Twin Falls County discusses energy-efficiency options

By Nate Poppino Times-News writer

Twin Falls County officials are using federal stimulus funds to plan how to make their buildings and vehicles more energy-efficient.

County commissioners and several department heads met Friday morning with representatives from architectural, engineering and consulting firm HDR Inc. to brainstorm projects that would reduce county expenses, promote energy renewable sources - creatcourse.

The consultants are being paid using about $30,000 of a $128,000 grant the county received from the U.S. Department of Energy, County Commissioner Tom Mikesell said.

Twin Falls city officials are going through a similar process with another grant; both entities applied this spring for a combined $310,000.

A baseline review conducted by HDR found the county spent $435,425 in 2008 on energy, including electric bills, natural gas, accountability and promote motor-vehicle gasoline and diesel fuel. The largest coning jobs in the process, of sumer by far is the county's West Berlin, with all its blue neon theater signs, bright shop windows and teens with spiky blue hair, into East Berlin.

After running the gantlet in the East German border station where my copy of Newsweek was confiscated, I walked into a world that seemed to have suddenly gone black and white.

Wide but nearly empty streets were hung with banners celebrating 40 years of the German Democratic Republic, which was neither democratic, republican nor given the presence of tens of thousands of Soviet troops – arguably German.

From Oct. 4 police reports: Aggravated battery:

A 17-year-old Burley male reported that another male, also 17, "pulled 2 screwdrivers on him" and then punched him in the face. According to a witness listed in the report, "the kids had been drinking and one of them had puked in the street commenting that he had drank too much." Deputy Jason Rogers' report notes that the victim suffered a "fractured nose" and required four stitches. Rogers requested a juvenile petition for aggravated battery against the suspect.

Unmanned aircraft, used both for surveillance and offensive strikes, are considered the most significant advance in military technology in a generation. They not only have altered the conduct of warfare, but have also changed the nature of the current policy debate in Washington.

"The technology allows us to project power without vulnerability," said a senior Defense official. "You don't have to deploy as many people. And in the modern age you want as little stuff forward as long as you can achieve the effects as if you had lots of people forward?"

But some officials caution that policymakers should not rely too heavily on the drones.

Berlin

The few shops that weren't shuttered sold metallic-tasting beer or stale, soapy chocolate. Everyone I met was testy or glum. A post-World War II-era treaty required that Westerners be allowed to visit East Berlin, but the government didn't like it. And the citizens knew that with 91.000 agents and countless informers. the Stasi secret police were likely watching all interactions with outsiders. After five hours, I was glad to get back to the West.

I took the Cold War for granted. I was born in 1958, with the confrontation more than a decade old. Now here I was, 30 years later, a reporter on patrol with the Berlin Brigade, the U.S. Army unit that roared along the length of the Berlin Wall each day in full combat gear, M-60 machine guns mounted up top on their Humvees. We'd stop at aging wooden platforms to scamper up for a look across the Wall. Our guys with binoculars looking at their guys with binoculars. The Wall was slathered along its western side with brilliant swirls of abstract artwork amid the copious graffiti. From the platform, I could see the other side of the Wall.

It was gray white, followed by a strip of pointed rocks, then barbed wire, guard towers, floodlights and another wall. The Army guys on patrol called it the Death Strip.

The Iron Curtain that stretched across Europe had its thickest, tallest, razorwire-strewn stretch cutting through the heart of Berlin.

Weeks later, it all crumbled.

Alexanderplatz filled with protesters. The Wall came down. East Berliners spilled into West Berlin. Demonstrators stormed the headquarters of the Stasi, the oncedreaded secret police. The empty husk of the communist government teetered, then signed on to a humiliating reunification plan. Soviet troops withdrew. A million Dr. Frankensteins – architects, engineers and workers — began sewing the dead parts of the ruptured city back together.

A dark, nasty but thankfully short period of Berlin's history was over.

Unfortunately, I was back in Southern California when the Wall was breached. I've returned many times in the past 20 years, watched as the bulldozers swept away nearly all traces of the Wall, cranes built mirror-clad skyscrapers around Potsdamer Platz, and Starbucks opened on the Unter den Linden, just up the street from the Russian embassy.

First there was exuberance, a desire to dump anything remotely connected with East Berlin. But as the promise of the early years gave way to cold realities, a backlash developed against the clean, corporate capital being thrown up by civic boosters.

The disappointment has taken the odd form of "Ostalgia," a nostalgia for the communist days of East Berlin (ost means east in German). Not a longing for the Wall, the Soviet occupiers, the secret police, the shootings of demonstrators, the decades of lost promise. But a reaction to the unraveling of the world East Berliners had known. They painted in their minds a memory of a more stable and egalitarian past, where everyone had a job and everyone was poor (except for the party elite). Where families stayed close because travel wasn't an option. A time where clubs — chess, sports, youth, even nudist — were the places to make friends. Where every smart kid who didn't mouth off against the government could go to college. Before the raw competition of capitalism swelled the unemployment rolls, split marriages, sent children to work in distant countries, and Western products pushed out familiar if inferior brands.

For Americans, the Ostalgia bent is hard to understand. It would be unthinkable actually against the law - to have Nazi symbols and artifacts sold as sweatshirts and coffee mugs. Yet hats with red stars, T-shirts emblazoned with the hammer and compass of the old DDR, and furniture that echoed the kitschy-tacky early-1970s heyday of East Berlin are sold everywhere.

But the Nazis had been defeated, while East Germany simply faded away. East Berliners wanted the dictators and occupiers gone, but they didn't figure on the political, cultural and social submersion of the East by the West. Many Germans are uncomfortable with it - Der Spiegel, a top magazine, tried to declare Ostalgia as "dead" in 2006, before the worldwide recession rekindled the old sore points.

Most of all, Ostalgia is a cult of symbols many of which have become heavily marketed kitsch for sale to tourists. Tops is the Ampelmannchen - "little traffic light man'' – the jaunty green man with a hat that was the "walk" sign at East German intersections. Along with his red brother signifying "don't walk," they were among the first symbols of the regime learned by children. Early attempts to convert intersections to Western-style walk and don't walk symbols were met with stiff resistance. Ampelmann, a string of boutiques, shops and restaurants, has opened across Berlin, and the symbols are highly sought souvenirs now on T-shirts, refrigerator magnets and coasters.

The smoke-belching Trabant sedan, with its noisy two-cylinder engine, has become a collector's item, spawning car clubs that gather with their Cold War clunkers by the scores, and used by the likes of rock band U2 as a symbol of cool. Former East Berliners have battled to save communist statues and street names (Germans yes, Soviets no) that littered parks and neighborhoods throughout the city. One statue of Marx and Engels, briefly endangered with eviction from its spot near the Berliner Dom cathedral, is now a national heritage site. These are all tiny victories against a tide of change that has swept away familiar neighborhoods. Downtrodden Mitte is once again the city's government center. The workers districts of Prenzlauer Berg and Wedding, which only a decade ago still had buildings marked by shell holes from World War II, have been steadily gentrified. A long battle over the future of the ugly, asbestos-laden Palace of the Republic, with its shimmering bronze glass front, went against modernist preservationists. The showplace of the communist regime was torn down to make way for a literal blast from the past - a re-creation of the imperial palace of the Kaisers, dynamited by the Soviets in the early 1950s.

Berlin has always been a chameleon city, taking on whatever role history wanted of it. Prussian citadel, imperial seat, Weimar's sensual playground, Hitler's Germania, target for American bombers and Red Army troops, capital of the German Democratic Republic.

While holding tight to some of their symbols and ready to label anyone wessie or ossie (meaning originally from western or eastern Berlin), many former citizens of East Berlin say their looking backward has its limits.

Guido Weiss, 38, grew up in communist East Berlin. But he has lived more than half his life in the "new" Germany. For his parents' generation there is some regret, lingering Ostalgia, for the old days. They are the ones, as commentators have noted, who have replaced the Wall in the streets with one in their heads.

But for Weiss, it is different. A delivery driver, he's angry over 14 percent unemployment, Westerners buying up Eastern properties, and the failure of the post-unification boom to materialize. But he has no desire to turn the clock back.

"All in all, today is much better," he said. "Because now it can get better. Someday."

Germany celebrates memory of Berlin Wall falling

By Matt Moore Associated Press writer

BERLIN – With concerts and memorials today, Germans will celebrate the day the Berlin Wall came crashing down 20 years ago.

On that cold night, they danced atop the wall, arms raised in victory, hands clasped in friendship and giddy hope. Years of separation and anxiety melted into the unbelievable reality of freedom and a future without border guards, secret police, informers and rigid communist control.

Germans are celebrating with concerts boasting Beethoven and Bon Jovi; a memorial service for the 136 people killed trying to cross over from 1961 to 1989; candle lightings and 1,000 towering plastic foam dominoes to be placed along the wall's route and tipped over.

On Nov. 9, 1989, East Germans came in droves, riding their sputtering Trabants, motorcycles and rickety bicycles. Hundreds, then thousands, then hundreds of thousands crossed over the following days.

Stores in West Berlin stayed open late and banks gave out 100 Deutschemarks in "welcome money," then worth about $50, to each East German visitor.

The party lasted four days and by Nov. 12 more than 3 million of East Germany's 16.6 million people had visited, nearly a third of them to West Berlin, the rest through gates opening up along the rest of the fenced, mined frontier that cut their country in two.

Sections of the nearly 100 miles of wall were pulled down and knocked over. Tourists chiseled off chunks to keep as souvenirs. Tearful families reunited. Bars gave out free drinks. Strangers kissed and toasted each other with champagne.

Klaus-Hubert Fugger, a student at the Free University in West Berlin, was having drinks at a pub when people began coming "who looked a bit different."

Customers bought the visitors round after round. By midnight, instead of going home, Fugger and three others took a taxi to the Brandenburg Gate, long a no man's land, and scaled the 12-foot (nearly four meter) wall with hundreds of others.

"There were really like a lot of scenes, like people crying, because they couldn't get the situation," said Fugger, now 43. "A lot of people came with bottles" of champagne and sweet German sparkling wine.

Fugger spent the next night on the wall, too. A newsmagazine photo shows him wrapped in a scarf.

"Then the wall was crowded all over, thousands of people, and you couldn't move ... you had to push through the masses of the people," he said.

Angela Merkel, Germany's first chancellor from the former communist East, recalled the euphoria in an address last week to the U.S. Congress.

"Where there was once only a dark wall, a door suddenly opened and we all walked through it: onto the streets, into the churches, across the borders," Merkel said. "Everyone was given the chance to build something new, to make a difference, to venture a new beginning."

The wall the communists built at the height of the Cold War and which stood for 28 years is mostly gone. Some parts still stand, at an outdoor art gallery or as part of an openair museum. Its route through the city is now streets, shopping centers, apartment houses. The only reminder of it are a series of inlaid bricks that trace its path.

Checkpoint Charlie, the prefab that was long the symbol of the Allied presence and of Cold War tension, has been moved to a museum in western Berlin.

Potsdamer Platz, the vibrant square that was destroyed during World War II and became a no man's land during the Cold War, is full of upscale shops selling everything from iPods to grilled bratwursts.

At a ceremony in Berlin Oct. 31, Helmut Kohl, the German chancellor who presided over the opening of the wall, stood side by side with the superpower presidents of the time, George H.W. Bush and Mikhail Gorbachev.

After the decades of shame that followed the Nazi era, Kohl suggested, the collapse of the Berlin Wall and the reunification of their country 11 months later gave Germans pride.

"We don't have many reasons in our history to be proud," said Kohl, now 79. But as chancellor, "I have nothing better, nothing to be more proud of, than German reunification?' In an interview in Moscow with Associated Press Television News, Gorbachev said it was a catalyst for peace.

"No matter how hard it was, we worked, we found mutual understanding and we moved forward. We started cutting down nuclear weapons, scaling down the armed forces in Europe and resolving other issues;" he said.

It all began with a routine late afternoon news conference.

On Nov. 9, 1989, Guenter Schabowski, a member of East Germany's ruling Politburo, casually declared that East Germans would be free to travel to the West immediately.

Later, he tried to clarify his comments and said the new rules would take hold at midnight, but events moved faster as the word spread.

At a remote crossing in Berlin's south, Annemarie Reffert and her 15-year-old daughter made history by becoming the first East Germans to cross the border.

Suspect identified in Seattle police killing

The Associated Press

SEATTLE Police described a suspect in the shooting death of a Seattle policeman as a "lone domestic terrorist" and said he was also suspected of firebombing four police vehicles.

At a news conference, Seattle Assistant Police Chief Jim Pugel identified Monfort as the man shot by police on Friday as he was sought in connection with the Halloween killing of officer Timothy Brenton. Pugel also said investigators found improvised explosive devices at Monfort's apartment.

"This man, from everything we can tell, is a lone domestic terrorist," Pugel said. "At this moment we cannot find any ties to anyone else?

Police evacuated part of plex Saturday evening after finding what was described as a "potential hazard," Seattle's KING 5 News reported. Police didn't elaborate on the evacuation but allowed residents to return to their homes after about an hour.

Brenton was sitting in a car Oct. 31 with rookie Officer Britt Sweeney following a traffic stop when shots were fired. Sweeney was grazed in the neck.

Detectives have asked the King County prosecutor's office for formal charges in the case.

ISLAND, CAMANO Wash. - Colton Harris-Moore has been a one-boy crime wave since he was seven years old.

He has broken into houses, stolen cars and burglarized markets, hardware stores and cafes for years on this rural, woodsy island north of Seattle.

Since early in 2008, when the now 18-year-old escaped from a juvenile holding facility, Harris-Moore has been leading police on a fruitless chase through Washington, Canada and Idaho — stealing two boats and crash-landing three planes (he taught himself to fly on his computer, authorities suspect) along the way.

Now it looks like he may be back.

Police are investigating a wave of burglaries over the past few weeks on Camano Island and nearby Whidbey Island. There are no official suspects, but many here are convinced that the youth whose Facebook fan club numbers more than 7,000 and has turned him into an international folk hero, often described as a teenage Jesse James, is responsible.

On Camano Island, where residents say sheriff's deputies have been combing the woods on foot and sending search helicopters up at night, Harris-Moore more often is considered, simply, a Harris-Moore's baby face - which belies his 6-foot-3, 205-pound frame – is familiar to most people in Washington state. Mugshots, surveillance camera photos and Harris-Moore's self-portrait for months have been plastered in newspapers and on market bulletin boards and television news programs.

The fugitive's mother raised him in a run-down, single-wide trailer in the woods on the south end of the island. Posted along the driveway these days are multiple "No Trespassing" signs.

By the time Harris-Moore turned 12, he had a conviction for possession of stolen property. Over the next few years he racked up convic- A Fun Animated Adventure for the Whole Family tions for theft, burglary,  $\square P \square N \square S \square V$ malicious mischief and fourth-degree assault.

Harris-Moore became adept at setting up camps in the dense woods that cover the majority of Camano Island.

Island County sheriff's deputies - having found a load of pizza boxes at one of his camps — once caught him by posing as pizza deliverers. Another time, officers arrested him when they found a light on in an abandoned house.

But in April 2008, Harris-Moore escaped from a minimum-security juvenile home in Renton, Wash., to the exasperation of those who put him there. Since then, he has been suspected in a rash of thefts and burglaacross northern Washington and Canada.

His crimes may have reached a new level that November, when authorities say a Cessna 182 belonging to a Seattle radio talk show personality was stolen from a hangar on Oreas Island and flown to a "hard landing" on the Yakama Indian Reservation.

Then last Sept. 11, a Cirrus SR22 was stolen and flown to another of the San Juan islands. The thefts accompanied a rash of burglaries across Oreas Island.

San Juan County Sheriff Flickner said. It was Bill Cumming said Harris-Flickner's market that Moore, who long has had an Harris-Moore, with police in interest in aviation, is a suspect in both thefts; though plowed into with a stolen he is not known to have had any formal flight training, he did once buy a flight manual using a stolen credit card.

Officials believe he left the Juan islands in September on a stolen boat, which was found at the Canadian border at Point Roberts.

From there, authorities theorize, Harris-Moore made his way across Canada to Bonners Ferry, Idaho, where another Cessna 182 was stolen Oct. 2 and landed in a logged-out forest area at Granite Falls, Wash.

Big question mark: Fate of health care in Senate

By Ricardo Alonso-Zaldivar Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON - The glow from a health care triumph faded quickly for President Obama on Sunday as Democrats realized the bill they fought so hard to pass in the House has nowhere to go in the Senate.

Speaking from the Rose Garden about 14 hours after the late Saturday vote, Obama urged senators to be like runners on a relay team and "take the baton and bring this effort to the finish line on behalf of the American people."

The problem is that the Senate won't run with it. The government health insurance plan included in the House bill is unacceptable to a few Democratic moderates who hold the balance of power in the Senate.

GOP officials say Dems put agenda ahead of country

By Douglass K. Daniel Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — Democrats just don't get the election message from voters and are pushing a liberal, big government agenda at their party's peril, Republican officials said Sunday as they predicted a political price after the majority's victory on health care. Voters are "tired of the borrowing, the spending, the bailouts, the takeovers," said Rep. Mike Pence of Indiana, the No. 3 House GOP leader, pointing to GOP victories in gubernatorial races in Virginia and New Jersey last week.

The Democratic-controlled House narrowly approved a health care bill Saturday night, with 39 Democrats voting against it and a single Republican voting in its favor. President Barack Obama's top domestic initiative faces a high hurdle in the Senate, which must pass its own bill and then negotiate a compromise with the House to craft a final measure.

'On a narrow partisan vote, the Democrats put their liberal, big government agenda ahead of the American people," Pence said. "If Democrats keep ignoring the American people, their party's going to be history in about a year."

Democrats argue that the races in Virginia and New Jersey turned on state issues rather than national concerns. They say victories in House races in New York and California are evidence that voters support their efforts to overhaul the nation's health care system. Both Democrats elected to the House on Tuesday voted for the health care bill.

The message was clear. It's time to begin to fix what has been a broken health care system for millions of Americans." said Rep. Chris Van Hollen, D-Md., the chairman of the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee, which supports Democrats running for the House.

Republican Party Chairman Michael Steele said the House bill allows the government to take over health care even though Americans don't want the government in charge.

'The Democratic Party had better pay attention to what the people out here are saying," Steele said. "You can no longer dismiss people by sitting on your cell phone when they're talking to you or calling them un-American or making them feel like you don't give a heck about what their concerns are. That's what the voters laid on the table this year."

Idaho upset by slow start against FSU; Enderle is day-to-day

By Josh Wright Times-News correspondent

MOSCOW - With quarterback Nathan Enderle a no-go on Saturday with a bum shoulder, Idaho's offense was largely a noshow. Despite a furious late rally, Idaho fell to 7-3 overall and 4-2 in Western Athletic Conference play with a 31-21 home loss to Fresno State.

It was Idaho's first home defeat of the season.

"I'm disappointed, very disappointed," Idaho coach Robb Akey said. "We did not play good football tonight, and a good football team can't spot another good football team (that many points)."

If it weren't for yet another woefully slow start that left Idaho down 31-7, the Vandals feel like they might still be in position for their first WAC title entering this Saturday's road game against rival Boise State ( 1:30 p.m., ESPNU) slow starts that we're getting off to, we would have done it by now," defensive end Aaron Lavarias said. "I'm not sure what it was. I guess the football gods didn't smile on us at the end like they had been."

Down 24 early in the fourth quarter, the Vandals (7-3, 4-2) couldn't muster a miracle comeback like last week against Louisiana Tech - though they certainly made things interesting. Brian Reader, Enderle's replacement, scrambled for a 4-yard TD run with 12:21 remaining, then found Eric

BSU up one to sixth, but Frogs leap to 4th in BCS standings

By Ralph D. RussoAssociated Press writer

NEW YORK - All those blowouts have carried TCU to unprecedented heights in the BCS standings, giving the Horned Frogs hope — howev- $\operatorname{er}\operatorname{slim}$  — of becoming the first BCS buster to break into the national championship game.

TCU took over fourth in the place Championship Series standings Sunday behind Florida, Alabama and Texas. It's the highest BCS ranking ever for a team from a conference without an automatic bid to the big-money bowl games. No potential BCS buster had ever done better than sixth in the BCS standings.

The undefeated teams ranked Nos. 4-6 - TCU, Cincinnati and Boise State need the top three to stumble to have any shot of reaching the title game.

The Horned Frogs (.8620) moved up two spots and are just ahead of Cincinnati (.8579) and Boise State (.8125). Each is 9-0 with three games left.

TCU has been rising by racking up lopsided victories. The Horned Frogs have won their last four games by an average score of 44-8.

Meanwhile, Boise State has played close games against Tulsa and Louisiana Tech in the last month, two teams with losing records. Cincinnati struggled to put away Connecticut in a wild 47-45 victory on Saturday night.

TCU is ranked fourth in both the Harris and coaches' polls, and in the compilation of six computer rankings

Kurt Busch wins Sprint Cup race at Texas

The Associated Press

FORT WORTH, Texas - Jimmie Johnson's drive to history took a hard hit against a wall and Kyle Busch ran out of gas trying to complete an unprecedented NASCAR trifecta.

Kurt Busch drove to Victory Lane at Texas after his younger brother ran out of fuel with 21/2 laps left Sunday, finishing 129 laps ahead of the rebuilt car driven by Johnson, who saw his points lead slashed from 184 to 73 over Hendrick teammate Mark Martin with two races

"It was definitely not the day we wanted," Johnson said. "It's not as bad as it could have been. At one point I was told to hop out of car and I was done. ... It's still a big ouch."

Johnson, the series points leader trying to become the first Sprint Cup driver to win four consecutive season championships, wrecked on the third lap when he was knocked into the wall by Sam Hornish. Johnson finished 38th after his crew needed more than an hour to repair and basically rebuild his No. 48 Chevrolet.

"By the time that I knew that I "I'm still in great position. We're was hit, I was already sideways," going to dust ourselves off," Johnson Hornish said. "I was just trying to correct it and not get into the 48. Obviously, you don't ever want to detract from the championship when you're not really even involved Busch's 20th career victory came with an average speed of 147.137 mph and by a nearly 26-second margin over second-place Denny Hamlin. Matt Kenseth was third.

Kyle Busch, who had already won the Nationwide and Camping World Truck races at Texas, was trying to become the first driver to win in all three of NASCAR's national series on the same weekend. He led 232 laps and was still ahead when his No. 18 Toyota suddenly slowed on the backstretch on lap 332.

"This is the first time Kyle and I raced each other hard," said Kurt Busch, who led six times for 89 laps while also running second behind his brother much of the race. "It's bittersweet, I was rooting for him, but at the same time this is for us."

Kyle Busch had trouble refiring his car after his splash and dash stop and wound up 11th.

Dave Rogers, who made his debut by Hornish, then slammed into the as Kyle Busch's crew chief in Sprint Cup, said they thought they had enough fuel to finish the race and described the driver as "frustrated." Busch didn't talk to reporters.

> Jeff Gordon, another Hendrick driver who is third in points, finished 13th after avoiding serious problems of his own. He cut his points deficit to Johnson from 192 to 112 points, though lost ground on Martin.

"A total missed opportunity that completely got away from us," said Gordon, who in April won at Texas for the first time.

Romo, Cowboys take down Eagles

PHILADELPHIA - Now the Dallas Cowboys can forget about last season's awful

Tony Romo threw a 49vard touchdown pass to Miles Austin midway through the fourth quarter and the Cowboys beat the Philadelphia Eagles 20-16 Sunday night in the 100th meeting between the division rivals.

On the final day of the 2008 regular season, the Eagles dominated Dallas 44-6 in a do-or-die game for both teams. Philadelphia earned a wild-card berth with that victory, won two playoff contests on the road and advanced to the NFC championship game, losing at Arizona.

The Cowboys (6-2) spent the whole offseason thinking about that horrendous ending. They got their revenge and took over sole possession of first place in the NFC East with their fourth straight victory.

BUCCANEERS 38, PACKERS 28

TAMPA, Fla. – Rookie Josh Freeman passed for 205 yards and three touchdowns Sunday, including a 7-vard throw to Sammie Stroughter on fourth-and-4, leading the previously winless Bucs to a 38-28 victory over the Green Bay Packers.

In his first pro start, the 17th pick in the draft out of Kansas State completed 14 of 31 passes with just one interception. A critical second pick was wiped out by a Green Bay penalty during the go-ahead drive.

Aaron Rodgers threw three interceptions and had take control of the division one returned for a TD.

SAINTS 30, PANTHERS 20

NEW ORLEANS - The Saints moved to 8-0 for the first time in club history when Drew Brees overcame two early turnovers to pass for 330 yards and a touchdown.

While the Saints' defense did not intercept a pass for the first time all season, the unit forced three turnovers on fumbles. The last produced New Orleans' seventh defensive touchdown of the season on Anthony Hargrove's strip, recovery and 1-yard return late in the fourth quarter.

COLTS 20. TEXANS 17

INDIANAPOLIS Running back Joseph Addai scored the go-ahead touchdown with 7:11 left and missed a 42-yard field goal off. as time expired, keeping Indianapolis undefeated.

Indy is the fourth team in league history with 17 straight wins. New England has done it twice and Chicago did it in 1933-34. Jim Caldwell became the first rookie coach to go 8-0 since Potsy Clark in 1930.

CHARGERS 21. GIANTS 20

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. – Philip Rivers capped an 80-yard drive with an 18yard pass to Vincent Jackson with 21 seconds to play and the Chargers handed New York its fourth straight loss.

Rivers was 24 of 36 for 209 yards and three touchdowns, including two to Jackson, in helping San Diego (5-3) win its third straight.

TITANS 34, 49ERS 27

SAN FRANCISCO - Six plays after his 81-yard touchdown run was overturned, Chris Johnson took a pitch from Vince Young and ran 2 yards for a go-ahead

Young showed his comeback is legitimate, outplaying fellow first-round draft pick Alex Smith down the stretch. Young has been clutch twice in as many weeks, getting the Titans (2-6) in the end zone when it mattered.

PATRIOTS 27, DOLPHINS 17

Miami's two touchdowns came on possessions on which it used the wildcat most extensively - after gaining just 36 yards on 21 wildcat plays in its previous two games. But New England's quick-strike ability took back the momen-

BENGALS 17, RAVENS 7

CINCINNATI - With Cedric Benson topping 100 yards again, the Bengals got ahead early and ground one out. Cincinnati scored on its first three possessions, then spent the rest of its time chasing Baltimore's Joe Flacco around the field.

The Bengals (6-2) can by winning next Sunday at Pittsburgh; the Steelers (5-2) play Denver on Monday night. Cincinnati has won all four games in the division, including a sweep of the Ravens (4-4), who started fast but have selfdestructed into mediocrity.

CARDINALS 41, BEARS 21

CHICAGO - One week after throwing five interceptions, Kurt Warner tied a career high by throwing five touchdown passes. Larry Fitzgerald added 123 yards receiving and two touchdowns.

Warner was at his best after a miserable performance in a 34-21 loss to Carolina. He handled a team that had a chance to sign him as a backup four years ago, matching the record for TD passes by a Bears oppo-Houston's Kris Brown nent without getting picked

FALCONS 31, REDSKINS 17

ATLANTA – Michael Turner ran for a seasonhigh 166 yards, breaking away from former Falcons CB DeAngelo Hall on a 58yard touchdown that finished off Washington early in the fourth quarter.

Hall, who made two Pro Bowls playing for the Falcons from 2004-07, yapped away all week about how Atlanta treated him unfairly before a trade to Oakland. He didn't even make it through one season with the Raiders and landed in Washington.

JAGUARS 24, CHIEFS 21

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. -David Garrard threw for 264 yards, including a 61-yard touchdown to Mike Sims-Walker.

The Jaguars (4-4) latest turnaround after a defeat came after coach Jack Del Rio ripped his team's defensive effort in a 30-13 loss at the Titans, calling it "insulting, ugly and embarrassing."

SEAHAWKS 32, LIONS 20

SEATTLE Matt Hasselbeck rallied the Seahawks from a 17-0 deficit with a franchiserecord 39 completions, and Seattle avoided the embarrassment of being the first home team to lose to the Lions in 25 months.

Hasselbeck threw an interception on his first play, but finished with the first 300-yard passing game in two seasons for the Seahawks (3-5). He was 39 of 51 for 329 yards.

Mickelson rallies past Els to win HSBC Championship

The Associated Press

SHANGHAI Phil Mickelson won the HSBC Champions on Sunday by rallying against a familiar foe. Only it wasn't Tiger Woods.

Mickelson made an 18footer to save par on the 16th after whiffing on a flop shot, then holed a 10-foot birdie putt on the 17th to close with a 3-under 69 and overcome a late charge by Ernie Els, who was in the lead until hitting into the water and making bogey on the final hole.

Woods was never a factor in the final World Golf Championship of the year, falling six shots behind on the front nine and doing well to stay on the leaderboard the rest of the way. He hit into the water with his third shot on the par-5 18th and had to scramble for bogey to close with a 72 and tie for sixth, percent of Idaho teenagers use tobacco - but before the program becomes permanent, administrators and School Board members ought to ask some questions.

For the present, the district plans non-punitive nicotine screening of half of the athletes undergoing mandatory random alcohol and drug testing.

The effort will gather data the board will use to decide whether to implement nicotine screening among student athletes, including cheer and dance team members.

To justify the policy, the board needs to determine whether tobacco use among student athletes is a significant local problem and whether testing is an appropriate way to address it, according to the school district's attorney, Doug Whipple.

Cassia County School District Superintendent Gaylen Smyer says that before the beginning of the winter sports season all student athletes will undergo drug and alcohol testing as part of the district's polipercent of the tests will check for the presence of nicotine."

Jody Prewitt, co-owner of Mobile Drug Screen, which currently performs drug and alcohol tests on district athletes, says two random samplings were performed during routine drug and alcohol tests. In one group of four students, all four tested positive for nicotine, she said. In the other group of four, two That's troubling, but testing rules should recognize that there are subtle but important distinctions between tobacco and drugs.

Although it's illegal in Idaho for minors to possess or use tobacco, tobacco itself is a legal product. Marijuana, methamphetamines and other drugs are not.

The board ought to consider a first-failure warning policy: Test positive for nicotine once, and you're on notice. Do so twice, and you're off the Tobacco counseling should be part of the policy as well — including the fact that four Idahoans a day die from smoking-related diseases. And that annual health care costs in Idaho directly caused by smoking are $319 million; that works out to $549 a year out of the pockets of every man, woman and child in the state.

Good for the School Board for taking the initiative to do something about it.

U.S. and allies need to stop handling Iran with kid gloves

ran's rejection last month of the Obama administration's proposal for a deal over uranium wasn't the end of nuclear negotiations with that nation. But it was a serious setback to diplomats who have been trying to solve the Iranian nuclear problem – and it raises doubts about whether the regime is even capable of striking a compromise with the outside world.

Doyle McManus

Here's what happened. Last month in Geneva, the United States and other big powers (including Russia and China) proposed what should have been an attractive swap: Iran would ship most of its known stockpile of lowenriched uranium - material that could be processed into a bomb to Russia; in exchange, Iran would get reprocessed uranium for a medical research reactor.

That deal wouldn't have resolved the West's nuclear confrontation with Iran. It was merely an attempt to buy time. If Iran shipped out its lowenriched uranium, the nation's ability to produce a nuclear weapon would be postponed by about a year, during which time negotiations could continue without so many nerverattling threats of military action by Israel.

The proposal was a test of Iran's willingness and ability to cut a deal. Last week, the Islamic regime failed the test.

For the moment, the U.S. and its allies are keeping the door open for a change of heart in Iran. Obama administration officials say they still hope Russia, France and other countries can bring the Iranians around. But Iran's behavior during the discussions didn't give them much hope. Initially, negotiators appointed by Iranian President Mahmoud Ahmadinejad appeared to embrace the idea of a uranium swap but as soon as the idea reached the capital, Tehran, it turned into a criticized Ahmadinejad for going soft; the speaker of Parliament said the West was trying to cheat Iran; and even some members of the democratic opposition, burnishing their nationalistic credentials, said they were opposed. The problem, said Ray Takeyh of the Council on Foreign Relations, is this: "There's been a breakdown in the country's foreign policy machinery. Iran doesn't have a foreign policy right now. It has domestic politics, and its foreign policies are just a sporadic expression of that. It's not sinister; it's not duplicitous; it's just incompetent."

If he's right, the negotiations were doomed almost from the start which is what some officials in the Obama administration have been saying all along. Talking with Iran was worth a try, but it was mostly just a necessary step in the process of persuading Germany, Russia and China to support tougher sanctions.

What happens now? The United States and its allies are giving Iran a second chance to accept the uranium swap - but not for told me. "It's time to move on."

The nuclear clock, in other words, is still ticking. If Iran keeps its lowenriched uranium, independent experts estimate that it could build a nuclear weapon in about 18 months. There's no evidence that Iran is taking the next steps in that direction — but it hasn't convinced the rest of the world that it won't.

So the Obama administration will escalate its attempt to forge a world consensus to impose what U.S. Secretary of State Hillary Rodham Clinton calls "crippling sanctions" on Iran. That won't be easy. China, Russia and Germany all have important trade relationships with Iran.

By themselves, sanctions aren't going to reverse the Iranian regime's behavior. But they can have some effect - especially if they are married to a third step: More open and more consistent support for democracy and human rights in Iran.

Over the past two months, as negotiations got under way, Iranian democrats watched with suspicion and concern: Would the U.S. and its allies sell them out in exchange for a nuclear deal? That's how the Obama administration's conciliatory tone toward the regime was taken in Tehran. And that had a deflating effect on Iranian dissidents.

"People are worried about the 'Libya Syndrome' – that if the regime makes a deal with the United States on nuclear weapons, it will get a free pass to continue its repression at home," Stanford University Iran expert Abbas Milani said.

The administration tried to walk a narrow line on this issue. In the Geneva talks, U.S. diplomat William J. Burns brought up human rights with Iranian negotiator Saeed Jalili - but only briefly and not harshly enough to risk disrupting the talks.

The time has come to stop handling Iran's leaders with kid gloves. It wasn't becoming, they didn't deserve it and it didn't produce results.

It was very organized and I was pleasantly surprised that we were in and out in 20 minutes. I took my three kids to get their vaccinations and was expecting a very long wait in line because of the amount of people I knew would be there, but it went smooth and quick.

I just wanted to say thanks to all of those who helped with this clinic. I thought they did a great job.

This policy is causing dents at the college.

CSI places a hold on student accounts until the forms are received by the school, making it impossible for students to register for the upcoming semester while they wait for the efficiency of government.

Many classes are offered just once per year, therefore, they fill quickly. Students in Cassia County are at a huge disadvantage as they must now watch the classes they need fill while they are unable to enroll. There is a class I need that, if missed, will postpone my graduation for a year.

I hope this new, nonsensical policy finds itself replaced very soon. I am sure the commissioners have much more pressing tasks than having to sign these forms themselves.

True conservatives just want a turn

f there's one thing liberal pundits are experts on these days it's the sorry state of conservatism. The airwaves and op-ed pages brim with more-in-sorrowthan-in-anger lamentations on the GOP's failure to get with President Obama's program, the party's inevitable demographic demise and its thralldom to the demonic deities of the right -Limbaugh, Beck, Palin.

Jonah Goldberg

Such sages as the New York Times' Sam Tanenhaus and Frank Rich insist that the right is out of ideas. After all, the religious dogmatism and "market fundamentalism" of the Bush administration were entirely discredited, leaving the GOP with its intellectual cupboard bare.

"During the two terms of George W. Bush," Tanenhaus declares in his latest book, "conservative ideas were not merely tested but also pursued with dogmatic fixity."

Even worse than being brain-dead, the right is black-hearted, hating good-and-fair Obama for his skin color and obvious do-goodery.

Predictably, Republican Dede Scozzafava's withdrawal from the congressional race in New York's 23rd District is not only proof the experts are right. but also conveniently a more important story than the Democrats' parlous standing with voters. Don't look at the imploding Democrats. No, let's all titter at the cannibalistic "civil war" on the right.

Frank Rich, gifted psephologist, finds the perfect parallel to the GOP's squabbles in Stalin's murderous purges.

"Though they constantly liken the president to various totalitarian dictators," Rich writes, "it is they who are re-enacting Stalinism in full purge mode." Stalin's "full purge mode" involved the systematized exile and slaughter of hundreds of thousands (not counting his genocide of millions). The GOP's purge has so far caused one very liberal Republican to halt her bid for Congress.

Let me offer a countertheory, admittedly lacking in such color but making up for it with evidence and consideration of what conservatives actually believe.

After 15 or 20 years of steady moderation, many conservatives think it might be time to give their ideas a try.

Bush's "compassionate conservatism" was promoted as an alternative to traditional conservatism. Bush promised to be a "different kind of Republican," and he kept that promise. He advocated government activism, and he put our money where his mouth was. He federalized education with No Child Left Behind co-sponsored by Teddy Kennedy – and oversaw the biggest increase in

"Conservatives have had to not only put up with a lot of moderation and ideological flexibility, we've had to endure nearly a decade of taunting from gargoyles insisting that the GOP is run by crazed radicals.

The rank and file might be wrong to want to get back to basics, but I don't think so."

tory (58 percent faster than inflation), according to the Heritage Foundation, while doing next to nothing to advance the conservative idea known as school choice.

With the prescription drug benefit, he created the biggest new entitlement since the Great Society (Obama is poised to topple that record). Bush increased spending on the National Institutes of Health by 36 percent and international aid by 74 percent, according to Heritage.

He oversaw the largest, most porktacular farm bills ever. He signed the Sarbanes-Oxley Act, a massive new regulation of Wall Street. His administration defended affirmative action before the Supreme Court.

He pushed amnesty for immigrants, imposed steel tariffs, supported Title IX and signed the McCain-Feingold campaign finance reform legislation. Oh, and he, not Obama, initiated the first bailouts and TARP.

Not all of these positions were wrong or indefensible. But the notion that Bush pursued conservative ideas with "dogmatic fixity" is dogmatic nonsense.

Most Democrats were blinded to all of this because of their anger over the Iraq war and an often irrational hatred of Bush.

education spending in his-Republicans, meanwhile, defended Bush far more than they would have had it not been for 9/11 and the hysteria of his enemies.

In 2008, the primaries lacked a Bush proxy who could have siphoned off much of the discontent on the right. Moreover, the party made the political calculation that John McCain – another unorthodox and inconsistent conservative — was the best candidate to beat Obama.

In short, conservatives have had to not only put up with a lot of moderation and ideological flexibility, we've had to endure nearly a decade of taunting from gargoyles insisting that the GOP is run by crazed radicals.

The rank and file might be wrong to want to get back to basics, but I don't think so. With Obama racing to transform America into a European welfare state fueled by terrifying deficit spending, this seems like a good moment to argue for limited government.

Oh, and a little forgiveness, please, for not trusting the judgment of the experts who insist they know what's happening on the racist, paranoid, market-fundamentalist, Stalinist right.

Cyclists and motorists on collison course

r. Christopher Thompson, a driver who abruptly stopped his car in front of two cyclists in Los Angeles last summer, was found guilty of six felonies and a misdemeanor last week. The trial, which lasted three weeks and captivated the cycling community, revealed a particularly virulent form of road rage. Christian Stoehr suffered a separated shoulder and Ron Peterson shattered several teeth and broke and nearly severed his nose when the two hit the back of Thompson's Infiniti sedan on Mandeville Canyon Road in the upscale community of Brentwood.

Thompson, a former emergency-room physician who lives along the winding five-mile road, claimed that he was merely trying to take a photograph of Stoehr and Peterson, evidence of the way cyclists flout the law in the canyon and flip off residents. A Los Angeles Police Department traffic investigator who arrived on the scene shortly after the incident testified that Thompson told him he "stopped in front to teach them a lesson." Suffice it to say that Thompson shouldn't be driving a support vehicle in the Tour de France. Two other cyclists testified that in March 2008, a motorist they believed to be Thompson made a similar maneuver, speeding ahead, then slamming on his brakes. One of these cyclists told the court that the driver tried to hit them again and then sped off, noting that the car was an Infiniti sedan and the license plates matched those of

Thompson's car. Obscene gestures, vanity plates — it's all part of the romance of Southern California driving. Road rage? That's just the inflamed passion part of romance. But anyone who's been paying attention to the road lately probably has noticed a marked, even dizzying, increase in the number of bikes on U.S. streets. Suddenly, they're in bike lanes and traffic lanes, zipping through stoplights, careening around mountain passes and weaving along sidewalks. Census data show that between 2000 and 2008, the number of bicycle commuters increased by 43 percent. And membership in competitive cycling clubs is on the rise, with USA Cycling reporting the number of licensed U.S. racers up 48 percent since 2002.

Despite the cozy, granola-esque community spirit this trend might evoke (think helmeted parents riding with their helmeted kids and women in flowing skirts peddling home from the farmers market with baskets full of French bread), the reality is more sobering. Cycling-related accident rates are decreasing, but cycling injuries are getting worse. That suggests that riders may be tangling with something more than a mere fall, like a car door or fender. And although most drivers, mercifully, don't harbor as much animosity as Thompson, I suspect there may be more of him out there than we might like to think.

Why? For starters, many people don't know what rights cyclists do and do not have, which pretty much makes them assume they have none. I was in this category myself until I consulted the bicycle laws in the California Vehicle Code and learned that a cyclist has "all the rights and is subject to all the provisions applicable to the driver of a vehicle." In other words, you're not supposed to dart through red lights on a bike (shame on you, 80 percent of Lycra wearers in my neighborhood).

But guess what: It's perfectly legal to occupy the entire lane, not just hang on the side, if you're going the same speed as traffic. The speed limit on Mandeville Canyon Road is 30 mph, which, according to the injured cyclists' GPS data, was about the speed they were traveling when Thompson stopped in front of them. In other words, if you're getting impatient with a "slow" cyclist in front of you, it's probably because you're speeding.

So, now that you know, are you going to stop swearing at cyclists? My guess is no. Because there's a larger bone of contention here, which is that cyclists make a lot of us feel like lazy slobs. Whereas drivers sit in an air-conditioned bubble, expending only the energy required to press the gas pedal, tap the brake and change from a '70s classic-rock radio station to an '80s classic-rock station, cyclists are out in the actual elements doing actual exercise. Whereas drivers are consuming calories by eating an entire bucket of KFC over 10 blocks, cyclists are burning calories and consuming nothing but seaweed at home. Whereas drivers' carbon footprints grow more beast-like by the hour, cyclists create no exhaust other than the sweet fatigue they feel as they drift off to saintly sleep at night.

Of course, moral superiority is insufferable, but you still shouldn't try to run it off the road or teach it a lesson with your luxury car. You might win on the street, but in court, it's a different story.

Ultramarathoners: Racing for themselves

By Melissa Davlin Times-News writer

For Andy Jones-Wilkins, 26-mile marathons are short races.

The Hailey-based school administrator is one of a handful of runners in south-central Idaho who compete in ultramarathons - trail races that are often 50 or 100 miles.

The routes are often in mountains and involve thousands of feet of climbing. Experienced runners can complete 100 miles in less than 24 hours. They start before dawn and run almost constantly through the race, subsisting on energy gels, half sandwiches and

Jones-Wilkins, 42, ran his first race in 1996. Since then, he has competed in 24 hundred-mile races and more than 60 shorter races and is now sponsored by Patagonia. Most of his races are in the West, which is the his body and environment, and isn't saturated with athletes looking for fame.

"Out there, you're running for 17 hours, you're all by vourself." he said.

Jon Wheelwright of Twin Falls, 29, started ultramarathon running three years ago while living in Utah. He was training for a normal marathon when a friend turned him on to the idea, he said. Since then, he has participated in about 14 races, recently placing 11th in a 100-miler.

The challenge draws Wheelwright to the sport.

"In a good 50-mile race or sport helps him connect with a good 100-mile race, it's almost like living your life in one day," Wheelwright said. "You've got incredible highs and incredible lows and once you get done with it, you wouldn't trade it for anything." But the sport isn't without its dangers. Ultramarathon runners are subject to foot injuries, dehydration and muscle cramps, Jones-Wilkins said. Because the races take place on mountain trails, competitors sometimes fall, Wheelwright added.

Andrew Mix, physical therapist at Lifestyles Therapy and Wellness Center in Twin Falls, said ultramarathon runners can avoid injury with proper training.

"Our bodies are made to withstand a lot," Mix said. With the right information, ultramarathoners are no more subject to injury than someone improperly shoveling their sidewalk or typing on a computer, he said.

Wheelwright, who also works as a physical therapist, said ultramarathons on dirt trails are easier on his joints than shorter marathons on pavement.

The risks are worth it for Jones-Wilkins.

"It's so simple with your shoes and the mountains," he said. "There's something almost primal about just being out there and running."

Smart shopping: Check! No, wait ...

By Jennifer LaRue Huget Special to The Washington Post

Smart Choices Program, launched in August, deemed Froot Loops nutritious enough to sport a big checkmark on the front of boxes signifying that choosing the cereal was indeed smart. The news media and consumer advocacy groups had a field day with that one, and the U.S. Drug Food and Administration vowed to protect the public against any misconceptions caused by the labeling system.

Things came to a head in late October, when Smart Choices announced it would cease activity and pledged to work with the FDA to develop a universal system for posting nutrition information on the front of food packages. The front-of-package labeling movement has been building steam for years, with food companies, retail outlets and groups such as the American Heart Association promoting their own systems. The idea behind such systems is that consumers are unwilling or unable to make sense of the nutrition facts panels that have appeared on food packages since the mid-1990s. Not only are all those numbers apparently beyond our collective ken, but turning the box around to see the panel is such a pain, right?

So the center aisles of the

That's one of the reasons organizations such as the Center for Science in the Public Interest have for years called upon the FDA to establish a universal, comprehensive and objective system for package fronts. The agency has recently indicated that it's coming around; it enlisted the independent Institute and nutrition issues, to look into the matter.

headed toward a universal labeling system. The big question remains: What approach will work best?

The folks who creatcompeting health logos ed it offer credible, if not entirely persuasive, support Some experts worry that all for awarding Froot Loops a those messages may lead checkmark, despite the fact consumers to tune out nutri- that the stuff's made largely of sugar.

Joanne Lupton, a nutrition professor at Texas A&M University who helped formulate the program's guidelines, told me a few days before Smart Choices was halted that the program evaluates foods according to the federal government's Dietary Guidelines for Americans (last issued in 2005 and due for updating next year) and Medicine, which advises the other widely accepted stanfederal government on health dards. Only foods containing guideline-acceptable amounts of ingredients such So it looks as though we're as saturated fat and sodium were eligible for checkmarks; beyond that, each needed to provide at least one of a handful of key vitamins, First of all, we shouldn't minerals or food groups, such grocery store are like Times dismiss the Smart Choices as whole grains. view the requirements on the Smart Choices Web site, www.smartchoicesprogram.com.)

Times-News, Twin Falls, Idaho

At first, Froot Loops didn't make the grade, Lupton says. So Kellogg retooled the cereal, reducing the sugar and boosting the fiber. That may sound devious, but Lupton says spurring manufacturers to make their products more healthful was a goal of the program.

Having said all that, there's another matter that makes me think Smart Choices wasn't so smart. For all its carefully calibrated calculations, the program wasn't designed to help me find the most healthful foods in the supermarket. Only companies that paid to join the program, including Kraft Foods and Kellogg, got the big checkmarks. So while whole-grain, low-sugar, nutrient-packed Grape-Nuts may be among the most healthful breakfast cereals, it has no checkmark because Post isn't part of the system.

And no way was Smart Choices steering you toward the local apples in the produce section. Not unless the orchard owner had paid up.

The Institute of Medicine and the FDA have many issues to sort out before the nation can take the universal front-of-box nutrition labeling plunge. Here's one of the biggest: As yet, there's not much evidence that such labeling translates to better • Wheatgrass. It's good for you - inside and out, says Helen Ambrosen, the science coordinator and cofounder of cosmetic company Lush. She recommends wheatgrass for dry and mature skin because it is reparative and fights free radicals.

• Bananas. "It's a gentle. inert fruit that can be used on the skin and hair," says Ambrosen. Mashed banana is moisturizing, calming and soothing – and can be mixed with oatmeal and honey for a face mask, she adds. A lesser known trick is to use a bit to tame dry, curly hair.

root is a key ingredient in curry powder, says alternative-medicine researcher Joerg Gruenwald, but, perhaps surprisingly, it also is used in Malaysia as an antiinflammatory and a healing ingredient.

• Watermelon and tomatoes. Both are sources of lycopene, which Ciurea says is a powerful antioxidant. "My grandmother used to crush tomato and put it on her face — and her skin was gorgeous;" she says.

But consumers contemplating a wearable fruit salad should know there's probably as much risk of an allergic reaction to a fruit-, vegetable- or other plant-based ingredient as there is to a chemical one, says Ciurea, who adds that she has seen contact allergies develop.

(She recommends testing any new skin-care product on the inner side of the arm. It's similar to the skin on the face but it's not usually as unpleasant and obvious if you do have a reaction.)

Ciurea also says the botanicals could be skin-care successes. She's a user of a lotion with green tea and berry extracts, which she finds turizer, Thomas explains.

calming, and she's a fan of aloe vera's healing and antibacterial properties.

"You have to pay attention to the effects of ingredients, just like you'd choose chemical formulas," Ambrosen, of Lush. Start either with a mild formula or a small amount of product, then, if it's not irritating, ramp up use from there, she suggests.

And expect more ingredients as global barriers are blurred, says Gruenweld, who collaborated with Oxford University-based Gerry Bodeker, also an adjunct professor in public health at Columbia University, on "Health and • Turmeric. This tropical Beauty from the Rainforest'' (Didier Millet).

> In Malaysia, Gruenwald notes, there's a long tradition of treating beauty both topically and through diet often doubling up on the same herbs, oils and extracts. "The whole concept of foods for beauty is used more commonly in Malaysia and Asia," he said.

> Bodeker says the herb Pegaga or gotu kola, sometimes eaten as a salad leaf, is well known for what it can do for skin quality, elasticity and skin repair. It can be ground with a mortar and pestle and used as a scrub with a base of rice flower and coconut oil, he explains.

Mathilde Thomas, founder of French skin-care brand Caudalie, has a half-dozen uses for grape byproducts, including vine sap, used to lighten dark spots; vine stalks, which contain the anti-aging molecule resveratrol; grapeseeds, for their antioxidant polyphenols; and moisturizing grape water, which is extracted after grapes are pressed but before the liquid is fermented. ## The topic: Prostate cancer

Mixed results seen from laparoscopic surgery

THE QUESTION

For some diseases, minimally invasive surgery has been shown to have advantages over traditional, open surgery. Might that be the case when the prostate gland needs to be removed?

THIS STUDY

It analyzed data on 8,837 men, 65 and older, who had a radical prostatectomy; 22 percent had minimally invasive laparoscopic surgery, with or without robotic assistance, and the others had open surgery, with the gland removed through an incision in the abdomen (retropubic prostatectomy). Men who had laparoscopic surgery stayed in the hospital an average of two rather than three days, got fewer blood transfusions and had fewer respiratory and other postoperative complications than those who had open surgery. However, they had double the rate of genital and urinary-tract complications and were more likely to have incontinence or erectile dysfunction 18 months later. There was little difference between the groups in the need for additional cancer treatment.

WHO MAY BE AFFECTED?

Men who are having their prostate gland removed because of cancer. In the U.S., men have about a 1-in-6 chance of developing prostate cancer. However, the survival rate at five years is nearly 100 percent, it is greater than 90 percent at 10 years, and the outlook continues to improve with earlier detection and improved treatment methods.

CAVEATS

The study did not include men who had perineal prostatectomy (where the incision is between the scrotum and anus); their results could be different. Procedures performed by less experienced surgeons also might yield different results. Because the data came from Medicare forms, complications such as erectile dysfunction, which do not necessarily require medical attention, could have been underreported. The study did not compare either type of surgery with other treatment options, such as radiation or monitoring the prostate for changes (called watchful waiting).

FIND THIS STUDY

It's in the Oct. 14 issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

DO AS THEY DO

To stay healthy, follow the example of health-care workers

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — "In our environment, we're exposed to communicable diseases every day," says Martin Brown, medical director of Inova Alexandria (Va.) Hospital's emergency room. Amid coughing, sneezing and ailing patients, hospital workers fight an uphill battle to keep themselves free of colds and flu. And so they are just the ones to turn to for advice on staying healthy.

Wash your hands

Health-care professionals are fanatical about sanitizing their hands, says Laura Anderko, a nurse and associate professor at Georgetown University School of Nursing & Health Studies. Brown says he washes his hands hundreds of times a day: after seeing patients, using the keyboard or touching the telephone and before meals, and on and on.

To ensure she washes her hands long enough, Anderko sings "Happy Birthday," making a point to lather up her thumbs; Brown keeps an eye on a clock to guarantee that he washes for at least a

Get vaccinated

Don't let a busy schedule keep you from this task. It's easier to get vaccinated against the flu than in years past, says Peter Lavine, an orthopedic surgeon and president of the Medical Society of the District of Columbia. "Now you see it given everywhere: at supermarkets, CVS, country clubs," he says.

Drink fluids

When physicians and nurses do get sick, drinking more fluids than usual is a big concern. "I drink anything that's hot and has a lot of liquid, like eating them nonstop when I won-ton soup," Nayyar says. "You lose your appetite genhave fluid loss, and you get dehydrated."

NOTICE OF APPLICATION

NOTICES

Pursuant to Section 58-104(g) and 58-1301, et seq., Idaho Code (The Lake Protection Act) and rules of the State Board of Land Commissioners, notice is hereby given that John Shaw of Hagerman has submitted an application requesting a permit for rip rap placed in 2008 along the shoreline 20 feet upstream and 20 feet downstream of two locations an irrigation system intake and an unnamed creek discharge point. The rip rap in these two locations totals about 90 cubic yards of material, about two feet in depth, and extends fifteen feet from waterward to upland edges. The application also includes a request to remove (demolish) rip rap placed in 2008 along approximately 1,490 linear feet of shoreline. This portion of the project includes removal of approximately 1,656 cubic yards of material. The proposed removal will include demolition of rip rap about two feet in depth and extending fifteen feet from waterward to upland edges and include installing erosion fabric, willow waddles and fascines, stabilizing the new waterward edge with rip rap and replanting native vegetation. Small excavation equipment is proposed for use in the removal of this rip rap and removed materials will be placed above the ordinary high water mark. Turbidity curtains, silt fence, fiber waddles, and other appropriate BMPs if required will be used to control turbidity and sedimentation. Proposed projects are located on: Lower Salmon Falls Reservoir, adjacent to: Part Govt. Lot 3 Sec. 16 and Part Govt. Lot 5, Sec. 15, Township 7 South, Range 13 East; B.M., in Gooding County.

Written objections to or requests for hearing in this matter must be on file with the Idaho Department of Lands, 324 South, 417 East, Ste. 2, Jerome, ID 83338 within thirty (30) days after the first appearance of this notice. Specific information regarding this application may be obtained from Meribeth Lomkin, Sr. Resource Specialist at the above address or by calling (208) 324-2561.

Said sale will be made without covenant or warranty, express or implied, regarding title, possession or encumbrances to satisfy the obligation secured by and pursuant to the power of sale conferred in that certain Deed of Trust. The default for which this sale is to be made is: Failure to pay the monthly payment due 07/01/2009 of principal, interest and impounds and subsequent installments due thereafter; plus late charges, with interest currently accruing at 7.750% per annum; together with all subsequent sums advanced by beneficiary pursuant to the terms and conditions of said Deed of Trust, and any supplemental modifications thereto. The principal balance owing as of this date on said obligation is $24,124.11, plus interest, costs and expenses actually incurred in enforcing the obligations thereunder and in this sale, together with any unpaid and /or accruing real property taxes, and/or assessments, attorneys' fees, Trustees' fees and costs, and any other amount advanced to protect said security, as authorized in the promissory note secured by the aforementioned Deed of Trust. Therefore, the Beneficiary elects to sell, or cause said trust property to be sold, to satisfy said obligation. NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT THIS FIRM IS ATTEMPTING TO COLLECT A DEBT AND ANY INFORMATION OBTAINED WILL BE USED FOR THAT PURPOSE, AND THAT THE DEBT MAY BE DISPUTED. THE ABOVE GRANTORS ARE NAMED TO COMPLY WITH SECTION 45-1506(4)(a) IDAHO CODE. NO REPRESENTATION IS MADE THAT THEY ARE, OR ARE NOT, PRESENTLY RESPONSIBLE FOR THIS OBLIGATION. NOTICE OF TRUSTEE'S SALE

On Wednesday, February 24, 2010 at the hour of 10:30 o'clock A.M., of said day, in the office of Alliance Title & Escrow Corp. located at 1411 Falls Avenue East, Suite 1315, Twin Falls, ID 83301.

Alliance Title & Escrow Corp., as trustee, will sell at public auction, to the highest bidder, for cash, cashiers check, certified check or tellers check, (from a bank which has a branch in the community at the site of the sale), money order, State of Idaho check or local government check, or cash equivalent in lawful money of the United States, all payable at the same time of sale, the following described real property, situated in the County of Twin Falls, State of Idaho, and described as follows, to wit:

Lot 3 in Block 9 of Canyon Trails Subdivision No. 3, according to the official plat thereof, filed in Book 19 of Plats at Page(s) 27, Official Records of Twin Falls County,

THE TRUSTEE HAS NO KNOWLEDGE OF A MORE PARTICULAR DESCRIPTION OF THE ABOVE-DESCRIBED REAL PROPERTY, BUT FOR PURPOSES OF COMPLIANCE WITH IDAHO CODE, SECTION 60-113, THE TRUSTEE HAS BEEN INFORMED THAT THE STREET ADDRESS OF: 441 Pioneer Path, Twin Falls, ID 83301, MAY SOMETIMES BE ASSOCIATED WITH SAID REAL PROPERTY.

If the successful bidder cannot provide the bid price by means of one of the above means of payment, the sale will be postponed for 10 minutes only to allow the high bidder to obtain payment in a form prescribed herein above. If the high bidder is unsuccessful in obtaining payment as directed within 10 minutes, the sale will be re-held immediately and any bid by the high bidder from the previous sale, will be rejected, all in accordance with Idaho Code 45-1502 et. Sec.

Said sale will be made without covenant or warranty regarding title, possession or encumbrances to satisfy the obligation secured by and pursuant to the power of sale conferred in the deed of trust executed by Chad Kepner and Susan Kepner, Husband and Wife, as Grantor to Alliance Title & Escrow Corp., as Trustee, for the benefit and security of The Bank of New York, as Trustee for the holders of the Certificates, First Horizon Mortgage Pass-Through Certificates Series 2006-FA8 30YR, by First Horizon Home Loans, a division of First Tennessee Bank National Association, the Master Servicer, in its capacity as agent for the Trustee under the Pooling and Servicing Agreement as Successor Beneficiary, recorded December 8, 2006 as Instrument No. 2006-031195, Mortgage records of Twin Falls County, Idaho. THE ABOVE GRANTORS ARE NAMED TO COMPLY WITH SECTION 45-1506(4)(a), IDAHO CODE. NO REPRESENTATION IS MADE THAT THEY ARE, OR ARE NOT, PRESENTLY RESPONSIBLE FOR THIS OBLIGATION. The default for which this sale is to be made is failure to:

Make principal and interest payments as set forth on said Deed of Trust and Promissory Note. The original loan amount was $244,000.00 together with interest thereon at the rate of 6.75% per annum, as evidenced in Promissory Note dated November 27, 2006. Payments are in default for the months of June 2009 thru & including September 2009 in the amount of $1,932.89 per month and continuing each and every month thereafter until date of sale or reinstatement. The principal balance as of September 14, 2009 is $237,402.70 together with accrued and accruing interest thereon at the rate of 6.75% per annum. The per dlem is $43.90. In addition to the above, there is also due any late charges, advances, escrow collection fees, attorney fees, fees or costs associated with this foreclosure.

The balance owing as of this date on the obligation secured by said deed of trust is $237,402.70, excluding interest, costs and expenses actually incurred in enforcing the obligations thereunder or in this sale, as trustee's fees and/or reasonable attorney's fees as authorized in the promissory note secured by the aforementioned Deed of Trust.

IF NOVEMBER 9 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: You may be at your best when dealing with career, business, or job matters during the next several weeks, but you may at the same time find that a chasm develops between you and a loved one. Be sure to treat loved ones with love and not with a businesslike manner. Next February you can escape to a romantic getaway or simply derive inspiration from everyday things. Put your new ideas to good use at the end of March or in early April when anything you touch seems to turn to success. That is when people will respect your opinion or someone may give you the key that unlocks a beneficial door.

HOROSCOPE Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Drive and determination are great, but can tire you out quickly if you are merely going in circles.

TAURUS (April 20-May Take your time. The people in power might be gregarious, but at the same time somewhat distant and more demanding.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Carry a mental fire extinguisher. The money that burns a hole in your pocket may be wasted if something that inflames your enthusiasm.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You know what happened when the tortoise raced the hare. The moral of that story is not to be overconfident in anything.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Chances and opportunities are like a wheel; they will surely come around again. It may be too risky or unwise to jump in head first.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): The people expected to kick you when you are down might be the ones who hold out a hand and help you get back up. LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22):

You might feel that every single thing you do is under scrutiny. Share something of your private life with another person.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Those you love may seem stiff and distant, making you wonder if your hard work is appreciated. Keep a stopper in the piggy bank.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You must forgive yourself for needing to make excuses and apologies. A happy-go-lucky attitude might simply trip you up.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Cats know how to claw their way to the top, but your claws aren't quite sharp enough. Try being a bit nicer to those around you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Grab opportunities as they fly by. The most opportune moment to say something nice to someone could be gone in the wink of an eye.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March Sweeten the pot. You need to exaggerate a little or voice a few insincere words, but warmth and generosity will smooth rough edges.

DEAR ABBY: I need an unbiased opinion. I am the father of a 12-year-old daughter, "Lia." She catches an early morning bus for school, and I leave for work at the same time her bus picks her up, so I'm in charge of getting her ready in the morning.

Although we have two bathrooms - one upstairs and one down - neither of us wants to use the downstairs bathroom to get ready. All our stuff is upstairs.

When I wake Lia up each morning, she heads into the shower and I go feed the dog. I then go into the bathroom and shave while she's in the shower. While I'm shaving we discuss sports and life in general. When I'm finished, I leave until she's done showering and goes back into her room. I then take my shower.

Is this wrong? Lia's mother thinks it's inappropriate for me to be in the bathroom. at all while she's taking a shower. I think it is efficient because neither of us is willing to use the other bathroom, and I find it's a good time to find out what's going on in her life. Who's right?

RIGHT OR WRONG IN WISCONSIN DEAR RIGHT OR WRONG: Your wife is correct. It's not a matter of "right or wrong." It's a matter of what is appropriate.

At 12, your daughter is becoming a young woman. Either you or Lia needs to start using the downstairs bathroom. If you can't agree on who that will be, then draw straws. You can bond with her over breakfast.

DEAR ABBY: My old college roommate "Gina" and I live several states apart, but we have remained close over the years. Whenever I call her, her husband picks up an extension and listens in. We don't know he's listening until he says something. Other times, he'll stand next to her and constantly interrupt her while we're talking. He has his own friends and hobbies, and Gina does not know why he keeps butting

I have spoken to him when she is unavailable to make him feel involved, but this three-way conversation is bugging me. Since Gina appears to be unable to tell him to cut it out, what should I do?

 MIFFED IN MADISON DEAR MIFFED: I see no reason why you shouldn't tell Gina - whether her husband is listening or not how intrusive you feel her husband's eavesdropping is and that you would like your conversations to be private. After that, it will be up to her to decide where to draw the

DEAR ABBY: I am fortunate. I come from a close and loving family. Even though we have come through some difficult times recently, it has drawn us closer, strengthened our love and fueled our resolve to support each other no matter what.

So why am I writing? I am so full of love and emotion that it's not unusual for me to cry frequently. When we say goodbye after a visit, I cry more than anyone else. My daughter says it's a real downer - and others feel awkward. So how does one turn off the flow of tears?

TEARY-EYED IN ALABAMA DEAR TEARY-EYED: As long as a person understands the reason why she (or he) is crying — and it isn't because of displaced emotions tears are nothing to be embarrassed about, and I see no reason to stifle them. However, it's one thing to shed a few tears and another completely come unglued. Because your display of emotion makes "others feel awkward," and if this is new behavior, it may be time to consult your physician to determine what's

Today is Monday, Nov. 9, the 313th day of 2009. There are 52 days left in the year.

${f T}$ ODAY IN HISTORY

Today's Highlight:

On Nov. 9, 1989, communist East Germany threw open its borders, allowing citizens to travel freely to the West; joyous Germans danced atop the Berlin Wall. On this date:

In 1872, fire destroyed nearly 800 buildings in

In 1918, it was announced Germany's Kaiser Wilhelm II would abdicate. then fled to the Netherlands.

In 1935, United Mine Workers president John L. Lewis and other labor leaders formed the Committee for Industrial Organization, later Congress of Industrial Organizations.

In 1938, Nazis looted and burned synagogues as well as Jewish-owned stores and houses in Germany and Austria in a pogrom that became known "Kristallnacht?"

In 1953, author-poet Dylan Thomas died in New York at age 39.

In 1963, twin disasters struck Japan as some 450 miners were killed in a coaldust explosion, and about 160 people died in a train crash.

1965, the great Northeast blackout occurred as a series of power failures lasting up to 131/2 hours left 30 million people in seven states and part of Canada without electricity.

In 1967, a Saturn V rocket carrying an unmanned Apollo spacecraft blasted off from Cape Kennedy, Fla., on a successful test flight.

In 1970, former French President Charles de Gaulle died at age 79.

In 1976, the U.N. General Assembly approved resolutions condemning apartheid in South Africa, including one characterizing the white-ruled government as illegitimate:

Ten years ago: With fireworks, concerts and a huge party at the landmark Brandenburg Gate, Germany celebrated the 10th anniversary of the fall of the Berlin Wall. The flight data recorder from EgyptAir Flight 990 was recovered from the Atlantic Ocean and shipped to a National Transportation Safety Board laboratory in Washington. Five years ago: Attorney General John Ashcroft and Commerce Secretary Don Evans resigned; they were the first members of the Cabinet to leave as President George W. Bush headed from re-election into his second term. Kenny Chesney won Country Music Association album of the year award for "When The Sun Goes Down" as well as entertainer of the year. Roger Clemens won his record seventh Cy Young Award.

One year ago: Barack Obama's transition chief, John Podesta, told "Fox News Sunday" the president-elect planned to review President George W. Bush's executive orders on such things as stem cell research and domestic drilling for oil and natural gas. China unveiled a $586 billion stimulus package aimed at inoculating the world's fourth-largest economy against the global financial crisis.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

When a scholar goes to seek out a bride, he should take along an ignoramus as an expert."

— The Talmud

One no-trump has been described as the contract for the connoisseur, and on this deal from the 2008 Lederer Invitation Trophy, Ian Pagan justly won the best-played-hand award for an unusual but well thought-out play.

It looked as if South would probably go down in one no-trump on a club lead, as the textbook play in diamonds (cashing the king and finessing the jack on the second round) only makes six tricks. (If declarer finesses the jack on the first round, he can recover if he guesses which defender began with four cards.)

However, Pagan looked more deeply into the position on the normal club-two lead, won in dummy. West had led from a broken club suit, and a four-card one at that, on an auction that would typically call for a major-suit lead, or so he surmised. Surely, therefore, West was either 3-3-3-4 with four clubs, or had four diamonds.

Declarer backed his judgment by playing a diamond to the ace and running the diamond jack on the next round, thereby collecting three diamond tricks in due course and coming to seven tricks in all.

This produced a deserved swing, as North had opened a strong no-trump in the other room. Now South could hardly do less than invite game, and in fact he elected to drive all the way to three no-trump, down three.

ANSWER: Given that everyone will lead a spade (won't they?), the issue is whether to lead the spade queen or a low one. The spade queen will gain if dummy has a doubleton and declarer three spades to the king with the 10 in one hand or the other. A low spade will work if partner has the doubleton 10 or doubleton king, and also if declarer has four spades facing a doubleton king, so it is the better play. The deal comes from Krzysztof Martens' "University of Defence: Opening Leads."
