“MY TEAM IS HURTING.”

— Julie Wright-Leggett, CSI cheer coach, on the death of cheerleader Sean Carey

MEAGAN THOMPSON/Times-News

College of Southern Idaho cheer coach Julie Wright-Leggett wipes tears from Dustyn Walker's face as they meet in the lobby of the gymnasium Thursday afternoon on the campus in Twin Falls. Walker, the college's cheer captain, was hanging out with teammate Sean Carey on Wednesday night before Carey died in a car accident on his way home. 'We're not just a cheer squad. We're not just friends, you know. We're a family,' Walker said.

Police: Sean Carey likely fell asleep at wheel

By Andrea Jackson Times-News writer

Teammate Sean Carey, 19, died Wednesday night after rolling his Jeep Wrangler along Interstate 84 in Jerome.

Carey was a freshman at CSI and before college cheered at Jerome High School, said Julie Wright-Leggett, his coach since April.

“Cheerleading was his life, he was just a really great kid,” Wright-Leggett said Thursday. “My team is hurting.”

CSI's Health Sciences and Human Services building

- $21 million to construct
- 72,400 square-foot in size
- Will have eight classrooms, three lecture halls, program and computer labs, six study rooms, a common area and 26 faculty offices
- Expected to be completed in December and open to students in January for the spring semester

A BUILDING FOR THE FUTURE

Construction continues Thursday on the College of Southern Idaho's new Health Sciences and Human Services building in Twin Falls. The facility has plenty of windows to maximize the use of natural light and give the building a transparent feeling.

By Damon Hunzeker Times-News writer

If you're the kind of student who takes classes that require sinks and mannequins with flu symptoms, you'll probably be in a new building next semester.

The College of Southern Idaho's Health Sciences and Human Services building — a $21 million structure north of the main campus — is expected to be ready for classes beginning in January. Mark Sugden, instructional dean of the department, took about 10 local officials — people who don't normally wear hard hats — on a tour of the facility Thursday afternoon as construction crews hammered and drilled toward the December completion date.

The facility will provide some of the most advanced technology available for students pursuing careers in various aspects of the health care industry, including paramedics, registered nurses, dental assistants and surgical technologists.

“All of our programs are designed to put people in the workplace ... They're employable when they're done with our program,” Sugden said.

The building may be used as a venue for conferences, as well as classes in other disciplines such as English and math, but most of the rooms will be used for technical work that requires “laboratories and fancy equipment,” Sugden said.

Growth, water bond highlight Kimberly City Council race

By Nate Poppino Times-News writer

KIMBERLY — All five candidates vying for two four-year Kimberly City Council seats said they see growth and infrastructure issues as the main problems facing the town.

Incumbents George Plew and Warren Wade face challengers Jesse Harrell, Brandon Hoobler and Burke Richman. A sixth candidate, Van Parker, withdrew last week. Ked Wills, appointed in January to replace Chris Glenn, is opposed for a two-year seat.

Council members receive $500 a month.

Harrell, 63, served in the U.S. Navy and worked for Amalgamated Sugar Co. before retiring two years ago. A 23-year resident of Kimberly, he's driven by what he sees as a town losing its small-town feel and a council that spends money unwisely. All growth needs to be stopped until

Sun Valley Co. tests new gondola

By Karen Bossick Times-News correspondent

SUN VALLEY— A bevy of garbage cans are lined up outside River Run Lodge, waiting to take a ride on Sun Valley Co.'s new gondola.

The garbage cans will be filled with water and loaded onto the gondola's 56 new cabs on Monday, becoming the first cargo moved up Bald Mountain by the resort's multimillion-dollar ski lift.

Human passengers can take a free ride on the new gondola on Nov. 21, said Sun Valley Co. Marketing Director Jack Sibbach.

“We'll give free rides for a couple hours. We're still working out the exact time and details,” he said.

Jazz fans attending Sun Valley's Swing 'n Dixie Jazz Jamboree last weekend had a front-row seat to watch Doppelmayr workers unload the cabs from the back of a semitrailer and affix them to the gondola's track.

Since then workers have been testing brakes and other facets as they've run the cabins along 6,200 feet of cable from River Run Lodge to the Roundhouse Restaurant.

Sun Valley Co. officials hope they can press the gondola into full operation by Thanksgiving Day, if not earlier. They plan to begin testing snow guns on Bald Mountain today and have already begun testing them on Dollar Mountain.

Wally Huffman, Sun Valley Co. director of resort planning, said the new gondola will change the way people ski on the mountain.

“It will get people to Seattle Ridge that much quicker,” he said, referring to Bald Mountain's intermediate ski area.

MORNING BRIEFING

Pat's Picks

Pat Marcantonio

• Halloween is one of my favorite holidays because grownups can get scared like kids. And there are plenty of ways to find a good fright. Mitchell Stoker's straw maze is open from 6 p.m. to midnight, on Idaho Highway 77 and 500 South, Burley. Cost starts at $5 for adults. The Garden Cents Haunted, a straw maze by day and a haunted maze at night, runs from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. and 7 p.m. to midnight, south of Rupert on Idaho Highway 24. Admission starts at $5.

• For more frights in the night, the Twin Falls and Jerome Optimist clubs haunted house runs from 6:30 to 10:30 p.m. in the former Kruzer's building at 121 Fourth Ave. S., Twin Falls. Admission starts at $7.50 for ages 10 and older. It benefits the Optimist clubs' Coats for Kids program.

• For a different kind of entertainment, 16 Second Stare plays at 8 p.m. at the Diamondz Bar and Grill, 220 W. Main St., Jerome. The Tampa Bay-based band has toured with Motley Crue. Tickets are $5.

Kimberly

with the citizens," said Harrell, the only candidate who said he fully supported last winter's attempt to recall two council members and the mayor.

Hoobler, a case manager for Aflac, spent a bit of his childhood in Kimberly and returned after going to college in Boise. The 28-year-old was introduced to city politics while bringing issues from his subdivision before the council. That's given him a feel for the issues, he said, adding he was nudged to run by a sitting council member.

He also believes some council members have served long enough that the work's just become another job for them.

"It seems like they would really benefit from an outsider's input a little bit," Hoobler said.

Richman, 52, has lived in Kimberly for 14 years and works as a personal financial advisor in Twin Falls with a master's in business administration. He served on the Kimberly School Board for five years — and said he thinks his financial and management expertise can help the council.

Among Richman's priorities is helping new businesses come in and bringing more people to actually see them. He's also concerned about safety issues around town, including Red Cap Corner, a dangerous intersection that he said needs a stoplight.

Wade, 70, managed hotels and served as a volunteer EMT in Oregon before retiring to Kimberly. First elected in 2005, he said he's eager to continue tackling the town's challenges, including bringing in more businesses to share the tax burden. He also wants to figure out how and where to build a new city hall, citing massive problems with the current building — a rafter once fell on the police chief's desk, he said.

Wade rejected assertions that the council doesn't care about residents, recalling "agonizing" over the water-rate issue late at night. He would love to have more citizen input, he said, but bringing in a new council member "would be like teaching a baby to walk."

"It takes three to four years to really know what the city's about," he said.

Plew, one of the targets of the recall and a councilman since 1996, is concerned about how last winter's events might affect his campaign. But the 52-year-old electrical salesman is quick to defend his and his fellow council members' decisions over the last couple of years. He also argued that citizens are better-informed through newsletters, agendas and the media than they were a few years ago, and can ask any questions of the council.

"We have nothing to hide," he said.

Along with the city-hall building and sewer issues, Plew's top priority is getting the water bond passed. Voters on Election Day will decide whether to take the Idaho Department of Environmental Quality up on an offered $6.6 million loan, with $1 million immediately forgiven and 1 percent interest for the rest.

Wade and Richman also support the offer but Harrell won't be voting for it. Hoobler said he's concerned that city officials couldn't fully explain the loan or a recent 4.99 percent rate hike for some time after they were announced.

Two of the candidates appear to have had money issues. The Marion County Clerk's Office in Oregon confirmed it recorded a tax lien last year for Wade to recoup about $1,975 owed in personal income taxes, a sum that still has not been paid. Wade told the Times-News he had had some financial difficulties before moving to Idaho from Oregon, but had been told by Oregon officials they would put the debt on the back burner until he was in better condition.

Meanwhile, 5th District court records show Harrell was sued by Arrow Financial Services in 2004 to recover nearly $16,000, resulting in an order to have his wages garnished. He told the Times-News the issue involved bills over storm windows improperly installed by a company that went bankrupt, and he took care of the matter as soon as he got the court notice.

Cheerleader

Carey likely drifted into the median while driving a 10-year-old SUV. He overcorrected and then rolled, according to ISP.

Teammate Justin Brunk, 19, says he heard Carey hung out with other cheerleaders before the crash. Wright-Leggett got the bad news in a phone call before the start of Thursday morning's practice, she said.

The team is like a family, according to its members.

"We're going to miss him so much," said Brunk.

In his first year on the squad, Carey kept busy. A student, Carey also worked a night shift at a local big-box store and practiced cheer for at least 10 hours a week, said Wright-Leggett.

"Sean had been working just horrible hours," Brunk said.

Wright-Leggett had spoken with Carey about practicing on enough sleep, she said.

State police are still investigating Carey's crash and say drivers should "pull over at a safe location and rest" if they become tired.

There are only nine male cheerleaders now on CSI's squad. Nine women also cheer. Wright-Leggett has cancelled practice at least until Tuesday for emotional reasons, she said. "We will go to the funeral as a team."

Carey's funeral arrangements have not yet been announced, but cheerleaders plan to dedicate a cheer to Carey and his family at an upcoming basketball game, said Wright-Leggett.

"God used Sean in a great way, because Sean showed that you are who you are," said Brunk, who visited with his pastor for four hours after hearing the news Thursday. "He brought love, passion and friendliness."

Wright-Leggett said Casey could have done her job one day. "I know he would have been a really great coach."

The college is offering counseling to the cheerleaders and "joins others in extending their sorrow and sympathy to the family and close friends," said CSI spokesman Doug Maughan, in an e-mail Thursday.

labs will include $50,000 mannequins that can be programmed to replicate symptoms of various illnesses and even heart attacks.

"If students do the wrong thing, the mannequin can die," Sugden said. "This is something that wasn't available five years ago. In the past, EMT graduates just had to hope they had enough experience when treating a real person."

The building, which was engineered with potential expansion in mind, features a commons area, a patio on the second floor and natural lighting from large windows nearly everywhere.

"We're trying to encourage students to get outside and we wanted this transparency in order to make education more accessible," Sugden said. "People outside will be able to observe what's happening and say, 'Hey, maybe I'd like to do that.'" facilities, the building has showers available and plumbing in every room.

Unlike most classroom

"Most of our programs require access to a sink," Sugden said.

Gondola

Originally, the gondola was meant to allow diners access to the historic Roundhouse Restaurant for evening dinners.

That idea has had to be put on hold for the time being because the restaurant does not meet Americans with Disabilities Act requirements. Sibbach said it's up to Sun Valley Co. owners Earl and Carol Holding to decide when the modifications necessary to make the restaurant ADA compliant will be made.

"But I am expecting to see a lot more people eating lunch at the Roundhouse this year because of the gondola," he said.

Gondola cabs will travel 2,000 vertical feet in eight minutes — four minutes less than it took to ride the Lower River Run and Exhibition chairlifts to the Roundhouse. "I think skiers will like the gondola," said Juerg Stauffacher, a Sun Valley Co. employee who worked on the gondola this summer. "It's beautiful and it's something we've needed for a while."

Veterans

Engle Squadron. Mini-Cassia Veterans Service Officer Dick Dalton sat in the office Thursday, which was quite a bit colder than the 58 degree temperature outside.

"I'll stay here as long as I can," Dalton said about continuing to provide veterans services from the office.

Mini-Cassia Veterans Advisory Board Chairman Curtis Russell said the office is used by about 6,000 Mini-Cassia veterans who come in to get information on benefits and coordinate rides to the veterans hospital.

Russell spoke with the Burley City Council Tuesday about the issue and asked the city to turn the gas back on and work to resolve the issue with the two counties the office serves. On Thursday the gas had not been reconnected.

Ron Beedle, veterans advisory board vice chairman, said the office, which is jointly operated by Minidoka and Cassia County and mandated by state law, has been located in the building since October 1996, when it was still owned by the Bureau of Land Management. In 2001 the BLM gave the building to the city.

Beedle said the city was supposed to draft an agreement with the two counties at that time regarding the payment of utilities — but it was never done.

He said the gas bill on average runs $255.49 a month.

"I think the city of Burley has gone out of the way to provide the building for Civil Air Patrol and the VSO," said Councilman Jay Lenkersdorfer on Tuesday. "I don't think it's unreasonable to ask the two counties to help."

Mayor Jon Anderson said Lenkersdorfer was the councilman who questioned the bills during earlier discussions and asked for the gas service to be disconnected.

"We don't want you mad at us," Councilman Steve McGill told Russell. "Maybe we had a poor process but there was no disrespect intended."

Carol Rogers, administrator for the Civil Air Patrol in Idaho, which shares the building with the veterans group, said Thursday she showed up for work on a previous 35-degree day and there was no heat in the building.

"We didn't have a clue it was being shut off," Rogers said.

Rogers said CAP also lets other community groups use the building including the BLM fire crews and volunteer groups like Therapy Pets.

"None of us charge anything for the services we provide the community," Rogers said.

Beedle said the real issue is about the lack of notification by the city.

"Whether you pay rent or are rent-free you are still a tenant," Beedle said.

Haunted downtown

Elizabeth Hibbard moved to Twin Falls from Tremonton, Utah, with her three daughters and her niece, Jessie Frazer, in 1900.

After living on a farm, in 1918 she invested in a three-story house on Eighth Avenue East downtown. My family rented the house from 1969-78.

Neighbors described children's faces appearing in the windows. At night I would sometimes hear a rocking noise from upstairs. We had been told by our landlord not to go into the attic because the floor was unsafe. One night, I decided to take a look. To my amazement, there was a rocking chair, two small cribs, a dresser and a large trunk. Inside the trunk were large photos of dead people — ancestors of the Hibbard family, I assumed — concluding they must be funeral photos because lilies were carved on the picture frames.

I decided to investigate those faces in the window. I found an old Times-News article about Methodist ladies donating money to the Orphans Fund, of which Elizabeth Hibbard had been in charge. Since there was no orphanage in Twin Falls, Elizabeth must have taken unwanted children into her home and raised them.

It seemed there was another someone living there — a little old lady.

One morning I was in the upstairs bathroom, putting on my makeup, when her face appeared in the mirror. I quickly turned around but she had disappeared.

Another morning, I found my 10-year-old son, Mike, sitting in front of a floor-to-ceiling mirror in the hallway. I said, "Mike, it's time to get ready for school." Our son Scott said, "Mom, he's been sitting there since last night." I reached down and shook Mike's shoulder. He finally came back to reality, saying "witch" as he pointed to the mirror. To this day, he claims a gray-haired lady was in the mirror, and she wouldn't let him go.

YOU DON'T SAY

I believe we saw the ghost of Jessie, Elizabeth's niece, a librarian who died in 1952. After Jessie's death, on many occasions before the library opened staff would hear noises in the back of the building. They'd say, "Good morning, Jessie," and the noises would stop. After the library was remodeled, I feel Jessie decided to come back to Eighth Avenue East and live with the Kelleys.

There have supposedly been seven haunted houses between Ninth Avenue East and City Park. One was near the house where we lived. I asked the lady of the house, "Do you have spirits here?" She answered, "Oh, yes, Sharon. I see that old witch fly up and down the stairs two or three times a day."

After 10 years, the Kelleys moved to a house on Shoshone Street South. The owner mentioned that it had in the 1920s been a speakeasy. Downstairs there was a bar and a neon sign on the door that read "Open."

Many evenings I heard what I thought were voices, soft music and the clinking of glasses coming from downstairs. Maybe that is what I heard ... and then again, maybe it wasn't.

Choate faces challenger for Hollister mayor

By Kimberly Williams-Brackett
Times-News correspondent

HOLLISTER — In a town that was just one of four to survive the Salmon Tract, Hollister has a healthy field of candidates ready to tackle the future in the Nov. 3 election.

Incumbent Mayor Dixie Choate faces challenger Tom C. Ginder, while Betty Morris, Rebecca Farrell and Norman Schnitker are vying for two empty positions on the council.

Choate has served two four-year terms for Hollister. She was appointed to the City Council a year and a half before she was elected mayor, replacing Councilman Dennis Albers.

Choate has been an administrative clerk for Jackpot, Nev., for 10 years. She attended college for a year and a half in business.

Living in Fairfield for 30 years, she served on the Camas County Planning and Zoning Commission for four years. "I was also the planning and zoning administrator for three years," said Choate, who is a certified water operator for the Hollister water system.

Choate said it "feels like I'm helping the community. I like the city of Hollister and want to help Hollister grow. ... Some people want it to stay the way it is, but there's a lot of improvement. We've added several events to our community such as Johnny Horizon day, an Easter egg hunt, and the Fourth of July picnic."

Mayoral candidate Ginder has worked for Overhead Door Co. of Twin Falls for 12 years. He has an associate's degree from the College of Southern Idaho in welding technology. Four years ago, he turned down an appointment to the council because he'd "rather run than be appointed."

The 20-year resident wants to serve as mayor because "it's time for a change."

Morris has served on the council for one year after she was appointed to replace Councilman Eric Webb. She previously ran for a council seat and missed it by two votes. She attended CSI for five years and was "three classes from several degrees" in business management and small business management. Morris leased a motel for four years in Weiser and was part of Crime Stoppers.

As a resident for five years, Morris said "I've been attending City Council meetings since 2004. I enjoy the people."

On Oct. 8, 2004, Morris filed for joint Chapter 7 bankruptcy. She also filed for joint and individual Chapter 7 bankruptcy on April 12, 1996.

Candidate Rebecca Farrell is the manager for the Hollister Twin Stop. She attended two years of college in a major "dealing with speech defects." Her background is in finance and management. As a resident for two years, Farrell wants to serve on the council because she "would like to be a little more involved in the community and see what else goes on."

On Jan. 10, 2008, Farrell

filed for joint Chapter 13 bankruptcy.

Schnitker is retired after ranching and raising beef cattle with range rights in the South Hills. He attended two years of college in animal husbandry.

Schnitker was a member of the Magic Valley Cattlemen's Association, the Idaho Cattle Association and the American National Cattlemen's Association.

Although a resident for one year, Schnitker was born and raised on the Salmon Tract. He wants to serve on the council because he "knows a lot of people out here."

On July 24, 2000, Schnitker filed for individual Chapter 7 bankruptcy.

The elected mayor is paid $7,500 a year. Council members are paid $38.85 monthly, which pays for their water and garbage fee, said Choate.

The municipal election will be held from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. Nov. 3 at the Hollister Grange Hall.

Shoshone seeking right of way for water line

By John Plestina
Times-News writer

SHOSHONE — The Shoshone City Council discussed options Tuesday for a needed right of way from Union Pacific for the city's water line extension project.

The water line needs to connect its northern and southern portions near the railroad tracks near the intersection of North Rail and Apple streets. At a previous meeting, the council decided not to bore beneath the tracks, but still needs a right of way to connect to an existing line on railroad property. No decision was made Tuesday.

In other business, all city employees will soon get raises. The council voted to grant percentage pay increases, with the lowest-paid employees getting the largest increases and the highest-paid receiving the smallest.

The council also appointed Velma Porter to the Park Board. She replaces the late Mary Rose.

In another matter, the council awarded a contract for sewer pond testing to Analytical Laboratories, of Boise. That company submitted the lowest bid at $4,500.

The next council meeting has been moved to Nov. 4, due to the Nov. 3 elections.

Blaine Co. splits the difference on sheriff's salary increases

By Ariel Hansen
Times-News writer

HAILEY — In a decision that was compared to those of King Solomon, the Blaine County commissioners Tuesday made a judgment that Commissioner Tom Bowman said makes “everybody equally unhappy.”

As part of the county's contracted law enforcement services for Ketchum, Sheriff Walt Femling said several employees have taken on additional duties and deserve additional compensation. However, the funds for the salary raises were put into the contract as a “management fee” that the commissioners say wasn't made specific.

This fee initially included raises for Femling, six sheriff's office employees and one county payroll clerk. It totaled about $55,000 for the 16-month term of the contract, which began July 1 and ends Sept. 30, 2010.

About $10,000 of that was a raise for Femling, which commissioners quickly rejected because Femling was instrumental in writing the contract with Ketchum. They said the raise could be perceived as ethnically questionable under Idaho statutes that prevent county employees from benefitting personally from a contract they are involved in.

However, they said they would consider a raise for Femling when the contract comes due next year. They also praised the work that Femling and his department have done since the contract launched, work that Ketchum also recently lauded.

“The sheriff is to be applauded for good management, there's no question about that,” said Commissioner Larry Schoen.

Commissioners halted all merit and cost-of-living raises this year for county employees. However, they acknowledged that raises should go with increases in duties, even in tight economic times.

Femling provided commissioners with details of the percentage increase per employee he said resulted from the contract, which varied from about 3 percent to about 11 percent and was independent of rank.

Commissioners chose to go with one of the options presented by County Administrator Derek Voss. They upped the salaries of three sergeants and one lieutenant by 3 percent, a captain by 4 percent and a chief deputy by 5 percent. These will be paid separately out of the contract funds from the rest of the employees' salaries; it has not yet been decided out of which fund overtime costs attributable to Ketchum duties will come for hourly employees.

The salary raise is retroactive to Oct. 1.

Femling said he would like to see any of the administrative fee not used for salaries to go back to Ketchum. Commissioners said they would revisit the issue and left open the possibility of using the remaining money for other contract-related purposes.

Commissioners said they balanced the sheriff's requests for appropriate compensation with the county's need to be fair to employees and fiscally responsible for taxpayers.

They also complained about the timeliness of Femling's request, saying that had it come earlier in the contract process or the budget process, it would have been received differently.

Two vie for Castleford mayor position

By Blair Koch
Times-News correspondent

CASTLEFORD — With three city council seats up for grabs and the same number of residents seeking election, the only race heating up in Castleford is the one for mayor.

Richard Schlund will step down as mayor after he was appointed in March to complete the term of Rita Ruffing after her resignation. Resident Cliff Lockhart and Councilman Jeremy Reeves are seeking the position.

Lockhart, 47, decided to run “to give the people of Castleford a choice on the ballot.”

“Jeremy is a good man and I have nothing against him,” Lockhart said.

“I decided to run because it's good to have options in an election.”

Lockhart said that, if elected, he wants to make City Hall a place where residents can be open about how they want the city to be operated.

“A lot of people are upset with the water rates but those can't be changed. But we can continue cleaning up the town,” Lockhart said.

Lockhart, who is self-employed, would like to create a dialogue with Twin Falls County about bringing a county sheriff's patrol officer back to town.

“I just want to make Castleford a better place to live,” he said.

It remains unclear why Reeves is seeking the mayor seat as he declined an interview with the Times-News.

“I'd rather not be in any story. It's my personal preference,” he said.

Reeves' two-year council seat is being sought by Ryan Blick. Incumbent councilwomen Brenda Milbourn and Meryl Lynn Paxman are running unopposed for their four-year seats.

Castleford pays its mayor and council members $75 a month.

Construction of Filer sewer facility to begin in Dec.

By John E. Swayze
Times-News correspondent

FILER — Construction of Filer's new city sewer treatment facility should be under way by the end of December.

Engineer Rob Hegstrom, with J-U-B Engineers of Twin Falls, reported to Filer City Council members Tuesday that the design phase of a $12.5 million sewer project is nearly complete.

“We sent out the design drawings and specifications (on Oct. 9) for a USDA Rural Development and Department of Environmental Quality 90 percent completion review,” Hegstrom said. “We'll be meeting with the city next week for a final plan review and make any changes you or the agencies might have.”

The plan includes a $7.9 million membrane bioreactor wastewater treatment facility, along with an already approved $4.6 million in upgrades to 7.3 miles of deteriorated sewer collection line.

In other business, the council continued its review of the city's area of impact agreement with Twin Falls County. The goal is to keep pace with future growth by allowing city ordinances and codes to be enforceable within the area of impact.

Part of the impact review also includes reassessing the — Engineer Rob Hegstrom, with J-U-B Engineers

“There is a 200-foot setback requirement between treatment facilities and residential areas, Hegstrom said “That's why we made the determination that the area should remain as is.”

A public hearing on the area of impact agreement and map will be held at 7:30 p.m., Nov. 3, in the Filer City Office on Main Street.

The council also approved an animal shelter agreement with Fairview Veterinary Clinic in Buhl to house animals collected by the city.

“We've had a run on dogs here lately,” Mayor Bob Templeman said. “The owner will be charged $15 per day in boarding fees, paid here at the city office, and any additional costs for vaccinations. In some cases, depending on the individual, a (police) officer will go over to Buhl and bring

MONTANA Wolf, big game hunt to resume Sunday

BILLINGS — Montana will resume its gray wolf hunt in parts of the Absaroka Range this Sunday with the start of the general deer and elk hunting season.

The season is set to last until Nov. 29, and an additional season may be opened if the quota of 75 wolves isn't reached. Twelve have been killed in Montana since an early season in some parts of the state opened Sept. 15, including nine in the Absaroka-Beartooth region.

Carolyn Sime, wolf coordinator for the Montana Department of Fish, Wildlife and Parks, said hunting wolves isn't the same as hunting other animals. Two successful hunters in the Absaroka-Beartooth said they howled to attract their wolves, Sime said.

"It's a different kind of experience," Sime said. "You don't just find a track and follow it."

She expects the final three wolves to be killed in the southern management unit will be taken soon after the general season opens.

IDAHO Show to help dad see daughter's killer die

BOISE — Syndicated news program Inside Edition has offered to pay for an Idaho man to attend next month's execution of his daughter's killer, Beltway sniper John Muhammad.

Marion Lewis said Thursday the 20-year-old program agreed to cover his expenses for a four-day trip to Virginia's Greensville Correctional Center, where Muhammad is due to die Nov. 10. In exchange, he'll do an interview with the show.

Lewis' 25-year-old daughter, Lori Ann Lewis-Rivera, was vacuuming her minivan Oct. 3, 2002, at a Shell station near where she lived in Silver Spring, Md. when Muhammad and his young accomplice, Lee Boyd Malvo, gunned her down.

Muhammad, responsible for killing 10 people in the three-week sniper spree, was sentenced to death for one of the murders in Virginia; Malvo is serving life in prison.

Lewis, an unemployed construction worker who previously had made a plea for financial assistance to cover his trip to the Virginia death chamber, says, "There's never been any question about watching that animal die, for me."

High court vacates ruling against St. Al's

BOISE — The Idaho Supreme Court on Thursday vacated a ruling in a lawsuit that resulted in one of the largest jury verdicts in Idaho history, essentially sending the case between MRI Associates and Saint Alphonsus Regional Medical Center back for a new trial.

The Idaho Supreme Court said that Saint Alphonsus did not violate an express provision of its partnership agreement with MRI Associates when it decided to participate in a competing medical imaging service.

A jury awarded MRI Associates more than $63 million in damages — one of the largest awards in Idaho history. A judge later lowered the damages to just over $36 million, an amount still far larger than seen in other state cases.

MRI Associates and Saint Alphonsus became partners in 1985 in an effort to make magnetic resonance imaging and other diagnostic tests more accessible to the hospital, with the partnership slated to last at least until 2015. For years, doctors with privileges at Saint Alphonsus used the MRI Associates-run MRI Center of Idaho to make scans and radiologists from the Saint Alphonsus Radiology Group to read them.

But in 1998, the radiologists decided to build their own outpatient medical imaging facility under the name Intermountain Medical Imaging and asked Saint Alphonsus to become involved in the project. At one point, all the groups talked about joining, but those negotiations were unsuccessful and in 2004 the hospital told MRI Associates it was leaving the partnership.

Saint Alphonsus sued MRI Associates for its portion of the ownership in MRI

Gov. Otter undergoes another operation

BOISE — Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter plans to spend several days at home recovering from yet another surgery, this one to repair an injury to his left shoulder suffered recently while clearing brush on his property west of Boise.

Otter received only a light general anesthesia during the procedure to repair his rotator cuff on Thursday morning.

At his current injury rate, Otter could leave office with a bevy of new parts and scars.

The longtime jogger and competitive roper had his hip resurfaced in 2008, forcing him to be out of the office for three weeks during the Idaho Legislature; earlier this year, doctors repaired his right shoulder that he hurt in a roping accident in January.

Mom protests library book for young adults

NAMPA — A Caldwell mother says she wants a book shelved in the juvenile section of the Nampa Public Library banned from the stacks.

Shelly Gering says her 4-year-old picked out the book, "How to Get Suspended and Influence People," by Adam Selzer and she was appalled that the cover included an abstract drawing of a nude woman and the back cover contains some profanity.

The book explores the theme of censorship through the eyes of a gifted eighth-grader who is suspended after making an avant-garde sex-education video for a class project.

Library Director Karen Ganske says she's willing to move the book to the teen section — though stories about middle-schoolers are generally kept in the juvenile section — but she won't take the book out of the library. Ganske says the book is edgy and one kids would likely find fun and thought-provoking, not inappropriate.

Gasoline tax fades as solution to highway funding

It's called VMT, and it may be what pays to fill potholes and build roads across Idaho in the future.

VMT is an acronym for Vehicle Miles Traveled — a distance-based user fee that's being floated in the transportation industry as an alternative to the gasoline tax.

And it's certain to get serious discussion by Gov. C.L. “Butch” Otter's task force, which is doing a top-to-bottom review of highway funding due late next year.

That's because the fuel tax, the mainstay of highway funding across America for 60 years, is dwindling.

“Gas tax probably isn't the long-term solution,” Sen. Jim Hammond, R-Post Falls, recently told the Spokane, Wash., Spokesman-Review. Hammond, vice chairman of the Transportation Committee, noted that Idaho gas tax revenues have long been flat and will start to decline as more motorists drive fuel-efficient rigs.

Otter's failed efforts to raise the fuel tax the past two years were at the center of his tempestuous relationship with the Legislature. The governor this year called on lawmakers to gradually raise gas taxes and vehicle registration fees and make other changes to raise a total of $174.5 million more annually for roads after five years. He settled instead for a plan to collect about $54 million a year more for roads after two years. That's now down to $28.4 million.

According to the American Association of State Highway and Transportation officials, the purchasing power of gas taxes nationwide has declined 80 percent since 1993.

In Idaho, fuel tax and vehicle registration revenue — $177.2 million — is down from $177.7 million in 2001.

That's also the trend with other highway funding sources in a soft economy.

Higher fees for drivers licenses and vehicle titles are now expected to bring in $11.5 million, instead of $13.1 million, as recession-weary Idahoans opt to renew their licenses and registrations for shorter periods. Repeal of the ethanol exemption is raising $15.4 million, about $1 million less than anticipated. And legislation estimated to raise $5 million a year from new truck-trailer plates is now expected to bring in just $500,000.

So the name of the game will soon be user fees — maybe eventually including tolls on some of Idaho's busiest highways.

But a mileage tax is likely to get the most traction. Some legislators and even the governor have spoken favorably of the idea in the past.

Simply put, if you drive 15,000 miles a year you'll pay more than if you drive 10,000. The collection mechanism is uncertain — perhaps when you renew your vehicle registration — but for a self-described “user-fee guy” such as Otter, it makes perfect sense.

Long-distance commuters — and as Idaho grows, there will be many more — may not think so, especially in the Treasure Valley where thousands of folks commute from Canyon County to Boise because they can't afford housing in the capital city.

And VMT would hit hard in places like Lincoln County, where 58 percent of the jobs are directly tied to tourism in the Wood River Valley.

But the truth is that states are running out of options.

Across America, there will be 2.9 trillion vehicle miles traveled this year. If motorists were charged a penny a mile, that would go a long way toward fixing the country's crumbling infrastructure.

Our view:
 In future, it's likely that the more you drive, the more you'll pay to fix Idaho's roads.

What do you think?
 We welcome viewpoints from our readers on this and other issues.

Your money doesn't belong to you

In September, I was on a long road trip. I was also pretty low on funds, but as evening came in Virginia, I was getting drowsy. No way I'd make it to Connecticut that night. I made some quick calculations and decided I could just afford a cheap motel room. I pulled off the highway.

Susanna Rodell

What happened in the following days will be familiar to many readers. I paid for my room with my debit card. When I returned home, despite the fact that the room was paid for and I had a balance in my account, I found that my account had been charged insufficient funds fees for a bunch of subsequent transactions and a couple of checks.

When I called my credit union, I was told that the motel had put a hold on my account — in an amount larger than the charge for the room — that would not be lifted for 10 days.

What amazed me even more: The motel wasn't the only merchant that had reached into my account in this way. There were several holds on the account from gas stations, and even from a supermarket where I'd bought some food along the way. The result: $175 in fees. Ouch.

Sen. Chris Dodd, D-Conn., has written legislation that would stop these fees from being assessed if they're associated with holds on accounts. Thank you, senator. But after I discovered that any merchant could put a hold on my bank account (a Kroger store, for crying out loud), I started to wonder: Who sets the rules for this practice?

Guess what? No government agency controls it. There are no laws governing it.

When you hand over your debit card to any merchant, they can reach into your bank account and freeze your funds. How much? For how long? However much they like. As long as they like. Who decides? The card networks. That means the folks at Visa and MasterCard.

It's kind of understandable, perhaps, that car rental companies and hotels might put very short-term holds on credit cards and debit card holders' bank accounts to protect themselves in case someone overstays their reservation or drives farther than they predicted. But for 10 days after they've already been paid? For twice the amount of the bill?

I talked to people on Dodd's Senate banking committee staff, and they directed me to the Federal Reserve. The Federal Reserve did not want to talk about it. The best answer I could get, from an aide on the banking committee, was that there is no government regulation of this practice.

Are you listening? Any merchant can reach into your bank account and deny you access to your own money, and no government agency can stop them.

Banks don't necessarily have to go along with this. But then again the banks, faced with lean times, are finding a great way to make those lean times pay for them: insufficient funds fees they can charge when there's a hold on your account.

Once again, poor people — or just-getting-by people — are keeping the banks afloat. Perhaps we should feel grateful that we're playing such a crucial role in this wonky economy.

One young woman I know, who can ill afford it, told me her family had lost more than $1,000 this way over the past year. She has to travel for her job. She has to rent cars and stay in hotels.

And now that I find that even grocery stores can do this, where are the limits?

It's the Wild West out there, folks. You thought that money in your bank account belonged to you? Not so fast.

Essentially, unsuspecting account holders are being coerced into making millions of no-interest loans every day: Your money is not available to you, though it is still available to the bank and to the merchant.

If Dodd's legislation succeeds, at least the banks will be stopped from charging those nasty fees when the hold on your account sends it into the red. But the bigger question remains: Why do merchants have the power to do as they please with your account? Why is this activity totally unregulated?

The banking committee aide I spoke to promised me that Dodd would be looking into this.

Look hard, senator. Look hard.

Driver who hit bicyclist got off way too easily

I am appalled by the extraordinarily minimal charges against the driver who ran a stop sign and struck cyclist Gary Flora.

If Gary had been driving a car and was T-boned by the driver who ran the stop sign, Gary would not have been cited as he had the right-of-way. The same rules apply to cyclists. The cyclist had the right-of-way, so why was Gary Flora cited at all? Gary suffered serious injuries and the driver who ran the stop sign was not even charged with reckless driving? Running a stop sign is a definition for reckless driving.

The county has made a serious mistake here and it needs to be corrected. The driver who ran the stop sign must be charged accordingly. Anything less reeks of “it's who you know” in government!

Jerome County jail plan is poorly conceived

Jerome County wants a new jail. Jerome County needs a new jail, but not the way they are going about it.

A yes vote Nov. 3 is giving the county commissioners a blank check for 30 million bucks and, if they run out of funds, they can raise taxes.

DEADLINE FOR ELECTION LETTERS

Tuesday will be your last chance to submit letters about candidates and issues on the Nov. 3 local elections ballot. No letters will be accepted after 5 p.m. that day. Letters must be 300 words or less. Mail them to Letters to the Editor, Times-News, P.O. Box 548, Twin Falls, ID 83303; email ethomason@magicvalley or fax (208) 734-5538.

Tell us what you think

ONLINE: Register at Magicvalley.com, and respond to any of the local opinions or stories in today's edition.

ON PAPER: The Times-News welcomes letters from readers on subjects of public interest. Please limit letters to 300 words. Include your signature, mailing address and phone number. Writers who sign letters with false names will be permanently barred from publication. Letters may be brought to our Twin Falls office; mailed to P.O. Box 548, Twin Falls, ID 83303; faxed to (208) 734-5538; or e-mailed to letters@magicvalley.com.

JOIN THE DISCUSSION: Voice your opinion with local bloggers: Progressive Voice, Conservative Corner and In the Middle. On the opinion page at Magicvalley.com.

The commissioners don't have a site for the jail, they don't have a plan for the jail, and they haven't worked out any of the details in building this jail. All they have is a bunch of ideas.

Thirty million bucks is a lot of money to give to just ideas. This is the kicker: If they default, all of the payments become due and payable. Everything is returned to the leasing company.

Before you vote Nov. 3, please look into this poorly conceived idea. We need a new jail, but this idea is full of bad deals, salesman tricks and no blueprints. I wouldn't purchase a house this way.

I'm voting no, and I think after you look closely at this proposal, you will vote no too.

Support Megan: It's what Tim would've wanted

After reading your article, “Zebarth death investigation,” we are appalled and greatly disappointed in the way you handled a very personal and delicate situation.

Not only do you disregard any respect for Tim and Megan's family, but she was recently taken off antibiotics, is still using a walker as of a few days ago and still has a feeding tube. The numerous operations that you referred to has a number, it's nine. The cosmetic surgery that you referred to is so she can once again eat properly, a bonus will be if she looks like she did before.

We know firsthand about you sensationalizing a situation to “get a story”; for this reason, we have struggled to support the Times-News in a business aspect as well as personally.

We love and miss Tim with all our heart. We love and support Megan in her time of need for recovery, because it's what Tim would have wanted.

Gays in military: Don't ask, tell or legitimize

I am sympathetic to the story told by Joseph Rocha, who claims in a Washington Post opinion column that he was discharged from the Navy because he is gay, though he says he never told anyone. Rocha says his male colleagues concluded he was gay when he wouldn't laugh at their dirty jokes about women or visit prostitutes with them.

Gay service members have a point when they claim a double standard exists for heterosexuals and homosexuals regarding sexual behavior. Rocha also alleges cover-ups by higher-ups about male sexual assaults on lesbians and the pressure he says lesbians feel to keep quiet because by "telling" they could face discharge.

But we are beginning in the wrong place. The place to start is whether citizens of this country, through their elected representatives and the military leaders named by them, have a right to determine what type of service members best serve the interests, safety and security of the United States. I contend we do. The military should not be a test lab. Pressure is building to put female sailors on submarines, along with gay, lesbian, bisexual and transgender people presumably. That many heterosexuals find homosexual behavior immoral and not conducive to unit cohesion is of no concern to the social wrecking crew.

What gay activists apparently don't care about is the effect reshaping the military in their image would have on our ability to fight and defend the country, which, after all, is the purpose of a military. If the armed services were open to all behaviors (as distinct from orientations), recruitment might become more difficult. Some of the services have recently struggled to meet their recruitment goals, though overall enlistment is up because of the economy.

At the Human Rights Campaign dinner last Saturday in Washington, President Obama said, "I will end 'don't ask, don't tell.'" He also pledged to bring an end to The Defense of Marriage Act (DOMA), which was passed by a Republican Congress and signed by Bill Clinton. Obama knows — or should know — that he does not have that power. He took an oath to faithfully execute the laws of the United States.

If Congress wants to repeal DOMA and change the military's behavioral codes, it can do so through new legislation. But that would put "Blue Dog" Democrats at risk of re-election, since they serve mostly conservative districts. They know their political careers would be over if they voted in favor of either gay marriage or for gays in the military.

The gays in the military and gay marriage issues are part of a broader attempt by liberals to restructure society. Social activists despise biblical morality (which heterosexuals could use a little more of, too), traditional values that have been proven to work when tried and numerous other cultural mores. This is not an opinion. It is also not a secret. The more radical activists have written and spoken openly about their intentions. President Obama's language (whether the action follows is another matter) gives lip service to their cause.

Opinion polls have shown the public shifting in favor of gays in the military, including a recent Gallup poll which found that "Americans are six percent more likely than they were four years ago to favor allowing openly gay men and lesbian women to serve in the military, 69 percent to 63 percent." That is mostly because there are few leaders who wish to give voice to opposing points of view. They fear being shouted down, or being accused of "homophobia."

What we tolerate we will get more of. Sexual behavior is an important cultural and moral issue. President Obama won the election with just 52 percent of the popular vote and a margin of 7 percent over Sen. John McCain. This should not be seen as a mandate for him and his administration to make over America in a secular and liberal image. Neither should it be seen as an invitation to give blanket approval to homosexuality, considered by some to be against the best interests of the people who practice it, as well as the nations that accept it.

More politics as usual? Fat chance

Our question for today is whether it's fair for a politician to point out that his opponent is fat.

This involves the New Jersey gubernatorial race, where Gov. Jon Corzine has been running ads showing extremely unflattering shots of the Republican contender, Chris Christie, and claiming that Christie "threw his weight around" when he was stopped for traffic infractions.

While Christie is certainly a large guy, the more interesting factoids in the ad would seem to be that he is a large guy who is a bad driver. A bad driver who was given to loudly pointing out that he was the U.S. attorney when he was stopped for things like speeding, driving without a car registration, or — whoops! — running into a motorcyclist while going the wrong way on a one-way street.

However, the weight issue is the one that has caught all the attention. Patrick Murray, the poll director at Monmouth University, told David Halbfinger of The Times that he thought Corzine was trying to send a "subliminal message" that Christie was reckless about his health and, therefore, might be reckless about, say, the state budget.

During a debate among candidates for N.J. lieutenant governor, the Democrat, State Sen. Loretta Weinberg, was asked whether she felt Christie was overweight. "I don't think that there are too many of us in this race who could make it into 'The Bachelor' or 'The Bachelorette,'" she responded.

This was an extremely discreet answer, although now that we have seen how much attention Tom DeLay got for "Dancing With the Stars," I suspect that the networks would have no hesitation whatsoever in tossing a couple of lieutenant governors into a serial dating show.

It is definitely true that you do not see many overweight people in Washington these days. The Obama administration is so pathologically fit that I have developed a truly unexpected affection for Larry Summers.

But I would really hate to see national anti-fat standards move into state government. For one thing, it would totally ruin my hopes of becoming the next person to be appointed lieutenant governor of New York when something untoward happens yet again in Albany.

Also, one of the best things about state capitols is that they are places where people who have most of their teeth and some of their hair can count on feeling pretty darned attractive.

Some commentators have come down hard on Corzine for the "weight" ad. However it's hard to blame his campaign for focusing on matters of girth. The state is a mess, his party members keep getting indicted and his personality is what we always like to politely term "abrasive." All he's really got is his ability to run a 10K. Corzine can't even dwell on Christie's terrible driving record, given the fact that he spent the first part of his administration incapacitated because of an unfortunate decision to mix speeding with failure to buckle one's seat belt.

Other people have argued that the ad will backfire, and elicit sympathy for Christie among the multitudes of overweight voters even in the relatively fit state of New Jersey. (And God help the candidate who tries to pull this kind of thing in Mississippi.)

That's happened in the past. Like the time Mitt Romney ran against Ted Kennedy for the Senate during one of Kennedy's particularly unslender periods. The Romney camp ran film of Kennedy struggling to squeeze behind a table. (Subliminal message: Too much fat in the budget) Kennedy responded with workers who had been laid off after a factory takeover engineered by Romney's firm. (Subliminal message: How do you like downsizing?)

Of course, Kennedy cleaned his clock. This is my second favorite Mitt Romney story. I couldn't figure out any way to bring up the one about him driving to Canada with the family dog strapped to the car roof.

I think we can all agree that William Howard Taft would not have made it into the White House if there had been YouTube in 1908. But George W. Bush gave fitness such a bad name I really expected the next president to be someone like Hillary Clinton, who does not seem to regard her treadmill as an integral part of the family circle. Instead, we elected a guy who's so attractive that the Nobel committee couldn't resist giving him a Peace Prize before he ever did anything. It was sort of like one of those greeting cards that say: "Thank you for being you."

If the anti-fat bias among voters gets too intense, we are going to get in trouble eventually. The number of overweight Americans keeps going up, and pretty soon there are only going to be about six people in each state who are qualified to run for the U.S. Senate. The presidency may have to become a monarchy.

Why health care for all will never work in America

I often wonder why European countries can have health care for everyone without a revolution or mass emigration but the United States can't. Every time universal health care comes up here it sets off angst, vexation, writhing, screaming, hysteria, mental flatulence and churls with cudgels.

Why? Daniel Callahan offers an explanation that makes sense in the Oct. 9 issue of Commonweal. Callahan is the founder of the Hastings Center, which researches the intersection of biology and ethics. His answer: Europeans believe in the common good. Americans don't.

We know this: Some people will suffer long illnesses that no one can set aside enough money to cover. Some children will have chronic diseases their families can't pay for. Many people will lose jobs and their health insurance — and, if they get sick, possibly their savings — because investment bankers' grasping fists were too big for their crab-apple brains.

In Europe, the attitude is: "It may be me or it may be my neighbor. Let's act together." In America, the attitude is more like: "It may be my neighbor. Let's not act too hastily."

We tell polltakers that we support health care reform — so long as it doesn't take away anything we already have and doesn't give someone else more than we have. A publicity industry exists to tell us that whatever change is afoot will do one of those two things to us.

That is a harsh thing to say about us. But you can see the attitude running through the reasoning of opponents of reform: It will cost too much. The wrong people — immigrants, parents of large families — will get benefits. It will raise taxes. It may not pay for a treatment I want.

Europeans pay a lot for health care. They decided long ago that health care for all is worth it. We are told that we shouldn't want to pay more than we do (more than the Europeans, by the way) unless there is something in it for us personally. Half of us believe that fervently.

Callahan's insight adds that you see the same attitude in what the proponents fail to say when they try to sell reform. It's as if they know that idealism will win only a Bronx cheer, and that any appeal to the brotherhood of man is a deal breaker. The closest President Obama would come to invoking love of neighbor in his Sept. 9 health care speech to Congress was, "We're all in this together."

To which the reply from a lot of Americans is: "No we are not. I have a great plan through my job. Too bad about your friends."

You don't expect conservatives to go very far beyond self-interest. Following Milton Friedman, they expect the market to allocate health care as needed, despite more than a century of seeing that it can't.

But the liberals have had nothing to say about solidarity since 1960. "Ask not what your country can do for you, ask what you can do for your country" was their last word on the subject. Liberal talk on health care reform is all about efficiency, hypothetical fiscal savings and splitting differences. It doesn't challenge selfishness; it tries to work with and around it.

"Both the Left and the Right have their fairy tales; both refuse to face reality," Callahan writes. I would add that the Right has solutions that don't work and the Left has solutions that no one would work up a sweat to try out.

"An abiding suspicion of government," Callahan continues, "a belief in the free market as an engine of prosperity (and thus, by an illogical leap, as an engine of good health care), and the majority's fear that they may lose the benefits they already have — all this leaves little room for the embrace of the common good."

The common good is an ethical-religious concept. Europeans, for all their reputed secularism, absorb human solidarity in their cribs. Americans save their ethical-religious concepts for Sunday and for fights over in-your-face crosses. They rarely disrupt our self-fulfillment.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Sentence adds insult to Gary Flora's injury

Regarding the recent front-page article about Gary Flora's plight, it brings up more questions than answers.

Gary was operating his vehicle in a proper and legal manner; Mr. Hargrave was not and, as a result, left Mr. Flora on the ground fighting for his life.

If I ran a stop sign and almost killed another person, my expectations for punishment would be the worst. Those of us in our community that know the details of this event are smoking hot over the charges and resulting plea bargain.

This is equivalent to a swift kick in the groin for Mr. Flora, to add insult to injury and destroying his life.

Thanks for your time.

Telling the story right does make a difference

Forget the truth! It's how you tell the story.

When I took a class in journalism 60 years ago, there were some basic questions to be answered: what, where, when and why. Things have changed since that time. The purpose now is to frame the story to suit one's ideology and most attracted to journalism today lean to the left.

Since the Associated Press is the primary purveyor of printed news, I would like to offer two examples.

The first relates to people losing jobs. AP reported that first-time jobless applications were less than had been reported the previous period, as though that was a huge improvement. Perhaps most of the jobs that could be lost had been already. There have been more than 3 million lost since "change" began.

The second example was the spin on the "jobs created or saved" by the stimulus package. The report put out by the administration stated that 33,000 jobs had been created or saved as a result to date. (It was interesting to see that Delaware had created or saved six jobs.) If the market had been allowed to work without government intervention, there could have been hundreds of thousands of jobs created.

What was the reason that Congress rushed the $750 billion package through the process? So the funds could be put to work on "shovel ready" jobs. Despite the thousands of pork projects written into the bill, only a small fraction of the money has been put to work.

I enjoy playing golf but am not very proficient at it; however, if the story is told differently, it might sound better. I might say, "I had some really tremendous drives, but they took a different path than I intended. I had a par game going, except for two or three poor shots each hole. My putts were amazing; they only missed the hole by fractions of an inch." Telling the story properly does make a difference.

Have a wonderful day.

McChrystal to brief
NATO defense team

BRATISLAVA — The top U.S. military commander in Afghanistan planned an unexpected appearance today at a meeting of NATO defense ministers focused on making Afghan security forces responsible for fighting the war there.

Officials said Army Gen. Stanley McChrystal was to brief NATO ministers, including U.S. Defense Secretary Robert Gates, on his view of the war in Afghanistan.

A document provided to The Associated Press outlines formal NATO approval of plans to eventually give Afghan army and police officials control over a war that is in its ninth year.

The plans specifically do not require any withdrawal of the 104,000 U.S. and NATO troops that will be in Afghanistan by the end of the year.

Instead, they officially affirm NATO's intent to shift from being in charge of security and rebuilding in the war-torn nation to taking a backup role to Afghan officials, according to the document.

"This is not associated with any force withdrawal or predetermined decrease in force level requirements," the document written by NATO's public diplomacy division states. "It will entail a change in the nature of the security assistance provided to the Afghans and the balance of responsibility."

PAKISTAN Bomber kills 7 near nuclear-linked complex

ISLAMABAD — A suicide bomber struck a checkpoint near a military complex reportedly linked to Pakistan's nuclear weapons program today, killing seven people as the army pressed ahead with a major anti-Taliban offensive in the northwest.

The attack took place near the sprawling aeronautical complex in Kamra, around 30 miles from the capital, Islamabad, and is sure to raise renewed concerns about the safety of Pakistan's nuclear program.

The Kamra site is often mentioned by foreign military experts and researchers as a likely place to keep planes that can carry nuclear warheads. The army, which does not reveal where its nuclear weapons are stored, has denied that the facility is tied to the program.

The attacker was apparently riding a bicycle and detonated his explosives at a checkpoint on a road leading to the complex, police officer Akbar Abbas said, blaming the Taliban. The seven dead included two security troops, while 13 people were wounded.

"The attacker wanted to go inside. He exploded himself when officials wanted to search his body," Attock police chief Fakhar Sultan Raja said.

ITALY
100,000 women say they're offended
by PM Berlusconi

ROME — More than 100,000 women have signed a petition saying they are offended by Prime Minister Silvio Berlusconi — an initiative launched by a newspaper after the premier made a sexist remark to an opposition politician.

Berlusconi, 73, made the jab during a call in to a late-night talk show Oct. 7 that featured, among other guests, Rosy Bindi, a 58-year-old former minister who dresses conservatively, wears glasses and has short, gray hair.

"You are always more beautiful than intelligent," Berlusconi told her. She snapped back: "I'm not one of the women at your disposal!"

Berlusconi's remark sparked outrage, and prompted three prominent Italian intellectuals to draft a petition stating that Berlusconi uses women's bodies for his political ends, denigrating women and democracy in the process.

White House rejects Cheney's Afghanistan criticism

By Jennifer Loven
and Anne Gearan
Associated Press writers

WASHINGTON — The White House on Thursday forcefully rejected criticism from former Vice President Dick Cheney and other Republicans that President Obama's Afghanistan decision is taking too long.

"What Vice President Cheney calls dithering, President Obama calls his solemn responsibility to the men and women in uniform and to the American public," White House press secretary Robert Gibbs said. "I think we've all seen what happens when somebody doesn't take that responsibility seriously."

Obama is nearing a decision on whether to significantly expand the U.S. war posture in Afghanistan by honoring a military request for thousands of additional forces. The decision had been expected as early as mid-August, when Obama's new war commander prepared a harsh assessment of deteriorating conditions in the 8-year-old conflict, and now is expected in what Gibbs calls "the coming weeks."

Obama is also weighing with his national security team whether to focus more narrowly on al-Qaida terrorists believed to be hiding in Pakistan.

Top commander Gen. Stanley McChrystal's still-secret troop request outlines three options — from as many as 80,000 more troops to as few as 10,000 — but favors a compromise of 40,000 more forces, officials have told The Associated Press. There now are 67,000 American troops in Afghanistan, and 1,000 more are headed there by the end of December.

The previous top U.S. commander in Afghanistan, Gen. David McKiernan, submitted a request for more troops that went unfulfilled by former President George W. Bush. Obama partly granted that request in March when he ordered an additional 21,000 U.S. troops to go to Afghanistan this year.

Cheney said in a speech Wednesday night that Obama needs to "do what it takes to win" and that "signals of indecision out of Washington hurt our allies and embolden our adversaries."

Leading indicators signal growth, but jobs scarce

By Tali Arbel
Associated Press writer

NEW YORK — A private forecast of economic activity rose for the sixth straight month in September, a sign the economy may keep growing early next year despite rising unemployment.

The number of new claims for jobless benefits jumped more than expected last week. Claims had fallen in five out of the previous six weeks, and most economists expect that trend to continue but at a slow pace, with employers still reluctant to hire.

The Conference Board said Thursday that its index of leading economic indicators rose 1 percent last month after a 0.4 percent gain in August, beating economists' expectations.

The group said the indicators' 5.7 percent growth rate in the six months through September was the strongest since 1983, but joblessness is weighing on the rebound. Dips in manufacturing hours worked and building permits, a gauge of future construction, were the only two measures out of 10 that weighed down the index. It is meant to project economic activity in the next three to six months.

The six-month rate is consistent with annual economical growth of about 8 percent, said Paul Dales, U.S. economist at Capital Economics. It's unlikely the rebound will be that strong, however, as the index may be "distorted" by the Federal Reserve's rock-bottom interest rates and market liquidity measures, he said.

The government will report on third-quarter economic growth next week. Many economists think gross domestic product — the value of all goods and services produced in the United States — grew about 3 percent after falling for a record four straight quarters. But many wonder if that pace can continue in the current quarter and next year as unemployment rises and consumers remain hesitant to spend.

Lack of job growth is a major problem. The Labor Department said the number of newly laid-off workers filing claims for jobless benefits rose to a seasonally adjusted 531,000 last week, from an upwardly revised 520,000 the previous week. Wall Street economists had expected only a slight increase, according to Thomson Reuters.

Economists consider jobless claims a gauge of layoffs and a sign of companies' willingness to hire.

The four-week average of claims, which smooths out fluctuations, fell to its lowest level since mid-January. But claims remain well above the 325,000 that economists say is consistent with a healthy economy.

The report is "slightly disappointing," Ian Shepherdson, chief U.S. economist at High Frequency Economics, wrote in a note to clients. "But it does not change the core story, which

Exec pay crackdown

"It does offend our values when executives of big financial firms that are struggling pay themselves huge bonuses even as they rely on extraordinary assistance to stay afloat."

— President Obama

Federal Reserve Board Chairman Ben Bernanke testifies Oct. 1 before the House Financial Services Committee on Capitol Hill in Washington. The Federal Reserve for the first time would police banks' pay policies to ensure they don't encourage employees to take reckless gambles like those that contributed to the financial crisis, according to a proposal unveiled Thursday.

Treasury: Bailed-out firms to slash pay in November

By Martin Crutsinger
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — The Treasury Department on Thursday ordered seven companies that received billions of dollars in government bailouts to halve total compensation for their top executives. But the big reductions will not apply to pay earned before November.

Kenneth Feinberg, the Treasury official leading the pay review, told reporters that average salaries for the top 25 executives are being cut 90 percent starting next month.

The action will apply to the top executives at Bank of America Corp., American International Group Inc., Citigroup Inc., General Motors, GMAC, Chrysler and Chrysler Financial.

Meanwhile, the Federal Reserve unveiled a proposal Thursday that for the first time would police banks' pay policies to ensure they don't encourage employees to take reckless gambles like those that contributed to the financial crisis.

Unlike the Treasury plan, the Fed proposal would cover thousands of banks, including many that never received a bailout. But the central bank would not actually set compensation. Instead, the Fed would review — and could veto — pay policies that could cause too much risk-taking by executives, traders or loan officers.

The government did not want to make executives return compensation already received this year, but the reduced pay levels will be the base for making decisions on salary in 2010, Feinberg said.

The executives will still be subject to compensation limits as long as their companies are receiving support from the government's $700 billion bailout fund. Their total compensation was being cut in half, on average.

Feinberg got the job as pay czar earlier this year when Congress, responding to outrage about huge bonuses being paid to AIG, amended the bailout law to require that executive compensation at companies getting exceptional assistance be curbed.

He has been reviewing compensation packages since August and called many of the negotiations "intense."

Speaking earlier at the White House, President Obama welcomed Treasury's decision and said Americans' values are offended by excessive paychecks for executives whose companies were bailed out by taxpayers. He urged Congress to pass legislation to give shareholders a voice in executive pay packages.

"It does offend our values when executives of big financial firms that are struggling pay themselves huge bonuses even as they rely on extraordinary assistance to stay afloat," Obama said.

Treasury Secretary Timothy Geithner also praised the outcome of Feinberg's deliberations.

"We gave him the difficult task of cutting excessive pay, striking a balance between compensation and risk taking and keeping strong management teams in place to help the economies recover — all in the public interest," Geithner said in a statement.

Potential for

FRAUD

Congress scrutinizes problems in home buyer credit program

By Jim Abrams
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — The rush to implement a tax credit for first-time home buyers opened the program up to potential fraud by people who hadn't bought a home or already owned one, Congress was told Thursday.

J. Russell George, Treasury Inspector General for Tax Administration, questioned the eligibility of some 100,000 claims out of the 1.5 million who have sought to take advantage of the $8,000 tax credit incorporated in the economic stimulus package enacted last February.

He said claimants include those who could possibly be illegal immigrants and that 580 people seeking $4 million from the first-time home buyer credit were under the age of 18. The youngest taxpayers receiving the credit were 4 years old, his office said.

George and an Internal Revenue Service official testifying before a House Ways and Means Committee subcommittee stressed that many of the questioned claims may eventually be found to be legitimate after further examination.

But the hearing raised a yellow flag as Congress considers whether to extend, or even expand, the popular program that is set to expire at the end of November.

The top Republican on the panel, Rep. Charles Boustany, Jr., of Louisiana, said that while the issue of extending the credit was not the purpose of the hearing, "every time Congress creates a new refundable credit ... the incentive for fraud is magnified."

McD's profit climbs 6%; October could disappoint

By Ashley M Heher
Associated Press writer

CHICAGO — McDonald's Corp. profit climbed almost 6 percent in the third quarter, as U.S. customers gobbled up its newest, more expensive Angus burgers, the company said Thursday. But the company rattled investors when it said its strong domestic performance could finally falter in October because of the recession.

The world's largest burger chain, which has been among the notable winners of the recession because of its cheap menu and value meals, cautioned that the fast-food business was slowing around the globe but that McDonald's would continue to see growth.

This year, small businesses party simply: No DJs, iPods OK

With Thanksgiving and the start of the holiday season weeks away, many small business owners are planning holiday parties for employees and clients despite the still wobbly economy. But the celebrations are expected to be low-key, frugal and, some say, much more fun.

Even owners whose businesses are doing better say they're sticking to simpler events this year.

"We could afford to have a catered event, something fancy, but it's not in our DNA" given the events of the past year, said Ginny Pitcher, president of Kel & Partners, a marketing and public relations firm based in Boston.

"In the past we always have had a holiday celebration and we've always either gone out to a restaurant with workers and spouses or we hosted a party at our house and have it catered," Pitcher said. "Last year, we decided it just wasn't the right thing to do to have a catered affair, so we decided to have a potluck. We found it was the best holiday party we've had to date.

"People were there till the wee hours of morning, talking and getting to know each other better."

Pitcher said the company has been affected by the recession, although "we've managed the last 18 months very well."

Now, she said, "we're seeing things turning a corner and we're very confident about the next 18 months," but that doesn't mean it's back to the days of a big party.

Banks cut back on emergency loans from Fed

WASHINGTON - Banks cut back on loans from the Federal Reserve's emergency lending program over the past week, a sign some credit problems are easing as the economy recovers.

The Fed on Thursday said commercial banks averaged $23.8 billion in daily borrowing over the week that ended Wednesday. That was down from $27.4 billion in the week ended Oct. 14.

The identities of the financial institutions are not released. They pay just 0.50 percent in interest for the emergency, overnight loans.

Banks also trimmed their use of

Incontinence difficult to accept even for someone who is nearly 90

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm going to be 90 next February. I'm quite an active woman and eat mostly health foods. I feel great, except for having trouble with "holding my water." I've tried many pills, but none seem to work. Is there anything on the market that can help me? I have absolutely no control. I wear Depends, pads, rubber pants and am desperate. I would appreciate any advice.

ASK

DEAR READER: Urinary incontinence is defined as the inability to control urine leaking from the bladder. This is a relatively common and embarrassing condition that can vary in intensity from person to person. There are a number of reasons for the condition to occur. I will discuss the most common forms.

Stress incontinence is just as the name implies. When laughing, sneezing, coughing, getting up from a sitting position, or with the removal of the prostate, a weakened bladder can cause an involuntary discharge of urine.

Urge incontinence can occur when standing or sitting, by hearing running water, drinking fluids and more. Or stroke, Parkinson's or other diseases may damage the nervous system. Unlike stress incontinence apparent with a full bladder, this overactive bladder activity can occur when the bladder isn't full. The condition may awaken a person several times during the middle of the night.

Functional incontinence often affects older adults because of physical or mental impairment.

Arthritis, Parkinson's, stroke and Alzheimer's may prevent a person from rising from a chair fast enough to get to a bathroom. A person will be fully cognizant of the fact that he or she has to urinate but will fail to react in adequate time. This is often the case in a nursing-home setting.

Herrett Center hosts Galilean Nights events

The Herrett Center for the Arts and Science will participate in the latest in a series of events to commemorate the International Year of Astronomy.

The Galilean Nights telescope viewing on Saturday will observe the same targets Galileo saw through his telescope 400 years ago. The observatory will be open for public viewing from 3 to 9 p.m. for people to see the three primary targets Galileo saw — the sun, the moon and Jupiter. Solar viewing will start at 3 p.m. and night sky viewing will begin at sundown. The event is free.

Alive at 25 driving classes held Saturday

The Cassia County Sheriff's Department and Idaho State Police are sponsoring a national defensive driving course called Alive at 25 for young drivers ages 15 to 24. The course will be held from 9 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Saturday, at Minico High School in Rupert.

The long-term goal of this program is to reduce the number of injuries and collisions incurred by drivers in this age group. Its focus is on persuading attendees to take responsibility for their behavior in driving situations and to adapt safer driving practices.

Information: Cassia County Sgt. Robert Taylor, 208-878-2251 or ISP Trooper Andy Hitt, 208-736-3060.

Car bash and chili feed to be held Saturday

The 1016th Quartermaster Company Army Reserves Family Readiness Group is sponsoring a car bash and chili feed from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, at the College of Southern Idaho Eldon Evans Expo Center parking lot.

Three swings at the car will be sold for $1, with a chili and cornbread meal sold for $3. Games for kids, goody bags and more will also be offered.

Canyon Ridge cheerleaders hold equipment fundraiser

A fundraiser breakfast from 7 to 9 a.m. Saturday at the Twin Falls Applebees' will be hosted by the Kimberly Modern Woodmen of America, to benefit Canyon Ridge High School cheerleaders. Cost is $7 per plate, and Modern Woodmen will match up to $750, to go toward the purchase of cheerleader uniforms and other equipment.

Information: Terry Downs, 316-2244.

Buhl parent-teacher conferences drawing near

Parents of Buhl High School students are asked to pick up their children's first-quarter report cards between 5 and 8 p.m. Tuesday or Thursday during parent-teacher conferences.

Report cards will be available in the office, and teachers will be available to meet with parents.

There will be no school for Buhl High students on Thursday or Oct. 30.

To schedule an appointment: 543-8262.

Blue Lakes Rotary Club hosts pancake breakfast

The Blue Lakes Rotary Club is hosting a pancake breakfast from 7 to 11 a.m. Oct. 31, at Perrine Elementary School's cafeteria, 452 Caswell Ave. W., Twin Falls.

Hot dog vendor relishes his tax victory

By Steve Chawkins
Los Angeles Times

As light on his feet as the prizefighter he once was, Bill Connell moves quickly around his Carpinteria, Calif., hot dog stand, jabbing hot sausages, whipping Monster Dogs into buns, and boasting about the recent knockout he scored against state tax officials.

"They told me the law didn't mean what it said in plain language, and I told them: 'Are you kidding me? I was educated in Catholic schools! I know what the law says!'"

For 16 years, Connell sparred with the state Board of Equalization over the interpretation of an 1872 statute exempting street peddlers who are disabled veterans from paying various taxes. Thursday morning, he celebrated his victory by giving away hot dogs and carving up sheet cakes decorated with the Stars and Stripes. Politicians who supported Connell's cause spoke on a platform set up at his Surf Dog stand, a cart commanding an ocean view 80 miles northwest of Los Angeles that would be the envy of any five-star hotel.

"This was a real David-and-Goliath struggle, and Bill never gave up," said state Sen. Jeff Denham, chairman of the Senate Veteran Affairs Committee. "It's an emotional issue for him and it's an emotional issue for all veterans."

Denham sponsored a bill, inspired by Connell, allowing veterans with service-related disabilities not to pay sales taxes when peddling things such as T-shirts, tacos and incense on the street. Gov. Arnold Schwarzenegger signed it into law earlier this month.

At the heart of the new law is the notion of the state giving a boost to self-employed veterans. Connell, a former toxic-waste disposal specialist who knows his way around a law book, contended that's exactly what the state wanted to do when it passed laws to that effect in the 1800s. State attorneys disagreed, pointing out that state sales-tax laws weren't imposed until 1933, didn't mention veterans and superseded rules from the previous century.

"It really galled me terribly," said Connell, a 55-year-old Vietnam-era veteran who partially lost his hearing when he was boxing for the Army in Germany. He said a vet in San Francisco who peddled decorated seashells and a fellow hot dog vendor in Northern California were unfairly put out of business. "I was just the last one standing," he said.

Mid-life crisis drove Connell from his native New Jersey and, at the age of 38, into the hot dog business. Since then, he has testified before the Board of Equalization, a state tax agency, 18 times. By his estimate, he has spent 1,000 hours in a law library, poring over case law and thumbing through dust-laden statute books. Along the way, the state briefly shut down his business for nonpayment of taxes.

An animated man who talks death, taxes and local politics with his regulars, Connell fumes over some of the lawyerly tactics used against him.

"A comma!" he sputtered. "For years, they tried to tell me I was wrong because there was a misplaced comma in the law!"

The 1872 legislation says veterans may peddle "with-out payment of any license, tax, or fee whatsoever." Connell said his opponents claimed the comma after 'license' was a mistake.

Bill Leonard, a Board of Equalization member since 2002, agreed with Connell.

"I argued on his behalf and lost," he said. "I tried to get our regulations changed and lost. But he made such a good argument that we should honor our veterans — and that itinerant-peddler-veterans didn't represent a huge drain if they were exempted — that the board agreed to meet him halfway and support legislation to clarify this conflict in the law."

The state figures the new law will cost it about $25,000 a year in foregone sales taxes. Only disabled veterans who have no employees but themselves are eligible.

Dr. Gott

The bladder must remain relaxed so it can expand to store urine. When full, the bladder sends a signal to the brain. Under the best of circumstances, a person can respond to that signal and prepare to alleviate the problem. When other issues come into play, incontinence can occur. There are a number of reasons why the condition might occur in an otherwise healthy person. Caffeine and all beverages containing alcohol act as diuretics, as can some medications, antidepressants and muscle relaxants. As such, they cause the bladder to fill faster and more frequently than normal. Urinary-tract infections can irritate the bladder and result in an increased urge to urinate. These harmless and temporary conditions can happen to anyone at almost any stage in life. Conditions that can lead to chronic incontinence include obstruction, hysterectomy, interstitial cystitis, bladder cancer or stones, prostatitis, an enlarged prostate, obesity, kidney and vascular disease. With the assistance of your primary-care physician or urologist, you need to determine the underlying cause of your incontinence. This may require a simple urine test or blood drawing, pelvic ultrasound, cystogram or cystoscopy. If you smoke, the habit should be discontinued. If hypertension is an issue, it should be treated. Because of your age, you are producing less estrogen than you did in the past. This action can cause the lining of the bladder and urethra to lose some of its ability to close, resulting in incontinence. A simple modification might make a great deal of difference in your quality of life. Work together to find the problem and a cure. To provide related information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "Bladder & Urinary Tract Infections." Other readers who would like a copy should send a self-addressed stamped No. 10 envelope and a check or money order for $2 to Newsletter, P.O. Box 167, Wickliffe, OH 44092. ## Jackson choreographer wanted singer healthy

NEW YORK (AP) — Kenny Ortega was responsible for some of Michael Jackson's biggest concerts, including what were to be his comeback shows in London. But in the singer's final days, the producer-director-choreographer felt like he needed to take on another responsibility — making sure Jackson stayed healthy.

"Michael had sleepless nights and we had to look after him. (I'd say to him), 'Stay hydrated, have a protein shake — Did you eat today before you came?'" Ortega said in an interview Thursday to promote the new Jackson documentary, "This Is It."

When Jackson would say he had, a skeptical Ortega would say — "Michael?"

"Michael's an adult. ... We didn't want to baby him," he said. "(But) I had concerns and we had conversations, wanting to make sure he was doing everything he could to build himself and not break himself down?" Jackson died June 25 at age 50. The Los Angeles County coroner has ruled Jackson's death a homicide, caused primarily by the powerful anesthetic propofol and another sedative. Jackson's personal physician, Dr. Conrad Murray, has not been charged with a crime but is the focus of the police investigation.

Ortega's work with Jackson included world tours for Jackson's "Dangerous" and "HIStory" albums. He was directing the "This Is It" shows — which would have marked the performer's comeback concerts in London's O2 Arena in July — and was brought on to direct a film adaptation of those taped rehearsals after Jackson's death.

"This Is It" will premiere globally on Tuesday and run for two weeks. The soundtrack for the film, which includes the newly released title track as well as some of his best-known hits, is being released Monday.

N.J. mass murderer who killed 13 in '49 dies at 88

By Bruce Shipkowski
Associated Press writer

TRENTON, N.J. — Howard Barton Unruh, who killed 13 people as he walked the streets of Camden in a psychotic 1949 shooting spree that was the nation's worst mass murder at the time, died Monday. He was 88.

Camden County Prosecutor Warren W. Faulk said Unruh died at 3:35 p.m. in a Trenton nursing facility after an extended illness.

Unruh had been confined in a state psychiatric hospital since the killings, which became known as the "Walk of Death." Diagnosed as a paranoid schizophrenic, he confessed to the killings and was judged mentally competent but never tried for the Sept. 6, 1949, massacre.

Unruh, then a 28-year-old honorably discharged World War II combat veteran and pharmacy student, planned the killings for more than a year. He kept a meticulous journal on his intended victims.

He killed five men, five women and three children. Some Unruh knew and intentionally targeted; others were simply strangers he encountered on the street that morning.

A recluse who read the Bible and loved guns, he was convinced his neighbors were ridiculing him behind his back and plotting against him. He was also depressed about his homosexual liaisons in a Philadelphia movie theater.

"They have been making derogatory remarks about my character," Unruh would later tell authorities. What finally set him off was his discovery that someone had stolen the gate to his fence.

Unruh, armed with a war souvenir Luger and 33 rounds of ammunition, left the apartment he shared with his mother, Preda, in the blue-collar neighborhood.

With calm and deadly precision, the 6-foot Unruh, a tank gunner and expert marksman in the Army, carried out his execution plot in the neighborhood around 32nd Street and River Road. Neighbors screamed "crazy man" and scrambled for cover as bullets flew.

Unruh

At a shoe repair shop, Unruh shot a cobbler in the head. Next door at a barber shop, he killed a 6-year-old boy on a hobbyhorse chair, and then the barber.

Next on Unruh's list was a tailor, but he had left his shop on an errand. So Unruh shot the man's bride of six weeks in the head as she begged for her life.

Along the way he fatally shot a man at the wheel of his car, two women in another car and a 3-year-old boy peeking out a window at his home. A 10-year-old boy was wounded and died the next day.

A terrified tavern owner managed to shoot Unruh in the thigh with a .38-caliber pistol from a second-story window, but he continued walking. He then shot one of his prime targets, an insurance salesman who had sold policies to the Unruh family.

Unruh then went to the apartment of a neighbor, who had complained that Unruh played loud music. While a boy hid in a clothes closet, Unruh fatally shot the boy's parents and his grandmother.

He left the apartment and wounded two others before returning to his own apartment. He surrendered after police pumped tear gas into the apartment.

He later told police he had spent the previous evening sitting through three showings of a double feature and had thought that actress Barbara Stanwyck was one of his hated neighbors.

Unruh provided a detailed account of his actions during the killings, and only at the end of the interrogation did authorities learn he had been wounded as well.

"Only occasionally excessive brightness of his dark eyes indicated that he was anything other than normal," New York Times reporter Meyer Berger wrote of the interrogation, in a 4,000-word account of the shootings for which he won a Pulitzer Prize for deadline writing.

He faced 13 counts of "willful and malicious slayings with malice aforethought" and three counts of "atrocious assault and battery." He was eventually pronounced insane and put in a unit for the criminally insane at Trenton Psychiatric Hospital.

Former LA Times journalist Jack Nelson dies at 80

By Douglass K. Daniel
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — Jack Nelson, a Pulitzer Prize-winning investigative reporter who covered the civil rights movement and the Watergate scandal for the Los Angeles Times and was the paper's Washington bureau chief for 20 years, died Wednesday. He was 80.

Nelson, who had pancreatic cancer, died at his home in the Washington suburb of Bethesda, Md., said Richard Cooper a family friend and longtime Times associate.

Nelson spent more than 35 years with the Los Angeles Times, stepping down as its chief Washington correspondent in 2001. He joined the Times in 1965 and in 1970 began working in its Washington bureau. He was bureau chief from 1975 to the end of 1995.

As a reporter with The Atlanta Constitution in 1960, he won the Pulitzer Prize for local reporting for exposing malpractice and other problems at the 12,000-patient state mental hospital in Milledgeville, Ga.

"Jack was a reporter's reporter," said Doyle McManus, Washington columnist for the Los Angeles Times. "He maintained that the main thing people want from newspapers is facts — facts they didn't know before, and preferably facts that somebody didn't want them to know. Jack was tolerant of opinion writers; he respected analysis writers, and he even admired one or two feature writers. But he believed the only good reason to be a reporter was to reveal hidden facts and bring them to light."

Nelson began focusing on civil rights issues when he opened the Los Angeles Times bureau in Atlanta in 1965.

"He carried his investigative abilities forward and applied them to what was going on in the South during the civil rights era," said veteran journalist Gene Roberts, an author of the book "The Race Beat: The Press, the Civil Rights Struggle and the Awakening of a Nation." "Jack had what the military calls 'command presence.' He was very self-confident and his earnestness and authority communicated itself."

Two of Nelson's five books stemmed from his civil rights reporting: "The Orangeburg Massacre" (1970), co-authored with Jack Bass, which chronicled the 1968 incident in which police fired into a crowd of young protesters at South Carolina State College, killing three, and "Terror in the Night: The Klan's Campaign Against the Jews" (1993).

"A reporter likes to pride himself on being as objective as he can and, you know, tell them both sides of the story. Well, there's hardly two sides to a story of a man being denied the basic right to vote," Nelson said in an interview in 2004. "There's no two sides to a story of a lynching. A lynching is a lynching."

Nelson covered presidential administrations from Richard Nixon to Bill Clinton. During the Watergate scandal, he scored an exclusive interview with a security guard for the Nixon re-election campaign who had been involved in the break-in at the headquarters of the Democratic National Committee.

Poll: Belief in global warming is cooling

Americans seem to be cooling toward global warming. Just 57 percent think there is solid evidence the world is getting warmer, down 20 points in just three years, a new poll says.

In a poll of 1,500 adults by the Pew Research Center for the People & the Press, released Thursday, the number of people saying there is strong scientific evidence that the Earth has gotten warmer over the past few decades is down from 71 percent in April of last year and from 77 percent when Pew started asking the question in 2006.

The steepest drop has occurred in the past year, as Congress and the Obama administration have taken steps to control heat-trapping emissions for the first time and international negotiations for a new treaty to slow global warming have been under way.

Feds carry out largest raid on drug cartel

By Elliot Spagat and Sean Murphy Associated Press writers

OKLAHOMA CITY - In the largest single strike at Mexican drug operations in the U.S., authorities arrested more than 300 people in a sting that demonstrates an upstart cartel's vast reach north of the border.

The tentacles of "La Familia" extend coast to coast and deep into America's heartland, with arrests announced Thursday in 38 cities from Boston to Seattle and from St. Paul, Minn., to Raleigh, N.C.

Drug deals went down in Oklahoma parking lots, suppliers were advised to weld drugs into tire rims for transport, and in the Dallas and Seattle areas, dozens of children were removed from houses where authorities found drugs, guns or cash derived from drug sales.

Perhaps more than any other cartel, La Familia projects a Robin Hood image. The Drug Enforcement Administration said the group is "philosophically opposed to the sale of methamphetamine to Mexicans, and instead supports its export to the United States for consumption by Americans."

Mexican police say the gang uses religion and family morals to recruit. The gang has hung banners in towns saying they do not tolerate drug use, or attacks on women or children.

One of the gang's alleged recruiters, detained last spring, ran drug rehabilitation centers, helping addicts to recover and then forcing them to work for the drug gang or be killed, according to Mexico Public Safety Secretary Genaro Garcia Luna.

La Familia is rarely mentioned in the same breath as the handful of other Mexican gangs that control the flow of drugs into the United States, fueled by Colombian cocaine suppliers.

But in its short history, La Familia is believed to have emerged as the biggest supplier of methamphetamine to the United States and, increasingly, a peddler of cocaine, marijuana and other drugs.

Hundreds of arrests in drug raids

Complaints that were unsealed across the country portray an organization that spread deep into Middle America, down to small-time sales.

In Colorado, authorities seized 8 kilograms of cocaine, 3 pounds of methamphetamine and $313,785.

A federal grand jury has indicted 11 members or associates of La Familia from the Western Slope in Colorado, and six of them have been arrested so far, prosecutors said. In Oklahoma, authorities seized about 20 pounds of methamphetamine, two pounds of cocaine, six weapons and several thousand dollars.

They identified Ruben Garcia, 29, as a major supplier in the northeast part of the state.

Agents spotted Garcia and his partners dealing drugs over several months at restaurants, grocery stores and Wal-Mart parking lots in the Tulsa area, according to court documents. In one tapped phone call Oct. 9, Garcia counseled a supplier in Mexico who helped arrange a shipment in McAllen, Texas, that the easiest way to smuggle drugs is welded inside tire rims of vehicles.

Court records do not list an attorney for Garcia.

Texas Child Protective Services removed 20 children from houses in the Dallas area when authorities executed 44 search warrants, said James Capra, the DEA's special agent in charge in Dallas. All the homes where children were found had drugs, guns or cash derived from drug sales.

The sting reached into small towns hundreds of miles from Mexico.

Nine arrests were made in Monroe, Wash., with a population of about 16,000 and home to the state's largest prison about 25 miles north-east of Seattle. None seemed to be doing any retail drug dealing, Monroe police Cmdr. Steve Clopp said.

"I would say that they were well-integrated members of the community," Clopp said. "A lot of them keep up the everyday appearance of work and family."

FLORIDA Garbage trucks led police to dead girl

ORANGE PARK, Fla. - After 7-year-old Somer Thompson vanished on her way home from school, investigators tailed nine garbage trucks from her neighborhood to a Georgia landfill nearly 50 miles away, then picked through the trash as each rig spilled its load.

They sorted through more than 225 tons of garbage before their worst fears were realized: Sticking out of the rubbish were a child's lifeless legs.

Sheriff Rick Beseler said the quick discovery of Somer's body on Wednesday, two days after she disappeared, may have saved precious evidence that could lead to her killer.

"Had we not done this tactic, I believe that body would have been buried beneath hundreds of tons of debris, probably would have gone undiscovered forever," he said Thursday.

An autopsy to establish the cause of death was performed Thursday, but authorities would not disclose their findings.

Rating the scares at haunted houses and mazes

By Melissa Davlin
Times-News writer

It's hard to take notes while running from a chain saw-wielding maniac.

Last weekend, I took my husband and a photographer to three local haunted houses. In my descriptions here, the scream count tells how many times the actors made me yelp and is a good indicator of how scary the haunted house is.

All three attractions recommend that pregnant women, people with heart conditions and people prone to seizures stay away. Also, none of these are meant for children younger than 10, although all offer kid-friendly times or alternatives.

So read on, if you dare. And if you plan to go to any of these haunted houses, bring a friend. You won't want to venture in alone.

HEAR the sounds of Albion's haunted mansions.

Haunted Mansions of Albion

At Campus Grove, Idaho Highway 77, Albion.

There are three separate haunted houses on the Albion campus. Pressed for time and daunted by lines of hundreds of people, we went through just one.

That was enough for me. Within 30 seconds, I was screaming and clutching at my husband's arm. He and photographer Drew Godleski made fun of me at first, but even they were jumping and yelping by the end.

The tour takes guests through several floors of the house. The attic's musty smell adds to the experience, and I half expected to see a real ghost.

I wouldn't have been the first. Heather Mortensen of Campus Grove said some actors refuse to work in some areas of the campus because of strange happenings, and one visitor swears she saw an apparition in the auditorium.

I didn't see any spirits, but the actors scared me just the same. Ghouls, vampires, demons, weapon-wielding madmen and every other monster imaginable inhabit the house. Props include fog machines, funky lights, glow-in-the-dark contact lenses and a freaky baby puppet that will haunt my dreams for the rest of my life.

This tour isn't for kids — it's downright terrifying. Nightmarish special effects, actors jumping out at almost every turn, and several pitch-black corridors make this best suited for the brave.

It's also best for the able-bodied. The house has steep, narrow stairs, passages to crawl through and short doorways to duck under. (One of those passages has hands that reach out and tickle visitors, including a few hands at butt- and-groin level. Godleski and I found this out the hard way.)

Hours: 7 to midnight, tonight, Saturday and Oct. 30-31.

Cost: $15.

Melissa's scream count: 21 — in just one of the three houses.

Time to go through house: It varies, but plan for a long evening. The three houses take about 20 minutes each, and long lines add to the time.

Recommended for: Teens and young adults.

Other features: Food booth, movie area.

Kid-friendly times: From 4 to 7 p.m., the lights are on, the music turned down and the actors off duty; $5.

Rules to remember: No cussing, no running, no flashlights, no punching the actors (which, apparently, has been a problem in the past).

Grotesque props await brave folks in one of the Albion campus buildings.

North Willow Asylum

At Willow Tree Farm, 490 S. 200 E., Jerome.

North Willow Asylum, the brainchild of Willow Tree Farm owner Lisa Doua, is the highlight of the farm's Fright Night.

A tour guide takes guests through the rooms of the asylum, which is filled with mad scientists torturing patients. The shortest tour on the list makes up for its small size with gory props and enthusiastic actors. It's scary, but not too intense — a perfect blend of fun and spooky. Resist the urge to rush through the ultra-creepy isolation ward and strobe-filled doll hall and enjoy the special effects.

Not into being startled? Watch the movies projected onto the side of the building, or take the kids through the Witch's Maze. Enjoy some of the curly fries and candied apples at Crossbones Cafe, which opens at 6 p.m. nightly, and get your palm read and face painted at Fright Alley. This is a great outing for families, no matter the age of the children.

Hours: 7 p.m. to midnight, tonight, Saturday and Oct. 30-31.

Cost: $8 for adults, $7 for students with activity cards, $4 for kids 10 and younger, and $23 for a family pass (two adults, three kids). Parents escorting children through the Witch's Maze don't pay.

Time to go through tour: Less than 10 minutes in the Asylum.

Melissa's scream count: 2, plus a notebook dropped in the clown room.

Recommended for: Families. The haunted house is for ages 10 and older, but younger children can enjoy the Witch's Maze.

Kid-friendly times: The separate section for children, including kid-friendly movies and the maze, is open during regular hours.

Other features: Hand-dipped corn dogs and popcorn balls at the food booth.

Crafters converge in Rupert for one of state's largest fairs

By Blair Koch
Times-News correspondent

From hand-dipped chocolates to hand-tied quilts, you'll find gifts galore at the Mini-Cassia Craft Fair on Saturday.

It's one of Idaho's largest craft fairs, said co-producer Jean Phillips, and draws artisans from five states.

"There is a waiting list of vendors who want to get into this show," Phillips said. "My partner and I individually select vendors to be a part of this event. Everything must be handcrafted with quality; our show offers an array of unique gift ideas that aren't commercially produced."

Over the past 17 years the show has grown. It now fills Rupert's Minico High School, with 150 vendor booths in the gymnasium and hallways.

"The Idaho Chamber of Commerce rates this as a top show in Idaho," Phillips said. "We are really proud of what it has become."

Here's a peak at what you can discover new at this year's fair:

oring? A small gift idea in a cute, personal-sized ceramic shaker.

The colored salt is made by Rupert's Mt. Harrison High School the Entrepreneurial Experience class, under teacher Sheryl Stevenson's direction.

"It's perfect for everything from baby showers to matching holiday decor," Stevenson said. "Another advantage is when you use colored salt you can see just how much you're using, so it's a great idea for people watching their blood pressure and overall salt intake."

The venture teaches students about business.

"They've had to deal with marketing, what colors sell best and how to track income and expenses, the cost of manufacturing, experienced delays in shipping and how to deal with real business problems," Stevenson said.

CGS Laserworks

Burley couple Connie Gill and Glen Straubhaar have been making laser-engraved creations for almost two years, with Gill running the engraving machine and Straubhaar in charge of woodworking.

"We build barn wood frames using mainly old fencing," Gill said. "I engrave around the inside of the frame, putting designs, family names, sayings — basically any kind of artwork you want. Then, Glen adds more layers of the wood, each treated differently to create different looks."

They're bringing a variety of barn wood frames, puzzles, magnets and doll furniture to the craft fair.

"Each has unique engraving on them," Gill said. "The laser is basically a printer for my computer, so I graphically design the artwork we put on the items we sell."

Palmer Faux Finishing

decor? You bet. Jamie Palmer of Burley is returning to the Mini-Cassia Craft Fair with her wall hangings after missing last season's event.

"I've always been interested in interior decorating and design," Palmer said. "Three years ago I went to school in Las Vegas and learned faux finishing."

Her creations look great hanging alone and are samples of what Palmer can accomplish on a whole wall or ceiling. "I'm trying out some abstract things — versus an actual picture — and metallics are in this year," Palmer said.

Palmer Faux Finishing prices range from $10 to $150.

Mini-Play Makeup

wanted to stoke her child's imagination without scrubbing shiny eye shadow and matte lipstick out of the carpet.

She searched for pretend makeup, then decided to make it herself. Over a year later Miller is producing a line of Mini-Play Makeup, with fashionable polka dot baggies, brush set and compact makeup box — all handmade and designed by Miller. With some success on eBay, Miller looks forward to selling the set locally.

"You want your kids to have that play experience and have fun pretending, and my Mini-Play Makeup does that," Miller said. "With the brushes it feels like she is putting on blush and eyeliner but there isn't the mess to clean up afterwards."

The $25 play set includes a five-piece brush kit with carrying case, compact with drawstring bag, mascara, eye shadow palette, three tubes of lipstick and a coordinating handled tote.

Tickets go on sale for Montreal Guitar Trio

Times-News

Tickets are available for Montreal Guitar Trio, Arts on Tour's third performance of the 2009-10 season.

The trio plays at 7:30 p.m. Nov. 4 in the College of Southern Idaho's Fine Arts Auditorium. Tickets are $20 for adults and $13 for high school students and younger.

Guitarists Glenn Levesque, Marc Morin and Sebastien Dufour of Montreal Guitar Trio match passionate mastery with a stealthy sense of humor.

The trio leads listeners through the mysterious melodies of India to the hot rhythms of South America, Spain, the Balkans, the Orient, traditional Quebec and beyond. Coming from a classical background, Montreal Guitar Trio members also sing and write much of their material.

Since it was founded at University of Montreal in 1998, the trio has given hundreds of concerts in North America and Western and Eastern Europe, many of which have been broadcast by national networks. Described by the Canadian Broadcasting Corp. as "the hottest guitar ensemble in Canada," Montreal Guitar Trio has established itself as a force of cross-pollenization between musical forms. Learn more, watch a performance clip or listen to the music: www.montrealguitartrio.com.

Buy tickets at the CSI Fine Arts Box Office from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Maze

point lost people in the right direction.

The coolest part? It's a toss-up between the haunted organist and the clown. The organist, dressed in a skull mask, plays ghoulish tunes on his electric keyboard. He's tucked in the back corner of the maze, so really look for him. The insane clown is close to the maze's center and is easier to find. Follow the sound of heavy metal music and his patients' screams.

Because the maze is outdoors, dress in layers and save a few dollars for hot chocolate at the end.

Hours: 7 p.m. to midnight tonight and Saturday and Oct. 30-31; 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. Oct. 29.

Cost: $10.

Melissa's scream count: 4, and I'm sure it would have been more had we gotten lost.

Time to go through maze: It depends on how lost you get. Our guided tour took 25 minutes, and we hit all corners of the maze.

Recommended for: Families with older children. Other features: Food court, free kiddie maze.

Kid-friendly times: The straw maze with no actors jumping out is open 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., Mondays through Saturdays this month. Cost is $5. The free kiddie maze is open during regular hours.

Rules to remember: No flashlights. Glow sticks are available for sale, and you'll probably need one.

Spend Halloween with Jekyll and Hyde

By Erica Littlefield
Times-News correspondent

It's a chilling story full of murder, love and mystery, and it's the perfect way to spend part of your Halloween weekend.

Magic Valley Little Theater will present the musical "Jekyll and Hyde" at 7:30 p.m. Thursday through Oct. 31 at the College of Southern Idaho. Although the show's dark subject matter isn't for young kids, director Lori Henson said, it is a chance for the brave at heart to revel in the season's spooky mood.

"This is a little bit more of a walk on the wild side," Henson said. "We're going to keep it true to the storyline."

"Jekyll and Hyde" is based on the novel by Robert Louis Stevenson and features a haunting score by Frank Wildhorn and lyrics by Leslie Bricusse. The story centers around Dr. Henry Jekyll, a doctor in 1880s London who develops a formula he believes can isolate and get rid of the evil side of someone's personality. When Jekyll takes the formula himself, it has the opposite effect. It releases his evil alter ego, a man named Edward Hyde who goes on a murderous rampage and terrorizes London.

"I think the audience will enjoy the suspense," said cast member Wade Gerber. "Be ready for a surprise ending."

Henson said she loves Wildhorn's music, especially the songs "Bring on the Men" and "This is the Moment," and enjoyed the challenge of choreographing murder scenes. People have asked Henson who is playing Jekyll and who is playing Hyde, but having one person handle both roles is integral to the plot and message of the show. Henson said actor Dusty Blackburn has done a commendable job creating the two characters.

"It takes an amazing actor to be that schizophrenic and bipolar," Henson said with a laugh. "We're not a high-tech theater company. We rely more on good acting than special effects?"

Blackburn did extensive research and preparation for his double role. Every character should have a signature prop, like Indiana Jones and his hat or Charlie Chaplain and his cane, Blackburn said. In "Jekyll and Hyde," Jekyll records the results of his experiments and keeps his research in a journal. Soon after Blackburn got the part, he found a journal and started writing entries from Jekyll's point of view. He even wrote entries from Jekyll's childhood and researched what kinds of chemicals Hyde might use to create his formula.

There are also differences in the way Blackburn walks and talks as the two characters. (Pay attention, and you'll notice that Jekyll is left-handed and Hyde right-handed.) The gravelly, growly voice Blackburn uses for Hyde is perfectly creepy, especially when he laughs maniacally during the song "Murder, Murder?"

"This is a great opportunity to play a villain," Blackburn said. "You don't want to be a villain in real life, but to get up on stage and play one is very freeing."

Ponder plants' relationship with people

Times-News

Ethnobotanists are making remarkable discoveries about the link between the plant and human worlds, say organizers of an upcoming lecture.

Balick

Michael Balick, a leading ethnobotanist, will speak at the College of Southern Idaho's first Eagle View Lecture event of this school year at 7 p.m. Thursday in the CSI Fine Arts Theater. His topic: "Between Plants and People?"

Balick's travels have taken him to some of the most remote places on Earth to study how indigenous cultures have used plants throughout their history,

CSI said. He remains active in the search for plants with medicinal properties, particularly in Belize where his research aided in formation of the world's first ethno-biomedical forest reserve. He has established numerous collaborations between communities and government and non-government organizations around the world.

Balick's presentation is free and open to the public.

Wood River Valley's Halloween culminates in 'Rocky Horror' showing

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

KETCHUM — Get out the rice and do the "Time Warp." The "Rocky Horror Picture Show" is coming to Ketchum.

The showing — on Halloween night at nexStage Theatre — is one of a plethora of Halloween happenings from Bellevue all the way north to Ketchum.

Wood River Valley's spooktacular spooktivities start Sunday with the annual Halloween Party at Hemingway Elementary School in Ketchum and run through Oct. 31 with Nightmare on Main Street.

Halloween at Hemingway Elementary

1-3 p.m. Sunday at 111 W. Eighth St., Ketchum

The Ketchum Police Department started this free event some 30 years ago and it's still running strong, attracting more than 700 costumed youngsters.

Highlights include a darkened Spook Alley with Mr. Creeps — old "fingers," "brains" and "hearts" designed to freak out kids just a little. Kids can throw beanbags through witches' mouths and play other games for treats. There'll be bouncy houses, free pizza and juice, and cookie decorating.

"We get them as young as 2 and as old as high school," said John Kearney, a member of the Ketchum Parks Department, which puts on the event with the Wood River YMCA and Ketchum and Sun Valley police departments. "It helps kids see the police in a different light since the police will be there handing out goodie bags."

Bellevue Haunted Forest

5:30-9 p.m. Thursday and Oct. 30, just off Broadford Road behind Mahoney's on Main Street

This creepy event, started

KAREN BOSSICK/For the Times-News

Men dressed as the Breakfast of Champions were among those vying for prizes at last year's Nightmare on Main Street in Ketchum.

last year, involves walking through a spooky woods filled with spirits of the departed played by live actors.

"You might expect to get really scared," said organizer Tammy Eaton. "We've stirred up some spirits of the past, and we're trying to keep them under control until this evening."

Only 500 tickets per night will be sold due to the crush of people trying to get in last year. Proceeds from ticket sales help maintain the Howard Preserve.

Tickets are $5 in Hailey at The Bead Shop and in

Sixth Annual Pumpkin Festival

4:30-7 p.m. Oct. 30 at Bellevue City Park, Third and Cedar streets

Youngsters who are faint of heart or easily scared are invited to this Bellevue Parks Department event. Charlie Brown's "Great Pumpkin" movie will be shown, and there'll be trick-or-treating and a costume contest.

Hailey Halloween Hoopla 2009

3-6:30 p.m. Oct. 31 in downtown Hailey

Pumpkins, tin men and scarecrows will flood Hailey's streets as merchants offer their annual trick-or-treating for kids. Participating businesses will string orange and black balloons outside from 3 to 6:30 p.m.

The Meriwether Building's Haunted Kitchen at 111 First Ave. N. will serve a light dinner and snacks for everyone wearing costumes from 3 to 6:30 p.m. And The Mint Promenade Haunted House on Main Street between Bullion and Croy streets will be open those hours, as well.

The annual Costume Contest at the Liberty Theatre, 110 N. Main St., will kick off for preschoolers at 3 p.m., followed by kindergarten through third grade from 4 to 5 p.m., fourth through eighth grades from 5:30 to 6 p.m. and high school on up from 6 to 6:30 p.m.

Hoopla is sponsored by South Valley Merchants' Alliance and Hailey Chamber of Commerce. No charge.

Harvest Festival

6-8 p.m. Oct. 31, Community Campus, 1050 Fox Acres Road, Hailey

Escape the chill of night — and the ghouls — at the annual Harvest Festival at the Community Campus.

The free fest for elementary schoolers will include a variation on apple bobbing where children vie to be the first to eat a doughnut hung from a string. There will be puppet shows, a fishing booth, ring toss, inflatable jumpy toys, bungee run, arts and crafts, basketball shoot, sandbag toss, puppet show and tons of candy.

Raggedy Ann and Andy, scarecrow and other costumes are permitted, provided they're not scary. Children dressed as goblins or other scary personas will be asked to take off their costumes.

"We just want to keep things positive," said co-organizer Linda Larsen. "We're the Halloween alternative, a safe indoors place for kids to spend Halloween night."

The festival is sponsored by Bellevue Community Church, The Life Church, Assembly of God, Calvary Bible Church, Valley of Peace Lutheran Church, Calvary Chapel and House of Prayer.

Third Annual Nightmare on Main Street

Oct. 31 in Ketchum

This bash, which revived Ketchum's street parties of years past, will feature two new events this year:

A kid's party will be held from 4 to 6 p.m. in the Ketchum Town Plaza across from Atkinsons' Market and will feature a carnival and carved pumpkin contest. Many local businesses will stay open until 6 p.m. to hand out treats to kids. And a costume contest will follow at 6 p.m. Admission is free, with a fee for carnival games.

"Rocky Horror Picture Show" will tee off at 9 p.m. at nexStage Theatre. Doors open at 8:30 p.m. for pre-movie libations, and the $5 admission includes the street party.

"Rocky Horror" was deemed a failure when it opened in 1975 to a small release. But the movie took on a life of its own as it was reintroduced at a midnight April Fools party. Viewers treated it like a melodrama, booing the villain and cheering the heroes. And with each showing it took on more life.

Viewers came dressed as Dr. Frank-n-Furber and other characters. They began yelling lines at the movie. They threw rice during the wedding scene and played cards during the song "I'm Going Home." And they danced the "Time War" along with the movie's tap dancing groupie.

The flick is about newlyweds who have a flat tire on a rainy November evening and seek help at a castle. They're met at the door by a hunchback and introduced to some strange people holding an annual Transylvania convention.

NexStage's Keith Moore says no one at the nexStage has seen the picture before. "But we're a little nervous since it involves throwing things in the theater."

The Nightmare on Main Street party begins outdoors at 8:30 p.m. and features howling good sounds spun by DJ Deban. Food and beverages will be provided outside and inside by the Roosevelt, Sawtooth Club and The Casino Club.

The costume contest will begin at 11 p.m. at the Main Street Stage with prizes: Best Rocky Horror Picture Show Theme, Best Group and Most Original.

Cover charge is $5 for the street party. Wristbands will be available for those 21 and older to purchase alcoholic beverages.

Mountain Rides will offer extended bus service that night with return buses leaving from Main and First streets at 11 p.m. and 1 a.m. Call 788-7433 for information.

More event information: 725-2105.

Classical: Magic Valley Symphony Fall Concert

Oct. 18 at College of Southern Idaho Fine Arts Auditorium

It feels great to laugh in delight at music. This concert gave many opportunities to do so. The audience came ready to love what they heard, and their expectations were lavishly fulfilled. And we sang "Happy Birthday" to director Ted Hadley quite tunefully for such a large group.

— Rose Garber, Twin Falls

Rock: Dirty Johnny

Pioneer Club in Twin Falls, Oct. 16-17

The always awesome Dirty Johnny played to a packed house both nights. They introduced two new covers to their lineup, "Burn it to the Ground" and "Sound of Madness" to the crowd's delight there was a surprise guest appearance by Rough Draft, who played "Man in the Box."

Three 'writers with stories to tell'

It is always thrilling to hold a treasured book in my hands — rediscovering a childhood favorite, inhaling the scent of an old, leather-bound tome, perusing glorious pictures from a beloved illustrator or gently opening a much-anticipated title for the first time.

The thrill was certainly there when I received a copy of "Voices From The Snake River Plain," the collection of essays, short stories and poetry from three talented local writers, Bonnie Dodge, Dixie Thomas Reale and Patricia Santos Marcantonio.

The lawn mowing, leaf raking and sidewalk sweeping went by the wayside as I sat on my deck and immersed myself in their worlds. I laughed, sighed, held my breath for a few moments and even cried while reading of families and friends, journeys and jealousies.

Marcantonio's "The Hitch," an engaging short story about a camping trip gone bad, left me giggling and nodding my head in agreement: Been there, done that! Forget the spectacular Stanley Basin scenery, mountain air and sparkling Salmon River; a lost trailer hitch leads to pointed fingers, heated words and thoughts of divorce. But her wise old character, Earl, quickly snaps everything back into focus: "Earl pulled up his welding mask. 'You folks should have a good time once this is fixed. You can hike the trails, cook over a campfire, fish a bit. See the stars together. That's the only way to see the stars, with someone you love so you know you aren't dreaming.'" Beautiful!

In the chapter "Remembrances," Reale captured my heart with "Mush." Anyone who grew up having to eat oatmeal-the-texture-of-wallpaper-paste for breakfast every morning will immediately identify with the feisty, stubborn little girl. Her mother said she would eat it. Period. She was determined not to. Period. It became a royal battle of wills and more than a little ingenuity on young Dixie's part: feeding it to the dog, tossing it out the window, dribbling large spoonfuls around her bowl. Since she didn't have to eat the slopped part, that maneuver became her answer:

"I decorated the room. The entire bowl was drizzled and splattered one spoonful at a time across the mahogany tabletop, the wall, the bench and onto the floor. There was so much of it that gray puddles ran into one another making small lakes. Once Mama saw the mess she scraped it back into the dish and slung it in front of me. Now it was cold and slimy, had a faint flavor of English wood oil, and smelled a bit like floor polish. 'You will eat this,' she said."

At this point, I was chuckling, but it was nothing compared with the laughter that erupted when I came to her final solution. What a creative little girl!

FINDING 'VOICES'

Magic Valley Arts Council will sponsor a book launch for "Voices From The Snake River Plain" from 7 to 9 p.m. Nov. 6 at the Full Moon Gallery on Twin Falls' Main Avenue. The self-published book sells for $15 plus tax and postage, at otherbunch.wordpress.com. One of its authors, Patricia Santos Marcantonio, is a Times-News employee.

After reading Dodge's "Surviving the Storm," set a few days after the attack on the World Trade Center, I barely moved for many long minutes, reflecting on her words, recalling the overwhelming feelings of those haunting days as our nation sat in stultified silence and pain.

The women debate their plans to attend a bookfest in Boise and a trip to Idaho City for their annual mini-retreat, struggling with their own fears and doubts about leaving home and families so soon. "It's what they want," writes Dodge. "They want to terrorize us into inaction. I think we should go." And so they do.

They spend hours exploring the former mining town, picking wildflowers, spontaneously attending a Catholic Mass, sharing homemade peach cobbler at Trudy's Diner.

Dodge writes: "Heading for the car, we stop when we see an area of the cemetery marked with weathered boards, each etched with only one word: Unknown. Like rubber bands, we're snapped back into reality as we think of the many new graves in New York City, some of which will soon be marked: Unknown. We exchange glances and, unembarrassed by our tears, embrace, holding onto each other longer than usual.

"We pass tissues like candy. Our hearts hurt. We have no words, no stories to define our nation's massive devastation. As we travel the road that will take us back to our families, smiles chase away sadness and the desperate need to be home ... Even in this troubled time, when our nation is stunned and nothing much is moving, we are. Because we're still writers with stories to tell."

And our lives are richer because these three writers have gathered and shared those stories with us.

SKI FLICK SPOTLIGHTS

SUN VALLEY FAMILY

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

SUN VALLEY — Roger Crist had been skiing for five years before Warren Miller strapped on his wooden skis and took an 8-millimeter camera onto a mountain filming his first ski adventure flick.

Sixty years later, Warren Miller Entertainment was in Sun Valley to film Crist celebrating his 70th birthday as he skied with his sons Reggie and Zach, three of his five grandchildren and a mountain slope full of friends.

The footage, along with shots of Zach and Reggie Crist backcountry skiing in the Sawtooth Mountains, is part of Miller's "Dynasty" ski flick, which will be shown next week in Sun Valley and Hailey.

"It was fun," said Roger Crist, a lawyer. "This skiing with the family bit was definitely a change of pace from the extreme skiing Warren Miller movies normally feature. I got some free helicopter skiing out of it and some nice lines in an area that was burned in the Castle Rock fire."

Miller's movies have attracted a cult-like following, marking the official start of winter for sports enthusiasts across the nation, said the ski flick's West Coast marketing director, Nancy Richter. This year's film promises the same.

What is different is a new look: lots of retro ski shots mixed in with the usual adrenaline footage. There's also a segment highlighting the greatest comedy moments found in Warren Miller Entertainment's vault of vintage footage.

The film, edited by Ketchum film editor Kim Schneider, follows two snowsport enthusiasts as they trek into the wilds of Northwestern China on handmade horse-drawn sleds in search of skiing's birthplace. They find a hidden skier's utopia in an ancient Chinese mountain community where locals live in immaculate log cabins and ski on hand-carved wooden skis with horsehair skins.

Then there's two brothers in Michigan who thumb their noses at Midwestern terrain's vertical challenges by building a manmade ski jump where the sky's the limit.

Reggie and Zach Crist, both pioneers in the relatively new sport of skiercross, have been featured in a number of Warren Miller movies. They and their sister Danielle — also a former ski racer — got Miller interested in the idea of a family ski segment after they took a video of their father in advance of his 70th birthday.

Skiing has been a focus of the family's life since 1979 when each member voted to move from San Francisco to Sun Valley, trading their urban lifestyle for a mountain. The family can often be seen skiing together on Baldy, from Grandfather Roger to Danielle's children, 6-year-old Jett and 4-year-old Zephyr Carruth, and Zach's 4-year-old, Ruby.

The film segment emphasizes that living in a ski town is more about the quality of lifestyle rather than what kind of job you have or the money you're making, Zach Crist said: "It's really about the memories that you share with good people and good places."

Reggie Crist said he never entertained the notion that he might one day appear in a Miller movie as he watched them as a youngster.

THE START OF WINTER

- What: Showings of Warren Miller's "Dynasty"
- When: 6 and 9 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday at the Sun Valley Opera House; 8 p.m. Oct. 30 at the Community Campus, 1050 Fox Acres Road in Hailey.
- Tickets: $18, available at Sturtevant's: 340 N. Main St. in Ketchum, and Main and Carbonate streets in Hailey. Also available at the door. Groups of 12 or more will receive $1 off each ticket plus Warren Miller DVDs and swag (800-523-7117).
- Bonus: Everyone attending "Dynasty" receives a free lift ticket voucher to Soldier Mountain and a certificate good for $25 off a purchase of $100 or more at Sturtevant's. Raffles held in conjunction with the movie showings at the Sun Valley Opera House will include Sun Valley Resort day passes, a $250 gift card from Sun Valley, a $100 gift card from Sturtevant's and a season pass from Soldier Mountain.
- And a party: A "Dynasty" pre-premier party will be held from 4 to 9 p.m. Wednesday in Sun Valley's Boiler Room. The party will include a live remote with local DJ Lenny Joseph from 4 to 6 p.m. There'll be $2 Corona beer specials, food, music and movies.

"The cool thing then was that the technology wasn't such that you could put an audio soundtrack on top of the film. So Warren Miller would come to Sun Valley and narrate the movie live," he recalled. "Now, it's fun to watch myself because I get to revisit those special moments in my own life. And there's nothing like skiing on top of the mountain peaks we get to ski, especially one that's never been skied yet."

29 THURSDAY

Theater/Twin Falls

Magic Valley Little Theater presents "Jekyll and Hyde, the Musical," at 7:30 p.m. at College of Southern Idaho's Fine Arts Center auditorium, 315 Falls Ave. The production, a tale of the epic battle between good and evil, is based on Robert Louis Stevenson's classic story about a brilliant doctor whose experiments with human personality create a murderous counterpart. As the show begins, unearthly voices seem to vanish upward into the fog. Dr. Henry Jekyll's voice is heard over the fog, and he speaks of duality of man and the struggle between his inherently good side and his evil nature. Convinced the cure for his father's mental illness lies in the separation of man's evil nature from his good, Jekyll unwittingly unleashes his own dark side, wreaking havoc in the streets of 19th-century London as the savage, maniacal Edward Hyde. Tickets are $10 for general admission, at Everybody's Business, Kurt's Pharmacy and CSI's box office, or from any cast member or at the door.

Lecture/Twin Falls

CSI band mixes new and old in fall concert

Times-News

The College of Southern Idaho's Symphonic Band, directed by George K. Halsell, will perform at 3 p.m. Sunday in the CSI Fine Arts Auditorium. The "Fall Feast" concert will feature both standard and contemporary selections.

It will open with "British Eighth March," written by American composer Alonzo "Zo" Elliott in 1943, followed by "Partita for Band" by James Curnow, editor for The Salvation Army's music publications. The first portion of the concert will close with two classic works for band, "Toccata" by Franck Erickson and "Chorale and Shaker Dance" by Minnesota-based composer John Zdechlik.

The second half of the concert will open with "March with Trumpets" by American composer William Bergsma. Although his only work for band, this march has long been a staple of the band repertoire, Halsell said in a press release. Bergsma chaired the composition department at the Julliard School in New York and later the School of Music at the University of Washington. "Song (for Band)" by William Bolcom will follow; it was written in honor of the retirement of H. Robert Reynolds from the directorship of the University of Michigan bands and offers soaring and beautiful melodic lines in a contemporary setting. Bolcom has received numerous awards as a composer, including two Grammys and a Pulitzer Prize.

The concert will close with British composer Gustav Holst's "First Suite in E Flat." This 1921 work is in three movements — a Chaconne that features variations over a melodic line, a spritely Intermezzo and a March — and based on a number of English folk songs.

Admission is by a suggested $5 donation to the CSI Music Scholarship Fund. Information: Halsell at 732-6767 or ghalsell@csi.edu.

Twin Falls spikers win GBC title

Bruins cap impressive run through conference

By David Bashore
Times-News writer

Thirteen conference wins without loss, and a trip to the state tournament.

The Twin Falls volleyball team capped an impressive run through the Great Basin Conference by beating Minico 25-20, 25-21, 25-17 in the championship game at Baun Gymnasium on Thursday, earning the district's top seed to next week's state tournament in Coeur d'Alene or Post Falls.

"We did it!" Bruin middle attacker Cheltzie Williams said. "We had goals for this team and we've hit every one — so far!"

A season ago the Bruins floundered through their final Class 5A campaign, but they seized control of their Class 4A district from the onset and never let slip their grip on first place.

Williams had 12 kills in the Bruins' exclamation-point win, while Ariel Medina had 11 kills and 13 assists. Setter Allie Johnson, mixing her sets and the team's attacks with ruthless calculation, had 27 assists.

"It's so cool because you keep mixing it up and no one on the other side knows what you're doing," said Johnson. "We really needed this experience — it helped us push through."

The Bruins never really seemed out of control of the match, despite the first two sets remaining tight until a decisive late run. The third set was another story altogether as Twin Falls raced away from the Spartans midway through and never looked back as they claimed the conference's traveling trophy.

Healthy again, Hardy shines for Vandals

By Josh Wright
Times-News correspondent

MOSCOW — The first prognosis came via cell phone. Daniel Hardy was in his bedroom, unable to shake the pain in his kidney, when a doctor told him to brace for bad news.

The results from a CAT scan were back and football looked to be out of the equation, at least for a while.

Everything looked promising for the Vandals, but Hardy wondered if his junior season was over.

The blood found in his urine only made the injury more unsettling.

"I think anytime you have the type of injury he had and you're waiting to find out the severity, it's certainly going to make you worry," Idaho offensive coordinator Steve Axman said.

The situation, however, began to turn in Hardy's favor when he saw a urologist in Pullman. More tests were done and the original doctor's forecast was reversed. Hardy was forced to miss just one game with a lacerated kidney.

Last week he returned at full strength against Hawaii, making three catches for 62 yards and showing why he was the Vandals' leading receiver before the injury.

Bruins can sweep GBC football schedule with win at Minico

By Bradley Guire
Times-News writer

This team doesn't put football first, but first is exactly where they sit in the Great Basin Conference.

The Twin Falls Bruins have played through some rough and rocky football seasons since winning the Class 5A state championship in 2004, but sparked a turnaround this fall that grew into a conference championship and a spot in the playoffs. Leading the way was a mantra of life, school and football.

"It's not football first," head coach Allyn Reynolds said. "There wouldn't be a football team without the school. I think that parents appreciate that, I know our faculty appreciates that and the attitude is that there's trust that it's the way it's going to be."

Attitudes have changed since the particularly rough stretch of 2005-07, when the Bruins suffered through a 18-game losing streak.

"A lot of the guys have been in since Reynolds started," senior center Jacob Nolan said. "We've bought in. I like how we're a team now. There are no distractions, so we can worry about football."

His teammate, senior lineman Cannon Sims Clark, agreed with the assessment, calling their cooperation a "crucial part of football."

There were growing pains through the past three seasons: dismissing a few players, losing some to the split created by Canyon Ridge High School's formation and losing some to economic hardship. Still, the players and staff have stayed the course and are reaping the benefits of a conference championship and a berth to the state playoffs.

"Let's face it," Reynolds said.

Twin Falls at Minico

Radio: MIX 103 (102.9 FM), 970 AM KFTA
Minico High School will celebrate its senior night for football players at Bill Matthews Field in Rupert. Festivities will include a Harley-Davidson motorcycle exhibition prior to kickoff, and the first 500 fans will receive a free hot dog.

"Winning is the blanket that secures."

Of course, moving to 4A has allowed the Bruins to rekindle old rivalries in a new way.

"The Jerome-Twin thing, it's going to be huge," Reynolds said. "Playing Minico means something. They mean a lot to these kids because it's who they played in middle school. It was a geographical nightmare out here."

ference crown? 2004?

Close, but wrong. Try 2003. Even though the program claimed a state championship in '04, it did so without winning the conference. The conference title came the season prior.

While the program has won league titles before, one would be hard pressed to find the last time Twin Falls went unscathed in conference play without spending some time looking at rolls and rolls

Bonneville stuns Jerome boys

By Jason Chatraw
Times-News correspondent

CALDWELL — The Jerome Tigers boys soccer team never saw it coming. In control with a comfortable 2-0 lead after scoring twice in less than 60 seconds to start the second half, the Tigers suffered a crushing 3-2 defeat in overtime to Bonneville in the quarterfinals of the boys Class 4A state tournament Thursday afternoon.

"Soccer is like a chess game — sometimes you have your opponent where you want them, but until it's over, they can always make a comeback," lamented Jerome head coach Robert Garcia.

For most of the game, Jerome (19-2) held Bonneville in check, dominating possession and narrowly missing opportunities to put if it was going to win going away in the first minute of the second half. Midfielder Carlos Martinez ripped a shot from just outside the penalty area into the upper right corner of the net for a 1-0 lead.

Moments later, Saul Diaz chipped a shot over the head of Bonneville keeper Saul Salmeron, who was off his line, as the Tigers built a 2-0 advantage.

T.F. girls drop 2OT thriller to Hillcrest

By Jason Chatraw
Times-News correspondent

CALDWELL — While the Twin Falls girls dominated almost every aspect of their match with Hillcrest Thursday afternoon in the girls Class 4A state soccer tournament, they couldn't overcome the stone wall that was Hillcrest's defense, losing a heartbreaker 2-1 in double overtime.

Twin Falls (14-6-2) clearly held an advantage in skill and possession over Hillcrest, but the Bruins struggled to finish.

Allie Webb, who was visibly hampered by a recent ankle injury, was victimized numerous times by Hillcrest's outstanding keeper play and hit the sidebar on two other shots.

After a scoreless first half, however, McKenzie Johnson caught the Hillcrest defense napping and raced through the middle to score on a breakaway and give Twin Falls a 1-0 lead in the 45th minute.

Jadie Batter broke free from Twin Falls' defense and drilled a shot with pinpoint accuracy into the upper right corner of the net to knot the score at 1-1.

In the opening moments of the second overtime, Twin Falls' Madi Bernhisel collected a long corner kick and just missed bending the ball over the Hillcrest defense as it leaked over the crossbar.

PREP RALLY

High School High Five

A look at five of this week's biggest prep football games

7 p.m.

Radio: 1230 AM KBAR (Burley), 1400 AM KART (Jerome)

The skinny: With a Great 8 playoff berth already locked up, Jerome (4-3, 3-1 GBC) looks to send out its 29 seniors in style on senior night. The Tigers haven't lost at home in two years.

Burley (2-5, 2-2 GBC) isn't guaranteed a spot in the Great 8 yet, but can do no worse than a Kansas City-style playoff on Monday.

Burley coach Eugene Kramer:

"(Jerome) can move the ball like they always have, so we're going to do some things and take some chances. We're going to play to win, not to stay close."

Jerome coach Gary Krumm: "My biggest concern right now is we're really banged up. I think we've woken up, so to speak. We played well (the past two weeks). I expect Burley to bring something to the table."

VALLEY AT GLENN'S FERRY
7 p.m.

The skinny: It's simple: winner goes to the Class 2A state playoffs, while the loser stays home. For seniors like Philip Owsley and Michael Crane of Glenns Ferry (5-2, 0-1) and Brogen Reed and Derek Gerratt of Valley (5-2, 0-1), this is the biggest football game of their high school careers.

Glenns Ferry senior Ross Arellano: "We have a (state playoff) tradition, so it's going to be a huge game for us. They have the same exact record as we do and there's no chance we can overlook them."

Valley coach Brian Ayers: "We're evenly matched. We both have some good offensive weapons and both teams use them very well. But I think it's going to come down to who can control the line of scrimmage."

WENDELL AT BUHL
7 p.m.

The skinny: The Indians (7-0, 3-0 SCIC) can wrap up an undefeated regular season and an outright conference title with a win over Wendell (3-4, 2-1). Buhl got its first true test of the season last week in a 29-14 win over Kimberly. The Tribe will again be without Blake Finney (FB/LB), which is a big loss on both sides of the ball. Wendell will need to be successful with its power run game to keep Buhl's high-scoring offense on the sideline.

Buhl coach Stacy Wilson: "Getting our kids refocused after a big win at Kimberly has been a big task, but we have to get through Wendell to get that conference championship and I think our kids are ready for it."

Wendell coach: Brad Neundorf:

WOOD RIVER AT CANYON RIDGE

Radio: 1270 AM KTFI

The skinny: The Riverhawks (1-6, 1-3) can do their part to force a three-way Kansas City playoff with a win over the Wolverines (1-6, 0-4). They'll have to do it without starting QB Tyler Myers, who is done for the season with a shoulder injury. With backup quarterback Chase Joslin injured, receiver Colton Sweesy will get the nod at QB. "I'm just going to take it easy and get ready for next season," said Myers.

Canyon Ridge coach Bill Hicks: "We're going to have to really rally around Colton Sweesy and not put a lot of burden on him. ... Wood River has struggled just like we have, but they've got some good athletes. ... It'll be a great experience for our young kids to get into a three-way playoff and go from there."

LIGHTHOUSE CHRISTIAN AT CASTLEFORD
7 p.m.

The skinny: Undefeated Castleford (7-0, 3-0 SRC) can clinch a state playoff berth with a win over Lighthouse Christian (5-2, 4-2 SRC). It will be a matchup of the Lions' speed vs. the pounding running of Castleford. Four Wolves will be celebrating their senior night.

Lighthouse coach John van Vliet: "We understand it's a big game. This is a playoff game, really. We need to win or we're pretty much out of (the state playoff picture). It's the kind of game you really look forward to playing this time of year."

Castleford coach Tracy Vulgamore: "We have confidence in the things that we do, but we're also worried about their speed. They're the fastest team we've faced so far and we don't want to give up any big plays."

Angels answer Yankees' rally, extend ALCS

Los Angeles Angels closer Brian Fuentes reacts after making the last out in the ninth inning to beat the New York Yankees in Game 5 of the American League Championship Series.

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Just when all looked lost, the Los Angeles Angels took a cue from an old friend. With their Rally Monkey doing his best work in years, the Angels sent the AL championship series back to New York. Kendry Morales drove in the go-ahead run with a two-out single in the seventh inning, and the Angels responded to the Yankees' six-run comeback moments earlier for a 7-6 win Thursday night that trimmed New York's lead in the ALCS to 3-2.

Vladimir Guerrero's single tied it in the seventh for the Angels, who somehow didn't surrender after blowing a 4-0 lead. New York struck immediately after manager Mike Scioscia removed ace John Lackey, with Robinson Cano capping the rally with a two-run triple. The Game 5 theatrics continued right up to the final pitch, when Angels closer Brian Fuentes retired Nick Swisher on a full-count popup with the bases loaded. "My hair is falling out," said shaved-headed Angels outfielder Torii Hunter, who had a two-run single in Los Angeles' four-run first inning. "We're having a little fun, man. Everybody thought we were down." Game 6 is Saturday night at Yankee Stadium, with Andy Pettitte facing Los Angeles' Joe Saunders. Also in the forecast: a huge rain-storm. When Cano put New York up 6-4, everything in somber Angel Stadium pointed to a clinching victory and a 40th AL pennant for the Yankees. Instead, the Angels showed off the knack for late-game comebacks they've possessed ever since their run to their only championship in 2002, when the beloved Rally Monkey began appearing in the late innings on their scoreboard and in plush form in the stands. "It's a missed opportunity, but we still have another game," Yankees manager Joe Girardi said. "We've bounced back from tough losses all year long. We've had it happen to us before and been able to get off the carpet."

Thomas says he's 'hurt' over Magic's book comments

MIAMI — Hall of Fame players Isiah Thomas and Magic Johnson famously kissed each other's cheek moments before tip-off of Game 1 of the 1988 NBA finals.

Today, the relationship clearly isn't anywhere near as close.

In Thomas' mind, a 17-year-old wound has been reopened in a new book that Johnson and Larry Bird wrote with author Jackie MacMullan. In the book, Johnson says, among other things, that he played a role in keeping Thomas off the 1992 U.S. Olympic team.

"I'm just disappointed and hurt," Thomas told The Associated Press on Thursday night before a promotional event for his men's basketball team at FIU. "I never thought it was him who kept me off the Olympic team. That hurt."

Thomas' disappointment with aspects of the book were first reported by SI.com.

In the book, which chronicles the careers of Bird and Johnson, the former Los Angeles Lakers great who retired from basketball in 1991 after being diagnosed with HIV said Thomas questioned his sexuality and that several players did not want him on the original "Dream Team" that easily won Olympic gold.

"Isiah killed his own chances when it came to the Olympics," Johnson said in the book, an advance copy of which was obtained by The AP. "Nobody on that team wanted to play with him. ... I'm sad for Isiah. He has alienated so many people in his life, and he still doesn't get it. He doesn't understand why he wasn't chosen for that Olympic team and that's really too bad. You should be aware when you've ticked off more than half of the NBA."

Rod Owens had nine catches for 199 yards, including a 98-yard score, for the Seminoles (3-4, 1-3 Atlantic Coast Conference), who trailed 24-6 early in the third quarter.

Instead, Ponder directed a stunning rally against the nation's third-ranked total defense, including the go-ahead 18-yard touchdown pass to a wide-open Beau Reliford with 6:20 to play.

GOLF

O'Hern leads at Frys.com Open

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. — Brandishing a hot putter on a warm afternoon, Australian Nick O'Hern cruised to a career-low 63 and the Frys.com Open lead Thursday.

O'Hern, who finished at 7 under, putted only nine times while posting a 28 on the par-35 back nine at Grayhawk. Eight of O'Hern's nine birdies came in that stretch.

Bob Heintz and Heath Slocom were one stroke back at 64, and D.A. Points, Rory Sabbatini, Greg Owen and Rickie Fowler shot 65s to finish two shots off the lead.

Garcia in front at Castello

CASTELLON, Spain — Defending champion Sergio Garcia shot an 8-under 63 on his home course to take the lead during the suspended first round of the Castello Masters.

Gusts up to 40 mph forced the players off the Club de Campo del Mediterraneo course — where Garcia's father, Victor, is the club pro — for 3 hours at lunchtime.

Garcia, winless this year, had a one-stroke lead over Australia's Robert Allenby and Sweden's Michael Jonzon.

Gooding tops Snake River

Bliss falls in first round

By Dustin Lapray
Times-News correspondent

CALDWELL — In their first state tournament since 1998, the Gooding Senators sank Snake River 4-1 to advance to the semifinals of the Class 3A boys state soccer tournament at Vallivue High School.

"This was real important for us to get our first win," Gooding Coach Roger Johnson said. "If they do the best they can, then good things happen. I expect that out of them all the time, win or lose."

Three different Senators — Jose Rodriguez, Manuel Gallegos and Daniel Lopez — scored in the game. Gooding's pressure in the box also forced the Panthers to score an own goal off a fullback's leg.

"We don't feed anybody to score," Johnson said. "We just play as a team. Anybody that can do it does."

Gooding was able to push the ball downfield, passing accurately without going offside. If not for stout play from the Panthers' keeper, the margin could have been more lopsided.

"We're a passing team," Johnson said. "We practiced all year passing the ball, and that's what we're trying to do, just keep ball control. I try not to coach the long ball, just the short pass, control the ball and don't turn it over."

Most of the game was played at the ends, with both teams moving quickly through the midfield. The Senator defense was physical and fast, limiting Snake River's scoring opportunities and hitting quick outlets to spur the offense. Damen Hanson only allowed one goal, to Panther freshman Andy Garcia, and made two spectacular second-half saves.

"We built our team from the very first practice based on defense," Johnson said. "My best players are my defenders. That's the way I coach. If they can't score on you, they can't beat you."

Gooding faces Sugar-Salem today at 2 p.m. The Diggers beat defending state champion Payette 4-3 Thursday.

"We're going to give it the best we got," Johnson said.

WEISER 3, BLISS 1

Bliss junior forward Luis Cortez scored his 48th goal of the season Thursday at Vallivue High in the quarterfinals of the 3A state tournament.

But that breakaway strike in the 52nd minute was the only score put past Weiser keeper Ruben Ruiz as the Wolverines topped the Bears 3-1.

"We were one foot away from scoring five or six times and we just couldn't get it done," Bliss coach

Daniel Knapp said. "We let them in the game and it turned from our game to their game. We got out of our passing game and that threw us off. We played catch up after that."

Jessy Solis gave Weiser the lead in the 12th minute, lobbing a shot over Bliss keeper Javier Beltran. Tito Zacarias put the game away in the second half, scoring goals in the 57th and 64th minutes.

Beltran made a few mistakes, but also saved two sure-fire scores, stretching out to block headers in the box.

Weiser played five defensemen in the second half as Bliss tried to force action against the brisk west wind. Cortez exhibited brilliant footwork, often dancing around two or three defenders to push the ball forward.

"He's got good footwork, a powerful shot and he's got speed," Knapp said. "He knows how to put the ball in the net."

Knapp said his star forward was limited by the short field at Vallivue High as two of the fields at the tournament only reach 105 feet, if that. They are also narrower than regulation fields.

"He needs acreage to run," Knapp said. "They put us on these dinky fields. This isn't real. If you have a slow team you'd want a shorter field, but I've got a speedy guy up front. I want acreage. I need distance. That's the draw we had. It didn't suit us, but it happens. That's the way life is."

Bliss plays Bonners Ferry at 11 a.m. today in the consolation bracket.

Cutthroats, Wildcats fall short

By Dustin Lapray
Times-News correspondent

CALDWELL — Sometimes losing by a large margin can be better than chewing off a nail-biter, according to Community School coach Kelly Feldman after her Cutthroats fell 4-0 to Payette in the girls Class 3A state soccer tournament.

"You have to put it behind you," Feldman said. "On one hand, I'm glad we lost outright, because it's so much harder than losing in penalty kicks. It's so emotional, so much harder to recover from."

The Pirates got goals from Hailey Gross, Crystal Gutierrez and Mayra Flores in the win, and advance to play Orofino today at 2 p.m. in the semifinals. The Community School plays Teton at 11 a.m. in consolation play.

Feldman blamed turnovers in the passing game for the loss.

STEVE CONNER/For the Times-News
Freya Dickey (9) of the Community School battles the Payette defense in the quarterfinals of the girls Class 3A state soccer championships in Caldwell on Thursday.

"We just ended up a lot of times playing panic ball," Feldman said. "We'd win the ball and we'd just kick it away. We passed the ball to them a lot. We just didn't look up, didn't play with that confidence we needed to."

Feldman also came away frustrated with the officiating after some uncalled take-downs.

The Cutthroats applied pressure to the Pirate defense, but rarely managed to turn it into scoring opportunities. One early shot ricocheted off the cross bar.

Feldman was already preparing her team for today's test as they came off the field.

"It's whoever can recover and come back and play that's going to win," Feldman said. "Hopefully we can be that team."

FRUITLAND 8, FILER 0

Filer fell in the opening round to defending state champion Fruitland. The Grizzlies scored five goals in the first half against inexperienced keeper Allie Hull, who usually plays midfield. Katie Williams, Filer's regular keeper, missed the game due to illness.

"Against the No. 1 team in the state is not a good place to get experience," Filer Coach Shane Hild said. "They make you pay for every mistake you make on the field."

Under the circumstances, Hull remained resilient. She relaxed in the second half. Filer is in its third year playing soccer and had its eyes opened to the quality of opponents it will face at state.

"Playing against a quality opponent like that teaches you about positioning, about field placement, handling the ball," Hild said. "If we'd played that kind of competition all year, we'd be much better when we got here."

For Hild's young team, the experience at state is still valuable.

"Going to state is a big experience for the kids," Hind said. "It gives you two or three extra games the other teams don't get, to develop your younger players."

Hild said his team still needs to improve on passing, dribbling and ball control before they can advance in the tourney.

"We're hoping (Friday) we can come out and rebound," Hind said. "If we play like we're capable, we can get a win and hopefully be playing on Saturday."

Filer plays Bonners Ferry at 11 a.m. today in consolation.

Shoshone volleyball squad punches ticket to state tourney

By Ryan Howe
Times-News writer

HANSEN — The Shoshone volleyball team took Monday's loss to Hagerman to heart.

"We went back and had a little practice and talked about playing for pride," said Shoshone coach Larry Messick.

The Indians did just that on Thursday, defeating Raft River and then Hagerman to claim second place at the Snake River Conference tournament and earn a berth in the Class 1A Division I state tournament next weekend at Lewis-Clark State College in Lewiston.

"Against Hagerman the other night we'd get down a few points and kind of put our tail between our legs and look at the scoreboard," Messick said. "We told them, 'Don't look at the score, just go out and play.'"

If the Indians (25-4) stole a glance at the scoreboard, they would have seen their team ahead most the night. After dropping the first set to Raft River, Shoshone was in control the rest of the way, winning 23-25, 25-22, 25-22, 25-19.

The Indians defeated Hagerman 25-19, 26-24, 25-18.

Against Raft River, in sets two through four, Shoshone jumped out to early leads, leaving the Trojans scrambling to fight back into the match.

"It's such a momentum game, you have to fight through that mentally," said Messick. "You have to be mentally tough in these types of games."

The Indians found that mental toughness after dropping the first set.

Jenny Perron had 13 kills while Kelcie Hutchins added 12.

Raft River finished its season 21-6. Trojan coach Cami Schumann said she feels one of the best teams in the state won't be at the Class 1A tournament.

"It's so hard to see it end because it's been a fun season," Schumann said. "They're a great group of girls, they work hard all the time and have shown a lot of heart. It's been an honor as a coach to be able to work with these girls."

Raft River was led by its seniors. Whitney Holtman tallied 27 digs, 21 kills, and four blocks. Hailey Higley had 24 digs, Chelzee Nye earned 13 kills and two blocks and Marissa Greenwood had 21 assists to go with perfect serving.

Against Hagerman, Shoshone setter setter Taylor Astle did a fine job running the offense, accurately distributing balls to hitters at ideal moments. Shoshone was also active at the net, with Victoria Vaughn earning five blocks. Jennica Kerner had 13 service points.

Nebeker. Cheyenne Crist had 16 assists.

"We're pretty evenly matched, we just had too many errors tonight," said Hagerman coach Carrie Chizum. "We hit the ball out, hit the ball in the net, we missed more serves than we usually do. A combination of a lot of things didn't go our way."

The Pirates' season is still alive, as they will go to Declo at 7 p.m. Saturday for a state play-in match against District's III third-place team.

"We've got another shot," Chizum said. "We've just got to rebound and go play Saturday."

Class 1A Division II Northside Conference tournament

DIETRICH 3, CAREY 0

Dietrich made quick work of Carey, winning 25-13, 25-15, 25-12. Kelci Dalton and Halie Stoddard had a stellar night on the back row, while Moriah Dill led a balanced attack with 10 kills. Dayna Phillips added eight kills and Nakiya Norman had six kills.

RICHFIELD 3, COMMUNITY SCHOOL 0

Richfield stayed alive with a 25-15, 25-8, 25-10 win over the Community School, eliminating the Cutthroats. The Tigers will face Carey at 4:30 p.m., Saturday.

CAREY 3, MAGIC VALLEY CHRISTIAN 1

Carey advanced to Saturday play with a 25-15, 25-7, 19-25, 25-14 win over Magic Valley Christian. The Conquerors were eliminated with the defeat.

COMMUNITY SCHOOL 3, MURTAUGH 0

The Community School won its early match 25-20, 25-14, 25-10 against Murtaugh. The Red Devils were eliminated with the loss.

BYU, TCU QBs are unknowns who win

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Neither is flashy or particularly well-known despite their connections to famous quarterbacks and the success of their teams.

TCU's Andy Dalton and BYU's Max Hall are both third-year starters, two of the nation's most-underrated quarterbacks playing in the Mountain West Conference. All they do is win games.

At TCU, only Sammy Baugh has more victories as a quarterback than the 23 by Dalton, a junior who still has 1½ seasons left to match or surpass the 29 that "Slingin' Sammy" had in the mid-1930 for the Horned Frogs.

"I've seen that stat, so hopefully I can keep winning. Hopefully, we can keep winning," said Dalton, who like Hall has lost only six games since the start of the 2007 season.

Hall, a senior and the nephew of former Dallas Cowboys quarterback Danny White, has 27 wins, two shy of the BYU-record 29 by Ty Detmer from 1988-91.

Only one can win Saturday night when 10th-ranked and BCS buster hopeful TCU (6-0, 2-0) plays at No. 16 BYU (6-1, 3-0), already a longshot for Bowl Championship Series consideration but still unscathed in the conference featuring three ranked teams — the other is No. 19 Utah, which TCU and BYU play in November.

"It's going to be a good showcase for our conference and hopefully we'll gain some more respect," said Hall, referring to the teams, not just the quarterbacks.

Following in the line of guys like Detmer, Steve Young and Jim McMahon, Hall has at least two touchdown passes in every game this season, and is 126 yards shy of joining Detmer and John Beck as the only 10,000-yard career passers for the Cougars. Only Detmer (121), McMahon (84) and Beck (79) have more than Hall's 77 career TD passes.

"I'm playing well," said Hall, who has 2,069 yards passing with 16 TDs this season. "I don't know if I would say I'm peaking, but I have done some good things."

After throwing 10 interceptions the first five games, Hall has consecutive 300-yard games the past two weeks against UNLV and San Diego State without throwing an interception or being sacked.

One of Hall's worst games last season was at TCU, when he was sacked seven times and threw two interceptions in a 32-7 loss that ended the Cougars' 16-game winning streak and took them out of the BCS race. But the Horned Frogs know how good Hall is.

"We have to find a way to keep Max Hall contained," defensive end Jerry Hughes said. "He knows the ins and outs of that offense. He's going to execute it perfectly."

Hughes, who has eight sacks this season, got four of his nation-leading 15 last season against Hall.

Dalton directs a balanced offense that averages more yards rushing than passing, 225 to 206. He is an efficient leader who could leave TCU as the school's most prolific passer — his 5,924 career yards are second to Max Knake's record of 7,370.

"The game is a lot slower to Andy Dalton than it was two years ago, and maybe was last year the early part of the season," coach Gary Patterson said. "The other thing, he demands in the huddle. Not only in the huddle, but emotion in the middle of the week trying to get everybody riled up."

Dalton has completed two-thirds of his passes (93 of 142) for 1,223 yards with eight touchdowns and only three interceptions this year. He has a 78-percent completion rate after half-time, with six TDs and no picks, and also has 233 yards rushing on 57 carries, the second-most on the team.

"I'm a big motivator on the field. That's one of the my big things I've really focused on this year," Dalton said. "I try to let my actions really show what I'm about."

Raiders coach Cable won't be charged in alleged assault

NAPA, Calif. — Oakland Raiders coach Tom Cable won't face charges after being investigated over allegations that he assaulted one of his assistants, ending a two-month saga that was a cloud over the team's season.

Napa County district attorney Gary Lieberstein said Thursday that the investigation concluded no charges were warranted.

"Our duty is to do the right thing for the right reasons," Lieberstein said. "Under the facts and circumstances of this case, it would be a miscarriage of justice to pursue criminal charges and we will not ask our citizens to give up their valuable time for jury duty, nor will we allow our criminal justice system to be compromised."

Cable has denied the charges from the beginning and said shortly before the district attorney's announcement that he trusted in the legal system. Cable said he does not intend to speak to the media again until Friday.

"The Raider organization waited patiently for a comprehensive legal process to conclude and now this matter has been resolved," Raiders spokesman Mike Taylor said. "Our focus has been and remains on the New York Jets."

The alleged attack occurred at the team's training camp hotel on Aug. 5 in Napa, after Cable called Randy Hanson into a meeting with defensive coordinator John Marshall and defensive backs coaches Lionel Washington and Willie Brown.

GOV. SIGNS LA-AREA FOOTBALL STADIUM WAIVER BILL

INDUSTRY, Calif. — Gov. Arnold Schwarzenegger said Thursday he has signed a bill allowing the construction of a 75,000-seat stadium that developers hope will lure an NFL team back to the Los Angeles area.

Schwarzenegger said he signed the environmental exemption bill last week but saved the announcement for a news conference in Industry, where the stadium would be built about 15 miles east of Los Angeles.

The bill nullifies a lawsuit filed by residents in nearby Walnut over the project's environmental impact.

Schwarzenegger called the lawsuit frivolous before a crowd of union members wearing hardhats. Across the street, a dozen protesters from Walnut and other nearby communities held signs saying "No Stadium."

"This is the best kind of action state government can create — action that cuts red tape, generates jobs, is environmentally friendly and brings a continued economic boost to California," Schwarzenegger said.

JUDGE REFUSES TO DISMISS RAPE SUIT AGAINST BIG BEN

RENO, Nev. — A Nevada judge denied a motion Thursday to dismiss a lawsuit accusing Pittsburgh Steelers quarterback Ben Roethlisberger of raping a woman at a hotel-casino in Lake Tahoe.

Washoe District Court Judge Brent Adams also refused a request by a lawyer for the two-time Super Bowl champ to sanction the woman's attorney for pursuing the case without sufficient evidence.

The judge said in a one-page order that Cal Dunlap, a lawyer and former district attorney, had met the minimal standards required to avoid the imposition of sanctions in his representation of the former VIP host at Harrah's Lake Tahoe who accused the quarterback of sexually assaulting her and Harrah's of covering it up.

"I'm not surprised by the judge's ruling," Dunlap said. He declined further comment.

David Cornwell, Roethlisberger's lead attorney, said in a statement the judge's ruling suggests he was giving the woman "the benefit of the doubt at a stage in the proceedings where a full examination of her contemporaneous statements and conduct is premature."

Jerome

The lead would hold up for the next half hour before Bonneville finally made a move. In the 70th minute, Dennis Vivar slipped a shot past Jerome keeper Roman Vazquez, slicing the Tigers' lead to 2-1.

"We were not expecting Jerome to come at us as hard as they did, especially to start the second half," said Bonneville head coach Ali Siahpush. "But soccer is about momentum, and I told our team after we fell behind that two goals are nothing — and if we can score one, the games is ours."

Siahpush's rallying cry proved true for Bonneville.

Then three minutes from the final whistle, Salmeron, who switched from keeper to midfield late in the second half, atoned for his earlier mistake and scored on a breakaway to bring Bonneville level at 2-2.

In overtime, Bonneville star forward Luis Gomez, who had been contained throughout regulation, hit a looping shot over Vazquez's head that bounced into the net to clinch the victory.

"We had a lot of obstacles to overcome this season and we fought through them," said Garcia. "I'm still proud of our boys even though we can't win the title now. We will find a way to come out of this and try to win the consolation prize."

Jerome faces Middleton in the consolation round at 11 a.m. today at Brother's Park in Caldwell.

HILLCREST 4, WOOD RIVER 1

The Wood River boys fell behind early and were never able to recover in suffering a 4-1 defeat at the hands of Hillcrest in their 4A state quarterfinal match Thursday afternoon.

Freddy Tamayo scored the lone goal for Wood River, which will face a surprise opponent in the consolation round. Skyview, whose only loss of the regular season came in a 3-0 defeat to Wood River, will get a rematch with the Wolverines at 11 a.m. today at Brother's Park in Caldwell.

"For most of our kids, this is their first time playing in the state tournament," Wood River coach Luis Monjaras said after the game. "And I warned them before the game that at this level, the team that makes the fewest mistakes is the team that's going to win."

"We only made four mistakes today and we paid dearly for every one of them."

past the diving arms of Twin Falls keeper Jera Johnson to give Hillcrest the 2-1 victory.

Twin Falls will face Bishop Kelly at 11 a.m. today Friday in the conso-

KUNA 2, WOOD RIVER 1

Wood River watched its 15-game winning streak come to a halt with a 2-1 loss to Kuna in the girls 4A state soccer tournament Thursday.

Wood River (15-3-1) fell behind early but tied the game at 1-1 just before half on a goal by Teagen Palmer. Kuna managed to score the game-winner midway through the second half and held off Wood River's best attempts to draw even.

"I think Kuna just came ready to play and we just came out flat," said Wood River coach Jenni Conrad. "Sometimes things just don't go your way. And that's what this game was like for us. We had times when we were out of rhythm or just a touch slow getting to the ball — and that was the difference."

It didn't help that Wood River also lost striker Tanner Dredge to an ankle injury in the second half, further thwarting the Wolverines' comeback effort.

Wood River will face Century at 11 a.m. today in the consolation round.

Volleyball

While Twin Falls was for the most part able to blast away at the net, Minico's defense didn't offer much in the way of resistance outside of Breonna Phillips' seven blocks.

Phillips also had seven kills, and Kendra Bailey added seven kills and seven digs for the Spartans, who also qualified for state.

"We didn't deliver the standard of defense that we're used to playing," said Minico coach Kris Christensen. "It's a huge disappointment. ... This team has made huge strides from last year and even the beginning of this year to get to where they can go to state. Now we just need to bring our game on the court."

Twin Falls, which has won 12 straight matches, opens up the state tournament with an 11 a.m., MDT match next Friday against District V championship Century.

Minico plays immediately after against the champion from District III.

Hardy

"To go from thinking I was going to be out all season to missing only really a week was just a blessing from God," Hardy said.

When healthy, the former walk-on from Anchorage, Alaska, has been a vital component to the Vandals' multifaceted offense. At 6-foot-4 and 230 pounds, he has the size to take on linebackers over the middle. But he also has the speed to be a downfield threat and one of Nathan Enderle's most trusted targets.

Hardy's ability seems especially to shine through on third downs. There's something about the pressure of having to convert, he said, that evokes the same feelings he used to have in the waning moments of a down-to-the-wire basketball game.

"When the game is on the line and you need a bucket, I always wanted the ball in my hands," he said. "But it kind of translates to the football field. So on third down, that's when you have to step up the most."

Back in Anchorage, hoops and soccer came naturally to Hardy. Yet he didn't pick up football until his junior year of high school.

Hardy made it to Moscow after sending a recruiting tape to Dennis Erickson's staff in 2006. The previous staff invited him to walk on and he eventually put on 40 pounds.

Finally able to see the field more this season, Hardy has become — in the words of Axman — an intrinsic part of the Vandals' passing attack. He'll be counted on to produce when Idaho (6-1, 3-0 WAC) goes to Reno to play Nevada (3-3, 2-0) on Saturday.

"I've always felt if I could have in our tight ends (someone) that can attack vertically on the football field, it can give defenses an awful lot of problems," Axman said. "He's certainly been able to fill that threat for us."

Around the WAC

After a wild non-conference season, the WAC is starting to take shape like most predicted — with the exception of Idaho, of course. Boise State, Fresno State and Nevada have won by an average of 17 points in starting 5-1 in league play. ... Even though BSU quarterback Kellen Moore leads the nation in passing efficiency, the front-runner for WAC Offensive Player of the Year is probably Fresno tailback Ryan Mathews. He's the national leader with 974 rushing yards.

2010 CADILLAC CTS SPORT WAGON

LUXURY, PERFORMANCE & FUNCTIONALITY!

RoadWorthy!
By Ken Chester, Jr.
Motor News Media
Corporation

Cadillac's first-ever North American wagon is a progressive take on the classic wagon body style that delivers significant functionality and fuel efficiency. It is a unique vehicle intended to connect with the changing priorities of luxury consumers. The CTS Sport Wagon is essentially the same size as the acclaimed CTS sport sedan on the outside. However, the new Sport Wagon nearly doubles carrying capacity, with a maximum of 53.4 cubic feet of cargo space with the rear seat folded.

"It's a taut, sleek design," said Clay Dean, global design director for Cadillac. "The drama of the sedan is amplified in the wagon, as the centerline cue that is part of the exterior and interior is more prominent and plays a stronger role in defining the design at the rear of the vehicle."

Design highlights include: signature V-shaped deck and tailgate motif; large, vertical tail lamps with light-pipe technology; power-opening lift gate (via key fob or in-vehicle button); CHMSL-integrated roof spoiler; integrated roof load management system with cross bars for a seamless appearance; cargo management system with adjustable in-floor containment; new 19-inch wheels; and a large optional panoramic rear sunroof.

Available features include those of the well-appointed CTS Sport Sedan, including all-wheel drive, a 40-gigabyte internal hard drive, pop-up navigation screen and a hand-cut-and-sewn cabin.

Offered in rear- or all-wheel drive, the CTS Sport Wagon is propelled by a 3.0L DI V-6 powerplant. Along with direct injection technology, the 3.0L engine employs variable valve timing to optimize power and fuel efficiency and reduce emissions.

An optional 3.6L DI V-6 prime mover is also available. It is a larger-displacement member of the engine family that also includes the standard 3.0L engine. Both engines balance performance and efficiency while operating on regular unleaded. Torque is communicated to the asphalt through a Hydra-Matic 6L45 or 6L50 six-speed automatic transmission.

Inside the passenger cabin, the CTS Sport Wagon takes the successful formula of its sedan predecessor and adds a level of storage capability. The rear cargo area contains an integrated cargo management system that stows neatly under the floor when not in use. The standard power lift gate is operated by push-button and can be programmed to lift to a specific height.

The cockpit and rear seating areas of the Sport Wagon are shared with the award-winning CTS sedan. The CTS' interior emphasizes technical precision with elegant, hand-crafted details. An integrated center stack design, with either a satin metallic finish or genuine Sapele Pommele wood, blends into the lower instrument panel that sweeps forward and away from front-seat occupants. The hand-assembled center console leads seamlessly into the center stack, providing a sportier "cockpit" feel for the driver and passenger without compromising space.

Available heated and ventilated seats incorporate "thin-seat" technology for maximum occupant comfort and enhanced rear-seat leg, knee and foot room. French stitching is used throughout the interior, including the upper instrument panel, door inserts, seats and the shifter boot.

NOTICE OF TRUSTEE'S SALE

On February 9, 2010, at the hour of 11:00 o'clock AM of said day, at Land Title and Escrow, Inc., 211 West 13th Street, Burley, Idaho, JUST LAW, INC., as Successor Trustee, will sell at public auction to the highest bidder, for cash, in lawful money of the United States, all payable at the time of sale, the following described real property, situated in the County of Cassia, State of Idaho, and described as follows to wit: Lots 4, 5, 6, 7 and 8 in Block 24 of the Oakley Townsite, Cassia County, Idaho, as the same is platted in the official plat thereof, now of record in the office of the Recorder of said County. The Trustee has no knowledge of a more particular description of the above referenced real property, but for purposes of compliance with Section 60-113 Idaho Code, the Trustee has been informed the address of 395 W. Poplar St., Oakley, ID, is sometimes associated with the said real property. This Trustee's Sale is subject to a bankruptcy filing, a payoff, a reinstatement or any other conditions of which the Trustee is not aware that would cause the cancellation of this sale. Further, if any of these conditions exist, this sale may be null and void, the successful bidder's funds shall be returned, and the Trustee and the Beneficiary shall not be liable to the successful bidder for any damages.

Said sale will be made without covenant or warranty regarding title, possessions or encumbrances to satisfy the obligation secured by and pursuant to the power of sale conferred in the Deed of Trust executed by Jimmy Lee Hale and Utauna A. Hale, husband and wife, as Grantor(s) with Transamerica Mortgage Company, a California Corporation as the Beneficiary, under the Deed of Trust recorded June 17, 1983, as Instrument No. 152677, in the records of Cassia County, Idaho. The Beneficial interest of said Deed of Trust was subsequently assigned to Midfirst Bank, recorded November 26, 2002, as Instrument No. 285110, in the records of said County.

THE ABOVE GRANTORS ARE NAMED TO COMPLY WITH SECTION 45-1506(4)(a), IDAHO CODE. NO REPRESENTATION IS MADE THAT THEY ARE, OR ARE NOT, PRESENTLY RESPONSIBLE FOR THIS OBLIGATION.

The default for which this sale is to be made is the failure to pay the amount due under the certain Promissory Note and Deed of Trust, in the amounts called for thereunder as follows: Monthly payments in the amount of $431.73 for the months of February 2009 through and including to the date of sale, together with late charges and monthly payments accruing. The sum owing on the obligation secured by said Deed of Trust is $14,961.29 as principal, plus service charges, attorney's fees, costs of this foreclosure, any and all funds expended by Beneficiary to protect their security interest, and interest accruing at the rate of 12.0% from January 1, 2009, together with delinquent taxes plus penalties and interest to the date of sale.

The Beneficiary elects to sell or cause the trust property to be sold to satisfy said obligation. Dated this 5th day of October, 2009. Sumerl Lynch Trust Officer for Just Law, Inc

NOTICE OF TRUSTEE'S SALE

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that on January 8, 2010, at the hour of ten o'clock a.m. of said day, at the offices of Land Title and Escrow, Inc., 211 West 13th Street, Burley, Cassia County, Idaho, the Trustee, Alliance Title & Escrow Corp., will sell at public auction to the highest bidder, for cash in lawful money of the United States of America, all payable at the time of sale, the following described real property situated in the County of Cassia, State of Idaho, and described as follows, to wit: Lots 12, 13, 14, 15 and 16 in Block 122 of the Burley Townsite, Cassia County, Idaho, as the same is platted in the official plat thereof, now of record in the office of the Recorder of said County.

The Trustee has no knowledge of a more particular description of the above described real property, but for purposes of compliance with Idaho Code Section 60 113, the Trustee has been informed that the street address of 219 EAST MAIN STREET, BURLEY, IDAHO, may sometimes be associated with said real property.

Said sale will be made, without covenant or warranty regarding title, possession or encumbrances, to satisfy the obligation secured by and pursuant to the power of sale conferred in the Deed of Trust executed by DENNIS CLAUNCH and LORNA CLAUNCH, husband and wife, as Grantor, and LAND TITLE AND ESCROW, INC., an Idaho Corporation, as Trustee, said Trustee having been replaced by ALLIANCE TITLE & ESCROW CORP. as Successor Trustee, and HOWARTH RENTALS, LTD. CO., as Beneficiary; said Deed of Trust having been filed of record on August 31, 2001, as Instrument No. 276994, Official Records of Cassia County, Idaho. The beneficial interest of said Deed of Trust was assigned to THORNBERRY LLC, an Idaho limited liability company, by an Assignment of Deed of Trust with an effective date of October 20, 2004, which was recorded August 10, 2009, as Instrument No. 2009-004051, Official Records of Cassia County, Idaho. The naming of the above Grantor(s) is done to comply with Idaho Code Section 45-1506 (4)(a); no representation is made as to the responsibility of Grantor(s) for this obligation.

The default for which the sale is to be made is that no monthly installment payments under a Deed of Trust Note dated August 21, 2001, in the amount of $1,408.09 per month for February 2009 and each month thereafter have been made, together with accruing late charges, plus any other charges lawfully due under the note, deed of trust, and Idaho law.

The balance owing as of the date hereof on the obligation secured by said Deed of Trust is the amount of $161,011.74 in principal; plus accrued interest at the rate of nine percent (9%) per annum from January 1, 2009; plus default interest pursuant to the Note at the rate of twelve percent (12%) per annum from February 8, 2009, until the default is cured, plus service charges, late charges, and any other costs or expenses associated with this foreclosure as provided by the Deed of Trust or Deed of Trust Note, or by Idaho law.

Dated this 1st day of September, 2009. MARK D. PERISON, P.A. By: Mark D. Perison of the Firm Attorneys for Trustee P.O. Box 6575 Boise, ID 83707-6575 (208) 331-1200

IF OCTOBER 23 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Your ambitious nature may urge you to join groups or organizations during the next few weeks, but you are better off climbing the ladder of success on your own. January may bring an opportunity to improve your life or the wisdom to make beneficial changes, but your own past mistakes or an abundance of extra responsibilities might spoil your progress in February. It may be best to wait until April to launch important new projects, or to make major commitments such as signing a mortgage or becoming engaged. Between April and August you will be more popular and attractive than usual and will be welcomed with open arms by a new employer if you choose to change jobs.

HOROSCOPE
Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You may admire the detached attitude and freedom-loving ways, but could crave the comfort of someone who cares deeply.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Be wild and crazy. People in general are somewhat receptive to progressive ideas, and may simply smile if you break the rules.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Try athletic adventures. Physical attractions may grow stronger if you work side by side with someone attractive to you.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Breathe fresh air. If you've been pressing your nose too closely to the grindstone, find an opportunity to recharge your batteries.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): There may be a few moments when you stumble over some gray areas even if your self-imposed blinders only see black and white.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Old friends know they can count on your discretion and trust you to provide them with an honest answer so may ask for advice.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): The squeaky wheel begs loudest for the oil. With Venus in your sign there is a tendency to look for ways to please others.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): When you focus on business, the business world focuses on you. People sit up and take notice when you make comments.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Stand back from the crowd. You're at your best in situations where you can deal with people at arm's length.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You can impress the boss, charm a romantic partner, or amaze your friends with your astute insights into human behavior.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Take a well-earned and blissful break. It might seem as though the bell rang at the end of the day signaling that school is out.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Your objectivity is valuable under these stars that can keep you from falling head over heels in love with the wrong person.

Storage Bench
 This do-it-yourself storage bench project is sure to be a big hit out on the patio or by the pool this spring. Measuring 72 inches long by 24 inches deep by 31 inches tall, it features a generous cabinet underneath its hinged, padded seat, perfect for storing barbecue, gardening or even pool supplies. Casters make it easy to move the bench into the shade or around the patio as needed. The storage bench is made almost entirely of exterior-grade plywood, and full-size traceable patterns and detailed assembly diagrams make construction a snap.

REAL NEWS. REAL VALUE

DEAR ABBY: My wife, October 23, 2009
 "Laura," and I have been married 15 years. She recently had gastric bypass surgery and has lost 80 pounds so far. The last time Laura was slim (about seven years ago), she had an affair with a co-worker and we nearly divorced. With her current weight loss, she is now going out with friends from work one night a week. This means that after all the activities we have scheduled for our kids, there is no night for us. I have had two weekends off in the last six weeks. During both of them Laura went to Las Vegas with her friends.

DEAR ABBY
 Jeanne Phillips

I'm pleased that my wife is happy with her looks, and I don't want to appear insecure, but I can't help but feel it's "deja vu all over again." When I ask where she's going, who she's going with and why now, she gets angry and says she won't put up with my "insecurities." We went to counseling after the affair, but Laura lied and denied she'd had one. I would really appreciate some advice.

—YO-YO HUSBAND IN LONG BEACH, CALIF.

DEAR YO-YO HUSBAND: Your wife may think it's an invasion of her privacy to be asked where she's going, when she'll be back and who she's spending her time with — but that's the kind of accountability people sign up for when they have a spouse and children. Your insecurity is understandable in light of her past infidelity.

The fact that she'd rather go to Las Vegas for the weekend than spend some alone time with you sends a strong message. I think you already know your marriage is in trouble, so offer your wife the option of marriage counseling. If she refuses — which wouldn't surprise me — go without her. A licensed therapist will help you understand the dynamics of what's going on and help you reach some important conclusions about your future.

DEAR ABBY: It's apparent that the art of saying "thank you" has gone by the wayside. I'm a widow with limited funds who likes to surprise relatives with nice gifts on special occasions. I sent a food gift to one of them as a housewarming present. Her mother wrote and thanked me, but added that it gave her a stomachache and she was sick for three days!

I shopped carefully for a niece who was starting kindergarten. I selected a sweet "girly" backpack in her favorite color with butterflies and a smattering of sparkles. Her mom responded that I should have bought a bigger one with a metal frame so she could also use it for family outings, the beach, the zoo, etc. — as if I knew which ones she liked THIS week.

I sent a classic silk blouse to a young woman who was starting her first office job. Her mother told me she would have preferred something more "youthful."

What is wrong with just saying "thank you?"

—IRRITATED AUNT
 IN MIAMI

DEAR IRRITATED AUNT: Nothing is wrong with it; in fact, "thank you" is the appropriate and gracious response. But what these mothers are really telling you is that they never taught their daughters one of the important social graces — how to send a prompt and courteous acknowledgment for any gift they receive. They're also telling you that in the future, you should save your money.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE® Bobby Wolff

"But, for the unquiet heart and brain,
 A use in measured language lies;
 The sad mechanic exercise,
 Like dull narcotics, numbing pain."
 — Alfred, Lord Tennyson

The most painful way I know to record a small loss in a team game is for both partnerships to reach a high-level but makable contract, and to fail in both instances, as in today's deal.

Against South's four spades, West started with two rounds of diamonds. Declarer ruffed in dummy and played ace and another heart. (A low heart to the queen initially would have preserved communications.) West won and continued with a low trump. Declarer won this trick in her own hand and now needed to draw trumps while ruffing a heart high in hand, followed by taking a club finesse. But she tried to cash the club ace. This was ruffed by West, and a second round of trumps left her one down.

In the other room North led a trump against five diamonds doubled. West won in dummy and led a heart to the jack, optimistically hoping to find both honors with South. This line produced only 10 tricks.

A better plan simply needs South to hold at least two of the three high clubs. Win the trump lead in East and lead out the club queen. When South covers, West ruffs, then ruffs a spade, and plays the club 10, covered and ruffed high. After West draws the last trump, another spade ruff to dummy allows the play of the club nine, again covered and ruffed. West can reach dummy with a spade ruff to run the clubs and takes eight trump tricks and three club winners.

ANSWER: Two hearts is fourth-suit forcing, and your choice is to rebid two no-trump to show a heart stop, or to repeat your clubs to guarantee at least a decent five-card suit. I prefer the latter, but if your heart stop were slightly better and your clubs a little worse, bidding two no-trump would make good sense.
