

Nuclear plant plans progress

Elmore County to draft comprehensive-plan changes

By Nate Poppino
Times-News writer

The gears are ever-so-slightly moving again on a proposal to build a 1,600-megawatt nuclear power plant near Hammett.

Elmore County's Planning and Zoning Commission voted 4-3 Wednesday evening to begin amending the county comprehensive plan and remove conflicts with the rezoning application for the nuclear plant, to be developed by Alternate Energy Holdings Inc.

That vote now launches a series of workshop sessions focused on plan changes, followed by public hearings, according to a release sent out by county Growth and Development Director Alan Christy.

Workshops to draft an amendment are tentatively scheduled for 6:30 p.m. both Dec. 9 and Jan. 13 at the American Legion Hall in Mountain Home. P&Z will then hold at least one public hearing on the amendment. County commissioners will make the final decision on any changes.

The decision keeps the proposed plant in play in a county AEHI officials recently said wasn't moving fast enough for them. On Thursday evening, in fact, Payette County's P&Z was set to hear public testimony regarding a comprehensive-plan change proposed by AEHI for a possible reactor there.

AEHI applauded the Elmore P&Z decision in its own press release, noting that it will continue to proceed with both plant proposals.

"We welcome Wednesday's vote as a favorable sign that Elmore County is committed to making sure that its comprehensive plan is used to facilitate growth, not obstruct it," AEHI CEO Don Gillispie stated.

The vote came after the Elmore P&Z reviewed a staff report on conflicts between AEHI's rezone request and the current comprehensive plan — including language limiting heavy-industrial zones to an area along Simco Road. No public testimony

County residents slam Bliss wastewater plan

By Nate Poppino
Times-News writer

Voters found it a fantastic idea.

For nearly $7 million — paid for largely through loans and grants from the federal stimulus act — the roughly 250 residents of Bliss will receive an upgraded wastewater system and can stop relying on septic tanks and small ponds.

But the planned location for the town's new wastewater lagoons — which lies outside Bliss city limits — has angered a number of Gooding County residents, leading to a tort claim and increased public scrutiny of an environmental study of the project.

The plastic-lined lagoons, designed to meet state standards, would be placed on land just southeast of Bliss near the Snake River Canyon rim, currently owned by Gooding County Commission Chairman Tom Faulkner.

"I just think it's good for the city of Bliss," said Faulkner, who has owned the land for three years. "That's why I've been supportive of it."

J-U-B Engineers and Region IV Development are helping the town through the process, while U.S. Department of Agriculture Rural Development, the Idaho Department of Environmental Quality and U.S. Army Corps of Engineers are overseeing the environmental review.

Critics of the plan generally fall in two categories: Faulkner's immediate neighbors are concerned about their property values and other side effects of living next to the waste lagoons, while residents in the canyon along River Road worry leaks in the liner will poison the springs they use for drinking water, aquaculture and other purposes.

Some, such as Bernard Saul, are upset enough that they're filing a tort claim against the city, county and anyone else they could think of. Saul told the Times-News this week that the claim will allow residents to pursue court actions later on should the plan go forward.

Saul's home sits 200 feet from the site and he used to farm the land under a long-term lease. He said the site is full of sinkholes that would lead to holes in the liner. It's also within 500 feet of a massive landslide that carried 100 acres of land into the Snake River in 1993. Core tests ordered by the town largely tested spots outside of the lagoon perimeter and avoided rocky ground to make the data look good, he alleged.

Glenn and Shelley Frederickson own land on two sides of Faulkner's and have already decided to move due to worries about possible odor and other issues from the lagoons. Shelley Frederickson alleged Bliss officials even threatened to

Judge to rule in patient abuse case

By Andrea Jackson

David Knutsen is the victim of an overly broad law, and an indictment charging him with sexual abuse of a vulnerable adult patient at St. Luke's Canyon View Behavioral Health should be dismissed, according to his lawyer.

Judge G. Richard Bevan heard three motions from Knutsen's attorney, Mike Wood, on Thursday in Twin Falls.

Wood wants Bevan to dismiss the indictment against Knutsen, suppress testimony in the case and deem the charges against him unconstitutional.

After a three-hour hearing Thursday on Wood's motions, Bevan said he would write a decision "in due course."

Meanwhile, the 29-year-old Knutsen, a convicted sex offender, faces trial on Jan. 30, 2010. He was indicted March 25 for four counts of sexual abuse of a vulnerable

Deputy credited with saving life of stranded accident victim

By Laurie Welch
Times-News writer

BURLEY — A Cassia County sheriff's deputy's honed intuition and concern saved the life of a Virginia man stranded for 15 hours in frigid weather, the man's family said.

Cassia County Senior Patrolman Eric Nebeker was sent to the scene of a single-vehicle rollover that happened at 7:30 p.m. on Nov. 6 in a remote stretch of Interstate 84 near milepost 254. When he arrived the next morning it was hard to tell how long the gold Toyota Camry had been there and just what had happened to its driver.

Ralph E. Stine, 79, had been on a trip to see family in Washington and was driving from his home in Windsor, Va., only 10 days after having heart surgery, when he lost control of the car, which went over a cement barrier and landed on its top, 30 feet down a ravine.

was taken, but commissioners held “a great deal of discussion” before the vote; the Payette County application was not mentioned at all, staff told the Times-News on Thursday.

The three commissioners in the minority said they did not want to change the plan and were concerned about effects on the county budget. The P&Z could have also recommended against any changes or held a public hearing on the matter before voting, but did not.

The Snake River Alliance, long a critic of AEHI's plans, argued Thursday that the vote did not actually move the nuclear plant forward. The SRA said commissioners just wanted to examine possibilities for future development.

The nuclear watchdog group also attacked one commissioner, K.C. Duerig, for having a conflict of interest because he spoke in support of AEHI's rezone earlier this year. The alliance stated that plan changes could benefit renewable-energy projects it supports.

know,” Nebeker said about the abandoned car.

However, Stine, who was wearing only a light sweater over two T-shirts, had crawled out the passenger's door and wandered away from the car.

During his trip east, Stine had been involved in a car crash in Kansas and one in Utah before the rollover in Cassia County.

Nebeker said he and Idaho State Police Cpl. Larry Torrix searched around the car and found no trace of the driver. But, Nebeker said there was medication in the car that he felt someone would not leave behind.

“I had a feeling — something told me it just wasn't right,” Nebeker said. “It worried me. If that were my grandfather or my father lying out there I would want someone to find him.”

Fifteen hours after the crash, Stine, who had been walking through water and waist-high grass and brush, was found about a mile from his car.

Nebeker was quick to credit the Malta Quick Response Unit, Torrix and Mini-Cassia Search and Rescue for helping locate Stine.

“I was as happy as could be when I heard Mark (Welch, commander of Mini-Cassia Search and Rescue) on the radio saying they needed an ambulance,” Nebeker said. “Because that meant he was alive.”

Nebeker said Stine was suffering from hypothermia and was immediately admitted into the Cassia County Memorial Hospital's intensive care unit.

Stine's son, Michael Stine of Clarkston, Wash., said the family owes their father's life to Nebeker's persistence and intuition.

“Eric Nebeker saved my father's life,” Michael Stine said.

adult following the alleged incidents of abuse on Jan. 30, 2009, at Canyon View in Twin Falls. As a patient, Knutsen allegedly abused the then-21-year-old female patient, who is described in court records as developmentally delayed.

“This is an ambiguous statute,” said Wood. “Even with a law degree, good luck reading it ... This is a catch-all statute.”

Wood argued Thursday that the statute prohibiting sexual abuse of vulnerable adults restricts an adult's right to engage in sexual activity. Adults are responsible for their own sexuality, said Wood, “not the state of Idaho.”

But the Twin Falls County prosecutor on the case, Suzanne Craig, disagreed, saying the felony statute is fair and protects people.

“The state may limit sexual activity,” said Craig, adding it protects people “who legitimately need to be protected. ... Children need to be protected and so do people with limited mental capacity.”

But Wood said the law isn't clear enough on defining who is a vulnerable adult.

“Is (the victim) a vulnerable adult?” he asked. “You can't tell who you should stay away from.”

Wood said that Knutsen has “very clear and long-term cognitive disorders.”

The grand jury that indicted Knutsen was also called into question on Thursday. Wood claims it exceeded its term by 11 to 13 days.

Injured Maryland BASE jumper dies

By Ben Botkin

Times-News writer

The Maryland firefighter injured in a May 10 BASE jumping accident from the Snake River Canyon rim has died from the injuries.

Scott Doyle, a firefighter and paramedic from Montgomery County, Md., suffered a serious head injury following a “line twist” when his parachute opened in a jump along the Jerome County side of the rim near Blue Lakes Country Club.

Jerome County Sheriff Doug McFall said he was told Wednesday that Doyle had been taken off of life support and died.

Doyle died Wednesday morning at his parents' home in Berkley Springs, W.Va., said Scott Graham, assistant chief of Montgomery County Fire and Rescue Service.

“Scott was an extremely well-rounded firefighter in his experience and his contribution to the fire service,” Graham said in an interview with the Times-News.

He had served on the fire service for close to 10 years, Graham said, adding that he helped found the Montgomery County Pipes and Drums Band, which does bagpipe music in ceremonies.

McFall, whose agency responded to the accident, said Doyle had received a head injury in the accident.

In his jump, Doyle had struck the cliff three times, injuring his head despite wearing a helmet. The accident knocked him unconscious.

Stephanie Doyle, Doyle's wife, has posted news about her husband on a blog with updates about him. In her last post, she wrote that Doyle died peacefully, “surrounded and loved by those closest to him.”

In another post, she thanked the efforts of firefighters in Idaho and Maryland for helping her and her husband.

Manning improves after Ft. Hood shooting

Times-News

The family of Army Staff Sgt. Shawn Manning said Wednesday that he continues to improve after sustaining six gunshot wounds at Fort Hood, Texas, on Nov. 5.

Manning, who grew up in Jerome, was the first victim of the worst mass shooting to occur at a U.S. military base. It left 13 dead and many more wounded at the post's Soldier Readiness Center.

Manning celebrated his 34th birthday with his family Sunday at Brooks Army Medical Center on Fort Sam Houston in San Antonio.

The Army moved him the day before from Seton Medical Center in Round Rock, Texas, where he was hospitalized for about a week.

Manning's sister, Kym Lott, of Twin Falls, said her brother was in good spirits for his birthday and thankful to celebrate with his family.

“This birthday had a special meaning for all of us. We enjoyed a day with him and even had some laughs,” she wrote.

A transfer is anticipated in the near future to Madigan Hospital at Fort Lewis, Wash., 10 minutes from his home. Lott said doctors hope Manning will make a full recovery within three months.

Manning and his wife, Autumn, live in Lacey, Wash. He was born in Twin Falls, raised mostly in Jerome and graduated from Buhl High School.

Manning's family has established an account for donations in response to calls from people asking how they could help. Because flowers and gifts could not be transported home for Manning, his family is requesting that anyone wishing to help may make a donation by visiting any Wells Fargo Bank branch.

take 10 acres from her through eminent domain for one of the lagoon setbacks.

“None of us are against Bliss getting a new sewer,” she said, arguing the town could have looked at federal land. “The location choice is what has all of us up in arms.”

Feedback received as part of the environmental review included comments signed by 19 residents along River Road, questioning everything from odor and property values to the quality of the liners used for what their letter calls a “cesspool.”

The town and project developers are preparing a response to the public comments that will be reviewed by the state and federal agencies before release, possibly next week. Carleen Herring with Region IV Development said the pending tort claim means she can't say much about the neighbors' concerns. But she did say the eminent-domain accusation isn't an issue — the setbacks won't need to extend to the Fredericksons' land. Bliss Mayor Laura Pulse could not be reached this week for comment.

Some critics, including River Road resident Connie

Flinders, have even questioned whether Faulkner bought the land just to make money by selling it to Bliss.

But Faulkner disputed such accusations and said he thinks the project would attract critics no matter where it would be. The land has yet to even be appraised; city officials could not confirm Thursday how much they've budgeted to buy it.

Grant

Tom Mikesell, wasn't feeling so sure about attaching the county's name to the effort last week after a county resident told him the district may not comply with state statute.

Mikesell said at a public hearing Nov. 12 that he wasn't sure the district complies with a law requiring fire districts that overlap county boundaries to have board members from each county. Rock Creek covers seven families in Cassia County.

The commissioners conferred with the Idaho Attorney General's Office before Thursday's meeting and said that even the state attorneys thought the current statute could be interpreted two ways. Language about county representation can be found in a section about forming a district, but not in another section about annexing new territory across county borders.

All three commissioners said they still have concerns about some aspects of the application, mainly that the short time frame kept them from reviewing it more closely. But they unanimously approved allowing Urie to sign off on the application and naming Region IV Development as the grant administrator.

“I want to support the district in any way, and this is it,” Mikesell said.

Mikesell urged the fire district to work with its state association to get the Legislature to change the statute. And the county commissioner also said he has some issues with the way the district plans to borrow money — approaching a judge for permission to take on $1.47 million in debt — that he'll bring up sometime in the future.

But for now, the district has what it needs, one week after the potential obstacle took firefighters by surprise. Fire Chief Mike Hendricks said an attorney is already working on possible statute changes, and that he's pleased to be able to move on.

“I'm glad they chose to do what they did,” he said of the commissioners.

Rupert's teen orator

So now we know who's responsible for Lou Dobbs. It's the American Legion.

Before announcing his resignation from CNN last week, the Rupert-bred commentator told the Legion that his experience with its nationwide oratorical contest at Minico High School shaped both his world view and choice of career.

Dobbs, now 64, was 1961 Idaho state champion as a sophomore.

"The discussion was 'individual rights and responsibilities.' That experience was fundamental to my ability to communicate in public. It gave me an opportunity to think more deeply and to express those rights and those responsibilities. It's been an element of my life throughout my life. I never think about rights or privileges without thinking about responsibilities."

Dobbs, who later founded the Web site space.com, became a star-gazer in Rupert, he said.

ITD hires new director

By Ben Botkin
Times-News writer

The Idaho Transportation Department has a new director, just days after the former director sued the state agency over her firing.

Brian Ness, who comes from the Michigan Department of Transportation for the $160,000-a-year job, enters the agency during a time of public dispute between Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter and former ITD director Pamela Lowe. On Thursday, the same day Ness' hiring was announced, Otter hammered Lowe.

"In the end, despite her claims, Pam was ineffective and lost the faith and confidence of the board, my office and many in the Legislature," Otter said on Thursday.

Lowe has filed a lawsuit against ITD and its board members, alleging she was fired because she refused to yield to political pressure from Otter's office to not reduce a contract with two companies that are major campaign contributors to the governor. She also alleges that she was fired because of her gender.

Lowe, for her part, said in an interview with the Times-News that Otter never conveyed that sentiment to her directly or through any intermediaries.

"If the governor really felt this way, I don't know why he would not tell the board when I was there and had an opportunity to respond," Lowe said, adding that the transportation board never indicated any concerns and always gave her "nothing but positive reviews."

Ness, picked by the Idaho Transportation Board from 12 finalists among 126 applicants, began working for Michigan in 1980 and held various engineering and management jobs. Most recently, he was the region administrator for Michigan's Lower Peninsula, where he oversaw 250 employees in a 24-county region.

In an interview with the Times-News, Ness said Michigan has similarities to Idaho.

"It's a state where the citizens really pride themselves on the natural resources and the natural beauty," he said.

Ness said Idaho's greatest transportation need is its declining revenue base on federal and state levels.

In Michigan, the Grant Anticipation Revenue Vehicle bond program is used as another tool for road construction, while Idaho's approach has targeted specific projects that fall under the program, Ness said.

He officially starts his new job Jan. 11, but will meet with legislators in December.

Rep. Wendy Jaquet, D-Ketchum, said she was pleased that the board picked someone with a strong transportation background.

"There's a real need for safe highways and a real lack of funding," she said.

Rep. Leon Smith, R-Twin Falls, agreed.

"He's certainly got his challenges to try to raise some revenue so that they can get our road system and our bridge system back in the condition they need to be," said Smith, a member of the house transportation committee.

QUOTE

“Now it’s America’s turn, and this will not be a short debate.”
— Sen. Mitch McConnell, R-Ky., after Majority Leader Harry Reid unveiled the Senate health care reform bill

EDITORIAL

Will Democrats concede statewide offices to GOP?

The last Democratic nominee for governor, Idaho Falls newspaper publisher Jerry Brady, announced his candidacy on March 25, 2005 — 19 months before Election Day.

The most recent Democratic nominee for the U.S. Senate, Larry Larocco, filed for the November 2008 election in April 2007.

And Jana Jones, the Democrat who lost to Republican Tom Luna for superintendent of public instruction three years ago, proclaimed her candidacy 12 1/2 months before votes were cast.

It’s now 11 1/2 months before Election Day 2010. If Democrats are to mount any more than a token challenge to Republican Gov. C.L. “Butch” Otter, GOP Sen. Mike Crapo, Luna and other statewide elected officials, it’s time they stepped forward.

Granted, it’s not easy to recruit Democratic candidates for statewide office in ruby-red Idaho, but the political climate would indicate Otter, at least, is vulnerable.

It’s been a storm-tossed 34 1/2 months in office for Idaho’s governor, who’s had to battle the worst economy in 70 years as well as other Republicans in a reassertive Legislature. His major initiatives — including beefing up Idaho’s transportation funding and raising Idaho’s gross domestic product to $60 billion — have fallen far short.

Otter has infuriated state employees, angered many GOP-leaning taxpayers and alienated educators, especially in higher education.

The chief executive of the most Republican state in the nation received a wobbly 47 percent favorable rating in a poll by GOP pollster Greg Smith in June, and that was before he lopped $100 million out of the state’s budget.

Logic would indicate that Democrats might sense an opening.

Not so far, and we’re getting down to cases. As of Sept. 1, Otter had nearly $118,000 in cash in his campaign coffers — a significant head start in fundraising.

The absence so far of any serious Democratic challenger reflects in part a growing realization that if the party is to make a comeback in Idaho, it must concentrate on county and legislative races first. And while it makes sense that any Democrat would be intimidated by Crapo’s $2.5 million war chest, state Treasurer Ron Crane had just $8,819 in campaign cash according to his midyear report with the secretary of state. Luna had $3,621, Attorney General Larry Wasden $1,019 and Comptroller Donna Jones $568. Those aren’t daunting numbers.

If Democrats are to credibly make the case that Republicans are mismanaging Idaho’s financial crisis, they need to contest some statewide races with someone besides placeholders. And they’d better start soon.

Why the GOP won’t change the subject

Perhaps you’ve long believed that extremist Islamic terrorism poses the greatest danger to America. Well, the Republicans wish to disabuse you of that notion.

Dick Polman

House GOP leader John Boehner declared the other day that health-care reform is actually “the greatest threat to freedom that I’ve seen in the 19 years I’ve been in Washington” — an enlightening assertion, since I’d foolishly figured that the piloting of a plane full of innocents into the Pentagon wall had constituted the greatest assault on freedom in Washington. Call me crazy, but I’d assumed that al-Qaeda scored higher on the fright meter than the prospect of Americans getting the same health protections that are common everywhere else in the democratized world.

Worse yet, real health reform hinges on a proposal that Republicans call “a stunning assault on liberty.” They’re incensed about the so-called “individual mandate,” the idea that virtually all Americans should be required to carry health insurance. Republicans see this mandate as an unconstitutional curb on personal freedom, arguing in essence that Americans have the inalienable right to be uninsured; in the words of Sen. Charles Grassley, R-Iowa, “Individuals should maintain their freedom to choose health-care coverage, or not.”

Republicans often have been quite successful in political disputes when they invoke words like freedom and liberty, which pack an emotional wallop. But there is also something called the social compact, the notion that the American community is strengthened if everybody pitches in. That’s where the health-care mandate comes in.

It’s simple, really: An effective, affordable insurance program spreads the risks. If only sick and high-risk people sign up for health insurance, coverage will be too costly for many purchasers. But if virtually all healthy people are compelled to sign up, premiums will be cheaper across the board and there will be more money in the till for the sick folks who truly need costly care.

What’s ironic is that many Republicans in the past have agreed with this inescapable logic. They were for the mandate before they were against it.

Earlier this year, Grassley told Fox News that there wasn’t “anything wrong” with a mandate. Just as motorists are required to carry auto insurance, he said, “the principle then ought to lie the same way for health insurance.” At least seven other Republican senators have spoken favorably of such a requirement (South Dakota’s John Thune: “There are good arguments on behalf of getting everybody into the pool”), and 2012 presidential candidate Mitt Romney made it a centerpiece of his health insurance overhaul in Massachusetts.

When Boehner declared the mandate to be the most unconstitutional thing in his whole life, he was presumably referring to the Constitution’s commerce clause, which says that Congress has the power “to regulate commerce ... among the several states” — in other words, economic issues — but certainly says nothing about requiring Americans to buy health insurance or any other product.

The problem for Republicans, however, is that the high court has long given the commerce clause an expansive reading, and allowed the feds to regulate all kinds of behavior.

To cite the most famous example, the landmark ‘64 Civil Rights Act invoked the commerce clause in order to bar whites from discriminating against blacks, even though the core issue was not economic. The court was fine with that. The court has overturned only two commerce-clause cases since 1935, as even mandate opponents grudgingly acknowledge, which is why Obama spokesman

Robert Gibbs was correct on Oct. 28 when he said, “I don’t believe there’s a lot of case law that would demonstrate the veracity” of the GOP’s position.

It would be tough for the Republicans’ lawyers to argue in court that an insurance mandate falls outside the commerce clause — given the reality that health-care costs have a major impact on economic commerce. In fact, the Republicans have repeatedly made that link, by complaining about how the Democrats are seeking to restructure “one sixth of the economy.”

But for the GOP, this is all fertile rhetorical territory. Even if health reform ultimately fails, they can stoke conservative base turnout for the 2010 congressional races by recounting the Democrats’ “unconstitutional” attempt to require health insurance and thus infringe on freedom and liberty. The mandate is hardly a threat akin to al-Qaeda, but there’s ample red meat in the argument that Americans resent being told what to do.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Crime map helps public know where to be extra watchful

Cheers to the Times-News. Thank you for adding a layer of awareness that increases security for all of us.

Two weeks ago in broad daylight, my neighbor’s home was burglarized on a very quiet street. It certainly makes the rest of us more alert and diligent in trying to prevent crime because we are aware of their situation.

Your map will allow more citizens the opportunity to know what is going on around our city and, in turn, hopefully become part of a solution as the police cannot be everywhere. It is up to each of us not to live in fear but to be observant to what is happening around us each day.

Thanks again for this great addition to the paper.

Bruins played 40 lbs. heavier than their playing weight

Kudos to the Twin Falls High School Bruins football team and coaching staff — third place in state 4A is nothing to be sneezed at, especially for a football program on the rebound.

The 2009 edition of the Bruins was outsized in many of its contests but never outguttled. If a competitive heart is one of the keys to winning, then the Bruins played 40 pounds heavier than their playing weight.

The performance of the young

Bruins this year is a sign of good things to come under the tutelage of head coach Allyn Reynolds and his coaching staff. Reynolds, a man of great faith, has instilled a winning attitude into the Bruins that will hold them in good stead for years to come, both on the playing field and in real life.

My hat goes off to Allyn Reynolds and the 2009 Twin Falls Football Bruins.

U.S. war effort in Afghanistan is more futile than Vietnam War

Afghanistan, according to my computer, has an abundance of undeveloped metal deposits including gold, silver, copper, zinc, iron ore, uranium, coal, chromite, talc, barite, sulfur, lead and significant quantities of petroleum and natural glass. China has developed one of its copper deposits.

It has a snow-covered mountain that is twice as high as any peak in the Sawtooths supplying many rivers with water.

It has an illegal drug industry that brings in a river of gold because we refuse to gain control by legalization. Drug lords create sales outlets, age no problem, on our street corners in America. We are shoveling billions to them on a war when they have no government or common language. Our contractors building schools and infrastructure have to pay protection money to keep from having their workers killed. There is an office in Kabul where contractors go to pay their bribes. Capone never had it so good.

There is an old saying that those who refuse to learn from history are condemned to relive it. The fatcats are scooping in the cash. They will do their best to keep us snowed, along with our many friends, with false pride.

Who would continue to waste our youth on a cause that our generals say is unwinnable? Who can surrender? No one has control of the country that has been in a civil war continually since 1970. We do not have a general who is willing to give a time table on the conclusion of this disaster. This war is even more foolish than Vietnam and more destructive to our welfare.

Support our troops. Bring them home!

Don’t pass it on! Cussing is hazardous to little ears

I think that people should not cuss because it’s a bad influence to kids and people around them. If they cuss, then some little kid will hear them and think that it is OK to use that kind of language. So I think people should not cuss in front of kids.

Temporary tax hike is better than loss of core services

Idaho's revenue system is in big trouble. There are vital services that we must support — public schools, higher education, public safety, health care and other safety net services for the working poor. However, state revenues have not met levels expected when the budget was set for fiscal 2010. At the end of September, Gov. Otter declared another budget holdback of 4 percent — almost $100 million. We're headed for a train wreck in fiscal 2011.

Jobs for Idaho citizens will lead us back. This won't happen immediately. Meanwhile, we must act responsibly. Consider these problems with respect to building a budget for fiscal year 2011:

- Even with holdbacks and cuts, we are projected to be $52 million short of having enough money to pay our bills for the remainder of fiscal 2010.
- Twenty-three Idaho school districts already have declared financial emergencies and 15 districts and three charter schools are operating on a four-day week. The budget request prepared by the state Department of Education in September would maintain current operations and pay for growth in student numbers. Currently,

READER COMMENT
Rep. Shiley Ringo and Judith Brown

it would take all public school rainy-day funds and stimulus money plus $122 million of general fund money to pay for it.

- The National Center for Public Policy and Higher Education already gives Idaho an "F" for affordability of public colleges and universities. A bare-bones budget for higher education requires the remaining stimulus funds plus $18 million.

In times like these, the case load for Health and Welfare services grows. The department must function with $12 million less because of holdbacks. But things may get worse. The enhanced federal matching rate for Medicaid is set to expire in January 2011. State leaders must get busy convincing Congress to extend the higher matching rate. Otherwise, the state will be left holding the bag for some $94 million in fiscal 2011.

- The Department of Correction, having furloughed employees and held too many positions vacant this year, is requesting $20 million to adequately protect the public.

These approximations show a need for $224 million new money for fiscal year 2011. We expect state revenues to grow, but probably not in time to meet this crisis. These sources available: $134 million in unspent reserve funds and $14.1 million in unspent stimulus monies.

We believe core services must be maintained, and failure to act would be irresponsible. When faced with a similar situation in 2003, then-Gov. Kempthorne said: "We have cut the fat ... and we cut into the muscle. None of us were elected to eliminate core services we provide our citizens."

We think the responsible thing to do is to face the challenge and find a solution. The recovery has begun but will take time. Meanwhile, as the state's economic engine builds momentum, we need a temporary source of revenue to maintain our commitments to the people of Idaho. Yes ... we recommend a temporary tax increase.

Many have suggested eliminating some of the 120-odd tax exemptions. While this should be done, it cannot be done quickly, and we need a quick, short-term fix. Raising the sales tax would burden those who are unemployed or struggle with low-paying jobs. That leaves the income tax.

A temporary income-tax surcharge would provide the solution we seek. According to the Division of Financial Management, a modest 5 percent state income tax surcharge for those with taxable income exceeding $50,000 would generate about $44 million per year.

Raising revenue temporarily as we begin to come out of the deepest recession since the Great Depression is sound judgment. We believe a temporary tax increase can be less harmful to families and less damaging to the state's economy than the alternative: deep cuts in vital services.

Shirley Ringo, D-Moscow, has represented Latah County in the Idaho House of Representatives since 2003. Judith Brown is a Moscow economist and former director of the University of Idaho's Center on Budget and Tax Policy. She ran unsuccessfully for the Legislature as a Democrat in 2008.

Palin could be a force to be reckoned with

I'm sure I would like Sarah Palin if I got the chance to meet her. We share many things in common. She is still married to her first spouse, as am I. She has a Down syndrome son. I have a brother with Down syndrome. We share the same faith and we both like the outdoors. She is conservative on economic and social issues, and so am I.

In her new book, "Going Rogue," Palin complains about her running mate's handlers, whom she says kept her from being herself. I have similar complaints. Those handlers also kept me from interviewing her. The handlers are long gone, of course, but still I cannot get close to her.

I could either play the victim, or move on. I choose to move on. But before I do, the Palin phenomenon — for that is what it is because her celebrity flows singularly from John McCain's choice of her as a running mate — offers an opportunity for conservatives to choose their path to the future. Will it be a path of the angry and disenfranchised outsider, or will it be something of substance that produces triumphs in both politics and policy?

The victim thing is getting old. Conservatives have a significant presence in virtually every venue they like to denounce. That includes government (though not this one) and especially the media. Talk radio rules and the rulers are conservatives. Fox News Channel dominates the ratings. The conservative presence in academia lags, but there are universities that do not revise American history and mock religious values. Movies? There are some with solid conservative principles, such as Sandra Bullock's latest film, "The Blind Side." Will conservatives go see it, or are they more comfortable denouncing "Hollywood"? How about reinforcements for those conservatives already "making it" in the mainstream media?

In her interview with Oprah Winfrey, the queen of talk asked the queen of politics about the famous Katie Couric interview. I thought Couric gave her ample opportunity to reveal herself and to let viewers see if there was substance behind Palin's attractive exterior. Couric tried to find out what shapes Palin's worldview and what she reads. Palin couldn't name a single publication. Oprah gave her another chance, but she never followed up to ask about books or a newspaper from which she gets information, ideas and inspiration.

It is true that conservatives are often asked questions that are never asked of liberals and in ways that seem condescending and superficial. But that is an opportunity to give an answer that can skewer the questioner while making the point you wish to make.

Do I wish Palin had more intellectual depth like Jeane Kirkpatrick, Ronald Reagan's United Nations U.S. ambassador? Of course. But that can be developed if she gets serious about it. Because of her notoriety she can surely command the best and the brightest tutors.

Victimization plays well with the conservative base and that's a problem. If conservatives don't rise from the muck of feeling excluded, disrespected, ignored and mocked, they will continue to suffer all of these things. There is nothing like proving the worth of your ideas to put the mockers in their place.

Sarah Palin is a force the Republican establishment must reckon with. She has energized a sizable portion of the GOP base. If the party ignores that base and nominates another candidate in 2012 who is part of the inside-the-beltway crowd, it could lose. And that would be a double tragedy — for the GOP and the country — as President Obama keeps giving Republicans issues that make a conservative agenda far more attractive than the hard-left one he is attempting to impose on the country.

Palin's optimism is refreshing. If she can sharpen her intellect, in three years she won't be mocked; she will be feared.

S.V. Co. offers free gondola rides Saturday

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

SUN VALLEY — The sleek Porsches parked in Sun Valley Resort lots finally have some competition on the mountain — the resort's new gondola.

It sails quietly over Douglas fir, climbing 1,928 feet up Bald Mountain in 6 1/2 minutes while offering 360-degree views of the Wood River Valley.

The gondola will usher in a new age for Sun Valley Co., in which passengers will follow heated pavers to a refurbished Roundhouse Restaurant and a view of the snowcapped Pioneer Mountains as the resort's slopes await.

"It'll change the way skiers ski because those who aren't very good skiers will be able to go to Seattle Ridge without having to go to the top of the mountain," said Peter Stearns, Sun Valley's mountain manager. "And skiers will be able to ride the gondola down at the end of the day if they're tired."

The gondola's 56 eight-passenger cabins will be pressed into service at 8:30 a.m. Thanksgiving Day, when the resort marks the start of its 74th ski season by ferrying passengers to the Roundhouse for its inaugural First Tracks continental breakfast buffet.

But skiers and non-skiers alike can take the gondola for a free ride on Saturday when the resort holds its Gondola 'Ganza and Winter Expo from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. at River Run Plaza.

A ribbon-cutting ceremony will be held at 11 a.m. and Resort Owners Earl and Carol Holding plan to take the first ride.

Free rides will be offered the public from 11:15 a.m. to 2 p.m., while a free snowshoe/foot race will take place from River Run Plaza to the gondola's top terminal at 11:15 a.m.

The event will include raffles and prizes, snow-making and lift evacuation demonstrations, a chance for people to climb aboard Sun Valley's snow cats, free cocoa and cider and "tastes of the mountain" prepared by Sun Valley's chefs. Snow Park Technologies will set up rails and boxes for skiers and snowboarders to try as a sneak peak at the new Jib Park that will be set up this year on Dollar Mountain.

"There's going to be a lot of energy," said Jack Sibbach, Sun Valley's marketing director. "We were in Boise last weekend and a lot of people said, 'I'm coming up for it.' And we'll be at the CSI Ski Swap this weekend so I expect to get people from Twin Falls."

Sun Valley Co.'s Gondola 'Ganza and Winter Expo will be held from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday at River Run Plaza. Highlights include:
11 a.m. — ribbon cutting
11:15 a.m. — snowshoe/foot race to top terminal
11:15 a.m. to 2 p.m. — free gondola rides
After Saturday, gondola tickets for non-skiers cost $20 for adults or $15 with purchase of a $15 First Tracks breakfast ticket at River Run Lodge, and $10 for children under age 12.

"The first turns of the season are so good," he said. "I can't wait for Sun Valley to start up the lifts."

Staffing companies go head-to-head

Gem State Staffing claims ex-manager used confidential information to start competing firm

By Joshua Palmer
Times-News writer

Gem State Staffing LLC alleges that four of its employees and a former manager took confidential information from the company to start a competing business.

According to a copy of a complaint filed in Twin Falls County 5th District Court on Monday, Joe Visser allegedly used “client lists from Gem State Staffing” to start his own staffing company that was doing business as Magic Valley Staffing LLC. It also alleges that Stan Visser, brother of Joe Visser and a former employee at Gem State, asked some Gem State employees to sign contracts that excluded confidentiality clauses. Gem State claims the clauses were intentionally omitted so that Joe Visser could hire the employees for his own staffing business without fear of breaching a fiduciary agreement. It also alleges the original copies of employee contracts that included the confidentiality clause were taken or destroyed by Stan Visser or Joe Visser. Neither Stan Visser, nor Joe Visser, could be reached Thursday. Laird Stone, an attorney representing the Vissers and

Magic Valley Staffing, said Gem State has no case. “There has been no breach of contract, and Stan Visser remains a partner with Gem State Staffing,” Stone said. However, the complaint filed with the court stated that Stan and Joe Visser were fired in November. It also stated that three other employees resigned between October and November, and were later hired as employees of Magic Valley Staffing. According to the complaint, Stan Visser was hired by Gem State Staffing in 2001 and served as the company’s Chief Operations Officer. Gem State is seeking a trial and unspecified compensation for damages “arising out of the civil conspiracy.” Joshua Palmer may be reached at jpalmer@magic-valley.com

Foreclosures hitting more people with prime loans

By Alan Zibel
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — A rising proportion of fixed-rate home loans made to people with good credit are sinking into foreclosure, adding to concerns about the strength of the economic recovery. Driven by rising unemployment, such loans accounted for nearly 33 percent of new foreclosures last quarter. That compares with just 21 percent a year ago, when high-risk subprime loans made during the housing boom were the main reason for default. At the same time, the proportion of homeowners with a mortgage who were either behind on their payments or in foreclosure hit a record-high for the ninth straight quarter. The Mortgage Bankers Association’s report Thursday suggests the housing market and broader recovery could be thwarted by the continuing surge in home loan defaults, especially as the unemployment rate keeps rising. Lost jobs, rather than the shady loans made during the housing boom, are now the main reason homeowners fall behind on their mortgages. After three years of plunging prices, the housing market started to rebound this summer. While optimists hope the worst is over, pessimists say there are simply too many foreclosed properties that have yet to be dumped on the market and expect further price declines. About 4 million homeowners were either in foreclosure or at least three months behind on their mortgage payments as of September, according to the

Jayco, Inc. announces management changes

By Joshua Palmer
Times-News writer

Jayco, Inc. announced changes in its senior management team Thursday as part of a plan to position the company for long-term growth. Jim Jacobs has been named general manager of the Starcraft RV and Entegra Coach divisions of Jayco. David Eash will replace Jacobs as Jayco’s vice president of sales and marketing. Eash will be replaced as vice president of customer service by Marc West. “Jayco has enjoyed significant market share gains and has solidified its industry-wide leadership position,” said Derald Bontrager, Jayco’s president and chief operating officer. “It is apparent to us that there is significant upside growth potential for all our brands under the Jayco, Starcraft and Entegra Coach banners.” The management changes will not directly affect operations at the manufacturing facility in Twin Falls. Jacobs takes over the Starcraft and Entegra Coach divisions after having served as Jayco’s chief sales executive for six years. He joined the company in 2002 after serving in sales and management positions with Kit Manufacturing, Holiday Rambler

Deadline looms for laid-off workers

Workers who lost their jobs and health care benefits after Sept. 1, 2008 have until the end of this year to qualify for a 65 percent subsidy on the premiums they paid to continue health coverage after they were laid off. The subsidy is provided only for periods of health coverage beginning after Feb. 16. Laid-off workers eligible for Medicare or group health coverage through their spouse or a new employer are not eligible for the subsidy. More information on COBRA, the subsidy and how to appeal a denial of continued coverage is available at

Comparing the health care bills

The Senate's health care bill projects a larger reduction on the deficit. About 54 million people would be uninsured if a final bill is not passed.

SENATE BILL			HOUSE BILL
Cost*	$848 billion	1.02 trillion
Deficit savings*	$127 billion	104 billion
Uninsured	23 million	17 million	Projected in 2019
KEY MEASURES
Government-run plan
New federal plan would compete against private carriers. Government would negotiate payment rates.		New public plan through insurance exchanges. Government would negotiate payment rates.
Individual requirement
Most individuals required to get insurance through work, private or government plan, or pay annual fine (set at $750 by 2016). Government would help those making up to 400 percent of federal poverty level.		Those who don't get insurance face tax on 2.5 percent of income. Hardship waivers for poor.
Employer requirement
Not required to offer coverage, but medium and large companies would pay a fee if the government ends up subsidizing employees' coverage.		Employers must provide insurance to their employees or pay a penalty of 8 percent of payroll. Companies with payrolls under $500,000 annually are exempt.
How it's paid for
Fees on insurance companies, drugmakers, medical device manufacturers. Medicare payroll tax increased to 1.95 percent on income over $200,000 a year for individuals; $250,000 for couples. New 5 percent tax on elective cosmetic surgery. Cuts to Medicare and Medicaid.		$460 billion over the next decade from new income taxes on single people making more than $500,000 a year and couples making more than $1 million.
Choosing your health insurance
Self-employed people, uninsured individuals and small businesses could pick a plan offered through new state-based purchasing pools. Employees would be generally encouraged to keep their work-provided coverage.		Beginning in 2013 through a new Health Insurance Exchange open to individuals and, initially, small employers. It could be expanded to large employers over time. States could opt to operate their own exchanges in place of the national exchange if they follow federal rules.
Insurance industry restriction
Starting in 2014, no denial of coverage based on pre-existing conditions. No higher premiums allowed for pre-existing conditions or gender. Limits on higher premiums based on age and family size. Children up to age 26 can stay on parent's insurance.		Starting in 2013, no denial of coverage based on pre-existing conditions. No higher premiums allowed for pre-existing conditions or gender. Limits on higher premiums based on age.
NOTE: The Congressional Budget Office says the House bill would cost $1.02 trillion over 10 years. The net cost is $894 billion, factoring in penalties. Those figures leave out new costs. An AP analysis shows that the actual cost may be around $1.2 trillion.

GOP blasts ‘bait and switch’ health bill

By David Espo
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — Digging in for a long struggle, Republican senators and governors assailed the Democrats’ newly minted health care legislation Thursday as a collection of tax increases, Medicare cuts and heavy new burdens for deficit-ridden states.

Despite the criticism, there were growing indications Democrats would prevail on an initial Senate showdown set for Saturday night, and Majority Leader Harry Reid crisply rebutted the Republican charges. The bill “will save lives, save money and save Medicare,” he said.

The legislation is designed to answer President Barack Obama’s call to expand coverage, end industry practices such as denying coverage on the basis of pre-existing medical conditions, and restrain the growth of health care spending.

Republicans saw little to like.

“It makes no sense at all and affronts common sense,” said Sen. Judd

Sen. Tom Harkin, D-Iowa, right, greets a crowd of supporters on Capitol Hill in Washington, Thursday during a news conference on health care reform. Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid of Nevada is at left, and Senate Banking Committee Chairman Christopher Dodd, D-Conn. is at center.

Gregg of New Hampshire, one of several Republicans to criticize the measure. He added that a plan to expand Medicaid, the state-federal program for the poor, was a “bait and switch” with states as the victims.

GOP governors, meeting in Texas, agreed. “We all know a sucker play when we see one,” said Mitch Daniels of Indiana. The bill would expand the Medicaid program, which provides health care for the poor, and leave the states with part of the additional cost beginning after three years.

In the Capitol, Reid answered Republican delaying tactics with an initial test vote set for Saturday evening. A 60-vote majority is required to advance the bill toward full debate, expected to begin after Thanksgiving.

Counting two independents, Democrats control 60 Senate seats. Three moderate Democrats have been cagey about their intentions, although none of them has announced a plan to defect. Officials disclosed during the day that Reid had included in the bill a political sweetener for one of the three, Mary Landrieu of Louisiana, in the form of $100 million to help her state cover health care costs for the poor.

While the struggle was forming, there were limits. Sen. Tom Coburn, R-Okla., backed off his threat to force the 2,074-page bill to be read aloud in the Senate chamber, a move that would have eaten into the Senate’s Thanksgiving-week vacation.

Given the political stakes, there was disagreement even about the bill’s cost.

Democrats put the price tag of the 2,074-page measure at $979 billion, higher than the $849 billion figure they had cited Wednesday as the cost of expanding coverage to 31 million who now lack insurance.

Republicans calculated it at more like $1.5 trillion over a decade, and said even that was understated because Reid decided to delay implementation of some of the bill’s main features until 2014.

Pentagon to review possible warning signs of Fort Hood shootings

By Julian E. Barnes
Tribune Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — A wide-ranging review ordered Thursday by Defense Secretary Robert M. Gates will strive to answer what he called “troubling questions” raised by the shootings at Fort Hood.

The Pentagon inquiry will be conducted alongside a government-wide review ordered by President Barack Obama to examine the intelligence failures before the Nov. 5 rampage. Army Maj. Nidal Malik Hasan, a psychiatrist, stands accused of killing 13 people in the attack.

Gates expressed horror at the attack, saying there was little the department could do to ease the pain of the family members of those killed.

“All that is left for us to do is do everything in our power to prevent similar tragedies from occurring in the future,” Gates said.

The announcement of the Pentagon review came as the Senate Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs Committee began its own probe into whether intelligence, military and law enforcement officials missed important clues in detecting Hasan as a threat.

Hasan had received repeated warnings about his poor work at Walter Reed Army Medical Center, where he was a psychiatrist. He was also admonished for proselytizing after pressing others to accept his view of Islam. In the aftermath of the shootings, former co-workers and documents have suggested that Hasan had evolved into a personally troubled and radical Islamic extremist who investigators knew was in e-mail contact with a radical American-Yemeni cleric.

The Senate committee was told by Frances Fragos Townsend, who was a counter-terrorism official under President George W. Bush, that “systemic weaknesses” and failures allowed Hasan to remain free. Another expert, retired Gen. John Keane, a former Army vice chief of staff, said the military needs “clear, specific guidelines” on what constitutes Islamist extremist behavior.

Gates, at a Pentagon news briefing, avoided judgments on what may have gone wrong. But the 45-day Pentagon review will focus on several areas where the military has been criticized in the wake of the Fort Hood attack.

Gates said it will examine procedures for identifying personnel who pose a potential threat to others. It will also evaluate security on domestic military bases and assess emergency response capabilities. The probe will examine personnel policies, including discharge procedures, health assessment programs, counseling sessions and how the military handles “adverse” information about its service members.

The Pentagon investigation will be lead by Togo West, a former Army secretary, and retired Adm. Vernon Clark, the former chief of naval operations.

The Department of Defense will participate in the broader federal review, but Gates said a separate military probe is needed as well.

“It is prudent to determine immediately whether there are internal weaknesses or procedural shortcomings, in the department, that could make us vulnerable in the future, Gates said.

In launching the new review, Gates adhered to his practice of appointing former Defense officials to investigate the military’s shortcomings. Most recently, he tapped a former Defense secretary, James Schlesinger, to lead a panel on the military’s failure to properly track and secure nuclear-related material.

Each military branch will appoint officials to work with Clark and West. Gates said the Army’s investigation will be more in-depth on the question of whether procedures could have prevented the shootings.

“All of the services potentially have some of the same problems the Army is trying to deal with,” Gates said. Initial results will help shape a follow-on probe, he said.

“The whole purpose of this is to determine ... if there were lapses or problems,” Gates said.

Glitch snarls flights

Planes in air unaffected by computer outage

By Harry R. Weber and Joan Lowy
Associated Press writers

ATLANTA — For the second time in a little more than a year, a glitch at one of the two centers that handle flight plans for the nation’s air travel system set off delays and cancellations for passengers around the country.

The snarl Thursday — traced to something as simple as a single circuit board — prompted calls for more money and manpower at the Federal Aviation Administration, which has struggled without success for years to overhaul the air traffic system.

The circuit board, at an FAA center in Salt Lake City, is part of a multibillion-dollar nationwide communications network that the agency has spent years installing as part of plans to modernize air traffic control.

A government watchdog said last year that the network was over budget and plagued by outages. On a single day in 2007 alone, the failure of parts of the network was responsible for 566 flight delays.

Aviation experts are unsure whether any system that relies on the interconnectedness of computers can prevent glitches from causing havoc unless there are sufficient backup systems to handle the thousands of flight plans filed each day in the U.S.

“A good communications system should have enough redundancy that a failure shouldn’t hurt it that badly,” said Michael Ball, a University of Maryland professor who specializes in aviation operations research.

Hundreds of flights were canceled or delayed from Atlanta to Houston to Phoenix after the problem began about 5 a.m. The glitch was fixed about four hours later, but scattered delays were reported throughout the day. Planes in the air were never in danger.

While the delays were not as bad as those caused by a major winter storm, passengers — already frustrated by add-on fees for checking bags and the other hassles of everyday air travel — were miffed.

“I am sitting here at the airport for an additional three hours when I could have been sleeping in,” said Angelo Adams of Atlanta, waiting for a flight to Philadelphia.

Sisters Sharon Walker and Sheila James were taking their elderly mother, Rosa Washington, to see their other sister in St. Louis. Their 9:30 a.m. flight from Atlanta was delayed until 4 p.m.

“We were going to be there for a four-day weekend, but now it’s getting cut short,”

James said. “It’s just not a good day.”

Lawmakers in Washington pounced. Sen. Charles Schumer, D-N.Y., said the country’s aviation system is “in shambles” and the FAA needs more resources to prevent similar problems in the future.

“If we don’t deliver the resources, manpower and technology (to) the FAA it needs to upgrade the system, these technical glitches that cause cascading delays and chaos across the country are going to become a very regular occurrence,” he said in a statement.

Sen. Byron Dorgan, D-N.D., chairman of the Senate’s aviation panel, said he plans to grill FAA Administrator Randy Babbitt about the issue at a Dec. 10 hearing. Rep. Jerry Costello, D-Ill., chairman of the House aviation panel, said he has asked the transportation inspector general to investigate and report to Congress within 60 days.

Report: 20-somethings can go two years between Paps

WASHINGTON (AP) — Most women in their 20s can have a Pap smear every two years instead of annually, say new guidelines that conclude that’s enough to catch slow-growing cervical cancer.

The change by the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists comes amid a completely separate debate over when regular mammograms to detect breast cancer should begin. The timing of the Pap guidelines is coincidence, said ACOG, which began reviewing its recommendations in late 2007 and published the update Friday in the journal Obstetrics & Gynecology.

The guidelines also say:

- Routine Paps should start at age 21. Previously, ACOG had urged a first Pap either within three years of first sexual intercourse or at age 21.

- Women 30 and older should wait three years between Paps once they’ve had three consecutive clear tests. Other national guidelines have long recommended the three-year interval; ACOG had previously backed a two- to three-year wait.

Filer girl named People to People Student Ambassador

By Blair Koch
Times-News correspondent

FILER — Katelynn Lineberry is honored to have been chosen for one of 40 openings in this year's People to People Student Ambassador program.

After a competitive application, interview and evaluation process the 11-year-old homeschooled student has won half the battle. Now she just needs to raise $5,689 for the anticipated trip to England and France this summer.

To earn the money Lineberry is seeking financial sponsors. She's also earning money the old fashioned way, by working.

On Nov. 14 and 15 Lineberry sold a variety of snacks and even hand made gifts at a flea market at the Twin Falls County Fair Grounds in Filer.

"I think it will be an interesting experience," she said. "I was nominated and got through the interviewing and everything. Now I just need to get the money together."

She's already earned $2,000, said her father, Dan Lineberry.

Survey indicates potential for high usage at Buhl Boys and Girls Club

By Blair Koch
Times-News correspondent

BUHL — Boys and Girls Club of the Magic Valley officials were pleased with the results of a recent survey sent to Buhl elementary school parents.

The survey, completed by more than 200 parents, came back with "extremely positive" results, said Sam Fowler, executive director of the Magic Valley club.

"Over the years we'd always assumed support was high for getting a club up and running and now these results verify that," Fowler said.

Eighty-three percent of parents said they'd support a Buhl Boys and Girls Club and enroll their children.

"Close to 295 kids want access to a Buhl Boys and Girls Club," Fowler said. "We anticipated membership of about 300 kids, with 60-80 kids being served every day."

Getting a Boys and Girls Club built in Buhl has been considered for nearly eight years. Plans for building a clubhouse hit a snag two years ago when the Buhl School District, heading advice from its attorney, decided to put the brakes on the plan.

Those issues have been worked out and the district and club, along with the city, are working together so a clubhouse could potentially be built on a vacant lot across from Popplewell Elementary School.

The school district had to lease the land, which was once site to a school, to the city, which leased the land to the club.

"We've been taking the necessary steps with the Boys and Girls Club to get a sustainable agreement together so that it will hold up long after this board is gone," said Buhl School Board Chairman Jim Barker. "We want to do this right"

As the parties involved hammer out contract details the survey results may help capture funding needed to build a club, said club advisory board Chairwoman Marilyn Butler.

"The results could be useful for potential big donors," Butler said.

While Butler declined to say how much has been pledged or donated for the clubhouse, she said, "We're about three-fourths the way there."

"We've gotten a lot of support from the school board, City Council and business owners," Butler said. "Everything is coming together, a step at a time, and we hope to begin construction soon."

Some financial support was lost due to private donors tightening their belts during the recession but club officials remain optimistic that a clubhouse for Buhl's kids will soon be reality.

"We are very, very grateful for the contributions and support we've been given," Fowler said. "It's been fun to watch the community come together for its kids."

Shingles of the eye is painful but treatable

DEAR DR. GOTT: I am a 73-year-old female on no regular medications. I recently noticed a burning sensation on my face near my right eye. Within a day or so, my eyelid started swelling and became red and painful. I immediately called my physician and was seen that same day. I was diagnosed with shingles of the eye. The doctor gave me eye drops and pills to take every day. She said because I had come in before the infection took hold, I should expect to get better within a few weeks. Thankfully, I did, but it was painful. Could you please tell me more about this condition? Should I get the shingles vaccine?

DEAR READER: Herpes zoster ophthalmicus (HZO) is an outbreak of shingles that occurs around the eye and may involve the eye itself.

Initially, the patient may experience pain or itching for up to a week before a rash appears. The rash consists of small blisters on the forehead and around the eye on one side of the face. If the eye is involved, it often causes pain, redness and swelling of the lid, such as you experienced and may lead to permanent eye damage if left untreated. Fortunately, only 10 percent of patients with HZO develop infection in the eye rather than just around it.

The condition can be diagnosed and treated by a general practitioner or primary care physician, but he or she may be more comfortable referring care to an ophthalmologist.

Treatment is similar to that of shingles of the body. Antiviral medication is ordinarily prescribed to reduce pain and shorten the duration of symptoms. In the case of HZO, antiviral eye drops may be used in place of or in conjunction with the pills. It is also important to rest and use over-the-counter pain medication when necessary. Cool compresses applied to the area may reduce swelling, pain and the rash.

Typical cases last a few weeks.

Idaho Power pursues cheaper energy through cloud seeding

By Rocky Barker
The Idaho Statesman

BOISE — Cloud seeding once was seen similar to well divining, medicine shows and miracle healers.

But today Idaho Power Co. is investing up to $1 million to seed the clouds above Idaho’s mountains, in hopes of increasing the snowpack that holds the water that will drive the hydroelectric turbines to produce the cheapest power the company can get.

The utility is not alone. Eastern Idaho counties and businesses have put together a coalition to pay for cloud seeding in the Upper Snake River Basin. They estimate their limited efforts already have increased the snowpack there by 7 percent, about half as much as Idaho Power hopes for.

“I feel really good about it,” said Paul Romrell, a Fremont County commissioner who heads the coalition. “Our reservoirs levels are in better condition than they’ve been in for years.”

The basic technology has been around for a while. Silver iodide is sprayed into the clouds, pulling the moisture out to form ice crystals that drop and fall on the earth as snow or rain.

Boise Airport has long used cloud seeding to clear winter fog that delays flights. Farmers experimented with the technology back in the 1980s.

Venezuelan President Hugo Chavez made news recently when he called for a massive cloud seeding program to combat the record drought in his country and Cuba. China has the most extensive weather modification program in the world, with more than 35,000 people working in cloud seeding programs across the country, Business Week reports.

In the past, cloud seeding’s effectiveness for increasing precipitation was dismissed except in special cases, said Kevin Wade, Idaho Power water resource information supervisor. But scientists recognized that it was effective when it was used in mountain ranges to create snow.

That has led several Western states, including Wyoming, Nevada and Colorado, to embark on major cloud seeding efforts. Idaho Power began in 2003 after a stockholder at an annual meeting asked its leaders to study it.

Roger Fuhrman, who headed Idaho Power’s water management staff, was skeptical, but the utility put engineers CH2M Hill to work on the study.

“They convinced us this was real science and could be duplicated,” Fuhrman said.

Now Idaho Power has 10 silver iodide generators on the ground in the Payette drainage and one plane devoted to cloud seeding there. It has another 10 of the remote-controlled generators in eastern Idaho, where the coalition has 25 manually operated generators.

“The remote control generators can be fired up from a laptop in Boise,” Romrell said.

The company estimates it can increase the snowpack in the watershed above its hydro dams from 120,000 acre-feet to 250,000 acre-feet annually. That means the $1 million expenditure breaks down to about $7.70 an acre-foot.

“That varies from year to year,” Fuhrman said.

For comparison, Idaho Power pays $8 an acre-foot to buy power in the Payette Basin and more than $20 to buy water in the Upper Snake.

State budget chief moonlights in Human Resources to reduce layoffs

BOISE (AP) — Gov. C.L. “Butch” Otter’s budget chief says he’s moonlighting as state human resources administrator to help spare one job in his office from elimination.

Division of Financial Management Administrator Wayne Hammon took over interim Division of Human Resources duties on Oct. 30 when its former chief, Judie Wright, agreed to retire eight months earlier planned.

Wright isn’t going empty-handed: Human Resources is pumping $72,781 into the 30-year state employee’s pension account, to boost her retirement payments to what they would have been had she stayed until June 30, 2010.

Human Resources also must cover half of Hammon’s $116,000 annual salary for the next eight months, about $48,257.

But Hammon says all this means a net savings to Idaho of $19,658 that, when combined with other cuts he’s making, will save one budget division job previously slated for elimination.

Otter approved these changes through June, but it’s still undecided if they will be permanent, Hammon said.

Top D.C. lawyer Miller, who secured Hoffa conviction, Nixon's pardon, dies at 85

By Matt Schudel
The Washington Post

Herbert J. "Jack" Miller Jr., who led the Justice Department's war on organized crime in the 1960s and later brokered the pardon of former President Nixon and prevented the release of Nixon's White House tapes after the Watergate scandal, died Nov. 14 at Shady Grove Adventist Hospital in Rockville, Md., of renal failure after being treated for influenza. He was 85.

Miller had been one of Washington's top lawyers since the 1950s and was among the first to specialize in white-collar criminal defense. Early in his career, as chief of the Justice Department's criminal division under Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy from 1961 to 1965, he directed the successful prosecutions of Teamsters leader Jimmy Hoffa and members of organized crime families.

He once ran for lieutenant governor of Maryland as a Republican but was widely respected among both parties. His clients included Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., former Nixon Attorney General Richard G. Kleindienst and Reagan White House adviser Michael Deaver, in addition to NPR, ABC-TV and NASCAR.

While arguing high-profile cases that broke ground in constitutional law, he would occasionally handle cases in small-claims and traffic courts. (He once got his mother-in-law acquitted of speeding.)

"It really is amazing the range of things he did," said William H. Jeffress Jr., who had practiced with Miller since 1972. "He kind of pioneered the white-collar criminal defense, as we call it. He and Edward Bennett Williams really pioneered that practice in this town."

Miller began representing Nixon soon after the president resigned Aug. 9, 1974, and he continued to argue cases on his behalf for more than 20 years. Working closely with the White House and special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski, Miller was the key negotiator in arranging for Nixon's unconditional pardon by his successor, Gerald R. Ford. Nixon wanted to fight the pending corruption charges in court, but Miller convinced him that a legal battle over Watergate would not be in his or the country's best interests.

"Before President Ford would issue a pardon, he insisted that there would be an agreement that gave the U.S. control of Nixon's tapes," said Jeffress, who worked on the case with Miller.

The final arrangement sent Nixon's tapes to the National Archives, with the provision that neither Nixon nor officials at the archives could open the documents without the other's permission.

After a three-hour late-night meeting at Nixon's home in San Clemente, Calif., Miller got Nixon to sign a statement admitting he had made mistakes in dealing with Watergate. On Sept. 9, 1974, exactly one month after Nixon had resigned, Ford issued the pardon.

For years later, Miller found novel ways to fight efforts by Congress and courts to release Nixon's White House tapes. When Congress passed a law requiring Nixon to give up ownership of the tapes, Miller sued for compensation, arguing that the tapes were Nixon's private property.

To open the White House documents, Miller said, would be a "flagrant intrusion on Nixon's rights both as a citizen and as former president" and would precipitate a "freewheeling rummage" through his personal effects. In 1982, Miller won a precedent-setting 5 to 4 U.S. Supreme Court ruling that said Nixon could not be sued in civil court for his actions as president.

Other court battles went on for years and were not entirely resolved until 2000, when the complete tapes were made public — 26 years after Nixon had left office, and six years after he died.

Miller seldom spoke publicly about his role in the Nixon pardon, except to say that he admired Nixon and thought he was a brilliant man. Asked at a legal forum in Pittsburgh in 1999 whether Nixon had ever admitted outright guilt for the wrongs of Watergate, Miller replied, "If he ever said it to his attorney, the attorney would not be able to discuss it."

Artist Jeanne-Claude dies; co-created 'The Gates'

NEW YORK (AP) — Artist Jeanne-Claude, who created the 2005 Central Park installation "The Gates" and other large scale "wrapping" projects around the globe with her husband Christo, has died. She was 74.

Jeanne-Claude died Wednesday night at a New York hospital from complications of a brain aneurysm, her family said in an e-mail statement.

Mayor Michael Bloomberg said he spoke with Christo on Thursday morning and offered condolences on behalf of all New Yorkers.

"The Gates" festooned 23 miles of Central Park's footpaths with thousands of saffron drapes hung from specially designed frames.

More than 5 million people saw "The Gates," and it was credited with injecting about $254 million into the local economy.

Christo — the more famous of the duo — was saddened, the family statement said, but remains "committed to honor the promise they made to each other many years ago: that the art of Christo and Jeanne-Claude would continue." That includes completing their current installation, "Over The River, Project for the Arkansas River, State of Colorado" and "The Mastaba" a project in the United Arab Emirates.

The Colorado project — which they had done parts of on and off for decades — was born Jan. 11, 1924, in Minneapolis. After serving in the Army during World War II, he completed his undergraduate education at George Washington University and, in 1949, graduated from GWU's law school.

He began his career at the firm now called Kirkland & Ellis and, in the late 1950s, was assigned to a federal panel overseeing activities of the Teamsters Union. Miller was chosen by Robert Kennedy to lead the Justice Department's criminal division, with an emphasis on organized crime. He won a conviction in 1964 against Hoffa for jury tampering and led the successful prosecution of Bobby Baker, a Senate secretary and close Lyndon B. Johnson associate, for influence peddling.

In 1965, Miller founded the law firm of Miller, Cassidy, Larroca & Lewin, which became a training ground for top Justice Department officials, judges, trial lawyers and professors. Miller became a prominent supporter of Robert Kennedy's 1968 presidential effort, which ended when he was assassinated in June that year. Miller was a pallbearer at Kennedy's funeral.

In 1970, Miller waged a losing campaign for lieutenant governor in Maryland in his only run for public office. But political leaders routinely sought his counsel, often without publicity.

"He had highly visible clients that no one will ever know consulted him," said Jamie Gorelick, who began her career in Miller's office and was deputy attorney general under President Bill Clinton. "He probably knew more ways in and out of the White House than anyone, including the Secret Service."

Miller had a common touch that included hanging a Miller Lite sign in his office window. He adjusted the soft-drink vending machine in his office to dispense beer when a special button was pushed.

"We always joked that most of Miller's ideas were crazy, but the ones that weren't crazy were terrific — and it was our job to figure out which was which," Gorelick said Wednesday in an e-mail.

involves spanning miles of the river with woven fabric. They chose the location near Canon City because of its river rapids and access to roads and footpaths. It is expected to be realized by summer 2013 at the earliest, according to the couple's office.

Their other projects include wrapping the Reichstag in Germany, the Pont Neuf in Paris, the Kunsthalle in Bern, Switzerland and a Roman wall in Italy.

A 1991 project involved thousands of bright yellow and blue umbrellas positioned across miles of inland valleys in Japan and California.

Their projects required mammoth manpower and miles of fabric and other materials. For the umbrella project, a total of 1,880 workers were used. They recycled all materials following each project.

If you are compassionate in your approach to all tasks in life, believing that all "problems" contain valuable lessons, you will find peace of mind.

Army limits media access at Palin event at N.C. base

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The U.S. Army will allow the media limited coverage of Sarah Palin's appearance at Fort Bragg, but will bar reporters from interviewing her or her supporters on the post, officials said Thursday.

A Fort Bragg spokesman initially said the Army would ban the media from Palin's book signing next week, fearing it would turn into political grandstanding against President Barack Obama. After The Associated Press and The Fayetteville Observer protested, Col. Billy Buckner said the post would permit restricted access.

A small pool of reporters will be allowed to view and document the event but will be barred from the interviews. The public will be allowed.

Buckner said the setup will allow reporters their right to access while preventing the appearance from turning political — something that officials believe would violate policy.

"If media are present, they can capture the imagery of what's going and sort of the ambience of what's taking place," he said.

Fort Bragg, which is base for some 35,000 soldiers, does not hold many promotional events, especially not with political figures. Officials said they worried that media coverage would turn the appearance into a chance for people to express political opinions "directed against the commander in chief."

"The main reason is to stop this from turning into a political platform," said Fort Bragg spokesman Tom McCollum.

Oprah Winfrey to announce end of show

By Caryn Rousseau
Associated Press writer

CHICAGO — "The Oprah Winfrey Show," an iconic broadcast that grew over two decades into a daytime television powerhouse and the foundation of a multibillion-dollar media empire, will end its run in 2011 after 25 seasons on the air, Winfrey's production company said Thursday night.

Winfrey plans to announce the final date for her show during a live broadcast today, Harpo Productions Inc. said, bringing an end to what has been television's top-rated talk show for more than two decades, airing in 145 countries worldwide and watched by an estimated 42 million viewers a week in the U.S. alone.

A Harpo spokeswoman declined to comment Thursday on Winfrey's future plans except to say that "The Oprah Winfrey Show" will not move to cable television.

Winfrey is widely expected to start up a new talk show on OWN: The Oprah Winfrey Network, a much-delayed joint venture with Discovery Communications Inc. that is expected to debut in 2011. OWN is to replace the Discovery Health Channel and will debut in some 74 million homes.

An OWN spokeswoman declined comment Thursday.

CBS Television Distribution, which distributes "The Oprah Winfrey Show" to more than 200 markets blanketing the United States, held out hope that it could continue doing business with Winfrey, perhaps producing a new show out of its studios in Los Angeles.

"We have the greatest respect for Oprah and wish her nothing but the best in her future endeavors," the unit of CBS Corp. said in a statement. "We know that anything she turns her hand to will be a great success. We look forward to working with her for the next several years, and hopefully afterwards as well."

On Tuesday, Emily Bruns got a black eye at school.

The first-grader's parents shouldn't be worried, though. The black eye came from the "Let's Make Up Workshop" in Tami Stanley's first-grade class at Sawtooth Elementary School.

The makeup workshop was one of nine hosted this week by Missoula Children's Theatre directors Amelia Taber and Jason Studley. Topics ranged from improv with high schoolers to makeup application with kindergartners and first-graders.

'The New Music Makers'

BYU Young Ambassadors
perform in Burley

By Blair Koch
Times-News correspondent

When Brigham Young University's Young Ambassadors descend upon Burley's King Fine Arts Center they may not be greeted with a red carpet, as they were earlier this year in Finland, but the globe-trotting entourage will certainly meet with excited fans.

The Young Ambassadors will perform a program dubbed "The New Music Makers" at the King center Dec. 5, sponsored by Mount Harrison Heritage Foundation. The performing cast of 20 singer-dancers and a 10-piece band is supported by nine student technicians who handle lighting, sound and backstage support.

"The Young Ambassadors have earned a worldwide reputation for excellence. They've toured throughout the country and beyond, and it's a gift to get them here," said foundation program director Alan Hale.

"Music Makers" features music from Broadway, country hits and pop tunes combined with captivating choreography and spellbinding lighting and sound work. Listen for compositions like "Just An Old Fashioned Love Song" by Paul Williams, Stevie Wonder's "Sir Duke," Duke Ellington and Irving Mills' "It Don't Mean a Thing if it Ain't Got That Swing" and Gershwin's "I Got Rhythm."

"It's contemporary music younger people really know and enjoy," Hale said.

For Burley's Jacque Lee, the show hits closer to home. She'll likely be reminiscing about her journey as a Young Ambassador when watching the December performance.

Lee, 54, was a Young Ambassador in 1974-75. She toured the West and East coasts as well as Canada.

"BYU is a big school, and being a Young Ambassador gave me my little niche of friends," Lee said. "It was amazing to be part of such an extraordinary group."

Lee recalls early-morning rehearsals and blossoming onto the stage.

"I had sung in other groups, all through high school, but being in Young Ambassadors gave me stage experience ... it also opened doors and gave me opportunity later on in life," Lee said.

After her stint with the Ambassadors, she sang backup for other musical groups and toured with the USO.

"The whole experience impacted me in ways I'll never Since entering the world stage at Japan's Expo '70, Brigham Young University's Young Ambassadors have performed their contemporary song and dance in 56 nations. Their audiences have included the prime minister of India, the queen of Thailand and the king and queen of Jordan, BYU says.

Kate Cartwright shows off her painting of Mother Earth kissing Father Sky, created for the Second Annual Mindful Art for NAMI auction.

Art auction benefits mental illness alliance

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

KETCHUM — More than 90 square masonite boards are destined to become art on the wall and a balm for the mind.

The pieces, made by Wood River Valley artists, will be sold in a silent auction at the Second Annual Mindful Art for NAMI (the National Alliance on Mental Illness) on Dec. 13.

An opening reception for the art will be held from 6 to 8 p.m. Nov. 27 at Iconoclast Books, at Sun Valley Road and Spruce Avenue in Ketchum, as part of the city's Thanksgiving Gallery Walk.

"We tried it last year and it was such a fun event," said Sandy Hyde, a board member of the Wood River Valley chapter of NAMI. "The local artists enjoyed seeing each other's work since only a few of them have their work in galleries. And the art is quite affordable for buyers."

Kate Cartwright is among those who participated for the second time. She contributed two oil paintings; one is of Mother Earth kissing Father Sky.

"I did it last year and it felt good," said Cartwright, who started painting with oils five years ago. "I love oils. I love the smell and the fact that it's natural. And I love the history behind oils, as opposed to acrylic paints, which are more modern."

Ketchum sculptor Marjolaine Renfro also contributed a work for the second year in a row, though she normally works in sculpture. She created a three-dimensional piece she calls "Tao te ching Revisited" out of paper, beads and copper wire.

"It's a challenge for me because I'm having to go somewhere different in my head. But it's a challenge I enjoy," she said.

Ketchum artist Ralph Harris says his "Spherical Transitions" piece speaks of humans bombarded with massive amounts of information in the process of sorting it all out.

The closing gala reception will be from 4 to 7 p.m. Dec. 13, at the bookstore.

Half of the money from sales will go to the artist. The other half will go to NAMI.

Proceeds will help NAMI fight the stigma of mental illness and support the mentally ill and their families. The chapter is starting a new program this winter called "Peer to Peer," an eight-week education and support class. It also provides a free educational publication to schools and other sites and maintains a referral hot line.

One in five families is affected by mental illness, according to the World Health Organization. There are about five suicides each year in Blaine County alone, said Tewa Evans, who founded NAMI's Wood River Valley chapter in 1991.

Missoula Children's Theatre teams travel the country to host plays starring local children. This week, the pair of actor-directors is in Twin Falls to put on "The Princess and the Pea," starring 58 local children.

The week started with an audition at Valley Christian Church in Twin Falls. Almost 100 children turned up for the open audition, said planning committee member Jennifer Brizee. Roles are cast the same day, and the rest of the week is filled with evening auditions to prepare for two Saturday shows.

While the kids were in school, directors Taber and Studley filled their days with theater workshops at Magic Valley schools. Most towns they travel to ask them to host only three workshops, Taber said, so they were surprised when Twin Falls schools asked for nine.

Stanley's first-graders met Tuesday's makeup workshop with enthusiasm. When Taber asked for volunteers, almost all of the hands in the class shot up.

Four students got stage makeup: Bruns' black eye, leprechaun makeup for Ethan Gadd, old lady makeup for Kealey Alexander and clown makeup for Elizabeth Morris.

The observing students giggled, oohed and aahed over their classmates' transformations.

"It looks like she put her face in a donut!" crowed Cameron Bowen after Taber finished applying the white Theatre directors are trained to work with children from ages 5 to 18.

Kealey Alexander sports elderly makeup done by the Missoula Children's Theatre during a workshop Tuesday at Sawtooth Elementary School.

Younger kids need repetition, simple instruction, visuals and lots of breaks, Taber said. At play rehearsal, Taber and Studley use games to teach young actors theater skills. One game requires the children to stand completely still — a technique needed for "The Princess and the Pea."

"We always tie the games back to how this helps on the stage," Taber said.

It's just another tool that helps the theater company pull off a full-scale production in less than a week.

‘Finding the best in everyone’

Snake River Community Players take on ‘Best Christmas Pageant Ever’

By Erica Littlefield
Times-News correspondent

’Tis the season for spending time with family and friends. And at the Snake River Community Players’ production of “The Best Christmas Pageant Ever,” that happens both off stage and on.

Co-director Lorna Irwin said several families are taking part in the show together, and its fun, positive message is a perfect way for families to start the holidays.

Catch the fun at 7 p.m. today and Monday, and at 2 p.m. Saturday, at the Wendell High School auditorium. Tickets are $7 for adults, $6 for students and seniors, and $25 for families.

“The Best Christmas Pageant Ever” is based on the classic children’s book by Barbara Robinson, and it was the first production the Snake River Community Players did 12 years ago.

In the show, preparations for a church’s annual Christmas pageant are thrown into confusion when the director breaks her leg and can’t finish the production. The six ill-mannered Herdman children show up to church one day — just because they think there will be free snacks — and end up worming their way into the lead roles. Irwin said all the people in the show, especially the Herdmans, learn a lot about Christmas and the meaning of the season.

In the Snake River Community Players’ production of ‘The Best Christmas Pageant Ever,’ the angel choir, from left on risers, includes Tatiana Martinez, Josi Kelsey, Kiya Kelsey, Hannah Hansen, Helen Smith, Olivia Gines, Clara Nebeker and Madi Kelsey. On the floor are baby angels Elli Kelsey, Elsie Moore, Elise Kelsey and Presley Johnson.

“Most of their rehearsals dissolve into chaos, but all’s well that ends well,” Irwin said.

Co-director Kathleen Smith and her family have made “Best Christmas Pageant” an activity for the whole family. Smith’s husband, Steve, plays Bob Bradley, a father in the play. Nine of their children are also involved, from 18-year-old Chester, who runs the show from afar via phone calls. Two weeks after she was cast, Moore slipped at work and actually broke her leg. Moore had to miss about two weeks of rehearsals, and she said her injury has been an inside joke among the cast.

“Sometimes it’s a circus, but most of the time they’re pretty good,” Smith said with a laugh. “They do it because they love it, and we do it all together.”

Cast member Candice Moore and her two children, Zach, 9, and Elsie, 4, are also part of the production. Moore plays Mrs. Armstrong, the pageant director who breaks her leg and tries to manage the show from afar via phone calls. Two weeks after she was cast, Moore slipped at work and actually broke her leg. Moore had to miss about two weeks of rehearsals, and she said her injury has been an inside joke among the cast.

“It was kind of humorous,” Moore said. “It brings a whole new meaning to ‘break a leg!’”

Moore first got involved with Snake River Community Players last summer in a production of “Hello, Dolly.” Moore said having Zach and Elsie with her this time allowed her to introduce them to the theater experience.

More importantly, they’ve been able to spend time together. One of the best Christmas gifts ever.

TOUR THE TREES AT RUPERT'S FESTIVAL

By Judy Albertson
Times-News writer

Rupert has its own wonderland of decorated trees and wreaths, and they're all for sale.

Minidoka County Health Care Foundation's 2009 Caring and Sharing Christmas Festival will be Nov. 27-30 at the Rupert Civic Auditorium, 505 Seventh St., and is free to the public. This year's theme: "To Christmas With Love."

"We haven't added any new features this year, but community participation is definitely up," said Tammy Hanks, the foundation's executive director. Last year the festival earned $36,000 for the health care and local scholarships, and the goal this year is $40,000.

The Nov. 27 Festival Gala is the opening event, attended by local business men and women, friends of the foundation and others. Anyone may attend, and gala admission is free; call 436-0481, ext. 124. Those attending get first peek at the delights of the festival and first chance to purchase the creations. Catered by Thomas Cuisine, the 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. luncheon features hot and cold finger foods, fruits and vegetables, desserts and drinks.

The festival will open to the public from 3 to 10 p.m. Nov. 27, with entertainment after the lighting on the Rupert Square.

From 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. Nov. 28 is the Teddy Bear Breakfast, when children spend a morning with Santa and his elves. Admission is a new teddy bear or toy to put under the "giving tree" to be donated to the Mini-Cassia Christmas Council, or $3 per person. Children are served a breakfast treat by Santa's helpers and have opportunity for a one-on-one with Santa and a picture souvenir.

The festival will be open to the public until 8 p.m. Nov. 28, with non-stop live entertainment.

"The Teddy Bear Breakfast is always one of the highlights of the event," Hanks said.

Nov. 29, the festival is open to the public from noon to 5 p.m. Entertainment will feature church choirs and religious music.

The free Senior Social will be from 1 to 3 p.m. Nov. 30. It's an opportunity to stroll leisurely among the trees, with entertainment by schoolchildren and other performers. Light refreshments, punch and coffee will be provided. Santa will visit seniors who are young at heart. As always, the festival is wheelchair-accessible.

Local artists and students, plus a variety of musical and dancing numbers, are scheduled to appear throughout the festival.

"Where else can you get four full days of local entertainers that perform?" Hanks said.

Popular at the festival is a free drawing for a wreath created by a local artist. Entry tickets are taken throughout the event, and the winner is announced in the final hour.

Local quilt artist Cynthia Mickelsen has been providing a raffle quilt to the festival for 11 years. Tickets for this year's quilt are $1 each or six for $5.

Purchased trees will be delivered from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. Dec. 1.

Plan your float for Festival of Lights Parade

Times-News

Start making your plans to shine: Application forms are available for entries in the Festival of Lights Parade along Main Avenue in Twin Falls.

The parade, presented by the Downtown Business Improvement District, will start at 6 p.m. Dec. 4 from the parking lot at Kregel's True Value Hardware, 628 Main Ave. S., and proceed to Magic Valley High School, 512 Main Ave. N. Streets will be closed from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m.

There is no parade theme this year, organizers said. Float participants can be creative and choose their own themes for fun; of course, evening's darkness will set off lighted floats nicely. Organizers expect between 25 and 35 floats.

Their guidelines for floats include: choose family-oriented themes; no throwing candy from floats

(a walking person can hand out candy); line up in an orderly fashion; and maintain a slow, safe speed. Floats can begin to assemble at 4 p.m. at Kregel's parking lot and must be checked in by 5:45 p.m.

Deadline for float applications is Nov. 27, and the entry fee is $25. Mail a check, payable to the Business Improvement District or BID, to Miranda Henning, 3226 Longbow Drive, Twin Falls, ID 83301. Information: Henning at 421-2944 or miranda.henning@live.com.

Campbell Brothers bring ‘sacred steel’ from sanctuary to concert hall

Times-News

Start with traditional African-American gospel music, add electric steel guitar and you’ve got gospel for the 21st century.

The Campbell Brothers will rock the Sun Valley Opera House at 7:30 p.m. Dec. 12 as part of the Sun Valley Center for the Arts’ Winter Performance Series.

“The music is driving, straight-shooting and uplifting, with a brother each on pedal steel, lap steel and electric guitar whirling solos and weaving the gospel, daring you not to clap your hands, wave your arms, shake your butt and stomp your feet,” a reviewer wrote about a Campbell Brothers show at the B.B. King Blues Club in New York City, according to a Sun Valley Center press release.

The Campbell Brothers call it sacred steel. Their music has been a part of the House of God Keith Dominion Church and is moving from the sanctuary to the concert hall. Although the Campbell Brothers still play at Sunday services in Rush, N.Y., when they’re in town, the group has appeared at the Hollywood Bowl, the Kennedy Center and the Brooklyn Academy of Music as well as in blues clubs, music halls and festivals across the U.S. and in Europe.

Introduced in the U.S. around 1900, the Hawaiian or steel guitar differs from Spanish-style guitar in a number of ways. In the late 1930s, Willie Eason introduced the steel guitar to church services, where it mimics voices and sings the lines of hymns. The most common is the lap steel guitar of the kind played by Darick Campbell. Chuck Campbell plays pedal steel guitar, and Phil Campbell plays bass guitar. The group also includes Carl Campbell (son of Phil) on drums and Katie Jackson and Denise Brown as vocalists. Learn more: www.campbellbrothers.com.

Tickets are $20 for Sun Valley Center for the Arts members, $30 for others and $10 for kids, at www.sunvalleycenter.org or 726-9491, ext. 10.

WHERE AMAZING HAPPENS

DECLO RETURNS TO STATE TITLE GAME LOOKING TO CLAIM WHAT BARELY ELUDED IT LAST YEAR

2009 IDAHO HIGH SCHOOL FOOTBALL CHAMPIONSHIP
Class 2A, Declo vs. Parma, 5 p.m.,
Holt Arena, Pocatello
Game will be webcast live at
IdahoSports.com.

Declo's Tyler Briggs, left, and Larsen Webb lead a balanced running game for the Hornets. Declo lost to Parma in overtime in last year's 2A title game but gets a title rematch with the Panthers today in Pocatello.

TIMES-NEWS WRITER

DECLO — The banner hanging from the press box at Declo High School's football field reads, "Where amazing happens." "It's our theme for this year," explains Declo senior Brandon Peterson. "We want whatever happens here to be amazing." So far, so good. The undefeated and No. 1-ranked Hornets (11-0) are back in the Class 2A state championship game for the second year in a row. They will face defending champion Parma (10-0) at 5 p.m. today at Holt Arena in Pocatello.

Although it's a return trip, the feeling at Declo is different this time around. Last year the Hornets were underdogs in the playoffs and were happy to reach their first state title game in school history. In contrast, this year's team has dealt with the pressure and expectations from being the favorites since Week 1.

"It's a different feeling going into it," said senior Larsen Webb. "There's definitely a burden on our backs, and we have something that we want to go finish. This is our opportunity to finish it."

Webb and Tyler Briggs are the two-headed monster at running back for Declo. Combined, they have scored 21 touchdowns and rushed for nearly 1,500 yards while averaging 7.4 yards per carry. When one has the ball, the other is usually the lead blocker. "We run better together," Webb said. "We know where each other is going based off our blocks and where to read the hole."

Both backs can pound out yardage up the middle or find daylight on the perimeter. Both can catch passes out of the backfield and neither gets tackled by one defender. While they don't have blazing breakaway speed, both make excellent cuts.

According to Declo coach Kelly Kidd, Webb and Briggs are also similar in other ways. "Both are quiet. There's no ego in either one of them. Neither likes the limelight or the attention," Kidd said. "Both kids are super citizens and good students. Both sit at the front of the class, both are captains."

And they both remember

Golden Eagles reach national VB semis

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Iowa – The Golden Eagles are halfway home. The College of Southern Idaho defeated Miami Dade College (Fla.) 25-21, 21-25, 25-20, 25-15 Thursday evening to advance to the semifinals of the NJCAA Division I Volleyball Championships.

The fourth-seeded Golden Eagles (30-6) got 15 kills from Jessica Peacock, 12 from Torrey Hulsey and nine each from Elisa Brochado and Samantha Misa. More important to the team success was the defense, which clawed up 68 digs, led by Britani Hathorn's 21.

“The defense is so important because without a good defense you can't get a good pass, a good set, a good anything,” said setter Barbara Alcantara, who had a 46-assist, 18-dig double-double. “We didn't do a good job talking and being excited in the second and third sets.”

CSI started brightly and finished with a flourish, but it was the middle portion that left head coach Heidi Cartisser and her assistants scratching their heads.

The pace slowed considerably, to the point where there was nearly no passion or intensity in the match whatsoever, something clearly to the Sharks' liking. Miami Dade (30-5) took the second set and threatened in the third, but a clutch set from Misa helped stem the tide and turn it back in CSI's favor.

“The coaches took me and (Brochado) aside before the third set and told us that our first priority was to pass, and that we needed zero errors from now on,” Misa said. “Once we got that talk, it leveled us out, and we were able to get back into our game.”

CSI, SLCC cross paths again

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Iowa – The sixth meeting between the College of Southern Idaho and Salt Lake Community College volleyball teams will be the most important.

It may be the biggest meeting between the two ever, as they stand in each other's path to a national championship at the penultimate hurdle.

“It's unfortunate that we have to face off with someone from our league again in the semifinals,” CSI head coach Heidi Cartisser said. “But that again speaks to our conference, and how strong it is. We have two of the top four teams left, and it really should be three of four.”

The third she referred to was North Idaho College. The Cardinals aren't even here, because they lost to CSI in the region semifinals and the region gets 11/2 seeds to nationals. Western Nebraska or Missouri State-West Plains will certainly have something to say about it, but the general feeling is that tonight's semifinal is between CSI and Salt Lake is almost the de facto championship: whoever

CONFERENCE PLAY GETS EARLY START

No. 12 SLCC edges No. 25 CSI in SWAC opener

An ugly, physical contest left the No. 25 College of Southern Idaho men's basketball team three points shy of a win as the it fell 71-68 to No. 12 Salt Lake Community College at CSI Gymnasium.

Rival Salt Lake, the defending Region 18 Tournament and NJCAA champions, appeared to have rebounded from the loss of all five of last year's starters.

The Golden Eagles got on the board first and led by four to six points for most of the first half. The tempo changed with a little more than two minutes remaining, and the Bruins took a 34-31 lead into halftime.

Less than two minutes into the second half, CSI forward Josten Thomas picked up an intentional foul call that sent Salt Lake's Sol Jensen to the line, which saw a lot of action as both teams attempted more than 25 free throws.

The second-quarter point spread ranged from two to 12 points with Salt Lake leading the entire time.

CSI head coach Steve Gosar said that the Eagles let this one get away.

“I thought we were the better team. We'll come back and we'll get a little bit better from this,” Gosar said. “I think we can be a knock-down, drag-it-out team. This year's team can drag it out.”

There were costly turnovers and offensive rebounds that Salt Lake pulled down.

Holmstead puts 40 on CSI women

Salt Lake CC led to victory by freshman guard

A one-woman show derailed the No. 18 College of Southern Idaho women's basketball team at home Thursday night as Haley Holmstead scored half of No. 3 Salt Lake Community College's points in the Bruins' 80-62 victory.

The loss left CSI at 3-3 and 0-1 in SWAC play, while Salt Lake improved to 6-1 and 1-0.

Holmstead, a 5-foot-7 freshman guard, added 40 points to her season tally and leads the Scenic West Athletic Conference in scoring.

CSI coach Randy Rogers acknowledged that CSI lost because of Holmstead.

“We focused on her all week. Go left. Go left (he told his players). They were going right,” he said.

Rogers said earlier this week, “We're going to have to step up to a major challenge.”

That challenge might have been reachable had it not been for Holmstead.

CSI led for about two minutes at the beginning of the game, and that was as good as it got. The Bruins tied the game at 4-4 and rolled to a 46-30 halftime lead.

Salt Lake out-rebounded CSI and outshot the Golden Eagles from the free throw line.

CSI played without point guard Kiki Lockett, who was sidelined for another game with a foot injury. Rogers said it was unknown when she would return.

Posts Shauneice Samms and Laurel Kearsley each scored 11 points for CSI.

“I think offensively we did a pretty good job tonight,” Rogers said. “They were more aggressive.

BSU caravans to USU

BOISE – It's a bus ride, a business trip.

Winston Venable said it's no big thing – he rode the bus a bunch at Glendale Community College. Today, he and the rest of high-school-hearkening traveling squad (not all the players go on the road) hop on the bus, along with a caravan of Bronco faithful to Logan, Utah, to face the Utah State Aggies.

The No. 6 Broncos (10-0, 5-0 Western Athletic Conference) lead the nation in scoring (43.6 ppg), sacks allowed (0.5 per game) and rank second in passing efficiency and turnover margin.

On paper, the Aggies (3-7, 2-4 WAC) look unable to stop the Broncos, but they're coming off a 24-9 win over San Jose State, and none of those seven losses were blowouts. BSU won the game last year 49-14.

It's going to be cold in Logan. Residents aren't allowed to park on winter streets, so the snowplows can be thorough. Venable has a friend at USU.

“He was saying it was real cold,” Venable said. “I was like ‘hey man, it's 40 degrees out here’ and he's like, ‘no, man it's 18 degrees over here.’”

The Bronco Fan Caravan to Logan, Utah, leaves the campus of Boise State University at 9 a.m., this morning. Fans wishing to travel with the caravan can expect it to pass through the Jerome County section around 10:30 to 11 a.m.

Cold aside, it's still a football game. The Broncos must corral Diondre Borel, the WAC leader in total yardage (274.8 ypg).

“They play off the quarterback,” Kyle Wilson said. “He seems to get rolling and scrambling and making plays for other guys too. That will be our focus this week, to really get after the quarterback.”

Williams leads 'Fins over Panthers 24-17

By Mike Cranston

CHARLOTTE, N.C. – He may be 32, but Ricky Williams is far from done. And even without Ronnie Brown, the once written-off Miami Dolphins are back in the playoff picture.

Williams rushed for 119 yards and scored three touchdowns, and the Dolphins beat the Carolina Panthers 24-17 on Thursday night for their fourth win in six games.

A day after learning Brown is lost for the season, the Dolphins (5-5) continued their surge after an 0-3 start behind Williams. The 2002 NFL rushing champion had a receiving and rushing touchdown in the same game for the first time in his career that included a couple of lost seasons.

It was enough to beat the Panthers (4-6) when Jake Delhomme's desperation pass into the end zone was knocked down as time expired.

DeAngelo Williams rushed for 122 yards, but Delhomme had his streak of three games without an interception snapped, then

Misa also had a couple crunching kills in the sequence that gave CSI breathing space in the third set, and then the block — which was ever-present in the Golden Eagles’ straight-set first-round win over Seminole State (Okla.) earlier in the day — resumed its position as the decisive force.

CSI advanced to the match against Miami Dade by defeating Seminole State 25-17, 25-12, 25-19 in the opening round earlier in the day.

The Golden Eagles will face top-seeded Salt Lake Community College at around 5:30 p.m., MST today for a berth in the national championship match.

wins this is heavily favored to win the next night.

The two squads have met five times this season, with little to separate them. Salt Lake won the first match of the year in five sets, as well as the most recent one, also in five sets. CSI won the three in between, one in straight sets, one in four, and one in five. One of each team’s win came on the opponents’ floor.

But the Golden Eagles feel they have the edge despite being bested in the most recent match, at the Region 18 championships. They have the motive for revenge, another chip Carisser could place on her team’s collective shoulder should she so choose.

Or, the players may have already done it for her.

“I think that’s a huge advantage for us,” said sophomore right-side hitter Jessica Peacock. “We’ve got nothing to lose, and they have everything to lose.”

Peacock could be on to something. It’s the Bruins who are the overall No. 1 seed to this tournament, and the region champion. Salt Lake has never won a national championship, and this might be the Bruins’ best shot so far to do so.

CSI is seeking its ninth title, while it would be Salt Lake’s third championship match appearance. Every time the Golden Eagles have reached the final they have won — CSI and Miami Dade have combined to win 16 of the 35 national championships on record (eight each).

Salt Lake has yet to taste ultimate victory.

With stakes this high, the rivals could hardly be faulted for making it out to be more than it is. But don’t count on it happening.

“We’re going to use that anger and the desire for revenge to our advantage,” Peacock said. “But we’re still going one game at a time, and in that respect it’s just another match.”

Not so sure it’ll be just another match when the first ball goes up tonight.

Dolphins

couldn’t lead a late comeback bid.

Dolphins coach Tony Sparano hinted his team might abandon the wildcat without Brown, who was placed on injured reserve Wednesday because of a foot injury. And Miami didn’t use the formation until the second quarter. It coincided with the Dolphins’ first touchdown drive — Chad Henne’s 14-yard touchdown pass to Williams, who wrestled away from linebacker Na’il Diggs.

Miami took a 14-3 half-time lead when Williams took the direct snap at the 1 and got to the end zone ahead of speedy linebacker Jon Beason.

The Panthers got within 17-14 on Steve Smith’s leaping 27-yard touchdown catch and DeAngelo Williams’ 2-point conversion run with 5:18 left. But Ricky Williams bounced to the outside and shook off Sherrod Martin at the Carolina 5 on a 46-yard touchdown run on the ensuing possession.

Williams also caught two passes for 19 yards and a touchdown. Chad Henne overcame losing his center and his backup and committed no turnovers.

Early on, Carolina’s offense stalled under the weight of its makeshift offensive line — and the return of Dolphins line-backer Joey Porter from exile.

Benched from Sunday’s win over Tampa Bay, Porter served as a captain for the coin toss, then sacked Delhomme on third down on Carolina’s opening drive, leading to John Kasay’s 29-yard field goal.

The Panthers mixed in some of the no-huddle offense on the drive after its effective debut Sunday against Atlanta. But they used it sparingly after that, and the offense got bogged down without Pro Bowl left tackle Jordan Gross.

Richfield girls win 29th straight

The Richfield girls basketball team improved to 2-0 Thursday with a 45-25 road victory at Rimrock, the program’s 29th straight win.

Teenie Kent finished with 22 points to lead the Tigers, while Mirian Rivas added 12. Head coach Steve Kent said the team had a poor shooting night, but he was pleased with its play on defense.

“You have to learn how to win on the road when you’re not shooting well, and they did it,” he said.

The Tigers (2-0) are swapping locations with their next opponent, Oakley. Richfield will host the Hornets on Tuesday, while the rematch in Oakley has been moved to Dec. 11.

Jazz get first win in San Antonio since 1999

SAN ANTONIO — Deron Williams scored 21 points and the Utah Jazz finally ended their decade-long misery in San Antonio with a 90-83 win over the Spurs on Thursday night.

Utah had not won a regular-season game in San Antonio since 1999, a losing streak that spanned 20 games. Paul Millsap added 20 points for the Jazz.

Tim Duncan scored 21 points, and he’s seldom seen San Antonio struggle at the start of a season like this. The Spurs revamped their roster this summer, but they’re 4-6 and have their first losing record after 10 games since 1996.

Carlos Boozer scored 10 of his 18 points in the fourth, and had 11 rebounds.

NEW ORLEANS — Peja

Stojakovic hit seven 3-pointers during a 25-point, 13-rebound performance, and the New Orleans Hornets defeated the Phoenix Suns 110-103 on Thursday night.

Devin Brown and rookie Marcus Thornton each scored 19 for New Orleans, which won its second straight under new head coach Jeff Bower.

The score was tied at 96 when Stojakovic and rookie Darren Collison hit back-to-back 3s, and New Orleans held on from there. Collison had 15 points, putting both Hornets rookies in double figures.

Amare Stoudemire had 23 points and Jared Dudley, who was 5 of 6 on 3-pointers, scored 17 for Phoenix. Channing Frye added 11 points and 10 rebounds.

Old rivalries always have meaning

By Ralph D. Russo
Associated Press writer

The national championship race seems as if it's being put on hold this week, with the top contenders all big — in some cases too big to count — favorites.

So the attention shifts to traditional rivalries and games with major conference implications.

No. 9 Ohio State has already wrapped up its post-season plans. The Buckeyes are going to play in the Rose Bowl for the first time since 1997, having locked up a share of the Big Ten title with last week's overtime victory against Iowa.

But the Michigan game is never meaningless for the Buckeyes and it certainly isn't for coach Rich Rodriguez's downtrodden Wolverines (6-5).

Michigan can avoid another bowl-less postseason and maybe the Big Ten basement with a victory. With all the troubles in Ann Arbor these days, snapping a five-game losing streak in one of the most heated rivalries in college football would be the best news at Michigan in a long time.

The Big Game is California and Stanford's yearly meeting and the twist this season is that the Cardinal — not the Golden Bears — are the ones playing for highest stakes.

No. 14 Stanford, bowl eligible for the first time since 2001, is still in the running for a Pac-10 title. Cal is simply trying to position itself for a better bowl slot.

The biggest game in the Pac-10 this week doesn't have much history, but No. 11 Oregon at Arizona will help — at least a little — clear up a muddled conference race.

In the ACC, No. 18 Clemson can clinch a spot in the conference championship game for the first time by beating Virginia at home.

Cook, Browne share Pebble Beach lead

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. — Champions Tour players John Cook and Olin Browne shot 6-under 66s at Del Monte Golf Course on Thursday to share the first-round lead in the Callaway Golf Pebble Beach Invitational.

Cook, coming off a victory Nov. 1 in the Champions Tour's season-ending Charles Schwab Cup Championship, had six birdies in his bogey-free round.

"I'm pretty satisfied, considering I haven't played at all since the Charles Schwab Cup," said Cook, who won his first PGA Tour event at the Bing Crosby Pro-Am on the Monterey Peninsula in 1981. "I mean I've hit a few balls. But I didn't have any expectations, so I'm pleasantly surprised."

Browne, who won the Pebble Beach Invitational in 2001, opened with an eagle, shot 31 on the front nine and had four birdies while playing one group ahead of Cook.

"I got off to a nice start and made some nice putts," said Browne, who joined the Champions Tour in May after a three-win PGA Tour career. "Del Monte is the kind of course where if you hit quality shots, you'll get lots of birdie chances."

Jim Thorpe, one of 11 Champions Tour players in the field of 75 pros, shot a 67, also at Del Monte. Matt Bettencourt, 10th this year in the U.S. Open, and Champions Tour veteran Tom Purtzer also shot 67s at Del Monte.

Daniel Chopra, whose last PGA Tour win was the 2008 Mercedes-Benz Championship, and Rickie Fowler, who finished second this year in the Frys.com Open, both carded 68s at Spyglass Hill. D.A. Points had a 68 at Pebble Beach. Four players are grouped at 69.

The event includes players from the four major professional tours as well as mini-tour, club pros and amateur teams.

Two-time defending champion Tommy Armour III opened with a 71 at Del Monte.

Mina Harigae, who will join the LPGA Tour in 2010, shot a 70 at Pebble Beach, the lowest round among four women pro entrants.

The 72-hole event continues Friday and Saturday at all three courses. The final round Sunday, which will include the top 40 pros and ties and top 10 teams, will be held at Pebble Beach. The pro winner will receive $60,000 from the $300,000 purse.

OCHOA TAKES FIRST-ROUND LEAD AT TOUR CHAMPIONSHIP

RICHMOND, Texas — Lorena Ochoa shot a 66 on Thursday and has a 1-shot lead over Reilley Rankin after the first round of the LPGA's season-ending Tour Championship.

Michelle Wie, fresh off her first LPGA victory last week, shot a 72. She limped through her round on a sprained left ankle that she first injured at the Solheim Cup in August. She was going for treatment after her round and was considering withdrawing from the tournament.

The first round was suspended due to darkness at 5:25 p.m. Four threesomes will finish their first rounds on Friday.

Ochoa teed off in the morning, before the winds picked up. She is four shots ahead of Jiyai Shin (70), who leads Ochoa by eight points in the race to become the tour's player of the year. For Ochoa to earn her fourth straight player of the year title, she must win this week or finish no worse than third and hope Shin places out of the top 10.

the option or when plays break down. His 152 carries is only 17 fewer than teammate Robert Turbin. Turbin is third in the WAC with 1,122 yards (9 TD) this season. Borel has 433.

"Their quarterback is pretty shifty and fast, and the running back is pretty good," Tommie Smith said. "They make plays, those two, a dynamic duo. They're really explosive. If we stop them, we'll be in the game."

The Bronco defense leads the WAC in total, scoring and pass efficiency defense. The 4-2-5 was built to stop the spread offense, which includes the option game the Aggies run. Again, the key is Borel.

"He's like a point guard," BSU coach Chris Petersen said. "There's fast guys in football that can outrun guys, but he can stop and start and make you miss and then accelerate. He can change directions on a dime. He's going to be a hard guy to defend."

Turbin averages 6.6 yards per carry and has a 96-yard touchdown run.

The Bronco offense is surgical. Kellen Moore (203-for-300, 2,558 yards, 32 TD, 3 INT) carves up defenses with precision passes. He has thrown one interception per 100 attempts. That's top in the country, along with his 172.5 pass efficiency.

This week the Broncos get Doug Martin back to full health (hip flexor strain), and it's a good thing. Fullback Richie Brockel and tailback Matt Kaiserman are done for the season, making Martin more important in the rotation.

"Everyone has to carry the flag when people get hurt," Martin said. "We have to step it up."

If Petersen lets Martin loose today, the back won't mind.

"I get real anxious. I just want to get in there and play. I just sit on the sideline, sit next coach, see what play it is, read the defense, my reads as a running back, so when I go in, I'll be prepared."

Jeremy Avery has taken over a more prominent role while Martin sat. Avery is fifth in the WAC with 892 yards (5.9 ypc).

The most important thing for the Broncos is to win, plain and simple. A single loss would destroy any hope for a BCS bowl berth.

"We still have that same drive, that same energy we had Week 1," Venable said.

"It's that much closer to where our goals are. We're still hungry. We're not letting up for anything or anybody. We're definitely still the same team we were last week and that we were against Oregon."

Regardless records, rankings and snowflakes, a game will be played at 7:30 p.m., tonight at the floor of the Wasatch Front. It's the first nationally televised home game in USU history.

"The guys I was going up against, Wainwright and Carpenter, had tremendous seasons. It was a lucky one for me. I'll take them as I come I guess."

— San Francisco Giants pitcher Tim Lincecum on winning his second consecutive NL Cy Young award

Giants' Lincecum wins 2nd consecutive Cy Young

In this Oct. 1 photo, San Francisco Giants pitcher Tim Lincecum throws against the Arizona Diamondbacks during a game in San Francisco. Lincecum won the NL Cy Young Award Thursday, becoming the first repeat winner since Randy Johnson was voted the prize four straight times from 1999-2002.

Cardinals' Wainwright third, but gets most first place votes

NEW YORK (AP) — Talk about a freak — Tim Lincecum needed just 15 wins to bag another NL Cy Young Award.

Yup, throw out those old baseball cards. Wins and losses don't mean much anymore when it comes time for voters to pick baseball's best pitchers. It's all about WHIP, FIP, BABIP and other lines of alphabet soup.

"It's turned into a game of complete numbers and statistics and what people do with that," Lincecum said.

Lincecum won the Cy Young Award on Thursday for the second straight year, emerging from one of the tightest votes in the history of the honor to become the first repeat winner since Randy Johnson.

Only 10 points separated the top three vote-getters. Chris Carpenter was second and St. Louis teammate Adam Wainwright finished third despite getting the most first-place votes.

Lincecum, nicknamed "The Freak" for his giant stride, led the NL with 261 strikeouts and tied for the league lead with four complete games and two shutouts.

The wiry right-hander attracts plenty of attention on the mound with his shoulder-length brown hair and twisting delivery. But it was his 15 victories — the fewest for a Cy Young starter over a non-shortened season — that were really noticeable for the award winner.

The 2009 honors for Lincecum and Kansas City Royals ace Zack Greinke reflect a recent shift in how pitchers are evaluated. The focus has changed to more developed statistics, including some that even take into account team defense.

Greinke equaled the previous low of 16 wins for a non-shortened season when he won the AL award on Tuesday. Afterward, he talked all about FIP, a mathematician's dream that stands for Fielding Independent Pitching.

Lincecum has his own favorite indicator.

"To say which one I look to the most, I would just say WHIP," he said, referring to walks plus hits allowed per inning, "just because you just limit the amount of baserunners that can hurt you."

Lincecum is facing misdemeanor marijuana charges stemming from a traffic stop in his home state of Washington on Oct. 30. No questions were allowed about the incident in his conference call, but he acknowledged making a mistake and apologized in a prepared statement.

"I know that as a professional athlete I have a responsibility to conduct myself appropriately both on and off the field," he said. "I certainly have learned a valuable lesson through all of this and I promise to do better in the future."

"I hope and expect that the matter will be resolved soon. In the meantime I am focused on preparing for the 2010 season."

Lincecum received 11 first-place votes, 12 seconds

Chris Carpenter, St. Louis	9	14	7	94

Dan Haren, Arizona	—	—	1	1

and nine thirds for 100 points in balloting released by the Baseball Writers' Association of America. Carpenter had nine firsts, 14 seconds and seven thirds to take second with 94.

Wainwright, who led the NL with 19 wins and 233 innings, had 12 first-place votes, five seconds and 15 thirds for 90 points. Trevor Hoffman, who finished behind Tom Glavine in 1998, is the only other player to get the most firsts and not win the award.

"The guys I was going up against, Wainwright and Carpenter, had tremendous seasons," the 25-year-old Lincecum said. "It was a lucky one for me. I'll take them as I come I guess."

Two voters, Will Carroll of Baseball Prospectus and Keith Law of ESPN.com, did not include Carpenter on their ballots. Carroll had Wainwright in the top spot, Lincecum second and Arizona's Dan Haren third. Law voted for Lincecum, Atlanta's Javier Vazquez and Wainwright in third. Those were the only votes for Haren and Vazquez.

The six-point gap between Lincecum and Carpenter is tied for the third-closest in the NL since the ballot expanded to three pitchers in 1970. The 10-point margin from first to third is the second-closest for the NL ballot.

Lincecum, who had a $650,000 salary and is headed for a big raise now that he's eligible for arbitration, did not have any bonus provision for winning the award. Carpenter receives $100,000 for finishing second, Wainwright $100,000 for winding up third and Vazquez $70,000 for being voted fourth.

Lincecum teamed with Matt Cain to give the Giants a strong 1-2 punch at the top of their rotation, helping them stay in contention all year in one of baseball's biggest surprises. He went 15-7 with a 2.48 ERA in 32 starts and 225 1-3 innings.

Johnson, Lincecum's teammate this year in San Francisco, Greg Maddux and Sandy Koufax are the only other NL pitchers to win consecutive Cy Young Awards. Maddux (1992-95 with the Cubs and Braves) and Johnson (1999-2002 with the Diamondbacks) each won four straight, and Koufax was honored in 1965 and 1966 for the Los Angeles Dodgers.

The 5-foot-11, 170-pound Lincecum made his major league debut in 2007 and is 40-17 with a 2.90 ERA in three seasons.

losing last year's title game to Parma 29-28 in overtime. "I'm glad that they beat Glenns Ferry (in the semifinals) because we want a rematch with Parma," Briggs said.

The Panthers have been keeping an eye on Declo, too.

"They were young last year just like us, so we knew it could be a rematch," said Parma senior Devin Erickson. "We've been going back and forth (ranked) one and two (in the media polls), so we kind of knew it would come down to us. It will be a good game."

As close as last year's championship was, today's battle promises to be much of the same as both teams have improved.

"In all phases of the game we're better. We have a lot of team speed, we're much bigger and more physical up front than we were last year," said Parma coach Greg Asbury. "Declo's a great football team. I've had the ability to scout them, we've watched a ton of film on them. I think they're still a good football team and it's going to be a good matchup."

When Declo and Parma line up today, it will be like looking in the mirror. Both offenses like to run the ball and can pass effectively when necessary. Both defenses are stingy. Each team is solid at every position.

"I think both teams will feel each other out early and see where they think they have an advantage," Kidd said."

In a game where two teams are so evenly matched, the momentum will shift back and forth. The winner will be the team that makes the fewest mistakes or catches a lucky break. Last year it was Parma's touchdown on a fake punt that might have made the difference.

"We know what happened last year and we know what we need to do to get it done," Briggs said.

It's been a year since these Hornets wrote a page in Declo history by playing in its first state championship game. Now they have a chance to finish the chapter.

Kidd

WHO IS PARMA?

Parma is on a 21-game winning streak. Its defense has allowed just six touchdowns all season while the offense averages 39.7 points per game. The Panthers return most of the team that beat Declo for the Class 2A championship last year. One player who did graduate, however, was quarterback Rance Portenier, last year's 2A Idaho Player of the Year. But his replacement, junior Trevor Kramer, has thrown for over 1,400 yards this season, which is a few hundred yards better than Portenier.

Common opponents: Parma beat New Plymouth 18-7. Declo beat New Plymouth 22-6. Parma beat Glenns Ferry 49-6. Declo beat Glenns Ferry 29-7 in a game the Hornets uncharacteristically turned the ball over five times. Players to watch: TE Randy Riley, RB Tyler Ford, RB Lance Johnson.

"We want to do the best we can to make history," Peterson said. "We want to be remembered as the most amazing team we've had come through this school."

For Hendrick, a 1-2-3 finish might make history

CORAL GABLES, Fla. (AP) — For Hendrick Motorsports, this NASCAR season might seem easy as 1-2-3. OK, maybe it only looked easy.

No matter if Jimmie Johnson or Mark Martin leaves Homestead-Miami on Sunday with the Chase for the Sprint Cup championship, Hendrick Motorsports — which owns both cars — will have plenty to celebrate. The title, whomever delivers it, will be Rick Hendrick's ninth in NASCAR, tying him with Petty Enterprises for the most. And it will be his record-setting 12th overall, joining three truck titles.

But there's a piece of history still out there for Hendrick to chase.

Johnson, Martin and Jeff Gordon, all of whom race under the Hendrick flag, enter the finale 1-2-3 in the standings. If they finish in those spots, Hendrick Motorsports would become the first team in NASCAR history to truly pull off that feat.

"I hate to be greedy when you think about really wanting to be 1-2-3, but we're sitting there right now with one race to go," Hendrick said Thursday. "That would be so good for the organization. If it happens, it'll be just icing on the cake. We've all thought about it. We've all talked about it. That's our goal!"

Has it happened before? Depends on perspective, really.

Buck Baker, Herb Thomas and Speedy Thompson finished in the top three spots in the 1956 standings after a 56-race schedule. Baker and Thompson both raced for Carl Kiekhaefer, as did Thomas for much of that season. But NASCAR records show Thomas started that season listed as his car's owner-driver, plus spent time that year with Smokey Yunick as his team owner.

So technically, if Hendrick pulls this off Sunday, he would stand alone.

"I'm actually living a dream," Hendrick said. "I grew up and all I knew was racing and cars and working on cars. You didn't get paid to do it. You did it because you loved it and you take whatever you made to do it. So to be able to look back and see what we've been able to accomplish, I've just been really fortunate being around a lot of great people."

His team is often likened as the Yankees of NASCAR, with good reason.

The results, especially of late, show that whatever is going on in the Hendrick garage tops what everyone else is doing.

At 50, Martin is having what he calls the happiest season of his life. Gordon will likely finish fourth or better in the final standings for the 10th time. And Johnson is on the brink of history, needing only a 25th-place finish to clinch his fourth straight title, breaking the record he shares with Cale Yarborough.

Johnson often tells the story how Hendrick once sat across the table from a team of Lowe's executives, convincing those potential and eventual sponsors how the driver really would be good enough to win a race someday. Johnson never forgot the faith Hendrick showed that day, and has paid it back many times.

"Somehow, some way, what he possesses in connecting with people, looking for the right skills, the desire, the drive that an individual may have to perform well and do well, there's something that he can see and recognize," Johnson said. "I think it speaks volumes to the company and the success of the company. He can pick something up, pick something out ... piece everything together."

The respect level the drivers have is clear. Even Martin, a venerable elder statesman in NASCAR, calls the owner "Mr. Hendrick."

Said Hendrick: "I want to go on the record, I'm only 10 years older than he is. I want it to be Rick."

His life only seems the stuff of Hollywood now.

Hendrick's cap will be turned backward in Victory Lane on Sunday, a tribute to his son Ricky, one of 10 people killed when a Hendrick plane crashed in 2004. Rick Hendrick always tried to get his kid to wear his cap the right way, and his son rarely would listen to Dad on that point.

There's been so much other drama along the way, too. A rare form of leukemia, which he beat. A guilty plea to federal mail fraud, which was eventually pardoned by President Clinton. Financial challenges, especially when he was beginning to build his empire.

Now here he stands, about to pull into a tie with Petty Enterprises for the most titles in the stock-car series.

"An opportunity to be around Mr. Hendrick and all the fine people, teammates and people at Hendrick Motorsports, has really made my life rich this year with people and with quality relationships above and beyond any other year that I can ever remember," Martin said Thursday, with Hendrick sitting immediately to his right.

Hendrick bowed his head a bit, hearing those words.

Richard Petty still might be The King, and Johnson might be on the verge of etching his name on a blank page of NASCAR history, but Sunday night will be as much a tribute to Hendrick as anyone else on Victory Lane. His 25th anniversary season in NASCAR will be his best, maybe the best by any team ever.

"I would have to say," Hendrick said, "this is probably as good as it gets."

OAKLEY RETURNS TO AVENGE 2008 TITLE GAME LOSS TO PRAIRIE

2009 IDAHO HIGH SCHOOL FOOTBALL CHAMPIONSHIP
Class 1A Division I, Oakley vs. Prairie,

Game will be webcast live at
IdahoSports.com.

TIMES-NEWS WRITER

OAKLEY — Since Oct. 13, 2006, Oakley has won 36 football games and lost one.

That “one” has been gnawing at the Hornets for 12 months.

Oakley lost the 2008 state championship to Prairie, and since then the score, 32-22, has been posted in the school's weight room.

“We’ve been thinking about them all year,” said Oakley senior lineman Jake Sagers. “That’s been our goal ever since we lost to them, to play Prairie again and to beat them.”

When Oakley (11-0) takes on Prairie (11-0) at 1 p.m. on Saturday at Holt Arena for the Class 1A Division I state title, it will not only be a shot at revenge but also the culmination of a successful football career for a talented senior class.

“It’s our last game playing together, so we’re going to make the best of it,” Sagers said. “We’re going to try leaving our last high school game with a win. We’re pretty excited.”

Of Oakley’s past 36 victories, 24 have been mercy-rule wins. Much of that dominance can be attributed to the often-unsung warriors battling in the trenches. This year Oakley’s offensive line has included Jake Sagers, Braxton Sagers, Garrett Critchfield, Justin Cooper, Majel Leon and Tyler Reagan. With them doing the dirty work, the Hornets have averaged 51.1 points per game.

To beat Prairie, which has been equally dominant this season, the Hornets need another big performance from its hogs.

“They’re a good team but nothing to be intimidated by,” Sagers said. “We’ve been breaking down film in the mornings before school and staying after practice. We’ve seen how their defense plays, and we’re working on how to get around it.”

Behunin

First-year Oakley coach Tim Behunin hasn’t been to a state championship game as a coach, but he remembers what it was like to win one as a player.

“It’s neat to sit down and realize, how many times in a life do you get really special opportunities?” Behunin said. “You think of all the teams that started two-a-days back in August who had this common goal... To me, it’s an honor to represent a very good conference. As exciting as it is, it’s also humbling to have this opportunity.”

Travel could be a factor for Prairie as it makes the 10-hour bus trip.

“We’ve been to camps at Holt, so we know the facilities,” Sagers said. “It’s not as long as a drive for us. The drive (to the Kibbie Dome in Moscow) last year killed us. Hopefully it reverses this year and affects them.”

The last time the Hornets played a game at Holt Arena, they carted home the 2007 state championship trophy. This year’s seniors were sophomores then. They would like nothing more than another blue trophy to bookend their prolific high school careers.

Paxton Robinson

HOW THEY GOT THERE

Oakley 54, Carlin, Nev. 6

Oakley scored touchdowns on offense, defense and special teams. Seven different Hornets found pay dirt. Oakley defense caused three turnovers and allowed just 20 yards rushing. Oakley didn’t allow a first down until after it led 42-0.

Oakley 50, Hagerman 0

Oakley opened a three-game road swing with its first Snake River Conference victory of the season at Hagerman. The Hornets rushed for 360 yards and got their first shutout.

Oakley 58, Hansen 8

Stephan Ortiz rushed for 113 yards and three touchdowns in a win at Hansen.

Oakley 60, Lighthouse 12

Senior two-way starter Payson Bedke broke his arm leading up to this game, but the Hornets didn’t miss a beat.

Hunter Wadsworth returned the opening kickoff 99 yards for a TD to set the tone, and Paxton Robinson scored four touchdowns.

Oakley 16, Raft River 14

In its biggest test of the year, Oakley came from behind to beat its rival. Wadsworth had three interceptions in the fourth quarter, plus he caught a halfback pass from Ortiz on a trick play with 2:07 remaining, then Ortiz scored the game-winning two-point conversion.

Oakley 46, Shoshone 0

After a close call with Raft River,

Oakley got back to its mercy-ruling ways. Brady Manning ran and passed for a TD. Wadsworth’s pick-six ended the game early.

Oakley 56, Sho-Ban 6

Oakley erupted for 34 points in first quarter. Wadsworth had four touchdowns, and Robinson added two more.

Oakley 74, Challis 28

The Hornets had their biggest offensive game of the season at Challis, racking up 420 yards rushing.

Oakley 48, Castleford 20

With a win over previously unbeaten Castleford, Oakley won the Snake River Conference for the third straight year. The Hornets went up 34-0 before Castleford could get on the board. Manning and Wadsworth hooked up five times for 120 yards and three TDs.

Oakley 62, Notus 12

Oakley returned three interceptions for touchdowns and easily handled Notus in the quarterfinal round of the state playoffs. Ortiz threw for 162 yards and three TDs. Rhyan Greenwell had 75 yards on nine carries, plus two pick-sixes.

Oakley 38, Castleford 20

The conference foes had a rematch in the state semifinals. This time it was closer, as the game was 16-12 early in the third quarter. But Oakley pulled away with three unanswered touchdowns and returned to the state title game for the third consecutive year.

WHO IS PRAIRIE?

The defending state champion Prairie Pirates have outscored opponents 50.9 to 4.4 on average. They’re everything you could want in a football team: big, physical, fast, athletic and disciplined. Prairie has four shutouts and hasn’t allowed more than one touchdown in a game.

Common opponents: Oakley beat conference rival Raft River 16-14.

Prairie beat Raft River 40-8 in the first round of the playoffs.

2010 BMW 750IX/750LIX SEDAN

ALL-WHEEL PERFECTION!

Roadworthy!
By Ken Chester, Jr.
Motor News Media
Corporation

In the continuing development of BMW's flagship 7 Series line, BMW has introduced xDrive all-wheel drive versions of the 750i and 750Li sedans. BMW's acclaimed xDrive all-wheel drive system has been enhanced for these new models to ensure that the 750i xDrive and 750Li xDrive set a new benchmark for handling characteristics among all-wheel drive sedans. BMW's Integrated Chassis Management, using the remarkable speed of its FlexRay on-board network and the quick-responding xDrive hardware, is able to identify and limit understeer by shifting torque rearward (up to 80% to the rear axle) while preserving the stability for which xDrive has been so widely recognized.

As a second step, the Integrated Chassis Management system can then apply a precise combination of throttle and individual rear-corner braking in order to maintain perfectly neutral handling in a corner - regardless of road surface conditions. These key enhancements to xDrive ensure that the 750i xDrive and 750Li xDrive will be two of the most nimble all-wheel drive sedans available in any vehicle segment.

For driving enthusiasts, the new all-wheel drive 7-Series sedans can be ordered with the newly available M Sport

Package. The M Sport Package includes an M steering wheel, lift-reducing aerodynamic kit, Shadowline trim, Anthracite headliner and 19" wheels with ultra-high performance tires. 20" wheels with ultra-high performance tires are available at additional cost. Carbon Black Metallic exterior paint is available with the new M Sport Package.

With this group of powerful sedans at the top of the automaker's lineup, BMW is able to meet the needs and discriminating tastes of those willing to own and operate the last word in German engineering and conveyance. The exterior of the 7-Series sedan boasts "presence" - a big sedan that looks bigger, prestigious and impressive. This design incorporates minimal exterior decoration and no body side moldings to maintain a type of design "purity" in the overall look.

Available in regular and long wheelbase body styles the 7-Series sedan is propelled by an advanced 4.4L twin turbo V8 prime mover. Capable of incredible power, this new powerplant is bolted to a ZF 6HP26 six-speed automatic transmission. Considered one of the first of its type, the ZF gearbox does away with the mechanical gear selector - replaced with an electric one. As a result, the transmission selector is located at a position just ahead of the steering wheel rim.

Inside the roomy, upscale passenger compartment, electronic convenience meets European chic in a tasteful rendition of the future. This is one smart automobile! Comfortable and luxurious in the extreme, there is no way to share everything BMW has packed into this motor vehicle.

The automaker's answer to reduce the clutter of sophisticated controls without reducing the functionality or availability of modern technology was the introduction of iDrive - a single smart controller. With iDrive, the vehicle's control environment is divided into two areas - driving and comfort. This novel system separates functions that pertain directly to vehicle operation from those related more to occupant's comfort and well-being.

IF NOVEMBER 20 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: You may be inspired to do your best to achieve your ambitions during the next several weeks. You could also be forced to adhere to a tight schedule to get everything done. Next March and April you may find that some of your goals and ambitions shift gears. At the same time you may feel that you are receiving a lot of extra attention from admirers that have been waiting in the wings and could be tempted to make major changes. Wait until late May, when you are wiser than usual, to make long-term plans and decisions.

HOROSCOPE

Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): If single, you may be attracted to someone from a different walk of life, but the person may not be everything you had hope for.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You may get a cosmic signal that your ambitions now are on the right track. Assistance may come your way, but the trip is not over.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You might meet someone new who rings your bell. Beware: This new relationship may be unstable and subject to surprises.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Put a touch of imagination into your work for long lasting results. Unusual conversations might make you ponder eternal mysteries.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You could be dragged along on an impulsive adventure that doesn't turn out as planned or the results weren't as advertised.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You can solve romantic problems by an understanding outlook and refusing to allow a desire for excitement to detract from harmony.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): If you are single you could be tempted to consider a quick hookup. But this new romantic interest could disappear just as suddenly.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You have the ability to put a romantic spin on just about anything you do. Someone close may be in the mood for an elegant dinner.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): It may be hard for friends to pry you away from your lair if you are focused on home matters. A sudden passion might fizzle.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Someone may light up your life with a kind and generous gesture. Fleeting reminders of mistakes could make you cautious.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): The wishing well is deep and you might not hear your penny land. You could want to try something new just to break up the monotony.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You often act on the spur of the moment and cross your fingers. If you want to impress someone, buy only the best and finest.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

"It's never too late — in fiction or in life — to revise."

— Nancy Thayer

It is always difficult to reject a good plan when circumstances render it unlikely to succeed. Today, West found the only lead to give South a problem in his contract of four spades — namely, a trump. On any other attack, declarer wins, plays ace and another diamond and, when on play again, a third diamond. If the diamond suit fails to break 3-3, South's fourth diamond can be ruffed in dummy.

South appreciated that the plan of playing on diamonds was now unlikely to work, since the defenders would probably be able to play two further rounds of trump, stripping dummy of ruffing values.

The winning line involved a dummy reversal, with declarer taking three ruffs in his own hand. Declarer carefully won the opening trump lead in hand. Then the ace and king of hearts were cashed, a club played to dummy's ace, and a heart ruffed high. A club was ducked, and on winning, West returned another trump. This was won in dummy and a club was ruffed high. (Notice that care was needed when winning the opening lead and when ruffing a heart, so that dummy's trump entry was not compromised.)

Now a diamond to dummy's ace and a further club ruff took the trick tally to nine: two top hearts, the club and diamond aces, two trumps and three ruffs in hand. Although the South hand was now bereft of trumps, the master spade remaining in dummy was the 10th trick.

ANSWER: You have a straightforward raise to two no-trump. This is perfect for values — your hand equates to a balanced 18-19 count, so there is no need to introduce your weak diamonds or to go all the way to game. Your partner knows what he has better than you do.

DEAR ABBY: I'm 32 and a "large girl." I am also intelligent, witty and fun to be around. I make friends wherever I go. The problem is my mother — who is also big — keeps telling me that heavy women are not desirable and we must "settle" when it comes to choosing a mate.

My mother has had two long, unhappy marriages. She's always saying I think too highly of myself and my standards for men are out of my reach.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

Abby, I would rather remain single than marry someone I'm not happy with just to have a man. I'm not looking for a movie star; I just want to find someone I'm attracted to and who has the same values and ideals that I have. Is Mother right? Am I setting my sights too high?

— HAPPY BEING ME

IN MASSACHUSETTS

DEAR HAPPY BEING YOU: I don't think so. If you want to achieve the same level of satisfaction in your life that your mother has, then follow her roadmap. However, if you want more, then cross your fingers and keep looking.

Meeting "The One" is a matter of putting yourself out there, and luck and timing. There are worse things than being alone, and having two long and unhappy marriages ranks right up there. Just look at your mother.

DEAR ABBY: A year ago, my boss was diagnosed with cancer. She had major surgery and a round of radiation therapy. Last week, her doctor discovered a mass, and after biopsy, she may be going in for more surgery.

I am finding it difficult to show much empathy for my boss. Despite having had the disease she continues to live an unhealthy lifestyle. She still smokes, has a couple of drinks a day and eats a lot of red meat. I don't drink or smoke and I'm a vegetarian, so I can't understand why a person would risk her health by doing these things.

We have received several newsletters at work from our insurance provider on how to prevent cancer, but she hasn't taken any of the advice. Abby, it's not like I have come right out and said, "It's your own fault," but it's frustrating to listen to her problems when she won't try to live a healthy lifestyle. She's generally whiny to begin with, and now she seems to want everyone to feel sorry for her.

What do I need to do to be more sympathetic?

— TRYING IN TEMPE

DEAR TRYING: You don't know what caused your boss's cancer and neither do I. Some people who live a healthy lifestyle get cancer anyway — and that includes teetotaling, nonsmoking vegetarians. Please try to remember that — and then think about karma. If you do, it may help you become more sympathetic and less judgmental.

DEAR ABBY: I was with a group of friends at a sports bar discussing the baseball playoffs when the owner of the bar made a racist comment about the game. I was so shocked and offended that I said nothing for the rest of the evening. Later, I told my friends I was disappointed in myself for not speaking up — that when someone makes a comment like he did and you let it go, you're condoning that type of behavior. My friends said they just "considered the source" and I should not have been offended. How should we have handled this?

— SECOND THOUGHTS

IN FLORIDA

DEAR SECOND THOUGHTS: If the comment was offensive, you were right to be offended — regardless of "the source." The way to punish an ignorant bigot such as you described would be to hit him in the wallet. A way to have done that would have been for all of you to leave and tell him why. And another would be for all of you to spread the word about the incident.
