Schools could borrow from future

Gov. Otter proposes letting schools borrow money out of 2011 budget to fill 2010 holdbacks

By Ben Botkin
Times-News writer

BOISE — If you use it, you lose it for next year.

That's what school districts may face this fiscal year when it comes to funding.

Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter has proposed school districts be allowed to borrow from state dollars for any budget holdbacks that come this year — with the money coming out of next fiscal year's appropriation. In Otter's recent recommendation to the Legislature for a $40 million state budget holdback, he said public schools should also shoulder the burden with a $27.9 million holdback.

Wayne Hammon, Otter's budget chief, said: "Most likely we would have them pull forward funds from the federal government's stimulus package."

Under that scenario, public schools that tap into federal stimulus this fiscal year would have that much less in the next fiscal year, which begins in July.

For the next fiscal year, $33 million of federal stimulus is in Otter's public schools budget proposal. That's down from $145.7 million in stimulus for this fiscal year's budget.

Overall, public schools face a $130 million budget reduction between this fiscal year and the next.

When budget holdbacks are made in the middle of a fiscal year, school districts are placed in a challenging situation for cuts because the bulk of their expenses, such as teacher and other employee contracts, have already been set.

Rep. Maxine Bell, R-Jerome, and co-chairwoman of the Joint Finance Appropriations Committee, said she assumes borrowing against next year's budget would be a "worst-case scenario" for any of the state's school districts.

"I can't imagine if you're in a hole why you'd continue to dig," she said. "We'll hope we can come up with the adjustments needed to get through 2010."

Rep. Jim Patrick, R-Twin Falls, said using state dollars that come out of the next year's budget is "risky."

Water fight heads to Idaho high court

Pumpers appeal fish-farm call Friday

By Nate Poppino
Times-News writer

A controversial water dispute centered on two trout producers in the Thousand Springs area has been appealed to the Idaho Supreme Court, a long-expected development.

In a notice filed Friday, the Idaho Ground Water Appropriators and the Magic Valley and North Snake ground-water districts announced the appeal of a district court's review of how the Idaho Department of Water Resources handled a water call by the producers.

Clear Springs Foods and Blue Lakes Trout Co. filed water delivery calls with IDWR in 2005, claiming groundwater pumpers over the Eastern Snake Plain Aquifer were taking too much water and causing spring flows to decline in the Snake River Canyon.

Dave Tuthill, the agency's former director, concluded in 2008 that some of

Prosecutors: Traci Hadden had 'sexual relationship' with teen triggerman

By Andrea Jackson

SHOSHONE — Prosecutors have evidence that a woman accused of attempted murder in the shooting of her ex-father-in-law was having an ongoing sexual relationship with a teenage triggerman, and may have tried more than once to kill Craig Hadden.

According to Traci Hadden's court file, prosecutors intend to present evidence showing allegations of prior "crimes, wrongs or other acts" to try and prove motive in the case against her.

Hadden is accused of attempted murder, criminal conspiracy and theft in connection to the non-fatal shooting of her ex-father in law, Craig Hadden on

The shuttered La Perla Mexican Restaurant near the intersection of Main and Lincoln streets in Jerome became a point of discussion on the need for a design review ordinance that would guide the future look of downtown business.

Jerome considers design review for city center

By John Plestina
Times-News writer

JEROME — The shuttered La Perla Mexican Restaurant on Jerome's Main Street once represented the promise and challenge of small-business ownership. Its bright-orange facade spoke of authenticity, a representation of the culture waiting inside.

"I think it goes with being Mexican, with strong Mexican colors," said Carol Garcia, who lives in an apartment near the building. "I think these colors are what attract customers."

Today the tangerine building with the misspelled sign — "La Perla Mexican Restuarant" — is attracting discussion of a different challenge, as city officials tasked with revitalizing Jerome's downtown discuss establishing standards to guide the future look of the city's center. Among the 40-plus proposed design guidelines the Jerome City Council is considering, one addresses building colors, calling those that are "offensive" and "garish" unacceptable.

Vanessa Mendoza, who works at El Mexicano Clothing Store across Main Street from the orange building, has mixed feelings about the proposed ordinance.

"I think it should blend," she said. "But, on the other hand, if businesses want to attract attention they should be allowed to"

While City Administrator Ben

Marchant said the orange building fostered discussions about downtown design standards, he said the city has considered establishing design guidelines for several years.

Jerome Mayor John Shine hopes to have a design-review ordinance passed by the end of March. The city is using an ordinance the city of McCall adopted in 2005 as a guideline.

Jerome's ordinance would apply to buildings along Lincoln and Main streets within city limits, but would not extend to other parts of town.

Health care reform in jeopardy as GOP's Brown wins Mass. Senate race

By Glen Johnson and Liz Sidoti
Associated Press writers

BOSTON — In an epic upset in liberal Massachusetts, Republican Scott Brown rode a wave of voter anger to defeat Democrat Martha Coakley in a U.S. Senate election Tuesday that left President Obama's health care overhaul in doubt and marred the end of his first year in office.

The loss by the once-favored Coakley for the seat that the late Sen. Edward M. Kennedy held for nearly half a century signaled big political problems for the president's party this fall when House, Senate and gubernatorial candidates are on the ballot nationwide.

More immediately, Brown will become the 41st Republican in the 100-member Senate, which could allow the GOP to block the president's health care legislation and the rest of Obama's agenda. Democrats needed Coakley to win for a 60th vote to thwart Republican filibusters.

Democratic fingerpointing began more than a week ago as polls started showing a tight race, with the White House accusing Coakley of a poor campaign and the Coakley camp laying some of the blame on the administration. Obama flew to Boston for last-ditch personal campaigning on Sunday.

With 87 percent of precincts counted, Brown led Coakley, 52 percent to 47 percent.

The election transformed reliably Democratic Massachusetts into a battleground state. One day shy of the first anniversary of Obama's swearing-in, it played out amid a backdrop of animosity and resentment from voters over persistently high unemployment, industry bailouts, exploding federal budget deficits and partisan wrangling over health care.

For weeks considered a long shot, Brown seized on such discontent to overtake Coakley in the final stretch of the campaign. Surveys showed his candidacy energized Republicans, including backers of the grass-roots "tea party" movement,

Schools

"If I was on a school board, I'd be very hesitant to do that," he said.

House Assistant Majority Leader Scott Bedke, R-Oakley, said there are school districts that cannot weather holdbacks with their own reserves, adding that any options provided to districts must preserve their control and can't be forced.

"We've got to allow a school district the flexibility in the next budget cycle to take all steps necessary to fill a hole," Bedke said.

Rep. Wendy Jaquet, D-Ketchum, said it's important to give school districts flexibility in their budgets, but added that borrowing money this year and losing it next year would put schools in a financial bind.

Rep. Donna Pence, D-Gooding, echoed that trepidation.

"It's kind of like using a credit card," she said.

Appeal

the companies' rights were harmed and ordered the pumpers to make up for their actions. But the issue was appealed to 5th District Court, where Judge John Melanson criticized a couple of Tuthill's practices but upheld many others.

Tuthill's successor, Interim Director Gary Spackman, meanwhile ordered a number of groundwater rights shut off last summer to satisfy water owed to Clear Springs.

Melanson last month reaffirmed his conclusions in a rehearing asked for by the parties. The pumpers' appeal now signals the next stage of the case.

The association and districts plan to bring up a number of issues on their appeal, according to the notice. They include whether the IDWR directors erred by guaranteeing the fish companies an artificially inflated aquifer level or by failing to hold a hearing before shutting off water rights. The pumpers also plan to ask whether ordering farmers to shut off their wells is proper when only a fraction of the water actually reaches the fish companies.

The case is one of three major Magic Valley water calls working their way through the courts. Another, a call by a group of canal companies and irrigation districts known as the Surface Water Coalition, led to a 2006 challenge of the state's rules for managing surface and groundwater together. A 5th District judge declared those rules unconstitutional, but the Supreme Court later upheld them in principle. The call for that case has continued in district courts.

Brown

while attracting disappointed Democrats and independents uneasy with where they felt the nation was heading.

Turnout was relatively heavy for a special election despite a mix of snow and rain showers across the state virtually all day.

Though he wasn't on the ballot, the president was on many voters' minds.

"I voted for Obama because I wanted change. ... I thought he'd bring it to us, but I just don't like the direction that he's heading," said John Triolo, 38, a registered independent who voted in Fitchburg.

He said his frustrations, including what he considered the too-quick pace of health care legislation, led him to vote for Brown.

But Robert Hickman, 55, of New Bedford, said he backed Coakley "to stay on the same page with the president."

Even before the first results were announced, administration officials were privately accusing Coakley of a poorly run campaign and playing down the notion that Obama or a toxic political landscape had much to do with the outcome.

Coakley's supporters, in turn, blamed that very environment, saying her lead dropped significantly after the Senate passed health care reform shortly before Christmas and after the Christmas Day attempted airliner bombing that Obama himself said showed a failure of his administration.

While votes were still being cast, White House spokesman Robert Gibbs said the president "was both surprised and frustrated ... not pleased" at how competitive the race had become in the final weeks.

Wall Street watched the election closely. The Dow Jones industrial average rose 116 points, and analysts attributed the increase to hopes the election would make it harder for Obama to make his changes to health care. That eased investor concerns that profits at companies such as insurers and drug makers would suffer.

"This is the most visible corridor in our city and the first impression of Jerome for many people," Assistant City Administrator Micah Austin said.

He said objectives behind establishing design standards include maintaining a small-town feel while establishing scrutiny of downtown planning, design, construction and renovation.

"Having a design review committee and accompanying regulations is more about aesthetics and workmanship than it is about one particular color," Shine said. "It's about making downtown Jerome attractive to where it could attract a wide variety of businesses."

Rosa Paiz, owner of El Sombrero Restaurant in downtown Jerome, echoed Shine's message that the area needs to attract a wider variety of businesses. Yet she's concerned that changes brought on by further city control over downtown business could impact her bottom line.

Paiz said when El Sombrero's current location was built in 1997, she was required by city officials to construct a wooden wall in front of a large bank of windows on the building that includes a large banquet room.

"They made us put that in. They were afraid someone was going to fall out," she said.

Paiz said the wall would be in violation of the proposed design review ordinance if it's not considered grandfathered in. She said better street lighting and street improvements are needed to revitalize downtown, which she called "a little Tijuana."

Paiz said a $2 million downtown beautification project completed in 1999 put her in debt for 10 years, as downtown businesses paid $360,000 of the cost of improvements. She worries that improvements associated with the design review ordinance could similarly impact downtown business owners.

While the proposed ordinance would require all businesses to obtain city permission to alter a building's color, its scope would

Her son and Craig Hadden's grandson, Blue Hadden, 16, is scheduled to be sentenced today in Shoshone after having admitted in juvenile court to malicious injury to property and burglary in connection to the shooting.

Sixteen-year-old Michael Cannon admitted in adult court to shooting Craig Hadden, and pleaded guilty to attempted murder with his sentencing scheduled in April.

In their case against Traci

Hadden, prosecutors claim in court records to have "evidence of an ongoing sexual relationship with co-conspirator Michael Cannon," along with "evidence of a prior attempt or attempts to kill Craig Hadden, and/or any evidence of any additional attempt or plan to kill Craig Hadden."

The prosecutor on the Lincoln County case, Deputy Attorney General Chris N. Topmiller, also says in court records that he intends to use evidence at Hadden's trial set for Feb. 16, showing "repeated thefts of personal property by the Defendant and/or her accomplices."

Topmiller also filed motions with the court last week that if ordered by a judge could let him file amended information and use statements from Hadden's alleged co-conspirators at trial.

A status hearing in Hadden's case was held Tuesday in Shoshone, where the judge set deadlines for filing arguments. Her pretrial is set for Feb. 2.

extend beyond regulation of color schemes. Questions remain over enforcement of the ordinance and the possibility of tying design review into the inspection and permitting process, as current occupancy rules relate only to health and safety.

A design review checklist would include measures to determine whether a proposed project is compatible with its surroundings, scaled in proportion with other structures, and whether it encourages pedestrian traffic through features such as decorative sidewalks or other amenities.

The proposal's focus is to help bring business back to downtown, as a steady flow of commerce has moved south along Lincoln Street to Jerome's Walmart and on to Twin Falls.

"I think there is a mandate from the people in Jerome to bring the downtown back to life," Shine said. "There are so many empty buildings downtown and I think there are because it's not an attractive place."

SIRCOMM accepts 90-day test of 'hybrid' system

By Nate Poppino
Times-News writer

JEROME — The Magic Valley's largest emergency-dispatch center will pursue a so-called "hybrid" system as it works to meet federal technology mandates, allowing agencies with any kind of radio system to communicate with each other.

The governing Joint Powers Board for the Southern Idaho Regional Communications Center signed off on that course, at least for now, at a meeting Tuesday afternoon.

The center handles every law-enforcement, fire and emergency-medical agency in Jerome, Gooding, Lincoln and Twin Falls counties except for the city of Twin Falls.

Technically, the dispatch center by the end of 2012 only has to switch its broadcasts from wideband to narrowband — basically, cutting each channel into two. But at a time of many technical changes in the industry, SIRCOMM officials also worry about keeping the 42 agencies it covers connected. Many have already bought competing types of equipment that won't work together.

After years of false starts, the board last fall appointed a committee to explore the issue. Twin Falls County Undersheriff Sam Walker, who chaired the committee, presented its conclusions as five proposed motions:

- Adopt a hybrid dispatch system that also meets the 2012 requirement.

- Accept an offered 90-day free trial of such a system from White Cloud Communications.
- Find a way to ensure radios used by every agency are accounted for, converted to narrowband or replaced — perhaps by tying payments for the conversions to reporting radios.
- Choose what minutes and recordings to publish from the committee's meetings. Walker was concerned about how a "working committee" would come across in audio recordings, but was told SIRCOMM can't edit out things such as profanity. Minutes will be posted online and recordings will be available upon request.
- Decide whether or not to continue the planning committee.

The board voted 4-0 to approve most of the proposals, with the 90-day trial likely to start in May at a White Cloud site on Flat Top Butte east of Jerome. Members took no official action on the radios, but agreed to ask members of SIRCOMM's agency committees to get equipment lists.

The longest debate was over the resolution approving the hybrid system. Two board members, Charlie Howell of Jerome County and Tom Faulkner of Gooding County, said they weren't sure of the need for a motion and vote.

But agency representatives at the meeting, including Walker and Jerome Police Chief Dan Hall, said agencies need a clear sign of the board's direction so they can make their own purchasing decisions, and board Chairman Tom Mikesell of Twin Falls County argued a vote would help SIRCOMM secure grants.

Mikesell eventually broke tradition and made the motion himself, with all four board members voting in favor.

Allred visits Blaine Co., slams Otter's budget plan

By Ariel Hansen
Times-News writer

HAILEY — Keith Allred, who announced his Democratic run for Idaho governor last month, campaigned in the Wood River Valley Tuesday, calling out the governor's plan to cut many areas of the state budget.

Allred, who founded The Common Interest — a non-partisan public policy non-profit that advocates for issues at the Legislature — stopped at Zaney's River Street Coffee in Hailey in the morning and Tully's Coffee in Ketchum in the afternoon.

"It sounds like change is coming, so that's good," said Robin Meller of Hailey, who spoke with Allred for a few moments at Zaney's.

Her husband, Lance Meller, said he was attracted by Allred's ability to bring together Republicans, Democrats and independents to find solutions to state problems. Chief among these today, and important to small-business owners like the Mellers, is the economy.

Allred, 45, said the financial downturn is at the forefront of constituent concerns, and he separates himself from Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter's plans to cut into state government.

Allred said he would eliminate loopholes that have created $1 billion in special interest tax breaks, allowing the state to lower the overall tax rate.

He questioned Otter's choice to reduce or eliminate state funding over four years to agencies such as Idaho Public Television, state parks and the state's human rights commission.

"It's perfectly fine to raise the question about whether these are the appropriate functions for government," Allred said. If they aren't, they should be eliminated immediately, he said. "In four years, we'll be in the middle of the recovery."

Before cutting funding to schools, Allred would first look to projected revenue growth and rainy-day funds to make up the shortfall.

Fundamentally, Allred says his attention to the needs of the average Idahoan will separate him from the incumbent.

Child porn collector sentenced to 3 years in prison, rider program

King had over 2,000 images on his computer; lawyers disagree on rider program

By Pat Marcantonio
Times-News writer

A collector of more than 2,000 images of child pornography was sentenced Tuesday to up to 10 years in prison, with three years fixed.

However, Judge Randy Stoker placed Dwayne E. King in a 180-day retained jurisdiction program, during which King will undergo psychosexual evaluation and later return to court so the judge can take another look at the case.

"They are terrible," Stoker said of the child pornography images King possessed. "They are beyond terrible ... It's beyond filth."

King, 38, a long-haul truck driver, was charged in August 2009 with 20 counts of possession of sexually exploitative material after the images of child porn were discovered on his home computer.

While the prosecution and defense approved a plea agreement, they disagreed during the sentencing hearing. Twin Falls County Deputy Prosecutor Julie Sturgill said the state couldn't recommend a rider because during a pre-sentence interview, King admitted to having sexual contact with a 5-year-old girl.

Under the November plea agreement, the counts were reduced to five in exchange for King's guilty plea. The agreement also included a rider recommendation only if there were no young victims.

"We have a deal, a contract," objected defense attorney Doug Nelson, saying Sturgill went against the written agreement.

any contact with King, Nelson said. "If there is something there, that may raise its head, and we may know about it or not know about it."

In addition, there was no evidence that King produced child pornography, the defense attorney said.

When passing sentence, Stoker said he was under no obligation to follow the plea agreement recommendations. He told King he had immense problems and was in great need of therapy.

The judge sentenced King to 10 years with three years fixed for each charge, all to run concurrently.

Laws imprisoned for stealing from elderly

By Andrea Jackson
Times-News writer

Cindy Laws volunteered during much of her adult life, but on Tuesday she was placed into a prison program after taking money from elderly clients that she was entrusted to protect.

Laws, 48, was charged in March 2009 with felony abuse or neglect of a vulnerable adult for allegedly stealing from a 93-year-old client whom she was assigned to help by the Twin Falls County Board of Community Guardians.

On Tuesday at her sentencing hearing in Twin Falls, Laws apologized to county commissioners. The board of guardians had dissolved after her arrest.

Judge G. Richard Bevan explained this was a cost to the community, and sentenced Laws to a 180-day retained jurisdiction prison program, followed by a potential two- to six-year term of incarceration.

Laws filed an Alford plea, which in itself is not an admission of guilt. Her lawyer, George Essma, argued for probation, saying Laws was humiliated by the case and media coverage served as punishment for her.

Bevan explained that Laws has done "so many good things" in her life, but this crime, he said, has "tainted your reputation."

Laws said in court that she had volunteered since she was 19, but stopped those efforts since this case unfolded. "I'm very sorry for what I have done," she said.

Essma said Laws has been an "upstanding, contributing member of the Twin Falls community."

Twin Falls County prosecutor on the case, Stan Holloway, said Tuesday that Laws took money at least 19 times from two seniors.

"These were people who had dementia or physical problems," Holloway said, adding that Laws did not try to repay the money she took and used to pay her own bills.

"You've stolen money from elderly, vulnerable people," said Bevan, adding that the case "has been on my mind more than some."

Laws said she meant no harm.

"I was completely overwhelmed by the numbers of cases and the needs of clients," said Laws. "It was never my intention to hurt anyone."

Local grocery stores accepting donations for Haiti

By Damon Hunzeker
Times-News writer

Even if you can't find a Red Cross facility, donating to victims of the Haiti earthquake can be accomplished just as easily while buying paper towels or a box of Twinkies.

Several grocery outlets in the area have established fundraising efforts that send money directly to the American Red Cross Haiti Relief Fund. In addition to countless injuries and destroyed buildings, the organization estimates as many as 200,000 people have been killed in the disaster.

At Fred Meyer, customers can simply toss their returned change into a Haiti-designated jar.

"I gave them my change, and I'll do it again, but it sure ain't a lot of money," Taya Mason said while walking out of the Twin Falls store with a bag of groceries in one hand and a kid in the other. "It all adds up in the end, I guess. I'd give more than some change here and there, but I'm about dirt broke."

Change donated at Fred Meyer normally goes toward local school districts, but until Jan. 31, all of it will be sent to the Red Cross.

"It's usually change, but now I've noticed a lot of dollar bills," store director Jody Buist said. "I think people know it's a good cause ... They're used to the money for school districts, but we have signs telling them it's going to the Red Cross for now."

According to a press release, the company expects to raise $20,000 over the next two weeks from change jars in stores throughout Idaho, Oregon, Washington and Alaska.

Smith's Food and Drug will be running a similar program through Jan. 30.

"We're just asking people to donate if they choose to do so when they're at the checkout stand. We can ring it up, and 100 percent will go to the Red Cross to help earthquake victims," said Jim Faulkner, manager of the Twin Falls store.

Like Buist, Faulkner didn't have any numbers available yet but said the effort appears to be going well.

"I know with me — it's just so tragic to see those images, and I think customers are reacting the same way," he said.

At Walgreens, the method of contribution is more specific.

"Every time somebody purchases something, they have the option of donating one, five, or 10 dollars to the Red Cross. It's just added on to their total," manager Bill Menhart said, estimating that the project will continue for at least two more weeks. "We've definitely had a lot of people contributing."

Andrew Swensen, co-owner of Swensens Markets, said his stores haven't initiated anything but emphasized that they'd "be happy to be a vehicle for some of the relief agencies."

"We just haven't had too many people inquire about it

one way or the other," he said.

Regardless of her financial situation, Mason said she won't miss a handful of change.

"I seen some of the pictures, and they just make you want to cry," she said. "I wish I had a bunch of money to throw around."

Economy causes record demand for public aid

By Todd Dvorak
Associated Press writer

BOISE — High unemployment caused by the recession has created unprecedented need statewide for food stamp aid and other public assistance programs, the chief of Idaho's Department of Health and Welfare said Tuesday.

At the same time, Health and Welfare Director Richard Armstrong said the threat of another midyear budget cut may force the agency to lay off workers and shutter some of its offices across the state — as worker caseloads continue to swell.

The agency is processing more than 9,000 new food stamp applications each month, a record level and a 55 percent increase from 2007. More than 179,600 people or families are enrolled in the program, up 106 percent from more than 87,000 in 2007. Demand for Medicaid programs is up 13 percent from three years ago and child support cases are up 9 percent, according to agency figures.

"Most of the people coming in today are people who have never applied for public assistance before," Armstrong told the lawmakers on the Joint Finance Appropriations Committee Tuesday.

The agency has submitted a $2.1 billion budget request for fiscal year 2011, up slightly from the $2.05 billion for 2010. Of the 2011 request, more than 66 percent comes from federal matching dollars, grant programs and Medicaid. The 2011 budget asks for $7 million less in personnel costs and $18 million less for the agency's operating budget compared to this year's budget.

But having to do more with less — when the state unemployment rate is at 9.2 percent — and an increase in people looking for government assistance are taking a toll on employees and the agency's ability to carry out its mission, Armstrong said. He testified that some of the agency's more than 3,100 employees have been working extra hours, on weekends or giving up vacation time to help clients.

Cuts in agency funding have also magnified the loss of federal support. Every state dollar cut translates to a $3.75 loss in federal matching money, and budget cuts this fiscal year have left the agency unable to cash in on more than $68 million in federal funds, he said.

Like other state agencies, Health and Welfare has already responded to an overall $40 million midyear spending cut imposed by Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter earlier this year. But Otter and lawmakers have warned that another round of holdbacks may be looming to help offset revenue declines.

In response, Armstrong announced last week that agency offices statewide would begin closing at noon every other Friday through June 11 to save an additional $1.6 million.

Armstrong told lawmakers on Tuesday his agency has already drained operating costs and imposed new policies and procedures to save money and be more efficient. And those efforts won praise from Sen. Dean Cameron, R-Rupert and chairman of the budget committee.

Meth Project touts survey, unveils more gritty ads

By Jessie L. Bonner
Associated Press writer

BOISE — A gritty advertising campaign launched two years ago against methamphetamine use is hitting its targeted audience as more teens become aware of dangers linked to the drug, members of the Idaho Meth Project said Tuesday.

The group released a survey taken of more than 3,000 teens and young adults across the state late last year, reporting larger numbers believe there is great or moderate risk in trying the drug just once or twice compared to 2007.

The survey found 82 percent of teens believe there is great or moderate risk in trying the drug once or twice. That's up from 77 percent two years ago, when the campaign was launched with disturbing commercials and billboards.

The 2009 poll found increased awareness among young adults too, with 78 percent reporting they believe there is great risk in trying methamphetamine once or twice, compared to 68 percent of the those surveyed in 2007.

The group also unveiled more graphic television, radio and billboard ads, focusing this time on the harm users of the drug may inflict on family and friends.

"We knew from the beginning of this campaign it was going to require an ongoing effort," said Idaho Meth Project Executive Director Megan Ronk.

One commercial shows a teenager selling his girlfriend for sex to get money for meth and in another, a boy hits his mother. The television ads were directed by Darren Aronofsky, director of movies "The Wrestler" and "Requiem for a Dream."

The new campaign includes four commercials for television, four advertisements for print media and six for radio. Two of the radio spots are in Spanish, project officials said.

The Idaho Meth Project started to target minority groups last year, airing radio ads in regions where the state's Hispanic population is concentrated. The effort was modeled after a similar one made by the Arizona Meth Project.

AROUND THE WEST

IDAHO Ed Dept sends off application for grant

BOISE — The state Department of Education says Idaho's application for the federal "Race to the Top" grant competition has been sent off and seeks $120 million for public schools.

Applications for the federal Department of Education's grant program are due Tuesday.

More than 30 states are expected to apply and less than half are expected to win a slice of the $4.3 billion in Race to the Top money. The award announcements are expected in April.

About half of Idaho's 115 school districts signed onto the state's application, which proposes spending a large portion of the money on a pilot program to pay teachers based on performance.

There is also funding for a system to better track student achievement and boost opportunities for high school juniors and seniors to earn college credit.

Lawmaker fires salvo on health care bill

BOISE — Idaho has become the latest state where lawmakers are fighting proposed federal health care reform with a bill that would free residents from any mandates to purchase insurance.

Rep. Jim Clark, a Republican from Hayden, introduced the measure Tuesday in the House State Affairs Committee.

Similar bills are being touted in more than two dozen states and are based on model legislation from the American Legislative Exchange Council, a Washington, D.C.-based group that promotes limited government.

President Obama and Democratic congressional leaders are closing in on legislation that would likely require most Americans to carry coverage.

Clark's bill, if enacted, would prevent Idaho officials from enforcing provisions of health care reform that penalize individuals or businesses if they don't buy insurance.

His measure would also require Attorney General Lawrence Wasden to challenge mandatory federal health care insurance laws.

UI student dies; no foul play suspected

MOSCOW — Police say a 27-year-old University of Idaho student appears to have died from alcohol poisoning and drug use.

No foul play is suspected. According to Moscow police news release, emergency personnel responded to a report of an unconscious female at 11:22 a.m. Monday at a residence in Moscow. They found the body of Shannon Marlowe of Rexburg, a senior in the Martin Institute of International Studies at the university.

The Lewistown Tribune reports that the preliminary investigation indicated Marlowe died of "a respiratory arrest caused by alcohol poisoning and drugs."

Police say the drugs used were thought to be prescription and over the counter.

WYOMING Governor lobbies for more snowmobiles

CHEYENNE — Gov. Dave Freudenthal used a weekend excursion with two high-ranking federal officials to urge them to allow more snowmobiles in Yellowstone National Park under a forthcoming management plan.

Freudenthal took a snowmobile tour of Yellowstone with Deputy Interior Secretary David Hayes and Tom Strickland, the assistant Interior secretary for fish, wildlife and parks.

The National Park Service currently limits snowmobile traffic in the park to 318 machines a day under a two-year management plan that expires after next winter. In coming days, the agency intends to announce the start of the process to develop a new winter management plan for the park.

Freudenthal told reporters Tuesday that he urged the federal officials to consider raising the daily limit, particularly during winter holiday periods when demand is highest.

The governor said he emphasized to Hayes and Strickland that newer snowmobiles are quieter and less intrusive than earlier machines.

More earthquakes shake Yellowstone

YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK — A swarm of minor earthquakes continues to shake the southwest part of Yellowstone National Park.

The Yellowstone Volcano Observatory reports that the strongest quake recorded during the current swarm was a 3.7-magnitude at about 2:30 p.m. Tuesday.

The latest swarm began on Sunday and was centered about 10 miles northwest of Old Faithful. Geologists have counted 469 earthquakes with magnitudes ranging from 0.5 to 3.7.

‘Love Story’ author Segal dies aged 72

LONDON (AP) — Erich Segal, the Ivy League professor who attained mainstream fame and made millions sob as writer of the novel and movie “Love Story,” has died of a heart attack, his daughter said Tuesday. He was 72.

Francesca Segal said her father died Sunday at his home in London. She said he had suffered from Parkinson’s disease — a neurological condition that affects movement — for 25 years. His funeral was held in London on Tuesday, she said.

Segal was a Yale classics professor and screenplay writer when he turned a proposed movie about two college students — preppy Oliver and smart-mouthed Jenny — into a novel. Published in 1970, “Love Story” was a weeper about a young couple who fall in love, marry and discover she is dying of cancer. It was a million seller guaranteed to make readers cry and critics scream.

A much bigger audience caught up with the film version, which starred Ryan O’Neal and Ali MacGraw. Directed by Arthur Hiller, with a plaintive, Henry Mancini-composed theme song that wouldn’t quit, “Love Story” gained seven Oscar nominations — including one for Segal for writing the screenplay, as well as for best picture, best director and best actor and actress. It won one Oscar, for best music.

A rabbi’s son, born in New York City in 1937, Segal also had a long academic career in classics, gaining a doctorate at Harvard and teaching at Yale, Princeton and Dartmouth while writing era-defining screenplays and novels. He worked on surreal popular works like the 1968 screenplay to the animated Beatles film “Yellow Submarine” while also publishing works on Greek tragedy, Latin poetry and ancient athletics.

‘Spenser’ novelist Parker dies at age 77

BOSTON (AP) — Robert B. Parker, the blunt and beloved crime novelist who helped revive and modernize the hard-boiled genre and branded a tough guy of his own through his “Spenser” series, has died. He was 77.

The cause of death was unclear. An ambulance was sent to Parker’s home in Cambridge on Monday morning after reports of a sudden death, said Alexa Manocchio, spokeswoman for the Cambridge police department.

Parker’s longtime agent, Helen Brann, said that the author’s widow, Joan, called her Monday right after finding him dead at his desk.

“They had had breakfast together Monday, and he was perfectly fine,” Brann said. “She went out to do her running and when she came back about an hour later, he was dead. We were in a complete state of shock and still cannot quite believe it.”

Prolific to the end, Parker wrote more than 50 novels, including 37 featuring Boston private eye Spenser. The character’s first name was a mystery, with his last name emphatically spelled with an “s” in the middle, not a “c.”

Canadian folk singer Kate McGarrigle dies of cancer

TORONTO (AP) — Canadian folk singer and songwriter Kate McGarrigle, best known for performing with her sister Anna, has died of cancer. She was 63.

McGarrigle’s brother-in-law, Dane Lanken, said the singer died at her Montreal home Monday night surrounded by her sisters, Jane and Anna, and her children, Rufus and Martha Wainwright, also singers.

He said McGarrigle had been battling cancer since the summer of 2006. He said the cancer started in her small intestine and spread to her liver.

Kate and Anna, known as the McGarrigle Sisters, began their careers performing at Montreal coffeehouses in the 1960s with a group called the Mountain City Four. They got their break in the 1970s, when their songs were covered by numerous artists, including Linda Ronstadt, who used “Heart Like a Wheel” as the title song to one of her albums.

Their own well-known releases included “The Work Song” and “Lying Song.”

Mass. loss costs Obama votes to propel health care

By Ricardo Alonso-Zaldivar
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — A stinging loss Tuesday in Massachusetts has cost President Obama and the Democrats the 60-vote Senate majority they've relied on to push a historic health care overhaul to the verge of enactment.

Now what? It's miles of bad road in any direction.

Democrats splintered on how to salvage the president's top domestic initiative even before the results were official. Republicans said don't bother: The election of state senator Scott Brown sent a message that the health care bill should be scrapped.

Obama and party leaders anxiously worked through fallback options — none good.

After a year of improbable twists and turns, the unthinkable happened Tuesday. Democrats lost Edward M. Kennedy's seat to a Republican upstart, and with it faced the prospect of not being able to pass the legislation that was Kennedy's dream.

Democrats don't appear to have enough time to resolve differences between the House and Senate bills — and get cost and coverage estimates back from the Congressional Budget Office — before Brown is sworn in. That leaves House Democrats with the unpalatable option of passing a Senate bill that many of them profoundly disagree with.

"How do we do it with 59?" lamented liberal Rep. Anthony Weiner, D-N.Y.

Independents turned against the sweeping health care legislation and the Democratic base lost its enthusiasm, Weiner continued. Democratic lawmakers must show they got the message by regrouping, considering a time-out on health care and perhaps passing a more modest bill, he argued.

Others said they feel the need to act even more urgently.

"There is only one guarantee — that if we don't pass something the notion of trying to put Humpty Dumpty together again is a real long shot," said Rep. Patrick Kennedy, D-R.I., son of the late senator. "If you understand the legislative process, it's a lot easier to pass something and fix it later."

Michigan defense contractor keeps God in soldiers' sights

By Richard Lardner
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — Army officials said Tuesday they will investigate whether a Michigan defense contractor violated federal procurement rules by stamping references to Bible verses on combat rifle sights used by American forces to kill enemy fighters in Iraq and Afghanistan.

The Marine Corps, another major customer of the telescoping sights that allow troops to pinpoint targets day or night, says service acquisition officials plan to meet with the contractor, Trijicon of Wixom, Mich., to discuss future purchases of the company's gear.

The references have stoked concerns by a watchdog group about whether the inscriptions break a government rule that bars proselytizing by American troops. But military officials said the citations don't violate the ban and they won't stop using the tens of thousands of telescoping sights that have already been bought.

Trijicon said it has been longstanding company practice to put the Scripture citations on the equipment. Tom Munson, Trijicon's director of sales and marketing, said the company has never received any complaints until now.

"We don't publicize this," Munson said in a recent interview. "It's not something we make a big deal out of. But when asked, we say, 'Yes, it's there.'"

The inscriptions are subtle and appear in raised lettering at the end of the stock number. Trijicon's rifle sights use tritium, a radioactive form of hydrogen, to create light and help shooters hit what they're aiming for.

Markings on the Advanced Combat Optical Gunsight, which is standard issue to U.S. special operations forces, include "JN8:12," a reference to John 8:12. "Then spake Jesus again unto them, saying, 'I am the light of the world: he that followeth me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life,'" according to the King James version of the Bible.

The Trijicon Reflex sight is stamped with 2COR4:6, a reference to part of the second letter of Paul to the Corinthians: "For God, who commanded the light to shine out of darkness, hath shined in our hearts, to give the light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ," the King James version reads.

Photos posted on a Defense Department Web site show Iraqi forces training with rifles equipped with the inscribed sights.

The Defense Department is a major customer of Trijicon's. In 2009 alone, the Marine Corps signed deals worth $66 million for the company's products. Trijicon's scopes and optical devices for guns range in cost from a few hundred dollars to $13,000, according to the company's Web site.

Police look for lone shooter who slew 8

APPOMATTOX — Police say a lone shooter killed eight people in central Virginia, with seven bodies found at one home.

State police say officers had the suspect, 39-year-old Christopher Speight of Appomattox, encircled in the woods late Tuesday near the home and that they believe he is still alive.

Police say the eighth shooting victim was found on the side of the road and died on the way to the hospital. Police say all the victims in the Appomattox shootings were adults.

State police Sgt. Thomas Molnar says both men and women were killed. Police refused to speculate on a motive.

CALIFORNIA

Google puts China cell phones on hold

SAN FRANCISCO — Google has delayed the debut of two mobile phones designed to connect with its Internet services in China, widening the void that might be opened if the company and Beijing can't resolve their rift over online censorship and security.

The phones, made by Motorola and Samsung, use the Android operating system, created by Google to steer people to its search engine and other services. The China Unicom Ltd. was supposed to be the carrier.

The postponement Tuesday is the latest aftershock from Google's threat to shut down its services in China, which could cut off the world's most populous country from Google's services through any kind of computer or phone.

Google says it will remain in China only if the government relents on rules requiring the censorship of content the ruling party considers subversive. The ultimatum came last week after Google said it uncovered a computer attack that tried to plunder its software coding and the e-mail accounts of human rights activists protesting Chinese policies.

HAWAII

Study: Fast-food fries cooked in high-fat oil

Fast-food chains are more likely than smaller restaurants to cook their french fries in corn oil, which is higher in cholesterol-raising saturated fats than other vegetable oils, a study from the University of Hawaii found.

Almost 70 percent of fast-food chain restaurants such as McDonald's and Wendy's/Arby's Group on Hawaii's island of Oahu used corn oil mixed with other oils for their french fries compared with 20 percent of independent restaurants, according to research published online Monday in the Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences.

McDonald's, the world's largest restaurant company, and rivals Burger King Holdings Inc., the second-largest U.S. hamburger seller, and Wendy's/Arby's Group said previously they switched to vegetable fry oils to remove trans fats. The trans fats raise cholesterol levels in the blood and may increase the risk of heart disease, according to the American Heart Association. Still, the Hawaii researchers said, the fry oil used now by the chains includes corn oil that is higher in saturated fats, which also raises cholesterol.

TEXAS

Ex-mistress: Minister admitted killing wife

WACO — The state rested its case Tuesday in the murder trial of a Texas minister whose ex-mistress testified that he drugged his wife, handcuffed her to the bed under the guise of spicing up their marriage, then smothered her with a pillow until she died.

Vanessa Bulls said Matt Baker, then a Baptist preacher, had talked about killing his wife and making it look like a suicide. His wife, Kari Baker, had previously attempted suicide, Bulls said.

Bulls said she never reported his plans or the murder to authorities because she was afraid of exposing the affair that she said began about two months before Kari Baker's 2006 death. Bulls, 27, also said she was afraid of being arrested for not stopping Baker.

Bulls was not asked directly whether she helped Baker plan or commit the crime, but at one point she said she was only guilty of not reporting it.

Bulls said she understood "what he was capable of" but tried not to think about it as she continued seeing Baker for about three months after his wife's death. She said Baker told her he would not harm her because he was happy with her.

ILLINOIS

Witness: Peterson threatened wife's life

CHICAGO — Looking and acting nothing like the courthouse jester who cracked jokes at his arraignment eight months ago, a somber Drew Peterson listened Tuesday as prosecutors called witnesses intended to help his ex-wife testify from the grave.

The day's most chilling testimony came from two former co-workers who recounted statements Kathleen Savio allegedly made about Peterson's behavior months before her March 2004 death.

One colleague said Savio, with a bruised arm, detailed a home invasion in which Peterson held a knife to her throat and threatened to kill her right there, but it "would be too bloody." Another told the judge Peterson stalked Savio at the office, sitting in the parking lot for hours and waiting for her to leave.

Neither called the police to share their concerns before — or immediately after — Savio's death because they said she told them that the Bolingbrook Police Department protected Peterson, a decorated sergeant with three decades on the job.

MARYLAND

Mystery man fails to mark Poe's birthday

BALTIMORE — Talk about a midnight dreary. Dozens of die-hard fans of Edgar Allen Poe were left literally standing out in the cold Tuesday when a mysterious nocturnal visitor didn't keep his standing date to toast the author's birthday at his Baltimore burial plot.

The so-called Poe Toaster's absence Tuesday for the first time in more than 60 years has renewed the decades-long fascination with the visitor's identity. It's also an ominous indication that a beloved local ritual, a cherished example of Baltimore quirkiness, might be coming to an end — a possibility that the poet's partisans hurry to deny.

"I keep thinking, maybe the Poe Toaster has the flu," says Jeff Jerome, curator of the Edgar Allen Poe House.

Every Jan. 19 since 1949, someone has laid three red roses in a pattern along with a half-empty bottle of cognac on the grave of the author of such suspense classics as "The Raven" and "The Tell-Tale Heart."

With broken lances, Idaho jousts with windmills

The trouble with Idaho’s Legislature is that it leaves too many lawmakers with too little to do.

While the 20-member Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee crafts the state’s budget, the other 85 legislators are at loose ends — for weeks on end.

That explains the Idaho Health Freedom Act, which would mandate that “every person in the state of Idaho is and shall continue to be free from compulsion in the selection process for health insurance.”

Further, “the bill removes authority of any state official or employee from enforcing any penalty which violates this policy.”

That might appeal to Don Quixote, patron of hopeless causes.

But what’s remarkable is that state Rep. Lynn Luker, R-Boise, and Rep. Raul Labrador, R-Eagle — both lawyers — apparently haven’t read Article VI, Clause 2, of the U.S. Constitution.

“The Constitution, and the laws of the United States which shall be made in pursuance thereof; and all treaties made, or which shall be made, under the authority of the United States, shall be the supreme law of the land; and the judges in every state shall be bound thereby, anything in the Constitution or laws of any state to the contrary notwithstanding”

Not clear enough? Then consider the Privileges and Immunity Clause of the 14th Amendment to the Constitution.

“No state shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges and immunities of citizens of the United States.”

Bottom line: Neither Luker, Labrador nor co-sponsor Jim Clark, R-Hayden Lake, can prevent a national health insurance reform bill that passes Congress and is signed by President Obama from being enforced in Idaho. And they’re wasting Idaho taxpayers’ money — up to $100,000 — by trying.

Why not instead expend their efforts in trying to shape the final version of the legislation, which still must be reconciled by U.S. House and Senate conference committees? The bills passed by the House and Senate are different enough that they could be modified to eliminate — or at least curb — some of the excesses of the Democrats’ health care package.

That, after all, is why Reps. Mike Simpson and Walt Minnick and Sens. Mike Crapo and Jim Risch are in Washington, D.C.

The past few sessions of the Idaho Legislature have been punctuated by legislation approved by large majorities that proclaim the federal government can’t do this or can’t do that.

Well, yes, actually it can.
Luker, Labrador and Clark are chasing runaway horses after the barn doors are closed. They won’t succeed, and it will cost Idaho taxpayers if they try.

The China excuse doesn’t work anymore

Shoppers love “the China price” — the rock bottom cost delivered by “predatory producers” based in China. Now, politicians are falling in love with “the China excuse” — one so poor it could be mouthed only by an American president or member of Congress.

Derek Scissors

Fretting over China is a prime occupation in Washington. China is said to be both chiefly at fault for our huge trade deficit and indispensable to financing our huge budget deficit. Some go further, arguing that we are declining, the PRC is rising, and we better keep it on board, or else.

These are the excuses of a government that can’t exert even the minimal self-discipline needed to guide the American economy — by far the world’s largest — which has the best endowment of human, natural and technological resources, and the most flexible, adaptive markets.

Our top political figures cover for their failures by wildly overstating the importance of China to our trade and budget deficits. In trade, sustained deficits like ours stem ultimately from too little saving. The most direct way for the United States to cut deeply into its trade deficit would be to save more.

American households have started doing so. Their saving rate has moved from less than 1 percent to near 5 percent in the past 18 months. But a potentially dramatic improvement in the trade deficit has been undermined by the federal government, which has gone on an unprecedented spending binge that added some $1 trillion to the federal deficit last year.

Last January, then-President-elect Obama said that “only government” could replace household spending and the new Congress was all too willing to oblige. China’s role in causing our trade deficit is marginal. A much smaller trade deficit is achievable.

The budget-deficit argument is more tortured. It starts by attributing the gigantic deficit in part to Chinese financing. How dare they make it easier for us to spend money we don’t have! This is little more than a childish abdication of responsibility by at least two presidents and many more sessions of Congress.

The other claim is that the U.S. desperately needs Chinese financing so we can maintain the terrible fiscal policy we shouldn’t have adopted in the first place. This second claim has no foundation.

China’s investment in U.S.

Treasury bonds became much smaller and less important in 2009 than it was in 2008. Yet U.S. commercial interest rates have actually declined. China has little to do with our budget deficit. We are funding it ourselves, chiefly through the same household saving that is pushing down the trade deficit.

That fact bears on the first excuse: that easy Chinese financing was partly responsible for poor American policy. Will President Obama and Congress now blame American households for enabling their uncontrolled spending? If American companies and banks make the mistake of buying too many government bonds in 2010, will it become their fault that our government is addicted?

At the recent meetings of the American Economic Association, a host of scholars anticipated a weak decade ahead for the U.S. Their view might change dramatically if we didn’t face trillion-dollar deficits or trillion-dollar tax hikes for years to come, with only vague promises of improvement from the same people who created the problem.

There is still strong domestic and foreign demand for Treasuries precisely because the fundamentals of our economy are still so strong. But it won’t last in the face of all this spending. It can’t. Eventually, American households and firms will be forced to decide that our fiscal policy is a cancer and will stop buying U.S. government debt. Then the party really will be over, because nothing can substitute for American personal and corporate wealth.

If China could ever have been blamed for our problems, 2009 put an end to that. More than anything, it’s our budget deficit that’s driving our trade deficit. And it’s our government’s irresponsibility that is solely responsible for our budget deficit. The China excuse will no longer work.

Why are feds launching an antitrust probe when U.S. ag is the best?

Why is the Department of Justice launching an antitrust investigation against some of U.S. food system’s major players at a time when Americans are enjoying a widening array of food choices and spending less and less of their disposable income to do so?

In November, lawyers in the department’s antitrust division began preparing an “unprecedented” series of workshops to explore whether federal legal action is needed to offset consolidation in such major agriculture sectors as dairy, meat-packing, poultry and seed. The workshops — sponsored by Justice and the Department of Agriculture — will be held between March and December at various locations.

Likely targets include such familiar names as Dean Foods, Kraft and Land O Lakes in the dairy sector; ADM and Cargill in grains; Tyson’s and Pilgrim’s Pride in poultry and meat-packing; and Monsanto and Syngenta in seed.

The motivation for a new probe lies in the undeniable fact that every stage of the U.S. agricultural sector has witnessed increased concentration over the past two decades — largely because of mergers and acquisitions.

Although the agriculture sector has become more consolidated, the resulting increased efficiencies of the food chain have actually lowered prices.

Consider a few statistics: In 1988, consumers spent 12.5 percent of their disposable income on food. By 2008 that figure dropped to roughly 11.6 percent, despite the fact that 2008 witnessed the largest increase in food prices — roughly 5.5 percent — since 1990, a jump driven primarily by increases in fuel and agricultural commodity prices.

Meanwhile, the issues that Justice and USDA plan to take-up have already been addressed by the Government Accountability Office.

The GAO’s report took a look at trends in concentration for various levels of the food marketing chain in (1) major agricultural sectors; (2) retail food expenditures and prices; and (3) the prices farmers received for major agricultural commodities. The GAO’s finding: There is no evidence that increased concentration has led to any “adverse affects on commodity or food prices.”

Given the research already conducted by GAO fact-finders, one has to wonder why the Obama administration is embarking on a costly town hall-style antitrust investigation and whether any meaningful understanding of the industry will result from such populist forums. It seems likely that political pressures have more to do with Washington’s interest in ideologically-based economics than concern for consumers or business competition.

Supplanting sound economic and regulatory decisions with political grandstanding could have far-reaching consequences for U.S. agribusinesses, consumers and farmers.

As American consumers continue to benefit from lower food prices, robust international trade in agricultural products and a greater variety and consistent quality of food products, it’s hard to see how the coming Justice/Agriculture workshops will serve any purpose other than to further politicize commercial disputes between farmers and suppliers and among competitors at all levels of the food chain.

It’s time to restore protection for wolves

“(T)oday, I’ve signed a memorandum that will help restore the scientific process to its rightful place at the heart of the Endangered Species Act, a process undermined by past administrations. ... For more than three decades, the Endangered Species Act has successfully protected our nation’s most threatened wildlife, and we should be looking for ways to improve it — not weaken it.”

— President Obama, March 3

WASHINGTON — I felt distinct relief upon hearing those words. I was at the Interior Department in March when President Obama made this promise to an audience of conservationists on the 160th anniversary of the agency’s founding. Interior Secretary Ken Salazar was by his side.

After eight years of conservation groups fighting tooth and nail to protect America’s imperiled wildlife against the plans and rulings of the Bush administration, it looked as though the Obama administration would renew our commitment to conserving endangered species and biodiversity for future generations.

Jamie Rappaport Clark

But this relief was short-lived.

Just three days after the president pledged to strengthen and restore scientific integrity to implementation of the Endangered Species Act, Secretary Salazar removed federal protection from gray wolves in the Northern Rockies. In making this decision, he adopted the plan developed by the Bush administration, relying on a flawed legal opinion crafted by that administration. His decision has undermined the protection of the gray wolf and countless other threatened and endangered species.

This misguided action places wolves squarely in the cross hairs of their opponents across the Northern Rockies, allowing as many as 1,050 of Idaho and Montana’s estimated 1,350 wolves to be legally killed and jeopardizing the 30-year recovery effort to restore wild wolves to the region. As a result of Secretary Salazar’s action, wolves in the Northern Rockies are being hunted prematurely. Already, 210 have been killed, and there are still three months left in the Idaho hunting season.

I work with an organization that is among the 13 conservation groups that have taken this issue to court. In September, a federal judge indicated our case is likely to succeed on its merits, although a final ruling will not come until later this year.

As a former director of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, I find it hard to understand why the Obama administration made this decision and why it justified it by relying on a legal opinion that has been criticized by a range of people, including academics and members of Congress. Worse, this decision affects more than the Northern Rockies wolf population. It also sets an alarming precedent for future listing and delisting decisions.

The Bush administration’s legal opinion overturned more than 30 years of interpretation of the Endangered Species Act. By this reasoning, protection of species can now be determined by political boundaries and manipulation, not biology. Adjusting populations in this unscientific way — carving out areas along state lines, as Salazar did in exempting Wyoming from the areas in which wolves were no longer to be considered endangered — makes the act subject to political manipulation. This legal sleight of hand is in direct contrast to Obama’s pledge to restore scientific integrity to decisions about endangered-species conservation.

Salazar should not have allowed the gray wolf to be delisted without first engaging in a clear and transparent public process and without exploring the ramifications of relying on this flawed legal opinion. Defenders of Wildlife reached out several times to work with the Interior Department to craft a plan that would ensure continued wolf recovery while returning management of wolves to state fish and wildlife agencies. Our efforts were ignored.

Because of my intimate involvement with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service’s reintroduction of wolves to Yellowstone, I was very much looking forward to the day when the wolf population would no longer need federal protections. But wolves and endangered-species conservation now face an uncertain future. If the president’s pledge to restore scientific integrity to the Endangered Species Act, and to improve the law, is to be fulfilled, action must be taken immediately. The interior secretary should withdraw the flawed legal opinion on which his delisting relied, restore federal protection to gray wolves in the Northern Rockies and engage all stakeholders in developing a plan to ensure that one of our nation’s greatest conservation successes, the restoration of gray wolves to Yellowstone and the Northern Rockies, will not be lost.

Is scouting prepared to change?

The Boy Scouts of America are beginning a yearlong celebration of its 100th birthday.

I generally don’t advertise it, but I am an Eagle Scout. In the spring of 1971, just shy of my 16th birthday, I earned the medal and patch that represent Scouting’s highest rank.

It was a doubly significant achievement. Only 5 percent of Scouts make Eagle, and I hadn’t wanted to be a Scout at all. I wasn’t a joiner. I was skeptical of people who wore uniforms, took oaths and sang uplifting songs. But my family had recently moved to Southern California, and my mother felt Scouting would help connect me to our new community. So I joined Scoutmaster Mike Lanning’s Troop 223 in Los Angeles and enrolled in America’s great finishing school for boys.

For the next four years, one night a week and one weekend a month, I learned to be a Scout. I was taught the Boy Scout salute, the Scout handshake, the Scout motto (“Be Prepared”) and the Scout slogan (“Do a Good Turn Daily”). I memorized the Boy Scout law (“A Scout is trustworthy, loyal, helpful, friendly, courteous, kind ...”) and the Boy Scout oath (with its pledge to “keep myself physically strong, mentally awake and morally straight”). I learned citizenship, leadership and democracy — and all the words to “Kumbaya.”

There was also instruction in the subjects that really interested me: how to tie a knot, swing an ax, paddle a canoe, shoot a rifle and sail a boat. I hiked and camped. I learned to light a fire without a match and treat a snakebite without a doctor. I took merit badges in subjects of real merit, such as home repair, cooking and lifesaving.

Along the way I made friends. I met John Varner, a fearless boy who seemed destined for greatness or the reformatory. And Jamie Paul, who went with girls and knew how to get beer. And Jack Morison, a big-hearted innocent who introduced me to dirt bikes and Eric Clapton. Together, we attended the manliness factory. I rose through the ranks, from Tenderfoot to Eagle.

But even as I embraced Scouting, I heard the siren song of sex, drugs and rock ‘n’ roll. This was the Age of Aquarius! The times they were a-changin’, even if the Boy Scouts were not.

That was part of Scouting’s appeal. My family was breaking apart. I felt rudderless. America looked increasingly like Altamont, Kent State and Vietnam. Scouting represented structure and old-fashioned, Norman Rockwell decency. The world outside was acid trips and napalm. Scouting was camping trips and Kool-Aid.

Charles Fleming

Ultimately, real life proved more alluring than Boys’ Life. When I made Eagle and left the Boy Scouts, I felt more relieved than proud. I never took the Eagle medal from its box and never wore my uniform again.

In the decades after, my view of Scouting became ever more cynical. I learned Donald Rumsfeld and Gerald Ford had been Eagle Scouts. Then I heard that Boy Scout troops across the country were expelling gays, proclaiming “homosexual conduct is inconsistent with the requirement ... that a Scout be morally straight and ... clean in word and deed.” A Supreme Court decision upheld Scouting’s right to exclude gays. But the controversy cost the organization assistance from partners and supporters, among them the Department of Defense, United Way and Levi Strauss & Co.

Scouting lost me too. I don’t find being gay inconsistent with being morally straight. But I find discrimination inconsistent with Scouting’s principles of kindness and tolerance. They are values I learned around the Boy Scout campfire and taught my children when I became a father.

Bob Mazzuca, the Boy Scouts’ chief executive, told me last week that his 100-year-old organization is suffering from “a little arthritis” but is modernizing. The new Boy Scout shirt, he said, has an iPod pocket, and the Boy Scout Handbook is now an iPod download. “Scouting has never been more relevant or more needed,” he said. Mazzuca said the gay question “is an evolving issue” but added: “We do not have to abandon the Scout law and oath. Those values will always be relevant.”

I agree. They are excellent guidelines. But they can’t be exclusionary. Scouting organizations in other countries have maintained their core values without making heterosexuality a membership requirement. In Britain, birthplace of Scouting, the group’s bylaws prohibit discrimination on the basis of sexual orientation.

That’s the challenge for the Boy Scouts as it enters its second century. Be kind. Do a good turn. Be prepared!

A week after Haiti quake, aid is elusive

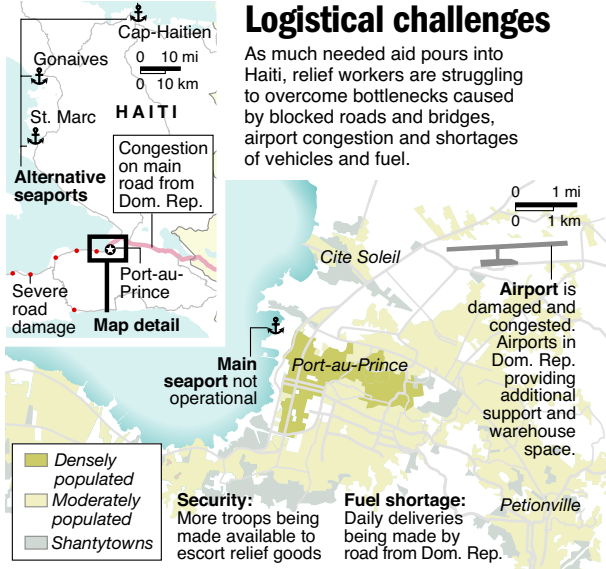

By Jonathan M. Katz
Associated Press writer

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti — The world still can't get enough food and water to the hungry and thirsty one week after an earthquake shattered Haiti's capital. The airport remains a bottleneck, the port is a shambles. The Haitian government is invisible, nobody has taken firm charge, and the police have largely given up.

Even as U.S. troops landed in Seahawk helicopters Tuesday on the manicured lawn of the National Palace, the colossal efforts to help Haiti are proving inadequate because of the scale of the disaster and the limitations of the world's governments.

Expectations exceeded what money, will and military might have been able to achieve so far in the face of unimaginable calamity.

"God has abandoned us! The foreigners have abandoned us!" yelled Micheline Ursulin, tearing at her hair as she rushed past a large pile of decaying bodies.

Three of her children died in the quake and her surviving daughter is in the hospital with broken limbs and a serious infection.

Rescue groups continue to work, even though time is running out for those buried by the quake. A Mexican team created after that nation's 1985 earthquake rescued Ena Zizi, 69. She had survived a week buried in the ruins of the residence of Haiti's Roman Catholic archbishop, Monsignor Joseph Serge Miot, whose body was found Tuesday sitting in a chair in what appeared to be his office.

Doctors said Zizi was dehydrated and had dislocated a hip and broken a leg.

"I'm all right, sort of," she said, lying on a foil thermal blanket outside the Cuban hospital, her gray hair covered in white dust.

An ardent Catholic, Zizi sang a hymn of praise and thanks to God in a strong but strained voice that resonated across the hospital garden filled with ailing quake victims on stretchers.

"This is a miracle," said one of her sons, bank clerk Joseph Josner.

Those who survived the quake from the beginning but had lost their homes and possessions were growing desperate as they camped out in the streets and in a plaza across from the National Palace.

"We need so much. Food, clothes. We need everything. I don't know whose responsibility it is, but they need to give us something soon," said Sophia Eltime, a 29-year-old mother of two who has been living under a bedsheet with seven members of her extended family. She said she had not eaten yet Tuesday.

It is not just Haitians questioning why aid has been so slow for victims of one of the worst earthquakes in history: an estimated 200,000 dead, 250,000 injured and 1.5 million homeless. Officials in France and Brazil and aid groups such as Doctors Without Borders have complained of bottlenecks, skewed priorities and a crippling lack of leadership and coordination.

"TENS OF THOUSANDS OF EARTHQUAKE VICTIMS NEED EMERGENCY SURGICAL CARE NOW!!!!!" said a news release from Partners in Health, co-founded by Dr. Paul Farmer, the deputy U.N. envoy to Haiti.

"Our medical director has estimated that 20,000 people are dying each day who could be saved by surgery." No details were provided on how the figure was determined.

Sunija Mustafic rolls pita dough with a mixture of ground beef, onions and spices on her dining table Thursday in Twin Falls.

Think you know pita?

Bosnian cook shares specialty

By Melissa Davlin
Times-News writer

Before Sunija Mustafic moved her family from Bosnia to Twin Falls in 2001, her mother gave her baking pans in which to make her specialty: Bosnian pita.

Pita from Bosnia is nothing like the pocketed, gyro-filled Greek pitas available at restaurants in southern Idaho. This pita is made of filling rolled in a thin, phyllo-like dough, shaped into spirals that look like cinnamon rolls, baked and eaten with sauerkraut. It's a staple in many Bosnian homes, including Mustafic's.

The stuffing can be made of anything, Mustafic explained through Mirela Sulejmanovic, a Times-News employee acting as interpreter. Mustafic described various fillings — spinach, potato, cheese — as she prepared her own batch of beef and onion.

After Mustafic cubed the onion and browned the beef, she turned her attention to the ball of dough that had been rising for an hour. She put a clean cotton cloth on her dining room table, floured it and rolled out the dough with a long wooden rod — longer and thinner than standard rolling pins.

After she got it as thin as she could with rolling, she further stretched the dough by hand.

"It's not good if it tears, so you have to be very careful," Sulejmanovic explained as

The dough used for the Bosnian pita is made from flour and water and is rolled paper thin.

Mustafic worked. By the time she finished, the dough was translucent, larger than the table top and draped off the sides like a cloth.

And there wasn't a single tear in the surface. As the saying goes: If you tear the pita dough, you can't get married, Mustafic joked.

Mustafic grabbed the beef filling from the countertop and spread it along one edge of the dough. She flipped up the flap of dough hanging off the edge, then used the cloth to swiftly and evenly roll the stuffing into a rope.

She cut the rope from the remaining dough, then fashioned it into three spirals and placed them in the cooking pan. She repeated the process three more times. By the end, the pan was filled with pita — the beef and onions still visible through layers of thin dough.

Pita is a staple in many Bosnian households, she said.

Her 18-year-old son, Bekir Mustafic, is a picky eater and hates onions, so she often has to make two batches of pita with different fillings to satisfy everyone in the family. This afternoon, she made another batch of cheese and egg.

Mustafic makes pita so often that she never measures out her ingredients.

"Maybe four! Maybe five!" she said in English as she cracked eggs into a bowl. She mixed her four-or-five eggs with homemade cheese, added Vegeta seasoning — a must-have in Bosnian kitchens, Sulejmanovic said — and flattened another ball of dough. Within 10 minutes, another

Sunija Mustafic doesn't measure her ingredients while making pita, but this recipe, adapted from a few Internet versions, is Mustafic-approved. Vegeta seasoning is available at Swensen's and European food stores in Twin Falls. If you can't find it, substitute seasoning salt or plain salt and pepper. Not a fan of beef? There are several other fillings suitable for pita. Try sauteed spinach with feta, cottage cheese with egg, chicken with mushroom, or cubed potatoes and onions. If the dough intimidates you, substitute phyllo dough, which can be found in most grocers' freezer sections.

Recipe for: BOSNIAN PITAs

From the kitchen of: SUNIJA MUSTAFIC

For the dough:
4 1/2 cups flour
2 teaspoons salt
2 to 2 1/2 cups warm water

For the filling:
1 pound ground beef
1 onion, chopped
Vegeta seasoning, to taste
Canola oil
Sour cream and sauerkraut, optional

Sift flour into large bowl. Add salt and mix with a fork. Slowly add the water and work dough with fingertips to form a soft, smooth, elastic ball. Knead, adding more sifted flour or water if needed. Do not let the dough get tough. Split dough into two rounded balls. Cover and let stand at room temperature for one hour. While dough is rising, brown beef and onion. Season to taste. Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Roll one ball of dough until it's thin, then stretch gently with your hands until it's translucent and paper-thin. Spread some of the beef filling along the dough's edge, then roll into a rope until it is a couple of layers thick. Cut the rope free from the flattened dough, then shape into spirals and place in baking pan. Repeat with the rest of the dough. When the spirals are in the pans, sprinkle a little canola oil over the top. Bake, uncovered, for 30 minutes. Take out of oven and pour about a cup of warm water on top to soften the bread, then bake for another three to five minutes. Serve immediately with sour cream and sauerkraut.

Water is poured over the pitas to soften them before the last few minutes of baking.

Ground beef and onions get an addition of Vegeta, a popular Bosnian seasoning.

Is it selfish to stock up on sale items?

I received lots of feedback from readers concerned about advice I passed on: to maximize savings by purchasing as many sale items as possible with your coupons. Here's one letter:

"In reading your column, I'm concerned that you may be encouraging people to take more than their share. Countless times I've gone to buy a product with a coupon and had to get a rain check. Meanwhile, I have witnessed people buying cases upon cases of the same product. I know people may feel they are just out for themselves and their families, but how greedy can you get?"

It's true that when we buy on a price-based basis versus a needs-based basis, the items that are on the best sales at the store deplete quickly. So what's a shopper to do? This reader is definitely on the right track by getting a rain check. While it may be an inconvenience to have to get a rain check when the store is out of a particular sale item, it can also work to our advantage as shoppers. Most rain checks are good for 30 days. That's a nice, long time to check back at the store, at your convenience, and pick up sale items when they're back in stock.

QUEEN

You can even use rain checks to "extend the sale" for yourself! During a great sale on dog food, our store was having trouble keeping bags in stock. I bought the last three bags that were on the shelf — and of course, I used my coupons on them. Then, I asked for a rain check for six more bags. Over the next few days, I got in touch with friends and family who also save their coupons, but don't own dogs. I asked them if I could have their dog food coupons. A week later, I went back to the store and picked up more with the coupons I'd just acquired. The shelves were full again and I was still able to enjoy the sale price because of the rain check.

With regard to this reader's comment that he's seen people buying up every single item in stock during a sale, I do sympathize. I've never been a "shelf-clearer," nor do I advocate being one. I'm certainly aware that at times, if something's a fantastic deal, it's tempting to buy every one of them in sight. And I know there are two schools of thought when it comes to great sales. Either you feel you're "first come, first served" and are entitled to buy whatever you want, or you will buy in moderation and leave some behind for others.

I've found that a third option works well, too: special orders. Most major grocery stores (drugstores, too) order and receive stock every single day. If there's something I want to buy in a larger quantity that might affect how many of a certain item is on the shelves for everyone else, I'll go to the store's service counter and order it. This has two benefits: I'm not clearing the shelf of a product and potentially leaving others frustrated. And I also know that the next day, I will get a phone call letting me know that my items are in. I can go to the counter, pick up exactly what I need and I won't have to make extra, unnecessary trips to the store to see if my products may finally be back in stock.

It's usually not a problem at all to special-order products. The store knows it has a guaranteed sale to the customer who has ordered the product, and the customer is happy too, knowing that they will take home exactly the quantity and products that they'd like. Don't be afraid to try!

Boosting your wine IQ: 5 tips

By Dave McIntyre
Special to The Washington Post

Whether you are an experienced wine lover or a relative newcomer to the joys of the grape, there are many fun ways to improve your knowledge of wine. The best part? They all involve tasting.

1. Start a wine club.

This is my first suggestion because it has two benefits that can carry through a number of others: It's a social activity, and it can help cut costs by spreading the financial investment among several people.

Gather a group of friends regularly and set a theme: red wines under $15, for example, or zinfandel or some other grape variety. Everyone brings one bottle (or more, depending on the group). Conceal the labels with paper bags to eliminate the possibility of bias, and rate the wines on your own personal scale.

2. Explore your favorite wine variety. Do you love chardonnay? Most wine drinkers do. But have you experienced chardonnay's varied expressions, from the Russian River to Santa Barbara, from Chablis to Macon? Barrel fermented versus "naked" of all oak treatment? Make an effort to sample chardonnays from around California, around Idaho or around the world, either together or over time. Compare their different flavors and nuances to glean your own concept of terroir, that sense of place conjured up by wines that speak of their land of origin.

3. Get to know a new retailer. A great way to learn about wine is to cultivate a retailer you trust who knows what you like. Even better: Cultivate two or more. That way, you will be introduced to new and interesting wines whenever you walk into a store.

4. Attend a wine dinner. Many stores and restaurants host dinners with visiting winemakers or importers, pairing their portfolios with a multi-course meal. These can be expensive, but they often represent great value and a chance to experience their range in a single sitting. There is no better connection to a wine than to shake the hand that made it, and your link to the winemaker or the importer could pay off on your next visit to wine country.

5. Wherever you travel, drink local. When business, family or pleasure takes you across the country, look for local wines. Celebrating a deal in St. Louis? The first official American Viticultural Area was not Napa, Calif., but Augusta, Mo., along the Missouri Weinstrasse west of St. Louis. Travel taking you to Michigan? Look for the Rieslings or pinot blancs from the Traverse City region. Skiing in Colorado? Grand Junction, on the western slope of the Rockies, produces delicious wines.

A framed picture off to the side shows a pixilated image of her mother and brother, taken from television. In 2005, Mustafic was watching CNN as it showed file footage of the Bosnian War when she saw them on the screen.

"I was in shock," she said. Her brother had died during the war, and her mother had died in 2002. She snapped a picture of the screen, capturing the last moment she saw her family members.

Could designer doughnuts edge out cutesy cupcakes?

By Caryn Rousseau
Associated Press writer

CHICAGO — Pom-egranate thyme and bing cherry balsamic may sound like salad dressings, and lemon chamomile creme custard may evoke thoughts of fancy teas, but they're actually cutting edge flavors in the latest fad to hit the baking scene — doughnuts.

So much for glazed and jelly.

Fresh off the nation's fascination with cupcakes, bakers across the country are experimenting with gourmet flavor combinations and unorthodox ingredients in doughnuts, everything from meats to Cocoa Puffs breakfast cereal.

At Glazed Donuts Chicago, for example, mint leaves spring from the holes of iced mint mojito doughnuts. Baker Kirsten Anderson also adds grape jelly to the dough of her peanut butter and jelly doughnuts.

"You're taking a relatively inexpensive item and you're turning it into a luxury item," says Anderson, whose seasonal offerings also have included butternut squash and white chocolate blueberry doughnuts.

"So maybe people can't afford the best house or the best car, but they can go out and buy a piece of indulgence at a price they can afford."

Paul Mullins, author of "Glazed America: A History of the Doughnut," calls them "designer doughnuts," and says the trend defies the stereotype of smoke-filled doughnut shops where laborers linger over burnt coffee and bad doughnuts.

And fancy doughnuts are increasingly common. Designer doughnut shops, bakeries and related businesses have proved popular with young urbanites on both coasts, as well as large cities such as Chicago, Mullins says.

"The chefs, they're really skilled, they are really creative," he says. "These designer doughnuts by reg-

CRAZY IN KETCHUM

At least one south-central Idaho bakery is getting wacky with its doughnuts.

At The Donuts' Lodge, which opened Nov. 11 in Ketchum, the pineapple upside-down cake doughnut has pineapple juice added to the batter, and the doughnut is topped with brown sugar and a pineapple ring. "It's really popular. It's one of our best sellers," kitchen manager Mary Souza said. Candy-coated doughnuts are glazed in chocolate then dipped in broken pieces of Reese's Peanut Butter Cups, Kit Kats or Oreos.

The Donuts' Lodge is open 5 a.m. to 5 p.m. seven days a week at 380 Washington Ave.; 726-6407.

With just a couple of months in business, Souza hasn't had time yet to develop everything innovative that she'd like to. By the end of January she'll start working on a savory doughnut with caramelized onions.

studio in a way, where I create," Isreal says. "You're going to have a flavor and a texture that is totally new for a doughnut, and that's exciting."

Designer doughnuts aren't as popular as cupcakes, which spawned a craze of cafes and bakeries, but the groundwork is there, says Sarah Levy, a pastry chef who owns two dessert shops in Chicago and is author of "Sweetness: Delicious Baked Treats for Every Occasion."

"It's an item where you can put a unique twist to it to kind of freshen it and make it exciting again," she says. "It's kind of a cool blank slate that you can doctor up and make them festive with different ingredients."

At Voodoo Doughnuts in Portland, Ore., owner Kenneth "Cat Daddy" Pogson says the bakery puts a signature stamp on doughnuts by using sugar cereals such as Fruit Loops and bacon strips as ingredients. The shop's bacon maple bar doughnut came to be after a discussion about mixing savory and sweet flavors.

"I walked in with some bacon one day and boom, there it was," Pogson says. "Two strips of bacon."

Not up for frying? Try baked doughnuts

By Alison Ladman
For The Associated Press

Not ready to brave the deep fryer for a do-it-yourself doughnut? These simple baked chocolate doughnuts take the hot oil out of the equation. And once you slather them with a chocolate glaze, you'll never know you skipped the frying.

To make your own designer doughnut, substitute lager or another dark beer for the water in the glaze. Dip cooled doughnuts into the glaze, then set aside to cool or coat with candy sprinkles. You also could flavor the doughnuts by adding orange or almond extracts.

BAKED CHOCOLATE DOUGHNUTS

Start to finish: 2 hours (30 minutes active). Makes 24 doughnuts and 24 doughnut holes.

For the doughnuts:

1 1/3 cups milk
2 tablespoons butter
2 1/2 teaspoons yeast
4 1/2 cups all-purpose flour
1 cup cocoa powder
1 teaspoon salt
2/3 cup granulated sugar
2 eggs

For the glaze:

3 tablespoons butter
2 ounces unsweetened chocolate
2 cups powdered sugar
1/4 cup water

In a small saucepan over medium, heat the milk and butter until the butter is just melted. Set aside until cooled to between 95 degrees and 105 degrees.

Once the milk mixture has cooled, transfer to the bowl of a stand mixer. Add the yeast and let stand until bubbly, about 5 minutes.

Meanwhile, sift together the flour, cocoa powder and salt.

When the yeast and milk are ready, add the flour mixture, sugar and eggs. Using the mixer's dough hook attachment, mix on low speed until the dough comes together. Increase speed to medium and mix for 3 minutes.

Transfer the dough to a clean bowl, cover with a towel and let rise for 1 hour.

Coat 2 baking sheets with cooking spray.

Transfer the dough to a lightly floured surface and roll out to 1/2 inch thick. Use a 3-inch round cookie cutter to cut out circles, then use a 1-inch round cutter to remove center holes from each.

Arrange the rings and holes on the prepared baking sheets. Cover loosely with a towel and let rise for 30 minutes.

Heat the oven to 350 degrees.

Bake the doughnuts for about 20 minutes, or until they feel slightly firm to the touch. The doughnuts will not change color. Transfer the doughnuts to a wire wrack to cool at least 15 minutes before glazing.

To make the glaze, in a small saucepan over low heat, melt the butter and chocolate. Stir until fully melted, then remove from the heat. Stir in the powdered sugar and water. Let cool slightly, then dunk doughnuts into it.

Designer doughnuts are hot. Why not make your own?

The Associated Press

So maybe you're not quite ready to make — or even try — pomegranate thyme doughnuts. Don't worry. This recipe for fried doughnuts from Food Network host Alton Brown will give you back-to-basics good flavor without too much trouble.

The doughnuts are delicious as is, or sprinkled with powdered sugar or a blend of powdered sugar and either cocoa powder or cinnamon. You also could glaze them with a mix of powdered sugar, vanilla extract and a splash of water or milk, then coat them with candy sprinkles.

To make a chocolate ganache to dip the doughnuts in, slowly melt together equal parts cream and chopped dark chocolate (about 4 ounces of each should be enough). Let cool a bit before using.

Because the doughnuts are fried, the oil will cause them to absorb powdered coatings. Be sure to coat the doughnuts just before serving.

Think of these basic fried doughnuts as a blank slate with which to create your own masterpiece.

BASIC FRIED DOUGHNUTS

Start to finish: 2 hours. Makes 20 to 25 doughnuts.

1 1/2 cups milk
1/3 cup vegetable shortening
1 tablespoon plus 2 teaspoons (2 packages) instant yeast
1/3 cup warm water (95 degrees to 105 degrees)
2 eggs, beaten
1/4 cup sugar

1 1/2 teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon nutmeg
5 1/2 cups all-purpose flour, plus more for dusting
Vegetable oil, for frying (1/2 to 1 gallon, depending on fryer)

In a medium saucepan over medium, heat the milk just until warm enough to melt the shortening. Place the shortening in a bowl and pour the warmed milk over it. Set aside.

In a small bowl, sprinkle the yeast over the warm water and let dissolve for 5 minutes. After 5 minutes, pour the yeast mixture into the large bowl of a stand mixer and add the milk and shortening mixture, first making sure the milk and shortening mixture has cooled to lukewarm.

Add the eggs, sugar, salt, nutmeg and half of the flour. Using the paddle attachment, combine the ingredients on low speed until the flour is incorporated. Increase the speed to medium and beat until well combined.

Add the remaining flour, combining on low speed at first, then increase the speed to medium and beat well.

Change to the dough hook attachment of the mixer and beat on medium speed until the dough pulls away from the bowl and becomes smooth, approximately 3 to 4 minutes. Transfer to a well-oiled bowl, cover and let rise for 1 hour, or until doubled in size.

On a well-floured surface, roll out the dough to 3/8-inch thick. Cut out the dough using a 2 1/2-inch doughnut cutter or pastry ring and using a 7/8-inch ring for the center hole. Set the cut doughnuts on a floured baking sheet, cover lightly with a towel, and let rise for 30 minutes.

Heat the oil in a deep fryer or Dutch oven to 365 degrees.

Three or four at a time, gently place the doughnuts into the oil. Cook for 1 minute per side, then transfer the doughnuts to a cooling rack placed in baking pan (to catch drips). Allow to cool for 15 to 20 minutes prior to glazing, if desired.

Farewell to Dell – URA terminates lease

Building and equipment valued at nearly $6 million

By Joshua Palmer
Times-News writer

The Twin Falls Urban Renewal Agency terminated its building lease with Dell – placing the nearly $5.6 million building in the hands of taxpayers.

The unanimous decision was made during the agency’s board meeting

Tuesday, after discussions with the computer maker over the future of the building.

When Dell Computers Inc. announced in September that it was shutting down the call center, it never mentioned what it planned to do with the building. In December, the computer maker informed city officials that it was no longer interested in the facility and asked to terminate the 10-year lease agreement.

Dell handed over the paperwork to the building, which surprised city officials who learned the building it leased for $3 million in 2002 was now insured for more than $5.6 million.

Agency board members said it was only good business sense to terminate the lease and find another employer.

“We would be making a big mistake if we didn’t buy the building,” said board member Kent Cramer. “We owe it to the taxpayers to buy this building and put an employer in there that will put people back to work.”

But the acquisition came with a price tag.

City Economic Development Director Melinda Anderson estimated the cost of acquiring and maintaining the former call center through 2011 at more than $1.1 million. The cost includes paying down more

Report: More men get economic boost from getting married

By David Crary
Associated Press writer

Historically, marriage was the surest route to financial security for women. Nowadays it’s men who are increasingly getting the biggest economic boost from tying the knot, according to a new analysis of census data.

The changes, summarized in a Pew Research Center report released Tuesday, reflect the proliferation of working wives over the past 40 years – a period in which American women outpaced men in both education and earnings growth. A larger share of today’s men, compared with their 1970 counterparts, are married to women whose education and income exceed their own, and a larger share of women are married to men with less education and income.

“From an economic perspective, these trends have contributed to a gender role reversal in the gains from marriage,” wrote the report’s authors, Richard Fry and D’Vera Cohn.

“In the past, when relatively few wives worked, marriage enhanced the economics status of women more than that of men. In recent decades, however, the economic gains associated with marriage have been greater for men.”

One barometer is median household income – which rose 60 percent between 1970 and 2007 for married men, married women and unmarried women, but only 16 percent for unmarried men, according to the Pew data.

The report focused on U.S.-born men and women aged 30-44 – a stage when typical adults have finished their education, married and launched careers. The Pew report noted that today’s Americans in this age group are the first such cohort in U.S. history to include more women than men with college degrees.

In 1970, according to the report, 28 percent of wives in this age range had husbands who were better educated than they were, outnumbering the 20 percent whose husbands had less education. By 2007, these patterns had reversed – 19 percent of wives had husbands with more education, compared with 28 percent whose husbands had less education.

Lee Enterprises sees profit, improving ad revenue

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Lee Enterprises Inc., which publishes the Times-News, St. Louis Post-Dispatch and other newspapers, posted its second consecutive quarterly profit Tuesday, helped by falling costs and a smaller drop in ad revenue.

Like other publishers, Lee has been trimming expenses to deal with a prolonged slump that has reduced ad revenue by as much as a third at some newspapers. Lee cut 1,000 jobs in its fiscal 2009, ending the year with about 7,200 employees. It also has outsourced operations such as printing and delivery.

Lee, the first newspaper publisher to report results for the final three months of 2009, offered some optimism, sending its shares up 10 percent in trading.

Lee said ad trends improved throughout its fiscal first quarter, which ended Dec. 27. That improvement “appears to be continuing into January and February,” CEO Mary Junck said in a statement.

Lee’s ad revenue dropped 16.4 percent from the same quarter a year earlier. In the prior quarter,

Montana innkeepers puzzled over tourism numbers

The Associated Press

BILLINGS, Mont. — Montana innkeepers are puzzled over statistics that show visitation at state and national parks was up last year, while hotel occupancy rates plunged.

Montana state parks hosted a record 2 million visitors in 2009, but the state’s lodging occupancy rates were down more than 5 percent through November of last year, according to Montana tourism statistics.

“There’s been a lot of confusion about that,” said Steve Wahrlich, owner of the Best Western Clock Tower Inn in downtown

Billings. “Are these people just driving to the park and turning around and going home? I don’t tend to believe that.”

In Glacier Country — the Montana tourism region surrounding Glacier National Park — lodging tax collections were down 9 percent. Glacier National Park visitation topped 2 million visitors for just the third time in its history. Bed-tax collections in Yellowstone Country were down 6 percent, though Yellowstone National Park set a record with more than 3.2 million visitors.

Manufacturers launch alliance to promote and connect industry

By Joshua Palmer
Times-News writer

Manufacturers from south-central Idaho have organized an alliance to help the industry address regional concerns and pool resources that might otherwise go unused.

The Southern Idaho Manufacturers Alliance, which is a partner with the Twin Falls, Jerome, Mini-Cassia and Hailey chambers of commerce, met Tuesday in Twin Falls to promote the alliance – and hopefully garner more members.

The alliance was created with the help of $67,000 from the federal Workforce Innovations in Regional Economic Development grant. However, that money will run out in June so the organization must find a way to sustain itself financially.

The program brings together manufacturers and food processors, which accounted for almost 13 percent, or $76 million, of total payroll in south-central Idaho during the third quarter of 2009.

The industries employed more than 10 percent of the region’s total covered workforce during the same quarter, according to Idaho Department of Labor. Covered workers are those whose employers pay into the unemployment insurance fund.

Some of the regions largest employers include Jayco Inc., Seastroms Manufacturing, Hilex Poly Co. and Dutchman.

Twin Falls Area Chamber of Commerce President and CEO Shawn Barigar said the alliance also hopes to change misperceptions about the manufacturing industry.

Kraft Foods, Cadbury agree on $18.9B deal

By Robert Barr
Associated Press writer

LONDON — British candy maker Cadbury PLC on Tuesday accepted and recommended to shareholders Kraft’s takeover offer worth $18.9 billion, potentially ending a months-long corporate battle to create the world’s largest maker of chocolate and sweets.

The U.S. food conglomerate said the board of Cadbury, maker of Creme Eggs and Dentyne gum, had unanimously endorsed the offer.

The combined companies would be the world leader in chocolate and sweets, Kraft said, and No. 2 globally in the high-growth gum market.

“We have great respect for Cadbury’s brands, heritage and people. We believe they will thrive as part of Kraft Foods,” said Kraft’s CEO Irene Rosenfield. “This rec-

THE STATE OF IDAHO SENDS GREETINGS TO:

DOUGLAS PITTMAN*2823 1/2 Rockefeller Ave.*Everett, Washington 98201-3524

YOU ARE NOTIFIED THAT:

A Petition, a copy of which is attached, has been filed in the above-entitled matter in the Magistrate's Division of the District Court of Twin Falls County, Idaho, by the Prosecuting Attorney, alleging the above-named children come within the Court's jurisdiction under the Child Protective Act.

You are hereby directed to appear personally for a Review Hearing at the Twin Falls County Courthouse, 425 Shoshone Street, Twin Falls, Idaho, on March 18, 2010 at 9:30 AM.

You are notified that service of the attached Petition upon you, as the parent(s), guardian, or custodian of these children, confers personal jurisdiction of the court upon you and subjects you to the provisions of the Child Protective Act.

You are notified that if you fail to appear without reasonable cause, the Court may proceed in your absence or you may be proceeded against for contempt of Court.

You are notified that the parent(s), guardian, or a custodian may be financially liable for the support and/or treatment of the children.

You are further notified that the children and parent(s), guardian, or custodian have the right to be represented by an attorney of your choosing, or if financially unable to pay, have the right to have an attorney appointed by the Court to represent the children or the parent(s), guardian, or custodian at county expense. This presumption may be rebutted by a finding of the court that the filing of a Petition for Termination of Parental Rights would not be in the best interest of the child and their family, or that the child is placed permanently with a relative.

WITNESS MY HAND AND SEAL of said Magistrate Court this 8th day of January, 1010.

JOSHUA GROW,

d.o.b. 08-23-09

Children under the age of eighteen.

THE STATE OF IDAHO SENDS GREETINGS TO:

ANDREW STOUT*Unknown*LOUIS RUNNER*Unknown

YOU ARE NOTIFIED THAT:

A Petition, a copy of which is attached, has been filed in the above-entitled matter in the Magistrate's Division of the District Court of Twin Falls County, Idaho, by the Prosecuting Attorney, alleging the above-named children come within the Court's jurisdiction under the Child Protective Act.

You are hereby directed to appear personally for a Review Hearing at the Twin Falls County Courthouse, 425 Shoshone Street, Twin Falls, Idaho, on March 18, 2010 at 9:30 AM.

You are notified that service of the attached Petition upon you, as the parent(s), guardian, or custodian of these children, confers personal jurisdiction of the court upon you and subjects you to the provisions of the Child Protective Act.

You are notified that if you fail to appear without reasonable cause, the Court may proceed in your absence or you may be proceeded against for contempt of Court.

You are notified that the parent(s), guardian, or a custodian may be financially liable for the support and/or treatment of the children.

You are further notified that the children and parent(s), guardian, or custodian have the right to be represented by an attorney of your choosing, or if financially unable to pay, have the right to have an attorney appointed by the Court to represent the children or the parent(s), guardian, or custodian at county expense. If you request to have an attorney appointed at county expense, you must appear before the date of the hearing given above, at which time the Court shall consider appointment of an attorney for the children and inquire whether the parent(s), guardian, or custodian require the separate appointment of an attorney.

You are further notified that there shall be a rebuttable presumption that if a child is placed in the custody of the IDHW and was also placed in out of the home care for a period not less than fifteen (15) out of the last twenty-two (22) months from the date of Adjudication, the IDHW shall initiate a Petition for Termination of Parental Rights. This presumption may be rebutted by a finding of the court that the filing of a Petition for Termination of Parental Rights would not be in the best interest of the child and their family, or that the child is placed permanently with a relative.

WITNESS MY HAND AND SEAL of said Magistrate Court this 8th day of January, 1010.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

"Oh, tempt me not! I love too well
this snare
Of silken cords."
— Laurence Housman

When West leads the spade five against three no-trump, declarer must plan to knock out both red aces. (It should also be clear that East does not have both aces, by virtue of his failure to open the bidding.)

At first glance, it seems that South must guess which ace East holds. Then, to isolate the spades, attack that suit first. But in fact that may not be necessary if East falls for the bait and covers North's spade queen with his king. The safe way home now is to duck this trick. If East continues spades, declarer wins in hand and can attack either red suit, as spades are not established, and even if West gains the lead with his ace, he will have no spade left to play to his partner.

Note, though, that East has a counter. By withholding the spade king at trick one, he leaves declarer with a straight guess as to which red suit to play on for his contract. South fails if he attacks hearts before diamonds, as West has a second spade to play through to his partner, and East will get in with the diamond ace to run his spades.

If South plays low from dummy at trick one, would East be up to playing the nine rather than the jack? I do not know. But bear in mind that it might even be necessary to cover if declarer had a four-card spade suit, holding him to two tricks in that suit.

ANSWER: Bidding a hand like this is largely a generational issue. Those over 40 will double, convinced that an overcall could never describe a hand this strong. Those under 40 will be happy to make a one-heart overcall, believing that as the auction advances, they can come in again to show extras. They worry that if they start by doubling, pre-empting by the opponents will make it hard to bid the hand at a safe level.

IF JANUARY 20 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: This year may be one in which there is a spike in your ambition. For the next several weeks, you may become engrossed in a consuming passion or hookup with a new partner who challenges you to perform at peak level. Don't let your romantic heart lead you astray because you must buckle down in March and take care of responsibilities to the exclusion of all else. In October your judgment is better than usual, so it is a good time for major decisions. Something fortunate could land in your lap or you can start something of importance that will bring you enduring prosperity or peace.

HOROSCOPE

Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Sometimes you only want what you can't have until you actually get it; then you find it isn't as attractive as you hoped.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A little love goes a long, long way. You or a significant other might try too hard to make a favorable impression on others.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Don't jump out of the frying pan and into the fire. Don't act on impulses and whims where loved ones are concerned.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Easy come, easy go. You may feel there is a contest to see who can spend the most or who will land on top by picking up the tab.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Don't use a battering ram if a door knocker is at hand. There is a tendency to be overly forceful in social situations.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Under these stars it is wise to carry very little cash and to avoid impulsive shopping trips filled with temptations.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): The thrill is in the chase. While you ride the romantic merry-go-round everything seems exhilarating.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Close the book of Shakespeare and face reality when dealing with members of the opposite sex. "Romeo and Juliet" didn't end happily.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Familiarity can breed contempt or at least cause friction. Ignore a tendency to see a challenge in every word.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Friendly flirting can be fatal. What you consider to be merely some harmless fun may be easily misunderstood today.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Remain quietly understanding even if it seems like there are long hours when everyone opposes your desires.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You could flirt with danger or flirt with a member of the opposite sex; you may be tempted to spend too much.

THOUGHT FOR TODAY

"America is woven of many strands. I would recognise them and let it so remain. Our fate is to become one, and yet many. This is not prophecy, but description."

— Ralph Ellison, American author (1913-1994)

Majority of you favor the current crossword

Dear crossword puzzle devotees--

Earlier this month I asked Times-News readers to rate our daily crossword puzzle. You were asked if it was too easy, too difficult, or just about right. More than 150 of you responded and I thank you.

The tally:

Too hard = 1 vote

Too easy = 65 votes

Just about right = 88 votes

Many of you suggested that the daily puzzle could benefit from being just a bit more difficult but were quick to add that you didn't want it as challenging as the Sunday crossword.

I will forward your suggestions to Tribune Media Services, the syndicator of the daily crossword. Perhaps its creator can toughen it up... a little. But as far as replacing it, we'll have to stick with the "majority rules" standard.

Here's an interesting tidbit: Sixty four percent of you who responded by email judged the puzzle as too easy, while only 31% responding by conventional mail said it was too easy.

Thanks for all your interest.

Sincerely,

Brad Hurd, editor/publisher

Last one standing: Shoshone is state's lone unbeaten

By Bradley Guire
Times-News writer

SHOSHONE — Perhaps it was appropriate Tuesday the Indians practiced in the old Shoshone High School gymnasium, a place filled with as much history as hardwood.

It was here that Shoshone head coach Larry Messick forged championship teams in the 1980s, including the 1986-87 and 1988-89 squads, which Messick described as "hellacious" to play against.

The current team is raising some hell of its own through the first half of the regular season. The Indians are the lone remaining undefeated boys basketball team in Idaho, according to records reported to both IdahoSports.com and MaxPreps.com, a pair of Web sites where coaches can update their team's information.

"I love it," said senior Andrew Sortor. "I want to go undefeated."

From the preps to the pros, as the length of a season continues to grow, the goose egg in the loss column can provide a great amount of pride for a team — even though it's no longer necessary to win every game to claim a championship.

The Indians are 11-0 and 2-0 in the Snake River Conference North Division through the first half of the regular season.

Olsen and four-year varsity player Andrew Sortor are two of four seniors, including Justin Santana and Sigi Juarez, who head coach Larry Messick praised as the kind of players that lead by example. Olsen was separated from this group briefly as he made the varsity squad a few years ahead of everyone else, but now that everyone he played with on the junior high team is reunited, it's the best year by far, he said.

The rest of the varsity squad, filled with juniors Ishmael Anguiano, Skye Axelson, Thomas Lanhan, Shane Walsh, Gilberto Hernandez, Cody Race, Nathan Huyser and Nell Valencia, have bought into the team concept along with the seniors and realized their versatility on the court.

"We've got five or six that can lead in scoring any given night," Messick said.

Evidence: Axelson led with 14 points against the Jerome junior varsity (Jan. 18), Lanhan led with a dozen against Hagerman (Jan. 14), Olsen had 17 against Gooding (Jan. 7) and Sortor put up 15 on Gooding (Dec. 4). In addition, these and other teammates have contributed double figures while not leading their team in points.

Although they're enjoying the ride, the Indians are honest with themselves about the situation. As Olsen put it, their most challenging games are yet to come.

"Raft River and Castleford are huge," Sortor said.

But first, the Indians travel to Richfield tonight for a nonconference game, and then host Challis Thursday.

With each win, they take one step closer to the elusive. A perfect season.

TIGERS EARN SHARE OF TITLE

By David Bashore
Times-News writer

JEROME — Momentum. Twin Falls had it, then Jerome stole it away and never gave it back.

Carrie Thibault's steal and coast-to-coast layup early in the second quarter gave the Jerome girls basketball team a lead it never yielded as the Tigers wrapped up a share of the Great Basin Conference regular-season title with a 59-42 win over Twin Falls on Tuesday.

The Bruins (9-7, 4-5 GBC) scored the first seven points of the game and led 12-11 after the first quarter, but Thibault stole the ball, and the lead, from their grasp.

"We just needed some excitement," Thibault said. "The gym was great, the atmosphere was great, and we just needed something to get us going."

Thibault led all scorers with 19 and was one of three players in double figures for Jerome (16-1, 8-0), which won its 36th consecutive game at home and its 15th in a row overall. Aubree Callen scored 18 to go with nine rebounds and five assists, while Baylie Smith added 12 points.

Jerome won the game with a tenacious defensive effort combined with patient offense. The Tigers turned the ball over seven times in the first quarter and only twice in both the second and the third, while continuing to force the issue upon the Bruins.

They employed a 1-2-2 zone pressure defense against the hot outside shooters for Twin Falls, which turned the game after Jerome got burned on the trap a handful of times in the early going.

"We knew they were struggling (from outside), and that was our plan ... that's what Jerome is known for: hard-nosed in-your-face defense," Thibault said. "We knew we just had to put them under pressure, and then it was their game, whether they could handle it. They picked it apart a couple of times, but for the most part we were able to force turnovers."

Twin Falls scored 16 points combined in the middle two quarters after starting the first so brightly. Alexin Clark led the Bruins with 10 points in the loss.

Clark said the young Bruins, who started a sophomore and five juniors, are getting closer to their goals but still remain a work in progress.

"I don't think we let down in the third quarter as much as we just were on our heels, and that was all it took," Clark said. "We need to stay focused and intense for four quarters, and some of the team isn't quite there yet."

Jerome hosts Minico on Thursday, with a chance to claim the GBC regular-season title outright. Twin Falls hosts Filer on Friday.

POCATELLO — Making the team was only the beginning for Kari Green.

Green, a former all-district guard at Jerome High School, walked on to the Idaho State women's basketball team in October 2008. A month later, because of injuries and transfers, she shed her red-shirt status. She played in eight games during the 2008-09 season, scoring one point and tallying five rebounds, two steals and three assists.

This year she's an even bigger part of the program, having already played in five games while recording a block and her first NCAA Division I field goal. More importantly, she's had the time this year to get herself prepared to play, unlike last year when everything came at her so fast.

"It's been easier for me this year," she said before a recent practice. "I stayed in Pocatello this past summer lifting weights and running, and mentally it's been easier, too. I understand more about what it takes to play at this level."

Green tried to walk on at BYU where she started her college studies, but couldn't make the cut. After she transferred to Idaho State, the desire to play was still there. So when head coach Seton Sobolewski had open tryouts, she decided to take a MELBOURNE, Australia — U.S. Open champion Kim Clijsters took another step toward winning a second consecutive Grand Slam with a 6-3, 6-3 win over Tamarine Tanasugarn in the second round of the Australian Open on Wednesday.

Clijsters won the last six games after dropping serve to open the second set against the 32-year-old Thai veteran who was playing her 51st major.

Clijsters will next play No. 19 Nadia Petrova, one of the Russian women already into the third round after French Open champion Svetlana Kuznetsova and Maria Kirilenko advanced earlier Wednesday.

On the men's side, No. 7 Andy Roddick had a 6-3, 6-4, 6-4 win over Brazilian Thomaz Bellucci and No. 11

Fernando Gonzalez of Chile, the 2007 runner-up, beat Turkey's Marsel Ilhan 6-3, 6-4, 7-5.

The 26-year-old Clijsters won at Flushing Meadows in September in only her third tournament back from two years off the tour in which she got married and had a baby.

No. 15-ranked Clijsters improved to 20 wins and three losses since her comeback, a run in which she became the first mother to win a major since Evonne

Oakley puts together two halves to down Valley

Pressure defense keys win for Hornets

By Ryan Howe
Times-News writer

OAKLEY — Through the first part of this season, the Oakley boys basketball team has been notorious for squandering first-half leads.

But the Hornets weren't about to let a 13-point advantage slip away against Valley Tuesday night.

Oakley's aggressive full-court pressure defense and silky-smooth ball movement on offense delivered the Hornets a 62-40 victory over the visiting Vikings.

The win snapped Oakley's four-game losing streak as the Hornets move to 3-6.

"We've been playing some great halves of basketball, now we're working on putting together two good halves of basketball," said Oakley coach Tyler Matlock. "From a coaching aspect, we're trying to keep legs fresh, and we're doing more substituting."

Valley had no answer in the first half for Oakley's 6-foot-5 post Garrett Critchfield. The junior scored 15 of his 18 points before halftime and finished with 13 rebounds.

"That's what I expect from him every night," Matlock said.

Oakley, which has blown halftime leads against Castleford, Carey and Hagerman this season, had to work around Valley's defensive adjustments in the second half. The Vikings collapsed double teams on Critchfield to limit his effectiveness, but that opened up opportunities for the Hornet guards, as Payson Bedke scored 13 points and Hunter Wadsworth had 12, including three 3-pointers.

While Valley (0-12) is still looking for its first win, Tuesday night's effort was much improved from its 72-31 blowout loss to Oakley on Dec. 11. The Vikings made it an 11-point game in the second half but couldn't get any closer. Austin Shawver led Valley in scoring with 12 points and John Cauhorn added 11.

"Tonight's effort was very good," said Valley coach Steve

Favre faces boyhood favorites in Saints

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — It appears that Brett Favre is just like everyone else — he never forgot his first love.

Shortly after Favre and the Minnesota Vikings dismantled Dallas on Sunday to setup a showdown with the Saints in New Orleans for the NFC championship, the 40-year-old quarterback recalled a conversation he had with Saints coach Sean Payton a while back.

"I told him secretly I'm a Saints fan," Favre said.

For years as a kid growing up in southeastern Mississippi, Favre never felt the need to hide his devotion to Archie Manning and the rest of those lovable losers, even as many in the Gulf Coast region were cutting eye holes in grocery bags to avoid being seen at Saints games.

"All of those years I never wore a bag on my head, but I remember those days," Favre said.

New Orleans may not be home for Favre. But when it comes to NFL cities, the Big Easy is as close as it gets. Favre grew up in Kiln, Miss., just an hour's drive away from New Orleans. He played his college ball at Southern Mississippi in Hattiesburg, a mere two hours from Bourbon Street.

Now, in the latest dramatic twist to a 19th season that has been almost too good to be true, the Saints are the last team standing in his way of reaching a third Super Bowl. Favre and the Vikings will go into the Superdome on Sunday with a trip to Miami on the line.

"We didn't think we were going to actually play," Favre said of his past conversations with Payton. "There was always an outside chance, but go figure."

As this storybook season draws closer to a conclusion for Favre, it almost had to be this way.

After signing with the rival Vikings, Favre has already stuck it to the Green Bay Packers twice in convincing fashion.

With a four-TD performance against the Cowboys last weekend, he became the first quarterback to win a playoff game in his 40s and has put together one of the best seasons of his brilliant career. He has thrown 37 touchdown passes and a career-low seven interceptions. His 107.2 rating in the regular season was by far the highest of his career and his 4,202 yards passing were third-most behind seasons in 1995 and 1998, a lifetime ago in NFL years.

Favre led the Vikings to a 12-4 season and a first-round bye in the playoffs, just the second time since 1975 that Minnesota has won at least 12 games in the regular season.

If he is to lead the Vikings to their first Super Bowl appearance since the 1976 season, it will have to be at the expense of the team that was so close to his heart for so long. Favre loved the Saints as a kid, even mimicking Manning in backyard football games of his youth.

Bills hire Chan Gailey as head coach

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. — Chan Gailey's second chance to prove himself as an NFL head coach comes with plenty of challenges.

The Buffalo Bills team he's taking over hasn't made the playoffs in a decade and its fans have been clamoring for Bill Cowher during a coaching search that seemed to take forever.

Instead of landing one of the big-name coaches with loaded resumes such as Cowher or Mike Shanahan, Gailey — who coached the Dallas Cowboys for two less-than-inspiring seasons — was introduced Tuesday as the 15th head coach in Bills history — and fifth in 10 years.

"I can't say anything to change anybody's mind. All I can do is go try to help us win football games," Gailey said. "We win football games, everybody's minds will be changed, right?"

Gailey was hired by first-time general manager Buddy Nix, ending a two-month search to replace Dick Jauron, who was fired in November. He takes over a Bills team coming off its fifth straight losing season following a 6-10 finish, and in the midst of a 10-year playoff drought that is tied with Detroit as the longest active streak in the NFL.

NFL: 53 NON-SENIORS APPLY FOR DRAFT

NEW YORK — The expected heavy influx of non-seniors applying for this year's NFL draft did not happen despite looming labor unrest in the league.

Although a record-tying 53 players declared for early entry, that number released Tuesday by the NFL was short of most projections.

Six All-Americans did apply for the draft: defensive backs Eric Berry of Tennessee and Joe Haden of Florida; defensive end Derrick Morgan of Georgia Tech; tight end Aaron Hernandez of Florida; line-backer Rolando McClain of chance. It may have been the best decision of her life.

"I haven't had time to actually sit back and think about everything that's happened over the past year because we've been constantly busy, but it's been a lot of fun," said Green. "I enjoy being around my teammates and seeing them every day."

Green recalls the details of his first collegiate field goal, which came during a Dec. 29 game against Great Falls (Mont.) College.

"I drove the baseline and somebody knocked the ball away from behind me," said Green. "I recovered it and it seemed like everyone who was guarding the area disappeared so I shot it and it went in. Then when I was running back down the floor I wasn't thinking about my first made basket, I was thinking about where my man was because I had to play defense."

Spoken like a player who has absorbed Sobolewski's defensive philosophy. Her teammates are buying in as well, which is why ISU has won eight of 10 and three in row. The Bengals are 4-1 in Big Sky Conference play entering Friday's game at league-leader Eastern Washington.

Green is just enjoying her small role in that success.

"My job is that when I'm in practice or in a game to concentrate on the little things so that I can do a better job and help the team more," she said. "And I'm there to support my teammates anyway that I can when I'm on the bench."

The Bengals' rise up the Big Sky standings comes after a 1-7 start during a tough nonconference slate.

"We've deserved every one of our wins because of all the hard work we put in," said Green. "We've got good talent, some great freshmen and we're tough."
