Report says Carter falsified time card under former sheriff Tousley

By Andrea Jackson
Times-News writer

Twin Falls County Sheriff Tom Carter's certification as a peace officer should be revoked, an Idaho Peace Officer Standards and Training hearing officer has recommended.

The recommendation, if adopted by the POST Council, would be a black eye for the sheriff of almost seven months. It results from allegations that Carter falsified his time card when he was a sergeant working for then-sheriff Wayne Tousley.

Tousley fired Carter in 2007, and reported the action to POST. Carter defeated Tousley in last November's election.

In a detailed 22-page report finalized Wednesday, POST hearing officer James Desmond says Carter violated county policies and the Law Enforcement Code of Conduct.

Carter also was insubordinate, took unauthorized leave and falsified records, Desmond found.

"Thomas P. Carter's conduct demonstrates a patent disregard for the principles and standards of the Law Enforcement Code of Conduct," the report reads. "Carter's decertification as an Idaho Peace Officer is therefore warranted."

Idaho peace officers must be POST certified, though sheriffs, as elected officials, do not have to be.

Carter said Thursday he was unaware that the findings, conclusions and order had been issued.

Idaho Power electrical demand jumps

More records possible this summer

By Nate Poppino
Times-News writer

Idaho Power Co. officials say they're starting to see demand increase again on their power grid, possibly leading to a new demand record for the fourth consecutive year.

The electric utility has worked for the past couple of years to improve its grid infrastructure, enhance its energy-efficiency programs and encourage more of its customers to use those programs. Those measures are driven by the air conditioners, irrigation pumps and other devices that usually combine with population growth to spike the region's energy needs in summer.

Multiple peak-demand records were set in the summers of 2006, 2007 and 2008 — reaching more than 3,200 megawatts across southern Idaho and eastern Oregon. While demand stayed low for the first part of this summer, the utility's systems registered above 3,000 MW on both Saturday and Wednesday, said Echo Chadwick, the company's director of corporate communication.

One megawatt is enough to power about 650 homes.

Chadwick guessed that this year's unusually cool, damp weather kept demand low. But with temperatures now in the 90s and 100s, the company could be on its way to another record.

CSI program helps young refugees adjust to life in U.S.

By Ben Botkin
Times-News writer

About 50 refugee children sat at tables, preparing for a snack of celery sticks with peanut butter and raisins.

The snack was more than just food for the children who arrived in Twin Falls from countries such as Nepal and Iraq through the College of Southern Idaho's Refugee Center.

It was also a short lesson in English as the snacks were handed out.

"The green is celery; this is a vegetable," said Nancy Murphy, one of the dozens of volunteers helping with the center's new summer school program.

Since starting in June, the CSI Refugee Center's summer school has grown beyond the expectations of the center. The six-week program, which wraps up July 23, provides children

T.F. Co. indigent care costs spike upward

By Jared S. Hopkins
Times-News writer

The cost of indigent health care to Twin Falls County continues to outpace historical trends, and the number of cases has grown to the point that the county has tentatively budgeted 25 percent more funding for next year.

Both the total number of indigent cases and how much the county pays out is again on track to surpass the previous year. With just over two months left in the fiscal year, 783 cases have been filed, according to Twin Falls County Clerk Kristina Glascock. Last year there were 819 in the entire fiscal year, which ends Sept. 30.

As a result, with the rising costs and a new law, the county has tentatively increased the indigent budget by 25 percent. Officials are hopeful the $3.74 million will be enough. This year, the county has already spent $2.76 million.

"It's certainly possible this week," she said.

To encourage energy efficiency, Idaho Power offers a number of tips and suggestions through its Web site and other sources — planting shade trees around your home, for example, or baking in glass pans that allow for lower oven temperatures.

The company also provides a number of efficiency programs for its residential, commercial and irrigation customers. Perhaps the best-known program pays homeowners to allow Idaho Power to briefly shut off their air conditioners during peak hours. Another pays them to donate old energy-sucking refrigerators to be taken away and recycled.

emergency health care provided to people without insurance that addresses a wide range of needs, including mental health. Its administration can often be a cumbersome process that involves appeals and various challenges.

Glascok and Twin Falls County Commissioner Terry Kramer said the increased costs and caseload are due to the rising cost of health insurance, general health care costs and the economic downturn. There are residents in the county who can't afford health insurance, including those who are employed, they said.

"Most of the people we see don't have any health insurance, so I'm sure the rising cost of health care has something to do with it," Kramer said. But, he said, "I think what we're seeing is more people who don't have the money or don't have the job that has the health insurance."

While claims are submitted to the counties, which cover the first chunk, they hand the rest to the state's catastrophic health care program. The 134 cases that have gone to the state's Catastrophic Health Fund has already passed last year's 118.

But on July 1, the county's share of CAT payments increased to $11,000 from $10,000 due to a new law passed by the Legislature. That bill, drafted by Sen. Dean Cameron, R-Rupert, and Rep. Fred Wood, R-Burley, was designed to save the state money in the long-term.

Law Disorder...

... in Cassia County

From July 9 police reports:

Suspicious person:

A 39-year-old Burley woman reported that, while her 13-year-old daughter was walking home from school, she was "approached by a Hispanic male in a gold color car." According to the report, the driver said to the girl, "Don't worry I'm not weird." As the girl continued to walk, the man reportedly said, "Fine don't talk to me." He then drove away.

Driving violations:

Police responded to Smith's Food King in Burley after someone reported "that a small child was hanging out of the window" of a Jeep as it crossed the Burley/Heyburn Bridge. In the Smith's parking lot, police found the vehicle, which was unoccupied and had a child seat in the back. A 58-year-old man and a 3-year-old girl were found walking out of the store, carrying a plastic pool. The man was told about the complaint and was asked if the girl was hanging out of the window.

According to the report, he said, "She might have been, that's her car seat in there." One witness refused to sign a citation, as she was from California and couldn't make it back for a court date and also "didn't want to get involved." Another witness said she saw the man drive out of the parking lot after he was released without putting the girl in the child seat. She agreed to sign two citations, which will be served on the suspect.

The recommendation to decertify Carter is not final until POST acts on it. Carter has 14 days after he receives it to request reconsideration, according to the record.

"I have every confidence that the residents of Twin Falls County will be able to focus on the progress the Sheriff's Office has made under my leadership," Carter said Thursday in a written statement.

"My relationship with my department, other law enforcement entities, civic leaders and the citizens of Twin Falls County will remain positive and proactive. Despite the disappointment I feel at this latest evidence of the manipulative mishandling of my career, I will continue to lead the Sheriff's Office in the right direction."

The Times-News obtained the report from POST through a public records request.

At his April 23 decertification hearing at POST in Meridian, Tousley and his former undersheriff, Ed Gudgell, both recommended that Carter be decertified.

Tousley terminated Carter on Jan. 29, 2007, after an internal investigation that allegedly showed Carter failed to report sick leave on time cards and didn't "notify supervisors that he was going home on those nights when he claimed to be too ill to remain at work," according to the report.

At the decertification hearing, Carter's attorney Keith Roark, described the accusations against Carter as a political witch hunt.

Carter testified that he went home for a period of time, but remained on duty — an action, he said, that was common in the department, according to the record.

Carter testified that he didn't report the time he spent at home as sick leave because he didn't want to lose his overtime for the pay period, according to the report.

Desmond, however, was unconvinced by Carter's defense.

The hearing officer wrote that Carter signed his name to an inaccurate time sheet.

"By (Carter's) signature he attested to the accuracy of the time sheet. That constitutes falsification of a document which I find particularly disturbing behavior from an officer of the law."

"The evidence in this record portrays a mid-level supervisor who interpreted rules and policies to his benefit and who attempted to rely on his interpretation over that of his supervisors," said Desmond in the POST record. "(Carter's) counsel attempted to portray him as a victim of a political witch hunt who, despite his good record of performance, was dismissed for insignificant actions which were commonplace within the department. That defense fails on several levels."

"In considering the arguments presented by (Carter) as justification or explanation for the actions which caused his employment with TFCSO to be terminated, I did not find them credible," said Desmond in the POST record.

Reached by phone on Thursday, Tousley said he did not want to comment.

The letter to the editor from Ed Navarro on July 18 contained two errors. The writer's name was misspelled, and the amount of the daily interest he used was misprinted. The sentence should have read, "At this point in time, we are already paying $100 million a day in interest only to pay down the debt and that will be going up as he continues to spend more on all the programs he wants to put in place."

The Times-News regrets the errors.

with multiple benefits, organizers said, including exposure to English, the opportunity to socialize with other children, and a way to learn more about what to expect in the United States.

"Education is so important and I think people recognize that and want to be a part," said Michelle Pospichal, match grant coordinator at the center. "We are just so appreciative for them. The volunteer support from the community has been wonderful."

The summer school program is unique in that it's an entirely community-supported venture of volunteers and donations, she said, adding that no government grants are involved.

Volunteers read to the children and bring in snacks, paying for the food themselves. Lighthouse Christian School provided the space for the summer school program and bus service for the youngsters.

Initially the program was expected to have just 30 students — it's now grown to almost twice that number.

Being in its first year, the summer school is still in its experimental phase but Pospichal anticipates that it will continue next year.

The children learn skills they'll need after summer school ends, like how to line up before class, tell dates on the calendar, and determine colors. There's also a playtime for socializing.

Bikash Upreti, a 12-year-old refugee of Bhutanese origin, said he enjoys making friends at the summer school and reading.

"It's really nice," he said. Nine-year-old A.C. Stowe was one volunteer who pointed out pictures to refugee children that taught them words: pillow, blanket and teddy bear.

"We can learn English and play here," said Puspita Nepal, 12, a refugee of Bhutanese origin.

Shannon Stowe, A.C.'s mother, said the summer school is also a learning experience for her son.

"It's easy to give money, but I wanted him to learn this summer about giving his time," she said.

U.S. Hwy. 93 near Carey to reopen today

Times-News

A section of U.S. Highways 93/26 between Richfield and Carey that has been closed for about a month for an Idaho Transportation Department reconstruction project will reopen to traffic today.

Traffic is expected to be restored to the section of road between mileposts 182 to 189 beginning at 7 a.m. Traffic control and lane restriction will continue while the contractor completes minor projects within the construction zone.

The reconstruction was part of a road rehabilitation project extending from the north end of Richfield to the intersection with Pagari Road south of Carey.

The section of road between mileposts 187 and 189 was closed in late June due to heavy moisture and unsafe soil conditions.

The contractor was allowed to restore the hazardous area to a safe driving surface and completed all work throughout the construction zone during the closure.

Water board works to finish changes to state water plan

Plan not revised since 1996

By Nate Poppino
Times-News writer

The plan that governs Idaho's approach to water issues is nearing its first major revision in more than 10 years.

The Idaho Comprehensive State Water Plan lays down the state's approach to water policy, both statewide and in a number of smaller basins. Updated six times between 1974 and 1996, it has not been revised since.

A subcommittee of the Idaho Water Resource Board started reviewing and revising the plan in October 2007. The full board performed its first review of that committee's work at a meeting in March, and members spent part of Wednesday and Thursday this week examining further portions of the plan's draft.

Hal Anderson, administrator of the Idaho Department of Water Resources' planning and technical services division, said Thursday that the biggest change to the plan is actually its format. Previous plans served more as a statement of policy, he said; the new revision lists strategies and recommendations for making the plan's various goals a reality.

A section on expanding the state's water storage, for example, would include a list of promising reservoir sites — including enlarging Minidoka Dam and rebuilding Teton Dam, both of which the Legislature has already provided money to study.

"It's much more proactive," Anderson said.

Those goals would now incorporate a number of recent changes, including adjustments to the state's approach to managed aquifer recharge. Board members also restructured the plan's language regarding hydropower and included references to a comprehensive plan developed to repair the Eastern Snake

Plain Aquifer, which itself was authorized as a component of the water plan by the Legislature this spring.

Parts of the draft document are still under review, including an entire section pertaining to the Snake River Basin. Language in that part about the future treatment of the Thousand Springs area prompted feedback last year from springs users, worried that the plan infringed on their rights.

Also under review is a completely new section that would provide specific policies for the Salmon and Clearwater basins, Anderson said.

State statute used to require the water board to update the plan every five years. But that requirement was done away with in the 1990s when the board realized IDWR staff couldn't keep up with that level of work, Anderson said. Even with a more relaxed schedule, the busy events of this decade — including developing the Nez Perce Agreement — and a lack of resources made it hard for staff to find time for the plan update, he said.

"We've been really struggling, quite honestly," Anderson said, adding that a renewed push for the work began in 2004.

The board plans to release an official approved draft plan later this year and then vet it at a series of public meetings around the state. After final changes are made from those meetings, Anderson said, board members intend to submit the plan for consideration by the 2010 Legislature.

"We've been really struggling, quite honestly."

BLM quashes 373-acre fire near Burley

By Nate Poppino
Times-News writer

Firefighters with the U.S. Bureau of Land Management fought and contained a 373-acre fire on Wednesday evening, the first sizable fire the agency's Twin Falls District has confronted this summer.

The blaze started shortly after 6 p.m. Wednesday, about one mile south of the Yale Road exit of Interstate 86, BLM spokeswoman Sky Buffat said. It burned through sage and grass and was contained at 11:30 p.m., she said. Five heavy engines, two single-engine air tankers and a helicopter responded.

The fire was estimated to be controlled at 6 p.m. Thursday, though Buffat said fire crews would probably stay at it a little longer than that because winds were picking up. Three heavy engines were still on site at the time. The fire was confirmed to be human-caused and a BLM investigator was sent to the scene, she said.

A cool spring has led to an extremely delayed fire season in south-central Idaho. But, Buffat noted, Wednesday's fire is a sign that things may be picking up. High temperatures and low humidity can create conditions for an easy burn, she said.

The agency's firefighters have kept busy working on a variety of other BLM projects, though Buffat noted they may have appreciated finally putting their skills to use on Wednesday evening.

"It's a harder year on them because it's not really what they had intended to be doing this summer," she said.

Falls Avenue West project will include new water line

The Falls Avenue West widening project by the city of Twin Falls scheduled for construction this fall will also include a new water line, city officials said.

The $3.2 million widening project will include an additional $1 million water line. The widening is for future transportation needs and the water line is for immediate growth, including the new St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center.

The city chose to widen the road to three lanes but leave enough room to restripe it in the future for four lanes when the need is there. There are more subdivisions planned nearby and the new hospital is being constructed along Grandview Drive. The widening is planned from Washington Street North to at least Grandview Drive.

City officials said the water line has been in the works for years but was expedited by the hospital's placement. Residents told the Times-News on Wednesday they were aware of the new water line.

Eastland Drive South to close

On Monday, a 700-foot section of Eastland Drive South will be closed for up to 40 days for road construction, the city of Twin Falls announced Tuesday.

Workers will rebuild the road under the Eastland Drive underpass, and motorists are required to use alternate routes from Kimberly Road to south of Highland Avenue.

The project, estimated at $100,000, was approved Monday by the Twin Falls City Council. The city staff wants to complete the project before the sugar beet harvest season.

At Monday's meeting, Mike Trabert, a city staff engineer, said the staff wanted to proceed on the project because the window of time for projects to be completed this summer is closing, too.

Asked why the project didn't get a council vote until July, city officials said the project was discussed last winter and it became apparent during the summer the project could be completed.

Sawtooth Forest receives first stimulus award

By Nate Poppino
Times-News writer

The Sawtooth National Forest will receive about $1.2 million for capital improvement and maintenance projects, part of another round of federal stimulus awards announced Tuesday by U.S. Agriculture Secretary Tom Vilsack.

The money, the first awarded to the Sawtooth forest this year through the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act, is part of roughly $17 million in Idaho and $274 million nationwide tabbed for facilities and trails projects at national forests. Idaho forests received funding for 16 projects total, in addition to other project awards announced in June.

According to a summary on the U.S. Forest Service's Web site, the Sawtooth funds will be used for facilities work in Blaine, Cassia, Custer and Elmore counties. The summary notes that many recreation facilities in the area are "decades old and long overdue" for improvements.

Sawtooth spokeswoman Alicia Bennett said Wednesday that a breakdown of how the forest will spend the $1.2 million wasn't available right away. But she confirmed that the sum is the only stimulus money the forest has received so far, despite submitting several applications.

Some of the funds will be matched with dollars contributed by the Idaho Department of Parks and Recreation and two independent groups, the Sawtooth Society and Backcountry Horsemen of Idaho.

The state agency has provided grants to the forest and the Sawtooth National Recreation Area that, in 2008 and 2009, are helping with campground development and other projects. The SNRA is also the Sawtooth Society's primary focus, Executive Director Gary O'Malley said. He and Parks and Recreation officials weren't entirely sure about which projects they are helping fund would get the stimulus money.

"It's a variety of different things meant to enhance the recreational visitor experience up here," O'Malley said of his group's work.

Nationally, Tuesday's disbursements funded 191 projects in 32 states. California got the most money - $76.7 million for 10 projects - and New Mexico will have the most projects, funding 27 with $11 million.

Forum produces wide array of parking comments

By Jared S. Hopkins
Times-News writer

The Twin Falls Historic Business Improvement District held a public forum Thursday to gather feedback on recommendations to fix downtown parking.

The forum produced a wide array of comments, but at least one surfaced routinely — parking should be free on Saturdays. Comments ranged from abolishing meters altogether or building a parking garage for employees, to having businesses regulate parking themselves — which was done for years with conflicting results.

Many comments from businesses concerned customers who would sooner go to the mall than pay money to park downtown. However, the board noted that nobody criticized a proposal to raise the hourly parking rate from 25 cents to 50 cents.

The meeting — which drew about a dozen downtown business people, around half of whom addressed the board — was held in regards to recommendations made by a parking subcommittee. There are around 200 meters and eight city-owned parking lots.

"I just feel like charging anything at all for customers to shop is ridiculous," said Cathy Freeborn, who owns Cathy's Unique Boutique. "I don't want my customers to have to pay to see me."

The city, in trying to improve parking management has beefed up its efforts since it assumed the duties of the BID last year. Principal among those was the hiring of Woody Cullen as a parking enforcement officer to monitor and write tickets.

"We don't receive any revenue but we do receive the benefit," Board member Dan Brizee said after it was cited that the BID doesn't receive parking revenue.

One recommendation is to strike the city ordinance that prohibits employees and employers from parking in front of businesses because it's unenforceable. Brizee said any worker doing so "is a fool" because it would hurt business any way.

Last year a professional parking consultant found the city's parking policies to be ineffective, unenforceable and in need of drastic change. It also said many successful downtown areas across the nation require users to pay for parking.

Still, BID board member Michele Hamilton expressed skepticism, particularly at the notion that downtown parking should be used to increase employee turnover.

"Golly, I don't want them to leave. I want them to stay," she said.

The BID board, which now advises the City Council, agreed to hold a special meeting for further discussion and could vote at its August meeting. Board members said they got a good sense of how to proceed.

Banks have gone bust in Blaine County before

You've read about the economic turmoil in the Wood River Valley caused by the failure in April of Ketchum-based First Bank of Idaho, but that's nothing new in Blaine County.

Wood River Valley banks folded during the Great Depression, but the downturn after World War I provoked an even bigger crisis.

Local banks had their capital tied up in loans they'd made to farmers during the war. When farm prices fell — potatoes that sold for $1.51 a bushel in 1919 fetched 31 cents in 1922 — producers couldn't pay and the banks went bust.

The same thing happened to the sheep industry. At the end of World War I when prices were $12.20 per hundredweight, Ketchum shipped more sheep than any town on the planet. That wasn't the case two years later, when the price was $5.30.

Two of the early casualties were the Bellevue Bank and Trust and the Blaine County National Bank of Hailey, which collapsed just before Thanksgiving in 1921 — taking the assets of local wool-growers with them. There was no Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. in those days, guaranteeing bank deposits.

"Several Wood River sheepmen wired J. Lynn Driscoll, vice president of the Livestock Exchange Bank of Chicago and the Boise Livestock Loan Company," explained Leonard Arrington and Gwynn Barrett in a 1971 article in Idaho Yesterdays. "Reluctant to leave his family that holiday weekend, Driscoll nevertheless boarded the first train bound for Idaho. The sheepmen gathered in Hailey's Hiawatha Hotel, greeted Driscoll upon his arrival, and invited him to take them to dinner."

The banker not only picked up the check, but staked the stockmen to working capital. He spent the winter shuttling between Hailey, Twin Falls and Filer, and "not a penny was lost," Driscoll said.

Thomas Stanford, a former Republican state legislator, founder of Carey and vice president of the Carey State Bank, was dismayed to find himself and other bankers referred to as "Sinners and Geezirs," according to Arrington and Barrett.

In December, the War Finance Corp. — created to finance war industries — began funneling money into banks for loans to farmers. Idaho received $750,000. Trouble was, farmers and woolgrowers who took WFC loans paid 10 percent interest — far more than they could afford, according to Arrington and Barrett.

Things got so bad that winter that Stanford, himself a sheepman, predicted revolution.

The common people, he wrote, were praying for a "Cromwell" that would save the country from "Bolshevekeism."

Instead, they gradually got better farm prices, although Idaho's ag economy didn't fully recover until World War II — and the sheep industry was never the same.

Nor were the Blaine County banks.

"If we do not act, 14,000 Americans will continue to lose their health insurance every single day."
 — President Obama, making his case to Americans to support his health care agenda

EDITORIAL

Middle school is make-or-break time

Accountability for middle school students? It's about time. The State Board of Education last month approved a plan to create a credit system for students in the seventh- and eighth- grades. The public can comment on the proposal, and the board will again review the system in October.

The Legislature must also sign off on the plan. If it's adopted, middle school students would have to pass 80 percent of their courses before moving to the next grade level.

The crediting system was developed by the Middle Level Task Force, formed to improve student achievement and to prepare kids for the next level. It included Rob Sauer, deputy superintendent with the Idaho State Department of Education and a former Wendell Middle School principal, and Jerome Middle School math teacher Chris Avila.

Sauer says students who don't meet the requirements could still make up credits.

Study after study has shown that kids who falter in middle school fail in high school — and struggle after they leave school. When they're 12- and 13-year-olds, students learn critical thinking that is the foundation for future success.

And yet for years, public schools have been under pressure to pass seventh- and eighth-graders, regardless of their academic record. That philosophy produces high school freshmen who can't keep up with their classmates.

To his credit, Superintendent of Public Instruction Tom Luna has made improving middle school education a priority. That's neither easy nor cheap, but it's essential.

He hired Sauer, who had notable successes in Wendell, in part to get that done. The Middle School Task Force's recommendations reflect Sauer's work.

The state board should approve the new standards, but more is needed. In some countries, early adolescence is a make-or-break period for students, determining whether they move on to higher education, trade schools or minimally skilled jobs.

If the United States is to stay competitive with China and other nations in the global economy, we need to start taking middle school seriously.

Our view: The Idaho State Board of Education will soon decide whether to hold middle school students to higher standards. It should embrace that philosophy, and so should administrators and teachers.

What do you think? We welcome viewpoints from our readers on this and other issues.

Pay as you go? Not so much

There is less than meets the eye to the Democrats' "pay-go bill," the lavishly touted gesture toward fiscal responsibility that the House passed on Wednesday.

The pay-as-you-go measure, known as pay-go and endorsed by President Obama, was hailed by Rep. George Miller of California, the head of the Democratic Policy Committee, as a device that will force Washington to "make tough choices" and "help bring our fiscal house in order."

DAVID BRODER

Other sponsors, such as Budget Committee Chairman John Spratt and Majority Leader Steny Hoyer, who genuinely worry about the flood of red ink inundating the government, were more modest in their claims. They acknowledged that by itself, the bill will do nothing to cure the giant budget deficits, but they said it might deter Congress from "digging the hole deeper."

Its key provision requires that any new tax cut or entitlement increase be paid for by an offsetting reduction in other programs or a tax increase. If, for example, you want to guarantee child care for every working mother or provide her with a payroll tax cut, you would have to find savings or revenue elsewhere of equal size.

When the Democrats controlled Congress back in 1990, they passed a similar law and it helped establish the kind of discipline that led briefly to balanced budgets in the Clinton administration.

When the law was about to expire in 2002, the Republican majority let it die, figuring that its absence would make it easier to pass more of the tax cuts recommended by President Bush. Deficits mushroomed.

In the 2006 election, the Democrats took over and the first thing they did was restore pay-go as a rule of the House and Senate. This year, Obama encouraged them to make it a law, hoping it would give him more power to enforce it.

It could do just the opposite. The bill says that at the end of the year, if Congress has spent more on new entitlements or tax cuts than it has saved, the president can roll back or sequester the excess. But the Congressional Budget Office, the official scorekeeper, warned in a July 14 memo that, as introduced, the bill might allow spending to increase — and by a staggering amount.

"In effect," it said, "that rule would allow the Congress to enact legislation that would increase deficits by an amount in the vicinity of $3 trillion over the 2010-2019 period without triggering a sequestration."

The reason is that the bill exempts from pay-go all of the spending involved in Medicare physician payments and all of the revenue dependent on estate and gift taxes, the alternative minimum tax for individuals and the administration's plan to continue the middle-income tax cuts of 2001 and 2003.

That is not the only giant loophole in this version of pay-go. Unlike the one enacted in 1990, it is not accompanied by any multi-year cap on discretionary spending. That means the 40 percent of the budget reflected in annual appropriations bills for ongoing or new government programs does not have to be paid for.

When I asked Hoyer about the budget office report and these big exemptions, he said, "They are right." But he defended the exemptions as necessary to get the bill approved. If the Medicare payments and the tax breaks that may be coming were not exempted, he said, they would certainly be given waivers this year — and that would set a bad precedent for the process.

To critics, including Kent Conrad, the chairman of the Senate Budget Committee, that sounds like premature capitulation to the free-spending ways of Congress.

The realistic appraisal of this legislation came in a hearing of the House Budget Committee from Douglas Holtz-Eakin, a former director of the Congressional Budget Office and an adviser last year to John McCain.

"It is important to recognize," he said, "that rules such as pay-go are no substitute for the genuine political will to solve the problem" of runaway budget deficits. "The very best-case scenario is that that legislation will not worsen an already bleak fiscal picture."

Keep that in mind as you listen to the Democrats celebrate.

Cuts dressed up as health care reform aren't

Whether America's health care system is in need of reform isn't the debate. There is no doubt that the time for reform has to be now. The more elemental question is what constitutes reform?

The vast majority of the headlines, public discussion and debate on health reform appear to focus on covering the uninsured, something many of us have advocated for years. However, as beneficial as increasing the number of insured would be, meaningful reform must go far beyond questions of affordable insurance.

Meaningful reform will include systematic change that benefits patients and communities. Reform will result in quality care at a reasonable expense. It rewards personal responsibility and appropriate utilization of resources by patients and providers. It considers patients as the highest priority, but acknowledges that endless spending on countless tests and procedures doesn't necessarily result in better care.

Before you decide to support any proposal, consider just a few critical questions:

1. When considering cov-

READER COMMENT
 Mark Schwartz and Steve Millard

erage for America's 47 million uninsured, who pays the cost? Proposals which share the burden are more likely to be sustainable than those looking to drastic changes to one sector. Hospitals are ready to do their part, so must the other stakeholders.

2. How will reform impact your coverage? There is talk of a new public plan option. These proposals mirror Medicare in terms of paying providers less than the actual cost of care. In today's market, these costs are shifted to private pay or insured patients. What happens when the public plan not only covers a portion of the uninsured, but leads to the inclusion of as many as 119 million previously insured patients? This could happen when some employers see the opportunity to relieve themselves of the fiscal or administrative burden of providing insurance.

3. How will your health and quality of care be improved? When considering change, there has not been enough discussion on proposals that reward wellness and prevention. How will reform plans encourage quality, coordinated care rather than volume of procedures? How will we save money by improving care for those suffering from chronic illness?

4. What is the cost of doing nothing? What happens if we continue to foster a system that so drastically fails to meet its full potential? How can Idaho families, insured or not, continue to receive necessary and preventive care when out of pocket expenses climb at substantially higher rates than their incomes? How do we control the exploding costs of Medicare and Medicaid while still providing quality health care to seniors and other vulnerable populations?

In short, reform isn't just about creating more insured. An insurance policy doesn't mean you're protected against costly care.

Insurance doesn't guarantee patient-centered care, better quality, or more efficient care. We need to commit to reform now, of that there is no doubt. What we can't afford are cost shifting and cuts that are dressed up as reform.

Anyone who has come in contact with the U.S. health care system, knows the extreme complexities and layers of challenges involved in providing appropriate care to each patient. Health reform will not be easy. There are no simple solutions. This discussion cannot be limited to sound bites and headlines. Nor can it be limited to legislation that addresses only part of the problem; leaving the system even closer to the edge of collapse. The changes that are proposed today will take time and significant resources to implement and evaluate their effectiveness. Behind every headline, policy, proposal and debate, real lives are at risk. Meaningful reform is imperative but we have to get it right.

Infusion of cash would give U.S. community colleges new clout

For decades, American presidents lauded the working stiffs and immigrants who fill our community colleges, but then stiffed them during budget time.

That ended this week when President Obama made one of his most welcome proposals of his first year, a $12 billion, 10-year plan to boost community colleges.

Obama called this a "historic step," the biggest recognition of the importance of community colleges since the GI Bill and President Truman's efforts that doubled the number of community colleges and increased their enrollment by seven times.

The raw infusion of cash for infrastructure, challenge grants, and online classes, if averaged out equally over the next decade, represents a 60 percent increase in direct federal spending on community colleges. Sara Goldrick-Rab, a University of Wisconsin education and sociology researcher, said this was stunning since two months ago she co-authored a Brookings blueprint on transforming community colleges that called for a doubling of direct federal spending, from $2 billion a year to $4 billion a year.

This was close enough for her. "The president is setting a real high bar for himself, a very ambitious bar," Goldrick-Rab said by phone. "Nobody should think this is peanuts. It blew my expectations. The huge key to me is that he was not talking just about job training, which is the traditional way most people and politicians view community colleges. I'm not demeaning job training, but we know how this status stuff works in education. I've taken photos of community colleges where the buildings are no place for adults."

President Bush touted a $250 million job-training program, but it was only half-funded after opponents in Congress said the administration was robbing other valuable programs to pay for it. "By talking about infrastructure and improving the quality of instruction itself, the president is saying, in a way we haven't heard, that community colleges are places worth going to," Goldrick-Rab said.

George Boggs, president of the American Association of Community Colleges, also praised the plan, but said that because such schools have been neglected for so long, the catch-up to remotely mirror the quality of four-year colleges is immense.

According to the Delta Cost Project on college spending, a consortium of higher-education policy makers, the average per-student spending at community colleges is about one-third that at four-year public universities and a sixth of the per-student spending at private colleges.

Yet community colleges bear the brunt of cutbacks, even though enrollment even before the recession grew twice as fast as for four-year colleges, according to Brookings, and now stands at between 6 million to 6.5 million students. In 1987, federal per-student spending at four-year colleges was three times more than at community colleges. That gap has grown to five times more.

Already, Boggs said, Obama's announcement has been somewhat sobered by a couple of phone calls from community college advocates in hard-hit California and the Northeast who say that politicians are already sniffing around to see what they can cut from community colleges because of Obama's $12 billion proposal. "I'm still worried that we could be turning away hundreds of thousands of students," Boggs said.

Alan Berube, a senior Brookings fellow in metropolitan policy and blueprint co-author with Goldrick-Rab, said the $12 billion "doesn't radically change the financial picture for these institutions." He said the most important effect of the money may be that for the first time since Truman, community colleges can leverage their new-found status with the president with state and local governments, foundations, and the private sector.

Here in Boston, for instance, instead of making Bunker Hill and Roxbury community colleges easy, perpetual whipping posts for low graduation rates in the face of a complex student body that elite colleges need not contend with, Mayor Menino, Governor Patrick, and civic and industry leaders should immediately huddle with the schools to maximize the challenge grants.

"For the most part, community colleges haven't had a seat at the table in their cities and towns," Berube said. "This has a chance at bringing them to the table. A seat is long overdue."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Educate ourselves on Constitution Day

I was taught a long time ago that the Constitution does not give us our rights but protects them. These rights have been determined by God and nature and no written law can change this.

Constitution Day is Sept. 17. All public schools and federal employees will be given lessons educating them on our Constitution.

With the nomination process of Judge Sonya Sotomayor well under way, we hear arguments on a daily basis as to the interpretation of the Constitution. What better time than now to educate ourselves on this great document. On July 25, at the Herrett Center in Twin Falls, there will be an all-day seminar outlining the history and articles of the Constitution.

Our current political system seems to divide us particularly during election campaigns; however, once the elected official arrives in Washington and new legislation is drawn up, it is difficult to tell them apart. We cannot always rely on the virtues and intelligence of our leaders, so we must use our own virtues and intelligence when we select them. We must remember that laws should be in place not to restrict or abolish our freedoms and rights, but to preserve and protect them as outlined in the Constitution.

It is time for good people to stand up, commit themselves and be more responsible for the direction our country is taking.

Beck's daughter had right to apply for post

I read with interest your evaluation of the hiring practices of the College of Southern Idaho. Why must you spend so much time looking at the "pony in the manure pile"?

Your position is most confusing. Is your issue simply the fact that President Jerry Beck is her father? Or is her age and experience a concern? To deny Kristin the position strictly because she is related to President Beck would be, in my opinion, grounds for reverse discrimination. She has every right to apply for any position for which she feels she is qualified.

Having said that, I would suggest that the Times-News concentrate on reporting the news and forget about trying to make the news.

I have every confidence in the decision of the selection committee. The outstanding record amassed over the years by the College of Southern Idaho did not just happen. It came about through a board of trustees and a professional staff who have been committed to the concept of "due diligence."

This decision is no different.

What's wrong in America?

If you don't have any idea what's in your house and someone breaks in and robs you, how could you tell? You might have the feeling that something was missing, but what? In that same manner, if you don't understand what's written in the United States Constitution, how would you be able to tell when politicians are robbing you of your rights?

More and more of us are beginning to get the sense that something is going seriously wrong in America, but we just can't put a finger on it and so we can't see what to do about it. Why does the dollar buy less and less? Why do the schools produce such alienated children? Why can't small town America communicate with Washington, D.C.? Why do the solutions only make the problems worse?

All this and more can be made clear by understanding what is written in the United States Constitution. Join TEARS of the Patriots for a daylong seminar on the Constitution in the Rick Allen Room of the Herrett Center at the College of Southern Idaho starting at 9 a.m. July 25. The speaker is retired Marine Corps Maj. and Professor of Constitutional Studies at the University of North Las Vegas Jack Ringler. Registration is $20 at the door, or you may pre-register for $17.76 by going to www.tearsofthepatriots.org and clicking the "calendar" link on the home page.

MONTANA Interior Department proposes Yellowstone snowmobile cap

BILLINGS — The number of snowmobiles allowed in Yellowstone National Park would be cut by more than half under an Obama administration proposal announced Thursday that marked yet another policy swing on an issue that's been unresolved for more than a decade.

The proposal would allow 318 snowmobiles and 78 multi-passenger snowcoaches daily for the next two winters. That's down from 720 snowmobiles per day allowed last winter.

The question of how many snowmobiles are appropriate for the nation's first national park has sparked political and legal skirmishing since the Clinton administration, when an outright ban was proposed.

Power shifts in Washington and federal lawsuits from environmentalists and snowmobile advocates have led to constantly changing rules for the machines — a factor that advocates contend has dampened snowmobile interest in Yellowstone.

OREGON Faith-healing pair acquitted of manslaughter

OREGON CITY — An Oregon couple who relied on prayer instead of medical care were acquitted of manslaughter Thursday in the death of their 15-month-old daughter.

The jury convicted the father, Carl Brent Worthington, of criminal mistreatment, a misdemeanor carrying a maximum sentence of a year in jail. The mother, Raylene Worthington, was acquitted in the 2008 death of their daughter Ava.

Both had faced manslaughter charges, which could have carried a sentence of up to six years in prison. The mother also was acquitted of criminal mistreatment.

The prosecution said Ava Worthington failed to flourish through most of her life because of a cyst on her neck that impeded her breathing and eating, contributing to her fatal pneumonia. She died on a Sunday evening after family and church members prayed over her and anointed her with olive oil.

The state medical examiner said she could easily have been saved with antibiotics.

But the defense attacked the credibility of the state's expert witnesses and said the child died of a fast-moving form of sepsis, an infection. The Worthingtons testified that the cyst was a trait in the father's family and that they thought their child only had a cold.

IDAHO Sugar plant fined over death of worker

NAMPA — Federal authorities have fined Amalgamated Sugar Co. $18,900 following an investigation into a worker's death in May.

Mario Munoz, 45, of the Caldwell area, died on the job when he was caught in conveyor machinery used to move sugar at a plant in Nampa.

Dave Kearns, assistant area director for the federal Occupational Safety and Health Administration, said the investigation did not fully resolve questions regarding the death of Munoz.

"We still at this point don't really know how or why he ended up in the scroll (auger)," Kearns told the Idaho Statesman.

However, he said three safety violations, which the company has corrected, were found during the investigation, and that led to the fine.

Report says police taunted, Tasered handcuffed man

BOISE — Boise police officers used excessive force when they taunted and threatened a handcuffed man and then Tasered him in the buttocks, a report from the city's police ombudsman said.

The actions of one of the involved officers — called Officer No. 3 in the report — were "not appropriate, not condoned and not professional," Boise Police Chief Michael Masterson said in reaction to the release of the report on Wednesday.

The February incident was captured by an audio recording made by one of the police officers at the unidentified man's home.

"If you move again, I'm going to stick this Taser up your (expletive) and pull the trigger," one of the officers said. "Now, do you feel this in your (expletive)? — I'm going to Tase you (expletive) if you move again."

Police violated the department's use-of-force policy when the officers Tasered the man once in the back before he was handcuffed, and then in the buttocks after he was handcuffed, Boise Community Ombudsman Pierce Murphy concluded in the report, which was based partly on the audio recording.

2 convicted of hate crime in beating

BOISE — A federal jury has found two men guilty of committing a hate crime for beating a black man outside a Nampa Wal-Mart last year.

Michael Bullard and Richard Armstrong each face up to 20 years in prison. They are scheduled to be sentenced Oct. 19. Jennifer Hartpence was also accused in the hate crime, but the charges against her were dismissed before the case went to the jury on Wednesday.

Federal prosecutors said that the defendants, who are all white, plotted an attack against a 24-year-old they encountered in the aisles of a Wal-Mart and then beat him in the parking lot. A fourth man accused in the attack, James D. Whitewater, pleaded guilty to conspiracy to violate rights before the case went to trial.

Jurors deliberated four hours before finding Bullard and Armstrong guilty of conspiracy to violate rights and interference with federally protected activities based on race.

U.S. Attorney Tom Moss said the convictions show hate crimes won't be tolerated. "Idaho, like most other parts of this nation, has had inglorious moments in its past when people endured oppression and criminal acts merely because of their skin color, race, national origin, gender or religion," Moss said in a statement. "We are long past that time."

New jobless claims rise to 554K, total rolls fall

Housing market shows signs of life

By Christopher S. Rugaber
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — The number of newly laid-off workers seeking jobless benefits rose last week, though the government said its report again was distorted by the timing of auto plant shutdowns.

Unemployment insurance claims have declined steadily since the spring, but most private economists and the Federal Reserve expect jobs to remain scarce and the unemployment rate to top 10 percent by year-end.

Elsewhere, the housing market showed more signs of life as sales of previously occupied homes rose for the third straight month in June, according to the National Association of Realtors. That helped push the Dow Jones industrials above 9,000 for the first time since early January.

The Labor Department said Thursday that its tally of initial claims for unemployment insurance rose by 30,000 to a seasonally adjusted 554,000. That was above analysts' estimates of 550,000.

The increase follows two straight weeks of sharp drops largely because automakers didn't lay off as many workers as expected in Atlanta resident Marilynn Winn holds her paycheck that shows her minimum wage pay of $6.75 an hour in Atlanta, Wednesday. A federal minimum wage increase to $7.25 an hour takes effect today. Winn says she worries that the pay boost could lead her boss to make cuts, especially to older workers like herself.

Fed moves to improve disclosures

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Federal Reserve on Thursday approved proposals designed to make it easier for Americans with mortgages, or shopping for them, to better understand how the loans work.

The action comes after lax lending and, in some cases, borrowers who didn't fully understand the terms of their home loans, ended up buying houses that they couldn't afford. That contributed to the worst collapse in the housing and mortgage markets in 70 years.

"Consumers need the proper tools to determine whether a particular mortgage loan is appropriate for their circumstances," said Fed Chairman Ben Bernanke. "It is often said that a home is a family's most important asset, and it is the Federal Reserve's responsibility to see that borrowers receive the information they need to protect that asset."

Among the changes, mortgage lenders would need to explain potentially risky features, such as prepayment penalties, of a mortgage in a one-page "plain-English" question-and-answer format before a consumer applies for a loan. Improved disclosure of the annual percentage rate, or APR, to capture most fees and settlement costs paid by the borrower also would be required.

For customers with adjustable-rate mortgages, lenders would be required to show consumers how their payment might change. For instance, by disclosing the highest monthly amount the borrower might pay during the life of the loan. Lenders also would have to notify customers 60 days in advance — versus the current 25 — of a change in their monthly payment.

Some fear it could threaten low earners' jobs

By Dione Walker
Associated Press writer

ATLANTA — A federal minimum wage increase that takes effect today could prolong the recession, some economists say, by forcing small businesses to lay off the same workers that the pay hike passed in better times was meant to help.

The increase to $7.25 means 70 cents more an hour for the lowest-paid workers in the 30 states that have lower minimums or no minimum wage. It also means higher costs for employers who feel they've already trimmed all their operating fat.

"How will they absorb the increase?" said Rajeev Dhawan, director of Georgia State University's Economic Forecasting Center. "They will either hire less people or they will do less business."

More than in any period before, businesses are likely to lay off employees and reduce hours, further fueling the economic slump in states seeing double-digit unemployment rates, fiscal conservatives and some economists say.

Minimum wage advocates counter the wage bump will keep more working poor afloat, and say more increases are needed to help stimulate consumer spending and strengthen businesses in the long run.

It's an old policy debate that resurfaced when Congress passed the increase two years ago and has taken on urgency as the nation's fiscal funk has deepened.

In the end, it's the workers and their employers who find themselves caught in the middle.

At Bench Warmers Bar and Grill in the southeast Kansas farming town of Chanute, owner Cathy Matney has decided to let some of her dishwashers go rather than pay all 22 of her employees more.

"It's bad timing," said Matney, whose waitresses and cooks will have to pitch in with scrubbing pots and pans. "With the economy like this, there's a lot of people who are out of work and this is only going to add to it."

Ryan Arfmann, who owns a Jamba Juice shop in Idaho Falls, Idaho, will be cutting hours to his staff, which is made up largely of college students, high schoolers and homemakers who want to make a few bucks.

"Am I going to fire anybody, no," Arfmann said. "But kids understand there's going to be hours cut."

Arfmann said he wishes the increase was spread out over a few more years, to make it easier for him to absorb the costs. He also is concerned that he'll end up having to give everybody raises just to maintain pay differentials between employees.

"People who are already getting paid above $7.25 are going to feel like they need raises as well," he said. "It's

Debt reduction pushes Ford to $2.3B 2Q profit

By Kimberly S. Johnson and Tom Krisher

DEARBORN, Mich. — Helped by a lightened debt load, Ford Motor Co. posted a surprise second-quarter profit of $2.3 billion Thursday, following the worst loss in company history a year earlier. Shares rose 9 percent in afternoon trading.

The net profit ends a string of four straight quarterly losses for the nation's second-largest automaker, which has gained U.S. market share at the expense of crosstown rivals Chrysler Group LLC and General Motors Co., both of which spent time under bankruptcy court supervision. Ford last went into the black in the first quarter of 2008, with net profit of $70 million.

However, excluding its debt reduction and other items, Dearborn,

Idaho recovers $660K in drug settlement

BOISE (AP) — Idaho will be paid $660,000 by three prescription drug manufacturers in a legal settlement resolving complaints about their reporting of average wholesale price.

By law, Idaho Medicaid must reimburse pharmacies and hospitals at the "estimated acquisition cost" of prescription drugs provided to low-income Idahoans. Idaho Medicaid primarily uses "average wholesale prices," as reported by drug manufacturers, as a basis for determining this amount.

Attorney General Lawrence Wasden announced the settlement with Boehringer Ingelheim Pharmaceuticals, Inc., Boehringer Ingelheim Roxane, Inc., and Ben Venue Laboratories, Inc. It was approved by the Fourth District Court in Ada County; and the companies admitted no liability or wrongdoing.

Summer camp horse day moved

By Nichole Carnell
Times-News writer

The Salvation Army Summer Day Camp horsed around Monday, even though the trip was not at its normal site.

Floyd Miller, of Twin Falls, said he has been donating his time and horses for the past 10 years to the Twin Falls day camp, but this is the first time he has not been able to use Centennial Park for the annual ride.

Miller, who said he had a past agreement with Twin Falls County Parks and Waterways, would usually give notice a week before he took the horses down to the park, but this year he was told that it was now a safety issue and against policy.

"It was nice in the park," Miller said, "but this isn't too bad."

Rick Novack, director of Twin Falls County Parks and Waterways since January, said he "considered it a safety issue," and was following a "clean, green and safe policy adopted by the county commissioners a couple years ago."

Miller said he wasn't upset with the county but didn't want the tradition to die; so he decided to host the day at his own house located off of Grandview Drive North.

"It's fun for the kids," he said.

Each of the approximately 25 children received a ride from one of the horses as volunteers led them down a short dirt road near Miller's house. After their ride was over Miller took a picture of each camper with a cowboy hat on so they could remember their ride.

Summer Ramirez, 8, of Twin Falls, said, "It was fabulous," as she jumped off one of the four horses led by volunteer Trae Becker. Ramirez rode one-handed as she swung an imaginary lasso above her head.

Marshall, Plant earn Eagle Scout awards

Kenneth Marshall will be awarded his Eagle Scout Award at 6 p.m. Sunday at the home of his Scout Master, Jerald Karel, 3896 N. 1500 E., Buhl.

Marshall is the 14-year-old son of Wayne and Risa Marshall. He will be a freshman at Buhl High School this fall and participates in cross country, track and field, band, and is on the Wendell Gators swim team. He also plays with the Magic Valley Symphony.

For his Eagle Project, Marshall built a bench for Buhl Middle School. It took 75 hours to complete with the help of eight scouts and two troop leaders. The wood for the bench was donated by the late Morris Howell.

Marshall is a member of

Troop 2, sponsored by the LDS Buhl Second Ward. He has earned 26 merit badges and qualifies for a Bronze Palm. He is also a member of the Order of the Arrow.

Samuel Mark Plant will receive his Eagle Scout Award at a Court of Honor held Sunday at the LDS Harrison Stake Center in Twin Falls. He is the son of Mark and Lisa Plant of Twin Falls.

For his Eagle project,

Plant conducted a fundraiser and blanket donation drive for Valley House in Twin Falls. Thanks to the generosity of area businesses and friends, he was able to collect and donate more than $2,600.

Plant recently graduated from Twin Falls High School, where he was an honor roll student. During his senior year, he participated on the tennis team, was co-president of the Chamber Singers choir and served on the LDS Seminary Council. He is a gifted pianist, and has served in various youth leadership positions for his church.

Plant will attend Utah State University for one year before he serves a mission for the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

Gout relief comes quickly thanks to a handful of cherries

DEAR DR. GOTT: I became aware yesterday I have gout. My left leg just above the ankle and big toe are inflamed and a bit painful. I'm grateful the pain isn't as bad as it is for some other people.

Well, I started eating cherries. I slept well last night and woke up this morning without the pain I had yesterday. This morning I ate another five cherries. The redness in the affected area is gone, and I'm back to walking normally.

Thank you for caring for your fellow human beings, and thank you for this column.

DEAR READER: Gout affects the joints and is caused by too much uric acid in the body. It commonly occurs with the ingestion of excess alcohol, organ meats, anchovies and gravies. Men over 40 are most commonly affected.

Treatment ordinarily consists of dietary changes and/or medication. Some drugs are to be taken during an acute phase of an attack, while others are prescribed as a preventive. In your case, you chose to follow a remedy that has been used successfully for quite some time now — cherries. I must admit I was a little surprised that you experienced such rapid, positive results. Either you had a very mild case or are simply one of the lucky ones for whom the home remedy works.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Could you provide any information on hair loss? I'm 88 years old, and it comes out in clusters. I had gallbladder surgery with complications in 1979. My medical doctor has referred me to a dermatologist.

I would appreciate any information you can offer.

DEAR READER: Anyone can experience alopecia, the technical term for hair loss. This can result from certain medications, heredity or an underlying medical condition. The loss commonly occurs in patches about the size of a quarter and can appear on the head, eyebrows, beard or anywhere else hair grows.

Hair cycles between stages of growth and rest. The growth phase of scalp hair commonly lasts two to three years at a rate of about half an inch per month. The resting stage commonly lasts up to four months. Most people shed between 50 and 100 hairs each day. While this may seem excessive, there are about 100,000 hairs in the scalp, so the amount is minimal.

Temporary hair loss can result from wearing pigtailed or ponytail, using tight curling rollers, poor nutrition such as fad diets and eating disorders, or scalp infection, such as ringworm. Hormonal changes, such as thyroid disorders or beginning menopause, hair treatments to include bleaching or dying, diabetes, lupus, specific medications taken for hypertension, cardiac problems, arthritis or gout, or a course of chemotherapy or radiation therapy can all cause hair loss.

While some forms of alopecia do not require any treatment at all, for others, there are specific medications your physician can prescribe. Therefore, I recommend you make an appointment with your doctor to discuss your specific case. Once the cause of your hair loss has been discovered, he or she can determine if prescription or over-the-counter medication might help your condition.

Support the businesses on Blue Lakes

The stock market, the real estate market and the overall economy have combined to take a bite out of local business over the past year. And yet the businesses located along Blue Lakes Boulevard here in Twin Falls persevered – only to encounter a far more immediate and – unfortunately – a far more local impediment to sales: the Idaho Department of Transportation.

I do not know who agreed to a 40-hour a week; one shift; no nights and weekend construction plan that would paralyze local businesses for nearly five months, but they did. And in so doing have devastated many businesses that had already been hit hard by the economy.

At Jakers we'd like you to join us in fighting back – in supporting both us and many other businesses that have been an important part of the Twin Falls business community for years. There are several different ways to get to almost every Blue Lakes' business affected by the construction; some convenient; some not so much.

We ask you – I ask you – to go a little bit out of your way to support the businesses on Blue Lakes!

Delbert L. Durfee

TUCSON, Ariz. — Delbert L. Durfee of Tucson, Ariz., and formerly of Wendell, passed away Tuesday, July 21, 2009. He had struggled for many years with COPD.

Delbert was born to Dorothy Rue Wolverton and Howard Durfee on Jan. 30, 1937, in Gooding. He grew up and attended schools in Wendell. He joined the Navy when he was 17, and retired in 1975. He traveled all over the world during those years. He married Opal Hall on Jan. 31, 1959. She brought with her a daughter, Debbie, and together they had one son, Kevin. They were later divorced. After he retired from the Navy, he went into long-haul truck driving. He really enjoyed traveling all over the United States and was a good driver. His health forced him to retire about 1995.

He was a member of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints and a very caring, compassionate person, willing to help his family when needed and checking in on his mother almost daily.

He is survived by his mother, Dorothy Rue Spencer of Wendell; stepdaughter, Debbie Hall of Spokane, Wash.; grandchildren, Chantall

Durfee, Joni Marten, Marcia Clancy and KayLeen Nichols; and one great-grandson, Austin Martin. He is also survived by sisters, Delores Yates of Wendell, Brenda Spencer of Indiana and Shaunee Durfee of Evanston, Wyo.; and brothers, Glen (Jeanne) Spencer of Twin Falls, David (Erika) Spencer of Columbus, Ga., Randy (Susan Jumper) Durfee of Tuscon, Ariz., and Mike (Nadine) Durfee of Salt Lake City, Utah. He is preceded in death by his father, Howard Durfee; stepfather, Dale Spencer; stepmother, Margaret Durfee; and son, Kevin Durfee.

A graveside service will be at noon Tuesday, July 28, at the Wendell Cemetery. Arrangements are being handled by Demaray Funeral Service, Wendell Chapel.

LaDean Durfee Dayley

HEYBURN — LaDean Durfee Dayley, a longtime resident of Heyburn, passed away Wednesday, July 22, 2009, at her home.

LaDean was born in Heyburn on June 11, 1937, to Kenneth Ivan and Josephine Christensen Durfee. LaDean attended school in Heyburn and graduated from Heyburn High School in 1955. She attended business college in Twin Falls from 1955 to 1956. LaDean married Carroll Fred Dayley of Burley on May 24, 1957, in the Logan Temple of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

Fred and LaDean made their first home in Alamogordo, N.M., where she worked for Lockheed Aircraft Corp. They then moved to Logan, Utah, where Fred attended Utah State University. Their first two children, Carroll Dwayne and Kathy Lynne were born there in 1958 and 1960. After graduation, the family returned to Heyburn, where Fred had accepted a job teaching science in Paul, and two additional children were born, Susan Kristine in 1963 and Kenneth Dean in 1967. The Dayley family, along with LaDean's father, Kenneth Durfee, built a home in Heyburn where they could raise their family. The Dayleys have lived in this home for nearly 50 years.

LaDean held various jobs through the years, working in different places around the Heyburn area and then working for the city of Heyburn for 20 years. Fred and LaDean served as missionaries in the Arkansas Little Rock Mission for The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints from 1997 to 1998 and in the Boise Idaho Temple.

LaDean loved to crochet, garden and do home improvement projects with her husband. Her home and family were the center of her life. In recent years, they frequently traveled between Heyburn and Salt Lake, where their daughters and extended family live and also between Heyburn and the Boise area where their son and more extended family live. Their home was a favorite destination and stopping place for family and friends, with neighbors teasing that they must be running a bed and breakfast.

LaDean is survived by her husband, Carroll Fred Dayley of Heyburn; three children, C. Dwayne and Kelly Dayley of Fruitland, Kathy and Gary Byington of West Jordan, Utah, and Susan and Larry Gee of Magna, Utah; grandchildren, Stephen and Pamela Gee of Magna, Utah, Joshua and Alli Gee of Sandy, Utah, Greg and Alyssa Dayley of Provo, Utah, Brodie and Ashlee Byington of South Salt Lake, Utah, Nathan Gee, Aaron Gee, Caleb Gee and Jarom Gee, all of Magna, Utah, and Kathryn Dayley, Kamille Dayley, Scott Dayley, Kristine Dayley and Spencer Dayley, all of Fruitland; great-grandchild, Thad Dayley of Provo, Utah; brother, Dwayne and Juanita Durfee; sisters, Janeal and Jerry Langton of Taylorsville, Utah, Arlene and Jan Schut of Sandy, Utah, Darlene and Dick Gardner of Orem, Utah, and Venita and the late Arn Gattrell of Sandy, Utah. She is preceded in death by her parents; and a son, Kenneth Dean Dayley.

The funeral will be held at 11 a.m. Monday, July 27, at the Paul LDS 3rd Ward Chapel, 300 S. 500 W. in Heyburn, with Bishop Todd Wheeler officiating. Visitation will be held from 6 to 8 p.m. Sunday, July 26, at Hansen-Payne Mortuary, 321 E. Main St. in Burley.

Condolences may be left for the family at www.hansen-paynemortuary.com.

Dorothy Mae Venette Coulson Matsen

Dorothy Mae Venette Coulson Matsen, our wonderful mother, has gone to be with her Lord after a long battle with cancer.

She was born Oct. 27, 1928, in Hazelton. As fate would have it, she was brought into this world by her future mother, Alice Venette. Her birth mother passed away in January, so momma was given to her wonderful new parents, Alice and Emory Venette. She was raised on a farm just a mile down the road from where she was born. She learned how to work hard and she loved it. She was truly blessed to have been given to such a loving and caring mother and father. She attended grade school at the Dixon County School and Hazelton High School. Her father would take the kids to school with his team of horses in the winter time. He would make them run behind the sled to warm them up when they got cold. She was raised with three loving cousins that lived close by. She considered them her brother and sisters, Alene Leagault Perkins, Berta Leagault Turner and Dean Leagault. She had a wonderful childhood riding horses, ice skating on the frozen ponds, climbing trees and beating up boys. She was a star basketball player; she also played softball as pitcher and she was a great bowler. She was a graduate of Hazelton High School in 1946. After graduation, she worked at Fidelity National Bank in Twin Falls. She looked forward to seeing her mom and dad on Saturdays to buy her a big hamburger. She quit the bank to pick potatoes (her father almost disowned her). She married Lee Jr. Coulson in 1946 at her parent's home. They settled in the Hazelton area, where they began farming side by side. They got a GI bill to purchase the 80-acre farm on Murtaugh Road. Their neighbor, Herman Huettig, was so kind to take the other 40 acres to the east so they could have their farm altogether. Mom promised to sell it back to the Huettig family if she ever sold it, which she did. Mom loved to work; she cut potatoes, sorted potatoes, hoed beans and beets, moved pipe and worked at Boise Cascade until she retired. She always had jobs lined up for us kids hoeing beans and beets, moving pipe and picking berries, but she was always there working right beside us.

From her marriage to Lee Jr. Coulson, five children were born, Judith Marie, John Lee, Debra June, Tracy Lynn and Jerry Evan. They were later divorced, and she married Ray Matsen. Out of this union, she had a baby girl, Lori Alice. She loved animals, dogs and cats; there was no stray left behind. There was always room for one more. She loved her garden, her flowers, her children, grandchildren, great-grandchildren and great-great-grandchildren.

She is survived by her children, Judith Coulson of Hazelton, John Coulson of Hazelton, Debbie (Albert) Lockwood of Eden, Tracy (Melvin) Meyer of Hazelton, Jerry (Jeannie) Coulson of Boise and Lori (Fidel) Alcala of Hazelton; her sisters, Linda Dietrich of Filer and Thelma Henderson of Gooding; brother, Norman Miller of Oregon; her grandchildren, Mickey, Spring, Brooke, Holly (Shane), Stephanie, Ronny (Kendra), Melanie, Holly (Kim), Krystal, Lacy (Josh), Nick (Jaima), Travis (Shannon), Mallory, Allison, Hailey, Jamie (Tracy) and Joe; her great-grandchildren, Josh, Eric, Ranie, Michael, Charmae (Mason), Austin, Raven, Tristin, Affin, Kaylee, Lyndsey, Ashley, Mason, Katelyn, Samantha, Nathan, Logan, Ellie, Olivia, Kyler, Kolt, Lexie, Callie and Caleb; and her great-great-grandchildren, Faith, Mattie and Lyndon. She was preceded in death by her parents; a grandchild, Lisa Rae; and a great-grandson, Dustin.

We will miss you so much, Momma, with all of our hearts.

The funeral will be held at 11 a.m. Saturday, July 25, at White Mortuary "Chapel by the Park." Burial will follow at Sunset Memorial Park in Twin Falls. Those wishing to offer a condolence to Dorothy's family or sign the guestbook, please go the www.Mem.com.

Broadcast royalty gather for Walter Cronkite's farewell

By Howard Kurtz
The Washington Post

NEW YORK — He reached tens of millions in his heyday, but here within the magnificent stone-and-brick church on Park Avenue, it was 1,000 invited guests — some famous, some family, all touched by their anchor — who bade farewell to Walter Cronkite.

As Andy Rooney used a cane to make his way down the aisle of St. Bartholomew's Church, beneath the massive circle of a stained-glass window, it seemed clear that Cronkite's generation, now fading from the scene, would miss him most of all.

Rooney's voice broke as he began to speak Thursday, and the television curmudgeon was quickly overcome by emotion. He recalled meeting Cronkite, the United Press man, in London during World War II, when they would leave town during bombing raids and then return to file their stories.

"You get to know someone pretty well in a war," Rooney said. "I just feel so terrible about Walter's death that I can hardly say anything. He was such a good friend. Please excuse me — I can't." Rooney left the lectern, hobbling through a side door to his right.

The afternoon began under slate-gray skies as a dozen cameras recorded the arrival of CBS royalty — Les Moonves, Katie Couric, Bob Schieffer, Don Hewitt, Morley Safer, Steve Kroft, Harry Smith.

They gathered in the front pew, while Dan Rather — who is suing the network over his departure from Cronkite's old chair — sat somberly eight rows back. Colleagues and contemporaries from the other networks — Charlie Gibson, Barbara Walters, Brian Williams, Tom Brokaw — came to pay their respects to Cronkite, who died Friday at 92.

Sandy Socolow, Cronkite's onetime producer, gave the crowd a lighter look at the journalistic war horse, dispelling any notions of legendary perfection. In fact, he said, Cronkite once inexplicably blanked on saying his own name — he got as far as "this is" — and had to be rescued by the control room, which cut away.

When security guards at the 1968 Democratic convention manhandled Rather on the floor, Socolow said, Cronkite "shouted about thuggery" on the air and later "felt embarrassed and ashamed that he had lost his cool." When Chicago Mayor Richard Daley — father of the current mayor — arrived for an interview the next day, Cronkite "felt he wasn't forceful enough" with the man whose police force precipitated bloody clashes with protestors. "It was one of the low points of his life," Socolow said.

Not only could America's anchorman not pronounce February — they would practice at the end of every January, Socolow revealed — but he "had this bizarre idea once that he would ad-lib a newscast without a script." Cronkite decreed that "when it came time to roll a piece of film, he would brush his nose."

Since it took projectors seven seconds to get up to speed, the timing never worked, and the experiment lasted two days. "It drove everybody crazy. It was utter chaos," Socolow said.

Cronkite's son Chip offered a brief remembrance of his father discussing one night's newscast over dinner, or whimsically asking his mother Betsy in the hallway, "Shall we dance?"

Evan Leonard Guthrie

SHOSHONE — Evan Leonard Guthrie, age 79, of Shoshone, died at the River Ridge Care Center in Twin Falls on Tuesday, July 21, 2009, following a short illness.

He was born July 7, 1930, in Shelley. His parents were Dean and Edna Betty Guthrie. He was the youngest in a family of seven children. In 1943, he and his family moved to north Shoshone, where he was raised on the family farm. He attended schools in Shoshone and graduated from Shoshone High School. He was junior class president and active in student government. He was a Golden Gloves boxing champion and enjoyed his high school years.

He married Peggy Connell, and Kevin, Debby and Mike completed their family. He was married for a short time to Kathleen Blackwood and Linda Strunk, helping to raise her two sons, Allen and Warren Strunk. He married Bobbie Eberhard and, again, assisted in rearing her three children, Rusty and Randy Eberhard and Janice (Doug Astle). They were later divorced. He was a resident of Shoshone most of his life. The past two years, he was a resident of DeSano Place until his recent illness.

Evan was a true cowboy. He loved calf roping and team roping. He loved ranching and farming. Evan was a custom hay hauler and worked with many local area dairy and ranch customers. He also was a ditch rider and worked for the Lincoln County weed control. He had many friends and was always willing to help out a local neighbor with branding or working cattle. He was a member of the Idaho Cattlemen's Association.

Survivors include two sons, Kevin (Anne) of Twin Falls and Mike (Jenita) of Fort Worth, Texas; and one daughter, Debby (Jim) Brunel of Caldwell; his grandchildren include Amy (Ryan Hulse) of Buffalo, N.Y., Megan (Cameron Eddie) of Pocatello, Kara (Chris West) of Coeur d'Alene, Andy Guthrie of Lees Summit, Mo., Hailey (Kevin Seward) of Nampa, Kaycee Brunel of Caldwell and Crista Guthrie of Fort Worth, Texas; his great-grandchildren include Alyx, Callista and Teagyn West, Afton and Ella Hulse, Taylor, Ashton and Peri Eddie, and Kensie Seward; and his sisters, Esther Babcock of Shoshone and Elaine (Dean) Cools of Canoga Park, Calif. He was preceded in death by his parents; his sisters, Elva McNeley and Elsie Chavez; his brothers, Eugene Guthrie and Eldon Guthrie; and one stepson, Warren Strunk.

The family would like to thank those at River Ridge Care Center for their kindness and treatment of Evan as well as those at DeSano Place.

The funeral will be held at 11 a.m. Saturday, July 25, at the LDS Church, 507 N. Greenwood St. in Shoshone, with burial immediately following in the Shoshone Cemetery. Viewing will be from 10 until 11 a.m. at the LDS Church.

Arrangements are under the direction of Demaray Funeral Service, Gooding Chapel.

New Jersey officials, rabbis among 44 nabbed in bust

By Geraldine Baum Los Angeles Times

NEW YORK — People who live in New Jersey can be forgiven if they initially yawned Thursday morning at the news of yet another federal sting that swept up a wide range of public officials, including the young mayor of Hoboken who's been on the job all of three weeks.

Assemblyman Daniel Van Pelt covers himself as he leaves federal court Thursday in Newark, N.J. Van Pelt is accused of accepting a $10,000 bribe.

$160,000, according to a federal complaint.

'I am what you call a matchmaker,' Rosenbaum told undercover agents, noting he'd been marketing kidneys illegally for 10 years, the complaint said.

Altogether 44 people were arrested Thursday. Among them were 29 New Jersey public officials, including three mayors, two state assemblymen, several city council members, local commissioners, regulatory inspectors and at least one unsuccessful candidate for mayor of Jersey City.

'The list of people we arrested sounds like it should be the roster from a meeting of community leaders,' said Weysan Dun, head of the Federal Bureau of Investigation's office in Newark, N.J.

Federal officials would not identify the government witness at the center of the latest sting. But according to the Newark Star-Ledger, he is a northern New Jersey real-estate developer and son of a prominent rabbi in the Syrian community in Deal, N.J., who turned government witness after he was accused of defrauding a bank of $50 million.

Over three years, this witness met with a series of so-called middlemen who introduced him to government officials who took a total of $650,000 in bribes and to the rabbi and their associates who washed millions of dollars for him through charities and connections that reached from Deal to Brooklyn, from Israel to Switzerland, acting U.S. attorney Ralph J. Marra Jr. told reporters.

AROUND THE NATION

WASHINGTON Deadline for health reform in jeopardy

WASHINGTON — Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid acknowledged Thursday that his chamber is unable to pass health-care reform before its August recess, a move that highlighted internal Democratic divisions on the legislation and is likely to result in significant changes to the shape of the final bill.

The Aug. 7 deadline that President Obama set for House and Senate leaders to move their versions of reform served as a vital tool for congressional leaders in minimizing dissent as the $1 trillion package moved through five committees.

The comments by Reid, D-Nev., confirmed the growing consensus on Capitol Hill that the White House's fast-track approach has failed, and that a more plodding and contentious process has taken hold.

Democrats that had brought House action to a near halt.

MASSACHUSETTS Obama remark on arrest angers cops

BOSTON — Many police officers across the country have a message for President Barack Obama: Get all the facts before criticizing one of our own.

Obama's public criticism that Cambridge officers

'acted stupidly' when they arrested black Harvard professor Henry Louis Gates Jr. could make it harder for police to work with people of color, some officers said Thursday. It could even set back the progress in race relations that helped Obama become the nation's first African-American president, they said.

'What we don't need is public safety officials across the country second-guessing themselves,' said David Holway, president of the International Brotherhood of Police Officers, which represents 15,000 public safety officials around the country. 'The president's alienated public safety officers across the country with his comments.'

Little lady with a big voice

By Melissa Davlin
Times-News writer

At the Battle of the Bands at Twin Falls High School in March, Brittany McKendry and her acoustic guitar turned heads.

The musician, who performs as Brittany M., was the only woman and the only solo act at the show filled with electric guitars and crashing drums. Her clear, mature voice filled the auditorium and brought cheers from the crowd.

McKendry didn't win the competition, but she received an open invitation from Tim Votroubek of Twin Falls' Welch Music to come play at the store anytime she likes.

The 20-year-old Las Vegas transplant stands out in the south-central Idaho music scene dominated by rockers and metal heads.

A Twin Falls resident of 1 1/2 years, McKendry writes all of her own music and performs by herself.

McKendry started playing guitar in middle school when a classmate suggested they start a band. The project never went anywhere, but McKendry continued creating music. At 17, she began performing at shows around Las Vegas, and she started doing Twin Falls shows when she moved here with her family at 18.

Although her local audience is small, McKendry's songs have found an audience with music fans across the western U.S. She has one song on iTunes and four on MySpace.com. One of her tracks, "What Distance Does," appears on Quickstar Productions' "Chill Out: Acoustic Compilation 4."

McKendry writes most of her songs from life experiences. Although she tries to be vague, many of her friends know exactly who or what she is talking about, she said in an interview Monday.

And though she draws from her own life, she regularly receives fan mail from listeners who tell her how they relate to her songs.

"That makes me so happy," she said.

McKendry has struggled with Twin Falls' venue shortage. She has played small shows at Welch Music and Java, but said she hopes to move to a more urban area with more opportunities for musicians.

In the meantime, she plans to get into the studio and record some of her new songs. She has entertained the thought of starting a side project with a band or a piano accompaniment.

"I think it's gonna happen real soon," she said.

Until then, she is going it alone.

50 years of art in Twin Falls park

By Melissa Davlin
Times-News writer

Twin Falls City Park is going to be a lot more colorful this weekend.

The 50th annual Art in the Park, organized by Art Guild of Magic Valley, is shaking up Twin Falls on Saturday and Sunday. Artists selling their wares include water colorist Diane Van Dalc, potter Bill West, jewelry maker Mickey Tanner, photographer Janie Mack and many others — though an event spokeswoman this week couldn't say just how many.

Last year, Art in the Park featured more than 45 vendors.

Although regulars will recognize many of the same artists from previous events, some of those artists have changed their styles over the years. Tanner, whose sells under the name Crude Co., said her gemstone jewelry has become more refined and clean since she started participating in Art in the Park 15 years ago. In addition to her jewelry, she makes paper boxes and crafts from salvaged leather.

"I recycle, use found objects," Tanner said. "I'm kind of a recycling person."

Art Guild member Carolyn Palmer said fiber artists will demonstrate spinning and weaving, and local belly dancers will perform on Saturday.

Other events include a raffle with donated art from the vendors and a silent auction.

Free chamber series kicks off symphony season

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

SUN VALLEY — Chamber music is written for small, intimate settings. But this year the Edgar M. Bronfman Chamber Series will take to the 1,500-seat Sun Valley Pavilion.

The chamber series — and a musical version of “Ferdinand the Bull” — will serve as the prelude to the 25th anniversary season of the Sun Valley Summer Symphony, which starts Aug. 3.

And, like the symphony concerts, they’re free. The three hour-long concerts begin at 6:30 p.m.; seating opens at 5:30 p.m.

“We had the chamber concerts at the Church of the Big Wood last year because the Pavilion wasn’t finished when they started,” said Jennifer Teisinger, executive director of the symphony. “But now the Pavilion is done so I think it will make a nice setting for the chamber series.”

Guest pianist Jon Nakamatsu will kick off the series, which was founded by Ketchum philanthropist Edgar M. Bronfman 15 years ago. Nakamatsu, the 1997 gold medalist of the 10th Van Cliburn International Piano Competition, performs throughout the U.S., Europe and Japan.

On Monday, Nakamatsu will perform Brahms’ “Piano Quintet in F Minor.” The chamber musicians — violinists Jeremy Constant and Paul Brancato, viola player Adam Smyla and cellist and director Steven Honigberg — will also perform “The Star Spangled Banner” and Handel and Halvorsen’s “Passacaglia” from “Suite No. 7 in G Minor” that night.

On Wednesday, Nakamatsu will play Rachmaninoff’s “Trio elegiaque No. 1 in G Minor.” The chamber musicians will play Shostakovich’s “String Quartet No. 3 in F Major, Opus 73.”

On July 31, guest pianist Ori Shaham, considered one of today’s most gifted pianists on four continents according to music critics, will conclude the chamber series. Her older brother Gil Shaham has performed twice with the Sun Valley Summer Symphony, noted Teisinger, and the two have collaborated on several recordings which the Cleveland Plain Dealer praised as “glorious sibling revelry.”

She will perform Paul Moravec’s “Mood Swings.” And the chamber will perform Schubert’s “String Quartet No. 14 in D Major, D. 810, Death and the Maiden.”

“Chamber music originated in the early days in Mozart’s time when it was played in people’s salons, or living rooms,” said Sue Mendelsohn, a violin teacher who plays with a local chamber ensemble at weddings and small parties. “It gives each performer the experience of playing a sort of solo part, and together in harmony they make beautiful music. And there’s music written specifically for small groups like that.”

The chamber concerts will be preceded on Saturday with a free presentation of the classic children’s story “Ferdinand the Bull” at 1 p.m. at Iconoclast Books, Sun Valley Road and Spruce Avenue.

Michelle Nelson, who works in the Sun Valley Summer Symphony office, will narrate the story while violinist Jennifer Sullivan provides the musical interpretation.

“Ferdinand is kind of a pacifist,” said Nelson. “While other bulls like to fight, he has no interest in being in the bull ring. He’s a sweetie pie — just content to sit and smell the flowers. But, by accident he ends up in a bull fight and things get interesting from there.”

Clockwise from above: Ori Shaham, Steven Honigberg and Jon Nakamatsu will perform at this year’s Bronfman Chamber Series.

July brings music to Sawtooth mountains

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

The Sawtooth Mountains will echo with the aboriginal sounds of a didgeridoo, plus a musical saw and a host of cellos, on Saturday.

That’s when the fourth annual Sawtooth Musical Festival takes the field, presenting nine diverse musical acts from noon to dark.

“It really brings a lot of energy to town,” said Sandra Willingham, who co-owns Danner Cabins.

The event is held at Stanley’s Pioneer Park, and ticket sales benefit the Stanley School.

This year’s lineup includes Elephant Revival, a transcendental folk group from Colorado. The musicians include a washboard, djembe, musical saw, mandolin and banjo among their tools.

Trevor Green will show up with his didgeridoo and other aboriginal instruments.

And the Portland Cello Project will feature several cello players sawing out an eclectic mix of music including classical and cello hip-hop.

Other performers include Hillfolk Noir, a Boise group that plays music from the late 1990s to the present; the bluegrass group Free Peoples; Matti Sand; Thao with the Get Down Stay Down;

Low-Fi; and Jenny Owen Youngs.

Several nonprofit organizations will have representatives on hand to educate concertgoers about the natural beauty that surrounds them. They include Idaho Rivers United, The Discovery Center of Idaho, Snake River Alliance, Idaho Conservation League and the Forest Service’s Sawtooth National Recreation Area.

Coolers are welcome, but no alcoholic beverages or glass containers will be allowed into the park. Beer and wine will be available for purchase with proceeds benefiting the Stanley Library Fund.

Camping will be available that night only for $10 per car at Pioneer Park.

Tickets for the festival are $25 if bought in advance at Chapter One Bookstore in Ketchum, at Peaks and Perks in Stanley or online at www.sawtoothmusicfestival.com. Tickets at the gate are $30.

Kids under 12 will get in for free and people 60 and older for $20.

Big-name trombonist’s appearance cancelled

Times-News

Trombonist Bill Watrous, a Grammy award nominee, won’t perform in Twin Falls this month after all.

Organizers of the Great Basin Jazz Camp, to be held next week in Twin Falls, had planned a Watrous appearance at the camp students’ finale concert. But recession crimped the camp’s search for donors, and ticket sales alone weren’t expected to cover the cost of the trombonist’s air fare and fee, said Mike Allen, the camp’s executive director.

Students and the jazz camp’s faculty will still perform at a downtown Twin Falls restaurant on July 30 and at a free concert July 31; see the Events Calendar in this section for details.

A benefit with Broadway

It’s not too late to get in on “Some Enchanted Evening,” the Sun Valley Summer Symphony’s annual benefit concert. It starts with a cocktail and hors d’oeuvres party at 4 p.m. followed by the 6 p.m. concert Aug. 2 at the Sun Valley Pavilion.

It will feature Tony Award-winning performers Victoria Clark and Paulo Szot singing selections from the Broadway musical “South Pacific,” in addition to hits from “Oklahoma!” “Carousel,” “The King and I” and “Sound of Music.”

Brazilian baritone Szot won the Tony for Best Actor in a Musical for his portrayal of Emile de Becque in the Broadway revival of “South Pacific.”

Clark received Tony, Drama Desk, Outer Critics Circle and other awards for her portrayal of the domineering mother in the critically acclaimed musical “The Light in the Piazza” in 2005. The New York Times’ Bent Brantley, in fact, called her work “the best musical performance by an actress this season.” She made her Broadway debut in 1985 in “Sunday in the Park with George” and has been a Broadway regular since.

Ted Sperling, this year’s benefit guest conductor, conducted the current Tony-winning revival of “South Pacific.” He also won Tony and other awards for his orchestrations of “The Light in the Piazza.”

Tickets for “Enchanted Evening,” which will boast plenty of flowers, grass skirts and cocktails with umbrellas, range from $50 to $250.

KAREN BOSSICK/For the Times-News

Trey 'Chuy' Hartman, center, and Tony Pfau, right, of the Damphools, who will play at the Northern Rockies Folk Festival, do a little front porch singing at the Idaho Rocky Mountain Ranch north of Ketchum in late June.

'Set the place on fire'

From polka to rockabilly at next weekend's folk festival

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

Are you ready for polka? You'll be able to do the short half-steps around Hailey's Hop Porter Park next weekend as the Denton, Texas, polka band Brave Combo performs at the 32nd annual Northern Rockies Folk Festival.

"They may be the sleeper act of the festival," said Pete Kramer, president of the festival board. "They've been around 25 years, they've won two Grammy awards. And if you can picture rock 'n' roll, mariachi and polka music with horns, you've got a good picture of what these guys play like.

"They play 'Louie Louie' like you've never heard it done before. They're just huge fun. They'll blow everyone away," Kramer said.

The Northern Rockies Folk Festival takes place July 31 and Aug. 1 in the shady park at the western end of Hailey's Bullion Street.

The music starts at 5 p.m. July 31 and at 11:30 a.m. Aug. 1. Wristbands good for both days are $25 when purchased in advance at www.nrff.net or at Notes Music in Hailey or Chapter One Bookstore in Ketchum. Single-day tickets are $12 for July 31 and $18 for Aug. 1.

Headlining the festival this year are The Gourds, an Austin, Texas, group that proved a big hit at last year's festival, according to festival director Lucas Hess. "The Gourds loved this place," he said of the group, which performs hillbilly Texas music and honky-tonk ballads.

Also headlining the festival is The Blasters, a Los Angeles group who recorded the soundtrack for the baseball movie "Bull Durham."

"They're half Los Lobos and half urban rockabilly. Trust me, they will set the place on fire," Kramer said.

The two organizers are also jazzed about Olin and the Moon, which features four youngsters from the Wood River Valley who moved to Los Angeles. Their debut album, "Terrible Town," features the story of a young band moving from a small town to a big city. Making the group's first appearance before Wood River Valley friends and family since the move are David and Travis LaBrel, Marshall Vore and Erica Wheeler.

"Their music is out of this world," Kramer said. "They're a new generation of alternative country. But their sound is so clean and thoughtful it reminds me of the '60s, not of a bunch of head-banging noise. When I listen to them, I hear The Flying Burrito Brothers, Neil Young — that sort of thing."

There will be a variety of

FOLK FESTIVAL

July 31

5 p.m. — Up a Creek, Bellevue's folk rock/country group
6:30 p.m. — Brave Combo, a New Wave polka group from Denton, Texas
8:30 p.m. — The Blasters, a rockabilly band from Los Angeles

Aug. 1

11:30 a.m. — Joe Paisley, a Bellevue singer with a couple of albums
12:30 p.m. — No Cheap Horses, a Wood River Valley group

1:30 p.m. — The Damphools, a country music/bluegrass group from Wood River Valley

3 p.m. — The Kim Stocking Band, a local country and folk group

4:30 p.m. — Ryebender, a country-flavored group featuring Ketchum resident Michael Carpenter with an album climbing the music charts

6:15 p.m. — Olin and the Moon, a Los Angeles-based group composed of Wood River High School alumni

8:30 p.m. — The Gourds, a country group from Austin, Texas food for sale at the park, ranging from hot dogs to Japanese curry and salmon cakes.

The Northern Rockies Folk Festival started as a joint effort between Richard Hart and the Sun Valley Center for the Arts and Humanities and featured "lost arts" workshops focusing on sea chanteys, old-time strings and Celtic music, said Kit Neraas, who was with the festival at the start.

It has evolved into one of the Wood River Valley's largest social events of the year, in the past offering up such big names as the Nitty Gritty Dirt Band, Riders in the Sky, Asleep at the Wheel and Robert Earl Keen.

"There aren't many folk festivals in the West that are older than ours," Kramer said. "When I look around at the others, like Bumbershoot or Telluride, it's still the lowest cost for a two-day festival."

Karen Bossick may be reached at kbossick@cox-internet.com or 208-578-2111.

The Gourds are back with their hillbilly wail, Texas drawl and honky-tonk ballads. The Austin, Texas, country group will headline the 32nd annual Northern Rockies Folk Festival on Aug. 1 at Hailey's Hop Porter Park.

Montana Repertory Theatre performs 'To Kill a Mockingbird,' Sept. 22

Winner of the 1960 Pulitzer Prize for fiction, Harper Lee's "To Kill a Mockingbird" is a poignant and resonant American classic, a tale of justice, acceptance, growing up and forgiveness.

The story is simple yet speaks eloquently of human nature and values. The action is set in the 1930s in a sleepy Southern town, where Atticus Finch, an attorney and the widowed father of two children, stands against his fellow townspeople by defending a young black man falsely accused of raping a white woman. Atticus instills in his children the values of respect for others, honesty, courage, integrity and responsibility for one's actions. Without fanfare, he becomes an American hero.

Montana Repertory has a long history of touring American classics to cities large and small. It assembles principal actors, directors and designers with prestigious credits, including Broadway, off-Broadway, national tours of Broadway shows and major regional theater credits. Bellydance Superstars, Oct. 15

Calling itself the world's premier professional bellydance troupe, Bellydance Superstars features some of America's best-known bellydancers performing in luxurious, colorful costumes.

The ancient art has existed for generations as part of Middle Eastern culture sometimes celebrated, sometimes suppressed, but always a natural partner to the region's rich music. In the late 20th century, the art became a craze that has evolved into the fastest-growing dance form in the world today, promoters say.

Bellydance Superstars has taken this once largely solo dance onto the main stage as a theatrical dance extravaganza, performing a variety of bellydance styles as well as its unique fusions. Bellydance Superstars has danced with Regis and Kelly, played Lollapalooza and the Parisian Folies Bergere, performed more than 500 concerts in 18 countries, and been seen on more than 60 television shows. Information and video clips: www.bellydancesuperstars.com.

Tickets cost $27 for adults or $18 for children.

Montreal Guitar Trio, Nov. 4

Guitarists Glenn Levesque, Marc Morin and Sebastien Dufour of Montreal Guitar Trio match passionate mastery with a stealthy sense of humor.

The trio leads listeners through the mysterious melodies of India to the hot rhythms of South America, Spain, the Balkans, the Orient, traditional Quebec and beyond. Coming from a classical background, Montreal Guitar Trio members also sing and write much of their material.

Since it was founded at University of Montreal in 1998, the trio has given hundreds of concerts in North America and Western and Eastern Europe, many of which have been broadcast by national networks. Described by the Canadian Broadcasting Corp. as "the hottest guitar ensemble in Canada," the Montreal Guitar Trio has established itself as a force of rejuvenation and cross-pollenization between various musical forms. iO Theatre's Improvised Shakespeare Co., Jan. 14

Based on one audience suggestion (a title for a play that has yet to be written), The Improvised Shakespeare Co. creates a fully improvised Elizabethan two-act play using the style, language and themes of the Bard.

Each of the players has brushed up on his "thee" and "thou" to bring you an evening of off-the-cuff comedy. Any show could be filled with power struggles, star-crossed lovers, sprites, kings, queens, princesses, sword-play, rhyming couplets, asides, insults, persons in disguise and all that we've come to expect from Shakespeare's pen. The night could reveal a tragedy, comedy or history. Each play is completely improvised, so entirely new.

For 25 years, iO Theater, which calls itself the birthplace of long-form improvisation, has been giving Chicago ground-breaking improvisational comedy and turning out such alumni as Mike Myers, Tina Fey, Chris Farley, Vince Vaughn, Amy Poehler, Neil Flynn, Adam McKay and Rachel Dratch. Information: improvisedshakespeare.com.

Laura Love with Harpers Ferry, Feb. 12

Singer, songwriter, bassist and author Laura Love has fans throughout North America, Australia and Europe. Billboard Magazine continually includes her CDs on its annual top-10 lists, and the first time she performed on the East Coast was at Carnegie Hall.

She is an African-American funk bassist with an astonishing voice, who is influenced by blues and bluegrass, jazz, folk, gospel, reggae and country. Laura has spent her career hitching rides at the intersection of folk melodies from the British Isles and the rhythms of Africa. With her band, Harpers Ferry, she sharpens her point that African-Americans were often part of the melange that has come to be known as American folk music.

In concert, she plays tunes that roam from her originals to traditional spirituals to Civil Rights anthems to revved-up bluegrass tunes. Expect to hear everything from Laura's soulful "Saskatchewan," an intimate account of what life might have been like for her great-grandmother as she was released from slavery, to a barn-burning rendition of Wilson Pickett's "Mustang Sally." Learn more: www.lauralove.net or www.tg2artists.com.

The Edlos in 'A Cappella Broadway,' April 23

The Edlos, doing contemporary a cappella, consists of four classically trained vocalists who break new ground in their pursuit of a cappella diversity and originality. Expect both musicianship and infectiously funny stage presence "as well as lights, smoke, costumes, tomfoolery, wigs and assorted mayhem."

The Edlos' "A Cappella Broadway" is a revue of the group's original a cappella arrangements. It's an evening of the best-loved hit songs from Broadway productions — such as "The Music Man," "Man of La Mancha," "Fiddler on the Roof," "Les Miserables," "West Side Story," "The Fantastiks," "Hair," "Guys & Dolls" and

"Cabaret" — all delivered with costumery and humor. Information: www.theedlos.com.

Tickets cost $18 for adults or $13 for children.

Steve Lippia and his big band present 'Simply Sinatra,' March 29

Imagine yourself at the Coconut Grove in the heyday of the Rat Pack, when out comes Ol' Blue Eyes. That's the experience when Steve Lippia takes the stage in his show "Simply Sinatra."

Lippia is a vocalist and interpreter of classic pop music. His show is a celebration of some of the greatest music this country has known with a hot, driving 10-piece band behind him. Lippia's sound is reminiscent of the young Frank Sinatra combined with that of Harry Connick Jr. and Bobby Darin. Lippia brings to life the music and lyrics of composers like Cole Porter, Harold Arlen, Sammy Cahn, Jimmy Van Heusen and Rodgers and Hart. His repertoire includes such standards as "I've Got You Under My Skin," "The Lady is a Tramp," "Mack the Knife," "Just the Way You Are" and "That's Life." Learn more: www.stevelippia.com.

Time to geek out in San Diego at Comic-Con

By Geoff Boucher
Los Angeles Times

Zombies parade through downtown San Diego. Glamorous movie stars patiently answer questions posed by amateur Jedi knights and homemade Harry Potters. Spandex is tested by every possible body shape and, while it isn't always pretty, it will be forever documented on YouTube.

That's right: Comic-Con International, the circus maximus of pop culture, the World's Fair for fanboys, is back. More than 125,000 people are expected to attend the event that runs through Sunday and is a bazaar of the bizarre for collectors and, more than ever, the place where the entertainment industry goes to hype its movies, games, toys, television shows and assorted cults of personality.

Remember when comic-book nerds had to defend their tastes? Now they're defending their territory.

There will be plenty of movie stars in attendance this year touting high-profile projects — among them Robert Downey Jr., Mickey Rourke and Scarlett Johansson, all in town to warm up the jets for next year's "Iron Man 2," and Denzel Washington, promoting the post-apocalyptic western "Book of Eli." The loudest cheers — or certainly the most shrill — will be for Robert Pattinson, the British heartthrob who became everybody's daughter's favorite actor by playing the "Twilight" vampire Edward Cullen. He'll be in town to talk about the franchise's second installment, "New Moon."

Perhaps more notable are the directors making the trek to the San Diego Convention Center. James Cameron, who is coming to Comic-Con with his years-in-the-making "Avatar," due in theaters Dec. 18, leads an unprecedented parade of elite filmmakers at this year's convention, which is the 39th staged in San Diego (although it hardly resembles that 1970 edition, held in a hotel basement).

"The Hollywood buzz is that the movie's use of immersive 3-D technology and revolutionary visual effects makes it "a game-changer."

Cameron on Thursday screened 20 minutes of "Avatar," an other-worldly adventure about a disabled soldier who visits a foreign planet called Pandora," and while he doesn't mind that "game-changer" descriptor ("It's good," he said, "as long as it does change the game, right?"), he said he was most enthused that his movie bucked the modern trend of movies finding story and characters in some other medium, such as a comic book, a vintage TV show or best-selling fantasy novel.

"We've had all these big moneymaking franchise films for a long time now, like 'Batman,' 'Harry Potter' and 'Star Trek,' and there's a certain kind of comfort factor that comes with that," Cameron said. "But there's Comic-Con attendee Adam Rolph dressed as a character from the Halo video game walks through the exhibition hall during the preview night for the Comic-Con International 2009 held in San Diego Wednesday. no 'shock of the new' that's possible. It's been awhile since there was something that grabbed us by the lapels, dragged us out the door and took us on a journey to a place we didn't know."

Close on Cameron's heels will be another Oscar winner, Peter Jackson, director of the "Lord of the Rings" trilogy, who, startlingly, has never made it to Comic-Con before, despite his work in Middle Earth and on "King Kong." The New Zealand filmmaker will be in town to promote next month's "District 9," an original tale about aliens who come to Earth and are forced to live in internment camp slums. Jackson was a producer on the film.

Also making their first appearances at the convention will be supreme spooky auteur Tim Burton and "Forrest Gump" director Robert Zemeckis. Burton will show scenes from "Alice in Wonderland," which stars Johnny Depp as the Mad Hatter, while Zemeckis is screening 3-D footage from his motion-capture retelling of "A Christmas Carol," with Jim Carrey in key roles. Spike Jonze ("Where the Wild Things Are"), Guy Ritchie ("Sherlock Holmes"), Jon Favreau ("Iron Man 2") and Kevin Smith ("A Couple of Dicks") also will be on hand for presentations and panels.

Elsewhere at the convention, Sony Pictures will have makeup pros on hand to give fans free "undead makeovers" so they can march in a Thursday-night zombie parade meant to stir interest in the upcoming Woody Harrelson film "Zombieland"; the studio also will have a Twitter-driven scavenger hunt to promote the disaster flick "2012."

Bad inning sinks Jerome in AA Area C opener

Times-News

One bad inning was all it took, as the Idaho Falls Reds scored six times in the top of the second inning and held on for a 9-5 win over Jerome in the opening round of the American Legion Baseball Class AA Area C Tournament at Halliwell Park in Pocatello on Thursday.

A bases-clearing triple and a bases-clearing double provided the runs for the Reds, who advance to play Twin Falls in the semifinals this afternoon.

Starting pitcher Cameron Stauffer pitched a complete game for the Cyclones, giving up just one run after having the bad inning.

"The two runs in the first inning we gave up were no big deal, and we knew we could recover from that, but Stauffer kind of made his own problems in the second inning and we had a tough time recovering from it," said Jerome coach Kenneth James. "But he only had the one bad inning and held them to one the rest of the way."

"That's why he got the ball in Game 1, because I knew he'd compete to the bitter end whether it's a winning or losing effort. If I had it to do all over I'd give him the ball again."

Nolan Stouder doubled and tripled for Jerome, which couldn't muster

POCATELLO — Greg Cleary figured it was possible.

The Pocatello Runnin' Rebels catcher saw Minico pitcher Chris Joyce bounce a pitch in earlier, so even though the Spartans were calling for an intentional walk, a wild pitch wasn't out of the question during Cleary's at-bat.

With two outs in the 10th inning and Pocatello runners on second and third, Joyce lofted an intentional ball to the backstop, allowing Nick Miller to score. The run gave Pocatello a 5-4 win in the opening round of the American Legion Baseball Class AA Area C Tournament Thursday at Halliwell Park.

"In the back of my mind, I did think he could throw one past the catcher," Cleary said. "That's what we did."

The wild pitch capped a crazy final two innings after what had been a pitcher's duel.

Trailing 3-2 entering the top of the ninth, Minico scored two runs off of Runnin' Rebels reliever Andy Livermore to take a 4-3 lead.

Pocatello rallied in its half of the ninth, though, as Cleary led off the inning with a single and ultimately scored on a two-out single by Casey Lish.

Elite triathlon runner and Magic Valley native Christenson returns for Spudman

By Ryan Howe

BURLEY — He's conquered Kona and Kokopelli.

He's risen above the red rock of Moab, the barren desert of St. George and breezed through the mountainous grandeur of Echo and Jordanelle.

He's reached the pinnacle of the triathlon world, qualifying for multiple Ironman World Championships in Hawaii.

And once a year, B.J. Christenson comes home to join his fellow spuds.

A Heyburn native, Christenson will race in the 2009 Burley Lions Club Spudman Triathlon on Saturday, joining approximately 2,000 athletes who will compete in the 1-mile swim, 25.5-mile bike ride and 6-mile run.

Before Christenson was old enough to compete in the Spudman, he worked the race as a volunteer.

"Ever since volunteering for those first couple years, I just wanted to do the race," said Christenson, who took part in his first Spudman as a junior at Minico High School.

Christenson remembers the days when the Spudman drew only 300 people and it was possible to sign up the day of the race. Now the race fills up 15 minutes after registration opens and it's capped at 2,000 participants.

"The sport in general is exploding. There are many races all around the U.S. now," Christenson said. "(The Spudman) is popular because of the ease of the

In 23rd year, Spudman continues to evolve

BURLEY — Now in its 23th year, the Burley Lions Club Spudman Triathlon is still evolving.

Among the changes this year, organizers set up a lottery system for racer registration, rather than first-come, first-serve. Race director Scott Bloxham said the Spudman's increasing popularity necessitated the change.

"Last year we ran into some problems with our online registration when we registered 2,000 people in 15 minutes," he said. "(The lottery) went really well. There were a few little glitches and we need to tweak a few things, but nothing really dramatic."

Bloxham noted that safety concerns have kept the race to its current 2,000-participant limit, but the race committee could consider accommodating more in the future.

"We probably could go bigger next year. That will be part of the discussion for the committee after we get through this year," Bloxham said.

This year's race will be 1.5 miles longer than usual as the bike course has been moved due to recent seal coating on 150 East. The route will run along 50 East instead.

"Each year we see where our problems are at and try to improve those particular areas. We hope it works out for everybody," Bloxham said.

The race begins and ends at the Burley Golf Course Marina. Spectators are encouraged to arrive early to avoid parking issues.

"It's been a good event for us," Bloxham said.

"The people have enjoyed it and they keep coming back. The people in Cassia County and Minidoka County have been extremely good to all of our racers and the racers really appreciate that."

Tough night for locals at NHSRF

Times-News

It was a rough night for the three area competitors in action at the National High School Finals Rodeo in Farmington, N.M., on Thursday evening.

Oakley's Brady Manning was bucked off for the second time in the saddle bronc event, meaning he will go home without earning a score. Megan Crist, scheduled to compete in goat tying, did not record a time. Cody Wadsworth of Kimberly was equally unlucky, getting bucked off for the second time in bull riding. BOISE — Boise State will head east to play Virginia Tech in 2010.

School officials announced the matchup Thursday.

The Broncos and Hokies will play Oct. 2 at FedEx Field, in the Washington suburb of Landover, Md. Boise State will get a payout of $1.25 million to play the Hokies, one of the most successful college football programs in the last decade.

Virginia Tech is 100-30 record over the last 10 years.

The game completes the non-conference portion of the Broncos' 2010 schedule. Other non-conference games include Toledo, a trip to Wyoming and home game against Oregon State.

Contador wins final time trial; Armstrong now 3rd

By Jamey Keaten
Associated Press writer

ANNECY, France — Alberto Contador all but assured his second Tour de France victory Thursday, winning the race's final time trial while Lance Armstrong struggled with fatigue but moved up one spot to third place.

Contador, Armstrong's Astana teammate and the 2007 Tour champion, increased his overall lead in the 18th stage in which cyclists rode against the clock on the 25-mile course in and around Annecy. The three-week race ends Sunday on the Champs-Elysees in Paris.

Contador finished in 48 minutes, 31 seconds, beating Fabian Cancellara of

U.S. beats Honduras to reach Gold Cup final

CHICAGO (AP) — First the big boys in South Africa, now the JV at home. No matter who the United States puts on the field these days, they're finding a way to win.

Clarence Goodson scored at the end of the first half and Kenny Cooper at the end of the second to give a young American team a 2-0 victory over Honduras on Thursday night and a spot in its third straight CONCACAF Gold Cup final. The Americans, winners of the last two Gold Cup titles, will play either Costa Rica or Mexico in Sunday's final at the Meadowlands.

"It's a big opportunity for all of us, and we're all trying to take advantage of that," said Goodson, who got his first goal in his fifth appearance with the U.S. team.

Honduras had a chance to tie with 5 minutes to play, but goalkeeper Troy Perkins and defender Jay Heaps made big stops. Perkins made an excellent save on a shot by Carlo Costly, then Heaps made a sliding block to clear the rebound and end the threat.

Cooper then sealed the victory with a goal in the 90th, one-timing a pass from Stuart Holden past Honduran goalkeeper Donis Escobar. As the Americans celebrated, Escobar leaned into the net, stone-faced.

It was the U.S. team's third win over Honduras in less than seven weeks, and the second at Soldier Field.

"I think it's going to be a sweet and sour taste going back home," Honduras coach Reinaldo Rueda said. "We have to accept reality and learn from what we experienced here. ... We didn't reach our objective in reaching the final."

The U.S. men stunned the soccer world last month by upsetting top-ranked Spain before falling to Brazil in the Confederations Cup. The Gold Cup may not have quite the buzz as that tournament, which also featured World Cup champion Italy, but this run is impressive in its own right.

U.S. coach Bob Bradley did a complete makeover of his roster after the Confederations Cup, letting most of his top players return to their MLS teams or take time off ahead of the European season. In their place, he brought in a bunch of youngsters, many making their first appearances with the senior national team.

While they might not have the flair of Landon Donovan, Tim Howard or Carlos Bocanegra, the kids have been more than all right.

The Americans have gone unbeaten in the tournament, and several young players have emerged who could play a role in next year's World Cup. Goodson is the sixth American to get his first goal during the World Cup. Holden had assists on both goals Thursday, adding to the two he scored in earlier games.

Switzerland by three seconds. Russia's Mikhail Ignatiev was third, 15 seconds back.

"I went all out," said Contador, adding his ear-piece radio linking him to team managers stopped working during the stage and he was worried about Cancellara's skill at time trials.

"Of course, what I especially wanted was to think about general class. A stage victory was less important," he said. "I'm very happy. I didn't expect it."

Armstrong was 16th, 1:30 behind. But he easily overcame a 30-second deficit to Frank Schleck, who began the day in third place but slipped to sixth after finishing 2:34 behind Contador. Armstrong had "mixed emotions" about his ride.

"Sixteenth in a time trial is not a good result," he said. "But my ambition is to get on the podium, so I have to be happy with that."

Schleck and younger brother Andy had bumped Armstrong from second place to fourth a day earlier in the last punishing Alpine stage.

"I suffered," Armstrong said. "I probably started too hard and maybe I was just empty from yesterday and those cramps I suffered at the end of the (17th) stage."

Overall, Contador leads Andy Schleck by 4:11. Armstrong is 5:25 back and Britain's Bradley Wiggins is fourth, 5:36 behind. Germany's Andreas Klöden, another Astana rider, is fifth, 5:38 back. Frank Schleck is sixth, 5:59 behind.

While the stage was mostly flat, riders had to contend with the Bluffy pass climb, which snaked upward for more than two miles with

Armstrong announces new team for next year

ANNECY, France (AP) — Lance Armstrong and RadioShack are forming a new cycling team that will compete in next year's Tour de France. The seven-time Tour winner, who returned to cycling after 3½ years of retirement, also said Thursday he expects to take part in running and triathlon events for Team RadioShack beginning in 2010.

"RadioShack has agreed to partner with us on this venture and ensure that this partnership and this team stays alive for years to come, continues to be at the head of the peloton," Armstrong said in a video on his Livestrong Web site. The 37-year-old Texan is riding this year's Tour with the Kazakh-funded Astana team. He was in third place overall after Thursday's time trial, 5 minutes and 25 seconds behind teammate Alberto Contador.

"It's a huge opportunity for us as an organization and as a cancer survivor. It's pretty mega," Armstrong added after the stage in Annecy. Armstrong did not indicate who else might join Team RadioShack, but he's expected to build a squad fully devoted to his ambitions. Armstrong has spent much of this year's race in support of Contador, who is expected to join another team next season.

Tribe tumbles in Area C semifinal

Times-News

COYBOS ELIMINATED

The Buhl Tribe mustered just one hit and committed six errors, allowing Bonneville to create separation and take a 12-3 victory in the American Legion Baseball Class A Area C Tournament semifinals in Idaho Falls on Thursday.

Bonneville scored five runs with two outs in the bottom of the fourth inning to break the game open, as Buhl booted the ball around and allowed its opponent to capitalize.

"They did what we had an opportunity to do in the third and the fourth; we kicked the ball around and they were able to capitalize on it. I think they got five runs after two outs," said Buhl coach Allyn Reynolds. "They booted it around in the third and fourth and we couldn't capitalize. It was not a clean baseball game by either team, pretty sloppy, but they got the key hits and we only had one."

"We just gotta forget it. The last nail in the coffin isn't in yet, and we just have to come in with the attitude that we can't lose anymore. You just tell your kids that you have to go into survival mode and do what it takes," Reynolds added.

With the win Bonneville clinched a trip to next week's state tournament in Orofino, and will play Upper Valley for state seeding in the area championship game this afternoon.

Buhl faces a two-game gauntlet if it wants to go to Orofino as well, starting with the Pocatello Rebels. If the Tribe can get through that one, a matchup against Blackfoot or Wood River will await for the final state spot.

The Twin Falls Cowboys gave up 17 hits and committed six errors in a 12-8 season-ending loss to the Pocatello Rebels Thursday afternoon. The Cowboys kept their season alive Thursday morning with a 4-3 win over Bear Lake, but stranded 10 runners against the Rebels.

"We couldn't find a way to get the clutch hits today," said Twin Falls coach Mark Schaal, whose team ends the season 24-21 overall.

Casey Merritt pitched "a gem of a ball game," against Bear Lake, according to Schaal. Merritt tired in the seventh inning and gave way to Scott Speer for the final two outs.

Merritt helped his cause by going 2-for-3 with an RBI. Eric Harr and Marcus Donaldson also had RBIs for Twin Falls in the win.

Schaal praised the offensive prowess of Pocatello, which had four doubles as Twin Falls put three different pitchers on the mound.

WOOD RIVER TOPS BURLEY, HILLCREST

The Burley Green Sox saw their season come to a close with an 11-6 loss to Wood River in an elimination game.

Burley rallied to hold a 6-5 lead entering the seventh inning, but committed three errors in the top of the inning as Wood River plated six runs to take control.

"We kind of lost our cool and our composure," said Burley coach Devin Kunz, "and they made us pay for it."

The Green Sox, who end the season 27-17 overall, had a similar outcome on Wednesday as one error-filled inning contributed heavily to a 13-9 upset loss

Perfection: Mark Buehrle pitches perfect game

CHICAGO — Mark Buehrle pitched the 18th perfect game in major league history, and Chicago White Sox center fielder DeWayne Wise got the assist.

Just into the game as a defensive replacement, Wise robbed Gabe Kapler of a leadoff home run in the ninth inning and Buehrle coolly closed out a 5-0 victory Thursday over the Tampa Bay Rays.

The ball almost came out when Wise caromed off the fence, stumbled, fell to the ground and rolled. But he steadied it with his chest and left hand and bounced right up, proudly displaying the ball for the crowd.

Chicago White Sox pitcher Mark Buehrle, center, is embraced by teammates after tossing a perfect game against the Tampa Bay Rays Thursday in Chicago.

"I was hoping it was staying in there, give him enough room to catch it. I know the guys were doing everything they could to save the no-hitter, the perfect game, whatever it might be," Buehrle said.

Wise knew the stakes. "I was with the Braves in '04 and I was there when Randy Johnson of the Diamondbacks pitched a perfect game. So I've been on both sides of it," he said. "It was probably the best catch I've ever made because of the circumstances."

"It was kind of crazy, man, because when I jumped, the ball hit my glove at the same time I was hitting the wall. So I didn't realize I had caught it until I fell down and the ball was coming out of my glove, so I reached out and grabbed it."

MARINERS 2, TIGERS 1

DETROIT — Jarrod Washburn pitched seven scoreless innings for Seattle. Washburn (8-6) allowed two hits and two walks as the Mariners won for the eighth time in 10 games. He is 5-1 with a 1.81 ERA in his last seven starts.

event to take top honors in the session. Another quality score bolsters his chances of making the top 20.

Minico's TiAnna Stimpson placed 16th in the girls cutting event in the morning session with 184 points. She was tied for 11th after one go-round and will have to wait until the end of the go to see if she cracked the top 20.

Gooding's Kash Wilson finished sixth in his bareback session, scoring 56 points.

Team-roping duo Justin Parke and Cy Eames of Gooding no-timed in their second go-round Thursday morning, meaning they will miss out on the short go.

The second go-round continues through Saturday morning, with the championship round held Saturday evening.

side was able to generate much offense. Minico starter Casey Christiansen allowed seven hits and four runs while striking out 10 in nine innings of work.

Pocatello starter George Casper walked four batters and hit two others, but he allowed only two runs in eight innings and left with a runner on first in the top of the ninth leading 3-2.

"Christiansen threw a gem and kept Minico in the game," said Pocatello coach Mitch Stachowsky. "George did the same for us."

The Runnin' Rebels' victory erased the bad memories of a late-season slump and kept the host team in the winner's bracket of the tournament, from which two teams advance to the state tournament.

With the loss, the Spartans fall into the loser's bracket, where they'll play the loser of today's 1 p.m. showdown between Twin Falls and the Idaho Falls Reds at 4 p.m.

Pocatello moved on to face the Idaho Falls Russets later Thursday.

Watson 3 back at Senior British

SUNNINGDALE, England — Four days after his heart-rending playoff defeat to Stewart Cink at Turnberry, Tom Watson shot a 3-under 67 on Thursday to begin his pursuit of a fourth Senior British Open title.

The 59-year-old Watson, who almost became the oldest major champion at the British Open last weekend, was three shots behind leader Fred Funk.

Funk birdied five of his last eight holes, including holing a bunker shot at No. 17, for a 6-under 64 — the lowest opening round in the history of the championship.

“The first nine could have been three or four over, and the back could have been eight under,” said Funk, who had a two-shot lead over fellow Americans Jay Haas and Loren Roberts, Des Smyth of Ireland and Christopher Williams of South Africa.

Watson was another stroke back and tied with Tom Kite, Jerry Bruner, Greg Norman of Australia and Sam Torrance of Scotland.

Bernhard Langer, who has two Champions Tour wins this year, opened with a 72.

Watson said he hadn't watched a replay of his missed putt on the final hole at Turnberry, an 8-footer for a par that would have won him the claret jug.

“I don't want to. That was the ugliest stroke in the world. I don't want to relive that thing,” Watson said, before admitting he initially wanted to play it over again. “Then I said, ‘To heck with it. That's history. That's over and done with.’”

Asked if he had ever been in so much demand before, Watson replied: “Frankly, no. Just the outpouring of people communicating with me — I've never had that happen before.”

Watson was told that Norman, his playing partner Thursday who came close to winning last year's British Open, had said people were offering congratulations and commiseration for the next 51 weeks.

“I guess I'll have to be ready for that,” Watson said.

NA SHOOTS 63 TO TAKE CANADIAN OPEN LEAD

OAKVILLE, Ontario — Kevin Na birdied the final five holes and nine of his last 12 for a 9-under 63 and a two-stroke lead over Retief Goosen, Scott Verplank and Joe Durant during the suspended first round of the Canadian Open.

After playing one hole Thursday morning, Na waited out a 7½-hour rain delay in the tournament plagued by wet conditions for the second straight year.

Jimmy Walker was 6 under with four holes to go when play was suspended because of darkness. Mike Weir, trying to become the first Canadian to win the national championship since Pat Fletcher in 1954, opened with a 70.

Na closed his first nine, the back nine at Glen Abbey, with birdies on the par-5 16th and 18th, added birdies on Nos. 1 and 2, and birdied the final five for a front-nine 28. He matched the tournament record set by Vijay Singh on the same nine in the second round of his 2004 victory. Durant had a hole-in-one on the 147-yard seventh hole.

BREWERTON, CHOI, KIM SHARE LEAD AT EVIAN MASTERS

EVIAN-LES-BAINS, France — Becky Brewerton shot a 5-under 67 and was tied for the first-round lead at the Evian Masters on Thursday, while Michelle Wie rescued a disappointing start with two late birdies.

The South Korean duo of Na Yeon Choi and In-Kyung Kim also shot 67s in windy and overcast conditions that forced play to be suspended for one hour because of late-afternoon thunder.

Kim's round was highlighted by holing out with a 9-iron for eagle at the 11th, while Choi made three birdies on both the front and back nine and only one bogey.

Top-ranked Lorena Ochoa of Mexico, teeing off with Alfredsson and Marianne Skarpnord of Norway, double-bogeyed her opening hole and finished an inconsistent day at 3 over.

Wie bogeyed Nos. No. 3, 6 and 13 before birdies on the last two holes for a 73. She had plenty of players between her and the lead, including defending champion Helen Alfredsson of Sweden, who is chasing her fourth Evian title and had four birdies in her round of 70.

Wendy Ward of the United States shot 68 to stay in touch with the leaders, along with South Korea's Ji Young Oh, Britain's Karen Stupples and France's Karen Icher.

Roethlisberger says he did not rape casino hostess

PITTSBURGH — Pittsburgh Steelers quarterback Ben Roethlisberger vowed Thursday to fight a Lake Tahoe casino hostess' rape allegations against him, calling them “false and vicious.”

Roethlisberger was served with a civil lawsuit last weekend when he returned to Lake Tahoe, where a 31-year-old Nevada woman alleges the quarterback raped her in a hotel penthouse in July 2008. Roethlisberger was in Nevada on both occasions to compete in a celebrity golf event.

The woman did not file a criminal complaint.

“Saturday was the first I heard of her accusations,” Roethlisberger said. “Her false and vicious allegations are an attack on my family and on me. I would never, ever force myself on a woman.”

In his first public comments on the matter, Roethlisberger read a statement at the Steelers practice complex in Pittsburgh. Dressed in a brown pin-striped suit with no tie, Roethlisberger spoke for less than two minutes and did not respond to questions.

Roethlisberger was accompanied by Steelers Head Coach Mike Tomlin; his agent, Ryan Tollner; and his attorney, David Cornwell. They all left immediately after the statement was read.

Roethlisberger, who is not married, said he would fight what he called “outrageous allegations,” but said he would not discuss his private life or the lawsuit in the media.

“The allegations against me are reckless and false,” Roethlisberger said. “As much as I'd like to answer everyone's questions, I'm going to respect the legal process and I'm confident that the truth will prevail.”

SOURCE: VICK, GOODELL MET WEDNESDAY IN NEW JERSEY

RICHMOND, Va. — Michael Vick might soon discover just who's interested in giving him a second chance.

Two people familiar with the meeting confirmed NFL commissioner Roger Goodell, Vick, agent Joel Segal and two other members of the suspended quarterback's team met Wednesday at a security firm in New Jersey. The two people requested anonymity because the league has not acknowledged the meeting.

ESPN reported on its Web site Thursday night that an anonymous source said Goodell had decided on a conditional reinstatement that would allow Vick to attend training camp if he signs with a team and that he also could be suspended for the first four games of the 2009 season.

Goodell told the AP on Tuesday, a day after Vick was released from federal custody, that he hoped to make a decision “in the near future.”

Goodell suspended Vick indefinitely in August 2007 after the former Atlanta Falcons quarterback admitted bankrolling the “Bad Newz Kennels” dog-fighting operation. Goodell has said Vick must show remorse and signs that he has changed before he would reinstate him.

NFL TO START DRAFT ON THURSDAY IN PRIME TIME

NEW YORK — The NFL is making its already popular draft even more television-friendly, moving the first round to Thursday night.

Next year's draft will switch from a two-day, weekend format to a three-day event with the opening round in prime time for the first time.

The NFL said Thursday that the first round will begin at 7:30 p.m. EDT on April 22. The second and third rounds will open at 6:30 p.m. on Friday and the last four rounds will start Saturday morning.

The draft will continue to be televised by ESPN and NFL Network and held at Radio City Music Hall. It was a Saturday-Sunday event from 1995-2009.

Thursday is typically the most-watched night of television. A total of 39 million viewers watched the draft this year.

VIKINGS COACH HAS NO EXPECTATIONS ON FAVRE

EDEN PRAIRIE, Minn. — When it comes to Brett Favre, Minnesota Vikings coach Brad Childress knows not to take anything for granted.

A week before training camp opens, Childress is still waiting to hear if Favre will join the Vikings as their quarterback. With Favre still working out in Mississippi and reports coming daily on his intended announcement date, the health of his arm and even his state of mind, Childress said he really doesn't know what Favre will decide to do.

“I don't have any allusions as to whether it's ‘I'm in’ or ‘I'm out,’” Childress told The Associated Press on Thursday. “You guys would probably say it's not a matter of if, it's when. But I've always said he's not going to do it unless he can do it at the level he wants to be able to do it at. We'll see.”

With such a potentially season-changing decision still hanging in the balance, one would think the coach would be on pins and needles waiting for an answer. Will he have a three-time MVP under center next season or have to decide between unproven veterans Sage Rosenfels and Tarvaris Jackson?

But during a 30-minute interview, Childress appeared relaxed, at ease and somewhat bemused by the hysteria surrounding Favre's second dalliance with unretirement.

Few spots open, but U.S. players say camp worth it

LAS VEGAS (AP) — More than 20 players agreed to come to USA Basketball's minicamp this week, and most of them will be home next summer when it's time to play games.

The big names could come back then and reclaim their roster spots. Even so, the young players who committed to play this week say it will have been worth it.

“It's just an opportunity that nobody's going to not take,” said Portland center Greg Oden, finally getting to work out with the Americans after being injured the last three summers.

The minicamp opened Thursday and the Americans will practice again Friday before ending the week with an intrasquad exhibition game Saturday night.

The goal is to play well enough to get invited back next year to compete for a spot on the roster for the world championships.

“Whether there's one spot open, all the way to four, five, six, whatever it is, we're all fighting for it,” Minnesota forward Kevin Love said. “We all love the competition.”

The core players on the U.S. team that won the Olympic gold medal last summer in Beijing have told USA Basketball chairman Jerry Colangelo they are interested in playing next year in Turkey and in the 2012 Olympics in London.

That could leave as few as four spots available for the 20 players that were on the floor Thursday, but Colangelo had no trouble finding guys who were interested in coming to practice at a Las Vegas high school.

“They know there's not going to be 12 spots open, but they want to be in that pipeline, because the guys will not play forever,” Colangelo said earlier this week. “It's hard to project how many spots we will have open. You just don't know. You need to have your replacements ready to go.”

Colangelo and U.S. coach Mike Krzyzewski met with the players Wednesday night, telling them to play hard and show them who wanted to be a part of the program. That may not do many of the players good next summer, but will give them a head start toward competing in future events.

“You don't know if six guys are coming, you don't know if three guys are coming back or nine or 12 guys are coming back,” said Toronto coach Jay Triano, who is running the U.S. workouts this week. “There are going to be spots open and this isn't about 2010 and 2012. These kids are young enough that 2014 and 2016 are possibilities for them. So get in the pipeline now, show that you're interested.”

James reveals struggles with prep fame in book

CLEVELAND (AP) — LeBron James struggled with sudden fame after appearing on Sports Illustrated's cover as a 17-year-old and admits he smoked marijuana during his junior year in high school.

Those are two of the revelations in a book chronicling James' rise from Akron, Ohio, hoops prodigy to NBA superstar.

In “Shooting Stars,” written by James and co-author Buzz Bissinger, James said the SI cover and the media attention he and his high school teammates received was difficult to handle.

“We had become big-headed jerks, me in particular,” James said, “and we are to blame for that, but so are adults who treated us that way and then sat back and smugly watched the self-destruction.”

In the book, scheduled for release in September, the NBA's reigning MVP recounts the media circus that enveloped his final two years at St. Vincent-St. Mary High School following his SI cover appearance.

James said he and close friends Dru Joyce, Sian Cotton, Romeo Travis and Willie McGee — nicknamed the Fab Five — became “rock stars” and took advantage of their celebrity.

“I was arrogant, dubbing myself ‘The Chosen One,’” James said. “In hindsight, I should have kept quiet, but I also was what I was, a teenager where every reporter in the world seemed to be rushing toward me at once.”

James also revealed he and his teammates smoked marijuana one night after getting access to a hotel room in Akron.

James feels he was unfairly targeted by the media, which he described as “excited spectators at a car crash” after it was learned that his mother, Gloria, obtained a loan to buy him a $50,000 Hummer for his birthday. He said the scrutiny was humiliating for his mother, who was living with him in a rental-assistance apartment.

James also recounts being suspended by the Ohio High School Athletic Association for accepting two throwback jerseys as gifts from a Cleveland area clothing store. He describes the OHSAA as “ravenous” and is highly critical of former commissioner Clair Muscaro.

James said Muscaro, whose suspension of him was later reduced in court, wanted to put James and his school “in our place.... “this was a witch hunt, one-man posse's attempt to humiliate me, subject me to ridicule, rip open rumors that I was corrupt and ruin a dream.”

James said the experiences drew he and his friends closer and proved to be valuable life lessons, many of which he attributes to “karma.”

hometown race.

“Being my hometown, it's always been a little bit of a thorn in my side to try and knock off” he said. “There have been many times where the opportunity was there but something went wrong and for whatever reason I didn't finish the deal. It's still on my list. I've got to conquer it somehow.”

This will be Christenson's 13th Spudman. He has four runner-up finishes and has been in the top 3 eight times.

Six days prior to last year's Spudman, Christenson raced the Ironman in Lake Placid, N.Y., and qualified for the 2008 World Championships. Still recovering from that grueling race, he came in 28 seconds behind 2008 Spudman winner, Heath Thurston of Orem, Utah.

This year, however, Christenson will be well rested.

“I'm going into this one without an excuse. I probably won't swim with a wet-suit, so if I do lose, I'll blame it on that,” he said with a laugh.

Christenson said he will treat the Spudman as “the old-school race of the year.” He plans to pay tribute to the roots of the sport, when athletes swam with a Speedo, rather than a wetsuit.

“I think it would be fun to have one race a year like that where you just put some of the niceties aside,” he said, then quickly added, “I'll still have a nice bike, though.”

Apart from the Speedo, it will be easy to spot Christenson as he might be the tallest triathlete in the world at 6-foot-7. He and his younger brother Ed, who is the same height, make up the Twin Towers of Triathlon. Ed won the 19-24 age division at last year's Spudman.

“It's all pretty pleasant and very friendly to the first-time runner,” Christenson said. “They've done a good job of catering to people and it's always a fun race.”

Spudman

Christenson went on to become an All-Mountain West Conference runner at the University of Utah, where he ran the second-fastest steeplechase time in school history.

Since graduating in 2003, Christenson has stuck around Salt Lake City, where he now manages a running and triathlon store and coaches privately. Already an accomplished runner, it was a natural fit to add swimming and biking to his repertoire.

Within just a couple years, Christenson qualified for the Chinese scientists breed mice from skin cells

Non-embryonic stem cells pass major hurdle

By Seth Borenstein
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — Two teams of Chinese scientists have made a major advance in mice in the development of a new kind of stem cell that doesn't involve destroying embryos.

Those cells are derived from ordinary skin cells, and when they were created two years ago from human skin and genetically reprogrammed, it was hailed as a breakthrough. But questions remained whether they could act as chameleon-like as embryonic stem cells and morph into any cell type in the body.

One way to show that versatility is if the new reprogrammed stem cells could be used to produce an entire new life.

And now researchers have shown they can in mice.

For the first time, they were able to produce live mice from stem cells that were coaxed from skin tissue of adult mice and then reprogrammed. And while there were abnormalities and unusual deaths with some of the first generation of mice, one team produced enough normal mice this way to create hundreds of second and third generation mice.

Studies on this type of stem cell, called iPS for induced pluripotent stem cells, were released Thursday by two competing scientific journals, Nature and Cell Stem Cell.

"We demonstrated the practicality of using iPS cells," said Fanyi Zeng, associate director of the Shanghai Institute of Medical Genetics and co-author of the larger, more successful study, which appears in Nature.

A leading U.S. stem cell researcher who wasn't part of either study, Dr. George Daley of the Harvard Stem Cell Institute and Children's Hospital of Boston, hailed the work as important because it shows that the new type of stem cells "satisfy the most stringent criteria of embryonic stem cells — the ability to make a mouse entirely from cells in a petri dish."

These type of stem cells generate less controversy than embryonic stem cells, which scientists have been studying for more than a decade. Embryonic stem cells involve the destruction of embryos, usually excess from fertility clinics.

The new type of stem cells use a virus to reprogram the genetic information of the skin cell to make it a stem cell. Because the new stem cell can't create a placenta, the Chinese researchers had to combine it with cells that provide a placenta.

Zeng said all types of stem cell research should continue, not just the new type.

Her study produced 27 live mice. Some of the mice, she said, had "abnormalities," but she declined to say what those were or how extensive the problems were. That will be in a future report, she said.

Those 27 mice produced second and third generations that included hundreds of mice with no noticeable abnormalities.

The other team got only four births; three died quickly and only one made it into normal adulthood.

"We are confident that tremendous good can come from demonstrating the versatility of reprogrammed cells in mice," Zeng wrote in an e-mail.

She said while this is just in mice it could help doctors "understand the root causes of disease and lead to viable treatments and cures of human afflictions."

Daley and Zeng noted that the process isn't very efficient; many attempts were needed to get stem cell generated births.

This work is still only in mice.

"There's a lot more (to do) before we can even mention humans," Zeng said.

WASHINGTON Reports: Bin Laden's son may be dead

WASHINGTON — U.S. intelligence agencies believe that Osama bin Laden's son and potential heir in the al-Qaida organization was killed earlier this year by a Predator missile strike in Pakistan.

Saad bin Laden has been portrayed as the bin Laden son who was closest to his father and most involved in the al-Qaida terrorist network's activities. But he never was seen as an operational leader.

"There are some indications that he may be dead, but it's not 100 percent certain," said a U.S. counterterrorism official. "If he is dead, Saad bin Laden was a small player with a big name. He has never been a major operational figure."

The official declined to provide details of the missile strike or discuss the evidence suggesting that the younger bin Laden may have been killed.

THAILAND Clinton, North Korea trade barbs on nukes

PHUKET — Hillary Rodham Clinton and North Korea exchanged pointed barbs Thursday, with Clinton declaring North Korea "has no friends left" and the communist regime calling the U.S. secretary of state a "schoolgirl."

The sharp words came as North Korea announced it had refused to re-enter talks to terminate its nuclear weapons program.

Clinton said the world has made it clear to Pyongyang that it has "no place to go," citing near unanimity among Asian nations, including China, on fully enforcing the latest U.N. sanctions against North Korea for its repeated nuclear and missile tests.

Warning the North's nuclear ambitions could spark an arms race in the region, Clinton said the U.S. would continue to vigorously enforce tough U.N. sanctions and insist that the north "irreversibly denuclearize."

But she held out the prospect of restoring U.S. diplomatic ties and other incentives — actions the Obama administration would be willing to consider if the North Koreans dismantle their nuclear program.

"We urge North Korea to return to the six-party talks, look beyond the past and join others in finding the way forward," said Thai Foreign Minister Kasit Piromya, who hosted the ASEAN Regional Forum, a security conference among 27 countries and organizations that ended Thursday.

Clinton left the resort island for Washington, wrapping up a weeklong trip to India and Thailand.

NETHERLANDS Dutch return severed head of Ghana chief descendants of an African chief who was hanged and decapitated by a Dutch general 171 years ago reluctantly accepted the return of his severed head Thursday, still angry even as the Dutch tried to right a historic wrong.

The head of King Badu Bonsu II was discovered last year in a jar of formaldehyde gathering dust in the anatomical collection of the Leiden University Medical Center.

The Dutch government agreed to Ghanaian demands that the relic be returned.

On Thursday, members of the king's Ahanta tribe, dressed in dark robes and wearing red sashes, took part in the hand-over ceremony, honoring his spirit by toasting with Dutch gin and then sprinkling the drink over the floor at the Dutch Foreign Ministry.

But descendants of the chief said they were not consoled.

"I am hurt, angry. My grandfather has been killed," said Joseph Jones Amoah, the great, great grandson of the chief.

The chief's head was stored elsewhere at the ministry and was not displayed during the ceremony.

It is expected to be flown with the members of the tribe back to Ghana on Friday.

SPAIN Researchers: Civil war photo likely staged

MADRID — Robert Capa's photograph of a falling Spanish Civil War militiaman became one of the most famous and enduring images of conflict in the 20th century. Now, Spanish researchers who have studied events surrounding the picture believe it may have been staged.

When first published in September 1936 by French magazine Vu, and later in Life magazine, the caption on the legendary photojournalist's "Falling Militiaman" said it depicted the moment a Republican rifleman was mortally wounded.

The location was given as Cerro Muriano on the Cordoba front, where forces backing Gen. Francisco Franco were engaged in fierce fighting with soldiers loyal to the elected Republican government.

Now Spanish researchers say that not only was the photograph not taken where Capa said it was, but that the militiaman was most likely not shot either.

After studying the photograph and new images released as part of a traveling exhibition called "This is War" now at Barcelona's art museum, four researchers say the photographs were shot 34 miles away in an area where there was no fighting the day they were taken.

"It quickly became obvious to us that among the new photographs — 34 attributed to Capa, 6 to his companion Gerda Taro — there were four that revealed the exact place where Capa had taken the shots," filmmaker Raul Riebenbauer told The Associated Press.

Historian Francisco Moreno has taken geographical information in the photographs — the shape of seven hills, the location of two farmhouses and several roads — and found it matched exactly a hillside just east of the town of Espejo.

2010 LEXUS RX 350

LEXUS ROLLS OUT NEXT GENERATION OF LUXURY CROSSOVER!!

First Look!
By Neal White,
Motor News Media
Corporation

If you are a fan of the RX, you are going to absolutely love the all-new 2010, next generation luxury crossover from Lexus. Which is good, considering that's exactly what Lexus had in mind when designing and engineering the new version of its best-selling nameplate. With brand loyalty numbers soaring above the 60 percent mark, company officials believe most of its sales for the new RX, which began arriving in dealerships in February, will come from existing RX owners looking to capture the new safety and technology features available in the vehicle they already love.

During a recent product launch held in Georgia, I had a chance to log seat time in both the 2010 RX 350 and the RX 450h, which will arrive later this spring. The 2010 RX is slightly larger than its predecessor, and thanks to a new rear double wishbone suspension system, offers a great deal more cargo room in back - more than 40 cubic feet. While staying true to what customers love about the five-passenger RX, Lexus has incorporated a number of new technology and safety features that will enhance the RX experience.

Mindful of the global economy, they also found a way to add value by incorporating the DVD-based navigation system, which includes XM NavTraffic and XM NavWeather services.

Another change is the optional rear-seat entertainment system, which now features dual 7-inch LCD screens mounted behind the front seat headrests. In addition to improving driver visibility (no dropdown screen from the overhead console), the new system allows both rear seat passengers to use the system at the same time. For example, one passenger can be watching a movie while the other plays video games.

more than $2,000 of standard equipment while bringing the 2010 RX to the market at a price $900 lower than the previous model. Available in front- or all-wheel drive configuration, the 2010 RX 350 has a base price starting at $36,800 for front-wheel drive, $38,200 for all-wheel drive. With 10 options and nine available packages, Lexus is expecting the average equipped RX 350 will be in the $41,000-$44,000 range. Pricing has not yet been announced for the hybrid RX 450h.

Lexus officials are projecting 80 percent of RX sales will be for the gas engine RX 350, produced at the company's manufacturing facility in Canada. Projections call for the remaining 20 percent of sales opting for the hybrid RX 450h, produced in Japan.

The new RX 350 is powered by an enhanced 3.5L V-6 engine delivering more horsepower and fuel economy mated to a new six-speed automatic transmission.

In addition to improved visibility, standard safety features on the 2010 RX include 10 airbags, anti-lock brakes, traction control, vehicle stability control system, electronic brake force distribution, brake assist, hill-start assist control, new active headrest for front seat passengers, automatic high beam headlights and SmartAccess keyless entry with electro-biological sensors on the front doors that allow entry and locking without the need for a key or fob in your hand.

Optional safety features include HID lighting, a backup camera system with monitor in the center console for models equipped with navigation or in the rearview mirror for models without navigation system, a head-up display unit and a wide-view side monitor system using side mounted cameras (only for models equipped with navigation).

The 2010 RX features a completely redesigned interior with a brand new navigation system inset into the center console, free from glare and within an easier sightline of the driver. Instead of the touch screen system previously used, the new navigation system features VoiceBox technology that more easily recognizes user commands for hands-free operation of audio, climate and Bluetooth connectivity.

It also features a new remote touch device located just behind the gear shifter allowing the driver to access the menu screen to manual place commands on

LEGAL NOTICE

The Magic Valley and Southwest Regional Offices of the Idaho Department of Fish and Game have been informed that there is a high likelihood that Little Camas Reservoir and Mountain Home Reservoir, both in Elmore County, will be dry or nearly dry by late summer. Drought conditions, lack of runoff into these waters and notices of insufficient water from the irrigation companies have led to this determination. Fish in these waters will have a high likelihood of dying as water levels drop and conditions become unsuitable.

Therefore, bag, possession, and size limits will be removed on Little Camas Reservoir and Mountain Home Reservoir in Elmore County, effective July 21, 2009 through November 30, 2009. Fish may be taken by any method except firearms, explosives, chemicals, or electric current; effective July 21st through November 30th, 2009. In accordance with Section 36-401, Idaho Code, a valid Idaho fishing license is required to salvage fish.

Copies of Order 09-43 are available at the Idaho Department of Fish and Game headquarters, 600 South Walnut, P.O. Box 25, Boise, Idaho 83707.

DATED this 20th day of July 2009.

GOODING COUNTY HAS BEEN AWARDED FEDERAL FUNDS UNDER THE EMERGENCY FOOD AND SHELTER NATIONAL BOARD PROGRAM

Gooding County has been chosen to receive $3,943.00 to supplement emergency food and shelter programs in the county. A Local Board made up of Gooding County Services Assistant Director, Nazarene Church representative, Catholic Church representative, Native American representative, homeless person representative and Gooding County Commissioners representative will determine how the funds awarded to Gooding County are to be distributed among the emergency food and shelter programs run by local service organizations in the area. The Local Board is responsible for recommending agencies to receive these funds and any additional funds available under this phase of the program.

Under the terms of the grant from the national Board, local organizations chosen to receive funds must 1) be private voluntary nonprofits or units of government, 2) have an accounting system, 3) practice nondiscrimination, 4) have demonstrated the capability to deliver emergency food and/or shelter programs and 5) if they are a private organization, they must have a voluntary board. Qualifying organizations are urged to apply. Public or private voluntary organizations interested in applying for Emergency Food and Shelter program funds must contact Linda Leguineche, Gooding County Services Assistant Director for an application.

ORDINANCE NO. 1062
BILL NO. 537

AN ORDINANCE OF THE MAYOR AND COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF JEROME REPEALING EXISTING CHAPTER 12.16 OF THE JEROME MUNICIPAL CODE AND ADDING A NEW CHAPTER 12.16 OF THE JEROME MUNICIPAL CODE; REQUIRING THAT APPLICATIONS FOR PERMITS TO CUT CURBS, STREETS OR PUBLIC PATHWAYS, OR TO MAKE EXCAVATIONS WITHIN CITY STREET RIGHTS OF WAY, ARE TO BE MADE TO AND ISSUED BY THE CITY'S BUILDING OFFICIAL; PROVIDING FOR CONTENTS OF SUCH APPLICATIONS AND STANDARDS GOVERNING THE ISSUANCE OF SUCH PERMITS; ESTABLISHING FEES FOR SUCH APPLICATIONS; PROVIDING FOR A PENALTY; DEFINING TERMS; AND PROVIDING FOR AN EFFECTIVE DATE.

WHEREAS, Chapter 12.16 of the Jerome Municipal Code governs applications and permits for cutting curbs, streets or public pathways and for excavation permits within city streets or adjacent to curb lines of city streets; and

WHEREAS, it is burdensome and inefficient that applications for issuance of such permits are presently required to be addressed to the city clerk or city engineer for action by the city council; and WHEREAS, to provide for a more streamlined procedure for making such applications, obtaining permits and providing for appeals from the denial of applications for such permits, the city council desires that applications and permits be made to the city of Jerome Building Official, as designated under the International Building Code; and

WHEREAS, such action would promote the general welfare of the citizens of the city of Jerome;

BE IT THEREFORE ORDAINED by the Mayor and the City Council of Jerome, Idaho, as follows:

Section 1. Repealer. Chapter 12.16 of the Jerome Municipal Code is hereby repealed in its entirety.

Section 2. New Chapter. A new Chapter 12.16 of the Jerome Municipal Code is hereby adopted as follows:

CHAPTER 12.16 CUTTING AND EXCAVATION

12.16.010: PERMIT TO EXCAVATE OR CUT PUBLIC CURBS, STREETS, OR PATHWAYS; REQUIRED

It shall be unlawful for any person to cut or in any way demolish any public curb, sidewalk, street or pathway, or to perform any excavation within any public street or right of way without first obtaining a permit therefrom from the city's Building Official, as defined in the latest edition of the International Building Code adopted by the city of Jerome, as it now exists or as it may hereafter be amended.

12.16.020: PERMIT; APPLICATION:

Applications for any permit required by Section 12.16.010 of the Jerome Municipal Code shall be made in writing on such forms as prescribed by the city, and shall include, in addition to whatever other information the city may require, the location, character, extent and purpose of the work for which the Permit is sought. The application shall be submitted to the Building Official.

12.16.030: PERMIT; ISSUANCE:

A. Every submitted application shall be reviewed by the Building Official, who shall determine whether or not to grant the application. In determining whether or not an application shall be deemed to be within the public interest and subject to approval, the Building Official shall consider the following factors:

- Whether the action proposed by the application would benefit adjacent real property;
 - Whether the work proposed in the application would result in irreparable damage to a public street, alley or pathway;
 - Whether the work proposed would irreparably endanger existing public water, sewer, or other public improvements;
 - Whether the work proposed would unduly hamper or impede the passage of traffic or persons on a public street, alley or pathway;
 - Any other factor which may be presented to the Building Official, which may impact upon the general health, safety and well-being of the citizens of Jerome.
- B. Any permit issued by the Building Official shall, among such other reasonable conditions as may be imposed by the Building Official, require the applicant to backfill, repave, or reinstall any curb, sidewalk or street disturbed as a result of the work, in keeping with city standards and specifications, to the satisfaction of the city. The Building Official shall inspect all backfill, repaving, or reconstruction as required and give approval of such activity, in writing, before it shall be deemed accepted by the city.

12.16.040: FEES:

Every application under this chapter shall be accompanied by a non-refundable fee, the amount of which shall be determined by the Council by Resolution in effect at the time the application is submitted.

12.16.050: ACTION ON APPLICATION FOR PERMIT; APPEAL:

The Building Official shall issue a permit for every completed, approved application accompanied by the proper permit fee, within fifteen (15) calendar days of its submittal to the Building Official. Should the application be denied, the applicant may appeal such decision to the Council by filing a notice of appeal in writing setting forth all grounds for the appeal which written notice of appeal must be filed with the Jerome city clerk within ten (10) days of the date upon which the written notice of denial of the application is mailed by the Building Official to the applicant at the address provided by the applicant.

12.16.060: DEFINITION OF PUBLIC PATHWAY:

For purposes of this chapter, the term "public pathway" shall mean any bike path, hiking path, or any other similar path which is publicly owned and intended for pedestrian and/or bicycle use by the public. The term shall include all existing bike paths owned by the Jerome Recreation District and such additional bike paths as may be established by the Jerome Recreation District in the future.

12.16.070: PENALTY:

Any person violating any provision of this Chapter shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor.

Section 3 Effective Date. This ordinance shall become effective upon its passage and publication as required by law.

PASSED BY THE COUNCIL this 7th day of July 2009.

SIGNED BY THE MAYOR this 9th day of July 2009.

Man's popularity with kids is problematic for parents

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 38-year-old man with no children. For some reason I tend to attract the attention of children wherever I go. Even though I make no attempt to speak to them, they often approach me. I know when children talk to strangers it makes their parents uncomfortable, but I don't want to be rude to the kids.

I was recently eating at an outdoor restaurant when a friendly little girl walked up, sat herself down at my table, and began asking me questions. I was terse but polite. She was soon joined by several other kids, all of whom seated themselves at my table.

Their parents, who had obviously not been paying attention, shouted at them to "get away from that man!" It created an embarrassing scene with the parents telling me I had no business talking to their kids. The other diners looked at me as though I was some kind of pervert.

I don't want to be rude to children, but what can I do to prevent things like this from happening again?

— CRYING "UNCLE" IN TEXAS

DEAR "UNCLE": The parents overreacted. The next time a child approaches and wants to talk, ask the child, "Did your mother/father say it was OK to talk to a stranger?" If the answer is no, then tell the child he/she must first ask a parent for permission.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: My 35-year-old daughter, "Rhonda," is intelligent and creative, but her house is a disaster. There are clothes, books, magazines, etc. piled on every surface. Dishes are stacked on her bed; socks and paper litter the floor.

How can she feel good living like this? The place is becoming a health hazard. Rhonda is caring and attractive, but she rarely dates. Could her mess be a symptom of something more serious?

Abby, I'm worried about my daughter's chances for future happiness, but I have no idea how to help her. Or should I?

— WORRIED MOM IN OREGON

DEAR WORRIED MOM: If you're the kind of mother who always picked up after her children, then this is only more of the same. If your daughter's disorderliness is something new, then it might be a symptom of depression or some other emotional problem.

When you say you are concerned about Rhonda's chances for future happiness, do you mean you're worried that she's 35 and still single? Not every woman needs a man to complete her. Have a heart-to-heart talk with your daughter and explain your concerns. You won't find out what's going on in her head until you do.

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I have been involved in an ongoing debate about how to place the pillows on our king-size bed. Should the opening of the pillowcase face the outside of the bed or the inside?

I place my pillows with the opening facing the middle of the bed so the pillow won't show, while my wife does it the other way, and the edge of the pillow can be seen through the opening. Can you please settle this?

— PILLOW TALK IN ABILENE

DEAR PILLOW TALK: Hotels make up the beds with the opening of the pillowcases turned to the middle because the maids usually tuck the edge of the pillowcase inward. A specialist in the bedding department of my local department store says that in most homes, the opening of the pillowcase faces the edge of the bed. But the bottom line is — there is no right or wrong way!

IF JULY 24 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: You are willing to work long and hard to achieve something of importance this year. Because you have a taste for bigger and better things, you might show your hand too quickly in September or October. Wait until December or January, when your judgment is better than usual, to make significant changes in your job, career, or business. A romantic entanglement could distract you from financial success in February, but a relationship that is worthy of your time will be worth its weight in gold in regards to your business success.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Add too much brush to the fire of ambition and the least gust of wind could create a conflagration. Write down ideas for future use.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Busy bees make the most honey. Avoid sentimental conversations about the past that may needlessly complicate the present.

HOROSCOPE

Jeraldine Saunders

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You may make more progress by being a friend than a lover. You may act as an adviser or mentor to someone who is very close to you.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Make a list of the many things you hope to accomplish and roll up your sleeves. Exercise and time spent outdoors is good for you.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Your romantic dreams will come true. Pay cash for new decorating items to avoid long-term obligations over a non-necessity.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You never grow old if you continue to learn. And the only way to learn is to keep an open mind and curiosity about people and ideas.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22):

Don't give in to fantasies or think that an alluring comelon is worth the effort. Someone seems more enchanting than he or she is.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Your dreams could grow by leaps and bounds if you let your imagination run free. If you are cooperative, others will be kind.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): It is a good thing to build castles in the air and treasure a few unrealizable dreams. Just don't put a down payment on desires.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): When nobody has a chance of winning it's a stalemate. Outside forces may prod you to action even if there is no move left.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Follow your intuitions and let the cards fall where they may. It isn't skill that makes the difference when your heart is involved.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Escape from the trendy. The most elegant, classic design is more likely to suit your sense of style and bring lasting enjoyment.

would "imperil the future stability of the country." House Majority Leader Dick Armey replied that the GOP plan would help fix an unfair tax system.

Five years ago: Without promising what specific steps he would take, President George W. Bush said in his weekly radio address that his administration was committed to relying on the recommendations of the September 11th commission in waging the war on terrorism. Former Nixon administration official Fred LaRue, who served a prison term for Watergate, died in Biloxi, Miss., at age 75.

One year ago: Ford Motor Co. posted the worst quarterly performance in its history, losing $8.67 billion. Cheered by an enormous crowd in Berlin, Democratic presidential contender Barack Obama summoned Europeans and Americans together to "defeat terror and dry up the well of extremism that supports it" as surely as they had conquered communism a generation ago. Zvonko Busic, who'd served 32 years in a U.S. prison for hijacking a TWA jetliner and planting a bomb that killed a policeman, was paroled and returned home to Croatia.

Today is Friday, July 24, the 205th day of 2009. There are 160 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:

On July 24, 1959, during a visit to Moscow, Vice President Richard Nixon engaged in his famous "Kitchen Debate" with Soviet leader Nikita Khrushchev. (The impromptu exchanges occurred in the kitchen of a model home at the American National Exhibition, with each man arguing for his country's technological advances.)

On this date:

In 1783, Latin American revolutionary Simon Bolivar was born in Caracas, Venezuela.

In 1847, Mormon leader Brigham Young and his followers arrived in the Great Salt Lake Valley in present-day Utah.

In 1858, Republican senatorial candidate Abraham Lincoln formally challenged Democrat Stephen A. Douglas to a series of political debates; the result was seven face-to-face encounters.

In 1862, the eighth president of the United States, Martin Van Buren, died in Kinderhook, N.Y.

In 1866, Tennessee became the first state to be readmitted to the Union after the Civil War.

In 1929, President Herbert Hoover proclaimed the Kellogg-Briand Pact, which renounced war as an instrument of foreign policy.

In 1937, the state of Alabama dropped charges against four of the nine young black men accused of raping two white women in the "Scottsboro Case."

In 1969, the Apollo 11 astronauts — two of whom had been the first men to set foot on the moon — splashed down safely in the Pacific.

In 1974, the Supreme Court unanimously ruled that President Richard Nixon had to turn over subpoenaed White House tape recordings to the Watergate special prosecutor.

In 1975, an Apollo spacecraft splashed down in the Pacific, completing a mission which included the first-ever docking with a Soyuz capsule from the Soviet Union.

Ten years ago: President Bill Clinton attacked the Republicans' $792 billion tax-cut plan in fundraising speeches and his weekly radio address, saying it

THE ACES ON BRIDGE® Bobby Wolff

"Too late, too late! Ye cannot enter now!"
- Alfred, Lord Tennyson

In four hearts, South ruffed the lead of the club king in dummy and paused for reflection. One slim chance for the four-heart contract would be to pin everything on the spade finesse and a 2-2 heart break. Declarer could overtake dummy's heart queen with the ace, take a spade finesse, cash the spade ace, ruff a spade high to establish the suit, and play a heart to dummy, hoping that would draw both outstanding trumps.

South preferred to play a diamond at trick two, which East won with the king to switch to a trump. Declarer won in the dummy and played a second diamond. West won with the queen and had no further trump to play. Whatever he did, declarer could come to six trump tricks in his hand, two club ruffs in the dummy, and the ace and queen of spades.

Curiously, when declarer played a second round of diamonds, best defense would have been for East to ruff in. He then plays his last trump, removing dummy's last trump. Alas for the defense, look what happens to West when declarer wins in hand and plays off his trumps.

In the six-card ending, South leads out his penultimate trump, his other four cards being two spades and two clubs. Dummy has four spades and two diamonds. West must keep three spades and also two diamonds to prevent that suit from being ruffed out, and so must pitch his club. Declarer's J-10 of clubs can be built into a trick, and the spade finesse sees him home.

ANSWER: If you want to invite, you could transfer to hearts and raise yourself to three hearts. But your intermediates along with your seven HCP plus two for the long suit argue for driving to game. Depending on your methods, you would either jump to four diamonds (I'm a Texan, so you'd expect me to use Texas Transfers) or transfer to two hearts, then jump to game. Beware! Some play the latter sequence as a slam try.

SUDOKU
Sudoku is a number placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Concepts Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.
