A majority of the barley in south-central Idaho is destined for the MillerCoors brewery in Golden, Colo. It's in the sprawling brewery that Idaho's fifth largest crop is transformed into the nation's largest selling consumer item: Beer. Day three follows the barley to the brewery.

Shoshone schools close for flu outbreak

By Damon Hunzeker
Times-News writer

Swine flu, or at least the suspicion of swine flu, has closed another school district in the Magic Valley.

On Monday Shoshone District Superintendent Mel Wiseman said district schools will be closed all week, following inordinate numbers of absent students.

"We had 47 elementary kids and 15 secondary kids gone this morning," Wiseman said. "That's out of 585 students, and we sent 15 more elementary kids home this afternoon."

While the South Central Public Health District has confirmed no cases of swine flu in the area, both Murtaugh and Oakley schools closed last week because of "flu-like symptoms," but then opened again for classes on Monday.

Wiseman said the district has heard about two cases in Bellevue of students with swine flu but said the reports came from "siblings or other students," rather than the health district.

Barley into beer

Shipping more than 83 million pounds of barley is hell.

And that's exactly what the MillerCoors elevator in Burley does each year — filling seven rail cars per day for shipment to Golden, Colo.

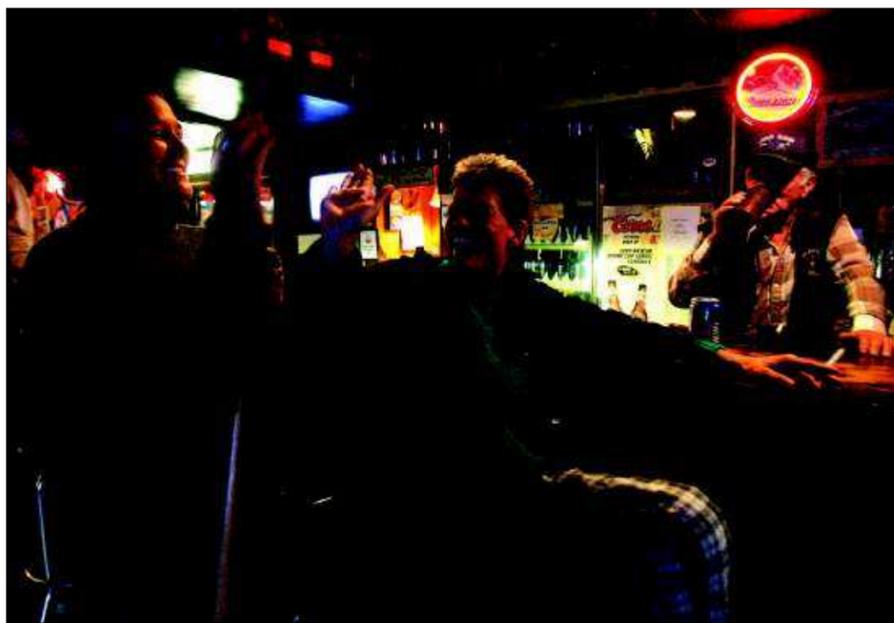

Sealed before shipment to prevent contamination, damage or early germination during the three-day trip, the cars wind 460 miles through three states over tracks of two railroads before reaching the end of their journey.

The only long stop is a layover in Evanston, Wyo., where more barley cars are added.

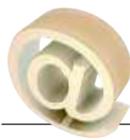

The painstaking process of shipping malt barley is time consuming and expensive. It is the single highest cost in the malting industry, and one that malters and the Idaho Barley Commission have been battling for decades.

"We're really trying to find ways to cut those costs, but what looks good on paper doesn't always look good in the end result," said Kelly Olson, Idaho Barley Commission administrator.

BURLEY — A Burley man charged with sex crimes against children after officials allegedly found more than 2,000 child porn images on his computer was bound over Monday to Cassia County 5th District Court.

Joel Riece Vore, 52, has been charged with one count of using a child in sexually exploitive material or possession of the material, one count of sexual exploitation of a child and two counts of enhancement for being a persistent violator, according to court records. Vore pleaded not guilty to the charges.

Vore waived his preliminary hearing in magistrate court Monday and will be arraigned in district court at 9 a.m., Nov. 10.

Blaine schools asking for $59.8 million levy

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

HAILEY — It won't raise taxes. But it will provide a local economic stimulus.

That's the message the Blaine County School District is trying to get out concerning its plant facility levy. The school district is asking voters to approve a $59.8 million levy on Oct. 29.

The levy would allow the school district to collect money for infrastructure needs over a 10-year period beginning in 2010. It would replace the existing levy, which expires next year. The plant facilities levy requires 55 percent voter approval, under a state law that provides a sliding scale for school districts' levy rates based on market value.

If approved, a property owner in Blaine County would pay 51 cents per $1,000 of assessed property value. Someone whose home is worth $400,000 would pay $150 per year after the homeowner's exemption is taken into account.

"Passage of the levy is very important to us to continue our systemic path toward becoming a model school district," said School Superintendent Lonnie Barber.

The levy would provide $10 million for technology, including

See LEVY, Main 2

WHY 55 PERCENT?

State law allows 55 percent approval for plant facility levies "if the levy will result in a total levy for school plant facilities and bonded indebtedness of less than two-tenths of 1 percent (or .2 percent) of market value" for the year preceding the election.

Blaine County District Business Manager Mike Chatterton said the district is one of the few in Idaho with "enough market value in the school district to qualify."

Fairfield man hangs self at Blaine Co. Jail

By Ariel Hansen
Times-News writer

HAILEY — A 23-year-old Fairfield man reportedly hanged himself at the Blaine County Detention Center early Saturday morning.

According to a press release from the Blaine County Sheriff's Office, Cody John Finch was in the Hailey jail awaiting transport to the Idaho Department of Corrections following a Sept. 28 sentencing for probation violations related to a Camas County burglary charge. He had been in the jail since June 29.

According to the sheriff's office, Finch was observed via video camera sitting on his bunk at 12:49 a.m., and earlier was seen walking around his cell and working on a puzzle. At 1:25 a.m., the jail's control personnel reported they couldn't see Finch, and a deputy went to his cell. At 1:31 a.m. he was found hanging from a sheet under an air vent in the toilet area of the cell, which is not visible on camera.

Deputies attempted life-saving procedures and called paramedics, who declared Finch dead at 2:04 a.m. An autopsy was conducted Monday, and Blaine County Coroner Russ Mikel said he found no signs the hanging was anything other than suicide.

"It appears to be totally self-inflicted," Mikel said. "We're looking into what might have motivated him."

Finch was in a cell by himself under administrative segregation, which Blaine County Sheriff's Lt. Jay Davis said was imposed by the jail because Finch fought and threatened other inmates.

"He was causing problems, and we needed to keep him away from other inmates," Davis said.

There was no sign that Finch was suicidal, he said, so he was not being observed with that in mind.

Davis said the last death in the jail was due to natural causes, in about 2004, and said he could remember only one suicide attempt in his time there; that incident was caught in time to prevent the suicidal man's death.

County prosecutor Jim Thomas reviewed the case Monday, and Davis said it is likely that an outside team, perhaps from the Tri-County Sheriff's Association representing 16 eastern Idaho counties, will be called in to assess policies and procedures.

"If there's anything that needs to be done differently it will be brought out," Davis said. "If somebody's really serious about getting it done and they don't let anybody know, it's hard to stop, sometimes."

"Our deepest sympathies go out to the family in this emotional time of tragedy, and we're sorry they have to go through these emotions," he said.

A family member contacted for this article declined comment on the death.

According to court records, Finch had been sentenced to three years fixed and three years indeterminate in the 2006 burglary charge in Camas County for which he was in jail for violating probation. He had a long history of entanglements with the law, including a dozen cases in Camas County dating to at least 2003 that include inattentive driving, assault and battery, violating a domestic protection order, possessing drug paraphernalia, and resisting or obstructing police officers.

He also has faced charges in Gooding County, Lincoln County and Blaine County, including driving under the influence and malicious injury to property. Several cases against him are sealed.

Convicted murderess' bid for relief slows

By Andrea Jackson
Times-News writer

Nicole Baker should be spared no relief from her prison sentence of 12 years to life for first-degree murder, according to the family of victim Jesse Coates.

A judge in Twin Falls Monday heard motions related to Baker's latest bid to escape her sentence.

Coates, 19, was found shot dead in the South Hills in December 2006. Baker, 25, and three men were locked up for the killing, which followed a robbery spree.

She was accused of being a cheerleader to the murder. She pleaded guilty and was sentenced on April 2, 2008. But in January she filed for post-conviction relief, saying "I plead guilty to something I did not do."

Coates' family says she shouldn't be trying to get off the hook.

"I would like to ask, when do we Jesse's family (or Jesse) get to file for any kind of 'relief' as Nicole Lea Baker is now doing," asked Coates' aunt, Shelly Coates, in a letter to Judge G. Richard Bevan filed Sept. 29.

Shelly Coates requested Bevan read that letter before Monday's hearing. After her imprisonment, Baker asserted in court records that her co-defendants had raped and tortured her.

And at Monday's hearing, Baker's lawyer, Joe Rockstahl, withdrew a motion for the county to pay for her psychological evaluation that would have been used to determine "whether she has a defense of duress."

Twin Falls County Prosecutor Grant Loeb called the motion "not a legitimate request."

Baker asserts that she should be relieved of her sentence because of "ineffective assistance of counsel" by her former public defender Tim Williams. She is lodged at the Pocatello Women's Correctional Center and did not attend Monday's hearing.

The two men convicted of first-degree murder for the homicide, James Roy John Jr. and Fredy Heredia Juarez will spend more than 60 years in prison combined. A third man, Michael Lee John, was convicted of second-degree murder and got 15 years to life.

Loeb wants Baker's post-conviction relief petition dismissed. A hearing on that is set for Nov. 2.

"How often must we have this wound torn open ... before the four murder(er)s must face the responsibility for their actions and serve their sentence," said Coates' aunt in her letter to the judge. "They made a conscious decision, as a group, to take Jesse into the South Hills and murder him."

Flu

"So we've had rumors thereof," he said.

Classes weren't scheduled for Friday, anyway, because of previously scheduled in-service.

"We hadn't used our emergency-closure days yet. Usually, in this country, they're used for snow days, but the state has issued some prerogatives allowing additional days," Wiseman said. "Our crisis team pulled together and felt like the flu-like symptoms were enough to shut the schools down, and that's what we're doing."

According to a recent press release from the health district, Idaho is one of 37 states reporting widespread influenza activity, and four people in the state have died from swine flu since Sept. 1.

The health district recommends staying home if you're sick, washing your hands frequently, coughing and sneezing in your sleeve, and staying at least six feet away from anyone who's sick.

The first shipment of swine-flu vaccine was received by the health district from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention last week. A mass vaccination was conducted in Murtuagh first, and spokeswoman Amy Lierman said vaccinations will be available in additional areas soon and will be announced accordingly.

"We sent a form home to parents, so we'd know how many doses we'll need. If we can get that form back by Monday, we'd sure appreciate it," Wiseman said.

Levy

state-of-the-art Promethean Boards, a fiber optic network between every building in the district and the opportunity to replace computer systems every five years. Four million of that money will be set aside to purchase new technology as it materializes.

- It would provide $2.3 million to ensure student safety with a system where officials could lock down school with the push of a keystroke and high-definition security cameras at each school that police can monitor during crises.
- It would provide high-efficiency heating and air conditioning systems, fire sprinkler systems in buildings that do not have them, heating and ventilation systems in schools such as Hemingway and Bellevue that have air quality issues, irrigation system improvements to conserve water usage, auditorium improvements at the Community Campus, a new elementary school, eight additional classes rooms at the Wood River Middle School, a maintenance and food storage facility, site improvements at Carey and a cafeteria at Bellevue Elementary School, which does not have one.

Passage of the levy would allow the district to use its general operating budget for teachers and curriculum. And it would enable the district to keep from paying interest on loans for needed repairs.

Homeowners would actually notice a decrease in the current tax rate amount of property taxes they pay for schools because the levy is less than the $62 million they're paying on a previous levy and bond, said Mike Chatterton, the district's business manager.

The district will not build a new elementary school or expand the middle school if student numbers dip, he added.

KAREN BOSSICK/For the Times-News
Tyler Kino works a Smart Board, a touch-sensitive board that employs voice, games and other features to enhance learning.

But historically school enrollment in the Wood River Valley increases during recessions, Chatterton said. And enrollment is up 46 students this year. Some parents move to the Wood River Valley specifically to take advantage of the schools here, he added.

"There is a lot of perception that the district won't grow anymore, that enrollment will decline," he said. "When market values slow down, our enrollment jumps because more people feel like they can afford to live here. In fact, we're projecting our enrollment will increase more in the next few years than it has in the past four years."

Right now the district has only one empty classroom—at Hailey Elementary, he added. Hemingway Elementary is maxed out and Bellevue and Woodside are 85 percent full.

"We'll hold off as long as we can," Chatterton said. "But we're projecting we will need a new school by 2014. If we don't, we won't collect the $14 million we've earmarked for that school. We'll give it back. The school district has a history of being a good steward—it declined to collect more than $30 million it was entitled to over the past 15 years."

The school district could buy a lot of laptops for $10 million, noted Sun Valley resident Paul Connolly.

But, Chatterton said, technology is crucial to educating students in an increasingly technological world. Right now, he said, the district replaces computers every seven years—and the computers are "completely worn out by that time."

"Based on the dollar we spend per pupil we're still not where we need to be technologically," said Wood River High School social studies teacher James Foster. "Teachers are not just telling information anymore. Today's classroom is about the student exploring and researching the answers to his or her questions via the computer. We need to have a future where every student has access to a computer. Right now we have four computers in one classroom, two in another, a laptop somewhere else."

Chatterton says the most frequent complaints he's heard about the levy is its commitment to green. It's something that puzzles him because so many community members stressed the need for the school district to be at the forefront of the green movement as the community was drawing up the proposed levy.

McKinstry, an environmental consultant firm, estimates the district can save between $300,000 and $500,000 a year—or more than $11 million over the next 20 years—by employing such conservation methods as software that would turn computers off, water conservation, and

TO VOTE

Polls will be open from noon to 9 p.m. Oct. 29, at Bellevue, Carey, Hailey, Hemingway and Woodside elementary schools. Absentee votes may be cast at the school district office at 118 W. Bullion St., in Hailey through Oct. 28.

trash compacting. The district has also applied for a $5 million grant from the federal government to research using geothermal energy to heat its elementary schools. And it plans to apply for a grant for a pilot solar project to see if it's feasible to heat the middle school completely with solar.

Hillary Neely, who runs Footlite Dance Centre, said she is excited about the prospects of refurbishing the Community Campus auditorium, which is used by school groups and community organizations.

"It's not very useable right now. It's old and antiquated," she said.

But a number of people, including Sun Valley resident Mary Thiessen, wish the school district would wait until the economy recovers to ask voters to approve a new levy.

"The timing's wrong to hold a massive levy at a time when people are trying to hold onto their jobs," Thiessen said. "The school district will definitely have needs it needs to take care of in time. But why not a two-year levy now, instead of a 10-year levy?"

Chatterton said the school district can't put planning on hold just because the economy is bad.

"No doubt the economy is bad. But it's not going to stay bad forever," he said. "And we've made a commitment to do what we have to do, using as many local contractors and suppliers as possible so we'll be putting at the money we spend right back into the community."

Vore

Some of the images allegedly recovered from Vore's computers depict children who were victimized by Leslie Peter Bowcut, formerly of Burley, said Cassia County Prosecutor Al Barrus.

"They never go away," Barrus said. "The fact is that pictures from a case 10 years ago are still circulating. They will still be around after her (the victim's) lifetime is over. I argued at the time that the harm would continue."

According to Vore's court records, detectives allegedly found 2,651 images of child pornography in his possession and the pictures were sent to the National Center for Missing & Exploited Children, which identified some of the victims in the pictures.

Vore is being held at the Mini-Cassia Criminal Justice Center on a $250,000 bond. If convicted he could be sentenced to 25 years in prison and up to life on the enhancement charges.

Readers' Magic Valley ghost stories

A week ago, I asked you to share your Magic Valley ghost stories with me, just in time for Halloween.

It's scary how many of you have responded:

THE BLUE LIGHT

Gail Stigel, Shoshone

"I grew up on a farm 10 miles north of Rupert. Two of my dad's brothers also had farms north of Paul, at the base of Kimama Butte. This story happened about 1963 at my Uncle Wes' farm.

"My cousin, Lynn and I had just checked some of the sprinkler pipes in one field, left the pickup at the end of the field and had walked up to the pump about 100 yards up into the field. It was midday and fairly warm so Lynn told me to wait on the pump platform and he would walk down and drive the pickup up to me. (He was just learning to drive so any excuse to put miles on was taken.) I sat in the shade of the pump canopy and watched him walk down the trail.

"Pretty soon I saw a bright blue ball of light, about the size of a baseball, following him and floating about one or two feet off the ground. I just sat and stared at it. When he got to the pickup, the ball just floated up over his back and off into the air and vanished. It didn't scare me, I was just curious.

"When he brought the car back to me, I told him what I saw and this is the story he then told me. He said that years ago when this area was just beginning to be homesteaded and the homes and barns were nothing but sod shanties dug into the hill-sides, there was one family that had a young child, about 7 or 8 years old. It was a bad winter with deep, deep snow drifts. This family had a sod home and a sod barn near-by that housed their one cow and their two horses.

"There was a terrible storm one night and the wind was blowing so badly that you couldn't see your hand in front of your face. For some reason, I forget now what it was he said, but the child had to go out to the barn and he took a lantern to light his way.

"Well, he never came back.

"The parents called for the child and looked for him as much as they could during the night, gave up and waited 'til the next day. The storm stopped and everyone looked for the child for days, never finding him. They never found any trace of this child even the next spring.

"The story now goes that sometimes people will see a blue light out in that part of the desert, bobbing a few feet above the ground, about the height of a lantern being held by a small child. I guess that's what I saw.

"Now, I do believe in things that go bump in the night, but I am still very willing to debunk the scams out there, so I don't remember if I actually saw the light and then Lynn told me the story, or if Lynn told me the story and then I saw the light (sun and heat waves reflecting off the hot bare ground). All I know is that I actually did see that blue light.

Sturgeon poacher to pay $2,050

Withers given 4 years probation

By Nate Poppino
Times-News writer

A Buhl man who pleaded guilty in August to poaching three Snake River sturgeon will pay $2,050 in fines and fees and serve four years probation for his felony crime.

Fifth District Judge Randy Stoker on Monday also ordered Thomas B. Withers, 31, to perform 40 hours of community service in a misdemeanor work program and revoked his fishing license for the full four years.

"It's a victory for wildlife, which is what we're here to protect," said Meghan Roos, the Fish and Game conservation officer who arrested Withers several months ago.

According to Roos' affidavit, Withers allegedly caught the fish in the Snake River on June 13 and took them to his house, where he kept them in a bathtub of water before deciding to "get rid" of them in a ditch across the street.

Harvesting sturgeon is illegal statewide, and the fish have already been declared endangered in the Kootenai River in north Idaho. In a statement before sentencing Monday, Roos told the judge that the fish rarely reproduce in the stretch of the Snake River that Withers fished; the three he took were a "fairly large" number from her agency's perspective.

Even Stoker said he wondered why he was handling a felony sentencing for three fish. But by the end of the hearing, both the judge and Withers said they understood the severity of the crime. If Withers, who has a long history of misdemeanors, violates probation he'll have to serve one to three years in prison, Stoker said.

Withers said afterward he knew when he took the fish that it was illegal, but he just wanted some food. He concluded he received a "pretty fair" sentence, and said he intends to end his regular court appearances.

"I'm sick of this," he said.

Meanwhile, Roos complimented prosecutors and the judge for following the case through, noting she's heard from numerous sportsmen angry about the poaching. Many prosecutors in rural areas won't take on felony fish-poaching cases, she said, whether for political or other reasons.

"There's a lot more to the story than 'this guy took three fish,'" she said.

Hansen man accused of voting illegally

By Ariel Hansen
Times-News writer

HAILEY - In an unusual case, Walter Coiner, 56, has been charged in Blaine County with illegal voting or interference with an election.

Coiner, who has addresses in Ketchum and in Hansen, where he is a partner in the Hollyberry Nursery, has been accused of voting via absentee ballot in Twin Falls County on Oct. 30, 2008, and then voting again in person in Blaine County on Nov. 4, 2008.

Coiner first appeared in court in Hailey on Monday, where his attorney, Keith Roark, requested the disqualification of Judge Ted Israel. Judge Jason Walker will take the case from here, including Coiner's scheduled Nov. 10 arraignment.

The code under which Coiner is charged makes voting twice in the same election a felony, as well as tampering with ballots or election results, interfering with voters, destroying ballots, or voting when not entitled to. The crime is punishable with up to five years in prison and a $1,000 fine.

Kimberly candidate forum tonight

The Kimberly Business Owners Association is sponsoring a "meet the candidates" event this evening, giving city residents a chance to talk to the people running for City Council.

The event will be from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Kimberly Middle School multipurpose room, 525 Center St. W.

This year, incumbents George Plew and Warren Wade are defending their four-year council seats from Jesse Harrell, Brandon Hoobler and Burke Richman. Ked Wills, appointed in January, is unopposed as he runs for his two-year seat.

Law & Disorder... in Cassia County

From Sept. 24 police reports: Battery, et cetera:

Sandra Hotchkiss, 26, was incapacitated with a Taser and arrested for battery, obstruction, and property damage after a series of unusual events in a Burley trailer park.

According to the report, the following occurred at the residence of her daughter's father:

Deputy Terry Higley responded to an alleged domestic incident at the trailer and found Hotchkiss "coming down the stairs and she was waving her arms around." She threw something, later discovered to be a rock, at "one of the males that was standing on the porch." Hotchkiss was reportedly yelling at the males, then looked at Higley and got into her car.

"I ordered this female to get out of her vehicle and she then started the car. I pulled out my tazer and reached in through the window and told her to shut the car off and she didn't comply," the report reads. "This female then went to put the car in gear and I discharged my tazer that was pointed in between her shoulder blades. Once I deployed my tazer this female let off the clutch and the vehicle died. I opened the car door and used the arm bar take-down to place this female on the ground."

Hotchkiss wasn't deterred for long, according to the report — which describes her as continuing to "kick and move around" while on the ground and remain combative after she was secured in handcuffs.

A witness reportedly said Hotchkiss

Another witness said Hotchkiss attacked the man four times before Higley arrived, bit through the skin on his arm, and "had been throwing rocks and punching him."

One of the rocks reportedly broke a glass door. She also allegedly knocked the victim's glasses off of his face and bent the frames.

Follow the barley

Olson said the industry is subject to the only mainline railroad in Idaho — the Union Pacific Railroad. Currently, the Eastern Idaho Railroad Co. carries about 47 rail cars brimming with barley to a mainline junction in Minidoka, where it waits for the Union Pacific to complete the remaining two days of the journey.

Its arrival at the MillerCoors brewery is uneventful — it's simply dumped into an elevator with barley from Montana, Wyoming and Colorado.

The 3,000 employees of the five-mile-long brewery never stop making beer — processing an average of 25 truckloads of barley each day.

That means the massive plant turns out the equivalent of more than 119.4 million bottles of beer each day, and is now running near capacity.

Once the flagship of the Coors dynasty, the Golden brewery is now part of a much larger company created by a 2008 joint venture between Molson Coors and SAB Miller — formerly two bitter rivals.

Brewery officials are tightlipped about the merger's impact on operations, saying only that more barley is being malted at the facility than before the merger.

"You have to keep in mind that besides malting barley for our own beer, we also have contracts to provide malt to other breweries," said Wade Malchow, manager and director of the MillerCoors barley program.

Many smaller breweries buy malted barley from companies such as MillerCoors, Anheuser-Busch and Great Western based in Vancouver, Wash., because the malting process is costly and complicated.

• • •

"Barley is to beer as grapes are to wine. Good barley makes good beer and that begins with our growers."

— Pete Coors, chairman of the MillerCoors brewing company and great-grandson of Coors founder Adolph Coors

At MillerCoors, malting begins with soaking tons of barley in 50 aluminum tanks, each more than 10 stories tall.

The barley then falls through trap doors into vats the size of freight cars, where augers slowly churn it as it germinates for a week. When the grain starts to sprout, it is dumped into ovens as wide as a rural road and as long as an 18-wheel truck.

The result is a brown, brittle kernel that is the main ingredient in beer.

"It's a big part of our operations, but we have to do it to control the quality of our beer," said Keith Villa, MillerCoors' brewmaster. "In our case, the lighter the beer, the more exacting we have to be with our ingredients."

Villa, who holds a doctorate in brewing from the University of Belgium, created Blue Moon and other small-batch beers. He said craft breweries often mask flaws in beer by adding hops, which gives a bitter taste.

But flavor and color are harder to manipulate in lighter beers — making quality barley an important part of the Coors recipe.

"Barley is to beer as grapes are to wine," said Pete Coors, chairman of the MillerCoors brewing company and great-grandson of Coors founder Adolph Coors. "Good barley makes good beer and that begins with our growers."

Barley generated more than $372 million in total sales in Idaho during 2008 — a 62 percent increase over the prior year. That makes it the state's fastest-growing agricultural commodity, according to the Idaho State Department of Agriculture.

"Without the malters, we wouldn't be able to grow barley," said Ron Elkin, co-owner of the farm that cultivates thousands of acres on a ridge overlooking the Snake River Canyon.

"The contracts take away a lot of the risk and the malting industry offers a premium for good crops."

It's also largely recession proof.

Where dairy prices have fallen more than 70 percent in the past two years, the value of malt barley contracts increased 62 percent.

Meanwhile, farmers are taking advantage of new strains of barley to produce far higher yields on less land.

Farmers in Idaho, Colorado, Montana, Wyoming and North Dakota have reduced barley acreage by more than 1 million acres since 2000.

And the ranks of barley farmers are also shrinking. The current generation of many farm families — including some who have grown beer barley for generations — are leaving the business.

Idaho farmers say it's all part of a larger trend, where fewer young people are farming.

"It's to the point that people who are successful in this business can be successful in more profitable careers," Elkin said.

"Nowadays, farmers

Grain cars sit idle in Wyoming, mid-way in a three-state journey from Burley to the MillerCoors brewery in Golden, Colo.

need a strong background in marketing and business — I think young people just don't think this kind of life is worth it."

That means larger contracts in fewer hands in Idaho.

Idaho growers say they don't plan to increase acreage for more malt barley.

But they are planning to invest more in research that will increase the yield per acre even more.

However, if growth continues in the malting industry, barley could become more of a staple of Idaho ag.

"If it continues like this, we will probably replace our wheat with barley," said Ron's father, Pat.

"Why not? This is what we're good at."

On U.S. Highway 30 west of Buhl, barley grown on the Elkin/Eckert farm near Hagerman returns home in the form of Coors beer sold at the Black Bear Bar.

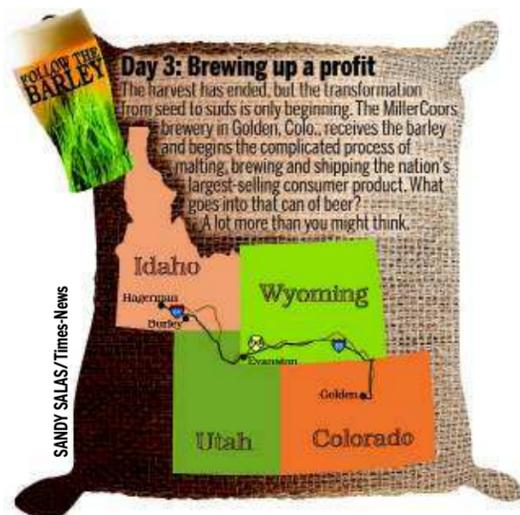

Take your pick. The labels of each beer made at the MillerCoors Brewery hang at the entrance of the Colorado facility. Idaho barley is a key ingredient in each of these brews.

Day 1: Banking on a bumper crop

Contracts are signed and the seeds are in the ground. But farmers will fight unpredictable weather to take this crop to the bank. Idaho has become the second-largest producer of malt barley for the nation's largest breweries, valued at $372 million and employing more than 4,700 people.

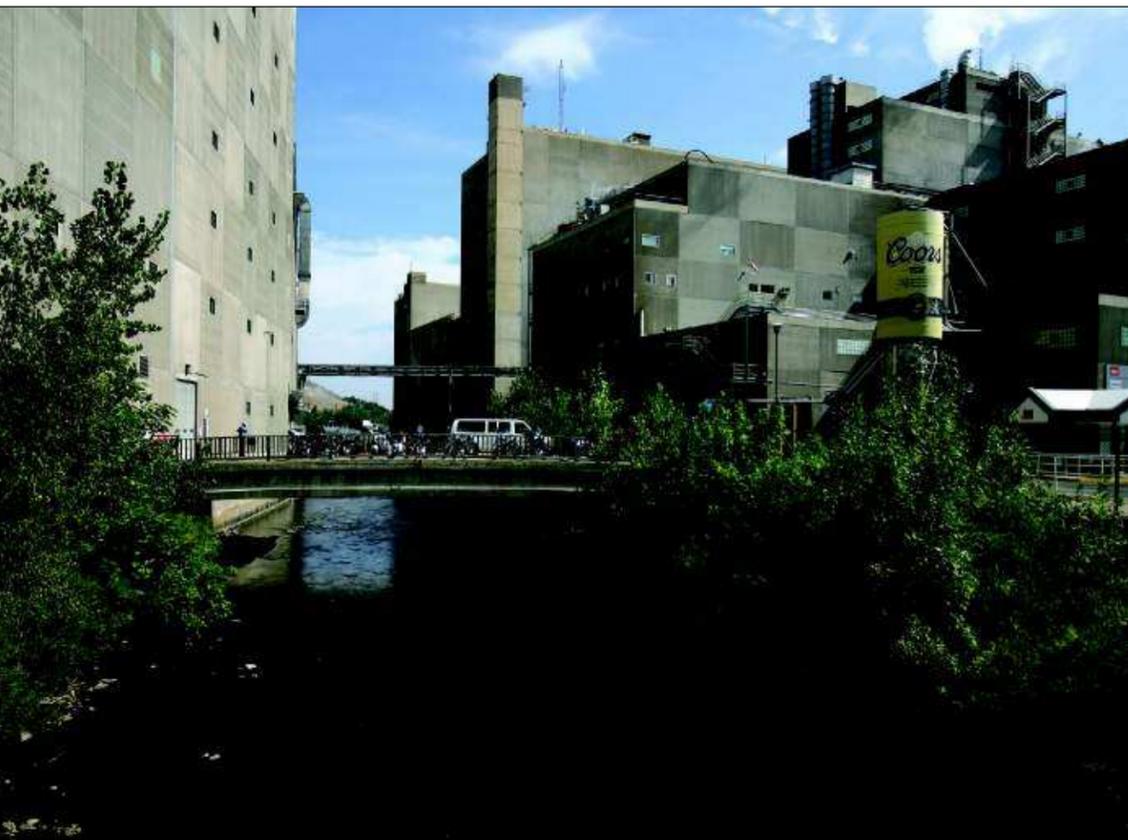

Day 2: A harvest of massive porportions

Moving hundreds of millions of pounds of barley is daunting and downright messy. The MillerCoors elevator in Burley becomes a flashpoint during a two-month harvest of more than 83 million pounds of barley. Despite the hard work and less than cozy conditions, some in the industry wouldn't trade it for anything else.

WASHINGTON
Government won't prosecute medical marijuana users if they comply with law

Pot-smoking patients or their sanctioned suppliers should not be targeted for federal prosecution in states that allow medical marijuana, prosecutors were told Monday in a new policy memo issued by the Justice Department.

Under the policy spelled out in a three-page legal memo, federal prosecutors are being told it is not a good use of their time to arrest people who use or provide medical marijuana in strict compliance with state law.

The guidelines issued by the department do, however, make it clear that federal agents will go after people whose marijuana distribution goes beyond what is permitted under state law or use medical marijuana as a cover for other crimes.

The memo advises prosecutors they "should not focus federal resources in your states on individuals whose actions are in clear and unambiguous compliance with existing state laws providing for the medical use of marijuana."

The new policy is a significant departure from the Bush administration, which insisted it would continue to enforce federal anti-pot laws regardless of state codes.

Astronomers find 32 new planets outside solar system

European astronomers have found 32 new planets outside our solar system, adding evidence to the theory that the universe has many places where life could develop.

Scientists using the European Southern Observatory telescope didn't find any planets quite the size of Earth or any that seemed habitable or even unusual. But their announcement increased the number of planets discovered outside the solar system to more than 400.

Six of the newly found planets are several times bigger than Earth, increasing the population of so-called super-Earths by more than 30 percent. Most planets discovered so far are far bigger, Jupiter-sized or even larger.

Two of the newly discovered planets were as small as five times the size of Earth and one was up to five times larger than Jupiter.

Astronomer Stephane Udry of the University of Geneva said the results support the theory that planet formation is common, especially around the most common types of stars.

Hospitals limit who can visit to try to fend off swine flu

Visiting a loved one in the hospital? Better check on new flu limits first. Hospitals around the country are turning away visiting children and tightening restrictions on adults, too, in hopes of limiting spread of swine flu in the hallways — although there's little science the limits work.

Utah and Colorado are recommending visitor limits for hospitals statewide. But mostly it's a hospital-by-hospital decision, meaning clinics in the same town can have different rules.

The result? Huge variation. The large Stanford University Hospital in California on Monday barred anyone under 16 from visiting, while the small Central Vermont Hospital turned away the under-12 crowd. Other hospitals have settled on 14 or 18.

The Indiana Heart Hospital announced it isn't checking for age but for symptoms: Visitors are supposed to answer some questions and wear a green sticker showing they were cleared to enter.

In the Washington, D.C., suburbs, the Inova Health System hospital chain is warning pregnant women they can have just one visitor during their stay in the maternity ward, and it has canceled its popular what-to-expect tours for the soon-to-deliver.

NEW YORK
Gas prices up in Oct., surprising many

Despite persistently low demand, prices for gasoline have spiked over the past week along with crude oil, threatening one of the very few points of relief for the recession-stricken U.S. consumer: Cheap gas.

That may be frustrating for consumers with few signs people are driving more now than during what was a dismal summer for the travel industry. People aren't buying much gasoline.

"I wish it could go down under $2," said Cheryl Couture, 50, who was filling up at a Speedway station in Columbus, Ohio, where a gallon had risen to $2.55.

Couture has watched as gas prices have ticked higher. Prices have risen for three straight weeks, reaching a national average of $2.574 per gallon of unleaded regular, the Energy Information Administration said Monday.

Balloon boy charges may not come until next week

By P. Solomon Banda
Associated Press writer

FORT COLLINS, Colo. — Investigators pored over e-mails, phone records and financial documents from the home of Richard Heene on Monday as they weighed felony charges and sought to determine who else might have helped the alleged balloon-boy hoax get off the ground.

The sheriff's office said its findings will be forwarded to prosecutors next week to decide if Richard and Mayumi Heene should be charged with falsely reporting that their 6-year-old child had drifted away in a large home-built helium balloon to drum up publicity for a reality TV show.

But the investigation could reach beyond the Heenes, possibly into the world of reality-show promotions. Larimer County Sheriff Jim Alderden said documents show that a media outlet had agreed to pay the Heenes. Alderden did not name the organization but said it was in an industry that blurs "the line between entertainment and news."

It was not clear whether the deal was signed before or after the alleged hoax, or whether the media outlet was a possible conspirator. If so, the organization could face charges as well.

The Heenes are amateur storm chasers who apparently wanted to star in a reality show that focused on a range of absurd experiments, such as attracting UFOs with a weather balloon, launching a model rocket into space and conducting an electromagnetic analysis of a terminally ill patient's spirit before death.

Robert Thomas, a collaborator who worked with Richard Heene on the idea, provided an e-mail to the Web site Gawker.com outlining his plan for the show. The sheriff's department questioned Thomas on Sunday night after he revealed that Heene was planning a media stunt to promote the show, according to the researcher's lawyer, Linda Lee.

Lee said investigators told her Thomas does not face charges and is not a person of interest in the case. Thomas has said he had no idea that a possible hoax would involve the Heene children.

With television cameras and reporters set up outside the Heene home, Richard Heene's lawyer, David Lane, stressed that the Heenes are willing to turn themselves in to avoid the spectacle of a public arrest.

Lane declined to say directly whether he believes the incident was a hoax but said the Heenes are innocent unless convicted. The Heenes remained holed up in their home until midafternoon, when they left in a pickup truck without commenting.

If prosecutors "can prove their case beyond a reasonable doubt, that's one thing. If they can't prove their case beyond a reasonable doubt, that's another," Lane told The Associated Press.

Wood River students and staff shave their heads to support teacher with cancer

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

HAILEY — Fourteen Wood River High School teachers and a handful of students are now as bald as the top of Bald Mountain.

They had their tresses shorn last Tuesday in front of 840 cheering students as part of a school-wide effort to support art teacher Betty Ervin, who is fighting cancer.

"This is huge. It gives me a lot of emotional support — not just financial support," Ervin told the students and faculty.

English teacher Kari Hangen was the first to be sheared after student Ben Broderick put up a fistful of dollars, entitling him to cut the first lock.

Next came Max "It's Just Hair" Stimac, Glenn "Shine" Lindsley, Eleanor "Less Locks" Rogers, Lindi Davis, Erin McGinnis, James Foster, Sam Schreiber, Andy Lewis, Chris Koch, Matt Phillips, Mark Bucknall and Johnny Galgano.

Kevin Lupton hedged a little — he got a sideways mohawk that stretched from ear to ear.

The Off With Their Hair event originated when teachers began wondering how they could raise money to help Ervin pay the $2,000 deductible for her medical treatment.

Some of the teachers volunteered to sacrifice their hair. Students apparently liked the idea, dropping $4,017 in donation cans.

Students and faculty coughed up another $700 during the hair cutting event.

"I worked the halls and collected $300 — that's a lot for what little amount of hair I have," said Lindsley, who only needed to have his sides shaved.

Student Brittany Parker takes pity on band teacher Andy Lewis' newly bald head last Tuesday, warming it with a ski cap that was donated by Scott USA.

Betty Ervin, the beneficiary of the Off With Their Hair event at Wood River High School, takes her own turn shaving a fellow teacher's head last Tuesday. More than $4,700 for Ervin's medical expenses was raised when 14 WRHS teachers and a handful of students had their heads shaved in the fundraiser.

Photos by KAREN BOSSICK/For the Times-News

Ervin, who took over as art teacher nine years ago, was diagnosed with breast cancer in 2005. She had a recurrence this year. Despite her illness, she has missed only a few weeks of school when she had surgery, said Principal John Blackman.

LeAnn Gelskey, whose son attends the school, said students respect Ervin because she respects them. "And she's a fighter," she added. "She's never once thought she couldn't beat this. It's not an option."

"Ms. Ervin's a sweetheart," said student Jessica Hamilton, as she watched the shorn teachers don wool caps donated by Scott USA. "She stands out in the hall between every class and says, 'Hi' to every student who goes by." "She's always kind. She's never judgmental and she's always willing to help you with your projects. Everyone just loves her," said Kylee Richmond.

Ervin said she will put the extra money students and teachers raised to a pay-it-forward fund of some sort — perhaps donating it to some cause like Make-A-Wish Foundation.

"I just think the whole thing is awesome," said student Sean Sutton, who donated his shoulder-length locks to the cause. "It's so neat to see everyone support Miss Ervin."

There is no vaccine or cure for the hepatitis C infection

DEAR DR. GOTT: Everywhere I have looked, all I can find about hepatitis C is that it is fatal. I have not seen anything in your column about this condition before.

Is there any progress in treating this disease or even curing it? What about protection from catching it? How are hepatitis C and kidney disease related to each other?

DEAR READER: Hepatitis C is one of six types of hepatitis. The others are A, B, D, E and G. Each type is caused by a virus that attacks the liver, causing inflammation and damage. In the case of hep C, the virus is most often contracted by direct contact with contaminated blood products.

Those most commonly at risk are people who received a blood transfusion or organ transplant before 1992. Following that date, all donated blood and organs have been screened for hepatitis C, thus reducing the risk of exposure from donation. Other risk factors include sharing needles and undergoing dialysis for kidney failure. Uncommonly, babies born to infected mothers can contract the infection. Rarely, it can be sexually transmitted. There are also many cases in which a risk factor cannot be identified.

ASK

Most people don't know they are infected because liver damage may not show up for several decades and many don't have symptoms. In fact, most are diagnosed with hep C following routine lab testing during a physical examination or blood work for another condition.

Early-stage symptoms can include slight fatigue, muscle and joint pain, liver tenderness, nausea and poor appetite. Late-stage symptoms include low-grade fever, fatigue, nausea, vomiting, loss of appetite and recurring or persistent jaundice.

There is no vaccine or cure for this infection. Not every case needs treatment. Early-stage disease may not require treatment, because the risk of adverse reactions may be greater than the risk of the infection itself. Treatment is often recommended for those who test positive for the virus, have elevated blood levels of alanine aminotransferase (ALT), or a biopsy indicates moderate to severe liver damage.

Treatment usually starts with a drug combination of pegylated interferon alfa and ribavirin. The goal is to clear the virus from the bloodstream. There are three genotypes of the hep C virus, and, with treatment, between 40 percent and 80 percent of cases can be cleared. Genotype 1 is most common in the United States and often requires the longest course of treatment consisting of about 48 weeks, while genotypes 2 and 3 usually require only 24 weeks of treatment. If the virus was only reduced, a second course may clear it from the bloodstream. If it made no change to the viral load, a second course may help reduce the damage the virus does to the liver.

Liver transplant is available for people with hepatitis C, but it is not a cure. Most people experience a recurrence of the virus and are at increased risk for developing cirrhosis within five years of the transplant.

Complications of hepatitis C include kidney disease, chronic hepatitis, cirrhosis, liver failure, liver cancer, lymphatic system cancers and skin disorders. Most complications take many decades to develop, and the risk is usually low.

If you are not already, I urge you to be under the care of a hepatologist (liver specialist), who can monitor you and recommend the best course of treatment.

Tamarack homeowners fear resort's death

BOISE (AP) — Tamarack Resort homeowners fear lifts and other equipment will be stripped and sold for pennies on the dollar if they can't convince an Idaho judge to approve their plan to take $7.9 million from a Mexican real-estate investor to save the upcoming ski season.

On Monday, 4th District Court Judge Patrick Owen heard competing salvos from lawyers for homeowners and a lender group led by Zurich-based Credit Suisse Group.

Mexico-based Inmobiliaria Las Fuentes, S.A. de C.V. has offered the loan to reopen the ski resort and to protect unfinished buildings over the next 11 months, but made a deal contingent on being repaid before existing creditors, something Credit Suisse and others are fighting. Tamarack creditors are already owed upward of $300 million.

Without new funding, said Leonard De Los Prados, one of the homeowner group's leaders, the resort 90 miles north of Boise could share the fate of Colorado's Stagecoach Ski Area, a major resort undertaking abandoned in 1974 after high hopes of developers and vacation real-estate buyers collapsed. Today, little more than a few lift towers there remain.

"If this doesn't get approved, Tamarack will be sold as salvage instead of as a resort," predicted De Los Prados.

He's the Beverly Hills, Calif., accountant for Alfredo Miguel, the Mexican-Lebanese businessman who the second-largest investor in Tamarack. Jean-Pierre Boespflug, a native of France who controls just over 50 percent of the resort.

But the homeowner group insists Miguel isn't involved in the deal with Inmobiliaria Las Fuentes.

After hearing both sides, Owen said he'll rule soon whether to let the homeowners intervene in the foreclosure case, which he's scheduled for a trial next March.

Idaho Supreme Court rejects death row appeal

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho Supreme Court has thrown out an appeal from death row inmate Paul Ezra Rhoades, saying that a DNA report didn't cast doubt on the reliability of his conviction and that a lower court was correct when it refused to let him amend his appeal.

Rhoades was sentenced to death four times in two separate cases in 1988. He was given two death sentences for the kidnapping, rape and murder of Idaho Falls special education teacher Susan Michelbacher, and two more for first-degree murder and kidnapping in the shooting death of Blackfoot convenience store clerk Stacy Dawn Baldwin. He was also sentenced to life without parole in the 1987 shooting murder of Blackfoot convenience store clerk Nolan Haddon.

All three crimes happened during a three-week spree starting in February 1987, and all three murders were tried separately.

In the unanimous ruling handed down Monday, the Idaho Supreme Court focused on the Michelbacher case.

Rhoades argued that his conviction should be thrown out based on DNA recovered from Michelbacher's body. A DNA test was done by the FBI with inconclusive results, and though it wasn't used in trial, Rhoades filed a post-conviction relief petition in 2002 asking that the samples be re-tested. The court agreed, and the results allegedly showed that one of the three semen swabs taken from Michelbacher's body didn't contain Rhoades' DNA.

In 2005, Rhoades asked the court to let him amend his post-conviction relief petition to add an allegation that the prosecutor presented false DNA evidence and a claim of innocence. Specifically, Rhoades argued that because the state based its case on a theory that he was the only person to attack Michelbacher, and because one of the three semen swabs taken allegedly didn't contain his DNA, he was actually innocent of the crime.

In Hawaii, school's out for recession

Students, teachers given most Friday's off for rest of year

By Mark Niesse
Associated Press writer

HONOLULU — At a time when President Obama is pushing for more time in the classroom, his home state has created the nation's shortest school year under a new union contract that closes schools on most Fridays for the remainder of the academic calendar.

The deal whacks 17 days from the school year for budget-cutting reasons and has education advocates incensed that Hawaii is drastically cutting the academic calendar at a time when it already ranks near the bottom in national educational achievement.

While many school districts have laid off or furloughed teachers, reduced pay and planning days and otherwise cut costs, Hawaii's 171,000 public school students now find themselves with only 163 instructional days, compared with 180 in districts in the U.S.

"The 16-year-old in me is

"It's just not enough time for the kids to learn."
— Valerie Sonoda, president of the Hawaii State Parent Teacher Student Association pretty excited that I'll be able to chill on those days," said Mark Aoki, a junior at Roosevelt High in Honolulu. "But overall within me, what I truly believe is that we'll regret this."

The cuts come as Obama, who graduated from a private school in Hawaii, says U.S. students are at a disadvantage with other students around the world because they spend too little time in school.

He wants schools to add time to classes, to stay open late and to let kids in on weekends so they have a safe place to go. He declared recently that "the challenges of a new century demand more time in the classroom."

The deal in Hawaii and has parents and education authorities up in arms, including families now scrambling to find day care for the off days. Parents of special-needs students are considering suing the state, and advocates believe the plan will have a "disparate impact" on poor families, ethnic communities and single parents.

"It's just not enough time for the kids to learn," said Valerie Sonoda, president of the Hawaii State

Viki Lynn Kohler

Viki Lynn Kohler died peacefully at home Wednesday, Oct. 14, 2009, after a long battle with renal failure.

She was relieved to be home with her cat, Hope, and surrounded by loved ones. Her final days were filled with well wishes and visits from those who loved and cared about her.

A memorial service will be held at 1 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 24, at the Carey High School auditorium. Cremation is under the direction of Cloverdale Funeral Home in Boise, and services and flower arrangements are under the direction of Wood River Chapel in Hailey.

Viki was born to Bill and Opal Kohler on Aug. 20, 1952, at the old Hailey hospital in Hailey. She attended Bellevue Elementary and then Wood River High School, graduating as salutatorian in 1970. She was an academically competitive student expecting nothing but the best from herself. She was well-known, well-liked and involved in many clubs and organizations during her high school years. The highlight of high school was a trip to the United Nations and Washington, D.C., where she watched the moon landing with friends.

She received a prestigious full-ride academic scholarship to attend the College of Idaho. Her academic success and commitment continued, and she graduated summa cum laude with a bachelor's degree in elementary education in 1974. She then returned to the Wood River Valley to follow her love for education. Her first teaching job was at the Carey Elementary School, where she taught from 1974 until 2006. She taught kindergarten, third grade and sixth grade, but her passion was fifth grade where she spent the majority of her career.

Students loved her because she always made learning fun with things like the Purple Problem, the State Fair and the Business Jodey Parker, 74, of Twin Falls, died Sunday, Oct. 18, 2009, at his home.

Arrangements will be announced by White Mortuary in Twin Falls.

Lorene Busick

HAGERMAN — Lorene Busick, 98, of Hagerman, died Saturday, Oct. 17, 2009, at her residence.

No local service is Fair. She will also be remembered for her bold statements with the crazy birthday hat and wild earrings. She was well-known among students past and present as well as faculty members for her love of books, trivia, Mad Magazine and the Harry Potter Series. She retired in 2006 due to health issues and moved to Boise.

She bought the home of her dreams, which she thoroughly enjoyed decorating. One of the greatest joys for her in the last few years was being close enough to enjoy holidays and special events with her adopted family, the Krileys. Kriley family events will never be the same without her. Viki touched so many lives because of her generous spirit, her razor sharp wit, her quirky sense of humor and, most of all, her love. She will be greatly missed. Viki grew up attending and serving in the Bellevue Community Church. In Boise, she enjoyed attending Cloverdale Church of God.

Viki is survived by her aunt, Roselyn Peck Drussel of Fairfield; her cousins, Marlane "Sissy" Merritt of Twin Falls and Elva Kincaide of Bellevue; numerous other cousins; her adopted family, Pat and Marcia Kriley of Boise, Lance and Rachel Schmidt and their boys, Trey, Devon and Ethan of Boise, Mark and Charity Nelson and their daughter, Alyssa of Boise; special friends, Margaret Walth, Barbara Tingey and Susie Colon; many other friends; and numerous students whose lives she touched.

She was preceded in death by her paternal and maternal grandparents; her parents, Bill and Opal Kohler; and her brother, Tom Kohler.

Memorial contributions can be made to Carey Elementary.

Condolences for the family may be submitted online at www.CloverdaleFuneralHome.com.

Ray Lindauer

BURLEY — Ray Lindauer, 86, of Burley, died Saturday, Oct. 17, 2009, at a Pocatello hospital.

A memorial service will be held at 4 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 24, at the Wilson Theater Banquet Room, 608 Fremont St. in Rupert (Morrison Funeral Home and Crematory in Rupert).

Patricia Joan Shelton

RUPERT — Patricia Joan Shelton, 62, of Rupert, passed away Thursday, Oct. 15, 2009.

She was born Aug. 8, 1947, to Joseph W. and Clara Schenk Shelton. Pat loved big cities and she lived in places like Salt Lake City, Utah; Tucson, Ariz.; Washington, D.C.; Playa Del Ray, Calif., and her hometown, Rupert, Idaho.

Pat attended local schools and went on to receive a bachelor's degree from the University of Utah in speech and communications and was a member of the Debate Team and later earned her master's degree in communications from the University of Arizona in Tucson where she held a teaching assistantship.

Pat worked for the Justice Department in Washington, D.C., for 20 years in the Trust and Monopoly Litigation section, rising to a GS15 level in leadership. She continued her career as a communications consultant for several California-based companies and concluded her work career as a communications sales representative in the Twin Falls area.

Pat was a member of the United Methodist Church and loved to travel and explore as much as she could, traveling extensively in Europe, the Caribbean, Mexico and Australia. Pat was an extremely generous person. Her greatest joy was imagining, planning and giving presents. She was also generous with her time, educational skills and knowledge in helping many of her caregivers deal with daily life. Pat was funny, intelligent, courageous and inspiring to all of us.

Pat is survived by her mother, Clara Shelton of Rupert; brother, Joseph W. (Stacy) Shelton III of Twin Falls; sisters, C. Kathryn Holst of Huntington, Ind., and Lois Musseau (Mike) Bishop of Sandpoint, Idaho; nephew, Dustin M. Shelton of Boise; nieces, Cassandra C. Truelove of South Whitley, Ind., Samantha J. Shelton of Twin Falls. She is preceded in death by her father, Joseph W. Shelton II; and brothers-in-law, John J. Musseau and Christian C. Holst.

The funeral will be held at 11 a.m. Wed., Oct. 21, at the Rupert United Methodist Church. Viewing for family and friends will be held for one hour prior to the service at the church and will conclude with burial in the Rupert Cemetery. Services are under the direction of Hansen Mortuary Rupert Chapel. The family requests that in lieu of flowers memorials be sent to the Christopher Reeve Foundation for Spinal Cord Research, Morris Turnpike, Suite 3A, Short Hills, NJ 07078 or online at www.Christopherreeve.org.

“You’ve got this huge national deficit and we’ve got to do what we can to bring that down.”
— Senior White House adviser Valerie Jarrett after White House advisers said President Obama is considering all options to create jobs

EDITORIAL

Enrollment caps on campus? That’s a higher ed horror story

Community colleges are the sector of Idaho higher education that works best, providing greater educational opportunities for more students at less money.

But what if those opportunities dry up? Cathy Holland-Smith, the Idaho Legislature’s budget director, told the Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee last week that lawmakers might have to consider capping college enrollments — especially at year-old College of Western Idaho in Nampa. CWI needs $1.97 million more for the current budget year alone because of unexpected enrollment growth. CWI has more than 3,400 students — 286 percent more than last year. Some estimates see it pushing 10,000 students in a couple of years.

An enrollment cap at CWI wouldn’t directly affect the College of Southern Idaho, with 8,000 students, and North Idaho College, with 5,659, but it would be a watershed event for an Idaho higher education system that has long prided itself on accessibility.

And as the experience of other states has shown, enrollment caps anywhere in a higher ed system do bad things to the whole system.

Case in point: California. Both the 191,000-student, 10-campus University of California system and the 417,000-student, 23-campus California State University system limited enrollment this fall. Among other nasty consequences, that left thousands of community college students with no place to go, according to the Chronicle of Higher Education, — a print and online source of education news and information for college and university faculty and administrators.

And while there’s no cap on the 2.9 million-student, 110-campus California Community College System, there may as well be. Because of an $840 million budget cut, most students find it hard to get into classes they need to earn an associate’s degree.

In the 100,000-student, four-campus San Diego Community College District, for example, 600 classes were cut this fall, forcing the district to turn away 18,000 students and advise them to register early for spring semester.

Most JFAC members consider enrollment caps to be a last resort, and that’s good. But the budget-writers need to find $51 million to balance the books this year and much more to fill gaps in the 2011 spending blueprint, so anything’s possible.

California’s problems aren’t Idaho’s, but they’re instructive. It will take decades for the Golden State’s higher education system to bounce back in terms of quality, access, cost-effectiveness and ability to deliver services — in large part because of the distortions caused by restricting enrollment.

Let’s not go there.

How to jump-start the jobs machine

WASHINGTON — What can government do to crank up America’s creaky job machine? We’ll be arguing ferociously about that in coming months, and the answer, frankly, isn’t clear. Die-hard Keynesians insist that only more government spending and tax cuts will accelerate job growth. But many other economists fear that exploding federal debt — incurred partly to pay for more spending and tax cuts — could trigger a new crisis that would destroy jobs.

Robert Samuelson

Almost everyone agrees that the outlook is bleak. Since the recession’s start in December 2007, about 8 million payroll jobs have disappeared. More will go. Employment is lower than a decade ago: the first time that’s happened since the Great Depression. With the labor force expanding by more than 1 million new workers annually, economists Joseph Seneca and James Hughes of Rutgers estimate that even the job growth of the 1990s (2.4 million a year) wouldn’t reduce today’s 9.8 percent unemployment to 5 percent until 2017. Ugh.

The Keynesian solution (after English economist John Maynard Keynes, who died in 1946) holds that government activism can generate more jobs.

That’s the theory behind the $787 billion “economic stimulus” passed in February. Many ideas are circulating for Stimulus 2.0, though the controversy over Stimulus 1.0 suggests it will be relabeled.

Larry Mishel of the liberal Economic Policy Institute wants more aid to state governments, a further extension of unemployment insurance (now up to 79 weeks) and a tax credit for companies that create new jobs. One proposal would give employers about a $7,000 credit for each additional worker hired (over some base period). Timothy Bartik of the W.E. Upjohn Institute for Employment Research thinks such a credit might create 2 million jobs. The budgetary cost could be $40 billion or higher. One drawback: Two-thirds of the credit’s cost might go to firms that would have hired anyway.

The rap on Stimulus 1.0 is that it hasn’t yet — as promised — reduced unemployment. Boosters retort: Unemployment would have been worse without it, and much less than half the stimulus has been spent. Detractors argue that the benefits of stimulus packages are overrated. Underlying this dispute is an academic argument about the “multiplier”: whether stimulus spending increases and tax cuts translate into large increases for the overall economy; or whether the effects are offset. Consumers might save most tax cuts. Or bigger deficits might raise interest rates and crowd out private borrowing.

Actually, there is no “right” answer; the multiplier will vary depending on economic circumstances. In this case, the Obama administration is more plausible than its critics. In early 2009, consumer and business spending was collapsing. The stimulus has helped stabilize the economy, though it hasn’t been the most powerful stabilizer. (The Federal Reserve played that role.) It’s saved jobs that otherwise would have been lost.

Interest rates didn’t rise. But just because the earlier stimulus was justified doesn’t mean that another would be, because circumstances are changing.

Government debt is now rising at unprecedented post-World War II rates. In fiscal 2009 (ending Sept. 30), the federal budget deficit was $1.4 trillion. The Congressional Budget Office predicts a similar amount for 2010. Economists at Goldman Sachs forecast $1.6 trillion. “Right now, the world wants to lend to us, and we can carry a huge debt burden at relatively modest interest costs. But history teaches that confidence is fickle,” says economist Kenneth Rogoff, co-author with Carmen Reinhart of “This Time Is Different: Eight Centuries of Financial Folly.”

If rising debt frightens domestic and foreign lenders into fearing high inflation or default, interest rates could soar. A first stimulus was warranted, but now “it makes no sense to use stimulus just to postpone the reality of lower economic growth over the coming decade,” Rogoff says. He favors a gradual reduction of huge deficits. The trouble, of course, is the capriciousness of psychology. No one can know when or whether a future crisis might occur.

Economists Mishel and Rogoff frame the debate: the first impatient, the second prudent. A middle way would be to scour government for policies that discourage job creation.

Consider the Environmental Protection Agency’s recent proposal requiring permits for large industrial facilities emitting 25,000 tons of greenhouse gases annually. New plants or expansions would need permits demonstrating they’re using “the best practices and technologies” (whatever they might be) to minimize six greenhouse gases.

Permits would be granted on a case-by-case basis; the proposed rule is 416 pages of dense legalese.

How could this promote investment and job creation, except for lawyers and consultants? Government erects many employment obstacles: restrictions on oil and natural gas drilling; unapproved trade agreements; some regulations.

But reducing these barriers would require the Obama administration to choose between its professed interest in more jobs and its many other goals — a choice it has so far avoided.

Newsweek columnist Robert Samuelson writes about economics.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

We don’t need more government programs

No more programs!! No more tax credit for home purchases, no more Cash for Clunkers, no more bailouts, No government-mandated insurance. When are our elected officials going to rein in this crazy man we call our president and his sidekicks?

The National Association of Realtors is pushing to extend the tax credit, but as a professional Realtor, I am against the $8,000 tax credit and its extension.

News from the National Association of Realtors states that so far, 400,000 of these transactions have occurred. This is astounding to consider that at $8,000 each, that has raised our national debt to the taxpayers of $4,200,000,000. Yes, that is 4 billion, 200 million. And we still have until Nov. 30 to add to that.

Now add that to the Cash for Clunkers and the new and great insurance changes and we are on our way to total and irreversible destruction of our economy and nation. I see that Obama is taking us to the pit so that the anti-Christ can come in as the hero!

Keep your eyes looking up, you who are true followers of the one, and only YWHY (Hebrew name for God). His taking up of the true believers is just around the corner, I am excited to say! Ezekiel 38 and 39 are being played out right now in our generation. Are you ready, confident and assured of eternal life? If not, call me! But until that great day, let’s say no to more programs!

Praise for Canyon Ridge student athletes

With all of the bad things that go on every day in the world, Friday night (Oct. 9) brought us an amazing moment by a great bunch of people. Friday night, the Canyon Ridge Riverhawks took the field, winless on the season but full of hope in themselves and each other. This group of kids has worked hard every day. They work with the same amount of Riverhawk pride each day that they did on the first day they took the practice field.

Walking the halls at school, you hear them talk about what they have to do to win, and people around them laugh at the prospect of a Canyon Ridge victory, yet they still believe. Friday night was a special night as that group of kids took to the field at Canyon Ridge. From the opening kickoff, it was apparent that while many of their peers didn’t have a lot of hope for victory, they were not there to be an easy victory on someone else’s record.

This team takes the field each week to make Canyon Ridge history and Friday night, in the 45 degree weather, with the wind blowing footballs all over the field and blankets all over the stands, they did just that. It was a great game, with big plays and penalties so big they seemed like they should have been scripted in a movie.

The stands were not nearly as full as they had been on the game nights when the weather was a little better, but the fans were loud and wanted their Riverhawks to know they were glad to be a part of history.

People have already said it is just a high school football game and in some aspects they may be right. What they don’t realize is the dedication and work that has gone into that one victory. People don’t realize the quality of the athletes and coaches that went into this victory. This is a great group of kids, a great group of coaches and a historic night for a fantastic school.

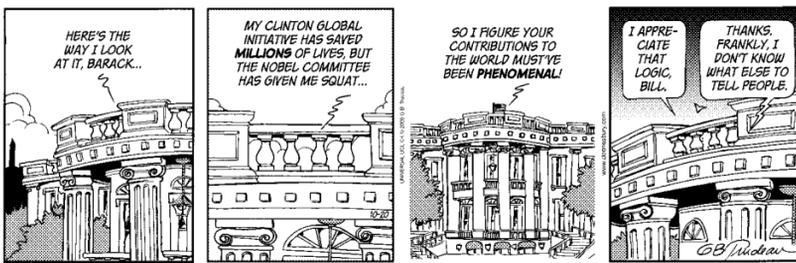

I thank these kids and coaches for a night none of us will soon forget.

PAKISTAN Pakistan cuts deal with some anti-U.S. militants

DERA ISMAIL KHAN — Pakistan's army, in the midst of a major new offensive against Taliban militants, has struck deals to keep two powerful, anti-U.S. tribal chiefs from joining the battle against the government, officials said Monday.

The deals increase the chances of an army victory against Pakistan's enemy No. 1, but indicate that the 3-day-old assault into the Taliban's strongholds in South Waziristan may have less effect than the U.S. wants on a spreading insurgency across the border in Afghanistan.

Under the terms agreed to about three weeks ago, Taliban renegades Maulvi Nazir and Hafiz Gul Bahadur will stay out of the current fight in parts of South Waziristan controlled by the Pakistani Taliban. They will also allow the army to move through their own lands unimpeded, giving the military additional fronts from which to attack the Taliban.

In exchange, the army will ease patrols and bombings in the lands controlled by Nazir and Bahadur, two Pakistani intelligence officials based in the region told The Associated Press on condition of anonymity because revealing their identities would compromise their work.

An army spokesman described the deal as an "understanding" with the men that they would stay neutral. The agreements underscore Pakistan's past practice of targeting only militant groups that attack the government or its forces inside Pakistan.

IRAN Iran accuses U.S., Pakistan and U.K. of aiding militants

TEHRAN — Iran vowed retaliation Monday after accusing Pakistan, the U.S. and Britain of aiding Sunni militants who stunned the Islamic regime with a suicide bombing that killed top Revolutionary Guard commanders and dozens of others.

A commentary by the official news agency called on Iranian security forces "to seriously deal with Pakistan once and for all." And President Mahmoud Ahmadinejad told his Pakistani counterpart that his nation must hunt down suspected members of Jundallah, or Soldiers of God.

"The presence of terrorist elements in Pakistan is not justifiable and the Pakistani government needs to help arrest and punish the criminals as soon as possible," state TV quoted Ahmadinejad as telling President Asif Ali Zardari on Monday.

Iran made no specific threats against the U.S. or Britain, but the accusations came as talks began in Vienna over Iran's nuclear program. The U.S. is part of those talks, which observers said made little headway Monday beyond spelling out each side's position.

Iran has often claimed that Western powers use groups such as Jundallah to try to destabilize the country. But the direct finger-pointing at Pakistan — and the warnings of a stepped-up offensive — present a different and risky scenario for Iran's leaders.

AFGHANISTAN Fraud probe voids nearly 1/3 of votes for Karzai, runoff likely fraud investigators on Monday threw out nearly a third of President Hamid Karzai's votes from the August election, undercutting his claim of victory and stepping up the pressure for him to accept a runoff.

The Obama administration has been holding off on a decision to send more troops to Afghanistan until a credible government is installed in Kabul.

Both Secretary of State Hillary Rodham Clinton and the U.N. secretary general signaled on Monday that a resolution was near.

Clinton said Karzai planned to announce his intentions on Tuesday, adding that she was "encouraged by the direction the situation is moving."

Federal judge shutter's Idaho grazing allotment

By John Miller
Associated Press writer

BOISE — A federal judge has ordered a western Idaho rancher to keep his sheep off his family's traditional grazing ground on public land to protect wild native bighorns. U.S. District Judge Lynn Winmill ruled Wednesday that a pact between a Salmon River rancher and the state to keep his domestic herd separate from bighorns on a Bureau of Land Management allotment fell short of a 2009 law aimed at helping Idaho's ranching industry and protecting the native wild sheep.

The Wilderness Society, Western Watersheds Project and Hells Canyon Preservation Council had all contended that a bighorn herd near Riggins was in danger of catching deadly diseases if the allotment

"Irreversible damage is possible here."

—U.S. District Judge Lynn Winmill

near Partridge Creek opened to domestic herds on schedule Thursday.

The number of Idaho bighorns has dwindled by half since 1990 to about 3,500 after several mass die-offs. Wildlife managers believe bighorns can catch diseases such as pneumonia when they come into contact with domestic sheep. Winmill said he was trying to prevent more outbreaks.

"Irreversible damage is possible here," Winmill wrote in his 17-page ruling. "Bighorns could become infected and roam far upriver in the Salmon River drainage, infecting the other native bighorns along the way, causing large-scale losses."

The order is in place until at least Nov. 2, when Winmill plans another hearing.

This year, Idaho lawmakers passed a plan requiring the state Department of Fish and Game director to certify that the risk of disease transmission between bighorn and domestic sheep was "acceptable for the viability of the bighorn sheep" once ranchers and the state had crafted Best Management Practices, or BMPs, to keep the two species apart.

The state and rancher Mick Carlson, whose family has grazed the Partridge Creek allotment since 1937, negotiated such an agreement in August. Among

CEOs, ag minister call for agricultural investment

By Michael J. Crumb
Associated Press writer

DES MOINES, Iowa — Greater investment, innovation and improved public-private partnerships are needed to meet the world's growing demand for food, business and government leaders said at the World Food Prize symposium.

The chief executives of DuPont and Archer Daniels Midland Co., two major players in international agriculture spoke during the first day of the conference in Des Moines.

All three said demand for food worldwide will double by 2050 and agriculture must meet that demand by increasing production on land already in use.

A survey done by Decatur, Ill.-based ADM showed that if each of the top 15 food producing nations or regions consistently produced 80 percent of their best yields, it would significantly increase production without adding acres, said Patricia Woertz, chairman, CEO and president of ADM, which produces food ingredients, animal feeds, biofuels and other products.

"These yields alone would dramatically enhance availability of crops for food, for feed, for fiber and fuel uses," Woertz said.

She called for investment in developing countries to improve transportation, processing and storage facilities to handle tomorrow's larger harvests. The investment could reach $83 billion, she said, and would require partnerships "up and down the supply chain from farmers to consumers, with government, with communities."

Government and industry also need to work on achieving gains in a way that doesn't harm the environment, Woertz said.

"We would need to continue to develop regionally appropriate practices to improve water utilization," she said.

"We also need to improve crop nutrients and pest control and getting desired gains with minimal environmental impact."

The seed industry needs to use all the tools of modern plant breeding to bring improved products to farmers faster, said Ellen Kullman, CEO of DuPont, whose agricultural division produces seeds, herbicides, insecticides and other

GREELEY, Colo. — The smell of manure hangs over Greeley as it has for half a century. These days it's more than just a potent reminder of the region's agricultural roots and the hundreds of thousands of cattle raised on the city's outskirts.

The stench smells like an opportunity. Investors are lining up to support a planned clean energy park that eventually will convert some of the methane gas released from the manure piles into power for a cheese factory and other businesses. JBS, which runs two of the largest feed yards and the local slaughterhouse, is testing a new technology that heats the cattle excrement and turns it into energy.

"What once used to be a waste stream that was just a byproduct ... they are now recognizing has value," said Bruce Biggi, the economic development coordinator for the city of Greeley, which received an $82,000 grant from the governor's

The Dow rose 96.28, or 1 percent, to 10,092.19. The broader S&P 500 index rose 10.23, or 0.9 percent, to 1,097.91. For both indexes, it was the highest close since Oct. 3 last year. The Nasdaq composite index rose 19.52, or 0.9 percent, to 2,176.32, its highest close since Sept. 26, 2008. The day's advance came on the 22nd anniversary of the 1987 stock market crash known as "Black Monday," which saw the Dow plunge a record 22.6 percent on worries about interest rates and slowing economic growth. Bond prices rose. The yield on the benchmark 10-year Treasury note fell to 3.39 percent from 3.42 percent late Friday. The New York Federal Reserve, which carries out the central bank's market operations, said it has been preparing plans for how it could begin weaning the economy from monetary stimulus. The dollar mostly fell against other major currencies, while gold prices rose. The ICE Futures U.S. dollar index fell 0.3 percent to its lowest level since August 2008. Crude oil rose $1.08 to settle at $79.61 per barrel on the New York Mercantile Exchange.

energy office this year for the park.

The idea is to lure new business to the area with what Biggi likes to call its renewable natural gas — the endless supply of methane from cheap manure.

By reducing the amount of the potent greenhouse gas released into the air, the projects also potentially could turn cow dung into dollars, if a climate bill before Congress becomes law.

"Agriculture and agribusiness is what Greeley is all about," Biggi said. "We needed to take that strong traditional economic base and ... merge it with emerging renewable energy and technology."

Waste may be the new energy crop in these parts. But elsewhere, communities are looking anew at power sources such as the sun and wind that may exist in their own backyards.

The shift is being driven partly by legislation in Congress that would reduce the gases linked to global warming.

The legislation, experts acknowledge, would do little to stem the heating up of the planet if other countries don't take similar action.

Should President Obama sign the bill, it would put a price on each ton of carbon dioxide released. That would drive up the cost of polluting fossil fuels such as oil and natural gas and lead to investment in cleaner sources of energy.

Getting into the game now — like JBS and the investors eyeing Greeley's energy park are doing — could potentially reap profits: selling credits generated by reducing greenhouse gases now into the emissions-trading market the bill would create.

That market could prove lucrative for projects that reduce methane, which is 20 times more potent than carbon dioxide when it comes to trapping heat in the earth's atmosphere.

The fear in Greeley, and elsewhere, is what else the legislation would change.

In the city and surrounding Weld County, the worry is it would raise energy and fertilizer costs for farmers. They need to pump water to irrigate their crops and rely on cheap manure — the same manure that will be tapped for energy — when high natural gas prices drive up the cost of fertilizer.

For the oil and gas industry, which produces more oil in Weld County than any other in the state, a shift to cleaner sources of energy could take away good-paying jobs. And it's not clear whether all those will be replaced by the new green jobs that supporters are banking on.

"I can't think of another place in the country like Weld County, where all the various interests are at play," said John Christiansen, a spokesman for Anadarko Petroleum Corp., which produces oil and gas from 4,600 wells in the county. Many are on fields planted with feed corn, which also is being used to produce ethanol for gasoline locally.

The confluence of different interests has made Weld County a frequent stop for members of Congress interested in how climate legislation is playing outside of Washington. Sen. Michael Bennet, D-Colo., Rep. Betsy Markey, D-Colo., and House Agriculture Committee Chairman Collin Peterson, D-Minn., all made visits over the summer.

"Our rural communities aren't sold on this yet, there is a lot of uncertainty. But I think in the long run it will stabilize energy prices," Markey said in an interview.

Markey voted for the climate bill when it passed the House in June. Her vote could play a role in her re-election race next year in the largely Republican district.

On an August afternoon, Markey and three other members of the state's congressional delegation were singled out for their climate bill vote. A billboard covered with signatures and topped with the words "Shame on you!" stood at the entrance of the lunchtime event, organized by the American Petroleum Institute. The event drew about 600 people to a cavernous exhibit hall outside of Greeley for a pep rally opposing the legislation. API is a Washington, D.C.-based lobbying organization for the oil and gas industry.

"Why would we do anything to drive up their cost of doing business? It makes no sense," local radio host Amy Oliver Cooke told the crowd. Many wore shirts that said, "Congress, Don't Take Away my Job."

"I can't afford the legislation and neither can you," she said.

David Eckhardt, a fourth-generation Weld County farmer, is struggling with the math. Despite meeting with Bennet and Agriculture Secretary Tom Vilsack, Eckhardt remains skeptical of an Agriculture Department's analysis of the House climate bill that says farmers stand to make more money from trapping carbon in their soil and crops than they will pay out in higher energy prices.

"I know my fuel will go up, I know my chemicals will go up. And the question that was asked at the meeting we had with them was how much? And their answer was not as much as you think it will," said Eckhardt. "That's not an answer?"

other things, he agreed to have two herders, three guard dogs and three herding dogs with each band of sheep. He was also allowed to kill bighorns that wandered into his herd.

In his ruling Winnmill said that agreement relied on voluntary compliance and could not be enforced by the Bureau of Land Management.

"The director here certified that the risk has been reduced to an acceptable level," the judge wrote. "Acceptable to who? Acceptable under what standard?"

"These questions are not answered," Winnmill added. "There is no certification in this case that upon implementation of the BMPs, the risk of disease transmission will be acceptable for the viability of the bighorn sheep."

State Fish and Game officials did not respond to a request for comment.

Jon Marvel, director of Western Watersheds in Hailey, said Winnmill's order underlined the weakness of Idaho's new law.

"These Best Management Practices are, first of all, voluntary, and second, there is no testimony in the record from any scientist that concludes that they will be effective in protecting bighorn sheep."

The Nez Perce Tribe, which opposes the grazing on its traditional homeland, called the decision a victory for bighorns.

"The use of BMPs to try and create separation between domestic and bighorn sheep in occupied bighorn sheep habitat is not supported by scientific literature or scientists," said Brooklyn Baptiste, Vice-Chairman of the Nez Perce Tribal Executive Committee.

Carlson, who has already been barred from grazing on nearby U.S. Forest Service allotments, argued in court that he cannot run his operation in a profitable manner if more than 800 of his sheep are kept away from Partridge Creek.

A phone call to Carlson was not returned, but in court he contended it would cost him about $9,000 if he was forced to restrict his sheep to his private ground along the Salmon River and to the south in Emmett.

Winnmill ordered plaintiffs to post a $9,000 bond to cover Carlson's possible costs and damages, should the court later determine the temporary restraining order was inappropriate.

The DIY championships

Competition to be south-central Idaho's champion do-it-yourselfer was as tough as a 12-inch cross beam.

But six winners emerged with remodeling victories. Two weeks ago, you read about the three honorable mentions. Last week, you met third- and second-place winners. Today, we present the 2009 champion.

We judged this entirely subjective contest on quick work, cost control and the coolness factor, favoring projects that simply made homes better places to live.

Photos by MEAGAN THOMPSON/Times-News

Jay and Kila Mickelsen stand in the new addition to their Twin Falls home — a spacious, airy room decorated with a pool table and seating for guests who choose to gab by the windows instead of by the fireplace or in the kitchen.

First place:
Jay Mickelsen,
Twin Falls

House expansion

The motivation: Jay Mickelsen bought his house in 2007 and spent the past two years renovating the dated, water-damaged building's interior. His next mission: adding a room to the back of the house. And the 71-year-old did it by himself.

The bill: $14,692 for materials and permits.

Timeline: August 2008 to June 2009. In the middle of the project, Jay also renovated Sunshine Kids Childcare, his wife's Twin Falls business. He worked on the day care during the day and the house at night, Kila Mickelsen said.

Another interruption: Jay and Kila got married in January 2009. When Kila moved in, Jay had already torn down the house's back wall. The only thing separating the honeymooners from the elements was a thin sheet of plywood.

Bang for the buck: Jay's new game room addition required a new roof line, support beams, insulation, dry-wall, flooring and windows. Jay put the support beams in place with hoists and his four-wheeler.

The finished room houses a pool table and seating, and the extended back made the once narrow entrance to the kitchen wider and more accessible. Outside, Jay redid grass and landscaping torn up by construction trucks.

He saved thousands of dollars by salvaging construction materials, like discarded beams, windows and doors.

Skills learned: Resetting the roof line was a new experience for Jay. Although he had helped build houses while in high school, he didn't have experience with tearing down an original roof and rebuilding it.

Biggest challenge: Finding new brick that matched the house's existing exterior brick. Jay didn't want the addition to look like an addition and spent days looking for the right materials. "Brick is the hardest thing to match," he said. Finally, a friend advised him to put the inside, unfinished part of the brick on the outside.

Jay also came up short with carpet. Two years ago, antic-

Jay Mickelsen placed the addition on the back side of the house where a concrete patio had been. This area by the pool table shows evidence of the home's previous construction — the window to a spare room. But the window fits in with the decor, and Mickelsen took care to match its molding to the room's new fixtures.

ipating the expansion, he had bought extra carpet to ensure a match. Instead of scrapping the original, he put the too-small carpet in the middle of the floor and purchased new, red carpet for a border.

What's next: Jay has a few more projects around the house, like reboarding part of the exterior and fixing up the laundry room. Once he finishes those, Kila is sure to find more.

"If he has accomplished all of this in this short time, it might be wise to find a couple of other 'honey-do' projects for him," she wrote in an e-mail to the Times-News.

— Melissa Davlin

Jay Mickelsen is especially proud of the brickwork on the outside of the addition. It is hard to match bricks, and he was determined to blend the addition's exterior to the rest of the home.

Invest in home efficiency? Do the math first

DEAR JIM: I want to make my house more energy efficient. I am not sure what improvements it needs, and I don't want to invest in a professional energy audit. What do I need, and how can I do my own energy audit? — Kim G.

DEAR KIM: Most houses, unless they are very new, can benefit from energy improvements. The older your house is, the more likely you can significantly reduce your utility bills from their current level.

Compared with the return on most other forms of investments today, energy improvements to your home can provide a very good financial return.

The first step is to do a quick, simple analysis to determine how energy efficient your house currently is. This involves totaling up all the energy your house uses throughout the entire year. This total energy amount divided by the square footage of the living area and adjusted for your climate conditions is a good rough estimate of the overall efficiency.

Check your utility bills or other receipts for the amount of energy used. To convert the amounts into the quantity of Btu you consumed, use the following conversion factors:

1 kilowatt-hour of electricity — 3,414 Btu

1 cubic foot of natural gas — 1,025 Btu

1 gallon of propane — 91,000 Btu

1 gallon of oil — 138,700 Btu

1 cord of wood — 19 million Btu

Once you have the total annual Btu amount, divide this by the sum of the cooling and heating degree days for your climate. Next divide this by the square footage of your house. The calculation results for most houses fall into the 10 to 20 range, meaning energy improvements are possible. If it is greater than 20, your house is very inefficient.

Under 10 means significant improvements will be difficult to achieve.

Every house is different, but air leakage typically accounts for 35 percent of energy consumption. Check the windows and doors for leaky gaps and joints. Also check for gaps where the walls rest on the top of the foundation. Heat loss (or gain during summer) through the walls and ceiling

SENSIBLE HOME

ing account for about another 30 percent.

Holding a lighted stick of incense near the walls, windows and doors and observing the smoke trail can identify leaky spots. Black & Decker now offers a low-cost Thermal Leak Detector ((800) 555-1212, www.blackanddecker.com) for homeowners. It uses infrared technology, similar to professional models, to sense cold and warm areas on walls, windows, etc. The sensor beam turns red on hot spots and blue on cold spots.

Check the accuracy of your central furnace/air conditioner thermostat by taping a bulb thermostat next to it on the wall. You may find the thermostat is inaccurate and you are actually keeping your house warmer than you think. This can greatly increase your heating bills.

Oregon Scientific ((800) 853-8883, www2.oregon-scientific.com) offers a solar-powered central digital thermometer with two remote sensors. This allows you to monitor the temperatures and humidity levels in three rooms. It also remotely picks up the local weather forecast and displays it.

DEAR JIM: I have heard of vampire electricity used by appliances and for cell phone chargers even when they are turned off. What is the best method to reduce this electricity waste?

— David F.

DEAR DAVID: Electronic equipment and appliances do continue to use a little electricity for the controls and to maintain settings when they are turned off. The only way to totally stop it is to unplug the appliances.

Much electricity is consumed by chargers for an array of electronic gadgets and phones. Always unplug them when the item is charged. You can feel how warm they stay even when the phone is disconnected, indicating they are still using electricity.

These days, do we need the Old Farmer's Almanac?

By Adrian Higgins
The Washington Post

Here are three words you might expect to cause instant seizure with an Internet search engine: Old Farmer's Almanac.

And yet, those canny New England Yankees who publish the annual Old Farmer's Almanac have just put out No. 218 in seeming blithe indifference to the seismic shifts that have rocked media in the digital age.

The almanac ($5.99 at www.almanac.com), as it happens, predicts earthquakes and a lot of other natural phenomena, and describes how we should live with them, advising on such things as the moment to start a diet and the best day to slaughter a pig (for you, presumably, not the hog). It all has to do with the alignment of the firmament, or something like that.

Its philosophy is a bit weird and wacky, but it reaches deep into the agrarian roots and folkloric traditions of America, and it still resonates with more than 3 million readers.

An almanac is an astro-nomic and astrological calendar of the heavens. That was the core of the first almanac, published by Robert B. Thomas in 1792, and remains the heart of the current one. The look is still old — cheap paper, black ink and lots of charts and symbols — though I wish the editors would go back to styling the letter "s" as "f." Mr. Thomas admonished that May "is a very busy month with farmers and gardeners (sic). Uncover your apparatus bed. Turn your young cattle into the wood lands, fo as to fave your paftures." Mr. Thomas was one smart cookie.

And what of the pastures of our weather? Long-range weather prediction is the stock in trade of almanacs, and though the Old Farmer's Almanac claims with a straight face 80 percent accuracy, and its rival, the Farmers' Almanac, 80 to 85 percent, their forecasts for the coastal mid-Atlantic region this winter are quite different. The Old Farmer's Almanac, published in Dublin, N.H., predicts a cold and snowy season; the Farmers' Almanac, based in Lewiston, Maine, forecasts one of normal temperatures and precipitation.

Janice Stillman, editor of

"We have a secret formula, the calculations of which even I don't know!"

— Janice Stillman, editor of the Old Farmer's Almanac

the Old Farmer's Almanac, said that "we use satellite data, state-of-the-art information. It's just the interpretation of that information and the inclusion of activity of the sun into our forecast that distinguishes us from just about everybody else." Did we mention the ace in the hole? "We have a secret formula," she said, "the calculations of which even I don't know."

The Farmers' Almanac ($5.99 at store.farmer-salmanac.com), which uses its own top-secret formula, mentions that in 2007 its winter forecast was even more accurate than Punxsutawney Phil's, contradicting the Pennsylvania groundhog in forecasting six more weeks of winter.

I agreed to meet Stillman, wondering if she would arrive looking like Betsy Ross, but her hair was close-cropped and she wore a chartreuse designer leather jacket. She gave me copies of the 2010 almanac, but the one I was salivating for was the 2009 edition, so I could check its accuracy.

I have figured out that the key to weather forecasting in general and the almanacs in particular is to hedge your bets. The Old Farmer's Almanac lumps the country into 16 regions.

"Anybody can put out a forecast, but the issue is the track record of verification," said Antonio Busalacchi, a professor in the University of Maryland's department of atmospheric and oceanic science.

The forecasts and long-range outlooks of the National Weather Service, for example, have improved in recent years through new skills and technology. "They are certainly not ironclad, but they do have a documented track record," he said. One of the basics of science is that you give your experimental data to others, Busalacchi said, so they can reproduce the results. "That's not the case," he said, when you have "a secret formula."

Perhaps I'm missing the point. "It's about the belief that nature has its ways," Stillman said. "If you think it's going to rain because the cows lie down?"

What's important about the almanac, apart from its place in American culture, is that it continues to transport us back to a time when we were much closer to the cycles of nature; our ability to feed ourselves depended on that. That's also the enduring value of gardening, of being in sync with the seasonal cycles. The closer we look, the more we see, for example, next April's viburnum flowers now in nascent bud or the young raspberry canes, which will bear the fruit of June, among the spent ones.

I am not guided by folklore, being more willing to consider soil moisture and temperature before sowing beans, for example, than the phase of the moon. But for those who do embrace that, more power to them. Plants have their magic; that's what makes them so alluring.

GARDENING TIPS

Moving from container to ground

Container-grown perennials and shrubs often have congested roots this time of year. When planting, it is essential to manipulate the roots out of their pot shape for proper root development. Some roots can be teased apart with your hands; others are so thick you will need a penknife to break up the mat of roots, especially at the base.

Lift and divide your perennials

Early fall is an excellent time to lift and divide perennials such as hostas, day lilies, irises and black-eyed Susans. Clumps that have become crowded with reduced flowering are good candidates. Lift the entire clump with a garden fork, wash off the soil if necessary and separate the crowns.

Some will detach by hand, others with a knife, depending on the variety. Each new division should have roots and the tiny crown buds that will shoot up in the spring. Improve the soil before replanting, and pot up surplus divisions for friends. Don't let them dry out.

CLEANING CORNER

Question: Do you have any cleaners for a velvet chair with stains in the head area? In fact the upper areas of all my upholstered furniture are looking soiled. I presume it is natural body oils and hair spray. (Should I make everyone wear a shower cap before sitting in my furniture?)

Answer: No, No, No! Save the shower cap for places where people can't be seen! (Like the shower). I have a more socially acceptable solution for you. For $20.95 you can rent a "spotter" machine that will extract nasty residue and oil stains from your upholstery. It is light weight and very easy to use. Combine that with some great spot removal products I can recommend, and you'll feel comfortable with even the greasiest guest-heads in your living room.

NOTICE OF APPLICATION

Pursuant to Section 58-104(g) and 58-1301, et seq., Idaho Code (The Lake Protection Act) and rules of the State Board of Land Commissioners, notice is hereby given that Karen Cummings of Burley has submitted an application to install a PVC coated gabion wire mesh wall section to support the hillside. The gabions are proposed to replace an existing railroad tie retaining wall which would be removed. The gabion wall would be two 3' x 6' gabions in height, and total 6 feet x 6 feet x 30 feet long. The gabions would be filled with clean rock about 4" to 8" in size. Clean angular rock rip rap material ranging in size from 10" to 2" is proposed to be placed 2 feet deep along the base of the gabion as toe protection. The rip rap material is already on site and would be re-positioned from its current location waterward of the railroad tie retaining wall to the toe of the gabions. Geotextile material is proposed to be placed between the gabions and the soil surface. Estimated permanent fill material below the ordinary high water mark for the project is approximately 40 cubic yards. Located on Milner Reservoir adjacent to: Tax 3304, Part of Govt. Lot 3, Section 27, Township 10 South, Range 23 East, B.M., in Cassia County, Idaho.

Written objections to or requests for hearing in this matter must be on file with the Idaho Department of Lands, 324 South, 417 East, Ste. 2, Jerome, ID 83338 within thirty (30) days after the first appearance of this notice. Specific information regarding this application may be obtained from Meribeth Lomkin, Sr. Resource Specialist at the above address or by calling (208) 324-2561.

NOTIFICATION

The Department of the Navy has prepared an Addendum to an Environmental Assessment of potential environmental impacts associated with use of a more efficient shipping container system to load and transport spent nuclear fuel removed from U.S. Navy nuclearpowered aircraft carriers. The original Environmental Assessment evaluated the potential impacts at Northrop Grumman Shipbuilding - Newport News (formerly Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Company) in Virginia, transportation of the shipping containers from the shipyard to the Naval Reactors Facility at the Idaho National Laboratory in Idaho, and facilities modifications and operations at the Naval Reactors Facility. The Addendum to the Environmental Assessment evaluates the environmental impact of construction of a Cask Shipping and Receiving Facility at the Naval Reactors Facility to support the loading and unloading of shipping containers. The previous Environmental Assessment evaluated modification of an existing facility.

The primary need for the new shipping container system, evaluated in the original Environmental Assessment, and for the construction of the facility, evaluated in the Addendum to the Environmental Assessment, is for increased efficiency of shipyard operations in order to improve support of the defueling and refueling schedules of the U.S. Navy fleet.

The Department of the Navy is issuing a revised Finding of No Significant Impact to account for the construction of a Cask Shipping and Receiving Facility as part of the original Finding of No Significant Impact associated with the original Environmental Assessment issued on November 15, 2007.

A copy of the Addendum to the Environmental Assessment and the revised Finding of No Significant Impact are available for public review at the <http://www.sfnshippingcontainer.us> web site.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Tuesday, Oct. 20, the 293rd day of 2009. There are 72 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:
On Oct. 20, 1944, during World War II, Gen. Douglas MacArthur stepped ashore at Leyte in the Philippines, 2 1/2 years after he'd said, "I shall return!"

On this date:
In 1740, Maria Theresa became ruler of Austria, Hungary and Bohemia upon the death of her father, Holy Roman Emperor Charles VI.
In 1803, the U.S. Senate ratified the Louisiana Purchase.

In 1903, a joint commission ruled in favor of the United States in a boundary dispute between the District of Alaska and Canada.

In 1947, the House Un-American Activities Committee opened hearings into alleged Communist influence and infiltration in the U.S. motion picture industry.

In 1964, the 31st president of the United States, Herbert Hoover, died in New York at age 90.

In 1967, seven men were convicted in Meridian, Miss., of violating the civil rights of three slain civil rights workers.

In 1968, former first lady Jacqueline Kennedy married Greek shipping magnate Aristotle Onassis.

In 1973, in the so-called "Saturday Night Massacre," special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox was dismissed and Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson and Deputy Attorney General William B. Ruckelshaus resigned.

In 1979, the John F. Kennedy Presidential Library and Museum was dedicated in Boston.

In 1994, actor Burt Lancaster died in Los Angeles at age 80.

Ten years ago: The government laid out new rules to protect children's privacy on the Internet and to shield them from commercial e-mail. Elizabeth Dole abandoned her Republican bid to become America's first woman president.

Five years ago: A U.S. Army staff sergeant, Ivan "Chip" Frederick, pleaded guilty to abusing Iraqi detainees at Abu Ghraib prison. (Frederick was sentenced to eight years in prison; he was paroled in 2007.) After being just three outs from getting swept in the AL championship series three nights earlier, the Boston Red Sox finally beat the New York Yankees, winning Game 7 in a 10-3 shocker to become the first major league team to overcome a 3-0 postseason series deficit. ABC announced it was dropping the Miss America beauty pageant (it was later picked up by cable country musical network CMT, then cable channel TLC).

One year ago: A rising wave of optimism lifted Wall Street, propelling the Dow Jones industrials up more than 400 points on more signs of a reviving credit market and hints from Federal Reserve Chairman Ben Bernanke that the government would take more steps to help the economy. Arkansas TV anchorwoman Anne Pressly was found severely beaten in her Little Rock home; she died several days later. (A suspect, Curtis Vance, faces trial.) Taliban gunmen in Kabul, Afghanistan killed Christian aid worker Gayle Williams, a British-South African national. Sister Emmanuelle, a Belgium-born nun who'd lived for years in Cairo's slums, died in Callian, France at age 99.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: I was thrilled to read "Sober in Scottsdale's" (July 28) letter about drinking. I'm a 21-year-old college student who has also struggled with choosing to be sober amidst the majority of my drunken peers. Most people my age drink only to get drunk and appear to be unable to have fun without the aid of alcohol. Every activity must be performed under the influence.

While at a nightclub, one friend asked me how I was able to "dance and have a good time without being drunk."

Abby, in your response to "Sober," you said that drinkers should "mind their own business" because "there is usually a good reason why a person doesn't drink." For me, there is no medical, metabolic or addiction problem that prevents me from consuming alcohol. But I have seen the effects it has on my peers — putting them in drunken stupors, using awful judgment, and being taken to the hospital after blacking out.

I left the college of my choice after one month because I could no longer stand hearing people in the bathroom vomiting all night long. Drinkers aren't ashamed of these displays. They brag about them to their friends the next day.

I sure hope this stage is one that will pass with age. I often long for the days when I was younger, when playing board games and sipping juice was considered a good time.

— NOT DRINKING IN NEW JERSEY

DEAR NOT DRINKING: Apparently binge drinking is still a rite of passage for some college students. I would like to address one comment you made in your letter. With some young people, binge drinking is a phase that passes as they learn their limit — but with others it can be a pattern that begins in their teens and sometimes even younger.

Read on for more comments from readers who feel as you do:

DEAR ABBY: I chose to be a non-drinker when my children became teenagers. I wanted to show them that I could have a good time without drinking, and I think it was an important lesson.

Parents need to seriously consider the messages they convey. I'm shocked that some allow underage drinking in their homes. One mother who had a party in her home told me the kids were drinking there for the "learning experience." I got so annoyed I asked her if she was also providing hookers, since many of the teens were probably sexually inexperienced too. She didn't know what to say.

— VENTING IN SOUTH WINDSOR, CONN.

DEAR ABBY: You said there's usually a good reason why a person doesn't drink. Can't it just be my choice? I'm not an alcoholic, and I don't take medication that alcohol would react adversely with. I enjoy an occasional glass of wine or other alcoholic beverage, but I do not need to drink in order to have a good time. And there is nothing "wrong" with me if I choose to refrain from indulging. More people should make the same choice.

— CHERYL IN MADISON, ALA.

DEAR ABBY: I choose not to drink so I can be the designated driver should the need arise. My dad was a member of AA. And, quite frankly, I'd rather use my calories on cake than a drink.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE® Bobby Wolff

"Heaven's great lamps do dive Into their west, and straight again revive."

— Thomas Campion

Today's deal comes from Ron Klinger's latest book, "Right Through the Pack Again." It is unusual for a bridge work of fiction to have credible characters displaying lifelike emotions.

The plot of the book concerns the real hero, the Old Master, who is in a coma and is not sure if he wants to die, because both his children have passed away before him. The playing cards are trying to bring him back because they love him, so they are telling the stories of his greatest triumphs. Here the heart queen has taken center stage.

"This experience was special for me. Against three no-trump West led the spade nine and the Old Master won with the ace. He paused for just a moment. His thoughts had gone to his daughter Jenny. 'She was the queen of his heart and so he played me,' said the queen of hearts. 'Declarer covered with the king, played the club ace, followed by the club queen. He overtook with the club king and led the diamond jack: this went to the five, four and king. West returned a heart and the Old Master collected three heart tricks to take the contract one down."

"For me this deal epitomized the Old Master's life. Jenny was the one and only for him and I was the one and only card at trick two to beat the contract. Jenny surrounded her family with love and I was needed to surround dummy's jack to beat the contract."

ANSWER: In this sequence a call of two no-trump shows 18-19 points, not 12-14. With a minimum balanced hand, you would simply pass and await future action — if any. Although your hand is at the top of your range, there is no harm in having a maximum from time to time. Simply bid two no-trump and let partner move on if he wants.

SUDOKU

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Concepts Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.

Mathis' RBI double in 11th wins it for Angels

By Greg Beacham
Associated Press writer

ANAHEIM, Calif. — When Derek Jeter led off Game 3 with a homer into the bullpen, this AL championship series seemed uncomplicated. Power hitting and steady pitching appeared to be driving New York to the World Series.

About 261 minutes, 14 pitchers, six homers and several big blunders later, a winning hit by a backup catcher left only one thing certain in this cuckoo series: The Los Angeles Angels won't be trampled by the mighty Yankees.

Jeff Mathis drove home Howie Kendrick with a two-out double in the 11th inning, and the Angels survived a second straight ALCS thriller, beating New York 5-4 Monday to trim the Yankees' series lead to 2-1.

"There was a lot of great baseball on that field this afternoon," Angels manager Mike Scioscia said. "There were a lot of twists and turns, and both teams played a terrific game. We just got it done at the end."

Kendrick, himself a part-time infielder, homered and tripled before singling with two outs in the 11th off rookie Alfredo Aceves. Mathis followed with his drive up against the left-field wall, and Kendrick slid home well ahead of a desperate throw, setting off an on-field celebration of the backups' bonanza.

Mathis, a .211 hitter in the regular season, came up with his third late-inning, extra-base hit of this outlandish series, just two days

CSI

Brazilian making difference for CSI VB

By David Bashore
Times-News writer

A less predictable, more multi-faceted offense has helped the College of Southern Idaho volleyball team back toward the top of the NJCAA world.

Someone's got to get those attackers the ball, and CSI has one of the best at doing just that. Barbara Alcantara, a 5-foot-8 slick-setting freshman, was a late addition out of Curitiba, Brazil, but she's paid immediate dividends for the Golden Eagles.

They have spent three weeks at No. 1 in the nation this season, won 22 of 26 matches so far, and Alcantara is eighth in the country with 10.23 assists per set, according to NJCAA statistic logs.

"She makes setting look so easy, and she does all the things tactically that you can't train," said CSI coach Heidi Cartisser. "She's a huge difference-maker."

Her distribution isn't the only thing that makes her dangerous. As evidenced by Saturday's first-set-winning point against North Idaho College, where Alcantara slid to retrieve a low pass and managed to dump it over the net from her knees to claim the point, her decision making is just as vital.

"That's just stuff you can't train, she's just good at it," said Cartisser. "She's been training at a really high level at that position, and she just has a natural personality for it, a natural ability for it ... she's just good."

As Alcantara adjusts to life in Twin Falls, Cartisser believes she's becoming a better player on-court for it. This despite dealing with complications from a jammed right thumb that makes it tougher for her to set pain-free.

"We're seeing her a little more comfortable in being able to direct and lead with communication," Cartisser said. In regards to the thumb, she added, "I wouldn't say she's 100 percent, but she just knows she's going to have to play through some pain because that injury takes a long time to recover. But having the support she has on it she's able to function and do a good job."

Who said Brazilians were only good at soccer and samba?

Top seeds squeak by competition at GBC VB tourney

By Ryan Howe
Times-News writer

The top two seeds survived near-upsets on the first day of the Great Basin Conference volleyball tournament Monday at Twin Falls High School.

No. 1 seed Twin Falls needed five sets to defeat No. 4 Jerome, and No. 3 Wood River took No. 2 Minico to the brink in three-set nail-biter.

"You need matches like that," said Twin Falls coach B.J. Price. "You don't want to just blow through stuff because you don't learn anything. I was hoping it would be this competitive because whoever goes (to state) needs to have this, or else it will be an eye-opener."

Tournament action continues today at Twin Falls High School, highlighted by the Twin Falls-Minico match in the winners' bracket at 5 p.m.

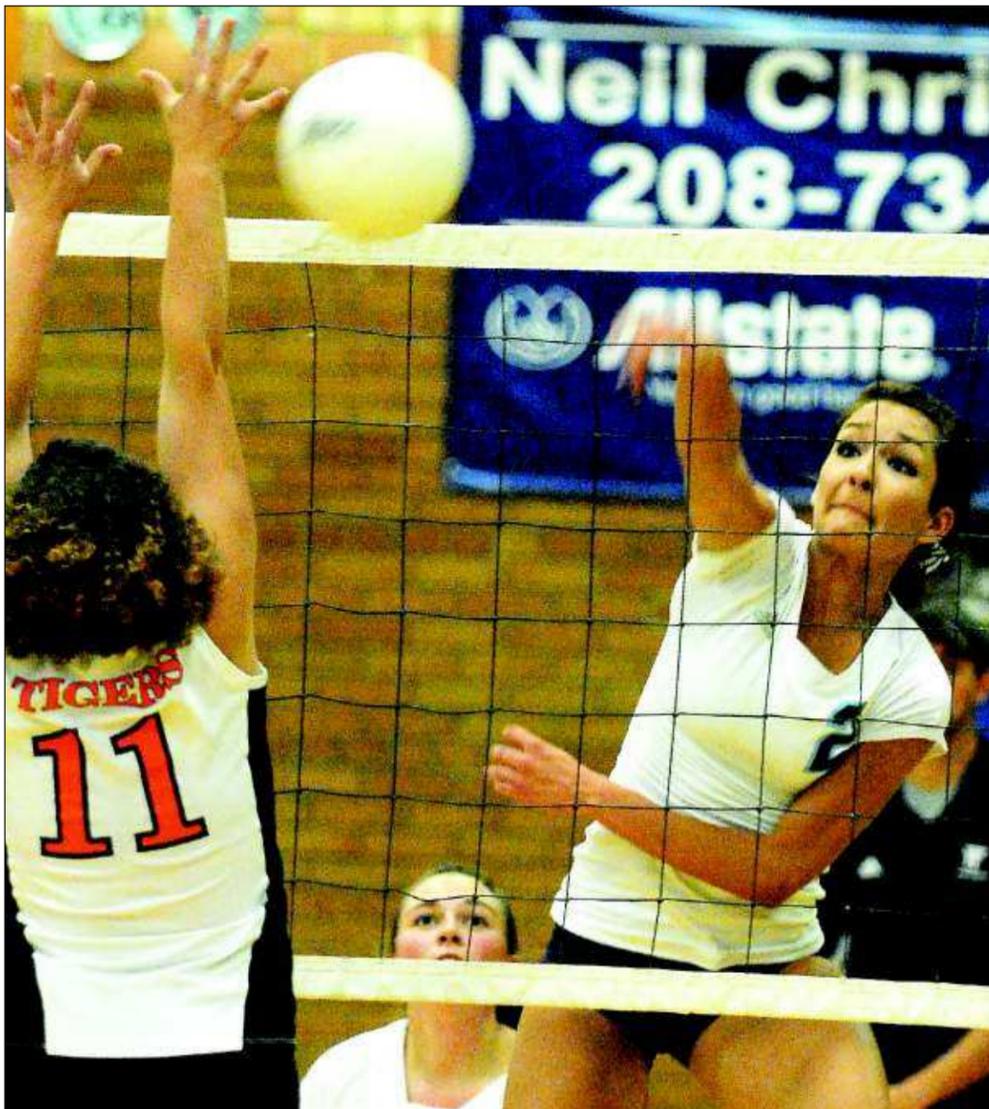

TWIN FALLS 3, JEROME 2

Jerome nearly pulled the upset of the tournament, but Twin Falls had more poise to close out the match 23-25, 25-14, 25-21, 22-25, 15-6.

"We came in knowing that at districts anything can happen," said Jerome coach Hannah Clark. "They put all their heart into it and competed really hard. We practiced and studied (Twin Falls) and had a game plan."

The Bruins rose to the occasion and put away the fifth set early by earning the first 13 points, with Ariel Medina at the serving line.

Declo glad to be playing conference tourney at Valley

By Mike Christensen
Times-News writer

Even in a clear rebuilding year, the Valley Vikings managed to gain hosting rights for the Class 2A Canyon Conference volleyball tournament. But that's just fine with Declo coach Krissy Darrington, whose team shared the regular-season title with the Vikings.

"We tend to play better away than home," said Darrington. "It takes the pressure off of us."

Both Valley and Declo finished conference play with 3-1 marks, sweeping third-seeded Glens Ferry and splitting against each other. Valley won a five-set match at Declo last week to force the first-place tie, then won a coin flip for hosting rights.

The Hornets haven't made a state appearance this decade and hope to end Valley's nine-year streak of tournament titles.

"It's been a long time," Darrington said. "It would be a big accomplishment for us."

Declo opens against Glens Ferry at 5:15 p.m.,

Akey: Idaho not satisfied with just six wins

By Nicholas K. Geranios
Associated Press writer

Idaho has posted its sixth win to become bowl eligible for the first time in a decade, but coach Robb Akey is not about to let the surprise team of the Western Athletic Conference rest on its laurels.

The Vandals (6-1, 3-0 WAC) are not guaranteed a bowl bid, unless they win some more, Akey said. And his players have some bigger goals.

"We want to stay in the race for the WAC championship," Akey said Monday, a goal that would require they beat archrival No. 5 Boise State for the first time since 1998.

But first, the Vandals play at Nevada (3-3, 2-0) on Saturday. The Wolf Pack sports the nation's leading rushing attack at more than 290 yards per game.

"We've got a big-time showdown this week," Akey said. "It will say a lot about the WAC championship."

"Their quarterback is a hell of a player," Akey said of Colin Kaepernick, who threw for three touchdowns in Nevada's 35-32 win at Utah State last weekend.

"They are one of the better

Idaho's Lavarias claims WAC honor

BOISE (AP) — Idaho defensive end Aaron Lavarias, who had two sacks and forced a fumble, has been named top defensive player for the week by the Western Athletic Conference.

Lavarias, a junior, had four solo tackles, three quarterback hurries and played a key role in the Vandals' 35-23 victory over Hawaii on Saturday. After he forced a fumble in the fourth quarter, the Vandals capitalized by marching for a touchdown to go up 35-17 and improve to 6-1 on the season.

Idaho running back DeMaundray Woolridge was nominated for top offensive player, and Gary Walker was nominated for his play on special teams.

defenses we've faced," Akey added.

The Vandals picked up their sixth win, the most since the 1999 team won seven games, with a 35-23 victory over Hawaii on Saturday in Moscow.

It was their first victory over the Warriors since Idaho joined the WAC in 2005. It was their fifth win in a row and kept a team predicted to finish last in the WAC in first place.

Idaho quarterback Nate Enderle completed 14-of-17 passes for 226 yards and one touchdown. Running back Princeton McCarty had 89 yards, while DeMaundray Woolridge rushed for 81 yards and four touchdowns, giving him 12 for the season.

Junior Aaron Lavarias had two sacks, three quarterback hurries and forced a crucial Hawaii fumble in the fourth quarter. The junior from Woodinville, Wash., was named WAC defensive player of the week.

Royal's TD returns spark Broncos to 34-23 win

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Eddie Royal became the first player in Broncos history to return a kickoff and a punt for touchdowns in the same game, leading undefeated Denver to a wild 34-23 win over the San Diego Chargers on Monday night.

The Broncos didn't get an offensive touchdown until Kyle Orton threw a 19-yard pass to tight end Tony Scheffler late in the third quarter for a 24-23 lead. Denver added a field goal by Matt Prater and a late 5-yard touchdown catch by Brandon Stokley that was upheld on review.

This is the fifth time the Broncos have been 6-0, the first since going 13-0 in 1998 en route to winning their second straight Super Bowl behind John Elway. They opened a 3 1/2-game lead in the AFC West over three-time defending division champion San Diego (2-3).

Denver outside linebacker Elvis Dumervil had two sacks to extend his NFL lead to 10. His second sack caused Philip Rivers to fumble, with Vonnie Holliday recovering to set up Prater's 29-yard field goal. The Broncos sacked Rivers five times, three in the fourth quarter.

Royal is the 11th player in NFL history to return a kickoff and a punt for a touchdown in a game. He had a 93-yard kickoff return and a 71-yard punt return.

After the Chargers were forced to settle for a field goal following a sensational drive late in the first quarter, Royal took the kickoff at the 7, found a big hole at about the 35, cut inside of kicker Nate Kaeding

QUALCOMM STADIUM WORKER FALLS OUT OF PRESS BOX

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A worker at Qualcomm Stadium was taken to a hospital after falling out of the press box about three hours before the Denver Broncos played the San Diego Chargers on Monday night. The man was identified as Walt Daniels, a member of the Chargers' game-day staff. Daniels appeared to sustain a head injury after falling about 25 to 30 feet out of a booth that was to be used by Broncos assistant coaches, and landing on the loge level. He was administered CPR before being taken to Sharp Memorial Hospital.

at the 50 and raced down the left sideline to give the Broncos a 7-3 lead.

In the second quarter, Royal fielded Mike Scifres' punt on the bounce at the 29, worked his way inside, then outraced the coverage to the outside to give Denver a 17-10 lead.

Royal's electrifying returns at first silenced Qualcomm Stadium, then had Chargers fans booing.

Speedy little Darren Sproles of the Chargers got in on the action when he returned a punt 77 yards for a touchdown for a 20-17 lead that held up at halftime. Sproles caught Brett Kern's punt, ran up the left sideline, got a nice block at about the 50, cut inside and was gone.

Phillies beat Dodgers on Rollins' double in 9th

By Rob Maaddi
Associated Press writer

PHILADELPHIA — Jimmy Rollins lined a two-run double with two outs in the ninth inning off closer Jonathan Broxton and the Philadelphia Phillies rallied past the Los Angeles Dodgers 5-4 Monday night for a 3-1 lead in the NL championship series.

The defending champions can earn their second straight victory at home in Game 5 on Wednesday night. Cole Hamels, last year's NLCS and World Series MVP, will take the mound for the Phillies. Clayton Kershaw or Vicente Padilla will start for Los Angeles.

Trailing 4-3, the Phillies started their rally with one out in the ninth when pinch-hitter Matt Stairs walked on four pitches against Broxton. Stairs hit a two-run homer off Broxton in Game 4 of the NLCS last year at Dodger Stadium.

Broxton then hit Carlos Ruiz with a pitch, but pinch-hitter Greg Dobbs hit a soft liner to third for the second out.

Rollins, just 3 for 18 in the series to that point, then ripped a 99 mph fastball to right-center and the ball rolled all the way to the wall. Ruiz slid home without a throw.

Rollins pointed in the air as he rounded second and got mobbed by teammates at third base. Even Jamie Moyer, who just had surgery on his lower abdomen, limped out and joined the celebration.

Brad Lidge got two outs in the ninth to earn the win. Ryan Howard hit a two-run homer that gave him eight straight postseason games with at least one RBI, tying Lou Gehrig's major league record set more than seven decades ago.

Matt Kemp had a tiebreaking, solo homer for the Dodgers, and Manny Ramirez made a shoestring catch that prevented the tying run from scoring in the sixth.

Hagerman vs. Challis set for SRC volleyball title

Times-News

It's set. But how many sets will it take to crown a champion tonight?

The Hagerman and Challis volleyball teams will face off at 8 p.m. for the Class 1A Div. I Snake River Conference tournament championship in Hansen. The Pirates reached the title match by defeating Shoshone 13-25, 25-18, 22-25, 25-16, 15-11 in a semifinal match Monday. Challis beat Raft River 25-22, 25-20, 21-25, 25-27, 15-13 Monday in the late match.

"It was the goal, and we knew that it was within our reach," said Pirate coach Carrie Chizum.

Kaitlyn Nebeker and Amanda Regnier each contributed 15 kills for Hagerman and had plenty of help from outside hitters and setters Kyla Coates and Cheyenne Crist, who combined for 39 assists.

"We had all six players being smart with the ball and keeping our game as clean as possible," Chizum added.

The Indians fall to the elimination bracket and will play Lighthouse Christian, which knocked out Hansen 25-19, 25-15, 17-25, 25-8, at 6:30, tonight.

Castelford also survived, taking out Oakley 25-15, 26-24, 25-23. Allison Rodgers and Jessica Welch led the Wolves with eight kills each, with setters Kendra Flores and Lisa Canuto assisted 10 times each. Rodgers served five aces. Savanna Leverich dug 29 times on defense. The Wolves (9-9) will play the Trojans at 5.

The Bruins got double-doubles from Cheltzie Williams (27 kills, 10 digs) and Ariel Medina (16 kills 10 digs).

"Jerome did a lot of tips, and we weren't ready for it," said Medina. "They were doing some things that we weren't picking up on. It was an exciting game."

Sierra Chapple served eight aces for the Bruins, while Allie Johnson earned a season-high 41 assists, and Mallory Jund had 20 digs.

For Jerome, Carrie Thibault had 14 kills and Haylee Burnham added 10 kills. Stephanie Bingham served five aces.

"Our goal is to come all the way back around, and hopefully, we get them again," Clark said. "It was a good confidence booster for the girls to know they can play that close to Twin and almost beat them."

MINICO 3, WOOD RIVER 0

Minico edged Wood River 26-24, 26-24, 25-20.

"We were expecting it to be pretty competitive," said Minico senior Breonna Phillips, who had 10 kills, 10 blocks and eight digs. "We did really well adjusting to their hits and playing defense. It's really exciting because now we can focus on Twin (today), and that will be a competitive game."

Chelsea Hepworth recorded 11 kills and six blocks for Minico. Kendra Bailey added 14 kills and

Kelli Kindig had 10 digs. Setter Hayli Worthington distributed 26 assists and had 19 digs.

Ellen Johnson led Wood River with 12 kills, while Grace Lagodich and Jessica Hamilton added 10 and six kills, respectively.

"The girls kept their composure, which was huge because those really tough first two games could have gone either way," said Minico coach Kris Christensen.

WOOD RIVER 3, BURLEY 0

Wood River swept Burley in the opening round, 25-19, 25-12, 25-18.

The Wolverines were led by Grace Lagodich with 15 kills and Ellen Johnson with nine.

Kayla Kerbs led Burley with five kills and seven digs, while Delta Jones tallied 15 assists.

"We weren't very consistent," said Burley coach Tiffany Green. "Whenever you play Wood River, they're always fundamentally sound, and their defense is always tough."

JEROME 3, CANYON RIDGE 1

Before its epic match with Twin Falls, the Tigers battled four games with the Riverhawks. Jerome won 25-13, 26-28, 25-21, 25-22.

Carrie Thibault led Jerome with 15 kills and six digs. Aimee Hiebert had nine kills, Melissa Leavitt had six kills, and Chayna Jones served six aces for the Tigers.

BURLEY 3, CANYON RIDGE 0

Burley stayed alive in the tournament by eliminating Canyon Ridge in the one-loss bracket, 25-11, 25-17, 27-25.

Burley stepped up in the absence of starting middle blocker Melanie Garrard, who went down with a season-ending ankle injury.

Kayla Kerbs had 10 service points, four kills and four digs for Burley. Yliana Daniel had 11 service points, Teresa Wayment tallied five kills and five digs, and Delta Jones gave out 16 assists.

"Our passes were better, and our kids were more relaxed and more confident," Burley coach Tiffany Green said. "It's a good win for us to get ready for (today) with Jerome."

after the clubs' 310-minute, 13-inning icy epic in Game 2.

"Obviously, it's the biggest hit of my life," Mathis said. "For Howie to have the at-bat he did right there, and to get on base and put one in the gap to win the game, it's a pretty good feeling."

If the Angels had any lingering doubts about their ability to match up with the big-money Yankees after two discouraging losses in the chilly Bronx, those worries melted during their comeback in the balmy Orange County sun.

"Man, that was one of the craziest games," said Angels outfielder Torii Hunter, who lamented his 1-for-5 effort. "It was an emotional roller coaster, man. We were up, we were down. I've got a headache right now, but it was a lot of fun. Both teams were battling and we came through in the end. As long as you have innings and outs left, you've got a chance to two seniors in Taylor Rogers and Elizabeth Shawver, but the young Vikings have made major strides this fall.

Said Darrington: "At this point, I think either one of us can take it, depending on who wants it more."

Game 4 is tonight, with CC Sabathia pitching on three days' rest against Angels newcomer Scott Kazmir. Game 5 in the best-of-seven series is Thursday.

Vladimir Guerrero hit a tying two-run homer as the Angels overcame a 3-0 deficit and four solo homers by the Yankees' stars, including Jorge Posada's tying shot in the eighth. Bobby Abreu made a big baserunning mistake, Joba Chamberlain flopped, and Mariano Rivera made a gutsy stand with the bases loaded in the 10th before Kendrick and Mathis made it all academic with two quick hits against Aceves, the Yankees' eighth pitcher.

Mathis entered Game 3 in the eighth, and had a leadoff double in the 10th.

"You wouldn't think Jeff Mathis would be the guy that beats us, but top to bottom, they're a good lineup," said Yankees reliever Phil Hughes, who got five outs and finished the ninth.

Lawyers says arrests coming in UConn stabbing

STORRS, Conn. (AP) — A Bloomfield man will be arrested in the stabbing death of a University of Connecticut football player, his lawyer said Monday night, as police continued to sort out what happened during a fight outside a school-sponsored dance over the weekend.

Attorney Deron Freeman declined to identify his client, but says the man and several others got into a fight “with about six” UConn football players early Sunday. Freeman says his client did not stab Jasper Howard, but was present when Howard was mortally wounded.

Freeman said police searched his client’s home in Bloomfield and removed some items. Freeman said police told him that his client and others will be arrested.

It would be the second arrest connected to the stabbing. Johnny Hood, 21, of Hartford, was arraigned Monday on charges of interfering with an officer and breach of peace, but he has not been charged in Howard’s death.

Authorities said Hood gave a false name when he was questioned. His bond initially was set at $100,000, but that was reduced Monday to $10,000.

Hood’s attorney, Justin Freeman, said at the arraignment that his client is a full-time dental assistant and a part-time student at Capitol Community College, who was “at the wrong place at the wrong time,” and did not even know a homicide had occurred.

Coach Randy Edsall said two other players tried in vain to save Howard’s life.

“One had Jasper in his arms and the other was pressuring where the wound went in and had blood on his hands,” Edsall said. “And those two young men are pretty deeply affected right now.”

The state’s medical examiner’s office said Monday that Howard died from a single stab wound to the abdomen.

Howard, a junior and starting cornerback, came to the school to get away from the violence on the streets of his hometown of Miami. He was the first person in his family to go to college.

Joanglia Howard said she got news of her son’s death about 4 a.m. Sunday.

“All I wanted him to do was go to school and get an education, and he was doing what I asked him to do,” she told WSVN-TV in Miami.

Edsall picked up Howard’s parents Monday at a Connecticut airport. He planned to take them to visit the surgeon who tried to save their son’s life, and the medical examiner who has custody of the body.

Earnhardt Jr. in the dumps over season

By Jenna Fryer Associated Press writer

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Nobody is trying to sugar-coat the trainwreck that is Dale Earnhardt Jr.'s season.

He knows it's bad. His car owner knows it's bad. All of NASCAR knows it's bad.

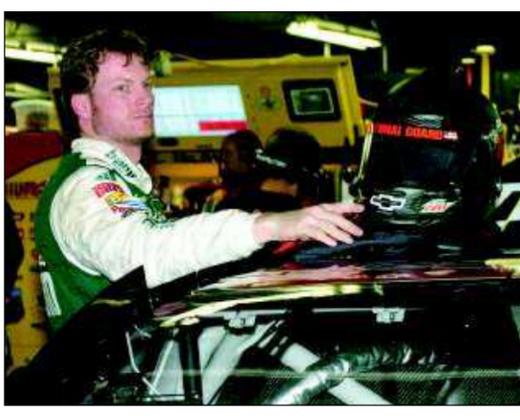

Only nobody knows how to fix it. And as the most prolific pairing in NASCAR history teeters on the brink of disaster, car owner Rick Hendrick is in a race to figure out what to do with his No. 88 team before Earnhardt loses what's left of his crumbling confidence.

'I'm as frustrated as those guys are,' Hendrick said of Earnhardt's team. 'But I can tell you this ... I'm as committed as I know how to be, and we're all committed to each other. We're just going to keep digging.'

It's bizarre how bad things are for Earnhardt, who is stuck in a maddening slide at the same time his Hendrick Motorsports teammates hold down the top three spots in the Sprint Cup standings.

When he runs well, it's still not good enough to compete with points leader Jimmie Johnson, Mark Martin or Jeff Gordon. And when he runs bad, it's really, really bad. Throw in all of the bad luck and broken parts, and it's a wonder he's still able to show up at the race track each weekend.

Earnhardt did everything asked of him last weekend at Lowe's Motor Speedway, although it seemed as if NASCAR's most popular driver was at times just going through the motions. He thought he had a decent race car, but instead qualified a humiliating 39th while his teammates all grabbed spots inside the top nine.

It might as well have been the straw that broke the camel's back.

Earnhardt appeared defeated the rest of the weekend and said little to contradict that assessment: Is he trying to change himself? 'I don't even know what I used to do.'

Is he second-guessing everything? 'No. I've passed all of that. I'm over it, to be honest with you.'

How does he keep his head up? 'I don't know. We just need to run better. It's not happening.'

Does he feel like he's in a tough spot? 'I feel like I'm in ... I feel like I don't have any ... I feel like I don't have any control, you know?'

He chose his words carefully, but was unable to hide the mounting frustration of a disastrous second season driving for the best organization in NASCAR. He's won just one race since joining Hendrick Motorsports, in June of 2008, and has just five top-10 finishes all season.

Earnhardt is 22nd in the standings, hasn't finished higher than 17th in the past seven races, and an electrical problem Saturday night at Lowe's sent him to the garage early and a 38th-place finish.

As Hendrick later celebrated Johnson's third victory in five Chase for the Sprint Cup championship races, he was asked about another night of struggles for his superstar driver. He'd met with Earnhardt and interim crew chief Lance McGrew for a pre-race pep talk in which he reconfirmed his commitment to turning the No. 88 team around.

'I told them this can't last. We've got too many smart people over there to not fix it,' Hendrick said. 'It's just so much pressure with (his teammates) running like they're running, and you've got three cars that are up in the points like that. We don't hide from it, we just know we're just got to work harder. It's eating him up.'

'But we're going to get it. I just hope it's soon.'

The struggles have led many to question Earnhardt's talent level, after all, if he can't perform in Hendrick equipment, he can't be all that good, right? Longtime family friend Richard Childress, who fielded championship-winning cars for Earnhardt's father, said it's just not that simple.

'I feel like I'm in ... I feel like I don't have any ... I feel like I don't have any control, you know?'
