M-C crews rescue snowmobilers

By Laurie Welch
Times-News writer

BURLEY — Rescuers were called out to lead two snowmobilers to safety Wednesday after they were disoriented by a blizzard and spent Tuesday night near a cell tower. Cassia County Undersheriff

George Warrell said Mini-Cassia Search and Rescue was called out Wednesday afternoon to help guide the two stranded snowmobilers down from Mount Harrison. "I don't think they are down yet," Warrell said Wednesday afternoon. "The rescue is still in progress."

Warrell said he didn't have the names of the two riders Wednesday, but said more information should be available when reports are completed today. Warrell said the two snowmobilers were able to get inside a building at the tower, which is heated, and were able to use their cell phone to call dispatch at regular intervals through the night. The pair thought they would be able to find their way down the mountain once the storm let up. Warrell said it was still snowing hard on the mountain Wednesday afternoon with low visibility when search and rescue was called out.

Free cab rides offered tonight

By Damon Hunzeker
Times-News writer

Hangovers are much worse in jail. But for people planning to greet the new year while drinking tonight, it should be easy and inexpensive to find a sober driver.

Some taxi services in Twin Falls are offering free rides home — or, for an average fare of $5, you can get a ride within the city limits for less than a shot of Jagermeister.

MS Yellow Cab, which provides $5 rides to and from bars throughout the year, will take people home at no charge and ferry them from one bar to another for $5.

"We had 155 calls last year, and it went really well ... we've added a second phone line, so there won't be so many busy signals," owner Darrell Hannaman said.

For most people, thoughts of work are non-existent on New Year's Eve, but for cab drivers, it's a day to babysit revelers frequently on the verge of throwing up.

"But it's a fun day. You've got to make it fun. We're here to make sure everybody gets home safe, so we're friends with our customers," Hannaman said. "We have enough vehicles — and with two buses, we can pick up multiple parties. There's no excuse to drink and drive."

It won't cost anything to get a ride home from King Allen Taxi, either, and for $5, they'll also drive your vehicle home — presumably to your home, not the driver's.

"We'll be really crazy busy. Be patient, and we'll try to get everyone home safe," co-owner Josh Allen said.

Another group of busy people will be cops.

Dennis Pullin, staff sergeant with the Twin Falls Police Department, declined to announce the number of increased patrols that will be on the streets today but said there will be "extra officers focusing on

Plane in Burley crash had prior accident

NTSB awaits chance to recover wreckage

By Laurie Welch
Times-News writer

BURLEY — Investigators of a Dec. 23 plane crash near Albion say strong winds contributed to the aircraft smashing into the Cottrell Mountains.

The owner of the plane, which had been wrecked before, said the aircraft was mechanically sound before the crash.

Commercial pilot Thad-deus Bryce Fickel, 44, of Hermiston, Ore., was using infrared cameras to photograph beet piles for Amalgamated Sugar Inc. when the plane went down on the east side of the mountains. He escaped uninjured.

National Transportation Safety Board Aerial Accident Investigator Josh Cawthra said Wednesday the NTSB is waiting for the fixed-wing, single-engine Cessna 172, registered to Kennewick Aircraft Services in Richland, Wash., to be recovered before the investigation can continue. Fickel, a commercial pilot, owns a company called Infrared Baron LLC and was renting the plane.

According to the NTSB accident database, the plane had sustained

T.F. street plowing follows priority list

By Ben Botkin
Times-News writer

When snow falls in Twin Falls, whether your street gets plowed — and how quickly — depends on where you live, not who you know in city hall.

City street crews don't plow everywhere, but they do have 250 lane miles of roads to plow with five trucks.

The city has well-traveled priority roads that get hit first by plows, so if you live along them, you're more likely to have a clear roadway outside your home.

"We don't do a lot of plowing in the residential streets," said Dean Littler, street superintendent for Twin Falls. As a rule, city crews don't plow subdivisions or narrow residential streets.

Reasons include the time it takes to plow busier roads, and roads in residential neighborhoods are often too narrow for an 11-foot wide plow to go through, especially when cars park on

Poll: 2009 was bad for America

By Charles Babington
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — For all their differences, Americans largely agree on two things: 2009 was a lousy year for the nation, and 2010 is likely to be better.

Nearly three-fourths of Americans think 2009 was a bad year for the country, which was rocked by job losses, home foreclosures and economic sickness. Forty-two percent rated it "very bad," according to the latest AP-GfK poll.

That's clearly worse than in 2006, the last time a similar poll was taken. The survey that year found that 58 percent of Americans felt the nation had suffered a bad year, and 39 percent considered it a good year.

Fewer than half as many people, 16 percent, said their family had a "very good year" in 2009 as said that in 2006.

Behind the gloominess, however, are more hopeful views that seem to reflect Americans' traditional optimism or, perhaps, wishful thinking.

Even though most said it was a bad year for the country, three in five Americans said their own family had a good year in 2009, while about two in five called it a bad year.

Some 72 percent of Americans said they're optimistic about what 2010 will bring for the country. Even more, four in five, are optimistic about what the year will bring for their families.

Curiously, however, nearly two-thirds think their family finances will worsen or stay about the same next year.

substantial damage in a 2004 crash in Washington. The plane was owned by the same company at the time of that crash. The NTSB factual report on the 2004 crash said the plane was being flown by a private pilot and carried a passenger when it developed a rough-running engine. The pilot was unable to correct the situation and made an emergency landing in an alfalfa field. After the pilot checked the engine he tried to take off again but crashed the plane.

taken home that night by one of the farmers before flying home to Oregon the next day.

Cawthra said winds in the area at the time of the crash were gusting from 23 to 34 mph. When Fickel began crossing the ridgeline the plane banked to the left and right, from which he was able to recover. He then attempted to steer away from the ridge.

"He said the airplane felt like it was in a downdraft and was not climbing," Cawthra said. "He stated he tried to keep it level and prepared for impact."

Cliff Dyer, owner of Kennewick Aircraft Services Inc., said Wednesday the plane was repaired after the 2004 crash and was mechanically sound before Fickel's crash.

The plane sustained substantial damage to the fuselage and both wings, Cawthra said.

Because of the steep terrain at the crash site the plane will likely be recovered by helicopter.

"I know it was in good, working order because I'm the mechanic who works on it," Dyer said.

"They will attach a line and sling it out to an area where they can recover it," Cawthra said.

Fickel was rescued several hours after the crash by Mini-Cassia Search and Rescue crews and two farmers who were able to scale the steep slope in a four-wheel-drive tractor. Cawthra said Fickel was talking on his radio to Salt Lake City Approach Control when the plane went down, and had a personal locator beacon with him. Fickel was Dyer said his insurance company will take possession of the plane after it is recovered. The NTSB investigation will continue at the insurance company's site, which will most likely be in Boise, Cawthra said.

impaired driving" and encouraged drinkers to take advantage of cab services or to designate a sober driver.

"We always make DUI arrests on New Year's Eve, but we can only do so much at a time," Pullin said, estimating that each arrest takes about two hours of an officer's time.

There were five arrests last year and 348 calls for service.

"It's supposed to snow again, too, so that's something else we want people to be aware of — the road conditions," Pullin added.

The manager of Twin Falls Taxi, Scott Oler, said the number of people calling cabs in the area has increased recently.

"I've lived in big cities where people take cabs everywhere, but I've noticed more people are making it a habit as this community continues to grow," he said. "We're the only company in town that actually has a yellow car. I get a lot comments from people who say, 'Wow, we're becoming a real city now!'" both sides of the road, Littler said. Also, there are not a lot of extra places to put the snow, Littler said.

"With as many lane miles as we've got, you try to take care of the main stuff and hope folks can kind of get from where they live out to a main road that's fairly close," he said.

Workers try to put a mixture of sand and salt on every intersection in Twin Falls, though, regardless of whether it's a street that's plowed. The city has 13 street workers, five snowplows and two pickups that spread deicer. If snow is heavy enough, plows will push snow aside and sand at the same time.

The plow routes cover all major streets in Twin Falls, and workers begin by spreading across Twin Falls to cover specific areas.

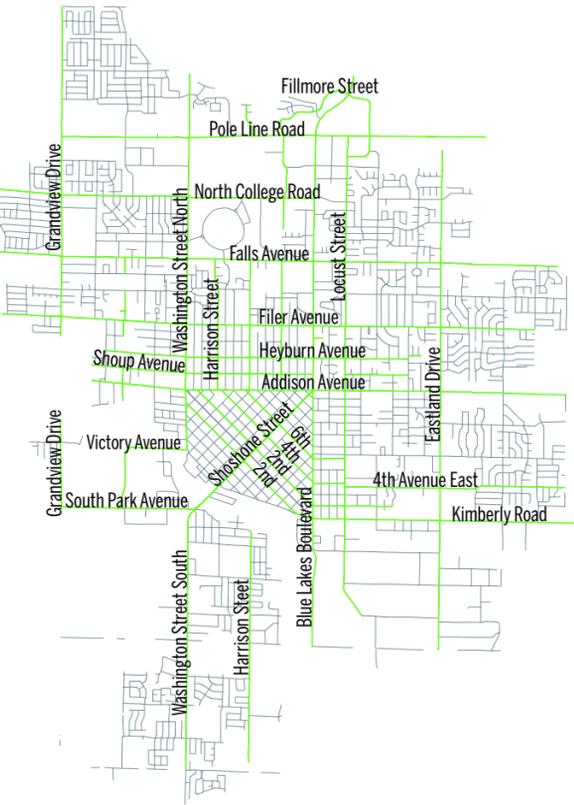

Rather than all five trucks focusing on one street or area, they begin with routes located throughout town.

One route, for example, runs along Shoshone Street and Locust Street.

Another route runs along Washington Street North to Pole Line Road, hitting North College Road on the way back.

There's also a route that focuses on narrow, busy streets like Filer Avenue

A truck also covers Kimberly Road and up Eastland Avenue, tying that route up to Pole Line Road.

A truck also runs all the way through Addison Avenue. Shoup Avenue and Heyburn Avenue are part of a one-truck run.

Crews sometimes try to clear collector streets — including Carriage Lane and Stadium Boulevard — leading to major priority roads.

After the priority streets are done — a four- to five-hour process — trucks start putting sand in intersections throughout town.

"After we get through our priority stuff, it's just a matter of picking a section of town," he said.

Littler asks one favor of residents: Don't shovel snow from your driveway into the streets.

better at a personal level in 2010 even though her financial situation might grow worse.

Flanigan, 36, is unemployed after selling a family business that faced increasing competition. "Financially, I'm scared," she said in an interview.

Rather than seek new work, however, she is thinking of returning to school to become a social worker. "I'd rather make less money and do something I love," Flanigan said, noting that happiness and optimism are not strictly tied to finances.

Every corner of the country saw steep job losses this year, and the national unemployment rate stands at 10 percent. Millions of Americans saw their savings or retirement accounts shrink, and many are rethinking how long they will have to work, and where they might find income.

Marcia Andrews of Blairsville, Pa., was a high school nurse until budget cuts eliminated her job.

Andrews, 69, spent $250,000 to convert an old house into a bed-and-breakfast, but the drop in tourism forced her to put it up for sale.

"It was the wrong place and the wrong time," said Andrews, one of those surveyed in mid December. On top of that, she lost money in the stock market.

Despite signs that the nation is edging away from the worst aspects of a severe recession, people remain largely downbeat about the economy. Fewer than half think the economy will get better in 2010, while slightly more than half think it will worsen or stay about the same.

Just over a third think their own family's finances will get better, while almost two-thirds think their finances will stay the same or get worse.

James Lewis, who just retired in Alton, Ill., called 2009 a "financial disaster" for America, and he fears 2010 won't be much better.

Lewis, 62, said of the past year: "Everything done wrong. Everybody losing their house, their retirement."

He is pessimistic about 2010, pointing blame at financial institutions and government officials.

"They've made a mess and they're going to have a hard time cleaning it up," said Lewis, who calls himself a political independent. Government regulators, he said, "dropped the ball."

Lewis said 2009 wasn't too bad for him personally, but some members of his family "can't find a job that pays enough to live." He said he doesn't have much hope — "maybe a little" — that they will find work in 2010.

Americans are not optimistic about the nation's two wars. Thirty-one percent think the situation in Afghanistan will get better, while 67 percent think it stay the same or get worse. The results were about the same for Iraq.

Freeze on Skis canceled

By John Plestina
Times-News writer

After 22 years, Freeze on Skis is canceled for this New Year's Day.

The annual waterskiing fundraiser held each New Year's Day at Shoshone Falls raised almost $8,500 for charities last year.

Gordon Hansen, owner of Idaho Water Sports in Burley, told the Times-News on Wednesday that the event planned for Friday has been canceled.

Idaho Water Sports has been a sponsor of the event for 16 years.

Three other sponsors said they were not notified of a cancellation but said they had not received sign-up sheets for this year's event.

"We're canceling the Freeze on Skis due to the economic conditions this year," said event organizer Henk Heeling. "We've encouraged people who normally contribute to us to contribute to charities of their choice."

"We've decided to hold off for this year and hopefully we'll be back next year," he added. "The employment issue has hit about a third of our organization who normally volunteer."

Hansen said Idaho Water Sports was "certainly a willing party" to participate in the event.

"We'd like to see it continue," he said.

"For 16 years, we've provided the boats and prizes as an incentive to get them to go out and raise money."

Wood honored for service on the bench

By John Plestina
Times-News writer

GOODING — Friends, colleagues and co-workers extolled 5th District Court Judge Barry Wood for 23 years of distinguished service on the bench during a retirement party at the Gooding Country Club Tuesday night.

Wood

Wood, 58, is officially retiring today, following 23 years of service, but he will continue to serve on the bench as he's needed.

He served eight years as a magistrate in Shoshone and 15 on the 5th District Court bench in Gooding, Jerome and Lincoln counties, with additional service as administrative judge for the 5th Judicial District for the past decade.

Colleagues remembered and praised Wood for his service as presiding judge of the Snake River Basin Adjudication during 1999 and 2000, a far-reaching case that addressed water rights throughout Idaho.

Former Idaho Department of Water Resources Director Dave Tuthill praised Wood for showing respect for all parties involved.

"I would characterize his tenure as one of wisdom," he said.

"When some people retire, it's hard to tell the difference, but Judge Wood will be missed," said Judge G. Richard Bevan, who will serve as the new administrative judge for the 5th Judicial District.

"I've been sad all day today knowing we're going to miss a good judge and a good administrator," said Twin Falls County Clerk Kristina Glascock.

Several people praised Wood for being friendly and down-to-earth with all of his colleagues and employees. Several said they know the judge simply as "Barry."

"He never put on airs that he is a judge and therefore superior," said 5th District Bar Association Vice President Brooke Baldwin, who served as a law clerk for Wood.

"He went out of his way to let everyone know he is their friend," she said.

Others told stories of Wood as a student at the University of Wyoming some four decades ago and of his hunting and fishing trips.

Earlier in December, Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter appointed SRBA attorney Eric J. Wildman to fill the judicial slot Wood has held and Jonathan Brody, Minidoka County's chief deputy prosecutor, for another district court position.

"He was more like a mentor to me and he made it more like an educational experience for me," said Wildman, of his tenure as a law clerk for Wood during the 1990s.

Wanna be a lunch buddy?

Volunteers sought to eat with students

By Damon Hunzeker
Times-News writer

If you're interested in helping a kid stay out of trouble and eating a few pigs in a blanket, you may want to become a "lunch buddy" at one of the Twin Falls elementary schools.

Marsha Stallones, volunteer coordinator for Twin Falls County Juvenile Probation, is resuming the School Lunch Buddy program — a mentoring project for at-risk kids — after about a two-year respite.

"We were trying to bring the Big Brothers Big Sisters to the Magic Valley ... When we realized we weren't going to see it in the area yet, we decided to revive Lunch Buddies," Stallones said.

The term "at-risk" doesn't necessarily mean children in serious trouble, she said, sometimes they're kids who don't get enough attention or who need a nonjudgmental adult friend who isn't a relative.

"The volunteers are well-screened," Stallones emphasized. "They have to be willing to have a background check and get fingerprinted. It's through the FBI, so we have quality people in the program."

Volunteers are expected to provide a commitment of one lunch hour per week at his or her assigned student's school. Lunch is paid for by the juvenile probation office.

"We really stress commitment, because some of the kids don't have consistency in their lives, so they really don't need somebody not showing up," Stallones said.

While the program is intended to provide guidance and friendship for the kids, Stallones said the mentors get just as much out of the experience — friendship and food, for instance.

"And it can be a resume-builder," Stallones said.

Because it's difficult to conduct thorough background checks on juveniles, Stallones said she prefers volunteers to be at least 20 years old.

"But really, they can be 18 to 89 or 90 years old," she added.

Students are typically referred to the program by school counselors and then matched with an appropriate mentor.

"I'm looking for a match right now for a little guy who is really interested in law enforcement, so we'll try to find somebody who can offer something in that area," Stallones said.

Ketchum's Coiner pleads guilty to voting twice

By Ariel Hansen
Times-News writer

HAILEY — Ketchum resident and nursery owner Walter Coiner, 56, has pleaded guilty to attempting to vote twice in the last election: by write-in ballot in Twin Falls, and in person in Blaine County.

Coiner had originally been charged with a felony, illegal voting or interference in an election, but as part of the Monday plea agreement, the charge was reduced to attempting to vote when not qualified, a misdemeanor.

He was sentenced to 40 hours of community service to be completed during the next three months, fined $300, and given a year of probation. Coiner's attorney argued that Coiner's complete lack of criminal record, combined with his "misunderstanding" about where and when he could vote, were points toward leniency.

Coiner owns property in both Blaine and Twin Falls counties and has resided in each. He has addresses in Ketchum and Hansen, where he is a partner in the Hollyberry Nursery.

According to court documents, Coiner also admitted he voted in both counties in 2006, although the proof of his voting in Twin Falls in that city election were "generalized documents," not an actual register with his name on it.

Buhl getting tough on trashy yards

By Blair Koch
Times-News correspondent

BUHL — Buhl city officials have already huffed and puffed. In 2010, they'll blow the rickety outhouse down.

A unanimous vote of the Buhl City Council on Dec. 14 passed a new city ordinance regarding nuisance properties, providing that "the city may cause the destruction of or clean-up of a violation of the code" starting in the new year.

The ordinance gives city officials the power to clean nuisance properties and add the cost to the owner's property tax bill, if necessary.

The move to broaden city powers was given months of deliberation by the council, which weighed private property rights against civic pride and safety.

When the current system of citing and fining residents who fail to clean up debris, abandoned cars and condemned outbuildings failed to bring real change in nuisance property owners' actions, the city decided to send a message.

"This needs to be done," said Councilwoman Pam McClain. "In order for the new rules to work there needs to be consistent enforcement throughout the city."

The city has budgeted $15,000 to deal with infractions in 2010. Leaders hope the fund becomes self-sustaining in a few years through the collection of fines brought in with property-tax money.

Buhl's planning and zoning board offered guidance on how to prioritize projects the city will take on, said board clerk Randy Clark.

"It always comes down to safety," Clark said. "If there is a building that is a fire hazard or otherwise unsafe, that needs demolished and cleaned up, those are the things the city should focus on taking care of first."

Russ Reckward, who enforces city code, said he isn't yet familiar with the new ordinance but hopes it helps get the city cleaned up.

"It shouldn't take the city to enforce pride but that's where we're at," Reckward said.

According to the ordinance, the resident and owner of a nuisance property will be notified in person, by certified mail or by posting the notice of violation on the property, and given instruction on how to correct the violation. Parties in violation will be given 10 days to correct infractions, though extensions may be granted by the city's code enforcement officer.

Gaston resigns as Wendell police chief

By Blair Koch
Times-News correspondent

WENDELL — After three years serving as Wendell's chief of police Kirtus Gaston left the force Wednesday.

His resignation was accepted at the Dec. 17 Wendell City Council meeting, though no official reason was given for Gaston's departure.

Calls to Gaston were not returned but Councilman Jason Houser told the Times-News the city was sorry to see him go.

"He did a real good job for the city and it's sad to see him leave," Houser said. "He was a very proactive chief and will be missed."

Houser said there were "rumors" in town of Gaston leaving Wendell, though Houser declined to elaborate. Houser said he wondered if Gaston was happy in his position, noting that the chief wasn't present at several recent council meetings and instead sent an officer to represent the department.

Gaston also backed out of attending a leadership conference in Las Vegas earlier this month.

Community Service Officer Carrie Belem, who attended the Public Agency Training Council's Dec. 7-10 conference with Deputy Chief Jeff Lenker, said Gaston was scheduled to attend but "canceled at the last minute."

Belem said she and Lenker drove to the conference together and there were "no other costs associated with the seminar that couldn't be recouped," due to Gaston not attending.

"The department, we are a big family and while his leaving wasn't a complete surprise ... we support his decision and hope only the best for him," Belem said.

Gaston oversaw five employees and a $400,000 annual budget.

Mayor-elect Brad Christopherson, who will be sworn into office during the council's Jan. 7 meeting, said he appreciated that the current administration decided to wait on making any final decisions on how to fill the department's top post.

"With a new council coming on, well, we should be a part of those decisions," Christopherson said.

Christopherson and the council will discuss whether to promote someone within the department to chief or seek applications during the next city meeting.

Lenker will serve as interim chief until the council decides how to move forward.

Gaston, who graduated from Shoshone High School in 1996, has been in law enforcement for 11 years. He spent six years with the Gooding County Sheriff's Office and five years with Wendell's police department.

Gaston ran unsuccessfully in the May 2008 Republican primary for Gooding County sheriff.

What did Idaho learn from a terrible decade?

The passing of the first 10 years of the 21st century won’t cause many of us to tear up. They brought us terrorism, war, recession, unemployment, business failures, foreclosures and a never-ending state of siege. A decade that began with the dawn of a new millennium sometimes reflected the worst of the past millennium.

As a nation, we built an expensive national security and intelligence apparatus that, it turns out, was busy fighting the last war. We blundered into Iraq, and we neglected Afghanistan during a time when it would have been easier to crush Islamic extremists there.

Domestically, greed was at a fever pitch during the first three-quarters of this decade, and the financial safeguards put in place to prevent another Great Depression flopped because the regulators were asleep at the switch.

In Idaho, we depended too much for our economic well-being on large corporations that failed us. And we borrowed too much for big-ticket highway projects that have — so far — mostly benefited the Treasure Valley.

So where do we go from here?

We should start by remembering what went right in the past decade:

- Conservative lending practices by our financial institutions prevented the kind of economic meltdown — especially in housing — that was commonplace elsewhere.
- Diversified agriculture. The rise of the ethanol industry — and its harsh impact on dairy costs — didn’t harm the Magic Valley as much as it might have because it proved to be a boon to row-crop farmers.
- Low taxes — on the state and local levels — and modest utility rates kept us competitive even during the trough of the recession.
- Continued growth of the local health care industry. St. Luke’s Magic Valley — already Twin Falls’ largest employer — will open a new hospital in 2011.

That said, challenges abound. In retrospect, the 1978 vote rejecting a regional airport was an unmitigated economic disaster for south-central Idaho. There hasn’t been a Twin Falls-Boise air link since 1997, and far too many investors and potential employers shun the Magic Valley because it’s so inconvenient — and expensive — to get here.

All that’s left is to try to leverage whatever economic benefit derives from the new Friedman Memorial Airport — wherever it is built in Blaine County — and to take seriously the task of restoring air service between Boise and Twin Falls.

Even more fundamentally, the region needs an intermodal facility — built with or without investment from Union Pacific Railroad — to make shipping agricultural products cheaper and more efficient.

While the Twin Falls area achieved some diversification of the labor force and attracted better-paying jobs, much more needs to be done. Our economy still depends on relatively low-paying food-processing, service and retail jobs.

The College of Southern Idaho, with its ability to innovate and provide exactly the kind of training that prospective employers want, is our best hope for attracting and keeping better jobs.

Ag, with its remarkable capacity to generate value-added industries, continues to be the economic engine of the Magic Valley — and will remain so for a long time.

Above all, we can’t afford to take what we have for granted, as we did with the Dell call center that is closing for good next month, idling hundreds of workers.

If there’s a template for the future, it’s what the Mini-Cassia area achieved after the shutdown of the Simplot french fry plant in Heyburn in 2003. The eastern Magic Valley has managed to attract a wide range of ag-related employers — a fact that encourages other employers to relocate in Minidoka or Cassia counties.

Mini-Cassia, though, was just building on the model pioneered in Jerome County after Tupperware left in 1986. Starting from scratch, economic developers there followed up every lead and built an industrial and transportation base that promises a bright future.

Successful economic development comes down to hard work, targeted investment and a willingness to learn from past mistakes.

We’ll need much more of that in the second decade of the 21st century.

Why the stimulus failed to create jobs

Last January, a report by White House economists predicted the $787 billion stimulus would create (not just save) 3.3 million net jobs.

Brian Riedl

Since then, 3.4 million net jobs have been lost, pushing unemployment to more than 10 percent. And now the White House concedes that by next summer the stimulus will be “contributing little to further growth.” By the White House’s own standards, the stimulus failed. Its central flaw? It was based on the myth that government spending is a free lunch. Stimulus advocates assert that government spending injects new dollars into the economy, thereby increasing demand and spurring economic growth. It makes perfect sense under one condition: No one asks where the government got the money.

Congress doesn’t have a vault of money waiting to be distributed. Every dollar Congress “injects” into the economy must first be taxed or borrowed out of the economy. No new income, and therefore no new demand, is created. It is merely redistributed from one group of people to another.

Removing water from one end of a swimming pool and pouring it in the other end will not raise the overall water level — no matter how large the bucket. Similarly, redistributing dollars from one part of the economy to the other will not expand the economy, no matter how much is transferred. Not even in the short run.

The White House says the $200 billion spent from the stimulus thus far has financed nearly 1 million jobs. That may be true.

However, the private sector now has $200 billion less to spend, which — by the same logic — must lose the same number of jobs, leaving a net jobs impact of zero. But the White House’s single-entry bookkeeping simply ignores that side of the equation.

Some dispute this logic by insisting that this $200 billion represents new demand because it was transferred from savers to spenders. That implausibly assumes every dollar lent to Washington for this spending would have otherwise been saved. Anyone who has observed America’s minuscule savings rate understands the private sector would have spent the vast majority of this $200 billion had it not lent the money to Washington instead.

Furthermore, even if all the stimulus money had been borrowed from savers, it still would make no difference. Savings do not fall out of the economy. They are invested or deposited in banks — which then lend them out to others to spend. Even when recession-weary banks hesitate to loan money, they invest it in Treasury bills instead.

They don’t hoard customer deposits in massive basement vaults. One person’s savings quickly finances another person’s spending. Consequently, all $200 billion would have otherwise been spent by the private sector. The government stimulus spending merely displaced private spending dollar-for-dollar.

Even money borrowed from foreigners is no free lunch. Before China can lend America dollars, they must acquire them by running a trade surplus (which is a trade deficit for America). America’s increased trade deficit exactly offsets the dollars borrowed, leaving a net impact of zero.

It is tempting to believe that government spending creates income and jobs because we can see the factories and people put to work with government funds. We don’t see the jobs that would have been created or factories utilized elsewhere in the economy with those same dollars had they not been lent to Washington.

Consider that a family might normally put its $10,000 savings in a CD at the local bank. The bank would then lend that $10,000 to the local hardware store, which would then recycle that spending around the town, supporting local jobs. Now suppose that the family instead buys a $10,000 government bond that funds the stimulus bill.

Washington spends that $10,000 in a different town, supporting jobs there instead. The stimulus hasn’t created new spending and jobs, it has only moved them to a new town.

This explains why, despite all the new stimulus-supported jobs, the unemployment rate remains high.

If governments could spend their way to economic growth, then Germany, Spain and Greece would be wealthier than America, instead of stagnating and seeing downgraded credit ratings. If budget deficits stimulated growth, then this year’s original $1.2 trillion budget deficit would have overheated the economy even before the stimulus added $200 billion more to bring the deficit to $1.4 trillion. It clearly did not.

In reality, individuals and businesses drive economic growth through work, investment, innovation and entrepreneurship. This requires less government spending, taxes and budget deficits — not more.

No legal basis for trespassing charge

As reported by the Times-News, my ongoing battle for everyone’s right to peacefully attend “public meetings,” has been assigned to the Idaho Court of Appeals. I am now up against our Attorney General Lawrence Wasden.

When the Jerome Sempra Coal Company held its public information meeting at a local hotel, that was private property, but many of us carried leaflets. Idaho has several trespassing laws. Idaho Statute 18-7029 specifically allows carrying leaflets onto private and public property! While a person is banned from placing leaflets on tables or walls without permission, no one can stop you from simply carrying them and offering to share them with people you meet.

Attorney General Wasden is sworn to uphold the Constitution. Wasden offered no constitutional justification for my arrest via private property rights. This is the first conviction for “trespassing at a public meeting” in America, so there really is no legal basis. So Wasden ignores responding to my brief’s

Recession offers chance to do more with less

Christmas, Hannuka, New Year’s, Winter Solstice Festival, all feats of hope wrapped into a couple of weeks, all offering tantalizing new beginnings — a triumph of life, all set not coincidentally against the backdrop of the return of the sun; soon the seed catalogs will come!

The Legislature convenes now and hopes against hope the fiscal sun will return. Still, let’s be real. Fiscal winter’s still got another solar year at least, and it’s gonna get colder before it gets warmer. Meanwhile, the stockpile of turnips and potatoes gets ominously low, even the snowpack is meager. So goes the “harvest” in 2011.

To my legislators, I say thanks for your frugality last year. Please do not, do not succumb to the temptation to Californicate Idaho by borrowing from a bankrupt national treasure.

Never let a good recession go to waste. It’s a hope-filled opportunity to work together and do more with less. Last session, you cut fat, this year there’s still a lot more fat to cut. The public sector lobbies are gonna whine like stuck pigs (especially K-12 lobbies).

You signed on as statesmen. Now’s your chance to prove your mettle and wield your hard, cold scalpels. Perhaps taking a cue from a retailer, roll back wages, lower prices.

Once you’ve finished culling and cutting, then and only then, raise taxes.

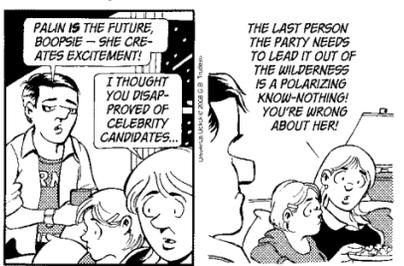

Slam a stiff and temporary graduated recession tax on 2010 personal Idaho tax returns (not corporate). Then I’ll be happy to donate a dollar per gallon for every gallon of gas I buy.

To quote Franklin, you must all hang together! Or each of you (and us) will hang separately. God will thank you, and so will I.

Here's what Idaho newspapers are saying about ...

... no surprises

Lewiston Tribune

In Olympia, Gov. Chris Gregoire ... released her plan for balancing Washington's $2.6 billion state budget deficit.

She detailed how balancing the budget simply by slashing programs would appear.

Then the governor outlined her plans to seek $700 million in tax increases and where the money would be spent to rescue programs now on the chopping block.

You can differ with the way Gregoire's framed the issue. But you have to like the early warning she provided ...

In Boise, Gov. C. L. "Butch" Otter will release his budget when he delivers a State of the State address to the newly convened Legislature on Jan. 11.

(Most) Idaho governors have operated in this way, dispersing their budget numbers for maximum political and dramatic effect ...

A month or more will pass before somebody floats a trial balloon — such as a proposed public school budget — testing what lawmakers are willing to support. After that litmus test, the fat lady sings but the process of setting budgets, closing down committees and passing legislation puts the session's end more than six weeks away.

The difference comes down to a Washington statute ordering the governor to release a balanced budget by Dec. 20 of each year. It is among nine states — including Alaska, Colorado, Hawaii, Utah and Wyoming — that mandate governors to release budgets well before lawmakers convene.

What that gets you is efficiency. Washington's 2010 Legislature has a 60-day deadline. The process is transparent. For a month, the governor's budget blueprint remains the primary focus. People remain engaged in the process.

In Idaho, the process drags on and on ... The longer it runs, the more isolated it becomes. The people inside the Capitol get to know each other better. You on the outside? Not so much.

... smart choices

Idaho Statesman, Boise

When Idaho's economy hit the skids, Idaho's growth hit a standstill. Or so the conventional wisdom goes.

Gregoire

Otter

The reality isn't so clear. And for the state's elected officials, the challenges are more complicated.

During the depths of a recession — and during a 12-month span ending July 1 — Idaho's population grew by 18,295.

... some of Idaho's growth can be traced to newcomers ... Idaho remains a destination for people looking to relocate ...

But even modest growth intensifies the pressure on Idaho's basic infrastructure. The schools that educate our ... children. The colleges that prepare tomorrow's workers.

The highways that connect Idaho with the rest of the nation. The Medicaid program that provides a health care safety net to Idahoans at risk. The prisons that help ensure public safety.

... demand for some of these services — such as higher education and Medicaid — increases during tough times.

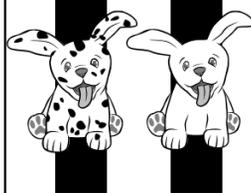

Put it all together, and you have a good idea of the challenges awaiting lawmakers next month ...

Many state agencies have already absorbed repeated budget reductions ... including 2.5 percent to the Correction Department; 3.3 percent to the Department of Health and Welfare and Medicaid; and 6 percent to ... colleges. These latest stopgap moves are designed to help Idaho through this year's crunch — yet they still leave Idaho a $52 million shortfall, for a budget year ending June 30.

Will Otter and lawmakers expect these agencies to somehow do a little more ... with a little less? Will they order another round of budget cuts, or will they instead use money from the state's savings accounts to mitigate the damage to essential services?

Will they resist the urge to dig themselves an even deeper budget hole (by pushing) through politically

... the blackout debacle

Idaho Mountain Express, Ketchum

The Christmas Eve blackout left residents and visitors in the Sun Valley area in the dark — in more ways than one.

Around 10 p.m. on Dec. 24, the lights went out on nearly 20,000 Idaho Power customers in this area. Callers to Idaho Power's emergencies and outages line heard all night that workers were looking for the problem, but hadn't found it.

The next morning, crews had been dispatched to a downed line. The message didn't say when power might be restored.

For years, Idaho Power has told anyone who would listen that a catastrophic failure in a critical substation could leave the area without power for up to two weeks. The company has been working to get approval for a secondary system to avoid that happening.

That message was on the minds of everyone who's been paying attention.

In a power outage, Idaho Power's responsibility is to get the power back on. However, the responsibility to care for the general public falls on officials in counties and cities ...

The county has no trigger point for widespread communication of options for the public — after so many hours without power, for example.

Some citizens called 911, overwhelming the system ... However, many people couldn't call because cell or landline phones were out in some places ...

The only information broadcast was in a reverse-911 recorded telephone message when the power was about to come back on. It advised that non-essential electronics be shut off to reduce power loads. People without phone service never got it.

Much more information should have been available much earlier ... The Web was accessible with smartphones, which are everywhere these days, but it wasn't utilized.

People in charge of local emergency services came up short on communicating with the public during the Castle Rock Fire in 2007. Elected officials vowed to fix the problem. They obviously didn't ...

IDAHO Otter threatens suit over health care bills

BOISE — Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter said he may sue to stop federal health care reform, calling U.S. House and Senate bills unconstitutional and too costly.

Otter sent letters Wednesday to House Speaker Nancy Pelosi and Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid, telling them he's considering legal action to keep the federal government from imposing "a crushing unfunded mandate" on state and local governments.

He questioned Congress' constitutional power to mandate health care coverage and contended reforms will cost taxpayers — and eventually their kids — too much.

Otter also objected to Medicaid funding deals that benefit Nebraska and Louisiana that U.S. Senate Democrats struck before the Christmas Eve vote to help win support from those states' lawmakers.

Thirteen Republican attorneys general, including Idaho's Lawrence Wasden, said separately they also object to the deal with Nebraska, and threatened a court fight if it isn't stripped from reforms. (See story on Outdoors 6)

U.S. grandparents lose international custody battle

BOISE — The Idaho Supreme Court ruled Wednesday that two orphaned children will remain with their grandmother in Argentina, not with family members in California who also wanted custody.

The ruling means that Alden and Aliana Heiss will stay with Violeta Conti in Ushuaia, a region dubbed "the end of the world" by locals.

The children's parents, Karl Heiss and Marisa Bauducco-Heiss, of Bonners Ferry, were killed in a car crash near Seattle last year. Aliana, who was 10 at the time of the crash, sustained severe brain damage in the crash; Alden, who was 6, suffered whiplash but has fully recovered.

The parents had handwritten wills granting custody to Conti, but paternal grandparents Fred and Anna Belle Heiss, of Malibu, Calif., sought custody. They contended Aliana needed medical care only available in the U.S. and that Alden would heal better from the emotional trauma if he was in a familiar setting.

"Oh, this is terrible," Anna Belle Heiss said after learning of the ruling. "So my grandchildren are gone for good, my children are gone for good — you have no idea how terrible this is."

Conti said after the ruling that it was "tremendous news."

"We had no idea it would come so quickly," she added.

In the 14-page unanimous ruling, Chief Justice Daniel Eismann said state law, which places the deceased parents' wishes first when determining guardianship, doesn't jibe with the Heisses' contention that the best interests of the children should be the primary factor in determining custody.

Judge orders city to surrender records

REXBURG — A state district judge has ordered the city of Rexburg to turn over records of an investigation into a complaint filed against the city's former mayor by a female employee.

Seventh District Judge Gregory Moeller is requesting the documents as part of a lawsuit filed last month by the Post Register, which is asking the judge to force the city to hand over the records and any e-mails that may have circulated between former mayor Shawn Larsen and the assistant. During a hearing earlier this week, Moeller said he will review the records before deciding whether they should be released to the Idaho Falls newspaper.

The city claims the records are exempt from public disclosure, citing a state law that protects personnel records, personal information, health records and professional discipline from public disclosure.

The newspaper sued to obtain information about an internal investigation into Larsen, who served in that post since 2004 but resigned in September less than two years into his second term. The newspaper sued after the city previously rejected a public records request targeting the documents.

Police say helpers saved crash victim

POTLACH — Police are crediting a passing motorist with helping save the life of a Moscow man involved in a car crash on U.S. Highway 95.

Investigators say 30-year-old John Balka is in critical condition in a Spokane, Wash., hospital after losing control of his car near Potlatch Monday night. Balka was ejected from the vehicle and his legs were severed in the crash.

Idaho State Police Trooper

Chad Montgomery says the first people to arrive at the crash scene applied tourniquets that may have helped save Balka's life.

Montgomery did not identify the good Samaritans, but tells the Lewiston Tribune that one of them is a sports medicine specialist.

WYOMING Man kills mountain lion eating his llama

ALTA — A Wyoming llama owner says he fatally shot a mountain lion that had killed at least one of his animals.

Lou Centrella of Alta says he found his llama, named Grayson, dead on Sunday morning and that another llama, named Frito, was missing.

Centrella and a Teton County sheriff's deputy determined from tracks that a mountain lion had killed Grayson. He says a neighbor spotted a mountain lion feeding on the llama carcass in his yard Monday and that the sheriff's office advised him to shoot the big cat.

Centrella says he feels bad about shooting the lion but was concerned that it had gotten a taste for the meat.

COLORADO Lawyers: Sheens want to reconcile

DENVER — Actor Charlie Sheen and his wife Brooke Sheen want to reconcile, their lawyers said Wednesday, even though she told police he put a knife to her throat and threatened to kill her less than a week ago.

"They're very much in love. They want to try to work it out and want to have the best shot at doing that," Brooke Sheen's attorney, Yale Galanter, told The Associated Press.

Charlie Sheen's attorney, Richard Cummins, confirmed his client wants to reconcile. Cummins filed a court motion Wednesday asking a judge to dismiss a restraining order that prevents the couple from having contact.

The couple's desire to reconcile was first reported by TMZ.com.

Charlie Sheen, 44, was arrested on Christmas Day in Aspen, where the couple was on vacation. Brooke Sheen, 32, told police he threatened her during an argument that started when she said she wanted a divorce.

Charlie Sheen told police the couple slapped each other and that he snapped two pairs of her eyeglasses in front of her, but he denied threatening her with a knife.

He faces charges of felony menacing, domestic violence, second-degree assault and criminal mischief and is free on $8,500 bond. A hearing is scheduled for Feb. 8 in Aspen.

GMAC gets $3.8 billion in new aid

By Jeannine Aversa and Stephen Manning
Associated Press writers

WASHINGTON — The government on Wednesday provided a fresh $3.8 billion cash infusion to stabilize GMAC Financial Services as the financing company struggles with hefty losses in its home mortgage unit.

The Treasury Department said the new aid, which comes from a taxpayer-financed bailout fund, is less than the roughly $6 billion the government had earlier thought GMAC would need to stabilize the company.

The fresh infusion is on top of $12.5 billion in taxpayer money Detroit-based GMAC has already received from the government. The new agreement will boost the federal government's ownership in GMAC to 56 percent, from 35 percent.

Even with the government upping its stake, Treasury officials said the government intends to stick to its policy of leaving day-to-day business decisions about financing to GMAC management. Still, with the additional stake, the government will have the right to appoint two additional directors to the company's board, Treasury officials said.

GMAC will continue to be subject to executive pay restrictions imposed by the government's pay czar.

Shoring up GMAC has been a major component of the Obama administration's massive effort to rescue ailing automakers General Motors and Chrysler, which both operate in Ohio. The lender provides critical wholesale financing to thousands of GM and Chrysler auto dealers, allowing them to stock their showroom floors with vehicles.

But GMAC also operates a large residential mortgage business, ResCap, which was battered by the recent housing collapse. GMAC was obligated by the Treasury Department to raise $11.5 billion in additional capital earlier this year after failing the government's stress test for banks, largely because of ResCap's big losses.

The stress tests were to see whether banks had enough capital even if the economy worsens next year. However, GMAC had difficulty raising money because of its financial woes, making an extra government infusion necessary. Michael Carpenter, who succeeded Alvaro De Molina as the company's CEO in November, has said the company would need no more than $5.6 billion in aid. Lawmakers estimated the company would receive between $2 billion and $5 billion in additional aid.

Any additional government money would come from the $700 billion Troubled Asset Relief Program that has been used to bail out troubled financial institutions and automakers.

Investment bubbles dominate the decade

2010 may be no different

By Tim Paradis
Associated Press writer

NEW YORK — A string of exploding investment bubbles that started with the dot-coms and ended with mortgages and oil dominated the years from 2000 to 2009. And it looks like the next decade will be no different.

It doesn't seem to matter to many hedge fund traders and other professional investors that the Standard & Poor's 500 index has turned in its first losing performance over the course of a decade, having fallen 23 percent from 1,469.25 at the start of 2000 to its current 1,126.20. Or that they or other investors helped create and then destroy the bubbles that left stocks worth $2.5 trillion less today than when the decade began — and that's before adding in the effects of inflation.

A mix of investor hubris, ignorance and piles of easy money created the bubbles. New ideas about where to invest seemed foolproof and greed crowded out doubts. Many investors looking for the best returns failed to see the potential problems with an Internet business that had no sales plan, or that thousands of expensive homes bought with no down payment might end up in foreclosure.

Now, these investors who fled the last blowups risk running smack into others. The Federal Reserve is keeping borrowing costs low to help revive the economy, and

Last day to take advantage of tax break

By Joshua Palmer
Times-News writer

Although there is only one day left in 2009, small business owners still have time to squeeze in some last minute tax breaks.

But before business owners start spending to beat today's deadline, they should remember the mantra of accountants and other tax professionals: Don't take these steps just to save on your tax bill. They have to make good business sense over the long term.

Bill Baxter, a CPA with Cooper Norman Certified Public Accountants, said business owners shouldn't be thinking about 2009 alone. He said tax planning needs to be a forward- and backward-looking process.

"You need to consider if you're going to be making more money next year," he said.

Or, if you're likely to suffer a loss for this year, Baxter suggests you look at possibly carrying losses back for two to five years. To increase a business' deductions, he said owners might want to consider buying, for example, computers or equipment before Dec. 31. That will allow them to take advantage of the Section 179 deduction for new equipment purchases.

But business owners need to keep an eye on the improving economy.

"If you think you're going to be in a higher tax bracket next year, maybe you want to defer those deductions to offset next year's income," Baxter said. "For example, if a grower expects to have a bumper crop next year, then they might wait to take the deductions. There's a lot of considerations to make this decision — including timing and planning."

He said owners should have a good sense of whether their companies are likely to show a profit or loss for 2009 before taking any more deductions. Baxter said owners need to be aware of some caveats with the Section 179 deduction, named for an Internal Revenue Code provision that allows for equipment to be deducted up-front rather than depreciated over a period of time.

While equipment must be delivered and placed in service by Dec. 31, Baxter said the deduction allows for some flexibility.

Business owners don't have to pay for the equipment this year. If a contract has been signed for financing and the equipment is up and running before midnight, you can deduct it.

Managers of the year

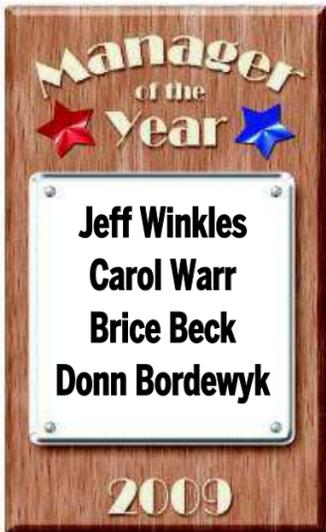

Tough times create strong leaders in south-central Idaho

Times-News

Let's face it — 2009 wasn't fun for most managers.

But, through the thick of it, some of the strongest minds led businesses in south-central Idaho toward new opportunities and growth.

This is the second year the Times-News has published the managers of the year. The 29 nominations submitted by employees were narrowed down to four managers who took the initiative to increase sales, reduce employee turnover and adapt to a recessionary environment.

Jeff Winkles
Burley

Jeff Winkles is the general manager of Packaging Specialties, a new business to the Mini-Cassia area.

What makes Jeff different from other GMs? In 2008, Mr Winkles was offered a promotion within the company. No big deal, except it meant uprooting his family from Georgia, where he was born and raised, and moving his family to Burley.

He was assigned to get a new plant up and running within 18 months — hiring almost all of its employees.

See WINKLES, Business 2

Carol Warr
Burley

A trade journal recently stated that the marine industry has seen a contraction of about 65 percent. This includes boat manufacturers, their suppliers and the retail dealer network.

But Carol Warr, business manager with Idaho Water Sports in Burley, which has 23 full- and part-time employees, has maintained an optimistic outlook, even taking a leadership role in finding ways for the business to thrive.

See WARR, Business 2

Brice Beck
Paul

Brice Beck is manager and part owner of Butte Irrigation Inc. located in Paul for about 22 years.

His employees say he provides a positive work atmosphere for about 28 employees who have been with the company for more than 12 years — how's that for low-turnover?

"Brice created the kind of atmosphere were we as an employee actually look forward to going to work," said Lee Leslie, an employee in the sales department.

See BECK, Business 2

Donn Bordewyk
Jerome

Donn Bordewyk started working for Valley Co-ops Inc. in 1992.

Since then, he has led the construction of a new store in Buhl and in 2009, he helped open a 20,000 square foot store in Jerome.

Valley Co-ops has grown from seven employees when it first opened, to more than 40. Adding four truck routes and a propane department that services Magic Valley,

U.S. may impose duties on Chinese steel

By Peter Whoriskey
 The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - The U.S. International Trade Commission has ruled that a surge of subsidized Chinese steel has harmed or threatens to harm the U.S. industry, in one of the largest ever trade cases involving the two countries.

The volume of steel pipes imported from China more than tripled between 2006 and 2008, rising from $632 million to $2.6 billion, according to the Commerce Department.

The case means that the United States can collect duties on the Chinese imports.

"This is great news for the U.S.

steel industry," said Roger Schagrin, attorney for the U.S. steelmakers and the United Steelworkers union.

The case also promises to heighten trade tensions between the countries, which were aggravated earlier this year, when the Obama administration put a tariff on imported Chinese tires.

According to the six U.S. companies that filed the complaint along with the United Steelworkers, Chinese government subsidies to steelmakers allowed the Chinese firms to overwhelm their U.S. rivals. The U.S. companies alleged that their Chinese rivals received discounts on raw materials and loans from government-owned firms.

Citing preliminary decisions in the case, the Commerce Department in November imposed duties on the steel pipes from China ranging from 10 percent to 16 percent. The ITC decision allows the duties to remain in place.

The steel pipes at issue are used primarily by the oil and gas industry and are known as "oil country tubular goods." By dollar volume of imports in the industry, the case represents the largest U.S.-China trade case ever, lawyers said.

Schagrin said about half of the workers involved in the particular type of steel in the case had been laid off "because of the massive flood of imports from China. That may now change."

Investment

 that means there's still plenty of easy money around, helping traders to inflate the price of everything from stocks to commodities such as gold.

"They've put out the biggest punch bowl in U.S. history and people are guzzling from it," said Haag Sherman, chief investment officer at Salient Partners in Houston.

It begs several questions: What will be the next bubble? Or is it already here? And, how do individual investors protect their savings?

Some analysts have already been asking if the stock market formed a bubble with its huge rebound this year. The S&P 500 is up 68.9 percent from the 12-year trading low of 666.79, its best performance since the 1930s.

Gold is also suspect. It's above $1,098 an ounce and up 24 percent in 2009. Other possible sources of bubbles include stocks in emerging markets such as China, where the Shanghai index is up 76.4 percent this year.

Analysts say it's in the DNA of markets to let ambition cloud good judgment and that even when investors learn or relearn a lesson about excess, many still forget it.

Decade of bursting investment bubbles

Analysts warn that even with lessons learned from the dot-com bust and the mortgage crisis, new bubbles could be forming.

Warr

Gordon Hansen, the company's president, said she has initiated programs to cut operating costs and reduce overhead. And she found innovative ways to market the business on a tighter budget.

Warr helped negotiate a purchase of a major boat manufacturer's distressed inventory - the terms of the purchase put IWS in a better position to compete in a market of heavy discounts and liquidations.

Warr has organized the "Wake in the Snake" wakeboard competition in Burley for many years, as well as several other community events sponsored by the company.

"Although we have suffered a decline in boat sales, we have actually had an increase in sales in our two service departments," Hansen said. "I believe this, in part, is a credit to Carol's marketing efforts."

Beck

Beck has made it a practice of giving back to the community during good times - and bad. Just ask the schools, local 4-H clubs, Boy Scouts and county fairs.

His employees say Beck's leadership built employee moral, which has helped the business succeed in tough times.

Bordewyk

Wood River Valley and Camas County.

Bordewyk helped the company remain solvent even in hard economic times - paying patronage to its customers through 2009.

Valley Co-op employees said Bordewyk "has done an excellent job in guiding our company in the right direction."

Winkles

His employees say he "buckled down, hired good people, and had the plant up and running in 6 months."

It took courage, hard work, and a lot of hours away from his family. He is part of the team, willing to do anything he asks of anyone else.

Jeff also embraced the community, joined a service club, coaching little league football and helping youth in their youth programs.

His employees say he handles difficult issues with care and dignity - always leaving workers with a positive attitude afterwards.

ASHLEY SMITH/Times-News

Matt Thompson, of Adventure Motorsports in Twin Falls, discusses some of the benefits to purchasing a Snell-approved helmet and said the extra cost is worth the additional protection it provides.

TREND 2010:

Helmets and trails

By Andrew Weeks
Times-News writer

There's always something exciting in the off-road world, and 2010 is no exception.

While agencies seek to implement travel plans, off-road enthusiasts want to ensure trail access. They can better do that by participating in a new riders association that formed in October. They'll be better protected, too, with improved Snell helmets.

Gear in the new year also has a new shade: bright.

Here are a few trends you can count on in the off-road world in 2010.

Trail access and travel plans

Bruce Thompson, left, of Sacramento, Calif., rides with Tiffany Thompson of Burley in the South Hills in October 2008. Magic Valley ATV Riders club has a number of new rides and trail projects planned in the new year. The club also supports a new off-road association that will better fight for trail access.

If you want to stir controversy, just bring up the issue of trail access.

The topic promises to stir debate once the Bureau of Land Management implements its own travel plans — this on top of plans issued in 2008 by the U.S. Forest Service, which closed a number of off-road trails in the Gem State and restricted cross-country travel.

The BLM plans won't go into effect for at least two more years, but according to Max Yingst, outdoor recreation planner with the BLM's Jarbidge Field Office, 2010 will be a year of reviewing and revising the process.

"Unless there's a dire need to implement a travel map," he said, "most field offices and districts are waiting for the plan revision."

Meanwhile, off-road groups plan to stay abreast of developments and fight for trail access, said Fred Spence, president of the Snake River Trail Machine Riders Association.

Riders need to make their own new year's trends, he said: Don't be apathetic, stay abreast of issues, and let your voice be heard.

"There'll be challenges ahead of us this next year to make sure we don't lose more trails," Spence said. "People need to keep their eyes and ears open to see what's going on to keep access open."

Riders banding together

Stan Mai, president of Magic Valley ATV Riders, says the new Idaho State ATV Association will help off-road enthusiasts 'have a stronger, united voice' in 2010.

A new riders association that formed in October will better help ATV users fight for trail access and other issues in the new year, said Stan Mai, president of Magic Valley ATV Riders.

"It'll help us have a stronger, united voice," he said of the new Idaho State ATV Association, whose main purpose is to be the political arm of southern Idaho ATV clubs. After getting clubs' consensus on an issue, for instance, the association can lobby lawmakers.

Mai said joining the association opens communication between clubs, helps members network on issues and riding venues, and allows riders to get to know each other.

Headed by Clark Collins of Pocatello, formerly of the BlueRibbon Coalition, about 15 clubs have signed up so far.

Joining a local riders club also is beneficial, Mai said, because riders can better stay abreast of off-road topics, including those that trickle down from the association, and they don't have to ride alone. His club has a number of rides planned in 2010, as well as trail cleanup projects and fundraisers.

Ride a better dirt bike

Plan to see more fuel-injected dirt bikes in 2010.

"They're cleaner, more efficient," said Wes Wall of Adventure Motorsports in Twin Falls.

Fuel injection is a calibrated system that mixes fuel with air in an internal combustion engine. This replaces the need for a carburetor.

Wall's shop, which sells Honda and Yamaha models, is waiting to receive Yamaha's new fuel-injected motocross bike, the YZ450F.

"We had one in stock but it already has sold," he said. He expects more after the first of the year.

Other manufacturers also are introducing dirt bikes to fuel injection, such as Suzuki's RMZ250. Its four-stroke remains the same, but the 2010 model includes a revised cam timing and updated intake ports.

Honda's CRF250R dirt bike is digitally fuel-injected, as is Kawasaki's KX450F. KTM expects most of its off-road line-up to be fuel-injected by 2013.

Idaho man buried in avalanche on the long road to recovery

By Eric Barker
The Lewiston Tribune

LEWISTON — Matt Potratz isn't supposed to be alive.

Following severe injuries sustained in an avalanche last winter, doctors twice told the elite snowmobiler's family there was no hope.

"My dad said, 'I'm not ready to give up yet because I know Matt would not give up,'" he said.

Potratz, 28, of Lewiston, didn't give up. He spent about 100 days in hospitals, faced grueling physical therapy, follow-up surgery and struggled through the blues. He continues to deal with chronic pain. But he's alive, back at work and still looking to prove doctors wrong.

"It's been a long road," he said. "People seem to admire me for being so strong. I guess I have been but I have to first and foremost give credit to God for answering hundreds of prayers and second to my friends and family for making me believe I could be Matt again. I could not have done it without them."

Last March, Potratz was snowmobiling in the Duck Lake area near McCall when a massive avalanche broke loose and swept him down a steep slope before slamming him into a tree and burying him beneath snowy rubble.

He suffered a spinal injury, head trauma, a broken femur, three broken ribs and nerve damage to his left arm. Surgeons at St. Alphonsus Regional Medical Center in Boise, where he spent most of his hospital time, fused three vertebrae in his neck to stabilize his spine. His leg and ribs have healed. He says his speech, damaged by the head injury, is improving and expected to return to normal.

His left arm, however, is dead. He explained that four main nerves allow the human arm to function. Two of the nerves in his arm were pulled out by the roots at the spinal cord. The remaining two broke in half, leaving the arm numb and motionless.

"It's very rare to have all four of them get damaged," he said of the nerves.

In September doctors at the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn., took muscles from his right thigh and moved them to his injured arm. They also rerouted nerves in his rib cage that help him inhale and exhale to the transplanted muscles. They hope by next summer he will have recovered about 50 percent of his arm's function. Potratz said his hand could recover some feeling but it is not expected to function normally.

"I can't feel it or move it. The only nerves that are working are the ones that feel pain," he said and then laughed.

"It's not the end of the world," he said of having to deal with long-term pain.

He has no memory of the avalanche nor any memories from earlier in the day.

"I can't even remember waking up that morning. It's not foggy. It's gone."

He was in a solid coma for about 20 days and in and out of one for another 20. His first post-injury recollection is opening his eyes in the hospital and seeing his friend

Mary Egeland in the hospital bed next to him.

"Mary was laying with me on my bed and looked up at me and saw I was looking at her and tears filled her eyes."

His energy level has begun to rebound and he's feeling more and more like himself.

"I'm still not 100 percent but I'm getting closer and closer every day," he said. "I'm way ahead of where doctors expected me to be and I'm thankful for that."

He was supposed to be in the hospital for six to eight months and at home recovering for another 12 months. Between physical therapy sessions he recently began working part time at his job as a sales manager at Rogers Toyota Scion in Lewiston.

Despite the injuries and the ways it has changed his life, Potratz doesn't have any regrets. He was a top-echelon snowmobiler and doing things some might consider crazy. But he doesn't see it that way. His exploits were risky to be sure but he said he and his snowmobiling partners took precautions. They wore avalanche beacons, helmets and body armor. They took courses in avalanche safety.

"A lot of people think the guys that do this kind of stuff are crazy or stupid. The truth is I am a professional. I've been riding 11 years and have about 15,000 miles of seat time in the backcountry. I was not riding outside of my ability that day and I had a machine capable of making that hill. It just proves the mountain is unpredictable and this was a true accident."

He said the hill where the slide occurred was not a typical avalanche slope and earlier in the day he declined to make a run up another slope because it was prone to slides.

"I wanted to be safe," he said.

He will ride again but not at the elite level that won him several sponsorship from snowmobile gear companies and landed him in six snowmobile films.

His accident was captured on film and featured in "A Calculated Risk" by 208 Productions. A trailer that shows the avalanche break loose is available on YouTube.

He credits rescuers and those who were with him when the slide occurred for their part in saving his life.

"The guys there that day did everything right. I was wearing an avalanche beacon, so were the people with me. They turned their beacons on and walked right to me and had me out in a matter of minutes."

It's too slick to ride — where's my ATV?

I've been talking to motorcycle enthusiasts lately and, like me, they're fed up with the cold weather.

Bummer, since there's at least three more months of winter ahead of us, according to the calendar.

You snow freaks out there — I once shared your love for winter, back when I had access to a snowmobile. But taking my bike out, fearing I'll run into black ice isn't much fun anymore.

The older I've gotten (at 30-something I don't consider myself that old), the more cumbersome winter has become for me. I know I sound like Grandpa Scrooge, but forgive me, it's because I haven't been able to ride my bike in a while. I already know my wife's reaction when she reads this today. After all, she's the one who walks around our home all summer long wearing a sweater, this because I crank our home's air conditioner down to the low 60s.

"You lying turd," she'll say. "You make me freeze all summer long and now you're saying you don't like the cold?"

But like a good Scout, I'm prepared with my answer:

"Honey, I'll say, 'the 60s aren't considered sub-zero, like Idaho has proven to be this season.

Remember Thanksgiving? "And that wasn't even officially winter yet!"

I really shouldn't complain, I guess, because so far Twin Falls hasn't gotten a lot of snow this year. But there's been enough to make the roads icy — and that's enough for me to not like winter.

Maybe I'd be writing to a different tune if I bought an all-terrain vehicle, a machine that, if it had a soul, would look at ice ... and then laugh.

To my wife: "Honey, if you're still reading, how 'bout we go look at some four-wheelers this week?"

I'd still be cold, but I might learn to like it again.

The year's best gear

From whitewater kayaking in Colorado to trekking in Belize, the past 12 months proved to be another epic year of adventure. Along the way, I put dozens of outdoors products to the test — tents, packs, boots, bikes and knives among the mix. These 10 items below, a best-of-the-best list, stood apart from the rest.

1 The North Face Animagi Jacket — Winter running and XC skiing are more comfortable in this hybrid jacket. With PrimaLoft-stuffed panels and thin, stretchy sleeves, the $149 Animagi breathes where it needs to and insulates the core.

2 New Balance Burnout Tee — No other shirt I own breathes as well as the $45 Burnout Tee, which is made of recycled polyester and an exotic fabric derived from coconut husks. For most all activities, it is comfortable — even when soaked with sweat.

3 Wabi Cycles Lightning Bike — The fixed-gear Lightning was the most exciting bike I rode all year. The 17-pound bike — which costs $800 — climbs, corners, and accelerates like few bikes in its price range.

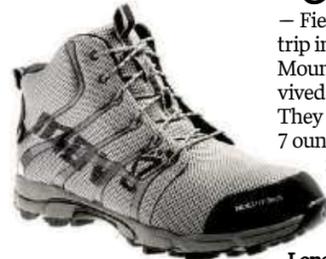

4 Vasa Kayak Ergometer — This exercise machine mimics the kayaking experience with a paddle-like shaft, a seat, foot braces and a fly-wheel drive. My strengthened abs, shoulders and arms are proof to its efficiency. But at $1,999, the gains do not come cheap.

5 Inov-8 Roclite 288 GTX — "The lightest-weight waterproof boot on the market." That's the claim with the Roclite 288 GTX, a $130 high-top that measures a scant 10 ounces per boot.

6 Drymax Trail Running Socks — A proprietary fabric mix in these socks moves moisture away from the skin, preventing blisters. I wore a pair for two days backpacking in Colorado. The sock's special "dry" fabric helped keep moisture off my skin. $12, www.drymaxsports.com 7 Castelli Sottile Cycling Jacket — It may feel like reinforced plastic sheeting. But the wind- and water-resistant Sottile Jacket, $80, offers a significant layer of protection against the elements.

8 Leki Carbonlite AER-GON Antishock Poles — Field tested on a climbing trip in the Sierra Nevada Mountains, these poles survived miles of abuse. Bonus: They weigh a feathery 7 ounces per pole. But the $199 price tag might scare you away.

9 GoLite DriMove BL-2 Longsleeve Zip — A textured weave and a face fabric that is embedded, improbably, with volcanic minerals distinguishes GoLite's $55 top. The lava rock ingredient — ground to a fine dust and added as a fabric treatment — adds antibacterial odor control.

10 Saucony ViZi-PRO Collection — The obscene-orange color of Saucony's ViZi-PRO Collection has one purpose in life: To make you as visible as possible to drivers when running near roads. The line of apparel, including tops, jackets, gloves and hats is so bright it almost hurts to look at.

TREND 2010: Helmets and trails

Waiting on the lead law

Manufacturers, shops and off-road enthusiasts were frustrated when the Consumer Product Safety Improvement Act of 2008 restricted the sale of youth dirt bikes and ATVs. The law, which passed in August 2008 but went into effect in February, banned all products designed for children 12 and younger that contain lead over specified limits.

Off-road machines should never have been included, said Rob Glodowski of Action Cycles 'n Sleds in Twin Falls.

Enforcement of the law as it pertains to the sale of youth ATVs and dirt bikes was delayed until May 2011 while the Consumer Product Safety Commission reviews the issue of off-road machines. But Glodowski said he still can't sell some of his bikes. Kawasaki's KFX50 and KDX50 are still banned, as is Suzuki's JR50.

The stipulation does not affect J&C Motorsports in Twin Falls and its array of KTM bikes, said shop owner Jeff Sharp.

Shop owners say it's difficult to tell what happens next. "Who knows," Glodowski said. "I don't trust the government."

Improved helmets

Protecting your head just got better with improved Snell-certified helmets.

Snell-approved helmets, now mandatory throughout the UK and Europe, are rated higher than America's DOT-approved helmets. For instance, it is up to manufacturers to determine U.S. Department of Transportation compliance for helmets, whereas Snell continually tests helmets in its own laboratories.

"They're always working on new composites, trying to improve the helmets about every five years," said Wes Wall of Adventure Motorsports.

The shop, like most other area motorcycle businesses, sells Snell-certified helmets. But because of their high standards, prices can be hefty.

Shop owners say you get what you pay for. "You can buy a $28 helmet and it is what it is," said Nick Telleria of Let's Ride.

Helmets have improved over the years and will continue to do so with new technology.

With Snell working in the marketplace, he said, you can count on it.

ASHLEY SMITH/Times-News

Colorful off-road gear

If there's a tone to describe 2010, it's fluorescent — at least in the off-road market.

Bright colors are the trend in off-road gear, especially with two-wheeler fans.

Let's Ride motorcycle shop in Burley sells a variety of colorful off-road gear, from florescent motocross jerseys to bight gloves and goggles. That's just the opposite for street bike users whose mainstay is black, said shop owner Nick Telleria. But for some reason dirt bikers like brights.

"The brighter the colors, the better," he said.

Some of that gear, such as neck braces, is starting to move into the snowmobile market. That's a good thing, Telleria said, since previously snowmobile gear was limited.

Galileo in retrospect at end of International Year of Astronomy

Today, the last day of 2009, ends the International Year of Astronomy, so designated by the International Astronomical Union to commemorate the 400th anniversary of Galileo's telescopic discoveries. For me, the focus on Galileo was an opportunity to learn some surprising facts about his achievements.

Astronomy buffs know that Galileo didn't invent the telescope, but was famous for using it to explore the night sky. Like many, I had always read that Galileo discovered that the moon's surface was earth-like, with mountains and valleys. But Englishman Thomas Herriot was the first to sketch his telescopic observations of the moon, preceding Galileo by four months (as detailed in this column in July). Herriot is a footnote to history because, unlike Galileo, he failed to publish his discoveries.

I had also read that Galileo was the first to see a star in the daytime with a telescope, but again, he was beaten to the punch. Jean-Baptiste Morin, of France, followed the bright star Arcturus (currently rising in the ENE, around 1 a.m.) for a full half hour after sunrise in March 1635, two years before Galileo reported having seen stars in a daytime sky with his telescope.

Galileo was certainly the first to discover that there was something unusual about Saturn, but his crude optics prevented him from discerning that Saturn's protrusions were encircling rings. That honor fell to Dutchman Christian Huygens, in 1655. Still, Galileo was the first to see the "handles" or "large moons" (as he called them)

Sun Valley comes to Twin Falls

New bus service provides rides for skiers, boarders

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

Sun Valley Resort wants more skiers and snow riders from Twin Falls on Bald and Dollar mountains.

Even if that means sending a bus to fetch them.

The resort has chartered a Sun Valley Stages ski bus to take Twin Falls skiers and boarders from Twin Falls to Sun Valley every Saturday during the ski season starting Jan. 2 and running through March 27.

The bus, which will be coordinated by Twin Falls resident Doug Fisher, picks up Twin Falls residents in two locations beginning at 7:10 a.m. and returns them to Twin Falls at 5:30 p.m.

An adult Baldy lift ticket package that includes a lift ticket, round-trip transportation and a beverage costs $65. A similar package for children costs $40.

A Dollar Mountain lift ticket package costs $40 for adults and $30 for a child.

Those who already have a season pass or discount card can ride round-trip for $10. Those who do not want to ski but would still like to spend a day in Sun Valley shopping, cross-country skiing and snowshoeing can ride for $20, utilizing the free Mountain Rides bus to get around town.

Sun Valley hopes to screen ski videos on the bus, as well as videos showcasing Sun Valley's amenities.

More Saturday buses and even a Sunday bus will be added pending demand, said Jack Sibbach, Sun Valley's marketing director.

Claude Hinkle, who owns Claude's Sports stores in Twin Falls and Fairfield, said he's for anything that gets people out skiing.

"Bald Mountain is a tremendous mountain. It's a world-class mountain, an international mountain. So it's nice that they're giving Twin Falls' residents another way to get there," said Hinkle, who has been skiing Baldy since 1972.

The bus service, which is being offered only in Twin Falls, is part of the resort's new effort to attract southern Idaho skiers and boarders to Sun Valley, said Mike Fitzpatrick, marketing and sales executive with Sun Valley Company.

"Two-thirds of Southern Idaho skiers and boarders don't think about Sun Valley, which I find baffling," said Fitzpatrick. "We consider ourselves a jewel among ski resorts in the United States. We're saying: Come up. See this jewel in your back yard."

Sun Valley draws about 62 percent of its visitors from out of state. Boise-area skiers make up 20 percent; Pocatello skiers, 8 percent, and Twin Falls residents, 3.5 percent.

The bus leaves Twin Falls K-Mart parking lot at 7:10 a.m. and the Magic Valley Mall parking lot outside Macy's at 7:30 a.m. Returns from Dollar Mountain at 3:45 p.m. and Bald Mountain's River Run parking lot at 4 p.m., arriving back in Twin Falls at 5:30 p.m.

Idaho skiers and boarders and found out that there's a perception that Sun Valley skiers are rich, snooty, old and fast.

"But most of us are just like they are. My kids were born here, my wife Jana is a second-generation Idahoan who taught school at Hemingway," Fitzpatrick said.

Fitzpatrick recently returned to Sun Valley after a sojourn in Oregon where he sold insurance and coached skiing at Mt. Hood Meadows.

"As a ski coach I've traveled to most major ski areas in America and I don't think there's any other single ski mountain with as guaranteed good skiing experience as Sun Valley. Whistler's size is neat but it tends to be rainy. Mt. Bachelor can get 25 inches of snow one day and two inches of rain the next..."

Sun Valley Resort has attempted to increase its presence in the Magic Valley area by joining the Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce. It sponsored a light showcasing its new gondola in the mall Christmas light display. And it's gotten involved with the College of Southern Idaho recreation department.

"We think Twin Falls and Sun Valley are very much joined at the hip. We go down there to shop and visit the doctor. We'd like them to come up here more," Fitzpatrick said. "We want it to be like a V-8 moment. We want people to stop and say, 'I should have had a Sun Valley moment!'"

Numerous blood transfusions confuse patient

DEAR DR. GOTT: I am an 86-year-old male. I was diagnosed last March with hemolytic anemia.

At first, my doctors did not know what the trouble was, since in two months time, I had to have 11 units of blood.

They took tests to see if I had any internal bleeding, but I didn't.

I was given rituximab once a week for four weeks to see if it would help, and it did some. I'm now on 7 milligrams of steroids.

By the way, I had heart surgery three different times. The first time, I had quadruple bypass; the second, a triple.

Can you give me more information on this disorder?

DEAR READER: Because I have never heard of

ASK DR. GOTT

hemolytic anemia, I am assuming you are referring to hemolytic anemia, a disorder in which the body's red blood cells are destroyed at a faster rate than they can be produced.

There are two types of hemolytic anemia – intrinsic and extrinsic. The first results from a defect within the red blood cells and is often an inherited condition. In the latter form, healthy red blood cells are produced, become trapped in the spleen, and ultimately get destroyed by infection or from drugs that can affect red blood cells. Some extrinsic forms are temporary and resolve completely. Others can be chronic, with periods of remission and recurrence.

Symptoms of either form vary from person to person, and they can include an enlarged spleen and liver, tachycardia (increased heart rate), murmur, jaundice, fever, weakness and dizziness.

The form of treatment used depends on a number of factors, including age, medical history, extent of the disease and more. Vitamin and mineral supplements may be prescribed along with prescription medication. Dietary changes and removal of the spleen might be appropriate.

The rituximab (Rituxan) you were prescribed interferes with the growth and spread of cancer cells within the body and is used for hemolytic anemia to stop the body from attacking its red blood cells. It is also used in combination with other cancer medications to treat non-Hodgkin's lymphoma and rheumatoid arthritis.

It is clear that your primary-care physician or specialist should follow your case closely so you can get the best possible care.

To provide related information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "Blood: Donations and Disorders."

Other readers who would like a copy should send a self-addressed stamped No. 10 envelope and a $2 check or money order to Newsletter, P.O. Box 167, Wickliffe, OH 44092. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My 65-year-old sister has had hives all her life. The hives come and go, and she takes Benadryl, which helps some of the time.

DEAR READER: Hives are an outbreak on the skin as a result of the body reacting to certain allergens.

Or they can occur for unknown reasons.

They appear when blood plasma leaks out of small blood vessels in the skin in response to histamine, a chemical from cells near the blood vessels of the skin. They ordinarily itch; however, they might burn or sting. They vary in size and can last for hours or days.

There are times when it is impossible to determine why they form, but insect stings, medication, foods, heat and cold, and, rarely, sunlight are known causes.

Your sister should be under the care of an allergist who can perform specific testing to determine the cause of her outbreaks. In the interim, she may want to try a non-sedating antihistamine, such as loratadine or fexofenadine. If these fail, she should go back to the Benadryl.

YEMEN

Yemeni forces raid al-Qaida hideout, clashes erupt

SANA — Yemeni forces raided an al-Qaida hideout and set off a gun battle Wednesday as the government vowed to eliminate the group that claimed it was behind the Christmas bombing attempt on a U.S. airliner.

The fighting took place in an al-Qaida stronghold in western Yemen, haven for a group that attacked the U.S. Embassy here in 2008, killing 10 Yemeni guards and four civilians. A government statement said at least one suspected militant was arrested during the clashes.

"The (Interior) Ministry will continue tracking down al-Qaida terrorists and will continue its strikes against the group until it is totally eliminated," Deputy Interior Minister Brig. Gen. Saleh al-Zawari told senior military officials at a meeting in Mareb, another province believed to shelter al-Qaida fighters.

Al-Qaida in the Arabian Peninsula, an offshoot of Osama bin Laden's group, claimed it was behind the attempt to bomb a Detroit-bound airliner. Nigerian Umar Farouk Abdulmutalab, a 23-year-old passenger, was arrested Friday after he allegedly tried to bring down the Northwest Airlines flight, carrying 289 people.

SOMALIA

Somali arrested at airport with chemicals, syringe

MOGADISHU — U.S. officials are investigating a Somali man's alleged attempt to board a flight bound for Djibouti and Dubai last month carrying chemicals, liquid and a syringe in a case bearing chilling echoes of the plot to blow up a Detroit-bound airliner on Christmas Day.

Terrorism analysts said the arrest in Mogadishu, the Somali capital, could prove highly valuable for the Detroit investigation if the incidents turn out to be linked.

The Somali was arrested by African Union peacekeeping troops Nov. 13 before boarding the Daallo Airlines plane bound for the northern Somali city of Hargeisa, then Djibouti and Dubai.

"We don't know whether he's linked with al-Qaida or other foreign organizations, but his actions were the acts of a terrorist. We caught him red-handed," said a Somali police spokesman, Abdulahi Hassan Barise.

A Nairobi-based diplomat said the incident has similarities to the attempted attack on Northwest Airlines Flight 253 in that the Somali was said to have a syringe, liquid and powdered chemicals — tools similar to those used by the Nigerian suspect on the Detroit-bound plane.

IRAQ

Shiite group frees British hostage

BAGHDAD — A British hostage held for 21/2 years by a militant Iraqi Shiite group was freed Wednesday in a move his family hailed as "the best Christmas present ever."

Computer consultant Peter Moore was released as the U.S. handed over to Iraqi authorities Qais al-Khazali, the leader of the group suspected of kidnapping him and four British security guards, and an undetermined number of Khazali's followers. The U.S. had blamed the group Asaib Ahl al-Haq, or League of the Righteous, for killing five American soldiers.

The British Foreign Office denied that Moore's release and the transfer of al-Khazali amounted to a prisoner-for-hostages deal. The U.S. military in Baghdad said late Wednesday that it could not comment yet on Moore or al-Khazali's case.

But an Iraqi official familiar with the protracted negotiations said al-Khazali used the talks to recruit other prisoners to join his organization, promising he would add them to his list of detainees to be freed by the Americans.

AFGHANISTAN

8 Americans, 5 Canadians dead in attacks

KABUL — A suicide bomber at a base in Afghanistan's volatile east killed eight American civilians, U.S. officials said, the worst loss of life for Americans in the country since October. Four Canadian soldiers and a journalist were killed by a roadside bomb in Afghanistan's west, NATO said.

The suicide attacker detonated explosives Wednesday at Forward Operating Base Chapman in Khost province near the Afghan border with Pakistan, killing eight American civilians and wounding others, U.S. officials in Washington said.

"We mourn the loss of life in this attack, and are withholding further details pending notification of next of kin," U.S. State Department spokesman Ian Kelly said.

An attacker wearing a suicide vest caused the explosion, according to a senior U.S. official in Washington. Another senior U.S. official in Washington said there were conflicting reports on the number of casualties, but that others were injured in the attack.

wider use of full-body scanners that can see through travelers' clothing.

Dutch officials said Wednesday they will immediately begin using the machines at Amsterdam's airport, where the Nigerian accused of trying to blow up the Northwest Airlines plane began his flight.

And a key European lawmaker also called for greater use of the scanners, which are designed to spot explosives and other non-metallic objects that a metal detector would miss.

In the U.S., the Transportation Security Administration has not said whether it will accelerate its plans to roll out the machines. TSA already operates 40 of them in U.S. airports, has bought an additional 150 and plans to buy 300 more.

At least one congressman who has pushed for restrictions on full-body scanners said he would moderate his stance if the technology could better respect privacy. According to several companies that make full-body scanners, software — rather than human screeners — eventually could be capable of detecting suspicious objects on travelers' bodies as they pass through the machines.

ILLINOIS

Quinn: Secret prison early release 'big mistake'

SPRINGFIELD — Illinois Gov. Pat Quinn reversed a secret policy Wednesday that allowed more than 1,700 inmates to be released from state prison early, some of whom have already been sent back for new offenses, including aggravated battery, weapons charges and assault.

The inmates were set free after an unannounced change in prison practice — revealed in an Associated Press report earlier this month — that Quinn now calls a "big mistake." He blamed his Corrections director, Michael Randle, but did not fire him.

The AP obtained and analyzed information that showed about 850 inmates were let out weeks early beginning in September. Corrections stopped requiring them to serve at least 61 days and gave them up to six months' good-conduct credit, or "meritorious good time," immediately upon entering the lockup, before they had a chance to display any kind of behavior.

That meant they spent as little as three weeks behind bars — including county jail — and averaged 16 days in the state pen under the plan called "MGT Push." They included violent offenders who committed such crimes as battery, weapons charges and aggravated drunken driving.

"This was a big mistake and I am very disappointed that this occurred. I think it was an error in judgment," Quinn said.

The Democrat said he did not know about the practice until he read the AP account, contradicting his statement two weeks earlier that he was aware of it and that it was well-publicized.

Randle took responsibility for not following the governor's orders to keep violent offenders out of any early release program.

RUSSIA

Russia may send spacecraft to deflect asteroid

MOSCOW — Russia's space agency chief said Wednesday a spacecraft may be dispatched to knock a large asteroid off course and reduce the chances of earth impact, even though U.S. scientists say such a scenario is unlikely.

Anatoly Perminov told Golos Rossii radio the space agency would hold a meeting soon to assess a mission to Apophis. He said his agency might eventually invite NASA, the European Space Agency, the Chinese space agency and others to join the project.

When the 885-foot asteroid was first discovered in 2004, astronomers estimated its chances of smashing into Earth in its first flyby, in 2029, at 1-in-37.

Further studies have ruled out the possibility of an impact in 2029, when the asteroid is expected to come no closer than 18,300 miles from Earth's surface, but they indicated a small possibility of a hit on subsequent encounters.

NASA had put the chances that Apophis could hit Earth in 2036 as 1-in-45,000.

Karen Lee Ehlers

EDEN — Beloved wife, mother, grandmother and sister, Karen Lee Ehlers of Eden, Idaho, was born Jan. 1, 1939, in Cloquet, Minn., to Ethan and Vivian Brown and passed peacefully from the arms of her family into the arms of her Lord and Savior Jesus Christ on Sunday, Dec. 27, 2009.

In her younger years, Karen moved many places, with her father being an ironworker, and carried the love of travel with her all her life. She was baptized in Richland, Wash., in 1948 and confirmed at St. Paul's Lutheran Church in Michigan, where her family finally settled. Karen attended high school at Detroit Lutheran High School from 1953 to 1955 and at Clarenceville High School in Farmington, Mich., from 1955 to 1957. She was valedictorian of her class.

Between 1957 and 1960, Karen attended the Detroit Mercy School of Nursing and graduated as a registered nurse. Upon graduation, she worked as an RN at Mount Carmel hospital in Detroit from 1960 to 1962.

With her registered nursing degree, she came to Idaho to be a camp nurse at Camp Perkins near Stanley, Idaho. However, she ended up serving as a cook. While there, she met Elmer Ehlers. The two wed at St. Paul's Lutheran Church in Farmington, Mich., on Jan. 12, 1962. She later quipped that Elmer went fishing and got himself caught — by her.

As a new bride, Karen moved to Eden, Idaho, where her husband, Elmer, farmed. She became a mother of three children and learned to love gardening. As the children grew older, Karen worked at the Twin Falls Clinic and Hospital from 1972 to 1975.

Karen was also a wonderful cook and hostess and was even a finalist in a nationwide cooking contest. She was active in the Lutheran Woman's Missionary League at Trinity Lutheran Church in Eden, serving at different times as president, secretary and treasurer; on the board of directors and as secretary for Good Shepherd Auxiliary and Lutheran Care Home Inc. and was an active member of the West End Social Club in Eden.

Karen was preceded in death by her parents, Ethan and Vivian Brown, whom she cared for until their deaths; her premature daughter, Amy; and her elder daughter, Rebecca. She is survived by her husband of nearly 48 years, Elmer Ehlers; her only son, David (Jane) Ehlers; two grandchildren, Jonathon and Catherine Ehlers; sister, Sandra (Walt) White; brother, John (Nancy) Brown; and cat, Mitzi.

Due to the rarity of the disease from which Karen died, no viewing will be held. However, her interment service will be at 10 a.m. Saturday, Jan. 2, 2010, at Sunset Memorial Park, with a service following at 11:30 a.m. at the Trinity Lutheran Church in Eden. Services are under the direction of White Mortuary "Chapel by the Park" in Twin Falls. Donations may be made to the Good Shepherd Auxiliary to help fund the care of children and adults with special needs.

The family would like to thank the staff at Bridgeview Estates and Hospice Visions for their patience and loving care of Karen during the various stages of her disease.

Perry Edward Dyke

FILER — Perry Edward Dyke was born June 15, 1917, in Union Village, Vt., to Charles and Jennet Dyke, and died Saturday, Dec. 26, 2009.

Perry spent his childhood in Vermont and New Hampshire. He worked as a machinist until the beginning of World War II, when he enlisted in the armed forces. Perry served in the Air Force from 1942 until 1945 in Europe. He moved to Nevada in 1953 and was hired by the Jimmy Stewart Ranch in Wells, Nev. During his employment at the ranch, an accident occurred which required him to have a very long hospital stay. This turned out well for him because he was being helped by a young nurse named Bernice Arnett; they were married June 28, 1956. They chose to move to Elko and work for the state of Nevada at the Nevada Youth Training Center. Perry retired from the position of supervisor and vocational teacher after 20 years of service. They had many stories about all the children they met.

In 1976, Perry and Bernice moved to Filer, Idaho. Perry was elected mayor of Filer from 1982 to 1986. He enjoyed hunting and fishing. He took many trips to the Salmon Dam or any place the fish were biting — or not, as long as he was outside fishing. Perry kept a beautiful yard and was able to care for the yard until he was 90. He also had a large garden to which he gave many hours of attention; neighbors would walk away with many vegetables, often with a couple trips to the vehicle when they left because it would not fit in just one trip. He eventually sold the garden area but continued to grow cucumbers and tomatoes just off of his porch, always outback sitting in the shade eating the fresh vegetables with company and enjoying the conversations. Perry was always one to tell stories, making it hard for those intrigued to decipher truth from fiction. Our storyteller has moved to a bigger picture book and with his one true love.

Perry was preceded in death by his wife, Bernice Dyke; both parents; one brother; and one sister.

A family prayer was held at Perry's request.

Hazel was very talented in all forms of arts and crafts and left many paintings for us to enjoy. She spent many hours researching and writing down all she could find on her family history. 13 state AGs threaten suit over health care deal

By Meg Kinnard
Associated Press writer

COLUMBIA, S.C. — Republican attorneys general in 13 states say congressional leaders must remove Nebraska's political deal from the federal health care reform bill or face legal action, according to a letter provided to The Associated Press Wednesday.

"We believe this provision is constitutionally flawed," South Carolina Attorney General Henry McMaster and the 12 other attorneys general wrote in the letter to be sent Wednesday night to House Speaker Nancy Pelosi and Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid.

"As chief legal officers of our states we are contemplating a legal challenge to this provision and we ask you to take action to render this challenge unnecessary by striking that provision," they wrote.

In a rare Christmas Eve vote, Senate Democrats pushed sweeping health care legislation to the brink of Senate passage, crushing a year-end Republican filibuster against President Obama's call to remake the nation's health care system. The 60-39 vote marked the third time in as many days Democrats posted a supermajority needed to advance the legislation.

The letter was signed by top prosecutors in Alabama, Colorado, Florida, Idaho, Michigan, North Dakota, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, South Dakota, Texas, Utah, Virginia and Washington state. All are Republicans, and McMaster and the attorneys general of Florida, Michigan and Pennsylvania are running for governor in their respective states.

Last week, McMaster said he was leading several other attorneys general in an inquiry into the constitutionality of the estimated $100 million deal he has dubbed the "Cornhusker Kickback."

Republican U.S. Sens. Lindsey Graham and Jim DeMint of South Carolina raised questions about the legislation they said was amended to win Nebraska Sen. Ben Nelson's support.

"Because this provision has serious implications for the country and the future of our nation's legislative process, we urge you to take appropriate steps to protect the Constitution and the rights of the citizens of our nation," the attorneys general wrote.

A conference committee begins meeting next year to work out a compromise between House and Senate versions of the bill. Experts expect those talks will likely last into February.

Hear your loved ones better this holiday season.

Jerome boys' defense stifles Bishop Kelly

By David Bashore
Times-News writer

JEROME — At long last, the Jerome boys basketball team knows what it feels like to win two in a row.

After alternating wins and losses for the first seven games of the season, the Tigers used a spirited defensive effort and a decisive 12-0 run wrapped around the half-time break to beat Bishop Kelly 51-45 on Wednesday, moving to 5-3 on the year.

Jerome scored the final 10 points of the second quarter to break a 15-all deadlock, a string highlighted by a breakaway dunk by Kameron Pearce off a home-run throw from Cameron Stauffer, and punctuated by a hustling rebound putback from Nolan McDonald with seven-tenths of a second before the break. The Tigers never led by fewer than five points after that.

"The dunk got the fans and our team excited. It felt kind of like a Saturday game, because the atmosphere was different with the break and all," said Pearce, who finished with a team-best 17 points.

"I thought the hustle plays were huge for us tonight, and that was one thing we didn't have when we lost up at BK."

Jake Hollifield had 10 of his 12 points before half-time for Jerome, helping to counter the potent post game of Bishop Kelly center Jake Hardee, who scored 20 points and hauled in 15 rebounds.

Jerome held outside shooter Anthony Loisate to just nine points, including a 3-pointer at the final horn.

"We were just taking what they were going to give us offensively," said Hollifield. "It's been a weird little thing going back and forth between wins and losses, and this is a big thing for us to get two in a row."

Pearce said the winter break gave Jerome an opportunity to look at its remaining games as a new season and cast aside the inconsistent play of the first handful of games.

On Wednesday, it looked like the Tigers took advantage of that.

but I think we had some of our best practices of the season leading up to this game," said Pearce. "Bishop Kelly is a great team and this is a big win for us as we head back into conference play."

Jerome travels to Burley on Jan. 8.

HUMANITARIAN BOWL: IDAHO 43, BOWLING GREEN 42

Idaho stuns Bowling Green

Vandals win second H-Bowl in as many tries

By Josh Wright
Times-News correspondent

BOISE — In the postgame circus, with jubilant Idaho fans strewn all about Bronco Stadium, Robb Akey emerged from a mass of people on a makeshift stage and got right to the point.

"This is the best I've seen this stadium look," the Vandals football coach roared.

Thousands of UI supporters cheered in agreement, knowing they had just witnessed a Humanitarian Bowl finish on their dreaded rival's field that will be chiseled in their memories.

Heck, much of ESPN's audience might not forget it either.

Harkening back to the drama-filled close to the 1998 season, the Vandals snatched a miracle 43-42 victory away from Bowling Green on Wednesday by rallying for a touchdown and two-point conversion with 4 seconds left.

Komar atones for drop in final moments

By Josh Wright
Times-News correspondent

BOISE — Max Komar scurried across the middle late in the third quarter and attempted to bring in a simple 5-yard catch like he's done on dozens of occasions. But this time, the ball ricocheted off his chest and fell to the ground.

By then it was clear Idaho's leading receiver for the year was in a deep funk in Wednesday's Humanitarian Bowl. Robb Akey, the Vandals coach, could sense Komar's frustration and made sure to talk to him on the sideline.

"I grabbed him after that one that bounced off his chest and said, 'Hey, you still have time to catch a game-winner. You just got to keep believing — get that out of your head,'" Akey recalled after the Vandals' 43-42 triumph over Bowling Green.

Sure enough, Komar came up clutch with 4 seconds left, making a skillful grab for a 16-yard touchdown to set up the game-winning two-point conversion. It was a satisfying moment for the senior.

"To win a game like this is huge and I couldn't ask for a better way to go out," the Auburn, Wash., native said.

In a last-second plea before his TD, Komar asked quarterbacks coach Jonathan Smith to run a play for him. And all along, quarterback Nathan Enderle said the pass was headed Komar's way.

"I'm not sure why that happened but Max is a competitor," Enderle said. "When it's really, really matters he's going to come through. That's just what he did for that touchdown."

FIESTA BOWL MATCHUP: BSU DEFENSE VS. TCU OFFENSE

BSU defense presents familiar front for TCU

By Dustin Lapray
Times-News correspondent

PHOENIX — The Boise State defense is constantly overshadowed by its prolific offense. This week against TCU it has the chance to shine on a whole new stage.

The Broncos run a 4-2-5 front: four linemen, two linebackers and five secondary backs. It's an offense BSU put in during the 2008 campaign to halt spread offenses. It typically makes offenses uncomfortable and forces them to change their schemes. That's simply not so for Texas Christian.

Why? Because TCU head coach Gary Patterson also runs the defense (nearly to perfection).

"We face a 4-2-5 everyday," Jarrett Anderson, TCU co-offensive coordinator and running backs coach said. "The physical nature of it, with (Billy) Winn inside gives you troubles. They keep going to the whistle. Not all teams do that. Some teams may have two guys that show up and make a tackle, but with Boise you see seven or eight."

In the Poinsettia Bowl last season Winn had to move to defensive end because injuries left the BSU front very thin. This season, he's at tackle and the front is thick as thieves.

"We have all our bullets in the chamber for this game," Boise State defensive lineman Ryan Winterswyk said. "Last year we were struggling and guys were taking a lot of reps."

Winterswyk was a first-team All-WAC selection this season and was second in the conference in sacks (8.5) and tackles for a loss (16.5). Winn became a monster at defensive tackle, had six sacks and finished fifth on the team with 43 tackles.

The line is solid, the linebackers are fast and smart and the safeties are just plain mean to offenses. As typical at BSU, it's never one guy.

TCU offense promises to pound the football

By Dustin Lapray
Times-News correspondent

PHOENIX — There is no big secret to the No. 3 Texas Christian offensive attack.

The 12-0 Horned Frogs will run the football hard into the face of any defensive front. This is a fast offense with a big offensive line and a litany of receivers and backs just begging to get the ball.

"As a general rule, we are a balanced offense, we like to spread people out, but more importantly than that we like to be physical," Marshall Newhouse said. "We are a tough team. We just like to go play football."

Newhouse is a 6-foot-4 320-pound left tackle, key in the bruising rushing attack that averages 256.5 yards per game. TCU will run power and isolation plays, but focuses on the read option to get its yards.

Of course, the rushing attack forces defenses to load the box, which leaves it vulnerable to play-action passes from Andy Dalton, a three-year starter for TCU, now ranked No. 4 in the nation in pass efficiency.

"In football, the game has gone away from it, but running the ball has always been important to maintain possession," Newhouse said. "As linemen we like to run the ball more, but whatever the defense is giving us at the time is what we'll take."

TCU uses three horses in the backfield, all with different styles. "We've got three backs that have done an outstanding job for us," Dalton said. "It seems like we've always got a guys that's fresh in there."

The older, bigger back is senior Joseph Turner (6-1, 225), who led the team in rushing for the third consecutive season (a career best 732 yards).

"The running game gets anyone's offense going," Turner said. "If you don't have a running game you can try to pass it every game, but there's only a few teams that can do that in

Jerome girls rally for double-OT victory

By David Bashore
Times-News writer

JEROME — Call the Jerome girls basketball team's 34th straight home win a belated Christmas gift. Aubree Callen scored a career-high 36 points and the Tigers rallied from a seven-point deficit with two minutes left in regulation — and a six-point gap with two minutes left in the first overtime — on their way to a 72-65 win in double overtime Wednesday.

Callen's 36 points, six rebounds and six assists, and the two rallies combined with an 8-for-26 foul-line performance from Bishop Kelly to hand the 12-1 Tigers a victory their coach said they had little business getting.

"We didn't deserve to win," Jerome coach Brent Clark said in assessing his team's play in regulation. "We were very lethargic and we didn't play well. But a lot of that credit has to go to Bishop Kelly."

Callen had the ball in her hands with 20 seconds left in regulation and Jerome trailing 52-50, and it seemed like the Tigers' leading scorer was a lock to take the game under her control.

But as the play developed the guard found Tinley Garey underneath the basket, and she scored with 6 ticks left to tie the game. Bishop Kelly post Michelle Violette missed an open 17-footer at the horn and the teams headed to overtime.

"We ran the play the way we were supposed to, and things just kind of developed," Garey said. "I wanted the ball ... really I just didn't want us to lose. We don't lose on the home floor and we've worked really hard to protect that."

In the first OT Jerome fell behind 60-54 but it was again Callen and Garey who rose to the occasion, with Callen earning a held ball in Jerome's favor then forcing Julie Muguirra to dribble the ball off her foot on the next possession. Garey then tipped away a pass on the next trip up court and Callen hit two free throws to send the game to a second overtime.

Callen's first and only 3-pointer of the game came early in the sixth period and Jerome never trailed again. While the Knights struggled at the foul line, Jerome iced the game late as part of a 31-for-40 effort from the charity stripe.

"We just never let down. After the first quarter we could have packed it in against a great team but we didn't do that," Callen said. "What we need to do is realize that just because we beat someone earlier doesn't mean we can show up and not bring four quarters of basketball."

Jazz finally get a win over T-Wolves

MINNEAPOLIS — The Utah Jazz nearly surrendered a 17-point, fourth-quarter lead and barely hung on to beat one of the NBA's worst teams.

The Jazz will take any road win they can get, especially against the pesky Minnesota Timberwolves.

Deron Williams had 21 points and a career-high 12 rebounds, and the Jazz finally beat the Wolves, 107-103 on Wednesday night.

Williams led a third-quarter surge and all five starters were in double figures as the Jazz avoided an embarrassing third consecutive loss to the lowly Wolves.

The win was only Utah's second on the road in its last seven games. One of those victories came at New Jersey.

"We're just happy to get this win and move on to tomorrow," Utah forward Carlos Boozer said. "We take every road win, every win, period."

The Timberwolves trailed by 17 with 4:30 remaining, but cut the deficit to three after a pair of 3-pointers by Kevin Love with about 35 seconds left.

Mehmet Okur missed a 3-pointer on the Jazz's ensuing possession, but Boozer secured the offensive rebound and Williams made two of four free throws down the stretch to secure the win.

"I'm just glad to beat this team," Jazz coach Jerry Sloan said. "It seems like it's been a long time. They're a tough team, they pass the ball well, they can rebound, they have guys that can shoot the ball. They're really a tough team for us to beat."

Al Jefferson scored 21 points for the Wolves, who took a 47-46 halftime lead. Boozer scored a quick inside basket and the Jazz opened the third quarter on a 9-1 run. Utah added a 10-0 burst later in the period to build a big enough cushion to survive the Minnesota rally.

Minnesota picked up the pace defensively late in the fourth quarter, forcing Williams into some uncharacteristic turnovers and making quick shots on the other end. But it wasn't enough to make up for the dismal third quarter.

"Overall, our demise was probably attributed to us coming out of the locker room in the third quarter not ready to play," Minnesota coach Kurt Rambis said.

After going 1 for 10 in the first half, Boozer scored 13 points in the second and finished with 16 points and 12 rebounds.

"I had a horrible first half, but I tried to stay with it," Boozer said. "I tried to stay with it and took the same shots but started making them."

CAVALIERS 106, HAWKS 101

CLEVELAND — Anderson Varejao made his first career 3-pointer with 17.2 seconds left — a 25th birthday present to teammate LeBron James.

James scored a season-high 48 points with 10 rebounds for the Cavs, who won their sixth straight and 11th in a row at home.

With the score tied at 101 and the 24-second shot clock down to its final tick, the ball wound up in the hands of Varejao, who missed his first 18 career 3-point attempts. But the frizzy-haired Brazilian stepped up and drilled his long shot before James rushed into his arms.

RAPTORS 107, BOBCATS 103

TORONTO — Chris Bosh had 33 points and 13 rebounds, Andrea Bargnani matched his season high with 28 points.

Marco Belinelli scored 13 points and rookie DeMar DeRozan had 10 as Toronto avenged its worst defeat of the season, a 116-81 loss at Charlotte on Nov. 25 — the biggest margin of victory in Bobcats history.

Stephen Jackson scored 30 points and Raymond Felton had 23 for the Bobcats, who are 1-14 on the road, the second-worst mark in the NBA.

NETS 104, KNICKS 95

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Brook Lopez had 21 points and 14 rebounds, and New Jersey not only posted a rare victory, it snapped a 10-game losing streak with a blowout of New York.

Yi Jianlian added 22 points, Chris Douglas-Roberts had 17 and Devin Harris had 17, eight assists and seven rebounds.

GRIZZLIES 121, PACERS 110

INDIANAPOLIS — Rudy Gay scored 31 points to lead Memphis over Indiana, the Pacers' eighth straight loss.

Zach Randolph had 28 points and 13 rebounds, and Marc Gasol added 21 points and 10 boards for the Grizzlies.

SUNS 116, CELTICS 98

PHOENIX — Amare Stoudemire and Channing

Frye scored 26 points apiece, and the Phoenix Suns handed what was left of the Boston Celtics their third straight loss.

The Celtics were without injured Kevin Garnett and Paul Pierce in the final stop of what turned out to be an awful four-game road trip.

HORNETS 95, HEAT 91

NEW ORLEANS — David West scored six of his 21 points in the last 55 seconds, as the Hornets held on.

MAGIC 117, BUCKS 92

ORLANDO, Fla. — Vince Carter overcame a hard collision to score 25 points.

Carter was thrust under the courtside seats on a hard hit by Ersan Ilyasova late in the third quarter that gave Orlando a brief scare. The Magic's star shooting guard shook off the pain and never exited, igniting a 17-2 run that helped them pull away.

Maybe the College of Southern Idaho women's basketball team likes this giant-killer kind of thing.

For the second straight day, CSI handed a team its first loss, this time defeating Howard College of Texas 74-67 in overtime at Phoenix College in Arizona.

Daidra Brown just missed out on being the third CSI player with a double-double Wednesday, finishing with a game-high 26 points and nine assists. Shauneice Samms had 17 points and 16 rebounds for CSI (11-4), while Maddy Plunkett added 17 and 10 boards.

The Golden Eagles shot 43.9 percent from the floor, including 52.2 after the break despite letting a nine-point halftime lead slip. They used a 55-34 rebounding advantage as part of the decisive edge.

Howard (12-1) was led by 13 points from both Asia Red and Jackie Bartleson. Tasha Tubbs finished with 12 points and Kenyatta Colbert 10.

Shorthanded Tar Heels hold off upset-minded Albany

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. — Ed Davis had 18 points to help No. 9 North Carolina beat Albany 87-70 on Wednesday night.

Deon Thompson added 15 points for the Tar Heels (11-3), who, despite being short-handed, built a double-digit lead midway through the first half and coasted the rest of the way for its third straight win since losing to No. 2 Texas.

The Tar Heels played without fifth-year senior Marcus Ginyard and sophomore Justin Watts. Watts injured his right ankle during Monday's win against Rutgers, while Ginyard has missed two straight since spraining his right ankle in practice.

Will Harris scored 22 points to lead the Great Danes (4-10), who ended an eight-game road trip with just one victory.

CINCINNATI 71, NO. 10 CONNECTICUT 69

CINCINNATI — Freshman Lance Stephenson was fouled with less than a second left and made both free throws to rally Cincinnati in a wild Big East opener for both teams.

Cincinnati (9-3) had lost all five previous games against UConn (9-3). The Bearcats led by 11 points before the Huskies made a late run, tying it on Kemba Walker's 3-pointer with 9.4 seconds to go.

Stephenson dribbled into the lane and was fouled by Gavin Edwards as the buzzer sounded. After a review, the officials put seventh-tenths of a second on the clock, Stephenson went to the line and made both, finishing with 21 points.

Jerome Dyson scored 24 points and Stanley Robinson added 22 for UConn in its first true road game of the season.

NO. 11 MICHIGAN ST. 87, TEXAS ARLINGTON 68

EAST LANSING, Mich. — Durrell Summers and Draymond Green combined for 39 points to lead Michigan State.

Summers had 20 points, 13 in the first half, for the Spartans (10-3), while Green added 19 in a balanced attack in their final nonconference game.

Reigning Big Ten Player of the Year Kalin Lucas responded to a benching with 16 points in 29 minutes.

Marquez Haynes, the nation's No. 2 scorer, led the Mavericks (5-5) with 20 points, 5.2 under his average.

Michigan State scored the first 12 points of the game, had a shutout for the first 5:30 and built an 18-2 lead after 6-plus minutes.

NO. 18 TEMPLE 70, N. ILLINOIS 60

DEKALB, Ill. — Juan Fernandez scored 26 points and Ryan Brooks added 19 for Temple, which tuned up for a weekend game with No. 1 Kansas.

The Owls (11-2) never trailed in the first meeting between the programs. But the Huskies (2-8) made it competitive as they cut an 18-point first-half deficit to 35-33 early in the second half. Temple used a 12-2 run that restored a double-digit lead at 47-35. Northern Illinois never got closer than nine points the rest of the way.

VIRGINIA 72, NO. 24 UAB 63

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va.

— Sylvan Landesberg scored 19 points and had two free throws and two key assists in the final 2:36 to end UAB's 10-game win streak.

The Cavaliers (7-4) beat a ranked opponent for the first time since they topped Clemson last February, giving first-year coach Tony Bennett his biggest victory at Virginia.

The Blazers (11-2), who moved into the Top 25 this week for the first time since the end of the 2006-07 season, got a career-high 27 points and 11 rebounds from Elijah Millsap. UAB missed 10 of 15 free throws and was outscored 22-13 over the final 10 minutes.

ILLINOIS 89, NO. 25 NORTHWESTERN 83, OT

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. — Mike Tisdale had a career-high 31 points and grabbed 11 rebounds and Illinois spoiled

No. 25 Northwestern's return to the rankings after 40 years.

Fellow big man Mike Davis had 20 points and 17 rebounds — his conference-leading seventh double-double — for the Illini (9-4), who beat Northwestern for the 11th straight time.

John Shurna had 27 points, including four 3-pointers, for the Wildcats (10-2).

Texas Tech fires football coach Leach

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Texas Tech fired Mike Leach on Wednesday after the coach took the school to court to try to overturn his suspension for alleged mistreatment of an injured player.

"I'm very sad to say there's only one person to blame for this and it's Mike Leach," Texas Tech chancellor Kent Hance told the AP.

Jerry Turner, vice chairman of the university system's board of regents, said "other things" came to light during an investigation of Leach's treatment of receiver Adam James. The sophomore alleged the coach twice confined him to a small, dark place after the player was diagnosed with a concussion. Turner declined to elaborate.

Leach was suspended Monday after he refused to agree to guidelines for dealing with players set forth by his bosses in a Dec. 23 letter.

When Leach decided to fight the university in court "in defiance" of his suspension, that's why "we are where we are," Turner said.

Leach was in San Antonio with his team, which is preparing for the Alamo Bowl against Michigan State on Saturday.

He left the team's hotel while his interim replacement, defensive coordinator Ruffin McNeill, was holding a news conference.

Approached by a reporter, Leach said no comment before being asked a question. Asked how he felt Texas Tech treated him throughout the last two weeks, Leach responded, "I think that's apparent."

Texas Tech's official statement said Leach's recent actions made it impossible for him to remain coach of the Red Raiders.

"In a defiant act of insubordination, Coach Leach continually refused to cooperate in a meaningful way to help resolve the complaint. He also refused to obey a suspension order and instead sued Texas Tech University," the statement said.

Leach later released a statement to the media.

"Texas Tech's decision to deal in lies and fabricate a story which led to my firing, includes, but is not limited by, the animosity remaining from last year's contract negotiations. I will not tolerate such retaliatory action; additionally, we will pursue all available legal remedies," Leach said in the statement.

HOLIDAY BOWL: NO. 20 NEBRASKA 33, NO. 22 ARIZONA 0

Huskers harass Cats in first Holiday Bowl shutout

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Zac Lee threw a 74-yard touchdown pass to Niles Paul in the third quarter to highlight No. 20 Nebraska's 33-0 rout against No. 22 Arizona on a rainy Wednesday night, the first shutout in the 32-year history of the Holiday Bowl.

The coaches expected a defensive game, and the Huskers delivered, earning their first shutout in 46 bowl appearances.

Defensive tackle Ndamukong Suh, the AP College Football Player of the Year and a Heisman finalist, had only three tackles, including one for a loss, but helped the Huskers harass Arizona quarterback Nick Foles all night. Suh even went out for a pass early in the third quarter on second-and-4 from the Arizona 5, but Lee didn't throw his way.

The Wildcats were never in this one. Nebraska free safety Matt O'Hanlon intercepted Foles on the third play from scrimmage and returned it 37 yards to the Arizona 5. Lee scored on a 4-yard run two plays later. It was the fastest score in Holiday Bowl history, coming just 75 seconds in.

The Wildcats had the ball fourth-and-3 at the Nebraska 8-yard line with 1:41 to go before safety P.J. Smith batted down Foles' pass to preserve the shutout.

Arizona set Holiday Bowl records with six first downs, 109 yards of offense, 51 offensive plays and nine punts. The Wildcats didn't get into Nebraska territory until the first drive of the third quarter.

The previous Holiday Bowl record for fewest first downs was 12 by Nebraska in a 23-20 loss to Arizona in 1998. The previous record for fewest yards was 185 by BYU in a 65-14 loss to Texas A&M in 1990, and the previous record for the most punts was eight, by five teams.

Nebraska (10-4) got its first 10-win season since 2003. Arizona finished (8-5).

This loss mirrored Arizona's first bowl appearance, a 38-0 loss to Centre (Ky.) in the rain in San Diego.

Nebraska's Bo Pelini earned bragging rights in Youngstown, Ohio, where he and Arizona coach Mike Stoops grew up and played at Cardinal Mooney High.

Nebraska's Alex Henery set a Holiday Bowl record with four field goals, from 47, 50, 41 and 22 yards.

The Huskers even ran a handful of plays out of the wildcat formation, including a 5-yard run by Rex Burkhead early in the second quarter for a 17-0 lead.

With Nebraska leading 26-0 late in the third quarter, Paul hauled in Lee's long pass at the Arizona 40 and cruised into the end zone. He spiked the ball and flexed his muscles in a pose to the crowd, drawing a 15-yard unsportsmanlike conduct penalty.

Vandals

Haunted by drops all afternoon, Max Komar made a sliding 16-yard grab to draw Idaho within 42-41. Then Akey's bold move paid off: Preston Davis, who had caught a 50-yard heave to set up the score, secured a laser from Enderle in the back of the end zone on the two-point try.

Davis was immediately bombarded by teammates behind the uprights. Other Vandals boogied onto the field, and even a few fans slipped onto the blue turf in a premature celebration.

The Vandals' comeback came after the Falcons of Ohio scored the go-ahead TD with 32 seconds left and punctuated an 8-5 season that was full of manic rallies.

Just nothing quite like this, of course.

"There's always going to be doubt in your minds when things aren't going your way," said safety Shiloh Keo, referring to Freddie Barnes' 51-yard TD to give BGSU the late lead. "But it's happened so many times through this season. We always press repetition and when you get in that situation and you know you've been successful in that situation, that doubt kind of slowly diminishes."

Eleven years to the day that Idaho upended Southern Mississippi 42-35 in the Humanitarian Bowl — and used a two-point conversion in overtime to beat Boise State to get there — the Vandals stirred up more magic.

It started with 26 seconds left. Enderle rolled to his left and launched a desperation pass down the sideline to Davis. The sophomore receiver, who finished with 119 receiving yards, came back for the ball and hauled it in despite defensive pass interference.

Two plays later, Komar managed to cleanly pluck Enderle's TD fling just inches off the turf. Idaho had come to expect skilled catches like that from the senior wideout — not a batch of drops.

"Compared to the ones I was dropping, it was a lot harder," Komar said. "... Nate has faith in me. If I was him, I would stop throwing to me after all those drops, making him look bad at the same time."

Though there was plenty of discussion when the moment arrived, Akey said he thought about going for two even before Idaho received the kickoff. He ended up calling a timeout before the play, and BG (7-6) followed suit after seeing the Vandals' formation.

"You know, my staff had confidence in the play," Akey said. "My players had confidence in that play. They wanted to do it. ... So that was what we elected to do. We thought, 'Why make everybody wait for overtime? Let's get it done now!'"

Bowling Green coach

Dave Clawson was a bit surprised the Vandals went for it, but he said it made sense seeing how the defenses had been performing.

"Their coach showed a lot of courage going for it and they made it pay off for him," Clawson said.

Idaho in particular was unable to slow down Barnes, who set an NCAA single-season record with his 143rd reception in the first quarter and finished with 17 catches for 219 yards. Both marks were HumBowl records.

"At the end we were praying that what happened didn't happen," Barnes said.

After sputtering early on offense, the Vandals couldn't have scripted a better start to the second half. Idaho forced a three-and-out — after BG elected to punt on fourth-and-inches — then reeled of an overpowering 70-yard drive fueled by Vandal MVP DeMaundry Woolridge.

He carried a BG defender for an 18-yard gain, then finished the TD march with a bruising 8-yard scamper.

Things only got better from there. Safety Jeremy Jones lunged in front of receiver Chris Wright for an interception inside the Falcons' 30, and Woolridge came right back with a lightning-quick 13-yard jaunt up the middle to make it 28-14.

Woolridge rumbled for 126 yards on 22 carries while Enderle tossed for 240 yards and four TDs.

mark for most in a season. "I tell you what, the guy is the real deal," Akey said. "Seventeen catches — holy cow. He's got to be tired by now, I would think."

OTHER NOTES

In the first quarter, Idaho linebacker JoJo Dickson rocketed through the BGSU offensive line and stuffed a 24-yard field-goal attempt. The block turned out to be a key play given the tense final moments. ...

Idaho defensive end Aaron Lavarias sustained what looked to be a serious left knee injury during the Falcons' final drive. ... Akey said the Vandals' win will have far-reaching implications.

"I bet you real large that we see a bump in enrollment this fall," he said. "I think there are a number of good things that will come from this, and it's due to the hard work of these guys right here."

Defense is an act of group violence.

"I haven't seen them give up on a play yet," TCU tailback Joseph Turner said. "They play until the clock's out. When you're playing a team like that, you have to play hard every down."

Turner said the 2008 Broncos made an impression on him in the Poinsettia Bowl, a game TCU won 17-16, the only game Boise State has lost in two seasons.

"We played them last year and it was a fight to the last play," Turner said. "Even when we were winning they didn't give up. Playing a team that's just hungry, losing to us by just one point last year, that'll make any team hungry and want some more."

Even though TCU knows how Boise State will play defense, that doesn't mean the Broncos will change anything. This defense is about reacting and responsibilities.

"I don't think there's going to be any surprises," Winterswyk said. "We're just going to do what we've already done. You can't change your whole defense for one game and we don't really need to. We just need to do our thing, move fast and tackle. That's what our defense is built around."

Team speed is all over the TCU side, but the Bronco defense isn't exactly slow. Jeron Johnson, George Iloka and Winston Venable are speedy safeties and with Kyle Wilson and Brandyn Thompson at corner, this defense can cover a lot of ground.

"They're fast, physical and tough," TCU co-offensive coordinator and quarterbacks coach Justin Fuente said. "They are what you would want a defensive unit to be. Everything stands out. If just one thing stood out they wouldn't be undefeated. They've got guys everywhere."

Wilson and his mates must come up in run support at times, but they also have to remain on the speedy TCU wideouts. He seems up to the task.

"We've matched up with pretty good receivers all year," Wilson said. "It's nothing we haven't seen before. We're familiar with these guys from last year.

It's going to be a battle. We love challenges. We love competing. It's just going to come down to who wants it more."

Wilcox said these past few weeks felt like fall camp, back to fundamentals and tackling. His players echo his resound.

"When it comes down to it, you just gotta play football," Johnson said. "They have great playmakers, great athletes. We just have to do our jobs and tackle well. That's really what it's going to come down to, tackling. These guys are fast, so you gotta get to them before they get started and really hurt you."

Despite the heavy burden of halting a bruising running attack and a timely passing game, of facing an opponent more physical than any they have faced, the Broncos are going to work this week confident and committed to giving it everything they got.

"I feel really good about our team, excited about our guys," Wilcox said. "We prepared really well. We had some good practices and that's what we can control. We have to focus on us."

college football. I'm just going to go in and do whatever play we need to do. If it's a run play, I'm just going to go as hard as I can."

Backing up the senior is a pair of freshmen: redshirt Ed Wesley (630 yards) and true freshman Matthew Tucker (667 yards).

"TCU, they really don't want to be a balanced attack," BSU end Ryan Winterswyk said. "They want to run the ball and then they'll throw those screens and all that. On the D-line, it's pretty simple: we have to stop the run and on the screens we have to go out and cover some ground."

Dalton is also a dynamic runner in the option game. He ran for 522 yards this season and scored three times on the ground. Tuner led the team with 11 rushing touchdowns. The team score 35 touchdowns and ran for 3,078 yards.

This downhill attack sets up manageable third downs for Dalton. The line shows defenses back. There's a reason this team averages 5.4 yards per carry.

"In the run game, it's where the line of scrimmage is at," BSU defensive coordinator Justin Wilcox said. "Is it moving one way or the other? That's as basic as it gets. Is it going to be where the ball's snapped, two yards down the field, or in the backfield?"

The running game sets up the pass, an area where Dalton has progressed greatly the past 12 months. He is more efficient, bigger, faster and more mature. If somehow BSU can limit the run game, the success of the offense will be on Dalton.

"We have to get pressure up front and stop the run and make them pass it," BSU safety Jeron Johnson said. "That's where it all starts. We want the game on our shoulders as a secondary. We like a challenge. We want to step up to a play."

It's not like the TCU receivers are slouches, either. It's a deep corps; six players have double digit receptions on a run-heavy team. Jeremy Kerley leads the team with 38 receptions from the slot. Bart Johnson and Jimmy Young have 30 and 29 grabs respectively. Then there's Antoine Hicks, who has 10 touchdowns this season on only 28 touches. There isn't one guy who stands out, because they all do.

"Anytime that I come out, I'm giving it my all," Young said. "That's basically the whole idea with everyone on offense; we don't leave anything out on the field."

Dalton said the offense isn't about deep passing, but short and intermediate routes, intended to control the clock, keep possession and whenever they can, bust it loose. Young's numbers are down from last season, but only because Dalton has done a better job spreading the ball around. Curley is a wily receiver, shifty, perfect for the slot.

"In years past we've always had one receiver who's had a lot more catches, but this year we're more balanced," Dalton said. "Our goal was to become more efficient in the passing game."

He succeeded. He finished with 22 touchdowns, only five interceptions, and 62.4 completion percentage (159.59 rating). TCU intended to improve in the offseason. The defense was pretty close to perfect. The offense has picked up the slack.

"There's no weaknesses," Wilcox said. "They're very good at what they do. They know how to control the game. They're never in bad situations. They're very rarely in third and long, which is key on offense and key on defense. They're well coached and they have a lot of talent. They haven't played a lot of bad football."

FROM: Bernard and Roza Saul, Connie J. Flinders, Carol Cright, Pearl Staine, C.P. Lynn Bain, Glen & Shelley Fredrickson, all of Bliss Idaho.

Pursuant to Idaho Code Title 6, Chapter 9, the Claimants, Bernard and Roza Saul, hereby make claim against the City of Bliss, Bliss City Clerk, Tom Faulkner, Bliss City Council, Gooding County Planning and Zoning, and the Gooding County Commissioners, and such other agencies, departments or other political subdivisions thereof, as may be liable for Claimants damages under the Idaho Tort Claim Act. In support of said claim the Claimants state as follows:

- The Claimants actual residence at the time of presentation and filing of this claim, and for the last six months immediately prior to the time the claim arose, is as follows: 1950 South 750 East, Bliss, Idaho.
- This claim is for damages resulting from the intentional and negligent activities of the City of Bliss and other above-described agencies, in applying for and obtaining a Special Use Permit allowing the City of Bliss to build a total containment system comprised of at least two (2) lagoons and other accompanying structures at 1951 South 750 East, Bliss, Idaho, more properly described as being located in that portion of NE1/4SW1/4 of Sec. 8, T.6 S., R. 13 EBM in a Transitional 2 (T-2) Zoning District.
- This claim for damages is based upon the fact that the building of this total containment system amounts to an encroachment and public and private nuisance to all properties surrounding the proposed and above-described site, including the property of the Claimants, due to the fact that the proposed structure is to built directly on top of extremely porous volcanic rock which is directly on top of a huge aquifer which is the sole source of water for most of the surrounding property owners. It is claimant's contention that a municipal sewer system that collects sewage in its raw state built on the base of porous volcanic rock over an aquifer creates a menace and a nuisance to all surrounding properties. If building such an unhealthful and offensive nuisance is allowed, the waters of the aquifer will become so polluted as to prevent their use for even stock water and could even create a health hazard. If such a facility is allowed to be constructed as planned by the City of Bliss, Claimants will be deprived of the use of the waters from the aquifer for farming or domestic purposes, will permanently affect Claimants use and enjoyment of their property, and will effectively diminish the market value of Claimants' property.
- As a result of the above-described actions on the part of the City of Bliss, Bliss City Clerk, Tom Faulkner, Bliss City Council, Gooding County Planning and Zoning, and the Gooding County Commissioners, and such other agencies, departments or other political subdivisions thereof, Claimants have been damaged and seek damages in the sum of no less than $300,000.00 per claimant.

Today is Thursday, Dec. 31, the 365th and final day of 2009. Today is New Year's Eve.

Today's Highlight:
On Dec. 31, 1909, the Manhattan Bridge, spanning the East River between Manhattan and Brooklyn, was officially opened to vehicular traffic by New York City Mayor George B. McClellan Jr. on his last day in office.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:
In 1759, Arthur Guinness founded his famous brewery at St. James's Gate in Dublin.

In 1775, the British repulsed an attack by Continental Army generals Richard Montgomery and Benedict Arnold at Quebec; Montgomery was killed.

In 1857, Britain's Queen Victoria decided to make Ottawa the capital of Canada.

In 1879, Thomas Edison first publicly demonstrated his electric incandescent light in Menlo Park, N.J.

In 1946, President Harry S. Truman officially proclaimed the end of hostilities in World War II.

In 1969, Joseph A. Yablonski, an unsuccessful candidate for the presidency of the United Mine Workers of America, was shot to death along with his wife and daughter in their Clarksville, Pa., home by hit men acting under the orders of UMWA president Tony Boyle.

In 1974, private U.S. citizens were allowed to buy and own gold for the first time in more than 40 years.

In 1985, singer Rick Nelson, 45, and six other people were killed when fire broke out aboard a DC-3 that was taking the group to a New Year's Eve performance in Dallas.

In 1986, 97 people were killed when fire broke out in the Dupont Plaza Hotel in San Juan, Puerto Rico. (Three hotel workers later pleaded guilty in connection with the blaze.)

In 1997, Michael Kennedy, the 39-year-old son of the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, was killed in a skiing accident on Aspen Mountain in Colorado.

Ten years ago: People around the world celebrated while awaiting the arrival of the year 2000. Russian President Boris Yeltsin announced his resignation (he was succeeded by Vladimir Putin). The eight-day hijacking of an Indian Airlines plane in Afghanistan ended peacefully. The United States prepared to hand over the Panama Canal to Panama at the stroke of midnight. Former Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson died in Boston at age 79.

Five years ago: President George W. Bush pledged $350 million to help tsunami victims, and didn't rule out sending even more U.S. aid to help people recover from what he called an "epic disaster." Ukrainian Prime Minister Viktor Yanukovich resigned, admitting he had little hope of reversing the presidential election victory of his Western-leaning rival, Viktor Yushchenko.

One year ago: The U.N. Security Council held an emergency meeting on an Arab request for a binding and enforceable resolution condemning Israel and halting its military attacks on Gaza. A man left four gift-wrapped bombs in downtown Aspen, Colo., in a bank-robbery attempt, turning New Year's Eve celebrations into a mass evacuation. (The man, identified as 72-year-old James Chester Blanning, shot and killed himself.) A woman gave birth aboard Northwest Airlines Flight 59 while en route from Amsterdam to Boston.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE® Bobby Wolff

"I do the very best I know how — the very best I can; and I mean to keep doing so until the end. If the end brings me out all right, what is said against me won't amount to anything." — Abraham Lincoln

For the last day of the year, here is one more deal from "My Favorite 52" by Larry Cohen, published by Master Point Press.

This one is called "Taking No Chances" and Cohen puts you in his seat as South. Focus on just those 13 cards for the time being. In third seat you open one spade, and the next hand pre-empts to three hearts. Partner bids four spades, RHO bids five hearts, and you ...? Cohen suggests bidding six spades; the one thing you can be sure of if partner jumps to game facing a passed hand is that you will buy good trumps. And that is really almost all you need.

In six spades the defenders lead a top heart. You ruff, and draw one round of trump, happy to see both defenders follow. Plan the play now.

The correct answer is to draw a second round of trump, cross to your club ace, go back to dummy in trumps, and lead a second club. When East follows suit, what should you do?

The right answer is to finesse, breaking the rule of "Eight ever nine never." This finesse is a safety play. Either West has no more clubs left, or he has just the bare queen. If the former, your finesse wins; if the latter, West must either return a diamond into your tenace, whereupon South's third diamond goes on the long club, or give you a ruff and sluff, producing the same result.

ANSWER: When your partner bids on in a sequence of this sort, he is not scrambling for a better fit, but suggesting game-interest, since you have shown a club fit with values. However, in this sequence the fact that he has hearts or heart values makes your hand worse, not better. So sign off in four clubs — your partner will have to bid game on his own if it is going to make.

Answer: When he was selected "freshman of the year", he was in a — CLASS BY HIMSELF

IF DECEMBER 31 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Don't waste time or money on something or someone that catches your fancy during the next month. It is much too easy for you to overlook the fine print when signing contracts or to overestimate the value of people and things right now. Wait until late February or early March when only people and things that are good for you can get a foot in the door. That is an excellent time to create a plan for the future, set your ideas into motion or to receive good advice from professional people such as doctors or lawyers. Any promises made in the first week of March will be fulfilled so it is a good time to start a new job or commit to a relationship.

HOROSCOPE

ARIES (March 21-April 19): The year ends with a full moon that could illuminate your reputation or your standing in the community. Reflect on your life.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Stay up to watch the clock strike 12 with a special someone. Do unto significant others as you would have them do unto you.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Show a little faith in the way the cosmic cogs of the universe turn relentlessly. That which you need will be provided.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): The full moon might shed fresh light on a relationship. You may be reminded of the good reasons you hooked up with someone.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): When the clouds part, the true blue sky is revealed. A casual disclosure could place someone close to you in a different light.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Ring out the old year surrounded by friends. You might be just as happy to entertain children or young people as the New Year begins.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Think twice. When you consider realizing your dreams, you do need to be inspired—but you also need to have the facts.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Get ready to go out on the town. You are in good standing with your loved ones or to mingle with new friends.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Break with traditions by replacing them with new. You may have a change of heart due to the influence of new information.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Get out a whip and chair to tame the green-eyed monsters. A relationship might come to a passionate peak this evening.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): A bird in the hand is worth two in the bush. You don't need to be at a bigger party or surround yourself with more friends.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Roll out the red carpet for friends. Take care of the small things and the big things will take care of themselves.

DEAR ABBY: I'm 41 and a single mom. My first marriage lasted 19 years, during which my husband cheated on me three times that I know of. I have dated a few men since the divorce. I caught each of them lying to me, cheating on me - or both.

I am now seeing a man who seems to be an honest family man. However, I can't bring myself to trust him. We have been seeing each other for a year, and I care about him deeply. But I do not trust him, and the truth is I don't trust anyone - not even my own mother.

DEAR ABBY Jeanne Phillips

I'm not sure I know how to trust, Abby, and I am destroying my relationship with this man because of it. He has evening meetings and occasionally needs to travel on business, and I am making us both miserable. I do feel he's an honest, God-fearing family man, but when it comes to our relationship, I'm unable to trust. Please tell me what to do.

DESPERATE IN ARIZONA

DEAR DESPERATE: Your reasons for not trusting men seemed understandable when I read that your husband had cheated multiple times, and that you had the same rotten luck with men after your divorce. Then I got to the line about your mother. If you don't trust her, then how far back do your trust issues go? And is it possible that you have turned your insecurity into a self-fulfilling prophecy?

If you want to salvage this relationship, recognize that you have a problem that won't go away without counseling to help you understand where your trust problems originated. Wouldn't it be interesting if they had less to do with the men in your life than with your mother? You'll never know until you look further - so before you chase this man away, explain that you realize you have been unfair to him and ask him to give you patience and some time to fix the problem. He must care for you very much to have stuck it out this long.

DEAR ABBY: When I was 18, I met a girl, "Ava," who was 17. We became good friends but we lived an hour apart and only dated for four months. Ava called it off because she said she was in school and wanted to date other guys. I found out that the next year she got married.

Six years later, Ava called out of the blue and invited me to dinner. She was divorced, but I was in a relationship at the time, so I never called her back. I got married the following year and have been married for 31 years.

A couple of months ago I found out Ava's married name and phone number and called her. I apologized for not having returned her call way back when, and we talked about her family and mine. Abby, I care for her and would like to be friends. I'd like to keep in touch, but I don't want to invade her life or cause problems. Any advice would be appreciated.

REMEMBERING IN RICHMOND

DEAR REMEMBERING: I'm not sure what it is you're looking for, but if you and Ava were meant to be friends, I think it would have happened before this. My advice is to let sleeping dogs lie.

DEAR READERS: I'm sure all of us are glad to bid a "fond farewell" to 2009. What a year this has been!

If you're planning to celebrate the New Year with alcohol tonight, please appoint a designated driver. And on this night of all nights, everyone - including the designated driver - should remember to drive defensively. To one and all, I wish a happy, healthy 2010. - Love, ABBY

SUDOKU

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Concepts Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.
