Luna outlines school budget concerns

Schools may be looking at 7.6 percent reduction

By Ben Botkin
Times-News writer

BOISE — Superintendent of Public Instruction Tom Luna has 130 million reasons to worry about the public schools budget of Idaho.

In a press conference on Wednesday, Luna outlined what the public schools budget would look like under Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter's proposal. Luna's budget figures showed the difference between all funding sources.

The total budget for fiscal year 2010 is $1.7 billion, which includes $1.2 billion of general-fund dollars and a combination of federal stimulus and dedicated funding.

For fiscal year 2011, Otter's recommendation is $1.5 billion, which is $130.1 million less than the current fiscal year.

"Schools stand the possibility of seeing a $130 million reduction compared to the amount of money appropriated last year by the Legislature," Luna said. "That in itself should alarm every mother and father and patron in our school system because of the impact that will have on student achievement."

The reduction between this fiscal year and next comes to 7.6 percent under the governor's proposal, Luna said.

There's just $33 million in federal stimulus funding remaining for the new budget. In the current year, public schools got $145.7 million in federal stimulus.

On Jan. 28, Luna will submit his proposal to the Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee. He declined to reveal the specifics on Wednesday, but stressed his strong belief that further cuts will hurt educational achievement.

His key goals, he said, are to preserve student and teacher interaction time and programs that are directly tied to student achievement.

There's also about $83 million in revenue that's projected for the next budget that isn't appropriated in Otter's budget recommendation out of an abundance of caution.

"I definitely understand the governor's hesitation to build a budget based on a scenario," he said. "We have no reserves to go to."

Luna stressed that he doesn't advocate going into debt to keep education whole.

"The governor isn't the only one that has a constitutional responsibility to make sure the budget is balanced," Luna said. "I took the same oath the governor did."

Luna said school districts have told him they've been keeping spending to a minimum.

"They've been imposing holdbacks on themselves for some time anticipating that this day may come," Luna said.

Going forward against reform

Proposed resolution opposes federal health-care reform bill

By Ben Botkin
Times-News writer

BOISE — Sen. Dean Cameron is pushing a resolution that opposes the federal health-care reform legislation in Congress.

Cameron, co-chair of the Health Care Task Force, gave a presentation about the resolution to the group on Wednesday, outlining his concerns about the federal health care reform legislation.

The task force agreed with a 7-5 vote that the resolution should move forward. If it passes the Senate, the resolution would be a statement of agreement with Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter, who has already stated his intention to challenge the federal health-care overhaul in court if it becomes law.

Task force member and physician Rep. Fred Wood,

— Sen. Dean Cameron, R-Rupert

R-Burley, wasn't in attendance and didn't vote on the resolution.

"I am disappointed and, I guess the best word is to say, appalled at the issues that I think challenge our U.S. Constitution," Cameron, R-Rupert, said, adding that 13 state attorney generals are reviewing whether the health-care legislation would violate the federal Constitution.

Ami Abou-Bakr studying war, counter-terrorism in United Kingdom

It's good to be the valedictorian.

Ami Abou-Bakr achieved that distinction at Twin Falls High School in 1997 and is now entering her third year studying war and counter-terrorism in the doctorate program at King's College London.

Nearly 20 years ago, the Times-News published a profile of her family when the Gulf War erupted, because her dad — Ahmed Abou-Bakr, an Egyptian film producer — met with Saddam Hussein, as a member of an Egyptian cinema delegation, and tried to convince him to withdraw from Kuwait.

Clearly, it didn't work.

Idaho may lure Calif. poultry companies

By Laurie Welch and Ben Botkin
Times-News writers

BURLEY — A proposed Idaho law that may help the state lure poultry businesses from other states has gained national attention.

An article published in Wednesday's edition of The Wall Street Journal says Idaho is not an animal-friendly state because it lacks laws governing the confinement of livestock similar to those in other states from which poultry companies are seeking to relocate.

California adopted stricter laws in November 2008 designed to prevent the "cruel confinement" of farm animals. While the stricter regulations are meant to protect animals, California's loss of industry may become Idaho's gain.

Sen. Tim Corder, chairman of the Senate Agricultural Affairs Committee, plans to introduce legislation that would give the Idaho State Department of Agriculture more oversight in enforcing agricultural regulations, including those concerning confined-animal feedlot operations and poultry operations.

Under that proposal, the agriculture department and Department of

Thousands feared dead after Haiti quake

Many still trapped following Tuesday's 7.0 temblor

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti — Dazed survivors wandered past dead bodies in rubble-strewn streets Wednesday, crying for loved ones, and rescuers desperately searched collapsed buildings as fear rose that the death toll from Haiti's devastating earthquake could reach into the tens of thousands.

nation a day after the magnitude-7 quake flattened much of the capital of 2 million people.

Tuesday's earthquake brought down buildings great and small — from shacks in shantytowns to President Rene Preval's gleaming white National Palace, where a dome tilted ominously above the mani-

Hospitals, schools and the main prison collapsed. The capital's Roman Catholic archbishop was killed when his office and the main cathedral fell. The head of the U.N. peacekeeping mission was missing in the ruins of the organization's multi-story headquarters.

Police officers turned their pickup trucks into ambulances to carry the injured. Wisnel Occilus, a 24-year-old student, was wedged between two other survivors in a truck bed headed to a police station. He was in an English class when the earth shook at 4:53 p.m. and the building collapsed.

Reform

Cameron believes the federal changes would create an additional tax burden.

"I think that's wrong in these economic times and I do not believe it will provide lower coverage or better access," he said.

Rep. Sharon Block, R-Twin Falls, chairwoman of the House Health and Welfare Committee, agreed with Cameron.

"I believe that the proposals before Congress will create an expansion of Medicaid that will affect the Idaho state budget," said Block. "The proposal imposes a large amount of regulations on the state. They would inhibit the state's ability to control our own health-care destiny."

House Minority Leader Rep. John Rusche, D-Lewiston, who opposed the resolution, said the resolution is premature, adding that the full picture of the federal legislation isn't known yet.

The next step will be to assign the resolution to a committee.

Eggs

Environmental Quality would work together on crafting a memorandum of understanding with the DEQ "kind of looking over their shoulder," Corder said.

"We shouldn't be afraid to let agriculture direct its own future," said Corder, R-Mountain Home.

While the potential is there to attract California poultry farmers, Corder says that's not the primary motivation for the change.

"We are trying to be proactive so we have our statues in the right place, whether that be with chickens or dairy cows or beef cows," he said.

Rep. Jim Patrick, a member of the House Agricultural Affairs Committee, said he hasn't seen a draft of the bill yet.

"We're not trying to be cruel to animals, but sometimes California goes to far," said Patrick, R-Twin Falls.

Corder stressed that the goal isn't to weaken the existing statutes, just put them where they belong.

Burley Economic Development Director Doug Manning told the Times-News Idaho already has some egg-laying facilities in Franklin County and people who live there don't think they're offensive.

Manning said city and county officials will be tasked with putting laws in place to govern the animal operations and then check each company that applies for permits to see if they meet local laws.

Manning said he has visited Hy-Line North America, a breeding hatchery already established in Burley, which ships stock to egg-laying companies.

Manning said this type of business routinely destroys hatched male chicks.

"The process they use is PETA's (People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals) method of choice," Manning said. "They use some kind of suction and the chicks are just sucked away," Manning said he did not know if the chicks eventually go through a grinder, a method which animal-rights activists have called inhumane.

Hy-Line Manager Mike Pruitt deferred questions regarding animal welfare to Hy-Line's corporate headquarters, which could not be reached Wednesday.

Stricter rules for poultry companies in other states, Manning said, makes doing business cost prohibitive and will force them to relocate.

Basically, Manning said, larger cages for animals make people feel better but the bottom line is these animals are being raised for food.

Manning said he thinks the animals should always be killed as humanely as possible. "I know it sounds brutal but that's the way it is."

About-Bakr

York City while preparing for a return to the United Kingdom after spending time in Twin Falls during the holidays.

Her mom, Karen Goodrich, of Jerome, is the choir teacher at Robert Stuart Middle School and Canyon Ridge High School. Her stepfather, Joe Goodrich, died last year. He was a local business owner.

"He was a wonderful, very positive influence," she said, acknowledging that her life was different than most kids in Twin Falls.

She spent time in Egypt with her father and stepmother (an actress), eventually earning an undergraduate degree in Middle East studies and — after several years working in the banking industry — a master's degree in international studies and diplomacy. Regardless of her cultural and familial heritage, international events changed her life.

"Like many Americans, September 11 had a tremendous effect on me — both professionally and academically. At the time, I was working in a management fast-track program at a 'Fortune' 500 company bank. While it was a great experience for a recent college graduate with no business training, 9/11 reaffirmed something that I already suspected — that I did not have a future in banking," About-Bakr said. "I was an Idahoan-Egyptian, an Arabic speaker with an undergraduate degree in Middle East studies. I felt that I may be able to make a contribution. At the very least, I felt I should try."

About-Bakr's doctoral research explores methods of avoiding disasters, both natural and war-born.

This topic became more intimately relevant after the attacks on Sept. 11, 2001 — but, she emphasized, while calling 9/11 "both personal-ly and professionally pivotal," her academic work involves avoiding the wreckage of other disasters, as well, such as Hurricane Katrina.

She said she likes living in London but misses a few things about Twin Falls — among them the space, "the nice people," tater tots from Burger Stop and her family.

But she's also glad to be away from certain things.

"I don't miss the smell of the dairies and skunks. There are no skunks in England," she said.

While her British colleagues can't automatically place Idaho on a map, About-Bakr said they all know who Evel Knievel is.

"I've begun saying, 'I'm from Idaho — it's in the northwest of America,'" she said. "Growing up in Twin Falls has had a tremendous impact on my values ... I have family in the U.S., Egypt, and Germany, so in that regard, London is actually rather central."

Challis woman charged with vehicular manslaughter

Wendell man died in Hwy. 93 crash near Jerome in July

By Andrea Jackson
Times-News writer

JEROME — Charged with vehicular manslaughter, a Challis woman is accused of setting in motion the crash that killed Wendell's Frank Orth Jr. along U.S. Highway 93 nearly six months ago.

The misdemeanor charge was filed in Jerome County against Heather S. Swain in September, about two months after she allegedly struck the 1992 Buick Regal that Orth was riding in on July 23.

Swain is accused of driving into Orth's car, which was "lawfully stopped at an intersection with its left turn signals activated, which caused a collision with another vehicle, which caused the death of Frank L. Orth, Jr," according to court records.

Idaho State Police said Orth, 65, died at the scene, after the crash near the U.S.

93 intersection of 200 South Road in Jerome County.

His wife, Gloria, was trying to turn the Buick left when Swain's Chevrolet Trailblazer collided into them, state police said in a press release after the crash.

"Swain was unable to stop in time," according to state police.

The Orth car was pushed into the southbound lane of traffic and was hit by a Dodge Neon, whose driver was not charged with a crime.

Reached Wednesday by phone, Swain, 33, declined comment.

Jerome County prosecutors filed a plea offer in the case, in which they will recommend community service, probation, fines, a defensive driving course, and a letter of apology from Swain, in exchange for a guilty plea to vehicular manslaughter, court records show.

A not-guilty plea is filed with the court and Swain is set for a pretrial on Jan. 25.

Grill, serving time for lying to police, charged with theft

Times-News

Prosecutors charged Matthew Grill with grand theft on Wednesday in Twin Falls, only a day after he was sentenced to a year in jail for lying about dumping guns into the Snake River.

Grill, 23, of Castleford was sentenced to the maximum of 365 days in jail on Tuesday after admitting to obstructing police, a misdemeanor. In court, he admitted to being dishonest with Twin Falls County sheriff's officials, who had accused him of lying about dumping 21 stolen guns off the Owsley Bridge near Hagerman last month.

Sheriff's officials said the lie prompted two days of dangerous searching of the river. Authorities have yet to recover the stolen guns, Twin Falls County Sheriff's Office spokeswoman Lori Stewart confirmed Wednesday.

The sheriff's office had requested the theft charge be filed against Grill with the obstruction case, though prosecutors had declined to immediately charge it, Stewart said.

According to court records, Grill is accused of taking, obtaining, and or withholding one or more firearms between Dec. 6 and Dec. 17. The guns were allegedly stolen during a residential burglary in Buhl on Dec. 6.

Grill continues to be lodged at the Twin Falls County Jail serving out his sentence for obstruction. A preliminary hearing in the theft case is set for Jan. 22.

T.F. man charged with attempted murder in Nev.

Elko Daily Free Press

JACKPOT, Nev. — A Twin Falls man was charged with attempted murder after allegedly choking his fiancée with a bed sheet and holding a knife to her throat early Wednesday morning in a room at Barton's Club 93 in Jackpot.

Elko County Undersheriff Doug Gailey said deputies arrested Jesse Andrew Meyer, 22, after they responded to a call of domestic violence at 3:41 a.m.

On arrival, deputies met with a female victim who claimed Meyer, her fiancée, had hit her and wrapped a bed sheet around her neck to the point where she passed out. She told deputies Meyer held a knife to her throat and threatened her with it right before she lost consciousness.

Gailey said deputies noticed an injury to the victim's bottom lip and red marks on her face and around her neck consistent with the allegations.

Meyer was found about two hours later in Jackpot. Deputies searched his backpack, and Gailey said they found a marijuana pipe and a small amount of marijuana. A bag with 10 pills of what is believed to be Valium was reportedly found in Meyer's pocket.

Meyer was charged with attempted murder, assault with a deadly weapon, domestic violence, possession of drug paraphernalia, possession of a dangerous drug without a prescription and possession of marijuana. His bail is $60,328. The felony attempted murder charge alone has a $50,000 bail.

Blaine County gives nod to residential wind turbines

By Ariel Hansen
Times-News writer

HAILEY — Kim Johnson counts herself as an environmentalist who's always seeking ways to make her Hailey home more self-sufficient and earth-friendly.

So when she started researching residential-scale wind turbines as a possible way to pull less power off the electrical grid, she was surprised to find information that turned her opinion against them.

Johnson was one of several Blaine County residents to testify before county commissioners on Tuesday afternoon, during a hearing in which commissioners unanimously approved an ordinance regulating where and how county homeowners can install wind turbines.

"This ordinance doesn't force anybody to put up a wind tower," said Commissioner Larry Schoen, who has investigated wind power at his own Bellevue Triangle-area ranch. He said anyone asking to put up a wind tower would be well advised to do as he did: conduct study of wind speeds over their home and do a cost/benefit analysis.

Schoen also addressed audience concerns that the ordinance — which allows some wind turbines on large properties to be approved administratively, while others on smaller parcels must go through a public conditional-use permit process — doesn't give the public enough input.

"We have struck a fair balance," he said, acknowledging that the county wants to encourage alternative energy use when appropriate, and to make the process easy and accountable.

Some in the audience were proponents of the ordinance, saying the existing power transmission system has serious environmental and operational weaknesses, citing last month's Christmas outage. They argued residents should be allowed to experiment with alternatives.

Other speakers said exploring alternative energy creation was great, but that wind turbines have specific weaknesses that make them inappropriate for the county. These include the impact they would have on views, the lack of good wind in the valley, and that construction of the turbines is not an environmentally friendly process so their overall impact on the planet is negative, not positive.

"There's so much spin around this stuff, no pun intended," Johnson said of her research. "Sometimes what they're touting as green sounds good, but it doesn't make sense."

Johnson isn't likely to be among those who take advantage of the wind turbine ordinance, and commissioners have said interest in installing turbines has been expressed by only a few homeowners. After the ordinance has been in place for a while, they have said, they will gauge how the public has received it and consider changes to the law.

DEQ formally awards Kimberly water grant

The Idaho Department of Environmental Quality has formally awarded a $6.6 million low-interest water loan to the city of Kimberly.

The 30-year loan from the agency's state revolving fund carries only 1 percent interest and $1 million of the principal will be immediately forgiven.

City officials plan to use the money for various improvements to Kimberly's drinking-water system, including installing water meters, replacing an aging water tank and finishing off a well in City Park. Residents narrowly passed a bond resolution in November to pay back the loan.

The city qualified for the low interest rate because its annual cost of drinking-water service to residential customers exceeds one and a half percent of median household income, according to DEQ. The agency says its favorable terms will save the city $4.9 million compared to the average cost of municipal debt.

Buhl gets extension for arsenic treatment compliance from DEQ

By Blair Koch
Times-News correspondent

BUHL — Buhl's end-of-year deadline for getting an arsenic treatment system online has come and gone.

The $8 million project needed to reduce arsenic levels in the city's potable water to at least 10 parts per billion, as mandated by the Environmental Protection Agency, is nearing completion.

Since the city continues to strive toward compliance, the state Department of Environmental Quality had no problems granting Buhl a three-month extension.

"I slightly anticipated a delay," DEQ engineer Brian Reed told the Times-News. "Buhl has done a decent job in bringing the system into compliance and the delay was out of their control. They weren't 'sitting on their shovels' so to speak."

Had the city failed to make strides in bringing the system online it could have faced "significant fines and penalties," Reed said.

"We have faith that the city will meet the extended deadline," Reed said.

During Monday's City Council meeting city engineer Scott Bybee said the drinking water project is nearly completed and he doesn't foresee any problems meeting the new deadline.

He said regulators were "very cooperative" in granting the extension.

Bybee said the new one-million-gallon water storage tank, which will be used to blend water with low arsenic levels with water containing higher arsenic to meet the 10 ppb requirement, is

In other council news Mayor Tom McCauley was sworn into office, as were incumbent councilmen Regie Finney and Dick VanZante.

McCauley thanked former mayor Charles Sheridan for his support and assistance for the "great transition" into office.

"I can't imagine this without the support and help from the former administration," McCauley said.

Finney was unanimously selected to continue as council president.

Jerome Co. Commission, P&Z discuss streamlining zoning process

By John Plestina
Times-News writer

JEROME — Joint meetings of the Jerome County Commission and Planning and Zoning Commission might be more frequent to improve and expedite zoning issues that come before both entities.

The Jerome County Commission sometimes refers controversial issues back to the county P&Z board for changes, which are then returned to commissioners. The back-and-forth procedure sometimes takes months to complete.

When the two entities held a joint session Monday, P&Z Chairman Don Nelson called the process "volley and serving" and offered the example of the ongoing debate over the county's efforts to rewrite its confined-animal feeding operation ordinance.

"We spent months on Chapter 13 (the CAFO ordinance) and now we're back on 13 again," he said, calling the wasted effort not a good use of time for either board.

"The problem now is we're tweaking tweaks. The way we're doing it doesn't seem to be a great way to go about it," Nelson said.

Much of the discussion focused on the number of separate zoning issues that often appear on single P&Z agendas.

"We've got almost a fourth of our (zoning ordinance) chapters on our agenda. That's too much," said P&Z member Patricia Heath.

Deputy Prosecuting Attorney Mike Seib said some ordinances have been tweaked too many times, leaving them poorly written.

"It just flabbergasts me how often we are having to revamp ordinances," he said.

Philosophical differences over the CAFO ordinance, housing density in rural areas and other issues affecting agriculture and growth are another problem.

Both commissions will next meet jointly to discuss CAFO regulations on Feb. 25.

State changes could trump county efforts to revamp CAFO regulations, as the Idaho State Department of Agriculture continues to draft new rules creating setbacks for agricultural waste storage areas not housed on feedlots or dairies.

Idaho lawmakers scrutinize ‘Race to the Top’ grant

By Jessie L. Bonner
Associated Press writer

BOISE — About half of the state’s financially strapped school districts have signed onto Idaho’s bid for $75 million or more in competitive federal grants, Superintendent of Public Instruction Tom Luna told lawmakers Wednesday.

While Luna touted Idaho’s application for the “Race to the Top” program, state lawmakers on the Senate and House education committees questioned why they weren’t more involved in developing the grant proposal that is due Tuesday.

“I see a flaw in this process. At no point were legislators involved,” said Senate Education Committee Chairman John Goedde, a Coeur d’Alene Republican.

Lawmakers also asked why some of the largest school districts in the state didn’t sign on, and they questioned the sustainability of programs developed with temporary grant money from the U.S. Department of Education.

Rep. Liz Chavez said she could not support Idaho’s bid for a slice of the $5 billion in grants because she fears the money sets schools up for a “terrible disappointment.”

“If that funding is not available, then this really starts to fall apart,” said Chavez, D-Lewiston. “I don’t think we should set up false expectations.”

The grant will be the only way to boost funding for public education in Idaho for the next few years, Luna said.

Public schools are bracing for a proposed $27 million in midyear cuts after Gov. C.L. “Butch” Otter on Monday recommended cutting state spending in the current fiscal year by another $40 million to balance Idaho’s budget.

With a shrinking safety net — a reserve fund for public education will have all but been spent by the end of the fiscal year — and hefty teacher contract obligations, schools would be asked to cover the cuts.

The state Department of Education said 58 school districts and 18 public charter schools met a Wednesday deadline for signing an eight-page agreement to participate in Idaho’s application.

The Pocatello School District in eastern Idaho declined out of concern the money would require administrators to stray from their strategic plan and develop additional programs with short-term money.

The Boise School District didn’t sign on for similar reasons, said Rep. Branden Durst, D-Boise.

The state’s plan includes a proposal to pay teachers based on performance in several areas, including student test scores. That was one of the biggest sources of concern for districts debating whether to sign onto the grant proposal.

The pay-for-performance plan, a type of education reform that is backed by President Obama’s administration but has yet to garner widespread support in Idaho, would be introduced as a pilot program. Local school districts would be given flexibility in rewarding teachers and allowed to use measures other than statewide tests, Luna said.

There is nothing in the grant that the state Department of Education will not pursue if it doesn’t get the money, he said.

“It will just take us longer,” Luna said.

Law&Disorder... ...in Cassia County

From Dec. 13 police reports:

Information: Police responded to a Burley address after a 25-year-old woman reported that her neighbor, a 57-year-old man, “had been playing his music very loud” for several weeks. Deputy Ty Cahoon attempted to cite the man for disturbing the peace but didn’t get a response. “The music was very loud; I don’t think anyone inside the residence could have heard me knocking,” the report reads.

The next day police attempted to serve the citation again, but the man’s nephew reportedly said he “left about an hour ago.” The suspect left a message at the sheriff’s office two days later in which he reportedly said he was in Seattle but would come in and resolve the matter. He didn’t. Police attempted two more times to serve the citation about a week later.

According to the report, the suspect’s sister said police “had missed him by about an hour.” Several days later, the man left another message with police and “said he hasn’t come into the sheriff’s office because he has swine flu. He said he was very contagious and would be for about a week and a half” but that he would “come in and take care of it when he is feeling better.”

Animal control: A 73-year-old Burley woman reported that she heard her neighbor’s Chihuahua “screaming” at 2:30 in the morning. “The dog quieted down and then she heard it ‘screaming’ again around 04:30,” the report reads.

Public comment sought for Albion wastewater permit

The Idaho Department of Environmental Quality is seeking public comment on a draft wastewater-reuse permit renewal for Albion.

The permit would allow the town to continue operating a wastewater treatment and reuse system that serves approximately 300 people. Treated and disinfected wastewater is used for irrigation.

As part of the process, the town must show how it will continue to address health and environmental concerns, including ways to avoid contaminating surface and groundwater.

The draft permit and staff analysis can be reviewed online at www.deq.idaho.gov/public/comment.cfm or at DEQ’s Twin Falls office. ## Judge allows blood evidence in vehicular manslaughter case

By Andrea Jackson
Times-News writer

Daniel R. Straub lost an attempt Wednesday to get his blood evidence suppressed in a vehicular manslaughter case that is filed against him in Twin Falls.

He is charged with felony vehicular manslaughter in connection to the June 25 collision, which ended in the death of bicyclist David Webster near 4000 N., 3460 E. in Twin Falls County.

Authorities claimed Straub was both driving under the influence of alcohol and driving recklessly when he allegedly struck Webster.

Straub passed field sobriety tests and had a blood-alcohol content of .08, Idaho’s legal limit, about an hour and 35 minutes after the crash, according to a court record.

The blood evidence should be suppressed, though, according to Straub’s lawyer, Twin Falls County Deputy Public Defender Ben Andersen, who unsuccessfully argued Wednesday in court that the blood was unlawfully taken after Straub already passed a field sobriety test.

“The state lacked reasonable cause to seize Mr. Straub and conduct a search of Mr. Straub’s blood,” Andersen says in court records. “The fact that a death occurred is no reason to jettison the Fourth Amendment.”

But Judge Randy Stoker decided the evidence can be used in court, at least in part, because Straub “consented” to having his blood drawn and also admitted to officers that he drank two alcoholic drinks before the crash.

Disagreeing in court records, Andersen said that Straub was “ordered to take the test.” A deputy told Straub that if he resisted then “a couple of big goons” would sit on his chest, according to Andersen.

Stoker told the court Wednesday that he was “mindful of that testimony” but noted that law enforcement authorities had shared a different account with the court, and also claimed no recollection of the “big goons” allegation.

In the end, Stoker said that the “undisputed facts” show Straub had consented to the drawing of his blood and denied Andersen’s motion for suppression of the evidence.

If convicted, Straub faces a maximum possible prison sentence of up to 15 years. A pretrial is set for March 15.

Buhl nears selection of wastewater project construction

By Blair Koch
Times-News correspondent

BUHL — Five applicants have been narrowed to three in Buhl’s search for a construction manager for its $13 million mechanical wastewater treatment plant project.

The two finalists from Twin Falls and one from Boise will be interviewed again next week before a recommendation is presented to the Buhl city Council.

“Each applicant have excellent backgrounds I believe they all would do a very good job for the city,” said City Engineer Scott Bybee.

As part of the vetting process the city has tasked each applicant to review the project’s plans and come back with a “constructability review.”

Bybee said the review will not only help the city pick the top candidate but will offer insight into how the

“It never hurts to have another set of eyes looking over the plans. ... having those reviews will offer the city another metric to judge the applicants.”

— Mark Holtzen of Twin Falls-based J-U-B Engineers

plans could be improved.

“In today’s market a lot of projects of this magnitude are being bid way under budget,” Bybee said. “However, some contractors underbid in the beginning with hopes of making up the difference and making more money in the long run with change orders. A construction manager should help protect the city from that.”

Each finalist has the opportunity of being paid up to $5,000 by the city for its constructability review.

Funding was approved unanimously during Monday’s City Council meeting, although concerns were expressed.

“Why so much?” asked Councilman Kyle Hauser.

“It never hurts to have another set of eyes looking over the plans,” he said. “... having those reviews will offer the city another metric to judge the applicants.”

After a manager is chosen the city will then enter into contract negotiations. If the city and prospective construction manager can’t come to an equitable agreement the city has the right to enter into negotiations with a different applicant.

Bybee is hoping for an unruffled process.

“We have to get this project going,” Bybee said.

After a construction manager is contracted the project will go to bid, with groundbreaking planned for spring.

Feds propose expanding West's bull trout habitat

By Jeff Barnard
Associated Press writer

GRANTS PASS, Ore. — In another reversal of Bush administration Endangered Species Act policy, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service wants to more than quadruple habitat protections for the bull trout, a fish that has been harmed by logging, mining and grazing on federal lands.

The agency on Wednesday proposed designating 23,000 miles of streams and 533,000 acres of lakes and reservoirs in Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana and Nevada as critical habitat. The area includes nearly 1,000 miles of marine shoreline in Washington. Final action is due Sept. 30.

The proposal is part of the Obama administration's continuing efforts to correct problems identified by a 2008 inspector general's report that found improper political influence affected several Endangered Species Act decisions by the Bush administration, said Michael Bean, special counselor to the assistant secretary of Interior for fish, wildlife and parks.

The agency wants to base all decisions on science and interpretation of the law, Bean said.

"We would certainly like to be in a position where our decisions are not challenged as frequently and certainly not challenged as successfully," as the Bush administration's were, he said.

The bull trout is not a trout, but a char, and needs clean, cold water to survive.

It no longer swims in about half of its historic range, due to warmer and muddier waters caused by logging, mining, dams and grazing.

Typical of high-profile fish and wildlife, all the significant actions by the federal government to restore healthy populations have come out of lawsuits brought by conservation groups, many dating back to the Clinton administration.

Two small Montana conservation groups, Friends of the Wild Swan and Alliance for the Wild Rockies, initially petitioned Fish and Wildlife to list bull trout as a threatened species in 1992. They followed up with six separate lawsuits to force the agency to comply with the law along the way, winning every one.

This undated photo shows a bull trout. In another reversal of Bush administration Endangered Species Act policies, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service wants to expand critical habitat for the fish, which stands in the way of logging, mining, and grazing on federal lands.

the first time Fish and Wildlife has followed the advice of its own scientists on what is needed to restore healthy populations of bull trout, said Michael Garrity of Alliance for the Wild Rockies.

"It's nice the federal government is following the law," he said.

Fish and Wildlife reversed Bush administration practices by recognizing that designation of critical habitat is important for the recovery of a species, and that there are economic benefits from protecting wildlife habitat, such as clean water, said Arlene Montgomery of Friends of the Wild Swan.

The proposal includes for the first time streams not currently occupied by bull trout but critical to maintaining migration routes between isolated species, she added.

Dead tycoons complicate Otter's cost-cutting

State could forfeit land if it disbands agency

By John Miller
Associated Press writer

BOISE — Dead for decades, U.S. railroad and banking tycoons Averell and Roland Harriman are complicating Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter's aim to disband Idaho's parks agency and fill a budget hole.

Otter wants to bank $10 million by selling Department of Parks and Recreation headquarters near Boise and moving oversight of 30 state parks to other agencies, including the Department of Land.

But the Republican governor has been forced to reconsider because the Harriman brothers surrendered their 11,000-acre ranch along the Henry's Fork of the Snake River to the state only after winning concessions.

They wanted it to be called Harriman State Park — and insisted Idaho create a professional agency to manage it. Violating that provision by cutting the agency, according to legal documents reviewed by The Associated Press, could mean Idaho would have to give the property back.

David Hensley, Otter's staff attorney, conceded Wednesday that having a parks department oversee their land was important to the brothers, but said "there could be a way to move Parks and Recreation to the Department of Land without upsetting the fundamental tenets of the Harriman gift agreement."

The Gladys and Roland Harriman Foundation in New York declined comment on whether Otter's proposal violates the family's agreement with Idaho.

Yvonne Ferrell, a former Parks and Recreation chief for 15 years under three Idaho governors, opposes the plan to disband the agency and move management elsewhere.

Before the parks department's founding in 1965, Ferrell said, Idaho's existing state parks were managed by the Department of Lands. She thinks going back would put Idaho at risk if the Harriman heirs take issue with his changes.

"To give it back, it seems to be going backward, instead of forward," Ferrell said.

Current parks chief Nancy Merrill couldn't be reached for comment.

As chairman of Union Pacific Railroad, Averell Harriman, who died in 1986, built Idaho's Sun Valley Resort in 1936. His brother, Roland, who died in 1978, met then-Gov. Robert Smylie in Boise in the 1950s at a charitable event.

It was a fortuitous encounter: Smylie had run for governor in 1954 on a ticket of creating a state parks system. The Harrimans were looking to preserve their Railroad Ranch near Island Park from "becoming nothing more than an uncontrolled real-estate development with hot dog stands and cheap honky tonks," according to a Parks and Recreation history.

But these blue-blooded New Yorkers didn't want just anybody looking after ground in eastern Idaho they had run as a cattle ranch and family retreat since their father bought it in the early 1900s.

"The people of the State of Idaho ... will establish a professionally staffed career park service," according to a 1961 agreement between Idaho and the Harrimans.

After failing twice, Smylie persuaded lawmakers to create the agency in 1965.

Negotiations with the Harrimans concluded in 1977 with the transfer of their ranch to Idaho, which opened the park in 1982 as a sanctuary for elk, moose, sandhill cranes, trumpeter swans — and anglers stalking Yellowstone cutthroat trout in the Henry's Fork.

INL studies graphite for use in reactor

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — Researchers at the Idaho National Laboratory say graphite could play a key role in developing the next generation of nuclear reactors.

In the quest to develop new reactor technology, scientists say few problems are as vexing as the lack of materials that can withstand intense heat the reactors would produce. Temperatures inside such reactors would reach as high as 1,000 degrees Celsius, three times hotter than today's commercial nuclear reactors. That's hot enough to compromise present-day core materials in a matter of days.

But scientists at INL say the answer could lie on the tip of their pencils:

Graphite is extremely resistant to heat and has some of the other properties the researchers are looking for.

Will Windes, a lead researcher on the project, and his team are working with grades of graphite that can absorb heat up to 3,000 degrees Celsius without any consequences whatsoever, the Post Register reports.

Graphite is also a good conductor of heat, making it a prime candidate for components used in heating nuclear fuel and in the cool-down process.

INL technology development director David Petti says other materials have been examined, but none so far offers the same advantage as graphite.

Cassia County may need flexibility on power line route

The Cassia County commissioners couldn't have been more direct about where they — and certainly, many of their constituents — want the Gateway West electrical transmission corridor to run through their community.

On Monday, commissioners unanimously approved an amendment to county code, allowing the establishment of an electrical transmission corridor in the southern part of the county.

“We want to decide the route rather than have government entities deciding where it will go,” Commissioner Clay Handy said.

But the county may not get its way about that.

For starters, approving the amendment was probably premature, as Idaho Power pointed out in a letter to the commissioners.

Premature because the Bureau of Land Management, which administers the territory over which the power lines would run, is still studying various Gateway West routes and drafting an environmental impact statement.

The utility also suggested the amendment, which includes a threshold of 130,000-volt lines, will conflict with the Magic Valley electrical plan's proposed use of 230,000-volt lines.

There are plenty of reasons why the BLM might not sign off on the route across southern Idaho that Cassia County prefers — including the future of federal protection of sage grouse.

But one way or another, the debate about this route isn't over.

Idaho Power and the BLM still must deal with other political subdivisions, with other federal agencies, with other utilities and with state and federal regulators. The conversation about where the transmission line is to be built won't really start until the EIS is filed.

Cassia County has expressed its opinion, but until the other pieces of this project begin to fall into place it's just one county's opinion.

Our view:

Discussion of where to build the Gateway West power transmission corridor can't really begin until the Bureau of Land Management weighs in.

What do you think?

We welcome viewpoints from our readers on this and other issues.

No more room at the bench

Remember the old joke about 20,000 lawyers at the bottom of the sea being “a good start”? Well, in an interesting twist, thousands of lawyers now find themselves drowning in the unemployment line as the legal sector is being badly saturated with attorneys.

Part of the problem can be traced to the American Bar Association, which continues to allow unneeded new schools to open and refuses to properly regulate the schools, many of which release numbers that paint an overly rosy picture of employment prospects for their recent graduates. There is a finite number of jobs for lawyers, and this continual flood of graduates only suppresses wages. Because the ABA has repeatedly signaled its unwillingness to adapt to this changing reality, the federal government should consider taking steps to stop the rapid flow of attorneys into a marketplace that cannot sustain them.

From 2004 through 2008, the field grew less than 1 percent per year on average, going from 735,000 people making a living as attorneys to just 760,000, with the Bureau of Labor Statistics postulating that the field will grow at the same rate through 2016. Taking into account retirements, deaths and that the bureau's data is pre-recession, the number of new positions is likely to be fewer than 30,000 per year. That is far fewer than what's needed to accommodate the 45,000 juris doctors graduating from U.S. law schools each year.

This jobs gap is even more problematic given the rising cost of tuition. In 2008, the median tuition at state schools for nonresidents was $26,000 a year, and $34,000 for private schools — and much higher in some states, such as California. Students racked up an average loan debt in 2007-08 of $59,000 for students from public law schools and $92,000 for those from private schools, according to the ABA, and a recent Law School Survey of Student Engagement found that nearly one-third of respondents said they would owe about $120,000.

Such debt would be manageable if a world of lucrative jobs awaited the newly minted attorneys, but this is not the case. A recent working paper by Herwig Schlunk of Vanderbilt Law School contends that with the exception of some of those at the best schools, going for a law degree is a bad investment and that most students will be “unlikely ever to dig themselves out from” under their debt. This problem is exacerbated by the existing law school system.

Despite the tough job market, new schools continue to sprout like weeds.

Today there are 200 ABA-accredited law schools in the United States, with more on the way, as many have been awarded provisional accreditation. In California alone, there are 21 law schools that are either accredited or provisionally accredited, including the new one at UC Irvine.

The ABA cites antitrust concerns in refusing to block new schools, taking a weak approach to regulation. For example, in 2008 the ABA created an accreditation task force to study the need for changes, but saddled it with a narrow charter. In the end, it proposed only cosmetic changes and rejected out of hand the possibility of giving up control over accreditation, calling the idea not viable and “draconian.”

Unlike other professional fields such as medicine and public health, whose preeminent professional organizations do not have control over the accreditation of schools and programs, the ABA exercises unfettered power over the accreditation of law schools.

The American Dental Association, the nation's leading dental group, offers a model for the ABA to follow. It accredits schools but assiduously guards the profession and has allowed respected dental schools such as the ones at Emory, Georgetown and Northwestern to close for economic reasons and to prevent market saturation. Such a move by the bar association would be unprecedented. Dental schools go even further to protect the profession's integrity by collectively boycotting the U.S. News rankings.

The U.S. Department of Education should strip the ABA of its accreditor status and give the authority to an organization that is free of conflicts of interest, such as the Assn. of American Law Schools or a new group. Although the AALS is made up of law schools, it is an independent, nonprofit, academic — not professional — group, which could be expected to maintain the viability and status of the profession, properly regulate law schools, curtail the opening of new programs and perhaps even shut down unneeded schools. The AALS has cast a very skeptical eye on for-profit schools, compared with the ABA's weak hands-off accreditation policies.

Although these would be unprecedented moves, they are necessary. The legal profession must be saved from itself.

Disobey law rather than put child in harm's way

Your recent editorial concerning Robert Manwill was reprinted in the Idaho Statesman on Jan. 2. Your opinion is right-on but is not direct enough. The fundamental fact is that Robert wouldn't have died in his mother's care if he hadn't been sent to visit her.

As an attorney who practices family law, I am occasionally asked by a client whether he or she should send a child for court-ordered visitation with the other parent when the client is convinced it would be dangerous. I always say no, not if you're convinced it would be dangerous. Your highest obligation as a parent is to protect your child from harm, regardless of the consequences to yourself, i.e., civil contempt charges or even criminal charges. But make no mistake, there are often serious consequences for willfully disobeying a court's visitation order.

What Idaho needs is a legal safe harbor for parents faced with this decision. How about starting with this: If a child of Parent A has been taken from him or her and placed into the legal custody of Health and Welfare, then Parent B shall automatically have physical custody of that or any other child of A for which B has visitation or custody rights until otherwise ordered by a court upon due notice? (This also solves the inexplicable case where children are taken from parent A by Health and Welfare and placed into foster care despite Parent B having joint legal custody and being ready, willing and

This proposal is undoubtedly only a first step and may need to be refined, restricted, expanded, etc., as experience dictates. But it is a very direct answer to the Robert Manwill situation. It is more likely to have an immediate and ascertainable impact than diffused, long-range social programs.

More secure air travel or safer rural roads?

It's remarkable that a Northwest Airlines flight was subject to a high-profile Christmas attack eight years to the day that shoe-bomber Richard Reid bumbled a similar airline assault. Equally noteworthy is the international media scrutiny placed on the uncommon events while few news outlets report on the more than 500 million airline flights that took place in the last 10 years without confrontation of any sort.

The years I worked in the airline industry before 9-11 made it clear that our security system was largely a charade requiring vast improvements. For one thing, I would have felt more secure back then knowing our security agents were earning more than six bucks an hour. It's great that our dedicated screeners now earn something more approaching a living wage; however, I never dreamed we would become compliant to authoritarian rules of such a large ballooning boondoggle agency. Besides being required to obediently kick off our shoes, we're now sometimes subject to fishing expeditions that have absolutely nothing to do with transportation security. Currently at some airports, innocent flyers are even forced to pass through high-resolution x-ray scanners which clearly violate child pornography laws!

Although the TSA has manufactured more than 1 million “terrorists” for our state-of-fear watch lists, air travel remains a safer mode of transportation than most long highway journeys. It's too bad that while we're being hyped and barked at by talking heads all along the terrorism watchtower about these extremely rare violent air incidences that we aren't able to divert some of these massive funds for some simple down-to-earth homeland security measures, such as upgrading some of Idaho's terribly dangerous high-speed rural roads into safer divided highways.

Have a happy new year — with Parks & Rec

With the ball dropping over Times Square, we mark the start of another year and another decade, come to think of it. In January, the Parks and Recreation office has many exciting adventures happening. Starting this month we have instituted a new policy regarding registration. A parent/guardian is now able to register for any sport all year at any time. Regular registration dates will still be used for online registration, and the late fee policy will still be in place. We also have our adult men's basketball league and our adult women's basketball league, as well as our youth boys kinder through sixth-, seventh- and eighth-grade girls basketball starting. Coming in February, regular registration for wrestling and spring soccer will begin. If you are a snow bunny or a snowboard junkie, Pomerelle and Magic Mountain still have space for you to hit the slopes. Please call or come into the Parks and Recreation office for more information. Have a good start of the new year, and we look forward to seeing you at the gyms, on the slopes and around town.

Will China become the next Enron?

TAIPEI, Taiwan — Reading The Herald Tribune over breakfast in Hong Kong harbor last week, my eye went to the front-page story about how James Chanos — reportedly one of America's most successful short-sellers, the man who bet that Enron was a fraud and made a fortune when that proved true and its stock collapsed — is now warning that China is “Dubai times 1,000 — or worse” and looking for ways to short that country's economy before its bubbles burst. China's markets may be full of bubbles ripe for a short-seller, and if Chanos can find a way to make money shorting them, God bless him. But after visiting Hong Kong and Taiwan this past week and talking to many people who work and invest their own money in China, I'd offer Chanos two notes of caution. First, a simple rule of investing that has always served me well: Never short a country with $2 trillion in foreign currency reserves. Second, it is easy to look at China today and see its enormous problems and things that it is not getting right. For instance, low interest rates, easy credit, an undervalued currency and hot money flowing in from abroad have led to what the Chinese government Sunday called “excessively rising house prices” in major cities, or what some might call a speculative bubble ripe for the shorting. In the last few days, though,

Thomas Friedman

China's central bank has started edging up interest rates and raising the proportion of deposits that banks must set aside as reserves — precisely to head off inflation and take some air out of any asset bubbles. And that's the point. I am reluctant to sell China short, not because I think it has no problems or corruption or bubbles, but because I think it has all those problems in spades — and some will blow up along the way. But it also has a political class focused on addressing its real problems, as well as a mountain of savings with which to do so (unlike us). And here is the other thing to keep in mind. Think about all the hype, all the words, that have been written about China's economic development since 1979. It's a lot, right? What if I told you this: “It may be that we haven't seen anything yet.” Why do I say that? All the long-term investments that China has made over the last two decades are just blossoming and could really propel the Chinese economy into the 21st-century knowledge age, starting with its massive investment in infrastructure. Ten years ago, China had a lot bridges and roads to nowhere. Well, many of them are now connected. It is also on a crash program of building subways in major cities and high-speed trains to interconnect them. China also now has 400 million Internet users, and 200 million of them have broadband. Check into a motel in any major city and you'll have broadband access. America has about 80 million broadband users. Now take all this infrastructure and mix it together with 27 million students in technical colleges and universities — the most in the world. With just the normal distribution of brains, that's going to bring a lot of brainpower to the market, or, as Bill Gates once said to me: “In China, when you're one-in-a-million, there are 1,300 other people just like you.” Equally important, more and more Chinese students educated abroad are returning home to work and start new businesses. I had lunch with a group of professors at the Hong Kong University of Science and Technology, or HKUST, who told me that this year they will be offering some 50 full scholarships for graduate students in science and technology. Major U.S. universities are sharply cutting back. Tony Chan, a Hong Kong-born mathematician, recently returned from America after 20 years to become the new president of HKUST. What was his last job in America? Assistant director of the U.S. National Science Foundation in charge of the mathematical and physical sciences. He's one of many coming home. One of the biggest problems for China's manufacturing and financial sectors has been finding capable middle managers. The reverse-brain drain is eliminating that problem as well. When Taiwan moved up the value chain from low-end, labor-intensive manufacturing to higher, value-added work, its factories moved to China or Vietnam. It lost them. In China, low-end manufacturing moves from coastal China to the less developed Western part of the country and becomes an engine for development there. In Taiwan, factories go up and out. In China, they go East to West. Taiwanese entrepreneurs now have more than 70,000 factories in China. They know the place. So I asked several Taiwanese businessmen whether they would “short” China. They vigorously shook their heads no as if I'd asked if they'd go one on one with LeBron James. But, hey, some people said the same about Enron. Still, I'd rather bet against the euro. Shorting China today? Well, good luck with that, Mr. Chanos. Let us know how it works out for you.

Moscow-Pullman Daily News

.... The Idaho and Washington Legislatures (have) three options: Raise taxes, cut services or a combination of the two. There is little else lawmakers can do in the face of revenue shortfalls. Washington has at least a $2.6 billion deficit and Idaho is looking at a short-fall of about $51 million even after it cut about $151 million from its budget. No solution will be universally accepted, but the reality is taxpayers will have to pay more or get less from their government. Idaho Gov. C.L. “Butch” Otter would rather further slash budgets than hike the sales tax or eliminate tax exemptions. On the other hand, Gov. Chris Gregoire sees a tax increase as the only way to get Washington back in the black. Both chief executives are in for a tough fight. Favorite budget-cutting targets again will be at the forefront in both states. Education funding will probably suffer the most, followed closely by social services and infrastructure. Massive layoffs also will be considered. We have no crystal ball to give insight to impart to lawmakers. But what we do know is those we send to Boise and Olympia have to get it right. Addressing the very real economic problems and attendant social ones can't be delayed any longer. Immediate solutions and viable long-range planning are needed. Lip service and political posturing have no place when our well-being is at stake ...

... sue the feds!

Idaho Statesman, Boise

There won't be many growth areas in state government these days. Gov. Butch Otter said as much last Thursday. Agencies will face more cuts to get through a recession-riddled budget year ... As for the next budget year, starting July 1, Otter wants a no-growth spending plan — and he says his fellow Republicans in the Legislature have signed on. Yes, folks, it's time to scrape along. Unless you're in the business of suing Uncle Sam. Otter isn't backing down from his threat to sue the feds over health care reform. Last month, the state filed a lawsuit opposing the feds' decision to add the slickspot pepper grass to the endangered species list. Where is Idaho going to find the money for all of this lawyering? Through a line item known as the Constitutional Defense Council Fund. The fund, established by then-Gov. Phil Batt, has been drawn down to about $300,000, Otter said Thursday. But the governor and legislative leaders have an agreement to restore the fund to $1 million, the original intended amount. So much for doing more with less. Let's hope lawmakers think twice before they dedicate scarce state dollars this way ...

most extensive review of U.S. national security policies since 2001. Al-Qaida's fresh strategy plays to its networking strength and compensates for its numerical weakness. In contrast to its plan on Sept. 11, which was to deliver a knock-out blow to the United States, al-Qaida's leadership has adopted a “death by a thousand cuts” approach. The strategy has five core elements. First, al-Qaida is focused on overwhelming, distracting and exhausting us. It seeks to flood our already information-overloaded national intelligence systems with myriad threats and background noise so that we overlook key clues, such as those before Christmas that linked Abdulmutallab to an al-Qaida airline-bombing plot. Second, al-Qaida has stepped up a strategy of economic warfare, issuing statements, videos, audio messages and letters online trumpeting its actions against Western financial systems, even taking credit for the economic crisis. Propaganda doesn't have to be true to be believed, and the assertions resonate with al-Qaida's target audiences. Heightened security measures after the Christmas Day plot, plus the likely development of ever more sophisticated passenger-screening and intelligence technologies, stand to cost a lot of money, while the war in Afghanistan constitutes a massive drain on American resources. Given the economic instability here and abroad, al-Qaida's strategy of financial attrition could pay outside dividends. Third, al-Qaida still seeks to divide the global alliance arrayed against it by targeting key coalition partners. Terrorist attacks on mass-transit systems in Madrid in 2004 and London in 2005 were intended to punish Spain and Britain for participating in the war in Iraq and in the U.S.-led war on terrorism. During the past two years, serious terrorist plots orchestrated by al-Qaida's allies in Pakistan, meant to punish Spain and the Netherlands for participating in the war on terrorism, were thwarted in Barcelona and Amsterdam. As al-Qaida finds new ways to exploit our weaknesses, we are stuck in a pattern of belated responses, rather than anticipating its moves and developing preemptive strategies. The “systemic failure” of intelligence analysis and airport security that Obama recently described was not just the product of a compartmentalized bureaucracy or analytical inattention, but a failure to recognize al-Qaida's new strategy. The national security architecture built in the aftermath of Sept. 11 addresses yesterday's threats — but not today's and certainly not tomorrow's. It is superb at reacting and responding, but not at outsmarting. With our military overcommitted in Iraq and Afghanistan and our intelligence community overstretched by multiplying threats, a new approach to counterterrorism is essential. Remarkably, we still don't fully understand our dynamic and evolutionary enemy. We claim success when it is regrouping and tally killed leaders while more devious plots are being hatched. Al-Qaida must be destroyed. This will be accomplished not just by killing and capturing terrorists but by breaking the cycle of radicalization and recruitment that sustains the movement.

Sugar market rebounds as people seek natural sweeteners

March sugar futures hit new high

By Cindy Snyder
Times-news correspondent

Sugar is enjoying a rebound in demand and that should be good news for Idaho's sugar beet growers.

Andy Briscoe, CEO of the Sugar Association, said sugar has benefitted from a consumer movement towards simplicity. Consumers want to look at a label and see five or less ingredients and to be able to pronounce those ingredients. "Sugar is the only sweetener that is all natural, has 15 calories per teaspoon, has been used safely for 2000 years and, by the way, it's a sweetener you can pronounce," Briscoe said. He spoke during the Snake River Sugar Company's annual shareholder meeting in Twin Falls last week.

Food and beverage manufacturers are recognizing the trend. Pepsi-Cola has issued a second limited run of "Throwback" Pepsi and Mountain Dew in retro-styled containers, using sugar to sweeten the beverages. The Throwback beverages are available through the end of February.

Heritage Dr. Pepper, also sweetened with sugar, is back on shelves in some markets. Snapple and Gatorade have also moved back to using sugar as a sweetener.

Manufacturers moved to using high fructose corn syrup rather than sugar to sweeten food and beverage products in

Kraft Foods lifts full-year earnings outlook again

The Associated Press

NORTHFIELD, Ill. — Kraft Foods Inc., engaged in a hostile takeover bid for candy maker Cadbury PLC, boosted its full-year profit outlook for the second time in two months after logging strong operating gains, as it spent more on marketing its core brands.

The food company, whose products include its namesake cheese, has reduced its product lines during the economic downturn in order to concentrate on its most profitable products.

Kraft now anticipates 2009 earnings of at least $2 per share, compared with a prior forecast for a profit of at least $1.97 per share. In November, the Northfield, Ill., company increased its guidance to $1.97 from $1.93 per share. Analysts surveyed by Thomson Reuters expect full-year earnings of $2 per share.

On Tuesday, Cadbury made its case against Kraft's $16.5 billion bid, saying its annual results would top estimates. The British company also said it will boost dividend payments by 10 percent.

company Ferrero International SA reportedly has decided it's not interested in bidding for Cadbury.

Kraft Chairman and CEO Irene Rosenfeld maintained late Tuesday that her company will still be able to "deliver sustainable top-tier performance, with or without Cadbury." Kraft has held this position since November, when it was still in the process of making a firm offer for Cadbury.

If Kraft does win Cadbury, it would create an industry giant, combining the world's second-largest food maker and one of the world's largest confection-

SPECIALIZING IN FRESH

MEAGAN THOMPSON/Times-News

Employees at Five Guys prepare burgers at the restaurant's new location on Pole Line Road East in Twin Falls. The burger chain specializes in making fresh food that's made on the spot, including fries made from southern Idaho potatoes.

Five Guys opens new location in Twin Falls

By Joshua Palmer
Times-News writer

The owners of Twin Falls' newest burger chain are banking on the idea that customers will pay a little more to eat fresh, mostly local food.

Five Guys, a franchise that began in Arlington, Va. and now boasts more than 550 locations, will open its newest location on Pole Line Road East near Barnes & Noble today.

The burger chain operates somewhere between fresh and fast food.

"We have to be smart about it in this economy because the quality comes at a bit of price," said Darryl Neider, co-owner of the Five Guys franchise in Idaho, Utah, Oklahoma and part of California. "But what we have noticed is that people still want to treat themselves and their families to something they can enjoy — and even in this economy they are willing to pay a little more for it."

Idaho hopes online tool will lure companies

Times-News

More users are flocking to Idaho's commercial property search tool and that could bode well for future economic growth.

Visitor traffic to www.gem-stateprospector.com — an online search tool for commercial and industrial properties in Idaho — jumped 45 percent in October and another 20 percent in November.

The site allows users to search a database of existing properties and generate demographic and market analysis reports.

"This online mapping tool makes it easier for companies to explore options for moving to Idaho," said Idaho Commerce Director Don Dietrich. "We know companies are looking right now; we're getting lots of phone calls. As a small state, we need to be creative and smart as we compete with larger states for new business."

The Idaho Department of Commerce shares the cost of the Web site with several organizations, including the Idaho Economic Development Association and the Idaho National Laboratory.

Recent training sessions around the state resulted in an increase of the number of property listings on the site. Economic development organizations and real estate professionals can list their commercial properties at no charge. There are currently nearly 900 listings on the site.

Web site users can easily find out about each area's business

AAA: Expect unstable energy prices in 2010

Times-News staff

AAA said it expects greater fluctuations between highs and lows in oil prices during likely leading to a roller coaster ride in prices at the pump.

Dave Carlson, director of Public and Government Affairs for AAA Idaho, said volatility will be fueled by uncertainty over the value of the dollar, a fragile global economic recovery and more leveraged money in the futures and options markets.

The average Idaho pump price is already higher than at any time during 2009.

The average price for a gallon of regular-grade gasoline rose 10 cents since Jan 6 to $2.67 — the highest average pump price in Idaho since October 2008.

But Carlson said 2009 was an anomaly for fuel prices.

Winter can chill your workplace and your cash flow

This winter's long cold snap has made people across the country miserable. Many small business owners are going to feel even worse when they see their heating bills.

The added expense of keeping businesses warm when the temperature dives cuts into already thin cash flows. It's not just the cost of natural gas and heating oil — electrical use can go up too.

Business owners need to be sure they're not losing money to drafty windows and doors, so this is the perfect time to look over a workplace and see how it can be made more energy-efficient.

Two key questions for an owner to consider: What can you do right now to save money, and what can you to lower your bills in the coming years?

THE SHORT TERM

A trip to the home improvement or hardware store can save you plenty on heating bills. And what you do now to House subpoenas

Geithner's AIG
e-mails, phone logs

A House committee probing bailout deals has subpoenaed the Federal Reserve Bank of New York for correspondence from Treasury Secretary Timothy Geithner and other officials.

The House Oversight and Government Affairs Committee is examining New York Fed decisions that funneled billions of dollars to big banks including Goldman Sachs Group Inc. and Morgan Stanley.

Geithner was president of the New York Fed at the time. He approved decisions involving the money from the bailout of failed insurer American International Group Inc., according to an earlier watchdog audit.

In a statement Wednesday, committee chairman Rep. Edolphus Towns, D-N.Y., said he had subpoenaed the New York Fed for documents about the decision to pay off AIG's business partners and keep their names secret.

Seating Senate winner could be delayed

BOSTON — Massachusetts' top election official says it could take weeks to certify the results of the upcoming U.S. Senate special election. That delay could let President Barack Obama preserve a key 60th vote for his health care overhaul even if the Republican who has vowed to kill it wins Democrat Edward M. Kennedy's former seat.

Secretary of State William F. Galvin, citing state law, says city and town clerks must wait at least 10 days for absentee ballots to arrive before they certify the results of the Jan. 19 election. They then have five more days to file the returns with his office.

treated for cancer

LOS ANGELES — "Dexter" star Michael C. Hall is undergoing treatment for cancer and the disease is in remission, a spokesman said.

"I feel fortunate to have been diagnosed with an imminently treatable and curable condition, and I thank my doctors and nurses for their expertise and care," Hall, 38, said Wednesday in a statement.

The actor was diagnosed with Hodgkin's lymphoma, a cancer of the lymphatic system, which is part of the body's immune system. The disease is considered highly treatable with the potential for full recovery.

Gingrich says he's among top prospects

CARY — Former House Speaker Newt Gingrich said Wednesday he considers himself among the top Republican prospects for the 2012 presidential election, adding that he believes there will be plenty of GOP options for voters to consider.

"I think I'm probably on a list of seven or eight possible candidates at this stage," Gingrich said. "We have a lot of people around the country who would like to have somebody who represents a commitment to replace the current failed programs and to develop a set of solutions that are practical and workable."

Gingrich listed several current and former governors who he thinks might enter the race. They include former Alaska Gov. Sarah Palin, former Arkansas Gov. Mike Huckabee and Minnesota Gov. Tim Pawlenty.

Consumer chief: Take cheap jewelry from kids

By Justin Pritchard
Associated Press writer

LOS ANGELES — The nation's product safety agency issued an unprecedented warning Wednesday to parents: Don't give your children cheap metal jewelry. And if they already have some, toss it because it could contain hazardous levels of heavy metals such as lead and cadmium.

Writing in a blog posting Wednesday evening, the chairman of the Consumer Product Safety Commission noted that children who chew, suck on or swallow a bracelet charm or necklace may be endangering their health.

"I have a message for parents, grandparents and caregivers: Do not allow young children to be given or to play with cheap metal jewelry, especially when they are unsupervised," wrote Inez Tenenbaum, the chairman of the Consumer Product Safety Commission.

In making the recommendation, Tenenbaum cited an investigation by The Associated Press which reported high cadmium levels in kids' jewelry items imported from China including bracelet charms from Walmart and Claire's stores.

Lab tests conducted for the AP on 103 pieces of low-priced children's jewelry found 12 items with cadmium content above 10 percent of the total weight. Several of those shed very high amounts of the metal when analyzed for how much of the toxin a child buy cheap children's jewelry, the inference was clear.

For items already in homes, "Parents should 'safely dispose' of the jewelry following state and local environmental laws, and not resell it through online auctions or to a thrift store," CPSC spokesman Scott Wolfson said.

Even during the height of product recalls from China several years ago — when millions of items of jewelry or painted toys with high lead levels were taken off store shelves — the CPSC did not issue such a public warning. Under the administration of President Barack Obama, and with Tenenbaum replacing commissioner Nancy Nord atop the agency, the CPSC is projecting a much more aggressive image.

BANKERS APOLOGIZE

Goldman Sachs Group, Inc. Chairman and Chief Executive Officer Lloyd Blankfein, left, gestures on Capitol Hill in Washington, Wednesday, while testifying before the Financial Crisis Inquiry Commission. At right is JPMorgan Chase & Company Chairman and Chief Executive Officer James Dimon.

They admit that risky behavior led to financial crisis, but refuse to rein in compensation practices

WASHINGTON (AP) — Challenged by a skeptical special commission, top Wall Street bankers apologized Wednesday for risky behavior that led to the worst financial crisis since the Great Depression. But they still declared it seemed appropriate at the time.

The bankers — whose companies collectively received more than $100 billion in taxpayer assistance to weather the crisis — offered no regrets for executive pay that is now likely to increase as a result of their survival. They did say they are correcting some compensation practices that could lead to excessive risk-taking.

The tension at the first hearing of the Financial Crisis Inquiry Commission was evident from the outset. "People are angry," commission Chairman Phil Angelides said. Reports of "record profits and bonuses in the wake of receiving trillions of dollars in government assistance while so many families are struggling to stay afloat has only heightened the sense of confusion," he said.

Lloyd Blankfein, the chief executive of Goldman Sachs, took the brunt of the questions, especially on his firm's practice of selling mortgage-backed securities and then betting against them.

"I'm just going to be blunt with you," Angelides told him. "It sounds to me a little bit like selling a car with faulty brakes and then buying an insurance policy on the buyer of those cars."

Blankfein replied: "I do think the behavior is improper. We regret the consequence that people have lost money in it." Later, though, he defended the firm's actions as "exercises in risk management."

In a moment of self-analysis, Blankfein said the world of high-finance simply rationalized its way into risky transactions. Summarizing the thinking in the industry at the time, he said: "Gosh, the world is getting wealthier. Technology has done things. ... These businesses are going to do well."

"You talked yourself into a place of complacency," he concluded.

The panel began its year-long inquiry amid rising public fury over bailouts and bankers' pay. House Financial Services Committee Chairman Barney Frank, D-Mass., said Wednesday he will hold a hearing next week on bank compensation, looking to expand legislation that already passed the House.

Sen. Bill Nelson, D-Fla., wrote to President Barack Obama on Wednesday suggesting legislation that would use banks' tax breaks as incentives for pay based on performance.

"We understand the anger felt by many citizens," said Brian Moynihan, chief executive and president of Bank of America. "We are grateful for the taxpayer assistance we have received."

Men more evolved? Study of Y chromosome study stirs debate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Women may think of men as primitive, but new research indicates that the Y chromosome — the thing that makes a man male — is evolving far faster than the rest of the human genetic code.

A new study comparing the Y chromosomes from humans and chimpanzees, our nearest living relatives, show that they are about 30 percent different. That is far greater than the 2 percent difference between the rest of the human genetic code and that of the chimp's, according to a study appearing online Wednesday in the journal Nature.

These changes occurred in the last 6 million years or so, relatively recently when it comes to evolution.

"The Y chromosome appears to be the most rapidly evolving of the human chromosomes," said study co-author Dr. David Page, director of the prestigious Whitehead Institute in Cambridge and a professor of biology at MIT. "It's an almost ongoing churning of gene reconstruction. It's like a house that's constantly being rebuilt."

Before men get too impressed with themselves, lead author Jennifer Hughes offers some words of caution: Just because the Y chromosome, which determines gender, is evolving at a speedy rate it doesn't necessarily mean men themselves are more evolved.

Researchers took the most detailed examination of the Y chromosome, which females do not have, of both humans and chimps and found entire sections dramatically different. There were even entire genes on the human Y chromosome that weren't on the chimp, said Hughes, also of the Whitehead Institute.

The two-year research took twice as long as expected because of the evolutionary changes found, Hughes said.

There is a bit of a proviso to the comparison to other chromosomes. While all human and chimp chromosomes have been mapped, only two chimp chromosomes have been examined in great detail: Y and chromosome 21. Yet, there's still enough known to make the claim that the Y is the speediest evolver, Hughes and Page said.

Obama vows all-out relief effort

By Matthew Lee and Julie Pace
Associated Press writers

WASHINGTON — U.S. officials are laying out a massive military response to the Haiti earthquake, saying that ships, helicopters, transport planes and a 2,000-member Marine unit are either on the way or likely to begin moving soon.

One of the U.S. Navy's large amphibious ships, the USS Bataan, was ordered to Haiti with a Marine expeditionary unit aboard. The ship is one of more than a half dozen, including frigates, a destroyer and a guided missile cruiser, being sent to the Caribbean nation.

Gen. Douglas Fraser, head of U.S. Southern Command, said at a news conference that other U.S. military forces are on alert, including a brigade, which includes about 3,500 troops. He said the Pentagon is "seriously looking at" sending thousands of Marines to assist with disaster relief efforts and security in Haiti.

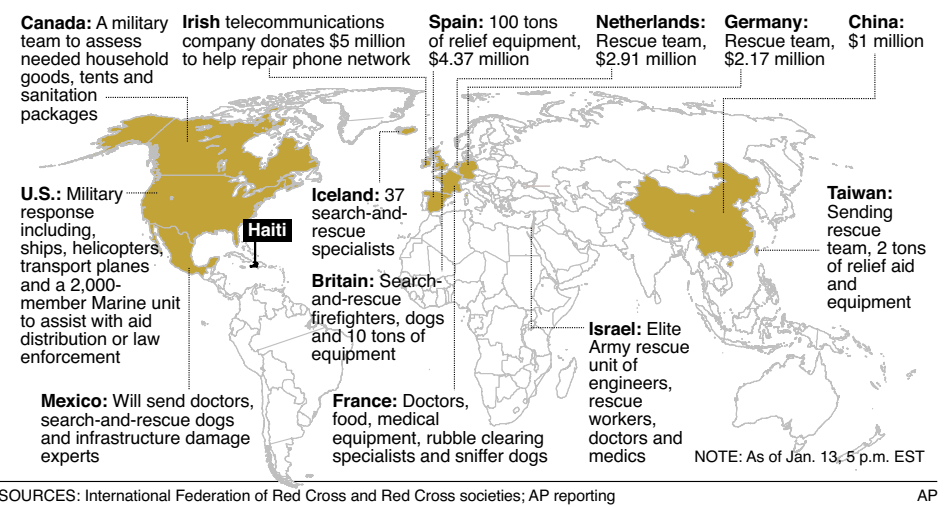

The dispatched troops would aim to keep the peace in the event of post-disaster unrest as part of a larger international effort overseen by the United Nations, whose peacekeeping operation headquarters was destroyed in the quake. About 100 U.N. personnel are believed to be trapped in the ruins of the building.

President Obama promised earlier Wednesday to mount an all-out rescue and humanitarian effort to help the people of Haiti overcome a "cruel and incomprehensible" tragedy.

The president said the relief effort is gearing up even as the U.S. government is working to account for Americans who were on the island nation when the disaster struck late Tuesday afternoon.

Secretary of State Hillary Rodham Clinton cut short an extended trip to the Asia-Pacific region to deal with the earthquake crisis in Haiti, and Defense Secretary Robert Gates called off a planned trip to Australia where he and Clinton were to attend an annual summit.

Girls cry as a little girl is removed from the rubble, Wednesday in Port-Au-Prince, Haiti. Tuesday's quake left a landscape of collapsed buildings — hospitals, schools, churches, ramshackle homes, even the gleaming national palace — the rubble sending up a white cloud that shrouded the entire capital.

Clinton told reporters in Hawaii on Wednesday that she would return to Washington to help oversee U.S. relief efforts instead of continuing on to Papua New Guinea, Australia and New Zealand as she had initially planned.

Pentagon spokesman Geoff Morrell said Gates postponed his trip so he and Clinton "can continue to work on the crisis in Haiti." Obama has directed his administration to provide all aid necessary to assist in relief efforts.

The initial contingent of 2,000 Marines could be deployed to the quake-ravaged country within the next few days to either help with emergency aid distribution or enforce law in order in conjunction with U.N. peacekeepers already there, Fraser said.

The general said that a U.S. aircraft carrier, the USS Carl Vinson, is also heading from Norfolk, Va., to the area and should arrive Thursday afternoon.

More immediately, Fraser's Miami-based Southern Command is also dispatching a team of 30 people to Haiti to support relief efforts in the aftermath of the earthquake and make way for additional military aid.

Officials said two C-130 aircraft were departing Wednesday for Haiti with the team of military engineers, operational planners, communications specialists and a command and control group.

Coast Guard helicopters early Wednesday evacuated four injured U.S. Embassy personnel to a hospital at the Navy base at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba. Southcom did not release their names.

Fraser said the military is also sending units to get Port-au-Prince's airport secured and operating again. The airport is considered "operational," he said, but the facility's tower and other operations were damaged.

Referring to possible use of U.S. troops to maintain order, Fraser said: "It's going to be our assessments that are going to determine, in conjunction with (the U.N. mission) and the other international partners who are there, how best to deal with any security situations that come up."

"We don't know precisely what the situation is on the ground," he added. "So we're leaning forward to provide as much as capability as quickly as we can to respond to whatever the need is when we get there."

Fraser appeared with U.S. Agency for International Development administrator Rajiv Shah, the official named by Obama to coordinate American efforts in Haiti.

Quake in Caribbean predicted for years

By Fred Tasker
McClatchy Newspapers

MIAMI — When news spread of Tuesday's catastrophic earthquake in Haiti, most of us probably said: "What? They have earthquakes in the Caribbean?"

But it was no surprise to geologists. For years, they had been predicting a quake in Haiti — possibly as powerful as magnitude 7.2. The problem was they couldn't say when.

"It could have been the next day, it could have been 10 years, it could have been 100," said Miami geophysicist and earthquake expert Dr. Tom Dixon. "This is not an exact science."

Geologists had long warned about seismic pressures building up along the Enriquillo Fault Line that runs from Jamaica eastward through Port-au-Prince, Haiti, and into the Enriquillo Valley in the Dominican Republic. The fault line is part of the boundary between the North American and Caribbean tectonic plates.

The earth is divided into about a dozen tectonic plates that float and shift, moving past each other at geologically slow rates. The North American plate, which includes the United States and Canada, moves west relative to the Caribbean plate, at a rate of about an inch a year.

And there was a chilling, if imprecise, prediction in a paper by a group of U.S. geologists presented at the 18th Caribbean Geological Conference in Santo Domingo, Dominican Republic, in March 2008.

That inch-per-year movement had built up to six lateral feet of unrelieved pressure since the last major quake, in the south-central Dominican Republic in 1751. In a reference to Port-au-Prince, the conference report said: "This means that the level of built-up stress and energy in the earth could one day be released resulting in an earthquake measuring 7.2 or more on the Richter scale. This would be an event of catastrophic proportions in a city with loose building codes, and an abundance of shantytowns built in ravines and other undesirable locations."

As far back as 1998, Dixon, a professor of geophysics at the Rosenstiel School of Marine and Atmospheric Science, says he and five colleagues published a paper in the Journal of Geophysical Research warning of seismic trouble brewing in Haiti. But again, they couldn't say when.

One geologist, Patrick Charles, formerly of the Geological Institute of Havana, called the danger imminent.

Even then, what could Haiti have done?

Long beset by poverty, political unrest, HIV and chronic hurricanes and floods, Haiti lacked both the technical expertise and the resources to study earthquakes, let alone take action to withstand them, Dixon said.

Dr. Amy Wilentz, professor of politics at the University of California, Irvine, and author of "The Rainy Season: Haiti Since Duvalier," agrees.

"A lot of the buildings are made of bricks and cement and tin roofs," she said.

"It's hard to envision programs like the ones we have in California to reinforce buildings and do earthquake stabilization, much less projects to make new buildings safe. It's hard enough to put up a building at all; the idea of making it perfect is Kafka-esque."

Susan Purcell, director of the Center for Hemispheric Policy at the University of Miami, asked: "This is the poorest country in the hemisphere; what are they supposed to do and with what resources? ... Most of them are dirt-poor and living in makeshift houses."

Pat Robertson: Haiti earthquake is result of 'pact with the devil'

By Andrew Zajac
Tribune Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Conservative televangelist Rev. Pat Robertson on Wednesday blamed the earthquake in Haiti on a "pact with the devil" purportedly entered into by the Haitian people in a bid to defeat French colonizers in the late 18th century.

"Something happened a long time ago in Haiti, and people might not want to talk about it," Robertson said on his Christian Broadcasting Network show. "They were under the heel of the French ... and they got together and swore a pact to the devil. They said, 'We will serve you if you'll get us free from the French."

"True story. And the devil said, 'OK, it's a deal,'" Robertson said. "Ever since, they have been cursed by one thing after another."

Hours after his comments ignited a firestorm in the news media and online,

Magic Mountain a good fit for staff, visitors

It wasn't the busiest day of the season, but it was a good day to be on the mountain.

Then again, there's never really a bad day at Magic Mountain Ski Resort — not when you're a member of the crew.

Scott Fowler has been a resort employee for about two years, and says it's a good fit for him. Not only is he able to ski, but he gets to help others enjoy the sport and take in nature's views.

The top of the lift is best, he says, where you can see the valley below.

Fowler stays busy as a lift operator, ski instructor and ski patrolman. On Jan. 7, a slow day at the mountain, he worked the bottom lift and relaxed on the benches he had recently made out of snow.

That was unusual. It was the first slow day the resort has had since opening, Fowler said.

"It's after the holidays and kids are back in school," he said, noting that weekends are swamped.

Fowler is not the only one who wears multiple work hats.

Little snow is a mixed forecast for Idaho recreation

By Ariel Hansen
Times-News writer

HAILEY — So far, there hasn't been much snow this winter in south-central Idaho, worrying those who love to ski, snowshoe and snowmobile, as well as those whose business it is to sell that winter recreation.

"We haven't been able to open," said Larry Davenport, mountain manager at Soldier Mountain in Fairfield on Monday.

While the mountain resort is also recovering from the fire that last year burned down the historic lodge, there hasn't been enough snow to pack and groom the runs.

"To be comfortable right now we should be to 36 or 40 inches of snow at the base," Davenport said, comparing that to the 21 inches outside his office. He's planning for a Jan. 28 opening. "We're already late opening and people are upset about that. There's no refunds for weather, that's the chance you take when you buy a season pass."

At Bald Mountain, which has many snowmaking machines, Sun Valley Resort is struggling with the perception that there's little snow in central Idaho, said spokesman Jack Sibbach. It's less than ideal that when visitors arrive in Sun Valley, they see hillsides that are half-bare.

"People are thinking that because there's not a great snowpack, that we don't have great skiing, but nothing could be further from the truth. It's very reliable, and the skiing has been great all season," he said.

However, regularly running snowmaking machines is also eating into the resort's budget. "It's quite a big cost, but you have to do it and we're glad we have the ability to do it," he said.

While operators of the sleigh rides through the resort have to be careful the runners aren't going through mud instead of snow, they're still getting customers out to the Trail Creek Restaurant. It's just not quite the "winter wonderland" experience some visitors may have come for.

The Pomerelle ski resort near Albion, on the other hand, has seen the heavier side of recent storms.

"We don't have a problem with snow this year," said Tommylu Dahl, a ticket seller at the resort, describing Pomerelle's base of 47 inches. Sympathizing with other resorts' plight, she offered a little gallows humor. "We've been getting their customers, so it's all good for us."

Compared to downhill skiing, some winter activities need less snow to provide a good time.

"We have a very good base and we've been maintaining it because of the colder temperatures," said Dorothy Wallace-Senft, ski shop director at Galena Lodge, where many Nordic skiers launch their outings north of Ketchum.

However, skiers who want to get off the beaten path have to be more careful this year.

"Our stability is a little poor, so you have to pick safe and conservative places to go," said Francie St. Onge, owner of Sun Valley Trekking. She said the backcountry is at about 60 percent of the snowpack it ordinarily would have at this time of year. "People still seem to want to go out to the huts and have a good time."

Hunters have through Friday to comment on proposed upland rules

By Andrew Weeks
Times-News writer

Hunters have through Friday to comment on proposed changes to upland game, furbearer and falconry seasons and turkey seasons.

The Idaho Fish and Game Commission will set seasons for the next two years during its Jan. 28 meeting in Boise.

Proposals include changing the shooting hours on opening day of pheasant season in Areas 2 and 3; requiring non-toxic shot for waterfowl, upland game and turkeys on nine wildlife management areas; and starting the youth-only turkey season seven days before the general turkey season opener.

Other proposals may be viewed at Fish and Game's Web site.

So far the public's response has mostly been positive, said Kelton Hatch, Fish and Game's regional conservation educator.

"We got quite a few people to fill out surveys," he said, noting that others who'd like to comment need to submit them by Friday.

Last week, about 40 people visited the regional office in Jerome for an open house and chili feed. People commented on the proposed changes and had their fill of chili.

"There were a lot of venison, moose, elk — a lot of different flavors and variety," Hatch said.

The strangest dish was a chocolate chip chili.

"I didn't even try that one," he laughed.

Hatch said hunters should stay tuned for another meeting in February, this one about big-game proposals. Three meetings will be held in Burley, Jerome and the Wood River Valley.

Dates have not yet been set, Hatch said, but issues will concern local and state issues.

Gearing up for Patagonia

My plane ticket is booked. The training schedule I've committed to for months is winding down. The great adventure that is the Wenger Patagonian Expedition Race, a week-long endurance event through Tierra del Fuego, Chile, kicks off Feb. 9. I'd be a liar if I said I wasn't scared.

Indeed, this race is the most ambitious — some might say crazy! — event I have ever signed on to do. My four-person team will trek, bike, kayak and climb in the forests and mountains of Patagonia for days on end. The race course will likely crest 400 miles in length.

But at least I should have the right gear for the job. Over the past two months, I've combed catalogs and phoned fellow gear junkies to come up with a best-of-the-best kit of equipment to battle exhaustion and the elements in the wilds of Patagonia.

As with most adventure races, the primary disciplines in Patagonia will be mountain biking, wilderness trekking and kayaking. We will go for days between supply stops, toting food, sleeping bags, tents, outer-wear, and survival gear in backpacks. We'll drink water from streams. We'll sleep a couple hours each night in the bush.

On long races, speed of travel can be compromised by heavy gear. But too little gear is unsafe. For Patagonia, my team will attempt to ride that razor-edge middle line. We will go as light as possible — but not so light that our gear could be inadequate in a time of need.

For example, ultra-light tents from Terra Nova Equipment will provide shelter at night. Our team tents, two Terra Nova Laser models, weigh less than three pounds apiece when packed up. But feathery materials and minimalist design — including silicized nylon fabric and needle-like tent pegs made of titanium — allow the company to create a waterproof shelter that can keep nasty weather at bay.

THE GEAR

On my feet, I will wear waterproof boots for much of the race. But the Inov-8 Roclite 288 GTX — a high-top with a flexible sole and sticky-rubber tread — weigh half what traditional hiking boots might clock on a scale. With such lithe boots, you trade some support and protection for faster feet. It's worth it in a race.

Finding the right outer-wear and apparel for Patagonia is a major challenge. My team has decided on tops and base layers from Ibex Outdoor Clothing. The company uses a fine merino wool that is viable across a range of temperatures. It retains some warmth when wet. It breathes when your body is hot. After years of testing every type of fabric on the market, old-fashioned wool is still a top choice when I race.

My mountain bike, the Giant Anthem X1, is a fast and speedy iron steed.

This high-end bike has dual suspension to take in the bumps. But for long cross-country segments, it is made to be efficient on flat ground and long climbs. I have ridden the X1 for three months of training and have come to appreciate its mutability across a spectrum of trail types.

In icy Patagonian waters that might include the Strait of Magellan and the Beagle Channel, my team is not compromising on the gear. We will paddle two-person Necky Amaruk kayaks and stay outfitted the entire time in dry suits and hoods. We will paddle with gloves and booties on. The waterproof suits — Kokatat's Gore-Tex Front Entry models — should keep us safe in the worst case of a capsized in the waters at the end of the world.

Beware of avalanche dangers, expert says

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

Yes, you want to pay attention to whether the terrain is capable of producing an avalanche. And you want to know whether there's a weak layer of snow in the snowpack.

But perhaps the most important consideration of all is knowing how you make decisions in risky situations.

Most avalanche victims had the skills and knowledge to avoid trouble. But they still triggered the slide that killed them or their partners, avalanche researcher Ian McCammon told more than a hundred skiers, snowboarders and snowmobilers gathered at nexStage Theatre in Ketchum last week.

McCammon is an engineer who used to design sensory systems for robotics and aerospace systems for organizations like NASA and the Department of Defense. But several years ago he began applying his engineering tools to study snow mechanics — a study that led him to teach advanced avalanche assessment classes for organizations like Sun Valley Trekking.

Recognizing clues in the snow that can help you decide whether to ski or snowmobile a slope is simple. But, McCammon said even those with the most advanced knowledge about avalanche terrain and other risk factors don't make their decisions methodically.

One study determined more than 80 percent of avalanche accidents involve decision-making errors.

Most accidents, for instance, occur on slopes that are very familiar to the victims, McCammon said. When skiing unfamiliar terrain, people with avalanche knowledge appear to use risk-reduction skills to their advantage. But in familiar terrain those with advanced avalanche knowledge tend to expose themselves to the same level of hazard as those with less or no training, taking chances they might not otherwise take.

The desire to be accepted or admired for your exploits also plays a powerful role. And knowing another group is headed for the same untracked slope you're wanting to ski prompts skiers to take higher risks. So does the thought that if you don't ski it this weekend you might not get another chance this season.

Ironically, the presence of women in a group appears to prompt men to take higher risks than they would take in a group containing all males.

"Identify the weak layers in your decision-making process. Know where you're likely to make the wrong decisions," McCammon said. "One criteria for me is skiing with people who listen."

McCammon's talk resonated with many of those in the audience, including longtime backcountry skier Tina Cole.

"There are a lot of terrain factors to consider. But there are also warning signs when it comes to human factor," she said. She pointed to a video taken from the viewpoint of a skier who ended up being buried in an avalanche. "In the video, one of the guys said: 'Do you want to go first?' That's a warning sign right there."

The Sun Valley Ski Patrol has triggered several impressive slides in The Bowls on Bald Mountain during the past few weeks. And major cracks rippling through the off-piste snow on other parts of the mountain also illustrate the instability of this year's snow.

A slab on top of very weak snow is slowly developing, said Janet Kellam, director of the Sawtooth National Forest Avalanche Center.

"Right now we've got brick on potato chips," she said referring to a scenario that could easily result in an avalanche. "We need a couple big storms to stabilize the snow conditions. Or a rain where everything gets sloppy and then freezes."

Unlikely Marysville, Calif., duo bringing duck 'app' to iPhone

By Nancy Pasternack
Appeal-Democrat

MARYSVILLE, Calif. — Harry Cheim, 45, doesn't know "beep" about technology. Zak King, 27, doesn't know "quack" about duck hunting.

But together, they just might have something.

The two Marysville businessmen are on track for approval of their first iPhone application — a site that gives start and stop times each day and in any location for hunting waterfowl legally.

"Say you're planning a trip with your buddy ..." begins Cheim from behind his desk at Ace Hardware and Union Lumber Co. He explains the site's GPS and weather forecast functions, and other details that duck hunters with iPhones may soon have available for $4.99.

Apple's take is 30 percent; the local guys get the rest.

Cheim's office is a duck hunter's play room. Framed photos display guys in camouflage holding dead mallards. Waterfowl-populated landscapes dress the walls, and a pair of well-worn waders lie in a heap by the door.

Cheim teases King, a young entrepreneur who once worked for him in the store.

"What have you got for me this time?" he asks whenever King calls.

King, admittedly, isn't much of an outdoor guy. But his King Clothing, a T-shirt printing business and line of designer streetwear, is thriving, and he owns a series of breathalyzer machines that bar patrons pay to use in several local and Chico locations.

He talks about opening a bagel store, and has had ideas for dozens of other iPhone applications.

His girlfriend, who also owns a local business, tires of the daily barrage, King says.

"I just ramble about all this stuff," he says. "She finally said, 'I don't want to hear another app idea until you get a check from Apple.'"

Cheim laughs. The two are making final revisions to their site, which includes work from a Web site developer in Florida at a cost of $2,600.

They expect to get approval from the iPhone officials at Apple within the next few weeks.

Neither Cheim nor King own iPhones. King had to purchase an Apple computer just to get in on the application development game.

But the investment won't go to waste, Cheim says.

"I'm sure he'll have many more apps in life," he says, nodding at his partner.

This is the third season at the resort for Kolby Tatton, who was on the mountain with his brother Justin and 5-year-old nephew, Tyson. Tatton enjoys all of his hats, but says he most likes the opportunity to help others through ski instruction. He was easy with smiles as he helped Tyson aboard the ski lift.

"He loves it," he said about his nephew. "He's doing awesome."

The trio nearly had the mountain to themselves, as only a handful of visitors used the slopes Jan. 7 — some on skis, most on snowboards.

There were differences of opinion on what is most popular at the resort, skiing or snowboarding.

Mike Ward, who started working at the resort just this season, said he thinks there are more snowboarders; Fowler says he believes there are more skiers.

That was enough to make him choose boarding.

The resort rents both skis and snowboards as well as snow bikes, and the mountain offers terrains from a bunny hill to expert tracks. The resort also has a five-lane tubing hill, two which have been added this year.

Though the snow was a bit crusted with ice on Thursday, not fluffy from fresh powder, it was a blue-sky day and still a great time to get outdoors.

Because of the conditions so far this year, what snow has fallen has created a weak base layer, so anyone who wishes to go into that backcountry is advised to choose conservative paths and travel cautiously.

"We would always recommend people check with the avalanche center before going out," said Phil Morrissey, hydrologist with the Boise branch of the National Resources Conservation Service.

He said Idaho recreation will be affected by this winter's lack of snow well after that snow is just a memory.

"Although there might be less water, there should be good boating opportunities," he said. That will mean less high and potentially dangerous water in the spring, but drier runs for river rafters and others later this summer.

NO LINES, NO LIFTS

Cross country ski trails at Magic Mountain and beyond

By Blair Koch
Times-News correspondent

HANSEN — The Magic Mountain Snowshoe Trail may be just a mile loop, but it’s pure peace when you’re in the middle of it.

First-time cross country skiers got a taste of winter’s pristine nature during a free-ski day Saturday, hosted by the High Desert Nordic Association.

Husband and wife Mase, 40, and Michelle Scott, 38, of Paul put on classic cross country skis during the event and said the experience was one they wanted to repeat.

“We came to take the kids tubing and were just going to watch, but we saw the event and up and decided to give it a try,” Michelle Scott. “We’d talked about coming and trying the skiing in the past but never made it. It’s fun.”

“If we can figure it all out,” Mase Scott added.

With no other skiers on the loop the couple’s skis could be heard slicing through the groomed snow as they made their way around the bend.

Nordic Association president and long-time cross country skier Dale Stewart said the winter recreation area south of Hansen has excellent (and occasionally groomed) trails for traditional, a little Nordic and cross country.

The Association regularly skis the seven trails within the South Hills Cross Country Ski Trails system. A major perk — day use is free.

For a detailed trail map, visit the group’s Web site at skihdna.org.

BLAIR KOCH/For the Times-News
Mase Scott, 40, and his wife Michelle Scott, 38, of Paul, try out cross country skiing Jan. 9 on the Magic Mountain Snowshoe Trail, a relatively easy trail designed for snowshoers but a great one-mile loop for beginner skiers.

For a detailed list of cross country opportunities throughout Idaho: www.visitidaho.org/winter/cross-country-skiing

Regardless of the style, cross country is a great way to get moving. Skiers use each major muscle group and is an efficient activity for burning calories.

“It’s real good aerobic exercise,” said Association member Susan Waters. “Plus, there’s no fighting lift lines. You just get out in nature and do your thing.”

Getting started can be cheaper than conventional downhill skiing.

River Rat Manager Tony Tucker said XC equipment sets — skis, bindings, poles and boots — start around $225. For niche equipment, like Alpine Touring, the cost is upwards of $1,300.

“You can find used sets, cheaper,” Tucker said. “It all depends on what you want.”

Southern Idaho has many popular places to cross country ski.

The Blaine County Recreation District recently opened a series of Nordic trails three miles north of Ketchum. There is a day fee but trails are suitable for novice to expert.

An “underutilized gem” is the seven-mile main-road-turned-ski-loop in winter at Craters of the Moon National Monument and Preserve, said Chief of Interpretation Ted Stout.

“The conditions are quite good for classic and skate skiing,” Stout said. “Since there is no vehicular traffic on the main road during the winter skiers can travel along the road any direction they wish.”

Skiers can watch for signs of wildlife along the trail.

“There are always rabbit, fox, coyote and red squirrel tracks to be found,” Stout said. “You probably won’t see much wildlife but their signs are everywhere.”

This ski area also is free, as the park waives its $8 per vehicle entry fee during the winter months.

The monument is located 18 miles southwest of Arco.

“We’re glad when anyone comes in the winter because it really is a great place to visit,” Stout said. “When people get here and experience the conditions they are really pleased with the skiing.”

Distant stellar explosion probes space on the tiniest scales

While atom smashers, like the new Large Hadron Collider, are one of the best ways for physicists to probe the nature of matter and the micro world, a recent detection of gamma rays from an explosion half way across the universe has provided a glimpse of the texture of subatomic space.

Last fall the Fermi satellite, launched in 2008, detected gamma rays from an ancient supernova explosion. Physicists have speculated that on extremely tiny scales (vastly smaller than an atom) space might not be smooth. We don’t notice it in every day life because the bumps in space are too small, like trying to feel the texture of sandpaper wearing winter gloves.

All energy — including radio waves, light, x-rays and gamma rays — comes in discrete bundles called photons, whose wavelengths shrink as their energy grows. Gamma rays have the highest energies and thus the shortest wavelengths. A typical gamma ray’s wavelength is too large to “feel” space’s tiny bumps, cruising right over them like they’re not even there. But the most energetic gamma rays have incredibly short wavelengths, possibly short enough to probe space’s tiny contours.

All photons, Einstein tells us, travel at the same speed. So a low energy gamma ray, skimming right over the tiny wrinkles, should arrive a little sooner than its high energy counterpart, which has to navigate every minuscule hill and valley in space’s texture.

Except that’s not what Fermi found. Two gamma rays of different energies, emitted at the same time from a supernova seven billion light years away, arrived essentially simultaneously in the satellite’s detectors. Since no measurement is infinitely accurate, the result only places an upper limit to the size of space’s imperfections. ## Sun Valley celebrates National Safety Week

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

Sun Valley is making safety fun.

The ski resort is celebrating National Safety Week with free contests, terrain park tours, prizes and more Saturday through Friday, Jan. 22.

The resort is offering free mountain ski tours with an emphasis on safety at 10:30 a.m. each day that week except Tuesday and Thursday. The tour meets at the top of Baldy.

There’ll be a game of Mountain Trivial Pursuit with questions asked at the bottom of each chairlift and answers offered at the top. Prizes will be given for correctly answered questions on safety.

Skiers and boarders will be offered a tour through Dollar Mountain Terrain Park with local pros, terrain park staff and special guests each day. Tour goers can sign up at Dollar from 10 to 11 a.m. each day for the 11 a.m. to noon tour or from noon to 1 p.m. for the 1 to 2 p.m. tour. The tour will be accompanied with a complimentary hot chocolate.

And Pete Lane’s Sports is offering a 20 percent discount on helmets.

In addition, the Sun Valley Ski Patrol, its avalanche dogs and Terrain Park personnel will go into Hemingway and Hailey elementary schools Tuesday and Wednesday to meet with third-, fourth- and fifth-graders.

Sun Valley’s Mountain Department, under the direction of Peter Stearns, came up with the idea, said Jack Sibbach, Sun Valley’s director of marketing. The Mountain Department is doing it in conjunction with the National Ski Association.

Ski Instructor Bonnie Wetmore said new ways are needed to get skiers and boarders to think about safety. It used to be that the Skier Responsibility Code was printed on lift tickets. But more and more people are using pass cards, which don’t include the code, she said.

Hunters still upset about gun-deer season

By Bob Lamb
La Crosse Tribune

LA CROSSE, Wis. — Deer hunters continue to let off steam about the 2009 Wisconsin gun-deer season.

Whether it’s at the gas station, grocery store, restaurant, pub or even church, hunters are not pleased with the state Department of Natural Resources.

For the record, gun-deer hunters killed 196,078 deer, a 29-percent decline from 2008. The harvest included 86,780 bucks, a 12-percent decrease, and 109,390 antlerless deer, a whopping 39-percent decline from 2008.

Hunters overwhelmingly said they saw fewer deer, and the kill obviously reflects that. It was the lowest total harvest since 1982 and the lowest buck kill since 1980.

Hunters killed between 320,000 and 350,000 deer each year between 2004 and 2007. The harvest dropped to 285,240 in 2008, before the drastic slump in 2009. In the DNR’s defense, it did issue fewer antlerless permits and suspended Earn-A-Buck areas of Wisconsin, which obviously would lead to a lower harvest.

“I hope the younger generations can realize the pleasures we had hunting over the years.

— Wisconsin deer hunter Ron Pearson

However, many hunters have told me that Earn-A-Buck, years of antlerless permits and multiple hunting seasons devastated the herd. The severe winter of 2007-08 didn’t help either.

Tom “Ozzie” Ostlund of Onalaska sent me an e-mail shortly after the nine-day gun-deer season.

“I have enjoyed deer hunting for 51 straight years, and 2009 will be the last in Wisconsin for me. No more licenses will be purchased,” he said.

Ostlund continued by telling me his family has owned 80 acres in Clark County since 1974, and the last two years six hunters have seen less than six deer.

“I have personally seen six wolves in the area, and bears have been seen on my land,” he said.

“Deer hunting years ago was more fun than any book could describe,” he said. “Our deer camp was what deer hunting was all about. We had two families with our dads and kids, and the dads are hunting and telling stories. I hope the younger generations can realize the pleasures we had hunting over the years. What a great tradition.”

Ron Pearson, at R&E Sporting and Avon Shoppe in Tomah, also has heard many complaints from fellow hunters. Pearson also expressed his own feelings.

“Really, this was the poorest hunt I can remember since I started hunting,” he said.

The 2009 gun-deer hunt also disappointed my youngest son, 19-year-old Evan, who incidentally had to pass up a 12-point buck and a six-point buck during an Earn-A-Buck season a few years ago.

“We see fewer and fewer deer every year,” said Evan, who hunted hard on opening weekend but saw only one deer, which he couldn’t get a shot at.

“Why don’t they just close the deer season for a couple of years?” Evan asked. “Then, maybe we’d see deer like we used to.”

I stopped at a vacuum cleaner shop last week, and the owner asked if there was any truth to the rumor that the DNR was closing the deer hunting season for a year.

Trust me, there will be a deer hunting season next fall.

And it won’t surprise me if we see fewer deer.

Upcoming outdoor events in south-central Idaho

Application period nears for spring controlled hunts

The application period for spring black bear controlled hunts starts Friday and runs through Feb. 15.

This year the application dates for the spring turkey controlled hunts have been pushed back and will be from Feb. 1 to March 1.

Spring turkey and spring black bear seasons start April 15, with some controlled hunts opening later. Leftover tags for spring turkey and bear controlled hunts go on sale April 1.

Hunters may apply for controlled hunts at any hunting and fishing license vendor, Fish and Game office or at fishandgame.idaho.gov.

Hunters must have a 2010 Idaho hunting license to apply.

Lion zone closes in Magic Valley

The Idaho Department of Fish and Game on Jan. 8 closed the mountain lion harvest season in unit 55 in the Magic Valley Region.

The season closed in the unit after six female mountain lions had been harvested. Other big game units in the state remain open. Consult the big game rules brochure for details or visit fishandgame.idaho.gov.

F&G Commission to start weekly meetings

The Idaho Fish and Game Commission will meet by conference call at 8 a.m. Feb. 4, continuing each Thursday until the end of the 2010 legislative session.

The meetings will be at the Idaho Department of Fish and Game headquarters at 600 S. Walnut St., Boise.

Commissioners will discuss legislation of interest to the commission, the Idaho Department of Fish and Game, Idaho wildlife and Idaho anglers and hunters.

Individuals with disabilities may request meeting accommodations by contacting the director’s office at Idaho Fish and Game directly at 208-334-5159 or through the Idaho Relay Service at 800-377-2529.

Tanner donates blankets for Eagle Scout project

Joseph Tanner from Scout Troop 49 recently donated eight toddler and four twin size blankets to Minidoka Memorial Hospital in Rupert. Tanner chose to make these blankets with help from his immediate family for his Eagle Scout project. The blankets were donated to the hospital to give to small children and babies who are cared for at or admitted to MMH for care. Tanner hopes his blankets will help provide comfort to small children while they are in the hospital.

Erwin honored for 103rd birthday

On Dec. 26, 2009, Annabelle Erwin, of Bruneau, attended the wedding of her granddaughter, Danise Mink Doty, where she was also honored on her 103rd birthday by Bruneau Ladies Aid, Bruneau Community Church, Cedar Crest Residential Care staff from Mountain Home and her family.

Erwin was born Dec. 26, 1906, in Eagle Grove, Iowa. After earning a teaching degree, she came to the Magic Valley to live with her uncle in 1927. She was employed in several one-room schools including SugarLoaf and North Shoshone.

She met Alan "Happy" Erwin of Richfield, and they were married in 1937.

Erwin

Subsequently, they farmed in Richfield, Appleton, Hagerman and Bruneau. Alan died in 1979.

Erwin has three married children, Sidney and Judy Erwin of Bruneau, Roy and Mary Erwin Mink of Worley, and Frank and Peggy Erwin of Hagerman. She is grandmother to eight and great-grandmother to nine.

Currently, Erwin resides at Cedar Crest Retirement Center in Mountain Home. She continues to be active in the Bruneau Community Church, the Bruneau Ladies Aid and monthly Bruneau Library programs.

She is an avid reader and enjoys corresponding with her young friends.

Stone honored for veterans mural

Twin Falls artist Gary Stone was recently awarded a Two-Star Ambassador Coin by U.S. Army Reserve retired Col. Jo Eyre as recognition for excellence in the creation and expansion of the Iraq-Afghanistan wars veterans memorial mural at Joslin Field, Magic Valley Regional Airport in Twin Falls.

"Gary's unselfish contribution in memorializing the men and women from Idaho who have given their lives in service to their country is deserving of this special recognition for excellence. He is truly an ambassador for the armed forces in our country", Eyre said while presenting the Two coin to Stone at a recent ceremony.

Get arthritis under control by eating the right things

DEAR DR. GOTT: Ten years ago, I was diagnosed with palindromic rheumatoid arthritis. I didn't want to take the medication, so I did a lot of reading. The first information I found is to avoid foods that worsen the condition. They're usually the ones you eat every day and think you can't live without. Corn was a major one for me,

ASK DR. GOTT
Dr. Peter Gott

and it's in many processed foods. I also found that alternating food families so that each was eaten only once every four days brought me relief. It takes some work to figure out what foods are in the same family, but there are sources.

I haven't had any problems for more than 10 years and no longer have to be so careful about alternating foods. I mentioned this to someone I knew who was having rheumatoid arthritis problems, too. He also found relief by avoiding the foods and drinks he consumed most often.

I mentioned this to my rheumatologist, and he said there were experiments being done with food and the condition. I don't know what they have discovered, but I do know this has been helpful to me. I hope it can help others.

DEAR READER: Palindromic rheumatoid arthritis disease is inflammation around joints, commonly affecting the fingers and knees. Pain often appears in two or three joints and might last up to three days and can be severe. Oddly, it can cease as quickly as an episode begins. The condition is characterized by joint stiffness, inflammation, warmth and pain.

Anti-inflammatory medicines may be ineffective for pain control; however, a physician may choose to prescribe methotrexate or hydroxy-chloroquine for better control.

Alternative control includes hydrotherapy, herbs and a proper diet.

Bringing up Ariel’s babies – all 18 of them

Powell (Wyoming) Tribune

POWELL, Wyo. — What is it like to have 18 large-breed puppies in your house for seven or eight weeks?

Mary Ann Ruggiero-Smith found out this fall and winter when her dog Ariel, a Leonberger, gave birth to what she says was a record-breaking litter of 18 puppies.

She described some of the many changes and impacts that eventful litter had on her life, and the life of her family.

Ruggiero-Smith initially cared for the puppies around the clock, with the help of her daughter, Angela, and, when his schedule allowed, her husband, Dr. Paul Smith. Grandchildren helped as well.

The women took turns sleeping in a bed in the puppy room at night while the person on duty remained awake to make sure the puppies were OK. They rotated the puppies, six at a time, to make sure each got a chance to nurse, and provided supplemental bottle feedings to the others every few hours.

“Sleep little for three days,” Ruggiero-Smith said.

Rather than use a prepared formula, Ruggiero-Smith chose to mix her own with canned milk, yogurt, Karo syrup and water.

The smallest puppy, a male, was weak and unable to nurse well.

“(He) just couldn’t keep up and was losing weight, unable to suck strong enough to get enough milk,” she said. “I tube fed him for a week and put him on Ariel every chance I could, milking colostrum into his mouth.”

Mary Ann Ruggiero-Smith, her granddaughter Kayleigh Knight and her husband, Paul Smith, sit in the middle of 18 Leonberger puppies in the Smith home in Powell, Wyo., on Dec. 12.

To perform the tube feedings, Ruggiero-Smith, who is a nurse, helped the puppy swallow a tube, through which she fed him formula directly to his stomach.

“This was done every two hours, then every four hours,” she said. “I would wake up around the clock to do the tube feedings.”

After one week, the puppy was strong enough that she was able to discontinue the tube feedings and feed him supplemental feedings with a bottle, along with his 17 siblings.

Eventually, Ruggiero-

Smith hired a temporary relief person to help with the demands of 18 puppies.

As the puppies grew, “We were supplementing the puppies with up to 2 gallons of formula, at which time we started to wean the puppies,” Ruggiero-Smith said. “Ariel was doing a great job, but she can only feed so many.”

By the time the puppies were 5 to 6 weeks old, they were eating 44 pounds of premium large-breed puppy food every three days. In other words, they were going through about 100 pounds a week.

As feeding time approached several times each day, the din from the puppy room grew louder and louder, until all 18 puppies were voicing their anticipation. Then Ruggiero-Smith would open a gate, and the puppies all tumbled through, gathering around three large feeding dishes.

All was quiet while they consumed their food quickly, then went back to their playful romping.

Of course, what goes in must come out. To deal with that end of the equation, Ruggiero-Smith lined the puppies’ area from the time they were born until they were about 5 weeks old with sheets, blankets and towels, which she changed several times each day.

“I did four to eight (washer) loads of clothes a day for the pups,” she said.

As the puppies became more mobile, Ruggiero-Smith made a large, lined area with bedding pellets for them to poop and piddle in.

“I would change this daily,” she said.

Anything that missed the blankets or potty area was cleaned by hand. “I purchased a lot of gloves and wet wipes to pick up and clean after the pups,” she said. “I also bleach-mopped my whole puppy room twice a day.”

Ruggiero-Smith kept the puppies in the puppy room by using a fence-like pen consisting of several stainless-steel-coated panels; as the puppies grew, she added panels until the pen was about 16 feet in diameter.

By the time they were 6-8 weeks old, the puppies used a dog door at the end of the pen to go outside, eliminating most of the need to clean up after them indoors.

Once outside, the puppies eagerly explored their new surroundings. They scattered throughout a fenced-in section of the Smiths’ backyard, running, smelling, listening and enjoying the outdoors.

But Ruggiero-Smith said she had no trouble gathering them when it was time to go back inside.

“Gathering the pups has become a joke among those who get my puppies,” she said. “Even after I haven’t seen these pups for a year, I would call them, ‘Kidzzzzzzz, kidzzzzzzz,’ and they come running.”

When the time came, Ruggiero-Smith or Angela met the puppies’ new owners at the Cody airport or delivered their puppies to them at their homes.

Now that the puppies have left for their own “forever homes,” Ruggiero-Smith said she’s feeling a bit of the empty-nest syndrome. Despite the seemingly never-ending messes, work and expense, she enjoys having puppies around.

The consumption of meat and dairy products is acceptable when combined with fruits, vegetables and an appropriate amount of water. When consumed inappropriately, dairy products can cause bloating, diarrhea and stomach pain. Stress and smoking can be detrimental to the condition.

A diet for those afflicted with rheumatoid arthritis should be restricted to no more than 2,000 calories daily with fruits, vegetables and protein being the foundation. If a primary-care physician cannot get a patient started in the right direction, the patient should ask for a referral to a rheumatologist and dietitian who can.

DEAR DR. GOTT: After 12 years of professional care and trying many home remedies, I began taking cod-liver-oil capsules daily, merely as a supplement. A month later, my dermatitis was gone and has not returned.

DEAR READER: Cod-liver oil is rich in omega-3 and other fatty acids, as well as vitamins A and D. It is purported to prevent arthritis, cancer and kidney problems, reduce muscle aches and pains, lower cholesterol readings and reduce type I diabetes in children.

The usual dose is 1 to 2 teaspoons daily. When it’s taken in excess, high blood pressure can result. As you have discovered, the product is available in several forms, including the easy-to-take capsules to which you refer. And it certainly appears you have found the proper dose for treating your dermatitis. Perhaps other readers can benefit from this useful tip. Thank you for writing.

Marjorie Pauline Minert King

PAUL — Marjorie Pauline Minert King was born Feb. 19, 1915, in Asotin, Wash., to Horace Minert and Lily Campbell Minert. Marjorie died Jan. 11, 2010, in Paul, Idaho, at the home of her daughter, Ann, surrounded by her loving family.

She grew up on a Kennewick, Wash., farm on the banks of the Columbia River and loved to work out of doors tending the fields alongside her widowed mother, Lilly, and her Grandpa Campbell. She graduated from Kennewick High School and continued on to Kinman Business University in Spokane, Wash., earning her business degree in 1938. Marjorie met Kenneth Dean King at a United Service Organization dance and they were married in 1939 at the First Methodist Church in Spokane on her 24th birthday.

Marjorie and Kenneth spent their early years together in Moscow, Idaho, while he attended the University of Idaho. Upon completion of his degree, he entered military service in World War II in the Pacific Theater. Marjorie was a supportive wife during the war years and a courageous young mother. After the war ended in 1945, Marjorie and Kenneth settled on the family dairy in Wendell, Idaho. In 1957, daughter, Ann, filed homestead papers on behalf of veteran father, Kenneth, and the family was awarded 160 acres through the Minidoka Homestead Project in 1958.

Marjorie always bloomed wherever she was planted, so she packed up Kenneth and her family of eight children and made her new home on the high desert. Marjorie loved her farm life as a business partner with Kenneth and as a busy mother. She was an intelligent person who passed on valuable problem-solving skills and strong Christian faith to her eight children and growing number of grandchildren.

Marjorie was preceded in death by her husband; her infant daughter, Mary Jane; and her son, Paul. Marjorie leaves behind children, Ann King Martinez Hollings, Wayne King, Howard King, Kristine King Hondo, Steven King, Joseph King and Lucile King Dille Scopinich. She is also survived by 22 grandchildren and 33 great-grandchildren.

Many thanks to Highland Estates staff, hospice caregiver Amanda, and Pam Ridge and Ashley Carter, who helped Ann care for Marjorie during her last days at home. In lieu of flowers, Marjorie's family suggests a love offering to Paul United Methodist Church. Peace be with you all who loved our mom.

The funeral will be held at 11 a.m. Saturday, Jan. 16, 2010, at the Burley United Methodist Church, 405 E. 27th St. Viewing for family and friends will be held from 6 to 8 p.m. Friday, Jan. 15, at the Hansen Mortuary Rupert Chapel and one hour prior to the service Saturday at the church. Services are under the direction of Hansen Mortuary Rupert Chapel.

HAZELTON — Steve Koch, 51, of Hazelton, passed away Monday, Jan. 11, 2010, at Minidoka Memorial Hospital from heart complications.

Steve was born Dec. 5, 1958, in Rupert, Idaho, to Mary Ann and Hurman Koch. He married Colleen Green on Feb. 2, 2008. He received his associate degree in mechanics and worked for Young Ford for two years, then he farmed. He enjoyed snowmobiling, fishing, ATV trail riding, motorcycles and football, especially the Indianapolis Colts.

Steve is survived by his wife, Colleen Koch of Hazelton; his daughters, Kristen Koch of Burley and Melissa Koch of Heyburn; his stepsons, Chris Green of South Jordan, Utah, and Jeremy (Barbara) Green of Logan, Utah; his granddaughter, Ashlynn Coombes; his mother, Mary Ann Koch of Paul; and his brother, Kevin (Shana) Koch of Paul. He was preceded in death by his grandparents, father and sister.

The funeral will be at 1 p.m. Friday, Jan. 15, at Hansen Mortuary Rupert Chapel, 710 Sixth St. A viewing for family and friends will be from 6 to 8 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 14, and one hour prior to the service Friday at the mortuary.

In lieu of flowers, donations may be made to the American Diabetes Association.

Harry McNutt Jr.

Harry McNutt Jr., 86, of Castle Rock, Wash., sailed west for the last time on Thursday, Jan. 7, 2010.

Originally from Idaho, Harry enlisted in the Navy in early 1941 and served in China for a short time before transferring to the USS Oglala at Pearl Harbor for further training.

The morning of Dec. 7, 1941, was interrupted by the Japanese attack, catching Harry out on the 1010 Dock, where the Oglala was moored alongside the cruiser Helena. A torpedo struck the Helena and caused her to roll over, which also capsized Oglala. Harry was injured during the attack, yet continued to render aid and assist in damage control and rescue activities. Harry recovered from his wounds and served throughout the war in the Pacific, most of which was aboard the cruiser USS Chester, which participated in many actions.

After the war, Harry returned to civilian life, married the former Violet Phipps of Fairfield, Idaho, and went to work at the Rainier Army Depot. Harry and Vi had two children, Rebecca and Rodney; both live in Oregon. Harry and Vi then relocated to the Pueblo Army Depot in Colorado and, later on, to White Sands, N.M.

Harry retired from White Sands Missile Range in 1980, just after the Mount St. Helens eruption, which resulted in flooding and mud slide damage to their planned retirement home on the Toutle River. After several years of rebuilding and restoration, Harry and Vi returned to the Toutle homesite where they resided until Harry's death.

He is survived by his wife of 59 years, Violet; a daughter, Rebecca; a son, Rodney; a sister, Mary Houlik; and four grandchildren. Preceding him in death were three brothers, Eldon, Ed and Harold; and a sister, Betty.

Harry was an interesting fellow. He was a pilot for several years, a mechanic and woodworker. He was a member of Chapter 3 of the Pearl Harbor Survivors Association in Vancouver, Wash., and Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 10435.

Fair winds and Godspeed, old sailor.

A private family gathering will be held. Harry's ashes will be scattered at Pearl Harbor at a later date. Cremation has taken place under the direction of Cascade Northwest Funeral Chapel at Green Hills Memorial Gardens and Crematory.

For obituary rates and information, call 735-3266 Monday through Saturday. Deadline is 3 p.m. for next-day publication. The e-mail address for obituaries is obits@magic-valley.com. Death notices are a free service and can be placed until 4 p.m. every day. ## Eileen Grace Cochrane Quesnell Eileen Grace Cochrane Quesnell, 90, of Twin Falls, died Tuesday, Jan. 12, 2010, at her home.

Born May 6, 1919, in Devil's lake, N.D., she was very proud that she earned a master's degree in education from the University of North Dakota, where she was also a member of the Gamma Phi Beta sorority. She married Harvey Quesnell on Aug. 17, 1943, in Devil's Lake, N.D. They farmed and ranched south of Twin Falls for 40 years together. Mrs. Quesnell was also an art teacher at Vera C. O'Leary and Robert Stuart Junior High schools, where she shared her passion for the arts with her students. Eileen loved her children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren. She enjoyed spending time with her family as well as traveling extensively with her husband prior to his death.

Surviving are two sons, Joseph (Marlene) and Michael (Valerie); and two daughters, Leslie Ann Schroeder and Marguerite (Jim) Astorquia. Nana is also survived by numerous grandchildren and great-grandchildren. She was preceded in death by her husband, Harvey; and two sons, Archie Gerald and an infant son, Thomas Harvey.

The family would like to thank Shirley Hansen for helping Leslie Ann with Eileen's care over the last six years. In addition, the service of Hospice Visions has been greatly appreciated.

A rosary and funeral mass will be held at St. Edward's Catholic Church on Saturday, January 16. The rosary will be from 10:30 to 10:50 a.m., with the mass to follow at 11 a.m.

The family suggests that memorial contributions be made to St. Edward's Catholic School. Arrangements are under the direction of White Mortuary "Chapel by the Park."

Jean Carroll, trailblazing female stand-up comic, dies

By Martin Weil
The Washington Post

Jean Carroll, 98, whose wry wit and caustic commentary helped make her one of the first women to succeed in stand-up comedy, died Jan. 1 at a hospital in White Plains, N.Y. She had congestive heart failure.

A veteran of vaudeville, nightclubs and television, Carroll was both role model and rapid-fire joker, quick to see the humor in the human predicament and happy to share her acerbic take on it.

At the peak of her career, she regaled audiences in New York's mammoth movie palaces on a schedule that sometimes required taking the stage in jewels and furs several times a day. In the 1950s, she made more than 20 appearances on "The Ed Sullivan Show," the variety hour that was one of the landmarks of early television.

Stand-up comedy puts the personality on display, with failure a constant fear and little protection but nerve, spontaneity and verbal dexterity. Once it was an almost exclusively male province.

Many of the women who dared enter the field found their role model in Carroll. Comedian Lily Tomlin has told of the inspiration provided by Carroll, assertive and independent "standing up ... telling jokes about her life."

Dipped in sarcasm, and delivered in rapid-fire style, the barbed comments offered by Carroll skewered human frailty and folly.

"People are never satisfied," she would say. Lawyers wanted to be doctors. "Single men wish they were married. Married men wish they were dead."

Or, she would discuss what she claimed was her own married life.

"Tonight you are really going to enjoy yourself," she quoted her husband as saying. "Why?" she answered, full of brass and bravado. "You leaving me?"

Or she might describe her satisfaction when her mother ended a visit, "and I could hit my own kids."

That was not the way women — even women in show business — talked in public 60 years ago. But audiences found it very funny.

Dennis Stock, photographer of iconic Dean image, dies

By Dennis McLellan
Los Angeles Times

Dennis Stock, a photographer best known for his iconic Life magazine photo of film legend James Dean walking through a rainy Times Square in a dark overcoat, has died. He was 81.

Stock, who was diagnosed with colon and liver cancer a few weeks ago and developed pneumonia in recent days, died Monday night in a hospital in Sarasota, Fla., said Mark Lubell of Magnum Photos.

"His singular most iconic image would definitely be his James Dean walking down Times Square with a cigarette in his mouth, because James Dean became an icon of a generation and that image represented so much to that generation," said Lubell, director of Magnum Photos, a photographic cooperative that Stock joined in 1951.

A native New Yorker and a Navy veteran who became an apprentice to Life magazine photographer Gjon Mili in 1947, Stock entered a Life magazine contest for young photographers in 1951 and won first prize for a series on immigrants.

Invited by legendary photographer Robert Capa to become an associate member of Magnum, Stock had early assignments in Paris before he began shooting the Hollywood scene.

Dean's first film, "East of Eden," had not yet been released when Stock met the young actor at a party in 1954 hosted by Nicholas Ray, who would direct "Rebel Without a Cause."

Stock didn't know Dean was an actor until he finished talking to him.

"It wasn't apparent in his appearance," he told the Sarasota Herald-Tribune in 2005. "He was not a neat dresser per se. He looked tired, but he was pleasant and interesting."

Stock went with Dean to a sneak preview of "East of Eden" in Santa Monica, Calif., but the actor stayed outside with his motorcycle while Stock watched the movie.

Overwhelmed by Dean's performance, Stock proposed doing a "visual biography" on Dean. "I knew this guy would take off," he recalled.

U.N. report says Taliban cause Afghan civilian deaths to soar

By Kim Gamel
Associated Press writer

KABUL — Taliban suicide bombings and other attacks caused Afghan civilian deaths to soar last year to the highest annual level of the war, a U.N. report found Wednesday, while deaths attributed to allied troops dropped nearly 30 percent. Many Afghans now blame the violence on the Taliban rather than foreign forces.

A decline in NATO killings of civilians has become a key U.S. goal for winning over the Afghan people. Public outrage over rising death tolls prompted the top commander Gen. Stanley McChrystal last year to tighten the rules on the use of airstrikes and other weaponry if civilians are at risk.

The United Nations said 2,412 civilians were killed in 2009 — a 14 percent increase over the 2,118 who died in 2008. Nearly 70 percent of civilian deaths last year, or 1,630, were caused by the insurgents, the report found.

NATO and allied Afghan forces were responsible for 25 percent of the deaths, or 596, the U.N. said, down from 39 percent, or 828, in 2008.

The remainder could not be attributed to either side: civilians caught in the cross-fire or killed by unexploded ordnance, according to the report.

More than half the civilian deaths were a result of suicide attacks and other bombings as well as assassinations and executions — despite an order last year by Taliban leader Mullah Mohammed Omar to avoid endangering noncombatants. The U.N. said Taliban attacks were mainly aimed at government or international forces but civilians can stumble into ambushes or be too close to a suicide bombing.

Afghans seen as supporting the government or the international community also were increasingly targeted.

A survey commissioned by ABC News, the BBC and ARD German TV found that 42 percent of 1,534 Afghan respondents now blame the violence on the Taliban, up from 27 percent a year ago, while 17 percent blame the U.S., NATO or the Afghan security force, down from 36 percent. The poll, conducted last month, has an error margin of plus or minus 3 percentage points.

A NATO spokesman, Col. Wayne Shanks, credited the military's new restraint for the decline in the number of deaths blamed on pro-government forces.

"We have tried to refocus our efforts in order to protect the civilian population, the Afghan people, because we need their support in order to break the back of the insurgency," he said.

Nevertheless, NATO airstrikes still killed 359 civilians in 2009 — 60 percent of the deaths attributed to pro-government forces and 15 percent of civilian deaths overall, according to the report.

President Hamid Karzai has frequently criticized use of airpower in populated areas, and a presidential spokesman said the best way to avoid collateral damage was to let Afghan forces take the lead in operations.

"We cannot guarantee what number the Taliban kill," spokesman Waheed Omar said. "We can at least bring down the number of casualties that we are causing in this war, and the number of casualties that happen unintentionally by the international forces during operations."

Regardless of which side is responsible for most of the carnage, many Afghans fear that the arrival of 37,000 new U.S. and NATO troops as part of President Barack Obama's surge will mean more fighting — and more bloodshed — this year.

Casualties among foreign forces have also been rising over the past year. In the latest deaths, four U.S. troops and a French soldier were killed Wednesday in separate attacks, according to NATO and the French government.

Belgian doctors give injured woman a new windpipe

LONDON (AP) — For more than 2½ years, Linda De Croock lived with constant pain from a car accident that smashed her windpipe.

Today, she has a new one after surgeons implanted the windpipe from a dead man into her arm, where it grew new tissue before being transplanted into her throat. The way doctors trained her body to accept donor tissue could yield new methods of growing or nurturing organs within patients, experts say.

The technique sounds like science fiction, but De Croock says it has transformed her life. She no longer takes anti-rejection drugs. "Life before my transplant was becoming less livable all the time, with continual pain and jabbing and pricking in my throat and windpipe," the 54-year-old Belgian told The Associated Press in a telephone interview.

Doctors at Belgium's University Hospital Leuven implanted the donor windpipe in De Croock's arm as a first step in getting her body to accept the organ and to restart its blood supply.

About 10 months later, when enough tissue had grown around it to let her stop taking the drugs, the windpipe was transferred to its proper place. Details of the case are in Thursday's New England Journal of Medicine.

ward for trachea transplantation," said Dr. Pierre Delaere, the surgeon who led the team that treated De Croock.

For years, De Croock lived with the pain and discomfort of having two metal stents propping open her windpipe. She went looking for doctors who might be able to help her and found Delaere on the Internet.

"I had always wondered, 'So many things are possible, why not a new windpipe?'" De Croock said.

Delaere and his colleagues, who had performed similar procedures on a smaller scale for cancer patients, agreed. Once the doctors had a suitable donor windpipe, they wrapped it in De Croock's own tissue and implanted it into her lower left arm. There, they connected it to a large artery to re-establish the blood flow.

De Croock said having a windpipe in her arm felt strange and uncomfortable. "It was packed in with gauze and my whole arm was in plaster," she said. "So it's not like (I could) peel potatoes."

For about eight months, she took drugs to stop her immune system from rejecting the new organ. Though some of the tissue from the windpipe's male donor remains, enough of De Croock's own tissue now lines the organ that she no longer needs anti-rejection medicines.

ASHLEY SMITH/Times-news

College of Southern Idaho redshirt freshman Josten Thomas says he's more humble these days, which is helping him adopt a team-first attitude.

Attitude makes the difference for TFHS

Here we are at the mid-point of the 2009-10 boys basketball season and two teams have separated themselves from the rest of the Great Basin Conference race.

With their first meeting approaching on Wednesday, the Twin Falls Bruins and Minico Spartans are tied atop the conference standings.

Other than that, the two teams have little in common. When Minico (7-3 overall, 3-0 GBC) walks into a gym, heads turn. With a pair of 6-foot-10 posts, long and athletic perimeter players and quick guards, these guys look like a basketball team.

Conversely, at first glance, Twin Falls (10-1, 3-0) looks like a misfit collection of 6-foot-1 linebackers and chess club members. They don't strike fear in opponents — that is, until the ball is tipped.

Twin Falls is a well-oiled butt-kicking machine. Minico is still learning to play with consistency.

What sets Twin Falls apart? Attitude, work ethic and a killer instinct.

The Bruins play bigger than they are. Their defense suffocates. They rebound mercilessly. They bring their lunch pails and play with a chip on their shoulders.

On Jan. 6 against Burley, the Bruins evoked the 30-point running clock rule on the Bobcats' home floor. It was the first time anyone had done that during coach Jack Bagley's tenure. Afterwards Bagley, who has won two state titles, said Twin Falls is the best team in the GBC, maybe even the state.

Minico had a chance to perhaps change Bagley's opinion last Tuesday. But after going up 28 points on the Bobcats in the second quarter, the Spartans let off the gas pedal and wound up winning by 18.

Consider the following quotes recently uttered by a Bruin and a Spartan.

Twin Falls player: "We definitely want to come out and prove that we're the No. 1 team in the state and get to that state title game."

Minico player: "I think we can go to state. I think we can get pretty far at state. My dream is to win a state title."

Notice the varying levels of confidence? That's the difference between a program that finished third at the Class 5A state tournament last season (Twin Falls) and a program that hasn't been to state in 30 years (Minico).

Twin Falls has "been there, done that" and knows what kind of day-to-day effort it takes. Minico is just starting to figure it out.

"It's fine to be 7-3... but it's not enough," Graefe said. "We want to be great, and we have to give great effort all the time. That's what we're working on. We're concentrating on playing hard every day."

There's a fine line between good and great — Minico is tiptoeing it while Twin Falls is performing the Riverdance on it.

And dancing all the way to the Idaho Center on March 6.

Metamorphosis

Thomas opens himself to change while growing as a player at CSI

By Mike Christensen • Times-News writer

Josten Thomas is an enigma. A status only complicated by his own admission he's a man of few words.

But slowly, steadily, a metamorphosis is occurring, one that is unveiling the mystery to reveal a new man with a new attitude.

Thomas admits one truth as readily as those who've watched him play: "You can see that I'm talented," he says.

That's beyond obvious. Thomas has all the physical assets to be a star — and not just at the JUCO level. But far too often the 6-foot-7 forward experiences ebbs and flows in his effort and focus during games, practices, possessions.

Plenty of factors could take blame for Thomas' personal roller-coaster: a rough upbringing, immaturity, a bad attitude. Thomas acknowledges all as adversely affecting his performance at times during a six-year span that saw him play at five different high schools before landing at the College of Southern Idaho last February.

He's doing his best to put it all behind him and shed the self-centered approach that's plagued his past play.

"I've become more humble," he says. "I'm looking at stuff way different from what I used to. I'm figuring out it's not always about Josten Thomas, it's about the team."

CSI head coach Steve Gosar acknowledges Thomas' progress but is taking a wait-and-see approach to what he feels is still a work in progress.

"There's a lot of things we can work on whether it's our basketball skills or mental toughness, it all factors in to us being good players," says Gosar. "And he's working at it. He's working at all aspects."

The personal transformation is one Thomas says he's experiencing alongside his teammates.

"With everybody's background on the team, everybody comes from a rough upbringing so it's hard to trust people," he says. "We started off with a bunch of scorers — 18 scorers. We eliminated some of them that were bad apples in Coach's eyes. Now we're turning scorers into defenders. And defenders got to start trusting each other."

Trust has been a challenge for Thomas. But with reason. After growing up in a "very, very rough" part of Washington, D.C., Thomas attended ninth grade at Montrose

Home, sweet home: CSI men, women host CEU

By Mike Christensen
Times-News writer

It's been a while. Too long really.

But the College of Southern Idaho men's and women's basketball teams are finally home to host Scenic West Athletic Conference games today and Saturday.

The Golden Eagles host the College of Eastern Utah tonight, with the women tipping off at 5:30 and the men following at about 7:30.

"It's nice to be at home," said CSI men's coach Steve Gosar, whose 11-7 team (3-5 SWAC) played eight of its last nine games away from CSI Gymnasium. "Hopefully we remember what the rims look like."

The CSI women haven't played at home since Nov. 28, contesting nine straight games away from home, including last week's road losses at North Idaho College.

"I think we'll bounce back," said CSI women's coach Randy Rogers. "Playing at home should be more of a comfort zone."

A needed one for both CSI squads.

The CSI men also dropped two games at NIC last weekend, leaving them three games out of first place in the SWAC. Eastern Utah (12-

Gosar knows his team needs a home win today and Saturday against Colorado Northwestern Community College to stay in the title hunt.

Free throws lift Bruin girls to win

By Bradley Guire
Times-News writer

Buckets weren't easy to come by at times for both the Wolverine and Bruin girls basketball teams Wednesday night, so it's a good thing for Twin Falls that its players had more fortune converting free throws in the fourth quarter.

After squandering a 15-point lead to let the Wolverines pull within four, Twin Falls defeated Wood River 41-32 at Baun Gymnasium. Bruin guard Allie Kelsey hit 6 of 8 fouls shots during the final period, while Josie Jordan and Jazlyn Nielsen each went 2 of 2 as Twin Falls. The Bruins finished 14-for-17 from the stripe.

"Our legs got tired (during the fourth), but we maintained composure," said Bruin guard Erin Grubbs-Imhoff, who scored 11 points. "We knew we had to get this win."

Both the Bruins (9-6, 3-4) and Wolverines (11-4, 3-4), along with Burley, are in the middle of the pack of the Great Basin Conference standings, and few weeks remain until tournament time.

Twin Falls started the game with 9-0 run and pushed the lead to 23-9 by the end of the half. Jordan said the run was instrumental in tempering Wood River's confidence.

The Bruins were held to four points in the third while Wolverine center Haylee Thompson helped cut the deficit by nailing a pair of layups and a putback. She finished with 12 points and nine rebounds, matching her counterpart, Nielsen, who finished with 10 points, nine boards and three steals.

Jordan added 11 points and seven steals for the Bruins, while Kaitana Martinez contributed 11 points, seven boards and two steals for Wood River.

Thompson expressed disappointment at her team's slow start.

"It's the same thing every game," she said. "We come out not so tough, and then we come out good (later in a game)."

Twin Falls boys roll past Filer

Times-News

Marcus Jardine scored 19 and Eric Harr added 13 to lead the Twin Falls boys basketball team to a 62-46 non-conference win at Filer on Wednesday.

The Bruins were up 32-17 at the half and pushed the lead to 22 after three quarters before Filer cut into the deficit over the final eight minutes.

Terrell Bailey led the Wildcats with 18 points, hitting four of the team's eight 3-pointers.

"I thought our kids played really hard. We played all man as opposed to all zone over there," said Filer coach Alex Wells. "We had a few breakdowns defensively, and we missed some open looks in the first half that might have changed the complexion of the game. I like that we lost by 38 or whatever there, and only by 16 here. That's a moral victory for us."

Wells was ejected in the third quarter after picking up his second technical foul and will miss the Wildcats' next game.

Filer (6-3) hosts Wood River and Twin Falls (10-1) hosts Highland, both on Friday.

HAGERMAN 44, OAKLEY 37

Dylan Brooks scored 16 points, and the Hagerman boys basketball team dominated the second half in taking a 44-37 win at Oakley on Wednesday. The Hornets led 28-19 at intermission, but "strayed from the game plan," in the second half as the Pirates switched up their defense to frustrated the home team.

Weston Cooper and Garret Critchfield each scored 10 for Oakley.

KIMBERLY 61, BUHL 55

The Kimberly boys basketball team made enough plays down the stretch to edge host Buhl 61-55 Wednesday in Sawtooth Central Idaho Conference action.

The Bulldogs led 36-26 at halftime, but Buhl held Kimberly to two points in the third quarter, rallying within 38-37. Buhl (4-5, 1-2 SCIC) led briefly in the final period before Kimberly pulled away.

Brian Crane netted 12 to pace the Bulldogs, while Derek Maloney and Nick Dame added 10 apiece. J.D. Leckenby's 16 points led Buhl, while Scott Harris scored 13 and Cader Owen 11.

No. 1 Texas remains perfect

AMES, Iowa — Freshman Avery Bradley scored 24 points, including 16 in the second half, and top-ranked Texas survived its first Big 12 road test of the season by beating Iowa State 90-83 Wednesday night.

Damion James added 23 points and 14 rebounds for the unbeaten Longhorns (16-0, 2-0), who opened the second half with a 16-4 run and never trailed again.

It was the Longhorns' first game as the top-ranked team, and for the second straight game Bradley led the way.

Bradley, who had a career-high 29 points in a win over Colorado on Saturday, shot 10 of 14 from the floor and added six assists, six rebounds and three steals.

Marquis Gilstrap had 20 points and 13 rebounds for Iowa State (11-5, 0-1), which lost its 16th straight to ranked opponents since 2006.

NO. 3 KANSAS 84, NEBRASKA 72

LINCOLN, Neb. — Sherron Collins scored 22 points and third-ranked Kansas bounced back from its first loss of the season with a victory over Nebraska.

The Jayhawks (15-1, 1-0 Big 12) won their conference opener for the 19th straight season, but the Cornhuskers (12-5, 0-2) put up a surprisingly good fight.

NO. 5 SYRACUSE 81, RUTGERS 65

PISCATAWAY, N.J. — Andy Rautins had a season-high 23 points, nine assists and eight rebounds and Syracuse overcame an inconsistent effort to beat Rutgers.

Wes Johnson added 11 points and 10 rebounds as the Orange (16-1, 3-1 Big East) posted their 10th straight win over Rutgers (9-7, 0-4) by getting double figures from five players.

Brandon Triche and Scoop Jardine added 12 points apiece for Syracuse which built a 23-point lead early in the second half only to see Rutgers close to within eight points before losing their fifth straight game.

NO. 7 MICHIGAN STATE 60, MINNESOTA 53

EAST LANSING, Mich. — Durrell Summers scored all but one of his 13 points in the first half and Kalin Lucas had 11 of his 14 in the second, helping Michigan State hold off Minnesota.

The Spartans (14-3, 4-0 Big Ten) moved into a first-place tie with Illinois in the conference and will host the Fighting Illini on Saturday.

NO. 8 DUKE 79, BOSTON COLLEGE 59

DURHAM, N.C. — Nolan Smith scored 24 points to help Duke bounce back from a weekend loss and beat Boston College.

Kyle Singler added 15 points for the Blue Devils (14-2, 2-1 Atlantic Coast Conference), who pushed ahead for good late in the first half and pulled away in the opening minutes after the break.

NO. 24 CLEMSON 83, NO. 10 NORTH CAROLINA 64

CLEMSON, S.C. — Trevor Booker scored 21 points, Demontez Stitt added 20 and Clemson broke a 10-game losing streak to North Carolina with a victory.

The Tigers (14-3, 2-1 ACC) hadn't beaten the Tar Heels (12-5, 1-1) in nearly six years, but used a first-half blitz to lead by 23 points and held on against one of their toughest Atlantic Coast Conference opponents.

NO. 10 WEST VIRGINIA 69, SOUTH FLORIDA 50

TAMPA, Fla. — Devin Ebanks scored 17 points and Darryl Bryant added 15, helping West Virginia overcome a slow start to beat South Florida.

Bryant had 13 in the opening half, when the Mountaineers (13-2, 4-1 Big East) erased an 11-point deficit. Ebanks scored 15 and grabbed six of his 11 rebounds after halftime, and West Virginia limited USF (10-6, 0-4) to two field goals over a 14-minute stretch to take control of the game.

NO. 13 WISCONSIN 60, NORTHWESTERN 50

EVANSTON, Ill. — Trevon Hughes scored 15 of his 16 points in the second half, hitting four 3-pointers in the final seven minutes to help Wisconsin pull out a victory over Northwestern.

Jason Bohannon led the Badgers (14-3, 4-1 Big Ten) with 19 points but it was the clutch shooting of Hughes that rescued Wisconsin.

NO. 16 PITTSBURGH 67, NO. 15 CONNECTICUT 57

HARTFORD, Conn. — Brad Wanamaker and Ashton Gibbs each scored 19 points and Pittsburgh won another Big East road game, beating Connecticut.

The Panthers (14-2) have now won seven straight games and are 4-0 in the conference, with consecutive road wins at No. 5 Syracuse, Cincinnati, and now UConn.

NO. 18 BYU 67, AIR FORCE 49

AIR FORCE ACADEMY, Colo. — Jack Emery scored 21 points to lead BYU to a win over Air Force, for the Cougars' 12th straight win. BYU (17-1, 2-0 Mountain West Conference) improved to 51-12 all-time against the Falcons (8-8, 0-3).

The Cougars held the Falcons to 18 second-half points after leading 36-31 at the half. BYU held Air Force to just 33.3-percent shooting from the field for the game and finished with a 38-28 rebounding advantage.

Bryant, Lakers bounce back

DALLAS — Kobe Bryant went from having a slow night because of a sore back to nailing the game-winning jumper with 28 seconds left, lifting the Los Angeles Lakers to a 100-95 victory over the Dallas Mavericks on Wednesday night in a matchup of the top two teams in the Western Conference.

Bryant had only 10 points on 5-of-11 shooting, but Andrew Bynum had 22 points and 11 rebounds, Lamar Odom had 18 points and 14 rebounds, and Ron Artest had 16 points and 11 rebounds to help the Lakers end a three-game road losing streak.

Dirk Nowitzki scored 30 points for the Mavericks to become the 34th player in NBA history with 20,000. Jason Kidd added 11 points and 11 assists.

CELTICS 111, NETS 87

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Paul Pierce scored 24 points, Ray Allen added 15 points and Rajon Rondo had 11 points and 14 assists for Boston.

The Celtics made made 10 of their first 11 shots and barely slowed up from there, building a 36-point lead during its highest-scoring first half of the season (73).

Yi Jianlian scored 19 points and Brook Lopez had 18 points and 10 rebounds for the Nets (3-35), who lost their sixth straight and 11th in a row against Boston.

ROCKETS 120, TIMBERWOLVES 114, 3OT

HOUSTON — Aaron Brooks scored a career-high 43 points and Chuck Hayes grabbed a career-best 17 rebounds as Houston won its 10th straight against Minnesota.

Al Jefferson pulled down a franchise-record 26 rebounds and scored 26 points for the Timberwolves, playing the team's first ever three-overtime game.

The Rockets led most of the way, but Corey Brewer swished a half-court shot as the buzzer sounded in regulation to tie it at 89 and force an unexpected overtime period.

NUGGETS 115, MAGIC 97

DENVER — Carmelo Anthony scored 27 points and Chauncey Billups added 24 to lead Denver to its fourth win in five games.

Matt Barnes scored a season-high 28 points for Orlando, which played its third straight without leading scorer Vince Carter, who separated his shoulder last week.

PACERS 122, SUNS 114

INDIANAPOLIS — Danny Granger scored 33 points and Mike Dunleavy added a season-high 30 to help Indiana win after the Pacers trailed by 24 points in the first half.

Earl Watson added 14 points and nine assists for the Pacers, who were down 23 against Toronto on Monday before rallying for a victory.

HAWKS 94, WIZARDS 82

ATLANTA — Joe Johnson scored 24 points and Jamal Crawford added 22 to help Atlanta hold on for its third straight win.

Antawn Jamison scored 25 points for the Wizards, who lost their third straight and seventh in nine games as the team tries to play through problems related to Gilbert Arenas' suspension.

HORNETS 108, CLIPPERS 94

NEW ORLEANS — Chris Paul had 15 points and 15 assists to lead New Orleans Hornets to its seventh win in eight games.

Peja Stojakovic, hitting at least four 3-pointers in a game for the ninth time this season, scored 20 points to help New Orleans beat the Clippers a 12th consecutive time.

SPURS 109, THUNDER 108, OT

OKLAHOMA CITY — Rookie DeJuan Blair set new career highs with 28 points and 21 rebounds, and Richard Jefferson hit the game-winning jumper in overtime for San Antonio.

Jefferson ended up with the ball after the Spurs' play went awry, with Manu Ginobili diving out of bounds to save an errant pass that bounced off of Antonio McDyess. George Hill then passed it to Jefferson, who beat the shot clock with a 13-foot jumper with 9.1 seconds left.

KNICKS 93, 76ERS 92

PHILADELPHIA — David Lee scored 24 points and hit the game-winning layup with 13.3 seconds remaining, and Wilson Chandler added 18 points for New York.

Titans RB Johnson voted AP's top offensive player

NEW YORK — That blur speeding away from opposing defenses and running off with The Associated Press 2009 NFL Offensive Player of the Year award is Chris Johnson.

Considered the fastest man in pro football, Johnson was uncatchable in setting a league mark for yards from scrimmage (2,509) and becoming the sixth player with a 2,000-yard rushing season.

He is the first NFL player to finish with at least 2,000 yards rushing and 500 receiving (503).

That earned the second-year pro 38½ votes Wednesday from a nationwide panel of 50 sports writers and broadcasters who cover the NFL. Johnson easily beat New Orleans quarterback Drew Brees, who received nine votes.

"I kind of realize what I did and I feel like I had a dream season," said Johnson, who scored 16 touchdowns (14 rushing), second to Minnesota's Adrian Peterson, and tied the NFL mark with six consecutive games rushing for at least 125 yards.

Johnson, who has run a 4.2 40 and believes he'll remain the NFL's fastest player unless a team signs Usain Bolt, has bigger dreams, too: breaking Eric Dickerson's single-season rushing record of 2,105 yards, and winning the league MVP award.

"I didn't even get one vote at all (for MVP)," Johnson said. "Like the season I had, it seemed like, 'What more do they want me to do?' That just felt like rookie of the year; it's a quarterback thing I guess."

CRENNEL TO BECOME DEFENSIVE COORDINATOR FOR CHIEFS

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Just call them the Kansas City Patriots.

When they take the field next year, they Chiefs will have the same defensive coordinator, offensive coordinator and top front office executive who helped lead New England to three Super Bowl titles between 2002-05.

Tennessee Titans running back Chris Johnson ran away with The Associated Press 2009 NFL Offensive Player of the Year award announced Wednesday.

Throw in quarterback Matt Cassel, who backed up Tom Brady with the Patriots, and the New England-Kansas City connection becomes even stronger as Scott Pioli attempts to reverse the fortunes of the long-suffering Chiefs.

Romeo Crennel, the defensive coordinator on the Patriots' Super Bowl teams, agreed Wednesday to join the Chiefs in the same capacity, his agent said. Crennel, who was out of football this past season following hip surgery, will be reunited with Charlie Weis, who was New England's offensive coordinator and agreed last week to take that job with the Chiefs.

They'll be working for Pioli, who one year ago resigned as Patriots personnel director to become general manager of the Chiefs. One of Pioli's first acts was to trade for Cassel and make him the foundation quarterback for his long-term rebuilding project in Kansas City.

Crennel's agent, Joe Linta, said Crennel would begin working for the Chiefs in a "couple of weeks" after attending to some family business and coaching in the East-West all-star game. The Chiefs declined comment.

PATRIOTS LB JUNIOR SEAU RETIRES AGAIN

FOXBOROUGH, Mass. — Junior Seau is retiring again and looking ahead to more time on his surfboard.

The 12-time Pro Bowl line-backer, who came out of retirement to rejoin the New England Patriots in their sixth game this season, said in remarks taped for broadcast Wednesday night on Showtime that he's ending his career.

Seau played eight games for the Patriots this season, all as a backup, finishing with last Sunday's 33-14 playoff loss to Baltimore in which he made a season-high five tackles.

"That's going to be my last game," he said during the interview taped on Wednesday.

That was more definitive than comments earlier in the interview when he said, "I'm going to go surf. ... Whatever happens, I can say, honestly say, that that probably was my last game."

Seau first left football briefly in August 2006 after 13 seasons with San Diego and three with Miami.

BARBER MISSES PRACTICE, COWBOYS HOPE HE'LL PLAY

IRVING, Texas — Cowboys coach Wade Phillips has a good reason to believe running back Marion Barber will do everything possible to overcome a knee injury in time to play a second-round playoff game in Minnesota.

"He's been mad at me the last two years because I didn't let him play in the preseason game there," Phillips said, chuckling. "So I know he wants to play there just from that."

Barber has never played in his home state as a pro, and the high stakes of Sunday's game are further incentive. However, he is dealing with a sore left knee that limited him to three carries this past weekend and forced him to miss practice Wednesday. He was the only Dallas player unable to participate.

He was well enough to go through a morning walk-through. Phillips said he's hoping Barber will practice today.

"I think he's better," Phillips said. "I don't think it got worse (playing on it Saturday night). We thought he was OK, but he wasn't quite ready."

NFL playoffs: Scoreboard watching can be dizzying

By Barry Wilner

Associated Press writer

The Saints' 13-3 record earned them home-field advantage throughout the NFC playoffs, and they are 6½-point favorites against the Cardinals. But the Saints struggled down the stretch, not coming close to the form of the first half of the schedule and losing their final three games.

They've said all the right things about being ready when the biggest games come, and now it's time to put up.

Certainly the Cardinals put up last week: 51 points against Green Bay. The problem was they allowed 45 and were forced to overtime to get the victory.

Arizona's defense isn't quite as bad as Aaron Rodgers and his receivers made it appear. Then again, as strong as Green Bay can be with the ball, Drew Brees and the Saints are better.

Kurt Warner's history of success in the postseason is exemplary, and he passed for five touchdowns last week. Warner did so against a far superior defense to what New Orleans has.

Plus, the Cardinals have developed a nice complement with their running game, thanks greatly to rookie Beanie Wells.

It all adds up to another scoring frenzy, although not quite on the record pace of last week in the Valley of the Sun.

DALLAS (PLUS 3) AT MINNESOTA

The Cowboys stormed into the playoffs, something new for them after more than a decade of disappointment. Their consecutive romps over Philadelphia to win the NFC East and then take a wildcard game should have everyone's attention — particularly Minnesota's.

Dallas matches up well with the Vikings, especially with QB Tony Romo apparently having shaken his big-game jitters. The offense has become multifaceted, with the speed of WR Miles Austin and RB Felix Jones making them game-breakers. On defense, the Cowboys have become more physical while remaining quick to the ball.

Minnesota, like New Orleans, was no world-beater in December, and Brett Favre hasn't been sharp. But the main area of weakness is a secondary that could have extreme trouble with Dallas' versatile passing game.

BEST BET: COWBOYS, 24-20

BALTIMORE (PLUS 6½) AT INDIANAPOLIS

The Colts placed themselves in the difficult position of needing to win it all to validate this season when they rested Peyton Manning and other regulars with a potential 16-0 record in the works. A matchup with the physical, run-oriented Ravens is not the perfect way for Indy to open its postseason.

Baltimore was so impressive in manhandling the Patriots and handing Tom Brady his first playoff defeat at home — and only home loss of the season — that some observers believe the 6½ points is far too generous.

It probably is too high, but the Ravens will need more from quarterback Joe Flacco and their special teams in this one. Weather won't be a factor, Manning and his buddies are rested and healthier, and they are on a mission in which they can't afford any slips.

N.Y. JETS (PLUS 9) AT SAN DIEGO

Rex Ryan's guys have become true believers in their coach's optimistic approach: Ryan claims the Jets should be favored to win the Super Bowl. The Jets, including rookie running back Shonn Greene and rookie quarterback Mark Sanchez, looked like anything but playoff novices at Cincinnati. Once again, the defense was staunch, which is the key for the Jets.

But they dominated a one-dimensional Bengals team, and the Chargers, winners of 11 straight, are anything but limited on offense. Star cornerback Darrelle Revis can't cover everyone in San Diego's deep receiving corps — at least we don't think he can — and no quarterback is hotter than Philip Rivers.

The Jets will need to open it up when they have the ball to keep up with charging San Diego, and that won't work.

CHARGERS, 24-16

RECORD:

Versus spread, 1-3 (107-130-3 season); Straight up, 0-4 (170-80 season)

Best Bet: 6-12

Christian School in Maryland. He admits now he was too immature to handle the trappings and travels that came with the school's elite basketball program.

While he spent just one season at Montrose, it did pay long-term dividends. He arrived at the school a skinny 6-foot-4 and 175 pounds but was soon put on the peanut butter plan, consisting of four peanut butter sandwiches a day, which helped mold an NBA-ready frame.

"Before I knew it, I was 210, then 220," says Thomas. "I started lifting hard and got to 240."

Stops at four more schools followed, including Progressive Christian Academy and National Christian Academy in Maryland. Through it all, Thomas spent time living with his AAU coach and mentor, Rob Jackson, after Thomas' mother and sister moved back to Georgia, Thomas' brief childhood home.

Thomas eventually divided his senior year between Mountain State Academy in West Virginia and God's Academy in Texas. While major college basketball programs like Memphis sought his talents, an issue with a class during his two years at National left him just short of NCAA Clearinghouse standards. That's when Gosar came calling.

But it wasn't smooth sailing when Thomas first arrived in Twin Falls last February.

"I was a hard to person to get along with because I say

Beyond that, Thomas' tendency to take plays off frustrated the CSI coaching staff.

"When I first came here, I didn't have the best attitude," he says. "I wasn't able to play defense at all. But now you might see me take a charge."

The change came as Thomas bought into a saying Gosar has pushed into his players' minds: Hard work beats talent when talent doesn't work hard.

That message is starting to get through, evidenced by Thomas' effort in practice this work, which Gosar called the best of the season for the versatile forward, who is CSI's leading rebounder (8.7 rpg) and No. 2 scorer (14.7 ppg) behind fellow redshirt freshman Carrick Felix. Both Thomas and Felix are expected to sign with four-year programs after this season.

"I'm talented, but my talent alone's not going to take us to Hutch," Thomas says. "I've got to play hard and blend in and buy in to what Chuck (Odum) is doing, Carrick's doing, what Kenny (Buckner) is doing, everybody on the team all the way down to the redshirts."

Thomas believes that approach will take his current team to the NJCAA Division I National Tournament, and his career to the next level and beyond.

"A lot of people just want to get to the NBA," says Thomas. "I want to be productive in the NBA. Any school I go to next, I want to be productive. I don't want to get there and be the sixth or seventh guy off the bench."

"I want to be a guy that helps the team."

Lane change: Kiffin introduced at USC

LOS ANGELES — Lane Kiffin rolled into his dream job at Southern California with a wave of promises and praise, vowing to run a squeaky-clean program even while fending off questions about in staff's first few hours on the job.

Kiffin radiated California cool Wednesday even after arriving late to his first news conference because of traffic on the freeway after flying in from Tennessee. He abruptly left the Volunteers on Tuesday night after one 7-6 season.

"It's great to be back home," Kiffin said.

The longtime USC assistant coach said he couldn't pass up the chance to take the job he had identified as the nation's best a decade earlier, when he joined Pete Carroll's staff for six years as an assistant.

"This is a place that was very special to me for a long time," the 34-year-old Kiffin said in a packed room at Heritage Hall while his daughter, Pressley, lounged on a chair next to him. "It became obvious to me that this was the best place in America ... and this is the No. 1 job in America. I think it's a perfect fit."

Kiffin's staff committed several secondary NCAA violations during its 14 months in Knoxville. Now he joins a program laboring under a yearslong NCAA investigation that's expected to be resolved in the coming months.

Kiffin said he's dedicated "to running an extremely clean, disciplined program," saying his missteps in Tennessee will help his staff stay straight in Los Angeles.

TENNESSEE AD HOPES TO MOVE QUICKLY ON NEW COACH

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. — Disappointed Tennessee athletic director Mike Hamilton doesn't have anytime to waste replacing Lane Kiffin, whose abrupt resignation has left the Volunteers scrambling.

The AD said he'd like to have someone in place before Sunday, when coaches are allowed to begin live recruiting again.

Interim head coach Kippy Brown, tasked with holding together the program's recruiting class, would prefer to have someone in place even sooner than that.

"This is an absolutely critical time for our program as it relates to wrapping up the recruiting and signing date time, so we will work very diligently toward trying to bring closure to this process," Hamilton said Wednesday.

Jonathan Mills. Glover is averaging 15.9 points and 7.1 rebounds, while Mills adds 11.3 points and 8.8 boards. Sophomore guard Isiah Williams is also dangerous, netting 14.5 points a night.

"They've got a lot of length. All around, they're probably the biggest team in our league and they love to crash the offensive glass," said Gosar. "It could be a long night if we don't get a body on them."

CEU started league play 6-0 before losing two games last week. CSI, meanwhile, is hoping to halt a trend of losing tight games in conference play.

"We're really close," said Gosar. "We've got to find a way to get over the hump."

The CSI women (12-6, 4-11 SWAC) are facing teams sitting at the bottom of the SWAC standings, but are battling injuries and illness.

Kiki Lockett (foot) remains sidelined, while All-American Shauneice Samms has missed practice time this week with a sore ankle. Maddy Plunkett (flu) and Daidra Brown (knee) have also been slowed this week.

"You've got to play through it," said Rogers. "The good thing is it gives other kids opportunities."

While the CEU women are only 6-12 overall (2-6 SWAC), Rogers said they and Saturday's foe CNCC (2-12, 0-8) are "dangerous teams," that thrive offensively on dribble penetration, which CSI has struggled to defend.

Notes: Redshirt freshman Carrick Felix is the SWAC's leading scorer at 16.6 points a game and his performance has earned him ever-increasing recruiting attention. According to Scout.com, Felix recently received a scholarship offer from Duke. ... Gosar said sophomore guard Antonio Owens will be a game-time decision for tonight's game after sitting out last week due to a violation of team rules.

On Monday, May 10, 2010 at the hour of 10:00 o'clock A.M., of said day, in the office of Alliance Title & Escrow Corp. located at 1411 Falls Avenue East, Suite 1315, Twin Falls, ID 83301, Alliance Title & Escrow Corp., as successor trustee, will sell at public auction, to the highest bidder, for cash, cashiers check, certified check or tellers check, (from a bank which has a branch in the community at the site of the sale), money order, State of Idaho check or local government check, or cash equivalent in lawful money of the United States, all payable at the same time of sale, the following described real property, situated in the County of Twin Falls, State of Idaho, and described as follows, to wit:

All of Lot 12 except the East 15 feet thereof and all of Lot 13 except the West 30 feet thereof, in Block 4 of Niven Subdivision, Twin Falls County, Idaho, according to the plat thereof recorded in Volume 6 of Plats, Page 47, Records of said County.

THE TRUSTEE HAS NO KNOWLEDGE OF A MORE PARTICULAR DESCRIPTION OF THE ABOVE-DESCRIBED REAL PROPERTY, BUT FOR PURPOSES OF COMPLIANCE WITH IDAHO CODE, SECTION 60-113, THE TRUSTEE HAS BEEN INFORMED THAT THE STREET ADDRESS OF: 216 Borah Avenue West, Twin Falls, ID 83301, MAY SOMETIMES BE ASSOCIATED WITH SAID REAL PROPERTY.

If the successful bidder cannot provide the bid price by means of one of the above means of payment, the sale will be postponed for 10 minutes only to allow the high bidder to obtain payment in a form prescribed herein above. If the high bidder is unsuccessful in obtaining payment as directed within 10 minutes, the sale will be re-held immediately and any bid by the high bidder from the previous sale, will be rejected, all in accordance with Idaho Code 45-1502 et. Sec.

Said sale will be made without covenant or warranty regarding title, possession or encumbrances to satisfy the obligation secured by and pursuant to the power of sale conferred in the deed of trust executed by Dennis A. White, a married man as his sole and separate property, as Grantor to Alliance Title & Escrow Corp., as Successor Trustee, for the benefit and security of MetLife Home Loans, a division of MetLife Bank, N.A. as Successor Beneficiary, recorded January 12, 2009 as Instrument No. 2009-000665, Mortgage records of Twin Falls County, Idaho. THE ABOVE GRANTORS ARE NAMED TO COMPLY WITH SECTION 45-1506(4)(a), IDAHO CODE. NO REPRESENTATION IS MADE THAT THEY ARE, OR ARE NOT, PRESENTLY RESPONSIBLE FOR THIS OBLIGATION.

The default for which this sale is to be made is failure to:

Make principal and interest payments as set forth on said Deed of Trust and Promissory Note. The original loan amount was $171,905.00 together with interest thereon at the rate of 5.2500% per annum, as evidenced in Promissory Note dated January 6, 2009. Payments are in default for the months of July 2009 through and including November 2009 in the amount of $1,146.63 per month and continuing each and every month thereafter until date of sale or reinstatement. The principal balance as of November 26, 2009 is $171,111.06 together with accrued and accruing interest thereon at the rate of 5.2500% per annum. In addition to the above, there is also due any late charges, advances, escrow collection fees, attorney fees, fees or costs associated with this foreclosure.

The balance owing as of this date on the obligation secured by said deed of trust is $171,111.06, excluding interest, costs and expenses actually incurred in enforcing the obligations thereunder or in this sale, as trustee's fees and/or reasonable attorney's fees as authorized in the promissory note secured by the aforementioned Deed of Trust.

ORDINANCE NO. 668

AN ORDINANCE OF THE CITY OF GOODING, IDAHO, A MUNICIPAL CORPORATION OF THE STATE OF IDAHO, PROVIDING FOR THE DUTIES AND RESPONSIBILITIES FOR PLANTING, MAINTENANCE, AND REMOVAL OF TREES, SHRUBS, AND OTHER WOODY PLANTS WITHIN THE CITY OF GOODING, IDAHO, STATE OF IDAHO; PROVIDING THAT THIS ORDINANCE SHALL BE IN FULL FORCE AND EFFECT FROM AND AFTER ITS PASSAGE, APPROVAL AND PUBLICATION ACCORDING TO LAW.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT ORDAINED BY THE MAYOR AND CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF GOODING, STATE OF IDAHO:

Section 1. Title
This ordinance shall be known as the Gooding Tree Ordinance.

Section 2. Purpose and Intent
It is the purpose of this ordinance to promote and protect the public health, safety, and welfare by regulating and encouraging the planting, protection, maintenance, and removal of new and existing trees on public lands; increase the size and diversity and improve the condition of Gooding's urban forest; and enhance the desirability of Gooding as a place to live and do business.

Section 3. Definitions
For purposes of this ordinance, the following terms are defined as:
Public Property: Property owned by the City of Gooding whether in fee simple absolute, or implied or expressly dedicated to the public for present or future use, for purposes of vehicular or pedestrian traffic, or for public easements.
Park(s) and Public Places: All public parks, greenways, squares, commons, cemeteries, and lands owned by the City distinguished by individual names.
Private tree(s): All trees growing on private property within the city limits.
Public tree(s): All trees located on public property, including public right-of-ways.
Tree: Any woody plant which normally attains a height of 15 feet or more at maturity. Such plants may have single or multiple trunks, are often un-branched for several feet above the ground, and have a definite crown.
Tree Care Guidelines: The American National Standard for Tree Care Operations: Tree Shrub and Other Woody Plant Maintenance Standard Practices (ANSI A-300) published by the American National Standards Institute. Also tree care information developed by the International Society of Arboriculture and the National Arborist Association.
Certified Arborist: A person who is certified by the International Society of Arboriculture.
Tree topping: Severe cutting back of limbs within a tree crown to buds, stubs, or laterals not large enough to assume a terminal role within the crown and to such a degree so as to remove the normal canopy and disfigure the tree
Public nuisance: Any dangerous or unsafe tree or portions thereof on streets, in parks, on other public places or posing a hazard thereto. Any destructive or communicable disease or pestilence which endangers the growth, health, life or well-being of trees and other plants in the City.

Section 4. Establishing a City Tree Board
There is hereby created and established a Tree Board for the City of Gooding, which shall consist of four members, citizens and residents of this community, who shall be appointed by the Mayor with the approval of the City Council.

a. Term of Office: The term of the four persons to be appointed by the Mayor shall be three years, except that two of the members appointed to the first board shall be for only two years. In the event that a vacancy shall occur during the term of any member, his successor shall be appointed for the unexpired portion of the term.

b. Compensation: Members of the Board shall serve without compensation.

c. Operation: The committee shall choose its own officers, keep a record of its proceedings and report to the Mayor and Council as requested. Majority of the members shall be a quorum for the transaction of business.

Section 5. Authority and Powers of the City
a. The City shall have control of all trees, shrubs, and other plantings on public property within the City limits. The City shall have the power to plant, maintain, remove, and replace such trees, shrubs, and other plantings.
b. The planting, maintenance, and removal of trees in parks and public places shall be the responsibility of the City. All tree work shall be accomplished by City employees under the direction of the Public Works Director or by certified arborists who are contracted by the City to perform such work or by public utility companies performing work necessary to protect their utility lines.
c. The Tree Board is authorized to develop and maintain a plan for the planting, management, and protection of public trees within the City. Such plan shall constitute the official comprehensive city tree plan for the City of Gooding.

Section 6. Responsibilities of Property Owners
a. Private property owners shall maintain any trees upon their private property, which may affect public property, in a safe and healthy condition in compliance with the provisions of this Ordinance.
b. Planting, maintenance, and removal of trees within City right-of-ways by private property owners shall not be allowed without the prior written approval of the City and must conform to provisions of this Ordinance.
Section 7. Tree Planting and Maintenance
a. The "Master List of Public Trees" shall be the official guideline for the selection and planting of trees on public property. It shall include tree species recommended and species prohibited for planting on public property and tree spacing suggestions.
b. The Tree Board shall maintain and periodically update the "Master List of Public Trees".
c. Maintenance of all public trees shall conform to "Tree Care Guidelines" as defined in Section 3. The City shall make information on tree care available to the public.
d. Except as otherwise determined by the City, branches that overhang sidewalks or streets shall be pruned to provide sufficient vertical clearance of 7 feet above sidewalks and 12 feet above streets so as not to interfere with public travel. On designated truck routes the vertical clearance shall be 14.5 feet above streets.
e. Trees and other landscaping shall be maintained to assure unobstructed corner visibility.
f. It shall be the responsibility of the owner of a tree determined to be a public nuisance to abate the nuisance by removal, pruning, or spraying as determined by the City or a certified arborist.
g. It is unlawful for any person or firm to top any public tree, without prior written approval of the City. Trees severely damaged by storms or other causes and trees creating emergency hazardous situations are exempt. Trees under utility wires or other obstructions where standard pruning practices are impossible may be exempted from this section at the determination of the City.

Section 8. Protection of Public Trees
a. It is unlawful for any person to damage, transplant, remove, top, or mutilate any public tree. No person shall excavate any ditches, tunnels, trenches, or lay any drive within a radius of eight feet from any public tree without first obtaining written permission from the City.
b. No person shall deposit, place, store, or maintain any stone, brick, sand, concrete, or other materials which may impede the free passage of air, water, and nutrients to the roots of public trees, except by written permission from the City.
c. Except for authorized personnel in the event of an emergency, no person shall fasten any sign, card, poster, wire, rope, or other material to or around or through any public tree, shrub, or its protective barrier.

Section 9. Penalties
a. Where it has been determined that a public tree(s) has been damaged or removed unlawfully the offending person or firm shall be assessed the cost of repair or replacement. The City shall determine that cost using accepted plant appraisal methods as set forth in the current edition of the Guide for Plant Appraisal, published by the International Society of Arboriculture.
b. Any person, partnership, firm, corporation or other legal entity that violates any provision of this chapter is guilty of an infraction and punishable by a fine not to exceed $500.00. All such violations, which are of a continuing nature, shall constitute a separate offense for each day of such continuance. Any violation of this chapter shall also constitute a public nuisance and may be enjoined and abated as provided by law.

Section 10. Prior Inconsistent Ordinances
Any prior Tree Ordinances that were passed prior to the passage of this ordinance is hereby repealed.

Section 11. Severability
If any section, subsection, sentence, clause or phrase of this Ordinance is for any reason held to be unconstitutional or unenforceable for any reason, such holding shall not affect the validity of the remaining portions of this Ordinance.

Section 12. Effective Date
This Ordinance will take effect and be in full force from and after final passage and publication by the City.
PASSED BY THE COUNCIL AND APPROVED BY THE MAYOR THIS 5th DAY OF JANUARY, 2010.

IF JANUARY 14 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: You are somewhat susceptible to flattery and easily misled where your money and emotions are concerned during the next four weeks. Avoid beginning any major project or abandoning your present course for one that may bring uncertain results. The last half of March and first week of April is ideal for a romantic getaway. You are also shrewd and talented with business matters during that period of time and can make progress with career or investments. August is the best month to receive an answer to your prayers or to make major improvements in some area of your life.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): When limits are set, you are bound to exceed them. You can accomplish a great deal under these stars.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Break new ground. You won't need to travel far to find something new and exciting to occupy your mind.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You have a tendency to filter your thoughts through past fears, concerns and worries. Quit going around in circles and move forward.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Strike while the iron is hot. If you want to make major changes and bend the future to your will, get on with it.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Romance has a place in your life, but right now it is important to make your career strategies a reality. Your ambitions can flourish.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You can put the gloom and doom behind you and embrace a clear vision of the good life. Your vision might entail bettering humanity.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Independent thinking requires group approval. Personal inquiry and discovery may be the goal you have been taught to seek.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): This is a good time to begin anything that depends on technology or popularity. Under these stars, you draw success closer.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You may be opposed to taking things at face value. You are challenged by a need to investigate things down to the last detail.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): There are rules to tell you what to do and how to do it. You may be thrown in contact with people who happily skirt these rules.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Make a case that is fact-based and sophisticated. People will be charmed by your insight; so persuade someone to institute a change.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Rugged individualists thrive under current conditions; new discoveries can alter the outcome of any key project for the better.

Today is Thursday, Jan. 14, the 14th day of 2010. There are 351 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:

On Jan. 14, 1784, the United States ratified a peace treaty with England, ending the Revolutionary War.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:

In 1639, the first constitution of Connecticut — the Fundamental Orders — was adopted.

In 1858, Napoleon III, Emperor of the French, and his wife, Empress Eugénie, escaped an assassination attempt led by Italian revolutionary Felice Orsini, who was later captured and executed.

In 1898, author Charles Lutwidge Dodgson — better known as "Alice in Wonderland" — creator Lewis Carroll — died in Guildford, Surrey, England, less than two weeks before his 66th birthday.

In 1900, Puccini's opera "Tosca" had its world premiere in Rome.

In 1943, President Franklin D. Roosevelt, British Prime Minister Winston Churchill and French Gen. Charles de Gaulle opened a wartime conference in Casablanca.

In 1952, NBC's "Today" show premiered, with Dave Garroway as the host, or "communicator," as he was officially known.

In 1953, Josip Broz Tito was elected president of Yugoslavia by the country's Parliament.

In 1963, George C. Wallace was sworn in as governor of Alabama with a pledge of "segregation forever."

In 1969, 27 people aboard the aircraft carrier USS Enterprise, off Hawaii, were killed when a rocket warhead exploded, setting off a fire and additional explosions.

In 1970, Diana Ross and the Supremes performed their last concert together, at the Frontier Hotel in Las Vegas.

Ten years ago: In a massive demonstration demanding the return of Elián Gonzalez, tens of thousands of Cuban women marched to the U.S. mission in Havana. A U.N. tribunal sentenced five Bosnian Croat militiamen to up to 25 years in prison for a 1993 murder rampage that emptied a Bosnian village of every one of its Muslim inhabitants.

Five years ago: Army Spc. Charles Graner Jr., the reputed ringleader of a band of rogue guards at the Abu Ghraib prison, was convicted at Fort Hood, Texas, of abusing Iraqi detainees. (He was later sentenced to 10 years in prison.) A European space probe sent back the first detailed pictures of the frozen surface of Saturn's moon, Titan. Mystery writer Charlotte MacLeod died in Lewiston, Maine, at 82.

One year ago: Freshly returned from a tour of war zones and global hotspots, Vice President-elect Joe Biden told President-elect Barack Obama that "things are going to get tougher" in Afghanistan. A French court acquitted six doctors and pharmacists in the deaths of at least 114 people who'd contracted brain-destroying Creutzfeldt-Jakob disease after being treated with tainted human growth hormones. Actor Ricardo Montalban died in Los Angeles at 88.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

"There's not a joy the world can give like that it takes away When the glow of early thought declines in feeling's dull decay."

— Lord Byron

Are you familiar with the concept of premature euphoria? This is one of two commonly occurring situations at the bridge table when a player fails to focus properly. The first one occurs when partner (or you yourself) have just done something so bad that you lose focus and compound the earlier error. Your second mistake is fatal.

By contrast, premature euphoria arises when your side does something very good — or the opponents do something very bad. You have now virtually ensured success for your side, but euphoria gets in the way and you turn triumph into disaster. Again you have nobody to blame but yourself.

Consider today's deal. North guesses well to treat his hand as worth a positive response to the two-club opening, allowing you to take control. Once your partner can show the three top diamond honors, you can count 13 top tricks as long as the diamonds provide five tricks.

On the lead of the club 10 to your ace, you see a bare minimum in dummy, but your calculations appear to be correct. Are you euphoric? Take care to lead the diamond eight to the ace. Then cash a top diamond from dummy and unblock your diamond seven. Under the queen you complete the unblock by playing the diamond five, and finally the diamond four and three in dummy will provide the two long-suit tricks necessary for the grand slam to come home. Fail to unblock even once, and the grand slam goes down!

4 NT	Pass	5 ♠*	Pass
7 NT	All pass

BID WITH THE ACES

01-14-B

South holds:

♦ A K Q 4 3

South	West	North	East
1 NT	2 ♣	1 ♥	Pass
?	2 ♦	2 ♠	Pass

ANSWER: Things have developed very favorably from your perspective. Your hand looks far too good now for a simple raise to three diamonds. A jump raise to four diamonds looks appropriate since it is hard to imagine ending in three no-trump. The advantage of this route is that if partner bids four hearts now, you can happily pass.

DEAR ABBY: Our son, "Sam," is a senior in high school and has chosen a college that will suit his major. Now, all of a sudden, his girlfriend, "Amanda," has decided she wants to attend the same school. We'd like to discourage it because we know she's only going there to be close to our son. We feel she needs to get out on her own as much as Sam does.

Sam has tried to break up with her in the past, but she makes him feel guilty about breaking it off. We have talked to our son about her and her behavior. He is a bright kid, but seems not to be smart where Amanda is concerned.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

Please help us figure out a way to make Sam understand the kind of position he's putting himself in. Amanda is needy and spoiled. She has never had to work for anything. Our son holds down two jobs and seems very independent — so why is he coddling her?

— HELP NEEDED IN WISCONSIN

DEAR HELP NEEDED: Sam may be emotional about Amanda, or just so soft-hearted he can't get past her guilt trips. Please remain calm, because college is almost a year away and a lot can happen between now and then. If Amanda's focus is on Sam and not her grades, although she may want to attend the same college, she may not be accepted for enrollment.

If she is, then your husband needs to have a man-to-man talk with Sam and point out that when he gets to college he is going to be exposed to many different experiences and people, that he's quickly going to grow emotionally and intellectually, and that is why it's important that he keeps his options open.

DEAR ABBY: My problem is I attract needy people. I don't have a problem setting boundaries. However, those boundaries are frequently crossed because the person is so self-absorbed that he/she "can't hear" me.

How does one draw the line with a complete stranger who wants to tell me her whole life story the first time we meet, and sucks away my energy and my time? I feel like the individual isn't even talking to me. She might as well be talking to herself or to a wall for all I care.

Abby, I do not want to continue being taken hostage by these kinds of people. I'm not interested in their lives or troubles. I have enough of my own. I don't want to be unkind, but I haven't found a way to protect myself from being forced to invest time in needy acquaintances with whom I do not wish to pursue a relationship. I am not a total (rhymes with witch), but I am definitely — BAFFLED IN VERO BEACH, FLA.

DEAR BAFFLED: If I understand your description correctly, the type of person you describe is a "sapper." These are individuals who talk until they completely drain the energy from their "victim" — not unlike vampires in Stephenie Meyer's novels.

An effective way to deal with a sapper is to stop the conversation. Explain that he or she has caught you at a time or place when it's inconvenient to talk, or tell the person you do not feel qualified to deal with their situation and refer them to a doctor, lawyer or therapist. Then walk away or end the phone call — depending upon how they have "attached" themselves to you.

DEAR ABBY: My boyfriend broke up with me, saying, "It's not me, it's you." If he meant it as a joke, I didn't feel like laughing. What should I have said to him?

— STUNG IN DENVER

DEAR STUNG: The best response is the one you probably gave him: "Goodbye!"

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Conceptis Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.
