Crystal and Brandt Powell believe their 5-month-old daughter Ashdyn died in October because of babysitter negligence and they want police to investigate more.

Filer Police Sgt. Timothy Reeves is not suspecting foul play from information so far, he said Friday.

The Powells are convinced their baby asphyxiated. They found her blue and not breathing with a blanket around her head on Oct. 14 after a 14-year-old babysitter stayed with the infant and two of their other children, ages 2 and 3, at their Filer home.

The case may involve Sudden

Unexpected Infant Death Syndrome, but remains under investigation with the autopsy report not yet completed, according to Reeves.

"I'll do whatever I have to do to bring justice to my daughter's death," said the baby's dad, Brandt Powell, on Friday. "It (blanket) was wrapped around her head four times."

The Powells said they went on a dinner date for a few hours, and came home to music blaring and the babysitter telling them the infant was asleep.

The Powells didn't check immediately on their baby, they said. Crystal Powell drove the sitter home, and Brandt Powell remained at their house but didn't check on the baby for about 10 minutes, saying he was under the impression the child was asleep.

About a week or two before their daughter died, her mom took her to see the doctor but was advised against testing the child for H1N1, she said. On the day of her death, Crystal Powell gave the baby a small amount of cold medication.

The Powells said they have felt blamed by police for giving the baby cold medication and not checking on her immediately upon returning home.

Reeves said Friday, however, that, "We haven't blamed anybody."

The parents say Filer Police have not done enough in the investigation and want another agency on the case. The department, however, notes that it is not done investigating and will

Filer residents urge school board to return spending

By John E. Swayze
Times-News correspondent

FILER — What should the Filer School District do with $2.2 million remaining from $15.6 million in construction bond funds?

In November, after discussing the results of a community questionnaire, school board members came to a tentative consensus to split the remaining figure in half and use between $1.25 million and $1.5 million for improvement projects and return the rest to taxpayers by paying on the debt and reducing the levy rate.

"This was just a generic survey but what the public said was that we need to do what needs to be done and give the rest of the money back," board member Judy Lea Smith said. "The majority, over 51 percent, wanted the money to go back."

A delegation of Filer residents, attending Wednesday evening's board meeting, echoed that opinion. Resident Roger Blass voiced concern that taxpayer trust in the school board could be damaged if the balance is spent on projects outside of those originally proposed in the bond.

"We've heard nothing but good about the building projects and how well you've overseen the funds, but we approved the projects, they were paid for and any extra money left should be retired," Blass said.

Items under board consideration last month included: approximately $400,000 for irrigation and sod on the high school campus; $400,000 to upgrade the high school parking lot; $200,000 for completion of the Filer Middle School roof; $150,000 to pave the middle school's east parking lot; and a rejected $300,000 to $800,000 air-conditioning project at the elementary school.

The proposed necessity of repaving the high school parking lot was a point of contention with residents in attendance Wednesday.

"Sometimes what you think is preventive maintenance is just money thrown away," Blass said. "There's going to be maintenance needed again in 10 years, so maybe you should just seal coat it and go on."

District Superintendent John Graham responded by revealing that, along with surface damage from improper water drainage, test holes revealed an inadequate base.

"The foundation is supposed to have something around 12 to 16 inch (depth), but there is no foundation or drainage to support that,"

Salvation Army kettle in Hailey takes in rare coin

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

Santa appears to be flush with coins this year. Or maybe he's just digging into his coin collection in light of these tough economic times.

At any rate, the Senior Connection in Hailey is the lucky recipient of a coin that appeared on its doorstep Friday morning that's worth between $800 and $1,500.

David Stone, a volunteer with the senior center, found what he thought was a gold Sacajawea dollar wrapped in a small plastic bag in the snow by the door Friday while he was checking on snow removal.

On closer examination, he and the senior center's executive director Kim Coonin realized it was not a Sacajawea coin but rather a 1910 solid gold $10 Indian coin. Two coin collectors have confirmed that it is "very rare."

The surprise mirrors what's been happening across the country, noted Coonin.

A Salvation Army bell ringer in Clarksville, Tenn., found a valuable gold coin valued at $1,100 in one of the Army's red kettles on Friday. Others have shown up in donation kettles in Denver, Seattle and Illinois.

Denver has had three: a rare 1902 $20 Liberty gold

St. Luke's to open financial-services office in downtown Twin Falls

Move will bring about 100 employees to renovated building set to open in April

By Damon Hunzeker
Times-News writer

While most people don't want other people needing medical attention, the expansion of St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center could end up benefiting downtown commerce in Twin Falls.

The new patient-financial-services building, currently divided in two temporary locations across town, is expected to open in April on Third Avenue South and Idaho Street.

The reason for the downtown location is twofold — financial and practical.

"That's high-dollar real estate (the under-construction facility on Pole Line), so if there's something that can be done off-site, we try to do that," Paul Louton, hospital facilities director, said.

The financial-services office — a renovated electrical building — will bring about 100 employees downtown and is, in part, facilitated by the Urban Renewal District.

"We need to get some business downtown. We've been a partner with the community, and this could stimulate some growth," Louton said.

The area surrounding the building isn't bustling, but that could change.

"Sometimes it just takes one thing to spark it — like in Boise," spokeswoman Jody Tremblay said.

Meanwhile, construction crews are hoisting beams at forward the case to Twin Falls County prosecutors to review when it is completed.

Reeves said Friday that state police have had some involvement and were present during the autopsy.

The teenaged babysitter had worked well for the Powells for about six weeks before the death, though the parents are concerned she left the children unsupervised the night the baby died to buy candy and soda from a nearby store.

"I don't believe (the babysitter) would have wrapped the blanket around her head to suffocate her," said Crystal Powell. But the babysitter "didn't do her job" Crystal Powell said she would appreciate an apology.

The parents moved from their home in Filer at 510 U.S.

Highway 30 to an apartment in Twin Falls soon after their baby died.

"We couldn't even walk in our house," said Crystal Powell. "I couldn't stop shaking."

For now, they say their faith is helping them through their loss.

"My spirit is telling me she's in heaven, she's better, she'll never have to worry about tears or hurt," said Crystal Powell.

The couple wants another baby, but now is just too soon, they said.

"It's scary for both of us, we don't want anything like this to happen again," she said. "Nothing will ever replace Ashdyn."

Graham said. "Our holes were anywhere from one to six inches. You can seal coat it, as we have done several times over the last 10 years, but you won't be able to fix structural flaws."

Filer resident Gerald Tews argued that with education budget cuts at both the district and state level, it might be better to wait for the economy to improve before focusing on parking lot resurfacing.

"Maybe in five or 10 years things will be better and you can get this out of your maintenance budget," Tews said. "Right now, if you're going to prioritize anything, at the last meeting we talked about a restroom at Hollister and a new freezer. These are all tough decisions but we have confidence that you'll look at these things real hard."

The school board's opportunity to accept or reject bids on remaining projects is scheduled to take place on Feb. 10.

Infidelity

politician Ilkka Kanerva — into a messaging ambush of his own making.

Cocktail waitress Jaimee Grubb, who says she had a 31-month affair with Woods, has provided Us Weekly alleged text messages from him. She says she has more than 300.

Grubb has also provided a voice mail she says is from Woods. In it, a worried man's voice says, "Hey, it's, uh, it's Tiger. I need you to do me a huge favor. Um, can you please, uh, take your name off your phone? My wife went through my phone. And, uh, may be calling you. ... You've got to do this for me. Huge. Quickly. All right. Bye."

Tracy Quan, Daily Beast expert on infidelity and author of "Diary of a Jetsetting Call Girl," says with some sympathy, "It's like we're back in the 19th century: 'Please! Burn my letters!'"

Web site TMZ reported Thursday that Elin Nordegren, Woods' wife, discovered him texting nightclub hostess Rachel Uchitel, said to be a Woods mistress, shortly before the famed Woods traffic accident. Uchitel, represented by celebrity lawyer Gloria Allred, denied such allegations and called a news conference, but then suddenly canceled.

Technology has changed the nature of the illicit affair. It's astonishing, frankly, that people in the public eye would ever commit their passions to cyberspace at all, ever again, in light of what has happened with e-mails and text messages lately.

David Crystal, author of "Language and the Internet" and other studies of texting, writes by e-mail that "it's amazing indeed that people can be so naive about e-communication. As I say ... slightly tongue in cheek, never send an e-message you wouldn't be prepared to defend in a court of law!"

Last year, Kilpatrick, the Detroit mayor, got snarled in a sex scandal when a few of the thousands of messages sent between him and chief of staff Christine Beatty in 2002 and 2003 somehow landed in the lap of the Detroit Free Press.

"I've been dreaming all day about having you all to myself for three days," he texted her. "Relaxing, laughing, talking, sleeping and making love." And apparently not bothered by the fact he'd sent these texts on a city-issued pager. Or that by city directive, messages via city media are "not considered to be personal or private." Political downfall, jail time and fines ended his tale.

There's an aspect of tragedy to all this. Like Gulliver in Lilliput, the great man — so infatuated, so dumb or so full of hubris it never occurs to him that his every tweet, text and e-mail may be used against him — watches the million silken ropes of the media lasso him and pull him down.

This is not new technology. E-mail is about 27 years old, person-to-person texting 16. Yet smart, powerful, prominent men in amorous situations seem unable to understand the brute facts. As in "e-mail is forever." (Even if you melt down your computer, your e-mail is on someone else's hard drive, too.) As in "text messages and voice mail are not secure." Not. Secure.

Corzine has had many a squirming moment because of e-mails (745 pages' worth) between himself and former girlfriend and union leader Karla Katz. In May 2008, a judge ordered the e-mails released. They've been the subject of a court battle ever since.

Sanford, now battling the South Carolina legislature to keep his job and with wife Jenny to keep his marriage, sent delirious, poetic e-mails to his Argentine lover, Maria Belen Chapur: "How in the world this lightning strike snuck up on us I am still not quite sure. ... It was all safe. Where we are is not. ... I wish I could wish it away." He probably wishes it even more, now that the State newspaper of Columbia, S.C., has published several passionate e-mails.

Ensign has plummeted from grace in Nevada after discovery of his affair with Cindy Hampton, wife of his chief of staff, Doug Hampton. Hampton the Husband intercepted a text message from Ensign on Hampton the Wife's cell phone: "How wonderful it is. ... Scared, but excited." Confronted, the illicit pair swore they'd stop. They didn't, evidently. Months later, Husband, understandably vigilant, borrowed Ensign's cell phone one day and found out his wife was still listed under the pseudonym Aunt Judy.

There seems to be a disconnect between the way we think about intimate communication and the facts of mobile texting. Immediate and quick, texting can seem just-me-and-you. But again and again, texters' texts get all over the place.

Quan says, "We want relationships to be based on spontaneity and trust — for example, 'I trust you to keep our messages private.' So when we're in intimate relationships, we tend not to set formal rules of communication. Setting rules might be a good idea, but almost nobody ever does it, because that's robotic and not how relationships work. It's very unusual for people even to think of that at the beginning of a relationship."

It's somehow appropriate that Woods' apology to the world Wednesday came via the Web, on his personal site: "I have been dismayed to realize the full extent of what tabloid scrutiny really means."

Perhaps he is finally starting to get the message.

Twin Falls Council to pick new financial officer

Times-News

The Twin Falls City Council will vote on a new chief financial officer at its meeting today.

The council will meet at 5 p.m. in Council Chambers, 305 Third Ave. E. City Manager Tom Courtney is requesting that the council appoint Lorie Race, who has been the acting CFO since Gary Evans retired in August from the job.

Race has worked for Twin Falls since 1989 and worked as the budget coordinator and the assistant financial director. She became the assistant financial director in 1992.

The recommendation comes following a five-month nationwide search and interviews with five candidates, according to a memo Courtney wrote to the council.

Race has a degree in accounting from Idaho State University.

In other business, the council will discuss a proposed ordinance that would ban smoking in bars and bowling alleys. City council members have expressed an interest in a ban as a way of safeguarding the health of employees in those establishments.

Heyburn City Council approves motion

By Laurie Welch
Times-News writer

HEYBURN — After a public hearing Tuesday the Heyburn City Council approved a motion to have the city attorney prepare an ordinance to annex and zone a parcel of property at 21st Street and K Street where the new Heyburn Fire Station will be built.

The council will vote on the ordinance at its next meeting.

No one spoke in opposition of either measure.

Councilman Rocky Baker abstained from the deliberation and the vote because he is a firefighter.

Heyburn Planning and Zoning Chairwoman Donna Meade said the P&Z recommended the city annex the property and zone it commercial general.

Minidoka County Community Development Director Paul Aston said the 5.5 acres should receive a commercial general designation rather than commercial local, which is more restrictive.

Aston said the commercial local designation would still allow the fire station to be located on the property but the surrounding property has already been zoned commercial general.

Minidoka County Fire Protection District Chief Mike Brown said the fire station has been put out to bid which will be awarded on Jan. 18. Construction is expected to begin mid-February and will be completed within a year.

Cost of the 7,500 square-foot station is expected to come in at $700,000 and the station will have at least five bays for fire trucks, a training room and office space. The station is one of three operated by the Minidoka County Fire Protection District. The other two are East End Fire Department and Northside Fire Department.

The district is currently seeking funds to build a new station for East End as well, which shares the building housing the Rupert fire department.

Jerome Council to ponder impact fees

By John Plestina
Times-News writer

JEROME — Growth in Jerome is projected to take off in the next 10 years. And somebody will have to pay for it.

The Jerome City Council on Tuesday will consider adding a chapter addressing impact fees to the city's proposed comprehensive plan. But questions loom over whether all annexed home and business owners would pay the construction fees that fund municipal improvements necessitated by growth.

The Planning and Zoning Commission voted 3-1 last Tuesday to recommend the inclusion of impact fees to the council. P&Z Chairman Rob Mink cast the lone dissenting vote, while commissioners Ken Hall and Nicole Spencer were absent.

Following an impact fee study, the council had requested that planning and zoning approve the recommendation.

"The council wants to get this off the ground and make it law as soon as possible after the new year begins," said Assistant City Administrator Micah Austin.

"The council can change this. They can cut this up," he said, stressing that P&Z approval doesn't make the impact fee proposal law until the City Council OKs it. The proposal calls for establishing fees that would funnel into a capital improvement fund for future infrastructure improvements for streets, police, fire and other municipal services.

The city is looking at growth that could nearly triple in a decade. The current official population of the city is about 9,000 but estimates that came from an impact fee study raised the number to as high as 11,000. There is an estimate of a population of 28,000 in nine years, but some municipal officials are questioning if it would be as high, according to Austin.

Projections are based on growth patterns in recent years and potential annexations of populated areas currently under Jerome County jurisdiction.

Proposed fees are $2.91 per square foot for commercial properties and $1.16 per square foot for industrial. A fee of $2,244 per residential structure is also proposed.

When Mink voted against the recommendation, he raised questions of whether the fees would apply to new construction only or if the city could force all homeowners and businesses located in currently unincorporated areas facing annexation to pay. He also asked if people who have already taken out permits and begun construction of new homes would be exempt. The study did not address those questions.

P&Z Commissioner George Christodoulou said he felt the proposed impact fees are reasonable. He said there were much higher impact fees where he formerly lived in California. He also said it took at last an hour or longer for police services in California to arrive when 911 calls were placed.

Children greet Santa at T.F. airport

By John Plestina
Times-News writer

The reindeer took a Saturday off and the sleigh got a polishing as Santa and two elves arrived in Twin Falls Saturday by helicopter.

It's not the first time that pilot Tim Allen of Reeder Flying Service flew the portly toy mogul into Magic Valley Regional Airport with children waiting to tell him what they wanted.

The second consecutive Santa fly-in is actually at least the fifth time it was done at the local airport, said Donna Newbry, the airport's administrative assistant.

With bad weather last year, only a few children turned out. Despite light snow, about 50 children met Santa Claus on Saturday. That was partly due to participation this year by the Twin Falls School District. The event also was open to the children of airport employees.

Jose Rendon brought his excited 3-year-old son to meet Santa. He said it was the first time he brought his son to the airport event.

DREW GODLESKI/For the Times-News

Santa Claus arrives by helicopter at the Twin Falls airport Saturday. He and Kileigh Sigglin, 6, leave the helicopter to greet children from the Wishing Star Foundation who'd come to the Santa fly-in event at the airport.

Bobbie Miles said she didn't have an opportunity to bring her son last year because she was working. Her son now 2 years old, was able to meet Santa.

"I heard about it at work," she said. "I think he's going to be excited. Hopefully he'll get in Santa's lap."

Tiona Ellifritz brought four children.

"My daughter's school sent us flyers yesterday," she said.

Wishing Star is a sponsor of the Santa fly-in.

"It is like Make-A-Wish. We do the same things," said Wishing Star's Magic Valley Chapter President Alli Vargas. She added that Wishing Star is three years older than Make-A-Wish and exclusively serves Idaho and Eastern Washington children with life-threatening illnesses.

Accenture marks 1st sponsor to cut ties with Woods

The Associated Press

Global consulting firm Accenture PLC has ended its relationship with Tiger Woods, marking the first major sponsor to cut ties altogether with the golfer since his alleged infidelities surfaced and he announced an indefinite leave from the sport to work on his marriage.

In its first statement since the Woods' scandal erupted, Accenture said Sunday the golfer is "no longer the right representative" after the "circumstances of the last two weeks." The move ends a six-year relationship during which the firm credited its "Go on, be a Tiger" campaign with boosting its image significantly. Accenture has used Woods to personify its claimed attributes of integrity and high performance.

"After careful consideration and analysis, the company has determined that he is no longer the right representative for its advertising," Accenture said, adding that "it wishes only the best for Tiger Woods and his family."

The firm plans to immediately transition to a new advertising campaign, with a major effort scheduled to launch later in 2010. An Accenture spokeswoman declined to comment further. Advertising firm Young & Rubicam, which has handled the company's Tiger Woods ads, also would not comment on the move.

One of the risks of advertising tied to a celebrity is that "your image gets carried by someone you can't control," said Jonathan Bernstein, president of Bernstein Crisis Management.

"They definitely understand there's damage," Bernstein said of Accenture.

Tiger Woods, left, and caddie Steve Williams celebrate Woods' win over J.B. Holmes on the No. 18 green during the first round of the Accenture Match Play Championship golf tournament at The Gallery at Dove Mountain, in Marana, Ariz., in February 2008. Global consulting and outsourcing firm Accenture is ending its sponsorship of Tiger Woods.

Accenture's advertising campaign was almost entirely built around Woods and his success, portraying his ability to sink a key putt or hit out of the rough. If Woods had acknowledged mistakes and said he would be back in a month, Accenture might be able to ride it out, said Rick Burton, a professor of sports management at Syracuse University, in an interview.

But Accenture can't afford to wait for what could be a long time before Woods returns.

"They had tied everything in their campaign to Tiger Woods it appeared," he said. "If he's not golfing, those ads don't make sense."

Burton said Accenture's billboards and airport advertising need to be replaced quickly. Without a backup plan, the company might fall back on something simple and conservative that could highlight its logo.

The PGA Tour said it would have no comment.

Accenture has been title sponsor since 2001 of the Match Play Championship, a lucrative World Golf Championship event that draws the top 64 players from the world ranking. Accenture earlier this year renewed its sponsorship of the tournament through 2014. The contract is separate from its business endorsement with Woods.

Woods' array of endorsements helped him become the first sports star to earn $1 billion, according to Forbes. But while not terminating its relationship completely, another major Woods sponsor pulled away this weekend.

On Saturday, Gillette, which uses the slogan "The best a man can get," said it won't air advertisements featuring Woods or include him in public appearances for an unspecified time.

Other sponsors continue to stick with Woods for the time being. Electronic Arts, whose EA Sports division has been selling Tiger Woods video golf games for a decade, said Sunday, "We respect that this is a very difficult, and private, situation for Tiger and his family. At this time, the strategy for our Tiger Woods PGA TOUR business remains unchanged." The game's next edition featuring Woods comes out in six months.

Grizzlies maul Idaho women in Mont.

Times-News

MISSOULA, Mont. — The University of Idaho women's basketball team is on its second string of five consecutive losses following Sunday's blowout loss to Montana at Dahlberg Arena. The Grizzlies won 73-49 by "physically handling" the Vandals, according to U of I head coach Jon Newlee.

"They were bigger and stronger and took advantage of it down in the paint," Newlee said. "As a team, we played soft and we paid for it."

Idaho, playing with an active roster of just eight players, was led by junior Rachele Kloke, who scored 17 points. Sophomore Shaena Kuehu also added 17 on five 3-pointers, but the rest of the Vandals combined for just 15 points.

The Grizzlies used a 7-0 run to end the first half, and then used a 14-1 run, helped along by six Idaho turnovers, to take a 56-33 lead midway through the second half.

As a team, Idaho was 17-of-53 (.321) from the floor and 7-of-22 (.318) from 3-point range. Montana hit 45.6 percent and outscored Idaho by a 36-12 margin in the paint.

The Vandals made the trip without guard Charlotte Otero and post Yinka Olorunnife, who are serving suspensions for conduct detrimental to the team.

The Vandals (1-10) travel to California on Sunday to face Long Beach State.

NATIONAL FOOTBALL LEAGUE

Indianapolis, New Orleans now 13-0

Colts break records with victory over Denver

By Michael Marot
Associated Press writer

INDIANAPOLIS — Peyton Manning watched disbelievingly one pass after another hit the ground Sunday.

Then he demonstrated how an undefeated team survives the perfect storm.

After throwing three early TDs, then three inexplicable interceptions, Manning led the Colts on a late TD drive to beat Denver 28-16, breaking NFL records for most consecutive regular-season wins (22) and most wins in a decade (114), plus wrapping up home-field advantage throughout the AFC playoffs.

"I thought Denver made some plays, and we had some bad luck with bouncing balls there," Manning said. "We kind of weathered the storm, and the defense did a great job. So it was kind of two different games in terms of momentum, but fortunately we finished on a high note."

So high it's previously unreachable by any NFL team.

It was quite a day in Indy, which celebrated its 22nd consecutive win. The Colts broke a tie with New England, which set the mark last year, and became the seventh team in league history to start 13-0, including this year's New Orleans Saints. Indy also was 13-0 in 2005 before losing three of the last four, including a divisional-round playoff game to Pittsburgh.

Indy's 114th victory of the decade broke a tie with the 1990s San Francisco 49ers and set a franchise record with its 13th consecutive home win.

"It does (feel good)," linebacker Clint Session said of the records. "I'm a part of history right now, so it feels real good. It's something we can tell our kids and grandkids that we did something no one else had done. It's definitely a great accomplishment."

Denver (8-5) also had a record day. Receiver Brandon Marshall broke the league's single-game record with 21 receptions. He finished with 200 yards and two touchdowns, tying the reception record on a 5-yard TD catch with 9:44 left in the game to make it 21-16 and broke the record on the Broncos' final play.

Brees, Vilma help Saints through close call

By Paul Newberry
Associated Press writer

ATLANTA — The New Orleans Saints are still perfect, which is all that matters.

They're not the least bit worried about another close call.

Drew Brees threw for 296 yards and three touchdowns, Jonathan Vilma came up with two huge defensive plays, and the Saints pulled out another tight win, 26-23 over the pesky Atlanta Falcons on Sunday.

A week ago, New Orleans (13-0) appeared on the verge of losing until Washington missed a chip-shot field goal in regulation. The Saints rallied for a 33-30 overtime win.

This time, they struggled to hold off an Atlanta team that was missing injured stars Matt Ryan and Michael Turner. The result was in doubt until Vilma came up with a crushing fourth-down hit on Jason Snelling, stopping him a yard short of the marker with just over a minute remaining.

New Orleans joined Indianapolis, also a winner

Sunday, as one of seven NFL teams to reach 13-0. Still, these last two games have been the closest margins of a season dominated by double-digit wins.

A cause for concern? "Why would we be concerned? We're 13-0," Vilma said. "You're not going to get many blowout wins in the NFL."

Or, as Brees said, "We call that being battle-tested."

While lacking in style points, New Orleans set a franchise record for wins in a season, clinched a first-round bye in the playoffs and moved a step closer to home-field advantage throughout the NFC playoffs.

Garrett Hartley put New Orleans back ahead on a 38-yard field goal with a 4:42 remaining after the Falcons rallied from two touchdowns down to tie it at 23.

Atlanta still had a couple of chances to pull out an improbable victory.

Vilma stopped them both. As for the Saints, they're chasing history. Three more wins to go for a perfect regular season, something that only three other teams have done.

Phelps wins again, takes 200 butterfly at NBAC Christmas meet in Annapolis

The Associated Press

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — Michael Phelps won the 200-yard butterfly Sunday, giving the 14-time Olympic champion five first-place finishes in five events at the three-day NBAC Christmas meet at the U.S. Naval Academy.

Phelps, swimming for the host North Baltimore Aquatic Club, finished in 1 minute, 42.29 seconds, nearly 3 seconds ahead of Todd Patrick.

"I'm not where I need to be in terms of my fitness, but then I knew coming in that I have a lot to do to be in the best shape to swim the times I want to swim. But this was a stepping stone to that," Phelps said. "I swam three-quarters of two real good 200s (in the freestyle and butterfly) and in the 400 IM, I was happy with that."

During the meet's first two days, Phelps won the 100 backstroke, 100 butterfly, 200 freestyle and 400 individual medley. He had also been scheduled to swim in the 100 freestyle on Sunday and swam in preliminaries, but skipped the final to concentrate on the 200 fly. The two events were 22 minutes apart.

Phelps said he will compete next with the U.S. team in this weekend's Duel in the Pool short-course meet in Manchester, England, against an international team of swimmers from England, Germany and Italy. After that, he plans to train for three weeks at the Olympic training center in Colorado Springs, Colo.

More than 600 swimmers from age 10 and up competed in the GBAC meet, in its 36th year. Phelps had competed here many times as a youth and teenager, but last swam in the NBAC event in 2004.

Phelps, who had a subpar performance last month in World Cup meets in Berlin and Stockholm, grew up competing in the youth-based NBAC meet, so he felt it was a good site for a training swim after a period of about six weeks when he took a lull from his normally intense regimen.

"We accomplished everything we came here to do, especially in seeing where he is in his short-course swims in relation to his best times," said Phelps' coach, Bob Bowman. "This meet showed he needs to be in better shape."

Vikings close in on NFC North title

MINNEAPOLIS — Adrian Peterson had 97 yards and two touchdowns, pushing Minnesota past mistake-prone Cincinnati 30-10.

Peterson added 40 yards receiving and set a single-season team record with 14 rushing touchdowns, moving Minnesota (11-2) within one more win of a second straight NFC North title.

Brett Favre completed 17 of 30 passes for 192 yards, one touchdown and an interception for the Vikings.

Cincinnati's Carson Palmer was 15 for 25 for a season-low 94 yards and one touchdown, and Cedric Benson's 16 carries for 96 yards gave him his first 1,000-yard season but left the Bengals short of 100 for the first time in a month.

EAGLES 45, GIANTS 38

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Dynamic DeSean Jackson tied an NFL record for long touchdowns and carried the Philadelphia Eagles to the top of the NFC East on Sunday night.

Jackson scored on a 72-yard punt return and a 60-yard pass from Donovan McNabb, sparking the Eagles to their most points this season in a 45-38 shootout victory over the New York Giants.

The second-year wide receiver missed last week with a concussion, but was in sensational form in boosting Philadelphia (9-4) into prime position for the playoffs. He has eight touchdowns of 50-plus yards this year.

TEXANS 34, SEAHAWKS 7

HOUSTON — Matt Schaub and Andre Johnson put together their best game of the season to help Houston snap out of a slump and keep its dwindling playoff hopes alive.

Johnson had a season-high 193 yards receiving and two touchdowns to lead the Texans (6-7) over Seattle (5-8), breaking a four-game losing streak.

Schaub had 336 yards passing before halftime and finished with 365 yards and two touchdowns. His first-half yardage was the second-most in a first half this season in the NFL.

PACKERS 21, BEARS 14

CHICAGO — Ryan Grant ran for 137 yards and two touchdowns, and Green Bay beat Chicago after letting a lead slip away.

Grant broke off a season-long 62-yard touchdown on the Packers' first play from scrimmage and scored the go-ahead TD in the fourth quarter after Nick Collins intercepted Jay Cutler.

Aaron Rodgers threw for 180 yards, Jermichael Finley caught five passes for 70, and Charles Woodson added his 44th career interception for the Packers (9-4), who have won five straight.

RAVENS 48, LIONS 3

BALTIMORE — Ray Rice ran for a career-high 166 yards and a touchdown, and Baltimore enhanced its playoff hopes with a rout of Detroit.

Baltimore (7-6) built a 20-3 halftime lead behind the play of Rice, who had 155 yards rushing on only nine carries, and four catches for 53 yards. His 59-yard touchdown run made it 17-3, and the Ravens cruised to the finish in handing the hapless Lions (2-11) their 19th straight road loss.

Rice was pulled early in second half, and his backups continued the assault. Le'Ron McClain scored from the 3 and Willis McGahee added touchdown runs of 6 and 19 yards to make it 41-3 entering the fourth quarter.

PATRIOTS 20, PANTHERS 10

FOXBOROUGH, Mass. — New England shook off a poor first half, went ahead with 1:06 left in the third quarter on Tom Brady's 5-yard touchdown pass to Benjamin Watson and beat Carolina.

The Patriots (8-5) snapped a two-game losing streak and maintained their one-game lead in the AFC East. The Panthers (5-8) lost for the third time in four games.

The Patriots lost two fumbles and an interception before Brady's pass to Watson broke a 7-7 tie, and Stephen Gostkowski kicked field goals of 48 and 47 yards in the fourth quarter. New England didn't score its first touchdown until 1:08 remained in the first half when Kevin Faulk ran in from 3 yards.

BILLS 16, CHIEFS 10

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Rian Lindell kicked three field goals, and Buffalo intercepted Matt Cassel four times to beat struggling Kansas City.

Buffalo (5-8) overcame three turnovers and an ineffective passing game to finally close out a win in the fourth quarter. The Bills had lost seven times this season when they were within a touchdown headed into the final 15 minutes, pulling this one out with two interceptions in the final 2:11.

Kansas City (3-10) got a career-high 143 yards and a touchdown from Jamaal Charles, but couldn't overcome another shaky game from Cassel, who threw three interceptions in the fourth quarter.

JETS 26, BUCCANEERS 3

TAMPA, Fla. — Thomas Jones ran for 99 yards and two touchdowns, Jay Feely kicked four field goals, and the New York Jets intercepted rookie Josh Freeman three times while holding sputtering Tampa Bay to 135 yards.

Filling in for injured rookie quarterback Mark Sanchez, Kellen Clemens completed 12 of 23 passes for just 111 yards. Receiver Brad Smith had the Jets' longest completion of the day — 27 yards — when he threw to Eric Smith on a fake punt play.

DOLPHINS 14, JAGUARS 10

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. — Chad Henne completed a team-record 17 consecutive passes, Ricky Williams ran for 108 yards and a score and Miami beat Jacksonville.

The loss snapped Jacksonville's five-game winning streak at home, and now the Jaguars (7-6) no longer control their wild-card hopes.

CHARGERS 20, COWBOYS 17

ARLINGTON, Texas — Philip Rivers hit Antonio Gates for a go-ahead touchdown in the fourth quarter, lifting San Diego over Dallas.

San Diego (10-3) is its eighth straight and is on the verge of a playoff berth. The Chargers also won their 16th straight in December, all with Rivers.

TITANS 47, RAMS 7

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Chris Johnson ran for 117 yards and two touchdowns and took a short pass 66 yards for another score to lead Tennessee to a rout of woeful St. Louis.

The Titans (6-7) must win out and get plenty of help after their 0-6 start. But they started a three-game homestand by handing the struggling Rams (1-12) a fifth straight loss even with Vince Young sidelined by a strained right hamstring most of the game.

REDSKINS 34, RAIDERS 13

OAKLAND, Calif. — Jason Campbell threw two touchdowns passes to Washington the lead, and Quinton Ganther put it away by running for two fourth-quarter scores. The Redskins had lost three straight, blowing leads of six, eight and 10 points, before beating the bottom-dwelling Raiders.

Budget ax will fall on Idaho's public schools

There are two halves to the Idaho state budget. One half — actually, 52 percent — pays for public schools. The other half covers the rest of state government.

Through budget cuts by the Legislature and a series of holdbacks by Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter, that 48 percent has borne the brunt of budget reductions to the point that there's little left that can be cut.

Idaho Department of Health and Welfare spending is governed by federal Medicaid mandates that require the state to pay for certain programs. The Department of Correction has been trimmed to the point where it can barely guarantee public safety. Idaho higher education has shed 17 percent of its state-funded budget in the past year.

So for all the talk around the Statehouse about closing state agencies, consolidating services and selling off state buildings, it's pretty clear big reductions are coming to kindergarten through grade 12.

So far, the governor and lawmakers have moved heaven and Earth to avoid that, using up the state's reserve funds to hold the public schools "harmless" from Idaho's worst budget crisis since the 1930s.

They can't do that much longer.

The two dozen Idaho school districts that have declared budget emergencies — allowing them to cut teacher pay and contract length — will very likely grow to a majority of the state's 114 districts by the end of the 2010-2011 school year.

There will be layoffs among both teaching and administrative personnel, less money for textbooks and transportation, and larger class sizes.

Question is, how long will they last?

If the governor and the Legislature are wise, public education can come back quickly once tax collections — and hence state revenue — rebound. So the cuts must be strategic, and designed to save core programs.

The state must involve teachers, parents and administrators in this process. They're in a far better position to decide what their local districts can — and can't — do without.

Job One for lawmakers is keeping Idaho's public schools viable. They have their work cut out.

Our view:

The most difficult task of all awaits legislative budget-writers: Leaving Idaho public schools in a position to rebound when the economy improves.

The real stakes in Afghanistan

Oddly, President Obama's West Point speech never probed the critical long-term stakes for the United States in Afghanistan and Pakistan. Three issues central to the outcome should enter the public debate as his strategy is launched.

The first is America's place in the world in the 21st century. Officials from Moscow to Beijing, from Iran's revolutionaries to Somalia's pirates, will scrutinize this last-ditch U.S. effort — and weigh their actions, reactions and interactions with the United States on how Obama's effort fares.

Failure by the world's mightiest military power, backed by the largest military alliance, to uproot the Taliban would vividly illustrate the limits of U.S. power. The consequences could dwarf those of the defeat in Vietnam, even if the loss of life was smaller.

The era of a unipolar or uni-power world is effectively over, but a U.S. failure in Afghanistan and Pakistan could mark its formal end, just as it did for the bipolar world when the Soviet Union withdrew from Afghanistan. Indeed, the period from Vietnam to Afghanistan could come to be seen as the period marking the demise of American power.

And not just "gun" power. At its core, American power is also supposed to be about moral power — using might to confront, contain or prevent fascist, totalitarian or unjust regimes from unacceptable aggression.

American power has been abused. Neither party has clean hands. But few other nations have been willing or able to assume that role.

U.S. standing in the Islamic world is also at stake. The historic rule of thumb is that winners have influence; losers don't. Winners get to set standards. Their ideas get more attention. Their leaders gain greater authority.

And the outcome of the U.S. confrontation with various branches of al-Qaida and the Taliban is pivotal to the future of the Islamic world. Almost a decade after the Sept. 11 attacks, the Muslim world is at a crossroads. Polls show key Muslim societies are increasingly rejecting extremism. Vast numbers of Muslims now recognize that Bin Ladenism can't provide answers to everyday challenges such as education, housing, jobs and health care. There's an air of fatigue about al-Qaida; it's becoming somewhat passe. The search is on for something better.

U.S. strategy in South Asia is now based not only on defeat of the forces behind the Sept. 11 attacks; it's also designed to help build credible alternatives to extremist ideologies and governance. Winning on this front in Pakistan and Afghanistan is as important as the military campaign. The winner is likely to have greater sway among the world's 1.3 billion Muslims. And "winner" means not so much the United States as the principles, such as more accountable government, modern education and economic opportunity from legitimate trades.

Finally, U.S. interests in the wider region are also at stake, notably on two fronts.

Obama's strategy will deeply affect India, the world's largest democracy. Long-standing tensions between Pakistan and India have taken the world closer to the brink of nuclear war than any conflict has since World War II — and still could, since Pakistan has failed to contain extremists responsible for terrorist atrocities in India, including the Mumbai attacks last year. U.S. failure to help nuclear Pakistan expand or shift its military focus from India to the more immediate threat from its internal extremists risks allowing those tensions to deepen.

Just as worrisome are the stakes with Iran, which borders both Pakistan and Afghanistan. Afghanistan has become for Iran what Iraq once was: a surrogate battlefield with the United States. Once Afghanistan's rival, Shiite-dominated Iran has reportedly supplied the same weapons and explosives to Sunni Taliban fighters that it provided Shiite militias in Iraq, on the principle that the enemy of my enemy is my friend — at least for now.

Iran manipulated the problems that ensued after the U.S. invasions of Afghanistan and Iraq. In the process, it has become a regional superpower rivaled only by Israel. U.S. failures in Afghanistan and Pakistan would further strengthen Iran's position as its increasingly authoritarian government cracks down on a legitimate opposition movement and threatens to expand its nuclear program.

Many Americans are tired of the war in Afghanistan. We're alarmed at the cost in human life to all sides, the drain on our national treasury and armed forces and the length of this conflict. We have doubts that the fast-paced initiative Obama has proposed will work. But as U.S. actions are evaluated over the next 18 months, we should remember that the outcome will determine America's goals and standing far beyond the South Asian theater for years to come.

'Twelve Days' origin doesn't ring true

I would urge Steve Crump to do a little fact-checking on his article of Dec. 9 regarding the origin of the song, "Twelve Days of Christmas."

This urban legend provides a colorful but likely misinformed origin for the Christmas carol by explaining that the song was created as a learning tool for oppressed Christians in England hundreds of years ago. Let's think about that for a minute.

Why would Christians of the time need a coded song to sing during a Christian religious holiday? Singing any Christmas carol should identify the singer as one who observes the holiday and thus the religion. Secondly, what did the oppressed Christians of the time sing the other 11 months of the year to preserve and pass on their message?

Please visit Snopes.com or one of the other online urban legend resources before passing on a story that may not hold up. Remember the three greatest lies known to man:

1. We're from the government and we're here to help.
2. We're happy to see you and glad that you're here.
3. I saw it on the Internet so it must be true.

Is TV transforming our dreams and lives?

How powerful is television?

(From Slate Magazine) "Cornell University researchers are reporting what appears to be a statistically significant relationship between autism rates and television watching by children under the age of three."

I'm not an expert on autism, but recently I took a refresher psychology class at the College of Southern Idaho. When we arrived at the chapter on dreams, something reminded me of the textbook from my previous psyche class three decades ago. Back then, a statement claimed that 95 percent of us Americans dream in black and white. That study was from the early '60s, an era when we watched more than 90 percent of TV shows through black and white sets.

The textbook from my recent CSI class, posted precisely the opposite: that 95 percent of us now dream in living color! What was there to explain for this grand shift? Is there a correlation between the tones of Americans dreams and the types of TVs they own?

This made me wonder: Is television high-definition hypnotism, a force so powerful that not only does it connect as a crucial cause of autism when used as a primary babysitter but also that its programming transforms our dream colors?

Allred a credible choice for governor seat

Regarding the Allred announcement for governor:

Finally, with Keith Allred's announcement for governor in 2010 we have someone who I believe has serious credibility to challenge Gov. Otter. Please take the time to read "The Common Interest" on the Internet, which explains Mr. Allred's belief that consensus can be reached on all issues.

The goal is to get beyond partisan politics and reach common ground that will benefit all the electorate. The constant bickering and political gamesmanship does nothing to solve the issues that are paralyzing our citizens. Just saying "no" is not a viable option. "No" does not create jobs, it does not get much-needed services to people who need them and it certainly does not help in education.

Before you dismiss Mr. Allred as a Democrat or as the Times-News says a "wink" take the time to research, read and digest his perception on the role of government.

Earth is always going through global warming

So the Earth is warming, so what? The earth has undergone cyclic climatic temperature variations since the beginning of time: "Uncooked data" gathered from tree ring studies, glacial core samples and historical records from various civilizations, many of which existed before the recent industrial age. There were records of warming trends during the glory years of the Roman Empire and of cooling trends during the Dark Ages. Evidently there were no huge inputs of human-produced "greenhouse gases" to which the climatic trends can be attributed. Volcanic actions certainly could have contributed but humans cannot take credit for them.

Astrophysicists give us ample evidence for answering the question, "What is the major force which causes earth's atmospheric temperature changes?" The answer is "The sun!" Solar cycles are the most powerful influences which affect earth's climate. The data show that solar storms and "spots" cause increased atmospheric temperature and then the carbon dioxide follows the temperature increase, not the opposite, as fools such as Al Gore and the "cap and trade" gurus would have you believe.

My source is the book "Unstoppable Solar Cycles: The Real Story of Greenland." Google the title; it is also available on DVD.

One might ask, "What causes the solar cycles?" My answer is it sure isn't mankind. We don't have that kind of power, but I can refer you to the One who does. Read the first several chapters of Genesis. Also read Revelation and know that He will someday turn off the sun. If you don't believe this, all I can do is echo the Psalmist who wrote, "The fool has said in his heart 'There is no God!'"

It is time to opt out of daylight saving time

To all Idaho residents: Idaho is still on daylight saving time. At least every-one west of Bliss is. The Pacific Time Zone starts at the 115th meridian which is near Bliss; west of there, Mountain Time is actually the same as daylight saving time. During the summer western Idaho is actually on double daylight saving time.

I believe it is time for Idaho to opt out of daylight saving time. Because the 115th meridian splits the state and the remainder of the state is located at the extreme west of the Mountain time zone, opting out would be appropriate. Arizona has done it.

The change to and from daylight saving time is inconvenient, serves no purpose, contributes to heart attacks and is expensive (Times-News opinion article Oct. 31 by W. Shughart, professor of economics at the University of Mississippi).

In the spring the time change takes place at just about the time when school children are no longer walking to the bus in the dark, thereby extending the darkness for another hour.

I don't know of anyone who likes the change to daylight saving time. If you agree we should opt out of daylight saving time, contact your legislator. Do it now before the 2010 session.

Area doesn't need more high voltage lines

Having lived a half mile north of Hagerman for 25 years, I know the area very well. From my home, I can already see at least five high voltage power lines converging on the Lower Salmon Dam area. We don't need more transmission lines, 145 to 190 feet tall, generating 500 kv's in an already congested area.

Gateway West, Idaho Power and the Bureau of Land Management are in the process, this very moment, of deciding whether to go with the proposed Segment 8 corridor route, north of I-84 (well away from the towns of Wendell, Hagerman, Bliss) or the Alternate Segment SA corridor route, which will run close to Wendell and down into the Hagerman Valley coming within one mile north of town.

To encourage the BLM, who is going to make the final decision, not to use the Alternate Segment 8A Route, myself and others have noted some facts that the powers in charge have missed or chosen to ignore: interference with the Billingsley State Park, interference with the newly remodeled park and boat docks above and below Lower Salmon Dam, health impacts from electromagnetic fields (Google: power lines/health issues), the lowering of real estate values due to fear of electromagnetic fields and visual interferences, possible effects on many historical sites such as the Oregon Trail and Toana Road which has been added to the Register of Historical Sites, obtaining easements or using their power of eminent domain to secure rights of way from property owners such as Willow Lane and Billingsley Creek Estates residents, Billingsley

State Park and others, and interference with recreational activities such as hunting, fishing and boating.

I encourage those of you who do not want to see the Alternate Segment 8A corridor become a reality in this area to express your concerns as soon as possible to the Bureau of Land Management, P.O. Not all state leases owned by the wealthy

The editorial of Dec. 8 ("Leasegate") states that state land leaseholders are "wealthy people from the Treasure Valley and Spokane, Wash., area."

I would like to set the record straight that not all leaseholders are wealthy people. In fact, my grandparents built a cabin on Priest Lake in the early 1940s at a time when the leases were affordable. My grandparents used local materials to construct the two-room cabin with their bare hands. There were no roads leading to the lot, and my grandparents had to travel by boat. To this day, my 91-year-old grandmother spends her summers there. My family is not wealthy and we have paid our leases for more than 60 years.

Perhaps the editorial staff at the Times-News should contact the Priest Lake Lessee's Association or a similar association on Payette before making grand assumptions about the types of people who are leasing land from the state.

To imply that my family is somehow robbing the state's public education fund is reckless and misguided. My sister and I both graduated from public Idaho universities and my mother, sister, aunt, cousin and grandmother are either current public school employees or are retired public school employees. The very fabric of my family is entwined with public education, along with enjoying the public land that Idaho has to offer. Should leases be raised by the some of the rates suggested, we may be priced out of our cabin so that some "wealthy person" can take over our lease.

Considerations like ours have contributed to the Land Board keeping leases at a reasonable level for years. Our experiences at Priest Lake are invaluable and I hope to be able to share those same experiences with my grandchildren.

Irresponsible editorials like this only lead to misconceptions among our citizens, without considering the consequences that such opinions may have.

German prisoners weren't all killers

Some comments about Steve Crump's piece, "Die-hard Nazis filled Camp Rupert" (Times-News, Dec. 4):

I remember driving by the camp, which was right beside the road between Paul and Rupert. We never heard that they were all supposed to be SS bad guys. A number of them labored in farm fields across the Magic Valley.

I specifically recall seeing a group of German prisoners thinning beets in a field along Highway 93 a couple of miles south of Highway 30. An empty bus which had brought them was sitting there, and soldiers were sitting in Jeeps with mounted machine guns on each end of the field while the prisoners worked stooped over between them. I wouldn't think they would have been doing that if they were all ruthless killers as Crump's sources claim.

In 1943, the government brought in Jamaicans as farm laborers to work principally in the sugar beet fields. In 1944, it was German prisoners doing the work. The Mexicans returned after the war. There were something like 10,000 Japanese-Americans nearby in the Hunt Camp, but I don't recall ever seeing any of them laboring in the fields.

America will endure as long as American spirit

Just some trivia about seconds.

Man lives for approx. 2.36 billion seconds. It has been 7.34 billion seconds since the Declaration of Independence. It has been 63.34 billion seconds since Christ was crucified. It has been 157.68 billion seconds since the pyramids were started. One trillion seconds equal 31,709 years or 317 centuries. It takes 31,250 tons of gold at $1,000 an ounce to equal $1 billion.

Maybe our government is spending too much. Rome endured as long as there were Romans. America will endure as long as we remain American in spirit and thought (David Starr Jordan).

Roger Anderson

Roger Anderson of Twin Falls died peacefully at his home on Dec. 10, 2009. He was surrounded by family and friends.

Roger was born Sept. 20, 1936, in Duchesne, Utah. He moved to Jerome, Idaho, with his family in the mid-1940s. He graduated from Jerome High School in 1954. After high school he joined the National Guard and while serving his country, made many lifelong friends. In 1958 he married Pat Steinbruck and had two children, Randy and Shelly Anderson. Roger and Pat divorced and he married Trudy Denton and helped raise Trudy's daughter, Tracee Shank. Later, Roger and Trudy divorced and in 1981 he married the love of his life, Sue Cheney. Roger and Sue raised Sue's three daughters, Kelly Stropel, Tammy Wilson and Tanya Harrell. Roger was fond of saying he raised 10 girls (must have seemed that way).

For most of his career, Roger was in the automotive business. Roger's father, Burt, was in the auto repair business for a number of years and this influenced Roger to pursue a career in the automotive business. He started at Mendenhall's Auto Parts in the 1950s, working behind the counter and as a deliveryman. He worked his way up in the automotive business, holding a number of sales and management positions and accumulated numerous awards along the way. After a long career at Motor Merc, where he was the general manager of southern Idaho and northern Utah. Roger retired from the corporate world and started his own small business called Roger's Tool. He continued to work at this business, sometimes full time and sometimes part time, for many years and has many friends in the automotive industry.

Roger had many interests and hobbies but a common theme ran through all. His interests revolved around the mountains and his cabin on Big Smokey Creek, north of Fairfield, Idaho. He helped his father build this cabin in the late '40s and early '50s and never tired of the peace and tranquility he found in the mountains. He was one of the first people in southern Idaho to own a snow machine; the main reason for the snow machine was to get to the cabin in the winter. He loved to tie flies and fly fish on big Smokey Creek, near the cabin. He learned to ski on Soldier Mountain at the age of 44 (also near the cabin). Grudgingly he hunted deer and elk with his son near the cabin and was forever hoping they didn't shoot anything ... too much work. Roger and his wife Sue went on a number of cruises, one of which was particularly notable because he won the "savage tan" contest, which is not easy for a fair-skinned, blond-haired, blue-eyed man who hides from the sun. Roger had a zest and a zeal for life and he will be missed.

Roger is survived by his loving and devoted wife Sue; children, Randy Anderson (Boise); Shelly Anderson (Boise); Tracee Shank (Twin Falls); Kelly Stropel (Austin, Texas); Tammy Wilson (Boise); Tanya Harrell (Jerome) and 14 grandchildren.

He was preceded in death by his father, Burt Stevens; his mother, Melba Stevens; his sister, Janine Menhorn; and his brother, Don Stevens.

A funeral and celebration of his life will be at 11 a.m. on Thursday, Dec. 17, at 2466 Addison Ave. E., Twin Falls. The service will be followed by lunch (everyone welcome) as the LDS church at 723 Hankins Road N., Twin Falls. A viewing for family and friends will be on Wednesday, Dec. 16, from 5 p.m. until 8 p.m. Family will be present. Graveside services will be at 3 p.m. at Elmwood Cemetery in Gooding, Idaho. In lieu of flowers please make a donation to your favorite charity in Roger's name.

Lori Hall

RUPERT — Hall, Lori Kay Penrod, 45, passed away at her home on Dec. 11, 2009, in Rupert, Idaho. Lori was born on June 28, 1964, to Ray and LaVonne Penrod in Pocatello, Idaho. She later married Richard Hall. She worked as an advanced EMT and at Minidoka Memorial Hospital. Lori loved camping, traveling, ATVs and motorcycles.

Lori is survived by her daughters, Heather Hall and Shanell Hall; parents, Ray and LaVonne Penrod; brother, James Penrod; and sisters, Sheryl Gardiol and Karen Powell.

A memorial service will be held at 2 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 16, at Hansen Mortuary, Rupert Chapel, 710 Sixth St., Rupert, Idaho. Condolences may be made at www.hansen-mortuary.com.

Harold Roemer

RUPERT — Harold Roemer, 88, our beloved father, grandfather, great-grandfather and friend, passed away peacefully at home, surrounded by his family on Dec. 12, 2009.

Harold was born on Nov. 30, 1921, in Paul, Idaho, to George and Katherine Roemer. Harold was the 10th of 12 children, which were evenly divided between boys and girls. He served with the U.S. Army during World War II in the South Pacific. During his service in the military, he rose in rank from private first class, to corporal, to sergeant, prior to his honorable discharge. He farmed in Acequia and Heyburn prior to and after his service in the World War II; and eventually farmed with his brothers Richard (Dick) and Lawrence, north of Rupert. He married Narissa LoveJoy "Joy" Neilson (Roemer) on Dec. 7, 1951. They had five children and later divorced. In the late 1960s and early 1970s he worked for J.R. Simplot and in the 1970s and 1980s as a salesman for Trevino and Johnson Equipment (Trevino Equipment). In his later years, he would mow and trim the lawns of the "old ladies" around town, which kept him busy into his early 80s.

He is survived by one sister and his five children, Jack Roemer of Kula, Hawaii; Jill (Phil) McCaslin of Twin Falls; Merilee (Russ) Quattlebaum of Queen Creek, Ariz.; Cheri Runyon of Rupert, Idaho, and Christopher (Tonya) Roemer of Rupert; and numerous grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

A viewing for family and friends will be held from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 15, at Hansen Mortuary in Rupert. The funeral will be at 11 a.m. Wednesday, Dec. 16, at Trinity Lutheran Church in Rupert, Idaho. Interment will follow at the Rupert Cemetery. In lieu of flowers, donations may be made in his memory to Trinity Lutheran Church.

The family would also like to extend their thanks to Pastor Poovey of Trinity Lutheran Church for his in home visits, to the doctors and nurses that cared for our father; with special thanks to Brandi and Amanda his hospice nurses, for their attentive and loving care.

Sherry Whiting

NAMPA — Sherry Whiting, 68, formerly of Rupert, died Friday, Dec. 11, 2009, in Nampa.

Sherry was born May 17, 1941. Her lifetime career was in cosmetology, which included instructing and personnel styling. She instructed young people at the Razzle Dazzle School of Cosmetology and was an Idaho State examiner for the board of cosmetology.

She is survived by her twin brother, Perry and Rae Meuleman, her two daughters, Sallie Smith and Penny Courtright, two granddaughters, Dawn Osterhout and Cierra Courtright, and great-grandson, Andrew Knipe. She was preceded in death by her parents, her aunts and uncles, three half-brothers and one half-sister, one nephew and her ex-husband. Sherry was hard working and dedicated to her family. She was the kind of person who loved music, reading and putting together puzzles and kept a beautiful home that made all who came feel warm, loved and always welcome.

"So, if you left without a hug or hungry it was your own fault" she would tell you. She loved her garden and the outdoors. May heaven receive our Angel wife mother and grandmother, great grandmother and friend. God Bless and hold you Mom. We love you, your loved ones.

A viewing will be held Tuesday, Dec. 15, at 4 p.m. throughout the evening at her brother Perry Muleman's residence at 331 S. Meridian, Rupert. A memorial services will be held 1 a.m. Thursday, Dec. 17, at Hansen Mortuary. Inurnment will follow at the Rupert Cemetery.

Economist Paul Samuelson, Nobel laureate, dead at 94

NEW YORK (AP) — Economist Paul Samuelson, who won a Nobel prize for his effort to bring mathematical analysis into economics, helped shape tax policy in the Kennedy administration and wrote a textbook read by millions of college students, died Sunday. He was 94.

Samuelson, who taught for decades at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, died at his home in Belmont, Mass., the school said in a statement announcing his death.

President Barack Obama's chief economic adviser, Lawrence Summers, is his nephew.

In 1970, Samuelson became just the second person, and first American, to win the Nobel Memorial Prize in Economic Sciences, created in 1968 by the Central Bank of Sweden.

WASHINGTON Obama: Success of Afghan strategy evident in a year

President Obama says he'll know by the end of 2010 if his Afghan strategy is working, and pledges to change direction if the U.S. military is not on course "in terms of securing population centers" from Taliban militants.

The president also says his Dec. 1 speech ordering 30,000 more American soldiers and Marines into the 8-year-old war "hit me in the gut" emotionally more than any he had given.

After doubling the U.S. force in Afghanistan in March, just two months after taking office, Obama raised the stakes further by ordering a nearly 50-percent troop increase in a speech at the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, N.Y. He issued the orders even as support for the war was crumbling among the public and opposed by many fellow Democrats in Congress.

Many observers said Obama appeared overly analytical and emotionally detached in ordering still more Americans into an increasingly violent mission against the Taliban to prevent their takeover of the Afghan government and a feared return of al-Qaida terrorists.

Not true, Obama told CBS's "60 Minutes," in an interview taped Dec. 7 for broadcast Sunday night.

1 in 5 default on student loans within 3 years of repayment

More than one in five borrowers of federal student loans who attend for-profit colleges default within three years of repayment, new figures made available by the U.S. Department of Education today show.

Historically, the government has reported such figures in terms of how many students default within two years — a figure that stands at 6.7 percent of student borrowers overall and about 11 percent at for-profit schools.

But the new three-year numbers, though preliminary, give a clearer picture of whether a student at a particular school will default, so the government will soon begin using them to help decide which colleges qualify for taxpayer-supported student aid programs.

Currently, schools with default rates over 25 percent for three straight years can be disqualified, but experts argued that schools were gaming the two-year figures. So starting in 2012, colleges will be judged on how many students default within three years of starting repayment, though the new threshold default rate for sanctions will be 30 percent instead of 25 percent.

NEW HAMPSHIRE Adultery still crime in N.H. after 200 years

CONCORD — The original punishments — including standing on the gallows for an hour with a noose around the neck — have been softened to a $1,200 fine, yet some lawmakers think it's time for the 200-year-old crime of adultery to come off New Hampshire's books.

Seven months after the state approved gay marriage, lawmakers will consider easing government further from the bedroom with a bill to repeal the adultery law.

"We shouldn't be regulating people's sex lives and their love lives," state Rep. Timothy Horrigan said. "This is one area the state government should stay out of people's bedrooms."

Horrigan, D-Durham, and state Rep. Carol McGuire, R-Epsom, have teamed up on legislation to repeal the law.

Horrigan signed on because he believes it continues New Hampshire's efforts toward marriage equality. In June, lawmakers voted to legalize gay marriage — a law that takes effect Jan. 1.

Convicted adulterers years ago faced standing on the gallows, up to 39 lashes, a year in jail or a fine of 100 pounds. The punishment has been relaxed to a misdemeanor and a fine of up to $1,200 — with no jail time.

WASHINGTON Senate passes $1.1 trillion spending bill

The Senate on Sunday passed a $1.1 trillion spending bill with increased budgets for vast areas of the federal government, including health, education, law enforcement and veterans' programs.

The more-than-1,000-page package, one of the last essential chores of Congress this year, passed 57-35 and now goes to President Barack Obama for his signature.

The weekend action underlined the legislative crush faced by Congress as it tries to wind up the year. After the vote, the Senate immediately returned to the debate on health care legislation that has consumed its time and energy for weeks. Senate Democrats hope to reach a consensus in the coming days on Obama's chief domestic priority.

The spending bill combines six of the 12 annual appropriation bills for the 2010 budget year that began Oct. 1. Obama has signed into law five others.

Plan to let people 55 and up buy into Medicare finds resistance

A plan to let people as young as 55 buy into Medicare, heralded as a breakthrough in the Senate's health care debate, ran into resistance Sunday from lawmakers who can make or break Democrats' efforts to reshape the nation's health insurance system.

Independent Sen. Joe

Lieberman of Connecticut declared the early Medicare buy-in a bad deal for taxpayers and the deficit. He pleaded with Democrats to start subtracting expensive proposals from the overhaul, saying, "We don't need to keep adding onto the back of this horse or we're going to break the horse's back and get nothing done."

Government accountants are poring over the latest compromise proposals to see how much they would cost, and some lawmakers are reserving judgment until that plays out this week. Democratic Sen. Claire McCaskill of Missouri said she would "absolutely" vote against the package if it seemed destined to increase people's out-of-pocket costs and the national debt.

ITALY Attacker hurls statuette at premier Berlusconi in Milan

ROME — An attacker hurled a statuette at Italian Premier Silvio Berlusconi, striking the leader in the face at the end of a rally Sunday and leaving the stunned 73-year-old media mogul with a broken nose and bloodied mouth.

Police said the 42-year-old man accused of attacking Berlusconi as he signed autographs in Milan was immediately taken into custody. The Italian leader was rushed to a hospital where he was being held overnight.

The attack occurred at a time when Berlusconi, one of Italy's wealthiest men, is embroiled in a sex scandal, a divorce case with his wife and public protests demanding his resignation.

TV showed the stunned leader with blood under his nose, on his mouth and under one eye as he was lifted to his feet by aides after Sunday's attack. He was hustled into the back of a car, but he immediately got out, apparently to show he was not badly injured.

IRAN Iranian students accuse gov't of faking protest images

TEHRAN — Hundreds of students at Tehran University renewed anti-government protests for a second week on Sunday, accusing authorities of fabricating images of demonstrators burning photos of the Islamic Republic's revered founder.

Students moved to the forefront of opposition on the streets with massive protests last week. They say authorities are using the images of burning photos as a pretext to crack down on their protests, which have helped revitalize the pro-reform movement.

State television has repeatedly shown images, ostensibly taken during student-led protests on Dec. 7, of unidentified hands burning and tearing up pictures of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini. It was a grave and illegal insult against the former leader, still widely respected in the country. The elite Revolutionary Guard, the country's most powerful military force, called for the trial and punishment of those responsible.

Mohammad Nourizad, a filmmaker and activist, said that no matter who was behind the destruction of his photo, the offense pales in significance to the killing of protesters and the violation of people's rights. Iran's opposition says at least 72 protesters were killed in the weeks after the disputed June presidential election, while the government puts the number of confirmed dead at 30.

NEVADA Nevada board advances brothel's attempt to offer male prostitutes

LAS VEGAS — The owner of a brothel more than two hours' drive from Las Vegas said she hopes to hire Nevada's first legal male prostitutes within a month, now that state health officials have approved a method to test men for infectious diseases.

The world is ready for women, or even other men, to legally buy sex, said Shady Lady Ranch owner Bobbi Davis. Plus, being the first to offer male service could boost business in tough economic times, she said.

"With so many other male revues going on in Vegas, we thought it was time to give this a try," Davis told The Associated Press.

Until now, men have been effectively barred from legally plying the world's oldest profession in Nevada by the specificity of a state health law requiring prostitutes to undergo frequent cervical testing for sexually transmitted diseases.

The health board approved a regulation to allow urethral testing for men — a crucial rule change by the state agency with ultimate power over whether prostitutes can or can't work.

Facing DIABETES

ASHLEY SMITH/Times-News

Gracie O'Connor, 5, right, and her sister Mikayla, 14, who both have Type 1 diabetes, eat dinner Thursday night with their sister Rylie in the back-ground at their Twin Falls home.

With diabetes rates rising, obesity and inactivity are bigger threats than ever

By Melissa Davlin
Times-News writer

When Mikayla O'Connor was 13 months old, her mother, Meagan O'Connor, noticed she had flu symptoms.

And along with her runny nose, Mikayla was always thirsty and would fill up her diaper with urine within 25 minutes of having it changed. Meagan took her daughter to the doctor, where Mikayla was diagnosed with Type 1 diabetes.

Now Mikayla is 14, and her 5-year-old sister, Grace, also has Type 1 diabetes. With the right management, the Twin Falls sisters live normal lives.

Although Type 1 and Type 2 diabetes have different causes, they affect people much the same way. With Type 2 diabetes on the rise, local nurses are focusing on educating people about diabetes prevention and management.

Diabetes occurs when a patient's blood sugar levels are too high. Type 1 diabetes, also called juvenile diabetes or insulin-dependent diabetes, occurs when the pancreas doesn't make enough insulin, which helps the body properly use blood glucose. Type 2 diabetes hits when the body doesn't use insulin properly.

Janet Rinaldi of St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center said Type 2 diabetes is on the rise, along with the nation's calorie intake.

"Eating too many calories causes diabetes because it causes weight gain," Rinaldi said. According to the National Diabetes Information Clearing House, being overweight and inactive can increase chances of getting diabetes.

Rinaldi works with patients who have diabetes and pre-diabetes. People with pre-diabetes have high blood sugar levels, but not high enough to cause diabetes. Rinaldi regularly sees people who either eat too much, or who mess with their metabolism and eat too little.

She may start seeing more patients. According to American Diabetes Association journal "Diabetes Care," the number of Americans with Type 2 diabetes could nearly double by 2034 if current trends continue.

Right now, 23 million Americans have Type 2 diabetes, and 8 million of those are on Medicare.

Along with managing medication, Rinaldi teaches her patients to eat well and stay active.

Merri Ann King of Gooding County Memorial Hospital said people with diabetes don't have to limit the varieties of food they eat — just the quantities.

"You can eat all foods," King said. "You just need to not overdo on certain foods."

Mikayla said although she has to watch how many carbs and calories she consumes, she can eat anything she wants. If she knows she is going to a party, she said, she might check her blood sugar levels right before

Know the signs

Although Type 1 and Type 2 diabetes have different causes, the symptoms and effects are the same. Diabetes symptoms include:

- Extreme thirst.
- Frequent urination.
- Feeling very hungry or tired.
- Weight loss.
- Sores that heal slowly.
- Dry, itchy skin.
- Loss of feeling in the feet, or tingling in the feet.
- Blurry eyesight.

A blood test is the only way to be sure. Check with your doctor.

the event to see what she can eat.

She's right on the money. Rinaldi said that avoiding certain foods can lead to bingeing, which sets diabetes patients up for blood sugar problems.

Another key element of diabetes management, whether Type 1 or Type 2, is staying active. Rinaldi encourages her patients to at least go for a walk every day.

Even with the constant blood sugar level-checking and food management, Mikayla still leads a normal life. The Canyon Ridge High School freshman plays basketball and is trying out for track in the spring. Her friends all know she has diabetes. An insulin pump monitors her blood sugar constantly, eliminating the need for constant shots.

Her little sister Grace just started kindergarten, and despite getting insulin shots up to eight times a day, she is as active as any other 5-year-old, Meagan O'Connor said. And until the medical community comes up with a cure, the family will continue managing their care with shots and diet.

"Of course it affects our lives and it's hard and it's frustrating," O'Connor said. "We love our kids and we just hope the best for them."

Ho-ho-healthy?

Parents struggle to watch kids' diets

By Megan K. Scott
Associated Press writer

NEW YORK — Pam Vetter's 15-year-old son balked when she told him she was opting for a healthier holiday season this year: fish rather than turkey, fewer carbs and sweets.

He threatened to purchase a turkey, stuffing, potatoes and pies and put together his own traditional meal.

"It's a moral challenge," said Vetter, 44, a nonreligious celebrant in West Hills, Calif., who conducts funerals. She also has a 14-year-old son. "Do you make part of your family angry for the holiday season by cutting out the carbs and sweets?"

Many parents are trying to figure out how to have a healthier holiday without depriving their kids of Christmas cookies, potato latkes and other treats. About a third of American kids are overweight or obese, according to Centers for Disease Control and Prevention estimates.

Jill Houk, 41, a chef in Chicago, said she is worried her 10-year-old will regain some of the 10 pounds he recently lost. She said her son loves food and tends to overeat unless she's watching him.

He has four sets of grandparents (she and her ex-husband are both remarried) sending him chocolate Santas, cousins with no weight issues whom he'll be hanging out with and a wedding to attend the day after Christmas with an elaborate buffet.

"Of course, we're going to be dining out all the time," she said.

Studies show Americans gain about a pound between Thanksgiving and New Year's; people who are overweight or obese are at risk of gaining five pounds, said Dr. Susan Z. Yanovski, an obesity expert at the National Institutes of Health.

She said the weight gain is slight, but it accumulates over time.

While there is little research on children and holiday pounds, an Ohio State University study found that young children are prone to gain more weight in the summer than the school year when there is more time to snack and zone out in front of the television.

Likewise, during the winter holidays many children are "indulging in their favorite foods and sitting around with nothing to do," said Dr. Joanna Dolgoff, a pediatrician and author of the forthcoming "Red Light, Green Light, Eat Right: The Food Solution That Lets Kids Be Kids."

"Then there's the fact that kids realize it's the holiday season," she said. "I deserve to indulge. How come everyone else is indulging?" They start to feel resentful and entitled."

Dr. Goutham Rao, clinical director of the Weight Management and Wellness Center at Children's Hospital of Pittsburgh, said some of his patients gain five to seven pounds for that very reason. They see the holidays as a time to unwind and treat themselves.

Some aren't even thinking about their weight, said Dolgoff, promising to get back on track when school starts.

"If they say, 'I'm going to start in the new year,' they have given themselves free rein to eat anything and everything in sight," she said. "That's unfortunate. They wind up gaining more."

Children face a greater challenge when it comes to holiday eating than adults, said experts. They have less impulse control — they see tempting sweets and want them without thinking of the consequences, said Rao.

Many are unsure which items are healthy and what an appropriate portion size is.

Don't double-dip that chip

Practice at parties leads to bacteria transfer

By Jodi Mailander Farrell
McClatchy Newspapers

It's time for the annual holiday binge of office parties, neighborhood gatherings and cocktail hours. Not to be a downer, but health-conscious fun-lovers should be wary — and not just of gaining weight from all those extra calories.

We're talking, of course, about double-dipping. Turns out that science backs the popular fear that partygoers are sharing more than good cheer when they go back to the communal bowl of dip for seconds with the same chip.

Here's what you should consider before you bite:

It's really that bad: Food science students at Clemson University examined the effects of double-dipping using volunteers, wheat crackers and several sample dips. They found that three to six double dips in one bowl transferred about 10,000 bacteria from the eaters' mouths to the remaining dip. That means if you're at a party and three to six people double-dip their chips, any chip you dip may pick up at least 50 to

No joke: Laughter as stress-fighting therapy

By Janice Podsada
The Hartford Courant

Can pretending to ride the subway, leaning into the turns and toppling fellow passengers, relieve stress?

Apparently, if the conductor is a certified laughter leader and the strap-hangers are willing to force a few laughs.

"Let's do subway! Lean to the right, to the left!" barked Jolene Nevers, above a chorus of loud but faked ha-has that morphed into a real giggle here, a bona fide titter there.

"You end up actually laughing," said Karissa Covelli, 19, who said the 20-minute laugh-therapy session at the University of Connecticut's Health Education Center recently dissolved the day's frustrations and a crabby mood. "I feel a lot better now."

Nevers, a university health-education coordinator and a laughter leader certified by World Laughter Tour Inc., learned about the laughter-therapy movement at an American College Health Association conference two years ago.

"Laughter clubs are a form of structured play," she said. "As adults, we have to work fun and play into our lives."

Amid a merciless economy that has stripped millions of Americans of their jobs or homes or trapped them in the quicksand of debt, fitting fun into their lives is serious stuff. Laughter, researchers conclude, is nothing to joke about.

Laughter therapy reduced cholesterol and lowered inflammation in a group of diabetics with high blood pressure, according to a study this spring by doctors at Loma Linda University. Their findings jibe with a 2005 study by the University of Maryland's Center for Preventive Cardiology, which found that laughing relieves stress. Stress can damage the endothelium, the protective barrier that lines the blood vessels and lead to the build up of fat and cholesterol, factors in heart attack, said Dr. Michael Miller, the center's director.

"We know that exercising, not smoking and eating foods low in saturated fat will reduce the risk of heart disease," Miller said. "Perhaps regular, hearty laughter should be added to the list."

But does forced laughter, as practiced by laughter-therapy enthusiasts, provide the same benefits as real laughter? According to some studies, the brain doesn't know the difference between the two. Endorphins, the body's happy hormones, are released when we laugh or simulate laughter, according to Charles Schaefer, a psychology professor at Fairleigh Dickinson University in Teaneck, N.J.

In 1995, Dr. Madan Kataria started a laughter club in Mumbai, India, that was loosely based on yoga, laughter and role-playing. Today, there are more than 6,000 clubs in India, many of which meet daily before the work day begins.

Mark Sherry, a Connecticut business owner with a master's degree in psychology, is a certified laughter yoga leader. Sherry, who received his credentials from Laughter Yoga International, which was founded by Kataria, began leading laughter groups in mid-2008.

Sherry, 59, typically asks for a donation of $3 to $6 for a 45-minute group session. In recent months, many unemployed workers have bolstered their spirits by bearing their teeth, spreading their claws and acting like lions or penguins or pretending to be lottery winners, Sherry said.

"I've had a number of people who've shared that they're out of work and need to laugh," said Sherry, whose background includes working with special-education students and stand-up comedy.

At another session, Sherry said, "I had a woman come up to me whose husband had died just two months before. She had not laughed since then. She thanked me for getting her out of her shell. Another woman who was in her 80s said her boyfriend had just died the day before. She said it was wonderful, incredible therapy for her."

Kerry Truchan, 36, found one of his groups this summer on www.meetup.com, a site that helps users find, or organize, local groups.

"I thought it was kind of silly, but some of the exercises were really fun," Truchan said. "We had to pretend we won bags of money and carry them around. I kind of wished it was real!"

Sherry said laughter therapy isn't a substitute for people requiring the care of a psychologist or psychiatrist. But laughter provides an emotional release and has physical effects. It can break down cortisol, the hormone released when the body is under stress, and increase production of endorphins, Sherry said.

At the group level, "It helps people bond. All the pretense is just dropped," Sherry said.

HOW TO KEEP HOLIDAYS HAPPY AND HEALTHY FOR KIDS

See related story on H&F 1

Worried your kids are going to pack on the pounds over winter break?

Before you cut out the cookies for Santa, pumpkin pie and doughnuts, take a look at these tips from the experts.

Model healthy eating behavior:

If kids see their parents piling their plates, they will probably do the same, said Dr. Sarah Hampl, medical director of PHIT Kids (Promoting Health in Teens and Kids), a weight management program at Children's Mercy Hospital in Kansas City, Mo.

Add, don't take away: If you have a family tradition of decorating cookies, don't take away that fun, said Susan Z.

Yanovski, an obesity expert at the National Institutes of Health. "That doesn't mean you need to leave the cookies out for everyone to nibble on," she said. But you can always give them away.

Plan plan plan: Give kids a small

Increase activity:

Physical activity goes down during the holidays when sports practices and dance and karate lessons are canceled. Fight the temptation to hibernate, said Dr. David Ludwig, director of the Optimal Weight for Life Program, Children's Hospital Boston. "Now is the time to be more rather than less physically active," he said. Children who are busy are also less likely to rummage through the cupboards or the Halloween candy stash.

Get kids involved: Work with kids to come up with healthier alternatives to the way food is prepared, said Dr. Thomas Robinson of Lucile Packard Children's Hospital at Stanford. Children will feel like they are part of changing the way the family does things. "People's taste and preference are quite malleable."

Don't restrict: Don't restrict foods, said Dr. Goutham Rao, clinical director of the Weight Management and Wellness Center at Children's Hospital of Pittsburgh. It makes the food more valuable. "Help children know that this is a time when you can make healthy choices, even though they are out of school. It's not a time to go crazy."

100 bacteria. The research was published earlier this year online in the Journal of Food Safety.

Will it make you ill? Maybe. It depends on how much bacteria you pick up, how many people are double-dipping and what kind of bacteria they have in their mouths.

Pick thick: In general, thicker sauces — cheese dip, chocolate syrup, hummus — may be safer. They have less bacteria, and the number of bacteria in them gets smaller over time, the Clemson study found. Salsa picked up the most bacteria, probably because it was runny, making it easier for bacteria to slip off the chip back into the bowl.

TV imitates life: Clemson professor Paul L. Dawson and his students were inspired to test the double-dip theory by a rerun of a 1993 "Seinfeld" episode in which George Costanza is confronted at a funeral reception by his girlfriend's brother after he dips the same chip twice. The scene, which ends with the two men wrestling for the chip, is credited as the first popular reference to the social taboo of "double-dipping."

The solution: Serve small, one-dip chips or only munch with people you "really" like.

When double-dipping runs amok it's "like kissing everybody at the party," Dawson says.

Ready, set, sweat!

With 4-3-2-1 workout, trainer promotes quick system

By Barbara Mahany
Chicago Tribune

Quick — 10 minutes, that's all we've got. But fret not, sweat plenty, that's all the time you'll need to squeeze in a rat-a-tat whole-body workout.

So says exercise physiologist Sean Foy, longtime personal trainer and author of "The 10-Minute Total Body Breakthrough" (Workman Publishing, $22.95; 4321fitness.com).

This whole-body blitz adds up like this:

Four minutes, high-energy aerobic training.

Three minutes, resistance exercise.

Two minutes, core strengthening.

One minute, stretching and deep breathing.

According to Foy, who practices in Southern California, the 4-3-2-1 equation will have you burning fat, building muscle and generally catapult you into higher gear.

Of course, we had only 10 minutes to talk to the fast-moving Foy, so we set the clock and fired away.

Here's how it flew:

Q: Why is 10 better than nothing?

A: Most Americans are doing nothing. You know what happens when we do nothing? Our muscles atrophy. (That means they basically waste away and shrink down to nothing.) The No. 1 excuse for not doing anything is time. So here's all you need to do in 10 minutes.

Q: So is this some kind of trick — you hook us on 10, only to find out down the road that it won't make a difference till we work up to 60?

A: No, no, it's not a trick. If you did one minute, it's better than nothing. Ultimately, 10 minutes is a complete circuit. We'd love it if you'd do two cycles, or three cycles. For years, the American College of Sports Medicine has been saying three to five days a week, do 20 to 60 minutes of aerobics, two to three days of resistance training, every day stretching. But the dilemma here is that no one's doing it. Our challenge is to get 10 million people doing 10 minutes a day.

Q: What's the magic behind the 4-3-2-1?

A: You need to do the circuit without taking a break. With no rest!

Researchers have found that it's the interval — switching from 30 seconds of moderate intensity to 30 seconds of high intensity — that boosts your metabolism. You'll burn more fat and burn it for longer after the workout. That's called the afterburn.

Q: When's the best time for the workout?

A: I always say, "The best time to do the workout is the time you'll do it." Studies, though, do show better adherence to an exercise routine when you do it first thing in the morning.

Q: What's the most important thing we need to know about nutrition?

A: Don't diet. Diet is deprivation, inadequate nutrition, excessive and tedious. I'm all for the no-diet diet. I call it the "Traffic Light" approach: Green foods — fruits and vegetables and water — are "Go"; yellow foods — nuts, whole grain carbohydrates, lean proteins — are Slow Down; red foods — sugars, fats and alcohol — are "Stop!"

What 'moderate' exercise feels like

Inactive people can benefit from regular, moderate exercise, but they have a poor sense of what that feels like, a new study found.

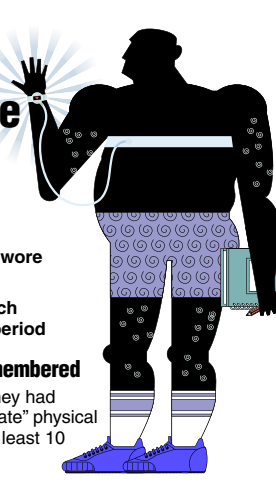

94 men and women, most of them overweight and unfit, kept logs and wore heart rate monitors for seven days

They were asked afterward how much exercise they had done during the period

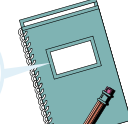

What they remembered

- 41% said they had done "moderate" physical activity for at least 10 minutes

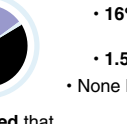

- 3% recalled "hard" activity
- 1.5% recalled "very hard" activity

What they recorded in their logs

- 47% recorded "moderate" activity
- 11% recorded "hard" activity
- 1.5% recorded "very hard" activity

What the heart monitors said

- 16% had actually done moderate activity
- 1.5% had done "hard" activity
- None had done "very hard" activity

The researchers concluded that it's unrealistic to expect people who are unaccustomed to physical exertion to judge accurately how strenuously they are exercising

NOTICE OF HEARING
SUMMARY OF PROPOSED
COMPREHENSIVE PLAN AND LAND USE MAP FOR GOODING COUNTY, IDAHO

The Gooding County Planning and Zoning Commission, pursuant to Title 67, Chapter 65, Idaho Code, hereby proposes to adopt a Comprehensive Plan and Land Use Map for Gooding County. The Gooding County Planning and Zoning Commission will hold a public hearing on January 11, 2010 at 6:30 p.m. in the Planning and Zoning meeting room, 145 7th Ave E., Gooding, Idaho. The purpose of the hearing is for public input and discussion on adopting a Comprehensive Plan and Land Use Map for Gooding County.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN - The goal of Gooding County will be to adopt and implement the Comprehensive Plan to provide policy and guidelines to assist in future land use decisions. A Plan establishing fourteen (14) Comprehensive Plan Components and the land use map detailing areas of use. The Components and their descriptions are as follows: 1. Property Rights - an analysis of the provisions that may be necessary to provide that land use policies, restrictions, conditions and fees do not violate private property rights, adversely impact property values or create unnecessary technical limitation on the use of property. 2. Population and Growth - an analysis of the past, present, and future trends in population, including such characteristics as total population, age, sex and income. 3. School Facilities and Transportation - an analysis of public educational goals and facility capacities, plus school and school transportation facilities with future development. 4. Economic Development - an analysis of the economic base of the area for maintaining a positive growth rate, including employment, industries, jobs and income levels. 5. Land Use - an analysis encompassing the current vision and planning framework for a mix of future land uses. 6. Natural Resources and Hazardous Area - an analysis identifying the soils, water, vegetation, watersheds, and known hazards within the County. 7. Public Service, Facilities, and Utilities - an analysis of the general plans for sewage, water supply, fire stations, health and welfare facilities, waste disposal sites, public safety facilities, and general public services. 8. Transportation - an analysis of existing and future transportation infrastructure necessary for efficient mobility of people, goods and services. 9. Recreation - an analysis showing a system of recreation areas, including parks, parkways, trailways, greenbelts, beaches, playgrounds and other recreation areas and programs. 10. Special Areas or Sites - an analysis of the areas, sites, or structures of historical, archaeological, architectural or scenic significance. 11. Housing - an analysis of housing conditions and needs, and plans for improving housing standards, and supporting development of safe, sanitary, adequate and affordable housing. 12. Community and Sustainable Design - an analysis of the need for governing landscaping, site design, and beautification, sustainable practices and goals. 13. National Interest Electric Transmission Corridors - an analysis showing the existing location and possible routing of high voltage transmission lines based upon the United States department of energy's most recent national electric transmission congestion study. 14. Implementation - an analysis to determine actions, programs, budgets, ordinances, or other methods including scheduling of public expenditures to provide for the timely execution of the various components of the plan.

A full and complete text and land use map are available at the Gooding County Clerks Office, 624 Main Street, Gooding, Idaho, in the Gooding County Courthouse and the Gooding County Planning and Zoning Office, 145 7th Ave. East, Gooding. Office hours are 7:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., Monday through Thursday. Dated this 8th day of December

The Twin Falls Times-News a seven-day morning newspaper in southern Idaho needs a

Our universal copy desk produces daily sports, feature and news pages as well as independent special sections. Responsibilities include: editing copy for AP style, grammar, spelling, logic, balance, and content on deadline; designing innovative pages that catch the eye; writing headlines that will grab readers; collaborating with others in the newsroom on projects and special sections. Applicants must be fluent in Quark Xpress, Adobe Photoshop, PCs, Windows XP and MS Outlook. Experience with Adobe Illustrator is welcome. Daily newspaper experience preferred.

Twin Falls is the heart of a fast-growing region of more than 250,000 that includes Sun Valley. Idaho's world-famous outdoors makes it a great place to live. Lee Enterprises helps make the Times-News a great place to work: We offer competitive pay and excellent benefits, including medical, dental, vision, 401(k) retirement, 1/2 priced gym memberships, paid holidays and vacation. We're an equal opportunity employer and a drug-free workplace. See us online at www.magicvalley.com, and read about our parent company at www.lee.net.

CAR CRASH

Are you the witness that helped me in the Twin Falls Walgreens parking lot after a maroon Chevy truck rear ended my maroon Buick on Blue Lakes Blvd. near the intersection of Heyburn on November 6, 2009 at 1:30 pm? You were driving a large white commercial truck. I appreciated your help and I need your help now. Please call me at 208-431-3229.

IF DECEMBER 14 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: You may ride high on a wave of inspiration between now and the end of February, and you possess the common sense and professional edge to avoid being deluded by the extent of your abilities. A new romance during the upcoming six months might be a great deal of fun, but might not lead to a permanent commitment. Wishful thinking can get you into hot water during May, especially if you invest your heart or your wallet.

HOROSCOPE
Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Carefully assess objectives and goals and pour your energies into a single direction rather than too many new endeavors.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): See it through to the end. You may be frustrated by friction towards a current project but perseverance is the key to success.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): A new project may have you dragging your feet but the only way to succeed is to charge in head first and attack the problem.

CANCER (July 21-Aug. 22): Whistle while you work and bounce through your day with plenty of holiday spirit. Your positive outlook will be contagious.

LEO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Play may be more satisfying than work today. A hobby or passion may pay unexpected dividends or bring you welcome recognition.

VIRGO (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Go back to your roots. Explore your family tree and make fascinating new discoveries about your ancestors.

LIBRA (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): The higher the stakes, the bigger the payoff. Don't be afraid to share info about a lucrative investment with a friend or colleague.

SCORPIO (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You will not be distracted once you become engrossed in a subject. Your perseverance may yield dividends in the near future.

SAGITTARIUS (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Stay focused on tasks at hand, but enjoy a laugh now and again. Objects that remain too stiff or rigid often break.

CAPRICORN (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Be confident and your subconscious fears will disappear. Uncertainty and doubt might jeopardize a close relationship.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Get out in the public arena and make your mark. It's a busy world; don't be remembered as the one who sat on the sidelines.

DEAR ABBY: With the holidays here, I know people are considering gifts for older friends and family members. My 83-year-old mother still lives in her own home. She doesn't want more "stuff," so every year we give her practical things we know she already uses on a daily basis, including laundry detergent, bath oil beads and soap, toothpaste — even bird seed for her bird feeders. By the end of the year she has used up everything we have given her and is ready for new supplies.

Mom is happy with these gifts and says it saves her from having to go out and spend money on these things herself. Practical, everyday items make the best gifts for the older person on your list.

— MARY IN RICHARDSON, TEXAS

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

DEAR MARY: When seniors have reached a point where they have become less active, I agree. So please allow me to offer a few additional suggestions to your gift list.

With the cost of groceries what they are today, many individuals on fixed incomes would appreciate a gift basket of goodies such as small cans of tuna, salmon, chicken or soup. Also include crackers, assorted flavored instant coffee, herbal teas, soup mixes and cookies.

Gift certificates also make welcome gifts: for groceries, haircuts, manicures, dry cleaning, restaurant meals, theater tickets and department stores. And don't forget prepaid calling cards.

Homemade coupons for "Honey-do's" (as in "Honey, do this — Honey, do that") also make thoughtful presents. Create some that can be redeemed for chores such as window washing, painting, gardening, replacing lightbulbs, changing air conditioning filters, moving heavy furniture for spring and fall cleaning and transportation for shopping or doctors' visits, etc.

Because not all seniors drive, bus passes and coupons for senior transportation or taxis can also give the recipient the gift of freedom.

Sweat pants, sweatshirts, athletic socks and walking shoes may motivate the sedentary senior to get up and become more active — which improves circulation and cognition for people of every age.

Large-print calendars with family birthdays, anniversaries, etc. marked and personalized with family photos make useful gifts, and so do large-print address books with the information already transferred from the recipient's records.

Because medications are expensive, consider a gift certificate to the neighborhood pharmacy. It will be appreciated — trust me on that.

A subscription to a newspaper or magazine you know the person will enjoy is a gift that keeps on giving year-round. And, of course, stationery and stamps make handy gifts that can also be used throughout the year. While you're at it, enclose with them some felt-tipped pens.

If the person has a pet, send some cans of dog or cat food, a package of "treats," a rawhide chew or catnip.

And please don't forget that the holiday season can be a depressing time for people who are alone. I'm often asked for gift ideas for the person who "already has everything." And this is my answer: The greatest gift a person can offer is the gift of yourself. If someone you know could use an outing, give the most meaningful gift of all — an invitation to share a meal with you or your family.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE® Bobby Wolff

"No man who is not willing to bear arms and to fight for his rights can give a good reason why he should be entitled to the privilege of living in a free community."
— Theodore Roosevelt

Today's deal, which might be described as the art of the possible, gives both sides the chance to play well. West leads a spade against South's contract of three no-trump, reached after South had shown a balanced hand with 12-14 points.

To start with, South must duck the first spade and win the second. (In the unlikely event that spades are 6-2 with the diamond honors split, this initial duck will exhaust East of his spades.) Next comes the misdirection: South should sneakily cross to dummy with the club queen to advance the diamond queen, as if taking a finesse.

A smart East will still rise with the diamond king at once to protect his partner's entry. Then he can play a third spade, and West will be able to cash out to set the hand when he wins his diamond ace.

Should East be able to find this rather unnatural defense? He could argue that if declarer has the diamond ace, the defenders won't set the hand. East knows from the opening lead that South has two high spades (surely the ace-king), two club tricks, and one heart. If he has the diamond ace, he has at least four diamond winners. Therefore, East's only legitimate chance to beat the contract comes from finding West with the diamond ace. East should see the need to protect his partner's entry so that West can reach his spade winners.

ANSWER: When you are on lead against what you assume to be a sacrifice, with your side holding more than half the deck in high cards, your first reaction should always be to lead a trump to prevent a crossruff. It is highly unlikely that declarer will be able to establish a minor in dummy and make the hand; far more frequently you will reduce declarer's chance of taking his trumps separately.
