LUCKY FLIP

In tie-breaker, Christopherson wins coin toss, will be next Wendell mayor

By Blair Koch
Times-News correspondent

WENDELL — Since Tuesday’s inconclusive election results were announced, Wendell’s residents wondered who their next mayor will be.

A tumbling Congressional coin slightly larger than a half-dollar piece provided the answer Thursday: Brad Christopherson.

After both incumbent Mayor Rick Cowen and Christopherson received 215 votes in Tuesday’s election, the mayoral hopefuls met at the beginning of Thursday’s City Council meeting to learn their fates.

Christopherson, seated with the audience, smiled and shook nervously while Cowen sat in the mayor’s seat with the council, looking stoic and tense.

Heads it’s Cowen; tails it’s Christopherson.

City Clerk Mickey Walker explained the rules and asked if the contenders wanted a closer look at the coin. Christopherson left his seat and made his way to the front of the room.

Cowen remained seated, saying, “Toss it and tell us what it says.”

He peered over the council podium while the room became silent. Walker flicked her wrist and the coin flickered slightly in the fluorescent overhead lights while turning end over end, descending to the floor.

Someone announced “Tails!” and the room erupted into applause. Cowen’s gaze remained fixed on the coin as he bit his lower lip. He’ll remain on the council until Christopherson is seated in January.

Animal control question still on city’s plate

By Ben Botkin
Times-News writer

The long-term future of animal control in Twin Falls — and who will do it — remains an unresolved question.

City staff is preparing more information to justify a proposed $114,000 annual contract with Twin Falls County before making another presentation to the council, which could come this month. Meanwhile, two council members are exploring whether hiring a private company is a cheaper route.

The Twin Falls City Council last week, with a 4-3 vote, rejected the county contract, questioning its cost.

For now, the Twin Falls County Sheriff’s Office has agreed to continue providing animal control services in the city until a final decision is made.

Additional information

being gathered includes numbers of calls with citations, the types of calls, and what time of day animal control calls are most frequent, said Travis Rothweiler, assistant city manager.

Councilman Lee Heider said he thinks the city could save money with a private company that provided its own vehicles, uniforms and insurance.

“I think the city literally could save tens of thousands of dollars by outsourcing that to someone,” Heider said. “We could get that down for a whole lot less than what everybody else is thinking.”

There’s also the argument that having sworn county officers is beneficial because they can write citations. Heider said he would need to see more information and numbers before weighing that argument.

Geologists plan geothermal test sites in M.V.

Stimulus to also pay for Blaine Co. school retrofits

By Nate Poppino
Times-News writer

Federal stimulus money, it appears, will soon literally be put down a hole.

But researchers say two particular holes, near Kimberly and the Kimama area in Lincoln County, will help them test ways to evaluate geothermal reservoirs under volcanic plains and learn more about the Snake River Plain in the process.

Geologists led by Utah State University plan to spend $4.6 million over two years to drill the mile-deep boreholes and then study the core samples and other data produced. The work will advance geothermal research, provide valuable student opportunities and benefit the economy in the process, said John Shervais, professor and head of Utah State’s Department of Geology.

“We know it’s going to be hot, but nobody’s ever drilled that deep in these areas,” Shervais said Thursday.

The award is part of $338 million from the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act that will be used for exploration and development of

Holdbacks hammer state’s natural resource agencies

IDWR to prune programs; DEQ reduces monitoring

By Nate Poppino
Times-News writer

Idaho has always been noted for its natural resources.

But as state budgets sag, the agencies tasked with managing and preserving those resources have been among the hardest hit by the latest round of general-fund holdbacks, announced in September by Gov. C.L. “Butch” Otter.

A new round of layoffs reported this week, combined with past cuts, seem certain to hamper the state’s oversight of water issues, resource preservation and other environmental duties. Agencies charged with such work were all ordered to slice 7.5 percent from their current appropriations; only the Department of Fish and Game, which relies on fees and

Army: 12 dead, 31 hurt in attack at Fort Hood

Facing deployment, mental health doctor opens fire, captured

By April Castro and Devlin Barrett
Associated Press writers

FORT HOOD, Texas — An Army psychiatrist set to be shipped overseas opened fire at the Fort Hood Army post Thursday, authorities said, a rampage that killed 12 people and left 31 wounded in the worst mass shooting ever at a military base in the United States.

The gunman, first said to have been killed, was wounded but alive and in stable condition under military guard, said Lt. Gen. Bob Cone at Fort Hood. “I would say his death is not imminent,” Cone said. Col. Ben Danner said the suspect was shot four times and was in critical condition.

The man was identified as Maj. Nidal Malik Hasan, a 39-year-old from Virginia.

President Obama called the shooting at the Soldier Readiness Center, where soldiers who are about to be deployed or who are returning undergo medical screening, “a horrific outburst of violence.”

“It’s difficult enough when we lose these brave Americans in battles overseas,” the commander in chief said. “It is horrifying that they should come under fire at an Army base on American soil.”

There was no official word on motive. Hasan had transferred to Fort Hood in July

Law & Disorder...

...in Cassia County

From Oct. 3 police reports:

Marijuana possession:

A 13-year-old Burley male was caught with 9 grams of marijuana which he allegedly asked his friend, 14, to "hold onto during a volleyball game so he didn't get into trouble."

The boy's dad told police that his son received a text message earlier in the day "wanting to know if he still had weed phone number." The boy allegedly said he paid $10 for the weed two days earlier and that it was "delivered to his house in the night time (sic) hours."

Runaway:

A 15-year-old Burley male on juvenile probation allegedly ran away.

His mom, according to the report, told police that he "normally roams city streets, looking inside unlocked vehicles to seals (sic) things."

The next day, the boy was found at his friend's house "sneaking in a window." He was given four days of juvenile detention for the probation violation.

Coin toss

Cowen declined to comment but Christopherson is looking forward to the opportunity to, "represent the people."

"People have spoken up ... and they've always had an interest in what goes on in City Hall," he said. "Now it's just my turn to represent them."

The event, which drew a crowd that filled Council Chambers, will likely go down in city lore.

"I had to see this," said resident Cindy Harbaugh. "We've never seen anything like this before."

Resident Linda Butler

came to the meeting to question the legality of the toss.

"I contacted my attorney," Butler said. "I think the courts should determine the outcome of this whole thing."

After Butler told the council her concerns it broke into recess, giving city Attorney Calvin Campbell an opportunity to review the procedure.

"In the short time I've had to review state law ... we've done what we need to do," Campbell.

Control

At the same time, he's open to more discussion with the county.

"We really need to get together with the county and have a discussion at the table before they just send us a bill," he said. "I'm not saying it's not the best option, what I'm saying is we didn't have the best discussion."

Councilman Will Kezele said he'd like to look at the private sector too, adding that a thorough consideration of all options, including the county, is needed.

"There's just so many other costs associated with city and government employees," Kezele said. "I realize the city will push back and say they need to be law officers. ... That whole idea of needing a law enforcement officer to enforce some of the law would potentially be a drawback to us moving forward, but I didn't think we've evaluated that enough."

Mayor Lance Clow said he hasn't seen any numbers to justify the increase in recent years of the county's contract, adding that no one has questioned if the county's doing a good job.

The county's service to the city was $17,000 in 2000 and by 2007 had increased to $50,000 because of the need to hire a second animal control officer and increased call volume. That figure jumped to $120,000 in 2008.

In 2008, the sheriff's office handled 3,935 city animal control calls.

Councilman Don Hall, who voted for the agreement, said he thought it was a fair deal.

"The thing that impressed more than anything else is that in the last year we have not had one complaint about our animal control," Hall said.

Lori Stewart, spokeswoman for the Twin Falls County Sheriff's Office, said Sheriff Tom Carter has made additional information available and is confident it's a fair contract.

new geothermal fields and research into advanced geothermal technologies. Other Idaho recipients include the Blaine County School District, which will get $4 million to retrofit schools in Hailey, Carey and Bellevue with geothermal systems, and Boise State University, which will use $1.55 million to digitize and upload geologic data into a national data system.

Partners in the Utah State project also include BSU, along with Canada's University of Alberta, the U.S. Geological Survey and the International Continental Drilling Program based in Potsdam, Germany. National Science Foundation funds Shervais plans to apply for next week would bring in about 15 U.S. universities and additional international support for studies of the core samples. The University of Idaho and Idaho State University would also be involved, he said.

Rather than search for hotspots, the researchers plan to compare the characteristics of each site with what they find underground, looking retrospectively for indicators of their potential. Shervais said they'd also like to learn whether drilling under thicker portions of the Eastern Snake Plain Aquifer can lead to the same level of heat and power that's available around the edges of the aquifer where there's less cool water. The Kimama borehole is over a central, thick portion of the plain, while the Kimberly site is more on the edge.

The drilling sites will be on public land: U of I's extension farm near Kimberly and a Bureau of Land Management fire station near Kimama. Drill crews will work around the clock every day for three or four months to drill each hole, Shervais said, likely starting in late spring or early summer.

Though actual development of the sites isn't his top priority, Shervais said energy companies certainly could capitalize on the study's findings if the sites seem worth developing. One Magic Valley geothermal power plant already exists, operated by U.S. Geothermal Inc. near Raft River.

"There's plenty of public and private land near both sites that could be available for putting in a power plant, should we prove the resource is sufficient," Shervais said.

Agencies

federal grants, wasn't touched.

The Idaho Department of Water Resources lost 16 jobs in the past month, including its public information officer, and has frozen 11 vacant positions. The Department of Environmental Quality let go 10 people, building on seven layoffs last year and about 25 frozen, vacant positions. At the Department of Lands, layoffs included four full-time employees and two temporary fire-bureau employees. And the Department of Parks and Recreation has now dropped one-fourth of its seasonal staff over the past year.

Only a $500,000 contribution from the Idaho Water Resource Board prevented further cuts to full-time employees at IDWR, Interim Director Gary Spackman said. Counting frozen positions and six layoffs last year, he said his agency has lost at least 15 percent of its workforce and will have to shrink or shutter some services.

Some vital programs such as dam safety may have to carry on full of holes, he said.

"I look at that as a program that's essential," Spackman said. "I just can't discard it."

Parks' seasonal cuts have left similar holes: Places with large visitor centers like Three Island Crossing State Park are seeing their hours reduced, and partner agencies are being approached about chipping in a bit more, said spokeswoman Jennifer Wernex. But in a bit of good news, only half of the department's 12 vacancies are being held open. "Mission-essential" positions being filled include the south region manager, whose responsibilities include Thousand Springs State Park in the western Magic Valley.

Six of DEQ's layoffs were full-time, classified positions, while one of the temporary workers was an engineer in the Twin Falls office. All full-time employees must also take 32 hours of unpaid time off in the 2010 fiscal year, said agency spokesman Jess Byrne.

DEQ already cancelled a summer program using seasonal help to monitor various streams and water bodies, work it had done for 10 or 12 years. Administrators also replaced their entire planning division with just one person, a former regional administrator who

"I look at that as a program that's essential. I just can't discard it."

— IDWR Interim Director Gary Spackman, on maintaining dam safety programs has since had to take up some administrative duties again.

With future cuts possible, Lands officials have prioritized the services they offer in advance of any future cuts, said Patrick Hodges, division administrator for support services. Life, health and safety issues are at the forefront — including firefighting work — and endowment managers are working to battle sagging land prices and maximize the state's investment returns.

Not every agency is in the same dire straits. Idaho State Department of Agriculture Chief of Staff Pam Juker said her department does not expect any layoffs, program cuts or even more furloughs because dedicated funds have been available to cover affected general-fund expenses.

Was ‘Pickles’ inspiration pure Oakley?

Cartoonist Brian Crane has always insisted that Earl and Opal, the characters in his award-winning syndicated comic strip “Pickles,” are based on his in-laws.

Hazel Larson isn’t so sure. “I saw a ‘Pickles’ strip a while back, and in the last panel it showed Opal up close to Earl,” said the 86-year-old Twin Falls resident. “It look just like Raymond and Helen.”

Ray and Helen Crane were Brian’s parents, and Hazel grew up with them in Oakley during the 1930s. Brian, whose strip is syndicated in more than 300 newspapers worldwide, was born in Twin Falls in 1949.

“Raymond and Helen were going together in high school, and one day they were sitting on the lawn in front of the school,” Hazel remembers. “She had her head in his lap, and Mrs. Schiferl, one our teachers, didn’t think much of that. So she called an assembly of the whole school and said, ‘Love is a beautiful thing. Don’t cheapen it.’”

Hazel remembers a very embarrassed Helen being in attendance, but she doesn’t recall whether Ray was there.

Whoever’s parents are the inspiration for the Pickles, it’s struck a chord with a lot of newspaper readers.

“I think there’s a lot of Idaho in Earl and Opal,” Crane told the Times-News in a 2001 interview. “They’re Idaho kind of people.”

Crane’s father was selling auto parts in Twin Falls when Brian was born. The family moved to Pocatello when the boy was 2, then later to the San Francisco Bay area, where he graduated from high school. Crane earned a bachelor’s degree from Brigham Young University in 1973.

After he married, Brian moved to Idaho Falls where he started his own freelance illustration business and worked as an artist and copywriter for Harris Publishing Co., which produces specialty and out-doors magazines. In 1985, the family moved to Reno, Nev., where Crane worked as an art director for an advertising agency.

He started pitching a comic strip about a retired couple to newspaper syndicates, and in 1990 the Washington Post Writers Group bought it.

Crane and his wife, Diana, who have seven children, live in the tony Reno suburb of Spanish Springs, where he draws “Pickles” strips about two months in advance.

“I never miss it,” Hazel said.

Jerome Council OKs new blower for wastewater plant

By John Plestina
Times-News writer

JEROME — The Jerome City Council agreed Wednesday to spend between $80,000 and $100,000 for an emergency repair to Jerome’s wastewater treatment plant.

The latest round of problems at the facility began Monday night when a 1.5-year-old membrane blower failed after 11,100 hours of service.

Water Works Director John Boyd said the two-inch blower shaft twisted and severed into two pieces and was not repairable. It destroyed the interior components of the blower, he said.

“I can’t tell you why it broke without sending it for an analysis,” Boyd said.

He said he expects the plant’s two other blowers to fail eventually. Boyd said if one of them fails before the city replaces the damaged blower, Jerome would be out of compliance with a permit from the Idaho Department of Environmental Quality for two to three weeks.

He said the replacement blower is expected to be more efficient, have a longer expected lifespan and be quieter than the one that blew out Monday.

The council, which was holding a rare Wednesday meeting to canvass election returns and to authorize Mayor Charles Correll to sign a lease for the new senior center, added the emergency measure for the wastewater plant to the agenda.

City Administrator Ben Marchant said it could take three to four weeks for delivery.

Ongoing problems have plagued the wastewater plant, some of which have generated odors for surrounding residents.

Shoshone to cut down 25 trees

By John Plestina
Times-News writer

SHOSHONE — The Shoshone City Council on Wednesday accepted a bid to remove about 25 trees on North Elm Street, along the north bank of the Little Wood River.

Crist and Sons of Jerome’s $1,900 bid was the lowest received. Others neared or topped $3,000. City workers will haul away the logs.

Stumps will remain in place to provide stability for the riverbank.

City Clerk Mary Kay Bennett said all of the trees are on city property. The age and large size of the trees are factors in the decision to remove them.

One large tree in the same area fell during a recent windstorm and nearly damaged a house.

In other business, the council agreed to add an additional towing and impound company to the list the police department uses.

Todd and Nancy Marshall, of Jerome, owners of AART Northwest, proposed adding police towing services in Shoshone.

Mayor J.R. Churchman deferred to Police Chief Jon Daubner for guidance. Daubner said he could add AART to his call rotation. He said there have been times when towing providers on his list have not been available and he has called companies in Jerome and Gooding that were not on the list.

In another matter, the council canvassed the election returns from Tuesday’s municipal election. Bennett reported that 28 percent of registered voters cast ballots.

The council also appointed Sonia Rangel to the Library Board.

Post Falls names park after prominent lawmaker

POST FALLS (AP) — The city of Post Falls has named a 5-acre park after Hilde Kellogg, a longtime former lawmaker and local leader.

The Coeur d’Alene Press reports that Kellogg, who served 10 terms in the Idaho Legislature, attended the dedication of Hilde Kellogg Park on Wednesday. She says she’s in awe of the honor, and though she’s proud of what she’s done she couldn’t have done it without her fellow northern Idaho residents.

Kellogg is now 91 years old. She retired from the Idaho Legislature when she was 88. She also served as a city councilwoman, chamber president and was the first female member of the Post Falls Kiwanis.

Idaho Supreme Court hears URA case

By Ben Botkin
Times-News writer

The Idaho Supreme Court on Thursday heard arguments in an appeal that could alter the ability of urban renewal agencies to take on debt for public projects without voter approval.

The case, heard in Twin Falls, involves Rexburg's Urban Renewal Agency and Kenneth Hart, a resident of the eastern Idaho city. The crux of Hart's case questions if Rexburg's URA can issue up to $6.3 million in bonds to finance a public swimming pool and recreation center without the same public vote and approval that the Idaho Constitution requires for cities.

Other urban renewal agencies throughout Idaho are watching the case. Nine urban renewal agencies in the state, including those in Twin Falls and Jerome, have filed a brief asking the higher court to uphold the district court decision in Rexburg that rejected Hart's arguments.

Urban renewal agencies are created by cities and receive funding from tax revenue generated by increased property values in their target area.

John Runft, the attorney for Hart, argued that the bonds would create a liability for the city of Rexburg, and as a result, requires a public vote with two-thirds approval to pass.

"I'm representing people that are crying out for their right," he said.

The Urban Renewal Agency, though, is a separate entity from the city, said Ryan Armbruster, attorney for Rexburg's URA.

"For the URA to issue bonds at this point in time, no further action of the city is needed," Armbruster said.

He stressed that the city has no financial liability in the bonds.

"There's no liability on the part of the city to simply follow the law as the law is written," Armbruster said.

Justice Roger Burdick asked Runft if the issue should be fixed by the Legislature instead of any judge.

Runft said that urban renewal agencies financing projects without voter approval amounts to a "circumvention" of the state constitution's provision for voter approval of debt.

"All of these things together have created a whole gradual shift which results in a circumvention," he said.

In an interview, Melinda Anderson, Twin Falls economic development director, said there is a separation between cities and urban renewal agencies.

"It's been very clear to us that while the cities are the ones allowed to create the URAs, the agencies are independent of the city itself," Anderson said.

Anderson said she's unsure of what the case's outcome might mean for the Twin Falls URA.

"I do know that it's been difficult for some URAs around the state to be able to bond because the banks were unclear about what was going to be the outcome of the lawsuit," Anderson said.

AROUND THE VALLEY

IDWR issues curtailment warning letters

Gary Spackman, interim director of the Idaho Department of Water Resources, mailed letters to water-right holders across the Eastern Snake Plain Aquifer this week, updating them on the odds that their water will be shut off next year.

Spackman ordered the state's first large-scale enforced well closures in recent memory last summer in response to an ongoing water call by Clear Springs Foods of Buhl, an act later put on hold by a 5th District judge. Spackman warned in Monday's letter that depending on the judge's clarification of that stay, Magic Valley groundwater rights newer than Aug. 11, 1990, may have to be shut off again. In addition, if a proposed mitigation plan is not approved after a Dec. 7 hearing, rights newer than Feb. 4, 1964, could be shut off.

In a separate call by a coalition of canal companies and irrigation districts, an extremely low snowpack could shut off rights newer than March 29, 1978. But runoff of at least 65 percent of normal won't require any closures, Spackman wrote.

Visit www.idwr.idaho.gov/ to read the letter.

Forest Service proposes prescribed fire in Little Wood

The Sawtooth National Forest's Ketchum Ranger District is seeking public comment on a proposal to use a prescribed fire in the area of the Little Wood River Drainage to improve vegetation and reduce the potential for uncharacteristic or undesirable wildfires. The legal location is Township 3, 4 and 5, Range 19, 20 and 21 Boise meridian.

The project would target several areas within the 50,000-acre watershed over a five- to 10-year period and benefit aspen, whitebark pine, Douglas fir, sagebrush steppe and wildlife habitat, according to a press release. Forest officials would cooperate with the Rocky Mountain Elk Foundation and the Mule Deer Foundation to secure grants for the work. Fires may be lit during hunting season, but officials say they will work with hunters and recreationists to reduce problems.

Officials will spend until early next summer developing a detailed proposed action and analyzing its effects on the land and the users and neighbors of the Little Wood. Comments from the public are requested by Nov. 30. They can be sent several ways:

- Mail: Ketchum Ranger District, Attn: Upper Little Wood Project, P.O. Box 2356, Ketchum, ID 83340

BLM to waive fees for veterans and military on Veterans Day

On Wednesday, the U.S. Bureau of Land Management will waive recreation-related fees for veterans and military personnel, along with their families, for Veterans Day.

The annual waiver started in 2006 and applies to public recreation lands managed by the BLM, National Park Service, Fish and Wildlife Service, Bureau of Reclamation and Forest Service.

"This is a small, but special way in which we can express our gratitude and our appreciation to them," BLM Director Bob Abbey said in a statement.

Court: Fundraiser arrested for probation violation

By John Miller
Associated Press writer

BOISE — A Republican campaign consultant who has been paid more than $200,000 by Idaho candidates since 2008 was in jail Thursday after court officials said he violated probation for felony drunken driving.

Jason Lehosit, who has four DUIs since 1998, was arrested Wednesday. He has been drinking — a violation of his probation — since at least January, including "four or five times a month since July of 2009," according to 4th District Court documents.

GOP leaders stood by the 33-year-old, saying they hope the head of Meridian Resources tackles his troubles.

Still, Lehosit's arrest raises the question of whether candidates from Idaho's dominant party will continue to professionally embrace a political operator who could become a campaign liability.

Efforts to reach Lehosit were unsuccessful Thursday. Matt Rexroad, president of Meridian Resource's parent company in Sacramento, didn't return a call seeking comment. It could not be determined if Lehosit had retained a lawyer.

In February 2005, Lehosit lost his job as Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter's campaign manager following his fourth DUI arrest, which came a day after his sentencing for his third DUI.

High-profile GOP clientele of his Meridian Resources now include U.S. House candidate Vaughn Ward, who has paid the company about $9,000 since July; Otter, who has paid Lehosit's company more than $70,000 since 2008; and Lt. Gov. Brad Little, who has given Lehosit nearly $10,000 over two years.

"I've got to tell you, Jason is one of the brightest people in Idaho politics," said Sen. Mike Jorgenson, R-Hayden Lake. "But I'm not sorry for what it will do to Idaho politics, I'm sorry for Jason."

Jorgenson paid Meridian Resources about $10,000 in 2008, according to the Idaho secretary of state.

After his fourth DUI, 4th District Judge Thomas Neville sentenced Lehosit to 120 days in jail and five years probation. He served only a fraction of the jail time but was forbidden to drink for five years, drive a car for three years and had to attend four Alcoholics Anonymous sessions weekly.

After a stint at a California treatment center, Lehosit re-emerged on Idaho's political scene in July 2007 as a partner in Meridian Resources. In a letter to Judge Neville in March 2008, Lehosit said he'd turned his life around.

"I am proud to say I'm a completely different person," he wrote.

Following Wednesday's arrest, however, Lehosit could face up to 180 days in jail. The Department of Correction will likely recommend he get seven days in jail and develop a new treatment regime, which is standard for a probation violation, said Jeff Ray, an agency spokesman.

Lehosit owes his reputation as one of Idaho's top political operatives, in part, to his ability to connect GOP hopefuls with donors he began cultivating more than a decade ago as a youthful campaign worker during Phil Batt's 1994 successful gubernatorial run.

Lehosit later worked for U.S. Sen. Larry Craig, Gov. Dirk Kempthorne and Otter, burnishing his reputation as a go-to activist who could bring in cash.

On Jan. 30, for instance, Lehosit organized a lunchtime event for Little, the lieutenant governor, with 300 lobbyists and other supporters. Little, who raked in more than $6,000 that day, didn't immediately return a phone call seeking comment.

FBI refuses to talk about arrest in N.M. nun slaying

By Susan Montoya Bryan
Associated Press writer

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. — Federal and tribal law enforcement agents descended on a small community on the Navajo Indian reservation early Thursday to make an arrest as part of their investigation into the slaying of a nun whose body was found in her home on church property.

The FBI said agents arrested one person in Navajo, but refused to say how that person might be connected to the death of 64-year-old Sister Marguerite Bartz. The nun's body was discovered after she didn't show up as scheduled for Sunday Mass in a neighboring community.

FBI spokesman Darrin Jones would not say why federal investigators were not releasing any information about the arrest, and Samson Cowboy, the head of the Navajo Nation's public safety department, also declined to comment, saying only: "It's a very sensitive issue."

The FBI did confirm that the person arrested Thursday morning would remain in custody for the night.

News of an arrest has resulted in some relief for the community in northwestern New Mexico, said Lee Lamb,

Sister Marguerite

a spokesman for the Diocese of Gallup, which oversees the St. Berard parish in Navajo where Bartz lived.

"I'm sure that community hasn't been sleeping well for many nights. I think with this arrest they're going to have a better night's sleep tonight and feel a little safer in their homes," Lamb said.

Lamb said with the arrest, the community as well as the Sisters of the Blessed Sacrament — the order to which Bartz belonged — can focus on the nun's funeral, the grieving process and the celebration of her life.

Investigators also

"I'm sure that community hasn't been sleeping well for many nights."

— Lee Lamb, a spokesman for the Diocese of Gallup remained tightlipped about details of the crime, but said preliminary autopsy results show Bartz sustained substantial trauma, likely as a result of a violent confrontation with her killer or killers.

Jones said agents were withholding the specific cause of death while the investigation continues. However, he said there was no evidence to suggest Bartz was sexually assaulted or that she was targeted because she was a nun or for religious reasons.

Diocese officials said the community has questions about whether the crime could have been the result of a robbery, if it was gang-related or possibly connected to a break-in at the parish last month.

FBI investigators have combed Bartz's home for evidence and a mini-SUV she had used was transported to Albuquerque for processing by investigators. It arrived Wednesday with a sheet draped over the driver's side, covering the window. The FBI has said Bartz's murder apparently happened Halloween night or early Sunday.

Parishioners said Bartz served Navajo and the surrounding communities for a decade and had success converting people through her work.

When they talked about Bartz on Wednesday, they spoke of her in the present tense.

"She makes me and my family feel really safe," Arlene Deche said.

Deche and others said Bartz prayed with them in their homes and traveled to the homes of elders on the remote reservation. She offered advice on raising children, ran bingo and religious education classes, played guitar and learned the Navajo language to sing Navajo songs.

from Walter Reed Medical Center, where he received a poor performance evaluation, according to an official who spoke on condition of anonymity because he was not authorized to discuss the case publicly.

Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison, R-Texas, said generals at Fort Hood told her that Hasan was about to deploy overseas. Retired Col. Terry Lee, who said he had worked with Hasan, told Fox News he was being sent to Afghanistan.

Lee said Hasan had hoped Obama would pull troops out of Afghanistan and Iraq and got into frequent arguments with others in the military who supported the wars.

Faizul Khan, a former imam at a mosque Hasan attended in Silver Spring, Md., said he spoke often with Hasan about how Hasan wanted to find a wife. Hasan was a lifelong Muslim and attended prayers regularly, often in his Army uniform, Khan said.

The shooter used two pistols, one of them semiautomatic. Neither were military-issued, Danner said.

Video from the scene showed police patrolling the area with handguns and rifles, ducking behind buildings for cover. Sirens could be heard wailing while a woman's voice on a public-address system urged people to take cover.

"I was confused and just shocked," said Spc. Jerry Richard, 27, who works at the center but was not on duty during the shooting. "Overseas you are ready for it. But here you can't even defend yourself"

Soldiers at Fort Hood don't carry weapons unless they are doing training exercises.

The Rev. Greg Schannep was about to head into a graduation ceremony when a man in uniform approached him, warning him that someone had opened fire. Schannep heard three volleys of gunfire and saw people running.

"There was a burst of shots and more bursts of shots and people running everywhere," said Schannep, who works for local Congressman John Carter.

The uniformed man who had warned him ran to the theater. Schannep said he could see the man's back was bloodied from a wound. The man survived, was treated and will be fine, Schannep said.

Cone said initially three people were held, and all have been interviewed. Authorities believe, however, that there was a single shooter.

The Soldier Readiness Center holds hundreds of people and is one of the most populated parts of the base, said Steve Moore, a spokesman for III Corps at Fort Hood. Nearby there are barracks and a food center where there are fast food chains.

The wounded were dispersed among hospitals in central Texas, Cone said. Their identities, and the identities of the dead, were not immediately released.

Amber Bahr, 19, was shot in the stomach but was in stable condition, said her mother, Lisa Pfund of Random Lake, Wis.

"We know nothing, just that she was shot in the belly," Pfund told The Associated Press. She couldn't provide more details and only spoke with emergency personnel.

Hasan was single with no children. He graduated from Virginia Tech, where he was a member of the ROTC and earned a bachelor's degree in biochemistry in 1997. He received his medical degree from the military's Uniformed Services University of the Health Sciences in Bethesda, Md., in 2001 and was at Walter Reed for six years for his internship, residency and a fellowship.

The attack happened just down the road from one of the worst mass shootings in U.S. history. On Oct. 16, 1991, George Hennard smashed his pickup truck through a Luby's Cafeteria window in Killeen, Texas, and fired on the lunchtime crowd with a high-powered pistol, killing 22 people and wounding at least 20 others.

However it's paid for, Jerome needs a new jail soon

Tuesday was a tough day to be a county sheriff in Idaho.

Ballot measures to build new jails or expand existing lockups failed in Jerome, Canyon and Kootenai counties. In Jerome and Canyon counties, voters will almost certainly be asked the same questions next May. Kootenai authorities, who face expiration of local-option tax authority, are unsure of their next step.

It's not that sheriffs and commissioners have much choice. In Canyon County, officials struck a consent agreement with the American Civil Liberties Union after the group sued earlier this year because of jail overcrowding. That's temporary, though. Only a new jail will make the ACLU go away.

On Tuesday, 57 percent of voters said yes to a $46 million bond issue; short of the required two-thirds approval.

In Coeur d'Alene, Kootenai County officials will continue to ship inmates elsewhere — to the tune of about $5 million a year. Voters declined to raise sales taxes a half-cent to expand the present jail.

And in Jerome, a proposed 30-year lease-purchase of a new $13.5 million jail fell two dozen votes short. The dilapidated 35-year-old stockade's closure is just a question of when.

Taxpayers nowhere in Idaho want anything to do with paying for new jails, but these three counties' alternatives are limited. In fact, Jerome and Canyon counties' only realistic short-term option is the same as Kootenai's — pay somebody else to house prisoners.

We supported the Jerome County jail enterprise, although we would have preferred a bond issue, even if the immediate cost to taxpayers were higher. And we believed then, as we do now, that a multi-county regional jail is a better idea.

The commissioners should consider both alternatives again before a second vote, but however a new jail is paid for, Jerome County is simply running out of time.

It can't afford — as Gem County did — to run eight jail bond issue proposals before one finally passes.

The closure of the current Jerome lockup — either by insurers refusing to cover the risk or by an ACLU lawsuit — without a replacement would be the worst and most expensive contingency for the county's taxpayers.

Who are you calling 'extremist'?

Here is one of the loudest messages of the 2009 off-off-year elections: Conservatives in America will no longer let their opponents define them as outside of the mainstream. They will not submit to Democrats. Or to the media. Or to Beltway Republican capitulationists. They will not “rebrand.” They will not sit down. They will not shut up.

Michelle Malkin

Just this past weekend, Democratic Rep. Jim Moran attacked the Republican candidates for governor and attorney general in his state of Virginia as the “Taliban ticket.”

New York Times columnist Frank Rich decried the right's “Jacobins” and “Stalinists” who he said joined a “putsch” by supporting Conservative Party candidate Doug Hoffman instead of ACORN-embracing, Big Labor-promoting, pro-abortion, pro-gay marriage, tax-and-spend Republican Dede Scozzafava in New York's 23rd congressional special election.

And senior White House adviser Valerie Jarrett told ABC's “This Week” that the grassroots conservative-vs.-GOP leadership battle over NY-23 showed that the Republican Party leadership was “becoming more and more extreme, and more and more marginalized.”

Let's talk “extreme.” Jarrett is the White House official who bragged openly about recruiting disgraced Marxist rabble-rouser Van Jones for the green jobs czar post. She lavished praise on his public career and said she had followed him “for as long as he's been active out in Oakland.” In Oakland, Jones was working to dismantle California's juvenile justice system, pitting minorities against police officers and crusading to free death row cop-killer Mumia abu Jamal.

Who are you calling “extreme”?

Jarrett's White House colleague Patrick Gaspard, Obama's political director who intervened in the race to convince Scozzafava to endorse the Democratic candidate Bill Owens after she dropped out, was a top organizer at the militant Local 1199 chapter of the Service Employees International Union and an activist/organizer for the New Party and the Working Families Party — both ACORN/Democratic Socialists of America front groups.

Who are you calling “extreme”?

“It's rather telling,” Jarrett sniffed, “when the Republican Party forces out a moderate Republican, and it says, I think, a great deal about where the Republican Party leadership is right now.” It's rather telling that the White House persists with this pointless marginalization strategy as Gallup polls show conservatives continuing to outnumber moderates and liberals across America.

As I pointed out in my Oct. 16 column, there was never anything moderate about Scozzafava. There was no fiscal conservatism to balance her social radicalism. It wasn't merely that she was “pro-choice.” She was also a proud recipient of a pro-abortion award named after eugenicist Margaret Sanger.

It wasn't merely that she favored higher government spending. It was also that she supported the stimulus, which every single House Republican in office opposed, on top of her support for the union-expanding card-check bill, on top of her ambiguous statements on the energy tax-imposing cap-and-trade bill.

Newt Gingrich, who foolishly stood with Scozzafava until she threw herself under the bus over the weekend, piously invoked Reagan and condemned the extreme “purism” of unruly conservatives who wouldn't keep quiet about Scozzafava's radical-left agenda.

But conservatives are not demanding “purity.” They are simply abiding by Reagan's own wise counsel in 1975: “A political party cannot be all things to all people. It must represent certain fundamental beliefs which must not be compromised to political expediency, or simply to swell its numbers.”

The Republican National Committee and National Republican Congressional Committee threw upward of $900,000 down the toilet for a candidate whose core views and political alliances undermined conservatism's fundamental beliefs in limited government from Day One. It was a reckless expenditure of the GOP base's hard-earned money and a bitter tuition bill for a teachable moment on the perils of political expediency.

The days when immoderate political operatives and feckless Beltway opportunists could define “moderation” by their own warped yardsticks without pushback are over.

Michelle Malkin can be reached at writemalkin@gmail.com.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Drivers, show common sense by slowing down

My letter is concerning drivers who feel the need for speed. My grandparents live on Quincy Street across from CSI. We were visiting them recently when we witnessed an accident. A lady was pulling out onto the road, and another car came from the light at Falls Avenue going an easy 30-plus mph and sideswiped her car.

This is a road that is twist and turns all the way. We constantly see young children in this area. My wife had just gotten our 10-month-old daughter in our car and shut the door when it happened.

People need to use common sense and slow down! Lives could be at stake.

I also want to thank the two officers who responded, as they were able to diffuse the irate speeding driver before it got out of hand.

LDS leader was talking about religious freedom

I feel obliged to point out the bias and misinformation in the commentary by Marty Trillaase of the Lewiston Tribune on a speech given at BYU-Idaho by Dallin H. Oaks, a leader in the LDS church.

Mr. Trillaase completely missed the point of Elder Oaks' speech given as a devotional address at the university. His talk was not about the history of the persecution of the blacks or the Mormons. It was not about gay marriage. It was a masterful discourse on religious freedom and freedom of speech and the dangers these freedoms face in our country today. Proposition 8 and gay marriage were used as examples to illustrate his points.

I don't know if Mr. Trillaase knows that Elder Oaks is a lawyer and a former member of the Utah Supreme Court and, as such, is extremely well qualified to discuss the Constitution and the freedoms guaranteed thereby. I also disagree with the heading given by the Times-News. “Church leader's history lesson fudges with history.” It is obvious that the one who wrote the heading had not read Elder Oaks' speech.

Again, Elder Oaks was not giving a history lesson. The writer made much to do about Elder Oaks' comparison to the voter intimidation associated with Proposition 8 and the voter intimidation of the blacks during the civil rights movement in the '60s. It was one sentence in his whole discourse. His use of this example was one of comparison to their “effect” not a comparison of the degree of persecution. The comparison is a fair one as he explains that in each incident the actions were anti-democratic. That was the main point.

I would implore anyone seriously interested in this topic to read the talk in its entirety and not rely on the narrow interpretation of some who seem to have tunnel vision whenever gay marriage is mentioned. It can be found at the church Web site, lds.org/ldsnewsroom.

Something was amiss in Eden election

The city of Eden's election is corrupted! I was bombarded with phone calls all Wednesday morning with complaints from city residents that were unable to vote for who they wanted and how they wanted.

It seems our city clerk had told one resident she could not vote for William Scates for City Council (four-year term) and that James Pierce was the only one she could vote for for the four-year term. Other residents have stated that when asked how to vote a write-in candidate, they were shown a sample ballot with the names already written in with James on top and Sierah Tattersal on the two-year term and William at the very bottom.

If this isn't manipulation or coercing then I don't know what is. An investigation needs to be done.

THE LIGHTER SIDE OF POLITICS

The best allies money can buy

In 2003, I was on a trip to Iraq and had arranged an appointment in the Green Zone with a member of the then-Iraqi Governing Council. Security was tight. I was with my Iraqi translator, a middle-aged man who had once been a teacher. When we arrived at the council, after a long walk, I showed my ID to two young uniformed U.S. soldiers. They told me to wait, went inside and out came a man wearing civilian clothes, one of those fishing vests and an Australian bush hat.

It was obvious that he was a “civilian contractor” from the logo on his shirt. When I tried to explain why we were there, he literally told me to shut my mouth until I was told to speak. Then he told my Iraqi translator to sit in the blistering heat while he escorted me — the American — inside to see if our Iraqi interviewee was available. I have to admit it: Both my translator and I really wanted to just punch his lights out. But I kept thinking to myself: “Who does this guy report to? If I get in his face and he comes after me, to whom do I complain?”

That was my first encounter with one of the many private security guards, service suppliers and aid workers — aka civilian contractors — who have since become an integral part of the U.S. war efforts in Iraq and Afghanistan. Some were even used at Abu Ghraib to do “enhanced interrogations” of suspected terrorists. Today, there is no operation that is too sensitive not to outsource to the private sector.

As we debate how many more troops to dispatch to Afghanistan, it might be a good time to also debate just how far we’ve already gone in hiring private contractors to do jobs that the State Department, Pentagon and CIA once did on their own. A good place to start is with the Middlebury College professor Allison Stanger’s new book on this subject, “One Nation Under Contract: The Outsourcing of American Power and the Future of Foreign Policy.”

Every year, more and more of the core business of national security “is being shifted into the hands of private contractors — much more than our public realizes,” Stanger said to me. One big reason why we’ve been able to fight the wars in Afghanistan and Iraq with so few allies is because we’ve basically hired the help.

“Afghanistan and Iraq,” explained Stanger, “are our first contractors’ wars, differing from previous interventions in their unprecedented reliance on the private sector for all aspects of their execution. According to the Congressional Research Service, contractors in 2009 accounted for

Thomas Friedman

48 percent of the DOD work force in Iraq and 57 percent in Afghanistan. And the Pentagon is not the only government agency deploying contractors; the State Department and Usaid make extensive use of them as well. Contractors provide security for key personnel and sites, including our embassies; feed, clothe and house our troops; train army and police units; and even oversee other contractors. Without a multinational contractor force to fill the gap, we would need a draft to execute these twin interventions.”

Or, we would need real allies.

I am not against outsourcing, improving government efficiency or hiring the best people to perform specialized tasks. But we’ve fallen into a pattern of outsourcing some of the very core tasks of government — interrogation, security, democracy promotion. As more and more of this government work gets contracted and then subcontracted — or as Stanger puts it, “when money and instructions change hands multiple times in a foreign country” — the public interest can get lost and abuse and corruption get invited in.

In 2008, notes Stanger, roughly 80 percent of the State Department’s requested budget went out the door in the form of contracts and grants.

The U.S. military is now proposing a huge nation-building project for Afghanistan to replace its dysfunctional government with a state that can deliver for the Afghan people so they won’t side with the Taliban. I might be more open to that project if we had a true global alliance to share the burden of an effort that will take decades. But we don’t. European publics do not favor this war, and our allies will only pony up just enough troops to get their official “Frequent U.S. Ally Card” renewed. We’ll make up the difference by hiring private contractors.

The government may operate more efficiently with private contractors. And outsourcing can often deliver real innovation, especially in economic development. Still, I’m old-fashioned: When America is acting abroad, I prefer our public services to be provided as much as possible by public servants motivated by, and schooled in, the common good and simple patriotism — not profits or private ambitions.

Curb antibiotic use for healthier U.S.

In looking at health-care reform, Congress and the Obama administration are missing a key remedy that could help keep Americans healthy, prevent disease and hold down costs. We urgently need to reduce the development of antibiotic-resistant bacteria that cause new and hard-to-treat diseases, and we can start with food animal production.

For years, the federal government has warned doctors and other health-care providers to administer antibiotics to only those patients with bacteria-related illnesses. Yet regulations still allow large-scale livestock feeding operations — industrial farms — to use antibiotics in ways never recommended for humans. In fact, the Union of Concerned Scientists estimates that up to 70 percent of all antibiotics sold in this country are given to food animals, most of it not to treat or prevent disease but to make the animals gain weight faster and to compensate for the crowded conditions often found in such enormous facilities.

This so-called “non-therapeutic use” involves employing antibiotics that are important for treating diseases and, administering them at sub-therapeutic levels for growth promotion in animals with no sign of illness. Unfortunately, this practice can create perfect conditions for bacteria to become resistant not only to one antibiotic, but to entire classes of the medicines.

When bacteria easily killed by the drugs die, they leave behind only surviving germs that can fight off the antibiotic. Spreading from the animals, these bacteria can move to people not only through direct contact with the livestock or from being around someone who works on an industrial farm, but also just by handling or consuming meat contaminated with the drug-resistant germs. Antibiotic-resistant bacteria in meat ultimately may end up in kitchens, where they contaminate countertops and hands. As a result, drug-resistant strains of E. coli and salmonella can migrate from the farm to the human community, spreading from person to person.

This past summer saw several instances of resistant bacteria entering the food supply through tainted meat. For example, in August, a California meat plant recalled more than 800,000 pounds of its ground beef because of the outbreak of an antibiotic-resistant salmonella strain linked to the meat. But the summer also saw the U.S.

Food and Drug Administration publicly acknowledge the human health risks posed by industrial farms, saying that the livestock industry should stop the non-therapeutic use of antibiotics because the practice is causing drug-resistant germs to develop. The American Medical Association, World Health Organization, American Association of Pediatricians and many other health organizations also have warned about the link between the rise of antibiotic-resistant bacteria and industrial farms’ inappropriate use of antibiotics.

The direct financial costs of antibiotic-resistant bacteria are as bad as the suffering caused by this problem. A recent study put the costs of resistance in U.S. hospitals at greater than $20 billion. Multiple doses of new, powerful and pricey medicines often are needed to kill such germs — and some patients require lengthy hospital stays, or at least miss days at work or school.

These drug-resistant strains can cause serious symptoms, including diarrhea, blood-borne infection, abdominal cramps and, in severe cases, organ damage and even death.

Furthermore, with few new antibiotics in the development pipeline from the drug companies, ending the practice of non-therapeutic use on industrial farms could prove critical to buying time for the medicines we already have. Indeed, anything that undermines the effectiveness of current antibiotics only contributes to the health care costs of resistant infections.

Prevention really is the best medicine, especially in this case. It makes much more sense to reduce the chances that new antibiotic-resistant germs will emerge than to let industrial farms continue a practice that endangers public health. The European Union has banned this practice. We should too.

Legislation pending in Congress would address the issue, by amending the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act to end the most worrisome industrial farm practices that give rise to antibiotic-resistant bacteria. Called the Preservation of Antibiotics for Medical Treatment Act, it would withdraw the use of seven classes of antibiotics vitally important to human health from use on industrial farms unless animals are actually sick.

Passing this measure would write at least one good prescription for improving our system of health care.

Who are you calling a narcissist, Rush?

I had a four-hour dinner once with Rush Limbaugh at the “21” Club in Manhattan, back in the days when I was still writing profiles as a “reporterette,” to use a Limbaugh coinage.

He was charming, in a shy, awkward, lonely-guy way. Not a man of the people. He arrived in a chauffeured town car and ordered $70-an-ounce Beluga, Porterhouse and 1990 Corton-Charlemagne.

But he was not a Neanderthal, though he did have a cold and blew his nose in his napkin. He talked about Chopin’s Polonaise No. 6, C.S. Lewis and how much he loved the end of the movie “Love Story.”

In those days, he called himself a “harmless little fuzzi-ball.” He’s a lot less harmless now. I went on to columny, as my pal Bill Safire called it, and Rush went on to calumny.

As he and Sarah Palin conduct their auto-da-fe of moderate Republicans — “Moderates by definition have no principles,” he told his radio audience on Monday — Limbaugh is more than ever the face of his party, as Rahm Emanuel said.

He’s also the mouth. Limbaugh is right that Democrats tend to dither too much. They’re always wondering if they’re doing the right thing, indulging in on-the-one-hand, on-the-other paralysis by analysis, seeing, as James Carville put it, “six sides to the Pentagon.”

Maureen Dowd

President Obama will have to step it up on jobs and fixing the deficit if he wants to block conservatives from stoking the anger of Americans who only see a recovery on Wall Street, especially given Republicans’ inroads Tuesday night.

But the tactics of Limbaugh, Palin, Cheney & Fille are more cynical: They spin certainty, ignoring their side’s screw-ups, and they exploit patriotism, labeling all critics as traitors.

In an interview on “Fox News Sunday With Chris Wallace,” Limbaugh accused the president of trying to destroy the economy — yes, the same economy that W. came within a whisker of ruining.

“I have to think that it may be on purpose,” Limbaugh said, “because this is just outrageous, what is happening — a denial of liberty, an attack on freedom.”

Asked about Afghanistan, another W. cataclysm that has left Obama agonizing, Limbaugh stated, “I also don’t think he cares much about it.” Again suggesting that the president is an unpatriotic fop, the radio ranter averred: “He wants to manage this rather than achieve victory.”

Asked about fellow conservative George Will’s contention that the United States should get out of Afghanistan, Limbaugh said, “I don’t have the benefit of knowledge that George Will has, so I trust the experts, and to me they’re the people in the U.S. military.”

Even a chickenhawk like Rush should remember how well that worked in Vietnam, or in the early years of Iraq. The founding fathers designated a civilian as commander in chief for a reason.

Military brass have told the White House that this is the first time in eight years that they have gotten the attention and resources that they’ve needed in Afghanistan.

Limbaugh calls Obama the “man-child president.”

The 48-year-old Obama is skinny and getting skinnier, but there’s nothing childish about him. He more or less raised himself and came to terms with his Oedipal demons on his own, and he radiates a hard-won maturity.

W., on the other hand, was always running off to the gym or going biking, leaving the governing to his regents, Cheney and Rummy, or incompetents like Brownie.

At our long-ago dinner, Limbaugh credited his success with being “one-dimensional.” “I’m totally concerned with me,” he said. And that was way before he got a contract for $400 million, so we can only imagine how one-dimensional he is now.

But on Sunday, he ripped the president for having “an out-of-this-world ego,” for being “very narcissistic,” “immature, inexperienced, in over his head.” (Isn’t immaturity scoring OxyContin from your maid?)

It gives new meaning to pot, kettle and black.

Report forecasts commercial real estate bottom

South-central Idaho likely to see less impact, brokers say

By Joshua Palmer
Times-News writer

The commercial real estate market in southern Idaho is expected to hit bottom in 2010, but will likely suffer less than bloated markets in other parts of the nation.

Unlike the housing market, which is in the process of being purged through foreclosures and sellers' growing willingness to lower their asking prices, the business of buying and selling commercial real estate has been stuck in neutral since the recession kicked in.

Vacancies at retail and commercial properties increased in places like Twin Falls and Burley since January 2008, say commercial real estate experts. But they say the region didn't experience speculative commercial development that overloaded markets in more populated areas like Boise.

"We just never had a rash of shopping centers being built, like they did nationwide," said Steve DiLucca, president of Westerra Real Estate. "Commercial will be the next shoe to drop, but how far it drops in our area remains to be seen."

That's because there are mixed signals in the valley.

The Magic Valley Mall will be at 100 percent occupancy this holiday season, but the number of vacancies along Blue Lakes Boulevard is expected to be about 20 percent higher than December 2008.

Owners of business properties such as office buildings and warehouses will likely suffer a surge of painful defaults, write-downs and workouts with their lenders as the market finally faces up to the reality of its diminished conditions, according to a report released Thursday by the Urban Land Institute.

The era of wishful thinking is about to end, according to industry professionals who participated in the study.

"The recession," said Richard Cavota, a partner at PriceWaterhouseCoopers, "is now impacting the fundamentals of real estate."

Industry experts predict properties nationwide will have lost 40 to 50 percent of their value from the peak of mid-2007 by the time the market presumably reboots next year.

However, losses in south-central Idaho will likely be much lower, said DiLucca.

"Key to this year will be how the retail sector performs this holiday season," he said.

Retail properties will take the biggest hits, the report said, as nervous consumers curb spending and companies delay rehiring. Many landlords who are barely hanging on now will lose their grip in 2010 — and some investors can hardly wait.

"Our report participants find that a sense of nervous euphoria is growing among liquid investors who can make all-cash purchases," said Stephen Blank, a senior resident fellow at the Urban Land Institute. "Those that are patient, daring and selective could score generational bargains on premium properties from both distressed sellers and banks that are clearing out unwanted bad loan and real estate owned portfolios."

The Los Angeles Times contributed to this report.

Grant could benefit firms in Idaho

The Associated Press

BOISE — Industrial sites in Idaho are due to benefit from a $350,000 grant from the U.S. Department of Energy to help them boost efficiency.

The Idaho Office of Energy Resources said in an e-mail it will oversee the projects at the J.R. Simplot Co. and the Amalgamated Sugar Co.

About $140,000 will go to improvements at J.R. Simplot facilities in Pocatello, Aberdeen, Nampa and Caldwell, to help reduce energy consumption equivalent to the amount needed to heat and light about 56,000 homes.

J.R. Simplot is also in the running to get $105,000 to investigate a demonstration project at a plant in southwestern Idaho, to utilize heat that normally goes to waste to produce refrigeration, hot water and power.

Paul Kjellander, the head of the state energy office, says another company is also being considered for that project, but its name hasn't been made public.

And the Amalgamated Sugar Co. will use its roughly $105,000 share to conduct a feasibility study for a 100-megawatt combined heat and power project at its Nampa sugar refinery.

Good news. Bad news.

Sonja Jackson, of Detroit, holds a Employment Guide standing in line while attending a job fair in Livonia, Mich. The number of newly laid-off workers filing claims for unemployment benefits last week fell to the lowest level in 10 months, evidence that job cuts are easing as the economy slowly heals.

Workers more productive, but that may hurt hiring

By Christopher S. Rugaber and Martin Crutsinger
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — Companies across the economy are finding ways to do more with fewer workers, dimming hopes that hiring will take off anytime soon.

Employers became leaner and more efficient in the third quarter. Wages, meantime, remain flat or falling. The result is that productivity — output per hour of work — jumped at the fastest pace in six years.

The good news for companies, though, is bad news for the jobless. As long as companies can get their workers to produce more, they have little reason to hire — at least until consumer spending picks up. And the squeeze on incomes could depress consumer spending, putting the economic recovery at risk.

Productivity rose at an annual rate of 9.5 percent in the July-September quarter, the Labor Department said Thursday. That was much better than the 6.4 percent gain economists had expected. Unit labor costs fell at a 5.2 percent rate.

Still, while companies aren't doing much hiring, they're also not cutting as many workers. The number of newly laid-off workers filing claims for unemployment ment benefits last week fell to the lowest level in 10 months

The 9.5 percent productivity rise followed a 6.9 percent surge in the second quarter and was the fastest since a 9.7 percent increase in the third quarter of 2003.

The gain reflected that the overall economy, as measured by the gross domestic product, grew for the first time in a year — at an annual rate of 3.5 percent.

The higher output came as companies continued to lay off workers. That meant employers produced more with fewer workers.

The 5.2 percent drop in unit labor costs marked the third straight decline and was larger than the 4 percent decrease economists were expecting.

Productivity is the key ingredient to rising living standards. It lets companies pay their workers

Idaho Power proposes agreement with wind project

Times-News

The Idaho Public Utilities Commission is taking comments through Nov. 25 on a proposed sales agreement with Idaho Winds LLC for a wind project six miles northwest of Glenns Ferry in Elmore County.

Meridian-based Idaho Winds LLC proposes to build a 21-megawatt wind facility that will be known as the Sawtooth Wind Project. Though its optimum capacity is 21 MW, under normal conditions it will not exceed 10 average megawatts on a monthly basis.

The wind project is scheduled to be in operation by Dec. 31, 2012.

Under the proposed 20-year contract, Idaho Power would pay the posted rate of $75.45 per megawatt-hour during months of normal demand in the first full-year of the contract, anticipated to be 2013. Under the agreement, the price gradually increases through the 20-year life of the contract.

The commission plans to handle the case under a modified procedure that uses written comments rather than conducting a hearing, unless customer comments can demonstrate a need for a public hearing.

October sales offer relief to merchants

By Anne D'Innocenzio
Associated Press writer

NEW YORK — Consumers, looking to outfit themselves for cooler weather and enticed by an improving economy, spent a little more in October, handing the retail industry its second consecutive monthly sales gain after more than a year of declines.

October results released Thursday showed that shoppers still were not spurring, restrained by tight credit and a weak job market. But the improving figures and tone of the reports all pointed to sales momentum as the industry heads into the holiday shopping season.

Affluent shoppers, who had been tight with their purse strings since the financial meltdown last year, spent more for designer duds.

Among the bright spots were Costco Wholesale Corp.; TJX Cos., which operates T.J. Maxx and Marshalls; and Gap Inc., all of which reported solid gains for October. But the biggest surprise were improving sales at luxury retailers like Saks Inc., and Nordstrom Inc.

Overall, sales at stores open at least a year rose 2.1 percent, according to a International Council of Shopping Centers-Goldman Sachs tally, compared with a 4.2 percent

Congress set to expand homebuyer tax credit

By Stephen Ohlemacher
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — Buying a home is about to get cheaper for a whole new crop of homebuyers — $6,500 cheaper.

First-time homebuyers have been getting tax credits of up to $8,000 since January as part of the economic stimulus package enacted earlier this year. But with the program scheduled to expire at the end of November, the Senate voted Wednesday to extend and expand the tax credit to include many buyers who already own homes. The House is scheduled to vote on the bill Thursday.

Buyers who have owned their current homes at least five years would be eligible

Fannie Mae offers borrowers option to foreclosure

WASHINGTON — Can't pay the mortgage? You still might be able to stay in your home. Government-controlled mortgage company Fannie Mae is going to give borrowers on the verge of foreclosure the option of renting their homes for a year.

The change announced Thursday could give a temporary break to thousands of homeowners, but critics question whether it will only add to the mushrooming losses at the company, which has received billions in taxpayer money.

The new "Deed for Lease" program will allow homeowners to transfer title to Fannie Mae and sign a one-year lease, with potential month-to-month extensions after that. It also helps save money because the lender does not need to complete the often lengthy and time-consuming foreclosure process.

The program helps "eliminate some of the uncertainty of foreclosure, keeps families and tenants in their homes during a transitional period, and helps to stabilize neighborhoods and communities," Jay Ryan, a Fannie Mae vice president, said in a statement.

It also does less harm to the borrower's credit record.

However, Mike Himes, director of homeownership services at

The Dow rose 203.82, or 2.1 percent, to 10,005.96, its first close above 10,000 since Oct. 22. It was the Dow's biggest advance since a gain of 257 points on July 15, when computer chip maker Intel Corp. said business was improving. The broader Standard & Poor's 500 index rose 20.13, or 1.9 percent, to 1,066.63, while the Nasdaq rose 49.80, or 2.4 percent, to 2,105.32.

The Russell 2000 index of smaller companies rose 18.03, or 3.2 percent, to 581.15.

Five stocks rise for every one that fell on the New York Stock Exchange, where volume came to 1.3 billion shares compared with 1.4 billion Wednesday. The dollar fell against other major currencies. Britain's FTSE 100 rose 0.4 percent, Germany's DAX index added 0.7 percent, and France's CAC-40 gained 1.1 percent. Earlier Thursday, Japan's Nikkei stock average fell 1.3 percent.

Sales

The October results marked the industry's strongest performance since July 2008 and beat estimates for a 1 percent gain. October's gain followed a surprising 0.6 percent increase in September.

October's reading excludes results from Wal-Mart Stores Inc., the world's largest retailer, which stopped issuing monthly sales reports earlier this year.

Sales at stores open at least a year are considered a key indicator of a retailer's health because they exclude the effects of store expansion.

Business was helped by a number of factors. Cooler weather helped boost sales of plaid shirts, leggings and boots. And early holiday discounts also may have drawn shoppers to get a head start on Christmas buying, Perkins said. Those with money are now becoming a little more willing to spend it, soothed by improving signs in housing and the stock market.

But retail sales figures are mainly starting to look better because they are being compared with the free fall in spending a year ago.

A number of stores, including Gap and teen merchant

Aeoropostale Inc., raised their profit outlooks. They have slashed inventories to respond to reduced demand. But BMO Capital Markets analyst John Morris said many stores have reached a point where they have "gotten too good."

"They planned so conservatively that they ran out of sales goods," hurting sales at the end of the month, Morris said.

The big question is whether shoppers will be motivated to buy holiday goods at full price knowing that if they wait too long, that coveted item might be sold out, or if they will hang back and wait for discounts.

"This is probably the last extension," said Sen. Johnny Isakson, R-Ga., a former real estate executive who championed the credits.

Community college, CSI activities help students juggle studies, parenthood

Community atmosphere

By Blair Koch
Times-News correspondent

Dressed as ninjas, fairy princesses, frogs, superheros and everything in between, hundreds of kids and their parents descended upon the College of Southern Idaho Student Recreation Center for Halloween fun on Oct. 30.

For college students juggling studies with parenthood, the activity was welcomed.

Dental assisting student Edith Suazo said coming to campus with her 4-year-old son, Jesus Gonzales, for the carnival was a great way to integrate student and parent life.

"I was able to tell him that this is where Mommy comes to school," Suazo said. "I like that the school provides ways to enhance family life."

Gonzales, dressed as a police officer, said he was proud of his mom.

"Her school is fun," he said.

The recreation center was filled with game booths ran by campus clubs and organizations.

International Business Club President David Teuscher, running a face-painting table, said parents are classmates and fellow club members. His brother is a student and parent, and Teuscher said he can see how his school experience is different.

"I think parents are more determined to succeed at college and achieve their goals," Teuscher said. "They have to have more of a struggle in balancing the load."

Teuscher said CSI's atmosphere benefits from having students who raise kids, and was glad the club could be a part of providing for familial needs.

"Kids are a part of life as well. Hopefully these kinds of events help those students slip back from the day-to-day grind and enjoy some time having fun with their kids," Teuscher said.

A dip in the lake relieves pain of Baker's cyst

DEAR DR. GOTT: I was bothered by a large Baker's cyst after an injury to my left knee. I needed surgery to repair my knee, and my doctor said the cyst would disappear on its own after my knee got better. Well, my knee improved, but the cyst got worse. My doctor tried to drain it, but nothing came out. I was still advised against surgery unless it was absolutely necessary owing to the area and length of recovery time. Some days, the pain was so bad I could hardly walk. I didn't want the surgery, so I just dealt with the pain and hoped it would go away as the doctor said.

ASK

Well, one day, a year and a half later, I was enjoying playing with my grandchildren in the lake. I twisted my knee a little, felt it pop, experienced enormous pain, and fell into the shallow water. I couldn't get up for about 30 minutes, but my grandchildren eventually helped me into my car.

I thought I was in big trouble and was going to have the surgery for sure. I felt the pain all that night, but to my surprise, it was gone the next morning. Eight months later, I remain pain-free, and the knot on the back of my knee is gone as well.

I believe when I twisted my knee, it ruptured the cyst and staying in the cool water helped.

DEAR READER: A Baker's cyst, also known as a popliteal cyst, is often the result of a problem with the knee joint, such as a tear or arthritis. When this occurs, too much synovial fluid is produced, resulting in a cyst. By way of explanation, synovial fluid is a lubricant that circulates throughout the knees, passing through various tissue pouches known as bursae. A mechanism within the joint and back of the knee regulates the amount of the fluid passing in and out. A bulge forms when the bursae fill and expand. That bulge is called a Baker's cyst.

Hollister approves increase in building fees

By Kimberly Williams-Brackett
Times-News correspondent

HOLLISTER — The Hollister City Council accepted a resolution to establish increased building-permit fees on Tuesday.

City Clerk Maureen Fleenor said the uniform fee structure reflects costs associated with enforcing the latest version of International Building and Residential Code, which is not set by the city. Per-square-foot valuations are based on occupancy and structure type.

The siting of manufactured homes was one fee that didn't increase, which is assessed at 27 cents per square-foot.

The valuation for residential projects is:

- Carports: $19.50 per square-foot
- Decks with roof: $17 per square-foot
- Finished basements: $34.41 per square-foot
- Unfinished basements:

$25.97 per square-foot

Dairy barns and related structures are classified as industrial for valuation purposes, however, Mayor Dixie Choate said no agriculture or industrial zones are within Hollister city limits.

"With the lack of growth here, I hate to see it raised," Councilman Darren McRae said, adding there was a big increase on carports, which Choate said was because they're more popular.

In other business, the council approved the canvassing ballot immediately following the city's election. With 55 votes cast, the incumbents retained their seats. Choate will remain mayor, and Councilwoman Betty Morris will remain on the council.

Newcomer Rebecca Farrell will replace Councilman Greg Will since he moved out of the area and his seat was up for re-election.

A public hearing will be held at 6:30 p.m. Dec. 14, at the Hollister City Hall to accept the Twin Falls County zoning ordinance for "Chapter 16 telecommunication tower, antennas, and related facilities."

AT&T is requesting a 1,000 square-foot piece of land to establish a cell phone tower on. It offered the council a $5,000 signing bonus if it approves the land transfer before Nov. 26. In addition, the council will receive $6,000 yearly for use of the property. The council agreed to deposit the funds in savings "for possible problems in the future," said Choate.

The council discussed a resolution to establish a usage fee scale and refundable cleaning deposit for use of the Hollister Grange Hall. The resolution will officially be approved at the next meeting.

Fleenor said the increase of PSI Waste Systems Inc.'s garbage fee to $11 a month is effective Nov. 1 and will appear on residents' December bills.

In some cases, no treatment is necessary. In others, however, help from a primary-care physician, physical therapist, medication, drainage or surgery to repair the torn cartilage might be appropriate. A physician should be consulted when pain and swelling are observed behind the knee.

Noninvasive testing such as MRI or ultrasound can be performed for proper diagnosis.

While rare, there are instances in which fluid can leak into the calf. This appears to be what happened to you. Usually, medical attention is necessary to help evaluate the symptoms of a ruptured cyst, because they can be similar to those of a blood clot in your leg. However, your cyst did rupture, and you were unable to see a physician before the condition resolved on its own.

Lifestyle changes will go a long way toward relieving pain for many sufferers. They include a reduction in physical activity; over-the-counter aspirin, ibuprofen, naproxen or acetaminophen; rest, compression and elevation of the knee area; and icing of the joint. A substitute for an ice pack in the middle of the night just might be a bag of peas from the freezer wrapped around the joint.

We have to give your physician the benefit of being correct. The cyst did go away by itself without surgery.

I'm not sure that he would have expected it to burst while you were immersed in water, but all's well that ends well. Congratulations.

To provide related information, I am sending you a copy of my health report "Managing Chronic Pain." Other readers who would like a copy should send a self-addressed stamped No. 10 envelope and a check or money order for $2 to Newsletter, P.O. Box 167, Wickliffe, OH 44092. ## Pauline Ball Cooper

RUPERT — Esther Pauline Ball Cooper, age 86, of Rupert, passed away Tuesday, Nov. 3, 2009, at the Minidoka Memorial Hospital in Rupert.

Pauline was born in Norwood, Mo., on Oct. 30, 1923, one of seven siblings, to Jesse and Nola McGowan. She lived her younger life in Missouri, where she grew up on a family farm.

On Aug. 14, 1948, she married Millard R. Ball with the presence of close friends in Fulton County, Ark. Millard and Pauline began their life together in Mountain Grove, Mo., with her daughters, Margaret and Marjorie from a previous marriage. They helped her parents with the family farm until moving to Twin Falls to farm near Millard's brother, Dean. In 1950, they moved back to Mountain Grove to a small farm and dairy. In 1958, the family moved to Idaho, including their new son, Jerry. They began a hard life of homestead farming, but hard work grew into a passion that was never lost.

Pauline held several jobs, including a time at Shelton Insurance where she developed lifelong friends, but ultimately spent most of her time working on the farm.

Pauline took pride in growing a magnificent garden and strawberry patch every year, which would be culminated each fall canning fruits and vegetables. She also enjoyed crocheting and quilting but was probably the best at being a wonderful wife, mother and grandmother. She took great pleasure in watching her grandchildren grow and could have written a handbook on how to spoil and love them. Millard and Pauline both took joy in being together and participating in their grandchildren's extracurricular activities. Her guilty pleasure was occasional trips to Jackpot, where she could demonstrate her talents at playing card games and winning various sums of money that she would never completely confess to.

In 1999, her husband, Millard, passed away and she took comfort in a close family friend, Cecil Cooper, whom she briefly married and who later also passed away.

She is survived by her two daughters, Margaret Cramer (Dick Siem) and Marjorie (Bob) Lindsey; son, Jerry (Carma) Ball; sister, Eva Gill; brother, Willard McGowan; eight grandchildren; 14 great-grandchildren; and three great-great grandchildren. She was preceded in death by her husband, Millard; father, Jesse; mother, Nola; sister, Doris; and brothers, Lee, Robert and Merle.

The funeral will be held 11 a.m. Saturday, Nov. 7, at the First Christian Praise Chapel, 1110 Eighth St. in Rupert, with the Rev. Mac McSweeney officiating. Burial will be in the Rupert Cemetery. Friends may call from 6 until 8 p.m. Friday, Nov. 6, at the Rasmussen Funeral Home, 1350 E. 16th St. in Burley.

In lieu of flowers, the family requests a donation be made in Pauline's name to the American Cancer Society or to the Rupert Senior Citizens Center in care of Rasmussen Funeral Home.

In 1983, he married Judy Madden of Duvall, Wash., and spent most of the rest of his life with her. As part of his life with her, he was the master of ceremonies for the John Wayne Pioneer Wagon Train for 15 years. ## William 'Will' Harbison

HAGERMAN — Will, son of Tom and Terri Harbison and brother of Angel, was born April 16, 1974, in Elko, Nev. Will graduated from Hagerman High School in 1992. This is where his passion for basketball began. His junior year, Will's basketball team went to state, and his senior year, he was appointed to the all-conference team. His role as a trainer was instrumental in leading the football team to state championships in 1989. After graduation, he began his coaching career at Hagerman High School as the assistant to his best friend, Coach Clark, working with the boys basketball team. He became head coach for the team in 1999. In 2001, he coached under Allen Kelsey for the basketball team in Wendell. Then his dream of coaching at the college level came true when he became an assistant to Tommy Connor at Westminster College in Utah.

After leaving Salt Lake due to health reasons, he returned to Idaho where he was the assistant boy's basketball coach with Houston Finn in Jerome for two years. He then became the head coach for the Jerome Lady Tigers where he stayed until 2007.

After a lifelong battle with cystic fibrosis, Will made the decision to accept a lung transplant which moved the family to Salt Lake in 2007. The blessing of a life gift was given on Feb. 23, 2008, when he received his new lungs. Due to complications from the surgery, Will had new challenges to overcome. He spent 10½ months in Salt Lake's Intensive Care Unit and was transferred to Boise's Southern Idaho Advance Care Hospital for 2½ months, where they took such good care that he was allowed to go home to Hagerman without his vent in January 2009. Will spent the remainder of this year fighting for the strength to do the things he loved, like fishing on his new boat, attending basketball games and supporting his two favorite teams, the Boston Celtics and the Dallas Cowboys. In August 2009 Will finally met the love of his life, when his niece, Kayli Mae Beutler was born. She spent countless hours in his arms, where Will found true happiness.

In October, he learned that he was not eligible for a kidney transplant and he also had a liver disease. Since then he had been in constant pain and, on Wednesday, Nov. 4, he decided to give up his pain to God. Will was surrounded by family and friends and left this world peacefully to play basketball on the streets of gold.

He is survived by his parents, Tom and Terri Harbison; his sister, Angel (Aaron) Beutler; his niece, Kayli Mae; grandparents, George and Cherie Atwood; Eileen Sokof; and many relatives and friends too numerous to mention. He was preceded in death by his Grandpa John, Grandpa Jack, Grandpa Ben, and "Grandma" Georgia.

A service will be held at 11 a.m. Saturday, Nov. 7, at the Jerome High School gymnasium. Will requested that, in lieu of flowers, donations be made to the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation or to the Gift of Life Foundation. A scholarship fund has also been started in his name at the Jerome High School.

The family requests that you write down your favorite memory of Will and bring it to the celebration of his life so that the family can collect them for a memory book to share.

'You hit a what?' Couple in SUV nearly slams into elephant

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — It's not unusual to see a deer or a cow crossing Oklahoma's rural highways. But an elephant?

A couple driving home from church nearly slammed into a giant pachyderm that had escaped from a nearby circus late Wednesday.

"Didn't have time to hit the brakes. The elephant blended in with the road," driver Bill Carpenter said Thursday. Carpenter, 68, added that he swerved at the last second and ended up sideswiping the 29-year-old female elephant on U.S. 81 in Enid, about 80 miles north of Oklahoma City.

"So help me Hanna, had I hit that elephant, not swerved, it would have knocked it off its legs, and it would have landed right on top of us," he said. "We'd have been history."

AROUND THE WORLD

YEMEN

Saudis bomb Yemen rebels across border

SAN'A — Saudi Arabia sent fighter jets and artillery bombardments across the border into northern Yemen Thursday in a military incursion apparently aimed at helping its troubled southern neighbor control an escalating Shiite rebellion, Arab diplomats and the rebels said.

The Saudis — owners of a sophisticated air force they rarely use — have been increasingly worried that extremism and instability in Yemen could spill over to their country, the world's largest oil exporter. The offensive came two days after the killing of a Saudi soldier, blamed on the rebels.

Yemen denied any military action by Saudi Arabia inside its borders. But Yemen's president is a key ally of the Saudis, making it highly unlikely the kingdom would have launched the offensive without tacit Yemeni agreement.

SPAIN

Negotiators lower climate pact's goals

BARCELONA — With the U.S. Congress still struggling to agree on sharp cuts in greenhouse gases or how to fund them, European officials said Thursday they were now striving for a political agreement instead of a new treaty to allow the U.S. and other rich nations to make commitments that are not legally binding.

The revised thinking was an implicit admission of defeat: the two-year timetable for crafting a landmark treaty will miss its deadline, and that failure threatens to deepen the distrust between rich countries and poor nations reeling from drought and failing crops caused by persistently warmer weather.

The treaty had been due to be completed in December at a 192-nation conference in Copenhagen, Denmark.

European and U.N. officials are now suggesting a political deal, rather than a legal accord, that would rely on commitments from both wealthy and developing countries. Industrial countries would commit to firm targets for reducing emissions of heat-trapping carbon dioxide and allocating funds for poor countries, while developing countries would specify their plans for low-carbon growth.

AFGHANISTAN

U.N. to scale back in Kabul after attack

KABUL — A week after a jarring pre-dawn attack killed five members of its Kabul staff, the United Nations announced plans Thursday to scale back its operations in the city temporarily while it re-evaluates dangers in the country.

While the United Nations said the decision to relocate about half of its international staff shouldn't be seen as a diplomatic retreat, the move comes amid concerns that Taliban fighters have been emboldened by the deadly attack and may try to strike again.

"They realize that if they hit the United Nations again, there's a serious risk of the United Nations leaving the country," said one diplomat in Kabul, who spoke only on the condition of anonymity so that he could speak candidly about the U.N. plans.

One of the biggest worries is that insurgents in Afghanistan are trying to duplicate the strategy of Iraqi extremists who forced the United Nations to shutter its Iraqi operations in 2003 after a devastating truck bomb hit the U.N. headquarters, killing 22 people, including the top U.N. official in the country.

WASHINGTON

Senate panel OKs climate change bill

Disregarding a Republican boycott, Democrats on the Senate Environment and Public Works Committee passed legislation Thursday that would impose a mandatory curb on greenhouse gas emissions.

The move to report out the bill authored by Sen. John Kerry, D-Mass., and the panel's chairman, Sen. Barbara Boxer, D-Calif., highlighted the divisiveness of the current proposal, as well as Democrats' eagerness to demonstrate they're making at least some legislative progress before international climate talks next month in Copenhagen.

Even as the panel approved the bill on an 11 to 1 vote — with Sen. Max Baucus, D-Mont., opposing it because he said it included climate targets that are too steep and did not do enough to protect farmers — attention shifted to Kerry's efforts to collaborate with Sens. Lindsey Graham, R-S.C., and Joseph Lieberman, I-Conn., on a different, bipartisan measure that would seek to expand the number of nuclear reactors and oil drilling off U.S. coasts. Many senators see these talks — rather than the bill approved in committee — as the main vehicle for any legislation that would reach the floor.

Health care bill foes take to the streets

With a historic House vote on a $1 trillion health care bill barely 48 hours away, battle lines are hardening as lobbying groups for seniors and doctors endorsed the legislation, while thousands of protesters swarmed Capitol Hill to oppose it.

"Kill the bill! Kill the bill!" conservative and small government advocates chanted Thursday, some having traveled on short notice from as far as California and Texas to protest what they saw as tantamount to socialized medicine. "No Marx. No Mao," one protest sign read. "No socialized anything," read another.

Democratic leaders, who are making a last-minute push to nail down a majority vote for their overhaul plan, touted endorsements by the AARP and the American Medical Association. The AARP endorsement was prized because the seniors lobby is an electoral powerhouse and has been skeptical of the Democrats' proposals to reduce Medicare spending. The AMA's support marked a turnaround for a group that played a leading role in stopping past reform efforts.

FLORIDA

Baby found alive in box under sitter's bed

CHIPLEY — Investigators spent five days searching a rural area of dense vines and marshes for a missing infant, only to find her lying quietly in a 2-foot by 3-foot cedar box that had been shoved under her baby sitter's bed.

Clothing was packed around it to muffle any sounds and baking soda placed inside to mask the stench of dirty diapers.

Authorities said the baby's mother, Chrystina Lynn Mercer, gave the infant to baby sitter Susan Elizabeth Baker early Saturday, then reported her missing about 10 hours later. About 100 law enforcement agents and others spent days scouring around the baby's home in a remote, makeshift community of dirt roads, tin-roof shacks and old mobile homes. Searchers also dug through trash cans and bins.

All along, the baby was under the bed.

Washington County Sheriff Bobby Haddock choked up Thursday as he described how 7-month-old Shannon Dedrick was stashed in the box for 12 straight hours before investigators discovered her late Wednesday. They believe she had been in the closed box on and off for several days.

"She was way back under the bed," he said. "But she was not crying."

TEXAS

Sect member found guilty of sex assault

ELDORADO — The first polygamist sect member to face criminal trial following last year's raid at the Yearning For Zion Ranch in West Texas was convicted Thursday of sexually assaulting an underage girl with whom he had a so-called "spiritual marriage."

Raymond Jessop, 38, didn't visibly react when the verdict was read after just more than two hours of jury deliberations. Free on bond during trial, he was immediately handcuffed and led to jail. Jurors were expected to return to court Monday to begin deciding his sentence on the child sexual assault conviction. He faces up to 20 years in prison.

Lawyers in the case declined to comment on the verdict Thursday.

NEW HAMPSHIRE

CONCORD — The infamous photograph of Lee Harvey Oswald holding a rifle in his backyard would have been nearly impossible to fake, according to a new analysis by a Dartmouth College professor.

Oswald, who was shot to death days after being charged with the 1963 assassination of President John F. Kennedy, claimed the photo of him holding a rifle in one hand and Marxist newspapers in the other had been doctored. Over the years, many others have pointed out what appear to be inconsistent lighting and shadows.

But Hany Farid, director of the Neukom Institute for Computational Science at Dartmouth, said the shadows are exactly where they should be.

In Buhl, filming the universal experience

Actor Scott Glenn as his character, a sheriff named Ed, in the feature 'Buhl, Idaho.'

BUHL — As film crews traipse through town to film Buhl native Jaffe Zinn's independent feature film "Buhl, Idaho," The Cosmic Jolt coffee shop has become their unofficial gathering place.

Jolt owner Becky Hagerott said crew members are in and out nearly every day, and the experience is spell-binding.

"I've served a lot of coffee and meals, and it's been a lot of fun. I'm really delighted that Jeff would come back to Buhl and do this movie. It's stirred up the town," Hagerott said. "I preach community all day every day, and this is pulling the community together. Maybe we can become something more, something we wouldn't have had the opportunity to become, because of this film."

The shop will be used for filming next week, one of many locales making an appearance.

"They're filming a segment in here, and the joke going around here is that I auditioned for a part, myself, but didn't get it. I haven't seen who is going to play me, but she's got to be gorgeous and larger than life," Hagerott said.

Cosmic Jolt owner Becky Hagerott has enjoyed getting to know production and crew members with the feature movie 'Buhl, Idaho,' being filmed in and around Buhl. The coffee shop is used in the movie, as are the city's police department building, Holesinsky Organic Vineyard and Winery and Don's Thriftway, to name a few.

Even without a speaking role — she's cast as an extra — Hagerott has enjoyed the behind-the-scenes experience.

Buhl resident Frank Holesinsky is closer to the action. He was filmed in a small role opposite Hollywood actor Scott Glenn, cast as a sheriff.

Holesinsky plays a farmer who sells Glenn's character hay for his horses.

They exchange niceties while the transaction is completed and scene comes to a close.

"We didn't do much that required camaraderie; to say we became well acquainted, that didn't happen," Holesinsky said. "Glenn was a personable fellow. We did our scene, I'm hoping it comes out nice."

Holesinsky said he hasn't had much time to reflect on the experience, which he described pragmatically instead of gushing about his time up close with a high-profile character actor.

"I haven't really put it all together yet. Any experience in life, any new and novel experience, is beneficial to your mental frame," he said.

The 69-year-old was overwhelmed by the amount of equipment and support staff needed for filming.

"It doesn't look complicated when you watch a movie, but there was a lot of effort that a novice like myself had no idea about," Holesinsky said. "They had trailers and equipment, support staff everywhere. They even JEROME — Young musicians spread endlessly along the Jerry Diehl stage at Jerome High School.

"We've got 99 kids in Ambush this year, up from 40 members from when I started teaching here," said director Gordon Smith. "After Dallas Brass visited

Brass

“If we can perform with the Dallas Brass we can do anything,” Smith said. “It just opened everyone’s eyes as to the capabilities. Now, sky’s the limit.”

Students and officials with the Jerome district’s music program credit the Dallas Brass for helping change the direction of music education at the school. The music department is teeming with anticipation for next week’s visit.

“It’s amazing that such a small town could get something so big,” said freshman Anastasia King, a color guard in Ambush and clarinet player in the symphonic band.

The musicians of Ambush are taking competitions by storm. They’ve performed and competed in six Western states and are Idaho’s reigning District IV marching band champions. The symphonic band received superior ratings — the highest available — at the district Large Ensemble festival this spring, and the school’s Pep Band was named best in the state last season by Idahosports.com.

The accolades are earning the district a reputation for innovation, creativity and excellence, Smith said.

Linda Schoepp has long enjoyed Jerome High’s music. The students have always performed well, Schoepp said, but over the past couple of years have improved their sound. The band produces a more unified, tighter sound that impresses the manager of Dunkley Music in Twin Falls.

“In my opinion, they’re great,” said Schoepp, who hopes to catch the Dallas

Brass with Jerome again.

Jerome’s young musicians are no longer just band geeks, they’re performers accomplishing things, said senior Cody Maltos, who plays quad toms, a set of four tenor drums.

“Having Dallas Brass here changed everything. Before we weren’t too big, and now it’s a whole new atmosphere. Our status has changed,” Maltos said. “I hope having them come again will make us even better. They make you think about music in a whole different way.”

In addition to playing alongside student musicians from the high school and middle school, Dallas Brass will give a clinic to students during the day.

“It’s way different to play alongside someone with years and years of experience, and it’s humbling that they want to share that experience,” Maltos said.

The concert, featuring Dallas Brass, Ambush, the school’s symphonic band, the high school’s Divisi choral ensemble and the middle school’s Tiger Band, offers two hours of music including “Star Wars,” “The Power And the Dream” and “American Tableau.”

“It’s amazing that such a small town could get something so big,” King said.

She twirled her bright orange flag and threw it into the air. As the last tat-tat-punched the air from the percussionists on stage and the musicians sharply put down their instruments, King extended her arm to the pole.

Former Buhl resident and husband sign with Mustang Records

By Melissa Davlin
Times-News writer

Need new fodder for your playlist, country and gospel fans? Turn to the Internet.

Singers Gina and Charlie Jones are part of a growing group of musicians using the Internet to spread their music.

Gina was born in Jerome and grew up between California, Idaho and the Midwest. While living in Buhl as a teenager, she performed with her brothers at bars around south-central Idaho.

Gina’s mother, Iva Jean Barnhart of Hagerman, said Gina was always determined to keep up with her older brothers. When she was about 10 years old, she taught herself how to play bass and strong-armed her way into a singing position in the band, even though her brothers didn’t believe she could do it.

“They thought she was too young,” Barnhart said.

At 15, she signed a five-year deal with a recording company in Nashville, Tenn. She graduated from Buhl High School and moved to Nashville to pursue her singing career. There, she met Charlie, a classically trained pianist. Charlie grew up playing in church — a far cry from the Idaho saloons Gina crooned in.

When the two married and joined musical forces, they had more than 400 works of music combined.

CATCH THEIR TUNES

Listen to Gina and Charlie Jones’ music at last.fm/music/Gina+and+Charlie+Jones

Composing music now is easier than ever, Gina said. They collaborate and compare notes. If Gina hears a melody in her head, she can hum it and Charlie reproduces it on the keyboard.

Gina and Charlie spent hours online seeking a distributor when they found Mustang Records. The company gives them complete creative control and distributes their work to artists and producers. Since the Joneses signed with Mustang earlier this autumn, their songs have had thousands of hits online.

Much of their music is country gospel, with a few pop country songs. Both Charlie and Gina have contributed to the repertoire; Charlie wrote “Daddy” in honor of his father, and Gina wrote “The Mind of Christ.”

No matter what genre their listeners prefer, or whose songs they like best, the couple agrees that spreading their message is what matters.

“God really put us together for a reason,” Gina said.

Filming

Continued from Entertainment 1 had catering up from Albuquerque, N.M. ... It was a lot to take in.”

He’s excited to see the result, which will feature the family’s Holesinsky Organic Vineyard and Winery north of Buhl.

Glenn told the Times-News that he never thought he’d drive from his Wood River Valley home to Twin Falls to shoot a film — but that it was worth it.

Glenn has appeared in hits like “Urban Cowboy,” “Silence of the Lambs,” “The Hunt for Red October” and “The Bourne Ultimatum.”

He’s currently juggling three films including “Sucker Punch,” a comedic fantasy action film written by Steve Shibuya and Zach Snyder, who is directing. Snyder has directed films like “Watchmen” and the popular “300.”

Glenn was drawn to “Buhl” for its haunting yet hopeful storyline.

“It’s about Buhl in a way that could only be told from a person who grew up and understands the area ... but it’s really about how days begin with our personal needs and desires and we live our lives, go about our days until something big ambushes us,” Glenn said. “There is always something right around the bend, usually it’s not good.”

That story can happen within the Snake River Canyon or Wall Street, and Glenn said Zinn captures that truth.

“Jaffe has a specific vision and phenomenal sense of humor. He understands visuals and timing to make scenes funny but not over-the-top burlesque. He’s the perfect director, leaves you alone. As long as you’re not changing the rhythm or tenor of the scenes, you have room to work,” Glenn said.

He’s enjoyed working so close to home and said parts of his character have come from Blaine County Sheriff Walt Femling and Gooding County Sheriff Shaun Gough, both of whom Glenn knows personally.

While filming of “Buhl” is expected through mid-November, Glenn’s screen time is wrapped up.

“The potential of an indie film can go two ways: It can go down the toilet and no one will ever see it, or it can become hugely successful and go on to win a ton of awards at Sundance,” Glenn said. “I’m banking on the latter.”

So is Buhl.

MUSICIAN PROVIDES TASTE OF LATIN RHYTHMS AT MASTER CLASS

By Pat Marcantonio
Times-News writer

With fingers and palms flying over congas, Russ Caldwell beat out Latin rhythms. They sounded of heartbeats, dancing feet, swaying hips.

Caldwell called it spreading around Latin jazz.

The Hailey resident led a free master class Tuesday at the College of Southern Idaho. About 20 people attended — not only percussion students, but community members. Caldwell has played with Count Basie and Poncho Sanchez. His Latin rhythms also can be found on the soundtrack of the PBS documentary “Liquid Stage.”

At the class, Caldwell presented an overview of Latin rhythms and percussion instruments.

Latin rhythms are more intricate than those in American music, said Caldwell, who moved to Idaho from San Diego three years ago. “Not only are the percussion instruments playing the rhythms, but other instruments play the rhythm, as well.”

He showed the students patterns on conga drums. The touch, slap and open, where to hit and how to hit.

Along with a demonstration of how to play the rhythms on different instruments was a history lesson about them. In storytelling fashion, Caldwell rolled out facts about how African rhythms came out of slavery days and mixed with indigenous music.

“He has really immersed himself in the history of the music,” said Brent Jensen, CSI associate music professor.

Mostly, the Latin rhythms are centered on dance from Africa’s ancient times, Caldwell said.

Of all the music, his favorite is Latin jazz.

“It’s hilarious fun. Everybody has rhythm from their heart on out, and when they start playing it’s just catching,” he said. “It’s just really, really uplifting.”

Vocal music: King's Singers

Oct. 30 at Stephens Performing Arts Center, Pocatello

What a delight to hear one of the the world's best a cappella groups in the Jensen Grand Concert Hall's cathedral-worthy acoustics. The lingering notes would have died so beautifully if not covered by too eager clapping. No wonder the tenor was muttering during applause.

— Virginia Hutchins, Times-News deputy editor/features

Theater: 'The Syringa Tree'

Showing through Nov. 8 at The Liberty Theatre, Hailey

Seven gals went to see Company of Fools' "The Syringa Tree" on a recent Sunday with Denise Simone. What a powerful story and what an amazing, powerful actor. We are lucky to have this calibre of theater near us. I would urge everyone to go see this play.

— Phyllis Mascari of Twin Falls

Rock: Halloween at the Pioneer

Oct. 31 at Pioneer Club, Twin Falls

Dirty Johnny was a smashing success and kept the crowd on the dance floor. The winners of the costume contest were: first place, Little Red Riding Hood and the Big Bad Wolf; second place, Tarzan and Jane; third place, Sniper Man. Congratulations to all who participated.

— Sandra Pierce, Times-News news clerk, and photographer/merchandiser for Dirty Johnny

Theater: 'Jekyll and Hyde, the Musical'

Magic Valley Little Theater production, seen Oct. 29 in College of Southern Idaho auditorium

We were amazed at the amount of local talent displayed in this incredible play. Dusty Blackburn took on the double role with fierceness and finesse. His singing was bold and deliberate. With a stoop of his shoulders and a cast of his eyes, he turned from docile Jekyll to mad Hyde.

— Vickie and David Quinley of Jerome, Claire and Scott McClure of Jerome, and Shirley and Jim Cobble of Fairfield and Twin Falls

Cowboy music: Bar J Wranglers

Oct. 24 at Twin Falls' Roper Auditorium

Thumbs up to these five talented and versatile musicians. But I can't help wishing the audience would have held off its applause until the Wranglers actually finished each song. I'm not sure I heard the final chords of any number — and with harmony this great, I really wanted to.

— Virginia Hutchins, Times-News deputy editor/features

Gooding festival needs donations

Times-News

The annual Gooding Hospital Foundation Festival of Trees — this year dubbed "Faces of Christmas" — will be held in a new location, the 4-H Building at the Fairgrounds, Dec. 10-12.

"The response from organizations willing to decorate a tree has been overwhelming," co-chairwomen Marsha Dains and Cindi Canine wrote in a press release, "but we are still hoping to hear from Gooding County community members willing to donate wreaths and other items for the gala opening night auction. Monetary donations are also welcome to help defray festival expenses."

The foundation will use the proceeds for hospital projects and health education, particularly in connection with the planned opening of a new hospital in spring.

Piano soloist, guest conductor highlight Magic Philharmonic's season opener

By Judy Albertson
Times-News writer

BURLEY — The Magic Philharmonic Orchestra will begin its new season with the Fall Concert at 7:30 p.m. Nov. 13 at King Fine Arts Center, 2100 Park Ave. in Burley.

"The selections performed range from classical works to modern show tunes, so there is something everyone will enjoy," said Bob Dean, who plays viola and handles the group's publicity.

The nonprofit Magic Philharmonic consists of 60 to 65 Mini-Cassia musicians. Bob Dayley of Burley is an original member of the group, founded in 1982.

"We started with nine members, and by the time we gave our first concert we had 23," Dayley said.

He said a change in conductors for each concert is one factor in success.

"Each one brings a different concept — a different flavor — and gives a little bit different type of entertainment," said Dayley, who plays trumpet and plans to continue as long as he can.

Guest conductor for next week's concert is Roger Turner, who began playing trombone at an early age. Turner studied music on scholarship at Ricks College and later at Brigham Young University, where he played in the BYU Philharmonic, Synthesis, Wind Ensemble and Cougar Band. He also played in several pit orchestras for operas and musicals, brass quintets, jazz combos and other small groups.

Turner has spent more than 26 years teaching secondary bands, orchestras, choirs and elementary music. He has been a member of Magic Philharmonic more than 20 years, playing French horn, and served as section leader, assistant conductor and guest conductor with the orchestra.

Del Parkinson, the concert's guest soloist, began studying piano at age 5 in his hometown of Blackfoot. He holds a doctorate of music from Indiana University and a postgraduate diploma from The Juilliard School. He received a Fulbright-Hays grant for graduate study in London. He was coordinator of piano instruction at BYU-Idaho, where he taught for eight years, and is now professor of piano at Boise State University, where he joined the faculty in 1985.

Parkinson's London debut recital was on the American Bicentennial Series, and his New York debut recital in mayor's award for artistic excellence, the Morrison Center honor medallion, the Idaho Commission on the Arts career fellowship award, and the Idaho governor's award for excellence in the arts.

Some of the selections for the Fall Concert: "Dance of the Comedians" (from "The Bartered Bride"); selections from "Chicago"; "Second American Folk Rhapsody"; Mozart's "Magic Flute"; and Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue," performed by Parkinson.

Tickets are $7 for adults, $3 for students and $17 for a family.

Season tickets for the 2009-10 concert season are $21 for adults, $9 for students and $50 for a family. The season ticket includes this concert and three more: a Christmas concert in December, pops concert in February and spring concert in April.

Twin Falls native releases new album of pop music

Times-News

Twin Falls native Chris Eberlein says he has come a long way in a couple of years.

The pop up-and-comer failed to match the success of 2008's Hollywood and Los Angeles Music Award-nominated dance music single "Love is a Game," which was produced and released to radio by Grammy-winning producer Klubjumpers Inc. Eberlein took some time off after moving back to Los Angeles from Boston early this year, and found work as a fashion model.

Then this summer, the Berklee College of Music graduate released "Twisted Up," a hip-hop/pop song later announced as the lead single off Eberlein's new album "In One Ear, Not Out the Other." The song propelled itself to the top of Internet radio charts in July and sold more than 1,000 downloads in its first week, Eberlein said in a press release.

On Oct. 27, he released his second album and announced the new single "Too Sick," a stomping robo-pop number criticizing early marriage with the line, "Isn't life the best for the stupidest?"

"In One Ear, Not Out the Other" features 13 new tracks and embraces the use of autotune and pop hooks. Eberlein said he plans to tour in January to promote the album as well as the new remix of his "Love is a Game" single by adult film star turned producer Mitch Branson.

Defense documentary to show in Hailey

Times-News

Just how defensible is the U.S.?

That will be the subject on Wednesday, when The Heritage Foundation presents "33 Minutes: Protecting America in the New Missile Age." The hour-long documentary will be shown at 6:30 p.m. at the Community Campus Theatre, 1020 Fox Acres Road in Hailey. Admission is free.

The title plays off the idea that a missile launched from anywhere in the world can hit America in 33 minutes or less.

The film purports that a ballistic missile attack remains the largest threat to America's national security.

James Carafano, former assistant professor at the U.S. Military Academy in West Point, N.Y., and a visiting professor at the National Defense University and Georgetown University, will field questions following the film.

Carafano has written several books, including "Mismanaging Mayhem: How Washington Responds to Crisis," and "GI Ingenuity: Improvisation, Technology and Winning World War II." He is co-author of the textbook "Homeland Security" and "Winning the Long War: Lessons from the Cold War for Defeating Terrorism and Preserving Freedom."

He also has testified before Congress and provided commentary for newscasts on ABC, CBS, NBC, PBS and NPR.

"This is a unique opportunity to have someone of this caliber come to Idaho," said Idaho Rep. Janice McGeachin, of Idaho Falls.

"He is one of the most highly respected policy experts on national security in Washington, D.C."

Museum ghost hunt yields no evidence

By John Plestina

Times-News writer

Whether ghost hunters will ever be able to use the "H" word — that's "haunted" — for the Twin Falls County Historical Museum might depend on a subsequent investigation of the former Curry Union School.

An Oct. 24 investigation by the International Paranormal Reporting Group revealed no scientific evidence of paranormal activity after group members analyzed video and digital voice recordings.

With digital voice recorders, the ghost hunters did debunk what had appeared to be multiple strange occurrences of a female voice that several people heard in the basement; the voice was that of a group member in another part of the building.

Unanswered questions include an 8-degree temperature drop within five minutes, recorded on a digital thermometer, followed by temperature fluctuations.

"There was no scientific evidence that we discovered, but we are going to do a follow-up investigation at a later date," said the group's Twin Falls director, Dena Montoya.

Disproving alleged hauntings with scientific evidence is the main focus of the ghost-hunting group, which

Local kids have chance for intense arts education

Times-News

Get your little actors and singers ready to be animated and follow instructions: It's audition time. Magic Valley Arts Council announced Nov. 16 auditions for the Twin Falls production of Missoula Children's Theatre's "The Princess and the Pea."

When a Missoula Children's Theatre team comes to town, it auditions local children on a Monday, leads focused and fast rehearsals all week, and puts the cast on stage that Saturday. It's an intense experience. Auditions begin at 4 p.m. sharp Nov. 16 at Valley Christian Church, 1708 Heyburn Ave. E. in Twin Falls. To audition, arrive by 3:50 p.m. and plan to stay for two hours. Part of the cast will rehearse immediately following the auditions. All students ages 5-17 may audition. No stage experience and no previous training in music or theater are required. Missoula Children's Theatre is free to participants. And no preparation is necessary before the auditions. Those who audition must be able to commit to a full week of rehearsals and to two performances on Nov. 21. Assistant directors will be cast to assist with technical aspects of the production. The cast of about 50 local children will be on stage for two performances of "The Princess and the Pea" — an original adaptation with a twist — at 3 and 7 p.m. Nov. 21 at O'Leary Middle School. Tickets are $7 for adults and $4 for kids under 18, available at the Magic Valley Arts Council and Everybody's Business in Twin Falls. In this version of the tale, written by Michael McGill, the residents of a kingdom of snow are Winter Wind Workers, Blizzard Bringers, Icicle Sharpeners and Snow Smoothers, ruled by the Storm King and the Snow Queen. And, of course, there's a Prince looking for a proper Princess to share the throne. Princess and her friend Pea live in a kingdom of rivers and green hills with her subjects, The Flower Gardeners, River Runners, Green Shoot Growers and Tree Barkers. Her parents, King Size and Queen Size, do all they can to keep things running smoothly. Although the two kingdoms think they have nothing in common, the peace-loving Leprechauns prove otherwise. Throw in some Phony Princesses and you have a real fiasco. Information: the arts council at 734-2787.

Bruin football team faces Nampa in 4A quarterfinal

By Bradley Guire
Times-News writer

It's a matter of trust.

The Bruin football team has battled through 13 weeks, winning the Great Basin Conference championship and the right to host playoff contests through the semifinals. With the Great 8 portion of the playoffs out of the way, the Bruins face Nampa tonight at Bruin Stadium in the Class 4A quarterfinals. The Twin Falls program is once again forging a path through the playoffs, but none of the players and most of the coaches haven't ventured this deep together.

"None of them out there have been in the 10th week," said head coach Allyn Reynolds. "What we're asking them to do is trust us. Trust in what we're trying to do. Trust what we've been doing."

For some perspective, Reynolds asked two of his freshmen-team coaches to speak with the varsity squad following Wednesday practice: Mike Smith and Martin de La Presa, members of the 2004 Class 5A state championship team. As the sun set on that Wednesday session, Smith and de la Presa

CSI ready to flip Region 18 script

By David Bashore
Times-News writer

SALT LAKE CITY — Now comes the chance to put it right.

The College of Southern Idaho volleyball team enters today's Region 18 Tournament, staring down the barrel of the exact situation that saw it eliminated in the semifinals of last year's tournament. Should the Golden Eagles beat Colorado Northwestern Community College as expected this morning, they will face North Idaho College later with a finals berth on the line.

The same team eliminated CSI last season in the semifinals on the same floor the teams will likely face off on this afternoon.

"There's nothing quite like payback, and we feel we have some unresolved business," CSI coach Heidi Cartisser said of North Idaho, which has won three straight against CSI and five of the last seven. "We definitely feel like we owe them."

Both finalists have the chance to qualify for nationals. The semifinalists go home with their seasons over. That is what CSI suffered last season at the hands of NIC, which ended up winning the conference as the No. 3 seed — the same seed CSI holds this time around.

The chief difference is that the Golden Eagles, if they advance, will play with a game under their belt. That's a chance to

Tonight's playoff marks fourth gridiron meeting in 14 months

By Ryan Howe
Times-News writer

DECLO — To understand the magnitude of tonight's Class 2A state quarterfinal matchup between Declo and Malad, you only have to look back 14 months.

Sept. 19, 2008: Malad overcomes a 16-point second-half deficit to beat host Declo 26-22.

Oct. 31, 2008: Due to predetermined playoff brackets, Declo has hosting rights in the playoffs' first round and forces Malad to travel to Declo High, rather than play at Holt Arena in Pocatello, which chaps Malad's hide. Hornets avenge regular-season defeat with a 29-16 victory.

Sept. 11, 2009: During its bye week, the entire Malad team boards a bus and travels to Declo to scout the Hornets against Kimberly. Declo shows Malad plenty, putting up 42 points in the first quarter.

Sept. 18, 2009: Declo travels to Malad and beats the Dragons 36-10. Malad complains to the Idaho State Journal that it wasn't at full strength.

Louisiana Tech hopes to spoil more BCS dreams

By Todd Dvorak
Associated Press writer

Louisiana Tech has never played host to a team ranked as high as No. 5 Boise State. But the Broncos (8-0, 3-0 WAC) should note the last time a ranked team strolled into Joe Aillet Stadium. Turn back the clock to 2004, when then-No. 17 Fresno State showed up, fresh off victories over Washington and Kansas State and dreaming

Oakley football seeks another state title game

By Ryan Howe
Times-News writer

Oakley's quest to return to its third consecutive Class 1A Division I state football championship game begins at noon Saturday as the undefeated and No. 2-ranked Hornets (9-0) host Notus (7-2), the No. 2 seed from District III.

The Hornets are chomping at the bit.

"The biggest issue that we have right now is the waiting," said Oakley coach Tim Behunin. "The kids are at the point that they want to play. They're excited to have the opportunity to be in the playoffs again."

Besides the nagging bumps and bruises every football team is dealing with this time of year, the Hornets are healthy. The season-ending injury to two-way starter Payson Bedke earlier this season has been the only speed bump along Oakley's journey toward its third straight undefeated regular season and Snake River Conference title.

But the start of the playoffs brings a new set of expectations and level of opposition.

City playoff to break a three-way tie just to earn a spot in the post-season, has a solid running game out of the Double Wing — the same offensive set that Raft River used to give Oakley fits this season. The key for the Oakley defense is to stay home and stick to assignments.

Raft River ready to give Prairie a game

By Ryan Howe
Times-News writer

The 11-hour bus ride is the least of the Trojans' concerns.

The Raft River football team opens the Class 1A Division I state playoffs at the Kibbie Dome in Moscow against the highly-touted defending champs from Prairie, which have won their last 21 games — with 11 shutouts — and have outscored opponents 51.7 to 3.7 on average.

But Raft River doesn't plan to travel all that way just to roll over.

"We're going to make the best of it. It's a good experience for us," said Raft River senior Rio Manning. "We have a special opportunity to go up there, have fun with it and kick some butt at the same time."

As underdogs, the Trojans are feeling no pressure, which will allow them to play more relaxed.

"Everybody's saying how they're invincible and how nobody can touch them," said Manning of Prairie. "They are a solid team, but we match up well with them. We're going to go up there, play as good as we can and hopefully come out on top."

If nobody is giving Raft River (7-2) a chance, it's because they don't realize how close the Trojans were to going undefeated this season. In its season-opening loss to Castleford, Raft River lost its starting quarterback Nelson Manning to injury. It was also working out the kinks of a new spread offense, which they have since bagged in large part, going back to their bread-and-butter single wing. Raft River's other loss was to Snake River Conference champ Oakley, a game that the Trojans were just a 2-point conversion away from winning.

Raft River seniors, from left, Braden Ottley, H.D. Tuckett and Rio Manning, lead the Trojans into the Class 1A Division I state football playoffs, where they will meet defending champ Prairie tonight at the Kibbie Dome in Moscow.

"It's an awesome opportunity. It's going to be a fun game in the Kibbie Dome and we're going to give them a run for their money."

"The kids believe they have a chance for some redemption," said Raft River coach Randy Spaeth. "They still have the Castleford and Oakley games in the back of their minds. If they can pull this one off, it erases those losses."

Prairie's offense is athletic, physical and explosive. The key for Raft River will be to sustain drives to keep Prairie's offense off the field, while not getting too conservative.

Concerning the travel, the Trojans are following nearly the same itinerary as their 2004 trip to the Kibbie Dome when they won the state championship over Genesee. The team departed at noon on Thursday, practiced at Bronco Stadium in Boise at 4 p.m. and spent the night in McCall. After a walk-through at McCall-Donnelly High School this morning, they will travel to Moscow for the 8 p.m. (MST) kickoff.

"It's an awesome opportunity. It's going to be a fun game in the Kibbie Dome and we're going to give them a run for their money," said Raft River senior Braden Ottley.

Said Manning: "We know as seniors that if we don't win this one, we're going to be done with football for the rest of our lives, and we're not ready for that yet. We want at least two more games."

High School Football Playoff Previews

CLASS 2A
GLENN'S FERRY (7-2)
AT NORTH FREMONT (7-1)
1 p.m., Saturday

The breakdown: Both teams are coming off narrow wins last Saturday at Holt Arena, Glenns Ferry over West Side and North Fremont over Aberdeen.

The Pilots boast a trio of top-notch skill position players in Michael Crane, Ross Arellano and Terry Jacobsen. The Huskies, making their first playoff foray in six years, aim to use their line to blow open holes for Will Bollinger on offense and put pressure on Pilots quarterback Philip Owsley on defense.

CLASS 1A DIVISION I
CASTLEFORD (8-1) AT CASCADE (4-4)
1:30 p.m., Saturday

The breakdown: Both of these teams can put up points in a hurry, and both have skill sets that could neutralize the other. Castleford looks to bounce back from its first loss of the season last week, while Cascade sneaked into the conference championship after Notus upset Council last week. With two potent offenses on the field, the first team to make a couple of stops and make the other team play catch-up will have a huge edge.

CLASS 1A DIVISION II
DIETRICH (4-5) AT MACKAY (9-0)
4 p.m.

The breakdown: Dietrich played Mackay tough in the regular season, playing the Miners to one of their closer games. The Blue Devils have big-play talent in Dion Norman and James McDaniel, and junior quarterback Alex Heimerdinger has done a good job managing the game. Opposite number Kole Krosch might be the best quarterback in the conference, though, and Mackay is always tough, especially at home.

NORTH GEM (6-3) AT CAREY (8-1)
1 p.m., Saturday

The breakdown: The Panthers delivered a 26-point beatdown in Bancroft during the regular season, and seem to have rediscovered their swagger after falling at Mackay on Sept. 18. North Gem played to within single digits of conference champ Mackay two weeks ago, something only Carey was able to duplicate. Despite having the No. 2 seed in its own district, Carey still figures to be the team to beat after making the state championship game in each of the last three seasons.

Yankees turn attention to No. 28

By Ronald Blum
Associated Press writer

NEW YORK — The sign men were out bright and early at the Yankees minor league complex, sticking vinyl strips with a fresh, white “27” over the “26” that had been up on the board for nine, long years to mark the team’s total of World Series titles.

Wind caused a few problems at the Himes complex in Tampa, Fla., but eventually the numbers were posted along with a new “2009” in what had been an open blue space below “2000.”

“It’s a ton of joy,” manager Joe Girardi said on WFAN radio later in the day. “There’s a sense of relief because you know that you could rest your mind a little bit for a while.”

Turmoil and turnover ceased in Yankeeeland, at least for the moment. A 7-3 victory over Philadelphia on Wednesday night had brought the title back to the Bronx, etching the names of Alex Rodriguez, Hideki Matsui, Johnny Damon, CC Sabathia and others into the team’s long list of champions.

“Every World Series victory is special, but this one is especially sweet coming in the first year in our new home,” owner George Steinbrenner said in a statement. “This group will become legendary — similar to the 26 world championship teams that preceded them.”

Even though the clubhouse was still wet with champagne Thursday and the triumphant parade through the Canyon of Heroes was a day away, attention already was turning to the future.

Girardi said he was likely to switch from uniform No. 27 to No. 28 next year, signifying the next quest.

But which players will the Yankees add for their title defense?

Are the likes of John Lackey and Matt Holliday in the mix?

“Basically, you have got to get after it,” general manager Brian Cashman said Thursday. “It pretty much comes pretty quick. I’ll be in Chicago with the other GMs on Monday. Two trades already have taken place.”

Matsui, the World Series MVP, is eligible for free agency as is Andy Pettitte, who beat the Phillies in Games 3 and 6. So is Johnny Damon.

Matsui, limited to designated hitter because of bad knees, wants to return. So does Damon, bothered by leg and back pain.

The 37-year-old Pettitte needs time to decide whether to retire or return for a 16th major league season and try for a sixth World Series ring.

“I have to talk with my family,” he said.

There may not be room for Damon, who turned 36 Thursday, and the 35-year-old Matsui, especially if the Yankees land Holliday, the top available free-agent slugger on the market. Damon and Holliday both are represented by the same agent, Scott Boras.

“They could play Matt Holliday in right field, too,” Boras said. “He has a strong arm. They have needs for two outfielders.”

Nick Swisher, who took over in right after Xavier Nady got hurt, hit just .128 with two RBIs in the post-season after batting .249 with 29 homers and 82 RBIs during the regular season. But the St. Louis Cardinals, who acquired Holliday from Oakland in July, are expected to try to re-sign the 29-year-old.

“Certainly St. Louis has an interest in Matt,” Boras said. “Matt had a very enjoyable time there.”

The Yankees figure to be after pitching, too, and Lackey figures to be the top available free-agent starting pitcher. New York’s used just three starting pitchers throughout the postseason — Sabathia, A.J. Burnett and Pettitte — deciding not to take a chance on starting Joba Chamberlain or Chad Gaudin. New York became the first Series champion with just three postseason starters since the 1991 Minnesota Twins.

Chien-Ming Wang had shoulder surgery on July 29 and can’t be counted on for the start of next season. Depending on offseason events, Chamberlain and Phil Hughes could wind up in the rotation or the bullpen. And left-hander

Zenyatta waiting for Day 2 of Breeders’ Cup

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP) — The Breeders’ Cup Ladies’ Classic is missing its leading lady, with defending champion Zenyatta pitting her 13-0 record against the boys on the second day of the season-ending world c h a m p i o n s h i p s .

H e r defection leaves Music Note as the early 9-5 favorite in the eight-horse field for the 1 1/8-mile Ladies’ Classic on Friday at Santa Anita.

The $2 million race is the highlight of six Breeders’ Cup races on Day 1, five of them featuring females, with the $500,000 Marathon for males.

Zenyatta’s presence in Saturday’s $5 million Classic is daunting to some of her rivals.

“I would have entered her with the fillies so I didn’t have to run at her,” said Chip Woolley Jr., who trains Kentucky Derby winner Mine That Bird.

“You know she’s going to be running late and she has a lot of style, much the same as my horse. She’s twice his size, so if she decides to knock him out of the way, she’s got a good chance.”

Hall of Fame trainer Bob Baffert saddles long shot Richard’s Kid in the Classic.

“I don’t like to see her in there — I’m in there with her,” he said. “But she’s going to bring so much. Everybody is going to be watching with her in there. We need a big boost right now and she’s going to be our boost!”

Zenyatta is going against male competition for the first time in her career. She will break from the No. 4 post in the 1 1/4-mile race.

“Optimism is high,” said Jerry Moss, who co-owns the 5-year-old mare with his wife. “I think everybody is in for a treat!”

Zenyatta is grabbing the attention in the absence of Rachel Alexandra, who was 8-for-8 this year, including three wins over male horses.

Owner Jess Jackson shut her down for the season because he dislikes Santa Anita’s synthetic track on which his two-time Horse of the Year Curlin faded to fourth in last year’s Classic.

No female horse has won the Classic in its 25-year history.

Zenyatta will be the fourth female to try. Jolypha had the best result, finishing third in 1992. Azeri was fourth in 2004 and Triptych was sixth in 1986.

Zenyatta would have been the closest thing to a sure bet in the Ladies’ Classic. Without her, Music Note will try to improve on last year’s third-place finish.

Careless Jewel is the early second choice at 2-1. She comes in on a five-race winning streak, with only one loss in her career for Josie Carroll, who would be the first female trainer to win the race.

The 3-year-old gray filly will break from the No. 1 post and likely use her tactical speed to go to the lead.

“She’s really not a nervous filly (like) people seem to think,” Carroll said. “Any race that we’ve taken her to she’s actually been good until the rider gets on her back. Once somebody gets on, she wants her things her way and she starts to perform.”

Even without Zenyatta, trainer John Shirreffs still has a horse in the Ladies’ Classic with Life is Sweet, who has fruitlessly chased Zenyatta in three of her last four races.

“It breaks my heart that Zenyatta is not in the race,” owner Marty Wygod said, jokingly.

Also in the Ladies’ Classic, Britain-bred Proviso will try to give Bobby Frankel his seventh career Breeders’ Cup victory.

Watney’s amazing ride leads to the top of the World

SHANGHAI (AP) — So much for that notion that American golfers don’t travel well.

The first World Golf Championship in Asia opened Thursday to a leaderboard filled with Stars & Stripes, led by wide-eyed Nick Watney and his 8-under 64 that tied the course record at the HSBC Champions and including, as always, Tiger Woods.

Watney made an accidental eagle and ran off four straight birdies while building a two-shot lead.

“It was just one of those days where everything was feeling really good, so I wasn’t too jumpy,” Watney said.

Ryan Moore wasn’t about to pass up a trip to China when he qualified by winning his first PGA Tour event in August. With a new equipment deal in place, he shot a 6-under 66 to join Shane Lowry of Ireland and Martin Kaymer of Germany, who is second in the Race to Dubai and facing a big week at this $7 million event.

Woods took care of the par 5s and made enough putts to get around in 67.

“It wasn’t my best ball-striking round today for sure, but I made some putts, which was nice, and just managed my game well,” he said.

Woods was joined by Anthony Kim, who spent most of Tuesday in Hong Kong trying to get his visa situation sorted out, Paul Casey and Lin Wen-tang of Taiwan, giving some local flavor to Asia’s biggest tournament.

Casey had reason to be thrilled with his start, no matter how many shots he feels as though he squandered. It was the first time he kept score over 18 holes since Sunday at Turnberry in the British Open. He had missed three months with a rib injury, returning last week in the World Match Play Championship.

Matt Kuchar and Pat Perez were among those at 68, while Phil Mickelson, Jason Dufner and Brian Gay checked in at 69. Of the top 20 on the leaderboard through the opening round, nine were Americans.

Tiger Woods lines up a putt on the No. 18 green Thursday during the HSBC Champions golf tournament in Shanghai, China.

No. 22 Virginia Tech beats East Carolina, 16-3

GREENVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Virginia Tech put the game in Ryan Williams’ hands again. This time, he held on to it.

The freshman ran for a season-high 179 yards and the 22nd-ranked Hokies avoided their first three-game losing streak in six years, holding off East Carolina 16-3 on Thursday night.

Tyrod Taylor had a 13-yard touchdown run, Matt Waldron kicked three field goals and Williams atoned for his critical miscue last week against North Carolina by cracking the 1,000-yard mark for Virginia Tech (6-3).

“That fumble did something to me, mentally, last week,” Williams said. “I think the only person that was going to be able to overcome what happened last week was myself. ... I realized that it happens to everybody, nobody can be perfect.”

Virginia Tech had a 379-277 advantage in total yardage, forced three turnovers and made just enough plays on offense to bounce back from losses to No. 10 Georgia Tech and the Tar Heels. The Hokies also avenged last year’s loss in Charlotte in which the Pirates turned the tables on Beamerball.

“It’s been a tough couple of weeks here,” Hokies coach Frank Beamer said. “I use the word, ‘relentless,’ and that’s exactly how I described this football team. They were relentness. They just kept coming back and coming back and fighting their way through it.”

Williams, whose fumble in the closing minutes last week gave North Carolina a chance at a winning field goal on the final play, helped make Virginia Tech the third school to have freshmen rush for 1,000 yards in consecutive years after Darren Evans did it last year. Williams surpassed his 164-yard effort against Marshall and became just the second 100-yard rusher against by the Pirates this season.

“Iran the ride pretty good today,” Williams said.

Taylor finished 17 of 30 passing for 137 yards with another 61 yards on the ground for the Hokies.

Patrick Pinkney was 16 of 33 passing for 167 yards with a late interception for East Carolina (5-4), which was playing its first Thursday night home game since 2001 and hosted the Hokies for the first time since 2000.

The upstarts from Conference USA had won three of their last four against ranked teams, including last year’s 27-22 upset that was keyed by a late blocked punt, and they pulled out a few stops for this special occasion. They designated the game a “blackout,” welcomed back to town former star quarterback Jeff Blake and broke out a new helmet logo with a tricorn-clad skull and crossbones to replace the traditional “ECU.”

But ultimately, they had too much to overcome: Two fumbles in Tech territory, too many overthrown receivers by their sixth-year quarterback and some baffling-at-times decisions. Trying to tighten things up late in the third, East Carolina ran five consecutive direct snaps to receiver Dwayne Harris, but the last was stuffed for a drive-

Damaso Marte has given Girardi new confidence after the Phillies went 0 for 8 with five strikeouts in the Series.

Girardi was especially pleased with the breakout postseason of Alex Rodriguez, who led the Yankees with a .365 average, six homers, 18 RBIs, 15 runs and 12 walks.

“I’m sure Alex was tired of answering the questions about the last few years in the postseason,” Girardi said on the radio show.

Rodriguez said he felt liberated after admitting to using steroids from 2001-03, then missing the first month of the season while recovering from hip surgery.

“I think there was a burden that was probably lifted off of him when he came back from Colorado and had a chance to self reflect,” Girardi said. “He went through a tough year last year — the marital problems and the divorce, and that’s never easy, and then the hip problem and then the steroid use. I think there was a relief when he got through everything and got to the other side.”

More than anything, Thursday was a day for numbers. Five World Series rings for Pettitte, Derek Jeter, Jorge Posada and Mariano Rivera. The first for A-Rod.

And for Girardi, questions about whether he will take No. 28. First, he wants to consult the incumbent, who wasn’t on the postseason roster.

“I got to talk to Shelley Duncan to see if he allows me to wear it,” Girardi said. “I think I’m going to make a number change.”

Women’s groups calling for Raiders’ Cable to be suspended

The National Organization for Women is calling for coach Tom Cable's suspension while the Raiders and the NFL investigate allegations that Cable physically abused his first wife more than 20 years ago and abused a girlfriend in January. NOW president Terry O'Neill sent the request to USA Today.

"Tom Cable's history of violence against women raises a question: Why is he still the head coach of an NFL team?" O'Neill's statement said in part. "Mr. Cable admits having battered his first wife, and he stands accused of battering two other intimate partners as well ...

"The Oakland Raiders, properly, say they are undergoing a 'serious evaluation' of these recent allegations. At the very least, he should be suspended during this process ..."

Cable, a former Idaho Vandals football coach, said Thursday that he doesn't think outside forces such as NOW will influence his future with the Raiders.

"I don't think so," Cable said. "I think it will be handled properly. I'm going to

FORMER FIRST-ROUND PICK DE JAMES ARRESTED

MADISON, Wis. — Former Vikings first-round pick Erasmus James was arrested early Thursday after punching a friend in the face at a bar in Madison.

Authorities say the 27-year-old James began fighting with a friend after James tried to order a drink at a popular bar near Wisconsin's campus after closing time.

The Wisconsin State Journal first reported the arrest.

James was released from the Dane County Jail. A prosecutor will decide if a battery charge is warranted.

A former Wisconsin standout at defensive end, James played three injury-plagued seasons for the Vikings after being picked 18th overall in 2005. He was traded to Washington last year and played in five games before being cut in December.

STEELERS' CLARK LIKELY TO SIT OUT DENVER GAME

PITTSBURGH — Ryan Clark may be saying everything he needs to say with his growing silence.

The Pittsburgh Steelers safety is usually one of the team's most talkative players. But he is talking little as it becomes increasingly likely he won't play Monday in Denver due to a rare blood condition that nearly caused him to die after playing there two years ago.

Nearly all of Clark's teammates are urging him to skip the game. The other Steelers safeties are being readied to play, and Clark does not appear as upbeat or as excited as he normally does before a game.

Even if Clark pleaded with them to play, the Steelers appear reluctant to take a chance considering how seriously ill he became after that 2007 game, which Denver won 31-28.

Clark was hospitalized in Denver when complications from sickle-cell trait prevented oxygen from flowing into his spleen. He later needed operations to remove his spleen and gall bladder, and the 205-pound Clark lost more than 30 pounds before he finally began feeling better more than two months later.

He missed the second half of that season, but recovered and resumed his career last season, when the Steelers won the Super Bowl.

While other players with sickle-cell trait can play in Denver without problems, Clark's condition was worsened because he is among the estimated 1 percent of those affected by the condition who react poorly to exerting themselves in high altitude.

JURY CONVICTS MAN IN FORMER JAGUAR'S SHOOTING

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. — A jury has convicted a man of attempted murder in the shooting of former Jacksonville Jaguars offensive lineman Richard Collier.

The six-person jury deliberated 2 hours and 45 minutes before returning its verdict against 33-year-old Tyrone Hartsfield at the end of a nine-day trial.

Hartsfield faces up to life in prison. The jury will now be asked to determine if he was also guilty of possession of a firearm by a convicted felon.

Collier watched much of the closing arguments while seated in his wheelchair in the courtroom gallery. He was shot six times as he waited in his car outside a Jacksonville apartment house last year. Collier was paralyzed and his left leg was amputated.

Declo

Declo-Malad saga unfolds. Kickoff is 8:45 at Holt Arena.

"It seems like in two years quite a competitive rivalry has developed between the two schools," said Declo coach Kelly Kidd.

When Declo (9-0) defeated Malad (7-2) earlier this season, Hornets quarterback Jeremy Jenkins had his worst showing of the year, completing 2 of 7 passes for 17 yards and an interception. But Declo's rushing attack more than made up for it, piling up 317 yards on 8.1 yards per carry.

And what about the newspaper clipping that implied Malad wasn't at full strength, but will be this time around?

"What they quoted in the paper made the team mad," said Jenkins. "They say they weren't at full strength, but we didn't play our best game, either. We're back with a vengeance, ready to put it to them."

Since that game, Malad (7-2) has blown through six straight victories, including last week's 46-12 drubbing of Ririe, in which the Dragons amassed 536 total yards of offense. Senior running back Caleb Bennett had 226 yards on 22 carries and senior quarterback Kaden Goddard completed 5 of 9 passes for 150 yards.

"They're a good, athletic team. I expect a really good game," Kidd said. "It's about blocking and tackling. The rest of it is immaterial. If we block well and tackle well, we'll win the game."

The victor will play the Kamiah-New Plymouth winner next week in the state semifinals.

Cartisser stressed the word "potential."

For six sophomores, today might mark the final time they put on the CSI uniform. They believe it won't be the case and point to two big reasons why.

"We have way more teamwork this season," said sophomore middle hitter Torrey Hulsey. "I think there's a lot of chemistry with the team and with the setter, which is really important (for hitters). I think me and (setter Barbara Alcantara) connect really well."

Bruins

weighed in on their message to the players as they continued to scrimmage on the practice field just south of Bruin Stadium.

"At this point of the year, you can talk about talent and hustle all you want," Smith said. "We wouldn't be here if we didn't have that, so that's not the direction I'm going. To me, it's two things: trust and accountability."

The Bruins have tempered those concepts into their team makeup, and the results are seen in the program's best season in five years. Senior defensive lineman Zack Van Loo said trust starts with the coaching staff and continues through the senior class, down through the underclassmen. Josh Settlemoir, a junior running back, added that the mentality has led to solid team chemistry.

"We have to be a team," he said. "It's what it takes Friday night."

It'll also take the Bruins' best outing against the Bulldogs since 2004, when the Bruins won 28-7. In the last four contests, Nampa has come out on top three times, including a 28-14 victory earlier this year.

The Bulldogs (6-3) are similar to the Bruins (5-4) on defense, as both run a three-man front the majority of the time. The difference will come when Nampa has the ball. Although they've shown to favor the spread early in the season, Reynolds said that they're moving closer to a power-I offense.

"They ran a little bit of that against us in the first game," Reynolds said. "They have shown that when they're in the lead, they'll jump into that and play ball control. It's kind of like that philosophy back in the '70s with Oklahoma and Nebraska when they went with the wishbone."

Running back Mahonri Bostrom is the bulk of the Bulldog offense and has rushed for nearly 1,800 yards, according to the Idaho Press-Tribune, more than the total of all Twin Falls ball carriers.

"I remember last time that they put up quite a bit of rushing yards," Settlemoir said. "We'll prepare for that"

The Bruins, conversely, are heavy on passing. T.J. Ellis is throwing for 214 yards per game and has spread the ball around. Six players — Jon Pulsifer, Ricky Akridge, Brady McNew, Jared Jordan, Brennon Lancaster and Josh Settlemoir — have accumulated more than 100 yards on receptions, and five have at least two touchdown receptions. On the ground, Akridge, Jayson Welker and Brett Hardman have each gained more than 200 yards, and Hardman has carried for seven touchdowns.

"Some backs are solid and consistent and steady, they're going to get you that three or four or five yards, but they're not going to shift gears and score," Reynolds said of Bostrom. "This kid can do that."

The Bruins' play in the trenches has grown stronger through increased communication, according to Reynolds, and will be a deciding factor tonight.

The third part of the equation, special teams, is where tonight's game could be won or lost. In the Week 1 game against Nampa, Twin Falls allowed the Bulldogs to return a kickoff for a touchdown. Two weeks ago against Minico, a missed PAT kick allowed the Spartans to spoil the Bruins' potential for an undefeated conference schedule. The players on the return team, coverage team and kicker Dustin Hegstrom, who nailed a 40-yard field goal against Burley last week, will have to be at their best.

Kickoff is set for 7 p.m. If the Bruins are victorious, they will host the winner of Blackfoot-Bishop Kelly next Friday at Bruin Stadium in the semifinal round.

Broncos. "It's a big one for us and it would help a lot to shock the world."

The world? Maybe not.

But the BCS rankings and Boise State's postseason hopes? Undoubtedly.

Dooley also knows that for history to repeat itself, the Bulldogs will have to play their best game of the year, and maybe without some of their best players. Receiver and returner Phillip Livas injured an ankle last week, and running back Daniel Porter was knocked out with a concussion. Both are questionable for Friday night's game.

"If we're sitting here hoping Boise's going to come in and have a letdown, we're wishing in one hand and I'm not telling you what we're doing in the other," Dooley said. "At the end of the day, the wish ain't going to come true. Boise's going to come in and they're going to be phenomenal in all phases, and the question is how do we play? That's all we can control!"

The Broncos have put together their two most dominating games of the season. Led by quarterback Kellen Moore and a stingy defense, the Broncos have outscored their last two opponents 99-16.

Moore, the nation's most efficient passer, has been terrific during that stretch, throwing for 501 yards and eight touchdowns in victories over Hawaii and San Jose State. Moore is second in the nation with 24 TDs on the season and has thrown just two picks.

The defense has forced turnovers early, helping the offense put games out of reach early.

The Broncos, among the nation's best with a 1.25 turnover margin, had two takeaways last week, both during a seven minute span in which Boise State rolled up 24 points. The week before, the defense forced three fumbles and had three interceptions, opportunities the offense cashed in for 30 points.

"They don't just beat you. They absolutely annihilate you, and we're going to have to put forth our best effort in all phases and see what happens," Dooley said.

For Boise State coach Chris Petersen, many things about the Bulldogs are deceiving, and potentially dangerous.

With a few more breaks and fewer mistakes, the Bulldogs could easily be 5-3 instead of 3-5, Petersen said. Last week, Idaho rallied late to edge the Bulldogs 35-34. And the week before, the Bulldogs lost another close one on the road, 23-21 at Utah State.

"If you pay attention to a record, that's when you run into trouble," Petersen said. "It seems like every time we go back there the game's not decided until the fourth quarter."

Axman, who leaves the hobby for downtime during the off-season.

These days, the Vandals' top offensive assistant is preoccupied with keeping Idaho (7-2, 4-1) in the hunt for the Western Athletic Conference title. Under Axman's tutelage, the club's offense is certainly doing its part.

The Vandals are 22nd in the nation in scoring (32 points per game) and second in the WAC in passing offense headed into Saturday night's meeting with Fresno State.

"It's very exciting to see our development," he said. "This is what I had hoped that we would be able to do in our first year as far as having the talent and ability to have a more wide-open offense and being able to spread the field and attack."

Axman is in his 38th year of coaching, during which time he has held 19 jobs in almost every corner of the U.S. His longest stay was as head coach of Northern Arizona from 1990-97.

While compiling a 48-41 record at NAU, he partnered with Idaho coach Robb Akey, then his defensive coordinator. The coaches have forged a long and fruitful relationship, but Akey has never read his colleague's books.

"I've glanced at a few of them," he said. "Not enough pictures. It's all offensive stuff. That (stuff) puts me to sleep."

Axman can rifle through a writing process in seven to eight days of intense work. Yet during the season, he's more prone to reading one or two historical novels at a time.

The New York native first developed an interest in books when he was a senior in high school. He needed to take an elective, and his friends convinced him to join a creative writing class.

One of his first assignments was to write a page and a half about anything in a spiral notebook. He handed in his first essay and it came back littered with red marks from the teacher.

"And you know it's funny, I kind of took it as a challenge, and I was kind of upset that it was considered so poor," Axman said. "So next time I wrote something, and it came back with a little less red ink, and we had to do about 25 of these and (I) really enjoyed it."

After beginning his coaching career on the high school level, he was asked to write an article for a coaching journal. His publisher then wanted a chapter for a book on pro-passing offenses, but Axman discovered it was much easier to produce a whole book than a single chapter.

With how well his side career has gone, Axman intends on returning to college after retiring to take fictional writing courses in hopes of penning a novel.

For now, though, focusing on football is more than enough.

"He knows a lot," Idaho quarterback Nathan Enderle said. "He's written so many books. When he talks, you know he knows a lot of football."

Notes: Nevada quarterback Colin Kaepernick isn't the lead candidate for conference's top offensive award at the end of year — that would be Fresno State tailback Ryan Mathews — but he's putting up remarkable numbers. Kaepernick is second in the nation in runs of 10 yards or more with 33. ... Four of the top 22 scoring offenses in the country reside in the WAC. Along with Idaho, Boise State (No. 3), Fresno State (No. 10) and Nevada (No. 13) are on the list.

2010 FORD TAURUS SHO SEDAN

THE PERFORMANCE FLAGSHIP!

RoadWorthy!
By Ken Chester, Jr.
Motor News Media
Corporation

It's back. After a ten-year absence from the heart and soul of the Ford-brand model line-up, the nameplate has re-introduced the performance variant of its popular Taurus sedan, which has been extensively redesigned and upgraded for the 2010 model year.

Originally introduced in 1989, the Taurus SHO was conceived as a discreet performance-oriented sports sedan, ideally suited to the automotive enthusiast needing the room and capability of a four-door full-size car. Produced through 1999, more than 100,000 were sold.

"The new Taurus SHO delivers on the authentic 'sleeper' sedan formula but adds all-new luxury appointments, convenience features and technologies to an unsurpassed balance of power and fuel economy," said Mark Fields, Ford's president of the Americas. "This new sport derivative answers enthusiasts' calls for a premium Ford flagship sedan with even more attitude."

Unique exterior styling cues for the SHO include sporty premium painted wheels, low profile 19-inch Goodyear Eagle tires, a decklid-mounted spoiler and twin chrome exhaust tips. The SHO also features a uniquely finished interpretation of the Ford signature three-bar grille with SHO-specific parking lamp bezels.

Ushering in a new generation of premium performance and fuel economy, the 2010 Taurus SHO is equipped with the new 3.5L EcoBoost twin-turbo V6 engine. This engine delivers V8 levels of power without compromising its V6 fuel economy. This advanced powerplant features gasoline direct injection. The direct injection of fuel into the cylinder during the intake stroke produces a well-mixed air-fuel charge when compared to regular port-style injection systems. Fuel vaporization during the intake stroke cools the incoming air, improving volumetric efficiency and lowers the likelihood of engine knock.

By using twin turbochargers as opposed to a single unit results in reduced internal inertia, allowing the engine to avoid the "turbo lag" often prevalent in earlier-generation turbo applications.

The new Taurus SHO also features an enhanced 6F55

SelectShift six-speed automatic transmission with control paddles mounted on the steering wheel. Power is communicated to the pavement through a sophisticated torque sensing all-wheel drive system.

Control hardware for the SHO sedan features a sport-tuned suspension with unique shock absorbers, springs, stabilizer bars and strut mount bushings specifically developed and harmonized to deliver the best combination of road holding, cornering agility and steering responsiveness.

Inside the cabin, the new

Taurus SHO interior encourages performance driving. Leather-trimmed seats with Miko Suede inserts are comfortable and luxurious. A perforated leather-wrapped steering wheel puts the driver in smooth touch with the road. Front seats are 10-way power adjustable while the SHO accelerator and brake pedals are trimmed in aluminum. The console, instrument and door panels feature SHO-specific authentic aluminum appliques. SHO branding appears on the unique floor mats and on the passenger side of the instrument panel.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

"A true friend is one who overlooks your failures and tolerates your success."

— Doug Larson

In today's deal, after partner's leap to four spades the least you could do was to bid six hearts. How do you plan to make 12 tricks after West leads the diamond two, an obvious singleton?

Your best chance is to hope that West holds the spade ace. After winning the diamond lead with the ace, you draw trumps, discarding diamonds from dummy. The only way to make 12 tricks is to utilize dummy's spade suit, but there appears to be only one club entry to the dummy. One possibility is to seek a second club entry by leading the club two, intending to finesse dummy's 10. This would rely on luck, since you would need West to hold the club jack. In any case, though, in this column an alert West would always spoil your plan by playing that card at his first opportunity!

In addition, the above plan would be disastrous on the actual lie of the cards, as East would win the club jack and cash a couple of diamonds. But there is no need to rely on such a dubious approach. You should lead the club queen and overtake it with dummy's king. You then play the spade king, discarding a diamond.

West wins with the spade ace and has no good return. A spade will give the lead to dummy, allowing you to throw a diamond and a club. Similarly, a club exit will promote the 10-9 to an entry, no matter who holds the club jack.

ANSWER: When you bid only three spades over your partner's double, you showed a poor hand. Now that your partner has cue-bid in support of spades and is looking for slam, he must have a very good hand indeed. In context, therefore, you are well worth a cue-bid of four diamonds. If partner continues with four hearts, you may even be too good to sign off in four spades!

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Conceptis Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.

NEWSPAPER IN EDUCATION

DEAR ABBY: My boss wants my cell phone number for "work purposes." He has trouble with limits, and I am reluctant to give it to him. I don't want to receive text messages, unsolicited calls or contact outside of work. My private life is just that — private.

I have kept an unlisted cell number for many years for good reason. I have a home phone and will answer it when the boss calls. I arrive promptly at work, but leave the job there.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

My privacy is important. I had a bad marriage, and there was stalking and invasion by my ex-husband. Those individuals who need my cell number have access to it.

Am I out of line? I realize that many people use their cell phones as their only phones and others don't mind receiving calls, but am I required to do so?

I think this has upset my boss even though I have explained my reason. I don't use my cell phone on the job; it's in my purse except during personal time (lunch, etc.). Must I give up my privacy to keep my job?

— WANTS PRIVACY

DEAR WANTS PRIVACY: As long as your boss has your home phone and can reach you in case of some emergency, I see no reason why he should be pressuring you for your cell phone number. Stick to your guns and don't apologize for it.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 16-year-old girl whose parents have been married for almost 19 years. Mom started school two years ago to become a nurse.

She has always been an independent woman, but since she went back to school and is making her own money, she feels the need to be more free. Mom works eight to 12 hours a day. She leaves early and comes home late. She never stays for dinner when she's home, nor does she do anything with us as a family anymore. She used to work in the same study as my dad, but she moved upstairs. She also won't sleep in the same bed as Dad.

Mom is seeing a marriage counselor, and she wants a divorce and to move away. She says nothing is broken in the marriage and there's nothing to fix — but why does she want to leave? She promises she won't see less of us, but she will be more than a half-hour away. She works nonstop and is constantly going out with her friends. I miss her, and I want my old Mom back! Is there any way I can stop her from going? Am I selfish for wanting her to stay?

— SHAKEN IN VIRGINIA

DEAR SHAKEN: You are going through a rough period, and you have my sympathy. Your mother appears to be so preoccupied with herself that she has forgotten she's a mother. Under the circumstances, all of your feelings are normal. Of course you want your mother and your old life back, and those feelings aren't "selfish."

While you can't stop your mother from leaving, you can ask her if you can join her during a couple of her therapy sessions so you can air your feelings in a safe environment and get some of the answers you're looking for. There are very real changes going on in your life and your parents'. You deserve some answers, and you are old enough to hear them.
