Infant's death a mystery

Twin Falls police converge on apartment, release few details

By Andrea Jackson
Times-News writer

Twin Falls police are investigating the Friday death of a 2-month-old infant at an apartment along Quincy Street. Police released few firm details Friday about the incident, and withheld the name of the child.

City police department Lt. Craig Stotts said police were called Friday afternoon to 863 Quincy St., apartment 3, by an unidentified person claiming the child was not breathing.

Upon arrival, the baby whom Stotts said he believes is female, was unresponsive and was pronounced dead by the authorities on scene. Stotts said he was unsure if the baby was injured.

"Nobody's been arrested," Stotts said Friday when officers were still at the apartment.

A crime-lab van, an ambulance and at least four police cruisers were stationed outside the apartment Friday around 4 p.m., as police officers shuffled into and out of the second-story residence.

The coroner's office arrived after the ambulance and into a police vehicle.

"These things take time," Stotts said Friday night. "It's an ongoing investigation."

Officers on scene referred all questions to Stotts, who

A Twin Falls County sheriff's deputy also arrived on scene at the apartment, which is just south of the College of Southern Idaho.

Ex-Mayor Clow says he'll continue with 2010 plan

By Nate Poppino
Times-News writer

Lance Clow may just be an ordinary city councilman these days.

But after a challenging year, Clow still plans to push ahead with a multipronged proposal he developed while mayor to reinvigorate the original Twin Falls town site, including its long-suffering downtown.

"My intention is to pursue, move forward with as many of the ideas as I can, and continue them for as long as I can sustain an interest in them," said Clow, who was re-elected last fall to another four-year council term in an uncontested race.

Unveiled in late 2007, the former mayor's Initiative 2010 comprised 20 proposals he hoped to have underway — or at least start discussions on — by the end of this year.

The list ranged from old ideas such as pushing state legislators to allow local-option taxes to working with local banks to form a cooperative loan program for downtown investment.

Though not mentioned directly, a weekend magic festival held last August also had its roots in the proposal.

The initiative lost steam last year due to a combination of issues, Clow said Thursday.

The poor economy limited everyone's resources, particularly any assistance from the banking community. In addition, a family situation kept Clow out of town periodically, he said.

But with the new year, the retired financial adviser believes he can kick things back into motion and follow through on more of his dreams. The town site projects are still "a very high priority," he said.

"I want to see that through." He plans to continue to encourage banks and investors to support projects downtown. And, he said, he'd like to continue some form of

Buhl taking a closer look at industrial wastewater rates

By Blair Koch
Times-News correspondent

BUHL — Buhl officials know the city's top industries affect city wastewater treatment needs. Now they're out to determine the size of that impact.

A study of how much waste Rangen Inc., Clear Springs Foods and Seneca Foods Corporation plants in Buhl contribute to the city load is expected to help develop a new wastewater fee schedule that city officials say may lower monthly bills.

Buhl residents currently pay just under $21 monthly for wastewater service, plus $43.87 for bond repayment obligations on the construction of a $13 million mechanical waste treatment plant.

City estimates indicate the three industrial users contribute between 40 to 60 percent of city sewage.

However, the companies are responsible for a small fraction of the bond repayment, as it is spread evenly per account.

According to monthly customer payment reports obtained from the city by the Times-News, nine of Rangen's 11 accounts are assessed the same $43.87 bond repayment charge. Two of Seneca's nine accounts are billed the fee and Clear Spring's city account is assessed the fee.

Companies also pay for waste treatment.

"We're going to be looking at what is best for Buhl; not just those three industries or for residents but for the city as a whole," said City Engineer Scott Bybee.

The city is able to gather load data through monitoring stations at the companies' sites; splitting the nearly $30,000 cost of monitoring with each business. Monitoring will run concurrently with construction of the new treatment plant, expected to start in spring.

After determining waste load from each company, Buhl officials will calculate treatment costs. Then comes the tricky part: formulating adequate user fees for each company.

If the fee is set too high, each company could seek a cheaper place to do business or formulate a plan to pre-treat waste.

"It really is going to come down to sitting down with the industry users and coming to a fair agreement," said Buhl mayor-elect Tom McCauley.

While city officials didn't yet know how rates would be restructured, Bybee said it could lead to lower bills for all users.

Twin Falls teen testifies against alleged rapist

By Andrea Jackson
Times-News writer

From the stand, a 16-year-old girl told a Twin Falls courtroom Friday about the first time she used methamphetamine in a case against the man accused of drugging and raping her a month ago.

Magistrate Judge Thomas Kershaw bound the case against Scott G. Pufahl, 34, over to district court after hearing from the teen during Pufahl's preliminary hearing Friday.

Lodged Friday at the Twin Falls County Jail on $150,000 bond, Pufahl is charged with rape, two counts of sexual battery of a minor, possession of a controlled substance and two counts of delivery of a controlled substance.

The girl told police she went to Pufahl's Twin Falls home on Dec. 3 to visit with her friend, who was Pufahl's girlfriend, and the next day

Pufahl allegedly began "forcing" the girl to ingest methamphetamine. He allegedly administered it to her body in different ways, drew with a marker on her chest, and also tried to stop her from calling police for help, according to court records.

The alleged incidents happened at Pufahl's home along Harmony Road where younger children were also present, the teen testified Friday.

"I had never used it before," the girl testified Friday about what she thought was meth. While under its influence the girl was "seeing dead people," she said.

The teen tried to call police after calling her mother in Richfield.

"I was worried," the girl testified Friday. "I really wasn't sure what she would think." The girl said she didn't disclose the rape and drug use in that call. "I just told her I was hallucinating and I didn't know why."

The girl said she hung up on her mom "without warning" and then dialed 911. Her mother told police in court records that her daughter sounded "out of it."

After the incident, the teenage victim underwent a sexual assault examination and also had exhibited bruises, scratches and torn clothes, court records show.

"After all this had happened I felt addicted," the girl told the court.

The judge excluded one of Pufahl's family members from the courtroom Friday, saying she had "given up her right" to be there after communicating with Pufahl in the courthouse, despite warnings from security against doing that.

his period town-hall discussions, which were held both to involve the public and give people skeptical of the initiative a place to speak their minds.

In the short term, two projects in particular stand out, including a memorial plaza Clow would like to see become an "iconic item." He announced early last year that he planned to temporarily focus the project discussions on the plaza, which he said could combine a veteran service center with a tourist draw. The plaza would include more than just tributes to veterans, he said Thursday, and he'd like to make it a focal point of a proposed four-block redevelopment still in the works by the city.

Clow also has downtown housing on his mind. Specifically, he said he plans to talk with state legislators about taking advantage of an expected rewrite of urban renewal laws this year. He'd like to be able to use urban renewal money to remodel second-floor downtown housing, not just fix up outdoor facades.

"That's where a lot of the blight is," Clow said.

The town-hall talks at various businesses only attracted a handful of people after the first couple meetings. But Clow's continued push is certain to be welcome news to those who stayed involved.

Kathy Schroeder, a member of the city's Business Improvement District board and chairwoman of its events committee, said she's looking forward to helping with another MagicFest this year and has supported Clow 100 percent with all his proposed projects.

"I'm glad to hear that everything is still in the works," she said.

Lawsuit

"They are opposed to the public not being given all the info and all the options. In addition this lawsuit would go forward even if they go forward with the question (on the May ballot)," Halper said.

Jerome County Commission Chairman Charlie Howell said Friday afternoon he is not worried about Halper's filing.

"We've had guidance from legal council. At this point I'm not concerned," he said.

"They've been in it with this every step of the way," Howell said of assistance from Assistant County Prosecutor Mile Seib. Attempts to reach Jerome County Prosecutor John Horgan, Seib and Rocky Mountain Corrections General Manager April Lee were unsuccessful Friday.

Halper has sued the county several times in the past. He said Friday he doesn't remember how many suits he has filed. "This is the first declaratory judgment action I've ever filed," he said.

Halper ran unsuccessfully twice for county commission and twice for the Idaho Legislature. He said he would not be a candidate this year.

Some citizens are keeping a close eye on the progress, like Citizens Committee member Becky Hagerott.

"We really have to look at the big picture and have solid figures to make a good consensus for what is right and what is fair," Hagerott said. "While I understand that the city can't have these big businesses support the system overall we need something to change.

"Right now people can't pay their city bill and ... people don't want to move into Buhl because the bills are too high."

Head-on crash in Bellevue results in minor injuries

Times-News

A head-on crash in the north end of Bellevue, near Atkinsons' Market, resulted in only minor injuries to one driver just after 3 p.m. on Thursday, according to Wood River Fire & Rescue.

When rescue personnel arrived, they found a southbound Ford F-250 pickup truck and a Toyota Prius collided in the southbound lane. The 80-year-old driver of the Prius, who has not been identified, was transported to the hospital with minor injuries.

The driver of the pickup, who was not injured, was not treated. During the response and clean-up of the crash, southbound traffic was diverted through the Atkinsons' parking lot.

Burley ethanol plant restarts

BURLEY (AP) — A southern Idaho ethanol plant has resumed production after being shuttered for nearly a year.

Pacific Ethanol Inc. announced Wednesday that its plant in Burley is up and running again.

The plant ceased operations in February 2009 amid falling corn prices and sharp market declines.

In May 2009, a subsidiary of the Sacramento Calif.-based company called Pacific Ethanol Holding Co. that runs the plant in Burley filed for federal bankruptcy protection and is still working through that process.

Company officials say they intend to hire at least 35 employees for a plant designed to produce up to 60 million gallons of ethanol per year.

Blaine Rec. District moves toward new center

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

The Blaine County Recreation District hopes to begin soliciting bids to build a new community recreation center in a couple weeks.

The district wants to renovate more than 8,000 square feet of space in the Community Campus in Hailey to create a center that would feature weights, cardio equipment, a gymnasium, a fitness studio and room for spinning classes.

“We’ve been trying to figure out how to create a full recreation center for a long time,” said Jim Keating, the recreation district’s executive director. “The space we want to convert currently contains 400 lockers and showers that were used when the Community Campus was a high school. It’s outdated. No one uses it. We’re in the Community Campus already. So we thought: Why reinvent the wheel?”

The recreation district is partnering with the Blaine County School District and College of Southern Idaho on the project. The school district leases 27,000 square feet of space in the Community Campus to the recreation district.

Mike Chatterton, the school’s finance director, said the project isn’t meant to compete with the Wood River Community YMCA, High Altitude Fitness or other fitness facilities in the valley.

Keating agreed: “We’re not trying to be a high-end gym. You might call this a stepping stone to a high-end gym.”

Chatterton said the district is eyeing the possibility of a 25 percent discounted membership to the fitness facility for school staff. CSI students would also get a break on facility use since CSI plans to assume equipment costs.

Chatterton said the district hopes to start building in early March and finish in early July. He expects the project to cost up to $270,000 with the cost split between the recreation district and school district.

Additionally, the school district is pursuing healthier food options at the Internet café located in the Community Campus, said Chatterton: “It won’t just be about chicken tenders anymore.”

The health and wellness offerings will complement CSI’s higher-education programs in Hailey, said Jenny Emery Davidson, director of the CSI Blaine County Center.

“The combined effect is a truly vital community campus where people of all ages can grow in positive ways,” she said.

Blaine County employee charged with aggravated assault, DUI

By Ariel Hansen
Times-News writer

HAILEY — A Blaine County employee is facing charges of aggravated assault and driving under the influence after he allegedly brandished a shotgun at the man who lives with his ex-wife.

Michael Shipp, 32, of Bellevue, drove to a residence on U.S. Highway 20 near the Hayspur fish hatchery, where he displayed a firearm at about 11:30 p.m. Jan. 2, drove away, then slid into a ditch, according to court documents.

Blaine County sheriff’s deputies questioned the reporting party, Bradford Dredge. He told them he heard a vehicle in his lane and went outside to investigate, where he saw a blue pickup. The report states Dredge approached the truck and saw a shotgun sticking out the passenger window about five inches, pointed at him by a man he identified as Shipp.

Dredge reportedly knows Shipp because Shipp’s ex-wife, Kim Shipp, lives with Dredge, the records show. Court records stated Michael Shipp is employed by the county.

Records say Dredge seized the shotgun barrel to shove it away from himself, then let go and retreated to his house. Shipp then drove away. Dredge was reportedly “afraid that (Shipp) was going to shoot him or his girlfriend Kim who was inside the residence at the time of the incident,” according to court records.

Deputies detained Shipp, who reportedly told them he did not have a firearm with him, and arrested the man for driving under the influence. During an inventory of Shipp’s vehicle, deputies reportedly found a loaded Remington 12-gauge shotgun in the bed of the truck, embedded in snow under a pizza box, and a pack of shotgun shells behind the driver’s seat.

Shipp reportedly admitted to having the shotgun during an interview after his arrest, but said Dredge had tried to gain entry to the truck when he drove by Dredge’s residence. Shipp told deputies he had touched the shotgun and warned Dredge not to come near him, records say.

On Wednesday, Shipp paid $5,000 bail to be released from jail, and he has pleaded not guilty to the DUI, which is a misdemeanor. A preliminary hearing on the aggravated assault, which is a felony, is scheduled for 3 p.m. Tuesday, where Shipp will be represented by Doug Nelson of the Roark Law Firm.

According to court records, Shipp was charged with aggravated DUI in Blaine County last year, but the charge was dismissed. He pleaded guilty to domestic assault in Ada County in 1994.

Rupert Council to change schedule

By Coreen Hart
Times-News correspondent

RUPERT — The Rupert City Council swore in incumbent councilmen Todd McGhie and James Bowers on Tuesday, and elected Councilman Mike Brown as president.

Bowers requested council meetings be held on the first and third Tuesdays of each month, as not to conflict with the Burley City Council’s schedule.

“I believe it would be extremely helpful if some of us were able to attend Burley’s council meetings, which are the same night as our present meetings,” Bowers said. “Councilman McGhie and I have attended other city council meetings and have heard other agendas that we would like to hear verbatim as to what takes place.”

A motion will be drafted by Rupert City Attorney Kelly Anthon to establish the new meeting times and dates by February’s first meeting. Anthon was recently hired as Burley’s city attorney, and the change would eliminate a scheduling conflict for him, as he will continue to serve as Rupert’s attorney.

The council also gave initial support to a proposal by Waggin’ Tails animal rescue that the city seek grant funding to upgrade the Mini-Cassia Animal Shelter.

“There are a number of grants available for this type of project,” said Waggin’ Tails co-founder Deb Hopkins in a telephone interview Wednesday. “ ... We will soon be in a position to qualify for the grants, and we can help the animal shelter if they will let us.”

Rupert Mayor Paul Fries supported the request, saying “I think this would be very beneficial to the city and to the participants.”

“At this point, grant money could only help,” Bowers added.

The council agreed to speak with the city animal-control board for its input.

The city electric department is currently searching for a facility in which to store Christmas decorations so the Minidoka Bowmen’s Association can have more space at the city’s old armory, where city Christmas decorations are currently held.

Steve Eckles, head of the electric department, said it would be nice to have all the Christmas decorations in a single facility.

Council President Mike Brown discussed the possibility of installing a new storage building.

“I’ve seen a 24-by-24-foot metal garages go for about $5,000 to $7,000,” he said. “We need a larger entrance for our trucks, but it might be possible to build something for around $10,000 to $11,000 that would serve that purpose.”

The council agreed to seek more information about buildings that could be put up on city land.

“Their (the bowmen’s) size has quadrupled in the last year, especially among the youth,” Bowers said. “I would like to see us move uniformly to keep them here.”

Seasonal closure scheduled for South Hills

Times-News

The Bureau of Land Management Burley Field Office will implement a seasonal road closure in the South Hills from Jan. 16 to March 15, the office announced Friday.

BLM said the yearly closure, in place since 2000, is designed to protect mule deer winter range and sage grouse habitat. Signs have been posted to notify the public of the closure and gates have been installed to prevent trespass.

The closure includes all BLM-managed lands in the South Hills and applies to all motorized vehicles, except those specifically authorized access.

The habitat area is important for maintaining over-wintering of mule deer herds and is popular for hunting and wildlife viewing during other times of the year, according to BLM officials.

Jury acquits Marty Stone in rape trial

Times-News

A jury in Twin Falls acquitted Marty Wade Stone, 37, on Thursday following three days of trial on a rape charge.

Stone, of Buhl, was accused of raping a woman who claimed she was a lesbian and would not have consented to sex with a man. The woman had testified at Stone’s preliminary hearing, saying: “I got raped ... Forced against my will to have sex.”

Stone denied the allegations when confronted by police and allegedly said he had consensual sex with the woman after she initiated the contact, according to court records.

Twin Falls County sheriff recognizes reserve officers

Fourteen reserve officers with the Twin Falls County Sheriff's Office were recognized Wednesday for their service.

Reserve officers must meet the same standards of employment as the department's certified deputies, pass basic training and attend annual training. Reserve officers are used in many different capacities at the sheriff's office and provide an invaluable service, according to a press release from the office.

Reservists recognized were: Tom Schroeder, two years of service; Doug Gaskill, three years; Jared Giles, three years; Steve Monson, three years; Matthew Radmall, three years; Rick McNurlin, four years; Gary Trostel, five years; Don Thueson, 10 years; Wayne Stanhope, 11 years; Richard Sievers, 13 years; Jerry Josephsen, 14 years; Daniel Miller, 15 years; Hank Rathbun, 25 years; Gary Thompson, 29 years.

Ketchum gets plaza donation

Ketchum resident and philanthropist Tina Mehan recently offered $100,000 to the Ketchum Community Development Corporation toward the construction of a new town plaza outside Atkinsons' Market. The donation covers a quarter of the estimated $400,000 cost for the completed project, said Ketchum Parks Superintendent Jen Smith.

The KCDC hopes to complete the town square by July 4. To that end, KCDC members, city staff and volunteers are completing a design which they plan to present for public review in the coming weeks.

The design includes a large paver area to accommodate large events, a raised stage area with steps, fire pits, lighting, trees, tables, chairs, benches and areas for temporary vendors, such as LeRoy's ice cream stand.

Hey officers, lighten up a little

Q: Is really so hard for an officer to be friendly or have any kind of sense of humor during a traffic stop?

When I was recently pulled over, I was joking and trying to lighten the situation. The officer wasn't participating. He didn't change expression or make a comment to the humor I was using. He just told me, twice, to make sure I paid the citation or there would be a warrant for my arrest.

I don't think it would hurt for an officer to lighten up a little instead of playing the role of the tough guy. What do you think?

A: I have to agree with you on this one. There's nothing wrong with shedding a little light on a bad situation. Humor has been my weapon of choice — I know sometimes it's not fully loaded — for almost all my life. I might not be popular among other officers for my answer but maybe it will lead to some self-evaluation.

The officer basically gave you an impression I don't like to see officers give — that we're not human and nothing is funny to us. The opposite is usually true. I know many officers that use humor as a weapon to diffuse tense situations. I've also seen these officer get serious when needed, so don't think an officer is reckless if they use humor in the right situations.

Another thing I noticed about officers with senses of humor is they tend to climb farther up the career ladder. I believe one reason is because they deal with the stresses of the job much better than humorless officers. I think the public also relates better to humor, which sometimes shows at the polls for elected officers.

To the officers out there not laughing right now, I say it's time to find your sense of humor. It might not only help with your career but it might also save your life. It's said laughter adds years to your life. Besides, everybody knows you can't take life too seriously, because you won't get out alive.

Q: The other day I was traveling through an uncontrolled intersection but the road I was on appeared to be the main road. I came up on a driver who was on my right and almost hit me. I honked and he honked back. Who has the right of way in this situation?

A: The other driver had the right of way. The rule at any uncontrolled intersection is that the driver on the right has the right-of-way. This rule applies even if you entered the intersection first.

The easiest thing to do that will keep you from being at fault in a crash and

Beverly Rue Wellington

Beverly Rue Wellington, 83, of Twin Falls, passed away Friday, Jan. 8, 2010, after an extended illness.

Beloved by everyone who knew her, Beverly was born Oct. 30, 1926, in Bismarck, N.D., to Milton and Norma Rue. She grew up in Bismarck where she graduated from high school. She attended the University of Wisconsin where she majored in journalism, beginning a lifelong passion for writing. At Wisconsin, she met Bradley J. Hurd, an airman stationed at Truax Air Base.

The couple was married Sept. 16, 1946, in Detroit Lakes, Minn., where the Rue family had a summer home. The couple soon moved to Denver, Colo., where they raised four children. In 1959, the family moved to Longmont, Colo. The couple was divorced in 1964, after which she completed college, graduated from the University of Denver with a degree in education and began a long career as an elementary teacher.

In 1967, she married L.W. Wellington in Breckenridge, Colo. She opened her life and shared her love with his children and the combined families lived several years in Frisco, Colo. They moved to Florida after the death of a son, Stephen Wellington, in 1969.

Always eager for a new adventure, the couple later moved to Red Lodge, Mont., enjoying its small-town, mountain culture. In Red Lodge, she wrote a history of the town's historic buildings as a fundraiser for the local historical society. The book remains in print today, with proceeds supporting historic preservation. She also wrote two family history books that are cherished by everyone who's read them. She was a member of the Kappa Kappa Gamma Sorority and the PEO Sisterhood and volunteered for a variety of organizations.

The couple later lived in Washington and Oregon. After the death of her husband in 2000, she moved to Bend, Ore., to live near her daughter.

In May of 2005, she moved to Twin Falls to live near a son. She was fond of the community and its friendliness and made many friends among the residents and caregivers at the assisted living facility where she lived.

Survivors include her daughter, Christine (Jerry) Barnes of Bend, Ore.; sons, Bradley (Jody) Hurd of Twin Falls, Jeffrey Hurd of U.S. Virgin Islands and Michael (Sheila) Hurd of Missoula, Mont.; two stepdaughters, Lynn (Tom) Osberg of Boston, Mass., and Kim Wellington of Colorado Springs, Colo.; 10 grandchildren; six great-grandchildren; a sister, Mary (Daniel) Dahl of Detroit, Mich.; and numerous nieces and nephews. She was also preceded in death by her brother, Milton Rue Jr.

A service will be held at 2 p.m. Monday, Jan. 18, at St. Edwards Catholic Church in Twin Falls. A reception for family and friends will be held afterward at the home of her son. At a later date, she will be inurned near her husband at Valley Brook Cemetery in Breckenridge, Colo.

Contributions in her memory may be made to the Central Oregon SMART reading program, in care of Reynolds Funeral Chapel in Twin Falls.

Dorothy Mae Gruner Amen of Paul, funeral at 11 a.m. Tuesday at the Hansen-Payne Mortuary, 321 E. Main in Burley; visitation from 6 to 8 p.m. Monday and one hour before the funeral Tuesday at the mortuary.

Willie 'Bill' Albert Davis

Willie "Bill" Albert Davis lost his battle with cancer at the age of 68.

Bill was born in Woodward, Okla., to Leroy Ned and Katie Elois Davis. Bill lost both of his parents and was raised by his uncle and aunt, Jesse and Edna Davis of Kimberly. Bill graduated from Kimberly High School in 1959 and continued his education at the College of Southern Idaho and Kodiak Community College in Alaska. Bill enlisted in the U.S Air Force and was stationed in Istanbul, Turkey. During his tour, he married Margaret Lorraine Roy in a quiet ceremony at the Kimberly Baptist Church. They had one daughter, Kathryn.

After he was discharged from the Air Force, the family returned to Idaho, where he was hired by the Twin Falls Police Department as a patrolman and was soon promoted to detective. In 1971, Bill was among the first law enforcement class to attend the National Training Institute in Washington, D.C., sponsored by the Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs. In 1973, Bill accepted employment with the Kodiak Police Department in Alaska. In 1976, he was hired by Wackenhut Services as a security officer on the trans-Alaska Pipeline. In April of 2009, Bill was recognized for 30 years of service by Doyon Universal Services, a successor of Wackenhut. He was on leave at the time of his death.

Bill delighted in his family and enjoyed travel but his lifelong interest was football, which started back in high school where he served as manager of the Kimberly Bulldogs football team.

He was preceded in death by his parents; and an older brother, Donald Lee Davis. He is survived by his wife, Lorraine; daughter, Kathryn L. Davis and husband Michael P. Tubbs; and grandchildren, Mikaela and Carter Tubbs, all of Anchorage, Alaska; sister, Janice Luker of Filer; nieces, Linda Anthony of Twin Falls and Billie Hoshaw-Davis of Wendell; nephew, Cory Luker of Eden; and many cousins.

A memorial gathering for friends and family will be held in Anchorage in the spring of 2010. The family suggests donations to St. Jude's Children's Research or a favorite charity in lieu of flowers.

Nellie V. 'Babe' Anderson

Nellie Viola "Babe" Anderson, 96, of Twin Falls, Idaho, passed away peacefully at her home.

Nellie was born Dec. 5, 1913, in Vesta, Neb., the daughter and 13th child of George Thomas and Mary (Marsh) Mason. Her mother died in 1921 when Nellie was 8 years old, and she then was assigned the task of the family laundry. She spent hours washing and pressing white shirts, dresses and overalls. Her work ethic was learned at a very early age as she shouldered more and more of the responsibilities of cooking and cleaning. On Aug. 9, 1930, Nellie married Floyd Anderson in Seneca, Kan. To this union were born three children, Betty, Mary and Dan.

In 1934, the family moved to Idaho, and Floyd worked throughout the Magic Valley. During the War in the 1940s, Floyd and Nellie moved their family to California, and Floyd worked in the shipyards. Nellie kept herself busy as a wife and mother.

After World War II, the family returned to Idaho and settled on the Stricker Ranch. Floyd went to farming and Nellie went to the task of feeding the farmhands. During harvest time, she would produce huge pots of chicken and noodles and homemade bread. She was famous for her hand-rolled noodles. Nellie would not care if there were five or 55 people, she would always see that there was food enough to feed them all.

Nellie's father, George, came to live with them in his retirement years; their home was a base for him and he would travel from there to visit with his other children.

Floyd retired from farming in 1975. Nellie and Floyd enjoyed a 30-year retirement in their house on Polk Street in Twin Falls. They traveled extensively in their motor home throughout the mid-and western United States. They also built a cabin in the Stanley Basin of the Sawtooth National Range, where five generations of family enjoyed two decades of summer fun and winter memories.

Nellie loved camping, snowmobiling and especially her "Cabin in the Mountains." She was a gardener and an exceptional cook. No one could make noodles or fry chicken like her. Sunday dinners were an event at her home and, every Sunday, she gathered the family together and everyone ate all of her wonderful homemade goodies. When she wasn't cooking, she was a huge fan of Arctic Circle hamburgers, and had one every Wednesday, and Papa Murphy's pizza. Her favorite pizza was the garlic chicken and she ordered it so often, they took to calling it

"Grandma's Pizza." Nellie was also a big fan of dancing and playing the slots in Jackpot, Nev. She and Floyd would love to travel there and dance and she would play her quarters. She was not at all pleased when they replaced the manual slots with automatic machines that took and dispensed paper. She loved to hear the coins clink into the tray when she won.

Nellie was an exceptional mother and grandmother. Many times she assumed the role of second mother for her grandkids. When they were with her, they were well cared for and had the opportunity to travel to wonderful places and see the world through Grandma's eyes. She was a wonderful woman with a huge heart and she bestowed her love on her family constantly.

Floyd passed away April 16, 2005. Nellie was lonely but continued on to share her families' lives and had many adventures. She was a wonderful daughter, sister, mother, grandmother, great-grandmother, aunt and friend. She will be eternally missed.

Surviving Nellie are her children, Betty (Jim) Prunty, Mary (Don) Norris and Dan (Charlene) Anderson, all of Twin Falls. Also surviving are 10 grandchildren, 23 great-grandchildren, six great-great-grandchildren (and two on the way). Her mother, Mary; father, George; brothers, Charles, Bill, George, Myron, Art, John, Jim and Earl; and sisters, Vira, Lily, Alice and Eva; her husband, Floyd; and infant granddaughter, Connie Jean Jesser; preceded her in death.

The funeral for Nellie will be held at 1 p.m. Wednesday, Jan. 13, at the Parke's Magic Valley Funeral Home, 2551 Kimberly Road in Twin Falls, with Pastor Dale Metzger officiating. Interment will be held following service at Sunset Memorial Park in Twin Falls. Visitation will be held from 6 to 8 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 12, at the funeral home.

In lieu of flowers, the family requests donations be made in her name to Idaho Home Health and Hospice, 826 Eastland Drive, Twin Falls, ID 83301 or Rock Creek Community Church, 262 Fifth Ave. E., Twin Falls, ID 83301.

Probe of 'toughest sheriff' moves forward

By Jacques Billeaud
Associated Press writer

PHOENIX — The self-proclaimed "toughest sheriff in America" and his office are the subject of a federal investigation focused on allegations that they blatantly abused their power, including trying to intimidate county workers by showing up at their homes at nights to ask them about budget items, a county official said.

A grand jury is apparently investigating the allegations leveled by county officials against Maricopa County Sheriff Joe Arpaio, whose aggressive anti-immigration tactics have made him a nationally known law enforcement figure in recent years.

Federal investigators are apparently looking into Arpaio's actions stemming from his anger over budget cuts handed down by county officials. The budget cuts were part of a long-running feud between Arpaio and county leaders.

In one instance, Arpaio is accused of investigating a $340 million project for a new courts building in downtown Phoenix because he thought that the money should instead be spent on plugging holes in his office's budget. In other cases, he sent deputies to workers' homes on nights and weekends.

"Their way of showing their displeasure was to investigate, using the criminal justice process on people who were simply doing their jobs," said County Manager David Smith. He and Deputy County Manager Sandi Wilson have been subpoenaed to appear before a grand jury on Wednesday.

Arpaio said Friday that he isn't aware of a federal grand jury investigating him and his office. "I play by the rules, so I am not going to talk about a grand jury," Arpaio said. "But I will tell you this: I will continue to do my investigations and my job."

Arpaio has clashed with county officials over budget cuts that totaled $17 million this year, along with control over a county computer system that provides access to law-enforcement databases, and access to e-mail records of dozens of county workers.

The feud between Arpaio and county officials appears to have escalated recently since Arpaio stepped up his investigations of county officials. Two county supervisors and one county judge have been criminally charged in investigations by Arpaio and County Attorney Andrew Thomas.

IDAHO Fish and Game helicopter crashes

BOISE — The Idaho Department of Fish and Game says a helicopter carrying two research biologists has crashed on the North Fork of the Clearwater River.

The agency says the biologist and pilot did not suffer life-threatening injuries during the crash around noon Friday. The biologists were in the region putting radio collars on elk, moose and wolves.

The department will suspend all flights until next week to review safety procedures.

State Fish and Game biologists fly about 1,000 hours each year to conduct aerial surveys, wildlife counts and capture wildlife for research.

The agency says it hasn't had an aircraft accident since December 2000, when a wildlife biologist was killed during a helicopter crash.

Man in custody implicated in Boise bank robbery

BOISE — A Boise man already in custody has been implicated by police in a bank robbery that occurred last September.

Boise police say they are accusing Charles S. Coleman of felony robbery.

The Chase Bank branch in Boise was held up on Sept. 30 by a man who handed a teller a note demanding money and fled with an undisclosed amount of cash.

Coleman has been in the Ada County Jail since being arrested last month on suspicion of impersonating a police officer.

UTAH Officials ID body left near Nevada- Utah border

AMERICAN FORK, Utah — A body found near the Nevada-Utah state line has been identified and authorities have arrested someone in connection with the death.

Police told The Salt Lake Tribune on Friday that the victim is 46-year-old Jesus Landin of Lehi. Landin's body was discovered Thursday in Nevada's Pilot Valley area near West Wendover. It was wrapped in plastic and duct tape.

He was reported missing Dec. 31 by a friend.

Elko County Undersheriff Doug Gailey says investigators haven't determined a manner of death. An autopsy was planned for Saturday.

On Friday, American Fork police said they booked another man, Ramon Alfredo Somoza, into jail on suspicion of murder in the case.

A phone number for Somoza couldn't be found and a Utah County jail deputy told The Associated Press she didn't know whether he had a lawyer.

Mormon church buys 13 acres in Salt Lake City

SALT LAKE CITY — The Mormon church has bought about 13 acres of real estate in downtown Salt Lake City.

The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints bought a 10-acre block directly north of the Little America Hotel and another 2- to 3-acre parcel directly north of the Grand America Hotel. The parcels are across from each other on either side of Salt Lake City's Main Street.

The land was owned by The Sinclair Companies, which are controlled by oil magnate and billionaire Earl Holding. Holding also owns both the Little America and Grand America hotels.

Church spokesman Scott Trotter confirmed Thursday that the purchase was made by its Property Reserve Inc. He says the land is a long-term investment and there are no immediate plans for development.

WYOMING Yellowstone reports 190 snowmobiles a day in December

YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK, Wyo. — The National Park Service reports that an average of 190 snowmobiles and 36 snowcoaches operated in the park each day last month.

Yellowstone opened for the winter season on Dec. 15.

Yellowstone is limiting snowmobile traffic to 318 machines a day for this winter season and the next season. That is less than half the number allowed in the past few years.

The state of Wyoming and Park County are challenging the restriction on snowmobile traffic in federal court. They claim the restriction hurts tourism.

U of I ruling on sheep researcher’s ethics isn’t credible

JEERS: The University of Idaho did itself — and embattled veterinary scientist Marie Bulgin — no favors with a legalistic opinion released this week on whether Bulgin violated university ethics standards when she claimed she was unaware of an unpublished 1994 scientific report that showed the transmission of disease from domestic to wild sheep.

Bulgin, director of the university’s Caldwell veterinary center, told a federal court and a legislative committee that there was no evidence wild bighorn sheep die from diseases passed on from domestic sheep.

Curious, because her own daughter worked on research at the facility Marie Bulgin heads that showed just the opposite.

And troubling, because Marie Bulgin is a former president of the Idaho Wool Growers Association, a trade group of sheep producers.

“It was pretty cut and dried,” U of I Vice President for Research Jack McIver said. “It really boils down to was there fabrication of data, which there was not.”

That misses the point.

Marie Bulgin’s actions call into question whether the taxpayer-supported research done at the Caldwell veterinary center is worth the paper it’s printed on — and whether legislators, who depend on that research to set public policy, have been deceived.

Her credibility has been seriously compromised, whether or not she violated the letter of U of I policy. And so has the university’s.

CHEERS: To the Twin Falls City Council, for electing second-term Councilman Don Hall to succeed Lance Clow as Twin Falls’ mayor.

A 48-year-old former cop, firefighter and director of the Boys and Girls Club of the Magic Valley, Hall is a Gooding native and longtime Twin Falls resident with an extensive record of service. He also one of the younger members of the council, which bodes well for involving a new generation of citizens.

Hall is an excellent choice to be the public face of Twin Falls.

JEERS: To the liberal judges of the 9th Circuit Court of Appeals, for another jaw-dropping ruling that’s sure to offend the sensibilities of most of the citizens in the nine states over which they preside.

The San Francisco-based court decided Tuesday that incarcerated felons should be allowed to vote in Washington to ensure that racial minorities are protected under the Voting Rights Act.

That’s right: Murder, rape, assault, sexual abuse of a child — none of them will henceforth stand of the way of a felon’s vote counting just as much as yours does.

By a 2-1 ruling, the court overturned the 2000 ruling of a district judge in Spokane, Wash. That judge had ruled state law did not violate federal law, and dismissed a lawsuit filed by a former prison inmate from Bellevue, Wash.

It’s long past time that Congress did what Idaho Rep. Mike Simpson has long proposed: Break up the 9th Circuit, and allow politically sensible Westerners access to a court system whose values they share.

Pets are essential, but not deductible

If self-interest alone were to guide one’s politics, I’d be writing my congressman to support the HAPPY Act. As would my seven cats, my three dogs, my three rabbits.

Well, I’m not. And I’ve told the pets to put their quills in their ink wells, and slowly walk away.

The HAPPY Act would be a boon to pet owners. So why oppose it? Because it would be one more ridiculous wrinkle in a culture of tax avoidance.

HAPPY — for Humanity and Pets Partnered Through the Years — would allow pet owners to deduct food, vet care and other pet-related expenses from their income taxes — up to $3,500 per year. Cute and cuddly. And so stupid.

U.S. Rep. Thaddeus McCotter, R-Mich., the bill’s author, said it would boost pet ownership and ease strains on animal shelters. That would be nice. Responsible pet ownership is costly.

The fact is, however, that people who let their animals roam and breed are not the types to parse the tax code, or even to itemize. Many pay no income tax.

John Young

and some of America’s wealthiest avoid taxes altogether, legally.

Instead of inventing more ways for us not to pay our taxes, whatever the income, lawmakers should be figuring out ways to pay for all the government we have purchased on our grandchildren’s credit.

Barely noticed as 2009 concluded was Congress’s passage of a bill lifting the national debt ceiling to $300 billion. Among Democrats in the Senate, Colorado’s Mark Udall was a noticeable holdout until the last minute.

His vote was crucial, because Republicans insisted on a super majority of 60 votes. The filibuster they threatened would have left the government without money to pay Social Security checks or pay interest on its debt.

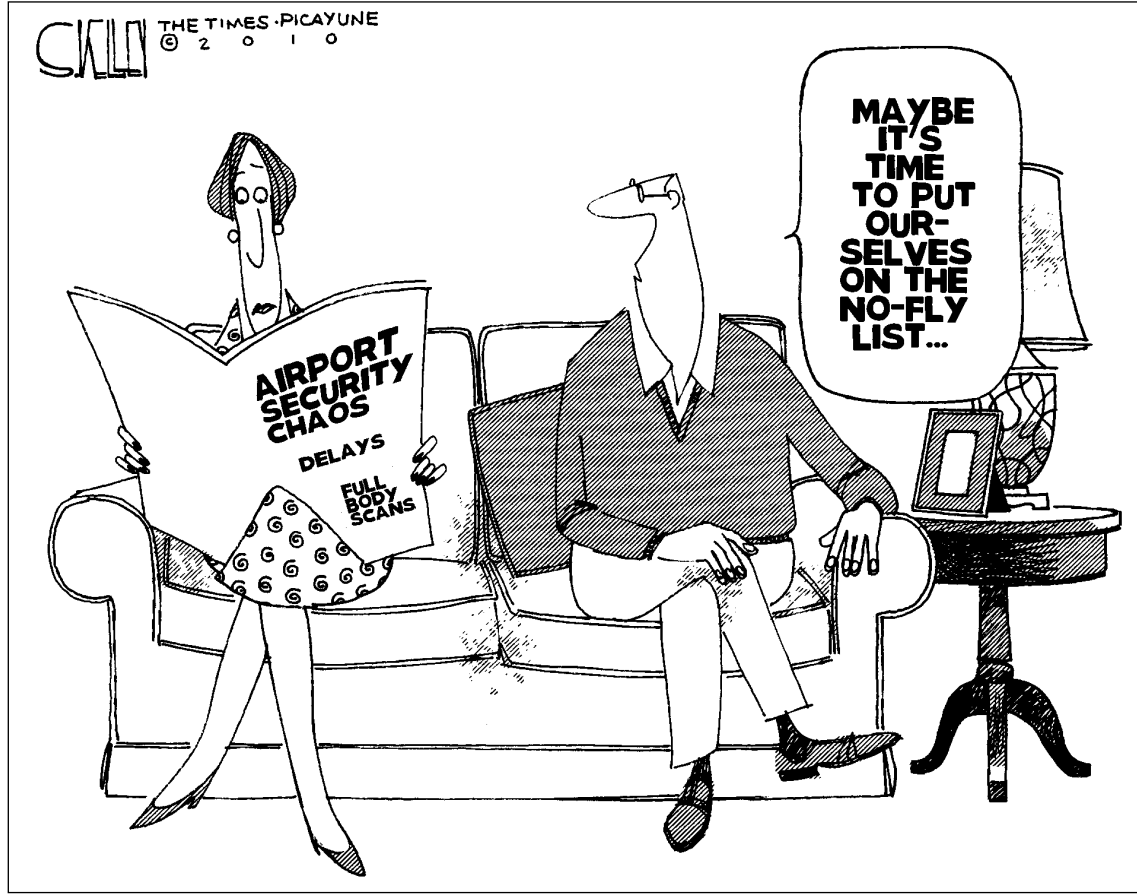

No additional debt. That sounds mighty principled on behalf of leaders of the minority party, except that when in power in the last decade, the same Republicans raised the debt ceiling repeatedly, sometimes with as few as 52 or 53 votes.

Udall bent to the wishes of the Democratic leadership when told that the majority party would hold two votes this month, one creating a commission to examine the debt, and one to offset new spending with program cuts.

Congress should also have a graduated war tax and an incremental energy tax in the mix, because program cuts alone will not get us out of the hole we’ve dug, and everyone knows it.

No, my animals and I will pay our share to do what must be done, pet ownershipwise and taxpayerwise. Fifi, meanwhile, should eat a lower grade of kibble in our grandchildren’s interest.

John Young is a columnist for the Austin, Texas, American-Statesman.

Turning terrorism clues into action

President Obama has ordered intelligence reports to be distributed more rapidly and more widely because the events around Northwest Flight 253 show that “this was a failure to connect and share the intelligence we already had.” Better technology at security checkpoints is a needed and obvious next step after a man got on a Detroit-bound flight with a bomb. Identifying and fixing the failure points are rightly at the top of America’s agenda. We run the danger, however, of letting those important discussions distract us from seeing the far simpler improvements that are available.

The major remaining vulnerability in passenger screening is clearly our ability to detect objects carried on the body. Whole-body imagers are the best option for closing that gap. This is well known, as was the methodology al-Qaida employed with Umar Farouk Abdulmutallab. Some raise privacy objections to these machines, which are not equipped to store images. The passengers being screened are not personally visible or known to the screeners.

A summary report the White House released said that “intentional redundancy” in capabilities of the CIA and the National Counterterrorism Center “should have added an additional layer of protection in uncovering a plot like the failed attack on Dec. 25.” As we learn more about the failures at the CIA and NCTC in this case, we must remember that there are two reformers at the helm of those organizations, Leon Panetta and Mike Leiter, and that lasting change takes time.

The easy way to make such an issue go away, some argued, is to sacrifice someone — in this case, agency director Mark Sullivan. Were that to happen, the very person who is equipped and motivated to dig deep and fix the problem, would be taken out.

Sullivan put together the most innovative and effective security system for the most complex election and inauguration in our country’s history. He is also a progressive leader, bringing diversity and new energy to the Secret Service’s vital mission.

We need to identify the Sullivans, Panettas and Leiters, lock them into long-term commitments and give them unflinching support as they battle on our behalf. The FBI sets a good example on this score. It is not immune to systemic failure, and Director Bob Mueller has used every minute of his tenure to drive needed culture and technological change. He probably needs 10 more years. So, we must fight the instinct to seize upon a scapegoat.

On watch lists, the path is clear. The mechanics of the system already work well: Based on new intelligence, a person can be added, and thus banned from flying, within minutes. It would not be hard to broaden the definitions of the two watch-list designations that affect aviation security (“no-fly” and “selectee”). But two critical additional components must not be overlooked: The TSA’s nascent Secure Flight program, which will take limited passenger data from the airlines, will address most concerns about innocent passengers being wrongly listed because their names are similar to those of suspects. Secure Flight’s timetable needs to be accelerated before the watch lists are broadened.

We must also make the watch lists multinational. Our current blunt instrument, giving extra screening for those with certain passports, is not useful in the long term. Al-Qaida has hundreds of Western operatives with clean records and passports, so we should be more precise with extra-screening criteria.

In my experience, the counterterrorism community does a brilliant job of getting and sharing the dots. The challenge is knowing when to act on them. As threat information comes in, those with operational responsibility consider actions to disrupt a potential threat. All too often, the qualifiers in the reporting — words such as “non-credible,” “not imminent,” “non-viable” — give a false sense that it is too soon to act. In those cases, prudent analytical caution can stay the hand of a preemptive move until the only options are reactive.

I am often asked why we can’t have an aviation security system more like Israel’s. We can and we should. But the key ingredient of Israeli security is not that their technology or staffers are better — they are not. It is willpower. Israelis as a nation have coalesced around the fact that they are in a deadly generational conflict that extends to their everyday activities, such as traveling.

The United States must come together and recognize that this battlefield is not someplace far away, battles fought by somebody else. We are all involved and at risk.

Terror groups challenge U.S.

New mini-fronts could stretch U.S. resources even more

WASHINGTON (AP) — From Detroit to Afghanistan, scattered terrorists inspired and equipped by al-Qaida have attacked recently with surprising speed and world-wide reach, challenging the U.S. strategy of slowly and deliberately targeting the terror group's top leaders.

Counterterror officials and other experts say the botched Christmas Day airliner bombing and the Dec. 30 assault at a CIA base in Afghanistan demonstrate that al-Qaida and its supporters can react quickly when opportunities arise.

The new attacks, plotted by local militants as opposed to al-Qaida's core group, also warn of the possibility of new mini-fronts in the war on terrorism that could stretch American resources even more thinly across the globe. They come as U.S. forces are focusing on the Taliban in Afghanistan and al-Qaida in Pakistan.

Al-Qaida's adaptability contrasts with the comparatively plodding pace of the U.S. military buildup in Afghanistan, which will take almost a full year. As the U.S. moves in, the terror group moves on.

The recent attacks, "are not necessarily evidence of a resurgent or more sophisticated al-Qaida, but of them taking advantage of targets of opportunity as they present themselves," said Matthew Levitt, a counterterrorism and intelligence expert at the Washington Institute for Near East Studies.

The airliner attack in Detroit appears to have been fermenting only since October, and the suicide bombing at the CIA base also appears to have been put together relatively quickly — over a matter of months in contrast to the yearslong al-Qaida planning that went into the 9/11 attacks.

While the Pakistan-based hard core of al-Qaida has been degraded by missile strikes and other covert action since the 2001 attacks, the group is still adept at spreading propaganda and attracting new recruits.

Over the past year, Al-Qaida-linked groups in Yemen, Somalia and North Africa, spurred on by similar extremist views, have expanded beyond their

Christmas terror suspect pleads not guilty

DETROIT (AP) — A Nigerian man accused of trying to ignite an explosive on a Detroit-bound U.S. airliner on Christmas appeared before a judge for the first time Friday, against a backdrop of protesters who stood outside the courthouse waving American flags and denouncing acts of terror.

Umar Farouk Abdulmutallab's arraignment was brief — less than five minutes — and a not guilty plea was entered on his behalf. He said little, telling the judge simply that he understood the charges against him.

At least one passenger from Northwest Airlines flight 253 watched the hearing from the court benches. Hebbba Aref, a Detroit area native who sat six rows in front of Abdulmutallab on the plane, said she came because the attack "changed my life."

Aref, who drew international attention in 2008 after being refused a seat directly behind then-presidential candidate Barack Obama at a Detroit rally because she was wearing a headscarf, said she just wanted to see Abdulmutallab again.

She said she wants him to be "tried by the system" but also is concerned about what his case could mean.

It's the "whole ideology out there that's radical and misuses a beautiful religion," she said. "That's what needs to be dealt with and deterred. ... He's just a small part of it."

Abdulmutallab

regional turf wars to threaten regional governments. Now they threaten broader assaults against the West.

"Though al-Qaida as an organization remains on the ropes, with leadership, finances, and legitimacy diminished and under constant pressure, the focus and attempt by one of its regional affiliates to attack the United States directly is a dangerous development," said Juan Zarate, a senior counterterrorism official in the Bush administration who is now senior adviser at the Center for Strategic and International Studies.

He said the new attacks put "a premium on containing if not destroying (al-Qaida) outposts in Yemen, Somalia, and North Africa." Zarate added that the incidents also show al-Qaida's intent to strengthen its global reach, and that the direction from core al-Qaida leaders remains targeting the United States.

NBC considers change in Leno show

LOS ANGELES (AP) — NBC has instantly created TV's hottest drama, a storyline with ego, pride and millions of dollars at stake: how to fix the problem it created by moving Jay Leno to prime time.

Faced with poor ratings for both "The Jay Leno Show" and Conan O'Brien's "Tonight Show," the network is said to be considering returning Leno to his 11:35 p.m. EST slot and moving "Tonight" to midnight — a change that NBC's hard-hit affiliate stations would eagerly welcome.

Many stations have complained that the ratings for their 11 p.m. newscasts have plummeted because Leno's 10 p.m. show is such a weak lead-in.

"I think Jay Leno's a great performer. He's just at the wrong place at the wrong time. There's nothing wrong with making mistakes. There is something wrong with not correcting them," said Bob Prather, president and chief operating officer at Atlanta-based Gray Television Inc., whose station group includes 10 NBC affiliates.

Lisa Howfield, general manager of NBC affiliate KVBC in Las Vegas, said: "I'm excited to have Jay land back in late night. It sounds like a great lineup."

Whether Leno accepts a truncated, half-hour version of his prime-time comedy and talk show remains to be seen, as does O'Brien's response to getting less than a year to prove himself as host of "Tonight."

O'Brien is averaging 2.5 million nightly viewers, compared with 4.2 for Letterman's "Late Show," according to Nielsen figures. And the younger audience that O'Brien was expected to woo has been largely unimpressed, with O'Brien and Letterman's shows tying among advertiser-favored viewers ages 18 to 49.

NBC's contract with O'Brien reportedly allows the network to move "Tonight" to 12:05 a.m. EST but no later, at the risk of substantial financial penalties. With a two-year contract said to be valued at about $28 million per year, O'Brien would have to think hard about walking away.

Any change would probably not take effect until March, after the Winter Olympics on NBC.

Obama refocuses on jobs after labor report

WASHINGTON (AP) — His agenda altered by the Christmas bombing attempt, President Obama pivoted back to the domestic economy on Friday, promoting new U.S. spending to create tens of thousands of clean-technology jobs.

He outlined the initiative after a weak government jobs report raised new questions about the sustainability of the recovery.

"It's clear why such an effort is so important. Building a robust clean energy sector is how we will create the jobs of the future, jobs that pay well and can't be outsourced," Obama said in late-afternoon economic comments at the White House.

President Obama speaks to reporters about green jobs and manufacturing, Friday in the White House.

Obama spoke after the Labor Department said the U.S. jobless rate was unchanged at 10 percent in December, following a decline the previous month. But the government's

"The road to recovery is never straight," Obama said, although he added that the trend is pointing toward an improving jobs picture.

Riveted for the past two weeks on terrorism, the White House has been eager for a subject change. And Friday's remarks were an attempt to return national attention to Obama's domestic agenda, particularly jobs.

As long as the focus remains on terrorism, Obama is vulnerable to criticism that he isn't aggressively addressing the jobs crisis — potentially damaging politically for Democrats in this year's midterm elections. Polls show that jobs are the No. 1 concern of Americans.

CALIFORNIA Indictment of Jackson doc may be close

LOS ANGELES — Nearly seven months after Michael Jackson's death stunned the world, the official investigation of his death is edging toward conclusion with prosecutors prepared to seek an indictment of Jackson's doctor on a charge of involuntary manslaughter, The Associated Press has learned.

The fate of Dr. Conrad Murray has been the subject of speculation since he found Jackson unconscious in his home in Los Angeles last June. Jackson was preparing for a strenuous concert comeback in London, and Murray, a cardiologist, had been hired as his personal physician for the tour.

A law enforcement source who spoke on condition of anonymity because the investigation remains open said Friday that Murray would be prosecuted on a theory of gross negligence alleging that his treatment of Jackson was an extreme departure from the standard of care normally followed by physicians.

Doctor gets prison for road rage

LOS ANGELES — A former emergency room doctor who deliberately braked so that two bicyclists rammed into his car in a road rage incident was sentenced Friday to five years in state prison.

Christopher Thomas Thompson, 60, was sentenced in Los Angeles County Superior Court.

Thompson, who worked at Beverly Hospital in Montebello, has been jailed since he was convicted in November of assault with a deadly weapon, battery with serious bodily injury, reckless driving and mayhem.

Biden's 92-year-old mother dies

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Joe Biden's 92-year-old mother has died after becoming seriously ill in recent days.

In a statement, the vice president says Jean Finnegan Biden died Friday in Wilmington, Del., surrounded by her family and loved ones.

Biden says his mother was the center of the family, teaching them that faith will guide them through tough times.

Biden left Washington Thursday to be with his mother in his Wilmington, his hometown. The vice president's office says details on services will be announced in the coming days.

Victory through Christ

T.F. church helps people break addictions

By Blair Koch
Times-News correspondent

After morning church services and prayer, Victory House residents file out of the sanctuary and into the hallway. Some of the residents quickly glance to a simple message of trust scribbled onto a dog-eared piece of loose-leaf notebook paper and taped to a message board.

It serves as a reminder to the dozen or so residents at the Twin Falls facility, who share a common bond of past failures, run-ins with the law and struggles with drugs and alcohol.

Many have tried to shed addictions through more secular-based treatments, such as counseling or Alcoholics Anonymous.

The approach at Victory House, operated by Because of Jesus Ministries, is simple: turn to Jesus Christ and let His words transform you.

"It's isn't another program. We've all tried 'programs,'" said Pastor Tony Lopez. "This is different because it is all Bible based. It is God's word, that is what changes an addict. It is only He who can transform."

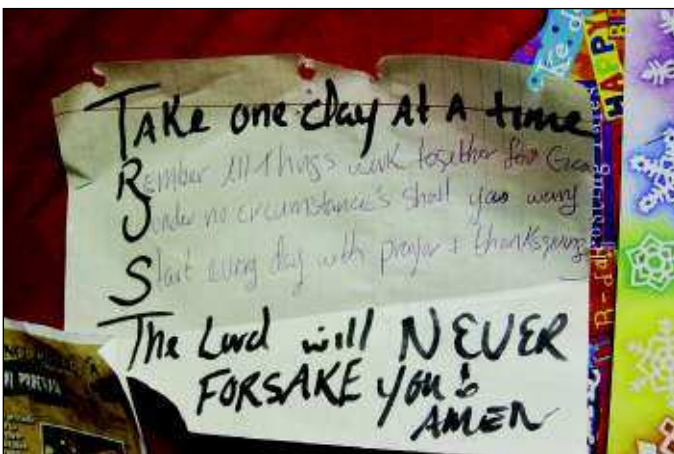

Each morning residents take classes. Instead of talking about how everyone became addicted, the class sounds a lot like a beginner's Bible study.

"Everyone has done wrong. No one, even everyone sitting here today, is different. We must come to understand that we are not the misfits, the outcasts, because everyone has fallen

Tony Lopez knows what it's like to fight addiction. He also knows that turning his life over to Christ has helped him overcome his addictions. Now Lopez is helping others at Victory House in Twin Falls, where he serves as pastor.

A dog-eared piece of loose-leaf notebook paper reminds residents of Victory House to let God work in their lives. The Twin Falls facility has helped addicts since it opened in the area eight months ago.

short and hurt God's heart," Lopez tells his class.

He discusses sin and fighting temptation, the devil, and rising victorious over spiritual battles.

"You can start again, start over and not make those bad choices again," Lopez said.

He should know.

Not long ago he was completing a seven-year prison sentence, the culmination of years of bad choices and dealing with hurt.

He recalls growing up between Southern California and Texas. His mother was a heroin-addicted prostitute who traversed the Western path to run from troubles, while Lopez was often left to roam the street alone. Because his mother would trade food stamps for a few hits, Lopez took to rummaging garbage cans.

"Sometimes I'd find good stuff, pairs of socks and heads of lettuce," he said. "I'd take it home, clean it up, and share it."

While his father wasn't in the picture, Lopez, like most young boys, yearned for his dad. It wasn't until he was 7 that he finally met his father.

"I was behind a store in the Dumpster and I hear this 'beep, beep, beep' of the garbage truck. So I scrambled out and over the top," Lopez said. "The only thing I knew about my father was his name and that he worked for a garbage company."

The driver was his father, who gave him $20 and promised to return.

"I wanted to go live with him so badly that I came to that Dumpster and waited for weeks," he said. "Finally, weeks later, he arrived. I was so excited, but the moment he got out of the truck I knew what the answer would be; it was written on his face."

Broken hearted, young Lopez fled the back alley on foot. It was that day he first spotted a neighborhood Victory House.

He visited the House regularly and even lived there for awhile, but he was restless and often underfoot and soon became a ward of the state.

In an act of desperation young Lopez tried to set a foster family's home on fire.

"I ended up in juvenile hall," he said.

Lopez would be in and out of detention and jail throughout

Jerome monastery elects new prior

By Andrew Weeks
Times-News writer

Despite what some people might think, being a Catholic monk is a busy life.

It just got busier for Kenneth Hein, a Benedictine priest who was recently elected prior of the Monastery of the Ascension in Jerome.

Hein, 71, was elected by members of the monastery on Nov. 9. He replaces Boniface Lautz, who stepped down from the post after 21 years.

"I have some pretty big shoes to fill," Hein told the Times-News.

As prior, Hein said he will work closely with the public because the monastery plays host to a variety of work groups and retreats. His main goal — in business terms, he said, being prior is like being a CEO — will be trying to bring new monks to the monastery.

"The main thing is to keep younger men coming in, as the older ones fade out," he said.

Those considered for monastery life usually have at least two years of college and are in good health, he said. It's at least eight years before a monk is ordained a priest — if, he said, they become a priest at all.

"But they (the non-priests) are certainly important too," Hein said, noting the relevant work each monk performs at the monastery.

Hein, born in Longmont, Colo., joined the Roman Catholic's Benedictine community in 1960. He studied philosophy at the College of St. Benedict in Atchison, Kan., and later theology at the Collegio di Sant' Anselmo in Rome. He earned a doctorate at the University of Tubingen in Germany, where his thesis director was Joseph Ratzinger, now Pope Benedict XVI.

Though he once knew him personally, Hein said he hasn't tried contacting the Pope.

During the course of his studies, Hein learned to speak Latin, Italian, German and Spanish. He also has translated the Hebrew Psalms into English, supplementing them with commentary of his own — a work that began in 1978 and has gone through at least five revisions, he said. He hopes to find a publisher for his book, but if he doesn't, he won't be too disappointed.

"I've learned a lot," Hein said. "Our prayer life is from the Psalms. It (the study and translation process) has been a great inspiration for my own prayer life."

Hein said he came to Jerome in 2002 because he wanted to live someplace in the West near his native Colorado.

"This is definitely West," he said of south-central Idaho. "I like my peers a lot, and I like the area a lot."

"The main thing is to keep younger men coming in, as the older ones fade out."

Restored 203-year-old Bible reflects history

By Gordon Cotton
Vicksburg Post

VICKSBURG, Miss. — If you look at the covers, there's a lot of difference in Rose Marie Steen's Bibles.

One Bible is small, easily carried in her hand. It's about a year old.

The other is 4 inches thick with a format of 17 by 11 inches, not one you would likely take to Sunday worship services. It's 203 years old.

Both Bibles are the King James translation.

The new Bible was a gift, and so was the old one. It belonged to Rose Marie's great-grandmother, Elizabeth Hyland Jones, who gave it to her daughter, Nancy Morrow Welles Wright — Rose Marie's grandmother — who gave it to her.

Recently Rose Marie and her husband, Leo, had the Bible rebound at Norris Bookbinding Co. in Greenwood. The pages were worn and some torn, but they were not replaced. The Bible was restored, all the original parts preserved, including the covers and end sheets. All preservation material was acid free.

Though most of the pages were in very good condition and easily readable because the Bible was printed on high rag content paper, the volume was coming apart and had to be restitched. Restoration was a slow process, as everything was done by hand. The cost, along with another family Bible, was $1,500.

It was worth the price, Rose Marie said, for both Bibles were rare, especially the largest one.

The Norris Co. officials told her it would be impossible to affix a value to it because it is so very rare. It was printed in New York by Sage and Clough in April 1806. It was compiled by a minister, John Brown.

Brown called it a "Self Interpreting" Bible, for he wrote a commentary to go along with the text. He loved the Scriptures, and he wanted all to be able to read and understand, and the Scriptures to be self-explanatory.

Born in Scotland, Brown was orphaned when very young and was taken in by an old shepherd who taught the boy to tend the flock. While watching the sheep, Brown taught himself four languages. He was just a youth when he began preaching, and he eventually became president of the University of Scotland.

Like most Bibles, there's a section for recording family history. Often such pages are printed with fancy engravings, but in this case they are blank — just plain paper on which the owner could write important events such as marriages, births and deaths.

It was from those pages that a tombstone mystery was solved a few years ago. At Old Hopewell Cemetery at Warrenton, a tall monument is dedicated to the memory of the original owner, who died in 1854; the name on the marker is inscribed "Elizabeth Alias Jones." What an unusual middle name. Researchers wondered if it could it be a misspelling of Alice.

It was explained on the pages of the Bible. Elizabeth Hyland had married John G. Jones, a clerk of Superior and County Court for Warren County who was born in Saxony in 1777.

In the Bible, Elizabeth was listed as "Elizabeth Alias Hyland Jones" — in other words, she had been a Hyland before she married Jones.

Whoever copied the material for the stonecutter either didn't understand the meaning of "alias" or the stonecutter didn't have room for the whole name.

The other old Bible

Rose Marie had restored is not as large in format, but is still too bulky to take to Sunday school. It was printed in 1852 in Philadelphia by Lippincott, Grambo and Co. and measured 10 by 10 by 4 inches. It belonged to Rose Marie's other great-grandparents, John B. and Cynthia Welles Wright, given to them by Mrs. Wright's mother, who lived in the Bethesda community between Edwards and Utica. She gave them the Bible in the 1850s. John B. Wright, who was a Confederate soldier, was a charter member and the first deacon of Ykena Presbyterian Church.

Rose Marie, who was a Templeton before she and Leo married, lives only a few miles from where she was born 80 years ago in a house that had once been Bogue de Sha Baptist Church.

She began school in Claiborne County, but after an illness the family moved back to Warren County. So, she enrolled in the first grade at Jefferson Davis Academy, staying there until in her high school years she transferred to Jett.

She taught Sunday school for about 25 years and is a member of the Church of Christ on Interstate 20.

The family notes in the Bible are not extensive, she said, but they might fill in some gaps in research — and she has told her kin they're welcome to the information.

One of her goals this year is to read the Bible all the way through. She's almost there, she said.

What will become of the old Bibles? They've been handed down in the family through the female lines, and Rose Marie will continue that tradition. She plans to pass them on to her daughter, Gail Kavanaugh.

A simple, singular act of human decency

It was an easy thing to do, really. Oh, sure — there was a certain amount of risk involved. And it did represent a significant deviation from standard operating procedure. But when it came right down to it, it was a simple, singular act of human decency that made a sweet difference in the lives of one family in crisis.

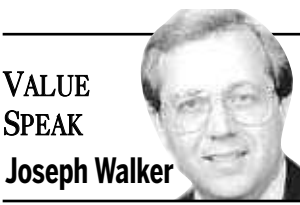

You see, Sharon is engaged to be married. Her sweetheart is a terrific young man, and her parents have every confidence the young couple will be happy together. This is all good. The crisis comes in the timing. Sharon's mother, Janice, is dying. She has waged a valiant battle against cancer, but — as happens all too often, I'm afraid — cancer is going to win, probably in the next few days.

At first there was some discussion about hurrying up the wedding plans so that Janice could participate in the big event. But Janice wouldn't hear of it.

"This isn't about me," she said. "This is about a new

VALUE SPEAK

Joseph Walker

family. And I want them to get started on the right foot. I don't want them rushing things on my account. One way or another, I'll be there."

Strengthened by her mother's faith and courage, Sharon plunged headlong into her wedding plans. Of course, her father, Dean, has helped where he could. But let's face it: there's a limit to what dads can do when it comes to preparing a daughter for marriage. As the father of 2.25 brides (long story), it didn't take long to figure out that there were times during the process when I just needed to shut up and sign the check.

Dean has figured that out, too. Thankfully there have been good friends and family members who have been there for Sharon when she needed it. But for the most part, she has tried to share as much as she could with her mother, and to seek her advice and input whenever possible.

Like her wedding dress, for example. Sharon was anxious for her mom to help her choose her wedding dress, and to be able to see her wearing it. She knew that would be a meaningful moment for both of them. But when the time came to try on dresses, Janice wasn't physically up to it. So Sharon went alone. She found several dresses that she really liked, but she just couldn't make a decision. She wanted to have her mother's input, and she intuitively understood that her mother needed to be part of the wedding plans in any way possible.

Sharon explained the circumstances to the sales clerk who was helping her. She asked the unthinkable: "Could I take a few dresses home to try on for my mother?"

The clerk was well-versed in store policy that prohibited such a thing. Dresses could be tried on in the store, but until they were actually purchased they could not leave the premises. Still, the clerk was moved by Sharon's request.

"I'm a cancer survivor," she said. "I think I have an idea what you and your mom are feeling right now."

Against company policy, the clerk allowed Sharon to take several dresses home to try on for her mom. As you might expect, Janice was thrilled to be able to see her daughter dressed in a beautiful white gown, and to participate in that important decision for a wedding she knew she would never attend — at least, not physically. And when Sharon exchanges vows while wearing that dress later this year, she will remember shared smiles and tears when she modeled it for her mother — a once-in-a-lifetime memory made possible by a simple, singular act of human decency.

Standard operating procedure notwithstanding.

his life, until being released nearly five years ago.

"It was the Victory House in San Antonio, Texas, my giving up and turning to God that saved my life," he said.

Having delivered drugs from California to the Magic Valley in his younger days, Lopez felt like he needed to right the wrong.

"Today I'm doing that," he said.

Lopez counts the lives already turned around by Victory House's eight-months existence in the area.

Roy Araiza, 21, is among those who've been helped.

Since he was 15, Araiza struggled with meth until drugs and violence landed him in jail. Since his release last spring, Araiza has called Victory House his home.

Today, he's preparing to reach to others in need.

"It's been on my heart to pastor a church. I know that it's from God," he said.

The church is still looking for properties in the Jerome area, and like their church on Third Avenue West, they have faith God will provide.

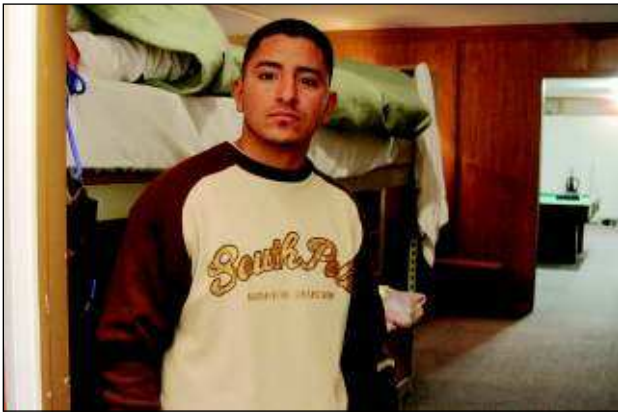

"It will happen," Araiza said.

In the meantime, others in recovery have a ways to go, like 24-year-old Yvette Flores.

She wound up in the home after trying to commit suicide nearly three months ago. It was a call for help after nearly a decade of drinking that led to alcoholism and dabbling in other illicit drugs.

"At first, I thought coming here would be a way to do my time," Flores said. "The state was going to commit me for at least a year in psychiatric care or I could come here. I thought, well, do I want to go to the looney bin or a church-like place?"

Flores didn't grow up in a religious house and was skeptical. She didn't even

Economy shed 85,000 jobs in December

Report suggests a year of high unemployment ahead

By Jeannine Aversa and Christopher S. Rugaber
Associated Press writers

WASHINGTON — Brace for a year of stubbornly high unemployment. Grippled by uncertainty over the economic recovery, employers chopped 85,000 jobs last month, and difficulty finding work helped chase more than half a million people out of the job market. The unemployment rate held steady at 10 percent. It did not creep higher only because so many people stopped looking for work and are technically not counted as unemployed. But the jobless rate is likely to rise in coming months as more people see signs of an improving economy and start looking for work again. Some economists think it could near 11 percent, which would be the highest since World War II, by June. The Labor Department's monthly jobs report suggested employers will

IDAHO'S UNEMPLOYED POOL CLIMBS TO 69,000

BOISE (AP) — The state Department of Labor estimates 4,400 workers in Idaho lost jobs last month, bringing the jobless total to a record 69,000 as wary employers held hiring. The agency says Idaho's unemployment rate ticked up slightly to 9.2 percent in December, the highest it's been since the early 1980s when the jobless rate climbed to 9.4 percent. Analysts expect Idaho's unemployment rate to edge up slightly in 2010 before leveling off and dropping between 8 percent and 9 percent toward the middle of the year.

KINDLING A BOOM

Amazon's e-reader success has led to variety of options

By Rachel Metz
Associated Press writer

LAS VEGAS — When most people think of electronic book readers, Amazon's thin, white Kindle probably springs to mind. But that could be about to change.

A cascade of e-readers will hit the market this year, taking the devices far beyond gray-scale screens with features like touch navigation and video chatting — and probably lowering prices, too.

It's happening as other gadgets, such as mobile phones and tablet computers, give people even more choices for diving into their favorite books. Perhaps the only downside is worrying you might buy an e-reader from a company that won't stick around. This week, nearly two dozen companies that make the devices or deliver reading material to them are showing products at the International Consumer Electronics Show, the first time it has devoted a section to e-books. In a good sign for the mainstream status e-book companies hope to achieve, they are clustered at a prime location in the Las Vegas

Convention Center often taken over by the likes of Microsoft Corp. And Amazon isn't even at the exhibition. E-books make up a tiny portion of book sales, but their popularity is growing rapidly. According to the Consumer Electronics Association, which organizes the trade show, 2.2 million e-readers were shipped to stores in 2009, nearly four times as many as the year before. This year, the group expects 5 million will be shipped. "It's an incredible growth category," said Jason Oxman, senior vice president of the electronics association. E-readers from Sony and other companies were around before Amazon released the Kindle in 2007, but the Kindle was the first to offer wireless downloading of books, making impulse buys easier. Since the Kindle debuted at $399, Amazon has lowered the price to $259 and lured buyers with inexpensive material, such as new releases of books for about $10 each. On Christmas Day, Amazon sold more e-books than physical copies for the first time. To keep up, Barnes & Noble has come out with its $259 Nook, and Sony Corp. has stayed in the game with its Readers, with an entry-level model at $200. Each offers hundreds of thousands of titles, with relatively few exclusives — publishers have shown little interest in favoring one device over another. Now other companies are getting in the game. Interead Ltd. sells a $249 device called the COOL-ER and has two new models at the trade show: a smaller, lighter version called the Compact and a touch-screen model called the Connect that can download books from Interead's online store if the user is in a Wi-Fi hot spot. Interead plans to launch both in the first quarter. It also plans to roll out a model with access to a "3G" cellular network, for use outside Wi-Fi locations, by summer. EnTourage Systems Inc. is showing off a $490 e-reader at the trade show that has two screens — a 10.1-inch color touch-screen on the right and a 9.7-inch black-and-white display on the left. That screen is controlled with a stylus. Like the Nook, enTourage's device, called the eDGe, will run Google Inc.'s Android operating software, so you can use the color screen to browse the Web and watch videos. There will even be a small camera for video chats. Customers will be able to buy books from enTourage's e-store over Wi-Fi, and the company expects to release a version with service through a wireless carrier. The eDGe is expected to ship to customers in February. The price is twice what the smaller version of the Kindle costs.

"It's an incredible growth category."

Wholesale inventories, sales post strong November gains

By Martin Crutsinger
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — Inventories held by wholesalers posted strong gains in November as sales shot up by the largest amount in 10 months — two signs that the economic recovery was gaining traction in the fall. The Commerce Department said Friday that wholesale inventories rose 1.5 percent in November, a much stronger showing than the 0.2 percent drop that economists expected. Sales jumped 3.3 percent, far better than the 0.9 percent rise that had been forecast. It marked the eighth consecutive month that sales at the wholesale level have increased and was the largest gain since last January. Economists hope that sustained sales increases will encourage businesses to restock depleted shelves which will in turn mean higher orders to factories. That would provide support to plants struggling to emerge from a deep recession. Commerce also reported, in another positive economic sign, that wholesale inventories increased by 0.6 percent in October, double the estimate the government made a month ago. That increase marked the

China overtakes Germany as world's top exporter

By Jennifer M. Freedman and Jana Randow
Bloomberg News writers

China overtook Germany as the world's top exporter last year, data compiled by Global Trade Information Services Inc. show. China shipped products worth $958 billion in the first 10 months of 2009, while Germany sold goods worth $918 billion to customers abroad, according to an Internet database operated by Columbia, S.C.-based GTI. Exports from China exceeded German shipments every month since April last year, data show. China has already slipped past Germany to become the world's third-largest economy and is forecast to overtake Japan this year, assuming the No. 2 spot behind the United States. Exports have driven a 15-fold increase in China's economy to more than $3.8 trillion since the nation opened its doors to foreign trade and investment in 1978. Chinese exporters weathered the worst global recession since World War II better than their German counterparts, GTI's figures suggest. Exports from China fell 20 percent in the first 10 months of 2009, according to the GTI database, while shipments from Germany tumbled more than 27 percent. Emerging economies performed better than developed nations in 2009 and that trend may continue this year, with gross domestic product in China

Best Buy posts sales gains in December

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Best Buy Co., which operates a store in Twin Falls, saw sharply higher sales in December as consumers bought notebook computers, TVs and mobile phones ahead of the holidays. But the electronics retailer left its earnings guidance for the year unchanged, and shares fell $1.09, or 2.6 percent, to $40.45 early Friday. Sales in stores rose 8.2 percent, compared with a 6.5 percent drop a year ago.

That includes a 9.3 percent rise domestically and a 3.5 percent increase internationally. Total sales rose 13 percent to $8.5 billion. Consumer electronics and appliance sales were strong, but movies and music were weaker. The Minneapolis company said it still expects to earn $3.00 to $3.15 per share this fiscal year, excluding one-time items. Analysts expect a profit of $3.10 per share. Analyst estimates typically exclude one-time items.

UPS cutting 1,800 jobs in U.S., raising outlook
ATLANTA — UPS said Friday it will cut 1,800 management and administrative positions to streamline its U.S. small package segment. About 1,100 employees will be offered a voluntary separation package as part of the work force reduction, UPS said. UPS Inc., based in Atlanta, raised its fourth-quarter earnings prediction, saying it now expects to earn 73 to 75 cents per share. UPS had previously predicted earnings of 58 to 65 cents per share. UPS will report fourth-quarter earnings on Feb. 2. The company's chief rival, FedEx, reported fiscal second-quarter earnings last month down 30 percent from a year earlier. FedEx, based in Memphis, Tennessee, said the economy has "reached a turning point," but a full recovery could still be a long way off. UPS shares rose $2.92, or 5.1 percent, to $60.33 in trading. FedEx shares added 67 cents at $83.65.

A United Parcel Service package is shown in Palo Alto, Calif. UPS said it will cut 1,800 management and administrative positions to streamline its U.S. package segment.

FEATURED AGENTS!

Today is Saturday, Jan. 9, the ninth day of 2010. There are 356 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:
On Jan. 9, 1960, on his 47th birthday, Vice President Richard Nixon became a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:
In 1788, Connecticut became the fifth state to ratify the U.S. Constitution.
In 1793, Frenchman Jean Pierre Blanchard, using a hot-air balloon, flew between Philadelphia and Woodbury, N.J.
In 1861, Mississippi seceded from the Union.
In 1913, Richard Milhous Nixon, the 37th president of the United States, was born in Yorba Linda, Calif.
In 1945, during World War II, American forces began landing at Lingayen Gulf in the Philippines.
In 1964, anti-U.S. rioting broke out in the Panama Canal Zone, resulting in the deaths of 21 Panamanians and several U.S. soldiers.

In 1968, the Surveyor 7 space probe made a soft landing on the moon, marking the end of the American series of unmanned explorations of the lunar surface.
In 1972, reclusive billionaire Howard Hughes, speaking by telephone from the Bahamas to reporters in Hollywood, said a purported autobiography of him by Clifford Irving was a fake.
In 1995, in New York, the trial of Sheik Omar Abdel-Rahman and 11 other defendants accused of conspiring to wage holy war against the United States began. (All the defendants were convicted of seditious conspiracy, except for two who reached plea agreements with the government.)
In 1997, a Comair commuter plane crashed 18 miles short of the Detroit Metropolitan Airport, killing all 29 people on board.

Ten years ago: The controversial "Sensation" art exhibit ended its three-month run at the Brooklyn Museum, which had gotten into a fight with New York City Mayor Rudolph Giuliani over what the mayor called the exhibit's offensive anti-Catholic content.
Five years ago: Mahmoud Abbas, the No. 2 man in the Palestinian hierarchy during Yasser Arafat's rule, was elected president of the Palestinian Authority by a landslide. Sudan's vice president (Ali Osman Mohammed Taha) and the country's main rebel leader (John Garang) signed a comprehensive peace agreement, concluding an eight-year process to stop a civil war in the south.

One year ago: The Illinois House voted 114-1 to impeach Gov. Rod Blagojevich, who defiantly insisted again that he had committed no crime. (The Illinois Senate unanimously voted to remove Blagojevich from office 20 days later.) President-elect Barack Obama announced he had picked retired Adm. Dennis Blair to be the national intelligence director and Leon Panetta to head the CIA. A Saudi supertanker, the Sirius Star, and its crew of 25 were released at the end of a two-month standoff in the Gulf of Aden after pirates were reportedly paid $3 million in ransom. (Five pirates were said to have drowned with their share of the money when their boat overturned.)

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Conceptis Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.

IF JANUARY 9 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: During the next four weeks you could be overly dramatic and romantic and ignore some harsh realities. Because you are gullible or easily misled this is not the best time to begin anything of importance.
March is a good time for a vacation or glamorous weekend built for two. May is the best time to put important plans into motion, make commitments, or to launch anything that might improve your career status or job situation. You will find that only those who are good for you will be at your beck and call and anyone you have doubted will show their true colors, once and for all.

HOROSCOPE

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Some dreams are meant for the hours of sleep, not while wide awake. Don't concentrate solely on your emotional life.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Remember to keep in touch with all your friends.
Maintain the lines of communications and don't neglect buddies.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Take it with a grain of salt. A phone call might ferret out the answer to a key question, but could leave you more confused than ever.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Get advice from someone wiser and more experienced. Expert guidance can prevent mistakes and make it easier to wait for better timing.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22):
Maintain your composure
under fire. You may be thrown into contact with exciting people who say or do things on the spur of the moment.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept.
22): When faced with deciding whether someone is honest or dishonest, it is always more important that you be honest with yourself.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22):
Be enchanting and friendly,
but don't hook up with a new romance or business partner now. Current situations are not permanent.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov.
21): Keep your money in your pocket and hide the key to the safe deposit box. Giving in today can cause complications tomorrow.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Shelve ambitions
that haven't worked out.
Reassess your goals; the right opportunity will come along at the right time.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): There is a tendency to make decisions that are dependent upon the whim of the moment. You may not be thinking clearly today.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb.
18): Cupid's arrows fly many directions and one might land in the wrong place.
Don't mistake casual interest for serious passion.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Be sensitive to someone's feelings, but don't be a pushover. A working rela

Some escape, some dominate as Buhl invite begins

Jerome leads team standings

By David Bashore
Times-News writer

BUHL — Midway through the first period of his opening match Friday, Will Keeter found himself in an unfamiliar position: on his back. The Twin Falls 140-pound wrestler scrambled to turn over and avert what would have been a shocking pin, then resumed control of North Fremont's Ryker Wynn shortly after. Keeter picked up a pin early in the second period to advance out of his first match at the Buhl Invitational, but he was far from pleased with the way he wrestled.

"I just got sloppy and got rolled through. He caught me in a mistake," Keeter said. "You've got to be ready for every period, every match, and I wasn't."

Keeter looked to have restored order by the time he hit the mat again, picking up a technical fall to advance to the quarterfinals by using his first-match scare as motivation.

"I'll be replaying that match in my head before all the other ones," he said.

Some other local wrestlers didn't have as much trouble getting off and running.

Canyon Ridge's 119-pounder Donovan Jones dropped 10 takedowns in a little more than 4 minutes in his first match, picking up a 20-5 technical fall won on largely the same move.

"I think it's just the confidence thing, knowing I'm seeded for this tournament and all that," Jones said.

Derek Gerratt also wasted no time. The Valley senior advanced to the 135-pound quarterfinals with a pin over Tyler Nelson of Burley about a minute into his match.

Despite lingering thumb and wrist injuries, the latter of which Gerratt says "kills me after every match," he feels like he's rounding into the form that won him a state championship a year ago.

Keeter, Gerratt and Jones were among 28 local wrestlers to reach today's semifinals. Jerome led the team scores after Day 1 by a comfortable margin over Spring Creek (Nev.), 66 to 51.5. Minico was third with 50 points.

The wrestling action continues today at 10 a.m., with championship matches expected to start around 1 p.m.

Buhl Invitational Friday's team scores

1. Jerome 66 points, 2. Spring Creek (Nev.) 51.5, 3. Minico 50, 4. Snake River 43.5, 5. South Fremont 43, 6. Twin Falls 42, 7. Declo 41, 8. Mountain Home 39, 9. (tie) Emmett and Elko (Nev.) 37, 11. ## Recovery from Fiesta Fever

I spent the majority of two days on American highways, making my way back to Idaho from the 39th annual Tostitos Fiesta Bowl, which as you know, Boise State won 17-10 over TCU.

At every gas station, truck stop, casino or mom-and-pop diner we hit, locals or passers-by grilled me about the game. Since I was there all week, all season, following the Broncos, I wasn't at a loss for words. But I've had a hard time pinpointing what it all means. I don't want to "wrap it up," but it's time for that.

Dustin Lapray

The season is complete. There will be no more Monday press conferences with Coach Pete. No more thrilling victories. No more 1-on-1 interviews with the stars and future stars on the Boise State roster.

All that's left now is recovering from the feverish high of a 14-0 season. They weren't perfect — the Broncos had their flaws — but in 14 outings, their end result was perfect.

Without film to break down of the next foe, I turn to the final Fiesta Bowl "book," a packet of statistics, play-by-play descriptions, drive charts, tidbits of information and records broken. It's a sportswriter's gold. On Page 2 it tells me Boise State held the ball for more than 34 minutes and TCU had won 41 of 43 games when dominating time of possession. In the Poinsettia Bowl last season, TCU held the ball for 36 minutes.

We talked all week about ball control, about the running game. Much to our surprise, Boise State won all those battles, and hence won the game.

Boise State ran the ball (32 carries for 77 yards), stopped the run (20 carries for 36 yards) and forced TCU quarterback Andy Dalton to throw the ball 44 times. Each of those stats was a bullet point for the Boise State staff.

Boise State was ranked No. 4 in the final AP poll released Friday. Despite the success, the Fiesta Bowl upset and the undefeated season, Boise State will not get a shot at the national championship. Beyond that, the program has to endure back-handed compliments from pundits, like ESPN's Todd McShay, who gave love to Chris Petersen for all his

Twin Falls rips Canyon Ridge in teams' first hoops meeting

By David Bashore
Times-News writer

In a big-time basketball atmosphere, teams have two options: Sink or swim. Canyon Ridge sank like a rock. Twin Falls made like Michael Phelps.

In front of a packed crowd at Baun Gymnasium, Twin Falls pressed, hassled and ran Canyon Ridge into the ground, rolling up an 86-35 victory Friday night.

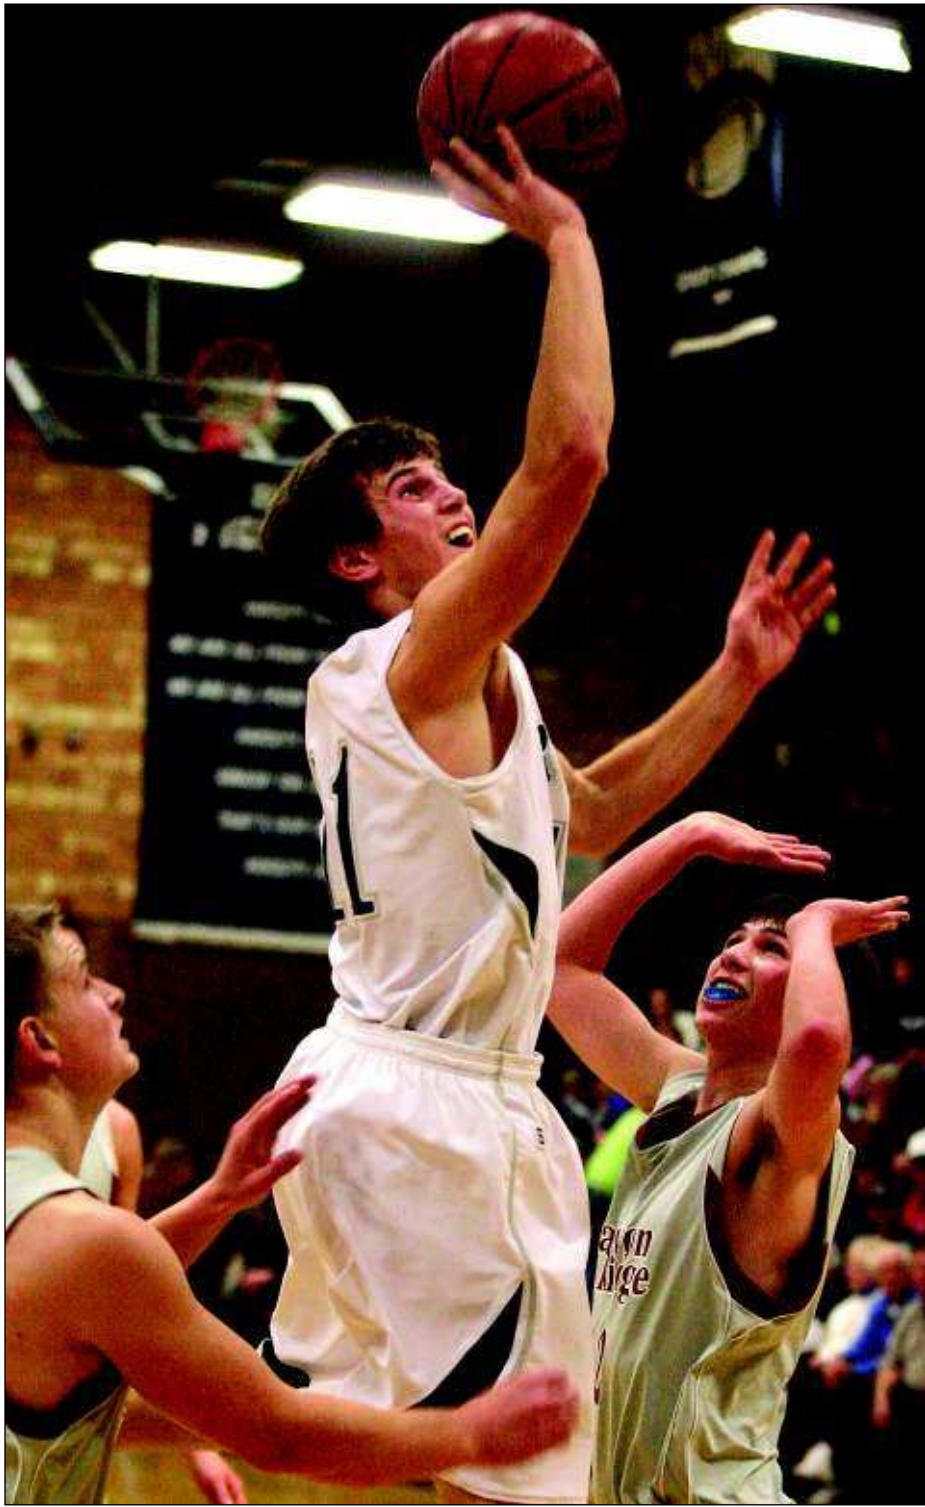

Fans from both sides — the home team obviously enjoying greater support — provided a charged atmosphere as tip-off approached. Once the ball went up, it was all Bruins. They used their press defense and the hot hand of Justin Pedersen to race out to a 16-1 lead, and that was that.

"There was a lot of buildup from all around the city. We've had this date circled for a long time," said Twin Falls guard Ryan Petersen, who scored 13 and added six rebounds, five assists and four steals. "All week there was a lot of excitement, and it was a great atmosphere. That was really fun to play in."

Pedersen hit two of his three triples in the first period, after which Twin Falls (9-1, 3-0 Great Basin Conference) led 23-4. He finished with 13 points on the night.

"Our goal was to come out and hit them in the face right away and never let them in the game," said Pedersen.

Miscues doom CSI women at NIC

Times-News

Too many turnovers. Too many fouls.

That was the essence of the College of Southern Idaho's 66-54 loss to North Idaho College in a Scenic West Athletic Conference women's basketball contest Friday night in Coeur d'Alene.

The Golden Eagles committed 33 turnovers, contributing to NIC getting off 10 more shots than CSI, which also sent the 20th-ranked Cardinals to the free-throw line for 28 attempts, twice as many as the Eagles.

"You've got to keep a team like that off the foul line," CSI head coach Randy Rogers told 1450 AM KEZJ. "They took some tough shots and I thought we bailed them out a few times."

Freshman point guard Daidra Brown scored a game-high 22 points for CSI, aggressively attacking throughout the game. Shauneice Samms added 13 points, but no other CSI player finished with more than six.

The fastest way to erase a 12-point deficit: Give the ball to Taylor Stevens.

At least, that's how it worked Friday night as Stevens hit four treys in the first half and six for the game in leading the North Idaho College men's basketball team to an 80-69 win over the College of Southern Idaho.

The Golden Eagles (11-6, 3-4 Scenic West Athletic Conference) jumped out a 15-3 lead and still led 21-11 until Stevens got hot from distance, including a bank shot from NBA range.

"You know it's your night when you have guys flying at you and you bank it in," CSI head coach Steve Gosar told 1450 AM KEZJ. "He got them going."

North Idaho (15-2, 5-2) took a 31-28 edge at intermission and then raced out of the halftime locker room, building a 49-36 lead before CSI scraped back to get within 64-62. But the rally ran out of juice as the 12th-ranked Cardinals rebuilt their cushion down the stretch.

"We lost the momentum there for a while and it hurt us," said Gosar. "... We did great when we attacked. We just had those moments where we got BURLEY — By his own admission, Kameron Pearce played “bad” for three and a half quarters against Burley Friday night.

But when the game was on the line, the senior guard took over.

Pearce scored 12 of his game-high 14 points in the final 2:47 of regulation and in overtime to lift Jerome to a 59-55 Great Basin Conference victory.

“That’s the type of player he is,” Burley coach Jack Bagley of Pearce. “When he needs to step up and get the job done and carry his team, he can take over a game. That’s what he did tonight.”

Jerome clawed back from an eight-point deficit in the fourth quarter.

“I was disappointed by that stretch,” Bagley said. “We had a couple turnovers and forced the ball when we should have pulled it out and ran some time off the clock.”

Pearce nailed back-to-back 3-pointers to give the Tigers a two-point edge with 2:15 remaining. They were the first shots he hit all night.

“I couldn’t get in a groove,” Pearce said. “They were putting a lot of good man-to-man pressure on me and we saw zone last game, so it took me a while to adjust to it. At the end, everything worked out.”

After Alex Greener’s 3-pointer and a Karch Hinckley free throw put Burley up by two with 25 seconds left in regulation, Pearce drove to the hoop, drew a foul and made both free throws to tie the score and send it into overtime.

“It’s nerve-wracking during the game, but I bet it’s fun for the fans to watch,” Pearce said. “Burley played great and they were well-prepared. It was

Pearce’s 3-point dagger with 1:05 to go in OT gave Jerome a four-point lead.

“He’s too good of a player to let him go out and shoot the ball like that,” Bagley said. “He’s probably one of the best players in the conference. Our goal was to stop him and I thought if we could contain him to 10 or 12 points, we would have a chance to win.”

Sophomore Jake Hollifield made a free throw with 10 seconds left to seal it.

“It’s been a struggle at times (this season), but good teams find a way to win and we were able to do that tonight,” said Jerome coach Joe Messick, who lamented his team’s 10-of-28 performance from the foul line.

“We need to learn from this and build on it.”

Nelson Geary led Burley in scoring with 13 points. His 3-pointer to begin the third quarter gave Burley its first lead of the game. Hinckley and Zach Martin each scored 10.

Jerome (6-3, 2-0 GBC) has now won three in a row. The Tigers have become road warriors early on this season, as seven of their first nine games have been away. Jerome is at home today, however, hosting non-conference foe Buhl.

“That’s good for us to be tested early and then we’ll have a lot of home games at the end when we are playing our best ball and we can get some wins,” Pearce said.

Burley (4-6, 1-2 GBC) has lost five of its last six. The Bobcats travel to Blackfoot for a non-conference game today and will return to GBC action at Mini-Cassia rival Minico on Tuesday.

Grizzlies end 11-game skid against Jazz

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — Zach Randolph had 29 points and 15 rebounds, O.J. Mayo hit a 21-foot step back jumper with 5.2 seconds left, and the Memphis Grizzlies escaped with a 91-89 victory over the Utah Jazz on Friday night.

Marc Gasol blocked C.J. Miles’ shot on Utah’s last possession, snapping the Jazz’s 11-game winning streak over the Grizzlies.

Rudy Gay finished with 22 points and Mayo had 14 for Memphis, which won its fifth straight home game. It is the first time Memphis has won five straight at home since the end of the 2005-06 season.

Mehmet Okur scored 16 points and Paul Millsap added 15 for the Jazz. Carlos Boozer had 13 points and 12 rebounds before fouling out with 37 seconds left. Deron Williams missed his second straight game with a sprained right wrist.

WIZARDS 104, MAGIC 97
WASHINGTON — The last-place and distracted Washington Wizards overcame a 10-point, fourth-quarter deficit Friday night, beating the first-place Orlando Magic 104-97 in the team’s first game at the Verizon Center since Gilbert Arenas’ suspension.

HAWKS 93, CELTICS 85
ATLANTA — Jamal Crawford scored 18 points, including two crucial 3-pointers in the fourth quarter, and Atlanta beat Boston for the second time this season.

Crawford converted a four-point play after being knocked into the seats on a 3-pointer from the corner before an even longer shot from behind the arc sealed it with 52.5 seconds left.

MAVERICKS 112, SPURS 103
SAN ANTONIO — Dirk Nowitzki scored 26 points, including 16 in the fourth quarter, and Dallas rallied from a 10-point deficit entering the fourth quarter.

The Spurs pulled within four, 104-100, but Nowitzki held them back with a 3-pointer with 51 seconds to play.

HEAT 109, SUNS 105
PHOENIX — Jermaine

O’Neal scored four points in the final 29.7 seconds, two on a pair of clutch free throws, and Dwyane Wade had 33 points, nine rebounds and eight assists.

Michael Beasley added 21 points and 10 rebounds for Miami, Dorell Wright scored 15 and O’Neal finished with 13.

HORNETS 103, NETS 99
NEW ORLEANS — Chris Paul hit a driving scoop as he was fouled with 7.6 seconds left, and New Orleans narrowly averted a stunning home loss to lowly New Jersey.

The Hornets had blown a 15-point lead and trailed 99-98 before Paul capped an 11-point, 18-assist performance by putting New Orleans back up for good. David West added 32 points and 10 rebounds for New Orleans, which extended its winning streak to five games.

TIMBERWOLVES 116, PACERS 109
MINNEAPOLIS — Al Jefferson had 25 points and 12 rebounds, and Minnesota spoiled Danny Granger’s surprise return to Indiana’s lineup.

Kevin Love had 18 points and 13 rebounds, and Ryan Gomes added 15 points and eight rebounds for the Timberwolves, who snapped a five-game losing streak.

RAPTORS 108, 76ERS 106
PHILADELPHIA — Chris Bosh made the go-ahead three-point play with 8.4 seconds left, and had 29 points and nine rebounds to lead Toronto.

Andrea Bargnani scored 23 points to help the Raptors rally from a 13-point hole and win their third straight.

BUCKS 96, BULLS 93
MILWAUKEE — Andrew Bogut had 27 points and 13 rebounds, and Michael Redd added 24 points to rallying Milwaukee to its third straight win.

Redd had 14 points and Bogut added eight all in the final 7:09 as Milwaukee improved to 11-1 when its 7-footer scores at least 17 points.

Canitez, a 6-foot-2 freshman from Turkey, scored 18 points.

CSI led 17-8 midway through the first half, but North Idaho freshman Kama Griffiths scored 12 of her 16 points before intermission as the Cardinals rallied for a 29-27 edge at halftime. CSI took a brief second-half lead at 37-34, but a Canitez 3-pointer knotted the score before NIC (14-2, 5-2 SWAC) steadily pulled away.

“I think we got frustrated tonight and we let that frustration take over the game,” said Rogers.

The teams entered Friday’s game tied for second place in the SWAC.

They meet again today at 4 p.m. MST and a CSI win (12-5, 4-3 SWAC) would lock the teams into a share of second-place once more.

The Eagles had won 11 of 12 games entering Friday’s game. Today’s rematch will be CSI’s ninth consecutive game away from CSI Gymnasium. The Golden Eagles return home next Thursday to host the College of Eastern Utah.

Stevens finished 6 of 7 from 3-point range in scoring 19 points. Michael Hale netted 17 for NIC, while Renado Parker added 13. NIC’s 7-foot center, Guy-Marc Michel, had five blocks.

Josten Thomas led CSI with 19 points, while Byago Diouf scored 12 of his 17 in the first half. Pierre Jackson and Carrick Felix chipped in 11 and 10 points, respectively.

“We’re close,” said Gosar.

“We’re very, very close.”

Gosar’s squad gets another chance at NIC today in a 6 p.m. (MST) contest that can be heard on 1450 AM.

Notes: Salt Lake Community College (14-3, 5-2 SWAC) handed Eastern Utah (12-4, 6-1) its first conference loss, 73-72 on Friday, while the Colorado Northwestern Community College men ended a multi-season SWAC losing skid with an 88-79 win over Snow College. CNCC (1-13, 1-6) is now tied with Snow (6-10, 1-6) for fifth place.

All rematches on wild-card weekend

By Barry Wilner
Associated Press writer

Anyone who gets the feeling the NFC playoffs are vastly more wide open than the AFC probably is right. All six teams, including the four playing this weekend in wild-card games, seem capable of making the Super Bowl.

Not so for the AFC, where the two clubs on byes, Indianapolis and San Diego, look like the true cream of the crop.

Everything gets started with a rematch of last Sunday night's Meadowlands debacle, when the Jets routed the Bengals 37-0 to grab the final playoff spot. On Saturday night, another replay has Philadelphia at Dallas six days after the Cowboys blanked the Eagles 24-0 to win the NFC East.

Sunday has Baltimore at New England, a rematch of an Oct. 4 victory by the Patriots, and Green Bay at Arizona, one week after the Packers romped 33-7 at University of Phoenix Stadium.

BALTIMORE (PLUS 4) AT NEW ENGLAND

Losing Wes Welker to a major knee injury last weekend will crimp the Patriots' offense, which can expect double-teams on Randy Moss every play. If the Ravens don't do that, they deserve to get beaten by the playmaker.

Tom Brady will have to look elsewhere quite often, which could mean many catches for the tight ends and running backs. Julian Edelman was a nice substitute for Welker when the veteran was hobbled earlier in the season, but can the rookie handle the big stage? Brady will expect him to.

Baltimore impressed throughout last year's playoffs behind a rookie QB, Joe Flacco, and a staunch defense. The Ravens won twice on the road, then lost at Pittsburgh in a brutal AFC championship game.

This year's Ravens aren't quite so physical or dangerous defensively, so their key player will be versatile running back Ray Rice. Bill Belichick often finds ways to shut down opponent's stars.

But it will be tight.

BEST BET: PATRIOTS, 20-17

GREEN BAY (PLUS 1½) AT ARIZONA

Quite likely, this will be the most fun game, especially for anyone who likes a shootout. Both sides are well-equipped for high-scoring games, from Kurt Warner, Larry Fitzgerald and Anquan Boldin on the Arizona side to Aaron Rodgers, Greg Jennings, Donald Driver and Ryan Grant for Green Bay.

Yet each team has improved drastically on defense, sparked by big-play guys. Packers CB Charles Woodson has been as dominant as any defender in the league, and Cardinals DT Darnell Dockett is a monster up front.

Both sides are playoff-tested, although Warner has a huge experience edge over Rodgers.

The Packers went 5-4 on the road, while the Cardinals were just 4-4 at home.

UPSET SPECIAL: PACKERS, 30-28

N.Y. JETS (PLUS 1) AT CINCINNATI

Don't put too much stock in what happened last Sunday, because Bengals 1,000-yard rusher Cedric Benson and strong DT Domata Peko didn't play. Cincinnati should be a lot more interested, too — a chance for higher seeding had no effect against the desperate Jets last time.

The Bengals need to run effectively inside, because the Jets cut down the flanks with their aggressive defenders. And they must find a passing attack even if Jets cornerback Darrelle Revis shuts down Chad Ochocinco again.

For New York, the word is conservatism. As long as the game is close or the Jets are in front, Thomas Jones will carry the load. He's very capable.

Cincinnati has to force the Jets to throw, making rookie Mark Sanchez win it.

The Bengals were 6-2 at home; New York was 5-3 on the road.

BENGALS, 17-13

PHILADELPHIA (PLUS 3½) AT DALLAS

Dallas stepped up in December and early January. Now it's time for the Cowboys to show they can roll in the postseason.

Having swept the Eagles in the regular season, the Cowboys should carry tons of confidence into this one. They have found their stride on offense with Tony Romo, Jason Witten, Miles Austin and that three-pronged running attack. The defense has been punishing lately — just ask all those Eagles who were manhandled a week ago.

So this will be another rout, right? Uh, no. Not at all.

In fact, Philly is among the best NFL teams at making adjustments, and will find a way to unleash its young offensive threats: DeSean Jackson, LeSean McCoy, Brent Celek, Jeremy Maclin. The defense must be far more secure in its tackling and coverage, and is capable of that — particularly if its variety of blitzes are effective.

Another close one.

EAGLES, 24-23

Tide's title undisputed, not without mystery

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — The college football season rarely ends without unanswered questions.

Yes, Alabama's championship is undisputed. Not even unbeaten Boise State is arguing about which team is No. 1. But it's hard not to wonder how the BCS title game would have played out if Colt McCoy had not gotten hurt.

As for those Broncos, they must already be pondering the possibility of becoming the ultimate BCS busters in 2010.

Crimson Tide coach Nick Saban had the last word on the 2009 season Friday at a news conference in Newport Beach. About 12 hours after Alabama beat Texas 37-21 at the Rose Bowl, he was still harping on the fact that his team came out flat in the third quarter. That the Tide players were acting as if they had already won the national championship when they bounded into the locker room at halftime up 24-6.

"I had to stand up on a chair and say this is a 60-minute game," he said.

No doubt there are Texas fans — maybe even some players and coach Mack Brown — who are thinking it was actually about a 4-minute game.

That's how long McCoy played in the final college game of his spectacular career. The overwhelming consensus going into the BCS championship game was that the Longhorns' chances rested on the shoulders of McCoy, the All-American quarterback with a record 45 victories as a starter.

When Tide defensive end Marcell Dareus injured McCoy's right shoulder with a solid hit on Texas' fifth offensive play, everything changed. The Longhorns' offense went dark for the rest of the half.

Two great scoring opportunities Alabama gave Texas with special teams miscues resulted in only six points for the Longhorns. What if McCoy had been in to finish off those drives?

"After Colt got hurt, obviously we were limited in some of the things we could do," Texas coach Mack Brown said.

Freshman backup Garrett Gilbert settled in after an awful first half, threw two touchdowns to Jordan Shipley and gave the Tide a scare.

Not until Alabama's lead was down to 24-21 did the Tide rev its engines again and put away Texas.

There's a good chance Alabama beats Texas even if McCoy doesn't get hurt. But what if?

Of course, while Longhorns fans stew over that, the question the Tide fans are asking is "What about another one next season?"

That nasty Alabama defense has to be rebuilt. All-American nose guard Terrence Cody is gone. So is All-American cornerback Javier Arenas, who will be missed just as much as a punt returner. All-American linebacker Rolando McClain is a junior, but a projected top-10 NFL draft pick, so figure he's played his last college game.

Still, Saban's been cleaning up in recruiting since he arrived in Tuscaloosa in 2007. Alabama will most likely be No. 1 to start next season, whether Saban likes it or not.

"We have some good young players, and it'll be a great opportunity for them," Saban said. "But every team is different, and every team as issues and problems that you have to resolve in terms of development of players that you have and your ability to recruit and replace the right people and develop the right chemistry?"

Which teams will stand in the way of the Tide making it two in a row?

Nationally, plenty of the usual suspects will be expected to contend, including Ohio State and Texas. The Longhorns have to feel good replacing McCoy after the way Gilbert played in the second half against Alabama.

But the most intriguing contender is Boise State. The Broncos' 17-10 victory against TCU in the Fiesta Bowl, combined with the prospect of returning about 20 starters, means they will start the season in prime position to make a serious run.

And if they have another perfect regular season — which would mean victories against what should be a highly ranked Virginia Tech team and a very solid Oregon State squad — the Broncos probably won't have to settle for just any BCS game.

Boise State is in position to become the first team from a conference without an automatic bid to the BCS to play in the championship game.

Boise State vs. Alabama in Arizona for the title?

Ohio State and two different Big 12 champions haven't been able to stop SEC teams from winning the last four national titles.

Maybe it's time to give one of the so-called little guys a shot.

didn't sack Moore once, or force him to turn the ball over.

The results are in folks. This Boise State team must be lodged with historic company, and the program must be considered elevated by this latest success.

We know this will make recruiting easier for Chris Petersen. It will sell a more seats, more clothing, books and jerseys. It'll help build future facilities, just like it did the last time Boise State won in Glendale.

With all the questions answered Monday night, a few big ones remain, ones that will keep our ears pinned to the ground until August. What's next? Can Boise State run the table again? Can it do better? Is a national championship really in the cards for this team that returns 21 starters?

I don't know if all that is possible. If it's to be done, Boise State cannot lose a game next season.

The 2010 Broncos begin spring work in March.

It could happen.

Mora out as coach of Seahawks after just one season at post

RENTON, Wash. (AP) — The Seattle Seahawks fired Jim Mora after just one season Friday, leaving the former NFC West champs without a coach, general manager and president less than four years after they reached the Super Bowl.

Speculation on Mora's replacement immediately centered on Southern California coach Pete Carroll.

The Los Angeles Times reported Friday that Seahawks chief executive officer Tod Leiweke flew to California this week to interview Carroll for the job. ESPN.com, citing unidentified league sources, said an announcement of Carroll joining the Seahawks could come early next week.

"Pete's name comes out at this time every year. In the past, he hasn't commented on such reports," USC spokesman Tim Tessalone said in an e-mail to The Associated Press. "He was not expected in (Friday). ... At this point, we have nothing to report."

A Seahawks spokesman inside the team's headquarters Friday refused to comment on Carroll. Carroll did not return a phone message left by The AP.

Leiweke did not respond to an e-mail from The AP asking about Carroll, who was 6-10 in 1994 with the New York Jets and then 27-21 while twice reaching the playoffs from '97-'99 with the New England Patriots.

University of Washington coach Steve Sarkisian, who left his friend Carroll and the Trojans 12 months ago for his first head coaching job, chuckled when asked if he'd like to be a head coach in the same city as his mentor.

Mora

"That'd be kind of fun," Sarkisian said. "I'm so used to hearing people talk about Pete Carroll going to the NFL, they've been saying it for the last seven years when I was with him, so it's not new to me," Sarkisian said.

"It doesn't surprise me at all. Every year. You can't find a year in the last seven years where it hasn't been brought up."

Leiweke, acting on the orders of owner Paul Allen, fired Mora during a morning meeting at team headquarters, ending a four-week internal evaluation the CEO conducted of his floundering franchise.

Hours later, the team confirmed the firing in a news release. On Sunday, Mora finished his only season in Seattle 5-11, after taking over his hometown team at the end of Mike Holmgren's tenure. Mora had three years and almost $12 million remaining on his contract.

"We've made a tough decision today," Leiweke said. "It became apparent after conducting an extensive internal audit that a new direction was needed to provide an opportunity for the organization to be successful. Today's decision, while difficult, is part of the process in building a franchise with a new vision in 2010."

Leiweke called Mora "truly a standup man, who gave his full effort to our franchise."

"Coach mora will be missed," Seattle defensive end Darryl Tapp posted on his Twitter page.

Seattle is 9-23 since its last playoff appearance in January 2008, after four consecutive NFC West titles.

"This team, more importantly this community, means so much to me that it hurts not being able to see this through," Mora said in the team statement. "I am disappointed I did not get the chance to complete my contract. This is a tough business that sometimes demands immediate gratification."
