High-tech tickets

Twin Falls law enforcement, state police to put away pens, ticket pads

By Andrea Jackson
 Times-News writer

Police plan to stop writing tickets soon in Twin Falls — at least with a pen.
 Twin Falls city and county law enforcement is going electronic, with new portable printers and scanners in patrol cars and motorcycles. And statewide within a year, Idaho State Police also plan to ticket people in a more high-tech way.

Authorities hope the equipment will save time for police and the public — it can now take up to 10 minutes to wait for a ticket — and reduce errors in court.
 Currently, police write tickets by hand, give a copy to the violator, and clerks later enter ticket information into agency systems and the court's public information database, said Twin Falls Police Sgt. Brian Pike.

Health district handling vaccine shortage

Clinic will administer shots on Saturday

The best way to increase your chances of getting the swine-flu vaccine is to get pregnant fast.
 The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention announced a shortage of the vaccine this week and will ship fewer doses to health districts than expected. The priority groups, such as pregnant women and health-care workers, will be targeted more rigidly than before and offered the vaccine first.
 At a clinic in Murtaugh last week, a healthy 40-year-old was just as likely as a recently ill 6-year-old to get a shot.

WATCH an interview with Jody Tatum and footage of Wednesday's work.

The weather Wednesday threatened to thwart them.
 But by sometime today, the developers behind a proposed zip line in the Snake River Canyon intend to have a cable strung along its route.
 That will give the public a better idea of just where the line would run and its effect on the canyon's views, said Jody Tatum, spokeswoman for Magic Valley Flight Simulation LLC.
 The LLC would like to stretch the 3,558-foot powered zip line from Canyon Crest Dining and Event Center to a point parallel to Blue Lakes Boulevard as it runs along most of Twin Falls. The zip line would be bidirectional and turn 180 degrees to return to its launch site, offering a 1.3-mile round-trip ride.

 "We are hoping to bring one of the greatest attractions we can here," said LLC member Ralph Klinsky.
 With the permission of City Manager Tom Courtney, LLC members lowered half of the demonstration cable down from the rim near Canyon Crest late Wednesday afternoon. The other half will be lowered from the Blue Lakes side, Tatum said, and then the two will be joined together and raised up. Flags strung along the full cable will help people track its path.

 The example cable should be up for four to five days, Tatum said, and will still be in place on Sunday when the LLC holds a public meeting at Canyon Crest to share more information about the project. Members hope that will give people all the information they need ahead of Tuesday evening's public hearing before the city's Planning and Zoning Commission.

 The Sunday meeting will run from 2 to 4 p.m., Tatum said. People will be able to view structural drawings, ask questions of the project's engineer and watch a video of test runs of the technology at Devil's Corral a couple of years ago.
 "We know there are a lot of questions out there and this is an opportunity to bring them up," Tatum said.

County-hospital agreement could complicate request

An effort by the Idaho Elks to be recognized as a Twin Falls County health-care provider could reopen a legal issue stemming from the intricate 2006 sale of the county hospital to St. Luke's Health System.
 The county and St. Luke's signed a settlement agreement modifying the sale just months ago following extensive negotiations. But the Wednesday-morning request from Boise's Idaho Elks Rehabilitation Hospital led county commissioners to

Jerome man missing following boating accident in western Idaho

By John Plestina
 Times-News writer

A Jerome man has been missing since Oct. 14 after a boating accident on the Snake River in Hells Canyon along the Oregon border.
 Idaho County Sheriff Doug Giddings, in a prepared statement, identified the missing boater as Ray Dean Leavitt, 64. The Idaho County Sheriff's Department reported that the accident happened three-quarters of a mile north of Cooper Bar on the Snake River at about 11:22 a.m. on Oct. 14.

 Leavitt was fishing with family and friends, according to the sheriff's department.

Leavitt and Tom Blair, 50, of Twin Falls, were fishing for bass off the front of the boat when it struck a rock. Both men were thrown into the water.
 "Blair was able to get back to the boat but Leavitt did not. Neither man was wearing a life vest," the sheriff's statement read.

Leavitt was reported as having gone into swift water, surfacing once and then going under. Depths are at 60 feet in some areas.
 Due to turbulent water conditions, it was decided not to send divers into the water immediately. Divers have since made several unsuccessful attempts to locate Leavitt.

 Giddings was unavailable Wednesday and attempts to reach Chief Deputy Jim Gorges were unsuccessful.
 The Idaho County Free Press reported Wednesday that search efforts were ending and that cadaver dogs and divers were used Tuesday in a final effort to locate Leavitt.

Idaho Department of Fish and Game and several neighboring sheriff's departments assisted Idaho County with the search, according to the press release.

Tickets

Twin Falls city and county authorities hope within 30 days to be handing out the new tickets. City police alone usually write about 6,000 tickets annually, which soon will be printed after police scan driver's licenses or ID cards to input information electronically.

Barcodes containing driver information have been on Idaho licenses since 2001. The technology requires a scanner and software and was added to increase security and allow police to cite electronically, said Jeff Stratton, a spokesman for the Idaho Transportation Department.

This first year of purchasing equipment and administering electronic citations in Twin Falls County will cost $206,544, covered by the county sheriff's office, city police, the court and four grants, according to information from the county. Preparing to hand out high-tech tickets cost city police about $30,000 last year, said Pike. The court in Twin Falls is covering $12,300, the sheriff's office is paying $4,227, and grants are covering most of the $206,544, according to county information.

Idaho State Police Capt. Eric Dayley, based in Pocatello, is coordinating the electronic ticket program for state police. He says more than $900,000 in grant money will fund most of the initiative, though about $500,000 may still be needed to implement it statewide.

"It's fairly spendy to implement," said Capt. Dayley. "With holdbacks and cuts it's difficult."

ISP hopes to issue high-tech tickets in Boise and Coeur d'Alene by April. Within a year, the rest of ISP's statewide fleet should also be capable, Dayley said. The average time spent on a vehicle stop is about 10 to 15 minutes; with electronic ticketing it's about 5 minutes, Pike said.

Quicker ticketing means police can potentially write more citations and drivers won't have to wait as long, said Dayley. "The best way to change driver behavior is through citations."

Common ticket-writing problems should be alleviated. Scanning information will reduce misspellings, numerical errors, penmanship concerns and other issues, police authorities said.

Police and motorists will also be safer by spending less time along the side of highways during each ticketing, Dayley said.

Twin Falls Police Department plans to outfit 26 patrol cars with the new ticketing equipment, though Pike says only four or five will be brought onboard as the system gets up and running.

The sheriff's office is putting equipment in seven cars and two motorcycles.

Twin Falls County follows Post Falls and Ada counties in moving law enforcement and courts toward electronic ticketing. Other counties are planning to make the switch, including Orofino, Bonneville, Nez Perce, Rathdrum, and Montpelier, said Linda Wright, trial court administrator for south-central Idaho's 5th Judicial District.

After two years of planning, Twin Falls County court staff anticipate fewer errors with electronic ticketing, said Wright. "The name is going to be the same, always."

Vaccines

vaccinated more than 300 people in Murtaugh last week, expects to provide vaccines in all eight counties that it serves but isn't sure how many doses it will receive next. The health district will dispense vaccinations at a currently undisclosed location Saturday.

"At the national level, when they announce a shortage of vaccinations, it has a cascading effect through all of the states," said Rene LeBlanc, director of the health district. "We'll be getting more next week, but I don't bank on projections — they've changed too many times."

It's not as though the health district is hoarding vaccine doses like a leprechaun over a pot of gold, LeBlanc emphasized, but the vaccine will be distributed more carefully than before in order to avoid a catastrophe similar to a run on a bank.

"We have a clinic scheduled Saturday (which will be announced Friday), but I don't want to disclose where," LeBlanc said, citing the recent incident in Nampa with people from Oregon and Twin Falls driving to the Treasure Valley to get a shot.

"Those people from Oregon should have been dealing with an Oregon health district," he said.

Until the next shipment arrives in the area, on Oct. 30, and without knowing how many doses arrive in the Fed Ex truck, LeBlanc said he can't commit to announcing upcoming clinics. Until then, he said, the health district will be working "one-on-one with school superintendents."

As of now, the health district — which dispenses some of its vaccine doses to private health-care providers — has more than

"If you're a healthy mom or dad, you're probably not going to get a shot until later in the season when it's available."

— Rene LeBlanc, director of the South Central Public Health District

2,000 doses on hand. Depending on how many are used Saturday, two more unspecified school districts are tentatively scheduled for vaccinations sometime next week.

LeBlanc emphasized that south-central Idaho comprises only 11.6 percent of the state's population and that, after the health district receives a shipment from the state health department and dispenses an allotment to registered health-care providers, he gets what's left.

"If you're a healthy mom or dad, you're probably not going to get a shot until later in the season when it's available," he said.

LeBlanc would only say that the clinic Saturday will be held in an area with pregnant students and people with unique medical requirements.

"I'm not hiding and not hoarding. It takes up to four days of coordinating with the schools when we get a shipment ... Everything is accounted for — I don't have any fluff right now," LeBlanc said.

Health district spokeswoman Amy Lierman added, "We're just trying to work within our means."

Elks

push to change one aspect of a cap on indigent costs, surprising the CEO of St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center.

In 2007, St. Luke's Magic Valley replaced its transitional-care unit with an inpatient rehabilitation unit. It relied on the Idaho Elks Rehabilitation Hospital in Boise as advisors, and formed a joint venture — St. Luke's Idaho Elks Rehabilitation Services — to take over outpatient rehabilitation.

The Elks have been a presence in Twin Falls since, tallying about 5,000 patient encounters each year and performing a little less than $5 million in services. But the state hasn't recognized them as a provider in Twin Falls County, said CEO Joe Caroselli, because the county never formally invited them in as a necessary provider.

That affects what the Elks can bill for and resulted in inefficient arrangements for the organization, including a need for two separate billing systems, Caroselli said. Fixing it might save the Elks at least $200,000 a year, and he supplied commissioners on Wednesday with a draft contract based on the one approved for St. Luke's Mountain States Tumor Institute several years ago.

Commissioners George Urie and Tom Mikesell in turn said they feel the Elks' services are vital. But the county may have to consult Duane Morris, the national legal firm that's received nearly $130,000 in public funds to develop the 2006 agreement and handle issues stemming from it, to make sure the Elks contract wouldn't cause issues. They also argued for modifying the settlement — currently, the Elks joint venture is exempt from a $1 million cap on county indigent costs. MSTI is also listed as exempt.

"The more you expand out there, if you look at it financially, the more we pay for indigent care," Urie said, arguing the exemption should go away.

The Elks have yet to apply for indigent care for a patient in Twin Falls County, said Chief Financial Officer Douglas B. Lewis. But Caroselli said he understood the county's concerns and would support changing the cap.

Getting St. Luke's on board may be more difficult. St. Luke's Magic Valley CEO Mark Schwartz, asked Wednesday evening about altering the indigent cap, said he'd need to talk to Caroselli about the matter.

"That would not be consistent with the agreement, and we need to look at that," he said.

Ketchum pleased with sheriff's policing

By Ariel Hansen
Times-News writer

KETCHUM — The cops are tops again in Ketchum, thanks to the Blaine County Sheriff's Office, which contracted to provide law enforcement to the city beginning July 1. On Monday, Sheriff Walt Femling and Ketchum Police Chief Steve Harkins presented the contract's first-quarter results, which emphasized an increase in department morale.

"We're a lot farther along than I thought we would be," Femling said. He said the city's officers, who now work for him, have appreciated the shifts in policy and environment. "Change isn't easy, but they've embraced the change."

Among the measurable changes the sheriff pointed to were increases in calls for service and citations issued.

There were 236 citations since July 1, compared to 349 in all of calendar 2008 and about 300 in calendar 2007, Femling said. He said he expects that number to continue to rise to levels comparable to those in the late 1990s and early 2000s.

Calls for service, which are calls by the public asking for police assistance, were up 29 percent over the previous quarter. "That's self-generated, that's community policing," he said.

In addition, the sheriff's office used the new coordination between the department to launch a graffiti task force, which resulted in the arrests of 10 individuals within a few days of the group's creation.

"I know morale was terrible, and I know we're going in the right direction."

— Ketchum Mayor Randy Hall

Femling said he has found efficiencies in the department beyond what he had expected, which he hopes will result in additional savings for Ketchum and the county if the contract is extended for another period beginning October 2010.

Shifts in the morale and satisfaction of the Ketchum officers are more difficult to measure.

Before the contract took effect, an anonymous department survey found that internal communication, officer participation in department decisions, and officer morale were issues. Comments gathered by the department secretary since July 1 have indicated improvements, with officers saying they feel part of a team, there's more camaraderie, the job is fun again, and there are more incentives to work hard.

"I know morale was terrible, and I know we're going in the right direction," said Ketchum Mayor Randy Hall. He said he feels the community is also safer, citing as an example the police presence outside The Casino bar after closing time.

"It's been everything we hoped it would be and probably more," said Ketchum city administrator Gary Marks.

T.F. Council approves airport snow removal equipment

Times-News

The Twin Falls City Council approved an agreement Monday night to buy snow removal equipment at the local airport.

A snow plow truck from 1983 could be replaced soon through the agreement with Wausau Equipment Company to buy a new truck for $563,230, which will both plow and sweep.

The city and county would need to match 5 percent of the cost. The Federal Aviation Administration is expected to cover the rest through a grant, according to the city.

The city of Hailey purchased the same equipment from Wausau after collecting three bids. Twin Falls Airport Manager Bill Carberry asked the City Council Monday to piggyback off Hailey, so Twin Falls won't need to open up its own bidding.

"By utilizing an option to piggyback the bid award made by the Friedman Memorial Airport, the airport would be able to take advantage of the competitive bid already in place, save money on engineering design specifications and the cost of bid administration," according to a report from Carberry.

Carberry also told council members he estimates that at least $20,000 will likely be saved through the piggyback bidding.

Also at Monday's meeting, councilmen voted in favor of a planned unit agreement between the city and developer Gregg Olsen for a storage facility along Grandview Drive, north of the city golf course.

Councilmen will discuss further next week a proposed amendment to an ordinance governing the city's improvement reimbursement commission established in July. The amendment would remove a current licensing requirement for engineers, surveyors or architects sitting on the commission.

A local resident has complained about the proposal, said City Engineer Jackie Fields on Monday.

"He suggests that perhaps we could have recruited better," said Fields. "So the objection is placed?"

Fields said Monday that seven applications to sit on the commission were received by the city, with only one from a licensed engineer.

Lands Board approves Buhl riverfront transfer

By Blair Koch
Times-News correspondent

BOISE — Idaho Lands Board commissioners on Tuesday approved a transfer of ownership rights for 2.26 acres of Snake River frontage north of Buhl to Dan and June Miller of Washington.

The board voted unanimously in favor of the application contested by some local residents and area activist group Citizens Protecting Resources.

They contested where IDL placed the river's "ordinary high-water mark," the line distinguishing the boundary between upland private property and the area offering public access to the beds of state rivers.

"All of us have the same common goal, to protect our public trust lands and natural resources," said Buhl resident Phil Smith.

Smith and Twin Falls resident Dale Turnipseed asked the application be denied and the board to issue a moratorium on granting such applications so an investigation into the procedure could be completed.

Turnipseed said he had been in contact with personnel at the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and U.S. Geological Survey about possible technology that could simulate river flows and re-create the water mark where it was at the time of Idaho's statehood, arguing the land should remain within the public trust until such computation could be made.

"I believe proper determination of the accurate (water mark) should be made now, without the need to waste taxpayer money by carrying this issue to court to gain its proper resolution," Turnipseed said.

IDL Director George Bacon agreed that such modeling could alter the water mark as defined by the department.

"I don't know why that's necessary. A model can't add to that, but bring (the water mark) into question," Bacon said.

Dan Miller, who attended Tuesday's meeting in Moscow — which was also held in Boise via videoconference — applauded the department's diligence in seeing the application through.

"Approve this and let us move on," said Miller, who plans on developing a riverfront subdivision adjacent to the site.

During the meeting the board also approved a similar request for three-quarters of an on the Salmon River, transferred to the city of Riggins.

SIRCOMM committee studies tech upgrade

By Nate Poppino
Times-News writer

After some delays, the Southern Idaho Regional Communications Center may now be on the path to figuring out its future.

A five-member planning committee chaired by Twin Falls County Undersheriff Sam Walker will help the dispatch center's joint powers board navigate a federally mandated technology change, possibly addressing other issues in the process.

Meeting for the first time on Tuesday, committee members and other interested parties discussed how broad of a look they need to take at SIRCOMM's systems and noted funding issues and other challenges the center will face. It's work the center has attempted to start for some time; the joint powers board in April reviewed quotes for upgraded equipment.

The main issue is the federal change. After Dec. 31, 2012, dispatch centers must broadcast on narrower frequency bands. Wide-band radios aren't allowed to be made after January 2011, said Matt Howarth, a Motorola representative who attended Tuesday's meeting. Frequencies are expected to narrow again sometime after the 2012 change.

Officials are also considering shifting frequencies to the 700-megahertz range, though that discussion is complicated by the fact that some local agencies have already purchased new equipment for the current 450 MHz frequency, said communications technician Jerry Gonterman.

"I don't think that what we've got right now should weigh heavily on where we go down the road," Jerome County Sheriff Doug McFall said during the discussion.

The next step appears to be a "technology roundtable," as Walker put it, including presentations from manufacturers intended to bring the committee up to speed on its options. Gooding Police Chief Jeff Perry said the discussion should be carefully kept at an educational level and not veer into product pitches.

"The sooner we get some knowledge under our belts, the better," SIRCOMM Director John Moore said.

Three vie to become new Jerome mayor

By John Plestina
Times-News writer

JEROME — Three people are running for mayor of Jerome after current Mayor Charles Correll announced he would not to seek another term.

City Councilman John Shine is the only council member seeking the post. He is challenged by business owner Mike Dahmer and John Andoe.

Andoe, 45, has lived in Jerome 10 years. He was born in Gooding and graduated from Valley High School. He served six years in the Navy.

During a period that Andoe was away from Idaho, he was a sewer plant supervisor for the city of Delaware, Okla. He was also a firefighter and an ambulance crew first responder while he was in Oklahoma.

Now a local truck driver, Andoe was a welder for 20 years and framer for 10.

"In the next four years I am hoping to accomplish seeing a police force that cleans up the town and gets neighborhood watch programs going," Andoe said.

"A mayor is there to serve the citizens," he said, adding that he believes the current mayor and council have done so. "The citizens and in Jerome for 50 of his 58 years. He is a self-employed engineer and has worked in Washington, D.C., as well as Jerome.

Dahmer graduated from Utah State University.

Dahmer has been the Jerome County Republican Party Chairman and an elected precinct committeeman. He also was vice-chairman of the Jerome Planning and Zoning Commission, as well as Idaho's representative to the federal Regularly Enforcement Fairness Board of the Small Business Administration.

A former city engineer for Sun Valley for 12 years, Dahmer owns his own engineering firm.

"Jerome city has written a lot of policy into ordinances and they have ordained themselves into a corner," Dahmer said. "The City Council as policymakers has lost touch with their departments and I think the people in general. It's time for a new direction."

Shine, 64, is a 15-year resident of Jerome. He is originally from Dallas, Texas and was appointed to fill a vacancy and then was elected in 2007 to a four-year term.

A former business and financial planner with IBM, he said he has a degree in finance from San Jose State University and about 40 years of business experience.

"The first thing I would want to do is take some action to move the city more towards being run as a service business," Shine said. "I want to use the same principles I learned in private sector leadership and I want to deliver the highest possible quality services to the community for the least possible taxpayer dollar. I want to insure that we balance the budget in every single city fund."

He also said he wants to continue economic development policies and fix deficient infrastructure.

"I want to address the safety and security of our city's water system. One of the things I want to do is go to the people to see if they want to replace our aging irrigation system with something new and improved," Shine said.

The mayor's position earns $1,000 a month and receives benefits that go to city employees.

Gooding school board OKs Gibbons Building sale

By Damon Hunzeker
Times-News writer

For now, the Gibbons Building on Main Street still belongs to the Gooding School District. But the board passed a resolution Tuesday night to sell the building to the North Valley Academy charter school.

In a special meeting attended by about 50 people, the board voted 3-2 in favor of entering into closing negotiations with NVA to purchase the building for no less than $600,000 — including $120,000 earnest money paid to the district by Oct. 27 and a signed contract by Dec. 19.

Board members Linda Rogers, Lois Wartluft and Tracie Anderson voted in favor of the resolution. Joe Sliman and Elaine Bryant voted against it.

The school district has been renovating the building, including a recent steam-pipe repair, under the assumption that it may keep and use it for an alternative high school or an elementary school — both of which have been functions of the building in recent years.

"We'll stop the renovations. They agreed to purchase it as-is," Gooding Superintendent Heather Williams said. "It's like buying a house. We're in the process of closing, but until everybody signs on the dotted lines, it's not finished — and we're not there yet. A lot of things still need to happen."

In June, the district rejected a $470,000 offer from NVA — and, Williams said, much of the hesitation relates to the community's sentimental attachment to the building.

"It was a very tough decision for the board ... a lot of people here went to school in that building and have fond memories of it," Williams said. "And some people are hostile to the charter school, so it's been a complicated issue, but the board looked at what would be best for the Gooding School District and the people we serve."

If the deal closes, Williams said, the $600,000 will be devoted to repairs and renovations on the other two Gooding campuses — one of which will include a permanent alternative high school.

Merrill running for Hagerman Council seat

By Kimberly Williams-Brackett
Times-News correspondent

HAGERMAN — Running for Hagerman City Council along with incumbents Carl H. Jeffries and Michael Winther and newcomer Cary Shaffer is Krista Merrill.

Merrill is a clinical assistant for the South Central Public Health District in Jerome, Gooding and Shoshone.

She said she attended the University of Nevada, Las Vegas for a couple of years in health sciences. Merrill has extensive medical training and teaches emergency medical technician classes at the College of Southern Idaho.

As a resident of Hagerman for 25 years, Merrill said she wants to serve on the council because she has been a "public servant for this community and wants to give back. Now I have time to do that."

She did not return phone calls from the Times-News until after a preview of the candidates running for Hagerman city office ran on Oct. 16.

The city election will be held from noon to 8 p.m. Nov. 3, at the Hagerman City Hall.

Dad fears missing execution of daughter's killer

By John Miller
Associated Press writer

MOUNTAIN HOME — If Marion Lewis had his way, he'd take Washington, D.C.-area sniper John Allen Muhammad into the southern Idaho desert near his home and kill him slowly, over three days.

"He would be screaming the whole time. That's why I can't claim to be a good Christian," said Lewis.

His 25-year-old daughter, Lori Ann Lewis-Rivera, was vacuuming her minivan Oct. 3, 2002 at a Shell station near where she lived in Silver Spring, Md. when Muhammad and his young accomplice, Lee Boyd Malvo, gunned her down.

In lieu of personal retribution, Marion Lewis would settle for being present in the Virginia death chamber Nov. 10, when Muhammad is scheduled to die either by lethal injection or in the electric chair.

But while Lewis might prefer vengeance, even the playing out of justice has its price. He doesn't have the money for the trip to see his daughter's killer breathe his last breath.

The 57-year-old construction worker says he's been waylaid by the recession, hasn't held a steady job for two years and has been collecting unemployment on-and-off since 2007. He's trying to unload a house near Boise in a short sale.

So Lewis has been making phone calls to victim's assistance agencies in Idaho and Virginia, seeking help to pay for a journey he believes will put some semblance of closure on his daughter's murder. He called reporters, too, to tell his story.

"I feel a little ghoulish, asking for help doing this," said Lewis, who lives with his wife, Jo, and two beagles, Ruth and Gibson, in a scruffy home two miles from the tidy cemetery where his daughter is buried.

His living room walls are covered in pictures: Lori on her wedding day; Lori and Nelson Rivera, the Honduran landscaper she met at a Mormon church near Washington, D.C. and married; their daughter, Jocelin, now 10.

Virginia Gov. Timothy M. Kaine has said he's not planning to postpone the execution of Muhammad, whose shooting spree with Malvo terrorized Maryland, northern Virginia and

Washington, D.C. for three weeks, leaving 10 dead and three wounded.

Muhammad's attorney plans to ask the U.S. Supreme Court for a delay.

He was sentenced to die for killing 53-year-old Dean Meyers at a Manassas, Va., gas station six days after Lewis' daughter died. Malvo, 17 at the time, is serving a life sentence; it's unclear just who pulled the trigger.

Lewis first called the Idaho Crime Victim Compensation Program, where bureau chief George Gutierrez said that, typically, victims of crimes committed in other states should contact agencies there when seeking help.

Some states do offer at least some financial relief to victims' families seeking to attend criminal proceedings. The Texas Legislature has expanded its victim's assistance program specifically to help families attend executions, said Dan Eddy, executive director of the National Association of Crime Victim Compensation Boards in Alexandria, Va. But that's an exception.

"As much as this may mean to the father involved — we all understand his pain and grief — the crime victim compensation programs were set up by states to address physical and emotional injuries through medical and mental health treatment," Eddy said. "This may sound harsh, but attending an execution would not fall within the orbit of that general intent."

Patricia Allue, director of the Prince William County

Victim/Witness Program in Virginia, where Meyers was killed, said Lewis contacted her office looking for assistance but she doesn't have funds available. Officials in Maryland, where Lori Rivera was killed, didn't immediately return a phone call seeking comment.

And the Virginia Department of Corrections doesn't provide financial assistance to victims' families to attend executions. Officials there have been in contact with relatives of Muhammad's and Malvo's victims, including those killed in Maryland and Washington, D.C., in part because the rural Greensville Correctional Center in rural southern Virginia has limited capacity for those wanting to watch Muhammad die.

Taser tells police to avoid shooting at chest

By Amanda Lee Myers
Associated Press writer

PHOENIX — Stun-gun maker Taser International has started telling police agencies to avoid firing the devices at suspects' chests, explaining that there's an "extremely low" risk of ill effects on the heart and that doing so will make defending lawsuits easier.

The Scottsdale, Ariz.-based company made the recommendation in an Oct. 12 revised training manual, saying it "has less to do with safety and more to do with effective risk management for law enforcement agencies."

The manual also includes a lengthy explanation about deaths caused by sudden cardiac arrest.

"Should sudden cardiac arrest occur in a scenario involving a Taser discharge to the chest area, it would place the law enforcement agency, the officer, and Taser International in the difficult situation of trying to ascertain what role, if any, (the device) could have played," according to the manual.

The manual includes a graphic displaying the human body and "preferred target areas." The company recommends firing Tasers anywhere but at the head, neck and chest. The manual says to avoid chest shots "when possible" and "unless legally justified."

Taser critics call the company's new recommendation an admission that the devices can cause heart attacks.

"It's a sea change, a passive acknowledgment that Taser has indeed been overconfident about its claims of safety," said Mark Silverstein, legal director of the ACLU of Colorado. "It underscores the question marks that have been adding up along with hundreds of bodies."

Amnesty International

says more than 350 people in the U.S. died after they were shocked with Tasers, and that in 50 of those cases, medical examiners cited a link between Taser shocks and death.

Taser officials say the new recommendation is designed only to "avoid any potential controversy on this topic."

"There is no significant shift," Taser spokesman Steve Tuttle said in an e-mail. "Just a slight change by literally a few inches when intentionally targeting the preferred target zone ... Medical and field studies continue to demonstrate that the Taser carries a lower risk of injury than traditional force options, leading to lower officer injury rates and safer communities."

Tasers are used by 14,200 law enforcement agencies throughout the United States. Human rights groups have long said that Tasers cause heart attacks, but Tuttle said there have been 96 lawsuits that the company won or judges dismissed.

He said Taser has lost just one case, which is under appeal.

Phoenix police Sgt. Trent Crump said his agency is now in the beginning stages of teaching officers to avoid aiming Tasers at the chest when possible.

Another year, another county for nuke-plant developer

Alternate Energy Holdings Inc.'s tour of Idaho continues, with the Eagle-based nuclear power plant developer now setting sights on Payette County.

Just 41 more counties to go. AEHI, which shifted its proposed plant from Owyhee County to Elmore County in early 2008, has asked for a comprehensive plan amendment for a privately-owned, 5,100-acre site in remote northern Payette County.

Elmore County, it seems, is being too deliberate in its due diligence.

"If we indeed want to build a nuclear power plant, we have to press forward, and that's what we're doing," spokesman Martin Johncox said, emphasizing that the company hasn't given up on Elmore County.

We wish it would, although Payette County — passed over by no less than Warren Buffett as a potential site for a nuclear plant last year — presents its own challenges.

Buffett's MidAmerican Nuclear Energy concluded a different Payette County site didn't pencil out, and MidAmerican has a whole lot more capital at its disposal than does AEHI CEO Don Gillispie.

"Mr. Buffett had three things Mr. Gillispie lacks: money, a proven energy track record and credibility among local residents," said Ken Miller, the Snake River Alliance's energy program director.

Payette County officials now face the same challenge Elmore and Owyhee officials did: Buffett's proposal was on state land, and this will be the first nuclear-plant application Payette has handled directly. The plan amendment will require two public hearings, and AEHI officials would then need to submit a conceptual proposal and go through more hearings to actually rezone the site.

That's much like the process that Elmore County officials are going through to make sure they get this decision right.

The Elmore County application reached county commissioners last spring, but was remanded back to that county's Planning and Zoning Committee. An extensive comprehensive plan analysis and staff report is currently being reviewed by county staff and various attorneys.

Will Payette County commissioners prove more malleable? We hope not. The site is 38 miles from Boise, 33 miles from Nampa and 22 miles from Caldwell — and immediately upwind of 617,000 Idahoans. The same tough questions that have been asked about the Elmore County site should be asked about the Payette location.

No accounting in health care reform bill

The Senate Finance Committee must be participating in a prison rehabilitation program. It obviously has a former Enron accountant dummied up the Baucus health care bill, which has enough phony accounting procedures to get someone in the private sector sent to jail.

Thomas Oliver

But you don't have to be an accountant to be suspicious.

You just have to remember that this is Congress, creating an $830 billion entitlement and promising that it won't add a cent to the deficit. Nor will it grow exponentially. Say, like Medicare did.

This is Congress saying that raising $500 billion in new health care taxes won't increase the cost of your health care.

Nor will the $400 billion in spending cuts, primarily to Medicare, affect grandma's coverage.

Nor will adding 11 million people to the states' Medicaid roles bankrupt the states. Just ask California.

And then there are the uninsured. Remember them? They started all this.

Well, the Congressional Budget Office projects that 10 years after starting on Dr. Obama's Elixir, there will still be 25 million uninsured.

You read that right.

A third will be illegal immigrants, who can't participate in this program — wink, wink — but can still visit our ERs for treatment.

The 16 million Americans left uninsured will be fined for being uninsured, which will raise $4 billion to help pay for the program.

You couldn't make this up. Unless you were auditioning for a writer's job on "Saturday Night Live."

But this isn't a comedy routine, though it's hardly serious.

If this were a serious debate, there would be discussion about tort reform. But there is only silence.

If this were a serious debate, there would be discussion about how to move away from tax exemptions for employer-sponsored insurance. This distorts the marketplace terribly and sets up the third-party payer system that is at the heart of rising costs.

As long as you and I aren't paying directly for medical care, it will always be overused, which raises the cost.

If they were in fact serious in Washington, they wouldn't be having this debate at all.

They would be paying strict attention to this economy. To the stimulus they passed and whether it's working as promised. To the housing sector, where the hemorrhaging continues. To payrolls that continue to get slashed. To the unusually bad hit small business has taken.

This could be the beginning of a recovery, if companies can start making enough money to hire new workers.

Or, it could be a temporary lull before the recession resumes.

That's exactly what happened during the 1930s.

A new study by Charles Rowley of George Mason University and Nathanael Smith of the Locke Institute, "Economic Contractions in the United States: A Failure of Government," available on Amazon, concludes that we are about to repeat history.

Then, as now, just as it looked as if we would recover, our government decided to pile on new programs, new taxes, and generally so bedeviled businesses that they didn't hire, and the unemployment rate remained unimaginably high, and . . .

I had the pleasure of working with Tom on the Buhl Planning and Zoning Board. I found his knowledge to be excellent. He came to the meetings well prepared and executed his knowledge effectively and meaningfully. While attending all the meetings, Tom maintained a positive attitude about all suggestions and public comments. His listening skills are impressive and he always contributed valuable information in a very positive manner.

I have also had the pleasure of watching Tom coach my child in extracurricular activities in the Buhl community. His rapport with the children is highly effective. He works well with the parents. He showed parents that he knew the children's talents and he used them as an effective part of his great coaching. He always prepared the children with a learning environment and his emphasis on team playing is exceptional.

For years, I have known Tom and have admired his community-minded, selfless manner. Tom is smart and capable with a can-do attitude. He is friendly and approachable. Tom has some common sense ideas and practical solutions for some of our community problems, and he will work diligently to help make life better in Buhl.

I encourage you to visit with Tom, tell him your concerns and then participate in the process of making Buhl more economically sound and an even better place to live. I believe that you will realize that Tom McCauley is a great choice for mayor.

Networks need to be held accountable

We must stop the threats to the president and to our Democratic discourse by the television and radio "news" people who report falsehoods and instigate violence. These people and their networks need to be held accountable. They are undermining the democratic process through intimidation and instigating violent acts that are antithetical to American democracy, American values, and both civil and human rights.

Please do all you can to stop this crazy and violent madness.

New candidates need more imagination

As a resident of a small community, I realize that a new candidate in politics must watch the incumbents to learn what to do. But I don't understand why the new candidates can't use their own imagination instead of putting up their signs in front of or next to the incumbents' signs. They are only showing their lack of integrity, courtesy and fair play.

Maybe we are getting a peek of how they would run the office if they were elected.

Here's what Idaho newspapers are saying about ...

... Craig's new career

Post Register, Idaho Falls

Jeers to former Idaho U.S. Sen. Larry Craig, who now makes his living asking for stuff from the body he served in for decades. Craig isn't officially a lobbyist. Federal revolving door legislation does not yet permit that. But Craig can happily work behind the scenes at New West Strategies to convince the feds to build a federal prison in the Magic Valley. For $5,000 a month. Everyone has to make a living and Craig is not the first ex-Congressman to turn to lobbying. But his skirting of federal law is distasteful, and the project is something many probably would prefer not to have in their backyard.

Craig

Craig's desire to turn a buck could backfire. It doesn't appear anyone has forgotten his less than glorious exit from Congress.

Burley City Councilman Dennis Curtis told the Times-News this week he has no interest in hiring Craig.

"Does he have the respect of people in Washington, D.C., to get the job done?" Curtis asked. "I question Craig's morality."

... how Batt fixed health care

Lewiston Tribune

The latest Census information shows a dramatic turnaround in the fortunes of Idaho's children. More than a decade ago, one of every five of them lacked access to health insurance. Today, that number has been reduced by half.

Batt

And for that, you can thank a self-professed tightwad in the governor's office.

Democrats had held Idaho's Statehouse for a generation by 1994 when Republican Phil Batt was elected, promising to get a grip on state spending.

Four years later, Batt left office with a reputation of another kind — an executive big-hearted enough to look out for the dispossessed of society and one with the political acumen to see his policies enacted.

It's the stuff of legend now to remember how in 1996, Batt, a Wilder onion farmer and Statehouse veteran, twisted the arms of his Republican friends in the Legislature to change the worker compensation insurance laws so that farm workers hurt on the job could get help.

Strangely, that story has obscured an equally vital portion of Batt's legacy.

Idaho is a low-wage state where many parents earn too much to qualify for Medicaid, but too little to afford insurance in the private market.

In the mid-1990s, Congress offered states such as Idaho a remedy. Called the State Children's Health Insurance Program, it allowed more kids to obtain Medicaid by increasing income eligibility limits. The federal government also paid more of S-CHIP's costs, although Idaho taxpayers would be on the hook for about a fifth of the cost.

Perhaps following the theory that it's better to apologize later than seek permission, Batt implemented S-CHIP administratively, essentially during the Legislature to reverse him. Although lawmakers trimmed it back a bit, they went along with the governor.

So instead of delaying treatment until a child's ailment festered and required the most expensive kind of care available from a hospital emergency room, kids were getting checkups from a family doctor. They were getting preventive care. They were getting vaccines.

Legislators were worried that expanding Medicaid would deplete the state budget and refused to advertise the program, however. Filling that void was the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation, which stepped in with an outreach program.

Then the unexpected happened. For every four children who applied for S-CHIP, three came from families so poor they already qualified for Medicaid. It took S-CHIP to bring them to the table ...

But Batt did what a good governor does — he pushed lawmakers into doing the right thing a little sooner.

.. saving Medicaid and higher ed

Idaho Statesman, Boise

Enough is enough, says Tom Luna. The state's school superintendent says K-12 can absorb no additional budget cuts

In Luna, public school students have a popularly elected advocate. The same, sadly, cannot be said for the other Idahoans who would be affected by continued budget cuts.

Not Medicaid. The publicly funded health program — all the more critical during a downturn — provides medical care and prescriptions for low-income Idahoans, too often a constituency without a voice.

Not higher education. Enrollment is rising at the state's two- and four-year colleges and universities, but that doesn't seem to be enough to elevate higher ed into a shared, statewide priority. Higher ed is a big issue on and near the state's campuses, and funding cuts are a major concern for university administrators. In the absence of one foremost advocate, higher education seems destined to remain a regional issue beset by parochial fighting.

So who's in a position to look out for Medicaid and higher education?

The job, by default, falls to legislators.

This role should belong to Gov. Butch Otter, but he has dodged it.

Will legislators stand up for Medicaid patients and Idaho college students? They should. And they can, by pressing Otter to dip into the state's other budget reserves.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

It's time for a new jail in Jerome County

To all Jerome County residents: Is this the best time?

With the election just weeks away, I decided to get informed. Making a right decision has always been necessary for me to make my trip to the polls worthwhile.

I was invited to a forum on Oct. 15 that really opened my eyes.

Sheriff Doug McFall, along with an investor from Rocky Mountain Corrections who would provide the money to build our county a new jail facility, gave out facts that surprised me.

I learned:

• That under the current jail we have, we may lose our ability to acquire liability insurance if overcrowded conditions continue. It now costs us nearly $300,000 a year to house outside inmates, and it would double if we had to shut our doors because of liability.

• That many offenders of the law do not always spend time in jail because there is not room for them (about 39 people is all we can handle).

• That the immigration deputies are often looking for places to hold people and would use our facility if rooms were available (also some other counties have overflow problems and would come to us).

• That there will not always be beds in other county jails for us to rent as they are experiencing growth problems also. Plus this is money going out — rent or own?

• And most of all, I learned that there will not be any increase in taxes to build this jail and that this is a rent-to-own facility built by Rocky Mountain Corrections.

So, Jerome County citizens, when we cannot supply the needed room, do you want to wait for the American Civil Liberties Union to take over our problem and build one that is run by it and charge whatever it wants? Or do you choose a more conservative attitude and vote yes for the new jail?

The time is right. Do not let your children ask why we didn't take care of the problem now.

Agencies sign last record of decision for DOE Idaho cleanup program

Site boundary will continue to be safe for domestic and agricultural uses. The study also investigated 82 surface sites for potential contamination. None of the sites pose a threat to groundwater, but the agencies concluded that two sites require cleanup because of concentrations of lead, arsenic or mercury in the soil.

Also in the ROD, the agencies agreed to implement a new process for addressing contamination that may be discovered later. If the new site is similar to a site that has already been cleaned up, the same remedy — removal and disposal — could be used again.

For further information, the public can access the Operable Unit 10-08 ROD in the Administrative Record at ar.inel.gov. The Administrative Record is also located at the INL Technical Library in Idaho Falls and the Albertson Library on the campus of Boise State University.

In Wyo., handheld ban not right call for all

By DeeDee Correll
Special to the Los Angeles Times

DENVER — Cheyenne, Wyo., City Councilman Jim Brown, thinking it was time his city joined the movement to keep drivers from being distracted by their handheld cell phones, steered an ordinance banning the practice into law last month.

Now, he's getting an earful from outraged Wyomingites.

"We have the right to bear a cell phone," said M. Lee Hasenauer, 49, who collected more than 3,500 signatures in support of his petition against the ordinance.

If the city clerk validates at least 2,800 of them, officials must either repeal the ordinance or put it to a public vote.

If the residents' effort — dubbed "Can You Hear Me Now?" — succeeds, Cheyenne would become the first city to enact, then retract such a law, said Russ Rader, spokesman for the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety.

Seven states, as well as a dozen cities, have banned driving while talking on a handheld cell phone; 18 states and the District of Columbia have prohibited texting while driving as well.

In Cheyenne — where motorists last year acknowledged they were using cell phones in 50 out of 2,900 crashes — the new ordinance bans texting or otherwise using a handheld phone, although using a headset is acceptable. The first offense carries a $125 fine. After a month-long grace period in which three dozen warnings were given to violators, police began issuing tickets last week.

City Councilman Don Pierson, who argued against the ordinance, felt police shouldn't be permitted to stop a driver for a behavior that hadn't caused a traffic problem.

"If I'm driving down the road, minding my own business and talking on my cell phone, leave me alone," said Pierson, a former police officer who said he was besieged with calls from residents objecting to the ordinance.

Others chafe at the notion of being told what to do.

"Local State and Federal Government thinks it can shove something down our throats when we are not paying attention," one resident commented on a message board on the Wyoming Tribune Eagle's Web site.

"I was raised in Wyo ... the state used to pride itself in personal freedoms," wrote another.

To Hasenauer, it also was a matter of becoming too much like another Western state.

"This was California law, word for word. That's what people are in an uproar about," said Hasenauer, who doesn't believe talking on cell phones is dangerous, although he concedes that texting is.

N. Idaho nursery gives forests a head start

By Becky Kramer
The Spokesman-Review

COEUR D'ALENE — Over a three-year period, wildfires charred 50,000 acres of the Custer National Forest in South Dakota. In some 1,000-acre tracts, not a single ponderosa pine tree remained to cast new seeds, and the seeds in the soil had burned up.

Natural regeneration "would have taken 100 or more years," said Dennis Sandbak, the Custer forest's silviculturist. To speed up the process, he ordered native pine, ash and alder seedlings from the U.S. Forest Service Nursery in Coeur d'Alene.

The nursery is a genetic storehouse for Western forests. One of six nurseries in the national forest system, it grows seedlings for federal agencies in Montana, central Oregon and parts of Idaho, Washington and South Dakota. The Coeur d'Alene nursery also supplies high-elevation tree seedlings for Utah and Wyoming.

Each national forest has crews collect pinecones, which are sent to the nursery for safekeeping. The nursery grows seedlings to order on a 220-acre tract of the Rathdrum Prairie.

"It's kind of a complicated process," said Melissa Jenkins, a silviculturist at the Flathead National Forest in Montana, which ordered 650,000 seedlings this year. "You can't just go to a big-box nursery and buy a spruce tree from wherever and plant it on the Flathead. The trees are adapted to the area they grow in."

Even the same species of spruce has different characteristics at different locations. Buds sprout later on trees that grow higher up the mountain, so they don't get nipped by frost.

Biological science technician Laurie Parrish works with willow seedlings Friday at the Forest Service Nursery in Coeur d'Alene.

"They're adapted differently," Jenkins said. "It's in the genetics that are in the seed."

The nursery has $2 million worth of seeds stored in its in a single year after fires burned more than 320,000 acres in 2000.

"We're the keepers of the seed. They really own it," said Aram Eramian, the nursery's bare-root forester.

The forests pay about 20 cents to 36 cents for each bare-root seedling, which reflects the nursery's costs to grow them. The operation is financially self-sufficient. It doesn't receive federal appropriations.

The Coeur d'Alene nursery will celebrate its 50th anniversary next year. The site was chosen for its 160-day growing season and productive soils, replacing a Haugen, Mont., nursery that had a shorter growing season. From time to time, the open tract of land elicits calls from persistent developers, who think it would make a great subdivision.

N. Idaho prison makes changes following escapes

GRANGEVILLE (AP) — Changes have been made at the North Idaho Correctional Institution in the wake of five prisoner escapes this year, the warden says.

Lynn Guyer said razor wire has been added to a 10-foot-high chain-link fence, some staff changes have been made, and a faulty automated telephone system has been replaced with a person.

Sill, Guyer said escapes remain a possibility, the Lewiston Tribune reported.

"If an offender has a true desire to go over the fence, they will go over the fence," Guyer said at a meeting to discuss the prison.

Brent Reinke, director of the Idaho Department of Corrections, also took part in the meeting.

About 1,300 offenders go through the minimum security prison each year. Guyer said that 85 to 90 percent of the inmates receive favorable reviews to be released on probation. He said of those, 67 percent complete probation, a rate that is among the best in the nation.

At the prison, inmates can take part in a number of programs, including sex offender treatment, substance abuse counseling, and work force development and education.

"One of the unique things about NICI is the hope that's there," Reinke said.

He said the department is also working with Idaho Health and Welfare officials to identify children of inmates and help them avoid ending up in prison. He said those children are seven times more likely to end up in the justice system than other children.

Obama looks to help small businesses

Part of bailout funds could start going to Main Street

By Julie Pace and Jim Kuhnhenn

LANDOVER, Md. — President Obama unveiled plans Wednesday to refo- government's $700 billion financial bailout away from Wall Street's big financial institutions and toward small businesses on Main Street.

Obama

Speaking in a small business near Washington, Obama said the initiatives would make it easier for smaller community banks to provide credit to small businesses, which have been hard-hit by the financial crisis. The president's plan also includes a request that Congress increase caps for existing Small Business Administration loans.

"Over the past decade and a half, America's small businesses have created 65 percent of all new jobs in the country," Obama told about 150 employees in a warehouse at a storage business's warehouse on the eastern outskirts of Washington.

"These companies are the engine of job growth in America," he said. "They fuel our prosperity. And that's why they have to be at the forefront of our recovery."

The shift in focus comes amid outrage over record payouts to financial executives, some of whom work at firms that needed Washington to bail them out with billions of taxpayer dollars last year. Obama officials called the bonuses "offensive" and instead sought to convince the country that Obama's administration was interested in everyday Americans' struggles, not just the problems of those on Wall Street.

On Wednesday, Obama pitched his plan as a way to create jobs and change day-to-day life.

"These entrepreneurial pioneers embody the spirit of possibility, the tireless work ethic, and the simple hope for something better that lies at the heart of the American ideal. And they have always formed the

Fed survey: Housing, manufacturing drive recovery

By Jeannine Aversa
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — Improvements in housing and manufacturing are driving the early stages of the economic recovery, according to a Federal Reserve survey released Wednesday.

The Fed's latest snapshot of business conditions nationwide found "many sectors" of the economy either stabilized or logged modest improvements over the last six weeks. The pickups, though, often were from "depressed" levels of activity.

Still, the new report adds to evidence that a recovery has started from the worst recession since the 1930s. Only two of the Fed's 12 regions — Atlanta and St. Louis — reported weaker overall economic activity.

An $8,000 credit for first-time homebuyers boosted the housing sector. There's been concern among private economists and some lawmakers that recent gains in housing will fizzle out when the credit ends. It is slated to expire Nov. 30, although some in Congress are mulling an extension.

Meanwhile, factories increased production as businesses restocked depleted inventories. Part of that restocking was due to the now-defunct Cash for Clunkers rebate program, which caused a brief burst in car sales.

Both housing and manufacturing continued a "pattern of improvement that emerged over the summer," the Fed observed.

By contrast, the Fed said weakest link in the recovery was commercial real estate. Conditions were described as "either weak or deteriorating" across all 12 regions surveyed.

Consumer spending also remained

DOLLAR HITS 14-MONTH LOW AGAINST EURO

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hitting a 14-month low against the euro, the sinking dollar renewed concerns Wednesday about higher oil prices and other inflationary threats. A lower dollar can help U.S. manufacturers by making their exports cheaper for foreigners to buy. It also benefits factories in China, which pegs its currency to the dollar. But a weakening dollar hurts European businesses because their goods become relatively more expensive.

Since early March, when the dollar hit a high for the year against the euro and other major currencies, it has declined about 12 percent against a basket of major currencies.

On Wednesday, the dollar's value against the euro fell below the psychological barrier of $1.50. In response, oil prices jumped to a new high for the year, settling at $81.37 a barrel.

Crude oil is priced in dollars. So it becomes cheaper when bought with yen, euros, the pound, or any other currency that advances against the dollar. Oil, which was trading below $70 a barrel in early October, has been rising steadily as the dollar has fallen.

The euro, the common currency of 16 European nation's peaked Wednesday at its highest level since August 2008. One euro cost $1.5046, up from $1.4928 in late trading Tuesday. Many analysts saw the euro's movement above $1.50 as a milestone that could put further pressure on the greenback. The dollar also continued falling against some other currencies, dropping against the British pound, the Canadian dollar and falling to the lowest levels in more than a year against the Swiss franc, the Australian dollar and the New Zealand dollar.

weak, the Fed said.

Consumers, whose spending accounts for about 70 percent of economic activity, are expected to stay cautious given rising job losses, stagnant incomes and hard-to-get credit.

"Reports of gains in economic activity generally outnumber declines, but virtually every reference to improvement was qualified as either small or scattered," the Fed survey said.

For instance, Dallas cited slight improvements in residential real estate and at staffing firms. New York noted gains predominantly in manufacturing and retail. Philadelphia, Cleveland and San Francisco cited small pickups in manufacturing. Kansas City noted upticks at technology companies, while Richmond observed revenue gains at service companies.

The nation's unemployment rate climbed to a 26-year high of 9.8 percent in September, and is expected to top 10 percent this year. Economists predict it will rise as high as 10.5 percent by the middle of next year before slowly drifting down.

Districts reported "little or no increase to either price or wage pressures," but there were some references to downward pressures, according to

With Windows 7 and new designs, PCs looking better

By Jessica Mintz
Associated Press writer

REDMOND, Wash. — Although no one waits in long lines for a new edition of Windows anymore, the debut of Microsoft's latest software that runs PCs is part of why buying a computer is starting to feel fun for the first time in years.

Windows 7 is expected to work better than its predecessor, Vista. At the same time, Microsoft's marketing has gotten savvier and PC makers have followed Apple Inc.'s lead by improving hardware design. Computers with the Windows operating system suddenly seem a lot less utilitarian.

"If you line up the six or seven most interesting PC designs, people will say, 'Wow. I didn't know all of that could be done with a PC,'" Microsoft CEO Steve Ballmer said in an interview.

Windows 7, which becomes available today, is designed to look cleaner than Vista, streamlining the ways people can get to work, with fewer clicks and fewer annoying notifications.

Chain restaurants still struggle after strategy of cutting menu prices

By Ashley M. Meher
Associated Press writer

CHICAGO — Fortunes at chain restaurants are tumbling, the fallout from a strategy of slashing menu prices in the hopes that a cheap meal will be enough to entice diners back to their booths. Instead, diners are ringing up smaller checks, or simply staying home.

And the deep discounts, like the two meals for $20 being offered at places such as Chili's and Applebee's, come with a high cost for sales and profits. Some worry the chains are creating a culture of diners looking only for a cheap meal.

"These companies are competing any way they can to get customers in the door," said Morningstar restaurant analyst R.J. Hottovy.

While the discounts became prevalent earlier this year, the problems restaurants are facing stem from when the U.S. economy was flush, people were eating out more and developers could get easy credit for construction projects.

Since 2001, the number of so-called "casual dining" restaurants in the U.S. has grown 14 percent, according to market research firm NPD Group. The number of chain restaurants in the category has grown by more than 26 percent.

That growth may have been simply too ambitious, and now there's quiet speculation that some chains may not survive the economic downturn.

"We don't think this trend is sustainable," Hottovy said of the efforts among the faltering restaurant

FUENTE: SunGard AP

NEW YORK (AP) — Spooked traders unraveled a rally in stocks late Wednesday as a downbeat assessment of a bank touched off fears that the market is getting overheated. The Dow Jones industrial average ended down 92 points after having risen 78 points earlier in the day to a new high for the year. Analysts pointed to a note on Wells Fargo & Co. from banking analyst Richard Bove as the source of the drop, but also said a mix of complacency and lingering concerns about the pace of the market's climb in the past seven months left stocks ripe for a hit. Joe Saluzzi, co-head of equity trading at Themis Trading LLC, said the note was a reminder of troubles still in the economy and was enough to scare many traders. "They all ran for the exits at the same time," he said. The slide in the final hour of trading was reminiscent of the types of big swings seen a year ago at the height of the financial crisis. But analysts said the reasons for the latest slide had been building throughout the day: Major stock indexes touched their highest levels in a year, the dollar extended its drop, oil rose above $82 a barrel and Wal-Mart Stores Inc. said it was cutting prices, a sign that consumers are still struggling.

Walmart announces weekly price cuts for holidays

NEW YORK (AP) — Walmart, which has ridden low prices to dominate the U.S. retail scene, stepped up its game in price cutting still further Wednesday. The world's largest retailer said it will cut prices this holiday season for a week at a time on thousands of items, from bananas to board games. The first group of cuts hit Wednesday. "We will not be beaten on price," said Eduardo Castro-Wright, vice chairman of Wal-Mart Stores Inc. and leader of its U.S. business. Castro-Wright was addressing analysts at a two-day meeting that began Wednesday in Rogers, Ark., a few miles from the company's headquarters in Bentonville, Ark. The meeting is being broadcast over the Web. Walmart, also the largest U.S. grocery seller and overall retailer, hopes shoppers will see a widening gap between prices at its stores and those of its rivals. John Fleming, its chief merchandising officer in the U.S., told investors that Walmart's audits show prices for frequently purchased grocery items were recently at least 14 percent lower than at leading national supermarkets on the same items. The difference on those items was about 12 percent a year ago, he said. Walmart CEO and president Mike Duke said the company plans to grow further in the U.S. and is committed to paring down its expenses by taking still greater advantage of its sheer size and by increasing sales productivity in its stores. Walmart has frequently used its buying power to undercut rivals. It sells enough products in enough categories to make up for any losses on individual items that it uses to pull people into stores or onto its Web site. The nationwide cuts start this week with bananas selling for 39 cents per pound, rolls of lean ground beef for $1.25 per pound and select board games for $15.

Administration plans big pay cuts at rescued companies

By Martin Crutsinger
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — The Obama administration will order companies that received huge government bailouts last year to slash the salaries of their top executives by an average of 90 percent and cut their total compensation in half, a person familiar with the decision said Wednesday.

The cuts apply to the 25 highest paid executives at the seven companies that received the most assistance, said the person, who spoke on condition of anonymity because the decision has not been announced. Smaller companies and those that have repaid the bailout money, including Goldman Sachs Group Inc. and JPMorgan Chase & Co., are not affected.

The Treasury is expected to announce the cuts within the next few days.

Kenneth Feinberg, the special master at Treasury appointed to handle compensation issues as part of the government's $700 billion financial bailout package, is making the pay decisions.

The seven companies are Bank of America Corp., American International Group Inc., Citigroup Inc., General Motors, GMAC, Chrysler and Chrysler Financial.

It was unclear exactly how much the executives would be allowed to make, or how that would be determined.

However, at the financial products division of AIG, the giant insurance company which has received taxpayer assistance valued at more than $180 billion, no top executive will receive more than $200,000 in total compensation, the person familiar with Feinberg's plan said.

The administration also will warn AIG that it must significantly reduce the $198 million in bonuses promised to employees in its financial services division, the arm of the company whose risky trades caused its downfall.

The pay restrictions for all seven companies will require any executive seeking more than $25,000 in special benefits — things such as country club memberships, private planes and company cars — to get permission for those perks from the government.

Until now, these companies were only required to provide guidelines for the use of such luxuries. The inspector general at Treasury who oversees the bailout program found a range of standards. GM, for instance, generally prohibits employees from flying in private jets for business travel. Bank of America, on the other hand, encourages senior management to use corporate aircraft "for safety and efficiency purposes."

Feinberg's decisions come days after administration officials voiced sharp criticism of plans by some firms, particularly those on Wall Street, to pay huge bonuses even as the country continues to struggle with rising unemployment and the effects of the recession.

Swine flu vaccine supplies fall behind

By Micahel Rubinkam
Associated Press writer

SWIFTWATER, Pa. — The federal government originally promised 120 million doses of swine flu vaccine by now. Only 13 million have come through.

As nervous Americans clamor for the vaccine, production is running several weeks behind schedule, and health officials blame the pressure on pharmaceutical companies to crank it out along with the ordinary flu vaccine, and a slow and antiquated process that relies on millions of chicken eggs.

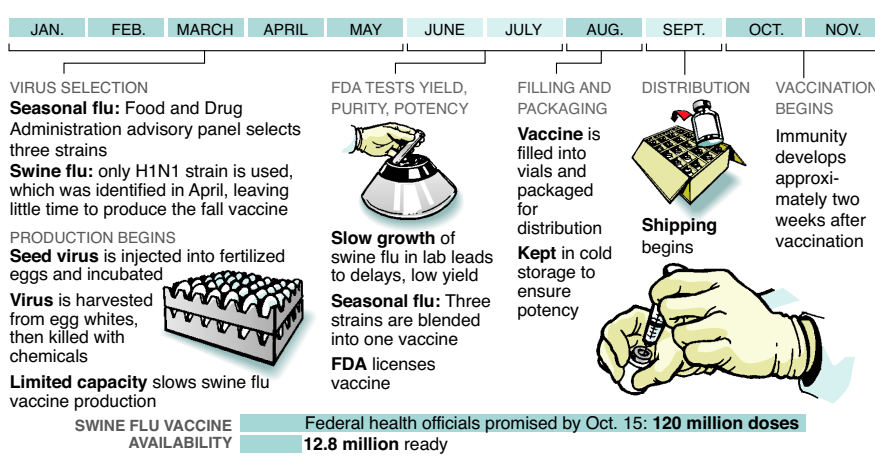

There have been other bottlenecks, too: Factories that put the precious liquid into syringes have become backed up. And the government itself ran into a delay in developing the tests required to assess each batch before it is cleared for use.

What effect the delays will have on the course of the outbreak is unclear, in part because scientists cannot say with any certainty just how dangerous the virus is, how easily it spreads, or whether it will mutate into a more lethal form.

Since April, swine flu has killed more than 800 people in the U.S., including 86 children, 39 of them in the past month and a half, according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. More than half of all hospitalizations since the beginning of September were people 24 and under.

"We're in this race against the virus, and only Mother Nature knows how many cases are going to occur over the next six to 10 weeks," said Michael Osterholm, a vaccine expert at the University of Minnesota.

In the meantime, many states have had to postpone mass vaccinations. Clinics around the country that managed to obtain doses of the vaccine have been swamped. And doctors are getting bombarded with calls from worried and angry parents.

"Nobody has it," said AnnMarie O'Connor, who waited more than four hours for the vaccine in Rockville, Md., standing in line with her two young children and about 1,000 other people.

Health officials "said the shots would be here in early October. But where are they?"

Federal officials counsel patience, saying that eventually there should be enough of both vaccines for everyone who wants them.

"We wish we had better ways to produce vaccines perfectly predictably, but this is how influenza vaccine production often goes," Dr. Anne Schuchat, who heads the CDC's immunization and respiratory disease section, said last week.

The delays have led to renewed demands for a quicker, more reliable way of producing vaccines than the chicken-egg method, which is 50-year-old technology and involves injecting the virus into eggs and allowing it to feed on the nutrients in the egg white.

Federal officials initially projected that as many as 120 million doses of the vaccine would be ready to dispense by mid-October. They later reduced their estimate to 45 million. As of Tuesday, only 12.8 million were available. (Health officials say a single dose will protect adults, while children under 10 will need two doses.)

In a sign of how rapidly the virus is spreading, education officials said 198 schools in 15 states were closed Wednesday because of swine flu, with more than 65,000 students affected. That was up from 88 school closings the day before.

"Right now, the vaccine is in a race against the virus, and the virus is winning," Osterholm said.

GOP senator says Obama showing Nixonian tendencies

WASHINGTON (AP) — The third-ranking Senate Republican said Wednesday the Obama administration appears to be launching a Richard Nixon-like political strategy of making an "enemies list" of people who disagree with the president.

Sen. Lamar Alexander of Tennessee, who once worked in President Nixon's administration, warned the White House that such a "street brawl" approach of attacking political opponents "can get you in a lot of trouble."

Alexander offered no evidence that Obama is developing an actual list, as Nixon famously created for his opponents. But, he said, "I have an uneasy feeling only 10 months into this new administration that we're beginning to see the symptoms of this same kind of animus developing."

"It's a mistake for the president of the United States," he said. "Let's not start calling people out and compiling an enemies list."

White House spokeswoman Gannet Tsegai responded that it's Republicans who "seem to be formulating lists of people and policies to oppose" while the president "is focused on tackling the list of critical priorities that Washington has ignored for too long."

Dems go after antitrust exemption for insurers

By David Espo
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — Democrats launched a drive at both ends of the Capitol on Wednesday to strip the insurance industry of its decades-old exemption from federal antitrust laws, part of an increasingly bare-knuckled struggle over landmark health care legislation sought by President Obama.

If enacted, the change would put an end to "price-fixing, bid-rigging and market allocation in the health and medical malpractice" insurance areas, said Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee. Leahy said he would seek a vote on the plan when the Senate debates health care legislation in the next few weeks.

Leahy made his comments at virtually the same time the House Judiciary Committee voted 20-9 to end an industry exemption that dates to 1945. Three Republicans supported the move.

Senior Democratic officials in the House said the leadership was inclined to incorporate the measure into the broader health care bill expected to be brought to the floor for a vote within a few weeks. No final decision has been made, they added.

In response, an industry official said Democrats were targeting a problem that does not exist.

The events coincided with a vote in the Senate to sidetrack legislation averting a 21 percent cut in Medicare payments for doctors in January and raising their fees by $247 billion over a decade. The 47-53 vote was 13 short of the 60 needed to advance the bill, reflecting concerns that the measure would have raised deficits. The result was a defeat for Democrats and an embarrassment for the American Medical Association, which had mounted a seven-figure advertising effort to assure passage of one of its top priorities.

Republicans grumbled that Senate Democrats timed the offensive on antitrust matters to obscure their defeat on the bill setting pay rates for doctors, a measure that GOP leader Mitch McConnell, R-Ky., called "the Senate's first vote on health care this year."

Even so, taken together, the threats to revoke longstanding antitrust protections reflect the fury Democrats have projected in response to recent insurance industry attempts to influence the shape of legislation. The events occurred less than a week after the insurers' trade association issued a report saying a measure in the Senate Finance Committee would produce sharp increases in premiums for millions of people who currently have insurance.

Democrats and the White House reacted angrily, attacking the study as flawed and politically motivated.

Northern Nevada's Jarbidge Mountains offer

Ascent hike

Story and photos by Mike Cothorn
correspondent

Many unique qualities define northern Nevada's picturesque Jarbidge Mountains. The short 10-mile range spans the boundary of two of the West's major drainages: one section serves as the Columbia Basin's highest point south of the Snake River; the opposite end spawns flows that enter into but never escape the Great Basin.

The area's geographic isolation also plays an important role in backcountry recreation. Nancy Paylor, recreation specialist for the Jarbidge Ranger District, says the Jarbidge Wilderness receives fewer visitors than almost any wilderness area in the lower 48 states, making it an excellent choice for those seeking a quiet, remote experience.

"Monitoring equipment at the Mahoney Guard Station records the best air quality in the nation," Paylor says.

Intent on experiencing this landscape marked by such superlatives, Kent Ireton and I slipped into the Jarbidge country on a warm day in mid-September. Following the loop route from Bruce Grubbs' book "Hiking Nevada," we hoped to summit several peaks while exploring the mountain range's crest.

Beginning at road's end near the town of Jarbidge, the trek began by following an old mining road that parallels the Jarbidge River. Subalpine fir and whitebark pine gradually replace sagebrush, mahogany, and juniper as the trail climbs into the river's headwaters. In a small basin hollowed out by glacial rock and ice, the trail bends around tiny Jarbidge Lake before zigzagging up a steep slope.

That incline tops out at a divide separating the Jarbidge River's main and east forks. After enjoying the view southward toward Marys River Peak, Kent and I abandoned the trail and headed back north.

... with each lung-burning ascent the rewarding views were incomparable. The Albion, Ruby and Owyhee mountains stood far in the distance and the Snake River Plain faded into the hazy horizon northward.

The headwaters of the Jarbidge River in northern Nevada offer beautiful late-summer scenery.

A view of Jarbidge Lake set against the mountains beyond.

We spent the rest of the day on a cross-country scramble, defined by Grubb's guidebook as "a strenuous and difficult crest traverse." The ridge route sports five peaks spread out in a straight line roughly a mile apart, all nearly the same height with the tallest at 10,839 feet in elevation.

Each of those lofty miles via foot-steps measured somewhat longer than calculated on the map, however. The saddles between nearly all the peaks curved back towards the west and the sometimes 500 feet in elevation loss and gain added to the distance and amount of effort we expended.

But with each lung-burning ascent the rewarding views were incomparable. The Albion, Ruby and Owyhee mountains stood far in the distance

If you go

The starting point for this 11-mile hike is about three miles south from the town of Jarbidge, which is nearly 70 road miles west of Rogerson. No water is available late in the year on the Jarbidge Crest, so carry as much as possible (and/or purify some at Jarbidge Lake). Strenuous hiking at 10,000 feet requires constant hydration.

and the Snake River Plain faded into the hazy horizon northward. In addition, the crest provided an excellent vantage point down into the East Fork drainage, much of which burned last year in a fire that started below Cougar Peak, our first major venture.

The Matterhorn, the next peak climbed, easily became the highlight of the trip. Named after the famous Swiss Alp, the Jarbidge Mountains' tallest point easily possessed the steepest approach. The route was also obstacle-laden with whitebark pines often crowding the west slope and inaccessible cliffs marking the east. In addition, the summit surprised us with a dizzying drop-off on the unclimbed side, sending us scurrying back to a more secure spot. While catching our breath we signed the register and read from the 10 entries recorded for the year.

Orange not just for hunters

The deer hunter comments started coming the first time I put the jacket on. The obscene-orange ViZi-PRO Collection — a line of apparel from Saucony to be released this month — is made with “the brightest, most reflective fabric on the market,” the company touts.

Jogging in the woods, a hunter might see you from a mile away in these neon-orange fluorescent duds. Running on the road or crossing streets on a jog, the gloves, hats, tops and jackets in the line are made to keep you “outrageously visible at all times of day.”

The ViZi-PRO color is so bright it almost hurts to look at it. Saucony dug into color science during development of the line. The collection is inspired by national safety standards established to protect law enforcement and utility workers, Saucony says.

Saucony chose the “high chroma-fluorescent orange-red” color over the more common fluorescent yellow-green because the orange offers even higher visibility, its research states.

If you want to get wonky, Saucony delves into a light-wave discussion when pushing this product. According to the company, light at shorter wavelengths is absorbed by objects and emitted at longer wavelengths, making a viewer see a brighter, fluorescent-type color. The ViZi-PRO orange, Saucony says, is one of the brightest colors during both day and night due to the longer wavelengths emitted by the color.

Further visibility touches include reflective fabric in swaths and seams that ignites in a car headlight beam. Plus, Saucony added “LED holsters” on the sleeve of the ViZi-PRO jacket and on the line’s gloves. Flick a switch on an included battery-power LED unit to make it blink and draw maximum attention to your body running through the night.

Saucony mentions the proliferation of drivers who may be “juggling GPS, text messages, phone calls, dogs in the front seat, babies in a car seat” and more. For anyone concerned with being seen in our increasingly distracted society, the ViZi-PRO Collection offers one of the most vibrant apparel options ever invented.

The Saucony ViZi-PRO Collection, including the HD SonicLite Jacket ($90), Conversion Glove ($35), and Slim Beanie ($15), will be available in stores and on www.saucony.com later this month.

T.F. man and his record walleye

By Andrew Weeks
Times-News writer

A dream came true for Mike Chupa when he reeled in a walleye that broke state records.

The Twin Falls man caught the record-breaking walleye while fishing at Oakley Reservoir with friend John Harrison Oct. 10.

The two had been at the reservoir since early evening, with Chupa catching one 10-pound fish and two that weighed more than 13 pounds. They didn’t compare to his last catch at 11:45 that night — a 33-inch walleye that weighed more than 17 pounds, which prompted him to make a midnight phone call to Doug Megargle, regional fisheries manager for the Idaho Department of Fish and Game.

Though it was a late-night call — Megargle’s wife answered the call, since he was out of town on a hunt — he said Chupa did the right thing.

“If you wait, the fish will lose weight — maybe 5 to 10 pounds if you freeze it,” Megargle said.

He said he’s seen it happen — people will freeze their fish or even gut it before bringing it in to be recorded as a state record. That doesn’t work, he said. Having it recorded as quickly as possible is best.

Megargle told Chupa via cell phone what he needed to do. Chupa and Harrison brought the fish to Helen’s Rogerson Service, where Rob Noh weighed it on a certified scale.

Then Chupa had to wait. He was told to bring his catch to Fish and Game in Jerome on the morning of Oct. 13 — a Tuesday, since Monday was a holiday. He kept the fish cold in water, but admits he was “sweating bullets” waiting for Tuesday.

Luckily his 20 years of fishing experience helped him to develop patience.

Walleye can try any angler’s patience.

“They’re not as easy to catch as you might think,” Megargle said. “It does require some special technique and gear, and some knowledge about their life habits.”

For instance, he said, walleye stay deep during daylight, but surface close to the shores once darkness falls.

Avid anglers know that nighttime is the best time to try to catch big walleye.

“I exclusively fish for walleye at night,” Chupa said.

It paid off.

“It’s been a banner year for me. This year I won the Spring Walleye Classic at Salmon Falls (Creek Reservoir), fulfilled a lifelong dream of buying a new Lund boat, and now catching the state record.”

— Mike Chupa

Chupa’s fish replaced the previous state record held since Oct. 1, 2006, by Wood River Valley’s Mark Abel, whose walleye totaled 17 pounds, 6 ounces. Chupa’s fish weighed 17 pounds, 12 ounces.

“It’s been a banner year for me,” said Chupa, a member of Idaho Walleye Unlimited. “This year I won the Spring Walleye Classic at Salmon Falls (Creek Reservoir), fulfilled a lifelong dream of buying a new Lund boat, and now catching the state record.”

His fish, along with one of his 13-pounders, will be mounted, he said.

“I was very excited to hear about the catch,” Megargle said of Chupa’s late-night phone call. “When people take the time to call you about something like this, to hear positive reports, it’s extremely cherished by resource managers.”

S. Ore. hunter with spina bifida bags first buck

By Mark Freeman
(Medford) Mail Tribune

MEDFORD, Ore. — Thumbtacked to the “Bragging Wall” at Sportsmen’s Warehouse is a photo of an underwhelming blacktailed buck, a little forked-horn deer held up by a man whose smile is wider than the deer’s antlers.

“It wasn’t huge, but I wasn’t going to pass it up,” Evan Brannock said of his first buck. “I was thinking that it’ll take a while to find a deer I could actually get to.”

Bowhunting can be tough with a back wracked by spina bifida and a perpetual need to keep the bow from thumping the side of your wheelchair.

But that’s exactly what the 28-year-old Brannock overcame Sept. 24 while creating what might be the year’s best hunting story to adorn the store’s famed wall.

Brannock joined the 9 percent of successful bowhunters in Western Oregon by bagging his buck during a hunt outside of Wimer, northeast of Grants Pass.

Brannock, who works in the store’s gun department, regularly places pictures of customers’ deer on the Bragging Wall.

Finally, he tacked up one of his own.

“When I put my picture up there, the guys were pretty proud of me to get my first deer,” Brannock said. “It was all pretty exciting. It’s one of the most fun things I’ve ever done.”

Outdoor pursuits have been tough for Brannock, who does his best not to let the birth defect limit his horizons.

He can use crutches at his Medford home, but spends most of his days in a wheelchair.

“I’m pretty mobile,” he said. “I have issues sometimes about getting around obstacles.”

He’s fished for salmon and sturgeon, and he recently took up archery, shooting in an indoor league last year at DewClaw Archery Supplies in Medford.

He’s tried hunting turkeys at his family’s rural Eagle Point property, missing a tom and a jake last season.

“Getting a buck, though, is one of the things I’ve always wanted to do,” he said.

Co-worker Jim Piotter knew of Brannock’s dream and had a hand in making it a reality.

A store customer invited Piotter to hunt deer on a 4-acre parcel that abuts U.S. Bureau of Land Management land rife with blacktails.

Piotter thought it would be perfect for Brannock.

“I knew this kid was working real hard to try to bowhunt while dealing with being in a wheelchair his whole life,” Piotter said. “I just knew he always would have a hard time accessing a spot to shoot a deer and be able physically to deal with a deer. I knew that, if I could, I should help him out.”

The pair scouted the property and discovered a few bucks.

Brannock wheeled out into the woods along a fire-break, pausing along a game trail while waiting for one of the bucks to show itself.

Nervousness and excitement gave way to focus when the forked-horn appeared.

“It kind of came natural once I saw the deer,” Brannock said.

He pulled the arrow back, making sure the bow didn’t whack the wheelchair and spook the buck.

“Shooting from a wheelchair isn’t that difficult,” he said. “It’s like shooting from a kneeling position.”

“I just relaxed and let the arrow go,” he said.

The buck never knew what hit him.

Brannock crawled in the dirt to join Piotter in skinning and gutting the carcass.

There, he realized that he, too, is a hunter now.

“Everything about it was so much fun that it definitely makes me want to do it again,” Brannock says.

Even now, when Brannock wheels past the Bragging Wall and spies his photo, the whole thing seems a bit surreal.

“I like just the fact that I actually got myself out there and did it,” he said. “I know able-bodied people who won’t go out and do it. Not me. Even if I need help, I’ll ask for it, whatever.”

“I’ll always find a way to do what I want to do.”

Brannock said he’ll find his way back into the field later this month, bow in hand, hoping for another first — a tom turkey.

And that tom will find its way onto the store’s Bragging Wall, as well.

“I’ll take a shot at one this year, if one gets close enough,” Brannock said. “Even if it’s not a huge one, I’ll put the beard on the wall, just to say, ‘I did it!’”

Pheasant seasons now open

Times-News

The regular pheasant season is open for all licensed hunters statewide.

The season in north and southwest Idaho, Areas 1 and 3, runs through Dec. 31, and in eastern Idaho, Area 2, through Nov. 30.

Shooting hours are from one-half hour before sunrise to one-half hour after sunset; except on the Fort Boise, C.J. Strike, Montour and Payette River wildlife management areas, where shooting hours are from 10 a.m. to one-half hour after sunset.

The daily bag limit is three cocks, and the possession limit is six after the first day, except on wildlife management areas where pheasants are stocked, in which case the daily limit is two cocks and four in possession.

Hunters ages 17 and older need a wildlife management area upland game bird permit — formerly a pheasant permit — to hunt on the nine Idaho Fish and Game wildlife management areas where pheasants are released, including the Fort Boise, C.J. Strike, Payette River, Montour, Sterling, Market Lake, Mud Lake, Cartier Slough and Niagara Springs wildlife management areas.

All upland game and upland game bird hunters are required to wear hunter orange on wildlife management areas where pheasants are stocked. And all hunters must have a valid 2009 Idaho hunting license.

Hike

We found the route much easier to the next two peaks, Square Top and Jumbo, but an ascent to Jarbidge Mountain, the final peak to the north, would wait for another day. While our guidebook indicated that the author’s round trip route in reaching all five peaks took only 10 hours, we wondered if that feat was humanly possible.

In the end, we retreated from Jumbo Peak too late into the evening and underestimated the time involved in descending 3,500 feet in elevation to the trailhead below. Was our judgment impaired by the intoxicating effect of the thin, clean air and the stunning views? Whatever justification we theorized for our tardiness, no excuse could be made regarding our lapse in leaving flashlights at camp that morning.

The last several hours of the descent, illuminated only by starlight, consisted of feeling our way down the mountainside with hiking sticks tapping the landscape at our feet. Not always successful at remaining upright, we arrived in camp at midnight, scratched and bruised from many forceful encounters with ground, rock, and vegetation.

The next morning we reflected on our previous errors and predicament, but the discussion quickly led to our encounter with the mountains. We felt truly privileged to make four new acquaintances and study their distinctive personalities up close.

Healing on the water

Former U.S. Marine Angel Gomez of Fresno, Calif., listens to his fishing guide Jess Kiesel as he casts his line onto a pond Oct. 7 outside of Ketchum. Gomez traveled to Idaho to participate in a Sun Valley Adaptive Sports program, which uses sports and recreation — such as fly fishing — as therapy to help heal and rehabilitate severely injured men and women of the armed forces.

Veterans use fly fishing in Wood River Valley as therapy

By Jessie L. Bonner • Associated Press writer

SUN VALLEY — Standing at the edge of a clear pond in the Idaho mountains on a cold day in early October, former U.S. Marine Angel Gomez made a timid cast with his fly fishing rod.

The surface rippled under a sweeping wind. The line as thin as dental floss billowed down to the water, the hooked fly slapping the surface first. A weathered American flag flapped against a backdrop of snowcapped mountains.

Gomez was on his second deployment to Iraq in 2005 when the seven-ton truck he was driving was hit by an improvised explosive device. A piece of shrapnel, about the size of a quarter, struck Gomez in the head and penetrated his skull, leaving him with traumatic brain injury.

Now 24, he came home unable to read or write, without any sensation on the right side of his body, a half-moon shaped scar carved into the side of his head.

He had to relearn everything.

And here he was on this frigid day, attempting to coordinate mind and body, casting line after line out into the water as part of a Sun Valley Adaptive Sports program designed to help wounded service members rebuild their physical skills, rediscover their confidence and independence, and reintegrate into their communities through sports and recreation.

The weeklong fly fishing program is one of eight sports and recreation camps held each year in this central Idaho resort region for wounded service members. This fall, the fly fishing camp was designed for veterans with severe traumatic brain injury.

The men carry postwar burdens that include chronic headaches, post-traumatic stress disorder, hearing and short-term memory loss, renal failure, seizures and spinal injuries.

At a private estate along State Highway 75, the seven men embarked on their first day of fishing, practicing awkward casts in the grass before their fishing guides deemed them ready.

Two of the veterans at the pond are in wheelchairs, some use canes.

Knit caps are eventually removed, revealing scars and offering a small glimpse into the turmoil these men and their families have undergone.

Lisa Antoine sat underneath a tree, grinning at her husband David, an Army reservist who was called up in 2007, as he worked his fly line. Last February, she received in the middle of the night a phone call telling her that David's military vehicle had been hit by a roadside bomb, and that he had suffered nerve damage to his back and neck.

Now 44, he continues to suffer from headaches, photosensitivity, blurred vision and severe hearing loss. He also struggles with post-traumatic stress disorder.

"He still can't deal with it," said Lisa Antoine, 44, a certified nursing assistant who has watched her formerly outgoing husband withdraw since he came home. "He doesn't like to go anywhere, I have to drag him."

Her hope for the fly fishing camp is that it will inspire her husband to realize "you don't have to be secluded from everybody." She then leaped to her feet as David reeled in a trout. She squealed in delight, screaming, "Go get it, honey! Go get it!"

During the weeklong fly fishing program, the veterans will hear about different ways to combat their depression and isolation, about how to harness the frustration and anger that erupts when they can't perform what used to be simple tasks. They'll talk about their struggles with their spouses and other veterans who suffered traumatic brain injuries.

Sun Valley Adaptive Sports is one of 100 chapters of the Disabled Sports/USA, a national nonprofit established by Vietnam veterans in 1967 to serve the wounded after they return home from war through sports rehabilitation.

The Idaho organization started a sports and recreation program for severely injured service members about five years ago, adding the fly fishing camp last fall. The nonprofit has since held three fly fishing events, covering all expenses for the veterans, their wives and offering to pay for any child care they may need while traveling to Sun Valley.

Therapists consult with each service member before and after their Idaho experience, helping them identify goals and map out a plan to achieve them. The organization will follow up with the veterans for three years, said Tom Iselin, Sun Valley Adaptive Sports executive director.

Before the veterans even touch a rod, the fishing guides from Silver Creek outfitters and the adaptive sports employees are briefed on the injuries and needs of each veteran. They are shown what to do in case someone has a seizure. They learn how to help the veterans recognize what triggers their stress, and how to better manage it through recreation.

Over the course of the week, their confidence builds. They hear words of encouragement from their guides and the adaptive sports team.

But on this day, at the beginning, retired Marine gunner Christian Ellis, among the first vets to participate in the camp last year, knew just how the new men felt — skeptical that a week of fly fishing could help chase away mental and physical demons.

"When we first got there, you could see in our faces, we don't want to be here. We're very suspicious, we're on edge," said Ellis, who was part of a convoy in Fallujah insurgents ambushed in 2004.

His back was broken, he suffered severe spinal injuries. The post-traumatic stress disorder would come later, invisible scars he took with him after he was discharged in 2007 and described as "a giant hole you can never jump over."

Ellis had previously participated in another weeklong recreational program for wounded soldiers at a ranch in Texas.

"It was great, but once you leave that environment, you end up feeling twice as lonely, twice as worthless," said Ellis, who lives in San Diego.

When his Veterans Administration social worker recommended the Idaho program, he was leery. He had never gone fly fishing. It didn't help that this program included spouses, he was gay and might have to explain this to other veterans.

But with Sun Valley Adaptive Sports, he found himself, over the course of the week, opening up.

"I didn't even know I was talking about issues that bother me," Ellis said. "I didn't have any nightmares, I didn't feel any anxiety. They made us feel important."

LCROSS's invisible impact still yielded good science

Two weeks ago, amateur and professional astronomers across the globe trained their telescopes on Cabeus crater, near the moon's South Pole, hoping to see a plume of debris as the LCROSS spacecraft's Centaur booster created a new lunar crater.

By now, you've probably heard: Not a single ground-based telescope — from backyard instruments to the 200-inch on Mt. Palomar — saw either an impact flash or a plume. Thus, in the age of sound bite news, it's not too surprising that there's been scant media follow-up about how much science bang taxpayers got for their $80 million investment.

It's important to remember that a debris plume visible from earth was not a major indicator of mission success or failure. Water vapor, detectable by LCROSS, its sister reconnaissance Orbiter (LRO), or the Hubble Space telescope, was. Water vapor in the plume would indicate that the impact site, in a permanently-shadowed crater, contained ice deposits that could be utilized by future manned lunar missions.

While mission scientists are still crunching the numbers, early indications are that the spacecraft performed flawlessly. LCROSS detected the booster's impact flash, plume and resulting 90-foot crater. Most surprising was the detection of sodium, which has the experts a little puzzled.

Why did NASA's prediction about the impact's visibility miss the mark?

It's hard to say, since the impact site is never in sunlight. One hypothesis is that the booster struck the wall of a smaller, steep-sided crater within Cabeus, scattering debris down slope instead of skyward.

We may not have to wait long to learn the answer. LRO carries a Separate polling places for Jerome city, county elections

By John Plestina
Times-News writer

JEROME — Voters on Nov. 3 will have to grin and bear it at separate polling places for Jerome city and county balloting. However, this year might be the last time they have to muddle through the confusion.

Idaho's new election consolidation bill is intended to increase voter turnout and reduce confusion with separate polling places for city and county balloting on the same dates. City Clerk Shonna Fraser said with no council seats up for election in 2010, it's unlikely there would be another municipal election before the new law comes into effect in January 2011.

"We plan to put up signs in county polling places to let people know where to vote in the city election," she said, adding that she hopes to avert voter confusion.

"It's too costly and too confusing for the public," said City Councilman Chris Barber. "It (the change) will probably get more people to the polling places. It will be more consistent."

The city electorate will ponder three mayoral candidates: John Andoe, Mike Dahmer and John Shine. There are also five people vying for two City Council positions. Senate Dale Eskridge, Dale Ross and Larry Webb are challenging incumbents Barber and Robert Culver.

Those voting in the city election will have two polling places. Residents living north of Main Street will vote at the Jerome Public Library at the corner of First Avenue East and North Lincoln Street. Southside residents will vote at the City Council Chambers at A Street East and South Lincoln Street.

County voters will decide whether to give county commissioners authority to enter into a 30-year, $13.5 million lease-to-purchase agreement for a 165-bed jail that would also include administrative offices for the sheriff's department and a law enforcement training facility.

Jerome County has announced the following polling places within the city of Jerome: Bishop Court area, Episcopal Parish Hall, 201 S. Adams St.; Canyonside, Jerome Recreation Center 2444 S. Lincoln St.; Northeast, St. Paul's Lutheran Church, 1301 N. Davis St.; Northwest, Jerome County Fairgrounds, 200 N. Fir St.; Shepherd View area, Calvary Chapel North Valley Church, 900 N. Lincoln St.; Southeast, Jerome Senior Citizens Center (new building), 520 N. Lincoln St.; Southwest, Messersmith Building (blue building), Jerome County Fairgrounds, 200 N. Fir St.

Absentee ballots are currently available by contacting Fraser, 324-8189, and Jerome County Clerk/Auditor Michelle Emerson, 644-2714. Walk-in absentee voting is available until 5 p.m., Nov. 2 at both City Hall and at the county clerk's office in the Jerome County Courthouse. Both Fraser and Emerson said their staffs will deliver ballots to people wishing to vote absentee who cannot get out.

Jerome Co. commission reappoints Jim Pierce

By John Plestina
Times-News writer

JEROME — County commissioners finally reappointed Jerome County Fair Board member Jim Pierce Monday, saying that he had met conditions for reappointment.

Commissioners had omitted Pierce when it reappointed the remainder of the board on Sept. 28, opting for Pierce to first appear before the fair board to explain an incident during the rodeo Aug. 6 and apologize to Fairgrounds Manager Kathleen Diederick.

Commission Chairman Charlie Howell and Commissioner Cathy Roemer voted to reappoint Pierce to a two-year term. Commissioner Joe Davidson was absent.

The commission also set a check and balance system of accountability for all fair board members by voting to require an annual review by the county commission of each board member's service. Board members will continue to be appointed to two- and four-year terms, but serve at the pleasure of the county commission.

The commission briefly discussed the possibility of lifetime appointments but quickly scuttled the proposal so that new members would have the opportunity to serve.

"The Fair Board had a meeting with Jim Pierce on Oct. 12," Howell said. "He fulfilled all that the board required for him to be put back on the board. The fair board voted unanimously to reappoint him."

"I grilled him pretty heavily," he said. "He apologized. He wants to move on."

Howell said Pierce has been a hard worker for the annual agricultural fair. He went on to praise the entire fair board for its dedication, spirit and hard work.

The incident involving Pierce stemmed from a vendor who brought food to the fairgrounds for rodeo staff and participants and then left without delivering the food.

Fair board members other than Pierce made an executive decision to fund meals for rodeo cowboys and staff. Pierce objected, according to Howell, and a confrontation followed with Diederick and one or more other board members.

Important dose correction for psoriasis treatment

DEAR DR. GOTT: I recently wrote you regarding my experience with psoriasis, for which my husband (a pathologist and professor) recommended that I take fish oil and vitamin D3. I had very good results and wanted to share them with your readers.

When I read my letter in the paper, it said that I was taking 1,000 milligrams of fish oil and 2,000 IU of vitamin D three times a day. This is not what I said. That means anyone who tried this remedy is taking three times as much as they should, and this is a huge amount. Please print a retraction.

DEAR READER: Consider it done. There was a misprint in the original column, and "three times daily" should have been "D3."

I would like to mention that I don't believe any harm will come to anyone who took the tripled dose.

According to the Office of Dietary Supplements, people over the age of 14 should not take more than 2,000 IU of vitamin D daily; however, several nutrition scientists have challenged this, citing recent research studies that show up to 10,000 IU of D daily is acceptable. So, in my opinion, a short-term dosage of 6,000 IU daily will not be harmful.

As for the fish oil, many physicians recommend normal, healthy people consume about 2,000 milligrams daily. That is double what you were taking and just under the misprinted triple dose. Again, a short-term treatment at the elevated dosage should not cause any harm.

So, readers, please accept my apology for not catching the error and for those trying this alternative treatment, please reduce your dosages to 1,000 milligrams of fish oil and 2,000 IU of vitamin D3 to once a day only.

Jerome Council funds Trans IV bus service

By John Plestina
Times-News writer

JEROME — The Jerome City Council upped the ante for Trans IV bus service in the city Tuesday, giving the public transportation system the full amount it had requested from the city through the Jerome Senior Center.

That is because Senior Center Manager Kris Shelton asked the council for just $1,500 for the bus service and said Jerome Senior Citizens Inc., would fund the other $1,000. Trans IV had asked the council for $2,500 to fund continued demand response service in Jerome. Previous funding ran out.

Shelton said Trans IV needs the funding to offset fuel costs.

"Seniors are struggling. This is one way we could help," she said of many older people that no longer drive.

City Councilmen Chris Barber and Robert Culver both called on their council colleagues to vote for the city to contribute the full $2,500.

One man seated in the gallery said, "Amen."

The council voted unanimously to fund the $2,500.

The College of Southern Idaho has sponsored Trans IV for 30 years. It provides both fixed route service between cities and demand response service for the elderly and others with special needs. Rides in Jerome range from free to $2, Shelton said.

In other business, the council rejected a bid process for garbage collection, meaning that PSI Environmental System's contract with the city will be reinstated after the Jan. 1, 2010 expiration date.

Culver and Councilman John Shine voted against a bidding process and Barber and Marj Schmidt voted for it. Mayor Charles Correll broke the tie with a no vote.

Shine cited Jerome having the lowest rate for garbage collection in the Magic Valley at $3.44 monthly and said he was concerned that the rate could go up if it went out to bid.

"I don't see how we could serve our community without going out to bid," Barber said.

PSI had proposed a recycling program, which the council shied away from earlier this month based on higher costs for residents and a poor market for recycled commodities. Several council members said it might be feasible in the future.

Barber cited the annual citizen survey as a good place to measure public support for recycling.

Also, before the council, new Fire Chief Mike Hatfield assumed his new post, after his wife, Kristi, following tradition, pinned her husband with a new badge.

The 34-year veteran firefighter filled the long-vacant position in Jerome in September, after retiring from the fire department in Cathedral City, Calif., where he was a division chief and fire marshal.

Cathedral City Fire Chief Bill Soqui made a 700-mile trip to Jerome. He placed the chief's hat on Hatfield and saluted him.

"I had the honor of knowing Mike for about 20 years and three years as division chief," Soqui said.

86-year-old rules as Wyo. park's oldest volunteer

WHITE GRASS, Wyo. (AP) — It's easy to lose track of the date at the tiny cabin that serves as the White Grass Ranger Station in Grand Teton National Park.

No wonder, then, that George Simmons turned 86 this year without even noticing until a visitor wished him a belated birthday.

Simmons — who's known as Black George, although he's white — is the park's oldest volunteer. He's spent the summer season in the one-room ranger station cabin for 15 years.

Though he may occasionally lose track, others measure time by Simmons himself. He arrives at the cabin as soon as the snow is melted and the ground has firmed up, and he leaves when the snow returns and begins to settle. During the winter, he will visit friends and relatives in other states.

But the cabin is home, even if he is only there a few months a year. Inside, he relives his travels with Death Canyon hikers whom he offers root beer floats.

His signature greeting, "Yeehaa," comes from his time in Texas in the 1980s. It was desolate, and people were so excited to see a friendly face they exclaimed "Yeehaa!" Simmons said.

When he started in Grand

Grand Teton National Park volunteer 'Black' George Simmons poses at his summer cabin near White Grass Ranch in Grand Teton National Park. Simmons, who likes to greet visitors with a 'Yeehaa!' and a root beer float, has been living at White Grass Ranch every summer for about 15 years.

Teton, he typed the weekly morning report, full of information on the weather, local elk populations and people to whom he had served root beer floats.

The report is now a tradition in Grand Teton National Park, said Scott Gunther, a ranger who supervises Simmons.

"He's an incredible statistician," Gunther said.

His real contribution to the National Park Service is his mere presence, Gunther said. He engages the public and makes immediate connections with visitors. People meet him and then return with friends.

Simmons wants visitors to appreciate national parks, and specifically Grand Teton National Park. He also wants them to feel he's a friend.

The reactions of the visitors he meets are recorded in sketchbooks that act as a log each season.

Some simply say thanks for the coffee or tea, or root beer float. Other messages are more personal.

"You have and will forever leave a lasting impression on my life. Thanks for all that you do to make the world a better place," reads one comment.

hiccup, which sometimes last for days. They seem to come on for no reason and leave for no reason. The doctors he has seen don't know how to cure them.

Two years ago, he was in the hospital for five days while being treated for pneumonia. He had hiccups for four days and was seen by quite a number of doctors. No one had a cure. Finally, the hiccups just stopped.

We would be so very happy if you could suggest some cure. Of course, he has tried drinking out of a glass backward, breathing in a paper bag, eating a spoonful of peanut butter and any other home remedy that has been suggested. Do you have some cure?

DEAR READER: I'm sure that you have tried every home remedy imaginable. Have you considered having him bite on a lemon, using smelling salts, drinking iced water or scaring him? Some other minor tricks include eating small meals, eliminating carbonated beverages and beverages that contain alcohol, and controlling sudden temperature changes whenever possible. More extreme measures include hypnosis, acupuncture, medications such as muscle relaxants, nerve block, or the insertion of a nasogastric tube or vagus-nerve stimulation.

Before you accept his fate or commit to a surgical procedure, do a little more research. Perhaps something simple will provide the answer.

seismograph JHS acquired Sept. 29.

The National Science Foundation sponsored IRIS's Seismographs in Schools Program and provided the seismograph and training for Bruns in San Antonio, Texas, through a grant.

Seismographs detect and record earthquakes and other ground motion, such as the governor stomping his feet.

Bruns asked his oldest student to help him demonstrate how movement influences the seismograph. "Governor, would you mind stomping your feet?"

Otter stomped his right foot a few times. "It would be easier if the Legislature was in here," he said.

"So," Bruns asked, "how many teachers would ask the governor to jump?"

Otter jumped. "How many governors would?" Otter asked.

Then Bruns showed Otter's movements on a seismic graph displayed on a screen that was divided into four quadrants, one for Shoshone, one for Weiser and two for the Jerome classroom.

Bruns showed the seismic reading from the recent earthquake in Samoa and another in Indonesia.

"This is real data reported here in Jerome, Idaho," he said.

Then Bruns posed questions to students in Shoshone and Weiser via the IEN and they responded through the high-speed broadband network that makes high school and college courses available to small schools that otherwise could not offer the classes.

The inclusion of every high school and public college in Idaho is expected within three years through a phased implementation.

Otter was apparently impressed with both the seismograph and the IEN demonstration.

"We'll have every high school in the state hooked up to it in two years," he said.

"Obviously this is a wonderful demonstration of this. Everybody is going to have an equal opportunity to participate and get an equal education," he said of IEN leveling the playing field for rural students. "We haven't even tapped into all the possibilities yet."

He added that with a shortage of science and math teachers in many Idaho school districts, students attending small schools in all parts of Idaho could participate in science classes from Jerome High School.

"In the Jerome School District we have had a history of at least 10 years of technology," said Jerome Director of Technology Chris Gibson.

"I'm not just saying this because you're sitting here, Governor. This feels different. This feels right. I feel this is going to work," Gibson said.

William E. Barkdull Jr.

BURLEY — William Eugene Barkdull Jr. (Bill), beloved husband, father, grandfather, brother and friend, returned peacefully to his Father in Heaven on Monday, Oct. 19, 2009. He was 82 years old.

Bill was born July 23, 1927, at the family home in American Falls, Idaho. He was the oldest son of W.E. Sr. and Vera White Barkdull. Bill spent his youth working hard at many things from raising turkeys, setting pins at the local bowling alley, tormenting his siblings, herding sheep and dry farming. Bill attended schools in American Falls, graduating from high school in 1945.

His early life goals were to finish school and become a Merchant Marine. Bill enlisted in the United States Navy Reserve upon graduation. He was stationed in San Diego, Long Beach and San Pedro, Calif. His first Christmas away from home as a young sailor was the most homesick he had ever been, and he longed to return home to the mountains. After World War II ended, Bill was honorably discharged and returned home to attend Utah State University in Logan. He studied agriculture and mechanics.

It was in Logan that he met his sweetheart and love of his life, Darlene Liechty. After finding the courage to ask for a first date, they had a whirlwind romance and were married in the Idaho Falls LDS Temple on May 1, 1947. Bill's family was skeptical about the union of the young farm boy and the city girl, but they shared 59 years together as sweethearts.

After college, Bill and Darlene moved to the family ranch near American Falls. They spent 13 years living at the ranch, raising sheep, cattle, grain and potatoes. After the birth of their first four children, Bill bought a farm south of Burley, just west of Farmer's Corner. He developed a subdivision, Billene Park, providing ample room for the growing family. Bill was an excellent father and provider. He made the sacrifice to drive to and from the ranch daily rather than have the children make the long bus ride to school every day. Bill always put his family first. In Burley, two more children joined the family, bringing the total to six, five girls and one boy.

An active member of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, he served as Elder's and Seventies Quorum president, Sunday school president and High Priest.

Imaginative and resourceful, Bill was always designing, improving or building things. As a young father, he built an outboard motorboat entirely of wood for the family to enjoy on the Snake River. They enjoyed many family outings together learning to water ski. Bill even taught his girls how to drive the boat so he could water ski too.

Shortly before his death, Bill completed his last project. With the help and hard work of many talented local craftsmen, he built his own personal sheep camp. It was the fulfillment of a 10-year-old boy's imagination. He traveled with his son-in-law, Chip, to Lava Hot Springs with the camp and together they spent the weekend in the "mini-RV."

Bill was adventurous and enthusiastic. He earned his pilot's license and spent many enjoyable hours in the air. He was one of the initial investors in the Pomerelle Ski Area, and the family shared many happy weekends together skiing. He was an avid snowmobiler as well and took the entire family on many winter adventures to Utah, Wyoming and throughout Idaho.

Always looking for ways to make things better, Bill devised a method for pumping water from the Snake River to a pivot sprinkler on the ranch. It was one of the first installed in the area. His father never believed it would work and referred to it as "Billy's contraption." However, when it proved successful, it became "an amazing invention."

After retiring from the family ranch, Bill remained active, working across the country in custom farming, as a supervisor at the Burley Deseret Industries and grading potatoes for U.S. Department of Agriculture.

A lifelong Boy Scouter, he also filled his retirement years with continued Scout training, progression and service. He earned the rank of Eagle Scout as a young man and considered it one of his most important accomplishments. He was a Scoutmaster and achieved the levels of Silver Tomahawk, Wood Badge, Broken Match, and Scout commissioner. Bill spent many years at Camp Bradley near Stanley, Idaho, with his extended "Scout family."

He was a devoted husband and father and a loyal friend. Bill had a charming personality and a warm, compassionate heart. He was an eternal optimist, and lived life with passion for excellence and service.

His parents; two sisters; his son, Bill III; a grandson; and his sweetheart, Darlene, preceded Bill in death. He is survived by his five daughters, Carolyn (Randy) Hymas of Twin Falls, Vicky (Wayne) Davis of Eagle, Marlene (Gene) Olson of Clovis, Calif., Genese (Ralph) Martini of Burley and Marianne (Randy) Manning of Chubbuck; 15 grandchildren; 20 great-grandchildren; one sister, Lucille (Jim) Browning of Lebanon, N.H.; and two brothers, Carl (Kathy) of American Falls and Jay (Josephina) of St. George, Utah. Bill also left his faithful friend and companion to the end, "that darn black dog," Spike.

The funeral will be held at 1 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 24, at the Unity LDS Church, 275 S. 250 E. of Burley. Burial will be in Gem Memorial Gardens with military rites provided by the Mini-Cassia Veterans and Auxiliary. Friends may call from 6 until 8 p.m. Friday, Oct. 23, at the Rasmussen Funeral Home, 1350 E. 16th St. in Burley, and from noon until 12:45 p.m. Saturday at the church.

Funeral home offers electronic billboard obits

By Micahel J. Crumb
Associated Press writer

DES MOINES, Iowa — A funeral home is giving people one last chance to have their name in lights.

Iles Funeral Home in Des Moines is going high-tech with its funeral announcements, putting them on electronic billboards around the city.

John Wild, the general manager for Iles, compared it to the posting of funeral announcements at shops and post offices in rural communities where the business has funeral homes.

"That's how we get the word out about visitations and services in those communities and when we were approached about using electronic billboards, we thought it would be a good way to do the same thing here in Des Moines," Wild said.

Jessica Koth, spokeswoman for the National Funeral Directors Association in Brookfield, Wis., said it's the first time she's heard of a funeral home displaying service information on a billboard.

Wild was approached by Clear Channel Outdoors, which provides the digital billboards, about advertising Iles Funeral Home on the signs. Instead, Wild decided to use the billboards to let the public know about visitations and funeral services.

"I thought it was forward thinking and innovative," said Tim Jameson, president of the Des Moines division of Clear Channel Outdoor.

The digital announcements, which have appeared on five billboards around Des Moines for a few months, last about 8 seconds. Announcements can flash the person's name, picture and service details as well as the funeral home's Web site.

U.S. pressures Karzai; troop increase option in play

By Anne Gearan and Matthew Lee
Associated Press writers

WASHINGTON — The United States built pressure on Afghan President Hamid Karzai on Wednesday, signaling that a troop increase could hinge on a successful runoff election and that the Obama administration would be receptive to a power-sharing deal between Karzai and his chief rival.

A coalition government or other political arrangement that included Karzai's rival, former Foreign Minister Abdullah Abdullah, could provide a critical internal check on Karzai, who is widely favored to win the presidential runoff set for Nov. 7.

President Obama and Sen. John Kerry, who pressed the administration's interests in weekend talks with Karzai in Kabul, both hinted Wednesday that pending deliberations on possible U.S. troop increases in Afghanistan could be affected by the Afghan leader's behavior.

Karzai's weak and corruption-riddled government has been blamed in part for the resurgence of the Taliban and for widespread Afghan civilian disillusionment. The Afghan national election in August was marred by massive fraud that led to the discarding of a third of the results, providing a wedge for the U.S. to press Karzai to agree to the runoff with Abdullah.

Kerry, whose meetings with Karzai helped lead to the runoff agreement over the weekend, said Wednesday after a White House session with Obama that the president should wait until after new election to make his decision on troop strength.

Obama himself said Wednesday in a television interview he might not announce his decision on sending more troops until after the runoff.

Both statements had the subtle force of increasing pressure on Karzai by implying that the administration's decision on U.S. troop strength in Afghanistan might depend on how the runoff turns out.

The Massachusetts Democrat said Wednesday that it wasn't "common sense" for Obama to determine whether more U.S. troops should go to Afghanistan without knowing the election results. "You really want to know that this has worked, and you want to know what's coming out of it," Kerry said.

Officials said Obama's pending decision had prominently figured in the U.S. discussions with Karzai about how to resolve the political impasse.

Several officials stressed that the looming troop plan decision was not used overtly to force Karzai to concede on the election's contested first round, but one highly placed U.S. official in Afghanistan said the United States used Obama's deliberation over troop numbers as leverage.

That official spoke on condition of anonymity because Obama has not announced whether he will agree to a U.S. military request for thousands of additional forces.

Karzai and Abdullah settled on the runoff following weeks of acrimony over Afghanistan's fraud-pocked national election. But both sides also are considering a coalition government that could either replace the runoff or follow it.

State Department spokesman Ian Kelly told reporters Wednesday that the U.S. would not be opposed to a power-sharing deal, depending on its legitimacy and how it was implemented.

Massachusetts man accused of plot to kill U.S. politicians

By Denise Lavoie
Associated Press writer

BOSTON — A Massachusetts man and two friends tried and failed to get into terrorist training camps and then plotted to kill two prominent U.S. politicians and randomly shoot people at American shopping malls, authorities said Wednesday. Tarek Mehanna, who recently taught at a Muslim school in Worcester, was arrested early Wednesday at his parents' suburban Boston home. Mehanna was charged with conspiring with two other men — an American now in Syria and another man who is cooperating with authorities — to provide support to terrorists.

Ultimately, the trio never came close to pulling off an attack. Authorities say they never got the terrorist training they sought — that the men told friends they were turned down because of their nationality, ethnicity or inexperience, or that the people they'd hoped would get them into such camps were either in jail or on a religious pilgrimage.

The men abandoned the mall attack plans after their weapons contact said he could find only handguns, not automatic weapons.

The men used code words such as "peanut butter and jelly" for fighting in Somalia and "culinary school" for terrorist camps, and talked extensively of their desire to "die on the battlefield," according to court documents.

Mehanna, who has taught math and religion at Alhuda Academy, made a defiant court appearance hours after his arrest. He refused to stand to hear the charge against him and finally did — tossing his chair loudly to the floor — only after his father urged him to do so.

"This really, really is a show," his father, Ahmed Mehanna, said as his son was being led away in handcuffs. When asked if he believed the charges against his son, he said, "No, definitely not."

Prosecutors said Mehanna worked with two men from 2001 to May 2008 on the conspiracy that, over time, intended to "kill, kidnap, maim or injure" soldiers and two politicians who were members of the executive branch but are no longer in office. Authorities refused to identify the politicians and said they were never in danger.

Acting U.S. Attorney Michael Loucks said the men justified the planned attacks on malls because U.S. civilians pay taxes to support the U.S. government and because they are "nonbelievers," Loucks said. He refused to identify the targeted malls.

Mehanna — who received a doctorate in 2008 from the Massachusetts College of Pharmacy in Boston, where his father is a professor — allegedly conspired with Ahmad Abousamra, who authorities say is now in Syria.

Mehanna, 27, is being held without bail until his next court appearance on Oct. 30.

Convenience store clerk accused of stealing $1 million lottery prize

By Kelley Shannon
Associated Press writer

AUSTIN, Texas — A 25-year-old convenience store clerk pocketed a customer's $1 million winning lottery ticket, claimed the prize and skipped town, possibly back to his native Nepal, authorities said.

Pankaj Joshi took 67-year-old Willis Willis' winning Mega Millions megaplier ticket after Willis asked Joshi in May to check whether any of his numbers were winners, investigators said in a search warrant affidavit last month.

Joshi claimed the prize — about $750,000 after taxes — at the lottery claim center in Austin, had the money wired to a bank account and disappeared, authorities said.

"Never to this degree have we seen a clerk steal a megaplier winning ticket," assistant district attorney Patty Robertson said Wednesday.

Nick Parveez, Joshi's former manager at Lucky's Food Store in Grand Prairie, near Dallas, called the lottery commission in July to voice his suspicions about Joshi after hearing that his store sold a $1 million winning ticket, according to the affidavit.

No one at Lucky's had ever seen Joshi play the lottery, assistant manager Mike Rahman said.

"He just left," Rahman said. "We were shocked. We didn't know he could do anything like this."

Joshi, who was a student at the University of Texas at Arlington and had worked at the store for five years, was charged in Travis County in September with one count of claiming a lottery prize by fraud. If convicted, he could face up to 20 years in prison. A judge set Joshi's bond at $10 million.

The Austin American-Statesman first reported on the charge Wednesday.

Joshi transferred some of the money to various bank accounts after the initial deposit by the lottery, prosecutors said. Authorities have recovered $365,000 from Joshi's account. It wasn't clear when the money might be returned to Willis, if it's proven in court to be his.

"We hope to return the stolen funds back to the victim," Robertson said.

Investigators believe Joshi may have returned to Nepal. When he quit his job in June, Joshi said he was returning to the South Asian country to help his cousin with her perfume business, Parveez told investigators.

Survivor of Arizona sweat lodge tragedy speaks out

By Felicia Fonseca
Associated Press writer

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz. — More than 50 followers of spiritual guru James Arthur Ray had just endured five strenuous days of fasting, sleep-deprivation and mind-altering breathing exercises when he led them into a sweat lodge ceremony.

It was supposed to be a religious awakening, the culmination of a $9,000-plus-a-person retreat outside Sedona, Ariz., aimed at helping people find a new vision for life. But it wasn't long before the ceremony turned into a terrifying experience.

People were vomiting in the stifling heat, gasping for air, and lying lifeless on the sand and gravel floor beneath them, according to participant Beverley Bunn. One man was burned when he crawled into the rocks, seemingly unaware of what he was doing, she said. Ultimately, three people would die.

When participants exhibited weakness, Ray urged them to push past it and chided those who wanted to leave, she said. "I can't get her to move. I can't get her to wake up," Bunn recalls hearing from two sides of the 415-square-foot sweat lodge. Ray's response: "Leave her alone, she'll be dealt with in the next round."

Bunn, a 43-year-old Texas resident, provided her wrenching description of the sweat lodge tragedy in an interview with The Associated Press, the first public account from a participant in the Oct. 8 ceremony.

It also marks a significant revelation in the criminal investigation into Ray over the episode because it portrays him as driving participants to stay in the lodge despite signs all around him that the situation had gone bad. Investigators are considering bringing charges against the guru and trying to learn about his actions that night.

Howard Bragman, a spokesman for Ray, said many people at the "Spiritual Warrior" event had "amazing experiences," and noted that people should not rush to judgment about what occurred.

According to Bunn, participants were given short notice before they were to enter the sweat lodge. As they readied for it, they removed their jewelry, placed prayer pouches filled with nicotine around their necks and ripped out pages in a journal they kept detailing what in life was holding them back.

A fire heating up rocks outside the sweat lodge consumed the journal pages.

Lightly dressed in bathing suits, shorts and tank tops, they received a blessing meant to cut away negative energy before crawling into the sweat lodge. Ray led the group inside and sat next to the opening. A second row formed, their bodies closest to what would be a pile of heated rocks.

Ray led the group in chants and prayers in a Native American tongue during the sweat lodge ceremony. He poured a 5-gallon bucket of water over the rocks, sending a rush of steam throughout the makeshift structure. That began a two-hour ceremony broken up into 15-20 minute rounds that some would later describe as "profound," according to a transcript of a call Ray held with participants days later.

For others, it was terrifying. Participants began to show signs they were weakening midway through the ceremony. By the time people started collapsing, Bunn had already crawled to a spot near the opening of the sweat lodge, praying for the door to stay open as long as possible between rounds so that she could breathe in fresh air.

Bunn lasted the entire two hours in the sweat lodge but nearly two dozen others were hospitalized. Kirby Brown, 38, of Westtown, N.Y., and James Shore, 40, of Milwaukee, died upon arrival at a hospital. Liz Neuman, 49, of Prior Lake, Minn., died more than a week later at a Flagstaff hospital.

Official says hijacking thwarted on flight to Cairo

CAIRO (AP) — Security guards thwarted a hijacking attempt Wednesday on an EgyptAir flight from Istanbul to Cairo by overpowering a man who threatened crew members with a knife, an airline security official said.

A Sudanese man used a plastic knife from the in-flight meal to threaten flight attendants after the plane left Turkish airspace and demanded that the flight be diverted to Jerusalem, the official said.

Guards on the flight were able to detain the man and no one was hurt, he said.

The flight landed safely at Cairo airport. The man was arrested and was being questioned by state security, the official said.

Scientists identify fossil bones of smallest N. American dinosaur

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Fossil bones housed at a Los Angeles museum belong to the smallest dinosaur discovered in North America, scientists said Tuesday.

The newly identified creature weighed less than two pounds and stood about 4 inches tall. From head to tail, it measured a little over 2 feet long, said Luis Chiappe, director of the Dinosaur Institute of the Natural History Museum of Los Angeles County where the fossil bones are stored.

The dinosaur "would have looked like a roadrunner on steroids," Chiappe said.

It likely ate plants and hunted bugs during the late Jurassic period, about 150 million years ago. It was so tiny and fast that it probably darted between the legs of larger dinosaurs, researchers said.

Bones of four individuals — including skull, arm and leg fragments — were discovered three decades ago in Fruita in western Colorado and kept at the museum.

fied and named it Fruitadens haagarorum, which incorporates where the bones were found and the name of the president of the museum's board of trustees, Paul Haaga.

A description of their work appears Wednesday in the British journal Proceedings of the Royal Society B: Biological Sciences.

Earlier this year,

Canadian researchers reported that a chicken-sized dinosaur weighing in at 4-to-5 pounds was the smallest meat-eating dinosaur yet discovered in North America.

Primate fossil called only a distant relative

NEW YORK (AP) — Remember Ida, the fossil discovery announced last May with its own book and TV documentary? A publicity blitz called it "the link" that would reveal the earliest evolutionary roots of monkeys, apes and humans.

Experts protested that Ida wasn't even a close relative. And now a new analysis supports their reaction.

In fact, Ida is as far removed from the monkey-ape-human ancestry as a primate could be, says Erik Seiffert of Stony Brook University in New York.

He and his colleagues compared 360 specific anatomical features of 117 living and extinct primate species to draw up a family tree. They report the results in Thursday's issue of the journal Nature.

Ida is a skeleton of a 47 million-year-old cat-sized creature found in Germany. It starred in a book, "The Link: Uncovering Our Earliest Ancestor."

Ida represents a previously unknown primate species called Darwinius. The scientists who formally announced the finding said they weren't claiming Darwinius was a direct ancestor of monkeys, apes and humans. But they did argue that it belongs in the same major evolutionary grouping, and that it showed what an actual ancestor of that era might have looked like.

The new analysis says Darwinius does not belong in the same primate category as monkeys, apes and humans. Instead, the analysis concluded, it falls into the other major grouping, which includes lemurs.

Experts agreed. "This is a rigorous analysis based on many features," said Eric Sargis, an anthropology professor at Yale. He said he'd found the argument of the Darwinius researchers unconvincing, so the new result came as no surprise.

In fact, it confirms what most scientists think, said David Begun, a paleoanthropologist at the University of Toronto.

Jorn Hurum of the Natural History Museum in Oslo, Norway, an author of the Ida paper, said he welcomed the new analysis.

Bruin boys, girls win district XC meet

By Ryan Howe
Times-News writer

In a 21-minute span, somewhere along the five-kilometer course on the College of Southern Idaho campus, Twin Falls cross country runner Stephanie Filas found an extra three-tenths of a second.

It seems miniscule, but that three-tenths made the difference in the Class 4A District IV championship Wednesday as the Bruins girls scored 30 points to edge out Jerome's 31.

Filas finished ninth place in 21 minutes, 13.3 seconds to beat Jerome's Lucia Pacheco by 0.3 seconds. Filas and Pacheco were neck-and-neck down the final stretch, along with Twin Falls' Hannah Biedenbach and Lizzie after an exciting finish by individual winner Amanda Ward of Twin Falls, who crossed in 19:34. Ward, a junior, was flanked almost the entire race by Jerome sophomore Mikesell Clegg and junior Mackenzie Chojnacky. Ward finally broke away down the stretch, with Clegg nipping at her heels at 19:35.

"Jerome always gives us a run for our money," said Ward. "We knew that if we saw them, our girls had to go get Jerome today, and that's how we came out on top."

Ward's win comes after finishing first and second as a freshman and sophomore, respectively, in the Bruins' former conference, Class 5A Region Four-Five-Six.

"I always have a good sprint at the end of my race, but I didn't know what the Jerome girls had left," Ward said. "I just tried to get a little bit ahead, and then I just went for it."

Temperatures were in the mid-50s, and the overcast sky threatened but never dropped more than a sprinkle. Perfect running conditions, according to Grindstaff, who called it "a great day!"

Kimberly volleyball squad takes down Filer for SCIC title

By Diane Philbin
Times-News writer

FILER — The Kimberly volleyball team didn't appreciate the sight of Filer celebrating on its home floor Tuesday night. The Bulldogs found a way to return the favor Wednesday.

It took three matches and more than five hours, but the Bulldogs fought their way back to the Class 3A state volleyball tournament, beating Filer in consecutive contests to claim the Sawtooth Central Idaho Conference tournament title.

"We were so excited to play tonight, because we had all the memories of last year and how much we wanted to go to state again," said outside hitter Roxanne Krieger, who led Kimberly with 27 kills in the two matches against Filer.

After beating Buhl 25-23, 14-25, 25-18, 25-17 to reach the championship game, the Bulldogs topped the Wildcats 20-25, 25-11, 25-23, 25-14 in the first championship match. They then took the deciding match 24-26, 25-17, 25-16, 25-12.

"We were much more consistent, and we moved the ball around," said Kimberly coach Lawrence Pfefferle. "Our serving really was good tonight. We kept them off balance."

throughout the night, getting 25 kills and 44 assists from Alex Pfefferle in the two wins over Filer, while Kalie Wright added 22.

"Kimberly was just a little too strong for us tonight," said Filer coach Ed Richards, whose team will try to earn its own 3A state berth when it faces

District III's runner-up in a 5 p.m. play-in game Saturday in Mountain Home. "Our girls played their hearts out tonight."

Teighlor Bair had 44 digs for the Bulldogs, while Averie Schroeder added 22.

Filer's Danielle Schaal had 22 kills and 22 digs, while Krista Lewis added 21 kills. McKenzi Jasper chipped in 12 kills and 40 digs, while Charmaine Weatherly had 29 assists and Leah Schaal added 27.

When it was all said and done, Kimberly won nine of 12 matches on the night. The Bulldogs open play at the Class 3A state tournament Oct. 30 at Coeur d'Alene High School.

Buhl, Declo and the Great (Basin) debate

One ingredient of a great sports debate is that it can never be settled.

Who's better, Magic or Bird? Could the undefeated 1972 Dolphins beat the undefeated 2007 Patriots? In his prime, who was better, Mike Tyson and Muhammad Ali? Could Boise State compete in a BCS conference?

We'll never know.

There's a local sports debate in the same vein:

How would the Buhl and Declo football teams fare if they were members of the Class 4A Great Basin Conference this season?

Class 3A Buhl and Class 2A Declo are both 7-0. Each has gone through its schedule like a tidal wave through a cabana hut.

Take the five best skills players from Buhl or Declo, and they could start for any Class 5A or 4A team in the state. The Indians and Hornets have more athleticism than the GBC. They're tougher in the trenches. They execute their schemes more effectively. For smaller schools, they also have considerable depth. As far as coaching, they don't come much better than Stacy Wilson and Kelly Kidd.

Buhl averages 46.7 points per game. Declo scores 49.4.

The Indians defense has given up just six touchdowns all season. The Hornets have allowed eight. And most of those came during mop-up time against the second and third string.

Perhaps the question isn't how good Buhl and Declo are, but how weak the (not so) Great Basin Conference is this year. Until last week, league-leading Twin Falls didn't even have a winning record.

Against teams outside of the conference, the Great Basin's record is 3-16.

Declo goes the distance for Canyon crown

By David Bashore
Times-News writer

HAZELTON — The impossible nearly happened Wednesday at Valley High School.

Lowly Glens Ferry, of just one win on the season, found a way to eliminate top-seeded Valley and push No. 2 Declo to the limit in the Canyon Conference volleyball tournament. But the favored Hornets held their nerve just long enough to take a 25-22, 25-22, 21-25, 22-25, 15-7 win in the second championship match to claim the title and the conference's only berth to next weekend's Class 2A state tournament at Lakeland High School.

It will be Declo's first trip to state in a more than a decade.

"It was extremely stressful out there, but we just had to trust in the team that we could get it done," said Declo senior middle Brittni Duncan. "We've really got to hand it to Glens Ferry. To play 15 sets and play that well is a great accomplishment for them."

Glens Ferry forced the if-necessary match by hanging with Declo and grinding out a 25-23, 22-25, 25-23, 22-25, 15-3 victory in the first championship match. The Pilots did so with a methodical, sound game revolving around just getting the ball over the net and waiting for the Hornets to make a mistake.

Eventually, Declo found its feet, thanks in large part to the power game of sophomore middle Sydney Webb. Webb's free-swinging and aggressive-blocking style led to some mistakes, but the benefits outweighed the pitfalls just enough.

"I just go up and hit whatever comes to me," said Webb, who totaled 28 kills and seven blocks in the two matches. "I just love to hit and block."

It took Glens Ferry tripling its season win total just to force the decisive match. The Pilots beat Declo shortly after outlasting Valley 25-16, 22-25, 18-25, 25-18, 15-11 in an elimination match earlier in the day. The two victories on Wednesday matched the Pilots' 2007, 2008 and 2009 regular season win totals combined.

No. 3. No. 2 Blinn College (Texas), No. 4 Western Nebraska Community College and No. 5 Salt Lake

Community College remain unchanged from last week.

Barring another upset of North Idaho by Salt Lake, the next time CSI faces its rivals from the north could be with the Cardinals looking to protect the top ranking, and not the other way around.

"The last three times we've played them we've been No. 1," said CSI head coach Heidi Cartisser. "Let's see how they deal with being No. 1 when we play them again."

CSI is treating this weekend's trip to the College of Eastern Utah and Colorado Northwestern Community College as a business trip, but also one that prepares the Golden Eagles for next weekend's regular-season-ending homestand against Snow College and Salt Lake Community College. The Region 18 Tournament also looms ahead, likely in Coeur d'Alene.

This week's preparation has consisted more of weight-room work and film studies than petal-to-the-metal on-court action, as the Golden Eagles seek their missing mojo against the top team in the land.

"We're staying really toward the mental side, because that's where it's at for us right now," Cartisser said.

"We just need to find that mental edge."

CSI faces Eastern Utah on Friday and Colorado Northwestern on Saturday.

Clay Stout of Kimberly finished second, leading the Bulldogs to the team title with 25 points. Brian Crane of Kimberly was third, with Bryce Beard of Filer fourth and Cory Berry of Kimberly fifth.

Kimberly, Buhl and Gooding advanced their teams to next week's state meet in Worley.

Indeed, it was a great day for Twin Falls, who also won the boys team title, although it lacked the drama of the girls race.

The Bruins boys placed four runners in the top five: Alex Schenk, Erik Harris, Tyson Warth and Karl Lundgren.

Senior Chase Caulkins of Wood River distanced himself early and cruised to the individual title in 16:41.

"It was nice and flat and fast," Caulkins said of the course. "We started off going pretty fast, but then after the first mile they started to settle down, and that's when I decided to go. Right near the end they started to come back up, but I just held on until the end."

GBC faces teams from District V and VI.

Having soundly beaten three GBC teams this season (Wood River, Burley and Canyon Ridge in consecutive weeks by a combined score of 137-7), Buhl would have already earned a Great 8 playoff spot. The only question is whether the Indians would have enough to beat out Twin Falls and Jerome for the GBC title.

Burley coach Eugene Kramer, whose Bobcats lost 49-7 to Buhl, said the Indians would win the GBC, Both Gooding and Kimberly will compete as teams at the girls state tournament.

Class 2A-1A

Davis Jones of Declo covered the Campus Grove course in 17:41 to take top honors in the Class 2A-1A boys race. He was followed by teammate Josh Geary (18:13). Brett Arnell of Oakley placed third, with Torin Tucker of Community School fourth and Oakley's Parley Pickett fifth.

Sasha Kent of Richfield continued her dominating season by taking first place in the girls race at the Class 2A-1A district championships. She ran a time of 21:14, nearly a full minute ahead of the field. Sierra Zollinger of Declo was second, with Richfield's Teenie Kent third. Abigail Burk of Bliss and Lacey Kniep of Shoshone completed the top five.

Jerome coach Gary Krumm said, "I know that Buhl's running attack would keep them in ballgames in the Great Basin. I haven't seen Declo play, but from what I've heard and read and seen highlights of, I think Declo and Buhl would be a dogfight. Therefore, I think they could both compete in the Great Basin."

I asked Declo coach Kelly Kidd how the Hornets would stack up in the GBC. A true diplomat, he wouldn't bite on the question. After some prodding, he finally said, "I think we can play with anybody."

Kidd also lamented, "I think it's sad that Declo and Buhl don't meet."

Indeed, I'm convinced that Buhl and Declo would finish first and second in the GBC, which leaves only one question: Which would be one, and which would be two? Unfortunately, we'll never know.

Mushers victorious despite losing setter

Top-seeded Camas Co. defeats Richfield

Times-News

No starting setter? No problem.

The top-seeded Camas County Mushers volleyball team didn't let the loss of setter Erica Phantharasen derail its match, defeating Richfield 25-13, 25-10, 25-21 Wednesday night during the opening round of the Class 1A Division II Northside Conference tournament in Dietrich.

Mushers coach Ben Stroud praised the play of Megan Stampke, who faced the task of stepping in for her injured teammate.

"Megan did an unbelievable job," Stroud said. "She was incredible really. Nothing fancy, but she got the ball to the right people."

Statistics were not available for the match.

The Mushers will enjoy a two-day rest before resuming tournament play. They will face the winner of today's Dietrich-Carey match on Saturday. Win that match, and they will make the championship game, set for later that evening.

DIETRICH 3, MURTAUGH 0

The Blue Devils swept No. 7 Murtaugh 25-20, 25-6, 25-7 for their tournament opener.

Dietrich will meet Carey in today's first match, set for 4 p.m.

"We've got to take care of Carey, and we'll see where we are," said Dietrich coach Traci Perron. "Right now, everyone's playing and hitting well. Hopefully, we're peaking."

The winner gets Camas County Saturday, while the loser is set to face Magic Valley Christian later tonight.

CAREY 3, COMMUNITY SCHOOL 0

No. 3 seed Carey defeated No. 6 Community School 25-15, 25-16, 25-12 in the opening round. The Panthers will face Dietrich in today's opening match.

The winner will take on Camas County on Saturday.

RICHFIELD 3, MVC 1

The Tigers advanced to the late game by opening the tournament with a 25-23, 23-25, 25-16, 25-22 victory over fifth seed Magic Valley Christian.

The Conquerors (8-10) were led in kills by Kristina Reitsma, while Kayla Slusher contributed 14 points. Jordon Edwards assisted nine times and had 19 digs on defense. They will face the loser of Carey-Dietrich in the 7 p.m. match.

Phils earn return trip to World Series

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Powered by Ryan Howard, Jayson Werth and all those other big bats, the Philadelphia Phillies are headed back to the World Series.

Werth hit two home runs, Shane Victorino and Pedro Feliz also connected and the defending champions beat the Los Angeles Dodgers 10-4 in Game 5 on Wednesday night to win their second straight NL pennant.

Brad Lidge closed it out,

Howard was selected NL championship series MVP and manager Charlie Manuel's Phillies became the first team to reach consecutive World Series since the New York Yankees in 2000-01.

"Big games call for big times," Werth said. "Hopefully, we can keep it going. We've got four more games to win."

Now, Jimmy Rollins and crew wait for their next opponent. They'll go for their third World Series title beginning next Wednesday night at New York or Los Angeles. The Yankees lead the Angels 3-1 in the ALCS, which resumes Thursday night at Angel Stadium.

Philadelphia overcame another shaky outing by 2008 NLCS and World Series MVP Cole Hamels.

Meanwhile, slugger Manny Ramirez, manager Joe Torre and the rest of the Dodgers go home after leading the NL with 95 wins in the regular season and sweeping the St. Louis Cardinals in the division series. Los Angeles closed to 9-4 in the eighth, but Ryan Madson escaped a bases-loaded jam by striking out Russell Martin and retiring Casey Blake on a grounder.

After beating Tampa Bay in last year's World Series, the Phillies are trying to become the first repeat champions from the NL since the Cincinnati Reds in 1975-76. The Yankees were the last team to win consecutive titles when they captured three in a row from 1998-2000.

Philadelphia Phillies catcher Carlos Ruiz leaps into the arms of Brad Lidge after the Phillies beat the Los Angeles Dodgers 10-4 to win Game 5 of the National League Championship Series Wednesday in Philadelphia.

TCU takes aim at BSU in BCS race

By Ralph D. Russo
Associated Press writer

Boise State better watch its back. TCU is trying to bust into the BCS, too.

The sixth-ranked Broncos have drawn the most attention of the teams from the non-automatic BCS qualifying conferences this season. Boise State started the season with a convincing victory against Oregon and has spent the last five weeks ranked in the top 10.

When the first BCS standings arrived Sunday, Boise State was fourth.

TCU has taken a slow climb, starting the season ranked No. 17 in the AP poll and rising to No. 10. The Horned Frogs were eighth in the BCS standings and can make the case for a jump Saturday with a victory at No. 16 BYU.

"No thoughts," TCU coach Gary Patterson said when asked about the BCS standings. "We're in the top 10. We're playing BYU. If we don't win this ballgame, it doesn't make any difference anyway."

True, but the race within the BCS chase has become fascinating stuff.

While there is already percolating debate about whether Boise State has a chance to play for the national title, the better question might be: Will the Broncos of the Western Athletic Conference, even if they go undefeated, get shut out of the BCS for a second consecutive season in favor of the Mountain West Conference champion.

The Horned Frogs haven't beaten any one team as good as Oregon so far, but they do have road victories against Clemson and Virginia.

The conventional wisdom is the MWC is stronger than the WAC, so if TCU can navigate that league without a loss it will trump Boise State's unbeaten record.

While the WAC can't match the MWC's top three of BYU, Utah and TCU — Fresno State and Idaho behind Boise State — the Mountain West seems to have more soft spots than last year.

New Mexico is winless. San Diego State looks as bad as usual. UNLV and Colorado State, both expected to make a run at bowl-eligibility, are under .500. Wyoming hasn't beaten an FBS team with a winning record.

The two leagues have faced off in 10 games this season and the MWC is 6-4. If computer rankings are your thing, the Sagarin ratings have the Mountain West seventh among the major football conferences and the WAC eighth.

TCU also handed Boise State its only loss last season in the Poinsettia Bowl. There was no room for the Broncos in the BCS because unbeaten Utah earned an automatic bid.

And if TCU runs the table this season, there might not be a spot for Boise State again.

So if you're a Boise State fan, you best be a BYU backer this week.

ISU men picked third in Big Sky

For the Times-News

The Idaho State men's basketball team was tabbed third in the Big Sky Conference preseason coaches Poll, garnering one first place vote.

The media poll picked the Bengals fourth.

Weber State, which went 14-2, won the regular-season title and advanced to the NIT last year, was first in both polls. Montana was picked second (coaches) and third (media), with Portland State second (media) and fourth (coaches).

BIG SKY MEN'S BASKETBALL POLLS

Coaches		Media
Team (1st-place)		Team (1st-place)
1. Weber State (4)	60	1. Weber State (23)	251
2. Montana (3)	57	2. Portland State (3)	202
3. Idaho State (1)	47	3. Montana (2)	194
4. Portland State (1)	44	4. Idaho State	157
5. Montana State	38	5. Montana State	134
6. Northern Colorado	31	6. Northern Colorado	119
7. Northern Arizona	22	7. Northern Arizona	87
8. Eastern Washington	17	8. Eastern Washington	73
9. Sacramento State	8	9. Sacramento State	36

"It's nice to be recognized by both the coaches and the media as one of the top teams in the league," said

ISU coach Joe O'Brien. "However, preseason polls don't carry much weight. What we do in January, February and March will define this team and our program."

Idaho State returns seven seniors, and is led by All-Big Sky guard Amorrow Morgan.

Three-year veterans Austin Kilpatrick, Donnie Carson and Demetrius Monroe, join two-year let-terman Chron Tatum on the roster.

The Bengals open the season at Nov. 13 at Iowa State. They host exhibition games Nov. 3 (UC-Colorado Springs) and Nov. 9 (Rocky Mountain).

Crabtree gears up for NFL debut

SANTA CLARA, Calif. — The San Francisco 49ers ran interference for Michael Crabtree on Wednesday.

Crabtree grabbed the playbook from his locker and took off to get to work before San Francisco's afternoon practice. The team wants its rookie wide receiver and top draft pick to get all his football studying done before doing any interviews about his highly anticipated NFL debut Sunday at Houston in his home state.

Crabtree, who is set to address the media Thursday, will play a lot against the Texans — and perhaps even start. It sure sounds like coach Mike Singletary is leaning that way. Singletary said it tells a lot that Crabtree is even being considered to be among the top 11 in his first game.

"It shows he hasn't been sitting around on the couch looking at television. He's been working," Singletary said. "When you have a guy like that, you don't have to be a Phi Beta Kappa to figure it out. If the guy can play, if he can make plays, put him on the field, give him a chance, let's see what he can do. Or I could be stubborn, I could be a knucklehead and say, 'You know what, he wasn't here, Josh (Morgan) is going to start or this guy's going to start and that's the way it's going to be.' I want to be fair to the team. The team comes first and the team wants to win."

Singletary has long been a Crabtree supporter, even through the 10th overall pick's prolonged contract impasse.

Singletary and everybody else is eager to see what kind of impact the former Texas

AP photo
San Francisco 49ers wide receiver Michael Crabtree, pictured with head coach Mike Singletary, could start at receiver when he makes his NFL debut on Sunday against the Houston Texas in Houston.

Tech star can make after missing all of spring work and training camp. He finally signed a six-year deal with $17 million guaranteed on Oct. 7.

The 22-year-old Crabtree spent last week during the Niners' bye working out on the field and watching film while many of his teammates went home for a quick break.

SWEEP BY SWINE FLU? NFL POLICY GIVES TEAMS RELIEF

NEW YORK — Some swine flu math: A dozen Cleveland Browns missed practice Wednesday with flulike symptoms, which is more than a quarter of the 45-player roster each team is allowed to use for games.

It's not yet known whether these players have the H1N1 virus, but the NFL is already prepared for how quickly that illness can spread. NFL spokesman Greg Aiello said teams received a memo from commissioner Roger Goodell on Oct. 2 about the new policy, under which they can receive roster exemptions if enough players contract swine flu.

Other leagues, though, have not instituted similar provisions. The NBA, NHL and Major League Baseball said Wednesday they do not currently have policies to address the possibility of a team being hit hard by swine flu.

If an NFL team has at least six players unable to play because of the illness, it can promote players from the practice squad to replace them. A club can receive a maximum of eight of these roster exemptions.

NFL spokesman Randall Liu said the league tries to anticipate potential problems.

"This policy, which was discussed with the competition committee, was implemented in the event an outbreak of H1N1 materially affected a club's roster," he said. "As with all issues of player health and safety, medical considerations must and will have priority over competitive concerns."

BENSON BELIEVES BEARS TRIED TO BLACKBALL HIM

LAKE FOREST, Ill. — Cedric Benson believes the Chicago Bears did all they could to prevent him from signing with another team.

Released in June 2008 after two alcohol-related arrests, Benson will come face to face with his former team when the Cincinnati Bengals host the Bears on Sunday. Although he insisted he's not out for revenge and won't try to send a message, Benson clearly has some bad feelings for the Bears.

"I heard all the rumors that were said coming out of Chicago," Benson said. "Even the Bengals told me all the things, that they would call and inquire about me and get nothing but negative things. Just that I didn't work hard, that I was I guess a prima donna or I didn't work hard on the field, just wasn't focused, just anything negative that they could say, it was said. I'm sure that contributed largely to me not getting picked up right away."

Hatch urges Obama to investigate BCS

WASHINGTON — A senator whose undefeated home state school was bypassed for the college football national championship last season urged President Obama on Wednesday to ask the Justice Department to investigate the Bowl Championship Series, citing Obama's own concerns about the way the top team is crowned in building a case for action.

"Mr. President, as you have publicly stated on multiple occasions, the BCS system is in dire need of reform," Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, said in a 10-page letter to Obama calling for an antitrust probe of the BCS. The Associated Press obtained a copy of the letter.

Shortly after his election last year, Obama said he was going to "to throw my weight around a little bit" to nudge college football toward a playoff system.

Obama and Hatch are among the many critics of how the BCS — a complex system of computer rankings and polls that often draws criticism — determines its national champion.

Hatch, who held a hearing on the BCS in July, told Obama that a "strong case" can be made that the BCS violates antitrust laws.

Under the BCS system, some athletic conferences get automatic bids to participate in top-tier bowl games while others don't, and the automatic bid conferences also get far more of the revenue. Hatch's home state school, the University of Utah, is from the Mountain West Conference, which does not get an automatic bid. The school qualified for a bid last season but was bypassed for the national championship despite going undefeated.

The system "has been designed to limit the number of teams from non-privileged conferences that will play in BCS games," Hatch wrote.

SEC SUSPENDS FLORIDA-ARKANSAS CREW

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. — The Southeastern Conference has suspended officials from last weekend's Arkansas-Florida game after the crew was involved in its second controversial call of the year.

Referee Marc Curies' crew called a personal foul on Arkansas defensive lineman Malcolm Sheppard in the fourth quarter as the Gators were rallying for a 23-20 victory. The league said there was no video evidence to support the call.

The same group of officials called the LSU-Georgia game earlier this month, which included a late unsportsmanlike conduct penalty the league said shouldn't have been called.

"A series of calls that have occurred during the last several weeks have not been to the standard that we expect from our officiating crews," SEC commissioner Mike Slive said Wednesday. "I believe our officiating program is the best in the country. However, there are times when these actions must be taken."

SEC associate commissioner Charles Bloom said this is the first time the league has publicly suspended a football crew like this.

The SEC says the crew will be removed from its next scheduled assignment Oct. 31 and will not be assigned to officiate as a crew until Nov. 14.

HEISMAN WINNER BRADFORD'S DECISION ON HOLD

NORMAN, Okla. — Just when it seemed as if Heisman Trophy winner Sam Bradford was ready to make a decision about his future, the injured Oklahoma quarterback decided he needed more time to think about it.

Bradford called off a news conference scheduled for Wednesday night. Coach Bob Stoops said Bradford needed to gather more information before choosing what to do about his injured right, throwing shoulder.

"He just wasn't ready to fully answer everything that'll want to be asked and for sure what he wants to do just yet, until he has a few more people to visit with," Stoops said after the Sooners' practice. "That's it. I won't say another word about it."

Bradford was coming off of one of the most prolific passing seasons in NCAA history when he opted to come back for his junior year instead of entering the NFL draft this year. He was considered a top quarterback prospect after throwing for 4,720 yards and 50 touchdowns last season.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR, Bureau of Land Management

Notice of Realty Action – Proposed Disposal of Public Land; and Notice of Intent to Prepare a Management Framework Plan (MFP) Amendment and Associated Environmental Impact Statement for the Shoshone Field Office, Idaho

SUMMARY: In accordance with the Federal Land Policy and Management Act (FLPMA) (43 U.S.C. 1701), as amended; the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 (NEPA) (42 U.S.C. 4321), as amended; and the Council on Environmental Quality (CEQ) regulations (40 CFR parts 1500-1508) the Department of Interior, Bureau of Land Management (BLM), in cooperation with the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) intends to prepare an environmental impact statement (EIS), and a MFP amendment, to consider the siting and construction of a replacement airport for the Friedman Memorial Airport (SUN). The EIS would include consideration of the potential disposal of public land in Blaine County, Idaho. The sponsor of the project, Friedman Memorial Airport Authority (Airport Authority), has applied to the FAA to construct and operate a replacement airport in Blaine County, Idaho. The FAA published a Notice of Intent to Prepare an EIS for a Replacement Airport near Hailey, Idaho in the Federal Register on November 1, 2007 (Vol. 72, No. 211, page 61945) in response to the Airport Authority's application. As a result of initial studies by FAA the Airport Authority has now submitted a proposal to the BLM to acquire approximately 2480 acres of public land by either sale or land exchange, including the State of Idaho, if the alternative site located wholly on public land in conjunction with the aforementioned project is determined by the FAA to be the preferred location for the replacement airport. The FAA has been identified as the lead agency with BLM cooperating. The EIS will analyze the potential environmental impacts of the construction and operation of a commercial aviation airport facility, associated utility and access rights-of-way, and protection easement interests; as well as, the consideration of the disposal of a parcel of public land totaling 2480 acres, either by sale at no less than the appraised fair market value or by land exchange. Disposal of this parcel would require amendment of the Bennett Hills/Timmerman Hills Management Framework Plan (MFP) prior to sale. A Notice of Realty Action associated to the aforementioned actions and published in the Federal Register segregated the following public lands in Blaine County, Idaho: Boise Meridian, T. 2 S., R. 18 E., Section 25: Entire Section; Sec. 26: Entire Section; Sec. 27: Entire Section; Sec. 34: N½N½; and Sec. 35: N½NW, E½ containing 2480 acres. Conveyance of the identified public land will be subject to valid existing rights and encumbrances of record, including but not limited to, rights-of-way for roads and public utilities. Conveyance of any mineral interests pursuant to Section 209 of the FLPMA will be analyzed during processing of the proposed disposal. Until completion of the sale, the BLM is no longer accepting land use applications affecting the identified public land, except applications for the amendment of previously-filed right-of-way applications or existing authorizations to increase the term of the grants in accordance with 43 CFR 2807.15 and 2896.15. The segregative effect will terminate upon issuance of a patent, publication in the Federal Register of a termination of the segregation, or 2 years after the associated Notice of Realty Action was first published in the Federal Register, unless extended by the BLM State Director in accordance with 43 CFR 2711.1-2(d) prior to the termination date.

COMMENTS: During the initial stages of project development the FAA and county conducted several public meetings. The results of those meetings will be incorporated into the BLM plan amendment process and additional public involvement will occur through the submission of written comments. While additional public meetings are not identified at this point, if additional meetings are scheduled a notice in the local newspapers will announce the date and time at least 15 days prior to any public meeting. Interested parties and the general public may submit in writing any comments, concerning the BLS's MFP amendment or the public land being considered for disposal, including notification of any encumbrances or other claims relating to the identified land, to Ms. Cayla Morgan with a copy sent to Ms. Lori A. Armstrong at the addresses listed below. In order to ensure consideration in the environmental analysis of the project, it would be most helpful if comments could be received by April 1, 2009. Comments must be in writing and should be postmarked or delivered by April 1, 2009. Comments transmitted via e-mail will not be accepted. Comments, including names and street addresses of respondents, will be available for public review at the BLM Shoshone Field Office during regular business hours, except holidays. Individual respondents may request confidentiality. Before including your address, phone number, e-mail address, or other personal identifying information in your comment, you should be aware that your entire comment, including your personal identifying information may be made publicly available at any time. While you can ask us in your comment to withhold your personal identifying information from public review, we cannot guarantee that we will be able to do so. If you wish to have your name or address withheld from public disclosure under the Freedom of Information Act, you must state this prominently at the beginning of your comments. Any determination by the FAA or BLM to release or withhold the names and/or addresses of those who comment will be made on a case-by-case basis. Such requests will be honored to the extent allowed by law. The FAA and BLM will make available for public review, in their entirety, all comments submitted by businesses or organizations, including comments by individuals in their capacity as an official or representative of a business or organization.

ADDRESSES: Since FAA is the lead agency for the EIS process all comments or requests for information regarding the proposed project should be addressed to Ms. Cayla Morgan, Federal Aviation Administration, Seattle Airports District Office, 1601 Lind Avenue, S.W. Suite 250, Renton, Washington 98057-3356, or telephone (425) 227-2653 with a copy sent to Ms. Lori A. Armstrong, Field Manager, Bureau of Land Management, 400 West F. Street, Shoshone, Idaho 83352.

NOTICE OF MITIGATION PLAN

Notice is hereby given that on October 6, 2009, the Idaho Ground Water Appropriators, Inc. ("IGWA"), c/o Randall C. Budge or Candice McHugh, Racine Olson Nye Budge & Bailey, 101 S. Capitol Blvd., Suite 208, Boise, ID 83702, submitted IGWA's Mitigation Plan for Conversions, Dry-Ups and Recharge ("plan or mitigation plan") to the Department of Water Resources ("Department").

The Department will process this plan pursuant to the Department's Conjunctive Management Rules (IDAPA 37, Title 03, Chapter 11).

The members of IGWA hold numerous ground water rights for domestic, municipal, commercial and industrial uses, and for irrigation in excess of 220,000 acres within Southern Idaho. Certain of these ground water rights have priority dates junior to the priority dates of certain water rights from spring sources that discharge to various reaches of the Snake River. The ground water and the springs are interconnected sources of water.

IGWA has proposed the mitigation plan to mitigate injury to earlier priority surface water rights that may result from depletions under later priority ground water rights. Pursuant to this plan, IGWA proposes to mitigate material injury by converting ground water irrigated acres to surface water; voluntarily drying up ground water irrigated acres through programs such as the Conservation Reserve Enhancement Program and the Agricultural Water Enhancement Program; and by early or late season recharge through canal conveyance systems or recharge sites.

The plan is intended to seek advanced approval of these mitigation activities to mitigate for existing or future water calls.

The Department has not determined the adequacy of the proposed plan. A complete copy of the proposed plan is available for review at either the Department's State Office in Boise, the Department's Regional Office in Twin Falls, or may be viewed online at the following website along with other related documents:

http://www.idwr.idaho.gov/News/WaterCalls/1000Spring%20Users%20Calls/ESPA_MitPlan.htm

Any protest against approval of the plan must be filed with the Department, together with a protest fee of $25.00 on or before November 9, 2009. The protest must include a certificate of service showing that a copy of the protest has been mailed to IGWA's counsel.

NOTIFICATION

The Department of the Navy has prepared an Addendum to an Environmental Assessment of potential environmental impacts associated with use of a more efficient shipping container system to load and transport spent nuclear fuel removed from U.S. Navy nuclearpowered aircraft carriers. The original Environmental Assessment evaluated the potential impacts at Northrop Grumman Shipbuilding - Newport News (formerly Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Company) in Virginia, transportation of the shipping containers from the shipyard to the Naval Reactors Facility at the Idaho National Laboratory in Idaho, and facilities modifications and operations at the Naval Reactors Facility. The Addendum to the Environmental Assessment evaluates the environmental impact of construction of a Cask Shipping and Receiving Facility at the Naval Reactors Facility to support the loading and unloading of shipping containers. The previous Environmental Assessment evaluated modification of an existing facility.

The primary need for the new shipping container system, evaluated in the original Environmental Assessment, and for the construction of the facility, evaluated in the Addendum to the Environmental Assessment, is for increased efficiency of shipyard operations in order to improve support of the defueling and refueling schedules of the U.S. Navy fleet.

The Department of the Navy is issuing a revised Finding of No Significant Impact to account for the construction of a Cask Shipping and Receiving Facility as part of the original Finding of No Significant Impact associated with the original Environmental Assessment issued on November 15, 2007.

A copy of the Addendum to the Environmental Assessment and the revised Finding of No Significant Impact are available for public review at the <http://www.snfshippingcontainer.us> web site.

IF OCTOBER 22 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: The world will become your virtual oyster after the end of January. In December avoid making key changes or entering into important agreements, as your judgment is slightly off center and you might bite off more than you can chew. What appears to be a golden opportunity may have too many strings attached. Your popularity is at a high point in April, so it is a good time to meet a significant romantic partner, begin a new job or to start any project dependent upon the public's attention. Any promises or commitments made next May are likely to alter your life in a positive way.

HOROSCOPE

Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You may be in a rush to play the rebel. If you are truthful with yourself you will realize that you have little cause.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Pass up invitations to join a new book club or other group because you might be made to feel like a bull in a china shop.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Get busy with creative projects, rearrange closets, work out with the rowing machine or find other ways to utilize restless energy.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Mechanical items such as phones, copiers or fax machines might briefly misbehave. Keep your cool under fire; everything will be OK.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Some people may have secrets that they aren't ready to reveal. Groups may not accept you with open arms under these stars.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You may run into more than one person who will challenge you to cross over an imaginary line drawn in the sand.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Your partner may have some creative project to occupy his or her mind. Try to stick to one-on-one encounters today.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 22): Be a wise old owl. Plan to reevaluate significant projects, agreements, and ideas and avoid taking impulsive action right now.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You may be in high spirits when the rest of the world is sober or gloomy. Don't force your ideas, beliefs or moods on others.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): There may be numerous demands on your time and your patience. You have the ability to meet these challenges with good grace.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Everyone has their wants and needs and may be adamant about getting them. Find a quiet place to call your own.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You are always welcome to have an opinion, but avoid being confrontational, lest you offend someone with your outspoken views.

(Answers tomorrow)

Today is Thursday, Oct. 22, the 295th day of 2009. There are 70 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:

On Oct. 22, 1962, President John F. Kennedy announced a quarantine of all offensive military equipment shipped to Cuba, following the discovery of Soviet-built missile bases on the island.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:

In 1746, Princeton University was first chartered as the College of New Jersey.

In 1797, French balloonist Andre-Jacques Garnerin made the first parachute descent, landing safely from a height of about 3,000 feet over Paris.

In 1836, Sam Houston was inaugurated as the first constitutionally elected president of the Republic of Texas.

In 1883, the original Metropolitan Opera House in New York held its grand opening with a performance of Gounod's "Faust."

In 1928, Republican presidential nominee Herbert Hoover spoke of the "American system of rugged individualism" in a speech at New York's Madison Square Garden.

In 1934, bank robber Charles "Pretty Boy" Floyd was shot to death by federal agents at a farm in East Liverpool, Ohio.

In 1968, Apollo 7 returned safely from Earth orbit, splashing down in the Atlantic Ocean.

In 1979, the U.S. government allowed the deposed Shah of Iran to travel to New York for medical treatment — a decision that precipitated the Iran hostage crisis.

In 1981, the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization was decertified by the federal government for its strike the previous August.

In 1986, President Ronald Reagan signed into law sweeping tax-overhaul legislation.

Ten years ago: Five of the seven Republican presidential hopefuls met in New Hampshire for their first debate of the 2000 nomination race, with front-runner George W. Bush notably absent. Former Vichy official Maurice Papon was expelled from Switzerland and sent back to France.

Five years ago: In a wrenching videotaped statement, kidnapped aid worker Margaret Hassan begged Britain to help save her by withdrawing its troops from Iraq, saying these "might be my last hours." (Hassan was apparently killed by her captors a month later.) President George W. Bush signed a corporate tax overhaul to close loopholes and provide $136 billion in new tax breaks for businesses, farmers and others.

One year ago: Wall Street tumbled again as investors worried that the global economy was poised to weaken. The major indexes fell more than 4 percent, including the Dow Jones industrial average, which finished with a loss of 514 points. The fishing vessel Katmai sank in the Bering Sea off Alaska's Aleutian Islands, killing seven crewmen; four survived. India

THE ACES ON BRIDGE® Bobby Wolff

"And time remembered is grief forgotten, And frosts are slain and flowers begotten."
 — Algernon Swinburne

There may be only one major team-event left that still uses aggregate scoring and not IMP scoring. The Hubert Phillips Bowl in England is a mixed pivot knock-out teams competition. Here is a deal from a recent final of this tournament, where both tables had done well to sacrifice in six spades over the cold six diamonds.

At one table West led the club king and a second club. East won the ace, laid down the diamond king (on which West signaled to show five diamonds), then continued with a third club, which South ruffed high. Declarer drew the outstanding trump, after which she knew that East could not hold more than two hearts. So South cashed the heart ace, ruffed a diamond back to hand, and led a heart. When West played low, South put up the queen, knowing that if East won with the king, he would have to give a ruff and discard. That held the loss on the board to 500 points.

In the other room, after a diamond lead to the king, East continued with ace and another club. West won and switched to a heart. With the club queen established for a discard, declarer could have guaranteed getting out for 500 by rising with the ace, but he got greedy and played the queen. East won the king and played a third round of clubs, killing the discard, so declarer had to lose another heart at the end. That meant a penalty of 800 and a swing of 300 aggregate points.

ANSWER: You have the perfect shape and values (albeit a minimum in both respects) with which to make a takeout double. You cannot guarantee that you will reach a good spot, nor can you be sure that pushing your opponents up a level will generate a good result for you. But you can be sure that failure to try in situations like this will make you an easy opponent to play against.
