SCHOOL-YEAR SLOWDOWN

ASHLEY SMITH/Times-News

With new schools opening and districts shuffling students around, district officials are urging motorists to take care while traveling in school zones.

New schools in Minidoka, Twin Falls get special patrols

Most drivers know the rules: watch out for children; slow down in school zones; stop at crosswalks and for buses that are picking up children.

Following the rules — and remembering them when school begins — is an entirely different challenge. For Twin Falls School District, the school year is starting with changes that include a new high school and a reconfigured middle school system at two schools.

“We really need to be aware that this year with all the changes there’s a lot of children that aren’t familiar with the campuses,” said Kirk Brower, district director of operations.

There’s Canyon Ridge High School, which is opening Monday for the first time.

Advice for school-zone drivers:

- Slow down near schools and in residential areas.
- Drive with your headlights on — even during the day — so children and other drivers can see you.
- Look for clues such as bicycles and playgrounds that indicate children could be in the area.
- Scan between parked cars and other objects for signs of children.
- Practice extra caution in bad weather.
- Always stop for school buses that are loading or unloading students.

Safeguarding kids against swine flu

By Ben Botkin
Times-News writer

As students prepare to return to school, education officials are making efforts to provide early education about preventing swine flu.

Concerns about swine flu, also called H1N1 influenza, are prompting school districts to send out letters to parents with precautions, be more generous with hand sanitizer and disinfectants, and stay in touch with the South Central Public Health District.

Twin Falls School District will send a letter to parents asking them to help in ways such as encouraging hand washing, looking for the signs and symptoms of flu and keeping sick children home. Principals also received packets from the Centers for Disease Control Web site geared for

2 animal cruelty bills being prepared

By Jared S. Hopkins
Times-News writer

An Idaho state senator from Mountain Home is working with animal advocacy groups and the agriculture industry to tighten Idaho’s animal cruelty laws while preserving south-central Idaho’s strong agricultural base.

Republican Sen. Tim Corder hopes to develop a broad animal cruelty law that would lead to felony charges for offenders. A second bill would address concerns from California’s Proposition 2 and expand animal care while allowing concessions for the livestock industry.

In 2008, the Idaho Legislature made dog fighting a felony, but it remains one of four states without a felony penalty for a broad cruelty law. A 2008 study by the Animal Melanson, 61, will fill retiring Judge Darrel R. Perry’s position with the court on Oct. 1.

“I was surprised and humbled that the governor appointed me,” Melanson said Thursday.

Melanson has served as a judge in the Minidoka County District Court for the past eight years and is a Rupert resident.

Health care endgame nearing but still uncertain

By Charles Babington
Associated Press writer

Analysis

WASHINGTON — With hopes growing ever dimmer for a bipartisan accord, White House and Democratic leaders are considering a wide range of strategies for getting a health care bill passed when Congress returns from its summer recess.

Some are blunt. Some are complex and technical. All are problematic.

Insiders say it’s impossible to confidently predict which plan, if any, will prevail after lawmakers return the day after Labor Day. Will Democrats simply try to roll over minority Republicans. Will they try such uncertain paths as asking moderate Democrats, or perhaps a retiring Republican, to let a bill reach the Senate floor even if they plan to vote against it.

Possible outcomes, according to congressional and White House officials:

- A bipartisan agreement.
- Still the preference of President Obama and congressional leaders, prospects have dimmed this month as top Republicans have sharply criticized key Democratic goals. Most notably, the chief GOP negotiator — Sen. Charles Grassley of Iowa — signaled he would not support a bill, even if he liked it, unless most of his fellow Republicans signed on. That seems highly unlikely.

A truly bipartisan bill would draw significant numbers of House and Senate Republicans, and it surely would be among the

Legal Defense Fund ranked Idaho as one of the five worst states in the nation for animal cruelty laws.

The first cruelty bill would build off of a failed effort from last year that would separate production animals from "companion animals," over which law enforcement would have more discretion. For example, having five steers in a three-acre lot might be perceived to be cruel by people outside agriculture, Corder said.

"I believe the issue is just more complex than dogs and fighting," said Corder, who formed an informal task force. "It needs to encompass everything it should've encompassed."

Virginia Hemingway, executive director of Stop Torturing Our Pets, said the legislation is about striking a balance that will allow work to continue at confined animal feeding operations.

"If somebody has a horse and they keep it tied up in a stall and it can't move, and it can't lay down, that's cruelty," said Hemingway, who grew up in Jerome and said her group has about 1,000 members. "Most agricultural people take care of their animals. That's their livelihood, and those are the things we want to protect."

Lisa Kauffman, Idaho State Director for the Humane Society of the United States, said the legislation might begin with dogs, cats and horses.

The second bill is designed to address issues raised in Proposition 2, a successful statewide ballot initiative that mandates confined animals have enough room to move around.

The concept is preliminary but Corder said the idea would be for the Idaho State Department of Agriculture to define the appropriate care for production and manage the space requirements for animals. He said the only related laws are for waste management and the environment, not animal care.

"I think they're both good, and they both have to be done," said Corder.

The ISDA declined to comment for this article through a spokeswoman.

Corder said he's sure Idaho is targeted for a similar ballot initiative, although Idaho's feedlots are pretty open and there's public grazing. The concentration is on poultry, veal, and some of those operations are moving to Idaho, he said.

But it's often difficult for bills that affect the industries to pass in Idaho without industry support. Wally Butler, a lobbyist for the Idaho Farm Bureau, declined to say whether the bureau supports either bill. He said his organization is engaged in the discussions, but noted last year's unsuccessful effort wasn't clear when it came to enforcement.

"We support good animal husbandry, yet good agricultural production as well," Butler said.

Meanwhile, Kauffman said there are few poultry or swine operations in which space constraints are a concern. But she said she's hopeful about working with Corder in reaching something.

"We fully support farmers raising animals but we support it in a humane way," she said. "If worse comes to worse we would bring a ballot initiative down the road but Idaho is not one of the states that the HSUS is looking at right now?"

BURLEY — A Rupert woman with family buried in Pleasant View Cemetery in Burley has renewed her call for city officials to take better care of the facility. "My mother lived here her whole life and paid taxes," said Dana Hull during a phone interview Thursday. "Does she deserve this?"

Hull approached the Burley City Council two years ago to complain about poorly kept grounds. She was back before the council Tuesday with the same complaint. "In 2007 I was here and presented pictures. At that time I was told the city was looking at a new 2008 (mowing) contract," Hull said. "It's 2009 and it has not changed."

Burley City Councilman Vaughn Egan said that when Hull last raised the issue the council thought the mowing contract expired in 2008. It will expire in October this year. Hull on Tuesday passed a stack of pictures around to the council and members of the audience that showed chipped gravestones, patches of weeds and sunken gravesites. When she called city officials in 2008, she said, they blamed the poor condition of the grounds on the drought. Now they blame it on too much rain, she said. Councilman Dennis Curtis said he thinks the weeds are a real problem and he would like to see the cemeteries in better shape. Egan said he has been tracking the condition of the cemeteries for years and the city pays independent contractor Greenlon Inc., $89,572 to mow the parks and the city's two cemeteries each year, with $34,037 going toward cemetery landscaping. Egan said the company was contracted to mow nine years ago and before that the city did its own maintenance. "Every year for the past nine years the condition of the cemeteries has gotten worse," Egan said. Hull said she came away from the meeting feeling defeated because no course of action was suggested. "I felt like they really left me hanging," Hull said. "Who is going to be held accountable?"

Health care

least-ambitious scenarios under discussion. It might include widely supported measures such as barring insurers from refusing to cover pre-existing medical conditions, and allowing people to carry their insurance from job to job. But it would not include a public insurance option, hefty subsidies to help the poor buy insurance and other priorities of the left.

Political insiders see little hope for a truly bipartisan bill emerging from the current negotiations.

- A 60-Democrats strategy.

This Democrats-only strategy presumably would produce the most robust, far-reaching changes to the health care system. Liberals say that if Republicans won't play ball, there's no point in compromising the agenda Obama campaigned for, including a public insurance option and coverage for nearly all Americans.

But this approach has many hurdles, and insiders consider it a long shot. Senate filibuster rules would force Democrats to persuade each of their 58 members and two independent supporters to vote down the 40 Republicans on issue after issue. Some moderate Democrats would balk on issues they oppose. And two liberal Democrats — Robert Byrd of West Virginia and Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts — are seriously ill and often absent.

Even if the Senate passed a bill with Democratic votes only, conservative House Democrats might band with Republicans to reject it as too expensive.

A Democrats-only approach would fuel Republican accusations of heavy-handed overreaching by Obama and his allies. But it would energize the president's liberal base.

- A handful of Republicans.

Even if the negotiations involving Grassley collapse, it's possible that a tiny number of GOP senators will join nearly all the Democrats in passing a bill that includes most of Obama's priorities. Maine's Republican senators, Olympia Snowe and Susan Collins, are mentioned most often. But they would face enormous pressure not to break ranks and provide the crucial 60th vote to overcome an otherwise solid GOP opposition. And if they did, the resulting bill still would be seen as a Democratic creation, undermining its acceptance by many Americans.

Handicappers give this scenario a less than 50-50 chance.

- Strong-arm tactics.

If they're willing to play true hardball, Senate Democrats still could pass a health care bill without amassing 60 votes on some contentious points.

The "reconciliation" process lets the 100-member Senate pass budget-related items, under tight restrictions, with a simple majority of votes. But items that arguably are unrelated to the budget could be challenged and possibly subjected to the 60-vote threshold. Democrats could submit one big bill and fight to keep as many provisions as possible from falling victim to a 60-vote requirement. Or they could split the package in two:

One bill, dealing with spending questions, could pass under reconciliation rules with as few as 50 votes. The other bill would require 60 votes, and it would be subject to mischievous amendments. But it might include widely popular provisions such as protecting insurance buyers who have pre-existing conditions.

Senate experts differ on how many of Obama's priorities, such as a public insurance option, would fail under the reconciliation process. But everyone agrees the strategy would severely worsen the already testy relationships between Republican and Democratic senators. Because it is complex, unpredictable and divisive, reconciliation is unpopular with many Democrats, not to mention Republicans. But Capitol insiders say Democratic leaders will use it before accepting full-blown defeat, and some see it as the likeliest outcome.

Modified all-Democrats approach. This approach would require Democratic solidarity at some point, but it could be portrayed as a procedural matter rather than a more highly charged policy question.

The crucial votes would occur after the House and Senate had passed separate bills, sent them to a powerful "conference committee" and then prepared to give the reconciled (and possibly much-changed) product a final yes-or-no vote in each chamber.

The first key is to get the House and Senate to pass their own bills, even if they differ widely.

The Senate version probably would be more constrained than the House version, in order to attract enough GOP support to overcome filibusters.

House-Senate negotiators might make the final package closer to the House's more liberal version. That would anger Senate Republicans, and perhaps some moderate Democrats, who could threaten a filibuster on the last showdown vote.

But Obama and his allies could urge the centrist Democrats, in the name of party loyalty, to reject a filibuster even if they plan to vote against the bill itself. If Byrd or Kennedy could not provide the crucial 60th vote, it might come from a retiring Republican who concludes that a huge issue such as overhauling health care deserves an up-or-down vote.

Such a senator might be George Voinovich of Ohio, said Norm Ornstein, who has written about Congress for years at the American Enterprise Institute. This multi-pronged scenario would yield something "closer to a third or quarter of a loaf than the full package" that liberals want, Ornstein said. But with the Senate's 40 Republicans able to use the filibuster, and the House's conservative Democrats able to block a bill they consider too costly, that's probably the most Obama can hope for, he said.

Nothing. All the above options may fail, and partisan clashes could kill the bid to overhaul health care altogether. Top lawmakers consider this unlikely.

When Armageddon used to live west of Buhl

This year is the 50th anniversary of the deployment of the first nuclear-tipped Russian intercontinental ballistic missile. Which is why it's also been a half century since the first Titan I ICBM was armed and readied for use by the United States.

YOU DON'T SAY Steve Crump

There were 54 Titans eventually aimed at the Soviet Union. Three of them were in your back yard.

Desperate for cover and dispersal, the U.S. Air Force from 1961-65 put Titans in places it never thought the Russians would look: Like around Mountain Home Air Force Base in Idaho.

The Air Force built one Titan missile silo 30 miles east of Mountain Home, just across the Snake River in Owyhee County. Another was located midway between Boise and Mountain Home, not far from what's now Interstate 84. The third was set up 29 miles southwest of Glenns Ferry and 49 miles west of Buhl — close enough to be seen from either community had missiles ever been launched.

Luckily, they never were — even though the Idaho Titans were on duty throughout the Cuban Missile Crisis, the building of the Berlin Wall and the testing by the Soviets of the biggest nuclear weapon ever built — the 57-megaton "Tsar Bomba."

But the Titan I couldn't have destroyed a Russian missile silo except by dumb luck. It was a city-killer, with each missile topped by a 3.75-megaton nuclear warhead. With a range of 5,750 miles, the Idaho Titans could have hit Moscow, Leningrad or any of the other eight most populous cities in the Soviet Union at the time.

In the 1970s, the Pentagon estimated that a 3-megaton nuclear bomb which struck the Kremlin would kill 250,000 people outright.

So was there ever a chance that a Russian ICBM would come sailing over Idaho, looking for a Titan silo? Not really.

Good thing too: Titans weren't exactly rapid-response strategic weapons systems.

The two-stage, liquid-fuel rocket had to be gassed up — actually, the kerosene and liquid oxygen were mixed with an oxidizer stored in an underground tank — before launch. For that to happen, the missile had to be raised above ground by a huge elevator system, leaving it a sitting duck for 15 minutes.

The 569th Strategic Missile Squadron, based at Mountain Home, was activated on June 1, 1961; its motto was Aggressurum Deteremus. The outfit became operational on Aug. 16, 1961, three days after the Berlin Wall went up.

During the middle of the Cuban Missile Crisis in October 1962, a fueling accident resulted in 16,000 gallons of liquid oxygen spilling in the bottom of one of the Idaho silos, putting it out of commission for weeks. The commander lost his job, but the Air Force could have lost a missile had a crew member not shut off the kerosene flow before it mixed with the liquid oxygen.

In the summer of 1965, the Air Force deactivated the 569th, mothballing the older Titans and shifting its resources to more accurate and capable Titan II and Minuteman I ICBMs. Within 15 years, the 160-foot-deep silos that had protected Idaho were turned into toxic waste dumps.

Bank official remains hospitalized

Authorities still probing crash that killed Timothy ZeBarth

By Andrea Jackson
Times-News writer

Megan Ridgeway remains hospitalized at Saint Alphonsus Regional Medical Center in Boise, nearly five weeks after a crash that also claimed her fiancé's life.

Meanwhile, law enforcement authorities are still probing what caused the single-vehicle rollover on July 18 in southern Twin Falls County, near 3000 East and 2650 North, Twin Falls County Sheriff's Office Spokeswoman Lori Stewart said this week.

Timothy ZeBarth, 44, a First Federal vice president and manager of the bank's Blue Lakes branch, died in the crash.

Ridgeway, 34, a marketing manager for the bank, was engaged to be married to ZeBarth when the crash happened. She was seriously injured in the rollover and taken to Boise by air ambulance.

She remains hospitalized, and this week faced an infection that required surgery, according to a Web site updated by Ridgeway's family.

The site provides journal entries detailing Ridgeway's recovery process, as well as a guestbook for visitors to communicate with her at <http://www.caring-bridge.org/visit/mridgeway>.

On Thursday, Ridgeway's journal said she was facing a second surgery within a 36-hour span.

"This should be a little easier on her as it is basically a repeat of yesterday's surgery," the site states. "Her spirits are good and were certainly buoyed when she learned that several of the gals at First Federal got together and purchased school supplies and donated money to purchase school clothes for her daughter."

Due to the "nature of her infection" though, Ridgeway's visitors to the hospital are being restricted in the surgical recovery ward, according to the Web site.

"Hopefully this will change once she gets back on the rehab floor which we hope will be in a couple of days."

The site says that Ridgeway "continues to be amazed and so appreciative" of postings to the Web site. "It is truly therapeutic for her. Thanks to all of you that have taken the time to do this."

Ridgeway is believed to have been driving the SUV that rolled into a field, though both she and ZeBarth were found outside of the vehicle, said Twin Falls County Sheriff's Office Sgt. Scott Bishop last month after the crash.

Results of toxicology tests and other pieces of the investigation are still pending and an exact timeline for their completion is not available, authorities said Thursday.

Lincoln County assessment rollercoaster over

By John Plestina
Times-News Writer

SHOSHONE — Calling Lincoln County's assessment rollercoaster a done deal, County Commission Chairman Jerry Nance said several months of squabbling between homeowners, the county and the Idaho Tax Commission is finally over.

But that's bad news for taxpayers.

New assessments that reflected an increase in valuation of more than 50 percent for some property owners will stand despite an attempt by the county commission to change the assessments.

In February, the ITC notified Assessor Linda Jones that Lincoln County was out of state compliance with some property values.

In early June, Jones sent letters informing property owners of the new assessments, which led to 209 taxpayer appeals. The commission rolled the new assessments back to 2008 levels in response.

However, the ITC responded in a July 23 letter that the county was out of state compliance and gave the county the choice of going to a hearing in Boise for disputed assessments or accepting Jones' original assessments.

County commissioners voted unanimously July 29 to accept Jones' original valuations.

"My guess is the total valuation in the county is up between $28 and $30 million," Nance said.

Three weeks ago, he said it was possible that more than 200 property owners could file new appeals following the latest round of notices.

However, the actual number is considerably less.

"The process finished (Wednesday). This time we heard between 30 and 40 that we either heard or they had written information but they did not appear," Nance said.

Hagerman planning and zoning initiates annexation process

By Kimberly Williams-Brackett
Times-News correspondent

HAGERMAN — The Hagerman Planning and Zoning Commission Tuesday voted to approve a recommendation to the City Council to annex properties southeast of Hagerman.

Commission member David Maestas and city Superintendent Casey Kelley identified about 37 property owners whose land is now outside city limits. Several residents already use city water and sewer; others have inquired about hooking up. Maestas suggested "developing a list of benefits for residents to justify being annexed."

County residents do not pay city taxes.

Commission member Almer Huntley asked if there is enough city water to serve the area to be annexed.

"They're already impacting our water now," Kelley answered, adding that the sewer system can handle the added load.

The commission's recommendation will go to the City Council on Sept. 2.

Then, a public hearing will be set up perhaps in October, said Mayor Jake Rice Jr. He said the City Council will draft a letter to residents regarding annexation.

Annexation to Hagerman will be gradual. Kelley said the new Valley View Estates subdivision north of Hagerman needs to be annexed "sometime." There are currently only five houses. Rice said "it's not viable to annex right now."

In other business, Rice said the commission bylaws will be added to Hagerman's City Code. "It's our law," he said, explaining that the city code has not been updated in 25 years.

The bylaws will include an amendment to incorporate changes in the Idaho Open Meeting Law.

The commission voted to approve Hagerman's impact area outlined in the Gooding County Transportation Plan-City of Hagerman Jurisdiction Map. Maestas said, "If we annex land, it must already be in the impact area."

There are 13 elements in the comprehensive plan. "It needs scrutiny, creativity, and approval," said Maestas.

Risch visits Twin Falls today

Times-News

U.S. Sen. Jim Risch, R-Idaho, will be in Twin Falls today for a variety of activities, according to a press release from his office.

At noon, Risch will be the speaker of the Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce lunch at Pandora's, 516

Filer council discusses tourism, area of impact

By John E. Swayze
Times-News correspondent

FILER — The South Central Idaho Tourism and Recreation Association is enlisting the help of area communities in attracting tourists.

Executive Director Debbie Dane asked the Filer City Council Tuesday to assist the association by filling out an electronic survey listing regional sites or signature events — such as the Twin Falls County Fair or Filer Fun Days — that have the potential to attract tourist dollars.

“When we were established in 1995, the state department of commerce did a survey, Dane said. “This is updating and defining our tourism asset inventory for the first time in 14 years.”

The nonprofit sponsors billboard, national magazine and internet marketing campaigns, as well as implementing the Thousand Springs and City of Rocks Scenic Byway corridor management projects. Those efforts, funded through grants from the Idaho Travel Council, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and community support, assist in generating an annual economic impact of more than $3 million.

“Two years ago Filer signed a letter pledging support for a Thousand Springs Scenic Byway Corridor Management Project,” Dane said.

“We have also submitted a grant to develop a wildlife viewing area at the Hagerman rest area.”

In other business, council members have begun the process of reviewing the city's area of impact agreement with Twin Falls County.

One of the changes would allow city ordinances and city code to extend to and be enforceable within the impact area.

“Buhl has already adopted theirs and it really is working well,” Councilman Richard Dunn said.

“They have a violation deal here where they've issued tickets and had some great success in cleaning up some properties that way.”

Once the council drafts the content of a new city impact agreement, a final copy will be presented to county commissioners for approval.

“In my history with the commissioners, so far, they have not went against the city's recommendations,” Dunn said. “I'd like to pursue this within the next six months or so.”

The council is also looking for a volunteer to represent the city's south side area of impact and attend council meetings, acting as a liaison between council members and residents who live south of U.S. Highway 30 to the 3800 North boundary.

Trial set in battery case against state worker

Times-News

Trial dates were set Thursday in the misdemeanor battery case against an employee of the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare.

Gary Ray Pate, 60, is accused of inappropriately touching the chest of a 19-year-old woman, who told authorities in Twin Falls County on May 14 that Pate is her family member through marriage, court papers show.

Pate allegedly told investigators that he “did not remember what had happened” and he has pleaded not guilty to the allegation, according to court records.

Pate was issued a counseling license in 2006 from the state, according to online minutes from the Idaho State Board of Professional Counselors and Marriage and Family Therapy.

Local judges and prosecutors based in Twin Falls have disqualified themselves from involvement in Pate's case, since he was summoned to court on the charge in June.

Judge Mick Hodges from Cassia County is handling the matter, and on Thursday held a pretrial through telephone conference call, which included Pate's attorney, Kevin Cassidy, and Cathy Guzman, a prosecutor from Ada County.

Cassidy said during Thursday's conference call that the prosecution made an offer last week in the case, which has been rejected.

A two-day trial is set to begin on Nov. 17.

Ore. couple injured in accident

Times-News

An Oregon couple was injured Thursday in a motorcycle accident along Interstate 84 northeast of Twin Falls, according to Idaho State Police.

John Shull, 55 of Scappoose, Ore., and his wife, Susan Shull, 51, were traveling westbound on I-84 at milepost 181 when John Shull for unknown reasons lost control of the motorcycle and crashed, according to an ISP release.

Police responded at 1:23 p.m. Both Shulls slid on the freeway. John Shull, who was not wearing a helmet, was transported by Life-flight to Saint Alphonsus Regional Medical Center in Boise with head injuries. He was listed in critical condition Thursday evening.

Susan Shull, who was wearing a helmet, was transported via ground ambulance to St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center. Her condition was unavailable.

The crash is still under investigation by ISP.

“I see one of our challenges this year is we've got four grades at Canyon Ridge High School that have never been there and nobody's familiar with anything, including the drivers,” he said.

Because Twin Falls High School is teaching ninth-grade students for the first year, two grades of students — all ninth- and 10th-graders — are there for the first year.

Robert Stuart and O'Leary middle schools have transformed from junior highs for seventh- through ninth-graders into middle schools for sixth- through eighth-grade students. For those schools two grades of students — sixth and seventh — will be new to campus.

Brower said drivers need to respect school zone speed limits, obey crossing guards and be cautious around buses.

Staff Sgt. Dennis Pullin of the Twin Falls Police Department said all available officers will patrol near schools, adding that the department has a zero-tolerance policy for aggressive drivers in school zones who speed and fail to yield to pedestrians.

There are also two new school zones for Minidoka County School District in Acequia and Heyburn, where two new elementary school buildings are opening.

Minidoka County Sheriff Kevin Halverson said that there will be extra patrols near schools, with deputies required to be in school zones three times a day.

George Warrell, Cassia County undersheriff, said it's easy for drivers to forget that students are in school zones when classes start.

“Kids are kids, and they cross wherever it's easiest for them,” he said, adding that there will be officers in school zones.

Gaylen Smyer, Cassia County School District superintendent, said drivers should adjust their schedule and leave early if they need to travel through school zones so they don't get in a hurry.

“Sometimes it causes drivers to be anxious and try to take chances,” he said.

Heyburn, meanwhile, has lowered speed limits from 35 mph to 15 mph from 7 a.m. to 4 p.m. on streets around Heyburn Elementary School. The new 15-mph zone extends in front of the school on Seventh Street and east of the school on Villa Drive through the new four-way stop at Seventh and Villa. City Police Chief Dan Bristol has said he plans extra enforcement in the area during the first two weeks of school.

said Beth Pendergrass, spokeswoman for the district.

Other districts are taking similar steps.

“We are redoubling our efforts to make sure we're disinfecting surfaces students come into contact with,” said Gaylen Smyer, Cassia County School District superintendent.

Shanna Legault, a registered nurse with Minidoka County School District, said that precautions like hand washing and covering coughs and sneezes need to be followed outside schools as well.

“It's not just the kids that need to do it,” she said. “It's the parents at home. ... We're encouraging hand washing not only with the students but with the teachers.”

Dale Layne, superintendent of Jerome School District, said his district is sending out information to parents and schools will be carefully cleaning surfaces like door knobs.

South Central Public Health District is not expecting its first shipment of H1N1 vaccine until at least mid-October, said Director Rene LeBlanc.

Before that he served for six years as a magistrate judge in Lincoln County and had a private law practice in Buhl for 13 years.

“The downside to all of this is leaving the people that I work with here in Minidoka County and the SNBA (Snake River Basin Adjudication),” Melanson said.

Melanson and his wife, Pamela, have six grown children. He moved from Connecticut to Blackfoot when he was 13 years old and later earned a bachelor's degree in business administration from Idaho State University and a law degree from the University of Idaho.

Melanson served in Vietnam in the U.S. Army from 1969-70 as a hovercraft operator in the 9th Infantry Division, the release said.

“I have tremendous confidence in John and the reputation that he carries into this new appointment,” Otter said in the release. “His experience and perspective will be a welcome addition to the court.”

Minidoka County District Court Deputy Clerk Santos Garza said Melanson is a terrific judge and everyone in that office is saddened to see him leave.

“He's a wonderful man. He is pleasant to work with, conscientious, humble, kind and a hard worker,” said Janet Sunderland, chief deputy of the Minidoka County District Court. “We're thrilled for him but our hearts are broken just a bit.”

Sunderland said there is no one more worthy of serving in a higher court than Melanson.

“We are very lucky to have a person of his character heading off to an appeals position,” Sunderland said. “The governor did an excellent job when he appointed him.”

Warrant issued for mother in case of missing Idaho boy

BOISE (AP) — An arrest warrant was issued Thursday for the mother of a missing 7-year-old Boise boy.

Police believe Luca Principali was abducted Wednesday afternoon by a man acting in cooperation with Luca's mother, 38-year-old Ekatrina Principali of Scottsdale, Ariz. The warrant accuses Principali of second-degree kidnapping.

Boise police issued an Amber Alert for Luca, who was last seen wearing a black Star Wars T-shirt and camouflage shorts. He is 4 feet tall and 60 pounds with brown hair and eyes.

Officers say a man knocked on the apartment door and asked to see Luca because his mother wanted to see him.

The girl who answered the door said she turned her back for a moment, heard a scream, and the man and Luca were gone.

The male suspect is about 45 years old, 5 feet, 11 inches tall and 190 pounds with light brown hair and a beard. He may be driving a Chrysler Town & Country minivan with a California license plate. Officers are also trying to find a 2000 Chevrolet Impala with an Arizona license plate.

The boy's father, Anthony Principali, filed for divorce from Ekatrina Principali in Ada County on Tuesday. Court records say the couple has been separated since July 2008 and that Ekatrina "has not had physical custody or visitation with (Luca) for approximately one and a half years."

Idaho GOP leader faces assault charge

BOISE (AP) — An Idaho Republican Party leader who helped oust the state GOP chairman in 2008 faces charges of aggravated assault with a deadly weapon after an altercation escalated while he photographed a home with a delinquent mortgage.

Challis McAfee, 33, the GOP chairman from the Boise suburb of Garden City and one of 231 voting members of the Idaho Republican Central Committee, was in Ada County jail after being accused of pointing a gun at the homeowner. McAfee works for a contractor hired by Wells Fargo & Co. to document the condition of homes where mortgages are past due or in foreclosure. A Wells Fargo spokesman condemned McAfee's behavior, calling it "horrific and absolutely inexcusable."

McAfee, a backer of libertarian-leaning former GOP presidential candidate Ron Paul and an activist in this year's anti-big-government "Tea Party" protests, helped organize Paul backers who aligned at last June's Idaho State Republican Convention in Sandpoint with other foes of then-state GOP Chairman Kirk Sullivan. Sullivan was voted from office in favor of Norm Semanko.

According to police in the Boise suburb of Meridian, resident Robert Lutes called officers just before 5:30 p.m. Tuesday to report McAfee had pointed a .357 Magnum handgun at him during a verbal confrontation. McAfee acknowledged he pointed the gun at Lutes, according to the police account. "I'm unarmed, I'm an old man," Lutes, 51, told The Associated Press on Thursday. "I'm trying to find out why he's taking pictures of my house. I said, 'Knock on my door, let me know what you want.' Then, I think he's reaching for his business card and he pulls out a concealed weapon and I think he's going to blow my head off."

Lutes said the gun was beneath a cloth on the floor of the passenger side of McAfee's vehicle.

Former ITD chief Lowe seeks redress for firing

BOISE (AP) — Fired Idaho Transportation Department director Pamela Lowe is seeking damages from the state, alleging improper termination and gender discrimination.

Among her claims: One board member said "no little girl would be able to run this department."

In documents obtained by The Associated Press, Lowe also details a whistleblower claim against the state because she was fired after refusing to give into pressure by Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter's appointees not to cut a contract held by major campaign donors.

Lowe, who is seeking lost wages, compensatory, emotional distress and punitive damages, on Thursday referred questions to her attorneys.

Lowe was fired July 16. At the time, Idaho Transportation Board Chairman Darrell Manning said her ouster would help

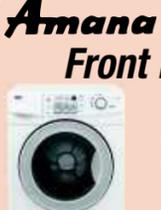

"the department continue improving customer service, economy of operations, accountability and our relations with the Legislature."

Jon Hanian, an Otter spokesman, didn't immediately return a phone call seeking comment. Manning also wasn't immediately available.

The 42nd Parallel option: It will cost ratepayers more

Having heard from taxpayers alarmed by the prospect of a high-voltage transmission lines on their property, five southern-tier Idaho counties want the Gateway West project to look south.

Twin Falls, Cassia, Power, Oneida and Bannock county commissioners say Idaho Power and Rocky Mountain Power should divert their 1,150-mile power line along Idaho’s border with Utah and Nevada.

Idaho farmers concede the alternative they favor could add 25 to 50 miles of transmission lines, with costs for each mile adding $1 million to $2 million.

Doug Dockter, the Gateway West project leader for Idaho Power, says redirecting the line south will add to costs ultimately borne by ratepayers; increase landscape or wildlife impacts that may draw the lawsuits from environmental groups already following this project closely; and merely shift lines and towers to private land elsewhere, possibly creating new conflicts.

“We don’t feel that’s the best solution that’s out there,” Dockter told The Associated Press. “We’re trying to develop a project with the least amount of impact possible, whether it’s to sage grouse or a private property owner.”

Dockter has a point: Wherever Gateway West ultimately runs, it’s going to make somebody unhappy — especially when it comes time to open monthly utility bills.

It’s beyond dispute that the transmission line is needed. The link from Glenrock, Wyo., to Melba is absolutely crucial to meeting Idaho’s future electricity needs.

But it’s also true that the Gateway West project would make tech-dependent modern irrigation practices dicey in its powerful electromagnetic field.

So wherever Gateway West is headed, it will face new challenges. But it will be built — probably later rather than sooner — come higher costs, more lawsuits.

Or both.

Our view:

Don't want a high-voltage power transmission line running through your farm? The alternatives are expensive.

What do you think? We welcome viewpoints from our readers on this and other issues.

Health debate: 3 camps, but few happy campers

One unusual feature of the congressional debate on health care helps explain why the August meetings with voters may be generating more heat than light: Broadly speaking, there are three sides to the debate — and none, on first look, is obviously attractive to a majority of voters.

That means that each side has reason to obfuscate its own position or to spend more time attacking the opposition than defending its own views.

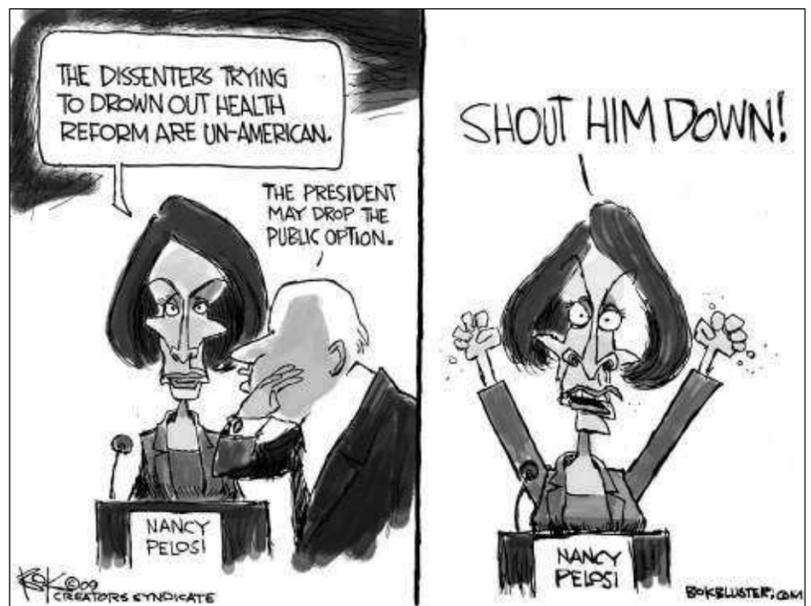

Fred Hiatt

Each camp can make cogent policy arguments. Each can even argue that a majority of voters should be on its side — that its position is in the national interest. But, oddly enough in an era when we assume politicians do nothing but pander, none of the three positions is designed to appeal to a majority of middle-class, already-insured voters.

Take the Cover Everyone Camp. These advocates of universal access, mostly liberal Democrats, can explain why everyone, even the insured, should be on their side. In the world as they would redesign it, people wouldn’t have to worry about losing coverage when they lost their jobs. Their young-adult children would be covered when they left the nest. Insurance companies couldn’t poke around for some concealed preexisting condition before paying up. Insurance premiums wouldn’t be padded, as they are today, to pay for care for the uninsured.

But that padding isn’t visible. And the primary beneficiaries of universal access would be the poor and near-poor who today are not insured (and who vote in fewer numbers).

Even though the uninsured end up costing all of us money, once they were insured they would receive more health care and cost more money — and taxpayers who are currently insured would pick up most of the tab. Universal access is, at base, an anti-poverty program, and anti-poverty programs are not usually a ticket to political success.

Then there’s the Bend the Curve Camp, the Blue Dog Democrats and deficit hawks in the administration and the Senate for whom health reform is a way to control costs — to bend their trajectory down closer to overall inflation. They, too, can explain — and President Obama does so, eloquently — why everyone should be on their side, how rising costs will bankrupt the government and render U.S. factories unable to compete. They can even explain that, because the U.S. system wastes so much, we could reduce costs and be none the worse for it, maybe even healthier.

But that’s a complicated case, made more so by the fact that no one knows for sure how to bend the curve without harming care, though there are promising leads. So it’s not surprising that people who are pretty satisfied with their care — who feel they can see a doctor when they need to, and get whatever tests their doctor orders — will be made nervous by talk of comparative-effectiveness research and reducing payments for unnecessary care.

Most Democrats, it should be said, would maintain that they are in both these camps; the administration certainly comprises both. There is a battle, nonetheless, between those who emphasize the moral imperative, as they see it, of universal coverage and those who fret more over deficits.

But because both are difficult sells, the administration has shifted to calling its program health insurance reform, and implying that one of its big advantages will be to pry annoying claims adjusters off everyone’s back. This was never the main point, and in a world of controlling costs, those adjusters aren’t going away. But it’s one of the misdirections of August.

It almost gives them too much credit to put Republicans in any camp, because many of them have decided that their best strategy is to hang back and carp. But those who do put forward ideas mostly belong in the Let the Market Work Camp, the idea being that if consumers could see the true costs of their health care, they would make wiser decisions.

This, too, could have its attractions to voters, emphasizing as it does the availability of choice and the satisfaction of stuffing government bureaucrats back into their cubicles. But after a bit of reflection, it may alarm many who have insurance. If consumers are to make these wise choices, after all, it implies that many options now open to them will become suddenly expensive. That’s the sort of empowerment not everyone will welcome, especially given that few laymen trust themselves to second-guess medical professionals.

Which may explain why many in the third camp prefer to talk about death panels and rationing rather than the beauties of their own health-care plans.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Jerome officials are reaching out to citizens

During a time when many of us feel disconnected or ignored by our government, we would like to say that this is not the case in the city of Jerome.

On Aug. 10, Jerome City officials had their first “Citizens Academy.” Several Jerome citizens turned out and were briefed on numerous subjects, including the city government system, the infrastructure of the town and a simple-to-understand breakdown of the city budget. The goal was to gather citizens’ involvement and to give us the tools to be effective in the town’s vision and the direction for the future. Usually we vote for city officials only to have no other involvement until the next voting cycle.

We would like to thank the Jerome City Administrator Ben Marchant and Assistant Administrator Micah Austin, as well as Mayor Correll and our four council members for their desire not only to listen to their fellow citizens but actually reach out and tap into those who may have never considered becoming involved at the local level.

Too often we concern ourselves with only the federal government; and while we must never take our eyes off of the Washington crowd, our city officials are our neighbors and do in fact have a very large impact on our day-to-day lives. We hope that this step by the city will encourage more of our community members to step up and be a part of the system that has made Jerome a city that we are both proud to be a member of.

Great discoveries in Twin Falls

I would like to comment on a couple of great things here in Twin Falls. Some folks may or may not be aware of one of these things.

The first great thing is the Twin Falls Muni Band. It provides great entertainment every week during the summer. Burt Huish and Lori Henson are entertaining with their script as co-hosts. And it is a real treat to watch conductor Ted Hadley do his thing. He gets quite passionate about his conducting and always acknowledges folks who do solos. The weekly variety of music is fantastic. Twin Falls folks are fortunate to have a city council that helps back the Muni Band.

The second great thing I have discovered in Twin Falls are the lunches at the Senior Citizen Center. They are appropriately priced and are well balanced. You never go away hungry. Some folks may think you need to be a senior to enjoy the cooking at these lunches. If that is what they are thinking, they are wrong. If you are looking for a good lunch anytime between noon and 12:30 p.m. Monday through Friday, head on over to the Senior Citizen Center. You will also meet some very nice folks with great stories.

Asking some basic questions about Twin Falls' budget

The late President Ronald Reagan often used the phrase "trust but verify." I often repeat it to myself, whether in business or in making decisions on the Twin Falls City Council.

It's a phrase I hope we'll all start using more frequently, especially when evaluating how our money is being used by government. Twin Falls belongs to us; the city employees are employed by us, and the responsibility for the way the city spends our money also belongs to us.

In recent weeks there has been considerable discussion as to the amount of money we should be budgeting for the upcoming year. After reviewing the preliminary budget, I still feel we can and should make more cuts. We are currently "neck deep" in the worst recession we have faced since the Great Depression. We still do not know when the economy will return to its full stature. Until it does, I believe it would be irresponsible to spend taxpayers' money on anything other than specific "needs" or "essential" community services. Now more than ever, taking a moment and weighing in on the discussion may prove vital.

I am concerned about many of the line items in the proposed budget. Why do we have over $641,000 in budgeted overtime? Is spending $125,000 for new bathrooms and a concession stand at the Oregon Trail Youth Complex necessary? It has bathrooms. We do not "need" new ones this year. There is $56,518 budgeted for dues and subscriptions. Unless these are critical to the services the city provides for us, they need to be cut. I am questioning the equipment and various vehicles the city plans to buy this year. They have explained the current ones are tired and worn. So is my Jeep at 200,000 miles. In these difficult financial times, we do not go out and buy new ones "just because we can."

I believe that government should never be more enriched than its citizens. Perhaps it is time to raise the city's health insurance deductible from $500 to a level more in line with private industry — $750 to $2,500. With a more reasonable deductible, we can cut thousands out of the budget.

This decision will be made by the seven City Council members which we elected. Let them know how you feel. They are good people, as are the hard-working, dedicated city employees. They want to do what is best for our community.

Last year the city budget increased by 20 percent, yet only one person came to the public hearing. Should we hold back on nonessential budget items? Should we reallocate the funds to improve roads or use them for other critical issues? Should we keep putting money into the BID or downtown, or is it time to step back and reevaluate the current results? These are questions each of us needs to ask.

The old adage "if you keep doing what you have always done, you will continue to get the same results" is as true today as ever. Maybe it is time to give the house a good, deep cleaning.

Download the current preliminary budget from the city's Web site at www.tffid.org. Attend the public hearing scheduled for Monday at 6 p.m. Share your thoughts and concerns. If you are unable to attend, take a few moments and write a City Council member. Our e-mail addresses are found on the city's Web site.

Twin Falls is a great community and we have competent, hardworking individuals at the helm. But we should never forget they all work for us, and as such it is OK to trust but appropriate to verify. I look forward to your comments.

Will Kezele is serving his first term on the Twin Falls City Council.

Obama's nothing but a falling star

Seven months after taking office amidst a religious-like faith that he was the one (or even The One) we had been waiting for, President Obama is beginning to resemble a shooting star.

Cal Thomas

A new USA Today-Gallup Poll finds that 57 percent of adults believe the president's $787 billion economic stimulus package is having "no impact on the economy or making it worse." The poll asked six questions and the answers reveal that Obama's short-term fixes are producing long-term anxiety. Fifty-four percent told pollsters they think the economy will still be in a recession one year from now. Forty-six percent are "very worried" that stimulus money has been wasted. Significantly, a combined 70 percent say the spending will either have no effect on their personal financial situation (36 percent) or that it will make it worse (34 percent).

Yes, two years into Ronald Reagan's first term economic forecasts also were bleak, but Reagan's faith was in tax cuts and allowing the American people to restart the nation's economic engine. Obama's faith is in higher taxes, more spending and government to not only start the engine, but also build the engine.

An indication of how quickly Obama's shooting star may be burning out is the failure of a White House appeal to the president's massive email list to get fired up about health-care reform. Obama's people thought the youthful enthusiasm of the presidential campaign could be transformed into an army that would roll over opposition to its policy initiatives. So far, that army has been AWOL, apparently preferring to live real lives rather than be caught up in the phony posturing and preening of Washington politicians and bureaucrats.

"What exactly is our problem with government spending?" asks American Enterprise Institute President Arthur C. Brooks in a recent Wall Street Journal column. "It is not just that we think it is wasteful and ineffective (although most recognize this to be true). Americans actually think the government makes it harder for people to get ahead in life."

Brooks is right. Most Americans see government as a last resort, not a first resource. They want it to protect us from foreign dictators and domestic charlatans who would injure or destroy our liberties. The preservation of liberty allows individual citizens the opportunity to advance toward the highest levels of achievement consistent with their skills and persistence. The growing opposition to President Obama comes from people who see his administration as making it more difficult to receive the "blessings of liberty," as our Constitution's Preamble so elegantly put it. It also said "we the people," not "you the government."

The Founders wanted government to be small, responsive to the people and attentive to their hunger for liberty. They did not conceive the unresponsive monstrosity we now have (the reason for so much anger at many town hall meetings), that is unproductive (waste, fraud and abuse) and unattractive (politicians who are careerists rather than true servants of the people). It is a bipartisan affliction as we saw when Republicans controlled all three branches of government and too many appeared out for themselves rather than the public interest.

Another Gallup Poll has found that self-identified conservatives now outnumber self-identified liberals in all 50 states (with self-described moderates acting as swing voters). More Americans now say they are conservative than have made the claim in any of the last four years. If conservatives and Republicans (not always the same) are to take advantage of Obama's declining approval numbers, they must fashion a message that begins not in Washington, but in the heart of every individual.

I have a suggestion. Unlike Obama's "Yes We Can" slogan of the last campaign, how about "Yes You Can"? The rebuilding of the country can begin when more of "we the people" realize that real power lies within each of us and not in Washington. Where are the political leaders to deliver this message? A nation turns its lonely eyes to you.

The late, great bottle of water

Is the bottled water boom coming to an end?

That's the industry banter in the recent wake of major bottled water companies like Pepsi and Nestle reporting less demand for water packaged in a plastic bottle.

The simple explanation is the recession's convinced more people to drink water from a tap. Pepsi CEO Indra Nooyi recently cited the shift to tap water "in this downturn" by some of its "casual" beverage drinkers. Pepsi's Aquafina is the country's biggest bottled water brand.

In a tough economy, Pepsi Bottling North America president Robert King recently told analysts, "one of the first things that a shopper can decide to do is consume tap water as opposed to purchasing bottled water."

Robert Trigaux

"I think we are seeing just a pretty dramatic change in the growth trajectory of that category over the past couple of quarters, and we are assuming that that's going to continue certainly for the foreseeable future," he said.

Another bottled water giant, Nestle, this month reported profits for the first half of this year fell 2.7 percent. It was Nestle's first decline in six years and was led by a dip in bottled water.

Coca-Cola, which sells Dasani bottled water, also says demand is softening. Recent stories in the Wall Street Journal and

Washington Post have been accompanied by such headlines as "Bottled Water, R.I.P.?" and "Bottle Water Boom Appears Tapped Out?"

The Beverage Marketing Group says Americans drank 8.7 billion gallons of bottled water last year, down from 8.8 billion gallons in 2007. It was the first decline in this decade.

Recession played a part in the drop. But environmental concern may prove a more lasting reason.

Not only do empty water bottles pose a massive waste problem. The plastic bottles themselves are made from oil another precious and expensive resource and reports are on the rise that contaminants in the plastic can leach into the water.

One bottled water brand called Fiji Water, controlled by a couple in Beverly Hills, Calif., is under attack in a Mother Jones magazine story for being packaged in Chinese-made plastic bottles and hauled thousands of miles "to its eco-conscious consumers."

On Monday, Nestle said it will start offering a bottled water called "re-source water" packaged with a higher percentage of recycled plastic. The company also will work with "select" Whole Foods stores to recycle the bottles and allow users to claim a container deposit. Nestle will donate a nickel per recycled bottle to Keep America Beautiful, reports Reuters.

Want to keep it simple and cheap? Drink more tap water.

Indecent exposure: It's lust, American style

Sadly, there's no such thing as a private affair anymore.

We live in a transparent era atwitter with indecent exposure.

Next up in bookstores: "Madoff's Other Secret: Love, Money, Bernie, and Me," by Sheryl Weinstein, a 60-year-old former executive with the Jewish women's group Hadassah, who writes that she was romantically involved with the fraudulent financier in the early '90s, though both were married.

The last thing you probably need in your head at this point are images of the Wall Street sociopath nuzzling and nicking. Weinstein, according to a preview in The New York Daily News, gets her revenge for losing her life savings by revealing that Madoff's unimpressive assets were not merely financial. She also recalls that her friends called her Bernie "Winky Dink" because he blinked anxiously when he was around her.

Jenny Sanford is still sharing about her husband's affair. Her interview in Vogue is accompanied by a leggy photo of the 47-year-old in a beach cover-up that looks like a fetching ad for a new, less embarrassing husband. She has moved out of the governor's mansion but says she's still open to getting back together, noting that pastoral and marriage counseling taught her that "these affairs are almost like an addiction to alcohol or pornography."

"I think," she tells the interviewer, "my husband has got some issues that he needs to work on, about happiness and what happiness means."

She couldn't resist Googling her husband's Maria and generously deemed her "pretty." "I am sure she is a fine person," she says. "It can't be fun for her, though I do sometimes question her judgment. If she knew the newspaper had those e-mails back in December, why did she want him to come in June?"

Jenny, who says she wasn't "madly in love" with Mark Sanford when she married him, is praying for her husband's soul mate. Her friends agreed she'd be fine with or without him.

There's even a TV show inspired by the wives of misbehaving politicians — women who long to never hear the words "long suffering" again. In the new CBS drama "The Good Wife," Julianna Margulies channels Jenny, Silda, Hillary and Elizabeth, summoning stoicism even when her teenage daughter tells her, "Some girl said Dad slept with a hooker my age."

When the Sanford scandal broke, some chatterers contended it was a sign we should have more women in public office because they get less caught up in sexual intrigue.

A pol paying for sex with a call girl is an old story. But even Heidi Fleiss dropped plans for a bordello for female clients outside Pahrump, Nev., telling The Las Vegas Review-Journal that she's now focused on alternative energy because "that's where the money is."

The only place at the moment where you can see women forking over money to have sex with a gigolo is on HBO's salaciously named "Hung." The kooky comedy is about a divorced Detroit high school basketball coach, Ray Drecker (played by Thomas Jane), who needs money after his house burns down and his twin teenagers are forced to go live with their mother. He decides to sell his best asset, dubbing himself "a happiness consultant," and teams up with an unlikely pimp, Tanya Skagle (played by Jane Adams), an aspiring poet who listens to PBS and has "Proust" tattooed on her forearm.

His first lesson on the job is that women frequently derive sensual happiness in a more complex way than men. One of his first clients is a sexy blond who has had bad luck with guys. He is befuddled to find he must fulfill her fantasies rather than her libido — running along the lake laughing and picnicking with her; going to couples therapy and pretending to be a rich ex-boyfriend; and feigning falling madly in love with her because it's their fate.

After paying him cash to pick her up by the side of the road, she accuses him of making "an inappropriate pass." His Proustian pimp has to explain that the young woman with the "bruised heart" is seeking a romantic connection more than a physical one. "OK," he says with exasperation. "I'll pretend I'm totally in love with this freak."

After many rewrites and redos, Drecker tries to summon the necessary acting chops to give his client what she's paying for. In the parking lot of the roadside diner where they keep eating while he struggles to figure out what this woman wants.

"I just wish in some crazy long-shot version of this universe," he tells her, "that you would stay here with me and not vanish from my life."

When he spits out the word "destiny," he finally manages to please her — momentarily.

On defense, Obama woos right, left on health care

By Philip Elliott
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — With control of the health care debate slipping from his grasp, President Obama pitched his ambitious plan to both conservative talk radio and his own liberal supporters Thursday — and denied a challenge from one backer that he was “bucklin’ a little bit” under Republican criticism.

Liberals were on the verge of revolt as Obama refused to say any final deal must include a government-run insurance option, while Republicans pressed their all-but-unified opposition to the White House effort. Obama, who will leave Washington Friday on vacation, said reason would prevail and it was no time to panic.

“I guarantee you ... we are going to get health care reform done. And I know that there are a lot of people out there who have been hand-wringing, and folks in the press are following every little twist and turn of the legislative process,” Obama told a caller to Philadelphia-based radio talk show host Michael Smerconish during a broadcast from the White House Diplomatic Reception Room.

“You know, passing a big bill like this is always messy?”

— President Obama

Obama is struggling to regain the momentum on a comprehensive bill that would extend health coverage to nearly 50 million Americans who lack it and restrain skyrocketing costs.

Opponents of the overhaul have drowned out supporters at lawmakers’ town halls around the country this month, and public backing for Obama’s effort has slipped in opinion polls. Congressional Democratic leaders are preparing to go it alone on legislation, although bipartisan negotiations continue in the Senate.

On the defensive, Obama is embracing a new role of fact checker-in-chief, trying to correct untrue claims such as that the proposals would provide health care for illegal immigrants, create “death panels” or pay for abortions with taxpayer dollars. Aides say the situation has left Obama exasperated.

“Now, c’mon,” a mocking Obama told a cheering crowd late Thursday at a Democratic National Committee appearance designed to re-energize activists who were instrumental in his drive to the presidency. “What we’re going to have to do is to cut through the noise and the misinformation.”

“I said during the campaign that the best offense against lies is the truth,” Obama said. “And so all we can do is just keep on pushing the truth.”

Yet for all the gnashing from Republicans and fiscally conservative Democrats, he faces equally tough opposition from lawmakers and activists on the left who insist any overhaul must include a government-run insurance option.

In fact, shortly after his comments Thursday, House Speaker Nancy Pelosi declared the Democratic-controlled House simply won’t approve the overhaul without it.

“There’s no way I can pass a bill in the House of Representatives without a public option,” Pelosi, D-Calif., said after a roundtable in San Francisco.

Obama told his DNC audience — as well as thousands watching online and listening by telephone — that health care was the toughest fight he has faced in office.

Ridge says he was pressured on terror alerts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Homeland Security Secretary Tom Ridge claims in a new book that he was pressured by other members of President George W. Bush’s Cabinet to raise the nation’s terror alert level just before the 2004 presidential election.

Ridge says he objected to raising the security level despite the urgings of former Defense Secretary Donald H. Rumsfeld and then-Attorney General

John Ashcroft, according to a publicity release from Ridge’s publisher. He said the episode convinced him to follow through with his plans to leave the administration; he resigned on Nov. 30, 2004.

Bush’s former homeland security adviser, Frances Townsend, said Thursday that politics never played a role in determining alert levels.

Two tapes were released by al-Qaida in the weeks leading up to the election — one by terrorist leader Osama bin Laden and the other by a man calling himself “Azzam the American.” Terrorism experts suspected that “Azzam the American” was Adam Gadahn, a 26-year-old Californian whom the FBI had been urgently seeking.

Townsend said the videotapes contained “very graphic” and “threatening” messages.

FDIC may ease private equity buys of failed banks

By Marcy Gordon
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — Federal regulators appear ready to temper proposed restrictions on private equity firms seeking to buy failed banks, as the government seeks to lure more potential purchasers amid a mounting tally of collapsed financial institutions.

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., which proposed the new policy last month, is expected to make the changes when its board meets on Aug. 26 and publicly adopts final guidelines, people familiar with the issue said Thursday.

Private equity firms, which generally buy distressed companies and then resell them after about three to five years, would face strict capital and disclosure requirements under the FDIC proposal.

Seventy-seven banks already have failed this year, including the Ketchum-based First Bank of Idaho, amid rising loan defaults spurred by tumbling home prices and spiking unemployment, costing the deposit insurance fund — which is financed by assessments on U.S. banks — billions of dollars. The FDIC, which seizes the banks and seeks buyers for their branches, deposits and soured loans, has said the private equity industry can play a valuable role in injecting sorely needed capital into the banking system.

Still, FDIC Chairman

FDIC spokesman Andrew Gray declined to comment Thursday on what action the agency might take on the guidelines.

Industry interests say the FDIC proposal tipped the balance in a way that discourages private equity firms from buying banks. And two of the FDIC board members — Comptroller of the Currency John Dugan and John Bowman, acting director of the Office of Thrift Supervision — warned publicly that it may be overly restrictive.

The regulators “are interested in anything that can help them get rid of failed banks and failed banks’ assets,” said Chip MacDonald, an attorney at Jones Day in Atlanta whose clients include some private equity firms.

But the FDIC policy in its current form “doesn’t fly economically” for private equity buyers, he said.

Lawrence Kaplan, a former senior attorney at the Office of Thrift Supervision, said it’s an interesting dilemma for the FDIC.

New jobless claims rise to 576K

By Christopher S. Rugaber
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — The number of first-time claims for unemployment benefits rose unexpectedly for the second straight week, a sign that jobs remain scarce even as other data show the U.S. economy is stabilizing.

Many economists expect the economy to grow at a modest pace in the second half of this year, bringing an end to the longest recession since World War II. But jobs are likely to remain scarce and many analysts worry that persistently high unemployment could cause consumers to hold back on spending, threatening a recovery.

The Labor Department said Thursday the number of new jobless claims rose to a seasonally adjusted 576,000 last week, from a revised figure of 561,000. Wall Street economists expected a drop to 550,000, according to a survey by Thomson Reuters.

Economists closely watch initial claims, which are considered a gauge of layoffs and an indication of companies’ willingness to hire new workers.

“Consumer spending is going to have a very difficult time recovering with the labor market as weak as it is,” said Joshua Shapiro, chief U.S. economist at MFR Inc.

Transportation Secretary Ray LaHood gestures during a news conference in Washington, Wednesday, where he assured frustrated car dealers that they will be reimbursed for the popular Cash for Clunkers program, for buyers trading in older vehicles for new, more fuel-efficient models.

Cash for Clunkers to end on Monday

By Ken Thomas and Stephen Manning

WASHINGTON — The Obama administration will end the popular $3 billion Cash for Clunkers program on Monday, giving car shoppers a few more days to take advantage of big government incentives.

The Transportation Department said Thursday that the government will wind down the program on Monday at 6 p.m. MDT. Car buyers can receive rebates of $3,500 or $4,500 for trading in older vehicles for new, more fuel-efficient models.

Transportation Secretary Ray LaHood said the program has been “a lifeline to the automobile industry, jump starting a major sector of the economy and putting people back to work.” He said the department was “working toward an orderly wind down of this very popular program.”

The White House has touted the program’s success in providing a targeted boost to the sluggish economy since its inception in late July. Through Thursday, auto dealers have made deals worth $1.9 billion and the incentives have generated more than 457,000 vehicle sales.

But the administration needed to put a halt to the program to avoid surpassing the $3 billion funding level. Consumers were on pace to exhaust the program’s coffers in early September and dealers have complained about long delays in getting reimbursed for the car incentives.

John McEleney, chairman of the National Automobile Dealers Association, said he remained concerned that so few dealers had been reimbursed for Clunker deals. But he said the Monday deadline should give dealers time to get their paperwork in order.

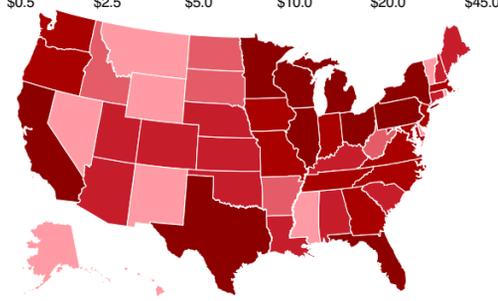

“I think if we can get a clean cutoff Monday and get everything processed by then, it will

Bernanke's tough task: Withdrawing emergency aid

By Jeannine Aversa
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — When the financial system was teetering, Federal Reserve Chairman Ben Bernanke flooded it with trillions of dollars to save the banks and free up credit for consumers and businesses.

Analysis

Looming in the future is a high-challenge for the economy’s rescuer-in-chief: He will have to mop up that money without disrupting a nascent recovery.

And timing is vital. Act too fast, and Bernanke risks choking off lending to businesses and everyday Americans. Wait too long, and he risks setting off crippling inflation.

“We are in such an unusual situation,” said Lyle Gramley, a Fed member in the early 1980s and now chief economic strategist at Soleil Securities Corp. “The Fed will have a more difficult set of decisions to make.”

Assuming he manages to help usher in a sustained recovery, Bernanke, like his predecessors, will eventually face still another challenge: He will be under enormous political pressure to keep interest rates low, even though that could speed inflation.

But the Fed chief will face no task with quite the peril of withdrawing the trillions the Fed has pumped into the financial system in ways that had never been envisioned.

That money helped prop up shaky banks. It also was intended to unlock lending to people and companies, a key component of any recovery but one that so far has had only spotty success.

When, precisely, to pull back the money is an issue sure to surface as Bernanke, his counterparts in other countries, academics and economists meet over the next couple of days at an annual Fed conference in Jackson Hole, Wyo.

Some analysts think it could take four or five years for the Fed to withdraw the money entirely and shrink a balance sheet that is now about $2 trillion, more than double what it was when the financial crisis struck.

Already, the Fed has taken baby steps. Earlier this month, it signaled it won’t extend past October a $300 billion government debt-buying program.

Popplewell welcomes kids back to school

By Blair Koch
Times-News correspondent

BUHL — For as long as any teacher at Popplewell Elementary School in Buhl can remember, younger students had classrooms in the “lower wing” and the older kids were in the “upper wing.”

That’s all changed now, in an effort by Principal Ron Anthony to shake things up to improve learning at the school. The new setup has fourth- and fifth-graders in the lower wing, alongside kindergartners and first-graders.

Second- and third-grade classrooms are now in the upper wing with special education, art and English as a Second Language rooms.

Some students didn’t like the idea of heading back into “little kid territory” but others, like third-grader Jacob Thomas, didn’t mind the mixed arrangement.

Students within the Buhl School District returned to class on Wednesday.

“I feel great going back to school. I’m just going to have to remember to go this way,” Thomas said, pointing toward the other end of the school.

The idea, said Anthony, was for older kids to serve as role models for the newest students JARBIDGE, Nev. — The song “This is our Town” was sung with a rich voice by Nevada singer, songwriter, cowboy, and poet Richard Elloyan in concert during Jarbidge, Nev.’s centennial last weekend.

President of the Jarbidge Arts Council, Jane Smith, said Elloyan performed two years ago, and the arts council requested he write a song to commemorate their centennial. The Jarbidge Arts Council owns the copyright.

One of the area’s old timers, 101-year-old Nelle Jensen, shared her memories of the Jarbidge years from 1910 to 1932. Jensen said six generations of her family have lived in Jarbidge, beginning with her grandparents. She even attended school there.

“She is quite the legacy,” said her youngest daughter, Bonnie Whalen.

There was even old-time fun for the kids. Resident Leslie Paul led youngsters in period fun and games at Pioneer Park.

Jarbidge Fire Chief Ken Heil estimated that 600 to 800 people attending the centennial.

Janel Smith said 250 Jarbidge centennial commemorative medallions were pressed, and 190 sold. The Jarbidge Community Association will use any profits to help with the restoration of the historic Jarbidge Community Hall.

Jarbidge is a small town cradled in Elko County just south of the Idaho state line. Located on the edge of the Jarbidge Wilderness, it’s noted for its remoteness on the West Fork of the Jarbidge River. The only thing more nauseating and terrifying than the winding but scenic one-lane unpaved Jarbidge Canyon Road are the Mormon crickets, which have infested

Fasting is not the best or safest way to detox your body

DEAR DR. GOTT: I read your column regularly and really appreciate your penchant for completely identifying and describing the maladies you discuss.

Please say a few words about fasting. I mean ingesting nothing but water for several days for the purpose of letting the body cleanse and/or readjust itself, not necessarily for weight loss.

I have a friend who fasts regularly — a one- or two-day fast monthly and a five-day fast each quarter year. He says the latter completely clears his body of toxins and essentially lets it start out renewed.

My PCP pooh-poohs fasting as a health benefit for the body, but my neighbor is in his 50s, is as fit as the proverbial fiddle and cites a lot of pro-fasting information from Europe, where he says it is relatively common.

Your comments, please. I would really like to know what you think of the subject.

DEAR READER: I am unaware of any scientific evidence to substantiate that fasting will remove toxins from the body. From a medical view, it is not a valid, healthful approach to weight loss or as a means of ridding the body of toxins. When undertaken for the purpose of weight loss, the process can carry health risks. Fasting is often accompanied with the use of an enema taken to cleanse the intestinal tract. The intestinal tract contains both “good” and “bad” bacteria in a delicate balance. If the good bacteria (necessary for proper body functions) are removed, this important balance is disrupted and problems can occur. The liver remains the body’s detoxification center. With the help of the kidneys, colon, lungs and skin, toxins are removed from the body of a healthy person naturally.

I have taken my personal stand, but will probably in the school and get teachers conversing with colleagues they may have otherwise just passed in the hall.

"In the past, the school was divided and with this, I hope to create a community of learning," Anthony said.

Anthony said in addition to moving classrooms he also rearranged teacher assignments, "matching the strengths of the teachers with the weaknesses of the school."

For instance, some teachers used to teaching first grade were asked to teach second.

Not all teachers preferred the new arrangement. One instructor who had taught at the school for more than 30 years went to Castleford.

"She wasn't too pleased with it, but she'd taught first grade for so long, only had one year (before retiring) and wanted to finish out in the first grade," Anthony said.

Fourth-grade teacher Judy Juker, who has taught at the school for 30 years as well, said moving supplies was a bit laborious but everything "was coming together nicely."

"I got to stay teaching the same grade but moved classrooms. It was a big adjustment, let me tell you, but I think the kids and teachers will adjust," Juker said.

She said the school's teachers already communicate well but the new arrangement presented an opportunity to build on that.

"We all have to be flexible," Juker said. "We're here to make life-long learners"

The school has failed to meet Adequate Yearly Progress, mandated under the federal No Child Left Behind laws, in math for four years. While the school didn't meet AYP in low income and second-language learners, Anthony said the school is striving to make all students successful.

The school will submit a school improvement plan in regard to AYP and Anthony said the changes will be a part of that plan.

"We dumped out the apple cart and put the apples back in but they didn't all go in the same place as before. Was it a little hectic? Yes, but we're adjusting and ready for the year," Anthony said.

Jarbridge

Jarbridge for three years. The crickets, at least, skipped the centennial.

"We baited them and prayed," said Smith.

The name Jarbridge originates from an Indian word "Jahabich," which means "devil." According to folklore, a local giant named Tsaw-haw-bitts became enraged at the sight of fire and roared to make the air shake. He could throw stones as big as a man's head for a distance of a half-mile. The cannibal would pick up people, put them in his basket, and take them home.

Idaho State University Associate Professor Phil Homan said in the late 1890s, buckaroos found a gold nugget the size of a walnut caught in a horse's hoof on Kittie Wilkins Island, which borders Jarbridge to the northeast. At the turn of the century, gold was found again.

In 1908 Congress established the Humboldt National Forest. David Bourne discovered gold on Aug. 19, 1909, making it the last gold rush in the American West. Miners began coming to Jarbridge at the rate of 30 to 40 a day until 1,500 gold seekers moved in, living mainly in tents.

A presidential proclamation excluded Jarbridge from the forest in 1911, allowing private ownership of land. Fifteen buildings in the lively business district, including an eatery built of bottles, were leveled by fire in 1919, and many were never rebuilt. After the gold boom, the population rarely exceeded 200. The mines closed in the 1930s after producing about 355,000 ounces of gold and 1.67 million ounces of silver.

The last stagecoach robbery in the United States transpired Dec. 5, 1916 in Jarbridge. Rogerson-Jarbridge stage driver Fred Searcy was shot and killed for $3,200. The money was never found and is believed to be buried somewhere in the vicinity of Jarbridge.

Jarbridge not only had a "last," it also had a "first" in this case. Murderer Ben Kuhl left a bloody palm print on a discarded letter in the crime area. This was the first time a print was admitted as evidence in a court of law.

Today, Jarbridge hosts approximately a dozen year-round residents with its population swelling during receive countless letters with opposing views regarding this ongoing debate. I am grateful readers feel strongly enough to take a stand either for or against the process.

My recommendation is to eat a healthful diet that includes fresh fruits and vegetables, drink water when thirsty, exercise to the capability allowed and get adequate sleep. Reduce alcohol consumption and discontinue smoking. These changes will allow the average person to forget all about fasting and to concentrate on other more important issues — such as the health care system crisis we are facing.

For those readers who are considering fasting for weight loss, I recommend my Health Report "A Strategy for Losing Weight." The reduction of flour and sugar from the diet is a safe, inexpensive and successful alternative. Simply send a self-addressed, stamped, No. 10 envelope and a check or money order for $2 to Newsletter, PO Box 167, Wickliffe, OH 44092. Be sure to mention the title.

Jess (Dutch) Arnold Mullnix

With his loving wife by his side, Dutch Mullnix passed away peacefully Monday, Aug. 17, 2009. Dutch had contracted pneumonia at River Ridge Care and Rehabilitation, which ultimately led to his death at St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center in Twin Falls.

Dutch was born April 8, 1922, in Beloit, Iowa, to Geraldine Fitzgerald and Jess Mullnix and worked on the small family farm with his parents and seven siblings, five boys and two girls, throughout his childhood. It was there that he acquired an honest, hard-work ethic which he passed on to each of his six children upon his marriage to Betty Mae Ver Wey. Betty eventually gave birth to two girls and four boys, Terry (Linda), Jackie (Armour) Anderson, Gale, Darrell, Jeff (Joanne) and Joan (Les) Schultz.

Dutch was drafted into the United States Army during World War II at the age of 20, inducted into the service at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., beginning active duty Nov. 2, 1942, and was honorably discharged Dec. 29, 1945. Dutch served in the 96th Division, 383rd Regiment, 2nd Battalion, E Company, 3rd Platoon, acquiring the rank of sergeant. Dutch served as a scout during World War II and was wounded twice (earning two Purple Hearts), once while fighting on Leyte, Philippines, and again when engaged in the fierce and bloody battle of Okinawa. Dutch was awarded many medals during his time in the Army, among them Marksmanship, Sharpshooter, Good Conduct and the Bronze Star Medal. After the war he, his wife, Betty, and five children moved to Jerome in 1955; their youngest child, Joan, was born in Jerome in 1956.

Dutch divorced Betty in 1966 and later married Norma Jean Slatter on July 6, 1968. Norma had three children, two girls and a boy, Loretta "Lori" (Dennis) Stone, Theresa (Jim) Holley and Ben (Kim) Slatter, from a previous marriage. Dutch later adopted Theresa and throughout their 41-year marriage, Dutch and Norma shared a loving and beautiful marriage together.

Throughout his lifetime, Dutch worked hard as an assistant manager of a grocery store in South Dakota, worked in a granary, cheese factory, bartender at various lounges and bars in Twin Falls (often times with Norma as the bar-maid) and maintenance at the College of Southern Idaho, where he eventually retired in 2002.

Dutch loved all nine of his children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren very much and was always good at expressing his love for them. Dutch always believed in "a hard day's work for a hard day's pay" and enjoyed people who often commented on his kindness, politeness and caring.

Dutch outlived all seven of his siblings and was preceded in death by his lovely daughter, Jackie. Dutch touched the lives of many, especially his wife, Norma, and his children who all know he's in heaven with God by his side.

A celebration of Dutch's life will be held at 11 a.m. Monday, Aug. 24, at Reynolds Funeral Chapel, 2466 Addison Ave. E. in Twin Falls, with Pastor Jim Tubbs of First Christian Church officiating. A viewing for all family and friends will begin at 9 a.m. Monday at Reynolds Funeral Chapel. Burial will follow at Sunset Memorial Park, with military honors by the Magic Valley Veterans Association and the Idaho National Guard. Services are under the direction of Reynolds Funeral Chapel in Twin Falls.

Karen Chavez

RUPERT — Karen Mae Chavez, age 33, of Rupert, died Tuesday, Aug. 18, 2009, at the University Hospital in Salt Lake City, Utah.

She was born on Dec. 31, 1975, in Rock Springs, Wyo. She received her education in Gooding, graduating from the Idaho State School for the Deaf and Blind. While in school, she was active and participated in sports. It was in school where she met her lifelong best friend, Frank Clark. They have been together for more than 13 years.

She was expert in computers and enjoyed the communicating skills available through text messaging. She was a wonderful homemaker and enjoyed cooking, baking and crafts. What stands out most is her unbelievable love for her children. She truly was an outstanding daughter, sister, mother, aunt and friend. She was an active member of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints and attended the Star 1st Ward.

She is survived by her best friend and confidant, Frank Clark of Rupert; her children, Isabelle and Lexi Clark; her parents, Michael and Carol Hanks of Rupert; one sister, Bonnie (John) Pena of Rupert; three nieces, Daysha, Alex and Kianna Pena; her grandfather, Lloyd Chavez of Blackfoot; and numerous aunts, uncles and cousins. Lanora Christena Jensen Cummins Lanora Christena Jensen Cummins passed away early Wednesday morning, Aug. 19, 2009, at the age of 82.

Lanora was born Dec. 15, 1926, to Lawrence and Nora Jensen. She was the youngest of five children and adored by her parents. They lived in a little farmhouse west of Eden while Lanora was a child. She loved her farm animals, tending the chickens and pigs, and took great pride in the fact that she had her own horse to ride to and from school. After finishing school, Lanora moved to Utah to work on a military base. It was there that she met a sharp-dressed sailor named Aubrey. While he was deployed during the war, he and Lanora wrote letters to each other that developed a deep friendship. After awhile, that friendship turned into romance. As soon as Aubrey was discharged they were married. Lanora made no secret that Aubrey was the love of her life. Lanora and Aubrey had four healthy, rambunctious boys, Terry, Allen, Mark and Daniel. She worked tirelessly side-by-side with Aubrey on their farm. She was his right hand "man." She did everything he did, drove tractor, irrigated and harvested, all while taking care of the boys and keeping a home. While not working, she loved to take the boys fishing or camping. Her favorite spot was Trail Creek. She had endless stories of the adventures they would have while there.

Lanora's boys were her heart and soul. She put all she had into raising them. She was proud to be the mother of such great men. While the boys were young, they gave her a run for her money. She had to be on her toes to keep up with them. It wasn't unusual for her to find them up to one kind of mischief or another. But she loved them in spite of it and probably because of it. When the boys were in school, she was their biggest fan, supporting them at sporting events and school functions. She was an active member of the PTA and served as the PTA president for a while. Lanora had a soft spot for children, and it wasn't uncommon to find that she was taking in a child who needed a place to stay for a

Homer Price

RUPERT — Homer Keith Price, 92, of Rupert, was born on a farm in Russell (Lucas County), Iowa, on Dec. 3, 1916, the 13th child of Charles Sumner Price and Emma Florence Mart Price.

Homer passed away on Wednesday, Aug. 19, at the Autumn Haven Assisted Living Center in Rupert.

Homer attended rural schools in Iowa and, in 1927, moved to Box Butte County, Neb., with his parents and brother, Kenneth. He graduated eighth grade in Box Butte County. In 1932, Homer's parents returned to Iowa. Homer stayed and worked with his older brothers, Fred and Glenn. Later, he worked lambing out ewes for a dollar a day. At the ripe old age of 15, he and two other fellows jumped on a freight train and went to Idaho Falls and did odd jobs. They got enough money to buy an old Ford pickup and traveled to Washington to pick apples and pears until one of his friends fell out of an apple tree, and they returned home to Nebraska.

Homer married Willetta Lorraine Nicholson in Denver, Colo., on Feb. 19, 1936. They lived in Colorado, where Homer worked in the gold mines and was paid in gold and later moved to Idaho, where Homer worked for the Holden Brothers Potato Co. in Idaho Falls, then back to Nebraska to farm with brothers, Charles and Glenn. On July 9, 1941, Homer was inducted into the Army. Sgt. Homer K. Price of the 370 2nd Army Air Force Base Unit was discharged with honors on April 3, 1946.

Muster out pay was $300 and 90 cents travel money. Homer served in the Pacific Islands Theater from April 1942 to October 1945. While on the islands, Homer contacted cholera and yellow fever. Homer received the American Defense Medal, Asia and Pacific Medal and Good Conduct Medal. Homer returned home to Hemingford, Neb., where he and Willetta farmed until he drew on a homestead in 1957 and moved north of Rupert in 1958.

Homer and Willetta raised five children, a daughter, Marcine, and four sons, Kenneth, Ron, Don and Dennis. Homer and Willetta divorced in 1977. Homer was proud to have served in the military and loved his country. He was exceptionally proud that, at one time, all five of his children were in the armed forces.

Homer is preceded in death by his parents; 12 siblings; a daughter, Marcine (Price) Sult; son, Kenneth Price; one great-grandson, Logan Souza; and one daughter-in-law, Barbara Price. Homer is survived by three sons, Ron Price of Hansen, Don and Linda Price of Rupert and Dennis and Linda Price of Alliance, Neb.; 13 grandchildren; 29 great-grandchildren; one great-great-grandchild; and numerous nieces and nephews.

At Homer's request, there will be no viewing or service. There will be a private family and friend gathering at the Don and Linda Price residence in Rupert.

A special thank you goes out to Anissa and staff at Autumn Haven; your kindness and compassion helped us through a very difficult time, and we are truly grateful. Also Minidoka County Hospice for their support.

Dad, we love you and will miss you; see you another day, Old Farm.

Cremation services are under the direction of Morrison Funeral Home and Crematory in Rupert.

Keith L. Wilson

HEYBURN — Keith L. Wilson, age 88, of Heyburn, passed away peacefully on Wednesday, Aug. 19, 2009, at the Minidoka Memorial Hospital in Rupert, surrounded by his family.

Keith was born in Tremonton, Utah, on Feb. 12, 1921, to Guy E. and Hannah Ransom Wilson. Keith developed a love for sports early on in life, playing basketball, baseball, football, and was even an amateur boxer. Shortly after graduating from Rupert High School, Keith trained as a pilot in the United States Army Air Force, where he received an honorable discharge. He then went on to Brigham Young University, where he received a bachelor's degree in education and a master's degree in counseling and guidance.

Keith and his sweetheart, Edna, were married on Jan. 29, 1950, and were later sealed as a family in the St. George LDS Temple. Their union was blessed with nine children. He enjoyed sharing his love of life, while singing songs and reciting poetry.

Keith was a dedicated teacher and coach for more than 32 years at several colleges and schools: Carbon and Dixie colleges, Declo, Minico, Sugar-Salem and Raft River High schools and Burley Junior High School. Keith cared for each of his students and athletes, and he encouraged each one to reach their highest potential in life and sports.

Keith was an avid collector. The many garage sales he frequented served as a primary source for his collections of coins, stamps, sports cards, rocks and antiques. Keith was an enthusiastic entrepreneur and invented his own hand soap, Keith's Hand Cleaner. He spent his summers and retirement eager to show anyone he knew how "just a sprinkle cleans all wrinkles."

Keith was a faithful member of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints and, through his example, he taught his family to love the gospel. Keith served in various callings in the church. He was a true example of the power of service to others.

Nothing made Keith happier than spending time with his wife and family. His example of dedication and love will serve as a model for each of his family members throughout their lives. His family developed a deep love and respect for him and will miss his witty humor, unconditional love and his constant guidance and support.

Keith is survived by his wife, Edna (Schow) Wilson; his children, Marie (Jerry) Garner of Heyburn, Kayelle (Don) Bywater of Paul, Sara (Robert) Haynes of Burley, Keith (Dana) Wilson Jr. of Pleasant Grove, Utah, Jon (Shauna) Wilson of Vancouver, Wash., Joan (Brian) Smith of Livermore, Calif., and Linda (Max) Bean of Burley; one son-in-law, Ron (Susan) Hunsaker of Federal Way, Wash.; one sister, Hazel Wilson Cordon-Bailey of Provo, Utah; 27 grandchildren; 43 great-grandchildren; and one great-great-grandchild. He was preceded in death by two daughters, Christine Hunsaker and Charlene Wilson; his parents, Guy and Hannah Wilson; two sisters, Wanda Crockett and Nedra Wilson; and two brothers, Rex and LaMoine Wilson.

The funeral will be held at 11 a.m. Saturday, Aug. 22, at the Heyburn LDS 1st and 2nd Ward Church, 530 Villa Drive, with Bishop Bruce Burtenshaw officiating. Burial will be in the Rupert Cemetery with military rites provided by the Mini-Cassia Veterans. Friends may call from 7 until 9 p.m. Friday, Aug. 21, at the Rasmussen Funeral Home, 1350 E. 16th St. in Burley, and from 10 until 10:45 a.m. Saturday at the church.

REINVENTED CLASSICS AND A VINYL VIBE

Mini-Cassia series lines up five concerts

They recall Hollywood's golden musicals, champion a cappella harmonies and make the organ downright exhilarating. And they're all coming to Burley for a 2009-10 concert series.

Mini-Cassia Community Concert Association has lined up five performances for its 63rd season and launched its annual membership drive.

Here are the highlights.

SOLO PIANIST RUDOLF BUDGINAS, OCT. 1

Lithuania native Rudolf Budginas began his musical studies at age 4 and debuted at age 9 with the Lithuanian National Symphony. He trained at Moscow Conservatory, rose to international prominence performing solo concerts throughout the world and moved to the U.S. in 1994.

Budginas' concerts balance pop, jazz and well-known classical works, and he presents humorous asides about the program.

"I felt that after my strictly classical recitals, I was questioning if I had more to offer to my audiences," he said in a press release. "It was clear that they loved classical music, but I felt there was more I wanted to do. I want to present an evening with more variety of musical styles. I want to keep my audience constantly surprised and excited throughout a concert."

Budginas might show his audience the direct musical line from Liszt's "Hungarian Rhapsody" to Johnny Cash's "Walk the Line," or how Billy Joel might have drawn on classical structure to get to "Piano Man."

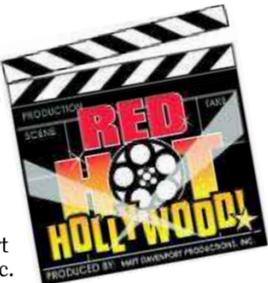

He lives in the San Luis Obispo area of California and teaches at Cuesta College. He is the conductor and chamber music director at Thomas Aquinas College.

'RED HOT HOLLYWOOD,' FEB. 6

in "Red Hot Hollywood," Matt Davenport Productions Inc. presents a red carpet review of Hollywood's music memories. A versatile cast of 11 sings, dances and recreates movie memories by Gene Kelly, Astaire and Rogers, Julie Andrews, Donald O'Connor, Judy Garland and the like. The troupe's music director and accompanist serves as host, portraying Hollywood icons such as director, producer, ticket-taker and stage hand to tell Hollywood's musical story.

From the golden age of "Singin' in the Rain," "Mary Poppins" and "The Wizard of Oz," you'll fast-forward to "Chicago," "Grease" and "Hairspray." Expect stage adaptations of Academy Award-winning compositions like "My Heart Will Go On," "Take My Breath Away" and "A Whole New World," supported by colorful sets and costumes.

BUFFALO ROME, MARCH 12

Michael Visconti, Kevin Douglas and Billy McCorvey are no strangers to the music business — Visconti, a producer and jingle writer; Douglas, a performer on Grand Ole Opry and CMT; and McCorvey, writer of Montgomery Gentry's hit "Lonely and Gone." As Buffalo Rome, their individual styles meld with ease, forming a mature sound that's as comfy as a pair of vintage Levi's, promoters say.

Blending the sounds of 1970s West Coast country-rock and today's country, Buffalo Rome brings a vinyl vibe to the digital age.

Charismatic Visconti hits the high notes and has a wacky sense of humor. Douglas, the gentleman of the group, lends thought to rich and contemplative lyrics. McCorvey is an observer with a cool edge who is rock-steady on stage.

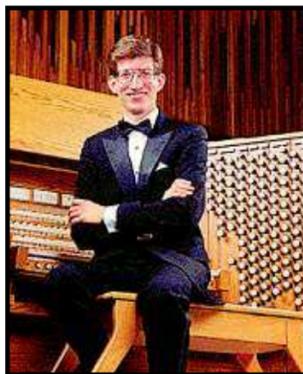

ORGANIST ARAM BASMADJIAN, APRIL 12

Concert organist Aram Basmadjian performs a program of classics to jar the imagination and lay to rest any doubt that an organ concert need be anything less than exhilarating. His program centers on works by Bach, Handel, Vierne, Dupre and others.

Basmadjian is a partisan of robust performance and works to win for his instrument the public's esteem, promoters say. His comments elicit frequent laughter from his audiences.

Basmadjian, who made a 1983 debut with the Philadelphia Orchestra and studied organ at the University of Utah and Utah State University, recorded his first compact disc on the four-manual Allen Organ at a Pomona, Calif., church in 1990. Selections from this recording have been featured many times on PipeDreams, a production of Public Radio International. In 1995, Allen Organ Co. released a recording featuring Basmadjian on his four-manual Allen Touring Organ.

CHAPTER 6 PERFORMS POP AMERICANA, DEC. 3

Chapter 6, a six-member male a cappella vocal group, calls itself the youngest group to ever qualify for the Chicago-area National Harmony Sweepstakes. After winning that title for three straight years, the singers captured the national title in 2004. Numerous awards later, this troupe tours North America and Asia, performing a family-friendly show that features stage wit and intricate harmonies.

Whether it's a signature piece such as "Ode to Krispy Kreme," Queen's "Bohemian Rhapsody" or the American Idol-featured group's own award-winning eight-minute version of "The Wizard Of Oz," expect superb musicianship and adventurous spirit from Chapter 6.

THE LOWDOWN ON TICKETS

Mini-Cassia Community Concerts organizers encourage the purchase of season tickets, but they've begun offering tickets for individual concerts, as well.

All five concerts begin at 7:30 p.m. at the King Fine Arts Center, at 2100 Park Ave. on the Burley High School grounds.

You can buy season passes in advance — starting this month, at 678-1798 — or at the door at any concert. Season prices are $40 for adults; $20 for students; and $110 for families (includes children living at home, over age 5). The passes include all five Burley concerts, plus community concerts sponsored by the series' Boise and Idaho Falls counterparts, as seating allows, with no limit on the number of concerts the pass holder may attend. When membership cards are mailed in the fall, they'll include a list of Idaho Falls and Boise performances.

The Mini-Cassia concert series doesn't pre-sell or discount the one-concert tickets; get them at the door for $20 per seat.

No matter which kind of ticket you buy, your seat won't be reserved. Show up early for the best choice.

Information: Susan Tuft at 678-1798 or Jan Manning at 678-7447.

From Tennessee to Twin Falls

Atkins brings country flavor to fair

By Melissa Davlin • Times-News writer

This isn't Rodney Atkins' first show in Idaho.

"One of the first tours I ever was a part of was a Wal-Mart tour," the Tennessee-based country star said in a phone interview with the Times-News. The musicians in the tour followed a Wal-Mart truck across the country, then played in the retail chain's parking lots.

"The truck would open up and become a stage," he said. And the first stop on the tour was Blackfoot.

Before then, Atkins had never been west of the Mississippi River. "It was just absolutely beautiful out there," he said.

This time through Atkins is headlining, and he plans to rock the Twin Falls County Fair with his honest music that he sings to appeal to his people — hard-working Americans across the country.

INTELLECTUAL EXPERIENCE

Writers conference courts public participation

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

SUN VALLEY — A legendary civil rights leader will get a new podium from which to speak when the 14th Sun Valley Writers Conference takes the stage in the Sun Valley Pavilion today through Monday.

Vernon Jordan, now 74, will talk about his memoir "Make It Plain: Standing Up and Speaking Out," which tells how the black oratorical tradition of storytelling, preaching and speechmaking helped hone not only his voice but his values, as well. His speech — at 3:30 p.m. Saturday in the Pavilion — will be free to the public.

"He's a wonderful speaker and a very special guy," said Robin Eidsmo, director of the Sun Valley Writers Conference.

The conference has earned a reputation for bringing in authors who can shed light on current affairs. And this year is no different as the conference brings in authors who will talk about the current economic crisis, health care reform, climate change and the transformation of Rwanda following mass killings in that country.

Among the speakers: Annette Gordon-Reed, whose book, "The Hemingses of Monticello: An American Family," won a 2009 Pulitzer Prize. And Pulitzer Prize-winning poet W.S. Merwyn.

"'Infidel' by Ayaan Hirsi Ali will be hot this year — all the book clubs are reading it. And Abraham Verghese, he's a doctor whom people fell in love with him when he came out with 'The Tennis Partner.' And, then, to have two Pulitzer Prize winners ..." said Keith Mosier, as he looked over a stack of Writers Conference books at Iconoclast Books.

The conference sells only several hundred full-conference passes, at $750 each, to allow for intimate breakout sessions with authors.

But this year, for the first time, conference organizers are offering generic single-event tickets for $25 each that can be used for any speaker in the Pavilion.

The offer was made possible by the move to the Pavilion, which seats 1,500 people compared with about 900 in the old tent, Eidsmo said. Students and teachers with ID will be allowed in free.

"It's a good way for people to try out the Writers Conference," she said. "Before, we couldn't take too many single attendees."

Participants say the conference is mind-expanding. "The one thing I miss in

11:45 a.m.: Financier Liaquat Ahamed will discuss "Lords of Finance: The Bankers Who Broke the World."

3:30 p.m.: Civil rights leader Vernon Jordan will discuss his memoir, "Make It Plain: Standing Up and Speaking Out." Free to the public.

5 p.m.: Mick Moloney and The Green Fields of America will perform Irish-American songs highlighting such episodes as the famine that pushed the Irish West.

6:45 p.m.: Ayaan Hirsi Ali, author of "Infidel," will describe her story from Somalia to America, from blind faith to reason.

Monday
9 a.m.: New York Times financial reporter Gretchen Morgenson will discuss "Inside the Meltdown: An Insider's View of the Current Crisis."

10:30 a.m.: Poetry reading by Paul Muldoon, poetry editor of "The New Yorker Magazine."

Noon: Peter Duchin will discuss his 1996 memoir, "Ghost of A Chance," which describes how he was raised by Sun Valley founder Averell Harriman and his wife, Marie, after his mother died in childbirth and his father, Eddie Duchin, joined the Navy.

Sun Valley is the lack of a university. This to me fills that void," said Sun Valley resident Ruthann Saphier.

Mosier agreed: "It's so exciting to see the authors in person. And I like the mingling of the people — everyone having intellectual conversations you don't have all the time. It's not just about hearing someone speak. It's a social event and an intellectual one that keeps on going long after the speaker has left the stage."

Atkins

 Brooks & Dunn, Brad Paisley and ZZ Top. His 2006 album, "If You're Going Through Hell," debuted at No. 1 on the Billboard country albums chart and provided four No. 1 hits, including "If You're Going Through Hell" and "Watching You." He released his latest album, "It's America," on March 31.

Atkins prides himself in singing music that everyone can relate to. Songs like "15 Minutes" and "Tell a Country Boy" will appeal to country music fans across the country, whether they live in rural Idaho or Tennessee, he said.

"It's about being human, really," Atkins said. "Part of it is the struggle, part of it is the celebration."

Although Atkins has played in stadiums and in front of a crowd of 500,000 in Washington, D.C., he loves the atmosphere of small venues like the Twin Falls County Fair. In large arenas, people tend to come with their dates, but at fairs, it's usually entire families who show up to hear him sing, Atkins said. That they're spending quality time at one of his concerts is an honor to him.

This tour is also the first that Atkins is headlining. Instead of playing for half an hour, he has 80 or 90 minutes to fill with his own music.

So what can the Filer fairgrounds audience expect to hear?

Metropolitan Opera soprano will give T.F. concert

Times-News

The College of Southern Idaho's Music Department will present "Stories of Love and Loss," a concert by Twin Falls native Joyce Guyer, one of America's leading sopranos, accompanied by pianist Mark Neiwrith.

The concert is at 7:30 p.m. Sept. 11 in the CSI Fine Arts Theatre. Admission is free, but organizers suggest a donation of $5 to the CSI Music Department Scholarship Fund at the door.

Guyer has been a principal artist for 16 seasons at New York's Metropolitan Opera, with roles such as Susanna in "Le Nozze di Figaro," Sophie in "Der Rosenkavalier," Sophie in "Werther" and Pamina in "Die Zauberflote." In the 1999 PBS broadcast of the Met's "La Cenerentola," she played wicked stepsister Clorinda.

Known throughout the U.S. and in Europe for her versatility on both the operatic and concert stage, Guyer has performed at Carnegie Hall, Weill Hall and Avery Fisher Hall with noted conductors. She spent five years at the Bayreuther Festspiele as Woglinde and Die Waldvogel in James Levine's "Ring Cycle," as well as appearing in "Parsifal," conducted by Giuseppe Sinopoli.

Joyce Guyer

Mark Neiwrith

Guyer appeared with the New Orleans Opera singing Gilda ("Rigoletto") in 2003 and the four heroines in "Les Contes d'Hoffmann" in 2004. Following a well received Susanna in "Figaro" with the Pittsburgh Opera in 2000, she moved to the role of La Contessa at the Glimmerglass Opera Festival in 2001.

Guyer can be heard on various DDG, Premier Recordings, Arabesque and Newport Classic recordings. Her new CD of French and English songs with harpist Anita Briggs will be released soon on an independent label.

She lives in Seattle with her husband, Ray Wise, and teaches voice at the University of Washington School of Music.

"Stories of Love and Loss" will feature literary selections by Heinrich Heine, Emanuel von Geibel, Johann Wolfgang von Goethe and Nikolaus Lenau set to the music of Mendelssohn-Bartholdy, followed by "Vignettes: Letters from George to Evelyn from the Private Papers of a World War II Bride" set to the music of Alan Smith. The theme will continue with "Six Melodies du Livre pour toi" by Marguerite Burnat Provins set to the music of Gustave Ferrari and will conclude with poetry selections by James Whitcome Riley, Edna St. Vincent Millay, Louis Untermeyer, Emily Dickinson and e.e. cummings set to the music of Timothy Hoeckman.

Neiwrith is an adjunct professor of piano at Idaho State University and chaired the piano department at Sun Valley School of Music for six years. For the past 30 years he has been a piano soloist, concerto soloist, studio teacher, lecturer, adjudicator and arts administrator. A graduate of Manhattan School of Music, he was represented for years by Columbia Artists Management in New York.

He premiered compositions by Lukas Foss, Leon Levitch, Tully Cathey, Ralph Kessler, Szymon Laks and Jett Hitt. "Piano Sonatas No. 3 and No. 4," "Piano Trio

No. 1" and "Piano Concerto No. 3" by Thom Ritter George, as well as "Arabesques" by Carl Byron, "Wilderness Suite for Two Pianos" by Randy Earles and "Old Playgrounds" by Thom Hasenpflug were all composed expressly for Neiwrith.

Information: CSI Fine Arts Center, 732-6288.

Finally, your guide to writing that children's book

Times-News

Once upon a time, a person like you had some fascinating stories that would make great books for children, but wasn't sure where to begin.

Why not start at the beginning with the guidance of published children's author Stephanie Holman? In the College of Southern Idaho Community Education class "Writing & Publishing Children's Books," let her show you techniques for pulling factual and imaginative ideas together and writing them for your target audience.

In the second segment of the course, Holman will introduce you to the world of publishing to learn conventional and alternative publishing practices, how to deal with agents and publishers, and options available for self-publishing.

Class will be held 7-9 p.m. Thursdays, Sept. 3-24, on the CSI campus in Twin Falls. Cost is $59, plus $5 to be paid to the instructor for materials.

Register: 732-6442 or communityed.csi.edu.

Hard rock: Foolsbane

Seen Aug. 15 at Woody's in Twin Falls

I only saw the first of six bands in the music lineup at Woodstock, but locals Foolsbane started the show off right. The progressive rockers, playing songs off their album "The Curse of the Third Man - Alpha," have a big, complicated sound, great instrumentation and a cool concept.

Every time I see and hear this group of players they amaze me. The familiar melodies of Tchaikovsky showcased the beautiful cohesion of this part-time symphony and the remarkable talents of soloist Vadim Gluzman and his 17th century Stradivarius. There aren't enough superlatives to describe it.

Creating music is all about breaking the rules. Here are a handful of southern Idaho musicians who are mixing genres and generating new rhythms.

A few southern Idaho musicians you'll come to know

• • •
Scott Thompson is not a well-known artist; in fact, many Idahoans have yet to listen to his music. But what might stop other hopeful musicians only makes Thompson more persistent. He has not released a studio album, and his songs are virtually unknown in the music world. But with edgy lyrics bordering rebellious topics, he is an unrelenting musician of the ubiquitous indie movement. And it turns out he has a keen talent for mixing funky sounds with hipster odes.

Native to Twin Falls, this guitarist/drummer/vocalist began music at the ripe age of 3.

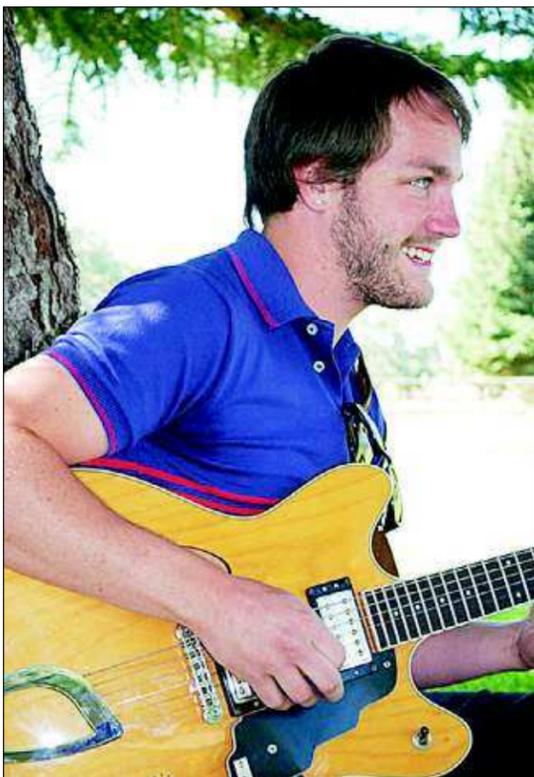

"I started the violin because I wanted to be like my older brother," Thompson said. "It all began there, and since then I have just transitioned instruments."

What began as emulation has morphed into something greater for the aspiring artist. According to Thompson, it's about the way that people feel, act and portray themselves when playing music that is inspiring to him on so many levels.

Available after this summer will be Thompson's first live album, recorded at Bad Irish Pub in Boise. Ultimately, the goal for this undiscovered musician is to get signed by a label. But in the meantime, Thompson will continue to play music because it is what feels right to him.

• • •
Twenty-two-year-old Michael Frew is a rising Twin Falls instrumentalist and another artist to watch. Learning to individualize the essential techniques of guitar, contra bass and piano, he has managed to become a music sensation in southern Idaho. His passion for harmonious melodies and upbeat rhythms has led him in the direction of indefinable jazz composition, his forte.

But after nearly a decade of playing in Twin Falls, Frew is no longer up-and-coming; he has arrived.

For this artist, interest in the jazz business was sparked by listening to a Boise State University jazz radio show. It was after this encounter with easy listening that Frew got his start. At age 13 he played for the CSI Jazz Combo, and a mere two years later he performed Jazz in the Canyon.

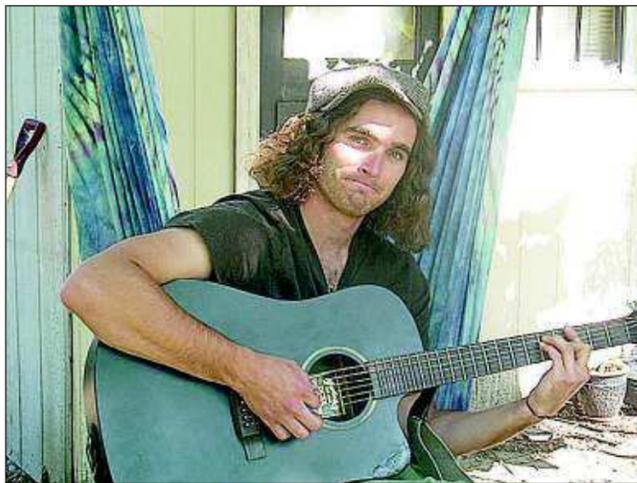

"I just wanted to play," Frew said, "and get paid a little."

With the help and influence of southern Idaho jazz icon Brent Jensen, he has managed to get his music out onto the Idaho jazz scene. On the brink of graduation, Frew attends Utah State University in Logan, where he studies guitar performance and secondary education. He aspires to be a teacher of music.

Frew will perform in Twin Falls from 7 to 10 p.m. today and Saturday at Pandora's. For the time being, Frew has no agenda to put out an album or sign any music labels. He is content honing his musical skills and providing local entertainment for southern Idahoans.

The Twin Falls-based band

Twin Falls native Scott Thompson says his first live album, recorded at Bad Irish Pub in Boise, will be available later this year.

Velorution can do more than write some captivating songs; the band can deliver them as compellingly as they are written.

With an uncomplicated approach to music, it's not surprising that this group of five guys is slowly making its way onto the iPods and MySpaces of southern Idahoans.

After the release of Velorution's album "Loco/Motive" last year, Idaho fans got the chance to experience a musically diverse affair. Using a name that is an anagram for revolution, this band is going places.

Coming together in 2002, Velorution defines its music as an eclectic collection ranging from jazz to rock to singer-songwriter.

"There are moments when the songs simply speak for themselves," said Dan McMahon, the group's keyboardist, vocalist and clarinet player.

It's no wonder there is so much variety in every song, with inspiration from Megadeth and Anthrax to the Beatles and Miles Davis. Other members: Tom Kershaw, guitarist/vocalist; Ian Knowles, guitarist; Brenton Viertel, bassist/vocalist; and Tommy McMahon, drummer/vocalist. Collectively, these musicians complement each other and aspire to perform for the sake of their passion.

Although Velorution has yet to sign a music label, the band manages to get its name out on the scene. Their next performance is at Terrapin Station in Boise on Wednesday. "Music is a lifestyle for us, it is what we do," Kershaw said, "and to think I started out just to piss off my parents."

At Don Aslett's Cleaning Center

we just celebrated our First Year Anniversary!

Introducing a new business concept and new products to a new market can present quite a risk and numerous challenges. Despite these business obstacles and the down turn of the economy, our first annual sales volume has exceeded projections. This initial success has to be attributed to several different aspects, but one prominent part of this success is the marketing campaign provided by the Times-News in our weekly question and answer column entitled CLEANING CORNER. This advertising has created a loyal readership of Don Aslett Cleaning Center customers and has driven them into our store each week to buy the featured product.

Usually, they walk through the door with the torn-out ad in their hands!

Thank you to the Times-News and our loyal customers for a great year!

Not your father's Woodstock

By Nichole Carnell
Times-News writer

It wasn't a vacant field in upstate New York in the middle of the most controversial war of our time. Jimi Hendrix wasn't there pumping out psychedelic rock riffs. There wasn't a flower child for miles, but Woodstock still rocked.

Woody's Sports Bar & Grill, in Twin Falls' Historic Warehouse District, hosted the second annual Woodstock on the 40th anniversary of the greatest rock 'n' roll festival of all time. The difference: an entire generation.

In 1969 an estimated 400,000 people attended Woodstock to watch 31 bands perform over three days. On Saturday an estimated 400 people packed into Woody's to rock out to six local bands for about eight hours.

There were no bell bottoms or floral printed shirts. Most people were in jeans and dark T-shirts. There were no peace signs or tie-dye, but there was definite head banging.

Woodstock 2009 was a darker, modernized version of the immortal weekend, complete with microbrews and laptops.

It was definitely not your father's Woodstock.

ERIN MATHSON/For the Times-News

Local bands Foolsbane, 5th South 3, 4 Justice, OneSecond-tillForever, Sophia and One Dead Crow hammered out heavy metal tunes as fans packed into the local bar.

"This is different than last year," one concert attendee yelled to his friend. "Last year was a little more Woodstock."

It was a little more eclectic last year, bar owner David Woodhead said later, but it was never Woodstock.

Woodstock 2008 featured six bands, one country band and one blues band. This year Woodhead decided to keep it heavy.

Woodstock 2009 was still a success, Woodhead said, adding that he thought the heavy metal feel was more popular in the area.

"It turned out terrific," he said. While almost all of the bands have appeared at Woody's before, Woodhead said, all of them have a good following that brought in the same number of people as last year.

Woodhead has kicked around the idea for a while. Although the comparison between Woodstock and the original Woodstock does seem farfetched, the idea is rooted in the same value.

"We listen to what people desire and go with that," Woodhead said.

"We will do it again," Woodhead said, adding that next year there is talk of taking the fun outside.

Scared by the weather this year, Woodhead said expansion outside maybe possible but the cover charge may have to come back. Woodhead debated squashing the cover charge because of the economy and finally decided to give people a break this time. But taking the event outside next year would mean additional sound costs and entertainment.

Magic Valley Symphony season celebrates 50 years of music

Times-News

Season tickets for the Magic Valley Symphony's golden anniversary season are now available. Under the theme of "To 50 More Years. Hear! Hear!" the symphony will celebrate with four concerts and a special recital.

"A season this memorable comes only once every 50 years," director Theodore Anchor Hadley said in a press release. "To prove it, I have programmed the best of the best."

The regular symphony season opens Oct. 18 with artists of trumpet and piano, Allen and Laura Vincent Vizzutti. They have planned a Spanish-flavored program of Vizzutti arrangements, highlighted by a fireworks version of the trumpet classic "Carnival of Venice."

Harpichordist Stephan Moss, son of the symphony's longtime concertmaster and string educator, Ernie Moss, will present a free recital on Sept. 27. The symphony's harpsichord was built by Ernie Moss and was acquired from his estate with grant assistance from First Federal Foundation.

The season will continue in November with the world premier of two golden anniversary commissions, a full symphony in five episodes by George Halsell of the College of Southern Idaho, and a tone poem inspired by the Snake River by Twin Falls native Lynette Westendorf.

A later concert will feature young violinist Andrew Sords performing a perennial audience favorite, the Mendelssohn violin concerto. The season will conclude with the symphony's traditional pops concert, a full concert performance of the Rodgers & Hammerstein musical "Carousel," to honor the Dilettantes of Magic Valley. It was the pit orchestra for the Dilettantes' 1959 production of "Carousel" that became the symphony.

Season tickets, priced well under the gate prices of the combined concerts, are further discounted for four-somes and families. Individuals pay $25 for a four-concert season ticket, and a friends-or-families package (four adults, or two adults and up to four students) is $90.

Tickets: Symphony Business Manager Richard Cook, 734-6549.

JUDI BAXTER

BookChat

A dozen nonfiction titles to cherish

This spring (BookChat, March 20), I shared 12 works of fiction that I will forever have on my bookshelves and happily read again. Since then, I have had several readers ask about my nonfiction favorites. Selecting these 12 titles proved to be just as challenging. In nonfiction, choices range from biographies to science, business to self-help and history to cookbooks. What is a bibliophile to do?

I again consoled myself with the assurance the chosen dozen would simply be a shared snapshot of several favorites — not a consignment of any books to Goodwill.

Here, then, are 12 of my nonfiction treasures:

"The Color of Water"

by James McBride (Riverhead, $14). When this memoir was first published in 1996, it caused quite a stir — in the most positive of ways. McBride tells of his mother, a Polish Jew, daughter of a rabbi; and his father, a black man from Harlem. Battling racism and poverty, he and his successful 11 siblings are a testament to their mother's courage and tenacity. (An excellent book for senior high reading lists.)

"The Great Good Place"

by Ray Oldenburg (Da Capo Press, $17.50). Also known as "third places" (following home and work), these are public places where people hang out, simply for the pleasures of good company and lively conversation. First published in 1999, Oldenburg's book predicted that our high-tech society (currently Facebook and Twitter, for example) would still gravitate to places for personal interactions (think Rudy's on First Friday, or Java weekend mornings).

"Infidel!" by Ayaan Hirsi Ali (Free Press, $15). I guarantee Somali-born Ali's feminist powerful critique of Islam will haunt you for months. Everyone needs to read this book.

"Last Child in the Woods: Saving Our Children from Nature-Deficit Disorder"

by Richard Louv (Algonquin Books, $14.95). The subtitle says it all. Journalist and child advocate Louv makes a well-researched and convincing case that the absence of nature in the lives of our "wired" kids has led to the rise of depression, attention disorders and obesity.

"Nathaniel's Nutmeg"

by Giles Morton (Diane Publishing Co. $15). The history books are filled with accounts of explorers searching for gold and the sometimes catastrophic results. But nutmeg? Indeed. In the 17th century, the Dutch and British were battling for control of the small nutmeg tree-covered island of Run (in what is now Indonesia). After five years of treachery, murder and mayhem, an agreement was reached: Holland would control the island, Britain would control New Amsterdam — better known as Manhattan! How's that for a historical tidbit?

"Natural History of the Senses" by Diane Ackerman (Vintage, $15.95). This is a delightful combination of literature, history, anthropology, music, psychology, sociology and philosophy that flows with grace and reason. In provocative and entertaining style, Ackerman examines the biological basis of our five senses and the inextricable part they play in our culture.

"No Ordinary Time: Franklin & Eleanor Roosevelt: The Home Front in World War II"

by Doris Kearns Goodwin (Simon & Schuster, $18.95). With a keen grasp of details and brilliant, compelling writing, Goodwin's account of America's domestic front during the war brings this era to life like no other book I have read. I look forward to re-reading it this winter.

"Three Cups of Tea"

by Greg Mortenson and David Oliver Relin (Penguin, $15). The ultimate proof that one person can make a difference. If you have any children in your life, be sure to share with them Mortenson's stories for younger readers: "Listen to the Wind" (Grades K-3; Dial, $16.99) and "Three Cups of Tea: One Man's Journey to Change the World, One Child at a Time" (Grades 4-8; Puffin, $8.99).

"Traveling Mercies: Some Thoughts on Faith" by Anne Lamott (Anchor, $14.95). Lamott's essays on life and faith are by turn funny, pithy, sagacious, anguishing and affirming — and totally re-readable.

"Tuesdays with Morrie"

by Mitch Albom (Broadway, $13.95). I know my attachment to this book is a very personal one. My father, like Morrie, was afflicted with Lou Gehrig's disease. But as those of you who have read it know, the story is not about dying, but about living. A deeply moving account of courage and wisdom, one to be read again and again.

"West With the Night"

by Beryl Markham (Virago Travellers, $21). Probably my favorite autobiography ever! Markham's poetic prose and fascinating story still resonate with me. Her life in Africa in the early 1900s, and her historical, solo trans-Atlantic flight in 1936 are as intriguing as her evocative description of the different kinds of silence.

"Wine and War: The French, the Nazis and the Battle for France's Greatest Treasure" by Donald and Petie Kladstrup (Broadway, $14.95). Another astounding slice of World War II history! Hitler did not drink wine, but that didn't stop him from ordering his troops to seize hundreds of thousands of cases from the French and ship them back to Germany. The book is filled with stories of somber, amazing and amusing and commemorates those "whose love of the grape and devotion to a way of life helped them survive and triumph over one of the darkest and most difficult chapters in French history." Etonnant, non?

Byrd and his wingmen: BSU O-line ready to go

Knee injury sidelines sophomore Yriarte

By Dustin Lapray
Times-News correspondent

BOISE — Thomas Byrd is the unquestioned leader on the Boise State offensive line. After all, he started all 13 games for the Broncos in 2008 at center, the position responsible for making line calls.

“Our offense is predicated around the center making the calls, being the person who is the smartest offensive lineman on the field, knowing what’s going on,” said Byrd, who was named Thursday to the Rimington Trophy Watch List, an award honoring the top center in college football.

The term ‘leader’ is thrown around the football field so much, it’s hard to quantify its meaning. Byrd really means it, lives it.

“I have to be that guy,” said

Byrd, who was named Thursday to the Rimington Trophy Watch List, an award honoring the top center in college football. “As far as being a leader, I don’t have to be that guy, but I choose to. That’s something necessary for me, and some of the other older guys, to step up and show the others what we’re supposed to do.”

The unit is incredibly young, but not wholly inexperienced. Four of the linemen played in at least 12 games last season, but none are seniors and only three are juniors. Each is older and bigger in 2009.

“The size is a big thing, it helps you out,” Matt Slater said. “It gives you a little more lead.”

Slater is slated to start at left tackle. Will Lawrence is the tentative starter at left guard after a season-ending knee injury to sophomore Cory Yriarte in last week’s scrimmage. Kevin Sapien, a junior like Slater and Lawrence, will start at right guard.

“We’ve all gotten bigger,” Lawrence said. “I believe we’ve all gotten faster, although that’s a little hard to believe. We’re becoming maulers.”

For Lawrence, a starting role has been a long time coming.

LINDA BRITTSAN/For the Times-News

NASCAR driver Sterling Marlin’s racing career has spanned more than 30 years. His next venture will be at Magic Valley Speedway Saturday night where he will compete with the Pepsi Late Models.

MARLIN AND MAGIC

Longtime NASCAR star to race in Twin Falls Saturday

By Linda Brittsan • Times-News correspondent

One of NASCAR’s good-ol’ boys will be on the track Saturday night at Magic Valley Speedway as two-time Daytona 500 champion Sterling Marlin will be behind the wheel for the Pepsi Late Models race.

MVS owner Eddy McKean learned earlier this year of an avenue for getting a NASCAR star to the track and did all he could to make it happen.

“I wanted to try and do ... something extra for the fans,” he said. “We tried and tried for the last couple of months to set it up and we finally struck up a deal to do this. We were shooting for Aug. 1 but (Marlin) ended up driving in the (Sprint) Cup race that weekend. But we were fortunate enough to get him for this Saturday.”

Marlin’s racing career is a genuine reflection of NASCAR’s deep southern roots. The down-to-earth Tennessee native has been involved in racing one way or another since his dad, NASCAR driver Clifton “Coo Coo” Marlin, brought him to the track as a youngster.

Sterling Marlin’s NASCAR driving debut came at Nashville Speedway in 1976. Later he went on to capture three track championships at the historic speedway from 1980 to 1982.

Marlin is the only NASCAR driver to have his first two wins come in the Daytona 500. His 10 Cup victories include wins at Las Vegas, Talladega, Michigan and most recently at Darlington Speedway in 2002.

This week, the Times-News was able to speak with Marlin via telephone to ask him a few questions about his career and his upcoming visit to Magic Valley Speedway.

Times-News: Besides the two Daytona 500 victories, what do you cherish the most about your career?

Marlin: “Just about the whole experience. I drove since I was 12, 13 years old. When my dad was Cup racing I was driving his truck and trailer to the race track, and then I was driving my stuff. I met a lot of fans along the way and once I got involved in cup racing it was neat.”

T-N: What are the biggest changes you have noticed over the years in NASCAR and are you glad the timing of career came when it did as opposed to starting out now?

Marlin: “Well, I’d rather go through my era that we come through. ... Myself, Mark Martin and Rusty Wallace, we ran pretty much all the cars stock sheet metal when it was true stock car racing. Now a day’s its all engineers and it’s just way too complicated now for me. It’s not near as much fun as it used to be.”

T-N: Magic Valley Speedway is a one-third-mile track, a big difference from a lot of the Cup circuit tracks. Are there adjustments you’ll need to make?

Marlin: “Well, no. You start out racing on the smaller tracks when you was younger. I like short-track racing. It’s like riding a bicycle — you just learn to do it.

Another burst from Usain Bolt

Jamaican sets record in 200

By Pat Graham
Associated Press writer

BERLIN — Teeth clenched, Usain Bolt grimaced as he churned toward the finish line, hoping to coax a fraction more out of his 6-foot-5 frame.

The big, yellow numbers flashing another world record time told the Jamaican sprinter he had gotten what he wanted out of the 200 meters Thursday at the world championships.

Beyond the mark of 19.19 seconds, though, was something else — the fact that he is altering his sport.

For the second straight race — five in a row, if his record-breaking runs at the Beijing Olympics are counted — Bolt’s biggest competitor was the clock. He bettered his old world record by a whopping .11 seconds, the same margin he shaved off the 100 foot days earlier, when he finished in 9.58.

NCAA throws out Memphis’ Final Four run

The Associated Press

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — Memphis has lost every one of the 38 victories it piled up in a basketball season that ended with John Calipari’s Tigers just missing out on a national title.

The NCAA stripped Memphis of all its wins from 2007-08 Thursday, saying the Tigers used an ineligible player who is believed to be NBA star Derrick Rose.

The university isn’t accepting the punishment, not yet.

Memphis president Shirley Raines said shortly after the NCAA’s announcement that the school is appealing what she called an unfair penalty.

“We know the rules,” Raines said. “We did our due diligence. We did everything

Marlin: "Well, a lot of times we'll just go in and run four or five laps of practice and sometimes nothing — just line up and race. That don't work out too bad. But sometimes we can tinker with the cars if they're too tight or too loose and fix it a little bit to how I like it."

T-N: Do you often visit local tracks and do you always participate in a race?

Marlin: "I go to three or four a year probably — usually dirt tracks around different parts of the country, mostly up north. But this is this first time I've been out that way. Most the time we drive where we go — that's the fun part of it."

Lawrence said. "I'm a junior and that makes me work all that much harder, because time is an issue. It is exciting, but you can't let it go to your head."

For linemen, fall camp is all about putting on pads, going to work, bettering technique, getting off the ball harder and improving the running game.

"It was a hard, grueling process to learn all the plays and remember them, the code words, the steps, the double teams, protection and all that," Lawrence said. "The coaches really helped me out."

Lawrence credits Byrd for taking him aside during drills, instructing him on footwork and hand techniques.

Yriarte tore his MCL and ACL last week, putting him off of the shelf.

"It's very frustrating," Yriarte said. "It's just a bummer. I actually didn't even get hit. I went out for a screen and I went to go after a linebacker and my leg just gave out on me."

Yriarte said he gained 20 pounds of muscle and Pepsi Late Models events and the fans will also have the opportunity to take home a special souvenir.

"We will have two sessions where he will be available for autographs," McKean said. "He will sign 200 in the first session and 200 the second session."

Fans wanting an autograph from Marlin must have the official driver's autograph card which is included in the MVS program available at the track. Autograph sessions will run from 5:45 to 6:15 p.m. and again from 6:45 to 7:15.

"We have gotten a lot of response from this," McKean added. "Hopefully it will be a good race too. There should be about 14 cars out there. It should be a pretty cool deal."

added foot-speed. With a year of experience and more familiarity with the program, he was ready to roll. Now, he'll miss the entire 2009 season.

"I'm trying not to think about it," Yriarte said. "I'm trying to think that everything happens for a reason, trying to find something good out of this. It's hard, but there's always a positive in everything and I'm trying to see that right now."

His teammates won't abandon him, but will miss his experience. He played center and guard last season. His loss opened up a starting spot for Lawrence.

"Even though we lose Cory Yriarte, like coach said, everybody has to pick up the flag," Lawrence said. "He's still a part of the O-line."

The big question of this group is who will play right tackle. Right now it's red-shirt freshman Michael Ames (6-foot-4, 267). Nate Potter is also in the mix there.

Bolt

Bolt said, without a trace of arrogance.

No debate there. He is erasing chunks of time from records that normally take years to break. He is beating the so-called competition by body lengths — this time, Alonso Edward of Panama was 0.62 seconds behind — in a sport often decided by photo finishes.

"He's a gift to this earth," said American sprinter Shawn Crawford, who finished fourth. "He's a blessing to the track game.... I'm just waiting for the lights to flash 'game over,' 'cause I felt like I was in a video game."

Bolt can't be caught, even when he gives away tips. Just before the start of the race, Bolt told good friend Wallace Spearmon to stay close to him on the curve and follow him home.

The American tried.

"Even if I run the best turn of my life, I'm still going to be behind," said Spearmon, who finished with the bronze. "I knew what was in store for the race. I expected it to be at least that fast."

When he saw his record time, Bolt pointed at the display, then stuck out his tongue in his best Michael Jordan impersonation.

"Even us in the field, we think there is going to be something phenomenal from him," Crawford said.

Bolt feeds off the energy from the crowd. The louder they get, the more playful he becomes.

He showed up at the start wearing a T-shirt with a new take on President Kennedy's famous Cold War quote "Ich bin ein Berliner."

This time, the slogan said, "Ich bin ein Berlino," a reference to the bear mascot of the championships.

The audience ate it up, along with Bolt's hand gestures and other assorted antics.

Then it was time to go to work in his yam-colored Pumas. He jetted out of the blocks, turned the corner and it was over.

No one was going to catch him once he reached the straightaway.

"I was surprised with myself," Bolt said.

Drew, Red Sox complete sweep

TORONTO — J.D. Drew homered twice, Jon Lester pitched eight strong innings and Boston beat Toronto 8-1 on Thursday night to complete a three-game sweep.

Victor Martinez connected for the second straight night for the Red Sox, who have hit two or more homers in five consecutive games, and nine of 10.

The Red Sox have 32 homers in August, three shy of the team record set in 2006.

Drew hit a leadoff homer in the second, a two-run drive to almost the same spot in the third and finished with four hits. The homers, Nos. 14 and 15, came off rookie Brett Cecil.

TIGERS 7, MARINERS 6

DETROIT — Clete Thomas' two-out, RBI single capped Detroit's two-run rally in the ninth inning.

The AL Central-leading Tigers trailed 6-2 before scoring three times in the sixth and two more in the ninth.

Bobby Seay (4-2) earned the win for pitching a scoreless inning.

David Aardsma (3-5) took the loss after walking pinch-hitter Carlos Guillen to begin the ninth, allowing Miguel Cabrera's double, Brandon Inge's barely deep enough sacrifice fly and Thomas' single.

INDIANS 11, ANGELS 3

CLEVELAND — Justin Masterson pitched into the seventh inning and rookie Matt LaPorta had a career-high three RBIs as Cleveland battered Los Angeles starter John Lackey.

Masterson (4-4) did not allow an earned run in 6 1-3 innings to win for the first time since being acquired from Boston in the trade for Victor Martinez hours before the July 31 trade deadline. He allowed three

NATIONAL LEAGUE PHILLIES 12, DIAMONDBACKS 3

PHILADELPHIA — Jayson Werth hit his fourth home run in three games, and Ryan Howard hit a three-run shot to lead Philadelphia to a 12-3 victory over Arizona and a three-game sweep.

Carlos Ruiz homered for the Phillies, who won their fourth straight game and eighth in nine. Werth's two-run shot in the fifth gave the Phillies a three-run lead, and Ruiz and Howard homered off different relievers in a five-run sixth.

ROCKIES 4, NATIONALS 1

WASHINGTON — Carlos Gonzalez blooped an RBI double in the fifth that helped Colorado complete a three-game sweep.

Gonzalez's club record-tying streak of four games with a homer ended, but he came through for the NL wild-card leaders. Troy Tulowitzki and Brad Hawpe drove in runs to back Jason Hammel (8-7), who allowed one run and three hits in seven innings.

BRAVES 3, METS 2

NEW YORK — Kenesh Kawakami outpitched Johan

Santana, and Brian McCann hit a solo homer for Atlanta.

Omar Infante and former Mets outfielder Ryan Church also drove in runs for the Braves, who have won nine of 12 entering a three-game series against fellow playoff contender Florida.

REDS 2, GIANTS 1, 10 INNINGS

CINCINNATI — Drew Stubbs hit his first career homer leading off the bottom of the 10th inning to end Cincinnati's five-game losing streak.

Stubbs drove a 2-0 pitch from Bob Howry (1-6) off left-field foul screen. The 2006 first-round draft pick was called up from Triple-A Louisville on Wednesday when Willy Taveras was placed on the 15-day disabled list.

ASTROS 4, MARLINS 1

HOUSTON — Houston's Wandy Rodriguez limited Florida to four hits while pitching into the ninth inning and ending the Marlins' streak of 10-hit games at 15.

That was the best stretch since the St. Louis Browns had one that long in 1937, according to the Elias Sports Bureau.

Bryant matches record with 62 at Traditional

SUNRIVER, Ore. — Fred Funk was finished with his round at the Jeld-Wen Tradition when a nearby radio squawked with the news that Brad Bryant had just shot a 10-under 62.

"OK. Game is on," Funk said. "We know who we're chasing now."

Bryant matched a tournament record with his first-round play at Crosswater Golf Club in central Oregon. He had 11 birdies and one bogey for a three-shot lead Thursday in the fourth of five majors this year on the Champions Tour.

"Just played really great," he said. "Definitely one of my top five ball-striking rounds in my life."

Bryant's best finish this year was fourth at the Dick's Sporting Goods Open in June. He has four overall tour victories, his last coming at the Senior U.S. Open in 2007.

Loren Roberts shot a 65, while Tom Watson and Tom Lehman each had 67s as temperatures hovered in the upper 90s on the scenic 7,533-yard course in the shadow of Mt. Bachelor.

Defending champion Funk was in a group at 4-under. Tour money leader Bernhard Langer shot a 71.

Even Bryant was stunned by his low round, which matched Watson's low second round in 2003 when the tournament was played in Aloha, Ore., and Doug Tewell's final-round 62 in

But the big story at Sedgefield Country Club was the weather. Heavy rains and lightning forced a mid-afternoon delay of about four hours, and play was suspended shortly before 8 p.m. because of darkness.

PGA official Mark Russell says play will resume at 7:45 a.m. Friday with the second round to follow.

Justin Rose, Kevin Streelman and Colt Knost were one stroke back at 65, with Chris Riley also at 5 under through 14 holes. Fred Couples and John Daly were among those two strokes back.

ZANDVOORT, Netherlands — Ireland's Paul McGinley and Scotland's Gary Orr used easier early conditions to shoot opening 6-under 64s and tie for the lead at the KLM Open.

Defending champion Darren Clarke of Northern Ireland was a stroke back in a group of four with Ireland's Peter Lawrie, Australian Matthew Millar and Spain's Jorge Campillo.

A severe afternoon storm delayed the end of the round for an hour.

Orr, who hasn't won since 2000 and was runner-up at the European Open in May, caught McGinley by shooting 30 on his back nine in his first tournament in a month.

Memphis

we could to determine the student-athlete was eligible and that the rules were being followed?"

The NCAA announcement came 16 months after the Tigers lost the national championship to Kansas in overtime at the end of the 2007-08 season. It marks the second time both Memphis and coach John Calipari had to vacate Final Four seasons. The Tigers were stripped of their 1985 appearance and Calipari's Massachusetts team lost its 1996 berth.

Now the basketball coach at Kentucky, Calipari said in a statement he was "very disappointed and disheartened by the NCAA's findings" and that he would not comment again until Memphis' appeal is concluded. Calipari said he's looking forward to coaching Kentucky this fall where officials are fully supporting him despite the Memphis scandal.

"I'm not worried about it because they have never said Coach Cal did anything wrong at all," said Kentucky Gov. Steve Beshear, who appeared with Calipari at the Kentucky State Fair on Thursday before the NCAA announcement. "I think he's a very upstanding guy. I think that's his reputation and I think that reputation will be with him here. I really don't foresee any problems."

Memphis finished 38-2 in 2007-08, setting the NCAA record for wins in a season.

The NCAA report did not identify the ineligible player by name, though descriptions of the athlete involved lead to the conclusion it could only be Rose. He was the only player who played just that season at Memphis — a fact noted by the governing body of college sports. Rose went on to be selected by the Chicago Bulls as the No. 1 pick in the 2008 draft and later won the NBA rookie of the year award.

The player was accused of having another person take his SAT exam in Detroit so he would be eligible as a freshman after failing the ACT three times in Chicago.

Memphis argued that the university did not have enough information to substantiate the allegations in November 2007 and cleared him to play. Memphis officials defended their investigation Thursday and said four people interviewed the player, with neither Calipari nor athletic director R.C. Johnson involved.

"That person responded that he took the test, and we believed him," university legal counsel Sheri Lipman said.

However, the SAT officials later conducted their own investigation and notified the player, the university and the NCAA's eligibility center that they were canceling his test in May 2008.

The agency said it sent letters to the player in March and April 2008; the second letter was sent three days after Rose and the Tigers lost to the Jayhawks. The player did not respond to either letter.

The infractions committee said it struck hard with its penalties because the ineligible player was used the entire season.

Ochocinco kicks, Brady takes hits in Bengals win

FOXBOROUGH, Mass. — Chad Ochocinco showed he can kick as well as catch. And Tom Brady showed he can take a hit — a very hard one.

With Shayne Graham nursing a tender groin, Ochocinco, Cincinnati's career leader in catches, yards receiving and name changes, booted an extra point late in the first half — a point that gave the Bengals a 7-6 win over the New England Patriots on Thursday night.

By that time, Brady was done for the night after being knocked down twice on his 13 snaps, one week after remaining upright on all 24 of his snaps in a 27-25 win at Philadelphia.

He got up quickly both times, his left knee passing the test after surgery that followed a season-ending knee injury in last year's opener.

Keith Rivers tossed Brady softly after the NFL's 2007 MVP threw incomplete on his third snap and landed on his back. On the first play of his second and last series, Brady was flattened by left end Robert Geathers, who easily got around right tackle Nick Kaczur and dumped Brady on his left side.

Cincinnati scored the only touchdown between field goals of 32 and 41 yards by New England's Stephen Gostkowski and led 7-6 at halftime.

Late in the game, the Patriots drove to a first down at the Bengals 12, but Cincinnati's Marvin White recovered BenJarvus Green-Ellis' fumble with 3:43 to play.

The only touchdown came on J.T. O'Sullivan 24-yard pass to Chris Henry in the back left side of the end zone with 1:55 left in the half. Then the former Chad Johnson trotted onto the field and lined up behind holder Kevin Huber. The snap, hold and kick all worked as planned.

"'Esteban' Ochocinco is back, the most interesting footballer in the world," Ochocinco said. "Everyone has to remember, I've always said that soccer is my No. 1 sport. I think Ronaldinho would be proud of me right now."

Graham played in the Bengals 17-7 loss to New Orleans last Friday night and was in uniform Thursday night, but coach Marvin Lewis didn't want to take a chance with the team's franchise player when Graham's groin was tender in pregame warmups.

Ochocinco had never tried an extra point in his eight NFL seasons — in exhibition or regular-season games — but has kicked in practice.

COLTS 23, EAGLES 15

INDIANAPOLIS — Peyton Manning played long enough to get into a steady rhythm. He even got to see the Colts pull off a rare pre-season win.

Michael Vick, meanwhile, was back home in Philadelphia waiting another week before his first chance to play for the Eagles.

Manning threw two touchdowns in three series before departing Thursday night and Indianapolis held on for a 23-15 victory over Philadelphia.

The Colts looked a lot better than they did in last week's loss against Minnesota. Manning took Indy 81 yards on the opening series, closing it with a 3-yard TD pass to Anthony Gonzalez.

The three-time league MVP finished 10 of 14 for 167 yards with two touchdowns in less than 11 minutes. His backup, Curtis Painter was 11 of 19 for 116 yards with one interception but led the Colts to three field goals.

Defensively, the Colts were better, too. They forced two three-and-outs on the first four series and responded to Manning's lone miscue — a fumble deep in his own end — by forcing another turnover when Dwight Freeney swatted the ball away from Donovan McNabb. Indy's Keyunta Dawson recovered.

Manning took advantage right away, finding Reggie Wayne down the left sideline. Wayne scooted down the sideline, then made a nifty inside cut near the 10-yard line to avoid a defender for a 76-yard TD to give Indy a 14-0 lead.

That was good enough to get the Colts' starters out of the game.

But the Eagles were playing without four of their five projected offensive line starters. Starting running back Brian Westbrook did not make the trip, starting fullback Leonard Weaver left in the first quarter with a knee injury and Vick was not eligible to play.

Three Eagles defensive starters also missed the game.

It showed.

At times, Philadelphia coach Andy Reid looked exasperated with the mistakes.

They had six penalties accepted in each half.

'Hard Knocks' shows who runs Bengals

CINCINNATI (AP) — The first two episodes of HBO's "Hard Knocks" showed the rest of the country what Cincinnati Bengals fans have known for a long time: No one challenges how the Brown family runs its forlorn franchise.

Owner Mike Brown agreed to let the cable network feature his team in this year's training-camp series, hoping it would boost the Bengals' image. So far, the lasting images have come from two brief, behind-closed-door moments that illustrate how things work.

Whether it's picking the players or signing the draft picks, the family calls the shots.

The first glimpse came from a staff meeting after two tight ends got hurt. The camera shows Brown sitting at the front of the room, watched by coaches and other team officials. Brown starts the meeting with a surprise.

"This is a wild thought," Brown says, then suggests they move defensive end Chris Harrington to tight end.

Coach Marvin Lewis physically recoils at the suggestion, his mouth dropping open for a telltale second. He wearily rubs his left hand across the top of his head, but says nothing.

Brown asks for a response from the assistant coaches, who are caught off-guard. They say that Harrington moves a little stiffly, but has good hands and is fast.

AP photo

Cincinnati Bengals head coach Marvin Lewis reacts to a play in the second quarter of a preseason game against the New England Patriots, Thursday in Foxborough, Mass.

That's exactly what Brown wants to hear.

"He can run pretty well," Brown says. "By tight end standards, he can run really well."

Brown decides to try his experiment.

"Probably what it means is we'll go with two fullbacks at the end and three tight ends instead of four," Brown says. "It just is a little different way of getting lined up, but I think that's where this takes us."

The camera pulls away. End of discussion.

The vignette lasted only a minute out of the initial one-hour show, but reinforced perceptions of how the organization is run. When the owner offers his "wild thought," everyone speaks carefully — or not at all — so as not to contradict the boss.

Brown took complete control of the team when his father, Paul, died before the 1991 season. Since then, it has only one winning season in 18 years, one of the worst runs of futility in NFL history. Brown functions as the team's de facto general manager, hiring the coaches and making the roster decisions. He also demands loyalty.

No surprise, then, that he got the response he wanted.

Like the four previous "Hard Knocks" series featuring other teams, this one has tried to show players in unguarded moments as they compete for jobs. There have been several eye-catching moments.

When players reported for dorm assignments at Georgetown College in Kentucky, one newcomer was flabbergasted that there was a rental charge for televisions — $93 for a 26-inch screen, $122 for a 32-inch, $183 for 42 inches.

The cameras also showed director of football operations Jim Lippincott knocking on fullback J.D. Runnels' door at 5:30 a.m., waking him to tell him he's been released.

"The only reason we always cut players here is ability, no other reason," Lippincott tells the half-asleep player.

"Wow," Runnels says.

No player has gotten more screen time than receiver Chad Ochocinco, and it hasn't all been laudatory. During one practice, quarterback Carson Palmer scolds him for not going all-out, telling the receiver, "You can't take plays off. You feel me?"

Later, during a coaches' evaluation meeting, receivers coach Mike Sheppard says, "85 (Ochocinco) has some plays that he takes off."

The show has avoided mentioning the team's futility since Brown took control. It didn't show the banner that disgruntled fans had flown over the team's scrimmage. It said: "101-187-1 ... HIRE A GM!" — a reference to the team's record since 1991.

The show also has taken an arm's-length approach to one of the biggest stories of Cincinnati's camp: Andre Smith's contract impasse, which provided the other telling closed-door moment.

The Bengals expected the sixth overall pick to start at right tackle, but he remains unsigned with two pre-season games left.

Giants surprised and saddened by Burress plea

ALBANY, N.Y. — Plaxico Burress' decision to plead guilty to a weapons charge and accept two years in prison surprised his former New York Giants teammates and left at least one claiming the Super Bowl star was punished too severely. Browns receiver Donte' Stallworth served 30 days in jail for running over and killing a man while driving drunk. Former Falcons quarterback Michael Vick served 18 months in prison for torturing animals and running a dogfighting ring for years.

Burress shot himself in the leg, but he was illegally carrying a gun in a nightclub when he did it.

"I think they wanted to set an example, which sucks," Giants receiver Steve Smith said. "He did something to himself. He didn't hurt anybody else."

Roughly 18 months after Burress caught the game-winning pass in the Super Bowl and nine months after accidentally shooting himself in a Manhattan night club, he pleaded guilty in a New York City court on Thursday to one count of attempted criminal possession of a weapon.

Burress, who faced a minimum of 3 1/2 years in prison if convicted at trial, instead agreed to a two-year prison term and must serve at least 20 months. Burress, who was released by the Giants in April, will be formally sentenced on Sept. 22.

New York Mayor Michael Bloomberg, who has waged a long campaign against illegal guns, had publicly castigated Burress for carrying his .40-caliber weapon.

"You never think somebody who was at that magnitude would get time like this," Smith said. "I heard the mayor, whatever he said."

Burress' attorney, Benjamin Brafman, called the case "a perfect example about how bad judgment can have very serious consequences" and said Burress was treated more harshly because he is a celebrity.

NFL commissioner Roger Goodell suspended Burress on Thursday afternoon, informing him that he is ineligible to sign with any team until he completes his jail term.

Burress will be reinstated upon the completion of his sentence, the league said, adding it met with Burress and his representatives on Aug. 12 in New York. Burress' former teammates clearly were not expecting him to face substantial prison time over the incident.

"My heart kind of dropped, obviously," Pro Bowl defensive end Justin Tuck said after hearing of Burress' plea agreement. "I think sometimes you think about situations like that and it's bound to happen sometime, soon. But once it does happens, it catches you by surprise."

STEELERS QB ROETHLISBERGER HURTS FOOT OR ANKLE

LATROBE, Pa. — Pittsburgh Steelers quarterback Ben Roethlisberger injured his right ankle or foot during the last half-hour of the team's final training camp practice. It was not immediately certain how badly he was hurt or how long he would be out.

Roethlisberger had an ice pack on the back of the ankle when he was carted off at the end of Thursday's workout, with offensive coordinator Bruce Arians accompanying him. Roethlisberger didn't talk to reporters, but he could be overheard saying, "Oh it just feels great. It feels like a car ran over it."

As the Steelers' starting offense practiced against the starting defense, left tackle Max Starks couldn't handle a rush from line-backer James Harrison, the 2008 NFL Defensive Player of the Year. Starks went down to one knee as he tripped Roethlisberger, who stayed on the turf for about 5 minutes.

BUCS' TALIB ARRESTED FOR ALLEGEDLY HITTING CABBIE

TAMPA, Fla. — Tampa Bay cornerback Aqib Talib was held out of practice Thursday after police say he punched a taxi driver and was jailed on charges of simple battery and resisting arrest without violence.

The Bucs said the second-year pro, who fought with a teammate during last year's NFL rookie symposium and then had another confrontation with a teammate this offseason, would not be suspended by the team.

Instead the club referred the matter to commissioner Roger Goodell.

"It's unfortunate, certainly, what happened last night," general manager Mark Dominik said.

Alabama linebacker, girlfriend arrested

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. — Alabama linebacker Courtney Upshaw and a female student identified as his girlfriend were free on bond Thursday after being arrested on a misdemeanor charge of domestic violence and third-degree harassment.

University police charged Upshaw and Kendall Lynn Gryzb, both 19, after an altercation at about 9:30 p.m. Wednesday in the parking lot of the campus recreation center, according to documents filed at Tuscaloosa County district court.

Upshaw practiced Thursday afternoon and afterward coach Nick Saban said he would not be suspended for the opener Sept. 5 against Virginia Tech but would be punished individually and placed on "behavior probation." He said it was the first time Upshaw has had an issue on or off the field since arriving on campus.

"This is as fine a young man as we have in the program," Saban said. "Really a great person. Really works hard academically. I couldn't ask anybody to be a better representative of the organization than he is. He really overachieves as a football player."

"I think he was put in a little bit of an uncompromising position and didn't handle it very well. He obviously made a mistake in how he handled the situation and I think nobody feels worse than he does."

The 6-foot-2, 249-pound sophomore is competing with Eryk Anders for a starting job at outside linebacker, after playing in the final 13 games last season and making 22 tackles.

JUDGE: NCAA RECORDS ON FLA. ST. CHEATING PUBLIC

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. — A top official at the NCAA said a court ruling Thursday that documents dealing with cheating at Florida State are public records sets a precedent that will "rip the heart out of the NCAA" and its efforts to ensure competition is fair and equal.

David Berst, the NCAA's vice president for Division I, said few witnesses other than school officials and employees would be willing to tell what they know about cheating, whether in recruiting, academics or other areas, without the promise of confidentiality.

"We could see copycat efforts in other states," Berst said. "Yes, I believe that would rip the heart out of the NCAA."

His comments from the witness stand came soon after Circuit Judge John Cooper rejected the NCAA's claim that the documents in the Florida State case are not public.

The Associated Press and other media outlets had sued to get the records on the college athletics governing body's plan to strip coaches and athletes of wins in 10 sports.

That includes football coach Bobby Bowden, who could lose 14 victories. Bowden's chances of overtaking Penn State's Joe Paterno as major college football's winningest coach would dim if the NCAA rejects an appeal of that penalty. Paterno has 383 victories — one more than Bowden.

CSU FOOTBALL PLAYER TAKEN TO HOSPITAL

FORT COLLINS, Colo. — A Colorado State football player was taken to the hospital more than an hour after practice ended.

The player, whose name wasn't released, was taken by ambulance to the hospital at about 5:30 p.m. Thursday. Colorado State athletics department spokesman Zak Gilbert says the school's medical staff took "all the necessary precautions" and didn't think the player's condition was life-threatening.

Low turnout seen in Afghan election

Voters risk violence; 26 die

KABUL (AP) — Millions of Afghans defied threats Thursday to cast ballots in the country's second national elections since Taliban rule, but turnout appeared weaker this time because of continuing violence, fear and disenchantment.

In much of the Taliban's southern strongholds, many people did not dare to vote, bolstering the hopes of President Hamid Karzai's chief rival.

At least 26 people were killed in election-related violence, fewer than had been feared.

Officials began counting millions of ballots as soon as the polls closed at 5 p.m. after a one-hour extension.

First preliminary results weren't expected for several days, and some major candidates were already alleging fraud.

A top election official, Zekria Barakzai, told The Associated Press that he estimated 40 to 50 percent of the country's 15 million registered voters cast ballots — far lower than the 70 percent who voted in the presidential election in 2004.

Nevertheless, many Afghans did vote, some at great risk to their lives. Many waited until midday to see whether the Taliban would carry through with threats to attack polling stations. Some proudly showed off the ink on their index fingers to prove they had voted.

"I know the security situation of my country is not good, but I have made my decision to come and cast my vote anyway," said Shukran Ahmad, 32, said as he waited at a polling center in western Kabul. "I wanted to be the first person to vote today in this polling center."

Report: Millions in bonuses paid to VA employees

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thousands of technology office employees at the Veterans Affairs Department received a total of $24 million in bonuses over a two-year period, some under questionable circumstances, the agency's inspector general said in scathing reports that also detail abuses ranging from nepotism to an inappropriate relationship.

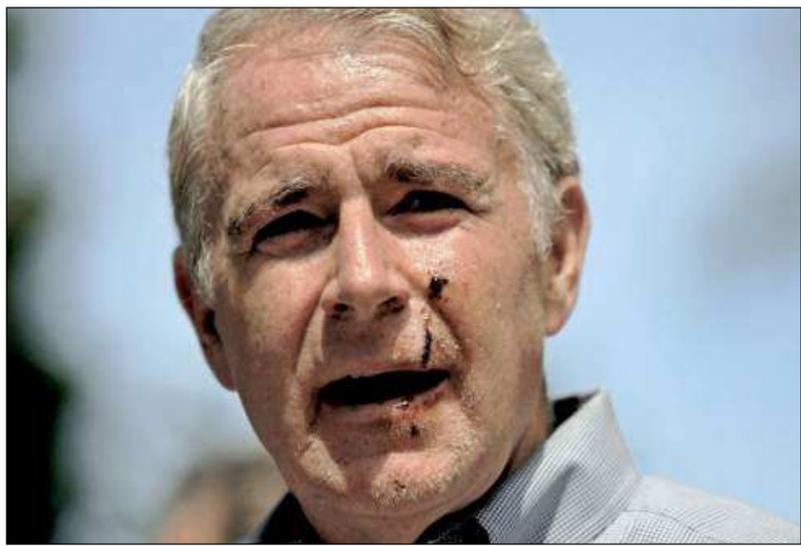

The inspector general accused one recently retired VA official of acting "as if she was given a blank checkbook" as awards and bonuses were distributed to employees of the Office of Information and Technology in 2007 and 2008. In some cases the justification for the bonuses was inadequate or questionable, the IG said.

The official, Jennifer S. Duncan, also engaged in nepotism and got $60,000 in bonuses herself, the IG said. In addition, managers improperly authorized college tuition payments for VA employees, some of whom were Duncan's family members and friends. That cost taxpayers nearly $140,000.

Separately, a technology office employee became involved in an "inappropriate personal relationship" with a high-level VA official. The technology office employee flew 22 times from Florida to Washington, where the VA official lived. That travel cost $37,000.

The details on the alleged improprieties were in two IG reports issued this week. VA spokeswoman Katie Roberts said the agency was extremely concerned about the IG's findings and would pursue a thorough review.

"OUR MAYOR AIN'T NO CREAM PUFF"

AP photo
Milwaukee Mayor Tom Barrett holds a news conference in front of his home Wednesday in Milwaukee. Barrett was attacked Saturday while leaving the state fair as he tried to stop a domestic dispute in a nearby parking lot.

Milwaukee rallies around its new hero — the mayor

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Milwaukee's mayor has bloody cuts on his face, smashed teeth and a fractured hand — but he's not exactly hurting politically. Ever since he confronted a metal-bar wielding man near the state fair, Tom Barrett has become a sort of urban folk hero, with T-shirts comparing him to Superman or saying "Our Mayor Ain't No Cream Puff."

President Obama gave him a get-well call, and some are saying the status might help, at least temporarily, if he decides to run for governor.

"That story is a great story for any candidate, and they'd love to have that," said University of Wisconsin-Madison political science professor Charles Franklin.

Coincidentally, Gov. Jim Doyle also announced this week that he would not seek a third term in 2010. Barrett, a former congressman, has been mentioned as a possible Democratic candidate to replace him.

The 55-year-old mayor has been downplaying his efforts to help a woman who was crying for help Saturday night. Police say a man beat Barrett after he tried to call 911.

"I can't think of a situation like this where people would not have responded the way I did," he said Wednesday. "When someone says call 911, you call 911 — it's that straightforward."

But in Milwaukee — and elsewhere in the Dairy State — his efforts have not gone unnoticed.

A reporter for a local Milwaukee television station told the mayor that the station has received hundreds of get-well wishes from people who called the mayor a hero and

Editors at the weekly Shepherd Express named "Citizen Tom Barrett" their hero of the week, saying he "embodies what it means to be a true citizen in a civil society."

T-shirts commemorating the mayor also are popping up for sale in Milwaukee, a city of 604,000 best known for its beer, brats and blue-collar historic pride.

One shirt, with a Superman "S" emblazoned on it, reads "Supermayor Tom Barrett." It also calls the mayor: "Selfless & Courageous ... For The People Of Milwaukee."

Screen printing and embroidery company Will Enterprises donated about a dozen to the mayor's office, saying in a letter it was grateful Milwaukee had a mayor like Barrett. Sales Manager Kevin Ullrich said so many people were requesting them that they have started selling nearly the same version, but with an "M," instead of an "S" emblem.

Brew City Brand Apparel also has black-and-yellow T-shirts that read, "Our Mayor Ain't No Cream Puff" for sale. Cream puffs are popular at the Wisconsin State Fair, which ended Sunday, and so far, the company has sold 150.

Police on Thursday charged Anthony J. Peters, 20, with two felonies — first-degree reckless injury with a weapon and theft — and two misdemeanors. The charges carry a maximum sentence of 36 years behind bars and a $136,000 fine.

Idaho Supreme Court justices hear propofol case

BOISE (AP) — An Idaho judge shouldn't have thrown out a jury's $750,000 award to a woman who alleges that her 2-year-old son died after surgery to repair a dog bite wound because of doctors' negligent use of the sedative Propofol, lawyers told the Idaho Supreme Court.

Attorneys for the plaintiff — Melinda Coombs — and for Drs. Adrian Curnow and Russell Griffiths argued their cases before the high court on Wednesday, The Idaho Statesman reported.

Coombs' son, Michael Hall, was at a party in 2002 when he reached for some food that had dropped to the ground, court documents said. The host's golden retriever also went for the food, and when the toddler tried to take it away, the dog bit him on the face, severing a piece of his cheek.

Attempts by doctors to attach the tissue in surgery ultimately failed. But during surgery and afterward, the boy was given propofol to prevent him from touching the injury or reacting to treatment.

Propofol, an intravenous anesthetic, is often used for short diagnostic tests and surgical procedures. It's also the drug that investigators believe caused the June 25 death of singer Michael Jackson.

MONTANA Conservation groups ask judge to block wolf hunts

MISSOULA — Conservation groups are asking a federal judge in Missoula to block fall wolf hunts in Idaho and Montana.

The request, filed Thursday by Earthjustice on behalf of 13 groups, is part of an ongoing lawsuit that seeks to restore federal Endangered Species Act protection to wolves in the northern Rocky Mountains.

The Idaho Department of Fish and Game Commission voted earlier this week to let hunters shoot 220 wolves during a hunting season to start in next month, while Montana has voted to allow 75 wolves to be killed in a hunt that would start in mid-September.

The request argues that Idaho and Montana are beginning wolf hunts too soon after federal protections were removed.

Idaho Fish and Game spokesman Ed Mitchell says the agency has not seen the filing, but is confident in its management plan.

IDAHO Sockeye numbers keep growing

STANLEY — The number of sockeye salmon returning to Idaho's Stanley Basin continues to grow.

State fisheries biologists said this week that 452 of the endangered fish have returned to Redfish Lake and nearby streams.

It marks the second consecutive summer of improved returns of the fish to central Idaho. Last summer, 636 of the fish returned to spawn.

The totals for this summer and last surpass the previous high of 257 sockeye set in 2000, and well above 2007 when biologists tallied just four sockeye.

Eagle Fish Hatchery Manager Dan Baker is predicting as many as 700 sockeye could return by the end of summer, with the last few stragglers returning by September.

Biologists attribute the increase to increased smolt production, better river flows from increased snowpack and improved ocean conditions.

Boise gives bikini bar 6 months to relocate

BOISE — The Boise City Council has given a local bikini bar six months to move to a new location because of a zoning violation.

In April, city officials stripped the Torch 2 of its right to operate after they said owner Mans Montgomery illegally expanded the bar's entrance.

Boise's zoning laws ban bikini bars from operating within 300 feet of residential areas.

But the Torch 2 predated the ordinance, and so it was allowed to operate. But the city revoked the grandfather rights after the entrance of the building was modified.

California glider pilot missing

MACKAY — Civil Air Patrol aircraft are searching in the Antelope Valley Thursday for an experienced glider pilot who has been missing since Wednesday afternoon.

Authorities say 78-year-old Thierry Thys of Oakland, Calif., was reported missing at about 10 p.m. Wednesday. He was last seen earlier in the day.

The Idaho Transportation Department's Division of Aeronautics is coordinating the search, which is focusing on a 250-square-mile area south of Mackay. Four planes are searching the Antelope Valley, Cooper Basin and Mackay Reservoir.

Transportation Department spokesman Mel Coulter says the plane Thys was in is a motorized glider.

In 2003, Thys and a friend flew in a motorized glider from Carson City, Nev., to the southern tip of South America and back to Nevada. During the previous summer, the two flew from Carson City to Point Barrow, Alaska and back to Nevada.

Lockerbie bomber freed; victims' relatives outraged

TRIPOLI, Libya (AP) — The only man convicted of the Lockerbie bombing returned home Thursday to a cheering crowd after his release from a Scottish prison — an outrage to many relatives of the 270 people who perished when Pan Am Flight 103 exploded.

President Barack Obama said the Scottish decision to free terminally ill Abdel Baset al-Megrahi on compassionate grounds was a mistake and said he should be under house arrest. Obama warned Libya not to give him a hero's welcome.

Despite the warning, thousands of young men were on hand at a Tripoli airport where al-Megrahi's plane touched down. Some threw flower petals as he stepped from the plane. He wore a dark suit and a burgundy tie and appeared visibly tired.

He was accompanied by Libyan leader Moammar Gadhafi's son, Saif al-Islam Gadhafi, who was dressed in a traditional white robe and golden embroidered vest. The son pledged last year to bring al-Megrahi home and raised his hand victoriously to the crowd as he exited the plane. They then sped off in a convoy of white sedans.

International photographers and camera crews — along with most Libyan broadcast media — were barred from filming the arrival at the airport, which decades ago had been part of a U.S. air base.

Al-Megrahi's release disgusted many victims' relatives.

"You get that lump in your throat and you feel like you're going to throw up," said Norma Maslowski, of Haddonfield, New Jersey, whose 30-year-old daughter, Diane, died in the attack.

"This isn't about compassion — this is part of give-Gadhafi-what-he-wants-so-we-can-have-the-oil," said Susan Cohen, of Cape May Court House, New Jersey. Her 20-year-old daughter, Theodora, was killed.

At home, al-Megrahi, 57, is seen as an innocent scapegoat the West used to turn this African nation into a pariah. At the airport, some wore T-shirts with his picture and waved Libyan and miniature blue-and-white Scottish flags. Libyan songs blared in the background.

"It's a great day for us," 24-year-old Abdel-Aal Mansour said. "He belongs here, at home."

Moammar Gadhafi lobbied hard for the return of al-Megrahi, an issue which took on an added sense of urgency when al-Megrahi was diagnosed with prostate cancer last year. He was recently given only months to live.

In hot water: Ocean temps set a record

By Seth Borenstein
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — Steve Kramer spent an hour and a half swimming in the ocean Sunday — in Maine.

The water temperature was 72 degrees — more like Ocean City, Md., this time of year. And Ocean City's water temp hit 88 degrees this week, toasty even by Miami Beach standards.

Kramer, 26, who lives in the seaside town of Scarborough, said it was the first time he's ever swam so long in Maine's coastal waters. "Usually, you're in five minutes and you're out," he said.

It's not just the ocean off the Northeast coast that is super-warm this summer. July was the hottest the world's oceans have been in almost 130 years of record-keeping.

The average water temperature worldwide was 62.6 degrees, according to the National Climatic Data Center, the branch of the U.S. government that keeps world weather records. That was 1.1 degree higher than the 20th century average, and beat the previous high set in 1998 by a couple hundredths of a degree. The coolest recorded ocean temperature was 59.3 degrees in December 1909.

Meteorologists said there's a combination of forces at work this year: A natural El Nino system just getting started on top of worsening man-made global warming, and a dash of random weather variations. The resulting ocean heat is already harming threatened coral reefs. It could also hasten the melting of Arctic sea ice and help hurricanes strengthen.

The Gulf of Mexico, where warm water fuels hurricanes, has temperatures dancing around 90. Most of the water in the Northern Hemisphere has been considerably warmer than normal. The Mediterranean is about three degrees warmer than normal. Higher temperatures rule in the Pacific and Indian Oceans.

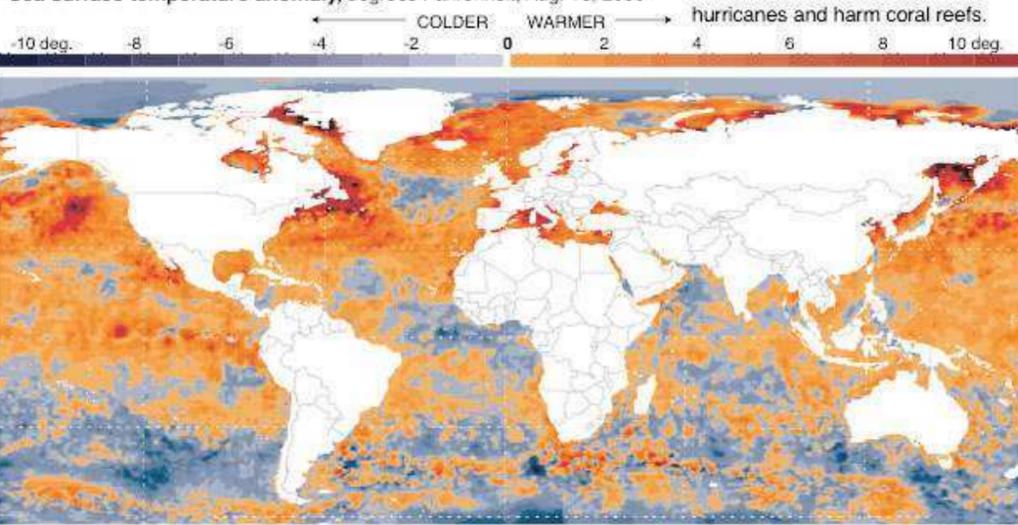

The heat is most noticeable near the Arctic, where water temperatures are as much as 10 degrees above average. The tongues of warm water could help melt sea ice from below and even cause thawing of ice sheets on Greenland, said Waleed Abdalati, director of the Earth Science and Observation Center at the University of Colorado.

Breaking heat records in water is more ominous as a sign of global warming than breaking temperature marks on land, because water takes longer to heat up and does not cool off as easily as land.

World oceans warmer than ever

Ocean temperatures this summer are hotter than they have ever been and that could fuel hurricanes and harm coral reefs.

Ship's crew, hijackers interrogated

MOSCOW (AP) — Russian authorities questioned crew members from the Arctic Sea cargo ship after the seamen and eight alleged pirates were returned to Moscow on Thursday, adding new details to the mystery of the ship's monthlong odyssey.

Three heavy-lift air force jets, reportedly carrying 11 crew members, the alleged hijackers and other investigators, arrived at a Moscow region military base after flying from Cape Verde, the West African island nation where a Russian frigate stopped the ship four days ago.

State television channel Rossiya said the suspects claimed to be were ecologists who had been arrested by mistake.

The saga of the Maltese-flagged freighter, which left Finland on July 21 carrying a load of timber to Algeria, has gripped much of Europe. The ship was found nearly two weeks after it was to have docked in Algeria, thousands of miles off course and long out of radio contact.

2009 FORD EXPLORER SPORT TRAC

ADDING MORE SAFETY!!

RoadWorthy!
By Ken Chester, Jr.
Motor News Media Corporation

Strong, nimble and responsive, the Explorer Sport Trac is based on the popular Explorer four-door SUV. Last year, the Sport Trac added the following standard features: a drop-in storage bin with power points, Safety Canopy side curtain airbags, fog lamps, leather-wrapped steering wheel, power rear window and one-touch up/down power driver's window.

For 2009, the Explorer Sport Trac adds standard Trailer Sway Control. Working with the automaker's AdvanceTrac vehicle stability control, Trailer Sway Control determines from the yaw motion of the vehicle if the trailer is swaying and takes measures -- such as precise braking or reduced engine torque -- to bring both vehicle and trailer under control. Also new this year is a voice-activated navigation system with SIRIUS Travel Link.

Offered in XLT and Limited trim levels and available in two- or four-wheel drive configurations, base power for the Sport Trac is provided by a large displacement 4.0L V6 joined to a 5R55W5 five-speed automatic transmission. A refined 4.6L V8 powerplant bolted to a 6R six-speed automatic transmission is an available option. The standard rear axle final drive ratio is 3.73, while the optional limited-slip rear axle is 3.55.

Sport Trac's available Control Blade four-wheel drive (4WD) system delivers additional traction on demand. Controlled by three buttons on the center stack, the driver can choose 4x4 Auto, 4x4 High or 4x4 Low for the best application of handling and grip in all conditions.

Designed to meet a driver's "passion for the road and the trails beyond", Ford applies the best of Explorer's engineering and ruggedly dependable running gear. That means the Sport Trac is now fully loaded, starting with a robust fully boxed frame that is over five times stiffer than the previous model, a larger, dent and scratch resistant composite cargo box and AdvanceTrac with Roll Stability Control.

Other class-leading features of the Sport Trac include three gear bins, integrated into the cargo box floor. Weather-resistant lids and removable drain plugs help make them perfect for a wide variety of activities. A standard 12-volt powerpoint located in the cargo box makes powering auxiliary equipment such as an air compressor, spotlight cooler or camping stove easy.

The Sport Trac rides on a fully independent suspension that takes advantage of the vehicle frame improvements. The control hardware incorporates a short-/long-arm, coil-over-shock design upfront, a patent-pending trailing blade that features a stamped-steel arm with an integrated casting for the knuckle attachment and welded steel-tube control arms at the rear.

The result is that this new suspension offers significantly better handling over smooth and rough surfaces.

Inside the passenger cabin, the long wheelbase and wide track delivers class-leading interior accommodations, including above average rear leg room.

Inspired by the larger F-150 pickup truck, the Explorer Sport Trac defines what Ford calls a "tough luxury" theme. Bold, confident and tough, the Sport Trac boasts an interior that adds a level of sophistication and refinement. For example, Tuffor floor covering is standard -- offering motorists a hose-out, wipe-down convenience from muddy or snow covered boots. Standard cloth seating is comfortable and supportive, while displays controls and switchgear are clean, modern and easy to read and operate.

The 60/40-split rear bench seat is comfortable for three adults. The seat folds down to add cargo hauling functionality for those items that need to be safely secured under lock and key.

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Conceptis Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.

Promiscuous co-ed will be poor role model for sister

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: I'm about to move out of a condo I have shared for two years with a roommate I'll call "Carly." Her parents own it, and I'm leaving because Carly's sister, "Heather," is moving in soon to attend school. Carly is supposed to look out for Heather and teach her how to live on her own because Heather has some mental challenges.

In the two years I have lived with Carly, she has been mostly absent. She often leaves for days at a time without telling me. I hope this will change when her sister moves in.

Carly is also very promiscuous. She's always with one guy or another, and occasionally intimate with more than one at a time. Through closed doors and over a blaring TV I have overheard her and her boyfriends going at it but accepted it as part of normal college life. I fear Heather will be mortified to hear what I have heard.

I don't think Carly knows she has been overheard. Should I warn her when I move out? Or should I not mention it and hope she's a better role model for Heather when she arrives?

- ALMOST EX-ROOMIE IN NEW HAMPSHIRE
DEAR ALMOST EX: By all means warn Carly. Had you done so the first time the noise bothered you, living there would have been less embarrassing for you. But at the same time you should also have a chat with Carly's parents. The responsibility they are placing on her is a serious one, and it doesn't appear Carly is up to shouldering it.

A better solution for Heather would be for her to be in a program where certified teachers can help her learn independent living skills and in which she would receive appropriate, consistent supervision. Her safety — in more ways than one — could depend on it.

DEAR ABBY: My mother-in-law has a terrible habit. She tells us what she wants for gifts in the form of e-mails with Web links to things she wants.

One year, she bought a pair of $700 earrings and told her fiancé that he bought them for her birthday. He actually had to reimburse her.

Last Mother's Day she sent an e-mail with a link to a site selling personalized crystal items to be engraved with a thoughtful message to "Mom." This week she sent an e-mail — two months in advance — saying what she wants for her birthday.

I wasn't raised like this. I have a problem with someone telling me what she wants when I haven't asked. I also don't like being told how much to spend. I think her behavior is selfish and immature, but how do I get it to stop?

My husband is used to it. He doesn't know how to say no to her. His sisters have picked up this habit and tell us what their kids want for birthdays and Christmas. One sister even handed me an ad she had clipped for something she wants on her next birthday. What can I do?

- SOLICITED IN ARIZONA

DEAR SOLICITED: How about ignoring the solicitations and giving something you can afford? Or just say no. And if your mother-in-law or sisters-in-law ask why you didn't "produce on command," say — with a smile — that asking for gifts is rude, that it makes you uncomfortable, and what was requested was beyond your means.

IF AUGUST 21 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY:

You are good to go through October. You may receive recognition for your talents or leadership abilities and may have some excellent opportunities to advance yourself in the career arena. September is an especially good month in which to set career or business plans into motion or to reassess crucial relationships because your judgment is better than usual and if you err it will be on the side of generosity. Be sure to take care of any lingering health problems. Don't rock the boat in December by taking on additional obligations such as a car payment or changing jobs. Your relationships could undergo some upsets in March, but any worthwhile commitment will survive the celestial conditions. Wait until late May to mend fences and restore the status quo.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You can charm the boss, impress a new heartthrob or amaze your friends with your astute insights into human behavior.

HOROSCOPE
Jeraldine Saunders

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You might make a new conquest. The truth is, however, that one of you is looking for a no-strings-attached fling.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): It is always a good policy to treat those who help you along the golden road to success fairly. Never forget to show appreciation.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Mingle if single. Relationships made now might not last forever, but you will learn something significant or gain insights.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Concentrate on new social contacts. You may find you have a flair for being a "live wire" when hooked up with the right person.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): It is perfectly acceptable if a few key people vacillate between being hot and cold in their attitudes. Prove your trustworthiness.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Appreciate independent spirits. You can support someone emotionally or financially without creating dependence.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Friday, Aug. 21, the 233rd day of 2009. There are 132 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight: Fifty years ago, on Aug. 21, 1959, Hawaii became the 50th state as President Dwight D. Eisenhower signed an executive order, five months after signing the Hawaiian statehood bill.

On this date: In 1609, Galileo Galilei demonstrated his new telescope, capable of magnifying images of objects ninefold, to a group of officials atop the Campanile in Venice.

In 1807, Robert Fulton's North River Steamboat set off from Albany on its return trip to New York, arriving some 30 hours later.

In 1831, Nat Turner led a violent slave rebellion in Virginia resulting in the deaths of at least 55 white people. (He was later executed.)

In 1858, the first of seven debates between Illinois senatorial contenders Abraham Lincoln and Stephen Douglas took place.

In 1878, the American Bar Association was founded in Saratoga, N.Y.

In 1911, Leonardo da Vinci's "Mona Lisa" was stolen from the Louvre Museum in Paris. (The painting turned up two years later, in Italy.)

In 1940, exiled Communist revolutionary Leon Trotsky died in Mexico City from wounds inflicted by an assassin the day before.

In 1963, martial law was declared in South Vietnam as police and army troops began a crackdown on Buddhist anti-government protesters.

In 1983, Philippine opposition leader Benigno S. Aquino Jr., ending a self-imposed exile in the United States, was shot dead moments after stepping off a plane at Manila International Airport.

In 1991, the hard-line coup against Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev collapsed in the face of a popular uprising led by Russian federation President Boris N. Yeltsin.

Ten years ago: President Bill Clinton urged Americans to contribute to the relief effort for Turkey, where the death toll from a massive earthquake four days earlier topped 12,000. (It eventually reached 17,000.)

Five years ago: The International Gymnastics Federation ruled that South Korean Yang Tae-young was unfairly docked a tenth of a point in the all-around gymnastics final at the Athens Olympics, costing him the gold medal that ended up going to Paul Hamm of the United States; however, the ruling did not change the final result.

One year ago: President George W. Bush issued a federal disaster declaration for parts of Florida affected by Tropical Storm Fay. Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice arrived in Baghdad for discussions with Prime Minister Nouri al-Maliki and other top Iraqi officials. Twin Taliban suicide bombings at Pakistan's largest weapons complex killed at least 67 people. At the Summer Olympics, Japan defeated the U.S. softball team, 3-1, to win the gold medal. Kerri Walsh and Misty May-Treanor won their second consecutive gold medal in beach volleyball, beating Wang Jie and Tian Jia of China. The U.S. women's soccer team won the gold medal by beating Brazil 1-0 in extra time. One-time actor Fred Crane, who'd played one of the Tarleton twins in "Gone With the Wind," died in Atlanta at age 90.
