Fuel tanker spill causes school shutdown, evacuation

MEAGAN THOMPSON/Times-News

A man walks on the upright portion of a gas tanker truck as others work around the trailer that rolled over Monday morning when the driver attempted a U-turn on U.S. Highway 26 near Bliss. Idaho State Police reported about 1,000 gallons of fuel spilled from the trailer, and area businesses, residences and Bliss School District facilities were closed during the clean-up.

U-turn gone wrong leads to 1,000-gallon fuel spill

BLISS — Bliss schools were closed Monday and area businesses and homes evacuated after a fuel tanker flipped, spilling about 1,000 gallons of gas and igniting fears of an explosion.

For about eight hours, a section of U.S. Highway 26 was shut down after the tanker spilled just west of the overpass on Interstate 84 at milepost 141 near Bliss, according to Idaho State Police. The overpass, east-bound ramp and west entrance to Bliss were closed, but traffic on I-84 was not affected.

At about 6:10 a.m., Russell Sherman, 49, of Filer, missed the turnoff to Hagerman and attempted an unlawful U-turn at the Bliss exit, the ISP reported. Sherman turned too tight and the Kenworth tractor and Beall trailer separated. The trailer flipped one and a half times, landing off the roadway, and came to rest on its side.

Sherman was not injured, but was cited for an unlawful

U-turn, reported ISP Sgt. Keith Thompson.

The tanker's side split, but the gas mostly spilled from a gasket at the top, said Bliss Fire Chief Jerry VanderWyst. The main danger at the site was an explosion.

"It was gasoline. If that would have blown, it would have taken a portion of the town," he said.

The Bliss School was closed since its playground is Casino Cars owner charged with theft

By Andrea Jackson
Times-News writer

The owner of Casino Cars Inc. in Twin Falls is charged with grand theft for allegedly swiping more than a half-million dollars from a Florida businessman in a car sale.

Eric Lee, 45, is the registered agent of Casino Cars Inc., at 601 Main Ave. The business is in a building shared by Latham Motors, according to its signage.

Latham Motors closed a year ago, before its owners,

Robert Latham and Robert Latham Jr., were sued by KeyBank for $6.4 million.

The charge against Lee, according to his lawyer, Anthony Valdez, is "totally separate" from the Latham lawsuit.

Lee is accused of taking $510,000 in wire transfers for a 2008 Mercedes-Benz SLR Roadster. According to court records, the pricey car was never delivered to Tom Gonzales of TG Investments in Fort Lauderdale, Fla. According to the National Automobile Dealers Association online guide for car sales, the manufacturer's suggested retail price was $497,750 for the 2008 SLR Roadster.

"Multiple demands were made by TG Investments, to either deliver the vehicle or return the money," according to a police affidavit. "Since neither had happened, TG Investments chose to file a crime report with the Twin Falls Police Department."

Police found a series of e-mails "explaining various difficulties in delivery of the vehicle," court records show.

Lee admitted to police in a July interview, according to court records, that he got the money and didn't deliver the car. "He (Lee) had fallen onto financial hard times."

Lee allegedly told police that he wanted to make good on Gonzales' $510,000 loss, according to court records.

But on Sept. 21, Valdez faxed police a letter saying "that Mr. Lee was not able to fulfill his obligation," records show. "The letter also states

Insurers' warning shot has Democrats scrambling

By Ricardo Alonso-Zaldivar
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — Insurance companies aren't playing nice any more.

Their dire message that health care legislation will drive up premiums for people who already have coverage comes as a warning shot at a crucial point in the debate, and threatens President Obama's top domestic priority.

Democrats and their allies scrambled on Monday to knock down a new industry-

"We've got ourselves a real health care shooting war now?"

— Robert Laszewski, a former health insurance executive turned consultant funded study forecasting that Senate legislation, over time, will add thousands of dollars to the cost of a typical policy. "Distorted and flawed," said White House spokeswoman Linda Douglass. "Fundamentally dishonest," said AARP's senior policy strategist, John Rother. "A hatchet job," said a spokesman for Senate Finance Committee chairman Max Baucus, D-Mont.

But the health insurance industry's top lobbyist in Washington stood her ground. In a call with reporters, Karen Ignagni, president of America's Health Insurance Plans, pointedly refused to rule out attack ads on TV featuring the study, though she said she believed the industry's concerns could be amicably addressed.

At the heart of the industry's complaint is a decision by lawmakers to weaken the requirement that millions more Americans get coverage. Since the legislation would ban insurance companies from denying coverage on account of poor health, many people will wait to sign up until they get sick, the industry says. And that will drive up costs for everybody else.

POST to vote soon on Carter decertification

By Andrea Jackson
Times-News writer

A vote next month will decide if Twin Falls County Sheriff Tom Carter loses his certification as an Idaho peace officer, according to the interim director of Idaho Peace Officer Standards and Training Steve Raschke.

Carter could be stripped of his credential on Nov. 3 or 4, since a POST hearing is already recommended in July that he be decertified.

Carter is in his first term as sheriff and can remain in his position without state certification.

He allegedly falsified his time card when he was a sergeant working for former sheriff Wayne Tousley, whom Carter defeated in last November's election.

"The potential decertification of Sheriff Carter will be acted on by POST Council at its next regularly scheduled meeting to be held on November 3-4, 2009," said Raschke in an e-mail.

Twin Falls-area subdivision joins city due to arsenic issues

By Nate Poppino
Times-News writer

The city of Twin Falls is moving forward with a plan to annex 71 parcels of land just north of Falls Avenue East, formally taking control of a subdivision where a number of residents are already hooked up to city services.

Residents of the Desert View neighborhood between Falls and Julie Lane lived comfortably for years in the city's area of impact, until the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency tightened arsenic standards for municipal and community water systems nearly 10 years ago.

Suddenly, the community well that a good portion of the neighborhood relied on couldn't be used anymore. Some residents formed the Desert View Neighborhood LLC and searched for a solution. In 2006, they found it — residents who wanted to connect to the city's water, sewer and pressurized-irrigation systems paid to hook

Dale Quigley, one of the members of the Desert View Neighborhood LLC, helped the subdivision reach a 2006 agreement with city of Twin Falls officials to connect the Desert View neighborhood to city water, sewer and pressurized irrigation service. The organization agreed to have the property annexed into the city at a later date, which has now come, resulting in a higher tax bill for residents.

themselves in, agreeing to be annexed into the city at a later date.

That time has now come, for both the LLC members and their neighbors. Not everyone agreed to be annexed, and according to a city staff report, that means the city is proceeding under a provision of state code that allows involuntary annexation for small, adjacent areas.

Annexation brings more reliable services, reduced fees for a number of city offerings and other benefits. But neighborhood residents will pay more for the services they receive. A breakdown in the annexation plan using the 2008 tax year concluded that the city levy rate is 36 percent higher than the county rate. Sample figures provided show a 57 percent higher tax bill: The owner of a home assessed at $150,000 would pay $1,120 in the city versus $713 in the county.

The city Planning and Zoning Commission will hold a public hearing at 6 tonight on whether the annexation is properly zoned, with city staff recommending it keep its R-2 residential designation. The proposal will move on to the City Council after a P&Z vote.

Commissioners won't take comments, however, on the annexation itself, a restriction placed upon them by city code. That may frustrate some homeowners such as Leland D. Bunch, who submitted public comment in 2007 questioning the repairs on the area's streets, the benefits of annexation and the effect on the neighborhood's tax rates.

Bunch said on Sunday he still isn't sold on the idea — adding he's not alone — and plans to attend tonight's meeting. On disability, he has a limited income. And having lived for 62 of his 63 years on his own well water, he said, he's still skeptical of the federal revisions to the arsenic standard.

"At least we're still the U.S. of A," he said. "We can at least have our say-so."

On the other side is Bill Block, one of the five residents who make up the LLC's managing committee. Though he is also a senior project manager with J-U-B Engineers, a firm that often assists with city projects, he emphasized he's helped out the LLC purely on a volunteer basis and on his own time.

Block said the project cost homeowners a little more than $500,000 overall, but was well worth it in a number of ways — avoiding potential water concerns besides the arsenic, for example. All the details of the project and annexation were run through at a number of meetings beforehand, he said. And while some people may still feel the neighborhood should have found a better solution, he said, he believes the "vast majority" think annexation was a good choice and understand why it's covering the whole area.

"When you do an annexation, you just can't do a lot-by-lot," he said.

Police: Vandals throw rocks at LDS church houses

SOUTH JORDAN, Utah (AP) — Police say vandals have thrown rocks with anti-Mormon church messages attached at the windows of five church meeting houses in the Salt Lake City suburbs.

South Jordan police officer B.J. Smith says the rocks were thrown at glass doors of the buildings in South Jordan and Riverton overnight Saturday.

Smith says typed notes attached to each rock read: "Stop spreading your lies, pagans."

Police have no suspects.

At one church building the double-paned glass was broken. At the others the rocks broke through only the first pane of glass, landing outside the buildings.

located about 500 yards from the spill. Five homes, the Amber Inn Motel and Ziggy's Express gas station and convenience store were also evacuated.

"We removed any people that could be harmed if the tank exploded for any reason," Thompson said.

Along with the ISP, which led the investigation, the Bliss Fire Department, R-5 Regional Hazmat Team and Gooding County Sheriff Department responded and were among the estimated 30 to 35 people at the scene.

The gas leaked into the dirt around where the tanker landed, authorities said. The remaining gas in the felled tanker was emptied into another tanker.

Both tankers were grounded to prevent any static discharge, Vander-Wyst said. Today, the EPA is expected to dig out the dirt where the gas spilled.

While still at home, Bliss School Superintendent Kevin Lancaster was notified a little before 7 a.m. and was asked by authorities to close the school to its 150 students. Fortunately, the buses were just leaving for their routes, so they were headed off, he said. Parents were also alerted via a telephone tree and the news media.

"It was a pretty crazy morning," said Ziggy's Express owner Julie Goolsby. "They said, 'You need to evacuate.' I thought, 'You don't evacuate a 24-hour business.'"

She wasn't concerned for her safety, but for those who responded to the accident and the driver, she said.

At 7:45 authorities notified Tim Clark, manager of the Amber Inn at the I-84 interchange, to evacuate. Motel personnel were given 15 minutes to let its 10 affected guests know about the situation, Clark said.

By 2 p.m., U.S. 26 was open. Lancaster said it was business as usual as the school hosted a soccer tournament.

T.F. Muni still without new name

By Ben Botkin
Times-News writer

The Twin Falls Golf Advisory Commission's choice for a new name for the city's golf course wasn't exactly a hole-in-one at Monday's Twin Falls City Council meeting.

But it wasn't an unfortunate stroke into the sand trap, either.

The golf advisory commission had recommended that the council rename the Twin Falls Municipal Golf Course as the "Twin Falls Golf Club." That recommendation followed a contest with 63 submitted names from the public. None were chosen.

"The commission felt strongly about having Twin Falls somehow in the name," said Dennis Bowyer, Parks and Recreation Director, at the council meeting.

Council members agreed, but also said the name should be a hybrid of "Twin Falls Golf Club" and other phrases that were in names submitted by finalists.

Before coming up with Monday's recommendation, the commission's top three choices from 63 submitted names were: Rock Creek Golf Club, Creekside and High Desert.

Mayor Lance Clow suggested a hybrid combination, and Councilman Trip Craig said he liked "Twin Falls Golf Club at Rock Creek."

Councilman Don Hall didn't have a problem with that, noting the closeness of the creek to the golf course.

"I've landed enough balls into Rock Creek," he said.

The commission was also asked to consider "Twin Falls Creekside Golf Club."

The advisory commission will take the issue up at a meeting on Wednesday and bring another recommendation to the council.

On Monument Rock, Duncan Hines and scaring your neighbors

Last week, Greg Lanting of Twin Falls asked if anyone knew the whereabouts of Monument Rock, a 50-foot tall outcrop with a boulder perched on top. His mother found a postcard with a picture of the rock while going through some of her parents' belongings.

Lots of readers responded.

"It is northwest of the Gooding City of Rocks," explained Vonja Jackson. "When you turn west off of Highway 46, and after you drive several miles on the dirt road (about seven miles) toward the City of Rocks, you come to a 'y' in the road. There is a sign that will let you know which way you need to go. You can then turn left to go to the City of Rocks, or turn right to go to Monument Rock (it is several miles beyond)."

Several other readers insist that Monument

Rock is in Lemhi County. The reigning expert on that subject, Lalia Booth, author of "Idaho Place Names," is inconclusive, although she lists Monument Peak, a 10,323-foot mountain that bestrides the Idaho-Montana border.

Did you know that the old grain silos in Twin Falls' Old Towne were the spot where Duncan Hines cake mixes were developed?

Neither did I until I read a blog on a Web site run by the National Trust for Historic Places about the project. "Vintage Roadside" describes a road trip from Portland, Ore., to Nashville, Tenn., with stops along the way.

It talks about Twin Falls attorney Paul Smith's purchase of the 1916 silos (they're located next to the Depot Grill), his landscaping of the property and his search for new uses for the grain elevators, culminating in their reincarnation as cell-phone tower platforms.

Hines was a Kentucky-born traveling salesman-turned-food critic who developed the first system of restaurant ratings. In 1952, he introduced a line of bread through the Durkee's Bakery Co. of Homer, N.Y. A cake mix followed, and Hines sold the rights to the Nebraska Consolidated Mills of Omaha, which marketed the first Duncan-Hines cake mixes. Proctor & Gamble bought the rights in 1957.

Law & Disorder...

... in Cassia County

From Sept. 21 police reports: Vandalism: Police responded to North Park in Burley regarding two males, 13 and 15, writing on a picnic table at 10:30 a.m. When asked why they weren't in school, one of them said he was sick for the first couple of hours but was on his way to school. The other one, according to the report, said he was walking to school with his friend but didn't explain why he had to wait for his friend to get over being sick before going to school. When asked why they were at the park when they were supposedly headed to school, one of them allegedly explained that "he wanted to buy a belt at Video Mexico, at 13th and Hansen, and they then got side tracked." The suspects reportedly said they left for school at 9 a.m. Deputy Noah Shiner, according to his report, found "XIV" carved in a table and a marker with a tack affixed to it in one of the suspect's pockets. The suspect allegedly said he was in a gang called "Norte's." "He denied writing anything on the table and said they just looking at other graffiti. He said they were looking at one in particular which said 'Steelers,'" the report reads.

When the other suspect was questioned separately and asked who wrote on the table, he allegedly said they both did — adding that he wrote "Pittsburgh Steelers" while his friend wrote "'Norte' and possibly some other things. They were both cited for malicious injury to property and taken to the juvenile-detention unit, because they were both on probation. Weapons: A 15-year-old female reported that she was warned not to attend Burley High School's block party "because a female named (withheld) was going to have a knife and was going to jump her." The complainant attended the party, according to the report, and was not stabbed but said the suspect showed a "blue folding picket knife" to the girl's friends. — Damon Hunzeker

Scrambling

Insurers are now raising possibilities such as higher premiums for people who postpone getting coverage, or waiting periods for those who ignore a proposed government requirement to get insurance and later have a change of heart.

The drama threatened to overshadow today's scheduled vote by the Senate Finance Committee on a 10-year, $829-billion plan that Baucus has touted as the sensible solution to America's problems of high medical costs and too many uninsured.

The Baucus bill is still expected to win Finance Committee approval. The insurance industry is trying to influence what happens beyond the vote, when legislation goes to the floor of the House and Senate, and, if passed, to a conference committee that would reconcile differences in the bills.

It's at that final stage where many expect the real deal will be cut.

"We've got ourselves a real health care shooting war now," said Robert Laszewski, a former health insurance executive turned consultant. "The industry has come to the conclusion that the way things are going in Congress, we'll have a ... formula that will be disastrous for their business, so they can't stand on the sidelines any longer."

Questions about the technical soundness of the industry analysis by the PricewaterhouseCoopers firm was a big part of the discussion Monday. The release of the study late Sunday on the eve of the federal Columbus Day holiday had Democrats crying foul.

"The misleading and harmful claims made by the profit-driven insurance companies are politicking for corporate gain at its worst," said Sen. Jay Rockefeller, D-W.Va.

Democrats have reason to worry. Insurance industry opposition helped sink President Bill Clinton's health care plan in the 1990s by fanning fears that people with coverage would wind up paying more.

Ignagni was unequivocal in her support for the PricewaterhouseCoopers conclusions. The company is "a world-class firm" with "a stellar reputation," she said.

The study projects that the legislation would add $1,700 a year to the cost of family coverage in 2013, when most of the major provisions of the Baucus bill would be in effect.

Premiums for a single person would go up by $600 more than would be the case without the legislation, it estimated.

In 10 years' time, premiums would be $4,000 higher for a family plan, and $1,500 more for individual coverage.

The technical issues behind the study are complex, and it will take time for neutral experts to deliver a final judgment. The issue boils down to questions of coverage and cost shifting.

The industry is arguing that the consequences of the bill will be shifted onto those who are already covered. Insurers are not alone. Representatives of the hospital industry have raised similar concerns, though in less stark terms.

The study finds fault with what Baucus sees as one of the crowning achievements of his bill. Even with a tight budget, it would cover an estimated 94 percent of eligible Americans, up from about 83 percent now. The study — and the insurance industry — say that's not enough, particularly since senators have weakened the stiff fines Baucus originally proposed for ignoring a requirement to get coverage. "You really have to have a coverage level in the high 90s to make this work," Ignagni said.

The PricewaterhouseCoopers study also assumes that proposed taxes on high-cost insurance, new levies on insurers and other health industry firms, and Medicare cuts will be directly passed on to privately insured policyholders.

Critics of the study said it tilted those assumptions too far toward a worst case, ignoring the bill's potential to curb costs.

For example, the tax on high-cost health insurance that Baucus is proposing could lead employers and individuals to switch to lower-cost plans and avoid the levy. If that happens, there would be no additional costs to pass on to consumers.

The study "assumed the tax would have no behavioral effect, contrary to every other tax in the history of civilization," said economist Len Nichols of the nonpartisan New America Foundation.

Mont. wolf quota eyed after nine shot near Yellowstone

By Matthew Brown
Associated Press writer

BILLINGS, Mont. — Wildlife officials in Montana will consider changes to the state's inaugural wolf hunt after hunters killed nine of the predators in just three weeks along the border of Yellowstone National Park.

More than 1,300 gray wolves were removed from the endangered species list in Idaho and Montana this spring following a costly federal restoration effort.

Hunting has been promoted as a way to keep the population of the fast-breeding species in check and reduce wolf attacks on livestock. At least 48 wolves have been killed since Sept. 1 by hunters in the two states.

However, all but two of the 11 killed in Montana came from a small portion of the Absaroka-Beartooth Wilderness, along the northern border of Yellowstone. Four of those wolves were from Yellowstone's Cottonwood Pack, including the group's breeding female.

Concerned about the heavily concentrated killing, state wildlife commissioners suspended hunting last week in the area.

Today, commissioners will consider a range of additional responses, from raising or reallocating the state's seasonal quota of 75 wolves to shutting down the hunting season altogether in some areas.

"We've missed the mark a little this first year," said Carolyn Sime, lead wolf biologist for Montana Fish, Wildlife and Parks. Shooting a wolf, particularly in the sparsely vegetated Absaroka-Beartooth area, was proving easier than expected, she said.

There is no livestock in the wilderness area, meaning the killing of wolves there gives little or no help to ranchers suffering losses from wolf attacks. In addition, critics say the shootings could choke off the number of young wolves leaving Yellowstone to establish packs outside the park.

"Yellowstone can't be a source for wolves to colonize other areas if they get blown away right at the boundary," said Norman Bishop, a former Yellowstone park ranger now on the board of the Wolf Recovery Foundation.

Sime said that with wolves now firmly established in many areas of the state, Yellowstone's importance as a source of wolves has diminished. There were 89 packs in Montana at the end of 2008.

"From a biological perspective, it's a non-issue," Sime said, noting the death of nine wolves was unlikely to have much impact on the broader population.

Utah band teacher who died in crash called heroine

By John Miller
Associated Press writer

BOISE — A Utah music teacher killed while trying to prevent the crash of a bus carrying dozens of her students was hailed as a heroine.

Heather Christensen, 33, a woodwind instructor at American Fork High School, was killed Saturday night when the bus veered from Interstate 15 and rolled south of Pocatello, where the band had won a competition hosted by Idaho State University.

Christensen, of Spanish Fork, Utah, left her seat to grab the steering wheel after seeing the bus driver slump over, students and colleagues said. She was partially ejected in the rollover, and relatives said her effort to correct the course of the bus probably kept the crash from being worse.

Christensen was the only fatality. "If it hadn't been for her, a lot of other people would have died," Christensen's sister, Jana Hogenson told the Idaho State Journal. "For Heather, that's exactly what we would have expected. All her spare time was spent on her students."

All but one of the 44 students who received care at a Pocatello hospital were released. The remaining female patient was expected to be released Monday. Idaho State Police were investigating the crash.

Jerry Hardman, vice president of the Provo, Utah-based Lake Shore Motor Coach Lines, said the company was cooperating with the investigation. He declined further comment.

Debra Jarvis, 50, also of Spanish Fork, was behind the wheel of the charter bus carrying 54 students and Christensen. Jarvis has been released from the hospital, Hardman said Monday. Blood and urine samples were taken, as is customary in fatal accidents. The results will likely not be known for several weeks, police said.

The band, one of Utah's best-known, had just added the Pocatello competition to a string of victories that include 19 straight Utah state titles. The school band also performed at President George W. Bush's 2005 inauguration and marched in the 2007 Macy's Thanksgiving Day parade in New York.

Classes at American Fork resumed Monday after a vigil in a packed gymnasium the night before. Band leader John Miller said counselors were visiting his classes and he wasn't aware of a single student who decided to stay home as a result of the death.

A previously scheduled concert tonight at Brigham Young University was set to continue.

Fall cleaning

Wendell students, residents clean up roadways

By Blair Koch
Times-News correspondent

WENDELL — Braving a brisk and relentless wind, a handful of Wendell High School students took to the outdoors to assist in an effort to remove weeds and other debris along the Hub City's southern Idaho Highway 46 entrance.

The teens joined Wendell residents Judy Weaver and Melody Finley in removing thick stands of kochia weeds along the roadway's shoulders.

The effort was spurred earlier this summer when Finley, Weaver and another neighbor gathered for evening walks around town. The trio noticed the weeds and decided to do something about it.

"We noticed these huge weeds all around town and we're just trying to clean them up," Weaver said.

The student volunteers represented a who's who of Wendell High School and included Student Body President Cameron Thompson and Vice-President Tony Alvarado, Service Club President Danaca Robinson and club member Gabriella Ibarra, as well as Reading Club President Jared DeVries.

"Our club is engaged in a number of service projects. Other projects we have planned include tutoring elementary students and helping with the food bank," Robinson said.

Helping clean weeds will add to the students' volunteer service hours, which will boost the students' scholarship and college resumes.

"We'll be back out again,"

Thompson said. "Next time, with gloves."

Finley and Weaver have been working at the project for almost a month. They've gotten other area organizations to help, too.

"Juvenile probation came and helped. Let me tell you, they worked hard and did an awesome job," Finley said. "The cemetery lent us their big dump truck and today the Wendell Highway District is hauling off the weeds in their truck."

"We got four dump trucks full last week from under the overpass alone. It sure looks better coming into town."

Wood River woman

nears college graduation with a village behind her

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

KETCHUM — It started with a new prom dress, a hair-styling session and a manicure.

It grew to $31,000 applied toward a mechanical engineering degree. And it happened because of the convergence of five-dozen caring women and a grateful young woman who took the time to write thank-you notes.

The story started four years ago when Hailey dress shop owner Paula Proctor adopted Wood River High School senior Jozey Mitcham as the fourth of her "Paula's Girls."

Mitcham was raised by her uncle and aunt, Mark and Rustin Miller, after her mother died when she was 2. And school counselors identified her as a student deserving of a little extra help.

Proctor, playing the role of a real-life fairy godmother, outfitted Mitcham with a beaded gown. As word spread, so did the giving. Other women offered to style Mitcham's hair, give her a facial, a spray tan, flowers, high heels, jewelry and dinner for two.

Ketchum resident Carol Harlig, a former teacher, gave Mitcham $100 for textbooks at Boise State University.

Mitcham responded by sending prom pictures and thank-you notes to all 58 women who contributed. Harlig was so impressed that she rallied the women to contribute additional money for a scholarship for Mitcham.

This year 66 women presented Mitcham with a check for $8,725, bringing the total amount they've given over four years to more than $31,000.

Harlig recently threw a reception for Mitcham and her donors on her lawn bordering the Big Wood River north of Ketchum.

"Our original intent was to fund a scholarship for a different woman each year," said Harlig, as the women munched on fruit kabobs, lemon tartlets and almond-covered chicken bites. "But when (Mitcham) wrote thank-you notes to each of the 58 women who contributed, we decided to support her for the duration of her college career, rather than take on a new one every year. As one donor said, 'With Jozey we really get a lot of bang for our buck.' We have a winner — we really do."

Ketchum resident Gay Weake said she got involved because, as the graduate of a women's college, she's always looking for opportunities to help other women succeed.

"Someone else identified the perfect student and I just had to write a check," she said. "How hard is that?"

"I was blown away by what Jozey had done despite the hardships she went through growing up," added Sun Valley resident Kathleen Blue.

Mitcham has continued to send her donors thank-you notes throughout college, as well as updates on her numerical analysis, thermodynamics, thermal physics, complex variables and ancient technologies classes.

During one discouraging period of her life she even confided in them her idea to quit college and open a doggie day care and spa.

"I quickly e-mailed her that she could always help volunteer with the Humane Society after her day job in the math or science world," said Harlig.

Mitcham took her advice and decided to extend college to a fifth year to earn a double major in applied mathematics and mechanical engineering — studies she became interested in as a result of her uncle's passion for car racing.

"I still feel like I need to wake up from this dream come true," Mitcham said. "I definitely wouldn't be where I am today, attempting two majors and a minor without all the motivation my guardian angels have given me. I feel like I can do anything with them behind me."

Hagerman library sees increase in use

By Kimberly Williams-Brackett
Times-News correspondent

HAGERMAN — Patrons of the Hagerman Public Library are responsible for the library's growing collection of books — not that it's a bad thing.

Director Barbara Stobart said she's taking in more books than she's pulling out; therefore, "books are falling off the shelf."

The library has seen an estimated 75 percent increase in patrons in the last year, said Stobart.

Adult and children's books were purchased on sale to fill in some of the library's series from Wendell-based vendor

Something More's Sharla Dunn.

"They're clean," said Stobart. "We're getting more requests for Christian books."

She expressed concern in the increase of books on vampires. "Bigger libraries are getting challenged," said Stobart.

Stobart asked the library's board of trustees for input on where to inexpensively purchase audio books on CD. One library patron made a request for them, although "there is no room to put them out," Stobart said.

In other business, the book sale during the Hagerman Swap Meet and Car Show brought in $72, which went to the library's building fund.

"While the guys were down with their cars, the wives were milling around. They would buy a book and go sit down to read," Stobart said.

The board made a motion to transfer memorial donations and proceeds from the book sale into its building fund.

Treasurer and Trustee Nancy Bright said she needs to find out when she can withdraw funds from the board's CD for a down-payment on the property the board is purchasing to build a new library. The board will pay 5 percent interest, said Bright.

Stobart said the paperwork is being processed, however until a new mayor is appointed after the Nov. 3 election, the title/escrow cannot be signed.

Dean C. Jensen

HEYBURN — Dean Carlile Jensen, age 88, passed away Saturday, Oct. 10, 2009, at his home in Heyburn.

He was born Feb. 19, 1921, in Heyburn, Idaho, the fifth child of Christian Peter and Rebecca Rose Hymas Jensen. Dean grew up on the family farm, attended school in Heyburn and graduated from Rupert High School in 1939.

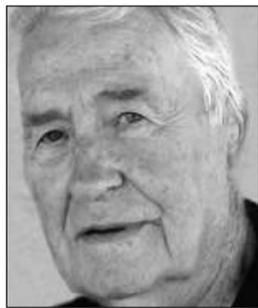

On the July 24, 1939, Dean met a young woman named Billie Knudsen who won his heart. They were married on Feb. 19, 1941, at his parents' home in Heyburn. Their first child, a daughter, was born on their wedding anniversary and Dean's birthday. A son soon joined the family.

Dean was drafted into the United States Army at the end of World War II. He served his country stateside until the end of the war and was discharged in January of 1946. He then returned to the farm and his family. Over the years, three more sons and three more daughters were added to the family.

Billie and Dean were sealed in the Idaho Falls LDS Temple in February of 1952, making this a forever family. Dean was an active member of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints and served as a financial and ward clerk for 33 consecutive years under 11 bishoprics. He was a high priest at the time of his death and lived the gospel that he loved to the best of his ability.

Over the years, Dean supported his family by farming, driving a milk truck on the new north side farming development, operating a grocery store, building and operating a beaver ranch, working at the Burley Processing Plant and at J.R. Simplot in Heyburn, often-times working several jobs at the same time. He was a hard worker and set a quiet example to all of us. He was a deep man, quietly going about his business, never demanding respect; it was just given to him due to his reverence and integrity.

His family was his priority and his first thoughts were always for his wife, children and grandchildren. He enjoyed many years of family reunions, the "Sweetheart Dinner," and the brothers' and sisters' weekend. Times spent with family meant everything to him.

Dean was preceded in death by his parents; three brothers; one sister; a daughter-in-law, Mary Lynne Jensen; and a granddaughter, Amy Manning. EDITORIAL

Congratulations, SNA, for 30 years of impertinent questions

For its first three decades, the Idaho National Laboratory had a free ride in Idaho. In awe of the alchemy performed on the 570,000-acre desert in eastern Idaho — including the first nuclear-generated electrical power — nobody much questioned what went on behind the locked gates at INL.

Not when an experimental reactor's control rod was removed incorrectly, leading to a core meltdown and explosion. Not when U.S. Geological Survey scientist Jack Barraclough discovered radioactive iodine concentrations more than 25 times the allowable limit for drinking water in a well at the site.

But the Three Mile Island accident in Pennsylvania in 1979 transformed the political landscape, even in Idaho, and the Snake River Alliance began doing something rare in Idaho: Talking back to the experts.

The Boise-based environmental group — celebrating its 30th anniversary this year — was cofounded by Dorian Duffin of Rupert and led for a time by Beatrice Brailsford of Buhl. For years, it's had a hand in forcing the federal Department of Energy to be more accountable.

After then-Gov. John Evans formed a taskforce at the urging of the SRA, the energy department in 1984 announced that it would stop injecting waste into the Eastern Snake River Plain Aquifer, where much of the Magic Valley gets drinking water.

Its influence was a factor when Gov. Cecil Andrus blocked nuclear waste shipments at the state's border in 1988, and in a 1995 Gov. Phil Batt's agreement with the energy department set a schedule for removing low-level nuclear waste stored at INL.

And if Alternate Energy Holdings Inc. is unsuccessful in getting permission to build a nuclear power plant in Elmore County, SRA — a vocal critic of the project — will be a major reason why. SRA's judgment hasn't always been perfect. In 1996, the group engineered a failed ballot initiative aimed at overturning the Batt agreement. But since 1979, the pronouncements of all of those PhD's at INL haven't been holy writ.

Big government, it turns out, doesn't always know best, and that message has resonated across the Idaho political spectrum — even with those who favor nuclear power.

And to other realms of public policy as well. Idaho's technocracies — the Department of Environmental Quality, the Idaho State Department of Agriculture, the Idaho Department of Fish and Game, for example — don't get a pass when they make complex proposals and decisions. They actually have to justify their actions.

Would that have happened without SRA? Perhaps. The Idaho Conservation League, founded six years before the SRA, has been holding policymakers' feet to the fire for a long time now.

Though effective, the ICL is a less confrontational, mainstream group. SNA was never afraid to raise hell, earning former Sen. Jim McClure's enmity as a "radical fringe" group.

Yet truth be told, INL is a more effective operation today because of pressure from the SRA. It does its homework, performs its due diligence and has stopped trying to pass off its actions as too complex for ordinary Idahoans to understand.

For the SNA demonstrated long ago that workaday Idahoans are smart enough to protect their state's best interests.

Our view:

Before the Snake River Alliance came along, few Idahoans talked back to the experts. Boy, has that changed.

Behind all that anger is a call for change

Listen to America — in focus groups, telephone interviews, town halls and polls in all 50 states — for a living. It used to be fun. Now it's become painful.

Frank Luntz

For 15 years, average Americans have exuded optimism and energy, whether they were talking about their political preferences, their employment aspirations or simply what they had for breakfast.

But that was before the economic meltdown one year ago. What a difference a year makes.

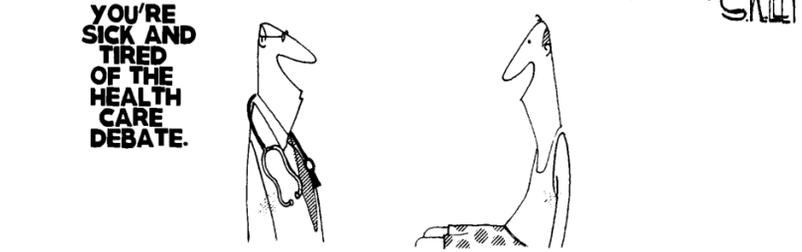

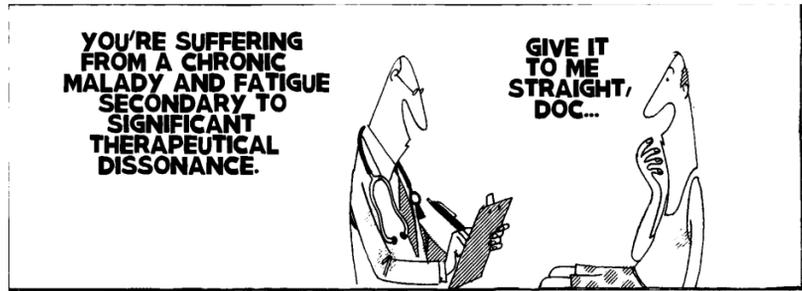

Today, Americans are boiling mad, and the elites from Washington to Wall Street to West Hollywood don't get it. It can best be summarized by 12 short words bellowed by Howard Beale, the deranged TV anchor in the movie "Network": "I'm as mad as hell, and I'm not going to take this anymore."

The frightening reality is that where there was hope, now there is cynicism. Instead of courage and resolve, I hear blame and finger-pointing.

According to my research, 72 percent of Americans agree with Howard Beale. Second, 57 percent now believe that their children will inherit a worse America than they did, and just 33 percent believe their children will have a better quality of life than they have.

This wasn't just any single poll. My research includes interviews with 6,400 people from December 2008 through April 2009 that allow me to analyze opinions by gender, age, ethnicity and partisanship. No matter how I slice and dice the results, we're a very unhappy people.

That intense despair and loss of confidence exactly reflect what we're seeing and hearing in health care town halls. The media focus on the shouting and the extremist slogans and miss the point: a once-optimistic people now filled with rancor and vitriol.

And why not? Americans in the unhappy majority are struggling to keep their jobs as million-dollar bonuses are being awarded at companies their tax dollars bailed out. They're watching Congress showcase the partisan spectacle we now blithely confuse with "government." They have learned to distrust their leaders, their institutions and even their own positive values in a culture that has turned coarse and critical.

The elites under attack complain that rowdy town halls are bad for civic discourse and democracy. But I contend that their empty dismissals of grassroots anger are much more dangerous.

If you talk in depth to self-described angry Americans you don't hear raving demands or reckless hate. What you hear is fear.

But you also hear a belief in American values that many thought were lost. An incredible 88 percent believe in the adage "live free or die." Conversely, just 35 percent agree with the statement "I want it all, and I want it now," and a slight majority (54 percent) believe "if it feels good, do it." And when asked to choose from a list of social and cultural challenges facing America, the highest priority is "restoring personal responsibility."

I even spot some green shoots of renewed optimism. First, the town halls themselves are a sign of a healthy desire to engage in political and social discourse. Americans are putting some of the "self" back in self-governance. Competing ideals are actually competing.

Digging still deeper, my research suggests that we can curb American anger if we begin to fix two complaints: the lack of accountability and the lack of respect in our dealings with each other.

The core American complaint about politics is that wrongdoing isn't punished, other than at the next election. From scandalous personal behavior to bailouts of everyone and everything except the hard-working middle class, Washington is seen as the source for America's mistakes. Enforcing rules and letting failures fail would stop the excesses today and prevent the mistakes of tomorrow. Such accountability in business would likewise prevent executives at imploding companies from walking away with millions while their employees get skunked. I have done "employee satisfaction" research for two decades, and I have never seen a gulf this wide: Employers resent the lack of loyalty and commitment from their people; employees resent the lack of job security and the need to work longer and harder for less.

For business and political elites, the message should be clear: Restore trust. Politicians should be hosting more town hall meetings, even if it means encountering surly voters. Business leaders should be seeking input from their hard-pressed customers and workers, and they should stop paying themselves huge bonuses while everyone else suffers. If those in power shut up and listen, they'll hear what I'm hearing. It's time to heed the anger and reinforce the positive values behind it.

Ruling class won't be affected by new policies they create

Let's get right to it! Most of the proposals made by President Obama and followed by his tame legislature, his cabinet, his czars, and his minions who actually generate the proposals don't and won't personally affect any of the aforementioned people at all. Why should they worry about the unbelievably huge spending, debt or deficit? They're OK no matter what else happens. Cap and Trade? Their travel and other expenses are paid by taxpayers. Stimulus? Their buddies are taken care of by taxpayers through deficit, inflation or increased taxes. Health care? Got their own health care system, paid for by (guess who?) taxpayers, of course.

If they are not directly affected, what limits do they have? Nothing they do affects them personally, so they can do whatever their liberal bent pushes them toward, no matter who they are supposed to represent (Republican, Democrat, independent, Libertarian) And no matter whether their proposals make sense or not.

All this reminds me of what I have heard of the Soviet regime in full flower from the 1920s to the mid-1980s. Their guiding principle was "us or them." They had a ruling class, and a class that was ruled. The laws, written or not, the regulations, the ordinances, the customary practices, and the normal operating procedures applied only infrequently to "us," the ruling class, and then only to individuals out of favor with members of the ruling class. All the restrictions applied to "them," plus whatever the enforcers like to impose.

The whole situation bugs (reference teenagers 1966) the hell out of me. From what I see, flaming liberalism coupled with government power leads to socialism, then communism, then — what? Kingly rule? Imperial rule?

When you get to the point where what you dictate affects only your subjects, you should be heaved out!

Talking on the phone is not the only distraction in a car

In response to the proposed law against cell phone use while driving, there are many more distracting things to worry about; for instance, kids fighting, uncaged dogs in car, eating, drinking, smoking, talking, snoring and looking out of side windows at our beautiful scenery.

Those fuzzy-minded little people downtown need to get a lot more laws passed.

THE LIGHTER SIDE OF POLITICS

Doonesbury

Mallard Fillmore

By Bruce Tinsley

Is conservatism dead? Or just brain dead?

Over his decades as a columnist, lecturer, TV host and debater, William F. Buckley Jr. lost his cool in public only once — when he threatened to sock Gore Vidal “in your goddamn face” on the third night of their joint appearances on ABC during the ill-fated 1968 Democratic National Convention in Chicago. Three nights on a television set with Vidal might drive anyone mad, yet Buckley also tangled with the roughest players on the left, from Jesse Jackson to William Kunstler, with unflinching composure.

But suppose that instead of his formal addresses and his weekly “Firing Line” show on PBS, Buckley had hosted a talk radio show 15 hours a week for 20 years, or hosted a nightly hour-long cable news show, sliced into six-minute segments. One can imagine him sniffing: “You can’t possibly immanentize the eschaton in six minutes!” But one can also imagine him overexposed, spread thin chasing the issue of the moment and perhaps losing his temper now and then — in short, less the man of style and ideas who inspired two generations of conservative thinkers and more just a populist shock jock with a funny prep-school accent.

During the glory days of the conservative movement, from its ascent in the 1960s and '70s to its success in Ronald Reagan's era, there was a balance between the intellectuals, such as Buckley and Milton Friedman, and the activists, such as Phyllis Schlafly and Paul Weyrich, the leader of the New Right. The conservative political movement, for all its infighting, has always drawn deeply from the conservative intellectual movement, and this mix of populism and elitism troubled neither side.

Today, however, the conservative movement has been thrown off balance, with the populists dominating and the intellectuals retreating and struggling to come up with new ideas. The leading conservative figures are now drawn from mass media, from talk radio and cable news. We've traded in Buckley for Beck, Kristol for Coulter.

President Obama has delivered CPR to the movement with his program of government gigantism, but this resuscitation should not be confused with a return to political or intellectual health. The brain waves of the American right continue to be erratic, when they are not flat-lining.

Rush Limbaugh adheres to Winston Churchill's adage that you should grin when you fight. Others, such as Sean Hannity, seem unremittably angry and too reflexively partisan on behalf of the Republican Party rather than the conservative movement.

Glenn Beck, Time magazine's “Mad Man,” is more interesting. His on-air weepiness is unmanly, his flirtation with conspiracy theories debilitating, and his judgments sometimes loopy or just plain counterproductive (such as his convoluted charge that Obama is a racist). Yet Beck's potential contribution to conservatism can be summed up with one name: R.J. Pestritto.

Pestritto, a political scientist at Hillsdale College in Michigan who has appeared on Beck's TV show several times, is among a handful of young conservative scholars engaged in serious academic work critiquing the intellectual pedigree of modern liberalism. Their writing is often dense and difficult, but Beck not only reads it; he assigns it to his staff.

Beck may lack Buckley's urbanity, and his show will never be confused with “Firing Line.” But he's onto something with his interest in serious analysis of liberalism's patrimony. If more conservative talkers challenged liberalism's bedrock assumptions as Beck does, liberals would have to defend their problematic premises more often.

Conservatives can start by engaging the central argument of the most serious indictment of conservatism, Sam Tanenhaus's new book, “The Death of Conservatism.” Tanenhaus thinks the problem with conservatism is that it is not properly deferential to liberalism's relentless engine of change — an elegant restatement of G.K.

Chesterton's quip that is it is the business of progressives to go on making mistakes and that of conservatives to prevent the mistakes from being corrected. That won't do. A conservative movement that accepted Tanenhaus's prescription would be consigning itself to be the actuary of liberalism.

But Tanenhaus is right to direct our attention to the imbalance between the right's thinkers and doers. The single largest defect of modern conservatism is its insufficient ability to challenge liberalism at the intellectual level, in particular over the meaning and nature of progress. In response to the left's belief in political solutions for everything, the right must do better than merely invoking “markets” and “liberty.” Beck is revealing that, despite the daily demands of filling hours of air time, it is possible to engage in some real thought. He just might be helping restore the equilibrium between the elite and populist sides of conservatism.

Man's persistence helped reunite family with lost dog

Thank you to the gentleman who knocked on our door last week holding a female miniature pincer in his arms asking who she might belong to. He lived a couple of streets away from us on Alturas Drive North and obviously had worked very hard to locate the dog's owners.

I took the dog into our home because I thought I recognized her as belonging to a family that lived across the street from us that I thought had already moved. With the help of Cindy Collins of Prudential, I was able to contact the family that owned the dog, and they were happily reunited with her.

Whoever you are, sir, you have a heart of gold and deserve so many thanks from so many.

Cooperation helped make cross country invite a success

Twin Falls High School's annual invitational cross country meet is most certainly, with upward of 600 participants, one of the largest athletic events in Magic Valley. This event takes an enormous amount of cooperation between many people. Besides being one of the state's most beautiful golf courses, Canyon Springs also serves as one of the most popular and challenging cross-country courses in the state. We wish to express our thanks for the generous cooperation of the staff at Canyon Springs for allowing us to host this event.

These young people leave with nothing but positive feelings regarding the treatment they receive on this facility.

It takes a sizable number of officials to conduct a successful event of this magnitude.

This is where our parents play such an important role. We are fortunate to have parents who are knowledgeable about the sport and are willing to volunteer their time. We simply could not function without their help. The timing, placing and scoring are no simple matter and it is here that our parents are so helpful. We are also fortunate to have experienced people to help with the orderly placement of runners in the “chute” and to serve as course marshals. Thank all of you so much for your help.

We also express our gratitude to Scott McNeley and Kurt Kleinkopf of Donnelley Sports for their loan of equipment and personnel. Having a travel trailer with a source of power in which to do the computer scoring is most certainly a generous resource to be volunteered especially on a very cold and windy day.

Hopefully, this event will continue to serve our youth for many years to come. We are proud of our kids, our parents and all of our volunteer help who we feel will continue to help us make this yearly event a most successful one.

Questioning Obama's support of the military “Attention all military personal” — this makes me ill.

Don't you know it's an all volunteer force? “Nobody made you guys go to war!”

“You had to know and accept the risks.” “Now you whine about bearing the cost of your choice.” “It doesn't compute.” “I thought these people, who were proud to sacrifice for their country...” “I wasn't asking for blood, just money.” “With the country facing the worst financial crisis in its history, I'd have thought that the patriotic thing to do would be to try to help reduce the nation's deficit.” “I guess I underestimated the selfishness of my fellow countrymen.”

You may think the above despicable words were spoken by an irresponsible fool. They were.

Unbelievably they were spoken by the current president regarding his proposal to require those in our underpaid military to carry private insurance to cover the treatment for injuries during active duty. Surprisingly, the president admitted he was puzzled by the magnitude of the opposition to his proposal. Think about his words! “Nobody made these guys go to war.” Does he have total disdain for those in our military?

I wonder how many votes the Democrats will get from the military in the 2010 elections. They will not get this veteran's vote.

How did we get a Marxist to become our leader?

Minidoka County Senior Center seeks help

I am writing this letter on behalf of the board of directors and the members of the Minidoka County Senior Center. The Minidoka County Senior Center is a 501(c)(3), non-profit organization whose mission is to provide nutritious and balanced meals to seniors who are homebound and/or physically or financially disabled. Our area covers most of Minidoka County.

The center put out 1,033 home-delivered meals in August. Since then more have been added to our list. There is a great need.

Our Congregate program allows seniors a place to socialize with others. We provide activities such as Pinochle, Bingo and any other activities that might be of interest to our seniors. We provide educational materials and keep seniors informed on issues such as health care, prescriptions, insurance, energy assistance, etc. Most recipients of Meals on Wheels are homebound. Many are recovering from illness.

During these difficult times for seniors, we feel privileged to provide Meals on Wheels so that they may maintain their independence as long as possible. This generation paved the way for us, instilled our values, ensured our freedoms; they were at one time our strength and continue to be our wisdom. They are someone's mom or dad, brother or sister, and valuable member of the community. We cannot turn away from our responsibility to them.

That is why we are asking for your help. Meals on Wheels and Congregate programs are struggling with increased costs of food, transportation, fuel and utilities. Without substantial program income, we find ourselves in the minus monthly. We would appreciate your contribution; it is because of the faithfulness of our community and local businesses our program is still a success. We thank you for your time and look forward to hearing from you.

Here's How to Supercharge Your Immune System and protect your family against THE SWINE FLU

If you've ever suffered the general malaise, the aches and pains, the raging fever, the runs to the bathroom... then you know how devastating the flu can be. Even if you have had a flu vaccine or plan to get one, it does not guarantee that you will not get the flu—just that you will have a milder version. CDC maintains that you have almost a 1 in 2 chance in getting the swine flu this year.

You can prevent the flu— even lick it when it starts, perhaps even within 24 hours. You need to address the real problem rather than concentrating on the symptoms.

We're all exposed to the flu. Why is it, then, that out of ten people, five are totally knocked out with a bad case of it, three get a case of the sniffles, and two are completely unscathed?

The problem is the state of your immune systems. You put yourself under a lot of stress, overindulge in food and drink, and just don't live as healthily as you should, do you? And kids are under the same stress starting a new school year or new year at college. Your immune system suffers. And so do you.

The answer? King Bio's Influenza Multi-Strain Flu Medicine. This all-natural homeopathic medicine contains both the A & B strains. It also contains the benefits from all the knowledge of the swine flu going back to the pandemic of 1918.

Nothing else in the entire country equals it in terms of preventing and combating all types of flu— including swine flu. It's a liquid in a small 2 oz. container and easy to spray under your tongue. Safe for children, too.

Protect your family today with King Bio's Influenza Multi-Strain Flu Medicine for just $21.98 for a 2 oz bottle. And if you have the flu, our recommended loading dose will help you recover much more quickly— oftentimes, in 24 hours. Don't wait. Protect your family now.

WASHINGTON Treasury official: Drug trade, extortion financing Taliban-led insurgency in Afghan.

The Taliban are in much stronger financial shape than al-Qaida and rely on a wide range of criminal activities to pay for attacks on U.S. and coalition forces in Afghanistan, a senior Treasury Department official said Monday.

David Cohen, the department's assistant secretary for terrorist financing, said the extremist group extorts money from poppy farmers and heroin traffickers involved in Afghanistan's booming drug trade. The Taliban also demand protection payments from legitimate Afghan businesses, he said during a speech at a conference on money laundering enforcement.

Cohen's assessment came as President Barack Obama and his top advisers discuss whether many more troops may be needed in the 8-year-old Afghanistan conflict. A critical part of the deliberations is whether the fight should be a more narrow one against al-Qaida or a broader battle against the Taliban-led insurgency.

GOP uses ACORN's problems to fight law that grades banks

Conservative Republicans are capitalizing on the troubles of community activist group ACORN — ranging from charges of voter registration fraud to embarrassing videos of its employees — to revive their long-standing fight against a federal law that grades banks on their investments in poor and minority neighborhoods.

The 1977 Community Reinvestment Act was intended to end redlining, a practice in which banks in effect walled off many inner-city neighborhoods from mortgage loans. But some GOP lawmakers say it has outlived its purpose and is being used inappropriately by ACORN to shake down banks for money. They want to repeal the law, scale it back or at least block a Democratic proposal to expand it.

Critics of the law are linking it to ACORN — a subject many Democrats wish would go away — at every opportunity.

PAKISTAN Fourth Taliban attack in days kills 41 at market

ISLAMABAD — Militants from the heart of Pakistan teamed up with Taliban insurgents from the remote Afghan border region to carry out the bold weekend assault on army headquarters, the army said Monday — an ominous development as the fourth major attack in just over a week killed 41 people at a northwestern market.

The prospect of militant networks from across Pakistan cooperating more closely could complicate a planned offensive against the Taliban in their northwest stronghold, a push seen as vital to the success of the faltering U.S. war effort in Afghanistan.

New details about the alleged leader of the 22-hour attack on army headquarters less than 10 miles from the Pakistani capital underscored the bonds among the groups. Officials said Mohammad Aqeel, a former member of the army medical corps, had ties to the Taliban as well as to two al-Qaida-linked militant groups in the Punjab, Pakistan's dominant and most populous province.

ISRAEL

Netanyahu: Israel will not allow leaders, troops to be put on trial for war crimes

JERUSALEM — Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu on Monday vowed never to allow Israeli leaders or soldiers to stand trial on war crimes charges over their actions during last winter's military offensive in the Gaza Strip, furiously denouncing a U.N. report in a keynote address to parliament.

Netanyahu's fiery rhetoric — and his decision to open the high-profile speech with remarks on the report — reflected the deep distress felt among Israeli leaders after a U.N. commission accused Israel of intentionally harming civilians when it launched a massive attack in Gaza to stop years of rocket fire.

Official: Dairy industry must restructure

Vilsack says changes needed to avoid cycles of boom, bust

By Chet Brokaw
Associated Press writer

BATH, S.D. — The struggling U.S. dairy industry must be restructured to avoid cycles of boom and bust, Agriculture Secretary Tom Vilsack said, less than a week after Congress announced a $350 million dairy bailout.

Dairy farmers benefited in recent years from higher milk prices and growing demand in countries such as China. But demand fell off with the economic downturn, and wholesale milk prices began plummeting last fall. At the same time, feed and other costs remained high.

Many farmers now say they can't sell their milk for what it costs to produce.

"I think really what will be next in line is a longer term discussion about whether or not we need to make structural changes in the way the dairy industry is currently operated so we no longer have these rather stark contrasts between boom and bust," Vilsack said during a visit to South Dakota.

Vilsack said he would like to get federal aid into farmers' hands as soon as possible. Under the deal announced last week, his department is responsible for distributing $290 million in direct support for dairy farmers. The other $60 million will cover purchases of surplus cheese and other dairy products to help raise prices. Food banks and other nutrition programs will get the goods.

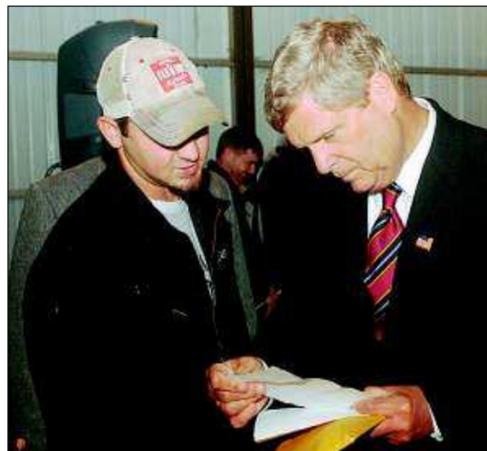

An advisory committee will recommend how to spend the money, Vilsack said.

"The general principle for me is to get as much money in the pockets of producers as quickly as I can," he told the 300 farmers and ranchers gathered in a farm building in northern South Dakota.

The secretary also said he expects the Agriculture Department to look at its price support and marketing programs to see if changes can be made to help stabilize prices.

"We need to figure out what changes, if any, we need

Washington farm workers push for unionization

By Manuel Valdes
and Shannon Diminny
Associated Press writers

PASCO, Wash. — Margarito Martinez says he was fired from the eastern Washington dairy that employed him for more than a year because he tried to unionize the company. Nine co-workers say they also were let go for affiliations with the budding union.

The owners of Ruby Ridge Dairy, though, say only two workers were fired, one for safety violations and the other for incompetence. The others quit, they said. The dairy owners don't want the union involved in the dispute, but say they're willing to do what the workers want — as long as there's a vote.

The United Farm Workers of America, the nation's biggest farm worker union, has filed a lawsuit on the workers' behalf — the latest action from a union looking to increase its ranks among the tens of thousands of farm workers in Northwest agriculture.

"Many still are afraid that if they join, they'll be fired. But many people welcomed the union," Martinez, 56, said in Spanish. "We worked without lunch breaks and breaks. They didn't pay for all the hours worked. You worked 10 hours, you'd get paid 8, 9.5. It's not fair."

The union already represents 150 vineyard workers at the region's largest winery, plus 250 workers at a Boardman, Ore., dairy that marked the first unionized agricultural operation in Oregon. This summer, the union reached agreement with Beef Northwest to represent about 100 workers at cattle feeding yards in two states.

The union says membership has quadrupled to about 600 workers in the Northwest. Nationwide, the union says about 27,000 people have worked at least one day under a UFW contract. The federal government, however, estimates the union's membership at more than 5,000.

Nonetheless, the union's push in the Northwest has prompted the Washington State Farm Bureau to send out guidelines to farmers on what to do if workers want to unionize.

"We've had four major organizing campaigns in the last five years, so we've been very active," said Erik Nicholson, Pacific Northwest union director. "At Ruby Ridge, the workers came to us."

The workers contend the dairy's owners wouldn't pay for a full shift and that bathroom and lunch breaks were discouraged or not provided. They also reported verbal

Low quality makes farmers discount spring wheat crop

By Blake Nicholson
Associated Press writer

BISMARCK, N.D. — Producers of hard red spring wheat in the upper Midwest have reaped one of the biggest harvests in history, but the bin-busting crop isn't of high enough quality to pay the bills for many farmers.

The same cool weather that produced the bumper crop reduced the level of protein in the grain used for bread products. Since lower-protein grain can hurt the quality of bread and other foods, it brings a lesser price, and farmers are finding their bumper crop worth a lot less than expected.

"It's the difference between a break-even scenario vs. a profitable year," said Byron Richard, who farms near Belfield in the southwest part of North Dakota, which grows about half of the nation's spring wheat each year.

North Dakota's 2009

crop is the largest in 13 years, thanks to a record yield, or bushels harvested per acre. But much of the grain is coming in with less than 14 percent protein, generally considered the threshold between good-quality and poor-quality grain.

"What we're seeing on our farm is about a (percentage) point less than average; it's running around 13.5 when normally it's around 14.5," said Richard, who is president of the North Dakota Grain Growers Association.

The problem for farmers is not likely to have a large impact on consumers.

The American Bakers Association acknowledged any disruption in supply typically affects consumer food prices. But given "the relative size of the hard red spring wheat crop, the ability to blend wheat, if necessary, and the overall competitiveness of the Department of Ag announces 2010 DCP and ACRE sign-up

Times-News staff

Dick Rush, executive director of U.S. Department of Agriculture's Farm Service Agency in Idaho, announced Monday that USDA has started enrollment for the 2010 Direct and Counter-cyclical Program and the Average Crop Revenue Election.

Sign-up will continue through June 1, 2010.

"We would like to encour-

eDCP is available to all producers who are eligible to participate in the DCP and ACRE programs. It can be accessed at www.fsa.usda.gov/dcp. Initially producers must go to their local office, but can then use electronic authorization on several FSA programs.

age Idaho producers to make use of the eDCP automated website to sign up," Rush said. "Last year many producers used the service, which saves time, reduces paperwork and speeds up contract processing at our local FSA offices."

The USDA computes DCP

payments using base acres and payment yields established for each farm. Eligible producers receive direct payments regardless of market prices. For 2010, eligible producers may request to receive advance direct payments based on 22 percent of the direct payment. USDA will issue advance direct payments beginning Dec. 1.

The optional ACRE program provides a safety net based on state revenue losses and acts in place of the price-based safety net of counter-cyclical payments under DCP. A farm's payment is based on a revenue guarantee calculated using a 5-year average state yield and the most recent 2-year national price for each eligible commodity.

For the 2010 crop, the 2-year price average will be based on the 2008 and 2009 crop years.

In exchange for participating in ACRE, and in addition to not receiving counter-cyclical payments, a farm's direct payment is reduced by 20 percent, and marketing assistance loan rates are reduced by 30 percent.

Once enrolled, the farm is enrolled for that initial crop year and will remain in ACRE through the 2012 crop year.

The June 1, 2010, deadline is mandatory for all participants. USDA will not accept late-filed applications.

Dates and deadlines

• Nov. 6 - County Office Committee Election Ballots mailed to eligible voters.

• Dec. 1 - NAP sales closing date for honey and all 2010 perennials including alfalfa and grass.

Idaho pays out $504 million in unemployment insurance

Times-News staff

During the first 10 months of this year, Idaho paid out nearly $504 million in regular, extended and supplemental unemployment insurance benefits to people who are out of work, an all-time record payout for any year in the state's history and more than double all of 2008's total record payout of $247 million.

Unemployment insurance benefits are funded by a mix of employer-paid taxes collected at the state and federal level.

In regular benefits — those held at the state level by the Idaho Trust Fund — Idaho has paid out $336.8 million since January of this year in weekly amounts ranging between a high of $11.4 million in March to a low of $4.8 million in early October.

When it comes to extended and supplemental benefits, Idaho has paid out an additional $166.7 million year-to-date, in weekly amounts ranging from a low of $1.4 million in January to a high of $5.6 million in October.

A higher number of people out of work for longer periods of time and additional federal funds authorized by Congress for extended benefits are two key reasons for the record-breaking payout numbers, but according to Idaho Department of Labor Director Roger B. Madsen, regular benefit payout numbers are beginning to stabilize.

In the third week of May, Idaho paid out $8.3 million in regular benefits, 160 percent higher than the $3.2 million for that same week in 2008. This week the state paid out $4.8 million in regular benefits, 71 percent above the $2.8 million for the same week in 2008. Analysts expect this trend to continue with year-over-year differences converging and completely closing by the end of the year, and in the process, taking some pressure off the Idaho Trust Fund. It was this time last year that Idaho's economy experienced a precipitous decline where 36,000 non-farm jobs were lost in only three months.

Idaho's record amount of regular benefits paid broke the Idaho Trust Fund in June of 2009, when the state began to tap interest-free loans from the federal government. As of Oct. 6, Idaho has borrowed over $67 million in interest-free loans to continue to pay regular benefits to new claimants. Department fiscal experts predict the borrowing will continue until the first quarter of 2010 when higher tax rates will kick in and help replenish the Idaho Trust Fund.

At the same time however, the decline in regular benefits is being offset by an increase in the number of people qualifying for and receiving extended benefits.

"People use unemployment insurance dollars to pay rent or make house payments, keep the heat and the lights on, put food on the table and buy gas so they can look for work," said Idaho Department of Labor Director Roger Madsen. "And while we would rather see these same people employed and earning livable wages, this record amount also represents $504 million being pumped back into Idaho's communities, which a good."

Schwarzenegger says Calif. cows can keep tails

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — California cows are the first in the nation with the legal right to swat flies as nature intended now that Gov. Arnold Schwarzenegger has signed a bill banning the painful practice of tail docking that he once mocked as being a waste of legislators' time.

The governor also signed other farm bills he famously ridiculed this summer as he tried to pressure legislators to focus on balancing the state's beleaguered budget.

In a signing frenzy that lasted until his midnight Sunday deadline, Schwarzenegger also approved a state blueberry commission and new label requirements for honey. "We were always confident that if reality could trump the rhetoric, the governor would see the merits of this," said Jennifer Fearing, who lobbied for the tail docking bill for the Humane Society of the United States, which vows to take the fight against the removal of tails to other large dairy-producing states such as Wisconsin, Vermont and New York.

While he made California the first state in the nation to ban the painful practice, the Humane Society nonetheless described the governor as having a "schizophrenic record on animal protection."

Union

abuse, including an instance in which an owner told one worker he'd kill him for a cow that died under his care.

The men, all immigrants from rural Mexico, have been working in the state's agricultural industry, in orchards and dairies, for years. Ruby Ridge's 24-hour operation required graveyard shifts and workers say they were expected to toil with little rest.

"They never gave us benefits," said Cirilo Ramirez, who is still employed at the dairy. "If we made a mistake they would not talk to us like human beings, they would talk to us like animals, yelling, insulting. I don't think that should be allowed."

Dick Bengen, 62, has been a dairyman since 1968. He and wife, Ruby, bought more than 2,200 acres of dusty land in 1999. They had two goals: to free themselves from the residential sprawl settling into western Washington's agricultural land and to operate a large dairy in small-dairy ways. Twelve of their 14 employees moved with them, and most remain among their current 40-plus workers.

"I've been happy here for a long time. If I'm not happy, I'd quit," said Leopoldo Perez, 40, of Pasco, who started with the Bengens when they first bought the property 10 years ago.

The couple say they learned some workers were disgruntled shortly before a union organizer arrived at the farm. Both say they were surprised and disappointed. They deny the workers' accusations, saying work breaks are common and employees are free to take lunches but most choose not to because they are unpaid.

"We were in shock," Ruby Bengen said. "It cut me to the core."

Neither speaks Spanish, and Ruby Bengen conceded miscommunication occurs. But they said bilingual workers translate as needed and at monthly meetings. They prefer not to hire a manager, choosing instead to work directly with employees themselves.

"We went to the union with an offer for a secret-ballot election. If a majority of employees wanted to unionize, we would go into negotiations. And if they didn't want a union, the UFW would go away," Dick Bengen said. "They rejected that offer."

The farm workers union says they will not have a secret ballot, adding they already have gathered the workers' signatures on union cards. The union wants a third party to check the validity of the signatures with Ruby Ridge's records.

Organized labor has launched a national effort for a bill in Congress that would give workers the right to form unions by signing cards instead of holding a secret ballot election.

Many of the Ruby Ridge workers who have filed suit say they would be willing to go back to the dairy once the union dispute is resolved. Most are family men with young children and not all have found other jobs since leaving the dairy.

In India, more women demand toilets before marriage

By Emily Wax
 The Washington Post

NILOKHERI, India — An ideal groom in this dusty farming village is a vegetarian, does not drink, has good prospects for a stable job and promises his bride-to-be an amenity in high demand: a toilet.

In rural India, many young women are refusing to marry unless the suitor furnishes their future home with a bathroom, freeing them from the inconvenience and embarrassment of using community toilets or squatting in fields.

About 665 million people in India — about half the population — lack access to latrines. But since a "No Toilet, No Bride" campaign started about two years ago, 1.4 million toilets have been built here in the northern state of Haryana, some with government funds, according to the state's health department.

Women's rights activists call the program a revolution as it spreads across India's vast and largely impoverished rural areas.

"I won't let my daughter near a boy who doesn't have a latrine," said Usha Pagdi, who made sure that her daughter Vimlas Sasva, 18, finished high school and took courses in electronics at a technical school.

"No loo? No 'I do,'" Vimlas said, laughing as she repeated a radio jingle.

"My father never even allowed me an education," Pagdi said, stroking her daughter's hair in their half-built shelter near a lagoon strewn with trash. "Every time I washed the floors, I thought about how I knew nothing. Now, young women have power. The men can't refuse us."

Indian girls are traditionally seen as a financial liability because of the wedding dowries — often a life's savings — their fathers often shell out to the groom's family. But that is slowly changing as women marry later and grow more financially self-reliant. More rural girls are enrolled in school than ever before.

A societal preference for boys here has become an unlikely source of power for Indian women. The abortion of female fetuses in favor of sons — an illegal but widespread practice — means there are more eligible bachelors than potential brides, allowing women and their parents to be more selective when arranging a match.

"I will have to work hard to afford a toilet. We won't get any bride if we don't have one now," said Harpal Sirshwa, 22, who is hoping to marry soon. Neem tree branches hung in the doorway of his parents' home, a sign of pride for a family with sons. "I won't be offended when the woman I like asks for toilet."

Satellite television and the Internet are spreading images of rising prosperity and urban middle-class accouterments to rural areas, such as spacious apartments — with bathrooms — and women in silk saris rushing off to the office.

India's rapid urbanization has also contributed to rising aspirations in small towns and villages. On a crowded highway that runs into this village, about 170 miles north of New Delhi, young women, once seen clinging to the backs of motorbikes driven by their fathers or husbands, now drive their own scooters. One recent popular TV ad shows a rural girl sheepishly entering a scooter showroom, then beaming as she whizzes through the parking lot on her new moped.

With economic freedom, women are increasingly expecting more, and toilets are at the top of their list, they say.

Report: N. Korea fires 5 short-range missiles

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — North Korea test-launched five short-range missiles Monday, reports said, in what analysts said was an attempt to improve its bargaining position ahead of possible talks with the United States.

North Korea has recently reached out to the U.S. and South Korea following months of tension over its nuclear and missile tests earlier this year. Leader Kim Jong Il told visiting Chinese Premier Wen Jiabao last week that his government might return to stalled six-nation negotiations on its nuclear program depending on the outcome of direct talks it seeks with the United States.

Washington has said it is considering holding talks with North Korea as part of efforts to restart the six-party negotiations.

The missile launches off North Korea's east coast were the first by the communist nation since it test-fired seven missiles in early July, South Korea's Yonhap news agency reported.

Yonhap, citing a South Korean official it did not identify, said the KN-02 surface-to-surface missiles were fired from mobile launch pads and had a range of up to 75 miles (120 kilometers). It said North Korea launched two missiles in the morning and three more in the afternoon.

South Korea's Defense Ministry and National Intelligence Service — the country's main spy agency — said they could not confirm the reports.

The DIY championships

Competition to be south-central Idaho's champion do-it-yourselfer was as tough as a 12-inch cross beam.

But six winners emerged with remodeling victories. Last week, you read about the three honorable mentions. Today, you meet third- and second-place winners. And on Oct. 20, watch for the 2009 champion.

We judged this entirely subjective contest on quick work, cost control and the coolness factor, favoring projects that simply made homes better places to live.

Interior overhaul

The motivation: The Niensens married in June, turning Craig's bachelor pad-manufactured home into a dwelling for six, including Leslie and her four kids. The house needed to become more family-friendly, so the newlyweds devised a plan to add a bedroom and a pantry, plus spruce up the kitchen, bathroom and existing children's bedrooms.

The bill: About $10,000 — a huge savings from a contractor's quoted $29,500.

Besides doing most of the work themselves, the couple saved money by borrowing tools when they could. Craig is an electrician, so there was no need to hire anyone to wire the house.

Timeline: From June to August. Craig and Leslie squeezed in projects between raising the kids and Craig's full-time job and Leslie's baby-sitting. "It was a long couple months," Craig said.

Bang for the buck: An open sitting area and a small room between the living room and kitchen are now a pantry and a child's bedroom. The Niensens constructed a wall to separate the bedroom from the living room and sealed off a pantry area where they keep their food, computer and important documents. The new pantry has a number-code lock to protect the documents — and keep the kids from over-snacking.

The new bedroom, built for 3-year-old Dylan, has a closet and toy storage and is painted blue. It doesn't have doors yet, but the family plans to add French doors eventually.

The kitchen gained new appliances and an island in the middle, plus a tiled floor with copper inlays and tiled countertops and backsplash. The Niensens replaced the carpet with wood flooring in several areas of the house, including the dining room and kids' bedrooms. The bathroom has new light fixtures, floors and a new faucet.

Leslie and Craig Nielsen renovated this room in their Paul home for their son, Dylan, including a new wall between the living room and the bedroom to close it off. The couple spent long hours for weeks remodeling their manufactured home.

The Niensens placed new tiles throughout the kitchen, tearing up the old linoleum flooring. Craig incorporated copper inlays in the tiled floor. They also tiled the island and painted its sides.

Kitchen and dining room facelift

The motivation: When Bart and Nicole Crawford moved into their home outside Jerome six years ago, they knew they wanted to spruce up their kitchen with its ugly orange oak cabinets and laminated countertops. The Crawfords had renovated their master bedroom and bathroom last year, and tackling the kitchen was next on their list.

"It was a very functional kitchen," Nicole said of the original. "It was just very ..."

"Bland," Bart finished.

Price tag: $15,000, including new appliances, a granite countertop and glass tiles.

Timeline: The couple started on the kitchen on April 25 and finished in late July.

Bang for the buck: Nicole

Third place: Bart and Nicole Crawford, Jerome and Bart added glass tiles to the backsplash and side of the breakfast bar. They special-ordered the tiles after Nicole set her heart on them.

Instead of replacing the unloved oak cabinets — a task that would have added $15,000 to their bill, Nicole estimates — they added black molding to the sides to bring out the black flecks in the granite counter. The backsplash also distracts from and minimizes the orange. They installed the new stainless steel appliances themselves.

Skills learned: Bart had never cut tiles before, which Precision. The Crawfords said the most work came in cutting glass tiles to fit the design space.

Foam blocks and concrete provide design options, wind resistance

DEAR JIM: I want to build a house which is very efficient and strong to withstand tornadoes. I prefer one made with concrete because the resource is so abundant. How good are foam block houses filled with concrete? — Paul P.

SENSIBLE HOME

James Dulley

DEAR PAUL: There are many new super-efficient house construction methods which are also very strong. Many can easily withstand the power of tornado- and hurricane-force winds. In addition to the building materials, just the shape of the house can have a major impact upon how well it withstands winds. A circular or spherical shape, as most animals build their nests and dens, is best.

This type of combination foam block and concrete

house you mentioned is one of the strongest and most energy efficient. It is one of several construction methods often referred to as stay-in-place forms. The forms which hold the wet concrete are not removed and provide the insulation and substrate surface for installing the interior and exterior wall coverings.

People often think of concrete as being cold and a poor insulator, and they are correct. With the foam block house construction, the concrete provides the structural strength for the walls. It is totally encapsulated by high R-value rigid insulating foam. Depending upon the thickness and shape of the foam blocks you select, the wall insulation can be as high as R-40. Keep in mind, more thickness does increase the material costs.

The hollow foam blocks are made to your house plans. They are designed such that there is an open cavity throughout the entire wall once they are stacked together. They interlock so they stay together. The homeowner can actually help stack the lightweight blocks to lower labor costs. Concrete is poured into the top of the wall cavity by a concrete pump truck.

The wet concrete flows throughout all the interlocking block cavities and sets up to provide extreme strength. If you would strip away the foam blocks, you would find the interlocking concrete framing inside.

With this construction method, you have many architectural design options from a traditional house to very contemporary.

There are several deviations from the true foam block design. Several use flat foam panels with plastic or metal webs between them to create the hollow blocks. This reduces the amount of foam needed. Others use very large flat foam panels with metal ties between them. When filled with concrete, the end result is similar.

Cement (main ingredient of concrete) is an abundant resource. Some companies make their hollow blocks using a mixture of cement and recycled sawdust or plastics. These blocks are heavier than all-foam ones, but the walls are assembled similarly. With any of these foam/concrete methods, there is a substantial amount of thermal mass inside the insulation envelop for even room temperatures.

Speaker touts organic

KETCHUM — Paul Tukey thought he was following a healthy career choice when he followed his love of the outdoors and founded his own landscaping company.

But within five years the Maine man began developing recurrent headaches, nosebleeds and blurred vision — symptoms his physician said might be caused by the 2,4-D synthetic weed killer he used, Tukey said.

In response, Tukey transformed his business into an organic one. And then he began crisscrossing America teaching others how they could do the same. He wrote "The Organic Lawn Care Manual," founded www.SafeLawn.org, started a TV show by the same name on HGTV and began publishing "People, Places and Plants" magazine.

On Friday, Tukey will present the program "Safe Lawns: How and Why to Create a Beautiful Landscape Organically" at Gail Severn Gallery, 400 First Ave. N. in Ketchum. The program is part of the Sawtooth Botanical Garden's Speaker Series.

Hors d'oeuvres and wine will be served beginning at 6 p.m. The presentation will follow at 7 p.m. Admission is $20 for Sawtooth Botanical Garden members and $25 for others, with tickets available at the door.

On Saturday, Tukey will screen the film "A Chemical Reaction," a documentary movie that tells one community's reaction after a local dermatologist noted a connection between her patients' health and their exposure to chemical pesticides and herbicides. The film starts at 7 p.m. at the nexStage Theatre, 120 S. Main St. in Ketchum.

Film cost is $5 for members of the botanical garden and $10 for others; tickets at the door.

Garden symposium teaches participants how to go green

Times-News

Want to go green in your garden next year? Need tips on maximizing the effects of environmentally "soft" techniques?

On Nov. 14, University of Idaho Extension will host its fourth annual South Idaho Garden Symposium, "Going Green in the Garden," at the College of Southern Idaho's Herrett Center for Arts and Science. Cost is $25 until Nov. 6 and $30 at the door, space permitting.

"Although a lot of people don't know what 'green' means, it's not really new in the garden," Jo Ann Robbins, U of I Extension educator in Jerome County, said in a press release. "It's one step beyond traditional low-maintenance, low-input gardens towards an increased focus on water protection, sustainability and self-cycling."

Interest in green gardening is building along with Americans' inclination to save more and forgo unnecessary expenses, Robbins said. "People are looking at their lifestyle differently, and a green garden tends to be economical as well as attractive."

Organized by the Magic Valley and Mini-Cassia Master Gardener associations, the program includes presentations by U of I Extension faculty in horticulture, entomology and plant pathology as well as local nursery and landscape professionals. Organizers say participants will learn to:

- Apply green-garden concepts and become better stewards.
- Control garden problems organically with commercially available soft garden chemicals.

- Use beneficial insects, soft chemicals and best management practices to create insect-friendly yards.

- Use good management practices — including the newest biological controls — to keep plants healthy and free of disease.

- Use irrigation equipment efficiently.

- Complete their green gardens with native plants.

The event includes a silent auction, door prizes and seed exchange. It begins with registration at 8 a.m., breaks at noon for a sandwich-and-salad buffet and concludes at 3:30 p.m. Information: Shari Wright at 320-3975, Kathie Stewart at 735-5396 or Gene Holm at 436-8989. Download a registration form: extension.ag.uidaho.edu/Jerome, click on "Upcoming Events for Gardening."

posed a challenge. The clear glass tiles are backed with colored foil, which wanted to peel and chip upon cutting, Bart said.

Biggest challenge: The floor. While they refinished the floor, strange dark patches appeared on the wood — a side effect of the original floor not being finished right away, Nicole reckoned. They had to redo the entire project.

What's next: The Crawfords hope to tackle backyard landscaping next year. In anticipation of the planned hot tub, they added slate to the floor by the back door in the dining room to help keep tracked-in water off the wood.

one room and tulips and polka dots in another. The couple replaced all the hollow interior doors with solid wood doors.

Biggest disaster: Finding mold from leaky pipes in the kitchen. Initially, the Niensens weren't planning to redo so much of the kitchen, but after discovering mold around the sink, they tore out cabinets, sink, subfloor, plumbing and flooring, then replaced it all. It added to their bill, and they're worried they might have the same problem in their laundry room.

Skills learned: Craig had never worked on floors before, and building interior walls was new to him, too. He learned from books, friends and the Internet.

What's next: The family is going to tackle landscaping next year. The Niensens also hope to redo the outside of the house with a stucco finish.

Wife's suspicions are raised by husband's many secrets

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: I have been married nearly a year. My husband and I were together for five years before that. I am his fourth wife.

What's bothering me is he gets most of his mail delivered to his mother's — things such as his cell phone bill, his paychecks, etc. Everything he owns is in storage in another country. He makes all his phone calls from work and never receives any at home.

I saw his credit report. He has taken out loans I know nothing about.

I love my husband with all my heart, but am I right to think a marriage isn't supposed to be this way? I feel he has two lives.

— IN THE DARK IN TENNESSEE

DEAR IN THE DARK: I don't know how many lives your husband is living, but the answer to your question is no, a marriage is not supposed to be the way yours is. Your husband's behavior is unusually secretive — and when people are secretive, it is usually because they have something to hide.

There are many red flags in your letter, and because of that I'm advising you to talk to an attorney and find out how loans taken out without your knowledge could affect you.

DEAR ABBY: My girlfriend gets weirded out and angry when I hold my kids from a previous marriage in my lap and want her to be close to me at the same time. She says it's "gross and inappropriate."

She acts like I am trying to be sexual with her, but I'm not — I'm just trying to have her near me while I'm sitting on the couch with my children. She says I should only be affectionate with them and her separately.

Am I the one with the problem here, or what?

— DAD IN LAKEWOOD, WASH.

DEAR DAD: Your girlfriend may feel competitive with your children, or she may have something in her personal history that makes it difficult for her to differentiate between paternal affection and sexual closeness between adults. If you want concrete answers from her, you need to discuss this subject more fully with her so she can explain why she feels the way she does, because it's odd.

DEAR ABBY: Since my daughter left home several years ago, I have become extremely anxious on Sundays. In the afternoons it feels like the walls are closing in on me. I feel so depressed I have to leave the house.

If I go someplace that is open and unconfined, with lots of people around, I feel fine. When I return to my house in the early evening and dote on my pets, I get back to feeling normal.

Abby, some people have said I suffer from "empty nest syndrome." Others say it's "cabin fever." Any thoughts on what I can do about this?

— PHIL IN PHOENIX

DEAR PHIL: If your daughter left on a Sunday, that may be the reason you become depressed and anxious on that particular day of the week. Or because you are less busy and distracted on Sundays, you become more aware of the fact you are alone. Whether you're experiencing "empty nest syndrome" or "cabin fever" is irrelevant. Discuss your feelings of depression and claustrophobia with a licensed mental health professional so you can be properly diagnosed and receive help for your problem.

IF OCTOBER 13 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY:

Get on the ball and make an effort to put your most important plans into motion during November. If you need of a job, a raise or a positive change an opportunity might arise miraculously. Your fervent prayers could be answered during that time period or your good judgment will be rewarded. Your love life could improve in December and any promising relationship may move to a higher and more committed level. Push to reach your goals in April and May when developing business skills and beneficial opportunity come together nicely for you.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Someone may try to rush you into making a decision, but you are adept at promising to complete only what is do-able.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): If you can't beat them, join them. By now, you should have learned the hard way that the majority usually rules.

HOROSCOPE
Jeraldine Saunders

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): It is time to bring the telescope to your eye and look further than the end of your nose. Focus on a distant, but significant, goal.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You might yearn for a richer lifestyle. Consider taking a class or buying a book that will teach you how to achieve those aspirations.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Tell it like it is. Powerful friends or allies may surprise you by taking your side during important discussions.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Be all that you can be. Your work ethic can impress the boss or your past business dealings have built you a sterling reputation.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Your sparkling personality may attract more than one admirer. Just don't let all this admiration go to your head.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Speak softly and carry a big stick. Convince others of the value of your ideas and they will follow you anywhere.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Form new friendships by meeting others on the common ground of progressive ideas. Small kindnesses win over competitors.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Follow your instincts but ignore your less-worthy desires. Key relationships may experience blissful understanding.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Act like a star and charm others with your offbeat ways for business success. Education is valued more highly than entertainment.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): The hands on the clock point to your five minutes of fame. You may get recognition in public or a pat on the back from the boss.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE® Bobby Wolff

"Four things greater than all things are — Women and Horses and Power and War." — Rudyard Kipling

Today's deal comes from Ron Klinger's latest book, "Right Through the Pack Again." Each deal has an individual hero, but for the most part a playing card takes center stage. For example, here the diamond four is recounting his own story.

"How would you handle this declarer-play problem in two spades? With no attractive lead West had begun with the spade 10. Your average player might win in dummy and take the diamond finesse at trick two. The lure of a finesse is generally too much for most of us, but today it would spell defeat. When the diamonds do not break 3-3, declarer can make only five spades and two diamonds.

"The Old Master did not play like that, of course. The bidding indicated that diamonds were unlikely to be 3-3 and the diamond finesse was virtually certain to fail. With clubs headed by the ace-king, West would have started with a top club. West's riskier spade lead therefore marked East with the club king. Since East had passed West's opening bid, East could not have the diamond king as well as the club king. Hence, the diamond king was with West.

"The Old Master took the spade king, cashed the spade jack, crossed to the diamond ace and drew the missing trumps. 'Then he played me,' said the diamond four, 'and when the king was forced to put in an appearance, the Old Master had made his contract.'"

ANSWER: Because of your crisp honor-structure, you are probably worth one more bid. (With the spade 10 you would certainly be worth action.) If so, the clearest way to get your hand across is to bid three hearts, which pinpoints your precise pattern and might get you to the right major-suit game, or indeed to three no-trump if that should be appropriate.

Idaho cool in clutch; BSU faces final BCS hurdle

Not sure how it happened. Or when. But the perennially poor Idaho Vandals have suddenly become one of the best clutch teams in college football.

The last three wins in the Vandals' remarkable 5-1 start have come down to the final minutes. And each time Idaho has come up with either a clock-killing, game-sealing offensive drive or a win-preserving interception. Or both.

Mike Christensen

All this from a team that won just three games total in 2007 and 2008.

The explanation: "Winning is addicting," said running back DeMaundry Woolridge via a UI release. He completed a late comeback by rushing for the winning touchdown in a 29-25 at San Jose State last Saturday.

The other key: "We never quit," said Woolridge. Something not always true of previous Vandal squads.

A team known for shooting itself in the foot at inopportune times is now making all the right plays in crucial moments.

"Our players have confidence in their ability to get the job done," added head coach Robb Akey, whose team is now garnering votes in the Associated Press and Harris Top 25 polls, something unheard of in Moscow since 1998.

Idaho can secure bowl eligibility with a home win over Hawaii on Saturday. While history says a win there will likely be followed by losses to Nevada, Louisiana Tech, Fresno State and Boise State, doubting the Vandals now seems like a mistake in judgment.

Don't be surprised if Idaho takes eight or nine wins into Bronco Stadium on Nov. 14.

It all comes down to Wednesday for No. 5 Boise State. The Broncos will make or break their bid to bust the BCS when they visit Tulsa (4-1) Wednesday night on ESPN.

The Golden Hurricane represent the last formidable hurdle to an unbeaten BSU regular season. After Wednesday, the Broncos face only one team — in-state rival Idaho — that currently owns a winning record.

On paper, Tulsa may not seem scary. Its four wins come over teams with a combined mark of 5-17, including 0-6 programs New Mexico and Rice. In their lone game against quality competition, the Hurricane were pummeled 45-0 at Oklahoma.

But that score makes this game all the more scary. Why? It means Tulsa is saving its biggest weapons for the Broncos. The Tulsa coaching staff has a history of spending huge chunks of the offseason preparing for one particular foe. They circle the calendar and scheme up wild plays to pull one particular upset. Prior to that game, they keep things simple, not showing their hand.

It's a fact BSU coach Chris Petersen acknowledged.

"Everybody wanted to talk about the Oregon game for this season," Petersen

DENVER — Chase Utley ducked near second base. The rest of the Philadelphia Phillies never flinched.

Ryan Howard hit a two-run double with two outs in the ninth inning and scored on Jayson Werth's single as Philadelphia rallied past the Colorado Rockies 5-4 in Game 4 Monday night to reach the NL championship series.

Brad Lidge, bouncing back from a rugged regular season, earned his second consecutive save by again retiring cleanup batter Troy Tulowitzki with runners on second and first for the final out.

Tulowitzki, who flied out to conclude Game 3, struck out this time and the Phillies celebrated on the infield at chilly Coors Field before retreating to the clubhouse to spray champagne.

Next, the World Series champions play Thursday night against Los Angeles at Dodger Stadium in an NLCS rematch from last season. This marked the fourth straight year that none of baseball's first-round series went to a winner-take-all Game 5.

"These couple of games have been kind of character builders," Howard said.

Jerome shreds Burley to clinch state berth

By David Bashore
Times-News writer

JEROME — The opening 19 minutes of Monday's Great Basin Conference boys soccer semifinal between Jerome and Burley suggested the teams might combine for just one goal in the match.

That idea got shot to bits in the next five.

Gabriel Pulido headed home a goal from Sergio Martinez's free kick, opening the floodgates as Jerome scored four times in five minutes to seize control in what ended a 5-0 hammering, sending the Tigers to the GBC title game and clinching them a trip to next weekend's Class 4A state tournament.

"When we score it really spreads the field out for us," said Jerome head coach Robert Garcia. "It gives our team a lift."

Pulido's header came in the 20th minute, while Saul Diaz hammered in a rebound two minutes later. Freshman striker Alejandro Vidaca, standing in for the suspended Fermin Martinez, scored twice in two minutes to complete the goal explosion.

Pulido would score his second of the match midway through the second half, but it was the first-half burst that settled matters, sending Burley's spirits crashing while the Tigers (18-1-0) raced off into the distance.

"Everyone was just waiting for the ball to come to them so I went up and got it," Pulido said of his first tally to open the scoring. "As soon as we got that goal, (Burley) let down a little bit and we rose up."

Such was the nature of Burley's capitulation, Bobcats coach Wes Nyblade called his seniors over for a heart-to-heart after the players themselves had a brief post-match meeting on the field.

Their soul searching will have to come a conclusion in short order, as Burley (9-5-4) will face the winner of today's elimination game between Wood River and Canyon Ridge on Wednesday.

The winner of that match will visit Jerome on Thursday for the championship. Jerome needs to win just once while whoever the Tigers face in the title round will need to beat them twice.

For Jerome, it's a matter of sitting back to see who the Tigers get. And they won't be satisfied just having made it to state at the earliest opportunity.

"This was the first goal for us," Pulido said of clinching a trip to the tournament. "But we've got more to do. Now we're looking to make sure we get the top seed."

Ricardo Lopez scored one goal and assisted on Luis Muniz' second-half goal.

"Both teams came out really hard," Riverhawks coach Brian Gillenwater said. "Our defenders had an amazing game, and the midfield controlled the ball as best they could."

Canyon Ridge (5-10-4) will meet Wood River at 4:30 p.m., today in Hailey. The winner of this match will face Jerome for the conference championship on Thursday.

Williams lifts Bruin VB to new heights

Sink or swim.

It was that simple for Twin Falls High School volleyball player Cheltzie Williams in 2007. She was a freshman, about to enter a program that had fallen on hard times, and a new coach had come to change the culture of Bruin volleyball.

Williams had the ability, and in B.J. Price's program, if a player skips ahead to varsity that player had better be ready to do more than fill one of those Columbia blue, padded folding chairs courtside in Baun Gymnasium.

Now a junior, Williams is the centerpiece of it all, a volleyball enthusiast who has put so much time in this fall that she can't recall the last movie she saw at a theater.

"It's pretty much volleyball all year round," she said. "I'm always going, but it's fun."

This season she has recorded an .819 serving percentage, a .418 kill percentage, a .328 hitting percentage, 45 blocks and 30 aces (through Oct. 8) on a team sitting atop the Great Basin Conference standings.

A key part of the Bruins' winning formula is the chemistry, the on and off-court friendship that binds Williams to her teammates.

"We just have a really good connection," said setter Allie Johnson, who along with Ariel Medina,

Wildcat helps Dolphins beat Jets 31-27

By Steven Wine
Associated Press writer

MIAMI — With 10 seconds left and the game on the line, the Miami Dolphins went with the wildcat.

It worked again.

Running back Ronnie Brown took the snap and scored on a 2-yard keeper up the middle on third down, and Miami came from behind three times in the fourth quarter to beat the New York Jets 31-27 on Monday night.

Newcomer Braylon Edwards gave the Jets a big boost, and two fake punts fooled the Dolphins. But they gained 110 yards with the wildcat, which was instrumental in three touchdown drives, including the last one.

Starting from their own 30-yard line with 5:05 left and trailing 27-24, Miami drove 70 yards in 13 plays for the winning score. The march included four wildcat plays for 25 yards, and Brown fell into the end zone on the last with 6 seconds to go.

The Dolphins (2-3) climbed back into the AFC East race after losing their first three games. The Jets (3-2) fell into a tie with New England for first place and the Phillies responded with a three-run rally of their own against closer Huston Street.

Street was 35 of 37 on save chances this season, but took the loss in the ninth in Game 3 when he allowed Howard's sacrifice fly to break a 5-all tie. He came in again to face the Phillies, and trouble ensued.

Jimmy Rollins singled with one out and Utley drew a two-out walk on a full count. Howard tied it with two strikes when he doubled up against the right-field wall and Werth followed with a soft single to right-center.

"We were a strike away from making a trip to Philadelphia," lamented Rockies manager Jim Tracy, who went 74-42 after taking over from Clint Hurdle on May 29.

The Phillies, the NL's best road team, swept both games at Coors Field, where the wild-card Rockies went 44-17 under Tracy's tutelage.

The Rockies looked as if they were going to send the series back to Philadelphia when Yorvit Torrealba's two-run double broke a 2-all tie in the eighth. That came after Fowler scored the tying run on pinch-hitter Jason Giambi's two-out single.

Fowler hurdled Utley, who stepped into the basepath to field Todd Helton's slow grounder, and his quick flip to second base was wide right and mishandled for an error by Rollins.

That put two on for Tulowitzki, and Ryan Madson relieved starter Cliff Lee in a double-switch that also brought in left fielder Ben Francisco to replace Raul Ibanez.

Dolphins

have lost two straight.

The lead changed hands five times in the fourth quarter as the game became a shootout reminiscent of the Dolphins' Dan Marino days. Filling that role just fine was Chad Henne.

In only his second NFL start, Henne completed 20 of 26 for 241 yards and two touchdowns. He threw deep to Ted Ginn Jr. for a 53-yard score to give Miami a 24-20 lead with 10:10 left.

The Jets kept answering with Edwards, acquired in a trade with Cleveland a week ago. He caught one scoring pass and set up New York's other two touchdowns. The Jets also fooled Miami with fake punts twice to set up a TD and a field goal.

The Dolphins' trickery came via the wildcat, which they ran 16 times. On the game's opening drive, Miami threw out of the wildcat for the first time this season, and Brown connected with tight end Anthony Fasano for a 21-yard gain. Ricky Williams praised Williams' mechanics, court vision and intelligent play.

"Chelzie really knows where to place the ball," Medina said.

Price described her as "the perfect athlete to fit into our system," based around an intense, up-tempo game. He noted the way she has matured as a leader, knowing when it's time to put the team on her back or simply be a steady presence on the court.

"Her athleticism is showing more," Price said. "She's scary. I wouldn't want to play against her. She's a scary kid because she can go pin to pin and still beat three told reporters last week. "But there were a few games, this one certainly being one of them, that we said, 'This will be a tough challenge: us going to their place, mid-week, playing against a heck of a team.'" Come Wednesday night, expect Tulsa to unleash a minimum of 12 gadget plays, featuring misdirection, reverses, double reverses, triple reverses

It paid an immediate dividend when Francisco raced in and made a diving catch of Tulowitzki's bloop to left for the second out. But Francisco couldn't get to Giambi's single fast enough to keep Fowler from scoring the tying run from second base.

Then, Torrealba sent a two-run double to the gap in right-center for a 4-2 Rockies lead.

The Phillies led the National League in homers for the second straight season with a franchise-record 224 but they had only gone deep twice in this series before Shane Victorino sent a 99 mph fastball from Ubaldo Jimenez into the Rockies' bullpen in the first. Werth sent an 85 mph changeup into the Phillies' bullpen next door in the sixth for a 2-0 lead.

Those were the only runs Jimenez allowed in seven otherwise spectacular innings that included seven strikeouts and six hits. He left with the Rockies trailing 2-1 through seven innings after throwing 126 pitches, one shy of his career high.

Lee, who gave up six hits in his complete game win in the series opener, allowed three runs on five hits in 7 1-3 innings, and only one of the runs was earned. Lee repeatedly worked out of jams until the eighth.

The Rockies had hoped to rely on their resilience that saw them overcome a 18-28 start under Hurdle to finish with a franchise-best record of 92-70. They sent right-hander Aaron Cook ahead to Philadelphia on Monday morning to rest up for a Game 5, but he'll fly home instead.

then ran for 18 yards from the wildcat, and Brown scored on a 1-yard plunge on third down to cap a 7½-minute drive.

The Dolphins used the wildcat five times in a touchdown drive that consumed nearly 9 minutes of the second half. They relied on ball control for much of the game but also showed a newfound ability to strike quickly.

Ginn beat Darrelle Revis and two other Jets deep, catching Henne's long pass just before crossing the goal line. It was a rare long gain into the Dolphins, who came into the game with only two completions of 20 yards or more to wide receivers.

"Teddy ran a great route and they gave us the coverage we wanted," Henne said.

Williams set up a field goal when he gained 59 yards on a reception, with all the yards coming after the catch. He finished with 68 yards rushing on 11 carries, and Brown ran for 74 yards in 21 attempts.

people. In blocking, she can get everywhere."

Three seasons of heightened expectations have yielded the Bruins a thus-far perfect record in the Great Basin Conference and their best shot at a district championship. If Twin Falls can maintain its winning ways, it can claim one of the two District IV seeds to the Class 4A state tournament, held in Post Falls later this month.

"I think we have a good chance of going," Williams said. "We all really want to go."

Angels/Yankees: A capsule look at the AL championship series

By The Associated Press

A look at the best-of-seven American League championship series between the Los Angeles Angels and New York Yankees:

MATCHUPS

The Yankees (103-59) and Angels (97-65) finished the regular season with the top two records in the major leagues. New York swept Minnesota 3-0 in the first round of the playoffs and Los Angeles did the same to Boston, dispatching a long-time October nemesis. ... With their aggressive play on the bases, the Angels have given the Yankees trouble for years, going 73-63 against them since 1996, when Jeter took over at shortstop and New York began a run of four World Series titles in five years. That makes Los Angeles the only AL club to have a winning record against the Yankees during that span, according to STATS LLC. The Angels also eliminated the Yankees from the post-season twice, winning division series matchups in 2002 and 2005. ... Teixeira left the Angels as a free agent last off-season for a $180 million, eight-year contract with the Yankees. ... New York led the majors with 915 runs and tied for third in the AL with a 4.26 ERA, lowest among the league's playoff teams. ... Pettitte is 15-9 with a 3.89 ERA in 36 postseason starts, Angels: The Angels captured their third straight AL West title and sixth playoff berth in eight years with 97 victories, three off last season's major league-best pace. ... Despite clinching during the final week of the season, they finished 10 games ahead of second-place Texas, the majors' biggest margin in a division. ... Los Angeles led the majors with a .285 batting average and finished second to the Yankees in runs with a club-record 883. ... The Angels became the first team in major league history with 11 hitters who had at least 50 RBIs. ... Los Angeles also set team records for RBIs (841) and hits (1,604) with a starting lineup that featured nine .300 hitters in mid-August. ... The Angels had four 20-tying him with John Smoltz for the most postseason wins in major league history. ... Light-hitting backup Jose Molina caught Burnett in the first round, and Posada came off the bench later in the game. During the season, there were rumblings that Burnett didn't like throwing to Posada, a longtime Yankees star. The right-hander went 5-5 with a 4.96 ERA and .270 opponents batting average in 16 starts with Posada behind the plate. Burnett was 5-2 with a 3.28 ERA and .221 opponents batting average in 11 starts with Molina catching, according to STATS. ... Damon did not homer in his final 95 at-bats from Aug. 30 on and went 1 for 12 with a single and 4 strikeouts in the first round. Swisher also was 1 for 12, but Jeter and Posada were productive at the plate.
