MCFALL TO SIRCOMM: I'M MOVING FORWARD

Jerome County patrol deputy Jason Wethern talks to dispatchers as he heads to the Jerome County Jail Tuesday evening during his shift. Sheriff Doug McFall plans to move forward with a federally mandated update of his department's emergency dispatch equipment. 'With Jerome County we have some definite needs to meet with laws that are coming up in 2012,' McFall said.

Commission aren't quite ready to make any recommendations to their peers. Rather, the eight-member interim committee reviewing the commission's purpose and practices will likely meet once more early in this year's legislative session before formally offering any legislation, co-chairman and Senate Assistant Majority Leader Joe Stegner said Tuesday afternoon. Stegner, R-Lewiston, and House Majority Caucus Chairman Ken Roberts, R-Donnelly, the other committee chairman, presided Tuesday over their last meeting before the full Legislature convenes on Monday. Incidentally, it was the first meeting of any committee in the renovated and recently reopened state capitol building.

The soil commission, housed under the Idaho State Department of Agriculture, primarily coordinates and funds conservation work by Idaho's 51 conservation districts. The interim committee's work began more than a year ago following concerns, legislators say, that the commission was exceeding its statutory authority.

Last month, the committee heard strong opposition from groups involved in the current process - from individual districts to commission members themselves - to a draft bill that would dissolve the commission and replace it with a Division of Resource Conservation more closely tied to ISDA. Stegner and Roberts had drafted the bill as a conversation starter.

Blue Hadden case moved back to juvenile court

By Andrea Jackson Times-News writer

The case against a teenager jailed in connection to the attempted murder of his grandfather has moved back into the juvenile system, where Blue Hadden faces less prison time if convicted.

Sixteen-year-old Blue Hadden is charged with three felonies - grand theft by possession, criminal solicitation and accessory to a felony — in connection to the nonfatal shooting of his grandpa Craig Hadden on April 1 outside the businessman's Lincoln County Hadden's 16-vear-old friend from Shoshone, Michael Cannon, recently pleaded guilty to attempted murder and was charged as an adult.

On Dec. 30 the charges against Hadden were moved from adult court back to juvenile court, at the request of both the prosecution and defense.

"The parties agree that proceedings pursuant to the Juvenile Corrections Act are appropriate (for) resolution in the instant case," according to the motion signed by both Lincoln County Prosecutor E. Scott Paul and Hadden's lawyer, Philip A. Brown.

Recently, Craig Hadden unsuccessfully requested the court let Blue live with him, despite allegations that his grandson wanted him dead for inheritance money.

Magistrate Judge Thomas Borresen on Sept. 10 ordered Hadden's case transferred from juvenile court into adult court, where

Rules of survival for freshmen legislators

y Uncle Ray fetched up in the Idaho Statehouse DON'T in January 1951, the newly elected state senator from Power County.

Each county sent one senator to Boise in those days, meaning that Clark County (population 918) had the same clout of the Legislature's upper house as Ada County (70,649). Not surprisingly, cowboys and farmers dominated the Senate – or "Sirloin Row," as it came to be known.

Ray was a Democrat, one of only 15 in the Senate that year, and the party's leader gave him and other freshmen lawmakers some free advice:

- 1. Listen, and if you can't listen, look like you're listening.
- 2. If you're tempted to get up on the floor of the Senate and say something profound, don't.
- 3. The teenage pages who deliver messages on the Senate floor know more than freshman senators.
- 4. If you haven't read the bill, don't vote on it. Unless the party whip tells you to.
- 5. The governor belongs to the other party (firstterm Republican Len Jordan, in this case). He's not a bad fella, but he doesn't know what he's talking

5(a). Harry Truman (the Democratic president at the time) carried Idaho in the last presidential election. He does know what he's talking about.

6. Don't take your boots off while you're sitting at your desk on the floor of the Senate. Especially if you're not wearing socks.

7. You're gonna be in Boise for 21/2 months or so (the Legislature met every other year back in those days), and you won't be back for two years - if at 8(a). If you vote for withholding the state income tax (Idaho didn't withhold taxes from wages at the time), your $5-a-day pay will be $3.75.

9. Only go to the bar in the Idanha Hotel on special occasions. Whiskey there goes for 25 cents a shot.

10. No IOUs allowed at the Friday-night poker game. Senators don't want to wait until 1953 to collect.

11. Always read and answer letters from your constituents, but don't worry about going home to see them unless you live in Boise. Montpelier is a seven-hour drive over twolane country roads. St. Anthony is eight hours away and Wallace and Salmon – well, you can't get there from here this time of year.

12. If you vote with the governor to close the North Idaho College of Education (now Lewis-Clark State College in Lewiston) or the Southern Idaho College of Education (formerly Albion Normal School) your county will be merged with Owyhee.

Auditor assures Jerome County commissioners deposits are safe

By John Plestina Times-News writer

JEROME Jerome County's auditor assured county commissioners on Monday that deposits are safe during a discussion about future banking policy.

The teleconference discussion with auditor Dean as uncollateralized." Condie followed concerns Dec. 28 by Commissioner Joe Davidson over the safety of the county's deposits in the event of a bank failure.

Accounts are not collateralized. Davidson said on Dec. 28, adding that he commissioners to underbelieves there is a higher risk. He cited a statement in last year's audit prepared by Condie that county bank deposits were not collateral-beyond the current five institutions in which the county has deposits. He called for a cap of $2 million in county deposits at any one bank to ensure that the county doesn't lose a significant portion of tax revenue in the event of a bank failure.

The Federal Deposit Insurance insures each deposit up to $250,000. The county has more than $8 million in bank deposits from recent county tax collections.

Condie said an evaluation during the audit process indicates that concerns are satisfied.

"With information we have now, we can report this take any action on the sugyear as collateralized," he said. "Investments are held in trust for Jerome County, but not in the county's Normally have to categorize them 7062.

"It's part of your job as commissioners to understand where and how you are invested."

— Auditor Dean Condie

He said he would send the county a copy of another county's investment policy as a guideline it could follow.

All three commissioners said they were satisfied with Condie's responses.

"It's part of your job as stand where and how you are invested," he said.

In other business, the commission granted Sandra Capps two-year plat extensions for the Paradise Valley Davidson had suggested No. 3 and No. 4 proposed the county spread the risk developments. Capps cited current economic conditions for requesting plat extensions longer than the customary one year.

The county will also revisit another previously approved plat extension for a possible two-year extension rather than one year that was approved during a Corporation previous meeting.

In another matter, Deputy Prosecuting Attorney Mike Seib suggested commission agendas could list multiple items within a general timeframe and not specific times, except for public hearings, as a way to save the 35-member

And on New Year's Eve, he was elected Senate minority caucus chairman.

That came four weeks to the day after he was charged with DUI in Boise.

Malepeai hasn't been convicted of any crime and he pled innocent to the DUI charge. But this is the wrong time for him to become part of the Senate Democratic leadership.

For starters, he hasn't been an active member of the Legislature for awhile. Malepeai missed two sessions, caring for his ailing wife. She died in March.

And he's a member of a caucus that isn't at full strength. The Senate's most senior Democrat, Clint Stennett of Ketchum, missed the last session recovering from brain cancer. And he'll miss at least part of the session that starts Monday.

At best, the DUI charge is a distraction. At worst, it's ammunition for political opponents of Malepeai and the Democrats — in the Legislature.

His trial is scheduled for Feb. 18 in 4th District Magistrate Court on a misdemeanor charge. Boise police say he flunked two breath tests, registering blood alcohol levels 0.10 and 0.0999. The legal limit in Idaho is 0.08.

Until then, Malepeai – and the Senate Democrats - should let former caucus chairman Les Bock of Boise handle the job.

The Malepeai case is about perceptions, but it's also about effectiveness. The Democrats need a caucus chairman who can fully focus on the intractable issues facing the Legislature.

A war by any other name uppose Umar Farouk Abdul Mutallab, the Christmas Dav underwear bomber, had succeeded and blown up Northwest Airlines flight 253, killing nearly 300 people on board and perhaps others on the ground? Would the response of the Obama administration have been different?

The president probably would have attended memorial services for the dead, expressed "strong condemnation," persuaded the United Nations to issue more worthless resolutions, but little more. That's because the president isn't fighting — or speaking — as if we are at war. He first called the attempted bombing an "incident." In his Saturday radio address, the president finally, if belatedly, tied the attempted attack to al-Oaida's branch in Yemen. Still there is great reluctance by this administration to state the obvious.

President Obama and his Cabinet apparently believe that by not calling it a war, it becomes something less. This president refuses to call it a war and sometimes approaches pacifism in his rhetoric. If al-Qaida and its affiliates around the world behave as if they are at war and the United States views every attack as "incidents" and not part of a larger battle, our enemies will win.

If Western leaders won't acknowledge a cultural clash between civilizations with the outcome being either freedom or slavery, guess

Somali man with suspected links to al-Qaida broke into the home of Danish cartoonist Kurt Westergaard whose drawings of the Prophet Muhammad caused global Muslim outrage. Police shot and wounded the intruder, who appeared to be carrying out a fatwa against Westergaard that was issued in 2006 by Mohammed Yousaf Qureshi, a Pakistani cleric. Apparently the outreach, understanding and examples of pluralism and equal treatment of women by Western nations did not impress the attacker.

Neither are our enemies impressed with the growing number of Islamic studies courses at prominent American universities, including Catholic ones like Georgetown. What's to study? We arrest those we catch, send them to American prisons (and release them from Gitmo), and give them free lawyers who advise them to remain quiet, thus depriving us of information that might dismantle terror cells and help prevent future attacks.

A new Rasmussen Poll shows a majority of Americans think this war should be fought in a different way. According to the poll, 58 percent of U.S. voters believe Abdul Mutallab should be subjected to waterboarding and other enhanced interrogation techniques in order to obtain useful information.

Instead, we spend gobs of money on body scanners and TSA screeners who pat down innocent travelers and search their bags. Instead, or in addition, we should become more proactive.

During World War II, we did not establish schools of Nazi studies at American universities. Neither did we seek to understand Japan's Shinto religion, which elevated Emperor Hirohito to the level of a god. We cared nothing about any of that. We carpet-bombed German cities and dropped two nuclear bombs on Japan. President Truman, a Democrat, was cut from different cloth than today's Democrats. Truman's goal (and that of his Democratic predecessor, Franklin Roosevelt) was total victory.

What is required is a new approach that seeks not accommodation, but victory. Without it, more lives will be lost. Dictionary.com defines "war" as "a conflict carried on by force of arms, as between nations or between parties within a nation." Calling it something else doesn't alter the reality.

he United States opens this decade in a sour mood. First. Americans are anxious about the future. Sixty-one percent of Americans believe their country is in decline, according to the latest NBC News/Wall Street Iournal survey. Only 27 percent feel confident that their children's generation will be better off than they are.

Second, Americans have lost faith in their institutions. During the great moments of social reform, at least 60 percent of Americans trusted government to do the right thing most of the time. Now, only a quarter have that kind of trust.

The country is evenly divided about President Obama, but state governments are in disrepute and confidence in Congress is at withering lows. As Frank Newport of the Gallup organization noted in his year-end wrap-up, "Americans have less faith in their elected representatives than ever before."

Third, the new administration has not galvanized a popular majority. In almost every sphere of public opinion, Americans are moving away from the administration, not toward it. The Ipsos/McClatchy organizations have been asking voters which party can do the best job of handling a range of 13 different issues. During the first year of the Obama administration, the Republicans gained ground on all 13.

The public is not only shifting from left to right. Every single idea associated with the educated class has grown more unpopular over the past year.

The educated class believes in global warming, so public skepticism about global warming is on the rise. The educated class supports abortion rights, so public opinion is shifting against them. The educated class supports gun control, so opposition to gun control is mounting.

The story is the same in foreign affairs. The educated class is internationalist, so isolationist sentiment is now at an all-time high, according to a Pew Research Center survey. The educated class believes in multilateral action, so the number of Americans who believe we should "go our own way" has party candidate won, with

The tea party movement is a large, fractious confederation of Americans who are defined by what they are against. They are against the concentrated power of the educated class. They believe big government, big business, big media and the affluent professionals are merging to form self-serving oligarchy.

The tea party movement is mostly famous for its flamboyant fringe. But it is now more popular than either major party. According to the NBC News/Wall Street Journal poll, 41 percent of Americans have a positive view of the tea party movement. Only 35 percent of Americans have a positive view of the Democrats and only 28 percent have a positive view of the Republican Party.

The movement is especially popular among independents. The Rasmussen organization asked independent voters whom they would support in a generic election between a Democrat, a Republican and a tea party candidate. The tea 33 percent of independents. Over the course of this year, the tea party movement will probably be transformed. Right now, it is an amateurish movement with mediocre leadership. But several bright and polished politicians, like Marco Rubio of Florida and Gary Johnson of New Mexico, are unofficially competing to become its de facto leader. If they succeed, their movement is likely to outgrow its crude beginnings and become a major force in American politics.

The Obama administration is premised on the conviction that pragmatic federal leaders with professional expertise should have the power to implement programs to solve the country's problems. Many Americans do not have faith in that sort of centralized expertise or in the political class generally.

Moreover, the tea party movement has passion. American history is often driven by passionate outsiders who force themselves into the center of American Personally, I'm not a fan of this movement. But I can certainly see its potential to shape the coming decade.

The best ways to introduce new foods to kids

By Melissa Davlin

Times-News writer

Among the familiar hot dogs and pies at the Lincoln Elementary School dinner on Dec. 4, the chicken and rice dish from Nicaragua stood out.

Although the Central American dish wasn't familiar to 10-year-old Sarah Phillips, she added it to her plate.

"It was good," she said as she sipped her drink.

The dish was part of a food contest and fundraiser for the Lincoln Elementary Parent Teacher Organization. Dinner organizer Heidi Tubbs said the cooking contest replaced a chili cookoff in an effort to represent other nationalities at the school. Although there weren't many entrants, the rice from Nicaragua showed kids that Twin Falls' food scene is made up of more than hamburgers and

So in this changing culinary climate, what's the best way to introduce new foods and cuisines to children?

Sarah's mom, Rachael Phillips, said she puts food on the kids' plate and tells them they have to at least try it.

"And if they don't like it, they don't like it," she said. The tactic has worked with veggies that Sarah wasn't sure she would like, but now loves.

Evin Fox, early childhood education instructor at College of Southern Idaho, said moms will have a better chance of introducing new foods to their kids if they ate a diverse diet while pregnant, according to speech-language pathologist and audiologist publication Advance. Babies are naturally drawn to sweet foods, but anyone can learn how to like bitter foods like veggies, Fox said - including adults.

"Children and adults can come to like a bitter-tasting food after repeated exposure," she said.

If parents want to introduce new foods to older children, Fox recommended communicating with the kids.

"The first thing I would do is announce a change in the family," Fox said. Talk to children about new foods the family will try, and eat them together. If they refuse the food at first, keep offering it to them — whether it's a new cuisine or vegetables they've never tried before.

Another thing to keep in mind: Never try to force your kids to eat. One of the worst things you could do is make dinner a power struggle, Fox said. Offer choices and let the kids have control over what they are eating. But don't be afraid to set boundaries, Fox added. Don't let children load up their plates and then not eat.

"You don't want to be wasting food," Fox said.

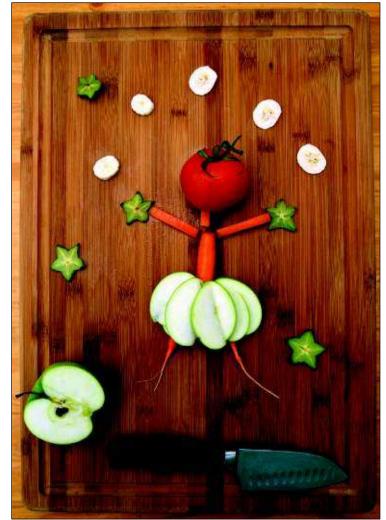

Of course, kids might be more interested in trying new foods than parents think. Last week, Fox made sushi with her nieces — the first time the girls had tried it — and when she taught kindergarten, she fed cooked octopus to her students as they learned about the letter O.

Back at the Lincoln Elementary PTO dinner, Merry Olson ate hot dogs with her son Zach. Olson said she tries to get Zach involved with cooking - the 10-year-old can already make hamburgers, sloppy Joes and eggs. Olson said the family's diet consists mostly of American staples like soups, salads and chilis, but they do eat a few international dishes like stir-fries and pastas.

"We mix it up," Olson said.

And that, Fox said, is one of the best things parents can do.

Help us find Idaho's favorite fries and fry sauce

Idaho adores its spuds. Especially if they're deep-fried and served with fry sauce, that pale concoction that some people love and some people love to mock.

Yes, there's passion and loyalty tied up in Idaho's signature sauce and the fries that accompany it. So it's time to seek out the best of the bunch.

The $\mathit{Times-News}$ wants to find the tastiest fries and fry sauce on south-central Idaho restaurant menus – in Blaine, Camas, Cassia, Gooding, Jerome, Lincoln, Minidoka or Twin Falls county. And we want your help.

E-mail the name and location of the local restaurant that serves your favorite fries and sauce - as well as your own name, town and contact information — to Deputy Editor Virginia Hutchins at virginia.hutchins@lee.net. Put "Fries" in the subject line of your

Then we'll tally readers' picks, and we'll send a reporter to test a handful of the top vote-getting restaurants' fries and sauce. Watch the Food section for results.

Indian food curries favor with Americans

For The Associated Press

NEW YORK - Indian food in America is having its "Slumdog Millionaire" moment.

Supermarket shelves are lined with chutneys, pickles and sauces and all manner of boxed heat-andserve Indian meals. The quality and number of Indian restaurants has soared, offering an alternative to cheap all-you-can-eat buffets. And a flurry of new cookbooks is introducing home cooks to subtle regional differences in Indian cui-

How to jump on the 12-week savings cycle

Q: "Many people do not have the cash flow to stock up the way you do. The economy has really hurt the budget of the average family and they are no longer able to shop the way they used to (such as taking advantage of the sales and buying extra). Do you have any tips for us? I do use coupons but would like to take better advantage of my buying power. I just don't really know how."

A: I particularly liked this letter from a reader. It encompasses the way many people feel when they first start using coupons. It's a common misconception that I spend a lot to stock up on quantities of the items that I buy each week. My weekly grocery bill for our family of five averages between $40 and $60 postcoupons. But for that money, I'm typically buying around $100 worth of groceries.

Supermarkets operate on a 12-week pricing cycle, so stocking up on the things we need when the prices of these items hit their low point during this period makes sense. When you know that the items you buy are at their lowest prices just one time during that cycle, buying them only when the price hits that low saves us a lot of money, even without using coupons.

Let's take juice, for example. At my store, a bottle of grape juice can range in price from $1.99 to $3.99. Clearly, I want to buy the juice when it's at its low price. If my family drinks 1 bottle of grape juice a week, I'll need 12 bottles to get through the next 12-week cycle. While it's true that the initial expense of buying that juice all at once requires more than one might choose to budget just for juice in one week, consider the savings in buying it at that low.

A typical juice price cycle over six weeks at my store may look like this:

Week 1: $1.99 Week 2: $2.29 Week 3: $2.79 Week 4: $2.99

Week 5: $3.29

Week 6: $3.79

with

if I bought six bottles the I'd spend a total of just $11.94. That's more than considering coupons. Of course, I want to use my thus lowering my out-ofpocket cost even more. If you followed me around the grocery store, you'd see that I fill my shopping cart with an eclectic mix of items. It rarely contains all of the staples you might notice in other people's carts, because aside from fresh produce and dairy I shop strictly for items that are at their cycle lows that particular week. I usually have what looks like an unusual quantity of the same item in my cart. I will, of course, use all the coupons I have for those items as I purchase them at the low price. But even if I don't have coupons for all of them, as with our juice example above, I know that I won't be able to purchase these for almost three months, so shopping, it's true, but the strategy balances out budget-wise when you consider what you're not buying each week. Typically, when you're starting out, it takes you 12 weeks to go through your first cycle, where you start to notice and learn the price highs and lows for the items you commonly buy. Those first 12 weeks are going to be a little more expensive, because you're also going to have to buy the things your household needs as you build your stockpile. If you're out of laundry detergent, you'll buy it because you need it, regardless of the price. But a few weeks later, the price may hit a cycle low, and it will be time to stock up for the next time you need it.

Then, the next time you need laundry detergent you'll "shop at home," because you have extra on hand that you purchased when the price was at its

"The American palate is no longer bland," says Andrew F. Smith, editor of the Oxford Encyclopedia of Food and Drink of America, who predicts that Indian food will take off in the next decade the way sushi bars did in the 1980s and Thai food did in the

A September 2009 survey of ethnic food by the market research group Mintel found that the fastest growing segment was Indian food, with sales increasing nearly 35 percent from 2006 to 2008. While Indian food's overall share of the $2.2 billion ethnic food market still is tiny - $40 million in 2009 compared with $1.4 billion in Mexican/Hispanic foods -Mintel says the Asian (mostly Chinese) and Indian food segments are driving the growth.

New York, the dining capital of the nation, has seen an explosion in the number of Indian restaurants in recent years. New York University sociologist and food studies scholar Krishnendu Ray counts some 350 Indian restaurants today compared with the 19 listed in the 1978 edition of a restaurant guide. At the top of the market are a small group of stylish, cosmopolitan restaurants like Tamarind, Devi and Tabla, which received three stars from The New York Times.

The glowing review - "It was love at first bite," it reads - is a far cry from an 1876 article in the Times that judged curry to be "a good thing in its time and place" but one that "still rather deserves the epithet of barbaric."

Fancy Indian food has

made inroads in other cities too. Raghavan Iyer, author of the well-received Indian cookbook "660 Curries;" recently helped launch the upscale restaurant Om in Minneapolis, which features traditional Indian dishes like pork vindaloo and roghan josh (lamb curry) interpreted for an American audience.

While Iyer is amazed at how much more available Indian products have become since he emigrated here in 1982, he says America still has a ways to go in terms of really understanding Indian food.

"People associate hot with spicy and to me they're two different things," he says. "It's a question of educating the American audience. If Thai food can be considered mainstream, I don't think Indian cooking can be that far behind?

Part of the allure is the supposed health benefits of Indian food, especially spices like turmeric, ginger, cinnamon and cavenne. Research into the antioxidant and antiinflammatory properties of turmeric has landed it on lists of cancer-fighting foods in recent years.

Priti Chitnis Gress, editorial director for the publisher Hippocrene Books, Inc., says the company's line of Indian cookbooks do quite well, particularly the one titled "Healthy South Indian Cooking," and sell largely to a non-Indian audience.

"People, especially in metropolitan communities, are fairly sophisticated," she says. "It's not just chicken curry and rice and naan anymore."

Across the pond, Camellia Punjabi's cookbook "50 Great Curries of India" has sold over 1 million copies worldwide. It was recently reissued in the U.S. with a DVD "to take the intimidation out of cooking Indian food," says Anja Schmidt, the New York publisher of Kyle Books, a division of London-based Kyle Cathie Ltd.

Americans' job satisfaction falls to record low

By Jeannine Aversa Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON - We can't get no job satisfaction.

Even Americans who are lucky enough to have work in this economy are becoming more unhappy with their jobs, according to a new survey that found only 45 percent of Americans are satisfied with their work.

That was the lowest level ever recorded by the Conference Board research group in more than 22 years of studying the issue. In 2008, 49 percent of those surveyed reported satisfaction with their jobs.

The drop in workers' happiness can be partly blamed on the worst recession since the 1930s, which made it difficult for some people to find challenging and suitable jobs. But worker dissatisfaction has been on the rise for more than

The Boise location consists of 118,000 square feet of retail space and 61 employees - all of whom will be laid off.

Other stores to be closed include locations in Waterford, Mich., Ann, Mo., Missoula, Mont., and Burlington, N.J.

Associates displaced by part of an ongoing process store closing may be offered positions in nearby stores where possible. Regular full-time and parttime associates who are ANSWER: Your partner cannot have four hearts (or he would have raised you) or four spades for he would have bid them over your one-heart response). Your side belongs in no-trump, and it would be mildly pessimistic to raise to only two no trump, though not entirely unreasonable But I would simply bid three notrump and let partner figure out how to make it.

IF JANUARY 6 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Avoid signing contracts this month unless you have a tried-and-true adviser on hand to check them out first. You may overlook drawbacks and fine print this month or simply become involved in a wild goose chase. Late April and early May is the best time to sign on the dotted line or to make a promise. You are most likely to be successful at any project or plan launched during this time and can expect improvements of some kind in some area of your life.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Consider ways to be a nurturing force for those you love. Control your competitive nature, especially around loved ones.

TAURUS (April 20-May You may want to show off your best side and charm your friends and contacts. Be wary of spending money GEMINI (May 21-June Stick your finger in the socket. Don't actually follow this advice, but do consider ways to stay connected with others. CANCER (June 21-July Dress for success. Keeping up appearances and doing things "for the sake of appearances" may be a priority for you today. LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You can be a trailblazer in every part of your life. Your energies will result in accomplishment if you do not limit yourself. VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You can absorb the latest facts and figures faster than usual. Hook up with a study partner; two heads are better than one.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): It seems that what you want is just out of reach. This is a good day for a carefree lunch with friends or a quick shopping expedition.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You could be anxious to make a fast break from a business situation. The problem is that you could break the bank doing this.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Handle relationships with care, as it will be difficult to judge how a small alteration will affect a financial situation.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Where and how you focus your energy is important. You may have multiple interests and be involved in numerous developments.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You turn on the charm at the wrong moment. Beware: A business transaction may clash with your social ambi-PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): It is good to think outside the box. You can be successful in any business pursuit if you use some kind of advanced technology.

SUDOKU

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Conceptis Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.

DEAR ABBY: Shortly after college and a bad breakup, I met someone I thought was a "nice" guy. I allowed him to take sexually explicit photos of me. I realize now that I did it because I had very low self-esteem back then.

The moment he snapped the pictures I regretted it and asked for them back. He refused, and even tried to extort money from me with threats of sending copies to my workplace. I was working for a Fortune 500 company at the time and was scared to death. Fortunately, he didn't follow through on his threat.

Fast forward 20 years: I am now a stay-at-home mom with a wonderful husband and two young children. I still think about the mistakes I made all those years ago, and I had a dream recently about this particular situation. I'm not worried about my husband finding out because I told him about this before we were married. However, I do wonder what happened to the pictures. With today's technology, they could be anywhere now.

Who we are today is not necessarily who we are going to be tomorrow. Abby, please warn young girls and boys to THINK before doing something that can possibly follow them through a lifetime.

more effective warning than any sermon that could come from me. Not only is it a fact that the photos and statements we post on the Internet are there for eternity, but the "sexts," texts, videos and blogs of yesteryear can haunt us like tattered vagrant ghosts instead of staying buried. One need only recall the embarrassment of certain celebrities who should have known better - whose names and images have been blasted across the media and learn from their mistakes.

DISTRESSED DEAR DAD: No. In fact, you should stay out of it.

DEAR ABBY: I just started counseling for postpartum depression. My husband keeps asking me what we talked about. During the counseling sessions I discuss all aspects of my life including my husband. How can I let him know that what I discuss with my therapist is

Burley girls roll up on Riverhawks

Times-News writer

The holiday break couldn't have come at a better time for the Burley High girls basketball team.

After injuries and some lineup shuffling, the Bobcats needed time to recover, and Tuesday's 55-28 Great Basin Conference road win over Canyon Ridge was like the first game of the season all over again.

"Tonight wasn't an easy game for us to play, we're kind of in recovery," said Burley coach Gordon Kerbs. "The situation we're in, until we figure out what we're doing, who we're going to have every night, we just need people to step up. It was nice to see some girls step up tonight."

Cheri Preston had her best allaround game of the season on both ends of the floor and scored a gamehigh 18 points. Teresa Wayment also "We're sticking together as a team, no matter what goes on, we're a team, and that's all that matters."

- Burley player Cheri Preston chipped in with 18 and Shawna Pace "We are battling, but we're making little mistakes that we need to fix," "After practicing for two weeks, it said Canyon Ridge coach Kim Wray. feels good to be back on the floor," "We're just having a lack of focus. We Preston said. "I like the direction our need somebody to step up and decide team is going in. As soon as we get they're going to be a leader on the some people back from injuries, we'll floor, and we don't have that right be just fine. We're sticking together as now. We're young, so we're still trying a team, no matter what goes on, we're to figure that out."

Canyon Ridge got 10 points from sophomore guard Karly Hudelson and eight points from Staci Baird.

Burley (8-5, 3-3 GBC) has won three of its last five and has a key conference matchup at Twin Falls on Thursday.

Minico wrestlers claim narrow victory over Twin Falls

By David Bashore

Times-News writer

Minico 135-pound wrestler Joey Gomez knew the situation.

His team was up by nine points Tuesday in its dual at Twin Falls, but Nate Goss, making his first varsity appearance, was in the process of chipping into Gomez's lead in the third round. The Bruins had undefeated and reigning state champion Will Keeter on deck at 140. Losing was simply not an option.

"I just didn't want to let the team down," Gomez said minutes after holding off Goss for a 10-7 decision that clinched a 36-30 win for Minico. "I just didn't want to lose so we could come out victorious."

It proved useful, as Keeter quickly pinned Jesse Burgara to end the dual and bring Twin Falls back to a six-point defeat.

Goss escaped a pin a handful of times in the second round and threatened to turn the match on its head in the third as he frantically tried to claim a come-from-behind win. He cut Gomez loose after much prompting from his coaches and teammates, but there wasn't enough time left to complete the

"When he cut me loose I knew he was going to come in for a quick takedown," Gomez said. "I was ready for it and held on."

The Spartans took the win largely on the strength of four consecutive pins, starting with 215-pounder Jacob Barclay and ending with Isaiah Alvarado at 112. Colby May also picked up a pin at 171.

The tightest match for Minico came with one of its most improved wrestlers from last season, 152pounder David Borden. Borden scored a 2-0 decision over Jordan Staley but didn't score until a thirdround reversal.

Iowa beats Ga Tech in Orange Bowl, 24-14

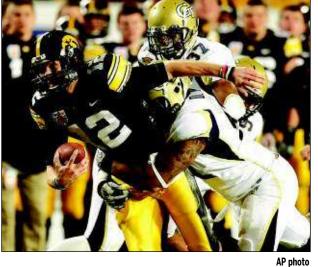

Associated Press writer

MIAMI – Stymied by the Iowa Hawkeyes' swarming defense, Georgia Tech found itself out of options.

No. 10 Iowa solved Tech's explosive triple option and Ricky Stanzi threw two early touchdown passes for a 24-14 victory Tuesday night in the coldest Orange Bowl ever.

Temperature at kickoff was 49 degrees, and Tech's offense was slow to warm up. The ninth-ranked Yellow Jackets averaged 35 points during the regular season, but their only score in the first three quarters came on Jerrard Tarrant's 40-yard interception return. "This was Hawkeye weather," Iowa coach Kirk Ferentz said. "We feel right at home right now."

Athletes play for pride, coaches get bonuses

By Eddie Pells Associated Press writer

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. - The players at Texas and Alabama will compete Thursday night for the chance to be called national champions and for a beautiful crystal trophy to be placed outside their locker room.

Their coaches have even more at stake.

Mack Brown of Texas stands to make $450,000 if he leads the Longhorns past Alabama in the BCS championship game. If the Crimson Tide wins, Nick Saban would get $200,000 on top of the $200,000 he's already earned by making it to the national title game.

All that is in addition to what Brown and Saban, two of the highest-paid coaches in the business, already receive. Brown recently had his salary permanently increased to $5.1 million a year. Saban signed an extension that makes his deal worth $4.7 million annually.

That's nearly $10 million a year for two men to coach football. And even though they work on campuses where the sport is king, the staggering salaries put a laser point on a broader debate in academia: When the average college professor makes around $115,000 and not a single college player earns a paycheck, is a college football coach worth that kind of money?

Brown

UT's president is one of the most unapologetic backers of Brown and the money he makes.

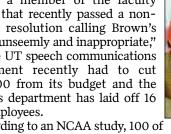

"In an era of budget cuts in higher education across the country, I am one of very few presidents who does not also have to bail out athletics with subsidies and loans," Bill Powers recently wrote in his blog on the school Web site, justifying Brown's raise.

The statement speaks to truths on both sides of the

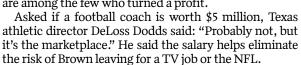

It's true that, under Brown, Texas football revenues have increased from $21 million to $87.5 million in 12 years and that the program is not only self-sustaining, but has given $6.6 million back to the academic arm of the school in the past four years.

It's also true that the football program's contribution is only a tiny fraction of Texas' approximately $1.3 billion academic operating budget, and that the country's economic crisis has caused almost every UT department to cut costs.

Accounting professor Michael Granof, a member of the faculty council that recently passed a nonbinding resolution calling Brown's salary "unseemly and inappropriate," says the UT speech communications department recently had to cut $100,000 from its budget and the business department has laid off 16 staff employees.

According to an NCAA study, 100 of the 119 athletic programs with Division I football lost money in fiscal 2006. Texas and Alabama are among the few who turned a profit.

That's also the general feeling at Alabama, where memories of coach Bear Bryant's glory days endure and the faithful have been starving for a national title since 1992. In Tuscaloosa, Saban's hiring and the subsequent raises in the past three years are widely seen as a good investment. In the 12 months ending June 30 – before this championship season even began — the Tide football program brought in $38.2 million. That was a 40 percent increase over the year before Saban was hired, and compares favorably to the 27 percent decrease in corporate profits in the United States since 2006.

The players, meanwhile, get free tuition and some money for living expenses. That's it, even though the fans pay to see them.

"All I ask is, throw us a little more money," says All-American defensive end Derrick Morgan of Georgia Tech, whose coach, Paul Johnson, makes $2.3 million a

"We're the ones out there grinding. But that's beating a dead horse."

Some, like Morgan, are good bets to go on to successful and lucrative NFL careers. But only about 1.8 percent of college players get there.

Big Unit retires

SAN FRANCISCO -Randy Johnson is retiring after 22 major league seasons.

The Big Unit, an overpowering lefty who last June became the 24th pitcher in big league history to win 300 games, made the expected announcement Tuesday on a conference call.

A five-time Cy Young Award winner, the 46year-old Johnson accomplished just about everything in his remarkable career that a player hopes for in baseball.

He owns a World Series ring and co-MVP honors, and was a 10-time All-Star. He threw two no-hitters, including a perfect game, and ranks second on the career strikeout list.

The 6-foot-10 Johnson finishes with a career record of 303-166 and 4,875 strikeouts in 4,135 1-3

Kotchman appears headed to Seattle

SEATTLE - A person familiar with the talks says the Red Sox and Mariners are working on a trade that would send first baseman Casev Kotchman from Boston to Seattle.

The person spoke to The Associated Press on condition of anonymity Tuesday because the trade was perhaps a couple of days from being finalized.

The teams are still deciding which player or players the Mariners would send to Boston. It is believed none would be major league starters.

Pistons drop 10 straight with loss to Mavericks

DALLAS — Jason Terry scored 26 points, Dirk Nowitzki added 22 and the Dallas Mavericks overcame a slow start to hand Detroit its 10th consecutive loss, beating the Pistons 98-93 Tuesday night.

The Pistons, who last won Dec. 12, hadn't dropped 10 in a row since the end of the 1993-94 season. They lost their final 13 games that season.

The Mavericks were coming off a 131-96 loss Sunday to the Los Angeles Lakers, their most lopsided setback of the season. Dallas shot 29 percent in the opening quarter and trailed by 14 in the first half on Tuesday.

PACERS 97, MAGIC 90

INDIANAPOLIS - Roy Hibbert scored a careerhigh 26 points, leading the Indiana Pacers to a 97-90 victory over the Orlando Magic on Tuesday night.

Hibbert, a 7-2 center, added eight rebounds and four blocks. Luther Head had 18 points and Dahntay Jones scored 13 for the Pacers, who have won two of three after losing eight straight.

BUCKS 98, NETS 76

EAST RUTHERFORD, Andrew Bogut scored 14 of his 18 points in the second half and the Milwaukee Bucks scored a rare road win with a 98-76 decision over the woeful

New Jersey Nets on Tuesday night.

Carlos Delfino, who had scored 10 points in the Bucks' last five games, added 17 points as the Bucks won for only the fourth time in 15 road games.

BOBCATS 113, BULLS 108

CHARLOTTE, N.C. -Gerald Wallace scored 32 points, Stephen Jackson and Flip Murray added 25 each and the Charlotte Bobcats held off a late rally to beat the Chicago Bulls 113-108 on Tuesday night for their third straight vic-

Derrick Rose and John Salmons missed gametying 3-point attempts in the closing seconds for the Bulls, who gave up seventh place in the Eastern Conference to the Bobcats despite wiping out a 13point second-quarter deficit.

NUGGETS 123, WARRIORS 122

DENVER - J.R. Smith hit two free throws with 0.4 seconds remaining, lifting the Denver Nuggets to a 123-122 victory over the Golden State Warriors on Tuesday night.

Smith, one of four Nuggets to finish with at least 20 points, was fouled by Monta Ellis while throwing up a desperation 3pointer after taking an inbounds pass with just 3 seconds remaining.

"He went for a leg-ride, and I did a countermove that we work on all the time, just shook him up and popped out the back." Borden said. "But I need to step it up and wrestle a lot better than that."

Mark Christensen, Twin Falls' 152-pounder, delivered the most exciting victory of the night with a 17-13 win over Jorge Vega.

Christensen made it interesting, up 14-5 in the second round, when Vega threw him and nearly picked up a stunning pin. But the Twin Falls wrestler staved it off and time ran out in the round, allowing him to reassert himself in the final period.

"The throw is a fivepoint move if you do it right. and you can get a pin too," Christensen said. "I just stuck my elbow in the mat, and with 30 seconds left I wasn't going to let myself get pinned like that. I was able to hang on and let time run out, then get back after it in the third."

NEW YORK — ESPN is looking to ride one of the next big waves in consumer electronics with a new 3-D sports channel.

The network, owned by the Walt Disney Co., says it will introduce a channel this year that will broadcast live sports events using the technology, starting with the FIFA World Cup soccer match on June 11.

The channel will not operate 24 hours a day, but plans to run at least 85 live events in its first year. In an interview, ESPN's vice president for technology, Chuck Pagano, said the network is preparing for a "3-D tsunami" in the TV industry. Major electronics makers such as Sony

L.A. stadium builder: Jaguars, Bills first on list

LOS ANGELES - The company behind a plan to lure the NFL back to Los Angeles said Tuesday the Jacksonville Jaguars and Buffalo Bills are the first teams it will try to relocate.

Majestic Realty Co. managing partner John Semcken said the company is still considering at least seven franchises for a new stadium some 25 miles east of Los Angeles.

They also include the San Francisco 49ers, San Diego Chargers. Minnesota Vikings, St. Louis Rams and Oakland Raiders.

But he said the Jaguars and the Bills are at the top of the list because they play in small markets that tamp down their earning potential and because they have little hope of building larger venues in their home regions.

"Jacksonville and Buffalo are two teams in very, very small markets, he said. "They are teams that have either outdated stadiums or are having trouble filling their stadiums or both."

The Jaguars have struggled for years to fill Jacksonville Municipal Stadium and had several games blacked out on local TV this season. The Bills, meanwhile, have been playing some home games in Toronto in an effort to expand their market.

Messages were left seeking comment from the Jaguars and Bills.

Jaguars majority owner Wayne Weaver and Bills owner Ralph Wilson have steadfastly dismissed any suggestion they will sell or move their teams.

Semcken said Majestic won't approach the 49ers, Chargers or Vikings as long as they are seeking stadium plans of their own. He said it would not be fair to interfere with their efforts to remain in their home markets.

Semcken also Majestic chief executive Ed Roski's preference is to find owners willing to sell their franchise to a consortium of investors that he would lead, rather than buying a minority stake in a team that would move with its existing majority owner at the helm.

Cushing named AP top defensive rookie

NEW YORK - From the first practice in training camp until the last game, Brian Cushing was a tackling machine for the Houston Texans. That's exactly what the team sought when it chose linebacker from Southern Cal 15th overall in the draft last April. What the Texans also got is The Associated Press 2009 NFL Defensive Rookie of the

Rupert Rexburg

Cushing was a runaway winner in balloting by a nationwide panel of 50 sports writers and broadcasters who cover the league. Cushing received 39 votes Tuesday, easily beating Buffalo safety Jairus Byrd, who had six, and became the second Texans linebacker in four seasons to win the award. DeMeco Ryans took it in 2006.

"I'm just a much smarter football player," Cushing said. "I'm much more advanced than I was this time last year and it was just a good way to start out a career. I'm happy about how everything turned out this year. Of course the playoffs would have been nice, but now we know what we have to do for next season."

This season, Cushing had 133 tackles, 86 of them primary, according to the Texans, who went 9-7, their first winning record.

Bears keep Smith, fire six assistants

LAKE FOREST, Ill. - The Chicago Bears are bringing head coach Lovie Smith back for a seventh season.

But the team on Tuesday fired offensive coordinator Ron Turner and five other coaches on that side of the ball: Pep Hamilton (quarterbacks), Rob Boras (tight ends), Harry Hiestand (line), and assistants Luke Butkus and Charles

The Bears went 7-9 and missed the playoffs for the third straight year following a Super Bowl run. Turner's second stint as Chicago's offensive coordinator lasted five years, but ended with the Bears ranked 23rd in yards per game and 29th in rushing.
