MERCURY MYSTERY CONTINUES

Local, state and federal officials search for possible mercury contamination along Pheasant Road West on Wednesday after discovering the toxic element Tuesday in a nearby parking lot in Twin Falls.

Local, state and federal officials on Wednesday continued to investigate the area around a Twin Falls parking lot where mercury was found the day before, broadening their search for the toxic metal.

Several public agencies collected about 2 teaspoons of mercury on Tuesday from a parking lot at 359 Pheasant Road W., containing any health threat they posed. But officials received "relatively consistent" information about mercury in other nearby areas, including tips from children who had played with the substance, said Tom Askew, a hazardous waste science officer with the Idaho Department of Environmental Quality.

"We feel like it warranted enough, just from the information, that we should expand the perimeter," Askew said around noon on Wednesday.

Representatives of the Twin Falls Fire Department, DEQ, U.S. Environmental Protection Agency and Idaho Bureau of Homeland Security cordoned off a wide area around the parking lot and apartment complex at 359 and 341 Pheasant CONCERNED?

Mercury can cause health problems when it comes in contact with the skin or lungs, and the silvery liquid should be properly disposed of when found. Visit <http://www.phd5.idaho.gov/> for information on health risks and symptoms, or call the health district, 737-5900, or DEQ, 736-2190. Anyone with information on the source of the mercury found Tuesday should call Twin Falls City Dispatch at 311.

Judge: Company's complaint against state police stands

By Andrea Jackson
Times-News writer

Twin Falls 5th District Judge Randy Stoker decided Wednesday that a local towing company may proceed with a claim that Idaho State Police was unreasonably harsh in banning it from a list of wrecker companies used to tow vehicles.

The eight-page complaint from A-1 Auto Sales is the second lawsuit filed in recent months against the Idaho State Police in Twin Falls County 5th District Court.

The owner of A-1 towing on Fifth Avenue West, Charles Legg, was banned for life from a rotating list of wrecker companies that ISP uses for towing abandoned or damaged vehicles. Legg sued on June 4.

"Why was I kicked off in the first place? I didn't do anything," Legg said on Wednesday. "I want to be reinstated on the list and move on with my life."

Legg said state police are

Idaho tweaks plan to charge for insurance program

The Associated Press

BOISE — Idaho Medicaid officials say they've tweaked a plan to charge premiums for disabled children who get government-covered health care after hearing from concerned families.

The Katie Beckett program provides medical coverage to about 2,100 Idaho children with disabilities, including those who don't qualify for regular Medicaid coverage. Earlier this year, the Legislature directed the Department of Health and Welfare to establish cost-sharing for the traditionally free program, charging parents a premium.

But some families said they'd have to sacrifice medical services to stay financially afloat under the changes.

The new cost-sharing plan, which goes before the Legislature in 2010, allows for more incremental premium adjustments based on income and provides a discount for families who purchase private insurance for kids as well.

Hatchery cutbacks could mean fewer Northwest steelhead

By Nate Poppino
Times-News writer

HAGERMAN — An Idaho fish hatchery that helps replace thousands of steelhead killed by the presence of four dams in the lower Snake River is seeing its production hurt by declining spring levels in the Thousand Springs area.

That means the Hagerman National Fish Hatchery, operated by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, will have to cut back by about 7 percent the number of steelhead smolts it places in the Salmon River, said hatchery Project Leader Bryan Kenworthy.

The cutback, translating to perhaps 100 fewer adult fish returning to the Pacific Northwest, is but a fraction of the 55,100 steelhead Hagerman and the other hatcheries in the Lower Snake River Compensation Plan strive to provide every year. But Kenworthy's

Higher ed personnel to be cut, official says

By Ben Botkin

For Idaho colleges and universities, there's a short-term future that includes scenarios for potential 4 percent and 6 percent holdbacks in state funding for this fiscal year.

The Idaho State Board of Education will submit recommendations from state institutions on Friday to the Division of Financial Management. With state revenues below projections, holdbacks are anticipated for this fiscal year among state agencies.

With fixed costs that can't decrease and cuts already in place, anticipated holdbacks for this fiscal year will be painful and mean personnel reductions, Ken Edmunds, a member of the Idaho State Board of Education, said Wednesday in a meeting with the Times-News editorial board.

"You can only turn off so many lights," he said.

Edmunds said the board wants to have the same flexibility it has had in the past in deciding how the cuts will be worked into budgets.

At the same time, there's a long-term need to look at what all the state universities and colleges are doing and how to realign the system across the state, Edmunds said.

"We're going to visit the mission statements of our institutions," Edmunds said. "Right now, we have a

MORNING BRIEFING

Pat's Picks

Pat Marcantonio

• Support Declo Elementary School students as they walk laps at the Declo High School track to raise money for the school. Starting at about 8:45 a.m., you can watch — or better yet contribute. Information: Gina Larsen, 654-9697.

• Take in a movie, "De Passagem," a story about a drug run in Sao Paulo that causes the participants to take stock of their lives. It's free and part of the College of Southern Idaho English, Languages and Philosophy Department Latin American Film Night, Noche de Cine Latino, at 7 p.m. in Room 106 of the Canyon Building.

• Legendary actor John Barrymore reminisces about his life and career in "Barrymore's Ghost," a one-man show starring the talented Jud Harmon. The Random Acts of Theatre play will benefit area veterans. Tickets are $10 and play starts at 8 p.m. at the CSI Fine Arts building.

has attracted both private companies and public entities that raise trout, sturgeon and other species.

The springs are fed by the massive Eastern Snake Plain Aquifer, the target of a plan recently adopted by the state of Idaho in an attempt to stabilize its levels. To companies such as Clear Springs Foods of Buhl, losing part of a water right means less fish to sell. To the federal fish hatchery, however, less water means fewer fish for sportsmen and residents of Idaho, Oregon, Washington and even Alaska to enjoy.

"We see it as providing a product for the citizens of the Northwest," Kenworthy said.

It takes work to breed fish that can survive the 900-mile swim to the Pacific Ocean and return to the Columbia and Snake rivers a couple of years later. Kenworthy aims to provide 13,600 adult fish; doing so at the moment requires releasing 1.45 million smolts. The return rate, slightly less than 1 percent, is actually a reasonable one for his type of program.

Kenworthy estimates he'll have to cut back by 100,000 smolts soon. That comes after the Hagerman facility already increased production once to make up for a 160,000-smolt loss at the nearby state-run Magic Valley Fish Hatchery, said Scott Marshall, Fish and Wildlife's program manager for the Lower Snake plan.

In the current year of good fish returns, the loss isn't that great, Marshall said. But it will be felt in years when fewer fish return from the ocean, and the long-term picture for the canyon springs isn't great.

"It could become a huge issue," Marshall said, noting the economic effects his fish have on fisheries around the region.

Fish and Wildlife for now has chosen to participate in the aquifer plan, hoping to stabilize and repair its water rights. And Kenworthy said he's pursuing some in-house steps, including money to possibly re-plumb one spring or rent springwater from another water user.

But the agency is also urging Idaho to provide some short-term relief until a long-term fix is in place, and should the situation continue to degrade, federal officials could still decide to file a water delivery call.

"What we've said is we're willing to be patient," Marshall said.

lot of competition with our own institutions due to the way our system's set up."

Areas such as program duplication or overlap among institutions need to be reviewed with decisions made from there about what's best, Edmunds said.

Edmunds said that other states fund higher education based on performance indicators, which needs to be looked at for Idaho. The state currently has no such system in place for its funding.

Edmunds stressed that it's not a short-term process and will take years to accomplish.

Mercury

Road W., and spent most of the day testing for other spots of contamination. Donning protective suits, they took samples from a nearby empty lot and even from within the apartments, using EPA equipment that detects mercury at very minute levels.

Late in the afternoon, Twin Falls Fire Battalion Chief Brian Cunningham said investigators had turned up few traces of the metal outside the parking-lot site. The work will continue today, he said, as the agencies weren't quite ready to progress to the cleanup stage yet.

"So far, so good," said Cunningham, who is also serving as the incident commander at the scene.

Officials still have yet to figure out where the mercury came from. Though thermometers and similar items can be common sources, the amount found in the parking lot was greater than what's found in just a broken instrument, said Greg Weidel with the EPA.

Residents of the apartments and nearby homes said they were concerned about the presence of the metal, but also just wanted to know more about it. Apartment resident Kendra Reeves said she was worried about exposing her baby to mercury. But James and Mary Shaw, who live down the street, were more curious about what places the element could have ended up in.

"As long as it's not in the water, we don't worry too much about it," Mary Shaw said.

Employees of the South Central Public Health District were at the site to help track down the source of the contamination, and District Director Rene LeBlanc said his office is also working with the other agencies to evaluate exposure the children received. Officials said the Idaho State Police were also helping inform local schools about the issue.

Mercury's more serious effects are caused by long-term exposure, and LeBlanc and Askew said the risk to the children may be less. It is most dangerous as a vapor and Weidel said his greatest concern was the risk of people tracking the mercury inside, where vapors would collect in the enclosed space.

"There's a difference between playing with something a couple times versus somebody who does it for years," LeBlanc said.

a case against him, and believes ISP's removal of his name may be retribution.

He was on the state police list for about a year, and has been off it slightly longer, which he said has cost him thousands of dollars in lost revenue. Police called out wreckers about three to four times a month, Legg said, adding that "I'm not wanting money."

Legg claims it was unjust for ISP to remove his name, though state police are claiming immunity from Legg's complaints.

The judge wants more information from state police. "The court directs that ISP present a more complete record concerning ISP's decision to impose a lifetime ban and argument (for) why the inferences that A-1 contends should be drawn from the undisputed facts are appropriate," Stoker wrote in his ruling Wednesday. "A-1 may pursue its claim for damages relating to the 'lifetime ban.'"

This week state police were successful in getting at least some of Legg's lawsuit dismissed by Stoker. The judge turned down A-1's requests to be reinstated to the list, along with another claim from A-1 detailing alleged preferential towing by state police.

State police imposed an illegal penalty on A-1 and were unreasonable, according to the lawsuit. "A lifetime ban from the ISP Region IV wrecker rotation list is unreasonable, unduly harsh, and imposes an illegal penalty upon A-1 Auto." The conduct of state police was "for the ulterior and improper purpose of causing financial hardship," according to the lawsuit.

Legg said he tried to get back on the list, but state police wouldn't allow it.

According to A-1, state police think the company stole a headache rack from a towed vehicle. The company, however, says the truck accessory in question was presumed abandoned, and never resulted in charges. "Despite numerous requests by Mr. Legg for reinstatement to the ISP Region IV rotation list, said requests have been continually denied on the basis that A-1 Auto committed theft by using the headache rack for its own purposes," the lawsuit reads.

Meanwhile, state police are also fighting another similar lawsuit.

The owner of Dick's Pharmacy in Twin Falls, Daniel Fuchs, sued state police on Aug. 19, claiming the agency overstepped its authority and violated due process in pulling him from waiting lists for state liquor licenses. State police also want that case dismissed and assert Fuchs has not exhausted all administrative remedies.

Court dates aren't set in the cases.

Authorities still seeking man who impersonated officer

By Andrea Jackson
Times-News writer

Authorities are still searching for an unidentified police impersonator that stopped a female motorist more than a month ago and fondled her chest.

Most situations such as the Aug. 3 incident at Hankins Road and Addison Avenue in Twin Falls County don't end in convictions for the crimes of intimidation by false assertion of authority, a misdemeanor, or unlawfully exercising the functions of a police officer, a felony.

The Twin Falls Police Department made arrests on about a quarter of the police impersonation reports they took since January 2001. In that time, city officers took 16 reports of police impersonation, made four arrests, and have five inactive cases.

One case of misdemeanor police impersonation was prosecuted to a conviction in the past 10 years. The Twin Falls County prosecutor's office has charged police impersonation as a misdemeanor twice since 1999, and has gone after the felony charge four times. Motorists have rights to protect themselves from being victims of police impersonation.

According to Twin Falls County Prosecutor Grant Loeb, citizens have the right to ask an officer's name.

"All officers have identification and badges and will be pleased to display these at the request of a citizen," Loeb said. "Citizens who are in doubt as to the legitimacy of an officer can call 911 to verify the identity of any officer detaining them."

If an officer tells the motorist they can't use their cell phone, than Loeb said citizens may "request that the officer call a supervisor to the scene to verify the officer's identity."

The single county conviction involved a police impersonation event that happened in the course of other theft crimes. Michael G. Malson, 21, is serving a sentence of court supervision through 2013 out of the state's probation and parole office in Boise for forgery, theft and drawing checks with insufficient funds. According to local court records Malson told bank clerks that he was an Idaho State Police trooper when they confronted him about check kiting, which involved withdrawing cash before checks cleared.

"Malson had told her (the clerk) that he was an Idaho State police trooper and that he was an Iraqi war veteran," the court record states. "It should be noted that Malson washed out of basic training when he was in the armed forces and never served beyond that."

Police impersonation cases vary. Local cases that made it to court presented no serious injuries, though.

Bruce Duncan McIntyre, 56, allegedly impersonated a federal marshal in 2002 with a star-shaped badge. Court records say he pulled over a female motorist, only to tell her "never mind" and "forget it" when she asked why he pulled her over, and then drove off. McIntyre was charged with a felony police impersonation crime, but pleaded guilty to a lesser charge of disturbing the peace and was sentenced to two years of probation.

Two 42-year-old men, Terry and Jerry Bodily, were charged with the felony offense also in 2002 after they allegedly used a blue police light in the dashboard of a green Mercury Sable to pull a woman over along Blue Lakes Boulevard and then drove away.

"Terry and Jerry both stated that they were out having fun and did not know it was illegal to attempt to pull vehicles over by utilizing a blue flashing light."

The Bodilys both pleaded guilty to lesser charges of disturbing the peace and were sentenced to six-month probations.

A more recent case against a fired Twin Falls County employee is still pending in court. Dennis Anderson, 52, allegedly told police he was tired of neighbors running mini-bikes on the road and claimed he worked for the sheriff's office and would arrest them.

According to court records, Anderson allegedly said, "I want all of your information so I can throw you all in jail ... I'm law enforcement and can do whatever I want and go wherever I want."

Law & Disorder...

... in Cassia County

From Sept. 8 police reports:
Information:

A 58-year-old Rupert man said he was threatened at a dance in Burley by a 48-year-old man — who, the complainant said, threatened to kill him. The next day, the suspect and his girlfriend, 53, came into the sheriff's office to provide their side of the story.

According to the report, the woman said the complainant started the incident at the dance because "he likes her and wants to be with her but she does not feel the same way," adding that she has been with her boyfriend for 21 years and has had a problem with the complainant for years.

The complainant, she said, is married to her sister, 59, but lives with his girlfriend (age unknown). The woman said she told the complainant's daughter to tell her dad to stop pursuing his sister-in-law.

"The daughter said she does not want to get in the middle of any kind of argument," Deputy Peggy Marizza's report reads.

Larceny:
Two Burley males, ages 15 and 16, were cited for theft after they allegedly stole two packages of cold pills from Smith's Food King. One of the teens, according to the report, said "all the kids at the skate park have been talking about popping these pills and that its (sic) even in a song so he decided to get some to take."

No further information was provided about the song the teen eluded to.

Information:

A recently paroled Burley woman, 30, told police that her ex-husband, who has full custody of their three daughters, has been abusing them.

She said, according to the report, that he beats them with a belt, forces them to sleep in a flooded basement, and "makes them drink beer with him."

She wanted the kids to be declared in imminent danger. After questioning the man, inspecting the house, and talking to the kids, Deputy Ty Cahoon concluded that none of the accusations are true. According to the report, the basement was flooded and beer was in the fridge, but the children were immediately moved to a room upstairs after the flood, and there was no indication that they had been drinking beer or were in danger, imminent or otherwise.

Camas County school receives recognition for improvement

Times-News

Camas County Elementary-Junior High School in Fairfield was recognized Tuesday as one of the 2009 Blue Ribbon Schools for improving student performance, the U.S. Department of Education said.

The Blue Ribbon award honors schools for academics, making gains in student achievement and improving gaps in the achievement of minority and disadvantaged students.

The school is one of 314 selected nationwide by the U.S. Department of Education to receive the 2009 Blue Ribbon recognition. The only other Idaho school this year to win the recognition is Webster Elementary School in Lewiston.

Jackpot Elementary School was also selected as a Blue Ribbon School, one of three schools in Nevada to earn the recognition.

Hagerman school district discusses online education

By Kimberly Williams-Brackett
Times-News correspondent

HAGERMAN — The Hagerman Joint School District approved the first reading to implement online courses into its curriculum Monday evening.

The Idaho Digital Learning Academy is a state-sponsored, accredited, online virtual school created in 2002 to provide Idaho students with greater access to a variety of courses and faculty.

Board Chairman Mark Daily asked how IDLA credits would equate to Hagerman's semester system, since nine-, 12-, and 16-week sessions are offered.

"They don't match anyone's schedule," said Principal Mark Kress. "A semester is 18 weeks."

He said teachers fear the IDLA because they view it as a replacement. However, he outlined benefits the program offers students, including providing courses not offered locally and opportunities for dual credit or early graduation.

"Is it easier or tougher? Students have to be self-motivated," said Kress, adding students have to be successful in traditional classes first.

If the IDLA is allowed into the curriculum, the district pays for the credits. Kress said last year there were 18 Hagerman students who took IDLA courses, which cost $50. To take an IDLA class, students must show scheduling conflicts otherwise prevent them from taking a similar course from a district teacher, and cannot take an IDLA course to avoid conflict with a particular teacher, Kress said.

"There is a maximum of eight credits from outside the classroom to attain a Hagerman diploma," said Kress.

The final adoption of the policy will be approved at the October meeting.

In other business, the board approved the first reading of the extended leave of absence policy and a contract for speech therapy.

The school district will focus on improving mathematics ISAT scores, including providing an after-school math program and other possible programs.

Kress asked for board approval to paint the school's mascot on a mural outside the old gym as an art project. Board member Chuck Steele recommended placing it high to prevent vandalism; however, Kress said that would put kids on platforms.

The district will also install an eight-camera system inside the school.

Ethols said he will examine a residential property bordering school property to see if the district is interested in purchasing it.

CSI readies for state holdbacks

By Ben Botkin
Times-News writer

College of Southern Idaho administrators will submit scenarios by the end of the week to Boise that outline how they'll adjust their budget with state holdbacks this fiscal year.

CSI and other state-funded institutions have been asked to provide scenarios for 4 percent and 6 percent holdbacks. CSI administrators and trustees met Wednesday night in a work session that included discussion of the college's budget.

CSI President Jerry Beck said the college's "best guess" is that the holdback figure will be about 6 percent, based on current state revenues.

Besides state funding, other sources for the college to take into account in its budget planning include student fees and property tax revenue.

With enrollment of more than 8,300 students this fall, the budget planning is happening at a time when staff members have busy workloads, officials said.

"It is very serious," Beck said. "It is very trying, and I want to publicly say thank you to all of our employees."

Dollar amounts of how much the holdbacks would amount to for CSI were unavailable Wednesday, and officials are still wrapping up their plans.

State holdbacks in the last fiscal year reduced CSI's state funding then from $13.16 million to about $12.2 million.

CSI's current state academic appropriation is $11.76 million, about 11 percent less than what the college had when its fiscal year 2009 started last year.

Mike Mason, vice president of administration, said that with employment contracts already approved for the year and high enrollment, reducing staff isn't an option.

In other business, officials also discussed the H1N1 flu. Students, if they come into class ill, will be encouraged to go home, while faculty are asked to be flexible if H1N1 flu forces students to stay home, said Jeff Fox, executive vice president and chief academic officer.

Blaine County officials to explore alternatives to Galena cell tower

By Ariel Hansen
Times-News writer

HAILEY — Following the most recent denial by the Sawtooth National Forest supervisor of a plan to place a cell tower atop Galena Summit, county officials are considering their next move.

"The next steps will be getting together a group of people from the Forest Service and county and (Idaho Transportation Department) and start looking at what would be the pluses and minuses, the costs and benefits quite literally," said Angenie McCleary, the Blaine County commissioner taking the lead for the county on the issue.

Among the options the representatives are expected to consider are public 911 call boxes placed at intervals along the highway where cell coverage is spotty, and possibly a repeater for emergency services that would expand their ability to communicate in the area.

Emergency services had planned to piggyback on the cell tower before it was denied on Sept. 2. That tower, designed to appear like a bark-covered tree, would have been 90 feet tall.

"When the cell tower was being proposed on Galena Summit, we thought that'd be a good buy-in for us to co-locate there," said Gene Ramsey, chief deputy at the Blaine County Sheriff's Office. "Right now we're actually trying to move into the digital world and doing a trunk radio system, where you'd have to have access with a T-1, microwave or a landline. We'd need to have a good power source."

Among the issues that need to be identified are where coverage is most important, what the existing coverage map looks like, what the costs might be for different alternatives, and what the funding sources might be.

"Things are always getting modified and worked on," said Jane Kollmeyer, Sawtooth National Forest supervisor. "I haven't heard from the county on any specific proposals."

Both Kollmeyer and Ramsey said they thought call boxes might be a reasonable alternative for public communication with emergency services.

"It's better than we have now. It's not cell coverage but it would be something," Ramsey said.

Kollmeyer suggested that the county look at a similar system installed in Montana in advance of the centennial of the Lewis and Clark expedition.

County plan for Friedman airport transition raises Hailey's hackles

By Ariel Hansen
Times-News writer

HAILEY — The Hailey City Council took up two issues related to airport relocation on Monday night, and came out with firm positions on both.

Members emphasized — again — that there will be no airport in Hailey once the replacement for Friedman Memorial Airport is built, and they reiterated that Hailey is unwilling to give up any decision-making control until Friedman closes.

Hailey and Blaine County are joint sponsors of Friedman, meaning they are responsible for grant assurances and other legalities.

The county will be solely responsible for the replacement airport. The county has said it would like a transition committee to begin learning from the existing Friedman Memorial Airport Authority and eventually take over decisions about the new airport.

The committee would be nominated by cities and appointed by the commissioners, who have said they want the nominees to be explicitly committed to a viable new airport. That has been a concern to both the commissioners and Hailey, as there has been opposition to moving the airport, especially from residents of the north county.

"My concern has been, and always will be, who's on that committee," said Councilwoman Martha Burke, who is also one of Hailey's representatives on the FMAA.

The council worried that the new committee might usurp some elements of the joint sponsorship between Hailey and Blaine County. They also worried that the Federal Aviation Administration might not release the city from its grant obligations even after the new airport is in place.

"I honestly feel we're the ugly stepchild of this joint powers agreement. We're being dictated to, and that bothers me," said Councilman Fritz Haemerle. "Right or wrong we're going to be a sponsor on this airport unless someone releases us."

The council pondered a resolution promising not to sign any additional grant assurances for airport improvements or maintenance, but took no action. Mayor Rick Davis said he might be interested in such a resolution as long as it did not negatively impact safety or health issues.

Instead, the council requested that the county modify its transition committee proposal to give Hailey the right to reject any committee member they see as being obstructive to the process of relocating the airport. They also said the committee should serve only in an advisory authority to the FMAA, rather than doing any decision-making on the airport. The council's representatives are set to take these requests back to the commission soon.

QUOTE

“There is an inherent feeling among many in this country that an African-American should not be president.”
 — Former President Jimmy Carter on U.S. Rep. Joe Wilson's outburst during President Obama's speech to Congress last week.

EDITORIAL

Time to get real about breaching Snake River dams

The Obama administration this week joined the conga line of those who favor breaching the four lower Snake River dams, joining preservationists who've made it an article of faith that dynamiting Lower Granite, Little Goose, Lower Monumental and Ice Harbor dams is the only way to save Columbia River Basin salmon and steelhead runs.

We remain skeptical. Increasingly, this looks like a cherished environmentalist agenda that Idaho taxpayers — and the state's economy — will be invited to pay for.

The Bonneville Power Administration has calculated the tab:

- Total annual cost: $373 million.
- Net annual cost over a 100-year period: $267 million, including higher power rates.
- Economic loss to the Port of Lewiston and north Idaho agriculture: $37.8 million.

Funny, but we don't see the president and members of Congress lining up to write a check to compensate north Idaho and eastern Washington for the damage.

It's easy to craft grand solutions to difficult environmental problems as long as someone else is paying for them. Dam breaching has become the Holy Grail of folks who've never had to meet a payroll, balance a city budget or provide jobs for a community.

It's public policy by magic wand: If dam breaching makes environmental sense, it must make economic sense, too.

Before any serious discussion begins, Idaho must see — in dollars and cents — how the federal government plans to mitigate the damage.

Because we're talking about transforming an economy — and not just a regional one. The loss the deep-water port at Lewiston would change the way Idaho graingrowers do business from Porthill to Preston. It would fundamentally alter the way the Panhandle makes a living, and leave all of Idaho less competitive in the international economy.

That's a lot to ask.

At this point, breaching the four dams remains a fantasy. The burden of proof is on the feds — and environmentalists — to change that.

Our view:

Environmentalists who can barely balance their own checkbooks are inviting Idahoans to pick up the tab for breaching the four lower Snake River dams.

What do you think?

We welcome viewpoints from our readers on this and other issues.

SKILLY THE TIMES PICAYUNE

Why Obama hasn't been able to seal the deal on health care

There's a lot to appreciate in the latest incarnation of the Democrats' Sisyphean-like campaign to overhaul the nation's health care system. In the current environment, matters are growing worse almost by the hour.

Horrendous job losses and an economy that is in shambles are driving up the number of people without health insurance. "Every day," said President Obama in his speech to Congress last week, "14,000 Americans lose their coverage."

This is occurring at the same time that the immense baby boomer generation is approaching retirement age, the age when even under the best of circumstances the need for health care steadily rises.

Even those with health insurance frequently find themselves on shaky ground, worried that they will lose it if they lose their jobs or that the coverage will not meet their real-world needs.

So most Americans are prepared to listen when the Democrats try to make the case for changes that would, among other things, prevent insurance companies from denying coverage because of pre-existing conditions, prevent them from engaging in the perverse practice of canceling policies when the policy-holder gets ill, put an end to arbitrary caps on annual or lifetime coverage and limit what policyholders could be charged for deductibles and out-of-pocket expenses.

When you factor in the explosive costs of health care, which are making American businesses less competitive and threatening to bankrupt the government, the case for reform would seem to be a slam dunk.

But there's a wild card out there undermining the chances for real reform, and it's not the crazies who have been disrupting health care forums. It's the ordinary working men and women of America who are struggling with the worst economic downturn they have ever seen and who are worried that the big new plans that the Democrats have in store may not be in their best interests — and may not be affordable.

Many of those folks already have health insurance, and many voted for Barack Obama. But they're scared to death now as the economy continues to hemorrhage jobs and the budget deficits unfolding before their eyes are being counted in the trillions.

To get meaningful health care reform this time around, the Democrats will have to get that constituency on board. They haven't yet.

For one thing, the various proposals are not at all clear to the general public and the average citizen is clueless as to how any of them would be paid for. To say that people are skeptical is the grossest understatement.

When the administration talks about getting hundreds of billions of dollars in savings from Medicare to help finance health care reform, it sends a shudder not just through Medicare recipients, but also through younger individuals concerned about elderly relatives on Medicare.

The president said in his speech that the savings would come from eliminating "hundreds of billions of dollars in waste and fraud" and the elimination of some unwarranted subsidies. But to the finely tuned ear of the general public, that's exactly what politicians always say: We're going to get rid of waste and fraud.

The administration says this time will be different. One can understand why some will remain unconvinced.

The president also said, as he estimated the cost of his proposal at $900 billion over 10 years, that he "will not sign a plan that adds one dime to our deficits — either now or in the future."

I'm sure he means it. But I have not spoken to anyone, either on Capitol Hill or elsewhere, who believes that is doable. Now it may be that the public should not be so worried about the deficits. They had to be jacked up to get the country through this terrible economic crisis. And health care reform is essential if long-term deficits are to be brought under control.

But people are worried about it. And just saying that health care reform will not add to the deficits is not enough to allay those fears.

What's missing from all the talk about reform is how the runaway costs of health care can be reined in without a strong public insurance option and other big-time cost-saving initiatives.

If the government requires everyone to have health insurance, the insurance companies and the pharmaceutical industry will reap a bonanza. What the Democrats still have to make clear to ordinary working men and women is how this latest incarnation of health care reform will be cost effective and broadly beneficial to them and to their government.

Democrats shouldn't count on young voters in next election President Obama's performance among young voters in 2008 was an electoral tour de force. He thumped his Republican rival John McCain by 34 points (66 percent to 32 percent) among those 18 to 29 years old.

The dramatic shift in the under-30 crowd (Sen. John Kerry, D-Mass., only beat incumbent President George W. Bush by nine points four years earlier) started left-leaning partisans crowing.

But will these voters maintain their fidelity to Democrats? Voters under 30 are still Obama's political anchor. He enjoys a comfortable 58 percent approval among younger voters, according to the most recent Rasmussen poll. But just as Obama's support has declined among all Americans, his approval from voters under 30 also dropped from its high of 69 percent in February.

Movement like this suggests that younger Americans may not have made a life commitment to Obama or the Democratic Party.

Could Republicans swing 15 to 20 percent of this cohort back again? It's possible, particularly because Obama and the Democrats have abandoned several core principles that attracted these voters in the first place.

Here are at least three factors that could begin a reassessment by the millennial generation.

First, wounded idealism. The president promised to rise above the polarized politics of the past. He pledged a post-partisan approach to governing. Yet his legislative proposals have produced rancorous partisan debate and many party-line votes. The town hall meetings this summer revealed deep fistures in American political culture that require healing, not bare-knuckle politics of us-vs.-them.

Second, deficits do matter. The younger generation has asked itself, "Who is left standing in the game of fiscal musical chairs?" And they don't like the answer: It's them. Candidate Obama deflected some of these concerns by promising fiscal responsibility and by criticizing the Bush administration's spending. Yet as David Walker, former head of the Government Accountability Office, told The Wall Street Journal last week, $56 trillion in unfunded liabilities is like forcing everyone to take out second or third mortgages equal to ten times their income. The consequences of these liabilities will land hard on the next generation.

Finally, voters under 30 may be among those most sensitive to more government control over their lives. "This is the most empowered generation ever," Republican media strategist Alex Castellanos said. "They're not used to having anyone tell them what to do."

An encroaching government Leviathan is the opposite of empowerment.

"How many times did we hear 'change' starts from the bottom up; it starts with you," Castellanos added. But in Obama's world, change apparently starts at the top.

It begins in Washington, by passing new laws, rules and regulations.

Obama remains an attractive messenger to Americans under 30. Yet as hope collides with reality, some of the blooms are off the president's garden. Misplaced idealism, getting saddled with mountains of debt, and the loss of freedom due to an encroaching big brother in Washington may not trigger a reassessment of Democrats by younger voters. But it should.

Iraq, Afghanistan policy has to match soldiers' sacrifice

On Sept. 3, The New York Times published a very revealing front-page article from Iraq about a bizarre bank-robbery that summed up the challenge of where we are in Baghdad and Kabul and how to think about what it will take to succeed in both places.

The article began with an appalling tale: Bodyguards for one of Iraq's most powerful men, Vice President Adel Abdul Mahdi, tied up eight security officers at a Baghdad bank, executed them point blank and then made off with $4.3 million in cash. It is the sort of story that leaves war supporters shaking their heads, asking what we have accomplished in six years of U.S. involvement there, and war opponents saying, "I told you so."

But then, suddenly, the story took an interesting turn. It noted that the robbers were quickly identified by witnesses, and most were arrested. After a short trial, a court in Baghdad sentenced four out of the nine robbery suspects to death.

Thomas Friedman

One man was acquitted; the other four are still missing.

Although the plotters are still on the loose, "the robbery also demonstrated in some rickety way that Iraq's young institutions, the judiciary, the news media and its increasingly democratic politics, make it difficult for even the country's most powerful people to snap their fingers and make an embarrassing case go away," the article noted. "And, contrary to the state of affairs under Saddam Hussein, there was an open trial free for anyone to criticize — and they did — even if death sentences were handed down in only two and a half days." All the money was reportedly recovered.

Why is this story revealing? First, Iraqis and Afghans have one big thing in common: They are like battered children. And battered children often grow up to be battering adults. That is, to survive under Saddam in Iraq or to survive the Taliban years in Kabul was to survive terrifying levels of brutality. And it made many people brutal and corrupt to get by.

What you see in this bank robbery story is the struggle between Iraq's old political culture of brutality and corruption and its incipient new one of democracy and the rule of law.

Now that Saddam is gone, we have to hope "that a new generation will grow up with enough rule of law, freedom of speech, freedom of thought and democracy that it will be able to overcome the culture of brutality that Saddam instilled," said Joseph Sassoon, the Baghdad-born author of "Iraqi Refugees" and an adjunct professor at Georgetown. "But we should have no illusions; the batterers may still win."

That is what we have accomplished in Iraq so far: At a huge cost, we have given a chance for a more democratic political culture to emerge in the heart of the Arab-Muslim world. That is not insignificant. But changing a political culture is hard. It will take a long time before one trend decisively wins — and more American help will be needed to keep it on track.

In Afghanistan, the U.S. military is advocating a new strategy, designed to make the Afghan people feel safe in order to get their cooperation in defeating the Taliban. It, too, requires changing the political culture and state-building from bottom up, another long historical process. You can't visit a Greg Mortenson school for girls there without being touched by the necessity of such an effort. But you can't walk through an Afghan town made of mud huts, or observe how our Afghan "allies" perverted the last election, without sensing how hard it will be.

While visiting Afghanistan in July, I met a U.S. diplomat in Helmand province who told me this story: He had served in Anbar, in Iraq, and one day a Marine officer came to him, after carrying a wounded buddy off the battlefield on his back, and said to him, "The policy had better match the sacrifice."

In Iraq, for way too long, our policy did not match the sacrifice of our soldiers. It was badly planned and under-resourced. Before we proceed with this new strategy in Afghanistan we have to give our generals a chance to make their case, we also have to insist that Congress debate it anew, hear other experts, and, if Congress decides to go ahead, to formally authorize it. Like Iraq, it would involve a long struggle, and we can't ask our soldiers to start something we have no stomach to finish.

In short, President Obama has to be as committed to any surge in Afghanistan as President George W. Bush was in Iraq, because Obama will have to endure a lot of bad news before things — might — get better.

Here's what Idaho newspapers are saying about ...

... using rainy-day funds

Idaho Statesman, Boise

Idaho has $275.4 million stashed away in four budget reserve accounts. The time has come to make some withdrawals.

The time has come for Gov. Butch Otter and legislators to put this money into teaching Idaho's children, helping its college students prepare for the work force and helping its Medicaid patients pay for prescription drugs.

These are the state's rainy-day funds. At the risk of stating the obvious, it is still raining.

... State tax collections are well below economists' estimates ... leaving a $151.4 million hole in a $2.5 billion general fund budget for 2009-10.

As bad as those numbers are, the savings accounts would make up the shortfall, with about $125 million to spare.

Is it risky to make such a deep withdrawal out of savings? Absolutely — and budget cuts probably should be part of the equation.

A run on savings goes against every principle of sound budgeting, using one-time reserve dollars to finance ongoing programs ... we don't recommend it lightly ...

... The economy continues to sputter, as demonstrated by tax collections that are falling below projections. (Last) Thursday, Dell computers announced plans to close a Twin Falls call center, eliminating 500 jobs in a state where more than 66,000 people are out of work.

There is no guarantee that tax collections and hiring will rebound quickly. But there is a guarantee that deep budget cuts will do real damage to the government services Idahoans need ...

Post Register, Idaho Falls

Congress is on the verge of spending $5 million to support a "Blue Ribbon Commission" that will be asked to do what has already been done: select the best place to build the nation's nuclear waste repository.

Politics, of course, got in the way of Yucca Mountain. Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid is running for re-election next year in part on a kill Yucca Mountain plank.

He has an able ally in the president, who, in an effort to attract votes in a key swing state last year promised an end to a project the country has spent in the neighborhood of $13 billion investigating.

So, what has this to do with us?

Check out this recent headline in the Idaho Statesman: "Nuclear sites, including the Idaho National Laboratory, fear they're the alternative to Yucca."

If Reid and President Obama succeed in putting the kibosh on Yucca, the Blue Ribbon Commission would presumably be starting from scratch. That means going back to the original list of candidates for a national repository, which included the INL ...

Fourteen years ago, Idaho Gov. Phil Batt signed a landmark deal with the feds to get all the waste out of Idaho by 2035. That deal, however, is only good so long as Idahoans are willing to defend it.

Twice, we've had to do just that. Five years ago, the DOE wanted to dictate to Idaho how much high-level radioactive waste would be left at the site. Idaho was willing to negotiate. The DOE turned first to the courts and then Congress before finally settling on terms palatable to Gov. Dirk Kempthorne.

More recently, the DOE started a spat with Idaho about whether it had to ship "all" transuranic waste out of the state by 2018, which the Batt Agreement clearly says ...

So, even if we aren't the next Yucca, Idaho would find itself becoming a de-facto repository, stuck with what we have and obligated by the Batt Agreement to — temporarily — keep taking more.

Frankly, that's not good enough ...

... let the GOP pay for it

Lewiston Tribune

As long as Idaho's Republican Party is determined to close its primary election to everyone except its own members, why should your tax dollars pay for it?

The state's dominant party cleared a legal hurdle recently when U.S. District Judge B. Lynn Winnmill kept alive the GOP's legal challenge to Idaho's open primary. Republicans say Democrats and independents are crossing over in the GOP primary, interfering with the nomination of their candidates for the November general election.

"We simply ask, and have a right to expect, that members of the Democratic Party or other political parties will not choose our candidates for us," Idaho GOP Chairman Norm Semanko says.

Because the U.S. Supreme Court says a political party has a right of free association, there's every reason to think the GOP eventually will prevail — although Winnmill's insistence upon proof that non-Republicans are crossing over into the GOP primary raises the bar. But Idahoans clearly prefer keeping this primary open to all voters. Ironically, so does the rank and file of the Idaho GOP, which voted last year to retain the system. Only because the GOP's elected leadership is committed to this course is the legal battle still engaged.

Idaho's Republican Party may be a private organization, but it thrives on public money ... Every year, state income taxpayers check-off a box that designates money for the political parties.

Each taxpayer can designate $1 for the political party of his choice. Unlike other income tax return check-off boxes, however, the extra dollar doesn't come from the taxpayer. It comes from the general fund, the same pot that supports schools, universities, health programs and public safety ...

... if the primary election is a private affair, why are you paying for it?

Idaho tapping federal loans for unemployment fund

BOISE (AP) — Idaho has borrowed more than $51 million from the federal government since the start of the fiscal year July 1 to help bail out the state's depleted unemployment insurance trust fund.

State labor officials say that total could grow to $190 million by next spring as the state's economy continues to struggle and unemployment remains at levels unmatched in 25 years.

It marks the first time the state has turned to federal loans to prop up its unemployment trust fund, and comes at a time when Idaho employers are dealing with a 70 percent increase in the unemployment tax rate. A labor department official says employers should brace for even higher tax rates to kick in this spring.

"The rate will go up in 2010 and it will go up more than it did this year," Bob Fick, spokesman for the Idaho Department of Labor, told the Spokesman-Review.

Employers are paying higher unemployment taxes this year thanks to an overhaul of the system approved by lawmakers in 2006 designed to make the tax more responsive to the market and economy. The system requires automatic tax increases to keep the fund solvent, but this year's 70 percent boost is failing to meet demand on the trust fund.

With unemployment ranging between 7 and 8 percent through most of this year, the state anticipates dishing out $550 million in federal and state unemployment benefits in fiscal 2010, snapping the record set last year at $247 million.

"We kinda knew we were in a situation where, given the severity of this downturn, and particularly the severity for Idaho, things really weren't going to be looking good for this fund."

— Alex LaBeau, president of the Idaho Association of Commerce and Industry

Sen. John Goedde, R-Coeur d'Alene, says he hopes business owners are prepared to handle the tax burden.

"I just hope those businesses that didn't pay additional unemployment tax over the course of the last few years invested it wisely and will be able to afford these higher rates," said Goedde, who served on the 2005 task force that proposed the tax reform.

The benefit to the revamped system, however, is the lower rates employers are charged when the economy is healthy. Even with the 70 percent tax increase, employers are still paying less this year than they were in 2005 and 2006, officials say.

An executive with the state's top business lobby says the organization has no plans to push for a tax break. "We kinda knew we were in a situation where, given the severity of this downturn, and particularly the severity for Idaho, things really weren't going to be looking good for this fund," said Alex LaBeau, president of the Idaho Association of Commerce and Industry. "It's not on our list as something that we are going to push for legislative amendments."

As many as 20 states are borrowing from the federal government to offset depleted unemployment benefit funds. A provision of the federal economic stimulus bill makes such borrowing interest-free through 2010.

County says Idaho public defenders suit resolved

CALDWELL (AP) — Attorneys who sued the state and a southwestern Idaho county earlier this year over the way public defenders are chosen and paid have agreed to drop their lawsuit, Canyon County officials said.

Each side has agreed to pay its own attorney fees and court costs under a stipulation filed Tuesday, said Canyon County deputy prosecutor David Lorello. A judge still has to approve the agreement.

"Essentially they just walked away from the lawsuit," Lorello said. "Obviously we're pleased with the result."

Canyon County officials notified Klaus Wiebe and Scott Fouser earlier this year that their contracts to represent indigent defendants was being terminated.

Wiebe and Fouser have represented local defendants who can't afford an attorney since 1997. They fired back with a lawsuit in 3rd District Court in April, seeking to prevent Canyon County from ending the contract and asking for $750,000 in damages.

On a broader basis, the lawsuit sought to determine whether the state spends enough money on public defenders so that indigent people accused of a crime can be fairly represented.

The two men stopped coming to work in early August after a judge upheld their termination, the Idaho Press-Tribune reported.

The case had been scheduled to go to trial next week, the Idaho Statesman said.

But Wiebe and Fouser seemed to give up on the case after losing their bid to overturn the termination, Prosecuting Attorney John Bujak said.

"I thought they were seeking state reform," Bujak said. But as soon as their contract went away, they dropped the lawsuit, he said.

Commissioners have chosen Mark Mimura, public defender for nearby Gem County, from a list of attorneys to replace Wiebe and Fouser.

Mimura practices criminal, family and administrative law with law offices in Emmett and Meridian.

Manufacturers leading early stages of recovery

Inflation almost nonexistent; growth expected to taper off at end of year

By Christopher S. Rugaber and Jeannine Aversa
Associated Press writers

WASHINGTON — Signaling that manufacturers are leading the economy into a recovery, output from the nation's factories, mines and utilities posted widespread gains in August.

In a further dose of good news, inflation remained essentially nonexistent as prices scarcely rose last month. The August gains in industrial production marked the second straight increase after the global recession dried up the appetites of customers worldwide. Output rose 0.8 percent, the Federal Reserve said Wednesday, beating analysts' estimates.

In part, the improvement reflected auto sales that were boosted by the government's now-ended Cash for Clunkers program. But analysts were impressed that output rose broadly across industries.

"Vehicles are not the whole story," Nigel Gault, chief U.S. economist at IHS Global Insight, said in a note to clients.

Gault noted that production rose in five out of 10 cat-

MORE GROWTH, NO INFLATION: Government data show the nation's factories, mines and utilities boosted production for the second straight month in August, the latest sign of an economic recovery. At the same time, inflation remains in check.

WHAT CHANGED? Industrial production increased partly because the Cash for Clunkers program spurred greater auto manufacturing. But the gains were widespread as production of steel and other metals, electrical equipment and appliances, and industrial machinery also rose.

WHAT'S NEXT?: Economists expect industrial production will keep growing, though not as strongly, since the clunkers program has ended. Companies have sharply reduced inventories and will likely produce more as businesses restock later this year.

"It is a scandal to dump this, but we have to realize what the situation is. We need a farm revolt."

— BELGIAN FARM LEADER ERWIN SCHOEPGES

Farmers spray milk on a field in Ciney, Belgium, Wednesday. Farmers in Belgium dumped 790,000 gallons of fresh milk to underscore that European producers can't make a living from current rock-bottom milk prices.

EU farmers in white heat over milk prices; farmers in Belgium spray milk on field

By Raf Casert
Associated Press writer

BRUSSELS — Belgian farmers sprayed 790,000 gallons of fresh milk onto their fields Wednesday, furious over the low milk prices they say are bankrupting farmers.

Milk farmers' groups said world prices had sunk so much they are having to sell milk at half their production costs, leaving more and more farmers unable to pay their bills.

To highlight their desperation, about 300 tractors dragged milk containers through plowed fields in southern Belgium, dumping a day's worth of milk production in that region.

"It is a scandal to dump this, but we have to realize what the situation is," said Belgian farm leader Erwin Schoepges. "We need a farm revolt."

The crisis has driven many EU farmers into a "milk strike," with thousands refusing to deliver milk to the industrial dairy conglomerates that produce anything from skimmed milk to processed cheese.

Romuald Schaber, the president of the European Milk Board farmers' group, said up to half the milk farmers in some areas were refusing to deliver their milk and predicted the first shortages could hit some supermarkets as early as next week.

"We are looking at a real catastrophe. Nobody can produce milk at these prices," he said.

To raise milk prices from the current .26 cents to .35 cents a kilo to the .58 cents they say it required to cover costs, the farmers are demanding tougher EU production quotas. More government support is essential to stave off bankruptcies, they claim.

But the Europe-wide protests have also suffered from a lack of unity among farmers, with many either objecting to the spilling of milk or the strike itself.

The 27-nation EU already pays for extra help to farmers in addition to the $80 billion it pays annually for support payments, market regulation, storage aid, rural

Mayors' panel, realtors discuss M.V. housing market

By Blair Koch
Times-News correspondent

Although the area's real estate market is anything but robust, area realtors are remaining proactive; gaining insight and knowledge about the communities within their market.

On Tuesday mayors from Buhl, Filer, Gooding, Hagerman, Jerome, Kimberly and Twin Falls met with the South Central Idaho Women's Council of Realtors Chapter for a panel discussion titled, "Eye on Your Community?"

Each mayor was asked to answer how they would sell their town to prospective homebuyers.

Filer Mayor Bob Templeman said, "Even though we're a bedroom community, we're still a good place to live."

Filer, like other Magic Valley cities, is home to many residents who work and shop in Twin Falls but prefer a smaller town's schools, recreational opportunities, affordable housing and community relationships.

Twin Falls Mayor Lance Clow said he would ask prospective home buyers what they wanted in their community and then point out all the city has to offer.

"I think if you spend more time talking about what we do have instead of focusing on what we don't, you'll sell a lot of homes," Clow said.

Bonnie Boeker, associated broker with Canyonside Irwin Realty, said the meeting will help realtors sell homes.

"Women's Council is all about educating realtors and making better realtors," Boeker told the Times-News. Found: A firm place to stand outside solar system

By Seth Borenstein Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON - Astronomers have finally found a place outside our solar system where there's a firm place to stand - if only it weren't so broiling hot. As scientists search the skies for life elsewhere, they have found more than 300 planets outside our solar system. But they all have been gas balls or can't be proven to be solid. Now a team of European astronomers has confirmed the first rocky extrasolar planet.

An artist's rendition shows the first rocky extrasolar planet, called Corot-7b. European astronomers confirmed the discovery Wednesday.

Scientists have long figured that if life begins on a planet, it needs a solid surface to rest on, so finding one elsewhere is a big deal. 'We basically live on a rock ourselves,' said co-discoverer Artie Hatzes, director of the Thuringer observatory in Germany. 'It's as close to something like the Earth that we've found so far. It's just a little too close to its sun.'

This is a major discovery in the field of trying to find life elsewhere in the universe, said outside expert Alan Boss of the Carnegie Institution. It was the buzz of a conference on finding an Earth-like planet outside our solar system, held in Barcelona, Spain, where the discovery was presented Wednesday morning. The find is also being published in the journal Astronomy and Astrophysics. The planet is called Corot-7b. It was first discovered earlier this year.

European scientists then watched it dozens of times to measure its density to prove that it is rocky like Earth. It's in our general neighborhood, circling a star in the winter sky about 500 light-years away. Each light-year is about 6 trillion miles. Four planets in our solar system are rocky: Mercury, Venus, Earth and Mars. In addition, the planet is about as close to Earth in size as any other planet found outside our solar system.

Its radius is only one-and-a-half times bigger than Earth's and it has a mass about five times the Earth's. Now that another rocky planet has been found so close to its own star, it gives scientists more confidence that they'll find more Earth-like planets farther away, where the conditions could be more favorable to life, Boss said. 'The evidence is becoming overwhelming that we live in a crowded universe,' Boss said.

White House: Criticism of Obama not based on race

WASHINGTON (AP) - The White House says President Barack Obama doesn't believe he's being criticized because of his race. Spokesman Robert Gibbs said Wednesday that Obama - the nation's first black president - doesn't think that criticism of his policies is 'based on the color of his skin.'

Idaho approves special wolf tags

By Andrew Weeks
Times-News writer

State fish and game officials Wednesday approved a plan to issue special wolf hunting tags to be auctioned for state conservation projects and wolf management.

"It was a quick meeting. It probably didn't last more than 10 minutes," Idaho state Fish and Game Commissioner Wayne Wright said of the meeting held via conference call Wednesday morning in Boise.

Ten wolf tags will be distributed to nonprofit organizations in the state, later to be sold or auctioned to raise money for wolf conservation and management efforts, including aerial monitoring, radio collaring and harvest surveys, Deputy Director Jim Unsworth said. Money also will help enhance deer and elk monitoring in parts of the state.

The plan is similar in some ways to special tags the state makes available for bighorn sheep, which are auctioned publicly through a nonprofit organization to raise money for bighorn sheep habitat.

Idaho Department of Fish and Game already has select-

AVAILABLE TAGS

Groups to receive the special wolf hunting tags were selected based on their market ability to maximize revenue, according to Brad Compton, big game manager for Fish and Game. All had submitted proposals:

- Tag 1 will be sold by the Congressional Sportsmen Foundation on Oct. 14 in a live auction at the Wine, Wheels and Wildlife event in Lexington, N.C.

- Tags 2 and 7 will be sold by the Safari Club International, Treasure Valley Chapter, Nov. 15 on eBay.
- Tags 3 and 8 will be sold by the Mule Deer Foundation on Sept. 30 through sealed Internet bids.
- Tags 4 and 10 will be sold by Sportsmen for Fish and Wildlife on Oct. 1 in an online auction.

- Tags 5 and 9 will be sold by the Rocky Mountain Elk Foundation on Oct. 3 in a live auction in Mackey.
- Tag 6 will be sold by the Idaho Sportsmen's Caucus Advisory Council on Oct. 29 in a live auction at a National Assembly of Sportsmen's Caucuses event in McCall.

ed the nonprofit organizations that are to receive the tags, Unsworth said. The organizations selected will be able to auction the tags at their convenience at banquets and other events throughout the season, he said.

The wolf tags will be something of a keepsake for hunters.

Protecting your head while keeping you visible

File this under the drawer marked "Why Not?": A bike helmet with built-in safety lights. That's the stand-out feature on Lazer Helmets' Urbanize N'Light, a hard hat made for commuting and city riding with a white light on front and a red blinker on back.

A rider wearing the Urbanize N'Light, which costs $100, kills two safety birds with one stone. The helmet protects your head in case of a crash; the small LED lights keep you visible to cars while cruising on a road at night.

THE GEAR JUNKIE
Stephen Regenold

It sounds funny, I know, but the light-equipped Lazer helmet worked pretty slick in my trial. Out of the box, the plastic light modules pop in place in slots on the helmet. There's a small switch on each light face to turn them off and on.

Granted, this is not a performance helmet. The Urbanize N'Light — which looks to be a cross of a new-school freestyle ski helmet and something out of motocross — is bulky and has only six vents. It is too warm for intense rides.

Compared to the racing helmets I am used to, the Urbanize N'Light is heavy, too. It weighed 1 pound 1 ounce on my scale with its lights installed.

But what it lacks in performance, the helmet makes up for in convenience. When heading out at night, I could simply throw this helmet on and ride away — no need to attach lights to my bike.

The helmet's lights are bright in the dark, but dim in the day. They do not serve to illuminate a dark path or road ahead of you. But cars will see you better at night with this helmet on.

Adding extra illumination on your handlebars or messenger bag is never a bad idea. But I felt safe with just the helmet's blinking light as signal to my presence on the street. Lazer includes its Chrissy Gove cut a sleek figure as she skimmed across Redfish Lake, stretching out to take long strokes with her long-shafted paddle as motorboats buzzed by a couple hundred feet away.

"Look," said one man, looking up from the beach where he'd been sunning himself. "Is that woman walking on water?"

Not quite. But the Ketchum woman did often appear to have achieved an otherworldly status as light waves rolled over her board.

"It certainly is peaceful and relaxing, even on a busy lake like Redfish," she said.

It can be a jolt stumbling across a surfboard in a back-country ski shop like Ketchum's Backwoods Mountain Sports.

Lake Walcott opens new visitor's center

By Laurie Welch
Times-News writer

LAKE WALCOTT STATE PARK — State and local dignitaries along with Minnicassia residents gathered Wednesday to open the new Lake Walcott State Park Visitor's Center.

"I think it's great," said Lake Walcott State Park Manager Trapper Richardson, whose 10-year anniversary at the park fell on Sept. 16. "We've waited a long time for this office."

Richardson said the new 1,200-foot facility, which faces toward the winter sun to maximize energy savings, will include a visitor's center that will house an area for retail such as disc-golf equipment as well as a new office for himself and park ranger Travis Taylor.

Previously, park officials' offices were located in an old single-wide trailer that was handed down to them from the City of Rocks and had once withstood a flood.

"That trailer is a terrible thing," Richardson said. "Now they are almost afraid to move it."

The trailer will be used to house maintenance projects until a new shed can be built.

Richardson said the new visitor's center, which sports basalt rock from the north side of the park and big wood beams, replicates the style of architecture used when the Civilian Conservation Corps built other structures in the parks between 1931 and 1941.

State Sen. Dean Cameron,

R-Rupert, said it was an exciting day for the park, which is a place that holds a lot of sentiment for him.

Cameron said the development of the park was the first cooperative effort in Idaho of state, federal and private entities working together on a project. He said the new visitor's center, which cost $427,000, was completed with money that was appropriated several years ago by the Idaho

'Ruffin' it with a New England Firearms 20 gauge

For many the first week of September is a notable occasion. For me as a teacher and parent, its arrival marks the end of summer and the beginning of another school year. As an inveterate bird hunter, Sept. 1 sirens the opening of the best of all seasons: the ruffed- and blue-grouse seasons.

SHOOTING THE BULL Rich Simpson

Biologists have indicated that our area's unusually wet spring played havoc with the nesting success of both species. So, expect to encounter fewer and smaller birds. As my early excursions indicate, there are birds out there but you'll have to push more cover to find them.

The Ruffed grouse (Bonasa umbellus) that I primarily hunt is a creature of riparian zones, meaning it prefers to skulk the thick mixed cover of creek and river lowlands and bordering aspen/pine hillsides. We are on the margins of its preferred range, but again, putting boots on the ground in suitable cover should have birds flushing before your gun on most hunts.

After years of searching, I think I've found the perfect shotgun for threading through the thick mix of water birch, willow, cottonwood and snagging Hawthorne that these elusive forest chickens call home.

RICH SIMPSON/For the Times-News

Manufactured by H&R 1871 — also known as New England Firearms since its purchase by the Marlin Firearms Co. in 2000 — the break-open single shot model I adore is known as the Pardner Compact. Designed specifically for youth or smaller-framed adults, the gun sports an abbreviated 22-inch plain barrel and shortened butt stock ideal for moving through tight cover. Unlike the full-size shotguns I used to drag through these briar snags, the bantam-weight Pardner is easily maneuvered through grouse cover and can be carried all day without fatigue.

I use to shy away from single-shot firearms, believing that a lot of firepower was needed to put meat in the freezer; now I've discovered that the true joy of the hunt is in the pursuit, not in the tally of game at day's end. But don't be deceived by this philosophic babbling. The single-shot Pardner is still a highly-effective hunting tool. By carrying an extra shell or two between the fingers of my off hand, I am — with practice — able to quickly reload the gun for rapid follow-up shots when needed. Its modified fixed choke throws uniform patterns with both the light field loads designed for upland game and the heavier waterfowl and turkey shot.

Talk about versatility. I fired some of Winchester's Light 20-gauge slugs through it and got remarkably tight groups. For these reasons, it also is my home-defense shotgun and camp firearm of choice.

Still can't justify buying a new gun for grouse? Why not consider doing what I did? Buy the gun — which you can purchase for a starting price of about $120 — for your son or daughter and borrow it when you go out for grouse or doves or ducks. Great little gun that comes in 12-, 20-, 28-, and .410-gauge.

Now also is an ideal time to stock up on shells. Local vendors are offering upland and waterfowl bulk packs at unbelievable prices. I recently bought a 100-pack of upland loads for $20 and a 100-pack of steel waterfowl loadings for less than $30.

So why not grab your Pardner, stuff your vest with some shells and head for the grouse haunts? You just may rediscover why you took up hunting all those years ago.

Good shooting!

New plan would reduce pollution in Spokane River

SPOKANE, Wash. — The Ecology Department has announced a plan to reduce phosphorus pollution in the Spokane River, cutting algae blooms and improving water quality for fish in Long Lake.

The plan announced Tuesday still needs state and federal approval. It aims to cut phosphorus levels by 90 percent within a decade and would cost about $500 million.

The Spokesman-Review reports it calls for upgrades at sewage treatment plants and industries that discharge into the river, better control of farm and stormwater runoff and some changes in how Avista operates its Spokane River dams.

Post Falls City Manager Eric Keck says it wants to clean up its discharges but says the proposed goal is arbitrary and unreachable with current technology.

2 elite skydivers die when chutes tangle near Lodi

LODI, Calif. — Two members of an elite skydiving team were killed when their parachutes got entangled at 6,000 feet during a group jump in Northern California.

Bill Dause — owner of the Parachute Center near Lodi — says the men were part of the Red Line jumping team, an eight-member group who was practicing Sunday for the U.S. Parachute Association national skydiving championships next month.

Dause says the team was jumping in close formation when three parachutes became entangled. One diver was able to separate and safely deploy his chute, another died immediately on hitting the ground, and another died at a hospital. Authorities have not released their names.

Dause says the two skydivers had each jumped more than 4,000 times.

WASHINGTON — Government scientists figure that one out of five male black bass in American river basins have egg cells growing inside their sexual organs, a sign of how widespread fish feminizing has become.

The findings come from the U.S. Geological Survey in its first comprehensive examination of intersex fish in America, a problem linked to women's birth control pills and other hormone treatments that seep into rivers. Sporadic reports of feminized fish have been reported for a few years.

The agency looked at past data from nine river basins — covering about two-thirds of the country — and found that about 6 percent of the nearly 1,500 male fish had a bit of female in them. The study looked at 16 different species, with most not affected.

But the fish most feminized are two of the most sought-after freshwater sportfish: the largemouth and smallmouth, which are part of the black bass family. Those two species were also the most examined with nearly 500 black bass tallied.

"It's widespread," said USGS biologist Jo Ellen Hinck. She is the lead author of the study, published online this month in Aquatic Toxicology. She said 44 percent of the sites where black bass were tested had at least one male with egg cells growing inside.

ON THE NET

U.S. Geological Survey: <http://www.usgs.gov/newsroom/article.asp?ID=2305>

Past studies have linked the problem to endocrine-disrupting hormones, such as estrogen from women's medicines. While the fish can still reproduce, studies have shown they don't reproduce as well, Hinck said.

Intersex fish are also seen as a general warning about what some experts see as a wider problem of endocrine disruptors in the environment.

The egg cells growing in the male fish's gonads can only be seen with a microscope after the fish has been caught and dissected.

Permanent Building Funds and a grant from the U.S. Department of the Interior, Bureau of Reclamation.

State Sen. Denton Darrington, R-Declo, who is chairman of the Idaho Department of Administration's Permanent Building Fund Advisory Council, said it can be difficult for small agencies like the state parks and recreation department to accomplish big projects because of the way state funds are appropriated.

Steve Bouffard, who managed the Minidoka National Wildlife Refuge from 2000 until he retired in 2008 and now lives in Boise, said he and Trapper often conspired together to build a center like this as well as implement other projects that have come to fruition such as the wheelchair accessible fishing pier and a program for the blind, which allows them to appreciate the bird species in the park.

"This is really cool," Bouffard said. "And it's sure better than that trailer."

quicker than those without long paddles.

"And you know whoever catches the wave first gets first dibs on it," said Backwoods salesman Taul Paul.

Just in the past few years it's made it to mainland coastal cities like San Diego, as well as inland lakes, ponds and even Class II- and III-minus streams and rivers.

"It's a good way to get out there, especially for those who grew up surfing," said Schaefer. "There's a big club now in Bend, Ore., that paddleboards on the Deschutes River and nearby lakes. They're paddleboarding in the whitewater park at Glenwood Springs, Colo. And they're even beginning to go off waterfalls. It's like windsurfing and other sports. Once it takes off, people start pushing it to the extremes."

The fiberglass and epoxy paddleboards are thicker, wider and longer than surfboards. They're 12- to 19-foot long and between 28 to 30 inches at midpoint, which enhances the balance.

The rider can sit, kneel or even lay on them. But typically they stand on them, paddling with what looks like an over-long canoe paddle.

Cost generally ranges from about $799 for a good recreational board to $1,600 for high-performance boards. Custom boards can cost as much as $3,000. They're also available for rent. Redfish Lake, for instance, rents them for $20 for an hour or $12 for a half-hour. Backwoods rents them out for $40 a day.

"Surfing's definitely a foreign idea in Idaho. But people love paddleboarding, even little kids," said Nick Scrivner, who works at the marina at Redfish Lodge.

Gove used to surf in Hawaii before moving to Ketchum 18 years ago — "I came to ski and I'm still here," said the realtor.

She decided to give paddleboarding a try while her husband and children went boating and quickly found that it was a good workout.

"It takes a lot of leg strength and core strength. And a tremendous amount of coordination balancing yourself," she said.

It's best to start out on your knees to get a feel for it, said Scrivner. The learning curve is quick — most people can begin standing up within minutes. The boards are a little tipsy but not as tipsy as a hardshell kayak.

"I love it. I like that you can sit on the board or stand on it," said 11-year-old Hailey resident Sarah Rau, who tried both solo paddling and sharing a board with her 8-year-old brother David and their friends Shelly and Adrian Green.

"It's great for families. And it's a great sport for our community where everyone is into self-propelled sports," said Schaefer. "I've seen kids who are 3 and 4 paddling along with their dads. And I've seen people as old as 75 hop on one."

made very attractive so people can hang on their walls or use them to take a wolf," Wright said. "For some people, it's obviously important to have one of the first wolf tags in Idaho."

Agency spokesman Niels Nokkentved said the tags are special because they were among the first printed, with tag numbers starting at 001. The tags made available to hunters last month started with the number 101.

Idaho's public wolf hunt began earlier this month, and expanded Tuesday to include two more hunting zones.

'SHE'S NO SLOUCH'

Oregon centenarian still fly fishing the McKenzie

By Mike Stahlberg
The (Eugene) Register-Guard

The first female member of the Flyfisher's Club of Oregon, Dixie Monkhouse is also a world traveler, an adventurous nature lover with an appetite for life, a charming and witty conversationalist and an active volunteer.

Oh, we should mention Mrs. Monkhouse is also a centenarian.

That's right, the grand dame of the McKenzie River observed her 100th birthday Monday — less than a week after one of her regular outings in the bow of guide Don Wouda's drift boat, casting dry flies at McKenzie redside trout.

And no placid stretches of water for Mrs. Monkhouse, who keeps an exercise bike but no rocking chair on the porch of the tiny two-room riverside cabin that has served as her summer home for more than half a century.

She prefers the frothy, fast-moving upper McKenzie between Olallie and Paradise, where anglers must accurately fling dry flies into small pockets of water likely to hold fish.

"She's no slouch; she knows how to read water," said Wouda, who's been taking Mrs. Monkhouse fishing for about 40 years.

And don't think for a minute that a day on the water is just a boat ride for Mrs. Monkhouse.

"She's good — and she's always dry-fly-fishing, nothing else," said Wouda, who still vividly remembers the day five years ago when his 95-year-old client caught 17.5- and 18-inch rainbow trout within a span of 20 minutes.

"I thought to myself at the time that there's probably not another woman in the world who has done that — and not many men," said Wouda.

Centenarian Dixie Monkhouse casts her fly on the waters of the McKenzie River Sept. 1 in Eugene, Ore., with fishing guide Don Wouda, with whom she fishes once a month. Monkhouse, the first female member of the Flyfisher's Club of Oregon, turned 100 on Sept. 7.

Dixie herself considers her best day on the water to be the one in which she boated seven fish over 14 inches while fishing with Wouda near the Fish Ladder, the only class IV rapid on the McKenzie.

Mrs. Monkhouse has been using the same tackle since 1959 — a 2¾-ounce fiberglass rod and Hardy reel purchased at Abercrombie & Fitch in New York City.

"I've caught steelhead on this, which is really fun," she said, proudly showing a visitor a rod so limber one could feel a butterfly land on its tip.

She acknowledges that her guides don't think the mini fly rod, which lacks backbone enough to force a

"She knows every bird and wildflower in the Cascades and has hiked most of the trails. To say she is a nature lover is an understatement."

— Garrett Scales, nephew of Dixie Monkhouse big fish to the net, is all that much fun.

"That rod drives you nuts," Wouda said.

In any event, Mrs. Monkhouse clearly has angling credentials worthy of any fly-fishing club. In December 2004, the Portland-based Flyfisher's Club of Oregon broke tradition by making her its first woman member. The vote was unanimous.

"When Dixie is not fishing, she plays golf at Tokatee and hit a hole in one when she was 90," one of her nephews, Garrett Scales, wrote in the letter of nomination. "She knows every bird and wildflower in the Cascades and has hiked most of the trails. To say she is a nature lover is an understatement."

Mrs. Monkhouse fell in love with the McKenzie in the early 1950s, when she and her husband first vacationed in the area with her parents. In 1955 they purchased 400 feet of frontage on the McKenzie for $7,500.

It came with the structure that they named "The Monkabin."

She was already an avid angler.

"My dad introduced me to fishing when I was a girl," she said during a recent interview on her porch, from which she often waves at whitewater rafters passing just a long cast away.

"We used to go on the upper Klamath and fish, and of course, when we started coming here, we fished for steelhead. They used to stock it (with steelhead), but then they found it did the trout harm and they don't stock it anymore."

Dixie was born Sept. 7, 1909 in San Francisco. Her only brother, four years older, was in his crib when the earthquake of 1906 hit. She grew up hearing stories of the family having to camp out in Golden Gate Park after the quake.

Mrs. Monkhouse loves flying in small planes and several times has commuted between her winter home in the San Francisco area and the McKenzie in a single-engine plane flown by a nephew who works as an airline pilot.

She has returned to the McKenzie every year since 1955. And while she doesn't fish as much as she once did, she's been out "four or five times this year, and plan to go several more."

When not fishing, Mrs. Monkhouse reads, volunteers at the Blue River Library, keeps in touch with friends around the world via her laptop computer, and watches a little television. Her favorite program is Oregon Field Guide. "I love it. I'm sorry there isn't some way to see it when I'm back in California because I miss it," she said.

Asked the obligatory question about what she attributes her longevity to, Mrs. Monkhouse replied:

"Well, besides good luck and good genes, I think lots of sleep and a good breakfast."

Her morning menu that day: "I had some orange juice and cranberry juice and a nice big bowl of grits with a beaten egg and some sausage in it and two cups of coffee."

Oh, don't forget that exercise bike on the porch.

Meanwhile, back on the river, Mrs. Monkhouse doesn't look anywhere near ready to hang up her light-weight fly rod, even if she needs more help now than she once did.

"My guides want to spoil me," she said. "They put the rod together and put the fly on, too."

Her favorite fly? "Any dry fly that catches fish."

Celebrate the autumnal equinox Tuesday, the equinox next Saturday

At 3:19 p.m. Tuesday, the line formed by the intersection of the earth's equatorial and orbital planes will point directly at the sun.

More prosaically, autumn will officially begin.

That makes Tuesday the autumnal equinox, when an observer on the equator will see the sun pass directly overhead at midday. The word "equinox" derives from the Latin words for "equal night" (implying day and night of equal length). But it's a misnomer, because day and night on the equinox aren't equal.

Not until Saturday, Sept. 26 will day and night last 12 hours each. On this so-called "equilux" (meaning "equal light") the sun will set at 7:29 p.m., rising the following morning at 7:29 a.m.

The four-day lag between equinox and equilux occurs because the sun appears as a disk in our sky, not a point. Sunrise is the moment when the first glint of sunrise clears the local ideal horizon. (The ideal horizon is what you'd see on a calm day on the ocean.) Sunset is when the last glint of sun disappears below the ideal horizon.

The sun appears to travel 360 degrees around the sky daily, or one degree every four minutes. The sun's disk is half a degree wide, so it appears to move its own diameter every two minutes. At the equator, the sun's center clears the horizon one minute after the first

OUTDOOR SNAPSHOTS: KANE LAKE

Dan and Elaine Bryant, of Gooding, after reading 'Pat's Picks' (July 30) decided to take Pat Marcantonio up on her suggestion to hike the 1.5-mile trail to Kane Lake in Custer County. The couple, along with three friends, hiked to the lake Aug. 23. Elaine wrote: 'My husband, Dan, has a real eye for spotting wildlife. He saw this pine marten and I was able to get close enough to get some photos.' Want to try the hike yourself? From Ketchum, take Trail Creek Road past the summit to Kane Creek Road, then another 5 miles or so to the trailhead. As a regular feature in the Outdoors section, called Outdoor snapshots, we'd like to publish readers' outdoor photos. Send photos and information to Outdoors Editor Andrew Weeks at aweeks@magicvalley.com. Or send hard copy submissions to him at 132 Fairfield St. W., Twin Falls, ID, 83303. It comes in two sizes — XS-M and L-XL — to fit most adult heads. I wore the L-XL, which fits heads about 22.8 inches to 24 inches around. I wish there were more sizes, as I was at the smaller end of the L-XL range and the helmet looked big on my head.

Jerome scuttles name change for senior center

By John Plestina
Times-News writer

JEROME — When the new Jerome Senior Citizens Center opens this fall, it will retain its name, which will save the city from the risk of having to repay $150,000 in grant funding.

With a new building on North Lincoln Street nearly complete, the city has scrapped plans to name the center the "Jerome Community Center," a proposal that outraged senior citizens who use the existing senior center in the historic railroad depot on First Avenue East.

City Administrator Ben Marchant said last week that the city was going to name the new building a community center because a majority of the city's voters approved general obligation bonds to fund the project and the building would be open to people of all ages.

"At this point, it needs to be called the Jerome Senior Citizens Center per the language of the Idaho Community Development Block Grant," Marchant said Monday.

Also at issue is whether the operator of the current senior center, Jerome Senior Citizens Inc., or the city will have the right to rent the center out for meetings and special events, and which entity would keep the proceeds. The dispute includes hours of operation, future revenues and management of the facility.

The center hosts the Kiwanis Club, other organizations, and is available for rentals for weddings, reunions and other events.

Marchant said disputed lease terms remain unresolved.

Senior Center Board Chair Geneva Ellis said she was very happy that the city scuttled the proposal to call the building anything other than a senior center.

The center's site manager, Chris Shelton, said Idaho Community Development advised against naming the building a community center. She said a new name could jeopardize about $150,000 in grant funding the city accepted for the new building.

Ellis said about 100 people turned out for a meeting last week between the Jerome Senior Citizens Inc., board, Marchant and Mayor Charles Correll.

"The thing that impressed me was not only did we have seniors, we had all age groups," she said.

Shelton said the seniors are going to invite the city to hold a town hall meeting to discuss the unresolved issues with the new building.

"We understand that the city needs some money to offset expenses but not at the detriment of Jerome Senior Center Inc.," she said.

The organization has existed since 1977 and has occupied the depot since 1982.

"They have never once wanted to manage the building," Shelton said of city officials.

Jerome Public Library Director Laura Burnett reads to a class of first-grade students as George Showers, left, Molly Kay and Luis Barrios follow along Tuesday morning at Horizon Elementary School in Jerome. The Jerome Public Library gave away free books to students during the first month of a new nine-month program that will put free books in the hands of children.

Jerome library participates in book distribution program

Times-News

Jerome Public Library and Horizon Elementary School officials on Tuesday kicked off a nine-month program aimed at putting books in the hands of low-income members of the school's first-grade class.

Library Director Laura Burnett, armed with enough books to spread through two Horizon classes, made her maiden voyage as a member of the Idaho Commission for Libraries Read to Me First Book program. Burnett, in an e-mail to the Times-News, said that from Tuesday to Friday during the third week of each month during the school year, she'll visit two classes daily, from 9 to 10 a.m.

"Literacy is critical to ensuring a promising future for our children," Burnett said. "Our partnership with Horizon Elementary will help these children embrace the concept of reading when given the opportunity to own books. We are delighted to play a role in making this happen here in Jerome."

Burnett said the distribution program plans to reach 160 children through the monthly book distributions and story-time activities throughout the school year. The library will also invite parents of participating children to attend a workshop on early literacy, while a reading event for families is planned at the library.

On a statewide level, the First Book program is funding the book distribution at 22 Idaho libraries, including the Bellevue Public Library and Burley Public Library in south-central Idaho. Books planned to be disbursed include "Make way for Ducklings" by Robert McCloskey, which is among the books scheduled to be in children's hands throughout Idaho this month.

Commissioners order house sold for back taxes

By John Plestina
Times-News writer

JEROME — The owner of a home and adjacent shop building in Jerome came a step closer to losing the property Monday when county commissioners voted unanimously to order a tax sale of the property.

County Treasurer Mary Childers said more than $8,000 is owed in back taxes and expenses the county has incurred. She asked the commission for direction.

Childers said taxes are now three years delinquent and she said her office sent several letters to the owner of the property located at 609 First Ave. E. The county did not divulge the owner's name.

The commission set Oct. 19 as the date the treasurer would open sealed bids. The sale process is a sealed bid auction. If the property is sold, the county would retain its losses and return excess amounts to the property owner.

Childers said the owner of the property has the right to redeem the property for taxes owned up until the date of the sale.

Commissioners also requested that Childers send a certified letter to the property owner notifying that individual of the impending sale in addition to required legal advertising that will appear in the Times-News.

While all of the commissioners expressed regret for having to take drastic action, a current lack of tax revenue from the property was considered.

"It's not a pleasant experience no matter how you look at it," Commissioner Joe Davidson said.

Childers said she has had one inquiry from a woman in Australia who said she is interested in purchasing the property as an investment.

According to Assessor Rick Haberman, the assessed valuation is $59,650.

Jerome County sheriff discusses immigration law enforcement

By John Plestina
Times-News writer

JEROME — Sheriff Doug McFall told the Jerome County Commission Monday that a representative of the Idaho Commission on Hispanic Affairs recently met with him to discuss perceived issues of jailing a high number of Latino inmates.

"Her concern was that she had heard rumors that we had a high number of inmates with Hispanic surnames," he said, adding that the commission wanted to ensure that the Jerome County Sheriff's Department wasn't targeting Latinos.

McFall said nationality is not an issue when determining if a person is going to be arrested.

"It doesn't matter who you are, when you're stopped out there, you're going to be treated the same. My protocol, since I've taken office, is to handle immigration laws the same way we did when I was with the state police," said McFall, who took office in January after retiring from the Idaho State Police. "We have never been border patrol or immigration officers."

McFall said federal law allows local police and

New remedy available for Meniere's disease?

DEAR DR. GOTT: I wanted to respond to your article on Meniere's disease that appeared in my local paper.

My daughter has (or had) the drop attacks. She went through all the tests to find out she had Meniere's. She was so happy to find out that just cutting out her salt could help her, so she immediately quit her salt. (I might add that her whole family thought salt was the problem, as she was a heavy salt user.) However, she continued to get worse.

To make a long story

ASK DR. GOTT
Dr. Peter Gott

short, we, like the fellow in your article, turned to the Internet. We became acquainted with a nurse in Canada whose husband was disabled because of the condition. She had done extensive research on it because they were also told to stop using salt, but it didn't help. However, her research found that simply cutting out salt wasn't the answer.

She told us to try what had worked for her husband. First, she said to cut out all refined sugar, and second, she said to start taking coenzyme Q10, echinacea, calcium with vitamin D and vitamins E, C and A.

My daughter found it easy to give up the sugar and is also happy she can have as much salt as she wants. Within days, her dizziness disappeared, and in the past 10 years, she has only had two attacks. I might add that she had admitted to having sugar just prior to both attacks. Before she started following this regimen, she couldn't ride in a car, was always confused, had weekly drop attacks and much, much more.

She had given up salt without success for nearly a year before trying the second option. Soon after giving up white refined sugar and most sweets and taking the supplements, her life truly turned around. I hope that you print this letter because more people should be aware of this.

DEAR READER: Meniere's is a fairly common condition that affects the inner ear and often results in attacks of vertigo, dizziness or lightheadedness, episodes of tinnitus (ringing in the ears), a fluctuating, slowly progressive hearing loss and a worsening of ear fullness that worsens during an attack.

It is often difficult to treat, and sufferers should be under the care of an ear-nose-and-throat specialist.

Occasionally, surgery may be recommended when more conservative approaches have failed, but this is not without risk and may result in permanent hearing loss.

I have printed the advice you received from the nurse because it may be beneficial. However, since you do not give dosages, I must assume that they are to be taken at or below the recommended daily allowances. Vitamins E and

Eastern Idaho senior seeks master's degree at age 90

By Samantha Pak Post Register

IDAHO FALLS — Clyde Wagon tried retirement 25 years ago and decided he didn't like it. "Retirement is a total bore," he said. Sixty-three years after graduating from Oklahoma State University with a bachelor's degree in mechanical engineering, 90-year-old Wagon is going back to school. Monday was Wagon's first day of classes at Stevens-Henager College in Idaho Falls, where he plans to earn a master's degree in business administration. Wagon doesn't know what he'll do once he receives his new degree, but that's not stopping him.

Clyde Wagon, 90, is seen Monday at Stevens-Henager College in Idaho Falls. Wagon retired 25 years ago but decided he didn't like it, so he's back in school pursuing a master's degree in business administration.

"We'll see where it leads," he said. "I'm looking forward, not backwards." Wagon said having a master's will open new doors for him when he's done, whether that means teaching or running his own company. Wagon's three children have been very supportive of his continuing education, which Wagon appreciates. "They're my cheering section," he said. When Wagon's daughter, Kathy Saco of Salmon, found out he was going back to school, she wanted to know why, but she wasn't too surprised about her father's decision. She said he has always kept his mind occupied with reading, playing Scrabble and doing crossword puzzles. "Knowing my dad, he just has to keep his brain busy," Saco said. "Nothing he does surprises me." One person who was surprised with Wagon's decision was Felicia Little, manager at the College Education Center at Stevens-Henager. "(Wagon's) by far the oldest student we have," she said. "It was kind of shocking when he said he was 90 years old." Little said most of the school's students are non-traditional: They've been out of high school for perhaps 10 or more years, may be going back to school for advanced degrees or are considering changing careers. Wagon is in the latter group. He owned a business in Denver for 25 years and then spent the past quarter-century selling specialized mobile homes and real estate in Arizona and Wyoming. Most recently, he took care of his ill wife, who died about two years ago. He moved to Idaho Falls last year. Now, Wagon is looking for a new challenge. He's energized and is looking forward to graduating and finding a new career — especially since he thinks he has another 45 or so years to live. "I've been looking for something I could really put my teeth into," Wagon said. "I've got to do something worthwhile with that time."

All you can carry: College cafeterias go trayless

By Larry Gordon Los Angeles Times

Derek Owens performs a nifty and somewhat precarious balancing act when he gets his meals at Pomona College. At lunch one recent day, the freshman from Oregon held a plate of nachos and beans in one hand. In the other, he stacked a serving of pizza and breadstick on top of a fruit juice cup. With silverware deftly added to the pile, he made it to his table without spilling a drop. Call it eco-dining, or another sign of tough economic times in American academia. Pomona this fall joined a growing number of colleges across the nation that have eliminated cafeteria trays in an effort to reduce food waste, cut water usage and save on energy bills. Students' reaction has been mixed, but Owens and others say they are adapting for the sake of the environment, their schools' budgets and their own waistlines. If they can't carry all the food they want in their first trip to the serving stations, they say, they will make one or two more. And if they wind up with fewer second helpings of granola or ice cream, so be it. "It's definitely difficult and a little bit inconvenient," Owens said amid the hubbub of Pomona's Fry Dining Hall. "But I like the intentions. The intentions are good, to be more aware of the environment and all that. So it's a small sacrifice to make." The trayless college cafeteria is a growing trend, spreading from the Northeast and West Coast to the Midwest and South, said Joseph Spina, executive director of the National Association of College and University Food Services. Because it combines business savings with students' interest in sustainability, the change is viewed as a "win-win," he said. His group does not have a definitive list of trayless schools, but food service companies report that many are shedding the plastic trays. Aramark Higher Education estimates that 60 percent of the 600 campuses it serves are trayless, and Sodexo Inc., which works at a similar number of schools, says about 40 percent have made the change. Criticism — and grumbling among students about economic goals hiding behind political correctness — has triggered reversals of the policy at some schools. At Northern Michigan University, student complaints about inconvenience prompted the school to abandon its plan to eliminate trays, at least for now. Michigan students, along with those in other snow states, often turn their trays into makeshift sleds — a time-honored tradition. School officials said that if they do make the switch next year, they might give the trays to students, expecting that many will be used for that purpose. Many colleges offer dining plans that allow students to eat all they want at any meal; trayless schools typically maintain that tradition, although diners may not be able to carry all their food at once. Those schools report decreases of as much as 30 percent in food waste.

sheriff's departments to assist federal immigration law enforcement. However, he said, "We've got our plate full. Our deputies are not actively out there enforcing immigration laws." McFall said that while laws are enforced the same for immigrants and U.S. citizens, if an individual is booked into the Jerome County Jail who has no set address, no identification, no Social Security card, no green card and no visa, his department might notify federal immigration authorities. "Immigration has the ability to put a hold on that person," he said. Margie Gonzales, director of the Idaho Commission on Hispanic Affairs, told the Times-News that her organization recently met with city and county government and law enforcement officials in both Jerome and Gooding counties seeking clarification of concerns, but not specifically related to law enforcement. "We have not had any discussions specifically to either arrests or who they might have in the court system," Gonzales said. Gonzales said law enforcement officials in both Jerome and Gooding counties told her they felt they had low representation of Latinos in their jails and did not feel there was any type of discrimination. "We visit communities throughout the state, particularly communities with higher Hispanic representation," she said, adding that follow-up meetings are scheduled for October. McFall said he didn't know the average percentage of Hispanic inmates in the jail. He said Jerome School District enrollment is 42 percent Hispanic, while official population estimates are at 32 percent of the overall population.

Jo Harris

HEYBURN — Jo Harris, age 87, of Heyburn, passed away Tuesday evening, Sept. 15, 2009, at her home in Heyburn.

She was born in St. Labory, Neb., to Paul and Julia Barth on Feb. 3, 1922. She was raised on a farm in Nebraska and had a very happy childhood. In grade school, she could run like a deer. No one could outrun her! She was a graduate of Scotia High School in Nebraska, where she was active in the school's marching band. Jo was the oldest of six children and was the last to leave. In 1946, she married Frank Adams in Overton, Neb. With that union, she was blessed to be able to raise Frank's two children, Larry (6), and Margie (4). She could never have children of her own and always felt blessed to have her stepchildren.

She took great pride in keeping a spotless home. Jo was always such a hard worker. She loved animals and her little dog, Nicki, was always right by her side. She loved to dance and read. In 1957, they moved to Paul. Jo went to work for Don Ballantyne and worked for him for 18 years. She then worked for the J.R. Simplot Company for two years prior to working for D.L. Evans Bank, where she worked for 21 years until her retirement. In 1963, they moved to Albion, where she and Frank resided until his death in June of 1988. After a year of loneliness, she met George Harris, and they were married in September of 1989. In 1996, they moved to Heyburn, where she was residing at the time of her death.

Jo was so thankful for having George. He was such a good husband and took such great care of her. Jo accepted Jesus as her personal Savior at the age of 24. She was a member of the Church of Christ in Albion; however, due to health problems and poor hearing was unable to attend on a regular basis.

She is survived by her husband, George Harris of Heyburn; one son, Larry (Pat) Adams of Rupert; one daughter, Marge Roe of Burley; and George's three children, Carol and Ken Hall of Ely, Nev., Linda and Frank Fleener of Pullman, Wash., and John Harris of Ely, Nev. She is also survived by her grandchildren; great-grandchildren; great-great-grandchildren; several nieces and nephews from Nebraska; and one nephew living in Rupert. In addition to her first husband, Frank, she was preceded in death by her parents; three brothers; two sisters; and three grandsons.

A graveside service will be held at 2:30 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 19, at the Albion City Cemetery in Albion. Arrangements have been entrusted to the care of the Rasmussen Funeral Home of Burley.

Andrew Lovell

Andrew will always be remembered for his sense of responsibility and his enduring love for his family and friends.

Andrew, age 30, was born in Hailey on April 9, 1979, and graduated from Wood River High School with the class of 1997. Andrew had a strong work ethic and worked several jobs before joining the United States Army as an infantry-security soldier. Andrew served in many locations including South Korea. During his time in the army, Andrew achieved many certificates, awards and medals.

In 2004, he decided to fulfill a dream of becoming a Harley Davidson technician. He moved to Phoenix and attended MMI, where he graduated with a 3.5 GPA and perfect attendance. He then relocated back to Twin Falls and worked at Snake Harley Davidson where he achieved expert technician status.

During this time, he joined the Idaho National Guard as an infantry soldier. He was deployed to Louisiana for the hurricane Katrina disaster, aiding in the security of locals. He loved to be in the center of the action and help anyone in need. While in Louisiana, he decided to make a career change and become a law enforcement officer. He began working towards his associate of applied science in law enforcement in 2006. He achieved this in a year and graduated from the College of Southern Idaho in 2007. He had a GPA of 3.4 and was on the dean's list. During this time his mother, Kathy, passed away. She was his rock and the loss devastated Andrew and he began to suffer from depression.

His first job as an officer was with Gooding City Police Department, where he was a patrol officer. He was very loyal to the badge and took his job very seriously. He left Gooding in 2008 to become a full-time reserve officer for the Jerome County Sheriff's Department.

Andrew had many hobbies and talents. His greatest hobby and love was Harley-Davidson motorcycles. He belonged to the Iron Warriors Motorcycle Club, which consists of policemen and firefighters. He had many great brothers and sisters in the club and he loved it with all his heart. I know he will miss each and every one of you.

Andrew and his family belonged to St. Edward the Confessor Catholic Church, where they were baptized and Andrew and Joyia renewed their vows together with their children on Easter 2009. He loved St. Edward's and made many close friendships.

Andrew is survived by his wife, Joyia Lovell; two children, Jaden Andrew Lovell and Jayleen Rose Lovell; his father, Thomas Lovell; brother, Scott Lovell and his wife, Jenny; brother, Paul Lovell; and sister, Jennifer Henderson and her husband. Scott; nephew, Garret Lovell; and niece, Madison Lovell.

We are saddened that you were taken away so soon but feel hopeful you are able to find the peace you so desperately needed. Your passing was unexpected and blameless. You are a good man, but your depression distracted you from being the father and husband you strived to be. In the end, nothing will strip that from you. We will forever remember your beautiful smile, big laugh, bear hugs and especially the love you have for your wife and children. We wish you peace and comfort knowing you will no longer suffer. We love you!

A funeral Mass will be celebrated at 11 a.m. Friday, Sept. 18, at St. Edward the Confessor Catholic Church, 161 Sixth Ave. E. in Twin Falls, with Father Michael St. Marie celebrating. A graveside service will follow at 2:30 p.m. Friday at the Hailey Cemetery in Hailey, with military honors by the Idaho National Guard. A viewing for family and friends will take place from 5 until 8 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 17, at Reynolds Funeral Chapel, 2466 Addison Ave. E. in Twin Falls.

In lieu of flowers, contributions may be given to a trust fund set up for Andrew's wife and children at the Key Bank. Contributions may be given to funeral chapel staff or dropped off at any Key Bank. Services are under the direction of Reynolds Funeral Chapel in Twin Falls.

Mary Travers of Peter, Paul and Mary dead at 72

DANBURY, Conn. (AP) — Mary Travers, one-third of the hugely popular 1960s folk trio Peter, Paul and Mary, has died.

The band's publicist, Heather Lylis, says Travers died at Danbury Hospital in Connecticut on Wednesday. She was 72 and had battled leukemia for several years.

Travers joined forces with Peter Yarrow and Noel Paul Stookey in the early 1960s.

The trio mingled their music with liberal politics, both onstage and off. Their version of "If I Had a Hammer" became an anthem for racial equality. Other hits included "Lemon Tree," "Leaving on a Jet Plane" and "Puff (The Magic Dragon)."

They were early champions of Bob Dylan and performed his "Blowin' in the Wind" at the August 1963 March on Washington.

And they were vehement in their opposition to the Vietnam War, managing to stay true to their liberal beliefs while creating music that resonated in the American mainstream.

The group collected five Grammy Awards for their three-part harmony on enduring songs like "Leaving on a Jet Plane," "Puff (The Magic Dragon)" and "Blowin' in the Wind."

At one point in 1963, three of their albums were in the top six Billboard best-selling LPs as they became the biggest stars of the folk revival movement.

It was heady stuff for a trio that had formed in the early 1960s in Greenwich Village, running through simple tunes like "Mary Had a Little Lamb."

They debuted at the Bitter End in 1961, and their beatnik look — a tall blonde flanked by a pair of goateed guitarists — was a part of their initial appeal. As The New York Times critic Robert Shelton put it not long afterward, "Sex appeal as a keystone for a folk-song group was the idea of the group's manager, Albert B. Grossman, who searched for months for 'the girl' until he decided on Miss Travers."

Their debut album came out in 1962, and immediately scored a pair of hits with their versions of "If I Had a Hammer" and "Lemon Tree." The former won them Grammys for best folk recording, and best performance by a vocal group.

"Moving" was the follow-up, including the hit tale of innocence lost, "Puff (The Magic Dragon)" — which reached No. 2 on the charts, and generated since-discounted reports that it was an ode to marijuana.

Album No. 3, "In the Wind," featured three songs by the 22-year-old Dylan. "Don't Think Twice, It's Alright" and "Blowin' in the Wind" both reached the top 10, bringing Dylan's material to a massive audience; the latter shipped 300,000 copies during one two-week period.

"Blowin' In the Wind" became an another civil rights anthem, and Peter, Paul and Mary fully embraced the cause. They marched with King in Selma, Ala., and performed with him in Washington.

In a 1966 New York Times interview, Travers said the three worked well together because they respected one another. "There has to be a certain amount of love just in order for you to survive together," she said. "I think a lot of groups have gone down the tubes because they were not able to relate to one another."

With the advent of the Beatles and Dylan's switch to electric guitar, the folk boom disappeared. Travers expressed disdain for folk-rock, telling the Chicago Daily News in 1966 that "it's so badly written. ... When the fad changed from folk to rock, they didn't take along any good writers."

But the trio continued their success, scoring with the tongue-in-cheek single "I Dig Rock and Roll Music," a gentle parody of the Mamas and the Papas, in 1967 and the John Denver-penned "Leaving on a Jet Plane" two years later.

They also continued as boosters for young songwriters, recording numbers written by then-little-known Gordon Lightfoot and Laura Nyro.

In 1969, the group earned their final Grammy for "Peter, Paul and Mommy," which won for best children's album. They disbanded in 1971, launching solo careers — Travers released five albums — that never achieved the heights of their collaborations.

Over the years they enjoyed several reunions, including a performance at a 1978 anti-nuclear benefit organized by Yarrow and a 35th anniversary album, "Lifelines," with fellow folkies Ramblin' Jack Elliott, Dave Van Ronk and Seeger. A boxed set of their music was released in 2004.

They remained politically active as well, performing at the 1995 anniversary of the Kent State shootings and performing for California strawberry pickers.

Travers had undergone a successful bone marrow transplant to treat her leukemia and was able to return to performing after that.

"It was like a miracle," Travers told The Associated Press in 2006. "I'm just feeling fabulous. What's incredible is someone has given your life back. I'm out in the garden today. This time last year I was looking out a window at a hospital." She also said she told the marrow donor "how incredibly grateful I was."

But by mid-2009, Yarrow told WTOF radio in Washington that her condition had worsened again and he thought she would no longer be able to perform.

Actor, 'Laugh-In' celebrity Henry Gibson, 73, dies after battle with cancer

By Dennis McLellan
Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES — Henry Gibson, the veteran character actor who came to fame in the late 1960s as the flower-holding poet on TV's landmark satirical comedy show "Rowan & Martin's Laugh-In," has died. He was 73.

Gibson died late Monday night after a short battle with cancer at his home in Malibu, said his son Jon.

Gibson, who more recently played a recurring role as cantankerous Judge

Clark Brown on "Boston Legal," was part of the original ensemble cast of "Laugh In," which ran on NBC from 1968 to 1973.

The show, whose original cast included Goldie Hawn, Judy Carne, Ruth Buzzi, Arte Johnson, Jo Anne Worley and others, was an immediate hit.

"Henry was an integral part of 'Laugh-In' for a long time, and he was brilliant," said Gary Owens, the show's announcer, who remained close to Gibson over the years. "He was a very funny man."

Worley said Gibson "was probably the kindest person on 'Laugh-In'" and was the person she'd call whenever she needed show-business advice.

"I'm personally devastated that such a good friend is gone," she said.

George Schlatter, the executive producer and creator of "Laugh-In," recalled that when Gibson auditioned for the show, "He came in and did a poem and a full back flip. He said, 'Is that anything?' I said, 'Be here Monday!'"

Gibson, Schlatter said, "brought a wonderful warmth and whimsy and a charm to 'Laugh-In.' That went a long way to balance some of the political, satirical and bawdy humor we featured.

"Henry was a sweet, gentle man. Any piece we gave to Henry took on a different shape when he read it because he infused his own whimsy and his own gentle intelligence and wit to it."

In the show's famous cocktail party scenes, when the music would stop and each cast member would deliver a funny line, Gibson was a religious figure holding a teacup and saucer.

"My congregation supports all denominations," he said on one show, "but our favorites are twenties and fifties."

But Gibson was best known as the poet, holding a large flower and beginning his brief recitations with his signature catchphrase, "A poem, by Henry Gibson."

"He wrote all those himself," said Jon Gibson. "It was a point of pride that he only read poems that he himself wrote."

Gibson's poems led to two comedy albums, "The Alligator" and "The Grass Menagerie" and the book "A Flower Child's Garden of Verses."

Gibson's family said he used his fame to help support the fledgling environmental movement, including contributing op-ed pieces and poetry to newspapers and other publications.

Medical examiner says Yale student was suffocated

NEW HAVEN — A Yale graduate student found stuffed in the wall of a research center had been suffocated, the medical examiner reported Wednesday as police awaited DNA tests on evidence taken from a lab technician who worked in the building.

Police call Raymond Clark III a “person of interest” in the slaying of Annie Le. Authorities hoped to compare DNA taken from Clark’s hair, fingernails and saliva with more than 250 pieces of evidence collected at the crime scene on the Ivy League campus and from Clark’s Middletown, Conn., apartment.

“It’s all up to the lab now,” Police Chief James Lewis said at a news conference. “The basis of the investigation now is really on the physical evidence.”

Police served two search warrants — for DNA from Clark and for items in his apartment — late Tuesday. They served two more Wednesday morning, for more items from the apartment and for Clark’s Ford Mustang, Lewis said.

WASHINGTON
Napolitano halts projects for review

Facing criticism for her handling of federal stimulus money, Homeland Security Secretary Janet Napolitano said Wednesday that she would not start any new border construction projects while the department reviewed how projects were selected.

Napolitano has faced questions since a report last month that said Homeland Security officials did not follow their internal priority lists when choosing which border checkpoints would get money for renovations. Under a process that is secretive and susceptible to political influence, officials planned to spend millions at tiny checkpoints, passing over busier, higher-priority projects.

The criticism peaked Wednesday when a senior Senate Democrat, Byron Dorgan of North Dakota, said that, despite Napolitano’s assurances, he felt Homeland Security was treating the economic stimulus plan like a “bottomless pit” of taxpayer money. It was unusually pointed criticism from a member of the president’s own party about how the administration is handling economic recovery spending.

FBI searches home of man in terror probe

AURORA — Federal agents on Wednesday searched the home of a suburban Denver man identified by law enforcement as having a possible link to al-Qaida, carting away several boxes of evidence.

The FBI’s Joint Terrorism Task Force went through the home of Najibullah Zazi, as well as the nearby residence of his aunt, Rabia Zazi, FBI special agent Kathleen Wright said Wednesday.

Zazi denies that he’s a central figure in a terrorism investigation that fed fears of a possible bomb plot and led to several police raids in New York City on Monday.

Zazi, 24, was being interviewed at FBI headquarters in Denver late Wednesday but was not under arrest, according to his attorney, Arthur Folsom. Zazi gave authorities a DNA sample, a fingerprint, handwriting samples and information about his travels, Folsom said.

U.S. closes largest detention camp in Iraq

By Jason Keyser
Associated Press writer

CAMP BUCCA, Iraq — The U.S. military on Wednesday closed Camp Bucca, an isolated desert prison that was once its largest lockup in Iraq, as it moves to release thousands of detainees or transfer them to Iraqi custody before the end of the year.

The sprawling facility just north of the Kuwaiti border has held thousands of men over the years, including the most dangerous in U.S. custody — Sunni insurgents, Shiite extremists and al-Qaida in Iraq suspects swept up from battlefields over six years of war.

Iraqi officials say some who have been freed have returned to violence.

“They’ve been vetted as some of the most dangerous threats not only to Iraq but internationally,” said Lt. Col. Kenneth King, the commander of the Bucca detention facility.

On Wednesday, about a dozen of the remaining 180 detainees — some of whom have been held for three years without charge — paced in circles around a fenced-in prison yard, dressed in yellow uniforms and sandals under the watch of a guard tower. One detainee inside a trailer frantically banged on a metal grill covering his window and shouted in Arabic at a group of visiting reporters, “Open the window!”

By midnight, all were to be transferred to either

Camp Taji or Camp Cropper just outside Baghdad, the U.S. military’s two remaining detention facilities, while cases are prepared to try to bring them to trial in Iraqi courts. Sixty-five have already been convicted and are awaiting death sentences, said Brig. Gen. David Quantock, the commander in charge of the detention system.

Iraqi officials in the former insurgent heartland around Fallujah have watched with concern as an influx of ex-detainees from Bucca return to homes in places with few jobs, making them easy prey for militant recruiters.

The U.S. military is racing to empty its detention facilities because a security pact that went into effect in January requires them to either transfer detainees to Iraqi custody for prosecution or release them.

The vast majority — 5,600 since January — have been freed due to a lack of evidence that would be admissible in Iraqi courts and the military’s unwillingness to compromise intelligence sources by bringing them forward as witnesses. About 1,400 have been handed over to Iraqi custody, and the U.S. military now holds around 8,400 prisoners.

Baucus unveils compromise plan to overhaul health care

By Noam N. Levey and Janet Hook
Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — Senate Finance Committee chairman Max Baucus, D-Mont., on Wednesday released the crucial moderate alternative in the struggle to refashion America’s health care system, a $856-billion bill that includes a mix of sweeping new insurance regulations but no government-run plan.

Under his proposal, nearly everyone would be required to obtain coverage or pay a penalty. Insurers, in turn, would not be able to deny policies to people with pre-existing medical conditions or to cancel coverage after people got sick. And the federal government would provide hundreds of billions of dollars in subsidies to help lower-income people buy coverage.

The legislation fell short of Baucus’ goal of charting a course that could bring Republicans and Democrats together for the most ambitious overhaul of the health system since the 1960s.

Three key GOP lawmakers who had been working with Baucus for months have rejected his bill. The proposal also drew fire from liberals who insist that any overhaul must contain a “public option” insurance plan administered by the government.

But the Baucus proposal still may serve as a template for a final Senate bill because it was designed to attract moderate and conservative Democrats.

“There are some on both sides of the aisle who think I have gone too far,” Baucus said in a news conference. “It’s an effort to get balance. It’s an effort to get the bill passed.”

“This,” he added, “is probably one of the largest pieces of social legislation in American history since the Depression.”

Responding to widespread concern about the effect on the federal budget deficit, Baucus produced a bill that would cost significantly less than a $1 trillion-plus version pending in the House. It also imposed less stringent requirements on businesses.

All that drew praise from centrist Democrats whose support has been elusive, especially those from relatively conservative states.

“It’s a strong step in the right direction,” said Sen. Mary Landrieu, D-La. But liberals on Wednesday argued that the Baucus bill did not provide enough money for families of modest means and did not stop insurance companies from charging exorbitant premiums.

“I continue to be concerned about affordability for hard-working, middle-class families,” said Sen. Ron Wyden, D-Ore. “A lot of them can’t get by now. And the prospect of paying significantly more ... or being penalized, that is not going to meet their test of health care security.”

Baucus’ plan would not go as far as other leading proposals to reduce the ranks of the uninsured. According to a preliminary analysis by the Congressional Budget Office, the bill would leave about 25 million people without insurance, compared with 17 million under the House version.

Nor was there much evidence that Baucus’ alternative to the public-option provided for in legislation proposed by the House and by the Senate health committee — establishing non-profit cooperatives — would work to compete with private insurers and bring costs under control.

“They seem unlikely to establish a significant market presence in many areas of the country,” the nonpartisan CBO concluded.

The Baucus legislation, like the other two health bills, was designed to largely preserve the current system of employment-based health coverage. Layered on top of that system, the legislation would create highly regulated, state-based insurance marketplaces, or exchanges, where millions of people who do not receive coverage from their employer or from the government would be able to shop for insurance.

These people would be able to select from a range of plans offered by private insurers, as well as one potentially offered by a member-owned cooperative.

Despite major concessions, the bill did not win the endorsement of a single Republican — not even Sen. Olympia Snowe of Maine, one of the bipartisan group of six Finance Committee members who met for months to discuss the bill.

Snowe called the bill a “step in the right direction,” but said she was still worried that it would be too costly to the government and consumers, and that it did not do enough to ensure a competitive insurance market.

Most other Republicans were far less charitable.

“This partisan proposal cuts Medicare by nearly a half-trillion dollars, and puts massive new tax burdens on families and small businesses, to create yet another thousand-page, trillion-dollar government program,” said Senate Republican Leader Mitch McConnell of Kentucky.

Northwest senators skeptical of plan

By Matthew Daly
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — A long-awaited health care overhaul unveiled by Montana Sen. Max Baucus is not winning rave reviews from fellow Northwest lawmakers.

But even some Democrats on the Finance panel called the proposal seriously flawed.

Sen. Ron Wyden, D-Ore., said the Baucus draft does not offer enough choices and could force millions of Americans to pay more for medical care.

Sen. Maria Cantwell, D-Wash., said she wants a greater emphasis on reducing costs and assurances that the bill will reward states that deliver Medicare and other services efficiently.

Sen. Mike Crapo, R-Idaho, decried the bill’s price tag, saying it would drive up the federal deficit.

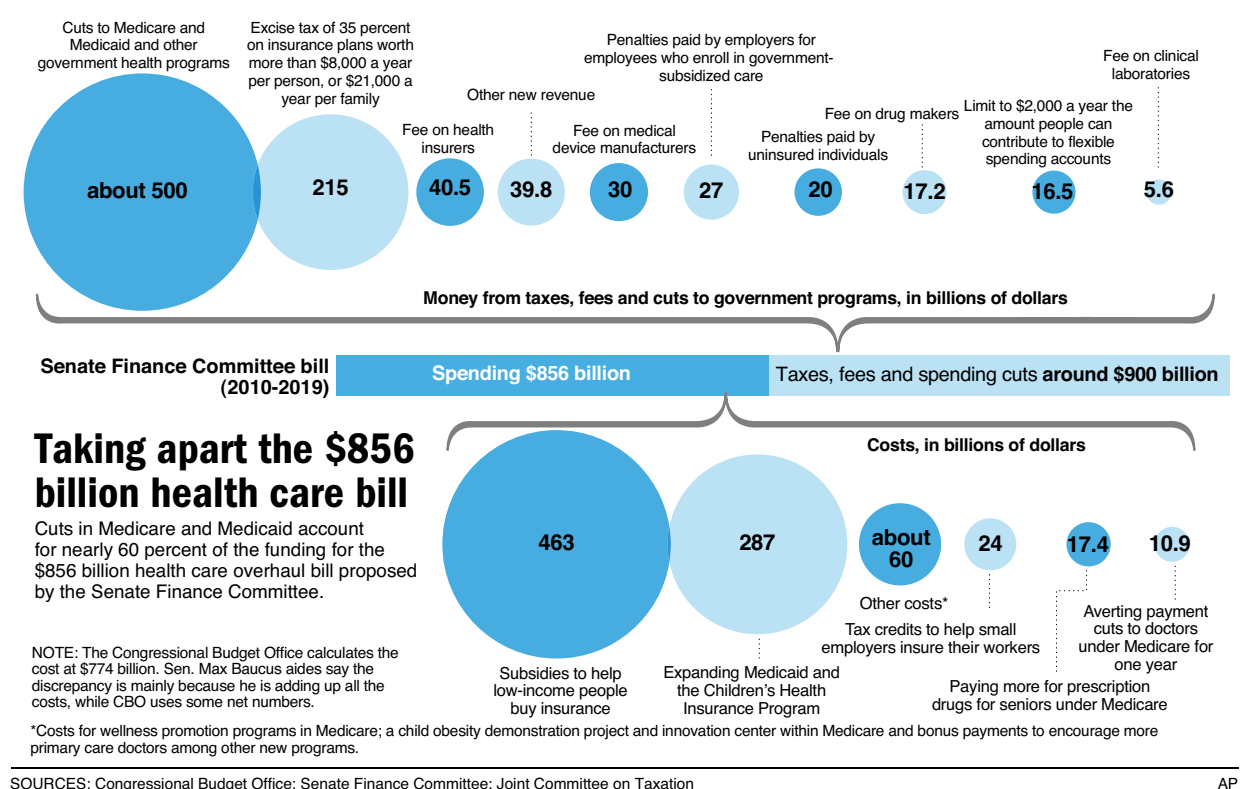

Wyden, Cantwell and Crapo all serve on the Finance panel.

Crapo said he was disappointed that Baucus unveiled his plan without backing from any GOP senators, including those in the so-called Gang of Six that have led negotiations on health care. Neither Crapo, Wyden nor Cantwell are included in the group.

“This $856 billion proposal would build even more onto our multi-trillion dollar federal deficit,” Crapo said in a written statement. “It appears that the plan would be paid for with more than $500 billion in cuts to existing health care programs accompanied by more than $300 billion in new taxes taken from consumers.”

Even with those proposed tax and spending increases, the nonpartisan Congressional Budget Office says the proposal would still leave millions uninsured, Crapo said.

“We need to keep working to get this legislation right and not succumb to artificial deadlines,” he said.

President Karzai leads Afghan vote with more than 54%

By Heidi Vogt
Associated Press writer

KABUL — Afghan officials issued full preliminary results Wednesday showing President Hamid Karzai got 54.6 percent of the vote in last month's election, a result that could be annulled by mounting fraud allegations.

European Union election monitors say fraud is indicated in more than a quarter of the 5.6 million votes counted.

The Aug. 20 vote has been so tainted by reports of ballot-box stuffing and questionable tallies that many expect the final results to vary widely from the preliminary count after fraudulent ballots are thrown out.

If enough votes are thrown out for Karzai to drop below 50 percent, it will force him into a two-man runoff with top challenger Abdullah Abdullah, a former foreign minister who has 27.7 percent of the vote. The preliminary count gave Karzai 3.1 million votes to Abdullah's 1.6 million.

Recounts and investigations are likely to take weeks, pushing the date for any runoff well past the original plan for the first week of October. Snow starts blocking villages and roads in the mountainous country in November, so a long delay could make a second round logistically unfeasible until the spring.

The wait for a runoff could leave Afghanistan with a power vacuum at a time when Taliban attacks are increasing, and undermine support abroad for a war-rupt administration.

Certified results originally were to have been released this week, with any runoff occurring two weeks later.

Obama vows deliberate approach on Afghanistan troop levels

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — President Obama made clear Wednesday that he is in no hurry to make a decision about sending more troops to Afghanistan and that he will resist any attempt to rush him until he has "absolute clarity about what the strategy is going to be."

Obama said he is still considering an assessment he received early this month from Gen. Stanley McChrystal, the top U.S. commander in Afghanistan, and will also await reviews from civilian and diplomatic officials and the results of the disputed Afghan election before making "further decisions moving forward."

His comments, made to reporters after a White House meeting with Canadian Prime Minister Stephen Harper, came as Congress voiced escalating anxiety over the direction of Obama's Afghan policy and pressed for decisions sooner rather than later.

Redshirt year at ISU a good thing for Poke

The buzz began last spring when Minico High football star Skylar "Poke" Morgan announced his decision to play college football for Idaho State University.

Not only did ISU land the Class 4A Player of the Year, but the Bengals were sure to reap the benefits of heightened ticket sales coming from Poke fans in the Magic Valley.

Ryan Howe

After signing day, the Idaho State Journal published an online poll asking ISU fans which recruit they were most excited about. Morgan garnered more than 70 percent of the vote.

Enthusiasm grew around Pocatello during fall camp when it appeared Morgan might be able to step in and contribute right away as a true freshman. But as camp closed, so did the chance to see Morgan on the field in 2009.

That's because Morgan will redshirt.

In college sports, athletes have four years of eligibility that can be spread over five years. The one inactive year, which typically comes in a player's first season, is a redshirt year.

The ISU coaches' decision to redshirt Morgan is a wise one. With a handful of upperclassmen running backs ahead of him on the depth chart, Morgan would have seen limited playing time, anyway. Having a year to mature physically and mentally will give him a chance to make larger contributions in the next four years.

"I feel good about it because it's going to let me put on more size and speed, and develop that much better before next year," said Morgan, who is listed at 5-foot-8 and 185 pounds.

Morgan still practices with the team, hits the weight room every morning at 7 and attends team meetings.

"Everybody is motivated to work hard," Morgan said. "In high school you see stars, but everyone is pretty average. Up here it's 22 good athletes on the field. That athleticism is a step up and speed is a big factor. It's a lot faster."

As with any competitive athlete, Morgan has a strong desire to be on the field. But he's rightfully taking the redshirt in stride. Idaho State will be a better team for it. Morgan will be a better player because of it.

Little brother making a name for himself at BSU

Kirby Moore catching passes from sibling Kellen

BOISE — He looks like Kellen, but Kirby Moore doesn't hide in the shadow of his older brother. As a true freshman, he is already making a name for himself.

Kirby Moore, a wide receiver, played last week in place of Mitch Burroughs against Miami of Ohio, burning his redshirt year. The team won't ask too much of him early on, but he said he's ready to make an impact.

"I think I'm pretty smart about football, the things we need to know, the coverages," Kirby Moore said. "I'm just trying to help out in blocking. At inside receiver that's one of our main goals, to just maintain our blocks."

His ascension up the depth chart hit a serious decline June 15, when he broke his left foot. He said he was running routes in the Caven Williams Sports Complex, wound up with a swollen ankle and had surgery two days later. The Prosser, Wash., product said he's fine now, but doctors did implant a permanent screw into his foot.

"Hopefully it doesn't rot," Moore joked.

BSU head coach Chris Petersen said in fall camp his staff wanted to play one of its true freshman receivers, a spot available after Jeremy Childs skipped his senior season for a shot at the NFL. It seemed like Moore was that guy, but fellow receivers Aaron Burks and Geraldo Hiwat also chased the chance to play.

"I think Aaron is a great guy, a great player, and really, I still want to be close with all the guys and the class we came in with," Moore said. "Down the road, we're all going to work together and find a way to help the team."

When Kirby Moore was out of action, Kellen Moore did what big brothers do. He gave him a place to stay during rehab, still lets him do laundry at his place (perhaps too much, Kirby said) and most importantly, Kellen helped his younger brother break down film in preparation for the season. The brothers

MINI-CASSIA CLASH

Minico, Burley meet Friday in Great Basin battle

By Ryan Howe
Times-News writer

BURLEY — High school football players in Mini-Cassia have been crossing the Snake River for 93 years to play their rivals. The next chapter in one of the oldest rivalries in the state of Idaho will be written Friday night.

From the old days of Rupert High vs. Burley High to the current Minico-Burley clash, each year seems to bring a new twist. This year is no different, as it marks the first-ever Minico-Burley game played on the artificial turf of Burley's Skaggs Events Center (7 p.m., Friday).

Since Minico opened in 1955, the Spartans hold a 30-24 edge in the series (Rupert High owned the series, 35-12, from 1916-1954).

Minico has dominated the rivalry in the past decade, winning seven of the last 10 meetings. The Spartans have won four straight, outscoring the Bobcats 180-31 in that span.

During his 13-year tenure as the Spartans' coach, Tim Perrigot is 9-4 against Burley. But it didn't take him long to learn how important this game is to the players.

"My first year of the rivalry (1996), I gave the greatest (pregame) pep talk," Perrigot recalled. "I had those kids so fired up they were tearing the paint off the walls to get out of the locker room and take the field."

On the first play of the game, former Burley coach Bill Hicks called a flea-flicker, where running back Scott Gerratt pitched the ball back to QB Zack Jensen, who threw to a wide-open Dan Anderson. The amped-up Spartans fell for the trickery, allowing Anderson to haul in the 76-yard touchdown pass and the Bobcats rolled to a 42-6 victory.

"We had 11 guys tackling the quarterback, and he threw it downfield with three guys wide open," Perrigot said. "I learned right then that you don't have to really say too much to the kids. They understand the importance of the game."

CSI's Peacock scoops NJCAA Div. 1 Player of the Week

By David Bashore
Times-News writer

The week just keeps getting better for the College of Southern Idaho volleyball team.

A day after learning it ascended to No. 1 in the national polls, CSI right-side hitter Jessica Peacock received NJCAA Division I Player of the Week honors for her accomplishments last weekend in Houston.

Peacock recorded 79 kills in five matches in Houston — all CSI victories, including three wins over Top 10 opposition. She played just one set in CSI's first match of the weekend but featured prominently in the other four.

"It's a privilege to get a little bit of recognition like this, but I couldn't have gotten the kills if the passes and sets weren't there," said Peacock. "I don't think of it as something I did, as I couldn't have done it without the team."

Peacock had 24 kills against former No. 1 Blinn College (Texas) last Saturday in Houston. The Australia international leads the nation with 193 kills on the season.

Of greater import to the team, Peacock exerted some of her leadership authority when the chips were down. So far this season, she's pushed all the right buttons in that area.

"She's just a leader through and through, whether it's in action or emotion," said CSI coach Heidi Cartisser. "Jess is a big-time player who shows up in the big-time matches. Teams that play us know they have to defend for her, and that opens up opportunities for the rest of our offense to hit 1-on-1."

Peacock struggled through injuries last season, as well as being played out of position, albeit out of necessity. Back on her more comfortable right side, the position she plays for her country, Peacock has flourished in her sophomore campaign — no more so than against Blinn, when she was simply unstoppable.

"Last season I had the injuries holding me back a little bit, so this year is definately better," Peacock said. "Usually when you have four matches, you're going to be off in one or two of them, but things just clicked."

The last CSI volleyball player to receive Player of the Week honors was JoAnna Kaczor, who earned the nod in September of 2005. That year CSI went 50-2 and won its eighth national championship, and Kaczor was named the NJCAA Division I National Tournament MVP and AVCA Two-Year School Player of the Year.

Jerome soccer tops Burley, stays unbeaten

Times-News

Host Burley gave Jerome all it could handle Wednesday at Skaggs Event Center, but the unbeaten Tigers kept their record perfect with a 4-1 win over the Bobcats in Great Basin Conference boys soccer action.

"It was a heck of a game," said Burley coach Wes Nyblade. "The score doesn't indicate how close it really was."

Jerome head coach Robert Garcia agreed. "It was a tough game. But every time you play Burley it's tough," he said.

Jerome got two goals from Salvador Mercado and another from Sergio Madrigal, who also played a role in an own-goal suffered by Burley.

The Bobcats' lone score came from Woody Anguiano, cutting Jerome's lead to 2-1 at the time. But the Tigers netted twice more in the second half to pull away.

Nyblade said his team had lots of offensive opportunities, but was thwarted by Jerome keeper Roman Vazquez.

"That's a pretty great team in Jerome," he said. "It's going to take a special team to beat them."

Burley (5-2-2, 2-2 GBC) hosts Bonneville on Saturday, while Jerome (9-0, 5-0) travels to Middleton.

MINICO 4, TWIN FALLS 2

Two second-half goals lifted Minico to a 4-2 win at Twin Falls on Wednesday, the Spartans' first win of the season.

for the Bruins (2-7-1, 1-3-1 Great Basin Conference, 4 pts.), but the Spartans (1-6-2, 1-3-1, 4 pts.) applied a couple of good finishes late to take the three points.

Adrian Mendoza scored twice for Minico and had an assist, while Jorge Carrillo and Alex Torres had the other goals.

WOOD RIVER 2, CANYON RIDGE 1

A late goal lifted visiting Wood River to a 2-1 win over Canyon Ridge on Wednesday.

The Riverhawks knotted the score at 1-1 on a goal by

WOOD RIVER 10, CANYON RIDGE 0

Tanner Dredge scored five times as Wood River routed Canyon Ridge 10-0 in Hailey on Wednesday to improve to 4-0 in Great Basin Conference play (12 pts.).

Canyon Ridge (1-10-1, 1-4-0 GBC, 3 pts.) is at Minico on Tuesday.

JEROME 5, BURLEY 1

Aubree Callen had her second hat trick this week as Jerome eased to a 5-1 Great Basin Conference win over visiting Burley on Wednesday.

Sydney Switter and Hadley Biagiotti also tallied for the Tigers (3-7-0, 3-2-0 GBC, 6 pts.), who travel to Middleton on Saturday.

Gelyn Pauly struck the only reply for Burley (0-8-1, 0-4-1, 1 pt.), which visits Bonneville on Saturday.

TWIN FALLS 4, MINICO 1

Claire Goss scored twice to lead Twin Falls to a 4-1 Great Basin Conference win at Minico on Wednesday.

Lauren Rogers and Erin Grubbs-Imhoff also tallied for the Bruins (7-2-2, 4-1-0 GBC, 12 pts.), who won to keep pace with Wood River in the race for top seed in the GBC. The Bruins visit the Community School on Thursday.

Vicki Vega scored for Minico (2-6-2, 1-3-1, 4 pts.), which travels to Preston on Saturday.

Burley coach Eugene Kramer agrees.

"I told the kids, 'If you don't get up for this game, you have no heart and you have no soul,'" Kramer said.

Each team enters the contest with 1-2 records. With its win over Canyon Ridge two weeks ago, Burley currently sits atop the Great Basin Conference standings. The Bobcats will hope to get their spread offense on track, led by quarterback Jake Mills, who is completing 56 percent of his passes for about 250 yards per game.

"We match up pretty good," Mills said. "It could be a shootout, or it could be a defensive struggle. Offensively, (Minico) has weapons at wide receiver and some pretty good running backs. Defensively, they have a really good secondary and their defensive line can put pressure. We can't give up any big plays."

Three of the biggest play-makers from last year's rivalry game are back for Minico. Pete Coats and Shad Hubsmith each had a touchdown reception, and David Griffin returned an interception for a score in the Spartans' 35-3 win.

Minico will introduce plenty of newcomers to the rivalry as well, including junior quarterback Kade Miller and shifty junior running back Edgar Espinoza.

"It will be a good game," Espinoza said. "We're going to look for a win, of course, always play hard and get those Bobcats."

Minico is playing its fourth straight road game to start the season (although last week's 31-21 loss to Bear River, Utah, in the Rocky Mountain Rumble at Holt Arena in Pocatello officially counted as a home game). Although they're 1-2, the Spartans have learned from their early adversity.

"They've improved more in their three weeks than any other team I've seen in a long time," Kramer said. "They have a lot of speed and are very good at the skills positions. We're going to have to tackle better than we did last week (49-7 loss to Buhl) and we can't have the mental breakdowns that we had last week."

While Perrigot agrees the Spartans are getting better, he says they have a long ways to go.

"We want to continue to get better every week," Perrigot said. "We sure don't want to peak right now. Now's not the time to shine. You want to play your best football in November."

switch you can turn off. It's just kinda how we live."

You can tell Kellen is excited to have Kirby in the patterns, but, of course, he tempers it with staid comments.

"I think he's ready to roll," Kellen said. "It's good to get another guy at receiver, get a bigger group. He was already complaining he was open."

But with proven players like Austin Pettis and Titus Young, Kirby's role could be minimal this season.

"It'll come eventually," Kellen said. "It's always fun to play with your brother."

Kirby proved in high school he is capable of eventually becoming a No. 1 receiver, lettering four times in football and three times in basketball at Prosser (Wash.) High. His prep numbers are off the chart. Freshman year: 37 receptions for 645 yards and 14 touchdowns. Sophomore year: 61 grabs for 788 yards and 18 TDs. Junior year: 75 catches for 1,350 yards and 29 scores. Senior year: 131 receptions for 2,126 yards and 34 end-zone visits.

But now the stadiums are bigger, the crowds louder and the game faster. Kirby is poised to handle it just as well as big brother has.

"It's a little more complex, but once you get down to the nuts and bolts of everything, it's pretty similar," Kirby said. "There's a lot of motion, but once you get that down, it's basic football."

Red Sox rally for seventh straight win

BOSTON — Alex Gonzalez hit a bases-loaded blooper down the left-field line with two outs in the ninth inning on Wednesday night to give the Boston Red Sox a 9-8 victory over the Los Angeles Angels.

Boston trailed 3-0 and 7-5 before tying the game in the bottom of the eighth. The Angels took the lead in the top of the ninth on three straight two-out singles against Daniel Bard (2-1). But closer Brian Fuentes (1-5) coughed up the lead in the bottom half.

The Red Sox have won seven straight, and 10 in a row at Fenway Park.

YANKEES 5, BLUE JAYS 4

NEW YORK — Hideki Matsui hit a tying, two-run homer in the eighth inning, and Francisco Cervelli hit a winning single in the ninth as New York beat Toronto.

A day after brawling in the Bronx, the Blue Jays and Yankees made it through nine innings calmly.

New York was held to four hits through seven innings, then tied it on Matsui's 25th homer off Scott Downs.

TIGERS 4, ROYALS 3

DETROIT — Placido Polanco hit a go-ahead RBI single in the sixth inning to lift Detroit.

Zach Miner (7-5) and three other relievers kept the Royals scoreless over the final five innings to help the Tigers stay 4½ games ahead of Minnesota in the AL Central. Detroit lowered its magic number to 13 for winning its first division title since 1987.

MINNEAPOLIS — Michael Cuddyer homered, doubled and drove in three runs for Minnesota which completed a three-game sweep.

Posada, Carlson suspended 3 games each

NEW YORK (AP) — Yankees catcher Jorge Posada and Toronto pitcher Jesse Carlson were suspended for three games each and fined Wednesday by Major League Baseball for their roles in a bench-clearing brawl.

The pair were cited for "aggressive and inappropriate actions" by baseball vice president Bob Watson and started serving the penalties immediately, a day after they tangled.

Yankees utilityman Shelley Duncan was suspended for three games and appealed. Toronto manager Cito Gaston said Carlson was fined $3,000 and that Blue Jays catcher Rod Barajas was docked $1,000. Posada was fined $2,500, and Yankees hitting coach Kevin Long and pitcher Edwar Ramirez also were fined. After a pair of Toronto players were hit by pitches Tuesday night, Carlson threw a fastball behind Posada late in the Blue Jays' 10-4 win. Moments later, Posada bumped Carlson after scoring a run, and the dugouts and bullpens emptied.

Joe Mauer singled twice, raising his major league-leading batting average to .374, and drove in two runs as the Twins won their fourth straight.

SHOSHONE SWEEPS TRI-MATCH

The Shoshone volleyball team stayed unbeaten on the season with wins over Butte County and Wendell in a tri-match Wednesday in Shoshone.

The Indians (11-0) beat Butte County 27-25, 25-18 and topped Wendell 25-14, 25-10. Butte County rallied to beat Wendell 22-25, 25-16, 15-8.

Jennica Kerner and Jessica Chitwood paced Shoshone at the service line with nine points apiece, while Kelcie Hutchins had 14 kills on the night.

MINICO 3, BURLEY 1

Senior setter Hayli Worthington had 33 assists and 15 digs as the Minico volleyball squad remained unbeaten in Great Basin Conference play with a 25-21, 23-25, 25-17, 25-16 win over rival Burley Tuesday night.

"When it's Burley-

Minico, they always play us really tough," said Minico coach Kris Christensen. "It was a fun match."

Breonna Phillips collected 11 kills and nine blocks for Minico, while Chelsea Hepworth added nine kills and seven blocks. Kendra Bailey also had nine kills in her second full match since returning from a foot injury.

Burley (1-7 overall, 0-4 GBC) was led by Teresa Wayment with 11 kills. Makena Hayie had six kills, Jamie Halford earned 14 digs and setter Delta Jones had 24 assists for the Bobcats.

Burley was without Jessica Laumb and Kayla Kerbs, who are both out with ankle injuries and hope to return within the next couple weeks.

"I thought we played well as a team and weren't afraid to compete," said Burley coach Tiffany Green. "We're coming off two injuries and playing without two key players. I'm excited to see what happens when we're all healthy."

Cahill (9-12) had a career-best seven strikeouts and walked two in seven innings, limiting Texas to Marlon Byrd's bloop single in the second. Michael Wuertz and Andrew Bailey each worked a perfect inning to close out Oakland's ninth shutout of the season.

ORIOLES 4, RAYS 2

BALTIMORE — Matt Wieters hit a two-run homer in the bottom of the ninth off Russ Springer, giving Baltimore a victory over fading Tampa Bay.

The Orioles went up 2-1 in the top half when Ben Zobrist hit a 3-2 pitch from Jim Johnson over the center-field wall. It was the fifth blown save for Johnson (4-5).

NATIONAL LEAGUE DODGERS 3, PIRATES 1

LOS ANGELES — Matt Kemp hit a go-ahead, two-run homer in the sixth inning, Ronnie Belliard added a solo shot and Los Angeles beat Pittsburgh to complete a three-game sweep.

Los Angeles began the day with a five-game lead over Colorado in the NL West — its largest since being 5½ games up on the Rockies on Sept. 1.

PADRES 6, DIAMONDBACKS 5, 10 INNINGS

SAN DIEGO — Everth Cabrera's RBI single in the bottom of 10th gave San Diego the victory.

Cabrera's third hit of the game was a grounder into right off Yusmeiro Petit (3-10).

PHILLIES 6, NATIONALS 1

PHILADELPHIA — Joe Blanton threw six scoreless innings and Jayson Werth hit a grand slam for Philadelphia.

Blanton (10-7) allowed five hits and struck out seven. The Phillies were one out away from recording three consecutive shutouts for the first time in 40 years when Willie Harris singled in a run off Tyler Walker.

MARLINS 5, CARDINALS 2

ST. LOUIS — Josh Johnson gave up one run and nine hits over six innings and Cody Ross had three hits and drove in two runs for Florida, which has won 10 of 14.

REDS 6, ASTROS 5

CINCINNATI — Joey Votto scored the go-ahead run on a wild pitch in the seventh inning and Cincinnati overcame Jeff Keppinger's first career multihomer game.

In a game that featured seven solo homers in the first five innings, Votto led off the seventh against Wesley Wright (3-3) with an infield single and went to third on a single by Brandon Phillips. Jeff Fulchino relieved Wright with Chris Coste going in at catcher in a double switch. Fulchino bounced a pitch that Coste couldn't handle, allowing Votto to break a 5-5 tie.

BREWERS 9, CUBS 5

CHICAGO — Braden Loper pitched five innings for his career-high 13th win and Alcides Escobar went 4 for 5 with three RBIs for Milwaukee.

Looper (13-6), who won 12 games in each of the two previous seasons with St. Louis, allowed five runs and nine hits, including a two-run homer by Aramis Ramirez in the fifth, and walked three.

When he was called up to be the starting tailback on Minico's varsity team as a sophomore, Morgan was talented, but had his work cut out for him.

That's when he learned the value of writing down goals. It's a practice he did all through high school and continues to do at college.

Early on, Morgan's high school goals included simply getting on the field and contributing to his team.

Later on, he scribbled down goals to rewrite the Minico record books, which he accomplished before his senior season ended.

NFL fines Jets, Mangini for 2008 Favre coverup

FLORHAM PARK, N.J. — The NFL assessed $125,000 in fines to the New York Jets and former coach Eric Mangini on Wednesday for violating the league's rules on injury reporting with former quarterback Brett Favre last season.

The Jets failed to place Favre, now with the Minnesota Vikings, on the injury report during the final month of last season even though he had a torn biceps tendon.

The league announced it had fined the Jets $75,000, and Mangini and Jets general manager Mike Tannenbaum $25,000 apiece. Mangini now coaches the Cleveland Browns.

"We have been fully cooperative with the league throughout this investigation and respect their decision," the Jets said in a statement. Mangini was not immediately available for comment on his fine.

Hiding injuries could affect an opponent's preparation and the NFL has stepped up policing such practices. Commissioner Roger Goodell said Monday that the case would be an opportunity for the league to stress that all teams must abide by the injury report rules.

Last week, Tannenbaum admitted the Jets should have listed Favre as "probable" on their injury reports. That came a day after Favre said he thought he was hurting the Jets because of the injury and discussed it with the coaches and the front office. He said he would have been willing to sit out, even though that would have ended his streak of consecutive starts, which now stands at 270 games.

PROVING POPULAR: FAVRE JERSEYS MOVE FAST; VICK TOO

EDEN PRAIRIE, Minn. — For all of the negative publicity produced by Brett Favre's latest retirement flip-flop, fans have flocked to watch him in action — and buy his memorabilia.

chandise Web site for the entire sales period from April 1-Aug. 28. It costs $80.

Newness always helps: Jay Cutler ranked second and Michael Vick was fourth during that timeframe. The Favre phenomenon, however, seems like it's just one of a kind.

Perhaps the only person surprised to hear about Favre's jersey-selling success was his most prominent Vikings teammate.

"I think I'm more popular than Brett Favre, but he's got an advantage," running back Adrian Peterson said. "I think what gets him over the top is the Packer fans that live here also."

Favre was asked Wednesday if he had considered acquiring one of these items for himself.

"I don't think you can get any" the quarterback deadpanned. "They're real hard to find right now. I only say that because friends and family have asked if I can get one. The only ones I have are the ones I play in."

WEAVER: TEBOW A COMPELLING FIT FOR JAGUARS

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. — The Jacksonville Jaguars lost 17,000 season-ticket holders after last season, a staggering number that could lead to blackouts for

Most blamed the sluggish economy. Some pointed to the slumping team. Either way, team owner Wayne Weaver has to find a way to get them back.

How about Tim Tebow? Weaver told The Associated Press this week that drafting Tebow, the 2007 Heisman Trophy winner who grew up in Jacksonville and has top-ranked Florida seeking its third national championship in four seasons, is something he will consider next year.

"Star power is incredible, and Tebow is an iconic figure," Weaver said, noting that Brett Favre's arrival in Minnesota prompted about 7,000 season-ticket sales. "That's very compelling. He clearly is an outstanding football player and would be an asset to any football organization."

BRADY FOCUSING ON REX RYAN'S DEFENSE, NOT COMMENTS

FOXBOROUGH, Mass. — Tom Brady had a succinct response to all the talking Jets coach Rex Ryan has done about the Patriots and their coach.

"Talk is cheap," the Patriots quarterback said Wednesday with a smile.

A few hours later, Ryan also spoke calmly. The rookie head coach said he stood by his remarks that he wasn't intimidated by Patriots coach Bill Belichick and that he didn't come to New York to kiss Belichick's Super Bowl rings.

"It's how I felt and it's how I feel. I have a lot of respect for Bill Belichick," Ryan said in a conference call. "Hey, I'm not his friend on Sunday."

New England and New York meet at Giants Stadium on Sunday after each won its opening game. On Monday, the day after a 24-7 win over Houston, Jets nose tackle Kris Jenkins already was looking ahead to facing the longtime power of the AFC East.

BILLS CB MCKELVIN WILLING TO FORGIVE VANDALS

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. — If Bills cornerback Leodis McKelvin is willing to forgive and forget whoever spray-painted an obscenity across his front lawn, receiver Terrell Owens had a far more defiant reaction.

"Once we make it to the playoffs, tell them to do his lawn again," Owens said. "You just attribute that to ignorance."

Still stinging from a season-opening 25-24 loss at New England, the Bills returned to practice Wednesday with plenty of motivation and anger a day after learning the lawn in front of McKelvin's home was vandalized.

"I'm hoping it was just a bunch of kids, who probably didn't realize how big of an issue this would be," said linebacker Kawika Mitchell. "If it was some adults, that just makes it even more scary."

Mitchell noted NFL players are more concerned about their security and privacy, especially after Redskins safety Sean Taylor died of a gunshot wound following a botched burglary attempt in November 2007 at his Miami-area home.

"It's extremely dangerous when someone is going to come to your house and do anything that's going to affect you," Mitchell said.

Fresno's Hill praises BSU's stout defense

By Josh Dubow
Associated Press writer

No. 10 Boise State at Fresno State

TV: ESPN Radio: 98.3 FM

Fresno State coach Pat Hill has been on the wrong end of enough games against Boise State over the years to know that there's a lot more to the Broncos' success than the trick plays and innovative offense.

The team known for the Statue of Liberty and the hook-and-lateral can play some pretty stout defense too.

"Defensively, they've been a very good team for years," Hill said this week. "A lot of people called me before the Oregon game. I was very clear to people, 'Don't be talking about their offense. Their defense is the one that can control the game.' Sure enough they did."

The 10th-ranked Broncos (2-0) have done just that for the first two games of the season, throttling Oregon's vaunted spread offense and shutting out Miami of Ohio.

Next up for Boise State is the Western Athletic Conference opener in Fresno on Friday night against the Bulldogs (1-1).

BSU coach Chris Petersen is happy to hear his defense get credit.

"I think that's great," Petersen said. "We kind of felt for a while here that our defense has been maybe underappreciated in some ways but not on our team. Everybody knows if you're going to do good things you have to play great defense."

The Broncos served notice to the entire country about their defense in their highly anticipated opener against Oregon. The Ducks have had one of the country's most high-powered offenses in recent years but couldn't even manage a single first down in the first half.

Boise State limited Oregon to 152 yards in the 19-8 victory that was overshadowed when Ducks running back LeGarrette Blount punched Boise State defensive end Byron Hout in the aftermath of the game on national television.

"That defense gets overlooked," Fresno State receiver Seyi Ajitutu said. "Look how they shut down Oregon. Their defense is really good. They play hard and they play sound defense."

Miami only managed 194 yards in last week's 48-0 Boise State win, marking the first time since the Fiesta bowl winning season of 2006 that the Broncos held successive opponents under 200 yards. With performances like that, accolades are soon to follow.

"I think we've earned it," cornerback Kyle Wilson said. "The last few years we have turned the attitude and focus around on defense to earn that stuff. The defense has been getting stingier the last few years than it had been in the past. The key is to keep that up. It's nice to get that respect but it's up to us to maintain it."

Boise State allowed the third fewest points in the nation last season, just 13.6 per game, and forced the fourth most turnovers a game at 2.5. This season, the Broncos are in the top 10 in scoring defense, total defense, run defense and pass-efficiency defense.

Petersen knows that Fresno State could offer his defense its toughest test of the season with a diversified offense that can spread the field with receivers like Ajitutu and Devon Wylie or pound it inside with running backs like Ryan Mathews and Lonyae Miller.

"It's still early so it's hard to really know," Petersen said. "We'll be tested certainly this week in some ways we haven't been tested yet for sure. We still need a few more games to know where we're at there?"

NCAA's Brand dies from pancreatic cancer

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — NCAA president Myles Brand, who while leading Indiana University fired basketball coach Bob Knight, died Wednesday afternoon from pancreatic cancer. He was 67.

The first former university president ever to run college sports' largest governing body, Brand also worked to change the perception that wins supersede academics and earned accolades for his efforts.

Brand broke the news that he had cancer in January at the NCAA convention and continued to run the organization's day-to-day operations, despite undergoing treatment. The NCAA announced his death. Officials were not ready to say who would replace Brand or when they may begin searching for a successor.

"Myles Brand's passing is a great personal loss of a dear friend and an even greater loss to the NCAA and collegiate athletics," said Georgia president Michael Adams, who worked closely with Brand. "I believe Myles will be remembered as a person who helped us refocus on the student in student-athlete and his academic reforms will long outlive him."

Brand gained national attention in May 2000 when he put Knight on a zero-tolerance policy after a former player alleged the hugely successful but hot-headed coach had choked him during a practice years earlier.

Four months after that announcement, freshman Kent Harvey accused Knight of grabbing him, and Brand did what fans considered unthinkable — he fired the coach who won three national championships in Bloomington.

"That was a very difficult time for Myles, and I know he worked extremely hard to resolve those matters in a very, very different way. The way it ended up was not the way he wanted it to end," Terry Clapacs, a longtime university administrator who worked closely with Brand in the 1990s, said when Brand received an award in June.

Florida has a score to settle. Texas, too, but for a different reason.

Coach Urban Meyer and his top-ranked Gators welcome (sort of) Tennessee coach Lane Kiffin to Gainesville, Fla., and the Southeastern Conference on Saturday.

Kiffin took aim at the Mighty Gators in the off-season, throwing a few verbal jabs at Meyer and even accusing the Florida coach of breaking NCAA rules.

The Gators have generally played it cool publicly. "It's an intense rivalry," Florida quarterback Tim Tebow said. "People go out there and play extremely hard. It's one of the most physical games we'll play all year."

But Meyer, Tebow and the Gators have shown they are not above holding a grudge, having answered some perceived slights in the past with very real beat downs.

Just ask Georgia. In 2007 against Florida, the Bulldogs held a team party in the end zone after their first touchdown and went on to beat the Gators.

Florida's response last year: A 49-10 victory against Georgia, in which Meyer was calling late timeouts.

Kiffin's first Tennessee team doesn't appear ready to compete against the defending national champions after a 19-15 home loss to UCLA last week.

In Austin, Texas, the Longhorns are looking for revenge of a different kind against Texas Tech.

Colt McCoy and No. 2 Texas lost only once last season, a 39-33 setback in Lubbock on Graham Harrell's unforgettable last-second touchdown pass to Michael Crabtree. It was one of the best games of the season.

It also kept Texas from playing for the national title and vaulted the Red Raiders into the championship chase.

Harrell and Crabtree are gone now and coach Mike Leach's Red Raiders aren't even ranked, though that would change if they can make it two straight over the Longhorns.

The picks:

Thursday
No. 14 Georgia Tech (plus 5) at No. 20 Miami

Yellow Jackets ran for 472 in win over Hurricanes last season ... MIAMI 28-24.

Friday

ORDINANCE NO. 522

AN ORDINANCE OF THE CITY OF HEYBURN, IDAHO; PROVIDING FOR ADOPTION WITH ONLY ONE READING; AND, PROVIDING FOR EFFECTIVE DATE.

WHEREAS, Ordinance No. 369 was adopted and passed by the Mayor and City Council of the City of Heyburn on June 28, 1995 and thereafter recorded in the records of the Recorder of Minidoka County, Idaho on July 7, 1995 as Instrument Number 419325. Said ordinance provided in Section 5 thereof for the creation or retention of an alley as follows:

Section 5: There is hereby established an alley, forty (40) feet in width, running generally North and South, located directly adjacent to the East of Block 55 of the Heyburn Townsite, from 17th Street to 16th Street. Said alley is in the place of, in part, "C" Street, being the West forty feet of such former portion of "C" Street, where "C" Street formerly existed prior to passage of Ordinance 92; and

WHEREAS, Ordinance No. 369 in Section 6 thereof also vacated a portion of "C" Street as follows:

Section 6: The said Ordinance 92, passed by the Heyburn Village Board on October 14, 1943, failed to designate to whom the ownership of the vacated street should pass. The Heyburn City Council does here by designated and declare that one-half of the street shall pass respectively to the adjoining owners of the vacated street. The west forty feet of said land, formerly "C" Street, shall pass to the current owners of Lots 6 and 7 of Block 54 and the East portion of said "C" Street, the east forty feet of the former "C" Street, shall pass to the owners of Lots 1 and 12, of Block 55, though this ordinance has already burdened the same with the alley, referred to in Section 5 above; and,

WHEREAS, the wording of the above referred to sections of Ordinance 369 and location of Section 5 prior to Section 6 has created question or confusion as to the existence and nature of the alley created in Section 5 and the City now desires to clarify and/or implement what was intended in Ordinance No. 369.

BE IT ORDAINED BY THE MAYOR AND CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF HEYBURN AS FOLLOWS:

Section 1: The vacation of "C" Street as contained in Section 6 of Ordinance No. 369 is confirmed.

Section 2: The alley created in Section 5 of Ordinance No. 369 is hereby partially abandoned and partial affirmed as follows:

A. A portion of the alley created by Ordinance No 369 is hereby affirmed. Such portion is described as being forty (40) feet in width, running generally North and South, located directly adjacent to the East of Lot 12 of Block 55 of the Heyburn Townsite as follows: Commencing at the southeast corner of Lot 1 in Block 55, running thence east in straight line for 40 feet along the northern boundary of the existing east-west alley (which runs through Blocks 55 and 56); thence south to 16th Street along the centerline of the former "C" Street; thence west 40 feet along the northern border of 16th Street to the southeast corner of Lot 12 of Block 55; and then thence northerly along the eastern border of Lot 12 of Block 55 back to the southeast corner of Lot 1, block 55. All of the dimensions of the alley herewith retained are located in the west half of the portion of "C" Street vacated by Ordinances Nos. 92 and 369.

B. A portion of the alley created by Ordinance No 369 is hereby vacated. Such portion is described as being forty (40) feet in width, running generally North and South, located directly adjacent to the East of Lot 1 of Block 55 of the Heyburn Townsite, from 17th Street to the northern boundary of the east-west alley running through Blocks 55 and 56 as follows: Commencing at the northeast corner of Lot 1 in Block 55 running thence easterly for 40 feet along the southern boundary of 17th Street; and thence south along the center line of the former "C" Street to east-west alley running through Blocks 55 and 56; thence west 40 feet along the northern boundary of the said alley running through Blocks 55 and 56 to the southeast corner of Lot 1 of Block 55 thence north along Lot 1 of Block 55 back to the 17th Street. All of the dimensions of the alley herewith vacated as an alley are located in the west half of the portion of "C" Street vacated by Ordinances Nos. 92 and 369.

C. The portion of the alley vacated in Subsection B, above, however, is retained by the City of Heyburn as an Utility Easement, retaining the non-exclusive right, privilege and authority to go upon and over the said property. The purpose of this easement is to provide access to utility present or future facilities of the City and to bury and/or erect utility infrastructure and appurtenances upon, over and underneath same. Such infrastructure includes, but is not limited to, burying underground pipe, lines, placing manhole openings, pumping facilities, transformers, poles, guy wires, anchors and supports, power lines, and other utility structures. This easement is both for entry upon the land described and to travel over such land to gain access to the utilities and utility structures of the City.

Section 2: The City Council having by authorizing motion and vote waived the rule of requiring three separate readings of this Ordinance, by title and in full, therefore this ordinance shall be in full force and effect from and after its first and only reading, passage, approval and publication.

Passed this 26th day of August, 2009 by the City Council of the City of Heyburn, Idaho.

Approved this 26th day of August, 2009 by the Mayor of the City of Heyburn.

NOTICE OF TRUSTEE'S SALE

On Monday, January 4, 2010 at 10:00 a.m. at the office of First American Holding Company, 260 Third Avenue North in Twin Falls, Idaho, Charles Johnson of Johnson Olson, Chartered (a member of the Idaho State Bar Association), as Successor Trustee, will sell, at public auction, to the highest bidder, for cash in lawful money of the United States, all payable at the time of sale, the following described real property, situated in the County of Twin Falls, State of Idaho, and described as follows, to wit:

LOT 1 IN BLOCK 7 OF KINGSGATE NO. 1 SUBDIVISION, TWIN FALLS COUNTY, IDAHO, RECORDED IN BOOK 10 OF PLATS, PAGE 6.

The Trustee has no knowledge of a more particular description of the above-described real property, but for the purposes of compliance with Idaho Code Section 60-113, the Trustee has been informed that a street address of 394 Nottingham Drive, Twin Falls, Idaho may sometimes be associated with said real property. Further information may be obtained by calling American General Finance in Twin Falls, Idaho at (208) 733-9596.

This sale will be made without covenant or warranty regarding title, possession or encumbrances to satisfy the obligation secured by and pursuant to the power of sale conferred by an Open End Deed of Trust executed by Timothy R. Higley, a single man as his sole and separate property, as Grantor to First American Title Company as Trustee, and American General Financial Services, Inc., as Beneficiary, dated the 25th day of January 2008, and recorded on January 25, 2008, as Instrument No. 2008002010, in the records of Twin Falls County, Idaho, given to secure the principal sum of THIRTY EIGHT THOUSAND NINE HUNDRED NINETY-FOUR AND 00/100 DOLLARS ($38,994.00), and future advances and charges.

The above grantor is named to comply with section 45-1506(4) (a), Idaho Code. No representation is made that he is, or is not, responsible for this obligation.

The defaults for which this sale is to be made are presently:
 (a) the breach and failure to make the monthly payments in the amount of $488.16, per month, for over seven (7) months (February 2008 through August 2009) prior to this date, plus the accrued interest and late charges, in the amount of THREE THOUSAND FIVE HUNDRED NINETEEN AND 05/100 DOLLARS ($3,519.05), plus all future accruing payments for all succeeding months, and accruing interest and charges after August 3, 2009;

(b) the failure to insure the premises for damages by fire or other losses to protect the interests of the Beneficiary, American General Finance as required by the Open End Deed of Trust; and

(c) The recording of a Notice of Lien in favor of the State of Idaho as follows:

Debtor: Timothy R. Higley
 For: Child Support
 Filing Agency: Department of Health and Welfare
 Filed: June 10, 2008
 Lien number: T 366699.

Further, the Note secured by said Open End Deed of Trust so providing, the Beneficiary of said Open End Deed of Trust, declared all sums secured by said Open End Deed of Trust immediately due and payable, and that the balance due and owing upon said Open End Deed of Trust and future advance loan is $44,952.47 (FORTY FOUR THOUSAND NINE HUNDRED FIFTY-TWO AND 47/100 DOLLARS) as of June 29, 2009, plus interest at the contract rate of 13.19% percent for each and every day after June 29, 2009 accumulating on said principal amount at the rate of $16.24, per day, for each and every day until paid in full; plus accruing late fees, costs, and attorney's fees. The Beneficiary has elected to sell, or cause the trust property to be sold, to satisfy the obligations secured by said Open End Deed of Trust set out above.

This Deed of Trust Foreclosure is subject to a first Deed of Trust on the property to ABN Amro Mortgage Group, Inc., to secure an indebtedness in the principal sum of $81,600.00, dated March 26, 2004 and recorded on March 31, 2004 as Instrument No. 2004006794. This first Deed of Trust is senior to the American General Financial Services Open End Deed of Trust and is not subject to the foreclosure in this case.

ORDINANCE NO. 520

AN ORDINANCE OF THE CITY OF HEYBURN, IDAHO, AMENDING HEYBURN CODE SECTIONS 7-1-1; 7-1-3; AND 7-1-4 BY DELETING REFERENCE TO THE MINIDOKA CITIES JOINT ANIMAL CONTROL FACILITY AND SUBSTITUTING THEREFOR THE CITY OF HEYBURN; AMENDING SECTION 7-1-7 REGARDING CLEANUP OR DAMAGE TO PRIVATE PROPERTY; AMENDING SECTION 7-1-8 TO PROVIDE THAT VIOLATIONS OF THE CHAPTER ARE MISDEMEANORS AND SETTING MINIMUM FINES; AND PROVIDING FOR PASSAGE AFTER ONE READING AND PROVIDING AN EFFECTIVE DATE.

BE IT ORDAINED BY THE MAYOR AND CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF HEYBURN, IDAHO:

Section 1: Heyburn Code Section 7-1-1 shall be amended as follows:
7-1-1 LICENSE REQUIRED FEES: The owner or any person who is in keeping or harboring a dog in the City of Heyburn, Minidoka County, Idaho, shall pay to the MINIDOKA CITIES JOINT ANIMAL CONTROL FACILITY City for its Special Revenue Account an annual license fee for each dog so kept or harbored the amount of $10.00. The license fee shall be paid to the City Clerk or any other designated and authorized agent of the MINIDOKA CITIES JOINT ANIMAL CONTROL FACILITY City who shall issue in return a receipt designating the name and address of the owner or custodian paying the license fee, the number of the license tag assigned, the sex of the dog, a brief description of the dog and the amount paid for such license. A numbered metal license tag corresponding to the number listed on the receipt shall be delivered to the license applicant with the receipt. ~~The collecting agency shall deliver the fees collected to the MINIDOKA CITIES JOINT ANIMAL CONTROL FACILITY monthly.~~
The license shall be effective only to the end of the calendar year in which the same is issued.

Section 2: Heyburn Code Sections 7-1-3 (e) and (f) shall be amended as follows:
(e) Rabid Dogs: Any dog which has bitten any person shall be surrendered to a peace officer or animal control officer by the owner or any person who is in charge of or who is keeping or harboring such dog. The dog shall be quarantined at the MINIDOKA CITIES JOINT ANIMAL CONTROL FACILITY City's facility or some other suitable place at the expense of the owner for a period of not to exceed ten (10) days to determine whether the dog has hydrophobia (rabies). If it is determined during the observation period that the dog has hydrophobia, the dog may be destroyed. If the dog has not shown the normal signs of hydrophobia during the observation period, the owner or person entitled to possession of such dog may reclaim the dog upon payment of the actual costs incurred in keeping the dog or monitoring the dog's condition during the period of observation. If the dog is not reclaimed within three (3) days after the observation period has ended, it may be destroyed.
Any dog which appears likely to be suffering from rabies may be destroyed by a peace officer or animal control officer if such dog cannot be captured without exposing such officer or other persons to unreasonable risk of injury.

(f) Stray Dogs: An unlicensed dog which is observed or reported running at large within the City on two (2) or more occasions within any forty eight (48) hour period shall be presumed to be the property of no one, and the same may be destroyed by a peace officer or animal control officer if the dog cannot be taken up without difficulty and if three (3) inquiries by the animal control officers or peace officers of responsible persons, in the neighborhood in which the dog is observed to be running, undertaken within said forty eight (48) hour period and fail to determine who is responsible for said dog. A person who denies responsibility for the ownership and control of a dog shall have no claim against the MINIDOKA CITIES JOINT ANIMAL CONTROL FACILITY City or any animal control officer or peace officer of any political subdivision thereof City for destruction of a dog after he has denied ownership of said dog or responsibility for the control of said dog.

Section 3: Heyburn Code Section 7-1-4 shall be amended as follows:
7-1-4: RECLAIMING IMPOUNDED DOGS: Any dog which is taken up by a peace officer or animal control officer of the City may be reclaimed at the MINIDOKA CITIES JOINT ANIMAL CONTROL FACILITY City's facility by the owner or other person entitled thereto upon payment of a fee of ten dollars ($10.00) for the cost of taking said dog into custody plus five dollars ($5.00) per day for each day or part thereof that the dog has been kept at the dog pound. Said fee shall be paid to the animal control officer or his designated agent for delivery to the MINIDOKA CITIES JOINT ANIMAL CONTROL FACILITY City Clerk and a receipt shall be issued therefor. This Section shall not apply to dogs which are subject to destruction as vicious or rabid dogs. An unlicensed dog which will be kept or harbored within the City upon release shall not be released until the person reclaiming such dog has purchased a current license.
The animal control officer shall make reasonable efforts to locate and notify owners of licensed dogs of the impoundment of their dogs. If a licensed dog is not claimed by the owner within three (3) days after it is first impounded, or if an unlicensed dog is not claimed by its owner within three (3) days after the dog is first impounded, the dog shall be humanely killed unless a third person offers to provide a home for the dog and pays all impoundment charges against the dog and has the dog properly licensed, in which case the dog shall be surrendered to such third person.

Section 4: Heyburn Code Section 7-1-7 shall be amended as follows:
7-1-7: ENTERING PRIVATE PROPERTY: In the enforcement of the provisions of this Chapter, any peace officer or animal control officer is authorized to enter upon private property to capture a dog running at large or to destroy a rabid or vicious dog, but the authority granted by this Section does not authorize entry into any building on private property without the consent of the person entitled to control of said building. ~~It shall be the responsibility of the City to repair any damage to property or clean-up any mess created by the actions of a peace officer or animal control officer in the pursuit or destruction of a dog on private property.~~

Section 5: Heyburn Code Section 7-1-8 shall be amended as follows:
7-1-8: PENALTY: Any person who shall violate any of the provisions of this Chapter shall be guilty of an infraction a misdemeanor, unless otherwise provided, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished as follows:
(A) An admission of guilt or entry of judgment to any violation shall result in a penalty of not more less than fifty dollars ($50.00) plus any court costs for the first such violation.
(B) Upon a subsequent admission of guilt or entry of judgment for violation of the above provisions of this Chapter, a penalty of not more less than one hundred dollars ($100.00) plus any court costs shall be assessed. ~~Failure to pay shall constitute a misdemeanor.~~
(C) Upon a third admission of guilt or entry of judgment for violation of the provisions of this Chapter, a penalty of not more less than three hundred dollars ($300.00) plus any court costs shall be assessed for each subsequent violation. ~~Failure to pay shall constitute a misdemeanor.~~
(D) A violation of Section 7-1-3 (d) or (e) shall constitute a misdemeanor.

Section 6: The City Council having by authorizing motion and vote waived the rule of requiring three separate readings of this Ordinance, by title and in full, therefore this ordinance shall be in full force and effect from and after its first and only reading, passage, approval and publication.
PASSED this 26th day of August, 2009 by the City Council of the City of Heyburn.
APPROVED this 26th day of August, 2009 by the Mayor of the City of Heyburn.

Sixmile Creek and Gunnel Reservoir are scheduled for restoration. This restoration is part of the Commission approved Management Plan for Conservation of Yellowstone Cutthroat Trout in Idaho. Restoration includes the removal of the existing hybrid fish population and the reintroduction of pure Yellowstone cutthroat trout. No trout will survive the removal process therefore it is the Department's intent to allow the public to harvest these fisheries prior to the eradication effort.

Therefore, fish bag, possession, and size limits will be removed on Sixmile Creek and Gunnel Reservoir in Cassia County, effective September 11 through September 27, 2009. Fish may be taken by any method except firearms, explosives, chemicals, or electric current; effective September 11 through September 27, 2009. In accordance with Section 36-401, Idaho Code, a valid Idaho fishing license is required to salvage fish.

Copies of Order 09-54 are available at the Idaho Department of Fish and Game headquarters, 600 South Walnut, PO Box 25, Boise, Idaho 83707.

NOTICE OF TRUSTEE'S SALE

On January 14, 2010, at the hour of 12:00 o'clock PM of said day, at First American Title, 260 Third Avenue North, Twin Falls, Idaho, JUST LAW, INC., as Successor Trustee, will sell at public auction to the highest bidder, for cash, in lawful money of the United States, all payable at the time of sale, the following described real property, situated in the County of Twin Falls, State of Idaho, and described as follows to wit:

Lot 5 in Block 3 of NORTH PARK SUBDIVISION No. 1, Twin Falls County, Idaho, recorded in Book 11 of plats, page 16.

The Trustee has no knowledge of a more particular description of the above referenced real property, but for purposes of compliance with Section 60-113 Idaho Code, the Trustee has been informed the address of 1189 Parkway Drive, Twin Falls, ID, is sometimes associated with the said real property.

This Trustee's Sale is subject to a bankruptcy filing, a payoff, a reinstatement or any other conditions of which the Trustee is not aware that would cause the cancellation of this sale. Further, if any of these conditions exist, this sale may be null and void, the successful bidder's funds shall be returned, and the Trustee and the Beneficiary shall not be liable to the successful bidder for any damages.

Said sale will be made without covenant or warranty regarding title, possessions or encumbrances to satisfy the obligation secured by and pursuant to the power of sale conferred in the Deed of Trust executed by Mickey R. Alexander and Toni Alexander, husband and wife as joint tenants, as Grantor(s) with Royal Mortgage Partners, a California L.P. dba RMB Financial Services as the Beneficiary, under the Deed of Trust recorded April 29, 1999, as Instrument No. 1999008144, in the records of Twin Falls County, Idaho. The Beneficial interest of said Deed of Trust was subsequently assigned to Manufacturers and Traders Trust Company, One M & T Plaza, Buffalo, NY 14203-2399, Trustee for Securitization Series 1999-3, Agreement dated 06-01-99, recorded January 17, 2002, as Instrument No. 2002000990. The Beneficial interest of said Deed of Trust was subsequently assigned to Manufacturers and Traders Trust Company, as trustee, on behalf of the holders of the Home Equity Loan Pass-Through Certificates, Series 1999-3 recorded September 2, 2009, as Instrument No. 2009-020103, in the records of said County.

THE ABOVE GRANTORS ARE NAMED TO COMPLY WITH SECTION 45-1506(4)(a), IDAHO CODE. NO REPRESENTATION IS MADE THAT THEY ARE, OR ARE NOT, PRESENTLY RESPONSIBLE FOR THIS OBLIGATION.

The default for which this sale is to be made is the failure to pay the amount due under the certain Promissory Note and Deed of Trust, in the amounts called for thereunder as follows: Monthly payments in the amount of $1,383.44 for the months of March 2009 through and including to the date of sale, together with late charges and monthly payments accruing. The sum owing on the obligation secured by said Deed of Trust is $49,810.11 as principal, plus service charges, attorney's fees, costs of this foreclosure, any and all funds expended by Beneficiary to protect their security interest, and interest accruing at the rate of 9.5% from February 1, 2009, together with delinquent taxes plus penalties and interest to the date of sale.

The Beneficiary elects to sell or cause the trust property to be sold to satisfy said obligation.

Dated this 9th day of September, 2009.

NOTICE OF APPLICATION FOR APPROVAL OF A&B IRRIGATION DISTRICT'S MITIGATION PLAN TO COMPENSATE BLUE LAKES TROUT FARM, INC.

Notice is hereby given that on August 18, 2009, A&B Irrigation District (A&B), PO Box 675, Rupert, ID, 83350-0675, through its counsel, Barker Rosholt & Simpson LLP, PO Box 485, Twin Falls, ID, 83303-0485, submitted a Mitigation Plan (plan) to the Idaho Department of Water Resources (Department) pursuant to Rule 43 of the Department's Conjunctive Management Rules. *The plan is intended to satisfy the mitigation obligations of A&B for the Blue Lakes Delivery call regulated by the watermaster of State Water Districts 130 and 140.*A&B holds numerous ground water rights for irrigation uses located within Jerome and Minidoka Counties. Certain of these ground water rights have priority dates junior to the priority dates of certain water rights from surface water sources dependent on springs that discharge to the Devil's Washbowl to Buhl Gage reach of the Snake River. The ground water and the springs are interconnected sources of water. A&B has proposed the plan to compensate for injury to senior priority surface water rights that may result from depletions caused by junior priority ground water rights. The surface water rights that the plan proposes to benefit are: 36-2356A, 36-7210 and 36-7427 held by Blue Lakes Trout Co. LLC for use at its hatchery facility near Alpheus Creek. The plan proposes that A&B will maintain a project within the A&B service area that converts irrigation of 1,378 acres from a ground water source to a surface water supply. A&B will use stored water from the Upper Snake River under its own storage water rights as the surface water supply for the on-going conversion project. The plan includes incidental recharge resulting from conversion and delivery of the surface water using conveyance facilities owned and operated by A&B. The plan also includes the ongoing enrollment of 121 acres of ground water irrigated lands in the Conservation Reserve Enhancement Program (CREP).

The Department will process this plan pursuant to the Department's Conjunctive Management Rules (IDAPA 37, Title 03, Chapter 11).*The Department has not determined the adequacy of the proposed plan. A complete copy of the proposed plan is available for review at either the Department's State Office in Boise, the Department's Regional Office in Twin Falls, or may be viewed online at the following website along with other related documents:

http://www.idwr.idaho.gov/News/WaterCalls/1000Spring%20Users%20Calls/blue_lakes.htm Any protest against approval of the plan must be filed with the Department, together with a protest fee of $25, on or before September 28, 2009. The protest must include a certificate of service showing that a copy of the protest has been mailed to or served on A&B and its counsel.

NOTICE OF TRUSTEE'S SALE

TS No. 09-0112442 Title Order No. 090557338IDGNO Parcel No. RPT00010540130A The following described property will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder, payable in lawful money of the United States, in the lobby of Land Title & Escrow, 1411 Fillmore Street, Suite 600 Twin Falls, ID 83301, on 01/04/2010 at 11:00 am, (recognized local time) for the purpose of foreclosing that certain Deed of Trust recorded 03/29/2007 as Instrument Number 2007007182, and executed by VICTOR M OROZCO, A MARRIED MAN AS HIS SOLE & SEPARATE PROPERTY, as Grantor(s), in favor of MORTGAGE ELECTRONIC REGISTRATION SYSTEMS, INC., as Beneficiary, to RECONTRUST COMPANY, N.A., the Current Trustee of record, covering the following real property located in Twin Falls County, state of Idaho: LOT 13 IN BLOCK 54 OF TWIN FALLS TOWNSITE, TWIN FALLS COUNTY, IDAHO, ACCORDING TO THE OFFICIAL PLAT THEREOF. The Trustee has no knowledge of a more particular description of the above referenced real property, but for purpose of compliance with Idaho Code, Section 60-113, the Trustee has been informed that the street address of, 428 3RD AVE N, TWIN FALLS, ID 83301-5909 is sometimes associated with said real property. Bidders must be prepared to tender the trustee the full amount of the bid at the sale in the form of cash, or a cashier's check drawn on a state or federally insured savings institution. Said sale will be made without covenant or warranty, express or implied, regarding title, possession or encumbrances to satisfy the obligation secured by and pursuant to the power of sale conferred in that certain Deed of Trust. The default for which this sale is to be made is: Failure to pay the monthly payment due 03/01/2009 of principal, interest and impounds and subsequent installments due thereafter; plus late charges, with interest currently accruing at 6.125% per annum; together with all subsequent sums advanced by beneficiary pursuant to the terms and conditions of said Deed of Trust, and any supplemental modifications thereto. The principal balance owing as of this date on said obligation is $86,505.07, plus interest, costs and expenses actually incurred in enforcing the obligations thereunder and in this sale, together with any unpaid and/or accruing real property taxes, and/or assessments, attorneys' fees, Trustee's fees and costs, and any other amount advanced to protect said security, as authorized in the promissory note secured by the aforementioned Deed of Trust. Therefore, the Beneficiary elects to sell, or cause said trust property to be sold, to satisfy said obligation. NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT THIS FIRM IS ATTEMPTING TO COLLECT A DEBT AND ANY INFORMATION OBTAINED WILL BE USED FOR THAT PURPOSE, AND THAT THE DEBT MAY BE DISPUTED. THE ABOVE GRANTORS ARE NAMED TO COMPLY WITH SECTION 45-1506(4)(a) IDAHO CODE. NO REPRESENTATION IS MADE THAT THEY ARE, OR ARE NOT, PRESENTLY RESPONSIBLE FOR THIS OBLIGATION. DATED: 08/26/2009 Name and Address of the Current Trustee is: RECONTRUST COMPANY, N.A. 1800 Tapo Canyon Rd., CA6-914-01-94 SIMI VALLEY, CA 90028-1821 PHONE: (800) 281-8219 RECONTRUST COMPANY, N.A. Successor Trustee Sabrina Stephens, Team Member ASAP# 3241566

Mom is devastated to learn 'other woman' is her daughter

DEAR ABBY: I am a 58-year-old woman who has just been dumped by my 55-year-old boyfriend for a younger woman. She is 18, and if that isn't bad enough — she's my daughter. They are now living together.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

For more than a year we functioned as a family. We had regular game nights and took a family vacation together. Because of their betrayal, I have lost my daughter, my boyfriend, the two people I thought were also my best friends, and my family all at the same time. I don't know anyone who has had this happen to them, but unfortunately there must be some out there.

How do I go on? How do I maintain a relationship with my daughter when she is living with my ex-boyfriend? How do I accept what has happened without approving of it? There is so much wrong with this I'm at a loss for rules or tools to handle it.

- IN CRUSHING PAIN IN OREGON

DEAR IN CRUSHING PAIN: There ARE no "rules." And it does occasionally happen — most famously with Mia Farrow, her adopted daughter and her long-time boyfriend Woody Allen. But I believe Ms. Farrow cut off all contact with both of them.

But enough about her. You are going to have to figure out what will work best for you. Your first step should be to seek spiritual support. Sometimes, with time, comes acceptance. But right now, it is crucial that you take care of yourself.

DEAR ABBY: I'm 19 and finally getting my life together. I have already experienced a lot emotionally and physically. I have recently started on the path to sobriety, but there are two problems. In the city where I live there is nothing to do after 10 p.m. if you're not a drunk. My friends from childhood not only do not support me but tell me I should just have a drink.

I know you should keep yourself surrounded by people who will lift you up, but these people have been my close companions for many years, and I don't think I can dismiss them that easily. Please help me. I like how my life is right now, and I need to know how to stay focused.

- DRUNK OR SOBER? IN NEW YORK

DEAR D. OR S.?: If you want to hang onto your sobriety, you are going to have to fight for it. You got off on a wrong path very early, and so did your childhood friends. But now you have an opportunity to make new ones — the members of your sobriety program. The more time you spend with them, the less time you will have to allow yourself to be seduced into falling off the wagon.

If you're strong enough to do this, you can be a role model for some of your old drinking buddies, and some may decide to join you. But if they don't, you will have made new friends who have also made positive changes in their lives — and that's not a bad consolation prize.

DEAR ABBY: Please tell me your position on this. Are adult children supposed to take an aging mother with them on vacation? If not, what is a gentle way to say no when the parent invites herself? Please help us.

- UNSURE IN OHIO

DEAR UNSURE: I think it depends upon the relationship between the mother and "child." It also depends upon the purpose of the vacation. If a couple is going away to relax and bond more closely with each other, they do not need a third wheel — regardless of how much they might love her. And the way to say that is, "We need some alone time, Mom. Please understand."

IF SEPTEMBER 17 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: During the next six weeks, you might feel as if you're being pulled in two directions. You can break free and live the lifestyle that uniquely fits your desires by December or January, but remember that your tastes may shift quickly. It is best not to make permanent commitments while experimentation is under way. That may mean that you shouldn't move to a new apartment or change jobs. People who suddenly appear in your life between now and February may leave just as quickly, but lasting friendships can be forged as well. Life will be more predictable by next April and May, when you will be able to better judge the people and things that have enduring value.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): A tendency to engage in inane chatter can place you in an awkward position. Avoid the water cooler and keep your attention focused.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You can't risk getting in today's Thursday, Sept. 17, the 260th day of 2009. There are 105 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight: On Sept. 17, 1939, the Soviet Union invaded Poland during World War II, more than two weeks after Nazi Germany had launched its assault.

On this date: In 1787, the Constitution of the United States was completed and signed by a majority of delegates attending the Constitutional Convention in Philadelphia.

In 1862, in the bloodiest battle day in U.S. history, Union forces fought Confederate invaders in the Civil War Battle of Antietam at Sharpsburg, Md.

In 1909, the first trolley crossed New York City's recently opened Queensboro Bridge in a test run. (Regular service began Oct. 4; the trolley was shut down in 1957.)

In 1920, the American Professional Football Association — a precursor of the NFL — was formed in Canton, Ohio.

In 1944, during World War II, Allied paratroopers launched Operation Market hot water with the boss or hurting your reputation under these stars. Be thorough and meet deadlines.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Don't take criticism too personally; let it inspire you to work harder. A diet or new health regime may be on your mind.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You might be frustrated. When it is time to be circumspect, someone may let the wrong cat out of the bag. Don't give advice.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): In turbulent seas it is wise to keep your mouth shut and your life preserver on. People can be cranky, so avoid challenging situations.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Creatures of habit prefer to seek a safety zone when they feel threatened. You might not be entirely willing to cooperate with others.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22):

Romance may need to take a back seat to ambitions. Business propositions under these celestial conditions will be risky.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): If you face emotional tailspins, allow a team spirit prevail so that your complicated juggling act is easier to coordinate.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Count your lucky stars, but don't count on them to keep you out of trouble. This isn't a good day to be pressing your luck.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Aggravations can make you or break you. Unless you are a military commander, you can't bark orders and expect immediate compliance.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Center your attention on what is actually important. Shift your inner focus to what is right rather than only seeing what is wrong.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): If an argument could put a key connection on the rocks, find a way to avoid the argument. Work hard to be as amenable as possible.

Ten years ago: President Bill Clinton lifted restrictions on trade, travel and banking imposed on North Korea a half-century earlier, rewarding it for agreeing to curb missile tests.

Five years ago: President Vladimir Putin said Russia was "seriously preparing" for pre-emptive strikes against terrorists, as Chechen warlord Shamil Basayev took responsibility for a school hostage-taking and other attacks that had claimed more than 430 lives.

San Francisco's Barry Bonds hit the 700th home run of his career, joining Babe Ruth (714) and Hank Aaron (755) as the only players to reach the milestone.

One year ago: Defense Secretary Robert Gates met with Afghan President Hamid Karzai and offered the people of Afghanistan his "personal regrets" for U.S. airstrikes that had killed civilians and said he would try to improve the accuracy of air warfare. A suicide attack on the U.S. Embassy in San'a, Yemen killed 19 people, including an American woman and six militants.

TODAY IN HISTORY

In 1948, the United Nations mediator for Palestine, Count Folke Bernadotte, was assassinated in Jerusalem by Jewish extremists.

In 1949, more than 120 people died when fire gutted the Canadian passenger steamship SS Noronic at a pier in Toronto.

In 1959, Soviet leader Nikita Khrushchev traveled by train from Washington to New York City, where he received a low-key welcome from New Yorkers.

In 1978, after meeting at Camp David, Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat signed a framework for a peace treaty.

In 1984, Progressive Conservative leader Brian Mulroney took office as Canada's 18th prime minister.

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Concepts Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE® Bobby Wolff

"For I'm not so old and not so plain, And I'm quite prepared to marry again."
—W.S. Gilbert

Everybody took a sensible view in the auction on this deal from the quarterfinals of the Mind Sports Games in Beijing last year. Both Norths felt obligated to double two hearts for takeout, and thus both got their side to a reasonable three diamonds, which was threatened by the 4-1 trump break.

The key to the deal, though, turned out to be the opening lead. For the United States, Marina Letizia led the heart nine, which clarified her holding and, slightly fortuitously, forced declarer to cover. South ruffed East's high heart return and immediately played three rounds of clubs. Letizia won and led a third heart. Declarer ruffed and was down to four trumps only. She played three rounds of trump, letting Letizia win and underlead her spade ace. Declarer misguessed by playing low from dummy. Mildred Breed scored her queen, whereupon the fourth heart promoted an extra trump trick for the defense for down two.

By contrast, in the other room West led the heart three to the five and East's jack. Now the defenders could continue hearts but risked eventually setting up a heart in dummy. So East shifted to a trump to the jack and queen. That let West lead a second heart to start reducing declarer's trumps, but she had lost a vital tempo.

Declarer, Janice Seamon-Molson, simply tested clubs, ruffed the heart return, drew trumps, and eventually led a spade toward the king. She could not be prevented from scoring dummy's spade king for the ninth trick.

ANSWER: This hand is just worth an invitational sequence, but a cue-bid followed by a raise of partner's major gets you to the three-level, which is higher than you might like. The options are to bid one spade (an underbid), then bid hearts in competition, or to jump to two hearts, temporarily losing the spades. I prefer the most aggressive approach — the cue-bid.
