Vehicles roll along Washington Street North Friday in Twin Falls. Federal funding came through that will allow the city to widen Washington Street North from Shoup Avenue to Dubois Avenue. Work will start early next year.

Feds boost plans to widen Washington Street

By Ben Botkin

Washington Street North has a facelift in its future. The Twin Falls City Council on Friday unanimously approved a resolution in which the state and city agreed to proceed with road construction along Washington Street North between Shoup Avenue and Dubois Avenue. The $2 million project, primarily federally funded, will allow that section of Washington Street North to be widened into five lanes with a landscaped median and bicycle lanes. The city's match will be about $169,000. "This is the mechanism by which we pay our federal aid match," Jackie Fields, city engineer, told the council. Preliminary drainage work will begin in the winter around January or February, and construction will start in March or April, Fields said.

Idaho Republicans distance themselves from Rex Rammell

By Jared S. Hopkins
Times-News writer

More Idaho Republicans — including Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter and three members in Congress — distanced themselves Friday from Rex Rammell's comments about buying a license to hunt President Obama. Rammell, seeking the GOP nomination for governor in 2010, was speaking about the sale of wolf tags Tuesday at a Twin Falls Republican event. When an audience member shouted out a question about "Obama tags," Rammell responded, "Obama tags? We'd buy some of those." Rammell, a longshot GOP candidate, has since said he was joking, and issued a clarified statement: "Anyone who understands the law knows I was just joking, because Idaho has no jurisdiction to issue hunting tags in Washington D.C."

Republicans distanced themselves as the issue gained more national media attention. U.S. Sen. Mike Crapo called on Rammell to apologize and said his comments undermine debate on important topics. "Rex Rammell's comments are in very poor taste and should not have been said. Remarks like these should not even be made jokingly," Crapo said. Otter, who Rammell is expected to face in the primary, said, "Reckless and inflammatory statements like these gravely damage confidence in the political process and the good citizens who serve the public." U.S. Sen. Jim Risch, who crossed paths with Rammell as governor over elk issues, was critical, too. As an independent candidate, Rammell garnered just 5.4 percent of the vote in his unsuccessful 2008 Senate race against Risch.

Felony charges to be reduced in Gooding riot

By Andrea Jackson
Times-News writer

Lawmen in Gooding County said a year ago that they were attacked during a riot by unruly people, including a bystander who allegedly brandished a gun and threatened to blow up the Gooding County Jail. Three people were accused of felony and misdemeanor crimes in connection with that skirmish, but now will face only misdemeanor charges. On Aug. 31, 2008, Gooding County prosecutors accused Antonio Cobarrubias, 42, with two counts of felony riot and misdemeanor assault on law enforcement, and resisting an officer. Elsa Garibary, 27, was charged with felony battery on an officer and felony riot. Gabriel Garibay, 25, was accused of felony riot and felony malicious injury to property. Now all three will "change their pleas to guilty pursuant to certain plea negotiations involving a reduction to misdemeanor offenses," according to meeting minutes from their pretrials last week in Gooding County. The riot erupted when a Gooding city police officer stopped a car obstructing an alley behind the Miramar Bar at 214 Main St. and arrested its driver, Hector Gonzalez-Alvarado, for alleged driving under the influence, resisting officers and having an open container. He was found guilty April 6 of the open container charge and inattentive driving and must pay $399.50, according to online court records. As officers tried to arrest him, though, chaos erupted, according to police reports. "Alvarado would not get into the car and was still attempting to pull away from me," an officer wrote. "By this time there were approximately ten people coming around the front of my patrol car with more coming around the rear of (a patrol car) and in between our patrol cars yelling for me to let him go and waiving their arms in the air and

Idaho Power proposes second wind-farm deal

By Nate Poppino
Times-News writer

Idaho Power Co. has asked state regulators to approve another new sales agreement with a Magic Valley wind farm, this time covering a project set to expand by next year. The Idaho Public Utilities Commission is taking public comments through Sept. 23 on a proposed agreement for the 18.9-megawatt Cassia Gulch Wind Park and the soon-to-be-built 16.8-megawatt Tuana Springs project, both in the Hagerman area about four miles west of Idaho Power's lower Malad substation. Tuana Springs is expected to be fully operational by June 30, 2010. The projects are developed locally through Cassia Gulch Wind Park LLC and Tuana Springs Energy LLC. Their owner, Iowa-based John Deere Renewables, plans to combine them into one 35.7-megawatt project once Tuana Springs is operational. The new agreement would cover both segments with a blended rate that will preserve the value of the Cassia Gulch agreement for Idaho Power ratepayers.

Questions raised over how California kidnapper went undetected

By Terry Collins and Brooke Donald Associated Press writers

ANTIOCH, Calif. — His neighbors knew he was a registered sex offender. Kids on his block called him "Creepy Phil" and kept their distance. Parole agents and local law enforcement regularly visited his home and found nothing unusual, even after a neighbor complained children were living in a complex of tents in his backyard. For 18 years, Phillip Garrido managed to elude detection as he pulled off what authorities are calling an unfathomable crime, kidnapping and raping 11-year-old Jaycee Dugard, keeping her as his secret captive for nearly two decades and fathering her two children. The question about how he went unnoticed became more pressing Friday when Garrido came under suspicion in the unsolved murders of several prostitutes in the 1990s, raising the prospect he was a serial killer as well. Several of the women's bodies — the exact number is not known — were dumped near an industrial park where Garrido worked during the 1990s. Authorities acknowledged that they blew a chance three years ago to rescue Dugard from the backyard labyrinth of sheds, tents and outbuildings that were concealed from the outside world. A neighbor called 911 in November 2006 and described Garrido as a psychotic sex addict who was

MORNING BRIEFING

Pat's Picks

Three things to do today

Pat Marcantonio

• Support the Kimberly Bulldogs and help kick off fall sports with a barbecue at the Kimberly High School commons area. The junior varsity and varsity football teams scrimmage at 9 a.m., with an introduction of coaches and food to follow at 11:30 a.m.

• Register for the Blaine County Recreation District Quigley Canyon Run & Fun starting at 10 a.m. at the district Aquatic Center in Hailey. It's about 5 miles long and open to runners and walkers of all abilities. It's $5 to register from 9 to 9:45 a.m. The event won't be timed, but everyone wins free entry to the Aquatic Center, as well as lunch.

• Enjoy chili dogs and hot dogs, prizes, a greased watermelon race and a karaoke contest at the Paul Palooza from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. by the water tower in the Paul City Park.

Have your own pick you want to share? Something that is unique to the area and that may take people by surprise? E-mail me at patm@gmagicvalley.com.

Rammell

"This man declared when he last ran for public office, 'I am not really a Republican' and indeed, he ran as an independent. I agree with him that he is not really a Republican. His comments do not reflect the views of the Republican Party."

Rep. Mike Simpson said the comments do not reflect Idaho. "It is absolutely irresponsible to say such inflammatory things, especially for someone who seeks to be a leader in Idaho," he said in a statement.

The state Republican Party issued a statement Thursday saying it didn't condone Rammell's comments. On Friday, Chairman Norm Semanko said Rammell should take responsibility for his comments that "do not reflect the views of Idaho Republicans."

Rammell said Friday he's received e-mails and calls, including one from a Central Intelligence Agency agent in Boise.

"After he talked to me he could see it was blown way out of proportion," Rammell said.

The CIA sees it differently. "He has his facts wrong," said CIA spokesman Paul Gimigliano.

Bob Harrell, a Secret Service resident agent in Boise, said he was aware of Rammell's remark but couldn't comment.

Meanwhile, Rammell says he doesn't plan to apologize.

"I think everybody just needs to take a chill pill. It wasn't a big deal," he said. "I'm not going to apologize. There was no harm intended. I didn't do anything intentionally. If people want to be offended by something like that, that's their problem, not mine."

Because of the amount of federal funding remaining at the end of the fiscal year, the city was notified Wednesday that the funding was available, requiring a hastily called special council meeting on Friday afternoon to approve the resolution.

"You don't actually know until you get to the end of the year if you're going to have any money left," Fields said.

Councilman Greg Lanting thanked Fields for her work on the project, a sentiment echoed by other city officials. Mayor Lance Clow and Councilman Trip Craig were absent.

Among business managers along the stretch where roadwork will take place, there was some uncertainty about what to expect, though they agree that a widened road will bring more business in the long run.

"It's going to be hard on business, but we'll be alright," said Tabatha Lindsay, assistant manager at Smoke Shop. "Hopefully business doesn't go down from it."

Aaron Gupton, lot manager for Purple Dragon Auto Sales, said the road construction won't be a problem, provided that vehicles can enter the lot from both sides of the road.

Wind

The utility earlier this month submitted proposed sales agreements with three other wind farms developed by Exergy Development Group of Boise, all also in the Hagerman area.

After a few bumpy years of development, many small wind projects in the Magic Valley are getting back on their feet. The Tuana Springs project was approved by the Twin Falls County Planning and Zoning Commission in February of this year.

The agreement for Cassia Gulch dates back to April 2006, and would be replaced by the new agreement once Tuana is complete.

Comments can be submitted on the PUC's Web site — www.puc.idaho.gov — faxed to 208-334-3762 or mailed to P.O. Box 83720, Boise, ID 83720-0074. The case number is IPC-E-09-24.

living with children and had people staying in tents in his backyard.

The investigating officer spent a half-hour interviewing Garrido on his front porch but did not enter the house or search the backyard, Contra Costa County Sheriff Warren E. Rupf said. The deputy, who did not know Garrido was a registered sex offender even though the sheriff's department had the information, warned Garrido that the tents could be a code violation before leaving.

"We missed an opportunity to bring earlier closure to this situation," Rupf acknowledged. "I cannot change the course of events but we are beating ourselves up over this and continue to do so. We should have been more inquisitive, more curious and turned over a rock or two."

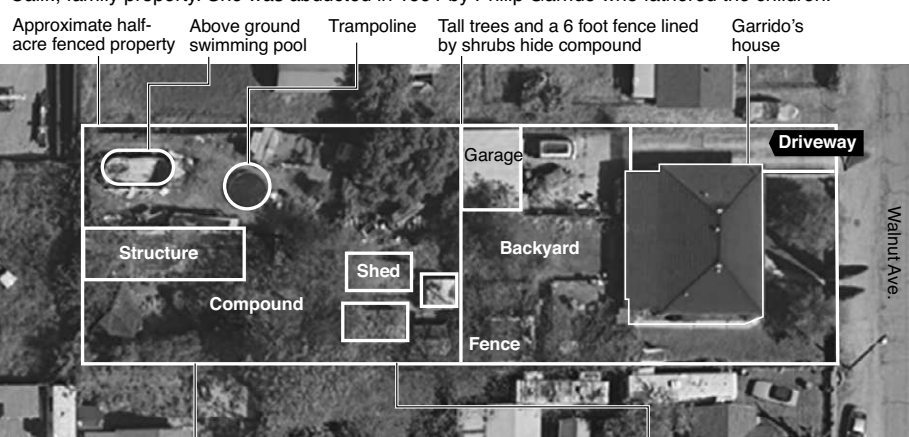

It was not the only missed opportunity.

As a parolee, Garrido wore a GPS-linked ankle bracelet that tracked his every movement, met with his parole agent several times each month and was subject to routine surprise home visits and random drug and alcohol tests, California Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation spokesman Gordon Hinkle said.

The last unannounced visit by a team of local police agencies was conducted in July 2008. Paramedics also were summoned to the house five times since 1999, presumably to help Garrido's 88-year-old mother, who had dementia.

"There was never any indication to my knowledge that there was any sign of children living there," Hinkle said.

As it turns out, Dugard and her two children were living there as prisoners, authorities say. The heavily wooded compound was arranged so that people could not view what was happening, and one of the buildings was soundproofed and could only be opened from the outside.

Neighbors knew there were children living there. Damon Robinson has lived next door to the Garridos for more than three years and his then-girlfriend in 2006 told him she saw tents in the backyard and children.

"I told her to call police. I told her to call right away," he said.

Dugard, now 29, was reunited with her family and said to be in good health, but feeling guilty about developing a bond with Garrido over the years. Her two children, 11 and 15, remained with her.

"Jaycee has strong feelings with this guy. She really feels it's almost like a marriage," said Dugard's stepfather Carl Probyn, who was there when little Jaycee was snatched from a bus stop in 1991.

Probyn has been in constant contact with Dugard's mother, his ex-wife Terry Probyn, since she found out her daughter was alive on Wednesday.

Probyn said both mother and daughter are trying to avoid the public eye for now. After not seeing each other for 18 years, Dugard greeted her mother by saying, "Hi, mom, I have babies," according to Probyn. Dugard had her two daughters with her at the reunion, and it appears she never told them she was kidnapped by their father, he said.

The authorities say they do not yet know whether she ever tried to escape or to alert anyone of her whereabouts, but she had chances to escape Garrido, who did a stint behind bars during the period of captivity.

Garrido and his wife pleaded not guilty Friday to a total of 29 counts, including forcible abduction, rape and false imprisonment. Phillip Garrido appeared stoic and unresponsive during the brief arraignment hearing. His wife cried and put her head in her hands several times.

aggressive body language. There was no way for (another officer) or I to leave the area."

Gabriel Garibay allegedly made a bomb threat saying "Gooding County (expletive) Jail is going to (expletive) blow up mother(expletive)."

Another police report filed with the court says that as Garibay was leaving "I heard him say that he was going to blow up the Gooding County Jail."

Meanwhile, a Gooding County deputy and a city officer were under attack, though more back up eventually arrived to quell the riot, according to their reports. "A brick was thrown at the Gooding City patrol car, striking the light bar, and damaging the roof."

"Alvarado placed me in a head-lock and began punching me on the right side of my head," according to an officer's report. "Tony (Cobarrubias) was on the other side of the street, and he began picking up large rocks and throwing them at me."

Elsa Garibay allegedly shoved and hit a deputy in the alleged riot, and a police video of the incident allegedly showed Gabriel Garibay as "the brick thrower and the one with the gun," according to a police report filed in court. "While he was waving it (gun) around he was shouting that he wanted to shoot some pigs."

Authorities say in their report that they used their Tasers during the altercation.

A motion to dismiss the case was filed for Cobarrubias on June 29 by his then-lawyer Rockne Lammers, which says Cobarrubias "followed the directives of the officers."

"There is no evidence of any kind that the defendant 'acted together with Gabriel Garibay and Elsa Garibay,' according to Cobarrubias' motion to dismiss. "The record is completely devoid of any evidence that there was some sort of complicity or agreement between these individuals to engage in the actions with which they are charged."

Gooding County Sheriff Shaun Gough said this week that he supports the misdemeanor course this case is taking, and noted that damage caused amounted to less than the $500 required for felony riots. "When you mix alcohol and people, sometimes you have problems," Gough said Friday.

Plea agreements had yet to be filed last week in Gooding County 5th District Court, a call to county prosecutors was unreturned Friday, and Gooding city police declined to comment.

Plea and sentencing hearings for the Garibays and Cobarrubias are now slated for Sept. 28.

Law & Disorder... ...in Cassia County

From August 27 police reports: Battery: A 48-year-old Burley woman who works at the Idaho Youth Ranch Store reported that another woman, 60, slapped her after a disagreement over prices. According to Deputy Brynn Blacker's report, the suspect asked for the prices on a few shirts and, after she was told $1.50, shouted, "No, No, No, One dollar, One dollar!" The employee said she again told the woman that the shirts cost $1.50 and that the woman again insisted, "No, One dollar!" According to the report, the suspect then "reached up and slapped (the employee) across the jaw." She described the suspect, the report reads, "as a short, Chinese female with silver, gray hair, in her 60s, and with bad front, bottom teeth." The alleged victim pressed charges for battery. The suspect was cited but claimed it was all a misunderstanding. She said she couldn't write a statement, however, "because she can't write much English," the report reads. The suspect later came into the sheriff's office with her daughter to translate a written statement. According to the report, she told police that she's friends with the employee — that they "do business with each other" and that she merely touched her. She said she just asked if the shirts could be lowered to $1 and that the employee then said, "You too cheap" and tapped the woman's shoulder. According to the report, the suspect then "reached up to (the alleged victim's) mouth to hush her and said, 'Don't say like that.'"

Twin Falls rape suspect denied new lawyer

Franklin Scott Osterhoudt claims public defender conflict

By Andrea Jackson
Times-News writer

A 20-year-old rape suspect was denied a new Twin Falls County public defender on Friday after citing an alleged conflict of interest because his father is also charged with rape and has a lawyer from the same office. Franklin Scott Osterhoudt is accused of two counts of rape for allegedly having consensual sex with a 15-year-old girl in June. In a separate rape matter, his father, Franklin Ward Osterhoudt, 43, is accused of five counts of lewd conduct with a minor under 16, along with incest and rape against a child family member, and was recently arrested on a 2007 warrant in Nogales, Ariz. The younger Osterhoudt appeared Friday in a Twin Falls Courtroom where Judge Howard Smyser said that a "dislike" or "disagreement" with public defender Ben Anderson fails to be a compelling enough reason for Osterhoudt to get a new attorney. Despite the ruling, Osterhoudt did get a new lawyer on Friday because Anderson was absent. Attorney Peter Hatch stood in his place. Osterhoudt told the court that Anderson "had not been able to represent me fairly." He also said that his lawyer "does not show interest in my case." Prosecutor on the case, Julie Sturgill, said in court Friday that plea negotiations have been unsuccessful. "We have made an offer and it didn't go through," said Sturgill. "He (Anderson) indicated he was having difficulties with Mr. Osterhoudt." The elder Osterhoudt has a status hearing set for Sept. 28, while the younger has an arraignment in Twin Falls 5th District Court set for Sept. 8. Both men are from Buhl and are lodged in separate sections of the Twin Falls County Jail, records show.

Blaine teachers ready for school year

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

HAILEY — The maintenance engineers have deep-cleaned 685,700-square feet of school space, extracting carpets and swabbing every locker and desk. Now it's the teacher's turn, noted new Blaine County Schools Superintendent Lonnie Barber. Barber, who assumed the superintendent role after two years of study under retired Superintendent Jim Lewis, showed teachers the last few minutes of "Mr. Holland's Opus," a movie about a frustrated composer who discovers his true calling is imparting passion to his students. "On Monday your orchestras will arrive," he said, prompting one of two standing ovations teachers gave him during their annual back to school assembly at the Community Campus auditorium in Hailey. "If you had the opportunity to teach the pivotal generation that's going to change the world, would you do it? Well, you're doing it right now." As Barber gave teachers his pep talk, construction workers were hustling to finish converting the old tech department wing for the 30 to 40 students who will be part of the renamed Silver Creek High School. It was necessary to take the "alternative" out of the old title, Silver Creek Alternative School, and institute the words "high school" to make it easier for graduates to get into college and the armed services, said teacher Jill Bailey. Blaine Schools will offer full-day kindergarten this year to get students up to reading level by third grade. District schools will also begin to use a new Milepost software program developed by the school's technology department, which will track students to identify better teaching methods for them. The district has also hired a high school college counselor, along with a special education parent liaison, thanks to a donation by a parent, to help the parents of special education children more fully participate in decisions involving their children. About 10 percent of the student population has special needs, said Barber following the teacher's assembly. In addition, high school teachers plan to put more emphasis on the learning process, said Heather Crocker, executive director of the district's Education Foundation. A student who makes huge strides in his class work may be awarded a B or A because of his accomplishment, even if he is only doing C work compared to the rest of the students. "It's very exciting," she said. "I think this district is doing a lot of thinking out of the box." Additionally, voter registration forms were waiting outside the Community Campus auditorium

Thursday for teachers who are not registered to vote. School officials are trying to build support for a plant facilities levy the district plans to put before voters in October. The levy would help provide for new construction, as needed, as well as new computers, interactive boards and even such mundane things as boilers. Blaine County Education Association President Brent Carnduff cautioned the teachers not to assume that county voters will automatically pass the levy, even though it won't raise taxes.

What gives with cops on cell phones while driving?

Q: I keep hearing that driving and cell phones don't mix. Why do I see police talking on their cell phones while driving? Are they used for police business or is it personal use? Don't they use police radios anymore?

A: I know it may seem hypocritical for cops to talk on their cell phones while driving, but there are many reasons why we do it. They may sound dumb or even ridiculous but they are legitimate business and may even save a life or two.

One reason a cell phone may be used instead of a police radio is that an officer's destination may involve a home where there is a scanner and possibly firearms. Military personnel will tell you the element of surprise is a great advantage and this applies to law enforcement. Information given to an officer over a cell phone may lead to the officer gaining that advantage.

The officer might also be talking with another officer to coordinate efforts. This allows officers to save time when they get to the scene because the plan is already in place. Information about prior contact can also be shared.

I know agencies also have the ability to forward calls from victims or informants to officer's cell phones. This valuable information could help solve a crime quicker.

Then there's an obvious reason — the officer may simply be talking to somebody. Cell phone use while driving is not yet illegal and even though it may seem like we're hypocrites, officers usually have a better understanding than most motorists of how much attention you have to pay to driving while talking on a cell phone. I've yet to learn of an officer killed in action due to an accident that involved the officer driving and talking on a cell phone.

I will tell you though, you will not catch me driving in a school zone talking on my cell phone — I use somebody else's (cue the rimshot).

All drivers need to be more aware of their surroundings if they're using a cell phone.

Q: I heard there is a school zone speed law where anybody could get cited if kids are out. Does that mean the school zone speed is only in effect if kids are in school?

A: The speed limit is in effect the whole time the posted school zone sign says it is, regardless of whether children are in school or not.

However, there is a greater fine for speeding if children are out on the streets and sidewalks. The code I'm referring to is Idaho Code 49-658. The fine for this violation is $141.50.

Speeding in a school zone while children aren't present can lead to a fine of $75 for exceeding the limit by 15 mph or less, or $140 for going 16 mph or more above the speed limit. Breaking the posted limit by 30 mph or more could net you a reckless driving arrest.

Attention Heyburn Elementary School drivers

I'd like to remind you that if you're driving from H Street to Villa Drive or vice-versa, you don't have to signal your intentions. The road may not line up but the direction of travel doesn't change. You don't have to signal because you're not making a true turn.

Officer down

Please put these officers, killed in the line of duty, and their families in your prayers. God bless them all.

- Corporal Mike Roberts, Tampa Police, Florida
 - Officer Jesse Hamilton, Pasadena Police, Texas
 - Officer Michael Davey, Weymouth Police, Massachusetts
- Be safe, I'll be back next week. E-mail questions to policemandan@yahoo.com.

Dan Bristol is the Heyburn chief of police.

Helping Hands camp held in Elba

Helping Hands Freedom Trails recently held its annual campout for people with special needs at Tom Hutchinson's Old Independence Ranch in Elba.

A.J. Church, a representative from Idaho Republican Sen. Mike Crapo's office, accompanied 214 campers and volunteers for the campout. Activities ranged from horseback riding and wagon rides to a rodeo, mechanical bull riding and bean-bag baseball, among others.

A new activity was a large jump house and water slide. Friday-night entertainment was provided by Aynsley and Brian Adams, accompanied by Bobby Jo Adams and Ann Cooper of Albion.

The camp's traditional

Saturday dance was held and Luis Cook Jr., of Jerome was named the camper of the year. He received a blue vest with the camp logo. Awards were also given for archery and dancing.

Helping Hands Freedom Trails makes it possible for people with special needs to experience some of Idaho's outdoor recreational opportunities. It operates on volunteer help and donations.

Anyone wishing to participate as a camper, volunteer or to donate goods may contact Harry Fitzgerald, 673-6280; Tammie Pace, 436-6838; Carolyn Davis, 438-5439; or Jeanne Miller, 324-3022.

Donating blood plasma can be a real life saver

DEAR DR. GOTT: I would like to find out more information on donating blood plasma. A friend of mine said it wasn't bad. What are the pros and cons of donating?

DEAR READER: Apheresis (ay-fur-ee-sis) is a unique process that allows a person to donate platelets, plasma or red blood cells, and then the rest of the blood is returned to the body. The plasma you refer to is the liquid part of blood that contains vital clotting factors and carries nutrients throughout the body. It is in demand for people with bleeding disorders, cancer, premature infants, organ transplants and burn victims.

Whole blood is drawn from a donor's arm through sterile tubing and into an automated blood collection (ABC) system that separates the blood into the various components. The component (such as plasma, which is the most common donation) is collected through sterile methods, and the balance of the whole blood is returned to the donor through the sterile tubing connection. The procedure takes up to two hours, which is longer than normal blood donation (because of the separation of components). Minor side effects of apheresis include a slight chill and tingling around the mouth.

Six "whole blood" donors produce a combination of one unit of platelets for transfusion. Through the ABC system, one individual can give a full unit of the specific component needed. Thus, blood is collected from fewer donors, decreasing the likelihood of transfusion reaction that can occur when multiple donors are used.

Readers who would like additional information on apheresis can contact the American Red Cross by phone at 1-800-GIVELIFE or at www.redcross.org.

To the best of my knowledge, the cons don't exist, with the exception of the minor side effects.

QUOTABLE

“I live in a HUD building, and if it wasn’t for Ted Kennedy, I would be homeless.”
 — Ellen Freed, as she waited for the doors to the John F. Kennedy Presidential Library and Museum to open for Sen. Kennedy’s viewing

Rammell not worth the phony controversy he created

JEERS: Rex Rammell has vividly demonstrated he doesn’t have the character and emotional maturity to be governor of Idaho.

At a Republican barbecue Tuesday in Twin Falls, the Rexburg veterinarian and GOP gubernatorial candidate was speaking about Idaho issuing wolf hunting tags. A member of the audience shouted out a question about “Obama tags.” Rammell responded, “Obama tags? We’d buy some of those.”

His comments stirred a storm of criticism nationally, so on Friday Rammell issued a press release to clarify his remarks:

“Anyone who understands the law knows I was just joking, because Idaho has no jurisdiction to issue hunting tags in Washington, D.C.”

If Rammell thinks he’s being funny, he’s the one who doesn’t get the joke. And Idahoans should regard him for what he is: a fringe politician who’s made a laughing stock of their state.

CHEERS: To Idaho State Police authorities in Jerome, for taking steps to put more cops on the highways despite skepticism from the governor’s office.

ISP announced this week that it is “again hiring troopers” and taking applications, even though the agency’s 2010 fiscal year has kicked off with 11 percent less funding than the year before.

Locally, six troopers have left the Region 4 office during the past two years, with no hires for about a year, said ISP Capt. Kedrick Wills. “We haven’t significantly added to state police as far as troopers on the road since 1972.”

ISP is in a no-growth mode, but due to resignations, retirements and attrition the agency is still “looking to hire” eight to 12 troopers, ISP says.

The governor’s office is not convinced the hiring is a sure thing.

“While filling existing vacancies for Idaho State Police troopers is a great goal and one we hope can be achieved, it may not be possible during this budget year if our state revenue picture continues to deteriorate,” said Mark Warbis, spokesman for Gov. C.L. “Butch” Otter. “Those issues have been discussed with Col. (Jerry) Russell at the ISP and all state agencies consider how to keep providing necessary services within the limitations imposed by serious budget concerns.”

ISP’s manpower needs have been begged for years, to the extent that the agency is approaching the point where it can’t fulfill its responsibilities. Good for the ISP for trying to change that and good for the co-chairman of the Legislature’s Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee, Sen. Dean Cameron, R-Rupert, for supporting it.

“Those agencies that are providing public health and safety still have to do their job,” he said.

JEERS: To the College of Southern Idaho, for its curious decision not to release details of contract procedure review by its lawyer that he claims exonerates the school from allegations of impropriety. Bob Alexander, CSI’s attorney, says he’s reviewed the process that resulted in trustees on June 15 awarding the potential $6.5 million building project to Starr Corp. of Twin Falls and CTA, one of 10 design-build teams that submitted proposals.

“It’s my opinion that the college met all the requirements of the statutes,” Alexander said.

Alexander said his statements were a summary of a letter he prepared about the issue. He declined to release the letter in its entirety, citing attorney-client privilege.

Odd, considering that Alexander claims his assessment — only his opinion, really — exculpates CSI from any wrongdoing. Why wouldn’t he — or the college — want the taxpayers to know exactly how?

Ketchum offers something for everyone

Intermittently, I’ve heard comments that disparage the town and townspeople of Ketchum. Some will say, “I have no desire to visit Ketchum or any of the people up there.” That’s too bad, because if you take a closer look, his pedestrian-friendly town offers much for young and old, rich and poor.

Like most towns, Ketchum has changed over the years. Yet it still holds many elements of a true western town. When it comes to weather, Ketchum is in the top 10 percent of sunniest towns. The people are equally sunny and there is ample reason for this. A river runs through it, offering opportunities for enjoyable fishing and water sports. We have a popular YMCA. On summer Tuesdays, a vibrant farmers market attracts vendors and customers from throughout south Idaho. After that, live music performers play freely until twilight in the Forest Service Park.

For the spiritual, Ketchum has more than a handful of sacred places to worship. When someone becomes severely ill or is in a crash, the community often helps with fundraisers.

Wagon Days brings a festive weekend of olden times coming alive as craftspeople, blacksmiths and storytellers demonstrate their trades and speak their lore. Wagon Days also features North America’s largest non-motorized parade.

The library has an extensive regional history section, with helpful staff and an oral history program. The library also hosts enlightening weekly lectures with respected authors and adventurers.

We have dozens of fine restaurants. We have movie theatres and live stage. Free newspapers, magazines and WiFi are widely available. We also have a water park, bringing boundless glee to splashing kids. On the edge of town, Sun Valley Company is installing a Gondola for thrilling Bald Mountain rides.

I’m out of words, but I hope this aids those who are quick to sneer at Ketchum.

Christian calls for health care reform

As a Christian, I support health care reform. I am appealing to everyone who opposes such measures and calls themselves a person of faith to look at what God or Jesus calls us to “love one another as yourself.”

Sadly, in a nation that prides itself as Christian, we give so little grace to our brothers and sisters. Town halls and TV is full of hate, racism and fear-mongering. Lies about “pulling the plug on grandma” and taking away Medicare have drowned out all sensible discussion. Sarah Palin and others who profess great faith have used one page of the plan to cause panic in the elderly. This proposal was crafted by a Republican doctor to pay for optional counseling on end-of-life issues once every five years.

In 1990, George H.W. Bush signed the Patient Self-Determination Act and it was later amended by W. It “encourages everyone to decide about the types and extent of medical care they want to accept or refuse if they become unable to make those decisions.” That is it; put in place by the GOP. No euthanasia and no death panels.

Those of us who have health care are happy; we are fortunate, but the uninsured or underinsured are surely the least of us. Sojourner Jim Wallis calls this “a moral obligation that, in a nation as prosperous as ours, no American should go without health care, especially the poorest and most vulnerable among us.” Go to www.sojourner.org to see what many mainstream Christians believe.

Today, the media reports that the states with the most uninsured are the ones most likely to believe health care lies. Sadly, so-called religious people are some of the very ones spreading lies to defeat any health care reform at any cost? What would Jesus do?

DIXIE SIEGEL

Effective health-care reform starts at home

In the debate over health-care reform, one elephant in the waiting room isn’t being discussed. We have been told repeatedly that our health-care system is the most expensive in the world and one of the least efficient in meeting the health-care needs of the nation. So how do we solve these two problems? From my perspective as a physician, I would say we need to start by taking a hard look at the diseases we are doing such a bad job of controlling and at the individuals who suffer from them.

Dr. Katherine Schlaerth

Those of us providing front-line care for Americans — nurses, physicians’ assistants, pharmacists — have a perspective that differs from the bureaucratic physicians in the American Medical Association and other specialist organizations, because we literally have our fingers on the pulse of Americans. And a lot of us have come to realize that most medical problems are brought on by the failure of humans.

Human metabolism is not that far evolved from the Stone Age and is better geared toward surviving famine than it is to the current abundance of high-calorie food and the pervasiveness of passive activity.

Obesity and lack of exercise are behind many common diseases. Type 2 diabetes, which leads to heart disease, vascular problems, hypertension, kidney failure and erectile dysfunction, is at epidemic proportions and is primarily a disease of the obese. And we’re seeing the problem in younger and younger people.

An article in the Journal of the American Medical Association this spring delineated how excessive weight gain in the first three months of life is associated with cardiovascular disease and Type 2 diabetes in early adulthood. Yet, for many reasons, exclusive breastfeeding, which often prevents early and dangerous weight gain, just doesn’t happen much in our country. Another article concluded a diet high in fruits, vegetables and nuts and relatively low in meat coupled with physical activity, was associated with a reduced risk of Alzheimer’s dementia. Many common types of cancer also strike the inactive and the obese at a higher rate.

Among the patients I treat are some who work in the fields of California’s San Joaquin Valley, and I am intrigued by them. Although their genetic inheritance makes them a target for high cholesterol and joint pain, and of course diabetes, they don’t tend to get those conditions often — at least not until they stop working in the fields.

Many of the factors leading to inactivity and obesity are societal. For example, the mother who picks up hungry kids from day care after working eight hours can be very tempted to stop at a fast-food outlet on her way home. In the old days, evening walks and chats with neighbors used to satisfy people’s evening leisure needs, but now we use TVs and computers instead.

I would estimate something like 50 percent to 70 percent of my patients’ medical costs would be eliminated if their diets and exercise regimens were optimized. But the government seems to be working on the other end of the problem, not taking direct input from health-care providers.

Motorized scooters are provided free to morbidly obese patients with weight-dependent arthritis, when the best remedy for these people would be to ambulate through their pain or avoid excess weight gain in the first place. School lunches are often made up of very fattening, but tasty, food. The examples are endless.

So how do we save money on health care? We need to get out the old carrot and stick. How about a tax credit for those with a body-mass index of less than 26? Or for mothers who exclusively breast-feed for the first four months of their baby’s life? Or a credit for documented miles on a treadmill or a bicycle? Or a tax on fattening foods with little nutritional value?

Barring genetic or catastrophic disease, accidents and maybe the aging process itself, our health is in our hands. Promoting knowledge about and adherence to healthy lifestyles is still the best way to cut down on health-care costs. After all, Big Brother can only do so much.

Katherine Schlaerth is an associate professor of family medicine at Loma Linda University School of Medicine in Loma Linda, Calif.

Change we would rather do without

The reason Americans have turned against health-care reform, after electing President Obama in part for promising it, is simple: Despite protestations to the contrary, Americans don't like change. You wouldn't know it, of course, if you listen to politicians in high-pander mode, or to talk radio hosts of the right or TV pundits of the left. Or, for that matter, if you listened to the president of the United States. You would think that while we might disagree about what kind of change we want, Americans are in total agreement that the current situation is intolerable in all areas and that change — big, immediate change — is essential. Americans do agree about this — in the abstract. But as soon as it seems that change might actually happen — as soon as we leave the abstract for the particular — we panic. We suddenly develop nostalgia for the comforts of the status quo. Sure, we want change — as long as everything can stay just as it is.

Yes, of course, the opposition party has gotten away with some grotesque misrepresentations. But that will always be true as you move from the abstract to the particular. There will always be a Betsy McCaughey sharpening her pencils and cackling as she underlines promising sub-clauses. And she will always find something. Obama thought he could avoid this by not supplying the document. He thought — hell, we all thought — that Hillary Clinton's big mistake in the 1990s was too much detail. Obama said he would leave all that up to Congress. But at some point, you've got to show your hand. All Obama seems to have achieved in the end was a shift in timing — and not an advantageous one. Instead of being in trouble almost from the beginning, his reform remained popular until it was time for Congress to vote.

The similarities to the last time we tried health-care reform are striking. Bill Clinton had campaigned on a call for change in general and health-care reform in particular. Rising costs and increasing numbers of uninsured made the system seem intolerable. There were deep disagreements about what change was needed, but whether change was needed appeared beyond dispute. Afraid of being tagged the party that prevented change, Republicans were about to give up and compromise. Then GOP apparatchik extraordinaire Bill Kristol blew the whistle. He said, better to be thought of as against all change than to be tarred as in favor of any particular change. It seemed like a lunatic idea at first, but Kristol turned out to be right — politically. He was wrong about the actual substance of the issue. As a result, in the 14 years since, millions more are uninsured, and here we are trying reform again. I'd like to think that if it goes down this time — when even the insurance companies are on board, promising to eliminate their odious policies about preexisting conditions — Republicans will pay for having killed it, if indeed they do kill it. But they didn't pay the last time.

“There were deep disagreements about what change was needed, but whether change was needed appeared beyond dispute.”

All this is similar to those polls about attitudes toward Congress that show that most people find Congress absolutely loathsome, yet are extremely fond of their own representative. Once again it's the difference between the abstract and the particular. Congress in the abstract is greedy, stupid and corrupt. It will do anything to get reelected. Your own representative, though, is Congress in the particular. And he or she is not so bad, even though he or she actually does get reelected.

Why does this happen? Some people (including me) say the voters are immature. Politicians (and those talk radio fellows again) are always telling them that they are wise and those folks in Washington are fools. Pollsters seek and validate their opinions on subjects they haven't bothered to learn anything about. Politicians drown them in benefits with no thought of how the bills will be paid. No wonder that citizens turn out like spoiled children. But “immature” is a label, not an explanation. It's just a guess, but my own suspicion is that the raucous town hall meetings that blindsided pols and press alike reflect the voters' true feelings — misinformed, perhaps, but sincere — and their previous passionate demands for what they now passionately oppose — in a word, “change” — were empty ritual. Discontent verging on anger is almost the price of admission to our political culture these days. You're nobody if you're not furious at Congress and/or the media and/or your health care and/or the president. To believe in your country's institutions is virtually unpatriotic.

This is only as long as your discontent can remain abstract, of course. When you are asked to approve of even moderate but genuine change, the status quo starts to look pretty good.

Michael Kinsley is a columnist for The Washington Post.

California and Nevada go to war

In case you haven't heard, California and Nevada are at war. Not an old-fashioned war with bullets and tanks, but a newfangled media battle over which one is the last best hope for entrepreneurs and businesses in these troubled times.

Nevada started it. The Nevada Development Authority launched a campaign that will spend a million dollars over a year to air a series of ads with the aim of enticing California businesses to move to Las Vegas. The spots boast about Nevada's low taxes and workers' compensation fees and feature a chimpanzee and a really bad actress portraying a television newswoman who turns into a pig wearing bright red lipstick.

California Assemblyman Jose Solorio, putting his campaign funds to creative use, is paying for counterattack ads that list corporate behemoths based in California and make fun of lonely, cow-filled Nevada.

California's political and financial dysfunction cannot be denied, but, as it turns out, it also doesn't work so well to base your state economy on the hopeless hopes of starry-eyed gamblers. This year, Nevada, like pathetic old California, has been battling a multibillion-dollar budget gap. In April, an official of the Nevada Mining Association told the Associated Press that the shortfall was “a wake-up call to say that we're broke” and a signal that “we're going to have to raise taxes.”

But the real significance of the spat is that it furthers a dangerous and phony economic myth — that hordes of nomadic businesses are roaming the country, plopping down for a year or two in a tax haven and then packing up and moving on the minute a neighboring state bats an alluring low-tax eye.

The fact is, the come-

hither look is useless: Relatively few businesses, once they're formed, pick up and move across state lines. Over the last several years, the nonpartisan Public Policy Institute of California has done exhaustive research trying to measure precisely how many jobs California has lost because of such moves, while also measuring the offsetting number we have gained from businesses moving into the state. The conclusion? The effect is tiny. The researchers found that the average annual job loss was .06 percent of California's total employment. Just to be clear, that's not 6 percent; it's six one-hundredths of 1 percent.

The institute also examined whether losses were more common in “footloose” industries, such as information technology. That's often been the claim, because it's obviously easier to move computers than, say, an entire automotive assembly line. But again, the numbers aren't there. “Even in footloose industries,” the researchers wrote, “net job loss from relocation is very small, and in-migration largely offsets out-migration.”

“Relatively few businesses, once they're formed, pick up and move across state lines.”

In other words, most businesses live and die where they are born.

When that truth is ignored, often because of the kind of one-upmanship foolishness embodied in both the Nevada and California ad campaigns, states can participate in a tax-cutting competition that does them more harm than good. Taxes, after all, fund things that businesses need.

Want to improve the business climate? Invest in good schools to produce better-educated workers. Build infrastructure projects on which all businesses depend, such as transportation and water systems. Put more cops on the streets and pay for proven social programs so that workers have attractive neighborhoods in which to raise their families. Low taxes are good, but they're not a panacea.

The chief executive of the Nevada Development Authority told the Los Angeles Times that his ads already had produced almost 50 inquiries from California businesses. I suspect most of them will seize the chance to cry on a sympathetic desert shoulder, rail for a time against the maddening liberals back home, and then do absolutely nothing about moving. Even if a handful of companies depart to the east, it won't mean much to the broader economy in either state.

So if Nevadans want to waste a million dollars on these ads, let them. In fact, from California's competitive standpoint, better that Nevada wastes $10 million or $100 million. It is money that could otherwise be spent on the useful public services that might help it attract more total residents than California's Orange County, an achievement that has eluded it.

All is not well in California, and no one's in favor of needless taxation or regulation. But don't let hard times convince you that there are swarms of corporations rolling back and forth across state lines like armies on the march in search of a warm pair of arms to fall into. When it comes to showing a little skin to woo businesses, the danger of pandering far outweighs that of complacency.

Holesinsky's Vineyard and Winery celebrates success, grand opening

By Blair Koch
Times-News correspondent

BUHL — Over the past five years James Holesinsky's wine-making and artisanship has grown right along his vineyard's success.

In May, his 2008 Rose' received accolades for winning double gold at the Idaho Wine Festival and Competition; his 2008 Riesling was ranked in the silver category and the 2007 Medley and 2007 Syrah varietals brought back bronze awards.

The wines' showings followed high ranks at the previous year's competition.

Not too bad for a 31-year-old who ventured into old-world wine on a whim; a whim that led Holesinsky to his passion and life's work.

"My parents taught me to pursue, aggressively, what I am passionate about," Holesinsky said.

Holesinsky's passion starts in the soil of his vineyard, just north of Buhl, rich in the volcanic soil that sets the Snake River Valley viticultural area apart.

See WINERY, Business 2

The Grand Opening

Join Holesinsky's Vineyard and Winery for their grand opening celebration from 3 p.m. to 9 p.m. (dinner served from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m.) Saturday, Sept. 5, at the winery located at 4477 Valley Steppe Drive in Buhl.

In addition to wine-tasting, tours and conversation with winemaker James Holesinsky, the event will feature live musical entertainment by Boise's Thomas Paul and a dinner of ribs and/or brisket from Smoking Cowboys. Cost is $20 per person. Cost with meal is $35 per person or $65 per couple. Children 5 and under are free. Tickets are available at the winery, www.holesinsky.com, Rudy's A Cook's Paradise in Twin Falls, Mimi's Flowers and Gifts in Buhl or at the Capitol City Market or Boise Co-Op.

LDP payments kick in for barley growers

Prices fall below federal minimum for the first time in six years

By Joshua Palmer
Times-News writer

Loan Deficiency Payments for barley growers kicked in this week as the price for non-contracted crops fell below the federal loan rate.

Payments in south-central Idaho, which are available to growers who have not yet sold their crops, began at about 3 cents per bushel on Wednesday before rising to 7 cents per bushel on Friday.

Tom Snow, county executive director for the Farm Service Agency in Jerome, said falling prices continue to push the deficiency payments higher. The Kansas City Commodity Office, which is authorized by the U.S. Department of Agriculture to initiate the LDP program, announced Wednesday that the 30-day average price per bushel of barley had fallen below the loan rate.

Demand for feed barley in southern Idaho has declined in 2009 as dairies continue to reduce herds, however, supply remained mostly unchanged from the previous year, according to the Idaho State Department of Agriculture.

Intermountain Gas to open new customer service center

By Joshua Palmer
Times-News writer

The Intermountain Gas Company and its three sister utility companies announced Friday that they will open a new customer service center in Meridian to serve the group's 945,000 customers across eight states.

In February, Intermountain announced that it would eliminate customer walk-in traffic at all offices consolidate five call centers into two offices.

Dave Goodin, president and CEO of Intermountain Gas Company, Montana-Dakota Utilities Co., Great Plains Natural Gas Co., and Cascade Natural Gas Corp., said the utility group was going through a "streamlining of processes, elimination of some existing programs and subsequently, a reduction of work force."

The new customer service center is located at 1937 Bonito Way in the Eldorado Business Park in Meridian.

The company will build out the interior office space and plans to occupy the center by the beginning of 2010. The center, which will house about 140 employees, is expected to be in full operation later in 2010.

"Idaho's location within the utility group's service area makes our state an ideal location for a customer service center," said Governor C.L. "Butch" Otter in a written statement.

The customer service center will be the principle point of contact for the utility group's customer service issues via telephone or internet, and will include billing questions, setting up service starts and stops, as well as other service-related issues.

The center will cover an eight-state area for Intermountain Gas Company, Cascade Natural Gas Corp., Montana-Dakota Utilities Co. and Great Plains Natural Gas, all of which operate under the corporate umbrella of MDU Resources Group.

The customer base is located in Washington,

Oregon, Idaho, Wyoming, Montana, North Dakota, South Dakota and Minnesota.

Dell's numbers show PC industry on the rebound

By Jordan Robertson
Associated Press writer

SAN FRANCISCO — Dell Inc.'s second-quarter results reinforce what other tech heavyweights have shown recently about the health of the personal-computer industry: it's still wounded by the recession, but is staggering back to its feet, thanks to consumers, bargain prices and little "netbook" laptops for surfing the Internet.

The Round Rock, Texas-based company reported Thursday that profit fell 23 percent and sales fell 22 percent in the May-July period. The results beat Wall Street's forecasts, however, sending the shares up more than 6 percent.

Dell's message was similar to those offered by rival Hewlett-Packard Co., the world's No. 1 PC seller, and supplier Intel Corp., the world's biggest computer chip maker, in their latest quarterly reports: consumers are coming back to the stores to buy PCs, but corporations are still being stingy.

Dell added that it might not be until 2010 that businesses open their wallets again. Analysts have been eyeing next year for a turnaround because companies will have new budgets, can't hold on to old PCs

Consumer spending edges up in July, incomes flat

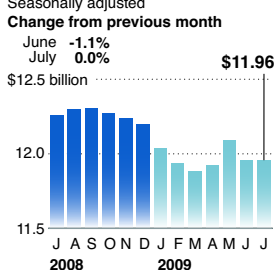

By Martin Crutsinger
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — Consumer spending edged up in July with help from the popular Cash for Clunkers program, but household incomes, the fuel for future spending increases, were flat.

Consumer spending is the big question mark as the economy struggles to emerge from the recession. Economists worry that households hurt by rising unemployment, weak income growth and depleted investments will not provide the support the economy needs to rebound to sustained growth.

The Commerce Department said Friday that consumer spending rose 0.2

percent in July, matching economists' expectations. Personal incomes were unchanged last month, a weaker showing than the expected 0.2 percent gain.

With incomes flat in July as spending rose, the personal savings rate dipped slightly to 4.2 percent from 4.5 percent in June. The savings rate was 2.6 percent a year ago.

Economists expect the savings rate to rise in coming months to around 6 percent as workers try to rebuild depleted nest eggs. The process of rebuilding savings is one of the factors expected to depress consumer spending and weaken the broader recovery.

The modest rise in spending last month followed a 0.6

"You've got to be passionate about the process from the soil your grapes are planted in to wiping the dust of the bottle," Holesinsky said.
The mission of Holesinsky's Vineyard, with shared ownership under James' parents Frank and Barbara Holesinsky of Buhl, is to create world class wine with no additives, filtering or processing, no new oak and using only organic grapes.
An expanded selection and maturing line-up of varietals are pleasing the palates of a growing customer base. Introduced this year were Syrah, Rose, Riesling and Merlot.
"I can't keep them in stock," said Mimi Ford, of Mimi's Flowers and Gifts in Buhl, one of a handful of select outlets where Holesinsky's wines are available.

Coroner: Jackson death homicide; sleep aids blamed

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Michael Jackson's death was a homicide caused primarily by the powerful anesthetic propofol and another sedative, the coroner announced Friday in a highly anticipated ruling increasing the likelihood of criminal charges against the pop star's doctor.

Jackson

The coroner's determination of a homicide confirmed what The Associated Press first reported Monday, citing an anonymous law enforcement official. The 50-year-old Jackson died June 25 at his rented Los Angeles mansion. Dr. Conrad Murray, the Las Vegas cardiologist who was the pop star's personal physician, told police he gave Jackson propofol that morning after a series of sedatives failed to help Jackson sleep. Murray has not been charged with any crime but is the target of what police term a manslaughter investigation. Multiple search warrants served at his home and businesses in Las Vegas and Houston sought evidence detailing how he procured the propofol that killed Jackson. Jackson's interactions with at least six other doctors also are being scrutinized. In addition, California Attorney General Jerry Brown has opened an independent probe of several physicians. Except for a brief video posted to YouTube earlier this month, Murray has not spoken publicly since Jackson's death. In the video, he said: 'I told the truth and I have faith the truth will prevail.' Murray's attorney, Edward Chernoff, said he was disappointed the full autopsy report wasn't released. Without that, it was impossible to seek independent expert opinion on the significance of the various drugs detected.

Hitters set tone of CSI volleyball invite

By David Bashore
Times-News writer

Two College of Southern Idaho sophomores that made an impact last year have new roles. Both flourished on Friday to lead the Golden Eagle volleyball program to a successful opening day of the season.

Jessica Peacock and Samantha Misa shouldered much of the offensive load, leading No. 14 CSI to three wins to open the CSI Outback Invitational. Misa had a team-high nine kills in a 25-8, 25-14, 25-13 thrashing of Colorado Northwestern Community College.

Peacock, who played on the left side last season, killed 18 balls from her more familiar right-sided position in a 25-18, 25-21, 25-12 dispatching of Snow College. Misa had eight kills in that match as well, while fellow left-side hitter Elisa Brochado had seven.

In Friday's finale, Peacock and Brochado notched a dozen kills each in the Eagles 25-9, 25-9, 25-12 victory over MSU-Northern. Alyssa Everett killed nine, while Misa added another five kills and seven digs. Brochado dug 10 times, and Britani Hathorn dug nine.

"I'm really happy that I'm getting to play up front," said Misa, who was a back row-only player last year as she recovered from knee surgery. "But I have to keep getting better in order to hold on to my spot."

CSI coach Heidi Cartisser praised Misa's ability to mix heavy hits with controlled finesse to round out a balanced attack in both matches in which she played.

"She kept the ball in play, and that's what we need her to do for us," Cartisser said of Misa. "I'm pleased with what she's done today."

TWO-WAY EFFORT

Defensive stops help lift Jerome to opening game win

By David Bashore
Times-News writer

JEROME — To start a new season, the Jerome football team found a new way to win.

Junior linebacker Milton Hernandez made two key fourth-down stops and senior receiver Gus Callen made a circus catch for the decisive score as Class 4A No. 2 Jerome held its nerve to grind out a 28-14 win over Mountain Home on Friday.

With its vaunted offense coming in fits and starts during the first half, Jerome (1-0) turned to its defense to set the tone. Despite early questions on that side of the ball, the J-Town 'D' proved itself up for the challenge.

"Twenty-eight points is OK, but we're thinking in the 40s and 50s most nights," Jerome coach Gary Krumm said about the Tigers' spread offense. "They were a little bigger than us and were real physical, but (the defense) really answered the call tonight."

Callen's second touchdown of the night proved to be the difference, as he went up for a jump ball from quarterback Cameron Stauffer in the third quarter and stole it away from the Mountain Home defender for a 20-yard score.

Callen, who caught 13 passes for 163 yards, also had a 30-yard touchdown haul in the second quarter.

"I just keep trying to get better every week, because

MEAGAN THOMPSON/Times-News

Jerome's Jake Hollifield (22) bobbles the ball before bringing it down for the Tigers' first touchdown Friday night in their home game against Mountain Home.

I don't want to get complacent," said Callen, who was a first-team all-state selection at wide receiver last season. "The personal numbers are nice, but it's all about that scoreboard at the end of the game."

Said Stauffer: "Gus and I both saw the coverage, and knew what we wanted to do. I just threw it up, and he made a great play."

Jake Hollifield, making his varsity debut, caught the other two TD passes from Stauffer, who was 25-for-43 for 315 yards and four scores.

Billy Wight, a transfer from Filer, caught five passes for 80 yards and set up Callen's second score by returning a kickoff to mid-field.

Oakley breaks in new coach with huge victory

By Ryan Howe

OAKLEY — No one could tell that the Oakley Hornets were breaking in a new head coach Friday night.

Many of the new traditions are still in place, including the one where the halftime show ends up becoming the post-game show.

Despite it being just the season opener, Oakley appeared to be in midseason form as it wrapped up its mercy-rule 54-6 romp over Carlin, Nev., in two quarters.

"I think I'll sleep better tonight," said Oakley first-year head coach Tim Behunin. "The biggest thing that I owed to them was to hold them to high standards, so we could come out and have a good

MVS heads down '09 final stretch

Times-News

Time is running out at Magic Valley Speedway as the season races toward a close, drivers will look to make a move up the standings tonight.

The Mountain Dew Modifieds, Budweiser Super Stocks, NAPA Pony Stocks and Quale's Electronics Jr. Stingers will all be in action today.

One of the closest competitions features Super Stocks drivers Kris McKean and Jerry McKean. Jerry McKean has said he will not participate in any more Super Stocks races this season. In that case, Allen Williams is in position to have the best shot catching Kris McKean for the title.

The Super 6's will make their final regular-season appearance at MVS and after having been introduced last season.

Additionally, the final trailer race of the 2009 season will be held.

Gates open at 3 p.m., qualifying begins at 5:30 and green flag racing starts at 6.

BSU's Hiwat becomes a football player

By Dustin Lapray
Times-News correspondent

BOISE — Most college football players have been around the game since their grade school days of flag football and Pop Warner. But sometimes you find an anomaly, a natural talent who comes late to the game.

Geraldo Hiwat is such a player. He stands 6-foot-4, 189 pounds, with big shoulders and long arms. He just looks like the big-time receiver coaches dream about. Physically he has it all, but the true freshman has only one year of organized football under his belt.

Despite his inexperience, the BSU staff saw enough to give him a scholarship.

"It was all overwhelming," Hiwat said. "First it was just a dream for me to play high school level in America. That's what I wanted to do, just play football in America. And now I happen to be playing college football, at BSU, a high-ranked team in the nation. It's a dream come true."

Hiwat came from Amsterdam, Netherlands, to attend a BSU football camp two years ago. He liked it so much, when he went home he filed paperwork to move to America and attend Boise's Capital High School for his senior season. He caught 41 passes for 502 yards and five touchdowns for Capital, earning first-team All-Southern Idaho Conference and second-team all-state honors. He also returned a punt and a kickoff for touchdowns. His size helped him tower over high school players. But college is different.

"It helped me out a lot in high school, but this is college, everybody is big, and strong," Hiwat said. "Most of those guys are a lot stronger than I am right now — and bigger."

New Plymouth shreds mistake-prone Filer

By Mike Christensen
Times-news writer

FILER — It just wasn't Filer's night. Six first-half turnovers doomed the Wildcats in a 52-18 season-opening loss to New Plymouth Friday.

The visiting Pilgrims scored 24 of their 46 first-half points off Filer's turnovers, which included three fumbles and three interceptions.

"Plainly said, we got beat," said first-year Filer head coach Russ Burnum.

"They outplayed us in every way. They hit harder. They made the catches, they made the tackles. We did a really poor job of tackling. ... They really capitalized on all of our mistakes."

New Plymouth quarterback Brady Harris did most of his damage before intermission as he completed 5 of 8 passes for 90 yards and three touchdowns, with 28- and 39-yard scoring strikes to Justin Johnson. Harris added 61 yards and two scores on the ground.

Filer was without starting quarterback Matt Ramseyer, out four weeks with a broken collarbone. Sophomore backup Colton Baratti is limited by a high-ankle sprain, leaving junior Jacob Bogner to take the snaps.

Bogner settled in as the game progressed and finished 7-for-20 for 101 yards. His 38-yard scoring strike to Santiago Alvarado got Filer within 28-6 midway through the second quarter. In the third quarter, Bogner rushed for a 16-yard score after Ryan Orr recovered a New Plymouth fumble. Cassidy Babb hauled in an 8-yard touchdown toss from Bogner to make it 46-18, but that was as close as it got.

"I like how I competed in the second half," said Bogner. "First half took me a little while to get the shakes off."

The junior QB said his team had a poor week of practice leading up to the game and it was reflected in the performance.

Already up 16-0 after two impressive drives, New Plymouth took total control when Zack Hidy intercepted Baratti's only pass of the game and took it 22 yards to end the first quarter.

Seconds later, a high snap over Bogner's head was recovered by New Plymouth at the 1-yard line, and Kyle King took it in from there for a 28-0 lead.

"We just didn't do the little things that we try to work hard at doing," said Burnum. "We just have to regroup, pull it together and get as much positive as we can out of this."

Filer (0-1) travels to Sugar-Salem next week.

scored its points on two possessions in the third quarter.

Both were punctuated with touchdown runs by Tommy Miller, who finished with 76 yards on 20 carries.

Krumm hinted that the victory, while not vintage Jerome football, might be ideal for his team's season aspirations.

"We obviously have some errors that we need to correct," Krumm said. "But it's a nice start for J-town Nation."

opening night." Oakley (1-0) scored touchdowns via offense, defense and special teams. Seven different Hornets found pay dirt.

"(Behunin) did a really good job getting us ready for this game," said Oakley senior Payson Bedke. "I'm happy he's here. We couldn't have gotten anyone better for the job."

The Hornets gained 230 yards rushing, led by Bedke and Paxton Robinson, who each scored a touchdown.

Meanwhile, Oakley's swarming defense caused three turnovers and held Carlin to just 20 yards rushing.

The Railroaders didn't earn a first down until the 8:53 mark of the second quarter, but by then Oakley led 42-0.

"That's Oakley football," Bedke said. "We love defense, we love hitting. Our D-line, I give them all the credit. Our defense puts us in great field position so we don't have to march down the field as far."

Braxton Sagers tackled Carlin running back Steven Matthews in the end zone for a safety, Weston Cooper scooped up a Carlin fumble and returned it 27 yards for a touchdown, and Daniel Whittle added an interception for the Hornets.

Hunter Wadsworth scored a 35-yard TD on Oakley's second drive.

Rhyan Greenwell scored back-to-back touchdowns to finish off Oakley's 36-point, first-quarter barrage. He scored on a 38-yard run, followed by a 55-yard punt return for a touchdown.

Second-stringers Stephan Ortiz and Junior Tellez each had touchdown runs in the second quarter.

It wasn't all rosy for the guys in red, however. Oakley failed on six point-after attempts, and Carlin was able to hit a few big pass plays later on, including a 76-yard touchdown strike from Andy Hawkins to Blayne Newman.

"We're starting off a little slow," said Greenwell. "We don't have all the timing down, but we'll step it up next week. You've got to have high expectations if you want to play at the level we want to."

Winning the season-opener 54-6 is starting off a little slow?

"That's what I like about these kids," Behunin said. "As good as they are, they have an attitude that they can always improve. That's what we'll focus on, and just dial it up."

Denver suspends receiver Brandon Marshall

ENGLEWOOD, Colo. — Pro Bowl receiver Brandon Marshall, openly unhappy with the Denver Broncos, was suspended by the team Friday for unspecified “detrimental” conduct. The club not say in its 15-word statement how long the suspension would last.

Marshall has asked for a new contract or trade and has acknowledged he hasn't learned new coach Josh McDaniels' playbook. He was held out of last Sunday's preseason game at Seattle.

During Wednesday's warmups, Marshall walked while the rest of the team ran. He punted a ball away instead of handing it to a ball boy and swatted a pass thrown to him. His actions were caught on video and broadcast by KMGH-TV.

Marshall told ESPN on Thursday night he wasn't trying to force a trade through insubordination but that frustration got the best of him.

Marshall, who had 206 receptions the past two seasons, is also upset with what he feels was the team's misdiagnosis of a hip injury that required offseason surgery. He pulled a hamstring during the first weekend of training camp and didn't return until a week ago.

The receiver apparently was held out of practice Thursday as punishment for the churlish display, but McDaniels wouldn't discuss it afterward.

“I'm not going into it,” the coach said. “If they're not ready or able, they're not out here.”

EAGLES' VERSION OF WILDCAT WITH VICK NEEDS WORK

PHILADELPHIA — The Michael Vick experiment lasted six plays before Donovan McNabb walked over to offensive coordinator Marty Mornhinweg on the sideline and yelled “Cut!”

Like a movie director who's seen enough, McNabb wanted the offense to do another take. This time, without Vick.

In his debut with the Philadelphia Eagles on Thursday, Vick did a little of everything. Playing his first NFL game since his release from prison, Vick lined up at quarterback, wide receiver and ran the wildcat formation in his first action in 32 months. But in the possessions in which Vick played, the Eagles scored 3 points.

Vick says it'll get better.

“Right now I am just going off my natural ability,” he says. “Once I get myself into top shape, the sky is the limit.”

COWBOYS DON'T HAVE TO HIKE VIDEO BOARDS — YET

ARLINGTON, Texas — Jerry Jones can keep his video boards right where they are, at least for this season.

NFL commissioner Roger Goodell on Friday clarified rules on punts that ricochet off the high-definition monitors hanging over most of the field at the new Cowboys Stadium. Perhaps the key part of his announcement is that the guidelines cover only this season, an indication the league may force Jones to raise the boards before the 2010 season, which ends with the Super Bowl in his building.

The league clearly wouldn't want even the remote possibility of a championship decided by a ball hitting a TV screen within a punter's reach.

“We will continue to address the particular circumstances in Dallas, giving full consideration to the competitive, safety and fan experience issues involved,” Goodell said in a statement. “The Cowboys have been fully cooperative as we have addressed this subject, and we will continue to work closely with the club on a longer term resolution.”

Long-term changes can be made only at the annual rules meeting. However, Goodell noted that Rule 3, Section 1 of the league rule book allows for changes new policy to be enacted for the current season only.

The video boards are the signature item of the $1.15 billion stadium because of their clarity and size: 60 yards long, stretching from 20-yard line to 20-yard line. The problem is they are 90 feet above the field.

While that is 5 feet above the league's standard, the ease Tennessee punters had kicking balls into the boards before — and once during — last Saturday night's debut game indicates that standard might need revision.

Brady leaves with sore shoulder in Patriots' win

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — Tom Brady and Jason Campbell put on a regular season show in preseason, combining for 359 yards, six scoring drives and a sore throwing shoulder that isn't the best news for Patriots fans.

Brady again put up strong numbers in his comeback-from-knee-injury campaign, while Campbell helped ease the doubts from a pair of disappointing August performances in the New England's 27-24 victory over the Washington on Friday night.

In the game that traditionally serves as the dress rehearsal for the real stuff that begins in two weeks, Brady played the first half and completed 12 of 19 passes for 150 yards and two touchdowns. Randy Moss had his way with the Redskins secondary, catching six passes for 90 yards and both of Brady's TDs.

While much of the preseason has centered on how Brady would respond to a hit on his surgically repaired knee, the hardest blow came when his right shoulder was crushed to the turf by massive defensive tackle Albert Haynesworth after throwing an incomplete third-down pass late in the second quarter. Brady did not play the second half, even though most of the first-team offense returned for the first drive of the third quarter. He then left the sideline to return to the locker room. In the fourth quarter, the Patriots announced Brady's injury as a sore shoulder.

Campbell was feeling the heat after a 4-for-13 start to the preseason, including 1 for 7 last week, with no touchdowns in either game from the first-team offense.

Campbell went 4 for 4 on the opening drive, then had three straight three-and-outs before another scoring drive that featured a 73-yard completion to tight end Chris Cooley. Campbell finished the drive with a 4-yard run after a nice move that faked out linebacker Paris Lenon.

“I was very pleased,” coach Jim Zorn said at halftime. “He was very much into the game. He was competing hard and doing the things that you want.”

Simpson surges into the lead at Barclays

JERSEY CITY, N.J. — Webb Simpson looked at the scores and the weather, neither of which indicated an easy time Friday at Liberty National. He quickly settled on a simple game plan Friday and made it pay off in The Barclays.

Simpson took advantage on some of the shorter holes to give him a cushion for the inevitable mistakes. It led to a 3-under 68 on a long, tough and wet afternoon that put the 24-year-old rookie atop the leaderboard for the first time all year.

“My caddie and I talked beforehand about taking advantage of the par 5s and the shorter par 4s, just because we knew we were going to make bogeys,” Simpson said. “It was just one of those long, tough days. But I feel good with where I'm at.”

He was at 8-under 134, two shots clear of Paul Goydos and Steve Marino, who started the second round tied for the lead and did well to get around in even-par 71.

Sergio Garcia also was tied for the lead, got stuck in the morning wave and the worst of the rain, and shot a 76.

“It was hands down — I mean, forget about the PGA (Championship) — it was the longest course I've played this year, the way it was playing,” Garcia said. “I don't know how many 5-, 4and 3-irons I hit into the greens. I hit some woods into the green.”

Tiger Woods had a 72, yet still moved up 10 spots on the leaderboard into a tie for 17th at even-par 142. For the second straight day, he refused to meet with the reporters to discuss his round.

The cut came at 5-over

147, matching the highest cut of the year (Bay Hill). Only nine players broke par, one day after there were 26 scores under par. The average score was 74.361, nearly 2½ shots harder than the first round.

O'MEARA IN RANGE TO WIN FIRST CHAMPIONS EVENT

SNOQUALMIE, Wash. — Still winless on the Champions Tour, Mark O'Meara eagled the 18th hole to take a two-shot lead over a jumbled field after the first round of the Boeing Classic.

Playing the uphill, 498-yard par-5, O'Meara knocked his second shot from about 205 yards onto the green, then made a 17-foot putt to separate himself from a pack of 15 players within three shots of the lead.

Mark McNulty shot a 30 on his first nine holes — the back nine at the TPC Snoqualmie Ridge — then stumbled to 2 over on his second nine and finished at 4-under 68. Also at 4-under were Allen Doyle, Loren Roberts and John Jacobs.

Defending champion Tom Kite bogeyed 18 to finish 3 under.

BADER 8-UNDER AT SAFEWAY

NORTH PLAINS, Ore. — Beth Bader shot an 8-under 64 at the Safeway Classic to take a one-stroke lead into the second round at Pumpkin Ridge Golf Club.

Bader's low score came early in the day before the winds picked up and rain moved in over the course west of Portland. Anna Nordqvist and Seon Hwa Lee each had 65s, a stroke in front of a group that were two shots back of Bader.

Bader's round was her best since 2007. It was her best start to a tournament since the season-opening event in 2003.

Defending champion Cristie Kerr had a 69, playing in a star-studded group with Michelle Wie and Lorena Ochoa.

Smoltz shines in St. Louis Cardinals debut

ST. LOUIS — John Smoltz showed his St. Louis Cardinals debut was no fluke Friday night, striking out six and allowing a run in six innings in his first home start.

Albert Pujols' 41st homer leading off the bottom of the ninth made it a successful night for the rest of the team in a 3-2 victory over the Washington Nationals.

Pujols hit a 1-1 pitch from Jason Bergmann (2-4) well over the left field wall for his eighth career walkoff homer and first since July 13, 2006. The NL Central leaders have won 16 of 20.

PHILLIES 4, BRAVES 2

PHILADELPHIA — Ryan Howard homered twice during a perfect night at the plate, Jamie Moyer pitched effectively out of the bullpen and the Philadelphia Phillies beat the Atlanta Braves 4-2 in the rain Friday.

Looking for its third straight division title, Philadelphia increased its NL East lead to eight games over Atlanta and Florida, which lost at home to San Diego.

BREWERS 8, PIRATES 6

MILWAUKEE — Prince Fielder, Ryan Braun and Jason Bourgeois homered and the Milwaukee Brewers snapped a three-game losing streak with an 8-6 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates on Friday night.

The Brewers have won 19 consecutive games over Pittsburgh at Miller Park, last losing to the Pirates in Milwaukee on May 3, 2007.

PADRES 9, MARLINS 5

MIAMI — Will Venable hit a pair of RBI singles in San Diego's six-run second inning, Kyle Blanks added a two-run homer during that outburst and the Padres beat the sliding Florida Marlins 9-5 Friday night.

David Eckstein was 3 for 6 with two runs scored and two RBIs for the Padres. Everth Cabrera drove in two runs and Chase Headley — who replaced Blanks in that second inning — added three hits for San Diego, which is 3-1 on its six-game trip to Atlanta and Florida.

REDS 4, DODGERS 2

CINCINNATI — Right-hander Homer Bailey gave the best performance of his career Friday night, holding the NL's top team scoreless for eight innings, and the Cincinnati Reds held on to beat the Los Angeles Dodgers 4-2 for their season-high fifth straight win.

Bailey (4-4) allowed only seven singles and had a career-high seven strikeouts while going eight innings for the first time in his career.

Nick Masset gave up a solo homer to James Loney, starting a wild ninth. Closer Francisco Cordero came on and loaded the bases with two outs, let in a run on a wild pitch and got Manny Ramirez on a called third strike to end it.

CUBS 5, METS 2

CHICAGO — Alfonso Soriano ended his home-run drought with a three-run shot in the eighth inning, making up for several miscues in the outfield during the Chicago Cubs' 5-2 victory over the New York Mets on Friday.

Milton Bradley, who like Soriano has been booed by frustrated Cubs fans, led off the inning with a double to right, his third hit. He scored on Aramis Ramirez's single, tying the game 2-2.

AMERICAN LEAGUE ORIOLES 13, INDIANS 4

BALTIMORE — Rookie Matt Wieters had three hits and a career-high four RBIs, Nick Markakis and Felix Pie homered, and the Baltimore Orioles cruised past the Cleveland Indians 13-4 on Friday night.

Luke Scott scored three runs for the Orioles, who improved to 13-28 since the All-Star break. Baltimore trailed 2-0 in the second before scoring six runs over a four-inning stretch against Fausto Carmona (3-9).

TWINS 3, RANGERS 2

MINNEAPOLIS — Rookie Brian Duensing pitched like a veteran in his third career start, striking out eight in seven innings to lead the Minnesota Twins to a 3-2 victory over the Texas Rangers on Friday night.

Duensing (2-1) allowed three hits and walked one for the Twins, who have won eight of their last 10 games to creep back into contention in the AL Central.

TIGERS 6, RAYS 2

DETROIT — Brandon Inge homered and scored twice, helping the Detroit Tigers beat the Tampa Bay Rays 6-2 Friday night.

Rookie Rick Porcello (11-8) won for the first time since Aug. 6, allowing one run on four hits and two walks in 5 2-3 innings. Porcello was lifted one of two earned runs in five of his six August starts.

Cano hit a three-run homer with two outs in the 10th inning to give New York a 5-2 victory over Chicago on Friday night.

Cano hit a 2-2 pitch from Randy Williams (0-1) into New York's bullpen in right-center. Williams retired the first two batters he faced before walking both Hideki Matsui and Nick Swisher on four pitches to set up Cano's first game-ending homer.

Brian Bruney (4-0) worked a perfect 10th inning for the win.

IndyCar points leader Briscoe on Chicagoland

The Associated Press

JOLIET, Ill. — Ryan Briscoe took a small step to boost his IndyCar championship bid Friday, winning the pole for Saturday night's race at Chicagoland Speedway.

The series points leader averaged 215.364 mph, earning the top starting spot and a bonus point in the championship standings.

With three races left in the IndyCar season, Briscoe leads Dario Franchitti by five points. Briscoe will start alongside his teammate, Helio Castroneves, with Franchitti directly behind him in the third starting spot.

Tony Kanaan and Graham Rahal rounded out the top five in qualifying. Scott Dixon, who enters Chicagoland third in the points, will start sixth and Danica Patrick will start ninth.

Briscoe credited Castroneves with giving him helpful on-track feedback from his qualifying run.

"Our cars are very close, so it sort of gave me a little bit of a heads-up as to how the track conditions were," Briscoe said. "And it all helps, because, I mean, you're talking about the slightest speed differences out there."

But if it comes down to a race between Briscoe and Castroneves on Saturday, can Briscoe count on his teammate to help his championship chances by staying in line instead of racing him for the win?

"I have to say, is he going to risk it or help me out? I don't know," Briscoe said. "You might have to talk to him about it. What did he say?"

Castroneves remains in mathematical contention for the championship but would have to leapfrog three drivers in the standings, something he acknowledged was unlikely.

That leaves Castroneves free to race all-out for wins, but Castroneves said he considers it a priority to race in support of Briscoe for the championship.

"You've got to go race for the win, no question about it, but (I'm) certainly going to try to support my teammate because he's leading the championship and every point counts," Castroneves said.

However, Castroneves said he and Briscoe aren't subject to "team orders" from the Penske team braintrust instructing them on how to race each other. So if it comes down to the last lap and he's stalking Briscoe for the race lead, what will Castroneves do?

"Good question," Castroneves said. "I don't know. Hopefully we'll figure it out."

Briscoe has a fairly simple strategy mapped out, just in case.

"I'm going to be full-throttle, I'll tell you that much," Briscoe said.

It's the eighth pole position of Briscoe's career, and his fourth of the season. Briscoe also started from the pole at Mid-Ohio, Watkins Glen and Milwaukee.

Daytona 500 qualifying avoids Super Bowl conflict

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Qualifying for next season's Daytona 500 will be held one day earlier than usual, a move that avoids running the session on the same day as the Super Bowl.

The top two spots for NASCAR's biggest race of the year are typically determined in qualifying on the first Sunday of "Speedweeks." But the NFL moved the Super Bowl back one week in 2010.

Although NASCAR's qualifying would have ended before kickoff, the move avoids any conflicts with the Super Bowl on Feb. 7 in Miami.

Qualifying will be part of a Saturday tripleheader at Daytona on Feb. 6 that includes the exhibition Budweiser Shootout and the season-opening ARCA race.

Daytona International Speedway president Robin Braig said the move provides "even more value to our race fans, who can now enjoy a unique racing tripleheader as well as all the festivities surrounding the Super Bowl the following day."

attack action in the Colorado Northwestern matchup, but she made up for it with eight aces. Playing a similar role to that which she takes up for the Australian national team, the 6-foot-1 sophomore combined back-row backset smashes and front-row cut shots to near perfection.

Peacock and Alex van Dyke, who had eight kills in the Colorado Northwestern match, provided balance between all attacking sides of the floor. In the first two matches, the left side accounted for 29 kills, the middle 19 and the right side 33.

But the Golden Eagles conceded three fairly easy wins don't make for a successful start in and of themselves.

"It's nice to get a couple of wins under our belt," Peacock said. "We've got a lot more work to do,

Hiwat played football before coming to America, but it was all flag football and some nine-man exhibitions. He never played any high school sports. He said one of his biggest adjustments was playing with more defenders on the field. He said he wished he could have played the game at a young age, but couldn't in a soccer-dominated country.

"I need to catch up to those guys," Hiwat said of his teammates. "I don't want them to stay behind and wait for me to catch up. I need to work twice as hard and watch twice as much film to catch up with them, so I can be great on the field."

He admitted that fall camp was hard for him. He has no delusions of grandeur. Luckily for him, he came to a program that teaches and welcomes everyone the same.

"I always think I can do a lot better, but it didn't go that bad," Hiwat said of fall camp. "I had a little trouble fitting in with the system. I got a lot of help from the other receivers and it went better. It was a difficult adjustment."

He said he doesn't know how long it will take to learn BSU's complicated offense. Even guys who have been in camp for multiple years still struggle to learn a constantly-evolving scheme. Hiwat does have a leg up on some of the other freshmen from out-of-state, having watched the team during 2008.

"I can see what was going on around here and what they expect from me," Hiwat said. "I felt good committing to Boise State. It felt like it was the place for me."

The Broncos try to create a family atmosphere. Veteran teammates show young players like Hiwat what to do and what not to do, and how to handle the added pressure of course work. Hiwat goes to bed early, and wakes up for a 5:45 a.m. weight lifting session each day. He seems to be doing everything with the right attitude as he tackles a game he's always loved.

"I like the competition and the intensity, especially in America," Hiwat said. "Football is something I would like to do. I like to show up to practice, watch film, be around these guys, compete in the games. It's all about competition and friendship, like a big family."

Hiwat has a hard road ahead. He must learn to be a college football player. At Boise State, he has the chance to be a great one.

Coeur d'Alene Tribe, state launch lake management plan

COEUR D'ALENE (AP) — A century's worth of mining pollution in Lake Coeur d'Alene would be mitigated under a plan the Coeur d'Alene Tribe and the state of Idaho have begun implementing.

Rebecca Stevens, lake management restoration coordinator with the Tribe, said water quality monitoring around the Coeur d'Alene lake basin has started.

The goal of Coeur d'Alene Lake Management Plan is to limit too many nutrients from entering the water, something that could lead to the release of mining-related poisons now embedded in tons of muck on the lake floor by depleting an oxygen cap in the lake that keeps heavy metals contained on the lake bed.

"We're not just going around to pipes and saying, 'That might be troublesome later on,' we're looking at the whole basin, anything that flows into the lake," Stevens said Thursday at a presentation for the Kootenai Environmental Alliance, the Coeur d'Alene Press reported. "The waste water treatment facility folks are sick of getting blamed for nutrients in the water."

An environmental specialist has been hired to oversee a Lake Assistance Program. That program is intended to help lakeshore property owners, who can volunteer to get help to prevent nutrients from their yards from entering the lake.

"You see lawns straight down to the 25-foot setback, and you cringe, wondering how the grass got so green," Stevens said of those who apply fertilizers that can enter the lake.

The Coeur d'Alene Lake Management Plan could help avoid having the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency declare the area a Superfund site. The federal agency has agreed not to include the lake in its Superfund clean-up of mining waste as long as the state and Tribe successfully carry out the plan.

BOISE Idaho F&G gets new wolf manager

The state's top wolf manager and its southwest regional wildlife manager have switched jobs.

Idaho Department of Fish and Game spokesman Ed Mitchell said Thursday that Steve Nadeau, the department's carnivore manager, is taking over as wildlife manager for the southwest region, and wildlife manager Jon Rachael is taking on the carnivore and big game manager role.

Both men were thrilled with the switch, Mitchell said, because it gives Rachael the chance to use his training and experience with wolves and Nadeau the chance to do more of the research he enjoys. Neither Nadeau nor Rachael could be immediately reached by The Associated Press.

The move comes just before Idaho's wolf hunting season is set to begin Sept. 1. It's the first wolf hunt in the state since the federal government removed Endangered Species Act protection from most wolves in the northern Rocky Mountains in May. Montana's first post-delisting wolf hunt starts in mid-September; wolves are still under federal protections in Wyoming.

At least $10,000 more to finish Idaho governor's house

A five-member panel that oversees the empty hilltop governor's mansion above Boise approved an additional $10,000 to buy blinds, furnish security quarters and purchase kitchen supplies.

The latest amount, to come from a private fund dedicated to fixing up the 7,400-square foot residence, is half of what had been discussed last week to finish renovations at the home donated in 2004 by the late J.R. Simplot to be a governor's mansion.

Still, it brings the total for the remodel to about $310,000, $50,000 more than the original 2008 estimate for the work.

Teresa Luna, a Department of Administration spokeswoman, says the latest $10,000 will pay for "a few final items absolutely be done with the renovation."

Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter has opted not to live in the house, which eventually may be sold. In the meantime, the state is fixing it up so it can accommodate overnight guests or visiting dignitaries.

Leaders unveil green schools program

State Superintendent of Public Instruction Tom Luna is joining the governor and officials from the Idaho Office of Energy Resources to unveil a new energy efficiency program for public schools.

Luna, Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter and Paul Kjellander, administrator of the energy resources office, are scheduled to introduce the program at a press conference in Homedale on Friday.

The state Department of Education says the program is designed for K-12 public schools.

Boise to consider anti-idling policy

BOISE — Boise officials are considering making it illegal for motorists to leave their vehicles without turning off the engine.

City Councilman David Eberle has asked city staff to look into the anti-idling ordinances now in place in many other cities across the nation.

Eberle tells the Idaho Statesman the city must do more to make its air more clean and clear.

Boise has some prohibitions in place for idling, but it's limited to the city's fleet of vehicles, including police cars and fire trucks.

City staff hopes to have a report before the city council next month.

David Luft, an airshed coordinator with the Idaho Department of Environmental Quality, says every little bit helps in the battle to reduce smog in the Treasure Valley.

Father of missing kids arrested

Police arrested the father of two young Idaho children reported missing last week at a Little League World Series baseball game in Pennsylvania.

Caldwell police say Ronald Crowe picked up his 11-year-old daughter, Jade, and 8-year-old son, Tyler, at their mother's home in southwest Idaho on Aug. 10 for a weeklong vacation.

Crowe and the children's mother are divorced and the trip was arranged as part of a custody agreement.

The mother contacted police Aug. 21 when the children were not returned.

Frank Elmer Wells

CASTLEFORD — Frank Elmer Wells, 94, of Castleford, went home to be with his Lord on Wednesday, Aug. 26, 2009, at Bridgeview Estates in Twin Falls.

Frank was born Nov. 24, 1914, in Baker, Mont., to Edwin Taylor Wells and Edith Jeanette Chessman Wells, the third of four sons. Successive moves found the family farming and raising sheep in western Montana, California and Nevada, before settling in Twin Falls in 1924. There, Frank enrolled in the fourth grade and continued his education until graduating from Twin Falls High School in 1933. While in high school, Frank played the clarinet with the high school Pep and Symphonic bands. He also played in the Twin Falls City Municipal Band, once playing under the direction of John Phillip Sousa.

Always interested in agriculture and pursuing a Christian life, Frank continued his education at Linfield College in McMinnville, Ore. After two years, he transferred to the University of Idaho and earned his bachelor's degree in animal science in 1939. Through college, he was active in several Christian organizations, the U of I Marching Band and dance bands, and U of I livestock exhibitions throughout the Northwest. While at Linfield, he met the love of his life; a classmate invited Frank home to dinner to meet his younger sister, Emma Holderreed. On Aug. 10, 1940, Frank and Emma were married in Oakville, Wash. They continued their studies at the Berkeley Baptist Divinity School that summer, but the impending war prevented them from serving as agricultural missionaries in Burma, a lifelong dream of Frank's.

They returned to Twin Falls and settled there where their first son, David, was born in 1941. In 1943, they moved to Castleford, where a second son, Jonathan, was born in 1944. In 1946, daughter, Angela, joined the family. As the winter storms of 1948 raged on, the family became complete with the birth of son, Robin. Frank worked with his father and brothers in farming and with the sheep business until 1949. At that time, he and Emma purchased a farm at Hansen, and Frank became a full-time independent farmer.

He taught high school English, Spanish and speech while living in Hansen. In 1953, Frank bought a farm south of Twin Falls, and the family became an active part of that community. In 1968, Frank and Emma returned to Castleford to farm, built a home and continued to serve in the church and community of the area. Eventually, Frank moved from farming on a large scale to growing a fruitful vegetable garden. Emma passed away Sept. 26, 2005, after 65 years of marriage.

Living as a Christian and sharing his faith with others was always a priority in Frank's life. He was actively involved in the First Baptist churches of Twin Falls and Castleford. He enjoyed studying the Bible, often leading study groups. Music was always an important part of Frank's life whether with his clarinet or singing in choirs and men's quartets. He instilled the love of music in the lives of his children, encouraging them to incorporate it into their lives. An avid reader, Frank continued to further his knowledge of many subjects until his last year. He never tired of being informed and discussing the current events of the day in detail.

A highlight in Frank's years of community service was organizing and leading a Boy Scout troop in Castleford during the 1940s. Frank served many years on the Pacific Supply Co-op Board of Directors. He was a leader in the Idaho American Baptist Men's Association and the Central Association of Baptist Churches. For many years, Frank was an active member and song leader of the Buhl Kiwanis Club. The Buhl Kiwanis Club recognized Frank as "Kiwanian of the Year" in 1994. Frank was an active member and officer of the Castleford Men's Club for more than 40 years. In 1986, Frank was awarded the 14th Annual Distinguished Service Award by the Castleford Men's Club. On July 4, 2004, Frank represented agriculturalists as a parade marshal in the Buhl Sagebrush Days.

Frank and Emma enjoyed traveling, whether to the family grazing areas of northern Nevada or abroad. They toured Europe, visited the Baptist mission stations in El Salvador and Nicaragua, took a cruise through the Panama Canal, drove to Alaska, traveled by train across Canada, and visited China, Japan and India. They hosted four exchange students through the years and always enjoyed visitors in their home.

Survivors include his four children, David (Georgia) Wells of Rindge, N.H., Jon (Carol) Wells of Castleford, Angela (Ron) Carlson of Firth and Robin (Vivian) Wells of Twin Falls. He is also survived by 10 grandchildren, including Andy (Michelle) Wells of Gardner, Mass., Rae (Mike) Maloney of Douglas, Mass., Todd (Genaura) Wells of Castleford, Roger Wells of Castleford, Kristine Edwards of Firth, Kristofer Carlson of Idaho Falls, Kurt Carlson of Firth, Laura (Adam) Cook of Norman, Okla., Lucas Wells of Moscow and Linda Wells of Moscow. His great-grandchildren are Jared and Kaitlyn Wells of Gardner, Mass., Caleb Edwards of Firth, Travis and Justin Wells of Castleford, and Rory and Kiera Maloney of Douglas, Mass. Frank is also survived by many nieces and nephews. Frank was preceded in death by his parents; his wife; his brothers, Hugh, Alex and Walter Wells; and his great-granddaughter, Katie Marie Edwards.

Visitation for family and friends will be held from 4 to 8 p.m. Monday, Aug. 31 at White Mortuary "Chapel by the Park." The memorial service will be held at 10 a.m. Tuesday, Sept. 1, at the Castleford First Baptist Church. Interment will follow at 3 p.m. Tuesday at Sunset Memorial Park in Twin Falls. Please join the family in celebrating Frank's life by sharing your memories and signing the online guest book at www.MeM.com.

Memorial contributions may be made in Frank's memory to the Castleford Quick Response Unit, P.O. Box 682, Castleford, ID 83321.

Verna R. Olson

MEAD, Wash. — Verna Lucy Redington Olson, 91, passed away Saturday, Aug. 22, 2009, at her home in Mead, Wash.

She was born Oct. 7, 1917, in Leslie, Idaho, the daughter of George Arthur and Lucy Addie Hawes Redington. She married Wesley Ernest Olson on July 26, 1937, in Salt Lake City, Utah. Their marriage was later solemnized in the Logan Utah Temple.

As a girl, she loved horseback riding. She also enjoyed sewing, quilting, oil painting, reading, gardening, baking, dancing and her family. She was a foster parent for two years. She was a member of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, having served in Relief Society as president and in other capacities, Young Women's adviser, stake dance director and nursery leader. She was a member of the Daughters of Utah Pioneers and served as captain. She was a very creative, inclusive and compassionate person. She was hard-working, very organized and enjoyed having fun. She had an incredible amount of faith in her Savior and loved her family dearly.

She is survived by her husband, Wesley E. Olson of Mead; two sons and three daughters, Dennis W. (Joyce)

Olson of Utah, Nola Budge of Maryland, Renae (Melvin) Clinger of Wyoming, Jerry J. (Lola) Olson of Montana and Tina (John) Fisher of Washington; 31 grandchildren; 103 great-grandchildren; and two brothers, Lee (Naudine) Redington and Boyd (Pam) Redington, both of Utah. She was preceded in death by her parents; two brothers; and one sister, Ivan Redington, Bessie Fisher, Reid Redington; and by a son-in-law, Arvin Budge.

The funeral will be held at 10 a.m. Saturday, Sept. 5, at the Clifton LDS 2nd Ward Chapel in Clifton, with Bishop LaWrell Cook conducting. Friends may call from 9 to 9:45 a.m. Saturday at the church. Interment will be in the Oxford, Idaho, Cemetery.

Memories and condolences may be shared with the family at www.webb-mortuary.com.

CLEARING CLUTTER

California sells surplus items to raise cash

By Judy Lin
Associated Press writer

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — Bargain-hunters snatched up watches confiscated from criminals, surplus prison shirts and antique pianos salvaged from parks on the first day of a statewide garage sale to scrape together cash for California.

The two-day sale kicked off Friday at a Sacramento warehouse, with hundreds lining up for deals on cars, computers and collectibles. Many arrived hours before the gate opened at 8 a.m., walking past a "Terminator" mannequin on the way in.

cles by the minute under a crowded tent in the parking lot behind the warehouse. SUVs, vans and California Highway Patrol cruisers — all were being moved off the state's inventory for just a few thousand dollars each.

"Welcome to our garage sale," Gov. Arnold state's fleet of 40,000 vehicles cut by 15 percent. The celebrity governor added his autograph to 15 car visors and four patrol motorcycles in hopes of fetching more money.

State officials are hoping the sale of 600 state-owned vehicles and 6,000 pieces of office furniture, computers, electronics and other items will raise hundreds of thousands of dollars. There were no early sales figures Friday. The sale ends today.

At the time Schwarzenegger signed the order, California faced a projected $26 billion deficit. The state has since passed a budget with billions of dollars in cuts to schools and colleges, prisons and health care for the poor.

The governor, making an appearance before going to Boston to attend memorial services for Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, greeted shoppers in line to pay for items.

S. Calif. jury finds Duncan competent to stand trial

INDIO, Calif. (AP) — A convicted killer is competent to stand trial in the kidnap-murder of a 10-year-old Southern California boy more than a decade ago.

Duncan

A jury on Friday decided Joseph Edward Duncan III is mentally fit to stand trial for the 1997 kidnap, torture and murder of Anthony Martinez.

The boy was abducted as he played with his brother near their Beaumont home, and his nude and battered body was found two weeks later in the desert east of Los Angeles.

Jurors spent four weeks listening to testimony from psychologists and psychiatrists who assessed Duncan's mental state.

Duncan's murder trial can now go forward with a different jury.

Duncan was convicted of murdering a couple and two children in Idaho in 2005.

He has received three death sentences.

ISU professor battles paid suspension

POCATELLO (AP) — An Idaho State engineering professor accused by university administrators of being unprofessional and insubordinate at a staff meeting has filed a grievance contesting his paid suspension.

Habib Sadid filed the grievance last week alleging his Aug. 3 suspension — part of a process that could lead to his firing — was caused by his history of speaking his mind about problems at the school. Sadid, who has also been barred from campus, contends the disciplinary actions violated his free speech rights.

Idaho State officials said Sadid's free speech rights do not allow him to make slanderous statements.

Sadid engaged in "unprofessional, non-collegial disruptive and insubordinate" behavior at an April 21 meeting, and in the workplace called others "liars," "corrupt" and "incompetent?" administrators said in a May 6 letter to Sadid.

REACHING OUT

Churches trying to expand community appeal

Story and photos by Andrew Weeks
Times-News writer

For some people it might seem odd to have freestyle motorcyclists perform at a church function.

But according to Greg Fadness, lead pastor at Lighthouse Christian Fellowship, it's just one way for the local congregation to reach out to the broader Twin Falls community.

Three freestyle motorcyclists from the popular Riders 4 Christ visited the church last Saturday, where they performed high-flying stunts to a crowd of a little more than 1,000.

"We wanted to do something big," Fadness said, "something impacting that would perhaps reach out to those that were unchurched or unfamiliar with us, but would also give us a platform to share Jesus."

The church had planned seating for 1,700 visitors, but Fadness said he is still pleased with the outcome.

"We weren't disappointed at all," he said. "We had a great event and a great crowd. And we had a good number of people make a profession in faith."

The church, Fadness said, will look at inviting back Riders 4 Christ, and plans to continue hosting other outreach programs, perhaps even reviving Rock the Canyon, a multi-day music event that drew about 4,000 visitors when the church hosted it in 2005, he said.

Lighthouse isn't the only church in the Magic Valley that, at times throughout the year, host events not usually considered churchy but aim to spark interest in and outside the church.

The First Assembly of God in Twin Falls, for instance, sponsored a sumo wrestling demonstration as part of a block party the church held in July.

New pastor joins Rupert church

First Christian Praise Chapel, 1110 8th St., Rupert, meets for traditional service at 9 a.m. Sundays, Sunday school at 10 a.m., and contemporary service at 11 a.m. For more information, including its ministries: 436-0449 or 436-4040.

"I'm just a regular guy," Mac McSweeney said toward the end of an interview with the Times-News Wednesday evening. The statement might have sounded serious if it had come from someone else, but coming from McSweeney you're left wondering if it's the setup to a joke.

McSweeney, 55, a light-hearted fellow who most recently hails from Cheyenne, Wyo., is the new pastor of First Christian Praise Chapel in Rupert. He moved to the area Aug. 17, after being offered a job at the 250-plus member church.

"I'm out of most of my boxes now ... and I think I can find my way to drive from Rupert to Burley," he laughed. "I think I have that one down."

Before coming to Rupert, McSweeney lived in Wyoming, Pennsylvania and, for a time, abroad in places such as Guatemala.

He and his wife, Pam, were enticed to the Magic Valley after seeing the job posted on the Internet, he said. He sent his resume May 1, saying he believed he and the Rupert church would be a good fit.

"I have the same train of thought that they've already functioned in for a number of years," he said. "Philosophically, I believe in the same kinds of things they believe in ... They have an emphasis on small groups, and it's an area I've always had a high regard for and experience in."

McSweeney also likes the open-country atmosphere

S. Korea seeks to curb missionary travel to Mideast

By Jae-Soon Chang
Associated Press writer

SEOUL, South Korea — South Korea is considering restricting Christian missionaries' travel to the Middle East, where their evangelical work makes them vulnerable to terrorist attack.

Foreign Ministry officials said Thursday that the government may impose restrictions because missionary work in some Middle Eastern nations threatens the safety of not only the missionaries but other South Koreans as well. "Their work goes against local sentiment and makes them targets of al-Qaida or the Taliban," a ministry official said on customary condition of anonymity, citing office policy. "There are also strong possibilities that the safety of ordinary citizens could be threatened."

South Korea has one of the largest populations of missionaries abroad. The Korea World Missions Association said about 19,000 Koreans are doing missionary work around the world.

The Foreign Ministry said dozens of missionaries have been expelled for Christian proselytizing in recent weeks from nations where it is banned, including Iran, Jordan and Yemen.

According to the most recent U.S. State Department human rights report on Iran, trying to convert Muslims to another faith is illegal. The same report for Jordan states that there is nothing in the constitution or law prohibiting proselytizing but in practice the government restricts the practice and has deported and detained Christians activists.

The State Department's Yemen report said that under the Shariah law that governs the country, conversion from Islam is forbidden and non-Muslims are prohibited from proselytizing.

Measures under consideration by the South Korean government include banning those who have a record of deportation for evangelical work in Middle Eastern nations from entering those countries again, the official said.

The Korea World Missions Association refused to comment Thursday, citing the lack of any official decision. Still, the association said it will hold a meeting of some 140 member organizations later this week to discuss a response.

In 2007, 23 religious workers from a South Korean church were kidnapped in Afghanistan. The Taliban killed two of them and released the others after South Korea's government pledged to withdraw its troops from Afghanistan.

In June, a South Korean woman with an international medical aid agency was kidnapped and killed in Yemen along with other foreigners. Al-Qaida was blamed for the attack.

Four South Korean tourists were also killed in Yemen in March in a bombing also blamed on al-Qaida. A suicide bomber subsequently struck a convoy carrying South Korean officials sent to Yemen to investigate the bombing and relatives of those killed. No one was hurt.

Berlusconi nixes religious observance for sins

By Nicole Winfield
Associated Press writer

ROME — Premier Silvio Berlusconi, who has been embroiled in a sex scandal for months, canceled his planned participation in a Catholic religious service for the remission of sins Friday after his presence was deemed problematic.

Berlusconi was supposed to have attended the annual "Perdonanza," or forgiveness observance, in the earthquake-stricken city of L'Aquila alongside the Vatican No. 2, Cardinal Tarcisio Bertone, and then attend a dinner with him.

But, less than three hours before the service was to begin, the Vatican announced that the L'Aquila archdiocese had canceled the dinner to avoid "exploiting" the situation. It didn't elaborate, although it said the money for the dinner would instead go to quake victims.

The cancellation gave Berlusconi a face-saving excuse to cancel his trip and avoid the prickly question of whether the twice-married premier would receive a so-called plenary indulgence, an extra spiritual step many faithful seek for remission of sins already forgiven through confession.

Pope Celestine V issued a papal bull, or edict, in 1294 granting a plenary indulgence to anyone who entered L'Aquila's basilica between the nights of Aug. 28 and 29 and was "truly repentant and had confessed."

Each year, thousands of the faithful flock to the basilica of Santa Maria di Collemaggio to participate in a procession and Mass and to take advantage of the indulgence.

According to Vatican rules, though, the faithful must be in the state of grace, have gone to Confession, received Communion and prayed for the pope's intentions to receive the indulgence.

As a divorced and remarried Catholic, Berlusconi isn't supposed to receive Communion. The Catholic Church doesn't permit divorce, and people who remarry and consummate their new marriages are considered to be living in sin, and thus ineligible to receive the Eucharist.

Berlusconi — and numerous other Catholics in his position — have lobbied the Church to change its teachings on the matter, but the Vatican has remained firm.

Berlusconi divorced his first wife and married Veronica Lario in 1990. Lario has announced she wanted to divorce Berlusconi because of his reported dalliances with young women, including an escort. Her accusations have sparked months of tawdry headlines about Berlusconi's personal life.

Berlusconi's presence at

Italian Premier Silvio Berlusconi, left, and Vatican Secretary of State Tarcisio Bertone attend a meeting celebrating the 1929 Patti Lateranensi and of the 1984 Revision Agreement anniversary at the Italian Embassy to the Holy See in Rome. The Vatican says Premier Silvio Berlusconi has canceled a planned visit to L'Aquila for a religious service for the remission of sins.

the L'Aquila commemoration had also raised eyebrows because he had planned to go with his equal opportunities minister, Mara Carfagna, a former model and TV starlet to whom the premier once professed: "If I weren't married, I'd marry you."

Berlusconi later apologized to Lario after she publicly complained.

After the sex scandal broke, Berlusconi denied any improper relationships with women and said he had never paid a woman for sex. But he has admitted he's "no saint" and has reportedly promised to turn over a new leaf.

Since Berlusconi couldn't participate fully in the religious observance, his office designated his right-hand man Gianni Letta, who has not been divorced, to take his place.

Mennonite church offers parking, helps charities

By Andrew Weeks
Times-News writer

In an effort to help local and global charities as well as provide service to community visitors, the Filer Mennonite Church will, during Twin Falls County Fair week, offer parking for fair visitors for a suggested $2 donation.

Half the money donated to park in the church lot will be given to the Filer Ministerial Association to provide items to its food bank; the other half to help MEDA's (Mennonite Economic Development Associates) mosquito net project in Tanzania, according to church member Lois Hooley.

"The effort is to strengthen the economic structure already in place in the country as well as provide nets to the local stores there," Hooley said, "and to encourage people to get them to protect themselves and their families."

The church has offered parking for other events in the past. Sometimes people, when they find out about the charities, want to donate more than $2, she said.

Malaria continues to be one of the most dreaded diseases in Tanzania, according to a news release about the MEDA project. Sleeping under a net treated with insecticide greatly reduces the risk of contracting the disease, especially for the two groups most at risk — pregnant women and infant children.

Pregnant women receive vouchers at one of 4,500 area health clinics during their regular prenatal check ups, and infants receive a voucher during their regular immunizations, according to the news release.

Research suggests that six lives are being spared for every 1,000 nets sold.

Hooley said the church is excited about helping with the project, as well as providing foodstuffs to Filer's needy through the food bank.

The church parking lot can accommodate about 35 vehicles, Hooley said.

"People can park in a nice spot and help out with some good projects," she said.

of the area. "I've lived in farm country before, and I love living in farm country," he said.

His goals for the church include expanding on church ministries and ministering to individuals in their homes.

"I've done a lot of that over the years, and it is one of my favorite things to do as a minister," he said. "I like that even more than preaching, and I love preaching ... I'm a people person. It's just the way God has wired me."

His wife is a great support to him, he said, often helping him in the ministry.

"She's my best friend," he said.

Together, the couple looks forward to a fulfilling stay in the Magic Valley — though one gentleman has already taken issue with the Pittsburgh Steelers flag he has in his office.

But, McSweeney said, "if that's the guy's only hang up, I think we can handle that."

Sports differences aside, McSweeney said he's ready to serve — in more ways than you might think.

With his natural good humor, McSweeney told his congregation on Sunday that anyone who needed help on their farms, well, he has experience pulling calves.

"How often do you get to offer something like that?" he said.

'Primer' seeks to break down polygamy stereotypes

By Jennifer Dobner
Associated Press writer

SALT LAKE CITY — Utah's polygamous families have helped create a revamped guidebook called The Primer that they hope will help combat what they consider to be myths and stereotypes about their culture.

The 65-page booklet is designed to give social workers, police and other service providers a better understanding of the tenets of polygamist's beliefs, unique family structures and even their language.

"We're going to continue to have those situations, but that doesn't mean that we can sit by when we are perceived incorrectly and not speak up," said Anne Wilde of Salt Lake City, a plural wife for 33 years and now a widow. "By having a primer that has our input and expresses things the way we want to have them expressed I think is very helpful. It gives us a voice."

Bigamy is illegal in Utah and Arizona, where most of the Intermountain West's polygamists live. But Utah authorities have rarely prosecuted adults, focusing instead on crimes involving women and children.

Historically, fear of prosecution has kept most plural families from seeking public services. When they did, service providers often tried to "rescue" them from their religion, Wilde and other polygamists say.

Released last week at a training conference, the Primer was produced by the Safety Net Committee, an outreach program working with polygamous communities and public and private service agencies in Utah and Arizona. The guide is an updated version of one produced in 2005 by the Utah Attorney General's office.

Polygamists believed the first Primer unfairly portrayed them as victims trapped in religious groups where abuse permeated the culture.

The rewrite sought to find more neutral language and to show that plural families face many of the same challenges as other families. In drafting the new version polygamous groups were asked to clarify or correct information about their specific cultural practices, Safety Net Committee Coordinator Pat Merkley said.

The Primer's information also includes a history of polygamy in the Intermountain West, a glossary of terms and concepts, and a description of the various groups and their respective leadership structures.

"I think we're speaking in their language and in their terms," she said. "This is the best work we could possibly do. It's as neutral as it could be, and people are still not going to like part of it."

The information from polygamous groups is balanced against input from critics of the culture, definitions of abuse and an overview of the Utah and Arizona laws that make polygamy illegal.

Among the terms and practices defined in the Primer:

- Reassignment: The practice of giving an excommunicated man's wives and children to another man. Some polygamists believe wives and children belong to the church, not the husband.

- Law of Placement: A type of arranged marriage that sometimes has involved underage girls. Couples are matched by church leaders after consultation with parents. Currently, leaders of all the major groups have denounced underage marriage.

- United Order: A system of communal living that calls for families to share their earning and serve others in the community.

Terms and practices can also vary depending on which polygamous group a family is from, said Mary Batchelor, a Safety Net committee member, who with Wilde founded the polygamy advocacy group Principle Voices.

"I don't think there was a single word or single sentence that did not get argued," Batchelor said of the new guide. "I think there's always still the risk that (the information) can stereotype people, so we stress that it's really important to ask individuals families, 'Does this apply to you?'"

Polygamy across the Intermountain West is a legacy of the early Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, which brought the practice to Utah in 1847. The Mormon church abandoned plural marriage in 1890 as Utah pushed for statehood and now excommunicates those who advocate or practice the principle. Fundamentalists continue to believe polygamy is essential for exaltation in the next life.

A survey by Principle Voices found an estimated 37,000 self-described Mormon fundamentalists live across the Intermountain West and western Canada who either live or believe in polygamy.

Most don't affiliate with any group, but the Primer identifies 11 distinct polygamous communities ranging in size from about 150 to 10,000.

Appeal

"I think it was a positive thing," Chris Jones, the church's minister of music, said. "It was very different but people seemed to have responded very positively to it."

Jones said he believes the church can do even more to reach out to the community, and is grateful to work under a pastor who is "very outreach-oriented," he said. "We're very concerned about reaching out to people who are not church."

Other churches in the area have hosted movie nights or other activities to draw community members. The Twin Falls Reformed Church offers a number of outreach opportunities, including 12-step classes and its popular Refuge program, where children are invited to participate in after-school activities.

People seem to respond to outreach, church officials say.

Saturday's crowd at Lighthouse cheered as the motorcycle riders performed their stunts, and clapped when they talked to the audience about their own conversion-to-Christ stories.

Even though rider Greg Harmon recently recovered from head injuries sustained in a motorcycle accident, including time spent in a coma, he maintains his belief that he's doing what a higher power has called him to do. "This is what God wants me to do with my life," Harmon, 25, of Greencastle, Pa., told the Times-News. Harmon keeps busy throughout the year participating in a variety of motocross functions, including Riders 4 Christ. Its members travel the country performing for church audiences and sharing their testimonies of Jesus.

"We're just having a really good time performing for members of this rad church," rider Jimmy McGuire, of Lawton, Okla., said of Lighthouse.

Of his vocation, he said: "I've been given a gift. I figured, why not use it to glorify God?"

the world.

Adventures in Missions prepares young people ages 13 to 22 for service and leadership in their home churches and communities through involvement in intense, short-term mission projects.

The Haiti Team consisted of Bruce and Miller and two adult leaders who prepared for their mission trip at AIM's training facility in southwestern Indiana where they learned team building, personal development, cross-cultural communications, Christian clowning and puppets, sharing nondenominational Christianity, goal setting, how to study the Bible and more.

Bruce and Miller worked with their leaders to help build a school and shared the gospel with people in Gonaives, Haiti. They carried about 7,000 to 8,000 pounds of concrete and 5,000 pounds of sand to the second floor of the school where it would be mixed to build the walls and ceiling.

They also cleaned rooms of the new school, dug foundations from the hurricane and fixed a broken water line. This was all accomplished in 100-plus degree heat with 85 percent humidity.

While there, they lived with Salonique, the pastor of the church and his family. They interacted with the children of Haiti and learned about the culture. It was quite an adventure for these two young men who hope to be able to share their experience with others.

CHURCH NEWS

Lee to preach at Rupert church

New Life Saturday Night will feature the Rev. Les Lee from Twin Falls at 7 p.m. today at New Life Assembly of God Church, 254 Highway 24 in Rupert. Music will be provided by Eugene Moreno and the Solid Rock Praise Band, "Worship with an Edge."

Lee is an ordained minister with the Assemblies of God and has pastored churches in Oregon and Idaho.

Evangelist Bruce Kirby will lead worship at 10:30 a.m. Sunday, with special music from Nashville recording artist Bev Kirby (Bev Rhoades). Meetings are open to the public.

Information: Pastor Gary Clark, 431-6615 or Pastor Randy Gardner, 650-0247.

Episcopal search team to report on search for rector

The search team of Ascension Episcopal Church will make a presentation about the search for a new rector at 9 a.m. Sunday.

The team is charged with creating the parish profile, publicizing the position of rector and selecting candidates for consideration for this position.

Worship services will be at 8 and 10 a.m. with Father Cliff Moore presiding. Youth Christian Education is on summer recess. Child care is available at 9:45 a.m.

Ascension Episcopal Church is located at 371 Eastland Drive N. in Twin Falls.

Information: 733-1248.

Lutheran church will hold special fifth-Sunday service

Worship at 9:30 a.m. Sunday at Our Savior Lutheran Church will be a special fifth-Sunday "Sermon in Song" service.

Members of the congregation have indicated favorite hymns and put them in a special worship container. At least four hymns will be drawn and sung during the sermon. Hymns not selected will be used later in the fall at other such services.

On Monday evening, Pastor Mark Nelson, assistant to the Bishop of the Eastern Washington Synod, will meet with the call committee to go over the interview process and share potential pastoral candidates.

The Wednesday evening service at 7 p.m. will feature Yvonne Carpentar on piano, David Nelson as cantor and Interim Pastor Stan Hoobing preaching.

Information: 733-3774.

First Presbyterian church celebrates anniversary

The First Presbyterian Church, 209 Fifth Ave. N. in Twin Falls, will celebrate its 105th birthday by worshipping at 10 a.m. Sunday at Rock Creek Park.

The Hallelujah Hand Bells will ring and the Rev. Phil Price will speak on the theme, "And it was good." Five passages of scripture reflecting on this theme will be read, with the congregation responding.

A potluck will follow worship. Hot dogs and drinks will be provided. Water balloon games will be provided after fellowship. Everyone attending should bring a salad or dessert to share, their own table service and a chair or blanket. Everyone is welcome.

Information: 733-7023.

United Methodist church combines Sunday services

Both early and traditional services of the Twin Falls United Methodist Church, 360 Shoshone St. E., will be combined at 11 a.m. Sunday. Education workers for the next year will be dedicated and participants in the summer ESL program will be recognized.

A potluck lunch will follow in the Fellowship Room. An ice cream social sponsored by the Finance Committee to celebrate the conclusion of the DRIP campaign will conclude the day's events.

Information about the various educational offerings for all ages in the coming school year, including the Disciple Bible Study program, will be available.

Newest Mormon temple dedicated in South Jordan

SOUTH JORDAN, Utah — Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints President Thomas S. Monson celebrated his 82nd birthday as he presided over the dedication of the church's newest temple.

Monson and other church leaders attended the ceremony at the Oquirrh Mountain

Utah Temple in South Jordan. It is the Mormon church's 13th Utah temple and its 130th operating temple worldwide. It will serve about 83,000 members.

The crowd of several hundred sang "Happy Birthday" to Monson.

Temples are considered sacred to Latter-day Saints and are used for religious rituals including proxy baptisms, marriage ceremonies known as sealings and other ceremonies designed to strengthen church teachings.

Mormon church indefinitely closes Nigeria temple

SALT LAKE CITY — The Mormon church has indefinitely closed a temple in Nigeria as a precaution following recent violence in the area.

The Deseret News in Salt Lake City reported in its online edition Wednesday that The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints also has evacuated temple workers to other areas.

Church spokesman Scott Trotter says violence in the area where the temple is located, even though it is not necessarily related to the temple, could put church members at risk.

The temple on the outskirts of Aba includes a stake center and administration office. It was dedicated in 2005.

N.J. Catholic bishops campaign against gay marriage

NEWARK, N.J. — Roman Catholic bishops in New Jersey have begun a new campaign opposing same-sex marriage.

The push comes in anticipation of a possible vote on the issue by state lawmakers after the November election.

At the bishops' direction, a 2,300-word letter was distributed in parish bulletins last Sunday. It notes longstanding Catholic teaching that marriage is "the union of one man and one woman."

The letter was signed by bishops of Newark, Metuchen, Trenton, Paterson and Camden and by the Byzantine bishop of Passaic.

New Jersey already recognizes civil unions for same-sex couples.

Who's in charge here?

So I'm sitting in front of my computer, wondering where this week's column is going to come from, when all of a sudden I hear that old, familiar voice inside my head.

"Hey, guy. What's happening?"

Oh, no. YOU again. Look, I've got deadlines to meet. I don't have time for you.

"You NEVER have time for me. But we always manage to find some, don't we?"

Yeah. And that usually means trouble — for me.

"You mean like when you were 15 and you were goofing around with some sparklers on the Fourth of July, and I came along and asked how far you could throw one?"

That's EXACTLY what I'm talking about. Why didn't you warn me about how quickly a well-thrown sparkler can turn a dry, weed-infested field into a three-alarm fire?

"You didn't ask. But hey, it was exciting for a while there, wasn't it? Almost as exciting as the time I talked you into taking the ol' Corvair for a spin without your parents' permission?"

And, as I recall, without a driver's license.

"Yeah. That was great, wasn't it?" I thought so. I'm just glad nobody got hurt. You would've been responsible ..."

"Hold on just a second, buddy boy. YOU would've been responsible. I'm just a part of you, remember? Only

VALUE SPEAK

Joseph Walker

I'm the part that makes you want to do dumb stuff — which, I've gotta tell you, has been pretty darn often during the past 54 years. Like when you were little and you took that pack of baseball cards from the store. I was the one whispering, 'No one will ever know!'"

That's right. I remember. "And the time in high school when those kids wanted you to stuf school to go water-skiing? That was me, reminding you of how overwhelmingly important it is to be popular."

Big deal. I was a kid, and kids are susceptible. You haven't had much impact on me lately.

"Oh yeah? How about in April when you were putting together the information for your taxes? Or the other day when that clerk didn't charge you for the gum? Or this morning on the elevator when you stood opposite that beautiful young woman in the shorts and the ..."

OK, I get the point. Maybe I do hear your voice once in a while. But I don't pay as much attention as I used to. It may have occurred to me to fudge a little on my taxes, but I didn't. And I brought the gum to the clerk's attention. And I barely noticed that young woman on the elevator.

"Uh-huh. Sure."

Honest. I've learned that you don't have to act on every impulse. In fact, the opposite is true. If you want to control your destiny, you have to first learn to control yourself. The greatest power in the world is power over self. It's just a matter of deciding who's going to be in charge: me or you.

"Are you trying to tell me that you think you've got me under control?"

Not completely. I still give you too much power sometimes. But I'm trying.

"Well, you're going to have to try a lot harder. Weren't you the one who was whining about your deadline a little while ago? Well, it's almost here, and I've distracted you long enough to get you in SERIOUS trouble. Just like old times!"

Maybe. Then again, maybe not.

August deadliest month for U.S. in Afghanistan

KABUL (AP) — An American service member died Friday when his vehicle struck a bomb in eastern Afghanistan, making August the deadliest month for U.S. forces in the nearly eight-year war.

The grim milestone comes as the top U.S. commander prepares to submit his assessment of the conflict — a report expected to trigger intense debate on the Obama administration's strategy in an increasingly unpopular war.

The latest death was reported as Afghan officials announced an 80 percent increase in the number of major fraud allegations submitted after last week's disputed presidential election — a sign of the deep challenges facing the U.S. and its allies in shoring up a legitimate Afghan government capable of withstanding the Taliban insurgency, corruption and drug trafficking.

A brief statement by the NATO command gave few details of the blast and did not say precisely where it occurred. U.S. military spokeswoman Capt. Elizabeth Mathias said the service member who died was American.

That brought to 45 the number of U.S. service members killed this month in the Afghan war — one more than the previous monthly record, set in July.

An Afghan boy takes a drink from an irrigation pipe as U.S. Marines patrol through the village of Dahaneh, Helmand Province, Afghanistan, Friday.

American casualties have been rising steadily following President Obama's decision to send 21,000 additional troops to Afghanistan to combat a resurgent Taliban and train Afghan security forces to assume a greater role in battling the insurgents.

Obama's decision was part of a strategic shift in the U.S. war against international Islamic extremism — moving resources from Iraq, which had been center stage since the 2003 U.S.-led invasion but where violence has declined sharply from levels of two years ago.

A record 62,000 U.S. troops are now in the country, with 4,000 more due before year's end. That compares with about 130,000 in Iraq, most due to leave next year.

Since the fresh troops began arriving in Afghanistan last spring, U.S. deaths have climbed steadily — from 12 in May to more than 40 for the past two months as American forces have taken the fight to the Taliban in areas of the country which have long been under insurgent control.

At least 732 U.S. service members have died in the Afghan war since the U.S.-led invasion of late 2001.

Foes try to frame Kennedy's legacy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Liberals and conservatives, at odds over health care, are competing to use the legacy of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy to further their goals.

The left claims the Senate's liberal champion would have settled for nothing less than universal care and a new government-run insurance option. Republican foes of those ideas say the Democrats should take a lesson from Kennedy's gift for cutting a pragmatic deal, and sacrifice some of their priorities in the interest of a bargain the GOP could support.

The White House appears intent on staying out of an unseemly political debate that's unfolding even before Kennedy is laid to rest, saying that President Obama has no intention of refereeing disputes over the Massachusetts Democrat's memory.

"There will be a time when it's appropriate to have discussions on different ramifications, but I don't think anybody thinks that now is it," Bill Burton, a White House spokesman, said this week.

But even Obama's secretary of health and human services got into the act on Friday, telling seniors at a wellness center in a former theater named for Kennedy's family that the driving question on health care should be: "What would Teddy do?"

Gadhafi won't stay in N.J. city

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — U.S. Rep. Steve Rothman said late Friday he's been given assurances from a representative of the Libyan government that Moammar Gadhafi won't stay in Englewood, N.J., when he visits the United States next month to address the U.N. General Assembly, a visit that has sparked angry protests.

The Libyan government has been renovating an estate there ahead of Gadhafi's first U.S. visit. But Gadhafi is unwelcome in New Jersey, which lost 38 residents in the 1988 bombing of Pan Am Flight 103 over Lockerbie, Scotland.

The attack, which killed 270 people, is widely believed to be the work of Libyan intelligence. Rothman said he was told of the decision to keep Gadhafi out of Englewood by former U.S. Rep. Bob Livingston, whose firm represents the Libyan government in Washington, D.C.

"I am very pleased that Moammar Gadhafi will apparently not be coming to Englewood," said Rothman, who thanked the Libyan government for its help. "His appearance would have presented unnecessary safety and security issues for the residents of Englewood and the Libyan diplomats."

Rothman's information has not been confirmed by the White House or U.S. Department of State.

Warning on pot growers called profiling

DENVER (AP) — A federal warning to beware of campers in national forests who eat tortillas, drink Tecate beer and play Spanish music because they could be armed marijuana growers is racial profiling, an advocate for Hispanic rights said Friday.

The warnings were issued Wednesday by the U.S. Forest Service, which is investigating how much marijuana is being illegally cultivated in Colorado's national forests following the recent discovery of more than 14,000 plants in Pike National Forest.

and it puts Hispanic campers in danger," said Polly Baca, co-chairwoman of the Colorado Latino Forum.

The U.S. Forest Service quickly retracted the warning.

"It is inexcusable and we regret that this insensitivity distracted attention from the real problem of illegal marijuana cultivation on federal land and the threats to human safety and environmental degradation it poses," said Hank Kashdan, associate chief of the U.S. Forest Service.

Forest Service officials said they believe illegal immigrants are being brought to Colorado by Latin American drug cartels for mass cultivation of marijuana.

Michael Skinner, a law enforcement officer with the U.S. Forest Service in Colorado, said warning signs of possible drug trafficking include "tortilla packaging, beer cans, Spam, Tuna, Tecate beer cans," and campers who play Spanish music.

He said the warning includes people speaking Spanish.

The warning signs were included in a slide presentation put together for drug agents in Colorado and the public.

NOTICE OF TRUSTEE'S SALE
Loan No. 0999159916 T.S. No. 200900645 - 32439 On 11/16/2009 at 11:00 a.m. (recognized local time), at the following location in the County of Minidoka, State of Idaho: In the conference room of Land Title & Escrow located at 710 G St., Rupert, ID 83350, Pioneer Lenders Trustee Services, LLC, as Trustee will sell at public auction, to the highest bidder, for cash, in lawful money of the United States, all payable at the time of sale, the following real property, situated in the County of Minidoka, State of Idaho, and described as follows: Lot 4 in Block 2 of the Minico Subdivision, according to the official plat thereof, now on file in the Office of the County Recorder, Minidoka County, Idaho, recorded July 27, 1970 as Document No. 211190, Minidoka County records. The Trustee has no knowledge of a more particular description of the above referenced real property, but for purposes of compliance with Section 60-113 Idaho Code, the Trustee has been informed that the address of 293 W Spartan Dr., Rupert, Idaho 83350 is sometimes associated with said real property. Said sale will be made without covenant or warranty regarding title, possession or encumbrances to satisfy the obligation secured by and pursuant to the power of sale conferred in the Deed of Trust executed by Stanley J. Hazel, an unmarried man as his sole and separate property, as grantors, to Wells Fargo Financial National Bank c/o Specialize Service, as Trustee, for the benefit and security of Wells Fargo Bank, N.A., as Beneficiary, dated 09/06/2005 and recorded on 10/03/2005, as Instrument No. 480592, of Official Records of Minidoka County, Idaho. Please Note: The above Grantors are named to comply with section 45-1506(4)(A), Idaho Code. No representation is made that they are, or are not, presently responsible for this obligation set forth herein. The Default for which this sale is to be made is the failure to pay when due, under Deed of Trust and Note dated 09/06/2005. The monthly installments of principal, interest, and impounds (if applicable) of 97.51, due per month for the months of 3/20/2009 through 7/1/2009, and all subsequent installments until the date of sale or reinstatement. The principal balance owing as of this date on the obligation secured by said Deed of Trust is $14,924.15, plus accrued interest at the rate of 7.95% per annum from 02/20/2009. All delinquent amounts are now due, together with accruing late charges, and interest, unpaid and accruing taxes, assessments, trustee's fees, attorney's fees, and any amounts advanced to protect the security associated with this foreclosure and that the beneficiary elects to sell or cause the trust property to be sold to satisfy said obligation. If the Trustee is unable to convey title for any reason, the successful bidder's sole and exclusive remedy shall be the return of monies paid to the Trustee, and the successful bidder shall have no further recourse. "A word to the wise is enough, and many words won't fill a bushel."
— Benjamin Franklin

One of the delights of VuGraph commenting is spotting a beautiful deal and watching it unfold before your eyes. However, seeing it reach the critical point and then watching declarer fall is frustrating.

Such a hand arose in round 16 of the Open Championships during the match between Germany and England. I was a little surprised that West elected to pass South's opening bid. A one-spade overall would have been reasonable — although it would not have been a good idea today.

Declarer and the audience spotted the problem in six clubs relatively quickly. How does South avoid two heart losers? A simple way is to lead up to the heart queen, but the auction made that relatively unattractive. An alternative approach is to take what Gabriel Chagas dubbed the intrafinesse: lead a heart to your seven to drive out the jack or 10, then advance the queen from your hand to pin the remaining intermediate honor on your right.

Both declarers had the chance to make this play, but the English declarer's opening bid was not overcalled, so he had less information than the declarer in the closed room. Though he thought for a long time (indicating that he clearly understood his options for the intrafinesse), he eventually played up to the heart queen and went down.

In the other room the English West had made a one-spade overcall, giving declarer all the information he needed. Michael Groemoller showed why Germany led their qualifying group — he played the hearts perfectly to make his slam.

Student hopes friendship can graduate into relationship

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 22-year-old male who has never been in a serious relationship. About six months ago, I went away to grad school and met a girl. We have become good friends. We talk a lot and I flirt, but I'm not sure if she's flirting back. She laughs at my stupid jokes and touches me when we joke around, but I think she may regard me as just a friend. I enjoy having her as a friend, but I can't stop thinking about how I'd like to be more than just friends. Should I take the chance and tell her how I feel and risk our friendship - or let things remain the way they are?

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

months. I'm the only one who knows. Lindy's husband moved out of state to take a temporary job. I know if my parents knew, they'd be upset and would no longer allow her to live with them. Their position is if you're old enough to get married, you should be financially independent. As it stands, she is currently on their medical insurance, pays no rent and is attending school on their dollar. She and her husband had planned to keep this a secret from everyone. I just found out, and it makes me sick. She's getting a free ride at my parents' expense. I promised Lindy I'd keep her secret, but I think what she's doing is wrong and has the potential to hurt my parents financially and emotionally. I am tempted to tell them anyway. How do you think I should handle this?

- I'VE GOT A SECRET IN UTAH
DEAR GOT A SECRET: You should strongly encourage your sister to level with your parents for the reasons you stated. But do not betray her confidence because if you do, she will never confide in you again. It's not as though Lindy is on drugs, unmarried and pregnant or in a life-threatening situation. Your parents will find out eventually, and she'll face the music then.

DEAR ABBY: Whenever my brother sees a family member eat something unhealthy (salty chips, ice cream, etc.), he thinks it's OK to comment on what we're eating and what it will do to our bodies. I think it is rude.

We know that not everything we eat is perfectly healthy, but we know to eat these things in moderation. (None of us is overweight, by the way.)

My brother claims he makes these comments because he "cares about us," but I think it's rude to do it while we're eating. What do you think?

- CHRISTINA IN FAIRFIELD, OHIO

DEAR CHRISTINA: I agree. There is nothing so hard to swallow as unasked-for advice, particularly when you're eating. Your brother may mean well, or he may be a know-it-all, but his timing is off. Ignore him, and when he sees he doesn't get a rise out of you, he'll stop.

- WANTS MORE IN NEW JERSEY

DEAR WANTS MORE: Take the chance and tell her. Faint heart never won fair lady. A clue that she might be mutually attracted to you is the fact that she touches you.

If she isn't attracted to you, you can still be friends - but you'll be psychologically free to look elsewhere for romance. Please write back and tell me what happens - I'm dying to know.

DEAR ABBY: I have just learned that my older sister, "Lindy" (who is currently living with our parents), has been married for two

IF AUGUST 29 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Make your dream a reality during the year ahead. You may develop a passionate ambition or fall head-over-heels in love with a special someone. Keep your goals firmly in mind - especially in December when you could have an opportunity to break with the past and new horizons could come into view. During February you may be tempted to go to extremes or take too much for granted, thus losing out on an opportunity. At the same time, however, your focus on business and your dedication will make any endeavor a sure success. If you have always dreamed of making a major change in your life, this is the year to go for it.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You might want people to think you are more desirable than you really are. The lie you tell today could come back to haunt you.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You should avoid confrontations but will easily know when you have over-

HOROSCOPE
Jeraldine Saunders

stepped the boundaries of propriety.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Learn to walk before you try to run. A buddy may push you to jump into something without adequate research.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You might have your doubts but by waiting for a definitive answer you will avoid acting out of character and ruining your chances.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): It may seem the world is out to get you but it's only a mirage in the desert of your mind. Remain neutral if dragged into a conflict.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Maintain an even keel even if someone rocks the boat. Be tolerant of the mistakes of others and avoid making rash judgments.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Don't pretend to be more than you are. You'll find honesty is the best policy even when there is a temptation to stretch the truth.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): For a few hours you might doubt your. Keep your faith turned on "high," though, and this evening your worries will be banished.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Pretend to be immune to criticism. Emotional seas will wash over you as though you were the Rock of Gibraltar.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Take things one step at a time to achieve something enduring. A brief bout of pessimism might undermine your confidence.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You'll find that it is easy to fly off the handle at the smallest thing, especially if you are in a noisy, discordant atmosphere.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): There may be a tendency to dwell on an unimportant matter while what is truly important escapes your notice. Quit fighting the truth.

Today is Saturday, Aug. 29, the 241st day of 2009. There are 124 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:

On Aug. 29, 1944, 15,000 American troops marched down the Champs Elysees in Paris as the French capital continued to celebrate its liberation from the Nazis.

On this date:
In 1009, the Mainz Cathedral in Germany burned down the same day it was inaugurated.

In 1533, the last Incan King of Peru, Atahualpa, was executed on orders of Spanish conqueror Francisco Pizarro.

In 1809, American author Oliver Wendell Holmes, Sr., was born in Cambridge, Mass.

In 1877, the second president of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints, Brigham Young, died in Salt Lake City, Utah, at age 76.

In 1943, responding to a clampdown by Nazi occupiers, Denmark managed to scuttle most of its naval ships.

In 1957, the Senate gave final congressional approval to a Civil Rights Act after South Carolina Sen. Strom Thurmond (then a Democrat) ended a filibuster that had lasted 24 hours.

In 1958, pop superstar Michael Jackson was born in Gary, Ind.

In 1965, Gemini 5, carrying astronauts Gordon Cooper and Charles "Pete" Conrad, splashed down in the Atlantic after 8 days in space.

In 1966, the Beatles concluded their fourth American tour with their last public concert, at Candlestick Park in San Francisco.

In 2005, Hurricane Katrina hit the Gulf Coast near Buras, La.; the resulting floods devastated the city of New Orleans. More than 1,800 people in the region died.

Ten years ago: Hurricane Dennis wallowed along the coast toward the Carolinas, prompting evacuation orders for the fragile Outer Banks barrier islands.

Five years ago: Tropical Storm Gaston made landfall in South Carolina at near-hurricane strength. Protesters filling 20 city blocks peacefully swarmed Manhattan's streets on the eve of the Republican National Convention to demand that President George W. Bush be turned out of office. A car bomb at the office of a U.S. security contractor in Afghanistan killed about 10 people, including three Americans.

One year ago: In a politically startling move, Republican John McCain picked Alaska Gov. Sarah Palin, a maverick conservative with less than two years in office, to be his vice-presidential running mate.

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Concepts Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.
