T.F. 4-Her trains deaf alpaca

By Nate Poppino

Times-News writer

FILER — Halla Blair and her family admit they have a thing for “special-needs” animals.

There are the injured cats, the deaf dog. And this summer, 15-year-old Halla took on a project all her own — training a deaf alpaca to respond to hand signals.

The alpaca, named Sugar, was born unable to hear. But neither teen nor animal let that get in the way of showing their stuff Wednesday at the Twin Falls County Fair.

Halla, of Twin Falls, trained the alpaca as a 4-H project, the second year she's done alpacas for the fair.

After her summer of effort, the blue-eyed Sugar — blue eyes, Halla noted, are considered to sometimes signal deafness — responds to four commands: “come,” “stop,” “jog” and “no.” The two are still working on a fifth command, “back up.”

The hand motions are the same ones Halla's family came up with for their dog, and she does them with her hand right in Sugar's face.

“She doesn't like to pay attention to me,” Halla noted.

Last year, Halla said, she was one of just nine 4-Hers working with alpacas.

This year, the teen was one of 21 who showed all day Wednesday, said Judy Heidel, this year's 4-H alpaca superintendent. Two 4-H clubs now work with alpacas, one in Castleford and one in Twin Falls, and kids of a variety of ages are drawn to the animals' docile natures and trainable personalities, she said.

“Everybody thinks they're cute,” Heidel added.

The alpacas' owners have done their part to encourage the attention. Jack Beck with Lost Shaker Alpacas, also the announcer for Wednesday's showings, said the 4-H kids lease the animals for just $1 a year, allowing kids who live in cities like Twin Falls and don't have land to keep them on to get the same experience as their rural peers.

That experience is likely just as valuable for the 4-H students' families. Susan Blair, Halla's mother, said she's enjoyed watching her daughter work with Sugar this year.

Galena cell tower blocked again

The supervisor of the Sawtooth National Forest announced Wednesday she has denied a request for a permit to build a cell tower on Galena Summit, a little more than a year after she first rejected the proposed project.

The decision by Supervisor Jane Kollmeyer came several months after a public comment period was held to fix problems with her July 2008 denial, which was reversed in November by Deputy

Anonymous letters discussed at Burley City Council meeting

By Damon Hunzeker
Times-News writer

BURLEY — Letters published in a city councilman's weekly advertising mailer — some anonymous, some signed, almost all with typographical errors — received much attention at Tuesday's meeting.

The publisher of the mailer, Councilman Jay Lenkersdorfer, refrained from commenting until the end of the meeting, when he thanked community activist John Walsh for presenting a statistical analysis of the letters' content and context.

Walsh, a semi-retired former state employee who regularly writes letters and has assisted others with letters in the section called “Sound Off,” delivered a report so detailed it could pass as a doctoral dissertation.

He read, parsed, and examined each letter published from the feature's inception on Jan. 24, 2006 until Aug. 24, 2009 — 1,406 letters, he said. Of those, 1,100 were anonymous.

Citing an abundance of statistics, Walsh said only a small percentage of the letters criticized Burley politics and officials by name

State benefits cut into workers' Rx options

By Jared S. Hopkins
Times-News writer

When the Idaho Department of Administration began requiring part-time state workers to pay more for health insurance earlier this year, officials said the move would save $10 million and not affect full-time employees.

But one piece of the policy overhaul affects all workers. State employees, whether part-time or full-time, will have to shell out more for certain prescription drugs.

Sheila Weaver, a Boise State

University employee, says annual costs for prescription drugs for her husband will rise from $670 to $1,740.

In an e-mail to an employee association, Weaver criticized Department of Administration Director Mike Gwartney for the overhaul.

“Why doesn't Gwartney just put all state employees in front of a firing squad and get it over with already?” she wrote in May to the Idaho Association of Government Employees.

Legislators untouched by changes

By Jared S. Hopkins

New health care changes to part-time state employees won't impact one group of state workers proud to cite its part-time status — state legislators.

Earlier this year, the Department of Administration announced plans to require part-time workers pay more for health care coverage in an effort to save $10 million. But state officials confirmed legislators won't see their benefits change, despite their routine pitch that they work in a citizen Legislature that meets just three months of the year and have to make a living the rest of it.

Lawmakers, however, won't be immune to a new prescription was initially done without proper public notice or input.

The tower was first proposed nearly a decade ago and would provide cell-phone service in a remote area of the Sawtooth National Recreation Area. It was promoted as a way to improve emergency-response times in the region, and its designer, Idaho Tower Co., planned to camouflage the tower in artificial bark to make it blend in.

In her 14-page decision notice, Kollmeyer wrote that the tower would be appropriate for the SNRA if viewed solely from a safety standpoint. But, she continued, it does not meet the SNRA's requirements for an exemption under either the current or upgraded visual rating. She also declined to designate a nearby Midvale Telephone Exchange facility as a formal communications site, though it is located in a lower visual-quality area.

Idaho Tower co-owner Jennifer Campbell hadn't been able to read the decision, which she called "not unexpected," by Wednesday afternoon. But Campbell said she was disappointed about it.

Others welcomed the news. Blaine County Commissioner Tom Bowman said he was pleased with how the decision aligned with county ordinances about tower height, and said cell towers are inevitable in the SNRA but should be guided by a master plan.

Former Idaho Gov. and U.S. Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus, who has been meeting with state and local agencies in the area to find other communications solutions, said the SNRA is one area where scenic value should trump all else.

"No one who has ever made the beautiful trip north from Ketchum up to Galena Summit would say, 'Gosh, this trip would be a lot more spectacular with a bunch of cell towers along Highway 75,'" Andrus said in a statement.

As part of her decision, Kollmeyer noted what she felt were misperceptions in the more than 300 new public comments about just how far the cell signal would likely go and about the laws and guidelines she's required to follow in her decision. She included a map of the coverage area, pointing out its limitations.

But Campbell said her company always said two separate sites will be needed for full coverage, and argued that the coverage from just the one tower would still be larger because of signal bounce off of the mountains.

Campbell and those who participated in any of the comment periods on the tower once again have a chance to appeal the decision. Forest officials are "confident" their analysis will withstand review this time, said spokeswoman Julie Thomas.

Alpaca

"It's been a little more of a challenge," she said.

Wednesday's alpaca showings, which ran all day in the McCoy Sheep Show Ring, focused on three different events. First was the test of showmanship and the rapport between each animal and its owner. Then followed an obstacle course, and finally a costume contest — Halla and Sugar dressed as Thing 1 and Thing 2 from Dr. Seuss' "The Cat in the Hat."

Heidel noted early in the morning that there's always a chance the well-behaved animals would decide to misbehave in the ring. Halla wasn't worried about her routine — since Sugar can't hear, she said, she wouldn't be spooked by sudden noises.

"I'm pretty sure we've got it down," Halla said.

while a significant number applauded the city government.

"While I did not perform any fancy or intricate statistical methodology, I did use some confidence intervals to determine what the possible percentage of error could be. I came up with less than 1 percent," he said.

It should be noted that Walsh was referring to errors of fact. Grammatical errors in the letters, which aren't noticeably edited for clarity or anything else, are too many to count — sometimes two errors per word.

Walsh's presentation follows an appearance before the council last month by Cassia County Commissioner Clay Handy, who chastised city officials for "continual squabbling." His unsolicited remarks won a standing ovation from the packed crowd.

In a later interview, Handy singled out Lenkersdorfer's practice of printing anonymous "personal attacks" in the free-distribution Weekly Mailer, which he called "the biggest cancer we have here."

Handy said the unsigned letters, which often name city officials and community volunteers, are not always factual, amount to "bullying behavior" and damage the community.

Walsh defended the policy of anonymity.

"Unsigned letters have been a part of our culture and our politics ever since we began as a nation," he said, adding that the feature provides an outlet for "citizen journalism."

He advised the three council members up for reelection, as well as the mayor, to welcome scrutiny — anonymous or not. Such comments, he said, are a part of politics, and if they survive, they will "have a much greater victory than if there was no scrutiny."

Mayor Jon Anderson, at the end of the meeting, delivered a statement that was prompted by a recent letter — which was signed and also published in the Times-News — that, he said, questioned his integrity and suggested a "sinister plot" to control council meetings.

"I will take control of the agenda and try to make agenda items only those that require council action, are meaningful and new, and have to do with city business," Anderson said. "We are not improving our city with personal attacks here. Our community has a very open venue for anyone who wishes to make personal attacks on the mayor, most members of the council, and the city staff — and you do not even have to sign your name."

His remarks were applauded by many in the packed audience.

Airport board votes to raise fees at airport

By Jared S. Hopkins
Times-News writer

Landing and fuel fees for aircraft at Joslin Field, Magic Valley Regional Airport could rise nearly 17 percent, under recommendations approved Tuesday by the Twin Falls Airport Advisory Board.

The fees, estimated to raise $29,515 in the next fiscal year, are designed to help offset overall increases in airport expenses — including maintenance and operating costs — which airport manager Bill Carberry said have increased by 66 percent since 2003.

The decision was unanimous.

“Airport fees are not exactly a science, and a little bit of an art and science put together,” Carberry told the board.

The recommendations still must be approved by the Twin Falls City Council, which sets fees by resolution. A public hearing is necessary, said Carberry.

Under the recommendations by the board:

- Landing fees would increase from 90 cents to $1.05 per 1,000 pounds, a 16.67 percent increase. The last increase was in 2003.

- Fuel flowage fees would increase 6 cents per gallon to 7 cents, a 16.67 percent increase. The last increase was in 2004.

- Aircraft rescue and fire-fighting fees would increase from $55 per hour to $60, a 9 percent increase. The last increase was in 2006.

The bulk of the landing fees are paid for through service with SkyWest Airlines, which provides four daily flights to Salt Lake City. Each landing is estimated to increase by $3.87. The fees were devised in a board subcommittee and Carberry said he consulted with SkyWest, which doesn't oppose the changes.

The fees affect just about every aircraft at the facility, including commercial and general aviation, Carberry said.

Once the fees are adjusted, they will still be lower or within reach of those at other airports in Idaho. And board member Dan Olmstead said the fees work out to covering inflation for the past six years.

“I think we've reached an acceptable level of adjustment,” said board member Jim Conder.

ASHLEY SMITH/Times-News

Ray Miller, of the Avionics Shop, Inc. at the Twin Falls airport, works on a Cessna 182 Tuesday afternoon. The airport is increasing landing fees, which have not been raised since 2003, by 16 percent to meet increased operating costs.

Regulators seek comments on drop in gas rates

The Idaho Public Utilities Commission will take public comments through Wednesday on an Intermountain Gas proposal to cut part of its gas rates by about 22 percent.

If approved, the gas company's Purchased Gas Cost Adjustment will decline for the third time in four years. The adjustment changes every Oct. 1 to reflect the price of natural gas on the wholesale market.

Rates for residential customers who use natural gas for both space and water heating would drop from $1.05 to 80.9 cents between April and November and from $1.02 to 77.5 cents from December through March.

Comments can be submitted through www.puc.idaho.gov, faxed to 208-334-3762 or mailed to P.O. Box 83720, Boise, ID 83720-0074. More details are available on the Web site; the case number is INT-G-09-02.

State approves construction of Idaho Power plant

Idaho Power Co. has been granted a certificate to build the 330-megawatt Langley Gulch Power Plant, planned for 137 acres of undeveloped rangeland near Exit 9 of Interstate 84 in Payette County.

The Idaho Public Utilities Commission announced Tuesday that it approved the natural-gas plant because the electric utility risks falling short of customer demand for energy in the next four years.

Some interveners, including customer groups, the Idaho Conservation League and the Community Action Partnership Association of Idaho, had argued the project could be delayed.

The PUC granted the utility “regulatory assurance” that it will be able to recover nearly $400 million invested in the plant through customer rates — slightly less than requested, but a move that will make it easier for the company to borrow capital at favorable rates. But the regulators turned down another request for Idaho Power to start including construction costs in rates as the work moves forward, noting they may revisit the idea later.

Some interveners had argued the bid process used for the plant was flawed and should be more transparent, and a power-producers coalition has asked the PUC to examine the current bid process in a separate case. The commission stated in the Langley order that it appeared the plant's bids were still competitive, but that the bidding process should still be reviewed.

Shoshone police authorized to buy new cruise

SHOSHONE — The Shoshone City Council Tuesday granted Police Chief Jon Daubner authority to purchase a new police cruiser to replace one the city is selling.

City Clerk Mary Kay

The new vehicle is a budgeted item.

The city puts money aside each year for the purchases.

Other business included approval for the city to sell surplus property including the police car that is slated for replacement, a discussion about putting city ordinances on the city's Web site and approval of a banner for Oasis Christian Fellowship to advertise a music festival.

School incident serves as reminder about strangers

By Ben Botkin
Times-News writer

A stranger approached a child Tuesday afternoon outside Perrine Elementary School in Twin Falls with an offer of a candy bar, police and school district officials said.

The child, a third-grade student, ran away from the stranger and told an adult. The stranger has been described as a woman wearing a red bonnet and multi-colored lipstick who was driving a rusty-colored mid-sized car, police said.

In response, the Twin Falls Police Department is putting extra patrols around schools. The school district has sent a letter informing parents about the incident along with safety precautions.

Officials recommend the following steps:

- Children should run away from danger and yell loudly, resist and kick if someone who is not a parent or guardian tries to grab them.
- Don't let children go places alone; always supervise them or be sure a trustworthy adult will.

- Always know where your children are and the individuals they are with.
- Talk to your children about safety around strangers.

Officer Matt Triner of the Twin Falls Police Department said that no arrests have been made. He commended the student for doing the right thing and avoiding the stranger.

NVA preparing for new school year

By Ben Botkin
Times-News writer

North Valley Academy, a charter school in Gooding, is growing in more ways than one this school year.

The school, which opened last year for kindergarten through eighth grade, will have high school students this year, becoming a kindergarten through 12th grade charter school.

In 2008, NVA began with 140 students and ended that school year with 170 students. So far, 251 students are enrolled. Classes begin Tuesday. As a charter school, NVA academy can have up to 312 students total — 24 in each grade.

The school's also adding transportation services this year. The school will have bus routes for students in Jerome and Wendell, a first “I’m a firm believer in education as a whole that molds our students with skills they can take with them for the rest of their lives,” he said.

The school has hired five more teachers, bringing its staff up to nearly 30.

The school will continue to be on the campus of the Idaho School for the Deaf and the Blind. With help from CSI, which runs its North Side Center on ISDB's campus, the school received two classrooms that the college had previously used.

In the long term, the school is in the early stages of planning a modest building for all its students, Infanger said.

Jerome City Council scrutinizes new jobs as it OKs 2009-10 budget

By John Plestina
Times-News writer

JEROME — Before the Jerome City Council approved the appropriations ordinance Tuesday that gave final approval to the $3,865,862 budget, one councilman sought an amendment requiring council approval before new positions are advertised.

With a motion in place for a vote on the appropriation ordinance, Councilman Robert Culver called for the amendment.

He later withdrew the amendment and made a separate motion for council authorization of the new jobs after Mayor Charles Correll requested that he do it that way. Unanimous approval followed for both the budget and Culver's amendment.

Culver said he did not want to include four grant-funded positions for the fire department in his motion.

The city will hire the four additional firefighters that were funded by the U.S. Department of Homeland Security's Staffing for Adequate Fire and Emergency Response grant within 90 days.

Proposed new positions include finance director (a position recently filled), assistant finance director, an additional librarian and several others.

Culver questioned city administrators about a new position of waterworks management analyst.

City Administrator

Ben Marchant responded that the new person would be valuable to city staff by resolving utility issues and would help the city “get ahead of the curve” with planned upgrades to the water system.

The budget calls for an $883,985 increase in revenue generated by property tax because property valuations in Jerome decreased 5 percent from the previous year.

That will translate to a minimal increase on some tax bills, according to Marchant, who called the increase “relatively flat.”

He presented examples showing decreases in valuation from 2008 to 2009. Examples included an increase in the 2010 tax bill of $35.83 for a residence valued at $208,000 a year ago with a 2009 valuation of $202,000.

In contrast, a home valued at $140,000 in 2008 that is now valued at $124,000 would carry an increase of a little more than $11 on the 2010 tax bill.

Total projected property tax revenue for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1 is $3,547,039, up from last year's $2,663,054.

Marchant said the projected beginning fund balance on Oct. 1 is $2,280,031 with an anticipated ending fund balance of $3,227,433 on Sept. 30, 2010.

drug policy that affects all state employees. Administration Chief of Staff Teresa Luna said names of lawmakers cannot be released but said 95 legislators participate on the plan.

Alex Neiwirth, an organizer with the Idaho Association of Government Employees, said it's unfair for legislators to have health care benefits when they consider themselves part-time.

“It sounds like they're trying to have it both ways,” he said. “The problem I would have is they're calling themselves a part-time Legislature and getting the benefits of a full-time employee.”

Some lawmakers participating in the state plan said they'd be amenable to switching to a part-time employee insurance plan if the decision was made and it helped the state.

“Personally I have no problem with treating legislators as part-time employees because that's what we are,” said Sen. Dean Cameron, R-Rupert, co-chairman of the joint legislative budgeting panel. “If the decision is made to classify us as part-time as far as the insurance — and make us pay more to participate on the insurance plan — that would be fine with me.”

But the 10-term legislator — an avid participator in interim committees and various state business — noted the additional time lawmakers spend working on issues and the time away from family.

“You turn around in a situation like this and the employee union takes a little bit of an unfair shot because our work isn't just the three months in session,” he said.

“Our work is all year long as we try to fight for our constituents.”

Rep. Wendy Jaquet, D-Ketchum, also said the benefits package should probably change.

“I think it should be equal,” she said. “Really, we're supposed to be part-time.”

$5 million of savings will result from moving to a formulary prescription drug plan and revised copayments for workers, said Teresa Luna, chief of staff for the Department of Administration. One savings measure is for workers to cover the difference in prescription costs when generic drugs are available.

“We went to a formulary plan, which means that there is a specific list of prescription drugs that the plan covers from generics through brand names,” Luna said. “Any type of drug you might need is available but it might not be a specific brand name. It's just an effort to save money on the plan.”

Luna said the state sets aside a large budget for meds and provided a “very, very generous” drug plan. “Now we've moved to a formulary plan which is typical for most plans.”

She cited an example of a worker who might need the drug Nexium, which is no longer on the formulary plan. “But there are other drugs on the formulary that does what Nexium does,” she said.

The change took effect July 1, when the fiscal year began.

“It's a cost savings, absolutely. By doing this it allows us to keep our premium increases significantly lower than what we had expected,” she said.

In addition to the prescription coverage changes, part-time state employees will also see other changes in their coverage. Starting in November, part-time employees' state-paid portion of their health care premium will be based on the hours they work per week.

Representatives for state employees, meanwhile, said the process hasn't been transparent and places an unfair burden on employees.

“I'm concerned there wasn't totally transparency in how they did that,” said Alex Neiwirth, an organizer with the Idaho Association of Government Employees. “It's one more example of state employee mistreatment.”

Neiwirth expressed concern that affected parties were left out of discussions before the plan's approval.

“For whatever reason, there was no discussion of the other piece of (the state's plan to save $10 million) — which was that half of it was increasing costs for people who are not using certain prescription drugs.”

The contracts were renewed in late May, and employees were notified during open enrollment around that time, Luna said. She added that Blue Cross of Idaho followed up with affected employees.

“The prescription drug plan changes occurred through the contracting process,” she said. “This was not anything that was vetted through an employees' association or anything. When we renewed our contracts, this was one of the changes that were made.”

Gwartney has in recent years sought sweeping changes to make state policies similar to those in the private sector. At the 2009 Legislature, lawmakers agreed to overhaul retired workers' benefits, but only after a public outcry from retired employees forced them to work out the kinks.

Neiwirth said that since Otter's taken office, his administration tried to reduce benefit packages while increasing pay, which studies have shown lags behind the private sector by 15 percent.

“They've shifted the burden onto working families,” he said. “The debate needs to be clear, what are the numbers and how much money will really be saved.”

Sen. Dean Cameron, R-Rupert, and chairman of the joint budgeting panel, said the department had a tough decision to make and it decided to take the best route while preserving state workers' access to health care.

“In reality, that's not different than any private sector business,” he said.

Thefts lead Walgreens to put Oxycontin in safes

SPOKANE — Robberies involving the narcotic OxyContin are so common that Walgreens has installed time-delayed safes in its 114 pharmacies across Washington to secure the powerful painkiller.

The drug store chain is investing heavily in the security measure because Oxycontin robberies in the state are the most in the nation for the company, said Robert Elfinger, a Walgreens spokesman in Deerfield, Ill.

The safes were activated last weekend.

The safes take several minutes to open, blocking immediate access to the prescription drug.

"The potential criminal understands the longer they remain at a crime scene, their chances of getting caught increase exponentially with each passing minute," Elfinger said.

The wait also means security cameras installed in stores will get better pictures of robbers. The company has also erected plenty of signs alerting would-be robbers about the tactic.

There have been about a dozen robberies at Walgreens stores in the Spokane area alone since last fall, often at gunpoint or knifepoint.

WYOMING
Judge sides with forest managers over grazing

CHEYENNE — A federal judge has sided with managers of northern Wyoming's Bighorn National Forest and ruled against an environmental group that challenged livestock grazing in the forest.

Hailey, Idaho-based Western Watersheds Project filed suit in 2007 over a 2005 revision to the forest management plan. The group said the revision process should have considered various alternatives, including reduced amounts of grazing.

U.S. District Judge Clarence Brimmer in Cheyenne ruled Monday that forest managers did as the law required — took a "hard look" at the environmental consequences of the forest plan.

"Simply because the WWP may not like the ultimate outcome does not mean that the Forest Service was in violation of the law," Brimmer wrote.

Three Wyoming counties straddled by the forest — Big Horn, Sheridan and Johnson — intervened on the side of the U.S. Forest Service. The Wyoming Farm Bureau Federation, Wyoming Stock Growers Association and the Muddy Creek Grazing Association also intervened on the agency's side.

IDAHO
Some Idaho state employees get raises

BOISE — More than 800 state employees were given raises this year despite state budget cuts.

Meanwhile, 69 have been laid off, 186 have had their pay cut, and more than 3,700 have taken furloughs without pay, officials said.

About 3 percent of the 25,000 workers got raises. Budget chief Wayne Hammon said more than two-thirds of them came in two agencies with special circumstances — the Idaho State Police and State Insurance Fund.

"There isn't any hanky-panky going on," Hammon told the Idaho Statesman in a story published Wednesday. "I see why it's interesting because you'd think with a 5 percent cut nobody would get a raise, but some employees do. I would not have guessed it was that many."

A total of 446 raises went to workers in the state police agency. Another 108 raises went to employees at the State Insurance Fund.

Police use of Taser on man, 76, roils Wyo. town

By Matt Joyce
Associated Press writer

GLENROCK, Wyo. — Bud Grose seemed like the last person who should attract the attention of police when the 76-year-old retiree hopped on his antique tractor and rumbled through the annual parade in this small Wyoming town.

But what was supposed to be a day of fun at an end-of-summer festival ended abruptly when police shot Grose with a Taser in a dispute about where to end the parade route.

The incident nearly incited a riot as outraged neighbors rushed to his defense. Now residents of this tight-knit town of 2,400 are seething over what they see as police brutality, and town officials are scrambling to ease the tension.

The Glenrock Police Department has placed two of its seven officers on paid administrative leave and hired a consultant to conduct an internal review that began last week. Prosecutors have decided against filing any charges in the Aug. 1 confrontation, and Police Chief Tom Sweet acknowledged the situation has "highly inflamed the community."

"To me it doesn't matter if this was a town of Glenrock's size or New York City. This kind of stuff can't go on," said Grose's son, Mike. "It doesn't matter if there's 10 officers or a thousand, this is just totally unacceptable. We're taught to respect the law, not fear it."

The fracas at the annual Deer Creek Days arose from confusion over whether members of the tractor club could deviate from the parade route shortly before it ended.

Retired truck driver Bud Grose, 76, is shown Aug. 26 at his home in Glenrock, Wyo. A local police officer used a Taser on Grose during the town's Deer Creek Days parade on Aug. 1 after Grose ignored the officer's traffic command.

Grose wanted to head directly to the town park for a tractor pull like in previous years. But the police department had a different plan, which apparently was not communicated to the tractor drivers.

As a result, Grose encountered a Glenrock officer attempting to direct the tractors along the regular parade route. Grose said he drove around the officer. The officer said he was struck by the tractor and injured his wrist, according to a state review of the incident.

"He, for some reason, said no, and I, for some reason, thought to myself yes," Grose recounted.

The police chief said the officer then chased Grose on foot until a fellow officer joined the pursuit in a police SUV and caught up to Grose's tractor. The police pulled in front of the tractor, and the tractor came to a stop as it bumped the SUV.

That is when the officer shocked Grose with the Taser. Grose eventually managed to pull the tractor around the police SUV and to a parking area down the road. An angry crowd formed as police kept ordering Grose off the tractor. Police did not arrest Bud Grose because of the tension at the scene, Sweet said.

"At the time, it was very close to having a riot right there, and that probably would have created a full-scale riot," Sweet said.

Grose's son, Mike, agreed.

"There was some very good people there ready to make some bad choices that would have affected them for the rest of their lives," he said. "That's the point it had gotten to."

A lawyer for the two officers issued a statement Monday saying the officer who fired the Taser did so only after Grose "slammed" his tractor into the police SUV, resisted police commands and kept driving.

"They ultimately de-escalated a volatile situation created by Mr. Grose's actions. If anyone violated the law that day, it was Mr. Grose," Casper attorney John Robinson said. "He should not be regarded as a folk hero."

No cell tower for Galena, so let's move on to a better solution

Jane Kollmeyer got it right this week when she denied permission for an Idaho company to build a cell phone tower on Galena Summit.

But then, the Sawtooth National Forest supervisor got it right a year ago too.

She had to make the decision again because Deputy Regional Forester Cathy Beaty reversed Kollmeyer's initial ruling last October, saying Kollmeyer hadn't provided proper notice nor gathered comments on an amendment to the forest plan that would change the visual quality rating for the site.

So Kollmeyer repeated the process.

The 90-foot tower, first proposed in 2003, would have provided cell service in a remote area of the Sawtooth National Recreation Area. It was promoted as a way to improve emergency response times in the region, and its designer, Idaho Tower Co., planned to camouflage the tower in false bark to try to make it blend in.

This debate became surprisingly emotional. Proponents of the tower included Gov. C.L. “Butch” Otter; foes included former Gov. Cecil Andrus.

In July 2008, Kollmeyer said no to the tower, writing that even with the bark it “would visually dominate the landscape and create a ‘substantial impairment’” of the area's visual quality. But in the process, she also upgraded the quality objective for the site — a rating tool used to determine how to best preserve scenic areas. That was the basis of Beaty's reversal.

Kollmeyer's reasons were the same this time, including the observation that while the cell tower might improve response times there was no evidence that has so far been a significant problem.

So now, perhaps, more realistic solutions can be found — including more appropriate sites for the cell tower. The SNRA is a big place. In the Smoky Mountains immediately west of Galena Summit and the Boulder Mountains that run to the east, there are more than two dozen mountains taller than Galena — plenty of potential sites for a transmission tower.

Kollmeyer recognized early on there were simply better places for such an obvious piece of human engineering.

It's too bad so much of the taxpayers' money had to be squandered in the process.

The Sawtooth National Recreation Area is a national treasure; it doesn't need a cell phone tower guarding its front door.

What do you think?

We welcome viewpoints from our readers on this and other issues.

Starting over: Obama must write his own health care bill

Health-care reform is the No. 1 domestic priority. With all the charges and counter-charges, those who will be affected, the American people, are understandably confused. Many are angry. Reform of our health-care system is a gigantic undertaking, but too many measures have been drafted in congressional committees by liberal Democrats. It's become too much for many to grasp.

Bob Dole

After 35 years in Congress, I know there are times when a fresh start is advisable.

If I were a White House adviser, I would suggest that the day Congress reconvenes, President Obama's version of reform should be introduced by Democratic leaders in the House and Senate. Health-care reform is the vital issue of our time, and Obama should be out front with his specific plan on this make-or-break issue.

Many of us were taught that the president proposes and Congress disposes. Today, Congress is doing both — with the president relegated to the role of cheerleader in chief as he campaigns for various House committees' efforts.

Certainly, Obama supports much in these proposals — but Barack Obama is our president, not a commentator. Obama's approval numbers would jump 10 points if Americans knew he was fully in charge. A tactical move of introducing his own plan would also stir more Republicans to become active for reform in critical areas. Right now the president's biggest problem is with congressional Democrats, who are split and searching for a way out of the medical wilderness.

In short, the president, Congress and the public are choking on all this, and choking is not covered by the legislation.

Members of Congress want to keep their jobs. They support their president, but they also want to be employed, with a good health plan (like the one they enjoy now), after this president or even the next has come and gone. So votes on this issue are not simply partisan. They are also about survival. Most lawmakers will think long and hard before casting this vote — to avoid backing into a buzz-saw.

Once the president has staked out his position, which will provide room for amendments, the debate will narrow, and bipartisan bargaining and other political maneuvering can begin.

The goal is getting legislation without driving certain private sectors, such as the health-insurance industry, out of business. Issues such as administrative costs and coverage for those with pre-existing conditions can be resolved without any “public option” or the “co-op” provision under discussion. All of these can be postponed for five years or more. If the industry has not shown marked improvement by then, reforms could be imposed because most of the proposed legislation, if passed, would not be implemented for three to four years in any case. I believe the industry is responsible and would clean up its act, as needed, as soon as possible.

Along with former Sens. Howard Baker and Tom Daschle, I serve on the advisory board of the Bipartisan Policy Center, a group searching for common ground. After more than a year of work on health care, we made our recommendations public in June. Out of Congress now, we have no votes and no power — but we have our credibility. It is pleasing that many lawmakers, particularly the Senate Finance Committee leaders, Democrat Max Baucus and the GOP's Chuck Grassley, have looked favorably upon some of our recommendations.

think it best to avoid the “reconciliation” process, by which part of a plan could be written into legislation that requires 51 votes, and not 60, on its way to passage. This president may be up to his ears in Democratic votes, but I suspect that many will not vote for a bill put forth through reconciliation.

Republicans have different ideas but for the most part are positive about reform if the government has a minimal role. Democrats would eventually regret it if Republicans are forced to take a nearly party-line vote. Obama should get the credit if legislation passes but, more important, get the blame if final legislation draws only a few GOP votes and brings more taxes, more government and more spending.

Most important legislation in U.S. history has had broad bipartisan support. As a supporter of bipartisan health reform, I hope the presidents puts the final touches on his own health bill. I'd bet a bottle of aspirin that it would cure many of his headaches.

Bob Dole, a Republican, represented Kansas in the U.S. Senate from 1969-96, where he served as majority leader for two years and as minority leader for a decade. He was the GOP nominee for president in 1996. Dole wrote this commentary for The Washington Post.

Panatosopoulos joins T-N editorial board

Times-News

A longtime financial services specialist and Twin Falls community activist joins the Times-News editorial board this week.

Mary Lou Panatosopoulos, 67, succeeds accountant Ruth Pierce, a community member whose term on the five-member panel that sets the newspaper's editorial policy, expired Monday.

“I feel my greatest asset is a willingness and eagerness to learn new things and meet new people and to do any kind of work available to me,” Panatosopoulos said.

The Arizona native worked for First American Title Co. from 1980-2003, first as escrow officer, then as escrow department chief and finally as manager for Twin Falls and Jerome counties.

Before that, Panatosopoulos was a mortgage banker in Twin Falls.

She's a past member of the board of directors of the Twin Falls Area Chamber of Commerce, former president and board member of the Twin Falls Kiwanis Club, and served on the Blue Lakes Country Club board. Panatosopoulos was chairwoman of the Kiwanis Foundation Board, served as president of both the Idaho Land Title Association and the Idaho Escrow Association, was a member of the American Escrow Association board, and chaired the First American Title 401(k) Committee for 16 years.

“Mary Lou's diverse and broad interests and experiences, both professionally and personally, will bring valuable insight and perspective to our weekly editorial board meetings,” Publisher Brad Hurd said.

Panatosopoulos is currently treasurer of St. Ignatius of Antioch Orthodox Christian Church and is a member of Master Gardeners Club of Twin Falls and of Magic Traders, an investment club she helped start.

A graduate of Payson, Ariz., High School, Panatosopoulos attended Arizona State University and the College of Southern Idaho, studying accounting and business law.

“I worked as a soda jerk in the local drug store for three years and at the Post Office for two summers,” she said. “Then spent 18 years as a housewife, ranch wife and mother.”

Other members of the editorial board are Editor James G. Wright, Opinion Editor Steve Crump and Filer-area farmer Bill Bitzenburg, who serves as the other community member.

Transparency in government is an absolute. You either have openness or you don't.

That point seems to elude the Idaho Association of Government Employees. The Idaho Freedom Foundation has collected what state and many local agencies spend. It also lists, by name, every public employee's salary it can obtain.

You can find this information at www.ouridaho.com.

"Just because an action might be legal, doesn't mean it's a good idea," says Alex Neiwirth of the public employees group.

Neiwirth says publishing that information may compromise some undercover cops, undermine employee morale and it sheds little light. He says knowing what someone is paid doesn't tell you if he's a dedicated worker. It says nothing about what he might earn as a private consultant doing the same work under a government contract. You don't see whether that public employee has gone without cost-of-living pay raises or even has suffered a wage cut or furlough during the current budget crunch.

Idaho Freedom Foundation didn't pry this information loose. It's all public record. It merely compiled and published the data ...

Idaho Freedom Foundation's site includes ordinary people — court clerks making $33,000 a year, custodians making $22,800 and teachers earning $37,764. ... hamstringing Idaho nuclear power

Idaho Statesman, Boise

Idaho's stake in the Yucca Mountain debate is obvious — and mounting. Used nuclear reactor fuel remains stored at the Idaho National Laboratory west of Idaho Falls. Much of it comes from the U.S. Navy's nuclear-powered submarines and warships.

While the feds haggle over Yucca Mountain — a proposed nuclear waste burial site in the parched and austere desert about 100 miles from Las Vegas — the Navy waste can continue to come to Idaho. A 1995 agreement with the state of Idaho allows the Navy to make an average of 20 waste shipments to Idaho each year.

The Obama administration plans to scrap Yucca Mountain, after two decades and $7.5 billion of study, without so much as a Plan B. That's unacceptable for Idaho — and not only because of the waste storage questions. Idaho's stake in the Yucca Mountain debate goes beyond even that.

Obama's shortsighted policy also threatens the future of nuclear power research, which has serious implications for Idaho.

In addition to serving as home to nuclear waste from the Navy and other origins, the INL is the Department of Energy's lead lab for nuclear energy research.

While the Obama administration has been slashing funding for Yucca Mountain, the House in July plowed $272.4 million into "Generation IV" reactor research for 2009-10, including $245 million for the Next Generation Nuclear Plant project headquartered at INL. The Senate has approved $143 million for Generation IV, a figure that still exceeds the White House request.

Talk about a disconnect. Congress wants the federal government to perform its appropriate role in research — by helping to create a safe and nimble nuclear reactor design that can be sized to meet industrial needs. But even the Next Generation Nuclear Plant creates waste, pellets of used reactor fuel. This is exactly the kind of high-level waste that would go to a repository such as Yucca Mountain — the dump

Obama wants to shut down before it ever opens ...

Ultimately, Idaho stands a reasonably good chance of getting rid of its waste, with or without Yucca Mountain. The agreement that allows continued Navy shipments also requires the Energy Department to clear waste out of Idaho by 2035. If need be, Idaho could go to federal court to force compliance with the agreement.

But Idaho is on no such footing when it advocates for reactor research ... By killing Yucca Mountain, Obama could essentially kill reactor research at sites such as INL — to the detriment of the state and the nation.

Jeers to the Department of Administration officials who barred an insurance agent from a meeting with Idaho government retirees being forced to switch from state health insurance to private Medicare supplements.

Meanwhile, three insurers, Blue Cross of Idaho, United Health Care and Blue Shield of Idaho — on whose board Idaho Department of Administration Administrator Mike Gwartney (once) sat — were allowed to participate.

It seems that Kathe Warner, who sells insurance for the Pyramid Life Insurance Co., had the temerity to show up and tell the retirees that options outside the big three exist. She'd been asked to do so by the Idaho Public Employees Association, which is rightly concerned that retired government workers aren't getting all the information they need in the face of changes approved by the Legislature last year.

Warner ... showed up for one meeting (last) week in Pocatello but was told not to attend a second by state benefits manager Cynthia Ness. Gwartney's chief of staff, Teresa Luna, said Idaho has a long working relationship with the three companies and decided to exclude others ... fearing they would devolve into marketing events for companies selling Medicare supplements.

Yes, one can see where allowing retirees to peruse a number of different choices would be a bad idea. It's good to know how Gwartney and his crew truly feel about competition in the marketplace.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Kennedy men flawed but good hearted

Yes, all of the Kennedy men were flawed, but the goodness of their hearts set them apart from their fellow sinners. For men so favored with wealth and all of wealth's trappings, they gave tirelessly to the wretchedly poor, probably starting in what they first saw in West Virginia.

Little wonder then that Sen. Byrd wept so unashamedly at the podium in the Senate upon hearing that Sen. Kennedy had terminal cancer. He worked tirelessly for universal health care. He also thought in terms of the world — South, North, East and West Africa, where fascists killed and starved their citizens for privatized goals.

Yes, the Kennedy men were flawed, but United States citizens are better off today because of their dedicated service to give as much aid as possible to our real needs.

Yes, rational folks were mesmerized by the oratorical skills of Sen. Edward Moore Kennedy, from which they learned that the government need not be their enemy, that universal health care will help the elderly, not take their precious lives, and that we should never make decisions out of a sense of fear.

Health care reform will bring some positive changes

As a longtime American Association of Retired Persons volunteer and former state president, I trust AARP and the position it is taking on health care reform. When special-interest groups started trying to scare me and other seniors with horrible things that would supposedly happen to Medicare if health care reform passed, it touched a nerve.

People need to hear the positive things that will happen when real reform is passed. For people in Medicare, the health care reform will close the Medicare Part D "doughnut hole," protect the choice of doctors, keep health premiums fair, hold down your health care and prescription drug costs, eliminate waste, fraud and abuse and improve the care a person will receive. None of the health care reform proposals being considered by Congress would cut Medicare benefits or increase your out-of-pocket costs for Medicare services.

Those who say that health care reform will hurt Medicare are wrong. If we do nothing, more and more people will fall into the doughnut hole, fewer doctors will treat Medicare patients and the wasteful spending would continue to threaten the financial security of the program. Don't be fooled by these scare tactics. Study the issues and ask questions of those that have studied the issue.

Throughout this debate, AARP pledges to help you find the facts about what health care reform means for you and your families. To get the facts about health reform and learn about the latest myths and scare tactics, go to HealthActionNow.org.

Councilman clarifies view about memorial

I would like to respond to the article written in the Times-News about the Armenian memorial. I believe a quote by me was taken out of context so it appears that I am against memorials to World War II or other significant events in history.

I believe everyone in attendance at the meeting easily realized that I was referring to concerns about the statute in question. If we interpreted the statute the same as the Parks and Recreation Commission, I did not think we could not allow any memorials unless the event happened in Twin Falls. I definitely appreciate and hope we have additional memorials in our parks.

I was interested in changing the statute if needed to make sure we could allow them! I do not believe that the article was written to confuse and, if you read the previous paragraph, it does make some sense but some have been confused by it, if the e-mails I have received are any indication.

I just wanted to set the record straight and hope we have additional requests for appropriate memorials including World War II in our parks. Thank you.

Councilman's plan to save taxpayer money is shortsighted

At the recent public hearing on the budget for the city of Burley, Councilman Lenkersdorfer stated that he wanted to save the taxpayers money by cutting city taxes. Without consulting any of the department heads, he prepared a paper showing what the various departments could cut.

Saving the taxpayers' money is always popular, but his proposal is penny-wise and pound-foolish. His proposal might save taxpayers a few dollars today but would place in jeopardy important city services making Burley a less desirable place to live. It would also limit the ability of the city to bring in new business and grow, something that saves taxpayers money in the long run.

We citizens of Burley are fortunate that through the years Burley has had a pro-growth policy. Essential services such as water, sewer and electricity are up to date. Our fine library and golf course are great drawing-cards. This willingness to pay for city services is one thing that has helped to make Burley less influenced by the nationwide recession.

Several businesses have seen Burley as an attractive area in which to locate. The result of this pro-growth policy is that the city of Burley tax rate has decreased the past three years. This is in spite of the fact that every year the city of Burley has taken the 3 percent budget increase as allowed by law. People with a home valued at $150,000 minus the home-owners exemption paid $452.64 in 2006. In 2008, they paid $311.03 on a house of that same value. (They might not have noticed this decrease if their property increased in value.)

We citizens of Burley are fortunate to have city employees, including department heads, who work hard to keep Burley a good place in which to live. They do all they can to be frugal and not waste taxpayer money. They are professionals who understand current and long-term costs and work hard to prepare their budgets.

Unfortunately these professionals do not have the same opportunity to present their views to the public as

Mr. Lenkersdorfer does. Mr. Lenkersdorfer owns a newspaper that he uses to present his own ideas — an advantage that no other city employee or elected official has.

But we citizens of Burley need to be aware of the effect that his proposal could have on our town. We need to think of the long-term benefit to our community. Let's continue to make Burley a good place in which to live.

Feds didn't clear brush in LA wildfire area

By Michael R. Blood
Associated Press writer

LOS ANGELES — Federal authorities failed to follow through on plans earlier this year to burn away highly flammable brush in a forest on the edge of Los Angeles to avoid the very kind of wildfire now raging there, The Associated Press has learned.

Months before the huge blaze erupted, the U.S. Forest Service obtained permits to burn away the undergrowth and brush on more than 1,700 acres of the Angeles National Forest. But just 193 acres had been cleared by the time the fire broke out, Forest Service resource officer Steve Bear said.

The agency defended its efforts, saying weather, wind and environmental rules tightly limit how often these "prescribed burns" can be conducted.

Bear said crews using machinery and hand tools managed to trim 5,000 acres in the forest this year before the money ran out. Ideally, "at least a couple thousand more acres" would have been cleared.

Could more have been done to clear tinder-dry hillsides and canyons?

"We don't necessarily disagree with that," Bear said. "We weren't able to complete what we wanted to do."

Some critics suggested that protests by environmentalists over prescribed burns contributed to the disaster, which came after the brush was allowed to build up for as much as 40 years.

"This brush was ready to explode," said Los Angeles County Supervisor Mike Antonovich, whose district overlaps the forest. "The environmentalists have gone to the extreme to prevent controlled burns, and as a result we have this catastrophe today."

Prescribed burns are intended to protect homes and lives by eliminating fuel that can cause explosive wildfires. The wildfire that has blackened 140,000 acres — or nearly 219 square miles — in the forest over the past week has been fed by the kind of tinder-dry vegetation that prescribed burns are designed to safely devour.

The blaze has destroyed more than five dozen homes, killed two firefighters and forced thousands of people to flee. Firefighters reported modest progress Wednesday as investigators said the blaze was human-caused, though it was not clear exactly how the fire started or whether it was accidental or arson.

Figures from the California's South Coast Air Quality Management District suggested even less was protectively burned.

The agency said it granted six permits sought by the Forest Service to conduct prescribed burns on 1,748 acres in the forest this year. The agency reviews such requests to ensure air quality in the often-smoggy Los Angeles area will not be worsened by smoke from intentional fires.

But records show only 12.8 acres burned.

Four of the permits, totaling 1,257 acres, were granted in areas involved in the wildfire, according to the air quality agency.

But the Forest Service disputed those figures. Bear said 193 acres were cleared by intentionally set fires.

Government firefighters set thousands of blazes each year to reduce the wildfire risk in overgrown forests and grasslands around the nation. Prescribed burns can also be used to improve overall forest health and increase forage for wildlife.

Obtaining the necessary permits is a complicated process, and such efforts often draw protests from environmentalists.

Biologist Ieene Anderson with the Center for Biological Diversity, an environmental organization, said burn permits should be difficult to get because of the potential damage to air quality. Clearing chaparral by hand or machine must be closely scrutinized because it can hurt native species.

"Our air quality, for a variety of factors, doesn't need to be further reduced by these controlled burns," she said.

Setting pre-emptive fires can be especially risky near heavily populated urban areas like Los Angeles because of the danger of flames burning out of control. Last month, a 90-acre prescribed burn near Foresta, on the edge of Yosemite National Park, jumped fire lines and consumed more than 7 square miles in the park.

Angeles National Forest Supervisor Jody Noiron defended the agency's efforts to reduce the fire risk. "The Angeles Forest has been pretty aggressive about implementing fuels-reduction projects with the funds we are given," she said.

She said that it is extraordinarily difficult to get the right weather conditions to pull off a prescribed burn.

"This year with the weather and the drought and all of that, the last couple of years actually, we've had very few days that we can do prescribed burning," she said.

Los Angeles fire Capt. Steve Ruda said that pre-emptive fires were used more frequently in the region in the 1980s. But a growing backcountry population and increasingly complicated environmental rules have made them less frequent.

Conducting a prescribed burn requires a detailed study of wind, terrain, temperature and humidity and reviews by a host of government entities, including air-quality regulators.

Max Moritz, co-director of the Center for Fire Research and Outreach at the University of California at Berkeley, said there is wide discussion about the need to do more prescribed burns to reduce the fire hazard.

But "you have this difficult needle you have to thread to find the right place, the right conditions, to pull it off," Moritz said.

Levi Johnston: Palin wanted to adopt grandchild

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Levi Johnston, the father of Sarah Palin's grandchild, said the former Republican vice presidential candidate wanted to adopt his child so that people wouldn't know her 17-year-old daughter was pregnant.

In an interview with Vanity Fair, Johnston said Palin had a plan to deal with Bristol's pregnancy.

"Sarah kept mentioning this plan. She was nagging — she wouldn't give it up. She would say, 'So, are you gonna let me adopt him?'"

We both kept telling her we were definitely not going to let her adopt the baby. I think Sarah wanted to make Bristol look good, and she didn't want people to know that her 17-year-old daughter was going to have a kid," Johnston told the magazine for its October edition, which goes on sale Saturday. Excerpts of the interview were posted Wednesday on the magazine's Web site.

Meghan Stapleton, Palin's spokeswoman, did not immediately respond to request for comment, but has previously discounted Johnston's allegations. Palin has been keeping a low profile since she resigned on July 26 with more than a year left in her first term.

A week after Republican presidential candidate John McCain named Palin as his running mate, the campaign issued a statement that her unwed daughter was pregnant. It also said Bristol, now 18, and the young man would marry.

Johnston, 19, lived in the house for two months awaiting the birth of the baby, Tripp, who was born in December. The couple called off the wedding shortly after their son's birth.

Since then, Johnston has complained in national interviews that the Palins limited his access to the boy. He's also said he's pursuing a career as an actor or model.

Johnston said the Palin home in Wasilla was not what most people would think.

"The Palin house was much different from what many people expect of a normal family, even before she was nominated for vice president. There wasn't much parenting in that house. Sarah doesn't cook, Todd doesn't cook — the kids would do it all themselves," Johnston told Vanity Fair.

Palin has four other children. The youngest, Trig, is 1 year old.

Johnston also repeated claims that Palin said she wanted to quit and write a book or host a TV show.

When Palin returned to Alaska following McCain's unsuccessful run for president, she was different, Johnston said.

"Sarah was sad for a while. She walked around the house pouting. I had assumed she was going to go back to her job as governor, but a week or two after she got back she started talking about how nice it would be to quit and write a book or do a show and make 'triple the money!'"

"She would blatantly say, 'I want to just take this money and quit being governor,'" Johnston said.

He also claims Palin is not the hockey mom or outdoorswoman she claims to be. He said she rarely attended her oldest son's hockey games, and asked Levi how to shoot a gun.

"She says she goes hunting and lives off animal meat — I've never seen it," Johnston said.

Chuck Heath, Palin's father, said his daughter has been out of Alaska for the past month writing her memoirs.

Chicken processing plant delayed during permit process

Burley officials say facility still moving forward

By Joshua Palmer
Times-News writer

A chicken-processing plant that was slated to be built south of Burley this summer has fallen behind schedule due to delays in the permitting process, say Burley city officials.

A spokesman for Magic Valley

Poultry International said in June that the company planned to build a 3.5 million square foot chicken processing plant near Burley High School during the summer.

However, with summer coming to an end, officials say the permit process is still a couple of weeks away from completion.

Part of the difficulty surrounding the permit process is the size and scope of the project, said Doug Manning, economic development director for the city of Burley.

"It's just so damn big, so it's going to take time to go through the process," Manning said.

The proposed facility, which will be built on 83 acres near Burley High School, will have the capacity to process up to 12,600 chickens per hour — churning out poultry products that will be sold to both foreign and domestic markets.

As part of the permit process, the plant is required to receive county approval under a CAFO ordinance for poultry.

The plant is expected to create about 1,000 new jobs, with an annual payroll of about $30 million, Manning said.

During a town meeting in June, Manning compared the scope of the plant to that of Micron in Boise, saying, "We believe Magic Valley Poultry will do for the Mini-Cassia area what Micron did for Boise."

However, the poultry market has changed significantly during the past three months.

An oversupply of pork has driven the price of chicken down in recent weeks. The industry anticipated that the summer season would boost chicken prices. However, breast meat is still selling for around $1.50 a pound, down from around $1.65 a month ago.

Manning said he did not know if Magic Valley Poultry planned to scale back the operation amid a declining poultry market.

He estimated that the permits will be completed within two weeks.

"I just hope we have an Indian Summer, so that we can get started on construction," Manning said.

New home construction up for third consecutive month

By Joshua Palmer
Times-News writer

New home construction permits, an indicator of residential construction activity, increased for the third consecutive month in south-central Idaho.

The number of permits that were issued in Twin Falls increased about 34 percent compared to the previous year to 27 new home permits, according to the City of Twin Falls Building Department.

The Jerome building department reported six permits issued in August, about a 3 percent increase over the previous year.

New home construction permits for Burley were unavailable Wednesday.

August marks the third consecutive month that new home construction permits were higher than the previous year — marking the longest period of growth since 2007.

However, the industry is stopping short of calling it a recovery.

"It's still down, but we have been in such a slump that it's difficult to say what's normal," said Tony Hughes, past president of the Magic Valley Builders Association.

All permits that were issued in the region during August were for homes between $100,000 and $150,000 — considered entry level homes by industry standards.

Productivity up 6.6 percent

Largest advance in nearly 6 years

By Martin Crutsinger
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — Worker productivity, the single biggest factor determining living standards, grew at the fastest pace in nearly six years in the spring while labor costs fell by the most in nine years, as companies slashed costs to survive the recession.

Increases in productivity can help boost living standards because companies can increase wages financed by rising output. But during the recession, companies have been using their productivity gains to bolster their bottom lines as many struggle to stay in business.

This cost-cutting helped many companies report better-than-expected second-quarter earnings despite falling sales. But economists worry that such aggressive cuts will make it harder to mount a sustainable recovery. That's because the lack of wage growth and shortage of jobs will depress household incomes and make the prospects for a sustained rebound in consumer spending less likely.

Consumer spending is critical to the recovery since it accounts for about 70 percent of total economic activity.

The Labor Department said Wednesday that productivity, the amount of output per hour of work, rose at an annual rate of 6.6 percent in the April-June quarter, the largest advance since the summer of 2003. Economists expected an increase of 6.4 percent, matching the government's initial estimate last month.

Labor costs fell at an annual rate of 1.8 percent. See PRODUCTIVITY, Business 2

Weak retail report cards likely for back-to-school

By Mae Anderson
Associated Press writer

NEW YORK — It may be the beginning of the year for students, but for retailers, it's report-card time. Analysts expect the early grades on the back-to-school selling season to be weak when retailers report August results Thursday.

The results will give insight into whether consumers opened their wallets after months of keeping them closed amid the recession, and how well back-to-school offerings such as trendy jeans, dresses and T-shirts are being received.

Analysts say poor sales would raise already-high fears about the crucial holiday selling season.

Labor Day falls a week later this year and several states' tax-free shopping weeks occurred in August this year rather than July, both making comparisons from a year ago difficult.

Idaho governor launches economic Web site

BOISE — Idaho Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter has launched a new Web site detailing his plan for the state's economic growth.

Otter has dubbed his plan "Project 60," saying he wants to grow the state's economy from $51 billion to $60 billion by encouraging businesses to add more jobs.

He says the Web site, www.Project60.idaho.gov, will provide business news and perspectives and keep people updated on progress of the Project 60 plan. Otter says the Web site will also allow people to offer leads about vendors and businesses that may want to relocate to Idaho.

The website also promotes the governor's efforts to attract foreign investment in Idaho.

Inventor sues 3 Northwest universities over patent

BOISE — A Canadian inventor is suing three Pacific Northwest universities in federal court, saying they illegally used his 19-year-old patented process to build a better yellow mustard seed.

In a lawsuit filed in Seattle's U.S. District Court earlier this year, Soheil Sharafabadi says the University of Idaho used his patent without permission to produce new varieties of mustard seed with higher yields.

The lawsuit says Washington State University and Oregon State University collaborated with the Idaho university, providing research stations and scientists.

All three schools, along with companies that sell and distribute the seeds, are named as defendants.

Sharafabadi says his patent helped researchers produce seeds with higher-than-normal levels mucilage, which in plants promotes water storage and seed germination.

Businesses should weigh retirement plan options

Like many investors, small business owners may be wondering if this is a good time to go into the stock market. For those with employees, the debate may extend to whether it's the right time to set up company-sponsored retirement plans.

The timing issue for employers is twofold. First, while no one knows where the stock market is headed, it has already made up a sizeable chunk of its devastating losses and any owner who wants employees to benefit from a continuing recovery should consider setting up a plan soon. Second, deadlines are approaching for creating some of the most popular, and least complex, plans.

SMALL TALK

Accountants and other financial advisers generally recommend that small businesses set up retirement plans as soon as possible, simply because employees' savings tend to grow over the long term even with serious setbacks like the one the market has seen over the past year.

"If you think the market financials are going to be greater (at retirement) than where they are today, you should be considering this," said Bob Doyle, president of Doyle Wealth Management Inc. in St. Petersburg, Fla. "Do you want to buy into the Dow at 9,500, or do you want to buy into the Dow at 12,000?"

There are a variety of retirement plans available, including several aimed at small businesses. Companies need to comply with paperwork and other requirements set by the IRS, but depending on which plan you choose, the time and effort can be minimal.

The easiest of the plans is called a SEP, or Simplified Employee Pension. An owner only needs to go to a bank or other financial institution to set up a SEP. Companies are not required to file annual reports with the IRS as they must do with more complicated plans such as many 401(k)s or profit-sharing plans.

The IRS is very flexible with the timing of tax deductions for an employer's SEP contributions. The plan must be set up and initial and subsequent contributions must be made by the due date of the owner's return. If owners obtained an extension of the April 15 filing deadline this year, they have until Oct. 15 to set up a SEP and make their

Fed minutes: Reserve officials saw recession's end in August

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — With the U.S. economy on the mend, Federal Reserve policymakers last month felt comfortable slowing the pace of one of its economic revival programs and not changing any others, according to documents released Wednesday.

Minutes of the central bank's closed door deliberations, held Aug. 11-12, also showed Fed Chairman Ben Bernanke and his colleagues striking a much more hopeful note about the economy's prospects compared with an assessment made in late June. Many Fed officials saw "smaller downside risks," the documents stated.

Fed officials expected the pace of the recovery to "pick up" in 2010, but there was a range of views about the likely strength of the upturn because of concerns about how consumers will behave.

After being pounded by the recession, consumer spending finally appeared to be leveling out, the housing market was firming and manufacturing was stabilizing, the Fed said. Plus, the outlook for other countries' economies improved, auguring well for the sale of U.S. exports.

All that strengthened the confidence of Fed officials that "the downturn in economic activity was ending." They also repeated a prediction that the economy would start growing again in the second half of this year. That expected growth will be helped by President Obama's $787 billion package of tax cuts and increased government spending, they said.

BP finds 'giant' oil reservoir deep under Gulf of Mexico

By Steven Mufson
 The Washington Post

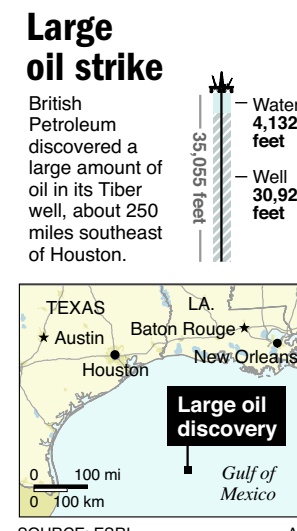

WASHINGTON — BP said Wednesday that it made a "giant" oil discovery in the Gulf of Mexico, and analysts said that the find deep below the sea floor raised hopes that further exploration in the region could help sustain U.S. offshore oil production. The discovery, known as Tiber, was made 250 miles southeast of Houston and was "in the same league" as other big fields BP has discovered in Gulf of Mexico, BP spokesman Daren

Beaudo said. The company would not make any estimates on the amount of oil its latest find could yield, but the biggest platform in those other fields, Thunder Horse, is producing as much as 300,000 barrels a day. The exploration well used to find the Tiber field was the deepest vertical well ever drilled, according to Guy Cantwell, communications director at Transocean, the offshore drilling company that owns the rig. Working conditions were challenging, he said. The rig, the Deepwater Horizon, dangled about a million pounds of well casing while floating in 4,132 feet of water, and then drilled another 30,923 feet below the sea floor. Temperatures at the sea floor were about 35 degrees, while the temperature of fluids in the well miles below were 250 degrees. Bob MacKnight, a senior consultant with the Washington consulting firm PFC Energy, cautioned that while the big new discoveries were welcome news, they might not boost overall U.S. oil output because other Gulf of Mexico fields are expected to decline. "We really need this," he said. "After 2012, given current developments, we will see production start to decline. Without continued discoveries ... that decline could be steep." Production in the Gulf of Mexico accounts for about a quarter of total U.S. oil production, or about 1.2 million barrels a day. U.S. production in the Gulf peaked in 2003 at 1.56 million barrels a day, according to the Energy Information Administration. Daniel Yergin, chairman of Cambridge Energy Research Associates, said that the discovery "demonstrates how technology continues to expand the horizon of the Gulf of Mexico." BP said that the well struck oil in "multiple reservoirs" in the Lower Tertiary geologic zone, a layer of the earth's crust dating back 38 million to 68 million years. More than 10 discoveries have been made at that level in the Gulf, including BP's Kaskida find, which has estimated reserves — about a third or less recoverable — of 4 billion to 6 billion barrels.

The 5.5-mile hike to Alice Lake is colored by a beautiful creek, small waterfall and a couple of mirror-like ponds. Looming over the lake at its northern end is 9,900-foot El Capitan. Other peaks in the vicinity include the 10,651-foot Snowside Peak and the 10,068-foot McDonald Peak.

A spectacular gem

Alice Lake: A hike that will take your breath away

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

It's easy to enjoy the Sawtooth Mountains, which rise up like jagged teeth on a saw, as you buzz down the highway, your auto on cruise control and Elvis blaring on the XM radio.

But you'll have to get off the highway and onto your feet to enjoy the other spectacular gems of the Sawtooth Wilderness area.

They're there — glacial lakes like Redfish, Alturas, Pettit, Yellow Belly and Stanley.

A hike that will take your breath away — in more ways than one — is the hike to Alice Lake.

It's not a walk in the park. It's a little more than five miles one way. And its major climb switchbacks up a talus slope that bakes in the midday heat.

All told, you'll chug up 1,600 feet over the entire trek.

But you won't regret it when you see Alice, which sits beneath the craggy El Capitan.

But then, the journey is just as gorgeous.

You'll cross a bridge past a pretty little waterfall as you near the lake.

Even the two ponds just below the lake sparkle like jewels amidst gnarled lodgepole pines.

From Alice, hardy hikers or backpackers can cross over Snowside Pass with a nice view of Twin Lakes. It's another five miles from Alice to Toxaway Lake.

The pass is typically blocked by snow in early summer, so if you wait until then check with the Forest Service before you attempt it.

To access the lakes, drive 43 miles north of Ketchum on Highway 75 or 18 miles south of Stanley to the turnoff for Pettit Lake. Follow the road 1.5 miles to a four-way junction. Turn right, cross a bridge and stay on this road until you come to the Tin Cup hikers' transfer camp on the north side of Pettit Lake.

Small herds, big animals

Despite fewer numbers, hunters should see larger deer and elk

By Andrew Weeks
Times-News writer

The deer and elk population might be down in some areas, but those who venture into the hills might see larger animals this season, according to hunters and Fish and Game officials.

"We expect deer and elk to be very healthy this fall," Randy Smith, regional wildlife biologist for Fish and Game, said. "Antler growth should have been above average, considering a wet spring and the good habitat conditions we had this summer."

With the archery hunt under way, Jeff Frost, owner of Intermountain Taxidermy & Worldwide Adventures in Twin Falls, said his shop has already started its busy season.

"All the reports of deer and elk that I've been getting is that it is phenomenal," Frost said. "The size of animals should be really good this year."

Frost, like Smith, credits Mother Nature, saying that south-central Idaho this year had all the right conditions — springtime temperatures, amount of snowfall and amount of feed — to produce antler growth.

"We do expect to see some big animals this year," John Howard, manager of Sportsman Warehouse in Twin Falls, said. Howard's store, along with Frost and other area sponsors, hosts a Bucks and Bulls contest every year. He said he expects the same number of racks to be entered into the contest this year as last year — about 200, he said — but anticipates bigger racks.

A tent made for all seasons

It's not lightweight. It doesn't pack super small. Indeed, the three-person Eureka Tundraline has few sexy features. But the tent — which is touted as warm, waterproof, and easy to set up — is out of the ordinary in that it has a rain fly permanently affixed to its tent body.

To set it up, you simply add the two pre-bent A-frame poles, stake it down, and climb inside. There is no extra rain fly to drape over the top and attach. The process took just a couple minutes in my test.

Eureka (www.eurekatent.com) markets the Tundraline, which costs $299.99, as a shelter for paddlers. It was designed and tested by Cliff Jacobson, an outdoors writer, wilderness guide and long-distance canoeist.

Quoted in a press release, Jacobson touts the Tundraline as the "roomiest, most rain-proof and easiest-to-pitch tent I have ever used."

Take or leave Jacobson's testimonial, as he obviously has a stake in the business of this tent. But I found most of Jacobson's claims to be accurate. He continues: "The Tundraline sets up fast — less than three minutes alone! — and it holds firm in gale force winds."

Jacobson — known for his canoe expeditions in Canada and Minnesota's Boundary Waters — notes that the tent's double-wall construction means it can be set up in the rain without soaking the interior. This can be valuable if you're pitching a tent during a downpour.

Beyond paddling, the tent is made for year-round use, including car camping and on winter trips. It has adequate ventilation, but with no windows and polyester walls and fly it may be too warm for hot summer nights.

The Tundraline's floor plan measures about 6.5 x 8 feet, and the ceiling is 4 feet high — room enough for three adults. There are two doors and vestibules for stowing gear.

Packed up, the tent weighs a hefty 12 pounds, negating its use for backpacking but sitting fine — where it was designed to be — in the bottom of a canoe coursing into wilderness deep and unknown.

FORGOTTEN FISH

Brook trout introduced long ago in Alaska still around

By Kate Golden
Juneau Empire

JUNEAU, Alaska — Ninety-two years ago, Juneau's first hatchery manager stuck a bunch of Colorado brook trout in the newly created Salmon Creek Reservoir to see what would happen. Their descendants are still living on bugs and swimming around in Juneau's drinking water up there — a gold-tinged, pink-spotted, tasty little history lesson.

The brookies date back to Alaska's earliest shoot-from-the-hip style of fishery management. These days, geneticists and pathologists review stocking plans for potential problems between introduced and native species. And trout stocking is no longer common in Southeast Alaska.

In contrast, territorial fish-stocking efforts were pretty straightforward. As Juneau Flyfishing Goods owner Brad Elfers put it, "They thought that any lake that didn't have fish in it should have fish in it."

Their technique? "Put them everywhere and see what sticks," said Elfers.

And before the territorial Legislature got involved and started putting major dollars into salmon, the rage was trout. Snippets

"You can go to Sheep Creek and catch dollyies until your arms fall off."

from old news stories, compiled 30 years ago for the Empire by historian Bob DeArmond, offer a glimpse of Juneau's trout-crazed hatchery program in the early 20th century.

• In 1917, A. Joseph Sprague — the first hatchery manager here — got 150,000 brook trout eggs from a federal hatchery in Colorado shipped up on a steamer. He grew them into fry at a small hatchery in Thane and released them in May in the Salmon Creek reservoir, Lower Annex Lake, Dewey Lake and Long Lake near Skagway.

• Aug. 9, 1917: "It is reported that the small trout planted in Salmon Creek dam and in the two lakes at Annex Creek are doing much better than was expected," noted the newspaper, which was named The Alaska Daily Empire at the time.

That could just as well be said of today's brook trout. The Alaska Department of Fish and Game has sampled the Salmon Creek fish for diseases, but doesn't keep track of the population, said state pathologist Ted Meyers.

"It's forgotten, so to speak," he said.

They could be in other lakes or creeks as well. Through at least 1932, Sprague and the Alaska Fish and Game Club "liberated," as one news item put it, thousands of trout fry into Lawson and Koweek creeks on Douglas Island, the Treadwell Ditch, Nevada Creek, Gold Creek (before it was directed into a concrete channel), Auke Lake, "several smaller lakes in the Mendenhall Valley," and other spots.

Apparently, the attempts didn't always work out.

• Jan. 2, 1919: Sprague and company add 20,000 more brook trout in Gold Creek "to replace the trout previously planted but which were washed out by the Gold Creek flood last September," DeArmond's notes read.

Brook trout aren't really trout. They're char, in the same family of salmonids as Dolly Vardens. Their skin is tinged golden and pink. They have dull green spots like dollyies, interspersed with the odd fuschia spot. They have rust-colored fins and orange flesh. And they like to bite.

"Brookies and cutthroats are considered kind of reckless feeders," said Elfers.

Especially these fish, which he guessed have little to eat save bugs, leeches and each other.

As a result, the fishing can be excellent, Elfers said, though unlikely to fill the freezer. In one afternoon of fishing, you could fill up a gallon-sized bag. The odd whopper may lurk, too; fly fisherman Mike Cole, who works at Elfers' shop, said his father caught a 2-foot brookie about 15 years ago.

Despite the good fishing, the reservoir is no hot spot for locals, Elfers and Cole said. It's a pain to get there, about 3.5 miles with an extra-steep finish and no real path to the lake. Other fishing spots are a lot easier to reach.

"You can go to Sheep Creek and catch dollyies until your arms fall off," Cole added.

Still, these expert fly fishermen sometimes send up people who are itching to cast dry flies. Elfers suggested a leech pattern on a fly rod, or any shiny spinner on a casting reel. The best fishing, he's heard, is at the far end of the lake. The truly inspired and energetic would bring an inflatable raft.

Shoot sporting clays at Jerome Gun Club

Come visit the Jerome Gun Club, which will hold a sporting clays shoot on Saturday.

This is a 100-target event. If you have never shot sporting clays at Jerome Gun Club, your first 50 targets are free. Cost is $20 for adults, $14 for juniors under age 18. There is a $5 charge for non-members.

Sign up at 9 a.m., shooting begins at 10 a.m.

The club is located 11 miles north of the junction of Highway 93 and I-84 at mile marker 64.

For more information: Mike at 539-4814.

See vintage snowmobiles at Stanley Expo

Vintage Snowmobile of Idaho will host the fifth annual Fall Vintage Show, Swap Meet and Snowmobile Expo from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 12, at the grass field next to Mt. Village Chevron on Idaho Highway 21 in Stanley.

Come see vintage sleds, promotions from several Idaho dealers, and new products, including 2010 machines. The swap meet will host current and vintage sleds. A representative from the Idaho State Snowmobile Association will be on hand to discuss wilderness proposals, backcountry issues, snowmobile access and more.

The Salmon River Snowmobile Club will host a food booth. Preferred lodging rates are available.

Sun Valley Gun Club schedules event

The Sun Valley Gun Club will hold a sporting clays Fun Shoot on Saturday, Sept. 12. Cost is $35 and includes 100 targets, lunch and prizes for first-, second- and third-place shooters.

Registration begins at 9 a.m., shooting begins at 10 a.m.

The club is located 1.5 miles east of Sun Valley Lodge, and offers trap, double trap, wobble trap, skeet, duck tower, 5-stand and sporting clays.

Expert instructors, beginners welcome. Open daily from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. (last shooters at 3 p.m.).

Mentor hunter Mike Jaskowski, center, and his dog Lucy end a successful day of hunting with youth waterfowl hunters Garret, 13, and Tyler, 15, in 2008.

The Idaho Department of Fish and Game is offering a youth pheasant hunt and workshop at the Niagara Springs Wildlife Management Area on Oct. 3

The workshop begins at 8:30 a.m. for registration. Participants will be treated to a day of clay target shooting, learning about pheasants and their habitat, and will then be taken on a pheasant hunt by an adult mentor and their dog.

The pheasant hunt is limited to the first 30 youth between 10 and 15 years old who call the Magic Valley Regional Fish and Game Office. Participants must be accompanied by an adult and need to have taken the Hunter Education class.

Shotguns, ammunition and a noon meal will be provided for participants. For more information on the program: the regional office at 324-4359.

Steelhead season begins in Idaho

Times-News

In the mood to catch big fish? Good thing it's September.

Fall steelhead season opened on the Snake River and other regional waters — the Salmon River, the Little Salmon River and the Snake River downstream from Hells Canyon Dam — on Tuesday and runs through Dec. 31.

All anglers, including catch-and-release, must have a valid 2009 fishing license and steelhead permit. Statewide limits for steelhead are three per day, nine in possession, and 20 for the season, except for the Clearwater River system where the limits are two fish per day, six in possession and 20 for the season. Salmon and steelhead anglers must stop fishing when the possession limit is reached.

Anglers must use barbless hooks, and can keep only hatchery steelhead marked with a clipped adipose fin. All other steelhead must be released unharmed immediately. Open waters for steelhead include:

• Salmon River from its mouth upstream to the posted boundary 100 yards downstream from the Sawtooth Fish Hatchery weir, near the town of Stanley.

• Little Salmon River from its mouth upstream to the U.S. Highway 95 bridge near Smokey Boulder Road.

• Snake River from the Washington state line at the confluence of the Snake and Clearwater rivers upstream to Hells Canyon Dam.

• Clearwater River: Mainstem and Middle Fork Clearwater River from its mouth upstream to Clear Creek.

• North Fork Clearwater River from its mouth upstream to Dworshak Dam.

• South Fork Clearwater

River from its mouth upstream to the confluence of American and Red Rivers.

Boundary Waters on the Snake River between Idaho and Oregon or Washington: An angler with a 2009 Idaho fishing license and steelhead permit may fish where the river forms the boundary between Idaho and Oregon or Washington, but may not fish from the shoreline, including wading, and may not fish in sloughs or tributaries on the Oregon or Washington side. An angler may have only the limit allowed by one license regardless of the number of licenses the angler holds.

While some numbers might be down, for the most part deer hunting in south-central Idaho should be good this year, with bucks producing larger racks, according to hunters and Idaho Department of Fish and Game officials.

Size

"Hopefully we'll have the same quantity, but a better quality," Howard said of the contest, which runs until Dec. 31.

While not giving away any hunting secrets, Frost said the southern units, especially units 54 and 55 in Cassia County, are prime deer ground for both archery and rifle hunting.

"Deer hunting in these units have been some of the best in the region over the past three or four years," Smith added, noting that he expects the trends to continue this season. According to December 2008 estimates, he said, about 8,900 deer ranged in the units.

In other areas, aerial surveys conducted by Fish and Game in February 2008 — the department conducts the surveys every three years, Smith said — showed 10,500 mule deer in the Bennett Hills north of Fairfield. While fewer than expected, the department made adjustments to the hunt last year to increase population growth, Smith said. Population this year was holding steady, about "30 buck to every 100 does."

The elk population in the Smoky Mountains range — units 43, 44 and 48 north of the Bennett Hills — has declined. Winter count in 2008 was 2,738 — 23 percent lower than in 2003, he said. More elk in the area have been moving to units 39 and 45. Though wolves are likely contributors, Smith said his department has put radio transmitters on a number of animals to track migratory patterns. It also has made adjustments to the hunt to produce more animals, he said.

Unit 49 in the Pioneer range, however, has been holding stable, Smith said.

One star in this red triangle is an impostor

Go outside around 9:30 p.m., and look straight up. You'll see the so-called Summer Triangle of white and blue-white stars. Go outside around 6 a.m., face due east, and look nearly straight up. You'll see a similar-sized triangle of red stars.

The uppermost star of the "red triangle" is Aldebaran, the bright red eye of Taurus, the Bull. It's one of the brightest stars in the sky, only 65 light years away. Its red color betrays its temperature of 6900 degrees Fahrenheit, about 3100 degrees cooler than our yellow sun. If Aldebaran were the same size as the sun, its cooler temperature would make it dimmer. But it's 44 times wider, and its enormously larger surface radiates 150 times more light.

The bottom star of the

red triangle is Betelgeuse, slightly brighter than Aldebaran, and a shade redder due to its cooler, 5800 degree temperature.

Recently, astronomers reported that Betelgeuse's diameter had shrunk by 15 percent in the past 16 years, although that's not quite as dramatic as it sounds. Betelgeuse is an extremely bloated star, so that its outer layers are nearly as thin as the best laboratory vacuums. So a pretty small physical change in the density of the gas at its edges can create a large change in Betelgeuse's size without a large rearrangement of its constituent gas.

SKY CALENDAR THROUGH THURSDAY

The left star — faintest of the three — is the reason why the red triangle appears nowhere in astronomy texts. It's not a star at all, but Mars.

For the next five months it will brighten, as Earth overtakes its slower neighbor. But by then, in late January, Mars's eastward motion against the stars will have left its two red companions far behind.

Glamping' offers an upscale take on the great outdoors

By Lori Aratani
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The idea of "roughing it" has taken on a new meaning.

The Coleman outdoors company sells air mattresses with built-in alarm clocks and night lights and tents outfitted with "integrated lighting systems" and auto-roll windows. For those who can't bear to be unplugged for any length of time, DirecTV has a portable satellite, and Kampgrounds of America offers wireless Internet at most of its campsites.

And for a small fee, employees at Little Bennett Regional Park in Clarksburg, Md., will set up a fully furnished campsite, complete with tent that sleeps four, chairs, propane stove and lantern. Marshmallows are optional.

With fewer people participating in outdoor activities, retailers and park officials are doing everything they can to coax them into the great outdoors. Hard-core campers may sniff at the level of hand-holding — air mattresses equipped with built-in speakers for MP3 players — but some environmentalists and outdoors advocates applaud the efforts. That's because they worry that a population more familiar with Google than the Grand Canyon ultimately could hurt conservation efforts.

"We're out of balance," said Cheryl Charles, an environmental educator. "A lot of young parents and teachers didn't grow up with nature-based experiences. We're not against technology. But when kids spend so much time hooked to (an) electronic umbilical cord — things have to change."

In 1988, there were 282 million visits to national parks. By 2008, the number

The Spletzer and Sliker families share a picnic table at Little Bennett Regional Park in Clarksburg, Md., where you can pay to have a tent set up before you arrive and pick up a stove and lantern at the check-in station. 'Camper-ready camping' is seen by some as a way to get people to engage more readily with the outdoors.

had dropped to a little less than 275 million, according to statistics from the National Park Service. Researchers Oliver R.W. Pergams and Patricia Zaradic found that the drop in outdoor activity coincides with the increase in time people spend on their computers. In 1987, the average person spent zero hours on the Internet. By 2003, it was 174 hours.

"We may be seeing evidence of a fundamental shift away from people's appreciation of nature to 'videophilia,' which we here define as 'the new human tendency to focus on sedentary activities involving electronic media,'" the pair said in a 2008 study that examined trends in outdoor recreation.

Richard Louv, author of "Last Child in the Woods," who with Charles co-founded the Children & Nature Network, which promotes outdoor activity for families, dubbed the phenomenon "nature deficit disorder."

To compete, retailers and park officials are scrambling to make camping and other outdoor activities easier and more comfortable.

That's why outdoor outfitter Gander Mountain offers a portable battery-operated mosquito repellent system in forest-friendly camouflage colors. This summer, rangers at Shenandoah National Park offered weekend seminars for camping rookies on how to pitch a tent, build a campfire and plan a proper camp-friendly menu.

Some say such plush amenities go against the true spirit of the outdoors. It's not camping, some sniff, but "glamping" — as in a camping experience short on hardship but long on glamour.

Retailers say it's the reality of the market.

"There's an expectation of a certain level of comfort or people won't go outside," said Jeff Willard, senior vice president of global marketing and new product development for Coleman. "It needs to be comfortable. Otherwise, people are going to stay inside and do Facebook."

Mike Gast, vice president of communications for Kampgrounds of America, said today's consumers expect more than just a clean tent. They expect to be entertained.

"You have to offer the all-inclusive camping experience," he said. "Barbecues, ice cream socials. Some of our sites even have climbing walls."

Such amenities seem to work. The promise of hassle-free camping lured Merlyn Perez, of Rockville, Md., out of her home to Little Bennett Regional Park for a two-day camping trip during the Fourth of July weekend. Perez prefers hotels and spas to sleeping bags and mosquitoes. Still, she wanted her daughter Lelani to have a taste of what it was like to sleep outdoors. She said she was pleasantly surprised at how easy camping could be.

"It was awesome," she said. "They even had an ice cream social for the kids."

A poll released last month by Timex found that many respondents said they didn't have enough time to spend outdoors. But if the outdoors experience is fun and appealing, Charles said, folks will find time.

"I would not be critical of 'glamping,'" she said. "There's not one right way to reconnect with nature. If some people are resistant and need a cot, that's just fine."

FISHING REPORT

The boat ramp at Hot Springs Landing is no longer usable. The mud flat is exposed below the ramp.

Perch are being caught at Myrtle Point and Moonstone off the docks. Smaller perch are being caught off the dam face. The trout fishing is steady but slow at the upper end and at the dam. The fish are large — average about 16 inches. Bass fishing is pretty good right now off the rocks on the east side of the reservoir. Easiest to fish from a boat, but if you're willing to walk, you can get there on foot too.

Little Camas and Mountain Home reservoirs in Elmore County will be dry or nearly so by late summer, leading Fish and Game to open both reservoirs to fish salvage into the foreseeable future.

• For more information regarding the salvage order, contact Fish and Game's Magic Valley office at 324-4359 or the Fish and Game Southwest Region office at 465-8465.

• Each reservoir's fish population is expected to die as water levels drop.

• Daily bag, possession and size limits were removed on both Little Camas Reservoir and Mountain Home Reservoir on July 21. The salvage order will expire on Nov. 30.

* Licensed anglers may take fish from both reservoirs using any method except firearms, explosives, chemicals or electric current. After Nov. 30, standard fishing methods, bag limits, and possession limits will be reinstated.

Devils Lake offers prime Ore. trout fishing

By Mark Morical
The (Bend) Bulletin

BEND, Ore. — Some places just have that certain effect on anglers, providing a bond with nature that can far outweigh the thrill of catching fish.

Central Oregon's Devils Lake, with its stunning, colorful water, is one of those spots. But the fishing on the small lake just northwest of Mount Bachelor is not to be underestimated.

The clear, turquoise water sparkled in the morning sun as Redmond's Joe White cast out into the middle of Devils Lake recently.

"This is almost like therapy to me," White said. "I come out here and I'm able to sort out some of my problems. If I've got things that are bothering me, I can come up here and take my mind off it."

"When I do that, sometimes the answers come to me, and I'm not even looking for it."

And the fish come as well. Using rainbow PowerBait, White landed four shiny rainbow trout in about 20 minutes.

"The fish," White said, "are a bonus."

Devils Lake is a small (23 acres), nutrient-poor water body, and one would assume that fishing is just an afterthought at the lake, where camping, kayaking and hiking are popular — most South Sister climbers start their journey at Devils Lake. But anglers can actually find frequent success for hatchery rainbow trout on the lake, located about 30 miles southwest of Bend.

The Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife stocks Devils Lake five times throughout the spring and summer for a total of 5,000 hatchery rainbow trout each year.

"Typically, we do get carryover (fish) from year to year," said Brett Hodgson, fish biologist for the Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife in Bend. "So there are the 8- to 9-inchers, and this time of year you could run into some 12- to 16-inch fish from earlier stockings."

From the west bank of Devils Lake, White continued fishing. He was trying for his fifth trout, which would give him his limit for the day.

He cast his PowerBait to the middle of the lake near a dark, rocky shelf where he said rainbows like to congregate.

The trout in Devils Lake are not trophies by any means, but they are well worth the effort.

"Some of these fish down here I caught are really, really firm, really good biters," White said, pointing to his stringer of four 10- to 12-inch rainbows.

Upland game seasons open around Idaho

Times-News

Fall upland hunting started Tuesday, with seasons for mourning doves, forest grouse and sandhill cranes as well as cottontail rabbits and snowshoe hares.

Shooting hours for doves and sandhill cranes are one-half hour before sunrise to sunset.

Dove limits are 10 daily with 20 in possession after the first day. The Idaho Department of Fish and Game has eliminated controlled hunts for sandhill cranes, selling over-the-counter tags. The limit is two birds per day and nine per season. Tags cost $15 for residents and nonresidents alike.

A federal migratory bird harvest information program validation is required for dove and crane hunting — $1.75 for residents and $4.75 for nonresidents.

The season for forest grouse, which includes ruffed, spruce and dusky (blue) grouse, also opened

Tuesday through Dec. 31. The daily limit is four, whether all of one or mixed species, and eight in possession. Only a valid hunting license is required for hunting forest grouse.

Seasons for cottontail rabbit and snowshoe hares runs through Feb. 28 for cottontails and through March 31 for hares. The daily bag limit for both is eight, with 16 in possession after the first day.

The early fall general turkey season begins Sept. 15, and seasons for sage-grouse, quail and partridge begin Sept. 19; sharp-tailed grouse season opens Oct. 1.

All hunters need a valid 2009 Idaho hunting license. In addition, a separate permit is required for hunting sage and sharp-tailed grouse. Turkey hunters also will need tags.

Jerome P&Z member suggests county take back impact zone

By John Plestina
Times-News writer

JEROME — Jerome County Planning and Zoning Commission Vice Chairman Doug Suter suggested Monday that the county take back the city of Jerome's impact zone during a discussion about proposed rezoning near the Jerome County Airport.

Controversial because it would restrict private land use and preclude the future subdivision of farmland for residential development, proposed rezoning near the

Jerome and Hazelton airports would include restrictive overlay zones in an area largely zoned for agricultural use, which limits construction to one home per 40 acres.

The proposal came in response to a potential loss of airport funding from the Federal Aviation Administration and state sources.

Suter suggested eliminating the city impact zone as a way to curb development around the Jerome airport, a move landowners in the area oppose.

"City impact needs to disappear," Suter said.

The city impact zone is an area between Jerome's current eastern boundary and U.S. Highway 93, and includes the area potentially affected by an airport overlay zone.

Still under county governance after it was granted to the city several years ago, the impact zone is forecasted for development and future city annexation. Despite Suter's suggestion, the county can't simply rescind the impact zone.

Idaho Code requires that both the county and city negotiate impact zone changes. Another option would be for the county to take the matter to court.

None of the three county commissioners would comment on the issue Tuesday, and Assistant City Administrator Micah Austin said the city was not aware of Suter's comments.

CAFOs and preservation zones bring compromise

By John Plestina
Times-News writer

JEROME — While preservation zones and confined-animal feeding operations have nothing in common, they intersected Tuesday as the Jerome County Commission considered a new CAFO ordinance.

An existing preservation ordinance seeped into discussion of new ordinance to address CAFOs and liquid-waste treatment lagoons because setback requirements would be different in some cases where a CAFO is located near a site the preservation ordinance pertains to. "If anybody has an old rock house on their property, that's a preservation zone," said Planning and Zoning Administrator Art Brown.

The designation also applies to gravesites and archeological sites.

While setbacks expected to increase from 300 feet to 1,000 feet from residences met no resistance, the commission discussed whether a 1,000-foot setback from the Snake River Canyon rim is sufficient to allow a lagoon or waste storage. There is currently

Jerome Co. works on urbanization definition

By John Plestina
Times-News writer

JEROME — Jerome County Planning and Zoning Administrator Art Brown's marching orders for July 20 were to define what constitutes urbanization of agricultural areas and draft a permanent ordinance that sets new standards.

County commissioners discussed his proposed findings Tuesday.

While the term urbanization conjures up images of city sprawl, the county is trying to regulate clusters of temporary family and employee housing, including travel trailers, on farms and ranches.

The draft of the proposed ordinance came in response to what some people have called abuse of the existing ordinance.

A-1 zoning allows agricultural uses and one residence per 40 acres, but questions loom over guesthouses, apartments above garages and placements of mobile homes and travel trailers.

The commission approved a 182-day emergency ordinance on July 20 that temporarily addressed some of the issues until a permanent ordinance is approved. It repealed the previous zoning ordinance's definition of urbanization for 182 days and redefined urbanization as the construction or placement of any additional temporary or permanent residential dwelling.

Some points discussed

Tuesday included that density in the A1 zone should not exceed 10 family or employee dwellings per acre.

"My opinion is you allow up to three (houses or trailers) and put a standard on it. After that, end of story," said Commission Chairman Charlie Howell.

A consensus was to follow Howell's advice and allow a maximum of three dwellings for family members and to not regulate employee housing. Exceptions would require special use permits.

SIRCOMM donates equipment to schools

During an Aug. 11 meeting of the Southern Idaho Regional Communication Center's Joint Powers Board several items were declared to be surplus equipment. As a result SIRCOMM was able to donate the surplus equipment to several area school districts, according to a recent news release from the area 911 dispatch center.

The Castleford School District received a welding bench, Hansen School District received welding screens and two welding helmets, Dietrich School District received a welder and accessories and a metal band saw went to the Shoshone School district.

"The band saw was greatly appreciated and needed," read a thank-you note to SIRCOMM from the Shoshone School District FAA Chapter. "It will be used for many FAA activities, projects and competitions."

"I'm excited we were able to find a use for this equipment with our local students," said SIRCOMM Director John Moore. "It's gratifying, when possible, to meet the needs in our community schools and other agencies with items we can no longer utilize."

All recipients were determined to have current vocational agriculture classes and a need for the equipment. The four schools that met the criteria were then entered into a random drawing to determine which items they would receive.

Acid-reflux medication may lead to anemia

DEAR DR. GOTT: My significant other's health problems began six months ago with severe shortness of breath and an upset stomach occurring as soon as he ate anything. This progressed to fluid buildup and pain in the ankles, knees, wrists, hands and elbows. Each day, a different joint would be involved. He was about to finish a semester in college and tried to put off seeing a doctor, but things became so bad, he gave in. He was immediately admitted to the hospital in a wheelchair.

He was eventually diagnosed with iron-deficiency anemia. He had become dehydrated, and his hemoglobin level was so low that he was given two transfusions of blood. Thinking that he had a severe internal bleed, doctors began testing with endoscopies everywhere, and he ended up with a nine-day stay at the hospital. Once released, he was put on iron supplements.

After finally speaking to one of the doctors at the hospital who took a real interest, he sorted through all the records and found my companion had been taking prescription acid-reflux medication for about five years, medication that can inhibit iron from being absorbed. Bingo!

Since this has happened, we have heard from several of our neighbors, friends and acquaintances who have been on prescription acid-reflux medicine for a period of time and who have also been diagnosed with iron-deficiency anemia. They, too, have had to endure long-term testing. Have you heard of this before? Or has the problem just popped up overnight?

DEAR READER: Iron-deficiency anemia is a condition in which blood lacks adequate amounts of healthy red blood cells, the same cells that carry oxygen to the body's tissues and provide energy. Without significant iron, the body cannot produce

Jerome County budget adopted

By John Plestina
Times-News writer

JEROME — County commissioners adopted Jerome County's nearly $10.7 million 2009-10 budget Tuesday with no testimony for or against the new budget at a public hearing.

The proposed total budget calls for $10,670,459 in spending, an increase of $33,226 over last year. The total amount to be raised by taxation is $5,171,206, less than 48.5 percent of the total amount needed.

County officials say a small tax hike is inevitable because real estate market values decreased.

Chief Deputy Auditor Tracee McKim told the Times-News in August that total valuations decreased $437,318 for a revenue decrease of .043 percent, translating to a tax increase of 40 cents per $1,000 of assessed valuation.

The new budget includes no salary increases for elected officials, a 2 percent increase for county employees other than the sheriff's department and an 8 percent increase in the cost of health insurance benefits for employees.

For the sheriff's department, the county is increasing the pay scale by 6.21 percent for each of the next two fiscal years to bring pay in line with other counties of similar size. The second year is subject to review depending on anticipated budget restraints.

A new position for misdemeanor probation was added to the new budget due to an increasing caseload.

The county is also adding a full-time election position to comply with the new election consolidation bill recently passed by the Legislature. It becomes effective in January 2011.

Filling that position early is a matter of getting ready, said Clerk and Auditor Michelle Emerson.

"What we are doing is the board (county commission) is allowing us to take a proactive stance so we can make sure that all of our district maps are in line so we will be ready to rock 'n' roll in January 2011," Emerson said.

The state will provide funding for the position beginning in October 2010.

"At this moment the city does not have a defined legal area of impact. That's something we will be discussing with the county in the next couple of weeks," he said.

Proposed rezoning around the more rural Hazelton Municipal Airport also met opposition on Monday.

Hazelton Planning and Zoning Chairman Gale Keen presented a letter signed by the five-member city P&Z requesting that the county remove the Hazelton airport from the rezoning proposal.

Keen cited that the city's current planning and zoning ordinance addresses airport concerns and that county rezoning could lead to interference in Hazelton's efforts to foster development near the unpaved airstrip used primarily by crop dusters.

"If would be a boondoggle to try to expand that airport. We're tickled with what we have," Keen said.

County P&Z Chairman Jack Nelson questioned Keen about a possible future residential development near the airport, where homeowners might complain about crop dusters taking off at 5 a.m.

The county P&Z commission will invite landowners and airport board members to separate work sessions for each airport in an attempt to reach compromises on proposed rezoning and counterproposals during P&Z meetings in September and October.

The P&Z commission will make rezoning recommendations to the Jerome County Commission this fall.

'Fairyland' owner's magic wand doesn't thwart CAFO expansion

By John Plestina
Times-News writer

JEROME — The lone opponent of a confined animal feeding operation application brought before the Jerome County Planning and Zoning Commission Monday claimed odors associated with the dairy interfere with her "Fairyland Park" facility that offers programs for children.

The P&Z commission voted unanimously to recommend the Jerome County Commission approve a proposed expansion of the Si-Ellen Dairy from 10,171 cows to a permitted maximum of 14,213. The proposal includes a new animal waste lagoon.

Lyndon Jackson, manager and caretaker of Reichard Ranch, which includes "Fairyland Park," presented a letter from Gene Reichard opposing the expansion and citing odor issues associated with the dairy, which is located a mile from the property southeast of Jerome. That letter alleged a "revolting and unbearable" stench from the dairy.

Reichard did not attend the meeting.

When contacted Tuesday, she said she was not aware the P&Z commission had voted to recommend approval to the county.

Reichard called more than 14,000 cows excessive and said she wishes to protest the decision. "I have so much at stake here," she said.

Engineer Matt Thompson, of AGtec of Twin Falls, represented Si-Ellen Dairy. He said the Idaho Department of Agriculture approved the design for the expansion.

P&Z Chairman Jack Nelson said the dairy has met all state and county permitting requirements.

P&Z Administrator Art Brown complimented Si-Ellen for including safeguards for the environment and for building a constructed wetland.

Si-Ellen owner Mike Roth told the Times-News his family has owned the dairy since 1995.

"We're real proud of what we do. We have a real clean facility," he said. "A lot of our family members live on the farm."

No residents are located less than a mile from the dairy.

Fairyland Park has offered an observatory, marionette theater and classes in gardening, arts and crafts and music for more than 60 years.

Continued from Outdoors 4 enough hemoglobin, a component in red blood cells that allows oxygenated blood to be carried throughout the body. The result is fatigue, weakness, shortness of breath, poor appetite, irritability, a pale or ashen color to the skin and more.

The most common reasons for this condition are blood loss, a lack of iron in the diet and an inability to absorb iron. Afflictions such as Crohn's or celiac disease affect the intestine's ability to absorb nutrients from digested food. And some medications, such as those taken for combating excess stomach acid, are known to interfere with iron absorption. Thus, I'm quite surprised your partner's primary-care physician, who prescribed the medication, was in the dark. Diagnostic testing to identify possible underlying causes includes endoscopy, colonoscopy and ultrasound (for women). The endoscopy you refer to was to discover a possible bleed from an ulcer or hiatal hernia. A colonoscopy zeros in on possible bleeding from the colon. Ultrasound is ordered to rule out uterine fibroids or to identify other causes of heavy menstrual bleeding.

Unfortunately for your partner, he was late being diagnosed and his quality of life suffered dramatically. Fortunately, he finally found someone who took the time to get a complete history to include his medications and the physician made the connection. At long last, he is on the right track.

Marjorie Pearl (Stone) (Gill) Clark

GOODING — Marjorie Pearl (Stone) (Gill) Clark, 96, formerly of Gooding, passed away peacefully in her sleep on Tuesday, Sept. 1, 2009, at an assisted living facility (Tenabo Homes) in Meridian.

Marjorie was born Sept. 13, 1912, in Haddam, Kan., on her parent's farm to Minnie Bell (Harris) and John Orr Stone. She moved to the Stone homestead in Leon, Iowa, when she was 9 months old along with her parents and five siblings. She was the sixth child of nine children. Marjorie lost her mother when she was 14 years old. She then moved to Detroit, Mich., to live with her older sister and husband and to care for their two children.

She married Winfield Henry Gill on Sept. 17, 1934, and to this marriage were born two children, a son, Brian in September 1941; and Kathleen (Kay) Evelyn on Aug. 7, 1945. Marjorie later divorced and then moved to Hagerman in June of 1946, where she met a (widower) Herbert S. Clark of Gooding. Herbert and Marjorie then married in December of 1946. Herbert had two sons from his previous marriage, Frederick and Joe. These two combined families became happily united. Marjorie was very active in the Methodist Church and loved singing. She was also involved with Eastern Star, Bridge Club and was a Cub Scout leader for many years. She was an avid artist, displaying and selling her painting both in Idaho and countries she traveled to. She taught her children how to darn, mend, sew, iron and cook.

She was preceded in death by her parents; seven siblings; one son, Fred; and her husband, Herbert. She is survived by three of her four children, Joe (Pat) Clark of Palmyra, Va., Brian (Jennifer) Clark of Gooding and Kay (Ken) Baumgartner of Boise. She is also survived by 12 grandchildren; 24 great-grandchildren; one younger brother, George Stone of Kansas City, Kan.; and many nieces, nephews and dear friends.

Arrangements are being made through Demaray Funeral Service in Gooding. The funeral will be held at 1 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 5, at Demaray Funeral Chapel on Main Street. Friends may attend a viewing from 6 to 8 p.m. Friday, Sept. 4, at Demaray Funeral Chapel. Following the service Saturday, burial will be at the Elmwood Cemetery in Gooding.

The family extends a special thanks for the love and care given to Marjorie by Tenabo Homes of Meridian (especially to Annie) and the Hart 'n Home Hospice Team.

Bunny Sue Hieb

BURLEY — Bunny Sue Hieb, 66, died Tuesday, Sept. 1, 2009, at the Cassia Regional Medical Center in Burley of an extended illness.

She was born Nov. 17, 1942, in Hoboken, Ga., to (the late) William J. Hanchey and Maida Hinson Hanchey, and was the sixth of their 16 children.

To mourn her passing, she leaves her loving mother, Maida Hanchey of Twin Falls; her three children, Michael Hieb of Boise, Karla (Les) Benzel of Foxboro, Wis., and Mary Myron of Gilbert, Ariz.; and her grandchildren, Michael, Jeffery, Nicholas, Timothy and Kierra. She will also be missed by her brothers, Gary (Judy) Hanchey, Johnny (Twila) Hanchey, Perry (Mary) Hanchey, William (Jackie) Hanchey and Robert (Sue) Hanchey; and her sisters, Billie (Charles) Park, Carrol (Rupert) Buntin, Loretta (Nellis) Burkhart, Bobbi (Terry) Holmen, Linda Schoepp, Vicki (Tom) Collins, Ileta (Scott) Jensen, Rhonda Boisvert, Elizabeth (Rick) Reinstein and Romana Crandall.

A memorial service will be at 3 p.m. Friday, Sept. 4, at the Eternal Life Christian Center, 541 Orchard in Twin Falls. Arrangements are under the direction of the Hansen Mortuary Rupert Chapel.

Bart Weston Workman

RICHFIELD — Hard-working, caring and generous to a fault, those traits all describe Bart Workman, but he was more than that. He was a jokester with an infectious laugh. He was an outdoorsman who loved hunting, fishing, camping and, lately, had grown to love rock climbing. He was a huge NASCAR fan and would watch it every chance he got. But most of all, he was a loving father, son, brother, uncle and a great friend.

Bart died unexpectedly while at work Monday, Aug. 31, 2009, at the age of 40.

He was born in Murray, Utah, on Feb. 16, 1969, just one minute behind his twin brother, Art. The family moved to Richfield a few years later, and Bart soon became one of the notorious "Marley" boys who played in the neighborhood and terrorized each other. In between chores, Bart and the others had B-B gun battles, motorbike crashes and hours of great fun. Bart lived in Utah for a time, but most of his adult life was spent working in the mines in Nevada. He loved the work and made a lot of good friends along the way. He had been very happy most recently because of his special friend, Sandi.

Bart is survived by his father, Don Workman; mother, Barbara (Tim) Wilson; sister, Diane Workman; brother, Jeff Workman; twin-brother, Art (Leighann) Workman; children, Gary Workman, Casey Workman, JW, Mary Sue, Dalton, Brianna and Crystalyne; many nieces, nephews and cousins; and numerous foster children. He was preceded in death by his grandparents, Oneida Godwin and Art Sumner, and Weston and Afton Workman; uncles, Gary and Mike Wilson; and cousin, Sarah Sumner.

Bart you left us too soon. We love you and miss you already.

A graveside service will be held at 1 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 5, at the Richfield Cemetery. Following will be a dinner at the Richfield Senior Center. Arrangements are under the direction of Farnsworth Mortuary of Jerome.

Dina Marlene Newberry Goodine

Dina Marlene Newberry Goodine passed away Tuesday, Sept. 1, 2009, in Twin Falls.

She is survived by two sons, Ryan Eugene Cunningham and Kenneth Levon Goodine. She is also survived by her father, Floyd Newberry; and mother, Grace; Newberry; sister, Marla (Fred) Rogers; brother, Greg (Rita) Newberry; sister, Cathy Newberry; brother, Bryan (Christy) Newberry; and numerous nieces, nephews and friends.

Dina had a great love for gardening and reading and a zest for life. Dina always had a smile on her face and loved to do things for others. Her favorite quote to us all was "Peace and Love." She will be greatly missed by all who knew her.

Dina, "Go with Love." A private family service was held under the direction of the Parke's Magic Valley Funeral Home of Twin Falls.

Lee E. Chojnacky

JEROME — Lee E. Chojnacky, 85, of Jerome, passed away Saturday, Aug. 29, 2009, in Jerome.

He was born Nov. 14, 1923, in Roseworth, near Buhl, the son of Richard V. Chojnacky and Bertha Savelberg Chojnacky. When Lee was 5 years old, his family moved to Jerome, where Lee attended school and graduated from Jerome High School in 1941. He served his country in the U.S. Army during World War II and was stationed in Korea. Following an honorable discharge in 1946, he returned to Jerome, where he married Mildred Nutsch on Aug. 20, 1946. They made their home in Jerome on a farm north of town, where they have been for 60 years. They raised nine children.

Lee was a lifetime row crop farmer and grew potatoes, wheat, beans and hay. He irrigated the old-fashioned way with a shovel and corrugates, but did update to siphon tubes and gated pipe. He was able to watch his boys update to wheel lines and center pivots. Lee was a member of the Idaho Potato Growers Association. He enjoyed hunting, fishing and gardening and always helped Mildred with her flowers, especially dahlias and gladiolus that they exhibited at fairs for many years. Lee was a lifelong member of St. Jerome's Catholic Church and a past member of St. Jerome's Holy Name Society. Lee is survived by his wife of 63 years, Mildred Chojnacky of Jerome; three daughters, Carolyn Chojnacky of Jerome, Mary (Chuck) Winn of Boise and Susan (Todd) Schilling of Salt Lake City, Utah; six sons, Ronald (Andrea) Chojnacky of Glenrock, Wyo., David (Cindy) Chojnacky of Falls Church, Va., Michael (Marcia) Chojnacky of Jerome, Steven (Debbie) Chojnacky of Boise, Gerald (Anne) Chojnacky of Jerome and Richard Chojnacky of Jerome. He is also survived by one brother, Alvin (Elizabeth) Chojnacky of Jerome; 16 grandchildren; eight great-grandchildren; and many extended family members and friends. He was preceded in death by his parents; his sister, Mary Lou Stasek; and his brother, Vincent Chojnacky.

A vigil service will be conducted at 7 p.m. Sept. 6, 2009, at St. Jerome's Catholic Church, 216 Second Ave. E. in Jerome, with a visitation beginning at 6 p.m. The funeral Mass will be celebrated at 11 a.m. Monday, Sept. 7, also at St. Jerome's Catholic Church, with Father Ron Wekerle presiding. A graveside committal service with military honors will be held at 9 a.m. Tuesday, Sept. 8, in the Jerome Cemetery, 900 W. Ave. I in Jerome.

Lee's family suggests that memorials be made in Lee's name to the St. Jerome's Catholic Church Building Fund, P.O. Box 169, Jerome, ID 83338. Arrangements are under the care of Farnsworth Mortuary of Jerome.

Lester 'Ed' Joslin

Lester "Ed" Joslin, age 86, passed peacefully away at St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center on Saturday, Aug. 29, 2009, of heart failure.

Ed was born Aug. 10, 1923, in Rogerson, to Lester and Sarah Joslin. Ed spent his first six years in Rogerson and then moved to Filer. He graduated from Filer High School, distinguishing himself in football, boxing and track. He was inducted into the army in November of 1944, spent his basic training in Camp Roberts, Calif., then attended Officer Candidate School in Fort Benning, Ga. He was discharged in September of 1946 as a second lieutenant.

Ed married Dorothy Griff on May 3, 1947, and they had three children. They farmed and raised their family on the Salmon Tract near Hollister. Dorothy passed away Nov. 27, 1976, and Ed's oldest son, Raymond, died on Feb. 16, 1984. Daughter, Shirlee, married Jack Huston of Filer, and they reside in Lakeland, Fla. Son, Karl married Kimberly Roland of Lewiston, and they live on the family farm.

He is preceded in death by four brothers, Ted, Wayne, Raymond and Tom; and one sister, Grace. He is survived by three sisters, Joyce Harding of Seattle, Wash., Jackie Westendorf of Boise and Joanna Aufdencamp of Buhl. Also surviving are Ed's nine grandchildren, Andrea Mohamedbhai of Denver, Colo., Bryan Joslin of Salida, Boise, Erin Joslin of Seattle, Washington and Alex Joslin of Twin Falls. Ed has two great grandchildren: Jason and Eliza Joslin of Salida, Colorado. He was looking forward to the births of two more great grandchildren this winter.

Ed married Rachael Miller of Kimberly in 1979 and enjoyed his expanded family with Rachael's two daughters Lois Cowan of Twin Falls and Linda Mayan of Canada and their children. Rachael passed away on May 31, 2004.

Ed loved to fish, camp, hunt, dance, golf, watch his grandkids' sport events, travel, and meet his friends for morning coffee. He was a member of the Lions Club and the American Legion, serving as Post Commander in 1978. He was a member of Immanuel Lutheran Church, Twin Falls.

A memorial service will be held at 11 a.m. Saturday, Sept. 5, at the Immanuel Lutheran Church, 2055 Filer Ave. E. in Twin Falls, with Pastor Lawrence Vedder officiating. There will be a visitation from 6 to 8 p.m. Friday, Sept. 4, at Parke's Magic Valley Funeral Home. In lieu of flowers, donations may be made to The American Heart Association, 270 S. Orchard St., Suite B, Boise, ID 83705.

Beverly D. Campbell

IDAHO FALLS — Beverly D. Christensen-Campbell, 59, of Idaho Falls, passed away Tuesday, Sept. 1, 2009, at her home. She was under the care of Hospice of Eastern Idaho.

She was born May 25, 1950, in Lamar, Colo., to Paul Allen Oliver and Zelma Brewer Oliver. She lived in Colorado, New Mexico, Arkansas and Idaho. She married D. Bruce Campbell, the love of her life, in 1989, in Twin Falls. She worked in mortgage lending and banking for many years. She was a member of Civitans, HOG, Snake River Bros and ICMS. She loved riding her Harley and was known as "Triker Bev," favored Corvettes and especially loved spending time with her family and friends.

Survivors include her son, David A. (Melanie) Christensen of Pocatello; grandson, Zachary "Zoomer" Christensen; granddaughter, Brooklyn "Little Bit" Christensen; grandson, Nathan 'Bubba' Christensen; brother, Don (Debbie) Bott of Lewiston; and sister, Terry Lapray, Kiowa, Colo. She was preceded in death by her parents, husband and a sister.

A private family service will be held. Arrangements are under the direction of Wood Funeral Home in Idaho Falls. Condolences may be sent to the family online at www.woodfuneralhome.com.

In lieu of flowers, the family suggests donations to the Idaho Falls Civitans Club, "Ride Free!"

Larry Dean Church

WOODLAND, Calif. — Larry Dean Church, age 75, died Tuesday, Sept. 1, 2009, at Woodland Memorial Hospital in Woodland, Calif., after complications from surgery.

Mr. Church is survived by Mary, his loving wife of 54 years; and three children and their spouses, daughter Deanne Wegmann (Steve), son, Dean Church (Lisa) and daughter, Mary Kay Haveman (Mark); seven grandchildren, Nick, Kyle, Stephanie, Kelley, Henry, Bobby and Miranda; his sister, Janet Munn of Twin Falls; brothers, Dick Church of Cheasapeake, Va., and David Church of Las Vegas, Nev.

Larry was born Feb. 13, 1934, in La Junta, Colo. He graduated from Twin Falls High School in 1952. He was a terrific football player, but he was also one of the fastest high hurdlers in the western United States, which earned him a scholarship to the University of Idaho. He received a bachelor's degree in psychology from the University of Idaho in 1956 and a master's degree in psychology from George Washington University.

He was commissioned in the U.S. Air Force in March of 1958. For the next 30 years, he was able to play a role in the events that shaped the world during his life. His career as an Air Force intelligence officer took him and his family all over the world. He held many important positions, including serving two tours in Vietnam and commanding his own wing, the 4513th Tactical Training Group at Nellis Air Force Base. In 1984, he was promoted to brigadier general. His military decorations and awards include the Legion of Merit, Bronze Star Medal, and Air Force Commendation Medal with oak leaf cluster.

Larry retired in 1987 and moved to Woodland, Calif. He was a wonderful husband, father, grandfather and friend. He touched us deeply with his wisdom, wit and generosity. He was an avid golfer, joke teller, writer, reader, traveler and sports enthusiast. He is greatly loved and will be missed by all that knew him.

The funeral will be held at Arlington National Cemetery in the future. Please join us for a celebration of Larry's life from noon to 3 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 6, at the Yolo Fliers Golf and Country Club in Woodland, Calif. In lieu of flowers, donations can be made to the Woodland Food Closet, P.O. Box 803, Woodland, CA 95776.

Health and Human Services Secretary Kathleen Sebelius pauses during a news conference to announce that Pfizer will pay a record $2.3 billion civil and criminal penalty over unlawful prescription drug promotions, Wednesday in Washington. At right is Associate Attorney General Tom Perrelli.

Pfizer to pay record $2.3B penalty for drug promos

By Devlin Barrett
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — Federal prosecutors hit Pfizer Inc. with a record $2.3 billion in fines Wednesday and called the world's largest drugmaker a repeating corporate cheat for illegal drug promotions that plied doctors with free golf, massages, and resort junkets.

Announcing the penalty as a warning to all drug manufacturers, Justice Department officials said the overall settlement is the largest ever paid by a drug company for alleged violations of federal drug rules, and the $1.2 billion criminal fine is the largest ever in any U.S. criminal case. The total includes $1 billion in civil penalties and a $100 million criminal forfeiture, including $650,000 headed for Idaho.

Authorities called Pfizer a repeat offender, noting it is the company's fourth such settlement of government charges in the last decade. The allegations surround the marketing of 13 different drugs, including big sellers such as Viagra, Zoloft, and Lipitor.

The government said the company promoted four prescription drugs, including the pain killer Bextra, as treatments for medical conditions different from those the drugs had been approved for by federal regulators. Authorities said Pfizer's salesmen and women created phony doctor requests for medical information in order to send unsolicited information to doctors about unapproved uses and dosages.

As part of its illegal marketing, Pfizer invited doctors to consultant meetings at resort locations, paying their expenses and providing perks, prosecutors said.

"They were entertained with golf, massages, and other activities," said Mike Loucks, the U.S. attorney in Massachusetts.

Loucks said that even as Pfizer was negotiating deals on past misconduct, they were continuing to violate the very same laws with other drugs.

To prevent backsliding this time, Pfizer's conduct will be specially monitored by the Health and Human Service Department inspector general for five years.

In an unusual twist, the head of the Justice Department, Attorney General Eric Holder, did not participate in the record settlement, because he had represented Pfizer on these issues while in private practice.

Associate Attorney General Thomas Perrelli said the settlement illustrates ways the Justice Department "can help the American public at a time when budgets are tight and health care costs are rising."

Perrelli announced the settlement terms at a news conference with federal prosecutors and FBI, and Health and Human Services Department officials. The Idaho Attorney General's office announced the state's share of the settlement in a press release, stating half of it will reimburse taxpayers for unnecessary Medicaid expenses and half will be deposited into Idaho's general account for appropriation by the Legislature.

Obama to lay prestige on the line in speech

By Peter Nicholas and Janet Hook
Los Angeles Times

News analysis

WASHINGTON — President Obama's announcement that he will take his case for revamping health care before a joint session of Congress next week reflects a decision to go "all in" politically, laying his prestige on the line for the defining domestic issue of his young presidency.

Obama is gambling that he can tilt the balance in his favor by spelling out in detail just what he wants from the House and Senate in the coming weeks.

Until now, Obama has avoided laying out a blueprint for health care, confining himself to statements of broad goals and leaving the particulars to Congress. White House officials insisted Wednesday that this strategy had helped keep the legislative wheels turning and avoid stalemate.

But it also left many of Obama's supporters confused about where he stood and gave conservative critics a chance to seize control of the debate — as when some charged that Democrats would create "death panels" to deny medical treatment for the severely ill. Although the legislation in both houses does not contain such language, the controversy focused attention on the potential for care being rationed among the elderly in a new health care system.

White House strategists say the joint session speech, scheduled for next Wednesday, will end the uncertainty and confusion — enabling Obama to shift from defense to offense as Congress begins to make the hard decisions on health care.

"I think the path that he believes we should go will be clear to everyone who hears this speech," senior White House adviser David Axelrod said Wednesday. "I don't think anyone will leave ... without a clear sense of what he proposes, and what health care reform is not."

Ralph Neas, head of the National Coalition on Health Care, an amalgam of union, health and medical groups supporting the legislation, said "President Obama must become the salesman-in-chief" to regain the political momen-

Watchdog says SEC bungled Madoff probes

By Marcy Gordon
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — Pushing past years of "red flags," investigators at the Securities and Exchange Commission bungled their probes of Bernard Madoff so badly that his multibillion-dollar fraud not only flourished but he used the exams to suck in new investors, an agency watchdog declared Wednesday.

The report by the SEC inspector general shows that no smoking gun of corruption was found in the agency's conduct toward the disgraced financier. Instead it painted a grim picture of an agency hobbled by incompetence — failing to pursue the most obvious leads — that cleared the way for Madoff to continue what could be the biggest Ponzi scheme in U.S. history for more than a decade.

One of the most striking points in the report is that the investigations actually may have made things worse.

"Madoff proactively informed potential investors that the SEC had examined his operations" and found nothing amiss, it says. The fact that three SEC inspections and two investigations failed to detect the fraud gave credibility to Madoff's operations and encouraged more people to give him their money.

Diane Sawyer to take over as anchor of ABC evening news

By David Bauder
Associated Press writer

NEW YORK — Women will anchor two of the three major network evening newscasts — the premier jobs in the TV news business — as Diane Sawyer replaces Charles Gibson, who is retiring from ABC at the end of the year.

Until Katie Couric became "CBS Evening News" anchor in September 2006, no woman had held the job done by broadcast legends like Walter Cronkite, Peter Jennings, Tom Brokaw, Chet Huntley, David Brinkley and Dan Rather alone. Barbara Walters, Connie Chung and Elizabeth Vargas have done it only when teamed with men.

Sawyer's hiring is a "watershed moment," said the Women's Media Center.

"Diane Sawyer's expertise and professionalism are without question," said Carol Jenkins, president of the Women's Media Center. "We look forward to her debut in January, and to the changes in the perceptions of women's capabilities her reign will bring."

Sawyer called the job "an enormous honor." She'll start in January.

"Diane is one of the hardest-working people I know and this new assignment is the latest achievement in an already accomplished and illustrious career," said Couric, who competed against Sawyer as a host of

NBC's "Today" show. "And as I did, I'm sure that she'll quickly find that she doesn't miss that early morning alarm clock."

Gibson, 66, who provided a steady hand to a "World News" broadcast reeling from tragedy, said he had been planning to retire at the end of 2007 but events compelled him to stay. He was named anchor following the death of Peter Jennings and the wartime injury of Bob Woodruff in 2006. He's been at ABC News for 35 years and says he plans to continue as an occasional contributor.

Gibson's comforting presence made him an instant ratings hit at "World News" at a time the other networks had much younger anchors.

But NBC's Brian Williams eventually passed him and has led in the ratings for the past year, with "World News" a solid second.

"The program is now operating at a very accelerated, but steady, cruising speed and I think it is an opportune time for a transition — both for the broadcast and for me," Gibson said in an e-mail to fellow ABC News staffers.

Source: Autopsy finds pills in stomach of DJ AM

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — DJ AM had prescription pills in his stomach and one in his throat when police found him dead in his apartment, a New York City official said Wednesday.

The official told The Associated Press that six pills were found in the celebrity disc jockey's stomach and that the pill in his throat appeared to be the powerful painkiller OxyContin.

The official didn't know how strong a dose each pill contained and wasn't sure what kind of pills were in DJ AM's stomach.

The official was familiar with the preliminary autopsy report released last week but was not authorized to talk publicly about it and spoke on condition of anonymity.

The 36-year-old, whose real name was Adam Goldstein, was found Friday evening in his apartment in New York City's trendy SoHo neighborhood after a friend called 911. Paramedics had to break down the door before they found him, shirtless and wearing sweat pants, in his bed around 5:20 p.m. There was no evidence of foul play.

Afghan deputy intelligence chief killed in Taliban suicide attack

KABUL — A Taliban suicide bomber attacked officials leaving a mosque east of the capital Wednesday, killing the country's deputy intelligence chief and 22 other people in a major blow to Afghanistan's security forces.

The brazen assault occurred as tensions are running high after last month's divisive presidential election and a sharp rise in U.S. casualties — events that have already raised alarm in Washington over the future of President Barack Obama's strategy to turn the tide of the war.

A Taliban spokesman, Zabiullah Mujahid, claimed responsibility for the bombing, which happened as Afghan dignitaries were leaving the main mosque in Mehterlam, 60 miles (100 kilometers) east of Kabul, after ceremonies marking the Islamic holy month of Ramadan.

The bomber approached the crowd on foot and detonated an explosive belt, killing 23 people, including Abdullah Laghmani, deputy chief of Afghanistan's National Directorate for Security and the target of the attack, according to provincial spokesman Sayed

Laghmani formerly served as intelligence chief for Kandahar, the former Taliban spiritual capital in southern Afghanistan, and fought with a Tajik-dominated alliance that helped oust the Islamist movement from power during the U.S.-led invasion of 2001.

In his most recent post, Laghmani directed intelligence operations especially in eastern Afghanistan and appointed local security officials throughout the area.

The attack occurred in a relatively safe city, serving as a deadly reminder that the militants are capable of striking even in areas where their influence is not strong. U.S. troops cordoned off the blast site, filled with blood-spattered hulks of burned-out vehicles set on fire by the explosion. The local hospital was jammed with more than 50 wounded.

"It is indefensible that such an attack was carried out at a mosque during the holy month of Ramadan," said Peter W. Galbraith, the deputy U.N. chief here. "The contrast between the vast majority of Afghans who yearn for peace during this holy month and those who conducted this attack could not be more stark."

Karzai said in a statement that the "enemy" tried to kill "brave and hardworking" officials, but others would take their place.

China says it's near single-dose vaccine to combat swine flu

The Associated Press

Institutes of Health.

BEIJING — The answer may be near to a crucial question about vaccine for the advancing swine flu — one shot or two?

Chinese officials say they are about to approve vaccines that prevent the new flu in a single dose.

If they're right, it would be good news. Many health researchers fear it will take two shots to protect people, vastly complicating efforts to stem the spread of the illness.

The World Health Organization says it is encouraged after reviewing the test details from one of the two Chinese vaccines. However, experts said more results are needed from other vaccine makers to determine if one dose would be potent enough.

Australia-based CSL should know within days whether one dose of its vaccine, administered to volunteers in that country in late July, was enough. CSL to date has been mum.

In about two weeks, the U.S. expects to announce initial test results from its vaccine, which is the same type as one of the Chinese versions, said Dr. Anthony Fauci of the U.S. National

"From what I've seen and heard of the data, it looks encouraging," Fauci said of the clinical trials of the Chinese vaccine from Sinovac Biotech Ltd. "This is very good news. Let's hope the material that we're using has similar results."

Most experts agreed. "Everybody is desperately hoping that one (shot) will do because then that's much easier to administer," said Jodie McVernon, a vaccine expert at the University of Melbourne who is involved in Australian trials of swine flu vaccines for young children. She had not seen the Chinese trial results.

But James McGlothlin, of Purdue University's pandemic planning committee, was cautious about the Chinese report.

"They've got some very good scientists over there, but anything that sounds too good to be true ought to be scrutinized," he said in a telephone interview.

"I'd like to look at some of the clinical trials," that led to the one-dose conclusion, he said. "In China, the rules are a little bit different in terms of human subjects," and it's not clear what safeguards were used, he said.

NO. 16 OREGON AT NO. 14 BSU, 8:15 P.M., ESPN

BIGGEST EVER?

Broncos host Ducks in huge Top 25 showdown

By Tim Booth

Associated Press writer

For all the big games No. 14 Boise State has faced in its rise to prominence, Chris Petersen always preached that no one game carried increased importance.

Good luck keeping that mantra going with any validity to his players when his own school and everyone else in Boise is billing tonight's showdown with No. 16 Oregon as the biggest home game in school history.

"I think it's great for the city and great for the fans, and hopefully our team is prepared and does a great job," said Petersen, entering his fourth season as the Broncos head coach. "But when teams start buying into hype, positive and negative, it doesn't do you any good."

Still, it's hard for anyone not to acknowledge this matchup carries a different feel. Tailgating is expected to start early this morning, right up to the 8:15 p.m. MDT kickoff. Tickets are available on the Internet at upward of four figures.

The school's basketball arena, across the parking lot from Bronco Stadium, will be opened for ticketless fans looking for a gathering place to watch the game.

Students lined up overnight to get one of the precious tickets in the student section, which vanished about an hour after going on sale.

Boise State Titus Young Junior, WR, 5-11, 170

Speed is a great difference maker on the football field. Titus Young has it and he has matured into a solid wide receiver. After being suspended for much of the 2008 season, he enters 2009 with something to prove. He's not just a deep threat anymore. He only caught 10 balls last season before his suspension, but should be a primary target for sophomore QB Kellen Moore as the Broncos look to stretch the field.

Young

Winston Venable Junior, S, 5-11, 223

Venable spent two years at Glendale Community College before transferring to BSU last spring. He takes over the nickel-back spot vacated by Ellis Powers. This position is the key to the BSU defense. Venable must tackle in run support and play perfect against the pass. BSU head coach Chris Petersen called Venable, "One of the most pleasant surprises we've had." He is big and physical, can finish plays. His performance tonight may be the difference in the game.

Venable

Oregon Jeremiah Masoli Junior, QB, 5-11, 214

Masoli entered the 2008 season as the fifth-string quarterback on Oregon's depth chart but rose to No. 1 against BSU. He only played the first half against the Broncos in 2008, leaving due to a mild concussion.

Masoli

He returned to start nine more games for the Ducks and truly blossomed as a dual-threat quarterback. Over the final four games of the season, he had an efficiency rating of 170.75, with 14 touchdowns (rushing and passing) and only one interception. If Masoli makes just one guy miss, BSU will struggle to stop him.

LeGarrette Blount Senior, RB, 6-2, 240

This guy is a bruiser. He set an Oregon record with 17 rushing touchdowns last season (1,002 yards). He shared the backfield with Jeremiah Johnson last season, but the former JC transfer is the main man now. He is surprisingly nimble and fast for such a big back and is hard to bring down. If defenders go low, he'll hurdle them. If they go high, he'll plow them over. Tackling Blount could be a serious struggle for BSU.

Blount

Moore ready for an encore

By Dustin Lapray
Times-News correspondent

BOISE — Kellen Moore accomplished monumental tasks in his first season under center for the Boise State Broncos. He left such a mark after one season you'd think his statue would already be in the Allen Noble Hall of Fame.

The sophomore was the first freshman to ever start at quarterback for BSU and was named Western Athletic Conference Freshman of the Year. He led the Broncos to an undefeated regular season and 12-1 overall mark.

His numbers as a freshman were simply solid: 25 touchdowns, 10 interceptions, 157.1 pass efficiency rating, 69.4 completion percentage and 3,486 passing yards. He even scored one rushing touchdown. By starting as a freshman, Moore could break every conceivable passing record at BSU in the next three seasons.

His performance in last season's 37-32 win over Oregon earned him Walter Camp Football Foundation Bowl Subdivision National Offense Player of the Week. But all that was last season and Moore is only thinking about facing Oregon again tonight.

"Certainly it's a tape to watch, we are the same two teams, but there will be different players, different circumstances in the game," Moore said of today's season-opener between the No. 14

Kimberly invites all to dance for injured Coats

By Bradley Guire
Times-News writer

Maybe they'll scream for ice cream. They'll definitely dance.

Tonight, the Kimberly High School cheerleaders and pep club are asking for people from the Magic Valley to come out dressed in red and white and dance for Amanda Jo Coats, who is still in recovery at Saint Alphonsus Regional Medical Center in Boise.

Coats was injured in an auto crash on Aug. 10 as she made her way to the school to join her fellow cheerleaders as they prepared to leave for a camp.

Following today's Kimberly junior varsity football game, which begins at 5:30 p.m., the Kimberly cheerleaders and pep club will gather everyone willing onto the field and teach them the "Ice Cream and Cake" dance and then film it. The footage will be submitted to Baskin Robbin's "Ice Cream and Cake Dance Contest" in the hopes that the video can win prize money to help with Coats' medical bills. The top prize is $10,000. "Hopefully, we'll be the planned to do this to purchase a sound system for the football stadium, but now they're doing it for their friend.

"It's completely overwhelming," Coats' aunt, Jolene Nannini, said. "We thank everyone for their support. It's really heartfelt. There are no words to describe how touched we are."

Minico, Canyon Ridge play to 2-2 draw

By Ryan Howe
Times-News writer

RUPERT — Great Basin Conference foes Minico and Canyon Ridge each entered Wednesday's boys soccer match winless.

After 80-plus minutes of grind-it-out soccer, it remained that way.

Canyon Ridge sophomore Lane Barker scored the equalizer in the 66th minute as the Riverhawks and Spartans played to a 2-2 draw.

"You always want to win, but with the way it turned out under the circumstances, we're very happy," said Canyon Ridge coach Brian Gillenwater.

After a scoreless first half, Minico's Adrian Mendoza broke through with a goal in the 45th minute.

"From a team that started playing together in only three weeks, I think we're doing pretty good," Alejo said. "A lot of people thought we couldn't do anything, and we're playing better than what everybody thought."

Alejandro Torres gathered a rebound off a Gavin Smith shot and found the net to give Minico a 2-1 lead in the 61st minute.

Moments later, Minico goalkeeper Edgar Tapia went down after taking a knee to the chest. He stayed in the game, but the blow later affected his ability to hold on to a save off Nigel Cvencek's shot. The ball bounced off Tapia's chest, and Barker was there to clean it up.

"I was just being aggressive and following up," said Barker.

Defensively, the 'Hawks keyed on stopping the Spartans' brilliant striker Jorge Carrillo, who has led Minico in scoring the past three seasons.

Minico (0-2-2, 0-0-1) graduated star goalkeeper Alex Olmos, plus all its midfielders, from last year's team and is still working to find the right pieces.

"We've been trying to cross on my side because they've been leaving me open and I would cross it back to Jorge and we usually score goals like that," said Minico senior captain Gavin Smith. "We didn't start off good in the first half. In the second half we started getting balls in the midfield and started passing better, but we didn't follow through."

Bruin boys blow out Highland

Times-News

The Twin Falls boys soccer team won its second straight game Wednesday, blowing out Highland 8-0 at home.

Ben Worst, Chris DeLaCruz, Colton Stott and Steven Sanchez each scored during the first half to give the Bruins a 4-0 lead. Worst's goal came on a penalty kick to open the scoring, while DeLaCruz was able to chip in his goal over the Highland keeper's head from about 25 yards out.

Head coach Jose Morales said he reminded the team to not let up during the second half, and the talk was taken to heart. Stott and DeLaCruz both scored again, while Nathaniel Goss added a goal on a free kick and Dustin Hegstrom put in the eighth and final goal.

Morales said that the Highland defense pressured Bruin keeper Ruben Flores, who had some good saves, but by the second half, Twin Falls had taken control. He added that the confidence built from beating Burley earlier in the week contributed to the shutout.

The Bruins (2-3-0, 1-0-0 Great Basin Conference) have a schedule change for the next game. Rather than playing Saturday, Twin Falls will host Jerome next Wednesday.

BURLEY 6, PRESTON 1

Woody Anguiano scored a goal in each half as the Burley boys soccer team whipped host Preston 6-1 on Wednesday. Pablo Gonzalez, Logan Searle, Ceasar Mendoza and Christian Hansen also added scores for the 3-1 Bobcats, who bounced back from a loss to Twin Falls on Monday.

"We got back to fundamentals," said Burley coach Wes Nyblade. "They kids played really well."

JEROME 3, WOOD RIVER 0

The Jerome boys soccer team took a hard-fought road win at Wood River on Wednesday, winning 3-0. Saul Daiz, Alejandro Didaca and Sergio Martinez scored for the Tigers (4-0).

Jerome coach Robert Garcia said both sides moved the ball well in the game. The Tigers host Minico on Friday.

goals during the first half but were shut out of the second by the Jerome defense and keeper T.J. Surrage, who tallied 23 saves in her debut. Aubree Callen scored both goals for the Tigers during the second half, with the final goal on assist from Flor Hernandez.

Jerome (0-4-0, 0-1-0) will host Middleton Saturday.

MINICO 9, CANYON RIDGE 2

Kaylee Legault scored four goals as the Minico girls soccer team downed Canyon Ridge 7-2 on Wednesday. The Spartans, who also got three goals from Madison Roemer, took a 5-0 halftime lead on the host Riverhawks. Melinda Martinez and Vicki Vega netted the other goals for Minico.

Ellen Bartlett and Natalie Thomas scored second-half goals for CRHS (0-6-0), which travels to Filer today.

HIGHLAND 2, TWIN FALLS 1

Despite jumping to a quick lead on a goal by Claire Goss, the Twin Falls girls soccer team suffered a 2-1 road loss at Highland on Wednesday.

Allie Webb assisted on Goss' early goal, but two second-half scores lifted Highland to the win.

Twin Falls (2-1-2) travels to Jerome next Wednesday.

PRESTON 6, BURLEY 1

The Preston girls soccer team scored five goals over the final 20 minutes of the first half, taking a 6-1 win at Burley on Wednesday. The Bobcats played better after intermission, getting a goal from freshman Aubrie Vale. Burley (0-4) travels to Preston on Saturday for a rematch.

Volleyball

RAFT RIVER 3, HAGERMAN 0

The Raft River Trojans volleyball team earned its first Snake River Conference South victory Wednesday, defeating Hagerman 25-18, 27-25, 25-9 at home.

Whitney Holtman led the Trojans with 11 kills and six blocks, Kassie Ottley dug 16 times, Bailey Telford dug 10 times and Chelzee Nye had six blocks. Setter Marissa Greenwood assisted 13 times. Head coach Cami Schumann said the team was able to get over a mental hump when it came to facing the Pirates, who had not surrendered a complete match to this particular group of players.

The Trojans (3-0, 1-0) travel to Kimberly today for a tri-match with the Bulldogs and Declo.

WENDELL 3, GLENN'S FERRY 1

The Wendell volleyball team took a 25-12, 25-22, 25-23 win at Glenn's Ferry on Wednesday. The young Pilots improved as the match progressed, according to first-year head coach Jolinda Solosabal.

Aspen Martell had six kills, while Mollee Shrum added four. Rebecca Woody chipped in four blocks, while freshman Karli McHone had three. Setters Jacqueline Brennan and Sydney Sterling had six assists apiece. The Pilots (0-4) host Cole Valley Christian on Tuesday.

Nadal returns, beats Gasquet, at U.S. Open

NEW YORK (AP) — Everyone's been curious about the condition of Rafael Nadal's knees, so it made sense that his first Grand Slam opponent in three months would wonder as well.

Which might explain why Richard Gasquet tried a drop shot deep in the third set of his U.S. Open match against Nadal on Wednesday. Nadal made the long run necessary to get to the ball, and flipped it back over the net, winning the point.

A moment later, as if conspiring with Nadal to show everyone how fit the six-time major champion truly is these days, Gasquet offered up another drop shot.

Nadal got to that one, too. Starting a bid to win the only Grand Slam title missing from his resume, Nadal encountered no apparent trouble from his much-scrutinized legs in a 6-2, 6-2, 6-3 victory over Gasquet at Flushing Meadows.

Gasquet, for one, was impressed.

"He can win the tournament," said Gasquet, a 2007 Wimbledon semifinalist and former top-10 player. "Day after day, he will improve his level. For sure, he can win."

Nadal's matter-of-fact assessment: "I played well, no?"

Nadal didn't wear any tape near his knees Wednesday, something he's done in the past, much less the sort of bulky bandages Venus Williams showed up with near her left knee for a second-round match she won easily. Her sister Serena won, too, keeping the pair on track for an all-in-the-family semifinal.

Nadal ceded the top spot to Roger Federer, whose bid for a sixth consecutive U.S. Open championship — and third Grand Slam title in a row this year — progressed with a 6-3, 7-5, 7-5 victory over Simon Greul of Germany in front of a night-session record crowd of 24,206.

Next for Federer is a matchup against two-time major winner Lleyton Hewitt, who defeated Juan Ignacio Chela 6-3, 6-3, 6-4. Federer has won 13 matches in a row against Hewitt, including in the 2004 U.S. Open final.

The defending women's champion, Serena Williams, was spectacularly good in eliminating 51st-ranked Melinda Czink of Hungary 6-1, 6-1 in 53 minutes in Wednesday's last match.

Venus Williams, the 2000-01 champion in New York, had wide patches of white tape above and below her left knee, which began bothering her when she struggled through a first-round win Monday. Like Nadal, Williams looked hale Wednesday, and she easily dispatched Bethanie Mattek-Sands of the United States 6-4, 6-2.

Hernandez's solid start spoils Kazmir's debut

SEATTLE — Felix Hernandez pitched eight scoreless innings to spoil the Los Angeles debut of pitcher Scott Kazmir and the Seattle Mariners beat the Angels 3-0 on Wednesday night.

Hernandez (14-5) gave up four hits, walked three and struck out six to lower his ERA to 2.65 — second best in the American League.

Kazmir, who was acquired on Aug. 28 by the Angels from Tampa Bay, gave up one run and three hits in 6 1-3 innings. He walked one and struck out eight.

Rio bandwagon: IOC keeps on loving city's bid

LONDON (AP) — The Rio bandwagon seems to be picking up speed. Rio de Janeiro's bid to take the Olympics to South America for the first time in 2016 gained further momentum Wednesday when the Brazilian city came off best in a technical evaluation of the four candidate cities. Chicago, meanwhile, came in for some pointed negative comments — including its financial guarantees and public transportation — and Madrid and Tokyo also took some direct hits from the International Olympic Committee.

The 98-page report from the IOC's evaluation commission was released exactly a month before the IOC vote in Copenhagen on Oct. 2.

BSU, 'Bama among teams with huge openers

By Ralph D. Russo
Associated Press writer

Even Nick Saban, a coach who is all about urgency, wasn't quite ready to buy into the idea that the first game of the season was a make-or-break deal.

"It's horrible. It's a horrible thought for any team to be out of anything after one game," the Alabama coach said earlier this week.

True, but in college football, one loss can change a season, which makes opening weekend games such as Alabama-Virginia Tech, Oregon-Boise State and BYU-Oklahoma so intriguing.

No. 5 Alabama starts its season in the Georgia Dome for the second straight year, this time taking on No. 7 Virginia Tech, the Atlantic Coast Conference favorites. The Crimson Tide jump started a national title run in 2008 by beating up supposed-ACC heavyweight Clemson in Atlanta last season.

The Tigers never quite recovered from the 34-10 beating and a season of great expectations fizzled.

This season, four games matching ranked teams highlight the Labor Day weekend football bonanza, starting with Thursday night's showdown on the Blue Turf in Boise. For No. 14 Boise State, the visit by the 16th-ranked Ducks is being called the biggest home game in school history.

No. 3 Oklahoma and No. 20 BYU open the season Saturday at the Dallas Cowboys' new stadium in Arlington, Texas. An upset by the Cougars would stoke national title talk in Provo, Utah.

No. 9 Oklahoma State hosts No. 13 Georgia in a game that should help stir the debate over which league is better, the Southeastern Conference or the Big 12.

The picks:

Thursday
Utah State (plus 20½)
at No. 19 Utah

A rivalry only in name — Utes have won 11 straight ... UTAH 42-17.

No. 16 Oregon (plus 3½) at No. 14 Boise State

Ducks looking for payback after 37-32 loss to Broncos last year ... OREGON 40-27.

Saturday
Charleston Southern (no line)
at No. 1 Florida

Gators paid $450,000 for this game or about $6,400 per point ... FLORIDA 70-7.

Louisiana-Monroe (plus 41)
at No. 2 Texas

Longhorns have won nine straight openers by average of 43 points ... TEXAS 60-14.

No. 3 Oklahoma (minus 22)
vs. No. 20 BYU

Cougars banged-up O-line leaves little chance of upset ... OKLAHOMA 50-21.

San Jose State (plus 33½)
at No. 4 Southern California

Freshman QB Matt Barkley starts for Trojans ... USC 45-10.

No. 5 Alabama (minus 6½)
vs. No. 7 Virginia Tech

All the making of defensive struggle ... VIRGINIA TECH 20-17.

Navy (plus 21½)
at No. 6 Ohio State

Middies' option could prove tricky for Buckeyes — a little ... OHIO STATE 35-14.

No. 13 Georgia (plus 5½)
at No. 9 Oklahoma State

SEC 1, Big 12 0 ... GEORGIA 31-28.

Akron (plus 27)
at No. 9 Penn State

First of three cupcakes to open season for JoePa's team ... PENN STATE 48-14.

No. 11 LSU (plus 17½)

at Washington

This is no way for Huskies to usher in new era ... LSU 48-20.

Maryland (plus 21½)
at No. 12 California

Cal slept through much of last season's 35-27 loss at Terps ... CALIFORNIA 37-10.

Jacksonville State (no line)
at No. 15 Georgia Tech

Former LSU QB Ryan Perrilloux, now at JSU, suspended for opener ... GEORGIA TECH 58-10.

The Citadel (no line)
at No. 21 North Carolina

Tar Heels 3-0 vs. Bulldogs; last meeting 1986 ... NORTH CAROLINA 48-14.

Northern Iowa (no line)
at No. 22 Iowa

UNI ranked No. 4 in FCS preseason poll ... IOWA 34-17.

Nevada (plus 14½)
at No. 23 Notre Dame

No team has more important opening game than Fighting Irish ... NOTRE DAME 39-17.

Florida Atlantic (plus 22½)
at No. 24 Nebraska

FAU coach Howard Schnellenberger has history of upsetting Huskers ... NEBRASKA 45-21.

Northern Colorado (no line)
at No. 25 Kansas

UNC was 1-10 last season in FCS ... KANSAS 62-17.

Sunday
No. 8 Mississippi (minus 16½)
at Memphis

Rebels have won four straight against Tigers ... OLE MISS 28-14.

Monday, Sept. 7
Miami (plus 6)
at No. 18 Florida State

First of what should be four ranked opponents to start season for 'Canes ... MIAMI 20-14.

Last season's record:
Season: 223-71 (straight); 147-130-1 (vs. points).

Panthers-Steelers matchup a study in contrasts

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Carolina Panthers owner Jerry Richardson has long said he wanted his young franchise to emulate the family-run Pittsburgh Steelers.

As the teams meet to close the exhibition schedule Thursday, the Panthers have plenty of catching up to do on and off the field.

An injury-ravaged preseason full of missed tackles, few touchdowns and no wins was overshadowed this week by the stunning resignations of Richardson's two sons from high-ranking jobs with the team.

The rift in the family leaves no clear successor to the 73-year-old owner seven months removed from a heart transplant. And while Richardson hired TCU athletic director Danny Morrison as team president Wednesday, he's yet to explain the resignations or his future plans with the team.

The Steelers, meanwhile, remain the definition of front-office stability — and appear in much better shape on the field, too.

Coming off its record sixth Super Bowl title, Pittsburgh, in its 76th year under three generations of ownership by the Rooney family, seems ready for the regular season.

Ben Roethlisberger, recovered from a right foot injury, led two scoring drives in a 17-0 win over the Bills on Saturday. The Steelers' defense looks as dominating as ever, too.

With the Steelers to play the regular-season opener Sept. 10 against Tennessee, don't expect to see the starters for more than a series or two Thursday. The night belongs to the fringe players trying to make the 53-man regular-season roster and the competition for backup jobs on the offensive line.

"There is no question their appearance is going to be a short one. That is the nature of it," coach Mike Tomlin said of the first units. "They are going to have some teammates fighting until the bitter end to play well and make this football team. Those guys understand that process."

Brett Favre's non-traditional arrival in Minnesota is not stopping Vikings coach Brad Childress from taking a traditional approach to the team's preseason finale against Dallas.

The 39-year-old quarterback will not play against the Cowboys on Friday night.

"I don't see the upside," Childress said on Wednesday.

Most teams rest their marquee starters in the final game of the preseason to avoid the risk of injury with the regular season a week away.

What makes this situation unique, however, is Favre's recent arrival in Minnesota.

BRONCOS COACH: NO TRADE TALKS OVER MARSHALL

ENGLEWOOD, Colo. — Moving to quell rumors, Denver coach Josh McDaniels said Wednesday the team had not held any talks involving a trade of suspended Broncos wide receiver Brandon Marshall. "We're looking forward to having Brandon back on Sept. 6 and starting our preparations for Cincinnati with him," McDaniels said. "There's no discussions whatsoever taking place between the Denver Broncos and any team in the NFL regarding Brandon Marshall."

There were reports the New York Jets would be interested in trading for him.

McDaniels suspended Marshall for the rest of the preseason last Friday for detrimental conduct stemming from insubordinate actions during a practice.

McNAIR DENIES NFLPA LAWSUIT CLAIMS

HOUSTON — Houston Texans owner Bob McNair on Wednesday denied allegations that he participated in secret meetings to discuss NFL labor talks.

The allegations were in a wrongful termination lawsuit filed against the NFL Players Association last week by union employee Mary Moran.

She says she was a confidential informant for the Labor Department and gave investigators evidence that former NFLPA president Troy Vincent and other union members met with NFL commissioner Roger Goodell and McNair. The meetings were allegedly to provide the league access to confidential union information.

Moran also alleges in the lawsuit that NFLPA executive committee member and former Texan Mark Bruener and Texans player representative Kris Brown attended the meetings.

"There's no truth to it at all," McNair told Houston television station KRIV. "There was never any involvement on my part or Kris Brown or Mark Bruener."

Utah looks to open season with 15th straight victory

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Kyle Whittingham feels much more comfortable with this long winning streak than the last one he was part of at Utah.

The 19th-ranked Utes open the season Thursday night against Utah State, which is playing its first game under new coach and long-time Utah assistant Gary Andersen.

Andersen was Whittingham's defensive coordinator when he inherited the original BCS Busters of 2004 after Urban Meyer was hired away by Florida. The Utes had won 16 straight entering Whittingham's debut and stretched it to 18 in a row before finally losing.

Utah's current winning streak is 14 and Whittingham feels the Utes are in a much better position than they were entering his first year.

"I personally think that our roster is more talented this year than it was in '05 — just from top to bottom," Whittingham said.

Nine months after finishing with the highest rank in school history, the Utes are ranked in the AP preseason poll for the first time.

Utah finished at No. 2 last year with a 13-0 record, capping it with a 31-17 win over Alabama in the Sugar Bowl as the Utes busted the BCS for the second time in four years. The Utes needed a season-opening victory at Michigan last year before cracking the polls, then continued moving up the rest of the way.

"It's great accolades but we've got to look at it just like we looked last year when we weren't ranked. It's nothing. Don't look at it," linebacker Stevenson Sylvester said. "It doesn't have any effect on this team. I don't think the people lining up against you care that much either."

Actually, that could be an incentive for Utah State, which is 1-48 against ranked opponents. The Aggies don't need much more motivation than the rivalry, which Utah has won 11 straight times.

Andersen was on the Utes' sideline for many of those and gets to open his tenure in a rivalry that his new school hasn't won since 1997.

"In our situation we need to go out and play our game and do what we do. We can't sit and worry about what tunnel we are coming out of," Andersen said.

game mentally, so when I'm in there physically the team doesn't miss a beat and we can pick up where we left off."

He said he must study film more than ever this season, since he gets few reps with the first team. With the Broncos likely to win a lot of games in blowout fashion, Coughlin should see time. Behind him, it looks like Joe Southwick is the No. 3 quarterback, but BSU hopes to redshirt him.

"Being in the position that I am in I try to help the young guys as much as I can," Coughlin said. "They also have to be ready. They can't take the backseat. They could have their opportunity just as well as I could."

Southwick has looked good in camp. BSU head coach Chris Petersen called him an "impressive freshman." He has a great arm, decent foot-speed and a whole lot to learn.

"It's a pretty complex offense to pick up," Southwick said. "I've done everything I can do personally, but also learning from Mike and Kellen. They both do the right thing, they study hard, work hard, know the playbook."

With Moore penciled in as the starter for the next three seasons, Southwick may be a junior before he gets on the field. He expects that.

"No matter where you go, especially when you're a top-tier program like here, I don't think you come in expecting to play right away," Southwick said. "I'm going to do my time and learn as much as I can from Kellen and Mike while he's still here. I'm just hoping that will benefit me in the long run."

Showdown

And all that says nothing about what will happen on the field, where animosity will still linger after last year's 37-32 Broncos victory at Autzen Stadium, where the Ducks remain convinced Boise State took cheap shots that affected the outcome.

First came Ellis Powers' helmet-first leveling of Oregon QB Jeremiah Masoli in the first quarter — well after the pass left Masoli's hand — that eventually forced the Ducks QB from the game with a concussion. BSU safety Jeron Johnson was later ejected for a late hit on Oregon tight end Ed Dickson, yet another shot the Ducks felt was needless.

The game could also have serious implications months later. Take away the Ducks, and Boise State's schedule becomes at most pedestrian, with its usual slate of average Western Athletic Conference foes and its two toughest WAC games — Louisiana Tech and Nevada — at home. Its non-league schedule is also lackluster, with games at Bowling Green and Tulsa looking like the only possible slip-ups.

Translation: Already with the highest preseason ranking in school history, a Boise State victory could open a path to any of the BCS bowls come January.

"I don't know if it will change a season, but (a win) can open up some eyes," Boise State safety Kyle Wilson said.

Oregon, meanwhile, would like nothing more than to start Chip Kelly's tenure as the Ducks' head coach with an important victory.

It's a new era in Eugene now that Mike Bellotti has moved into the athletic director's chair. He'll be in Boise on Thursday, but only as a highly interested spectator, curious to see just how Kelly's spread offense looks on the blue backdrop.

It's the first time someone other than Bellotti will lead the Ducks on the field since 1995.

"I was surprised as heck when Mike said he was stepping down or becoming the athletic director and I was the choice as the next head coach," Kelly said. "But it was never a goal of mine."

Masoli thrived as 2008 progressed, capped by his Holiday Bowl performance when he threw for 258 yards and a touchdown, and rushed for 106 yards and three scores. Blount is a YouTube star thanks to his leaping, spinning, bullying run that sealed the Ducks' bowl win over Oklahoma State. Oregon scored a combined 107 points and rolled up 1,259 yards of offense in its final two games of '08.

For all that offensive firepower, the Ducks defense might be the concern. Oregon could be breaking in six new starters on defense, hoping that BSU quarterback Kellen Moore's sophomore season starts off with a slump.

Last year in his first road start, Moore threw for 386 yards and three touchdowns as Boise State finally got over the hump of beating a BCS team on the road.

The Ducks are the first ranked team to visit Bronco Stadium for a regular season game and set on exacting some revenge for last year.

"It would be nice to go back and beat them, but what happened last year happened and there's nothing we can do about it," Oregon center Jordan Holmes said. "They came here, they beat us and we're just looking to go there and win."

NOTICE OF PROPOSED FEE INCREASE

Please take notice that the Council of the City of Paul, Idaho, will meet on Wednesday, September 9, 2009 at 7:30 p.m. at the Paul City Hall, 152 South 600 West, Paul, Minidoka County, Idaho, for the purpose of hearing public comments concerning proposed increases of fees for delinquent payment for water and sewer services and a fee for tendering dishonored checks to the City. The fee increases that are proposed are in excess of five percent (5%) of the amount of the fee last collected. The reason for the fee increases is that the fees need to be established for service of notices of termination of utility services and for tendering dishonored checks to the City in order to offset the costs incurred by the City.

A copy of the proposed fee schedule is available at Paul City Hall, Paul, Idaho, during normal business hours. You are invited to appear at the time and place of hearing and provide comment on the proposed fees.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that on Tuesday, September 15, 2009, at the hour of 5:30 p.m., a public hearing will be held before the Jerome City Council at the City Council Chambers, 100 East Ave. A, Jerome, Idaho. The purpose of the hearing is to seek public comment regarding the following proposed fee increase beyond the limitation prescribed in Idaho Code 63-1311(a):

Usage Rate Proposed Increases (Charge per 100 cfs)

Usage Rate per 100 cfs	Current $0.90	Proposed $1.40
------------------------	-------------------	--------------------

Base Rate Proposed Increases

	Debt Service		Capital Reserve		Operating Reserve
	Current	Proposed	Current	Proposed	Current	Proposed
¾" Meter	$4.10	$ 7.32	$ 4.00	$ 4.00	$0.45	$ 3.60
1" Meter	$7.29	$13.01	$ 7.11	$ 7.11	$0.80	$ 6.40
1½" Meter	$16.40	$29.28	$16.00	$16.00	$1.80	$14.40
2" Meter	$29.16	$52.06	$28.45	$28.45	$3.20	$25.60

Monthly Base Rate = 1.778 x BR x D
Where: BR = The standard base rate for a ¾-inch diameter water connection
D = Diameter of water connection in inches

The proposed increase is a result of increased operating and maintenance costs and is in accordance with the national Municipal Cost Index. The Municipal Cost Index (MCI), a tool used to calculate the cost of offering government goods and services similar to the Consumer Price Index.

ALL INTERESTED PERSONS ARE INVITED TO ATTEND and shall have an opportunity to be heard.

DATED this 26th day of August, 2009.

LEGAL NOTICE OF CATEGORICAL EXCLUSION FOR THE CITY OF MURTAUGH WASTEWATER SYSTEM IMPROVEMENT PROJECT

The Idaho Department of Environmental Quality (DEQ) has determined that the City of Murtaugh Wastewater System Improvement Project, Twin Falls County, Idaho, conforms to the Rules for Administration of Wastewater Treatment Facility Grants, IDAPA 58.01.04, the Rules for Administration of Water Pollution Control Loans, IDAPA 58.01.12, and Chapter 5, Attachment E, of the Wastewater Loan Handbook, by which the project is eligible for a Categorical Exclusion. Accordingly, the project is exempted from further substantive environmental review requirements.

The proposed water system improvement project includes plant headworks improvements, installation of two 5-horsepower mechanical aerators in Cell #1, extension of 3-phase power approximately one-half of a mile to the lagoon and RI basin, construction of a third 1-acre RI basin, construction of a duplex submersible pump station to deliver effluent from the lagoons to the new RI basin, construction of miscellaneous site piping between the lagoons and the RI basins, and installation of a fence around the treatment lagoons and the RI basins.

Short term impacts may occur during project construction that include temporary disruption of the wastewater system, increased noise, increased dust pollution, and increased potential for stormwater runoff. The project contractor will be responsible for managing these short term impacts during project construction by conducting the following actions:

- Implementing DEQ Best Management Practices (BMPs) to minimize dust pollution for fugitive dust control to prevent or minimize wind erosion and dust generation.
- Being equipped and organized to put appropriate containment systems into service in a timely manner to avoid stormwater runoff.
- Implementing other appropriate BMPs, where ever possible, to avoid or minimize impacts from other construction activities.

Overall, completion of the proposed project will have long term positive effects by reducing the total suspended solids and total nitrogen levels prior to RI basin discharge. The completed project will provide improved protection for water quality, ground water, and overall public health.

Copies of the full Categorical Exclusion and the Wastewater Facilities Plan upon which it is based are available for public review at:

NOTICE OF HEARING

In the Matter of the Application of

JASON M. GUZMAN

JADRIEN N. GUZMAN

Brother and Sister

Petitioners.

A petition by Jason M. Guzman, born June 12, 1995 in Twin Falls, Idaho, now residing at 498 Buckingham Dr., Twin Falls, Idaho, and Jadrien N. Guzman, born November 18, 1993, in Hollywood, California, now residing at 498 Buckingham Dr., Twin Falls, Idaho, brother and sister, proposing a change in name to Jason M. Byce and Jadrien N. Byce, has been filed in the above entitled court, the reason that petitioners want their names changed is that since 1995 they have considered their step-father, Brandon P. Byce, as their real father and would like to have their names changed to his. The name of the petitioner's father is Hector Guzman, his address is unknown and he is not a citizen of the United States. The name of petitioner's mother is Jodi Byce, who resides at 498 Buckingham Dr., Twin Falls, Idaho; such petition will be heard at such time as the court may appoint, and objections may be filed by any person who can, in such objections, show to the court a good reason against such a change of name.

Butler's Table

Add a touch of elegance to any home with this adaptation of an English butler's table. With the leaves folded down, it's ideal for use as a coffee table. With the leaves folded up, it's easy to move it out of the way or push it against a wall.

When opened, the table is 30 inches wide by 42 inches long by 17 inches high. The solid brass hinges are spring-loaded and flush-mortised, adding a professional touch.

The plan includes step-by-step instructions with photos, traceable patterns (where applicable) and a complete materials list and cutting schedule.

Woman refuses phone calls from anyone except boyfriend

DEAR ABBY: My older sister does not pick up her phone unless her boyfriend calls. They have a system worked out to let her know when it's him. She has an answering machine, but its message limit is always full.

She has told everyone that, in case of emergency, they should contact her neighbors, her employer, the police, or — if she is camping — the campground police.

Since when is it the responsibility of others to take and deliver messages for her when she makes herself unavailable? What makes it worse is she has a quadriplegic son in frail health who lives on his own with a caregiver. Although my sister makes medical decisions for him, the caregiver is never certain whether Sis can be reached if needed.

Abby, how do you handle such a person?

— DISGUSTED IN UTAH

DEAR DISGUSTED: Your sister is sending a strong message that she doesn't want to be disturbed, nor does she want any real contact with you. I'd "handle it" by taking a giant step back emotionally and contacting her only in case of emergency, in the manner she has requested.

The caregiver is another matter. Because of the son's frail health, the caregiver should be able to speak directly to your sister in the event that an emergency should arise that requires an immediate medical intervention.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 59-year-old woman who has been dating men in their 40s. At first, I refused because I thought they were too young for me and people might laugh. Since then, I have decided that as long as they know from the beginning that I'm not looking for a serious committed relationship, I'd be happy to go out. I have made some great friends and had some great times.

Abby, why do you think younger men are attracted to older women? I'm not exceptionally pretty nor do I have a great body, but I am a caring, fun person who loves music and dancing. Do you think you could poll your readers and get some feedback from men who date older women as to why they do?

— "COUGAR" IN NEW YORK

DEAR "COUGAR": Lord, I hate that word because it implies (to me) that the older woman is somehow predatory, and the men who find her attractive are helpless prey.

If I were to hazard a guess, I'd say it's because many older women are independent, self-confident

THE ACES ON BRIDGE® Bobby Wolff

"Between friends, differences in taste or opinion are irritating in direct proportion to their triviality."
—W.H. Auden

In bridge tournaments England, Northern Ireland, Scotland and Wales all compete as separate nations now, though generally as one country in athletic events. While England has been very successful in the last couple of years, the "auld enemy," Scotland, has had its moments too. Today's hand comes from a victory by the Scots women against a strong French team.

The French South had opened one diamond, which resulted in a final contract of five diamonds. Declarer lost a trick in each minor along with the heart ace, and went one down.

In this room, Paula Leslie, in the South seat, preferred to open one club and, after a one-heart overcall from West, ended up declaring five clubs.

Here West also started with two top hearts. Leslie ruffed, cashed the club ace, played a club to the king (West discarding a spade and a heart), ruffed dummy's last heart, cashed the ace and king of spades, and ruffed a spade. Leslie decided that West's early spade discard suggested she had started with a five-card suit.

It would have been natural, but careless, to finesse in diamonds. However, declarer realized that she could afford to lose a trick to the diamond queen if East held that card, because she would then be endplayed in the two-card ending, forced to lead away from her jack of trumps into dummy's tenace. So Leslie cashed the ace and king of diamonds and claimed her contract when the queen came tumbling down.

ANSWER: Although the opponents have not found a fit, it would be cowardly to sell out to two spades. You could double for takeout, but you are rather low on defense, and your hearts are nothing to write home about. An alternative is to bid two no-trump. That cannot be natural, of course; instead, it should show both minors and get partner to pick his better suit. Both are reasonable; I prefer the double.

SUDOKU

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Concepts Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.
