putting them at a disadvantage with other students around the globe.

"Now, I know longer school days and school years are not wildly popular ideas;" the president said earlier this year. "Not with Malia and Sasha, not in my family, and probably not in yours. But the challenges of a new century demand more time in the classroom?'

The president, who has a sixth-grader and a third-grader, wants schools to add time to classes, to stay open late and to let kids in on weekends so they have a safe place to go.

Water, sewer rates on T.F. Council agenda

By Ben Botkin

Times-News writer

The Twin Falls City Council will decide whether to increase water and sewer rates at its meeting today.

The proposed rate increases for city utilities are 12 percent for water and 5 percent for sewer, with sanitation not changing. For the average monthly residential bill, the increase would be $3.06 for water and 80.55 cents for sewer, a total of $3.87, according to a memo from Lorie Race, acting finance director, to city officials.

The average monthly bill would increase from $56 to $59.87, a figure based on an assumed 15,000-gallon consumption amount. The city has increasing operating costs and pending capital needs in the water and wastewater funds that require additional revenue, according to the memo.

The council meets at 5 p.m. today in Council Chambers, 305 Third Ave. E.

"Our school calendar is based upon the agrarian economy and not too many of our kids are working the fields today," Education Secretary Arne Duncan said in a recent interview with The Associated Press.

Fifth-grader Nakany Camara is of two minds. She likes the four-week summer program at her school, Brookhaven Elementary School in Rockville, Md. Nakany enjoys seeing her friends there and thinks summer school helped boost her grades from two Cs to the honor roll.

But she doesn't want a longer school day. "I would walk straight out the door,"

"I was like, 'Wow, are you three more hours I won't be able to chill with my friends after school?"

Her school is part of a 3year-old state initiative to add 300 hours of school time in nearly two dozen schools. Early results are positive. Even reluctant Domonique, who just started ninth grade, feels differently now. "I've learned a lot," she said.

That is despite the fact that Taiwan, Japan and Hong Kong have longer school years (190 to 201 days) than does the U.S. (180 days).

> Regardless, there is a strong case for adding time to the school day.

Researcher Tom Loveless of the Brookings Institution kids in the United States need instruction time. Scores rose Charter schools are known for having longer school days or weeks or years. For example, kids in the KIPP network of 82 charter schools across the country go to school from 7:30 a.m. to 5 p.m., more than three hours longer than the typical day. They go to school every other Saturday and for three weeks in the summer. KIPP eighth-grade classes exceed their school district averages on state tests.

In Massachusetts' expanded learning time initiative, early results indicate that kids in some schools do better on state tests than do kids at regular public schools. The extra time, which schools can looked at math scores in add as hours or days, is for Obama and Duncan say countries that added math three things: core academics kids struggling in English, more school because kids significantly, especially in for example, get an extra

Most states set the minimum number of school days at 180 days, though a few require 175 to 179 days.

> Several schools are going year-round by shortening summer vacation and lengthening other breaks.

Many schools are going beyond the traditional summer school model, in which schools give remedial help to kids who flunked or fell behind.

Summer is a crucial time for kids, especially poorer kids, because poverty is linked to problems that interfere with learning, such as hunger and less involvement by their parents.

That makes poor children almost totally dependent on their learning experience at school, said Karl Alexander, a sociology professor at Baltimore's Johns Hopkins University, home of the National Center for Summer Learning.

Roman Polanski was arrestin for the Zurich Film Festival and faces possible extradition to the United States for having sex with a 13-year-old girl in 1977, authorities said Sunday.

Polanski was scheduled to receive an honorary award at the festival when was apprehended Saturday at the airport, the Swiss Justice Ministry said in a statement. It said U.S. authorities have sought the arrest of the 76-year-old director around the world since 2005.

"There was a valid arrest request and we knew when he was coming," ministry spokesman Guido Balmer told The Associated Press. "That's why he was taken into custody."

Polanski, the director of "Chinatown" and "Rose-

Polanski has asked a U.S. appeals court in California to overturn a judges' refusal to throw out his case. He claims misconduct by the now-deceased judge who had arranged a plea bargain and then reneged on it.

His victim, Samantha Geimer, who long ago identified herself publicly, has joined in Polanski's bid for dismissal, saying she wants the case to be over. She sued Polanski and reached an undisclosed settlement.

Justice Minister Eveline Widmer-Schlumpf said the director will remain in Zurich until the conclusion of the extradition proceedings. The United States now has 60 days to file a formal such classic films as request for Polanski's transfer, she said.

Since 2002, the percentage of terrorism cases that federal prosecutors declined to pursue has grown from 31 percent to 73 percent, the TRAC study found.

Nearly 6,000 of the close to 8,900 cases referred for prosecution by federal investigators between 2004 and 2008 were closed without action. Of the remaining cases, 2,302 people were convicted and 1,245 went to prison, study found, and just 52 were more.

According to the data, U.S. attorneys reported that the cases brought to them by investigators were often based on weak or insufficient admissible evidence, lacked criminal intent or did not constitute a federal offense.

The Justice Department disagrees with TRAC's analysis and conclusions and says the data omits some statistics and uses data that differs from the agency's information.

No. 5 Boise St. boasts tough pass defense too

Associated Press writer

BOWLING GREEN, Ohio - Boise State keeps winning as other highly ranked teams fall and now the Broncos find themselves as one of the top five teams in the nation.

Boise State moved up to fifth in the AP poll Sunday, the best regular-season ranking in school history. The Broncos finished the 2006 season ranked No. 5 after going undefeated and beating Oklahoma in the Fiesta Bowl.

Four top-10 teams lost last weekend, clearing the way for Boise State's rise.

The Broncos improved to 4-0 on Saturday night with a 49-14 victory against Bowling Green.

Boise State's offense scored in a hurry and its defense smothered the Falcons. The games was never competitive.

The Broncos intercepted Tyler Sheehan twice and held receiver Freddie Barnes to just four receptions for 24 yards — he had

Orton, Broneos win with dominant D

Denver beats Raiders 23-3 for 3-0 start

By Josh Dubow

Associated Press writer

OAKLAND, Calif. – Kyle Orton, Josh McDaniels and a newfound dominant defense have quieted all the talk of offseason disfunction in Denver with a 3-0 start.

Orton threw a touchdown pass to Brandon Marshall, the defense kept a second straight opponent out of the end zone and the Broncos overwhelmed the Oakland Raiders 23-3 Sunday.

"We're happy with where we're at, 3-0," Orton said. "We've been improving every single week."

The performance to start the season is a far cry from the offseason. McDaniels caused an immediate stir when he was hired to replace the fired Mike Shanahan as coach in Denver last offseason. He alienated Pro Bowl quarterback Jay Cutler before trading him to Chicago for Orton, then suspended Marshall in the preseason.

But once the season started, things couldn't have gone much better for the Broncos. They capitalized on a lucky bounce to win the opener at Cincinnati and followed that with convincing wins over Cleveland and Oakland (1-2).

"There's no vindication because there's nothing to be vindicated about," McDaniels said.

The schedule gets considerably tougher starting next week against Dallas, but the Broncos have to be pleased with where they stand now. Rookie Knowshon Moreno ran for 90 yards and a score and Correll football, going 13 for 23 for 157 yards. He has not thrown an interception in three games, quite a change from the flashier Cutler, who made more big plays last season but also more mistakes with 18 interceptions.

Phil wins Tour Championship, Tiger the FedEx Cup

The Associated Press

ATLANTA Phil Mickelson had the smaller check and felt like the biggest winner.

Tiger Woods was congratulated after he finished second in the Tour Championship.

Mickelson capped off a tumultuous summer at home with a spectacular rally at East Lake, closing with a 5-under 65 to go from four shots behind to a three-shot victory.

Woods made two late birdies, not enough to put to secure the FedEx Cup and its $10 million bonus. It finished a season in which he won six times and was no worse than second in nine of his 17 tournaments. "I like the way today went," Mickelson said. "I was two back of him, I beat him by three. He gets the $10 million check, and I get $1 million. I've got no problem with that. I just love holding this finally."

Mickelson finished at 9-under 271 and earned $1.35 million. He also col-any heat on Mickelson, but lected $3 million for being second in the FedEx Cup. His only hope for the FedEx Cup was for Woods to finish eighth or worse, a remote possibility until Woods made his first birdie of the final round at No. 15, then ended a bizarre drought with a 35-foot birdie on the 16th.

Kris McKean rebounds for Super Stocks title

By Linda Brittsan

Times-News correspondent

The evening didn't start well for Kris McKean, but it ended with him rounding up the 2009 Budweiser Super Stocks championship Saturday night at Magic Valley Speedway.

McKean's problems started during qualifying when he lost the exhaust in the No. 7 car. After bringing out a backup car, McKean finished fifth in his heat race while Jerry McKean, who was in a points battle with Kris for the championship, finished first. Forced to start at the rear of the field for the main event race, Kris had his work cut out for him: Jerry started from the second row.

ing nearly a half-track lead over the field at lap 20. As the race went caution-free Kris made his moves late in the race, knowing he needed to gain positions critical to securing the championship.

"I saw the outside lane was moving and went with it," Kris said. "I kept watching the scoreboard, and I knew that if I didn't get up front then Jerry was going to get it. I decided with 10 laps to go that if they didn't have it figured out I was going to figure it out for them - take it three wide or something."

He churned out a secondplace finish behind the flying Jerry for a 20-point margin of victory in the championship chase. "We pulled spacer out on

Johnson takes 2nd Chase race

By Dan Gelston

Associated Press writer

DOVER, Del. – Jimmie Johnson dominated again in winning a crucial Chase race.

If he keeps driving like this, NASCAR can expect another regular fixture in November: Johnson hoisting the series trophy and celebrating a championship.

Johnson thumped the competition in the second Chase for the championship race, sweeping the season races at Dover International Speedway to accelerate his bid for an unprecedented fourth straight Sprint Cup title.

"I'm pretty sure that dude is Superman," runnerup Mark Martin said.

He was pretty super on the concrete in the No. 48 Chevrolet. If three championships weren't enough to intimidate the rest of the Chase field, the way he won on Sunday should send another message: He's just really getting going on a fourth.

"As far as sending a message, I hope it does," Johnson said. "I hope people are worried."

Johnson cut Martin's points lead with the victory - his fourth of the year and 44th overall — in the second of 10 races in the Chase for the championship.

Favre throws last-gasp TD

MINNEAPOLIS - Brett Favre threw a 32-yard touchdown pass to Greg Lewis in the back of the end zone with 2 seconds left to lift Minnesota to a 27-24 victory over the stunned San Francisco 49ers, keeping the Vikings unbeaten.

An official review upheld Lewis's unbelievable catch. sending the sellout crowd into a frenzy. Some of the fans had already left after two unsuccessful possessions against a stingy 49ers defense. More of them booed during the second half as the offense struggled to move the ball and Favre's passes were off target.

LIONS 19, REDSKINS 14

DETROIT - The Lions ended their 19-game losing streak by holding off the Redskins.

Matthew Stafford threw a 21-yard touchdown pass to Bryant Johnson in the first quarter and the two connected to draw a key penalty to set up a TD in the fourth quarter.

The Lions (1-2) had not won since Dec. 23, 2007 and their skid matched the second longest in NFL history.

COLTS 31, CARDINALS 10

GLENDALE, Ariz. Peyton Manning threw four touchdown passes, three in the second quarter, to power Indianapolis.

Manning completed 24 of 35 for 379 yards with one interception. The Colts' quarterback had four TD passes in a game for the 18th time, moving him ahead of Johnny Unitas into third on the NFL career list, behind Dan Marino's 21 and Brett Favre's 20.

Kurt Warner, under severe pressure much of the night, was 30 of 52 for 332 yards and one score but was picked off twice.

EAGLES 34, CHIEFS 14

PHILADELPHIA - The Philadelphia Eagles didn't need much from Michael Vick to beat the Kansas City Chiefs. They didn't need anything from Donovan McNabb or Brian Westbrook.

Getting significant contributions from their youngsters and backups, the Eagles routed the Chiefs in Vick's return to the NFL.

JETS 24, TITANS 17

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. – David Harris had an interception and a big sack on consecutive drives, and Mark Sanchez threw two touchdown passes and ran for another as the Jets stayed undefeated by holding on for a victory over the Titans.

PACKERS 36, RAMS 17

ST. LOUIS - Aaron Rodgers threw two touchdown passes and ran for another, and the Packers sent the Rams to their 13th straight loss.

Rodgers was 13 for 23 for 269 yards. The Rams (0-3) have lost 30 of 35 since the start of the 2007 season.

Rodgers and Greg Jennings hooked up on passes of 50 and 53 yards that set up touchdowns for Green Bay (2-1). Rodgers had a 46-yard pass to Jasen Skyberg made it Donald Driver that set up another score, and he scored on a 4-yard run.

RAVENS 34, BROWNS 3 BALTIMORE - Joe

Flacco threw for a careerhigh 342 yards, Willis McGahee scored two more touchdowns, and the Ravens cruised to a victory over the Browns.

After Baltimore (3-0) held the Browns to 78 yards while building a 20-0 halftime lead, Cleveland coach Eric Mangini pulled quarterback Brady Quinn in favor of Derek Anderson. The switch did nothing to turn around the fortune of a team that has been outscored 95-29 this sea-

Iones-Drew had his first 100-yard game of the season and scored three touchdowns to lead the Jaguars to a victory over the mistake-

prone Houston Texans on Sunday. Jones-Drew scored the go-ahead touchdown on an 8-yard run early in the fourth quarter and finished with 119 yards rushing.

GIANTS 24, BUCCANEERS 0

TAMPA, Fla. – Eli Manning threw for two touchdowns and Brandon Jacobs and Ahmad Bradshaw led a resurgence of a strong ground attack that was absent the previous two weeks, helping the Giants (3-0) remain unbeaten with a rout of the winless Bucs (0-3).

PATRIOTS 26, FALCONS 10

FOXBOROUGH, Mass. -The New England Patriots finally got their offense rolling with a balanced attack as Tom Brady threw for 277 yards and Fred Taylor ran for 105 in a win over the Falcons.

One week after the Patriots were held without a touchdown in a 16-9 loss to the New York Jets, Brady threw a 36-yard touchdown pass to Chris Baker and Taylor ran for an 8-yard score.

On a drizzly day, there was no need for a comeback like the one Brady led in the opener when he made up for an inconsistent offense by throwing two touchdown passes in the final 2:06 for a 25-24 win over the Buffalo Bills.

CHARGERS 23, DOLPHINS 13 SAN DIEGO - Philip

Rivers had his usual big plays and a nifty little one that helped the San Diego Chargers end a seven-game losing streak against Miami. Rivers scored on a 5-yard scramble late in the third quarter to highlight a victory over the winless Dolphins, who lost quarterback Chad Pennington to a shoulder injury early in the second half.

In the shotgun on thirdand-goal, Rivers couldn't find a receiver and the pocket collapsed, so he sprinted up the middle and into the end zone for a 10-6

SAINTS 27, BILLS 7 ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. -

Will Smith had an interception and a sack to help New Orleans shut down Buffalo. The Saints prevented the Bills from mustering any type of a threat through three quarters.

That's when Pierre Thomas took over, sealing the win with two touchdown runs in the final 10 minutes. Thomas finished with 126 yards rushing, while scoring on 34and 19yard runs for a Saints offense had scored 45 points in each of its first two games.

BENGALS 23, STEELERS 20

CINCINNATI – Carson Palmer threw a 4-yard touchdown pass to Andre Caldwell with 14 seconds left, completing a nearly perfect drive that gave the Bengals a victory and ended the Steelers' nearly decadelong domination Cincinnati. Pittsburgh (1-2) had won its last eight games on Cincinnati's home field. The last time the Bengals beat them at Paul Brown Stadium was 2001, when Chad Ochocinco was a rookie who rarely started and still went by the name of Johnson. BEARS 25, SEAHAWKS 19

EDITORIAL

When will lawmakers let Blaine County solve its own problems?

s Areva, the French nuclear company that is building $2.1 billion uranium enrichment plant near Idaho Falls, more important economically to Bonneville County than affordable housing is to Blaine County?

The economies of scale are vastly different, but we'd argue no less vital.

So the Legislature, which in 2008 voted to allowed Areva — or any company that invests $1 billion in Idaho

What do

- to receive a property tax benefit by capping the taxable value of the property at $400 million, should consider doing the same on a much smaller scale in Blaine County.

Simply put, the Wood River Valley's economy is being slowly strangled because there aren't enough places where people of ordinary means - teachers, firefighters, construction workers to live. Ketchum's daytime population increases by 90 percent, on average - most it workers who commute from Bellevue, Shoshone, Fairfield, Carey, Richfield, Gooding, Jerome and Twin Falls.

The upshot: Small businesses can't attract enough workers to stay in Blaine County, so they can't stay in business. State Rep. Wendy Jaquet, D-Ketchum, suggests changing that by extending the tax-forgiveness law used by Areva to other businesses if they provide benefits to the state, including affordable housing. It would work on a local level, she says, much like the local-option taxes that the Wood River Valley already uses. Extending the ability of government to assess impact fees might also help with affordable housing. Current state law restricts impact fees to apply to uses like sewer, water and police stations, but there have been suggestions that they also apply to affordable housing and public transportation.

Tax forgiveness, impact fees and expanded localoption tax authority are all local tools that the communities of Blaine County — with the advice and consent of local taxpayers — could use to markedly improve the economy. More families might be able to afford to live in the Wood River Valley, local high school graduates would have a better chance to staying there, and a stable small-business community would able to establish

So far, though, lawmakers have resolutely refused to get out of the way and let Blaine County manage its own future.

Ours, after all, is the Legislature that knows best what's right for local communities. If you doubt the consequences of that mind-set, just count the empty storefronts that line Ketchum's and Hailey's streets.

McCauley will bring positive change to Buhl

On Nov. 3, residents of Buhl will vote to determine who will be their mayor for the next four years. Hopefully, you will vote for Tom McCauley.

Tom has lived in Buhl for 29 years and is an independent businessman, managing local power plants for investors throughout the Northwest. He has volunteered in sports programs for both Buhl schools and the Buhl community, has served as a member of the Buhl Planning and Zoning Commission and is currently on the board of the Twin Falls County Weed Bureau.

In all of these community service efforts, he has demonstrated the importance of working in a collaborative way. His vision "to make Buhl the place our kids want to return to in order to raise their own families" is noteworthy. His strategy is to unify the talents of all Buhl citizens, service organizations and businesses to overcome the many challenges that currently confront our city.

I feel certain that Tom McCauley's leadership, communicative and managerial skills make him the best choice for mayor. He is a team builder who will bring positive change to Buhl.

How we got to 'Liar, liar, pants on fire'

n the wake of Rep. Joe Wilson's outburst against President Barack Obama on the House floor, a pundit war has erupted over who is to blame for the partisan state of the nation's politics.

Johanna Neuman

But the truth is that the roots of our current political polarization date back decades, when a confluence of events turned Washington from a parochial Southern town where power was guarded zealously by those at the top into a media-savvy place where bit players such as Wilson can captivate national attention.

The politics in Washington were always cynical. Now they're also angry. "It's well beyond 'the loyal opposition' now," said Democrat Vic Fazio, who served as the representative from California's 3rd District for 20 years, ending in 1999. "It's viscer-

I've made a point the last few weeks of asking people across Washington who's to blame for the increasing dissonance in our politics. Why is it, I asked, that the extreme wings on the right and left are driving the nation's politics even as public opinion clings to the good common sense of the center?

The answers ranged from Fanne Foxe, the stripper who jumped into the Tidal Basin in 1974 after Wilbur Mills, the hard-drinking Democratic chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee who was escorting her, was pulled over by the police, to Brian Lamb, the man who invented C-SPAN in 1979, opening government to public scrutiny and spawning a generation of posturing politicians. But the man who got the most votes as the man who ruined Washington was Newt Gingrich.

It wasn't that the Georgia Republican who engineered the toppling of Democrats from power in 1994 deliberately undermined political civility; it was that the crop of legislators he helped into power came in under redistricting plans that virtually guaranteed safe seats, which granted politicians a newfound power to ignore the center.

In fairness, upheavals had already started to shake up the scene long before Gingrich's arrival. President Lyndon Johnson's success in winning landmark civil rights legislation in the 1960s led to a realignment -Democrats lost the South, Republicans lost the Far West, and both parties hardened their politics along the lines of Barry Goldwater's admonition that "extremism in the defense of liberty is no vice." The twin legacies of Vietnam and Watergate coated the town with a cynical aftertaste. And Ronald Reagan swept to office in 1980 in a landslide that allowed Republicans to wrest control of the Senate from Democrats for the first time in 28 years.

But it was Gingrich who presided over what was perhaps the most dramatic change: the Republican takeover of the House.

Democrats until then had run the House for all but four of the preceding 72 years.

Gingrich's genius was not only to play to C-SPAN cameras or carry out the "Contract with America" or lead a populist revolt against the kind of gentleman politics practiced by then-GOP Minority Leader Bob Michel. Gingrich's lasting contribution was to change the congressional calendar.

It used to be that most lawmakers had homes in Washington, and their families socialized on weekends. In that kind of atmosphere, legislators came to view their counterparts across the aisle not as villains but as fellow actors in the nation's political drama. Gingrich's predecessor as House speaker, Tom Foley, a Democratic congressman from Spokane, Wash., primarily visited his constituents during summer recesses or on long weekends. But Gingrich believed that his 73 Republican freshmen were vulnerable to the same attacks they had used in toppling Democrats. Fearful they would be tagged as "out of touch with constituents," Gingrich encouraged lawmakers to spend more time in their districts. Roll-call votes — that too was an innovation of the C-SPAN times — would never take place on Mondays and only rarely on Fridays. The clamor of cable television and Internet bloggers has also bred an instinct for the jugular. The news cycle is 24/7, competition for attention is fierce, and divisiveness sells.

Following the news now is like dining with John McLaughlin.

Of course, this is not the first time in Washington that polarization has trumped accommodation. Before the Civil War erupted, rhetoric on the Senate floor was vicious. Ditto during the Cold War era, when Wisconsin's Joe McCarthy sowed dissension and fear with wild accusations that colleagues were coddling communists in the State Department and even the

But in those days, politicians felt loyalty to a political party. Now they run against party, against Washington. And, of course, they go home every weekend.

Criticism of local economic developers unfounded

n June 2001, communities across Southern Idaho came together to collaborate in economic development efforts. With the formation of Southern Idaho Economic Development Organization (SIEDO) a cooperative approach in marketing Southern Idaho was launched to help diversify and strengthen the local economy by retaining and attracting businesses to the region.

SIEDO manages a focused and cost-effective marketing plan to promote economic development opportunities in Southern Idaho. This information is developed and shared through outlets where potentially-expanding companies are most likely to look: trade publications, online, through site selection consultants, relocation shows, and with local partners in economic development.

The "lead" for a potential new company may come through these efforts to SIEDO (the "face" of economic development) at 208-324-7408 (the "phone number" of economic development), as suggested in Friday's editorial in the Times-News. (You can also go online to www.southREADER COMMENT Arlen Crouch ernidaho.org.) But any number of other individuals or organizations in southern Idaho may receive the initial "lead." It could be someone at the College of Southern Idaho who teaches a class related to the inquiring industry. Perhaps it's an economic development professional who the "lead" found on the Internet. The Idaho Department of Commerce may be the first call a company makes about a relocation or expansion to Southern Idaho. Or, it may iust be a local business person who's talking with a friend or colleague who happens to be looking to expand.

Regardless of where the "lead" makes contact, our region stands ready to respond. Each of these potential points of contact is part of the team working on economic development in our region. We each have our expertise to guide the potential employer through the process and provide them the information they need to make a decision for their business. As referenced in a recent article in this newspaper, "even in hard times Twin Falls' economic base is still the envy of other Idaho cities." This diverse economic base throughout southern Idaho didn't happen by accident. It occurred over the course of decades with consistent communication and support for existing businesses, reaching out to potential new companies, and cooperation to "close the deals" which have generated hundreds of jobs for our local residents.

Bevond us "economic developers," we'd also suggest that every individual, business, and organization throughout southern Idaho plays a role in positive economic development. You may have a former college classmate who runs a company on the East coast who'd like to contain company costs and improve quality of life. Put them in touch with our team. Maybe your company spends too much money shipping in supplies for what you need to do here. Why not connect your supplier with our team to see if they could move a little closer and save your company money?

Finally, we'd like to remind the Times-News editorial board and news staff, in particular, of their individual roles and responsibilities when it comes to economic development. An editorial or news report suggesting a lack of leadership, unresponsiveness and fragmented efforts is first and foremost incorrect. When that erroneous information is sent out to your subscribers, placed on your Web site, and then picked up by other news services and shared across the Internet, it counters the strong efforts that are happening in economic development. Instead of sitting on the sidelines secondguessing how things ought to be, maybe you should get on the team with the rest of us to help grow our local economy.

Arlen Crouch is the chairman of the Southern Idaho Economic Development Organization. This letter was also signed by College of Southern Idaho President Jerry Beck, Twin Falls City Manager Tom Courtney, Idaho Workforce Development Council Chairman Con Paulos, Twin Falls Area Chamber of Commerce CEO Shawn Barigar and Business Plus Chairman Lee Wagner.

CLINTON: HARD FOR IRAN TO MAKE PEACEFUL NUKE CLAIM

WASHINGTON (AP) - Secretary of State Hillary Rodham Clinton says she doesn't believe Iran can convince the U.S. and other world powers that its nuclear program is for peaceful purposes, putting Tehran on course for tougher economic penalties beyond the current "leaky sanctions."

Defense Secretary Robert Gates played down the effectiveness of military strikes against Iran's newly disclosed secret uranium-enriching facility. Gates and Clinton said economic and diplomatic pressure would have a better chance of changing Iranian policies.

"The reality is, there is no military option that does anything more than buy time," he told CNN's "State of the Union" in an interview broadcast Sunday.

The nuclear program, which Iran claims is designed to generate electricity, is at the top of the agenda at a meeting Thursday in Geneva involving diplomats from Iran, the U.S., Britain, France, Russia, China and Germany.

The Iranians must "present convincing evidence as to the purpose of their nuclear program. We don't believe that they can present convincing evidence, that it's only for peaceful purposes, but we are going to put them to the test," Clinton told CBS' "Face the Nation."

She told the Iranian government: "Don't assert it, prove it. ... They can't say anything because they've said that for years, but they can open their entire system to the kind of extensive investigation that the facts call for."

Job losses, early retirements hurt Social Security

SOCIAL SECURITY TRUST FUNDS — Tax revenue — Spending

WASHINGTON (AP) -Big job losses and a spike in early retirement claims from laid-off seniors will force Social Security to pay out more in benefits than it collects in taxes the next two years, the first time that's happened since the 1980s.

The deficits - $10 billion in 2010 and $9 billion in 2011 won't affect payments to retirees because Social Security has accumulated surpluses from previous years totaling $2.5 trillion. But they will add to the overall federal deficit.

Applications for retirement benefits are 23 percent higher than last year, while disability claims have risen by about 20 percent. Social Security officials had expected applications to increase from the growing number of baby boomers reaching retirement, but they didn't expect the increase to be so large.

With flu-and-cold season rapidly approaching and awareness spreading about the importance of exercise and a healthy diet, it's the perfect time to head to the annual Magic Valley Health Fair.

Been there, done that? Not this time. Organizers have added services and attractions to lure in more health-savvy Magic Valley residents.

New this year is the Prevent Cancer Super Colon, an inflatable, walkthrough colon that educates visitors about colorectal cancer, the second leading cancer killer for both men and women in the U.S. Organizers also added seminars by local nurses and doctors, covering topics from diabetes to menopause.

Another change: the day of the fair. The fair is taking place on Saturday – unlike previous years when it was held on Friday — to attract more working families, said organizer Linda Fischer.

The new attractions join the classic fair offerings, including free screenings for skin cancer, carotid artery disease and pulmonary function, and affordable vaccines for flu, adult tetanus and pneumonia. More than 50 booths from local health services will provide information on home care, weight loss programs, hearing loss, health insurance and more.

Magic Valley Health Fair is co-sponsored by the Times-News, St. Benedicts Family Medical Center, St. Luke's Magic Valley, Gooding County Memorial Hospital and the College of Southern Idaho Office on Aging.

Melissa Davlin may be reached at 208-735-3234 or melissa.davlin@lee.net.

Even carefully selected foods won't make you immune to the flu

By Jennifer LaRue Huget Special to The Washington Post

As we begin hearing of outbreaks of H1N1 flu, many of us are looking for wavs to stay healthy this fall and winter.

Being a nutrition writer, I naturally figured food has got to help. Indeed, Googling "foods that boost immune system" turns up lots of lists: lists of the eight foods, 10 foods, 12 foods, even 21 foods that promise to build your body's immunity. The idea is that consuming certain foods or particular nutrients helps your body protect itself from getting sick, no matter what nasty germs come its way.

If only it were so simple. If fending off infections were as easy as gorging on blueberries (for the antioxidants) or gobbling yogurt (for its helpful bacteria, or probiotics), many of us could sail through cold and flu season with nary a sneeze.

But experts agree that it's a lot more complicated than that. There's no single food - or even group of foods - that can be counted on to do the trick.

"The immune system is the result of an extremely complex interplay of various functions within the body," said Darwin Deen, senior attending physician in Montefiore Medical Center's department of family and social medicine in New York. "We know that if the system is deficient, you're susceptible to infection. That's the case with HIV. But we also know that if the system is hypersensitive, you'll have allergies, and if it's turned toward the wrong tissue, you have autoimmunity" – where the body turns on itself. So efforts to "boost" the system, even through diet, might produce unintended consequences.

It's not reasonable to expect that one food will substantially enhance your immune response, Deen said.

"We haven't done a very good job of identifying nutrients that boost immunity," he added. "To say that there are nutrients that are important to the immune system implies that there are nutrients that are not important to the immune system."

In fact, more useful than eating certain foods is to eat "on a regular basis," Deen said. "Every time you eat something, you're asking the immune system to respond to what you put in your mouth." The idea is to "keep the immune system busy" so it's ready to leap into action when you need it most.

In particular, Deen said, eating protein encourages the body to "generate antibodies used by the immune system."

In case, good hygiene is far more important to fending off a virus than eating certain foods. "You can't drink a glass of orange juice before school and say, 'Now I don't have to wash my hands;" Deen said.

Christine Gerbstadt, a physician and registered dietitian in Sarasota, Fla., and a spokeswoman for the American Dietetic Association, says the familiar prescription of a well-rounded, healthful diet can provide the central nutrients your body (including the immune system) needs to stay healthy.

She suggests "quick, small combinations" of a variety of useful foods: "Have some whole-grain bread with vegetables and low-fat cheese, add some cucumbers, tomatoes, mushrooms, cabbage or red pepper, and it's easy to get all the building blocks." And don't be swayed by immunity-boosting claims of the latest super-foods, be they almonds or blueberries, pomegranates or strawberries. They're generally backed by trade groups, she says, whose focus is narrow - and self-serving.

Finally, Gerbstadt notes some recent interesting research: In one study, overweight rats whose calorie intake was

Special to The Washington Post

If you've ever been constipated, you don't need me to explain how unsettling it is to feel so ... unmoved.

Occasional constipation – when you're traveling or pregnant, for instance, or when your diet's off kilter is common, and though it's uncomfortable, you know that soon it will pass.

But when constipation is chronic, seeking relief can become an obsession.

Danielle Svetcov has turned her lifelong battle with constipation into a career move, writing "The Un-Constipated Gourmet: Secrets to a Moveable Feast" (Sourcebooks). It came out this summer and has a large potential audience: According to the National Institute of Diabetes and Digestive and Kidney Americans have frequent constipation, accounting for 2.5 million physician visits a year.

"It's the common cold of the gut," Svetcov observes.

LEGAL NOTICE

This legal notice is to make public the intent to use Rotenone as a means to eliminate a fish population in an Idaho Stream. Idaho State Law requires legal notice be provided to secure a Short Term Activity Exemption from Idaho Water Quality Standards pursuant to IDAPA 58.01.02.080.

Sixmile Creek and Gunnel Reservoir are scheduled for renovation on September 29, 2009 (Weather permitting).

This fishery is being renovated by the Idaho Department of Fish and Game (IDFG) in an effort to manage Yellowstone cutthroat populations in Idaho as described in the Commission approved Management Plan for Conservation of Yellowstone Cutthroat Trout in Idaho*

The IDFG will be applying Rotenone (Synpren-Fish Toxicant) to eliminate the existing fish population before transplanting pure Yellowstone cutthroat trout back into the Somile drainage.

Rotenone, when applied in water, is lethal to fish but has no effect upon livestock, wildlife, domestic animals, or humans.

It is recommended that people do not consume dead or dying fish during or following the actual treatment. Rotenone or water with Rotenone in it may not be applied to crops or introduced into drinking water sources. Contact Douglas Megargle, Regional Fishery Manager (208) 324-

How To Find a Good Boss

By Marilyn Haight

Whether you get hired for a new job, promoted, or reassigned to a new position, you will most likely have a new boss. Each time that happens, you must develop a new profesrelationship sional with the person you rely on for direction, development, and fuadvancement. You need to quickly determine if this new boss is a good match for you and your career goals. But how can you tell? Try these five questions.

1. Does your boss showcase your work? If you're not sure, you could ask him, "What leadership opportunities will I have in my job?" If he says something like, "There's only one leader here · me," you may have what I call a "Suppressor Boss." A boss who replies. "We're all leaders here; you'll be in charge of projects that need your expertise," will have no problem appreciating your role and contribution.

2. Does your boss solve problems?

asking, "How should I escalate problems to you when I think you need to get involved?" If she insists you must solve your issue alone, then she could be a "Con founder Boss" who ignores problems, which makes them worse. A good boss might say. Give me detailed examples; I'll determine the cause and work with managers at my level to correct the issues."

3. Does your boss let you complete your work?

When in doubt, try asking him or her when you can start handling tasks from start to finish. If the answer is, "I'm a hands-on manager; we do everything as a team," you've got trouble. This is a "Player Boss" who does parts of your job he likes and leaves prob lems for you. If you hear, "Tell me when you think you're ready; I'll give you guidelines and be available only when you need me,2 you'll know your boss trusts your skills.

4. Does your boss listen to your suggestions?

If not, tell her that when she cuts you off you wonder if she values your opinion. A reply like, "I have the final word," could mean she's a "Manip-ulator Boss." A good boss will say some-thing like, "I'm sorry, I wasn't aware I was doing that. Please bring it to my attention next time it happens." A good boss always listens attentively.

5. Does your boss treat you and your co-workers equally?

If you notice preferential treatment among your co-workers, try asking your boss, "What measurements will you use to evaluate my job perfor-If he says, mance?" Every case is different: I use my judgment, he could be a Dumbfounder Boss" who uses the wrong measures to evaluate job performance. A bet-ter answer, like, "Your work will be evaluated according to the documented standards we've already agreed upon," will signal your boss's fairness. Listening skills, problem-solving, sense of fairness, and an ability to trust are just some of the hallmarks of a good boss. A good employee will learn to spot and appreciate those attributes, and then move toward building a mutually successful relationship.

Anxiety-ridden student seeks help learning how to relax

DEAR ABBY: I am sick of being afraid of everything in my life. I'm a 21-year-old college student who wakes up every morning wondering what will go wrong today or what I am going to screw up this time. I don't know how to get beyond the little misfortunes that occur on a daily basis, and I take every form of criticism to heart, even if it's a joke. I get nervous before and during every activity I take part in. I also get nervous talking to close friends and relatives and have a hard time articulating what I mean to say because I'm ever thought possible. I have afraid everyone is judging for once; I honestly do not know how. My stress level is over the top, and it exhausts me beyond belief. I know I have a problem, and counseling is not an option.

DEAR MESSED UP: alive.

Excuse me? Counseling is not only an "option," in your case it is important you seek it out. You are fortunate to be in college, because your next stop should be the student health center. Anxiety can feed on itself, and sometimes it takes medical and psychological intervention to quiet the adrenaline rush ple in my community more that's causing it. Once that's

There are those who are not as fortunate as I am. I have heard more stories about drug abuse, overdoses and drug-related deaths in my town than I can handle. I want to change this. I want to make a difference. But I need help. How can I get involved and make peoaware that our town

- REACHING OUT IN LAKE HAVASU CITY,

DEAR REACHING OUT: By writing this letter, you have already taken the first step in raising awareness. Now it's up to your local police and your board of education to take some action. Everyone knows that passing laws is not enough unless they are enforced. And one of the most effective weapons in eliminating drug abuse is education.

DEAR ABBY: Can you please tell me where is the proper placement of a name tag?

I own a small business and attend many networking events. Some people have told me the tag should be worn on the right side so you can see it when you shake hands. Others say it should be on the left, because people read from left to right. What is the proper etiquette?

- JEFF IN STUART, FLA. DEAR JEFF: According to Emily Post, the tags are usually worn on the right side because that's where most people look when they first greet each other with a handshake. (Using this logic, some women should paste the tag just above the middle of their chests.)

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

"It is far more important to be able to hit the target than it is to haggle over who makes a weapon or who pulls a trigger."

Dwight Eisenhower

Everybody knows how to take a finesse, right? However, part of bridge expertise is knowing when not to take a finesse. A fine example of that theme comes in today's three-no-trump contract.

The opening lead of the spade six goes to East's 10, and you duck. You win the spade return and take the losing club finesse, win the next spade, then run dummy's clubs and eventually take the diamond finesse. Alas, that finesse also loses, and the spades are 5-3. You go down one and complain about your bad luck. ... or do you? You were trying to take as many tricks as possible, but your target should have been to take nine tricks — not the same thing. Since you know West is the danger hand because he has the long spades, you should knock out the diamond king, his only possible entry to the spades, as quickly as possible. Go back to trick three and play the diamond ace followed by the queen. West wins his king and is likely to play a spade to your ace (a heart shift might be more sensible, but it achieves nothing today). Now you run the club queen, and East can take his king when he likes. But he cannot prevent you from scoring three clubs, three diamonds, two spades and one heart.

If you do not believe me, try replaying the deal with the minorsuit kings swapped. The recommended line gives up on overtricks, but does not jeopardize the contract.

ANSWER: Whatever anybody tells you, I will be convinced to my dying day that when fate deals you an A-K-J, it is so that you will know what to lead at trick one. Yes, declarer might have long clubs, with a top club lead costing a tempo. Equally, declarer may well have only three clubs, and not leading a club will make partner's job on defense impossible — he will never guess you have so much in that suit.
