and after games. For coaches, Orleans Arena represents a long sought for neutral site for the event, whose winner gets an automatic bid to the NCAA Tournament.

"It happened probably quicker than anybody expected," Benson said. "Las Vegas is a big market and it has a big name attached to it."

The coaches in the

WAC love the decision. "I think moving the WAC tournament to Vegas is a great opportunity for not only us, but the rest of the teams in the conference," said Boise State coach Greg Graham. "We are not only excited about the opportunity to be playing on a neutral court in an exciting environment, but think Vegas will be a great place for the fans to get excited about going. It's a good move and will make for a great conference tournament."

The deal calls for the tournaments to be held March 8-11, 2011, and March 6-10, 2012, during the same time the Mountain Conference expects to hold its tournaments at the Thomas & Mack Center, the home arena of UNLV.

The 2010 men's and women's tournaments will be held at Lawlor Events Center in Reno, which also hosted the 2009 event, won by Utah State on the men's side.

"WAC head basketball coaches have been pushing for a neutral site for a number of years," said Utah State men's head coach Stew Morrill. "Las Vegas will be an exciting location, The Orleans is a great venue, and most importantly, no team will

Former CSI Times-News writer Nate Miles has already played at five high schools and two colleges. Tonight, the basketball vagabond could learn his next guard stop. The 6-foot-7 shooting guard hopes to hear his name called during today's NBA draft (5:30 p.m., ESPN). Miles declared for the draft after a college career that awaits included only seven games, all coming late during the 2008-09 season at the College of Southern Idaho. He averaged 19.1 points, four rebounds and three assists for the Golden Eagles during that span. According to ESPN.com, Miles' draft projection is "second round to undrafted." lifts Minico past Burley By Ryan Howe

Times-News writer

RUPERT - As the Minico-Burley nineinning marathon wore on, Casey Christiansen just kept getting stronger.

The Spartan pitcher tossed eight solid innings in the Minico AA squad's 10-3 victory over Burley in American Legion Baseball non-league Wednesday.

Of the seven hits Christiansen surrendered, only three came after Minico took its commanding

6-2 lead in the fifth. And of Christiansen's eight strikeouts, four came in his latter two innings. He also helped himself at the plate by going 5-for-5 with three doubles and two RBIs.

"We brought more intensity and we showed up ready to compete," Christiansen said. "Everybody stepped up. Today we had timely hitting, which we haven't had in the past."

Burley scored two in the second on an RBI fielder's choice by Nelson Geary and a Minico error. The Spartans responded with one run in the home half with an RBI single by Andrew Frank.

Minico broke it open with a five-run fourth. Aided by three Burley errors. Minico loaded the bases with one out. Dylan Winmill drew a walk, Barak Frank ripped a tworun double to the gap in left center, and then Christiansen placed a shot down the left-field line to score two more runs and put Minico up

"That inning should have been three up, three down," said Burley coach Devin Kunz. "They're a decent team, and when you give them six outs in an inning, I don't care who you're playing. they're going to score. You've got to make the routine plays or you're screwed. The leadership from our older players isn't where it should be."

Up until the momentum-changing fourth, Burley starter Christian Winmill had given up no earned runs in 3 1-3 innings. Kace Redder relieved him in the fourth and gave up five hits the rest of the way. Redder also went 2-for-4 at the

Cyclones sweep Madison in AA Legion action

Times-News

The Jerome Cyclones Class AA squad used seventh-inning heroics to take Game 1 at Madison on Wednesday, then crushed its host in Game 2 of an American Legion Baseball doubleheader. The Cyclones won 5-4 and 12-2.

An RBI single up the middle by Cameron Stauffer brought home two runs in the bottom of the seventh of the opener.

Nolan McDonald was the star of the game for the Cyclones, striking out seven, with several coming at key junctures. He also had three hits in the win.

"He was the man of Game 1," said Jerome coach Kenneth James.

The nightcap saw the Cyclones belt 14 hits and get a stellar pitching effort from Jordy Garrard, who held Madison to three hits.

Nolan Stouder, Tyler Powell and McDonald each tallied four hits on the day as Jerome moved to 5-11 overall. The Cyclones host the Idaho Falls Russets for two games on Friday, while Saturday's doubleheader with the Idaho Falls Reds has been canceled.

JEROME EARNS SPLIT WITH WALK-OFF DOUBLE

Jacob Worthington's walk-off double lifted the Jerome Cyclones Class A team to its second win of the season, a 14-13 victory over Shelley on Wednesday.

After dropping Game 1 by a score of 9-8, Jerome saw a 9-3 lead turn into a 13-10 deficit in the nightcap. But a two-run triple by Kevin Bos brought Jerome within 13-12 in the bottom of the seventh. With the bases loaded and two outs on the board, Worthington doubled to the gap to bring in the winning runs.

Jerome also pulled the same feat in the opener, rallying with three runs in the bottom of the seventh before flying out to center with two men on base. They committed five early errors in falling behind 5-0.

"The kids battled, I couldn't be more proud of the fight," said head coach Cody Chandler, who praised the offensive effort of Tanner Holyoak.

The 2-12 Cyclones take on Upper Valley in Wendell on Friday afternoon.

Big 6th inning propels LSU to national title

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) -LSU, which two years ago wasn't good enough to qualify for its conference tournament, is the best team in college baseball again.

The Tigers won their national sixth Wednesday night, breaking open Game 3 of the College World Series finals with a five-run sixth inning that carried them to an 11-4 victory over Texas.

Jared Mitchell hit a three-run homer in the first inning as LSU (56-17) built a 4-0 lead. Texas (50-16-1) pulled even, but Mikie Mahtook's tiebreaking double ignited the Tigers' big sixth against the mistake-prone Longhorns.

"It's everybody pulling together, a sense of urgency we had, and we began to play our best ball at the end of the year," said Mitchell, voted the CWS Most Outstanding Player.

Ramirez gets legs ready to play

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — There's been some talk about whether Manny Ramirez's legs would be ready for his return to baseball.

It didn't take long Wednesday night to put that to the test. Ramirez grounded out and walked, making him hitless in three atbats during his two games in Albuquerque with the Los Angels Dodgers' top farm club. He also ran to catch a fly and fielded a ball off the left-field wall.

Ramirez is on assignment in the minors this week after a 50game suspension for violating baseball's drug rules. "I haven't played for three months," Ramirez said. "I've got to get ready. Michael Jordan's son dropping basketball for studies

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. - Michael Jordan's son, Jeff, is leaving Illinois after two seasons.

The former walk-on guard surprised nearly everyone Wednesday by announcing that he plans to focus on his studies, just a said Jordan had a chance to earn more playing time and even a leadership role during his junior year.

"I loved playing for the Fighting Illini and appreciate the support I was given by my teammates, coaches and the great fans here," Jordan in a statement. "But I have come to the point where I'm ready to focus on life after basketball."

Jordan got a scholarship before the 2009 spring semester. In all, he appeared in 59 career games, totaling 58 points, 42 assists and 24 rebounds. A defensive specialist, Jordan averaged 8.4 minutes as a sophomore after playing 5.3 minutes per game as a true freshman.

Weber said Jordan will be missed.

"He brought great work ethic to the gym and pushed himself, as well as his teammates, each and every day to improve. We will miss him, but we fully support the decision he has made," Weber said.

Even Thabeet, Rubio come with doubts in this draft

By Brian Mahoney Associated Press writer

NEW YORK — Hasheem Thabeet realizes his offensive game needs work and understands it will be hard for him to dominate defensively the way he did in college.

There's just as many questions about Ricky Rubio, starting with one even he can't answer: Will he play in the NBA next season? And one of these guys could be the No. 2 pick Thursday.

The defensive dynamo from Connecticut and the promising point guard from Spain have their doubters, but might be the best of the rest in an NBA draft with no apparent sure thing beyond Blake Griffin.

"It's different because I think most of the players have some questions about them," New Jersey Nets president Rod Thorn said. "Even the ones that are going to go real high, there are some questions: Can the guy guard? His body? He's got potential, but where is it? Those types of questions, but more so than in a normal draft."

MAVS, BLAZERS SWAP PICKS

DALLAS (AP) — The Portland Trail Blazers dippped into their collection of draft picks to improve their top overall slot in the NBA draft, getting No. 22 from the Dallas Mavericks on Wednesday in exchange for No. 24 and two second-rounders. The Trail Blazers still have the 33rd, 38th and 55 picks in Thursday's draft. Dallas, which didn't have a second-rounder this year, got the fourth of Portland's four second-rounders — No. 56 overall, which is the fifth-to-last choice. LEGAL NOTICE

The Idaho Department of Fish and Game was informed by the Bureau of Fisheries that weekly angler surveys indicate that by June 23, all of the State's harvest share of hatchery Chinook salmon returning to Rapid River Fish Hatchery (RRFH) will have been harvested. The Bureau therefore recommends that the salmon fishery on the mainstem Salmon River from the posted boundary approximately 200 yards downstream of the Hammer Creek boat ramp upstream to the mouth of Shorts Creek, as well as the salmon fishery on the Little Salmon River should be closed at the end of fishing hours on Tuesday, June 23. Managers also recommend that due to the lower than forecast returns of McCall Fish Hatchery, Pahsimeroi Hatchery, and the Sawtooth Hatchery stocks, combined with the goal of maximizing salmon fishing opportunities in upriver fisheries, that the fishery from the mouth of Short's Creek upstream to the uppermost boat ramp at Vinegar Creek be closed at the end of fishing hours on Sunday, June 28.

Pursuant to his authority under Idaho Code Section 36-106(e)(6) (A), the Idaho Department of Fish and Game Director hereby closes the mainstem Salmon River from the posted boundary approximately 200 yards downstream of the Hammer Creek boat ramp upstream to the mouth of Shorts Creek, as well as the Little Salmon River, to salmon fishing at the end of fishing hours on Tuesday, June 23. The Director also closes the mainstem Salmon River from mouth of Short's Creek upstream to the uppermost boat ramp at Vinegar Creek to salmon fishing at the end of fishing hours on Sunday, June 28.

Copies of Order 09-37 are available at the Idaho Department of Fish and Game headquarters, 600 South Walnut, PO Box 25, Boise, ID 83707.

BUYER'S MARKET, SELLER'S MARKET. EITHER WAY, IT'S AN "I-NEED-REALTOR®"

Layoff is a blow to man's self-esteem and marriage

ed a promising career I thoroughly enjoy. But my husband, "Derrick," has been laid off from his job due to the economy.

I love Derrick with all my heart. I hate to see him hurting. I keep reminding him that he's still a wonderful person and a great worker, I tell him God is watching over us and will help him; it seems to be doing no good. Losing his job appears to have damaged his self-esteem as a man and, with it, our ability to connect. My husband is distant all the time.

I desperately want to help, but I'm getting scared, too. I realize it is my turn to be strong for us now. Any words of advice?

PRAYING IN NEBRASKA

DEAR PRAYING: Love him, support him and encourage him. Remind him that losing his job wasn't his fault, and all he has to do is look at the news to know that he is far from alone.

Your husband will need to network to find out what jobs are out there for people with his skills. If that doesn't pan out, he may need to explore retraining for a career other than the one he had planned. Believe me, you both have my sympathy.

There will be an end to this recession eventually, and it's important that you not lose sight of that fact. It is also important that your husband not isolate himself. The more people he is in touch with, the better his reality and can be successful

DEAR ABBY: I just returned home from a doctor's follow-up appointment with a specialist (not my regular doctor). My appointment was for 1:15. I was finally seen at 2:30. Can you guess how long I was with him? The visit lasted a grand total thing he didn't take my blood pressure because it would have been through the roof.

I understand there can be unforeseen issues with patients, but shouldn't the front desk staff inform the patient when he or she walks in about a delay? And how long is appropriate for a doctor to keep a patient waiting? Is it appropriate for a patient to demand to be seen? Can you issue an ultimatum such as, "I need to leave in 10 min-

- SICK OF WAITING IN DENVER

DEAR SICK OF WAIT-ING: When you arrived for your appointment, you should have asked the receptionist if the doctor was running late, and if so, approximately how far behind he was. That way, you could have stepped out for a cup of coffee if you wished.

In my opinion, if a doctor is running more than 15 to 20 minutes late, the next patient should be warned. However, making demands or issuing ultimatums is not appropriate. A more effective way to deal with it would be to call the doctor's office an hour ahead of time to see if he's on

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I recently attended a spaghetti dinner. Is there a proper way to eat long noodles, or should one just put in a forkful and slurp up the noodles until they are gone?

USING MY NOODLE IN DULUTH

DEAR USING YOUR of seven minutes. It's a good NOODLE: Spaghetti can be a challenge, but consuming it by starting at one end of the noodle and sucking it into one's mouth is a distinct nono because the sound can disrupt conversation. There are, however, exceptions to this in other cultures where noodles represent longevity and to cut them would be bad luck.

According to Emily Post, the proper way to eat spaghetti in our culture is "to hold the fork in one hand and a large spoon in the other. Take a few strands of pasta on the fork and place the tines against the bowl of the spoon, twirling the fork to neatly wrap the strands."

"For those who haven't mastered the art of twirling the pasta strands, there's the simple cutting method. Just be sure not to cut the whole plateful at one time; instead use your knife and fork to cut small portions."

"I heard you asking questions of each: Who killed the pork chops? What price bananas? Are you my

Allen Ginsberg

It is natural for a Wolff to take a proprietary interest in the three little pigs as they participate in their local duplicate game. All three ended up declaring three no-trump, each receiving the lead of the club jack. Let's see how

Nine tricks appear to be there without recourse to the diamond suit, but they cannot be accessed without the defense prevailing.

The first declarer won the club ace and played a spade from dummy. When East refused this trick, South overtook and played a second spade. East won and meanly shifted to a heart, leaving declarer with four unavoidable red-suit losers. Down one.

The second declarer also played on spades. East ducked, so declarer cashed the club king and played diamonds. The defenders cleared clubs and had five winners. Had South not cashed his club king, he would have lost the same tricks as the first little pig.

The third little pig played on diamonds. East won and also astutely switched to a heart to the jack, queen and ace. South saw that playing diamonds again would not work. He needed two tricks from hand, in addition to dummy's seven potential winners.

At trick four, he played a spade from the board. East had to play low - rising with the ace would have given declarer four spades, two hearts and three clubs. South overtook and cashed just one club to pitch a heart. With two extra tricks safely in the bag, declarer reverted to diamonds and now brought home the bacon.

ANSWER: Do you have enough to invite game? If so, in which suit should you advance? There are two simple choices, each flawed. A raise to three clubs suggests four trumps, but gets the values across. A preference to two hearts is an underbid, but not by much since your spade cards do not rate to be working facing shortage. Take the low road and bid two hearts, supporting the suit where game is most likely.

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Conceptis Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.

Cassia County School Board approves new classroom building

By Damon Hunzeker Times-News writer

BURLEY - As Cassia necessary. County School District places to teach its growing student population, its board of trustees approved an additional new classroom at White Pine Intermediate School in Burley Tuesday.

District enrollment has School. increased by 226 students in the past two years - from 4,987 to 5,213 – particularly among elementary students.

"We've had a lot of thirdcoming from View to White Pine," Superintendent Smyer said. "The secondgraders and first-graders are also large, so the pipeline is filling quickly in the lower grades."

money from the emergency levy that passed last fall, Smver said.

The concrete for two of the portable, prefabricated panel buildings has been poured. By combining the two into adjacent rooms that share a common wall, Smyer said the district will save about $20,000 on the newly approved, free-standing classroom.

One new building won't solve the problem of overcrowding, though.

"We'll still be tight. We'll still have larger class sizes than we would like. We're just going through some growing pains," Smyer said, adding that more significant measures may have to be pursued in the future.

"If our enrollment continues to increase the way it has in the past couple of years, we'll be faced with having to address a more serious problem of accommodating all of the students," he said.
