Canyonside Christian School holds 'wax museum' literacy event

By Damon Hunzeker
Times-News writer

Even Helen Keller spoke at Canyonside Christian School's third annual Wax Museum Thursday morning.

The event included no wax, but 108 students, from preschool to fifth grade, dressed up as characters from books who remained in still positions for five minutes at a time. When they were allowed to move, the students answered questions, some while remaining in character, about the books for visiting parents and teachers.

The event featured characters in everything from "The Wonderful Wizard of Oz" to "Be a Perfect Person in Just Three Days." Students were prohibited from choosing books "that depict evil, scary, or cartoon characters," the invitation reads.

Fourth-grader Annabelle Day, dressed as Helen Keller while sitting at a desk reading Braille, spoke impressively about the title character from "The Story of Helen Keller."

"I really thought it was a great book, and I thought it was wonderful that Anne Sullivan came to help Helen Keller," Day said.

Some of the presentations were ornate — including written reports, acted scenes, detailed backgrounds, and, in the case of one student, a real dog that fully immersed herself in the male role of Old Yeller.

"Come on, Yeller," fifth-grader Jed Hilt said while sitting in a mock cornfield, holding a toy rifle, as he and his old, yellow dog — Lady — pretended to protect the field from hungry raccoons.

"I just watched the movie a lot and read the book a lot," Hilt said. He refrained from pretending to shoot Old Yeller, and Lady didn't pretend to have rabies, but Hilt acknowledged that the book is quite sad.

His mom, Monica Hilt, said the project has provided her son with a better understanding of the character Travis.

"He said he can't imagine having to sleep in a field watching out for raccoons, so it's made

Pleasant Valley residents reject subdivision proposal

By Nate Poppino
Times-News writer

KIMBERLY — To the people who live around the Pleasant Valley Golf Course, Carl Feldhusen just can't be trusted.

And they'll fight any attempt by him to build a new subdivision on what was once the golf course's back nine holes, they said Wednesday night at a neighborhood meeting.

Scott Allen, a senior planner with The Land Group, and two Realtors from Magic Valley Realty held the meeting at Kimberly Elementary School to hear what existing residents support doing with the land. The residents wasted no time making their feelings clear, asking just minutes into the presentation why Feldhusen didn't bother to attend.

Their gripes with the developer go back years. People first moved in around the course in about 1996, for a short time enjoying the full 18 holes. But the course soon fell into disrepair and the back nine holes are now

No Social Security hike, could boost new payments

By Stephen Ohlmacher
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — Social Security recipients won't get a cost-of-living increase next year for the first time in more than a third of a century, and that could boost President Obama's plan to send seniors another round of $250 payments before the congressional elections.

Democratic leaders in Congress have signed onto the plan, greatly improving its chances, even as some budget hawks say the payments are unwarranted and could add to the federal budget deficit. Republican leaders said they, too, favor the payments but don't want to increase the deficit to pay for them.

More than 50 million Social Security recipients will see no increase in their monthly payments next year, the government said Thursday, the first year without an increase since automatic adjustments were adopted in 1975.

Blame it on falling consumer prices. By law, cost-of-living adjustments are pegged to inflation, which is

Burley officials broke open meeting law

Violation was made in late 2008

By Laurie Welch
Times-News writer

BURLEY — An Idaho Attorney General's investigation has ruled Burley city officials violated state open meeting laws during a Dec. 16, 2008, recreation committee meeting.

The meeting was convened to discuss details of a golf pro contract so a recommendation could be submitted to the City Council.

In a letter dated Oct. 9, addressed to Cassia County Prosecutor Al Barrus, Steven Olsen, chief of civil litigation for the attorney general's office said that their investigations found that elected officials who participated in the meeting, Mayor Jon Anderson, Councilmen Jay Lenkersdorfer, Vaughn Egan and Dennis Dexter, broke the law because the public was not given notice of the meeting in the manner required by law.

"In reviewing the facts of this case, it appears that some confusion exists within the city regarding the requirements of the Open Meeting Law," the letter says. "We strongly suggest that Burley city officials receive training on changes to that law to insure ongoing compliance with the Open Meeting Law. The Attorney General's office would be willing to provide that training if requested by the city."

Attorney general's office spokesman Bob Cooper said because the violation occurred before last July's revision of the law the officials will not be penalized.

Anderson originally lodged the complaint of the violation with city attorney

Results that really add up: Idaho students excel in mathematics

By Damon Hunzeker
Times-News writer

If you hated math class, you may be glad to know that at least most of your kids don't need to use calculators or count with their toes.

The Idaho Department of Education released the findings of the National Assessment of Educational Progress (NAEP), which show that 78 percent of Idaho eighth-grade students scored at or above their grade level this year, compared to 75 percent in 2007.

NAEP has established minimum scores on the test for each grade level. The current was a random sample of Idaho fourth- and eighth-grade students in mathematics.

For eighth grade, a score of 282 is considered grade level. The fourth-grade standard is 214.

The average score for Idaho eighth-graders was 287. The national average was 282.

The fourth-grade scores remained about the same over the past two years — roughly 85 percent performing at or above grade level, but with an average score of 241, they still exceeded the national average, which was 239 for the grade level.

According to a press release by the state education department, Idaho was choked with weeds and abandoned because it wasn't feasible for Feldhusen to keep them open, Realtor Carlette Macklin said.

Macklin said before Wednesday's meeting that a subdivision was only one of several options for the land. But the only handouts passed out Wednesday evening were of a preliminary design for a 36-lot, 68-acre subdivision. Allen told residents they had three options on the table: more houses, leaving the area as green space or bringing back the golf course.

The residents overwhelming demanded the golf-course back, favoring the open space as a backup option. But Allen made it clear right away that he didn't actually see it as an option, arguing that 40 to 50 percent of golf courses nationwide are probably bankrupt in the current economy.

"It's not coming back," he said.

Residents let loose a litany of complaints throughout the evening. Feldhusen, they said, dug sprinkler systems out of 50-foot easements and didn't fill in the holes; he had to be forced to pave several roads; he roto-tilled the golf course after promising to save it. Though they all wanted the course back, none wanted to have to maintain it or any open space — that, they said, was Feldhusen's responsibility.

Clint Parks, acting president of Pleasant Valley's homeowners' association, spoke up the most, arguing the course would have survived if Feldhusen had cared for it. He showed Allen a petition he later said has signatures from three-fourths of the area's homeowners opposing any more houses, as well as a letter from Twin Falls County Planning and Zoning Director Bill Crafton arguing that a zoning change is not in the county's best interest.

On top of his issues with Feldhusen, Parks argued the land — listed through Magic Valley Realty — is overpriced.

"It'll never sell at $425,000," Parks said.

The Realtors spoke up late in the meeting, asking if current residents would be interested in buying up additional land near their homes and noting the land hadn't actually been appraised yet. Though the people who seemed interested weren't willing to pay the current asking price, the agents seemed happy with what they heard.

"To me, that is wonderful news," Magic Valley Realty co-owner Kathleen Hale said.

one of 14 states with students whose eighth-grade math scores increased from 2007 to 2009.

In 2007, students in 12 states scored above Idaho eighth-graders, compared to eight states in 2009, according to the NAEP study.

NAEP did not break the current study down beyond issuing cumulative results from each state.

"We don't have school-level (or district-level) data," Melissa McGrath, the education department spokeswoman, said. "But we're seeing increases on national and state assessments ... Our goal is to raise student achievement in all grades."

Wiley Dobbs, superintendent of the Twin Falls School District, attributed much of the improvement to the Idaho Math Initiative — a state program to help teachers focus less on regurgitation and more on relevant, hands-on education — and how it has benefited grade-school teachers.

"We've had some specialized professional development at the elementary level over the last few years. Just because the results are showing up in the eighth grade, it starts in elementary school," he said. "I'm mostly excited about the Idaho Math Initiative that we have coming down the pike. It's modeled on the reading initiative from the state 10 years ago, and we saw significant improvement after that ... We expect it to push the state even higher in math."

The initiative, Dobbs said, will be phased in over the next three years. In addition to training for teachers, it will provide periodic assessments of students and help to identify areas in which individual students are deficient and establish methods of improvement.

Attempts to reach Cassia County District Superintendent Gaylen Smyer, and Minidoka County Superintendent Scott Rogers were unsuccessful.

The initiative began at the statewide level two years ago. McGrath said Twin Falls teachers haven't had the opportunity to take all of the development courses yet but will eventually.

Payments

negative this year because of lower energy costs. Social Security payments do not go down, even when prices drop.

Social Security recipients at a senior center in Pembroke Pines, Fla., a suburb of Fort Lauderdale, took it in stride that come January they won't see an increase in their benefits.

"At my age, I've got a nice bedroom, I have clothes, I have anything I want, I got a walker, what else do I need?" said Marie Arrasate, 83, who ran a restaurant and candy shop with her husband in Washingtonville, N.Y., and now lives with her daughter in Pembroke Pines.

"You have to make do with whatever you get. What are you gonna do? You can't do nothing about it," said Ed Nunez, 69, a retired truck driver from Miami.

The White House said

the stimulus payments would cost $13 billion, though a congressional estimate put the cost at $14 billion. Obama didn't say how the payments should be financed, leaving that up to Congress. The president is open to borrowing the money, increasing the federal deficit, just as Congress did with the first round of stimulus payments.

Government analysts have been forecasting for months that there would be no increase next year in monthly Social Security payments because of falling consumer prices. In anticipation of Thursday's announcement, Obama said Wednesday he supported $250 payments to about 57 million senior citizens, veterans, retired railroad workers and people with disabilities.

Seniors groups applauded the proposal, saying the recession has reduced home values and diminished retirement funds. Recipients would be limited to one payment, even if they qualified in more than one category.

"Without relief, millions of older Americans will be unable to afford skyrocketing health care and prescription drug costs, as well as other basic necessities," said Tom Nelson, chief operating officer for AARP.

The payments would match the ones issued to seniors earlier this year as part of the government's economic recovery package. They would be equal to about a 2 percent increase for the average Social Security recipient.

Social Security has been the backbone of the nation's safety net for older Americans since it was enacted in the 1930s. Together with Medicare, the government health insurance program for the elderly, it helps keep millions of seniors out of poverty.

The poverty rate for U.S. residents 65 and older is below the rates for other age groups and has been for much of the past two decades. In 2008, the rate for seniors was 9.7 percent, according to the Census Bureau. That same year it was 11.7 percent for 18-to-64-year-olds and 19 percent for minors.

The average monthly Social Security payment for all recipients is $1,094.

Some Social Security experts say recipients shouldn't get a raise or an extra payment next year because their purchasing power has already increased with falling consumer prices.

They note that Social Security payments increased by 5.8 percent this year, the biggest rise since 1982, largely because of a spike in energy prices in 2008.

Meeting

Randy Stone, against Lenkersdorfer, who Anderson said did not sit on the recreation committee. The complaint was forwarded to Barrus who, according to Cooper, had a conflict of interest and passed it along to the attorney general's office.

Most often, Cooper said, public meeting complaints are dealt with through city or county prosecutors or attorneys and never reach the attorney general's office.

Anderson had also alleged Lenkersdorfer was conducting illegal city business in his personal business office and removed him from all council committee assignments.

"I'm relieved it's behind us," Anderson said. "There was a tremendous difference between our legal counsel's advice and the attorney general's office about what is required for an open meeting."

Anderson recalled the events leading up to the violation, which began when Lenkersdorfer attended a recreation-committee meeting in place of Councilman Gordy Hansen.

"I told him (Lenkersdorfer) that he's not on the committee. Vaughn Egan said Dennis Dexter approved it. He knew Gordy Hansen wouldn't be there, so he invited Jay," Anderson said. "Mr. Lenkersdorfer said, 'Mr. Mayor, we can either meet here (City Hall) or in my office (at a weekly newspaper he publishes). I said, 'I understand you've been meeting in your office quite a lot. We might as well meet here, so I can attend.'"

Lenkersdorfer could not be reached for comment Thursday.

"It hasn't been talked about yet by the City Council and until they do I'm not authorized to discuss that decision," said Burley Councilman Dennis Dexter.

During an earlier investigation the attorney general's office found the council did not "knowingly" violate the open meeting law after a complaint lodged in September 2008 by Burley resident John Walsh. Walsh alleged the council illegally awarded a bid for a sewer line to Walton Construction during a May 19 council meeting.

Cooper said the open meeting law was revised in part because no action could be taken unless the official knowingly violated the law.

"It was too difficult to satisfy that proof," Cooper said.

Now, if elected officials violate the open meeting law at all they face a $50 maximum fine. If they violate it knowingly there is a maximum $500 penalty, Cooper said.

But, tracking the violations, he said, is still a duty basically left up to local newspapers.

"The attorney general's office is not a clearinghouse for open meeting law violations," Cooper said.

When Gooding fell in love with Chautauqua

It was the PBS of the 1920s, a three- to seven-day moveable feast of culture and information.

America was mad for Chautauqua, and large enthusiastic crowds regularly gathered in tents in Twin Falls, Jerome and other Magic and Wood River Valley towns. But no place loved Chautauqua like Gooding.

Typical was a 1925 production of Gilbert and Sullivan's operetta "The Mikado." It fetched up in Gooding on Aug. 10, the 128th stop on a 154-city tour of the West.

"In the 1920s, people from all over southern Idaho flocked to Gooding for the popular Chautauqua movement, which brought a series of educational, religious, cultural, and entertainment events to a festive, temporary tent site," wrote Deb Gelet in Sun Valley Magazine.

Why Gooding, especially? It was a college town back then, but also isolated and quintessentially middle America. In the years after World War I, folks were thirsty for a view of the wider world.

Teddy Roosevelt thought Chautauqua was, well, bully. Novelist Sinclair Lewis did not.

"Chautauqua is nothing but wind and chaff and the laughter of yokels," wrote the author of "Main Street." Maybe, but without it towns like Gooding would never have seen classic plays and Broadway hits and heard a variety of music ranging from Metropolitan Opera stars to glee clubs to bell ringers. Many folks saw their first movies in the Chautauqua. And it stimulated dialogue on the big political issues of the day: Prohibition, economic inequality, women's rights.

Chautauqua was a Methodist's minister's idea, begun on the shores of Lake Chautauqua in western New York in 1874 as a program to train Sunday school teachers. But this summer camp for families promising

Flu absences in Dietrich schools won't lead to closure

By John Plestina
Times-News writer

DIETRICH — With absences of students with flu-like symptoms averaging between 7 and 9 percent of the enrollment, Superintendent Neal Hollingshead told school trustees Tuesday there is no imminent risk of a school closure in Dietrich.

Schools in Oakley and Murtaugh have closed for the duration of this week because of flu-like illnesses.

"We had some going home on Monday so if we continued on the same trend we'd probably be closed," Hollingshead said.

That trend has slowed. "So far we have only 15 to 20 absent," he said of the current daily averages. "Normally it's only five or six, so were still holding in there."

Dietrich's K-12 enrollment is 240 students.

The flu-like illnesses are not specifically diagnosed and few flu sufferers are tested for the H1N1 virus, so it is unknown whether Dietrich students are suffering from the swine flu or seasonal flu.

"We haven't had any who were diagnosed with H1N1," Hollingshead said.

Hollingshead also reported to trustees that an auditor's report came back to the district with optimistic results.

"We made a lot of progress. We have a better fund balance. We're a little more comfortable there," he said.

"education and uplift" quickly spread, and Chautauqua assemblies took place all across America by the end of the 19th century.

Lectures were the heart and soul of Chautauqua, with speakers bringing new, challenging and often controversial ideas to small-town America.

William Jennings Bryan, three-time Democratic nominee for president, was the biggest Chautauqua attraction of them all, a stem-winding orator who preached populism, temperance and a muscular Christianity.

At Chautauquas, bands played, choirs sang, elocutionists spoke. It was a Jazz Age hootenanny.

The coming of small-town movie houses weakened Chautauqua and radio finally killed it. But Gooding, and thousands of towns like it, were much the better for knowing Chautauqua.

Five victims identified from Wednesday crash in Blaine Co.

T.F. woman air ambulated to Boise

By Ariel Hansen
Times-News writer

HAILEY — Sheriff's deputies released information Thursday about the events and victims of a Wednesday crash that hospitalized five people.

The crash occurred at the intersection of Idaho Highway 75 and Ohio Gulch Road a few minutes before noon.

According to a Blaine County Sheriff's Office report, Lucila Moya, 35, of Bellevue, was at the stop sign at Ohio Gulch Road, facing west and waiting to turn south in a 2005 Ford Explorer. Her passengers were Norma Sandoval, 38, Norma Aguayo, 34, and Enriqueta Salamanca, 33, all of Hailey.

A semi-truck and trailer traveling north on Highway 75 was in the turn lane to turn east onto Ohio Gulch when Moya pulled onto the highway, according to the report.

A 1999 Plymouth Neon driven by Wanda Glasmann, 83, of Twin Falls, was reportedly hidden from Moya's view by the truck. As Moya began to turn south, she reportedly saw Glasmann's vehicle, and drove straight west toward Starweather Drive in an attempt to avoid a crash. Glasmann reportedly turned left, also in an attempt to avoid the crash, but the Neon struck the Explorer just behind its front wheel, flipping the Explorer onto its roof.

All four occupants of the Explorer were taken to St. Luke's Wood River Medical Center, where they were treated and released Wednesday.

Glasmann, suffering from leg, hand and internal injuries, had to be extricated from her car by rescue personnel. She was later taken by air ambulance to Saint Alphonsus Regional Medical Center in Boise, where she was listed in serious condition Thursday afternoon.

All the victims were reportedly wearing seatbelts. The crash remains under investigation, and witnesses are being asked to contact Blaine County Sheriff's Det. Mark Dalton at 788-5515.

Health District to vaccinate students

The South Central Public Health District will begin vaccinating area students today against swine flu, also known as H1N1.

According to a health district news release, the first shipment of the vaccine arrived in south-central Idaho last week. Children need to be accompanied by a parent or guardian. Two forms of the vaccine will be available — a nasal spray and an injection.

Schools will notify parents about where and when the free vaccinations will be available.

Absentee rates in some southern Idaho schools have doubled or tripled normal rates for this time of year, the health district said. Oakley and Murtaugh school districts closed this week because of absences, reaching 43 percent in Murtaugh.

The illness most often affects younger people, and the district provided some warning signs of swine flu: fever, sore throat, cough, sneezing, headaches, muscle aches, chills and fatigue.

The district recommends immediate medical attention for children with any of the following symptoms, including trouble breathing, blue skin, dehydration, excessive irritability, fever with a rash, and "not waking up."

Idaho is one of 37 states reporting widespread influenza activity, and four people in the state have died from swine flu since Sept. 1.

The health district recommends staying home if you're sick, washing your hands frequently, coughing and sneezing in your sleeve, and staying at least six feet away from anyone who's sick.

Fomichev perjury trial under way

The perjury trial of Amanda Fomichev is slated to finish today in Twin Falls 5th District Court.

Fomichev — a former car wash attendant who lost her leg four years ago in an accident at Mr. Wash in Twin Falls, is accused of giving police a false alibi for her boyfriend. The last day of her trial is slated for today.

The boyfriend, Patrick Morrissey, was accused of burning a vehicle for car insurance money and was convicted in August 2008 of arson and conspiracy to commit arson.

She allegedly told authorities that Morrissey was at the hospital with her and others at the time of the alleged crimes.

Morrissey confessed to the arson and told police that Fomichev, 24, knew about it, according to testimony Thursday in the trial.

A senior deputy prosecutor in Twin Falls, Jill Sweesy, put Morrissey behind bars. She referred to Fomichev Thursday from the stand as "an accomplished liar."

Meanwhile, Fomichev's lawsuit against local lawyer William Hollifield, of the Hollifield Law Office in Twin Falls, is set for court on Nov. 16. Fomichev claims Hollifield didn't protect the settlement she got from a lawsuit stemming the car wash leg injury.

Police nab T.F. man in internet sex sting

Twin Falls police officers posing online as an underage girl have arrested a man for allegedly trying to meet up with her for sex, according to court records.

Jeremy Kiesig, 33, was arraigned Thursday in Twin Falls on 24 counts of possession of sexually exploitative material and one count of enticing children over the Internet. He did not return a call for comment, and faces a preliminary hearing on Oct. 23.

Police assert Kiesig on June 19 used an Internet chat room to communicate online with what he thought was a 14-year-old girl.

"Kiesig was under the belief that he was going to meet with a 14-year-old girl, drink rum and have sex," according to a police affidavit.

Kiesig allegedly told police it wasn't his first time in a chat room, court records show.

"He has 'chatted' with numerous females on this very same computer with girls under the age of 18," police said.

Ariz. county to sick workers: Stay home or risk firing

PHOENIX (AP) — Employees of an Arizona county who have flu symptoms or a temperature of at least 100.4 degrees must stay home from work or risk being disciplined or fired under a new policy, officials said Thursday.

The requirement is aimed at lessening the spread of swine or seasonal flu illnesses among the county's nearly 7,000 employees and among people who visit government buildings, Pima County Board of Supervisors chairman Richard Elias said.

Employees with flu symptoms would be required to stay home until at least 24 hours after the fever ends. A sick employee who ignores a manager's order to go home faces disciplinary action or firing.

"It seems like we are being a bit draconian," Elias said. "But in consideration of our employees and their families and people who come in to do business in county buildings, we want people to feel free to call in sick."

Pima County, Arizona's second largest county, has a population of 1 million and includes Tucson.

Jacqueline Byers, director of research for the National Association of Counties, said she hasn't heard of other counties approving such a policy, though some K-12 schools and colleges are taking similar steps.

Centers for Disease Control and Prevention spokesman Christopher Cox said any concerted effort to make sure people stay at home when they're sick is beneficial to the workplace.

Pima County supervisors on Tuesday unanimously approved the new policy, which states that employees who are ill must notify their bosses and allows managers to send employees who have flu symptoms back home.

Four candidates vie for two Hagerman seats

By Kimberly Williams-Brackett
Times-News correspondent

HAGERMAN — The Nov. 3 election will be a Hagerman horse race, as four candidates run for two City Council seats.

Incumbents Carl H. Jeffries and Michael Winther face newcomers Krista Merrill and Cary Shaffer.

Jeffries has served on the council for 14 months after replacing former Councilman Craig Mills.

Jeffries was a claims manager for the Automobile Club Insurance of Southern California for 35 years before retiring.

He said after graduating high school he took business courses at several city colleges and served in the Army for three years. Jeffries said he has previous public service, including a stint with the Hagerman Planning and Zoning Commission, and three years of service with the Hagerman Translator District.

As a Hagerman resident of nearly 10 years, Jeffries said he wants to serve on the are run. The City Council is always running around and putting out fires instead of preventing fires, and they need long-term planning."

Shaffer pleaded guilty to a reduced charge of disturbing the peace on April 23, stemming from a Jan. 12 incident in which he was charged with battery. He said a semi was parked on his property, and he jumped in to move the vehicle.

"I should have called the police first, but decided to deal with it myself," he said.

The city of Hagerman filed a civil suit against Shaffer on Feb. 27, 1998, over a dispute of alley ownership; however, it was settled out of court. City Attorney Phillip A. Brown said Shaffer either received an additional water hook-up or a larger one, but he couldn't verify the actual settlement.

Winther has served on the council for two non-consecutive terms. He is currently the acting mayor since Jake Rice Jr. resigned on Oct. 1.

Winther is a parts and purchasing manager for Magic Valley Growers, and also does equipment sales. He said he took college courses in accounting and history in California.

Winther said he served in the Army for three years and also served with the Hagerman Fire District for five.

As a Hagerman resident of 23 years, Winther wants to serve on the council because "I want to be a part of the city and help it develop. We need to get it infrastructure."

City Clerk and Treasurer Peggy Pedrow said city council members are paid $125 monthly, which includes benefits from Public Employee Retirement System of Idaho.

The city election will be held from noon to 8 p.m. Nov. 3, at the Hagerman City Hall.

Editor's note: Hagerman City Council candidate Michael Winther is the uncle of Kimberly Williams-Brackett, who can be reached at gusandkim@rtci.net.

Idaho man gets 6 years in prison in lumber beating

POCATELLO (AP) — An eastern Idaho man who beat his father-in-law to death with a two-by-four has been ordered to spend at least six years in prison for the attack.

Reuben Jensen, 24, of Pocatello, was sentenced in 6th District Court Wednesday on one count of voluntary manslaughter in the death of Bryan Linford, 44.

Jensen was arrested June 2 shortly after the encounter in which police said Jensen hit Linford over the head with the lumber. Linford died from injuries the next day in a Utah hospital. Jensen was initially charged with second-degree murder, but pleaded guilty to the reduced charge in August.

During the sentencing hearing, Jensen told the judge, family and relatives he is struggling to deal with the sorrow and remorse.

"I just want to say I've experienced more sorrow than I can even describe," Jensen said. "It weighs on my soul. It feels like a million tons."

But he also described how his mindset and emotions changed the day of the attack after watching his father-in-law bully Jensen's pregnant wife, Alyssa Linford Jensen, again.

Reuben Jensen said he never intended to cause serious harm to Linford, a man he felt powerless against.

"Something inside of me said, 'Stand up for your wife.' Something inside of me said, 'Now's your chance,'" he said. "I thought it would be the perfect solution. Not to hurt him, but to intimidate him."

Bannock County Chief Deputy Prosecutor Vic Pearson recommended a prison term of at least seven years, while defense attorney Randy Schulthies claimed Jensen's case was unique and asked for a two-year prison term. Schulthies said Jensen had no previous record of criminal violence and posed no risk to the community.

EDITORIAL

The grocery tax credit can wait another year

In the darkest days of the recession last spring, when everybody was looking for money to plug gaping holes in state government revenue, Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter steadfastly refused to consider delaying the extension of the state's new grocery tax credit.

But in a visit with the Times-News editorial board Wednesday he sure sounded like he'd be amenable to the idea — if lawmakers suggest it.

"I'm not going to get out in front of the Legislature on that one," he said.

Good. That's a sensible way to capture a significant percentage of $52 million in state holdbacks — midyear budget cuts — the state needs to get through the current fiscal year.

Under the new grocery tax credit plan passed in 2008, members of a family of four earning less than $25,000 will get $50 each, while members of families earning more each get $30.

In this fiscal year that amounts to about $22 million.

It's not that Idaho's poorest residents couldn't use the money. But balance that against the consequences of cutting public schools or higher education funding further, or putting more felons on the street.

Delaying the credit last session had the support of some members of the budget-writing Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee, including its co-chairs, Sen. Dean Cameron, R-Rupert, and Maxine Bell, R-Jerome, although others on JFAC opposed it.

But back then, budget-writers had more options — and federal stimulus dollars to ease the pain. Most of that money has been spent.

There's a provision in the law that allows the governor to suspend the grocery tax credit by executive order for economic reasons, or the Legislature should make the change.

It should do so in January.

Our view: What's more important: Giving the poorest Idaho families a modest grocery tax credit, or keeping the lights on and the teachers teaching in public schools?

It's likely now that Obamacare will prevail

It has taken much longer than President Obama hoped, but we are finally at the point where he can — and must — put his personal stamp on his main domestic initiative, the overhaul of the health care system.

Now that the Senate Finance Committee has joined four others — three in the House and one other in the Senate — in drafting versions of the complex, expensive legislation, lawmakers will turn to the White House for guidance in resolving the many policy questions that must be settled before final votes can be taken.

David Broder

Through careful navigation of the fiscal and political barriers that have doomed past efforts by Democratic presidents to grasp this nettle, Obama has steered this enterprise to the point that odds now favor a bill-signing ceremony.

But the hardest choices still lie ahead, and what Obama and his key aides — Rahm Emanuel, Peter Orszag and Nancy-Ann DeParle — do from this point on will determine whether this is a substantial achievement for the country or simply another gesture toward real reform.

Fortunately, all members of that foursome — the president, the chief of staff, the budget director and the operating head of the health care task force — recognize the priorities and are approaching the task with the right combination of practicality and policy sophistication.

With most Republicans regrettably isolated, by their own choosing, from the negotiations, the White House quartet can focus on their fellow Democrats as they try to line up the 218 votes they need in the House and the 60 that likely will be required in the Senate.

Two things will be needed to reach that goal: A plausible plan for making affordable and comprehensive health insurance available to millions who now depend on emergency room care or go untreated. And a way of financing the coverage that pays the prospective bills while reducing the ruinous health care inflation that threatens family budgets, business bottom lines and the finances of every level of government.

The Democrats are much closer to agreement on the first goal than the second. The months of debate have produced a largely unspoken consensus for offering those without insurance subsidized coverage through a closely regulated market dominated by private firms. The Democrats are still divided on whether a government-sponsored entity should be in the mix.

Obama favors it, but clearly will not insist on it. Whether or not the public option is included, it is clear that most, if not all, Americans who are not enrolled in Medicare or Medicaid will continue to deal with private insurance firms.

The only other coverage question is how many uninsured individuals and families will remain uncovered. There is a recognition that millions of people will not be reached in this first bill; how many will depend on how far the money for subsidies can be made to stretch. But almost everyone now realizes what Obama acknowledged in the campaign — there will have to be a Health Reform 2.

The second challenge — financing the coverage and reducing medical inflation — is much harder both fiscally and politically, and it is here that the White House's help is most needed.

The House bills envisage a high-income surtax, which is doubly undesirable. Any tax that would start immediately would jeopardize a shaky economy. And the general revenues will certainly be needed down the line to combat staggering deficits stretching as far as the eye can see.

The Senate Finance Committee bill, dependent on taxes on high-value private insurance policies, is a far better option. But a simpler and more straightforward way of accomplishing this goal is to end the tax-exemption on some or all employer-financed benefits — a step that would require Obama to face down his labor union allies.

If Obama steps up to that challenge and presses Congress to include more of the delivery system reforms than are included in any of the pending bills, he could find himself signing a really significant law.

If he succeeds, he will deserve the domestic equivalent of the Nobel Peace Prize.

Present agencies fail on dairy odor control

An opinion letter was written saying, "No thanks," to federal intervention on the issue of odor as it relates to confined animal feeding operations. I must vehemently disagree.

Two years ago when the odor from the dairy across the road became unbearable, I naively began contacting the individual agencies who I believed would correct the problem. Was I ever in for a hard lesson! Two years ago, it was an inspector named "Lynn." I couldn't even get him to come to my door or on my property to see what I was talking about. He would sit across the road and say that he couldn't smell anything.

I would suspect that the author of this opinion does not live near a dairy. Well, I guess, neither does the lessee of the dairy across from my home. He and his partner and their workers live far from here. They are not bothered by the milk truck that comes at 3 a.m. or the flies that are so many that you cannot get in the front door.

To believe that the present agencies will do something about odor, flies or manure saturation of our ground is about the same as believing in Peter Pan.

We need federal intervention to force the existing agencies to do their job.

There will be those of you who will say, "Oh, she's one of those anti-dairy zealots." You would be wrong. I work for one of the best dairy operators in the area, and I have several friends in the dairy industry. They all live on their dairies and do the best that they can under very difficult times.

Jerome County needs a new jail, but not this one

Jerome County needs a new jail but not the way the commissioners and Rocky Mountain

Corrections have set it up. At an informational meeting in the Jerome Annex on Oct. 8, I asked April Lee why she was opposed to taking questions from the floor so the group, most of who agreed with me, could listen. "We tried that the other night but there were lengthy discussions," Chairman Howell said, "This is the way we decided to do it." I don't trust people who don't want to answer questions about my money in public.

What is wrong here? In 2007, several counties spent tens of thousands of dollars to have RMC "consult" them on a regional jail. According to the Times-News, "Jerome County commissioners in May (2008) voted 2-1 to hire Rocky Mountain Corrections for a $12,500 study into building a new jail. Previously, Jerome, Lincoln, Gooding, and Camas counties jointly hired the same firm to conduct a feasibility study for building the northside jail." ( rch/?qregional+jail) Jerome has now spent at least $28,000 for basically the same information. Its "development studies" contain mostly information that the commissioners could have developed themselves since it's public information but rather than do the work they are paid to do, they wasted taxpayer dollars.

READER COMMENT

The vote Nov. 3 allows Jerome to enter into a $30 million, 30-year lease to build the jail "to be payable from lawfully available funds of the county appropriated by the board." That allows the board to transfer funds from other county department budgets to the jail budget and since a tax hike would be "lawfully available funds," they can raise taxes.

Am I willing to have a raise in taxes for a good jail? Yes, but not with the wingnut board and RMC running the show. Resolution 2009-18 lacks compliance with Idaho Code 34-439 in several ways, but I'm limited in words here.

RMC's study for Jerome states, "The final analysis shows the least expensive option for Jerome County by the year 2030 is to join the multi-county facility being considered for construction in Gooding County, Idaho."

RMC projects Jerome County's jail will net $243,953 a year. Why don't they build it themselves for the "profit"?

The funding/payment for the jail is based on what Jerome is already spending, and Howell told Jerome city, "We can run this facility for the first five to seven years without increasing the budget." To increase a budget, you need higher taxes.

The leasing company Jerome and RMC want to use is available at http://www.municipal.com/eligible_correct.asp.

"All operating costs of the leased property such as maintenance, insurance, taxes, utilities and fuel must be paid by the lessee (Jerome)." The existing budget destined to pay the yearly lease payment includes all of these and more, including personnel, medical, food, etc. If Jerome uses the money that paid for operating a 35-bed jail to pay the lease, where does the money come from to pay for maintenance, insurance, etc. ICRMP, the county insurer bases its rates on payroll and, since RMC says Jerome will need 20 more personnel, that's an extra cost as well as RMC's projection of a $1.2 million payroll. Right now, the payroll is $448,000.

The number of used-car salesman tricks is too numerous to include here and building a multimillion-dollar facility that, if defaulted, "all of the remaining payments become immediately due and payable. Possession (sic) of the leased property must be returned to MCM at the lessee's expense and may be sold or leased by MCM to someone else."

I will vote no on Nov. 3.

What's next in picking name for golf course?

Twin Falls golf course name?
I have seen, day-after-day, articles written by the Times-News on the renaming of the Muni golf course. It seems that the advisory commission for the golf course, along with the parks and recreation department and the mayor and council members are just overwhelmed at picking a new name for the golf course. I can understand that a decision of this magnitude is one that should tie up the mayor's office and our city council for weeks and months to come.

Maybe they should hire an outside consulting agency to do an impact study on how it will affect the rockchucks and squirrels. Maybe we should have a special election and have the regular folks pick a name. Oh! I see in the last article that was done but none of the 63 submitted names were good enough.

I have a few ideas of my own. First load up a few government (taxpayer-owned) vehicles with the mayor and staff, along with the advisory commission and whatever City Council members want to attend (maybe take their spouses) and head to Las Vegas for a weekend think tank and get the opinion from the many golf courses there. Plus, take in a few dinner shows.

Then after a hectic weekend on the taxpayers' dime, you can all return and do a front-page spread on the new name picked for the Twin Falls Muni Golf Course — I know, how about "The Twin Falls Muni Golf Course." But like 99 percent of Twin Falls, I will be sitting on the edge of my chair 'til later on this week when it will again be addressed by the city council.

It's a good thing they are not drafting a new name for the Twin Falls sewer system.

Buhl incumbents fail to respond to questionnaire

The Buhl Citizens' Committee was formed to be a voice for the citizens in regard to Buhl issues and be an asset to the mayor and City Council in finding solutions to the problems Buhl is facing. To that end, we have put proposals on the table, participated in meetings with city officials, state legislators and state agencies.

We believe that communication is the key to a viable and working community. To that end, we sent a candidate questionnaire to all the candidates for mayor and City Council with the belief that an informed electorate is key to good government. The questions dealt with what the candidates see as the problems, what they see as solutions, the role of city government in discussion of federal and state mandates, city utility rates and their impact on Buhl citizens, and the role the candidates see the citizens of Buhl playing in city government. Unfortunately, none of the incumbents returned the questionnaire. Mayoral candidate Tom McCauley and council candidate Tecopa Gleason returned the questionnaires. If you plan to vote in the upcoming city election, you might find their answers of interest. The questionnaires are available for your perusal at the Cosmic Jolt. If you happen to see the incumbents, you might ask them why they didn't respond. Their answers to that question might be quite valuable in making your choice come Nov. 3.

Don't let fat cats steal our country

Public option is the very reason that democracy was established. The oppressed worldwide battled dangerous seas in wooden ships and boats without motors and a bucket for a bilge pump to come to America to form a government by the people and for the people where the popular voice of the people established the laws.

Now we are being told by the fat cats that citizens should not have choice. That money is king. This in a country where chief executive officers make more money in 10 minutes than an ordinary worker makes in a year; where we are draining our economy fighting police actions that are called wars.

We have drug laws that cost us billions and that no one can defend. We have thousands of illegals crossing our borders and using our ports to come to come to America bringing tons of illegal contraband. The fat cats would sell us on the idea that terrorists who are organized and well equipped would go to a war zone so that we can shoot them Really!

They say that we are going to give granny the lead pill to cure her sickness, that our president is an alien; that our president is demeaning our country when the world opinion of the United States has improved immensely under his leadership. The fat cats with tons of money think that if they tell a lie loud enough and often enough we will believe. I sure hope they are wrong.

Are we going to let the fat cats steal our country? The richest 1 percent own 38 percent of all wealth. The top 5 percent own 50 percent of our wealth. The bottom supply the vast majority of our military to fight our conflicts and spill their blood on foreign soil.

Is it the newspaper's job to ruin a man's life?

I'm writing in regard to an article on the front page of the Wednesday, Sept. 23, Times-News about former Oakley coach Nick Greenwell. Are you aspiring to be the next National Enquirer?

The way that story was written was certainly unprofessional. Can't you just report the facts?

There was an altercation and Mr. Greenwell and Mr. Jones were involved and Mr. Greenwell was arrested.

How sad for Mrs. Jones and her children to read this story in the paper. How sad for Mr. Greenwell's children and parents and patients and friends to read all the "allegeds" in your article.

We all use bad judgment at one time or another in our lives, but all the sordid details don't show up in the newspaper. Sometimes "bad" things come into the lives of "good" people, but heaven forbid the newspaper should cut them any slack.

Is it the newspaper's job to try to ruin a man's life and his career? I was under the impression that the newspaper's job was to report the facts.

I feel you owe a lot of people a lot of apologies for your unprofessional manners and your bad judgment.

Obama should take a lesson from FDR

Achmed Omar Ivanovich Mustaffa Calla Imal Obama, if he truly wants to show compassion for the people he says he wants to help back to work, might take a lesson from another Democrat president. FDR brought this country out of the Great Depression by instituting the WPA and the CCC.

It got men working, eating and developing skills they otherwise wouldn't have known. At the same time, it bolstered our infrastructure and our economy. It built the roads that our taxes were supposed to keep in good shape. It built or restored our schools; our Lottery is supposed to do that. And it gave a boost to men who otherwise had lost the self-esteem that they used to have (now, because American jobs are given to foreign countries).

Of course, FDR was a native-born American, served in the armed forces, acknowledged that this country was built on Christian principles and tried to keep us out of ward instead of paying for both sides of a struggle where we have no business being in the first place. So maybe it's an unfair comparison.

It may sound as if I'm being disrespectful to the president. I'm not. I respect the office of the president of the United States. I just don't salute the flags of or pay homage to other nations of origin.

Snowmobilers facing sharp cuts in Yellowstone

By Ben Neary
Associated Press writer

CHEYENNE, Wyo. — The National Park Service has approved a plan to restrict snowmobile numbers in Yellowstone National Park to less than half of last winter's limit.

The park announced limits Thursday that will allow up to 318 snowmobiles and up to 78 snowcoaches per day in the park for the next two winter seasons.

The park has allowed up to 720 snowmobiles a day into the park over the past five winters, but actual use has been far less.

Yellowstone spokesman Al Nash said the park saw an average of 205 snowmobiles and 29 snowcoaches last winter. The park's highest recorded day was 557 snowmobiles in late December 2007.

Nash said the Park Service will keep the 318-snowmobile limit in place for Yellowstone over the next two winter seasons as it crafts a permanent winter-use management plan for the park.

Disagreement over how many snowmobiles to allow into the park for years has pitted the state of Wyoming and some tourist communities near the park against the National Park Service and environmental groups determined to reduce traffic they say can disturb wildlife and the area's tranquility.

Wyoming's congressional delegation issued a joint press release blasting the decision.

"The snowmobile and snowcoach numbers weren't sufficient when the proposed rule came out in July and they aren't sufficient now," said Sen. Mike Enzi, R-Wyo., the state's senior U.S. senator. "More people should be allowed in the park, not less."

But Patricia Dowd, Yellowstone program manager for the National Parks Conservation Association, called the Park Service decision a step in the right direction.

Dowd said scientific studies have found that snow coaches — vans fitted with special treads to move over the snow — are more environmentally friendly than individual snowmobiles.

Angler nets state record walleye

OAKLEY (AP) — Idaho Department of Fish and Game officials say an angler from Twin Falls is the new state record holder after catching a walleye from the Oakley Reservoir that weighed in at 17 pounds, six ounces.

Officials say Mike Chupa is the new record holder after landing the fish, which stretched 33 inches long. Chupa caught the fish just before midnight on Oct. 10 and claimed the state title previously held by Mark Abel, from the Wood River Valley.

Officials try to speed aid to small businesses

Initiatives would make billions in bailout funds available

By David Cho and Brady Dennis
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The federal government is developing initiatives to make billions of dollars of bailout funds available to small businesses through community banks, according to lawmakers and other government officials.

One approach, put forward by Sen. Mark Warner, D-Va., on Wednesday, could combine resources from the Treasury Department, Federal Reserve and private banks to create a $50 billion pool of money that would be used to lend to small businesses.

Separately, the Treasury is developing its own plan that would be smaller in scale — using around $10 billion of bailout funds — and would not involve the Fed, according to lawmakers and other congressional sources who have been in contact with the agency.

Both proposals attempt to speed aid to small businesses, which government officials say are essential to economic recovery because they employ so many workers. But using the federal bailout for this purpose would be a striking shift from the program's original mandate, which was aimed more at righting the financial system than saving jobs.

"We are actively working on and reviewing several ideas for how to provide more credit to small business and the smaller banks that are more likely to lend to small businesses in their communities," said Gene Sperling, a senior Treasury adviser. He declined to provide details of the plan.

The Treasury is also developing other initiatives to help small businesses. It is planning to ask lawmakers to revamp Small Business Administration lending programs and extend aid provided to the agency through the Obama administration's economic stimulus package. It is also negotiating with a small-business financier to buy a package of SBA loans under a long-delayed program aimed at freeing up credit.

Warner said earlier this month that he fears the programs that Treasury officials are considering to help small businesses might not be "big enough," and that while bil-ions in funds from the Troubled Assets Relief Program have gone to troubled banks that haven't been able to increase their lending, "we've done nothing for small business."

This week he said he remains open to how such an effort would be funded, but one possible structure would have Treasury reallocate as much as $10 billion in TARP funds to create a loan pool exclusively for community banks, which could then lend the money to small businesses.

Lawmakers seek to extend $8,000 tax credit for homes

By Jim Abrams
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — Lawmakers are trying to extend and expand an $8,000 federal tax credit for first-time homebuyers, a stimulus-package tax break that many regard as a significant prop for the still-tottering economy.

The latest Senate proposal would drop the requirement that the credit be available only to first-time buyers, broadening the reach of the program but also adding to its cost, estimated by congressional analysts at $16.7 billion.

The backers of that idea, Sens. Johnny Isakson, R-Ga., and Christopher Dodd, D-Conn., chairman of the Senate's banking committee, have suggested that their measure be attached to another pending bill aimed at throwing a lifeline to people hit by the recession, an extension of federal assistance to the millions in danger of exhausting unemployment insurance benefits.

While the White House says there will not be a second stimulus package following the $787 billion economy booster enacted last February, extending the homebuyers' credit and unemployment benefits are among several primary means being pushed by the administration or Congress to help people get through the prolonged economic downturn.

Others include continued subsidies for laid-off workers trying to keep their Bank errors mar mortgage relief

By Anne Flaherty
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — Towana Gooch, a single mom who lives with her 10-year old daughter, was on the verge of losing her town house in suburban Maryland after her mortgage lender kicked her out of a government loan modification program. The problem, she says she was notified, was a 7-cent error.

Later, the lender told her the tiny error wasn't actually the issue, that her low income disqualified her from the program. She called the bank trying to get to the bottom of it all, but she got no answers and feared there was nothing to head off foreclosure, scheduled Friday.

After an inquiry by The Associated Press, the bank, America's Servicing Company, a division of Wells Fargo & Co., finally returned her call this week to apologize for the 7-cent error and say the foreclosure sale had been put on hold for now.

Though her story is striking, Gooch is far from alone in her problems with the Obama administration's loan modification program, which provides federal subsidies to encourage lenders to renegotiate rather than foreclose on certain borrowers. Seven months in, many qualified applicants are being rejected, often through bank errors, with no avenue of appeal. Until this month, lenders didn't even have to tell them why.

"If the servicer messes up, even by accident, there is no meaningful way to complain, no real appeals process, no viable ombudsman to consider," said Kevin Stein, associate director of the California Reinvestment Coalition in San Francisco. "Most importantly, there are no consequences to the banks for failure to do what they have promised to do."

Meanwhile, foreclosures continue to rise with each month's report of new job layoffs and each new wave of adjustable-rate mortgages resetting to higher payments.

Citi results weighed down by failed loans

The Associated Press

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Citigroup provided a sobering reminder Thursday that the economy is still struggling, reporting that its third-quarter results were weighed down by billions of dollars in failed loans.

The bank reported a $101 million profit before accounting for $288 million in preferred stock dividends and the debt exchange offer that gave the government a 34 percent stake in the bank. Including those items, the New York-based bank reported a $3.24 billion loss.

Citigroup, one of the hardest hit during the credit crisis and recession, said loan losses during the quarter came to $8 billion, down $386 million from nearly $8.4 billion in the second quarter, but a sign that many consumers continue to be overwhelmed.

Citigroup's results are a measure not only of its health after it lost nearly $19 billion in 2008 and needed a $45 billion government bailout, but also the economy's, since the bank caters to consumers.

"The bank is not making money, they are losing money in credit cards and mortgages, and it's dragging down the entire bank," said Bart Narter, a senior vice president at consulting firm Celent.

John Gerspach, Citigroup's chief financial officer, said during a call with media that the outlook for loan losses in the company's North American operations is "somewhat mixed."

Citigroup said it added $800 million to its loan reserves during the third quarter, down $3.1 billion from the addition it made during the second quarter. In a conference call with analysts, Gerspach said the company had $28.4 billion in its loan loss reserves for consumer loans, including mortgages and credit cards.

Panel OK's new rules on derivatives trading

By Jim Puzanghera
Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON - A House committee Thursday approved a key piece of the Obama administration's plan to overhaul financial regulations, establishing new requirements for the largely unregulated world of over-the-counter derivatives.

The House Financial Services Committee voted 43 to 26 to dramatically increase transparency in the market for the complex and opaque derivatives, so-called because their value is derived from the price of an underlying asset, such as interest rates, stocks, oil or other commodities.

Derivatives known as credit-default swaps were a major factor in the financial crisis. They were at the heart of the failure of insurance giant American International Group, spurring the government's bailout a year ago because so many financial institutions had purchased the derivatives to cover potential losses on mortgage loans and other investments.

The legislation, which closely tracks the Obama administration's proposal, would set new rules for standardized derivatives, including requirements that banks and other companies that trade them have set amounts of money in reserve to cover losses. Most derivative trades also would go through regulated exchanges - central clearinghouses that would act as middlemen, adding transparency to what has been a murky and mysterious market. Major derivatives dealers also would face supervision and regulation, shared by the Securities and Exchange Commission and the Commodity Futures Trading Commission.

"We are making substantial changes in the atmosphere in which they operated," said Rep. Barney Frank, D-Mass., chairman of the House Financial Services Committee. "There will be no more hidden trades. There will be no more hidden prices."

Republicans opposed the measure, contending it was heavy-handed and would increase costs for businesses that use derivatives - costs that would be passed on to consumers. Many businesses use derivatives to offset financial risks associated with variations in interest rates and prices for commodities.

"If we want people to make capital available in our system for job creation, we shouldn't be lessening their ability to manage risk with any type of derivative they think is necessary," said Rep. Jeb Hensarling, R-Texas.

Jobless claims, muted inflation boost recovery

By Christopher S. Rugaber
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — New jobless claims dropped to the lowest level since January and the prices of many household goods stayed low last month, positive signs of stability for the fledgling economic recovery.

The decline in jobless claims shows companies are cutting fewer workers, though the drop isn't yet steep enough to signal new hiring, economists said. And the low level of inflation is holding down prices as Americans slowly regain their appetite to shop despite rising unemployment and tight credit conditions.

Thursday's reports "all point to an economy that is starting to grow again," said Bernard Baumohl, chief global economist at the Economic Outlook Group.

Low inflation is consistent with the early stages of an economic recovery, Baumohl said. Even as business activity picks up, unemployment is still high and factories have enough spare capacity to increase output without sending prices higher.

The Labor Department said first-time claims for jobless benefits dropped to a seasonally-adjusted 514,000 from an upwardly revised 524,000 the previous week. The fifth decline in six weeks defied economists' forecasts of a slight gain.

The four-week average, which smooths fluctuations, fell for the sixth straight time to 531,500. That's the lowest since January and about 125,000 below the April peak.

In a separate report, the Labor Department said consumer prices rose 0.2 percent last month, matching analysts' expectations. Prices excluding the volatile energy and food categories also rose 0.2 percent.

A warm welcome, and hot question, for Obama

The Washington Post

NEW ORLEANS — In his first visit here since taking office, President Obama sought Thursday to reassure frustrated New Orleans residents that his administration is working aggressively to repair the hurricane-damaged city and return people to their jobs and homes.

Speaking at a town-hall meeting near the shores of Lake Pontchartrain, Obama recounted what he said was "good progress" during the first nine months of his administration. But he was quickly put on the defensive by one resident who said he was still frustrated by the slow pace of the economic and physical recovery around him.

"I expected as much from the Bush administration," said Gabriel Bordenave, 29. "But why are we still being nicked and dimed?"

Obama responded that his government is "working as hard as we can as quickly as we can," but he complained about "complications" in working with state and local governments to speed resources to rebuild hospitals, schools and other facilities.

"I wish I could just write a check," he said. "You say, why not? There's this whole thing about the Constitution." He added that in Washington, "everyone will attack you for spending money, unless you are spending it on them."

Obama acknowledged to the crowd that a lot of work remains, and promised that he would never "tolerate the usual turf wars between agencies."

"The damage from Katrina was not just caused by a disaster of nature, but by a failure of government — a government that wasn't adequately prepared and didn't adequately respond," he told a crowd of more than 1,000 at the University of New Orleans.

Finding Falcon

Falcon Heene, 6, sits in the bed of his family's pickup truck outside their family's home in Fort Collins, Colo., after he was found hiding in a box in the garage attic on Thursday.

Colo. boy — feared to be in runaway balloon — found hiding in garage

By P. Solomon Banda and Ivan Moreno
Associated Press writers

FORT COLLINS, Colo. — It looked like something straight out of science fiction and sounded like a parent's worst nightmare: a flying saucer-shaped helium balloon zooming across the skies of Colorado with a boy named Falcon inside.

Or so it seemed.

After a spectacle that dominated cable television and captivated people across the nation, 6-year-old Falcon Heene was found safe at his home Thursday hiding in a cardboard box in the garage rafters.

Sheriff Jim Alderden turned to reporters during a news conference, held his thumbs up and said, "He's at the house."

The boy's brother said he saw Falcon climb into the balloon before it took off. Turns out their father had scolded him for playing with the balloon, and little Falcon went to the garage to hide.

"He scared me because he yelled at me," Falcon told reporters after the episode was over. "That's why I went in the attic."

The discovery marked a bizarre end to a saga that started when the giant silver balloon floated away from the family's yard

Thursday morning, sparking a frantic rescue operation that involved military helicopters and briefly shut down Denver International Airport.

The balloon tipped precariously at times before gliding to the ground in a field, the end of a two-hour, 50-mile journey through two counties and over homes and prairies dotted with ponds and towering trees.

With the child nowhere in sight, investigators searched the balloon's path. Several people reported seeing something fall from the craft while it was in the air, and yellow crime-scene tape was placed around his house.

But in the end, the boy apparently never left the home. He fled to the rafters after his father, Richard Heene, scolded him for getting inside a compartment on the craft. Heene said Falcon's brother had seen him inside the compartment before it took off and that's why they thought he was in there when it launched. Authorities don't believe it was a hoax.

Investigators had searched the house twice, and interviewed one of Falcon's older brothers several times, Alderden said.

The balloon was owned by the boy's parents and tethered behind their home in Fort Collins, about an hour north of Denver. The Heenes are amateur storm chasers who are known to take their children along as they pursue bad weather, and the family has appeared twice on the ABC reality show "Wife Swap," most recently in February.

Richard Heene said the balloon wasn't tethered properly, and he wasn't "going to lay blame on anybody."

He adamantly denied that the whole thing was a big publicity stunt. "That's horrible after the crap we just went through. No!"

During a live interview with CNN, Falcon said he had heard his family calling his name.

"You did?" Mayumi Heene said.

"Why didn't you come out?" Richard Heene said.

Falcon answered, "You had said that we did this for a show."

Later, Richard Heene bristled when the family was asked to clarify and said he didn't know what his son meant. He didn't ask his son what he meant by "a show?"

Garth Brooks coming out of retirement for Vegas run

By Chris Talbott
Associated Press writer

LAS VEGAS — The e-mail from Garth Brooks was so special, Steve Wynn printed it out and framed it.

The note from the country superstar, in retirement for nearly a decade, asked the owner of the Wynn Las Vegas resort if he could test out the relatively intimate Encore theater — just him and his guitar. What's more, Wynn was asked to invite a handful of his closest friends for the private show.

"I framed it," Wynn said, "because I don't think I'll ever get an e-mail like that again in my life."

The note may have been special, but the performance was "magical."

"Bette Midler was just screaming next to me," Wynn told a crowd of reporters and fans at the Encore on Thursday. "She said, 'Have you booked him?!?'"

It took a while, but Wynn finally landed country music's biggest name in a partnership that will put Brooks in the Encore 15 weeks a year, perhaps for the next five years, beginning Dec. 11.

"I told him he couldn't afford me," Brooks said. "I was wrong. Wow!"

Wynn sealed the deal with a jet that will allow the entertainer maximum time at home with his three teenage daughters. Brooks can hop on the plane and play gigs Friday, Saturday and Sunday, then return home in time to take his kids to school like usual Monday mornings.

"Every argument we ever had about why we shouldn't do this, he had an answer to," Brooks said.

He got a simple answer when he asked: What happens if things don't work out? Wynn told him, "You quit!"

Baucus: All Senate Dems will support health bill

By Erica Werner
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — When it comes time to vote, every Democrat in the Senate — and perhaps more than one Republican — will support legislation overhauling the nation's health care system, the chairman of the Senate Finance Committee predicted Thursday.

That assertion by Sen. Max Baucus, D-Mont., was a notable show of confidence coming in the midst of negotiations with Majority Leader Harry Reid and White House officials to finalize legislation that can satisfy liberal Democrats without alienating moderates — and get the 60 votes needed to advance in the 100-seat Senate.

Baucus told reporters that lawmakers have a moral obligation to repair the health care system to rein in costs and extend coverage to millions of the uninsured.

"And that is why we are going to pass health care reform legislation this year, and it is why every Democrat will vote for it, and it is why there will be at least one Republican and maybe a couple more who also will vote for it," Baucus said.

Democrats control 60 Senate votes, but that includes two independents, and leaders have been uncertain of support from a number of moderates who've expressed concerns about the price tag of health care legislation and the government's role in a remade system.

Baucus' prediction followed approval by his committee earlier this week of a 10-year, $829 billion bill that makes numerous changes to the health care system along the lines sought by President Barack Obama, but taking a more centrist approach than the other four health care bills approved by House and Senate committees.

Twin Falls County hazard plan discussed

By Blair Koch
Times-News correspondent

It's all about keeping people safe.

That's what David Jackson with Idaho's Bureau of Homeland Security office said about the Twin Falls County hazard preparedness plan, or "All Hazard Mitigation Plan" that was discussed during a meeting with county officials and community members on Tuesday, at Canyon Ridge High School in Twin Falls.

"The idea is to be proactive in identifying dangers,"

Jackson said. "It's about how can we anticipate disaster and reduce or minimize the dangers presented when disaster happens. The (plan) helps keep people out of harm's way."

The county's plan was approved earlier by the Federal Emergency Management Agency. The plan coordinates city, government and first-responding agency efforts for when disaster strikes.

Jackson said city, county and other area organizations can now apply for grant funding for projects highlighted in the plan.

"In order to be in compliance we need to review the plan annually."

— Twin Falls County Disaster Services Director Jackie Frey

"For instance, communities built within wildland may need defensible space — created space around the community that provides buffer zones from fire. Having that buffer saves home loss in the event of wildfire," Jackson said.

Twin Falls County Disaster Services Director Jackie Frey said about 30 community members attended the meeting and represented area hospitals, school districts, police and fire departments and other entities.

"In order to be in compliance we need to review the plan annually," Frey said. "Now that we have the plan Twin Falls County is eligible to apply for grants, so some of the projects outlined in the plan can be addressed."

Frey said a number of strategies outlined in the plan would reduce the impact of a disaster, including changing building codes on new homes to require noncombustible roofs, retrofitting existing roofs with noncombustible material and retrofitting water pipelines to address flood concerns.

How much grant funding will be available remains unknown, as the amount is tied to federal appropriations approved by Congress.

Last year, Idaho was guaranteed $500,000, said Jackson.

"The grants are nationally competitive," he said. "Last year's budget was $100 million, in total. I anticipate roughly the same budget this year but that remains to be seen."

According to the county's Web site, www.twinfallscounty.org, the department of disaster services has applied for numerous grants for equipment and training. In 2005, FEMA awarded the county $41,250 to develop its hazard mitigation plan.

Applications for this year's grant funding opportunities are due in November.

Twin towers

Buhl recently completed construction of its one-million gallon water tank, shown next to the city's landmark tower built decades ago. The tank will be used to mix water from multiple sites to lower the arsenic level in the city's water supply. The tank is part of the $8 million arsenic treatment project needed to lower Buhl's level to the Environmental Protection Agency mandate of 10 parts per billion or less. The treatment plan includes a filtration system as well, expected to go online next year.

Buhl prepares for feature film spotlight

Police, fire department stay informed of filming schedule

By Blair Koch
Times-News correspondent

BUHL — The independent film "Buhl, Idaho" not only bears the name of Buhl — it will be shot there as well.

Filming takes place in and around the city, highlighting local business such as Don's Thriftway and Cosmic Jolt, from Oct. 26 to Nov. 14. Crews will also set up scenes on country roads.

During Monday's City Council meeting, filmmakers were given permission to shoot in front of the police station after a request was made by production officials Jaki Covington and Laura Mehlhaff, with Appaloosa Pictures.

The film is written and directed by Buhl native Jaffe Zinn, who partnered with award-winning producer Heather Rae, who won Producer of the Year at the Spirit Awards for her work on the Academy-Award nominated

"We'd like to keep you in the loop," Covington told the police and fire departments. "As much as you'd like."

Both Police Chief Ron Romero and Fire Chief Mark Korsen requested that they be notified of the production schedule.

"We'd very much appreciate to know when and where you're going to be shooting so that we can go around you, use a different road, if we need to," Korsen said.

Up to 50 people will be on location on any given day, including the film's, star Scott Glenn, playing a sheriff. Glenn appeared in "The Bourne Ultimatum."

"It's been incredible working with the city of Buhl," Mehlhaff told the Times-News. "It's not always the case. We wanted to make sure we had the access we needed for shooting and make sure we're not encroaching either."

Basking in the sun has health benefits but take it easy

DEAR DR. GOTT: Does the human body store up vitamin D? I ask because I enjoy basking in the sun.

DEAR READER: Vitamins and minerals are essential to good health. Vitamin D is one of four fat-soluble vitamins that require bile acids for absorption into the body. Once absorbed, the vitamin is stored in body fat and remains until needed. While available as a supplement, it is not present in its natural state in many foods. The best source of the vitamin in food is from cod-liver oil, mackerel, tuna and salmon. Smaller amounts are found in mushrooms, cheese, egg yolks and beef liver. Food items fortified with vitamin D include milk, ready-to-eat cereals, yogurt, orange juice and more. In fact, eight ounces of milk contain 25 percent of the recommended daily value.

Now on to the sun.

Vitamin D is produced when our skin is in contact with ultraviolet rays from the sun. Most people can obtain adequate amounts of the vitamin in this manner, and the practice is relatively safe. Keep in mind that there are a number of considerations for exposure, such as smog, cloud cover, the season of the year and latitude at which you live.

Your primary-care physician is your best guide for determining whether you are getting too much sun. I say this because you don't indicate whether you are naturally fair-skinned or dark, how much exposure you get at any one time or whether you use sunblock. Do you have any medical conditions you failed to mention, and is your diet appropriate? Have you ever been diagnosed with skin cancer? Many factors enter into a decision.

DEAR DR. GOTT: What nutrient is in chicken skin that is so valuable?

DEAR READER: I am not aware of any. Is there a possibility you misunderstood the person who indicated chicken skin contains nutrients? Could he or she have been referring to chicken cartilage, which is injected into joints for specific medical conditions?

Most nutritionists believe the skin of a chicken should be removed prior to cooking or immediately following. The skin of half a chicken contains about 280 calories, of which about 215 are fat calories. As you can see, a great portion of the calories in a chicken come from the skin. And there are countless medical conditions related to consuming fat.

The way a person prepares chicken is important in terms of nutrients.

Meats that actually stew in their own juices will be higher in fat than those that are grilled. Similarly, using a rack so juices can drip away from meat will make for a more healthful meal.

I may be misdirecting you, but from my perspective, I would recommend that you not consume chicken skin on a regular basis. Enjoy the meat for its nutritional properties and forgo the skin.

Militants assault police compounds in Pakistan

By Chris Brummitt
Associated Press writer

LAHORE, Pakistan — Islamist militants launched coordinated assaults on three police compounds in Pakistan's second largest city Thursday, the latest in a wave of attacks by insurgents bringing the war to the country's heartland ahead of an expected offensive against their Afghan border sanctuary.

The dramatic escalation in violence appears to be an attempt by the Taliban- and al-Qaida-led insurgency to seize the initiative from the army and deliver a warning to the U.S.-backed civilian government.

It also discredits Pakistani claims that the Taliban were on the ropes after this year's military campaign in the Swat Valley and the killing of their leader, Baitullah Mehsud, in a U.S. airstrike in August.

The United States wants Pakistan's army to launch the operation in South Waziristan to root out militants who use the remote mountainous region as a base for attacks in Afghanistan, where the American war effort is faltering amid spiraling violence eight years after the invasion.

Thursday's assaults in Lahore added to a sense of crisis in this nuclear-armed country, now shaken by five major attacks by the Islamic extremists in the last 10 days that have killed more than 150 people — including a 22-hour siege of army headquarters over the weekend.

At least 19 people were killed in the Lahore attacks, most of them security officers, along with nine heavily armed attackers.

Gunmen in all three attacks carried dried fruit and apparently were preparing to dig in for a long siege, said Rana Sanaullah, the provincial law minister.

"We are here to lay down our lives for Islam. Jihad will continue," two attackers shouted before blowing themselves up, according to one police officer. Most of the militants detonated suicide belts after they were injured or cornered, witnesses said.

One of the targets in Lahore was a training center for an elite police unit tasked with fighting militants. Many of the trainers there had received instruction from U.S. law enforcement officials under a little-publicized State Department program, officials said.

Men found guilty of Australian terror plot

SYDNEY (AP) — Five men were convicted Friday of plotting a terrorist attack by stockpiling bomb-making instructions and purchasing explosive chemicals in Australia's largest terrorist conspiracy.

A jury deliberated for a month before finding the men guilty of conspiring to commit acts in preparation for a terrorist attack. Each face a maximum sentence of life in prison.

During the trial, which began in November 2008, prosecutor Richard Maidment told the jury in New South Wales state Supreme Court that the men planned to use explosive devices or firearms to commit "extreme violence" in a bid to force Australia's government to change its policy on Middle East conflicts.

Justice Anthony Whealy restricted the media from publishing the men's names on the Internet.

The men were arrested in a series of raids on their homes in 2005. Maidment said during the trial that the raids turned up bomb-making instructions and militant Islamist material — including footage of planes flying into the World Trade Center on Sept. 11, 2001, and images of beheadings. The prosecutor also said the men purchased explosive chemicals and guns between July 2004 and November 2005.

The jury was also told one man participated in a terrorist-run paramilitary training camp in Pakistan, and three others attended similar camps in New South Wales to prepare for an attack.

Whealy had instructed the jury to put aside any prejudices when coming to its verdict, and to remember the Muslim faith was not on trial.

Scientists grow mice heart muscle strip that beats

By Lauran Neergaard
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — Scientists have grown a piece of heart muscle — and then watched it beat — by using stem cells from a mouse embryo, a big step toward one day repairing damage from heart attacks.

Think of Dr. Kenneth Chien as a heart mechanic. "We're making a heart part and (eventually) we're going to put the part in," is how he describes the work by his team of Harvard and Massachusetts General Hospital researchers.

Lots of work remains before trying that dramatic experiment in people. But regenerating damaged heart muscle is a holy grail in cardiac care.

Doctors today have lots of treatments to prevent a heart attack. But once one strikes, there's no way to restore the heart muscle it kills. Gradually the weakened heart quits pumping properly, leading to deadly heart failure.

Hence the focus on embryonic stem cells, master cells that can give rise to any tissue in the body. Until now, scientists haven't known how to coax those cells into producing pure cardiac muscle.

Instead, researchers have tried injecting heart attack survivors with mixes of different kinds of stem cells, next-generation types like those found in bone marrow. The idea: Perhaps once those cells were inside a damaged heart, ones capable of growing cardiac muscle would receive a "get to work" signal and take root. There's been little success so far.

The new research, published in Friday's edition of the journal Science, promises a more targeted approach.

"It's not the home run," cautioned Dr. Elizabeth Nabel, director of the National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute, which is spending millions on research nationwide into cardiac regeneration. "But it's a major advance that's helping to move the field forward in a very significant way."

Mays family: Review finds no chronic cocaine use

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — The family of TV pitchman Billy Mays released the findings of an independent medical examiner Thursday, who concluded that the commercial star's cocaine use was not a significant contributing factor in his sudden death.

The report, released by a family spokeswoman, does not refute Mays' cocaine use, but states there is no evidence to suggest he was a chronic user. A review of the official autopsy also concludes that "cocaine was not a significant contributing factor" in his death.

"There is no evidence that Mr. Mays' death was related to acute cocaine intoxication with coronary artery spasm or dissection or even aortic dissection for that matter," wrote Dr. William Manion, the independent medical examiner who conducted the review. "Rather, the use of cocaine by Mr. Mays appears to have occurred a remote time several days before his death."

Mays, 50, was found dead in his family's Tampa condo in June.

The Hillsborough County medical examiner's office conducted the official autopsy. The office classified his death as "natural" but said that cocaine use contributed to the heart disease that killed him. Mays' family disagreed with that finding.

"We found this to be so upsetting that we asked for review by an independent medical examiner," Deborah Mays, the late pitchman's wife, said in a statement Thursday.

Manion, chief of pathology for Virtua Health, a multi-hospital health care system based in Marlton, N.J., wrote that he was asked to review the official autopsy and address "the question of whether or not cocaine was a significant contributing cause" in Mays' death.

Richard (Dick) Shawver

BUHL — Richard Shawver, 69, passed into the arms of our Savior peacefully at his home in Buhl on Tuesday, Oct. 14, 2009.

He is survived by his wife, Joyce (Federico).

He was raised on a farm in Jerome, graduating in 1958 from Jerome High School. After graduation, he went to Rick's College on a football scholarship for two years. While attending college, he met and married Edith Chase. Of this marriage, he had three children, Doug (Tammy) Shawver, Sonja (Jerry) Swanson and Ty Shawver, all of Nevada.

Richard joined the police academy in Idaho Falls and, after two years of service on the Idaho Falls Police Department, he moved his family to Las Vegas, where he joined the academy there and served on the Las Vegas Police Department for seven years. After his divorce from Edith, he moved back to Twin Falls and was on the police department there under the supervision of Frank Barnett for two years. He was always proud to be an officer and enjoyed his work immensely.

On Oct. 23, 1976, he married Joyce, and they moved to Boise, where he was a long-haul truck driver. He was very helpful and a big part in helping Joyce raise her children, Maria (Peterson) Ragains (Duane), Lisa (Peterson) Krear (Bryan) and Shane Peterson (Tonga). He loved her children as if they were his own.

He is also survived by his sister and brother-in-law, Linda (Carl) Montgomery; his children in Las Vegas; several aunts, cousins, nieces and nephews; nine grandchildren; five great-grandchildren in Las Vegas; and one great-grandson in Rupert. He was preceded in death by his parents, Walt and Thelma Shawver of Jerome.

Richard had a full life and a great love for the outdoors. He loved to fish, hunt and camp. He loved building things and was always there to help someone in need. Joyce and Dick always welcomed friends and family into their home for coffee, food or just to "chat." They lived in central Idaho at the time of the recession of the '80s and went to Arizona to work since there was no work available here. Times were tough, but Dick worked odd jobs just to keep things going.

Dick and Joyce went to Mississippi, where he helped open a wholesale lumber yard and was yard foreman. Mississippi was not a real good choice to live and, when a branch opened in Charlotte, N.C., he put in for transfer there, where he was foreman. Dick loved his job and was a real "company" man. In January 1991, Dick was involved in a tragic industrial accident involving a 27-ton forklift and a dumpster, crushing him. He was in the trauma unit for three months, suffering from massive injuries and strokes. After all of the therapies, counseling and releases from the doctors, Joyce and Dick moved to Tucson, Ariz., so they could enjoy the wonderful winters and tolerate the extreme heat in the summers.

They had a great love for Arizona, but as time passed, he began to get weaker and they decided to move back "home" where they could be around the family and settled in Buhl. He gradually worsened and got where he wasn't able to do anything. This was a very difficult time for him and Joyce. Joyce took care of his needs 24/7, making sure he was comfortable.

"Please don't cry for me. I'm in a better place now. I have lived my life and it is time to go home to our heavenly father; no more pain, no more sorrow. After my accident, my life was not full anymore. I couldn't do what I wanted to do. Now I know that I will be free of the stress and pain that I have suffered for so long. Please don't cry for me; remember, I am in a better place."

"You said before you passed that I was the key to your heart, but the truth is you were the key to mine. I asked the Lord to answer my prayers — that you would come back, but that would be selfish and unfair to you. I know that you are happy where you are and free of pain, in the arms of Jesus, without any cares. You do know I love you so much. I'll go on living for Him, knowing that His light will never dim. Someday, we'll be together again in Heaven. Keep on watching for me with your arms outstretched and we will be in a better place together out of worldly harm."

A special thanks to all of the staff at Visions Hospice and to Sue for the many years she helped take care of him and for Georgia for being there with us in the time of need and to all of the nurses and aids for their care and compassion. A special thanks to the Buhl EMTs for the many, many times you came to "pick him up" and help in other ways. You will always be remembered. I couldn't have done it without you.

A memorial service will be held at 1 p.m. Monday, Oct. 19, at Parke's Magic Valley Funeral Home, 2551 Kimberly Road, with a viewing at 11 a.m.

CHUNKY

Carol Taylor, Taylor's Designs, Twin Falls

This bold and colorful necklace complements summer outfits, but its bright oranges and browns take it into fall, too.

This piece and similar ones are products of snowbird Carol Taylor's travels in the Southwest: the three large beads are African horn material picked up at an Arizona bead show, and the discs that compose most of the necklace's length are spiny oyster stones bought in New Mexico. Taylor mixes in flat silver beads and a few flat, dyed rocks — "that's where the weight comes from."

What you'll pay: 20-inch necklaces run around $70; longer versions are available.

Where to look: Taylor will show her pieces at Lion's Gate Gallery, 229 Main St. in Filer, this month through December. Or e-mail her: ronvtaylor@hotmail.com.

Art to hang around her neck

Story and photos by Virginia Hutchins
Times-News writer

When she pulls the ribbon and lifts the lid, will she find a delightful little something she's never seen in a catalogue?

It's the gift giver's quandary, perpetual and perplexing.

You might find an answer among local jewelry makers' wares. The region's season of outdoor art festivals has ended, but the artists kept creating after they packed up their booths and went home.

Only a tiny portion of southern Idaho's variety is represented here, of course; check nearby art galleries, craft bazaars and gift shops for other hometown jewelry makers.

You'll find some surprisingly sophisticated artisans.

Take Lesley Martin, for instance.

She built and designed homes with price tags just under a million dollars until that industry fell apart and she made jewelry her full-time work. Just 18 months later, the Camas County woman has an invitation to be an artist in residence at Yellowstone National Park next summer, visiting for days or weeks at a time.

She'll accept.

Virginia Hutchins may be reached at 735-3242 or virginia.hutchins@lee.net.

EARTHY

Lesley Martin, Silver Pony Designs, rural Camas County

Hoping to look like a sophisticated traveler with a sense of rich pasts? That's the day to don Lesley Martin's jewelry.

She relies on semi-precious gemstones — "What draws me are the Southwest stones: turquoise, lapis, amber, coral" — and incorporates pearls, garnets, smoky quartz, sterling silver and lots of leather. Smoky quartz and the leather-and-pearl combination are particularly popular with buyers.

But Martin's specialty is medallions and charms crafted from special metal clay. She handcarves her designs into wax or soap, presses the clay into the mold, hand cuts the piece's individual shape, dries it, then refines it with files and engraves the back. "I usually try to put some words of inspiration on a piece."

But it's still clay — until it's fired. Then what's left is a medallion of 99.9 percent silver.

What you'll pay: Silver Pony pieces range from $16 to $200. Charms and medallions are $16 to $38. Most finished necklaces cost $100 to $120.

Where to look: Martin's Web site, silverponyonline.com, is a little stale, but she intends to update it this fall with more recent pieces; you can purchase from the site. Find her work this winter at Tully's Coffee shop in Ketchum. Or call her at 720-6602, and she'll e-mail pictures of pieces with the colors and stones you're interested in.

RAW

Mickey Tanner, Crude Co., Twin Falls

Don't expect traditional from Mickey Tanner's jewelry. Instead, think rough and raw.

"I just kind of let the stones speak to me when I prepare it. And I think only people who can appreciate rock can appreciate my jewelry," she said. "I think you have to be really secure to wear my jewelry. It's really not for everybody, yet the people who purchase it, they treasure those pieces."

Tanner's always on the hunt for stones — shopping local estate auctions, trading for rock from other states, buying stones on eBay. "I go out of my way to find the newest rock, a new dig."

She cuts and polishes her finds, wire-wraps them with sterling silver or 12-karat gold, and finishes each piece with lampwork beads, found objects — like vintage beads, buttons, belt buckles — and an adjustable leather strap.

What you'll pay: Tanner's pieces range from $10 to $285. Necklaces with crystals are $25 to $150.

Where to look: Tanner has a studio in her home; call for an appointment: 734-6758. Or buy at her online shop: crudeco.etsy.com.

SWEET

Joan Turner, Pearls 'n' Things, Twin Falls

If someone with sweet and delicate tastes is on your gift list, this might be the place to look.

Joan Turner knows many jewelry shoppers go for big beads. But she doesn't.

She adores the tiny Swarovski crystals that are her best sellers, so she sticks to classic understatement — sometimes alternating the crystals with glass and jasper beads. She also uses Swarovski's cultured pearls, as well as black onyx and turquoise, and finishes her pieces with sterling silver or gold fill spacers and toggle clasps.

What you'll pay: Most necklace-and-earring sets range from $29 to $50.

Where to look: Turner will show her work at an open house from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Oct. 31 in Twin Falls; call 948-9118 for location. Some of her pieces are for sale at The Gift Barn in Twin Falls' Lynwood Shopping Center through Christmas. Or call Turner for an appointment.

FANCIFUL

Ron Taylor, Taylor's Designs, Twin Falls

A pounded silver collar swirling artfully around the neck and onto the chest will get noticed. Even before the stunning stone that hangs from it.

Ron Taylor works his wonder with a hammer, forming organic spirals that also embrace the pendants.

He picks up his cut turquoise, jasper and agate during winters in Tucson, Ariz. — after fall hunting in southern Idaho. He bypasses perfect ovals in favor of freer forms.

"Just however the guy cuts it. If he leaves it in a nonconforming shape, I like that better," Taylor said. Customers don't like seeing the same stone on three necklaces. "They don't want to see themselves coming down the street."

What you'll pay: Sterling silver hammered collars are typically $105, while their gold fill counterparts are $195. Pendants run from $22 to $400.

Where to look: Taylor will show his pieces at Lion's Gate Gallery, 229 Main St. in Filer, this month through December. Or e-mail him: ronvtaylor@hotmail.com.

Church brings national, local bands to stage

By Melissa Davlin
Times-News writer

On Oct. 31, Lighthouse Christian Fellowship in Twin Falls will fill with the sounds of praise — not the wailing of werewolves.

The Promise Remains Tour, featuring Christian artists Todd Agnew and Building 429, is coming to Twin Falls. While Agnew and Building 429 are some of the biggest names to come to Lighthouse, they're the latest in a list of local and national musicians who have brought music to the Twin Falls Christian community.

Holly Borchardt, book-keeper for Lighthouse, said music is integral to the church's community. A band plays during services, and musicians enliven football after-parties. Three locations within the church — the coffee shop, the teen ministry building and the auditorium — act as venues for the worshippers.

National acts including Darrell Mansfield, New World Son and SONSOFDAY have visited the church since it moved to its new location in September 2008, and have drawn young churchgoers and families alike.

The Halloween show features two of the biggest names in Christian contemporary music. Building 429's songs have an upbeat pop-rock sound, which has impressed audiences and critics. In 2005, the group received four Dove Award nominations and the New Artist of the Year award from the Gospel Music Association.

In contrast, Agnew's songs are more raw. The Texas-based musician has released five albums since his debut in 2003. His lyrics deliver messages of praise, salvation and overcoming hurdles that Christians face in their daily lives.

Although Lighthouse didn't plan the show as an alternative to Halloween, Borchardt hopes families will consider the concert instead of normal fright-filled festivities.

"We are really excited to be able to provide this for people to have something to do," she said.

You can't cut corners in this maze

By Laurie Welch
Times-News writer

BURLEY — A friend's business venture last year has prompted a Brigham Young University-Idaho business student to launch his own seasonal enterprise at the base of the Albion grade.

Mitchell Stoker, a senior studying business management, pitched the idea to his Burley family and enlisted his siblings to help out with a straw maze that will be open to the public through Halloween.

"It's confusing," said Lynzei Stoker, Mitchell Stoker's sister. "It's easier to go with a group because they may remember things that you don't as you try to find your way."

It takes on average about 30 minutes to go through the maze.

"We did a maze in Rexburg last year," Mitchell Stoker said. "You know, with a corn maze, it gets trampled down and people cut corners, so I decided to do something different that was really fun."

The 200-by-150-foot maze, constructed from a thousand 1,000-pound bales of straw, has support personnel on top of the structure to help guide those who become lost. And on weekends, it is haunted.

Stoker said for the haunting they use people and props but have taken out the blood and gore often associated with Halloween stunts. He said they are using more innovative special effects.

"Everyone seems to love it," Stoker said. "We have had several repeat customers. One family has come back three times, so they must be enjoying it."

The whole family has become involved either selling concessions like caramel apples, cinnamon rolls or hot chocolate or providing assistance from atop the bales.

"The most fun is getting lost in the turns," said Shawn

Corbridge, who works at the maze. "Quite a few people get lost."

Rock: Snow Patrol
Oct. 12 in Boise

I went to this show expecting a night of beautiful but mellow indie rock. I left surprised by the driving, building wall of intense sound these rockers produce. Plus, watching lead singer Gary Lightbody have a good time was almost as much fun as listening to the great music.

Trumpet celebrity helps symphony kick off anniversary season

By Hosanna Kabakoro
Times-News correspondent

Music lovers can look forward to a spectacular season as Magic Valley Symphony launches a series of concerts that include a full production of "Carousel" and a composition written for the symphony's 50th anniversary.

"This year promises to be one of the best ever," business manager Richard Cook said.

Cook, who has played French horn with the symphony on and off since 1960, is one of its longest-sitting members and recalls attending the symphony's first performance. "It was at the old O'Leary Junior High School, now the jail, and was directed by Richard Smith," he said.

Now a Twin Falls institution, the symphony began as an offshoot of the Dilettante Group's musical theater.

"In 1959 they performed 'Carousel' with a pit orchestra made up of around 45 local musicians," Cook said. "That pit orchestra evolved into what is now the Magic Valley Symphony."

Directed by 20-year veteran Ted Hadley, the symphony begins its 2009-10 season on Sunday afternoon with a Latin-flavored program featuring "Festive Overture" by Dmitri Shostakovich. Also featured will be "Concierto Mexicano," composed and arranged by world-class trumpet player Allen Vizzutti.

In November, concertgoers will be treated to the premier of Twin Falls music professor George K. Halsell's original composition "Symphony in Five Episodes."

"I wanted to take advantage of a sabbatical from College of Southern Idaho to further my craft as a composer and honor the orchestra with a piece of music for the 50th anniversary," Halsell said.

Symphony publicist Paula Sinclair said that much like today's group, the original orchestra relied on musicians who had studied music in high school or college. Many were former members of the Twin Falls High School Orchestra.

"Our members come from all over the Magic Valley, and the youngest is 14 while the oldest is around 70. We're all volunteers who set aside time to practice so we can share our talents with the community," Sinclair said. "Many of us have day jobs, but in addition to weekly practices together, we make a daily commitment to maintain proficiency on our instruments by playing at home during the week."

The current symphony is still primarily an adult orchestra. "We've had the same wind, woodwind and brass sections for nearly 15 years, but we also have some accomplished students from Magic Valley

About the featured artists

Magic Valley Symphony's season-kickoff concert Sunday features world-class trumpeter Allen Vizzutti and a hometown favorite, pianist Laura Vizzutti.

Allen Vizzutti has played in more than 40 countries with a who's who of musicians including Chuck Mangione, Doc Severinsen and Chick Corea. His trumpet playing can be heard on more than 100 soundtracks from films like "Star Trek," "40 Days and 40 Nights" and "Medal of Honor." Gamers can hear him on the Halo II video games, and he has recorded with such stars as the Commodores, Prince, Barbra Streisand and Neil Diamond.

His wife is pianist Laura Vincent Vizzutti, who has performed as accompanist for the Washington Choral Arts Society at the Kennedy Center in Washington, D.C. Laura Vizzutti has also recorded for both television and film. The Vizzuttis have three children, Marcus, Nicholas and Gabriella, who are all musicians.

Music lovers have an opportunity to meet the Vizzuttis at a celebrity buffet luncheon at noon Saturday at the Herrett Center for Arts and Science in Twin Falls. Tickets are $13, and seating is limited. Reservations: 733-4678 or 736-8210.

Youth Orchestra helping us out in strings," Sinclair said.

One such member is 18-year-old violinist Danny Barsness, who joined this year.

"One reason I like being a part of the symphony is that even though I'm not currently taking lessons I get to work on my skills," he said. "I'm really excited about playing with Allen Vizzutti, who is one of the best trumpet players in the world."

Barsness said his favorite piece so far is Halsell's composition, because "it's really different. Some of it reminds me of 'Star Wars' music."

Another violinist, Patrick Barga, said his favorite piece this season is "Oblivion." "The melody has a haunting, bittersweet feeling to it, and it's really passionate," Barga said.

Expect good things from this season.

"Under Ted Hadley, the programs are a genius balance of the old and new," Sinclair said. "The upcoming concert reflects some very fancy lip and finger work. The violinists are playing with their entire upper body — their feet might be the only part of their body that's not playing."

Dialect coach, simple stage help one woman portray 23 'Syringa Tree' characters

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

HAILEY — A syringa tree in South Africa became a place of refuge for black people trying to hide from police. A place of refuge for spirits, when they died, to pass into the leaves so they remained with those they loved. And a place of refuge for a girl to go and think and to make sense of the chaos around her — from a nanny who needed to keep the birth of her child a secret, to a grandfather's brutal beating.

That syringa tree became the post on which Johannesburg native Pamela Gien hitched a powerful story about the love between two families — one black and one white — and their two children in 1960s South Africa.

It proved so stunning that it received the 2001 Obie Award for Best Play. And its telling engendered the praise of such celebrities as Oprah Winfrey, Paul Newman and Joanne Woodward.

Company of Fools will present "The Syringa Tree"

Denise Simone performs in the Company of Fools production of 'The Syringa Tree,' opening Wednesday in Hailey.

in Hailey, Wednesday through Nov. 8.

"It's a very powerful story that tells a story of history through the eyes of some memorable characters," said Joe Lavigne, the Fools' stage designer.

The one-woman show's story spans four generations from the days of apartheid, or racial segregation, in

In addition, the 10 front-row seats are $10 each, available for purchase the night of any show. There is also a group rate of $18 per person for groups of six or more.

South Africa to present-day free South Africa. It is told through the eyes of Elizabeth who is just 6 as the play opens, a few years after her country was cut loose from the British Empire and left to an uneasy alliance of former English and Dutch settlers.

In the course of the evening, the audience will experience the Africans' deep love of the land, the inhumanity of racism, and even an ultimate sacrifice — giving one's life for freedom — as thousands of black youth riot in protest of apartheid during the Soweto uprising of 1976.

"I think people will be amazed at the storytelling and charmed by the story," said director John Glenn. "It's a story with very universal themes, even though it's set in South Africa during apartheid. It has a big heart, great humor, a bit of a mystery. And it's a thriller, too!"

Fools artist Denise Simone will play 23 characters, from a Zulu neighbor next door who opens Elizabeth's eyes to the natural world, to a beloved nanny who gives birth to a baby girl whom she must hide from brutal police raids.

She'll do it without a change of clothes, without even a change of hats.

"In the course of one minute alone I play five different people, so there's no way I could make any costume changes," she said.

What Simone does change is her dialect.

She started diction classes with Boise State University dialect coach Ann Price in May, first listening to voices on tape, then spending nearly four hours at a time in class. Since, she has learned snatches of South African English, Afrikaans, Black South African and even Xhosa, a musical language with a clicking noise.

"Ann, who works with Idaho Shakespeare Festival in Boise, had to learn the dialects herself in order to teach me," Simone said. "She says I've now gotten the tiara for the most characters and dialects in a single show?"

The set by Dennis Rexroad is a simple one: a large wooden swing in front of a canvas on an angled stage. The canvas sweeps toward the sky, metaphorically serving as the trunk of the syringa tree. Steven Koehler has lit it to resemble an African sunset one moment and a blazing hot African day the next. Fools' music director R.L. Rowsey wrote simple marimba-type music, pairing it with the sound of barking dogs and planes flying overhead.

Simone said there are 80 scenes during the 95-minute play, which runs without an intermission.

"I've done nothing like this before," she said. "I've never experienced a play like this before. It's like a great campfire story told by an exceptional storyteller. It's fun, yet poignant — a really lovely play."

Delve – again – into the work of Idaho's favorite manly writer

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

KETCHUM — Ernest Hemingway could never have been politically correct. His sole objective was telling the truth.

And tell the truth he did — sometimes in language “as coarse as a woolen hunting shirt,” says Hemingway scholar Susan Beegel. In particular, he told about war in novels like “A Farewell to Arms.”

“He reminds us that wounded soldiers scream for the mercy of death, that a munitions factory explosion blows women workers into unrecognizable fragments, that invading armies practice rape and murder,” Beegel said.

Beegel, editor of the Hemingway Review, a joint publication of the University of Idaho and The Hemingway Society, will present insights concerning Hemingway's classic war novel at the Ernest Hemingway Symposium, Oct. 22 and 23 at The Community Library in Ketchum.

The free symposium will feature lectures by three Hemingway scholars, as well as a Hemingway Haunts Tour. And there will be an opportunity to enjoy an elegant five-course dinner and cocktails in Hemingway's last residence overlooking the Big Wood River in Ketchum for $1,000 a plate.

Here's the lineup:
6 p.m. Thursday: A lecture and book signing by Scott Donaldson, author of the new book “Fitzgerald & Hemingway: Works and Days.” The book analyzes the authors' differences: Hemingway wrestled with war and the violence of nature, while Fitzgerald satirized money and class. And their similarities: Both wrote fiction out of their personal experiences.

10 a.m. Oct. 23: Susan Beegel will discuss “Farewell to Arms.”

11:45 a.m. Oct. 23: David Earle, a Sun Valley native and son of Dr. Scott and Barbara Earle, will discuss the research he did for his book “All Man!: Hemingway, 1950s Men's Magazines and the Masculine Persona.” Earle, assistant professor of Transatlantic Modernism and Print Culture at the University of West Florida, reveals how sensationalistic pulp men's adventure magazines like “Rogue” and “Bachelor” portrayed Hemingway as a role model in a postwar period of hyper-masculinity.

2-4 p.m. Oct. 23: Sandra Hofferber, regional history librarian at The Community Library, leads the Hemingway Haunts Tour.

6 p.m. Oct. 24: Five-course dinner and cocktails at the house that Hemingway bought in 1959, two years before his death; includes presentations by those who knew Hemingway personally. Tickets are $1,000 and limited to 18. Proceeds benefit the Hemingway House and Preserve for upkeep.

Hemingway first came to Idaho in 1939 as one of the celebrities invited to the new Sun Valley Resort. He wrote “For Whom the Bell Tolls” in Room 206 in the Sun Valley Lodge before heading out every afternoon to hunt with friends like actor Gary Cooper. Hemingway wrote portions of “The Garden of Eden” and “A Moveable Feast” while standing at a desk in his house overlooking the Big Wood River.

The symposium is an obvious one for the Sun Valley area, given all the visitors who ask where they can see Hemingway sites, said Carrie Westergard, marketing director for the Sun Valley Chamber and Visitors Bureau.

The trip followed on the heels of two airplane crashes in Africa that nearly killed Hemingway.

Hemingway remains the most written about, most spoken about, author of his time, Beegel said.

“He wrote in a very clear, crisp, economical style that was absolutely revolutionary for his time. He changed the way we write if you compare his writing to the Victorian writers,” she said. “He's one of the most translated authors in the world and one of the top 30 authors in all languages in all time!”

“Hemingway still sells a million books a year — and that's pretty incredible,” Hofferber said. “I don't know that Shakespeare sells that many. Or Tolstoy, either, and those are the people Hemingway always compared himself to.”

Hofferber said the symposium could be as big as that of the Hemingway celebration in Key West if the business community would get behind it.

“We could have Hemingway look-alike contests and Hemingway restaurant specials. And bars could take a page from a new book just out called “To Have and

To Have Another — The Hemingway Bartender's Companion,” which describes the 152 different drinks Hemingway mentioned in his writings,” she said.

The symposium is sponsored by the Idaho Humanities Council, The Community Library, Sun Valley/Ketchum chamber, Atkinsons' Market, The Nature Conservancy and Iconoclast Books.

Ketchum center screens 'Red Gold'

Times-News

Thanks to last year's presidential election, most Americans have heard of Bristol Bay — the stunningly beautiful region in Alaska after which Sarah Palin named a daughter. But most are probably unaware of the battle brewing there over a proposed mine that would impact the two most prolific sockeye salmon runs left in the world, say promoters of a documentary to be screened in Ketchum.

The film “Red Gold” looks at one of the biggest land-use issues Alaska has ever faced. As part of its multidisciplinary project “Prospects: An Exploration of Mining,” the Sun Valley Center for the Arts is sponsoring a free screening of the film at 7 p.m. Wednesday at its Ketchum facility.

Colorado filmmakers Ben Wright and Travis Rummel teamed up with Lauren Oakes of Trout Unlimited Alaska to make the environmental documentary. Their statement: “Red Gold is more about the place and its people than facts and numbers. For the first time, Bristol Bay's subsistence, commercial and sport-fishing communities have

The film has won numerous awards, including the Director's Choice and Audience Choice awards at Three local writers have released a new collection of short stories, poetry and essays.

In "Voices from the Snake River Plain," Bonnie Dodge, Dixie Thomas Reale and Patricia Santos Marcantonio included tales that range from humorous to haunting, poignant to tragic.

"We tell stories about people who haven't yet found their own voice, or of those who have lost their voices along their travels," the authors wrote in their introduction.

Many of the selections were printed in other publications or won writing awards.

"This book is a small treasure ... In 'Voices from the Snake River Plain' we learn there is beauty in the landscape around us and people with stories to tell. And much to learn from both," author and radio essayist Diane Josephy Peavey wrote in the foreword.

Magic Valley Arts Council will sponsor a book launch from 7 to 9 p.m. Nov. 6 at the Full Moon Gallery on Twin Falls' Main Avenue.

Dodge, of Jerome, wrote "Miracles in the Desert," a book of essays, and "Life in this Magic Valley," a column for Ag Weekly. Her work has appeared in Sun Valley Magazine, Rawhide & Lace, Calico Trails and Clean Shot. She has won several regional and national writing awards.

Marcantonio, of Twin Falls, has won honors for her short stories and screenplays. Her children's book, "Red Ridin' in the Hood and Other Cuentos," earned the 2007 Anne Izard Storyteller's Choice Award; was an America's Award for Children's and Young Adult Literature commended title and an American Library Association starred review; and earned recommendations from Horn Book, Kirkus Reviews and Publishers Weekly.

Reale, of Jerome, published "Squirrel Pie and Other Morsels," a collection of short stories, and has short stories and nonfiction published in magazines including Dan River Anthology, Redneck Review, Slackwater Review, Nostalgia Magazine, Eclectic Lapidary, Meet Points, Broomstick, Rock and Gem and Petrified Watermelon Pickings.

Their new book was edited by Jennifer Sandmann of Burley, a freelance writer and editor. The collection was made possible in part by the Embodiment Grant of Boise.

The self-published book sells for $15 plus tax and postage, at otherbunch.wordpress.com.

GBC title win costly for Jerome

By David Bashore
Times-News writer

JEROME — The Great Basin Conference boys soccer championship match between Jerome and Wood River became unimportant the minute Sergio Martinez hit the turf.

Jerome went on to win 5-2 Thursday, but the Tigers' focus rested squarely on Martinez, the senior midfielder who collapsed in heap in the first half and was carried off with a bad ankle injury that may rule him out of next week's state tournament. "That's a big loss. It was a real kick to the stomach," said Jerome senior Gabriel Pulido, who scored a first-half hat trick to put the Tigers (19-1-0) up 3-1 at intermission. "A lot of the kids were down, but we had to go out and prove that we're still a good team."

Wood River defender Nathan Moses went down with a hip injury shortly after Martinez exited. He didn't return either, and his status for next week is up in the air as well.

With the double-elimination bracket format, playing so frequently proved to be too much for Wood River, while Jerome lamented the fact that it even had to play the game. Every other soccer district tournament in the state is a modified double-elimination, where a losing team can claim a berth to state but not a district championship.

In the second half both teams demonstrated a desire to protect star players, emptying the benches to play reserves and pulling players off the field.

ISU gives Zamberlin two-year extension

By Mark Liptak
Times-News Correspondent

POCATELLO — In what came as a surprise to some, Idaho State extended the contract of head football coach John Zamberlin for another two years, through the 2011 season.

Athletic director Jeff Tingey made the announcement at a packed press conference Thursday afternoon.

It has been a rough season for the winless Bengals (0-6).

Zamberlin

Earlier this week a member of the ISU faculty publicly called the football program "an embarrassment to the university." Zamberlin is 4-25 in his time at the school, but Tingey said other factors weighed in the extension equation.

"I understand the wins and losses," Tingey said. "But I also know that no football coach in school history has had to play the schedule that Coach Zamberlin has and it wasn't by his choosing. His willingness to do this without complaint has helped the entire athletic department economically and I appreciated his sacrifice."

"He has made changes in the program. ... Our student-athletes are going to class, our retention, eligibility and graduation rates are up."

There were seven football-player related incidents involving either the campus or Pocatello police in the past fiscal year at ISU. Tingey said five of those players are no longer in the program.

"Coach Zamberlin has standards that he adheres to. ... Just a few years ago the number of incidents was up to 17, so under his watch that's been cut almost in half. He has done a lot for the university."

Cutthroats knock off top-seeded Filer in 3A soccer

By Diane Philbin
Times-News writer

FILER — It was the Nellie and Ellie show as the No. 2-seeded Community School upset the top-seeded Filer Wildcats 2-1 in the girls championship game of the High Desert Soccer Conference tournament.

Nellie Brown scored a first-half goal and Ellie Swanson added one of her own in the 66th minute as the Cutthroats pulled the upset.

The first half was back and forth with each team marking the other's top scorers and both keepers making numerous saves. Brown's goal in the 20th minute was the only score of the half.

Swanson

"The first half was pretty sloppy with a lot of kick balls," said Community School coach Kelly Feldman. "And Filer was beating us to the ball. So the second half we were concentrating on winning and controlling the ball and trying to keep them on their heels."

After Swanson put the Cutthroats (12-4-2) up 2-0, Filer bounced back in the 73rd minute on a free kick by Candra Coelho. But the momentum and home-field advantage weren't enough for the Wildcats (12-3-5).

"We wanted the girls to be more aggressive on offense in the second half and all of the girls stepped up," said

Filer assistant coach Callae Marcellus. "We're just not getting the ball in the net and not capitalizing on good scoring opportunities."

Feldman praised goalie, Josie Bunce who aggressively came out of the net on the charging Filer attackers.

PREP RALLY

Spartans, Tigers try to stay alive in GBC race

By David Bashore
Times-News writer

JEROME — Minico's trip to Jerome would settle the Great Basin Conference.

Or so everyone thought. Instead, the Tigers' goal tonight is to wrap up the district's second seed in the Great 8. The Spartans have yet to punch their postseason ticket, but will with a win.

Neither team has been great. But don't tell the teams the game has lost its luster.

"It's 10 minutes into practice and I can already feel it. It's a different vibe this week," Jerome senior running back Ross Hillier said on Monday.

Not much has gone right for either team since Hillier's 11-yard touchdown catch as time expired in Jerome's 41-38 Class 4A state semifinal win last season in Rupert, the Tigers' first victory over Minico since 1997.

Hillcrest blew Jerome out in the state championship game, and the Tigers have a 3-4 record since beating Minico. Minico's 3-4 mark matches the combined regular-season loss count of its last four campaigns.

"I think it's really a case of both teams being in the same boat," said Jerome coach Gary Krumm. "We both had big expectations and a bit of unfulfilled promise. They're still trying to right the ship, and so are we. But they're scary — they're still Minico."

The smarting Spartans suffered an embarrassing overtime loss to Canyon Ridge last week but still harbors a chance of a conference

Canyon Quest: Declo, Pilots tangle for crown

By Ryan Howe
Times-News writer

The Canyon Conference title is on the line tonight in one of the most anticipated Class 2A football games of the season.

It will be a battle between two of the state's top-ranked teams as No. 1 Declo hosts No. 4 Glens Ferry at 7 p.m.

"It's a big week because we can seal a title for us in the Canyon Conference. If we lose, it would cause another Kansas City-style playoff like we had last year, and we don't really want that," said Declo senior Brandon Peterson.

Whatever statement Declo has made with its 6-0 start, the Hornets feel like they haven't said enough.

"We want to send a message to other teams around the state," said Declo senior Logan Knopp. "Glens Ferry has played Nampa Christian and Melba, so if we whoop (Glens Ferry), it would send a message."

In case anyone hasn't received the message yet, Declo is averaging more points per game (52.8) than all of its opponents have combined to score (52) this season.

"We play well as a team and trust everyone to do their assignments," said Peterson. "We trust our line and our blockers to do what they do and we have a good quarterback (Jeremy Jenkins) that leads us."

Declo's offense is difficult to stop, in part, because it's diverse. The Hornets run plays out of Wing-T, double wing, spread and empty backfield sets.

"We have hundreds of plays. If one thing's not working, we can go to another and find what's working against a team and go with it," Peterson said.

Glens Ferry at Declo

Glens Ferry (5-1) has also put together a solid season, and is eager to bounce back from last week's embarrassing 76-7 loss to Buhl, one of Class 3A's top teams.

"These (conference games) are the important games, the games we work all season long to get ready for," said Glens Ferry coach Rob Spriggs. "If you don't win these, your season's done."

The Pilots finish the regular season next week at home against the other Canyon Conference foe, Valley, which Declo whipped 55-7 last week.

Two-way starters Michael Crane, Terry Jacobson and Ross Arellano are expected to be back for the Pilots tonight after missing the Buhl game.

"I expect (Glens Ferry) to be one of our tougher games of the regular season," said Peterson. "I think people around the area know we have pretty good competition in the three teams in the Canyon Conference. Three of the best teams in the state and only two of them will get to go to the playoffs."

Times-News sports editor Mike Christensen contributed to this report.

High School High five

A look at five of this week's biggest prep football games

Buhl at Kimberly

7 p.m.

The skinny: Unbeaten Buhl (6-0, 2-0 SCIC) looks to end a two-game skid against Kimberly (4-2, 2-0), which has won three straight since a 1-2 start. The Indians will be without injured defensive leader Blake Finney, but have been simply dominant in 2009, outscoring foes by an average of 50-5.

Buhl coach Stacy Wilson: "The conference championship still runs through (Kimberly). They lost a great group of players and this year's group is just learning to take over. Those are big shoes to fill."

Kimberly coach Kirby Bright: "We've got to be perfect. Buhl's 6-0 for a reason. They're physical, they're quick, they execute well. We've really got to pick up our game, control the ball and limit our turnovers."

Twin Falls at Wood River

7 p.m.

Radio: MIX 103 (102.9 FM)
The skinny: It's the top vs. the bottom in this Great Basin matchup, as Twin Falls (3-3, 3-0 GBC) travels north to Wood River (1-5, 0-3). With a win, the Bruins are guaranteed at least a share of the conference title. TFHS has outscored its last two conference opponents 100-7.

Twin Falls coach Allyn Reynolds: "Now is the time of year that you've got to be playing your best ball. It's late in the season and we're thinking about making a playoff run. We want to come out and win convincingly."

Bonneville at Canyon Ridge

7 p.m.

Radio: 1270 AM KTFI
The skinny: Canyon Ridge (1-5) is riding high after its first win in school history. Non-conference foe Bonneville (3-3) is led by quarterback Parker Buck.

Canyon Ridge coach Bill Hicks: "The Bees are a darn good football team. ... They're fast, good sized, and very well coached. ... They've got a fullback (Creed Richardson) who drops a shoulder and runs hard. They're very fast on defense."

Wendell at Gooding

7 p.m.

The skinny: The rivalry game is bigger this year as District IV's third and final Class 3A state playoff spot is on the line as Gooding (2-4, 1-2 SCIC) hosts Wendell (2-4, 1-1 SCIC).
Gooding coach Cameron Andersen: "Everyone is taking it seriously and (the players) understand the importance of it. For a long time, this game hasn't meant this much, where both teams had it riding to add onto their season."

Wendell coach Brad Neuendorf: "It's pretty easy for our kids to get up for this game. There are some big implications and our kids are very excited about that chance. (Last week's 41-26 loss to Kimberly) has refocused us. We finally played good football last week and we're going to carry that momentum into this week."

Preston at Burley

7 p.m.

Radio: 1230 AM KBAR
The skinny: Burley (2-4, 2-2 GBC) steps out of conference play to face Preston (1-6), which beat the Bobcats 55-7 last year. After missing time with injury players Jaram Jones, Nelson Geary and Aaron Tolman back in the lineup.

Burley coach Eugene Kramer: "We match their speed really well. Physically, we've got to win the battle in the trenches. Offensively we will try to stay balanced as much as we can."

Chase Caulkins of Wood River and Jerome's Mikesell Clegg continued their winning ways Thursday, claiming victories at a cross country meet in Mountain Home.

Caulkins won the boys race by 20 seconds over Alex Schenk of Twin Falls, while Clegg took the girls title by five seconds over Canyon Ridge's Brianna Bowcut.

The Mountain View (Meridian) boys and girls both won the team titles. Jerome was third in each, with Twin Falls fourth.

Bruin spikers sweep Spartans

Twin Falls earns No. 1 seed for GBC tourney

RUPERT — B.J. Price didn't tell his volleyball team how important Thursday's regular-season finale was with Minico was.

He didn't have to. Led by Cheltzie Williams' 12 kills and six blocks, the Bruin players took control from the opening serve and won the Great Basin Conference's regular-season title by sweeping Minico 25-19, 25-16, 25-19.

Twin Falls (13-4, 10-0 GBC) earned the privilege of hosting the conference tournament, which begins Monday. Minico (10-4, 8-2) will enter as the No. 2 seed.

"Early in the season we set goals and from there, I really don't have to say much to them," Price said. "They know what they need to do and they know what they want. They're out there coaching each other and getting better as a group. It's fun to listen to."

Sophomore setter Allie Johnson had nine digs to go along with her 27 assists, which she dished out evenly among her teammates. Ariel Medina and Jaquelyn Corr each tallied seven kills and Josie Jordan had five. Libero Mallory Jund recorded 16 digs.

Minico fell behind early in each of the first two games. The Spartans briefly held their only lead of the match in Game 3, but couldn't hold on.

"(Twin Falls) served very well," said Minico coach Kris Christensen. "And we haven't had a team block us that well all season. Offensively I think the girls got frustrated to see so many blockers up in their faces."

Chelsea Hepworth led Minico with seven kills and six blocks. Setter Hayli Worthington had 16 assists with eight digs, Kendra Bailey tallied eight kills and Brecka Fetzer had eight digs.

"It was a tough loss, but next week is what's important," Christensen said. "We have to refocus and come back to the gym and get to work."

Said Price: "We have steps that we've been going through, and this is step one. We're not satisfied yet. The ladies understand there's more to it and they know step two starts next week."

CSI hitting final stretch in stride

Eagles host Western Wyo. and NIC

By David Bashore

The College of Southern Idaho volleyball team's task is simple: Keep winning.

Do that and the Golden Eagles will host the Region 18 Tournament and probably earn the No. 1 overall seed to the national tournament should they qualify.

They also hope to do a better job protecting their No. 1 national ranking than the last time they had it.

As the team prepares for the biggest hurdle on its three-week run-in to the region tournament, the expectations haven't wavered, and the players are rising to the challenge.

"The girls know what's at stake, and they want to make that path easier," said CSI coach Heidi Cartisser. "They look focused in practice, now it's just a matter of us playing out game."

At the Scenic West Athletic Conference schedule's midway point, CSI is tied with its two biggest title rivals. But both No. 3 North Idaho College and No. 5 Salt Lake Community College must come to Twin Falls in the second half, with NIC coming to town Saturday.

CSI beat Salt Lake last weekend, but lost to North Idaho in the SWAC opener. Since then, the Golden Eagles have gone five matches without defeat and reclaimed their swagger.

"A lot of it is just looking back to NIC and remembering what went wrong there," sophomore middle hitter Amanda Filiaga said. "We know we're a better team than they are. We have better ball control, better hitters ... hopefully this week's practice helps us."

The Golden Eagles are pulling out all the stops to try and make this weekend the focal point. Admission for fans to either match this weekend is $1.

That includes tonight's Dig Pin event against Western Wyoming Community College, a fundraiser for the Side-Out Foundation. But the real hope is that fans will pack the gym for North Idaho's visit on Saturday.

"(Tonight) is going to be a nice event, but we're putting all our focus on North Idaho," Cartisser said.

"This game will definitely be a confidence booster and will strengthen our team heading into state," said Brown. "We played together and really put in a lot of effort. This was for sure the most important game of our season."

Swanson, a freshman forward, echoed the thoughts of Brown adding, "This was a crazy game. But it will be good for us getting ready for state because the next games will be tougher."

The Community School opens the Class 3A state tournament at 11 a.m. next Thursday against the winner of a play-in game between American Falls and Payette.

"They have amazing coaches and great athletes," Marcellus said of the Cutthroats. "They always play better and different each time you play them. They play their positions well and make good passes and have good shooters."

BUHL 2, BLISS 0

BUHL — Buhl kept its state hopes alive with a 2-0 decision over Bliss in an elimination game.

Tyana Weaver and Skyler Barger scored for the Indians.

Weaver scored the lone goal of the first half on a long shot from outside the penalty area and Barger knocked in a Kim Juker shot that rebounded off the Bliss goalie.

"It was a really good game," said Buhl coach Araceli Perez Huicochea. "All 22 players got to play and everybody stepped it up."

Bliss ends its season at 5-10-1.

Buhl will travel to Filer on Saturday in a battle for District IV's second state berth.

Homer-happy Phils beat Dodgers

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Brad Lidge and the Philadelphia Phillies picked up where they left off a year ago against the Dodgers in the NL championship series.

Carlos Ruiz and Raul Ibanez hit three-run homers, reliever Ryan Madson got a key out and Lidge finished the Phillies' 8-6 victory over Los Angeles in Game 1 Thursday night.

Manny Ramirez homered, but grounded out weakly with two runners on against a struggling Madson to end the Dodgers' two-run rally in the eighth.

Lidge then worked around a single and a walk in the ninth, making him for 3 for 3 in save chances this postseason — he posted three saves against the Dodgers in last year's NLCS.

Lidge was perfect in save tries last season when the Phillies won the World Series, but led the majors with 11 blown opportunities this year.

Home runs dominated on both sides in a game that lasted 4 hours, 2 minutes. Ruiz highlighted a five-run burst in the fifth and Ibanez homered in the eighth for an 8-4 lead.

James Loney also connected for the Dodgers. Ramirez, baseball's all-time postseason home run leader with 29, hit a two-run shot.

Los Angeles will start Vicente Padilla against Philadelphia's Pedro Martinez on Friday afternoon in Game 2.

Philadelphia's Cole Hamels thrived under pressure last October, earning NLCS and World Series MVP honors. But the left-hander hardly resembled the same pitcher in earning the victory, giving up eight hits and four runs in 5 1-3 innings.

It was his first outing since he left the ballpark in the division series against Colorado to be with his wife as she prepared to give birth.

At 21 years and 211 days, Clayton Kershaw was the youngest pitcher ever to start a Game 1 in a league championship series, and it showed.

The Dodgers lefty was tagged for five runs in the bad fifth, when he set a LCS record for most wild pitches in an inning with three. He also tied the record for most wild pitches in a LCS game, shared by Tommy John and Juan Guzman.

Kershaw allowed four hits in 4 2-3 innings and walked five in his second postseason career start. He worked out of the bullpen in last year's NLCS, which the Dodgers lost 4-1 to the Phillies. He was 0-2 with a 5.23 ERA in two starts against them during the regular season.

The Dodgers' usually solid bullpen couldn't contain the Phils. George Sherrill, their fourth reliever of the game, gave up Ibanez's homer on the first pitch, the first homer off him by a left-handed hitter in 79 at-bats during the regular and postseasons. Ryan Howard and Jayson Werth drew consecutive walks to open the eighth.

The Dodgers got two runs back in the bottom half on Russell Martin's RBI single and a sacrifice fly by Rafael Furcal. They had the tying runs at first and third with two outs, but Madson won a showdown when Ramirez grounded to third.

Kershaw retired five of the previous six batters he faced before the Phillies got to him. Ibanez led off with a single and took second on a wild pitch before Kershaw walked Pedro Feliz. Ruiz sent a 2-1 pitch into the "Mannywood" section in left field for a 3-1 lead.

Jimmy Rollins reached on a fielder's choice, then advanced two bases on consecutive wild pitches. Chase Utley walked and Howard hit a two-run double, extending the Phillies' lead to 5-1. Howard passed Hall of Famer Mike Schmidt with his 17th postseason RBI, most in Phillies' history.

The Dodgers closed to 5-4 with three runs in the bottom half. Ramirez hit his first home run since Sept. 18, a drive into the left-field pavilion off Hamels. Martin, who led off with a double, scored on Andre Ethier's grounder.

Ramirez's RBIs gave him 78 in the postseason, putting him three away from breaking baseball's career record of 80 by Bernie Williams.

Los Angeles threatened in the sixth, loading the bases on consecutive singles by Loney and Ronnie Belliard off Hamels and a two-out walk to pinch-hitter Jim Thome by J.A. Happ. But Happ retired Furcal on a grounder to end the inning.

Limbaugh: Checketts approached me

ST. LOUIS — Conservative radio personality Rush Limbaugh lashed out at NFL union leader DeMaurice Smith, Al Sharpton, Jesse Jackson and the media a day after being dropped from a group trying to buy the St. Louis Rams.

On his syndicated show Thursday, Limbaugh said he was approached by St. Louis Blues chairman Dave Checketts earlier this year about participating in a Rams bid. Checketts assured him his involvement as a minority investor had been vetted by the NFL, he said. "I said to him at this meeting, 'Are you aware of the firestorm?' He said 'We wouldn't have approached you if we hadn't taken care of that,'" said Limbaugh, a conservative favorite who is reviled by many liberals.

Limbaugh added that Checketts had told him his involvement had been cleared at the "highest levels of the NFL."

NFL commissioner Roger Goodell and Colts owner Jim

Irsay each expressed misgivings this week at a league-wide meeting about Limbaugh's involvement, with Goodell saying Limbaugh had made "polarizing" comments and Irsay vowing to vote against him. On Wednesday, Checketts said Limbaugh had been dropped from the bid.

ANIMAL RIGHTS GROUP PLANS VICK PROTEST IN OAKLAND

OAKLAND, Calif. — A Bay Area animal rights group is planning a protest against Michael Vick before his game against the Oakland Raiders on Sunday.

The group In Defense of Animals says it will protest outside Oakland Coliseum before Vick plays his first road game for the Philadelphia Eagles since being reinstated to the NFL following an 18-month prison sentence for his involvement in a dogfighting ring. The group says Vick has not shown proper remorse.

IDA president Elliot Katz also wrote a letter to NFL commissioner Roger Goodell asking that dogfighting and cockfighting be specifically included in the "criminal offense" section of the league's Personal Conduct Policy.

GIANTS RB BRANDON JACOBS MIFFED ABOUT PRODUCTION

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Brandon Jacobs is one unhappy running back for the New York Giants, and not even five wins to open the season can change that.

Jacobs, who signed a four-year, $25 million contract in the offseason, ended an interview on Thursday after he felt he was asked too many questions about his season, which has seen him gain 355 yards on 100 carries. His 3.55 yard average is 1.45 yards less than a year ago.

Jacobs answered two questions about his season to start the interview, saying he takes the blame for what's happened while hinting there are other reasons his average is down. He said he was doing his best with his power style of running, adding he would be happy at the end of the season if his statistics matched last year (1,089 yards).

However, Jacobs' frustration bubbled up when he was asked about fellow running back Ahmad Bradshaw's success. The much quicker third-year back leads the team with 375 yards on 58 carries, a 6.5 yard average.

PACK QB RODGERS WON'T CRITICIZE POROUS PROTECTION

GREEN BAY, Wis. — Even after getting sacked a league-worst 20 times and taking plenty of hits in the Green Bay Packers' first four games, Aaron Rodgers isn't about to complain about his porous protection.

Despite spending too much time on the turf, the second-year starter isn't inclined to call out his line.

"It really doesn't do any good," Rodgers said Wednesday. "I trust those guys. I love those guys. They take care of me, I take care of them. That's the way it goes. We have a tight-knit relationship. Nothing gets done when you do something like that publicly."

Rodgers reiterated Wednesday that he has confidence in his linemen, adding that everyone on the team wants and needs to play better for the Packers (2-2) to hit the high expectations they carried into the season.

"We're all pros," Rodgers said. "We all hold ourselves to a standard of play, and I'd say myself and those guys included would probably all agree that personally, we haven't played up to our potential at all times. We all want to play better. We're going to play better."

No. 8 Cincinnati loses quarterback, but beats No. 21 USF

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Even with starting quarterback Tony Pike on the sideline, Cincinnati's quick-strike offense kept rolling.

The eighth-ranked Bearcats got two touchdown passes from Pike before he left in the third quarter with a sprained left wrist, then backup Zach Collaros ran 75 yards for a score in a 34-17 victory over No. 21 South Florida on Thursday night.

Collaros squirted through an opening in the middle of the defense for the long touchdown three plays after replacing Pike. The senior was injured late in the first half, then left after being hit as he released an incomplete pass on Cincinnati's first possession of the second half.

quarter, helping the Bearcats (6-0, 2-0 Big East) to a 17-10 halftime lead over South Florida (5-1, 1-1).

The Bulls led early on B.J. Daniels' 28-yard touchdown pass to Jessie Hester, and closed within 24-17 late in the third quarter when safety Nate Allen intercepted an ill-advised pass by Collaros to set up a 1-yard TD run by Daniels.

But Collaros, one of two freshmen quarterbacks who bailed Cincinnati out after two starters — Dustin Grutza and Pike — were injured early last season, was not rattled by the mistake. He came right back to lead a six-play, 70-yard scoring drive that restored the 14-point lead.

The big play in the march was a 43-yard completion to Ben Guidugli, who stretched out to get the ball over the goal line for an apparent touchdown. The tight end was penalized for taking his helmet off in the ensuing celebration, and things got worse for the Bearcats when officials reviewed the play and determined his elbow was down at the 1.

The penalty, which would have been walked off on the kickoff if it had been a touchdown, moved the ball back to the 16. After USF gave the stalled drive new life with a pass interference penalty on third down, Collaros scored on a 3-yard run, making it 31-17.

Collaros finished with 132 yards rushing on 10 carries. Pike, who threw a TD pass for the 16th consecutive game, was 12 of 25 for 140 yards without an interception.

Pike injured his non-throwing arm when he was hit as he released a pass on Cincinnati's last possession of the opening half. He went to the locker room ahead of his teammates, then returned for the first possession of the third quarter, wearing a protective sleeve over the wrist.

Last season, Pike broke his left forearm and played with a plate and six screws that are still in place.

Points leader Johnson wins pole at Charlotte

CONCORD, N.C. (AP) — Jimmie Johnson is returning to his dominant ways at the perfect time. His latest accomplishment: the fastest qualifying lap of the NASCAR season.

The three-time defending Sprint Cup champion and points leader looked the part Thursday, earning the pole at Lowe's Motor Speedway with a blistering lap of 192.376 mph.

Johnson's No. 48 Chevrolet had the best grip in the rain-delayed qualifying in unseasonably cool conditions.

Mark Martin, sitting second in points, will start second after a lap of 191.816 mph. Kasey Kahne qualified third, followed by Matt Kenseth and Tony Stewart.

Johnson took the points lead for the first time this season after winning Sunday at California. It was clear from the practice session Thursday that Johnson had the best car.

"We've still got 500 miles to run," Johnson said. "I think if we can lead a lot of laps, win the race, something along those lines will send a statement."

Qualifying was pushed back two hours because of intermittent rain. Sprint Cup teams didn't hit the track for practice until after dark, when Johnson dominated.

The cool conditions — the temperature dipped into the upper 40s before qualifying was over — led to the fastest times at any track this season.

The previous fastest lap was 190.907 by Dale Earnhardt Jr. at Texas. There were 29 drivers that bested Ryan Newman's pole speed of 188.475 mph from the May race at LMS.

Johnson, going out 11th of 47 cars, quickly showed he was the class of the field, coming close to the track record of 193.216 set by Elliott Sadler in 2005.

"Man, it's fast," Johnson said. "Whatever is going on with the tire combination right now and the track, there is a ton of grip."

Martin, going out 25th, came the closest to his teammate. He'll be on the front row Saturday sitting 12 points behind Johnson in the fifth of the 10 season-ending Chase races.

"An enormous amount of that speed was the track conditions," Martin said. "Surprisingly, it was really fast, grippy, for no rubber. Sometimes this place needs rubber to get better. I think it's going to be great."

Back from defense, Martin bolsters BSU running game

By Jeff Latzke
Associated Press writer

TULSA, Okla. — With a logjam in Boise State's backfield, Doug Martin had become expendable.

There were too many backs and not enough carries, and he ended up getting groomed into a new role on defense this season.

An injury and an illness later, he's once again an essential part of the Broncos' offense.

When D.J. Harper suffered a left knee injury in Boise State's third game of the season, coach Chris Petersen made the move to bring Martin back to the offense in what would be a bittersweet switch.

"It was real unfortunate that D.J. went down," said Martin, a sophomore from Stockton, Calif. "We're real good buddies. We've been buddies since I first got here.

"I'm just carrying the flag for him. It's been a really nice experience, and I'm just going to keep doing it for him."

Martin surpassed 100 yards rushing for the second time in three games when he ran for 112 in the Broncos' 28-21 win Wednesday night at Tulsa.

With Boise State (6-0) up only 15-14 at halftime, Petersen turned to Martin to carry the load in the second half. Martin got the ball 12 times on the Broncos' first two drives of the third quarter, and he made the most of it.

Martin ran around and through Tulsa's defense for 83 of his team's 104 yards rushing in the third quarter as Boise State scored the period's only 10 points. Petersen said he relied on Boise State running back Doug Martin runs through a tackle by Tulsa's John Destin Wednesday night in Tulsa, Okla. Boise State won 28-21.

Martin even more because starter Jeremy Avery was "under the weather."

"He's kind of a power runner and he'll break tackles and he'll slam it up in there," Petersen said. "I think he and Jeremy are a good 1-2 punch."

Martin had only 24 carries for 107 yards all of last season, but he made a mark elsewhere. He earned the "Hammer" award as the most physical special teams player on the team, then shifted to defense during spring practice.

He's slowly been taking on a bigger load since moving back to offense, getting 13 carries against Bowling Green and then 16 against UC Davis.

Martin carried the ball a career-high 23 times against Tulsa and was called on five straight times to start Boise State's second drive after halftime. He racked up 42 yards and also drew a 15-yard facemask penalty as he moved the Broncos into field goal range.

"It's a lot better. Last year, when I shared with (Ian Johnson) and D.J., it was like we couldn't get a rhythm," said Martin, who had a career-best 116 yards against Bowling Green. "I think it was a lot better getting play after play after play, getting the feel, getting the rhythm, the speed of the defense and just the speed of the game in general. I think it was a lot better that way."

Behind Martin's running, the Broncos were able to take control of the game and build a big enough lead that Tulsa (4-2) couldn't come back.

"The difference probably in the game was their ability to run the football, and they didn't do it by lining up and just running right at us," Tulsa coach Todd Graham said. "They did a lot of movement and things like that, and they're very, very well coached and do a great job of displacing you on defense."

Avery complemented Martin with 16 carries for 73 yards as the Broncos ran for 193 yards — just over the 191.6 yards they had been averaging.

"Doug's a good player. He's a hard-nosed player and fortunately for us, losing a guy like D.J. Harper, Doug is a similar type back to him," Petersen said. "He's a strong, tough runner and we were crushed when we lost D.J. But on a positive note, we really felt like Doug could pick up the baton and we wouldn't miss a beat, and he's a heck of a running back."

Idaho's Dickson 'picks' up his game

By Josh Wright
Times-News correspondent

MOSCOW — JoJo Dickson was taking in the merry scene after Idaho's home-opening win last month when San Diego State quarterback Ryan Lindley approached him.

Lindley had a simple message, one that apparently couldn't wait.

"I gave you a free one," he told Dickson, referring to the linebacker's gift interception and 74-yard touchdown return that afternoon.

Those words were in Dickson's mind as he tried to explain how he came up with yet another tide-turning interception in the Vandals' win at San Jose State last weekend. Yes, the junior was in the right place again, but this time it wasn't just a stroke of good fortune.

"It just happened the way I planned," Dickson said of his pick of Spartan quarterback Jordan La Secla. "I was kind of anticipating my route and the ball fell right into my hands."

Dickson's second pick of the Vandals' charm-filled season was merely another sign that things have finally fallen into place for the ponytailed Hawaiian. He put on close to 25 pounds in the offseason and now has strength to match his blistering speed.

In fact, Dickson insisted he hasn't lost a trace of quickness after bulking up from just shy of 210 pounds to 230.

"I feel just as fast, if not faster than I did last year," he said. "So yeah, I'm feeling good."

After an injury-riddled 2008 campaign, Dickson knew he needed to add weight to his 6-foot-2 frame to be able to fight off offensive linemen and remain durable. He stayed in Moscow during the summer and went through an intense training and eating regimen.

Looking back, Dickson can think of only one real downside to devoting his summer to getting bigger. "I spent a lot of money on food," he said with a grin.

The third-year contributor is second on the team with 33 tackles after his best performance of the season last week. More importantly, he's become a heady playmaker for a defense that has made startlingly few game-altering plays the past few seasons.

"JoJo's got some good playmaking ability," Idaho head coach Robb Akey said.

"He's played pretty well for us this season. He had a very good ballgame (against SJSU)."

Come Saturday, Dickson would no doubt be overjoyed to replicate his effort. The Western Athletic Conference-leading Vandals (5-1, 2-0) host Hawaii, Dickson's home-state school, in a 3 p.m. (MDT) affair.

SECONDARY CONCERNS

The Idaho defense isn't hemorrhaging yards and points like it did last year. But there are still reasons for concern, and at the head of the list is the shaky secondary. Idaho is 99th in the country in pass defense and 105th in pass efficiency of opposing quarterbacks. Akey pinned the problem on poor technique from defensive backs and an inconsistent pass rush.

When asked how to solve the issues, Akey said, "Don't give up as many (damn) big passes."

The Vandals' secondary will be tested this week against the Warriors, who average a WAC-best 372.2 passing yards per game.

CONFERENCE NOTES

The WAC is ranked ninth in Jeff Sagarin's computer conference power rankings, just behind the Mountain West Conference and ahead of Conference USA. ... After yielding 274 ground yards to Idaho last week, San Jose State has the unfortunate task on Saturday of trying to slow down Fresno State's Ryan Mathews. He is second in the nation to Stanford's Toby Gerhart in rushing yards (741) and averages 6.7 yards per carry. ... Aside from the job

Akey has done in Moscow, another candidate for WAC coach of the year has to be to New Mexico State's DeWayne Walker. After topping Utah State last week, the Aggies (3-3, 1-1) have already matched their win total from a year ago.

John will get us where we want this program to be."

Zamberlin said earlier this week said that the uncertainty of his contract situation was beginning to weigh on his mind. He expressed appreciation Thursday to those who remained in his corner.

"I want to thank Jeff and (Idaho State president Arthur) Vailas for this," said Zamberlin. "I appreciate their loyalty and I want to thank the fans who have supported us through tough times. I and my staff wanted the opportunity to keep doing this. We've put things in place. It will take a little more time, but we will turn this program into a consistent winner."

Zamberlin said the extension will help current players and be a boon to recruiting.

"I had a number of kids come to me when they heard there was going to be a press conference and ask what was going on," he said. "I know it's a big relief for everyone and we can now tell recruits that we're going to be here so they can join us in building this program."

Zamberlin and his staff have made it a point of emphasis to recruit Idaho players, including seven from the Magic Valley. He said he intends to continue that in-state focus.

The extension also means that for the first time in years every major athletics coach at ISU is under contract for at least the next two seasons, providing a measure of stability that has been missing.

"It gives us a more solid foundation," said Tingey. "It will help tremendously in recruiting and it has helped already in fundraising."

4A soccer

The match ended up 9 vs. 9, rather than the allotted 11 per side.

"We were both at that point where we just wanted to keep from getting anyone else hurt," said Jerome coach Robert Garcia. "We wanted both teams to be able to go to state strong."

Eduardo Akuri and Sergio Madrigal scored for Jerome in the second half, while Daniel Vargas got Wood River's reply. Morgan Pike scored in the first half for the Wolverines (13-3-3).

Jerome will open the Class 4A state tournament at Brothers Park in Caldwell on Thursday against the winner of a play-in match between Bonneville and Mountain Home. That match will be played in Twin Falls at 1 p.m., Saturday.

Wood River opens up against a familiar foe in District VI champion Hillcrest. The two teams played about two weeks ago in Idaho Falls with Wood River winning 3-2.

"It's going to be a tight game, and they're a very good team," said Wood River coach Luis Monjaras. "We're just trying to get healthy for state. That's where we're at right now."

kicks on Thursday. The Wood River girls soccer team made its tries. Twin Falls couldn't do the same.

After playing to a 2-2 draw in regulation and two scoreless 10-minute periods in extra time, the Wolverines (15-2-1) booted in three makes on penalties, while Twin Falls couldn't get a single shot past Wood River's keeper.

"Their goalie did a great job," said Twin Falls coach Katie Kauffman.

Four of the Bruins' five losses this season have come against the Wolverines, but Thursday's title match was the closest yet. Twin Falls led 2-1 until late in the second half.

"I was proud of the girls. They played an awesome game," said Kauffman. "They battled."

Claire Goss scored both goals for the Bruins (14-5-2), who will take District IV's No. 2 seed the next week's state tournament, facing District VI No. 1 Hillcrest in the first round.

Wood River opens state against the winner of a play-in between Blackfoot and Kuna. The play-in match is in Twin Falls at 3 p.m., Saturday.

2010 LINCOLN MKT CROSSOVER DISTINCTIVE New Luxury!

RoadWorthy!
By Ken Chester, Jr.
Motor News Media
Corporation

Offering customers a fresh new choice in the full-size luxury crossover segment, Lincoln is introducing the all-new 2010 Lincoln MKT. The new Lincoln features the automaker's signature design, inviting three-row interior and intuitive technologies that will make customers' lives easier - including available Adaptive Cruise Control, Collision Warning with Brake Support, Active Park Assist, Blind Spot monitoring - and more.

The MKT is an all-new three-row tourer that delivers the optimal blend of fuel economy, performance, technology and spaciousness.

"We're growing Lincoln's product portfolio with a full-size crossover that offers more of everything luxury buyers want today - including more variety," said Mark Fields, Ford's president of The Americas. "Lincoln MKT will help us further build momentum for Lincoln, which has been outpacing its luxury competitors and growing market share in recent months."

The all-new 2010 Lincoln MKT is larger than the two-row Lincoln MKX mid-size premium crossover and joins the sumptuous and sporty Lincoln MKS luxury sedan launched in 2008 and the new Lincoln MKZ sedan that hits the market in spring.

Standard on every Lincoln MKT is the brand's signature design - complete with a split waterfall

grille, a beveled chamfer along the vehicle's shoulder line, a flowing contrail that frames the greenhouse and full-width horizontal taillamps that span the subtly curved weight-saving magnesium liftgate that adds visual character while protecting generous rear cargo space.

Power for the new luxury crossover is provided by two fuel-efficient engine choices: the proven Duratec 3.7-liter V-6 or the new 3.5-liter V-6 EcoBoost® engine that delivers even more performance with estimated 355 horsepower, without compromising its V-6 fuel economy. Torque is communicated to the pavement through a six-speed SelectShift™ automatic transmission. This advanced gearbox offers the driver a choice between fully automatic operation and manual control.

All-wheel-drive is an available option with the standard 3.7-liter V-6. The AWD option enhances the vehicle's capability in a variety of weather conditions. The sophisticated AWD system is fully automatic, using an advanced array of internal electro-mechanical clutches to efficiently distribute torque between front and rear wheels as needed. AWD is standard in the Lincoln MKT with the EcoBoost 3.5-liter V-6.

Inside the cabin, precision craftsmanship is reflected in world-class panel margins, and in the high tactile quality of interior surfaces and trim. The Lincoln MKT delivers a new level of quiet confidence that delivers best-in-class levels of NVH control. Virtual modeling and wind tunnel tests helped engineers optimize the vehicle, influencing everything from side view mirror placement and special sound deadening in the bulkhead to extensive exhaust system isolation and the inclusion of both an acoustic windshield and dual-layer front side glass to specifically reduce A-pillar wind noise.

On the 3.5 EcoBoost V-6 equipped versions, engineers directed additional effort to minimizing induction noise, while still providing a rewarding aural cadence to Lincoln MKT acceleration.

The Lincoln MKT delivers abundant technologies aimed at making life luxurious for both the driver and three rows of passengers. A holistic approach was used to develop these amenities, where ease of use and intuitive operation were key objectives.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE® Bobby Wolff

"And now the matchless deed's achieved, Determined, dared, and done." — Christopher Smart

Of all the hands that won a BOLS brilliancy prize, few, if any, can have been so close to a unanimous choice as the winner of the 1985 award.

Put yourself in East's seat, defending against three no-trump. Declarer wins the first trick with the heart ace and leads a spade to the jack, as partner follows with the seven. Then South cashes the heart queen, partner suggesting an original holding of five cards, and leads the diamond king, partner showing an odd number of cards in that suit too.

Assuming that declarer has a 5-2-4-2 shape, what should today's East, Anders Brunzell, do next? Clearly a spade or diamond lead will achieve nothing. The simple move would be to play ace, king and a third club. However, when declarer crosses to the spade king, finds the bad news, and then takes dummy's heart winner, what would Brunzell discard then? If he pitches a spade or a diamond, it would cost two tricks, and a low-club discard would let declarer establish either the spades or the diamonds safely.

Accordingly, Brunzell switched to a low club at trick five, and West's nine drove out declarer's jack. Declarer duly cashed dummy's spade king, as West threw a heart, and then took the heart king, on which Brunzell discarded his club ace! South now cleared the spades, hoping the defensive communications were broken. On lead, Brunzell cashed the club king and led a low club to his partner for two down.

Dejected mother frets that son is forgotten overseas

DEAR ABBY: Before my son deployed to Afghanistan two months ago, his grandma, aunts and cousins all promised to send cards, letters and care packages.

So far, not one of them has stepped up to the plate. I am so frustrated I felt like crying as I was preparing a care package with his favorite cookies.

Abby, why do people make promises they can't keep?

— BROKENHEARTED MILITARY MOM

DEAR MILITARY MOM: The promises are often made with the best intentions — and then the promiser becomes distracted, diverted, forgetful. In most cases, no one means to be hurtful.

Because these forgetful folks are family members, my advice is to remind them of what a morale booster it would be for your son to hear from them. Suggest items he might need, and offer to send them along with YOUR next care package.

DEAR ABBY: My co-worker has the same last name as a deceased porn star. We work in customer service together, and she gets many suggestive comments and laughs from our male customers. She would like to respond with a witty comeback without being offensive or jeopardizing her job. Any suggestions?

— FRIEND OF LOVELACE

DEAR FRIEND: While it may be tempting for your co-worker to respond with a witty comeback, she should play it smart and resist the urge to acknowledge her male customers' attempts at humor. Once she starts "getting cute," it will only encourage more of the same.

DEAR ABBY: I am a directory assistance operator who would like to pass on some advice to our callers:

We do NOT know your Aunt Martha who lives behind the Kmart store, and we no longer sit in the back room at a switchboard at the local drugstore. We may not even be located in the state you are calling.

When you dial directory assistance, please be prepared to provide the city, state and the first and last names of the person whose number you need, or the complete name of the business. A street name helps for common names.

Please have your pencil and paper ready to write down the number. We cannot wait five minutes while you hunt through drawers or glove compartments, or worse, put the phone down to look in another room. Our contract with your phone company usually requires that we finish each call within a short time, and we can lose that contract if we cannot comply.

And please, do not swear at us or call us names if we are unable to help you. Our information is only as good as what's provided by your local carrier to our database. We really do try our best to help you.

Thanks, Abby, for helping spread this message on behalf of thousands of hard-working operators.

— SMILING INTO THE SPEAKER

DEAR SMILING: I'm pleased to pass along your commonsense suggestions. Because so much of the telephone information system has become automated, callers do need to have pencils handy and give clear information when requesting a number. And when someone is lucky enough to actually be connected to a living, breathing, flesh-and-blood human being (yes!), abusing the person is not only unproductive, it could get you disconnected.

IF OCTOBER 16 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: You may expect a year with plenty of opportunities for a permanent improvement in some sector of your life. You are more sensitive to outer influences during the next several months so must gather your friends and allies close and ask for advice when a decision is called for. Start your most precious plans in December, as you will have cosmic protection, or at least some very good counsel, to help you steer past possible pitfalls. A compelling relationship begun in January might lead to wedding bells if you are single — or you could use your excellent reputation as a stepping stone for a new job. This year look for things of lasting value and only accept affection that is proved over time.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Take advantage of an opportunity to make whoopee with a loved one. Love and romantic closeness can increase under these stars.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Loved ones may be generous with their affection. If romantic ardor has recently cooled off this is the time to restoke the fires.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Objectively handle small details and get them out of the way. Partners might expect you to handle responsibilities without supervision.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Understanding and cooperation are in the air, so it is an ideal time to strike a deal or set things right with an important someone.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Your passion for success can make the cash register ring. For singles on the prowl, instant gratification may prove to be expected.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): A plentitude of passionate stars may light the way to blissful hours with a loved one. You may get more than you bargained for.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22):

HOROSCOPE

Jeraldine Saunders

Amorous billing and cooing might be in the stars for happy lovebirds who share a roost. Put love at the top of your "to do" list.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Your cup runneth over with sex appeal, and you aren't afraid to show it. You can conquer any obstacle and overcome any objections.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Snuggle with the love of your life for a night of pleasure. Any affair that begins now may be filled with intoxicating chemistry.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Your actions can be mistaken for passion. Don't toss out any seductive gauntlets unless you are willing to follow through.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Social affairs run like clockwork, so be sure to mingle with others under these amiable stars. Ardent desires are in play.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Love is all in the mind. Romantic sparks can fly under these stars so a simple discussion could lead to an amorous entanglement.

people before taking his own life.

Ten years ago: A 7.1-magnitude earthquake in the Mojave Desert shook three states and derailed an Amtrak train, but caused no serious damage or injuries. Hurricane Irene rumbled up the East Coast. A New York Air National Guard plane rescued Dr. Jerri Nielsen from a South Pole research center after she'd spent five months isolated by the Antarctic winter, which forced her to treat herself for a breast lump. Writer and radio raconteur Jean Shepherd died on Sanibel Island, Fla., at age 78.

Five years ago: The Soyuz spacecraft was forced to manually dock with the international space station after it closed in on the station at a dangerously high speed. Pierre Salinger, a journalist who'd served as press secretary in the Kennedy and Johnson administrations, died in Le Thon, France, at age 79.

One year ago: A volatile Wall Street pulled off another stunning U-turn, transforming a 380-point loss for the Dow Jones industrial average into a 401-point gain.
